A trip to the circus

A circus may be fun, but sometimes the noise of the animals, the performers, the ringmaster and the crowd combined can be too much for little ears. Bethany Whiles, 2, and Jared Whiles, 4, shut out some of the noise with their hands, but keep their eyes on the acts during the annual Shrine Circus appearance Saturday in Chaparral Center. Proceeds from the two performances go to support the Shriners 18 orthopedic hospitals and four burn centers.

American labor displays 'solidarity'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor massed more than a quarter of a million people within sight of the White House on Saturday to proclaim their disgust with federal budget cuts and characterize the Reagan administration as "cold-hearted" and "callous."

The AFL-CIO borrowed from the Polish union movement and called its rank-and-file protest "Solidarity Day."

President Reagan, spending the weekend 65 miles away at Camp David, Md., received telephone reports on the demonstration.

"The president recognizes and appreciates the frustration that comes because there are no instant miracles and he also appreciates that the medicine is hardly sweet," said White House spokesman David Gergen, adding that Reagan believes that "the true enemy of working men and women is a sick economy."

Addressing the huge throng, labor federation president Lane Kirkland referred to Reagan's contention that labor leaders are out of touch with the rank and file and said, "We are out of step with none but the cold-hearted, the callous, the avaricious and the indifferent."

U.S. Park police estimated the crowd at about 260,000. As the demonstrators began to disperse, AFL-CIO officials quoted Sam Jordan, deputy director of the city's Office of Emergency Preparedness, as estimated it at 400,000.

The AFL-CIO abandoned its traditional disdain of mass protest in hopes of impressing President Reagan and his congressional allies with the depth of opposition to his domestic policies.

Though Reagan had defeated labor and its allies in every budget battle in Congress, Kirkland said, "The winter's chill is approaching and the bloom is fading from fall's mandates."

Labor leaders interpreted the size of the crowd — it rivaled the numbers who came to the city in the 1960s — as sign of growing disenchantment with the Reagan administration.

The rally began under sunny skies that later became overcast. People ate picnic lunches and lined up to buy ice cream and soft drinks. The expressions of anger and protest were limited to signs and speeches and balloons.

Shortly after noon, marchers moved up the mall from the Washington Monument grounds. At the Capitol, more than 14 speakers addressed the crowd in a program lasting more than two hours. Toward the end, the crowd slowly began to drift away.

It was a protest without politicians. The march and rally had the support of the Democratic National Committee, but pols were invited to listen to the speeches, not make them.

Democratic Party chairman Charles T. Manatt sent a telegram saying the turnout demonstrated "strong disapproval of the Reagan administration's anti-labor, anti-family, anti-elderly, and anti-middle class policies."

Other political voices heard were former Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, expected to be rivals for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination.

In a statement issued from his Senate office, Kennedy said the administration believes it has "a mandate to dismantle our federal government and all it stands for. We must dedicate ourselves to the struggle in the months and years ahead confident that the vast majority of our people will soon come to understand that the prevailing philosophy of this moment is alien to all our history and contrary to all our hopes."

In San Francisco, Mondale addressed a Solidarity Day rally and said Reagan "had better listen to working people in this country. You cannot silence the voice of labor. And you cannot serve this country without the support of labor."

Earlier, the Reagan administration dismissed the demonstration as "partisan." The president has vowed to continue slashing the federal budget and labeled critics of his program "Chicken Littles."

At the head of the massive crowd that marched from the Washington Monument to the Capitol were Kirkland, Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, Eleanor Smealp president of the National Organization for Women, and Coretta King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said, "In spite of this turnout, there's no guarantee that our task will succeed. This is the beginning of a long, difficult, frustrating process to turn the country around."

Jacob Clayman, president of the National Council of Senior Citizens, told the crowd, "The time has come to register our voices against a harsh and stony-hearted attack on the old by the present administration."

Ms. Smeal said polls now show "women are turning against Ronald Reagan and the Republican Party because they have turned their backs on us."

From a stage on the Washington Monument grounds — staging area for the mass march to the Capitol — country and western and bluegrass bands entertained.

"We are here to put people back in their proper perspective and place in this democracy," actor Ossie Davis, emcee for the entertainment, told the demonstrators.

'I'd have walked here'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moose Sprow was chewing on an unlit cigar and leaning on a sign that said "no Academy Awards for this actor." And with a nod toward the White House, he said: "We've got to make him realize we need work."

"We got people starving to death," said Sprow, a union business agent from Detroit. "I'd have walked here if I had to."

It was a day both too beautiful for protest and just right for demonstration. And in the mingling of picnic and purpose, few seemed to care that Ronald Reagan wasn't looking from his back porch at the scene on the Washington Monument grounds.

"I'm just as glad he isn't here," said Sprow. "This man has to run for re-election and his party has to run for re-election. Let them see how many votes they get from this crowd."

Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, said "He can stay in Camp David, but he knows we are here today."

If you looked for a union label in Washington, it certainly wasn't hard to find one. By police estimate: 260,000, give or take a local or two.

In late afternoon, the crowd of demonstrators was a carpet blanketing the mile between the Washington Monument on the west and the ivory-white Capitol on the east.

Giant loudspeakers broadcast across the Mall the words of NAACP executive director Benjamin Hooks, who said Reagan is wearing $1,000 cowboy boots while children have no shoes and is eating dinner on $1,000 plates while children can't get hot lunches. "To these things, said Hooks, "we say, 'hell no.'"

Tens of thousands of voices chanted in response: "Hell no, we will vote; hell no, we will vote."

The fellows from Sprow's local 324 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, all wearing brown jackets and hardhats, were standing nearby waiting for the big Solidarity Day parade to start. Sprow said 6000 of the 13,000 members of his local have no jobs, and they put the blame squarely on Reagan and his policies.

"I've been out of work since last Nov. 18 and my unemployment money ran out last Wednesday," said George Gean, a heavy equipment operator from Vassar, Mich. "I've been to 50 to 60 contractors and they all say they need work, too."

The men in Sprow's local operate cranes and buildozers and other construction machinery. "If I worked good," said Gean, "I made $27,000 a year before I was laid off. Now even food stamps would look good to me."

Most of the thousands who came to protest wore an identifying garment, often complete with slogan. "Greater Canton AFL-CIO" "AFSCME in the Public Service," "UFCW, My Union Speaks for Me."

Kremlin escalates its attack on Poland's Solidarity union

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity and Poland's communist government observed an undeclared truce in their war of words Saturday, but the Kremlin escalated its attack and indicated Soviet military intervention might be near.

Solidarity withheld comment on Moscow's call for an immediate crackdown on the first labor federation free of Communist Party control in Eastern Europe, and postponed until early next week a meeting on the harsh Kremlin warning.

At the same time, the state-run media published without comment a Polish news agency article repeating Solidarity comment from around the nation on last week's Politburo warning to the union. The ruling Politburo said free union activities were leading toward bloody confrontation and a new "national tragedy."

Solidarity's silence and the publication of its views by the government press both appeared conciliatory, and bolstered the view of Western diplomats and other qualified observers that both sides hoped for peace despite last week's sharp charges and counter-charges.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa held secret talks Friday with Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, union sources said. The primate almost certainly counseled union restraint, as his predecessor, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, had done during past crises, observers said.

Neither the state television, radio nor the print media carried attacks on the independent labor federation, and the union's high-circulation Warsaw news bulletin refrained from commenting on the Soviet blast published Friday.

Solidarity's presidium, the ruling panel of its national executive, plans to hold a closed-door session here Monday, national press spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said. Other reports said the meeting might take place Tuesday.

The session originally was scheduled for Saturday. The delay in responding to the Soviet statement calling for a crackdown by Polish leaders on anti-Soviet propaganda indicated Solidarity was in no hurry to comment.

It also suggested that the union chiefs wanted to meet with their advisers first to map strategy before responding, keeping in mind the second session of the union's congress which is to convene in Gdansk on Friday.

The Soviets, in their toughest warning since Solidarity was launched in that Baltic port more than one year ago, said Friday the union's first congress meeting a week ago had "become in effect a permanent tirbune from which slanders and insults (are) sounded against our state."

It accused Solidarity of raising anti-Soviet attacks to a "hysterical" level and called on Poland's leaders to take swift "determined and radical steps" to halt it.

On Saturday, the Soviets stepped up the attack, declaring:

"The large-scale anti-Soviet campaign, conducted by the leaders of Solidarity, the counter-revolutionary forces, reveals very clearly the adventurist essence of such actions.

"They threaten the independent existence of the Polish socialist state, its post-war frontiers, formed after World War II, and the equilibrium of forces in Europe," the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Man arrested in Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — A 41-year-old man was arrested Saturday morning after a spree of violence in which a man was killed in front of his children, a 17-year-old girl was raped and another teen-ager was beaten.

Harold Denton Boy, 37, was dead on arrival at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the chest shortly after 2 a.m., police said.

His 17-year-old daughter told officers the assailant shot her father in front of his children and whipped her with a pistol.

About an hour later, a 17-year-old girl told police a man had raped her in her house across town from the earlier incident. She said she was alone in the house with her small child.

Peace Justice Lewis Heflin set bond of $100,000 for the suspect, who was arrested at a street intersection. Police said charges were pending.

A new monetary outlook

HEARST

LONDON — You regular customers have read here often that London is my favorite foreign city and Claridge's Hotel my "home away from home."

Additionally, there is a sentimental as well as working aspect to this visit.

Seventy years ago, my California-born father purchased his first British magazine some 30 years after starting in publishing with the San Francisco Examiner. The British publication was a popular fiction magazine called Nash's. At the same time, my father established in London what is still today the National Magazine Co.

Pop put in charge of that company my mother's father, George Willson. Now with nine publications, including Harpers & Queen, Good Housekeeping, Cosmopolitan and Connoisseur, the National Magazine Co., under the brilliant direction of Marcus Morris, is part of the newspaper and magazine organization founded by my father and which has expanded into television, cable TV, book publishing and, of course, ranching and big city real estate.

For the first time since Pop purchased Nash's Magazine on Dec. 10, 1910, we have brought all the directors of the Hearst Corporation and trustees of the Hearst Foundations from the U.S. to London for our quarterly meeting and to get to know our British colleagues better.

It would, I am sure, have made Pop as pleased and proud as I am to know that we are, in effect, commemorating the confidence he showed almost three quarters of a century ago, in the future of our magazines in Great Britain.

Apart from our corporate business, this visit has been devoted, as usual, to getting the views of leading political and other well-informed people on current events. Among those with whom Joe Kingsbury-Smith, our national editor, and I chatted were

Information on Kerr ambush offered

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Charles V. Harrelson offered to give information about the ambush of former U.S. Attorney James Kerr to prosecutors as part of a plea bargain in which he would plead guilty to assassinating a federal judge, a newspaper reported Saturday.

In a copyright story, the San Antonio Express-News quoted unnamed sources as saying Harrelson's offer came a year ago when his attorney, Bob Tarrant of Houston, tried to arrange a plea bargain with then-U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd.

Tarrant told Boyd that Harrelson was not involved in the unsuccessful attempt on Kerr's life in November 1978, but knew details of the attack, the newspaper said.

Tarrant could not be reached for comment, but other sources and Don Ervin, Tarrant's associate who also represents Harrelson, said they did not believe Harrelson knew anything about the Kerr attack, the newspaper said.

Now a U.S. magistrate, Boyd declines all public comment on the cases.

Under the arrangement, the sources said, the convicted hitman would plead guilty to killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. and cooperate with the government in making cases against others involved.

Kerr often prosecuted drug cases in Wood's court, and the attack on him came six months before the judge was slain. The newspaper said Kerr picked three members of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club from a lineup as his possible assailants. No charges ever were filed, however.

The offer by Harrelson, who remains jailed in Harris County on unrelated charges, was accepted by Boyd but rejected by the Justice Department, the Express-News said.

In exchange for pleading guilty to killing Wood, the newspaper said, Harrelson wanted a prison sentence of no more than 30 years, a guarantee the state would not charge him with capital murder and immunity from prosecution for the person who bought the rifle he used.

Harrelson's wife Jo Ann has been charged with using a false name to buy a rifle in Dallas 12 days before Wood was slain. Firearms experts have said such a rifle would be capable of firing the same caliber bullet that felled Wood in May 1979.

It was during the plea-bargain discussion, the newspaper said, that Tarrant told Boyd the rifle used to kill Wood was under water near Dallas. A wooden rifle stock has been found in a creek east of Dallas, and federal agents believe it is part of the Wood murder weapon.

The sources said Harrelson also wanted a presidential pardon for Tarrant so the attorney could represent him in federal court. Tarrant was barred from practicing in federal court after being convicted in 1971 of possession of unregistered firearms.

Nine pilots, self-named 'pope' plead innocent to charges of tax evasion

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Nine Braniff International pilots and a self-ordained "pope" have pleaded innocent to charges in connection with an alleged tax evasion scheme.

Jerome Daly, head of the Basic Bible Church of America, is charged with conspiracy to defraud the government and the nine pilots are charged with failing to pay taxes in amounts from $18,000 to $75,000. A tenth pilot is expected to enter his plea next week.

Marriage 'up in the air' from start

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary and Tammy Hyche rejected the idea that newlyweds should start married life with their feet planted firmly on the ground.

The couple exchanged vows shortly after dawn Saturday in a hot air balloon.

"Neither of us had ever been up in a balloon before," said Hyche, 27. "It just seemed like it would be an interesting way to get married."

Nancy Shoeman, mother of Tammy, 23, claimed the idea.

"I didn't want to have to get ready for a big wedding, so I said, 'Why don't you get married in a hot air balloon?'" she said.

The bride's father, Wayne Shoeman, rented two balloons from Wayne Cook, who supplements his income as a printer by running a "balloon ranch."

State District Judge Frank Price performed the ceremony while Shoeman and a photographer drifted nearby in a smaller balloon.

"They call it an experimental balloon," Price said as he pondered his first flight without benefit of an engine. "I don't know if I like that or not."

Regional EPA administrator named

DALLAS (AP) — Dick Whittington, who has worked in environmental matters for several years with the state, is the new regional administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Whittington, a 53-year-old engineer, was sworn in Friday by deputy administrator John W. Hernandez. He will oversee EPA operations in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

"Dick Whittington has a wealth of experience to draw on in managing the agency's regional affairs" said EPA administrator Anne M. Gorsuch.

He was deputy director of the Texas Department of Water Resources, where he managed the water quality, solid waste and water rights programs since 1977.

Whittington has been deputy director, field operations director and field operations chief for the DWR's predecessor agency, the Texas Water Quality Board, since 1967.

He was with the Texas State Department of Health for eight years, from 1953 to 1956 and again from 1962 to 1967 in the regional sanitary engineering field office.

Houston DJ killed in air show crash

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Houston disc jockey and pilot was killed during an aerobatics show Saturday when his stunt plane failed to pull out of a steep dive, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

A crowd of about 8,000 persons watched as John Howell McClain's Taylorcraft airplane went into a power dive, then slammed into the ground near the northeast corner of Louis Schreiner Municipal Field at 11 p.m., said DPS spokesman Larry Todd.

McClain, identified as a disc jockey at Houston radio station KENR, was dead at the scene.

Saturday was the second day of the annual three-day Kerrville air show. The event is sponsored by the the Southwest Regional Experimental Aircraft Association, said Dick Simon, general manager of Kerrville Flying Service.

Need medical training, will travel

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — For three years, Ralph Mayberry tried to get into dental school in the United States. Each year, he was turned down. The fourth year, he went to Mexico.

"I decided I didn't want to wait any more," Mayberry said. "I had two friends in Chihuahua already and I went down there and changed from dentistry to medicine. I haven't regretted it at all."

Mayberry, 32, attends the medical school at the Autonomous University of Ciudad Juarez. The Juarez school is in the downtown section of the bustling Mexican city across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

"I transferred here from the school in Chihuahua in January," he said. "This school has got a lot of advantages for Americans. For one thing, you can live in El Paso. For another, you can do your last three semesters at a hospital in the United States and get credit for it."

MAYBERRY'S STORY has become a common one in Mexico, where thousands of American medical students go to complete their education.

Because of the difficulty in gaining admission to the U.S. medical schools, more and more Americans are going elsewhere to reach their goal of becoming physicians. Many Americans study in India, Pakistan, the Phillipines and the Caribbean. But most go to Mexico.

The Juarez school is becoming more popular with students because of its proximity to El Paso. About 160 Americans presently pay the $2,000-per-semester tuition at the medical school.

"Most of them have already tried in the United States, but it's so competitive because of the numbers that a lot of qualified students can't get in," Mayberry said. "Because of the way the system is, they just can't accept everybody."

OTHER STUDENTS don't even try to enter American schools before heading for Mexico because they know their grades will not stand up against dazzling scholars in the competition for admission.

"I never really tried to get into an American school because my (grade point average) wasn't high enough," said Daniel Scokin, 22. "The student advisers and people like that said, 'You're not going to get in. Don't waste your time.'

"I really was interested in medicine, so I decided to come here," Scokin said. "It's OK. Of course, it could be much better. I could be going to an American school. But this one is much better than most foreign schools."

The students say there are advantages to Mexican training besides its availability.

"The big advantage of a Mexican school is that they give you a lot more liberty," Mayberry said. "You actually get to do surgery. In the states, because of all of the malpractice suits and stuff, you have to stand back and watch. We also get to do surgery on animals and that's outlawed in the U.S."

THE STUDENTS recognize the shortcomings of the school, but have no qualms about whether they will be properly trained.

"A doctor is a doctor," Scokin said. "You learn the same thing everywhere. The quality of the facilities and the teachers is better in the U.S., but we're using the same textbooks. We take the same tests."

Nelson Blanco, 25, who lived in Chicago and the Phillipines before coming to El Paso, said most students experience problems with the language barrier.

"The main problem would be the Spanish during the first year," he said. "After that, you get used to it."

MAYBERRT, A FATHER of three from Tucson, Ariz., said he can see the differences in curriculum and facilities because he monitored classes at the University of Arizona before going to Mexico.

"In the basic sciences — your first two years — the lecture situation is about the same," he said. "The big difference in the basic sciences is that the laboratory, at least in this school, is not up to par. They just lack the facilities.

"In the clinical sciences, the United States is head-over-heels better than Mexico," he added. "You get more one-on-one training."

Medical school takes five years at the University of Ciudad Juarez, as compared to four years in the United States, and the pace is sometimes irritatingly slow, students said.

"Sometimes, you get kind of depressed because you feel like you're not going as fast as you would like," said Scokin, who is from Dallas.

"They're kind of slow getting things done," Mayberry said. "Some of the teachers are not very demanding. For me, that's bad. Not only do I have to pass the course here, I'm also studying to pass the (Educational Commission on Foreign Medical Graduates) test."

THE TEST, known as the ECFMG, is one of the major stumbling blocks for Americans who study medicine abroad, said Lona Kielman, director of testing for the Texas Board of Medical Examiners.

"If they pass, they get a certificate," Ms. Kielman said. "With that, their medical diploma and their license to practice in Mexico, they are able to take the FLEX and the Texas Medical Jurisprudence Test."

FLEX is the Federal Licensing Examination, a three-day test required by every state for foreign and domestic students.

"The board feels that they don't have any way to evaluate if (the students) are getting a good education in the foreign schools," Ms. Kielman said. "All of the statistics would kind of indicate that they're not.

"We have about a 5 percent failure rate on the FLEX, but the failure rate for foreign graduates is about 40 percent," she said.

PARTLY BECAUSE of those statistics, the examining board proposed new rules last month that would require foreign students to train in the United States for three years before they could be licensed by the state.

Manyudents at the Juarez school already do their internship and residency — two years of training — in the United States. Under the proposed new rules, they could take the tests after two years, but would have to wait another year to receive their license.

Predicted completion of interstates includes rare praise of government

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With a rare word of praise for the federal government, state highway officials predict that Texas could finish building its interstate highways within about five years.

Surprisingly, in these inflationary times, contractors' bids for highway work have dropped in recent months.

State officials attribute the lower bids to several factors, including favorable weather, stable fuel and asphalt costs and competition from contractors from states where highway funds have dried up.

"Competition is a very definite thing," said construction engineer T.E. Ziller of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. "An increasing number of out-of-state contractors are bidding, and local people are aware of that."

This development comes at a good time because Texans are buying less gasoline, which means less money in gas taxes, a major source of revenue for highway construction.

Gas purchases dropped by 500 million gallons from 1979 to 1980, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock, even though vehicle registrations rose by 1.9 million during that same period.

Federal Highway Administrator Ray Barnhart, a former Texas highway commissioner, also has said Texas could lose $40 million in federal highway funds because of its failure to enact truck weight laws. In addition, the Reagan administration has proposed phasing out over $75 million a year in federal money for secondary highways and city streets.

"The Reagan administration believes that if a state wants a good secondary or inner city road program, it should pay for it out of its own pocket," said the highway department's program director, Richard Vander Straten.

Barnhart has suggested that states raise their gasoline tax 2 cents a gallon to make up the loss of federal money.

In Texas, which has had a 5-cent-a-gallon gas tax since 1955, a 2-cent increase would raise some $200 million a year.

The interstate program began in 1956, and Vander Straten said, "I think Congress wants the entire system completed as soon as possible, and really they've provided a fair funding mechanism to help the states accomplish this."

Only three states — Delaware, Nebraska and North Dakota — have completed their interstate systems — but Texas is close even though it has 3,215 miles to build, the most of any state.

The federal government provides 90 percent of the money for interstate construction. States pay remaining construction costs and maintain the highways after they are built.

As of June 30, Texas had completed approximately 3,143 miles of interstate highways, which is 97.7 percent of its total interstate mileage.

Interstate construction sped up in recent years as a result of a 1978 federal law which, in effect, allows states to borrow on future federal allocations.

Highway department to accepts bids Oct. 14 on Ector County projects

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will take bids Oct. 14 on proposed improvements to highways and streets in Ector County.

The highway department plans to work on grading, curb and gutter, flexible base and asphaltic concrete pavement on 3.57 miles of roads. The project includes 0.086 mile of U.S. Highway 385 at its intersection of Yukon Road, 1.25 miles of Loop 338 at its intersection with Yukon Road, 1.96 miles of Yukon Road from Ector Avenue east to Loop 338 in Odessa and 0.28 miles from U.S. 385 east to Lancaster Drive.

Estimated cost of the project is $1,223,861 and completion time is estimated at 160 working days.

Bids will be accepted until 9 a.m. Oct. 14 at the highway department headquarters in Austin.

Bush downplays protest's importance

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush Saturday downplayed the importance of the weekend protest in Washington by 150,000 opposed to President Reagan's economic and social policies.

"It's an indication that the people who fought President Reagan over a year ago can still muster a crowd," Bush said, when asked to rate the significance of the gathering. "There were a lot more than 150,000 that worked against us then. I wouldn't read too much into it."

The Vice President's afternoon press conference came near the end of a week of traveling that took him to Denver and Mexico. He and his wife stopped in Houston for a social gathering Saturday. They plan to fly to Nashville Sunday and return to Washington Sunday night.

Bush credited AFL-CIO leader Lane Kirkland with organizing the massive protest.

The Vice President said criticisms of Reagan's economic programs are premature and point out that they will not go into effect until October 1st.

"I think you will find almost uniform support for the President's program in the business world," Bush said. "Where the problem is is in the analysts."

He said he expected the next few months to prove the Administration's predictions accurate.

Bush declined to speculate on how soon interest rates would begin to fall.

Industrial Commission to participate in two area small business seminars

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Industrial Commission, at the request of State Sen. E.L. Short of Taboka, will participate in small business seminars in Lubbock and Odessa on Wednesday and Thursday.

The purpose of the meetings, which are being arranged by Short, is to inform small and minority businesses of the changes and new features in the state's small business law.

The Lubbock meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Plaine Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Building.

The Odessa meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of the Ector County Public Library.

Persons desiring more information on the meetings may contact Shirley Shaw, manager of the TIC's Small and Minority Business Development Department at 512/472-5059 or Jesse George, Short's administrative assistant, at 512/475-0176.

Three persons from area paroled

Fair weather should continue

A beautiful weekend should continue through Monday for Midland and the surrounding area. According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, it will be fair through Monday and warmer through tonight.

The high temperature for today and Monday will be in the middle 90s and the low tonight will be in the upper 50s.

Winds will be from the southwest 10-15 mph today, decreasing to 5-10 mph tonight.

Saturday's high of 85 was 20 degrees cooler than the record high of 105 set in 1930. The low of 50 was eight degrees warmer than the low of 42 set in 1971.

Total rainfall for the year to date stands at 12.02 inches.

Man still in critical condition

A man was still listed in critical condition late Saturday night in Odessa Medical Center after a construction accident which took place in downtown Midland Saturday.

According to police reports, Bernardio Sanchez fell off a 30-foot scaffold while doing construction work on Midland National Bank Saturday morning. He was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Odessa.

In a one-vehicle accident which occurred early Saturday morning, police said Daniel R. Kreiter, 204 E. Spruce Ave., apparently lost control of the car he was driving at 3100 W. Front Ave., causing him to strike two gas meters and two utility poles. He was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Mrs. Jim Phillips, 707 Shell, reported the theft of an undetermined amount of money from a safe at her resident to Midland police Saturday morning. According to police reports, entry was gained through a garage attic.

The theft of seven guns was reported Saturday by Monte Wood, 3601 Andrews Highway. The guns, with a total value of $2,700, were taken from Wood's Midland Elms apartment.

Kathryn Evans, also of 3601 Andrews Highway, told police Saturday morning that cash and jewelry were taken from her apartment. Value was set at $640.

A burglary was reported by Nilton Taulton, 2911-B W. Louisiana Ave., early Saturday. Taken from his residence was an AM-FM stereo valued at $400. Reports indicate entry was gained through the front door.

Paul Russell reported a theft at the Hot Dog Experience in Midland Park Mall. Missing was a deposit of $382.

Police Roundup

Hinkley writes letter to paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., the man accused of shooting President Reagan, wrote The Washington Post that his cross-country wanderings were part of an attempt to find and be near actress Jodie Foster, the newspaper said in Sunday editions.

"You and the other journalists make it sound like I was some kind of hobo or something," Hinckley wrote in the unsolicited letter dated Sept. 7. "My recent cross country ventures were necessary because New Haven was so far away. I would have travelled to Budapest to find Jodie Foster. Now that I am in Maryland, she and I are much closer, in more ways than one."

Hinckley is being held in the stockade at Fort Meade, Md. pending trial.

The Post said the reference to closeness to Miss Foster was unclear.

After the March 30 attempt on Reagan's life March 30, investigators found an unmailed letter to the actress, then in her freshman year at Yale University, in Hinckley's hotel room. That letter asked her to "give me the chance with this historical deed to gain your respect and love."

Hinckley's travels in the months before the shooting have prompted published reports, never confirmed officially, that the FBI believed he was stalking the presidential candidates last fall.

Hinckley was taken into custody with two pistols in his possession at the airport in Nashville, Tenn., the day President Carter made a campaign stop them, but then he was released. He came to Washington by bus from Denver, where he had been living in a motel.

Hinckley also had been seen many times around Yale in New Haven.

Iran guerrillas to be tried 'on the spot'

Move will allow savings on jail costs

Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist guerrillas captured in Iran will be tried and sentenced "on the spot" to save on jail costs, and revolutionary guards who hesitate to carry out the order will be reprimanded, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's new prosecutor declared.

Meanwhile, five Khomeini disciples were declared "competent" to run for president Oct. 2. The front-runner was considered Ali Khamenei, head of the ruling Islamic Republican Party. The other candidates included three Cabinet ministers and a former deputy interior minister.

The announcement on summary trials was made Friday night by Prosecutor Musavi Tabrizi, successor of Hojatoleslam Ali Qodussi who was assassinated two weeks ago. "I announce that security officers must stand up to these people (Mujahedeen Khalq guerrillas) most decisively," Tabrizi said on Tehran Radio.

"Should they (officers) display any procrastination, then they themselves will be reprimanded. If they leave these people to be on their own, they again will be reprimanded. I know that they will not do this.

"If these people are captured, no delay will be made, for they will not be allowed to go to jail, be fed and rest for several months, thus wasting the treasury's funds," he said.

"They will be tried in the streets. They have taken up Molotov cocktails and stood up agains the Islamic Republican system.

"In such cases they will be tried on the spot. By the time they get to the office of the public prosecutor, they would have already been tried and the sentence would have been passed," he said.

While Tabrizi did not say what kind of sentences would be passed in such cases, Iran's official news media has reported the executions of hundreds of Mujahedeen members and sympathizers and the jailing of thousands more since the ouster of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr June 22.

Bani-Sadr and the Mujahedeen leader, Massoud Rajavi, fled July 29 in an Iranian military jet to France, where they were granted asylum. Rajavi has been conducting his guerrilla war against the Khomeini regime from his exile outside Paris.

Iran has scheduled elections in less than two weeks to replace Bani-Sadr, and the government media announced that Khamenei, Tehran's Friday prayer leader who is still recuperating from an attempt on his life 12 weeks ago, and four other disciples of Khomeini were declared the official candidates Saturday.

Knowledgeable Iranian sources said Khamenei, head of the ruling Islamic Republican Party, was considered the front-runner in the contest to replace slain President Mohammad Ali Rajai — unless Khamenei himself was forced to drop out for health reasons or was again the target of an assassination attempt.

Rajai, who succeeded Bani-Sadr, served as Iran's chief executive for only 27 days before he and his prime minister, Mohammad Javad Bahonar, were killed in a firebombing on Aug. 30.

In announcing the candidates, the Council of Guardians, a 12-man constitutional watchdog group, said it had eliminated 39 of the 44 people who submitted applications to compete in the presidential election.

The five men declared "competent" to run for the presidency were Khamenei, Prime Minister Mohammad-Reza Kani, Education Minister Ali-Akbar Parvaresh, Energy Minister Hassan Ghafouri-Fard and former Deputy Interior Minister Reza Zavarehi.

The council's announcement, broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored in Beirut, gave no indication of the guardians' criteria in narrowing the field to five finalists.

Reagan to ask for new education cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will again ask Congress for billion-dollar cuts in grants and loans to college students and programs to help teach the poor and the handicapped, Education Secretry T.H. Bell says.

Bell refused to disclose the size of the new education cuts President Reagan is expected to announce Tuesday as part an effort to shave another $16 billion from the 1982 federal budget.

But the education secretary said they will go deeper than the nearly $2 billion in cuts that Reagan sought last spring. Congress approved only a fraction of those cuts.

The budget cuts "are going to be hard to do, but it's not going to be any easier to do later on," Bell said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Congress balked at Reagan's first request for a 25 percent cut in Title I, the $3 billion remedial education program for the poor, and a 25 percent cut in the $1 billion program to help teach the handicapped. And, the lawmakers applied only limited restraints to the Guaranteed Student Loan program.

Bell said education's share of the new cuts would have to come from the remedial education, handicapped aid and student loans and grants because "those are where the large dollars are."

"The economy supports schools and colleges, and you can't have a sick economy and fiscally healthy school and college budgets," he said. "I think that's what the president is trying to tell us, not just about (schools) but all of it."

UNDER THE BUDGET cuts approved by Congress this summer, college students from families with incomes above $30,000 will have to pass a needs test to qualify for a subsidized loan, beginning Oct. 1.

Bell, saying the loan volume in the past year topped $10 billion, indicated that the administration may try again to impose a needs test on all students, regardless of their family income, who seek loans.

"We're not going to curb the volume very much with a requirement of a $30,000-income-level needs test," he said.

The Education Department spent $14.2 billion last year and an estimated $14.9 billion in fiscal 1981. Reagan asked Congress to slash its budget to $13.1 billion for fiscal 1982. Congress has not yet appropriated the funds for 1982, but it set education's spending ceiling at $15.7 billion.

"If we are to save additional money in education ...," Bell said, "then we're going to have to go under $13.1 billion."

Bell declined to discuss his secret Aug. 4 report to Reagan on ways to dismantle the 16-month-old department. But he reportedly endorsed a plan to convert it to a foundation without powers to regulate schools and colleges.

"I think there are a lot of matters that should be of deeper concern than the administrative structure that we use to house the bureaucrats in this town that manage education programs," he said in the interview.

But he said there are few budget savings to be had in getting rid of education's 5,600 employees, since only $300 million of its nearly $15 billion budget is spent "to run this place."

Before he joined Reagan's Cabinet, Bell had endorsed moving education out of the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare and establishing a new separate department for it.

Editor's Report

ocratic Party, the most talked about political development in Britain for years and which today is being given some chance of winning the next general elections a couple of years hence. I'll tell you more about that in next week's column.

Now I want to report on the reaction to what our own president is doing and on what such astute monetary experts as Harold Lever think is necessary to restore and maintain financial stability in the free world.

First of all, let me tell you that almost everyone with whom we have spoken thinks Ronald Reagan is on the right track with his economic recovery program. It is recognized that some of the cuts he is making in federal spending will be painful to those who expect the government to take care of them no matter what it costs. It is also realized that his economic recovery program is not going to restore prosperity overnight; that in view of the spending problems, government waste and restrictive regulations on business expansion which he inherited, it will take at least a couple of years for his program to prove successful, depending largely, in the opinion of our British friends, on the extent of his continued popular support.

However, both the conservative Mr. Pym and the moderate laborite Lord Lever reflected the consensus we found that President Reagan was right in making the budget and tax cuts he did. Lord Lever, who is widely regarded as one of Europe's most brilliant monetary experts, thought it might have stimulated the American economy more quickly if the president had linked the tax cuts more directly to productive investment. "I'm a great believer in supply-side economics," he said, "but I would earmark every tax concession for investment."

In expressing admiration for President Reagan's wisdom and political courage in making the deep budget cuts, Mr. Pym frankly admitted that Mrs. Margaret Thatcher wishes she had done likewise soon after she became Britain's first woman prime minister in May, 1979.

He said there was no doubt that she would have preferred, in retrospect, to have made deeper budget cuts than she did. He added that he thought she would regard "as a mistake of some considerable extent" her failure to do so.

"The Reagan administration has not made that mistake," he continued. "It is important to reduce adequately the level of current government expenditures at an early stage (in a new administration). I would say that is the main lesson we have learned.

"The Labor Party, the Social Democrats, the Liberals all say spend more money (to overcome the recession). We've tried that before and it doesn't work. All that happens is to make the situation worse."

He pointed out that Mrs. Thatcher had said during her election campaign that there was no "quick and easy answer" to solving the economic problems that had been building up.

For years because of excessive government spending, overmanning in industry and poor productivity, compounded by a worldwide recession, he thinks the United States has been experiencing the same problems and that President Reagan is trying to cope with them in much the same way as Mrs. Thatcher, but perhaps having learned from her mistake the importance of quick major budget surgery.

While Lord Lever thinks the president is headed in the right direction with his economic recovery program, he believes he can achieve only temporary success unless the major industrialized free world nations agree to stabilize their currencies.

"No single country among us is going to have any sustained economic success while the world remains in a state of monetary anarchy," he said.

Harold, a delightfully charming man, is never at a loss for words. He spent nearly two hours at his London home explaining to us why he believes stabilization of the dollar and the other major currencies is imperative. He had hoped the annual economic summit meetings of the leaders of the U.S., Western Europe and Japan would have agreed by this time on a stabilization plan. He is, in fact, the "father" of the economic summit meetings, since he conceived the idea in 1972. He calls us the midwives because we took his side to then President Giscard d'Estaing of France, who adopted it.

I'm no economist, but I'll summarize as simply as I can for you what Lord Lever told us. He believes the world's present monetary problems started when the Bretton Woods agreement broke down in the '40s after Franklin Roosevelt took the United States off the gold standard. The Bretton Woods accord was an international agreement to maintain the dollar, convertible into gold, as the world's major currency.

"We realized after World War II that we were going to be operating in an interdependent world," he said. "The key thing we had to have was a stable money system. We established that at Bretton Woods, based on the dollar. For 25 years thereafter we had the greatest prosperity in world history. We had an unbelievable rate of wealth increase in the world.

"The European nations accepted the dollar as the world's leading currency because they were on the floor at the end of the war. They wanted dough from Uncle Sam. They also wanted your protection.

"Then when they started to flourish as a result of your help, they wanted to be independent of dollar dominance. You became like a father whose children had grown up. 'Yes, Daddy. Please, Daddy. Can I have a bicycle, Daddy,' they said when they were young. Then when the boy grew up, he said: 'Nuts to you daddy, I'm a man now.' The European allies want all the rights of a man, but they are not keen on relieving you of the responsibilities of a father. They said: 'Why should the dollar be the world currency.' So it broke down and they put nothing in its place. There was regression to unilateralism, which led to the present monetary anarchy. There must be a recognition of monetary interdependence, and a return to a system of world monetary order. If President Reagan can achieve that, it would be the biggest single thing he could do for the success of his own economic policies."

Having flown a plane since I was a young man, I said he seemed to be describing the world monetary system the way the world flying situation was before it was decided that air transport must be interdependent with an agreed language in the control towers, common symbols and wave lengths.

"Absolutely," Harold replied. "That is a very good simile. What has happened in the economic and financial world is very parallel to what has happened in air transport. Only a lunatic would think that unilateralism could work in air transport today. The international monetary system is in a situation where it's as little workable effectively as an international commercial airline would be without an interdependent, fully integrated system."

Lord Lever is not in favor of a return to the gold standard, which he doesn't believe would be workable for the long term. He believes the central government banks of the U.S., Western Europe and Japan should agree to stabilize their respective currencies at a certain, somewhat flexible, figure based on economic conditions in each country. The rate of each currency, which would be periodically changeable within a range of about five percent either way, would be determined by a majority vote of the central banks of each country.

"That would make currencies move in accordance with fundamental economic realities," Lever continued, "not because some Arab king decided he wanted to convert millions of dollars into gold, and send the dollar plunging without any relation to the basic soundness of the American economy."

As I said, I'm no economist, but what Harold says seems to make common sense to me.

Jury must decide on Franklin's fate

By GEORGE TIBBITS
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A jury that early Saturday found Joseph Paul Franklin guilty of the sniper slayings of two black joggers now must decide if the avowed racist should die before a firing squad.

Prosecutors in two other states are awaiting the sentence before deciding whether to try Franklin for other killings of blacks.

The Utah state court jury deliberated only five hours before returning its verdict shortly after midnight.

Franklin, 31, of Mobile, Ala., was convicted of murdering Ted Fields, 20, and David Martin, 18, who were gunned down Aug. 20, 1980, as they jogged near a city park accompanied by two 15-year-old white girls.

Franklin already is under two life sentences in connection with the killings. He was convicted in a federal court trial of violating the victims' civil rights by killing them.

The state court jury will return at 10 a.m. Monday for the penalty phase of the trial. Under Utah law, both prosecution and defense attorneys may call witnesses and present evidence. If the sentence is death, the case would be appealed automatically.

FRANKLIN, A self-described racist, also has been charged in the killings of a black man and a white woman in Oklahoma City and two blacks in Indianapolis. He has been questioned but not charged in the wounding of former National Urban League President Vernon Jordan in Fort Wayne, Ind.

In Indianapolis, Marion County Prosecutor Steve Goldsmith said Saturday he will decide later whether to bring Franklin to trial for the January 1980 slayings there.

"If the sentence is death or longer than his life expectancy, he probably will not be prosecuted in Indianapolis," Goldsmith said.

Oklahoma City police detective Bill Lewis said, "If he gets the death penalty, I doubt the state of Oklahoma would spend the money to bring him back for trial," said

Franklin, who has said the two Utah men deserved to die for "race mixing" but denied killing them, stared at the jury but showed no emotion as the clerk read the verdict.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY David Yocom put his arm around Franklin's shoulders and the defendant's sisters, Marilyn Garzan and Carolyn Luster, began crying quietly.

"That the state could really present that case to the jury and get a guilty verdict — I think it absolutely stinks," Yocom said. "We didn't do anything wrong. The jury plainly made a mistake. It found him guilty because he was found guilty in federal court."

Franklin, who served as his own attorney with Yocom and D. Frank Wilkins as co-counsel, made opening remarks to the jury as the trial began three weeks ago and twice cross-examined witnesses. He did not testify in his own behalf.

Reagan risking bigger cuts, Brown says

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is risking larger cuts than it wants in the defense budget by first clamoring for hugh increases and then pulling back from them, former Defense Secretary Harold Brown says.

"We've just seen what I fear may be the first slice at the defense budget," Brown said. "It's like Hemingway's 'Old Man and the Sea.' Once a bite has been taken out of the fish, the sharks start to gather."

Breaking a nine-month moratorium on publicly criticizing the Reagan administration, Brown said President Reagan erred in not using his popularity to push for a full MX missile system in the West.

The administration's reported plan to go ahead with production of an updated B-1 bomber canceled by former President Carter also is a mistake, he said.

BROWN, WHO WAS Carter's defense secretary, said the Republican administration is conducting a "simplistic foreign policy," tending to see all disruptions in the world as "caused solely by Soviet aggression."

But he called Reagan's push for more defense spending and his ability to arouse public opinion on behalf of it "real achievements."

And, he praised the new administration's decision to increase production of cruise missiles and ammunition, its improvement of U.S. relations with Mexico and its efforts to fill the strategic petroleum reserve faster.

Brown said he thinks the Reagan administration may still push through its sale of sophisticated AWACS spy planes to Saudi Arabia despite growing Senate opposition. He said the sale poses no military threat to Israel.

The former defense secretary gave the interview to reporters Friday under an agreement that his comments would not be released until the following evening.

HE SAID REAGAN'S call a week ago to trim $13 billion from the 1982-84 defense budgets could lead to retreat at a time when support for increased military spending was growing among the American people.

"My greatest concern is that the consensus for stronger defense is being dissipated," Brown said. "Our allies will then have an excuse to cut further their already flat defense spending."

"Arithmetic has triumphed over faith," he said. "The big problem is that the president's income tax cuts were too deep and that is forcing them into this tribulation."

Brown said Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's recommendation to produce an updated B-1 bomber would waste $15 billion to $30 billion.

"It's not the best or even the second best way to penetrate Soviet air defenses," he said.

Oil industry gives credit to decontrol for progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a decade of ever-rising oil imports, the United States has turned the corner and is moving toward greater energy security, the oil industry's main trade group said Saturday.

"For the first time in almost a decade, the United States has made promising headway in easing its petroleum supply problems," the American Petroleum Institute said in a 40-page report titled "Energy in America: Progress and Potential."

The API gave much of the credit for the turnabout to ending price controls on domestic oil — a process started by then-President Carter in 1979 and completed by President Reagan as one of his first official acts in January.

Because of decontrol, the trade group said:

—Total U.S. energy production has increased by 1.3 percent over 1979 levels while total energy use has declined 3.8 percent as consumers reacted to sharply higher prices.

—Total oil consumption dropped by more than 8 percent to 17 million barrels daily in 1980 — the largest one-year decline in history.

—U.S. oil imports dropped by almost one-fifth, from 8.4 million barrels a day in 1979 to 6.8 million barrels a day in 1980. Oil imports fell another 20 percent in the first half of 1980 to 5.9 million barrels a day.

These changes demonstrate that America "can regain much of the energy self-sufficiency and security that it enjoyed in the past," the report said.

The institute said the United States should be able to cut imports to 4 million barrels a day in 1990 by doubling its use of coal and tripling its use of nuclear power. The report also said all domestic energy sources from the fledgling synthetic fuels industry to solar power should be encouraged.

The lobbying group said Congress should remove remaining price controls on natural gas and to loosen the Clean Air Act in ways that will increase energy production.

Layton jury wants to review video tapes, testimony

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The jury in the murder conspiracy trial of former Peoples Temple member Larry Layton asked Saturday to review video tapes and testimony of an aide to a congressman slain at a jungle airstrip.

The jurors, in their third day of deliberations, sent a note to U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham saying they wanted the complete transcript of testimony by Jackie Speier, who was an aide to slain Rep. Leo Ryan.

Ms. Speier, now a San Mateo County supervisor, was gravely wounded in the ambush at Port Kaituma airstrip in Guyana on Nov. 18, 1978.

They also wanted to review three of seven NBC-TV tapes taken at the airstrip and during Ryan's visit to the temple settlement at Jonestown.

Layton, 35, is charged with conspiracy to murder Ryan, conspiracy to harm U.S. diplomat Richard Dwyer, and two related counts.

Ryan, three journalists and a temple defector died when temple members opened fire at the airstrip. Dwyer was wounded.

Within hours of the ambush, temple leader Jim Jones and 912 followers died in a mass murder-suicide rite at Jonestown.

Layton, who faces a maxium penalty of life in prison, is the only person to face trial in connection with the Jonestown tragedy.

On Friday, Layton's attorney, Tony Tamburello, said the jury might have been adversely affected by the fact that Layton wounded two temple defectors during the ambush.

Tamburello admitted the jury might be influenced by Layton's behavior, even though he was acquitted by a Guyanese court on charges stemming from the shootings and never can be tried for them here.

"The jury might use (Layton's actions) to determine that there was a concert of action with (the temple assassins) and based on that find him guilty," Tamburello said.

In their opening statement, defense attorneys acknowledged that Layton had posed as a temple defector with the intention of killing himself and other defectors at the airstrip.

However, they argued that Layton's plan was his own and that he knew nothing of a plot allegedly hatched by Jones and his lieutenants to murder Ryan and his party.

Testimony from prosecution witnesses indicated that the small plane holding Layton and other defectors was at least 40 yards from the larger aircraft Ryan and the others were boarding when they were killed. The attackers did not fire upon the small plane, testimony showed.

Layton's lawyers, who did not present a defense, delivered a closing argument lasting more than five hours in which Tamburello said Layton was on a suicide mission.

But during rebuttal, assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Dondero told the jury that "too many people died on that airstrip. Too many people were injured."

Kickback scandal widest in history

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal prosecutor says more than 250 people will be charged in the Justice Department's statewide investigation of widespread corruption among Oklahoma's county commissioners.

U.S. Attorney David Russel said the kickback scandal is the most widespread in the nation's history and that agents have "cases working" in 65 of the state's 77 counties.

His comments came Friday before the Oklahoma Municipal League convention and a joint House-Senate committee studying county government.

The federal investigation began after a Stephens County grand jury found evidence of a kickback scheme early in 1978.

Business is normal seven weeks after contoller's strike

By CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven weeks after 12,000 of the nation's air-traffic controllers walked off the job, hoping to win higher pay by crippling air travel, it's almost business as usual for the airlines, passengers and other enterprises that rely on aviation.

Confusion reigned right after the strike began Aug. 3. But within a few days, corporate executives and vacationers could find flights, although there still are fewer choices available and longer layovers when changing planes. Hotels report that business is typical for September. Amtrak says ridership jumped immediately after the walkout but quickly settled to the normal level.

And the airline industry could emerge leaner and stronger than before. Trying to pull out of the financial morass that has plagued them for more than a year, the carriers were able to reduce flights on unprofitable routes, park older fuel-guzzling jets and trim payrolls and salaries.

American Airlines even started taking care of its own potted plants at the office — all part of an industry-wide campaign to save money, drum up business and maybe even turn a profit.

And passengers have benefited as airlines cut fares trying to recover from a sharp decline in air travel in the initial stages of the walkout, which came during the peak summer travel season.

But the strike has had an especially harsh impact on commuter airlines. On Friday, Swift Aire Lines Inc. announced it was suspending its California operations due to strike-related losses and appealed for federal assistance to prevent it from going out of business.

Justin Collin, the owner of Golden Gate Airlines, which folded last month, owns a 98 percent interest in Swift Aire.

And there may be more retrenchments in store for larger airlines. The Wall Street Journal, quoting industry sources, reported that government officials have alerted airline officials that flight schedules may have to be reduced further if the air-traffic control system shows signs of becoming strained.

Operations at 22 major airports already have been pared to between 70 percent and 75 percent of normal, and could be further cut to 50 percent next month, according to the report Friday.

The Air Transport Association of America, an industry group, blames the strike and an earlier threatened walkout by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization in June for losses totaling $250 million.

The controllers were fired by President Reagan and military counterparts were pressed into service at control towers while the government moved to recruit and train civilian replacements.

Car-rental companies, whose fate is closely linked with that of the airlines, were taking a long look at their strategies during the air travel decline earlier this year, long before the strike.

In May, the Hertz subsidiary of RCA Corp. eliminated mileage charges on car rentals, instead offering a flat-rate — a bid for a bigger share of the business the company characterized as a "shrinking pie." The strike "threw the whole traffic pattern into a tizzy," said Hertz spokesman Robert J. McKenna, "but we were pretty much set for it."

Business has improved steadily since the strike began and is approaching normal, he said.

Holiday Inns Inc., with 1,550 hotels and motels in this country, monitored the situation at its central registration facility in Memphis, Tenn., says spokeswoman Tina Blackshare, and found no significant change in business.

Amtrak's business jumped 10 percent in the first two weeks of the strike, but since has returned to usual September levels, says spokeswoman Debbie Marciniak.

American Express Co., which offers travel services at its 1,000 offices worldwide, had "thousands of passengers in the pipeline" at the time of the strike, according to Chuck Weist, regional vice president and American Express' "strike coordinator."

But it was able to swiftly book people on alternate flights and "to the best of our knowledge it has been very, very smooth going," he said.

Two of the nation's leading air-freight companies say they are largely unaffected. "But you have to realize that we fly between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. and that means we fly when al the headquarters of Federal Express in Memphis. Federal Express has its own air fleet, unlike some freight forwarders that rely problems or cutbacks, according to marketing vice president James Godsman. The key is in leasing your own fleet, he said. "When you control your own system ... you don't have to depend on other people."

Worst hit, early in the strike, were the nation's nearly 250 scheduled commuter airlines. "They took a terrible beating," says David C. Venz, a spokesman for Trans World Airways.

The commuters lost 50 percent of their usual ridership "in the first couple days" of scheduling confusion, says Stephen G. Smith, vice president for government relations of the Commuter Airline Association of America.

Woman cleared in boyfriend's death

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A 30-year-old woman acted in self-defense when she killed her sleeping boyfriend with a hatchet, a coroner's jury has ruled.

The ruling of justifiable homicide followed a day-long inquest Friday into the Aug. 29 death of Robert Austin, 53. Deborah Thyssen, who had lived with Austin for more than a year, testified he beat her repeatedly and that night kicked her, scraped her neck with a fork and banged her head against walls.

Because of the advisory ruling to the district attorney, criminal charges are unlikely, officials said.

Houston man awarded $1.3 million

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury has awarded $1.3 million to a man who was partially blinded, allegedly when a reusable cap blew off a soft drink bottle.

Attorney Doug Matthews said several product liability suits have been filed against the Aluminum Company of America for similar injuries allegedly inflicted by caps. But Matthew said his client, James Alm, was the first to win punitive as well as actual damages.

Alm won $305,500 in actual damages, of which Alcoa will pay 55 percent and J.F.W. Enterprises, which owned the 7-Up bottling facility here at the time the bottle was produced, would pay 45 percent. He was also awarded $1 million in punitive damages after the jury found Alcoa had been "grossly negligent."

"Weak threads can be produced," Matthews said. "The pilfer-proof ring is the only thing holding the cap on sometimes. They're under tremendous amounts of pressure — 150-200 pounds per square inch."

Washington gas leak causes nausea

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — A leak of toxic hydrogen sulfide gas caused nausea among some Port Angeles residents, but rainfall apparently prevented more harm, authorities said.

The emission Friday from a pulp mill also discolored paint on houses in this Olympic Peninsula community, said Glorene McLain, a Port Angeles police dispatcher. Olympic Memorial Hospital received several calls from nauseated people, but said no one required admission.

The Coast Guard identified ITT Rayonier's Port Angeles mill as the source of the gas, said Lt. j.g. Glenn Doten. John Swingle, assistant mill manager, said the gas was discharged during a routine cleaning of bacteria-filled tanks that treat mill wastes.

State seeks NAACP ouster from case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The state of Missouri is seeking to oust the NAACP, the U.S. Justice Department and two parents groups from the St. Louis schools desegregation case.

In motions filed Friday with U.S. District Judge William L. Hungate, the attorney general's office said there is no reason to "burden the pending litigation with unnecessary parties."

State Assistant Attorney General Larry R. Marshall said neither the Justice Department nor the two parents groups have any real interest in the 9-year-old case. His motion asked for the dismissal of the NAACP's motions for interdistrict desegregation as a class action.

Marshall said it was absurd for the NAACP to claim that it represents "all citizens of the United States who are students, and their parents, presently attending or who in the future will attend the public schools in the St. Louis metropolitan area."

Clemson rejects film offer

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The producers of "The Lords of Discipline," based on a best-selling novel about a cadet's experiences at a Charleston military academy, may have to find another location for the film.

On Thursday, the governing board of The Citadel, a military college here, voted to reject Paramount Pictures' $200,000 offer to allow on-campus filming of the novel by Pat Conroy, a graduate of the school.

Board Chairman George James said the filming, which would have taken place for about six weeks during the spring semester, "would have an undue adverse impact."

Teachers may strike in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The head of Boston's Teachers Union said Saturday that little progress had been made in attempts to avert a possible strike Monday against the nation's oldest public school system.

"There has been no substantial progress at this point," said Kathleen Kelley, who, with other officers of the union, has called for a strike unless city officials change their stand on layoffs and a deferred salary increase.

The teachers were to meet Sunday for a final vote on whether to strike.

Ms. Kelly also said she would try to meet with Mayor Kevin H. White and School Supt. Robert Spillane.

Union members have given authorization for a Sept. 21 strike unless some progress is made over cuts in the city's teaching staff. About 1,000 teachers have been laid off since June. The union has charged the layoffs and the cancellation of a 7.5 percent pay raise violate the teacher contract.

The School Committee took the actions to stay within its $210 million budget — down $18 million from last year partially because of the tax-limiting Proposition 2½ passed by state voters last fall.

If the executive committee decides to go ahead with the strike, the union will ask for "an overwhelming reaffirmation" of the Sept. 7 vote, said union spokesman Paul Nevins.

Lady remembers close encounter

By DAVID WYSOCKI
Associated Press Writer

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — It was 20 years ago that time stood still for Barney and Betty Hill, two hours of terror recalled through hypnosis as a close encounter with alien beings in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

On Sept. 19, 1961, the postman and his wife said they arrived home from a drive through the mountains puzzled by stains and rips on her dress, scuffs on his shoes, and marks on their car. Their watches had stopped.

Neither could remember what had happened during two hours of the trip. That blank would not be filled in until four years later when the two submitted to hypnosis and their story made headlines.

The Hills told of being captured by creatures resembling short, bald humans, with big eyes, no ears and high foreheads. They said they were taken into a spacecraft, examined with strange instruments and released.

Hill died in 1969 and Mrs. Hill, now 62, who retired as a social worker in 1975, often lectures on UFOs and her "capture." She marked the anniversary Saturday with a talk at Pease Air Force Base.

In an interview last week, she described her experience as "sheer terror."

"I must have had a very strong heart," she said. "I survived it."

For four years, the couple said they could remember being chased by some kind of aircraft and getting home late, but nothing else. Then Hill's health began to fail, and when he did not respond to medication, a doctor suggested hypnosis.

Under hypnosis, Hill mentioned being captured by strange beings. His wife began hypnosis treatments and the story unfolded.

Near Campton, south of Franconia Notch, after being followed by the UFO about 30 miles, their car stalled.

"The car was standing in the road and they started coming toward us," Mrs. Hill said. "Barney kept trying to start the car and it wouldn't start, and when they separated and came up in two groups on either side of the car, that was it.

"I was going to try to outrun them, but I had just gotten the door open and was ready to get out and there were five of them standing right there."

On board the craft, she said, "They put a needle-like instrument in my navel, which was unheard of here then, but now doctors do it every day."

Mrs. Hill says the aliens removed her dress, and apparently got something on it, leaving pink stains that have defied analysis. She points to the torn lining of the dress as evidence of a struggle, saying: "You can see that I did a little bit of fighting all the way to the craft."

The Hills became celebrities in 1965 when The Boston Traveler obtained transcripts of the hypnosis sessions. "A UFO Chiller," the headline said. "Did THEY Seize Couple?" Their story became the theme for a movie and a popular book, "Interrupted Journey."

Plane crash kills three in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — A third person died Saturday after an airplane carrying four people to the Michigan Republican Leadership Conference crashed into a residential neighborhood.

Two people were killed Friday when the small plane crashed into two homes shortly after take-off from Detroit City Airport. The third died of burns he suffered in the crash, police said.

Killed Friday were the pilot, identified as E. Marshall Greene, 54, of Farmington Hills, and a second victim who was not identified conclusively, said Detroit Police Officer Jan Gelsleichter.

A third man, Frank Vallotton of Wayne County's Redford Township, died around 6 a.m. Saturday at Detroit Receiving Hospital, said a hospital spokesman. Vallotton was chairman of the Republican Party in the 17th Congressional District in suburban Detroit.

Ray Saltzman of Birmingham, issues chairman of the state party's 19th Congressional District and the fourth person aboard the plane, was reported in critical condition at the hospital.

Greene was a past chairman of the Michigan Conservative Union and president of Debt-Aid Inc. of Detroit, a financial assistance company.

Nancy Reagan's lifestyle: From ordinary to extraordinary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like any working woman, she worries about finding time to see her children, answer her mail and get her hair done. But for Nancy Reagan there is a difference:

She commands a staff of 16 policy aides, seven maids, six butlers and three doormen. Not to mention cooks, calligraphers and a florist.

Nancy Reagan, a Smith College graduate, class of '43, a former actress who has not held a paying job since she married Ronald Reagan 29½ years ago, now puts in a busy work schedule at the nation's most exclusive address.

EIGHT MONTHS into her term as the nation's 37th first lady, Nancy Reagan's life is a unique combination of the ordinary and the extraordinary.

The ordinary:

During a staff meeting, her secretary slips Mrs. Reagan a note and she goes off to make a phone call. Twenty-five minutes later, she reappears, apologizing, "Sorry, but my daughter had a problem."

The extraordinary:

It is 5:30 p.m. The first lady takes a front-row seat beside her husband for a concert by jazz great Lionel Hampton. White House butlers, most of them black, sneak out to the balcony, straining to hear the music.

The event is carefully scheduled, and after 30 minutes, Hampton is finished. A voice shouts, "More! More!" It is the first lady. The music resumes.

The ordinary: Twice during the day, a gold hoop earring drops off her right ear onto the floor.

THE EXTRAORDINARY: In the Rose Garden, she has to outreach an aide to pick it up. At a Pentagon reception, the secretary of defense goes after it.

The ordinary? She worries, before a big party, whether the invitations will arrive in time. Considering the mail, she asks her social secretary, Muffie Brandon, to send them out four weeks early instead of three.

The extraordinary: Mrs. Reagan doesn't make meals. Ever. Often she is served breakfast in bed. She likes to read cookbooks, an aide says, but doesn't like to cook.

Mrs. Reagan recently — on Thursday, Sept. 10 — allowed an Associated Press reporter to tag along during a long day's work. The schedule, which may have contained more appointments than usual, seems to typify Mrs. Reagan's life as first lady.

"I don't have any control over my time," said Mrs. Reagan, whose aides schedule her activities just as the president's do his.

7:30 a.m. — IN the Reagan's peach-colored White House bedroom, the telephone rings. From her side of the king-size bed, she reaches for it. "Good morning. It's 7:30," says a White House operator.

Often, the Reagans have breakfast together in their room. On this day, Reagan has an early meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Begin. Mrs. Reagan has breakfast in bed — a soft-boiled egg, fruit and decaffeinated coffee.

She dresses and goes to work in her bedroom, though sometimes she works in her office on the same floor. She dials "a couple friends who needed calling," and "scratches off a couple of notes" — handwritten — to friends.

11 a.m. — Peter McCoy, the first lady's chief of staff, close friend and all-around peripatetic aide-de-camp, fetches Mrs. Reagan from the second floor living quarters for her public activities. "If somebody doesn't tell me when it's time, I could b up there all day," Mrs. Reagan says later.

DRESSED IN a white wool crepe Galanos suit and red blouse, the first lady steps off the elevator on the state floor, where a public tour is in progress. Tourists, who rarely glimpse a member of the first family, are rewarded.

"Tour time," Mrs. Reagan announces with a bemused smile. McCoy leads the way to the Red Room where the first lady greets 25 second-graders from Lemon Road School in Falls Church, Va. Two Secret Service agents, a White House photographer and press secretary Sheila Tate follow.

The children move into the state dining room for a group photo. Two girls cling to the first lady, one on either hand.

Eyes twinkling, she reveals later that the two girls were quietly pressured by their peers to release their grip and give someone else a chance. The girls stared down their would-be replacements.

"Thank God you only have two hands," McCoy interjects.

MRS. REAGAN says goodbye to the children and waves to tourists standing behind ropes about 20 feet away. "Keep up the good work," one man shouts.

11:25 a.m. — Down one flight of stairs to the diplomatic reception room. Ann Wrobleski, Mrs. Reagan's projects director, briefs her on the next event.

The first lady is to present the General Federation of Women's Clubs Distinguished Volunteer Awards to seven women. The president of the group will say a few words and ask Mrs. Reagan if she will help present the awards "and you say, 'yes,'" Ms. Wrobleski explains.

"What if I say no?" Mrs. Reagan cracks. Everyone laughs.

11:30 a.m. — In the First Ladies Garden, under a bright sun, the ceremony begins. There is an audience of about 50 — plus reporters, photographers and television cameras. Mrs. Reagan embraces each winner and hands over an award — a Steuben glass eagle with a black base.

Mrs. Reagan, who shunned public speaking during much of her husband's political career, is called upon to speak. "I guess I'm more comfortable with it now," she says afterward.

NOTING THE beautiful September day, Mrs. Reagan begins with a joke she tried out on her staff a few minutes earlier. "We prepared this day especially for you," she grins. "One of the little White House services we perform."

While the string quartet of the Marine Band orchestra plays in the background, the guests and the first lady walk to the back of the garden, where black-tied butlers serve iced tea and cookies under an orange tree.

A black woman whose last name is Davis introduces herself. "We must be kissing cousins," Mrs. Reagan says. "My maiden name is Davis." The woman looks surprised.

The first lady has her picture taken with nearly everyone there until McCoy interrupts with, "Mrs. Reagan, we have to go now."

Noon — In the map room, the first lady greets a New York rabbi whose school she visited a year ago on the campaign trail. He announces that the school's new day care center will be named after her.

"OH, THAT'S very exciting," Mrs. Reagan replies. "I've never had a building named after me." They reminisce.

12:15 p.m. — Mrs. Reagan freshens up in the living quarters while butlers prepare for her lunch in the Rose Garden. The guests are officials of Howard University, the black institution in the nation's capital.

12:30 p.m. — The guests sip sherry. Mrs. Reagan takes a glass of club soda. President Reagan has not been especially popular among blacks and this lunch is to prepare for Mrs. Reagan's visit to the school.

In the splendor of the Rose Garden, where begonias, impatiens, and several other varieties of colorful flowers line the manicured lawn, three butlers serve cold cucumber soup, veal piccata with rice, bibb lettuce salad and pear sorbet with apricot slices. Two are in black tie, the maitre d' in white tie. Linda Faulkner, assistant social secretary, supervises from a discreet distance.

James Cheek, president of Howard, wants Mrs. Reagan's help in raising money to restore Howard Hall, the oldest building on campus.

Besides the first lady, Cheek and another university offical, the lunch includes Ms. Wrobleski, McCoy, Elizabeth Dole, assistant to the president, and Melvin Bradley, the president's liaison with blacks.

1:45 P.M. - A 15-car motorcade assembles on the South Lawn for the president's trip to dedicate a corridor honoring the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur at the Pentagon. For the first time, it includes a van full of police sharpshooters.

The presidential limousine awaits Reagan at the diplomatic entrance, which the first family uses to enter and exit the White House. When Reagan emerges from the Oval Office several hundred feet away, the motorcade moves up to meet him. Reagan ignores the cars, walks to the diplomatic entrance and stands at the door, awaiting his wife, for about five minutes.

In a small tent on the Pentagon grounds, Reagan and his wife meet Jean MacArthur. The 82-year-old widow recalls that she never could stop calling her husband "general," even after he asked her to. "I said, 'Don't ask me to do it. I can't. I'm sorry.'"

On an outdoor platform, which has three tall sides for security, Mrs. MacArthur sits between the president and his wife. Reagan wears a bulky bulletproof vest under his suit.

After the ceremony, the Reagans move to a receiving line, shaking hands of military brass for about 30 minutes.

3:15 P.M. — BACK at the White House, McCoy ushers Mrs. Reagan to the East Wing, where her policy aides have offices. Photographs of her trip to Prince Charles' wedding line the walls. She stops to admire them. Rosalynn Carter had an office on this floor, but Mrs. Reagan does not.

In McCoy's office, she kicks off a shoe and curls her foot under her on a sofa in preparation for her weekly staff meeting.

Her secretary, Elaine Crispen, gives her a note. "Do I have time to make a phone call?" she asks. The staff waits as she talks with her daughter Patti.

"When your daughter has a problem, that takes everything," she says.

The participants are her top aides: McCoy, her aide-de-camp, Ms. Wrobleski, who schedules her more substantive activities, Mrs. Tate, who handles the press, and social secretary Muffie Brandon. Ms. Crispen listens but does not participate. A Secret Service agent waits outside the room.

MCCOY GOES over the schedule for the following week. Among other events are several receptions under a large white tent on the South Lawn.

The first lady is about to begin a crusade against drug abuse and Ms. Wrobleski wants to schedule trips to drug treatment centers in New York and Florida. "The more I can do of those, the better," Mrs. Reagan says. So far, she has only made two out-of-town trips without her husband.

Mrs. Brandon reports the guest list for the mid-October state dinner honoring King Juan Carlos of Spain is nearly completed. The invitations will be sent out three weeks beforehand unless the first lady insists on four. She insists.

Ella Fitzgerald, who will entertain at the dinner, wanted to know if there were any special songs she should sing. "So I sent her a long list," Mrs. Reagan says. "She's going to die."

McCoy tells her she will introduce the president this week when he speaks to the National Federation of Republican Women in Denver.

"How about that?" Mrs. Reagan smiles. "It's a busy month. There certainly are a lot of receptions."

"When the weather gets cold you cannot accommodate the numbers" indoors, says Mrs. Brandon. "So we thought we would get them out of the way."

MRS. REAGAN says the same thing happened when her husband was governor of California. "Because our house was so small, we had to wait until spring to do any entertaining."

5:30 p.m. — The first lady has changed into a bulky tan sweater and white skirt for the the concert of jazz greats honoring and starring Lionel Hampton.

Diablo protesters ready for the 'big one'

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Protesters at the gates of the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant, their ranks depleted by more than 1,000 arrests, regrouped Saturday for a renewed assault one sheriff said would be "a big one."

Tony Metcalf of the Abalone Alliance said the hundreds of anti-nuclear blockaders withdrew to their tent city on nearby private land "to prepare for a strong presence on Monday."

Across the street, the power plant's main gate was free of protesters for the first time in five days.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission is expected to vote Monday on a request from Pacific Gas & Electric Co. for an interim license to load fuel, start one of the twin reactors and conduct a series of low power tests.

"On Monday, when the decision comes down and we really need to keep the workers from coming in, we will give it our best shot," said Mary Moore of the Abalone Alliance, the umbrella organiation for the crowd of demonstrators which grew to about 3,000 last week. Protest leaders maintain that nuclear power is unsafe, particularly at Diablo Canyon, which is near an offshore earthquake fault.

San Luis Obispo County Sheriff George S. Whiting said, "We feel that Monday will be a big one."

The first four days of the siege which began Tuesday produced at least 1,072 arrests. But, with police support, workers moved through the main gate with little or no delay.

By Friday, Undersheriff Arnie Goble was saying of the protest, "It's just absolutely fizzled."

And plant manager Robert Thornberry said, "It's had absolutely zero effect on our preparations for fuel loading."

On Friday, some of the arrested demonstrators were released from improvised jail facilities at the Cuesta College gym and California Men's Colony prison.

Ms. Metcalf said many were prepared to return and risk arrest "again and again."

Demonstrator Lynn Hendred, 43, of Santa Barbara said, "As soon as I can, I'm going to go right back."

But Joy Furnari, 22, said, "Personally, I'm not going back in jail. There were only two toilets for 200 women and after dark they wouldn't let us use them. It was wall-to-wall mattresses."

The number of protesters released after court sessions that lasted until 11 p.m. Friday was put at about 250 by the Alliance. A court clerk said it was betwen 150 and 200.

Municipal Court Judge Richard D. Wood said most demonstrators pleaded no contest to misdemeanor charges of failure to disperse, illegal assembly or blocking a public roadway.

The blockade began Tuesday as demonstrators poured over the main gate on homemade scaling ladders. Other blockaders hiked into the 735-acre property and a few came ashore in boats.

Wednesday morning brought the tensest confrontation of the five days as 14 busloads of construction workers reached the gate where blockaders were congregated. No police were on hand.

The driver of the lead bus wore a T-shirt marked, "I ran the blockade at Diablo Canyon."

As his bus edged toward the gate, Itara K. O'Connell, 31, sat in front of its bumper. At one point all but her head and shoulders were under the bus.

Finally the buses pulled back and demonstrators celebrated their victory. A few hours later, however, police cleared the gate and the buses rolled through.

Two killed in Florida by sharks

ANNA MARIA, Fla. (AP) — A man who bet a beer that he could swim three miles to a Gulf Coast island is the second person to die after a shark attack in Florida waters this year, officials say.

Manatee County authorities said Mark Meeker, 26, a Tampa bartender, drowned after a shark took an eight-inch piece out of his right leg.

Six weeks ago, a secretary died off the Atlantic Coast after being attacked by a shark.

Meeker disappeared Tuesday afternoon after diving off Anna Maria City Pier in an attempt to swim to Egmont Key, three miles across choppy waters and strong tidal currents in the mouth of Tampa Bay.

Sadat moves against foes, Soviets and media

By STEVEN K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — In an angry series of pronouncements, President Anwar Sadat has jailed hundreds of his domestic opponents, expelled top Soviet diplomats and moved to end what he sees as unfair criticism of his regime in the Western media.

The reason given by the 61-year-old president for his two-week crackdown was the growing problem of Moslem-Christian conflict in Egypt. But Western diplomats here say the moves have greatly damaged Sadat's effort to portray Egypt as a non-aligned nation on the path to democracy.

When the arrests began Sept. 3, they were viewed mainly as an effort to control the loosely organized Moslem fundamentalist groups that have proliferated in recent years, using Egypt's college campuses as their base.

Although there are many differences between Sadat's Egypt and Iran under the late shah, Western diplomats saw fundamentalism as a potentially dangerous movement that might have appealed to Egypt's impoverished lower classes as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's idealism did in Iran.

IN A RECENT NEWS conference, Sadat himself declared, "You need not fear there will be a Khomeini here." He has revealed that most of those arrested were "misguided youth" following fanatic young leaders.

The leadership of Egypt's minority Coptic Christian community — an estimated 6 million people among Egypt's overwhelmingly Moslem population of 42 million — urged their followers to vote "yes" in the Sept. 10 referendum that approved Sadat's moves.

They argued, privately, that Sadat's effective banishment of their leader, Pope Shenouda III, to a monastery north of Cairo, and the appointment of a five-bishop committee to oversee the affairs of the church, was not a high price to pay for the arrests of fundamentalist leaders and the disolution of many religious societies.

Indeed, with the government now appointing prayer leaders in all of Egypt's mosques, the outspoken criticism of Sadat's regime, the U.S.-sponsored Camp David accords, and the Coptic community has apparently ended.

Since the arrests began, the Egyptian security forces have quickly smashed the dwindling number of bearded, white-robed fundamentalists who have gone into the streets to protest after prayers on Fridays, the Moslem holy day.

FIVE THOUSAND rock-throwing militants were dispersed with teargas and batons on Sept. 4. About 500-600 were routed on the 11th, and only about 50 ventured into the streets last Friday.

Western diplomats believe that Sadat has the fundamentalists under control but must now offer them some inducement to return to the mainstream of Egyptian life and politics.

What shocked many Western diplomats who admire Sadat was his arrest of many vocal critics and members of the two small political parties he himself created five years ago to serve as "opposition" to his dominant National Democratic Party.

Foremost among these is Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, an internationally known journalist whom Sadat now ridicules as an atheist who spends most of his time in Europe. The semi-official press this week published a sarcastic story that said Heikal requested European mineral water be provided for him in detention.

In two marathon speeches and a press conference since the crackdown began, Sadat also has launched bitter tirades against Western press reports about domestic opposition to Camp David, the shortcomings of Egypt's economy and efforts to democratize, and the similarities between Egypt and the shah's Iran.

SADAT EXPELLED the correspondent of the American Broadcasting Cos., Chris J. Harper, and the long-time reporter for the respected French daily Le Monde, Jean-Pierre Peronc el-Hugoz, charging them with biased reporting. The only other expulsion of a Western reporter during Sadat's rule was four years ago.

Sadat's expulsion of the Soviet ambassador, six top diplomats, two Soviet journalists and Soviet advisers based in Egypt, estimated by diplomats to number 700-1,500 are the latest of a long list of moves by Sadat against the Soviet presence that mushroomed here under the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Soviets warn Poland again

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, heightening its campaign for a crackdown on Solidarity, warned on Saturday that the independent Polish union's "counter-revolutionary activities" threaten "the equilibrium of forces in Europe."

Soviet sources have said, during the year-long Polish upheaval, that military intervention is possible if the Kremlin feels that the Warsaw Pact military alliance is jeopardized. The reference to the "equilibrium of forces" indicated Moscow may be nearing that point.

The official news agency Tass, in a dispatch from Warsaw, called for the Polish government "to strongly defend the socialist state and the interests of the country and the people against the dangerous activity of counter-revolutionary forces."

The Tass report followed the release Friday of a statement from Soviet leaders to their Polish counterparts calling for prompt and resolute steps to curb what it called Solidarity's "anti-Soviet activity."

The latest Tass dispatch used similar language to report a statement by Poland's council of ministers issued in apparent response to the tough Soviet warning.

The Soviet statement was delivered to Poland's senior leadership by Soviet Ambassador Boris Aristov, Tass reported, but it did not say when. The Polish government statement came Thursday.

"The large-scale anti-Soviet campaign, conducted by the leaders of Solidarity, the counter-revolutionary forces, reveals very clearly the adventurist essence of such actions," Tass said in its report on the Polish statement.

Polish hijackers arraigned

BERLIN (AP) — Twelve Polish students who hijacked a plane to a U.S. air base were arraigned behind closed doors Saturday but there was no word on whether they would be granted political asylum or ordered to stand trial.

Meanwhile, the Polish news agency PAP quoted a passenger identified only as Joanna J. as saying she was slightly injured during a scuffle with the hijackers after one of them threatened her with a razor.

A court source who asked not to be identified said the hearing before a West Berlin magistrate was expected to end late Saturday but that no announcement on a decision would come before Sunday.

The nine men and three women, ranging from 17 to 22 years old, brandished knives and broken bottles during the hijacking Friday, authorities said. The official Polish news agency PAP said they threatened to kill a flight attendant.

PAP quoted Joanna J. as saying a man armed with a razor came to her seat about 15 minutes after takeoff from Katowice, southern Poland, put his arm around her shoulder and threatened to slit her throat if she did not sit still.

The woman said a scuffle broke out when her cousin tried to defend her. Another hijacker put a cord on her neck while others ordered the pilot to change course, PAP quoted her as saying.

She'll face fighting bulls for all women

AP Laserphoto

Raquel Martinez poses in "suit of lights" lent her by a veteran matador before her debut Sunday in Tijuana. The San Diego woman is believed to be the first of her sex to become a professional matador in a major bullring.

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — When Raquel Martinez enters the bull ring Sunday she faces more than 1,100-pound fighting bulls. As the first woman to become a full-fledged matador in a major bull ring, she is battling centuries of tradition.

The 33-year-old Tijuana-born American, who is called El Sol de California, knows what she is up against.

"Mexico is the land of macho," said the 5-foot-5 mother. "The bullring is where the Spanish and Mexican man has always proven himself. When a woman invades that, it's a big thing."

But veteran matador Adrian Romero said, "I think she's proven herself to this point," because she has fought in 100 novilladas, or bullfights with younger bulls and more inexperienced bullfighters.

Romero also said size and strength differences between men and women don't mean so much in bullfighting.

"A man has no strength compared to a bull," said Romero, who became a full-fledged matador after only 17 novilladas. "It is all technique. All a matador is is someone who has a Ph.D. in bull behavior. I have very good reason to believe women have a lot to offer."

Romero will hand over his sword and red cape in a ceremony, allowing Mrs. Martinez to make the day's first kill.

Despite Romero's praise, however, some male matadors have refused to fight on the same card with Raquel Martinez in the past.

"I have a feeling," she said, "that the professionals may do exactly the same thing."

The males "won't fight with me because they know I will give them a run for their money — I cut more ears than any other novillero last year," she said in an interview with the Escondido Times-Advocate. Ears are the equivalent of points in other sports.

In three years of novilladas, she said, "I have learned how to anticipate every possible situation. You can't go in panicked. You have to have a clear mind so all you have to concentrate on is the animal. There is a sensation being there with a wild animal and having him under control that you can't understand until you've done it. It's a drug, and I'm addicted to it.

"As I stand there with the sword, I feel compassion for the bull. But he dies a brave death and a really respected animal will even be spared his life. You always think of him as a friend and you want a quick death for him."

The smaller bulls "just toss you because they haven't learned to use their horns," she said, but "a full-grown bull knows why he has horns and he'll use them on you until nothing's left."

There have been injuries. Her nose, hand and foot have been broken.

Scott, her 6-year-old son, has watched her fight often.

"Sometimes when I get tossed," she recalls, "I can hear him saying, 'C'mon, Mom, get up.'"

Raquel Martinez's husband, Bill, a San Diego police department employee, says he initially viewed her avocation as a novelty. "But now I know it's for real," he says, adding that he supports his wife "wholeheartedly."

New terror wave singles out United States

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The terrorist Red Army Faction evidently has decided to take advantage of the current wave of anti-Americanism in West Germany and target U.S. officials or installations for urban guerrilla attacks.

Since Aug. 31, the ultra-leftist group has taken responsibility for the bombing at the headquarters of the U.S. Air Force in Europe at Ramstein that wounded 20 people, including an American general, and for the grenade attack in Heidelberg that slightly wounded Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, the U.S. Army's commander in Europe.

Following Tuesday's unsuccessful attempt on Kroesen's life, Franz Josef Strauss, a former defense minister and currently state premier of Bavaria, quoted German intelligence as saying further attacks on Americans "are to be reckoned with."

The Red Army Faction itself hinted at this.

In letters to news organizations, the group, also known as the Baader-Meinhof gang, said the attacks were part of its "war against imperialist war" directed "against the centers, bases and strategy of the U.S. military machine."

Observers note the Ramstein and Heidelberg attacks follow a strategy pursued by the Red Army Faction in the early 1970s during another period of anti-Americanism fueled by the Vietnam war.

By targeting leading figures among the 260,000 American troops stationed in West Germany, the terrorists can avoid indiscriminate killing of Germans which would further tarnish their image among the population.

U.S. installations are frequently located in major urban areas where gunmen can blend quickly into the population. With thousands of civilian employees and dependents traveling in and out of garrisons daily, sealing off such facilities becomes difficult.

Most of the known Red Army Faction members come from the southwestern part of the country where most U.S. facilities are located.

The Red Army Faction began its previous campaign against American interests in May 1972 when it set off bombs at the headquarters of the U.S. V Corps in Frankfurt and the headquarters of the U.S. Army in Europe in Heidelberg, killing four American servicemen.

After a nationwide search by West Germans and Americans, police cornered gang leader Andreas Baader the following month in an apartment a few blocks from the U.S. military shopping area in Frankfurt. Other arrests soon followed.

Baader's successors launched new attacks about four years later after anti-Vietnam fervor had cooled. Mindful of America's improved image, gang leaders chose prominent West Germans, including the solicitor general, a leading banker and a prominent industrialist, as their targets.

"As it did at the time of the Vietnam protests, this group is trying to exploit anti-American trends, which today are triggered by the arms policy of the Reagan administration," wrote the Cologne Stadt-Anzeiger newspaper.

Interior Minister Gerhart Baum said in a newspaper interview that he had been warning for months that the Red Army Faction was gearing up for a new campaign and that U.S. interests were the likely targets.

More than 320 feared drowned

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — More than 320 people were feared drowned Saturday when an apparently overloaded Amazon riverboat sank just after docking at the far northern jungle port of Obidos, officials said.

Elio Palhares, captain of the port, said 178 of the estimated 500 people aboard swam to safety, four bodies were dragged out of the water and there was little hope the others who fell or jumped into the swift waters survived.

"The boat had tied up in port. Suddenly it began taking on water. People started screaming and ran to the side that was highest above the river. Then the boat went down," Palhares said in a telephone interview.

The boat, named the Sobral Santos, was "probably overloaded," Palhares said. "This is nothing new."

The cargo included "everything you can think of — including cases of beer, oxygen tanks and crates of fruits and vegetables," he said.

Palhares said the accident happened at 4 a.m., just after the Sobral Santos pulled up to the Obidos central dock. The cargo sank first, and then the passengers started tumbling into the water, he said.

The boat was making its weekly run between the Amazon River ports of Santarem and Manaus. The Amazon is a virtual highway in northern Brazil, and passengers and cargo routinely go from place to place by riverboat.

Major riverboat disasters have been frequent in the region because there is little effective control over the movement of the craft.

Mozambique producing anti-U.S. film

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Six months after expelling alleged American spies, the Mozambique government is producing a full-length feature film on CIA activities, starring Soviet actors, the official AIM news agency said Saturday.

AIM said the state-owned Mozambican Cinema Institute has called on the Soviet Union to provide technical experts, actors and script writers for the film.

Last March, Mozambique expelled six Americans — four of them U.S. Embassy staff here — for allegedly operating a Central Intelligence Agency spy ring in the former Portuguese colony.

Earthquake shakes Soviet city

MOSCOW (AP) — A mild earthquake Saturday shook Tashkent but caused no injuries or damage to the Uzbekistan capital in Soviet Central Asia, the offical news agency Tass reported. It said the tremor at 7:10 a.m. (11:10 p.m. Friday EDT) measured five points on the 12-point Soviet scale at its center just west of the city.

U.S. to send attaches to South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The United States and South Africa are adding military attaches to their embassies in each other's capitals, the U.S. Embassy announced in Pretoria on Saturday. Military attaches were dropped from the embassies' staffs after the April 1979 "spy in the sky" incident.

Prime Minister P.W. Botha had accused the U.S. military attaches of using their aircraft to spy on South Africa in early 1979, including photographing the country's nuclear facility to learn whether South Africa had the capability to build nuclear weapons. Three American attaches were expelled and the embassy was ordered to remove the aircraft from South Africa.

The Carter administration denied the allegations and responded by expelling two South African attaches from Washington.

Zimbabwe faces gas shortage

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Several gasoline stations were without fuel Saturday in what's described here as the country's worst fuel shortage.

Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's 16-month-old government has blamed the shortage on problems in transporting the fuel by road and rail from neighboring South Africa.

Garage owners have been rationing gasoline for three weeks, limiting motorists to as little as two gallons at a time. "No Petrol" signs were up at several stations Saturday.

The fuel crunch also will force the country to store of much of its record crop of 3 million tons of corn now being harvested.

Soviet paper attacks conspiracy

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper marked the 50th anniversary Saturday of the Japanese attack on Manchuria by claiming U.S. leaders encourage cooperation between Japan and China in a global struggle against the Soviet Union.

Pravda, newspaper of the ruling Soviet Communist Party, accused the present leaders of China and Japan of "anti-Soviet and anti-socialist" cooperation.

"This policy course is fraught with dangerous consequences for the peoples of the Far East and for world peace," the paper warned.

It also charged the United States with trying to revive Japanese militarism.

Floods hit South Yemen

ADEN, South Yemen (AP) — Heavy floods have devastated several villages and thousands of acres of farmland in this nation at the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula, officials said Saturday.

No casualty figures were given, but the report issued by the Marxist government said "a large number of families have been rescued" from the inundated area 44 miles outside Aden.

Several dams were heavily damaged, the report said.

It did not indicate when the flooding started but said heavy rains had fallen "in the past few days."

The flooding occurred in Abyan province, a rugged area where late summer rains turn dry ravines into raging rivers. Most of the rest of South Yemen is sparsely populated desert.

British firm recovers gold treasure

LONDON (AP) — Divers lifted at least 100 gold bars worth an estimated $30 million from the torpedoed World War II cruiser Edinburgh in the icy Barents Sea, the British government said Saturday.

"I've found the gold, I've found the gold," diver John Rossier, the first to bring up a bar, was quoted by the Sunday Times as saying.

Twelve divers recovered the bullion over a three-day period from the hulk of the British warship lying in 800-foot water 170 miles north of the Soviet port of Murmansk, said a spokesman for the British Department of Trade. The first seven bars were lifted from the vessel Thursday.

Barring bad weather, the salvage team expects to recover the remaining gold in the next 10 days, said the spokesman, who did not want to be identified.

The Edinburgh was hit by German torpedoes while carrying 372 bars of gold from the Soviet Union to the United States as payment for U.S. weapons. At today's prices, the bullion is thought to be worth more than $74.6 million. The value of gold fluctuates daily.

The Manchester salvage firm Jessop Marine Recoveries, which is conducting the operation, will receive 45 percent of the gold recovered. The Soviet Union will get two-thirds of the remainder and the balance goes to Britain.

The operation already has made Keith Jessop, the firm's 48-year-old managing director, a millionaire.

"That's one in the eye for all those people who've been calling me a blind fool," said Jessop when the first bar was recovered, the Sunday Times reported.

The United States will not share in the treasure because it received insurance payments.

Official records show the Edinburgh's cargo contained 93 cases, each containing four 28-pound gold bars.

But Arseni Golovko, the Soviet admiral who was commander of naval operations in Murmansk when the bullion was loaded, wrote in a book later that "the cruiser ... went to the bottom with her cargo of gold weighing about 10 tons."

The government spokesman said at least 100 of the bars, "possibly one or two more," had been recovered.

The Department of Trade, which oversees all British civil maritime affairs, represents Britain in the operation because it was named in the original contract with the Soviet Union. The Defense Ministry also is involved because the Edinburgh was a war vessel.

The spokesman said both the Soviet Union and Britain have observers at the site.

The 12 Jessop divers have been working in two-man teams in the icy sea, bringing the gold bars up through a 3-foot by 2½-foot hole in the Edinburgh's armored hull. The salvage company says the 800-foot depth is a record for such an operation.

They have "almost nil visibility," the British spokesman said. "It is a difficult business at the best of times."

The 10,000-ton Edinburgh was the command ship of a 13-vessel Allied convoy torpedoed by German destoyers on May 2, 1942 and sunk by the British to keep the enemy from getting the gold. Sixty British sailors were killed and 30 of them went down with the ship, which was designated an official war grave.

Earlier this year, Britain lifted a ban on salvage at the site.

Navy chopper crashes

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — U.S. Navy officials are trying to determine why a helicopter crashed on a routine night flight over the Mediterranean, killing all five Marines aboard.

A Navy press release Saturday reported the craft crashed Thursday night. There was no explanation for the delayed report.

Capt. John Bratten of the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point, N.C., identified the victims as Cpl. James D. Barker, 20, Natchitoches, La.; Lance Cpl. Robbie D. Meyer, 20, Moorhead, Minn.; Capt. Peter S. Swidenski, 26, New York; 1st Lt. Kenneth E. Miller, 29, Pithien, La., and Lt. William E. Baxter, 26, Perinton, Mich.

The Navy said the bodies of Barker and Meyer had been recovered and the search for the others was suspended at 4:15 a.m. EDT Friday. All victims were from the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing based at Jacksonville, N.C.

U.S. to discuss Namibia independence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's top specialist on African affairs will meet with senior South African officials early next week in Zurich, Switzerland, to discuss negotiations on independence for Namibia.

A State Department spokesman said Saturday the meeting was requested by South Africa and that Chester Crocker, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, will represent the United States.

"The purpose of the meeting is to provide the South Africans with clarifications they have requested on several points concerning the basis for moving forward the Namibia negotiations," said David Nall, a department press officer.

Nall said Crocker will review his Zurich discussions on his return with members of the so-called Western Five Contact Group of nations concerned with securing independence for Namibia, also known as the territory of South-West Africa.

Meanwhile, the Afrikaans-language newspaper, Beeld, which has close ties to Prime Minister P.W. Botha, said the highest South African official attending the meeting will be Brand Fourie, director-general of foreign affairs.

On Friday, the South African Press Association reported that the Western Five had set Jan. 1, 1983, as the target date for Namibia's independence.

There was no immediate comment from South African officials but Western diplomatic sources in Johannesburg called the newspaper report premature.

Some U.S. officials are known to have discussed the possibility of setting an 18-month timetable for achieving Namibian independence but Crocker, testifying before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Wednesday, said the United States has set no deadlines.

Crocker did say there are "substantial elements of progress" and that the administration hopes for "some movement" by early next year.

Earlier in the month, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. also expressed optimism, reporting that "considerable progress has been made."

"We're not where we want to be yet, but we are further ahead on where we want to be," Haig said.

The Reagan administration has muted criticism of South Africa since taking office and officials, a fact some officials attribute to the necessity of winning South African cooperation if Namibian independence is to be achieved.

Namibia, a former German colony, has been administered by South Africa under a League of Nations mandate since the end of World War I. The mandate was revoked in 1966 by the United Nations.

The Western Five — the United States, France, West Germany, Britain and Canada — have been trying to negotiate Namibia's independence and end a 15-year guerrilla war in the territory.

Black nationalist guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization have been fighting white-minority ruled South Africa for control of the mineral-rich area.

Belize day approaches

BELIZE CITY (AP) — The sun sets on the Union Jack for the last time here Sunday evening, and at midnight this tiny Central American nation facing the Caribbean becomes independent, marking the end of the British empire on the American continents.

But neighboring Guatemala is pressing a decades-old claim to Belize, formerly known as British Honduras. Nearly 20 years of negotiations between Britain and Guatemala have not resolved the dispute over the nation wedged between Mexico and Guatemala and about the size of New Hampshire.

Guatemala no longer says it will try to take Belize by force if Britain frees the colony without Guatemalan agreement on key issues, but the British are leaving 1,600 troops here at Belize's request.

The difference has been over what access Guatemala should have through Belize to the Caribbean and over the status of 12 uninhabited islands.

But a sense of euphoria is overriding any tension from the Guatemalan question as independence day approaches.

House investigating CIA dealings with Khadafy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA operative Edwin Wilson's dealings with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy are being investigated by the House Select Committee on Intelligence, the committee's chairman said Saturday.

Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., said the committee may want to consider legislation governing the business activities of former CIA employees and how much involvement current agency employees can have with people who have left the agency.

Boland said the committee instructed its staff to begin gathering material after reports surfaced that employees on the CIA's payroll had aided Wilson in his dealings with Khadafy.

"We've had the staff looking at this over the past few weeks," Boland said. "I wouldn't call it a full-scale investigation but we'll be looking at whatever recommendations the staff comes up with on whether legislation is needed to take care of abuses over the past few years."

Wilson and another former CIA official, Frank Terpil, were indicted by a federal grand jury in April 1980 on charges they illegally supplied Khadafy with explosive timers, set up a terrorist training school in Libya and conspired to commit a political assassination for Kadafy.

Both are now fugitives.

The CIA acknowledged last month that former CIA Director Stansfield Turner forced two CIA employees to resign in April 1977 because of their dealings with Wilson without the agency's knowledge.

The investigation is the first by the House panel into Wilson's activities. Boland said it will include a look into how the CIA and other government agencies handled the case.

The staff work will take several more weeks, Boland said. He said he did not know when the committee would be ready to hold hearings.

The investigation will focus on "what types of business former (CIA) employees are in and their relationship with current employees and the problems that result from former employees getting involved with foreign governments," Boland said.

He said the Judiciary Committee will likely be consulted to assure that any legislation does not violate the constitutional rights of present or former CIA employees.

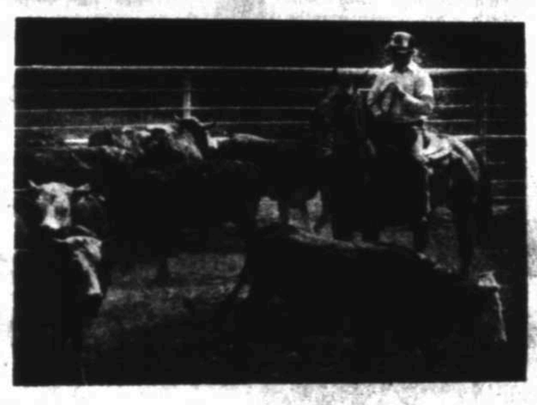
The Midland Reporter-Telegram
SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1980

A cowboy riding the range edges a would-be stray head of livestock into the herd of Angus cows and Brahman and Longhorn bulls on the Faudree Ranch.



Rancher Matt Faudree "cuts" a head out of a herd of cattle. Faudee gave a demonstration on his cutting horse in the farm and ranch tour.

A grand tour

Agriculture is as basic as the wind, rain, sunshine and soil. And all people in farming and ranching have a common language.

Weather.

"We've had a little rain," tour guide Dick Hagelstein wryly told a group of Midlanders last week at the onset of a farm and ranch tour of the county. "Some of you may not know what that is."

The rain, though somewhat late in the growing season, has put many farmers in literal "high cotton" and has virtually guaranteed them a bumper crop. High production, though, is not necessarily synonymous with profit, as the market place is somewhat depressed this year.

"The cotton crop looks awfully good...unless something else happens," Hagelstein said in alluding to variables, such as the weather and an insect plague. "Prices are fairly well depressed."

TWO BUS LOADS of Midlanders were traveling in a circuitous route to the Marc Traweek cotton farm to view results of cotton-variety testing and bollworm control, and then to the Fraudree Ranch to get an inkling of cattle management and mesquite brush control. The half-day venture, underwritten by the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Midland, Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) and The First National Bank of Midland, was designed to focus on those two major enterprises which preceded the 1923 Permian Basin petroleum boom — farming and ranching.

Vestiges of the oil-and-gas boom of the 1980s were quite apparent even on the tour.

"We have a whole new 'crop' besides cotton and alfalfa," said co-tour guide Charlie Welch. "We're growing houses."

"What do you fertilize them with?" begged a fellow on the tour.

"Kids," mused Welch.

The cropping up of houses on former farm and ranch land in the Greenwood area of Midland County was a poignant indicator of the encroachment on agricultural land across the nation.

Each year, noted Hagelstein, district conservationist for the SCS in Midland, 2 million acres of prime farm and ranch land is absorbed by urban development, including expanding airports, growing city facilities, residential and commercial developments, and by new and widening highways.

"It's having a dramatic effect on agriculture," said the conservationist.

THE ROVING tour buses stopped at Traweek's farm, and the "tourists" and guides stepped off and gathered in and about the cotton patch.

"No nation, no civilization has achieved and maintained prosperity without (thriving) agriculture," said Midland County Agent Charlie Green, who usually always has a pro-agriculture message to impart.

He spoke of experiments with various cotton varieties to yield a more hardy cotton, drought-resistant cotton, and to increase the cotton yield, strength, micronaire (quality), storm-proofness, and disease- and insect-tolerance and other factors "that determine profitability of the cotton crop."

Entomologist David Foster recapped the TAEX efforts to keep track of and to control the bollworm and budworm which feed on bolls and eat into farmers' profit.

"This year," Green said after Foster's talk ended, "everything went lovely." The beneficial insects essentially enjoyed a heyday and harmful insects were kept at bay. Last year, though, the cotton crop succumbed to enemy insects, the drought and untimely harvest-time rains.

ABOARD AGAIN, the tourists meandered to the sprawling Faudree Ranch, which was developed, beginning in the 1950s, by Bill B. and Harriett Parks Faudree. Cowboys and their trusted mounts had rounded up a herd of Angus cows, Brahman bulls and Longhorn bulls for show. The cattle were restless, and may have been spooked by the gazing people and their rumbling vehicles, and by Bob Koziol's aerial spraying of mesquite shrubs.

"In the commercial (cattle) business," said Dusty Morrison, the Faudree Ranch cattle manager, "you need a cross-bred type. You get more hybrid vigor."

The cattle seemed skittish.

"I'm going to have to let the cowboys calm them down," the lanky Morrison said of the "stirred up" cattle.

Presently, talk shifted from cattle breeding to cattle grazing. And, particularly in West Texas, when ranchers talk about grazing and grass they also talk about mesquite, jackrabbits, coyotes and rain.

"Mesquite is the major brush problem of ranchers throughout Texas," said Midland County Agent Willie Stumberg, "and it's very hard to control."

Grubbing and bulldozing the stubborn and prolific mesquite shrub is quite costly. So, ranchers are benefiting by research into basal and foliar toxic sprays, such as 2,4,5-T and diesel fuel, and by the aeril dropping of Velpar pellets. The latter, by action of the rain, leach into the soil and attack the shrub's root system.

AT YET ANOTHER STOP, the touring party was educated on the Faudree Ranch's "cell layout" for grazing cattle. Here, nine sections (6,415 acres) of ranch land are fenced off into eight V-shaped pastures. On another spread, 5,860 acres are similarly divided.

Depending on the rainfall, cattle in seven-day cycles graze on one pasture at a time. The orderly design allows the land and grass to rest and effectively doubles the number of cattle which otherwise could graze on an uncontrolled spread. Windmills pump water to watering troughs in centers of the cells.

"Sometimes, the market is not real favorable," allowed Morrison. "And by increasing growth without increasing overhead, we double our gross income."

Over at the Faudree Ranch Horse headquarters, where the bank treated the tourists to a barbecue feed, the ranch's general manager, Matt Faudree, put on a cutting-horse demonstration whereby his Quarterhouse "cut" a head of cattle out of a herd. Faudree feed-division manager Larry Paul talked about the cattle-feeding program, and horse trainer Laurel Raether explained the horse operation, which is designed to turn out cutting horses, ranch horses, rope hores and show horses.

"They're leading out on some revolutionary concepts," Green said of the Faudree cattle-horse operations. "And we're glad they really stick their necks out" for the benefit of ranching.

After the noon feed, the tourists boarded the buses, left the cotton and cattle to bask in the fields and ranges, and returned to Midland.

Dr. Joseph Frank Ruda, local ophthamologist and member of the Kerafractive Society, describes the relatively new surgical procedure labeled radial keratotomy. If professionals and researchers agree on the technique and long-term results of the operation, myopic patients would be free of their eye glasses.

Radial keratotomy not yet available

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

A consumer hears of a new product on the market.

He evaluates it and decides if it may be of benefit.

If his decision is favorable, he locates where the product is sold and buys it.

But what if the product is health-related? What if the product is a new surgical procedure which, professionals claim, can cure the nearsighted person?

Can the consumer request an ophthamologist to perform the surgery?

Not in Midland — not yet.

The procedure, radial keratotomy, a relatively simple operation that involves a surgeon precisely cutting tiny incisions on the cornea, is still under investigation, according to several Midland ophthamologists.

The Kerafractive Society, made up of some 1,200 ophthamologists around the country, is concerned with the practice of radial keratotomy.

Dr. Joseph Frank Ruda, Midland ophthamologist and a member of the Kerafractive Society, would like to do the operation, but is hesitating until further evidence of the results is conclusive.

"It's like anything — you've got to work the bugs out of the system," he said. "But once it gets developed, it's going to work."

According to ophthamologists who are researching the surgery, radial keratotomy is sweeping the nation. Many are questioning whether this procedure offers more cosmetic and psychological benefits than correction for the myopic (nearsighted) patient.

Dr. Ruda said as many as 10 people a month come to his Midland office to ask him about the operation. But, Dr. Ruda said "let these other fellows work out the technique" and "give them another year to get the results together" before he will consider performing the surgery.

Midland ophthamologists agree the surgery is not a complicated procedure. Basically, it flattens the cornea by cutting eight slits in a spoke-like formation on the cornea, the only clear tissue in the human body. This flattening, according to research, will correct the myopic eye to normal vision.

"But the experts have not decided on a definite technique — to make eight, 12 or even 16 slits," commented Dr. James Arrington, another Midland ophthamologist. He added the amount of myopic correction and long range affects are also controversial.

"How much correction by how much flattening (of the cornea) and how much correction is not known. We (ophthamologists) don't want to take risks," Dr. Arrington said.

A study, the Prospective Evaluation of Radial Keratotomy funded by the National Eye Institute, is currently under way to provide additional information on the surgery. In the PERK study, experienced corneal surgeons will do 60 operations each with extensive patient follow-up. The surgeons will use the eight-slit technique.

However, according to Argus, an ophthamology journal, "a freshman congressman, who has had the procedure performed on both eyes, claims the program 'is a classic example of government using the taxpayers' money to re-invent the wheel.' "

The PERK study, according to Rep. Eugene Johnston, R-N.C., will cost $5,000 per eye — the cost of a radial keratotomy is $1,000 per eye.

And some ophthamologists around the country are claiming "that the surgeons in the PERK study do not have enough experience with the procedure to make the study valid.

As of now, Midland ophthamologists have only the documented information on which to base their professional opinions because the procedure has not been performed in this area.

"Midland is generally conservative," Dr. Arrington said. "Maybe in five years after the procedure has been around, we could think about performing it."

Dr. Ruda feels it may be sooner.

"It may take until 1983 before I start developing this here. Depending on the results, there's a place for it," he said. "But for now, it's expensive and risky."

Dr. A.H. Meckley, another Midland ophthamologist, added "most of us have adopted a wait-and-see attitude."

He said the results of the surgery are not predictable — nearsightedness could reoccur.

"Unless the procedure is shown to have some confirmed, lasting results, I don't know if it's worth the expense.

'We wanna smoke,' an inmate says

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

More and more nowadays, smoking is prohibited in public places. The Midland County Jail is one of them. And that's causing consternation among some inmates who say it increases tension, leads to destructive behavior and may result in a hunger strike.

"We don't wanna cause trouble," said one inmate who identified himself only as John in one of three related phone calls received Thursday by the Reporter-Telegram. "We wanna smoke, is all."

Said another inmate: "I've been smoking 42 years and come up here and have to quit in two seconds. If they're afraid of fires, all they'd have to do is have one officer give us a light and we'd pass it around. We don't need matches."

According to Sheriff Dallas Smith, the rule went into effect two or three years ago and isn't likely to be changed.

"We did some research," said Smith, "and the cause of most jail fires is prisoners setting them with matches."

Smith said although most jail fixtures and furnishings are flame-resistant, toxic fumes can be produced and drift down halls, killing prisoners who had no hand in starting the fire.

"Suppose we have a 16-year-old who threw a rock through a window," said Smith. "It's easier to explain the no-smoking rule than it would be to explain his death."

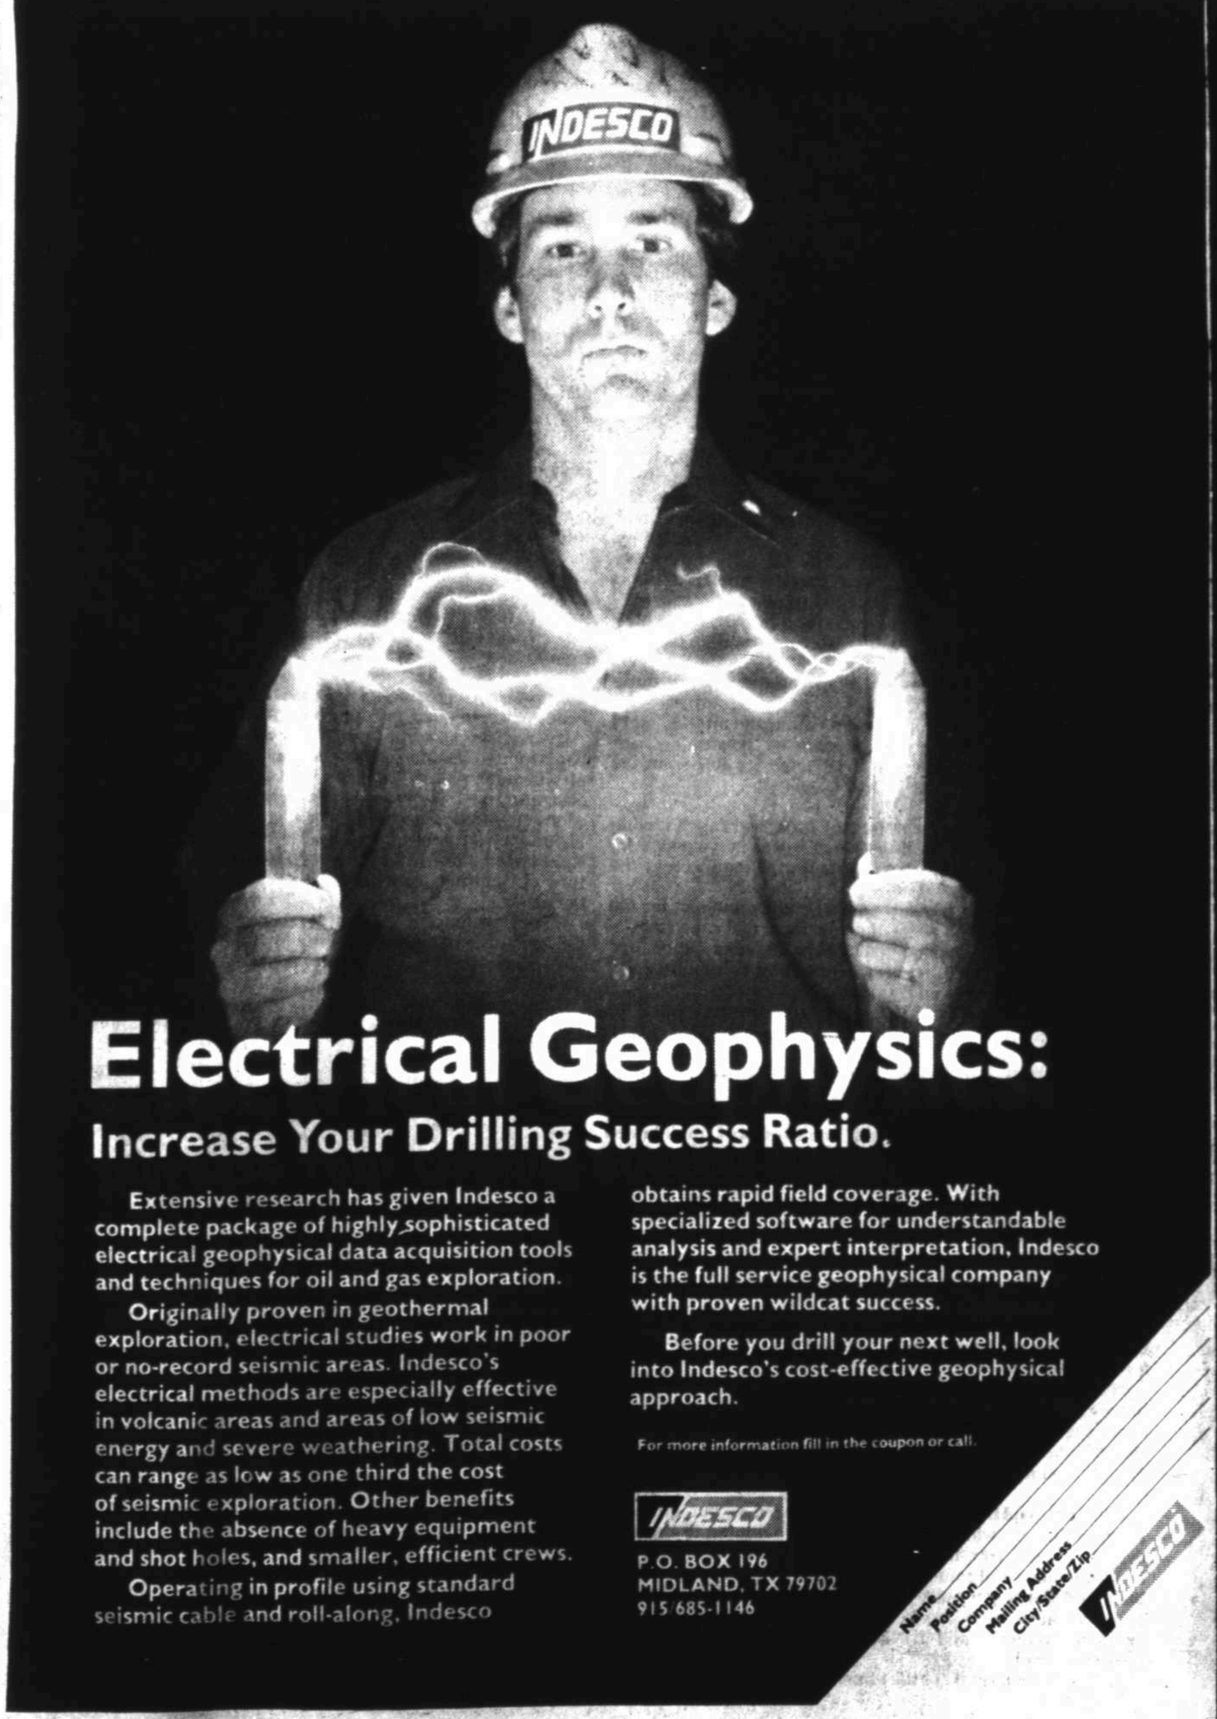
Matches and cigarettes can also be used to torture other inmates, and some prisoners are allergic to cigarette smoke.

"People have asked why we don't have a designated smoking area," said Smith. "The reason is that we'd have to hire more personnel at taxpayer expense" to police the area and conduct strip searches before the inmates were returned to their cells.

The jail is located on the fifth floor of the Midland County Courthouse and, according to Smith, the no-smoking rule applies to everyone on that floor — prisoners, jailers, deputies, lawyers and judges.

"It means everybody," added Smith. It's in the best interest of the operation. One good way to avoid it is don't rape, rob, steal and murder. That way, you won't have to worry about being on the fifth floor".

The tension factor is more than offset by the negative aspects that would accompany allowing prisoners to smoke, according to Smith, who indicated he'll stand fast in the face of prisoner complaints, hunger strikes and a possible legal challenge of the no-smoking policy.



Electrical Geophysics:
Increase Your Drilling Success Ratio.

Extensive research has given Indesco a complete package of highly sophisticated electrical geophysical data acquisition tools and techniques for oil and gas exploration.

Originally proven in geothermal exploration, electrical studies work in poor or no-record seismic areas. Indesco's electrical methods are especially effective in volcanic areas and areas of low seismic energy and severe weathering. Total costs can range as low as one third the cost of seismic exploration. Other benefits include the absence of heavy equipment and shot holes, and smaller, efficient crews.

Operating in profile using standard seismic cable and roll-along, Indesco obtains rapid field coverage. With specialized software for understandable analysis and expert interpretation, Indesco is the full service geophysical company with proven wildcat success.

Council to consider Energas rates

A proposed rate increase by Energas, Inc. will be the topic for public comment when a hearing is held at 4 p.m. Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers. This will be part of the agenda that will be tackled by the Midland City Council when it starts the meeting at 10 a.m. that day.

Energas has filed a request to hike rates 18.5 percent in its 63 West Texas cities. But the cities have formed a study group to review the request and propose its own recommendations. Earlier this month, Energas officials said they would postpone the starting date of its rate increase until after that study is released.

If the cities' proposal isn't acceptable to Energas, the case can go before the Texas Railroad Commission for a compromise.

The council, at 10 a.m., will consider a resolution from the Midland Chamber of Commerce requesting the Texas Research League to undertake a study and make recommendations for improving efficiency and cost effectiveness of the city government.

A resolution that will outline the organization of the Midland County Tax Appraisal District board will be reviewed by the council. The problem with the board centers with its make-up and whether or not each taxing entity should have one representative on the board, or if the Midland Independent School District should be allowed more members because of its higher revenues.

Cubs Stadium may see its office area expanded if the council approves a bid for the work and also a lease agreement with the baseball team.

Remodeling of Midland Center could begin soon if the council awards a contract for the job. Part of the basement had been left unfinished when the center was completed about two years ago. But demand for more meeting rooms prompted the council to decide to finish the space.

The council also will consider advertising for bids to remodel the tax office area.

Petroplex Savings & Loan Association is asking for a sidewalk license at the Paragon Building and also for permission to install a pneumatic tube under Michigan Avenue.

Lawrence Hahn is requesting crossings be built at Scharbauer Drive where it intersects with Marienfeld and Shell streets.

The fire truck rebuilding program will be outlined for the council members, as will the proposal by Esmond-Haner engineering firm regarding sewer service to Section 8, Block 39.

The council will consider employing McDonald Transit Associates to file grant applications for MidTran, the city's public transportation service, with the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. Witte Energy management also is requesting permission to file for an energy grant for the city.

Various hearings on plannning and zoning change requests will be held.

Midland County Commissioners

The Midland County commissioners will be in a special session at 2 p.m. Monday in the Midland County Courthouse to discuss the Midland County Tax Appraisal District's board make-up.

Last week, the commissioners adopted a resolution which would allow each of the six taxing entities in the county to have equal representation on the board.

But, unless the resolution is adopted under the so-called Three-Fourths Rule, the Midland Independent School District's representatives will dominate the appraisal board by virtue of the school district having the highest tax levy in the county; Midland College and the Midland County Hospital District would not be represented on the board and would be denied any say-so.

Furthermore, the Texas statutory law exempts all but school districts, municipalities and counties from representation on appraisal district boards across the state. However, that could be amended locally by a consenting vote by the Midland and Greenwood ISD trustees, county commissioners and city councilmen.

The Midland ISD trustees, however, aren't expected to readily give up what could be clear dominance of the board beginning in 1982.

In other business, the commissioners are to discuss pending or prospective litigation.

MISD Board of Trustees

Midland Independent School District trustees will will review the program for gifted students when they meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Administration Building at 702 N. N St.

The board is expected to vote on a recommendation by the Gifted and Talented Advisory Committee to change the name of MISD's gifted and talented program to the Gifted Education in Midland (GEM) Program.

Other items expected to see action are a gift from the Midland Tennis Association, a request by a church group to rent a school facility, bids submitted by May & Duncan Music Co. of Midland and a Wichita, Kan. firm for band instuments and portable buildings, the release of pledged securities for the school district and the financial transactions as of Aug. 31.

Board members will also hear a report on plans for implementing supervision and evaluation requirements for teachers and a report from the MISD Athletic Department on football game expenses.

Tax Appraisal District board

The Midland County Tax Appraisal District board will meet in a special session at 2 p.m. Monday in the City Hall Council Chambers.

Purpose of the meeting is to report changes in the Texas Property Tax Code to the governing bodies of the six taxing entities in Midland County and to discuss the various options available for the composition and selection of the board of directors, who will take office Jan. 1, 1982.

The six taxing entities involved are the city, county, Midland Memorial Hospital district, Midland College, Midland Independent School District and Greenwood Independent School District.

Ingram not afraid to get involved

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

John Ingram doesn't wait for things to happen, he makes them happen.

He believes if problems are looked upon as opportunities, something is always gained, whether it be bad or good, and it all adds up to the same thing — experience.

When first meeting Ingram, his relaxed attitude, but vivacious personality makes a person feel there's not a problem in the world that could not be conquered.

Ingram thrives on being active — as an involved citizen — as a true Midlander.

"I don't worry a whole lot about the opportunity to be part of what's happening or how to make it happen. But if I have a choice, I'd rather it be the latter," Ingram said. "And sometimes making things happen isn't always a bed of roses."

In the 11 years that Ingram has been in Midland, he has been involved in establishing the Pastoral Counseling Center of West Texas, working with the United Way, and setting upthe Washington YMCA. In addition, he has served on the committee of the Retail Merchants for the Chamber Commerce, as director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, as president of the Midland Symphony and as co-chairman of the Midland-Odessa Symphony, as president of the Midland Transportation, Inc. board and as a member of The University of Texas development board.

Ingram doesn't boast about these accomplishments; in fact, he does quite the opposite.

"In a community, those who can, for one reason or another — whether it be competence, capital or committment — will give of themselves for the community."

Midlander in Profile

Midland is an interesting place to be involved in, he remarked, because "all it demands is the best you've got."

And, "the best," according to Ingram, is the everlasting inner struggle to be the best you can be.

"You don't ever accomplish anything by yourself. This community has a high motivation," Ingram noted. "That's what it's really all about."

Ingram's philosophical views add up to what he terms "the quality of life."

Midland "doesn't have an example to follow by immediate adjacency," he said, interjecting he doesn't mean that to exclude Odessa. Instead, because Midland has no nearby, large metropolitan city to mimic, the community must develop an individualized spirit that reflects its own quality of life.

A community "on the edge of success" should be constantly exploring. That sense of always being ready to meet the needs of the people — rather than sitting back and gloating in what has been done in the past — can make or break a community. To Ingram, Midland is phenomenal in the sense that it "may be the last of the boomtowns."

"How could anyone pass up the opportunity to be involved?" Ingram questioned. "We're sitting on top of one of the most concerning problems in the world — energy — and how we address this problem" could determine Midland's future.

Ingram, along with others in the community, "addressed this problem" by getting a transportation system started in Midland.

Through Ingram's leadership, a committee was able to acquire funds from the chamber and the city after an initial survey on transportation was made in Midland. With the funds, General Motors specialists were brought in and they did their own survey which was "far more indicative than ours," Ingram commented.

"We went into the system extremely conservative," Ingram explained. "General Motors recommended 11 buses and we acquired seven. We were strapped in the ability to give services for a while."

He pointed out that "flex routes" were incorporated in the system, allowing the rider to follow given routes or for an additional charge to design his own.

"Employment transportation was by far the most profitable — that and charter transportation," Ingram said.

The on-going transportation system still has wrinkles to be ironed out, but Ingram, claiming to be a "doer, rather than seer," said as long as a community has needs there's always room for improvement.

Junior Achievement board named

The 1981-82 officers and members of the board of directors of Junior Achievement of Midland, Inc. have been announced.

Loyd Whitley, senior vice president-finance of Adobe Oil and Gas Corp., was elected vice president and secretary.

Other officers include Chairman Paul Henderson, district operations manager for Exxon Co., USA; President Jack Hauke, president of Texas Plastic Industries; Executive Vice President Thomas M. Bruner, senior vice president and trust officer of Commercial Bank and Trust Co.; and Vice President and Treasurer Spencer Beal, partner of BTA Oil Producers.

City voters encouraged to file address changes

With all the moving into town by new residents and moving around town by oldtimers, many Midlanders may find they aren't eligible to vote in the Nov. 3 general election if they haven't changed their address with the voter registration office.

Janiece Builta, voter registrar for Midland County, noted that new residents and people who have changed their addresses within the county have until 5 p.m. Oct. 2 to get the change recorded in the office, located in the Tax Office in the basement of the Midland County Courthouse.

She pointed out that people who have moved here from other counties or states will have to register to vote with her office.

And some people who have stayed in their residence may find themselves with a new address due to county redistricting or new mailing assignments made by the Postal Service. Ms. Builta noted that two rural routes were added by the Postal Service, and addresses in other rural routes have been changed.

Registrations can't be forwarded to these new addresses, she said.

Residents who are registered to vote but who have a new address may make the change by correcting the information on their white voter registration card, signing the back of it and mailing it to Ms. Builta, P.O. Box 712, Midland, Texas, 79702. A corrected card will be mailed back to the voter.

The Museum of the Southwest... just another great part of Midland...a great city!

The Museum of the Southwest at 1701 W. Missouri, mirrors Midlands dedication to the arts. Exhibits by talented artists and craftsmen from the southwestern United States line the halls of the museum's beautiful home. An afternoon spent browsing among the paintings, sculpture and tapestry creates an atmosphere of beauty for all ages. The Museum of the Southwest, an asset to Midland and definitely a worthwhile afternoon, and...at the First National Bank of Midland, we're proud of its cultural contribution.

Complex to offer new opportunities

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

A $3 million project to provide unique, extensive services for the mentally retarded will be initiated within two months by Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, according to director of development Kay Sorenson.

The Opportunity Complex, as the project has been dubbed, will be located on five acres of land adjacent to existing MARC facilities at 2701 N. A Street. Architect Walter Pate of Midland designed the plans, which were adopted at a recent MARC board meeting.

Ms. Sorenson noted that donations from foundations, corporations and individuals are being solicited in an effort to have the complex built entirely with private funds.

Money for Phase 1 of the project already has been pledged, she said. The initial phase will cost $77,500, and will consist of renovations to the existing Opportunity Center, including revamping of the cooling and heating system, repainting, insulation and weatherization, revised partitioning, correction of structural problems, and aesthetic improvements to the exterior to downplay the institutional character of the building.

Additional Phase 1 work will include minor renovation of the existing office, the addition of a sign and fencing to reinforce the residential character of the complex, re-landscaping of the immediate area, and the planting of a thicket of "very large" pine trees.

Also, a playground will be constructed for the day care center and ample visitor parking spaces provided.

Phase 1 is just the start of an ambitious project entailing five phases and, perhaps, five years, said Ms. Sorenson. The project should result in a setting conducive to the vocational, recreational and residential needs of the retarded, she said.

Additional phases include:

—Two, $838,000: Construction of a 15,144 square foot MARC apartment building to house 22 mentally retarded individuals and a live-in couple;

A 2,400 square foot recreation and meeting center large enough to accommodate residents of all the apartment and living complexes;

Picnic area and barbecue, new pump house, tool shed, sprinkler system and staff parking area in front of Apache Flats, which is the existing residential facility.

—Three, $633,500: Construction of a second apartment building, a multi-use recreational court, and additional parking space.

—Four, $638,500: Construction of a third apartment unit and associated parking spaces.

—Five, $788,000: Construction of a fourth apartment unit and additional parking spaces, along with incorporation of new office space in the existing MARC office building.

While MARC officials admit $3 million is a lot of money to raise, they have high hopes. They have planned on the complex since last March, and are hoping for a "snowball effect" once Phase 1 is initiated.

"I feel like once people see what we're doing, see progress being made, there'll be more incentive on the part of corporations, individuals to donate," said Ms. Sorenson.

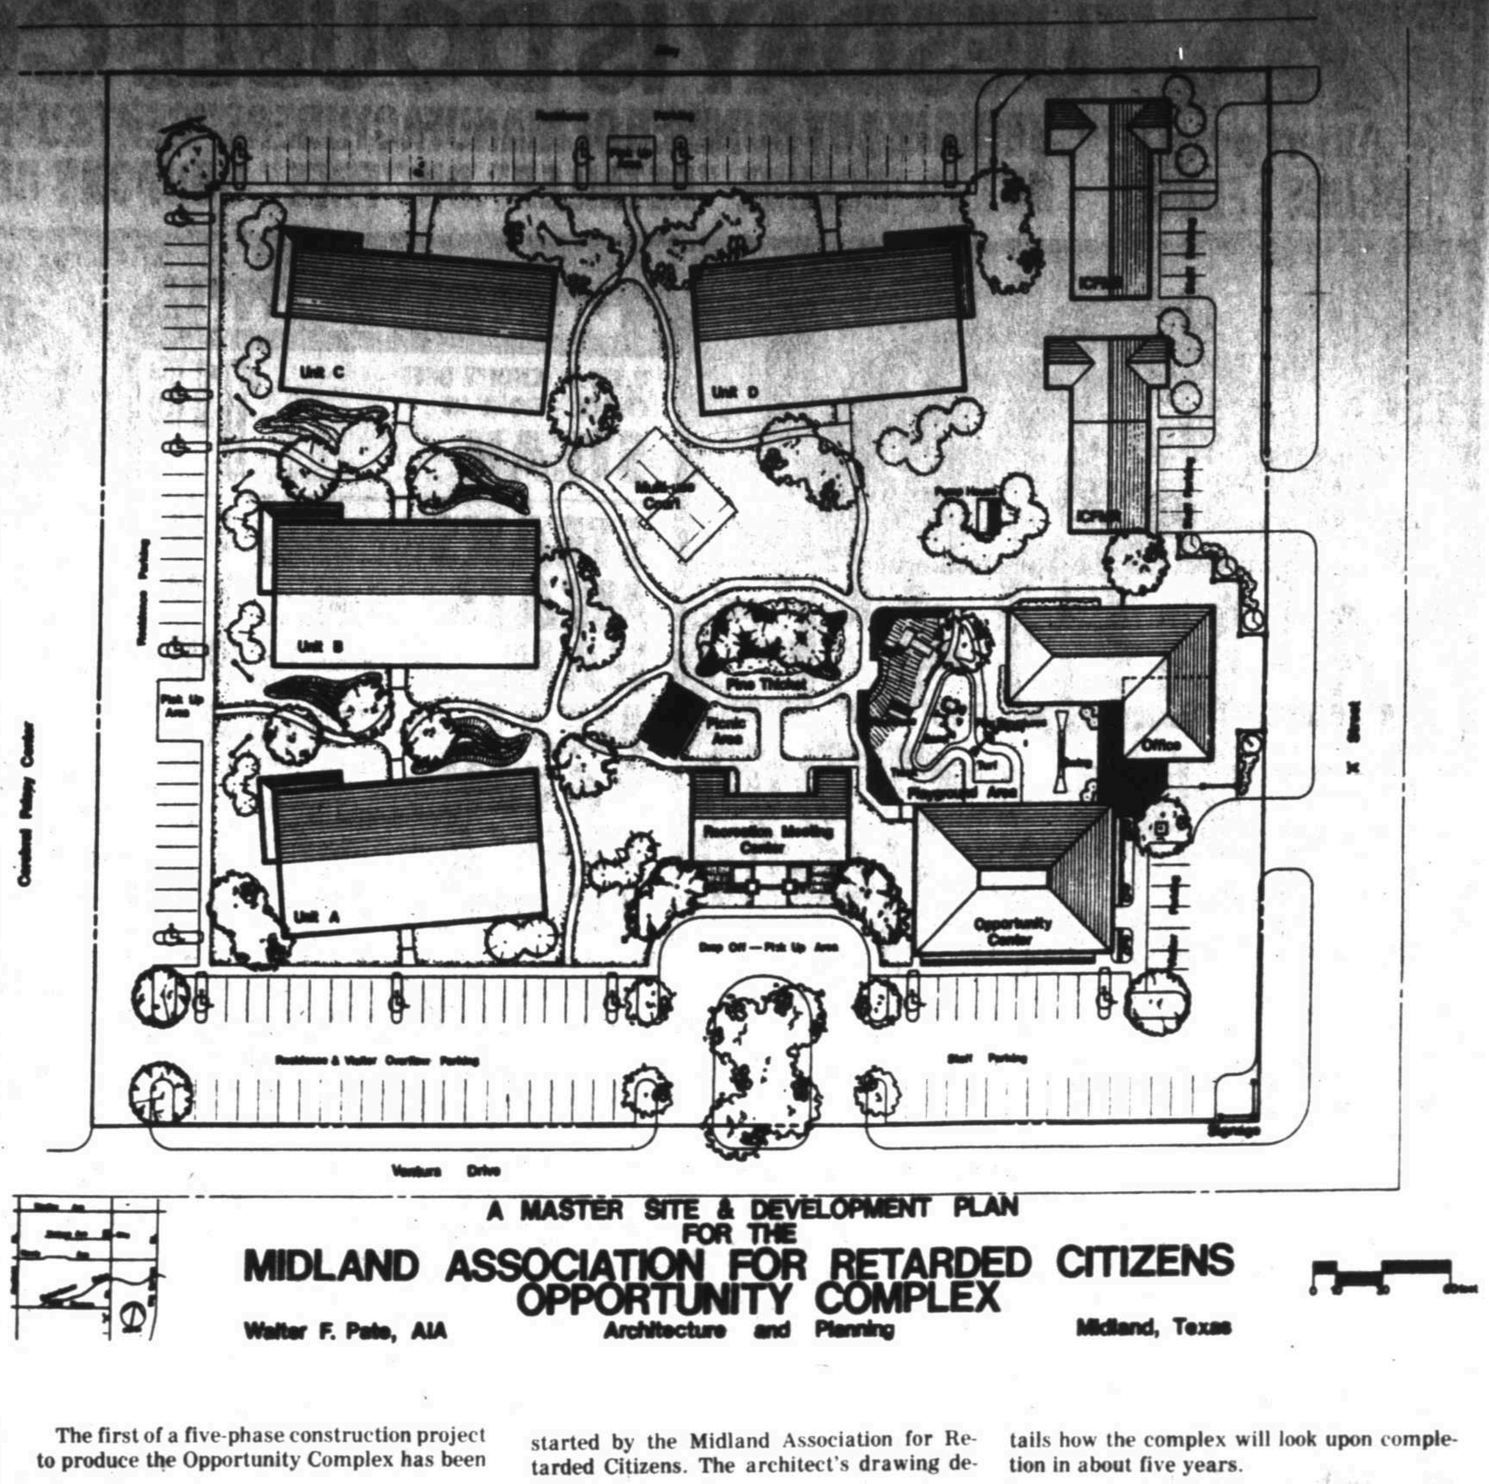
The lofty ideals which the complex will represent also may spur interest in donations, for the director of development believes that to complete the project is to help the retarded take a giant step forward toward full acceptance by the community.

"We're going to make taxpayers out of tax users," she said, expressing a belief the complex will pay for itself in a few years by helping the retarded enter the mainstream of the work force, rather than forcing them to continue subsiding off welfare-related programs.

"Midland has a booming economy, with jobs to fill, and this is one of the reasons for doing this in the Midland area," she noted. "Employers will be receptive (if they realize) the handicapped have better on-the-job (records), as far as absenteeism. Also, the one thing people don't understand about the retarded is that they take a lot of pride in what a lot of us would consider the mundane, the boring."

The complex and its services also may ease heavy burdens from the minds of parents with retarded children, she indicated, once it displays that a virtually independent and self-reliant future is possible for many retarded individuals.

"It will give them a place to work, live, interact socially in the community, (and be) independent," explained Ms. Sorenson. "Independence and freedom are words we all take for granted, but they are words that the retarded, for the most part, do not have."



The first of a five-phase construction project to produce the Opportunity Complex has been started by the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens. The architect's drawing details how the complex will look upon completion in about five years.

MARC to hold its second Special Olympics Banquet

Midland Association for Retarded Citizens will hold its second annual Texas Special Olympics Banquet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Midland Center.

Featured speaker will be Grady Ramey, director of physical education at Abilene State School. Ramey has worked with the TSO program since its inception in 1968. He served as track and field head coach for International and National Special Olympic Games in 1970, 1972, 1975 and 1979, and has been area coordinator for several years. He was the first recipient of the Johnny Jones "Spirit of Special Olympics" Award in 1980.

Mayor Thane Akins will present MARC with a proclamation designating Tuesday as Midland Special Olympics Day, and TSO athletes who have participated in local, area and state competition will be recognized.

Billie Nixon, MARC Special Olympics chairman, said a few banquet reservations are available at $5 each at the MARC office, 2701 North A St. Persons interested in attending may call MARC, 682-9771, for additional information.

CycleFest just a few weeks away

FORT DAVIS — The fourth annual Davis Mountains CycleFest and Mountain Climb around the 75-mile Scenic Loop and up the two-mile, 17 percent grade leading to McDonald Observatory atop Mount Locke will be held the first weekend in October.

The ride, sponsored by the Prude Ranch at Fort Davis and billed as the highest ride east of the Rocky Mountains, will begin at 9 a.m. Oct. 3 at the ranch off Texas 118 and near Davis Mountains State Park. It will end when the last of the riders pedal in or are hauled in by the Prude Ranch Sag Wagon.

Rides of 50, 25 and 10 miles along the 75-mile Scenic Loop will be held for the "less ambitious" who can't or who elect not to muster the loop that day. Elevations range from 5,000 to 6,800 feet.

The Fort Davis Tour was one of the races approved for qualifying Olympic Cyclists in 1974.

Prude Ranch will host a mid-day snack for the bicyclists and will throw a barbecue supper at 6:30 p.m.

On the morning of Oct. 4, the cyclists can try the two-mile ride up Mount Locke. Those who make it will be awarded Mount Locke patches.

Bicycle enthusiasts interested in the making the ride may pick up offical entry forms at Peyton's Bikes in Midland and Odessa and from the Ski Skeller Sports and Bicycle Shop in Midland.

The $15-per-rider entry fee covers the T-shirt, patch, mid-day snack and barbecue supper.

Those wishing lodging may write John Robert Prude, Prude Ranch, P.O. Box 1431, Fort Davis, Texas or call him at 915-426-3347.

Outside of Prude Ranch, lodging is available at Indian Lodge at Davis Mountains State Park, Sutlers Inn and Stone Village in Fort Davis, and out-of-doors on the ranch and in the state park.

Boy qualifies for 4-H Fashion Revue

RANKIN — Trey Powell's flair for clothing construction equals his interest in apparel design.

Trey, 17, was the only boy in a field of 48 contestants in the Texas State 4-H Fashion Revue in San Angelo this weekend.

The Rankin High School junior was the first boy to qualify for the state show since 1979 and was the third boy to ever qualify for the statewide fashion event.

Alpine centennial buffet scheduled

ALPINE — The Alpine Centennial Days Steering Committee will sponsor a buffet dinner at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 2 in the Sul Ross State University HPE Building to honor people who founded and helped make successful the clubs and organizations in Alpine.

Alpine is amid its centennial celebration.

Graduate joins Alpine police force

ANDREWS — Daryl Boatright, 24, a recent graduate of Sul Ross State University, has been hired by the Alpine Police Department.

His presence will increase the police force to 12.

The job on the force is his first since he earned the degree in criminal justice.

Lamesa building permits reported

LAMESA — Building permits issued in August by the city of Lamesa reflect $156,850 in new construction and renovation and brings the 1981 running talley to almost $1.2 million.

The August permits included $136,850 for remodeling an office building.

Man charged with murder, arson

MIAMI (AP) — Dade County authorities charged a man with first-degree murder and arson Saturday in connection with the slaying of a 66-year-old man during the May 1980 racial riots here.

Detectives investigating the July 1980 shooting of a county detective uncovered enough information to file charges in the earlier death of Emilio Munoz, Detective John King said.

Ira "Ivory" Pickett, 22, also was charged with attempted second-degree murder and use of a firearm in committing a felony in the shooting of Detective Sgt. Fred Pelny in a Liberty City housing project, King said. That shooting touched off several days of renewed violence at the James Scott Homes.

Munoz died on May 17, 1980, the first of three days of racial violence here, when his car was set afire after he lost control of the vehicle in the mostly black Liberty City section of Miami.

Five murder trials have resulted from the three days of violence.

Professor appointed

ODESSA — Dr. James Colwell, professor and chairman of literature at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, has been appointed by the National Endowment for the Humanities to serve as a consultant for a proposed televised production of Mark Twain's "The Innocents Abroad."

"This is the first time ever that all the important works of any American writer have been treated with this kind of television attention," Colwell said.

According to Colwell, "The Innocents Abroad" is the fourth of nine productions in a series of Twain's major works being sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

A nationally recognized authority on Mark Twain, Colwell also was consulted on two other teleplays in the series being produced by the Nebraska Educational Television Network and the Great Annwell Company, Inc.

Duarte arrives

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte arrived Saturday night in Washington for a 10-day visit to the United States that will include meetings with President Reagan and congressional leaders.

Duarte, who has been head of El Salvador's U.S.-supported civilian-military junta since last December, is scheduled to meet with Reagan on Monday.

They are expected to discuss the status of El Salvador's civil war, which is estimated to have claimed some 20,000 lives over the past two years.

Another likely topic is the prospect of additional U.S. military and economic aid to El Salvador.

Polish student adjusting to life in West Texas

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

It would be quite a change to leave the lush, moist climate of his hometown in western Poland to come to a dry and barren region such as West Texas, but Slawomir Wasiluk, 20, a student at Midland College, seems to have adjusted well.

Speaking in slightly broken English, Wasiluk pointed out the differences and, surprisingly, the many similarities of life in Bialystok, Poland, and in Midland.

"It rains, sometimes all week, all day it can be rain, so I just like here the sun," Wasiluk said, adding with a laugh, "but sometimes it is too hot."

Temperatures in the rolling, thickly forested fields of his hometown range from 75 degrees in the summer to 10 degrees in the winter.

He said that Polish people usually speak English, especially the students. "So there is no problem, for example, if you come to Poland to visit."

After attending elementary school until he was 15 and secondary school for four years, Wasiluk went to a business school for two years in Warsaw, a city where there are many colleges, universities and about 20,000 students.

He said there is much competition to get into the universities and that a student must pass tests before he is accepted.

Semesters are similar to those in America with the first semester running from October through January and the second semester running from February through June. Wasiluk noted that students spend their holidays at home with their families. He said they also enjoy traveling to "different countries, the lakes or to the sea."

Wasiluk has traveled extensively, beginning a couple of years ago when he spent two months in London, where he met Mona and Lloyd A. Lewis of Midland.

He and the Lewises kept in touch by mail and it was they who suggested he should continue his education in America.

"London is a very big city," Wasiluk said. "There are plenty of museums, plenty of very nice places — the discos, for example.

"I like discos," he added with a laugh.

He compared London to other places he has visited in the United States, such as Chicago, New York and San Francisco.

He said the big cities are alike. "There are many different people. They just don't care as much."

But Midland is different.

"I was just surprised," he said. "People are more friendly here. They are very nice to me. I can go to school and somebody will say, 'Hello.' I don't know them, they just say 'hello' to me — it's just very kind of them, you know?"

Wasiluk is studying geology at Midland College. He is also taking English, two math courses and a physical education course.

"I still have problems with my English," he admitted. "I have to spend much time with my dictionary to translate."

His parents and his 29-year-old brother and his family still live in Bialystok. "Families (in Poland) are more close, I think, together, a little (than in America)," he said.

"Maybe too much sometimes."

Wasiluk's brother never attended college and the Midland College student is the only one in his family that has traveled on his own.

He said he wants to stay here in Texas and finish his education, either at Texas Tech or Texas A&M.

He likes America and doesn't stereotype Americans as selfish or inappreciative. He said children raised here simply think that their life is normal.

"When you see this kind of stuff all your life, so you think it's just the way it should be," he explained. "Like when you go to Mexico, for example. It's a different country so then you can compare it (to America) and then you can be happier to stay here."

The chance to compare his life with those of people in other countries is what traveling is all about to Wasiluk.

"I always enjoy learning something more about people, about countries. This is a good thing — to travel, to know people.

"It opens your mind."

Slawomir Wasiluk, 20, a student at Midland College, points out his hometown of Bialystok, Poland. He is staying in the home of Mona and Lloyd A. Lewis, whom he met in London two years ago and encouraged him to continue his studies in Midland.

Planeload of aliens intercepted at airport

Police at Midland Air Terminal intercepted a chartered plane carrying seven illegal aliens about 7 p.m. Saturday.

The pilot of the light aircraft was allowed to take off after questioning and apparently was unaware of the status of his passengers.

The aliens were being held at the airport for the arrival of Border Patrol officers from Big Spring. No further details were available by press time.

Answer Line

By Franchelle Moore

682-5311
P.O. Box 1650,
Midland 79702

I have been a resident of Midland for many years and love it and would not want to live any place else. However, after watching the Jerry Lewis MD Telethon on KMID-TV Monday, September 7, 1981, I was somewhat disappointed in my hometown.

Why was Midland not represented — as Odessa was with Mayor Bob Bryant and Chamber of Commerce President Don Williams, since I believe KMID is a Midland-Odessa television station?

If our Mayor Thane Akins and Chamber of Commerce President Bill Ortloff were unable to be present, why weren't suitable substitutes provided to represent our fine city? — Mr. N.R.

ANSWER: Mayor Thane Akins was invited to participate on the program, but because of plans already made by his family for a trip out of the city, he responded to the television station that he would be unable to attend. Midland's Mayor Pro Tem Tom Sloan said he did not receive an invitation to attend, "but if I had I would have been glad to participate."

Bill Ortloff says, that to the best of his knowledge, he did not receive an invitation to represent the Chamber of Commerce.

I have three questions for Answer Line, and hope you can help me. We have some hogs and are planning to make sausage in the near future.

First, I would like to know if I can purchase sausage casings made from hog intestines in Midland?

Second, I would like to know if there is anyone who can give me the ingredients and their amounts for old-time pork sugar curing?

Finally, I would like to know where I can buy a large meat grinder, not the commercial size? — Mrs. Carlton A. Crawford.

ANSWER: In answer to your first question, you can purchase casings made from hog intestines at Clark Wholesale Meats, 2001 E. Highway 80.

With regard to your second question, it was suggested by a spokesman at Clarks that you contact Williams Feed and Supply, 694-1637, about their prepared Martin's Sugar Cure, which is available in regular and flavored varieties. Complete instructions are provided.

As for the grinder, a salesman with Hill & Hill Restaurant Supply of Midland will be in touch with you as to the possibilities of obtaining one.

However, if you are unable to obtain a grinder, Hutch's Meat Processing and Smoke House, Rankin Highway, will be able to do the grinding job for you.

Meat ground by Hutch's is state inspected. If your pork is not state inspected, the grinding has to be done at the end of the day, after all inspected meats have been processed.

I live in Elmgrove Mobile Home Park on Fairground Road and the majority of the residents at the park want cable television service.

I have presented a petition to Tall City TV Cable requesting immediate service installation and was told that it would be 40 days or longer before this could be done.

When we moved into the park in July, we were told that we would have cable within a month. — Jimmy Stanley

ANSWER: A spokesman at Tall City TV Cable reports the company is rebuilding its system and is "shutting down" current cable installations until the new design can be completed. Installations made before completion of the new plan possibly would have to be redone. The company wishes to serve everyone, and will be doing so as soon as possible.

Competency hearing to begin for aging Mertzon rancher

SAN ANGELO — The competency hearing on aging Mertzon rancher Mortimer "Bubba" Hall gets under way here at 9 a.m. Monday.

Hall is charged with the March 22 shooting deaths of Midlander John Bernardon, 34, and 32-year-old David Adams of Grape Creek. Their bodies were found on Spring Creek about eight miles west of Mertzon. The creek winds through Hall's property at that point.

The men had been fishing and Bernardon's body was discovered sprawled in a boat, while Adams' body was found in about five feet of water. Hall, 80, and reportedly a wealthy man, was held in the Irion County jail that night. But authorities said at the time it was for protective custody.

He was arrested and formally charged about two weeks later. However, he was hospitalized instead of jailed because of his age and a reported alcohol problem. He's currently a patient at San Angelo's Baptist Memorials Geriatric Center.

During legal proceedings in Mertzon Sept. 8, Hall was wheeled into court on a stretcher. The proceedings resulted in the competency hearing being moved to San Angelo on a change of venue motion because of publicity generated by the case.

The San Angelo Standard-Times reported last spring that several formal complaints had been lodged against Hall over the years because of his alleged mistreatment of people who ventured near his property.

Although he was fined in connection with at least one of those complaints, others were not pursued by enforcement authorities, according to the paper.

Civil suits have been filed against Hall by the men's widows. The civil case will not come to court until the criminal proceedings are ended.

History of quilts hangs in museum

A major quilting exhibition, "History of American Quilts," is hanging at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missour Ave., through Nov. 29. All of the quilts are handmade and represent months and years of work.

Sundays, through Nov. 29, provide museum goers with the opportunity to view a quilting demonstration and have a guided tour of the show. The demonstrations are being held from 2 to 4 p.m. with the guided tours beginning at 3 p.m.

The demonstrations are being given by members of the Midland Quilt Guild.

In addition, the film "Quilts in Women's Lives," winner of several film festival awards, will be shown Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Gallery 5. The film presents a series of portraits of traditional quiltmakers and provides insight into the spirit of those women who form the basis for the continuing tradition of quilting. The women in the film describe their inspirations for their work and how it has become a part of their daily lives.

There is no charge for any of these activities. The museum is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 2 to 5 p.m.

This show is funded through the Junior League of Midland.

This quilt is among those hanging at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., during the "History of American Quilts" exhibit, which will remain on display through Nov. 29. The display is being supplemented by quilting demonstrations given by the Midland Quilting Guild each Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. A guided tour of the exhibit will also be given Sundays at 3 p.m. Both are free and open to the public.

Beatles record may be released next year

LONDON (AP) — After some 20 years under lock and key, the only complete Beatles recording never put on sale may be released sometime next year, the Daily Mirror reported Saturday.

The tabloid newspaper said the song, "Please Leave My Kitten Alone" was recorded in the early 1960s but "rejected when the Beatles put together their album 'Please Please Me.'"

Since then, the paper said, the recording has been locked up at EMI Records in London.

The Mirror said the record company planned to release the song last year, but shelved the idea when former Beatle John Lennon was shot to death in New York City.

No spokesman at EMI was available to comment on the Saturday report. However, the newspaper quoted an unidentified company official as saying, "Obviously we would not have released the record at such a time. It would have been totally inappropriate.

"There is other unfinished recorded material of the Beatles' which has never been released, but 'Kitten' is the only complete track," the official was quoted as saying.

Tony Brainsby, press spokesman for McCartney, said he knew nothing about the song's existence or the possibility of a new Beatles release. Any such plans "would have nothing to do with Paul whatsoever."

Charles Nelson to present recital

ODESSA — Charles Nelson will present a recital of famous bass operatic arias at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Fine Arts Auditorium at Odessa College.

The program, "Twelve Reasons I Don't Sing Opera," will include selections by Mozart, Rossini, Verdi, Beethoven and Handel. The recital is free and open to the public.

Nelson, professor of music at East Texas State University, has performed with Robert Shaw in Bach's "St. John Passion" and with Pablo Casals in a performance of "El Pesebre."

Oz stage production will perform

The touring stage production of "The Magical Land of Oz," based on the stories written by L. Frank Baum, will perform at 7:30 p.m. at Alamo Junior High Oct. 15.

The show is sponsored by the Tall City Business & Professional Women's Club. Tickets, priced at $2 for children and $3 for adults, may be purchased from one of the club's members or by calling Andrea Yarbrough at 684-3818 or 563-1702.

Proceeds from the evening's entertainment will go to finance various state and community projects, such as the M.D. Anderson Cancer Research Institute Fund, the Midland Rape Center and the Midland Center for Battered Women and their Children, sponsored, in part, by the Texas Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs.

Opree performers to appear on show

ODESSA — The Odessa Brand New Opree's most popular performers will appear on the Opree's Entertainer of the Year Award's Show slated for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Performers appearing on this show were selected by audience members during a series of contests held at the Globe in recent weeks.

Taking honors as the year's top instrumentalist was Midlander Gary Boren; selected as the top Opree band was Odessa's West Texas Edition; chosen as the top male and female vocalists respectively were Lynn Palmer of Grand Falls and Tami Jo Whitmire Casparis of Odessa.

In the youth category, Michelle Mason of Lubbock was picked as top young female vocalist; Lee Bingham of Odessa as the top young male vocalist; Jeannie Copeland of Odessa for best individual gospel; and Roman Road Trio of Midland as best gospel group.

Admission Saturday will be $3 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens and $1 for children under 12. Tickets may be purchased at the Globe Theatre office during the week, or beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Tryouts to be held

The Country Squire Dinner Theatre, east of Odessa on Highway 80, is holding tryouts at 1 p.m. Saturday for its upcoming production of "South Pacific."

Parts are available for children, men and women. For more information call the theater at 563-4111.

Wells to teach class in magic

ODESSA — Midlander Scott Wells will teach a course in magic under the sponsorship of Odessa College's adult and continuing education department beginning Wednesday and continuing through Oct. 28.

The class, which will meet Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 107 of the Composite Technology Building, will include mind reading, hypnosis preparation and escapes from handcuffs, chains, ropes, straight jackets and boxes.

The fee for the course is $15.

Fred Willard returns to NBC's 'Real People'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Willard is returning to NBC's "Real People," thanks to what he describes as a bit of arm-twisting.

Willard was one of the original hosts when the program made its debut April 16, 1979, but he left after the first six shows. That was when "Real People" moved into the Wednesday timeslot, opened when "Supertrain" was sidetracked to Saturday and was soon derailed. "Real People" will premiere for the new season the night of Sept. 30.

"I was only supposed to be on the first show," he explained. "I didn't want to do that kind of thing. I felt like a news anchorman. Then it became two shows, then three, and so on."

WHY DID HE return? He lays the credit on the doorstep of executive producer George Schlatter, who was also the man behind "Laugh-In."

"George Schlatter pursued me," Willard said, looking as glum as Jerry Hubbard, his alter ego from "Fernwood 2Night" and "America 2Night." "He'll call you at home on Saturday morning. He's very persuasive. But I wanted to be an actor. I guess my next offer will be from 'The Eyewitness News.'

"Why did I come back?" Willard asked with a sigh. "George's persuasive powers. His constant punishment and my desire to sleep on Saturday morning. Plus the fact that I'm only in a certain number of shows and he's allowing me to choose my own stories."

Willard may be exaggerating a bit, but Schlatter, a jolly, bearded bear of a man, is renowned for his persuasiveness.

He said he first caught Schlatter's interest while playing Hubbard on "Fernwood 2Night," that send-up of talk shows. "He said when I talked to crazies, the more straight I became," Willard recounted.

"I did lean toward that. But some stories are not so bizarre. In fact, some are boring. So this year he gave me a list. I could turn down stories I didn't want to do. So they sent me down to interview a man building a space ship in his garage. It'll orbit the earth in one hour and he's going to Venus. Every story is unusual. These are the kind of people I'd love to talk to on my own."

WILLARD, WHOSE segment salutes "people who dare to be different," said he is careful not to make fun of the people he interviews. "I talked to a woman who designs punk fashions," he said. "Her hair was dyed pink like cotton candy, so she knew it was going to look funny.

"So I try not to make fun of them, but in the editing you sometimes lose control. You spend 12 hours a day on a story, then give it to a 22-year-old kid who's editor and he doesn't see what you saw. You can make a story very foolish or very sympathetic in the way you edit it."

Willard probably is best known as Jerry Hubbard, who was Martin Mull's sidekick on "Fernwood 2Night." He was a man who brought new meaning to non sequiturs and whose conversations ran in all directions.

BUT HE HAS been in such movies as "First Family," "Americathon" and "How To Beat the High Cost of Living," and the vampirish miniseries "Salem's Lot."

"What I'm doing now," he said, "is trying to get more into night clubs and variety. I host one of the syndicated shows for the Improv and I've got some other things."

Despite that, Willard constantly meets people who tell him they watch him every week on "WKRP in Cincinnati." "I guess I do look a little like Frank Bonner," who plays Herb Tarlek, the sales manager, in the CBS series.

Dean told Lemmon he would never do anything worthwhile

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "God, I'm getting old," gasped a breathless Jack Lemmon, ravishing in a satin gown with waist-length pearl necklace.

Along with six other Harvard University graduates — also in drag — he had just performed a high-kicking Rockettes number for almost a thousand delighted spectators in the Grand Ballroom of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. The occasion: a salute by the Harvard Club of Southern California to the most noted member of the class of 1947.

As tributes go — and they go almost weekly in this praise-hungry community — it was one of the more enjoyable. Not only for the smash finish of the Hasty Pudding alumni, which was choreographed by Marge Champion Sagal. The evening also was a warm recognition of one of Hollywood's most talented and responsible citizens.

"I don't want to be maudlin," said Lemmon co-star Shirley MacLaine, "but Jack is just about the most generous, lovable actor I've ever worked with." She added: "Because of our scene in 'The Apartment,' whenever I go to an Italian restaurant, I always insist that they strain the spaghetti through a tennis racket."

Walter Matthau was the obvious choice to emcee the proceedings, which included salutes from Ronald and Nancy Reagan, Motion Picture Academy president Fay Kanin and Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles. Carol Lawrence performed a song, "There's No Lemmon Like Jack Lemmon," and Christopher Lemmon, a piano player like his father, played a Gershwin medley.

Lemmon's response to the torrent of praise was characteristically self-deprecating. He recalled spending his senior year at Harvard on probation with the result that the dean told him: "Lemmon, you are never going to do anything worthwhile." Even as he was receiving his diploma, Lemmon was told by the dean: "Remember — you are never going to do anything worthwhile."

The actor recalled: "After I had had a string of hits — 'Some Like It Hot,' 'The Apartment,' 'Days of Wine and Roses,' 'Irma La Douce' — I decided in 1960 to return to the theater. I opened in Boston in a play called 'Face of a Hero,' which was so poorly received that one critic called it 'Trace of a Zero.'

"I was totally embarrassed and I delayed leaving the Colonial Theater until I was pretty sure there would be nobody around. I walked out the stage door and there was the dean with his wife and children. He looked at me and said, 'I told you so!'"

The tribute, which raised funds for scholarships to Harvard and Radcliffe College, featured clips from the Lemmon films, including the upcoming "Buddy, Buddy" with pal Matthau. The printed program included a page from the Class of 1947 directory with the grad's autobiography:

"After receiving my degree (by the skin of my teeth), I left fair Harvard and, moving with the lithe grace of a jungle cat, I invaded the confines of New York City bent on saving the American theater. For some strange reason they didn't let me, and I promptly starved for two years. From that point on, nobody ever had it so good.

"From 1949 to 1953 I acted in radio soap operas, summer and winter stock and in an excess of 400 television shows. In 1953 I migrated to Hollywood, California, and up to the present time I have acted in some 30 films, coproducing many of them.

"God and the public willing, I shall keep flailing away in the same pursuits."

Simon and Garfunkel to put on New York concert together

By TOM KELLY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Simon and Garfunkel, whose soft ballads and biting protest songs became anthems of the 1960s, were to take the stage in Central Park on Saturday for their first formal concert in nine years.

Tens of thousands of people — many of whom were in grade school when the duo was singing about Mrs. Robinson — began gathering hours before the sunset concert, some camping out overnight to get a good spot.

They sprawled over blankets on the 18-acre Great Lawn, covering five baseball fields and facing a stage framed by the lights of Manhattan.

Up to half a million people were expected.

A record crowd estimated at 400,000 people jammed the field last summer to hear rock singer Elton John, and James Taylor performed for 250,000 in 1979.

The concert on the Great Lawn was free. Proceeds from the sale of souvenirs, T-shirts, buttons and other mementos were to go to the city Parks Department to help care for the Great Lawn and fund a parks horticulture intern program.

Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel both live in New York, but the Parks Department originally asked Simon to solo.

"But I thought I'd like to do a set with Artie and we kept adding more songs until we just said, 'Well, let's do the whole concert together,'" Simon said. "It was never meant to be a reuniting of the group. We're just doing it and see what happens."

The duo last formally performed in 1972 to raise funds for Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign. Since then, they occasionally have teamed on an informal basis on recordings and on stage.

Simon and Garfunkel began singing together in junior high school in the late 1950s as Tom and Jerry. They had some minor hits, but it was only after abandoning rock'n'roll that the string of hits began, starting with "Sounds of Silence."

Their hits include "Homeward Bound," "America," "Scarborough Fair," "Dangling Conversation," and the theme music for "The Graduate," a movie that came to symbolize the youthful disenchantment of the 1960s.

Simon wrote the songs; Garfunkel, who later went into movies and appeared in "Carnal Knowledge" and "Catch-22," provided the distinctive harmonies. Their last joint recording effort was the album "Bridge Over Trouble Waters," which has sold more than 10 million copies. In addition to the title song, the record contains such Simon and Garfunkel standards as "The Boxer."

farm-ranch roundup

Harvest may end peanut shortage

AUSTIN — The crimp in peanut butter supplies brought on by last summer's drought should be alleviated once this year's crop is harvested, says to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Texas peanut farmers in 1981 may reap a 456-million-pound harvest, which would be a 55 percent increase over last year's short crop. Yields are projected at 1,600 pounds per acre, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Total United States production is expected to be 52.8 million pounds heavier than last year's crop of 3.8 billion pounds.

Crops others than peanuts have rebounded since the '80 drought.

Approaching a bumper crop, too, is cotton. Yield is estimated at 5.9 million bales, which would be 78 percent more than last year's "disastrous" crop, the commissioner said.

Sorghum production is expected to be a third larger than the 1980 yield. Harvested yield may be 3,136 pounds per acre.

Agricultural lending becoming tight

COLLEGE STATION — Agricultural lenders in wheat-production areas are taking a closer look at loan applications and particularly at the borrower's repayment ability, according to Ben A. Jordon Jr., regional director of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp.

Wheat growers who carry insurance at least equal to their debt obligations are in the strongest position to obtain the credit they need, he said.

Jordon named the "generally tight credit situation" as one reason why "loans are receiving closer scrutiny this year.

"Another is the combination of increased production costs and higher interest rates."

Drought-resistant cotton to be shown

LUBBOCK — A cotton variety that licked the 1980 drought and ranked No. 1 in yield will be among those shown by Delta & Pine Land Co. at its annual field day near here Tuesday.

Some 3,000 cotton growers, ginners, researchers and other cotton industry leaders have been invited to the field day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the D&PL Research Farm one mile east and one mile south of Idalou and just off FM 400.

Marks said the company is "especially proud" of Deltapine SR-5, which proved tough enough to yield No. 1 out of 50 competing varieties in the regional Texas A&M University dryland cotton performance test at Lamesa in 1980.

Money, not water, major concern

LUBBOCK — Money has replaced weather as the major concern of cattlemen, according to Jim Riley, National Cattlemen's Association economist.

"The cattlemen's concern, maybe even awareness, of monetary policy is very recent," Riley said Friday at the Livestock and Money Symposium at Texas Tech University's Ranching Heritage Center.

The federal monetary policy became ranchers' urgent concern in the late 1970s even as they had more than a passing interest in legislation on health, nutrition, conservation, environment, soybeans and grain embargoes, changes in beef grading and in farm programs.

Rich roping round-up slated

HOUSTON — The Houston-Harrison County Fair Association will sponsor one of the world's richest calf roping, team roping and barrel race jackpots Oct. 16-18 when it presents the Roy Cooper World Classic Roping Round-up at the Pasadena Fairgrounds.

Cooper, twice the World Champion Calf Roper, is currently in first place in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) All-Around standings and is first in calf-roping standing. He is $21,000 ahead of his nearest competitor.

Cooper is a native of Monument, N.M., about 15 miles southwest of Hobbs, N.M.

Entry to the roping fee is $500 per team. Ropers age 40 and older will be allowed to tie on, heels only. All others must dally.

Mosquitoes affecting Texas horses

AUSTIN — A larger-than-usual mosquito population, spawned by heavy summer rains, has caused an outbreak of equine encephalomyelitis (EE), according to Dr. Charles Graham, chairman of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association.

Horse symposium to be held soon

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

The West Texas Horse Symposium, scheduled Oct. 3 at the Ector County Coliseum Complex in Odessa, should be of interest to many horse owners in the area.

The educational program is planned by area horse producers in cooperation with Texas Agricultural Extension Service personnel. The event is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service as a service to the horse industry of West Texas. The speakers are professionals and among the tops in their respective fields.

The program starts at 8 a.m. registration. A fee of $8 is payable at the door.

The morning topics and speakers are: "Producer and Consumer Trends in Marketing Horses," Mike Hughes, Mike Hughes Quarter Horses, Sanger, Texas; "Horse Nutrition," Doug Householder, horse specialist, Texas A&M University; and "West Texas Horse Health," Don McDonald, veterinarian, Sterling City, Texas.

Concurrent sessions will be held in the afternoon as follows: 1:30 to 2:15: Reproductive Anatomy and Factors Affecting the Cycle of Broodmares, Jim Bowen, Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine; 2:15 to 3 p.m.: Condition Scores and Reproductive Performance in Broodmares, Jack Kreider, Department of Animal Science, Texas A&M University; 3:20 to 4:15 p.m.: Operation of the Horse Breeding Farm, Leonard Black, Buenos Suerte Ranch, Roswell, N.M.

At 1:30 p.m. in the outside riding area behind Barn A, Suzanne Jones, Tatum, N.M., will begin a session on training the horse. This will include discussion and demonstrations in bits, training and riding techniques.

Everyone with an interest in horses is invited to attend and learn from professionals in the subject areas on the program.

NOW IS THE TIME to plant winter annual forage crops for cover and possible grazing for the West Texas area. Small grains are probably the best choice of the cool season annuals to plant and include oats, wheat, barley and rye. These four are about equal in forage quality when immature and give similar animal performance in grazing. There are differences in palatability in the following order (from the most to the least palatable): Oats, wheat, barley and rye. These differences present no problem unless livestock are given a choice of small grains within the same pasture. For this reason, these grains should not be mixed in a planting.

Oats are widely used for forage production. Many oat varieties produce fast, early growth but are not as winter hardy as other grains. There are some new varieties with improved winter tolerance. For the best results with oats for winter grazing, plant early, allow them to reach at least 8 inches in height before turning in livestock, and rotate grazing when 75 percent of the plants have been eaten to allow recovery. Continuous, close grazing weakens the root system and greatly reduces forage yield on any type of small grain.

Oat varieties recommended for this area include: Cimarron, Bronco, Checota, Norwin and Nora.

Wheat is more drought tolerant and winter hardy than oats and generally matures earlier. Barley varieties are the most salt tolerant of the small grains. Varieties adapted to our area are: Era, Rogers, Tambar 401 and Will.

Rye varieties generally have excellent winter hardiness and provide good fall and late winter forage production but mature earlier than other small grains. Elbon and Bonel varieties have generally performed well in West Texas and more recently several synthetic varieties have been released such as Vitagraze, Acco 811, Winter-More, Gro-Green and others which seem to be satisfactory.

Midlanders nominated for FFA honor

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland High School vocational-agriculture instructor Gerald Oakes and one of his former students, David Erwin, have been nominated for the highest honors bestowed by the 482,611-member Future Farmers of America.

Oakes, an MHS voc-ag teacher and FFA adviser for the past 11 years, will receive the Honorary American Farmer Degree at the 54th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 12-14.

"This is quite an honor," he allowed.

His former student, who's now studying animal and range science at Texas A&M University, will receive the FFA's American Farmer Degree, which is the highest award presented by the FFA national organization.

"This is the highest (honor) you can earn — not win — in the FFA national organization," Oakes said.

Erwin, 20, is the son of Curtis and Mary Erwin, who ranch in Midland County.

"His dad and I are very proud of him," Mrs. Erwin said of her son. "This is very meaningful. He's a good guy, and he deserves it."

The father, who operates the Figure 4 Ranch, likewise was proud of his son's accomplishments in FFA and complimented Oakes and the voc-ag program.

"It's a good program they have," he said. "I think it's great."

The senior Erwin surmised that Oakes is doing a "real good job" as voc-ag instructor and FFA adviser. "They're going to miss him if and when he retires."

Young Erwin earned the FFA degree on the basis of his leadership, citizenship and livestock projects in registered and commercial Brangus breeding cattle, feeding and showing steers and heifers, and in commercial breeding.

"On David's part, that's a fantastic thing," said Oakes. "That's quite an honor.

"He had a really good (FFA) program," said his ex-mentor, "and he's doing a real good job in college."

Oakes referred to what he termed "a fine program" in vocational-agriculture at Midland High School.

"I realize all those other (academic courses) are necessary," he said, "and we think they all complement our program."

Oakes, who has been teaching vocational-agriculture for 29 years, taught at Garden City and Coahoma before moving to Midland. He received a bachelor's degree in 1950 from the University of Arkansas and earned the master's degree in 1959 from East Texas State University at Commerce.

"We try to give them (the students) the basic knowledge of agriculture," he said of the voc-ag program.

In his 11 years in voc-ag at Midland, Oakes has had seven students who have earned the American Farmer Degree and 39 who have received the Texas FFA counterpart, the Lone Star Farmer Degree.

He is one of 10 voc-ag teachers in Texas who will receive the Honorary American Farmer Degree this year and is among 50 of the nation's 12,000 voc-ag teachers who will receive the honor.

The American Farmer Degree, such as will be bestowed on Erwin, annually goes to about one in 600 FFA members and is awarded to former FFA'ers "who have demonstrated exceptional agricultural and leadership achievements," noted the FFA. Candidates for the honor are eligible a year after completion of their high school FFA-voc-ag program. The American Farmer Degree has been presented at Kansas City since the late 1920s when FFA was organized.

The FFA national convention, which is conducted by FFA students, ages 14 to 21, is expected to attract more than 20,000 FFA members and their parents, voc-ag teachers and guests.

Billy Cannon of Texas A&M brushes off Bob Vissers of Boston College for a good gain Saturday, but the Aggies were upset by the Boston team in a shocker.

Tech forgets woes in Boulder

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — After what happened last week at Boulder, a New Mexico was just what Texas Tech needed.

The Raiders took a 22-2-2 series edge into Saturday night's Jones Stadium debut of new coach Jerry Moore and added another win, 28-21. But it wasn't until Robin Gabriel's fourth down pass was tipped away with 1:01 left in the game that the Red Raiders could heave a final sigh of relief.

Tech held a 21-0 lead in the third quarter, well on the way to a routine win. Then, Julius Johnson, a defensive back from Plano, Texas, intercepted a Ron Reeves pass and in three plays the Lobos ate up 57 yards, the score coming on Gabriel's 36-yard pass to flanker Jerry Apodaca on the final play of the third quarter.

JOHNSON THEN recovered Renie Baker's fumble on the ensuing kickoff at the Tech 17 and Gabriel fired a four-yard scoring pass to tight end Mark Biren and it was suddenly 21-14 with 12:54 left.

Reeves, who missed practice this week because of assorted bumps and bruises, responded to the challenge, taking Tech 80 yards in six plays. The big gainer was a 49-yard pass to wing back Bryan Williamson to the UNM 12. Two plays, he sent his backs right, wheeled and found tight end Buzz Tatom all alone in the left corner of the end zone.

UNM kept the pressure on by driving 80 yards in eight plays to score on a one-yard keep by Gabriel with 1:41 left in the game to make it 28-21, but it was a last gasp.

"IF ANYONE saw us at Boulder," Moore said of last week's 45-27 loss to Colorado, "they know we played with a lot more intensity. The big thing tonight was not getting behind."

He wasn't completely pleased. "We let a couple of opportunites get away and that fumble on the kickoff was inexcusable."

Anthony Hutchinson proved an eyefull for the 42,321 fans, gaining 178 yards in 27 carries and scoring on touchdown runs of 19 and 23 yards. "Anthony is beginning to run with authority and do the things I like to see an I-Back do," Moore said.

Reeves also had a big night with 15 for 25 good for 214 yards. But it was the Tech defense that created the turnovers that turned on the Tech offense for its first three touchdowns.

A FUMBLE recovery by free safety Chuck Alexander led to a 63-yard TD drive on which Hutchinson took a pitch around left end for the final 19 yards.

In the second period, defensive end C.M. Pier tipped a punt and Tech drove 33 yards with Reeves keeping for the final two yards after the short 15-yard kick.

In the third period it was a Greg Israel interception and 10-yard return that put in motion a two-play 33-yard drive after New Mexico had thwarted Tech moments earlier with an end zone interception of Reeves.

Given a reprieve, Reeves called on Hutchinson for five and 23 yards for the score with 6:43 left in the third period.

Until then, Gabriel, who completed 23 of 42 for 341 yards before it was over, had been rendendered relatively harmless. Is best sequence had come early in the third period when he hit successive for 33 and 24 yards. Only trouble was he had to start from his one half yard line after Maury Bufford had punted a 37-yarder out of bounds in the coffin corner. The drive stalled but then Johnson with his two timely turnovers to make it a game.

'Horns spread 'Jam' thick

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Walker and A.J. "Jam" Jones combined for three touchdowns rushing, and huge tackle Kenneth Sims led a defensive charge that kept North Texas State quarterback Shaw Thompson on the run as Texas took a 23-10 victory Saturday night.

Walker, a sophomore tailback starting in place of Jones, who has been hurt, sprinted 26 yards for Texas' first touchdown. Jones added two more scores on one-yard runs as the sixth-ranked Longhorns grabbed a 23-0 halftime lead.

North Texas got a 42-yard field goal by Lonnie Green in the third quarter after Texas reserve quarterback Robert Brewer bobbled a snap at the Longhorn 37. It's only touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a three-yard pass from Thompson to Pete Harvey after Jitter Fields misplayed a punt at the Texas four-yard line.

Sims, 6-foot-6 and 265-pounds, plugged the middle against North Texas runs, sacked Thompson four times and joined other defenders in pressuring the freshman, who was flagged twice in the first half for throwing the ball away. Those infractions cost North Texas 36 yards in penalties.

Texas' offense sputtered after the first half and the Longhorns missed their only chance to score in the second half when Ronnie Mullins dropped a long-pass from Rick McIvor in the clear at the North Texas 25-yard line. North Texas lost its third game in a row.

Texas drove 80 yards with the opening kickoff for its first score, which came as Walker dashed down the left sideline and carried Andre Mosley the final three yards into the end zone.

Jones, a senior making his first appearance this season, set up his first touchdown with a 27-yard run to the North Texas two-yard line. Later he capped a 34-yard drive, which featured a third-down 26-yard pass from McIvor to Mullins, by jumping one yard over the left side.

Boston College shocks Aggies

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Leo Smith scampered 5 yards for the winning touchdown two plays after a Texas A&M fumble in the fourth quarter to give Boston College a 13-12 upset victory in its season opener Saturday night.

The Aggies were leading 12-7 and had the ball at their own 8 yard line when defensive tackle Joe Ferraro forced a fumble by Johnny Hector that was recovered by linebacker Jim Budness.

The Eagles lost 2 yards on the next play when the snap was fumbled but moved to the 5 on an offside penalty against the Aggies. Smith then bolted through right tackle for the decisive score with 11:30 left in the game. The pass for the conversion failed.

Texas A&M, 1-1, had an excellent opportunity to pull the game out in the final minutes. The Aggies took the ball over at the Boston College 17 after a low snap prevented punter John Cooper from kicking the ball.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 10, but a 27-yard field goal attempt by David Hardy with 1:09 remaining failed when Kyle Stuard couldn't handle Jim DeSilva's high snap.

Texas A&M took a 7-0 lead on Hector's 7-yard run 4:17 into the game, but the Eagles tied the score when Doug Guyer fired a 26-yard touchdown pass to Brian Brennan late in the first quarter.

Baylor escapes Bulldogs

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Heavy duty halfback Walter Abercrombie bullied his way for two touchdowns and quarterback Jay Jeffrey threw 67 yards for another as Baylor overcame unheralded but determined Lousiana Tech, 28-21, in a nonconference football game Saturday.

In the first gridiron clash ever between the two school, Baylor — the defending Southwest Conference champions — didn't take the lead until early in the second half, after the Southland Conference Bulldogs dazzled the Baylor defense with a series of sideline and screen passes.

Tech quarterback Matt Dunigan repeatedly embarassed the Baylor secondary with a passing barrage that produced a series of crucial first downs and two touchdowns.

Trailing 13-7 at the half, Baylor regrouped quickly. Jeffrey set up the go-ahead score with a 44-yard pass to Jerald McNeil. Five plays later Abercrombie scored from seven yards out.

Abercrombie later scored from three yards out with 11:22 left in the game and backfield running mate Dennis Gentry plowed in from the 2-yard line five minutes and 13 seconds later to give Baylor a 28-13 edge.

But Tech's Dunigan connected with Leland Padgett on an 11-yard touchdown pass with 3:20 left and the Bulldogs succeeded on a two-point conversin to pull within seven.

A last-ditch Tech drive died on downs at the Baylor 9-yard line with 59 seconds left.

Bulldog strong safety Andre Young ignited Baylor's first half woes when he picked off a Jeffrey pass at the Bear 40 and returned it 24 yards. Five plays later, Billy Cox connected on the first of two successful field goal attempts, a 37-yarder.

Dunigan virtually dismantled the Baylor secondary on the Bulldogs' next possession.

He threw for five first downs during an 80-yard march that culminated in a 7-yard scoring pass to running back Ronnie Williams.

With 8:30 remaining in the first half, Jeffrey put Baylor back in business with a 67-yard touchdown bomb to wingback Bruce Davis.

On the ensuing Tech possession, Dunigan hit six passes and set up Cox' second field goal, a 24-yard kick that gave Tech a 13-7 lead.

SMU whips Grambling

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Junior tailback Eric Dickerson rushed for 142 yards, including touchdown runs of seven, 62, one, and nine yards, to lead a crushing Southern Methodist University attack that demolished Grambling State, 59-27, in a college football game Saturday night.

SMU running back Craig James added two touchdowns and 102 yards rushing, and wide receiver Bobby Leach added touchdown runs of 39 and 13 yards for the Mustangs.

More than 45,000 people watched the first meeting ever between the Division I Mustangs, 3-0, and the Division I-AA Grambling Tigers, who fell to 2-1.

Tiger quarterback Thomas Ezell threw for 320 yards and three touchdowns, including scoring passes of 20 and seven yards to Grambling receiver Jerry Gordon. Ezell also accounted for Grambling's only running touchdown when he plunged over from one yard out on a quarterback sneak.

However, Ezell also threw four interceptions.

Officials said the 59 points were the most ever scored against Grambling in what they called "modern history."

It was the fifth time that Dickerson and James had both rushed for more than 100 yards in a single game.

The Mustangs led 37-7 at halftime. SMU scored on the opening possession of the game, a 61-yard drive capped by Dickerson's 7-yard scoring run.

Rebel girls win tourney

DENVER CITY - The Midland Lee Rebels scored four victories en route to winning the Denver City Volleyball tournament here this weekend.

In the first round, Lee posted a 10-8, 9-11, 13-11 victory over Seminole and followed up with wins over Lamesa, 15-10, 4-15, 15-6; Monahans, 7-15, 15-5, 15-10; and then beat Snyder in the championship game, 15-6, 10-15, 15-7.

The Rebels won the tournament the hard way. They had to go three sets in all four matches, but took the title anyway.

Florida holds off Houston

MIAMI (AP) — Danny Miller kicked three first-half field goals and added another late in the third quarter Saturday night as 16th-ranked Miami of Florida held off Houston 12-7 in an intersectional college football games.

Miller, who booted a 55-yard last-minute field goal to beat Florida 21-20 in the season opener, split the uprights from 44 yards awway with 5:58 remaining in the first quarter and then added three-pointers of 50 and 34 yards in the second quarter for a 9-0 halftime lead.

The 5-foot-10, 172-pound senior from Clewiston, Fla., added a 37-yarder in the third period to break a school record for career points. The kick gave him 186 points, one more than former Hurricane star Harry Gahul.

The Hurricanes, 2-0 and winners of seven straight games, drove 29 yards after a Houston punt to set up Miller's first field goal and used David Jefferson's fumble recovery to set up his 50-yarder with 12:29 left in the half.

Miller's third field goal came after Houston failed to capitalize on its first break of the game, Eugene Lockhart's fumble recovery at the 25-yard line as Miami's Fred Marion tried to field a punt.

Two Houston running plays netted 7 yards, but Miami defensive tackle Bob Miller sacked Cougars quarterback Audrey McMillian for a 13-yard loss on third down.

Michigan thumps No. 1 rated Irish

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — All-American wide receiver Anthony Carter caught touchdown passes of 71 and 15 yards from Steve Smith and Michigan, knocked from its No. 1 ranking by Wisconsin a week ago, rebounded Saturday to smash top-rated Notre Dame 25-7.

The acrobatic Carter, a 5-foot-11, 161-pound junior from Riviera Beach, Fla., boosted his touchdown total to 25 in only 26 varsity games, while stretching his Michigan career record to 24 scoring receptions. The 71-yard play on third-and-19 early in the second period was the fourth longest pass play in Michigan history.

The setback was the first for Notre Dame in two games under Coach Gerry Faust and only a late touchdown kept it from being the worst licking for the Irish since a 55-24 rout by Southern California in the 1974 regular-season finale. Faust had won his last 33 games at Moeller High School in Cincinnati before getting the Notre Dame job.

The 11th-ranked Wolverines, 1-1, broke open the contest between two of college football's winningest schools in the third quarter, raising their halftime lead from 7-0 to 19-0 on the second Smith-to-Carter pass and a 1-yard scoring plunge by Lawrence Ricks.

Smith added a 6-yard touchdown run early in the final period, while a swarming Michigan defense kept the Irish bottled up inside their 32-yard line for all but one possession in the first three quarters. Notre Dame averted a shutout on an 8-yard pass from Tim Koegel to Dean Masztak with 7:42 remaining.

Both teams wasted early scoring chances. Michigan's Ali Haji-Sheikh missed a 31-yard field goal try and Notre Dame faked a 25-yard field goal only to be stopped at the Michigan 4 following a completed pass. Then, the Wolverines struck suddenly at 2:52 of the second period.

Before a crowd of 105,888, third largest in Michigan Stadium history, plus a national television audience, Smith lofted a long pass to Carter, who got behind defensive backs Rod Bone and Stacey Toran inside the Irish 30 and scored easily. It came one play after Carter lost 12 yards trying to throw a pass off a double reverse.

Carter's second touchdown catch, at 8:38 of the third quarter, capped a 10-play, 52-yard drive after an interception by defensive back Keith Bostic. Carter caught the ball at the 7, put a dazzling fake on cornerback John Krimm and darted in untouched.

Michigan scored again five minutes later. With Smith, a sophomore quarterback, running the option offense to near-perfection, the Wolverines went 58 yards in nine plays. The drive included 10-yard runs by Smith and Ricks, an 11-yard dash by Butch Woolfolk, who rushed for 139 yards on 23 carries, and a pass interference call against Notre Dame's Dave Duerson, which took the ball from the 15 to the 1.

The score rose to 25-0 when Smith's 6-yard keeper climaxed a 53-yard, six-play drive at 2:25 of the final period.

Missouri Tigers crush Rice, 42-10

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - Quarterback Mike Hyde hit 17 of 21 passes for 225 yards and four touchdowns Saturday as Missouri crushed Rice 42-10 in nonconference college football.

Hyde, a junior making only his second start for the Tigers, tied a school record with the four scoring passes and set a school completion mark of 81 percent.

He threw for three touchdowns in the second quarter and hit Bob Meyer on an 11-yard scoring pass early in the third period before going out of the game.

Missouri, 2-0, scored on its first two possessions to seize a 10-0 lead against the winless Owls, 0-2. The only thing the Tigers did poorly all day was kick extra points. Bob Lucchesi missed two and Allan O'Hearn missed one.

Hyde got the Tigers rolling with a 39-yard pass play to Andy Hill on the first play of the game. Bill White completed the 80-yard, nine-play drive with a four-yard run.

After Lucchesi kicked a 42-yard field goal on Missouri's second possession, the Tigers got their passing game going to quickly put the game out of reach.

Hyde threw touchdown passes of three and seven yards to tight end Andy Gibler in the second period, and Mike Richards took a pass near the line of scrimmage and dashed 30 yards to score.

With the Tigers leading 42-0 in the third period, freshman Ricky Doby fielded an Owl punt on the 3-yard line and stepped into the end zone, where he was tackled for a safety by Eric Sampson and Osby Mitchell. The Owls added a touchdown pass in the final seconds.

A 26-yard pass interference against Missouri with 23 seconds remaining gave Rice a first-and-goal from the one, and Michael Calhoun hit Deron Miller with a 1-yard scoring pass. Miller then caught a Calhoun pass for the 2-point conversion.

Missouri's last touchdown came on a 14-yard yard by Tom Carruthers with 4:36 left in the third period. A few minute earlier, Rice's Brian Mica fumbled a punt and Reco Hawkins recovered for the Tigers on the Owl eleven.

Meyer took a pass in the flat on the first play and squirted into the corner of the end zone between tacklers.

Hyde's four scoring passes tied the Missouri record set by Terry McMillan against Kansas in 1969. His 81 percent completition mark beat the Tiger record of 78 percent set in 1979 by three-time all-conferencequarterback Phil Bradley against Oklahoma State.

"Phil's a legend here," said Hyde. "I'm trying not to let it get to me. I'm trying not to think about it. Everything seemed to be there today. I did my job and the team did its job."

Clemson nips No. 4 'Dogs

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Georgia head football Coach Vince Dooley said his 4th-ranked Bulldogs, who were upset by Clemson 13-3 Saturday, "were basically an unsound team."

That may have been an understatement since Georgia gave up five interceptions and four fumbles.

"Anytime you turn the ball over nine times, you are not a sound offensive football team. But you have to give Clemson credit because they had nine takeovers," said Dooley.

"The game was won by the Clemson defense," he added. "They were aggressive, harrassed us, intimidated us and they deserved to win the football game."

Dooley said he thought the Bulldogs were prepared but, "as it turned out, we were not poised. We seemed like a rattled football team offensively."

Coach Danny Ford told his players after the game, "You did a super, super job. It hasn't sunk in yet."

Ford said the only time Clemson seemed to lose its momentum was in the third period, when the Tigers were held scoreless and Georgia narrowed the score to 10-3 on a 40-yard field goal.

Clemson utilized a ball control strategy that worked to perfection, intercepting five passes froom Georgia's Buck Belue to dominate the game.

Nebraska returns to form

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Roger Craig rushed for 234 yards, including a 94-yard touchdown scamper, as 17th-ranked Nebraska beat 19th-ranked Florida State 34-14 in a nonconference college football game Saturday.

The touchdown run tied the Nebraska record set in 1979 by Craig Johnson against Kansas. Craig's rushing total was the third best in Nebraska history.

As in last year's 18-14 loss to Florida State's Seminoles, Nebraska grabbed the lead with two first-quarter scores. Quarterback Nate Mason went in from eight yards out just five minutes into the game.

Craig, whose 37-yard run set up the Mason TD, broke away for a 22-yard gain, setting up a 24-yard field goal by Kevin Seibel three minutes later.

Florida State took advantage of a fumble recovery by James Harris at the Nebraska 23 and a pass interference call in the Husker end zone to pull to within 10-7. Ricky Williams scored from the one with 2:58 remaining in the half.

Nebraska's Irving Fryar then scored on an 82-yard punt return and on the ensuing kickoff, Tony Felici caught a Seminole fumble in midair and scored from the 13, giving Nebraska a 24-7 lead. The TD's came within six seconds of each other.

Eddie Neil kicked a 21-yard field goal and Craig's 94-yard TD concluded Husker scoring.

Buckeyes survive Spartans, 27-13

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eighth-ranked Ohio State survived Michigan State's second-half rally that included a Big Ten Conference record 63-yard field goal by Morton Andersen to defeat the Spartans 27-13 in college football Saturday.

However, the Buckeyes, 2-0, played the entire fourth quarter without star quarterback Art Schlichter, who suffered a moderate ankle sprain with 21 seconds left in the third quarter.

The Buckeyes led 20-7 before Bob Atha took over for Schlichter and set the stage for Andersen's kicking performance.

The left-footed kicking specialist from Denmark also kicked a 44-yard field goal to bring the 19-point underdogs to within 20-13 midway through the fourth quarter. Andersen's 63-yard effort wiped out the conference field goal record of 59 yards, set in 1975 against Illinois by Ohio State's Tom Skladany.

Michigan State, 0-2, had an opportunity to score a possible tying touchdown later in the quarter, but quarterback John Leister threw three straight incompletions. Atha wrapped up the victory for Ohio State by running 22 yards for a touchdown with one minute left.

Georgia Tech's charm shaken by Florida, 27-6

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's Bob Hewko, in his first start of the season, ran for one touchdown and passed to Tyrone Young for two more Saturday as the Gators crushed Georgia Tech 27-6 in nonconference college football action.

Hewko passed for 62 yards during the Gators first possession and capped the drive by leaping over a pile of linemen from one yard out for a 7-0 lead.

The Yellow Jackets, coming off a 24-21 upset of Alabama, also scored on their first possession. Quarterback Mike Kelley hit Denny Rochester from four yards out, but Florida's Bee Lang blocked the point-after kick preserving the Gators 7-6 lead.

Georgia Tech's only other scoring threat came in the fourth quarter when a march reached the Florida 6-yard line. But the Yellow Jackets could move no further and relinquished possession.

Hewko, a junior who shares the quarterback duties with Wayne Peace, hit Young with an 11-yard pass with 4:07 left in the second quarter pushing the Gators lead to 17-6.

Kicker Brian Clark had first half field goals of 36 and 53 yards, the latter one-yard shy of the school record, as Florida took a 20-6 halftime lead.

With 52 seconds left in the third quarter, Hewko's 16-yard pass to Young gave Florida its 27-6 edge.

The victory lifted Florida's record to 2-1, while Georgia Tech dropped to 1-1.

Iowa State pulls upset over rival Iowa, 23-12

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Quarterback John Quinn and tailback Dwayne Crutchfield each scored a touchdown and Alex Giffords booted three field goals to lift Iowa State to a 23-12 victory over Iowa in non-conference college football Saturday.

Iowa State (2-0), playing the Hawkeyes at home for the first time since 1934, was able to control the football against an Iowa defense that last week shut off powerful Nebraska 10-7 last week.

Crutchfield was able to break through Hawkeyes for yardage in key situations, finishing with 147 yards in 36 carries, and Quinn passed just enough to keep Iowa off balance.

Quinn ran eight yards for a touchdown midway through the first quarter and Crutchfield bowled over from three yards out late in the second period as the Cyclones built a 17-6 halftime lead.

Lucky for saltwater anglers, that the federal judge in Brownsville did not allow commercial fishing interest to sway his decision to make redfish and speckled trout legal for commercials to catch again.

The ban on commercial harvests took effect after denying a request for a temporary restraining order.

A group of commercials and seafood dealers had asked U.S. District Judge James DeAnda to halt enforcement of a new state law that prohibits commercial catches of redfish and ocean trout off Texas Gulf Coast for the next two years.

THE BATTLE of the redfish was spawned in the Texas Legislature this spring. Lawmakers sided with sportsmen and state wildlife officials, who argued redfish and trout being decimated by overharvesting.

Under the new law, the two species will be off limits to the state's 3,000 licensed commercial fishermen for at least two years.

Commercial fishermen filed suit in federal court, arguing the law discriminated against them because sportsmen were exempt from the redfish ban.

"If there were any such danger to fish stocks, there is no rational basis for a complete ban on one user group whose livelihood depends on ability to sell fish, at the same time another group whose interest in solely recreational is allowed to continue to use it," the suit stated.

UNDER AN older law, commercial fishermen must remove their lines during the weekends to avoid entanglements.

Sportsmen, a battle has been temporarily won. Whether it be the overharvesting of black bears by rug hunters or the redfish ban on commercials, finally the sportsman has been heard.

Texas restaurants and wholesale and retail dealers were behind this more than the commercials themselves. The commercials didn't have the money to fight, nor did they really need to. The redfish and speckled trout fishing industry was supported by sports fishermen, not commercial fishermen. Along the Texas Gulf Coast, those commercial fishermen (¾ of them) make their living catching and selling shrimp. Redfish and trout amount to only a fraction of their total catches.

My observations along the Texas Gulf Coast find the commercial fishing crew to be some of the nastiest, egotistical, self-centered individuals I've ever run across. They care absolutely nothing about anyone but themselves. They (commercials), if allowed, would completely rape the oceans of every living specimen. They have no sense of value. Most must be so ignorant to a certain point that they honestly believe they cannot deplete the ocean.

It's amazing, but I can't believe how our Gulf coast waters even support any life. The commercials have almost depleted the small reds and trout. When they are operating their seines after shrimp, they pull in thousands upon thousands of tiny gamefish ... and none survive. All they do with these (trash fish is what they call anything but shrimp) is toss them to the gulls and hungry predator fish.

AND NOW, they are complaining about not being able to fish for only two species of Gulf fish which they almost alone have depleted.

Let's hope and pray the federal judge doesn't reverse his decision Monday.

Not too long ago, I went out with a commercial shrimper just to see what happened. It was disgusting. He was only a small shrimper too! We caught only a few pounds of shrimp and hundreds of pounds of various gamefish species. All babies too! He dumped them overboard dead.

Sportsmen it's a waste. I've seen it first hand. Everytime we have a reason to fight for the continuing existence of a specie, we had better do it wholeheartedly.

Greenwood defeats Klondike

KLONDIKE—Quarterback Kyle Longley threw for two touchdowns and set up another with a pass while running back Todd Brooks scored twice and gained more than 100 yards as Greenwood's Rangers raised their record to 2-1 by spoiling homecoming for the Klondike Orediggers with a 32-21 win here Friday night.

Most spectacular scoring thrust of the night came with 4:37 left in the first period when Kit Foshee took a Longley pass for a 75-yard score. Longley's 16-yard pass to Tracy Wallace set up his 1-yard sneak with 20 seconds left in the period.

Brooks scored twice in the second period from nine yards out, setting up one with a 32-yard scamper, as the Rangers took a 26-7 halftime lead. The final Greenwood touchdown came on a 16-yard Longley-Foshee pass in the third period.

It was 32-14 before Klondike, a district champ last year and regarded as a power again this year, pushed over a final TD with six seconds left.

"We played well with no interceptions and only one turnover," Coach Joe Longley said. "Our kicking game kept them backed up so that they were always faced with long drives and our passing game was clicking (8 of 15 for 203 yards and 2 TDs)."

Greenwood, 2-1, is off this week, but opens district against Sanderson Oct. 2.

Arizona weighs canceling waterfowl season

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona authorities will not decide whether to cancel the state's waterfowl hunting season until additional tests are conducted by Montana wildlife officials on pesticide-infected ducks.

Montana officials reported finding dangerous levels of the pesticide Endrin in the bodies of nine ducks and samplings of geese and sharptail grouse. The pesticide reportedly was sprayed over 125,000 acres of winter wheat in eastern Montana that had been infested with army cutworms.

Officials said the poison could be carried into 17 states, including Arizona, making up the Pacific and Central flyways, migratory routes for waterfowl.

Arizona's waterfowl hunt is scheduled to start Oct. 9.

"We're waiting for additional tests conducted by Montana," said Roger Gruenewald, deputy director of the state Game and Fish Department. "There really isn't anything more we can do at the present time."

State officials in Utah and Montana also said it was too early to tell if they would have to cancel their waterfowl seasons.

Besides Arizona, Utah and Montana, the other states which could be affected include North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Nevada, California, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

UCLA thrashes Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Tom Ramsey plunged for one touchdown and fired scoring passes of 27 and 3 yards to tight end Tim Wrightman, leading ninth-ranked UCLA to a 31-13 college football victory over No. 20 Wisconsin Saturday.

Tailback Kevin Nelson rushed for 91 yards for UCLA, 2-0, which took a 14-0 lead with scoring drives covering 66 and 48 yards on the Bruins' first two possessions.

Wisconsin, which upset then top-ranked Michigan 21-14 a week earlier, fell to 1-1.

The Bruins took a 7-0 lead with 4:36 elapsed on Ramsey's 27 yard scoring pass to Wrightman, who didn't have a defender within 10 yards.

Ramsey dived for the Bruins' second touchdown from a yard out with 4:18 left in the first quarter. Ramsey passes of 20 yards to Cormac Carney and 12 yards to Wrightman sparked the drive, which was aided by a face mask penalty against Wisconsin linebacker Jody O'Donnell.

Defensive end Guy Boliaux intercepted a Ramsey pass and returned 18 yards to the UCLA 19 late in the first period.

Weiskopf nabs golf lead

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, so disgusted with his putting he wouldn't answer questions after the round, grabbed the third round lead away from disheartened Tommy Valentine Saturday in the $350,000 LaJet Golf Classic.

Weiskopf shot a 2-under par 70 over the Fairway Oaks Golf Club for a 210 total, 6-under par over the testy, 2-year-old course.

He owned a one-shot lead over five other players including Georgian Valentine, Dr. Gil Morgan, Fuzzy Zoeller, Craig Stadler and Hubie Green.

Valentine went double bogey on the back nine just about the time his beloved Georgia Bulldogs lost to Clemson 13-3.

He staggered home with a 3-over par 75.

Morgan bogeyed the final hole for a 74, Zoeller three-putted the last hole for bogey and a 74, and Green shot 73. Stadler shot 72.

Valentine started the day 8-under par and ran it to 11-under with a tap-in eagle on the Par 5, 511-yard 9th hole.

MATERIALS SUPPLY AND PLANT MAINTENANCE PROFESSIONALS

Enjoy a more challenging career and get paid up to 40 percent more. Join Aramco in Saudi Arabia.

Aramco, the principal oil company helping Saudi Arabia develop its energy resources, is constantly expanding oil sources and developing new fields.

You can make a personal contribution to this effort—and be well rewarded for it.

We have immediate openings in jobs which offer opportunities for rapid professional advancement in the areas of materials supply and oil and gas project maintenance.

Materials Supply

The materials supply organization supports the multibillion-dollar construction program of Aramco. Its widely dispersed operating facilities provide purchasing, traffic, inventory management, and warehouse services worldwide.

If you have the qualifications, we have the following openings now.

System Designer Required: 8 years of diversified materials experience and a degree in Economics, Business Administration or Engineering.

Traffic Planner Required: 8 years' experience in traffic or transportation and a degree in Traffic Management, Economics or Business Administration.

Buyers Required: 5-7years' purchasing experience and a bachelor's degree.

Construction Material Specialist Required: 5 years' diversified materials experience (i.e., procurement, handling, inventory control, traffic forecasting or scheduling) and a bachelor's degree.

Project Material Specialist Required: 5 to 8 years' diversified materials experience and a degree in Engineering.

Project Purchasing Representatives Required: 8 years' experience in project purchasing, project engineering or construction.

Materials Supply Controlman Required: 3 to 5 years' experience working with a variety of materials.

Standardization Engineer Required: 8 years' experience in Engineering Design, Materials or Maintenance Engineering and a bachelor's in Engineering.

Materials Handling Engineer Required: 5 years' experience performing design and/or industrial engineering and a degree in Engineering, preferably mechanical or industrial.

Standardization Analyst Required: 10 to 12 years' experience as a skilled craftsman (electrical, mechanical or instrument), preferably with an oil-producing, refining or petrochemical company.

Plant Maintenance

We require experienced maintenance engineers and technical support specialists. You will help implement large-scale overhaul and repair programs for vast oil and gas processing facilities and the various support systems—for this reason the following openings require an oil and gas background.

Rotating Equipment Engineers—Required: 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Gas Turbine Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Contracts Engineers—Required: 5 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Vocational Analysts—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Long-Range Planners—Required: 10 to 15 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Materials Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Area Maintenance Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Repair Shop Personnel—This includes engineers, supervising technicians and machinists.

Required: Engineers need a degree and 5 to 10 years' experience. Technicians need a high school diploma or its equivalent and at least 5 years' experience.

Competitive compensation and benefits

Aramco pays a competitive base salary and a cost-of-living differential that equalizes living expenses between Saudi Arabia and the United States. In addition, Aramco pays an after-tax expatriate premium of 40 percent on the first $30,000 of base salary and a 20 percent premium on the next $20,000. And there is an outstanding combination of benefits: Long vacations, comfortable housing, abundant recreation and an excellent school system.

Saudi Arabia bonus and new voluntary "bachelor" status for married employees

Newly hired North Americans for Aramco in Saudi Arabia receive a special bonus. After taxes, it equals 10 percent of your annual base salary, up to $5,000.

All of the attractive compensation and benefits are available for married employees who may want to work overseas on a temporary "bachelor" status for the first year. This program includes three free repatriation trips by air during this one-year period, and the option to request family status during that same year.

MSA slates opening of big soccer complex

The Midland Soccer Association will hold the grand opening of its 10-acre soccer complex at 10 a.m. Saturday. The complex is located west of the Cubs Stadium parking lot. It is a joint effort by the Midland Parks & Recreation Department and MSA.

It has taken two years to construct the seven field playing area and facilities. Additional buildings for equipment storage and player comfort stations are planned. At present there is a small landscaped equipment building which will also house the MSA concession stand.

The playing area is deisgned for varied numbers and sizes of soccer fields. the variation is made possible by use of portable goals fabricated and donated by the Ortloff Corproation.

The MSA has received help and financial contributions from community donations.

Long hours of planning, conferring and labor by the MP&R and MSA have going into the development of the complex. Especially effective are the efforts of MSA director of Finances Len Mitchell, MSA executive vice president Frank Parks, vice president Lynn Somerville and president Aubrey Linne, who are mainly responsbile for the land acquisition, design and implementation of the complex. Many other MSA board members have donated time to the project once labeled "Our Project in the Sky."

MSA director of Fields Norm Frable and MSA volunteers have worked with the MP&R's Wayne Kohout, Em Carnett and George Logan to complete the job in time for the fall season, which kicks off Oct. 3.

The Grand Opening will include a Soccerfest 81. The public is welcome.

MHS takes third, fourth place in cross country

ROSWELL, N.M. — The Midland High cross country team placed third and fourth this weekend in a pair of 5,000-meter meets here.

Claire Hardy was the outstanding runner in the meet overall for Midland as she won the event with a 20:53 time while teammate Sandy Rodriguez placed fourth in 22:08 for all-meet honors.

Other Bulldog runners to finish were Diedra Bell, Kathy Hamilton, Trudy Arreguin and Lydia Martinez.

The first and fourth place finishes helped the MHS girls place fourth overall with 104 points.

Roswell Goddard won the meet with 39 poins followed by Carlsbad, N.M., with 64, Lovington, N.M. with 71, Midland, Roswell High with 109, Goddard B with 119, Carlsbad B with 186 and Roswell B with no score.

In the boy's division, Midland finished third with James Beverly setting the pace with a sixth place finish for all-meet honors in 17:27 while Chuck St. Germain placed eighth in 17:41.

Jessie Diaz placed 22nd, Mike Reed 25th, Danny Ramirez 31st, and Arthur Arciga 37th.

Hobbs, N.M., won the meet with 32 points followed by Roswell Goddard with 53, Midland, Lovington with 107, Carlsbad with 112, Clovis with 132, Roswell with 149, and New Mexico Military Institute and Albuquerque Riverside with no results.

"We had trouble handling the altitude and trouble with travel lag," said Coach John Ford. "We left this morning and the sandy track was new to us. The girls had to run 5,000 meters (three miles 185 yards) and that's a mile more than they normally run. Texas runs two miles.

"It was an outstanding performance by Claire Hardy and Sandy Rodriguez because with all those things considered."

Next week, Midland will compete in a meet in Odessa.

TCU beats back Texas-Arlington

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Senior quarterback Steve Stamp put on a passing clinic Saturday night setting a Southwest Conference record with five touchdown tosses as Texas Christian beat back stubborn but outmanned Texas-Arlington 38-16 in a nonconference college football game.

Stamp finished the night with 17 completions in 22 passing attempts for 306 yards. Three of his touchdown tosses went to flanker Phillip Epps, the other two found acrobatic split end Stanley Washington.

Washington's scoring receptions covered 37 and 20 yards, vaulting him into second place on TCU's career touchdown receptions list. He now has 11 and trails only former Frog star Mike Renfro's 17.

Epps' three touchdowns covered 39, 26 and 16 yards. The offensive show directed by Stamp produced more points than the Horned Frogs had scored in any game since 1977.

Texas-Arlington quarterback Scott Logan was harried all night by a swarming TCU defense, but still managed to connect on 11 passes for 230 yards, including a 30-yarder to tight end Darryl Lewis for the only Maverick touchdown of the game.

The Frogs parlayed a stout defense, a good field position and a big-play offense into an 18-point halftime lead.

Linebacker Joe Hines recovered a Maverick fumble on the UTA 32 yard line on the Mavs' second possession of the game. Two plays later, Eppes made a diving catch in the end zone of Stamp's 26-yard touchdown pass.

The next Frog touchdown was even easier. The TCU defense held the Mavericks deep in their own end of the field and forced a short punt that died on the UTA 39. Stamp hit Eppes with a pass for all 39 yards on the next play.

Permian bombs Wyatt by 31-0

ODESSA — The Odessia Permian Panthers kept there unbeaten string alive Saturdaynight by routing Fort Worth W.D. Wyatt 31-0 here. Permian is now 3-0 on the season while Wyatt fell to 2-1.

Dale Carr scored the first two touchdowns for Permian on runs of three and one yards. Billy Rogers added a score on a four-yard pass reception from Coy Brown and Charles Lane scored on a one-yard run. Panther kicker Bobby Knott booted four extra points and a 30-yard field goal.

Hobbs Eagles rout Odessa

ODESSA — The Hobbs Eagles exploded for 21 second quarter points against Odessa High Saturday to set the pace for a 42-28 victory, giving each team a 2-1 season record.

The scoring onslaught was led by Hobbs halfback Timmy Smith, who scored three Eagle touchdowns on runs of 52, two and one yards, and contributed to a fourth on a pass play. Halfback Ruben Berry added a pair of scores on a 47-yard run and a 27-yard pass reception from Smith. The remaining Hobbs touchdown was scored by split end Manny White on a nine-yard pass from quarterback Manny Marquez. Jerry Hernandez kicked all six extra points.

Odessa High got scoring from halfback John Rodriguez on a 43-yard pass from quarterback Derrick Shepard, a Shepherd 58-yard run, Carl Powell on a 14-yard run and Charles Hunter on a two-yard run.

Floyd retains LPGA lead

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Marlene Floyd withstood early challenges and coasted to an even-par 72 Saturday to retain a 3-stroke lead after three rounds of the Henredon Classic LPGA tournament.

Floyd was threatened early by JoAnne Carner and Janet Alex, and was in danger of losing her lead when she bogeyed the par-4 fifth hole. Her third-round score of 209 is 7-under-par.

But the windy conditions on the 6,349-yard Willow Creek Golf Course sent several scores over par and allowed Floyd to breathe a little easier.

Beth Daniel was alone in second place at 4-under-par 212. With three birdies to her credit on the first 15 holes, Daniel may have finished closer to Floyd, but an attempt to salvage par at the par-3 16th hole failed when she watched a short putt slide by the hole. She settled for a 70.

Alex, Judy Clark and Sandra Haynie are tied for third at 3-under-par 213.

Jan Stephenson, who was 4 strokes behind Floyd at the start of the day, withdrew from the tournament because of the flu.

Alex, 5 shots behind at the start of Saturday's round, had birdies on three of her first six holes, and was 5-under at the turn. But the back nine jinx at Willow Creek struck again and Alex posted three bogeys to finish with a round of 71.

Clark completed her third consecutive round of 71 to move into contention for the $24,750 first-place money. Her previous best this year has been 10th in the Elizabeth Arden Classic in Florida last February.

Rosie Garza of Odessa concentrates on her backhand return to Susan Britton of Midland and Trish Bastrom of Seattle during the championship game of the women's pro division of the Midland Country Club Chaparral Doubles Tournament. Garza and her partner Freda Harris won the tournament 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Trojans blank Indiana, 21-0

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Tailback Marcus Allen rushed for 274 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as second-ranked Southern California, wearing down Indiana's defense in the second half, rolled to a 21-0 college football victory.

The Hoosiers stopped three long Trojan drives in the first half as the two teams battled to a scoreless tie at the intermission. The second half, however, belonged to Southern California.

The Trojans, 2-0, started their first scoring drive from their own 15-yard line early in the third quarter. Six plays took Southern Cal to midfield, then a face mask penalty on Indiana nullified a fumble by Allen and gave the Trojans first down at the Hoosiers' 32.

Harris, Griffith grab Chaparral title

Bill Harris of Midland and Bill Griffith of Denver, Colo., teamed up this weekend to win the Midland Country Club Chaparral Doubles Tennis Tournament by defeating Jim Boldrick of Midland and Randy Crawford of Ft. Worth, 6-2, 6-3, in the title match of the pro division.

In the championship bracket finals, Joe Liberty-Lou Brazelton defeated Paul Rea-Mercer Reynolds, 7-5, 6-1, to claim top honors while Bob Swanson-Hal Stratton defeated Bob Jones-Cotton Turner, 6-1, 7-6, 6-2, to win consolation.

L.C. Slape-Butch Lockhart scored a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Ed Runyan-Jeff Goodell in the A division finals while Bill Rutter-Terrill Reagan defeated Whit Whitlow-Bobby Henry, 6-4, 6-2, in the consolation match.

In women's competition, Freda Harris of Midland and Rosie Garza of Odessa teamed up to defeat Susan Britton of Midland and Trish Bostrom of Seattle, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5, in pro division play.

Championship division top honors were won by Connie Scharbauer-Nancy Stratton by defeating Monetta Wilson-partner, 6-3, 6-4. Consolation was won by Iona Vasicek-Mary Fern Richardson over Jean Banks-Mauri Love, 6-4, 7-5.

Darlene Gould-Bea Broussard scored a 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Mary de Compiegne-Cathy DeWitt in A division finals with Joan Rhodes-Patsy Rose defeating Nancy Beal-Leslie Peckskamp, 6-2, 7-5, in consolation.

Midland frosh take double wins

Midland Freshman posted a double victory this weekend in ninth grade football action with Gold (1-1) defeating Bonham (0-2) 30-14 and Purple (1-1) downing Crockett (0-2) 12-0. Lee Freshman recorded a .500 weekend with White (2-0) posting a 20-6 victory over Ector (1-1). Lee Maroon (1-1) went down to defeat at the hands of Hood (2-0), 20-14.

In other ninth grade action, Nimitz (2-0) defeated Bowie (0-2) 27-0.

In the eighth grade Midland-Odessa football conference, San Jancinto (1-1) scored a 6-0 victory over Bonham (0-1) while Hood (1-1) defeated Alamo (0-2) and Goddard (1-0-1) and Crockett (1-0-1) tied, 8-8. Blackshear (2-0) blitzed Bowie (0-2) 27-0.

Goddard (1-0-1) scored an 18-8 victory over San Jacinto (0-2) in eighth grade Midland City Conference play while Alamo (1-0-1) defeated Goddard B (0-1) 8-6.

The seventh grade American Conference opened its season this weekend. Goddard was a double victor with White defeating San Jacinto White 24-6 and Red downing Alamo Scarlet 20-0. Alamo Grey scored a 6-0 victory over San Jacinto Green.

Saints look for new No. 1

By The Associated Press

It took the New Orleans Saints 15 games to record their first victory of 1980. It could take them only three games to post No. 2 this year. And that would be a new kind of No. 1.

Never in their history have the Saints been 2-1. But, then, they've never had George Rogers to do the kind of work he did for them last week. On Sunday, he will try and do it against the New York Giants.

Sunday's other National Football League games are San Diego at Kansas City, Miami at Houston, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Detroit at Minnesota, the New York Jets at Pittsburgh, San Francisco at Atlanta, Washington at St. Louis, Tampa Bay at Chicago, Baltimore at Denver, Green Bay at Los Angeles and Seattle at Oakland. Monday night, it's Dallas at New England.

Last Thursday night, Philadelphia beat Buffalo 20-14.

Rogers, the No.1 pick in the NFL draft last April, rushed for a club-record 162 yards last Sunday as the Saints made a successful 1981 regular-season home debut with a 23-17 upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

Rogers, for all his fame as a Heisman Trophy winner as the top college football player in the country a year ago and the "franchise" tag applied to him when he was picked by New Orleans, would much rather be just another name and number.

"I'm really trying to blend in here," said Rogers, who is being counted on to raise the Saints to playoff contention the way Earl Campbell did with the Houston Oilers.

"I don't like being the center of attention. I never have," Rogers continued. "I don't want anybody to think I got my job because somebody gave it to me. That's why I just want to be one of the guys — but it's hard. I'm not a one-man show and I hope the fans don't think I'm Superman."

That's what a lot of Saints' fans hope he is. After all, it would seem that Coach Bum Phillips is trying to make the magic work twice. He made Campbell, a former Heisman Trophy winner, the Oilers' No. 1 pick in 1978 and Campbell made the Oilers a winner.

"Wait three years, then compare them," cautioned Phillips.

LSU rally tips OSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Sophomore Jesse Myles ran for two second-half touchdowns Saturday night, the last with 55 seconds to play, to rally Louisiana State to a 27-24 intersectional football victory over stubborn Oregon State.

Oregon State, a 20-point underdog, repeatedly stung LSU with the passing of Ed Singler, who threw for three touchdowns, including one with 4:39 to go that gave the Beavers a 24-20 lead.

After Singler's 18-yard scoring pass to Tim Sim, LSU marced 80 yards in 10 plays to score the deciding touchdown. Myles took an option pitch from quarter Alan Risher and sprinted 2 yards into the end zone.

The victory pushed LSU to 1-2 after back to back losses to Alabama and Notre Dame. Oregon State slipped to 1-1.

Cowboys nip Tulsa Hurricane

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Larry Roach's 24-yard field goal with five seconds left pulled the Oklahoma State Cowboys to a 23-21 interconference football win that spoiled a fourth-quarter rally by a scrappy Tulsa team Saturday.

It was the Dallas freshman's third field goal of the game, which the O-State Cowboys seemed to have locked up as they carried a 20-7 lead into the final peirod.

Mears, Unser share Michigan front row

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Teammates Rick Mears and Bobby Unser will share the front row in Sunday's 150-mile Indy-car race at Michigan International Speedway.

Mears, the current points leader on the Championship Auto Racing Teams circuit, toured the two-mile high-banked MIS oval Saturday at 200.111 mph in a Penske Cosworth to capture the pole position.

Unser, who drives with Mears for the Roger Penske team, qualified his Cosworth next at 199.260 mph.

"That's a magic number everybody likes to hear," Mears said of his 200 mph lap. "I thought I could go faster but the track temperatures started to drop.

"I just put it to the floor when I left and didn't let up until I got back. She wouldn't go any faster," he said.

Mears, who had been the fastest driver in practice Friday and Saturday, could just about lock up his second CART national championship with a victory in Sunday's $100,000 race. He won the title first in 1979.

Mario Andretti, who won this race a year ago, and Tom Sneva will start in the second row. Andretti, the former World Driving Champion, was clocked at 198.725 mph. Sneva qualified at 196.480 mph.

"It was handling OK but somehow the motor wasn't putting out," said a disappointed Andretti. "We did better in practice."

Johnny Rutherford was fifth fastest at 196.068 mph despite a crash which damaged his car earlier in the day in practice.

"We know we can do better," Rutherford said.

Midland Christian gets another win

WITHARRAL — Midland Christian School boosted its season six-man football record to 2-1 here Saturday with a 39-12 victory over the Witharral junior varsity, the identical score by which they won last week.

The Midland squad never looked back in this victory as they posted 13 first quarter points when Jim Crawford scored on a 30-yard pass from Kirk Hobbs and Buddy Ritchie scored on a nine-yard run. Byron Myers ran the conversion.

Midland Christian then scored again in the second period before Witharral could get on the scoreboard when Hobbs hit Robbie Powell with a 27-yard scoring toss. Midland led 20-6 at the half.

In the third period, Hobbs scored on a 25-yard run and Johnny Belcher broke for a 56-yard scoring romp. Midland Christian ended their scoring in the fourth period when Hobbs threw his third TD pass of the game, a 17-yarder to Joe Gould. Witharral scored with six seconds left in the game for the final margin.

Midland Christian travels to Southland next week for their next six-man outing.

Wyoming wins

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Fullback Walter Goffigan scored his second touchdown of the game with less than six minutes to go to give Wyoming a 17-10 Western Athletic Conference college football victory Saturday over Air Force.

The victory raised Wyoming's season record to 2-1, 1-0 in WAC play, while the Falcons dropped to 0-2, both defeats by league opponents.

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Miller capped a seven-run eighth inning off relievers Ron Davis and Dave LaRoche with a three-run homer Saturday as the Boston Red Sox staged a dramatic two-out rally for an 8-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

Held to seven hits and one run for seven innings by Ron Guidry and trailing 5-1, the Red Sox erupted after Davis, 3-5, retired the first two batters in the eighth.

The victory snapped the Yankees' nine-game winning streak at Fenway Park since Sept. 1979 and was only their fifth loss in 131 games since the start of the 1980 season when they took the lead into the seventh inning.

With two out Jim Rice started the rally with a single. Carl Yastrzemski walked and Carney Lansford scored Rice with a single. Dave Stapleton doubled to score Yastrzemski and Lansford scored on Reggie Jackson's error on the play.

LaRoche came on after a walk to Tony Perez and Joe Rudi singled to score Stapleton. Miller looked at three balls and then belted his second homer of the season, to right field.

John Tudor, 4-3, who replaced Boston starter Mike Torrez in the eighth, got the win with ninth inning help from Mark Clear, who gained his ninth save.

The Yankees gave Guidry good early support with single runs in each off the first four innings off Torrez, including Bobby Murcer's homer in the third.

Tigers snap losing streak

CLEVELAND (AP) — Champ Summers and Stan Papi homered and Dan Petry hurled eight strong innings to spark the Detroit Tigers to a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

The triumph snapped a five-game Tiger losing streak and was Cleveland's sixth defeat in seven games.

Summers slugged a two-run homer, his third of the season, in the sixth to give the Tigers a 3-2 lead and Papi cracked his third homer in the seventh for a 4-2 Detroit margin.

A's sting Chisox, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Rickey Henderson lined a sacrifice fly to center to score Dave McKay from third base in the ninth inning and lift Rick Langford and the Oakland A's to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

McKay led off the Oakland ninth with a single past short and advanced to second on a balk by Chicago starter Dennis Lamp, 6-5. Rob Picciolo's single sent McKay to third before Henderson hit his game-winning sacrifice fly.

Langford, 10-9, went the distance for the A's, scattering seven hits.

Greg Luzinski gave the White Sox a 1-0 lead in the sixth inning when he led off with his 18th home run of the year.

Oakland tied the score in the eighth with a leadoff homer by Dwayne Murphy, his 15th of the year.

Jays rip California, 6-4

TORONTO (AP) — Ernie Whitt snapped a 3-3 tie with a two-run double in the fifth inning and John Mayberry and Ted Cox clubbed home runs as the Toronto Blue Jays beat California 6-4 and handed the Angels their fifth straight loss Saturday.

Jim Clancy served up two homers to Brian Downing and Ed Ott in the first two innings but settled down to boost his record to 6-10. He gave up seven hits, two over the final seven innings, and struck out seven while walking one.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead in the first on Downing's leadoff homer, his eighth of the season. Toronto scored twice in the bottom of the first on Mayberry's two-run homer, his 12th.

Ott led off the California second with his second homer of the season and the Angels took a 3-2 lead later in the inning on Downing's RBI single.

Cox tied the game 3-3 with a solo homer in the second — his first of the season. But then Whitt gave the Blue Jays the lead for good with his double in the fifth.

The Blue Jays added a run in the seventh on Mayberry's RBI single before the Angels came back with a run of their own in the ninth on Butch Hobson's sacrifice fly.

Dave Frost, 1-7, took the loss.

Brewers down Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gorman Thomas' run-scoring single and a two-run double by Jim Gantner in Milwaukee's four-run eighth inning gave the Brewers a 11-8 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

The triumph enabled the Brewers to maintain their half-game lead over Detroit in the American League East race.

The Brewers banged out 15 hits off three Oriole pitchers. Dennis Martinez started for Baltimore and was relieved by Tippy Martinez, 3-3, who was charged with the loss. Tim Stoddard gave up the hits to Thomas and Gantner after he relieved Martinez in the eighth.

Rollie Fingers, 4-3, the third Milwaukee pitcher, got the victory despite giving up a two-run double to Eddie Murray that gave the Orioles an 8-7 lead in the seventh. Murray also hit his 18th homer and drove in five runs to lead Baltimore's attack.

Medich misses no-hitter

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Doc Medich flirted with a no-hitter for 7⅔ innings and the Texas Rangers right-hander finished with a two-hit, 6-0 shutout over the Minnesota Twins Saturday night. Neither hit made it out of the infield.

Medich, 9-5, retired the first 15 Minnesota batters, 11 of them on infield grounders. He lost the perfect game in the sixth when Rick Sofield led off with a walk on four pitches.

Medich retired the side in order in the seventh inning with the help of a sparkling play by second baseman Bump Wills, who took an apparent base hit away from Rob Wilfong.

Medich lost his no-hitter in the eighth. John Castino opened the inning by reaching first on third baseman Buddy Bell's error. Medich then struck out the next two batters before Sal Butera hit a line shot, also to Bell's right. Bell stopped the ball, picked it up and made a low throw to first that first baseman Pat Putnam could not handle.

The official scorer ruled that it was a base hit because it had been a difficult stop by Bell deep behind the bag at third and a long throw to first base.

The crowd booed when the scoreboard and the public address revealed the scoring decision, but the Twins got another hit in the ninth on Hosken Powell's infield roller.

Medich walked one and struck out four in pitching his fourth shutout.

The Rangers, winning only their fifth game in the last 13, erupted for all six of their runs in the second inning off Darrell Jackson, 3-3.

Krukow, Martz pace Chicub win

MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Buckner slugged a two-run triple in the fourth inning and Mike Krukow and Randy Martz, a pair of former Midland Cubs, combined on a six-hitter, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

Krukow, 7-9, struck out four and walked none before getting help in the ninth from Martz, who recorded his fourth save.

Mets punch Cards, 6-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubie Brooks' two-run homer in the first inning and Dave Kingman's 20th homer of the season in the sixth powered Pete Falcone to his first victory since Aug. 15, as the New York Mets stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 Saturday.

Mookie Wilson walked to lead off the Mets' first, stole second and went to third on catcher Gene Tenace's throwing error before scoring on a sacrifice fly by Mike Howard. Howard reached first when center fielder Dave Green dropped the ball and Brooks followed with his fourth homer.

Phillies win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Matthews blasted a home run and two singles and knocked in a pair of runs, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Dan Larson pitched six innings and was credited with his second victory in two starts since being recalled from the minor league Sept. 1. Larry Christenson, who came off the 21-day disabled list Saturday, pitched the final three innings for his first save of the season in his initial relief chore.

The Phillies turned a 2-1 deficit into a 6-2 lead in the fourth inning.

Vern Ruhle rules San Francisco, 8-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — According to Vern Ruhle, all he needs is work to return to the form which saw him finish with a 12-4 record during the 1980 season.

"They've been using me as a fifth starter all season long," said Ruhle, who completed his first game since last Oct. 1 as the Astros ripped the San Fracisco Giants 8-1 Saturday. Ruhle walked one and struck out one in pitching a four-hitter.

"If you look at my statistics," said Ruhle, "You'll see that the more I work, the better I am. Management went out and got two pretty good pitchers last winter (Bob Knepper and Don Sutton) and that left me scrambling for a starting spot. When they traded Ken Forsch (to the Angels) they gave me his job — fifth starter.

"I'd like more work, but I'm just trying to prove that I can do the job," he said. "Any job they want me to fill."

Ruhle's performance staked the first-place Astros to a 3½-game lead over the Giants in the National League West in the race for the second-season title. They have Nolan Ryan, 8-5, going against Gary Lavelle, 0-5, Sunday in what Giants Manager Frank Robinson ly calling, "Our most important game of the season."

Ruhle also knocked in two runs as he boosted his record to 4-4.

Washington State humbles Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Senior safety Paul Sorensen ran 43 yards with a blocked punt for a touchdown, less than a minute after sophomore quarterback Ricky Turner scored on a short run, as Washington State rallied for two TDs in the final 2:36 to stun Colorado 14-10 Saturday in college football.

Colorado nursed a 10-0 lead into the final quarter after redshirt freshman Lee Rouson ran 7 yards for a score and Jerry Hamilton kicked a 48-yard field goal.

With four minutes left in the game, however, the Cougars pressured Colorado punter Art Woods and tackled him for a loss at the Colorado 34. Five plays later, Turner picked up teammate Tim Harris' fumble near the goal line and scampered in for the score.

Colorado recovered the ensuing onsides kick but couldn't move the ball, and this time Washington State's Jeff Keller blocked a punt by Woods with Sorensen dashing into the end zone for the clinching score with 1:41 left.

WSU cornerback Nate Bradley intercepted a Randy Essington pass at the goal line to thwart a desperation bid by the Buffs in the closing seconds.

The victory raised WSU's record to 2-0 and dropped Colorado to 1-1.

Patriots looking to stop Dorsett

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — If the New England Patriots keep "11 guys on 33" and hold him under 100 their chances of being 1-2 should improve says Coach Ron Erhardt.

The Patriots' leader isn't resorting to numerological voodoo to shake his team out of its winless ways. In fact, he's being quite logical in preparing to play the Dallas Cowboys in Monday night's National Football League game.

Tony Dorsett is "33" his uniform number. He is off to his best start in five pro seasons, having gained 132 and 129 yards in his first two games. In the 22 games he has passed the 100-yard mark on the ground, Dallas is 21-1.

So it makes sense that a team has to stop Dorsett to have a better chance of stopping the Cowboys, who are unbeaten after two games.

"You can't let him out at all. Eleven guys on 33," Erhardt said. "Dorsett is running better. He's running more."

He leads the NFL in rushing and has gained 7.1 yards per carry tops in the National Football Conference. He also has caught eight passes for an average gain of 8.9 yards.

"He got married in the off-season and spent more time in Dallas and worked out more," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "This has made him stronger and more confident."

New England will be hard pressed to stop Dorsett. In their two previous games, the Patriots allowed Baltimore's Randy McMillan to run for 146 yards and Philadelphia's Wilbert Montgomery to gain 137. They also have allowed 103 more rushing yards than any other NFL team.

But Landry doesn't plan to tilt more toward running plays.

"We try to really go with what goes good for us, and the running game has been going good. We don't really worry about the opponent," he said.

New England defensive end Tony McGee doesn't think the Patriots are as bad as the 469 rushing yards they've allowed.

"We did a good job last week in a 13-03 loss to the Eagles until we had to gamble and then when you gamble they can add 50 or 60 yards," he said.

Mississippi State sinks Vanderbilt Commodores

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback John Bond ruined Vanderbilt's defenses by sweeping halfback Michael Haddix and sending bruising fullback Donald Ray King up the middle as 14th-ranked Mississippi State smashed the Commodores 29-9 in a Southeastern Conference college football game Saturday.

Vanderbilt, game but outmanned in the late stages, stayed in contention for a half on the passing of quarterback Whit Taylor.

Haddix sparked State's first possession, 83-yard touchdown march, scoring on an 18-yard sweep after picking up 53 yards on four plays to set it up.

State's speed on wide plays, with Bond handling the options to near-perfection, never let the Commodores get set.

After Taylor hit flanker Phil Roach on a 3-yard scoring pass just before the quarter, State launched a 88-yard touchdown drive, with Bond picking up 65 yards in five rushing attempts and King bulling over from the 2.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Allergic antibodies can be harmful

Dear Dr. Solomon: I hear so much about antibodies in relation to allergies. I would appreciate your telling me what these antibodies do. — Mr. W.H., Chicago

Dear Mr. W.H.: Normally, when harmful germs invade the body, our various defense mechanisms produce antibodies that destroy or neutralize the invading antigens. For infectious diseases, this process often leads to permanent immunity from attacks of the same invaders, as the antibodies that are produced on intitial exposure to the disease remain in the system and circulate in the blood. Antibodies are specific for each disease; those you formed during a rubella (German measles) infection are useless if you are exposed to mumps.

In allergic situations, a person's defense mechanisms react abnormally: They respond to foreign substances that, in similar amounts, do not usually bother most other people. Responding to such invading allergens as pollens, penicillin or pork, the person produces what we can call allergic antibodies. As with infectious diseases, these antibodies are specific for a certain antigen or allergan; in fact, they can be so specific that an individual may react to strawberries grown in one part of the country but not to those grown elsewhere. Unlike antibodies in the case of infectious diseases, allergic antibodies are not protective.

When allergic antibodies react with an allergen, the results can be dramatic. The interaction leads to the release of certain chemicals from the body's cells. Among these chemical compounds are histamine (which comes from cells in the connective tissues, especially beneath the mucous membrances and skin) and bradydinin. Histamine can cause swelling of mucous membrances in the nose, for example, and itching of the eyes — symptoms characteristic of hay fever. Bradydinin can contract smooth muscle like that in the walls of the small tubes in the lungs, which is one thing that happens in asthma.

Antibodies are formed during the initial reaction with an allergen; this first contact, however, is unlikely to result in any clear symptoms of a developing allergy. Thus, someone who is allergic to crab may suffer no ill effects when he eats it for the first time; but, if he should eat crab again, symptoms of his allergy to it may appear.

Often it is only after considerable exposure to the allergen that enough antibodies are formed to cause symptoms. For instance, because ragweed does not exist in Europe, several years may elapse before a European who settles in the United States becomes "sensitized" to ragweed. Once the symptoms of an allergy have appeared, however, they will nearly always recu. whenever the specific allergen and the antibodies that have formed interact.

Sensitization to a particular allergen can last for many years. Those who once reacted to ragweed can still be sensitive to it when they are again exposed to it — even after living for years in a ragweed-free community.

Although allergens can be classified as inhalants, contactants and ingestants, the reactions they produce in allergic persons cannot always be grouped in a similar way. Most inhalants cause symptoms in the nose or lungs, but ingestants, although entering the body through the mouth, can produce rashes and headaches in addition to gastrointestinal symptoms; and, of course the same allergen may cause different reactions in different people.

Many of us often use the word "allergy" inaccurately — and not only in such expressions as "Children are allergic to washing themselves" or "He is allergic to hard work." It is important to distinguish between an allergy and an intolerance. For example, Michael Collins sneezes a great deal in June because of his hay fever — this is an allergy. But his sister Janice gets indigestion after eating a lot of raw onions — this is not an allergy to onions but an intolerance to so much of it. For this reason many doctors prefer to use the word "hypersensitivity" instead of "allergy." When you are allergic, you are hyperreactive, hyperresponsive or hypersensitive to an allergen.

Maine tourists research roots

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — For a special breed of tourist like Roger Rumrey, a vacation in Maine is also a trip back in time to the family past.

Rumrey and a surprising number of other tourists are managing to combine their family vacation with their search for information about forebears who lived in Maine centuries ago.

The tables at the library of the Maine Historical Society are often filled with visitors immersed in genealogical research. It's not unusual to find out-of-state researchers who have traveled thousands of miles to gather information about a branch of the family tree which they have traced back to Maine.

"It's a real obsession with some of them," said librarian Katie Murphy, estimating that 85 percent of the library's summer users are involved in genealogy. In the winter, the library gets a larger percentage of people writing dissertations or other academic studies.

Rumrey, who lives in the St. Louis, Mo., suburb of Manchester, stopped at the library to find out some details about the Rumery family, which he had traced from Michigan to its colonial roots in Maine.

From records at the state archives in Augusta and at the historical society, Rumrey discovered that Edward Rumery bought some land in the Biddeford area for four pounds around 1728. He's still not sure whether the family came originally from Germany or England.

"The spelling of the name was somehow changed around 1900. The old traditional spelling is R-u-m-e-r-y," he explained.

While his wife and children were shopping in downtown Portland, Rumrey pored through the society's genealogical collection, which provides records of births, deaths, marriages and other vital statistics.

The society's new director, William Toner Jr., said the renewed interest in genealogy was a nationwide phenomenon, spurred in part by the success of the best-selling novel and television series, "Roots."

WIN THE WAR AGAINST SHINNERY.

For decades, the rangeland of West Texas has been covered with brush troublemakers like sand shinnery. Battling these brush problems has been all uphill for ranchers. Until now.

Now, there's a totally new approach to controlling brush. It's Graslan.™ From Elanco. Graslan is a pelleted, aerially-applied brush herbicide that is applied while grasses are dormant. And this one application gives years of control.

Graslan. It's the new foundation of a range management program that controls sand shinnery and other West Texas troublemakers, allowing your rangeland to live up to its full potential.

For more information about how Graslan can help you win the war against brush, call the toll-free Elanco Graslan hotline:

POSITIVE THINKING

Victory over fear, pain achieved by preparation

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Are you tired of being sick? There are resources of health that can serve you.

Are you tired of being weak? There are resources of strength that can rise up in you.

Are you tired of being ineffectual? There are reserves of efficiency that can come to your aid.

Are you tired of pain? There is a technique of positive thinking that can bring you victory over pain.

Dr. Charles Richard Alsop Gilbert, a noted Washington, D.C., obstetrician and gynecologist, is known for putting the techniques of positive thinking into practice in his work with expectant mothers and, as a result, has developed a method for lessening the pains of childbirth.

"A lesson may be learned," writes Dr. Gilbert in his book, CHILDBIRTH,"from the true story of a native of the wilderness of Central Australia who was placed in the hold of a ship and brought to the United States several years ago. He was kept blindfolded until he was brought into the center of a large West coast city. Then the blindfold was removed. Since he had never been in a city before, he reacted with terror to his new surroundings, even though he could see other people around him calmly going about their business. He had never seen an automobile, and he was frightened by the traffic. An airplane roaring overhead seemed a huge beast of prey and he cringed. The skyscrapers seemed about to crash onto his head and his impulse was to run rather than risk being rushed under the huge buildings.

"At the moment when this poor savage was further frightened by a young newsboy screaming the headlines of the day in (to him) incomprehensible language, he chanced to scratch his right hand on a pin. Under ordinary circumstanes this pain would have been little felt by him. But suddenly, because of his strange environment, the pain became multiplied a thousandfold, and he cried out in terror."

"Yet, it is a fact that this same aborigine previously had had his left arm amputated in his native surroundings in the Australian bush without benefit of anesthesia, and had not even whimpered!"

Dr. Gilbert then goes on to point out that first he attempts to acquaint his patients fully with exactly what is going to happen to them, and then he motivates them to think positively. The doctor must, he says, help his patients not only medically and physically, but also spiritually, if they're to win a victory over pain.

Victory over pain, over sickness, over weakness, over ineffectuality can be achieved by positive thinking. Almighty God has put into us an absolutely remarkable power to live our lives to the fullest potential. To do this, we need to keep rekindling the vital spark within us.

The way to rekindle that spark is to constantly affirm God's power in your own life. As you learn to do this, you will find that, all of a sudden, things will open up. There will come at first a moment or two of tremendous hope, of an exciting sense of power. In that moment you know that you can master life. But then it may seem to fade and you ask yourself why you can't hold on to this wonderful feeling of victory. But you can, really, with practice.

If you are not doing this, it's because you don't believe enough either in the God in you, or in yourself. You aren't thinking positively enough. But, if you really learn to believe and to think positively about God and His will, you can in time achieve real victory over any pain or difficulty.

Russian chef still cooking at 98

MOSCOW (AP) — At the age of 98, Moscow's longest-serving chef has fed them all: novelist Leo Tolstoy, the ambassadors and nobility of Imperial Russia, Bolshevik revolutionaries and the workers of present-day Moscow.

Looking back at 85 years in Russian kitchens, flies buzzing around him in the back room of the cafe where he still works six days a week, Semyon Grishin says he thinks dining in the old days was the best.

"Before the revolution, there was competition," says Grishin, one of whose claims to fame is a lavish 10-ruble tip from Tolstoy in 1898. "The best form of trade is competition. If it's good, people go. If it's not, they don't."

Grishin, who says he will work to the age of 100 and then retire and grow vegetables, remembers fondly the finest private restaurant of prerevolutionary Russia.

"I used to give a list of what ingredients we needed to the restaurant owner, and he would call up the store and we'd get exactly what we ordered," Grishin recalled with some wonderment in his voice. Nowadays, Soviet restaurant chefs often have to make do with whatever food a government supply house chooses to deliver.

He scorns modern restaurants, and says he'd just as soon stay in the humble cafe for students and workers where he is now the head cook — from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

RINGING THE BELL

Young's decision to run is a step up

With BOB TIEUEL

DEAR BOB — In just a few days before the fall election, Andrew Young still runs into the same questions at virtually every stop on his increasingly rigorous schedule: Why does he want to be mayor of Atlanta? How could a man who has roamed the halls of Congress and sat in the president's Cabinet ever want to assume the mundane responsibilities of city government?

The questions gall him, not the least because the former congressman of D.C. and United Nations ambassador is the only candidate in the race who is asked to justify his decision to run for mayor. Others who have not climbed as high or traveled as far and wide rarely if ever have to explain their fondness for the second-floor corner office at City Hall.

Some people say, "Why step down to be mayor of Atlanta?" Young states: "I say it's no step down. Atlanta is a great city. It is a $1 billion corporation with 8,000 employees. It is a city that has always led the way and will continue to lead the way, especially in race relations. Let Ronald Reagan know that he may set some cities back, but he will not set us back in the city of Atlanta."

The present Mayor Maynard Jackson has served two terms (eight years) and will support Young. It is unfortunate that there has been a terrible integration crisis that Young describes as "middle level managers who were unwilling to work with or for blacks." One thing is certain, on Oct. 6 the whole story of the Young challenge will unfold. No one knows the answer, yet it is known that state Rep. Sidney Marcus is the front running white candidate, with Reginald Eaves trailing as we go to press. More later.

Bill Berkely, Atlanta

TIME FOR TRUTH — Editorial Quote: "Among the elderly, the Social Security crisis is charged with emotion and fear. There is much mistrust and misunderstanding. AARP and other spokesmen for the elderly can clear the air and point toward a truly stable system. Or those voices can cloud and confuse. And point a way toward disaster...For the sake of the elderly who depend on them, theirs must be a mission to seek the truth, however painful." From the Dallas Morning News.

A TRIBUTE TO A GREAT AMERICAN SPIRIT — Roger Baldwin, one of the founders of the American Civil Liberties Union and one of its guiding lights for more than 70 years, died recently at the age of 97. He was a BA and MA from Harvard University in 1905. Said a statement from the board of directors on Baldwin: "Roger Baldwin was one of the titans of American history. His stamina and persistence in pursuit of liberty was a model for those of us to follow. He thought these times were the most dangerous he had seen, but he remained relentlessly optimistic about the long-range future of liberty. He liked to describe himself as 'traveling hopefully'."

From New Orleans comes word that the head of the National Association for the Advancement of White People is reported launching an economic protest against the Coca-Cola Co., which has agreed to boost black owned businesses. David Duke, a former leader of the KKK, who heads the NAAWP, said his group has about 2,400 members and our slogan is "Have a Coke and a Frown — if you're white."

Twenty-three years ago on Aug. 19, 1958, the sit-in-movement started in Oklahoma City — a movement that led to the elimination of segregation in public accomodations throughout the state and nation, according to Helen Miner of The Black Chronicle.

Many young blacks have decided that crime does pay. Statistics say something else, according to columnist Jim Bishop. More than half of all blacks who go to prison once will go there again. America has paid dearly for greed on all levels, Bishop concludes.

There has never been a black head coach in the National Football League so there has been a study launched to look into the situation. We ask — for what?

YOUR BIRTHDAY: The late English historian and visionary science fiction writer H. G. Wells was born on this date. Also celebrating a birthday today: actor Larry Hagman (J.R. on TV's Dallas"). Get ready for a very active and exciting year! Loved ones play an increasingly important role in both your business and domestic affairs. Strong-willed and adventurous, you welcome new intellectual challenges. Give free rein to your creativity. Others are eager to follow where you lead. Count on good luck helping to improve the financial outlook.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may have to modify some personal plans to accommodate business. A financial situation invites special scrutiny. Travel may be too expensive right now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Opposition to a project could bring you face to face with an antagonist. Stick to the facts and you will emerge the winner! Mate will lend a helping hand.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could begin a search now that will result in both new financial rewards and greater career success. Changes may have to be made within the family circle; everyone benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Exercise diplomacy to prevent arguments with an attractive member of the opposite sex. Anticipation could become reality. Enjoy the company of an unexpected visitor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not become impatient! Weigh your options carefully before acting. You need to consider the views and needs of your loved ones. Keep promises made to teen-ager.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could hit a snag where romance is concerned. Bide your time. A long-cherished dream could come true, thanks to the help of a friend or neighbor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Adopt a confident, positive attitude and your associates will climb on your bandwagon. Laugh at your mistakes. Profits increase if you stick to conventional methods.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A message from overseas brings good news. Money comes from unexpected quarters. Avoid flirting with a casual acquaintance; it could lead to an embarrassing situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Certain negative trends are reversed. You and your associates are on the same wavelength. Teamwork brings success. A little extra discipline helps you achieve your aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will have a multitude of minor matters to deal with today. Unsettled conditions could affect romance, finance. Influential person is watching and could judge your work on today's performance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Play it safe when it comes to money matters. Think about reducing your social activities. Creative projects give you a feeling of satisfaction. Do not rush romance!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are able to carry out most of your plans without interruption today. Some very useful agreements can be made. Do not burn the candle at both ends! Get more rest.

NOTICE OF INTENTION OF THE CITY OF MIDLAND, TEXAS, TO RECEIVE BIDS FOR THE SALE OF THE SOUTHERNMOST 91.5 FEET OF LOT 2, "A" STREET COMMUNITY CENTER, SECTION 3

Pursuant to Article 5421c-12, V.A.T.S., sealed bids, addressed to the Mayor and the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the purchase of all of Lot 2, "A" Street Community Center, Section 3, save and except the most northern 75 feet thereof, located on the cul-de-sac south of Wadley Avenue 528 feet west of "A" Street, will be received by the City Secretary in his office, Room 204 in the City Hall, 300 N. Loraine, or mailed to P.O. Box 1152, Midland, Texas, 79702, until 2:00 p.m., on the 5th day of October, 1981, and then publicly opened and read aloud. Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked "Proposal for Lot 2, "A" Street Community Center, Section 3."

A certified check or bank money order, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City, in the amount of the bid, payable without recourse of the City of Midland, must accompany the bidder's proposal as a guaranty that the bidder will accept a conveyance to said land from the City for the amount bid, if he is successful. No bid in an amount less than $45,000 (Forty-five Thousand Dollars), will be considered. Bids without the required check or money order will not be considered. All other checks will be promptly returned after the bid is awarded.

Take notice that prior to issuance of a building permit, the successful bidder will be required to furnish the City's Inspection Division with a copy of an FAA Determination of No Hazard to Air Navigation (on FAA form 7460-1, or any subsequent replacement form available in the City's Inspection Office), as described in a letter from the Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration, to Mr. Wilson H. Banks, Aviation Director, dated January 13, 1981, and on file for informational purposes in the office of the City Secretary in the City Hall.

The City of Midland will issue a Special Warranty Deed and the bidder must satisfy himself as to title and acquire all desired abstracts and other title information or insurance solely at his own expense, and all other costs of sale, if any, must be borne solely by the successful bidder.

The proposed sale and Special Warranty Deed will be subject to the following conditions and convenants which shall expressly be made a part of the deed, to wit:

PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that all the oil, gas and other minerals in and under said land are hereby expressly excepted from this conveyance, and it is also subject to any existing easement of record and/or on the ground for pipelines, utilities and other purposes, including drilling rights.

Grantor further reserves for the public and itself, its successors and assigns, a right of flight for the passage of aircraft in the airspace above the surface of said land together with the right to cause in said airspace such noise as may be inherent in the operation of aircraft now known or hereafter used for navigation of or flight in the air using said airspace and landing at, taking off from, or operation on the Midland AirPark.

Grantor herein reserves, and it is expressly agreed that it should have, for itself and its assigns, the first option of purchase of the above described tract on the occasion that the successful bidder shall opt to sell said property to any bona fide purchaser for value, and that this reservation shall be effective for twenty-one (21)) years from date of this instrument.

The City reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids, to waive technicalities, to negotiate with any of the bidders, and to make any investigation deemed necessary as to the bidder's financial status.

CHOOSE REAL ESTATE AS A CAREER

DOCTORS can only take Wednesday afternoon off. But if you choose a career in Real Estate you can play golf any afternoon you want. (You might want to avoid Wednesdays, unless you're pro.)

BANKERS can only give people mortgages. But if you choose a career in Real Estate you can give people the home of their dreams. Whether it's an ivy covered cottage or a castle with a moat, you'll be making people happy every day.

ARCHITECTS can only design homes after years of education. But if you choose a career in Real Estate you can be selling homes in as little as 3 months.

LAWYERS make a lot of money also. But if you choose a career in Real Estate you can make just as much money as you want. You get as much money back as the time you put into it.

A career in Real Estate can be more lucrative than any other profession. So don't break your mother's heart. But if you want to go with the most successful and progressive Real Estate Company that offers you continued training, Stephenson Realtors, Inc. is the only Real Estate Company in this area that has the National Marketing Institute Success Video Training Tools Plus other "In-House" Training Materials.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Today I work in a bank. Tomorrow I work at an advertising agency. That's how Kelly Services works for me.

Working for Kelly Services, the temporary help people, means having an opportunity few people have...real variety in working experience. On Kelly's temporary assignments, you'll be able to work in more than one kind of business.
That can be valuable experience whether you're making up your mind about choosing a career or reentering the job market.

And, of course, working for Kelly means you'll be working for a leader in the industry and making good money. Kelly is not an employment agency, so you sign no contracts and pay no fees. Why not stretch your job experience in one of Kelly's more than 100 job classifications. Let Kelly Servires, the temporary help people, work for you.

OPPORTUNITY IN OILFIELD SALES

We need sales personnel for Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

As a leader in the sale of SCR systems, we at Integrated Power Systems are on the move, and need good people to grow with us.

Because of our growth, you'll have the opportunity to advance professionally and obtain a high level of income.

But this opportunity is not available to everyone. We want the right person...motivated, not afraid of challenge and ready to work hard in order to be successful.

If you fit this description and have oil field experience, I would like to talk to you.

Since I'm frequently out of the office, please contact Julie Boos, our personnel manager. She can give you further details and make arrangements for us to meet.

AGE NOT A FACTOR

Are you a competitive-minded individual capable of accepting a personal challenge in career sales leading to sale management if desired? If so, this is your chance for opportunity and growth in equal parts with a potential first-year income of $30,000+. This NYSE company has grown to over $356 million in sales by paying attention to its people. The only prerequisite to being one of those people is a successful work pattern that has prepared you for this challenge.

Fairway Park may be Midland's Best Buy.

PRICED FOR THE AVERAGE INCOME

Anyone can build a fine home when the cost is no object. The true test of a builder is to provide a beautiful home at a reasonable price. In convenient Fairway Park Ramcon has combined low price, quality construction, very low down payments, low monthly payments and architectural styling designed to appeal to executives and modern families who want to live in Midland's newest prestige address.

If you're tired of the same, plain-looking home, come see Ramcon's dazzling new models. Each one is a bold statement, a reflection of good taste. See the rich, furniture finished cabinetry, the cozy wood-burning brick fireplaces, designer wall coverings and captivating California excitement captured in the high-soaring ceilings, sun-filled morning rooms and eye-catching exteriors with loads of street appeal. At Ramcon you can afford to be different.

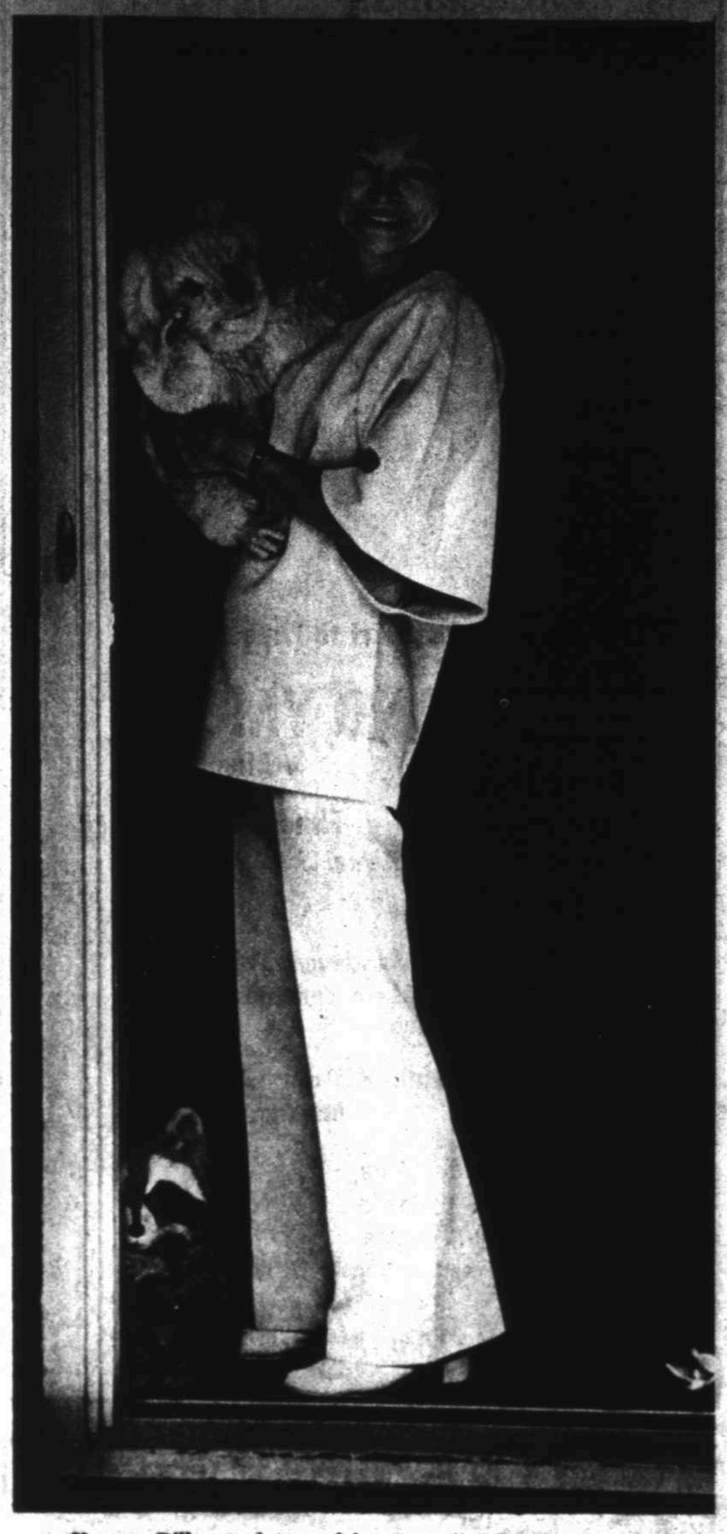
A menagerie of lovable puppets



Yvonne Dillon and two of her "pets" greet visitors at the door.

Mrs. Dillon is surrounded by her family of pets. She is holding the family favorite, "Knuks the Skunk."

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

Are you looking for the perfect house pet? One that doesn't need to be housebroken, doesn't eat or cry, has no odor or nasty habits, but is still lovable and will give you hours of enjoyment? Then possibly Yvonne Dillon of Midland has the pet for you.

No, it isn't a pet rock. Mrs. Dillon makes stuffed animal puppets that are so realistic they often fool the average bystander. Among her menagerie are skunks, koala bears, kittens, pandas, foxes and beavers.

Mrs. Dillon began making these puppets about two years ago, and says she gives God all the glory for her creative idea and venture.

When she and her husband, L.W. (Bill) Dillon, adopted their two children five years ago, she began praying that she would find some way to be able to work in her home and still be a full-time mother.

She said her prayers were answered when her adopted four-year-old daughter, Jessica, was in the hospital for a tonsil operation two years ago. Mrs. Dillon said that up to then, Jessica had not yet fully accepted her as "Mother" and so she made the first puppet, a white kitten, as a gift while she was in the hospital. She says that through the kitten, mother and daughter were able to communicate better.

Jessica, now six years old, attends Oaklawn Park Baptist School with brother Jason, nine years old. And they both approve of mom's career which creates so much joy for them and other children.

The puppets are made from foam, fake fur and latex. "They are all synthetic and child-proof," Mrs. Dillon noted.

It takes Mrs. Dillon about 18 hours to make one puppet. For this reason and because they are of such good quality, the Possum Trot Corporation in McKee, Kentucky now manufactures the animals using her designs. At the present time, only the skunk, panda bear, black bear and koala bear are being made, though others are planned for the future.

Because of their high quality of material and manufacturing, the stuffed animals aren't cheap. In fact, Mrs. Dillon said that the company normally sells them for $35 each, and they are being distributed through name-brand toy stores.

Photos by Chad Peerling

Midland Association of Churches schedules CROP Walk for Hunger

First CROP Walk for Hunger sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches is set for Oct. 10 in Midland.

The event will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Midland College. Organizers hope to recruit 500 walkers, each with pledges of $20 for a total of $10,000.

"CROP originally meant Christian Rural Overseas Program," according to Don Hellinghausen, co-chairman of this event along with George Davis.

The program was formed at the end of World War II to share America's abundance with European war victims. Over the yeara, CROP increased its urban appeals while remaining in contact with its rural constituents. Formal authorization for urban campaigns came in 1966, when the National CROP Committee changed the official name to the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Servies.

CROP has moved from primarily providing resources for emergency relief to supporting long-range self-help and develop work of Church World Services.

Funds are distributed in eight categories, including appropriate technology, education, emergencies—foreign and domestic, family life and population, food, refugees and seeds.

According to organizers of this event, 25 per cent of the funds raised in the Midland CROP Walk for Hunger will stay in the community to help fund the local Share-a-Meal program.

Other chairmen in charge of the event are Nancy Huslage and Mary Ann Cakl, arrangements; Carol Ann Hunt, recruitment; Becky Baskin and John Savage, public relations; and Eve Vaughn and Lisa Battles, treasurers.

Persons interested in joining the walk should call Ms. Hunt at 682-2926.

Reed furniture moving indoors

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

A close reading of design magazines makes it clear that reed furniture — rattan, willow and bamboo — is very much in style in home interiors nowadays.

In recent years, rattan and the other types have moved off the porch and out of the sunroom into the more formal areas of the home. And it is not too farfetched to conclude that reed furniture is now available for every room in the house.

Pieces such as convertible sofas, desks, dining tables, storage cabinets and bars are now almost as widely available as the more common chairs and side tables.

Just to prove there is nothing new under the sun, Henry Olko recalls that rattan furniture had its vogues in earlier eras.

Olko is president of Willow & Reed, a manufacturer of rattan furniture. The firm was started by Olko's father in 1923 in the Brooklyn borough of New York City.

"In those days, rattan furniture wasn't designed; it was produced," Olko said. According to Olko, New York City was a center for the production of reed furniture during the early part of the 20th century. A large contingent of Eastern European workers skilled in the weaving of the material found employment with numerous manufacturers in lower Manhattan during the 1920s.

"In fact, there were over 2,000 workers in New York at one time producing mainly porch and sunroom furniture and baby carriages," Olko said.

The manufacturers sold their products to large mail order retailers and to department stores. Olko remembers accompanying his father to a department store "where the seventh floor was almost completely filled with rattan and wicker furniture. In those days, a chair might cost $4 or $5, he added.

New York's rattan furniture industry was a casualty of the Depression. As one manufacturer after another closed his doors, the old skills dwindled and the demand for woven reed furniture diminished. Olko traces a revival of interest to the influence of modern architects who appreciated natural material.

One result of the increasing use of reed furniture is there are far more items and designs to choose from than there used to be, said Bebe Winkler, a designer who frequently uses rattan pieces. The variety of designs and price ranges of the material makes it possible to select rattan regardless of budget.

"Rattan adds a wonderful texture to any room, but especially to formal rooms. The trick is to blend it with other materials to get the effect you want," she said.

If you are considering a piece of rattan furiture for the living room, it helps to visualize it on wall-to-wall carpets rather than on a hard surface floor, said the designer.

Ms. Winkler likes the combination of rattan and upholstery fabric in loose pillow back sofas. "Rattan is neither traditional nor contemporary," she said. It works well in both sorts of rooms, especially in rooms with mixed furnishings in eclectic style.

From a practical point of view, rattan chairs with zippered cushions are a relatively inexpensive treatment that is also quite practical, the designer said.

Other interior designers also find today's eclectic rooms benefit from the folksy quality and special personality lent by a few rattan objects.

Laurette Arnel, who has used rattan in business offices as well as in homes, said she finds "today's smaller rooms require a lighter, airier look which this type of furniture provides." Ms. Arnel sometimes orders rattan pieces spray-painted in bright contemporary colors.

Ms. Winkler, on the other hand, prefers the natural golden tan finish. This is a preference Olko endorses.

"Natural rattan is the more popular nowadays. Several years ago, dark finishes or white painted finishes were preferred," he pointed out.

According to Olko, a natural finish has some special advantages. Painting rattan tends to weaken the glued joints, he said.

Parade of Homes features two-story design

Another unique design for the 1981 Parade of Homes is two-story living at its best. The home, located at 4505 Stillmeadow Dr., is by Whitley Kustom Builders. It features brick with stained redwood exterior and offers 2650 square feet.

The 1981 Parade of Homes is sponsored by the Midland Homebuilders Association and will benefit Christmas in April, Midland's volunteer housing repair program for the elderly and handicapped. The show is Dec. 12-20 in the Skyline Terrace Addition. Admission is $1 to see 22 new homes.

In the Whitley home, the living area combines large overhead windows, a rock-face fireplace and support beamed ceiling to complement a sunken pit area. This area opens into a formal dining area.

Of three spacious bedrooms, the master is downstairs and features a gracious bay window, bungalow ceiling and stairs to a loft area. The master bath has a jacuzzi and is accented by redwood trim, large mirrors and a skylight admitting natural sunshine.

Color scheme throughout the house is plush earth toned with touches of burnt orange. Kichen features microwave oven, spacious birch cabinets and a unique bar area under the stairway.

The energy efficient home features ceiling fans and a Payne high efficiency heating/air conditioning unit.

Featuring large and small windows, the house has a modern look. Landscaping is by Cobb.

Anniversary party slated

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Pate, long-time residents of Pecos, will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Monday and will be honored with a reception for family and friends at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Robert E. Poer of Midland.

Pate was born in Fort Worth, where he worked as a boy for his father's bus line which ran from Fort Worth to Denton, Cleburne, Hillsboro, Waco and other cities. He is a retired employee of the Greyhound Corporation.

Mrs. Pate was born near Springtown, and the couple was married on Sept. 21, 1921. They moved to Pecos in 1932, where he was district manager for Greyhound for over 30 years.

The Pates have two children, Mrs. Poers and Joe W. Pate of Mineral Wells. They also have five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Children's pastor thinks kids learn best while having fun

By JUDY PEITZMEIER
Scottsdale Daily Progress

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Dave Winchell never misses a chance to call himself a dummy.

He quickly captures the attention of children of all ages with magical tricks, puppetry and lively songs — interspersed with religious homilies and biblical tales.

But the part the children enjoy most is when ventriloquist Winchell converses with one of his dummies — Leroy, Wendy or Misty.

"I believe if the children have fun while they are learning, they will remember," he explained in a recent interview. "I'm sure the children don't look at my show as a learning experience, but it is."

Winchell is a part-time children's pastor at Aurora First Assembly of God Church in Aurora, Colo. He travels throughout the country with a crew of 11 presenting a "Kids Krusade" during the summer months.

"I consider myself more as an entertainer than a pastor — with a very important message to share," he said before a recent local presentation. "The program leans toward a lot of good, positive character building and moral values. I get their attention through fun ways and then it is up to the church to nurture and train the children."

While weaving a biblical theme throughout the program, Winchell captures his audience's attention with mind-reading tricks, ventriloquism and life-size puppets.

"I have to be careful when doing tricks so that I do not appear to have supernatural powers," he said. "I explain to the kids that every magician learns certain tricks, but they are only tricks. Only God performs miracles."

His decision to enter children's ministry was made while he attended Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Mo.

"I never had the inspiration of being a pastor, but I felt God was speaking to me to work with children," he explained.

"Magic was always a hobby for me as a teen, but it was not a consistent hobby," he added. "About 20 years ago, my wife and I saw a little vent figure (puppet) in a shop. We decided to buy it and try to incorporate it into our children's ministry.

"I had no idea how to work it, but I told the pastor I bought it and had planned to add it to the program," Winchell went on. "He asked me to bring it out the next Sunday morning ... Dumb old me, I went ahead and did it. I had never worked with the figure but somehow, I had a God-given gift for ventriloquism and my lips didn't move.

"I'm sure my voice change was not good, but from that time on, I started studying ventriloquism and talking to every ventriloquist I could find."

Along with his wife and four children, Winchell works with five volunteers who make up the "Sonshine Gang," a group of singing puppets.

Even if you're unhandy, you can do something to help hold down electric bills.

Save energy and money at home by learning how to insulate, caulk and weatherstrip — it's easy when you know how. Just call us, or ask for our "Unhandy Person's Guides" on the comments portion of your bill.

It's important to learn ways to conserve energy, especially since the cost of electricity must continue to increase, partly because all fuel used to make electricity continues to cost more.

For example, a contract for low-cost natural gas expires at the end of this year, and we'll have to use more high-priced gas next year.

You can conserve and help hold down your bill by using the "Unhandy Person's Guides" from Texas Electric.

Breast self-examination clinic set for Thursday

Bathing. Showering. Your moment to take care of yourself. Time for a breast self-examination...it could save your life.

A breast self-examination clinic sponsored by the American Cancer Society will be Thursday at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The clinic will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Room 441 of the hospital.

Instructors are Carmen Edwards, RN, who is the nurse committee chairman for the American Cancer Society; and Ann Parsons, RN, who is the public education chairman for ACS.

The event is free and open to the public.

Breast cancer strikes 109,000 American women every year. One of 11 women is destined to get breast cancer during her lifetime. And it kills almost 36,000 women annually. It is the major cancer killer of women and its main target is women over 35.

In fact, it is the leading cause of all deaths in women from 40 to 44. It also strikes men, but very infrequently.

The cause of breast cancer is unknown. There is a common misconception that an injury to the breast can cause breast cancer, but there is no evidence to support this. The injury usually calls a woman's attention to a tumor that is already there.

About 95 percent of breast cancers are discovered by women themselves, often through the practice of breast self-examination.

Every woman hould take the time to examine her breasts for signs of cancer. Once a month is often enough and the best time is right after her period. After the menopause, any set day, such as the first of the month, is a good time to do the exam. After a hysterectomy, she should check with her doctor for the best time.

When a breast has been removed for cancer, a woman should examine the remaining breast regularly and the area around the incision. She should also see her surgeon for periodic checkups.

For more information about the clinic, call 683-6374.

Femininity among cadets

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Air Force Academy women cadets should "look feminine" and not be "less than a woman," says the new head of the academy, Maj. Gen. Robert E. Kelley.

Kelley, who became the academy's ninth superintendent June 16, has asked the commandant of cadets to make sure the blue uniforms worn by women cadets are "up to speed." He said he wants future Air Force women officers to "look and be feminine" and to represent "the very best women in America."

When women cadets first enrolled at the academy in 1976, there probably was a tendency "to reduce their femininity," Kelley said, adding he does not like the hats issued women cadets and would like them to wear the same kind of hats as the men.

"I like that because what they're saying is, 'We want to be all the way in,'" Kelley said.

And he believes the black shoes worn by the cadets should be replaced with something better. They "make a young girl look like an old woman of the 1800s," Kelley said.

Here's the answer

AP Newsfeatures

Q. — We are badly in need of storm windows on one side of our house, but we hate to go to the expense of them because we plan to sell the house within a year or two. I have been reading about the plastic sheets that are installed on the insides of windows. Do these really help?

A. — Definitely yes. They range in type from the plain sheets to the kind with frames around the plastic. Their drawback is that, when the plastic is in place on the inside, the window cannot be opened. An added thought: If you should decide on regular storm windows, you'll have a good selling point when it comes time to sell the house.

Q. — We have regular electrical switches in our house. How do I go about putting in a couple of switches in our bedrooms that keep the light on a few minutes while getting into bed?

A. — You merely buy the correct type of delay switches and install them the same as you do regular switches. The catch is that most electrical codes forbid anyone but a licensed electrician from doing such work. If you want to do it yourself — and know how — check with your local authorities about the legality of such an installation.

Town has 'Thank Heavens for Evans Fun-Draiser'

By RICHARD COLVIN
Associated Press Writer

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — If village mechanic Larry Evans had charged going rates at his fix-it-all garage, there wouldn't have been a Thank Heavens for Evans Fun-Draiser.

But for 17 years, he cared more for his work than for his pay.

Sometimes he'd charge $2 plus parts for a day's work, or take almost anything in trade, or offer an easy payment plan which meant no payment at all.

"I tried to do a decent job at a fair price, and that fluctuates," said Evans, 41. "I didn't have very good business sense, I guess."

So when trouble developed for Evans and his garage, many of the 1,800 folks in this northwest Arkansas mountain town decided to give back some of the neighborly help he had given them so often.

That's how Fun-Draiser came about.

The garage is closed, but it's a transition, not the end.

Evans' problem began after a conveniece store opened in the gas station above his garage last winter. The owners decided his clutter created a bad image. He didn't have the money to do much about it.

At $3 a head, the February benefit drew a mixed batch of 400 people hippies, craftsmen, motel owners, tourist shop operators, young and old.

With three bands making music and a 12-foot caricature of Evans on the wall, they packed the 1886 Crescent Hotel's ballroom probably as full as it has been since John Philip Sousa's 1929 concert, Evans-booster Wilf Grulke said.

They sang, they drank they laughed, they stomped, they pranced in old-style mountain kicker dances.

Game had gruesome origin

"Ring around the rosies, pocketful of posies," had a gruesome origin — the deadly bubonic plague, which swept England in 1665. The "rosies" referred to the rosy rash of the disease, posies were herbs and spices carried to sweeten the disease-foul air.

"We all fall down," at the end of the song, probably meant falling down dead.

Fully ripe berries are better

By TOM STEVENSON
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

Delicious, fully ripe strawberries, raspberries, blackberries and blueberries are easy to grow, and there is a good reason for growing them. Those purchased at the market are not nearly as nice as those harvested when full ripe.

For example, strawberries from the market are picked when they turn whitish. They turn red after being picked but never gain in flavor. Raspberries are seldom seen in the market, because they spoil so quickly.

Blackberries are not ripe when they first turn black. They should be harvested when they are sweet and ready to drop off at the slightest touch. Blackberries should be allowed to stay on the plant for at least one week after they turn blue.

Ripe berries will come loose easlily and drop off into your hand.

A good new book, "The Berry Book — The Illustrated Home Gardener's Guide to Growing and Using Over 50 Kinds and 500 Varieties of Berries," by Robert Hendrickson (Doubleday, 295 pages, $14.95) has just been published. It can be very helpful to those who would like to grow their own berries. Your book store can order it for you if it does not have it in stock.

"Home-grown berries can be raised by anyone with a small patch of ground in the backyard (or by city gardeners on a terrace). They are not specialty items for expert gardeners alone, as so many people believe," the author writes.

"The Berry Book" covers species of berries that can be grown in the home garden and gathered in the wild. Hendrickson has tried to cover all methods of growing berries and has included all aspects of growing from purchasing and setting out plants to collecting berries from the wild and propagating them at no cost.

Birds are probably the worst pests you'll encounter in raising berries, the author says, though they'll attract many beautiful species you wouldn't have seen otherwise.

To prvent birds from devouring the entire crop, he suggests the following methods in addition to the time-honored scarecrow:

— Pieces of rope or garden hose placed at strategic sites, which may be mistaken for snakes by birds, who keep their distance.

— White string wrapped around bushes. It looks like spiderwebs left on in the berry patch. to birds and frightens them off. Birds appreciate neither rock or classical music.

— Transistor radios

He's the wild mushroom man from Connecticut

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Vincent Marteka wears an impish smile when he refers to himself as the "wild mushroom man from Connecticut."

But the adjective "wild" is meant to modify "mushroom" and not "man." Marteka is the author of a clear and comprehensive guide to mushrooms that grow in the wild.

"I wanted to show a person what certain edible mushrooms look like at certain times through the year," he explained.

"Picking mushrooms is like picking strawberries," Marteka said. "You don't need to know about all the toxic berries that grow on trees once you know what is a strawberry.

"The same is true of mushrooms. I tried to focus on certain common, easily recognized mushrooms. And, fortunately, these are some of the best tasting ones," he said.

Although Marteka remembers picking mushrooms with his father in his hometown of Uxbridge, Mass., as a boy, it was a five-year struggle to write "Mushrooms, Wild and Edible."

In that time, he compiled notes, drawings and took photographs of the plants as they occur in the wild. He found many of the existent books on the subject difficult to read.

"There were five or six general field guides, a couple of special books on toxic mushrooms, some regional guides and a few coffee-table books that are pretty to look at but have limited information," he said.

The 45-year-old editor of a science magazine for teen-agers put out by Xerox Educational Publications in Middletown set out "to avoid the cryptic descriptions and the difficult-to-read keys found in the other books about mushrooms.

"I wanted to make a person feel as if he knew the mushroom in depth."

Toward that goal, the book published by Norton records not only the seasonal changes in the mushrooms, but also their history and best recipes.

"It was second nature for me to go out with my father, carrying a knife and a paper bag, in the fields and woods around my home when I was a boy. It was just natural," he said.

His father, Marteka explained, was not afflicted with the phobia of mushrooms that is dominant in America. When the elder Marteka emigrated to this country at the age of 8, he discovered mushrooms like those he had picked in Zakliczyn, a town near Krakow in Poland, Marteka said.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will live in Midland.

He's the wild mushroom man from Connecticut

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Vincent Marteka wears an impish smile when he refers to himself as the "wild mushroom man from Connecticut."

But the adjective "wild" is meant to modify "mushroom" and not "man." Marteka is the author of a clear and comprehensive guide to mushrooms that grow in the wild.

"I wanted to show a person what certain edible mushrooms look like at certain times through the year," he explained.

"Picking mushrooms is like picking strawberries," Marteka said. "You don't need to know about all the toxic berries that grow on trees once you know what is a strawberry.

"The same is true of mushrooms. I tried to focus on certain common, easily recognized mushrooms. And, fortunately, these are some of the best tasting ones," he said.

Although Marteka remembers picking mushrooms with his father in his hometown of Uxbridge, Mass., as a boy, it was a five-year struggle to write "Mushrooms, Wild and Edible."

In that time, he compiled notes, drawings and took photographs of the plants as they occur in the wild. He found many of the existent books on the subject difficult to read.

"There were five or six general field guides, a couple of special books on toxic mushrooms, some regional guides and a few coffee-table books that are pretty to look at but have limited information," he said.

The 45-year-old editor of a science magazine for teen-agers put out by Xerox Educational Publications in Middletown set out "to avoid the cryptic descriptions and the difficult-to-read keys found in the other books about mushrooms.

"I wanted to make a person feel as if he knew the mushroom in depth."

Toward that goal, the book published by Norton records not only the seasonal changes in the mushrooms, but also their history and best recipes.

"It was second nature for me to go out with my father, carrying a knife and a paper bag, in the fields and woods around my home when I was a boy. It was just natural," he said.

His father, Marteka explained, was not afflicted with the phobia of mushrooms that is dominant in America. When the elder Marteka emigrated to this country at the age of 8, he discovered mushrooms like those he had picked in Zakliczyn, a town near Krakow in Poland, Marteka said.

Fully ripe berries are best

Delicious, fully ripe strawberries, cherries, blackberries, and boysenberries are easy to grow, and there are good reasons for growing them. Those purchased at the market are not nearly as ripe as those harvested when fully ripe.

For example, strawberries from the market are picked when they turn white. They turn red after being picked but never gain in flavor. Raspberries are seldom seen in the market, because they spoil so quickly.

Blackberries are not ripe when they first turn black. They should be harvested when they are sweet and ready to drop off at the slightest touch. Blackberries should be allowed to stay on the plant for at least one week after they turn blue.

Ripe berries will come loose easily and drop off into your hand.

A good new book, "The Berry Book — The Illustrated Home Gardener's Guide to Growing and Using Over 50 Kinds and 500 Varieties of Berries," by Robert Hendrickson (Doubleday, 286 pages, $14.95) has just been published. It can be very helpful to those who would like to grow their own berries. Your book store can order it for you if it does not have it in stock.

"Home-grown berries can be raised by anyone with a small patch of ground in the backyard (or by city gardeners on a terrace). They are not specialty items for expert gardeners alone, as so many people believe," the author writes.

"The Berry Book" covers species of berries that can be grown in the home garden and gathered in the wild. Hendrickson has tried to cover all methods of growing berries and has included all aspects of growing from purchasing and setting out plants to collecting berries from the wild and propagating them at no cost.

Birds are probably the worst pests you'll encounter in raising berries, the author says, though they'll attract many beautiful species you wouldn't have seen otherwise.

To prvent birds from devouring the entire crop, he suggests the following methods in addition to the time-honored scarecrow:

— Pieces of rope or garden hose placed at strategic sites, which may be mistaken for snakes by birds, who keep their distance.

— White string

Lifestyle guidelines

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:

Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper.

Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

DEAR ABBY

Maturity, not just age, counts in dating game

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My parents are divorced and my father is dating a 30-year-old woman. He is 45. Meanwhile, my mother, who is 42, is going with a 55-year-old man. I'm 14, so why can't I go with a 22-year-old guy?

How can both my parents say he is too old for me when my dad is 15 years older than his girlfriend, and my mom's boyfriend is 13 years older than she is? — OLD ENOUGH TO COUNT

DEAR OLD ENOUGH: It's not the "age difference" your parents are concerned about. They probably feel that at 14, you're not sufficiently mature to handle a relationship with a 22-year-old man. (Few 14-year-olds are.) Count to 10 and simmer down, dear. Your parents want the best for you.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem talking to people. If I look someone in the eyes while speaking, my face turns red and I get all choked up inside — especially if I'm talking to a man. If I'm paid some sort of compliment, I can feel my face turn red and I have to look the other way. When I'm with a group of people talking, I never say anything because my voice is so soft, no one ever hears me anyway. At work I have heard several comments on how "stuck up" I am because I don't talk to anybody. This makes me angry because there's no way I can defend myself and let people know I'm not stuck up, I'm just shy.

I saw a psychiatrist and couldn't even look her in the eye. She told me she couldn't help unless we communicated, but I couldn't get the words out even though I knew exactly what I wanted to say.

I tried group therapy. It cost me $75, and I didn't say two words during the whole session. I have no trouble writing my feelings, but I just can't express them verbally to anyone. It's driving me insane.

I'm 21, blonde hair, blue eyes, 5-foot-9 and 135 pounds, and everyone tells me how great-looking I am, but I am beginning to despise myself because of my hang-up. Abby, please help me. — DESPERATE IN DENVER

DEAR DESPERATE: For openers, please read the book, "Shyness: What It Is and What to Do About It." It's by Philip G. Zimbardo, a Stanford University psychologist. It's one of the most helpful books I've yet to see about shyness, and is written in language that everyone is able to understand. If that doesn't help, write again. I have other ideas.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having an argument, and we can't find anyone who can settle it, so please ask one of your consultants. He says there is just as much nutritional value in the vitamins you buy in a store as in the vitamins you get in food.

I say he is wrong — there is no way you can imitate nature, that the vitamins you get in food are far superior to the synthetic vitamins mnaufactured in some laboratory. If I'm wrong I'll eat this newspaper. Thank you. — FRAN IN FAYETTEVILLE, ARK.

DEAR FRAN: Start nibbling. The United States Public Health Service's Food and Drug Administration spokesperson says, "Synthetic vitamins, manufactured in a laboratory, are identical to the natural vitamins found in foods. The body cannot tell the difference, and derives the same amount of benefit from either source."

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

More hobos are riding the rails

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — He flourished in the Great Depression, rising to the heights of romanticism, then faded — the American hobo riding the rails to nowhere.

With names like "Texas Red," "Cowboy" and "Beanie," these drifters are making a comeback, railroad security agents say, and they are a mixed breed.

The hobos themselves acknowledge their traveling companions are younger and rougher than traditional railroad bums, and old-timers say they travel in groups to avoid attacks by young ruffians.

They still sleep in boxcars and "hobo jungles," eat their meals on the run and swap lies and free advice on which railroad lines to ride. Many of them drink heavily.

"I look back to the Depression, and see that there may be just as many hobos as in the '30s," said Bill "Texas Red" Jackson, 58. He was camped on the outskirts of a Fort Worth trainyard not long ago. It was not home. Like most hobos, he was just passing through. Destination: unknown.

"I caught my first freight when I was 12 years old, running away from home," said Jackson.

His traveling companion, 54-year-old Tom Yarbrough, said the two men were sleeping in an abandoned railroad car north of downtown.

They were visibly nervous at an intruder's approach, and said their biggest worry was younger hobos and the yard police. "Those yard dicks or bulls," said Jackson, "some of them are pretty tough."

It is W.F. Moody's job as special agent for the Fort Worth & Denver Railway to keep hobos off trains. To him, hobos are transients and trespassers. They are warned to leave a train on the first encounter and jailed if necessary.

"We have had 90 some-odd so far this month," Moody said. "No telling how many get by us." He said the normal trespasser count on the railroad's North Yard is 20 to 40 per month.

"The old hobo — what we consider a hobo — gives us no trouble," Moody said. "The only time they do give us trouble is when they are drunk."

Trainmen have been mugged and robbed in Fort Worth by younger hobos, he said.

"These hobos are not like they used to be," Jackson said. "They rob you, knock you in the head and tear up your junk. It's hard to keep a decent hobo jungle anymore."

Older bums traveling alone and weaponless are asking for trouble, he said.

"You better have company," Jackson said. "You better carry a gun if you can."

In Fort Worth, where 12 major rail lines intersect in a mixing bowl of tracks and yards, Jackson estimated there are perhaps 50 jungles or encampments and about 500 hobos.

"Anywhere you find a railroad track, there is an encampment," Moody said. "It may have as many as 15 to 20 hobos sometimes."

Inhabitants have included the once-famous or well-to-do. Jim Womack, assistant chief special agent for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad Co., said two hobos at a Dallas yard were a physician and a professor of history at a northern university.

"They'd had it with their families," Womack said. "When they ran out of money, they'd wash dishes somewhere."

Jackson, rolling a cigarette in the shade of an empty boxcar, said the hazards of riding the rails are still outweighed by its pleasures. Hobos consider hitchhiking more dangerous than hopping freights.

"It is like riding the Greyhound," he said. "You leave the driving to someone else."

Children's Service League follows pattern of faith

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The ninth Beefeater's Ball sponsored by Children's Service League to benefit the Cerebral Palsy Center is scheduled for Oct. 9 at the Midland County Exhibit Building. Festivities begin at 8 p.m. Chairman is Don Evans and co-chairman is Ferrell Davis. Activities for the black-tie event will include a formal ball and cattle auction.)

Midland Cerebral Palsy Center gives free treatment to any child in the surrounding area diagnosed as suffering from cerebral palsy. Under supervision of Dr. Thurston Dean and a group of Midland physicians who donate their services, the Cerebral Palsy Center employs a full time physical therapist, a full time occupational therapist and a full time speech therapist.

Members of Children's Service League (CSL) staff the Center, providing secretarial, clerical, bookkeeping and receptionist services. They also act as aides for the teachers in the classrooms and assist the physical therapist in care and treatment of CP children.

The Cerebral Palsy Center is maintained and operated entirely through contributions from interested individuals and groups, and monies raised by the Children's Service League through yearly projects.

The Midland Children's Service League is the sole sponsor of the Midland Cerebral Palsy.

The original CP center was built in 1956 on 2111 W. Ohio, with the majority of the labor and approximately half of the building materials donated. A new building was completed at 802 Ventura in 1974 and the Center now serves 140 children from 17 counties in West Texas.

Dr. Bill Alexander and Dr. Charles Younger, orthopedic surgeons, serve with Dr. Dean on the medical staff. Th Outdoor Learning Center was completed in 1975 with funds provided by the Mabee Foundation.

CSL was organized in 1939 when a group of women decided that, rather than meet just to sew for their own families, they would make layettes for needy families. Used clothing was also collected and distributed to indigents in Midland.

Over the years, the group has taken over several projects beside the Cerebral Palsy Center, including the Well Child Conference, Children's Diagnostic Clinic, Immunization Clinics and Prenatal Clinic.

The Well Child Conference was organized in 1945 and CSL began staffing these clinics at that time. The City-County Health Department and local pediatricians sponsor these clinics for the purpose of examining and immunizing infants and young children through age six, and to educate the mothers in child care.

Any indigent child from birth to age six is cared for in these clinics, which are held weekly at the City-County Health Department in the basement of Midland Memorial Hospital and at satellite clinics. These satellite clinics are located at 1109 E. Parker and 310 E. Florida. They are scheduled on Mondays, Wednesday and Friday, with an attending physician and one county health nurse on duty at each clinic. Currently, 12 clinics are held each month, with an average of 15 to 20 children per clinic.

Midland Children's Dignostic clinic was organized in 1951 by CSL and Junior League of Midland. Both organizations contributed financial assistance along with volunteer workers. The clinic was held weekly at the City-County Health Department located at the hospital. A registered nurse was employed for this clinic and local pediatricians were in attendance on a rotation basis. Now, pediatricians conduct these examnations in their offices rather than the Health Department.

If consultations were needed, the patients were referred to appropriate specialists. All of these physicians donate their time and services.

In 1974, the Junior League withdrew from the project and Children's Service League became the sole sponsor for this clinic for medically indigent children in Midland. Children examined in this clinic must be referred by the Well Child Conference or a physician.

Families of the patients of the Midland Children's Diagnostic Clinic are screened by a system worked out in conjunction with county welfare officials. Each child is given a complete and thorough physical examination. If further laboratory work or x-rays are needed, they are paid by the Children's Service League.

Immunization Clinic was organized in 1940, and CSL began staffing the clinic in 1964; it is also staffed by associate members and volunteers from the community. The county health nurses are in attendance at these clinics, which are held weekly at the hospital and at the satellite clinics located on Parker and Florida Streets.

Purpose of the Immunization Clinic is to provide continuing protection against diptheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, mumps, rubella and poliomyelitis. Another purpose of this clinic is to educate the parents of the need for this protection. Immunizations are available to everyone at no charge. School children are required to have them before entering public schools.

Prenatal Clinic was re-organized in 1967. This clinic is sponsored by the City County Health Department and local obstetricians and general physicians. Volunteers from CSL provide the volunteer assistance for this clinic. Purpose is to furnish prenatal care for the indigent women of Midland County who cannot afford the services of a medical doctor.

Articuladies Toastmistress Club aids in building self-confidence

Articuladies Toastmistress Club is an organization which stresses the importance of communication and speaking, leadership training and skills in organizational techniques.

One of the club's main purposes is to build self-confidence through the exchange of ideas and experiences and grow within these areas with the supportive encouragement of the group.

Members of Toastmistress learn to increase communication abilities both as a speaker and as a listener. Training is made easy by following a carefully designed developmental sequence. Each member learns by doing and progresses at her own rate of speed.

All interested persons are invited to join the group.

Make it yours: Needlepoint gifts

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service

Gifts of needlepoint don't have to be slow, exacting, time-consuming projects. Needlepoint is equally well-suited for many small, easy-to-make gifts.

Personalized bookmarks and bookends, for example, are perfect presents for anybody, male or female, friends or family. Literally, anyone who reads can find use for attractive, personal accessories such as these.

The bookmark and bookends come from "Small Needlpoint Treasures" by Meredith Gladstone. The book, published by Morrow, is filled with charming, quick projects that also include belts, pictue frames, letter holders, boxes, Christmas ornaments and keychains.

For small projects, Gladstone recommends monogram designs and includes several different alphabets for the reader. Bu using a large decorative letter, you eliminate the need to invent your own design. A letter can easily fill most of the canvas on a small project.

Gladstone also suggests cotton embroidery floss. Cotton floss is easy to work with, economical, and nearly as delicate-looking as silk.

Small needlepoint gifts are perfect for crafters with large gift lists. Here are directions for the bookmark and bookends:

MATERIALS: Canvas, 14-18 mesh per inch, cotton embroidery floss, tapestry needle, masking tape, paper, pencil, ruler, scissors, needle and theread, ribbon or felt for bookmark, fabric and gray metal bookend from stationery story.

PREPARATION: 1. Use 6-strand floss for 17-18 mesh canvas, 8-strand floss for 16-mesh canvas, 9-strand floss for 14-15 mesh canvas. 2. Draw name, monogram or design on paper. Bookmark design should be 6-by-1.75. Bookend design should be 4.75-by-4.75 unless your bookend is an unusual size. 3. Cut canvas 1 inch larger than design all around. 4. Trace design onto canvas. 5. Tape edges of canvas with masking tape. 6. Stitch in needlpoint design. 7. Block canvas while you still have the taped edges to grasp.

BOOKMARK: 1. Trim excess canvas. 2. Turn back edges and finish with a buttonhole stitch. 3. Cut rubbon or felt to size of needlepoint. 4. Glue, or slip-stitch in place along edges.

BOOKEND: 1. Trim excess canvas. 2. Turn back bottom edge of needlepoint and finish with buttonhole stitch. 3. Cut fabric to same size as needlepoint. 4. With right sides together, stitch top and side edges. 5. Turn right side out. 6. Slip over bookend.

Three pennies for luck

Golfer Jack Nicklaus says he abhors superstition, but he has to have three pennies in his pocket before he will tee off. Same for Tom Weiskopf, who must also carry exactly three tees.

Brazil keeps bananas

Brazil grows one of evey five of the world's bananas but consumes all but 3 percent of them. In contrast, Costa Rica exports nerly every banana it grows, and depends on this trade for more than 25 percent of its annual export earnings.

'Solar-powered' farms

At present, agriculture is the only major sector of our economy that uses solar energy on a broad scale. Photosynthesis makes it possible for plants to convert the sun's energy into readily storable and usable forms for other uses.

200 species per acre

One-third of the world's forested area is in the tropics. Tropical rain forests can contain trees of 200 to 300 species on one acre. Most U.S. forests have fewer than five species on a single acre and at the most 10 to 12 in commercial forests.

AT WIT'S END

You can tell true love by the phone bill

By ERMA BOMBECK

A lot of mothers I know are downright meddling when it comes to their children's selection of a boyfriend or a girlfriend. They want to know how old, how tall, what their father does, where they live, the scope of their education, what their plans are for the future, and how they feel about children.

I don't care about any of those things. All I want to know is, "Is he or she a local call or a toll?"

I don't remember names or faces of old flames. All I remember is their area code. One of my sons once dated an area code 513 for six months. It was marriage by Ma Bell. I figured we were spending $35 a month to share such insights as:

"What are you doing?"

"Nothing, what are you doing?"

"So, what's new?"

Another one of my kids showed an interest in a lovely girl who lived just a few miles from us. It was great. I didn't have to worry about a deep involvement because they were never off the phone. He set his alarm to call her in the morning. At night I used to go in and remove the phone from his ear as he slept. It was like hanging up an umbilical cord. As soon as they left one another at school in the afternoon they would shout, "I'll call you when I get home." I offered to feed him intravenously.

The suggestion by my husband to put a timer by the phone with sand running through was ridiculous. However, I did slip a calendar under his door and circle the month.

Panic didn't set in until one day when I was standing near and saw him dial "1."

"Who are you calling?" I asked.

"You know," he said, "The same person I've been talking with for the last month."

"But I thought she was a local call."

"Don't worry," he said. "It only costs about eight cents a minute. Besides, this isn't just some silly kid infatuation. This is a person I genuinely care for and want to spend the rest of my life with. She's important to me. She's special and there isn't anything I wouldn't do for her."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," I said, "because according to the that day. When toll phone bill you owed us charges enter the room, $36.86 in long distance charges."

. . love goes right out the window.

PTA District 17 seminar planned

The Odessa City Council Parent Teacher's Association will host the District 17 Fall Seminar Thursday at the Cresent Park Baptist Church in Odessa. Registration for the event will be from 8:30-9:15 a.m. with a general meeting following.

Opening remarks will be presented by Elsie Smith, state representative from Lubbock.

At 10 a.m. the following workshops will be offered:

1. Time Management — Conducted by Vernon Stokes from Region 18 Education Service Center.
2. Rape Prevention — Conducted by Kay Maley, counselor at Odessa College and Bianca Brister, detective with the Odessa Police Department. Preventive measures will be taught appropriate to both children and adults.
3. PTA Information School for Officers.
4. PTS Information School for Chairmen — Conducted by Ms. Smith.
5. New Legislation and Its Effect on Our Schools — Conducted by Keith Dial.
6. PTA Programs — Highlights of the state developed PTA programs and how to implement one of them.

The only charge will be for a catered lunch and there will not be a babysitting service this year. Glenda Pruitt, president of District 17, urges all interested parents, teachers and principals to make plans to attend.

District 17 Executive Board will meet at 7 p.m. Sept. 23 at Sancho's Mexican Buffet, 1835 W. 8th Street in Odessa.

New birth control device for men has side effects

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The birth control device of the future may be a bottle of nose drops. But even though the drug it might contain has been shown effective when taken in shot form, the medicine caused some men to lose their sex drive.

The researchers also said the medicine caused the men to have hot flashes, a symptom of menopause experienced by many women.

Dr. David Rabin, who directed research on the contraceptive at Vanderbilt University, writes in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine that the medicine cut sperm counts significantly but the impotence and hot flashes remained as significant problems.

He said five more years of study may be necessary before doctors know for sure whether the drug is safe and effective.

In the study, the drug was administered through daily injections, but other researchers have shown that the medicine can be administered as nose drops. It cannot be taken in pill form.

The drug LHRH — luteinizing hormone-releasing hormone — cuts sperm output by causing the brain's pituitary gland to bombard the body with the chemicals that activate the testes of men and the ovaries of women.

However, if given in continuous doses, "you get a paradoxical response," Rabin said. "It's as though the pituitary rebels against the continuous bombardment of LHRH from the brain, and it turns off its production of the hormone, so gonadal function falls."

Eight men — all of whom planned to undergo vasectomies — took the medicine for six to 10 weeks. The average sperm counts fell from 94 million to 12 million per milliliter. Only one man's count dropped to zero.

Because it takes 10 weeks for the body to make sperm, Rabin says he believes the men's sperm would have been eliminated had they taken the medicine longer.

But the drug also diminished production of testosterone, the male sex hormone, and five of men became impotent. However, their libido, potency and sperm production returned to normal after they stopped taking the medicine.

"I think the results are encouraging," Rabin said. "We need to do a lot more work. The number of subjects studied was small. The time of administration was relatively narrow. And we would like to have an agent that acts selectively on sperm production."

Rabin has given men supplemental doses of testosterone to see if they can be temporarily sterilized without losing their sex drive. Another possibility, he said, would be to develop a form of LHRH that will elminate sperm production but not interfere with sex hormones.

Researchers long have been looking for a male version of the birth control pill. Doctors in China are at work on a male birth control medicine called gossypol that is made from cottonseed. However, it can produce a variety of unpleasant side effects, including fever, burning sensation irregular heartbeats.

Gardening is good for body and soul

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

Most of us, to one degree or another, have felt the physical benefits of working in our gardens during this growing season. Medical authorities say gardening introduces a degree of activity which mildly increases the heart rate, slightly raises the blood pressure, gets muscles into tone, keeps the joints loose and supple and stimulates the heart to circulate more blood.

Garden work, they say, provides the ideal necessary warm-up exercises to limber one up for jogging. So have a 10-minute work spree in the garden before your jog each day and wind down with a wee bit of puttering among the vegetables and flowers.

And why bring up the subject of garden exercise at this point in the season when the garden begins to wind down in most areas? First of all, there is still a great deal of benefit to be derived from those cleanup jobs and last harvests. Rough-digging before winter with a long-handled spade, for example, delivers full-body exercise. Leg and arm muscles receive a good workout.

Another reason it is good to think about gardening as excellent exercise at this time of year is to encourage ourselves to keep up this exercise as long into the fall as possible. And one fine way to extend the gardening season is to plant some of the spring flowering bulbs.

The fall planting of spring flowering bulbs gives us not only beneficial exercise but mental stimulation as well. Along with our limbs, our imaginations stretch as we contemplate the placement of a patch of tulips or crocus. As we limber up our leg and back muscles and stretch our hamstrings, our minds are free to picture the masses of bloom that will be ours to enjoy at winter's end.

For those among the gardening fraternity who prefer more concrete rewards for their efforts, real estate experts agree that a home owner can put a higher value on a house surrounded by the aesthetic and artistic eye-catching sensation of gardens. In fact, they feel spring is the best time to sell a house because of the flowering gardens that tend to sell a house fast.

Spring bulbs are unique in that they can be used throughout your property in every imaginable location. Consider these areas: the driveway, the foundation area around your house, the entrance leading to your front and back doors. If your home lifestyle incudes outdoor living, why not have bulb plantings around your patio or pool?

Bulbs are so versatile you may use a different bulb variety in each of these areas, a combination of varieties, or an interplanting of bulbs with other flowering plants (both annuals and perennials), ground covers, trees and shrubs. You can plant bulbs in formal beds, random drifts, along borders, with foundation plantings, in rock gardens, around shrubs and under trees. With bulbs, you are your own landscaper.

Christina Cummins, left and Jennifer Prescot, both seven years of age, know that they can depend on a Helping Hand volunteer if they encounter strange or frightening experiences enroute to and from school. Helping Hand volunteers place a poster of a large hand in their window to indicate to children that assistance or support is available if needed. The program, endorsed by Midland City Council PTA in coopration with the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department, is in effect in all of Midland's elementary schools.

Program designed to aid children

Helping Hands program will be adopted once again in the Midland schools.

Endorsed by the Midland City Council PTA and the Crime Prevention Unit of Midland Police Department, the Helping Hands program is designed to provide assistance and support for children who walk to and from school.

"A walk to your neighborhood elementary school may not be as safe for children as you might expect," said Judy Cummins, co-chairman of this year's program along with Linda Runyun.

"This program gives the child an opportunity to get help while enroute to or from school in situations where the child might be in danger. This includes problems with large dogs, bullies, in case of sudden illness, an accident, getting lost or if the child should encounter an alarming stranger and/or a frightening situation," she added.

The illustration of a green hand displayed in a home window is the symbol adopted by the Crime Preventin Unit to provide local children with this assistance. The signs are being donated to the Midland Independent School District by the Downtown Lions Club. The do's and don'ts for volunteers of Helping Hands are printed on the back of the sign in both English and Spanish.

Functions of the Helping Hand volunteers will be to act as extra eyes and for law enforcement officers; be on call when children are normally on the street; report incidents to the proper authorities immediately; prominently display a Helping Hand sign to designate the volunteer home; have emergency telephone numbers handy and notify child's parent if necessary; and remove sign from window when leaving home.

Volunteers are advised not to transport children in their cars; give medication of any kind; administer first aid; break uf fights; or provide food, beverages or money.

Children can not use the volunteer home for treats, toilet facilities or disagreements with sisters or brothers.

Cancer Society, Larry Hagman sponsoring letter writing contest

The American Cancer Society and TV star Larry Hagman are sponsoring the "Larry Hagman Quit Smoking-Letter Writing Contest" being held now through Sept. 27.

The contest is part of a nation-wide competition with the purpose of finding original and practical ideas to help cigarette smokers to quit.

The contest will be conducted locally by radio station KCRS. Contestants are being asked to submit letters of 100 words or less on their ideas on how to quit smoking. Letters from contestants must be postmarked before midnight Sept. 27.

Local winners will advance to national competition, and winners will be announced shortly before the fifth annual nationwide observance of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, which Hagman will also head.

The Smokeout is set for Nov. 19.

Letters will be judged on the basis of three factors—originality, practicality and clarity. National winner will receive a three day, all-expense paid trip for two to Hollywood, Calif., to have dinner with Hagman.

Texas judges for the contest are Elbert D. Glover, Ph.D., chairman of the Health Education Department at Texas Christian University; Penny Reeves, Smokeout chairperson; and Leon Hale, columnist for the Houston Post. These judges will review the five finalist letters from each participating ACS unit and select from these the three state finalist letters for national competition.

As an added incentive to all Texas participants, the Larry Mahan Boot Collection in El Paso has arranged to present each of the three Texas finalists a pair of western boots made from exotic leathers.

Both state and national contest winners will be announced prior to the Smokeout.

Hagman's involvement with the Smokeout is only part of his interest in the anti-smoking activities of the ACS. According to Ms. Reeves, Hagman plans to take an active leadership role all year long. He has already made a number of anti-smoking TV and radio spots, and will be the Society's media spokesman for its quit-smoking programs.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Several ways to clean silk flowers

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a beautiful silk flower arrangement that has accumulated a lot of dust over the years.

Is there any way silk flowers can be cleaned without ruining them? — Kathy Dalton

+ + +

I think so! Treba Jensen writes that she removes the flowers from the arrangement, and, holding them by the stems, puts them into a bag of borax or table salt.

She closes the bag and shakes. The granules help to remove the dust and grime. Just don't get carried away — those flowers are pretty delicate.

Another lady writes that she simply swishes the flowers in a solution of mild liquid detergent and cold water, lets them dry and returns them to the flower arrangement. This worked on my flowers, but be sure to test one flower before doing the whole bunch.

Now you may be one who shudders at the thought of trying to get those flowers back into the original arrangement after having removed them.

Well, the next best thing to do would be to get your blow-type hair dryer and gently blow the dust off those blooms.

Aren't those silk flowers just simply gorgeous! Almost as good as Nature's own! — Heloise

COUPONS AGAIN

Dear Heloise: Another easy way to keep up with those cents-off coupons while at the checkout counter is using rubber bands.

Attach each coupon to it's item with the rubber band. The coupon can easily be slipped out by the checker, or yourself. Just leave the rubber band attached.

When you get home, as you put away the groceries, remove the rubber bands and save them for the next trip to the store. — Wilma McNey

PRETTY RECYCLING

Dear Heloise: I have a use for worn-out sheets. I use the very best part of the sheet (usually along the edges, as the middle wears out first).

I measure the tops of my refrigerator, freezer, bureaus, etc. (things that are not seen by everyone) and cut the sheet to size, hemming the cut edges.

They make excellent scarves, especially since sheets come in such decorative colors and designs these days.

A little lace or crochet could be sewn along the edges if something fancier is preferred. — Great Grandmother

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: I'm sure that everyone has had waffles left over and didn't want to waste them by throwing them out.

Here's an attractive way to use them. Cut them into small shapes and let them dry out, either by air or in the "leftover" heat of the oven.

Then put small pieces of cheese of any variety or several different kinds, on top of the waffle pieces. Now they'll become hors d'oeuvres. Slide them into the oven long enough to melt the cheese.

If your party attenders are as crazy about these tidbits as some of mine have been, you can make up a batch of waffles especially for this purpose, varying them by adding different spices and flavorings.

Experimenting will be fun. — F. Don Seaman

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dear Heloise: For a little different idea on serving treats at a child's birthday party, next time try this:

Save shoe boxes until you have one for each guest. Line the boxes with plastic wrap, put in some little sandwiches, maybe a piece of candy or cookies, and even a small carton of milk with a straw.

Party favors can be included. Wrap the box with pretty paper, or the comic section of the Sunday paper, and put a name tag for each child.

Each guest will get to open a "present' and have a fun meal at the same time. It can be served on the playroom floor, or outside on the lawn. Birthday cake can be served later. — Eleanor Scott

Suggestions for buying woodworking tools

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Got a woodworker in your home? If so, it's not too early to consider giving him (or her) a woodworking tool for Christmas.

Most people who plan such a gift think in terms of power tools, but a do-it-yourselfer or at-home woodworker might appreciate a hand tool. Hand tools are enjoying a resurgence of popularity as hobbyists enjoy the slower, more careful processes afforded by them.

Making sound choices from among the myriad of hand tools on the market will be much easier if you know what to look for in terms of quality, function and usefulness.

Tools built to last usually will cost more but generally are better bargains than those offered in special sales bins. This doesn't mean sales should not be patronized. Only rarely, however, will top quality tools be offered at much less than their regular prices.

How do you judge top quality? By price? By the company's reputation? The question was put to Garretson Chinn, president of Garrett Wade, a supplier of woodworking tools and materials.

"Those things count," he said, "but the best method for judging quality in a hand tool is to hold it in your hand, feel its weight and balance for ease of handling, and closely examine the construction and size of its fittings.

"You may think this requires some kind of special knowledge and skill, but you would be amazed at how much even a novice can tell about a tool by handling it and examining it closely and carefully."

The feel of tools is especially important in hand saws. There are crosscut saws for cutting plywood and backsaws for more precise work. These usually have rectangular blades stiffened with steel or brass along the top edge. To determine the quality of a saw, feel the comfort of the handle, note the quality of the steel blade, and general overall balance. A high quality saw will have finely set teeth and will require less frequent sharpening than ordinary saws.

A gift choice might be a "nest of saws" which features three narrow blades interchangeable on one handle. Two blades, known as keyholes, taper to a small point and are useful for making cutouts in wood and for cutting on curves. The third blade often is squared off and is used for general cutting. This makes a versatile, practical gift for many home and shop uses.

Wood chisels also are available in many varieties and are excellent for all-around usage. There are mortise chisels, used typically for making door hinges fit; paring chisels for trimming work; and cabinetmakers chisels that can be struck with a mallet for heavy forming work.

A quality chisel, whatever its type, would have a forged steel blade with a very keen edge, a good balanced feeling when held, with handles of special wood, such as boxwood, white beech or rosewood.

For woodworkers who enjoy hand finishing rather than using a power tool, a wooden or steel plane can be very useful. Wooden planes are lighter than steel planes and, therefore, less tiring to use.

There are different planes for different uses. The jack bench plane is used for preliminary work; the jointer bench plane is used for final smoothing on flat surfaces. A spokeshave plane can shape curved surfaces on tables or chair legs, and a block plane is small enough to use with one hand and is suited for working on small pieces of wood. It is used mainly for final fitting of edges and general end trimming work.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am contemplating remodeling the outside of our house at the rear so we have a screened-in porch. I have some fiberboard left over from a previous job and would like to use it for the ceiling of the porch. Would it be suitable and, if not, what other material would you suggest?

A. — Fiberboard may not be the right thing to use, since it is likely to suffer from the elements. While rain will not hit the ceiling directly, the board will be affected by dampness. Your best bet is a material made especially for use outdoors, such as hardboard or plywood. Whichever of those you choose, be certain to get the exterior grade.

Q. — We want to try penetrating sealer on a floor that is soon to be refinished. The floor is oak. Will this kind of sealer work on oak and will it keep the wood the same color?

A. — Penetrating sealers are designed to soak into the pores of wood, which makes them extra good for oak. Howver, all finishes darken wood to some extent. You will need several coats. It is very important that, after each application, the excess sealer is wiped off. Do not put on a new coat until you are certain the old one has dried thoroughly.

Q. — There is a squeak coming from our living room floor. I realize there must be one or more loose boards which should be nailed down to silence the noise, but we have wall-to-wall carpeting in the room and it would be an awful nuisance to take it up to do the nailing . The underside of the floor can be reached from below. Can't I work from underneath and drive screws into the floor where the squeaks are?

A. — Yes. You'll need an assistant. Have him or her stand on the floor and move around a bit, just enough to cause squeaks. Once the noise area has been located, the person should stand there while you drive screws upward so that the loose boards of both the subfloor and regular floor are drawn together. Since you don't want the screw points to come out upstairs, you will have to be very careful that the screws are the correct size to prevent this. Generally, the total thickness of both floors is 1¼ inches, but make a test to be sure this is so in your case.

Q. — We have an old-fashioned toilet tank, with a metal float in the tank. When the tank refills, the water level does not go high enough. How do I get it to do so?

A. — Bend the float rod upward so the float itself sits higher in the tank. This will enable the water to rise higher before it shuts off. The most important thing is to bend the rod very carefully so that the entire tank mechanism is not thrown out of alignment.

(Leaky faucets, toilet tank repairs, noisy pipes and other plumbing problems are discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," available by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Oil Safe —
helping stop oil field theft

By KATHRYN HIGHTOWER
Oil Staff

Oilfield equipment is a hot item on the black market these days. Some pieces, such as $3,000 drill bits, may bring $1,000 or more to the thief.

In the isolated West Texas fields, a thief can take what he wants without anyone knowing about it for days, maybe even weeks. Most of the thefts which occur in the oilfield are done by those who are familiar with the area.

In West Texas, 40 percent of all used oilfield equipment — pipe, valves and other gear — is sold by someone other than the original owner, according to a study done by an oilfield security firm.

It's not just equipment that is being stolen. A report in the Oil Daily magazine states that between 2 and 6 percent of the nation's production of 8 million barrels of oil per day is being pilfered — 160,000 to 180,000 barrels — which works out at today's market prices to between $6.4 to $20 million a day. (Approximately 13 percent of all the oil produced in West Texas area is sold by someone other than the original producer, the security firm study says.)

The initial victims of such thefts are the oil companies, producers and pipeline firms, but in the long run it affects the consumers who have to pay higher prices for the products.

That is what Oil Safe, a state licensed oilfield patrol service, is all about — stopping the thefts and vandalisms in the oilfield.

And Howard W. Kloss — a registered private investigator, former police officer and Texas Ranger — owner-operator of Big Spring-based Oil Safe, is doing just that for several major oil companies and independent operators throughout the Permian Basin.

Kloss, along with a group of 37 patrolmen, watch the oilfields, keeping an eye out for thieves and vandals, who can come into the oilfield without detection and take or vandalize equipment. Another 22 guards keep watch over facilities and warehouses serviced by Oil Safe.

The firm has also contracted to patrol one of the new commercial buildings currently being built in Midland.

"Oil Safe deals with the prevention and detection of oilfield crime," said Kloss, who founded the company earlier this year. "The prevention aspect of our service deals with the using of specialized signs being posted on the lease sites, experienced oilfield personnel who are familiar with the workings of an oil lease and its equipment — the use of the latest and most modern equipment on the leases themselves."

The patrolmen, hired by Kloss, are veterans of at least 10 years in the oil field and are familiar with the field they patrol.

They are checked out with the FBI, and local and state authorities to ensure of their honesty and integrity.

"Our employees are all retired, experienced oilfield personnel who are completely familiar with the workings and operations of the oilfield and its problems," said Kloss. "They are not bound by any other job."

The aim of Oil Safe is to sharply curtail, if not completely eliminate, thefts on the leases served by the company. This, in turn, helps the producer, or pipeline firm, by cutting the number of down-time hours caused by the loss of equipment through theft or vandalism.

Each of the fields serviced by Oil Safe are scouted every night. The officers are equipped with half-ton pickups, mobilephones and two-way radios.

Oil Safe works closely with local law enforcement agencies as well as the Texas Rangers. In fact, the guards receive instruction from the local Texas Rangers, said Kloss.

"The patrolmen are trained to use police scatterguns...they are told not to be heroes," Kloss said. "If they run into a problem they are told to call for help."

In addition to the regular patrols, Oil Safe provides a "baby sitting" service for rigs which are shut down for some period of time.

Another way Oil Safe deters possible thefts is by marking each of the leases with a sign stating the area is regularly patroled by the company. Stickers with the Oil Safe ensignia are also attached to various pieces of equipment to deter would-be pilferers.

Employees of Oil Safe are trained to supervise equipment marking. This procedure increases the chances of recovering stolen equipment in the event of theft, Kloss said.

Prevention of petroleum products theft is another one of the services Kloss provides.

A gauger can "misread" a measurement by three inches in a 500 barrel tank, which would leave eight barrels unaccounted for, Kloss said. This oil can be diverted to other tanks or sold to someone with a truck who eventually sells it to a refinery.

"Honest" guagers may even misread their tapes to "keep the production rates up," so the gauger's records will not show the loss, and keep him in good standing with his company.

To combat the theft of petroleum products, Oil Safe, when requested, will send a patrolman to the site after it has been checked by a pumper or gauger to take a second reading. The two readings are then compared to ensure that the readings are the same.

The patrolman goes with the gauger to read the gauges "several days in a row, then he may skip several days, and return at the same time the gauger arrives. After that, he will check the gauges immediately after the gauger leaves." The figures are then checked at a later time, said Kloss.

"We are completely behind the Texas Oil Hotline," Kloss said, "but we had rather stop theft before it ever happens."

Oil-field-experienced Oil Safe patrolmen (above) are dropping gauging lines through "thief hatches" around the region, in an effort to curtail crude oil theft. Howard Kloss (at left) checks the seal on an oil tank valve. The valve handle can't be removed, turned over, and used to open the valve, without breaking the seal.

Oil Field Theft HOT LINE

Call Collect 817 723-1114

Hot line puts the heat on

To combat oil filed theft, state petroleum associations are jointly sponsoring a telephone "Hot line," to which people knowing of oil field theft can call and report an incident.

"Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners, at Amarillo; The West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association, in Abilene; the North Texas Oil and Gas Association, out of Wichita Falls; and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Midland; have joined together in this effort to help eleminate oil field theft if we can," said Ed Thompson, executive vice president of PBPA.

"Actually, our little group was formed directly as a result of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association having some problems, and being more aware of what was happening," Thompson said. "They were the ones that actually kicked this thing off, and deserve full credit for it."

When a theft is reported to the hotline, Thompson explained, the hot line personnel relay the information to the sheriff of the county where the theft occured, and they pass the news along to the petroleum association covering the area. Association members then alert local law enforcement agencies.

"We haven't had any arrests as of yet," Thompson said, but, he speculcated, the existance of a hot line may have helped deter some thieves.

Jan Ward, who monitors the hot line at the NTO&GA offices, expalined that the hotline was launched by her association's executive vice president, Tom Haywood, at a special meeting of the various petroleum associations in June.

"It has been a lot more successful than we had imagined — and it's taking a lot more time than we had expected," Ward said.

"There's been a lot more theft of petroleum itself than we had imagined. It seems to be the hotest item right now." About 40 to 50 percent of hotline calls are to report thefts of crude, Ward said.

"The biggest problem going on right now with the thieves, is we can't seem to pin these people down and get 'em convicted. They litterally have to be cuaght in the act."

Ward characterized Texas oilfields as being "wide open" to thieves. In one case in east Texas, she said, a man is known to be a thief, a big-time operator, but no one has been able to catch him in the act.

"There's just not enough people to spread around and cover even a small percentage of the leases."

So far, Ward said, the hot line has received 60 to 70 theft reports, and 15 calls from informants. The numbers represent only a small percentage of the theft that occurrs.

"A lot of people just don't bother with it. They get ripped off so much, they just don't even bother to call."

A key role for the hot line is statistics gathering, Ward said. "It will help in the long run, nobody really has any statistics right now. No one really knows how big the problem is, we just know it is a big business right now."

Ward said she couldn't say much about them, "but there are two or three cases now under investigation — they were brought about directly from this hot line."

A single conviction could do a lot to slow the thieves, Ward suggested. "If one of their buddies gets put in the pen, it seems to me it would slow people down."

"Another big problem with stolen equipment is that it is not marked," Ward said. Without some sort of identification, it is very difficult for an owner to recover stolen property if it is found.

"If people had their own "brand" and they branded everything like cows, it would be helpful," Ward asserted. Lawmen could check brands and have the evidence needed for recovery of porperty and conviction of thieves.

Branding equipment ought to slow thieves as well, Ward suggested, since they would have to take the time to obliterate the mark if they wanted to avoid troube with the law. As aresult, the flow of stolen property probably would subside.

"Most of these thefts are done by people who either worked in the oil field, or who are still working," Thompson stated. "Unfortunately, they have customers for all their goods. If the oilfield people would start questioning their purchases a little more closely, some of the thievery might end."

"I had a guy tell me he had a call, and this old boy says, 'If you need some tubing or drill pipe, give me the spec's and we can get it,' and left a phone number."

Such callers ought to be questioned, Thompson said.

"If they don't have a yard, and they don't have any equipment, and they don't have any overhead, you begin to wonder just where they can get this oil field equipment, and how they can get it."

Lack of money locks up Nazi synfuel information

By A. M. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A lack of money is keeping researchers from learning the secrets of efficient synthetic fuel production they believe are locked in a half million pages of Nazi documents.

Dr. Kurt Irgolic says that for the past three years, he has been unable to get money to translate, abstract and index the material.

"We asked the Department of Energy for $300,000 a year for three years to complete the project," Irgolic said in a telephone interview. "We haven't got that kind of money yet."

That request was made in 1978. Since then, Irgolic said, the German Document Retrieval Program has gone on at a reduced level.

The Dallas-based Hillcrest Foundation, which Irgolic said funds studies in a variety of areas, donated $40,000. Nonetheless, the Austrian-born chemist said he had to let his last full-time employee go recently.

The team, which at one time had 12 workers, was gathering and analyzing records of the synthetic fuel program in Nazi Germany. The Germans produced about 130 million barrels of synthetic fuel from coal between 1938 and 1945, Irgolic said.

He said the German air force ran entirely on synthetic fuels and that the other military branches used them extensively.

Irgolic said his work, which he says is 5 to 10 percent completed, will not reveal any new method of making liquid fuel from coal. Instead, he says, it will let engineers know what kind of problems to expect in the existing processes.

"The basic reactions of the conversion of coal into liquid are very simple," Irgolic said. "But it is the engineering, the flow and the reaction problems that make or break a process. The Germans ran into these problems and corrected them."

His aim eventually is to include the indices and abstracts in the Department of Energy's computer base in Oak Ridge, Tenn., where scientists and engineers will have ready access to them.

But getting the materials into usable form will cost money, Irgolic said.

"One needs quite a number of people who are knowledgeable of the German language and who have technical experience," he said. "One cannot hire them on short term. They are not easy to find, and they are not cheap, either."

He said he thinks there is considerable need for the information his team would provide. A Dallas company recently asked for 700 pages of information, and a group from West Germany has visited to read some of the material.

Irgolic said he has a number of prospective sources for funding. One is a New York publishing company that is negotiating for rights to the material.

Another is the Department of Energy and the newly created Synthetic Fuels Corp., he said. But he said he has been waiting for the Reagan administration to settle in before applying there.

Exxon, Sun cut prices, Amoco raises

By The Associated Press

Exxon U.S.A. reduced wholesale gasoline prices by 0.7 cent a gallon in most markets, while Amoco Oil Co. raised prices from one-half cent to one cent a gallon in a number of major markets, the companies said Friday.

Exxon's reductions took effect Friday in its marketing area east of the Rocky Mountains. The company said it also cut wholesale prices by 1.3 cents a gallon in Oregon, California and most parts of Washington and Nevada.

Exxon U.S.A., the marketing arm of Exxon Corp., is the nation's second-largest marketer of gasoline. Amoco, a unit of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), is the third largest.

Amoco said markets affected by its price increase include Baltimore, Philadelphia, northern New Jersey, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis and most of the southeastern United States.

Amoco said the increases were needed to help offset higher operating costs and were "the first increase of any scope that we've had since mid-February."

At the same time, Sunmark Industries, the gasoline marketing division of Sun Oil Co., announced it had cut wholesale gasoline prices by a penny a gallon in Tennessee, North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

Sun dropped its wholesale prices by slightly less than one cent a gallon in Missouri and Illinois, by one-half cent a gallon in Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas and by one-quarter cent a gallon in Mississippi and Arkansas.

Earlier this week Sun had announced price cuts in some Eastern states by as much as one penny a gallon.

Elsewhere, Chevron U.S.A., the marketing unit of Standard Oil Co. of California, said it had raised wholesale gasoline prices by a penny a gallon in Texas and New Mexico and by 0.7 cent a gallon in Wyoming. Those changes also were effective Friday.

The price reductions by Exxon and Sun come at a time when some industry analysts had expected gasoline prices to rise because refiners must try to recover increased costs.

PBGC to offer course

Sandstone Diagenesis with Emphasis on Primary and Secondary Porosity will be offered by the Permian Basin Graduate Center, Wednesday, September 23, from 1:30 to 4:30p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m., at the PBGC building, 105 W. Illinois, Midland. Earl F. McBride will instruct.

The understanding of diagenesis is clastic deposits is a must for all explorationists. Topics will include: architecture of sandstone; porosity and permeability; sources of subsurface water and migration paths, etc.

McBride, chairman of the geological sciences department, at the University of Texas at Austin, received his Ph.D. in geology from John Hopkins University. He is a former president of the Society fo Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, and is an active lecturer, industry consultant and field trip leader.

The registration fee is $90. For registration of further information, call 563-2311.

Midlander named vice president

Bill W. Dunn, a Midland native, has been named vice president of Enhanced Energy Resources, Inc., Houston.

Dunn's primary responsibilities are in operations, engineering and new ventures.

He is a graduate Texas A&M University with a B.S. in petroleum engineering.

He was formerly with Cabot Corporation as manager of special projects, manager of planning and engineering and chief petroleum engineer in Charleston, W.V.

He was also employed with Amoco Production Company in Lake Charles and New Orleans, La.

Rig tally slumping

There were 484 rotary rigs making hole in the Basin last week, according to a survey by Reed Rock Bit Co. The count is down from the week before last, when 489 rigs were tallied, and from the first week of September when 497 were counted.

The International Association of Drilling Contractors reports 4,224 rigs were working - offshore and on - nationwide during the week ending September 14. Of these, 1,337 were land rigs working Texas and New Mexico.

A year ago, there were 329 rigs turning to the right in the region.

The record count is 515, recorded in 1957.

PERMIAN BASIN BRIEFS

Jerry A. Dunn has been promoted to Design Group Leader for the Midland Division of The Ortloff Corporation.

Dunn

Dunn, an Ortloff project engineer until his promotion, was responsible for supervising the activities of the division's piping design and design data groups.

Dunn has over 18 years of management and technical experience related to the engineering and construction of oil and gas processing plants, chemical facilities and pipelines.

Dunn received his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from Texas Tech University in 1968.

He is a registered profession engineer in Texas and is a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers.

****

ODESSA — Kenneth E. Hunt has been named sales representative for the TEX-MEX region by the Oil Field Service (OFS) division of SWECO, Inc.

Hunt

He will be based at the OFS TEX-MEX Region Office, located in Odessa.

Hunt has worked for SWECO since 1979 as an OFS service representative.

****

David L. Davis has been named vice president and manager of engineering of WTG Exploration Inc., a Midland based oil and gas firm.

Davis

Davis holds a B.S. in petroleum engineering and a B.S. in chemical engineering from Texas Tech University.

He was previously petroleum engineer in the production and drilling section of Chevron, U.S.A. Inc. for two years, and was employed by Bass Enterprises Production Co. for three years as senior production engineer and assistant division engineer.

He is a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

****

G.W. (Gil) Young has been named district manager of the Midland district of the Dowell division of Dow Chemical U.S.A.

Young, a former service manager at Woodward, Okla., joined Dowell in 1955 as an equipment operator.

He has served in several positions including service engineer, sales engineer, district engineer at Enid, Okla., and senior district engineer at Oklahoma City.

He became regional engieer for the North Area of the Southwestern Region in 1979, assuming his most recent position in 1980.

****

Kent W. Carlisle, manager of technical sales for The Ortloff Corporation's Midland division, has been granted a certificate of registration by the State of Texas to practice as a professional engineer.

Carlisle

Carlisle represents Ortloff in the sale of engineering-construction services to he oil and gas processing, refining and petrochemical industries.

A native of Midland, he has 16 years of engineering experience in refining, coal gasification, enhanced oil recovery and petrochemicals.

He is a graduate of Texas Tech University and received his master's degree in chemical engineering in 1965.

Carlisle is an active member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, currently serving as vice chairman of the Permian section.

****

George P. Nathman recently received his 40 year service award from Arco Oil and Gas Company.

Nathman

Clarence E. Cardwell Jr., vice president and district manager of the Arco Permian Disrict, presented Nathman with the award, followed by a reception and luncheon at the Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Nathman is a native of Oklahoma and a graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a degree in chemical engineering.

He joined the Atlantic Refining Company, a predecessor company of Arco Oil and Gas Company, in Odessa in 1941 as a junior engineer.

He moved to Dallas in 1944, where he was one of the first reservoir engineers for the Atlantic Refining Company.

He moved to Midland in February 1961 as a senior engineer over the University Block 31 field.

****

Turner V. Harness and Paul E. Stelling have been elected controller and treasurer respectively of the Tipperary Corporation.

Harness

Harness, a certified public accountant, was previously associated withh Price Waterhouse & Company for 11 years.

During that time, he served as a senior manager in the SEC department of the firm's national office in New York.

Stelling

Stelling, a certified public accountant, was most recently treasurer of Cashco Oil Company, Houston.

****

Mike Wood has joined the Clayton W. Williams Jr. companies in Midland as manager of the new Corporate Purchasing & Materials Group. He will report to Jamie Winkel, vice president of Finance.

Wood

The new department is responsible for purchasing and materials management for all of the Williams companies, including Clayco Pipeline Company, Clayco, Inc.; Clajon Gas Company, Clajon Production Company, Will Gas Co., and the Williams Company.

Wood was with ARCO Oil & Gas Co. in Dallas and Houston before joining the Williams organization. He had been with ARCO 2 1/2 years and was Material director at the time of his registration to join Williams.

Prior to his ARCO affiliation, Wood was with Conoco, Inc. 12 years in various purchasing, materials and engineering functions.

He is a 1968 graduate of Texas A&M University with a B.S. Degree in Industrial Engineering.

Wood is a member of the National Association of Purchasing Managers and of the American Production & Inventory Control Society. He has been active in Little League and other youth sports programs.

****

Edwin C. Vargason, Denver City, was presented a 35 year service award at a recent safety meeting of the Atlantic Richfield Company.

A field mechanic in the production and drilling division of Denver City, he began working as a mechanic in the geophysical division of the Atlantic Refining Company in Wyoming, in 1946. In 1959 he transferred to Denver City as a field mechanic.

****

Duncan Cooper has been promoted to senior vice president of exploration working out of the corporate headquarters in Houston.

Cooper will assume total responsibility for McFarlane's exploration programs, including well drilling, seismic work and land acquisition.

He transferred from Midland, where he was serving as exploration manager after opening the branch office there in January.

A 26-year veteran of the energy business, Cooper obtained his master's degree in geology from Texas A&M University.

He is a member of the Association of Petroleum Geologists, the West Texas Geological Society and the Rocky Mountain Geological Society.

New energy corporation opens offices in Midland

Miranda Energy Corporation, an oil and gas exploration and development company, was recently launched by Troy G. Martin.

Officers of the Midland-based firm are Martin, president; Randy Prude, vice president, exploration; Gary M. Glasscock, vice president, land; and Dan W. Kerr, vice president, finance.

Martin

Martin recieved a BS degree in engineering from Texas Tech. He worked for Texaco from 1964 to 1977,as an operations and reservoir engineer, including three years as assistant district engineer. From 1977 to 1981, he was the manager of engineering and secondary recovery operations for Texas American Oil Corp., Midland. During his 18 months at Texas American he coordinated the actities of the executive committee.

Prude

Prude recieived a BS degree in engineering from Texas Tech, also. He was a petroleum engineer for Exxon from 1974 to 1976. From '77 to '78 he was joint interest manager and reservoir engineer for Coquina Oil Corp. From 1978n to '80, Prude was prospect geologist for Roberts, Koch and Cartwright. Most recently, Prude was managing partner of Miranda Energy Company, a Miranda Corp. affiliate.

Kerr

Glasscock

Glasscock received a BBA degree in marketing and management from Abileme Christian universit. From '76 to '78 he was an area landman for Gulf. He was landman for Pennzoil in Midland during 1978 and '79. Glasscock recently served as land manger and partner in Miranda Energy Company.

Kerr received a BS and MA degrees in accounting from the university of Missouri. Between 1969 and 1979, he served with the CPA firm of Fox and Company at Midland, and was partner-in-charge when he left the company. From 1979, until recently kerr served a a chief financial officer in various industry positions.

Tom Harrell, a Midland accountant and businessman, will join the Miranda officers as a member of the board, which is chaired by Prude.

Miranda will be invovled in all phases of oil and gas exploration, development and operations. The company will be actively generating and operating prospects for joint venture exploration with industry partners. Current plans also incouede th formation of partnerships to involve lthe small and medium investor inl the exploration and development of oil and gas properties.

Martin said, "We have assembled ana agressive, highly capable group, with proven ability in their areas of experise. Initially we will concentrate on generating low-risk development drilling prospects."

OIL INDUSTRY NOTES

LOS ANGELES — Atlantic Richfield Company recently announced a record capital program of $27.6 billion planned for the five-year period 1982-1986, with main emphasis on exploration for, and development and delivery of United States energy resources-particularly oil and gas.

A capital budget of $4.6 billion is slated for 1982, a new one-year high.

The company told analysts here that some 90 percent of the five-year total is slated for overall domestic operations, with near 80 percent of the $27.6 billion dedicated to domestic energy.

Keystone of U.S. activity will be the state of Alaska, where the company plans expenditures of over $4 billion in development of the Kuparuk and the established Prudhoe bay oil fields over the next five years, plus another $2 billion for exploratory work.

In total, the company plans to spend $18.9 billion on the exploration for oil and development of oil and gas in the United States.

Foreign oil and gas activities have a planned outlay of $2.3 billion. Some $1.2 billion of this amount is intended for accelerated exploration and development programs in the Java Sea, offshore Indonesia.

Coal operations, expanding domestically and worldwide, account for $1.3 of the plan.

The planned capital program will require both international and external financing. However, the announcement said, the company expects its financial postion to continue to improve over the plan period.

The capital program is subject to continuing review and revision in light of changing economic conditions, results of individual projects and additional investment opportunities, the company said.

Atlantic Richfield executives also told analysts:

The company's known reserves are sufficient to maintain its present net domestic crude oil production rate of over 500,000 barrels a day through most of this decade.

Development of the company's known domestic natural gas reserves, particularly in the Gulf of Mexico, is expected to maintain production at above 1.2 billion cubic feet per day over the next five years. (This is exclusive of natural gas reserves at Prudhoe Bay.)

Development of the new Kuparuk oil field, west of Prudhoe Bay, is proceeding and start-up could occur by the end of 1981 at a production rate of approximately 80,000 barrels of oil per day during 1986. Preliminary terms of the field unitization agreement call for Atlantic Richfield receiving 80 percent of the initial production for the first three years. Atlantic Richfield's ultimate share of the entire field will be around 60 percent.

The company is confident that the trans Alaskan pipeline system will be able to transport additional production expected from the north slope through at least 1986.

Atlantic Richfield, with other participants, is studying plans for development of the oil discovery on Duck Island in the Beaufort Sea 10 miles northeast of Prudhoe Bay. The discovery was announced last October.

Atlantic Richfield's refining system, trimmed back to a capacity of 629,000 barrels per day by a program of upgrading, retrofitting and mothballing of spare distillation units, is prepared to handle at least 90 percent heavy, sour crude stocks. Almost completely supported by proprietary crude, the system has an output of 90 percent weight-end products (gasoline, jet fuel, heating oil, chemical feedstocks) and essentially no production of undesirable heavy residual fuel oil.

An agreement, reached previously, has been ratified by the People's Republic of China and the Atlantic Richfield board of directors, providing for exploration in a 3,500-square-mile area south of Hainan Island in the South China Sea. The company hopes to start drilling in the first quarter of 1982.

Atlantic Richfield, with 41 percent participation, is operator for a group of companies that has been selected to negotiate a contract for an exploratory block offshore Argentina containing 33 million acres.

Atlantic Richfield's coal production is expected to reach 14 million tons this year and is expected to double that volume by 1985.

TULSA, Okla. — Getty Oil has announced an oil discovery in Borden County, Texas. The discovery well, the Clayton Ranch No. 1, is located approximately six miles southwest of Gail (section 12, block 32, Township 4 North).

During a 24-hour test, the well flowed 185 barrels of oil and 3,200 cubic feet of natural gas through a 10/64-inch choke. Flowing tubing pressure was 210 pounds per square inch.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 9,523 feet and was completed in the Silurian Fusselman formation through perforations between 9,316 and 9,330 feet. Getty holds a 100 percent working interest in the well and in 1,920 acres in the immediate area. Nearest Fusselman production is located about four miles north in the Good field.

Tipperary Corporation and its Pearsall Petroleum N.V. partners have completed a flowing well in Fayette County, Texas. The Hydrocarbon Gathering No. 1 flowed 403 barrels of oil and 399,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 20/64 inch choke, with 450# tubing pressure, from the Austin Chalk formation.

Tipperary and its Pearsall N.V. partners own a 50% interest in the well and the revenues from this interest are shared 70 - 30 respectively. The initial 15 well Pearsall program has four other wells in various stages of completion with ten remaining to drill.

A total of 16 permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the Railroad Commision in August 1981, according to the RRC's Oil and Gas Division.

Ten of the permits were for gathering pipelines, five were for trunk transmission lines, and one was for a feed stock line.

Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while a trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect. Feed stock is crude oil or other hydrocarbons that are basic materials for refining or manufacturing process.

Eleven of the newly-permitted pipelines will transport gas, two will move crude oil and condensates, and three will transport petroleum products or other materials.

Texas operators reported 130 gas and 37 oil discoveries in August 1981, the Railroad Commision's Oil and Gas Division says.

In the year-earlier month, 135 gas and 65 oil discoveries were filled with the state's energy regulatory agency.

Gas discoveries in the eighth month of the year included two in the Midland area, 33 in the San Antonio area, 28 each in deep South Texas and the Refugio area, 14 in West Central Texas, 13 in Southeast Texas, five in East Texas four in North Texas and three in East Central Texas.

Oil discoveries included two each in the San Angelo, Midland and Lubbock areas, 10 in Southwest Texas, nine in West Central Texas, five in the Refugio area, four in the San Antonio area and one each in deep South Texas, East Texas and North Texas.

In August, operators reported 421 exploratory and field test wound up as dry holes. New applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests totaled 3,388 in August compared with 2,612 in the same period of 1980.

Applications to drill, deepen, plug back and for service wells in August amounted to 3,724 against 2,806 a year earlier.

Operators filed 874 amended applications to drill. A year earlier they submitted 602 amended requests.

Citing the approach of the winter heating season, Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace served notice to state natural gas pipeline companies to begin planning now to avoid gas curtailments.

Wallace's remarks came in the form of a motion which was approved by Chairman Jim Nugent and Commissioner Buddy Temple at the Commission's weekly conference on Gas Utilities Division matters.

Wallace said he had been informed by an expert in the natural gas field that a normally cold winter in 1981-1982 would cause gas curtailments. He said, "We must reassure ourselves that we are able to respond to any natural gas shortage which may occur this winter."

But he said, "It is my belief that human needs customers need not worry about the availability of their gas supply, and it is unlikely that electric utilities without alternate fuel capability need worry about their supply."

"As a whole, common sense tells us that the state must prepare for any alternative," he said.

In approving Wallace's motion, the Commission called upon intrastate pipelines to review their ability to move natural gas around the state and report their findings to the Gas Utilities Division by November 1.

The commision also asked the pipeline companies to work together to eliminate bottlenecks or other problems which might disrupt the supply of gas.

The Gas utilities Division was instructed to review the curtailment priorities of each pipeline periodically throughout the winter so that shortages which could not be avoided would cause as little hardship as possible. Companies are currently required to file curtailment plans for Commission approval indicating the priority in which customers would receive gas if supplies couldn't meet demand. Hospitals, schools and homes usually head the priority list.

Also stated in the approval motion was the intent of the Commission to select a Pipeline Committee to encourage cooperation between natural gas pipelines and to advise the Commision on the intrastate pipeline systems' ability to respond in time of shortages.

Wallace expressed confidence in the voluntary system of allocating natural gas between pipelines saying it has worked well in the past.

"The cooperation of the pipelines in our system has worked to guarantee service to human needs customers and to protect the public interest in general in times of shortage," he said.

Wallace also said he expected no departure from that standard in this or future heating seasons.

Petroleum Land Support Seminars, Inc. of Oklahoma City will present a 2-day seminar covering the land function of the Oil industry on Sept. 24 and 25, 1981 at the Midland Hilton.

This program will include oil and gas descriptions, leases, assignments, deeds, curative instruments and agreements, plus the chain of title and title opinions, types of ownership, revenue and working interests.

The seminar is designed for landmen trainees, land secretaries, lease record clerks, analysts and brokers.

Instructor is Gail McBrearty, a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen.

Tuition is $275. For additional information, call (405) 681-2528.

Fourty Seven members of the Midland Desk and Derrick Club will attend the 30th annual convention of the Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles, for three days beginning September 24.

The 113 clubs in the Association boast a membership of well over 10,000 women working in the oil industry as bookkeepers, land management personnel, secretaries, engineering, geological, and computer technicians, accountants, and corporate officers.

The expected attendance at the convention is 1,000 members who will be coming from all points in the United States and Canada.

The sole purpose of the Association is to further the education of its members by providing industry-related programs for women employees of the petroleum and allied industries.

The theme of the 1981 convention is "Focus On Education."

Over 500 members attended the annual Industry Appreciation night on August 31st at the Green Tree Country Club. Special guest Carol Rollins of Roswell, New Mexico, Region V Director, joined the 126 members and 422 guests who attended.

Oil glut casts a pall Nigeria's agricultural, industrial plans

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — The world oil glut is casting a pall over Nigeria's plans to foment a "green revolution" in agriculture and lay a solid industrial base for the future.

Knowledgeable sources in West Africa say the announcement last month of a $4-a-barrel discount on the price of Nigerian crude oil confirms the extent to which the country is suffering from the combined effects of worldwide recession and Saudi Arabia's policy of forcing down oil prices by stepping up its own output.

The office of President Shehu Shagari of Nigeria said the $4 decrease to $36 a barrel for Nigeria's Bonny Light crude was made in the best interest of the country.

Nigeria counts on its oil, which produces 90 percent of foreign currency earnings and 75 percent of government revenues, to secure self-sufficiency in food production as well as to develop local industry.

The country now spends $2.4 billion a year to import food, while manufacturing accounts for less than 10 percent of the gross domestic product, the sum of all goods and services.

Petroleum sources in Lagos, Nigeria's capital, say that output has dropped drastically since January when production was reported at around 2.1 million barrels a day. According to the Middle East Economic Survey, production figures for August were around 600,000 barrels a day.

With an estimated population of about 85 million, Nigeria consumes about 200,000 barrels a day, leaving 400,000 for export. About half the oil goes to the United States. Nigeria's proven oil reserves are estimated at 20 billion barrels.

July foreign exchange reserves were reported to be $8 billion, but Nigerian presidential advisers have warned that the country's $140 billion, five-year development plan would suffer if oil exports did not pick up. Earnings lost through cutbacks this year are estimated at $3.5 billion.

Agriculture is the weak link in the Nigerian economy. In 1962 it contributed 61.2 percent of Nigeria's gross domestic product (GDP) and 80 percent of export earnings. In 1979 it accounted for only 18.4 percent of the GDP and 6.6 percent of exports. But agriculture still employs over half the country's labor force.

The 1967-70 Biafra civil war disrupted the rural populations in the eastern and mid-western regions. The subsequent oil boom created an exodus to urban centers that removes producers from the land while producing a greater demand for food.

This year food imports consumed more than a quarter of the country's foreign exchange. Falling oil revenues also mean there is less money to carry out the $13.5 billion green revolution.

Until now Nigeria has managed to avoid heavy borrowing on the international money market, but it may have to seek loans at the going rate to meet commitments to a number of joint agricultural development projects.

The 1981-85 development plan allocates nearly half its roughly $12.5 billion for the manufacturing sector to the iron and steel industry.

A German-built steel plant at Warri, near the Niger River Delta in the east, is expected to begin production late this year.

Japan, U.S. to extend reprocessing operation

TOKYO (AP) — Japan and the United States have agreed to extend operations at the only Japanese nuclear fuel reprocessing plant until the end of 1984, the chief of Japan's Science and Technology Agency announced today.

The Tokai Reprocessing Plant, scheduled to close Oct. 31, now will be open at full capacity an additional three years and two months, said the agency's director-general, Ichiro Nakagawa.

The plant, located 60 miles north of Tokyo, runs on enriched uranium supplied by the United States.

Nakagawa said he and U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield agreed at a meeting Thursday that Japan and the United States would seek a "permanent solution" to differences over the Japanese nuclear reprocessing program as soon as possible.

President Reagan pledged U.S. cooperation in Japan's reprocessing program during his meeting with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki in May. But there were reports that the United States asked Japan to accept a limited extension until a definitive U.S. nuclear nonproliferation policy is developed.

The lovely dining room and exquisite table settings offer a taste of the evening planned for you at the Lionel Daury restaurant, where pre-theater and pre-symphony dinners are now available. Call 682-2544 for reservations.

Dining at Lionel Daury exquisite, not exclusive

The Lionel Daury restaurant, located in Plaza Center near Knorr's, offers french cuisine served in gracious surroundings. Those who have been in Midland a while will remember the building occupied by Lionel Daury as a stunningly designed nursery and landscape center. It is even more enchanting now, a very comfortable place even in its formality, exquisite but not exclusive.

Lionel is a true French chef and former Parisian restaurant owner. He and his wife, Patricia, bring talent and enthusiasm to their Midland restaurant, along with a desire to assess the needs and preferences of their Permian Basin customers and adapt their retaurant operation accordingly.

Some changes at Lionel Daury's include the addition of an a la carte section to the standard three-course dinner menu. Diners may select from the dinner choices of an appetizer, entree and dessert, plus wine, all for about $22 a person. Or, they may choose items individually from an appetizer list starting at $4, entrees from $12 to $15, and desserts for $3 or $4. The entire menu changes every three weeks.

Another new feature at the restaurant is the pre-theater or symphony dinner served Thursday through Saturday evenings for theater-goers, and on Tuesdays before the Midland-Odessa Symphony performs. A special menu of salad, steak maitre d'hotel, vegetable du jour, potatoes au gratin, chocolate mousse and wine will be served from 6 to 7 p.m. for $18 per person. Reservations are required on these nights and recommended at any time, especially for parties of more than four people. Call 682-2544 to reserve.

Midland will now be appearing regularly in "Texas Monthly" according to Patricia, as Lionel Daury's has been rated by the magazine. The restaurant is open Tuesday through Saturday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. American Express, Mastercard and Visa cards are accepted.

AFTAH offers fine printing

To visit AFTAH Printing in its new location, drive south on Midkiff to the service road of Interstate 20, turn right and travel a short distance to Warehouse Road. Another right turn brings you to the long, low brown building which is AFTAH's new home. This fine printing operation owned by A.D. "Skeet" Hall, is open for business from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days a week. Phone number is 697-0319.

Although AFTAH recently celebrated its eighth birthday, Skeet is a long-time printing man, who has provided top quality commercial printing service to many, many Midland firms. One real advantage of doing business with AFTAH is the ease with which repeat orders can be filled, as the printers keep a complete set of records of customer orders.

Make a good impression on your clients by ordering business cards, brochures, letterhead stationary, and forms from the professional printers at AFTAH Printing. Fine quality paper and ink assure you of clearly printed work, and AFTAH's stock includes snap-out and carbonless fan-apart forms.

Terry Harris demonstrates the Compugraphic Editwriter 7300 at AFTAH Printing, 2500-B Warehouse Road. AFTAH's combination of professional printing experience with modern typesetting equipment offers customers the best solutions to their printing needs.

Many mortgage incentives offered

By DEBRA WHITEFIELD
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Hundreds of thousands of California homeowners are being offered everything from lower interest rates to books of trading stamps as incentives to repay their low-cost mortgage loans faster.

Mutual Savings & Loan Association in Pasadena will reward participants in its new incentive program with several hundred books of Blue Chip trading stamps. Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, Pomona, is offering to reduce participants' interest rates by one percentage point. Republic Federal Savings & Loan Association, Altadena, promises to reduce borrowers' loan balance by 1 percent once a year if they agree to speed up repayment.

The dozen or so California S&Ls offering such incentive programs are touting this as a way for consumers to own their homes quicker and at the same time save hundreds or even thousands of dollars in interest payments.

But some economists and accountants who have studied such programs contend that the savings generally is not so great as it may seem and that most consumers could save more by investing the money instead of using it to pay off their loans faster.

Because the programs are aimed at borrowers whose loans carry interest rates of 10 percent or less, "all you have to do is take the money they're asking you to invest and put it in something that earns 10 percent or more and you can pay off the loan in the same time they're offering and still have some pocket money," said a California bank economist. He asked not to be identified because his bank is considering various incentive programs to get rid of its low-yielding mortgage loans.

Generally speaking, only consumers who expect a dramatic drop in their income several years down the road or have a psychological need to be debt-free are clear-cut beneficiaries of such incentive programs, the economist said.

Charles Abts, an official of the California Savings & Loan League, recommends that homeowners agree to participate in such programs only after careful consultation with their accountant or lawyer. "Lots of people get a tax break every year because they can deduct (the interest on) their mortgages and they shouldn't forget that if they suddenly pay off the loan they'll no longer get that benefit," Abts said.

Although the programs all vary slightly, most are targeted at homeowners aged 50 to 65 whose mortgage loans carry interest rates of 10 percent or less. To participate, borrowers generally must agree to add at least $100 to their current monthly mortgage payment. Several S&Ls require participants to double their monthly payment.

For the floundering S&L industry, this is one more attempt to pull out of its worst earnings slump since the Great Depression. "We're all trying to shorten the maturity of our (low-yielding) loans," said Richard C. Utter, a vice president in charge of loan administration at Santa Paula Savings & Loan Association. The Santa Paula, Calif.-based S&L said it would be able to relend the money in the form of new mortgages at the going rate of 16 percent to 18 percent. (Santa Paula Savings gives Blue Chip trading stamps to borrowers who agree to double their monthly payment.)

Because the programs are so new, it is difficult to determine how popular they may prove. Several savings associations did not begin mailing the information to borrowers until last month. But an informal survey of participating S&Ls shows that most of the early takers are elderly homeowners who expect to retire soon.

We're finding there's a sliver of Americana that would like to own their house free and clear for whatever reason," said Michael R. McGuire, executive vice president at Far West Savings & Loan Association, Newport Beach. "These are not people who are sitting on $100,000 and don't know what else to do with it."

The promise of getting merchandise immediately also seems to lure borrowers to the program, said John Armetta, senior vice president of Mutual Savings & Loan, which is offering Blue Chip trading stamps to people with low-cost loans who agree to increase their monthly payment by at least $100.

Century Pipe and Supply Co. announces several promotions

Century Pipe & Supply Co. is pleased to announce the promotions of Larry Hawkins and Edwin Gish, according to Charles W. Gibson, president of Century. This week at Century also marked the one year anniversary of Wayne Loyd as manager of the supply division.

Hawkins recently was promoted to general sales manager. He joined Century in 1978 as a sales representative and soon after became district manager. On August 12, 1980, Hawkins left his district post to become the division manager at Century. As general manager, Hawkins will supervise all sales activities. Before his affiliation at Century, he held the position of sales representative for Sooner Pipe and Supply. Hawkins attended Oklahoma City University and is a member of the Research Institute of America,

On September 1, 1981, Gish left his position as assistant manager of inside sales to accept his promotion to division manager of tubular sales. His new position will entail management and supervisory functions of the district sales offices in Texas and Oklahoma. Prior to joining Century, Gish was also a sales representative for Sooner Pipe and Supply.

Century is proud to acknowledge the one-year anniversary of Loyd as manager of the supply division. Loyd assumed the manager'post at Century on September 15, 1980. He received his sales and management experience through 19 years of employment in the Norris Division of the Dover Corp. During those years, Loyd held positions of sales representative, district manager, divisional manager and assistant general sales manager.

Century is a Midland based pipe and supply company that serves 12 locations in the Southwest. They specialize in the sale and supply of tubular products and have recently added a threading division to their operation.

New hot check information system operating in Midland

A new do-it-yourself system aimed at arming Midland merchants against avoidable hot check losses is now in operation. The new firm is headed by Bill Atwood, president of Check Information Exchange Services, Inc., which was formed following a year of research and development.

Atwood notes that while efficient law enforcement attempts to keep pace with the hot check problem in Midland, ultimate responsibility for curtailing the activity of repeat offenders rests with the merchant. Through Check Information Exchange Services, facts on hot checks are reported by participating merchants in compliance with Texas law and redistributed to others for use as a reference safeguard.

Current information on known forgeries, another major problem, is also published. The owners expect the new business service to be especially helpful during the holiday shopping season when both hot checks and forged checks traditionally undergo a major increase.

Effort on engine shared

By LINCOLN MILLSTEIN
The Hartford Courant

HARTFORD, Conn. — In an effort to share the risk and cost of developing a new commercial airplane engine, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group and rival Rolls-Royce Ltd. of England are trying to form a joint venture to co-produce the power plant for what has been touted as the next generation of airline jets.

The engine would be in the 25,000-pound-thrust range and would power the 150-passenger plane some airlines have sought for the mid-1980s, Pratt-Whitney said Wednesday.

Among the issues under negotiation are how much of the work will be done in each of the countries, and whether the new engine will be designed with new technology or will be a derived version of a proven engine.

If the deal is completed, it would leave only two competitors — the P&WA-Rolls-Royce combine, and a similar joint venture between General Electric Co. and SNECMA, the French engine builder — vying for the new market.

The move by the East Hartford company to seek ties with Rolls-Royce is a clear sign of the times. The cost of developing a new engine has soared to the point where it is prohibitive for a single company to try to do it on its own. Most analysts agree that it would take at least $1 billion, including research costs, to develop a new engine today.

"I think it's an important step in the development of an engine (for the new plane) and a recognition of the fact that the risk in developing several engines for the same aircraft is quite substantial," said Julius Maldutis Jr., airline industry analyst for Salomon Brothers, when told of the news.

"I would interpret this as a very positive development (for the two companies)," he said.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Business issues on Clayton's list

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Dozens of issues — such as regulation of airconditioning contractors, effects of the "Blue Law" and on-the-job safety — are covered in Speaker Bill Clayton's charges to House committees for study before the 68th Legislature convenes in 1983.

Many of the issues listed by Clayton for investigation reflect measures which were offered during the 1981 regular session.

House Employment Practices Committee is instructed to study job-related accidents and deaths in the Texas labor force as compared to the U.S. average.

Recent studies and reports by the Texas Department of Health and other agencies conclude the Texas average is running much higher than the national rate — and Gov. Bill Clements has said he will appoint a special task force to look into the problem.

Employment Practices also is charged with studying the effectiveness of the worker's compensation assigned risk pool — a subject of perennial debate.

House Business and Industry Committee members have a varied set of tasks, including studying Texas' role in international trade, landlord-tenant relations, condominium housing laws, effects of the "Blue Law" on the state's economy, creating a "separate department of industrial standards to oversee the regulation of airconditioning contractors, plumbers, electricians, etc." and creating a Texas Department of Commerce and Tourism by combining several existing agencies — such as the Travel Divison of the Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Texas Industrial Commission and Texas Film Commission.

Energy Resources Committee is to look at requirements for municipal annexation of submerged lands "to determine if any changes are necessary," to examine "posting of performance bonds on oil and gas wells" and to look at "leasing of hard rock minerals in terms of monetary value for the principals involved."

"Potential environmental safety problems" involved in the use of underground injection wells for disposal of hazardous wastes, effects of air pollution on health, and the "feasibility of implementing laws to govern the placement of toxic and chemical waste facilities; are among the assignments for the Environmental Affairs Committee.

That panel also is to monitor operation of the Texas Low-Level Waste Authority on disposal of low-level radioactive wastes, and "national environmental issues as they affect state agencies."

Members of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee also have a variety of tasks — including studying cotton warehouse operations "with specific attention to alleged delays in service...the status of domestic and foreign markets, and the adequacy of current law."

Other investigations include a look at "the commercial potential of guayule,"the desert shrub which was used to provide rubber during World War II and which is being considered as a source of materials to replace crude oil; the rights of surface land owners with respect to exploration for oil and gas, and surface mining of lignite, gravel, iron ore and other minerals; and "the manner in which alcohol manufacturing processes are permitted and regulated by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission and other agencies."

"Stay abreast of new technology in the field of alcohol fuel production," Clayton wrote in his instructions to the committee.

Clayton instructed the Ways and Means Committee to "review the new Federal laws relating to windfall profits and determine their impact on raising severance taxes" in Texas, to examine Federal law "as it relates to inheritance" and the impact of State inheritance tax laws passed by the 1981 Legislature, and to "make a comparative study" of gasoline taxes in Texas and other states.

The Financial Institutions Committee's work includes a study of collection agency operations "in order to determine the extent of extortionate and abusive collection tactics," and an examination of practices and policies of the State Securities Board on small businesses.

Also on the committee's agenda is an overall study of Texas' securities laws, a review of the on-going loan program of the Texas Housing Agency, and an examination of "the possibility of allowing homeowners to mortgage homesteads."

The last issue — which failed to make it through the 1981 session — is expected to be a top priority for lenders in 1983.

A study of "the detrimental effects of formaldehyde use to determine what actions need to be taken to protect the health of the general public" is one of the assignments for the Human Services Committee.

As usual, the House Insurance Committee has a wide range of topics, including whether to develop a statewide fire code, studying the assigned risk plan for auto insurance, monitoring the new compulsory auto liability insurance law, handling of claims by insurance companies, and increasing the amount of coverage required for Texas drivers.

Natural Resources Committee is to study saltwater injection processes used by oilfield operators, and authority of navigation districts to sell publicly-financed facilities.

Many other issues also are set for study before the next regular session of the Legislature, and most of the committees will be recommending specific changes to be made in 1983.

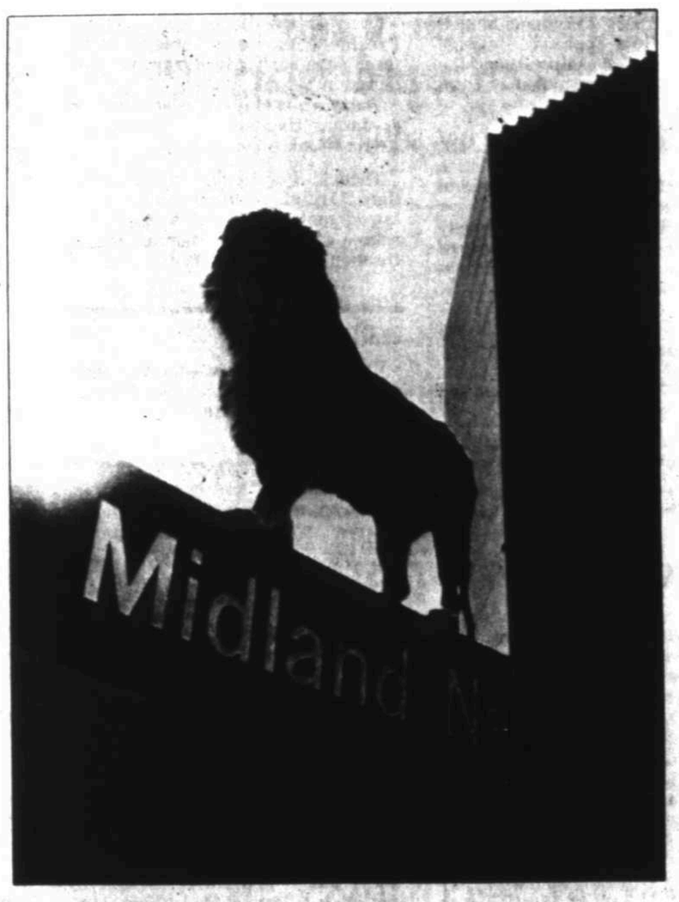
Taking a strong financial stand in Midland.



On July 3rd, 1903, Midland National opened its doors in the old Llano Hotel, on the northwest corner of Wall and Main.

We were just starting out, but we already had an unwavering commitment to sound, healthy growth. And we were eager to lead the way, searching for new territory to explore.

For thirty years, we kept pace with Midland's ranching, agricultural and mercantile interests; as they grew, so did we.

With the discovery of oil here, our pace quickened. We took strides to introduce new banking services. We were the first bank in the Permian Basin to add a petroleum engineer to our staff.

Today, our Oil and Gas Division is staffed entirely by petroleum bankers who are also petroleum engineers; bankers who personally analyze collateral, using our in-house computer and the latest petroleum evaluation techniques.

Our Commercial Loan Officers are highly trained professionals who can give quick answers on short-term working capital loans, lines of credit or term loans for a growing business.

Our Trust Department specializes in personal trusts and estate planning, and also in setting up corporate profit sharing and pension plans.

Today, Midland has come of age, and so have we. We have $11 billion in assets behind us. And ahead of us is a future dedicated to helping Midland reach her full potential.

The O'Connor question

All the uproar surrounding the potential confirmation of Sandra Day O'Connor as the first female Supreme Court justice has seemed a little misplaced.

The issue never should have been what her philosophical views are on abortion, although it became that, largely due to the hesitation of Senate Judiciary Committee member Jeremiah Denton (R-Ala.) and the initial opposition to her nomination by the Moral Majority.

All that should be past history now. His hesitation led Denton to vote only "present" while the other 17 members of the committee voted in favor of Judge O'Connor's nomination. The Moral Majority, that conservative organization founded by evangelist Jerry Falwell, now has withdrawn its opposition to her confirmation, the indication being that it would neither favor nor oppose her confirmation. The Arizonan's confirmation by the full Senate likely will come Monday, and she'll assume her significant place in history as the first female justice in the high court's 191-year history.

In retrospect, the mini-controversy over Judge O'Connor's philosophical views on abortion were relatively minor. Certainly a cross-section of views should be represented on the court so that legal points can be debated fully before far-reaching law-of-the-land legal decisions are handed down.

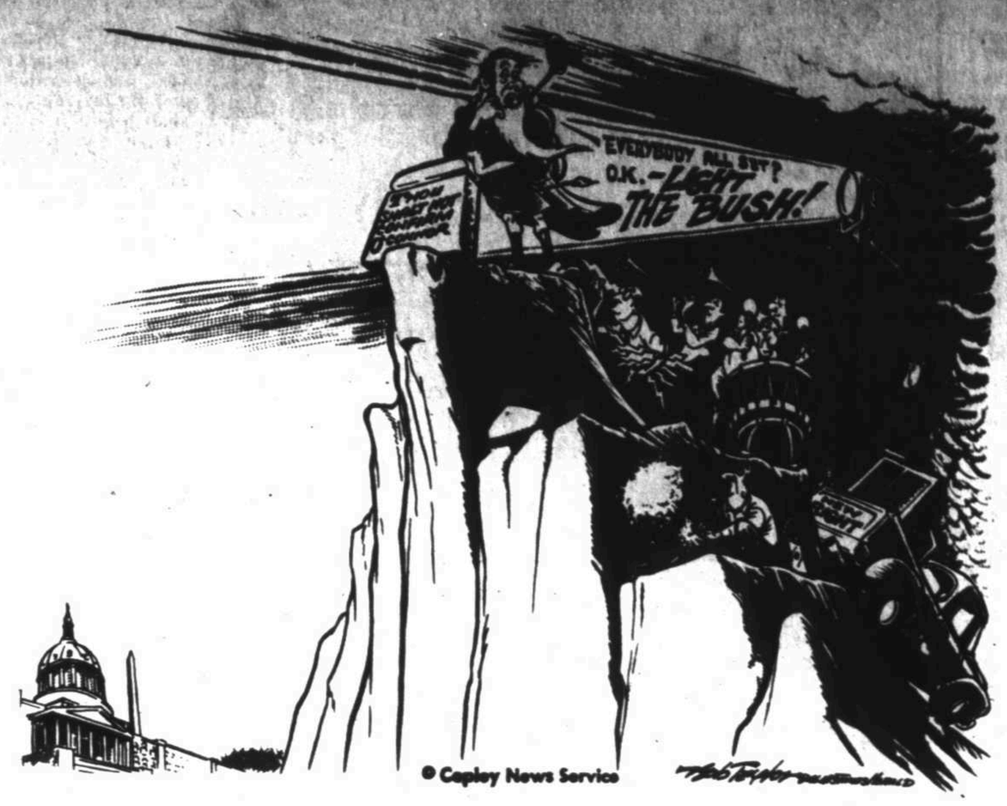
It's important to remember that Supreme Court justices, like their counterparts in the lower courts, do not — or should not, at least — legislate. They merely interpret the laws created by government's legislative branch. Judge O'Connor agrees with that tenet, saying her job on the court will be "one of interpreting and applying the law, not making it."

On other points, too, Judge O'Connor scored high marks in her Senate Judiciary Committee hearings. Throughout its history the court has see-sawed in composition from arch-conservatism to neo-liberalism. It would be safe to say, though, that on most issues Americans, as a whole, favor a conservative interpretation of the law with enough of a liberal slant to ensure that all sides have been seen. In that respect, Sandra O'Connor seems to fit the mold of much of 1981 America as evidenced by recent polls: She opposes forced busing to achieve school desegregation, favors the death penalty and thinks it would be "inappropriate" for women to participate in combat.

She abhors abortion, but declined to comment on the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that legalized abortion. That's what led to Sen. Denton's "present" vote.

The question was not "how does Sandra O'Connor feel about abortion?" although that undeniably is an important question for many Americans. That question is minor, though, when compared to the court's total responsibility. The real question to be answered for the Senate Judiciary Committee, the Moral Majority and countless curious and interested Americans was "Can Sandra O'Connor qualify to be a justice of the United States Supreme Court?"

That question was answered loud and clear during the recent hearings. If and when confirmed, Mrs. O'Connor should prove to be a valuable addition to the court.



TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Sept. 20, the 263rd day of 1981. There are 102 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 20, 1519, Ferdinand Magellan set sail from Spain on a voyage that took one of his ships around the world, history's first global circumnavigation.

On this date:

In 1960, 13 newly independent African nations and the former British colony of Cyprus were admitted to United Nations.

In 1963, President John Kennedy went before the U.N. General Assembly to propose a joint U.S.-Soviet expedition to the moon.

In 1974, officials in the Central American country of Honduras put the estimated death toll from Hurricane Fifi at eight-thousand.

And in 1977, Vietnam was admitted to United Nations.

Five years ago: Sweden's Social Democratic Party was narrowly defeated by a three-party non-socialist coalition.

One year ago: Deposed Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza, slain three days earlier in Paraguay, was buried in Miami.

Today's birthdays: Fashion designer James Galanos is 57 years old. Actress Sophia Loren is 47.

Thought For Today: Time cools, time clarifies; no mood can be maintained quite unaltered through the course of hours. — Thomas Mann, German writer (1875-1955).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Federal nuke plants take safety shortcuts

WASHINGTON — The near-disaster at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in March 1979 showed how quickly and easily a nuclear facility can go haywire, endangering the lives of thousands. The public outcry led the federal government to tighten its supervision of the nation's commercial nuclear power plants.

Jack Anderson

Unfortunately, there is a glaring exception to this closer scrutiny — the 80-odd reactors owned and operated by the government's own Department of Energy. Yet there is strong evidence to suggest that DOE's nuclear facilities are in greater need of more stringent safety procedures than even the much-criticized commercial reactors.

No less than three investigations of DOE's nuclear plants have been launched recently — one by DOE's inspector general, another by the department's under secretary and a third by the General Accounting Office, the congressional auditors. Now Congress itself may get involved. Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., is considering legislation that will force DOE to clean up its act.

As one high-level DOE study notes, the government's nuclear plants should provide "an exemplary nuclear safety program." Yet the various investigations show that DOE is a sorry example for anyone to follow. Some of the findings have been reviewed by my associate Lucette Lagnado. Here are the highlights:

— A principal difficulty seems to be that, unlike the private nuclear plants, DOE's are not subject to inspection by safety experts from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission or the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. DOE bureaucrats would prefer that "outsiders" not be allowed to check on their performance, citing primarily national security reasons. This is obviously nonsense. There's no reason NRC and OSHA inspectors can't be screened and given clearance. The situation is made-to-order for covering up any mistakes or oversights by DOE personnel.

— DOE relies almost exclusively on private contractors to run the agency's nuclear plants. The contractors are even given the responsibility for handling critical safety complaints and accidents. This reliance on private contractors, incidentally, makes DOE's pious professions of concern over "national security" laughable.

— The department has not had uniform safety regulations that must be observed by all its contractors.

— DOE's failure to exercise strict control can lead to serious conflicts between the demands of safety and production. An employee at a DOE facility in Colorado complained that a "glove box" had been contaminated. These are the sealed boxes from which workers can handle radioactive materials safely from outside. It took the contractor three days to correct the problem; the delay was allegedly due to reluctance to disrupt production. DOE didn't even investigate the episode.

— DOE officials insist that they get immediate and total cooperation from contractors when safety problems arise. But this definition would hardly cover the situation at DOE's Richland facility in the state of Washington. On a routine inspection, DOE safety personnel discovered that some "sump alarms" — which alert workers to the presence of radioactive water — were not working. This was brought to the attention of the contractor in November 1978, again in January 1979, and yet again in April 1979. In November, a leak of contaminated water went undetected. It wasn't until February 1980 — 15 months after the matter was first brought up — that the contractor finally got around to correcting the faulty sump alarms.

— In the aftermath of Three Mile Island, the NRC organized extensive programs to appraise nuclear plants' protection of workers from radiation. DOE has done nothing like that for the government-owned plants. "The department's treatment of radiological protection of workers appears to be much less emphasized than the attention this area receives elsewhere," a DOE investigating team concluded.

— DOE bureaucrats have shown poor judgment in planning and staffing safety programs. According to one safety review, top officials in the agency, and even in its safety section, are almost completely inexperienced in the nuclear field. The technical staff of the safety overview section has been reduced severely over the past five years.

— As another offshoot of the Three Mile Island scare, the government ordered all nuclear plants to prepare contingency plans for similar emergencies. All the facilities have complied — with the exception of DOE's. According to one critical DOE document, the department has given disaster planning low priority. "An air of complacency is detected throughout DOE" on the subject of nuclear emergencies, the report's authors observed.

DOE officials, asked about the results of the various investigations, replied that a number of internal changes have been made as a result of the criticism. Some gave the impression that they considered the investigations' findings to be "unfair," and pointed out that the probers all praised the agency for the excellent safety record at its nuclear facilities.

Clearly, not everyone sees justification for complacency by DOE bureaucrats. Critics of the nuclear industry have long complained that potentially dangerous problems are habitually played down by nuclear power advocates. The Three Mile Island plant was supposed to be fail-safe. Critics would rather err on the side of safety than have another scare like that.

ART BUCHWALD

Sans Souci not shining spotlight now

The Sans Souci, one of the great meeting places of the power brokers of Washington, has closed its doors, a victim of bankruptcy. Those of us who ran the country from its Naugahyde banquettes and booths have moved on to other tables in other rooms throughout the city, because even though a restaurant closes, the business of government must go on.,

Art Buchwald

In its day the Sans Souci was more a club than a restaurant. One of its attractions was that it was shaped like a theater, with a stage at the entrance, so everyone who came in could take a bow before being escorted to a table.

On a good day, and there were many of them, you could find Henry Kissinger in a booth discussing detente with Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin, or taking a hard line against the Russians with Israeli Ambassador Rabin.

A Pentagon Air Force general might be seated at another table leaking a story to columnist Robert Novak, and placed a few tables away, columnist Joe Alsop could be seen leaking a story to the head of the CIA.

A lobbyist from the American Petroleum Industry would be splitting a bottle of Dom Perignon with a congressman from the House Ways and Means Committee, while at the next table a lawyer and one of the Watergate defendants were trying to work out a way of staying out of the Allenwood Penitentiary.

Robert Redford would be in another corner watching how Bob Woodward ate, in preparation for his role in "All the President's Men." At the next table Jack Anderson would be talking to a whistle blower in the Justice Department, near two FBI agents who were picking at their food but really trying to overhear what the two men were saying.

The role I played as a patron of the Sans Souci has never been properly understood. I ate there everyday and had the same table. It was the equivalent of Bernard Baruch's bench in Lafayette Park. When people in the Johnson, Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations needed advice they knew where to find me.

I am still not at liberty to confess what decisions I was in on, but suffice it to say that when I held court at the Sans Souci, the inflation rate never rose above five percent, people could purchase a decent home for $40,000, banks were begging the public to borrow money at 6 percent, Social Security was safe, and the United States had twice the military might of the Soviet Union.

Without revealing any confidences I can state the recognition of the People's Republic of China first noodled at my table at the Sans Souci, and the Camp David talks began soon after the Egyptian ambassador asked to split a chef's salad with me.

When Roger Stevens ran out of money to complete Kennedy Center, I told the waiter to put whatever he needed on my tab.

This is not to say the Sans Souci was all work and no play. Some of the most beautiful women in the world could be found dining there in hopes that one of us would become a chapter in their memoirs.

But that's another column.

The downfall of the Sans Souci was not of my making. It was caused when the Maitre d'Hotel Paul De Lisle, had a fight with the owner and resigned.

What the owner didn't realize was that Paul was our leader, and our security blanket away from home. No matter how important anyone is in the United States, he is still nervous about how he will be treated in a restaurant by a Maitre d'Hotel. The fact that Paul decided we were worthy of having a table in his restaurant, was the only assurance we had that we were still part of the power structure.

With Paul's departure, the Sans Souci became just another place to eat, and I had no choice but to fold up my table and leave. It was a sad day not only for me but for the country. The downfall of the Sans Souci caused a tremendous identity crisis for the movers and shakers in the nation's capital. To this day, except for Al Haig, most of us don't know who the hell we are.

GEORGE F. WILL

Reagan administration giving hostages to political fortune

WASHINGTON — President Reagan may have been prodigiously farsighted when, bidding for votes on his economic measures, he told some conservative Democrats that his "principles" would prevent him from campaigning in 1982 against those who had been helpful. But he may be counting chickens that will not hatch.

George F. Will

Asked by Fortune magazine if his promise did not make it "almost impossible" for Republicans to run against those Democrats, Reagan said: "Well, that could well be, but then by the same token, I'd like to feel that maybe some of those Democrats are doing some soul-searching as to whether they're in the right party."

There are precedents for such soul-searching. Senators Hayakawa, Helms and Thurmond, and John Connally and Ronald Reagan, are former Democrats. But cautionary thoughts come to mind.

The most likely occasion for defections by Democrats is remote, in several senses. This occasion will not be 1982, but 1984, and then only if Ted Kennedy is the Democratic nominee. I have heard a Democratic senator hoting heavily, to community leaders back home, that he could not run as a Democrat if the party nominates Kennedy. Several other senators feel that way.

Second, the "right party" for conservative Democrats in 1982 may be a Democratic Party that is, on the one hand, not noticeably liberal and, on the other hand, is not perceived as implicated in Reagan's economic program. During the tax and budget debates, liberal Democrats thought their party sold its birthright by not losing with a clear liberal alternative. But what the party bought with its conservative alternative was insurance against the charge that it has learned nothing from the difficulties during the 40-year enactment of the liberal agenda.

The Reagan administration, by not trying to split the difference with the Democrats, and instead winning a clear partisan victory, saved the Democrats from sharing responsibility for a program that Sen. Howard Baker calls a "riverboat gamble" — a program doubted by a financial community that wants to believe in it, a program that already is enough off target that the administration is cutting its primary responsibility: its defense program.

Third, the conservative Democrats who are supposed to be searching their souls and contemplating defection know that they do not have much to fear from staying put, because House races are less likely than other races to reflect national volatilities. Republican gains in 1980 were least dramatic in House elections. Republican gains averaged nine percentage points in the 34 Senate races, five percentage points over 1976 totals in the 13 states with gubernatorial elections, but an average of only three percentage points in the 435 congressional districts.

Fourth, politicians are not gamblers, at least not with their own security. As the President acknowledges, his promise not to campaign against certain Democrats makes unattractive (to say the least) the position of Republican challengers to those Democrats. By remaining Democrats, those congressmen enjoying immunity from presidential opposition have the double advantage of their districts' traditional loyalties and current conservative sympathies.

Furthermore, they do not risk the danger that switching would make them seem flighty or more opportunistic than necessary. So the rational thing is to enjoy the free ride the President has promised, while waiting to see what the distant future (1984) brings.

And what might that future be? In the Fortune interview, Reagan smote Wall Street, which is feeling queasy about his program. He said "business leaders are probably a better indicator than the people on Broadway — Broadway, that's a Freudian slip, isn't it? — (I mean) on Wall Street." It is unclear on what basis Reagan distinguishes between Wall Street and "business leaders." In any case, a Wall Street Journal survey of business leaders reveals that they are planning on the basis of projections more pessimistic than the President's.

Reagan's core constituency is not on Wall Street, but on Main Street: real estate agents, small businessmen. Eighty percent of all savings and loans are in the red. For every $10,000 car a dealer buys for his inventory and finances at 19 percent, he pays $158 a month. Since 1978, 10 percent of all dealers have gone bust.

In a recent 33-week period, 10,494 businesses failed, 41 percent more than in a comparable period last year. It is a massacre on Main Street. So the administration, by talking about Democrats switching parties, and describing 1982 as a "ratifying election," is giving hostages to political fortune.

In Texas, there's a lot to be said for 'coded' confusion

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It has been a matter of debate among those who follow such things as to whether the Texas Election Code or the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code is the most confusing document ever assembled by a legislative body.

Rep. Gerald Hill, D-Austin, chairman of the House Elections Committee, agrees it might be a close call.

But, he adds, "the Election Code is longer."

Hill will oversee the House Elections Committee's efforts between now and January 1983 to overhaul that code — which is in the process of being recodified.

The committee also has been instructed by Speaker Bill Clayton to study the voting rights procedures for Texans who are overseas, and for military personnel; and to "study the relationship between party rules and state law in Texas."

Hill notes that efforts were made during the 1981 regular session to update the code, but "the way it was drafted and passed the Senate was not acceptable for me or the members of the committee."

The work on military personnel is "so we wouldn't have another Schoolcraft-Brown type case," Hill reports.

That incident, which resulted in the House having to decide a contested election, grew out of confusion over ballots furnished to military personnel in the legislative contest between incumbent Al Brown (D) and Alan Schoolcraft (R).

Eventually, after a second election, Schoolcraft received the right to represent his San Antonio district.

The work on party rules and state law comes partly from a U.S. Supreme Court decision in a dispute from Wisconsin over administration of that state's primary system.

State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle, Sherman, explains the case resulted in the Supreme Court holding, in effect, that parties have the ultimate say in partisan primary matters.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

That 1980 decision indicates, Slagle says, "that the Supreme Court is much more open to parties running their own business."

Slagle says that party rules and state law can come into conflict because of requirements from the national party level.

That has created problems in the past because the state party has been under a requirement to make an "affirmative action" to change any conflicting state statute, he comments.

Texas Republican Party Chairman Chet Uphman, Mineral Wells, says "nothing comes to mind" at present regarding any changes — but he, too, indicates plans to visit with Hill.

Uphman isn't, however, interested in seeing any change in primary dates, while Slagle thinks such a change may be needed.

"We feel the primary dates have been established, and there's no compelling reason to change them," Uphman says.

Uphman comments that Slagle and Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard have sought to change the dates "to give an advantage to the Democrats."

"We don't feel that's a compelling reason," he adds.

A change in the dates, Uphman argues, would result in problems with the Texas GOP getting its delegates qualified in time for the national convention, commenting that the party has had to get a "variance" to certify its delegates in the past.

Slagle notes that an effort was made during the past legislative session to pass a bill changing the primary dates — but the bill failed in the Senate, due to opposition by Republicans and some "liberal Democrats."

"We think it would be helpful to the election process to compress it," Slagle says.

"We think long campaigns are costing voter participation, dulling voter interest...and not just Democratic voters," he comments.

"The Republicans aren't for that because (Gov.) Bill Clements told them they weren't," Slagle says, but he adds that he feels most Republicans would agree that the campaigning season should be shortened.

Clements' opposition seems to stem from the feeling that he needed a long campaign to defeat former Attorney General John Hill for the state's top office.

Slagle feels Republicans don't need any longer to campaign than do Democrats, and contends that the suggested change really isn't a Democrat versus Republican issue.

"There are a lot of things that are not partisan as between parties," he says, "...but they are just good for the political process."

Hill and his fellow committee members are likely to find themselves getting a number of partisan and "non-partisan" suggestions over the next year and a half, but Hill says he's looking forward to it.

"It's difficult," he agrees, "but it's pretty interesting."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Keep it in focus

To The Editor:

Thanks to your recent series of articles on housing, by Lana Cunningham, all Midlanders who read are aware of the enormity of the problem that private enterprise and government must solve, if our community is to accomodate the number of people who accompany industrial development and the expansion of attendant services.

What must be kept in focus, also, is the need for housing of people who are long-time residents, who find themselves displaced due to demolition of low cost rental stock, or their abilities to earn limited incomes.

Citizen support will be needed for several plans being developed and/or implemented. The Objectives for Midland, Realtors, Developers, the Association of Churches, Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, the Midland Housing Authority, both city and county governments, and the Midland Housing Association are all wrestling with the problems. Midlanders are urged to give their careful attentions to plans, as they are made known. Cooperation will be essential. Final resolution might require tax incentives, new zoning, city ordinances, or emergency measures.

We are fortunate in Midland to have a newspaper that delineates both our accomplishments and our problems; and to have a journalist who reports happenings in government in terms that can be clearly understood. I talked to many, many people who said they had no idea that the need for housing was so critical — until they read the series of articles.

The Midland Housing Association appreciates the attention that was given to our efforts to provide affordable housing to low and moderate income residents.

Water and oil

To The Editor:

I am truly disappointed in our neighbor, Lowell Branum, for I was certain he was a strong advocate of the Free Enterprise System.

Surely he can not possibly believe he has the right to force his neighbor, the landlord, to submit to a "Rent Control Board?" For if this is true, then the landlord has the right to force his neighbor, Driller Branum, to submit to price controls.

As with the mixing of water and oil, so it is with controls and the free enterprise system, they are forever in opposition to one another.

Profit on an investment is the very heart of the system, without it there can be no free entrprise, and who has the right to judge what amount of profit is justified other than the owners of a business, his neighbors perhaps? Indeed not!

What is the answer? How can we as neighbors make proper decisions so as not to offend one another or place the free enterprise system in jeopardy? Please permit me to reiterate a test by which all questions can be answered quickly and righteously:

"Do I, as an individual, have the right to force my neighbor to do something in order for me to accomplish a particular goal? Remembering that my neighbor has the same rights as I and if we have such a right, we can delegate it to someone else to exercise in our behalf, but if we do not have that right, we can not delegate it."

Targeted art

To The Editor:

The letter Julie Rogers recently wrote regarding the discriminating policies of the Museum of the Southwest toward local artists is 100 percent on target. In both the September Fest and its Annual Regional Competitive exhibit, all artists are screened through a jurying process to insure good quality. Local artists are not asking for a way around this process, simply the right to compete and compete without special restrictions.

The museum seems to be suggesting that nothing of artistic merit or virtue is created in Midland. Local artists do not want special breaks, at the same time they don't deserve a cold shoulder from the museum.

The museum needs to clarify, in detail why special policies have been established toward local artists.

Rally 'round...

To The Editor:

I find it very distressing that our city government and some citizens of Midland would object to a pay raise for our fine police force.

I have had an occasion to witness several Midland officers in action when their lives were truly in danger and their heroism and bravery were beyond question.

These fine men deserve better from us, Midland — lets rally behind them!

What will decontrol mean?

By FRED J. COOK
Special to Newsday

President Reagan is gingerly weighing the economic and political hazards involved in proposals to decontrol natural-gas prices — a move that would add hundreds of billions of dollars to household heating bills and to the cost of consumer products ranging from the meat on your table to the cellophane wrappings on your grocery products and the tires on your car.

The drive to speed natural-gas decontrol stems from the Reagan team's ideology which holds that all government regulation is bad — something akin to saying that all foods are bad because some increase sugar and fatty deposits in the blood. It comes at a time when there is a gas glut stemming from abundant supplies and a sluggish gas market resulting from already-high prices.

SUCH FACTS OF LIFE may come as a surprise to many Americans who have been told ever since President Carter made his 1977 "skies are falling" speech that we are running out of natural gas as well as oil. It wasn't true then, and it isn't true today.

Hearings held in early June before a House energy subcommittee established these facts: The nation has enough natural gas to last well into the next century and probably beyond. Natural gas is now so plentiful that many wells are being capped because demand is "soft." Complete decontrol would at least double the cost of gas to all consumers; it would reduce gas sales further; it would increase the use of oil, boost oil prices and leave the nation even more dependent on oil imports.

The picture was so clear that even George Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association, the industry group that might be expected to favor decontrol and higher prices, quailed at the prospect. Lawrence testified that immediate decontrol would "shock the American gas market.... This shock will, therefore, reduce gas sales and increase oil use, which will in turn cause higher world oil prices and domestic gas prices."

Lawrence said the association's analysis shows that total, immediate deregulation would cause the loss of 1.9 trillion cubic feet of gas load, increasing oil imports 800,000 barrels a day.

GAS PRICES HAVE BEEN kept at present levels only through partial controls. Experts of the former National Power Commission concluded in 1977 that natural gas could be produced profitably at a wellhead-price of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet. The Carter administration permitted $2 per 1,000 cubic feet and later decontrolled all gas produced from depths greater than 15,000 feet.

The result is that gas this year has averaged out at about $2.37 per 1,000 cubic feet, despite the fact that some already decontrolled gas is being priced as high as $8.40 per 1,000 cubic feet. Present prices have been kept as low as they are only because this high-priced gas has been "rolled in" to the overall stream with large quantities of cheaper, controlled gas.

Even so, demand has lagged. One reason is that the 1978 Power Plant and Industrial Fuel Use Act, resulting from the Carter shortage myth, forbade new commercial and industrial hookups and banned the use of natural gas by electric utilities after 1990.

An additional curb on demand resulted from the present worldwide oil glut. This left major oil companies with large quantities of heavier residual No. 5 and No. 6 oils that had to be disposed of. Large industrial plants that can switch from gas to oil as simply as throwing a switch found it advantageous to use the cheaper heavy residual oils, and the gas distribution system became clogged.

Even if the industrial act's curbs on gas use were to be lifted, decontrol would almost inevitably result in runaway gas prices. Every driller would seek the highest price; low-priced, "roll-in" gas would disappear. And major oil companies, now controlling more than half of natural-gas production and distribution, are campaigning for "parity" pricing. That is, they want to make their gas just as expensive as their No. 2 fuel oil.

NONETHELESS, the Reagan administration has strongly advocated some kind of decontrol. The Department of Energy wants immediate decontrol. Other Reagan economic counselors are calling for at least partial decontrol. Under this proposal, all "new gas" (that is, wells developed after Jan. 1, 1981) would be decontrolled, and decontrol would be accelerated on gas found since 1977. The estimated cost: a mere $200 a household in 1982.

Hardly anyone who has followed the energy story believes that figure. Congressional aides cite the track record of the Energy Department and its predecessors. When fuel oil was decontrolled in June 1976, energy experts assured Congress that prices would rise, at the most, no more than 1 cent a gallon. Instead, prices went from 19 cents in April to 30 cents in the fall.

In 1978, when the Carter administration got Congress to pass the Natural Gas Policy Act setting a schedule leading to full decontrol in 1985, it was assumed that natural gas would be priced on a parity with oil — and that oil at that time would cost only $15 a barrel, not more than $30.

WHAT, THEN, is a Reagan alternative of partial decontrol lik ely to mean? The Energy Action Educational Foundation in Washington, which has compiled statistics on energy costs, gives this analysis: The average bill for a single-family home heating and cooking with natural gas was $925 in New York State in 1981. Under the present schedule, this cost would rise to $1,045 in 1982. Under the proposed accelerated schedule, if one may judge from a bill already introduced in Congress by Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, the cost for a family using natural gas on Long Island in 1982 would rise to $1,535, roughly 50 per cent more than under the present law.

But Edwin Rothschild, director of Energy Action, points out that this is only the immediate, observable impact. American consumers throughout the nation would be hit with hidden pass-through costs on a wide range of manufactured products.

Though 55 percent of American homes heat with natural gas, "residential usage accounts for only about one-quarter of the gas used," Rothschild explains. "The rest is consumed by commercial and industrial plants and electric utilities. All of these added costs will be passed on to the consumer; directly in the case of the utilities; indirectly, in things like cellophane wrappers for your bread, automobile tires on your car and the feedstock used by farmers."

Rothschild estimates that such indirect costs, added to the direct cost, would come to $1,435 in 1982 under the present schedule — and to $2,320 under accelerated decontrol.

THE INFLATIONARY IMPACT on the American economy would be devastating. But not just the homeowner and consumer would suffer. Revolt is already brewing, even at current prices, among cattle growers in the Texas-Oklahoma panhandle.

"This is the heart of meat country," Rothschild says, "and the farmers depend on irrigation, and irrigation depends on pumps run by natural gas. With the falling water table, the farmers have to drill deeper, and if gas prices go so high they can't afford to raise cattle — no meat." Farmers have already protested to the attorney general's office in Texas, and they have sent spokesmen to Washington to make their plight clear to Congress.

The prospect unnerves many congressmen. The Washington pipeline indicates that President Reagan will probably send the details of his decontrol program to Congress, which alone can amend or repeal the Natural Gas Policy Act, sometime this fall. Republican congressmen who have to seek re-election in 1982 shudder at the prospect of having to face an electorate incensed by higher prices. Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, declares: "Decontrol will be passed over my dead body."

Nevertheless, the Reagan administration is expected to press for some form of decontrol. Ideology can be blind to facts.

● Readers are invited to submit letters to be considered for publication.

Letters may be on any subject, but should not be slanderous or defamatory. They must be signed by the writer and must bear the writer's correct mailing address and a telephone number at which the writer may be contacted during the day, either home or office.

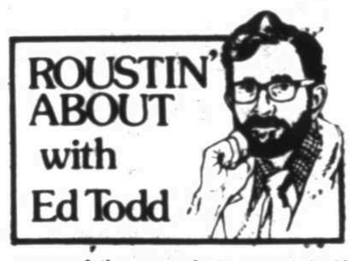
For valid reasons, at the discretion of the editor, the name will be withheld but must be included in the original letter.

Writers should be as concise as possible and the right to condense letters is reserved.

Letters must be received by noon Thursday for Sunday publication. If necessary, the latest received may be held for publication the following Tuesday or Thursday.

They should be addressed to: Letters to the Editor, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702.

Language lessons leave legacy for the literate



Harry S. Truman taught the literate world a lesson in effective communication.

Speak plainly.

Adlai E. Stevenson offered eloquence and oratory to the learned world.

Speak eloquently.

Both were effective. Neither was ordinary.

But the lessons they imparted were ill learned. People had rather speak with seemingly learned verbosity in an endeavor to impress others than plainly to say what they mean if, indeed, they know what they mean.

Often, though, they end up flattering only themselves and baffling others with the art and style of their wordmanship. But that's all right, too. It gives writers and other wordsmiths something to ponder and write words about.

And even those who think they speak clearly may talk jibberish.

A classic example of not saying what is meant is the use of the word "secure" to mean, variously, lock up, tie down, turn off, nail down, screw in, tighten up, fasten down, hold down, bolt tightly, shut off and close.

Signs designed to instruct are among the more glaring offenders. Witness:

Secure Door
When Leaving Compartment

What are you going to do? Nail it down? Maybe. But the intent is to keep the door closed.

Shut door!

Another:

Secure lights at 5 p.m.

How is that accomplished? One way, outside of locking the lightbulbs in a vault, is to turn the light switch off and dimness or darkness usually follows.

Turn off lights at 5

Examples of the use, misuse and abuse of words abound, as do examples of mis-communication.

Now, this Roustin' About piece is not meant to be instructional: The writer's intent is to cast a thought on preciseness and clarity, while pounding out words in an effort to make some sort of a living.

Now, if you have an elfish hankering to scrutinize the order and sense of these words to ascertain if the intended meaning was conveyed or otherwise put across to the reader, please do. Only don't tell E. Todd. Writers simply fear criticism; you'd think that they think they're perfect, huh?

The effective writer's or speaker's mark is not necessarily saying something the simplest possible way. No. If that were the case, the great essays of the world would be few indeed, and interest in reading and writing and in listening and speaking would wane. The forthright and subtle expression of ideas and nuances help make life exciting, interesting, adventuresome and intriguing.

There is, alas, a place for the King's English, and there is a place for simple nonsense. There is, indeed, a time and a place for all things. Surely, there's nary a word in Webster's or the Oxford or in any other dictionary of whatever description that does not have its time and place in precise usage.

The rule is simply this: Be precise even if your intent is to be ambiguous.

INVESTORS GUIDE

Mortgage is safe even if S&L folds

By BILL DOYLE

Q. The mortgage on my home is at a saving and loan association. I have more than enough money, in savings certificates and a small savings account at the same S&L, to pay off the mortgage. I'm not going to do that, of course, as long as the interest on my certificates is higher than the interest on the mortgage.

But, after reading about the financial troubles of S&Ls, I wonder what would happen if the one where I have my mortgage and certificates goes under. Would the money I have on deposit be used to pay off the mortgage? Would I be allowed to continue making monthly mortgage payments? Or, what? I know the S&L is insured.

DOYLE

A. In the unlikely event the S&L goes belly up, your mortgage would continue as before. Your mortgage is a contract, with terms spelling out your rights on how you pay it off. The financial failure of the S&L wouldn't change that.

When a S&L or bank gets into big troubles, the regulatory authorities almost always arrange for its merger into a stronger institution. If that happens with your S&L, your deposits and mortgage would move to a bigger S&L. You continue making your monthly mortgage payments.

The Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) had to pay off depositors at a failing S&L this past May — the first such case in almost 10 years. Depositors began getting their money after only four days. FSLIC took over the mortgages, for resale to other institutions. People with mortgages at the failed S&L weren't affected.

Q. I put $50,000 in a 182-day savings certificate on July 30. I will receive the interest when the certificate matures, on Jan. 30, 1982. When should I report this interest to the Internal Revenue Service — in 1981 or 1982?

A. You report it on your 1982 income tax return, which you must file by April 15, 1983.

On savings certificates with maturities of one year or less, you report the interest as taxable income for the year in which you receive it. You'll get that interest in 1982. You report it on your 82 return.

However, if you had arranged to take the interest out before the short-term certificate matures — by having it credited to your checking or savings account, or receiving it by check or cash — you would then report it as income when it became available to you.

On certificates with maturities longer than one year, you are required to report the interest each year as it builds up.

●

Q. Our experience in 182-day savings certificate turned into quite an adventure in errors. We deal with a federally chartered savings and loan association, which has made mistakes every time we bought or renewed a certificate.

My pocket calculator showed the S&L made six errors — all of which would have cost us money. After our protests, all the errors except the last were corrected. I'm steamed. To what federal agency should we complain?

A. Write to Office of the Secretary, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, 1790 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20552. FHLBB is the regulatory agency of federally chartered S&Ls. In your letter, detail all the errors — especially the uncorrected last one — you say the S&L made.

Anyone with a complaint about a state chartered S&L should contact his or her state banking department or commission.

●

Q. A company in which I have owned stock since the 1950s merged with another company in July. As a result, I received stock of the new, merged company. If I sell this stock this year, do I have a short-term or long-term gain?

A. You would have a long-term capital gain, only 40 percent of which is subject to income tax.

In the case of a merger, your "holding period" for tax purposes dates back to when you purchased the original stock. The profit on the sale of stock or other "capital asset" held for more than a year is counted a long-term capital gain.

Ground broken for new county RV park

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held last week for a new recreational vehicle park in Midland County.

The site for the new Bar-H RV Park is seven miles north of Highway 80 off of FM 1788. It is the second park to be opened by the owners of the KOA Kampground.

According to one of the owners, Olin Horne, the new facility will be exclusively for monthly renters, restoring the current KOA Kampground, located west of Midland off Highway 80, to its original function as an overnight park.

In trying to maintain a "ranch-like atmosphere," Horne said that the alfalfa field north of the intended campground and the horses grazing in the pasture to the west of the site will remain unchanged.

"We plan on replacing this fence with a wire and cable fence that we'll paint white," he said. "We want to keep it looking like a ranch as much as possible."

But, according to Olin's wife, Elizabeth, and the other owners, his daughter Carol and her husband Kenneth Harper, they also plan on having some urban conveniences.

Unlike the KOA Kampground, the new park is scheduled to receive cable television and each lot will have a telephone hookup.

The Bar-H RV Park also will have a convenience store to serve the surrounding area. Horne said the only difference in the store at the new campground and the one at the KOA is the new one will not have an A-frame.

The convenience store also will carry gasoline and propane. Showers, laundry, swimming pool and playground facilities will be built.

The location of the new park is a good one, according to the owners. "It's a five-mile shot to Permian Mall and less to Midland," Horne said. He said that plans have been made to extend Odessa's 42nd Street out to the area.

"Someday it'll probably be as busy as Highway 80," Mrs. Harper said.

Horne said 10 acres will be developed into 100 lots. The KOA ground has 125 lots on seven acres.

According to Horne, the two families were in the construction business before opening their first recreational park.

"If we were hiring sub-contractors, it'd cost us about half a million dollars. But we do it ourselves," Horne said.

Reservations are already being taken and Mrs. Harper said they will begin to take deposits Nov. 1.

Horne said the date for the opening depends on when the road gets paved but, "we're shooting at eight weeks."
