NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin, Nov. 4.—Pension-seekers of Texas last week looked apprehensively toward Austin, and pondered the disturbing possibility that the legislature might furnish them with a shiny new automobile—represented by an old-age pension law—without any gasoline to run it. The "gasoline" is the tax revenue necessary to pay the pensions authorized by bills finally adopted by each house, and sent to conference for final agreement.

The house last week after a record-breaking debate of seven hours, passed the omnibus tax bill authored by Hollis Frazer and Jesse James. Nobody knows how much revenue it will raise should it be approved in the senate in its present form—which it will not be. Estimates range from $8,000,000 to $18,000,000. It would tax gas and electric utility gross receipts, telephone and telephone companies, marble machines, cement, crude oil (1-2 cent a barrel), natural gas, sulphur (15 cents a ton), horse race bets, hotels, plane and bus fares, pipelines, tourist camps, theater tickets and many other items.

Legislative bickering and activity of lobbyists have maneuvered the pension-tax problem into a situation where the legislators may come to the close of the special session next week, faced with the choice of accepting a "selective" sales tax, tacked onto the omnibus tax bill in the senate (which is the plan of the sales-tax lobby), or of failing to make any provision for payment of old-age pensions.

Lobbyists representing every business and industry which would be taxed under the omnibus measure have joined hands with the general sales tax lobby-headed by ex-Gov. Jim Ferguson—to present this alternative to the legislators in the closing hours of the session.

They believe that public sentiment is so strong for old-age pensions that the legislators will not dare finish another session without action on the question, and that a majority, even the opposing a general sales levy, will accept a "selective" sales tax rather than face the wrath of the pension seekers. With this entering wedge, they hope that eventually when Gov. Alfred leaves the mansion, it will be possible to substitute a general sales tax, and thus relieve the special interests of any special taxes.

The alternative is for the legislature to follow the precedent of some other states, which have passed old-age pension laws, but made no provision for paying the pension. Arizona did this three years ago, and no pensions have been paid as yet. That would probably cost many a member his seat in the legislature, when the pensionless pensioners go to the polls next July.

The whole pension performance is a fine example of unintelligent governmental procedure to which Texas has become insured. No private corporation would attempt to set up machinery for spending $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 a year for any purpose, without first making a careful study of how the money was to be raised and expended. But the legislature is attempting, in the heat of a 30-day session, during which it must deal with at least three other major subjects, to act on the pension question without even knowing how many people will be old enough to claim pensions, what they will cost, whether the patchwork tax bill will pay them, or any of the other fundamental facts essential to the intelligent action upon the matter. The only information the legislators have on the subject is that submitted by a frankly selfish lobby, or by their demagogic colleagues who want to use their support of pensions as a vote-catcher next year.

Mel-Roy The Great To Be Here Saturday

Announcement was made today that MEL-ROY THE GREAT will play an engagement in this city November 9 at the high school auditorium.

The announcement that Mel-Roy The Great has agreed to present his mammoth magical production here and that the contract for the engagement has been signed was made by the P. T. A. whose efforts were responsible for securing the opportunity for local people to see the remarkable array of magic and illusions which this World Famous Magician presents in his performance. "The name Mel-Roy has become a household word to many because of his extensive radio work and we believe that we have been of real service to our community in booking the Mel-Roy engagement. It is not often that we are permitted to view a performer of such real merit and we hope that the people of Loraine will join in making this engagement one of the most satisfactory Mel-Roy has ever had," one of the officers of the local P. T. A. declared in discussing the Mel-Roy contract and Show.

Mel-Roy will be here for two performances, afternoon at 2:30 and night at 7:30. Admission for the night show will be 20 and 35 cents.

Six separate bills, each representing a different method of regulating the sale of liquor, were before both houses this week, following submission of this major controversial measure by Gov. Alfred. Advocates of sale-by-the-drink, apparently beaten down in the first special session, showed renewed life with a bill to provide local option on drink sales. The whole liquor question is charged with political dynamite, and any predictions as to the outcome would be only wild guesses. The warned by the governor that inaction is costing $10,000 a day in taxes, the legislature may fail again to reach any agreement at all. The three warning schools of thought include the sale-by-the-drink-under-local-option group, led by Houston's Emmett Morse in the house and Weaver Moore in the senate; the unbroken-package-licensed-dealer group headed by Bryan Bradbury and Alfred Petsch in the house and Clint Small and Olin Van Zandt in the senate, and the state monopolists, with George Moffett as their house leader and Joe Hill as senate spokesman.

Taxpayers who voted for the abolition of the fee system in the fond hope of putting a stop to the payment of paying county politicians five to ten times what the same individuals could earn in private employment will get little comfort from the fee bill finally passed by the senate. It fixes the minimum compensation for county officers at amount earned under the fee system in 1935, and the maximum at the figures set in present statutes. The "court-house gangs" themselves would fix the actual salaries, thru the county commissioners' courts, who generally have a sympathetic understanding of the income problems of the fee officers. You're going to find the courthouse crowds throut Texas generally favoring re-election of present members of the senate next July.

Reception For Mrs. F. C. Sloan

The Gleaners Sunday School class met Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in the home of Mrs. John Mahon to honor Mrs. F. C. Sloan with a handkerchief shower and farewell reception. Miss Bessie Nell Johnson, Mrs. Piguet and Mrs. Honea presided at the punch bowl.

The Gleaners are sorry to give Mrs. Sloan up as she has been a faithful Gleaner as well as church worker.

Mrs. Rowland presented the following program which was enjoyed by a large crowd of Gleaners and close friends of Mrs. Sloan.

The handkerchiefs were unexpectedly presented by Mrs. Arlie Martin at the close of a clever monolog "The wise Virgin takes a walk in the sunshine prepared for rain." Other numbers on the program included piano solo, "Auld Lang Syne" by Melba Mahon; Piano solo "The Isle of Capri" by Ruby Jo Marshall; Piano solo "The Dance of the Wild Flowers" by Locita Martin; Piano solo "2nd Waltz by Goddard" by Opal Martin; Piano solo "Minuet in G" by Winnola Martin; Piano solo "Arkansas Traveler" by Billie Marie Rowland; Poems by Princess Martin, read by Bessie Nell Johnson.

PEACE PROGRAM OFFERED BY P. T. A.

The Loraine P. T. A. announces a "Peace" program for the meeting on November 7. Mrs. J. G. Merritt of Colorado will speak to the meeting on peace.

Parents let's show we are interested by coming out and hearing this wonderful speaker.

TO CLOSE STORES FOR ARMISTICE MONDAY

Next Monday will be the 17th anniversary of the close of the World War. The bank and quite a number of business establishments in Loraine will close for the day.

RURAL ROUTE FROM LORAIN IS EXTENDED

R. B. Cope postmaster, received an order from the postoffice department a few days ago extending the rural route out of Loraine. The extension will take in about five miles of new route in addition to the present route, and will also cut off approximately two miles of the present route. The new addition will take in the mile from the T. J. Newton corner to the Carl Price corner north of town. South of town the new addition will go west three miles from the Bauman school house to the Jess Lee corner, then north one mile to D. McCollum corner, then three miles east back to the Bauman road at the Ernest Meadows corner, then into town on the old route.

Service will start on the new additions on December 1. The mail will leave Loraine at eight o'clock and the carrier will make the complete round before returning to the office.

The new service will accommodate quite a few more people and is the result of efforts of Loraine business men.

BYRON BENNETT IS WINNER OF $2 LAST WEEK

Byron Bennett was the lucky person last week in the misspelled word advertising page and received the $2 prize. Byron corrected 60 of the 62 misspelled words.

Remember the advertisement appearing this week will be the last one of the series. If you have not tried your hand at correcting the words do so this week. You might be the winner. Mail or bring your answer to this office so that it will reach us Saturday after one o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Faulkner and son, Fred Weldon, of Big Spring spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Faulkner's sister, Mrs. G. K. Baker.

Loraine Defeated Coahoma Friday

The Loraine Bulldogs added another non-conference victory to their list last Friday afternoon when they defeated the Coahoma high school team on the local grid 26 to 0.

The first quarter went scoreless but in the second quarter the locals pushed over a touchdown. During the last half they made three more.

Chubby James, first string quarterback, was sick and unable to play in the game Friday. The quarterback assignment went to Eldon Mahon who did a good job of it.

The team will go to Sylvester Friday afternoon of this week for the final non-conference game. The next two Fridays will be occupied by conference affairs with Snyder, at Snyder, on November 15, and Rotan, at Rotan, at night, on November 22.

S. I. G. CLASS

The S. I. G. Sunday School class met November 5 in the home of Ruth Anne Hall in a regular meeting. Going to the shower was discussed and a new absentee committee was appointed. We asked Miss Alexander to be assistant teacher for our class.

After playing several games the hostesses, Mrs. Johnson and Ruth Anne, served a lovely plate to Dell Johnson, Doris Narrell, Marie Sipes and one visitor, Faye Johnson.

The weather was bad and very few were present. We shall expect more at our next class meeting.

J. M. Bruce and son, Duane, and Mrs. W. S. Erwin and Mrs. Zellner attended the funeral of Mrs. Wimberley in Sweetwater Saturday morning.

Mrs. J. M. Templeton of Dublin is visiting her daughter, Mrs. O. I. Griffin, her son, Varnell Templeton, and her sister, Mrs. Zora Dean.

Green Murder Case To Trial This Week

A jury for the trial, of C. W. (Chicken) Green on a murder charge was completed in district court Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. A few witnesses were examined Tuesday afternoon but the case is expected to take two or three days to complete. The case was transferred to Mitchell County from Scurry County.

Jurors selected to try the case are, C. N. Stubblefield, J. H. McCullough, C. M. Vest, L. A. Strain, W. C. Farrar, J. A. Metairie, Foy Welch, W. J. Wooster, R. E. Beal, D. C. Stubblefield, Ben Cooper, and J. A. Ferguson.

FARMERS MEETING

J. M. Bruce, president of the Farmers organization in this community, has announced an important meeting for farmers to be held at the school house Friday night of this week. The meeting is called for seven o'clock.

S.S. CLASS MEETING

The Sunday School class taught by Mrs. Emma Lee had a meeting last week and elected officers. The name, flower and colors have not been elected yet. The officers elected are: President, Helen Bennett; vice-president, Loyce Beatty; secretary, Lillian Hendrick; treasurer, Opal Martin; corresponding secretary, Evelyn Land; reporter, Pauline Faulkner.

Next Sunday is the last Sunday that our pastor, Bro. Meador, will be here. We are very sorry to lose him and his good wife.

We invite you to come to Sunday School.

WEEKLY COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

For the past three weeks about 20 per cent of the samples classified each week from representative gins in Texas has been Strict Middling and better (White and Extra White). This week the proportion for this designation is only 15 per cent. Notwithstanding this decrease in the proportions for the higher grades this week as compared to recent weeks, current receipts are of higher average grade than were the receipts shown on the last two reports issued in September.

Reports for recent weeks have shown a trend toward increased proportions of Spotted cotton. This week about 33 per cent of the samples classed was Spotted, most of which was Strict Middling Spotted. For the season to date, about 18 per cent of the samples classed from Texas ginnings has been Spotted.

The report this week, as was the case for each of the reports for the last several weeks, shows about one-fifth of the samples with staple length shorter than 7-8 inch. Prior to the report of September 14, the proportion for this short length for samples classed from Texas ginnings was about 1 per cent, but beginning with the report of September 14, the proportion increased each week, reaching a proportion of 20 per cent.

President Raps Tugwell for Budget Prediction—WPA
Job Program Moves Rapidly—Farmers Indorse
Corn-Hog Control for 1936.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

REXFORD G. TUGWELL, undersecretary of agriculture and once considered head man of the "brain trust," made a speech at Los Angeles the other day that called forth a sharp rebuke from President Roosevelt. Addressing a Democratic gathering, Tugwell asserted that the administration could satisfy every humanitarian demand and still balance the budget in 1938.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a press conference, scolded the newspapers for printing what he called "crazy stories," and went on to declare that Tugwell's assertion was almost as unfounded as the predictions thrown out by many political observers that the budget probably would never be balanced again. Tugwell's statement wasn't quite as "wild" as the newspaper stories, he remarked, because Tugwell knew a little more about the budget than the newspaper men.

The President said he and his advisers were about to make a study of the financial situation, and that until the budget is finally drafted about the first of the year not even he knows what shape it will take. Every effort, he said, would be made to hold the regular government departments down to the figures of this fiscal year, but he would make no predictions as to emergency expenditures.

JOBS for 3,500,000 needy persons by November 15, and an end of the dole by December 1. That was the forecast made by the New Dealers in Washington, and it appeared probable of accomplishment. Officials said states will receive no direct relief allotments from the government for December and that the November grants will be greatly reduced. The employment program is a month behind schedule, but is now being carried forward rapidly. Every state director of the PWA has been given a job goal by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and was told by that gentleman:

"The responsibility for carrying out these objectives, through providing work on approved projects, rests squarely on you."

As November opened these state administrators had $1,018,947.649 to spend, and every day Comptroller General McCarroll was putting more to their credit in the federal treasury. Of the $3,330,843,803 tentatively approved in WPA project values by President Roosevelt, McCarroll had passed $2,450,293,894. Of the $1,060,207,831 definitely allocated for WPA by the president, McCarroll had countersigned treasury warrants for all but $41,200,182.

NEW DEALERS have scored a major victory, and are correspondingly elated. By a majority of something like 10 to 1, the corn-hog producers have voted for a continuance of the crop adjustment through another year. Incomplete returns from the referendum showed that the program was favored by a majority in every one of the 33 states from which votes were received.

"It is only natural that we should be pleased with the apparent approval of adjustment given by corn and hog farmers," said Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, as he watched the returns come in at Washington. "If the final results bear out present indications another voluntary contract will be offered for both corn and hogs."

In a formal statement Davis emphasized earlier assurances that the AAA would seek a 25 to 30 per cent increase in hog production next year, saying the "need for increasing the present pork supply of the nation... will be kept in mind in plans for the next adjustment contract."

Before the results of the voting were known President Roosevelt announced tentative plans for making the AAA over from an emergency to a permanent agency. Observers in Washington concluded that Mr. Roosevelt intends to make the AAA a major campaign issue next year and to rely for re-election largely on the voters in those western states that have received the largest cash payments in the carrying out of the crop adjustment program—taking it for granted that he will carry the solid South.

CONTINUING the administration's policy of "enabling farmers to market their crop in a more orderly fashion," Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced a corn loan of 45 cents a bushel on the 1935 crop, available from December 1 until next July 1. The Commodity Credit corporation had already approved this and asked a commitment from the R. F. C. to provide the necessary funds.

Wallace estimated that about $150,000,000 would be advanced to corn growers under this program. Borrowers must sign the AAA corn-hog con-rol contracts. The loans will be made on corn which, if shelled, would grade No. 3 or better. The grade requirement last year called for was No. 4. The loan rate then was 55 cents a bushel.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI defies the League of Nations and its sanctions. In a speech at the inauguration of the new university in Rome he said:

"In the face of an economic siege toward which all civilized people of the world should feel supreme shame, in the face of an experiment which they wanted to test, for the first time, against the Italian people, let it be said:

"We will oppose it with our most implacable resistance, with our most firm decision and with our most supreme contempt."

However, it was announced in Geneva that the duke was willing to negotiate for peace with Ethiopia, and there was a possibility the league would delay for 15 days the application of further penalties.

King Victor Emmanuel issued a decree putting the entire Italian merchant marine on a war basis.

Prime Minister Baldwin's reply to Mussolini's defiance was a blunt assertion that Great Britain was prepared to resort to force, if necessary, to carry out the sanctions. Said he: "We mean nothing to the league if we are not prepared in the end, and after grave and careful trial, to take action to enforce its judgments."

The British government made new protests to Italy against Italian press attacks on Britain and anti-British propaganda in Egypt, and three more destroyers were sent from Gibraltar to Malta.

WHILE the League of Nations was going forward with its plans for the imposition of sanctions against Italy, its officials asked the United States government to comment on this policy.

For the attitude of this country is considered vital to the success of the program. Secretary of State Hull replied promptly but with extreme caution, avoiding comment on the action taken by the league powers and inferentially declining to cooperate in the sanctions.

The answer, whose tenor was dictated by President Roosevelt, was sent to Minister Hugh Wilson at Bern. It only set forth the moves made by the United States under the neutrality act and restated our government's hope for world peace. In press conferences Mr. Hull stressed the fact that this country will continue to move independently to keep free and untangled as President Roosevelt has promised.

AMERICAN citizens are not respecting the embargo on shipments to Italy and Ethiopia to an extent that satisfies the administration. Therefore the President issued this statement:

"In dealing with the conflict between Ethiopia and Italy I have carried into effect the will and intent of the neutrality resolution recently enacted by congress. We have prohibited all shipments of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to the belligerent governments. By my public statement of October 5, which was emphasized by the secretary of state on October 10, we have warned American citizens against transactions of any character with either of the belligerent nations except at their own risk.

"This government is determined not to become involved in the controversy and is anxious for the restoration and maintenance of peace.

"However, in the course of war, tempting trade opportunities may be offered to our people to supply materials which would prolong the war. I do not believe that the American people will wish for abnormally increased profits that temporarily might be secured by greatly extending our trade in such materials; nor would they wish the struggles on the battlefield to be prolonged because of profits accruing to a comparatively small number of American citizens.

"Accordingly, the American government is keeping informed as to all shipments considered for export to both belligerents."

Secretary of State Hull issued another statement calling upon American citizens to desist from trading with either Italy or Ethiopia. Such trade, he declared, was conducted "at the expense of human lives and human misery."

EARTHQUAKE tremors that were felt in many localities all the way from Spokane and Calgary to New York and Boston were severest in Helena, where at least two persons were killed and many injured. Numerous buildings weakened by the former tremors in the Montana capital were thrown down and the property losses were considerable.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Bay of Fundy Power
Religion Aids Mussolini
Cheap Eggs for Soldiers Government Railroads?

Governor Brann of Maine is unwilling to share expenses, and President Roosevelt may drop the Passamaquoddy power project. That would be a national misfortune. While spending billions so freely, it would seem worth while to spend thirty-six little millions to harness the gigantic tide power in the Bay of Fundy.

Development of that project would supply the whole state of Maine with power and industrial prosperity and pay for itself.

To allow the vast power of one of the highest tides on earth to continue going to waste would be as foolish as it would be to cease using the power of Niagara.

In Milan, Cardinal Schuster, celebrating mass for those that died in the Fascist march on Rome, indorsed earnestly Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia, praising "the valiant army which, in intrepid obedience to the command of their fatherland at the price of their blood, open the doors of Ethiopia to the Catholic faith and the civilization of Rome."

Also, according to Associated Press, the cardinal praised Fascism as "promoting the national morality wished by the Catholic church."

Italian soldiers in Ethiopia, much surprised, can buy as many fresh eggs as they want at ridiculously low prices.

Ethiopians will not eat eggs—their religion forbids them to devour "that which might have life in the future," but they are willing to sell the eggs to the Italian soldiers and let them imperil their immortal souls by "devouring future life" if they choose.

Ethiopian tribesmen have no scruples about eating the chicken, once it is hatched, which shows that religious scruples take interesting forms. What about the "future life" that the hen might have produced?

Railway labor unions plan a Washington lobby, to promote government purchase and operation of railroads. Owners of some railroads would gladly share the expense of that lobby, if they could sell their railroads at a fair price.

Running a railroad in competition with automobiles, motor busses and trucks is like running a legitimate hotel in competition with night clubs and other former speakeasies.

Russia is a successful spy hunter, having convicted on the average one every six months, according to "Colliers."

If, in Russia, you are convicted of spying, no second conviction is ever necessary or possible.

These 100,000 spies, to earn their money, must keep international suspicion alive, and that helps to keep war alive.

Rejoicing in the fact that "the 13 years of the Fascist regime have not passed in vain, and the world of plutocratic and conservative egotisms is obliged to take note of this," Mussolini denounces League of Nations sanctions aimed at him as "a preposterous crime destined to increase disorder and distress in every country."

Pan-American Air Lines asks air travelers: "Shall we serve cocktails to passengers?"

The answer should be emphatically "no." First, the average cocktail is unfit for any stomach, except perhaps that of a carillon-eating hyena; second, it has been proved more than once that alcohol and flying do not mix well.

The President inspected "fortifications" of the Panama canal, returning from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

Unfortunately there are no fortifications on the Panama canal. The canal depends on its locks and they, open to attack from the air, could easily be destroyed. No engineer will deny that.

The way to have a "fortified" canal is to build one at sea level. In these spending days that might be done now, through Nicaragua.

Uncle Sam would have something to show for his money more substantial than groups of weary gentlemen "raking leaves."

There is encouragement in the fact that "regular jobs," not the artificial made-to-order kind, are increasing. Three hundred and fifty thousand men were hired in September, and payrolls for September are $12,000,000 a week above August.

Warner Brothers' successful production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," under the direction of Max Reinhardt, proves courage and sound judgment.

The picture is a financial as well as an artistic success, greater by far than any recent Shakespearean stage production with living actors.

Mr. Burton, of Cosmopolitan Magazine, asks various highbrows and brows of middling height to answer: "Will world peace ever be possible?" The answer is "Yes," but paid spies may postpone the happy day.

Among other parasites, the world now supports 100,000 spies—men and women. Forty thousand have been caught and convicted in Europe during the past 15 years.

Newman Knows Differences of Amateurs, Pros

Harry Newman, the all-America quarterback while at Michigan and one of the outstanding players in the National Football league, is this week's guest columnist. He discusses the difference between football as played by the amateurs and the professionals.

By HARRY NEWMAN

FOOTBALL still is a lot of fun. If it weren't it wouldn't be worth while, regardless of how much they paid you for it. Believe me, I've missed it the few weeks I was out and I was mighty glad to get back into action when our Giants played the Boston Redskins at the Polo grounds.

One of the toughest games of football I ever played in, I think, was against those same Boston Redskins last year. It was the Cavanaugh Memorial contest. The Giants won, 7 to 0.

That was one week I had the Monday black and blues, plenty. Among the Giants we kid a lot about how we feel on Monday morning. Sometimes it's not too good. That's when all the aches and pains begin to creep up on you. Boys, how you hate to get out of bed!

The only difference between pro and amateur in that respect is that you ache all over a day later in pro football.

I really believe, though, that the principal difference between amateur and college football is one of experience. You learn something, naturally, from every football game you play. All the improvements, and certainly there are improvements in professional play over amateur, trace back to experience.

Our coach, Steve Owen, tells me I'm a better ball carrier now than I was in college. Also, that I was better a year ago than I was my first year in professional ball. That's experience. I never ran with the ball much in college.

Quarterbacking—calling plays—is a little harder in professional ball. Wider experience helps you here, too. In college I used to call plays and often just take a chance on your working. In professional ball you don't guess. You know just what play to call, and if it doesn't work you know exactly why it fails.

That goes back to experience. You've learned to watch for little things that indicate weakness in the opposition. You know position play better, and how to take advantage of every little thing, like a lineman a half-step out of position. Then, of course, you keep plugging at that hole until another opens up or the opposition gets wise.

That leads to another progression. In professional ball lots of times you have to make your holes. Sometimes you'll call a whole series of plays, knowing that ultimately you're going to decoy some man out of position.

Such a necessity seldom exists in college play. This is due, probably, to the fact that college teams seldom have perfect, or nearly perfect, men in every position. There is bound to be a weakness somewhere.

Fans Remember 'Forgotten Man'

Philadelphia.—When the Hon. Herbert Hoover, once shrilly jeered by a sports crowd in this same town, had his soul warmed by applause while walking out on the Yale-Penn game at Franklin field, editorial writers gaped at the political implications and began digging in with their pencils.

As usual, though—and I mention this as one who does not care who wins in the local majority debate so long as the winner's name is Jack Kelly—it is to be feared that the intellectual lads missed the real point of the hand clapping which caused the Hon. Herbert's high collar to turn a pretty cerise while reflecting the warm tint of his blushes.

Actually—and this is especially noteworthy since the pinkie patting came mainly from the Pennsylvania, or defeated, side of the field—it may have been that the boys and girls merely were expressing their keen gratification at having some excuse for applause this late in a game so recently filled with travail.

Hoover. This is especially noteworthy since the pinkie patting came mainly from the Pennsylvania, or defeated, side of the field—it may have been that the boys and girls merely were expressing their keen gratification at having some excuse for applause this late in a game so recently filled with travail.

CLARENCE WATERS guides the blond filly back to the judges' stand, salutes and slides to the ground. The crowd, pressed close against the rail of that tight little track which once was Jim Butler's pride, applauds politely, yet without heart, and turns to other things.

They have no more attention to waste on this opening heat. An outsider has won, Bright Emerald, at 8 to 1. Too bad, but another race is due scant minutes from now. Maybe the tip will hold up better on that one. Meanwhile those insiders looking out (for themselves) must wander down the slate-bordered line to gaze at the odds or stare with calculating reverence at the sleek thoroughbreds in the paddock.

Far down the track, near the head of the stretch where the outer rail meets the brighter green of the grand stand, the excitement has not subsided among that queerly assorted group who mill about on the steep slope. Few of them have cashed the bets that, in size and in wisdom of choice, are as varied as the natures or their costumes. Yet their pulses have warmed with sympathy for this long shot which has scored. They also, these gentlemen and ladies who cling perilously to the far edge of the rail, are outsiders. Long shots of life, some of them, they cannot repress the kindred glow that comes when the favorite is beaten.

It is a scene, this one at Empire City, which takes place at many tracks. Saratoga, they tell me, is the easiest, yet nearly all of them provide vantage points for the outsiders who wish to look in.

Why they are outside, perhaps down near the backstretch where the dust from thudding hoofs swirls about them and clouds of dirt whirl past their heads, is not my problem today. Some of them no doubt have been barred from the turf for misdeeds which need not be related here. Others may lack the $2.50 admission fee. There is no use going into all the reasons for the assemblage of all these colorful characters on the borders of racing. They are present, more than anything else, because they thrill to the lure of the sport which has far outlasted the kings whose titles were once linked with it.

Perhaps that is the reason why they are permitted to remain there on the outside, when the efficient Pinkertons could disperse them at quick notice. Not so many seasons ago I was talking to Jim Butler just after one of his thoroughbreds had galloped home.

Human Long Shots Crowd the Fence

The late Mr. Butler often was termed crochety. Undoubtedly he surpassed most men in his esteem for a dollar, and the crowds were not flocking to his racetrack then. He looked at those outsiders and there was a gleam in his veiny eyes. I thought that he was going to complain bitterly about this wearing out of the green grass on the outer border of the course. Then he sighed and turned away. Mr. Butler also loved horses and the thrill that comes from watching them no matter how precarious the view.

That is why I hope I am not blowing the whistle on them now. I like to mingle on the fringes on chilly autumn afternoons, and surely they can be doing little harm. Perhaps I may even make a bet with them now and then, for, of course, they have their books.

That these books have not been sanctified by the approval of the State Racing commission and that they do not deposit the daily fee in the coffers of the tracks does not perturb me in the least. Bets of two bits, of two dollars and of ten are made without fear and are paid off without favor. Perhaps the gentlemen who slip by on the rail so unobtrusively displaying programs with the odds marked upon them do run out now and then. Yet it is probable that they do not run far. That group outside the rail has no patience with such doings and punishment might be sharp as well as sudden.

Strangely enough, those outsiders looking in seem to bet in much the same manner and by much the same impulse as impels the insiders looking out, for themselves. With all their sympathy for the dark horses these long shots of life seem to rattle down their dollars on the favorites with as much unanimity as their brethren on the other side of the rail.

Whether that makes those spots so far from the crowd good training schools for bettors I do not know. Yet they seem to provide experience and, perhaps more, for the men who rustle past with programs clutched in tight fists.

Johnny Ferrone, who operates one of the larger books in the ring and whose judgment is so much sought on the opening line, now is very much of an insider. Ten years or so ago, I am told, he was perfecting his knowledge of prices and horses on the other side of the fence.

THINGS the box score never told me:

Although they insist that they still like him personally, Fordham alumni plan to replace Jimmy Crowley as coach this winter. After the Purdue defeat on Saturday many of them wandered through the stands uttering lusty cheers for Elmer Toy, who so ably assisted Major Cavanaugh a few seasons back.

KILLED BY FLYING SHEEP

E. C. Major of Perma, Mont., had herded his sheep across the railroad tracks, but when a train came along the flock got nervous and started back. The locomotive plowed into the middle of it, hurling the animals in all directions. Several bodies struck Major. He died.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste pattern that causes acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function.

To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping. Thousands of physicians recommend Milsesia Wafers. (Doctors recommend Milsesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity.)

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milsesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or at convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airway emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount. Sensing treachery ahead, Garth secretly removes a part from the motor of the plane. Huxby and Lilith taunt Garth, but their tone soon changes when they try to start the plane. Returning to shore they try to force Garth to give up the missing part. Garth manages to set the monoplane adrift and the current carries it over the falls. He points out that he is their only hope in guiding them out of the wilderness. Garth begins the work of preparing for the long journey. He insists that the others help. Ramill and his daughter must be hardened for the hardships ahead in their trek to the outpost on the Mackenzie. Garth experiences difficulties in getting his companions into line. An experience with a bear helps. Returning from a long sleep in the woods, Garth finds the party has stolen the tea and sugar he has been saving for emergencies. He makes no objection, simply pointing out that he is accustomed to a strict meat diet, and that they are hurting only themselves. The work of getting ready for the trip continues. Huxby refuses to help, and works on the mining claim.

No man of the engineer's coldly calculating character would stop at anything, when the stakes of the game meant a placer worth a million or more. Mother Nature could now be counted on to keep the spoiled heiress in line. But the Wild would only sharpen and intensify the engineer's craft and aversion.

After eating his fill, Garth took to Huxby's bed, beside the smudge-fire. He awakened to find that the sun had taken its northern dip and was just slanting up again above the mountain crests. It had been under much longer than in June. The summer was getting well along.

Huxby had stayed on watch to keep the fire going. He met Garth's off-hand good morning with a show of civility. His cool reasoning had brought him to the realization that nothing was to be gained by upstaging Garth.

When Miss Ramill left the leanto, Garth stooped in under the low roof and began to rub her father's knees and hips. The millionaire groaned that he had been stricken with a terrible attack of lumbago and rheumatism. It was impossible for him to move.

Heedless of the complaints, Garth rolled the complainer out beside the cold baked leg of moose. The "sick" man ate more than either his daughter or Garth. Afterwards, insistent urging and the promise of an easy work-out persuaded him to get on his feet. They wandered around through the woods, with frequent pauses in the glades.

When, several hours later, they returned to camp Miss Ramill had completed one moccasin and was doggedly stitching at its mate. Huxby came down from the trough with the gold pan. Garth melted the last of the moose fat in it and fried a heaping mess of mushrooms. For salad, he shook a quantity of pleasantly acid sorrel from the bottom of his pail. With berries for dessert, the meal became a banquet. While it lasted there was a general glow of good feeling. Even Huxby spoke pleasantly to Garth.

As before, Garth turned in at the same time as Mr. Ramill. He awakened to find the first pair of moccasins finished. The girl had met his terms.

He gave Huxby the moss bed, and started to collect flatfish stones as heavy as he could toss. When he had pitched a dozen or so upon the cache platform, he strung the smoked slices of meat on rawhide thongs. Raking aside the smudge-fire, he stood on the rack and tied all the meat close up under the cache platform.

He then climbed upon the platform and piled the stones on the tie-thongs where they came around the poles. That would keep wolverines or other pilferers from gnawing the rawhide to let the meat fall. No fourfooted creature could now get at the meat on the under side of the platform, and even ravens would have difficulty stealing much of it. To complete the job, Garth pulled off the cross poles of the smoke rack.

For breakfast, the party finished the baked leg of moose. As Garth had foreseen, his three city camp mates had developed camp appetites. Better still, they were less irritable. Their craving for drink and tobacco had begun to lessen.

At timberline Huxby went up the trough with the gold pan. Garth headed again for the glacier. This time Mr. Ramill did not pant and gasp so hard, nor did he have to stop so often to rest. The first climb had done more than strengthen his wind and dabby muscles. It had burned up the autotoxins in his system as well as sweat off many pounds of fat.

He managed to climb all the way to the lower end of the glacier. It took him less time than his part-way climb and he was far less exhausted. While he rested in a sunny nook on the rocky side of the lateral moraine, his daughter went down in front of the glacier with Garth. They came to the channel where the milky stream gushed out of a tunnel cave in the blue-white ice.

Garth pointed to a shelf of rock on the near side of the stream. He walked into the cave along the smoothly polished ledge. Lilith Ramill shuffled and glanced up fearfully at the steep overhanging ice face that seemed about to crash down. Yet after a moment's hesitation, she followed Garth into the chilly blue shadow of the cave.

Several yards from the entrance Garth stopped before a narrow side hole that opened above a waist-high uprise in the bedrock. He reached in and picked up a bundled white skin. Out in the sun he opened the skin and showed a piece of frozen meat.

"How's that for cold storage?" he said. "Killed a young mountain sheep on my way out, last month. Thought I'd test the glacier. Looks as if it's a safe meat house. No chance of spoiling, and not even a wolf has ventured inside."

Miss Ramill said nothing. She saw no reason to consider the cave of the slightest interest. There was, however, the meat. She suggested that if it was not spoiled, it would make a change from the moose meat. This proved true. Down at camp the young mutton was first thawed in cold water, then stewed in the gold pan.

The descent had been made by Ramill without aid. There was no need to support, much less back-pack him. He had really begun to get a start in training. To Garth this was all the more reason for pushing the millionaire so much the harder.

In the week that followed, he alternated more climbs with trips around into the muskeg swamps. He led his sweating, swearing charge over niggerhead grass, where the heavy-bodied city man had to jump nimbly from one big tussock to another or take a tumble.

Miss Ramill tagged along on these grueling hikes. She also made another climb up the gulch. Garth cached in the cave the hundred pounds of smoked moose meat he had brought up on his pack-bag. He then led on up the glacier, halfway from its foot to the top of the pass. That gave the three climbers some real ice work. Coming back, Garth knocked three brace of fool hens from spruce limbs with a stick.

The half dozen grouse made a pleasant change. But even with a pail of salmon berries for dessert they proved a scant meal for the four meat-eaters. The last leg of moose had already been baked and eaten, the tongues broiled, and the second muffle stewed. The remainder of the smoked meat would not last long. So far, Garth had not interfered with Huxby's all-day panning out of the platinum alloy. He had not even asked to look at the take of precious metal. Food was a different matter. Instead of shooting another moose, he called upon Huxby to join in a caribou hunt.

A band of the big animals had drifted along the tundra terrace over towards the glacier. Garth counted fifteen. He waited until the band came within seventy-five yards. He then let drive, shooting rapidly yet with careful aim. One after another dropped, each with a bullet through the head. The stupid beasts stared in the direction of the sharp reports. But they could see nothing. The sixth went down before the nine survivors wheeled and clattered off in panic-stricken flight.

The faying was well under way when Huxby and Miss Ramill came hastening aslant the tundra ahead of Mr. Ramill. The girl eyed the clean delicious-looking white fat on the first fayed body. "That looks good, Alan! Vivian, you can go back to your mining. Dad and I will help here."

Her father called out a panning suggestion for Huxby to wait and carry down a load of meat.

"No need," Garth said. "Don't stop, Huxby. Most of this venison is going on ice. None will be allowed to spoil."

The engineer did not linger. He had looked none too well pleased over the girl's familiar use of Garth's first name. Along with his displeasure about this, there could be no doubt of his eagerness to get back to the platinum panning. Each successive day he had shown himself still keener to continue the sampling of the placer.

When Garth finished the faying of the caribou, he started to dress out the bodies. Greatly to his astonishment, at the cutting up of the second caribou, she took the belt-ax and began to help. Mother Nature had cracked the polished shell of artificiality in which the pampered heiress had been encased. The girl's few days in the Wild had awakened primitive instincts ground deep into the nature of woman during the remote past of mankind. Down through countless ages her prehistoric ancestresses had learned the bitter lesson that, in the Wild, days of plenty are certain to be followed by days of famine. The cave man hunted the meat; the cave woman hoarded what she could of it against the time of want. Otherwise her children starved.

So, upon reflection, Garth's amazement passed. He had managed to cover it, even at the first, when Lilith Ramill took the belt-ax in her slender hand and severed the neck bone of the caribou with a single blow.

Her father was the one who stared. He sat watching the girl's quick, eager wielding of the hand-ax, his mouth slack, almost agape. Garth could only surmise how she had always been coddled and pampered. Her father knew it. He knew how, since her childhood, she had been wrapped about with silken luxury, waited upon by attentive servants, petted and spoiled.

The millionaire had been born on a farm. He could recall seeing his mother help butcher sheep and hogs. But she was a farmer's wife. Lilith would not have known how to prepare a spring chicken for the pan. And now she was cutting up caribou.

Aside from an occasional word of direction, Garth said nothing. When he finished dressing out the fifth carcass, he handed his knife to his eager helper, packed a load of meat, and carried it to the ice cave.

Down in the gulch bottom he chose a pothole stone that would hold perhaps three quart. In the bowl he coiled a wick of twisted dry caribou moss, piled in caribou fat, and lighted the wick. When the fat melted, the wick burned with a strong steady flame. Caribou ribs furnished a grate on which to broil steaks. The fat meat was deliciously tender; its flavor between venison and beef.

When even Mr. Ramill could eat no more, Garth carried the stone lamp into the ice cave. Upon his return, he had Mr. Ramill and Lilith look close at the caribou skins.

"You see they are hair, not fur. But every hair is hollow. Nothing is warmer than a caribou parka. In fact, the winter coat is too warm to be worn. That is why I killed six now. Instead of one. You have never wintered in the North."

Mr. Ramill tensed as if provoked. "Wintered? You can't mean to infer you expect to stay on here. We have your promise to take us out."

Garth turned to meet the intent gaze of the girl's blue eyes. They looked as cold as the blue ice of the glacier tunnel. None the less, they had greatly changed since he had first seen them, over on the Mackenzie. They no longer showed a trace of their former cynical tiredness. The girl might be as hard as ever, but she was no longer bored or ennuied. For another thing, she had begun to lose her excessive thinness.

He answered her father: "You have my promise—more's the pity. A winter in a Eskimo would be a wonderful experience for Miss Ramill. However, she will of course prefer to go back to jazz and cocktails, to paint, powder and lipstick."

She flared: "And rid of you!" "To be sure. That above all else," he agreed. "So how could I deprive you of that pleasure, or fail to give your father and your fiancé another chance to bask in the sun of my place claim? I agreed to get you back to the Mackenzie. When we reach the old post, we part company. You and Huxby will then be free to go as far as you can."

"But in that case—No, you can't make me swallow it. I know you're not such a fool as to risk losing this place."

Garth laughed outright.

"What d'you take me for? Your brand of gold-digger? Gad, that's the nubbin of it all. It's the reason why men like you and Huxby lose out. You worship the golden calf. Yet what value is there to riches other than what you get from them? Can you think of a more enjoyable game than playing draw poker, with our lives in the jackpot, and Fortune dealing us the cards of chance?"

"What's the catch?" inquired Miss Ramill, with a sudden upwelling of her sophisticated cynicism. "Lives in the jackpot—that means nothing. It's your placer that's in the pot. What stakes do you consider we have in to balance it?"

"That would be telling," he teased. "You'll know if I win. If I lose, it will not matter to any of you what you've risked. The showdown may come sooner than I expected. Your father is already in fairly good shape. We'll start the trip out as soon as these caribou skins have been tanned."

CHAPTER VI

Hell in the Muskegs.

Garth sat beside the camp fire, sewing new moccasins for himself. Nearby, the millionaire dealer in mines and his fastidious daughter scraped the raw sides of the six caribou skins and rubbed them with the tanning mixture of fat, liver and brains. Garth had told them they could either tan the skins, or wait for him to do it. Until the tanning had been finished, the trip out would not begin.

Mr. Ramill was so keen to start back for civilization that he went at the disagreeable task with energy and determination. Lilith not only worked as vigorously as her father, she showed a real interest in the tanning.

Huxby took no part in this preparation of the skins. When he came down to the camp from the platinum placer, the sight of his fiancée's doing such squaw work struck him speechless. He stared in blank amazement. When at last he found his voice, he started to threaten Garth:

"You've gone a bit too far, you roughneck. Stand up, or I'll kick you up. I am going to—"

The girl broke in, with cool scorn: "Tune off, old dear. You're set on static. It's not interference we want. Dad and I are giving this performance under our own direction. You see, it's a bargain. Alan agrees to start our trip out just as soon as these skins are all tanned."

The mining engineer drew back. "So soon as that? My dear girl, if he's going to rush us off, I don't see how I can spare any time here in camp. I haven't yet sampled all the area of the placer."

Manure Most Important in Aiding Plant Growth

The chemist's analysis of a short ton—2,000 pounds—of well rotted barnyard manure reveals that it is made up of 1,500 pounds of water and 500 pounds of dry matter. This 500 pounds of dry matter contains approximately ten pounds of nitrogen, five of phosphoric acid, 13 of potash, eight of lime and five of sulphur—a total of 41 pounds of chemicals—plus 459 pounds of organic matter, or "humus." In addition, asserts an authority in the New York Times, it contains a supply of certain bacteria and other microscopic organisms which are essential in effecting changes in the soil—the "breaking down" of chemical compounds existing in the soil into simpler and more soluble forms.

In other words, manure is so valuable in gardening because it provides, combined in this one substance, three distinct soil aids: first, small amounts of the main plant food elements (nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash) and also of lime (not a food element but a "digestion accelerator" in the plant's diet); second, a supply of humus or organic matter which helps to change any uncongenial, unresponsive soil into moisture-holding, friable, productive loam; and, thirdly, an active, thriving population of bacteria beneficial to plant feeding and plant growth.

Pressed Wood

Pressed wood, especially the tempered grade, has almost unlimited uses in home improvement and decoration. One woman used it effectively to replace the bottom of a piano bench that had fallen out long ago; and now the music is no longer scattered in window sills and on chairs. This same material was used to cover the unsightly top of a general utility table. Made entirely of wood and being warp-proof and moisture-resistant, pressed wood is sturdy; it yields easily to the saw and does not chip or crack under pressure of nails or screws.

Baffling Mystery Solved; Killer Wore Horseshoes

Not long ago France was baffled by an unusual murder mystery. Within a week three friends, two men and a woman, were stabbed to death on the border of a small town. All were armed and no struggle had taken place. The soggy earth around them showed only the hoof-prints of a horse.

Later the murderer, a woman, was discovered. She had disarmed the victims' suspicion by a friendly chat, hence the surprise attack. And she had concealed her sandals, fitted with horseshoes, by a long cloak.—Collier's Weekly.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of the pure Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

SENIOR NEWS

The seniors had an enjoyable time at the Junior-Senior party. We hope that we can give them as good a party as they gave us. Four senior girls reported that they like carnivals. Two of the four gave some boys real rushes. Nova Lee, Doris, and Lula Mae know how to get boys to crank their car.

Denfer and Juanice know how to study chemistry. Ask them how.

How did Juanice's hair get so curly over the week end?

The seniors are showing the freshmen how to study. Every senior takes home a stack of books every day.

JUNIOR NEWS

Hello, Everybody! We are broadcasting from station Junior in Lorraine High School and our announcer is Opal Martin. Our first number on program today is Geometry directed by Mr. Clyde Bennett, and our main reciter is Glen McWhirter who tells us about the family of Quadrilaterals. Next on program is Biology under the direction of Miss Ruby Lee. Now, since we can all take a part in this, we shall hold our noses and proceed with our operations on the crawfish. How are we doing? Swell, if someone will open the door, we must have fresh air. From Biology we go into English with Miss Hoskinson as our director. Now we must stop for a few minutes and give Byron Bennett time for his daily argument and we must let him have the last word. Then last, but not least, comes Mrs. Ison with her History class. Today we have current events. Flash! What now? Oh, the Junior news! You will be able to get the Junior News each week at this time, don't forget to read it, goodby until next week.

"BEN HUR PROGRAM"

The "Ben Hur" interpretation by Bro. Richburg proved to be very interesting and a large group listened very quietly for one hour. The juniors were awarded a nice sum for bringing this program and thank everyone present.

Seniors Good night song Rockaby Senior, in the tree top, As long as you study, your grades will not drop, But if you stop digging, your Department of Health. When purchasing such remedies be sure and read the label in order that you may know what you are getting.

During the past year the inspectors of the Department have condemned and destroyed many thousands of packages of patent medicines, totaling more than 30,000 pounds in weight. These drugs were condemned for a variety of reasons; chiefly due to untrue claims as to their value, old, worthless, and in some cases dangerous ingredients.

Some of the claims for remedies destroyed were so impossible that it is wondered that anyone would believe them. One medicine claimed that it would positively cure 37 different diseases, including hookworm in humans and screw worms in stock. Many people do believe these claims and it is estimated that many millions of dollars are spent each year in Texas for drugs that cannot do all that is claimed for them.

One dangerous drug that is being sold for reducing weight is dinitrophenol. The fact is that many who are using this drug may be endangering their health and even their lives. The human machine is too complex to risk self medication. When something goes wrong with the human body and one does not feel well, he should see his family physician and then follow the advice he gives.

Look! A 5 and 10 cent store for sale worth the money, in the best town in West Texas. Hurry! J. A. Crosby.

stand will fall, And down will come Senior, diploma and all.

Mr. Williams: When I was young, my parents told me if I did not stop smoking I would have a dull mind.

Mrs. Ison: Why didn't you stop?

JUNIOR-SENIOR PARTY

On October 31 at 8:00 o'clock P. M. at the home of the tenth grade roommother, Mrs. T. J. Riden, the Juniors entertained the Seniors with a Halloween party. The house was decorated with witches, cats, bats, and orange streamers hung from the wall. On one side of the wall hung "The Lady in Black" while in the backroom was a tent in which a fortune teller told the fortunes of those present. She told many things which made them think. Several were masked in horrible costumes, but were soon discovered and the masks were removed.

The games were such as biting the apple, current, telephone, charades and other Halloween games. Marie Sipes, Jimmie Ruth, Glass, and H. B. McCollum, rode the airplane. Marie and Jimmie thought they were really "taking, off." Mr. Bennett showed how to get the apple out of the water, while Mr. Williams demonstrated how to thread a needle while sitting on a bottle. Miss Lee found out she was to marry one minute till twelve in 1999. After telling fortunes, airplane rides, buggy and many other games, apples and bananas were passed around in a pumpkin shaped basket. Then popcorn was passed and after Giggs and Price trying to eat 11 apples, everyone expressed a good time and left for home we suppose.

You can always tell a Senior by his cap and gown. You can always tell a Sophomore, for he thinks he owns the town.

You can always tell a junior, by his wit and such.

You can always tell a Freshman but you can't tell him much.

SOPHS SPOOKY SOCIAL

Say it's too bad you other classes couldn't have joined our Halloween party at Dell's. We had barrels of fun, even Will did act piggish in the candy and apple games. We think Wilford made a swell fortune teller and were all pleas-

Easy to Make Pajamas Please Sleeping Beauty

PATTERN 2362

You're sure to want several pairs of these adorable pajamas when you find how easy they are to make. Why not have your week-night ones of some pretty cotton or flannel which launders easily? Then you just must have one pair in a luscious shade of blue or tearose silk, for gay week-ends away from home, and your "nightly" wardrobe isn't complete without one pair of dress-up pajamas of some heavier material for lounging or lazing, particularly if you're a Campus Queen. The tailored shirtwaist top may tuck into the bell-bottom trousers which "get the hang of it" from a triangular yoke and snug elastic waistband.

Pattern 2362 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 4 yards 38 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

BERMUDA AUTO BAR

Except for a few trucks motor cars have been prohibited in Bermuda since 1906, after a series of petitions from residents had brought about the ban. One of these, signed by 112 American hotel guests, bore the signatures of Woodrow Wilson, Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) and Rear Admiral Upshur. U. S. N. Woodrow Wilson worded the petition.

DON'T SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE, AFFECTS HEART

Gas Pressure May Cause Discomfort. Right Side Best

If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adierika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly all night.

Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. The first dose of Adierika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

How to Increase Weight

UNDERWEIGHT men and women are frequently the slaves of disordered nerves. They are restless, active and over-conscientious people who usually work beyond their strength because their strength is not up to the average. They worry and expect the worst possible outcome of everything. They are possessed with the fear for their health, fear for failure in business, fear for safety of family and friends. Most of them have digestive disturbances and are afraid to eat certain common foods because they do not agree with them—at least at some time in the past they have felt some discomfort after eating one of these foods. It is not uncommon for physicians treating this class of patients to overcome much of their fear and difficulty by convincing them that they are mistaken, and as soon as this is done they find that the foods which they feared cause no distress whatever.

I am quoting the words of Prof. E. V. McCollum, Johns Hopkins University, on "How to Increase Weight."

These "nervous" cases of underweight need three things: (1) a better state of nutrition which means more fat on their bodies, good digestion and increased strength; (2) the ability to rest sufficiently so that they can recover from the effects of accumulated fatigue—these people have been over-tired a long time. Rest gives the circulation a chance to rid the blood of the waste products;

(3) they must learn healthy and wholesome habits of thought—get away from their worries and fears. This will improve their outlook on life.

From the food standpoint these individuals must follow the opposite course to those who are trying to reduce weight. Overweights eat plenty of meat and eggs but cut down on fats and starch foods. Underweights while cutting down slightly on meats, must greatly increase their fat and starch foods. The fat foods are butter, cream, fat meat. The starch foods are bread, potatoes, sugars, pastry.

Doctor McCollum points out that the all-round diet is necessary—as more than fat on the body is needed for health.

Another point emphasized is rest. Rest is equal to food in maintaining and increasing weight. Sometimes rest alone is sufficient to bring on a satisfactory increase in weight. These thin nervous individuals are usually so active that unless they are actually lying down, they seem to be always moving about.

Thus the thin individual who would store more fat must include in his program a resolution to keep himself calm, and cut down his physical activity to the lowest possible point. If he can get to the place where he is willing to let others do some of his work, and take on some of his responsibility—that is if he can become carefree—he is well on his way toward an increase in weight.

However, all underweight is not due to nervousness, or to a family tendency to thinness, but may be due to what is called focal infection; that is where an infection in one part of the body may affect some other organ or may affect the body as a whole. Thus infected tonsils, infected teeth, infected sinuses, infected gall bladder may be so undermining the system that loss of weight naturally follows. This means then that an examination by the doctor and dentist should be the first thought when there is tiredness and underweight.

"When one wants to increase weight it is wise to plan the menus so that both solids and leafy vegetables find a prominent place in them. About one-quarter to one-fifth more food than usual should be eaten so that if rest is also taken this extra amount of food may be stored in the body in the form of fat."

The appetite is also a great factor in increasing weight. The meals should be spread well apart so that there is real hunger which induces appetite.

"One should strive to have a well organized life and to have the appetite and the emotions under control. The daily life should be so planned that eating is done at regular times and with suitable rest of the digestive organs between meals."

Steps in Curing Underweight

1. The removal of any infection which may mean examination by physician and dentist.

2. The building up of the body by the use of rich nourishing foods such as butter, cream, bacon, milk, eggs, meat, sugar, cocoa.

3. The use of an abdominal support at the beginning of the building up process as this not only holds the organs up in position, but gives the thin individual some general support, thus enabling him to be up and about more. This being able to be about more is helpful to the mind also.

4. Rest. Sometimes this means a complete rest for a few weeks, but for the majority where possible a half hour's rest morning and afternoon may be sufficient.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for November 10

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:7-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Romans 14:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Prophet Encourages His People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Watchman on Duty.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Does God Care What I Do?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Individuals Accountable to God.

Ezekiel prophesied in the land of the captivity. The purpose of his ministry was threefold: (1) To show the house of Israel that they were in captivity because of their sins (14:23); (2) To show that God is righteous in his visitation of judgment upon them (7:8, 9); (3) To sustain their faith by assuring them of their national restoration, the punishment of their enemies and their final exaltation among the nations when Messiah shall reign.

I. God's Sovereign Right to the Souls of Men (18:1-4).

Every man is personally responsible to God.

II. The Moral Obligation of Sons to Their Father (Ezek. 18:14-20).

While the law of heredity gives the child a sinful nature and when the child arrives at the age of moral responsibility it begins to sin, God holds such responsible for their deeds.

III. Ezekiel's Responsibility (Ezek. 33:1-9).

As a prophet of God certain responsibilities were imposed upon him. There is a sense in which every disciple of Christ is a witness for him and therefore is responsible for the giving of his testimony to sinners. His responsibility is set forth under the figure of a watchman. Two things were required of a watchman.

1. To hear the words of God's mouth (v. 7). The source of the message of every minister and Sunday School teacher is God's holy Word. Just as the prophet did not originate his message but received it of God's mouth, so it should be with every minister and Sunday School teacher.

2. To sound the warning (v. 7). After hearing God's message he was to speak it out and proclaim it to the people. A watchman today is both to hear and to speak. The people are to be warned of the impending danger. Failure to sound the alarm makes the watchman guilty of the blood of the sinner.

IV. God's Attitude Toward the Sinner (vv. 10, 11).

God has declared in his Word that unfaithfulness on the part of his people would cause them to "perish among the heathen," that they would "pine away in their iniquity" (Lev. 26:38, 39). In view of this pronouncement some are disposed to say that their case is hopeless. To meet this attitude of despair the prophet assured them that God had no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that his sincere desire was for the wicked to turn from their way and live. Regardless of what their past had been, they were given the assurance that the future was bright if they heeded God's command and plea. No one need to despair because of sin, for God's grace is greater than human sin.

V. The Sinner's Personal Responsibility (vv. 12-20).

God created the members of the race personal beings, giving them freedom of choice. They have moral discernment enabling them to distinguish between the right and the wrong. They choose, therefore, according to the quality of their being.

The following principles govern the sinner:

1. Past righteousness will not avail for present sins (v. 12). When a righteous man turns to iniquity, his past seeming righteousness will be of no avail.

2. Past sins do not make impossible present acceptance with God (vv. 12-16). By virtue of the operation of the law of habit, every sinful act makes it harder for the sinner to repent, but God's grace is such that if the sinner repents God will forgive and restore.

3. Restitution required (vv. 15, 16). The proof of penitence is that, so far as possible, the sinner makes amends for wrongs done.

4. God's ways are equal (vv. 17-20). God holds man responsible for his own deeds. The child is not condemned because of the deeds of his father, nor can it be said that the fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge. This does not do away with the law of heredity. Regardless of what one's past life has been, God's grace in Jesus Christ blots out his record and he stands accepted in the Beloved.

Friends

Friends are as companions of a journey, who ought to aid each other, as preservers on the road to a happier life.—Pythagoras.

A Mother's Love

Force

The power that is supported by force alone will have cause often to tremble.—Konstuth.

PURE FOOD LAWS FIRST ENACTED 500 YEARS AGO

Proof that pure food laws are not the product of modern civilization, nor the result of an age in which the can-opener reigned supreme in the kitchen, was submitted recently by H. A. Schuette, professor of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin.

Professor Schuette described pure food laws which were enacted in Medieval Germany some 500 years ago—during the same century that saw the rise of Joan of Arc to immortal fame and the discovery of America by Columbus—which regulated the sale and production of honey, milk, and other foods in the southern German city of Nuremberg.

The old laws were especially aimed at the sale and production of honey, which then was the chief satisfier of the human "sweet tooth." The law was aimed at not only the seller, but also the buyer and user of "any honey except that which has been examined and measured by duly appointed honey inspectors." Violation was punishable by a fine.

Even though these old laws were necessary to protect the unwary consumer of honey, Professor Schuette pointed out that the adulteration of this sweetening food could not have been the problem in the Middle Ages that it was to become in later years.

Before 1906 authorities revealed that there were probably few foods in the United States more subject to adulteration than extracted honey, he explained.

Now, however, adulterated honey seldom comes to official notice, because the pure product, honestly labeled, has taken its place. Under the federal pure food act of 1906, exactly 20,725 notices of judgment reporting the action taken on foods and drugs seized in interstate commerce have been published up to the present time, and less than one out of every thousand prosecutions for some form of violation of this act concerns honey.

Death Penalty

Forty states as well as the District of Columbia and the United States federal government have a death penalty for murder. In North Dakota, Rhode Island and some other states where life imprisonment is the penalty for murder, death by hanging is inflicted if a person kills somebody else while serving a life term. In some of the capital punishment states the jury has the right to fix the penalty at life imprisonment, by recommending mercy.

WITHOUT FAULT?
The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs the most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Making Up Mind

When a man has so far made up his mind about a thing that he can no longer argue freely about that thing, he is mad so far as that thing is concerned.

5 p.m. is a test of how you FEEL

'How do I feel.... Swell!—why do you ask?'

It is all so simple, too! That tired, run-down, exhausted feeling quite often is due to lack of a sufficiency of those precious red-blood-cells. Just build up these oxygen-carrying cells and the whole body takes on new life... food is really turned into energy and strength... you can't help but feel and look better. S.S.S. Tonic restores deficient red-blood-cells... it also improves the appetite and digestion. It has been the nation's standby for over 100 years... and unless your case is exceptional it should help you, too.

St. Peter's Episcopal rectory at Haddon, Conn., was 40 pounds of honey. They removed the hive.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

There were 193 present for Sunday School with four visitors. We are always glad to have visitors and hope you will come and be with us again.

Brother Meador used the 19th chapter of Luke for his text at the morning hour. His subject was "Mission of the Church." His text for the night service was also found in Luke and he spoke on the subject "What, Why and When in the Kingdom of God."

Next Sunday will be Bro. Meador's last sermon here as he is retiring from the ministry and will become a supernumerary at the annual conference this month. The church here hates to give Rev. and Mrs. Meador up and the members will feel the loss greatly. A large crowd should be present next Sunday to hear the last sermon.

BAPTIST NOTES

Our Sunday School is building up some. Lets get in the habit of spending our Sundays in Sunday School and church. This habit will bring contentment and happiness with no regrets. Sunday is the Lord's Day. We should come together and worship Him in spirit and in truth.

Rev. Hardin's text Sunday morning was found in the 6th chapter of John, 16th to 21st verses. He used as his subject "Be Not Afraid, it is I." There were three additions to the church at this hour. Sunday evening the pastor read the third chapter of Philippians, 7th to 14th verses, and talked on the subject of "Holy Operations."

There will be no preaching service at our church next Sunday evening as Bro. Meador will preach his last sermon at the Methodist Church here before going to conference so we want to visit and worship with them that evening.

The B. T. Us are urged to meet at the church each Sunday evening at 6:15 for their program.

Remember that the workers Conference will meet with this church next Tuesday. A splendid program is being prepared. Don't forget we are to serve dinner at the basement. We are depending on the ladies of our church, and they have never failed us.

A number of visitors worshiped with us both morning and evening last Sunday. We are always so glad to have you, and urge you to come back.

The W. M. S. met in the home of Mrs. Edwin Hallmark last Monday for regular monthly program.

Teachers meeting at the church Wednesday evening at 7:30.
