Miners Sent Back To Pits

Order Effective To Oct. 31 If Government Holds Mines

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 22:—John L. Lewis tonight ordered his mine workers back into the pits until Oct. 31, with a broad indication that during that time they would resort to the courts to obtain the portal-to-portal pay they failed to get from the War Labor board (WLB).

The action came just a few hours after the WLB had referred the coal strike to President Roosevelt with a call for the use of "all the power of government" to force Lewis into a working contract in line with WLB directions.

Reports from the fields indicated some of the mines, closed for two days by the third work stoppage in seven weeks, will resume operations late tomorrow and virtually full production seemed assured by Thursday.

Says Men Will Work

William Hargest, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers district 5 at Pittsburgh, and several other UMW officials in the chief coal producing states of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, said there was no doubt that the men would obey the back to work order. In Ohio, however, Adolph Pacifico, vice president of UMW district 6 and member of the union's policy committee, declared the men were "dissatisfied with the way the administration has kicked our contract around" and expressed belief it would be difficult to get the men back.

The announcement of the back-to-work decision, issued in the name of the United Mine Workers policy committee, laid heavy stress on the fact that the men were returning to work under existing pay and conditions, only as employes of the government and not of the mine ownership.

For Government Only

"This arrangement," the statement said, "is predicated upon operation of the mines and their collateral production units by the United States government and will automatically terminate if government control is vacated prior to the above mentioned date."

The indication of reliance on courts to get underground travel pay came in this paragraph of the announcement:

"The executive officers of the international union are hereby expressly authorized to exercise their discretion in the filing of suits at law, or by any other necessary means, to protect the equity of the membership in the matter of portal to portal compensation, both as to current and deferred liability."

The UMW chief was asked after the policy committee meeting if there were any other arrange-

Crosbyton Man Drowns At Falls

CROSBYTON, June 22. (Special) — John Haney, 62, district clerk of Crosby county, was drowned about 6 o'clock this afternoon at Crystal Falls near a roadside park on U. S. highway No. 82 about two and a half miles east of Crosbyton.

Haney died when he attemped ot rescue Jackie Ann Bembry, 12, from a hole, estimated about 12 feet in depth, adjacent to the falls. He had led the Bembry girl, his 12-year-old niece, Mary Jane Ruffner and another girl into the water to wade. Two Ralls youths whose last name is Young retrieved Haney's body.

The Bembry girl was given artificial respiration and her condition tonight was satisfactory, according to Curry Funeral home.

Funeral services had not been arranged.

Haney, who was deputy tax collector of Crosby county for six years before taking the office of district clerk last Jan. 1, is survived by his wife; three children, John Raymond Haney, Sheppard field, Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, Alpine, Mrs. Bobbie Cloe Ammons, Lubbock; two brothers, F. P. Haney, Santa Rosa, W. D. Haney, Lubbock; one sister, Mrs. Daisy Emery, Lubbock; and two grandchildren.

Haney was born in Parker county, Texas. He had been a resident of Crosby county 23 years.

Allied Convoy System Said To Be Improving

STOCKHOLM, June 22. (AP) — Dispatches from Berlin today quoted "Die Kreigsmarine," prominent German naval publication, as saying that the Allies' Atlantic convoy system was improving steadily and that the Nazis would have to develop new types of submarines and better attacking methods to overcome it.

City Quiet Under U.S. Army Patrol

DETROIT, June 22 (AP)—Under orders to "load your guns and don't take anything from anybody," United States Army troops patrolled Detroit streets today, restoring calm to this great armament production center after 24 hours of racial conflict that brought death to 28 persons and injuries of varying degree to at least 700 others.

All but three of the dead were negroes; of the injured 74 remained in hospitals today, six of them policemen.

An estimated 1,300 persons were under arrest. Police officials said that about 85 per cent of them were negroes averaging in age around 21. Most of them were held in specially established prisons guarded by Michigan state troops.

Army Halts Violence

With the arrival of the Army troops the violence and looting that flared up in different sections of the city from early Monday morning until last midnight subsided. Today there had been no reports of further conflict, but saloons remained closed and public assemblages still were banned.

Thousands of negro factory workers, said to be fearful of renewed outbreaks, stayed away from work. An Office of War information survey indicated negro factory absenteeism today ranged from 50 to 90 per cent. The effect upon war goods production, plant spokesmen said, probably would not be apparent until tomorrow.

Canceled were today's Cleveland-Detroit baseball game and the day's horse racing program at the Michigan State fair grounds. Theaters were permitted to remain open only until 9:15 p. m. (eastern war time) and a curfew ordering all law-abiding citizens off the streets from 10 p. m. until 6 a. m. also continued in effect.

Governor Harry F. Kelly, who invoked these restrictions, announced after a conference with Army officers that the troops would stay in the Detroit area indefinitely.

34 Negroes Sentenced

In recorder's court today 31 men and three women, all negroes, convicted of disturbing the peace in yesterday's rioting were sentenced to 90-day terms in the Detroit house of correction.

Lieut. Col. Harold Ambrose told the 43th annual convention of the International Circulation Managers' association that Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson would announce the regulations for Christmas mailing tomorrow.

French Leaders Both Delegated As Commanders

Giraud Will Boss Agrica, DeGaulle All Other Areas

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALGIERS, June 22 — The French committee of national liberation designated two commanders-in-chief today — Gen. Henri Giraud for French forces in North and West Africa, and Gen. Charles De Gaulle for forces in other empire territories, thus averting a threatened disruptive showdown on military authority.

A communique issued after a three-hour session also announced that a "permanent military committee" composed of Giraud and De Gaulle with their respective chiefs-of-staff for Army, Navy and Air would proceed "toward fusion of French forces and constitution of a new single armed force."

U. S.-British Influence

The compromise was reached after the United States and Britain were reported to have stipulated that Giraud must remain in command of French armed forces in North Africa while this area is a base of Allied military operations.

The brief communique added that the committee had approved the "respective nominations of Gen. Alphonse Juin and Gen. Eduard Rene Marie De Larminat as chiefs-of-staff of the armies of the two commanders."

Thus De Gaulle and Giraud remain, at least for the time being, as commanders of their respective armed forces and the thorny question of military leadership seemed solved.

Unanimous Decision

At a press conference after the meeting, Minister of Armaments Jean Monnet, as official spokesman declared that the decision was "absolutely unanimous in the committee," and added that "it is a practical and realistic method of bringing about a unified, single French Army which is so essential."

Later Monnet, acting commissioner of information, declared:

"This is unity. Anything else would be unthinkable. The troops will be paid from a common

Germans Ponder Invasion Trends

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—A German press chief declared today that "in this hour fraught with tension" the signs indicate an Allied offensive "directed primarily against Italy," but "of course the other Mediterranean coasts, especially the Balkans, must be watched, too."

"Italy is expecting invasion," said Erich Schneyder, editor-in-chief of the German news agency, Transocean, in a Berlin radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

The Allied preparations for an assault, he asserted, included "a concentration of warships especially in Gibraltar and Alexandria," fleets of landing craft including tank-carriers, and troop concentrations, among them "strong parachute units" of British soldiers.

Anxiety Is Betrayed

But all this, said Schneyder, betraying the anxiety haunting the Axis peoples, does not "guarantee" an attack against Italy. The plan, he said, might be simply to try for Sicily, Sardenia and Corsica, and not the Italian mainland, in order to clear the Mediterranean.

"The advantages of invasion of European territory in the center of the Mediterranean are obvious," he said, describing Italy as a land with trains "full to bursting" as "great armies" were lined

Elk Hills Lease Stirs Old Case

Navy's Good Faith Is Not Questioned

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—A Justice department official asserted today that the now-abrogated contract for operation of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve contained features going "far beyond" the leases involved in the Teapot Dome scandal, but emphasized that he was not questioning the Navy's good faith.

Meanwhile, a Navy representative insisted that the contract was both legal and, from the standpoint of public interest, "excellent."

Assistant Attorney General Norman Littell mentioned the Teapot Dome affair in testimony to the House Public Lands committee. The committee is inquiring into the contract which Secretary of the Navy Knox executed but later rescinded with Standard Oil of California concerning development of the Elk Hills (Calif.) naval petroleum reserve.

Contract Defended

Keith Kane, legal advisor to the Navy department, defended the contract. He said the Navy would present later its detailed views on the merits of the agreement.

In letters to the House and Senate Naval affairs committee, Knox, meantime, hinted at ulterior motives behind the attacks on the contract. He wrote that while he had ordered abrogation of the contract the Navy would not "under any circumstances surrender willingly to the pressure or intrigue of anyone, public or private, who seeks to exploit and dissipate" the Elk Hills field. He did not elaborate on this point.

While saying the Justice department considered the contract "illegal and invalid," Littell expressed belief that the Navy department entered into it in good faith.

Standard's Views

Rep. Mott (R-Ore) inquired whether Littell thought Standard also made the agreement in good faith.

"I don't know the motives of Standard," Littell replied. "I may have ideas but I don't care to answer that."

Littell said the contract provided for the Navy to pay Standard $1,748,408 for title to the company's surface rights to about

Secret Message Said Allied Unity Emblem

TORONTO, June 22. (AP) — Joseph E. Davies, who recently delivered an exchange of messages between President Roosevelt and Joseph Stalin, declared tonight their contents still were to remain secret "for the protection of all of us," but added:

"It is, however, a fair inference, which we may all take, that this, in and of itself, bespeaks a unity and agreement with reference to military activities or other plans, as between our great leaders, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Stalin, Mr. Roosevelt, and those of the (other) United Nations. That, I am sure, gives to us all great satisfaction."

In a talk prepared for a Canadian-Soviet friendship rally, the former U. S. ambassador to the Soviet Union asserted that mutual confidence between Russia and her allies, particularly Canada and the United States, was essential to a lasting peace, that "without Russia there can be no stable peace."

MAY ATTEND SESSION

AUSTIN, June 22 (AP) — Railroad Commission Chairman Beauford H. Jester said today he would go to Dallas Friday "if possible", for the hearing which the House Naval Affairs sub-committee has scheduled on petroleum reserves and the alleged need for an increase crude oil price. The hearing starts Thursday.

Devastating Air Blows Rock Italian Mainland And Ruhr

Naples And Toe Cities Battered

Great Fires Roar In Factory Areas

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AFRICA, June 22. — Waves of American and British bombers, striking in whipsaw fashion from bases in both North Africa and the Middle East, rocked the Italian mainland yesterday with shattering assaults on the port of Naples, the toe cities of Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni and several other southern industrial towns.

Factory Area Fired

American Flying Fortresses and British Wellingtons intensified the announced campaign to bomb Italian industry out of the war with day-long attacks which left the vital factory area of Naples smoking from 25 great fires, one covering an area a mile wide.

These devastating smashes at the port city and the nearby air stores depot of Cancello, beginning before dawn and continuing into the afternoon, followed Allied broadcasts urging Italian workers to remove themselves and their families from industrial areas and "demonstrate for peace."

At the same time British and American heavy bombers from the Middle East command struck at Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni with pre-dawn and daylight attacks, demolishing harbor installations and starting huge fires.

Mitchells Join Attack

American twin-engined Mitchells joined in the offensive against Mussolini's mainland for the first time. Supported by P-38 Lightning fighters, the medium bombers battered railroad yards and other targets at Salerno and scored 25 direct hits on railroad sidings at Battipaglia. Both towns are south of Naples.

Malta-based Spitfires and Intruders also participated in the widespread Allied assault, plastering rail communications in Sicily and southern Italy with bombs and cannon fire.

Russian Airmen Down 17 Nazis

LONDON, Wednesday, June 23 (AP)—Russian airmen have struck heavy blows at airdromes and supply depots behind the German lines and shot down 17 enemy planes from formations attempting a triple daylight raid in the Leningrad sector, Moscow announced today, but the Soviet midnight communique said ground activity remained comparatively quiet all along the Russian front.

A Moscow broadcast, recorded here by the Soviet monitor shortly after the regular war bulletin was issued, said large formations of Russian planes made heavy attacks on German airdromes and fuel and ammunition dumps before dawn yesterday without losing a plane.

Ares Hit Three Times

German planes, the announcement said, attempted three times Monday to raid "a populated place near Leningrad," but only single raiders broke through. The attackers dropped bonmbs which damaged railroad tracks and downed nine of the Russian planes which challenged them. The announcement said only that 17 German planes were brought down and did not mention how many, if any, were bagged by anti-aircraft fire.

The communique said both sides exchanged artillery fire northwest of Misensk in the pivotal Orel sector and that several German fortifications were demolished.

German planes were said also to have attempted to bomb an objective in that area but were dispersed as they approached the target and two of them were knocked down.

Moscow dispatches said the

Japs Still Maintain Quality Of Planes

AN ADVANCED BASE SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, June 19. (Delayed) (AP) — After 18 months of war there is no sign that Japan has sacrificed quality of its war planes in an effort to step up production.

That is the conclusion of an American Army lieutenant, member of a select group of plane wreckage hunters, who poke around in the twisted remains of enemy Zeros, dive bombers and medium bombers shot down over a wide area of Papua.

He is Lieut. Joseph Phillips of Alton, Ill.

"The Japanese are using just as much care in the construction of their planes now as they did before the war," he says. "I have been watching for parts where inferior workmanship or material shows up first. There is no trace that quality has been sacrificed for quantity."

AIRMEN WEAR ARMOR — Believing that most injuries caused by light shells and fragments can be eliminated, the Eighth U. S. Air force has announced that bomber crews operating over enemy territory will wear protective steel armor. Shown here are two airmen, Sgt. E. L. Frederick (right) of Norwalk, Conn., and T/Sgt. J. W. Texas Badman Jumps From Train And Escapes From Custody Of U. S. Marshal

ROYSE CITY, Tex., June 22. (AP) — Newton Perry (Pete) Baird, 26-year-old Texas badman under numerous sentences for cattle and auto theft, escaped from a Minnesota Deputy U. S. Marshal and another armed guard by jumping from a train window here about 1 p. m. today.

Baird made his way east of Royse City, jumped into a small pick-up truck which had been converted to carry ice, and drove south toward Terrell, J. W. Edge, owner of the truck, told officers.

Edge, an iceman at Royse City, was chopping cotton in a field on his father's farm and had parked the truck at the roadside. He said Baird had a cut on his arm and was limping when he approached the truck.

Baird was being transferred from Minnesota to San Antonio for trial on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Alexandria, La., to Waco.

Scores of officers from Dallas, Rockwall, Collin and Tarrant counties, aided by bloodhounds, were searching the countryside for Baird.

Deputy Marshal James H. Littell of Minneapolis telephoned word of the escape to Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Decker in Dallas, telling Decker that the prisoner jumped from the window of a drawing room of a Missouri-Kansas-Texas train bound for Dallas.

Bloodhounds Join Hunt

U. S. Marshal Red Wright brought bloodhounds from Fort Worth to join a pack taken to Royse City by Sheriff Earl Button of Collin county.

Baid, who escaped jail in Wyoming May 17, was captured by local officers June 2 in Rochester, Minn., and arraigned June 3 in St. Paul on charges of moving a stolen automobile from one state to another.

He was described as six feet two inche stall, weighing about 150 pounds, and very slender. When he escaped he had on tan trousers, and a blue striped shirt. He wore no hat nor coat.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has described Baird as applying modern methods to cattle theft.

FBI records disclored that on June 23, 1942, Baird escaped jail at George West, Tex., in Live Oak county, and that he was captured

29 Baboons Escape From Circus; One Remains At Large

DELTA, Colo., June 22 (AP) Outdistancing a posse of circus men and townspeople, one baboon from the Dailey Brothers circus remained at large tonight after a group of 29 had bowled over a caretaker and scampered to freedom today.

Latest reports said the chattering simian was about two miles west of Delta, apparently frolicking among the cottonwoods along the Gunnison river.

Circus officials believed the lone fugitive would become lonesome and attempt to find its way back.

The baboons spent most of the day trying to elude pursuers after they had bitten a caretaker and escaped as he opened their cage for their morning feeding.

Twenty-one were recaptured by noon, and seven others who had followed the Denver and Rio Grande railroad tracks out of town were rounded up one by one. Several were lassoed by townsmen on horseback.

Census Bureau Can't Believe Own Record

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP) — Census figures showed today nearly 4,000 centenarians in the country, but even the census bureau didn't believe it.

Commenting on the 1940 canvass which showed 3,679 persons at that time claiming to be 100 or older, the bureau said the data "undoubtedly exaggerates the number of centenarians."

Very old people, officials suggested, frequently forget their real age.

Bomb Blasts Shake Country For Miles

BERN, Switzerland, June 22. (AP)—The British raid on Friedrichshafen Sunday night was so powerful, it was reported today, that an eye-witness, ten miles away on the Swiss side of Lake Constance, was blown from the window of his home and three feet back into the room.

The report was published by the Neue Zurcher Zeitung, whose frontier correspondent said he heard 15 heavy explosions. "Houses shook and trees outside swayed as though by a powerful gust of wind," he said and he was twice thrown back from his window by air pressure.

Steel And Rubber Centers Smashed

Yanks Hit By Day And RAF At Night

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Wednesday, June 23 Formations of RAF heavy bombers thundered over the southeast coast toward the continent early today after American Flying Fortresses, completing round-the-clock smashes on the German Ruhr for the first time, kindled a square mile of blazes that raged through the German synthetic rubber town of Huls yesterday.

The American raid, which plunged directly into the heart of Nazi war production, came shortly after the RAF had blasted the important Ruhr steel town of Krefeld with upwards of 2,000 tons of bombs.

Today's RAF operation indicated the Allies were keeping up the bombings, which a German war reporter in a Berlin broadcast described as "conveyor-belt actions."

Yesterday other Flying Fortresses also struck by daylight at the former General Motors plant at Antwerp, and RAF Mitchels smashed docks and shipping at Rotterdam, while great forces of American and British fighters made diversionary sweeps to complete 24 hours of tremendous activity.

Fortresses Unescorted

The Flying Fortresses thrust without escort through strong enemy air and ground defenses to strike Huls, near Recklinghausen, seeking to knock out Buna rubber plants.

Fortress crewmen said mounds of earth appeared raised atop the plant buildings, with trees planted in them. The rubber factory beneath the trees has been built since the start of the war. But American bombers turned the area into sheets of flame.

They left fires and destruction nearly as disastrous as the RAF saturation attack by more than 700 planes during Monday night upon Krefeld, 40 miles southwest of Huls, when the British delivered one of the heaviest bomb loads so far released on any German target. The air ministry gave no other description, but unofficial sources estimated 2,000 tons of bombs were dropped, raining down

Japs Beaten Off In Mubo Attack

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Wednesday, June 23. (AP) — The largest Japanese force to be hurled against Allied lines on the ground front of New Guinea at Mubo was thrown back by Australian troops with American air support Monday afternoon, leaving more than 100 dead or severely wounded.

Today's communique reported the enemy ground defeat in a sector 12 miles below Salamaua where jungle fighters have faced each other without major activity for many weeks.

The ground action was presaged in yesterday's communique telling of strafing action over the area by planes of both sides.

Today's communique also reported that in air fighting over the Aroe islands, 500 miles north of Darwin, one Japanese plane was downed and six damaged.

Attack Sharply Repulsed

"Enemy ground forces attacked our positions on Labibia ridge," the communique reported concerning the Mubo fighting.

"The attack was sharply repulsed with over 100 enemy casualties. Our losses were light. Our attack planes executed close support with a bombing and strafing raid on enemy positions between Pimple Hill and Buigap Creek."

The Aroe action occurred during daylight as four-engined bombers and long range fighters attacked the Japanese seaplane base at Taberfane. The results of the bombing were not observed because of unfavorable weather. Two enemy floating planes were damaged at their moorings by low level strafing. A barge was destroyed and a large lugger damaged.

Several of the float planes tried to intercept the raiders. It was one of these which was shot down. Four others were damaged. The communique said we lost no planes.

THOUGHTS FOR WARTIME

Shirttails Will Be Shorter; Wool For Zoot Suits Banned

DALLAS, June 22. (AP)—Men are going to have more trouble keeping their shirttails in. No wool is allowed for zoot suits. Socks are going to be long again.

These were some of the comments today as southwestern apparel men opened their exhibits and attracted 3,500 buyers from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Robert S. Gates, Dallas salesman, said shirttails will be three inches shorter, by government order.

The hep cats' knee-length coats and chin-high trousers can be made only of composition materials, it was pointed out.

Frank J. Levin, Dallas salesman, said that long socks will be the result of the disappearance of elastic. Men who can't get supporters can roll their socks, he added.

Salesmen were agreed that they had about a third less suits, hats, shirts, ties, socks and pajamas than last year, and almost no shorts at all. But the number of buyers here was twice as great as it had ever been.

Buyers found that all wool materials were available for suits, but there was a shortage of rayon linings for coats.

There was a tendency toward green hats to go with new brown suits. Brims were narrower and crowns higher, said Maurice Bresnen, a salesman. Felt materials were still being made of im-

House Economy Axe Falls Again

Army Specialized Training Program May Be Shortened

DALLAS, June 22. (AP)—Medical, dental and veterinary courses of the Army specialized training program paid for by the government will be cut one-third in length if the Senate concurs with the House on its appropriation bill, it was revealed here today by the Eighth Service command.

Col. E. A. Keyes, director of the Army specialized training program for the Eighth Service command, told college and university representatives attending a conference on this work that he was in receipt of a telegram from the adjutant general's office saying that under the House appropriations bill students who could not complete the specialized training in 24 months would be transferred to the enlisted reserve corps on June 30.

Colonel Keys explained that it required 32 months under the present set-up to finish the medical, dental and veterinary medicine courses, therefore if the bill passed these students would have to pay their own expenses for the first 12 months or not be able to take the courses.

He was instructed by the War department to inform all schools to whom letters of intent have been or will be issued of the possible modification of the program.

This revelation highlighted the closing session of the conference during which 35 colleges and universities of the five states area—Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana — were informed of the specialized training program in all its phases.

Smith Says FDR's Popularity Waning

AUSTIN, June 22 (U.P.)—Lt. Gov. John Lee Smith of Texas, returning from a three-weeks visit to nine Eastern and Midwestern states said today that Roosevelt's popularity is "waning" and predicted that the President's political future hangs on what he does about the anti-strike bill passed by Congress."

"If the President vetoes the anti-strike bill, he will be in a dangerous situation against a possible MacArthur-Farley combination," Smith said. "If he signs the bill, he is going to improve his chances for a fourth term."

Would Quiet Feeling

Smith said that approval of the bill will do much to quiet a feeling that the rest of the country is being called upon for war sacrifices while union labor is being coddled. He said there also is a deep-seated fear that there will be an attempt to continue bureaucractic government in force after the war.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was blamed by the Texan for some part of the race troubles now being experienced. Smith displayed a copy of the New York Amsterdam News, which quotes her as telling a Harlem committee the South is afraid to give a break to the negroes, and that the one thing the South is afraid of is intermarriage.

Stephenson Is Mentioned

Smith said Gov. Coke Stevenson and Jesse Jones of Houston were mentioned by persons he met on his trip as Democratic presidential timber. Smith doubted that Jones would seek the nomination. Personally he favored Stevenson.

On the Republican side, Smith concluded that if the nomination were left to primaries, Wendell Willkie would be the Republican choice but that under the convention system, the party leaders would succeed in naming some one else.

States visited by Smith on his trip were: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

Czech Air Hero Here To Teach Yanks On 'Intruder' Tactics

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)—One of Czecho-Slovakia's outstanding heroes has arrived in the United States to tour Army airfields and acquaint American flyers with the "Intruder" tactics he helped develop over Europe.

He is flight Lt. Karel M. Kuttelwasher of the RAF, decorated 14 times and credited with 29 enemy planes, 16 of them in night fighting.

Intruder pilots try at night to "join" a squadron of German raiders homeward bound after a raid on some English town. With darkness as their camouflage, and the sound of their motors blending with the drone of the enemy squadron, they hold their fire until the German planes throttle down and prepare to land. Then they open up on them with cannon and machineguns.

Cold Shoulder Given Alcohol Plant Fund

A chamber of commerce proposal to raise an operating fund of $100,000, with 10 men putting up $10,000 each, for operating a grain alcohol plant in Lubbock, virtually faded Tuesday morning when only four persons responded to the second call for a meeting to publicly discuss the matter.

Lubbock Chamber of Commerce officials considered the proposition stymied, temporarily at least.

The meeting followed one of last week when final decision was deferred on a proposition submitted for William E. Dampier of New York City, an alcohol distiller of successful experience. Dampier had proposed that he would seek government financing for such a plant if the local company would guarantee capital for its operation.

Officials of the chamber took the view that the time would be inopportune to undertake a campaign to finance such a project through the sale of a large number of small blocks of stock. Nor was there any indication that a smaller group of larger investers might be interested in financing the venture.

Chamber officials emphasized that efforts to obtain an alcohol plant will be continued as opportunities appear, but it will be upon a different basis of financing than that proposed to the meetings.

Rumor Blamed For Texas Riot

AUSTIN, June 22. (U.P.)—Lieut. Col. Sidney C. Mason, commander of Texas State Guard troops under martial law in Beaumont, said today that a "mass of unfounded, vicious rumors" was a main cause of the race riot last week.

"The most greivious thing about the riot," Colonel Mason said, "was the mass of rumors told so strongly and repeated as truth by citizens who, in their excitement, did not stop to check the facts.

Said Call Sent Out

"Many persons who appeared before the court of inquiry told us they had been informed the Beaumont chief of police had sent out a call for all citizens to get to arms. He never did such a thing.

"Anyone who goes around spreading such rumors, and especially when conditions existed such as at Beaumont, is certainly contributing to the war efforts of the Axis."

Colonel Mason said a handful of officers could have controlled the Beaumont situation had it not been for rumor-mongers.

Colonel Mason was high in his praise of local, county and state officers who quieted the rioting and looting. He also complimented Texas State guardsmen who were there from a dozen cities.

Dallas Negro Fined In Ration Violation

DALLAS, June 22 (U.P.) — Conviction violating rationing regulations netted Willie Roseman, negro tavern operator, 30 days in jail and a $100 fine, the first Dallas sentence for rationing violations.

Roseman was sentenced for buying 12 pounds of coffee and five hams without giving ration points.

U. S. District Attorney Clyde Eastus said the coffee and hams were stolen from a Dallas grocery store.

PLAN MEXICO VISIT

MEXICO CITY, June 22 (AP) — Road officials said today that Governor Coke Stevenson of Texas and Governor John Dempsey of New Mexico will come to Mexico next week to talk with President Avila Camacho about completion of a highway from Ciudad Juarez to Mexico City.

The French slang word "Boche," as a synonym for German, was first used in 1870 but came into prominence in the first World War.

Mann Says Texas Needs Revision In Governmental Setup

DALLAS, June 22 (AP)—Attorney General Gerald C. Mann told the Southern Methodist university pastors school here today that the scientist has moved off and left the politician and that Texas' antiquated governmental machinery must be brought up to date.

Comparing government with progress of transportation and inter-community living, he said:

"In our Texas governmental machinery, we have not yet reached the railroad age — much less the age of trucks, automobiles and air."

Mann said there must be some consolidation of the 254 Texas counties, with a county manager system for some of the larger ones.

An up-to-date budget and audit system is needed, he said, and the judicial system needs overhauling. A merit rather than a spoils system of selecting state employes should be adopted, and there should be a centralization of responsibility in the state's chief executive. That way, he said, people can better place responsibility for governmental failures.

Wheat Yield Higher Than Expectations

PLAINVIEW, June 22 (Special) The 1943 grain crop is finding its way to elevators and farm granaries. The wheat harvest is turning out much better than was expected. Some small fields, summer fallowed, with wheat following wheat, and a little volunteer wheat, are running as high as 15 bushes to the acre. There is more volunteer than in years, but the yield from this always is less than from the drilled wheat.

The quality test is high, running 60 to 63. Protein runs around 13 per cent average, which is high. One grain man estimates Hale county's average yield will run 13 bushels an acre or higher and this with many volunteer fields running only 4 or 5 bushels.

The countryside is dotted with combines. The harvest now is in full sway. The aggregate yield for Hale county will be about 50 per cent above the last 10-year average, experts say.

Russia Pointing To Weakness Of Nazis

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

Moscow's communique on the second anniversary of the Soviet-German war gives the impression that Russia regards Germany's military striking power definitely broken.

The Russian argument for a second front now is not couched in the terms of an appeal to save Russia in an hour of peril. Rather, it points out the weakness of the enemy and declares he can be beaten this year by a joint assault from the east and west.

Would End War Speedily

Russia's contention is that delay in taking advantage of the present opportunity would enable Germany to hold out a while longer, whereas a combined attack now would end the war speedily and mean a colossal saving of lives.

The Russian plea is not calculated to change Allied strategic decisions, which have already been made and communicated to the Kremlin. If Russia were going to make an issue of the matter pressure no doubt would be brought through the customary secret channels, not in a public statement.

Adds To War Of Nerves

Nevertheless, it presents what is undoubtedly the authentic Russian viewpoint. It may also prove to be a valuable contribution to the war of nerves against Germany, which is torn between the urgent necessity of using the heavy military strength which it has massed against Russia and the equally urgent necessity of defending itself in Europe.

Citing the presence of 200 German and 30 satelite divisions on the eastern front—a somewhat higher figure than that given by Prime Minister Churchill — the Russian statement declared that the Red army is not underestimating enemy strength and difficulties ahead. It merely used the figures as an argument to stir Allied offensive action.

The plea will not fall on deaf ears. The only Allied comment on the communique thus far is from Secretary Knox, who reiterated the statement that preparations for the second front are in progress. The only question is when and the answer is not being given to the enemy in advance.

The crescendo of the aerial assault on western and southern Europe, exemplified last night and today, is a probable indication that the time is not far off.

Rationing Basis Set On Pressure Cookers

Pressure cookers are being rationed on a basis of probable output in canned food this year, it was said Tuesday at headquarters of the county farm machinery rationing committee at 1320 Avenue Q.

Each cooker purchased is to be used in canning as many as 750 quarts this season.

Because of the shortage of cookers, certificates are not issued unless an applicant has located a cooker he may purchase.

Approximately 70 applications have been received and not more than 25 or 30 cookers have been located by those applying, it was estimated.

Although it is suggested that several families use a cooker in order to can the required amount, one person may obtain the certificate.

The requirement that 750 quarts be canned is waived only in isolated instances, as in the case of a family located at considerable distance from other families with whom the cooker might be shared.

LEAVES $72,000 ESTATE

HOLLYWOOD, June 22. (U.P.) — Conrad Veidt, movie actor, left a $72,000 estate to his widow, Mrs. Lily Veidt, and his daughter by a previous marriage, Viola Vera Maria Veidt, 17, filing of his will for probate revealed today. The will provided that 60 per cent of the estate be placed in a trust fund for the daughter, who resides with her mother in Geneva, Switzerland, and the remaining 40 per cent to be paid outright to Mrs. Veidt, a resident of Beverly Hills. The actor's first wife also received a monthly bequest.

Preparations Are Said Going Along

WASHINGTON, June 22. (U.P.)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said today that preparations for opening a European front have been going forward "right along."

Asked at his press conference for comment on renewed Russian pleas for a second front in Europe, Knox said he would not comment specifically on the Soviet plea but he added:

Preparaitons Going On

"Preparations for an attack on Europe have been going forward right along. There has been no cessation in these activities."

He said he was not at liberty to discuss details about second front plans in specific terms, particularly as to time and place.

In response to other questions, Knox said that so far as he knew there has been no interference with Russian supply ship movements from the United States across the Pacific to Vladivostok.

"Those supply lines are still functioning so far as I know," he said. "Whether the Japanese are holding up the ships and examining them I don't know. But nothing has developed on that route which would provide an international incident.

"Both sides apparently are keeping very carefully away from anything that would precipitate an incident while the Russians are occupied with Germany and the west, and Japan doesn't want to take on Russia."

Supply Lines Functioning

Asked whether he knew of any Russian ships being seized in the Pacific, as had been rumored in recent days, Knox answered:

"I don't know of any."

As for the United States' Pacific supply lines, they too are functioning, he said. Any losses which have occurred, Knox said, have been announced.

There was nothing much else to report about the Pacific except the usual amount of bombing is being carried on.

Asked for information as to the progress of the U. S. aircraft carrier building program, Knox said he could repeat only what he said in a recent speech, and that was that the number built at the end of this year would be several times the number in existence at the end of 1942.

Knox also said that there would be "plenty" of planes for these new carriers.

Asked about Axis radio reports that American fleet units had joined with the British in the Mediterranean, he said he knew of no such movement although some American elements may have gone into the Mediterranean on a mission and come out again. He reminded the newsmen that the Mediterranean was the responsibility of the British fleet.

Nearly Third Of U.S. Sawmills Idle In May

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP) — Twenty-seven per cent of the country's 31,814 saw mills were idle in May because of shortages of logs, manpower and equipment, the U. S. Forest service and the lumber division of the War Production Board reported today.

The survey revealed that small mills made up 86 per cent of the idle group. Of the 9,740 mills shut down for other than seasonal causes, 9,052 were in the East and 688 were in the West.

At the same time, the agencies noted, there continued to be "high demand for lumber and large backlogs of unfilled orders."

The number of mills and the percentages of them idle last month included:

Lower Mississippi region (Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas): 3,328 mills; 34 per cent idle.

Youth Held For Theft Of Bicycle

Bond of $1,000 was posted Tuesday by 17-year-old Billy Joe Whitehead, who had pleaded innocent of a county court charge of bike theft. C. H. Morrow had charged he found young Whitehead riding the wheel Saturday afternoon. Morrow took the youth and the bike to the police station.

Theft of $160 from Ivey Huddleston and $4 from Hoyt Agnew, employes of the Fourteenth street and Avenue J service and sales station operated by Bill Dean, had not resulted in any arrests, police said. The men said they left their billfolds in their trousers in a dressing room of the station when they donned old clothing and went to work.

Deputy Sheriff Cap Moore returned late Tuesday from Coleman with a 17-year-old negro, Andrew Jackson, who had been accused of theft over $50. Another negro had charged Jackson slept with him recently. "but got up first, and got in my pants pockets and took about $21."

Police said Sam Hutson, Lamb county sheriff, had called to report a missing Littlefield man. The man, 30, 6 feet tall and weighing 150 pounds went to his father's home in Littlefield Sunday, laid his coat across a bed, took the family automobile and "just disappeared," the sheriff related. He was driving a 1937 Chevrolet coach. It was feared he was "mentally deranged," Sheriff Hutson said.

Juvenile officials held a 12-year-old negro boy in county jail's juvenile ward, for investigation into his possession of a bike. His parents, not satisfied at his story of acquired ownership, called officials and turned the boy over to them.

A fine of $13 was levied by police against Frances Babiene, 19, charged with theft of a dress from a woman in 1100-block Eighth street

Purported Interview With Gen. Wainwright Is Broadcast By Tokyo Radio; Commander At Corregidor Said Held In Formosa Camp

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22. (U.P.) — Tokyo radio today broadcast what was purported to be a Domei News agency interview with Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, heroic defender of Bataan and Corregidor, now a prisoner of war in a Japanese camp at Taiwan, Formosa.

In the message, General Wainwright sent greetings to his wife, Mrs. Adele Wainwright, at Skanatelee, N.Y., and to Mrs. F. M. Osburn, Paris, Tex., sister of "my faithful orderly, Sgt. Hubert Carroll."

Health Said Good

The broadcast quoted Wainwright as saying that his health was good, that he had gained weight, but that he had experienced trouble with his hearing since the siege of Corregidor.

"We have a recreation hall here which provides a gramaphone and other facilities, but I cannot enjoy myself very well so I am spending my time in reading and physical exercise," the broadcast quoted him He said he was allowed to read two Japanese-English newspapers, the Nippon Times and the English edition of Mainichi, the broadcast reported.

Comments On Attu?

Additionally, he said he was reading geography and world history books, according to the broadcast.

"Commenting on the United States' occupation of Attu, Wainwright said 'It shows that the United States' counter offensive is on the move' " the broadcast quoted from the purported interview.

Wainwright directed this specific message to his wife:

"I am in Japanese territory and am in excellent health, longing for the day I may return to my beloved country and to my dear family.

"My faithful orderly, Sgt. Hubert Carroll, is with me and he, too, is in good health."

He asked that his wife acknowledge receipt of the message telegraphically through the International Red Cross.

Wainwright succeeded General Douglas MacArthur as commanding general of the U. S. Army in the Philippines following MacArthur's transfer from Bataan to Australia.

Local Woman Hears Husband In Hospital

Hopes for safety of her husband are held by Mrs. J. E. Trojan following unofficial message that he is in a hospital "but is all right."

Her husband, a first lieutenant, was reported missing over France May 29. He was pilot of "the Yard Bird," Flying Fortress.

First Lt. Jack N. Stewart, bombardier on the plane and who has been officially reported to his wife as a prisoner of war, was heard by shortwave radio recently in Austin. He asked that his wife be notified he was well and stated that Trojan was in the hospital but was all right.

Mrs. Trojan and 7 weeks old baby are with her mother, Mrs. Justin Neatherly of 2409 Thirteenth street.

Lt. Trojan, whose home is in Bison, Okla., received his commission from Lubbock Army Air field in July of 1942. He has been overseas since October of 1942. He has been awarded the Air medal and two Oak Leaf Clusters.

EXPORT IS ORDERED

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP) — Rayon producers were ordered by the War Production board today to set aside part of their production of fine rayon yarn for export, effective August 1.

South Plains Notes

BROWNFIELD ITEMS

BROWNFIELD—J. H. Mitchell, American Legion service officer, will assist with claims for compensation and other matters concerning service men. Word is received that Lt. D. A. Thompson has been promoted to a captaincy, U. S. Army. Thirty-six tires and 21 tubes were allowed by the Terry county board. Steps are being taken to bring about a more rigid enforcement of the city's milk ordinance. Terry county poultry producers are asked this year for 1,248,000 dozen eggs. The county's allotment of tires for June was cut 70 per cent below that for May.

WHEAT MAKING GOOD

PLAINVIEW—Some fine wheat is being harvested in the Petersburg area. Mrs. A. B. Martin cut 35 bushels to the acre on summer fallowed land. A farmer west of Plainview cut 21 bushels from 17 acres, due to damage by chinchbugs. A. M. Saul, 9 miles northwest of Plainview, lost 10 acres of wheat that was yielding 23 bushels to the acre, by a fire of undetermined origin. The Amerada oil test is down to 3,720 feet. Citizens are asked to save tin cans.

HAIL DOES DAMAGE

LITTLEFIELD — Scarcely a roof in town escaped damage in the recent heavy hailstorm. One insurance adjuster said damage in the aggregate will run into many thousands of dollars. Some roofs were a total loss. A large crew of roofers has been busy for more than 10 days making repairs. Business buildings seemed to have suffered far more than dwelling houses. The hail continued to fall heavily for almost one hour, on June 6. Barring complete midsummer drouth, Lamb county will produce an enormous feed crop, as the county nearly always does. More grain and feed is shipped out than is consumed, but this condition is due to change, for the reason that local feeding is multiplying rapidly and the number of hogs, poultry, and livestock is increasing at a great rate.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT

ANTON—Bob Miller, two miles east, had his left leg broken below the knee when the axle of his farm tractor broke and the heavy wheel fell across him. Miller was pinned to the ground, but finally attracted attention by his cries for help, heard by Mrs. Miller, who went for aid. Good neighbors will see that his crop doesn't suffer for lack of labor, they said.

PRODUCING MUCH FOOD

PLAINVIEW — A substantial contribution to the war-time food campaign is said to be coming from the E. S. Aylesworth place in the Seth Ward addition of Plainview. Lettuce is one of the main vegetables now being harvested, and this is being shipped in quantities to Lubbock and other jobbing centers. A 10-acre patch of lettuce already has had 500 cases cut from it and the field appears as if almost untouched. The yield is heavy. Turnips, turnip greens, beets, mustard, radishes, onions, asparagus, and other vegetables are being produced for the armed forces in nearby camps, and also for the civilian trade.

OPA Price Ceiling On Pea Crop Is Awaited

ATHENS, June 22 (AP)—A black-eyed pea crop, two weeks early and not yet in full swing, was bringing from $2 to $2.50 per hundred here today as buyers awaited an OPA ceiling price expected this week.

Buyers estimated that 100,000 pounds have been moved.

Most current purchases are for canners and the Army.

Navy Urgently Needs Skilled Personnel

Skilled personnel to meet the tremendous demands of the Navy department is being sought in a broad-scale recruiting program under direction of Urban U. Clark, local civil service representative.

The program has been revised by the War Manpower commission, Clark said, to provide a general program for journeyman positions, which means an abandonment of the original plan of each Navy yard launching its own individual drive for workers. Workers now may be assigned anywhere on the Pacific coast where the need is most acute, regardless of applicant's preference.

Crucial stage of the war is making such terrific demands on Navy personnel and all others that workers at the big Navy repair shops now are working night and day to keep every ship ready for action, Clark explained.

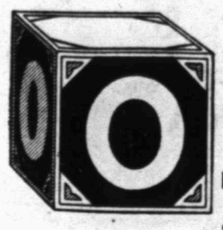

An undisclosed number of vacancies to be filled by June 30 has been assigned to Lubbock, on the basis of the current labor supply. The list of trades and skills is a long one, Clark said, and he is asking for interviews at his office, 1207 Thirteenth St.

Transportation will be furnished to Pearl Harbor, Mare Island near Vallejo, Calif., Puget Sound Navy yard, Bremerton, Wash., Hunter's Point Dry Docks in San Francisco, and the U. S. Naval Air station, Alameda, Calif. Appointments may be obtained and workers be on their way in a few moments after making application, Clark said.

IDEA NOT SO NOVEL

NEW YORK, June 22 (U.P.)—William K. Owens, rounded up with 48 other men as draft dodgers, had a novel idea for beating the draft, FBI agents said, but it didn't work. Owens gave up his job several months ago and began living on a strictly liquid diet. He had hoped the draft board would reject him as a chronic alcoholic.

CASE HISTORY No. 1430 — Lady, age 40, who had arthritis, constipation, intense pain in the shoulder, knees, and almost all joints in the body were swollen and she had much pain. She also had headaches. She was carried into my office in November of 1942. At this time she was unable to walk, turn in bed, or take care of herself in any way. She began the chiropractic service and after six months she is walking, sometimes several blocks, driving her car, and is so much better that she feels she has been saved from a life time of suffering and misery. Her constipation is better, and she seldom has a headache.

CASE HISTORY NO. 375 — Lady aeg 34 who before coming to a chiropractor had almost died with heart trouble. She was extremely nervous, had indigestion, stomach trouble, leakage of the heart, numbness all over the body, could not sleep, and was losing much weight. She began taking Chiropractic services and almost all the above symptoms disappeared and she feels like a different person.

CHIROPRACTIC BENEFITS— There is no person, regardless of his duties, that can perform his work with the same efficiency when he has interference to nerve energy between his brain and his body as he can if there is no interference between his brain and body. If you have a vertebra out of place causing pressure upon the spinal cord within the spinal canal you have a cutting down of the quantity of nerve energy between your brain and your body. The cutting down of the quantity of nerve force between your brain and your body cuts down on the ability of your body to function. The cutting down of the nerve forces, regardless of how small, cuts down your efficiency because your ability will vary with the quality of the nerve force received from the brain. The condition may be minor now but may be serious in 10 years. An efficient chiropractor taking care of you may mean everything to your health and may have everything to do with whether you will be able to meet your everyday problems efficiently or not.

"IT'S THE WAR"

"IT'S THE WAR" is a favorite alibi for the lack of many civilian goods and the decreased efficiency of many persons who serve the public. There is a lot of careless, sloppy service and lack of courtesy that could be avoided, even in wartime.

But the war isn't to blame for everything that it gets blamed for today. It is not an excuse for a sales person forgetting to say "Thank you" for an order, nor is it an excuse for those who take your money to act as though they are doing you a great favor.

Don't try to tell us that because people are over-worried and overworked, courtesy and consideration no longer should be employed to ease the small irritations and inconveniences of daily living. Our employers where we work show us how important it is that we be more thoughtful than ever of the people with whom we talk during these hectic days.

Most of us live under an unnatural strain; our homes bearing in their windows service flags; our budgets revamped to allow for purchase of War stamps and bonds; our tables serving the foods vital to health but hardly the attractive dishes of pre-war days. For these changes we know we have the war to blame but why blame it for our shortcomings and failings?

RECENTLY we tried to make some purchases for a young woman who is to be married. We were more or less prepared for the absence from the shelves of the household articles which just so short a time ago we felt were "must haves" for brides. But we were not prepared for the indifferent attitudes on the part of some clerks, the almost gleeful looks from others as they told us they were out of the things for which we asked and didn't expect to have them again.

We can understand about the laundry and tailor shops being rushed and we know that the familiar tradenames must be missed on the grocer shelves but we insist that a person should stand up for his rights if he knows the war has nothing to do with the question at hand.

Just because a war is on, should a clerk half listen to the request to his "may I wait on you please?" or stop waiting on you to pass the time of day with a coworker or another customer? Can we afford to grow careless and inconsiderate and undependable just because there is a war going on?

WARTIME PATOIS

IT'S SAID that easily the most popular phrase in the ever-expanding wartime language of of Britain is "You've had it." "You've had it" is a most expressive, not very polite method of telling some one that he's not going to get what he wants, the idea being that he's already had all there is to have—i. e., none.

Last month the expression made its bid for posterity as the title of a song: "You've Had It, Chum."

It's predicted that as shortages are increasingly felt in the United States, "You've had it" will be snapped up in America to plague language purists for years to come.

Greenery formed a background for the altar decorations of white peonies and gladioli and four huge candelabra held white tapers which were lighted by the ushers. White tapers at the ends of the pews furnished a soft illumination for the service.

She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid and decked with streamers. For "something old" she wore a gold wedding band which belonged to her grandmother.

Lt. Lawson, who was attended by his brother, Homer H. Lawson, as best man was wearing the white dress uniform of the Marine air corps.

Ushers were Richard Dickey, Lt. James Merriman, Mack Scoggin, brother of the bride, and Howard Alford.

Works Outdoors To Help Gain Weight

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

The problem of many stage and screen stars is not how to keep from gaining surplus weight, but how to keep their weight up.

One of these ladies is petite Martha Scott, who looks and feels best when she weighs 112 pounds, but finds that it's the hardest thing in the world not to slither down the scales to a scant hundred-weight.

Working outdoors at her ranch on the outskirts of Hollywood, Martha finds, helps to keep the scales tipped in the right direction. And she really works — building fences, exercising her horses, feeding chickens and tending her garden.

The exercise and fresh air so stimulate her appetite, she says, that while working like a beaver she also eats like a buck private. And the best part of this weight-gaining method is that working outdoors and being in the sunshine are among the best things in life that are free.

Shortages In Farm Items Aired Here

Acute shortages of many essential farm machines, repair parts, and hardware items in the West Texas area brought about 25 hardware merchants into a meeting at Hilton hotel Tuesday afternoon for a conference with Norvell W. Harris, priorities analyst of the War Production board district office in El Paso.

The meeting was called by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, which was represented by J. C. Watson, public relations director. Hardware merchants, and a few lumber and builders' supply dealers, from Lamesa, Seagraves, Tahoka, Brownfield, Morton, Plains, Levelland, Slaton, Portales, N. M., and several of Lubbock made up the audience.

Program Disrupted

Closing down in Lubbock several months ago of one of the large steel supply houses disrupted quotas of the South Plains area and much time elapsed before the three supply houses now operating here as a source of supply for retail merchants could realign and readjust the situation, authorities explained.

Harris said manufacturers of almost every essential type of machine or hardware item needed in West Texas farm, livestock, and dairy industry have been allotted greatly increased supplies of raw materials, that manufacture of these and repair parts are in progress, and given another 60 days, the depleted stocks of most dealers will be at least partly replenished.

Many Items Hard To Get

Such items as farm spray pumps and nozzles, cream separators and replacement parts, irrigation pumps and shafting, windmills, cotton scales, oil heating stoves for cotton pickers, and repair parts for all types of farm machinery are almost impossible to obtain at the present time. Dealers were advised by Harris how these items may be procured by ratings provided for them, and under quotas which have been raised and greatly expanded for supply sources through manufacturers and wholesalers.

County quotas no longer exist. Under that system, in force for many months past, Lubbock dealers who were well stocked on many needed items, sold heavily throughout a wide territory adjacent to the city, but in the meantime have been unable to replenish their stocks and stores now are empty of many essential items and no replacements in sight. Harris said there is a generous measure of relief in sight for this condition within the next 60 days.

Metal Pails And Tubs

One of the acute situations is described in the scarcity of milk pails, milk cans and metal tubs. Dairy states sent up a much louder squawk than Texas and had their quotas of these items filled ahead of this state, but now the need in West Texas has become apparent, and it is believed relief soon will be felt.

Farm machinery repairs have had to wait for weeks, in many instances for months, while local merchants have been unable to supply repair parts. This has been a serious farm and transportation threat for some months. Conditions are said to be on the mend and this acute condition has promise of being relieved, Harris said.

WPB Man Allots Time

The local chamber of commerce for some time endeavored to have a full time WPB man assigned to Lubbock, with a regular office, but it was explained yesterday that Harris will be in Lubbock, 206 Lubbock National building only on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each second and fourth week of every month for the remainder of the year. He invited all dealers in hardware, building materials, and others coming under quotas and priorities regulations of the WPB and rationing agencies, to use the service of his office for whatever free help the agency may lend at any time.

Youth Faces Charge Of Extortion Threat

Federal officers are holding James D. Graham of Plainview in jail here in default of bond on a charge of trying to extort money under threat from an uncle, H. B. Tatum, farmer of Hale county.

Letters the boy admitted writing, and received by Tatum, he said, were turned over to state highway patrolmen in Hale county when the uncle appealed to officers. One letter revealed threats, officers said. Highway patrolmen immediately turned the information over to FBI men in Lubbock and Graham was arrested in Plainview Saturday, June 19.

He was taken before Mrs. Olive Fluke, U. S. commissioner, here Monday and pleaded guilty. His bond of $750 was made returnable in Lubbock Nov. 22, the date of opening of the next term of U. S. district court. Graham had not made bond today.

The letter which was turned over to the FBI here demanded money and threatened Tatum with "trouble" if the demands were not met "at once." The boy's mother, Mrs. Anne Graham, resides at 305 Elm St., Plainview, federal officers said.

Flute Solo Features LAAF Concert Tonight

A flute solo by Miss Barbara Griggs, who played solo flute with the Texas Tech band for four years before her graduation this month, will feature the weekly broadcast by the Lubbock Army Air field band over KFYO tonight from 7:30 to 8. The program will originate in the band room at the twin-engine base.

Before enrolling in Tech, Miss Griggs was first flutist and soloist with the high school band in her home town, Wink. She received her public school music major from Tech several weeks ago. She served as president of Tau Beta Sigma, girls band sorority, of which she was a cofounder and charter member.

NEW CABINET ASKED

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—King Peter of Yugoslavia was reported tonight to have asked Milos Bobic, former mayor of Belgrade, to form a new cabinet after Jovan Banjanin had failed. Banjanin had Croat and Slovene backing but could not line up the Serbs.

According to Dr. Donald Slaughter (above), dean of the medical school, most classes are full. A $1,500,000 fund-raising campaign is now in process to build and equip the first unit of the Greater Medical Center in Dallas. Temporary buildings are being erected to house the school until such time materials can be had for the construction of the main building. The Medical Center is a $25,000,000 project and is to render service to more than 14,000,000 people in the Southwest.

Beef Shortage Being Felt In Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, June 22 (AP) — Until the packers secure their new quotas for July, Fort Worth beef lovers will have to be satisfied with pork and lamb, for the supply of beef and veal was approaching the stage of rarity today.

Customers appeared to have decided that the new rollback in price wouldn't help them get any steaks or roasts in the face of the beef shortage.

MORE PUBLIC FUNDS

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP) — The House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing appropriation of an additional $200,000,000 under the Lanham act for war public works to meet the needs for community facilities in war centers. The bill would bring the total authorized under that title of the Lanham act to $500,000,000.

Sens Cut Yankees' Lead, Win 3 To 2

Vernon Spearheads Push With Homer And Three Bagger

NEW YORK, June 22. (AP) — James (Mickey) Vernon, the tall, dark and handsome first baseman of the Washington Senators, led his club to a 3 to 2 victory over the New York Yankees today with a home run and a triple and cut the Yanks' American league lead to two games.

Vernon, who had hit a two-run homer to help Washington win the first game of their current series Sunday, lifted another home run into the right field stands to give Early Wynn a 1 to 0 margin in the fourth.

New York moved in front in the fifth with two runs on a single by Ken Sears, a walk, a single by Bill Johnson and an error.

Then with two out in the eighth, Stan Spence singled and Vernon brought him home with a triple and a moment later himself scored on a three-bagger by Bob Johnson, who made three hits.

This forced Hank Borowy to give way to Lefty Marius Russo, who stopped the Senators abruptly but too late.

Net Championships To Be Streamlined

NEW YORK, June 22. (AP)—The 1943 national tennis championships will be played at Forest Hills, not as usual but on an informal, "streamlined" basis, the United States Lawn tennis announced today after receiving a report from a special committee appointed to decide whether the tournaments should be held.

The men's and women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles championships all will be compressed into six days from Sept. 1 to Labor day, Sept. 6, instead of being spread over two full weeks.

Posthumous Awards To Texan Are Announced

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, June 10 (Delayed) (AP)—The posthumous award of an Oak Leaf Cluster for the Air Medal to Staff Sergeant Robert F. Jordan of Malone, Texas, was announced today.

It was the fourth award announced in two days for Sergeant Jordan, radio operator on a bomber. The others were the Distinguished Flying Cross and Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Air Medal.

The last award was made for a raid on Lae, New Guinea, in December, in which Jordan's bomber dropped through an opening in clouds almost directly over the target and helped destroy "a large number" of fighters and bombers on the ground.

Dodgers Win Third Against New York, Nudge Idle Cards

BROOKLYN, June 22. (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers moved within two games of the idle Cardinals today as they made it three straight over the New York Giants and their fourth successive victory with a 7-4 decision.

Kirby Higbe was the winning pitcher for his third triumph of the season but he failed to go the route. He gave way to a pinch hitter in the sixth when the Dodgers, trailing 2-1, pushed over five runs and drove Rube Fischer from the mound. Ed Head finished for the Dodgers and was tagged for the other two Giant runs.

Six Hurt In Panic On Burning Trolley

DALLAS, June 22 (AP)—Six persons were injured today when fire broke out in a control box of a Dallas railway and terminal company street car at an intersection in the business district.

Witnesses said the injuries resulted when passengers smashed glass from windows and leaped from the vehicle.

William R. Cox, a soldier home on furlough, smashed open a car door, allowing remaining passengers to escape.

Braves' Bob Quinn Gambled On Chuck Workman, Wins

BOSTON, June 22. (AP) — It is likely that both the Boston Braves' pious Bob Quinn and scholarly Chuck Workman, his rookie right fielder who is self-effacing albeit spectacular, will wince when they realize they are parties to one of baseball's most rash 1943 gambles.

But such is the case, for Quinn was the only major league magnate willing to risk an investment in Workman last September when that player completed his second-straight sensational season for the Nashville Southern association club.

After batting .327 in 1942 and .334 the previous year for the Vols, about everybody except the Cleveland Indians, who had owned him, was eager to obtain Workman. But everyone except Quinn lost interest when they learned the then 25-year-old Workman expected to be drafted almost as soon as he returned to his Warrensburg, Mo., home.

"Why, Bob, he's 1-A," Nashville's Larry Gilbert replied when Quinn asked him to set a price on Workman. "I don't care about that," Quinn said. "If he's drafted, we'll pay you cash for him. If he's not, we'll take him."

Shortly after the deal went through, Workman's draft board rejected him for stomach ulcers, an ailment he had kept to himself.

Finland has a national debt of less than $25 per head of the population.

RAAF To Play Lubbock Fliers

Two games between the Lubbock Army Air field and the Roswell Army Air field nines have been scheduled for Hubber park Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Roswell team is rated fast and strong, according to Coach Sam West.

Battery for LAAF in Saturday's game will be T/Sgt. W. G. Hardwick and S/Sgt. Robert Bowman. Hardwick has developed a following with local fans and in the last game his team played he struck out nine men and slugged a homer over the left field fence.

Admission will be 25 cents for officers and civilian and 10c for children. Enlisted men will be admitted free.

A home catches fire on the average of every minute and a half in the United States.

Francisco Segura, The Little Man From Ecuador, Bursts Into Tennis Limelight

EVANSTON, Ill., June 22. (AP)— Francisco Segura burst into the National Collegiate Athletic association tennis scene today like the meinspring popping out of grandpa's watch—and was a wow.

The short, solidly-built little fellow from Ecuador, a sophomore at the University of Miami, blasted Horace Filer of Depauw off the Northwestern university courts in bounding to a 20-minute 6-1, 6-0 victory.

Ranked No. 1 for this meet and No. 4 in the nation, Segura moved into tomorrow's third round where he will play Walter Driver of Texas, a 6-0, 6-2 winner today over Harold King of William and Mary.

The five other seeded players in the NCAA meet also advanced, but none with the flash of Segura.

Tom Brown, jr., of California, No. 2 player, defeated Gordon Elliott of Michigan State, 6-0, 6-0. Earl Cochell of Southern California, No. 3, won from Don Staake of Kalamazoo, 6-1, 6-1.

The Big Ten singles champion, Aviation Cadet Roger Downs of Northwestern, advanced 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 at the expense of spirited Ralph Hart of Grinnell.

HOUSTON PRO QUITS

HOUSTON, June 22. (AP)—Henry Ransom, golf professional at Hermann park, today announced that he had resigned his post, effective July 1. He said that he would give his reasons for the resignation later.

Hockett Is Pushing Stephens At Plate

CHICAGO, June 22. (AP) — Although his average has dropped 11 points, Vern Stephens, the St. Louis Browns shortstop, still hangs on to the American league batting lead, which he hopes to keep from the reach of Cleveland's Oris Hockett before being inducted into the armed services.

Hockett, who batted no higher than .250 in his freshman season with the Indians last year, went into a temporary slump the early part of the week but maintained his .340 mark by posting nine hits in 21 trips during a five-game series with the Chicago White Sox. Stephens slipped from .369 to .358.

Precedent Set In Banning Ball Game

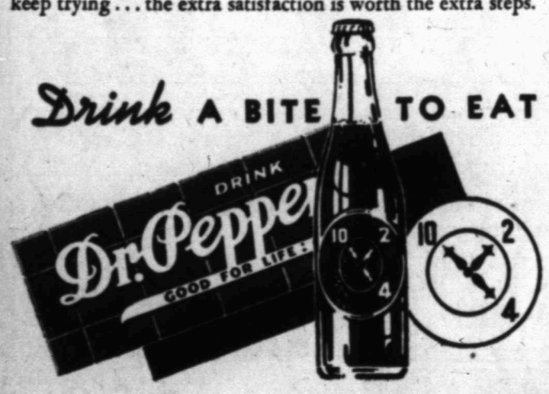

DETROIT, June 22 (AP)—Michigan's Governor Harry F. Kelly slapped a riot emergency-inspired "no assembly" ban on Briggs stadium and the Detroit fair grounds race track today, forcing postponement of an American league baseball game and cancellation of a day of horse racing.

Detroit was scheduled to meet Cleveland.

So far as records here showed, the postponement of the ball game was without precedent.

Votes For Our Fighting Men

ASSURANCES given by individual members of Congress that they intend to do what they can to make certain that men in the Armed Forces will have every opportunity to cast their ballots in the 1944 elections will meet with an almost unanimous popular approval.

The fact that justice demands our fighting men be given every opportunity to vote is too obvious for argument. If anyone upon earth should be given a voice in the filling of elective offices, it is the men who may be called upon to die.

Naturally, difficulties must be overcome to provide the opportunity for them. But the difficulties are not insurmountable. As a matter of fact, if the start is made in time and with a proper organization, the problems in this connection should be relatively simple. But, regardless of difficulties, the ends to be gained more than justify overcoming them.

Unless they are given a chance to vote for their choice, it will be a poor commentary upon this nation as a demoncracy. They should be given the chance, and it is the duty of everyone at home to do what he can to make certain that the opportunity is provided.

Wavell's New Appointment

MANY people who readily confess their ignorance of military matters doubtless gave silent cheers the other day when the announcement was made that Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell had been "promoted" from the position of commander-in-chief in India to that of vicory of India.

True, this may have been entirely legitimate as a promotion. But the suspicion certainly is justified that the expedient of "kicking upstairs" was employed as a means of getting the military command out of his hands.

It may be, of course, that Sir Archibald is one of the world's greatest generals. Perhaps he has been a victim of circumstances over which he had no control. But, whatever the reason, he probably has more complete failures to his credit than any one man who has held high commands in the war.

Whatver reputation he may enjoy as a commander in the present struggle has been basd largely upon successes in Lybia and other sectors in North Africa in 1940. He did score some victories there, chiefly over the Italians. They were the first successes of any consequence to be gained by the British, so quite a lot was made of them. Sir Archibald was hailed as the man of the hour, and it appears that he has coasted on that reputation ever since. Certainly, any reputation he may have today as a military commander is not based on successful subsequent achievement.

After his successes in North Africa, he took a monumental licking in the defense of the island of Crete. The disaster there was followed by his replacement in command. He hadn't been out of North Africa long before the Axis forces started a succession of victories which was not halted until the Allies started their drive there last fall. There is a well founded supposition that Sir Archibald got out of North Africa just in time.

His next important position was as supreme commander in the Far East—chiefly the defense of Singapore. Everyone knows what happened there. Then he was shifted to India where he commanded attacks in Burman which ended not long back in reverses that certainly were serious.

It is entirely possible, of course, that none of these reverses can reflect upon the Wavell command. Certainly he fought under a great many handicaps for which he cannot be blamed. It is within the range of possibility that future history will recognize that Wavell escaped with reserves where a less able commander might have suffered catastrophes.

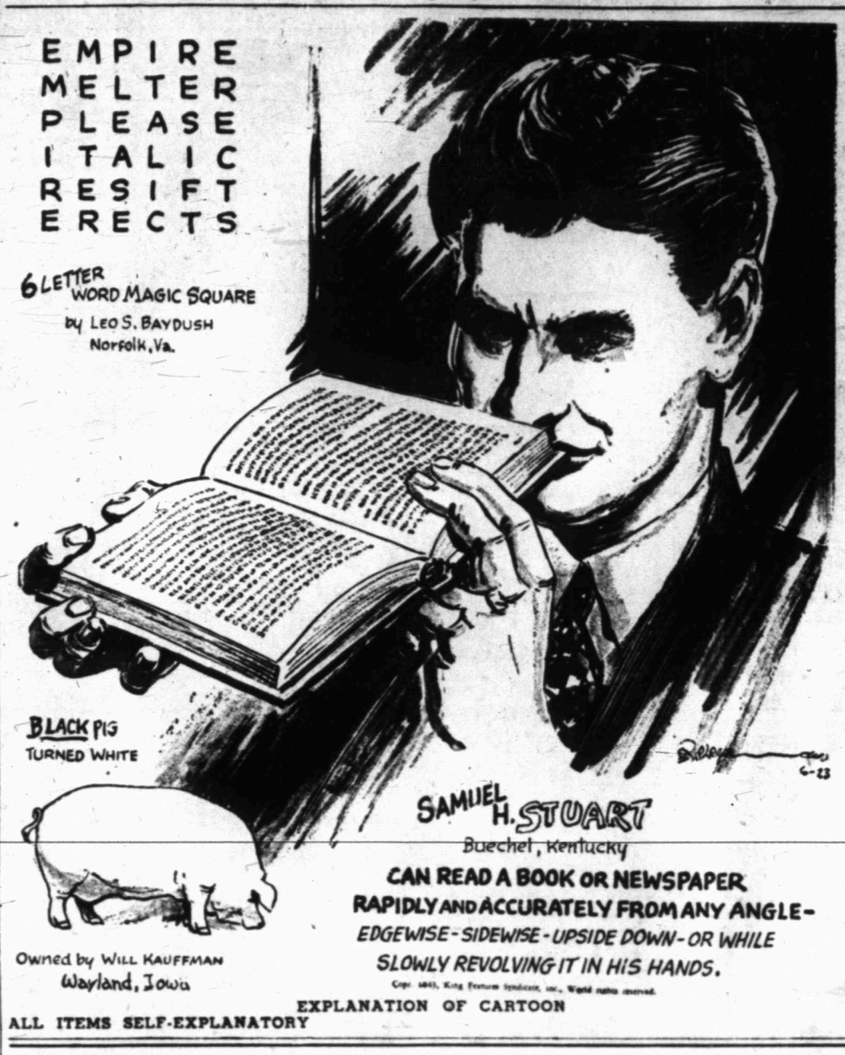

"A universal language would prevent war," declares an educator. Well, we don't know. The universal language spoken by money when it talks has brought on many a war.

The One Minute Sermon

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in threat.

Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.—St. Matthew 7: 13 and 14.

Chapter 12
Telling Dawn

"Let's drop by Kelland's and see if there is anyone at home," Bart suggested as they drove back into the shaded outskirts of Santa Felice. "Tip them off about their strange visitor."

"All right," Julie agreed, not at all sure that things were right. Or that she could command the tact to set them straight again. She could only hope it was all a big mistake, that some simple explanation would solve everything.

The answer was simple enough, but it didn't solve anything. Dawn herself answered the door.

"Hello darlings! But how marvelous of you to come." She greeted them as warmly as if it had been weeks instead of hours since she'd seen them last. "I've had a ghastly day. And that horrible fire last night. I couldn't sleep and neither could father. He was terribly restless. I dashed out finally and got some bromides for him. He'd run out of them. And it was so nerve-wracking, those sirens and all. Didn't you think so, Julie?"

She'd talked their way into the library, motioned them into chairs, rung for Jarvis, all without stopping for breath.

"Yes, it was bad," Julie said quietly. "I called to see you."

"Jarvis said you did, darling," Dawn interrupted instantly, her lovely lips curved into a sweet little smile. "I was so sorry not to have been here. I went for a long walk—just to clear my head after my hectic night waiting on father. And then I came home so exhausted, I've been in bed all day."

Jarvis appeared in the door then. "Yes, Miss Dawn?"

"Scotch and soda, please, Jarvis. Scotch is your drink, isn't it, Bart?" She smiled again, that lovely, gently pleading little gesture that went straight to a man's heart.

Julie smiled too, but inwardly, If Dawn denied, too, the presence of that stranger in the mountain cabin, then the answer was perfectly plain. A little romantic affair that was to be kept completely off the record.

"Sure, but I'm not the drinking man your mysterious guest at the cabin is!" Bart said, with mocking gravity.

"How Terrible!"

Dawn's amazement looked absolutely genuine. "My—what?"

"Somebody who wears size 12 boots and drinks his whisky neat is draping his wet raincoats on your chaise lounge. And probably taking shots on your father's game preserve. Any idea who it might be?"

Julie's eyes never left Dawn's face. But her expression didn't falter. Even her color remained just delicately pink.

"Why — how terrible. Some poacher of course. We haven't been near the cabin since last fall." Quickly, she turned to Julie. "Isn't that ghastly, darling. Could you tell who it was? "Did you see him?"

"No. Someone passed us at the turn-out but he was driving so fast we couldn't see who it was."

For a fraction of an instant, Julie fancied she saw relief in Dawn's eyes. But even as she thought it, the expression vanished and Dawn was her wide-eyed charming self again.

"I'll have to tell Dad," Dawn chattered on. "Still, that makes him so furious—things like that. Maybe I'd better not. I'll have one of his attorneys take care of it. Dad would be too upset. And in his condition. You won't say anything to him—or to anyone, will you?" She smiled sweetly at Bart and then at Julie. "If it got back to Dad, he'd be undone. And he's really doing so much better now I'd hate to have a set-back. You won't say anything, will you?"

"Of course not. Be glad to take a posse and run the guy out for you." Bart offered heartily.

"Oh, no thanks. Please, don't think of it," Dawn insisted, and her hand trembled just a little as she reached for a hammered copper cigaret box, selected a cigaret monogrammed with the letters D. K.

Julie felt a little sick. Dawn, sneaking about behind Pete's back, hiding some tawdry little secret, telling her string of little lies as glibly as if she spoke the truth. If Pete really loved her, there certainly was heartbreak in store for him.

"You won't say anything either, will you, Julie?" Dawn persisted.

"Certainly not," Julie promised, and wondered even then how soon she would regret having given her word to keep silent.

"How in the world did you happen to be up near camp?" Dawn went on, apparently with all innocence.

"Just giving the doctor a bit of fresh air so she'd sleep like a baby tonight," Bart smiled, caught Julie's hand. "She hasn't been to bed in 24 hours you know."

"Julie, how positively heroic!" Dawn sprang out of her chair. "But do take her home now, Bart. She must be simply exhausted."

Bart nodded, stood up, pulled Julie to her feet. "Right you are. We'll run along. Sure you don't want me to do anything about your poacher?"

"Oh, no, thank you, darling. I'll simply phone Dad's attorney. He'll take care of everything," Dawn said, linking an arm through Bart's as they went to the door. "Thank you both for bothering. And now don't think about it another minute."

Bart, Too

And Dawn meant that literally. Julie amended silently as Bart helped her into the car again. Intended to allay an suspicions, Dawn's pretense of amazed surprise would convince the average bystander all right. Even Bart had fallen for it, obviously.

"Dawn's a sweet little thing," he said now. "Good thing we discovered someone had broken into camp. If she had happened to go up there alone and run onto him, she'd have been frightened out of her wits."

"'Et tu, Bart'!" Julie slanted a wry little smile at him but kept sharpness out of her voice when she answered.

"I think it would take more than a big man in muddy boots to scare Dawn. She's little but not helpless."

"All the same, I hope her attorney knows his stuff. She needs someone to look after her."

Julie pressed her lips together, tried vainly to command a tide of bitterness to retreat. Two of her best friends, two of the nicest men in town, completely taken in by wide-eyed innocent smiles, wistful feminine helplessness! Wasn't it ever so! Not that she cared that Bart with his weakness for a pretty face could be so deceived. But Pete too! Maybe, she concluded acridly, she might have won Pete's devotion to herself if she had only played this game of naive, unguarded innocence!

As Bart drove into the gravelled driveway, Hulda appeared on the front porch, flapped her apron frantically.

"Miss Joolie! Hurry! Your father. On the telephone."

Julie forgot weariness as she flew up the steps, into the library.

"Yes, Dad?"

"There's been a bad accident at the yards, Julie," her father's voice came steadily across the wire. "Pete Fowler's been injured."

"Pete!" Julie's heart contracted. "Badly, Dad?"

"Don't know yet. They are bringing him in. Understand it is his bad leg. Thought you'd want to come down."

"Are you at the hospital?"

"I will be in about 10 minutes. Shall I meet you there?"

"Yes — yes, of course. I'll be there."

College Detachment Sets Play June 29

Members of the Army's 309th college training detachment at Texas Technological college will present a musical extravaganza, "Pre-Airities" June 29 in the college gymnasium.

The 309th detachment preflight band will be top feature, together with a chorus, a make-believe radio program, and innumerable burlesque presentations. The cast will include preflight students, and a surprise is promised each second.

A striking scene will start the entertainment at 8:30 o'clock, with the band and student group coordinated in a march and assembly in mid-arena, where uniforms and red, white, and blue regulation caps will climax the colorful introductory scene.

Robert Andraski will direct the band. A specially arranged mike on the stage will be employed in conducting the simulated radio sequences. The band will be screened from the audience during its principal performances.

Melvin Raskin will be responsible for the comedy arrangements. One of the novelty numbers is to be a well-made-up Russian piano player, whose number promises to be a riot. The chorus throughout will be under direction of Robert Prather. Sgts. Thomas P. Lentini and E. F. Cafiero will sponsor the novelty numbers, so timed that they will be sandwiched through the program.

The public is urged to attend the performance, first and only one of its kind this season.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

BACKGROUND reason why President Roosevelt still opposes appointment of a food czar is his fear that it would precipitate a wholesale walkout of the topflight men in the Department of Agriculture with Secretary Claude Wickard heading the parade. This event would not be a helpful spectacle at a time when the nation's farmers are exhibiting some resentment against certain administration policies.

The fact is that Wickard almost quit when Chester C. Davis was first named to his present post and some of the chief's ablest aides did resign. Foreseeing that the setup of divided responsibility would become intolerable, Samuel Bledsoe, the administrative secretary and general handy man, withdrew and returned to his old trade of newspapering.

Although not rated as one of our great secretaries of agriculture, the Hoosier hog raiser called the turn on the dinner table problem almost two years ago. In view of our policy of feeding foreign peoples, increasing purchasing power and expanding the armed forces, Wickard forecast the drastic shortages which now confront the country. He begged FDR to inaugurate rationing and price limitations long before those controls were imposed.

He clashed with the Hendersonians in the Office of Price Administration from the start. When they fixed ceilings which held down the grower, he warned them that production would fall off, and his prediction will come true this fall. He fought the War Production board for not permitting the manufacture of sufficient agricultural machinery. He tried to persuade the draft authorities to be more lenient in their attitude toward essential workers in rural areas. He lost almost every one of these battles.

Should Davis or anyone else take over the task of supergroceryman, he would be forced to adopt the Wickard program. Naturally, the author would resent such a step.

OPPOSITION: A delayed invasion of Europe—and signs indicate that we shall not attack Hitler directly until 1944—will be a tremendous asset to President Roosevelt if he seeks re-election. No one suggests that partisan considerations will govern the timing of an assault. But his friends and enemies alike concede that an all out offensive next year will be more valuable at the ballot box than one now. This is why:

If we are gaining in the final drive by mid-1944 and are smashing the Axis from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the credit would—and should—go to the Commander-in-Chief. On the other hand, if we should suffer initial setbacks on the main battlefield, it would be all the more important not to change generalissimos in the midst of the crisis. In either event Mr. Roosevelt seems to be sure of having a winning issue. At least that is the conclusion of politicos on both sides the fence.

Principal barrier to a fourth term would be inexcusable blunders in Washington that would bring severe and unnecessary defeats on land, sea or in the air. But that event is not likely to happen in view of our growing productive might, the skill our overseas leaders have shown in North Africa and the Far East and the bravery of our troops.

Ironically, if FDR should enjoy four more years in the White House, thanks will be due to the men he once denounced as "economic royalists" and to members of "well-stocked clubs." His War and Navy secretaries are Republicans, as are key figures in their staffs. Top executives of WPB, the agency which supervised the production of weapons, belong to the opposition party. And although it is not generally known, most of our number one fighting men are not New Dealers.

REDEEM: The use of convicts in various phases of the victory effort is steadily expanding since the system was inaugurated at the Lewisburg penitentiary, Pennsylvania, through the humanitarian guidance of Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey and his legal counsellor, Colonel Victor J. O'Kelliher. Permitting men who have lost their liberty to help gain the four freedoms, is beginning to pay dividends.

After investigation by welfare officials some prisoners already have been released and accepted for Army duty. Thousands are working on war materials and giving their blood to the Red Cross In anticipation of the day when iron doors will open, others are training behind the walls.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

WATCH for a campaign to be launched soon by certain performers urging the abandonment of aerial bombing by the U. S. Air Forces. Two arguments will be offered: 1. The attacks cost more American lives than they are worth. 2. We sink to the level of the Nazis when we imitate them.

Already a movement of this type has shown its head in Britain. Churchmen and writers have published a manifesto objecting to sky strafing because innocent civilians are sometimes killed in the forays.

The London Labor party press, often sharply critical of American methods, charges that our much publicized bomsight is inaccurate and that in daylight raids on St. Nazaire, Lorient, and Rouen our aviators missed the targets and injured persons who were really our Allies. It quotes German statistics claiming that more than 2,000 nonbelligerents were slain in Antwerp.

General Arnold's fliers are provoked because the local group, now whispering against our pilots and prating of high ethical principles, was silent when Mussolini was dumping gas shells from planes on ignorant Ethiopian tribesmen and Goering's Luftwaffe was slaughtering 70,000 peaceful inhabitants of the British Isles, nor was this bloc articulate when horrors were rained down upon Warsaw, Belgrade, Rotterdam and other open cities.

BLITZ: Goebbels is whining about the "cruel Americans." But up to now Berlin has deliberately taken advantage of our desire to spare our friends, and has transferred strategic factories to occupied countries on the theory that the shops would be safe from aerial attack.

Unfortunately it is true that Polish, Czech and Belgian workers perished in our blow on Antwerp. But according to patriots, these victims were not caught in homes—as alleged by Germany—but in plants that were manufacturing munitions for use against Allied soldiers. Teutonic bosses purposely refrained from sounding the air raid alert and compelled toilers to continue at their benches even when our planes were overhead.

After the assault the mayor asked permission to move all war industries to the outskirts of the city but General von Falkenhausen curtly refused. The Nazi obviously wanted the personnel kept where it would be most valuable for sentimental propaganda purposes.

New York agents of United Nations' undergrounds are receiving frequent reports that the enslaved peoples cheer US and RAF flyers on missions over the Low Countries. They know the price which civilians must pay for liberation.

Although Spitfires prevent the Axis from repeating its blitzkriegs on London small squadrons of hit-and-run bombers still drop their deadly loads on schools and dwellings in the Isles. Hitler has no intention of giving up his brand of warfare.

AWARE: Tips concerning a tobacco shortage are being passed about in some quarters of Washington but hte big corporations say there is nothing in them. Enough stocks are on hand to satisfy the needs of smokers for some months or more.

The rumors started when government officials, meeting in the capital with representatives of the trade, suggested allocations of flue-cured exports in order to keep runaway buying from cutting into supplies marked for the domestic market. The War Food administration estimates a crop of 800 million pounds. This is no larger than last season's crop although overseas demand especially from Britain will be greater.

The bus companies could easily get passengers to go back as far as possible to the rear of the bus by installing a pulpit in the front end.

Here And There In Texas

By TED READ
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, June 29. — The Texas Department of Public Safety has completed a compilation of information which shows that motorists were not as reckless in their driving in 1942 as they were in 1935. The compilation is centered around traffic figures for the past year.

The report shows there were 1,864 traffic deaths in 1935, while in 1942 there were 1,316. During the first quarter of this year, the department recorded 267 deaths. If this average continues for the current year, the total would be 1,068—a further decrease in loss of lives.

During the 1935-42 period, most traffic deaths were in 1937, when 2,043 were reported. As for the number of accidents, 1941 was high between 1938-42, with 1,684 recorded. In the first quarter of 1943, there were 886 accidents.

Pedestrians Hard Hit

With statistics complete for 1942, the department reported: "An aggregate of nearly one entire month—27 days—passed in 1942 without a single person's being killed in traffic. In 1941 there were only 12 such deathless day."

Most hazardous time for driving is between 7 and 8 p. m., contrary to what the average person might believe. This is when most fatal accidents occur, but the report observes: "When either a driver or pedestrian feels that he has the road to himself at a late hour, he is asking for trouble."

Pointing out that pedestrians were victims in 28 per cent of the 1942 fatal accidents, the report said:

"It is an obvious fact that a pedestrian cannot joust successfully with an automobile, but the only people who seem to realize this are those who have been injured in such encounters. The two great classes of people who do not realize it are neatly divided into two groups: Those who have never been run over by an automobile, and those who do not live to profit from that experience."

THE 1935 traffic death rate average was 16.6 for each 100,000,000 miles traveled. Had that rate prevailed in 1942, the number of fatalities for that year would have doubled, which might indicate people are driving and walking twice as safely as they did seven years ago.

The economic loss from Texas accidents in 1942 was $38,379,175, which was the lowest in the history of the state's accidents statistics. Loss during 1937 was $66,160,525—the highest in the period.

Ten Defense Workers Killed

During 1942, there were 133 persons killed in accidents involving military personnel, 70 of whom were in the armed forces. Sixty-three were civilians. Out of these accidents, 1,098 soldiers and civilians were injured. Reports show 33 per cent of these accidents were between 11 p. m. and 3 a. m., and 54 per cent occurred on the weekend.

In the first three months of this year, no military fatalities are shown on the traffic report, but 10 defense workers were killed.

DR. HERSHEL T. MANUEL, professor of educational psychology at the University of Texas, heads a research bulletin on "School and College After the War" with the notice that it is not inspired by any feeling that the end of the war is near.

Nothing must interfere with the war effort, he says, but at the same time, there should be preparation for the period of reconstruction.

Warning that because individual and school opportunities vary make it unwise to adopt an inflexible standard, Dr. Manuel observes that tension in the relation of school and college can be relieved if the overlapping of the two is understood thoroughly.

Without going so far as did Harvey H. Bundy, special assistant to the Secretary of War, in referring to the colleges as retaining aspects of the country club, Dr. Manuel says there has been in general too much play and correspondingly too little serious business of living in school and college.

"Too Much Play"

Dr. Manuel says he would not take play out of the schools, but adds: "We have gone too far in the direction of play."

"The country club atmosphere of the schools reflects in part a general social trend. For some years — until the war intervened — there has been a certain tendency toward softness and weakness of character in American life. We have not yet adjusted our living to the increasing leisure of modern life.

"As our people at the higher economic levels have passed from the stage of struggling pioneers to that of comfortable livers off the fat of the land, they have tended to lose some of the characteristics which enabled them to conquer the wilderness and at the same time to live with reasonable happiness. As they have invented machines to carry their loads, they have been weakened through lack of exercise. Their children have had little of the discipline of real labor.

"We hear much about the destruction of the human race in the war through turning against itself the mighty forces of nature. This is tragic, but far less dangerous in the long run than the insidious forces of internal decay."

Senator O'Daniel Raps Bureaucrats

WASHINGTON, June 22. (UP)—Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel, D., Tex., said in the Senate today that the national economy is being destroyed by "a bunch of bureaucrats" in Washington.

He assailed OPA as promoting food shortages, and said he would support legislation to abolish that agency. He declared he had considered introducing such a bill himself but in view of the committee "burial" of his labor-control measures he thought some senator with better luck with the committees should bring in the measure.

Chides Recent Passage

O'Daniel also advocated legislation "that will put a defnite and complete end to those cowardly strikes" in war plants wihch, he said, are curtailing production of fighting equipment. He chided Congress for passing "milk and cider" legislation in the Connally anti-strike bill now on President Roosevelt's desk.

Labor racketeers, O'Daniel said, "feel privileged and secure to run wild with their racketeering and trample under foot every right and privilege that American citizens hold dear—even to calling strikes in war industries in time of war."

In his attack on OPA, O'Daniel said the initial price control act had in its administration become an "anti-agricultural" measure. He said that "if OPA and other bureaucrats continue their ruinous practices we will have a food famine and food rioting right here in these United States."

Not until April 20, 1940, did citizens in the District of Columbia have equality with citizens of the states in Federal court lawsuits.

Youth "Buys" Jail, Will Ask For Rent

HARVARD, Neb., June 22 (AP) A sixteen-year-old youth with an amazing line of legal chatter claimed ownership today to the municipal jail in this town of approximately 700, providing a headache for the town fathers.

Robert Pinckney said he purchased the jail, located on one of four lots acquired at a tax sale, for a total sum of six dollars.

He said he told city officials before the sale that the jail was on one of the lots offered, but that "they only laughed at me."

City officials took the view that even though the jail was offered by error in the sale, the deed is invalid. Municipal property is not taxed, they argued, therefore the deed didn't convey anything.

But Robert claimed the jail was leased to the city by the builder, and therefore isn't municipal property.

"I've got a warranty deed and it's good as gold," he said. Confidentially, "it's a swell jail. It has three foot concrete floors, two rooms, electric lights and running water."

He said he will present the city council with a bill for $20 at its meeting tomorrow night for rent due him since last May 11, the date of the sale.

Russian Blows

continual hammering by the Red Air force, together with American and British raids on German factories, was believed to be the answer to the question of why the Germans have not attacked on the Soviet front this year.

Offensive Frustrated

The Germans have been unable to launch an offensive, despite an early spring, because of the combined assaults of the Allied air forces, these dispatches said.

On the central front west of Moscow Soviet troops wiped out 160 German officers and men yesterday, the communique declared. Artillerymen shelled German positions, destroying two batteries and hitting an ammunition dump which blew up.

On the Leningrad front, Russian artillery and rifle units were said to have destroyed 37 enemy blockhouses, 16 dugouts and nine observation posts as well as several guns and some supply transport. Two hundred Germans were killed there by snipers.

The Germans attempted reconnaissance in the Volkhov sector but the bulletin said these enemy units were hurled back with serious losses.

GENERAL TRENDS STIFFEN

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP)—Modest recoveries in steels, rail, motors and blue chip industrials stiffened general trends in today's stock market although many leaders remained in the background.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .1 of a point at 50.2. Dealings were as slack on the belated revival as during the morning down-drift and transfers for the full proceedings totalled 698,170 shares, one of the lowest 5-hour turnovers since January. They compared with 714,540 Monday. The market still lacked breadth. Of 838 issues traded, 344 were up, 275 off and 219 unchanged.

Shares ending on the upside included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Anaconda, Kennecott, Western Union, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, Radio Corp., Westinghouse, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Union Carbide.

Among stocks unable to get out of the minus column were American Telephone, Public Service of N. J., Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., General Electric, American Smelting, International Nickel, Allied Chemical, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward and J. I. Case.

In the curb Axton-Fisher "A" jumped 11 points on meager transactions. Aluminum Ltd. was up 2. Lesser improvement was shown for Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Gulf Oil. On the offside were Aluminum of America, Lehigh Coal, Humble Oil and Phoenix Securities.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP) — Wheat futures fluctuated nervously over a range of almost a cent a bushel today. Cash interests were sellers, while shorts and miller interests were buyers on the declines. Uncertainties over the imposition of ceiling prices on wheat contributed to the uneasiness of the market. Weakness of oats and rye was another factor.

All deliveries of wheat finished at virtually the day's highest levels, unchanged to ½ cent above the previous close, July $1.42⅛-1.42. September $1.42⅝-¼; oats were ⅜ to ¾ cents lower; July 65½, and rye was unchanged to ¼ cent higher, July 95¾-⅞. There were no sales in corn, which closed with all contracts bid at ceiling limits.

treasury. They are already one army in fact. Their comrades are responsible to the French committee of national liberation."

The communique specified that Giraud would retain French North and West Africa, with De Gaulle in command in all other territories. This formula appeared to meet the demand of the United States and Britain concerning Giraud.

Total World War

To a question whether the decision had been taken with the Allies in mind, Monnet responded that "this is total war and it is impossible to arrive at solutions without consulting the Allies. In these times you cannot deal with problems from a purely nationalistic point of view. We are not living in a vacuum."

Returning to the explanation of the plan for eventually unifying the two armies, he asserted "this unity already exists and merely remains to be transferred into the military sphere. This should be proof that our committee is functioning well.

"I strongly urge upon you of the press that you don't permit yourselves to be too greatly influenced by rumors and exaggerated versions of differences. There will be no break among us even though other difficulties may be expected."

Form Of Partnership

He declared the contract established a form of "partnership" between the government and Standard and conveyed property (oil) owned by the government to the company.

"This contract goes beyond the Fall contracts," he added.

(Albert Fall, secretary of the interior in President Harding's administration, executed the Teapot Dome and old Elk Hills contracts which were the subject of a five-year investigation by Congress. Fall eventually was convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe in the Elk Hills leases but other defendants alleged to have conspired with him were acquitted.

(Those contracts called for the exchange of government-owned oil for equipment owned by private companies.)

up to repulse any landing.

On the same theme of reassurance for the Axis home front, Capt. Kurt Jeserich in another Berlin broadcast asserted that "knowledge of the strength of the German armed forces and of German armament potential shows that the German military leadership will be able to cope with a synchronized attack on several fronts."

He declared that the "military strength of the Reich and of its allies—despite undeniable losses—is considerably greater than on June 22, 1941."

The Berlin correspondent of the Social Demokraten in Stockholm quoted the Nazi-dominated Brueseler Zeitung as stating that "all conditions which favored the Axis before now favor the Allies."

TEXANS ON RUHR RAID

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION, June 22 (AP)—Among those participating in yesterday's raid over the Ruhr was copilot 2nd Lt. W. L. Hawkins of Abilene, Tex.; Lt. Fozo D. Smith of Foard City, Tex., a pilot, was credited with a German victim.

In large buses, anti-freeze solution is not placed in the radiators as the amount of critical material which would be required to supply these vehicles with anti-freeze solution would be greater than the amount of gasoline consumed in letting the motor idle to keep the radiator from freezing.

Detroit Rioting

velt that took note of "unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings," the troops in trucks and jeeps from which protruded muzzles of rifles and machine guns, patrolled the main streets and yesterday's battle sectors.

Yesterday those streets and the outlying sectors were the scenes of savage hand-to-hand conflict between white and negroes.

The troops were enforcing a limited form of military control. There were more than 1,000 of them on duty with as many more held in reserve in nearby Army posts. In the speedy jeeps and trucks they were available for quick movement to any affected area in a tri-county zone declared by Governor Kelly to be in a state of emergency. Their equipment included armored cars and a Red Cross unit.

Covers Three Counties

Governor Kelley's state-of-emergency order covered Wayne county (Detroit) and adjoining Oakland and Macomb counties, where many of the metropolitan area's larger armament factories are located.

The Army forces were under command of Brig. General William E. Guthner of the Sixth Service command. He explained that martial law had not been proclaimed. The president's proclamation, he said, "gave federal assistance to the state of emergency." This form leaves the military subordinate to the civil authority.

Most of the debris of yesterday's rioting in the downtown area—overturned and burned automobiles, shattered glass from smashed store fronts, the rocks and clubs used by warring men and women not otherwise armed—had been cleared away today. There was more visible evidence of the savagery of yesterday's outbreak in the upper east side negro area.

Police Lieutenant Albert Hartsig who toured the area told of signs on some houses reading: "This is a colored home; do not break in." These homes, Hartsig said, were untouched while others which bore no placards were wrecked and plundered.

One Flies White Flag

At another point in the middle east side negro section police halted a negro driving an automobile from the radiator of which flew a white flag. "That flag means I'm neutral," the driver explained; "I'm not taking any chances."

The officers said they found a revolver inside his shirt and booked him on a concealed weapons charge.

What led up to yesterday's clash still was debated today. A group of prominent negro citizens, in a statement urging negroes to refrain from spreading inflammatory rumors and to pursue normal activities, charged it was fifth-column inspired.

John S. Bugas, head of the Detroit office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said he had no evidence that the riot was in any way planned or organized and that he did not believe any foreign power or Axis propaganda had any connection with it.

"Do you think," Bugas said, "that the 200 kids—boys between the ages of 14 and 18, who stopped a street car, pulled off negroes and pummelled them, were acting on order? I don't."

A thermometer placed in a mixture of ice and salt registers zero.

Miners Ordered Back Into Pits

ments with Secretary Ickes, government custodian of the mines. He said the committee statement spoke for itself. Asked whether the check-off of union dues would be continued, Lewis merely pointed to the statement which said that "minimum wages and conditions" will be continued.

Ickes, advised of the back-to-work order, said:

"The mine workers understand that my job is solely to produce the coal necessary for war purposes and to heat America's homes this winter. To do this will require the utmost cooperation of the mine workers and of the entire coal industry. I feel sure that this cooperation will be given."

While Lewis appeared to have given ground, in that he ordered the miners back without getting the $1.30 a day he has demanded, the mines by the same token appeared to be lost to the operators temporarily, if not for the duration of the war. How extensive a form government control will take, remained to be seen.

One Point Still At Issue

One point still was at issue—there had been no compliance with a WLB order that the miners sign a contract embodying substantially the conditions under which they were ordered back to work.

The formal order to locals will go out tomorrow, and there was no definite indication tonight just when full-scale operation of the pits would be resumed.

Earlier, with steel production already being curtailed, Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production board (WPB) warned in a statement that the strike may have "disastrous effects" on the war program.

Secretary Ickes, government operator of the coal mines, emphasized Nelson's warning with a report that stocks of coal had "diminished progressively" since May 1 when reserves averaged 49 days supply.

Unthinkable To Stop

"It seems to me unthinkable," Nelson said in a statement, "that any Americans, knowing the facts, would cut the life-blood of the all-important steel industry."

The WPB chairman, saying he made no attempt ot pass on the economics of the coal miners' situation, added: "I do wish to emphasize, however, that the needs of our country come first and that we are today in a situation in which in the interest of our country, no man, no group and no class has a right to hamper war production."

Nelson, pointing out that his action came "at one of the most critical moments in our war production effort," announced postponement of the WPB's drive to increase steel output by 1,000,000 tons in the next three months to meet armament demands.

"We may get a sharp decrease" instead of that increase, he said.

Ickes reported that about 1,700 plants, including two small railroads and two steel plants, had less than ten days supply of coal on hand.

"Further reduction of stockpiles at this time will present an exteremly serious problem," Ickes said, "because it will be difficult, if not impossible, to build them back up to a size that will safely see us through next winter."

He figured May 1 stockpiles at 78,665,000 tons of bituminous coal. June 1 estimates will be available at the end of the week.

William H. Davis, chairman of the WLB, sent President Roosevelt a letter recalling how the board had ordered the union and operators on June 18 to sign a new, two-year contract embracing the terms of their old contract, plus concessions amounting to about 20 cents a day and a no-strike pledge.

Lewis, who has been demanding $1.30 a day for underground travel, balked at this contract.

Should Enforce Order

Davis' letter to the President said: "Although the War Labor board was not unanimous in voting for the directive order of June 18, it is unanimous in advising you that in its opinion the directive order should be enforced and all the power of the government necessary for its enforcement should be exercised."

In other strike developments:

1. United States Steel corporation, already beginning to close blast furnaces which make pig iron, reported that by Thursday 19 of 37 would be down.

2. Lewis and Secretary of Interior Ickes, federal operator of the mines since they were taken over by the government May 1, conferred for the second straight day.

The Ickes-Lewis conferences were arranged after the UMW policy committee, rejecting the WLB order, indicated readiness to make an agreement with Ickes.

There appeared reason to question, however, whether President Roosevelt would entertain any solution Ickes and Lewis might work out, if it by-passed WLB, the agency he created to handle war-time labor disputes.

Suspected Deserter Arrested At Dallas

DALLAS, June 22 (AP)—R. G. Danner, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said that a 19-year-old Texan who deserted from the Army Air force at Drew Field, Fla., in March was arrested here today.

Danner said that after the youth deserted he stole at least two automobiles, one at Tampa, Fla., and the other at Grand Prairie, Tex.

The Texas youth, with another young deserter, was stopped by military policemen at Bald Knob, Ark., in April, but escaped, Danner said.

The pair appeared at Dalton, Ga., on May 28 and were arrested by state highway patrolmen, but again got away, Danner declared.

The Texas youth did not resist arrest, Danner asserted. The other deserter is still at large.

Ruhr Battered

at one time at the rate of 20,000 pounds of bombs every minute.

Heavy Allied Toll

But the raids took a heavy toll—20 U. S. bombers and four fighters today, and 44 British bombers and one fighter last night.

The double blows into the Ruhr showed close British-American air cooperation, and indicated that American daylight precision raids were being directed toward obliterating specific targets remaining after widespread British night attacks.

And the employment of U. S. bombers in an area heretofore pounded only by the British,—plus the British pounce against Le Creusot which had been an American hunting ground—hinted at a strategy to keep the Germans guessing about where to concentrate their limited day and night fighter forces.

Smoke from fires set at Huls rose 6,000 feet, returning airmen said. Huls is approximately 25 miles southwest of Munster and 15 miles northwest of Recklinghausen. There is another Huls near Krefeld.

Spit-Second Timing

The air ministry news service said the attack on Rotterdam was a diversion to draw German fighters away from the Fortresses as the Americans were about to go into Germany unescorted.

When the Fortresses were coming back, more squadrons of Spitfires and Typhoons met them with split second precision at a rendezvous, beating off formations of German fighters which followed the bombers across Holland.

A U. S. communique said "bombing results were good and fires were started in both targets." "A considerable number" of enemy fighters were reported destroyed, and seven German planes were destroyed by Allied P-47's.

Aviation circles here listed today's attack by U. S. bombers as their first upon the strategic Ruhr area. An assault by Flying Fortresses in March upon Hamm, junction of six German trunk railways, was not regarded as a Ruhr raid since Hamm lies northeast of the Ruhr-Rhine triangle.

These day and night attacks upon the Ruhr, a fountainhead of German war might, added new havoc to the destruction of German industries and cities described by the air ministry as "greater than anything known in any country."

Much-Needed Material

The Ruhr area supplies Germany with some three-fourths of her coal, four-fifths of her coke, and two-thirds of her iron and steel. It embraces bomb-scarred cities and mines in an area about 50 miles long and 40 wide.

Forty-four RAF bombers failed to return from the assault upon Krefeld, four miles west of the Rhine river, a city of 170,000 peace-time population that is the site of heavy steel industries, coal mines and chemical works. Special steels vital in war machines are made in Krefeld, 13 miles northwest of Duesseldorf.

Returning fliers said that tremendous fires were left raging there, with Krefeld's glow visible from the Netherlands coast, and that one stupendous explosion lasted six seconds.

One Canadian said the great blast apparently came from the center of the fires, while pilot officer, John Pratt of Winnipeg said it was to the west of the main concentration of fires, and was "the king" of all explosions.

Smoke Rises 10,000 Feet

Another airman described the blazes as "the biggest concentration I have ever seen." Smoke rose 10,000 feet above the city.

An air ministry communique said "preliminary reports indicate that the attack was very heavy and concentrated."

The 44 big bombers lost over Krefeld were the highest toll suffered by the RAF so far this year.

It was the 22nd raid upon Krefeld, and the 135th, said the air ministry, upon German industrial centers in a 20-mile area of the Rhineland represented by Krefeld, Duisburg and Duesseldorf.

Texas Pours Out Food And Fiber

(By The Associated Press)

A bulging cornucopia called Texas is beginning to spill its annual harvest of food and fiber.

From the high plains, wheat is moving to grain elevators. From the tip, cotton is going to the gin.

Eventually, due to the problems of wartime shipping, much of these and of other commodities will move northward instead of in all directions, as is the case in peacetime. According to qualified observers, transportation, locally and continentally, will be the chief problem, aggravated by the labor shortage.

Wheat Begins To Move

Many Panhandle and South Plains points have received their first wheat, including some yields of as high as 22 bushels per acre. The Panhandle yield has been estimated at 25,000,000 bushels. J. J. Mahoney, superintendent of the Santa Fe railroad, which taps the Texas-Oklahoma wheat belt, has predicted that much of the 1943 wheat crop would have to be piled on the ground, due to overburdened rolling stock. H. B. Hankins, manager of elevators at Lubbock, said elevator space was adequate but that labor, in addition to transportation, loomed as a problem.

Bright spots in the grain picture were lifting of a ban against the use of highways by harvesting machinery and assurance from federal sources that ample gasoline and tires would be available. These are important factors in view of the fact that some equipment "follows the harvest" from the Texas Panhandle to the Canadian border.

One-Fourth Of Cotton

While Texas grows a comparatively small percentage of the country's wheat, she produces about one-fourth of the nation's cotton—enough to clothe 15 per cent of the world's population.

The first bale of this season's cotton — the earliest in recent years—came from Lasara, Willacy county. Last year the four Rio Grande valley counties ginned 94,417 bales of cotton valued at $9,000,000. With favorable weather, last year's yield should be duplicated, in the opinion of valley cotton men. With prices three to four cents higher than the average a year ago, growers anticipated an increased income.

From Corpus Christi came reports of the best cotton prospects in 20 years, barring ill-timed rain or hurricane. Almost 200,000 acres were planted in the coastal bend, including Nueces and San Patricio counties, but farmers, mindful of the vagaries of the weather and the ravages of pests, are reluctant to forecast production figures.

Cotton Picking Near

Cotton picking in the coastal bend area will start in two or three weeks and farmers, aided by commercial and governmental agencies are making frantic efforts to procure hands—many of them lured from farms by higher-paying industrial jobs. Efforts to step up Mexican immigration thus far have resulted in no appreciable influx of cotton pickers.

A shortage of hands, too, threatened to cut gin operations to 12 hours per day instead of 24, which is customary during the peak of the season. Foresighted ginners got their repair parts shortly after the 1942 season, guarding against a shortage of parts for pre-season repairs in 1943. Nor does the coal strike worry ginners in the Corpus Christi area because most of the plants there are operated by diesel motors.

The FBI said Baird was arrested in 1936 in Bay City, Tex., for cow theft and given a two years suspended sentence; was arrested in May, 1938 in Marlin, Tex., for cattle theft, and sentenced to five years, and was arrested again in Feb. 1942 in Corpus Christi, in possession of an auto stolen in Hope, Ark.

Baird was tried at Corpus Christi and given ten years for assault with intent to murder; five years for auto theft; five years for burglary; five years for theft by bailee; two to five years for theft, and two to ten years on each of two counts for cattle theft, the FBI said.

Baird is also charged with selective service violation, the FBI said.

How Japs Stand Air Losses Big Puzzle

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press War Analyst

General George C. Marshall told the governors' conference at Columbus Monday that "one of our greatest puzzles is how the Japanese can stand the beating they are taking in the air—no other words adequately described the situation in this respect."

The chief of staff, a conservative speaker, put his finger on one of the factors that may bring a drastic change soon in the aspect of the Pacific war. The Japanese, who had a few thousand carefully chosen, highly trained and experienced airmen when they launched the Pacific war, were able to spread their empire almost to the shores of Australia largely because they were able to knock the American, British and Dutch air force out of the skies over the Philippines, Malaya and the East Indies. Now the position is entirely reversed and the Japanese air force all around the south and southwest Pacific has been reduced to such a position of inferiority that its every appearance in force becomes a suicide mission.

GLENN BABB

Three Major Defeats

In the past week the Japanese have met three major defeats in the air. Last Wednesday they suffered their worst beating of the war, losing 94 planes in a battle over Guadalcanal with Americans and New Zealanders, who lost six. Sunday an attempted raid on Darwin, Australia, cost the enemy 12 planes certainly destroyed, two probably destroyed and ten damaged. The Japanese ran into a force of Spitfires flown by British and Australian pilots. Monday it was a similar story. American Lightnings over Lae, New Guinea, shot down or probably destroyed 23 of a force of 36 Zeros which challenged them. All the American planes returned.

In all these encounters the Japanese casualty rate was 50 per cent or more. In earlier major battles it had ranged from 25 to 40 per cent. The rise strongly suggests a progressive deterioration of the enemy's quality in the air, at least in comparison with the splendid fighting men the Americans and their Allies are able to put into the air.

First-String Pilots Gone

General Marshall gave half the explanation: "Evidently our equipment is excellent and our pilots, gunners, bombardiers and navigators are superb." Other authorities have suggested the other and perhaps more significant half. The few thousand first rate airmen who gave the Japanese air superiority during the first few months of the war are gone. And while Japanese industry doubtless is able to replace the planes knocked down, Japan simply does not have replacements anywhere near equal to the first string pilots who have been lost.

This Allied superiority in the air is one feature of a situation in the south and southwest Pacific which suggests strongly that some dramatic action against Japan's island outposts and perhaps some of her more important southern bases is in the making. The big force of enemy planes that met disaster over Guadalcanal last week obviously was after big game. Later American accounts showed that Allied cargo ships escorted by warships were in those waters. The Japanese at least thought they were after a convoy that was bringing American striking power into the Solomons theater which has such bitter memories for them.

A new Broadway musical review, "Going To Town," will be presented at the Lubbock Army Air Field Wednesday night, and at the South Plains Army Air field Thursday night. The LAAF show will be in the post theater at 8:30, according to Captain W. A. Murphy, special service officer. The SPAAF show will be in the recreation hall at 6:30 and 8 p. m., according to Lt. Twenty-five civic, church and professional men and women are expected to meet with County Judge G. V. Pardue at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon on the second floor of county courthouse to discuss formation of a permanent organization to assist the judge in juvenile matters—particularly in guarding against juvenile lawlessness. Some of the representatives will attend from out of Lubbock, Judge Pardue said.

A. L. Stringer announced Tuesday that the South Plains sacred Harp Singing convention will be conducted July 3 and 4 at the corner of Avenue Q and Eighth street. Those attending will take lunches.

With a son already in the Army and her two daughters enlisted last week in the WAAC, Mrs. Theo Blackwood of Crosbyton now is a three-star mother. The son is S-Sgt. Edd C. Blackwood. The daughters are Dorothy and Syble, and both were enrolled in Lubbock: They now are awaiting orders to report for active duty.

Effects of war in the church were discussed by Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist church, in an address at the Lubbock Optimist club luncheon Tuesday in Lubbock hotel. War calls for a different type of preaching, he said. He discussed wartime marriages, saying that he had found most of the couples in weddings at which he has officiated have had the right attitude toward marriage. He mentioned the fact that mental problems have been brought about for some persons as result of the war. The speaker was presented by J. W. Chapman. M. L. Shepherd, vice president of the club, presided.

Crosby County Joins In Vickers' Choice

Crosby county's bar representatives Tuesday morning duplicated recent action of the bar in Lubbock, Cochran and Hockley county, when they appointed J. E. Vickers, Lubbock attorney, special judge to preside over the present term of 72nd district court in their county.

The May term in Crosby county was opened May 10 and the new term will be opened Nov. 8, when it will be necessary to reappoint Judge Vickers or appoint another judge to serve the next six months.

The Cochran term was opened April 12 and the next term there will be opened Oct. 11. The Hockley term was opened March 8 and the next term will be convened Sept. 13. In Lubbock county, the term was opened Feb. 8, and the next term will be convened Aug. 9.

Procedure in each county is alike. Provision must be made anew for appointment or reappointment of a presiding magistrate the last six months of the so-called continuous term.

Judge Daniel A. Blair took leave of his judicial post in the 72nd district last week when orders came for him to report for duty with the Army. He probably will leave Lubbock Thursday.

Tire Applications By Several Withdrawn In Face Of Shortage

Applications for tire certificates have been withdrawn by several persons following recent publicity regarding the seriousness of the tire outlook in Lubbock county, it was said Tuesday at war price and rationing board headquarters.

"I did not realize how serious the situation is. I would like to help and make my old tires last if possible," one person was quoted as saying. Several others have expressed themselves in similar manner.

In a recent speech before the Rotary club, Clarence A. Bestwick, chief clerk of the board, discussed the rubber shortage and said the next 60 days likely would see a transportation crisis which would reach almost every business and home in the county. The growing shortage of tires and county quotas, as compared to the demand, also had been emphasized in previous information given by tire dealers and government representatives.

Stars And Stripes Are Hoisted Over U.S. Air Forces Headquarters

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 22 (AP)—To the strains of "God Save the King" followed by "The Star Spangled Banner," the Stars and Stripes were hoisted over the Eighth Air Force Air Support command headquarters here today.

Bombers and fighter planes zoomed overhead as a mixed British-American color guard lowered an RAF flag and raised Old Glory, signalizing the American command's formal acquisition of this headquarters nerve center which is destined to become a vital air support in future ground operations against Europe.

Missouri River Still On Rampage

KANSAS CITY, June 22 (U.P.)—Flood waters of the Missouri river poured over rich bottom lands of central Missouri today as the crest moved eastward below Jefferson City.

State militia, soldiers from Fort Leonard Wood, Army engineers and civilian volunteers continued their battle to reinforce weakening dikes and levees. The Army engineers office here reported that a levee near Hartsburg gave way during the night, allowing the muddy waters to pour over additional farm lands. Approximately 300 soldiers had been striving for hours to save the weakening barricade.

More Land Flooded

An estimated 7,000 more acres of farm land northwest of Boonville was engulfed by the raging waters as dikes gave way near Petersburg and Boonesboro and others were topped by the swift rise in the river's level.

The river at Jefferson City reached a level of 28.97 feet early today, Army engineers reported. Flood stage there is 23 feet. The crest was "somewhere below that point," river men said.

Corn Crop Destroyed

State Agriculture Commissioner John W. Ellis, in Jefferson City, estimated that 15 to 40 per cent of Missouri's corn crop had been destroyed in the floods that have swept the state this year.

Upstream, in western Missouri and northeast Kansas, the river level continued to drop slowly but steadily. At 7:30 a. m. the reading at Kansas City was 22.8 feet.

Both District Courts Set Hearings Today

Both state district courts will conduct hearings this morning in Lubbock.

Special Judge J. E. Vickers of the 72nd district will hear state's application for a temporary injunction en joining Willie Fantroy, Slaton negro, from trafficking in alcoholics.

Judge Alton B. Chapman of Floydada, serving by appointment as special judge in the vacant 99th district, will hear the damage action of S. R. Hutto and wife against Guy Fellmy, and several divorce actions, after which he will close the minutes on the 12-weeks April term of that chamber. The 99th court will be in recess thereafter until the September term is convened.

The Hutto-Fellmy action is outgrowth of a mishap June 6, 1942, on a highway northwest of Lubbock. The Huttos charge they were riding bicycles that were struck by a car driven by Fellmy, who lives in Dickens county, and that they suffered injuries. They ask total damages of $5,262.
