Tibetan Plea For Help Gets Cold Shoulder

LAKH SUCCESS — (AP) — Tibet's appeal for United Nations assistance to repel Chinese Communist invaders appeared headed for the "file and forget" cabinet today.

No UN member appeared willing to shoulder the responsibility of sponsoring Tibet's plea in the security council. Since the remote Himalayan territory is not a member, it cannot present the plea directly.

The two governments most directly concerned — India and Nationalist China — both take the attitude that Tibet is a part of China and therefore the conflict is a civil war not subject to UN jurisdiction.

Although both countries are highly opposed to the Red use of force against the 3,000,000 people in the mountain land, they feel the legal niceties prevent interference.

The United States has not yet studied the 1,200-word communication from Tibetan Finance Minister Tsepon Shakabpa to Secretary General Trygve Lie, but its representatives gave the impression that it was much too engrossed in the Korean campaign to take on the main burden of a new war.

U.S. Deputy Delegate Ernest A. Gross told newsmen last night the U.S. was consulting informally on Tibet, but would not take a definite stand until the correspondence was thoroughly studied.

In the meantime, he said, the U.S. was concentrating its efforts on an attempt to get Red China out.

He denied accusations in some newspapers that the invitation to the Communist Peiping government to send representatives here constituted appeasement.

It was, he said, part of the council's aim of limiting the war.

The U.S. delegate asserted, however, that the tone of Peiping's reply to the UN invitation has swung a majority of the council behind the U.S. position that it might as well go ahead immediately with discussion of a resolution ordering Chinese troops out of Korea. The same resolution promises to respect the border between China and Korea.

BATTLE TO WIPE OUT ENEMY—The UN forces gained up to four miles in their cautious offensive along the 250-mile battle front, battling to wipe out an enemy pocket in the Chongchun River line at Tokchon (1). Allied bombers struck the key cities of Sinuiju, Manjojin and Sakchu (blast symbols), and blasted bridges across the Yalu River, where Chinese Communist reinforcements enter Korea. The U. S. 7th Marine Regiment advanced within 4 miles of the Chosin Reservoir (2) without opposition. The U. S. 3rd Division reached Habongsan (3) to link up with the ROK forces and form a solid UN defense line across a narrow waist of Korea.

Senate Judiciary Committee Proposed for Checking Reds

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) proposed today that the Senate Judiciary Committee take over investigations of un-American activities as a regular part of its job.

He noted that a judiciary subcommittee on immigration, headed by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) already has done some work in this field and said it is equipped to go into it on a full-scale basis.

In effect, Ferguson proposed that the subcommittee become a Senate counterpart of the House un-American Activities Committee. Some other Republicans have talked about setting up such a group in the next Congress.

Republican victories in last week's elections gave fresh impetus to the idea. Some GOP winners have claimed that a factor in their success was a campaign claim that Democrats whitewashed Senator McCarthy's (R-Wis.) charges of Communist infiltration of the State Department.

Ferguson said he long has felt the Senate should give more attention to the whole field of un-American activities.

"It's a job that needs to be done, and the judiciary committee can do it," he told a reporter.

Among other things, he said, "the public is entitled to an investigation of this whole question of Communist infiltration into the government and will not be satisfied until it has been done, and neither will I."

Ferguson said he saw no particular need to create a special Senate committee to handle the job since the judiciary committee has ample authority to go ahead. McCarthy has suggested the job might well be handled by an expenditures subcommittee headed by Senator Hoey (D-N.C.).

McCarthy is a member of it. Ferguson said that when Congress returns later this month he will press the judiciary committee to make a prompt inquiry into administration of the new internal security law.

Much of the act, passed over President Truman's veto, was fashioned by the judiciary's immigration subcommittee. Ferguson was one of the authors of its provisions requiring the registration of Communist and Communist front organizations.

He said he expected to hear from the committee on the subject.

Borders Shut In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela — (AP) — Venezuela closed her borders today and suspended civil liberties following the assassination Monday of her acting president, Lt. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was clamped on the oil-rich country's 4,000,000 population after the government announced that Delgado, head of a three-man military junta which seized control of Venezuela in 1948, had died of gunshot wounds.

The Venezuelan embassy in Bogota announced last night that Delgado had been surrounded by a score of men while driving from his home to the presidential house, and taken to a building on the eastern outskirts of Caracas where six bullets were pumped into his body.

(An embassy spokesman said the attack and had been arrested with five or six other men. The spokesman said a state of siege had been imposed in Venezuela and foreigners had been warned not to mix in the situation.)

(Venezuelan sources in New York identified Simon Urbina as an old-time revolutionary.)

Curfew restrictions prevented the filing of news dispatches from Caracas last night.

The first announcement of the slaying — broadcast to the nation by Defense Minister Marcos Perez Jimenez, one of the two surviving members of the junta — gave no details of the attack.

Delgado led the bloodless coup of Nov. 24, 1948, which toppled the leftist regime of Romulo Gallegos, whose Action Democratic Party had swept the polls 11 months earlier. Delgado, Perez Jimenez and Lt. Col. Luis Felipe Llovera Paez became the ruling junta.

Solons Seek Goal, Plans in Economic Help

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Two senators, a Republican and a Democrat, said today that as a prelude to any new foreign economic aid plan the administration must set out a definite goal and — as far as possible — the steps to meet it.

They were Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), slated to move up to the No. 2 GOP spot on the Senate Appropriations Committee, and Senator Green (D-R.I.), who will be the third ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the 82nd Congress.

On the question of military aid to western Europe, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told a news conference Monday he thinks the United States will have to provide help, but that the new Congress starting Jan. 3, must study the matter thoroughly.

Senator Anderson (D-N.M.) countered that any prolonged examination by Congress of the arms aid program might result in fatal delays in building anti-Soviet defenses.

Ferguson and Green, in separate interviews, made their observations in connection with the foreign economic report of Gordon Gray, former Secretary of the Army, who studied the whole problem for President Truman.

Gray, in a report made public Sunday night, recommended a multi-billion dollar program of economic aid to western Europe after the end of the Marshall Plan in 1952 and a broad program of assistance for underdeveloped areas.

Ferguson called for the aid.

Guides Locate Crashed Liner

GRENOBLE, France — (AP) — French mountain guides today located the shattered wreckage of a Canadian airliner which apparently dashed head-on into an alpine cliff with 51 passengers — mostly Canadian Holy Year pilgrims and crew of seven.

Their first radioed report indicated none of the crash victims was likely to be found alive.

The guides, pushing toward the scene through rain and snow, messaged back that they had spotted the wreckage near the vertiginous north face of Mount "Oubou" range at 2 p. m. (7 a. m. CST) today. The plane crashed last night.

Photographs of Pope Pius XII, who had blessed the pilgrims shortly before they took off from Rome Monday, for Paris and home, were found scattered in a forest several miles from the scene of the crash, apparently carried by mountain gales.

Discord Closes Red Congress

SHEFFIELD, Eng. — (AP) — The Red-backed World Peace Conference wound up its one-night stand here last night on a note of discord between Russian and American viewpoints and prepared to reopen Thursday in the more congenial surroundings of Warsaw, Poland.

The transfer to Warsaw is being made because British immigration authorities barred most foreign delegates from entering this country.

The Polish liner Batory is coming to an English port to pick up some of the delegates. The Czech air lines has offered to carry others.

In Warsaw itself carpenters and other craftsmen worked to ready a new assembly hall for the conference.

Last night's clash came when Boris Polevoy, the Russian writer, took exception to the attitudes expressed by two American delegates.

He trained his guns mainly upon O. John Rogge, former assistant U. S. attorney general, who declared that in Russia "there may have been too great a concentration of political power, with the result that some of it has spilled over into economic policy and in relations with (Russia's) neighbors."

Rogge, whose views were broadly supported by the Rev. John Paul Jones, Presbyterian clergyman from Brooklyn, added that in America too great a concentration of economic power

Red Chinese Wait Drive by UN Force

SEOUL, Korea — (AP) — A frozen silence settled over Korean battlefields today.

Temperatures of six above zero virtually paralyzed the northwestern front where an estimated 90,000 Chinese Communists face the concentrated U. S. First Corps. It was even colder in the northeast.

Ice-tipped winds swept down from mountain peaks on the quilted Chinese and on shivering Americans, many still in summer uniforms. The U. S. Eighth Army was rushing Arctic clothing to the chilled troops.

Parka-clad Marines pushed through frozen hills in the center of the line toward Changjin reservoir and its great hydroelectric development.

Farther east, two regiments of the U. S. Seventh Division marched along ice-caked roads in sub-zero weather toward the Manchurian border, 30 miles away.

Winds of 40 miles an hour made it difficult for fighting men of the Seventh Division to breathe. Their hands and feet were numb by the cold.

A thermometer carried by a day wind-tossed plane above them registered 21 degrees below zero. Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone and the pilot, Lt. James C. Evans of Columbus, Ga., said an overcast all but hid the 17th Regiment and the 31st "Polar Bear" Regiment.

Sticks and ox carts carried heavy weapons and equipment through the mountain roads north of Pungsan.

Red mortars opened up on the troops three hours after they started the march toward Kapsan, 15 miles northwest. Other Seventh Division patrols reached the Pusan reservoir 35 miles southwest of Pungsan without seeing the enemy.

On the snow-covered hills of the east coast, the South Korean capital division beat off a tank-led North Korean attack with the help of the eight-inch guns of the U. S. Cruiser Roanoke.

Meningitis Closes Schools in Lefors For Rest of Week

The death of Vira Marcella Dickerson, 14, caused by spinal meningitis, has closed the Lefors Public Schools for the rest of this week, according to R. C. Wilson, superintendent.

Wilson stated Miss Dickerson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dickerson, died late Sunday in the Lefors Hospital, following a very short illness. He said she complained of a chill while at school Friday, but remained in school for a large part of the day.

She was taken to the hospital early Saturday where doctors said she had meningitis.

Early Monday, Wilson and the school nurse contacted the attending physician who advised at first the students practice extra cleanliness for a few days and watch carefully for any symptoms of the disease. Later that day, the doctor advised the schools be closed to relieve the anxiety of the parents of other students in the schools.

Funeral services for Miss Dickerson will be held at 1 p. m. today from the First Baptist Church in Lefors. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

It will pay you to call Bert A. Howell & Co., 119 N. Ward, and let them check your heating system. Ph. 152 for speedy service.

Copper, Nickel May Follow Aluminum

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government's 35 percent cut in non-military use of aluminum will be followed soon by cuts in copper and nickel, and maybe next year by a further slash in aluminum.

That was the metals picture as seen by government officials today.

Though the present arms program is modest compared with that of World War II, booming output of civilian goods is consuming nearly all the metals in sight, and therefore officials say even a modest arms program can't get very far without a reduction in civilian use of metals.

Copper and nickel cutback or delay are expected within a couple of weeks.

The aluminum order issued Monday by the National Production Authority (NPA) effective Jan. 1, marked the first time the NPA has cut a major metal "across the board" meaning that the cut applies throughout the manufacturing and construction industries without regard for specific end-products.

Many officials would rather begin by cutting out certain non-essential products. But the Defense Production

Industrial Work Is Behind Building Industry Increase

AUSTIN — (AP) — Industrial construction work, given impetus by the Korean war, bolstered the building industry in October. Construction awards totaled 98 million dollars, approximately double the amount of October a year ago.

The Texas Contractor, building trade journal, reported the October figures, observing that the dollar value of awards "held to the higher bracket... despite controls, higher prices and material scarcity."

"Defense mobilization has necessitated the construction of additional industrial plants to meet war needs," the magazine said. Contract lettings last week totaled $22,208,403. Non-residential building accounted for $15,374,366; residential, $4,791,080; and engineering, $2,042,957.

The year's accumulative total reached $893,529,725.

HE CAME TO KILL

by ADELINA McFELPHEE
Copyright 1950 by ADELINA McFELPHEE

THE STORY: Agony, domination, death in her bed and all her household, including Stephen Peter who arrived on the eve of the crime, are suspects. Next her sister, Agatha, 74, is pushed down a stairway, but escapes serious injury. Leona, youthful grandniece of the murder victim, suspects Canada Peter came home to kill, but she also suspects Peter's brother Jasper, and even Jasper's wife Leona, and Leona herself is under suspicion. Before the quest there is a scene between Jasper and Leona. Jasper says: "You sorry, I gave you the name and hanging. Or was it the electric chair in Indiana?"

Shuddering in spite of her determination not to be squeamish, Leona closed her eyes. She opened them to see Mart Preston standing in the doorway. He grinned.

"Is this a private seance?"

"Seance?"

"You looked out-of-this-world, sitting there with your hands out in front of you on the table and your eyes shut," Mart chided her. "I thought maybe you were telling Sandra's fortune."

Leona shook her head. So it's "Sandra" now. She said, "Fortune is the future, Mart. None of us wants to look into the future right now. We're afraid of it. I know I am. Scared stiff of that impostor, Martin Preston sobered instantly. "Yeah," he said. "Well it be—bad!"

MART looked at Sandra as though he were trying to analyze her tone, to separate the caressing, warm undertones from the fear.

"It will be bad," he said shortly. "When is murder—or its aftermath—a pretty thing? That's another thing about you people, the way you accept your own existence as a thing of beauty. You can't imagine the sordidness of living, of dying—violently."

"Ah," interrupted Sandra, "another lecture." She turned on the infuriating slow smile that Leona despised. "Got an extra seance, Martie?"

Dolcility—grief—had dropped from her like a forgotten cloak the instant Mart had appeared. Watching her now, Leona thought her more of an actress than they had given her credit for being. She was sly, aggressive—everything she should not be in the face of murder, but she was getting away with it. Mart Preston grinned.

All packages must be wrapped according to regulations and will be checked at the local post office before they are shipped.

"I can't win, can I?"

"Obviously," replied Sandra. She rose and, with studied nonchalance, went into the kitchen. A moment later they heard the back door slam.

"There," observed Deputy Preston, "goes quite a gal."

"Obviously," Leona snapped, borrowing Sandra's sarcasm.

Obvious to her backing sager, Mart poured himself a cup of coffee and smiled himself across from her. His lean face, with a trace of reddish beard, was not handsome, but—Leona dropped her eyes on confusion.

"Leona," he said softly, "will you ask to be murdered—and trust me?"

THE cut-and-dried questions and answers and the dingy old courtroom matched, somehow, the dour faces of the coroner's jury. The inquest was not as bad in itself as the unspoken accusation, the pointed suspicion brooding from the spectators' section.

It was not that the Thorne sisters had been popular with their neighbors. They had not; in fact, they had made no bones whatever about their desire to be left alone with the Thorne family prestige that Leona's father referred to as self-necked pride.

No, Leona mused, thinking about it now in the face of their combined antagonism, it was just that the sleepy little community resented anything—even murder—that interrupted its complacent way of life. These people's presence in the courtroom was a conglomeration of many things—hatred for the family that had rebuffed so many of them, their own unadmitted desire for a nodding acquaintance with excitement, morbid curiosity.

Leona steeled herself to look again at the austere coroner's jury in whose hands lay somebody's freedom—somebody's life, even. It was difficult for her to realize, even after all that had happened, that she was sitting with a murderer, perhaps next to him, but Mart Preston, on the witness stand now, made it very real as he sketched a brief, vivid picture of last night.

New Political Term Suggested

Considerable attention is being given by the press to a suggestion made recently by H. L. Hunt of Dallas — widely known for his oil wildcatting activities and his discoveries of now-famous oil fields — that the term CONSTRUCTIVE be used to identify individuals who strive for the "wise and honest in government." The word, he contends, should also identify a political cause, as well as individuals.

Mr. Hunt has written a brochure setting forth his idea. He contends that Americans are confused over the political situation in the United States and that the old terms such as "liberal" and "conservative" have lost practical meaning in government. He makes it clear that "Democrat" and "Republican" also have become worn out as guides to voters.

It is contended by Mr. Hunt that in America there is a serious struggle going on between two governmental philosophies "which are much wider apart than those indicated by 'Democrat' and 'Republican,' and with this contention we are in complete agreement.

Se Salvation Army Needs Our Help

Many thousands of men and women never go to church and are never reached by organized religion. Many people through misfortune, poverty or disgrace, feel out of step with the other people in their community, and outside all ordinary concern for their welfare.

To these, and to scores of others without a church, the Salvation Army goes, bringing the only religious teaching that they know. With this spiritual help goes material aid, and a very real concern for their well-being.

Washington.....by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON. (NEA) — Cold figures give the tip on what the President and Congress will have to do about changing the draft to get the armed services up to 3,500,000 men and keeping that figure. Past experience has been that half of this force will be regulars and volunteers.

The trouble is, only 750,000 men who are physically fit for service reach the age of 19 each year. Under the present law, they are called for only 21 months' service.

Only possible ways to make up the deficiency are to keep men longer, lower the standards, take married men, or dip into the 18-year class.

It may be wrong of me, but I wonder whether baseball will ever be forgotten or just faintly remembered as a juvenile obsession of a quantity amug the who thought their raw and raucous folkways were the fulfillment of man's spiritual, political and intellectual aspirations. Call it heresy, but when I was on sports I snickered at the bombast of the "World Series" by which we know the annual gaudy classic as it is also known to some consecrated men of the press coop.

Baseball is played almost exclusively in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, a few Latin American countries and Japan play at it, but not seriously. We play better than any of the others but even so we play much less than we think we do. We certainly play it very much less than we did about 1910.

It is arguable whether the quality of major league ball is better than that of 30 or 40 years ago, but the argument is beyond settlement because the game and the equipment have changed. The fielders' gloves were very small then, with a thin layer of wadding back around the heel and a mere film across the palm. Some players, especially infielders, mutilated their gloves by cutting out the palm entirely, exposing bare meat where the ball hit. This was bravado, but the tough men of that period and they included some little men, such as Johnny Evers and Rabbit Maranville, insisted that they could handle the ball more deftly without anything between it and the hand.

The glove grew gradually. Now it is about three times the hand's area and is beautifully tailored and laced so as to trap and hold balls that have got away from the old-timers. The same generally is true of the first baseman's mitt. It is a claw and it owes something to the jai-alai basket and the bat or club. It is a masterpiece of such changes come gradually, but it is startling to see a catcher of the present day reach across and snatch a one-handed snatch of a pitch going to his right. The pliable mitt permits that, but catching with the two-handed job as discussed by great men of long ago who wore a huge stiff pillow, called for some reason a decker, which didn't absorb the ball but blocked it. Ray Schalk, the first of the little catchers, designed a smaller one with a deeper pouch which made for nimble handling in all respects, but even with his innovation the other hand was always used.

There are complex reasons why we play so much less ball now. One is the cost of putting a ball player on the field equipped as well as professionals and the cost of uniforms, mits, shoes, bats, and other apparatus, including many balls, runs to about $100 a man.

Mexican boys play baseball. In general, money isn't spent until goods are delivered. Total output of cash for the year ending next June 30 may not be over $445,000,000, or about seven percent of the whole program.

Heavy spending will come after that, on orders now being placed. It will take an estimated two years to complete deliveries.

BOND REINVESTMENT DRIVE
Details of program to encourage reinvestment of matured U.S. savings bond funds will soon be announced by Treasury. One and a half billion dollars worth of "E" bonds come due in 1951, three billion in 1952.

Big argument will come in trying to convince the bond holder to the 25 principal and interest he gets from purchase of a bond for $18.75 10 years ago is worth more than, say, 60 percent of $15 purchasing power it represents, in terms of 1941 dollar value. That's what inflation has done.

Best answer that can be given now is, "What would your money be worth if you had invested it in stocks, corporation bonds, life insurance, real estate or any other kind of property? And where could you have bought greater security for repayment in full?"

Savings bond sales officials are encouraged by recent pickups in payroll deduction plans, in spite of heavy cashing of bonds. National Tube Co., Lorain, Ohio, now California would have had it for its 31st. If there had been 37 with an old ball, wrapped in tire tape long after the hide has vanished. That invention came from our side of the line, but we got accustomed to luxury and affections as the major league parks after restraint were imposed by the proprietors of the professional game to handicap the pitchers and promote hitting artificially for commercial reasons. The pitchers of the era leading into 1910 and the take world series between the White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds had developed downright wizardry. With their big strong fingers they could stretch the stitches until the hide of the ball was loose as an old union suit and then lather the slack in puckers and sling crazy curves or spinners that either eluded the hitters or confined them to little pops and dribbles.

Once upon a time when some pitcher was marveling that Grover said any pitcher who knew his business could make it impossible for them to hit to right. Billy Evans the umpire said Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox after wasting the ball on a patch of paraffine melted onto his pants leg, could throw one that just seemed to explode.

There were spitters and smery pitchers and those who scuffed the hide with their thumbnails, raising feathers which were supposed to make it act like crazy. To curb these tricky men a major league began throwing out of play all balls that had been nicked or scuffed. They could afford to. The amateurs can't, but they do.

The magnates, or proprietors, decided on the changes, consulting no authority but their own economic interests. They make the rules and even the colleges accept the changes, most things. Their motive was sordid, but I would not argue that the public lost anything by the change. The facts are erratic, too. The Jack rabbit ball was used in the last world series, but nevertheless we saw hunting again after years and years of free swinging, and the small scores were reminiscent of the olden days.

I am not trying to hurry history and evolution, but it is unthinkable, however undesirable it may be, that one day major league and inferior professional baseball should no longer be. The minor leagues have dwindled and the type of young man who formerly was happy and frankly proud to play with Peoria or St. Joe is indifferent to the pay and the accommodations. He certainly is affected, too, by the decline of the social prestige of minor league players with the town girls and town sports.

I avail a new book entitled "The Baseball Story" by a true believer in the permanence, national significance and spiritual importance of baseball, Freddy Lieb, of St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Lieb wrote major league ball for 30 years and evolved a new phase of mathematics called "pennant chances percentages." He became a sort of homemade Einstein in this specialty and I was no better able to fault his conclusions than Einstein's (for the same reason. I never understood them. I have wondered whether both of them with their doodles and ding-bats were pulling the comic leg. Of this I am certain, that Mr. Lieb's book will be the real story of baseball and that he will defy the centuries to do the Yankee Stadium as they did the Roman Coliseum.

percent of its 25,000 employees participating. Carnegie - Illinois Steel in past month has jumped participation from 18,000 to 72,000 of its 100,000 employees.

MATHEMATICS
Reapportionment of congressional seats for the 1952 election based on the 1950 census figure of 150,000,000 population, involves some tricky arithmetic. Since the law now fixes the size of the House of Representatives at 435 members, it means that the Communist man should represent approximately 334,000 people. Trouble is, when you divide the population of each state by 334,000, it seldom ever comes out even. There's always a fraction.

Under the present law, the purpose of the reapportionment is to work out a minimum in justice to every state for its fraction.

American Academy of Science reported on this injustice to the Speaker of the House back in 1929. From that report, the present system was worked out. The law says first that each state shall have at least one representative. That accounts for the first 48 of the 435, and leaves 387 to be divided on the second round.

On this first round, Delaware, Nevada and Wyoming drop out because they have less than 334,000 population. Vermont also drops out because it doesn't have enough population to get a seat. With these four out, the 387 seats are divided among 44 states.

The states are now lined up according to calculated priority. New York gets the largest population, it gets the 49th seat. California gets 50, Pennsylvania 51 and Illinois 52. New York now still has a greater priority than any other state, so it gets the 53rd seat for its third congressional seat. It gets 54, Texas 55, Michigan 56. California gets the 57th seat for its third congressional seat. Pennsylvania gets the 58th for its third and New York gets the 59th for its fourth. And so on. But on every round, some states drop out. Seven states gain this year, and nine states lose through population shifts.

Seat 435 this year went to Massachusetts for its 14th congressional seat. If there had been 436 seats, California would have had it for its 31st. If there had been 437

DANGER ON THE AIR

America's most strategic communities, in which large concentrations of people or important groupings of industries are centered, have begun to organize for the eventuality of an atom bomb attack and other forms of airborne invasion, such as for instance, paratroop raiders. If the day comes when Soviet military power strikes boldly at the heart of our nation's strength, the population in these strategic communities will be alerted by radio and other means, setting into motion intricately worked-out mass evacuation and defense plans.

For successful execution of such emergency plans, the whole population must spring into action within the space of a few minutes. Sirens, mill whistles and other signals will set plans in motion and summon the population to radio sets, telephones and public loud speakers for detailed instructions. Thus the mass communication facilities become the very heart of our civilian defense—and also the No. 1 objective for invading forces and their fifth columnists.

THE TECHNIQUE
Hitler's tacticians found it of great strategic importance to send squads of parachuting raiders into cities in the pathway of the Wehrmacht and seize the radio stations. In some countries, Nazi fifth columnists who had been posing as loyal citizens suddenly produced machine guns and seized the stations. Then an unsuspected French or Belgian or Dutch announcer would interrupt programs and announce, "Emergency orders! All citizens remain indoors with blinds drawn!" The civilian population was thus perfectly controlled by the invaders.

The Communist Red Army and a far-flung fifth column, highly organized in every nation in the civilized world, have perfected this Nazi total war strategy and added the diabolical infiltration technique. They used it with decisive effect in Korea. In the United States where virtually every family has a radio, radio stations would be invaluable. In fact, our radio industry long has been one of the high priority objectives of infiltrating communists.

In a recent issue of the RADIO-TELEVISION DAILY, important publication of the industry, the danger of American fifth column Communists and fellow travelers was recognized in the following terse warning: "In an emergency (at any given time) it would require only three persons (Communist or sympathizers) TO REACH 90 MILLION PEOPLE WITH A MESSAGE! One engineer in master control at a radio network. One director in a radio studio. One voice before a microphone."

The popular magazine, BROADCASTING, also warned: "Can you conceive of anyone more potent when an emergency strikes than the man at the network mike? That should be sufficient to guide broadcast management in the screening of personnel." And last June, J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, who will have the responsibility of "neutralizing" the fifth column in any emergency, told a Congressional Committee: "Communist efforts toward infiltration have been intensified in the communications industry."

RED INFLUENCE
In view of these facts, the recent publication of a report by a group of former high placed FBI men would be of interest to the American public. The report said, in part: "With radios in most American homes and with approximately 5 million TV sets in use, the Communist Party of the United States, now relying more on radio and TV than on press and motion pictures as 'belts' to transmit pro-Sovietism to the American public." Substantial funds earned by Communists and sympathizers employed in the industry find their way to the Party through contributions to "fronts," the former FBI men said.

The 315-page report, entitled "Red Channels," lists approximately 150 actors, directors, commentators, writers, technicians, announcers, musicians and producers of radio and TV and gives the Communist or Communist front organization to which they reportedly have belonged, affiliated with, or in whose activities they've participated. The former FBI men responsible for this report are not "witch hunters."

They have genuine concern for the safety of our nation. They say Communism has gained powerful influence in the strategic communications field. They want the public to know the facts. They are putting their finger on a real danger—when the time is not yet "too late."

seats to distribute. Kentucky would have received the last one and would not have lost a seat dropping from nine to eight. There would have to be 509 seats to distribute to keep every state from losing strength in the 83rd Congress. Arkansas would have received the 809th seat for a seven-man delegation, instead of dropping to six.

It's up to each state, of course, to redistrict and gerrymander, in order to decide which counties or city wards go in each district.

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — If the Truman-Boyle-Vaughan Missouri machine did not enjoy such a tight grip on the national political organization, conscientious Democratic leaders would today be looking for another presidential candidate than Harry S. Truman for 1952 as a result of last Tuesday's election disaster.

Although the Democrats retain fractional control of Congress, albeit with a less workable and functioning majority than they have had since Mr. Truman entered the White House, the reelection and repudiation of the Truman foreign and domestic programs are far more devastating than is generally realized. The bare election returns do not begin to reveal the extent of the catastrophe.

DECIMATED — The party's most promising political material, including conservatives and liberals, youngsters and veterans, was decimated because of its association with the administration's domestic "Fair Deal" and its ill-fated overseas adventure. The ironic fact is that, even though worried Democrats should be able to sidetrack Mr. Truman two years hence, Tuesday's slaughter of the political innocents was so great that there is no understanding for the President or the Vice President. That is the real measure of the Democrats' off-year reverse.

Rarely, in modern political annals, have so many up-and-coming leaders of a major party been liquidated on a single day. Even the Vice President, in chief — such men as Bowles of Connecticut, Senate Whip Myers of Pennsylvania, Armed Services Chairman Tydings of Maryland, Senate Leader Lucas of Illinois, James Roosevelt and Helen Gahagan Douglas of California.

They died fighting for Truman, leaving him in command of a leaderless and hostile Congress and political army. For, in retrospect, they were the main in the White House for their defeats.

LOOK — Disillusioned Democrats, on the basis of the 1950 vote, are now taking a new and neutral look at the man in the White House. And, with the 1948, 1949 and 1950 elections in mind, they do not regard him as a statesman or a political miracle worker past, present or future.

Under his accidental, postwar leadership, when he humbly admitted that the White House assignment was too big for him, the Democrats lost Congress in the 1948 elections. He won in 1948, as even he admits, by a fluke because Tom Dewey tried to squeeze in by "me-tooing" the New Deal and Fair Deal.

And now, in a period of so-called prosperity and peace—those were the issues he advanced in his only 1950 political speech—he led his party to a defeat far more serious than the returns indicate.

DESERTED — The Mid-Western farmers, who saved him in 1948, have turned against him. As Senator Taft's amazing triumph reveals, labor is souring on him and his unfulfilled promises. Labor's rank-and-file support for the Taft-Hartley Act.

Various racial and liberal groups discover that he cannot redeem the pledges he gave them to win their votes. They deserted his favored candidates in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California.

Even the "one worlders" and "internationalists," to whom the Truman-Acheson foreign policy was designed to appeal, voted Republican or stayed at home.

In short, to Democrats and Republicans alike, Mr. Truman no longer possesses the stature of a statesman or a 1952 presidential candidate. But, politics being what it is, and with the Missouri clique in control, the Democrats may be stuck with him to their sorrow.

GAIN — The Republican victory—or trend—cannot or should not be measured only in terms of the seats the GOP has won on Capitol Hill, in governorships or in state legislatures. The op-

Gentlemen: While Ben Guill was defeated for reelection to Congress in the recent election, it was by a slim majority and by a man who apparently has many of the same views on good government and conservative legislation for which Guill stood.

Mr. Guill's conduct as a public servant evidently satisfied a large segment of the people of his district, and his short career in Congress is an episode in the political life of that district that was most salutary. The closeness of the vote in what has always been a Democratic district shows that people are getting away from brass collars, are going to demand from here out something besides a party label. He has contributed a worthy example that candidates in other districts would do well to follow.

After all, the American people want public SERVANTS, not political BOSSSES, and if they don't get men who will consider public interest above everything else there's going to be more changes in public officials than Mr. Truman has made in his cabinet during his restive career at Washington.

These things are indicated all over the country. Mere "party" name is going to become a liability unless the candidate has character and honesty. The whole country is beginning to realize how it has been hoodwinked during the past 18 years, with two world wars, a staggering national debt, and a proposed standing army of three millions — all based on a 38-cent dollar. The average citizen is interested in politics only to the extent that he wants GOOD government. He isn't interested in whether it's Bill Smith, or Bill Jones that wants the office. Party barriers are clearing away fast. Even the great dailies are discarding party lines. For instance, The Cincinnati Enquirer, one of the oldest and most influential Democratic dailies in the Ohio Valley, went all-out for the Republican ticket in state and county in the last campaign. And did it because the Democratic party has become the catspaw of minorities, labor bosses and city political gangs.

AS A SOUTHERN DEMOCRAT, we welcome the creation of a TWO-PARTY system in Texas and every other southern State, as a bar to gang and gag rule of the folk who are not interested in party politics but are the bone and sinew of the state's industry and its moral and spiritual well-being. We hope the Republicans all over Texas take up the work of creating this party, not for mere pork-barrel patronage, but as a rein and check against one-party rule. It's time we worked a little for American industrial soundness and not for the pockets of political moochers.

Respectfully,

until after the nits are hatched. Lice aid in the spread of several diseases; they should not be tolerated. The female louse lays from 50 to 150 eggs a day and the average louse will live from 30 to 40 days.

DON'T LET GO OF THAT ROLL OF TWINE, I CAN'T AFFORD TO LOSE ANY MORE BALLS.

To have lice is embarrassing, uncomfortable, and can be dangerous. Lice carry diseases such as typhus or jail fever. They are best got rid of promptly, or, better still, never acquired.

Some people seem to have a special attraction for lice. Lice will leave the bodies of those who are less attractive to them for those who seem, for some unknown reason, to be preferable.

Personal cleanliness is the most important part of prevention. There is no doubt that bathing in warm water and use of soap at least once a week, together with frequent changes into clean clothing, reduces the chances of acquiring lice. Crowding acts to spread louse infestation. Under over-crowded living conditions these vermin are frequently found even among clean families. They are particularly serious in wartime.

Several kinds of lice may infest human beings. Most of them prefer the human scalp except for the so-called "crab louse" which goes to the groin.

There are new several satisfactory methods of killing lice and getting them off the human body. Among these newer methods are the use of DDT powder, a substance known as benzyl benzoate, and a kind of bomb made from pyrethrum, which can be sprayed over the entire body in a few seconds. The last method requires a good place to use the bomb. In order to make any of these treatments successful, however, it is important to follow directions closely and in the case of head lice, to guard against injuries to the eyes.

EGGS HATCH ON BODY
Lice lay eggs, or nits, on the body. These hatch in about seven days. The nits are not destroyed by most forms of treatment, so that more than one treatment is often necessary. DDT, however, is the exception because it lasts

THE RIGHT QUESTION

The Wall Street Journal

We fail to see that Mr. Truman's San Francisco speech has added to or subtracted from the understanding of American foreign policy, either by the American citizen or by those in the rest of the world.

Mr. Truman says this country will resist Communist aggression and that it will attempt to organize the world outside Russia so that it will be able to resist. That is a purpose with which few will disagree.

But where the President continues to leave us groping in the methods by which this purpose is to be implemented. He seems to stress restraint by armed force. But even if that is the method to be relied upon, the President still fails to tell us what may be involved.

On its front page yesterday this newspaper printed a story from Washington which seems to us to touch the heart of the things which the President discussed in such a generalized fashion.

In that story Mr. Bryant of our Washington staff reported that officials of the Treasury questioned the size of the spending projects of the military arm of the Government.

The expenditures contemplated might reach to $70 billion annually two years from now. This, plus civilian expenditures, would add up to a total federal outlay of $90 billion.

The Treasury doubts such amount can be raised in taxes and it raises the further question whether it could be raised by taxes plus Government borrowing from the citizens.

We think the Treasury is right in raising the question and sounding the warning to "stop, look and listen."

However, the military can reply — and undoubtedly will — that plans for rearmament even under the program which it has outlined may prove to be "too little and too late."

And we think that there is considerable to be said for that point of view, too.

Here is an argument that will not be resolved until someone has the courage to step forward and ask the right question. The question is this:

Has the United States the material and human resources to carry out the commitments which it has assumed, outright or implied, all over the world?

If it is going to try to carry out those commitments, then the military establishment must have the war machines and the manpower which it is seeking.

Providing that material and manpower will very probably have their result which the Treasury foresees, which is bankruptcy.

In other words, we are undertaking something which is beyond the means of even the richest and most productive nation that the world has ever seen? And we are doing something to ourselves which no enemy could possibly do to us?

The solution to the dilemma which Mr. Bryant raises cannot be found either in the halls of the Treasury or in the Pentagon where the military is housed. It must be found in a definition of foreign policy which can be carried out with the resources that we have.

Unless the policy is tailored to what the nation can do it is not a policy; it is merely a series of threats which no other nation will take seriously.

What is all too likely to happen is that American commitments, either by definite promise or by implication, will be expanded. Then when the expenditures begin to pinch too badly they will be curtailed. We will be like a man who starts to build a bridge and quits when it is half done. Should he ever try to use it, he would find himself in the deepest part of the river where the current was the most swift.

And perhaps as the man struggled in the water he might reflect that it would have been a good idea to find a narrower place in the river.

Finland has no police system.

Jean's Furniture Moving Is Going to Kill Henry

By HENRY McEMORE

I have never been over Niagara Falls in nothing but a barrel, but I believe I know how it feels. In the past three days I have been employed — by my wife at no salary — arranging furniture, rugs, pictures and books in our new apartment.

I was a cheery soul three days ago. At 43, going on 44, I could look forward to many more years of health and happiness. I had enough in the bank for one rainy day — provided the weather cleared in mid-afternoon — my eyes were bright and sharp, there was a spring to my step, and my automobile was nearly paid for. Now I am the nearest thing to a wreck since Casey Jones and his engine got messed up around Danville.

I had always thought that the ten thousand and one gags about how women couldn't make up their minds as to where to put furniture were — well, nothing but gags. Like the jokes about how all husbands despise their mother-in-laws.

But it isn't a joke. Nothing funnier about it than a fractured skull. It's dead true.

I have moved one couch so often that I have bought it a communication ticket to save money. When I approach it now, it pokes out the ticket for punching.

It isn't the biggest couch in the world, but it is plenty heavy. Just why Jean thinks I am strong enough to wrestle it about as if it were a poached egg with cushions, puzzles me. I never was a football player. I never made a living wrestling, and my name is not inscribed on any weight-lifting record pages.

But she thinks nothing of saying, "Henry, move that couch from where it is to the other side of the room." Not wanting to appear as a weakling — let a woman get that idea about her husband and he'll be cooking dinner inside of a week — I grab it and, to the tune of snapping vertebrae, popping ligaments, and a few delicate oaths — tug it to another section of the room.

"Women!" I say, "woman, make up your mind. And if you can't make up your mind, let's buy a few camp stools and sit on them."

"Just like a man," she answers. "Doesn't want to do anything around the house."

That's not true. I am perfectly willing to do anything around the house but kill myself. I'd rather live under a hedge in Central Park than knock myself off moving furniture.

Let's not speak of picture hanging. My hair is gray — turned from red to gray in about a week — because of pictures. There are more holes in our walls than there are on a pine tree rented by woodpeckers.

After I had bored the 100th hole, and was knee deep in plaster, I suggested that we put the pictures on the floor. Just pile 'em up and let anyone who wanted to root through them.

I'd like to meet the man who first thought of rugs. He did those men who came after him a tremendous disservice. Jean has had me to put rugs everywhere but in the fireplace, and I'm giving even money that if my back holds out we'll put an old Persian in there before the week is out.

But the thing that gets me the most is her eternal tag line. "We'll make a sweet, livable place out of this apartment even if I have to kill you."

I never heard of a corpse carrying too much about his surroundings.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Study Expert's Careful Analysis

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Bridge players sometimes amuse themselves by trying to name the best 10 players in the country. You will seldom find two players who agree on the complete list, but you'd have a hard time finding a list that didn't include the name of B. Jay Becker.

In bridge circles, Becker's caution and prudence have become almost proverbial, but he is fully capable of making daring plays when they are needed. In the hand shown today we see an example of his careful analysis, followed by justified boldness.

North's bid of four black-trump was, of course, the Blackwood Convention, asking how many aces South had. Becker's response of five diamonds showed one ace. North then went ahead to slam.

Monarch butterflies seldom are eaten by birds because they have a bad-tasting chemical in their bodies.

on the assumption that Becker's one ace was in clubs (since the enemy had bid spades) or that there would be a good play for slam even if Becker actually had the ace of spades.

Actually, the slam was a risky bid. If West had opened clubs, the contract would have been set very promptly. However, West had no way of knowing the situation, and he made the normal opening lead of his partner's bid suit.

Becker took the first trick with the ace of spades and drew trumps. The fact that East had both of the missing trumps was very thought provoking.

The contract would depend on taking four heart tricks or finding the ace of clubs in the West hand. Since East had bid, it was likely that he held most of the missing high cards, including the ace of clubs. Moreover, West had failed to bid even though he was void of diamonds.

If he had held the ace of clubs, the chances were that he would have found some bid — either a raise of spades or a bid in clubs. Becker therefore concluded that the odds were heavily against finding the ace of clubs favorably located.

How, then, to make four heart tricks? The opening lead marked

West with fewer than four spades (with four or more West would have led low rather than high), so that East must have started with six or more spades. He also held two diamonds. Surely he also held three or four of the missing nine clubs. (Otherwise, West would have to hold seven or more clubs, without ever having bid them.)

It began to look as though there couldn't be room in East's hand for more than one or two hearts. In that case, normal play of the hearts would fail to provide four tricks—unless East held exactly jack-small in the suit.

Having analyzed the situation down to this point, Becker decided to stake the slam on his judgment. He therefore took the king of hearts and returned the king of hearts from his hand. He was ready to take two finessees if West covered with the jack from some such holding as J-9-x-x. Actually, West played low, and Becker let the ten of hearts ride.

When this bold play succeeded, the slam contract was home. Becker could continue the hearts, discarding one of his losing clubs. Only one club trick could then be lost.

Q. and A. You and the Service

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Q. A man of 19 is a sophomore in engineering school, majoring in chemistry and an "A" student. Does he have a chance of finishing school before being drafted?

A. A good chance. They're letting outstanding students, especially in the sciences, finish college. However, final decision is up to local draft boards.

Q. Under Gen. Marshall's new plan on the call of reservists will I be able to resign from the reserves after I am married next week?

A. No. You'll just have to wait for a call to active duty and state why you think you shouldn't be taken—if you don't want to go—at that time.

Q. My husband is in the naval inactive reserve and taking training for a state police job. Will his work keep him from a call to active duty?

A. It could if the head of the state police asks for his deferment on grounds that he is an essential man in a vital work.

Q. My brother recently joined the Army. He is a sole survivor as far as my brother and I are concerned. Another brother was out of combat?

A. Only sole surviving sons are killed in World War II. Our parents are dead. Will he be kept being kept out of combat. No matter how you look at it your brother in the service is not a sole surviving son and therefore the rule does not apply to him.

Q. I used to get an allotment check from my son in service. Then it was stopped. Now, I hear, they are started again. Will mine be sent to me again automatically?

A. No. Your son has to make a new application for it under the new law.

Q. Can you give me any information on how they might help me in serving the Navy and Army? Will they take married men?

A. Theoretically this space is devoted to answering questions of fact, not speculation on what is going on in the minds of congressmen.

Future Homemakers Carrying Out Programs for FHA Week

Future Homemakers of America are being recognized this week in Pampa and all over the United States.

Governor Allan Shivers has designated this week as "FHA Week" and local girls have a program designed for each day. Members of the local chapter began their week by attending the Catholic church together Sunday morning.

Monday night the girls held a wieners roast in the city park with members of the Future Farmers of America as guests. About 40 persons attended the party. The groups participated in games, singing and story-telling around a campfire.

Tonight, several of the girls will assist in serving the Knife and Fork club at the school cafeteria. Other members will wrap Christmas packages for overseas.

A special assembly program will be held at this school Wednesday morning at the regular assembly time. The FHA girls will be in charge of the program.

A demonstration by members of the class and Bob Morgan, instructor, in leather tooling, will be given Thursday. Guests will be members of the White Deer organization. Mrs. Mary Ann Duke will speak on "Building For a Better Tomorrow."

Billie J6 Huff is president of the organization here.

In Hereford: Stapp Chiropractic Clinic, 112 W. Third

While the wide scope of Chiropractic is amazing the untrained, we do NOT recommend Chiropractic as a CURE-ALL. Chiropractic is effective in those cases only where the cause is found to be defective in organic energization due to spinal misalignment (subluxation). Most all of our cases are those that had previously resisted ordinary methods of healing. Our examination is designed to eliminate those we can't help.

THESE CASES ARE FROM CHIROPRACTIC FILES ALL OVER THE U.S.

ARTHRITIS

CASE NO. 1616: A matron, age 32, came to the Clinic complaining that she had been suffering for five years with terrible pains along the spine between her shoulders which had previously been diagnosed and treated as arthritis. She also complained of period headaches, cramping, low backache, and low abdominal pains. The Scientific spinal analysis indicated nerve interference and Spinal

X-rays revealed spinal vertebral misalignment causing the interference. She was discharged when alignment was restored at which time she had no pains and said she felt completely well.

HEADACHES

CASE NO. 1181: A young woman, age 29, suffered a great distress from sick headaches, a dull aching pain in her stomach, pains in her kidneys, painful lumps in her groin and extreame nervousness, was very despondent and had crying spells because her physicians were unable to help her. This young woman was X-rayed and carefully examined by the Chiropractic Clinic where the cause of her suffering was located in her central nervous system which regulates all organic functions. After a few months of adjustments she now is in normal radiant health.

White Deer Speech Group To Present French Comedy

WHITE DEER — (Special) — "The Imaginary Invalid" by Moliere has been selected by the White Deer High School speech department as its annual three-act play to be presented Nov. 20 and Dec. 1 in the grade school auditorium.

"The Imaginary Invalid" is a French classic comedy. It will be the aim of the cast and the director, John Martin, to keep alive the rollicking spirit of Moliere's original production. Moliere was a great entertainer and his plays were written to be acted and not to gather dust on the shelves of libraries and museums.

The play has been cast as follows: Argan, James Huffines; Clonte, Betty Williams; Angely, Betty Jane Powers; Cosette, Carolyn Evans and Belle Webster; Fleurant, Charles Ford; Belone, Alma Howard and Barbara Bentley; Bonnetot, Taylor. An automobile generator should be rechecked after 7500 to 10,000 miles of service.

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Shamrock High School students rededicated themselves to the democratic way of life during National Education Week.

At a special assembly, Andrew Carver, a senior, discussed "The Meaning of the Ballot," dealing with America's freedom of choice, denied in nearly all parts of the world. He decried the small voice cast from the millions eligible in this great nation.

Miss Patsy Blevins, also a senior, spoke on "The Duties of a Good Citizen," listing them as loyalty, unselfish service and dedication to the rights of man. Then an instrumental quartet held.

-- Ted Sonnenburg, B. D. Harrington, Jr., Kenneth Thompson, and Kay Showalter -- played three numbers, under the direction of Band Director Showalter -- "Song of the Lark," Mendelssohn; "Hunter's Course," von Weber; and "Nocturne from Midsummer Night's Dream," also by Mendelssohn.

Former Amarillo Man Likes Pampa; Sets Up Business

"I liked Pampa so well I just moved over here."

Those are the words of a former Amarilloan named Harold D. Freeman, owner and operator of the Pampa branch of the Anderson Mattress Co.

Freeman is married, and has one child. He is a veteran of World War II, spending six years in the Air Force, including 49 months overseas.

When Freeman was discharged from the service, recently, he toured Pampa and liked it so well that he brought himself, his family and a new business to Pampa. Freeman and his family moved from Amarillo during the first of the year. He has bought a house in Pampa, and has decided to stay.

The softspoken man quietly made a simple statement about his choice of hometowns, and unknowingly gave Pampa a fine compliment.

Freeman has been in the business all his life. He started out with his father when only a child.

He specializes in renovating and servicing mattresses.

"Of course, we have new mattresses, too," he remarked.

Yes, Pampa has a new citizen, and a new business. His reason for locating in Pampa is typical of all America and its constant search for progress.

Pampa can be proud of its new citizen.

Mix one cup sugar, 1-3 cup white corn syrup, 1-3 cup water, 1-4 cup butter and 3-4 teaspoon salt, and cook in sauce pan, stirring until the sugar is dissolved.

Continue cooking without stirring (270° F) until the syrup forms a brittle ball in cold water. Add 3-4 teaspoon vanilla and stir only enough to mix it with the hot syrup.

Place 3 quarts of popped corn in a large mixing bowl, and mix with one cup mixed raisins, nuts and candied cherries (gum drops may be preferred to the candied cherries).

Pour the cooked syrup over this mixture very slowly, mixing well as you pour, shape part of the mixture into small popcorn balls, using only enough pressure to make the balls stick together. Place the balance of the mixture in a square cake pan, and using a wet knife, cut into bars or squares.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLET

NEA Staff Writer

A smart wife never asks a husband:

How he likes the new dress on which he has so far made no comment. (She'll either get the unpleasant truth or else feel his praise is so feeble it becomes an insult.)

"Who was that, Dear?" when he comes back from the telephone and makes no comment on the conversation he has just had. (Nothing makes a man feel less like a man of affairs than to have to account to his wife for every telephone call he receives at home.)

"What do you think of my getting my hair cut short?" — if she really wants and intends to have it cut. (If she doesn't ask then he can't get hurt because she ignored his wishes — and men automatically resist any new style a wife talks about before adopting.)

"What in the world made you so late?" when he comes home late to dinner. (Don't ask and he'll feel compelled to explain all. Ask and he'll resent having to explain.)

OF COURSE HE LOVES YOU

"Do you love me?" (If you have to ask, the answer you get won't mean much, and besides it may start him wondering if he really does. It's always wiser for a woman to act as if, of course, her husband loves her.)

"Do you notice anything different about this room?" — after she's knocked herself out getting the new draperies up or switching the furniture around. (If he hasn't noticed the difference, his having to try to figure out what has been done will only exasperate his wife and make him wish she wouldn't make him play guessing games.)

"What were you talking to that blonde about for so long over in the corner?" when they're on their way home from a party. (If the answer to that is interesting, she'll never hear the right answer.)

Ohio State Grabs First Place in the AP Poll As the Black Knights Slip to Third Position

SPECK SPECULATES

By SPECK REYNOLDS

According to a local sport fan Putt Powell was jumping with glee in 1948, when the Sandies rolled over the Harvesters, but it was a different story in Memorial Stadium press box last Saturday as the Harvesters lashed the Sandies, 28-0.

Putt and Speck are about as compatible as John L. Lewis and President Truman. I could see Putt cheering for the Sandies but when he roared his approval when Oklahoma was trailing Kansas, 13-0, our friendship parted, and I just met the guy.

A play by play from the press box follows:

First quarter — Amarillo had the ball on the Pampa 21. "We didn't get that far against Odesa," Putt says.

Second quarter — Sandies had the ball on the Pampa 21, and were trailing 7-0. "Get a penetration and tie it up later," Putt says. (Tarpiey intercepts a pass on the next play to check the drive).

Third quarter — Quarterback De Wey Cudney had just kicked his third straight conversion. "Censored" biggest margin Pampa has ever had. "There's something about that time someone asked Powell if Amarillo plays Wichita Falls this year? 'Not unless we score four quick touchdowns'."

Fourth quarter — Someone telephones from the Globe office wanting the score. "There's something about that time someone asked Powell if Amarillo plays Wichita Falls this year? 'Not unless we score four quick touchdowns'."

End of game — "Oh, my! We beat 'em in track and they quit the sport," Putt moans.

About that time a sports writer informs Powell Amarillo forced Pampa to punt four times in the last half. "There's your lead," Putt said, and that was the last I saw of Putt.

Clark Gilbert, who played half-back for the Harvesters in 1943-44, called the sports desk from Houston Saturday night to find out the score of the Pampa-Amarillo game.

"Couldn't wait till Sunday morning," Clark said over the phone. When I informed him the Harvesters thrashed Amarillo, 28-0, he was one happy Pampa. He said to give the Pampa gridders a pat on the back.

The Harvesters used only 11 ground plays in the second half against Amarillo, but scored three touchdowns. Two of the touchdowns were scored through the air and one on the ground.

Here's how the boys did in their air and ground attack.

Cleveland Tribe To Seek Waivers On Lou Boudreau

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians dropped their plans to get Lou Boudreau a new job and assured him today that within a week he could go out and look for himself.

That's the way the former manager-thorstop wants it. Told at his home in Harvey, Ill., that the Tribe was seeking waivers to get him an unconditional release, Boudreau said he had "no immediate plans of any kind" and added:

"That's why I asked for my unconditional release. I'll be able to make plans now. As it was, before being released, everything was out of my hands."

He said he would be "happy to get the job" of managing the Pittsburgh Pirates but that nobody had offered it to him.

Until last night, the Indians held onto Lou's contract although they had released him as manager and hired Al Lopez from Indianapolis to take his place.

Ellis Ryan, club president, and Hank Greenberg, general manager, said at first they were trying to get Lou a job as manager of another big league team.

Then Ryan announced that at Boudreau's request the club had given up all claims on him and would seek the waivers.

Texas Drops to Sixth Spot, Ponies Stumble Down to 14

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ohio State tops the nation's college football teams in the weekly Associated Press poll after a tight five-club battle.

For the second week in succession the point system determined the winner with both Ohio State and Oklahoma squeezing past Army, last week's winner.

Army received most first place votes, 72, but lost out in the point system tabulation of the 308 ballots from football writers and sportscasters. Ohio, had 66 firsts and Oklahoma 63.

According to the established scoring system, a first place vote counts 10 points. A second counts nine. And so on down to one point for a 10th place ballot. As a result Ohio finished with 2,412 points, Oklahoma 2,381 and Army 2,272.

Next came California and Kentucky. All the first five received at least 2,000 points. It was the closest finish of the year.

Apparently Ohio lost no prestige in its tight winning battle with Wisconsin, 19-14. The Buckeyes (6-1) face another test Saturday in eighth-rated Illinois (6-1).

Oklahoma, too, had to struggle to keep its perfect record intact. Kansas led the Sooners into the last quarter before Oklahoma blasted out its 28th straight victory and seventh of the year, 28-13. They play Missouri this week.

Army called its shots in a romp over New Mexico, 51-0, for its seventh straight. The Cadets get a chance to show their worth against a Pacific Coast Conference eleven Saturday when they visit the West to play Stanford.

California whipped UCLA, 35-0, in what was supposed to have been a crucial test. As a result they moved up two positions to fourth. Next for the Bears (8-0) is San Francisco.

Despite a 48-21 triumph over Mississippi State for a 9-0 record, Kentucky dropped a peg to fifth place in the standings with 43 firsts as compared to 36 for California. Kentucky has two, to go, North Dakota and Tennessee.

Tennessee and Michigan State were the only additions to the top 10. SMU fell from seventh to 14th after losing to Texas A&M, 25-20, and the 13-13 tie with Louisville dumped Miami from ninth to 17th place.

Other districts may come to an earlier - than - usual conclusion through upsets but those four are the only ones on the definite side.

There are only 28 games in the state this week with Districts 1 and 5 having none and no conference tests in District 7. However, 26 of those games count in title standings.

One of the major games of the state is the clash of Corsicana and Temple at Temple Friday night. Corsicana can sew up the District 13 title by winning it. Temple, however, would still have to beat Waco to take the championship should it fall undefeated, untied Corsicana.

Another important contest is scheduled at Dallas when Grand Prairie meets Highland Park Friday night. Grand Prairie could win the District 8 title by whipping Highland Park. Highland Park could take the lead and then clinch the title next week by licking McKinney — that is, unless McKinney loses to Denton Friday night. In that event Highland Park would have the championship in the bag.

The week's schedule by districts (conference games except where indicated otherwise):
1 — No games.
2 — Friday: Vernon at Quanah, Childress at Wichita Falls.
3 — Friday: Big Spring at Odesa, Midland at Lubbock.
4 — Thursday: Austin at El Paso (nonconference); Friday: Ysleta at Bowie (El Paso); Saturday: Jefferson (El Paso) vs Austin (El Paso).
5 — No games.
6 — Friday: Graham at Mineral Wells, Weatherford at Stephenville.
7 — Friday: Jesuit (Dallas) at Gainesville (nonconference).
8 — Friday: Grand Prairie at Highland Park (Dallas), Denton at McKinney.
9 — Friday: Kilgore at Texarkana.
10 — Friday: Henderson at Bryan, Lufkin at Conroe, Nacogdoches at Palestine.
11 — Friday: Beaumont at Orange.
12 — Friday: Galena Park at Pasadena, Baytown at Galveston, Texas City at Freeport.

Meyer Isn't Ready To Concede Defeat

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
FORT WORTH — (AP) — The producer of the Southwest Conference's greatest upsets — Dutch Meyer — says it's like using a "pop gun against a cannon" to play Texas but he isn't about to concede defeat.

The chunky little man who has been the sharpest thorn in the side of the Texas Longhorns, declared today his Texas Christian team would have "a tough ball game" here Saturday.

Meyer personally scouted Texas in its game with Baylor last week and he tells you the conference leaders and heavy favorites to move into the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1 are "a fine ball club, with fine personnel, lots of poise and never ruffled no matter what may happen in a game."

Texas Christian hasn't had much of a season thus far. The Horned Frogs have lost four games while winning three and are out of the conference title race. But it's just the spot for Meyer to spring a season sensation — like he did last year when his TCUs knocked down Texas when everybody thought it would just be a field day for the Longhorns.

Meyer is noted as the coach who can never nearer winning one game he's set his heart on winning than any other extant. Texas Christian took last week off. It always does before the Texas game. This week off business has caused Coach Blair Cherry of Texas to make some barbed remarks the past couple of years.

But Meyer isn't ready to concede defeat. "The week-off" teams this season haven't done so well. For instance, Texas had a week off before the Oklahoma game and lost it. Southern Methodist took off before the Texas game and lost it.

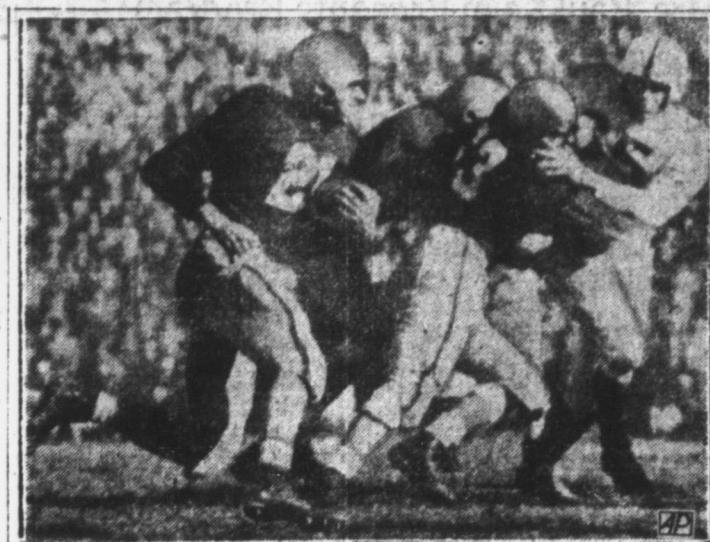

Last year, after Meyer had scouted Texas, he came up with a nine-man line that did the job of stopping the Longhorns. Asked if he would try that again this time, Meyer replied: "Brother, I think I'll use a three-man line. You have to really worry about that Texas passing this year."

But chances are that Meyer will have a formation no one over heard about when his Frogs take the field against Texas. He's tricky, that Meyer.

Texas Christian figured in one of the biggest upsets in conference history in 1941 when Meyer's Frogs beat the nation's No. 1 team 14-7 and knocked it out of the Rose Bowl.

Reapers Play Borger Here Wednesday
The Pampa Reapers will meet the Borger Junior High School at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Harvesters Park. The game was scheduled for Thursday afternoon but was moved back because of the Guerrillas-Borger game in Harvesters Park, Thursday.

The B game was to be played Thursday night, but it was rescheduled for the afternoon because of cold weather.

Oklahoma won its 28th consecutive game, however, with a four touchdown fourth period surge, 33 to 13. (Associated Press Photo)

Childress, Coyotes Meet in District 2

By The Associated Press
At least four of the sixteen district champions of Class AA schoolboy football will be known by the end of this week.

Two — Texarkana in District 9 and Baytown in District 12 — already have been determined and await the bi-district round scheduled to open Dec. 8.

10 — Friday: Henderson at Bryan, Lufkin at Conroe, Nacogdoches at Palestine.
11 — Friday: Beaumont at Orange.
12 — Friday: Galena Park at Pasadena, Baytown at Galveston, Texas City at Freeport.

One of the major games of the state is the clash of Corsicana and Temple at Temple Friday night. Corsicana can sew up the District 13 title by winning it. Temple, however, would still have to beat Waco to take the championship should it fall undefeated, untied Corsicana.

Another important contest is scheduled at Dallas when Grand Prairie meets Highland Park Friday night. Grand Prairie could win the District 8 title by whipping Highland Park. Highland Park could take the lead and then clinch the title next week by licking McKinney — that is, unless McKinney loses to Denton Friday night. In that event Highland Park would have the championship in the bag.

The week's schedule by districts (conference games except where indicated otherwise):
1 — No games.
2 — Friday: Vernon at Quanah, Childress at Wichita Falls.
3 — Friday: Big Spring at Odesa, Midland at Lubbock.
4 — Thursday: Austin at El Paso (nonconference); Friday: Ysleta at Bowie (El Paso); Saturday: Jefferson (El Paso) vs Austin (El Paso).
5 — No games.
6 — Friday: Graham at Mineral Wells, Weatherford at Stephenville.
7 — Friday: Jesuit (Dallas) at Gainesville (nonconference).
8 — Friday: Grand Prairie at Highland Park (Dallas), Denton at McKinney.
9 — Friday: Kilgore at Texarkana.
10 — Friday: Henderson at Bryan, Lufkin at Conroe, Nacogdoches at Palestine.
11 — Friday: Beaumont at Orange.
12 — Friday: Galena Park at Pasadena, Baytown at Galveston, Texas City at Freeport.

Golden Glove Date Set for January Here

Pampa fight fans won't have to leave town to watch some top-notch boxing bouts. The 1951 District Golden Gloves tournament will be held here Jan. 15, 16, and 19. The glove battle will be held in the Junior High School gymnasium.

Oran James said there would be three divisions in the three-day boxing show. Divisions include: Pee wee, novice, high school, and open.

Trophies will be awarded to individual winners and a team trophy will be given to the winning team in the novice and pee wee divisions.

Boxing teams are expected from Panhandle, White Deer, Clarendon, Skellytown, and Lufors.

Ray Dudley is director of the boxing tourney.

Eight weight classifications will be run off in all three divisions. There are:

Pee wee — 70, 75, 80, 85, 90, 95, 100, and 105 pounds.
Novice — 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175, and heavyweight. The same weights are included in the open division.

Sun Carnival Waits to Invite Bowl Teams
EL PASO — (AP) — Officials of the Sun Carnival game say that no bids will be extended for the Jan. 1 Sun Bowl game until after this Saturday's games but they are thinking about four teams.

C. D. Belding, chairman of the game selection committee, said last night that the four teams are West Texas State, Wyoming, Leigh, and South Carolina.

West Texas State cornered the Border Conference last Saturday when Texas Western knocked Hardin-Simmons University out of the running. WTSC plays H-SU Saturday.

Lehigh also faces a tough opponent Saturday, Lafayette. In previous years the Sun

Minnesota Will Pick Coach at Close of Season

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — The line of candidates to succeed Bernie Bierman as head football coach at the University of Minnesota was forming today, but officially there was nobody in it.

Word of Bierman's request to be relieved of his duties at the end of the year hardly had spread when admirers of various gridiron geniuses got to work nominating their man.

The nominations came from every part of the country. But they all followed about the same form: "So and so of such and such a college expressed surprise and regret at word of Bierman's resignation and said he had not been approached."

And that was just exactly the situation as outlined by Athletic Director Ike Armstrong, who stuck to his statement of yesterday that he "wouldn't even discuss a successor until the season is over." He really meant it, too.

Through it all, though, names of some of the coaches were repeated. One of those was Bud Wilkinson, popular and successful coach at Oklahoma University. At Oklahoma City, Wilkinson said he had not been approached and that he had no comment on what he might do if the job were offered him.

Wilkinson, who played under Bierman in 1934 and 1935, was quoted by a close friend as saying previously that "if Bernie can't make it, no other coach can either." The friend added he was convinced Wilkinson wouldn't take the post.

On the other side of the picture was the "no comment" reply of Dana X. Bible, athletic director at the University of Texas, when asked whether Bierman would be considered as head football coach at Texas. Head Coach Blair Cherry will retire at Texas after the season ends.

Carnival has been obligated to invite the Border Conference champion as the host team. Belding said that the Sun Carnival is giving West Texas State strong consideration but is not under obligation as in the past since the carnival severed its connection with the Border Conference early this year.

Protect Flooring Before It Is Laid, Builders Advised

Oak flooring should receive proper care before installation if it is to render the lifetime service and satisfaction for which it is noted, manufacturers point out. Persons having homes built under contract would be wise, they suggest, to check with their builders to see that approved methods of handling are observed. This is especially true when dwellings are being constructed in wet or cold weather, the producers say. They emphasize that oak and other hardwood flooring should be well protected from rain during delivery. It should be piled loosely on the sub-floor of the house about four or five days before it is to be laid. In cold weather the house should be heated to a temperature of approximately 70 degrees during that period.

These precautions minimize the danger of excessive expansion and contraction of the flooring later on. Modern scientific kiln-drying processes have been so perfected that such expansion and contraction is negligible when proper handling procedures are followed. Actual installation of hardwood flooring, the producers add, should be deferred until all other structural work is completed.

Zebra butterflies have "sleeping bushes," to which they return each evening to roost.

Four Airmen Killed In Crash of Plane On Mountain Side

GREENVILLE, S. C. — (AP) — An Air Force C-52 transport plane crashed into the side of a mountain late Saturday night, carrying the four men aboard to a fiery death.

Deputy Sheriff Waddy Brezale of nearby Pickens County said "if it had flown 150 feet higher it would have gotten over" the peak. An investigation of the crash is underway.

First report of the crash came from a hunter who thought he had spotted a forest fire. A forest ranger discovered the smoldering wreckage early Sunday.

The plane was being transferred from Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., to the Greenville Air Base. The victims were three crewmen from a Pittsburgh, Pa., reserve wing called to active duty last month to be attached to the base here, and a passenger from Maxwell Field.

The crewmen were Capt. John Miles Strickland, pilot; First Lieut. Robert B. Schmitt, co-pilot, and Staff Sgt. John Davis Bloomer, all from Pittsburgh. The passenger was Staff Sgt. Walter O. Lott of Pensacola, Fla.

Marine Mortar Group Tells Of Being Overrun by Chinese

By BEN PRICE
KOTO, Korea — (AP) — I revisited a marine 4.2 mortar company today. It made me want to cry as I checked up on guys I had known just one week ago. "The major?" they said. "Wounded."

Down the list of others the answers too often were, "dead . . . wounded, pretty bad . . . wounded, not too bad . . . The night of Nov. 3, when the Chinese Communists hit them, was one hell of a night, on the word of First Lt. Gordon Vincent of Gardner, Mass., and he is a man who rarely uses profanity.

Vincent, a reservist called to duty only a few weeks ago, now is company commander. The marines since have advanced in their drive towards the Changjin reservoir, but this mortar company is full of stories of that bad night when the Chinese came charging down the hills and across a river bed.

There was a young Negro corporal, Ray Pope, of Lebanon, Ky., who fired a mortar as it was never intended to be fired. The 4.2 was never intended to be fired at an elevation of less than 800 miles (45 degrees), but the Reds were so close he cranked it down to 600 miles (35.5 degrees), a much flatter trajectory.

He got off two rounds before the base plate kicked out of place. They told of a kid from Toledo, Ohio, now dead, who wrestled with a Red, choked the enemy to death with his bare hands, and then hurled the body at the oncoming horde. Then there was Pfc. Joseph Augeri of Middletown, Conn., when the Communists overran the mortar positions he was cut off and tumbled into a hole with a Red machine gun crew. Augeri played dead while the Reds walked on him. One jabbed him with a bayonet to see if he was dead. He didn't move. His buddies rescued him later by capturing the Red position.

On the sunny day of Nov. 3 I remember seeing First Lt. Nicholas M. Seminoff of Ocean-side, Calif., and San Francisco seated on an ammunition box, having his hair cut.

"Right after you visited us," said Seminoff, "we started a firing mission. Then it seems the Reds overran Baker Company but we didn't know it. We were still firing when they overran our position. We were caught with our pants down. "Some guy came along behind our position and started yelling, 'fall back, fall back!' "I yelled, 'fall back, hell! Stay in your holes.' "At a time like that, a hole is the safest place. "I sent guys to the river's edge to their holes because the Reds were crawling across the river bottom. That was where we had the hand-to-hand fighting.

"I dropped into a hole with Pfc. William Dusk of Youngstown, Ohio, and Bill Remmers of Dixon, Ill. "About five Reds raced past us and set up a machine gun ten feet away. The other marine were back 80 yards. There was shooting all around, and every time a lost marine passed us, we reached up and yanked him into our hole. "In the midst of all this, Cpl. Don R. Overton came walking along the road yelling, 'you guys have got a fire mission. Why aren't you shooting?' "We reached up and jerked him into our hole before he knew what had happened. That hole was dug big enough for five guys, but we ended up with eight in it, including three wounded.

"We stayed there from about 12:30 a.m. until daybreak when our boys came up and ran the Reds off. "I was certainly glad to see them," he concluded in a master-piece of understatement.
