Jackpot grows

AUSTIN — The jackpot for tonight's lotto drawing will be at least $4 million, Comptroller John Sharp says. The drawing will be the second in the Texas Lottery's new pick-six numbers game. No one chose the correct numbers in Saturday night's drawing, so that jackpot rolled over for the next drawing. "In addition to that hunk of cash, the jackpot this week is growing as more tickets are sold. Sales have been so strong that we are now estimating this jackpot will be about $4 million," Sharp said Tuesday. Lotto ticket sales Sunday and Monday totaled nearly $1 million. To win the jackpot, a player must match six numbers between one and 50 which are selected at random during the televised drawing. Smaller pari-mutuel prizes also are awarded for matching five or four numbers, and matching three wins a player $3.

Biggest biceps

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — A 40-year-old man has muscled his way into the 1993 Guinness Book of Records with the biggest biceps — 28⅛ inches around. Denis Sester, who developed his arms with a combination of arm curls and smorgasbords, stands 6 feet 5 inches and weighs, he estimates, 435 pounds. He said he's training now for biggest chest size. He needs to add a mere four inches to reach the present record of 71 inches around.

U.S. hunts for terrorists

Government offers $2 million reward for suspects

■ Justice Department obtains indictments in abductions, murders of American hostages in Lebanon.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States is mounting an international search, including "Wanted" ads and $2 million rewards, for Iranian-backed suspects secretly indicted for kidnapping and murdering Americans, officials said Tuesday.

The Justice Department has obtained sealed indictments against at least four alleged terrorists identified by U.S. intelligence this year as responsible for killing American hostages in Lebanon and blowing up at least one airliner, said two U.S. officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The Justice Department declined to comment on the indictments, first reported Tuesday by CNN.

One of the sealed indictments is against the suspected killer of either the CIA's Beirut station chief, William Buckley, or Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, said another source familiar with the indictments, who also requested anonymity.

In addition to Buckley, who died in captivity in Lebanon in 1985, and Higgins, killed by his Shiite Muslim captors in 1988 or 1989, kidnapped American Peter Kilburn was killed in 1986. It was unclear whether his alleged killer was among those indicted.

The Associated Press reported previously that some of the Lebanese kidnapping group, including its leader, Imad Mughniyeh, took refuge in Iran in the last year.

"To bring these murderers to justice, the U.S. government offers rewards of up to $2 million," said one of the ads being placed in U.S. and international newspapers in the coming days. It shows pictures of all three murdered Americans, and urges anyone with information to contact the FBI or the nearest U.S. embassy. The rewards are paid from tax money.

Bush schedules visit with Clinton

■ President, president-elect to discuss issues facing nation, world.

■ Related stories/3A

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President-elect Clinton said Tuesday he wants to get President Bush's "candid" read on world affairs during his first post-victory trip to Washington, a visit that also will include a stop in an inner-city neighborhood.

"I'll be pretty much at his disposal, but there are one or two things I want to raise," Clinton said as he posed for pictures with transition aides at the Arkansas governor's mansion.

"There are one or two things . . . hanging out there that need addressing and I want to get his candid assessment about some world issues, some problems I'll be facing at the beginning of my term," Clinton said. He did not specify which issues he wanted to discuss with Bush during their White House visit today.

Clinton spent much of Tuesday working on his transition. He filled out his transition team by tapping a longtime friend, former South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley, to oversee the hiring of top lieutenants in his new administration.

Transition director Warren Christopher offered Riley's selection as evidence that Clinton was looking "beyond Washington for ideas and talent."

Clinton's trip to Washington today also was scripted to include an outsider's flavor.

After Clinton's scheduled afternoon visit with Bush — likely to start with a Rose Garden picture-taking session — Clinton was heading for an inner-city strip under redevelopment near Howard University, the country's preeminent, historically black college.

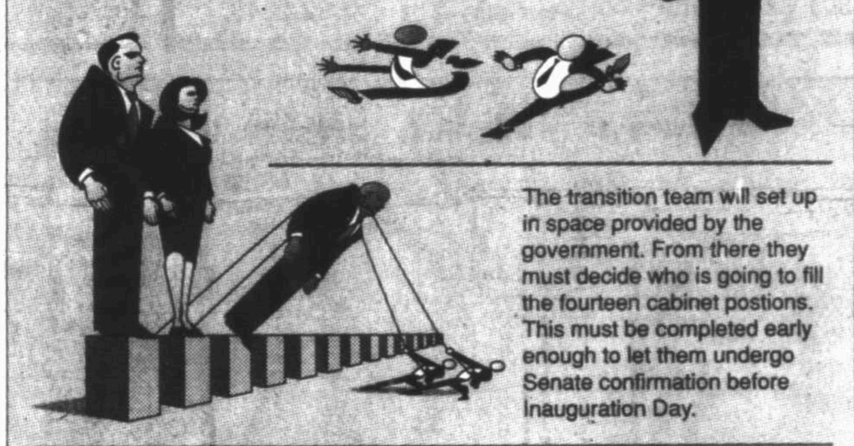

And Clinton eschewed the military

Presidential transition process

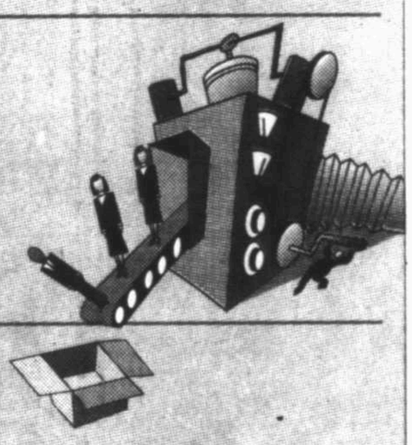

The change of power in the White House takes place Jan. 20, Inauguration Day. Between now and then, much preparation is needed to let the new administration hit the ground running:

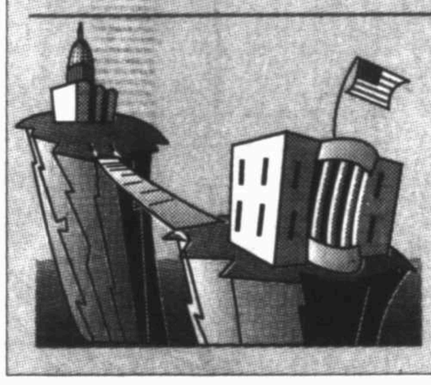

During the next 10 weeks, Clinton must finish putting together his transition team which is expected to number in the hundreds. He will receive regular briefings from the outgoing Bush administration about the state of the country.

The transition team will set up in space provided by the government. From there they must decide who is going to fill the fourteen cabinet postions. This must be completed early enough to let them undergo Senate confirmation before Inauguration Day.

Clinton's team must also fill thousands of lower government jobs and place people in government departments to prepare policy documents. For continuity's sake some people will be kept on from the Bush administration, most likely those whose jobs are considered non-partisan, such as the Federal Reserve Board.

Clinton's people will work with the leaders of the new Congress to pave the way for Clinton's legislative agenda. It is customary for the outgoing president's belongings to be moved out of the White House during the swearing-in ceremony. Clinton is then free to move in.

Bunton dismisses Tucker lawsuit

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The $6 million federal lawsuit former deputy Ronald Ray Tucker filed against six federal and state law-enforcement agencies in June for interefering with his pursuit of a law-enforcement career has been dismissed by U.S. District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

Tucker, 45, claimed that the agencies had waged a "concerted campaign of prosecutorial action to destroy" his "reputation and to preclude him from continuing his career in law enforcement."

Defendants in the lawsuit alleging the violation of Tucker's constitutional rights were the Texas Attorney General, the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Texas, the Texas Rangers, and the 143rd Judicial District Attorney for Ward County.

Tucker, who had spent 22 years in law enforcement, filed the $6 million lawsuit after he had been indicted in Ward, Midland, and Dallas counties for roles he had played in the war on drugs, he said.

Tucker had charged that the Texas Rangers, FBI agents, and prosecutors for the attorney general and the U.S. attorney were "involved in either issuing or serving illegal subpoenas to gain information for the ongoing investigation" into his law-enforcement career.

Bunton dismissed the lawsuit after Tucker's lawyer, Ted Painter of Monahans, had failed to respond to a motion for dismissal made by the FBI, the DEA,

Judge requires seminar for divorcing parents

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Before waging war in divorce court, battling parents will soon be required to learn about the fallout on the innocent.

"The last thing warring parents think of is their children," said Judge Dean Rucker of the 318th District Court.

As a result, all divorcing parents in Midland County will have to attend court-ordered seminars on the effects of divorce on children.

"Our intention is that it is a mandatory seminar within the 60-day waiting period between filing for divorce and the hearing," Rucker said.

House to vote today on finance proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards and Speaker Gib Lewis worked to ensure enough votes to at least keep alive a proposed constitutional amendment on school finance when it comes up for a scheduled House vote today.

The stakes are high if lawmakers don't meet a Texas Supreme Court deadline for a new funding plan, Richards warned House Democrats Tuesday.

"We are not playing adult-draw-the-line-in-the-dirt games with each other. We are playing with our children's lives," she said in remarks that were audible outside the closed-door caucus meeting.

Topless women at golf course tee off residents

ROUND ROCK (AP) — Suburban residents have teed off against officials for allowing topless women on a city-owned golf course.

Residents of a nearby neighborhood have launched a second series of complaints about topless women being permitted on a golf course owned by the city of Round Rock during tournaments sponsored by Austin nightclubs.

Bill Robertson, president of the Oak Bluff Neighborhood Council, said his first official complaint about topless women on the Forest Creek Golf Course was soon after the course opened in 1990.

"I called the city and complained about it and they said it wouldn't happen again, and yet it did," Robertson said Monday.

"The city, allowing topless participation on a golf course next to our neighborhood, doesn't depict itself as responsible government," Robertson said.

Oak Bluff resident Arvella Goodrum said she was driving along Forest Creek Drive on Sept. 28 when she noticed two women as she passed the eighth tee.

"I was shocked," she said. "I turned around and went back to see if I really saw what I saw. The girls were topless, but they had skimpy little bottoms on."

City Council member Jimmy Joseph described it as "a shock to me."

"We're going to try to keep it from happening again," he said.

Council member Earl Palmer said an ordinance he has proposed to regulate sexually oriented business should end

SCHOOL: Lewis hopes to get 100 votes

(From 1A)

"You are playing with the future of the state of Texas and what's going to be written in The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times and Newsweek magazine and Time magazine, that this Democratic Legislature and Democratic governor cannot get its act together well enough to keep the schools of Texas from closing," she said.

A state judge has warned that he'll cut off state and possibly local public education funding if lawmakers don't meet the June 1, 1993, court deadline for a constitutional plan to equalize the school finance system.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Tuesday he didn't have the required two-thirds vote for House approval of a proposed amendment to allow redistribution of local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts.

He cited opposition from a number of Republicans, who total 58 in the 150-member House.

But Lewis said he thinks there are 76 votes to permit preliminary passage of the proposal.

That would allow leaders to target dissenting lawmakers and another chance to win the necessary 100 votes, he said.

If the House approves a proposal, a conference committee could be appointed to work out any differences between it and a measure earlier approved by the Senate.

If the chambers agree on a proposed amendment, it still will ha e to be approved by Texas voters.

"I'm still optimistic that we will be able to muster the votes that we need," Lewis said. "I'd like to get 100 (today), but if we don't, I'm hoping that we could certainly get 76 and move it on."

'We are not playing adult-draw-the-line-in-the-dirt games with each other. We are playing with our children's lives. You are playing with the future of the state of Texas . . .'

— Gov. Ann Richards

Besides meeting with House Democrats Tuesday, Richards asked for help from more than two dozen business lobbyists in a Monday meeting, said her press secretary, Bill Cryer.

Lawmakers tried to equalize school funding in the current system by redistributing local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts within counties or groups of counties.

But the court said in January that's unconstitutional, so Richards called a special legislative session.

The Senate last week approved a proposed constitutional amendment backed by state leaders to allow the statewide redistribution of local property tax money.

The proposal also would set an equity standard in the constitution in an effort to free the state from continued court battles. The standard would require that for 95 percent of state and local money, school districts get the same amount of funds at the same local property tax rate. Public education is mainly funded from state aid and local property taxes.

The House Public Education Committee approved a different proposal that does not contain an equity standard and limits the amount of local money that can be redistributed.

Clinton loves Razorback games, driving fast

By Nita Lelyveld
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Bill Clinton loves to cheer at Arkansas Razorbacks games — so much that his friends have been embarrassed.

"That's a fault of his. He just goes berserk sometimes," said David Leopoulis, who's been close to Clinton since the fourth grade. "I went to a Texas game just after he announced and I had to remind him, 'Bill, you're running for president now!' "

Before Clinton becomes America's 42nd president Jan. 20, and perhaps begins acting altogether presidential, here are more of his loves:

■ He likes to drive fast, and doesn't just stare at the road zooming by. He tends to steer, talk, eat and search for his favorite song on the tape deck all at once. "Unnerving," said his gubernatorial press secretary, Mike Gauldin.

"We need him as president because it takes him off the streets," said Leopoulis.

About a year ago, Clinton bought a '66 Mustang convertible from his brother, Roger. "He can't talk to anyone without eye contact," Leopoulis says. "If you sit in the back seat, that means he's going to go off the road."

■ Clinton usually reads at least three books at once, but they're not all by Nobel Prize winners. He's a sucker for page-turner mysteries and thrillers.

He often reads and holds a conversation simultaneously.

"I've always said he has two brains — one for reading and one for normal life," Gauldin said.

■ He loves peanut butter-and-banana sandwiches, playing hearts and doing The New York Times crossword puzzle — in ink.

When he's not working, he usually wears jeans, a T-shirt, a baseball cap and running shoes. His clothes aren't fancy; he wears inexpensive brand names and a plastic digital watch.

■ He's quick to join a pickup basketball game. He also plays golf, swims and jogs, and often lifts weights at a YMCA. Clinton loves all kinds of games; whatever he plays, he plays to win — even Trivial Pursuit.

'We need him as president because it takes him off the streets.'

— David Leopoulis, friend of Clinton

"You thought he was tenacious running for president," said television producer and longtime friend Linda Bloodworth-Thomason. "I mean, please."

■ He loves to stop and chat so much that he can't keep to a schedule. As governor, Clinton had a regular Friday radio show at 8 a.m. But he almost never made it to the station before 8:30 a.m.,

"You learn to operate on Clinton standard time," Gauldin said.

■ When it comes to music, Clinton obviously loves Elvis Presley. But he's also fond of Motown and country standards. He loves jazz, too, and listens to Wynton Marsalis and Kenny G.

Gospel music has been featured at each of his previous inaugurals, and he sometimes sings in his Southern Baptist church choir.

If his house were burning down and he could save only one record, he once said, he would choose Judy Collins' "Colors of the Morning."

■ He also knows movies, and watches lots of them. His favorites: "High Noon" and "Casablanca."

■ He's allergic to milk. He favors caffeine-free sodas and decaf coffee. Once in a blue moon, he'll have a beer or a glass of wine, but he's not what you'd call a drinking man.

■ He loves barbecue and Mexican food but, frankly, there are few foods he won't eat.

■ He likes jokes, witty repartee and swapping funny stories about friends. Sometimes, he laughs until he cries.

"When Bill laughs, it's infectious," said Bloodworth-Thomason. "He appreciates humor more than almost anyone else I know."

Mrs. Clinton is transition team member

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President-elect Clinton made clear Tuesday that his wife, Hillary, is an active member of his transition team.

Clinton was asked about speculation regarding his wife's role in planning the new administration during a photo session for his transition planning board.

"There is no speculation," he said. "We just sort of sit down here around this table every day and talk. She's part of it."

Mrs. Clinton had joined her husband, Vice President-elect Al Gore and eight top transition advisers around a large wooden table in the den of the Arkansas governor's mansion.

Clinton said: "Sen. Gore is always here. Mrs. Clinton is always here, and a lot of people come in and out, depending on what we're talking about. It's pretty much how I've always done things."

During Clinton's five terms as governor, Mrs. Clinton, a 45-year-old lawyer, was his closest adviser. She headed a task force that developed Arkansas' landmark education standards, played a key role in his gubernatorial campaigns and presidential race and championed children's issues.

Clinton first addressed speculation about her role on transition planning Monday, when he told reporters that she joined him and congressional leaders for dinner Sunday. "She knew more than we did about some things," Clinton said.

Mrs. Clinton reportedly recommended that Clinton make a brief speech the day after the election to reassure foreign leaders and financial markets. She also reportedly suggested that her husband give campaign manager Mickey Kantor a lesser role in the transition team.

The speech was made. Kantor is no longer a major force.

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of rain. The high should be around 70 with south winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a low in the mid-40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should have a 40 percent chance of rain and a high in the upper 60s.

After an overnight low of 49, Tuesday's high reached 77, compared to the record high for that date of 84 set in 1981. The record low was 19 set in 1980.

STATE

Warm, moist air from the Gulf flowed into North Texas on Tuesday as temperatures rose into the 70s across most of the region.

Isolated clear spots were noted, but North Texas was mostly under cloudy skies. A southerly breeze, generally between 10 and 20 mph, warmed mid-afternoon temperatures into the 70s throughout most of the area.

The National Weather Service said scattered thunderstorms are likely in western regions of North Texas on Wednesday with highs in the 60s and 70s. Thunderstorms are likely again on Wednesday night and Thursday.

A low-pressure area was over the South Plains, and a stationary front stretched across the Panhandle. Under sunny skies, temperatures were in the 60s in the Panhandle and South Plains, but in the 70s farther south and west.

In South Texas, also under the influence of the warm southerly flow, a few showers and thunderstorms were noted, particularly along the coast.

Temperatures climbed into the upper 70s across South Texas even with the heavy cloud cover. Readings at 3 p.m. ranged from 65 at Kerrville to 81 at Kingsville and Corpus Christi. Winds were easterly and southeasterly at 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast for South Texas calls for mostly cloudy to partly cloudy skies through Thursday with scattered showers and thunderstorms starting Wednesday. Highs will be in the 60s and 70s. Lows will be in the 50s and 60s.

NATION

Snow fell on parts of the Northeast on Tuesday, while much of the rest of the nation had seasonal weather.

At midday, snowshowers extended over New England and much of New York state and northern Pennsylvania. Snowshowers also hit parts of Michigan, northern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Weather was fairly quiet overnight into Tuesday afternoon. There were no major storms and no temperature records were threatened.

Three inches of snow fell in the six hours ending at ending at 1 p.m. EST in Albany, Buffalo and Rochester in New York and in Duluth, Minn. Other parts of upstate New York had 2 inches of snow, and Worcester, Mass., had 1 inch.

Light rain fell on portions of the middle Mississippi Valley, the central Plains, northern Montana, the Idaho Panhandle and eastern Washington state.

Rain was scattered over the central Florida peninsula.

There were no reports of heavy morning rain.

BUNTON: Judge dismisses lawsuit

(From 1A)

and the U.S. Attorney's Office.

"A district court may dismiss an action for failure of a plaintiff to prosecute or to comply with any court order," Bunton said.

Essentially, Bunton's order of dismissal said "put up or shut up," noted Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery of Midland.

"Mr. Tucker and his attorney (Ted Painter) took not one step to prosecute the case," Beery said. The "case was not moving along." Painter is the Ward County Attorney-elect.

Further, Tucker's lawyer "never answered Bunton" in regard to the case, Beery said. "That tells you they never were serious about the lawsuit from the beginning."

And failure to follow up by Tucker and Painter suggested that the lawsuit was filed "for purposes of harassment," Beery said. "But it didn't harass me one bit. I probably worried about the lawsuit for five seconds."

Painter was not available for comment at his Monahans office or home Tuesday night.

Bunton's order said the court's authority to dismiss a case for "lack of prosecution" generally has been considered an "inherent power ... not by rule or statute but by the control necessarily vested in courts to manage their own affairs (and) achieve the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases."

Tucker, who ranches in the Texas Panhandle, said his chances of getting a "fair and impartial investigation (is) impossible at the local level."

Further, Tucker had alleged that Shane Phelps and Ned Butler, prosecutors with the Texas Attorney General's Office, "have conducted a campaign against my integrity in the media" and have "released secret grand-jury testimony" to federal prosecutors in Midland and to a Houston attorney."

Tucker claimed that that release of that information led to the filing of a $60 million lawsuit, since dismissed, by a convicted drug dealer against his attorney Painter and himself, and "endangered the lives of a number of civilian confidential informants."

In his lawsuit, Tucker also alleged that his prosecution was conceived in "bad faith," that he had been "slandered and libeled," and that he was the victim of "prosecutorial vindictiveness."

About the time he filed the now-dismissed suit, Tucker had lodged a complaint with the U.S. Department of Justice's Public Integrity Section on alleged violation of his civil rights by the Texas Attorney General Office, the Texas Rangers, the FBI, and the U.S. Attorney's Office in Midland.

"What has happened to me goes beyond official oppression and into the realm of persecution," Tucker said at that time.

Tucker and Gary Howard gained reputations as bold investigators in Texas, national and international reverse drug-sting operations.

Though he had been indicted in Ward County for theft and misapplication of funds arising out of a 1989 sting in Sherman, those cases were dismissed, and Tucker subsequently was indicted in Dallas for theft by a public servant. Tucker had served as an investigator for former Ward County District Attorney Hal Upchurch and earlier was a Midland County deputy sheriff.

Meanwhile, Tucker still faces two perjury indictments Midland County for allegedly lying about the seizure of $449,950 in drug money in a January 1990 reverse sting. Tucker had sworn that the money was seized in Monahans but later swore that it was seized in Midland. That case is to be tried in Midland on Dec. 14.

ISSUES: Clinton to tour inner-city neighborhood plane he's now eligible for in favor of flying to the nation's capital on the chartered jet used during his campaign. He declined the chance to stay at Blair House — the president's official guest house — and opted instead for a nearby hotel.

Christopher predicted Clinton and Bush would "have a substantive discussion of the major problems facing America at the present time."

"I think it will not be just a social call, but ... as has always been true historically, it's a time when the outgoing president communicates important thoughts to the incoming president," Christopher said.

On Tuesday, Clinton called together his top transition aides for a progress update. Vice President-elect Al Gore and Clinton's wife, Hillary, participated, as well.

For the second straight day, Clinton was asked about his wife's role.

"We just sort of sit down here around the table and talk. She's part of it," Clinton said matter-of-factly.

Meanwhile, several blocks away, the president-elect's top economic advisers hosted a daylong brainstorming session with out-of-town experts, including Roger Altman and Robert Rubin. Both are New York investment firm executives considered hot prospects for the Treasury secretary's job.

With Riley's appointment, the transition team has a heavier staff for dealing with the thousands of resumes flowing in every day.

Riley, as assistant director for personnel, will head the transition's job-screening operation in Washington. He will work with Clinton and his yet-to-be-named Cabinet to fill sub-Cabinet and agency posts, such as assistant secretaries of education or labor.

"We need to make sure that we don't have gridlock in the executive department of government," said Riley, 59, a Greenville, S.C., lawyer, who was popular during his two terms as a Democratic governor.

Riley said he thought there would be a "team concept" for picking undersecretaries and deputies, rather than Clinton maintaining total control or cabinet secretaries dominating the selection process. Christopher called it a "mutual endeavor."

Riley has often been mentioned as a contender for secretary of education or chief of staff in a Clinton administration.

Clinton, asked about Riley's future, said the transition job would probably occupy his attention "well into the administration."

"He hasn't asked for a job. He is sort of an old-fashioned person. He just said he's at my disposal," Clinton said.

Riley's selection appears to represent an attempt not to repeat mistakes made by Jimmy Carter in 1976 during his transition.

Carter aides have said that one of his biggest mistakes during his transition days was not to take full control of the process of naming sub-Cabinet posts — leaving Cabinet appointees to fill most of these positions.

Clinton will get to fill 3,000 to 4,000 political appointment jobs throughout the government, said spokesman George Stephanopoulos.

Clinton's aides said the president-elect was considering a trip to Georgia sometime within the next several days to campaign for Sen. Wyche Fowler, who was forced into a runoff in the Nov. 3 election.

TERRORISTS: U.S. offers $2 million reward

(From 1A)

rangement of matching funds from U.S. airlines for information that prevents terrorism against U.S. carriers or leads to the arrest and conviction of perpetrators of airline terrorism.

Also among the terrorists identified by the United States in the last year are those responsible for placing a bomb that exploded aboard a TWA plane over Greece in 1986, sucking four passengers to their death, said the second source.

The ads also seek information about that attack.

One stark ad shows a pair of baby shoes under a caption that says:

"$2 million won't bring baby Demetra back. But it may bring her murderers to justice."

The infant and her mother were among the four killed in the TWA bombing.

In the last two years, the U.S. government has paid some $2 million for information about terrorists and has hidden some of its informants to protect them from retribution, said a State Department official who asked not to be identified.

The reward program was instituted in 1984. Until now, its posters and ads have sought general information about terrorism.

The new ads are the first to seek information on specific cases, reflecting what U.S. officials believe are improved prospects for apprehending suspects. The enhanced opportunities are partly the result of stepped up cooperation with Russia, which has access to information about the Mideast guerrilla groups supported by the former Soviet Union.

"There's a better chance now that people will be willing to come forward with information," said Anthony Quainton, the assistant secretary of state for diplomatic security. "We also want to get across the message that we haven't forgotten," he said.

"I'm very pleased at the new life being breathed into the rewards program," said Robin Higgins, whose husband was kidnapped in February 1988 while serving as a U.N. peacekeeper in south Lebanon.

"I'm very hopeful the ads can bring fruitful results," she said in an interview.

The ads are being placed in international editions of U.S. newspapers, as well as in the Russian paper Pravda, the German paper Die Welt and the Arab-language Lebanese paper al-Hayat.

Radio Monte Carlo, an Arabic-language station broadcasting from France, has backed out of a $50,000 contract with the U.S. government to air the ads, U.S. officials said.

SEMINAR: Parents to help children cope

(From 1A)

But some parents may not be as eager to attend as to get divorced.

"I would expect initial reluctance on behalf of the parents," Rucker said.

But similar programs elsewhere have shown that parents, after completing the program, find it worthwhile.

The divorcing mother and father in Midland must each attend a separate four-hour seminar held by Jim Huggins and Alane Edwards of Family Services of Midland.

"The theme is that families don't end, marriages do. Children need families,"said Huggins, president of Family Services.

Unfortunately, "a lot of times in a divorce, children get lost," he said. "During a divorce they (parents) are usually thinking of their own pain and anger."

So the goal of the program "is to get the focus of parents off themselves and on to the children. They (the mother and father) need to continue to be parents to their children," Huggins said.

The seminar, Children Coping with Divorce, addresses how families react to divorce, the mental needs of children, skills to help youngsters cope and pitfalls to avoid.

Parents are taught how and what to tell children about divorce.

Parents without such knowledge and awareness may cause children to suffer for life.

"The fallout from a bitter divorce is not temporary. The long-lasting symptoms of it are the difficulty at handling visitations at both ends, working cooperatively for the child's future," Rucker said.

"It (the affect) lasts several years, even past the child becoming an adult," he said.

Sometimes the "little things parents say and do" to one another in the presence of the children can have adverse affects, Rucker said.

Huggins said that experts have long felt that divorce can have a significant bearing on children. That theory has in recent years been corroborated by studies, he added.

A report on a television news show about a year ago sparked Rucker's interest in the approach. This summer, while attending a family law conference, Rucker visited with a state judge from Tarrant County who implemented such a program.

After researching the idea further, Rucker contacted Huggins and developed the local program.

The program is modeled after one in Cobb County, Ga., that began in October 1988. Similar programs exist in Atlanta, Ga.; Marion, Ohio; St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Fort Worth.

Huggins was trained and certified from Families First, the program in Atlanta.

Parents who file for divorce in December will be required to participate in the program with classes starting in January.

Exceptions may be made for good cause shown with court approval.

Cost of the seminars will be $30, which can be waived for the indigent.

Correction

In Sunday's story on the YMCA afterschool program the cost of Friday gymnastics lessons was incorrect. Classes cost $10 per month. Also, Gary Tidwell's name was incorrectly spelled.

the practice.

The managers of Sugar's Uptown Cabaret, and The Red Rose and Yellow Rose, said they have held several tournaments at Round Rock. Topless dancers employed at the clubs work for tips driving golf carts and serving food and drinks.

Howard Lenett, manager of Sugar's, said about 30 dancers attend the events and are discouraged from disrobing.

"We tell them to wear golf attire, shorts and T-shirts, or polo shirts," he said. Lennett said the club is "re-evaluating" the tournaments because of "concerns about our public image."

The Sept. 28 tournament at Forest Creek was organized by the Red Rose and 164 golfers paid $100 each to participate, said Hank Fromme, manager of the Red Rose and the Yellow Rose.

"We ask the girls to use discretion, but because of where they work, it's not unusual for the girls to take their tops off," he said.

Parliaments call for end of federation

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The Czech and Slovak legislatures approved resolutions Tuesday urging the national parliament to push forward the separation of the republic.

The two legislatures acted on the third anniversary of the peaceful 1989 revolution that ended Communist rule in Czechoslovakia.

Czech Premier Vaclav Klaus and Slovak Premier Vladimir Meciar agreed in June to split the country into two independent republics by year's end because of deep differences over the nature of post-Communist reforms.

The Czech republic has 10 million people and is more prosperous. Slovakia, with a population half as large and an industry deeply tied to the old Soviet system, wants to move more slowly toward full free-market capitalism.

The Czechoslovak Constitution says only the federal parliament has the right to break up the state, with a vote by a three-fifth majority.

Opponents of the split, primarily Czech leftists and former Communists in Slovakia, are demanding a referendum.

Opinion polls have shown the majority of Czechs and Slovaks oppose the split, but one recent poll indicated that more than 80 percent nevertheless consider it inevitable.

The government coalition says there is no time to hold a referendum, with the federation already breaking apart.

In Prague, the Czech legislature approved a resolution calling on parliament to adopt a law allowing separation of the two republics without a referendum. The vote was 106-67 with 12 abstentions.

A similar resolution was approved in the Slovak capital, Bratislava. 73 of the 150 legislatures approved the measure, 16 voted against and 42 abstained.

Yeltsin blocks parliment meeting

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin hinted Tuesday he may retaliate against legislative foes if they try to slow his economic reforms, but denied he would declare presidential rule to block a parliament session.

"Do you really think that your president is such an odd man that I would agree to violate the constitution?" Yeltsin told reporters after a meeting at the Kremlin.

However, Yeltsin appeared to be doing everything else he could to hinder his opponents. City police enforced his ban on the hard-line National Salvation Front by denying it access to a meeting hall, forcing the group to hold a news conference on the snow-covered street.

"Today, the president who says he was elected democratically, who says he is the guarantee of democracy in the Russian Federation, allows himself actions that don't fall within the framework of the constitution!" Front leader Ilya Konstantinov declared.

Yeltsin banned the group last month after some members called for his overthrow. Its members in the pro-Communist parliament majority want to roll back reforms, remove leading Cabinet ministers and even call a no-confidence vote on Yeltsin during the Dec. 1 session of the Congress of People's Deputies.

Opponents say Yeltsin is moving too fast in shifting Russia to a market economy, causing severe hardships with soaring prices, falling industrial production and rising joblessness.

Yeltsin dismissed allegations that he was planning "the introduction of direct presidential rule, dissolution of the Supreme Soviet (legislature) and preventing the convocation of the parliament."

But he added he would take any step necessary to protect the interests of the people, repeating a vague threat he has made at least twice in recent weeks to block his hard-line critics.

Yeltsin also denied he would try to appeace critics by replacing some of his ministers before the parliament session.

Rebels attack in Peru before national election

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Shining Path rebels exploded eight bombs Tuesday in a wave of violence aimed at frustrating elections for a national assembly. The guerrillas threatened to kill commuters who go to work today or Thursday.

The assembly is intended to replace the Congress that President Alberto Fujimori dissolved in April after seizing power.

The attacks, coming for third day, wounded seven people, destroyed a police station and a municipal building and damaged five banks and a gas station.

Ten rebels ushered employees out of a municipal annex in the Comas district Tuesday morning and wrecked the concrete building with two bombs. Mayor Humberto Paredes ordered construction crews to begin rebuilding immediately.

"The Shining Path destroys; we rebuild," Paredes said. "We will not be cowed."

The violence also showed that Shining Path Maoists are ready to fight on despite the September capture of their leader, Abimael Guzman.

But Prime Minister Oscar de la Puente dismissed the importance of the attacks, so far not as severe as those launched in a July offensive.

"These are isolated actions, without great repercussions," he said. He promised that 100,000 soldiers and police would protect voters Sunday.

The violence added to an already confusing election week.

Friends, affiliates, and staff members all congratulate and applaud Dr. Kimery for these most recent professional accomplishments.

These achievements signify not only recognition by his peers in the field of Dental Implantology, but they also vividly demonstrate his aggressive and protracted commitment to post-doctoral studies. Signified here is the completion of written and oral examinations; as well as the successful defense of fully documented, and multiple, treatment cases before the examiners for Implantology.

A minimum of 300 post-doctoral credit hours of study were required for admission to the written phase, but Dr. Kimery far exceeded that. He currently documents 599 post-doctoral credit hours, with an emphasis on the advanced techniques for total rehabilitation via Dental Implants. While Dr. Kimery continues to offer treatment and consultive services for Periodontics and simple tooth replacement problems, he extends a special invitation to those whose needs are more complex.

Have you been told that you are not a candidate for Dental Implants, or that you have too little bone? If so, Dr. Kimery especially invites your call. He continues to maintain regular office hours at the same location in Midland, Texas where he has remained for the last 18 years.

Anti-debt groups to be vital for change

While not necessarily embracing their specific "cure" for the problem, we have to go along with Charles Viktorin and the other marchers in Midland who are attempting to call attention to the nation's $4 trillion national debt.

Viktorin, a 30-year-old financial analyst, and other members of a Midland group called Americans Against the National Debt (AAND) were on the sidewalks around Midland County Courthouse this past weekend hoping to heighten awareness of the massive national debt and the need to balance the federal budget — goals that we wholeheartedly endorse.

The group is promoting a fuel tax as a means of paying off the national debt, which Viktorin noted averages out to $16,000 for each of the United States' 250 million people. Of course, we are well aware of the fallacy of having a one-time debt-reduction tax pushed through the Congress and the members of AAND probably are too. When taxes are levied, for whatever reason, they typically become permanent. Besides, a tax only assessed on gasoline would unfairly burden residents of regions like this where the automobile is about the only source of transportation available.

We're also aware of the deleterious effects of a runaway debt on the nation's economy, compounded by the free-spending ways of those in the Congress. In that regard, the grassroots effort by AAND and groups like it throughout the nation can have a beneficial impact by driving the message home to political leaders that grassroots America wants the debt reduced and excess spending stopped.

President-elect Clinton and the Democratic Congress have inherited this economic dilemma for better or for worse. And with a debt that draws $1 billion a day in interest charges alone, it looks as though they'll need all of the political courage they can muster.

The message must be transmitted to our nation's leaders: the debt is stifling our economy and threatening our children's future. It must be controlled and that can only occur through concerted and unfailing action to stop excessive spending.

It will be up to groups like AAND to see that the nation's leaders follow through.

Clinton must reckon with Keating legacy

WASHINGTON — At least figuratively, President-elect Bill Clinton last week crossed paths with Charles Keating, the former savings and loan executive whom some regard as the most notorious white-collar criminal of the century.

Anderson

Clinton was conducting his first post-election press conference in Little Rock, Ark., while in a Los Angeles courtroom Keating stood trial for bank fraud stemming from the $2.6 billion collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan, the biggest blowout of the thrift scandal. Clinton discussed the daunting clean-up of the S&L mess that lies ahead, even as prosecutors pressed their case that Keating was a man addicted to money who built a "multimillion-dollar personal empire based on tricks and deception."

Based on dozens of interviews with Keating's former top lieutenants and company insiders, we found that Lincoln Savings was run more like a corporate Animal House — a corporate culture of conspicuous consumption, parties and pranks.

From 1983 to 1989, when Keating was on top of the world, he spent more than $500,000 on companies parties. The money he spent to buy everything from politicians to lawyers and accountants was dispensed with cold, manipulative intent. The man who, almost overnight, built a multibillion-dollar financial juggernaut, genuinely loved a good time.

According to insiders, he reveled in rowdy parties with people dancing on tables and juggling lit candles. If there was a pool nearby, people would end up throwing each other into it fully clothed.

One night during a fancy expense account dinner in Denver, a salesman for one of Keating's companies took a flying leap onto a dessert cart. He slammed into the middle of a giant torte, and whipped cream splattered everywhere.

Nothing symbolized Keating's free-spending ways better than the manner in which he treated his secretaries. He interviewed each personally, and routinely asked for their height and weight.

Those he liked earned big salaries, some as much as $100,000, and were often given clothing allowances because Keating insisted they dress well. But Keating would also contrive devilish games he could play with his secretaries. At the company's many parties, he often offered a $100 bill to any secretary who would whip down a pool slide with her clothes on.

In one of his favorite stunts, Keating would have a company official load up his station wagon with women and drive a few blocks down fashionable Camelback Avenue in Phoenix to a shopping center with an ice cream shop. The ruse was that he was going to buy ice cream for everyone.

As the young women enjoyed their ice cream, this official would whip out a fat wad of $100 bills from his pocket and announce it was theirs to spend on clothes at a boutique next door. There was one catch: They would have to give back any money that wasn't spent in 10 minutes. As Keating expected when he scripted the moment, the ice cream cones went flying. The women grabbed the cash and charged into the store.

To celebrate his bounty of beautiful women — who became known locally as "Charlie's Angels" — Keating would relax the usually conservative dress code once a week. Friday was called "casual day," and it grew into a kind of perverse beauty pageant where the women donned teasing outfits and the various divisions of the company battled over which had the sexiest secretaries.

Yet, Keating stands as a paradox. He was a deeply devout Catholic and one of the biggest benefactors in church history.

Clinton may bring 'Little Rock Cafe' to town

Every time a new administration comes to Washington some very imaginative editor says, "Hey, why don't we do a story on how Washington will change because of the new President?"

Buchwald

Even the August New York Times decided to pull out the old chestnut and run it on the front page.

Apparently, if you don't do at least one story about the expected changes, your paper can lose its fourth class mailing privileges.

A few days after the election I received a call from a female reporter with a thick New York Times accent who informed me that the paper had decided to go with the new administration story.

She assured me that no matter what I said, it would be fit to print. "How is Washington going to change under Clinton?" she asked.

I didn't want to break her heart and tell her the truth — that Washington doesn't change. Because the lawyers, the lobbyists and the media types, who make up 103 percent of the town, are like the civil service and do not serve at the pleasure of the President. But if I told her that she wouldn't have a story.

So I gave her what she wanted.

"There will be many changes. For example, if you worked for Clinton during the campaign you will now be permitted to tie up your horse at the White House fence."

I could hear her computer keys clicking away.

"Did you hear that Clinton's people intended to change the name of the Kennedy Center to the 'Little Rock Cafe'?"

"Are you sure?"

"Would I lie about something like that?" I said.

"Don't divulge where you got this but I also heard that Hillary Clinton is going to give cooking courses to women fighter pilots at the White House."

The reporter sounded ecstatic, "Don't stop."

"This one I heard from a very reliable source. Clinton will be the first President of the United States to play saxophone with the Marine Corps band at his own state dinners."

The reporter responded, "I haven't heard any of this."

"I can't verify it but one of the transition people told me that the Clintons intended to buy a large German shepherd just in case Millie tries to get back into the White House."

"What about food? Will the restaurants change their menus?"

"As soon as the Clintons move in, McDonald's will feature catfish burgers on all its menus. I don't want you to get the idea that Washington panders to new administrations. We're too sophisticated for that. For every sycophant in this town there are 100 down-to-earth people like former mayor Marion Barry."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Will president-elect keep CIA's high priced secret?

LOS ANGELES — Where will the new president turn for vital information to help him make life-or-death decisions on foreign affairs?

To the CIA, of course. His national security adviser will tell him not to curtail that vast establishment. His new economic security adviser will suggest expanding its reach into the world of economic intelligence.

Safire

If President Clinton should trouble to ask what all this costs, he will be told a fact kept secret from the American public: about $20 billion a year goes to military intelligence — from satellites still reading Kremlin license plates to Big Ears listening to millions of voice and data transmissions — and an additional $10 billion per year to the CIA for human spying, covert operations, and analysis that winds up in the president's daily intelligence brief.

He may ask: Why can't the American taxpayer be told, at least in the aggregate, how much is spent on the intelligence gathering and evaluation?

Reaction: horror. He would be told that sources and methods would be blown, allied services betrayed by publication of our overall intelligence budget. Worst of all, the cozy symbiosis between the intelligence community and its congressional overseers would be shattered if nosy outsiders knew the real rate of growth of our spying spending.

If the new president has any moxie, he will cut through this stultifying secrecy and demand to know: Are we getting enough data for the dollar? How does the efficiency of our operation compare with that of other major nations? Is the information so expensively gathered lost in the bureaucracy or made available to the decision-maker at the moment of decision?

A recent episode is illuminating. If CIA spokesmen are to be believed, the agency "misfiled" some pertinent intelligence about the participation of Italian officials in the decision to help finance Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's arms buildup. This supposedly led our gullible Justice Department to absolve Rome of wrongdoing and cost U.S. taxpayers billions in loan guarantees.

Misfiled? Lost some memos? That suggests CIA clerks sticking handwritten slips into red-taped folders and putting them in oaken file cabinets, with the system of retrieval in one Uriah Heep's head.

In fact, even the agency's new family jewels are on computers. Any hacker with software costing $49 and all the relevant CIA access codes in hand could type in "Lavoro or B.N.L. or Matrix or Dragoul or Atlanta and Iraq," command "Search," and turn up all the memos that were mysteriously "misfiled" for years — and more.

Either the CIA method of handling data is egregiously inefficient — unable to call up and present hard intelligence to help the president make a far-reaching decision directive — or the organization is corrupt, deliberately concealing the truth from lawmakers and law enforcement officials.

Lee needs support to march in Rose Parade

Students at Lee High School are currently finishing a year-long project to raise sufficient funds to represent our five-state region in the Tournament of Roses Parade, Jan. 1, 1993. Success is in sight, but a final push by our community will be necessary to put these deserving students over the top. The entire community has been very supportive and generous and we appreciate it very much.

As of Nov. 12, $161,000 has been raised toward the $190,000 required. The deadline for the money is Nov. 30. This means that approximately $29,000 must be generated in the next few days. Students have one final project that they are asking for your help on. Each student has been challenged to find pledge sponsors for each of the five miles they will march in the Rose Parade. The challenge is to raise $10 a mile or $50 per student. One hundred percent of this money will go towards a student's account that they are being asked to raise or pay. Many students are in need of a significant amount of help to finish their commitment. If you could contribute to this, please mail your check to LHS Booster Club, P.O. Box 8741, Midland, Tx. 79708. Your donation will be credited to a deserving student.

On Dec. 5 the LHS Band will participate in the Christmas Parade. Each student will wear a ribbon with the names of their sponsors listed. Your support would be gratefully appreciated.

There has been a misunderstanding by some people as to the procedures that have been used in our project. First, all fund-raising has been done by students and booster club parents. We have not asked for supplemental funds from Midland Independent School District (MISD) nor do we intend to. Any trip of this nature is clearly agreed in the beginning to be the sole financial responsibility of students and parents. Secondly, all money donated to the Rose Parade will be exclusively used for that purpose. Any additional expenses incurred during the year are taken care of by the annual operating budget of the booster club. The LHS Band has incurred an extra heavy financial responsibility this year with additional merit travel; however, all expenses have been covered by our operating budget.

Commissioners should check out road situation

Concerning the letters regarding the quality of road work being done in our county on our county roads by one of our county employees, I would like to add one more piece of information that the public may not be aware of. The so-called supervisor for the road and bridge department, Johnny Williams, has to every day deal with many problems other than the resurfacing of our county roads. He also must deal with the ever-constant problem of tire repair, tire purchasing, front-end alignments and other ever-occurring mechanical problems.

I'm curious if there has ever been any investigation into whom our county does business with in these matters. There probably is nothing at all wrong with doing business with relatives, such as the father of the supervisor for the road and bridge department, Bill Williams. But I'm quite sure there are other businesses that could be used so that there might not be any wrongdoing going on in our county government.

I am aware of our current practice of not hiring relatives, but I guess there isn't a law against doing business with your relatives.

There probably isn't any wrongdoing going on, but I for one would like our beloved county commissioners to maybe check out this little situation, and get off Sheriff Gary Painter's back for awhile. Our poorly constructed county roads and questionable business practices such as the above mentioned should be looked into with as much enthusiasm as the excellent work our sheriff is doing.

Columnist's profession comes under question

I would like to express my disgust with your editorial page columnist, William Murchison. I have never before witnessed such a poor loser, and after his column of Nov. 10th his professionalism is very much in doubt.

I thought that after the election was over and he and William Randolph Hearst lost, Murchison would accept the fact and wish the winners well; however, he tries to place the blame on others. I'm sure Tom Brokaw, Bill Moyers, Barbra Streisand, and others won't mind being criticized by a second-rate columnist.

I suppose he will spend the next four years imitating Chicken Little, but I have another word that goes with chicken that better describes William Murchison.

Leftists approve Germans in peace missions

BONN, Germany (AP) — The main opposition party reversed course Tuesday and agreed to help the government end a constitutional ban on the use of German troops outside NATO nations.

The decision by the leftist Social Democrats came hours after party delegates also supported an end to Germany's liberal asylum rules, a move they hope will slow the flood of refugees who have been the targets of neo-Nazi violence.

Social Democrats had long cherished the constitution's offer of asylum to most any foreigner who asked for it, and its barriers to military operations as a repudiation of a Nazi past.

But party leaders pushed for the position changes as part of their effort before 1994 elections to alter the party's image of being unwilling to change with the times.

Despite the reversals, the Social Democrats remained in disagreement with Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative government on the changes that should be made. It could be weeks before a compromise is reached.

Kohl needs the backing of the Social Democrats, the second largest party, for any constitutional changes, which require a two-thirds majority in Parliament.

The constitution is generally interpreted as forbidding deployment of German troops to territory outside the 16 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Kohl was embarrassed when Germany sat on the sidelines as a U.S.-led coalition forced the Iraqis out of Kuwait last year. He wants to amend the constitution to allow German soldiers to fight in international conflicts such as the Gulf War.

But a majority of Social Democratic delegates voted to limit the use of German troops to U.N. peacekeeping missions, such as guarding relief convoys, overseeing cease-fires, protecting civilians, standing watch in U.N. security zones and helping with the preservation of human rights.

Their resolution said that German troops should not be sent abroad for the specific purpose of fighting soldiers from another nation and that countries where German soldiers would be stationed would have to approve their deployment.

Some delegates argued that permitting German troops to operate outside NATO would serve as a counterweight to the United States.

The party also gave in to growing public pressure to do something about the record influx of asylum seekers. Many Germans have been angered about the cost of caring for refugees as the price of rebuilding eastern Germany's economy escalates, and neo-Nazis have been attacking foreigners.

The Social Democrats, who consider themselves the champions of refugees and other minorities, agreed to support changes that will make it harder for foreigners to get asylum.

Aide confirms Prince Charles' romance affair

LONDON (AP) — The London tabloid Daily Mirror quoted a royal aide Tuesday as confirming that Prince Charles has had a romance with a married woman, Camilla Parker Bowles.

"So what?" the aide was quoted as saying Monday. "It happens in France all the time. Politicians and famous men in all walks of life in France have mistresses and nobody turns a hair."

The newspaper identified the aide as one of the prince's closest advisers.

It called the story "exclusive" but gave no details on how the aide came to make his "amazing remarks."

Tabloids have speculated for months that the 11-year-old marriage of Charles and Princess Diana, 31, is on the rocks.

Charles, the father of two sons, had his 44th birthday on Saturday. He is the eldest son and heir to Queen Elizabeth II.

Mrs. Parker Bowles, 43, is the wife of Brigadier Andrew Parker Bowles, 52, the officer in charge of the army's veterinary service. They have been married 19 years and have a son Tom, 17, and a daughter Laura, 14.

Charles and Mrs. Parker Bowles dated when they were both single. He is godfather to her son.

The Daily Mirror said Charles has told his staff he plans no action in response to the reports that his relationship with Mrs. Parker Bowles.

Guam readies as another typhoon nears

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Officials shut down much of Guam on Wednesday in preparation for the fourth typhoon to threaten the island in three months.

Typhoon Hunt was expected to move just south of the U.S. territory starting at noon today (8 p.m. CST Tuesday) with winds of 75 mph and gusts to 90 mph, the military's Joint Typhoon Warning Center said.

As of 10 a.m., the storm was 85 miles southeast of Guam, traveling west-northwest at 17 mph, forecasters said. The storm is expected to pass close to or just over the southern tip of the island, the center said.

All schools and businesses and the international airport on Guam were ordered closed as the typhoon approached. The airport closing stranded more than 200 top legislators from 13 western states who were on the island to attend the three-day Western Legislative Conference.

Typhoon Omar slammed Guam on Aug. 28, causing $500 million in damage. Typhoon Brian swept past the island Oct. 21, causing light damage, and Typhoon Elsie skirted Guam with winds of 100 mph on Nov. 2 but caused little damage.

Another typhoon, Gay, is sitting behind Typhoon Hunt and was expected to intensify before moving toward Guam late this weekend or early next week, forecasters said. The storm was about 1,800 miles east of Guam and 190 miles north of the Marshall Islands, and had winds of 80 mph with gusts of 100 mph.

The Northern Mariana Islands, a U.S. commonwealth, also were expected to be hit by Typhoon Hunt, but not as hard as Guam, the center said.

Guam is west of the international date line.

Europeans to run naval blockade against Yugoslavia

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Western European countries armed with new shoot-to-stop orders from the United Nations will set up a sea blockade against Yugoslavia to catch smugglers breaking a trade embargo, a source said Tuesday.

The United States also intends to commit "significant" ships and planes to the blockade, according to one senior U.S. official, but the Europeans are likely to provide the majority.

The United States has two surveillance ships monitoring air traffic over Bosnia-Herzegovina, and could commit more from the 19-ship Sixth Fleet task force in the Mediterranean.

The developments stem from the U.N. Security Council's vote Monday to use force to seal cracks in its 6-month-old ban on almost all international trade with Yugoslavia, now consisting only of Serbia and Montenegro. The council imposed the embargo to punish Yugoslavia for fomenting war in Bosnia-Herzegovina but it has been widely broken by trucks, and ships on the Danube River and in the Adriatic Sea.

An official in Brussels said the nine-nation Western European Union will announce in Rome on Friday that its warships in the Adriatic will impose the blockade.

The 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization began consultations about participating in the blockade, said an alliance official, also demanding anonymity.

Each of the security groups has five frigates in the Adriatic but until Monday's Security Council resolution, had been authorized only to monitor, not board, ships. Diplomats at the United Nations said that Western warships on the Adriatic could now intercept suspected smuggling ships, order them to stop for inspection, and, if necessary, fire a shot across the bow to warn them to halt.

Alexander Watson, the United States' No. 2 diplomat at the United Nations, vowed that "If these measures for the maritime embargo and the efforts on the Danube River do not work, we'll be right back in here looking for a resolution to ban all transshipments" of goods by highway across Serbia and Montenegro to other countries.

The resolution adopted Monday does not ban all transshipping, only that of crude oil, petroleum products, coal, energy-related equipment, iron, steel, other metals, chemicals, rubber, tires, vehicles, aircraft and motors.

Greece has been particularly reliant on transshipments because Serbia and Montenegro lie between it and Western Europe.

Until the resolution passed, other countries could send any goods through Yugoslavia by simply marking them "transit." No inspections were conducted and smuggling of everything from gasoline to cigarettes was rampant.

The United Nations is now developing plans to post U.N. border guards at frontier sites in Bosnia-Herzegovina; and the threat by Watson raises the possibility of ringing Yugoslavia on its other borders with Bulgaria, Albania, Greece, Romania, Hungary and Italy.

Bulgaria and Romania will be key players in enforcing the sanctions, as they share the Danube River with Yugoslavia. However, neither country has much money or equipment to monitor and intercept Danube River traffic.

A senior U.S. official said U.S. surveillance ships in the Adriatic will help Bulgaria and Romania pinpoint suspicious ships on the Danube.

In Yugoslavia on Tuesday, Serbs protested the new effort to enforce sanctions. Milan Panic, the moderate premier of Serb-dominated Yugoslavia who has been trying to get sanctions lifted, told farmers the U.N. vote would not have its desired effect.

"Sanctions cannot topple the regime — their effects are felt most by innocent people and not by the politicians they are targeted against," he said, according to the Tanjug news agency.

Tanjug quoted Radovan Karadzic, the leader of Bosnia's Serbs, as saying the effort "continues to exert pressure against only one side — the Serbs — and will encourage (our) enemies to continue fighting."

In the meantime, though, a lull in fighting thanks to a 6-day-old truce in the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo allowed U.N. engineers Tuesday to restore water and electricity.

U.N. workers also were inspecting a possible new route for relief convoys, the highway linking Sarajevo to the southwestern city of Mostar.

U.N. inspection ends; Iraq won't name sources

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq's refusal to disclose foreign contributors to its pre-Gulf War nuclear weapons program has frustrated a team of U.N. inspectors who finished a 10-day probe Tuesday.

Dmitri Perricos, leader of the 32-member team, said he and the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency considered the Iraqi position "very unfortunate" and "purely political."

Perricos' team is the 46th to visit Iraq since inspections began last year.

It will leave Wednesday for Bahrain, regional headquarters of the U.N. Special Commission, which is supervising the elimination of Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction under U.N. resolutions that ended the Gulf War last year.

The IAEA has estimated Iraq was only a year away from industrial-scale production of enriched uranium for nuclear weapons when it invaded Kuwait in August 1990, touching off the Gulf crisis.

Asked if Iraq was capable of reactivating its nuclear program, Perricos said he believed the main facilities have been destroyed.

But he complained of a lack of clear information about foreign companies that provided Saddam with nuclear know-how and components.

Perricos said his experts were able to gather some procurement data by identifying equipment at facilities. In some cases, they found the names of manufacturers printed on machines.

City plans to promote health awareness

Officials instigate Medicare supplement program

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

City officials, stressing preventive health maintenance for retired city employees, are instigating a Medicare supplement program to help make prescription drugs more affordable.

The program is part of the city's effort to reap long-term benefits in health insurance costs.

"Medicare doesn't pay for pharmaceuticals, so the city came up with this program to help supplement the cost," Menchaca said.

The program, which is restricted to retired city employees who are at least 65 years old, applies only to people taking maintenance drugs.

"There are a lot of people out there taking these maintenance drugs — insulin, thyroid or high blood pressure medicine," Menchaca said. "It can get very costly."

Many senior citizens pay several hundred dollars a month for maintenance prescription drugs alone, officials estimate.

But through the Medicare supplement program, retirees can receive a 120-day supply of generic drugs for five dollars. Brand name drugs are available for only $12.

"We found that some employees were not taking their prescribed drugs solely because of the cost," Menchaca said. "So we're doing what we can to promote this program with those retirees. When they don't take their medicine it just increases the chance that damage can occur."

The city plans to buy the drugs wholesale to reduce costs.

■ Midland hopes to reduce health care claims through preventive medicine.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Faced with rising health insurance costs, city of Midland officials are counting on reducing their health care claims by promoting health awareness among city workers.

"We want our employees to practice preventive medicine. The key is to get to the problems before they mushroom," said Rick Menchaca, assistant to the city manager.

The city's internal employee wellness program began three years ago to help promote healthier lifestyles.

"We're looking at this as a long-term benefit to employees, the organization and taxpayers by controlling these medical costs," Menchaca said. "But the goal is to promote healthier living."

The health assessments are conducted at the YMCA for $37 a person. The check includes a body fat measurement, blood pressure check and cholesterol screening.

Employees involved in the wellness program can receive as much as $500 in incentives. There are three categories for monetary rewards.

Employees who are determined to be low health risks are eligible for a $250 incentive.

To qualify, employees must have a blood pressure level of 140/90 or lower, should exercise at least three times a week for 20 minutes, must be a non-smoker, should wear seat belts regularly, must have a cholesterol level of 225 or lower and must be within standard height/weight chart limits.

The second category offers a $125 incentive for employees who have not filed claims in excess of the deductible for themselves or their families, if dependents are claimed.

Former administrator: Judge should impose pumping limits

Associated Press

A federal judge should impose pumping limits on an aquifer to save threatened and endangered species living in Texas' largest springs, a former government administrator testified Tuesday in Midland federal court.

Michael Spears, formerly with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, testified on behalf of the Sierra Club in its lawsuit against the federal agency on overpumping in the Edwards Aquifer.

Spears testified that he had been told only court action would solve an impasse over water rights.

Current management plans for the underground reservoir, the sole source of drinking water for 1.5 million people, do not go far enough to protect the species on federal threatened and endangered lists, said Spears, a former regional administrator.

Officials of San Antonio, the largest city in the country to rely on an aquifer for its drinking water, are fighting the lawsuit along with several state agencies.

The lawsuit would force San Antonio to reduce its withdrawals from the aquifer by about 60 percent, city officials have said.

An aquatic biologist testified Monday in the trial's first day that tiny fish that live in Comal Springs and San Marcos Springs, Texas' second largest, have died because their flow has slowed with overpumping.

Bobby Whiteside, who directs Southwest Texas State's aquatic biology program, said he found endangered fountain darters in shallow water when the aquifer was at dangerously low levels in 1989 and 1990.

In the four-day trial, the Sierra Club hopes to show that overuse of the aquifer is drying the minnow-like fishes' habitat.

The club contends the Fish and Wildlife Service and Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan violated the Endangered Species Act by failing to set aquifer pumping limits.

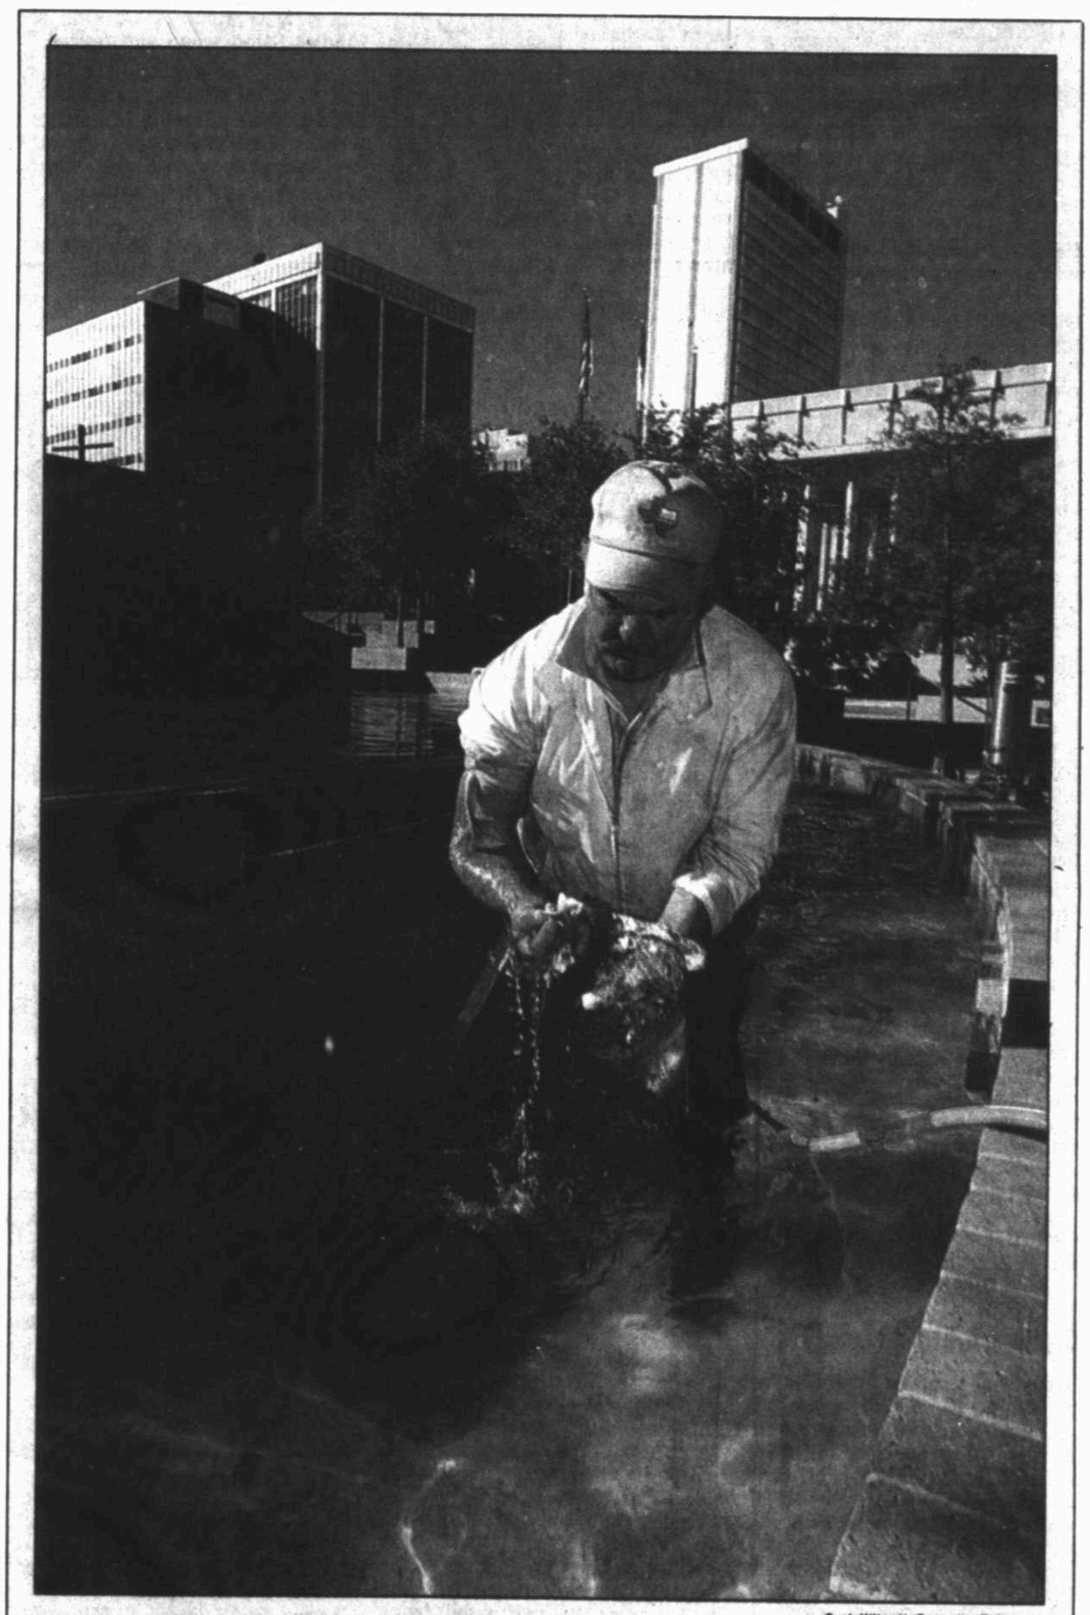

The Sierra Club also seeks to save a plant known as Texas wild rice; the San Marcos gambusia, a fish believed to only exist in the San Marcos springs; the Texas blind salamander; and the San Marcos salamander.

All the species are endangered, except the San Marcos salamander.

Plano consultant engineer Paul Thornhill also testified Monday the aquifer is now being pumped at a rate 2½ times more than during the 1950s drought, when the springs went dry.

A management plan by opponents of federal intervention recommends cutting pumping from 540,000 acre feet of water per year to 450,000 acre feet of water per year and eventually to 350,000 acre feet per year, said Thornhill.

But he said the springs will dry up — even at the reduced rates.

MC avoids use of its reserves

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Despite decreasing state funding, Midland College managed to leave reserves untouched.

Although the college expected to dip into $200,000 of its reserves in the past year, the budget was tightened and the college operated without it, according to auditors from Johnson Miller Co., who spoke at Tuesday's board meeting.

An auditor with the company also said the college's combined fund balance has increased from $30 million to $32 million.

Bob Phillips, MC vice president of business services, said the increase is not representative of an excess $2 million.

"The increase is misleading," he said. "Those funds which increased are restricted to certain items and do not represent our available funds."

Phillips said the most significant item in the auditor's report is the untouched reserves. "We did not use funds that were budgeted to come out of our reserves. We essentially broke even," he said.

An auditor also explained figures on the report resulting from grant changes. He said a work study student, who had computer access to the grade file, changed grades to receive an unauthorized Pell Grant.

"The student had access to the grade file," Phillips said. "Grades were changed to make that student eligible to receive a Pell Grant when the student didn't qualify (academically).

"We discovered it ourselves, before the funds were dispersed and the proper steps were taken to resolve it," Phillips said.

Trustees unanimously accepted the auditors' report before adjourning to meet in executive session.

In other information, MC President David E. Daniel announced the college's annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony is scheduled for Dec. 1. The event will include carillon music, the opening of the student art show, and a performance by the singers Vocal Point and the MC Community Band Concert.

Daniel said the MC cheerleaders will attend and refreshments will be served.

The president said the MC South Facility is up and running and the staff is conducting a survey to assess the academic needs of nearby residents.

Daniel also said plans are underway to organize an ex-students' association.

It was reported that the college raised almost $13,000 at its recent United Way fundraiser.

MC trustees, with the exception of absent trustee Jack Huff, were introduced to the college's basketball team that includes players from Texas, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Louisiana, Alabama, New York and Brazil.

Since the team has won six games this season, head basketball coach Steve Green said, "This is the crew that is better than six teams, that we know of."

Daniel announced that John Davidson, fire science instructor has resigned, effective Dec. 1.

"His career goal is to become a fire chief," Daniel said, noting that Davidson is moving to Florida.

Activist wants death for all drug smugglers

By Katherine Poteet

Walt Jackson is waging a one-man war against the nation's problem with drugs from a white bus that is his home.

"I bought the bus four years ago in order to let people know what's going on," said the 75-year-old activist. "I am hoping to make people wake up and realize what a problem drugs are. And, we know that drugs and violent crime are tied together. I'm just afraid that we're running out of time to really stop this problem."

The converted school bus has a bed, dresser, closet and a ham radio on the inside and the words "DEMAND: Death Penalty for Drug Smugglers," painted in blue down the side.

"I believe there should be a strong penalty — death — for drug smugglers," he said. "Or at least be sent to a prison for life. And, not just a cushy prison. I mean someplace they will have to work and not eat better than most decent folks."

He said he recommends rehabilitation for younger children who are into dealing drugs.

"Some kids, that's all they've learned growing up, selling drugs," he said. "If they are willing to try, I think they should be put into a rehabilitation situation."

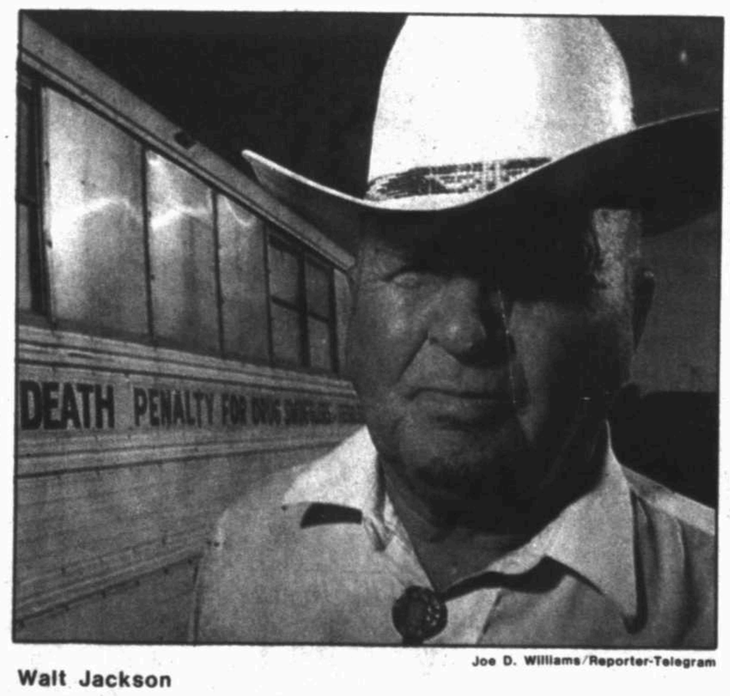

Jackson drives his bus all over Texas and has been to 22 states, and Washington D.C. He visits with the media in each town he comes to and answers questions from the curious. He is a frequent visitor to the parking lot at the State Capitol in Austin.

"I don't solicit any help," he said. "I pay all my own expenses."

Jackson also tries to spread his message through his ham radio.

"I have a generator to run it on," he said. "I call about a 40-50 miles radius each night until about 11:30 p.m. Then, I go to bed and get back up at 2 a.m. That's when I can call New York. I try to get into conversations with people, get them talking about this Report links five deaths to lack of prosecutions

Associated Press

WHARTON — Several people arrested but never prosecuted on drunken driving charges in Wharton County have been involved in accidents in which five people have died since May, The Victoria Advocate reported Tuesday.

The latest victim was Melissa Jeanne Chambers, 19, who died Sunday from injuries she suffered in a traffic accident at a highway intersection the previous day.

Ramiro Veliz Garcia, 33, of Wharton, the driver of the other car, has been charged with driving while intoxicated, involuntary manslaughter and failure to stop and render aid, authorities said.

Garcia has been arrested for suspicion of public intoxication three times and for suspicion of driving while intoxicated five times during the past 10 years, authorities said.

Garcia also has been linked to a Wharton County grand jury theft indictment against David Gaitan of Wharton, a former investigator for the county attorney's office.

The indictment is part of an ongoing 11-month investigation into alleged DWI ticket-fixing and public-official corruption.

In the indictment, Gaitan is accused of pocketing a $200 cash payment from Garcia on Dec. 8, 1989, about a month after Garcia was arrested for suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Court records indicate Garcia was not prosecuted in that case, nor for a sheriff's department arrest for suspicion of DWI on Aug. 19, 1990.

El Campo Police Chief Jim Elliott said Monday the circumstances which led to Ms. Chambers' death also were to blame for the deaths of four other people since May.

CARE: Officials hope to reduce health claims

(From 1B)

The third category will pay $100 to employees who have used three days or less of their accrued sick leave during a calendar year. The employee also must have worked full-time for the entire calendar year.

The overall cap on incentive pay is $500.

Last year the city paid $92,200 in wellness incentive pay.

But the city figures the benefits will easily make up for that expense.

"We provide these incentives because we look at it as a rebate for them since they pay a part of their insurance premium," Menchaca said.

Currently, employees pay 30 percent of their premium, with the city footing the remainder of the bill.

"We have a $75,000 employee-specific loss limit where we pay the claim until it reaches that limit," Menchaca said. "We have a reinsurer which covers anything over $75,000."

After the first year of the program, the city's health insurance expenses — including claims for all medical and dental care — dropped from $3.3 million to $2.8 million, a 14.5 percent reduction.

"It's not simply the short-term that we're looking at. Eventually there should be substantial returns for the long run," Menchaca said.

This year 530 people joined the wellness program, including 10 dependents, a decline from 546 total participants last year.

After the health assessment is made, employees receive an itemized lab report about their health. City management then receives overall data about the general health of all employees, which they compare with other cities.

"If there are any problems, such as heart problems or kidney problems, found from the results, we counsel the employees," Menchaca said. "The important thing is we're able to catch the problem while it's still small and without major surgery."

problem."

He is a registered voter in Fort Worth, the place he calls home and attends church, and has no family, which he says is a blessing.

"I don't have anyone worrying about me in case something happens," he said. "I have a will drawn up that the church will take care of if something does happen."

Although he has never been hurt, Jackson said his bus has been vandalized and he has been shot at numerous times. But, that doesn't matter to him.

"Everyone needs to know how serious things have become," he said. "I'll be driving my bus until I can't anymore. People need to be aware and try to do something about this nation's drug problem."

Lawmaker proposes handgun legislation

By Scott Rothschild
Associated Press Writer

Rep. Bill Carter said similar laws in other states have reduced the murder rate, and would not, as some critics have charged, lead to a "Wild West" mentality of hip-holstered gunslingers.

AUSTIN — A state lawmaker unveiled legislation Tuesday that would allow Texans to get a license to carry concealed handguns.

Rep. Bill Carter said similar laws in other states have reduced the murder rate, and would not, as some critics have charged, lead to a "Wild West" mentality of hip-holstered gunslingers.

Carter, R-Richland Hills, said his bill, filed for consideration next year, will put law-abiding citizens "on a level playing field with the criminal."

Although previous attempts to legalize hidden weapons have failed in the Legislature, Carter was confident his would pass because of growing concern about crime. "We know criminals prey on the weak," he said.

The proposal received strong support from House Speaker Gib Lewis, a former gun shop owner. "I think it will probably decrease crime," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said.

But some law enforcement officials and Gov. Ann Richards' office were cool to the idea. A handgun control group said Carter's measure was "flogwash."

Ron DeLord, president of the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, questioned the need for Texans to carry hidden guns when they already can have firearms at home, work, and in their vehicle without a permit.

DeLord said CLEAT will survey 100 police and sheriff departments to see whether the 12,500 member organization wants to support the legislation.

"To just tell the populace in general you can carry a gun because you want to, to me is an admission of anarchy, that we are unable to protect you anymore, so arm yourselves," DeLord said.

Richards press secretary Bill Cryer said, "If you have 10 people carrying handguns, you have 10 times the chance of those guns being used either accidentally or otherwise. That's just not a good deal."

Carter, chairman of the House Public Safety Committee, said he drew up the legislation after people testified that they wanted to be able to legally carry a concealed gun.

One of those who testified was Suzanne Gratia of Copperas Cove, whose parents were among the 23 people killed by George Hennard during the Oct. 16, 1991 mass shooting in the Luby's cafeteria in Killeen.

Ms. Gratia, who was eating lunch with her parents, said she would have had a chance at stopping Hennard had she had her gun in her purse.

Under Carter's proposal, a person who is at least 21 and passed a criminal and personal background check by the Texas Department of Public Safety could get a license to carry a concealed handgun for $150.

People convicted of a felony or Class A or B misdemeanor in the last 5 years could notYget a license, nor could anyone "chemically dependent or of unsound mind." In addition, license applicants would be required to take at least 15 hours of training.

Carter said a similar law significantly reduced the murder rate in Oregon. Murders dropped from 128 to 110 during the year that law took effect in Oregon, but then increased to 129 in 1991, according to statistics.

And before the law took effect in 1990, Oregon allowed concealed handguns, but sheriffs had broad discretion in issuing permits.

Carter also said the homicide rate dropped 6 percent in Florida after passage of a concealed gun law. But an official with Handgun Control Inc. said that Florida's overall violent crime rate, which includes murder, rape, robbery and assault, has increased 21 percent.

"It is a bunch of hogwash to suggest that passage of legislation that puts more guns on the street is going to reduce crime," said David Weaver, a spokesman for the Washington, D.C.-based Handgun Control.

But gun advocates jumped on board Carter's proposal, including 25 other legislators and Diane Lawson, a firearms instructor.

Ms. Lawson said more women want to carry guns because they feel more vulnerable in society. Ms. Lawson said she has started a group called Serious Women Against Assault Together.

Pipeline explosion injures two, evacuates 60 from homes

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Two men have been seriously injured and about 60 people evacuated from their homes following a pipeline explosion, officials said.

Officials said the explosion occurred Monday evening at a site where Tennessee Pipeline Construction Co. employees had been working on the Valero Gas Co. pipeline in the northwest portion of the city.

Tennessee and Valero officials said they did not know what caused the explosion, but Fire Chief J.J. Adame said a backhoe may have hit the gas line and ruptured it.

He said the cause of the fire most likely would not be determined until the fire was out. The fire had nearly burned itself out this morning.

Two Tennessee Pipeline employees injured in the explosion were listed in serious but stable condition today at Memorial Medical Center. They were transferred to the hospital's burn unit after they were taken to the emergency room at 6:10 p.m. Monday, said Gretchen Benkendorfer, a hospital spokeswoman.

Maurice Coates, 46, of Portland, suffered second-and third-degree burns over 45 percent of his body, she said.

Julio Martinez, 40, of Falfurrias suffered second-and third-degree burns over 50 percent of his body, Ms. Benkendorfer said.

Natural gas was shut off to the pipeline following the explosion in an attempt to let the gas burn off, but flames shot 50 feet into the air for more than three hours.

Officials evacuated 60 to 80 people from homes on Main Drive less than a mile from the explosion. The evacuation was a standard precaution, Adame said, because of the smoke, fumes and possible spreading flames.

The residents were later allowed to return to their homes if they had gas and electricity services.

Residents of about 28 houses closest to the fire were not allowed to return to their homes Monday night, Adame said.

Valero agreed to pay for overnight lodging at a motel for the residents, who were allowed to return today.

Official wants obscene performers to be banned from Texas Stadium

IRVING (AP) — Some entertainers, such as rockers Guns N' Roses, are actually smut peddlers who should not be allowed to perform at Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys football team, a council member said.

Morris Parrish wants to pull the welcome mat out from under bands whose performances he calls obscene. But his idea isn't winning much support.

"I do think Morris is kind of alone on this," said Mayor Pro Tem Harry Joe.

Trying to prevent obscenity at the city-owned structure is "an exercise in futility," said Mayor Roy Brown, who with stadium officials promised the concerts would continue.

Brown said he wants Texas Stadium Corp., which leases the structure, to make money. But Parrish has asked the council to pressure stadium officials to quit booking what he considers raunchy acts.

Songs packed with obscenity and descriptions of violence glorify criminal behavior, he says.

"My strong belief is there is a problem with child abuse and wife abuse in society," said Parrish. "A source of that may be the type of programs that's put out ... in the music industry."

But turning away just one band could make the stadium untouchable, said Bruce Hardy, vice president and general manager of Texas Stadium Corp.

"We are a sports facility and an entertainment facility," said Hardy. "We are not a censorship facility."

Last year, Irving passed an ordinance that prohibits youths under 15 from attending an obscene show, such as a concert or play, unless they are with a parent or guardian.

The ordinance defines "obscene" shows as those with references to sex that include violence and bestiality. Those who allow youngsters into obscene shows can be arrested.

Among those registering complaints after a Sept. 5 Guns N' Roses concert was Nancy O'Teter, chairwoman of the Youth Protection and Safety committee for the Irving school district.

She said she took photos of children as young as 10 entering the Texas Stadium turnstiles.

"There are a lot of other groups that are healthier for our city," said Ms. O'Teter. "We need to send out a message that we care about our kids and we do have high standards."

Congressman calls for possible strikes on Serbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. congressman returning from Macedonia and Croatia called Tuesday for selective air strikes against Serb forces if they continue their siege of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Rep. Frank McCloskey, D-Ind., in a statement released by his office, said he would press both the outgoing Bush administration and the incoming Clinton administration to "defeat and deter Serbian aggression" in neighboring states.

President-elect Clinton on Monday said he has several options, short of sending in troops, for dealing with violence in Bosnia and the threat to neighboring Kosova. He said he did not want to preclude any option before taking office Jan. 20.

McCloskey and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., had spent five days in Croatia and Macedonia. It was McCloskey's second trip to the shattered former Yugoslavia.

DeConcini is co-chairman of the Helsinki Commission, a U.S. government group that oversees U.S. participation in the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

In addition to possible air strikes, McCloskey called for a lifting of the U.N. arms embargo against Bosnia and Croatia, liberation of concentration camps in Bosnia, war crime trials for Serb leaders and closing of the U.S. Embassy in Belgrade.

Specifically, McCloskey urged the prosecution of Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic and his allies in Belgrade, Bosnia and Croatia.

"The Bush administration should implement a strong commitment to an American and Western policy generally of air power," said McCloskey, who was staying in Frankfurt, Germany, en route back to Washington.

"In effect, if the siege of Sarajevo and Bosnia goes on, selective air strikes must be used to make the Milosevic regime realize once and for all that the West does mean to stand up to this and that he will not get away with it," he said.

"Genocide is raging unchecked in Europe," he said. "Western policy based on negotiations, sanctions and peace keeping has failed. We need a more forceful and coherent strategy which confronts, instead of acquiesces, to Serbian aggression."

The congressman said hundreds of thousands of Bosnian civilians will die if Western policies "continue on their present track."

"Humanitarian relief is falling tragically short of the needs of the victims of Serbian aggression even as that aggression continues to create more victims," McCloskey said.

It's a bird, it's a plane, it's a corpse

SEATTLE — The meltdown of the Man of Steel?

Superman has been a defender of truth, justice and the American Way since 1938. It hardly seems possible he could die, but it's supposed to happen today.

The millions of dollars DC Comics continues to realize from its standard bearer also makes it seem highly improbable.

In the much-publicized Superman comic book that goes on sale today, America's first and most popular superhero is to expire at the hands of a supervillain appropriately named Doomsday.

However, Mike Carlin, the editor of "Superman" at DC Comics, deftly hedged his comments to The New York Times, indicating that the world of comic books is not bound by rigid laws of nature.

"We don't really know what death means to a Kryptonite," he said.

The invincible visitor from the planet Krypton undoubtedly will be back — just like Sherlock Holmes, Frankenstein and J.R. Ewing. The only question is how. The Times said DC's writers and artists are already hard at work on the solution.

Steve Sibra, owner of the Rocket Comics store in Seattle's Greenwood District, flatly calls Superman's death "nothing more than a marketing ploy. No one in comic books or soap operas stays dead."

In addition to dramatically increasing the sales of Superman comic books, Sibra believes it's an excuse to psychologically revamp Superman, "who has been a white-bread, goody-goody" tailored to the more naive and innocent "Leave It to Beaver" era of the '50s.

"The only ones who read Superman today are my age or older," said Sibra, 36. "Kids now are more interested in more realistic and intense superheroes. I expect Superman to return with a new attitude that will be harder, grittier and darker. In short, when Superman comes back, I think he'll be p—d."

He said most of his regular comic-book-reading customers are in favor of changing the character while some others "think it's stupid and Superman should be left alone."

Superman and Action comic books will continue to be published for as long as six months without the Man of Steel appearing in them, Sibra predicted, but he definitely won't disappear for as long as Marvel Girl, who once was killed off by Marvel Comics and not resurrected for seven years.

One famous superhero who did succumb permanently was the original Capt. Marvel, Superman's foremost comic book competitor in the '40s. However, Sibra noted that cancer took Capt. Marvel only after his popularity and sales potential had ebbed seriously.

"But DC Comics is not going to permanently kill off the goose that is still laying golden eggs, someone who has more name familiarity worldwide than anyone else except Mickey Mouse.

"The rumor is that there'll be an eight-part funeral story that will run in Superman and Action comic books over the next two months. The next four months after that are uncertain."

The only certainty is that today will bring a business bonanza for comic book sellers.

Most buyers realize, however, that this week's editions aren't likely to become unusually valuable if extra millions are printed and many thousands are saved.

Defense in police beating case wants trial moved

DETROIT (AP) — A lawyer for three of four police officers charged in the beating death of a motorist said a trial should be moved out of the city, where the mayor already has labeled the attack murder.

Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair has promised to fight any attempt to move the trial if there is one.

District Court Judge Willie Lipscomb Jr. will decide whether the officers will be tried after a hearing Dec. 14.

"My philosophy on this was formed long ago," O'Hair said after the officers' arraignment Monday. "It seems absolutely beyond belief that we could not find a jury that could not be fair and impartial."

Officers Larry Nevers and Walter Budzyn are charged with second-degree murder in the death of Malice Green. Green, 35, died of head injuries after being bludgeoned with at least one flashlight Nov. 5 on an inner-city street near a suspected drug house.

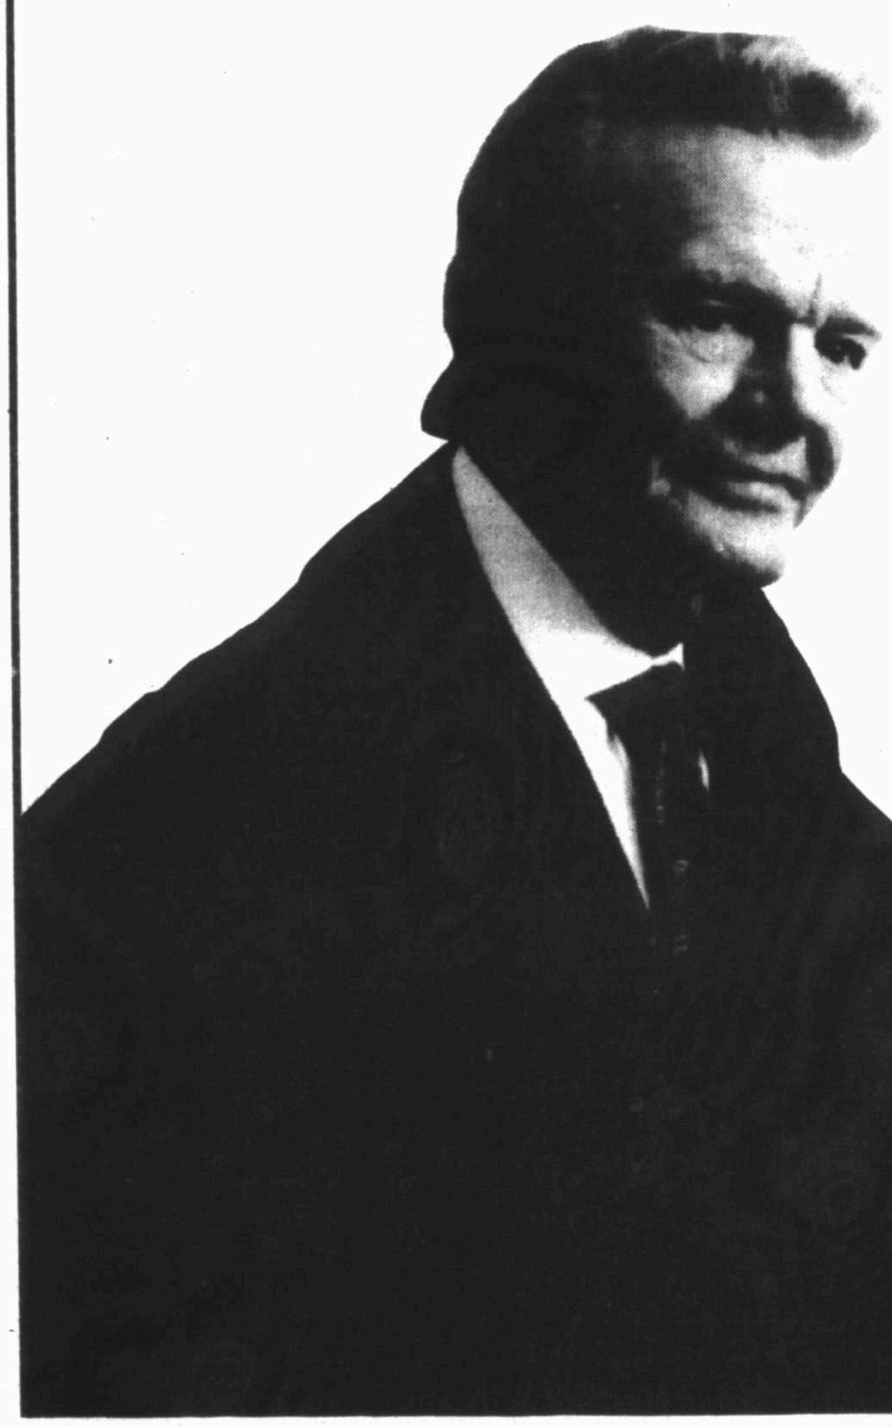

Sgt. Freddie Douglas was charged Monday with involuntary manslaughter and willful neglect of duty. Officer Robert Lessnau was charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

All four pleaded innocent and were released on personal bond. They have been suspended without pay pending the outcome of the criminal charges.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could be feeling unusually stirred up. Although a stormy, explosive mood can be a prescription for disaster, it need not be. Channel your energies into constructive outlets.

Count on them to do their best work alone or undercover! Solo pursuits, such as research, field work or writing, will suit them to a T. They will have many fleeting romances but only one true love. As parents, they steer a steady course.

Don't confuse the impossible with the improbable. Looking only at the North-South hands, it's hard to believe that declarer went down at a four-spade contract. But that's exactly what happened.

For those who play a two-over-one response creates a game force, a two-no-trump rebid by North would be adequate. That would make no difference to the final contract. South would rebid three spades and North would raise to game.

Declarer won the first trick in hand and banged out the ace of spades. When East showed out, declarer could not avoid losing three trump tricks in the fullness of time—down one.

In duplicate, that play would be correct, since it would fail only on those rare occasions when trumps split 4-0, and would produce a valuable overtrick whenever a defender has a singleton honor. At rubber bridge, declarer should have resorted to a safety play to guarantee no more than two losers in the trump suit.

After winning the diamond lead in the closed hand, South should fire out a low trump toward the ten. If West follows low, declarer inserts the ten and, whether it wins or loses, the defenders will score only two trump tricks. As the cards lie, West must go up with an honor. Upon regaining the lead, declarer can then play the ten of spades, and the defenders again get only two tricks. Should West show out on the first spade, dummy's ten forces an honor from East. Declarer returns to the table and takes the marked finesse against the remaining spade honor. Proper management of the trump suit is sure to deliver the goods.

Guthrie cancels benefit at Alice's Restaurant

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. — Arlo Guthrie wanted to hold a Thanksgiving fund-raising dinner, but he found out you can't get everything you want at Alice's restaurant.

Guthrie, 44, canceled the dinner, which also would have marked the 25th anniversary of his anti-war ballad "Alice's Restaurant."

Guthrie

The song's namesake, Alice Brock, planned to cook dinner Saturday at the former church where she once lived. It now houses Guthrie's offices and the Guthrie Center, a charitable organization.

He hoped to attract 50 people to the $1,000-a-plate dinner to benefit the center. His secretary, Sharon Palma, said Tuesday that not enough people bought tickets to make it worthwhile.

Guthrie has been at odds with some neighbors since he bought the old church earlier this year and announced he wanted to establish programs there for AIDS sufferers and others in need.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Vince Gill, Wynonna Judd and Kenny Rogers will perform for a televised special that commemorates the 35th anniversary of the Country Music Association.

"A Country Music Celebration" will be taped at the Grand Ole Opry House on Jan. 13 for future broadcast on CBS, the music association said Tuesday. No broadcast date has been announced.

Additional performers will be announced.

Gill is the music association's male vocalist of the year. Judd's "No One Else on Earth" has been No. 1 on the country charts this month. Rogers' hits include "The Gambler" and "Lucille."

MANILA, Philippines — A Filipino broadcaster challenged American "shock jock" Howard Stern Tuesday to a duel over alleged anti-Filipino remarks Stern made in September.

Rene Santa Cruz made the challenge over radio station DZXL. His employer, Radio Mindanao Network, agreed to pay his expenses to the duel site.

The Filipino-American Citizens group is suing Stern for $65 million in a New York court, claiming Stern insulted "the entire Filipino race" with his alleged remarks.

"I think they eat their young over there" Stern allegedly said, according to court documents. "The Philippines is a country where fathers sell their daughters for sex."

Santa Cruz said he would face Stern "any time, any place," in any type of duel.

LOS ANGELES — Roseanne and Tom Arnold got breakfast in bed Tuesday, served by a pajama-clad television reporter who joined the couple beneath satin sheets.

As "KTLA Morning News" cameras rolled, reporter Sam Rubin interviewed Roseanne, who wore a leopard-print robe, and Tom, who wore a red tank top exposing multiple tattoos.

As they sipped mineral water, Rubin asked Roseanne to describe her typical morning: "I get up about 8:30 and leave at 9. He takes three hours to get ready, I take 20 minutes."

The stunt gave the couple a chance to promote Tom's new series "The Jackie Thomas Show," which debuts in two weeks.

HELSINKI, Finland — Brigitte Bardot, a former French film star turned animal rights activist, has joined a group that wants to halt hunting of endangered bears, wolves and lynx in Finland.

Paivi Viinikainen-Rosqvist, director of Animalia, the Finnish Federation for the Protection of Animals, said Tuesday that Bardot's support "shows that this is a global question and not just of domestic interest."

Bardot

Legislators plan to discuss a hunting bill next week. Finnish hunters are allowed to kill an unlimited number of the animals, classified as endangered by the Environment Ministry, during hunting season.

The government estimates 500 bears, 100 wolves and 700 lynx remain in Finnish forests.

LONDON — A London newspaper agreed Tuesday to pay Arnold Schwarzenegger libel damages for a front-page article titled "Arnie Gay Snaps Shocker."

The Sunday Mirror told the High Court it accepted there was no truth in its June 17, 1990 allegations.

Martin Cruddace, the newspaper's lawyer, said his clients "deeply regret the damage and distress their article and the publication of the photographs has caused to Mr. Schwarzenegger and welcome this opportunity sincerely to apologize to him."

The two photos published by the Sunday Mirror were taken in a gym shower room in 1973 for Schwarzenegger's book "Pumping Iron," but weren't included in the book, Schwarzenegger's lawyer, Nicholas Armstrong said.

The newspaper agreed to pay Schwarzenegger damages and legal costs. The amount was not made public.

Researchers: Asthma increases among white children in 1980's

■ More nation news/3D

CHICAGO (AP) — A nearly 35 percent rise in childhood asthma during the 1980s resulted entirely from increases among whites, though black children are still more likely to suffer from the illness, researchers say.

The reason for the increases among white children is a mystery, the researchers said in their report in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

They speculated that some types of asthma, such as that triggered by exercise, are getting more attention among pediatricians, and that white children are more likely to get treated and diagnosed by pediatricians.

Or, white children may be getting exposed to some irritant at higher rates than blacks, said the researchers, led by Dr. Michael Weitzman of the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry in New York.

However, the severity of asthma among most children is decreasing, the researchers also said, after analyzing federal data from 17,110 households in 1988, the latest year of the National Health Interview Survey. The data were compared with similar information collected in the survey from 15,224 households in 1981.

Thirty percent fewer asthmatic children were hospitalized with asthma during the year before the 1988 survey than during the year before the 1981 survey, the researchers said. That was true even though the total number of children hospitalized over the interval rose 14 percent, they said.

Other researchers who analyzed the same data reported earlier this month that asthma afflicted 2.7 million children in 1988, causing 10.1 million missed days of school and 200,000 hospitalizations annually. That report, published in the journal Pediatrics, said 4.3 percent of children had asthma in 1988, up from 3.2 percent in 1981.

Weitzman's team said whites under 18 were asthmatic at a rate of 4.1 percent in 1988, compared with 2.7 percent in 1981.

Among black children, 5.1 percent suffered asthma in 1988 and 5.3 percent in 1981, they said. The slight decline in rates among blacks was statistically insignificant, meaning it could be due to chance, they said.

Hispanic children had an asthma rate of 3.5 percent in 1988, compared with 2.8 percent in 1981, also an insignificant difference, the researchers said.

The Pediatrics report, led by Dr. William R. Taylor of the national Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said almost 8 percent of black children with asthma were unable to go to school or play normally with other children, five times the proportion of white asthmatic children unable to perform those types of activities.

Taylor said Tuesday that the new report "raises a lot of questions," in particular, how the rate of asthma among black children could stay almost the same while it rose so rapidly among white children. He said more study is needed.

AIDS patients more likely to die in hospitals treating fewer of them

CHICAGO (AP) — Patients with AIDS are more than twice as likely to die while being treated in hospitals having little experience with the disease as in those having a lot, a new study has found.

"It may be because of differences in quality of care," said researchers led by Dr. Valerie E. Stone of Boston University School of Medicine.

The study of 300 AIDS patients at 40 Massachusetts hospitals parallels findings of studies in California, New York and elsewhere.

The study, published in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association, supported previous suggestions that regional networks specializing in acquired immune deficiency syndrome might improve care, prolonging the lives of those with the fatal disease.

A researcher who did not participate in the study cautioned against approaches that would overburden city hospitals with AIDS patients, as is the case in New York City.

In addition, people with AIDS need their regular family doctor, said Dr. Sheldon Greenfield, senior scientist at the Health Institute of New England Medical Center in Boston.

The answer may lie in improving AIDS education for doctors or making available consultants to give them the latest information on treatments, Greenfield said.

Gay airman sues USAF for reinstatement

PHOENIX (AP) — An airman who was discharged after disclosing his homosexuality sued for reinstatement Tuesday, saying he is encouraged by the success of a lawsuit filed by a gay Navy officer.

Former Staff Sgt. Thomas Paniccia, 28, filed the lawsuit in federal court, challenging the constitutionality of the Pentagon ban on homosexuals and requesting an order returning him to his job while the case is resolved.

Earlier this month, a federal judge in California reinstated Petty Officer Keith Meinhold to his post at Moffett Naval Air Station in Mountain View, Calif., while he wages a similar challenge.

Both men disclosed their homosexuality on national television.

The military has banned homosexuals for a half-century, contending they could undermine discipline and morale. The ban has led to the dismissal of about 1,500 military personnel a year.

Although President-elect Bill Clinton has pledged to lift the ban on homosexuals, Paniccia said that could take time.

"It's important to keep the pressure on and show how unfair it is. I've got an exemplary record like many in my position," he said.

Air Force spokesman Maj. Bob Potter said the military doesn't usually comment on any case pending litigation.

Paniccia announced his homosexuality in July, after 11 years in the military. He coordinated training programs at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson before receiving an honorable discharge in October.

"Part of my motivation of coming out of the closet was to provide public education and awareness for all gays and lesbians," Panaccia said. "I don't want to have them endure the same kind of pain. It's ridiculous."

Paniccia said he is worried his skills are becoming rusty.

"I could lose my livelihood," he said. "It could also jeopardize my ability to become an officer."

Under Air Force rules, Paniccia must apply for Officer Training School before his 30th birthday, a goal he said he was actively pursuing.

Draft ends in swapfest

■ The Marlins and Rockies combine for seven trades following baseball's seven-hour expansion draft.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Colorado Rockies and Florida Marlins began the expansion draft Tuesday going in different directions, but ended the same way — with a torrent of trades that saw Walt Weiss, Danny Jackson and Jody Reed find new teams.

Seven trades were announced immediately after the seven-hour draft. The biggest deal did not involve an expansion team, as Seattle sent disappointing slugger Kevin Mitchell to Cincinnati for reliever Norm Charlton.

Bryan Harvey, Charlie Hayes and Jack Armstrong were among the most prominent players who were picked and stayed put. Lee Smith, Danny Tartabull, Shawon Dunston and Jose Lind, all available and all mentioned in possible trade talks, were not selected.

Instead, Florida focused on minor leaguers from the start while Colorado concentrated on lower-priced veterans.

When it was over, Rockies manager Don Baylor instantly announced his starting lineup for next April. The team includes Alex Cole, Jerald Clark and Dante Bichette in the outfield and a battery of No. 1 pick David Nied pitching and Joe Girardi catching.

"We went after the guys we wanted right away," Baylor said.

The Marlins, meanwhile, stayed away from current big leaguers until the middle round of the three-round draft. Overall, 20 of Florida's 36 picks have played in the majors, while 25 of Colorado's picks have made it.

"We're thrilled with the way everything fit," Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski said. "We're in a position where we feel we'll be able to sign free-agent players at the major league level who will help our ballclub."

Both clubs boosted their rosters with trades, which could not be announced until after the draft was done.

The Marlins made four deals in which they:

Topless golf

AUSTIN — Residents of a Round Rock suburb have launched a second series of complaints about topless women being permitted on a golf course owned by the city during tournaments sponsored by Austin nightclubs.

Bill Robertson, president of the Oak Bluff Neighborhood Council, said Monday that his first official complaint about topless women on the Forest Creek Golf Course was soon after the course opened in 1990.

"I called the city and complained about it and they said it wouldn't happen again, and yet it did," said Robertson.

"The city, allowing topless participation on a golf course next to our neighborhood, doesn't depict itself as responsible government," said Robertson. Oak Bluff Estates residents are fighting annexation into the city.

The managers of Sugar's Uptown Cabaret, and The Red Rose and Yellow Rose, said they have held several tournaments at Round Rock. Topless dancers employed at the clubs work for tips driving golf carts and serving food and drinks.

Texas hazing

AUSTIN — Texas men's swimming coach Eddie Resse says he believes his athletes didn't knowingly violate the state anti-hazing law when they participated in a team initiation last week.

University police last week responded to complaints about loud noises on the fourth floor of the building where many UT athletes reside.

Police found several freshmen swimmers wearing diapers. They were smeared with peanut butter and flour and were quietly facing a wall. In a nearby student lounge, police found condoms, an ice chest, bananas, water guns and a bucket of goldfish.

No arrests were made and no injuries were reported. UT police were considering whether to turn the matter over to the district attorney, because hazing is a violation of state law.

Reese will not know until Thursday whether his team, ranked No. 2 in the country, will be hit with possible suspensions.

Reese said the dean's office had interviewed everyone involved with the team except for himself and his assistant, Kris Kubik.

"We'll have to wait and see what they come up with," Reese said Monday.

Past SWC rivals hold Oiler reins

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers quarterbacking duties are in the hands of a couple of guys named Cody and Bucky.

It appears that Cody Carlson, who will start in place of injured Warren Moon, and Bucky Richardson, who will come off the scout team to back him up, will be more compatible as pros than they were in college.

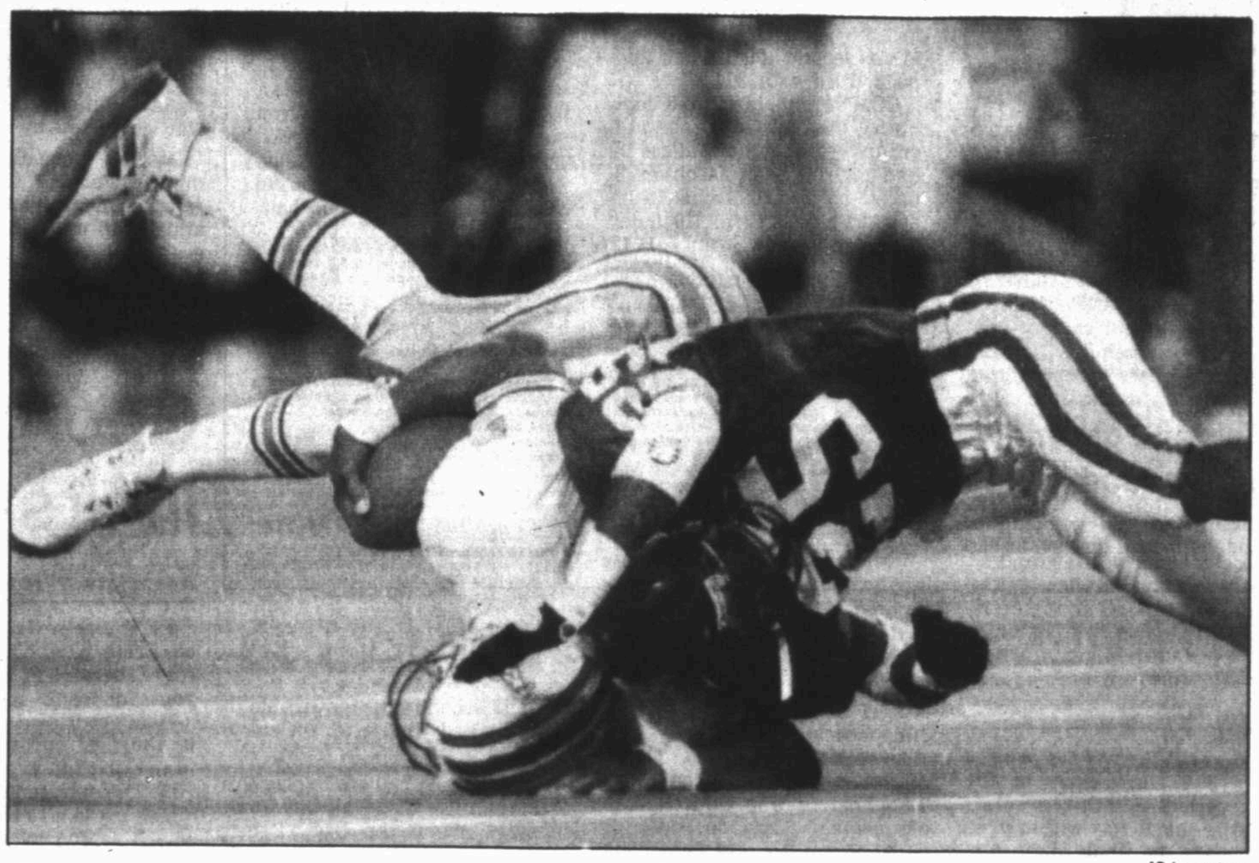

Carlson played at Baylor and Richardson for the Texas Aggies. Although the two played college ball at different times, they have maintained their collegiate rivalry as pros.

"He's pretty smart for an Aggie," said Carlson.

To which Richardson responded: "I guess that's a compliment."

But when the lockerroom banter ends and the Oilers resume workouts Wednesday for Sunday's game at Miami, it will be calm and serious as the former Southwest Conference stars try to keep the Oilers afloat.

Lady Rebels hit Wall in opener

By Bill Price
Staff writer

It was obvious Tuesday night that this ship called the high school girls basketball season had just weighed anchor.

And while Class 2A Wall was able to get its sea legs in the second half of both teams' opener at Midland Lee, the Lady Rebels were still a little wobbly.

After Lee and the Lady Hawks both displayed typical first-game sloppiness in the first half, it was Wall that cleaned up its act in the final two periods to pull away for a 50-42 victory.

The Lady Hawks closed the game shooting just 29 percent from the field and committing 23 turnovers. While Lee (0-1) bested them in field goal shooting (36 percent), 33 turnovers proved to be its undoing.

"Turnovers were our primary problem, and that's probably because we have so much inexperience at the varsity level (eight of 11 Lee players saw their first varsity game)," said Lee head coach Elise Kail. "We were anticipating passing the ball before we even had caught the pass coming to us."

Those problems were coupled with early foul trouble for Lady Rebel posts Tekeira Strambler and Krissy Woodard, serving up a third quarter that enabled

Inspired Chaps entertain Cisco

■ Midland College looks to improve its start to 7-0.

Maybe Steve Green should change his title from Coach to Sergeant.

In MC's 119-80 win over Grayson County Monday night, the Chaps showed that early morning practice sessions can be a source of high inspiration. Who knows, maybe push ups and 20-mile hikes are next.

Whether or not the Chaps' newfound motivation will carry over to tonight's game with Cisco (7:30 p.m. tip-off at Chaparral Center) has yet to be seen, but Cisco looks to be a team that the Chaps will need to be prepared for both mentally and physically.

"It (the early practice) was definitely a turning point as far as the Grayson game," Green said. "Whether it will be against Cisco, who knows. It best be."

Cisco appears to be a regional force, and an offensive threat along the same lines as Ranger. Monday night in

Beals will sell used Baja truck, cheap

Man has traversed the Baja California peninsula over questioned trails since before the Spanish explorers and missionaries happened upon the land more than 450 years ago. It's still a dream trip for the adventurer with a few triumphs and a lot of failures.

Williamson

The challenge in the modern era, of course, is the famous Baja 1,000, which is the oldest and best known off-road race in the world. The Midland Beal brothers (Kelly, Carty and Spencer) have been bitten by the race — and the course.

The three-driver team didn't make the tape this year as their truck blew a head gasket after 890 miles, just 148 miles from the finish line and some 28 hours and 20 minutes into the race. Spencer says, "We will return!" — and one wonders why. Just take a look at the problems that arise in such a race.

Kelly, who broke a collar bone on Aug. 1, drew the starting nod for the first third of the Baja leg as 331 entries started at 30 second intervals from Ensenada, Mex., on Thursday, Nov. 12. It didn't take long for troubles to plague the Midland team.

In the first 50 miles Kelly experienced a blown power steering hose; motor, valve and engine problems; a tire change and bent rim; and an engine fire. It was considered a "good start."

In addition, Kelly witnessed numerous tragedies, including a 4-wheel drive truck missing a turn and landing on top of an upside down Baja Buggy in a ravine. As the race went on, two drivers would lose their lives. The Baja isn't a Sunday drive.

Kelly handed the truck over to Carty (two broken ribs in July) at mile marker 330.9 at the El Crucero check point at 12:30 a.m. It was now Friday the 13th. Carty experienced power steering problems, electrical problems, lost reverse, had starter problems and nearly flipped the truck twice. That was a clean run, so to speak. Carty didn't get out of the truck for 12 hours.

Carty turned the truck over to Spencer (separated shoulder surgery in August) at mile marker 756.6 at the San Javier check point.

"I had to drive 16 hours just to get to where my leg would start," Spencer noted. "The Baja isn't the vacation paradise of the universe."

And when Spencer did get the truck from brother Carty, he had no communications, no reverse or park, no starter and limited power steering. Heck'va deal by Baja 1,000 standards.

But the blown head gasket with only 148 miles to go was a crowning blow. The Baja had won this one. In fact, the Baja wins a lot. Only 38 percent of the 331 entries finished. It was still Friday the 13th.

"Getting so close and not finishing was like being hit by a hammer on the thumb. We're still numb," Spencer said.

Numb or not, the Beals will get to see the sights of the Baja again when ESPN televises the highlights of the race at 8 p.m., Monday, Nov. 30.

This was the second Baja experience for Spencer, who placed fifth a year ago with nephew Barry Beal Jr., of Denver.

It seems to me, however, that the Beals are carrying this brotherhood thing to extremes. Just how much bonding does a family really need?

There is one fact I do know. Don't let the Beals ever sell you a used truck.

NCAA comes down on Tulsa

Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. — Tulsa, a small school with a squeaky-clean image, was put on three years' probation by the NCAA on Tuesday for violations in the track and field program.

Tulsa has to forfeit its NCAA women's golf championship won in 1988, and sanctions also keep the basketball team and every other sport out of postseason play this year. But the track program that broke the rules was spared any other penalty.

Robert Donaldson, president of the private school of 4,500 students, called that an "unfathomable twist of logic" and scoffed at the NCAA's claim that Tulsa got off easier than it could have.

"While we have acknowledged wrongdoing in our track program, we believe that the penalties are grossly disproportionate to the finding," Donaldson said. He said the university would consider an appeal.

The violations occurred during three straight seasons beginning in 1987-88. The NCAA said Tulsa track coaches allowed ineligible players to compete, encouraged players to use false names and lied about the number of participants who competed in meets.

Coaches allegedly scoured dormitories looking for students to compete in track meets, and asked athletes to use one name for one event and another name for a different event.

For track teams to meet Division I-A requirements, they must have at least 14 athletes compete in at least six meets. For a school to maintain Division I-A status, it must sponsor seven men's sports and seven women's sports.

The NCAA said other athletic programs at Tulsa must suffer because the school could not have maintained Division I-A status if it had not cheated to keep the track program eligible.

Tulsa becomes the third Oklahoma university placed on probation since 1988, when Oklahoma's football team got three years' probation. Oklahoma State's football team was put on four years' probation a month later, and its wrestling team was given three years' probation two weeks ago.

"It's a little harsh," Lisa Del Prete, a senior on Tulsa's golf team, said of the Tulsa penalty. "OU and OSU were caught cheating with boosters, but none of their other teams were kept from postseason competition. It's out of control."

The one-year ban on postseason play won't affect the football team, which is 4-6 and not headed for a bowl. But the Golden Hurricane's basketball team had high hopes of winning the Missouri Valley Conference and getting a NCAA tournament bid, or at least a bid to the National Invitation Tournament.

"We're on the verge of turning basketball around here and they take that away from us," said Jeff Malham, a senior forward. "I'm frustrated and upset. I had no idea it would be something this harsh."

The men's and women's golf teams have a history of making the NCAA field, although the sanctions won't keep golfers from qualifying as individuals.

Basketball coach Tubby Smith and all other coaches and administrators were advised by the university's lawyer not to comment until Tulsa decides its next step.

The track team got off clean, except for not being able to compete in postseason championships. The NCAA said minimum sanctions would have eliminated expense-paid recruiting visits for a year, kept coaches from recruiting off-campus for a year and demanded the university punish the coaches.

But it opted against those sanctions, saying Tulsa fired the track coaching staff last year and was making great strides under new coach Bob Symon.

Yvonne Slatton, a member of the NCAA Committee on Infractions, said it did not want to slow Tulsa's progress in track by crippling the program with sanctions.

Hugh Pierce was hired in 1989 to replace Dave Kraus as coach of track and cross country. Pierce was reassigned as equipment manager in 1991 for the last three months of his contract.

In an interview with The Tulsa Tribune last year, Pierce admitted he turned in forms to make it look like Tulsa was fulfilling NCAA standards of having 14 athletes at a meet.

Kraus and Pierce said they had a small budget with which to work.

"I had sorority girls and fraternity boys running," Kraus said last year. "I'd get guys to bring their girlfriends to the meets. I'd go try to get football players out of bed in the morning, and they'd tell me to get lost. It was a joke."

LADY REBS: Mills' 10 points high for Lee

(From 1C)

Wall to take a 36-27 lead early in the fourth period.

Lee was able to stay within striking distance the whole game, falling behind by more than 10 points only once. But in the final four minutes Wall milked the clock and converted five of six free throws down the stretch.

"In the first half we weren't keeping them off the boards and we weren't executing our half-court offense or our half-court defense," said Wall head coach Jerry Chitsey.

In the second half, Lady Hawk post Paige Dierschler scored eight of her 12 points, six in the final quarter. Kim Kretschner also scored 12 points for Wall, while Julie Ethridge added nine.

Lee's top scorer was Tanisha Mills with 10 points. Woodard, a 6-2 sophomore who controlled the offensive boards, scored eight while Strambler and Susan Seay tossed in seven apiece.

"Krissy's 6-2 presence was known, she just doesn't know how to handle the post play at the varsity level yet," Kail said. "T. Mills did a great job rebounding, though she had an off game because she's been sick a week and a half.

"Susan Seay also did a good job at point guard because we just moved her there. Just mental mistakes, that was our big problem."

In junior varsity play, Lee's Deborah York nailed two free throws with 17 second left in overtime to give the Lady Rebs a 32-30 victory.

Lee's varsity returns to play this Friday in the Girls Tall City Tournament, when the Lady Rebels play El Paso Jefferson at 6 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

George Mason up against UTEP in first round of preseason NIT

Associated Press

EL PASO — George Mason coach Ernie Nestor says he's ready for a barometer reading of his youthful team.

He'll get it. George Mason plays its toughest opponent this season in the first round of the preseason NIT. The opponent: Texas-El Paso, which made it to the NCAA Sweet 16 last season by surprising Kansas, the nation's No. 2 team at the time.

"We have seven kids who weren't on our team last year on it this year, two were sitting out and we have five freshmen," the Fairfax, Va., coach said.

One of the seven, Jemel Buck, sat out all season because of vascular problems. An eighth player, Derek Shackelford, was struck with a virus after 16 games and forced to drop out of school.

"This is a real good barometer for us, to get a good idea of just where we are. It's going to be a real challenge for our young people to just see how they respond to this situation," Nestor said. "We're going to jump right in the water and go at it with some young kids who a year ago were practicing for their high school season."

UTEP also is down some experience. The team lost three starters to graduation, guard Prince Stewart, big man Marlon Maxey and hot-shot blocker David Van Dyke.

But the Miners have a full crew of veterans in speedy point guard Eddie Rivera, forward Johnny "Smooth" Melvin, Gym Bice, Ralph Davis and Roy Howard. Also returning are John Portis, Jeff Deal and Darryl Christopher, who was a leading scorer in UTEP's 82-70 defeat of Germany-Bamberg in a Monday night exhibition game.

Holiday Bowl will take MSU-Illinois winner

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The Holiday Bowl agreed Tuesday to invite the winner of Saturday's Michigan State-Illinois game and release Iowa from a potential obligation to play in the Dec. 30 game at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium.

Under terms of its agreement with the Big Ten Conference, the Holiday Bowl had earlier committed to take the third-best team in the final conference standings. That would be Michigan State if it defeats Illinois, or Iowa if it defeats Minnesota and Michigan State loses. Illinois would get the bid if it won and Iowa lost.

Iowa requested the release in order to negotiate a guaranteed spot in a bowl regardless of the Michigan State-Illinois outcome. The Hawkeyes secured an invitation to the Copper Bowl, provided they beat Minnesota.

Michigan State is 5-5 going into Saturday's game at Illinois (5-4-1).

Michigan (8-0-2) has clinched a berth in the Rose Bowl.

Texas A&M landed one of the state's top basketball players Tuesday when Jimmy Smith of Victoria inked a national letter-of-intent with the Aggies.

Smith, a 6-foot guard, is the second player to sign with A&M basketball coach Tony Barone during the early one-week signing period, which ends Wednesday. The Aggies earlier signed Anthony Burks, a 5-10 guard from Fort Worth Dunbar.

Smith averaged 15 points, 7 assists and 6 steals in leading the Victoria Stingarees to a 31-6 record last season and was named the most valuable player in the Class 5A state tournament, where his team lost in the finals to Longview in overtime. USA Today named him the Texas high school player of the year.

He is the son of Victoria High School basketball coach Mike Smith.

Texas Tech coach James Dickey landed his second signee — Bernard Lloyd, a 6-9, 250-pound center from Howard County. Lloyd is averaging 15 points and 8 rebounds for the Hawks, whose 5-0 start this season left them ranked No. 8 among the nation's junior colleges.

Lloyd is Tech's second signee of the early signing period. Darvin Ham, a 6-7 forward from Otero, Colo., Junior College signed previously.

Southwest Texas State signed Eric Moore, a 6-8 sophomore forward from Seminole, Okla., Junior College.

Houston led a signing parade in women's basketball. The Lady Cougars signed four players, including Patricia Luckey, a 6-1 post and high school All-American who led San Marcos to the Class 5A state championship last season.

Luckey averaged 19.3 points and 13.2 rebounds and hit the game-winning shot in San Marcos' championship victory over Duncanville.

Also signing with Houston were Nater Dunn, a 5-9 guard from Marion; Shauna Tubbs, a 6-2 post from Trinity Valley Community College; and Niki Washington, a 5-11 all-state guard from Sanford, Fla.

Dunn led Marion to a 35-3 record and the Class 2A state finals last year. Tubbs was the only junior college player named to the 1992 USA Junior National Team and represented the United States in August at the Junior World Championships in Mexico City. Washington averaged 15.3 points and 7.1 assists while leading her team to a 22-6 record and the state semifinals.

Texas Christian signed Christa Curtis, a 6-2 post-forward from Albuquerque. She averaged 12.2 points and 6.5 rebounds last season for Albuquerque Eldorado, which won the New Mexico state championship with a 26-0 record.

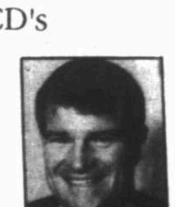

Rice signed the 1992 New Mexico girls' basketball player of the year in 5-9 small forward-off guard Lisa Escobedo of Albuquerque. She helped lead Albuquerque El Dorado to the state championship two of the last three years and has lost only one game in her three years in high school.

DALLAS (AP) — Here are previews of this weekend's Southwest Conference football games:

TEXAS (6-3, 4-1 SWC) at BAYLOR (5-5, 3-3 SWC), 12:00 p.m. (CST), Raycom regional telecast — Texas and Baylor have topped the 60 mark in series meetings as the Longhorns prevail 57-20-4 in all contests and 46-20-4 in 70 previous SWC encounters with the Bears. UT's John Mackovic is 50-39-1 (eighth year) overall, 6-3 (first season) at Texas, 4-1 in SWC clashes, and 0-0 vs. the Bears. BU's Grant Teaff is 168-151-6 (30th year) overall, 132-105-6 (21st season) with the Bears, 82-74-4 in SWC outings, and 9-11 against the 'Horns. Teaff has been associated with almost half the Baylor wins (nine of 20) by Bears' teams against Texas since the squads first played in 1901. Mackovic now has guided his last five teams at Illinois or Texas to six wins or more and seeks to place his fifth consecutive unit into a postseason game. Improved defenses and controlled passing offenses are the hallmark of the two competing squadrons. Texas has used the strikes of QB Peter Gardere to a basically-young receiving corps and some timely runs to steer its path while the Bears have a similarly-smooth operator in QB J.J. Joe behind a bruising offensive line and a defense which has been effective in the last several tilts with UT. The Bears are ranked seventh nationally in rushing offense. Gardere winds down his career as a a 7,000-yard man in total offense (7,067, third in SWC history) and passing (7,077 yards, fourth in SWC annals) with 538-of-956 aerial artistry for 56.3 percent accuracy. RBs Adrian Walker (113 tries, 737 yards) and Phil Brown (57 carries, 294 yards) have been steady. DE Bo Robinson (19 career sacks, three fumble recoveries) has been a major defensive influence. Bears' QB Joe averages 9.8 yards per attempt and 21 yards per completion. He's third nationally in passing efficiency and posts 81-of-174 passing numbers for 1,705 yards and 13 TDs. WRs Melvin Bonner (SWC-best 21.3 yards per catch for receivers with 30 or more snares) and Reggie Miller (24 grabs, 476 yards) are top receivers.

NAVY (1-8) at RICE (5-4, 4-2 SWC), 1 p.m. (CST) — The U.S. Naval Academy is no stranger to SWC opposition; SWC teams lead the Midshipmen 10-2, and Rice has a 2-1 advantage over Navy. Navy's George Chaump is 63-57-2 (11th year) overall, 5-26 (third campaign) in Annapolis and 0-0 against the Owls. RU's Fred Goldsmith is 18-32-1 (fifth year) overall, 16-25-1 (fourth season) with the Owls and meets Navy for the first time. The Owls' coach has the best chance at guiding Rice to a winning mark since Jess Neely's 1963 club closed 6-4. Both equipped with scrappy defenses and imaginative offenses, the Midshipmen and Owls like to establish field position and keep opponents out of the end zone. After being blanked in its first three games, Navy has stood toe-to-toe with some probable bowl teams. The Owls have a strong stake for the future in their final home contest. Do-it-all RB Trevor Cobb needs 286 yards in his last two games to become the SWC's all-time rushing leader. He enters the tilt with 4,727 yards (11th-most in NCAA history) after establishing conference marks for carries (1,038) and all-purpose yards (6,288). The All-America performer is backed by QB Bert Emanuel (560 net yards rushing, 1,053 passing yards) and FS Nathan Bennett (76 tackles) on the defensive side. WR Jimmy Lee had five clutch catches for 76 yards against Baylor to advance to 16 grabs for 300 yards on the year. Navy DB Chad Chatlos is among the nation's top pass interception men with four pickoffs while QB Jason Von Matre has rushed for a team-best 466 yards. WR Mike Jefferson has a team-leading 23 catches for 298 yards and three TDs.

HOUSTON (3-6, 1-4 SWC) at TEXAS TECH (4-6, 3-3 SWC), 2 p.m. (CST) — The Cougars and Red Raiders began their association before each joined the SWC. Their series dates back to 6-0 triumph by UH in 1951, and the Cougars have maintained that lead with a 17-6-1 mark over Tech. UH's John Jenkins is 17-14 (third year, all with the Cougars) overall, 11-10 in SWC battles and 1-1 vs. the Red Raiders. Tech's Spike Dykes is 34-32-1 (seventh year, all with Tech) overall, 23-20-1 in SWC encounters and 1-3-1 against the Cougars. There's no reason to expect anything other than a rip-roaring scoring skirmish Saturday in Lubbock. Houston has averaged 44.6 points per game over a five-year, run-and-shoot reign on offense while the Red Raiders have some of the SWC's best quick-striking capabilities. A position to watch is linebacker where the Cougars have some of their top defensive strength and where injuries have hampered Tech. Houston sports two of the SWC's all-time leading receivers in Freddie Gilbert (NCAA receptions' leader in 1991 with 106, 151 grabs for 14th all-time in SWC annals) and Tracy Good (138 career grabs, 18th on SWC books). LBs Ryan McCoy and Eric Blount have a composite 171 stops this year. Texas Tech uses WR Lloyd Hill (school-records with 74 catches for 1,193 yards) to provide ample firepower while RB Byron 'Bam' Morris hopes to regain some of his early-year ferocity after rushing for 199 yards on 24 carries against TCU last week. Hill is fourth in SWC season history in receiving yards and 12th in yearly catches. Tech QB Jason Clemmons (81-of-156 for 979 yards since spelling the injured Robert Hall) has a tough challenge to overcome in UH CB Stephen Harris (six interceptions).

SMU (4-6, 2-5 SWC) vs. ARKANSAS (2-6-1) at Little Rock, 2 p.m. (CST) — SMU becomes the first SWC team to tangle with the Razorbacks in nonconference activity. SMU and UA have been in the SWC arena. Arkansas leads the series 33-27-5 since its origination in 1920. SMU's Tom Rossley is 4-16 (second year, both in Mustang Land) overall, 2-13 in SWC jousts and 0-1 against the Razorbacks. Arkansas' interim head coach Joe Kines is 2-5-1 (first year) overall and faces the Mustangs for the first time as UA's chieftan. Each team would like nothing better than to place its signature on the year with a clutch intersectional win. SMU already has upended SWC foes TCU and Houston to stop a 25-game conference victory drought while the Razorbacks upset Tennessee 25-24 in Knoxville, Tenn. SMU R-back Jason Wolf adds to his SWC career pass receiving record (221 catches) every time he makes a grab. He also ranks 16th in all-time receiving yards with 2,077 while helping the Mustangs achieve their highest point total, 188, since the 1990 team notched 197 markers. WR Korey Beard is 10th in SWC career catches with 157 and 23rd in receiving yards at 1,888. The return of LB Bill Kiely (60 total tackles in SMU's first five games) helps the defense. Kiely, out for four contests with a broken leg, has aided the Mustangs' cause in holding five opponents to 20 points or less for the first time since 1985. Razorbacks' freshman QB Barry Lunney has come on to hit 61-of-135 passes for 723 yards while punter Pete Raether has been battling with Texas A&M's David Davis for Top-Seven-nationally status with a 45.0 average.

TCU (2-7-1, 1-5 SWC) at TEXAS A&M (10-0, 5-0 SWC), 2:30 p.m. (CST), ABC regional telecast — Starting in 1897, this rivalry has been contested on an almost annual basis and enters its 88th renewal. The Aggies have a 51-29-7 all-time lead, and a 34-28-6 edge in SWC games. TCU mentor Pat Sullivan is 2-7-1 (first year as head coach) overall, 1-5 SWC and 0-0 vs. the Aggies. A&M's R.C. Slocum is 37-9-1 (fourth year, all with the Aggies) overall, 24-4-1 in SWC contests, and 3-0 against the Frogs. TCU has proven to be one of the SWC's top pass-rushing defenses with 33 QB sacks in 10 games. Texas A&M is blessed with similar defensive quickness as evidenced by 41 tackles for loss on the year. The Aggies have a decided weight advantage up front, but TCU has used finesse to move the football against larger squads. A&M has maintained ample ball control with its solid rushing attack, ranked 20th nationally. TCU defensive backs have been among the SWC's most solid in '92. FS-CB Tony Rand has 101 tackles, 11 pass deflections, and a 58-yard interception return to ice the win over Texas. RB Curtis Modkins enters his final contest as the SWC's 12th all-time rushing attempts' leader with 642 and 25th in conference career rushing with 2,733 yards (No. 3 in Frogs' annals). LB Brad Smith prepares for his last TCU tilt with 361 tackles, No. 8 on the team's career ladder. Aggies' LBs Jason Atkinson (78 stops) and Marcus Buckley (272 career tackles, nine fumble recoveries, 26 QB sacks) lead a strong defense. CB Aaron Glenn tops A&M with five pass pilfers and 12 deflections. Freshman QB Corey Pullig is 31-of-41 passing for 400 yards in his last two contests.

DRAFT: Reimer winds up with Milwaukee Brewers land, back to the Athletics for shortstop Weiss and a player to be named.

(From 1C)

— Traded Jackson, taken from Pittsburgh, to Philadelphia for 21-year-old pitchers Joel Adamson and Matt Whisenant. Jackson, who also pitched for Pittsburgh, went to his fourth team this year.

— Traded pitcher Greg Hibbard, selected from the Chicago White Sox, to the Chicago Cubs for shortstop Alex Arias and third baseman Gary Scott.

— Traded pitcher Tom Edens, taken from Minnesota, to Houston for pitchers Hector Carrasco and Brian Griffiths.

The Rockies didn't miss out on the frenzy, either, as they:

— Traded second baseman Reed, drafted from Boston, to Los Angeles for pitcher Rudy Seanez.

— Traded outfielder Kevin Reimer, taken from Texas, to Milwaukee for Bichette.

The Mariners and Reds, meanwhile, completed the trade of Mitchell for Charlton. Mitchell led the majors with 109 homers from 1989-91 for San Francisco, but hit just nine last season for Seattle.

"We did not want to give up a bat like Kevin Mitchell, but we felt we had to strengthen our pitching," Mariners general manager Woody Woodward said.

As expected, Nied was the top pick in the draft. He was Atlanta's best pitching prospect, but the Braves left him off their 15-man protected list and the Rockies took him. Toronto outfield prospect Nigel Wilson was taken next by the Marlins.

It figured that the two best teams in 1992 would be tapped to start stocking the National League clubs that might be the worst in 1993.

After that, it was clear which way the Marlins and Rockies were going in the first round of baseball's first draft since Toronto and Seattle picked 16 years ago.

Colorado looked to the present and Florida looked at the future. They did agree on two things, however — both teams avoided high-priced talent, and both went after pitching, taking a total of 41 hurlers.

The Rockies, wanting power hitters to play at Mile High Stadium and experienced pitchers to keep the ball in the park, loaded up right away. Colorado's first 11 picks had all played in the majors, and those taken in the first round had combined to play in 2,794 major league games.

The average age of the Rockies' first-rounders for opening day 1993 was 26.7, and only five of the players would've been 25 and under by then.

"Just throw a lot of sinkers and keep the ball down," advised Holmes, who pitched for Milwaukee's Triple-A Denver team last season.

Of Florida's 13 picks in the opening round, only six had been in the majors, combining for 622 games. They took 10 players who would've been 25 and under by next April, for an average age of 24.6 on opening day.

The only odd name in the Marlins' lot was Harvey, who led the American League with 46 saves in 1991, but missed most of the last year with an elbow injury. The California Angels owed him $11.25 million for the next three years.

"I'm just going down there and if I get a chance to save some games, I'm going to do my best job," Harvey said.

Harvey was picked on the advice of Marlins pitching coach Marcel Lachemann, who held the same job last season for the Angels. Lachemann's brother, Rene, in Florida's manager.

"In talking to our doctor, we are not 100 percent sure that Bryan is OK," Angels general manager Whitey Herzog said.

Harvey, 29, was the oldest player taken in the first round. Later, Florida took Edens from Minnesota and Jim Corsi, also 31, from Oakland. The Marlins also grabbed another familiar name in Junior Felix from California.

CHAPS: Rodriques set for surgery

(From 1C)

Cisco, the Wranglers fell to Odessa College, 91-89, despite leading OC by 20 points in the first half. Sophomores Corey Grays (27 points) and Michael Scott (23) combined for 50 points.

"I hear they're small and quick, and spread the floor, and try to one-on-one you, " Green said of Cisco. "They're similar to the style Ranger played.

"You always have respect for your next opponent, and Cisco has the right game plan to attack us. They try to break you down and go right through you. Our strength is defense against a patterned offense. A free-lance offense we have a little more trouble with because it's less structured."

Through six games, the Chaps are averaging 105.8 points per game, while the defense is allowing only 79.8 ppg.

Sophomore Demeitreus Drew is leading the team both in scoring (24.5 ppg) and rebounding (10.0 rpg). Three other Chaps — Kirk Ford (18.5 ppg), Terrance Rone (13.8) and Steve Walston (10.5) — are averaging in double figures in scoring.

At 6-0, the Chaps' record may be perfect, but the team isn't just yet.

"I hope not," Green said. "You always hope there's room for improvement. Right now, we're not good enough to beat everybody in the conference or in the country. If we're playing flawless right now, then we can't get as good as we want to be."

On the injury front, sophomore forward Ari Rodriques, who damaged ligaments in his knee last week against Pima, will have arthroscopic surgery during the Christmas break. His playing time until then will be limited. Sophomore Kelon Haynie, who was expected to return this week, will likely be out the rest of November, and possibly until the spring semester, because of a slow recovery after re-aggravating a knee injury in the first game of the season.

Johnson leads Hornets over Mavs

Associated Press

NBA

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Former Odessa College star Larry Johnson scored 21 points, leading six Charlotte Hornets in double figures in a 134-111 rout of the Dallas Mavericks Tuesday night.

Despite the easy victory, the Hornets lost starting forward Johnny Newman for five to six weeks when he fractured a bone in his left hand in the first quarter. He entered the game as the Hornets' second-leading scorer with a 20.5 average.

Dell Curry scored 19 points and Kendall Gill 18 for Charlotte. Rookie Alonzo Mourning had his best game in three outings with 15 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots.

Doug Smith paced the Mavericks, who have one victory in five games, with 17 points.

Any hopes of a Dallas comeback were squashed in the third quarter.

Rockets 116, Kings 109

HOUSTON — Hakeem Olajuwon had 34 points, 10 rebounds and seven blocked shots as Houston dropped Sacramento Kings.

Olajuwon scored 15 points in the first quarter and 12 in the fourth period, when Houston's 20-point lead fell to 106-100 on Randy Brown's layup with 4:31 left.

But Olajuwon scored eight straight points, defusing the rally and allowing Houston to survive Sacramento's 9-2 run at the end of the games.

Rookie Robert Horry had 23 points and four of Houston's 14 blocked shots. Kenny Smith had 16 assists, one shy of his career high.

Sacramento was paced by center Duane Causwell with 20 points and nine rebounds, and Lionel Simmons with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Jim Les had 14 points, including 4-for-5 shooting from behind the 3-point line.

Spurs 106, Cavaliers 95

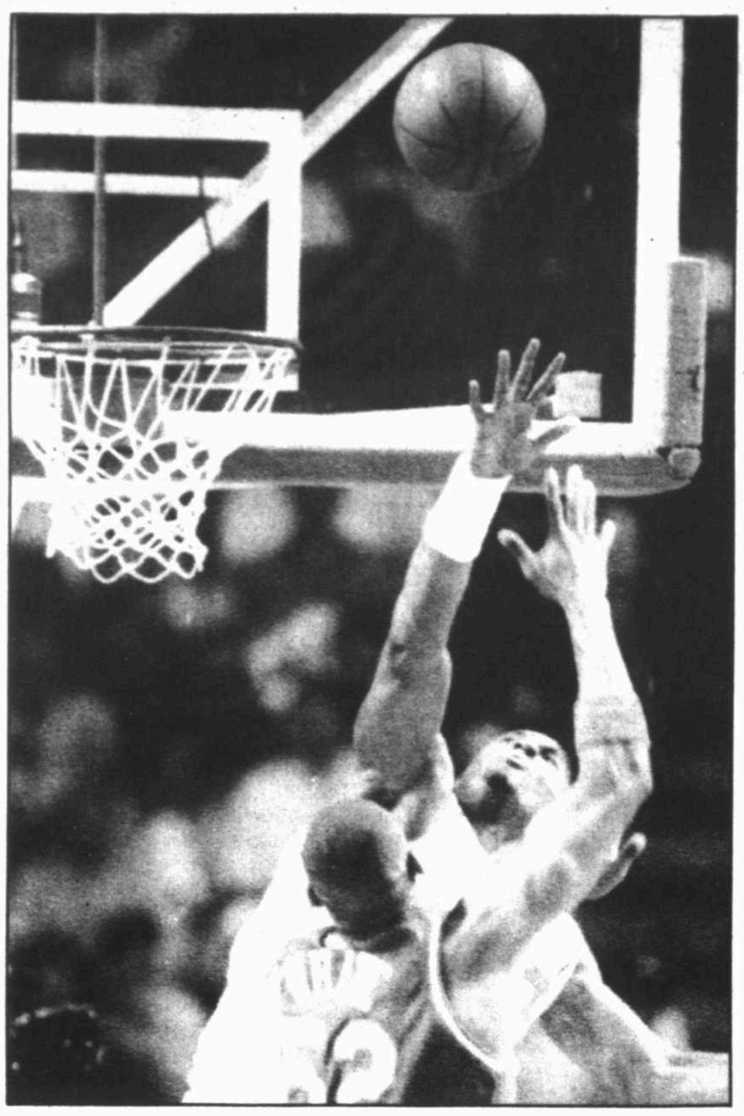

SAN ANTONIO — Dale Ellis scored 20 points and David Robinson and Lloyd Daniels each had 19 as San Antonio averted its worst start ever by defeating Cleveland.

The victory gave the Spurs a 2-4 record. No San Antonio NBA team has ever started 1-5.

Larry Nance led the Cavaliers, losers of three straight games, with 22 points and Danny Ferry scored 15. Sean Elliott scored 17 points for the Spurs.

San Antonio used a 13-4 run in the fourth quarter to take a 91-78 lead with 6:30 to go.

The Cavaliers closed to 98-90 with 1:18 remaining after an 8-0 run, but two free throws each from Elliott and Sidney Green put the game out of reach, 102-90 at the 34-second mark.

Bullets 101, Celtics 97

LANDOVER, Md. — Harvey Grant matched his career high with 34 points, and the Washington Bullets fended off a late rally by struggling Boston.

Reggie Lewis and Xavier McDaniel each scored 17 points for the Celtics, whose 2-5 start is the worst since going 1-6 at the outset of the 1978-79 season — the year before Larry Bird joined the team.

The Celtics trailed 88-82 with 7:18 left, but Kevin McHale hit a hook in the lane to start a 6-0 run that tied it. The Bullets led 90-89 when Grant hit a running jumper in the lane, but Lewis and McHale scored to give Boston a 93-92 advantage with 2:03 to go.

Bulls 124, Timberwolves 103

MINNEAPOLIS — Michael Jordan scored 32 points, Horace Grant added 24 and Scottie Pippen had 12 assists — all in the first three quarters — carrying the Chicago Bulls to their fifth consecutive victory.

It was the second straight blowout win for the two-time defending NBA champions, whose first four victories were by a combined 17 points.

Chuck Person had 26 points and 12 rebounds for the Timberwolves, now 0-7 against Chicago since joining the league in 1989-90. Christian Laettner, Minnesota's No. 1 draft choice, sprained the middle finger of his right hand early in the third period but returned and finished with 17 points.

Jordan has led the Bulls in scoring in each of their seven games. Grant, who made 10 of 12 shots, came within four of his career scoring high.

Jazz 108, Nets 97

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Karl Malone had 29 points and 16 rebounds as the Utah Jazz took command early in the second half on the way to a victory over New Jersey.

The win was Utah's 10th in a row over the Nets. It was also the Jazz's third road win this year without a loss, the best road start the team has ever had.

Utah reeled off the first nine points of the second half, including four by Ty Corbin and three by Malone, to open a 64-49 lead.

After Nets baskets by Drazen Petrovic and Rafael Addison, the Jazz spurted for 10 of the next 14 points, including four by Karl Malone, to open a commanding 74-57 lead with 3:56 to play.

Sparked by two 3-pointers by Petrovic, the Nets outscored Utah 12-2 to open the fourth period. But with Karl Malone scoring 10 points and John Stockton eight over the final 12 minutes, the Jazz hung on for the victory.

Pacers 128, Nuggets 98

INDIANAPOLIS — Rik Smits enjoyed another big game against the Denver Nuggets, scoring 27 points in 23 minutes as Indiana rolled to its fourth straight win.

The Pacers have won the last seven meetings between the two teams in a span covering four seasons.

The Nuggets have lost five straight games, four of them on the road.

Smits, the Pacers' 7-foot-4 center, has had the top three scoring games of his career against the Nuggets — 34, 32 and 31 points.

Warriors 125, Heat 119

MIAMI — Tim Hardaway scored 10 of his 26 points in the final three minutes as the Golden State Warriors snapped a four-game losing streak.

With the score tied 108-108, Hardaway rebounded Rony Seikaly's miss, drove the length of the court and hit a layup, making it 110-108 with three minutes to play.

On the next two Heat possessions, Hardaway gathered up loose balls after Miami shots were blocked.

Bucks 114, Hawks 106

ATLANTA — Frank Brickowski scored 10 of his 22 points in the final six minutes, lifting the Milwaukee Bucks over Atlanta.

Eric Murdock added 22 points and Alvin Robertson had 20 as the Bucks won for the third time in four road games and for the fifth time in seven games overall this season. Last season, Milwaukee was 6-35 on the road and 31-51 overall.

SuperSonics 100, Knicks 90

SEATTLE — Derrick McKey scored eight points in the last six minutes and Eddie Johnson came off the bench to score 28 points, leading Seattle over the New York Knicks.

Leading 73-72 with 9:30 left in the game, the Sonics took charge with a 17-7 run capped by Shawn Kemp's dunk that made it 90-79 with 2:12 left.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 25 points and 14 rebounds.

Rahal Driver of the Year again

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Rahal, the IndyCar PPG Cup champion, was the winner in fourth-quarter balloting for the Driver of the Year award, joining NASCAR Winston Cup stars Bill Elliott and Davey Allison and fellow open-wheel star Emerson Fittipaldi as 1992 quarterly winners.

Rahal, the 1986 Driver of the Year, drew six of the 12 first-place ballots in voting Tuesday by a panel of motorsports writer and broadcasters. He earned 78 points. Alan Kulwicki, who won the Winston Cup championship, came in second in the fourth-quarter voting with two first-place votes and 59 points.

IndyCar star Michael Andretti, who was the 1991 Driver of the Year, was next with 29 points, followed by NHRA top fuel champion Joe Amato with 26.

Also receiving votes were Allison, 20; drag racer Cruz Pedregon, 18; stock car driver Geoff Bodine, 16; IMSA Camel GTP champion Juan Fangio II, 12; sprint car champion Steve Kinser, 10; drag racer Warren Johnson, 5, and stock car driver Kyle Petty, 2.

The 1992 Driver of the Year will be named next week.

Prices slump

NEW YORK — Oil futures prices finished lower Tuesday in light trading, retreating after a rally the previous session.

A sell-off in energy futures products pulled crude oil prices lower, traders said. There was no news from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries before the powerful group's meeting next week.

Trading was uneventful ahead of the weekly American Petroleum Institute supply data, which were released after the market closed.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in December settled at $20.26 per barrel, down 11 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange, after a 29-cent gain on Monday.

After the close, the API reported lower supplies of crude oil, continuing recent declines.

Crude stocks fell 6.90 million barrels in the latest week to 319.98 million barrels. Distillates, including heating oil, rose 2.72 million barrels to 138.42 million barrels and gasoline stocks 539,000 barrels to 207.81 million barrels.

Phone device

To Miss Manners, also known as Judith Martin, call waiting is "incredibly rude." To Letitia Baldridge, another etiquette expert, it is "an instrument of the Devil."

But to David H. Schmidt, budding entrepreneur, it can be a polite way of easing out of a phone call that has dragged on for too long.

Call waiting is an electronic service that tells the person on the other end of the phone that someone else is trying to get through.

Schmidt, 30, has invented a fake call-waiting system that gets talkative friends and family, and buttonholing telemarketers, to hang up.

Schmidt's simple electronic device, Gotta Go, sells for $14.95 and simulates the brief interruption and click of the call-waiting signal.

Dollar mixed

At closing in New York, the dollar was quoted at 124.35 yen, down from 124.70 yen on Monday.

In New York it cost $1.5220 to buy one pound, less expensive than Monday's $1.5245.

Stocks retreat

NEW YORK — Stock prices relinquished more ground Tuesday when a selloff among secondary issues pressured the rest of the market lower.

Officials question FDIC's action

■ Banking regulators, lawmaker urge agency to revise its interpretation of a state law affecting First City Bancorporation of Texas.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal banking regulators' handling of the collapse of a large chain of Texas banks could set a bad precedent for state-chartered banks in many states, congressional and industry officials said Tuesday.

Texas banking regulators and House Banking Commission Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez are calling on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to revise its interpretation of a state law affecting First City Bancorporation of Texas.

Failure to do so could make banks reluctant to lend federal funds to state-chartered banking institutions in Texas and some 20 other states that have depositor preference laws, Gonzalez and others contend.

Houston-based First City, which had assets of $8.8 billion, was seized Oct. 30 by the FDIC after regulators determined it was insolvent.

The controversy surrounds the FDIC's plan to treat First City's seven state-chartered branches differently than the 13 federally-chartered bank units when it comes to the federal funds market.

Banks participating in the Federal Reserve system are required to keep a certain percentage of deposits daily on reserve with the Fed. Banks that have less than the necessary amount in reserve borrow funds from those with surpluses.

What the FDIC is doing in the First City case is treating sellers of federal funds to the state- and nationally-chartered banks differently.

Sellers of federal funds to First City's national branches have been granted depositor status, which entitles them to recoup between 80 percent and 100 percent of their money. Sellers to the state branches, however, are being treated as unsecured creditors — meaning they could end up losing their total investment.

"The effect of this treatment differential is going to place state-chartered institutions at a disadvantage," said Diane Casey, executive director of the Independent Bankers Association of America.

"People would be more reluctant in terms of selling federal funds to state institutions."

Banks that lent federal funds to First City's state-chartered branches could lose up to $650,000, Ms. Casey estimated.

"The point is that this is detrimental to the whole banking system," said a House Banking Committee staffer, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"You've reduced the value of a state charter because anyone who sells federal funds to a state-chartered bank is going to risk losing their money in a state with a depositor preference law."

The Texas depositor preference law governs distribution of assets in cases of bank failures, putting depositors at the top of the list. The FDIC interpreted that statute as giving sellers of federal funds a lower priority than depositors.

But state banking officials and Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, contend the Texas Constitution says state and national banks must be treated equally.

In separate letters Nov. 6 to FDIC acting chairman Andrew Hove, Gonzalez and Texas Banking Commissioner Catherine A. Ghiglieri called on the agency to reverse its ruling.

The FDIC had no immediate comment on the First City case. But the House banking aide said the agency has told the committee that it would review its interpretation of the Texas statute.

Ms. Ghiglieri has requested an opinion from the Texas Attorney General's office on how the state's depositor preference statute should be applied.

"The FDIC has said it will give weight to the state attorney general's opinion of how to interpret that law," the House staffer said.

Group to ticket cars with low gas mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists hoping to spread guilt among drivers of cars that get low gas mileage said Tuesday they would begin to slap "gas guzzler violation" tickets on windshields nationwide.

The coalition of environmental and consumer groups also plans to air on radio stations a public service announcement that features "slurping noises" and "painful coughing" while a voice tells about the harms of "very thirsty gas guzzlers."

The message is intended to step up pressure on President-elect Clinton, who said he supports higher standards for corporate average fuel economy (CAFE), but has stopped short of making any promises.

"We consider CAFE a litmus test of the environmental concerns of the incoming administration," said Jeremy Rifkin, president of the Greenhouse Crisis Foundation. "Nothing is more important. It is critical."

David Cohen, a director of the Advocacy Institute, said Clinton should administratively increase CAFE standards rather than wait for Congress to act.

The current federal fuel efficiency standard is 27.5 miles per gallon for each automaker's fleet average. Environmentalists are pushing for 40 mpg or higher.

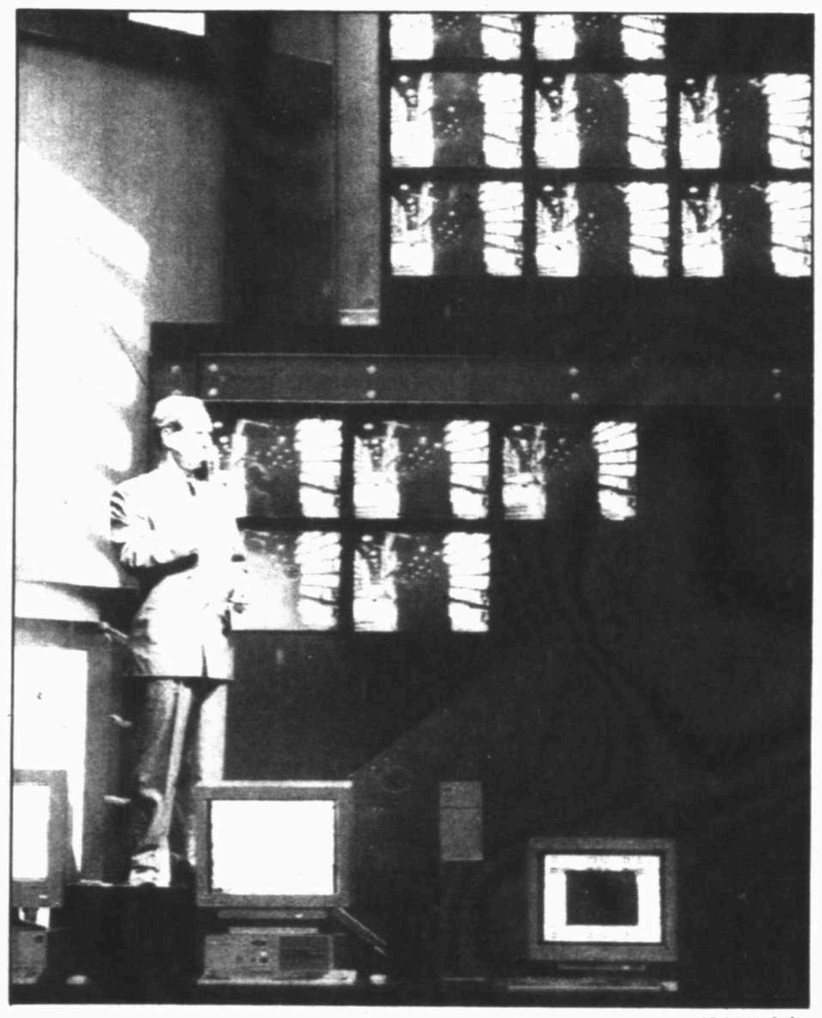

The auto industry says that level can't be achieved without significant sacrifices in safety and appeal for car buyers. They note, too, that the most fuel-efficient cars on the market are among the worst sellers.

The organizations launching the gas guzzler campaign say they aren't trying to get rid of any particular kind of vehicle, but instead want drivers to choose the most fuel efficient vehicles in the class they feel comfortable with, said Clarence Ditlow, executive director of the Center for Auto Safety.

"When someone drives a gas guzzling automobile, it's not just a matter of their personal choice in vehicles," Rifkin said. "The automobile they purchase affects the lives of others, it affects our environment, it affects the right of future generations to enjoy this planet."

He acknowledged that using high school and college students in cities nationwide to issue 1 million tickets before 1994 could prompt anger or even violence among car owners.

"We fully expect the Ticket America campaign to be very controversial," said Rifkin. "We will not shy away from direct confrontation in the streets. It will be legal. . . . I think that a lot of people are going to be upset when their car is ticketed."

Continental hopes judge approves plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines' chief executive said Tuesday he hopes a federal judge will quickly approve the carrier's proposed reorganization plan, which is based on a $450 million cash infusion from Air Canada and other investors.

"Continental has overcome significant obstacles to reach this point in our restructuring," said Robert Ferguson, the carrier's chief executive. "We look forward to the court's timely approval of the plan."

The plan would pay many unsecured creditors pennies on the dollar, but give most secured debt holders nearly everything they are owed.

Secured creditors with smaller claims would get travel vouchers for a 50 percent discount on Continental tickets. Common stockholder would receive nothing.

The Houston carrier, which has been in bankruptcy court for nearly two years, submitted the plan to a Delaware court late Monday afternoon.

A hearing has been scheduled for Jan. 8 during which U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Helen Balick is to decide whether to approve the plan and let Continental emerge from bankruptcy court.

The plan said that unsecured creditors with claims against Continental would get about 4.8 cents on the dollar; those with claims against its parent, Continental Airlines Holdings Inc., would get about 5.8 cents; those with claims against the commuter system will receive about 5.6 cents; and those with claims against the reservation system will get about 36.1 cents.

However, they could get more since the reorganized company will issue common stock and warrants for general unsecured creditors.

The plan also said that Continental will emerge with less debt because the debt will be converted into shares.

Under the plan, the commuter airline business will emerge as a wholly owned subsidiary, Continental Express Inc., and will be operated by commuter debtors.

System One Corp., the reservation division, also will be a wholly owned subsidiary run by System One debtors.

The reorganized Continental also will transfer its Air Micronesia assets into a subsidiary that will be an independently certificated airline called Continental Micronesia Inc. Continental will own 91 percent of it.

The plan said that as of March 31, 1993, if the plan and $450 million financing deal are approved, Continental expects to have total assets of $4.6 billion.

Johnson benches Holt in aftermath of loss to Rams

Associated Press

IRVING — Coach Jimmy Johnson reacted to the Los Angles Rams loss Tuesday by promoting rookie Kevin Smith, the Dallas Cowboys top draft pick, to starting left cornerback over Issiac Holt.

"Kevin has been practicing well and warrants a start the way he has performed," Johnson said. "Kevin gives us several things. He is a tight coverage man on man-to-man coverage. We like what we've seen."

Holt was beaten several times in Sunday's 27-23 loss to the Rams which dropped Dallas to an 8-2 record.

Smith, an All-America from Texas A&M, played in the second quarter against the Rams and Johnson feels he's acquired enough experience to be the starter.

"When we drafted Kevin we felt he would be a starter but there was a glitch when he was injured in training camp," Johnson said. "He deserves to be thrown into the starting lineup."

Johnson said he realized that Smith might have some hard times as a starter.

"When we put Larry Brown into the lineup he struggled at first and so did Russell Maryland," Johnson said. "Kevin has played some and I believe his experience level will make it less of a problem than we had with Brown and Maryland."

Johnson said Holt will still play on nickel pass-defense packages.

"We feel like Ike will approach it in a positive way," Johnson said. "Jim Jeffcoat hasn't been a starter and has been very productive with his sacks this year coming off the bench. Ike has played well and done some good things. This is not a negative on Ike Holt."

In another move, Johnson placed defensive end Tony Hill on injured reserve with a hamstring problem.

"We hope to get him back at the end of the year," Johnson said.

The mood at Valley Ranch was gloomy as the Cowboys sought to deal with a loss to the 14-point underdog Rams.

Dallas plays at Phoenix on Sunday. The Cardinals defeated the Rams two weeks ago but the Cowboys are still a nine-point favorite.

"I feel we'll bounce back," Johnson said. "We've got to understand that this will happen on occasion to a young team not playing as well as it's capable of."

Johnson warned that the Cardinals "are just as dangerous" as the Rams.

"They beat the Rams two weeks ago and defeated San Francisco three weeks ago," Johnson said.

Dallas defeated Phoenix 31-20 in the third week of the season.

Young peaking over shadow of Montana

N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Young has gone through a private hell trying to measure up to Joe Montana but has emerged a better man and a better quarterback because of it, according 49ers center Jesse Sapolu.

One of the things Young learned in his struggle to escape Montana's long shadow is that quarterbacks don't win games by themselves, Sapolu said. That realization — along with the team's 8-2 record — has dissolved whatever friction existed between Young and his teammates a year ago.

"He's gone through some emotional adversity — mainly because he's followed The Man. And if you asked me a year ago, I'd think it would kill him," Sapolu said.

"But this is a year later. He's accepted the fact that he can no longer compare himself to Joe Montana because nobody will ever be Joe Montana.

"He's come out of it and he's come out of it as a stronger and better person. And because of it, he's been able to play his own game."

Sapolu, who has been a 49er longer than any other active player, says the team feels Young has grown into the position — even if Montana is slowly working himself back into the quarterback picture.

"Last year (Young) tried to win the games by himself because he had so much pressure from following in Joe Montana's footsteps," Sapolu said.

"I'm sure he looked back on it and he has learned from it. This (offensive) line is behind him all the way. He believes he's good enough to take us to the Super Bowl. And we believe that, too."

It has been a remarkable season for Young. He is the NFL's top-rated quarterback running the league's best offense. More importantly, he has led the 49ers to three come-from-behind, fourth-quarter wins, including last Sunday's 21-20 win over the New Orleans Saints.

Young insists that, while the results may be different, he's not playing much better this season than last. His skeptics, he said, were mostly members of the media, who pointed out that before this season Young lacked Montana's fourth-quarter magic.

But Young had doubters on the 49ers, too, including offensive linemen who didn't know whether to pass block or run block for him and receivers who missed Montana's touch passes.

Sapolu, the anchor of an offensive line that may be the best in the league right now, centered for Montana in 1989 and 1990 and is in his second season in front of Young. He understands some of the pressure Young feels.

"Joe Montana would do it the way nobody else would do it," Sapolu said. "The other team would get a touchdown and 30 seconds later Joe would come back and boom, boom, boom — very smoothly."

Cowboy fans put Phoenix within reach of 3rd sellout

Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — An avalanche of ticket requests from Dallas Cowboys fans has put the Phoenix Cardinals within reach of their third sellout — and second chance to lift a television blackout — in five seasons at Sun Devil Stadium.

As of Tuesday afternoon, the team had sold 68,454 tickets in the 73,521-seat stadium, leaving 5,067 to be sold before 2 p.m. Thursday.

NFL policy requires that a stadium be sold out at least 72 hours in advance of kickoff to lift a local TV blackout.

The Cardinals' poor record since moving here in 1988 has led to declining crowds. Phoenix drew 472,937 regular-season fans in 1988, when it finished 7-9, and 332,025 last year, when it was 4-12.

This year, the team is 3-6 and, after four home dates, has played before 152,398 fans — on pace to draw fewer than 305,000 for the season.

The smallest crowd ever to watch the Cardinals in Tempe is 26,043, set last season against the New England Patriots.

OILERS: Carlson 4-3 as replacement for Moon

(From 1C)

Carlson will at last get the chance to play a starting role for an extended time and Richardson will be working overtime to learn the run-and-shoot.

Carlson, in his sixth year, has a 4-3 record as a replacement for Moon, who suffered a broken arm in Sunday's 17-13 victory over Minnesota and will be out three to six weeks.

Carlson once fought for a trade and a chance to start elsewhere but timing kept him in Houston and now he's glad that it did. General Manager Mike Holovak was determined to keep him around.

"I'm smarter now," Carlson said. "To play this game and be effective, you have to continue to learn even though you're not on the field. Several years ago, I said I didn't want to be here but I guess I finally matured and realized I'm in a good position.

"I'm in Texas where I grew up, close to family and friends and I have a chance to help this team. The desire is still there to be a starter but I guess I'm more patient now. I couldn't ask for a better opportunity."

Carlson's playing time has been limited behind the dependable Moon. Carlson didn't play as a rookie in 1987 but started five games in 1988 when Moon suffered a broken shoulder blade.

In 1990, Carlson came on in the 15th game when Moon suffered a fractured thumb and he started the final regular season game, leading the Oilers to a 34-14 victory over Pittsburgh.

Carlson has completed 29 of 43 passes this season for 283 yards and three touchdowns and two interceptions. That surpasses his 1991 season total when he completed seven of 12 passes for 114 yards playing in three games.

Carlson has been in the last three games and has kept the Oilers offense moving each time.

Richardson is an eighth round pick from Texas A&M, leading the Aggies to the SWC title last year with an aggressive take-charge style that has made him an immediate hit with Oiler fans.

Although not expected to make the team at quarterback, Richardson survived the final cut and has spent the season on the scout team, running opponents' plays and not getting many snaps with the run-and-shoot.

But he's not backing away from the current challenge.

"I've always believed in my ability to play quarterback," he said. "If you don't have confidence, especially in this league, you'll never make it. I'm ready to play."

Richardson came off the bench to lead the Oilers to exhibition victories against Detroit and Dallas. When the Oilers took a 27-0 lead in the fourth quarter against San Diego, fans started chanting "Bucky, Bucky, rather than calling for Carlson.

"He brings a lot of excitement to the game," Carlson said. "Take away one word (Aggie) and I'm comfortable with him."

Longhorn linebacker, Lloyd Hill named SWC players of week

AUSTIN — Texas coach John Mackovic was desperate for a sack.

The Longhorns' pass rush hadn't gotten to the quarterback in two weeks. His players were thinking too much, worried about defending the screen and the draw.

Finally, Mackovic said just forget about everything else and attack the quarterback.

Linebacker Winfred Tubbs took a big sigh of relief, then sacked Southern Methodist's Dan Freiburger three times as the Longhorns defeated the Mustangs 35-14 Saturday.

"Before that game, we were blitzing and worrying about too much," said Tubbs, a 6-5, 240-pound redshirt junior from Fairfield. "We were trying to blitz and play the screen at the same time, and you can't do that.

"When you blitz, you have to go all out. Coach told us to get everything else off our minds and just get the quarterback."

Texas registered seven sacks against SMU and allowed the Mustangs across midfield only once in the first half. The Longhorns hope to keep up the defensive pressure against Baylor this week.

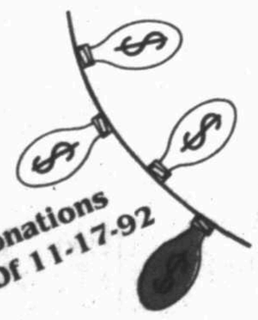

For his effort, Tubbs, who had seven tackles and caused a fumble against SMU, has been named Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press.

Texas Tech wide receiver Lloyd Hill earned the AP's SWC Offensive Player of the Week nod for his performance in the Red Raiders' last-second 31-28 victory against Texas Christian.

Hill, who leads the nation in receiving yards (1,193), caught two touchdown passes in the final 1.06, including a 43-yarder with three seconds left.

Gummy candies not big hit

By Linda Anderson

If you watch any "kids' TV" at all (and if you are a parent, chances are you do), you've probably seen commercials for Amazin' Fruit gummy bears, the newest like of gummy candies so loved by those under 12 (and some of those older).

Anderson

I thought we had reached the end of the "gummy" craze when they started marketing gummy worms and gummy soda bottles, but I guess not.

These gummy bears are supposed to be made with "real fruit juices," so I guess that means the manufacturer is advertising them as being healthier than ordinary candy. We'll see...

We got a press kit here at the office containing information about Amazin' Fruit, and two packages of the product — one in regular flavors and one in tropical flavors. I was amazed to see that this product is made by Hershey Foods Corporation, famous for its chocolate candies.

The press kit stayed here at the office for my reference, but the packages of candy went home to be taste-tested by the experts in these matters. (I'm not that crazy about gummy candies, myself, but my kids are.)

Since we didn't actually pay for the candies, I can only guess at the price. Packaged in 1.5 ounce, 3.5 ounce and 8 ounce bags, Amazin' Fruit gummy pears probably cost about the same amount as other candies in the same sized bags — probably about 45 cents for the single-serving 1.5 ounce bag — but that's just an educated guess.

According to the press kit, Amazin' Fruit gummy bears' original flavors are Red Cherry, Wild Strawberry, Oasis Orange, Concord Grape, Punchy Pineapple and Crisp Green Apple. Tropical flavors of the gummy bears are watermelon, pineapple, Island Punch, Citrus Cooler, tangerine and passion fruit.

Information from the company claims: "For decades, gummy candies have been to Germans what chocolate bars have been to Americans. While chocolate is America's favorite flavor, fruit-flavored gummy candies are becoming increasingly popular. Approximately 45 percent of Americans who eat candy once a week or more like and eat gummy candy and one-third of the U.S. population enjoys gummy bears." I wonder what percentage of the population is under 12. I may be wrong, but I don't know too many adults who really enjoy gummy candies on a regular basis.

And I was surprised to discover that in all the information the company sent me, not once did they claim this product is "healthy." That's one point for them. Often food companies can't resist to claim the healthiness of a product that contains fruit juice, even though it contains all kinds of other stuff too — which might include sugar in several forms, artifical flavors and colors, and other items which are not healthy.

I hate to tell Hershey, but my kids didn't find the Amazin' Fruit gummy bears to be that amazin'. They liked a few of the flavors — specifically, the grape (the youngest's favorite) and maybe the pineapple and the cherry — but most of the flavors (especially the tropical ones) they just didn't like.

In fact, my youngest taste-tester — who is really the expert in the subject in our family — much prefers the gummy bears at a local all-you-can-eat buffet restaurant's dessert bar.

Pumpkin muffins are low in fat

By Beverly Bundy
N.Y. Times News Service

Not all muffins are the healthy breakfast we'd like to imagine; many are loaded with oil for moistness. Here's a recipe from Quaker Oats that combines seasonal pumpkin with a streusel topping to yield a hand-held meal that's low in saturated fat.

PUMPKIN OAT STREUSEL MUFFINS

STREUSEL TOPPING:
¼ cup quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
1 tablespoon firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon margarine, melted
⅛ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
MUFFINS:
1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 cup quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1½ teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt, optional
½ cup chopped nuts, optional
1 cup canned pumpkin
¾ cup milk
⅓ cup vegetable oil
1 egg, slightly beaten

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Line 12 medium muffin cups with paper baking cups or lightly grease bottoms only.

For streusel topping, combine all ingredients; set aside.

For muffins, combine dry ingredients including nuts. Add combined pumpkin, milk, oil and egg; mix just until moistened. Fill muffin cups almost full. Sprinkle tops of muffins evenly with streusel mixture. Bake 22 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Let muffins stand a few minutes; remove from pan. Serve warm, or cool on wire racks.

16-ounce can pumpkin
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Mix cream cheese, 1 tablespoon milk and 1 tablespoon sugar in large bowl with wire whisk until smooth. Gently stir in whipped topping. Spread on bottom of crust.

Pour 1 cup milk into another bowl. Add pudding mix. Beat with wire whisk until well blended, 1 to 2 minutes. Mixture will be thick. Stir in pumpkin and spices with wire whisk; mix well. DEAR ABBY

Smokeout is chance to quit

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last year, your column encouraging smokers to participate in the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout helped millions across the country to make the decision to quit smoking — at least for the day.

Van Buren

Would you please run that column again this year? It was a terrific morale booster for our 2.5 million American Cancer Society volunteers in the United States.

Thank you very much for your help, Abby. Your support is very much appreciated, and we are grateful for all your good work in the fight against cancer. — STANLEY I. TANNENBAUM, CHAIRMAN, AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY, ILLINOIS DIVISION

DEAR MR. TANNENBAUM: With pleasure!

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow, Nov. 19, 1992, will mark the 16th annual Great American Smokeout, a one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours, just to prove they can do it.

Last year, 18 million smokers tried to quit for the day. This represents 36 percent of the nation's 50 million smokers. Breast cancer used to be the biggest killer for women. But the No. 1 cause of cancer death among women and men today is lung cancer. Tobacco claims one life every 13 seconds. An estimated 146,000 will die of lung cancer in 1992.

And now, a word about smoking-related diseases — emphysema, chronic bronchitis and heart disease: This year, an estimated 434,000 will die from one of these. This total exceeds the number of U.S. battle deaths in World War II; it's nine times as many people who die in automobile accidents every year.

A congressional study has reported that health costs from the adverse effects of smoking have reached a new high of $100 billion a year in increased medical bills and lost productivity. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured.

What about "secondhand" smoke? Is it damaging to nonsmokers to be in the presence of those of you who are smoking? Yes! One non-smoker dies of secondhand smoke for every eight smokers. And studies reveal that the children of smokers are more prone to lung problems and allergies than are children of nonsmokers.

For years I have begged my young readers, "If you smoke, quit now. If you don't smoke, don't start!" Yet an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 kids light up for the first time every day. Why? Peer pressure, no doubt. Cigarette companies sell $1 billion of cigarettes to children every year.

Quitting "cold turkey" is the hardest way to quit, but my readers tell me it's the most effective, and in the long run, the easiest. Those who need help to break their habit: Call your local chapter of the American Cancer Society or call 1-800-227-2345 for information.

If you're hooked and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I'm going to quit," why not start tomorrow? It won't be easy, but it will be the best Thanksgiving present you can give yourself — and those who love you. Love, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: About eight years ago, I read a letter in your column that meant so much to me, I cut it out and saved it. It was from a city girl who wanted to know if she could be happy married to a farmer.

I liked it because I had always wanted to marry a farmer. Well, I lost the article, but I have found my own farmer!

Will you please run it again? — IN LOVE WITH A FARMER FROM NEW JERSEY

DEAR IN LOVE: That piece ran in 1984. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I'm a city girl who's attending college in Ames, Iowa. I've fallen in love with a young man whose father was a farmer, and he intends to follow in his father's footsteps.

What are my chances for happiness as a farmer's wife? Have you any statistics on this? — IN LOVE WITH WALLY

DEAR IN LOVE: I have no statistics, but love being what it is, statistics wouldn't help much.

A reader sent a charming piece that may not be your bale of hay, but if it is, good luck to you and Wally:

"I wanted a guy who could sit and have a cup of coffee with me at 5 a.m. when the only sounds to be heard are crickets, cows and creaking floorboards ... that's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who would crack a joke and make me laugh when I'm covered with dirt and cow manure ... that's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could get out of a nice warm bed when it's 30 below, start up the tractor and plow out the driveway so the school bus can get through ... that's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could entertain four kids, a dog and a nerve-wracked wife when the power goes off, the pipes freeze and everything quits during a two-day blizzard ... that's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could put up with in-laws, outlaws and new tax laws, and still be open-minded and openly loving ... that's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could count his blessings when he's depressed, count his children when he feels poor, and count on God to make it all work out ... that's why I married a farmer."

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem and I hope that you and your readers may be able to offer some practical advice.

I am 31 and am seeing a recently divorced man with five children. He has custody of his children. They are ages 5 through 12. I have not met them yet, as we are concerned that the children will resent me or be uncomfortable with the idea that their father is seeing someone. I am not the reason for the divorce. The mother left the family for another man. (I have never been married.)

We started out as friends and found our relationship growing closer. The oldest daughter, I was told, is very jealous because her father is seeing someone. How do we handle this situation? I'm afraid that the children will resent anyone whom they see as an intrusion into their lives. I understand that they are very uncomfortable with their mother's boyfriend. I have had no experience dating a man with children, and I want to do the right thing. What should I do? — NOT THE WICKED STEPMOTHER

DEAR NOT: Be yourself, and don't bend over backward in an effort to win his children's approval. There is apt to be some resentment, regardless of who the "new woman" in their father's life is. Don't be overly affectionate or possessive of "Dad." Treat him as you would a good friend, not a lover, and don't be preoccupied with proving yourself to his children. If he is the man for you, he will have enough love to go around.

For Abby's favorite family recipes, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Court: Nixon must be paid for papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon must be compensated for the government's seizure of his historically valuable presidential papers and tapes, including all the Watergate recordings, a federal appellate court ruled Tuesday.

A three-judge U.S. Court of Appeals panel unanimously ordered a U.S. district court to determine the compensation, which could be enormous given the potential value of the material.

"Upon reviewing the long and unbroken history relating to the use, control and disposition of presidential papers, we are convinced that Mr. Nixon had a well-grounded expectation of ownership," the court said.

"In the light of this history, we hold that Mr. Nixon, like every president before him, had a compensable property interest in his presidential papers."

While there is no way to predict the district court's valuation, experts on Nixon papers sold at auction said the documents — mostly typed letters — were eagerly sought by investors.

Kenneth W. Rendell, who runs auction galleries in New York City and Beverly Hills, Calif., said "Nixon has been amazingly popular. General prices range, for a fairly routine typed letter, from $500 to $5,000."

A letter on Vietnam fetched the $5,000, Rendell said. A mimeographed press release about Nixon's "Checkers" speech — when he defended himself against allegations of financial wrongdoing as a vice presidential candidate — sold for $2,750. It was signed by Nixon.

Selby Kiffer, a vice president in Sotheby's books and manuscripts department, said ordinary, typed Nixon letters have sold from $150 to $400 from 1988-91.

"The two great criteria that collectors judge letters on are condition and content," he said. "A letter that could be related to the Watergate affair or a visit to China would be worth more than declining an invitation to dinner."

Justice Department officials did not reply to a telephone call asking whether an appeal was planned.

The case centered on the "takings clause" of the Fifth Amendment, which prohibits the seizure of private property for public use without paying the former owner just compensation.

The papers include correspondence, political reports, telephone logs, drafts of speeches and the recordings made on the White House recording system. The discovery of the Watergate recordings involving Nixon and his aides revealed the presidential coverup of the burglary and led to Nixon's resignation in 1974.

The voice-activated system recorded conversations in several White House locations, nearby offices and Camp David.

In 1974, Congress, concerned that Nixon would destroy documents necessary for the Watergate investigation, passed the Presidential Records and Materials Preservation Act.

The law authorized the government to retain possession of all Nixon's documents and tapes and gave him a limited role in controlling access to the materials.

The Supreme Court upheld the law, rejecting Nixon's challenge. But the former president also challenged the taking of his property without just compensation.

While the Justice Department contended the papers and tapes belonged to the government, and won in U.S. District Court, the appellate panel agreed with Nixon.

U.S. not sure regarding blockade enforcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials will consult with NATO allies in Brussels on Wednesday in an effort to determine how to enforce a United Nations naval blockade against Yugoslavia, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

Spokesman Pete Williams said he could not predict what type of operation might be mounted, though it might be patterned after the one still being conducted in the Persian Gulf to enforce U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

In any case, he said, the United States will not move unilaterally to enforce the blockade, authorized by the U.N. Security Council on Monday, of the Danube River and the Adriatic coast to tighten the economic sanctions against Serbian-led Yugoslavia.

The resolution prods Bulgaria and Romania to patrol the Danube, which flows along their borders. But it wasn't immediately clear to what extent Western or other governments were willing to get involved in enforcement of the sanctions.

Trade sanctions were first leveled against Yugoslavia in May, but arms and petroleum supplies that have fueled the fighting among the warring republics have continued to enter Serbia and Montenegro.

Heart surgery death rates change widely at VA hospitals, study says

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A government study of heart surgery death rates at Veterans hospitals found that the worst hospitals had four times the death rate of the best hospitals.

This happened even though the worst hospitals treated the lowest-risk patients, the study said.

The study also found that death rates after heart surgery at Veterans Affairs hospitals have dropped 14 percent in the past five years, said the study's director, Dr. Karl Hammermeister, a cardiologist at the Denver VA Medical Center.

The findings were disclosed Monday at the American Heart Association's annual meeting. It marks the first time VA hospitals have tried to rigorously assess the quality of their surgical care, Hammermeister said. The study began in 1987 and is continuing.

Death rates after heart surgery varied from 8.8 percent at the worst hospitals to 2.1 percent at the best hospitals, he said.

Hammermeister said his study included estimates of the expected death rates at each VA hospital so that hospitals with sicker patients wouldn't be unfairly penalized.

Hospitals with the worst records had the least risky patients, with an expected death rate of 4.8 percent. The expected death rate at the best hospitals was 6.9 percent.

But the actual death rate at the worst hospitals was at least 1.5 times what was expected. At the best hospitals, it was less than half what was expected.

"The excuse 'our patients are sicker' does not hold," Hammermeister said.

Officials of the Veterans Health Administration defended the quality of care at their hospitals.

"We're seeing continuous improvement," said Dr. Galen Barbour, the head of quality assurance for VA hospitals.

Hospital services that don't meet tough standards are shut down, and six cardiac sugery centers have been closed in the past five years, he said.

"If there's a problem, we're going to address it. If it isn't fixed, that facility is closed," he said.

The overall death rates at the VA hospitals were slightly higher than the death rates at hospitals in New York state, but that could be due to differences in the two patient groups, said Edward Hannan, who directed a study for New York's health department in 1990.

New York's study found a similar disparity in the quality of care, Hannan said.

He praised Hammermeister's work, calling it "an exemplary study."

The study provided no explanation for the differences in death rates, Hammermeister said.

Among the possibilities, he said, were poor training and supervision of young surgeons, inadequate facilities or the use of out-of-date equipment. Another study is beginning to determine which of these might be responsible, he said.

ABOUT THE REAL ESTATE

Despite its close proximity to Midland city limits (approximately 14 miles), the sense of seclusion and serenity which THE WHISPERING PINES RANCH affords is unimaginable.

The main house, - a fantastic, sprawling 3,800 +/- square foot two story Victorianesque mansion, complete with wrap around porch, is perched on the highest point in all of Midland County, affording panoramas of up to 100 miles in every direction. It is said that the inspiration of daily sunrises, and most particularly sunsets, as the sun drops behind the Midland skyline, cannot be duplicated in the most beautiful of all paintings. Early winter mornings often feature deer grazing quietly amid the light morning frost on the grounds.

An irreconcilable and tragic marital rift forces the immediate sale of this spectacular estate.

At the couple's order, we will enter onto the Ranch for four fabulous days - November 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd - and liquidate literally hundres of thousands of dollars of antiques, collectibles, rugs, artworks, and, of course, the Ranch itself.

One bid, which will be solicited at the stroke of Noon Saturday, will take this entire 9.95 +/- acre country estate, complete with the 3,800 +/- square foot historic, custom modified mini-masion, 2,000 +/- square foot metal barn, horse corrals, and a view that will give a perspective of our world like you would otherwise be unable to imagine.

But wait till you see the ANTIQUES...
