Park Accord Inked

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)-The United States and South Korea signed an agreement today spelling out terms and conditions for the questioning by U.S. officials of Tongsun Park, indicted in a Washington influence buying scandal.

Acting U.S. Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, who heads a Justice Department team in Korea to question Park; and Lee Chong-won, the Korean vice justice minister, signed the accord for their respective governments at the Justice Ministry in Seoul.

Cosmonauts Launched

MOSCOW (AP)-The Soviet Union today launched two cosmonauts into space to link up with two others who just completed their first month in orbit.

The Soviet news agency Tass said cosmonauts Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Oleg Makarov blasted off in Soyuz 27 at 8:26 a.m. EST, and will dock with the orbiting Salyut 6 spacecraft.

The program of the two men who began their mission aboard Salyut 6 a month ago was generally on schedule and their physical condition good, Soviet newspapers reported.

Bergland, Grant Agree

HOUSTON (AP)-Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and American Farm Bureau Federation president Allan Grant have agreed that strikes by farmers will not solve the nation's farming problems.

The two men spoke Monday at the opening sessions of the federation's 59th annual convention.

SIGNS OF THE SEASON--Winter made another big stab into the Snyder area Monday and forecasts indicated it would solidify its hold today. Although the elements had not provided any moisture up to mid-morning today, a sprinkler left on resulted in this tree acquiring a coat of ice. And there were threats of snow later today. ### Drains Power Systems

Cold Grips Nation

By The Associated Press

Snow and sub-zero temperatures brought threats of power shortages to the midlands today, as howling winds and towering seas hammered the East and West coasts for the second straight day.

At least eight weather-related deaths were reported in six states.

The severe cold caused heavy drains on power systems throughout the northeastern quarter of the nation.

In Ohio, temperatures near or below zero prompted utility companies to cut back electrical output and call for power rationing. Toledo Edison Co. and Dayton Power & Light Co. both ordered 5 percent cutbacks in electricity.

In Columbus, where the mid-morning reading was 4 above, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. called the situation critical and asked customers to reduce consumption by 50 percent.

East Ohio Gas Co. in Cleveland measured consumption of gas at 48 percent above normal for the 24 hours ended at 8 a.m., but said there were no emergencies for its service area in northeast Ohio.

There were widespread reports of roads closed from snow, floods or fallen tree limbs and schools were shut because of the cold and snow.

The worst of the storms that battered most of the country Monday hit New England with winds clocked at 69 mph in Boston Monday night and 72 mph on Cape Cod - just 2 mph below hurricane force. A radio tower, a church steeple and other debris crashed to the ground in Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

College Board Studies Housing

Plans are still in embryo for the development of a proposed student apartment complex at Western Texas College and an April election will decide who will fill places 1 and 2 on the college district's board of trustees.

The terms of office for Bill Wilson and George Patterson, both board members since the inception of WTC, are expiring. The first Saturday in April, the date of this year's election, falls on April 1.

Filing dates for the offices are from Jan. 31 through March 2. Application forms will be available in the office of the president in the administration building on the WTC campus. The terms of office are for six years.

In a discussion Monday night of a proposed student apartment complex, board members examined the drawings of four preliminary plans. The board members gave tentative approval of plan 3, calling for a 900 square-foot apartment designed to accommodate four persons.

The proposed student apartments are still in the planning stage and the matter will be again studied at future meetings.

In action approved by the trustees last night, they authorized the purchase of some science and music equipment and appointed Dr. Shelby Hillis to head the science and mathematics division at the college.

Dr. Glenn Keener resigned chairmanship of the divisions to go to work for a private firm in Houston. Hillis, a science instructor at the college, will head

Farmers Seek Support For Cause

Striking farmers, spread from Paris in the Northeast to Laredo in the Southwest today, were trying to gather support for their cause.

All farm-related businesses in the West Texas cotton city of Lamesa shut down today, as 300 tractors rolled through the streets. Monday, a similar business moritorium was called in the Plains city of Littlefield.

Striking farmers blocked the gates of the Campbell Soup Co. plant in Paris this morning and threatened to keep employees from passing if demands against the facility are not met.

Farmers asked the plant management to close for 24 hours as part of the protest against the plant's use of Mexican vegetables and Argentine beef.

When it reaches the point that the women complain because there is no professional football to watch on television on Sunday afternoon, you get the feeling that we are indeed on the brink of equality.

It is a fact, of course, that some of the most active football fans nowadays are females, although they still are somewhat more discriminating than the males. Our observation indicates that there is no more energetic viewer than a female fan who is personally interested in one of the teams playing. But, if she doesn't care which team wins a game, she is not interested in watching it on television. In other words, there must be partisanship for most of the female fans to become interested in a game.

On the other hand, male fans may watch a game in which they have no feeling whatever for or against either of the teams involved. In fact, we find it sort of refreshing once in a while to see a game in which we don't have to "sweat it out."

This is Super Bowl week, and it doesn't seem possible that it could be the 12th. It seems only a few years ago that the American Football League and National Football League were operating as separate organizations and bidding against each other in the draft each year. Now, some of the experts are trying to make something of the past conference records during the years they have been in the same league, but different conferences, and their champions have faced each other in the Super Bowl. Only two teams from the National Conference have ever won a Super Bowl game, they remind.

But, if they are looking for an omen here, it should be good for the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys are one of the two NFC teams to win a Super Bowl (Green Bay is the other), and moreover, in their over-all record against AFC teams, the Cowboys are tops with 18 victories and only five defeats.

And, as Tom Landry, the Cowboys coach, reminded the other day, Pittsburgh and Baltimore, both winners of Super Bowl games, were NFL teams before the two leagues merged. Anyway, we doubt that anyone is taking the efforts to promote a "jinx" seriously.

After Rerun Of Hearing

Zone Change Rejected

Following a rerun of a public hearing, the Snyder City Council last night rejected a request for a zone change to permit construction of a neighborhood grocery store and laundry on 37th Street east of Snyder Oaks Nursing Home.

The vote was 3-3. The proposal needed a favorable vote by at least five councilmen to overturn a recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission, which had previously rejected the request.

C.A. McCown had sought the zone change, from an R-3 (multi-family residence) to a C-1 (semi commercial) district. He said he planned to open a convenience store and self-service laundry at the location, which is on the south side of 37th Street at the intersection with Avenue B.

Several property owners in the area were present and all expressed opposition to the zone change. They said they felt it would adversely affect the value of their property and cause traffic problems. Among those speaking out in opposition to the request were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Monroney, Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Goldesberry, LaVerne Hood and Frances Billingsley.

Following the hearing, Councilman Vernon Rannefeld made a motion to approve the zone change and it drew a second from Rod Waller. Bryce Booker joined them in voting for the motion, while Councilmen Milton Ham, Joe Reaves and Jerry McWilliams voted against it.

The mayor was authorized to accept title to the Wickes Building property from the Scurry County Industrial Foundation. The foundation is now negotiating a contract with Northern Electric for establishing a manufacturing plant on the property.

Following a brief discussion of the three-agency tennis court project which failed to get approval, the council instructed its two members of the committee, Mayor John Fagin and City Manager George Patterson, to look into the possibility of getting the committee together again and perhaps scaling down the plans and specifications in an effort to bring the price down to original estimates. This effort will be made before action is taken on an architect's bill of $3,190 which was submitted to the city as its share in the cost of the plans and specifications.

The bid of Moore Supply Co. of Lubbock in the amount of $3,416.43 was accepted for the purchase of a quantity of water pipe. It was the lowest of three bids received.

The city manager was

School Board Session Is Set Tonight

The superintendent's contract, several requests from various departments in the system and the rejected three-agency tennis court proposal are on the agenda for tonight's meeting of the Snyder School Board.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the school administration building.

The administration will seek direction on whether to pursue a "scaled-down" tennis court project as a joint venture with other agencies, or drop the subject.

The school policy manual provides that the superintendent's contract be considered at the January meeting of the board. Supt. Bill J. Hood is now working under a contract extending through June, 1980.

Requests are due to be presented for expansion of the gymnastics program, for additional junior high band uniforms and for setting up one out-of-town trip each season for seventh grade football teams. At present, other 7th grade athletic teams play one out-of-town game per season, but football is limited to intra-mural play.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMING--Some 50 persons were on hand last night to take the first steps toward organizing a Snyder Association for Children with Learning disabilities. # Group Concerned With Learning Disabilities

Initial steps were taken Monday night to organize a Snyder Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

Meeting in the community room at Snyder Savings and Loan, educators, parents and several other interested persons were given information on the organization and saw a film titled "A Walk in Another Pair of Shoes," which was presented by Grace LeMonds, coordinator of the gifted-talented program in Snyder Public Schools.

Dr. Thomas H. Scannicchio, assistant superintendent for instruction, discussed the need for a SACLB, and introductions were made by Roger McCulley, coordinator of special education in Snyder Public Schools.

Following the program, there was a group discussion and plans were made for proceeding with the organization.

A presentation of $100 on behalf on the Snyder Noon Kiwanis Club was made by Roy J. McCloskey to provide the group with funds to continue its work toward a formal organization.

A nominating committee, which will present nominees for a full slate of officers, was named. It is composed of Dwaine Crawford, chairman, Mary Williams, Gussie Gray, Sharon Hanzalik and Elaine Crawford.

Annual dues will be $6 per person, with $1 for the local organization, $2 for the state and $3 for the national organization. The group set Feb. 13 as the date for its next meeting.

texas offers pattern

The reason that Texas is not deeply in debt like our federal government and so many of our fellow states is that our state constitution requires that we live within our means.

There are a few exceptions such as voting bonds for the Veteran's Land Program and water bonds to help the state and communities develop water supplies. But for the most part, our state is prohibited from spending more than it has. There's an out for an extreme emergency, but we can't recall any having arisen that confronted our legislators.

If Texas can do this, why can't the federal government?

The answer is clear. It could.

It's not likely that our Congress will opt for this type of control, but wouldn't it be great for the welfare of this nation if it would?

There would have to be a Constitutional amendment. If it ever got through Congress, we feel it would breeze through the legislatures of the required number of states.

A group called the National Taxpayers Union (NTU) has proposed this. In addition, they want the amendment to require that the federal debt be paid off over the next 20 years. The first year we'd reduce our $700 billion debt by $35 billion. We're currently paying more than $40 billion a year in interest alone on the federal debt. The government's estimate of our current year's operating deficit is $68 billion.

The NTU cites 15 nations and shows their average deficit as a percentage of gross national product. There seems to be no correlation between having a deficit and enjoying an increase in average annual growth. In fact, those nations with surpluses for the period 1965-74 averaged a higher rate of annual growth than the nations that operated in the hole like the U.S. did.

Many advisors to our presidents have encouraged federal spending, even to the extent of granting huge federal deficits, in the hope of providing employment and keeping the gross national product on the rise.

NTU says that in our own country when we had an average annual deficit of $1.6 billion a year during the period 1950-60 our average unemployment was 4.7 percent, inflation averaged 2 percent and the average rate of real economic growth was 3.8 percent.

The years 1961-70 our average deficit was $6 billion a year and unemployment was 4.6 percent, inflation 3.1 percent and growth 3.8 percent. Larger deficits didn't help our economy. In fact it helped to double our inflation rate.

Then came the 1971-75 period when the deficit averaged $22.2 billion a year, unemployment rose to 6.4 percent, inflation to 7.1 and economic growth dropped to 3.3 percent. We were harmed greatly by continued federal deficts. With this figure at $68 billion for the current year is there any wonder we have such a continuing high rate of inflation and that our real economic growth is not keeping pace with many of the other free nations of the world?

An amendment patterned after the Texas plan is being sponsored, and-or endorsed by some 66 Congressmen and 10 U.S. Senators. They refer to it as the "Payment Book Amendment."

It appears to be a sound plan, and it is perfectly clear that something as drastic as this will be required to get Congress and a big segment of the public out of the habit of going to what has come to be viewed as a full trough ... one that should have unlimited and virtually uncontrolled grazing rights.

autumn of liberty

More than 20 years ago I wrote a book called "Autumn of Liberty," which warned against the creation of an ever-larger government. The book was applauded, saluted and awarded--but its warning was largely ignored.

Now maybe it's too late.

The U.S. economic system of competitive capitalism is slipping.

Economically, our country has fallen behind per-capita productivity of Sweden, Japan and Germany.

Other countries outrank us in essential new capital investment, largely because American businesses--more and more--must divert personnel and resources and time to (working for the government.)

The paper work which government requires of General Motors adds $200 to the cost of every new car. GM has on its payroll 22,300 persons whose only task is to satisfy the government's insatiable appetite for "reports."

American businesses, large and small, are suffocating under a paper avalanche.

President George Dodds of radio station WGGH in Marion, Ill., says he spends two months of every year working on federally required paper work.

Who is responsible for this overregulation?

Mostly, unelected bureaucrats in government regulatory agencies. Last year they issued a record 60,221 pages of proposed and final regulations, each of which is as much "the law" as though it had been voted by Congress.

You and I have considered from time to time the other side of this coin--that some American individuals and businesses by their lack of self-discipline are inevitably inviting more and more government snoopervision.

But in this instance we are considering the unjustified, unnecessary strangulation of once-free enterprise by government officials, government inspectors and government regulators who may have no managerial experience and who certainly have no managerial responsibility--yet they arrogantly exercise more and more say-so over the life-and-death of American businesses.

If you give any bureaucrat authority, in order to justify his continuing employment he has to exercise that authority.

The more paper work he commands, the more important he can make himself appear at appropriation time.

Rich Devos and Jay Van Andel of Amway have expressed fear that we are "backing into a bureaucratic police state."

It is interesting that one article of the indictment against George III contained in our Declaration of Independence says: "He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our peoples and eat out their substance."

Once we considered that degree of domination by a central authority so intolerable that we went to war over it.

American spacemen don't appear very excited about unindentified flying objects these days. They recently rejected a suggestion that Carter's science adviser, Dr., Frank Press, made to reopen a federal inquiry into UFOs. They stated that the probe would be wasteful and probably unproductive.

NASA was tactful though in saying that they stand ready to examine any 'bona fide physical evidence from credible sources.'

The turndown was polite too, because the request resulted from a campaign promise made by Jimmy Carter that if there were any secrets about UFOs he would flush them out. (This wouldn't be the first campaign promise that Carter has failed to keep through.)

There have been many sightings of UFOs. The Air Force closed a 22-year probe in 1969, known as Project Blue Book. They had investigated 12,618 sightings then, and there have been many more since then.

Many people, including President Carter have reported seeing UFOs from time to time. But despite all the reported sightings there has never been any measurable UFO evidence such as a piece of metal, flesh or cloth. There have been no radio signals, and the descriptions have varied considerable too.

UFO sightings have decline the past few years. New science fiction movies like 'Close Encounters of The Third Kind,' and "Star Wars" recently sparked an upsurge of letters asking about UFOs. Most of these letters were from young people.

I am always intrigued by these reports of UFO sightings. I am convinced that most of the people definitely see something or why would they open themselves to the ridicule that usually follows. Often people from different locations will report a sighting on a given night.

I'm sure that if anyone would present just one little green man from outer space (not a theory or memory of one) that NASA would change its mind about reopening a probe.

But if NASA is convinced that there is no need to reopen the federal inquiry, then I'm convinced they are right. After all if there had been any little green men around they would have certainly run into them on their space walks.

maze-dull qualities

NEW YORK (AP)-A confidential adviser to top executives describes President Carter as "maze-dull," and terms it a defect that will hobble his administration.

Maze-dull, said Eugene Jennings, a psychologist and management professor at Michigan State University, is a person who is unintelligent about avoiding or maneuvering out of tight situations.

Such people, said Jennings, who has observed the personality condition in many corporation presidents, repeatedly trip themselves up and create crises because of traits such as arrogance and ignorance.

Jennings, who is a personal adviser to some of the nation's top executives and some Washington officials too, said the current administration is destined to be marked by gaffs and blunders.

Unless he manages to surround himself with wise aides, and defers to them, said Jennings, "President Carter is destined to be disappointed by his moment in history."

The characteristic, said Jennings, is "too much built into the nature of the man to be overcome by additional experience." He listed six qualities as among those that mark the maze-dull personality:

1. A vast ego; an idealized notion of self. This is the essential character trait that hides from the individual the imminence of trouble.

Such a person is guilty of the sin of presumption. "He presumes there is more power to the office than there is; and he presumes also that his personal power is greater than it is."

These characteristics lead to unrealistic promises. Applied to Carter, "you have to believe in the tooth fairy to think he will be able to balance the budget."

They also feed arrogance. "An arrogant person doesn't have respect for information and experience. He believes intelligent people can do anything."

2. Inward-oriented intelligence. Maze-dull people seek answers within. They immerse themselves in every detail. They read, read, read. They do not trust others. They cannot delegate.

Such behavior keeps them involved in trivia and prevents them from making the big decisions that can change the course of events. It prevents them from building a team, from tapping available wisdom.

3. A tendency toward ideas and programs almost to the exclusion of politics and people. "They believe a bright idea, when enunciated, should be convincing in itself."

Such people feel they should not have to engage in politics to sell their ideas. The believe their ideas have, or should have, the force of action. "They fail to understand that politics is the essential art of government, not bright ideas."

4. Intention versus consequences. They believe that good consequences follow from good intentions. "They fail to anticipate the consequences of their own behavior."

Faced with consequences other than those they foresee or feel justified, they either cave in or become a bull in a china closet. Such people should learn the creative art of silence, but they feel silence is importence.

5. Conflict between right and proper. Jimmy Carter has a stronger sense of right and wrong than of propriety and impropriety. "It was right that a good friend stand by Bert Lance; it was improper that the president of the United States do that. It was right that Carter establish his own White House style; it was improper the way he did it, because in ostentatious style he tried to appear the opposite."

6. Emotions rule reason. In summary, said Jennings, "Carter is lacking for the Washington jungle what a kid from the typical middle-class suburb would lack if thrown into the jungle of New York. He lacks the smarts."

In the past, said Jennings, who has written many books on executive behavior, maze-dull individuals have sought to overcome their defect by arming themselves with aides and subordinates who can see the pit-falls.

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON-(NEA)-Every president likes to count his blessings occasionally, and Jimmy Carter must surely be grateful these days that his term of office does not depend upon the Washington establishment's ratings of his first year in the White House.

Critics of the president are having a field day as the anniversary of Carter's inauguration approaches.

The carping is generally predictable, since much of it comes from those in the press and the political community who poohpoohed Carter's chances of attaining the White House in the first place. They now feel obliged to demonstrate that he does not measure up to the job he won despite their predictions.

But there are indications, in the polls and elsewhere, that the public's perception of Carter is a good deal more generous than the negative assessment so fashionable in Washington.

Average voters seldom get a chance to argue with the pundits along the Potomac, but when they do, the quarrels can be revealing.

During one talk show on KMOX radio in St. Louis last week, three listeners in a row called to ask the guest Washington correspondent "why all you people are always picking on Carter." Give the president a chance, they pleaded. "After all, the last two guys we had didn't do such a hot job."

They are right, of course. Once in office, presidents tend to be judged in a vacuum-although they certainly weren't elected in one. We forget all too quickly the moral of that grand old gag, "How's your wife? Answer: "Compared with whom?"

It is true Carter had a rough year on Capitol Hill, but his track record was certainly better than Richard Nixon's or Gerald Ford's. And if some of the president's problems were of his own making, Congress was at least as guilty in many instances.

It was not Jimmy Carter, after all, who refused to make the hard political choices necessary to deal with the nation's chronic energy crisis.

The president has been criticized for sending more major programs to Capitol Hill than Congress can possibly digest all at once. So what if it takes two, four or six years to pass them all? At least Carter is tackling the tough ones, seeking to alleviate massive social and economic woes that have been building for years.

The welfare system did not become a mess overnight, and neither did the federal tax code. Health costs had become a crushing burden for many families long before Carter took office, and the problems of the poor are as old as civilization.

Carter isn't ducking any of them, no matter how intractable they may appear. The onus is now on Congress to match the president's determination.

Government reorganization, a central promise of the Carter campaign, has been slow to materialize. But the administration is moving with alacrity to weed out unnecessary federal regulations, reforms that mean a great deal more to businessmen and consumers who must deal with the federal bureaucracy than any reshuffling of the government organization charts.

During his campaign Carter promised an open presidency and he has kept this vow. True to his word, he has held at least two press conferences a month, giving reporters a chance to question his every action. As a result there has been no build-up of suspicion, no sense that the president and his aides were trying to hide anything.

And in foreign policy, Carter has utterly transformed the thrust of American diplomacy. Gone is the secrecy, and occasional duplicity, of the Kissinger era. Gone, too, the cold calculation of "national security," that cloak which concealed such a multitude of sins.

With his human rights crusade and his emphasis on the moral content of foreign policy, Carter has indeed enhanced America's image abroad while rallying public support at home. That is no small achievement for any president in his first year.

Letters To Editor

To The Daily News:

Why does it matter if the farmer makes a profit? This 4 per cent segment of the population spends lots of money. Farmers are the biggest purchasers of tires and among the largest buyers of steel goods, petroleum products and automobiles. If farmers were to go on a buyers' strike, the effects would ripple throughout the nation's economy. Without the export of agricultural products, our balance of payments deficit would be intolerable.

Years of government subsidies have kept food prices artificially low. Government interference has kept the free market system from functioning. Consumers have become used to cheap food and fiber, spending much less of their dollar on them than do other developed nations. As farmers' influence in Congress has declined, Congress has bowed to consumer demand to keep food cheap and these policies are bankrupting the farmer. An industry cannot exist without being allowed a reasonable profit.

The farmer must organize for political and marketing power. The only thing Washington understands is numbers and the only thing the market responds to is scarcity. Farmers must cooperate to keep an oversupply off the market in order to get a reasonable price for their products.

If the plight of the farmer and rancher concerns you, then why not attend the farm meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Towle Park Barn and let's discuss it.

Tasty Carrot Pickles For The Budget Conscious

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My family are wild about pickles and ask for them at every meal. I once tasted some pickled carrots that were delicious and struck me as being economical. How do you make them?-BUDGETEER.

DEAR BUDGETEER: I gave a recipe for carrot pickles about a year ago. Now I have a new recipe, Carrot Pennies, for a pickle of this sort. I named it after the popular pickle called Zucchini Pennies, although this carrot recipe is not the same as the zucchini one. If you have one of the new food processors in your kitchen, you'll find slicing the carrots for the "pennies" is a cinch. This recipe is good to have on hand all year round. After winter-holiday spending sprees, when carrots are one of the most reasonably priced vegetables in markets. In summer, when carrots are plentiful in home gardens-C.B.

CARROT PENNIES—A thrifty pickle to make at home.

CARROT PENNIES
2½ cup sugar
2 cups cider vinegar
1 cup light corn syrup
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons whole cloves
½ teaspoon whole allspice
1 stick-cinnamon, about 3 inches long
2 pounds carrots, pared and sliced (6 cups)

In a 5-quart saucepot over medium heat stir together the sugar, vinegar, syrup, salt, cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Stirring occasionally, bring to a boil. Cover and boil gently for about 10 minutes. Strain syrup into a large bowl. Discard the spices.

In the 5-quart saucepot bring 2 quarts water to a boil. Add the carrots and return to boiling. Boil for 5 minutes. Drain in a colander.

Into the 5-quart saucepot pour the spiced syrup and bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Add the carrots and let stand, keeping the carrots under the syrup, for about 2 minutes.

Pack into clean, hot half-pint canning jars. Fill with the hot syrup, leaving ½-inch headspace. Wipe the top edge of the jars with a damp cloth. Seal, following jar manufacturer's directions.

Place jars in a water-bath canner on a rack in a large saucepot. Add hot water to cover jars by at least 1 inch. Bring water to a boil, then keep at a gentle, steady boil to process for 10 minutes. Remove jars to a wire rack to cool. Store in a cool dark place.

Makes five ½-pint jars.

Entice Animals To Photograph

HONOLULU (AP)-Use food to attract wild animals to within camera range, advises Maile Apau, a finalist in the Kodak Junior Miss Photo Awards and Hawaii's Junior Miss of 1977, who entices birds with corn, and chipmunks with bread.

"When photographing animals, be patient and always remember that wild animals are just that," she says. "Don't get too close."

Husband's Always Late for Dinner

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After you read this, please don't say, "If that's your biggest problem, lady, you're lucky," because right now it IS my biggest problem, and I'm ready to explode.

My husband and I have three school-age children. Supper is the only meal we can all eat together, so I go to a lot of trouble to make it extra special.

Melvin is home from work every evening by 4:30 p.m. and the kids are home by 5, so I always serve supper between 6:15 and 6:30.

For some reason, the minute I call Melvin to the table he either starts to read something, begins to fix something, or he closes his eyes to take a little nap! This just drives me up a wall.

The children are hungry and ready to eat and so am I, but Melvin is always anywhere from half an hour to an hour late getting to the table.

Everything is either overcooked, dried out or cold. I've begged Melvin to come to the table the first time he's called, but it's like talking to the wall.

Help me!

READY TO EXPLODE

DEAR READY: First, give everybody 15 minutes notice before serving supper. If Melvin doesn't head for the table with you and the children, go ahead and eat without him. If the food is overcooked, dried out or cold, it's his hard luck.

If you can't retrain him (and maybe you can't), train yourself to roll with the punches and keep your blood pressure below the boiling point.

DEAR ABBY: I sent out 36 invitations to a cocktail party. There was a large RSVP on the invitation which everyone who is over 12 years old should know means, "Please respond."

Out of the 36 invitations, only 20 responded and 28 showed up! (I don't know what happened to the rest.)

After the party, someone to whom I had sent an invitation, but who neither responded nor showed up, claimed he didn't receive my invitation.

He said I should have KNOWN when he didn't respond one way or the other that he didn't get it, and it was my place to call him up and find out why I hadn't heard from him.

Abby, when a person sends out RSVP invitations, is it HER place to follow them up with telephone calls? If I am wrong I'll apologize.

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Once in a blue moon an invitation will be lost in the mail. It's not the hostess' place to follow up RSVP invitations, although in desperation most do. Failure to acknowledge an RSVP invitation is inexcusable.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for advising JUST PLAIN JEALOUS to trust her husband on those business trips with a female co-worker.

I'm an airline stewardess who's engaged to be married soon, and if my fiance didn't trust me, I'd take it as an insult.

Everyone seems to think the stewardesses and pilots fool around a lot, but it's not true.

What would an intelligent, good-looking girl in her 20s want with a balding, middle-aged, burned-out guy who's old enough to be her father? Besides that, most pilots are either broke from paying alimony and child support, or they've got a couple of kids to send to college and a house in the suburbs that's not paid for.

No thanks!

Antiques Enjoyment, Investment

COLLEGE STATION--Antiques can provide enjoyment today and outstanding investment tomorrow, says Sue Young, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The value of antiques keeps on climbing while new furniture depreciates from the moment it leaves the store, she says.

For an "eclectic" look that emphasizes a variety of styles and periods, combine antiques with other pieces. They are equally at home in a contemporary or traditional setting.

In shopping for antiques, rely on a reputable antique dealer, who is the consumer's best asset, Mrs. Young says.

Also, remember that an antique is anything that was in existence one hundred years before the date of purchase.

The jump to game when partner has not limited his hand is never a slam invitation in itself, but obviously partner may have enough to warrant continuing to six or even to seven once or twice during a lifetime.

The general rule for a jump to game in a major is that you hold good trump support, but not as many as 13 points in high cards. The general rule for going on is that the opener must start with either first-round control in at least three suits or first-round control in two and second in the other two.

South probably overbid a trifle when he failed to stop at four spades, but the slam was unbeatable.

East took his ace of hearts and put immediate pressure on South by leading back a club. South thought and decided to refuse the finesse and hope for a squeeze that would materialize if the man with the king of clubs held four diamonds. He cashed all his trumps and the king of hearts and sure enough East had to choose between unguarding his jack of diamonds or chucking the king of clubs.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Alcohol adds to heart's work

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please say something about mixing tranquilizers and alcohol?

My husband, age 57, is recovering from a coronary and the doctor has prescribed Librium, three a day. The doctor also told him a drink before meals is permissible. However, my husband sometimes has three drinks and the combination of drugs and alcohol has me worried.

He also has angina and has medication for this as well.

DEAR READER — It makes a difference what tranquilizer a person is taking with alcohol. Librium is sometimes used in treating the anxiety that alcoholics have when they stop drinking, particularly during withdrawal. I think your husband should not use alcohol at all — not even one drink before dinner.

Why? Because alcohol increases the work of the heart and increases the chances that he will have inadequate blood flow to his already damaged heart muscle. There was a good study reported last year by doctors at the University of California at Irvine, which showed that alcohol actually increases the work the heart must do.

That will decrease the amount of physical work your husband can do. In the study I mentioned, patients with angina pain from heart disease developed electrocardiographic changes of inadequate circulation sooner during exertion after alcohol than without alcohol.

That is not all. The alcohol acts like an anesthetic and the usual warning of chest pain to tell a patient he is overoverdoing it may not occur. Besides these immediate dangers of alcohol in people who have heart pain, there is the problem of calorie control. Alcohol has nearly as many calories as fat, and after drinking a person is not likely to stick to a diet. Modern evidence shows that alcohol has no value in heart disease of any kind and can be harmful.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Wiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband had a vasectomy about two years ago then had a reversal operation performed which was successful.

Now we have agreed to no more children for sure. Can another vasectomy have any ill effects on him or cause impotence? Would you advise me to take the final step to sterilization?

DEAR READER — No, a second vasectomy would not impose any more risk than the first and it will not cause impotence. It might be harder to reverse it a second time because of additional scar tissue, and from your letter plus others, it seems to me there are a lot of people who do change their minds. A new marriage, loss of a child or any number of things happen in life that cause people to want another child even when they think they are absolutely sure they don't.

So my advice to you, with your track record, would be to use a temporary method of birth control until you are absolutely, perfectly sure and resigned, no matter what, remarriage or loss of all your children, that you would not want any more pregnancies. Not all operative reversals of sterilizations in either men or women are successful by a long shot. It should always be undertaken as a permanent form of birth control.

Quarterback Baby Can't Lose Sunday

ODESSA (AP)-Roger Craig Wright should've been born in 1971 when the Dallas Cowboys won the Super Bowl. But it was his sister, Loretta, who arrived.

His father was determined to use the name he had thought of in honor of Roger Staubach and Craig Morton, Dallas' quarterbacks on the Super Bowl squad.

So, in March 1975, Alton Wright satisfied his determination by naming of his newborn son Roger Craig, although Morton was then a New York Giant.

"If you're a fan, doggone it, you're a fan," Wright said. "We just went with the name."

Top billing, said Wright, a boilermaker who travels out of this West Texas city, was no longer a problem since Morton was then a Giant.

Wright said the family could stand a loss for either team in Sunday's Super Bowl matchup between Dallas with Staubach at the helm and Denver with Morton as quarterback.

"But if Craig wins the Super Bowl and I want an autograph from him, he might wonder why my boy is not named Craig Roger," said Wright.

TAC Accepts Offset Policy

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas Air Control Board grudging has agreed to accept the federal offset policy that requires elimination of pollution equal to that of proposed new industry in areas that exceed pollution standards.

The Monday vote on the controversial program was unanimous, but board member Fred Hartman of Baytown said federal insistence on the offset policy was "wrecking the finest program in the country."

Chairman John Blair of Kountze said he would do everything he could to win Congressional reversal of the policy by 1979.

But the board accepted the policy because, Blair said, refusal would hold up construction of many important projects.

In a separate vote related to the offset program, the board accepted staff recommendations on designation of areas that cannot meet federal air pollution standards.

One of the areas is El Paso, which sits in a basin similar to the one that cups Los Angeles and traps inversion layers. El Paso had asked to be listed among the non-attainment areas because it cannot control pollution contributed by sources in Mexico.

The board made one except to staff's list of non-attainment areas after persons from the western end of Nueces County protested that their area is rural and was indeed able to meet those standards.

The Federal Environmental Protection Agency now will decide whether to accept Texas' list.

Hearing examiner John Turney recommended granting a permit for a new Bayport chemical plant, with two special conditions, but action was postponed until the Feb. 24 board meeting after the Galveston Bay Conservation Association filed written objections Monday morning.

One of Turney's recommended special conditions was to make the list of estimated emissions by the proposed American Hoechst Corp. the permitted limits.

The second condition was for Hoechst to maintain close monitoring of the emission of benzene.

Tech Offering 2 Graduate Courses

Texas Tech University will be offering two graduate courses at Western Texas College during the spring semester.

Registration for both courses will be held from 6-7:30 p.m. Wednesday (Jan. 18) in the WTC Administration Building.

Courses to be offered are EDAD 5361 and EDAD 5318. Both are open to all students having graduate status.

EDAD 5361, Seminar in Educational Administration, will be offered from 6-9 p.m. on Wednesdays. Dr. Berlie J. Fallon, Professor of Educational Administration at Tech, will be the instructor.

EDAD 5361 is a problems-oriented approach to the general field of educational administration. A wide variety of options will be available to students in the selection of problems to be researched. The course may be used as credit for the master's degree, the doctorate and the administrator's certificate provided students meet prerequisites for entry into these programs.

EDAD 5318, Seminar in Supervision, will be taught by Dr. Weldon Beckner, Professor of Educational Administration and Supervision at Tech. The day of class meetings will be set at registration.

EDAD 5318 deals with principles and current practices in supervision with an emphasis on clinical supervision. It may be used as credit for a master's degree and a supervision certificate.

Persons wishing further information about the courses may contact Dr. Paul Zintgraff, College of Education, at Tech or Mrs. Mary Pinkston at WTC, AC 915-573-8511.

No kindergarten course will be available this spring, but one may be offered during the fall semester.

Court Rules LITE Not Trademark

WASHINGTON (AP)-In the beginning, there was only LITE beer.

Then came LIGHT and LYTE.

And next came a lawsuit.

The suit was filed by Miller Brewing Co. to protect its trademark on LITE as a name for reduced-calorie beer.

The Supreme Court on Monday let stand a lower court decision that LITE is simply a misspelling of a generic term and cannot be a trademark.

Miller had sought to overturn the appeals court ruling that gave G. Heileman Brewing Co. the right to sell LIGHT beer.

The suit against Heilman is one of 10 filed by Miller against other brewers, who use the names LYTE or LIGHT. The other trademark-infringement suits named Schlitz, Genesee, Peter Hand, Anheuser-Busch, Pittsburgh Brewing, Erie Brewing, Olympia, Rheingold and Rainier.

8-Party Phones Eliminated

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas Public Utility Commission said Monday it has approved a request by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to eliminate rural eight-party service within Texas.

Bell notified the commission last Feb. 1 that it wanted to stop eight-party service by 1980 and substitute four-party service.

The commission said it sampled opinion in the Houston, Dallas and San Antonio areas, and in each area the overall approval rate for the proposed four-party service was about 95 percent.

Texas Crude Oil Production Up

AUSTIN (AP)-Crude oil production in Texas in October totaled 92,591,589 barrels, according to reported and estimated unreported figures, the railroad commission said Monday.

The preliminary figure compares with September's final compilation of 89,340,885 barrels.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Most of the day you are in good spirits and find it easy to get along with all. A cantankerous know-it-all may push you too far later in the afternoon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Money matters are right down your alley today. You're both gifted and lucky in things financial. Don't, however, expect the world to stand up and cheer at your gains.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your big idea may come in for some sharp criticism from a sideline sitter. His sour grapes stem from jealousy. Don't let him daunt you.

Stewart, Miss Ekland Settle

LONDON (AP)-A multi-million dollar legal battle between British rock star Rod Stewart and his former girlfriend Britt Ekland apparently has ended in a secret settlement.

Tony Toon, the singer's assistant, told Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association, that all claims and counter-claims for damages between Stewart and Miss Ekland, an actress, have been dismissed "to all the parties' satisfaction."

The Evening Standard quoted Stewart, who turns 33 today, as saying "a settlement has been made but no money is involved."

Miss Ekland filed suit claiming about $15 million in damages against Stewart last August shortly after he moved out of the Hollywood mansion the couple had shared for nearly two years.

She claimed damages for helping to promote Stewart's career, for alleged fraud and deceit, and punitive relief because Stewart had, she claimed, acted with "oppression, fraud and malice."

Totie Fields Entertainer Of The Year

LAS VEGAS (AP)-Totie Fields, the comedienne who made a nightclub and theater comeback after a leg amputation and a string of other medical maladies, has been named "Entertainer of the Year" by the American Guild of Variety Artists.

The 8,000-member guild, which has been presenting entertainment awards for eight years, also selected Miss Fields as female comedy star of the year. Other 1977 awards were announced previously.

Top 8 Cage Teams Hold

By The Associated Press

What does this week's Associated Press Top Twenty college basketball poll have in common with last week's? If the order looks vaguely familiar, it's because the top eight teams combined for an undefeated week and stayed put.

And for the third consecutive week, No. 1 Kentucky was a unanimous choice for the top seat. The Wildcats improved their record to 11-0 with easy wins over Vanderbilt, Florida and Auburn, collecting all 46 first-place votes for 920 points.

Runner-up North Carolina, 12-1, won twice but had a scare before beating Clemson in overtive. The Tar Heels accumulated 737 points in the balloting.

Third-ranked Arkansas, 13-0, remained unbeaten by crushing Hofstra, Houston and Missouri-St. Louis and picking up 693 points. Defending NCAA champion Marquette, 10-1, won three times and solidified its hold on the No. 4 spot with 594 points. No. 5, Notre Dame, 522 points and a 7-2 slate, was fine.

No. 6 Indiana State, 10-0 and 480 points, and No. 7 UCLA, 11-1 with 463 points, both chalked up a pair of convincing wins in holding their positions.

Eighth-ranked Syracuse completed the undefeated week by the top eight with a 94-84 win over North Texas State. The Orangemen are now 11-1 and received 342 points. The eight teams started off the new year with a perfect 16-0 record.

Louisville jumped a notch to No. 9 with 325 points, ending Cincinnati's 69-game home court winning streak in the process. The Cardinals shocked the Bearcats 78-75 at the Riverfront Coliseum.

Kansas broke into the Top Ten, climbing from their No. 14 position a week ago. The Jayhawks jumped over Nevada-Las Vegas, Indiana, Cincinnati and Virginia, all of whom went down to defeat last week. Kansas nipped Missouri in its only action of the week.

Nevada-Las Vegas headed the Second Ten, followed by Michigan State, Holy Cross, Providence, Virginia, North Carolina State, Georgetown, Indiana, Cincinnati and DePaul.

Michigan State made the biggest jump of the week after debuting last week as No. 18. Cincinnati fell the furthest, dropping from No. 12 after suffering two losses in three games.

Newcomers are North Carolina State, 10-1, and DePaul, 11-1. They bounced No. 16 Maryland, a two-time loser, and No. 19 San Francisco, which has lost once.

49ers' Clark May Take Over

Detroit Fires Hudspeth

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Amid rumors that ex-San Francisco 49ers Coach Monte Clark is about to come aboard, the Detroit Lions have staged a long-awaited house cleaning and axed Tommy Hudspeth and his entire eight-man coaching staff.

Hudspeth was the fifth Lions' coach in seven years.

Lions' owner William Clay Ford announced the firings late Monday, less than a month after his team wrapped up its second straight 6-8 season. Detroit finished in third place in the National Conference Central Division behind the 9-5 records of Minnesota and Chicago.

"I wish 'em well," Hudspeth said jovially after Ford and General Manager Russ Thomas informed him he and his staff were fired. "I have no comments on the team or any of that. I just hope everything works out great for the Lions."

The rumors that Clark would get the job surfaced a week ago. Clark, who resigned last year as coach of the 49ers, refused to comment. Detroit radio station WJR reported the NFL club would call a news conference within 48 hours to announce the appointment of Clark.

All Ford would say Monday was that "the Lions plan to name a new head coach in the near future."

The existing contracts of Hudspeth and his staff will be honored, Ford said. Hudspeth signed a three-year contract before the 1977 season.

Hudspeth's staff included Bill Belhick, Rollie Dotsch, Wally English, Ed Hughes, Bernie Miller, John Payne, Floyd Reese and Fritz Shurmur.

Tigers In District Play At San Angelo Today

SAN ANGELO - Snyder's Tigers are due here for an 8 o'clock 3-AAA basketball contest against the Lake View Chiefs tonight.

The game will be preceeded by a 6:15 junior varsity matchup.

Snyder defeated the Chiefs in their only meeting this season; a 56-45 thumping in non-district play.

In other 3-AAA games tonight, Lubbock Dunbar (2-1) is at Brownfield (0-3) and Lamesa (2-0) is at Lubbock Estacado (2-1). Sweetwater (1-2) has an open date.

Snyder, 2-0 in district play, features a good attack with 6'5" Randy Courtney - an all-district player last year - as its high point man. Other probable starters are 5'9" Lucious Jeffery, 6'5" Mike Hicks, 5'9" Richard Crayton and 6'3" Earl Clayton. In possession of a strong bench team, Tiger Coach Jack Stephenson has a few qualms about shuffling his lineup to include such talent as 6'2" (230-lb.) Richard Willis, 5'9" Sid Everton and others.

The Tigers, at one time posting a 10-4 record, lost six straight before pulling up to a current 12-11 mark. Their latest victory was an 83-61 thrashing of district opponent Brownfield.

Internal problems have plagued the Tigers this season; in part causing the losing chain. But Snyder appears in good shape now. High-scorer Randy Courtney is back after suffering an ankle injury, and the Tiger intensity looks stronger now that the tough preseason is over. Snyder has taken on only nine 3A opponents in 23 games. The rest have been 4A squads, including some of West Texas' best.

Doug Martin, holding a 10 point per game average, headlines the Lake View starting crew. Others include Howard Gist, Lynn Cauley, Greg Priddy and 6'5" post man Keith Pool. Another Chief seeing action will be Gary Speck.

Lake View Coach Paul Stein noted the Chiefs will attempt to slow down Snyder's "run and gun" style of playing. Last week his team held Sweetwater to 48 points. Unfortunately, the Chiefs managed only 44.

Lake View enters the game with a 1-11 record, including an 0-3 district mark.

Dogs To Battle Loraine Tonight

Ira varsity boys' and girls' team will be looking for another district win tonight as they travel to Loraine. The agenda begins with a B-team boys game at 5:30, followed by the girls' game at 7 p.m.

David Mosley scored 16, Joe Hall had 14 and Fred Kesner and Keith Bryant had a dozen points each as Ira whipped Hobbs recently, 84-56. The Dogs posted 33 points in the second quarter while holding Hobbs to 9, to make the difference.

Scoring for Hobbs was J. Medrano with 15. The win gives Ira a 1-1 district mark. Hobbs' boys fall to 0-3.

In girls' action, Hobbs defeated the Bulldogs, 73-45 behind the shooting of Tammy Gober. Miss Gober put up 33 points while teammate Cathy Hull added 21.

Kim Layne and Donna Layne led for Ira; scoring 17 and 13 points, respectively.

Hobbs is now 3-0 in district, Ira notes a 1-1 mark.

In basketball play Monday, Ira junior varsity came up with a pair of victories over the Panthers. Ira boys won 37-25, while the girls noted a 31-14 score.

Scott Sharp and Kevin Huddleston had 12 and 11 points as Ira JV boys out-pointed the Panthers in every quarter. Laurie Mosley and marla Phillips (11 and 10 points) led the girls.

Ira's JV boys are 2-0, as are the girls.

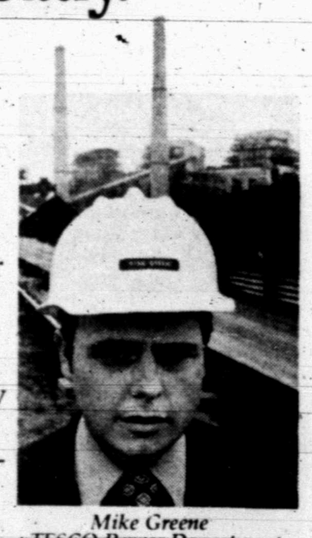
The electricity these youngsters will need when they grow up – for homemaking, jobs, education, health care and cleaning up the environment – must be planned for today.

"If we decided today we needed another power plant, these kids would be in college before it could be ready."

"Most people are surprised to learn how long it takes to build an electric generating plant.

It takes about eight years to locate and purchase the right site, order equipment, plan and build a lignite-fueled power plant, obtain approvals from all regulatory agencies, and then test the plant's operation carefully. It takes even longer for a nuclear-fueled plant — 10 to 12 years.



Mike Greene
TESCO Power Department

Right now, because of the shortage and high cost of natural gas, Texas Electric is building new plants that run on lignite coal and one which will use nuclear fuel.

These plants are very expensive. But we must build them so that when the need is there tomorrow, the electricity will be there too."

Current Baseball Draft Not Likely To Turn Up Any Immediate 'Somebodys' Says Wahle

NEW YORK (AP)-Baseball, the slow, lazy summer game, also plays the tortoise when it comes to developing player talent. Don't expect anybody picked at today's amateur draft to be a somebody this summer.

There was no Tom Dorsetts. Dorsett was a 1,000-yard gainer for the Dallas Cowboys in his rookie season in the National Football League. There will be no Kareem Abdul-Jabbars. Abdul-Jabbar turned the expansion Milwaukee Bucks into champions of the National Basketball Association in his second pro season.

Baseball is the simmer game as well as the summer game - its talent must warm up slowly.

"The baseball draft is not nearly the standard that the draft in basketball and football are," said Elliott Wahle, administrator for player personnel with the Toronto Blue Jays, who had the first selection in the 13th annual winter draft today.

There is a greater disparity between amateur and professional talent in baseball that in any other major team sport. One reason is that the colleges don't produce major league caliber players like they do for basketball and football. Another reason is that there is less specialization in baseball. Most baseball players must master offensive and defensive skills, all of which have intricate subleties on the major league level.

As a result, Toronto, the worst team in baseball last season, will probably be No. 26 again this year, once again winning the booby prize of first pick in the 1979 January draft.

This doesn't faze Peter Bavasi, one of the brightest young executives in the game. Bavasi is patiently constructing a winner in Toronto. His approach is to build through the farm system and the amateur draft, but not through the shoot-for-the-moon reentry draft that auctions off stars like Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett.

He also knows that the January amateur draft, which makes eligible principally junior college ballplayers, is not as fertile as the June draft, which offers the top high school and college prospects.

"Our model is the Kansas City Royals," Bavasi said by telephone Monday from his Toronto office. "They built themselves into division champions in eight years through their farm system and judicious trades.

"We're definitely going to build through the farm system. Last year we had one minor league team; now we have four. And in five years we hope to have a group of players that will make us very respectible. Then one or two key players might put us over the top.

"You have to look at the return on your investment. For us right now, buying free agents won't make that much difference in the standings."

9th Black Defeats Lamesa

Snyder 9th grade Black defeated Lamesa here yesterday, 71-68. The Tors had just won a 9th grade cage tournament in Lamesa over the weekend.

Snyder relied on Robert Rodriquez (22 points) and all-tourney player Kris Seale (21 points) to nip the Tors.

Behind 51-47 at the start of the final period, Snyder put up 24 points while holding Lamesa to 17 in order to take the win.

"It was a real good team effort," expressed Coach Mackey Greene. "We played with a lot of poise."

Heading the Lamesa scoring were Froman with 30 and Puckett with 15.

Snyder shot 27 of 54 from the field (50 percent), and led by Seale's five for five, went 17 of 25 from the charity stripe (68 percent).

Snyder Black 9th and 8th teams will play Jayton on Thursday.

Also named to the all-tourney team last week was Eric Arnold of the Gold team.

Boys Club Boxing News

STINNETT--Snyder won four boxing trophies over the weekend here, taking home three 2nds and a 1st place.

Mike Martinez won the top trophy in the high school division, knocking out Terry Moorehead of Oklahoma in the second round.

Taking 2nd place awards were Nino Martinez (lost to Johnny Warwick of Stinnett), Luther Williams (lost to Bobby Still of Amarillo) and George Augulair (lost to Greg Costly of Stinnett).

Joe Martinez of Snyder lost in the preliminaries to Tracy Stevens of Stinnett.

The Snyder group works out at the Scurry County Boys Club each weekday afternoon. Anyone wishing to join or any adult interested in helping should contact Luther Williams at the club.

Super Week In Full Colors

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Super Bowl madness has officially infected this bayou town.

Not because of the arrival of the two combatants, the Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos, on Monday, but because of the first of what will be hundreds - perhaps thousands - of street-corner confrontations.

On the corner of South Claiborne Avenue and Poydras Street, in the shadow of the Louisiana Superdome, the scene of next Sunday's Super Bowl XII, stood two fans, one in a silver Dallas shirt, the other in an Orange Denver shirt.

"On the Chinese calendar, it's the Year of the Horse," exclaimed the Denver fan, a neophyte in the area of Super Bowl rooting.

"Cowboys ride horses," Dallas' supporter said Cooly displaying the aplomb of a fan who has seen it all before, which he perhaps has, Dallas having been in three other National Football League championships.

"Yeah? Well Broncos throw Cowboys!" Denver's fan retorted, poking his finger at his adversary's chest.

"Broncos eventually get busted," was the next response.

It's going to be that kind of week.

The week really gets underway today when the National Conference-champion Cowboys, 23-6 winners over Minnesota, and the American Conference-champion Broncos, 20-17 victors over Oakland, meet the first wave of an ever-increasing torrent of sports writers flooding the scene.

Distractions, almost every Super Bowl coach says at one time or another, are his team's biggest problems. Dealing with the overwhelming attention and the carnival atmosphere of a Super Bowl city that can destroy his players' concentration presents an almost insurmountable task, the coaches contend.

"You have to learn how to live with Super Bowl week," Don Shula, whose Miami Dolphins lived with three of them, once observed. "It's never easy, especially the first time."

That was true for the Dolphins, who lost their first NFL title game to Dallas, then beat Washington and Minnesota. And it was true for the Cowboys, who lost to Baltimore before beating Miami (and losing to Pittsburgh two years ago).

Now its Denver's turn to face the first-time pressure. Only three Broncos have faced this special insanity - left offensive tackle Andy Maurer; placelicker Jim Turner, with the New York Jets in Super Bowl III, and, of course, Craig Morton facing his old team which he quarterbacked in Super Bowl V against Baltimore (and for which he rode the bench a year later against Miami).

Comparison Shows Cowboys A Shade Tougher

By Murray Olderman

NEW ORLEANS, La. (NEA)—For eight out of nine years, or ever since an ex-pool room hustler from Beaver Falls, Pa., known as Joe Willie Namath, defied the cognoscenti, the American Football Conference and its predecessor, the American Football League, has dominated professional football's extravaganza, the Super Bowl.

On the 10th year, in the Superdome here on Jan. 15, it will end.

That doesn't mean the AFC still doesn't produce the better grade of teams overall in the National Football League. It simply means — at least, that's my prediction — the Dallas Cowboys will beat the Denver Broncos in a fine football game, 20-16, and prove definitively that for now at least they are the best team in the sport.

It's significant that the Cowboys, who are making their fourth appearance in the Super Bowl (a record equalled only, surprisingly, by the Minnesota Vikings), were also the last National Football Conference to win one of the classics, trouncing the Miami Dolphins, 24-3, on Jan. 16, 1972.

A dozen players from that Super Bowl championship contingent are still active on the 1978 Cowboys — among them such key performers as quarterback Roger Staubach on offense and safeties Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris on defense, all of them all-pros.

The Broncos, the surprise squad of the 1977 pro season, had never in their history been to a playoff game before this, let alone an overwhelming spectacle like the Super Bowl, with its tremendous focus of pressure. Only two of the Bronco players — veteran quarterback Craig Morton, an ex-Cowboy, and placekicker Jim Turner, who kicked three field goals that were decisive in Joe Willie Namath's glory game of 1969 — have had any previous exposure to this kind of concentrated hoopla.

But experience won't be the decisive factor. The Cowboys, for offensive and defensive balance and, equally important, for basic squad depth, are a better team than the inspirational Broncos, who benefitted from the driving leadership of their new coach, Red Miller, an unusual comeback from their born-again quarterback, Morton, and an opportunistic defense that turned around many of their big games.

This is how the high drama, for that is what each Super Bowl game has become, will unfold:

The casts for Super Bowl XII

OFFENSE

Wide Receivers:

Dallas

Drew Pearson, Golden Richards, Butch Johnson

Denver

Haven Moses, Jack Dolbin, Rick Upchurch

Comment: Edge to Cowboy cast. Pearson close to best in game. Richards, Johnson alternate carrying in plays. Moses only real threat Broncos have and he can be covered deep.

Tight Ends

Dallas

Billy Joe Dupree, Jay Saldi

Denver

Riley Odoms, Randy Egloff

Comment: Standoff because Saldi is much better backup than anything Broncos have. Odoms more dangerous receiving threat than DuPree, leading Bronc catcher, but they're about even as blockers.

Offensive Line

Dallas

Ralph Neely, LT, Herbert Scott, LG, John Fitgerald, C, Tom Rafferty, RG, Pat Donovan, RT

Denver

Andy Maurer, LT, Tom Glassic, LG, Mike Montler, C, Paul Howard, RG, Claudie Minor, RT

Comment: Both teams stronger on right side, with an edge to the Broncs because that's the direction they run when they need the tough yards. Centers are both solid. Dallas gets the nod for reserve strength, with Burton Lawless, Rayfield Wright.

Quarterbacks

Dallas

Roger Staubach, Danny White

Denver

Craig Morton, Craig Penrose

Comment: Despite Morton's gutsy performance in '77, Staubach is far superior in skills and leadership. He could dominate the game. White, in fact, better than anything Broncos have.

Running Backs

Dallas

Tony Dorsett, Robert Newhouse, Preston Pearson, Doug Dennison

Denver

Otis Armstrong, Jon Keyworth, Rob Lytle, Lonnie Perrin

Comment: Dorsett's most exciting back on field, but for depth, consistency the Broncs' contingent is better. Quartet is interchangeable, and add Jim Jensen. Armstrong, in off year, might thrive in Super Bowl environment. Pearson a receiving threat.

Placekickers

Dallas

Efren Herrera

Denver

Jim Turner

Comment: Herfera turned erratic late in season. Turner wasn't so hot either, but he's more experienced and likely to hold up better under pressure of Super Bowl. Perrin kicks off for Broncs.

DEFENSE

Defensive Linemen

Dallas

Edgar Jones, LE, Jethro Pugh, LT, Randy White, RT, Harvey Martin, RE

Denver

Barney Chavous, LE, Rubin Carter, NG, John Grant, NG, Lyle Alzado, RE

Comment: The Cowboys' famous "flex" against the Broncos' three-man front. Dallas superb against rush, and has jacked up pass rush dramatically this year with Randy White, who makes things happen. Denver smartly alternates units to assure freshness, using Grant, Paul Smith, Brison Manor as subs. Alzado overrunning Neely could be crucial up-front battle. Overall edge to Dallas.

Linebackers

Dallas

Tom Henderson, LLB, Bob Breuning, MLB, D.D. Lewis, RLB, Mike Hegman, OLB

Denver

Bob Swenson, LLB, Joe Rizzo, ILB, Randy Gradishar, ILB, Tom Jackson, RLB

Comment: All-pro acclaim went to Jackson, Gradishar, but Henderson best linebacker on field. Can run at Jackson. Both units very active against pass. In pass situation, Broncos often sub another lineman, Grant, for Rizzo. Cowboys have better depth.

Defensive Backs

Dallas

Benny Barnes, LCB, Aaron Kyle, RCB, Charlie Waters, SS, Cliff Harris, FS

Denver

Louis Wright, LCB, Steve Foley, RCB, Bill Thompson, SS, Bernard Jackson, FS

Comment: Except for Wright at one corner, it's Cowboys all the way, though Bill Thompson at strong safety matches off well against Waters. Dallas can go to six-man deep defense with Mark Washington, Randy Hughes. Even have Mel Renfro. Broncs would be in trouble if they got any injuries. Harris is dominating free safety.

Punters

Dallas

Danny White

Denver

Bucky Dilts

Comment: White gets little more distance, but Dilts has been uncanny in coffin corner. White the better athlete, too.

Kick Returns

Dallas

Butch Johnson, Tony Hill

Denver

Rick Upchurch, John Schultz

Comment: None more dangerous than Upchurch, who can break game open. But Johnson, Hill aren't bad. Overall, Cowboy special teams feature better athletes, which can be important factor in game.

THE SCRIPT FOR SUPER BOWL XII

Because of the prestige and money at stake — an ultimate $32,000 to each member of the winning team — Super Bowls have tended to be conservatively played. The Cowboys shouldn't fall into that mold because Tom Landry is astute and innovative and, with Tony Dorsett in the lineup, can grab up big gulps of yardage in single plays.

The Broncos lean to a more conservative offense, but Red Miller, who alternates his running backs to call the plays, must realize it's going to be tough to run against that Dallas flexed front four and should put the ball up in the air early to get the Cowboys off balance.

I look for Randy White to be the pivotal figure in getting to Craig Morton and disrupting the Denver offense. Harvey Martin got the publicity for his 23 sacks this season, but White in the middle makes things happen.

Morton will not try to throw in the center of the field because there is no better pair of safeties in the game than Waters and Harris. Unless Armstrong has a strong comeback effort after a desultory campaign, I can't see the Broncos moving the ball consistently.

On the Denver side, Lyle Alzado and Rubin Carter can be the pressure forces to keep the Cowboys in check. When Dallas goes to the shotgun in passing situations, Carter can be disruptive playing on the nose of center John Fitzgerald.

The Cowboys running game will be designed to spring Dorsett and Newhouse on quick traps because it's tough to run wide against the pursuing Broncos.

Denver's big hope is an early turnover and a quick lead. If they have to play catchup football, I think it'll all be over in the first half. When the Cowboys control the game early, as they did against Chicago and Minnesota in the playoffs, they're almost impossible to contain.

That's the way I think it'll happen. Dallas will score first and set the tempo for an eventual victory. And a return to respectability of the NFC.

Seventh Grade Can Be Hazardous To Health

WASHINGTON (AP) - Warning: seventh grade can be hazardous to your health.

The federal government isn't going to require that admonition on every classroom blackboard, but its health and education experts agree the seventh grade can be rough physically and emotionally for the four million youngsters who pass through it each year.

A federal study released last week found that school violence and vandalism peak in the seventh grade. The 12-and 13-year-olds are the most likely to be attacked - and to be the attackers - of all junior and senior high students.

Health planners pinpoint the seventh grade as a crucial time for youngsters in deciding whether to smoke. A new federal anti-smoking campaign being unveiled Wednesday is expected to aim at discouraging these youngsters from picking up the habit.

And 62 percent of all seventh graders, according to one study, have at least tried alcohol. In a 1975 survey, more than 11 percent said they were heavy or moderately heavy drinkers.

Why is the seventh grade such a troublesome time?

"It's the worst period in a kid's life. He doesn't have his life figured out," said Roy Nehrt, an official of the National Center for Education Statistics and a former junior high school teacher in St. Louis. "He's under all kinds of pressures from all sides, and he can't cope with them."

For youths in the midst of puberty, discovering that they are no longer children but not yet adults, the transition from the safe environment of an elementary school to the unfamiliar confines of junior high can be difficult.

"It's a real bad time. They are encountering more things than they ever encountered before. They may be thrown into some sort of violence and be robbed or shaken down for the first time," said Beverly Schwartz of New York, a former teacher who now coordinates a national youth anti-smoking project.

Like their elders, the young teens may turn to cigarettes as a crutch, "trying to look cool and sophisticated and older," she said.

The National Institute on Education, which conducted the $2.4 million study on school violence, found that the rate of violent incidents declined steadily from the seventh through the 12th grades.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

One minor traffic accident was investigated Monday afternoon by city police.

The mishap occurred about 2:45 p.m. at the intersection of 37th St. and College Ave. Involved in the collision were a 1975 Chevrolet truck driven by Lucio Solis and a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Debra Swell.

FIRE DOUSED---A washroom behind the 1903 Ave. M home of Raymond Phipps was destroyed and a corner of the home was damaged before city firefighters were able to douse the blaze. The fire occurred about 3 p.m. Monday and fire department officials speculated that the blaze may have been sparked by faulty electrical wiring. Shown battling the blaze are, from left, Ross Rochelle, Bill Barlow, Ollie Chapman, and Gerald Butler. (SDN Staff Photo)

Valium Makers Oppose Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)- The makers of the nation's most prescribed drug, Valium, say the federal government is wrong in advising doctors to curtail its use after four months.

But the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association supports Monday's decision by the Food and Drug Administration to require that drugs intended to suppress anxiety carry a label questioning their effectiveness after prolonged use.

"The drug would not have reached such a place in modern medicine if it was not effective," said a spokesman for the makers of Valium and Librium, the second most popular tranquilizer.

But the spokesman for the manufacturer, who asked to be identified only as a representative of Hoffman LaRoche of Nutley, N.J., said "it is good practice for any prescription user to see his doctor regularly."

Both drugs, in addition to other tranquilizers belonging to what pharmacists call the meprobamate group, such as Miltown, are affected by the FDA action.

The FDA's Bureau of Drugs ruled that such drugs must carry the following label beginning in 60 days:

"The effectiveness of the drug's name in long-term use, that is, more than four months, has not been assessed by systematic clinical studies. The physician should periodically reassess the usefulness of the drug for the individual patient."

The new label requirment appears in today's Federal Register.

Dr. William R. Barclay, editor of the AMA journal, said "there has been a tendency for a patient to become dependent" on anti-anxiety drugs and to continue use "over a period of years rather than weeks."

"If the basic cause of the anxiety remains, the drugs are not effective," said Barclay. "The doctor should reevaluate the need for any drug taken over a period of time."

OBITUARIES

J. R. Massey

Funeral service has been set for 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the Bell-Seale Chapel here for James Ross Massey, 89, of Abilene, a former world champion rodeo performer, who died Monday at Abilene.

The Rev. H.B Terry, pastor of Temple Baptist Church in Abilene, will officiate at the funeral service and burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. The body will lie in repose at Elliott-Hamil Funeral Home in Abilene until Wednesday afternoon when it will be brought to Bell-Seale here.

Mr. Massey, who was a rodeo competitor for some 28 years, won the world champion bulldogging (steer wrestling) title in 1920. He was a charter member of the Rodeo Cowboys Association and was a competitor in the first Frontier Days Rodeo at Cheyenne, Wyo., in 1911. After retiring from the rodeo arena, he appeared in several western movies and performed some action stunts in "Gone With the Wind."

Mr. Massey was married on Nov. 22, 1922, in Snyder to Miss Beulah Ford. She survives.

Baum Opens Headquarters

Democratic Congressional candidate Jim Baum of Big Spring opened his headquarters yesterday by announcing he would kick off his campaign with a door-to-door canvass in the next two weeks in the 17th Congressional District.

Baum said, "My appeal is to the middle income families and in order to convince voters they can have a voice in government, I'll be taking my campaign to their doorsteps." He added, "If I'm elected, I want our District's voters to be able to tell their friends their Congressman has been to their homes to discuss the issues personally."

Additional comments during headquarters' ceremonies were made by Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate, District Judge Ralph W. Caton, Howard County Democratic Chairman Evan Evans and Baum's campaign chairman, Judge Lee Porter, all of whom voiced their support of Baum.

The initial weeks of Baum's campaign will find him visiting voters in 12 cities. Today, Baum was going door-to-door in the neighborhood in which he grew up in Abilene. Wednesday, the intensive effort moves to Clyde; Thursday, Eastland; Friday, Sweetwater; and Saturday, Snyder.

When you have Snyder Glass and Mirror do a job for you, the firm brings with it 30 years of experience and know-how.

And with 30 years of experience, said store owner Roy Bailey, you can be assured that you're getting the best service possible in either residential or commercial work.

Bailey, who began in the glass and mirror work in 1948, said he personally supervises the training of his employees.

Not only does Snyder Glass and Mirror perform residential and commercial work, the firm also specializes in replacing windshields and car windows, said Bailey.

In fact, Bailey said, the firm does any work pertaining to glass or mirrors.

With spring coming up, many people will be building patios and will need glass enclosures. Snyder Glass and Mirror does patio glass-enclosure work, Bailey said.

NEW LOCATION—Shown at their new location are Max and Linda Moreland, owners of Snyder Trailer Sales. Snyder Trailer Sales is located at 1500 37th St. and is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Snyder Trailer Sales Is Now Open At 37th Street Location

No longer will Snyderites have to travel to 17th St. and Ave. I to find travel trailers and pickup covers because Snyder Trailer Sales is now more conveniently located to better serve you.

Located at 1500 37th St., the former location of Turnbow Nursery, Snyder Trailer Sales is open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

The firm features travel trailers and pickup covers that are ideal for vacations or backyard camping.

Owner Max Moreland said Snyder Trailer Sales has such namebrand travel trailers and tent campers as Jayco and Nomad and an assortment of Hawktop and Gemtop pickup covers that come in a variety of sizes and styles.

The present inventory also includes a used 31-foot Airstream trailer.

With the purchase of a Jayco or Nomad travel trailer, customers also get the dependable quality that goes with a name-brand product, Moreland pointed out.

Specializing not only in the sales department, the firm also services all kinds of trailers and pick-up covers.

Servicing Golden Falcon trailers, a discontinued line, is made easier, Moreland said, because Golden Falcons are produced by the same company that makes Nomad trailers and both use many of the same parts.

"A satisfied customer is our best advertisement" is the firm's business philosophy and with such a principle as that, Moreland said, a person cannot go wrong by buying a product at Snyder Trailer Sales.

Another feature that Snyder Trailer Sales is offering its customers is an open house which is to be held late this month.

So remember, whatever your needs are in travel trailers or pickup covers, go by Snyder Trailer Sales at 1500 37th St.
