Oil Famine? No!

J. Edgar Pew, Who Knows Whereof He Speaks, Says World is Yet In no Danger of Shortage.

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

THIS nation is in no peril from an oil shortage. Its oil reserves are ample for all purposes. Vast oil areas reamin unexplored. There are 26 billion barrels in the regions not yet touched. J. Edgar Pew says so. J. Edgar is president of the American Petroleum institute. J. Edgar Pew ranks high among the men who control the petroleum industry in Texas. His institute has made a survey.

This survey estimates the petroleum recoverable from existing fields at 5,300,000,000 barrels and that after pumping and flowing cease there will remain in the area now producing and proved 26 million barrels of oil, a considerable portion of which can be recovered by improved and known proccesses. This survey also shows improved methods of deep drilling below oil sands now producing will disclose in many areas deposits not hitherto available which will be tantamount to the discovery of new fields, as improved methods of producing have been perfected which will make possible recovery of oil from these lower levels.

FURTHERMORE the survey says the limit of deep drilling has not been reached. Major oil reserves of the United States, according to the survey, lie in some one billion and one hundred million acres of lands underlain by sedimentary rocks and not fully explored in which geology indicates oil possible. With extended search the prediction is made new supplies will be found therein.

Again the survey says the nation has an additional reserve in the vast deposits of oil shale, coal and lignites from all of which liquid fuel and lubricants may be extracted if and when the cost of recovery is justified by the price of these products. These deposits are so huge that they promise, under conservative estimates, an almost unlimited supply.

While this survey is confined to the petroleum supply and demand within continental United States, the warning is given that the importance of imports can not be ignored. Countries to the south are known to have large petroleum resources for the output of which the United States is a natural market and the supply therefrom according to the survey, must inevitably have its influence on the consumption of American reserves.

COUNTRIES to the south of us are Mexico and the Pan American republics. Mexico has vast reservoirs of oil. More than a million barrels of oil have been taken from Mexico and sold to the national of other countries. There was a time when Edward L. Dohoney was the principal operator. Now the Standard is the principal American operator with the Dutch Shells, a British concern, a powerful rival to the American organization.

J. Edgar Pew is a veteran oil man. He should know whereof he speaks. He has ammassed a fortune in Texas oil and is one of the principal spokesmen of the petroleum industry. There are geologists and oil scouts who say the petroleum industry in Texas is yet in its infancy and that in time Texas will lead all other states as a producer.

Knife Victim In Critical Condition At Hospital Here

Late Saturday night police were still hunting the assailant of J. S. Tafollo, who was knifed and severely wounded some time yesterday morning in his store at 415 Bonner street. Little headway has been made and the police were frankly baffled as to just who had done the stabbing. Tafolla himself was in the general hospital, his condition described as very serious. Since being taken there at 11 o'clock this morning he has never regained consciousness.

Tafolla was the proprietor of a small grocery store at 415 Bonner street and was last seen about 6 o'clock Saturday morning. At 10:30 o'clock his brother found him lying on the floor of his store, unconscious, and with gashes about the head and neck. The store's cash and a pistol were found nearby, removing the robbery motive from the attack. He was rushed to the hospital.

Police believe the man to have been attacked at an early hour Saturday morning.

Henry J. Toussaint's Artistic Bent Displayed in Wichita County Jail, Shows Up Again in Huntsville Pen

Man Sent up From Here For Murder Has Regular Art Gallery in Huntsville Cell; Portrait of Ma Ferguson His Masterpiece

HUNTSVILLE, Texas Aug. 15.—(AP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's picture, painted in oil on the stone wall of his cell by a life prisoner in the state penitentiary here, attracts more attention and comment from visitors than even the electric chair, C. M. Davis, official guide, told the Associated Press. Each day Davis escorts scores of visitors through the penitentiary. "Many of the visitors have such a revulsion for the death chair that they do not care to inspect it minutely or to hear me tell of its operation; but I have yet to take through a person who did not linger at the cell of Henry Toussaint, the artist-prisoner," Davis said.

A Cheerful Lifer.

Toussaint was sentenced several years ago to life imprisonment for murder. During the years he has been confined, he has not neglected his talent with the pencil and brush. Each night, after working all day in the wagon factory or foundry, Toussaint lives in another world, the world he conjures up with his artistry. Prison officials say that he is one of the most cheerful "lifers" in the history of the institution.

Every visitor who has seen Mrs. Ferguson marvels at the likeness of the picture to the subject. Close friends of the woman governor have said that it is far superior to any photographic likeness of the chief executive—and Toussaint, who has never seen Mrs. Ferguson, painted the picture from a campaign poster.

The picture shows the head and shoulders. It is oval in shape, and complete in every detail, even to a glimpse of the familiar white lace collar, which Mrs. Ferguson often wears. The artist has caught with astounding accuracy the expression of the half smile that often graces the face of the governor.

All Decorated.

Almost every inch of available space on the walls of the narrow cell occupied by Toussaint and his mate bears some picture or inscription of Toussaint. There is

HASKELL ROAD BONDS BEATEN IN SMALL VOTE

Stiff Opposition at Last Is Too Much for Proposal

HASKELL, Texas, Aug. 15.—A hard fight waged at the last moment by a well-organized opposition spelled defeat here today for the $1,500,000 road bond issue on which the voters bonds were turned down by a small of the county passed. The proposed margin after a number of antis, starting late in the day, mustered sufficient adverse sentiment to beat the proposition.

A comprehensive system of paved roads radiating throughout all Haskell county was being planned and would have been constructed in the near future had the issue carried.

Although beaten, those sponsoring the issue, said tonight that another campaign would be launched immediately and that hopes were held of a successful election in a short time.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Work to Start on New Building for S. M. U. at Dallas

DALLAS, Aug 15.—Contract for the erection of the first floor of the new administration building at Southern Methodist university has been awarded to the Bellows-Maclay Construction company of Dalles, it was said today. Work is to be started at once so that the structure will be ready for use shortly after the opening of the fall term of school. The first floor of the building will be finished and temporarily roofed. Upper stories will be added later.

Dozen Injured In Northwest Wreck

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—(AP)—More than a dozen persons were seriously injured, at least on perhaps fatally, when the Healdsburg steam train of the Northwestern Pacific railroad crashed into the rear of a San Rafael electric two-coach train a mile outside the Sausalito yards today.

The rear car of the electric train was telescoped to half its length by the steam engine train. Four cars were attached to the steam train. The two trains were proceeding to Sausalito to catch the ferry for San Francisco.

HYLAN NEARLY HURT.

Clock in His Office Falls to Floor, Missing Head by Inches.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—New York's mayoralty campaign nearly lost one of its star attractions last night when a heavy colonial clock in Mayor Hylan's private office at city hall crashed to the floor, narrowly missing the mayor. The 15-pound weight splintered the flooring.

The mayor was sitting in his chair, leaning against the will directly under the clock when a visitor was announced. As he moved the chair to his desk the clock fell.

MARRS TO ASK SECOND TERM AS STATE SUPT.

School Head Announces He Will Seek Return In 1926

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—S. M. N. Marrs, superintendent of public instruction, will be a candidate to succeed himself in the democratic primary in 1926, be announced today.

Mr. Marrs made his announcement, he said, to answer numerous inquiries from friends. He said, "The fact that last year I was elected without opposition by the largest vote ever given to a state official indicates the approval that has been given to my efforts to give the people of Texas a sound, conservative, economical business administration of the public school system. My opposition to frequent changes of textbooks and consequent exploitation of the school fund has met with universal approval.

18,000 Use Drugs In Chicago Dens

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP).—Investigation in the narcotic expose has developed that there are 18,000 drug addicts here making no secret of their plight. Several thousand more, L. J. Ulmer, acting chief agent, estimates also use druzs, but do not deal with narcotic peddlers.

The average addict uses 25 grains a day, says Ulmer. Some use 50 and one physician made affidavit that for years he had taken 75 grains daily. One grain would be fatal to the majority of non-users.

POLICE CATCH EMBRYO BUNCO SCHEME HERE

Two Men Arrested With Cashier's Checks On New Mexico Bank.

WITH DOC COOK

One Man Formerly in Employ of Famed Oil Swindler.

With the arrest last night at a local hotel of two men, one of whom is reputedly a former employee of Dr. Frederick Cook, famous explorer and oil promoter now serving a sentence at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, police here broke up what to all appearance bore promise of becoming a huge swindling scheme in Wichita Falls. Coincident with the two arrests the printing of some 250 cashiers' checks on the First National Bank of Portales, N. M., at a local job printing house, was stopped.

Started Last Week.

The story of the scheme, it developed last night, dates back to early this last week when two young men, one 27 years old, the other 30, came to Wichita Falls and engaged a room at the hotel. Immediately following their registration they started negotiations with local printing firms for letter heads, envelopes, counter checks and cashier checks on the First National Bank of Portales, N. M., and gave an order to one concern for 10,000 letter heads, 5,000 envelopes, 10,000 counter checks and 250 cashiers' checks, for immediate delivery.

The letter heads and envelopes were to be sent back to the bank at Portales, c. o. d.; the checks were to be taken by the men here, and, as they told the printer, carried back with them to Portales.

In some way the suspicions of the printing house become aroused at the peculiar arrangement, and the police were notified. Officers found one of the men in his room last night. He disclaimed knowledge of any of the transaction, but was caught attempting to destroy a letter of credit from the bank in question signed by its president.

Called Upstairs.

While officers were in the room the other man in the affair was called from downstairs, and was told by the man already arrested to come up to the room, that he was in a little trouble. Both were arrested and taken to the city hall. The one first arrested would tell nothing, but the second man after insistent questioning confessed to placing the order for the checks and to forging a letter of credit on the Portales bank. He made a signed confession to that effect.

Both men have been held for investigation and will be transferred to the county this morning. Their order for the checks has been stopped. In baggage taken from the room in the hotel was found checks on banks in a dozen states of the union, letter heads and other "literature" of the sort, which police think was to have been the basis for still other forged instruments.

Investigation of one of the men by the police revealed a former employment at Fort Worth under Dr. Frederick Cook, explorer and swindler de luxe. It is this man who has steadily refused to divulge any of the scheme, and it is the opinion of those who worked on the case that he is the master mind of a large swindling scheme with still other like ideas consummated in the past.

Among the effects found in the room were two checks on banks, which in the signed confession, the man states he had no account.

Police working on the case were Jimmy Allen, Bill Bryant, Lyle Donohue and Carmichael. The confession was obtained by Police Chief George Hodgins.

TO CARVE MEMORIAL.

CUSTER, S. D., Aug. 15.—(AP) A Huge block of granite in an isolated spot in the Black hills between Harney Peak and Keystone has been selected by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, as the site where he will carve the busts of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Roosevelt.

Coon Trees Negroes At Local Home

AN unnamed visitor that had figuratively treed everybody at the J. J. Perkins residence, 1801 Tenth street, had to be corraled by the city police Saturday night.

Several negro servants at the place made a frantic appeal to the police, assuring the cops that "there's something mighty wild out here."

Officers Belcher and Lay hurried to the place and were met by ominous growls coming from the inky blackness of a back gallery. They used their flash lights and found an enormous raccoon that had strayed from parts unknown. It was mad aud surly and was finally caught with a rope, dragged to the city hall and put on exhibition.

Police and laymen alike gave it respectful room.

CHICAGO BOY MUST DIE FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Raymond Costello Is Convicted on Mute Evidence of Handkerchief.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Largely owing to the mute testimony of a polka dot handkerchief, Raymond Costello, not yet 21, tonight was found guilty of the murder a month ago of 19-year-old Madelin White.

The jury fixed his punishment at death on the gallows.

The jury deliberated less than a hour and a half. The body of the girl, who had been attacked was found early last month stuffed under the porch of a south side residence.

Costello was with the girl the night previous and a handkerchief stuffed in her mouth as a gag was identified as belonging to him. When arrested he declared a man of the name of Mulholland had killed the girl.

The state produced half a dozen witnesses to identify the piece of cloth as Costello's while Costello himself as well as his parents and other defense witnesses denied that he owned it.

OIL IN TEXAS TAKES FORTUNE FROM CHICAGO

$1,000,000 Loss Said to Have Been Suffered by Hundreds.

24 ARE INDICTED

Fort Worth Grand Jury Returns Secret Bills Against Promoters.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP).—Federal warrants for the arrest of 24 stock promoters and salesmen who are charged with having swindled hundreds of victims in various parts of the country out of more than $1,000,000, were issued here today.

Indictments charging conspiracy and attmept to use the mails to defraud were secretly returned by the federal grand jury at Fort Worth, Texas, as the result of an investigation by Postal Inspector C. B. Johnson of Austin, Texas, and V. E. Albertie of the Chicago area of the Kosse Mutual Ownership pool, a Texas oil concern in which many Chicagoans had invested.

The investigation of Kosse's venture brought to light several oil schemes which implicate Chicago promoters. Removal of the men, whose names the authorities would not divulge, to Texas for trial is being sought.

Smith and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, United States army aviators who carried the Stars and Stripes on the first flight around the world, were presented with distinguished service medals awarded they by special act of congress for their historical achievement at a ceremonial at Rockwell field yesterday.

The presentation ceremonies took place almost on the identical spot where Smith and Nelson took off on the first lap of the voyage around the globe. Colonel Harry Graham, commander of Rockwell field, read the citatio and presented the medals.

MOONSHINER IS KILLED

Colorado Officers Raid an Alleged Whiskey Still, Shots Follow.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 15.—(AP).—One unidentified moonshiner is dead, two of his companions are in jail at Cripple Creek and a third is held here as the result of a raid last night by federal and county prohibition agents near Divide, Colo. A fourth companion escaped.

Officers seized 300 gallons of mountain liquor, 1,500 gallons of mash and a large still at the moonshiners' retreat in an almost inaccessible spot near the range peaks of the Rocky mountains.

Morgan Funeral Services Monday

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP).—The funeral Mof rs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the international banker, who died here yesterday after a two months' illness from sleeping sickness, will be held Monday and will be private. Only members of the family will be present.

Hance, Slain By Pal Of Chapman, Knew Death Was Sure At Hands of Foes

His Own Slayer Still at Large 24 Hours After the Shooting.

COPS HUNT FOR HIM

MUNICE, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP)—All members of the day force of the local police department were ordered to report for duty at headquarters shortly after 9:30 o'clock tonight and all men patrolling beats were ordered in to the station. A few minutes later approximately 40 officers, armed with riot guns, started away from the station in high powered automobiles.

Chief of Police Randolph refused to divulge the destination of his men, simply saying, "we have a hot tip."

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP).—The nemesis which followed Ben Hance, 46, since he turned informer against Gerald Chapman early this year, caught him yesterday and today, 24 hours after he and his wife were slain, George (Dutch) Anderson, accused by Hance of the double murder, is still at large.

Officers today tightened a circumstancial net around Charles (One Arm) Wolfe, Muncie man arrested in connection with the slaying by offering evidence to refute an alibi.

Accused by Victim.

Hance, dying, said Wolfe and Anderson shot down he and his wife. Wolfe, apprehended a few hours after the tragedy, said he had been in Muncie all afternoon yesterday. Three residents of Yorktown, a small town four miles from where the shooting occurred identified Wolfe as one of two men in a coupe they saw in Yorktown a few minutes before the murder. The fuel supply of the machine was replenished at Yorktown, they said. The occupant of the automobile fitted the description of Anderson, they said.

Knew Death Would Come.

If the slayer was Anderson, wreaking vengeance on one who had "turned up" his pal and accomplice supplying evidence to bring about his conviction and condemnation to death he had completely disappeared today.

Hance knew he was a marked man from the time he went to Hartford, Conn., to testify against Chapman, acquaintances say, and for several months he has lived in constant dread of death. Accomplices and friends of the debonnair bandit leader added to Hance's terror by sending him covert threats and reminding him that death is the portion of the betrayer.

You Had to Earn Your Money Those Days, It Appears

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP).—How James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & company, approached the founder of the concern some 30 years ago to obtain a raise in his pay as an office boy is told in an intimate sketch of the merchant, printed here today.

Simpson walked up to Marshall Fields and said:

"I want a raise."

"What's your salary?"

"Ten dollars a week."

"Why, when I was your age, I was only getting $5 a week."

"Maybe that was all you were worth."

That was in 1891. Now Simpson is president.

NEGRO WOMAN SHOT BY MAN; MAY NOT LIVE

Negress Seriously Wounded In Quarrel Over Her Daughter.

Lizzie Williams, negress, residing in the rear of 1601 Tenth street, was shot and seriously wounded at her home at about 8 o'clock last night. Her assailant, whose identity is not known to the police, was still at large early this morning, but police regarded his capture as a matter of a few hours only. The Williams woman was reported getting along very nicely at the hospital last night and was expected to recover.

Involves Daughter.

The story of the shooting as told police involves a 20-year-old daughter of the Williams woman and a negro man. The mother had quarreled with the negro man, and the shot, which struck her in the back and passed into her abdomen, is understood to have resulted from the quarrel.

Negroes questioned at the city hall late last night told officers the black fired through a closed door, evidently not with the intention of hitting anyone but merely to scare them.

KILLS WITH WOOD MALLET.

Mother and Four-Year-Old Son Are Both Killed in Jersey Murder.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine Audia and her four-year-old son, John, were beaten to death with a wooden mallet today in the cellar of their home.

Police are looking for Joseph Audia, her husband and a son, Frank Audio, 20. Both were said to have been employed on construction work in Philadelphia but the father was said to have quit his job today.

HOUSTON AD MAN DEAD.

HOUSTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A. P. Butterfield, 40, advertising manager for the Houston Press was electrocuted while making a ground connection under his residence for an aerial to a radio set here today.

The aerial crossed a high tension wire. Mrs. Butterfield alarmed by her husband's silence, called for aid. He was unconscious when rescued and died a short time later en route to a hospital.

Photographer In Santone Suicides

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 15.—An all-night search for William B. G. Grube, San Antonio photographer, ended Saturday morning when he was found crouched over in the seat of a sedan under a clump of pecan trees in Roosevelt park, dead.

LEGION WILL MEET.

An important meeting of all members of the American Legion is to be held Monday night in the legion arena at Eleventh and Ohio for the purpose of electing delegates to the state legion convention to be held in Fort Worth Sept. 3, 4 and 5. Four or five of official representatives will be sent to Fort Worth from the Pat Carrigan post here and it is hoped a large number of additional legion members will attend.

SENTRY IS DEAD.

SAC CITY, Iowa, Aug. 15.—T. J. Peacock, who was a sentry before General Custer's tent the night before the historic massacre, died last night from apoplexy at the age of 94.

Realty Board To Lead Fight For Street Signs

A possibility that the Wichita Falls Realty Board may lead a movement aimed at getting Wichita Falls streets properly posted with signs showing their name and block number is seen in complain and action taken by the board at yesterday's noon luncheon at the Kemp hotel.

H. F. Weaver of Marchman and Weaver first called the attention of the board to the inadequate street signs that exist in the city. The old street signs have in many instances disappeared, he said, and on account of the rapid growth of the city there are any number of well paved streets without any sign at all on them. Mr. Weaver pointed out that many newcomers in the city were totally unable to find their way around.

Curlee Puzzled.

W. S. Curlee, president of the board, took up the complaint at this point. He stated that even old timers like himself, who had in many instances helped to lay out the streets in the city, found themselves constantly puzzled in getting around streets which seemingly run in every direction of the compass.

While no definite action was taken at yesterday's luncheon by the board toward remedying the condition, it was understood that such would be forthcoming, possibly at an early meeting. Conversation following the discussion of the topic was distinctly favorable towar daction of some sort in the matter, which had grown to reflect, as some of the members said, in the growth of the city.

Ethics a Duty.

"Ethics is the moral duty of man to his fellow man," William Baldridge told the realty board. "The real estate business is now as much a profession as law or the practice of medicine, and as a profession has its code of ethics just as these. Needless to say different points arise in the practice of our profession from those which come up in the practice of law or medicine, but it is our endeavor to meet them in the same spirit of honor to ourselves and our profession that characterizes the dealings of the doctor with a patient or lawyer with his client."

Mr. Baldridge explained that he was a member of the bar association of Texas and fully conversant with legal practices and methods and that it was his honest opinion that realtors had as strict a code which was followed just as closely as was that of the legal followers.

Woman Is Found Dead in Her Bed

BASTROP, Aug. 15.—Mrs. George Wolfenbarger, 45, was found dead with her throat slashed and a razor at her side in her home at Watterson near Bastrop at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, after she had asked her son for the razor to lance the swelling on her gum. She had been ill for the past week.

Mrs. Wolfenbarger called her small son to her bedside while her husband had gone after a bucket of water. She asked the boy for the razor to "cut that gum" then sent him out to feed the cows. When her husband returned he found her dead, her head almost severed from the body.

ELECTRIFIED MEXICAN RAIL LINE PLANNED

Contract Made With General Electric Company For Immediate Work

GRADES TOO HEAVY

Steam Locomotive Unable To Haul Trains Over Mountain Passes

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 15.—(AP).—Contact with the General Electric company to electrify 18 more kilometers of the Mexican railway from Vera Cruz to Mexico City at a cost of $250,000 has been signed and work will begin immediately, D. H. Holloway, vice president and general manager of the road, announced here today.

He is in San Antonio resting from his trip to London where he went as Mexican delegate of the International Railway Congress held there in July. He will report to President Calles on the results of the congress, he said.

550 Miles Long.

The Mexican railroad is 550 miles long. Recently 30 miles were electrified at a cost of $3.000,000, and 10 locomotives were bought from the same firms the road is dealing with now.

Electrification of the road was because of the heavy grade, 4 1-2 per cent, Mr. Holloway said. In some places the road is 9,000 feet above sea level.

"These engines under the new electrical system easily negotiate the grades," Mr. Holloway added. "Under the old system it was necessary for us to use two locomotives to make the grade. Eventually we will electrify the entire system."

Owned by British.

The Mexican railroad, said Mr. Holloway, is owned by British capital, being capitalized for $50,000,000. It has no financial connection with the National or Central Mexican lines which are owned by the government.

Mr. Holloway was favorably impressed with the railroad conditions. He spoke of the London railroad congress as well as the railroad centennial held at the same time commemorating the introduction of railroads into England 100 years ago. The appearance of George Stephenson's locomotive, side by side with the new Mallets, was unique, he said.

The length of the wooden side of his bunk, Toussaint has painted what prison officials say is an original and favorite maxim.

"There no defeat in life, save from within

"Unless you are beaten there, you're bound to win."

Other inscriptions are: "Be Master of Thyself," and "Anger is but a stone cast into a wasp's nest."

Prison officials and trusties are proud of the talent of Toussaint. They aid him in every possible way, assisting him to obtain the oils, brushes and any other equipment he may desire.

Henry J. Toussaint is probably the most colorful prisoner ever sent to the penitentiary from a Wichita county court. His arrest, trial and conviction here several years ago still stands as one of the dramatic legal battles of this territory; and aside from the interest aroused by the usual features of an important murder trial, Toursaint's education, training, temperment and eccentricities provided additional material on which a curious public fed.

Killed His Father.

The man was charged with having slain his father, O. H. Toussaint, at one time a Washington, D. C. hotel keeper of considerable wealth. The elder man and his son were in the contracting business here and were engaged in constructing the No. 2 fire station on Buchanan street when the elder man was shot and killed one night late in 1921. His son was arrested the next day and after a long questioning by police admitted the murder.

He was tried, defended by able attorneys, plead an inherent form of insanity as one defense and long domestic difficulty with his father as another—and was given the death penalty. Subsequently he won a new trial, was retired in Jones county on a change of venue and sentenced to life imprisonment.

While in the county jaail here Toussaint repeatedly demonstrated his talen along artistic, musical and engineering lines. He sketched many drawings of jail life, drew some excellent portraits of himself and county officials, composed a number of very pleasing songs, writing both words and music, and wrote numbers of letters to the newspapers discussing various problems of the day with fluency and a thorough understanding. When the county commissioners court at one time brought up the subject of a new jail Toussaint wrote them a letter, asking that he be allowed to draw plans and specifications for the structure and supervise its erection. His ability as an architect and engineer was never questioned but for obvious reasons the commissioners turned down the offer.

Got Out Once.

At one time Toussaint put his mechanical complex to work with sufficient success to make a break for freedom. From a spoon break for freedom. From a spoon sent into his cell with dinner one night he fashioned a key that unlocked three or four doors in the jail; and in the dead of night he cooly walked out. After several days of liberty, however, he was recaptured in Oklahoma and brought back to Wichita Falls.

Not so long ago J. W. McCormick, formerly a Texas ranger and well known peace officer of this city, was at Huntsville to deliver a prisoner and while there had quite a talk with Toussaint. The latter presented McCormick with a tiny model of the electric chair at the penitentiary—an exact replica of the gruesome seat, fashioned in wood with electrods, wires and all the other accouterments in their proper place. He also presented the officer with a pen and ink sketch of an electrocution of a negro a few days before.

To those who knew him, therefore his artistic bent as now being displayed comes as no surprise.

WHAT'S DOING HERE AND THERE IN WEST TEXAS

Haskell

Miss Xenia D. Bell, who is the guest of her sister and family, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Murchison, will leave soon for New York City, where she will be at the head of the voice department in a college for boys. Previous to her taking up her winter's work she will fill an engagement at Carnegie's Hall where she is billed to sing in a recital. Miss Bell took a post-graduate course at Baylor college some years ago and was then a member of the faculty, teaching voice for two years at this college. Last year Miss Bell was at the head of the voice department in a college in Arkansas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Odell have returned from the Odell camp ground, one mile from old Fort Griffin, one of the most beautiful spots in West Texas. There were 200 present on this occasion, August 6, 7 and 8, and 75 were camped the night before the opening day. The oldest member present was Mrs. J. L. Johns of Altus, Okla., who is 78. Mrs. Lucrecia Sears of Oklahoma, who is 86 years old, insisted on coming, but her 70- and 75-year-old children thought best not to bring her.

On last Wednesday morning Mrs. H. D. Neff was hostess to one of the loveliest parties of the season, a 42 party, honoring her house guests, Mesdames H. S. Scales, D. J. Payne, Bowen Pope, A. E. Pardue and G. W. Gray of Hamlin. This also was an initiative party as Mrs. Neff moved into her new home less than two months ago and the background of the bright new walls was added to by bowls of summer flowers. Mrs. J. L. Southern met the guests at the door and turned them over to the hostess, who introduced them to the honor guests and then little Miss Miss Christine Scales of Hamlin presented each with a hand painted score card and they were shown to their places at the tables by Mrs. M. B. Lebo. After the games were over, Mesdames H. R. English, J. L. Southern and M. B. Lebo served sandwiches and apricot ice with shasta daisies as plate favors to the honor guests and to Mesdames W. H. Murchison, C. L. Lewis, Hill Oates, R. E. Sherrill, O. E. Patterson, H. S. Wilson, R. J. Reynolds, B. M. Whiteker, Brockman, John Couch, W. A. Kimbrough, J. U. Fields, Hugh Smith, Wayne Koonce, T. A. Pinkerton, Hardy Grissam, Clayborn Payne, John Pace, R. C. Montgomery, S. R. Pike, Preston Baldwin, Date Anderson, George Morrison and Mrs. Ama Pinkerton Baker and daughter Ama Hortense of Dallas.

A pretty courtesy of the week was the "42" party given at the Magazine club library last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene English honoring Miss George B. Leath of Wichita Falls, house guest of Mr. and Mrs. McNeese. At the close of the games it was found that Maurice Smith had won high score and was given a box of candy which he gave to the honor guest. Weldon Moss made lowest score and was given a toy monkey. Then an improvised musical program was rendered which exhibited real talent; Mr. McNeese and Miss Leath played a number of duets and Miss Maurine Couch sang a vocal solo.

As a means to introduce her house guests, her sister, Mrs. Raymond Gutzler and Mrs. Fite of Wichita Falls to both Rule and Haskell friends, Mrs. J. D. Westbrook of Rule entertained last Thursday afternoon on her spacious lawn with a "42" party. The hostess received the guests and introduced them to the honorees. Then Mesdames Jim Lindsey and Dave Earnest showed the guests to the punch bowl where punch was served by Mrs. Servor Leon before they were given score cards by Mrs. White and shown to their places on the lawn. Mesdames Jess Campbell, Dave Ernest and Carouthers served ice cream and macaroons to the guests. The Haskell ladies in attendance were Mesdames R. J. Ernest, J. E. Bernard, R. C. Montgomery, C. L. Lewis, Ethel Irby, Courtney Hunt, W. H. Murchison, A. Pierson, John W. Pace, O. E. Patterson, P. D. Sanders, Fred Sanders, J. U. Fields, T. A. Pinkerton, Wayne Koonce, R. E. Sherrill, R. R. English, John Ellis, R. J. Reynolds, John Couch, Clayborn Payne, John P. Payne, Hardy Grissom and Roy Shook.

On last Thursday afternoon Mrs. John Oates named her sister Mrs. Wallace Alexander of Seymour as honor guest of the Thursday Bridge club which she entertained in her home. Mrs. Oates used bowls of zennias to brighten her living rooms and at the close of the games served a plate lunch to special guests, who were: Mesdames Alexander of Seymour, Thomas Sowell of Miami, Okla., and Steve Neathery, Ted Alexander, Courtney Hunt, Hardy Grissom, J. N. Fields and club members; Mesdames Hill Oates, J. E. Bernard, J. P. Payne, Clayborn Payne, W. H. Murchison and Roy Shook.

Mr. and Mrs. John Couch were host and hostess pro-tem in the absence of the teacher of the class, Carlton Couch, to the Fidelis class of the First Baptist Sunday school last Friday evening at the Magazine club library where a number of games of "42" were enjoyed by the guests. Brick ice cream and angel food cake was served to Misses Lucile Taylor, Lois Ernest, Marguerite Green, Mary Conner, Leta Simmons, Elva Cox, Estell Tennyson, Messrs. Richard Sherrill, Emory Menefee, W. P. Trice, Boyce, Jess Beaty and Harry Yates and A. C. Foster of Rule, Messrs. and Mesdames W. B. Smith, Hall, W. B. Silvers, J. P. and Clayborn Payne and John Couch.

One of the delightful affairs of the week among the younger set was a slumber party on Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Mask by Miss Erline Mask in honor of her house guests, Misses Louise Raney and Wirva Lee French of Wichita Falls. Games were played until 12 o'clock when a midnight lunch was enjoyed, then more frolic and fun until just at the first streak of dawn the party went out to Bledsoe's lake and enjoyed a swim and campfire breakfast. Those enjoying this affair were Misses Marjorie Rogers, Martha Lou Rogers, Katherine Rike, Virginia Whitman, Iola Tatlor, the honorees, Misses Louise Raney and Wirva Lee French of Wichita Falls, Ermie Mask and Mrs. W. M. Mask.

The Baptist missionary women had a splendid program on their last meeting. It is their custom to meet at the church in a body on the first and third Mondays and on the other two, second and fourth, to meet in circles at a given place. The subject on the above occasion was "Home Missions" and was directed by Mrs. Will Kirkpatrick, the devotional by Mrs. John Lampkin, then a hymn followed by a special prayer that "Our Country Might Honor the Truths of the Bible;" "The Kingdom of God in America," Mrs. D. Scott; "Our Mountain Schools," "American Born and Otherwise," Mrs. R. J. Reynolds; "Our Work in Cuba and Panama," Mrs. K. D. Simmons; "Our Work Among the Jews," "With the Deaf Mute and Our Soldiers and Seamen," Mrs. E. E. Eastland.

Little Miss Cora Louise Peirson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pierson, was hostess to a birthday party last Friday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock. Miss Cora Louise was three years old and invited in a large number of little folk to enjoy the games and story telling and cake and cream with toy kittens and balloons for favors. The guest list included: Frances Shook, Wynona Frances Post, Wallace Parish, Paul Roberts, Reynolds Smith, Mary Sue Murchison, Lucille Kirkpatrick, Elsie and Buster Gholson, Murl Draper, Beverly Gale King, William Richard Mulkey, Marie and David Ballard, Hugh Mack English, Paul Reunstler, Eloise Henson, Anita and Jack Simmons, Charles Hunt Smith, Geraldine and Gene Conner, Nita Joe Ratliff, Nova Bailey, Lynn Pace, Jr., Helen and Labry Ballard, Don Oates and Florene and Dorothy Morgan.

IF SICK TODAY! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your 30 feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often, causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work. —Adv.

POLITICAL POT TO GET WARM IN FEW WEEKS

Alignments for Summer's Battles Already Being Made in State

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 15.—A campaign of hidden forces, of unseen alignments, of mysterious cross-currents and uncertain shifts is assured for Texas within the next few months as a result of disclaimers, denials and substantial but unconfirmed rumors which in the past two weeks have laid the preliminary smoke screens for the political battlefield.

One open avowal of concealed movements of the klan phalanx toward the firing line next July 24 comes from H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the ku klux klan.

"We will have no candidate in the field," was the substance of this declaration.

Must Go Somewhere.

Even the voting strength of the klan, shown definitely in the run-off last year, is an unknown quantity. But there will be klan votes and they must go somewhere, in every race from governor to constable.

The second important factor which makes for uncertainty is the well developed indication the farm labor union will do like the klan and have no candidates. The F-LU nominating convention is to be thrown overboard, if the purpose of the leaders in the organization is followed. Many in this organization last year insisted the political activity was pushed by ambitious leaders, and did not represent the sentiment of the organization as a whole. This was apparently shown in the position T. W. Davidson won in the first primary of fourth in the governor's race.

Without an endorsed candidate, the F-LU vote will be a considerable body, certainly not wholly unified behind any one man, but probably guided by a mass tendency to certain candidates for different offices. Regardless of the strength of its leadership, this element will undoubtedly be an uncertain factor, one which may swing the balances overnight in any close race.

It is a political maxim that the greater the unity of one element, the more closely-welded its opposition. When the klan became the issue of the second primary, the opposition became a unit. Lacking a klan ticket, the opposition will be split over other issues. Lacking a F-LU endorsement, those opposed to clique organization in politics will not be forced into defensive unity.

Thus these two organizations will doubly add to the invisible cross-currents of uncertainty.

Ferguson Issues.

The Ferguson and anti-Ferguson issues will be there, undoubtedly foremost in the governor's race. But who will say there will not be uncertain eddies and backwaters in this situation? There are new Ferguson converts. There are those befriended by the administration. There are those who scent victory; those who sniff the spoils of victory from afar. There are many who voted for Ferguson in the second race as a hard choice, those who supported the seven losers in the first primary. There are those who have climbed off the Ferguson band wagon. The governor displeases more people than she pleases in appointments. There are thos who would support a Ferguson against any klansman, but who would not vote for a Ferguson against other anti-klansmen. There are displeased citrus farmers in the valley, and displeased cattlemen on the plains. Women who do not like for a woman honored with the highest office, to be called, no matter how unjustly, a figurehead.

There are Miriamites and Jimmites.

There are voters who supported Dan Moody and Governor Ferguson. Many of them. Should Moody be in the governor's race, the uncertainty over which they would turn is the only certainty now. If he runs for his traditional second term as attorney general, would the sharp lines which have been drawn between Ferguson and Moody still show traces in the governor's race?

G. O. P. Votes.

Texas has about 110,000 nominal republican votes. Last year, a republican candidate for governor received 300,000 votes, and the republicans voted against him. The sore discord and bitter strife of that race probably will not be repeated next year. May it never occur again.

But, nevertheless, how many of those who kicked over the traces will be marching again next year in democratic harness? Which way will they be pulling? More uncertainty.

It will be a merry whirlpool, the campaign of 1926, and the fragile timbers of political destiny will be tossed about the swirling currents in mysterious, mystifying uncertainty.

Sargossa Sea, Fabled In Maritime Romance, Refuted By Explorers

Explosion of a "myth" regarding the supposed existence of sea-weed and other vegetable life so thick that it is impossible for ships and ordinary seagoing craft to make their way, and a report of a change in the century-old routing of the famous Humboldt current in the Pacific ocean are two of the most interesting features of the story of Dr. William Beebe of the voyage of the "Arcturus" which recently returned to New York harbor after a six-months nautical exploration trip.

For the past 50 years the "Sagrossa Sea" has been the delight of the romancer and novelist who pictured to his readers wide wastes of ocean made almost solid with the sea-week; in which ships ranging from goldladen Spanish galleons to illicit rum-runners of the present day had been trapped, almost solid with the sea-weed; in ships perish when their food and water gives out, and the boats are left to be scuttled by time alone.

Might Be True.

While the myth of the trapped ships has always beenl aughed at by scientists has always been laughed at by scientsuch a sea of sea-weed was generally conceded. The position of ocean currents and prevailing winds in the Atlantic easily made possible, after the fashion of a gigantic slow whirlpool, the concentration of an immense amount of vegetable and animal life in some wide area in the mid-Atlantic.

But Dr. Beebe visited the Sargossa area twice, according to the story he tells in his narrative of the voyage of the "Arcturus," and in either instance failed to find any more sea-weed than might be seen on any trip to the West Indies. Since the presence of large quantities of the weed has been reported by persons whose veracity is beyond question, it is his opinion that occasionally, when the tides are right, the ocean currents right, and the winds right all the sea-weed in that part of the Atlantic may be concentrated to make some semblance of the fabled "Sargossa Sea." But, he believes, this will only occur at rare intervals.

The Humboldt current on the west coast of South Africa has been generally charged with the arid condition of the western portion of that continent. The current was supposed to begin in the Antractic ocean and follow the coast as far north as Peru where it is deflected into the mid-Pacific. It is a cold current, and by making the water in that portion of the Pacific colder than the nearby land it minimizes rainfall.

Keeps Temperatures.

The Arcturus, however, kept accurate thermometer readings on its trip down the Peruvian and Chilean coasts and failed to note any cold water, which would have been there had the current existed. On top of that for the first time in years the western coast of South America was visited by torrential rains which were absolutely without precedent in the history of the country. Should the rains continue a vast desert region of that country would be made one of the most fruitful sections of the world. The theory of Dr. Beede and other scientists is that for some unaccountable reason the Humboldt current has changed its routing or become entirely lost, the warm water of the tropical Pacific has been shot down the Chilean coast, the rains resulting from the changed temperatures.

Similar explanations of the occurrences are offered by Isaac F. Morcossan in an article on Peru in the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post. The story of Dr. Beede and the voyage of the Arcturus is related in detail in a recent Sunday issue of the New York Times magazine section.

NO TROUBLE IN SCHOOL.

Harmony Reigns in Southwestern, President Asserts.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 15.—Harmony reigns among the student body of the Southwestern Texas State Teachers college in San Marcos, Dr. C. E. Evans, president of the institution, declared in a statement to the San Antonio Light Saturday. There is no excitement and no agitation and the routine of the school is uninterrupted, he said. Student meetings have not been banned, he asserted.

WOMAN HELD ON BOND.

Is Alleged to Have Violated Federal Liquor Law.

DALLAS, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Caroline Miller, 55, was held under $1,500 bond here today after appearance before a United States commissioner on a liquor charge. She was arrested last night at an empty house where three negroes were loading an automobile with a still and 18 gallons of liquor.

Roberts Hurls And Bats Spuds To 14-7 Win Over Beaumont

HE RESCUES SUDS IN THIRD, GOES ROUTE

Homer and Thre Singles His Total at Plate Stops Batters

By MACK TURNER.

Big Jim Roberts went to the rescue of Suds Sutherland in the first half of the third inning with the score tied and pitched and batted the Spudders to a 14 to 7 win over Beaumont Saturday in the series final. Roberts poled out a long home run and three singles in four times at the bat. Metzler hit two singles and a triple, while Wee Freddie Dorman slapped the agate for a pair of two-baggers and a single. Chink Taylor collected a nonstop wallop and a pair of singles to lead the Beaumont hitters.

While the Spudders were pounding out their win over the Shippers, Waco was giving the Cats a setback by the total tabulation of 2 to 1. At the same time Grady Adkins was administering a 4 to 2 drubbing to the Houston Buffs and thus did the homelings gain at least a full game on the two leaders.

Fitz Is Back.

Howard Fitzgerald was greeted once more into the game, but the coming of Fitzgerald gave Tanner enough men to give Peter Turgeon a much needed rest, and Saturday the little Spud keystoner gave his bad leg and finger the long promised vacation.

Distel walked to open the first for Wichita. The fans gave Howard Fitzgerald a hand as he toed the plate for the first time for some time, and the Spudder center gardener promptly sent Distel to third with a scorching single to center, he taking second when Deviverous let Ormand's throw get away from him. Bodie sent a long sacrifice fly to Johnston in right. Distel scored after the catch.

Beaumont came back in the second for another pair. Deviverous was safe when Distel booted his grounder. Johnston singled to right, sending Deviverous t othird. Metz skied to Metzler, Diviverous scored after the catch. Graham singled past first, sending Johnston to third. Bodie let Fillingin's ground ball get away from him and Johnston scored Gram went to second.

Four Coming.

The Spudders scored four in the second inning. Williams walked and Williams drew up at third. Sutherland singled off Fillingan's glove, Williams scored and Dorman took third. Metzler singled to center scoring Dorman and sending Sutherland to second. Distel walked, filling the bases. Fitzgerald skied to Ormand and Sutherland scored after the catch. Bodie lined a hot single to center, scoring Metzler.

A walk, an error and a pair of sacrifices scored one more in the fourth for Wichita Falls. A double by Dorman, a single by Roberts, a long triple by Metzler and a double by Distel scored three more in the fifth.

Dorman Doubles.

Dorman's second double and a scorching single by Query scored another for the Spudders in the sixth.

Beaumont got to Roberts momentarily in the seventh and shoved over a pair of markers. Durning singled to left and Taylor to center, sending Durning to third. Schwab singled to center and took second when Dorman let Fitzgerald's throw get away from him. Durning and Taylor spiked the rubber.

The Spudders crashed back in the seventh for another pair. Fitzgerald gave Fillingin the badly needed shower with a single passed short. Kreneke was sent t othe rescue. Bodie dodged an inside pitch and singled, passed first base, sending Fitzgerald to second. Tanner doubled to left, scoring Fitzgerald and sending Bodie to third. Williams hit into a peculiar double play by grounding to Kreneke, who threw to Schwab to retire Williams. Tanner ran up on Bodie and forced him to start for home. Schwab threw to Deviverous, who dropped the ball but recovered in time to get Tanner going to second. Bodie scored on the play.

Payne Training To Start Sept. 1

SAN MARCOS, Texas. — Joe Bailey Cheaney, former Howard, former Howard Payne university star who will be head football coach at San Marcos Baptist academy this fall, announced that fall football training will start shortly after Sept. 1. With a nucleus of veterans about which to build his gridiron machine, Coach Creaney is expected to make a strong bid for the academy football championship of the state for 1925, despite the fact he will be coaching his first year.

Cheaney had his best of four years of football in 1924, when he captained the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets who won the pigskin title of the T. I. A. A. Cheaney was the star of every game and won for himself distinction as one of the outstanding backs of the entire south. He was the fastest man to play football in the southwest last season and his effectiveness as a football player was enhanced by his punting and passing ability. Coach E. J. Stewart of the Texas university Longhorns ranked Cheaney the equal of any halfback in the southwest conference.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Giard was too much for Cleveland today and St. Louis won, 3 to 0. Giard held the Indians to three hits. Miller kept the Browns from scoring until the ninth when doubles by McManus and Hargrave and singles by Evans and Giard produced three runs. Brilliant fielding by Speaker and the Cleveland infield prevented earlier scoring by the visitors. Score:

Record News To Meet Charley In Sunday Battle

What promises to be a hot battle from start to finish is scheduled for Sunday afternoon when the Record ews baseball team hooks up with the Charley aggregation in a game on the latter's diamond, some 25 miles northeast of here. All arrangements for the game have been made and a big crowd is expected.

The Record News nine has gone through a number of games this summer and established a very enviable record. Charley, too, has set an undefeated mark so far in a number of hard fought games with strong amateur teams in this section.

Holman Takes Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 15. — (AP)— Cranston P. Holman of San Francisco won the national junior tennis title here today be defeating Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Iowa, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. Holman's victory takes the title to the Pacific coast for the first time.

It took Holman, who squeezed into the junior class this year by a scant six days, just fifty minutes to run out the three sets for the championship. Holman's list of victoms this year includes George Lott of Chicago, John Hennesse of Indianapolis, William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, all included in the nation's first ten, and Manuel Alonzo, captain of the Spanish Davis cup team.

Kramer Knocked Out In First Inning, Then Attack Continues

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds went on a batting rampage today and easily defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 8 to 1. Kremer was driven from the mound in the first inning by an attack of hits, including home runs by Roush and Critz. Oldham, obtained this week from Des Moines was effective with the exception of the sixth, Gooch was spiked in the third inning and Carry suffered an injury to his ankle while sliding into second but it was not expected he would be kept out of the game. FAMOUS GONG CHANGES

CARSON CITY, Nev.—The gong used at the world championship heavyweight prizefight here March 17, 1897, when Jim Corbett lost the title to Bob Fitzsimmons, has been given by Mrs. Sadie Manton to her son a resident of Texas, whose father was one of Corbett's trainers. Mrs. Manton purchased the old bell from Andrew Todd, Sr., of Carson City, who has had it in his possession since the day of the battle.

Mahoney Meets Varner Thursday

Jimmy Mahoney, Chicago welterweight, will try to do what Duke Trammel failed in last Thursday—whip Walter Varner on the Legion fight card next Thursday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena. Both give their weight as 155 pounds.

Freddie Wilder and Kid Rich are slated to hook up in the eight-round semi-final of the card. Both are big favorites here and should make a fast scrap.

Young Murdock probably will be used in the third fight, but no opponent has as yet been picked for the little speed demon. Joe Rivers, the Cowtown Mexican, asked for a return fight with Murdock, and there is a chance of the two being rematched.

For a special event of the card a negro battle royal will be staged.

The PASSING HOUR

LINES TO MR. KRONOS

(Cobb plans to retire around the hundred game mark this season.—News Item.)

I can see with the poet a world without books—
I can see as he couldn't, a world without crooks—
But while Ty, still resplendent, is close on the job,
I can not imagine Detroit without Cobb!

The Pirates may win—for the're leading today—
But they've not been the same since old Hans went away;
But a Wagnerless Pittsburgh looms big on the eye
Besides a Detroit that must do without Ty!

There is St. Looye's Sisler—there's the boast of the Cards,
R. Hornsby—the toasts of the Mound City bards;
Take 'em both and promote to their laurels some slob—
But Time—have a heart—and leave us Ty Cobb!

Concerning Expert Opinion.

TENNIS authors have come in for enough criticism of one sort and another of late, and it seems if memory is correct that the association last year, in defining its player-author rule, was clear enough on one point—that the pseudo-journalists had to do their own writing.

Relying upon the Fort Worth Record for a King syndicate feature, Helen Wills over a Boston date line, August 8, comments upon the possibilities of the Anzac Davis cup team. Her expert analysis of Gerald Patterson's play concludes with: "His smashing is at times spectacular and recalls that of Maurice McLaughlin."

Miss Willis is a sophomore at California this year, and presumably nineteen. It is ten years since Maurice McLaughlin faded out as the country's greatest tennis player and while of course the Comet still plays and Miss Wills is a fellow Californian, presumably expert comparative analysis is based on the form McLaughlin showed as an internationalist.

Miss Wills' expert opinions must have been formed at the advanced age of nine or ten.

Bureau of efficiency, Washington, says that men have gotten in the habit of carrying ten or fifteen dollar bills around in their pockets. We can understand how to get the habit but not how to get the ten or fifteen dollar bills.

The bureau of efficiency sounds like the optimistic kind of guessers you would like to meet in a poker game.

Here's One Pretty Race.

WHILE the Cats, Buffs and Steers seem to be battling among themselves for the final allocation of the Texas league's second half lead, there is a pretty race going on between Houston and Waco for the lead in baseball's niftiest team stunt—the double play. One or the other will lead in this department this year.

The Waco club had the lead on July 31 but on Saturday last, the Buffs had forged to the front again with 132 against 131.

It is a practical impossibility for either to break a record this year but both will probably surpass the best recorded marks of recent seasons, except the record. That is 278, set by Wichita Falls in 1920. The closest mark to that is San Antonio's 158 last season.

Wichita Falls' record was made possible by a great short and second combination which played together all year, Shorty Adams and Al White, perhaps the best the loop has ever seen.

Neither Waco nor Houston has had the use of the star cogs in their double play machine all this year, Cohen joining the Cubs after the season was well under way and Fuller the Buff's dazzling defensive second sacker, being out much of the time. Pratt has had no other real shortstop to work with and Kane no other good second sacker. Waco has the edge in a good fielding third, short or second combination where the Buffs have not.

Mrs. Dempsey's prospective next opponent is beginning to wonder if where there's a Wills, there's a way.

A lot of sports writers appear to be grieved by the lack of American mile runners, and urge the youth of the day to forego the sprints for the long grind. A mile is easier to write about than to run.

Now and then, at baseball field days, they have prizes for sprint contests for sports writers. This feature of the program is also notably shy in mile runs.

Where Credit Belongs.

JOHN HEISMAN says that the fault of the Rice athletes who failed to make enough courses last spring to become eligible for the teams can only be laid at the door of the athletes themselves. This is unquestionably an axiom and Mr. Heisman is not required to prove it. Rice's standards are unusually high and make it very difficult for the athlete to put in as much time as is required to meet them and at the same time pursue his side avocation. But the percentage of failure to satisfy the scholastic requirements is no higher at Rice than at any other institution of higher learning where the faculty assumes for some reason that the primary idea of attending is for the student, athlete or not, to get an education.

However, the country over, the cry is an annual one that the faculty has a biased attitude towards the athlete and if given a square deal the faltering star would be eligible. By a "square deal" is implied a lightening of the prescribed burden along educational lines.

As a matter of fact, the chief trouble with the slipping athlete is a biased attitude towards the faculty. Mr. Heisman has the right idea.

Epilepsy Specialists To Study in Austin

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 15.—America's leading specialists of epilepsy will gather in Texas next month to conduct studies and experiments in the most profound study of the cause of this disease yet undertaken, and Dr. Grady Shytles of Abilene, physician in the Texas epileptic colony will take part in the work, it was announced by R. B. Walthall, member of the board of control, who returned with Dr. Shytles from attending clinics in Chicago and Battle Creek. The two Texas officials made the trip at their own expense, Walthall pointed out.

Among the specialists who will come to the Texas Epileptic colony are: Dr. Paul C. Schnoebelen, Dr. J. H. Kellogg, Dr. C. C. Case and Dr. J. S. Pritchard of Battle Creek and Dr. Carl Darnell of the University of Illinois. They will spend more than 10 days in the Texas institution.

SPOKE LEADS JUNIOR LEAGUE BY .391 MARK

Veteran Cobb and Heilman Trail Cleveland Man

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Three veterans who have seen containuous service in the American league for periods of from 10 to 20 years are today fighting for batting honors.

The trio is topped by Tris Speaker, gray thatched leader of the Cleveland Indians, now in his sixteenth consecutive year, who is hitting .392. Quite a distance back is Harry Heilmann, veteran of 10 straight years with Detroit, who is holding the runnerup position with .378. Ty Cobb, the Georgia Peach, who has been one of the greatest players in baseball since joining Detroit 20 years ago, is only two points behind Heilmann, with a mark of .376. The average includes Wednesday's games.

Ken Williams of the Browns failed to increase his home run total of 24. Bob Meusel of the Yankees added one to his string and is trailing the St. Louis slugger with 23.

Other leading batters:

H. Rice, St. Louis, .375 Simmons, Philadelphia, .372; Sisler, St. Louis, .369; Lamar, Philadelphia, .365; E. Rice, Washington, .357; Wingo, Detroit, .354; Hale, Philadelphia, .354; Manush, Detroit, .351; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .348; Collins, Chicago, .347.

Rogers Hornsby furnished the thrill among the National league batters, in getting a dozen hits in his last six games. Today he is leading the pack with an average of .401. Three of his blows were homers, which gave him a record of 34 four baggers for this season.

Jimmy Bottomly, also of the Cardinals, is hitting .387, a gain of five points over his previous mark. Milton Stock of the Dodgers is still in third place, despite a loss of nine points. He is hitting .363.

Max Carey and Hazen Cuyler, the two speedy Pirates are running away with the base steling honors. Max swiped five bases for a total of 30, while his team mate is trailing with 25, a gain of three over last week. Cyuler advanced his scoring mark to 112.

Other leading hitters:

Fournier, Brooklyn, .361; Blades, St. Louis, .361; Harper, Philadelphia, .358; Burrus, Boston, .354; J. Wilson, Philadelphia, .353; Wrightstone, Philadelphia, .347; Bressler, Cincinnati, .346; Terry, New York, .345; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, .343; Felix, Boston, .343.

SPORTS 4; BUFFS 3.

SHREVEPORT, Aug. 15.—A near first fight between Jay Kirke and Johnny Kane and an encounter between Managers Goodwin and Smith marked the final game of the series between the Sports and Buffs here today that was won by the locals 4 to 3. Kane and Kirke came near to blows in the fifth inning when Kane came to Hollohan's rescue when Kirke became peeved at Hollohan's razzing from the coaching line. As Kirke started toward Hollohan's Kane rushed out of the dug-out and it took a half dozen players to separate them. In the seventh Manager Smith planted a couple of good wallops on Goodwin's face when the pair engaged in an argument in front of the Shreveport dug-out after the umpires had warned both managers that they keep discipline among their players. Goodwin pulled away from Smith and reached for a bat but Smith locked arms and continued to pummel him until players of both teams separated them. Goodwin and Smith were ordered from the field and police escorted them from the park. No charges were made against them. Bad feeling between the players when McCurdy was hit in the back by Pitcher Adkins. Several players accused Adkins of using the "bean ball."

DEMPSEY STILL A RING KING SAYS EDGREN

Champ, Back From Europe, Able to Stand With Any of Them

By ROBERT EDGREN.

Europeans must have peeped at Jack Dempsey through magnifying glasses when the world's champion was abroad last spring.

The cables were kept hot describing how Dempsey was hog fat and puffed even at the slightest exercise.

After giving Jack the once over several times I'm satisfied those foreign reports were either very much exaggerated or the title holder has discovered a new method for reducing quickly. Dempsey today looks in fine condition and with four or six weeks of training ought to be close to top form.

Jimmy De Forrest is visiting Dempsey's training quarters. De Forest trained Dempsey for the championship fight at Toledo. That makes his impression of the champion at this itme rather interesting.

In Good Shape.

"Jack looks very good," said De Forest. "I didn't expect to see him in such condition. He isn't carrying any fat and he doesnt look soft. I think he could be in condition to fight Tunney with four weeks of training, and he wouldn't need more than six weeks to get ready for Wills.

"I don't say that he will ever be the Dempsey of Toledo again. He's several years older now. That day he was a youngster just through a long campaign of hard fighting, and he trained a long time for Willard. He was the finest athlete that day I've ever seen. Dempsey is a natural athlete anyway—a perfect physical specimen. He'd have been a champion in any line of sport. When he fought Willard he could have fought all afternoon. He was full of dynamite. A fighter reaches the top of his form only once, and Dempsey reached his the day he knocked Willard out. He can hardly have the same tremendous energy at thirty that he had at twenty-four. But aside from that I can't see that he's gone back at all. Dempsey has taken good care of himself and his conidtion proves it. If he goes on fighting, there's no reason why he shouldnd't be champion for a long time. I haven't seen the man yet who can beat him."

Set-Up for Dempsey.

Tommy Ryan, former middleweight champion, was another of Dempsey's visitors. Ryan trained Jeffries for the fight with Fitzsimmons at Coney Island. He has boxed with many champions and probably there's no other old time fighter who knows more about ringcraft.

"Dempsey is a rough guy," said Ryan after watching the champion at work. "One of his sparring partners was a tall, lanky novice. Dempsey knocked him out with the first punch, picked him up and stood him on his feet and pasted him on the body and jaw for a cold knockout. They tell me that's the way he always works. His sparring partners have to fight him and take their chances. I wouldn't call him a boxer. He's a strong, fast fellow with a wallop and that's all. I'd like to see Dempsey up against Jim Jeffries the way Jim was when he beat Fitz. I trained Jeff for that fight. When he began I could hit him on the nose whenever I wanted to. He was anxious to learn and I showed him everything I could. I put on the gloves with him two or three days before the fight and he surprised me by cutting loose with everything he'd learned. He nearly knocked my head off and I couldn't lay a glove on him. Jeff had a great straight left. Dempsey wouldn't be so rough if he had Jeff in front of him—the way Jeff used to be when he was champion. Jeff didn't take care of himself after he whipped Fitzsimmons, but the way he was that night at Coney Island, theres' no other man I've ever seen who could have stood up in front of him.

S. M. U. GRIDIRON MENTOR FACES A HARD TASK

Graduation of Bevy Of Stars Leaves Big Hole To Fill

DALLAS, August. 12.—Deprived of the aid of "Big Un" Freeland, expert line coach, and faced with the necessity of replacing such great stars as "Blink" Bedford, all-southwestern end; "Buddy" King, all-southwestern center; "Duke" Reisor, all-southwestern fullback; and 'Stolly" Stollenwerck, all-southwestern quarterback, Ray Morrison, head football coach of the S. M. U. Mustangs, is faced with the monumental task of fashioning an eleven this fall that will live up to the great performances of the 1923 and 1924 Mustang elevens. Fortunately Coach Morrison will have the assistance of Jimmy Stewart, all-southwestern end of the Mustangs in 1923, and McIntosh, star guard of the 1923 and 1924 elevens. Stewart will have charge of the ends, and McIntosh will give his particular attention to the guards, tackles and centers.

Stars Graduate.

Freeland is now head football coach at West Texas Technological college; while Bedford, King, and Stollenwerck, along witil several other stars have graduate. In 1923, the Mustangs went through an undefeated season, winning the southwestern conference championship. Last season the Ponies were undefeated by and southwestern conference rival, but Morrison's men were tied by the Texas Aggies, the Baylor Bruins, the Oklahoma Aggies, and the Arkansas Razorbacks, and for this reason the title went to the Baylor Bruins, who won all their conference games, except of course the tie game with the Mustangs.

In addition to Bedford, King, Reisor and Stollenwerck, other brilliant performers who will be missing when Coach Morrison sounds the tocsin of grid war earlyin September are McIntosh, a sturdy, hard fighting guard, who will not play again for the Ponies, but who will be assistant coach this fall; "Chink" Pierson, fleet back; Walling, a hard plunging halfback; and Henry, big end, who was a fit running mate last season for the super-brilliant Bedford.

Sept. 26—North Texas Teachers at Dallas.
Oct. 3—(Open.)
Oct. 9—Washington university at Dallas.
Oct. 16—Texas A and M. college at College Station.
Oct. 24.—Oklahoma university at Dallas.
Oct. 31—Texas university at Dallas.
Nov. 7—Arkansas universlay at Dallas.
Nov. 14—Baylor universlay at Dallas.
Nov. 26—Drake university at Dallas

Golf As Is!

DALLAS, Aug. 15.—Golf at the Dallas country club this week fabricated several queer quirks, according to Pat Green, assistant pro at the course. First off, Dr. Thomas Cook, playing the eighteenth hole, dropepd a long iron shot across a creek and killed a lark on the putting green. He claimed a "birdie" but his opponent refused to allow the claim.

Then Arthur Wimmer played a mashie shot across the creek and seperated a mocking bird from a long worm it was pulling out of a hole. Enraged at the interference, the bird chased the ball and when it came to rest, gave it a sound flogging. The ball finally rolled into the cup. Wimmer's opponent refused his claim of a "hole-in-one," because the ball stopped before the bird attacked it.

Lose Wightman Cup

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP).—British women tennis players successfully defended the Wightman cup today, defeating the United States four matches to three in the two-day series.

Tho deciding victory fro Britain was scored in the final match of the series, a doubles encounter in which Miss Evelyn Coyler and Miss Kathleen McKane defeated Mies Helen Wills and Miss Mary Brown, 6-0, 6-3.

Fogarty Dead

BRIDGES GETS PLANS LAID FOR BIG CARD

Baylor Bears Faced With Hard Football Schedule This Year

WACO.—Frank Bridges, dimutive, astute mentor of the Baylor university Bears, is giving much thought these days to the opening engagement of the 1925 pigskin campaign which will throw the Bruins, champions of the Southwest conference in 1924, against the Notre Dame Micks, champions of the United States last season. This encounter, which is expected to attract much attention from the sport-loving world, will be played September 25 at South Bend, Ind. Since Knute Rockne, famed coach of Notre Dame, will coach a comparatively green combination this fall, it is believed the Texans will give a splendid account of themselves.

Has Hard Card.

The game against Notre Dame is typical of the schedule of the Bears, which is one of the most attractive eves arranged for a Southwest conference school. In addition to the contest with Notre Dame, games have been scheduled with T. C. U. Texas A. and M., Texas University, S. M. U. and Rice, outstanding Southwest conference schools, and with Denton normal, Trinity university, Howard Payne and St. Edward's university, our strong T. I. A. A. schools.

With so strenuous a schedule arranged, it is fortunate Coach Bridges will have available a large number of the members of the championship aggregation of last season. Some of the letter men of 1924 who will return are "Bear" Walker, captain and all-conference center; Jack Sisco, all-conference guard; Sam Coates, all-conference tackle, and perhaps the outstanding player in the conference last season; "Bubba" Nash, light, but hard-fighting end; Jack Jones, red-headed fullback of much promise; Benny Strickland, halfback who is expected to be one of the most sensational figures in the conference in 1925, and George Fall, who likely will be the first string quarterback during the coming season, since Coffey and "Ping" Collier, sterling quarterbacks of 1923 and 1924, will not return.

Oct. 3—Denton Normal at Waco.
Oct. 13—T. C. U. at Dallas.
Oct. 17—Trinity university at Waco.
Oct. 24—Howard Payne at Waco.
Oct. 31—Texas A and M. at Waco.
Nov. 7—University of Texas at Austin.
Nov. 14—Southern Methodist university at Dallas.
Nov. 20—St. Edward's university at Waco.
Nov. 26—Rice Institute at Houston.

Japanese Win

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—Japan today won the right to meet Australia in the third round of the Davis cup preliminary matches by halving the two singles matches with Spain a tthe Baltimore country club. Takeichi Harada, youthful Japanese star, proved himself the master of the Spanish captain, Manuel Alonso, in a thrilling match played under a broiling sun. The scores were 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Eduardo Flaquer of Spain, who lost to Harada in the first day's play, showed improved form in defeating the Japanese veteran, Zenzo Shimizu, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, but the day had already been lost for Spain. Japan had won the round, three matches to two.

Britishers Win

FOREST HILL, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Great Britain increased her lead to 3 to 1 in the international tennis women's tennis series for the Wightman cup when Mrs. Lambert Chambers defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, United States, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, in the first match today.

Dallas Man Leaps From Burning Building.

DALLAS, Aug. 15.—J. W. Watson, 27, was bodly injured when he jumped from the second story of a frame rooming house here today to escape flames which entrapped seven persons. The others escaped injury by leaping to safety.

The 20-months-old-daughter of Mrs. J. M. Conrad was overcome by smoke while being carried from the building by Mrs. Conrad.

JIMMY SHIPLEY HOLDS BEST BATTING AVERAGE AMONG THE SUNDAY SCHOOL HARD HITTERS

Jimmy Hits at .607 in 28 Trips to Plate; Riley Rawls Is Rated Second Best With Average of .500

The final Sunday School league batting averages as compiled by Gerard Boone show that Jimmy Shipley, First Presbyterian pitcher, is the leading hitter of the league. Jimmy pounding the pill at a .607 clip in 28 trips to the plate. Some would rate Riley Rawls, First Methodist centerfielder, as the leader. The big fellow led the league in hist with 21 safe blows for an average of .500. Rawles also leads everything in the league in the way of a slugger. He has seven doubles and three home runs, leading in two baggers, and tied with several others in home run honors. There are 41 hitting above the charmed .300 mark.

Spitzbergen Men Are Men, Says M. D

LONGYEAR CITY, Spitzbergen, Aug. 16.—There are no old, and very few elderly people in Spitzbergen. The great majority are husky, long-limbed lads from Northern Norway of any age up to 40, with a sprinkling of Swedes, Finns, Scots, Russians and Germans. They all stand squarely on their feet and have fists like hams.

There is practically no mortality here, the doctor in charge of the excellently equipped little hospital told an Associated Press correspondent.

According to this medical authority, living in Spitzbergen is extraordinarily healthy and a doctor is rarely needed except in cases of accident such as happen in any mining or engineering industry.

While the doctor was holding forth to the correspondent about the salubrity of the Spitzbergen air, six or eight horny-handed fellows shuffled in, one after the other, and sat down silently waiting.

"But here are patients, doctor," the correspondent said.

TALKING MOVIE PERFECTED

WASHINGTON.—Successful test of a "talking movie radio' set has been announced by C. Francis Jenkins, Washington inventor, who said the apparatus had transmitted motion pictures to a screen and simultaneous description of them to a loud speaker on a single wave length.

For the experiment, Mr. Jenkins said he moved about beore the picture transmitting set and described his actions, an audience in another room viewing the reproduction picture and listening to the inventor's voice coming through the speaker.

FIRST BALE IN 1925

HASKELL, Texas, Aug. 15.—Haskell county's first bale of 1925 cotton was brough to this city Saturday by Sam Greene, a farmer living 12 miles southeast of here.

It is being held until Monday when it will be sold.

Germans Puzzled At Booze Cravings

BERLIN.—The American appetite for alcoholic beverages of which so much has been heard both in the United States and abroad is a disappointment to Berlin. Hotel keepers of the German capitol who have been counting for months on American tourists to make their season profitable confess to great chargin because Americans so largely stick to ice water, lemonade and other soft drinks instead of succumbing to the allurements of wine, hampagne and beer.

The hotel keepers had figured that Americans on getting away from the restrains of the prohibition laws of their own country would indulge in the choicest treasures of Berlin wine cellars. Their hopes in large degree have been disappointed and the Berliners are at a loss to account for it.

Mount Shasta To Erupt, Experts Fear

REDDING, Cal., Aug. 15.—Unusual conditions in the vicinity of Mount Shasta, near here, have given rise to the belief that among many others the old crater is getting ready for volcanic activity.

In vestigations by the bureau of fisheries show that the water of the McCloud river is four degrees warmer than normal, that the surface of Mount Shasta is warmer than usual, that the mud flow is increasing and that the grass is dying in the meadows earlier than usual. Heat in the bowels of the mountain is believed to be the cause of the peculiar conditions.

Humble Starts Mid-Continent Crude Price Cutting Saturday

TAKES LEAD IN DOWNWARD SLASH MOVE

Other Companies Fail To Follow Saturday's Upheaval

EXPECTED MONDAY

Humble Buys About 10,000 Barrels a Day In North Texas

The Humble Oil and Refining company started what is generally accepted as a belated summer slump in the North Texas oil industry yesterday morning when shortly after seven and Central Texas naming a de o'clock new crude oil prices for North crease of between five and 37 cents in the Humble offerings here. The cut affects Wichita Falls crude mainly to the extent of about a 25-cent reduction, most of it here averaging around 39 degrees or slightly better.

Humble buys something like 10,000 barrels a day from its connections, having lately brought an extensive pipeline system into North Texas, and takes about 5,000 barrels a day of its own from the area.

At one o'clock yesterday, the close of the oil industry's Saturday business hours other crude buyers here had received no notice of a follow on the Humble cut. In all of them though there was a noticeable atmosphere of expectation, and Monday morning was set generally as the time when the Texas, Prairie and Gulf would cut too.

The cut was expected following last week's Pennsylvania cutting. Producers remind themselves that a cut is much better than last year's proration of runs.

Following is the Humble schedule of prices effective Saturday 7 a. m. in North Texas, Ranger, Powell, Richland, Wortham, Litton Springs, Moran and Currie fields.

News Of The Fields

Magnolia, Jiggs

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1, Jiggs-Waggoner in the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 11, block 4, H&TCRROO survey, Wilbarger county, was reported yesterday drilling past a last depth of 400 feet.

Magnolia, Davis

Magnolia's No. 1 Davis in block 2326, TE&L CO survey, north of the Humble-Reiter-Foster, Stubblefield group, was reported last drilling at a depth of about 1,100 feet. The well is located several miles southeast of the town of Throckmorton, in Throckmorton county.

Deep Smackover

The deep sands at Smackover were producing at the rate of 156,632 barrels a day Thursday from 651 completions, of which 164 are dead. The Graves sand is accredited with 139,992 barrels output from 613 wells and the Lawton with 16,440 barrels from 38 wells.

Travis County

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Plateau Oil company of Arizona will early next week spud in a wildcat well near Lund in the northeast corner of Travis county, Gregg Hill, who owns the lease on which the well will be sunk, said today. Mr. Hill said that he and his assistants had leases on several thousand acres in the Lund area. Mrs. M. Benjston owns the farm on which the test will be drilled.

Woodbine Sands

Powell is yielding 45,490 barrels from 821 wells, a loss of 440 wells and 1 new wells in.

Mexia is producing 19,100 barrels from 454 wells, a loss of 150 barrels and two less wells.

East Lawton

The following is the comment of Paul Hedrick, Tulsa World oil editor in yesterday's issue of that paper regarding the east Lawton well:

The news that George Hanbury had found a 39 gravity oil sand in No. 1 Munson, in the southeast corner of the southwest of the southeast of the northeast of 30-2n-9w, Comanche county, at 1,999 to 2,005 feet, was regarded Friday as one of the outstanding developments of the summer in Oklahoma. The well started off at 35 barrels an hour, but for the first 24 hours it averaged around 26 barrels an hour. This completion is expected to cause considerable new work in that aren, particularly in western Stephens county and eastern Comanche county.

North Texas Oil Faces Crude Cut

That North Texas' oil industry, always at the mercy of big company posted prices for crude oil, is figuratively sitting on top of a volcano which may open up and engulf producer, operator and refiner alike at most any time, was brought home forcefully early this past week, with the announcement from Pittsburg that the leading purchasing agencies there had posted a 25-cent reduction in the price for seven grades of Pennsylvania oil. A general spirit of optimism in the industry which began early in the summer when June found not too plentiful stocks and a declining production in the face of a big consumptive period had until this week lulled most of the industry into a false sense of security that kept activity at the top-notch of the year and at a paco without precedent in North Texas oil history for a summer month.

In the field production, while not forced to any big increase here, was at least kept up to par; the refiners increased their crude runs beyond all proportion, and the whole industry was brought face to face with a marketing and jobbing system that astutely refused to buy far ahead when they knew that there was much more crude being produced than consumption, albeit the heaviest ever known, could care for, and that gasoline stocks had increased much more than good business demanded that they should.

The Pennsylvania cut brought these facts home, and within a week have changed market prognostications from a decidedly optimistic and stable tone to that of uncertain pessimism. There is too much oil being produced, and too much gasoline in storage, and North Texas has begun to realize it.

North Olney promised the week something new when the Sun Oil company uncovered a good looking oil sand at 1,151-55 feet in its No. 1, Dietrich, located about a mile east of the Gambrell pool and west of the Mercer pool in the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of the B. B. B. & C. R. R. Co. survey, section 4, abstract 1700. Bailing showed some oil and some water. In drilling deeper a small break was found and then two feet sand at 1,157-59 feet. The well was abandoned at a depth of 1,251 feet.

Murchison-Fain-Marland Complete Southeast Litchfield Extension

Murchison and Fain and Marland of Texas completed their No. 1, Campbell, in block 1370, T. E. & L. Co. survey, Campbell farm, for a possible 10 or 20 barrel well from sand just above 1,000 feet. The well extends the Litchfield production about 1,500 feet to the southeast. In the northeast Litchfield extension Petroleum Producers have a 75-barrel well in their No. 2, Kilcrease, in the northeast corner of their 20 acres in block 1809 from sand at 1,018-25 feet. Plains is drilling one well, its No. 6, completion held up now due the derrick being pulled in Thursday when the hole was down about 900 feet.

Among the interesting wildcats due for some sort of a play in the next week or 10 days is seen Texhoma-Murchison-Fain's No. 1, J. T. Richardson, in the center of the northwest quarter of block 11, Thomas McCoy survey, north of the Carey district, down several hundred feet; Marland's No. 3, Krupka, in the south part of their big block east of Swastika spudded and drilling; Gwynn and Hedrick No. 1, Neale in the Sulphur Fork iron works survey, north of the Ragle pool, rigging up rotary, and that of Plains Production company et al., on the Haygood farm in block 1360, T. E. & L. Co. survey, two miles south of the Litchfield pool, down past 760 feet and drilling.

Barkley-Meadows Area Is Only Active Spot in North Archer

In the north Archer county area Freeman and Hampton scored with a 400-barrel well in their No. 3, Wilson, offsetting Robertson et al., to the east, on the west side of the Barkley and Meadows area. No. 2, south of their original well is a dry hole and have a derrick to the north for No. 3. Robertson and Muse are skidding south for their No. 2, Lomax, is drilling and at this writing looking for the sand on No. 4 and rigging up on two others, block 88, A. T. N. C. L. Barkley and Meadows are drillnig past 1,000 feet on two wells on their lease. The area is possibly the most active in the county.

In the district east of the old Texhoma-Gose pool Texhoma has better than a 100-barrel well in its No. 44, Gose, south of the Riner and Bailey completion, section 8, A. T. N. C. L. sand at 1,684-87 feet. No. 45, west of the well is down 920 feet and drilling and No. 46 is a location 300 feet east of No. 44.

Wichita county was quiet, practically nothing of importance occurring in any one of the numerous little pools which are showing an inconsiderable amount of drilling.

In Wilbarger county Murchison and Fain scored again in their No. 1 Waggoner, in the southeast corner of the east 10 acres of the north half of the northwest quarter of section 50, block 14, which flowed and swabbed better than 300 barrels from sand below 1,390 feet. The well is between the Gulf's group and the Humble's well, and may have opened a fourth producing horizon there. Nearly a quarter of a mile west Humble has started deeper after failing to get its regular 1,300-foot sand here.

New and Deeper Producing Horizon Looms for South Vernon Field Now

A new and deeper productive horizon for south Vernon is a realty now with a semi-completion in Barkley and Meadows a No. 1-B, Stephens, in the northeast corner of the northwest 40 acres of northeast quarter of section 83, showing for a nice well from a sandy lime at 2,379-2,400 feet, the first completion to date there for a well that deep.

Roughly speaking the stratum is regarded as the same picked up by Humble on its Castlebury well of last week in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of the same section, which although found some higher, ostensibly, is about the same level when surface levels are taken into consideration. The Barkley and Meadows well is better than a half mile northwest of the Humble well.

The hole had a 5 3-16 inch liner set yesterday in the sand at 2,379-2,400 feet, with a string of two and one-half inch swedged in. The hole was full of fluid and made small heads between swabbing in the two-inch tubing. It looked like a good well, with estimates varying from 100 to 200 barrels. It is intended to pull the small tubing and run a full string of five inch casing and complete.

Neither Throckmorton Or Baylor Counties Show Much

A north offset to the well by Prince Brothers in section 84 was plugged and abandoned some time ago as a bad job at a slightly shallower depth, one of the first wells in the field at a time when this east side was strictly a wildcat proposition.

On the south line of the lease, one location west from the southeast corner Barkley and Meadows have a fishing job in their No. 3-A, Stephens, showing for some sort of a well from sand at 2,305-15 feet. A bit twisted off in the sand.

In the notrhwest corner of its 40 acres in section 80, block 14, east side of the field Atlantic Oil Producing company is going to drill deeper to try to make a well at 2,300 feet in its No. 3, Zipperle, for a long time a small producer at 1,800 feet. No. 5, Zipperle is standardizing to drill into a sandy lime at 2,360 feet showing some oil.

Texhoma Oil and Refining company and Republic reported the sole new well in Montague in their No. 1, J. W. Rowland, going on the pump for a possible 25 barrels a day from sand at 840 feet, Samuel Little survey. The No. 1, J. E. Lemons is plugging back to make a gas well at 800 feet after after showing dry down to 1,902 feet

Waite Phillips Merger Is Talk Of Oil Capital

The "on again, off again, on again, off again" angles that the attempts of Waite Phillips to sell his oil company, that bears his name, appear to be definitely nearing an end, says the Tulsa World Saturday.

After innumerable rumors that the deal was on, then after vigorous denials that it was off, or not on, New York and Tulsa financial interests have received semi-official information to the effect that the first phase of the sale has actually been consummated.

The Standard Oil company of Indiana, through its aggressive subsidiary the Dixie Oil company, will purchase the Waite Phillips company for $20,000,000, of which $15,000,000 is to be cash and the remainder in other forms on a basis that was satisfactory to the seller.

Two Million Already.

The sum of $2,000,000 has already been received in Tulsa as the first 10 per cent payment and this has been handed to Waite Phillips, or to one of his accredited representatives.

The actual transfer will take place very shortly and it gives the Indiana concern, a more intensive hold on the Mid-Continent than it has previously held.

Blair Engineers Deal.

Blair and company, bankers de luxe of New York City, engineered the sale and brought in the Indiana company as a buyer, after the Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company had failed to make terms with Mr. Phillips, and the W. C. Durant interests had fallen down in acquiring the Phillips company so that the Independent Oil and Gas company could become a greater concern.

Although detailed facts and figures on the assets of the Waite Phillips company were submitted to Blair and company, that firm sent out to Tulsa and to other Mid-Continent areas where the Waite Phillips company operates representatives of Bruce, Waterhouse and company, international known auditors and appraisers, to check up the Waite Phillips properties. These experts have been in Tulsa for over a week.

Marston-Penn There.

On Monday of this week, E. L. Marston, chairman of the board of the Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil company, and an executive of Blair and company, with J. Rodey Penn, president of the T. & P., and representatives of that company came here to confer with the Bryce, Waterhouse and company auditors. They returned to New York and Fort Worth on Thursday.

Waite Phillips himself is reported to be on his ranch at Cimarron, in New Mexico. No one of his associates is invested with authority to talk for Mr. Phillips, and efforts to receive information on the deal from that source is closed. The Tulsa offices of the Standard of Indiana were still in the dark Friday, but those in the "know" in Tulsa and New York on Friday declared that the deal was definitely over and that Mr. Phillips could now retire from the oil business. His friends assert that he plans to re-enter the oil business in the future, but when, no one but he knows and he keeps his own counsel.

Newly Defined Stamp Tax Requirements Force Texas Oil Men To Pay Big Sums

Texas oil men are pouring over their old lease forms and assignments dating as far back as April 15, 1921, now as a result of a two-months' old ruling by the internal revenue commissioner that leases and assignments of leases were conveyances, pure and simple, and subject to the requirements of the stamp tax law.

Following the passage of the stamp tax law in April of 1921, it was not held necessary for leases to bear the tax stamps, and with the exception of two companies, no one put the stamps on the forms as they were executed. On June 30, 1925, the Texas supreme court (in Stephens county vs. Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company, 254 s. w.-290) decided that a lease or assignment of a lease was a conveyance.

Even then the significances of the decision passed the revenue office and it was not until about two months ago that the commissioner of internal revenue, delving around somehow or other, discovered that such instruments, executed following the passage of the law in A pril, 1921, were subject to a tax of fifty cents per $500 consideration involved. His deputies were notified, and Texas oil companies told to dig up their old leases and get them stamped for every transaction that they had undergone since that date.

The task set the companies was Herculean. The bill set for them to pay was almost as bad. In many instances single leases had stamp taxes due on them ranging from $100 on up. Figure what Prairie has to pay on its Swastika deal of a month or so ago.

But two companies escaped, the Texas company and the Humble Oil and Refining company, both of which had seen the decision coming and required properly taxed instruments all along.

Rocky Mountain Drilling Rises To New High Mark

Drilling operations in the Rocky Mountain region for July showed a slight increase oer the high record er completions in July than in June, made in June. While there were few there was more than one-third greater production. The increase in production was due mostly to anumber of big wells in the Kevin-Sunburst field in northern Montana and one good well in each of the newer fields of Colorado, Moffat and Fort Collins.

At the beginning of August there were 630 tests under way in all of the different states in the Rocky Mountain region. Of this number, 202 were rigs and 428 were tests actually drilling. This compares with 617 tests under way, 208 rigs and 409 wells drilling at the beginning of July.

July well completions totalled 167 of which 47 were dry holes and four were gas wells, leaving 113 producing oil wells which developed an initial maximum daily production of 27,655. This compares with 165 completions, 45 dry holes, three gas wells and 17,390 barrels of new production in June.

SPEEDY MOBILIZATION

Third Army Division Able to Entrain in Hour and 45 Minutes.

CAMP LEWIS, Wash.—The third army division here can mobilize and and be ready to entrain in one hour and 45 minutes. This was determined recently at a test mobilization order by Major General William H. Johnston, camp commander. The mobilization plan was kept secret until orders were issued. Every unit in camp packed up and was at the railroad station within the time stated.

Crude Prices Are Posted at Casper For Wyoming Oil

CASPER, Wyo., Aug. 15.—Confirmation of recent schedule of the wells in the Salt Creek field has been received here. The confirmation notice carries the explanation that since March 10 of this year, practically all production in the field has been sold under special contract prices with no crude being purchased at the old field price then in effect.

In response to many inquiries, therefore, posting of definite field prices on the gravity basis has been authorized and there follows the first schedule of this kind to be announced:

29 degrees to 29.9	$1.48
30 degrees to 30.9	1.58
31 degrees to 31.9	1.64
32 degrees to 32.9	1.72
33 degrees to 33.9	1.80
34 degrees to 34.9	1.88
35 degrees to 35.9	1.96
36 degrees to 36.9	2.04
37 degrees and over	2.12

University Gets $221,000 Royalty

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A record was set today when $221,055.11 in Texas university oil royalties was paid by the Big Lake and Texon Oil companies, operating on university lands in Reagan county. C. H. Cooke, cashier of the Texas land commission, is authority for the statement that the July royalties exceeded those for any other single month.

Atlantic's Philly Gas Cut One Cent

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Atlantic Refining company today announced a reduction of 1 cent a gallon in the price of gasoline, effective Monday. The new price will be 10 cents a gallon for tank and 22 cents for service stations. A state tax of 2 cents a gallon is added to the price of Pennsylvania consumers.

Little Change Is Seen In N. Texas Output Figures

PESSIMISM IS DOMINANT IN OKLA. AREAS

Tendency to Curtain Operations Is Setting In There

By PAUL HEDRICK.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 15.—The unsettled condition of the oil situation due to weakening refined market, followed by crude reductions in the gulf coast and eastern oil fields, and with rumors that readjustments may occur in other producing areas, has slowed activities in Oklahoma and Kansas soil fields the past week.

The spirit of pessimism that began to develop a week ago is pretty well grounded today as oil men realize that the industry is pretty well swamped with oil, crude and refined. Crude stocks are around 452,000,000 barrels and a tendency to curtail operations is setting in.

Except for local activities in different sections of Oklahoma, the chief development in the Sooner state is in the busy Garber, Blackwell, Tonkawa and Perry areas, in what is termed the Northern Oklahoma oil district. While there is no let-up in the field activities there, wildcatting has cirtually stopped. This district yields more high gravity crude oil than any other area of Oklahoma, all of the crude testing above 38 and much of it above 42.

The Brama townsite pool is slowly increasing, even with a great number of failures on the townsite the trend of production appears to be to the northreast where the Comar Oil company found such nice output in several wells. The townsite pool is doing around 18,000 barrels a day while the old Brama pool in 29-1w, is making close to 3,000 barrels a day.

Tonkawa's come-back for the third time dies not appear to be making much progress. The Wilcox sand around 4,200 feet appears drained as all wells make lots of water along with the oil. Eight wells are due in during the next few weeks and if they fail to yield the great production expected, then the normal decline will be steady. The shallow sands there which have held up so splendidly are now falling off sharply, too, and unless cleaning out operations accomplish the results, Tonkawa may drop to a small pool.

Alcorn-Thomas

The Alcorn-Thomas area in 25-2 is still a potential area. The five wells in are doing 4,023 barrels a day, but a score are drilling and several have had discouraging showings of water.

Garber is the best bet for Oklahoma, and if the operators keep on getting new sands, each with a big well, this area alone may be given the credit for breaking the market. From 1915 down to 1923 the Sinclair Oil and Gas company controlled the field, but not with a series of below 3,600 foot sands found the fee owners are insisting on complete development and thus the big play there now. At this moment two wells have found the Wilcox, another a formation above the Wilcox and some 20 are below 4,000 feeet andn feeling ahead.

Garber at this time is doing around 12,000 barrels a day with wells yielding from 15 different pay sands, hanging from 1,00 feet on to 4,450 feet. By Aug. 19 the scouts predict an output of 17,000 barrels, with thi sincreasing steadily to 24,000 barrels a day by Aug. 26 and to 30,000 barrels a day by Sept 1.

At this time no other area in Oklahoma or Kansas has such a bright looking future as does Garber, and the play there is such that a great territory in all directions is experiencing a rich lease play with prospects for much drilling this fall and during 1926, regardless of what aspect the market assumes.

Production.

Oklahoma-Kansas oil pools are steadily increasing, so estimates of a major pipe line company indicates:

	Last Week	Previous Week
Tonkawa	52,710	53,622
Burbank	54,310	54,195
Braman	17,877	14,594
Cushing	22,410	22,400
Bristow	32,125	32,745
Cromwell	29,431	31,100
Wetumka	18,845	15,859
Garber	11,890	10,750
Other pools	210,452	210,305
Total Oklahoma	447,530	446,570
Total Kansas	105,000	104,675
Total two states	552,530	551,245

Important events in Oklahoma-Kansas the past week may be epitomized as follows:

Garber District.

Roxana Petroleum corporation, which acquired the Schroeder lease in 18-22-4w, on a trade some years ago in which no money was involved opened the fifteenth producing horizon there with its No. 2-W, which found the lime at 5,145 feet and in it to 4,168 feet, started off as a big well. It is flowing better than 105 barrels an hour now. Its first 25 hour gauge was 2,640 barrels and the next was 2,908. The

Only 110 Barrel Increase Is Registered in Past Week

THROCKMORTON UP

Other Areas Show Little Change in Output, Up Or Down

A bare increase in North Texas production, so small that the column total looks almost unchanged, was the sole feature of the past week's production report for this area. The gain amounted to 110 barrels daily average.

Throckmorton county showed 215 barrels a day against 100 a day of the week before. Other areas were practically at a standstill.

Detailed figures follow:

District	Last Week	Week Before
Electra	17,380	17,225
Burkburnett	14,190	14,175
Iowa Park	5,800	5,690
Archer County	36,995	37,055
Clay county	385	400
Vernon	8,890	8,790
Nocona	390	420
Young	11,460	11,745
Throckmorton	215	100
Jack	35	35
Burkburnett	150	145
Totals	95,890	95,780

Increase, 110 barrels.

geologists have not yet agreed on what formation it is producing from and reports vary from the Oswego lime, to the wheeler sand, the break in the Mississippi lime and so on.

Just the day previous the Roxana also found the Wilcox sand deep in No. 1-W Wolfe, in 13-22-4w, for 1,105 barrels for the first day, the sand at 4,390 to 4,457 feet. It is declining so sharply, however, that it may be deepened.

Perry Area.

Wentz Oil corporation No. 1, Fee in 27-22-1e had what was thought at first to be the Wilcox at 4,506 to 4,510 feet, that yielded 300 barrels of oil, but as the water came in later and drowned out the oil, the opinion has been changed.

Braman Townsite Pool.

While a flock of wells are drilling in the Braman townsite pool the past week saw the output slowly increase, due to deepening activities. The Comar Oil company sent No. 1 Bechtel, in 5-28-1w, to 2,385 feet and it attained 6,180 barrels as a result. Its No. 2 Bechtel, in the same section, came in for 1,884 barrels initial. After reaching 6,000 barrels the Herbert Oil company No. 1 Community, also in 5-28-1w, as the discovery well there, dropped back to 4,997 barrels a day. Scouts say that the Comar and Wentz companies which control most of the acreage to the east and northeast could easily send the production to 35,000 barrels a day by consistently bringing in the wells.

Alcorn-Thomas Pool.

Water that appeared in the Twin State Oil company No. 2 Siler, in 22-25-2w, the well which proved that the Wilcox sand took a deep dip to the south when it had the pay 333 feet lower than the discovery well just 660 feet to the north, is now making more oil. The oil content is now 730 barrels and the water is down to 200 barrels. Other wells are slow in getting down. The discovery well of Marland Oil company in 15-25-2w, is still doing 2,292 barrels a day.

Tonkawa Field.

After attaining a great record of 1,400,000 barrels of better than 42 gravity oil in a year's period, the Wentz Oil corporation No. 45 Mckee, in 34-25-1w, almost quit entirely when a swab was lost in the hole. It is down to 225 barrels a day. Eleven wells are nearing the Wilcox sand.

Burbank Field.

Chief activity in Burbank is the movement of crude oil from the Phillips Petroleum company storage tanks to the account of the Atlantic Refining company and Vacuum Oil company, vit Texas City, Texas. Having filled its first contract of 2,104,815 barrels of crude to the Vacuum, the Phillips is now starting on a new contract.

Other Sooner Areas.

Elsewhere in the Sooner state oil fields things are unusually quiet. There is considerable drilling under way but developments are slow.

Kansas to Front.

The Scott pool, one of the most active of Greenwood county, was extended to the southwest when Greenland Oil company and Phillips Petroleum company No. 1 Craft, in 25-23-8, had sand from 2,500 to 2,521 feet for 2,10 feet of oil in the hole. Then the Scott and Teter pools linked up when Phillips Petroleum company and Skelly Oil company No. 1 Morris, in 20-23-9, had sand from 2,536 to 2,563 feet for 150 barrels.

A new pool north of Winfield, in Cowley county, was opened by Trees Oil company in No. 1 Lewis in 28-31-4e, for 100 barrels at 2,403 to 2,425 feet.

Rainbow Bend, in southern Cowley county ,although slipping in output is still one of the best pools in Kanssa, and the operators there are starting to equip the wells to increase the production.

Out in Russell county, Stearns, Streeter and Yanker got a 250 barrel well in No. 5 Oswald, in 8-12-15, at 2,915 feet.

REAL ESTATE

Week End Specials By Wright

I have to offer this week the following.

HERE IS ONE:

A new 6-room duplex on Hays Street, one block from pavement, on corner lot, this will stand investigating, price $4,950; $700 cash, balance $50 month.

AND ANOTHER:

A 5-room new bungalow, modern in every respect with a glassed-in back porch, corner lot on Twentieth Street, price $3,950; $350 cash, balance $45 month.

SOME MORE

Giddings Street, 3 blocks from Jr. College, on paving and street car line, fine lawn, flowers, garage and driveway, all builtins in the kitchen. This is a steal for some one. Price $3,500; $500 cash and balance $40 month.

LOTS AND MORE LOTS.

Lots on Van Buren, east front, for $550 to $600. Corner lots on Garfield, north front for $850. 2 lots on Taft, near Jr. College for $850.

Come in and let's talk it over, we can please you in something.

M. Q. WRIGHT

Mission Realty Co. Bargains

Kemp boulevard, on the paving; east front, extra large lot, plenty of shrubbery, a beautiful place, consisting of six large rooms and breakfast room, all rooms are large; nice fireplace and bookcases, French doors, nice kitchen, hallway. When you see this place you will realize that it is something out of the ordinary. Price $7,350. See us. We can quote some very attractive terms.

GARFIELD.

West front next to the corner. This lot will make some person some money for it is priced to sell at $1,000—one-half cash, balance any way.

EAST OF THE COLLEGE.

This house, consisting of six large rooms, south front, on Ave. G.; all rooms are real nice, yard is very attractive. Has garage and servants' house. This is a sure enough buy at $6,700 with $1,500 cash. This price includes paving.

If You Have $2,000

Cash, then we have a mighty fine buy for you located in the Junior college district. This place has five large rooms, edge-grain floors, dandy good fireplace, nice lighting fixtures, closets are cedar lined. Price $6,750. If you are interested in something out of the ordinary, we will be glad to talk to you about this place. Please do notembarrass us by asking the location of this place; however, we will be more than pleased to show it to you.

PEARL STREET.

Brick house consisting of five rooms and breakfast room, all floors are edge-grain, highly finished, fireplace, nice lightning fixtures, garage and servants' house. This place is facing the boulevard and is in a very fine neighborhood. Let us show this place to you as it is a very attractive place; the price will appeal to you—$8,900 with a reasonably small cash payment.

DUPLEX.

Not far from the college, brand new eight-room duplex; edge-grain floors, two baths; in fact two everythings; nicely arranged, and is in a location that you can always keep rented. Lots of other nice things about this place that you will have to see to appreciate. Price $6,850 with a small cash payment.

Now here is a real sure nuff bargain located in the Austin school district; five rooms, screened in back porch; house has just been papered and painted and is in first-class condition. This place is going to be sold this week for $4,250 with $750 cash, balance easy as can be. See us at once for this surely won't last.

This list is not near complete as we have just lots more real bargains that we are ready to show at any time. We will be glad to talk over any in the real estate line with you.

TEACH THRIFT IN SCHOOLS

Los Angeles Absorbed in New Education Problem.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—(AP).—The teaching of thrift has become part of the curriculum of nearly 200 public schools here. The subject involves the "value of a savings account" and "home and business economy."

Establishment of a school savings department, advocated by Los Angeles banks as a division of the course, has produced what is termed "amazing results." Up to July 1, there had been opened 63,487 school savings accounts with $686,000 on deposit to the credit of students.

Amateur Geologists Are Worst Thieves At Public Library

Theft, mutilation of books, neither is much of a problem at the Wichita Falls Kemp public library, says Miss Lucia Powell, librarian. "But of all that do bother us," she adds, "is the rising young amateur geologist, oil operator, promoter, in fact any one that is liable to find a petroleum or geological text or phamphlet of some use in what he is doing. He finds the books on the shelves, finds in one a map that he can use and since the book is not for sale, he tears the map out, or appropriates the whole book. The University of Texas booklets on the possibilities of certain regions are especially popular for this sort of thing, and as only a limited number of them are ever printed, we find their shelves sadly depleted."

"Closed Shelf" Unfavorable.

Miss Powell's remarks were made a day or so ago, apropos a discussion of the "closed shelf" idea for public libraries. Miss Powell discounts the possibility of that plan ever being adopted in Wichita Falls. "The visitor to the library so many times has only a vague idea of what he wants," she says, "and has to brouse around and find something that attracts him. We have but one closed shelf, that containing a few scientific and reference books and a copy of the Texas statutes.

"The ideal of a library is to have everything on open shelves and available for public inspection and reading. The fiction reader rarely knows what he wants until he sees, by his own picking, something that attracts his attention. It is the same way with travel and biography. Belles letters and literature readers are little better when it comes to knowing what they want."

Little Thievery.

It has been two years since an inventory has been taken of the books at the library, according to Miss Powell. In that two years the force at the library has not been conscious of much theft from the shelves, and has only a small complaint to make against mutilation. Theater magazines, books on art, and the like always come in for their share of mutilation, though, she says, and remarks that one very good work on the history of art has been kept off the shelves for no other reason than that she knew it would be mutilated. Oftentimes, this sort of mutilation is the work of younger people.

It si probable that another inventory of the books there will be taken next spring and an accurate check of what has actually been taken from the library obtained.

Denver Tries It.

The closed shelf idea is gaining some foothold in the United States, records show. Many of the universities and schools have adopted the plan entirely, while the big Denver public library has recently worked out the scheme. Even at Denver though recognition of the brousing principle is made in keeping biography and travel shelves open. Most of the older European and foreign libraries are kept on closed shelves with an attendant to watch every visitor. Large thefts, or rather, the practice of thievery among the patrons is the reason assigned.

But it isn't likely to come about in Wichita Falls, Miss Ballard thinks.

MARKETS

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Private reports of rain in Texas and talk of increased hedge selling by the south seemed chiefly responsible for today's decline in the cotton market.

After selling off to 23.61 at the start, December rallied to 23.83 but later broke to 23.57, closing at 23.62. The general market closed steady at net declines of six to 19 points.

An opening decline of seven to 15 points was in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables but there was continued covering by recent sellers and some buying by the trade which caused early rallies. October sold up to 23.57 and January to 23.85, net advances of six to eight points on the more active positions but offerings increased at these figures owing to more favorable weather reports and the appearance of a few selling orders from the south, which were supposed to represent hedging against new crop receipts. October broke to 23.30 and January to 23.08 in late trading when active positions were 16 to 21 points net lower. The closing rallies of five or ten points from the lowest were attributed chiefly to covering.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The cotton market was a comparatively tame affair during the Saturday session. Trading was confined largely to evening up of commitments for over the week-end. At the star tthe market lost 15 to 15 points owing to lower Liverpool cables and to reports of rather good rains in the drouth section of Texas. The market soon rallied 21 to 27 points on shorts covering. This bulge carried prices seven to 13 points above yesterday's close. In the second hour of the session prices eased off gradually on liquidation by early buyers and on some hedge selling and the lows of the day were reached, the market closing 14 to 15 points net lower for the day.

First trades were at a decline of 11 to 13 points. Prices continued to ease off owing to reports of good rains in Texas and October soon traded down to 22.76 and December to 22.99, or 14 to 15 points under yesterday's close. Prices rallied however, on shorts covering for over the week-end and October advanced to 23.03 and December to 23.20 or 21 to 27 points above the early lows and seven to 12 points above the previous close.

In the second hour of the session, prices fell owing to week-end evening up and October finally traded down to 22.74 and December to 22.98, or 22 to 29 points down from the highs. The close was practically at the bottom. Aside from the rains in Texas and continued hot weather in the eastern belt the market was without new developments.

Some of the crop advices were received from North Texas, Oklahoma and Mississippi. Deterioration reports continued to filter in from the eastern belt. Exports for the day 7,727 bales.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Renewed bidding up of the high priced industrial stocks was the feature of today's brief session in relatively quiet stock markets. With business conditions showing further signs of improvement and the prospect of easy money for some time to come the general list held relatively firm. Cessation of selling pressure in the oil shares despite an extension of gasoline price cuts, wasa significant development of the day's trading. Shorts, who sold high priced industrials freely in the last week or two on the theory that the technical condition of the market warranted a sharp reaction, were again forced to bid high for stocks in order to cover their commitments. American Can was an exception, breaking over five points to 237¾ and then rallying to 238½ for a net loss of 4¾ on the day.

Westinghouse Airbrake soared ten points to 126; Mack Truck 8¼ to 218, and General Electric 5¾ to 327¾, all record high prices. Dupont, which will receive a substantial cash payment through declaration of the recent cash dividends on General Motors common of which it owns large holdings, jumped 111 points to 165.

Postum Cereal was another outstanding strong spot climbing over five points to 122. Additional new 1925 high prices were recorded by Reynolds Tobacco "B", Famous Players, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, U. S. Shoe Machinery, and general outdoor advertising.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was extremely dull with most rate changes inconsequential. Demand sterling ruled around 4.85½ and French francs at 4.67 cents.

Record News Boys Given Splash In Lake Wichita Pool

Regular swimming weather, the hospitality of the Record News and 25 exceedingly dry newsies, formed an unbeatable combination yesterday which broke all records in the pool at Lake Wichita. The boys, all regular guys on the Record News street gang were royally entertained by H. L. Belle and E. R. McDaniel.

Manager A. B. Miller of the lake, threw the pool open to the boys and for an hour and a half they ran the place.

The water was fine, and after a happy time, each newsie getting his share of ducking and splashing, Mr. Miller treated the boys to sandwiches and cold drinks.

This was another of the Saturday afternoon treats that the Record News newsies have been getting from time to time during the summer.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion! Also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

HARRISON BACK FROM STUDY IN NORTHWESTERN

Chamber Commerce Head Takes up Industrial Development

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, returned Saturday afternoon after a three weeks period of vacationing and study in Chicago and Colorado. Mrs. Harrison and the children, who have spent the past several weeks in Colorado, returned with Mr. Harrison.

The chamber of commerce head devated considerable time to a study of industrial research and development in Northwestern university at Evanston, a Chicago suburb. *He later supplemented this with a study of the same problems as worked out by the industrial development bureau of the Denver chamber of commerce. Mr. Harrison spent some time with the officials of the chamber of commerce there. He stated last night that forthcoming reports to the board of directors would, he believed, be of interest and value to Wichita Falls in connection with the industrial development this city is undertaking.

A more or less intensive study of sugar beet cultivation as practised in the Arkansas river valley near Rocky Ford was made by Mr. Harrison with a view of picking up information that might be of value in promotion of a similar growing campaign in the Wichita county irrigation project.

FRENCH TRAINS WRECKED.

Disastrous Crashes Mark Series of Accidents on Roads.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—An unusual number of railway accidents have taken place in France of late, filling hosts of vacation travelers with terror and causing much comment in the newspapers. Two such accidents occurred yesterday, making three within nearly 24 hours and six within two weeks.

The most serious of the two accidents yesterday was on the northern road at St. Dennis when shortly before midnight the Cologne-Paris express crashed into the rear of the Lille-Paris express which had been held up by the signals. Four third class cars were telescoped, causing the death of three persons and injury to 27 others.

Wichita Falls Girl Enjoying Long Tour in Europe

"BON voyage" wishes by the many friends of Miss Sybil Kell were as effective as ever wished, for cablegrams from the party Saturday from London, reported a good and enjoyable voyage. Foreign climes hold many attractions and these Miss Kell will enjoy to the fullest in an extensive tour. Before sailing, Miss Kell visited with her sister in Colorado, and was the guest of friends in Chicago.

MISS SYBIL KELL

Miss Ora Lee Smith Weds Harry L. Gross

Miss Ora Lee Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, 1322 Britton, became the bride of Harry L. Goss Saturday at the Smith home, with Rev. J. D. Pinkston officiating.

A beautiful altar of ferns and cut flowers made the wedding unusually effective. The bride, dressed in an ensemble suit of white crepe de chine with pale green ensemble and doeskin pumps, carried an arm boquet of brides roses. Miss Jane McCuddoch ang, "At Dawning," accompanied by Mrs. James Ferguson. Miss McCulloch also played the wedding march, Mendelsshon's. Miss Smith was accompanied by her sister, Miss Nell Smith, who was dressed in peach with black ensemble.

After the ceremony the wedding cake was cut and refreshments served to about thirty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Gross left on the 1:30 o'clock train for a trip to southern points, after which they will be at home in ElDorado, Ark., where Mr. Goss has oil interests.

Little Miss Roberts Observes Birthday

Little Mary Belle Roberts celebrated her second birthday Saturday at her home, 1611 Thirteenth. Tables were decorated with baby blue and pink, with a cake with two candles in the center. Pink and blue baskets filled with candy were served as favors. Mrs. J. O. Elliott assisted Mrs. Roberts in serving brick ice cream to June Louise Young, George Ballard, Jr., Clyde Young, Jr., Keithie Morrow, Doris Mtichell, Glenn Keith, Cora Lee Morrow, Billie Mitchell, Bolora Allen and George Mitchell, Jr.

New Books at Kemp Public Library

A number of interesting new books, including fiction, travel stories, narrative and other styles have been added the past week to the bookshelves of the Kemp public library. A short review of these follows:

ANCIENT HIGHWAY—By James Olliver Curwood. All that an old road could suggest. A road blazed by explorers, worn by adventurers, home seekers and strolling lovers, a road beaten by fugitives, all this is dramatized in the Ancient Highway.

BEAUTY PRIZE — By George Weston. A sparkling story of two irrepressibly gay twins on a Mediterranean cruise. One wins the prize trip and the other, dreading the separation, conceives the plan that the cabin and transportation can be used for the two provided they never appear at the same time. The story of their escapades and hairbreadth escapes holdes the reader to the last chapter.

BOONE STOP—By Homer Gray. A novel approaching Tom Sawyer and Seventeen. In it one meets a boy much like Penrod who tells the story in a bewilderingly real manner.

BOY SCOUTS ON KATAHDIM—By Walter P. Eaton. A story of the Maine Woods. Around the ascent of Mt. Katahdin, admittedly the most difficult mountain to climb, east of the Rockies, Mr. Eaton locates this story of scouting.

DAPPLES OF THE CIRCUS—By Clarence Hawkes. The story of a Shetland pony and a boy. The reade is first introduced to Dapples on the Island of Shetland and we follow him through his career with the great American circus and the many adventupres that come to him and his devoted young master, "Freckles."

GOOSE WOMAN—By Rex Beach. A collection of five stories by a master story teller. The leading story "The Goose Woman," is the tale of a broken prima donna. Another is 'Cave Stuff," a delicious story comedy of a little French valet whom fate has dropped down in rigorous Alaska.

GREAT GATSBY—By F. S. Fitzgerald. The life of Jay Gatsby, his palatial Long Island home, sumptuous entertainments and love for Daisy Buchanan make a mysteial, glamorous story of the present day.

PASSAGE TO INDIA—By E. M Foster. A book thoroughly worth reading for the story, but it even more pitent in significance as we realize the subtility and power with which Mr. Foster has revealed the Morslem and the Hindu mind. A valuable picture of the state of India seen through a courageous intellegence.

RAISING THE PEARL — By James Otis. In this story three boys become the proud possessors of a real steam yacht, by salvaging her from the bottom of the Everglades. An old sea captain who accompanies them on their cruise around Southern Florida teaches them a lot about managing a boat and about the strange tropical sea life which they find on their trip.

SON OF HIS FATHER—By Harold Bell Wright. The author in this novel takes the desert and mountain world of Arizona and the Mexican border for his setting. For his theme he takes the theory that "every man has inhereted a kingdom—something which belongs to that man because he is the son of his father—and the greatest service one soul can give to another is to help him keep this kingdom, or if by any chance he has lost it to help him back again on his throne.

SHOW APPEARS HERE FOR SOUTH SIDE LEAGUE

Campaign Launched This Week in Behalf of New Building

An extensive amusement attraction sponsored by the South Side Civic league as a means of raising funds for the completion of the new South Side Community building is to be staged at Haven park swimming pool next week. The immick World Shows, a high class entertainment attraction with a number of vaudeville acts, side shows and riding devices, has been secured to appear at the grounds, while in addition, band concers, races, baseball games and dancing will be provided.

The shows will arrive here Monday and will be ready for operation Tuesday evening. Two free acts will be given daily, one a contortionist stunt in mid-air, 40 feet above the swimming pool, and the other an impalement act in the center of the show grounds.

A free barbecue will be held Friday with plenty of meat and all the trimmings for every one, it is announced.

Lawn Party Held At Katley Home

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Katley, 1421 Twenty-sixth, entertained a group of young people with a lawn party last Thursday evening, honoring Miss Irene Johnson of Chicago, who has recently come to the city to spend the winter and attend school here. Assisting hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hansen and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cilson. Games were played and refreshments of eskimo pies and cake served. Guests for the evening were Misses Pauline Holden, Alice Lambert, Thelma White, Alene Johnson, Mozelle Smith, Sammie McMahon, Julia Falness, Mattie Lou Trebaway and Marie Flatt and Messrs Charlie Marlow, Albert Canada, Cecil Lambert, Ford Spardur, Oswald White, Guy Gimmerman, John Cox, Otto Cox, Raymond Anderson, Ulysess Flatt, Truett Come and Glenn Anderson.

Childress Girl To Wed Canyon Man

CHILDRESS, Aug. 15.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shields, Tuesday morning a dainty breakfast was given, announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Rowena.

The tables were decorated in purple and white, in the center of which a gorgeous array of purple astors held sway, connected by tulle of like color, to opposite corners of the table on which stood purple candles in crystal candle sticks.

Each guests' place was marked by purple and white nut baskets, to which was attached a little letter for each guest, announcing the future marriage of Miss Rowena to Odus Mitchell of Canyon.

Miss Louise Crawford presented the side of the unmarried ladies in "The Great Unwed." After some discussion Mrs. A. J. Brown presented the inducements married life has to offer Miss Margaret Alexander gave a very forceful plea for the groom.

A delicious two-course breakfast was served to Mesdames Ozie Taylor, Bill Hasler, Herbert Moore, Bob Alexander, A. J. Brown, Ed. Chestnutt, Joe Randle, and Misses Rowena Shields, Sibyl Alexander, Margaret, Helen and Maggie Kate Alexander, Helen Howard, Theckla Jones, Agnes Ross, Frances Rhea, Lucia Diggs, Neta Jones, Irma Baker, Willette Hunter, Louise Crawford and Thelma Lewis.

Miss Betty Hull, 1657 Huff, plans to entertain Misses Thelma and Pauline Ulsh of Toledo, O., who are her house guests, by a dance at the Wichita club, Monday evening.

Buyers For Store Here Give Outline of What New Styles Will Demand

ATTENTION in the fashion world centers on smart accessories with the idea of forming "The Costume Complete," according to Miss Ruth Barnard and Mrs. James Lomax, buyers for P. B. M. Co., who have recently returned from New York City where they chose the new fall merchandise for that firm.

"This means that correct costume accessories are as important to the well dressed woman as her coat and dress. There is a hat just the right shape and color for each coat" they stated, "and unless she selects this hat, her coat and dress lose their smartness. It is equally important that her handbag, shoes, and other accessories are correct in style and color for wear with the coat and dress she buys.

"With this thought in mind, the fall hats were bought right along with the fall dresses and coats, and the departments have been merged into one so that the shopper may select an outfit that exactly matches.

The Small Close Hat.

"Leading the fall mode is the small close hat with upturned front brim, but large hats in short-backed capeline style are registering strongly. Velour, velvet and felt are the new in materials with the first two the most important. Hats are in brilliant shades to match smart costume trimmings. Pencil blue is good, and especially lovely is bois de rose which harmonizes well with the tan shades. The new velours in imported Austrian bodies are very unusual in style. They are stunningly simple, and the line of the hat is the striking feature. Very little trimming is used, only a quill, a smart ribbon, or a self trim is seen. Dress hats are best in large and small velvets, soft and silky with handwork in floral embroidery, lace and monkey fur for trimming.

Capeskin Gloves Smart.

"Autumn gloves appear with stand-up and turn-back cuffs, painted and ribbon pleatings in smart shades. The kids are featured in mustang, tanbark embroidered, some adorned with dainty and blonde, with white a leading mode for wear with the bright fall dresses. Capeskins appear in white with black contrast, six button length, and in champagne with dark stitching. Triple stitched capeskins in ficelle and natural appear for street and sports wear. A washable chamois in five buttou length, is popular in white and mastic shades, while washable suede with hand stitched outside seams in a slip-on glove is attractive for sports use.

Hose Continue Light.

"Fall shoes call for a continuation of the light sheer chiffon hose, in which the new shades are sudan, melon, blush, rose blonde, caprice, sauman, rose nude, rose taupe and banana. Light gunmetal is coming in very strong for wear with the new black footwear. Sports hose are stunning in imported French chiffon lisles developed in shades of faun and nude with open clocks. Another new sports pattern is the full fashioned Fair Isle wools knitted in Jacquard weaves.

Black Patents Strong.

"Leading the field in the fall footwear are black patent leathers in one strap and pumps with cut steel and the new bakelite buckles. Black satins are lovely in the new patterns and are rivaled only by the new Mandalay brown satins. Brown patent leather is new and good looking, and is combined with Mandalay kid. Brown and tax kids are correct for street wear. Heels are high for dress and low for sport and street. The 17-8 Spanish heel and the 14-8 baby Spanish are correct in the high types, while fashion favors the 12-8 and 14-8 block heel for general wear.

Bags Are Gay.

"The pouch is the thing, and the bigger and brighter it is the better. Huge pouch bags of soft colored leathers match the new hats and costumer trimmings. Buyers and designers returning from shopping trips in Paris stepped of fthe liners carrying these striking new bags, and their popularity in this country was immediate. The zipper bag is entirely new, and is a flat model of soft colored leather with two strap handles. Its name comes from the automatic metal fastening at the top which rips open and closes with a pull on the smart leather tab.

French Collarettes.

New in costume jewelry are the French collarettes, antique in effect, fashioned of gold medallions studded with colored stones and linked together in barbaric fashion around fair throats. Flowers, hearts, leaves and similar designs form a background for the colored jewels, in a choker effect entirely new. Choker beads are stunning in tinted pearls with tinted stones to match. New effects are glorious, and combine cleverly colored glass beads with metal filigree and tinted enamels. Ropes of seed pearls are white, and utterly exquisite. Seed pearls are used with large pearls in many of the daintier chokers, the pendant effect appearing often. Brooch pins are an established mode and are lovely in rhinestones and colored stones.

Still Less Lingerie.

Fashion has reduced the smart woman's outlay of lingerie to one garment, the "Teeny Weeny," which is brassiere and step-in combined. Fashioned of lace and crepe de chine, or satin and radium combinations, the new garment is finding high favor probably because it eliminates "the bundle of shoulder straps." New neckwear of ecru net and lace finds expression in exquisite jabots and fronts with cuffs and collars. French cuf fand collar sets with handkerchiefs to match are appliqued and embroidered in futuristic designs.

The New in Luggage.

Bison calf is the new leather for luggage, and appears in hat boxes and round cornered cases in a rich dark tan. Brown shark seal is new, the two leathers giving a rich rugged appearance to the going-away-to-school things. The newest in Wheary wardrobe trunks has a one-piece base, and is cut a little above the floor, so that the drawer sections swing apart with only the touch of the hand. Attractive linings and finishings make them a desirable accompaniment to travel.

Kemp a Whirl Of Gaiety for Cypher Dance Thursday Eve

The Kemp hotel was a whirl of gaiety Thursday night when the Cypher club entertained with a dance in the ball room with "The Bell Hops," Oklahoma collegiate orchestra, dealing out the tunes.

Patterson Jr. of Fort Worth, D. W. Bright, Morris S. Pollard, E. M. Robertson, Bert Clarke, Ed Batit, Don Cameron, E. F. Hall, J. H. Shurman, Earl Wells, Tom C. Scruggs, Jim O'Leary, Ralph Walker, Sam Bashara, Edgar Smith, Bob Mathis, John Robinson, Morell McGreghor, Don Bundy, J. M. Kennedy Jr., G. U. Riggins, W. T. Gillman, W. E. Lowry, B. H. Vickrey, W. L. Snoddy, Foster Schengsh, Jack Buehley, Bill Clarke, Glen Hardin, Clyde Edmondson, Kenneth Barker and Bill Kidd, with as chaperones Mesdames A. Kahn and H. O. Cravens and Raz Barker host.

The Cyphers' next dance will be at Lake Wichita next Wednesday night with Guffey's Bludevils acting as chefs in serving tunes. Following the dance at the lake next week, another will be given at the Kemp Thursday, 27th, with the Bell Hops back to play.

Theatre Party Is Given Saturday

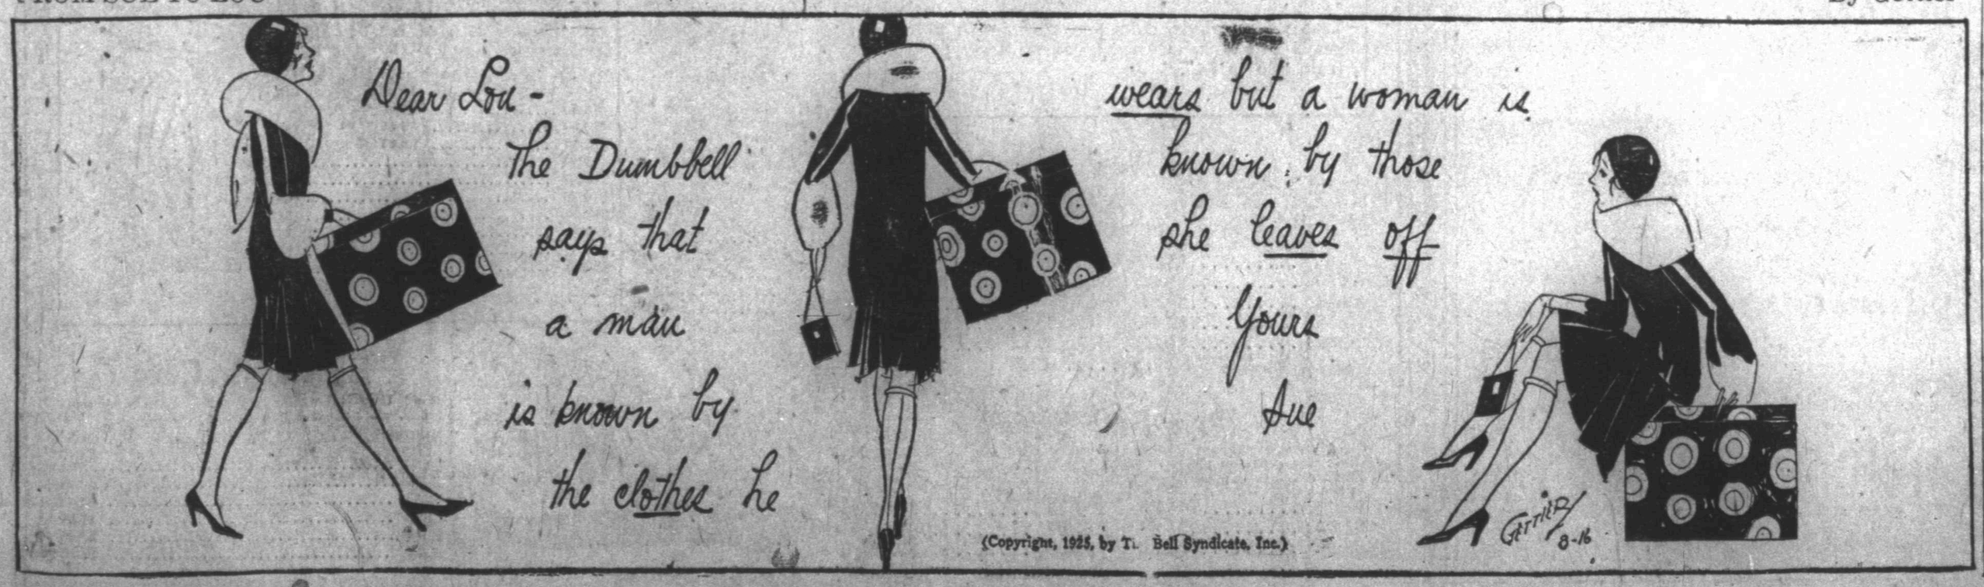

Mrs. J. D. Simms, 710 Wofford, entertained Saturday afternoon with a theater party in honor of Phill Wilkenson's eleventh birthday. The Olympic theater was the center of the entertainment until the end of the performance when the Olympic Confectionery held first rank by furnishing the refreshments to Deleon Fogay, T. W. Sullivan, Harry Lloyd Holmgreen, Jack Brothers, Leslie McMahon, Ernestine Ruth Preston, Mary Lynn Miller, Mary Lou Hull, Joe Claire Armstrong, Barbara Anne Cook and Eleanor Wakefield.

Swimming Party At Sand Beach

Mrs. Ned Trent entertained Friday evening with a swimming party at the San Beach on the Iowa Park road. The following composed the party, which was given in honor of the three guests from Oklahoma City: Mrs. N. Owens and daughters, Thelma and Odessa of Oklahoma City, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Perkey and little junior, Mr. Sturm, and Mrs. M. W. Smith, and Mrs. Ned Trent, hostess.

Haskell Magazine Club An Important Factor In City's Development

HASKELL, Aug. 15.—The Magazine club of Haskell, which will celebrate its twenty-third birthday October 3, invites the careful perusal of every club woman in the state of Texas of the following facts and figures, that she may see that the members of the Magazine club have studied and labored continuously to reach the major goal that they set for themselves: "To keep abreast with their sister clubs in state and nation and to supply material needs for this self culture and to recognize and supply needs of school, church and civic demands of all kinds."

How well they have done this the catalogued accomplishments that follow, coupled with the fact that Haskell business men respect the Magazine club to the extent of seeking its approval and support in any worth while enterprise, speak for themselves.

Organized 1902.

The Magazine club was organized in 1902; federated with state federation in 1905; federated with the general federation in 1913. Special and permanent work, maintenance of circulating library. During the years 1902 to 1909 the Magazine club met in the homes of the members; in 1910-1916 inclusive, a club room was rented, the first year 1910, Mrs. Will McGregor now of Waco, but who was then president of the club, taught a class in physical culture to pay the rent on the club room. While Mrs. J. U. Fields was president (1917) a frame building, costing $500, located on the public square, was bought, remodeled and used as library and club room. Then it was during Mrs. Fred T. Sanders' administration that one of the big dreams came true, the erection of the modern, red brick club house at a cost of $4,000. In this building at present are two pianoes, several good prints, chairs, tables, electric cook stove, with dishes to serve sixty people, and one thousand volumes in the library with a paid librarian ad a rest room.

The Magazine club has had the honor of entertaining the following past presidents of the first district: Mrs. J. I. McDowell, Big Springs; Mrs. S. H. Burnsides, Wichita Falls; Mrs. Langston, Cisco; Mrs. W. R. Potter, Bowie; Mrs. Carl Goodman, Plainview; Mrs. Walter Robertson, Wichita Falls; Mrs. J. U. Fields, Haskell, and Mrs. J. A. Britain, Seymour. Special attention is directed to the fact that the Magazine club entertained the first district of Texas Federation of Women's clubs in the spring of 1922. The Magazine club co-operates with every civic agency for the improvement and progress of Haskell and Haskell county.

The past presidents of the Magazine club follow: Mrs. Leonard, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Elsie Malone McCollum, McCauley, Texas; Mrs. S. W. Scott, San Antonio, Texas; Mrs. Marshall Pierson, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. S. W. Scott, San Antonio, Texas; Mrs. R. C. Montgomery, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. H. R. Jones, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. Will McGregor, Waco, Texas; Mrs. Henry Alexander, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. Graham, Arlington, Texas; Mrs. Scott Key, Eastland, Texas; Mrs. H. S. Wilson, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. J. U. Fields, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. W. H. Murchison, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. Fred T. Sanders, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. C. D. Long, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. H. S. Post, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. J. F. Posey, Alpine, Texas; Mrs. W. H. Murchison, Haskell, Texas; Mrs. J. E. Grissom, Abilene, Texas; Mrs. O. E. Patterson, Haskell, Texas, and the present incumbent, Mrs. Fred T. Sanders, who in common with several other members, has the honor of having been elected twice as the president of the Magazine club of Haskell.

Burkburnett

One of the prettiest parties of the mid-summer season was given Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Minnie Kincaid, with Mrs. L. L. Kincaid as special hostess.

The guests were the members and friends of the Maids and Matrons Bridge Club.

The gathering was named a "Jelly Party," owing to the unique setting of entertainment, favors, prizes and score cards of the games.

These cards were in the form of the much talked of "Jelly-Bean Beau," hand painted and attractive.

The prizes were woven baskets, each containing four glasses of home-made jelly, and the general favors were tiny glasses of jelly also.

Those winning the special prizes were Mrs. I. D. Russell and Miss Winnie Jean Waldroup. The guest prize, a powder puff went to Mrs. H. C. Harris.

At the close of the series of games a delicious summer luncheon was served to the following members and guests: Lila Majors, Eiline Word, Gladys Gibbons, Winnie Jean Waldroup, Mesdames Russell, R. B. Saxe, and M. E. Gleason.

WHY WYLIE QUIT THE STANDARD.

Herbert G. Wylie has resigned as president of the Pan-American Petroleum company. He was one of the pioneers in the development of the oil industry in Mexico. He was Edward L. Doheny's right hand man. According to his close associates Wylie handled all of the operations in the field for a quarter of a century while Doheny handled the finances of the corporation. Doheny always feared the Standard. He obtained the money to finance his concerns in London and Paris.

Dohen yand Wylie were prospectors together in Mexico long before the Grean Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company was organized. Well, one day in the not long ago Doheny sold control of the Pan-American and Transport company to the Standard Oil company of Indiana. According to New York financiers the consideration was $100,000,000. Before closing the deal the Standard agents asked that Wylie should remain as the president of the company.

In other words he was asked to cast his fortune with the Standard and to fight in future under the Standard banner. He accepted the proposition. He remained as president and general manager. All this happened last spring. It did not take Wylie long to make the interesting discovery that he was a dummy president and general manager. He had an office; he had the same imposing title; he took down the same princely salary but he had no duties to perform. He was a figure head and that was all.

He is a very wealthy man, a very high spirited man and one day he shot his resignation to the Standard of Indiana with the announcement that as the president of a company had a peculiar responsibility to the stockholders that he could not assume without being kept well informed he had decided that he could not continue to occupy the office of president without insulting his own intelligence and doing daily violence to his concepion of what he regarded as the eternal fitness of things.

Now Wylie and Doheny are together once more. They are going to float or organize another big petroleum company. It will not carry the brand of the Standard. It will not be financed by the Standard. It will be bossed by Californians and Californians who made Mexico the great oil producing country that it has been in recent years.

HERBERT HOOVER AN OPTIMIST.

Herbert Hoover has reported to the president that the decision to permit business to go along unperturbed by fear of tariff revisions and the certainty that more tax burdens will be lifted from business incomes are two factors that are working to make prosperity permanent and produce the best era since the war.

American wheat growers anticipate two dollar wheat this year. Southern cotton growers anticipate a fair price for cotton. Of course the textile industry is not what it should be and there may be hell later along in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania where John L. Lewis and his cohorts may make trouble for the republican politicians.

New England woolen and cotton manufacturers are reducing the wages of their employes and the union printers of America are on the war path because they say that the republicans have placed one of their bitterest enemies at the head of the department of public printing and this official is doing all in his power to destroy the Typographical union.

Whenever organized labor is ugly in America there comes a day of reckoning for the republican party. In the industrial centers the card men vote against the republican candidates. Then in the next presidential campaign they forget all about their grievances and throw their support to the standard bearers of the republican party.

Regardless of all this Herbert Hoover predicts a wonderful era of prosperity. He is a very wealthy man and very wealthy men know what it is to enjoy prosperity. There are millions of voters who are not wealthy. They live from hand to mouth from the cradle to the grave.

In the New England textile districts they are very ugly and they may strike at the ballot box although they failed to go on strike when the wage reductions were ordered by their employers.

IT WAS INVENTED IN GERMANY.

A Washington corrsepondent says Chester A. Penning, a young chemist connected with the United States tariff commission as a chemical, is responsible for the discovery of a seized German patent owned by the chemical foundation, under which preparations are being made to manufacture a new and cheap motor fuel of great power, free from the dangers attached to tetrapethyl lead and which is to be used also as the basis for a cheap fertilizer.

Full credit for discovering the great value of the German patent was given by an official of the chemical foundation to Penning. This patent was filed prior to the world war. When a representative of the chemical foundation called on an important official to discuss wood alcohol processes Penning mentioned the German patent and as a result experiments were conducted which are expected to result in the production of the new cheap motor fuel and a very cheap fertilizer.

It is said eight chemical manufacturing concerns have obtained licenses to manufacture under the new process. If the invention or discovery is all that is claimed for it, it is safe to predict that the Standard Oil company will own fifty-one per cent of the stock in the manufacturing companies in the very near future. The chief watchman in the high tower of the Standard is a sleepless mortal and never overlooks a bet.

MEXICO

And now the City of Mexico will celebrate its six hundredth anniversary of its founding with an international exposition next November. Many celebrations will be held in connection with the anniversary. It will be held in the Alameda and the National opera house and its adjacent grounds, one hundred thousand square feet have been allotted to American enterprises. Texans should be interested. Texans should make exhibits. Texans and Mexicans are neighbors. Why not a pilgrimage of Texans to Mexico the coming November?

SEE BIG YEAR FOR OIL

A New York trade journal says the petroleum industry is looking forward to the greatest prosperity experienced since the boom years of 1919 and 1920. In the automobile industry production established a new record for all times during the first six months of 1925. Statements of earnings of the leading steel companies also make a favorable comparison. Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, is positive that the future of the railways of America is brighter now than at any time in the last twenty years.

Away down here in Texas the Moody Gulf Gas company plans a natural gas pipe line which will extend more than 150 miles, will serve consumers in and around Houston and will cost six million dollars. As for steel, the earnings of the United States Steel company for the June quarter approximated $40,624,221 and exceeded those for the first three months of the year.

Building activity for the first six months was greater than ever before in American history with a most promising future for the builders and employers. There was a heavy increase in oil exports reported. Exports of crude oils and petroleum products from the United States in 12 months were valued at $439,324,524, a gain of more than $41,000,000. The largest gain was reported in gasoline shipments which increased by nearly $25,000,000.

Is there money in petroleum? Yes, if the investor is in on the ground floor. Is there money in steel? Yes, if the investor keeps his eye on Gary and his movements. Is there money in the lumber business? Well, take a squint at the fortunes that the big fellows have piled up since the coming of the World war.

A PUBLICITY STUNT

Rev. Dr. Charles Francis Potter of New York lays the Scopes trial to publicity thirst. Dr. Potter was called to Dayton as a witness. He testified for Scopes. He says Scopes was the only real Christian, modest and humble, that he met at Dayton.

William Jennings Bryan was there because he thirsted for publicity. Clarence Darrow was there because he dearly loves the center of the state. Dudley Field Malone was there crazed with the same malady. There were others too numerous to mention, all seeking front page positions beneath scare headlines in the daily press.

Dr. Potter is a wise man, a close observer, a student of types and competent to return a verdict regardless of the angry looks it provokes or the harsh comment on the part of the publicity seekers ever uppermost on the firing line where the reporters and the photographers of the press assemble or congregate.

And he says it was a frame up on the part of the people of Dayton to break into the national picture gallery as well as to place a few honest dollars in the pockets of the business men in that little mountain town in the Old Volunteer state.

This is a savage thrust at the defenders of the faith, the champions of the Bible undefiled, the vociferous pleaders for the rights of man and the little fellows who intrude themselves wherever the great or the near-great foregather for publicity and photographic ordeals.

Barnum must have been right—the public dearly loves to be humbuged.

TRACTORS FOR RUSSIA.

Russia is purchasing farm machinery in the United States. Large purchases of tractors and other agricultural implements have been made in recent weeks. This increased demand is a result of the good crop conditions in soviet Russia. One steamer sailed from New York in early August with a cargo of 1,500 tractors and 1,500 plows and parts and another steamer bound for Russia carried 2,300 tractors with plows and parts.

Value of the two shipments is placed at about $2,200,000. Other shipments are to be made in the near future. These agents of the soviet in the United States have purchased and shipped to Russia 9,000 tractors this year.

Soviet Russia is an outlaw nation. Soviet Russia has been blacklisted by all the alleged civilized nations. Soviet Russia knows the value of tractors and Henry Ford has the tractors for sale.

Is Russia coming back? Yes, with a vengence. Russia has undeveloped raw resources that is staggering to the human mind. Russia some day will be one of the great powers of the earth. Russia and China are friendly.

Russian influence is all powerful in China. If soviet Russia and China and Japan were to form an alliance, offensive and defensive, their statesmen would give Americans and Europeans the blind staggers.

SCOPES AND HIS FUTURE.

John T. Scopes lost his teaching position at Dayton and was fined $100. He should worry. Dr. Jacob J. Lipman, dean of the New Jersey Agricultural college, with other scientists, raised $5,000 to finance Scopes in a three-year graduate course in science at Rutgers college or some other suitable institution.

Dr. Lipman says that when approached with offers of glittering financial success if he would appear on the lecture platform or vaudeville stage Scopes refused with the comment that he did not know enough about evolution to lecture concerning it and that he would merely be capitalizing undeserved publicity.

Scopes, according to the New Jersey scientist, is still a modest, unassuming young man, entirely untouched by the events of the Dayton trial "and a real Christian gentleman." Scopes could have taken down $50,000 from the movie managers and the vaudeville producers. He spurned their offers.

Now American scientists are going to give him a chance to obtain a real education and after he has obtained it he may make for himself a large place in the American sun.

In this instance modesty appears to have won its own reward. It is not often that it happens.

CHAIN STORES AND THEIR RECORDS.

According to the trade journals chain store sales set new high records for the first seven months of 1925. These stores recorded gains of from 12 to more than 25 per cent compared with the corresponding periods last year. Increased sales were reported in all sections of the country with the largest gains in the agricultural districts.

It is remarkable that in many sections of the country the cost of living increased seven per cent for the same period and in the face of this the textile workers of New England were given a wage reduction of ten per cent.

According to the republican politicians prosperity is wide spread. According to the democratic politicians big business is in the saddle and the people are being bled white by monopolies and the beneficiaries of the republican tariff system.

HIGH RECORD FOR THE BANKS.

And now it is announced that the banks of America have a new high record year to their credit. There are 8,072 banks of America, national in origin, in the continental United States and their resources as shown by reports to the controller of the currency, are $24,350,863, greater than at any time in the history of the national banking system with one exception. Americans are the richest people per capita time has known.

Fable of Slumbering Volcano —By George Ade

Once there was a Young Man named Cyril Frappey who prided himself on the Fact that he never made a Show of his Emotions. He wanted to be like a British Nobelman, who can go through an Explosion without shifting his Monocle. He knew that Men would secretly envy him and Beautiful Women would eat out their Hearts for him if he could ever be the calm, poised, unruffled, unexcitable superior and patronizing Man of the World.

It was a hefty contract for one born in an $1,800 House in a ratty Suburb where Vegetables were sold from wagons and there was no Social Life except two Grass Tennis Courts. Statistics show, however, that many of our most high-geared Aristocrats came from west of Pittsburgh and a Wrist Watch will fit anyone.

Mr. Frappey didn't have any Ancestors whose pictures he could produce. If he had secured the Pictures he wouldn't have dared to hang them on the Wall. He didn't have any Crest or Coat of Arms, although he certainly was entitled to an Heraldic Device showing a Mushroom suspended by Icicles pendant.

He was just a Hireling in a Bank, with enough property to fill a Steamer Trunk and a Bank account not yet strong enough to stand alone, but he had the lofty Manner of Caesar entering Rome at the head of his Legions and he seemed to get away with it.

In this Country, when a Lad of Lowly Birth keeps himself in a Condition of anti-septic Cleanliness and comports himself with Dignity and looks down at the Universe from Heights above, he is sure to rise above the Common Herd and finish either in the Aisle of the Dress Goods Department or the Private Office of some phoney Development Proposition. Mr. Frappey seemed cut out for FutureGreatness, because even the Stenographers admitted that he had the Hall Mark of Distinction, if that means anything to you. In other words, he carried a Ton of Swank and he had no Pals. Trying to be Chummy with Cyril would have been just like Afternoon Tea at the Morgue.

Our Hero specialized on the suppression of all the common and familiar Manifestations of Human Weakness.

If he happened to be walking along the Street and saw 80 or 100 Men grouped in front of a Window watching a perfectly developed Blonde demonstrate a frothy Washing Machine he would elevate the Old Chine and go straight ahead, without trying to sneak a Flash.

The most exciting News in the Paper never got him het up. If any one started to talk Murder or Scandal or Politics to him, he simply said, "Indeed?"—like that, you know and in a Moment or two he would be all alone.

The Comic Strips never coaxed as much as a Wrinkle out of his Eskimo. Sometimes he enjoyed the Wheezes inwardly and wanted to bust out but he had schooled himself by Spartan Methods and was determined not to be Cheap and Vulgar. He was sure a double Portion of Frozen Pudding.

Funerals Bored him. He was annoyed by the Presence of so many clammy Weepers.

Mr. Frappey had mapped out for himself a very strict and definite Policy in regard to Wimmen. He had observed that smirking Lovers who answer the Bell and run Errands and are always Johnny-on-the-Spot enjoy a kind of second-rate domesticated Popularity, the same as Boston Terriers, but the Maidens are yearning all the time for some one who is calm, superior and inscrutable, the same as Lewis Stone in the Movies.

So whenever Mr. Frappey found himself in the Company of a Flossie, he treated her with courtly Politeness but he made it a Rule never to cajole and flatter. It was Indifference that shook up the Girls and made them work overtime.

If you want the Low Down and Inside on Mr. Frappey, the Facts are these: As a Cynic he was a False Alarm and as a Stoic he was all Veneer. Under the hard Crust of his cultivated Personality, all of the customary primeval Passions surged and bubbled. He retained all of the Fool Impulses of the Weaklings who had preceded him, but he thought he had them harnessed.

For instance when he met Miss Estelle Gimpey, the trained and disciplined Flappey told himself that he was merely in the presence of a living Organism composed largely of Oxygen, Hydrogen, Carbon, Iron, Phosphorous and various Mineral Salts. The hidden and submerged Ego began to quiver like an Aspen and was ready to admit that Estelle was the logical Miss America and Queen of the Wows. From the Outside he was a Glacier but internally he enjoyed the Temperature used at Bethlehem, Penn, in boiling up Steel for Armor Plates.

Miss Gimpey, for the first time in her brief Career as a high Voltage Vamp, found herself in the Presence of a Male who did not fall for the Shoulder Action and a very superior line of Work with the Eyes. She was piqued and puzzled and, to be Literary for the Nonce, one might almost say that she was Intrigued. She was accustomed to see them curl up like Bacon in a Skillet.

She carried the battle to him and let might be a hard one to upset but it was her Experience that the longer they held out the harder they fell. So she began to throw at him Everything she had, little suspecting that Saint Anthony, who withstood the Twelve Temptations, had an Easy Time of it as compared with Mr. Frappey, the bogus Woman-Hater.

She carried the attle to him and let him have Volley after Volley of Soft Sighs and coy Glances. One Evening, when it seemed as if she had lost, he wrapped his muscular Right Fin around her supple Waist and reverted to Type. He began to gurgle all of the Incoherent and idiotic Platitudes of conventional Courtship. He wanted her to marry him early next morning.

After she got back to her Room and straightened her bob, she realized that Sir Launcelot was just an ordinary Dub and would be an awful Thing to have around the House She knew that if he had repulsed her and continued to treat her as a Silly Child, she might have worshipped him throughout Eternity, and even beyond. As it was, she sent a curt Note, in which she explained that she would always entertain a certain Respect for him but she was dead sure they never could hit it off as Man and Wife, because their Natures were not compatible. In a very nice and diplomatic way she dropped him from a Fourth Story Window onto the hard Concrete.

When he read her Note by the Morning Light of Cold Philosophy, he was much relieved. He knew that she had tricked him by having a Battery concealed somewhere on her Person. Being once more under Restraint he was more than ever convinced that a Man is a Chump to give way to any natural Impulse or recognize the Existence of what is sometimes known as the Opposite Sex.

She told everybody about it but no one believed her.

Ring Has Own Idea About the Acme of Golfdom. —By Ring Lardner

Many is the Time I Have Stayed in those Places for a hr. With Nobody to Talk to But a Caddy who muttered to himself.

To the editor:

In pretty near all large cities like N. Y., Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles and etc. you will hear boys boasting about some special golf course they have got which is the cat's nightgown and son on and when you go out to play on them you half to admit that they are very high class courses and the natives have a perfect right to rave about same. The club houses is the last word in club houses, the fairways and greens are in swell condiaion and the gen. lay is so beautiful that a person frequently takes their eye off of the ball to look at it.

I however belong to a little group of wilful golfers who are of the opinion that hte acme of golfdom has not yet been achieved in regards to either club houses or links as they have been around the center of N. Y. city for enough vacant lots on which to construct the kind of a course that is the ideal of our dreams. The city location is important as most golf players works or pretends to work part of the day and a whole lot of time is wasted when they half to take a train or a long motor ride to some so called country club. If a desirable plot could be obtained say in Union Square which is bounded by Broadday and 4th ave. to say nothing about 14th st. why a great many members could walk to the course wile anybody could get there in a very few minutes by subway, bus or st. car.

Preserving The Alibi.

The club house would be a frame all the standard memory courses for got sore at the service they could burn it down and by the time another one was erected the undersirable servants would of found themlibrary would be well equipped with selves other jobs. The lounge or self. The first hole would be built the education of members who never can remember how many strokes it took them to reach the green if ever. Another feature would be a hospital with plenty of doctors, internes and nurses to attend the boys that lost their match because they wasn't feeling good.

Now in regards to the course itself. The firsa hole would be built on the order of the one which is on the estate of oe Cook, the comedian, or rather a momedian, at Landing, New Jersey. This hole is 120 yds. long and the green, which covers just an acre, is built like a funnel with the hole in the exact center, so that if your mashie tee shot lands on the green it can't help rolling into the hole for a par one. A great many golfers would spend happier days then than they do now if the started off on the first hole with one.

From the 3d hole on, every other hole would be equipped with segregated shower baths. How many times do you hear golfers complaining of the heat by the time they get to the 3d. hole and it don't seem hardly possible for them to go the rest of the 18 holes before cooling off. The alternate holes not equipped wit h showers would be called service stations were you could procure gin or Scotch with what is technically known as set-ups, meaning ice, orange juice and plain or charged water.

On each and every green would be a dictaphone or a stenographer to record each player's extemporaneous reasons why he done so poor on that hole, the bad breaks he got and how the caddy bothered him and etc. It has often been my experience that by the time the game was over I could not remember exactly what was the trouble on say the 7th. or 12th. but under our club's system these things would all be transcribed and pasted up in the locker room almost before you was through changing your clothes and you could gather all the good listeners around and read the report to them verbatim like you through it happened in the first place.

On Every Green Would be a Stenographer to Record Each Player's Reasons Why he Done so Poor on That Hole.

Caddy Cultivation.

As it was a good deal of trouble to replace divots, the fairway would be stocked with angleworms and the following offer made to all the fishermen in the neighbrohood: "If you will stick around and put the divots back where the came from, you are welcome to all the worms you can find in each individual divot." It might be necessary to sow a new mess of worms every couple month trough it is also possible that worms has kiddies (children) who would soon grow up to fill the gaps left by their departed parents.

In the woods and rough which generally always skirts the fairways and which is frequented by slicers and hooker would be stationed a corps of boy scouts or Woodmen of the World or Independent order of Foresters whose duty it would be to converse with whoever is in there looking for his ball. Many is the time I have stayed in those kind of places for a hr. at a time with nobody to talk to but a caddy who did not seem to listen to nothing I said or make no effort to do nothing himself but mutter.

To satisfy finicky golfers we would have 2 water holes but they would be the wind I once seen on a course out north of Chicago while a guest of Mr. A. D. Lasker. The lakes had cement bottoms and walls and faucets and a water stopper like a bath tub. They was right close to the teen and before we player them, we let all the water out. Then we topped our drives and the ball, hitting the cement bottom, would bounce a mile in the air and carry over 200 yds. down the fairway.

Our caddies would be provided with school text books or instructive reading matter of some kind in the case that they had to carry clubs for somebody like Cyril Walker.

The only other special improvements I can think of now is that the last 12 holes would be all down hill and that ladies would be permitted on the course between midnight and 4 a. m.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects are not very favorable, and, until sundown, denote a tendency to disputation and grouchiness, combined with a spirit of discontent. If you give way to these influences, the day will be unfruitful and disappointing. Whereas, if you exercise self-control and reveal strength of character, you will be easily able to snap out of your grouch, and make, not only yourself but others, fairly happy and cheerful. There is nothing so contagious as a grouch; there is nothing so infectious as a laugh. In the evening, the conditions undergo a sudden change, and indicate a peaceful spirit and a sense of harmony and joint accord. Make the most of it!

A boy born today will enjoy normal health, provided he is properly nurtured and given proper environment. A girl will be rather sickly, but plenty of outdoor air and exercise and wholesome living conditions, will secure for her, in the early stages of womanhood, physical normalcy. Temperamentally, the boy will be full of mischief and fun, and more disposed to play than to work. He will, however, be blessed with an unselfish character, and will never do or say anything to hurt other people's feelings. A girl will be very self-centered, vain, and hard to please. She will, by hook or by crook, get her own way, regardless of the convenience or comfort of others.

If today is your birthday, you are more of a retailer than a wholesaler. You are not fitted, either by temperament or ability, to handle big things as you lack vision and confidence in your efforts. You are, however, very meticulous, and attentive to small details—in fact, rather a fussy individual. You are slow, and, in a certain degree, painstaking; you pay altogether too much attention to the "mote," and cannot, or will not, see the "beam." No one can hurry you, and, even in the emergencies of life, always observe its speed laws, as you are never prepared to take the consequences of an infraction of the rules.

Naturally, these propensities make of you a constant critic of others, and their ways. You will never admit that, at times, the end justifies the means, or that desperate measures are sometimes necessary in desperate cases.

Recklessness and impulse are defects to be often deplored, but excessive caution and ultra conservatism are never productive of success.

To Raise Dates At Hebronsville

HEBBRONVILLE, Texas, Aug. 15. (AP).—An experiment is now in progress near here looking toward the development of this section as a date growing area.

Mrs. Lorine Jones Spoonts has planted more than 100 date palms on her ranch six miles north of here and announces if the experiment is successful a large additional acreage will be devoted to raising dates.

The ranch is made up of 4,500 acres. It contains a lake of about an acre, fed from an artesian well, and is so situated that the area planted to dates may be irrigated by gravity. Moreover, Harvey Stiles who is widely known in this section as a horticulturist, says that analysis of the water shows that it contains the properties needed for date irrigation, while the soil and climate are peculiarly adapted to the culture of dates.

Some authority is lent to this view by a tree in Jarvis Plaza in Laredo. This tree at bearing season is so filled with dates that it is necessary each year to prop the limbs. The quality of fruit produced by this tree is said to be first class. The tree is but one of many scattered about Laredo.

Letters From The People

Editor Record News:

Dear Sir.

I wish to submit an estimate on the 1925 cotton crop of the United States. I believe the department of agriculture is wrong in its estimation of this crop and I feel that through their estimation farmers may be forced to sell on a basis of 13,500,000 bales when they actually will not produce over 11,500,000. Here I wish to present my figures.

The cotton farmers have some 46,000,000 acres planted. South Texas has 40 counties that will produce nothing. yet the department figures those counties to yield more than a quarter of a bale an acre like the other counties. My own small county last eyar produced 37,000 bales and I judge that these 40 counties will average at least as large as my own which is considered small in the cotton counting. Anyhow, I will discard 37,000 and figure those counties to produce 30,000 bales, which amount to 1,200,000 bales. Three acres to the bale, 1924 production, would equal 4,000,000 acres for the 40 counties and 4,000,000 acres at one-fourth bale an acre, 1925 production, would equal 1,000,000 bales. One million from 11,500,000 would leave 10,500,000, 1925 production, even if we were to produce as the department of agriculture estimates. They should reduce the 40 counties at that production, for I believe the department is convinced that these 40 counties have passed out of production for 1925.

Ousley Is Put On Plainview Program

Clarence Ousley of Denton will deliver the principal address before the Northwest Texas district convention of the Texas Farm Bureau federation at Plainview, August 20, 21. His subject will be along economic lines dealing with the problems of the farmer.

In addition to Colonel Ousley, John T. Orr, C. O. Moser, and W. D. Farris, of Dallas, and F. L. McKay of Memphis will appear on the program, L. R. Campbell, secretary of the federation, announced.

The convention is the first to be held in this section of West Texas. Two previous district conventions have been held, one at Beeville and the other at Sherman. Both drew many farm bureau members. The Plainview convention will draw farmers from the 39 counties in West Texas of which Hale county is the geographical center. The Plainview chamber of commerce is cooperating with the farm bureau federation in preparation of the program.

Burk Union Church Meetings to Start

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 15.—The joint revival meeting of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches will begin early in September, and will probably be held in the vacant lot on Avenue C across from the postoffice block, and just south of the Milford tire shop.

An able speaker will hold the services and there will be a music director also. Rev. M. L. Hamilton, pastor of the Methodist church and Dr. Henry O. Moore, of the Presbyterian church will have general oversight of the meeting, co-operating with the local committees from the two congregations previously announced.

This is a union and a public service in which every Burkburnett citizen in the city or on the leases is cordially invited and urged to attend.

NEW ROAD BUILT.

IOWA PARK, Aug. 15.—A new road has been completed by the county this week one mile south of Iowa Park that opens the way from the asphalt road leading to Kma to Coleman's grove one mile southwest o ftown.

Mr. Coleman receintly dedicated the right of way to the county through his irrigated farm in order to provide a better route to the Park.

PATIENTS COST $28.27

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—Per capita cost of caring for the 312 patients in the Wichita Falls insane hospital for July was $28.27, as compared with an 11-month estiimate of $30.08, according to the board of control. The state spent $6,804 on construction work there in July.

WHAT'S DOING HERE AND THERE IN WEST TEXAS

Seymour

The young friends of W. T. Humphreys were his guests on Tuesday evening when he was their host at his home, assisted by his mother, Mrs. E. L. Humphreys and sister, Miss Aline. Progressive "42" was played and many interesting games enjoyed, after which ice cream and cake was served. The guests were Misses Kate Britton, Marporie Seddens, Lois Stewart, Aline Harris, Mattie Lou Harrison of Hereford, Mildred Cooper, Inez Herrell, Irene Seals, Frances Cooper, Margaret Jones, Elma Hinds and Sarah Wheat; Messrs. OLDEST STATUE SOLD

Relic Dug up in World War Brings $60,000 at Sale.

COPENHAGEN.—What is possibly the oldest statue in the world was recently purchased by the Copenhagen museum for $60,000. The statue was dug up in the world war during the construction of fortifications in Mesopotamia and represents King Gudea, who ruled in Bagash in southern Mesopotamia, about 3,000 B. C.

The ancient relic was exceptonally well preserved and was first taken to England, but the London national museum is not buying any more antiquities at present and the statue passed to Copenhagen.

ARCHER COUNTY AND ARCHER CITY.

A South Archer County Oil Well Cutting Up

ARCHER CITY IS CENTER OF GREAT TEXAS OIL FIELD.

County-City Reap Oil Benefits

ARCHER CITY, Aug. 15.—In some four years existence and development as an oil county, Archer has gained the reputation of being one of the greatest semi-shallow oil producing areas ever uncovered in the history of the petroleum industry. An unfaltering daily production that has brought anywhere from 30,000 barrels a day upwards to 43,000 a day from any number of pools located in practically every portion of the county has given the area a reputation for stability of production that has attracted more and more operators to the areas each year, until now, in the dead of August, activity can be said to be hardly less than at any time since oil was first discovered in big quantities.

Every few months another large pool is opened, adding to the Wilmot areas, the Texhoma-Gose, the Sunshine, and the Parrish-White districts another producing area of major proportions. Such have been the Freeman and Hampton, Shappel, South K-M-A pools in north Archer county, and the Swastika, Harmel, Carey and Ragle pools in south Archer county, and the first Waite Phillips pool east of Dundee. In addition there are any number of smaller areas with from two or three wells to a dozen or more which are continually being added to, and help materially to keep up the production mark. Such are the Comac, Orton, Oil Investment company, Burns-Maxson, Green-Flowers, Chesnault et al., Major, Mankins pool, and the Wolfe pools, small areas to be sure, but not to be condemned for their modest output.

The oil is high gravity ranging from 37 degrees to 42 or 43 degrees at the casing head, and brings the top prices offered in the Mid-Continent. There has nearly always been a big demand for the oil and pro-ration has hit the county but once or twice in its history.

In east Archer county, practically untapped as yet, lies what oil men consider as one of the largest undeveloped potential regions in North Texas. A great amount of drilling has to date failed to uncover production of consequence there as yet, but there is a general opinion that its time is coming, and an active wildcatting campaign is kept up there continually which at any time may open a large pool similar to those in the western part of the county.

East Archer county wildcatting is an Archer City proposition almost entirely, practically the whole of the operations being directed from that city. Operations in the vicinity of the oil investment company pool, the Barkley and Meadows area, which is now one of the most active spots in the county, the Comac and Green and Flowers areas, and the Major pool are all carried on from Archer City also. North Archer activity is in large part a Holliday proposition, while considerable of the south Archer operations centers at Olney and Megargel, one in north Young county and the other on the west line of Archer county. In all, however, Archer City takes the lead in activity.

Its hotels are full constantly; considerable machine work and the like is done there, with the exception of a few north Archer areas a trip to almost any part of the county is through Archer City, and by far the majority of its land deals and lease deals find their way sooner or later to Archer City.

The city is the principal and most centrally located town in the county, and owes not a little of its growth and development in the past few years to oil work immediately surrounding it.

A number of operators, Tom Looney, Will Young and others have their homes in Archer City, and a large number of field men, rig employes and the like, live there with their families. Discovery of a pool adjacent to Archer City itself is regarded by most ope rators as liable to happen at any tmie. Such a discovery will add the final touch to the city and insure the business which it has gained slowly but surely through the development of the more remote regions of the county.

Archer City has the finest of modern drug stores, small but complete grocery stocks, filling stations and auto accessory stores that rival any in Wichita Falls or Fort Worth, several modern and up-to-date garages and auto repair shops, three sound and old established banks, ultra modern and sanitary meat markets, fine bakery, dependable abstract plants, three large lumber yards, one modern elevator and feed company, progressive and dependable real estate brokers, lawyers, doctors and a dentist, all of whom are worthy of the entire confidence of the public, a fine water supply, a high voltage electric light service now being installed by the Wichita Falls Electric company, a modern cotton gin, three churches and an accredited school system make Archer City one of the most prosperous cities in north Texas and insures very steady and substantial growth as the production of oil and live stock increases with the years.

A secret count made by the government of the number of motor cars passing through Archer City was to ascertain the proper location of the highway was made public, the number being 3,000 daily.

The streets are indeed full of passenger and commercial cars and trucks and we think the count would average every one of the three thousand daily.

This means a great deal of money the filling stations are taking in and is proved by the gross business reported for the year 1923 at George's filling station. Mr. D. F. Daub who moved to Archer from Wichita Falls 18 months ago and purchased the business gave the gross for that year as $76,000, which is far below the last year's business.

The Methodist church of Archer City, the Baptist church of Archer City, the Christian church of Archer City invites you to worship at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, when in Archer City.

This bank has won the friendship of the community because it has proved profitable to the community.

A connection here will also be profitable to you.

Postal Retiring Age Is Big Topic

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The present retirement act for postal employes will be the chief topic of speakers at the meeting of eight organizations that will celebrate "postal week" here, Aug. 23 to 29.

At present, clerks and carriers retire at 65 and supervisors at 70 and are paid $60 a month, providing they have spent 30 years in the service. If they have served less than 30 years the pay is pro rated.

Local postal workers say the provisions of the act are "utterly inadequate to meet reasonable service and employment needs. The annuity granted is so small that employes appear to accept it only under pressure and the age for retirement is fixed so high as to practically defeat the very purpose for which the law was intended."

The discussions on the retirement act are expected to take place at the meetings of the national association of postal supervisors, the united national association of post office clerks and the national rural letter carriers' association.

Other subjects to be discussed during the week include the "Effect of the New Postal Rates," and the "Expansion of the Air Mail Service."

Burk Plans For Oddfellow Meet

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 15.—Local committees are busy this week planning the entertainment of the delegates to Odd Fellows convention meeting here Aug. 19 and 20.

Rooms are being secured over the city for the visitors and arrangements made with the ladies of the Baptist church to furnish dinner and supper meals at the high school cafeteria.

The high school will be the headquarters for the convention and all delegates will be requested to register there for assignment of homes and other favors.

A splendid program will be rendered in the school auditorium with the exception of the floor work which will be given at the Odd Fellows hall.

Stookie Allen Is Studying Art Now

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—"Stookie" Allen of Corsicana, Texas University athlete who won undying fame last Thanksgiving Day by grabbing a forward pass that had been batted into the air and running for a touchdown, enabling the Texas University Longhorns to beat the Texas Aggies, 7-0, is now studying art in a Chicago art academy. Allen loves to play with pencil and colors even more than he did with a football or baseball. Allen won his letter in baseball as a pitcher.

Allen's athletic career has closed at Texas. He was out for the football team a number of seasons; but 1924 was the only year he was able to make the grade as a regular. At the close of the season he was given all-Southwestern mention.

AILLMAN IN LIQUOR FIGHT.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 15.—A drive against all liquor joints and whiskey traffic is now being waged in Tillman county by Sheriff Jenks McCorcle and his helpers. An extensive campaign has been planned and many men have been deputized to assist the sheriff.

Natural Gas For Frederick Before March 1, Promise

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 15.—Through the action of the city council in adopting an ordinance granting Moseley and Myers, Tulsa Gas firm, a franchise to establish and maintain a natural gas system in Frederick, citizens will vote on September 15 to ratify or reject this action. An affirmative vote of the electors of the city is necessary before the franchise becomes valid.

Rates under the franchise are specified as follows: For domestic purposes, first 100,000 feet, 60 cents per thousand; for the second 100,000 feet, 45 cents; for the third 100,000 feet, 35 cents per thousand. For industrial purposes not to exceed 25 cents per thousand feet.

These rates are said to be cheaper than at Bartlesville, Oklahoma City, Wewoka, El Reno and Norman, some of which cities are in the gas belt, and that the domestice rate was the same as at Tulsa.

The company plans to be in Hobart with a line by January 1, and agreed to be ready to operate in Frederick by March 1.

Vote for the purposal to be submitted for vote by Frederick citizens was unanimous among city councilmen and others present.

Rio Grande City Is Planning Big To-Do

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas, Aug. 15. (AP)—This town soon is to lose its right to claim the title, "the largest inland town in Texas," for August 23 the first train over the newly constructed Rio Grande City Railway will pull into town and the citizens are planning the biggest celebration in the history of the country.

The first work train arrived here several days ago, and its arrival was the occasion for an impromptu fete in which a number of adults who had never seen a locomotive took part. However, the train which will arrive August 23 will be a "regular train," in that it will bring the first freight and passengers and will mean the establishment of regular communication with the outside world.

The program for the celebration now being worked out is to include a monster free barbecue to which the citizens of the Lower Rio Grande valley are invited.

PAVING IN PADUCHA.

Plains Company Busy On Curbs and Gutters.

PADUCHA, Aug. 15.—The Plains Paving company, which has the contract for paving the public square and several blocks of the streets, are now at work on the curbs and gutters, and expect to complete the entire paving program in a few weeks.

Extension of the waterworks to about double former size, is also nearing completion.

Some five or six inches of rain in the last ten days, has put the crops practically beyond danger, and the outlook is for a crop equal to that of last year.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by all drug and department stores with a guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil or waste thime on lemon juice or cucumbers; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on money-back guarantee.—Adv.

for Steady Nerves!

BUT no one is nervous by choice. There is a way that you may so strengthen your body that the nervous system will be cushioned on sound muscles and flesh. But this condition will not come about unless you have rich red-blood-cells. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in all the world to each of us. More red-blood-cells! That's what you need when your nerves give way and you cannot control yourself.

S.S.S. will prove to you its "Why" and "How" reason. Since 1826 S.S.S. has helped thousands. Because S.S.S. does build blood power, it builds you up when you are run-down, clears the system of blood impurities; routs so-called skin disorders—and stops rheumatism, too.

This is why S.S.S. is accepted as the greatest of all blood purifiers, blood builders and system strengtheners. Start taking S.S.S. today. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable. Your nerves will become stronger, you will have more energy, vitality and vigor and a more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Hot Weather Shows Advantages

Hot weather certainly makes one appreciate the advantages of natural gas. Many of the older people will remember the heat of the kitchen when coal and wood were used for cooking. It was so hot that the unfortunate cook kept away as much as possible.

With this terrific heat went also a certain amount of dust, ashes and smoke, which made a clean kitchen almost an impossibility. Even Dad had his share, for the splitting of kindling out in the hot sun made him short of temper, didn't it?

NOW YOU CAN USE JUST THE AMOUNT OF HEAT YOU NEED, SMOKELESS AND ODORLESS, WITHOUT DUST OR GRIME, AND YOU NEED NOT HAVE A HOT KITCHEN WHEN THE AUGUST SUN WARMS THINGS UP.

Just to add to this blessing, the cost of all the comfort of natural gas is only about half what any other fuel would cost, and you get all the conveniences extra.

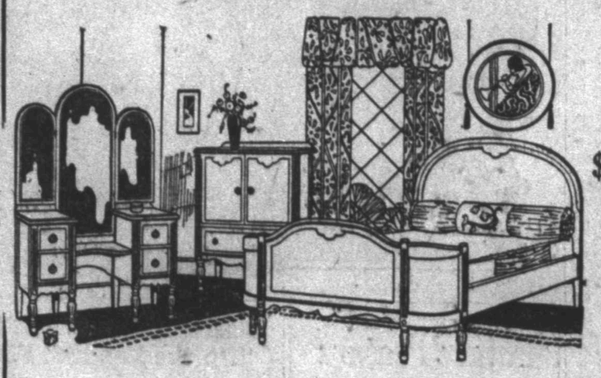

It is well sometimes to try to appreciate the money saving, cleanliness and convenience of this greatest of all fuels.

LEW SHANK TO QUIT POST IN INDIANAPOLIS

Unique Mayor May Decide Not to Run for His Office Again

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 14.—Lew Shank, who has combined an intermittent career of public service with auctioneering, horse racing, acting and operation of a storage plant, will retire again to private life at the end of this year, when his second term as mayor of Indianapolis expires.

Shank has not decided whether he will climb back onto the auction block or resume management of his storage plant. His friends say he no longer has any inclination for the race track, and he has said he will not be lured back to the stage, where, as a professional humorist, he attracted attention throughout the country some years ago.

His present objective is to cap his career as mayor with the purchase of the 650-acre Laurel Hill estate and mansion near the city for a municipal park and country club. The property, valued at more than $1,000,000, belonged to Stoughton Fletcher, Indianapolis capitalist, and is now in the hands of trustees. Shank, conceiving the idea of acquiring it for a city playground, recently inserted page advertisements in Indianapolis newspapers urging citizens to visit it. Thousands of residents inspected the estate on the day set, but much opposition has arisen to purchase or lease of the estate by the city.

Since the day Shank decided suddenly, over a card table in the back room of a saloon, to run for the mayoralty of Indiana's metropolis, he has kept his city and state in the limelight and he has become a notable character. He has been unusually well informed on all branches of city government, he has shown aptitude for business administration, a ' he has been indomitably persistent in attainment of his municipal objectives.

Shank aspired last year to the republican gubernatorial nomination but was beaten. He met indirect defeat again in the city primaries last May when Raph Lemcke, who had Shank's support for the mayoralty, lost the republican nomination to John L. Duval, present county treasurer, leaving a breach in republican party ranks which has not yet healed completely.

New Refinements In Olds As Cut In Prices Is Made

Enhance beauty, more power and substantial mechanical betterments in face of a drastic reduction in prices of the Oldsmobile six were announced today by the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Mich. The latest Oldsmobile has low, racy lines and is finished in two-color Duco. Distinct individuality is expressed in its appearance, due to well proportioned lines and harmonious color combinations. Price reductions on some models are as great as $260 a car.

A wide panel formed by moldings separates the two colors and runs around the body back of the cowl. The lower molding is continued forward to the radiator shell. This paneling not only increases the beauty of the body but also emphasizes the long, low lines of the car. The fenders have been deepened, this also adding to the beauty of the assembly.

The touring and sport touring are finished in two-tone Duco. Below the molding, which runs around the car to both sides of the radiator shell, the color is an attractive shade of Russian brown. Above the molding the shading is moleskin gray, which forms a panel strip along the sides of the car and a saddle over the top of the hood. Red striping just under the molding, on the louvers and on the spokes of the wheels forms a pleasing contrast. Both the touring and sport touring cars are upholstered in genuine gray Spanish leather.

The coach and deluxe coach are finished in Buckeye gray Duco. There is a double molding, the lower beading extending out to the radiator shell. Fine green striping sets off the panel formed by this molding, as well as the hood louvers and wheel spokes. The finish above the upper molding is black Duco. The upholstery is a natural shade of heavy cord plush.

The sedan and deluxe sedan have an attractive aquamarine blue finish with white striping to set off the panel, hood louvers and wheel spokes. These, also, have a double moulding, and are finished in black Duco above the panel thus formed. Heavy Cord plush is used for the upholstery. These models have an instrument board gasoline gauge.

The deluxe and sport models are fully equipped with disc wheels, trunk rack, black enameled trunk, luggage rails, bumpers, kick plates, motometer, rear vision mirror, snubbers all around, and spot light. The sport touring has windshield wings, and natural wood wheels are optional.

Adoption of 21-inch balloon tire wheels—wood for standard disc steel for deluxe and sport models—and changes in the springs and spring shackles have resulted in bringing the bodies closed to the ground, adding to beauty and riding comfort. The overall length of the coach body has been increased. This makes the coach even more roomy than formerly. Doors of both coaches and sedans have been widened. Clutch pedal pressure has been reduced, which together with lengthened gear shift lever, makes gear shifting very easy and produces smooth power application.

CHES. DAVIS

Ches. Davis Revue To Continue At Palace this Week

Another Comedy Knock-Out Promised by Rube Hooper Act

The Ches. Davis Musical Revue, now in its sixth week at the Palace, still continues to draw packed houses at each performance, with the company becoming more and more a favorite with Wichita Falls theatergoers.

The company is now enlarged to 24 people one of the latest additions being Clyde and Evelyn Hooper. This makes this revue carry the greatest array of comedians ever before carried a musical taboloid production.

The offering for Monday and Tuesday will be "The Knockout," a comedy bill, featuring "Rube" Hooper and the entire comedy cast, with all new vaudeville being introduced by Owen Bennett and Bert Southern.

Warns Against A Jewish Demonstration

SOFIA.—General Rousseff, minister of the interior, recently issued a warning against demonstrations of hatred toward Jews in Bulgaria, while addressing the Democratic Union, the group of parties in power.

"The government and the citizenship of Bulgaria are greatly disturbed by any display of hatred and persecution against Jews in Bulgaria," said General Rousseff.

"All governments in the past have regarded Jews as good Bulgarian citizens, because our Jews by no manner have shown that they are less devoted to the country than other citizens. The indications, here and there, of anti-Jewish sentiment must be ascribed to a weak sense of patriotism and the absence of a realization of duty to the state."

MISSION GIVES 'EM MELODRAMA
"Up the Ladder" Film This Week A Hit

"Oh," sighed Davis, much relieved, "The public, dear old friends, heaven bless 'em."

And shortly after Davis shut himself up in his New York study, dozens of sharpened lead pencils, a ream or so of paper and his pipe his only companions. Books, he had none. If one could have peeped in on the workman one would have discovered the author drawing his window curtains aside from time to time and eagerly watching the steady stream of flowing humanity outside.

"Up the Ladder," the smashing Broadway success, was born.

The screen version of this popular melodrama, the Universal-Jewel feature, starring Virginia Valli, now being shown at the Mission theater, tells of an intensive human situation. It is the story of an ambition sought after, realized, and once attained, neglected through depreciation.

An able cast of screen favorites support Miss Valli under Edward Sloman's direction: Forrest Stanley as the husband; Margaret Livingston, as "the other woman," and Lydia Yeamans Titus, George Fawcett, Olive Ann Alcorn and Baby Priscilla Dean Moran.

All the Stars of Movieland Will Shine At Strand Theatre, Under A New Management, This Winter

Work is rapidly nearing completion on redecoration and reconditioning of the Strand theatre which will be opened under a new management on August 28. The popular playhouse is being put in first class condition for a winter amusement season that, the operators believe, will be one of the most successful in its history.

In commenting on attractions being booked here, the theatre management has said that heretofore Wichita Falls and all other first run theatres were compelled to select the exclusive products of one of the three big groups of producers. Thus, only the pictures and cinema stars of one large company were offered by any one theatre. Through arrangements now being made, however, productions from all the important producers, including practically every star of any consequence in the country, will be brought to the Strand screen. Because of this, the Strand trade name this winter is to be "The Playhouse of the Stars."

Included in the list to make their appearance are such familiar names as Gloria Swanson, Thomas Meighan, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Mae Murray, Ramon Navarro, Pola Negri, Lon Chaney, Norma Sheerer, Raymond Griffith, Colleen Moore, Bebe Daniels, Milton Sills, Richard Barthelmess, Lila Lee, Tom Mix, John Gilbert, Corrine Griffith and others. For the opening picture, August 28, the management has selected the latest production by Milton Sills, "The Knockout." It is a feature crammed with action with its locale in a prize fight ring and the Maine north woods.

Another innovation at the Strand is to be the unchanged price scale which will remain at 10 cents and 30 cents in the afternoon and 10 cents and 40 cents in the evening. No matter what the attraction, these figures will always prevail.

Swift Action In Mix Film At The Mission Today

"The Rainbow Train" Shows Famous Cowboy Star At His Best

Swift action and tense dramatic situations fill "The Rainbow Trail," Tom Mix's latest William Fox picture, which opens a four-day run at ture, which opens at four-day run at the Mission theater today. Into this incomparable Zane Grey story, which is the sequel to "Riders of the Purple Sage," Mr. Mix has packed an abundance of thrilling exploits. Combining the genius of these two westerners, Mix and Grey, has made this a picture of unusual distinction.

Lynn Reynolds, who directed the picture, has succeeded in carrying on the story of "Riders of the Purple Sage" with artistic adroitness. The action in "The Rainbow Trail" starts with the first foot and continues until the romantic conclusion.

Tony, Mix's wonder horse, carries his master through perilous situations and Mr. Mix performs many deeds of new daring. Lucien Littlefield and Mark Hamilton, a picturesque pair, contribute several exquisitely funny incidents Anne Cornwall is the charming heroine whom Mix rescues from George Bancroft, the villian of the drama. Steve Clemente, Fred De Silva and Diana Miller skillfully portray character roles.

OLYMPIC FILM ACCLAIMED ONE OF YEAR'S BEST

"Drusilla With a Million" Proves to be Remarkable Picture Play

Stirring laughs and tears into a brilliant entertainment batter; adding heaping measure of powerful drama, and seasoning with a double handful of humanness, Associated Arts, producers of "Drusilla with a Million" have baked in the oven of human sentiment the most appetizing dish that has been set before motion picture patrons in a long time. With Director F. Harmon Weight acting as chief chef, "Drusilla," the adaptation of Elizabeth Cooper's novel of the same name, occupies the place of honor on any entertainment menu. Mary Carr, Kenneth Harlan and Priscilla Bonner are featured members of the cast. "Drusilla With a Million" is showing at the Olympic today and those who fail to patrake of this delectable offering will never cease to regret it.

The love affairs of a Parisian actress form the basic theme for "The Woman Hater," the new Warner picture that will be featured at the Olympic beginning Wednesday, with Helene Chadwick, Clive Brook and John Harron in the leading roles.

Helene Chadwick has been chosen to portray the notorious actress who has set all Paris agog with her daring and beauty. On the eve of her departure for America she is besieged by numerous admirers who offer her their hearts and names, but the naive charm of an unsophisticated American boy intrigues Marie Lamont and she half promises to marry him. When Philip, the American youth, breaks the news of his engagement to Marie, his mother is dreadfully upset and begs Miles Faversham to prevent the marriage. In order to cure Philip of his infatuation, Miles meets the actress and discovers that she is the girl who jilted him long ago and turned him into the "woman hater" he is. Their simultaneous reaction to the sudden shock of seeing each other after many years forms a drama of unusual intensity.

Clive Brook intrepets the "woman hater," and knowing his reputation as one of the foremost actors of England, and his last year's work in American photoplays, his role should be exceedingly interesting. John Harron is, of course, cast as the young American, while Helen Dunbar and Dale Fuller complete the cast.

"The Woman Hater" was directed by James Flood, adapted for the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton, and produced by Warner Bros.

WOMEN CAN FORGET

Female Members of Diet Need Valets to Watch Belongings

BERLIN— (AP) —Female members of the Prussian diet it would seem are far ahead of their male colleagues in point of forgetfulness and losing things. A large blackboard, representing the diet's lost and found office, bears testimony to the preoccupation of the lady parliamentarians. Feminine bags of every description are here reported as found. They have ceased to be a problem, however, for in the course of time the personnel of the house has become so well drilled that they are now able to designate the owner of almost every bag at first sight.

'PACEMAKER' A NEW FEATURE FOR OLYMPIC

H. C. Witwer Story Changed To Brilliant Comedy On Screen

The first episode of "The Pacemakers," the new series starring Alberta Vaughn and George O'Hara, showing at the Olympic this week, has a college town as its setting, and before it is through the producers promise that every variety of sport will be utilized for thrills, drama and comedy. Wesley Ruggles shows brilliant direction in the first episode which establishes the hero and heroine in their collegiate sphere. The stories, scenarioized by Beatrice Van from H. C. Witwer's stories, are filled with delightful situations and incidents, and have been very humanly transferred to the silver sheet.

The two stras will need no boosting to the fans who remember "Fighting Blood," "The Telephone Girl," and "The Go-Getters." "The Pacemakers" is of even faster tempo than its predecessors, and each number contains an interesting, human story of buoyancy, youth, sport and young romance. In addition to the two popular young costars those great laughmakers, Al Cooke and Kit Guard are in the cast, enacting roles which give them such splendid opportunities that they will jerk roars of mirth from the system of a chronic dyspeptic.

Take Your Sweety For a Cycle Ride

BERLIN.—Motorcycles are rapidly acquiring the name "bridemobile" in Germany due to the fact that this summer's crop of honeymoon couples is finding the motorcycle the cheapest and most convenient method of making the wedding journey and seeing the beauties of the German country. The honeymooning bride usually rides perched on a little extra seat behind her spouse which is none too comfortable but which enables her to cling closely to her lover.

German newlyweds enthusiastically declare that the "bridemobile" renders them independent of train schedules, enables them to break their journey wherever they please and permits them to make stopovers in small towns off the beaten path where they can enjoy their honeymoon undisturbed by the noise and bustle which goes with stopping in metropolitan hotels.

NASH SHOWS BIG INCREASE IN JULY SALES

3 Times More Business Is Reported Than in Past Year

Riding the crest of a wave of outspoken country-wide endorsement and approval of the new special six and advanced six models, Nash Motors in July did three times the business of the same month a year ago. Added to this, it is pointed out by the company officials, that increased production because of the heavy demand will make August, it point of both production and sales, the greatest month the Nash Motors company has ever experienced.

"In spite of a definite schedule for greatly increased production in August at both the Kenosha and Milwaukee plants," said E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of hand are greatly in excess of the hand are greatly in excess of the August production schedule. In fact, at this time, these orders are 30% greater than production possibilities and this figure will be increased each day as additional orders for August delivery are received by the factory."

Nash Is Oversold

Nash Motors has been in an oversold condition practically every month since August of last year at which time the special and advanced six series cars were first announced. Month after month throughout the fall and winter Nash Motors recorded heavy gains in production and sales while during these same months the entire industry reported losses. Then came the announcement in July of the refined and improved series of Nash special and advanced six models with the result that show rooms throughout the country were thronged with buyers and an increased production program was made necessary at the factory.

Additional buildings and equipment are being built and installed to provide even greater production increases later on in the year.

Justice Takes Big Whack at One-Arm Automobile Drivers

SANTA ANA, Aug. 15.—One arm drivers are a menace to traffic on the highway, whether the driver is afflicted or employs one arm in circling the waist of a fair dame, in the opinion of Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison. Upon the death of Justice of the Peace J. B. Cox, who was known as the "nemesis of the speeders," Morrison was given the position.

The justice gave voice to his opinion of one arm drivers at a meeting of the Orange county Auto Trades association held at the Elks club.

He advocated permanent revocation of the license of a man or woman who had been convicted four times of traffic law violations.

Patrol of the highways, city, county and state, should be under control of the state, the justice declared. He said there are too many instances in which motorcycle officers of a community give more consideration to making arrests to justify their salaries than to enforce the laws strictly but impartially.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

Have you ever been on a highway which permitted of but two lines of traffic and have someone hold up a dozen cars because of their unwillingness to travel faster than 12 or 15 miles an hour? Such a person is known as a "mope," and several states have laws against moping.

A "mope" is a menace because it is moping which causes so much cutting in and around.

The city of New Haven, Conn., has a safety zone for pedestrians getting on street cars which compels motor cars to follow the street car on the street car tracks. That means that the area between street car and curb is kept clear for pedestrians. It is really a good plan.

Such signs as "Dangerous Curve—Eat Blotz's Macaroni" should be discouraged. If a motorist should be warned about a dangerous curve that message is enough. His attention should not be called to macaroni at the same time.

* * *

One wonders why so many towns do not build highways around their towns rather than leading to the center of the city, adding to congestion. Many a small town has made the mistake of routing through traffic along the main streets.

Seventy-three per cent of all motor cars are in cities of more than 1,000.

Willys-Knight Blazing Trail For Motorists Of Chicago Gold Coast

Vividly recalling the old frontier days when that interpid French explorer Father Marquette was the first white man to drift down the Mississippi river, the Willys-Knight Six Path-Finding car is now blazing a trail from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico for wealthy Chicago motorists.

This Willys-Knight Six left Chicago on July 25 in charge of Frank J. Kroulik, editor of the Illinois Motorist, official journal of the Illinois Automobile club which is sponsoring the trip for its members.

The unusual venture marks the beginning of the most pretentious expedition by automobile owners ever attempted, and will consume about three weeks before the huge party returns to Chicago. The trip as taken is closely analogus to the stirring expeditions of our forefathers when they convoyed from frontier post to post with oxen teams and prairie schooners.

In addition to breaking the trail for the interpid Chicagoans, the Willys-Knight Six will return to Chicago in time to lead the expedition as pilot car early in October.

Carbuyers Like Special Jobwork

That the new special custom-built Hudson and Essex closed cars now being featured are meeting with the approval of the motor car public.

"The special Hudson and Essex cars that have been shown during the past month have struck a very popular note with motorists.

These cars are offered at only a slightly increased figure over the standard models of the Hudson-Essex line.

"It has been the goal in creating these custom-built closed cars to inject into each 'job' some individual feature—an individual color scheme or special trim which will stamp each car as distinctive and different from all others of like make."

Marmon Coupe In High Favor With Motoring Public

Victoria Model For 4-Passengers Announced To Closed-Type Line

In addition to the Marmon line of closed cars selling at practically open car cost—the Victoria coupe for four passengers—has just been announced by the Nordyke & Marmon company, manufacturers of Marmon motor cars, according to D. L. Fritz of the Fritz Motor company, local Marmon dealer.

Brought out in response to a public demand for a car of this type, the Victoria coupe is distinguished by its beauty and unusually attractive lines. The Victoria coupe is roomy but at the same time comfortably compact. Ample leg room has been provided without sacrificing seating arrangement or in any way giving an appearance of bulkiness to the car.

As in other models of the Series 74 line, the sun visor on the Victoria coupe is a graceful continuation of the top line. The windshield is in one piece, giving an ample view in all directions and insuring safety. The rear quarter is in black rough-grained leather with Landau irons on each side. Distinctive type rear quarter windows have been provided with provisions made for lowering the right rear quarter glass. The glass in the two doors lowers flush with the sills.

BUTTER PRODUCTION UP

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—Increase in butter production in Canada in recent years, a report of the bureau of statistics showing that 81,000 tons were manufactured in 1924, against 73,000 tons in 1923 and 68,000 tons in 1922. To this an average of 45,000 tons a year may be added for butter made on the farms and in the homes.

Imports of butter have averaged 1,500 tons annually, the report says, and exports 8,500 tons, while there has been a steady increase in stocks.

Creamery butter production last year amounted to 182,161,347 pounds, an increase of 11.2 per cent over 1923.

Thinks Old Buying Habits Disappearing

Back from a 9,000-mile trip through the United States to observe business conditions in the automobile industry, L. E. Corcoran, general sales manager of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car company, declares that the motor car buying habits of the public have undergone a pronounced change.

"In contrast with former years, automobile sales this year have continued at high levels during the summer months," said Mr. Corcoran.

"This is one of the several evidences that the unhealthy condition of peak buying activity in spring and fall and sales stagnation in mid-winter and mid-summer is rapidly being wiped out.

"Buyers in increasing numbers are coming to the conclusion that it is just as sensible to buy in one month as it is in another, regardless of the season.

"The habit of buying in the spring is a heritage from the old days when there were few closed cars and automobiles were suitable only for fair weather driving. The ability of manufacturers to produce all-season closed cars at prices close to those of open models has changed all this.

Million See the 'Better Buicks'

The better Buick has taken the country by storm.

More than 1,000,000 persons saw it the first three days of its introduction.

By actual count 1,018,322 people visited better Buick showrooms.

Those figures are authentic and released by officials of the Buick company.

Local attendance surpassed all previous records, according to Charlie Nolan, general sales manager of the Dixon Motor Co.

The better Buick is superior to last year's car in dozens of respects. Nothing has been taken from the better Buick. Much has been added. Yet the price is far lower.

"It is Buick's answer to competition and the ideal we live up to." "When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them," declared Nolan.

"The public response has vindicated our policy.

"Everybody is talking about the increased power in the better Buick. This is only one of many new features.

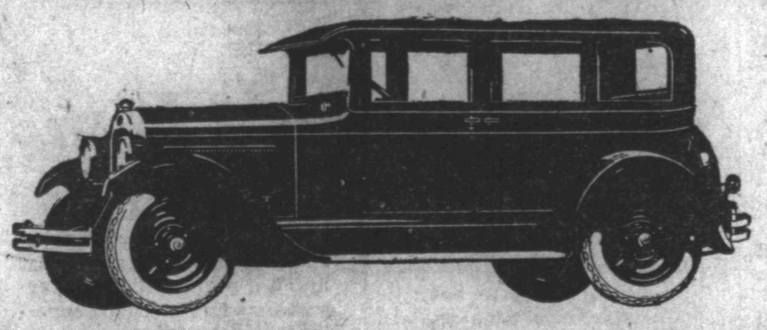

"The considerable increase in engine power necessitated many other changes so that every part of the entire car would be in perfect balance."

THE GRIT OF A RACING CAR

Its brilliant, utterly different performance was bound, at first, to overshadow the unsurpassed dependability and durability of the Hupmobile Eight.

Now, the public is learning that this Eight is as extraordinary in these respects as in the new interpretation it puts on fine motoring.

Owners habitually drive thousands of miles without even minor adjustments—which means that this is a trustworthy car for a woman.

It's a genuine Hupmobile in that kind of fine engineering and honest, sincere workmanship that makes a car last for years—but in this Eight the solid, homespun Hupmobile virtues are still further heightened.

The fact is, the Hupmobile Eight is built like a racing car—that is, built to travel all day long at top speed. Naturally, such a car, in ordinary day-after-day service, is certain to prove a revelation in stand-up-ability.

Drive this Eight—and you won't be able to resist its performance. Women, especially, speak in glowing terms of the fact that driving this car is not a tiring effort, but a delightful recreation. We have a car ready and waiting for you to drive yourself. Come in.

OIL FILTER A NEW FEATURE OF OVERLANDS

This Device Eliminates Costly Bills Caused By Poor Lubrication

Friction is defined as the "resistance to motion due to the contact of surfaces." It is one of the many important problems automotive engineers have to combat and it takes a heavy toll in power that otherwise would be productive, and in wear and tear.

Lubrication is our chief weapon against friction, and proper lubrication reduces frictional loss and wear to a minimum. When lubrication functions 100 per cent moving metal surfaces do not touch. They are separated by a film of pure oil and the only friction is the rubbing of one layer of this oil film against another layer.

Absolute perfection, however, is difficult to attain, and even when we approximate it in the lubrication systems of the better automobiles, there is another factor remaining. This is the contamination of the lubricant by the entrance of foreign particles.

Car Eats Dirt.

An automobile engine resembles a human in that it tries "to eat a peck of dirt" during its lifetime. Minute particles of dirt and grit are constantly finding their way into the vitals of the engine through the air the carburetor breathes or via the gasoline line. Practically all of this dirt finds its way into the lubricant, either directly or after it is formed into carbon in the cylinders, and then breaks off and mixes with the oil. Naturally these particles of grit break the protective oil film and set up friction that wears cylinder walls, pistons, piston pins, connecting rods and crankshaft bearings.

To overcome this condition the new Oakland Six is equipped with an oil filter. This device has no moving parts and is entirely automatic. It consists of metal mesh and fabric through which the entire supply of engine lubricant passes several times an hour. The filtering material removes all dirt and foreign substances from the oil, returning it to the crankcase purified. Test cars driven thousands of miles showed better performance and less wear when the filter was in use. The amount of dirt collected from the oil surprised even engineers who knew a considerable quantity would be found.

Chinese Seeking Bear Charms As Danger Preventative

OLYMPIA, Wash. —(AP) —Chinese faith in the curative qualities of selected portions of a bear's anatomy has resulted in several unique assignments for government hunters operating in this state, declares Dr. Glenn R. Bach, field leader for the federal bureau of the biological survey in the Washington district.

Recently, a Chinese resident of Washington, D. C., requested the feet of a bear while some months ago another asked for a bear's gall bladder, the information was volunteered that it was wanted as a health charm. Such a talisman when worn around the neck, it was averred, assured the wearer 1,000 years of life.

Although the supposed curative qualities of bears' feet were not disclosed, the hunters have been instructed to forward the first set of bruin's feet available to the Olympia office for reshipment to Washington. They also have been instructed to use salt unsparingly in the curing process. This essential was neglected in the case of the gall bladder, with the results that the talisman arrived in such a condition that officials were prone to believe that the warmer the weather the more powerful the charm would prove.

Overland Eliminates Trouble With Climb Over Front Seats

The difficulties encountered by hundreds of owners of popular two-door models in entering the rear seats of their cars have been eliminated in the new Overland Standard Sedan, according to the statement of Willy-Overland officials.

When Willys-Overland engineers set out to design this five passenger sedan, they conceived the idea of building the body doors to provide the same entrance space as is incorporated in most four-door models. Accordingly two doors of the new Overland model are made of such exceptional width and rigidity as to accommodate packages of unusually large and bulky content and to allow of perfect freedom of entrance to both front and rear seats.

The new Overland Standard Sedan comes in the popular blue Duco finish used with such success on other Overland models and is equipped with full balloon tires. It sells for $655 f. o. b. Toledo.

Tractor Equipment Possible for Farmer

A financial plan to enable farmers to own a Fordson tractor, Oliver plow and other equipment without an inconvenience has been worked out by the Tractor, Implement and Equipment distributors, according to word received by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine at Washington.

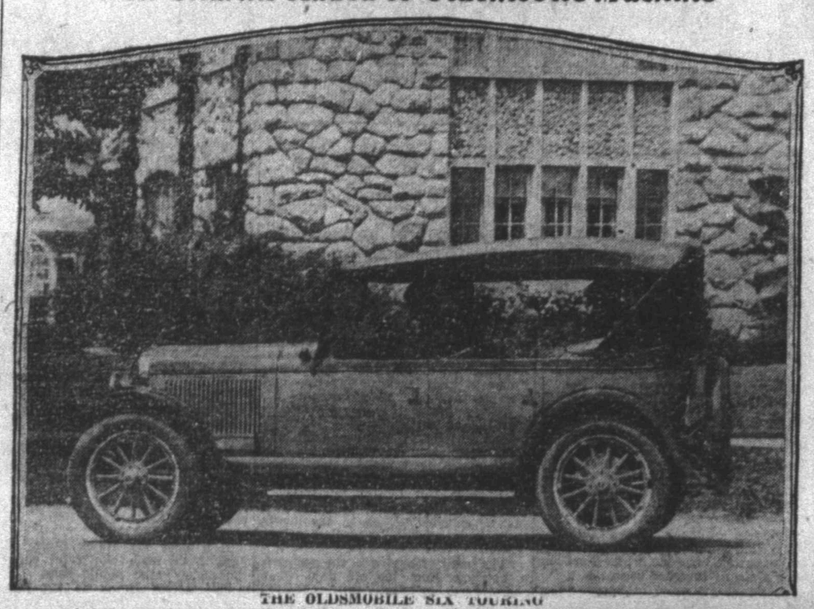

At their recent convention the Tractor, Implement and Equipment distributors worked out a scheme whereby power machinery can be placed in the farmer's hands under a long-deferred payment plan.

The department of agriculture is pledged to a program that will bring good times back to the farmer and it feels, following a survey of the situation, that the best means of bringing prosperity to the farmer is to give him power driven equipment.

World Wide Good Will an Asset Of Value to Dodge Car

The advertisement, "world wide good will," which recently appeared on poster boards and in magazines and newspapers everywhere, has called for much discussion of the true value to a business of that highly prized yet intangible asset known as "good will."

"The 'good will' of every owner," says Mr. McFall, local Dodge Brothers dealer, "is an ideal which has dominated the policy of manufacture and dealer alike ever since the first car carrying the name Dodge Brothers was designed. Public confidence in the policies back of the car was as eagerly sought as confidence in the car itself.

"Important among these original policies back of Dodge Brothers good will—sound policies which will be followed as long as Dodge Brothers Motor Car is built—is the principle of concentrating on the perfection of a single chassis.

"Production of an endless series of annual models was regarded as an unsound policy, a policy at wide variance with the avowed purpose of winning world wide good will.

"The slogan 'Constantly improved —but no yearly models' announced the policy clearly and showed the public exactly what they were buying when they chose cars bearing Dodge Brothers' name.

"Not once in well over ten years has the car failed to uphold and enhance its reputation for faithful performance. Not once have Dodge Brothers departed from their announced intention of supplying a product of consistent goodness and continued betterment without recourse to the policy of an endless series of annual models to stimulate sales."

ROYALTY IN THE MOVIES

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Coaches used by royalty wear out or require replacing more frequently perhaps than those of their loyal subjects. There is always a market for these royal "cast offs" and many have become the property of rich business men while others, of this gilded type, are bought for film work.

There are several now waiting transportation to America, but in accordance with conditions of sale all crests and other identification marks have been cut out of the panelling or off the upholstery before being taken out of the sale yard.

Ford Does Record Business in July

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—During the month just ended the Ford Motor company did a record July business in every division, it was today announced at the Highland Park general offices. Domestic sales of Ford cars and trucks totaled 167,626 in July, exceeding by 6,182 those of a year ago, sale of Fordson tractors were more than 3,300 greater than last year and 207 more Lincoln cars were delivered to customers during the month than in the previous July.

On the basis of branch reports received early in July the company anticipated an increased volume of business and while it predicted that summer buying would rise to higher level than usual, the demand for all Ford products during the month exceeded expectations.

The outlook is for increasing business in August.

One of the chief indications of this appears in agricultural sections of the country, where farmers are coming into the market in rapidly growing numbers. Evidence of this is found in the remarkable sales of Fordson tractors during July.

NEW CHRYSLER SIX

A Promise Kept

New High Quality; New Lower Prices

While the motoring public acclaims the Chrysler Six as the most phenomenal car ever built, Walter P. Chrysler announces notable improvements in quality—of materials, of performance, of craftsmanship, of equipment, of design.

Greater Power—Increased cylinder bore resulting in approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Faster Acceleration—5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deepest mud or sand, from refined power plant with a still larger crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetion improved to deliver 20 and more miles per gallon of gasoline, notwithstanding increased power and faster acceleration.

Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Distinctive Color Combinations—Body colors, in duco, are the most attractive and tasteful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are further refined; attractively low and gracefully rounded.

Extraordinary Equipment—Chrysler equipment is of a quality and completeness rarely found on any car—even the highest priced. It includes Purolator, which filters all dirt from crankcase oil as the motor runs; Watson Stabilators, the most efficient and most costly device of its type to absorb the shock of road irregularities; aircleaner, which removes all road dirt and dust from air entering the engine; thermostatic control of water heat for most efficient operations; Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes which provide utmost safety control; Spartan "SOS" electric horn; duco durable body finish; balloon tires.

At the completion of the first history-making year of Chrysler Six—Walter P. Chrysler pledged himself and his organization to strive earnestly to keep the Chrysler Six as far ahead as it stood at that moment.

The new Chrysler Six—at new and lower prices—is the answer to that promise—the result of his engineering and manufacturing genius which never rests satisfied.

Cold words fail to describe this new Chrysler Six—a car so far beyond any comparison with existing cars that you must know it personally to understand its unapproachable superiority. That is why we are eager to have you see and drive it for yourself.

A demonstration will prove conclusively to you why to-day's Chrysler Six strides far ahead of competition.

CHEVROLET HAS REFINEMENTS AT LOWER COST

President Kundsen Announces Changes In New Models

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—Following closely the recent price reduction on Chevrolet closed cars, came the announcement today from W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, that the entire line of both open and closed models has been improved by the addition of numerous refinements.

Included in the list of improvements are new and attractive headlights which replace the former type. They are mounted on a heavy tie-bar placed between the front fenders. This arrangement affords better mounting for the headlights and permits them to be interchangeable, eliminating the necessity for right and left hand lamps. The tie-bar also provides a convenient place for carrying the front license plate.

An improved mounting for the spark and throttle controls has been arranged on the instrument panel.

The gear shift lever has been lengthened three inches.

Balloon tires are standard on all closed models.

Indestructible Duco finish is used on both open and closed cars. The sedan is in aquemarine blue and the coach and coupe in sage green. The roadster and touring models are finished in gunmetal grey Duco with striping to match and are upholstered in grey which blends pleasingly with the body finish.

Salaries of Movie Directors Vary

The average salary received by the "top-notch" director approximates $2,000 weekly. Other directors—many of them new in the industry—are paid lesser amounts, ranging as low as $75 a week.

One producer in speaking on the question, "How much is a director worth?" said, "A director who does not know every detail of the motion picture game is expensive at any price. One who does know is worth $2,000 a week because he will save his salary a dozen times in the cost of a production.

"Through the inexperience of a director, studios sometimes are compelled to retake the work of many weeks. This means that the cost of keeping the company and the mechanical staff on the sets for the extended length of time was greater than the difference between what the producer paid his small salaried director and what he would have had to pay a top-nothcer."

Reichstag Finds Just How It Stands

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—The reichstag recently was treated to a true interpretation of public sentiment, at least the sentiment of part of the public, when 200 elderly men and women demanded salvage of their savings wrecked by the inflation of the mark.

These elderly people visited the reichstag to settle their account with the German nationalists, an account yhich they claimed resulted from promises by that party of an adequate revaluation of their bank accounts and depreciated securities in return for their votes.

Efforts by two nationalists to stem the tide of protest proved futile and eventually the demonstration became so turbulent that all other business of the reichstag was suspended. The nationalists fled the hall. All other parties then were drawn into the discussion.

One old woman expressed her feelings, declaring that all German nationals should be hanged. An old man rushed about the lobby seeking support for a plan to partition the property of the Hohenzollerns. His war cry was: "Those persons who lost the war should not get a pension. It's the first duty of the state to care for those who sacrificed their children and their hard earned savings."

All Cets Meet In Dublin Conference

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—There was recently concluded here an interesting congress representing all sections of the Celtic race, delegates attending from Gaelic Scotland, Wales and from Brittany. The discussions were largely concerned with the preservation of the Irish language. Eamon De Valera said that emigration from the Irish speaking districts of Ireland was the greatest difficulty to be contended with. He was satisfied, he declared, that those at the head of affairs, could if they wished get the money to establish industries to keep the Gael at home.

Other speakers said the language was dying because the native speakers set no value on it. Professor Gruffydd from Wales said that any amount of teaching of the language in the schools was of no more use in saving it "than a tinkling cymbal" unless there were put into it something that gave dignity to the person who spoke it.

Crime Laboratory in Chicago Is Evolving New Method of Combatting Criminal Element in Second City

Psychopathic Laboratory of Criminal Court Is Organization Unique in the World; Noted Criminologists Visit it Each Day

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The psychologist and the policeman make a battery against criminals which experts anticipate eventually will reduce outlaws to a no-hit game in American cities.

Through the psychopathis laboratory of the municipal court of Chicago, the old-line, hard-shelled criminologist whose faith was in brass knuckles and the hangman's rope gradually is being replaced by exponents of a new dispensation, who regard crime as an effect of psychic irregularities and work for its eradication through science rather than shotguns and sentences.

A Junk Pile.

A brief summary of the major conclusion of the laboratory directors, based on the eleven years' history of the institution, is the statement that the whole American system of criminal jurisprudence is long overdue at the junk pile.

For the present order in criminal procedure they would substitute a scheme, based upon the accepted fundamentals of psychology, wherein the offender is a patient instead of a prisoner.

The laboratory is a branche of the municipal court, which is unque as the largest court in the world. In 1924 there went on this court's docket 94,000 civil and 225,000 criminal cases for the consideration of its 37 justices.

Started 20 Years.

Chief Justice Harry Olson established the laboratory after 20 years' experience as assistant prosecutor and criminal court judge in Cook county, to test his hypothesis that crime is fundamentally a problem of the mental and emotional disorders. As prosecutor of thousands of criminals he had observed that most offenders were repeaters, and that a large majority of men sentenced to the gallows suffered various degrees of mental debility.

Dr. William J. Hickson, widely known criminal psychologist, and his wife, Mrs. Marie Hickson, have been directors of the laborstory since its foundation in 1914.

Big Clearing House.

As the largest clearing house for criminal mental defectives in the world, the clinic attracts police magistrates and students of criminology from all parts of the world. Its records constitute a veritable gold mine of source material for psychologists. Thousands of personal histories, correlated with criminal records, have been characterized by reputable authorities as "the largest body of data on crime which ever has been put together under scientific auspices."

LAND LAWS CHANGED

Samoa Parliament Makes Some Radical Revisions.

APIA, Samoa, Aug. 15.—The parliament of Western Samoa, meeting recently, made a radical change in the land laws. All male Samoans over the age of 17 are to be allotted five acres. When these five acres are planted, each will receive a second grant of five acres. The owners of the land so allotted are to be compensated.

This change will affect considerably the Samoan social system.

HUGE BOOT IS MADE

Ten Cowhides Sewn Together to Fashion One Big Shoe.

DOEBELIN, Aug. 15.—What is claimed to be the largest cavalry boot in the world was recently manufactured to commemorate the six-hundredth anniversary of the bootmakers guild here. Ten large cow hides were required to supply the leather for the boot. The foot measures 5.9 feet and the shaft 16.4 feet. The boot will remain at the town hall as a permanent exhibit.

Ancient Skeletons Found in Far West

HOQUIAM, Wash.—(AP)—Two prehistoric skeletons, more than 80 feet in length, recently were uncovered near here by workmen in a railroad cut. Rev. J. Herbert Geoghegan of this city, who examined the find, pronounced the bones those of dinosaurs, ichtosaurs or pterodactyls.

The skeletons were imbedded in 40 to 60 feet of limestone deposit, and were partly petrified. The railroad excavation cut through the animals' ribs, which could be seen extending for a distance of several feet in parallel lines.

No skull was found, but a long tearing tooth discovered among the debris was taken as indicating that the animals were carnivorous. The ribs vary from three to 12 inches in thickness, while a portion of shoulder blade is four feet long and five inches thick. Knee joints and other bones discovered vary in size from several feet to only a few inches in circumference.

MAKES 25,000 MILES IN SIX MONTHS TRIP

Uses Rickenbacker Car All The Way; Satisfied, Too

There may be people who have crowded more than 25,000 miles of touring into a space of six months' time, but very few of them can boast of having made it quite as speedily as can Warren Erickson, who returned to Los Angeles last week after six months' campaigning with "Cannon Ball Baker," Erickson was a member of the service forces of the Los Angeles Rickenbacker distributors when Baker came West last January to annex all the available road records in the Far West. He helped Baker prepare for one of his runs and proved such an apt assistant that Baker prevailed upon him to accompany him East after he had mopped up the Three Flags record, the San Francisco-Erickson accordingly rode with Baker for the rest of his record-smashing campaign in the inter-mountain states and in the Middle West, and altogether, put in more than 25,000 miles of extremely fast traveling over many roads in many states of the Union.

"That 25,000 miles was all done in the same car, too, the identical one that Baker started out with from New York last January," Erickson told Harry Sperl, Rickenbacker distributer of Los Angeles. "It was a stock Rickenbacker six, and it was given terrible abuse in setting new speed marks over all sorts of roads all over the country, but we never had a single mishap of any sort with the car. The last two records which Baker set were made with the Rickenbacker vertical eight, and Erickson was likewise enthusiastic over the performance of that car. On the last test run which they made, the eight showed a speed of eighty-nine miles an hour on a level road when itoverhauled and passed a Burlington flyer.

Undergrads Stick To School Halls

OXFORD, England.—Where da undergraduates go during the long vacation, isa a question often asked by the uninitiated who imagine the colleges and grounds to be deserted for several weeks. Before the war they were, but the conference habit acquired during wartime has stuck and developed, and for only two weeks in the vacation is there complete silence in the buildings.

There is a constant inflow of guests to industrial conferences, educational courses and commercial conventions during which the conferees are housed and fed on the lines of a modern hotel. Students for these conferences lead the lives of undergraduates, occupy their rooms, dine in the big halls and by so doing assist the economical problems which is urgent in the cases of some colleges.

CONDUCTOR IS HONORED

Orchestra Leader of New York Leads in Europe.

PARIS.—The Pasdeloup orchestra of Paris and the London Symphony orchestra have paid a distinct compliment to Vladimir Shavitch, conductor of the Syracuse, N. Y., Symphony orchestra. He was one of the guest conductors of the London orchestra this year and has been invited to conduct the orchestra again April 12, 1926. This is the first time an American conductor has been invited to repeat his visit.

Last month in Paris Mr. Shavitch conducted with great success the Lemoureux and Pasdeloup orchestras and the latter invited him to conduct the orchestra again next year after his London visit.

VISITING IN EUROPE

British Commissioner in Palestine Returning Home

JERUSALEM.—(AP)—Sir. Herbert Samuel, kho was the first British high commissioner for Palestine, has departed for a six month's tour of Asia and Europe. He will return, however, to live as a private citizen in Jerusalem, having leased a house before his departure.

Leaving Palestine, Sir Herbert delivered a message to the people in which he reviewed the progress that had been made in the country and reminded them that much remains to be done.

The town council of Tel-Aviv conferred the freedom of the city on Sir Herbert.

Ancient City's Ruins Being Explored by Experts.

CALMAR, Sweden.—Work has been commenced in excavating the Swedish Pompeii, an ancient circular city site from the early iron age, with nine gates and foundation for 92 houses. It is in the center of the Island of Oeland. The work is under the supervision of Martin Stenberger, an archeologist, and an appropriation for the expense has been made by the Swedish Tourist association.

The existence of this old fortified retreat, Ismantorp, has been known for generations, but practically nothing has been done until this year to discover what the ruins conceal.

CLAQUE APPLAUSE

VIENNA. — Organized applause constitutes a deception of the public, in the opinion of a Vienna judge. Persons engaged to do the handclapping and to voice their applause in other ways cannot claim remuneration.

The case arose from a disput between Dr. Stefan, composed of a comic opera entitled, "Agri," and the leader of a claque at the Burg-theatre, where the first performance of "Agri" was given. The leader claimed that the composer had agreed to employ the services of the claque, and that the claqueurs had rendered a manual service worth 500,000 crowns.

The judge declined to hear just what the arrangement between the two men was and rendered judgment against the chief of the claqueurs on the grounds that the activity of a claque constitutes a fraud upon the public, and that it is "immoral."

There's Efficiency In Ford Fire Department

Fighting fires is one thing, but when there aren't any fires to fight why the firemen haven't anything to do—that is, most of them.

Work 8-Hour Shifts

Besides, the men work in eight-hour shifts twenty-four hours a day. There are no sleeping quarters and the men are wide awake and on the job all the time.

It is less than twenty feet from the presses to the fire truck so when an alarm comes in it is only a matter for each man to make a quick turn around and climb on the truck to transform himself from a machine operator into a fireman on the way to a fire.

Ninety men regularly employed in the Highland Park plant are on the fire department roll and this force is augmented by 200 specially trained men who may be called out at a moment's notice in case of emergency.

How Fire Squads Work

The regular firemen work in three divisions, thirty on each eight-hour shift. Of those in each shift ten are on duty all the time in the central fire station. As soon as the first squad leaves in response to an alarm, the second squad moves in and if it is called out before the first returns there still is the third left to come into headquarters.

To provide and maintain adequate fire protection for the plant is in itself a big job. It must be remembered that more than 50,000 men are employed at Highland Park and that the plant covers 278 acres of which 105 are under roof. There is a complete fire alarm system, with boxes located at convenient places throughout the buildings and yards and in addition to the fire truck the fire fighting equipment in the plant includes 100 forty-gallon chemical tanks mounted on wheels, 2,000 three-gallon hand extinguishers and 6 miles of hose on racks in various parts of the plant close to fire hydrants.

Memorial for Maker Of First Typewriter

INNSBRUCK, Austria.—A memorial tablet has been unveiled on the house of Peter Mitterdorfer, who, Austrians claim, was the inventor of the typewriter.

Mitterdorfer was born September 22, 1822. Forty years later he settled in Innsbruck and began work on his invention. After two years he had finished his first "typewriter," a contraption made of wood, leather, wire and gut strings, the types consisting of sharp needles. Forty-seven years later this first attempt was found in the attic of his house.

Disputing that the typewriter is an American invention, the Austrian version is that Carlos Glidden, an American, saw the Mitterdorfer model at the imperial ploytechnic institute at Vienna, copied it, and in 1867 constructed the first American machine in conjunction with C. Lathom Sholes and S. W. Cpule of Milwaukee. The American patent was acquired by E. Remington and Sons.

Early Gold Rush Will Be Revived

DEADWOOD, S. D.—A reproduction of the early gold rush in the Black Hills of South Dakota will be staged in Deadwood's annual celebration of "The Days of '76" on August 12, 13 and 14.

A duplicate of the mining settlement that existed in the seventies at Deadwood Gulch has been fashioned and in it a pageant, typifying the characters and life of the frontier days, will be presented. The reproduced mining settlement will include dance halls, saloons and gambling dens, while persons, representing the leading characters of the frontier mining town, Wild Bill, Calamity Jane, Colorado Charley and California Joe, will figure prominently in the pageant celebration.

Drys to Convene In Chicago in Nov

CHICAGO.—The Anti-Saloon League of America will open its convention here the first day after the November election, which F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, said would have an important bearing on the future program of the league. The league has not met here since 1900, when national interest was directed toward Illinois because of the development of the local option movement.

"Now Illinois, and particularly Chicago, has become the center of national interest because this state has been made the center of wet movements to break down prohibition enforcement," the league said.

DOGS HOWL PROTEST

Canines Bark At City Hall When Taxes Are Raised

BRESLAU.—(AP)—Five thousand barking, yelping dogs of every imaginable breed, from Newfoundlands to Pekinese, created a tremendous din outside Breslau town hall as a protest against the yearly tax which the city imposes upon dogs.

The owners marched through the town with their dogs in lesh and some of the dogs bore placards with sarcastic remarks. The procession halted outside the town hall, where the dogs, as if by command and to the delight of the crowd, raised their voices in unison and filled the air with their complaints, which will be investigated by the astonished city fathers.

WEALTHY IRISHMEN

DUBLIN.—There are many signs in the Free State that wealthy families who, after the destruction of their property, left for England, are anxious to return. The compensation given for the destruction includes in most cases a condition for rebuilding and this condition is being fulfilled.

Marquis of Lansdowne has rebuilt place at Dereen not far from Killarnew which was looted and burned. The Marquis has been living in Dereen, and his son and heir, the Earl of Kerry, who is a member of the Free State senate, also has a residence in the neighborhood.

The Duke of Devonshire has been living at Linsmore Castle in County Waterford. Though not burned it was badly damaged and the duke has had it restored.

American Tourist Traffic Fades Out

DUBLIN.—At the Rotary club in Dublin complaint was made that the tourist traffic, particularly from America, had not reached expectations this year. One member who had returned from America said that he was humiliated there by the questions regarding Ireland, by the doubts expressed as to whether the country was safe for travelers and by the impression that Ireland is in a backward state of covilization, "with pigs in the drawing room."

P. J. O'Brien, secretary of the Irish Tourist Development association, answering these statements said that while there had not been anything in the nature of an American invasion, the arrivals at Cobh totaled more than 1,000 a week and the traffic between Ireland and England on one of the most impo.tant services was practically double what it was last year.

SUGAR ACREAGE DECREASES

Beets Show Rapid Production Decline in Italy

ROME.—(AP)—Acreage devoted to beet sugar growing in European nations, producing three-quarters of the world's supply, decreased from 1,963,000 hectares in 1924 to 1,905,000 hectares in 1925, statistics gathered by the International Institute of Agriculture show.

The decrease was greatest in Spain, falling from 179,000 to 78,000 and in Italy, falling from 124,000 to 50,000, while Bulgaria which had 25,000 hectares planted in 1924 had none in 1925.

On the other hand, a large increase was reported from Russia where the acreage was augumented from 345,000 to 469,000 rectares.

POLICE CONFERENCE PAYS

German Officers Say Valuable Information Picked Up.

BERLIN.—The international police conference in New York recently fulfilled its object beyond expectations, in the opinion of Colonel Kuenzer, of the Berlin police department. In addition to furnishing many helpful ideas and suggestions he said, it supplied the much-felt want of putting the police chiefs of the entire world in close touch with each other.

SECOND PRICE CUT IS GIVEN STUDEBAKER

Second Slash of Year Spurs Buyers' Interest In Car

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—A demonstration of public interest in motor car values has never been so much in evidence as it was during the past week in the salesrooms of the Paul G. Hoffman company following announcement that Studebaker had reduced prices on models in all three size classes that this one-profit manufacturing organization is offering the public, according to E. R. Carpenter.

"This is the second drop in price that Studebaker has announced in 1925, and is possible only because Studebaker is building practically its entire car from motor and body to parts, by itself, and need pay no outside profit to parts builders or to body carpenters," Carpenter said.

"The price reductions made by Studebaker represent the saving Studebaker makes in building its bodies and parts itself. This saving it has passed on to the public in price reductions. Studebaker is presenting no more yearly models, but has adopted a program of adding refinements and improvements to its car as they are found successful or vital.

"Due to the huge advertising campaign we have been carrying on in the Los Angeles newspapers, the public has become thoroughly acquainted with the new Studebaker policy of building a one-profit car, and when the price drop was announced our salesrooms were flooded with prospects and buyers.

"A visit by prospective buyers, many of them owners of older models of Studebaker cars, convinces them that they can now get Studebaker cars with even greater quality and workmanship than they ever did before, due to the fact that the cars are made complete in the Studebaker factories, engineered to function harmoniously, and that only the best materials are used."

Wyllis-Knight To Have Price Lopped $50 to $100 soon

A general price reduction of from $50 to $200 on the Willys-Knight Sixes, $100 to $125 on the Willys-Knight four cylinder line and a substantial price drop on the closed cars of the Overland line is announced by John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., who arrived in New York on the Adriatic on Sunday, following a two months' trip abroad in interests of the National Automobile chamber of commerce.

"These price reductions are made possible", said Mr. Willys, "by the greatest six months' volume of business ever done by Willys-Overland, and it is this great sales record that has enabled us to pass on to the public a still greater savings in the shape of reduced prices." Stringer Garage To Open Monday

The new Stringer Storage garage at 808 Travibs will open for business Monday. On their opening day they will give a half-gallon can of Texaco motor oil to every automobile owner who buys five gallons of gasoline.

The new building is fireproof in construction and with its 30,000 feet of floor space will accommodate 250 automobiles. The structure has an upper and lower floor and instead of having elevators to take the cars to the second floor there are two long runways. There will also be a repair department in connection with the new garage.

L. B. Stringer, Hubert Stringer, E. W. Marriott and John W. Thomas have built and will also operate the garaged. L. R. Stringer will act as manager.

First Telescope Claimed by Oxford

OXFORD, England Aug. 15.—Not satisfied that credit for the invention of the telescope had been properly placed, the subject has been gone into recently at Oxford with the result that a claim is made that the instrument was invented at Oxford by an Englishman, and that the only questio n to be edecided is whether that Englishman was Roger Bacon or the Elizabethan philosopher, Leonard Digges.

Supporters of the Oxford claim credit Galileo with being the "greatest advertiser" of the telescope but insist that he did not invent it, nor did the Dutch spectace makers, who are accorded credit as the first who made the telescope an article of commerce.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

She would not wake him for another hour. Sunday mornings he was always irritable.

And last night—that rich shore dinner! They had all eaten too much—too many courses. And again the Wintons had let Warren pay the bill!

A cold shower relieved her heat-drugged lethargy, but not her sense of depression. She could have cried from an unreasoning but acute despondency.

She was slipping on a cool blue dimity, when from the bedroom came Warren's querulous call.

"What time is it?" he yawned, as she entered the darkened room.

"After nine. I thought I'd let you sleep."

"Can't sleep in this hot-box. Put up those shades. Why shut out all the air?"

er all those clams. I begged you er al lthose clams. I begged you not——"

"Now, don't start on that," irately, scratching his head. "What I eat never hurts me."

"But fish or any kind of sea-food—with ice cream. Why, it's poisonous!"

"Rot! Antiquated notion! Nothing ever hurts you unless you think it does. That's your spiel—but you don't put it into practice."

"Yes, I know," laying out his fresh madras underwear, "but you needn't mix food that you know doesn't combine."

"Get me some ice water. No, orange juice—lot of ice."

As he slumped into his bathrobe, Helen ran out to the kitchen where Anna was shelling peas for dinner.

"Mr. Curtis is up now, Anna, you can start breakfast. That tomato omelet—I told you about that last night. He likes it with plenty of tomatoes. Where's the ice pick? Well, try to keep it on this nail, then it's always there."

Anna, never loquacious, was even less communicative than usual this morning. She, too, had had a Saturday night out.

"These oranges haven't a bit of juice," Helen squeezed the second to make half a glass. "They're not sending us good fruit lately. I'm going to try that Italian place in the next block."

"Dear, here's your orange juice. Do you want it now?"

"Set it there," from the lathery mask. "How 'bout my flannel suit?"

Warren in white had always an athletic, out-of-doors virality. And when a little later he strode in to breakfast, Helen was conscious of a fluttery thrill.

The green-striped awnings, the gay geranium window-boxes, the glint of silver and mahogany—an attractive summery setting for his white flannels.

The muffins and coffee, usually targets for his acrimony, were this morning unassailable. And the omelet, now brought on, was invitingly garnished with tomatoes.

Helen relaxed. One Sunday morning without an explosion over the breakfast!

"Just a little for me, dear," as he divided the omelet. "I'm not a bit hungry—after all that dinner last night."

"Now, tune off on that dinner. Anything more'n two courses—you thing's a banquet. Here, what's wrong with this?" sniffing at the omelet on his fork.

"Soured? Why, dear, it can't—"

"But fresh tomatoes? And on ice—how could they spoil?"

"I fixed 'em yesterday so they'd be ready—forgot to put 'em on the ice."

"Yesterday! And in such weather? Anna, you do the most unheard of things. Now take that out and make a plain omelet. Quickly as you can."

"Not for me. I'm off omelets now," rasped Warren. "Same thing every Sunday—never get a decent Sunday breakfast. Sour cream—or sour somethin'!"

"Why, dear, that's unfair—only once the cream was sour. Let her shirr you some eggs—or would you rather have them poached?"

"Nix on eggs—that omelet'll do me for some time."

"Well, I really think you'd be better off with just coffee and muffins. In this heat—and after all that dinner, you don't want——"

"Quit harpin' on that dinner! We go out once in a blue moon and you chew the rag about it for the next week. Where're the papers?"

"She must have them, Sunday she always takes them into the kitchen," touching the bell. "She's crazy about the comics."

"Didn't no papers come," was Anna's surly announcement. "Yes, I asked the elevator boy. Said the man didn't bring none for nobody this morning."

"Can't even get a paper here!" exploded Warren. "Why don't you get a man you can depend on? Not the first time this happened."

"Dear, I hate to change. That poor man has lung trouble—and a wife and two kiddies. He's the one I gave your brown suit to—he was so grateful."

"Well, that's no reason why I shouldn't have my papers on Sunday."

"Here, finish your breakfast," Warren reached for a third muffin.

"No, I don't want any more. I never can eat when it's so hot."

"Then sit there till I'm through. Here," shoving over his cup.

Two cups of coffee, three muffins, and two helpings of orange marmalade was Warren's "makeshift" breakfast.

"Now you can get those papers," pushing back from the table. "And blow him up. Third or fourth time it's happened."

Down in the deserted street, the sun-baked pavement scorching through her thin-soled pumps, she hurried around the corner to the news stand.

A tiny shop, cheap stationery in the window, the newspapers outside. The door stood open, but no one behind the counter. The coins on the papers proclaimed self-service. But Helen had only a dollar bill.

A sound of hysterical weeping.

"Has anything happened? Are you ill?" Helen moved nearer. "This's Mrs. Curtis. I came to get the papers."

"It's Joe," raising a tear-blurred face. "He was run over—right out here."

"I just been to the hospital. They wouldn't let me see him. His leg's crushed—they think they'll have to take it off."

"Oh, maybe it's not so bad as that. They do such wonderful things now—they may be able to save it."

"But he's not strong—he can't stand much. He's worked himself down—carrying all those heavy Sunday papers."

"When did it happen?"

"This mornin' when he started out. A car came around the corner—didn't blow or nothin'. The man offered me a hundred dollars to sign a paper I wouldn't sue. No, I didn't—but I must have money to pay the hospital."

"I'd have advice before I signed anything. I'll ask Mr. Curtis—he's a lawyer—he'll help you, I know."

"Oh, will you, m'am?" gratefully "Oh, must you go? I sent for his sister—she's coming right away. If you could stay—till she gets here——"

"Yes, of course I'll stay, but I must phone Mr. Curtis so he won't be worried. You haven't a telephone?"

A moment later, in the tobacco-reeking booth, Helen was impulsively enlisting Warren's aid.

". . . Oh, I knew you would! . . . Yes, I told her not to sign anything. . . . Yes, dear, do—right away. And have Anna fix up something—I know she hasn't eaten a thing. . . . Yes, I'll wait till you come."

Leaving the sweltering booth, Helen, aglow with her tidings of helpfulness, hurried back to the dark rear room of the tiny shop.w

How trivial her worries of a few moments ago—the heat, her depression, Warren's explosion, the omelet! Now with a glimpse of real tragedy, the emotional pendulum swung to a fervent gratefulness for all that she had.

What mattered Warren's irascibility? Beneath it all he was so fine and generous. Always ready to help!

Her unreasoning depression seemed now but flagrant ingratitude. Hereafter, she would be immune to his Sunday-morning grouches—by remembering all that she had. And she had so much!

Lives in Seculsion in Paris; Not Bothered By Newspaper Men.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—In a refined but quiet hotel fronting on the Champs-Elysees down which she drove triumphantly beside her president-husband on that great day in December, 1918, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has been living the life of the most quiet kind of tourist for the past few weeks. She has left the hotel for occasional automobile trips to the chateau country, Normandy and elsewhere with her companion, Miss Baruch, always keeping her destination secret and never leaving a forwarding address.

Boys Must Accept Pledge by Schepp

NEW YORK,—Tustees of the Leopold Schepp foundation, organized to administer a $2,500,000 gift by Mr. Schepp to all boys, have adopted a pledge to the subscribed to by boys desiring to share in the benefits of the foundation.

Gifts of $200 for each boy faithfully keeping the pledge for three years, and provision for five annual annual collegiate scholarships, are made available from the fund. The cash gifts are designed to help the boys get started in business for themselves or to advance their education.

Mr. Schepp started in business 65 years ago with a cash capital of 18 cents and has accumulated several millions of dollars.

Paper Products To Pave Streets

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 15.—Through the use of an industrial by-product which has hitherto been wasted, Stockholm is henceforth to be made a dust-free city.

After conclusive tests the authorities have discovered that by sprinkling streets or roadways that are either macadamized or unpaved with the lye in which woodpulp has been dissolved, they become coated with a resilient substance which holds the dust down even in heavy traffic. At first the streets so treated are a bit sticky, but as soon as the liquid has evaporated the residue forms a brown coating that in many respects excels crude oil or any tar-like substance. The slight odor also disappears very quickly. In the past the pulp mills have been in the habit of pouring this chemical laden liquor away.

ELECTRIC

Electric Heat

Neither Burns nor Undercooks

THE heat from electric cooking units is always uniform. Correct cooking temperature, so hard to maintain in other ranges, is a sure thing. Guesswork and mere "luck" is eliminated. Whether you broil, roast, bake, fry—dangers of burning or undercooking the food are unknown in using an electric range. Automatic controls of the cooking temperature safeguard the results.

Electric Cookery is clean. It creates no dirt, soot, smoke or fumes. No heat is wasted. Your kitchen remains cool. You'll enjoy cooking as never before. Lastly—you'll reduce food waste and shrinkage to an astonishing degree. And, best of all, you can easily afford the cost of a range that will accomplish these results. Let us show you

[A Message to Owners of Automobiles]

Full Value For Your Used Car—

The Dealer Handles it for you at cost—he takes all the risk with no hope of profit

Every Owner Of An Automobile Should Read This Advertisement—

The Automobile Dealer makes less than $50.00 net per $1,000 of new car price.

And these figures have not been "averaged down" by the experience of the many thousands of dealers who make less—or by those who make nothing or even lose money; the five per cent net is made only by the most successful dealers!

And to get this profit, if you have a car to trade in, he handles your used car at cost and without one dollar's profit.

To sell ten new cars he must handle nine used cars—WITHOUT PROFIT.

And there is always the chance that he won't come out even—when you do any kind of business at actual cost and without profit, then every mistake means a direct loss. He takes this chance.

Then he turns over to the sale of your used car his investment in display rooms, good will, prospects and salesmen—WITHOUT PROFIT.

He makes less than five per cent net profit on the new car he sells you—and he must sell two cars to get it, sometimes three because it is not unusual to take "a trade on a trade."

Yet very often the man with a car to trade in feels that he is not getting enough for it.

There are two reasons for this—First, the fact that some other dealers offer much more for a used car than others do. Second, the fact the dealer sells the used car more than he allows for it.

Just a word about the "high allowance"—it is always made on the new car you don't want. If it wasn't you would accept the allowance and end the matter.

The reason for the "high allowance" is obvious—and that's another reason why you don't accept it.

But how is it that the dealer does business at cost and makes no profit when he sells your used car for more than he allows you for it.

Dealer's valuation on a 1923 car of well known make	$350.00
*"Conditioning" mechanical repairs	30.00
*Necessary new parts at wholesale price	14.00
*Replacing 2 missing side-curtains, repairing fenders and top	12.50
*Supplying missing tools	3.50
*Installing two tires and tubes (at cost)	30.00

*It is obvious that these expenses will necessarily vary with every car traded in, and the basic valuation will thus be higher or lower according to the condition of the car.

Painting	$ 45.00
Storage (rent, light and heat), washing and polishing, demonstration, gas and oil, during average of five weeks car remains in stock before being sold, bookkeeping, sales supervision, management, etc.	22.50
Advertising in classified columns	8.00
Salesman's commission (6 per cent of selling price	33.50
Selling price at actual cost to dealer	$550.00

(Supposing the dealer "guessed" at a $495.00 resale price for this car, fully conditioned, failing to protect himself with a sound cost accounting system. He would lose $55.00—the entire profit on a new $1,000 car. Supposing he decided not to paint it and not to install new tires—he could then afford to price it at $485.00; but the average used car buyer, judging from appearance, would be skeptical of its mechanical condition. It would be easier to sell it $75.00 higher with good tires and fair paint. Supposing he attempted to sell it without $100.00 worth of conditioning repairs and necessary new parts—selling cars "as is" ruins the dealer's reputation and hurts the entire automobile industry. And making them "look good" without putting them in good conditioning is even worse!)

There is no way to deny the truth of cold facts—once they are known to be facts.

And there are very few people in this country once they know a thing is right want to make it wrong.

Once the public—the man with a car to trade in UNDERSTANDS the dealer's position there will be no "Used Car Problem."

No one really wants more than his used car is worth—if the extra dollar is to come out of the dealer's pocket—or out of the used car buyer's pocket.

But he does want what his used car is worth.

And that the automobile dealer gives him to the last dollar.

The used car buyer must buy his USED CAR MILES at a price that is favorably competitive with new car miles.

And automobile dealers by selling used cars at cost and without profit are able to sell used car buyers two million used cars a year.

At cost and without profit.

Mr. Shaw's Thoughts, Silent Cal, Boring the Brute —By Ed. Howe

George Bernard Shaw once wrote: "If you only knew all the things I think and dare not say!" . . Friedrich Neitzschie dared write them. This man thought nothing he didn't write, and whatever he wrote was cast in as mean and vicious form as his terribly clever brain could suggest. Angry and drunken men are said to speak the truth. Nietzschie spoke the truth when as good-natured and sober as he ever became. Any one may read him and find out what is behind the veneer of civilization. And this terrible old savage was educated. He lived all his life in the university atmosphere; none of the professors had more learning, and none knew as much about human nature. With it all he had ability to write so clearly, forcefully and wittily that his enemies could not peacefully laugh at him, as so many writers are treated; they rushed for their ink horns and goose quills and smote him so lustily that he became one of the most famous of men.

We censor the silly moving pictures, but neglect to censor public print; we are careful that our young people shall not see a too fervid love scene on the stage, but sentiments that insult our civilization, our flag and our intelligence are permitted everywhere.

A man is in the penitentiary for murdering twenty-four worthy workingmen. He was a loafer, and consort of lewd women. Yet one of the frowsy writing men of the slums pays this tremendous tribute to him: more has not been said of Lincoln or Washington:

"He was the brain and brawn of the great mass that groans, crushed and spat upon, under the feet of the insatiable monster, who in each piece of gold it gobbles up carries a drop of our blood and a tear from our eyes. The persecution of our comrade is nothing less than persecuting progress, a brutal assault on civilization. Without those who think and act, the human specie would continue to inhabit caves. With the imprisonment of the good ones, who shall induce the masses to revolution and protest? Who shall make the bugle vibrate to convoke to battle?"

Every tribute paid a real hero is used finally to praise the worst men we have. The geniuses in writing merely invent great sentences to be stolen by the literati of cellar and garret, and used by them in praise of their fellow rogues.

A surprising and distressing thing is the great number of young men engaged in outlawry. The papers are full of burglaries and holdups committed by young men ranging in age from eighteen to twenty-two. There is a way to at least partially stop this disgraceful state of affairs: enforce the law against vagrancy. The vagrancy law is still on the books everywhere. Wherever a young man is found who has no visible means of support, let him be arrested for vagrancy. If he is not a thief, he is at least imposing cruelly on parents or other relatives. In all the arrests being made for outlawry by young men not one case has been discovered where the thief had a job; everywhere these crimes are being committed by men who hang around pool halls, soda water counters, or otherwise show the marks of loafers.

A New York reader likes me pretty well, but grumbles because I do not like soldiers. No one should. Weird business is war, and war is the greatest human debasement and folly. Every war in history was probably due to professional soldiers, who keep alive the war talk. If there is a human mistake a man should be free to denounce, it is armies, and war, and men who prepare for wholesale slaughter. I like soldiers: there is the quiet dignity common to them which distinguishes capable and educated men, but their business is war. Is there any opinion I may entertain without some one finding fault with me?

Certain amiable asses believe they must always sing the praises of women, children, patriotism, progress, democracy, religion, the poor, the home, the schools, etc. Being amiable asses, they forget that all these things go wrong at times, and must be corrected. And if they are overpraised, correction becomes more difficult. In a neighboring town there is a famous trial. The defendant was once a baby, a little girl, sweet sixteen, a bride, a wife and mother. Yet the manner in which she punished a hard working and faithful husband is one of the most dreadful things I have read about in years.

I lately attended a horse race, and soon noted that although I frequently bought a two dollar ticket, I never won anything. I noted, also, that some New York gentlemen present had a habit of buying tickets, and presenting them to the ladies; it seemed a new form of gallantry. So when a lady acquaintance came into our box, just as a race was starting, I bowed politely, and begged the honor of presenting her with a ticket. In about two minutes, the ticket I had given away, believing it would not win anything, won thirty-eight dollars.

The stories told of great men are usually interesting, but I often doubt their truth. It is told of the elder Dumas that he always kept in his apartment a bowl filled with gold coins, and invited his friends to help themselves. Most of the big stories are untrue, but what's the difference, so long as they are interesting? Since we wish to be amused, why worry ourselves over a small matter like truth or probability? Nearly everything peddled around to attract attention is invented, or greatly exaggerated.

People talk too much, and thus display ignorance, waste much valuable time, and express many mean and unfair opinions. A man (he happens to be President) decided to quit the foolish habit. Do we commend him for his dignified silence? On the contrary, we abuse him. Here is some of the abuse: a woman was to be a guest at the White House table, and scheduled to sit next to the President. She made a wager with a friend that she would make Mr. Coolidge talk. She tried her best, and failed. Then she appealed to the President, and told him of the wager. "Well," Mr. Coolidge said, "you lose."

Writing in a recent magazine, a man declares that most of the atrocities attributed to the Germans during the latest war were untrue. Lloyd George is quoted as saying he has "not been able to trace a single case of a child's hands having been cut off in all Belgium."

But the writer says the blockade set up by the Allies destroyed a hundred thousand women and children and non-combatants within a year.

He finds that forty million lives were destroyed by the war; almost half of them in revolutions, famines, pestilences.

This, in addition to twenty million wounded, ten million orphans, five million war widows, ten million refugees.

The real and immediate sufferers as a result of the war amounted to almost as great a total as the population of the United States.

And this terrible statement of the cost of war does not include the money expended, or the great debt we will be paying for many years to come.

SODA WATER CRIMINALS-

Had we begun to pay installments of $20,000 an hour from the birth of Christ to the present; the recent war would not yet be paid for, since its total cost was three hundred and thirty-seven billions.

The writer also admits that no good whatever was forwarded by the war: no world democracy accomplished; no world peace; no better morality.

The war made us meaner, and already we are preparing for still more destruction. Mr. Edison is quoted as saying that as a result of destructive inventions since the war, the entire population of London could be destroyed in three hours.

During the war, the writer I am quoting visited one hospital where eighty thousand men had been treated for veneral diseases, all soldiers.

What a question!

Plenty of capable leaders have appeared; the masses will not follow them. It is the herd that is running away, not the best individuals. The middle-class people have done very well, and have honored the world somewhat, but the proletarians have disgraced it. Writers are clamoring for reform for those who have reformed themselves and complimenting those in need of reform.

A man, who says he is elderly, writes: "You once asked the question: 'Are husbands and wives naturally antagonistic, as are foxes and hounds?' I at first considered it a rude question, and began convincing myself of it, with a view of writing a protest. But the more I thought of it, the more I became convinced of pursuit, capture and conflict in marriage."

Literary experts are apparently proving that villages such as Sinclair Lewis wrote about in "Main Street" are as old as the human race. Now some one should write a book called "Broadway," and show that cities have always been centers of ignorance, destitution, crime, a little more culture in spots, but a general average below "Main Street."

Every honest man must frequently think of himself: "I'm contemptible." There is no complete remedy; but the churches, newspapers, teachers, neighbors, are continuously urging us to be less contemptible, and pointing out easy methods of partial improvement.

Madam, does your husband bore you? Certainly. But you probably bore him as much as he bores you. Often what a woman regards as her loveliest trait annoys her husband most. You may say the brute shouldn't be that way. But he is, so let us reason together more reasonably.

I do not greatly care for the one man strutting at the top, but sincerely admire the millions doing very well a little lower down. The number of men who get along well enough, in spite of bow legs, falling hair, and other human ills, is enormous.

You claim certain people are fools. The only way to prove your contention is to get along better than those you condemn. If you succeed in doing it, you will prosper well enough; the punishment will go to others.

I am of the opinion that every girl should be a vigorous, popular, good-natured Tom Boy until twelve or thirteen years old. Then she must become a lady, and keep it up the rest of her life.

Helgerson Will Build 5 Homes

Erection of five new brick veneer houses in the 1700 block Elisabeth street will be started at once, it was announced Saturday by H. G. Helgerson, local real estate man who has just completed purchase of five choice lots in that block. Ground will be broken Monday for the first of the new structures, all of which will be six rooms, double garage, servants' house and many new and modern conveniences.

Mr. Hegierson and his family have but recently returned from an extensive vacation tour to the Pacific coast traveling over 7,700 miles in all and visiting practically all the cities of any size in the west.

He declared that nowhere in his travels had he found a community as alive or which presented such promise for the future as does Wichita Falls.

Working Girls To Dine in Style

LONDON.—The necessity, or liking, for clubs for women has extended to the city worker. Most of the big banks and insurance companies have their own catering arrangements and are able to feed their girl employes at a small cost. The firm employing only one or two girls is not so well placed and it is for these employes that a new club has been opened in the heart of the city.

The girl members will be able to eat there at a reasonable cost as well as use the club as a social center to prepare for sports or evening engagements without first having to rush home to the suburbs.

The Story Of Seymour As Told By Her Leading Citizens:

HIGH SCHOOL AT SEYMOUR

SEYMOUR is in line for some spectacular progress in the near future. The substantial citizens of Seymour and Baylor county are working on plans for buildnig a dam on the upper Brazos River which will give them water for irrigating many thousands of acres of rich farm land. This project is taking definite shape among the business men of this section and it will only be a few years until Baylor county will be drawing thousands of farmers to this rich farming section, which last year without irrigation produced between four and five millions of dollars income from the produce of the farms, according to Mr. Bunkly, vice president of the First State Bank of Seymour.

Baylor county is also getting an oil play; the Megargel field located in the southwest corner of Archer county has extended over into Baylor county and there are several wild cat tests being made in other parts of the county.

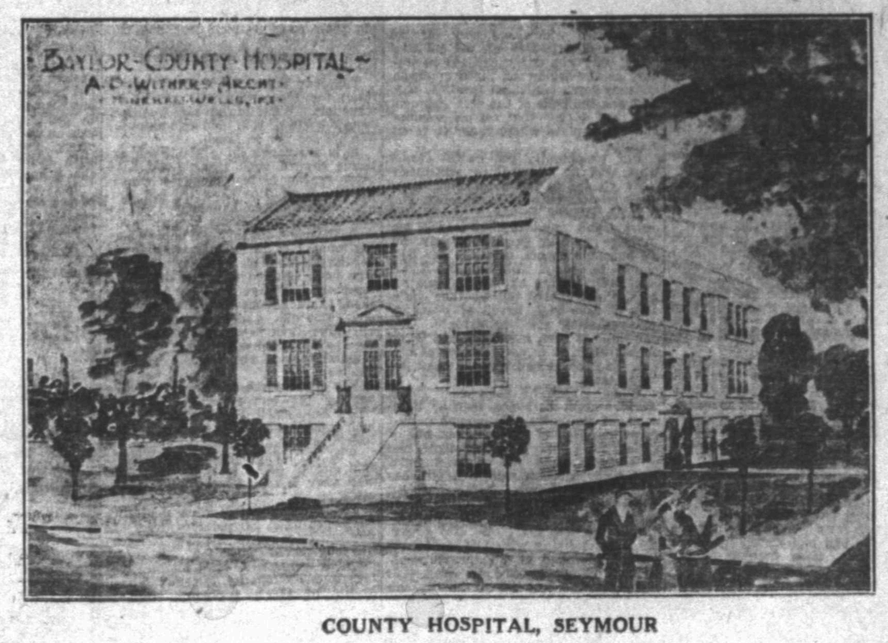

Seymour also has a strong possibility of a new railroad connecting Fort Worth and the Plains country. The hearing on this matter will come before the commission in October and if the decision is favorable to this route, Seymour stands more than an even chance of having the shops located there.

With a payroll and an irrigation district Seymour will rapidly forge to the front among Texas cities.

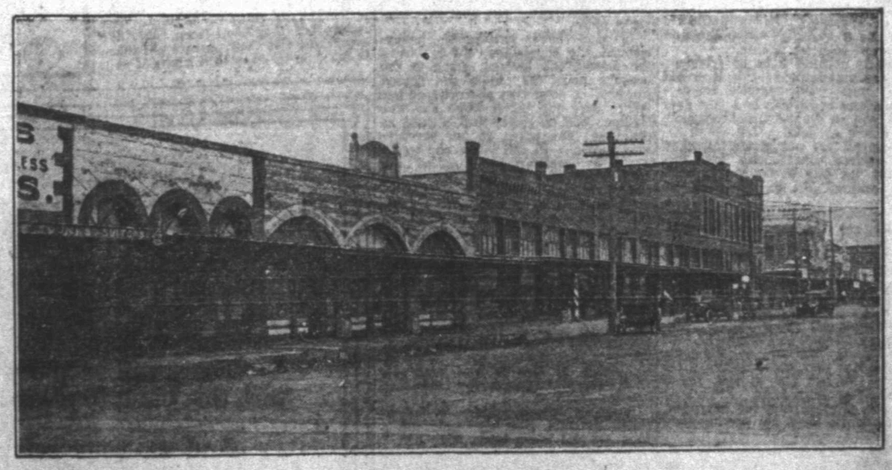

Seymour is building rapidly, yet there is a constant demand for more business buildings; notwithstanding the large building program already carried out this year of over two hundred thousand dollars for modern structures of various kinds there is an ever growing call for more.

This is the most interesting item of Seymour's astonishing progress in the last few years according to Mr. Baskin, cashier of the Farmer's National Bank of Seymour.

SERIAL POLYGAMY — BY RUPERT HUGHES

You can prove almost anything if you select your statistics with care and overlook evidence.

There is much talk about the neglect of marriage nowadays, its extreme fragility and brevity, and the consequent decay of the home.

But you have only to look about a little further and you will find no end of quiet people solemnly pegging along with their same old original partners. And, surprisingly, you will find in the quietest villages and the most obscure farmsteads industrious little ladies who are taking unto themselves husbands in a manner that makes the traditional actress look slow.

These humble delvers in the field of matrimony appear in the newspapers only when they attain enormous results. Then they are referred to in an article or two and dropped back into oblivion.

A movie actress who had five husbands has become an international sensation. Two actors who had five wives apiece became household words. Yet when I run across a clipping three years old about a woman who has had eleven husbands I realize that she never made a ripple on the sea of fame.

Since she had made her glorious record without scandal, she must have been clever as well as attractive. Since she was only forty-three years old then and had married an average of one husband for every two years or so, she must be about due for another husband. I wonder who's wedding her now.

If she keeps up the pace and lives long enough she should attain quite a tidy score, for we constantly read of ladies of eighty or ninety years getting married; and by the time she is eighty she may be able to bring her total up to twenty-nine or thirty.

But for all our boasted modern improvements we have not advanced so far beyond the good old times.

Saint Jerome, who died in 420 A. D. said he knew a woman in Rome who had actually married her twenty-third husband. And the gentleman was doing pretty well himself, thank you, for she was his twenty-first wife. They were both far superior to the Roman woman recorded by the Spanish wit Martial, who died about 100 A. D. She had just married her tenth husband.

But the best record I have heard of is of the fifty-six year old scoundrel from Ohio who recently confessed that he had been married thirty-three times. He would, however, be ruled out by the National Amateur Athletic association, or unfair competition and constantly breaking the rules. He married sometimes as many as five wives in one year. But such marriages do not really count, since he never would stoop to the divorce court. He was a bigamist, a trigamist, a pentagamist. If my Latin does not betray me, as it probably does, he was within one of being a quadriguintagamist. But he was an enthusiast to the point of criminality.

Still, he belongs distinctly with those earnest people who believe that divorce is the cure of modern society and the ruination of the home. He agrees with them thoroughly in their claim that if a constitutional amendment could be passed forbidding divorce altogether, this nation would be safe.

Such a law would not interfere with him any more than certain other amendments have interfered with certain other easy livers, who respect the law so profoundly that they never break it; they simply go round it or through it.

This gentleman who had thirty-nine wives without the aid of either the undertaker or the divorce lawyer has revenged somewhat the unfortunate husband described in the old French book, "The Hundred New Novels," whose wife more or less married every man who came along. The poor man could neither restrain her nor divorce her, since there was then no such thing as divorce; and no one has ever yet devised a method of restraining a wilful woman.

But these fascinating adventurers and adventuresses, these pirates or freighters on the sea of matrimony never write their fascinating memoirs. The nearest approach even to a sketch of the subject is a recent newspaper interview with a woman who has had seven husbands. She consented to describe them briefly to a reporter, but she gives none of the intimate touches and character studies in which her experience must have been so rich.

She was a farm woman, and like the woman who had had eleven husbands at forty-three, knew nothing of the over-advertised evils of city life.

We read and hear much of the reckless Bohemianism of the theatrical, movie and Greenwich Village women, yet none of them ever approached the record of these small-town and rural wives, who simply settled down and went on marrying in a desperate search for a husband whose life and love would both be lasting.

There is nothing light or frivolous about the standards of this dear old country woman who married her seventh husband at seventy-two. She does not believe in flappers, bobbed hair, short skirts or jazz. Her views on birth control are not given, but they are doubtless conservative and correct, for she has borne twelve children. And all but ten of them are living.

She was an orphan of sixteen when she made her first marriage. Her husband was an ex-confederate soldier twenty-seven years old. He edited a small town weekly, and they were married in a jail; but only because the jailer was a friend. A judge performed the civil ceremony. Her husband number one was a hearty drinker, but a kind man to his wife as well as his liquor. The only serious fault with him was that, three months after marriage, he left her to look for a job and never came back. After four years she divorced him for desertion, only to learn that he was already dead.

Her next husband was another confederate veteran, a twenty-eight-year-old farmer. She tried a religion marriage this time; a Methodist preacher performed the ceremony. The fruitful wife bore her mate ten children in twelve years. Then typhoid fever made her a widow with a big family, a big farm and plenty of hogs and cattle, cotton and corn.

A year later one of her farm hands, a German of twenty-three, won her thirty-three-year-old heart. A Baptist minister officiated at this union. But the young man died of pneumonia a year later. This marriage was, as the lawyers say, without issue. But she gave the hired men another chance, and within a twelve-month picked a cotton picker, who was also twenty-three. The same Baptist minister was given an opportunity to better his work, and did, for this marriage lasted eighteen happy years. It ended dramatically enough.

A quarrel over a division of crops brought on a shot-gun battle with a neighbor, who killed her husband and was killed by him. Her seventeen-year-old son just starting off to college was slain in the same fracas. A previous child of this marriage had died in infancy.

After eighteen months of double mourning she accepted consolation from her third confederate veteran. She was now fifty-three and he was sixty-five. The same Baptist minister was still handling all of her marriages. But the new husband had land in Texas and wanted to live on it; his pride preferred the soil where she and so many of her mates had taken root. The husband would not listen to reason. He went to Texas and she divorced him on the ground of desertion.

At sixty-two she took her third and last twenty-three-year-old husband. He lived only two weeks.

She tried widowhood now for ten years, and settled in an old soldiers' home. She was triply entitled to support as the widow of three veterans. So they gave her three meals a day. She was the belle of the establishment and they do say that an old soldiers' home is a place where romance fairly seethes.

But propinquity got in its deadly work and at seventy-two she blushingly yielded to the blandishments of a seventy-six-year-old monopolist. Her faithful Baptist minister had passed on, but she found another to join her in holy padlock. Strange to say, for all her experiments, this was her first church ceremony. And here the chronicle ends, so far as my information goes, and I cannot tell whether she is safe at last in a haven of peace or contemplating another divorce. But one thing is sure, if she has not found contentment, it is not for lack of trying. Her heart has been unlucky but never lazy.

What a life of romance! In a world where there are less of thousands of old maids, this woman gained three husbands of twenty-three, one of twenty-seven, one of twenty-eight, one of sixty-five and one of seventy-six. Her first marriage was in a jail, her latest in a church. One husband lived two weeks; one stayed at home three months, vanished and was divorced for desertion; one died of typhoid after living with her for twelve years; one died of pneumonia after living with her a year; one lived with her eighteen years and was shot; one lived with her a few months and was divorced for preferring his own home to hers.

She was married first to a man twelve years older and her last four years older.

Imagine those variegated honeymoons! the courtships, the quarrels, the moods, the tenses! Imagine the heavens and the hells she passed through. I have two portraits of her before me: one taken when she was eighteen and as pretty and earnest as could be; one taken in her seventy-second year. In the latter she wears a family breastpin one hundred and fifty years old; she has had it for sixty-five years. She said to her interviewer: "I have had more trouble than most people," and it would be hard to deny her the right to such a boast. But she wears a smile of peculiar triumph.

It is such a smile as Mona Lisa's smile of anticipation might have become after a long life of realization. It somehow suggests the smile of the cat that swallowed the canary. She has emptied the cage. In a newspaper her two pictures are surrounded by the heads of five of her husbands, with two empty frames for faces that are not recorded.

Amazing woman, admirable, indomitable woman! She has made life a conquest and never let it whip her.

We have confessions by a scared woman-fearer like Rousseau; we have the reckless meanderings of a rascal like Casanova. We have the brief soul-adventures of Marie Bashkirtseff, Mary McLane and a few others.

But what realism and romance this excellent woman could write if only she could write! What she must know about men. Why, she could write a cyclopedia of love.

And what thoughts must be hers now! what reminiscences, what prospects! Being religious she must look forward to a meeting with all these men in heaven; but she is assured that there will be no trouble there, for the matter was settled by the church.

You remember that in Matthew XXII. and Luke XX. it is told how the Sadducees, who did not believe in the resurrection, tried to trap Jesus by asking him a question about an imaginary woman who had been married just as often as this real woman.

They said that there was a man who had six brothers. He married a woman and died childless. Whereupon, according to the law, his brother had to marry the widow. He died childless. "And the third took her, and in like manner the seventh also; and they left no children, and died. Last of all the woman died also. Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

"And Jesus answering, said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither may marry, nor are given in marriage."

The Sadducees questioned him no more, and in their answer this modern woman has hers. She complains that she has had in this world "more trouble than most people," but she can look forward to a well earned rest from matrimonial complications in heaven.

They say there is a lesson in everything for those who will accept instruction. What moral can we draw from the life of this industrious lover? We are too apt to laugh.

It is a strange thing about our attitude toward such things; we have every reason to feel immense sympathy for these poor thwarted but tireless seekers after happiness, yet we are tempted to ridicule them.

In the same old soldiers' home where the woman of seven marriages found her latest affinity, dwell two couples who have married but once and lived together sixty-five years. Alongside them is an old man an hundred and one years old, who never married at all. How little he has got out of life! He has run through it like a transcontinental tourist who reads a book all the way.

We dismiss him with a shrug. We say of the once-married veterans, "How beautiful!" But of the lady who had seven husbands in succession we feel, "How serio-comic!"

Why is it that almost everything in this dismal world becomes something else when it becomes too much of itself?

The saddest things turn suddenly burlesque when carried too far. A blighted romance is as sad a thing as anybody could wish for, yet when blighted romance follows blighted romance, our sympathy deserts the poor victim of fate's malignity, who is thought of as a "common blighter."

The noblest principles turn sour when they are overworked. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again" is taught to children as their first lesson, but they soon learn that, like everything else their parents tell them, it must be taken with a grain of salt.

In love particularly the ordinary rules of conduct have only a limited application.

You might compare love to water, which is also a necessity of life. Taken at the right time and in the right quantity it is an excellent and useful drink. Taken in too great a quantity it becomes a torture and it may drown you.

Heat it and it makes an excellent bath. Heat it a little farther and it will take your hide off. Heat it a little farther and it vanishes into the air. Put it in a radiator and heat it and it will warm you in winter.

Chill it and it will cook your fever. Chill it a little further and it becomes stone, to be sawed, or broken with an axe.

And so it is with love. The value and the virtue, the very quality of love change with conditions. Heat it too far and it evaporates. Chill it and it turns to stone. And the softest, sweetest emotion becomes the fiercest, most fatal passion, or the coldest, hardest indifference.

Some people get along comfortably enough without ever loving anybody but themselves. Others love everybody but themselves, and shatter their lives in vain courtships. This man or woman marries and lives happily ever after. This man or woman marries with every hope of bliss, and finds that a horrible mistake has been made.

Is it virtuous and honest to persist in the mistake? or wise to follow the custom of this lady of the seventfold husband, and divorce the mate that does be have or die? Some unhappy wives poison, shoot or otherwise destroy their husbands. This seems to be not quite right, yet if they are good looking, the jury always acquits them.

Some countries offer no means of divorce except by way of murder or disease. Other states make it easy to be rid of a love that is merely uncomfortable. In spite of this, some wives and husbands slay their mates even in states where divorce is granted almost upon request.

One thing is certain, whatever the laws and the customs, each of us will be a law and a custom unto himself or herself. Advice is useless and comment is merely comment. The hunt for happiness goes on and love is the will o' the wisp that dances above the blackest bogs.

STARTS AT 14; 40 NOW, AND IS BIG ROAD BOSS

J. F. Anton Said to Be Youngest Superintendent On Santa Fe

SLATON, Texas, Aug. 15.—Embarking on his railway career at 14 when he took a post as yard clerk with the Baltimore & Ohio, J. F. Anton today at 40 is superintendent of the Slaton division of the Panhandle and Santa Fe railway, the youngest superintendent in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe system, if not the youngest in the United States. T. J. Norton, Chicago, assistant chief counsel o fthe Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, and T. B. Gallaher, Amarillo, general freight and passenger agent of the Panhandle and Santa Fe, are authority for the statement that Mr. Anton is the youngest superintendent of the Santa Fe system.

The Slaton division is one of the largest of the Santa Fe system with 498 miles of track, 323 miles of which is main line and the other 175 miles branch line. At present there is under construction a 65-mile branch line running west from Doud, a town near Lubbock, through Hockley and Cochran counties to Bledsoe, a new town near the New Mexico line. This line, when completed, will be placed in charge of Mr. Anton.

Probably no man of the South Plains enjoys a wider acquaintanceship and friendship than does Mr. Anton. This fact was well demonstrated at the interstate commerce commission hearing held recently at Plainview, where the plans of five railroads, all seeking entrance or expansion into the South Plains, were reviewed before C. E. Boles, examiner for the commission. A large number of witnesses testified that the Santa Fe, now the only railroad serving the South Plains, was not giving entirely satisfactory service because of the circuitous haul it has to make from Dallas and Fort Worth. Most of the tonnage to and from the South Plains and these North Texas cities is routed through Temple, a roundabout route. However, every witness testified to the unremitting diligence of Mr. Anton in his efforts to render the best service possible and to his unfailing good nature and courtesy. Each witness said that, considering the handicaps of a circuitous haul, the Santa Fe is rendering splendid service.

Incidentally, Mr. Anton, besides directing in large measure the fight of the Santa Fe in its efforts to prevent the Fort Worth and Denver City from extending into the South Plains, was the star rebuttal witness of theSanta Fe, being the last witness to take the stand during the hearing.

Find Big Strike Of Cinnabar, Alaska

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Gordon Beetles, here this summer on his way to Seattle to buy supplies, reported that he had made a rich strike of cinnabar, the chief ore of mercury, on the Kuskokwin river in southwestern Alaska 200 miles from Bethel, a town at the mouth of the stream.

Before the United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867, Russians made good profits by recovering mercury from cinnabar floating near the mouth of the Kuskokwin after a landslide. They used a retort made from an old boiler.

In 1920 the property on which beetles has made his discoveries passed into the possession of "Cinnabar" MacDonald after he had sought for 20 years the source of rich specimens he had found. He was frozen to death four winters ago.

Last winter Beetles investigated the property extensively and located three veins. He found MacDonald's body directly over one of the veins.

Paducah Active In Behalf of T. P. & G

PADUCAH, Aug. 15.—This town has resolved itself into a committee of the whole to secure the building of the Texas Panhandle and Gulf Railroad. Committees are scouring the town for subscriptions. Every night the chamber of commerce takes its band and holds a booster meeting at some country school house. The nonresident is being traced and bombarded with literature and letters. M. W. Van Zandt, Jr., trust officer of the T. P. & G. Finance Corporation of Fort Worth, has been on the ground for several days assisting in directing and organizing the campaign.

Famous Festival Observed in Rome

ROME.—The traditional St. John's Eve festival, one of the many quaint religious and folk holidays which have survived into the 20th century from the Italian middle ages, was celebrated this year iwth a wealth of popular gusto which belied the tale of Rome's fast growing modernization.

Emulating the example of their ancestors, scores of thousands gathered in the spacious square of the Basilica of St. John Lateran and, with whistles, horns, bells and liberal wine-bibbing, made merry almost through the night with a spirit more reminiscent of 500 years ago than of today.

SERIAL POLYGAMY — BY RUPERT HUGHES

You can prove almost anything if you select your statistics with care and overlook evidence.

There is much talk about the neglect of marriage nowadays, its extreme fragility and brevity, and the consequent decay of the home.

But you have only to look about a little further and you will find no end of quiet people solemnly pegging along with their same old original partners. And, surprisingly, you will find in the quietest villages and the most obscure farmsteads industrious little ladies who are taking unto themselves husbands in a manner that makes the traditional actress look slow.

These humble delvers in the field of matrimony appear in the newspapers only when they attain enormous results. Then they are referred to in an article or two and dropped back into oblivion.

A movie actress who had five husbands has become an international sensation. Two actors who had five wives apiece became household words. Yet when I run across a clipping three years old about a woman who has had eleven husbands I realize that she never made a ripple on the sea of fame.

Since she had made her glorious record without scandal, she must have been clever as well as attractive. Since she was only forty-three years old then and had married an average of one husband for every two years or so, she must be about due for another husband. I wonder who's wedding her now.

If she keeps up the pace and lives long enough she should attain quite a tidy score, for we constantly read of ladies of eighty or ninety years getting married; and by the time she is eighty she may be able to bring her total up to twenty-nine or thirty.

But for all our boasted modern improvements we have not advanced so far beyond the good old times.

Saint Jerome, who died in 420 A. D. said he knew a woman in Rome who had actually married her twenty-third husband. And the gentleman was doing pretty well himself, thank you, for she was his twenty-first wife. They were both far superior to the Roman woman recorded by the Spanish wit Martial, who died about 100 A. D. She had just married her tenth husband.

But the best record I have heard of is of the fifty-six year old scoundrel from Ohio who recently confessed that he had been married thirty-three times. He would, however, be ruled out by the National Amateur Athletic association, or unfair competition and constantly breaking the rules. He married sometimes as many as five wives in one year. But such marriages do not really count, since he never would stoop to the divorce court. He was a bigamist, a trigamist, a pentagamist. If my Latin does not betray me, as it probably does, he was within one of being a quadriguintagamist. But he was an enthusiast to the point of criminality.

Still, he belongs distinctly with those earnest people who believe that divorce is the cure of modern society and the ruination of the home. He agrees with them thoroughly in their claim that if a constitutional amendment could be passed forbidding divorce altogether, this nation would be safe.

Such a law would not interfere with him any more than certain other amendments have interfered with certain other easy livers, who respect the law so profoundly that they never break it; they simply go round it or through it.

This gentleman who had thirty-nine wives without the aid of either the undertaker or the divorce lawyer has revenged somewhat the unfortunate husband described in the old French book, "The Hundred New Novels," whose wife more or less married every man who came along. The poor man could neither restrain her nor divorce her, since there was then no such thing as divorce; and no one has ever yet devised a method of restraining a wilful woman.

But these fascinating adventurers and advenutresses, these pirates or freighters on the sea of matrimony never write their fascinating memoirs. The nearest approach even to a sketch of the subject is a recent newspaper interview with a woman who has had seven husbands. She consented to describe them briefly to a reporter, but she gives none of the intimate touches and character studies in which her experience must have been so rich.

She was a farm woman, and like the woman who had had eleven husbands at forty-three, knew nothing of the over-advertised evils of city life.

We read and hear much of the reckless Bohemianism of the theatrical, movie and Greenwich Village women, yet none of them ever approached the record of these small-town and rural wives, who simply settled down and went on marrying in a desperate search for a husband whose life and love would both be lasting.

There is nothing light or frivolous about the standards of this dear old country woman who married her seventh husband at seventy-two. She does not believe in flappers, bobbed hair, short skirts or jazz. Her views on birth control are not given, but they are doubtless conservative and correct, for she has borne twelve children. And all but ten of them are living.

She was an orphan of sixteen when she made her first marriage. Her husband was an ex-confederate soldier twenty-seven years old. He edited a small town weekly, and they were married in a jail; but only because the jailer was a friend. A judge performed the civil ceremony. Her husband number one was a hearty drinker, but a kind man to his wife as well as his liquor. The only serious fault with him was that, three months after marriage, he left her to look for a job and never came back. After four years she divorced him for desertion, only to learn that he was already dead.

Her next husband was another confederate veteran, a twenty-eight-year-old farmer. She tried a religion marriage this time; a Methodist preacher performed the ceremony. The fruitful wife bore her mate ten children in twelve years. Then typhoid fever made her a widow with a big family, a big farm and plenty of hogs and cattle, cotton and corn.

A year later one of her farm hands, a German of twenty-three, won her thirty-three-year-old heart. A Baptist minister officiated at this union. But the young man died of pneumonia a year later. This marriage was, as the lawyers say, without issue. But she gave the hired men another chance, and within a twelve-month picked a cotton picker, who was also twenty-three. The same Baptist minister was given an opportunity to better his work, and did, for this marriage lasted

A quarrel over a division of crops brought on a shot-gun battle with a neighbor, who killed her husband and was killed by him. Her seventeen-year-old son just starting off to college was slain in the same fracas. A previous child of this marriage had died in infancy.

After eighteen months of double mourning she accepted consolation from her third confederate veteran. She was now fifty-three and he was sixty-five. The same Baptist minister was still handling all of her marriages. But the new husband had land in Texas and wanted to live on it; his pride preferred the soil where she and so many of her mates had taken root. The husband would not listen to reason. He went to Texas and she divorced him on the ground of desertion.

At sixty-two she took her third and last twenty-three-year-old husband. He lived only two weeks.

She tried widowhood now for ten years, and settled in an old soldiers' home. She was triply entitled to support as the widow of three veterans. So they gave her three meals a day. She was the belle of the establishment and they do say that an old soldiers' home is a place where romance fairly seethes.

But propinquity got in its deadly work and at seventy-two she blushingly yielded to the blandishments of a seventy-six-year-old monopolist. Her faithful Baptist minister had passed on, but she found another to join her in holy padlock. Strange to say, for all her experiments, this was her first church ceremony. And here the chronicle ends, so far as my information goes, and I cannot tell whether she is safe at last in a haven of peace or contemplating another divorce. But one thing is sure, if she has not found contentment, it is not for lack of trying. Her heart has been unlucky but never lazy.

What a life of romance! In a world where there are tens of thousands of old maids, this woman gained three husbands of twenty-three, one of twenty-seven, one of twenty-eight, one of sixty-five and one of seventy-six. Her first marriage was in a jail, her latest in a church. One husband lived two weeks; one stayed at home three months, vanished and was divorced for desertion; one died of typhoid after living with her for twelve years; one died of pneumonia after living with her a year; one lived with her eighteen years and was shot; one lived with her a few months and was divorced for preferring his own home to hers.

She was married first to a man twelve years older and her last four years older.

Imagine those variegated honeymoons! the courtships, the quarrels, the moods, the tenses! Imagine the heavens and the hells she passed through. I have two portraits of her before me: one taken when she was eighteen and as pretty and earnest as could be; one taken in her seventy-second year. In the latter she wears a family breastpin one hundred and fifty years old; she has had it for sixty-five years. She said to her interviewer: "I have had more trouble than most people," and it would be hard to deny her the right to such a boast. But she wears a smile of peculiar triumph.

It is such a smile as Mona Lisa's smile of anticipation might have become after a long life of realization. It somehow suggests the smile of the cat that swallowed the canary. She has emptied the cage. In a newspaper her two pictures are surrounded by the heads of five of her husbands, with two empty frames for faces that are not recorded.

They said that there was a man who had six brothers. He married a woman and died childless. Whereupon, according to the law, his brother had to marry the widow. He died childless. "And the third took her, and in like manner the seventh also; and they left no children, and died. Last of all the woman died also. Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

"And Jesus answering, said unto them, 'The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither may marry, nor are given in marriage.'"

The Sadducees questioned him no more, and in their answer this modern woman has hers. She complains that she has had in this world "more trouble than most people," but she can look forward to a well earned rest from matrimonial complications in heaven.

They say there is a lesson in everything for those who will accept instruction. What moral can we draw from the life of this industrious lover? We are too apt to laugh.
