Elopement Theory Discounted By Father; Another Student Reported Missing Also

(By The Associated Press)

YPSILANTI, Jan. 4 — Gertrude Bennett, 17-year-old daughter of Harry H. Bennett, the Ford Motor Co. service department chief who has assisted in solving several kidnapings, was missing today and authorities considered every possibility from abduction to elopement as they conducted a widening search for her.

Bennett disclosed he received two anonymous telephone calls yesterday warning him to guard his tur-

Jap Warplanes Strike Far Into China Interior

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4 — Japan's warplanes struck far into China's interior today in a raid which the Japanese navy spokesman declared was intended to "crush China's reorganized air-force" consisting of "large numbers of Soviet planes."

Forty Japanese bombers flew 400 miles west of their bases near Shanghai delivered a crushing attack on the Chinese airbase at Hankow, and returned without the loss of a single plane, the spokesman reported. Hankow is one of China's temporary capitals.

Battle Over Railroad

The new air offensive came as Japanese and Chinese forces in Shantung province battled hand-to-hand for control of main railway lines through the province. Chinese asserted their casualties had been 5,000 in eight engagements along Tientsin-Pukow and Shantung lines, and added that Japanese losses likewise were heavy.

Japanese columns driving southward along the Tientsin-Pukow railway were descriped by a Japanese military spokesman as "making steady progress." He reported they had reached a point 23 miles south of Tsinan, provincial capital, and had broken through a pass at Taishan, China's sacred mountain.

Do Considerable Damage

In forays into northern provinces Japanese bombers attacked Hsuchow, in Honan province, with considerable military damage. Raids on other important railway were reported by the Japanese.

Major fighting was under way at Hangchow, some 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. Chinese said they had driven Japanese from the city and Japanese disputed the claim.

In virtually deserted Tsingtao, Shantung province seaport 400 miles north of Shanghai, foreign vigilantes, attempting to maintain order, chased off a fleet of Chinese junks manned by petty pirates after a running battle.

New State Agency Facing Big Task

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 4.—New machinery of the unemployment compensation commission—investigation of claims by the jobless for cash benefits—sprang into action today in the wake of 2,300 applications filed yesterday.

Officials estimated 50 to 60 per cent of those seeking compensation, ranging to a maximum of $15 a weeks for 16 weeks, were eligible but said investigation of work records and other prerequisites would not be complete for 10 days.

Payments will be made from a $20,000,000 fund contributed by employers of eight or more workers in industries covered by the compensation law.

From Larger Communities

Most claims came from larger communities. The following offices, each covering the county in which it is located, reported as follows: Austin 40; San Antonio 265; Corpus Christi 20; Brownsville 31; Laredo 1; El Paso 85; Abilene 37; Beaumont 79; Amarillo 29; Borger 58; Fort Werth 490; Wichita Falls 45; Waco 108; Dallas 302; Longview 35; Tyler 25; Port Arthur 24; Houston 375 and Galveston 29. Others came from outlying communities.

Byron Mitchell, director of the state employment service, a division of the commission, said many of the first-day applicants were engaged in temporary employment and likely would find new jobs before they were eligible for benefits.

House Leader Ready To Start Labor Bill

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the house labor committee, encouraged by President Roosevelt's renewed demand for legislation to end "starvation wages and intolerable hours," said today she was ready to go to work all over again on a labor standards bill.

Her committee will meet next week to decide on a course of action.

Favors Reopening Hearings

Mrs. Norton said she personally favored reopening public hearings and drafting a new wage-hour bill, rather than trying to patch up the tattered measure which a rebellious house rejected at the special session. She expressed belief, nevertheless, the administrative features of the latter bill — on which much of the controversy centered-were "splendid" and should be retained.

Some foes of the defeated bill pointed quickly to President Roosevelt's recommiendations of "a floor below which industrial wages shall not fall, and a ceiling beyond which the hours of industrial labor shall not rise."

Rep. Dies (D-Tex) one of the leading opponents interpreted this as meaning the president was opposed to the old bill because, Dies said, it contained "only a stairway" on which a federal board could fix minimum wages all the way from one cent to 40 cents an hour.

Firms Reported Not Spreading Work Now

Labor Official Testifies He Doesn't Know Whether Action Is Deliberate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—A labor department official testified today that some firms which sought to combat unemployment by spreading work in 1929 "are not attempting to spread the work today."

Appearing as the first witness before a special senate unemployment committee, Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, said he did not know "whether or not this change was deliberate."

Felt They Over-Did It

"Perhaps these companies felt they over-did it (spreading work) in 1929," Lubin continued. "There may be a thousand and one reasons for it."

The statistical expert estimated 7,000,000 to 7,500,000 persons are currently unemployed.

He did not name any firms specifically, but emphasized that not all had abandoned work-spreading practices of 1929.

Prices May Be Cause

Senator Murray (D-Mont) asked whether Lubin thought there was any justification for a "sudden shutting down" in some industries recently. Lubin replied a sharp drop in prices may have caused some curtailment.

Lubin testified after Chairman Byrnes (D-SC) had opened the hearing with a statement that the group did not intend "to show that either labor or capital deliberately brought about the present recession in business."

"It is our desire," said Chairman Byrnes (D-SC), "to secure the cooperation of employers, employes and officials of government to determine what legislation, if any, can be enacted by congress to encourage individuals to provide more jobs."

For those who cannot be thus re-employed the committee hopes to work out the most effective possible relief program.

FDR's Speech Is Termed As 'Conciliatory'

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Several Republican leaders joined the majority of Democratic congressmen today in terming "conciliatory" President Roosevelt's pledge of cooperation with business if the latter abandons "harmful" practices.

Some of the president's foes, however, criticized his eco-

FURTHERED HOSTILITY

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, declared today that President Roosevelt's message to congress had furthered creation of a state of permanent international hostility.

Gayda, whose writings often reflect the official Italian viewpoint, in an editorial in his Giornale D'Italia said:

"President Roosevelt insists upon dividing the world into two parts, the democracies and the authoritative regimes, and upon creating between one and the other a state of permanent diffidence and hostility, contradicting those principles of conciliation and collaboration which he claimed for his policy."

Gayda asserted the authoritarian regimes had appealed vainly for a peaceful solution of their problems but these appeals had been rejected by the democracies.

nomic views and said they would await his special message on business legislation before determining their course.

CONSTRUCTIVE, REASSURING

Administration lieutenants described Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the opening of congress yesterday as constructive and reassuring. Senator McNary of Oregon and Representative

REACTION MORE SPONTANEOUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—White House officials said today reaction to President Roosevelt's message to congress asking the co-operation of business in correcting economic evils had been "more spontaneous and more favorable" than on any of his previous messages.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary, said telegrams and telephone calls began when the president returned to the White House and continued through the night. He added there was just one telegram that appeared unfavorable.

Snell of New York, the Republican floor leaders, were among those who called it "conciliatory."

Several members of both parties contrasted its tone with recent addresses by Secretary Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

The latter officials had accused sections of big business of going "on strike" against government regulations. Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday:

ONLY A SMALL MINORITY

"Only a small minority (of business men and bankers) have displayed poor citizenship by engaging in practices which are dishonest or definitely harmful to society. This statement is straightforward and true. No person in any responsible place in the government of the United States today has ever taken any position contrary to it."

Senator Davis (R-Pa), commented that the president's speech must have been written "after he got the universally unfavorable reaction" to the

Deficit To Be Billion Next Fiscal Year

Change Of Business Status Blamed For Action; Budget Message Due Wednesday

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Usually well-informed officials predicted today President Roosevelt's budget for the next fiscal year would carry a $1,000,000,000 deficit, and that he would revise his estimated deficit on this year's budget to $1,250,000,000.

They made these forecasts after Mr. Roosevelt told congress yesterday the budget for the 1939 fiscal year, beginning July 1, would be unbalanced but the deficit would be smaller than this year's.

Conditions Had Changed

Secretary Morgenthau, commenting on the president's announcement, said business conditions had changed the situation completely since he and Mr. Roosevelt expressed hope in the fall of achieving a balance.

"If business should pick up, we could still balance the budget," he said.

The president expects to send his 1938-39 budget to congress tomorrow, but probably will tell the lawmakers that next year's relief needs cannot be estimated for a few more months. The budget figures on naval construction also will be tentative.

Laid Chiefly To Relief

The continuance of an unbalanced budget, laid chiefly to relief needs arising from the business recession, pointed up the current congressional issue of whether to trim expenses or to spend heavily to create work for the unemployed.

President Roosevelt has proposed curtailing federal aid for highways, reducing the enrollment of the civilian conservation corps, and generally tightening departmental expenses.

The new session of congress was certain to hear strenuous objections to the highway and CCC reductions, together with new demands for expansion of the WPA.

Figures Are Relied On

Official figures showing the unemployed between 7,822,912 and 10,870,000 were relied on by proponents of government spending as giving support to their contention that government still must "take up the slack" in providing work.

Rep. Dies (D-Tex) leader of a house "economy" group, said the president's message convinced him "there is not much use of our going ahead" with plans to balance the budget.

Dies said, however, his bloc might still try to frame some recommendations "behind which the presi-

Woman's Bond Is Reduced

Bond for Marie Marquart, about 30, charged with murder by poisoning in connection with the death early in December of T. J. Elliott, 75, this morning was reduced from $5,000 to $1,500 by Walter Davies, justice of peace, on recommendation of Burton S. Burks, district attorney, but at noon it had not been posted, according to Grady Harrist, deputy sheriff.

The Marquart woman was committed to the Lubbock county jail Dec. 14. Tests by the Texas Department of Public Safety showed that a sufficient amount of strychnine was found in the viscera of Elliott to cause death.

Glass Won't Listen To His Physicians

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Three doctors told Senator Carter Glass it would be better for him to stay home and rest today on his eightieth birthday anniversary.

But the gray-haired Virginian, whom President Roosevelt affectionately called "an unreconstructed rebel," didn't pay any attention.

CARTER GLASS

Although he has had an attack of eczema, insisted on going to his office. Yesterday he went to the Capitol to hear the president deliver his annual message.

"It was a very agreeable and engaging sort of message from his (the president's) viewpoint," Glass said crisply.

And that, he intimated, would be the extent of his comment until he tells the senate, possibly within a few days, what he thinks about the state of the nation under the guidance of his personal friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt, with whose policies he often has differed.

Both Parties Lived Beyond Their Incomes During 1937

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP) — Both Republican and Democratic national committees lived beyond their incomes last year, reports to the clerk of the house disclosed today.

The Democrats said they received $1,294,748.47 during the year — the largest single source being the annual "victory dinner"—and spent $1,461,272.75.

The Republican committee reported receipts of $628,046 and disbursements of $632,185.

Deducting $8,495.59 cash on hand from their unpaid debts, the Democrats figured their red ink balance at $211,295.93. The Republicans did not disclose similar computation.

Rushed to the United States by Clipper plane, pictures of the bombing of the U. S. S. Panay, gunboat, by Japanese airmen will be shown five times daily today and Wednesday at the Palace theater.

Moving pictures showing the actual bombing of the boat and its sinking, rescue of the men aboard, bombing of the Ladybird, British ship, and numerous other war pictures are shown without sound. It was pointed out there was no sound equipment aboard the Panay at the time of its bombing.

Details of the injured on the boat, their escape to safety, and their treatment are among the scenes shot by the cameraman, Eric Mayell. Lowell Thomas of Fox Movietone, renowned commentator, tells in words the story of the bombing.

Showing of the war scenes requires slightly more than 10 minutes.

At the same time he announced the Hudson company will start production this week on a new car "in the lowest price field."

The recalling of 6,000 workers, he said, will increase the factory personnel to 12,000 men and add $1,250,000 to the monthly payroll. He estimated that $11,000,000 will be expended for tools, production materials and other costs.

Teruel Bloody Battle Scene

(By The Associated Press)

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 4—Beleaguered insurgents and Spanish government troops fought today at rifle range through the ice-crusted streets of Teruel in guerrilla warfare that may determine the tide of the civil conflict.

Snow checked mass offensives by 200,000 troops of the two armies on the front encircling Teruel, and sleet grounded airplanes and bogged motorized units in the mountainous terrain.

But within the city itself, 160 miles to the east of Madrid, there was the crackle of rifle fire and fighting at close range.

Both sides claimed control of the provincial capital. It appeared that the insurgents held the advantage, but an earlier announcement of complete domination of the Teruel front was not borne out.

Snow began falling heavily in Lubbock shortly after noon today after overcast skies had indicated unsettled weather last night and through the forenoon.

Temperatures remained moderately high, ranging from a minimum of 30.1 degrees early this morning to 33.7 degrees at noon. The barometer at Municipal airport was falling rapidly at that time.

Probable showers in the Lubbock area tonight and rising temperature in the Panhandle Wednesday were forecast.

Luxury Liner's Salvage Rights Are Abandoned By Operators

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Salvage rights to the luxury liner President Hoover, breaking up on agged reefs near Formosa, were abandoned today by her operators, who turned the $8,000,000 vessel over to underwriters.

The action means the Dollar Line will collect insurance on the 21,900-ton ship and give up all the salvage rights. The total of insurance carried on the big liner, one of the five major vessels of the American merchant marine, was not revealed here.

In the gloom of a midnight fog Dec. 10, the liner ploughed into reefs off Hoishoto island while sailing a new course between Japan and Manila. Battered by waves, her hull finally cracked, and now is widening daily.

Comedian Threatens To Stop Alimony Payments To No. 2

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4 (AP)—Stan Laurel, futile-faced screen comedian, threatened to stop paying alimony to his second wife if she questions the legality of his marriage to Mrs. Laurel No. 3.

But Mrs. Virginia Ruth Laurel, wife No. 2, stuck firmly to her announcement that "I still love Stan and I'm trying to save him from himself."

Her attorney, she asserted, will file a motion to set aside the final divorce decree which was entered last week a day before Laurel eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Illiana, 26-year-old Russian singer, whose full name is Vera Inanova Shuvalova.

Payne and Turner were wanted on charges of bank robbery, murder, kidnaping and highway robbery.

Cagney's Fight With Studio Ended Today

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4 (AP)—James Cagney ended his feud with Warner brothers and will return to the studio where he gained fame as an extremely hard fisted young man on the screen.

JAMES CAGNEY

At the instance of attorneys for Cagney and the studio, the supreme court in San Francisco yesterday reversed the Los Angeles superior court which cancelled the actor's contract with the Warners.

Thus, the way was clear for negotiation of a new contract, which unofficial reports said may stipulate a salary of more than $100,000 a picture.

Both the studio and Cagney fairly bubbled over with enthusiasm at the ending of their fight.

Cagney left Warners more than a year ago, declaring he was getting sick of being cast in roles which compelled him to pop in the nose, with monotonous regularity, both men and women, truck-drivers and chorines.

Aged Sisters Found Nearly Starved With $10,000 Cash

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Two aged sisters who suffered near-starvation in a squalid flat they had crammed with more than $10,000 in currency and coins, rested in hospital beds today.

The money was discovered by representatives of the Southern Relief society who found Miss Olivia Hale with a broken hip and her sister Roberta suffering from burns on the shoulder.

Both women, believed to be more than 90 years old, had been injured doing house work.

Money was tucked in furniture, vases and cushions. Along with the cash were laboriously-sketched reproductions of checks, long since cashed, which had been given the sisters by Scottish Rite Masons and others.

Four persons counted the money for 12 hours and then were not finished.

It represented contributions made to the feeble old women for many years—and unspent, each of the bills bore notations of the donor's name. Some of them dated back to the years ust after the Civil war.

Old 'Flunking Fee' Scare Is Real Thing Now At Norman

(By The Associated Press)

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 4—That old "flunking fee" scare turned up at the University of Oklahoma again today—three weeks before semester exams—and this time it's about to become a reality.

The "flunking fee," designed by the board of regents two years ago, required students to pay $3 per semester hour failed.

Student leaders branded it unfair; carried their fight to the state legislature. Nothing was done about it, and everyone forgot the fee—except the regents.

Unsuspecting students were jolted awake this morning when they learned the regents voted yesterday to put the fee into effect.

Said Co-ed Erlene Lasley: "We have to pay to pass courses. Why should we pay to flunk them?"

University officials estimate flunking would cost students $12,000 a semester.

Wearing long white robes and holding lighted white tapers, they stood throughout the service.

Each circle leader, as her name was called, came to the altar with members of her unit and placed a pledge card on a tray.

Closing song was "Blest Be the Tie." Mrs. Gamble prayed the benediction.

Members of the Belle Bennett circle assisted in serving tea. The parlors were decorated with pot plants and a pink and white motif was featured in table decorations. Tea was poured by Mesdames L. N. Lipscomb and O. P. Clark.

Tri-Colors Will Be Seen In Fashions

BY RUTH COWAN

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP) — Toes of rose, straps of strawberry pink and heels of raspberry red — that's one of the forthcoming 1938 styles in feminine footwear.

This tri-color effect, called ombre, was shown today at the National Shoe fair at which the industry exhibited more than 260,000 pairs of men's and women's shoes to buyers and retailers.

Blue is fashion's leading color for spring, and shoes can be had in three shades of blue from light to navy incorporated in the same model. Shoes also are displayed in variations of copper and wine, two other prominent warm weather colors.

And then there are rainbow sandals in which different colors, generally five — such as, purple, yellow, blue, green, red — are interwoven by means of straps.

Patent leather is the prime material for spring shoes. Later its position will be contested by kidskins and fabrics. Among the fabrics will be the gabardines and challis, the latter in floral patterns. The fabric in the shoes can also be matched in bags and in scarfs that can be tied around the head peasant-fashion or wound into turbans.

The floral designs were used in both daytime and evening shoes. Stylists recommended the latter be worn with solid colored evening frocks.

Gaining popularity are fabric shoes with interwoven elastic.

Tonight, at bedtime, rub his little chest with stainless, snow-white Penetro. Penetro is the only salve that has a base of old-fashioned mutton suet together with 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve. Creates thorough counter-irritant action that increases blood flow, stimulates body heat to ease the tightness and pressure. Vaporizing action helps to "open up" stuffy nasal passages. 35c jar contains twice 25c size. Ask for Penetro.

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks VapoRub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (See full details in each VapoRub package.)

Only Vicks give you such proof.

VapoRub is the direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upsets. Simply massage it on the throat, chest, and back (as illustrated).

Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—released by the warmth of the body—are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion.

Repeat treatment at bedtime. After restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

No Evidence Seen For Stoppage Of International Rearmament Derby

Airplanes Are Leading Pace

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

At least 30,000 military airplanes ready for war duty the world over today emphasized the start of the fifth year of the international rearmament derby.

First evident in 1934, the intensive preparation for national emergency by the major powers offered no evidence of stoppage during 1938.

With international tension unabated in the Orient and Europe, the number of destructive flying machines on six continents is estimated to have been increased 75 per cent or more during 1937.

Net Gain 12,000 Machines

A quarter of the increase, however, went toward replacement of old equipment. The net gain for the 12 months, based on reports of factory production at home and abroad, appeared to be about 12,000 machines.

As of Jan. 1, 1937, the powers were estimated to have had on hand more than 20,000 warplanes divided into the categories which have grown up since the world war—pursuit, attack, observation, bombing, photographic, training, coastal patrol and transport.

Data from foreign capitals showed aerial rearmament probably was geared to a higher production schedule, in Europe at least, than any other branch of the fighting services.

In Excess Of 20,000

A United States airplane equipment manufacturer calculated world production of airplanes for 1937 in excess of 20,000, four-fifths of which would be warplanes. He surmised that many of the machines were being put in "cold storage" against emergency.

Most notable among the new disciples of rearmament in the air was Japan, heartened by the performance if its fliers in the undeclared war with China.

A dispatch from Tokyo said, "the Japanese aviator is the idol of his people." A $70,000,000 program for building civil airfields, training pilots, completing Japan's central aviation research institute, and encouraging large-scale production of aircraft machinery is under way.

Soviet Force Unknown Element

The biggest unknown element in the international military picture is the Soviet air force, estimated to have as high as 4,500 airplanes. In Russia, too, civil flying is an adjunct of the military, and announced but as yet unfulfilled plans call for training 150,000 persons as pilots.

Italy and Germany; no less than Russia, have concentrated their energies on the aviation branch of national defense. Military observers say Premier Mussolini could count on 10,000 first-line pilots in emergency. His training program embraces an air force of 20,000 fliers.

Germany's air force, regular and reserve, is described as between "80,000 and 110,000," but the figures may be subject to discount.

British Production High

Great Britain's training program is less comprehensive but military aircraft production in the British isles probably is higher than in any other European country. The empire is a whole is estimated to have between 4,500 and 5,000 airplanes ready for wartime duty.

France is credited with more than 4,000 military planes, a good portion of them obsolescent or obsolete.

In first-line airplanes, the United States has less than 2,000 in the army and navy, but the procurement program is heavy. G. G. Grey, editor of "All The World's Aircraft," last month ranked America's air force as one of the largest and "possibly the most efficiently equipped in the world."

Among the lesser European countries party to the rearmament race is Belgium, being supplied by British manufacturers.

More Ships To Be Requested

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Naval experts speculated today that congress might be asked to add 10 or 15cruisers to this country's shipbuilding program as the result of President Roosevelt's "growing concern" over recent world events.

The federal budget to be submitted to congress this week includes requests for funds to start construction of two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines.

Mr. Roosevelt announced, however, he might send the legislators supplementary estimates for commencing construction of still more ships.

Program Already Prepared

Well-informed persons have heard, without official confirmation, that the navy already has prepared a tentative program for building 10 to 15 additional cruisers of 10,000 tons each, mounting six-inch guns and costing, at present prices, $20,000,000, or more, each.

If such a program is decided upon, it is expected generally that congress will be asked to authorize construction of the vessels over a period of several years, and to provide actual funds for starting only part of them immediately.

Cruisers Are Valuable

Cruisers are valuable, officials say, to supplement the gun power of battleships, to scout and screen the movements of the slower dreadnaughts, and as commerce defenders and raiders.

By comparison with the navies of Great Britain and Japan, the United States fleet is deficient in both heavy and light cruisers.

The United States now has 17 heavy cruisers and 10 "light" craft of approximately 7,000 tons.

One 10,000-ton and nine light cruisers are being built. In addition, congress already has authorized the construction of two additional light cruisers—the two in the budget for the next fiscal year.

Britain Has 55 Cruisers

Great Britain has 55 cruisers at sea, and 51 light cruisers building. Japan has 32, and at least four building.

Larger naval appropriations have drawn strong support from Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee, but vehement criticism from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.)

Pittman said an increased appropriation would be "the cheapest insurance on earth."

"We can strengthen our navy with a few hundred millions of dollars so that any single nation will be afraid to force us into war," he added.

Wheeler declared:

"While I am for adequate national defense, there is no necessity for spending hundreds of millions of dollars for new battleships. . . .

"We ought to spend our money for irrigation, reclamation, flood control and road-building to add to the capital assets of the nation.

"The administration will find out that the people of this country are not war-minded and are against large expenditures of public money for battleships and munitions."

Signficance Of Names Of Texas Towns Is Explained

HUNTSVILLE, Jan. 4 (AP)—When a railroad built north from Houston a quarter of a century ago, the people of Huntsville failed to offer acceptable inducements to bring it here and it dodged the city. That is how the community of Dodge, a few miles east, is said to have gotten its name.

Names of other places in Walker county also seem to have significance. For instance, there's the Pine Prairie settlement. Not to be outdone, settlers some distance away christened their community Cline's Prairie, and another group, having the pines but not the prairie, named theirs Pine valley. Still another group decided to share their name with the other prairie dwellers and Walker county now has Round Prairie.

Riverside—on the Trinity river,—needs no explanation, nor do the settlements of Longfellow and Whittier. Possibly admirers of the bearded verse-makers lived in the neighborhoods. Patriotic impulse may account for the names of Liberty Springs and San Jacinto, but what can be said about the fellow who named Bath? There are no crabs—true crustaceans—found on Crabbs Prairie, nor at Bath either.

Death By Fires In State Cited

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 4—Deaths caused by fire claim a share of the grisly spotlight in 1937's drama of violent—and preventable—fatalities.

Although hardly comparable in numbers with lives lost in highway mishaps, insurance department officials estimate no less than 350 Texans will have met untimely ends in flames by Friday midnight.

Already 192 On Record

Already, 192 such deaths are on record. That is only a partial accounting, however. Not until the year's full record, reflected through vital statistics of the health department, is compiled will the whole story be known.

Often fatalities in rural and outlying areas are not noted until health department records are sifted.

But on the basis of general experience at least 350 persons will become flaming sacrifices to carelessness this year, officials estimate.

Marked Improvement

The figure is a marked improvement over 1936, with its record of 519 lives lost to fire, but is none the less appalling, said Marvin Hall, fire insurance commissioner.

"Most fires and their resultant loss of life result from carelessness," he said. "To prevent the loss of life and property is mostly a matter of exercising caution but in many instances that objective would require changing human nature, a hard job."

Well up in the list of contributing causes is clothing ignited when persons stand too close to an open fire.

Tragedies Are Reflected

The November records reflect little of the tragedy that enshrouded the home where a young daughter died victim of flames. "Little brother playfully tossed a match on sister's doll clothes," the report reads.

Most fire deaths, however, come from being trapped in burning buildings, not always the fault of the individual although the fire itself might be.

Children left at home uncared for is pobr policy, the department believes. It cites the case of two tots who playfully set a house afire and crawled under a bed to watch the fun. They perished.

Careless Use Of Gasoline

Careless use of gasoline in the home draws sharp warnings from firemen. But again and again the finger of blame points to the highly inflammable liquid.

"Gasoline has as much use in the home as smallpox or dynamite," said one fire prevention officer.

The insurance department will show you the record of an East Texas family of four which perished in a burning house when the father improperly repaired a gasoline heating stove. In November, 10 persons burned to death in flaming wreckage.

PICK 5,900 BALES

HUNTSVILLE, Jan. 4 (AP)—Cotton picked on the Texas prison system farms this season totals 5,900 bales, exceeding last season's production by 2,121 bales. General Manager O. J. S. Ellingson said he could not say at this time what the money return would be.

SUPER TRACTION Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRES
FOR CARS • TRUCKS AND BUSES

THE new Super-Traction Firestone Ground Grip Tire with extra deep tread and extra wide bars of wear-resisting rubber gives the greatest traction ever known for cars, trucks and buses operating on muddy, snowy and unimproved roads.

DEEPER BITE FOR GREATER TRACTION. The tread is flatter with higher shoulders and bigger, broader bars of rubber. Wider, deeper, tapered spaces between the lugs assure positive self-cleaning action and continuous traction.

GREATER ROADABILITY. Tread is designed to fit the road, providing materially longer life.

LONGER WEAR, GREATER ECONOMY. The tread is made of special, extra-tough, wear-resisting rubber which assures longer mileage. All the traction bars are joined together in a continuous design to prevent bumping on paved roads and each is triple-braced and triple anchored preventing it from breaking off as so often happens when separate rubber lugs are used.

EXTRA STRENGTH FOR GREATER SAFETY. Every fiber of every cord is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. This greatly increases the strength of the tire to withstand the strain of extra traction. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread bind the tread and cord body so solidly together that we guarantee they will not separate.

Come in today and find out how little it costs to equip your car, truck or school bus with new super-traction Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

When roads are covered with snow, farmers need the extra traction of the new Firestone Ground Grip Tires

Farm trucks equipped with the new Super-Traction Firestone Ground Grip Tires are able to "make their own roads"

Dutch Meyer May Take Post As Coach At University Of Mississippi

Frogs' Mentor Admits Being Approached

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4—Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer, for the past four years highly-successful head coach of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs, has received a definite offer to take over the head coaching post at the University of Mississippi. He intimated last night that there is a strong possibility he will accept.

Located at a high school banquet here, the Frog mentor was surprised that the report had leaked out. He was advised that rumors of the offer had come from Mississippi.

Received Definite Offer

"Both sides agreed to secrecy until there was something definite," he pointed out. "However, since the report has been circulated, I must admit that I received a definite offer while attending the coaches' meeting in New Orleans last week.

"Mississippi officials laid their cards on the table and I must say the offer is very attractive. I am more than casually interested. They have invited me to go to Mississippi and look things over in the next few days. If I accept the invitation to go, there is a very strong possibility that I will accept."

Meyer, connected as a player, freshman and varsity coach at T. C. U. for some 20 years, followed Francis Schmidt as head man of the Frogs four seasons ago. His teams have had outstanding success, winning a Sugar Bowl and Cotton Bowl game and finishing second in the tough Southwest conference for three straight years.

Jennings Refuses To Comment On Report

WACO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Morley Jennings, football coach at Bavior university, refused to comment on reports from Memphis that he was being considered for the coaching vacancy at the University of Mississippi.

Jennings has been head coach at Baylor since 1926.

Oakes And White Turn Down Offer To Be In Coast Game

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—Coach Bernard (Bunny) Oakes and All-American Byron (Whizzer) White of the University of Colorado's Buffaloes have turned down an offer to participate in a grid game between an all-star aggregation and the Los Angeles Bulldogs.

Oakes was asked to coach the all-stars.

The decision was reached as Oakes and White remained in Dallas after Sturday's Cotton Bowl game to visit friends. White also is an all-conference basketball and baseball star, and it was decided he should not jeopardize his standings in these two sports at his school by participating in further grid games this season.

Lou Gehrig Is In Hollywood For His Debut In Pictures

Gehrig, first baseman of the World Champion New York Yankees, will appear in a western picture entitled "Rawhide."

To give a baseball player some opportunity to display his diamond talents on the western range, the script calls for a game in the early part of the picture. Gehrig, as a barn-storming athlete, helps the ranch foreman, Smith Ballew, round up a very tough bevy of gangsters.

ENGINEER IS TRANSFERRED

DENVER, Jan. 4. (AP)—J. A. Elliott, district engineer for the Rocky Mountain district of the bureau of public roads since 1933, has been transferred to the Southwest district with headquarters at Fort Worth, Tex.

Elliott in his new district will have supervision over Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. The Mountain district covers Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Just A 'Bowl' O' Cherries

By Collier Parris

No Regrets.

That's our post-Sun Bowl "policy," because it's our regular policy, and because there's no use crying over the busted bubble, and because it was a good ball game, anyway.

We think everybody else had a good time, too.

To Mr. Average Fan, the Sun Bowl game of New Year's Day was just about as exciting and interesting as a football game can be. Outside the scoreless tie between the East and West All-Stars at San Francisco, it was the closest of all bowl games, perhaps the hardest fought, the most desperately contested.

If you had been an ordinary fan, say an El Paso fan out looking for a ball game, the Sun Bowl battle would have been a dilly. From a "watching" standpoint, and a disinterested angle, it was as sweet a football contest, offensively and defensively, as you ever saw, except for a moment or two.

To the fan with a leaning toward University of West Virginia, it was a grand triumph for the Mountaineers.

To the steady Texas Tech fan, the Red Raiders literally gave the ball game to West Virginia.

Texas Tech's footballers, who have enjoyed one of the best seasons (1937) in Tech history, played below their November standards in the Sun Bowl game. West Virginia, already considered one of the strongest and toughest clubs in any bowl game, played over its head. Texas Tech, Saturday in and Saturday out, has the better club, but last Saturday it had just half a club.

Approximately half the boys of the regular lineup Saturday were in November form and fettle. The other half hadn't anticipated the Sun Bowl game with a serious attitude.

But some boys are naturally good football players, serious or not, and without attempting to point out the non-serious from the serious, we should like to report that the Tech boys who looked best from the press box angle last Saturday were the tackles, the center, the right halfback and the left halfback. There were some who said Pete Owens, the guard from Fieldton, was the outstanding lineman on the field. Others said it was Abe Murphy, who played the most colorful game of his Tech career at tackle. Others had the other tackle, big Bill Davis, as their favorite. Bill, a sophomore, did a lot of fine work.

To Frank Guzick, the center, however, went the majority of "he's-my-choice" opinion, and this reporter agreed. Guzick played a swell ball game.

Of the backs, consensus favored Ed Smith, on Tech's side, with Elmer Tarbox running very close. For the most of the game, Smith played left half, filling in for Bobby Holmes and Gene Barnett, although Smith, naturally and originally, is the team's No. 1 quarterback. Babe Curfman, who is No. 1 and three fourths, had the quarterback job from the first quarter on; and did quite all right. Tarbox, when he carried the ball, rarely failed to gain. Smith, taking the ball on fake plays through the line and around ends, looked very good indeed.

Charley Calhoun had his spurts of glory, but he, like Captain Red Ramsey, was a marked man. Ramsey had one of his poorest days. West Virginia really worked over the Tech ends, in a large way. Tech might have been using nine men, for all the good the ends did on defense practically half the time. On pass plays, they were pretty well covered, too. Each of them, Ramsey and Bostick, shagged forward passes for nice gains, and for that they get the big hand. But the West Virginians, who really are a nifty ball club, exercised full control over the Raider wingmen, merely by assigning from two to four men to cover each one — and leaving the rest up to the scramming backs, Harry "Flash" Clark, David Isaac and Sam Pinion, each of whom was a distinct threat.

The hard-luck man of the game, was, of course, Gene Barnett, and we do not recall any game in which we felt more sympathetic toward a ball player. Barnett, ushered into the game to replace the ailing Bobby Holmes, was jinxed from the start.

On the way home Barnett told us he "thought I was on the 20-yard line when I caught that punt, and I thought I could run it out." Actually, he was on the goal line. The ball would have landed in the end zone for a touchback, and would have been brought out to the 20. Gene had very little chance of bringing it out that far, because it wasn't a long punt and the Mountaineer ends were on him almost as he caught the ball. They downed him on the 4-yard line, and on the next play he fumbled. West Virginia recovering and then moving to the touchdown. The Mountaineers would have never scored, we believe, had it not been for that break.

Barnett, of course, was the "goat" of the game, but through no intentions of his own. Probably no player ever wanted to "make good" more than Barnett, and no player is more conscientious. It was just one of those happenings, and nothing can be done about it.

Tech's goal line stands, featured by Guzick, Pete Owens and Red Murphy, were beautiful to behold. Tech's 80-yard drive for touchdown was one of the most beautiful you ever saw, mixed with passes, runs and penalties. But Tech played an inconsistent game — inconsistent with its capabilities and with its off and on offensive and defensive strikes of Saturday.

Texas Tech lost nothing, gained nothing — except a very nice little stack of spinach — at the Sun Bowl. It would have gained a lot if the Raiders had beaten West Virginia. It lost little prestige by losing, for West Virginia is rated one of the strongest of the major league clubs of the East, and it has a ball club.

The game was pretty hard and rough, but mutually aggressive. The West Virginias were there to win, and they had what it took to stage a fine ball game. They had their minds made up. The victory, it appeared, meant more to them than it would have meant to Tech. We are trying to make ourselves feel that way, and to constrain our sorrow.

Tech probably would have won the game if the Tech coaches had had a chance to scout West Virginia; they would have known how to stop the galloping Harry Clark, and that was about all that was necessary.

We had hoped to see Texas Tech go through undefeated in 1938. The first game has been lost already, but maybe it won't count against the Raiders when the scores are added up next December.

But for the winners in all the "bowl" games except the Sun Bowl, please refer to this department's suggestions as of last Thursday. Even in the Sun Bowl prediction, this corner suggested it would be the "closest". There isn't much difference between six and seven.

California Is To Lose Six Regulars By Graduation

BERKELEY, Calif., Jan. 4 (AP) — Graduation will deprive California of six regulars for next season but the other five, including Halfback Vic Bottari and Fullback Dave Anderson, will give Coach L. B. "Stub" Allison a good base to build on.

Lost for 1938 will be Quarterback Johnny Meek, Halfback Sam Chapman, End Perry Schwartz, Center Bob Herwig, Guard Claude Evans and Guard Vard Stockton.

Bottari and Anderson will give Allison a crack backfield pair to start with next season. In the line he will have Dave Devarnoa and Bill Stoll at Tackles, and Will Dolman at end.

Total Of 763 Holes-In-One Scored In 1937 By American Golfers; Unusual Feats Are Cited By AP Hole-In-One Club Leader

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—As perhaps the only bonafide hole-in-one expert in the country, possibly the globe, I'd like to submit my final report on the strange and goofy occurrences associated with the lucky business. Final report is correct as the Associated Press National Hole-in-One club has closed its books for good after two years of compiling, checking and research.

The total for 1936 was 1,467 and 763 for 1937, making an average of 1,115 for each year. On the basis that there are one million golfers in this country simple arithmetic shows that each year one golfer out of every 896 lose their vest buttons by firing the luckiest of shots. Most aces are scored in Indiana, Texas, Minnesota, New York, Georgia, California and Washington. Fewest are tallied in Vermont and Nevada.

330 Yards Longest

Here are some of the performances for 1937:

Marion Coulter of Richmond, Ind., got one on a 330-yard hole, longest of the year. Shortest was a 65-yarder by H. E. Symons of Detroit.

Three aces scored during newspaper hole-in-one tournaments, one of them by 14-year-old John Launius of Monroe, Ga., making his first attempt at golf.

John G. Sutton, San Francisco, was the oldest acer. He got his at the age of 74.

Produce Two Fine Rounds

Aces helped produce two of the most remarkable rounds of golf in history. Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City got one on her record-shattering 66 at Indian Hills Country club; Jonas Weiss, St. Petersburg, Fla., scored one on the 6th hole at the Pasadena golf club and finished with a 63, nine under par and three under the course record.

Golf's longest hitter, Professional Jimmy Thompson, blushed when he got his. It was scored when he was giving a lady a lesson from a ladies' tee at Lakeside, Los Angeles. It measured 68 yards.

Gene Tunney, ex-heavyweight boxing champion, got a 179-yarder at Pinehurst.

Youth Has Registered Four

Smith Talbert, 17, Alameda, Calif., high school boy, was the ace champ of the two years, getting four since August 22, 1936.

A New Zealand golfer started an idea. Noting it cost him too much money after each of his three aces because the boys expected to celebrate, he took out a $25 insurance policy for entertainment expense after each ace hereafter.

When Laurence Polk, Chattanooga, Tenn., started play in a foursome, his mates wanted him to join a hole-in-one-pot of $50 in case an ace was scored. Polk refused. He got an ace on the 9th hole.

Figured By Tens

On his 10th birthday, W. E. Helm, Biloxi, Miss., dropped an ace on the 10th day of the 10th month on the 10th hole of the Biloxi, Country club.

When Eugene Grabenstatter, Niagara Falls, N. Y., scored a double eagle, he stuck the ball in his bag as a souvenir. A year to the day, he ran out of balls, picked out the lucky one and—you guessed it—he got an ace.

Johnny Dawson, famed amateur, gave a fine demonstration of how a golfer can go from ridiculous to the sublime. Playing the third hole in the Denver invitational, Dawson hit two automobiles off the tee with wild shots, breaking a window in one. On the next hole, a 160-yarder, Johnny plumped his tee shot into the cup.

Big Splash!

Adolph Kiefer, above, and Ralph Flanagan, below, famous Olympic swimmers and world record-holders of the University of Texas, lost no time in writing new marks into the winter record. In a Coral Gables, Fla., carnival, Kiefer captured the one backstroke record which had eluded him by negotiating 100 meters over a 20-yard course in 1 minute, 7.7 seconds. The previous mark of 1:11.4 was held by William H. Mackey of Yale. Flanagan established new national records for the 200, 220, and 250-yard sprints also over a 20-yard course.

Pro Grid Chiefs Snap Up Star Material

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4—Professional football moguls, as busy as flies round a molasses pot, snapped up some welcome talent following the East-West all star game here New Year's day.

Among the performers who either have decided to play for pay or are interested in the proposition, are:

Andy Farkas, Detroit halfback, who will join the National pro league champions, the Washington Redskins.

Al Babartsky, Fordham tackle, joining the Chicago Cardinals.

Karl Schleckman, Utah tackle, on the verge of going to the Detroit Lions.

Isbell To Packers

Cecil Isbell, outstanding Purdue halfback, bound for the Green Bay Packers.

Two other Fordham boys Alex Wojciechowicz, center, and Ed Franco, tackle, are said to be seriously considering offers.

Lambeau Wants Dohrmann

Lambeau revealed he intended to try to make a deal with the Washington Redskins for the services of Elmer Dohrmann, giant Nebraska end. The Redskins drew Dohrmann, star of the East-West game, in the draft.

Probably the most sought after player was Carl Littlefield, Washington State fullback, whose name was not even included in the recent pro draft. In addition to offers from the Packers and the Lions, he has been approached by several other clubs, his coach, Orin Hollingbery, said.

Mildred Babe Didrikson Is To Be In Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, feminine golfing threat, entered today the $5,000 Los Angeles open which gets underway Friday at the city's Griffith Park links.

Harry Cooper, warming up to defend his open title, shot a 68 at Lakeside in North Hollywood yesterday.

On hand for the first event of the California winter golf campaign was a host of out-of-state veterans, including Byron Nelson, Reading, Penn., and Joe Ezar, Waco, Texas.

Grid Rule Changes Are Approved By College Coaches

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 — Football coaches from all sections of America hauled out the "O.K." stamp today and applied it to the three major decisions of the National Football Rules committee in its week-end deliberations at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Only a few comments were tinged with doubt and even those gridiron tutors who weren't quite certain agreed the rules changes were good as far as they went.

Two Are Unqualified

Most of them, however, gave unqualified praise to the change allowing three incomplete forward passes over the goal line without a touchback being ruled and the ball going to the other team. They also endorsed the decision to bring the ball in 15 yards from the sideline instead of 10 on out-of-bounds plays. A few, however, regretted the decision not to permit forward passing from any point back of the line of scrimmage.

Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches rules committee who took part in the national committee's discussions, was an enthusiastic spokesman for his colleagues.

Great Help To Offense

"The rules change that allows three incomplete forward passes to be thrown into the end zone in the same series of downs without the loss of the ball will be a great help to the offense near the goal line." "This is one of the best innovations that has come into football in a long time. Now the defense must stay back and guard against a possible second or third pass. Thus all phases of attack will be greatly improved and there should be more scoring."

Strong endorsements came from Mal Edwards, Purdue's acting coach who said the changes "will be of great assistance to 1938 quarterbacks." Lowell (Red) Dawson of Tulane, Josh Cody of Florida, Chet Wynne of Kentucky, Glenn Thistlethwaite of Richmond, and Ike Armstrong of Utah.

Fred Thomsen of Arkansas regretted that the five-yard restriction was not removed from forward passes but, in rebuttal, Clyde Waters, well-known New England official, said "that would drive a lot of coaches crazy. It's all right for the pros but, remember, they're more mature than college and high school players."

These Girls Win Their 'G' In 1937; They Are The Champions In Their Respective Classes

BY MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—1937 Will be remembered as the year the G-Girls loaded their lipsticks, raided every place in sight, from college campus to the palaces of kings—and got their man.

G-Girls—Glamor Girls—of all types and sizes, from the 40-year-old Duchess of Windsor to 8-year-old Shirley Temple, took the world by storm. During the 12 months we have just lived through, glamor lurked in every corner.

Society's G-Girl—Gloria Baker

G-Girls from Hollywood brought their own particular brand of glamor to Broadway, and Broadway returned the favor in kind.

A G-Girl got a son of the President.

A G-Girl got a former king.

Thousands of words were written and hundreds of lectures delivered on the subject. No one seemed to figure out exactly what glamor is, but that didn't deter any man, or boy or girl, for that matter, from glamoring (we looked it up in Webster's) around with the word. In fact, clamoring around with it.

And as the year 1937 breathes its last, who emerges triumphant? The G-Girls, of course.

And these are our selections for the prize G-Girls of the year.

Gloria's Glamor

From the rank and file of society's regiment in the legion of glamor, Gloria Baker heads the list. Tall, dark and handsome, Miss Baker, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Emerson and half-sister of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, is the Princess of Cafe Society. She's seen everywhere, does everything, smiles, walks, swims, dances—glamorously. She's one of the most stunning as well as one of the richest little gals in all the "400"-dom.

Radioactive Glamor

Among the G-Girls whose glamor electrified the ether waves during the past year, lovely Maxine Marlowe, featured vocalist with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, is tops. The voice of the tall, slender, dark-haired Maxine probably sent more quivers along masculine spinal columes than any other.

Miss Marlowe was born 21 years ago, in Columbus, O., went to Ohio State university, was active in the glee club and dramatic society there. She likes professional men, preferably doctors and lawyers, usually wears black and white and loves gardenias. She never has had a voice lesson in her life, sings with a rich naturalness which is—well—ah, er—glamorous.

Garden Variety Glamor

Dorothy Lamour is a G-Girl on two counts—radio and motion pictures. And she says she'd rather not be a glamor girl if being one means "breathing rarified air and dining on nectar and caviar." Seems Miss Lamour prefers "good old garden variety sunshine, ham and eggs and beefsteak."

Movies' G-Girl—Dorothy Lamour

Broadway's G-Girl—Joy Hodges

But what Dorothy thinks is beside the point. A G-Girl she was and is on the radio. And a G-Girl she is in Hollywood. Her fans stretch from coast to coast. Her fanmail is terrific. She's been doing very well right along, but with "Hurricane" she's doing better than very well. She's doing glamorously well.

Glamor In Adversity

Probably the most interesting G-Girl story of the year is that of Jessie Simpson, the former telephone operator who lost both legs when she slipped and fell in the path of a commuter's train, but who, during 1937, became a sought-after model in spite of the accident.

The beautiful Miss Simpson (she won a New Jersey beauty contest about a year before she fell underneath the train) now walks on artificial legs. Early last summer a famous watch firm hired Jessie to wear their wrist watches and pose for various advertisements. One commercial photographer told another how lovely her hands and arms are, and several promised to have her pose for them frequently as soon as she could walk. They kept their word. On the cover of a popular magazine, you'll see little Miss Simpson—a girl with so much glamor that even the loss of her legs couldn't prevent her from making a definite niche for herself in the world.

Glamor Plus

On Broadway, Joy Hodges is the G-Girl of the hour. Recruited from Hollywood to star in the current hit, "I'd Rather Be Right," Miss Hodges is knocking 'em dead along the Rialto.

The green-eyed, brown-haired young actress dances, sings, plays the piano, rides, swims, shoots and, in general, an all-around girl—with glamor, plus. You'll hear more of Miss Hodges later, in dispatches from Hollywood and New York—glamorous dispatches, of course.

Well, Glamorous New Year!

Radio's G-Girl—Maxine Marlowe

Model G-Girl—Jessie Simpson

MR. GEORGE K. ROBERTS

endure the discomfort brought by a chronic case of constipation. My system became filled with poisons and before I realized it my stomach was terribly disordered and regardless of how carefully I watched and planned my diet I continued to suffer. My entire body was filled with aches and pains from my head to my feet. Rheumatic pains in my knees were at times most unbearable. I became terribly nervous and in this condition a good night's sleep was almost a total impossibility. I tried so many medicines and met with so many failures but that was before I gave Gly-Cas the opportunity to prove its great difference to me.

"Gly-Cas accomplished wonders in my stubborn case," continued Mr. Roberts. "My stomach and bowels have been toned into the best condition ever and now I can eat anything I wish with no fear of after effects, all those dreadful aches and pains are gone and rheumatism is wonderfully improved. I feel like a different man since Gly-Cas has given me such a complete new outlook on life and I feel I cannot begin to say enough for its merits after the wonderful results I have been given through its use."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

More Savings Recommended

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — The Interstate Commerce commission told congress today American railroads should effect more savings in operations.

"That the railroads have done much in recent years to improve service, both freight and passenger, and to accomplish greater economy in operation is plain," the commission's annual report said. "Yet it is not clear that they have done all that can be done.

By Greater Cooperation

"We have repeatedly expressed in our report the belief that by greater cooperation with each other and the coordination of many of their facilities and operations, further and material reductions in operating expenses are feasible."

The Association of American Railroad came under the commission's fire. Observing that this agency was set up to bring about operating economies through voluntary action, the commission said:

No Accomplishments Seen

"If there have been important accomplishments by the association along these lines, they have not been brought to our attention."

The commission said the carriers are entitled to earn a "reasonable return" on the fair value of their properties, but observed that there is a manifest need for caution in increasing rates.

Somebody sent this in, but it's terrible:

Why is a corset like a trash wagon?

Because it gathers up the waist!

THE PLAINSMAN got a letter yesterday. He doesn't know who wrote it, since it bore "A Daily Reader" for a signature. It was postmarked Brownfield.

But it was a good letter. A thoughtful letter.

Here it is:

"Dear Plainsman: While it is a little late to be talking about New Year's resolutions, it is still early enough in 1938 to buckle up our belts and try to do better than we did in 1937. I am enclosing a poem with which you are no doubt familiar and which I think would be fine to publish at this time of the year. I know it has been of great help to me ever since I was a young woman. Every time I am dejected, and every time I feel I am slipping, I read it over. I believe it would be helpful to others and that is why I suggest you put it in your column. Keep writing every day and good luck in 1938."

The poem enclosed was "If," by Rudyard Kipling.

Thankful to the lady for her suggestion. The Plainsman will follow her idea.

It so happens that he, too, is an ardent Kipling fan and particularly admires "If." Further, in these unsettled, troubled times, he feels it is a fine way to start out the brand new year which has been dumped into our laps.

So here goes:

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or, being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or, being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream—and not make dreams your master,
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop to build 'em with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: "Hold On";

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch;
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a Man, my son!

* * *

DOUR Mr. Kipling really had something when he hit upon the idea of writing "If", and while many persons more erudite may not appreciate it as literature, The Plainsman does not know of many verses which can measure up to it.

Especially in a campaign year those last four lines of the first verse hit the nail right on the head!

We hope you got something out of it. It's there, if you'll only think it over.

J. Edgar Hoover's Federal Bureau of Investigation boys have been publicized so much as super-sleuths that the public is beginning to look to them for all kinds of help not in the statute book.

For instance, take this story, from a Washington correspondent:

"G-Men have been asked to take a pot-shot at Cupid. The other day they received by mail an empty highball glass, wrapped carefully in cotton.

"This note accompanied it:

"'Dear Firs: This glass bears the fingerprints of the man who wants to marry my daughter. I suspect him. What do you know?'"

Let's hope this kind of thing doesn't happen too frequently. If it does, the business of getting a wife is going to be harder than ever!

DR. GEORGE COX, head of the state department of public health, is following the lead of Dr. Thomas Parran, jr., U. S. surgeon-general, in fighting the spread of venereal disease.

Pointing out that thousands of Texans have one or more such diseases and that thousands of others are joining their ranks every year, Doctor Cox has stripped from the subject every segment of false modesty.

His action is to be commended, for from it may evolve a statewide campaign which will bring cures to many victims and save from similar infection many, many others.

Those who suspect they may have such infections should immediately go to the physician of their choice for a complete examination and, if need be, full treatment.

For the benefit of the penniless, there should be in every community of any size a public clinic, where careful, scientific examination and treatment can be secured.

Doctor Cox calls one social disease—syphilis, to be exact—the greatest enemy to health in the entire state. If he is right—as he doubtless is—it is time we were doing something about it.

That Man on Avenue Q says if you think a banker's eye is cold, you ought to see two strange women giving each other the once-over at a bridge party!

Down at the mule barn on the east side of town the other day a man was trying to sell a broken-winded horse. After much hesitancy, he trotted the animal about for the benefit of the prospective buyer and then pulled up for further inspection.

Patting the animal's glossy back, he remarked:

"Hasn't he got a swell coat?"

"Yeah," said the prospective buyer, "his coat's all right. What I don't like is his pants!"

MR. ROOSEVELT said in his message to Congress that no government can conscript co-operation.

He is right—and neither can any government get whole-hearted co-operation via a campaign of vituperation against those who do not see eye-to-eye with it.

The President should be reminded of the adage:

"You can catch more flies with molasses than you can with vinegar!"

The new traffic ordinance contains a provision against hitchhiking within the city limits except at such points designated as "thumbing stations." Thus the city officially moves to co-operate with Prof. James M. Allen, acting dean of men at Texas Tech.

Dean Allen fain would keep his charges out of the street and has set aside "thumbing stations" at Broadway and Avenue L, and Broadway and Avenue X, for the benefit of college kids who are too tired to use Shanks' mare as a mode of transportation. The tired boys, however, only in rare instances co-operate with the dean in confining their thumbing to designated zones.

Now that the law covers hitchhiking, the city should see that rah-rah thumbers comply with it.

If they won't, of their own accord, safeguard their own welfare, the law should—and must—do it for them.

Yesterday: Prospects of a real discovery in the cliff dwelling spurs Bob and Melissa. Meanwhile, Holliman intends to carry out his bargain with the Indian girl.

CHAPTER XII

"All set, partner?"

Bob Barry stage-whispered this to Mary Melissa Lane. He was thumping on the outside of her tent with his finger, trying to awaken her.

"Yess! In just a moment, Bob."

She dressed with incredible speed. Bob met her outside in the darkness, holding her shoulder pack.

"I left a note telling them we would be gone indefinitely," he said, "and enough orders to keep Hades and Holliman busy for a week, so they won't get inquisitive. They can make the camp a lot more homey, and build a larger horse corral."

It was not yet 4 a. m., and the two partners felt a sense of adventure at starting to explore an unknown cave. The climb up the cliff ladders itself was thrilling. At the very rim of the great rock lip they sat down, dangling their feet out over 600 feet of space, to eat the breakfast Bob had brought in his pack.

"Just imagine— we're as high as a 50 story skyscraper, Bob!"

"Regular penthouse, almost," grinned the young scientist. "But awful poor elevator service."

'Lissa laughed aloud. They could just see the first rays of morning, an opal glow straight ahead heralding the coming of the sun god. The black blanket of the desert land was fading into a pinkish gray; soon it would be a mere coverlet of pastel blues and tans.

They ate, mostly in silence, impressed by the majesty of the mountains, the incomparable lift of spirit that comes from greeting the sun on a height. 'Lissa felt very near to Bob Barry in that quarter hour, near and intimate, and—content.

When they were through they hesitated for a moment, watching the crescendo of color, the explosion of dawn. "It's marvelous, Mary Melissa, isn't it?" he whispered.

"Yes," she whispered back. "Heavenly." They looked at each other and smiled.

"Happy?" he murmured. The girl nodded.

He had to force himself out of the personal mood. With a sudden wild cry he arose and pulled her to her feet.

"Into the dungeon for you, damsel!" he orated in mock drama. "Ah-h-h-h, whatever is there we'll beard in its den."

She laughed with him, but she knew he was serious, anxious to explore. He strapped his pack back on—carried a canteen and food for lunch, also a gasoline lantern—and led her to the entrance of the tomb cave.

"I'll light the lantern now," he said.

It made brilliant light, and at once in turned the cavern into a sort of fairyland. They were able to proceed at an easy pace, sloping gently dawn a hallway, then up and turn, down and up again. The place seemed endless. Bob was studying everything carefully.

Then they stooped through a small opening and came into a room so large that their light would not penetrate all of it.

"Whew?" breathed Bob in surprise. "Another Carlsbad!"

"A what?"

"Carlsbad Cavern. Have you ever visited that, in New Mexico? It's the largest in the world. Seven miles or more, and still not all explored."

His comparison was accurate, in a measure. Here indeed were the same type of fantastic stalactites and stalagmites. Columns of natural stone, beautifully etched and carved by time, stood taller than their heads, sometimes twice as tall. Others hung in long stone "icicles" from the ceiling, and nearby walls were draped in tapestries of lacy onyx.

"This is unbelieveable, Bob!" 'Lissa exclaimed. "I can hardly imagine anything so beautiful!"

"Just like Carlsbad. Or Colossal Cave near Tuscon. Common type of cave formation in the southwest. Some of these columns are millions of years old."

Bob was more concerned with finding an avenue through the new room. He noted frequently the air current. It wasn't strong, but it was definite.

"It isn't a tomb, after all," he spoke as if to himself. "This was used for something else. That one body may have been placed up there just to mislead snooping enemies or something."

Progress was slow now. The lantern cast ghostly shadows among the floor and ceiling formations. It was easy for the two to become separated and lose sight of each other.

Often there were drops of 40 to 50 feet which had to be rescended on hands and feet and then at some risk. But they were eager to press on, keen in their zest for exploration. They crawled and climbed and slid for two or three hours, when Bob remembered to call a halt for rest. Gratefully 'Lissa sat down near him.

"Say Bob," she spoke in sudden alarm, "could you—can you find our way back out of here?"

He feigned surprise for a moment, then quickly grinned.

"Sure thing," he declared. "I've been marking every turn, with pieces of chalk I brought just for the purpose, either white or black. See?" He showed her the markings. "I anticipated that worry."

Bob slipped his pack off his shoulders to rest them, and placed it against a stone. As he sat there he began studying rock formations with his pocket magnifying glass.

This interest led him a few feet away. They talked, mostly of geology, for a quarter hour or so.

"Let's move on. Rested, 'Lissa?"

"Feel fine," she declared. "I'll carry the lantern for awhile Bob, and you can be more free to study the stones."

"Thanks."

* * *

They moved with considerable caution now. Much of the floor was slanting, and slippery with loose rocks and earth. They came to a ledge, a sort of subterranean cliff edge. She held the lantern up and cut but neither of them could see the bottom. It seemed like the proverbial bottomless pit, down there in the depth of Mother Earth.

"Gee, it's— scary!" 'Lissa shivered in exaggerated manner, which wasn't quite all pretense.

"It is, at that," Bob agreed. "This confounded cave gets bigger and bigger. And its like a maze, with all these limestone deposits."

He leaned over the edge. The drop seemed to be sheer. He threw a rock, and estimated the depth at about 100 feet.

"Hold out the lantern again, 'Lissa," he requested. "Shield your eyes then, and maybe you can see the bottom."

It might have happened to any person. Certainly it was one of those accidents for which there is no accounting, no explanation.

'Lissa swung the gasoline light by its handle out over the rock ledge—and it slipped from her hand!

She gasped.

Somewhere half way down it hit—crack!—tinkle!—flicker — and a final BANG! as the fuel exploded, subterranean depths for a moment. Then the darkness was complete, stifling.

Silence reigned for a second or two. But as full realization of their plight reached her, 'Lissa gave a hysterical scream.

A HIGHLY DESIRABLE SITUATION

Reports that trade between the United States and Mexico in 1937 was nearly double that of the previous year is evidence of a most satisfactory and desirable condition.

While the United States undoubtedly needs markets in nations across the oceans, our greater destiny lies on the continents of the American hemisphere. Those nations offer markets for manufactured commodities they do not produce themselves and they produce many things which our own nation does not have. Both benefit from trade with each other.

Another factor is that, compared with other continents in the world, peace prevails in the Western hemisphere. There have been and doubtless will continue to be occasional outbreaks, but there is no indication that they will be of more than limited scope.

Mexico and Central and South America likewise present the probability of steady and growing markets which can be reached by land, water and air over established routes. They and we, also, have common interests which, in time of extreme peril, would make their cause ours, and ours theirs.

The mutual advantage of such trade is too obvious to require extended comment. However, all of us as individuals can help the movement along if, in our buying, we give preference where possible to the products of our neighbor nations.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.—Harold Lloyd likes movie-making well enough, except that it keeps him away from his games. The comedian is such a fiend for new pastimes that one of the large game manufacturing companies sends him a preview sample of each of its products.

He invents games, too, and is a prominent amateur magician. When I visited the "Professor Beware" location at a suburban railroad station, Lloyd was leaning against a box car entertaining a crowd of natives and actors with a mental-telepathy trick.

The star does the thinking, and John Summers, a member of his staff, acts as swami and tells what he's thinking about. All Hollywood is mystified by the stunt because nobody has been able to catch Lloyd giving Summers any secret information.

In "Professor Beware," Lloyd is an Egyptologist searching for the missing half of an ancient tablet he has discovered, and all sorts of adventures befall him. The scene they were shooting on location is where a freight train pulls into Jersey Junction and railroad police swarm over it looking for hoboes. Lionel Stander and Raymond Walburn climb out of a tank car and escape by putting on a blind-man act.

Wrong State

After two takes of the 15-car train rolling into the station, Director Elliott Nugent disgustedly yelled, "Cut!" The sign on the station read "Jersey Junction, N. Y."; so work was halted until it was changed to "New Jersey."

Actually the station was Van Nuys, Calif. It's a spur from the main line used for loading fruit and vegetables. The people of Van Nuys turned out to watch the filming, and unlike most movie sets this one was wide open to the public.

Phyllis Welch, Lloyd's leading lady, was playing one of his games (a star-shaped board full of pegs) with a property man. Wearing slacks, sweater and tennis shoes, and with her blond hair whipping in the breeze, Miss Welch didn't look like the glamor girl she's intended to be. I asked how she happened to get the lead in his picture.

She thought awhile and said, "Gosh, I don't know! Last year I was working with Burgess Meredith in 'High Tor,' and now I'm in the movies. Just like that." At any rate, this is her first picture.

Couldn't Trick Lloyd

She also is mystified by the Lloyd-Summers telepathy act, and has made bets that she'll learn how it's done before the production ends in March. Just before lunch she got a bright idea for confusing the mystics, so she told Lloyd to think of nothing.

"Tell 'em what it is, John," the comic yelled to his stooge, who was standing some distance away. Summers thought a while and shouted back, "Nothing!"

After lunch the company began taking closeups of the Stander-Walburn escape from the tank car. Walburn was too stocky to squeeze through the hole readily, so a double was used to do his wriggling. Stander did his own escaping.

Too Long In Hollow Tree

During these scenes, Lloyd and Miss Welch played another of his games—a word game that he invented. But she soon slipped away, crawled into the back seat of one of the big limousines and went to sleep. She finds movie work fun, but exhausting.

Her toughest day was when she and Lloyd did a scene in a hollow tree. From 10 a. m. until almost 7 p. m., she and the star stood wedged together inside the tree, hiding from police. When she finally got out, somebody said, "You look tired, Phyllis." And right then she had her first case of hysterics.

'Monopolistic Prices' Pointed Out As Key To Puzzle Of More Business, Less Money

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Even the late Harry Houdini could never figure out how a country could have higher prices, less money to spend and, at the same time, as much or business than before.

That's the chief factor behind more and more public talk about prices—especially "monopolistic" prices—and the possibility of congressional investigations and anti-trust laws.

Rodney Dutcher

One is entitled to ask: What is this price situation about which so much fuss is being made?

Forty per cent of the wholesale business in commodities is being done in goods whose prices are higher than they were in September, 1929. This fact has been worked out from Department of Labor statistics as of last September, which showed that 281 of the 784 items on which price figures are collected were higher at that time than on the eve of the big depression eight years ago.

Against those figures, say the anti-monopolistis, is the fact that the income of consumers is a third lower than it was in 1929.

Still Held Rigid

Some prices have gone down since last summer. The fire from Congress and government officials is being directed at price-fixing industries which began to boost prices in the fall of 1936 and now continue to hold them rigid. Because of rapid technological improvements and labor-saving methods, it is contended there are few if any justifications for prices above the 1929 level.

The average wholesale price level last September was 90 per cent of 1929.

The following groups of commodities, as of September, were above 1929 prices:

Coke by 24.4 per cent; cement, 11 per cent; drugs and pharmaceuticals, 10 per cent; bituminous coal, 8.7 per cent; woolen and worsted goods, 6.6 per cent.

Iron and steel, 5.1 per cent; paper and pulp, 5.1 per cent; lumber, 4.3 per cent; miscellaneous building materials, 3.7 per cent; automobile tires and tubes, 3.5 per cent; shoes, 1.3 per cent.

Shoes, clothing, and meats were slightly higher. Farm machinery, automobiles, cereal products, and furniture were above 1929 prices, while toward the bottom of the list were silk and rayon, 40 per cent; fruits and vegetables, 58.6; miscellaneous farm products, 65.7; miscellaneous textile products, 74.9, and dairy products, 79.8.

Many Blame Labor

Widespread opinion is that price increases have been due to wage increases obtained by organized labor. Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, the administration's anti-trust crusader, after a speech in New York in which he attacked high fixed prices, received a small snowstorm of letters from persons who blamed labor.

Now Jackson comes back with the results of a detailed and authoritative study of federal statisticians following the 10 per cent wage increase in the steel industry, the most dramatic and important increase of the year.

He says the wage increases could have been covered by a 5.5 per cent price increase—or 9.1 per cent to cover higher material costs due to wage increases elsewhere—but that the actual 1936-37 steel price increase was 21 per cent.

Jackson and the New Deal economists are willing to admit that, at the other extreme, many prices (unfixed) may be "too low."

Whatever administration price policy may eventually be, Roosevelt has to accept much responsibility. NRA codes fostered monopoly and price-fixing. The fact that consumers pay 10 per cent more for drugs than in 1929 is largely due to state laws and the Patman-Robinson and Miller-Tydings laws which Roosevelt refused to veto. Bituminous coal prices are held up by the Guffey act. You can't blame the Morgan, Mellon, Koppers, du Pont, U. S. Steel, and similar groups for everything.

Ask The Master Psychologist
DR. LA ROSE, Ps. D.

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success, being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear . . . than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours. Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers. You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

Redfern Is Legally Declared As Dead

DETROIT, Jan. 4. (AP)—Ten years and four months from the day he adventurously flew southward, the fantastic story of the Aviator Paul Redfern was climaxed by an order of circuit court declaring him a dead man.

Thirteen expeditions had sought the missing pilot in South American wilds while the lore surrounding the lost man steadily was enriched with new suppositions of his fate.

Some rumors, generally discredited, said he had been captured by savage tribes in the upper Amazon region. No searchers, however, ever returned with the answer to his disappearance.

Monday, acting on the petition of Redfern's wife, Gertrude, who said she had spent all her savings to aid the searchers, Circuit Judge Robert M. Toms ruled the aviator legally dead, pronouncing the wife a widow. She had sought to remove the uncertainty of her status.

Redfern, one of aviation's pioneer dare-devils, tried to span Brunswick, Ga., with Rio De Janeiro in a non-stop flight. He flew away Aug. 25, 1927. The crew of a Norwegian freighter reported sighting a plane that might have been his 150 miles off the coast of Venezuela the next day. Thereafter, no word of him.

A man charged as J. L. Jones allegedly committed assault on Cleo Jones. He was released from the county jail on bond of $250. Jess Hardy and Tom Cannon of the police department arrested Clark and Cannon and Aubrey Fawver, also of the police department, arrested Jones.

WALL STREET REPORT

The advance was negotiated on relatively small volume, the ticker tape frequently being at a standstill. Profit realizing was absorbed without much troube and leaders were not far under best levels near the fourth hour.

The list was exceptionally "thin" throughout, with some issues jumping a point or falling back as much as on a single sale. Brokers said public participation was small. Poor traders accounting for most of the activity.

With the presidential message out of the way, Wall Street turned its attention to congress in hope constructive legislation would be forthcoming.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Unexpected steep jumps of Liverpool quotations led to sudden advances of around three cents a bushel in the Chicago wheat market early today. Trade cables stressed bullish aspects of President Roosevelt's message to congress, and said world wheat supplies were down to a dangerous margin.

Opening 1¼-2⅞ cents higher, May 92½-93⅛, July 87-87⅞, Chicago wheat futures then held. Corn started ½ to 1 cent up, May 61⅞-62⅛, July 61¼-½. And afterward rose further.

At the close Chicago wheat futures were 2⅞-3¼ cents above yesterday's finish, May 93½-⅝, July 87½, corn ⅞-1⅛ up, May 62¼-⅜, July 61⅞, and oats ⅛-⅜ advanced.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP)—Cotton futures opened 1 point net higher to 2 points lower today under liquidation of near positions against covering and transferring in distants.

Jan. opened at 8.29, March 8.39, May 8.46 bid, July 8.51 and Oct. at 8.57.

The market strengthened after the start on covering and moderate trade calling and towards the end of the first half hour active positions were 4 to 7 points net higher.

Offerings were light during the morning and buying increased until near midsession the general market showed advances of 50 cents or more a bale.

March contracts rallied to 8.47, May to 8.57, July to 8.62 and Oct. 8.69, or 9 to 13 points above the previous close.

Trade buying and covering by shorts buoyed cotton prices and in the afternoon trading active months were 55 to 70 cents a bale above the previous close.

Jan. contracts traded at 8.44, March at 8.51, May at 8.59, July at 8.65 and Oct. at 8.70, or 11 to 14 points net higher.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — Cotton futures opened 2 higher to 1 lower with steadier Liverpool cables offset by liquidation and hedge selling. Jan. 8.24; March 8.28; May 8.33; July 8.39; Oct. 8.46; Dec. 8.52.

There were some offerings from the Far East but Livepool bought. Contracts became scarce and as the market advanced other buying developed. Firmness of stocks and wheat contributed to the rally shortly after the first half hour, when March had advanced from 8.28 to 8.33. The list was 5 to 8 points net higher.

The rally continued later in the morning on further trade and some speculative buying, influenced chiefly by the firmness of other markets and disposition to place inflationary implication on some phases of the Washington situation.

March sold up to 8.38 and ruled within a point of the best at midday, when prices were 8 to 12 points net higher.

declarations of Ickes and Jackson. Representative Woodruff (R-Mich), on the other hand, called the Roosevelt message "more suave and polished, but just as unbending and vicious" as the speeches by the other two men.

WALLACE REPEATS THEME

Observers were quick to note that a Pittsburgh address last night by Secretary Wallace was along the same theme as the president's.

"Workers and government are often critical of a few capitalists for very good reasons," Wallace said, adding, "it is important to remember that capital itself is different from a few short-sighted capitalists.

"It doesn't do either labor or agriculture any good to scare capital; instead they must all find ways to work together."

FAVORABLY IMPRESSED

Colby M. Chester, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers and head of the General Foods corporation, was among the few industrialists who had immediate comment on the Roosevelt address.

He said he was favorably impressed by the president's statements on improved business-government relations, and expressed hope a "real basis for understanding has been created."

On the other hand, Senator Copeland (D-NY) expressed disappointment in the message, asserting that "to restore business prosperity there must be the assurance—read assurance—that in government is the intention to cooperate and assist the efforts of business."

AWAIT BUDGET MESSAGE

Before getting down to work on the entire administration program, legislators awaited the annual budget message tomorrow. Mr. Roosevelt disclosed he had abandoned hope for balancing income and outgo in 1938-39.

As soon as the message is received, the house will begin debating appropriations. Meanwhile it had no special business. The senate was in recess today, but Thursday it will take up the controversial anti-lynching bill.

Not So Wild West

LOS ANGELES — Film Cowboy Buck Jones was a-hankerin' to build a Wild West town as a home for horse opera veterans.

But some of his fellow actors—including Al Jolson, Edward Everett Horton, Warren William and Don Ameche—who have homes near the proposed San Fernando valley site, reckoned they didn't care for the idea.

They petitioned city council, and the council instructed the planning commission to refuse Jones a building permit.

Trinity Professor's Family Tradition In School's History

WAXAHACHIE, Jan. 4 (AP) — Ninety years ago ancestors of Prof. George A. Newton of Trinity university became pioneer educational leaders in Texas, and now he is heading the mathematics department of Trinity for the 30th consecutive year.

Thomas McKee, Prof. Newton's great-grandfather, came to Texas from Tennessee and settled near Larissa in East Texas in 1846. A believer in Christian education, Mr. McKee gave the first $1,000 of endowment for Larissa college, founded in 1848. The first teacher in Larissa, a predecessor of Trinity, was Mrs. S. R. Erwin, Prof. Newton's great aunt.

Obstacles due to the Civil war caused Larissa college to close after Trinity was established at Tehuacana, near Mexia, in 1869, many of Prof. Newton's relatives moved there so they might give their children a Christian education. Prof. Newton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Newton, had attended Larissa and they sent their four sons and three daughters to Trinity.

All of Prof. Newton's nieces and nephews also have attended Trinity and one of the nieces, Miss Jessie Mae Anderson, was the first woman graduate to receive a Ph. D. degree.

Since Trinity was established at Tehuacana Prof. Newton has had from one to twenty relatives in the school each year.

Although Prof. and Mrs. Newton have no children they have helped numerous young men and women to obtain an education at Trinity.

Alabama Is Choosing New Senator Today

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—Alabama chooses today from three candidates to succeed Justice Hugo L. Black in the United States senate, in the windup of a campaign in which debate over the wages and hours bill played a prominent part.

HILL IS LEADING

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—Scattering returns, largely from absentee boxes, in four rural and two urban Alabama counties gave Congressman Lister Hill a lead today over former Senator Thomas Heflin in their race for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

First reports were from Mobile and Montgomery counties, seats of two of the state's larger cities, and from rural and farming areas. This first count gave: Hill, 838; Heflin, 61; Charles Williams, 10.

The candidates are former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, attempting a political come-back at 68; J. Lister Hill, for 15 years a representative in congress, and Charles W. Williams, a political newcomer who terms himself a "dirt farmer."

Black introduced the wages and hours bill before resigning to accept appointment to the Supreme court. Heflin and Williams opposed the bill in their campaigns; Hill spoke in its favor.

Mrs. Dixie Graves, wife of Governor Bibb Graves, now serving in the senate on an interim appointment, will resign in favor of the successful candidate in today's primary.

Heflin has been a hospital patient since Christmas, suffering from lobar pneumonia, but was reported improved today.

Japanese officials representing the foreign office, the army and the navy protested to the Shanghai municipal council against terrorist acts which recently have hampered Japanese efforts to consolidate control of Shanghai. In the last few days terrorists have shot two Chinese suspected of Japanese leanings and warned newspapers they would kill anyone discovered in dealings with the Japanese.

Japanese Consul General Suemasa Okamoto presented concrete proposals for greater Japanese participation and influence in administration of the Shanghai municipal council to Corneil S. Franklin, the council's American chairman.

Major requests included appointment of Japanese to important administrative posts, more municipal jobs for Japanese and appointment of more Japanese policemen.

Franklin said the proposals would be taken under consideration.

A new artery for shipment of war materials into China has been opened with completion of a bridge linking British and Chinese sections of the Hongkong-Canton motor road.

Hundreds of trucks of American and German make have been assembled at Hongkong and driven into the interior. The liner Conte Verde last week brought from Italy 1,400 tons of aerial bombs which were transported to Canton. Other shipments of explosives have arrived at Hongkong almost daily from Europe.

The officials who predicted that Mr. Roosevelt's revised estimates for this fiscal year would set the deficit at $1,250,000,000, said his previous estimate of $895,245,000 deficit was made Oct. 19, before the extent of the business recession could be gauged.

(By The Associated

CHICAGO, Jan. 4. — age American, whose me reduced during 1937 to point of the century, ex 1935, was assured today by he could expect more and helpings this year.

More plentiful livestock feed plies, the Institute of Amer Packers said, would be transla into increased meat productio The low point of production, added, apparently already has passed.

Greater Supplies Forecast

Government figures disclosed an expanding production of hogs, supplies of which have been below normal for the last three years. Because of the plentiful feeds now available, a greater supply of high quality cattle also was forecast.

The institute said meat consumption in 1938 undoubtedly would show an increase if the expected production boost materialized. Lower prices were expected to stimulate consumption. Wholesale meat prices have declined 7 to 49 per cent since mid-September.

Less Eaten In 1937

Each individual in the nation ate an average of 129.3 pounds of meat and lard in 1937, the institute estimated. This was 6 per cent less than the per capita consumption in 1936 and only 2 per cent more than that of 1935.

The institute said consumption decreased in line with commercial production of meat which in 1937 was about 14,750,000,000 pounds as compared with nearly 16,500,000,000 in 1936. The lower production was due largely to the decrease in feed supplies following the drouth in 1936 and the resultant heavy cut in livestock marketings.

Commission Must Decide Soon On Size Of Subsidies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Maritime commission must decide soon the size of subsidies for merchant marine lines—and which lines will be entitled to federal aid.

Temporary subsidy contracts, under which 17 companies now are operating ships, expire at the end of this year.

Except to announce it did not intend to renew the contract of the Baltimore Mail Steamship company, the Maritime commission has given no definite indication of its intentions for next year.

The 17 lines, having temporary contracts for the July 1-Jan. 1 period will receive about $4,895,000 in subsidies. Under the old ocean mail contracts they would have received $8,600,000.

Kidnaping Feared

on the scene, but Jay C. Newman, head of the field office here, declined to comment on the part his men were taking.

Whether Miss Bennett vanished voluntarily or was kidnaped, state police believed that Hughes, who had been her escort on several occasions and the last person with whom she was seen by acquaintances, could throw light on her disappearance. An intensive search was in progress for him.

Son Packed Clothing

State police said the youth's mother, Mrs. Ivan Routson, told them Miss Bennett and Russell drove to her home near Dixboro about 3 p. m. yesterday. She said her son packed some clothing, including an extra suit, and drove away. She said she attached no significance to the circumstance because he usually took extra clothing when he filled an orchestra engagement.

Bennett said that "if something hadn't happened to Trudie, she would let us know where she was." He added that "if she wanted to get married she would have told me about it; she knows I couldn't stop her; my daughters run me."

Mother Receives No Word

Billie Bennett, 19-year-old sister of the missing girl, communicated with their mother, Bennett's first wife, who lives in Detroit. The mother said she had received no word from her vanished daughter.

Capt. Leonard said that if Miss Bennett was with Hughes he had no fears for her safety.

The chief cause for alarm in connection with the case was due to the prominence of the girl's father, chief of the far-flung Ford Motor company's personnel and head of its private police force.

Had Been Threatened

Bennett has been threatened with death frequently and attempts on his life have been made in other years. Violence to members of his family also has been threatened by cranks at various times.

Nothing had happened recently, however, to cause any special precautions at the Huron river home of the Bennetts near here.

But today its spacious grounds were tramped by newsmen, photographers, curious spectators, state policemen, federal bureau of investigation men and numerous agents of Bennett's own police force.

Last Word In Note

The last word from the missing girl apparently was contained in a note which she sent to her older sister, Billie, Monday afternoon. The note said:

"Billie:

"I called Esther (step-mother of the girls) and I have a four-six, also a W.A.A. dinner at 6:30-8:00. Go on home and I'll call you at Max' to come down after me.

"Trudie."

The note was interpreted to mean she had a class from 4 to 6 p. m. and a dinner engagement at the Women's Athletic association quarters on the campus. "Max" was said to be Miss Maxine Wilbur, a school friend at whose home the girls visited frequently.

Definitely Her Handwriting

Miss Billie Bennett received the note from her sister through a clerk employed at the college. It was said to have been definitely Trudie's handwriting.

The missing girl is a freshman at the college. She is especially interested in music.

She was attired in sports clothes and was believed to have carried little money when she left home.

She has brown hair and blue eyes, is five feet and one inch tall and weighs about 120 pounds.

Vermont leads all other states of the Union in the ratio of dairy cows per capita.

State Pensions Big Problem

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan.—A firebrand tossed about politically in Texas the past two years, old age pensions have cost the taxpayer nearly $29,000,000 in the 18 months of their existence prior to Jan. 1, 1938.

First checks reached the needy aged in July, 1936, and the initial calendar year of operation, now ending, saw pensions alone reach an expenditure of more than $19,500,000.

Expenses for the year and a half totaled approximately $1,500,000 with state and federal governments paying grants and administration on a half and half basis.

Future Is Indefinite

The future of old age assistance in Texas is indefinite and officials are loathe to hazard guesses.

"We have paid off recently about $200,000 on $1,627,000 we owe a Dallas bank on a loan which tided us over last winter. We intend to check the situation in January," was all Claude Teer, chairman of the board of control, which administers pensions, would say. The original loan was about $2,800,000.

Old age assistance is supported almost wholly by liquor, beer and cigarette taxes, on the state's part. The federal government's share comes from an allocation to the Social Security board from the general fund.

Payments Below Average

December payments in Texas averaged $13.71 per person as compared to a national average of about $17. California's $31.53 and Mississippi's $4.30, by latest federal statistics. Border states' averages were: Arkansas $9.09; Louisiana $10.78; New Mexico $10.94 and Oklahoma $14.84.

In number of recipients per 1,000 population 65 years old and over, Texas ranked second with 420, topped only by Oklahoma's 584. Third was Colorado at 404 which also was second highest in average with $27.58.

Second In Case Load

Texas also was second among the states in case load with 114,881 receiving $1,559,715 in December. The figures have hovered in the neighborhood the past four months as compared to a peak of 129,805 receiving $1,793,843 last May. Illinois led the nation with 125,000 and Ohio was third with 105,000.

A slashing reduction in cost of administration has been effected in recent months. In September it was $89,226; in October, $81,391; November, $76,916 and December, $66,900. Acting Director W. A. Little said personnel had been reduced from 519 last spring to 363 at present. The number of field men was reduced from 399 to 285.

Applications On Current Basis

Little said applications were on a current basis. One of the main criticisms of the administration at the start of the year was failure to dispose of pending applications. He said reinvestigation of approved cases was proceeding at the rate of about once in eight months, due to a limited staff of inspectors, as compared with once in four months in other states.

An issue which has carried aspirants into public office and caused the downfall of others, pensions are always good for political thunder. Governor James V. Allred made them a plank in his platform and Rep. Clarence Farmer of Fort Worth has announced for the high office on a promise of more liberal grants.

Lawmakers have considered bills which would have given pensions to all over 65 years of age, regardless of need. The federal government will aid only where there is consideration of need. One session of the legislature was called solely to provide more revenue for their support.

The governor cited additional pension funds as one reason for assembling the recent "do-nothing" conclave and in it there were made strenuous efforts to liberalize current eligibility qualifications.

Dallas Woman Tells How Gypsies Got Her $1,600

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—Maria Perez told police here feats of magic performed by two gypsy women led her to surrender $1600, all her life savings, to them.

Police quoted her as saying the women told her they were appointed by the Lord to cure sick souls and prevent accidents.

Maria said the women induced her to wrap her money in a bedspread, and left her house, promising to return. She said they explained the Lord was borrowing the money.

When the women failed to reappear within a week, the victim reported the matter to the police bunco squad.

She said, according to police, among the feats the women performed was the turning of a turkey egg into a ball of human hair.

Woman Admits She Placed Insect Poison In Flour

GREAT FALLS, Mont. Jan. 4 (AP)—County Attorney Phil Greenan said Mrs. Rose Krippen, 47-year-old ranch woman, had signed a statement admitting she placed insect poison in flour consumed by her neighbors because she was told her home was "homely."

Physicians said the neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Roe Ogden and their son, Cecil, 20, escaped death because an excess of the poison acted as an antidote.

"I was mad at them," the statement read, "because Mr. Ogden said that I had a homely house and nobody would live with me and because he said that I should leave the ranch and go to town where I could live in a nice house, go to shows and have a good time.

"I did not want to kill them. I only wanted to make them sick in the stomach. . . ."

Estimated 500 Of Alabama's 554 Holiday Parolees Back

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—An estimated 500 of Alabama's 554 Christmas parolees had registered back in prisons today. Others continued straggling in to uphold "word of honor" pledges to return voluntarily after holidays won through good behavior records.

Some may not return at all. Seven didn't last year, setting an all-time record. In the 10 years that two weeks freedom has been given the "most worthy" as a Yuletide present, however, officials estimated "not more than 20" had broken their words.

War Is Aid To Oil Industry

(By The Associated Press)

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 4 — War helped raise the world's need for oil to a new peak in 1937 but the greatest gain came in countries engaged in normal peacetime pursuits.

Preliminary estimates in the annual international number of Oil and Gas Journal place the crude production of the world in 1937 at 2,031,655,000 barrels, an increase of 238,222,000 or 13 per cent over 1936.

Largest Gain In History

It was the first time production ever has crossed the two billion barrel mark, and was the largest yearly gain in the history of the industry.

It was predicted the flow would be equaled or exceeded in 1938.

The United States produced 1,276,000 barrels or 62.8 per cent of the total crude brought above ground and its gain of 16 per cent exceeded that of any previous year by a wide margin.

Production Keeps Pace

Venezuela, Iran (Persia) and the United States were the only countries in which production kept pace with increasing demand.

Rumania's production declined, dropping that country from fourth to sixth place among the crude-producing states.

In most other oil-producing countries production increased but failed to keep pace with demand. The U. S. S. R. had an increase of three per cent, the largest in Russian oil history but because of a large increase in home demand the oil exports of the Soviets decreased about 40 per cent.

Mexican Production Up

A somewhat similar situation developed in Mexico where, despite labor difficulties, crude oil production increased slightly in 1937. Mexico's consumption of petroleum increased to nearly 50 per cent of its total production so its participation in outside markets was less than in 1936.

Important developments in the world oil picture during the year included completion of a large refinery on Bahrein island in the Persian Gulf. This refinery gave an outlet for crude discovered on the island several years ago by the Standard Oil company of California. Through a merger of properties in Bahrein operation is owned by the Standard of California and the Texas corporation.

Fate Of Agua Caliente Race Track And Club Is Unknown

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (AP)—An authoritative interpretation of President Lazaro Cardenas' decree expropriating the once-famed gambling Casino at Agua Caliente still was lacking and officials professed not to know whether the race track and jockey club there would be affected.

A treasury department spokesman said he understood the race track would not be expropriated if it is not a part of the casino properties.

The casino, once valued at $10,000,000, was taken over by the government for use as schools. Until closed by Cardenas' decree against gambling in July, 1935, it drew a wealthy patronage from nearby California.

The prong-horned antelope sheds the outer covering of its horns every year.

January 18 Is Date Set For Next Oil Session

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (AP)—January 18 has been set as the date for the next meeting of representatives of the states in the interstate oil compact.

Col. E. O. Thompson, chairman of the compact and a member of the state railroad commission, said compact representatives would convene at 10 a. m. in Oklahoma City. In addition to delegates from states in the compacts, other oil producing states are expected to have observers at the sessions, Thompson said. At the last meeting in Houston, 14 states were represented.

Thompson, stopping here en route from his home at Amarillo to Austin, fixed the date after a telephone canvass of state's representatives.
