Slight Change Made In Route Of Huge Blimp

German Ship Hopes To Be The First Dirigible To Cross Equator On Voyage To New World From Friedrichshafen
22 Are On Board
Airlship Reported In Vicinity Of Canary Islands; Will Arrive In Brazil Thursday; 2,000 Miles Covered

SEVILLE, Spain, May 20.—With seven purring motors the Graf Zeppelin tonight swept along, under the brilliant tropical skies, toward the equator which no dirigible ever before had crossed, on her voyage to the new world.

All was well aboard the giant of the air. Only a slight change in her route had manifested itself in despatches.

Well past the half of her first 1,000 sea miles, the airlship was reported by several steamers in the vicinity of the Canary Islands, first of the few dots upon the South Atlantic of which the German craft's twenty-two passengers had hoped to catch a glimpse. Arrival in Pernambuco, Brazil, possibly on Thursday.

Wireless advices in the early evening indicated that the Graf had covered a total of more than 1,200 miles since leaving Friedrichshafen, on Sunday.

She took the air for the second leg of her journey at Seville at 9:30 a. m. (1:30 p. m. C. S. T.) today amid scenes of great enthusiasm and a distinguished passenger list and many thousands of pieces of mail.

One of her passengers was Mrs. Mary Pierce, an American woman whose last Graf voyage nearly upset two diplomatic officers.

Peters, by a building committee from the Allen Brothers post at a meeting held in the office of Dr. V. V. Clark, chairman, last night.

Mr. Peters, a member of the committee, was given numerous suggestions and changes from the tentative plans. He announced his office force would begin Wednesday to draft new plans embodying the changes.

Sub-committees to handle details were named. Those committees will meet with those who desire to contribute either material or labor of who wish to arrange for the purchase of materials.

Under Arrest

She hadn't been naughty—but her mother had her arrested! Six months' old Carolyn Borgess smiles, though, as she faces the camera.

For her arrest was only "technical." It came about through a warrant procured by her mother, Mrs. Adolph Borgess, who thus recovered possession of the baby whom the father had taken away. The father has been charged with desertion.

BY SUTTON CHRISTIAN
Available Staff Correspondent
SAN ANTONIO, May 20.—As the final day of the convention of the Texas Retail Merchants association opens Wednesday morning, Mineral Wells will continue a drive with a strong bid to oppose Lubbock, the South Plains.

Galveston's invitation seems a mere formality. The test of strength is between Lubbock and Mineral Wells.

Lubbock's delegation, augmented by recent arrivals in San Antonio this afternoon eight o'clock. They will return to New Braunfels for the business session in the morning.

NEW BRAUNFELS, May 20.—A bitter contest between Lubbock and Mineral Wells began for Wednesday's session of the Texas Retail Merchants association for the 1930 convention.

Mineral Wells delegation, among the strongest which the South Plains has ever had, is headed by James Davis, president of the association.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—(AP)—First returns in Pennsylvania's republican primary election showed Secretary of Labor James J. Davis leading in the city of Philadelphia and United States Senator Joseph B. Grundy running ahead up-state for the senatorial nomination.

The vote from 16 districts gave Davis 1,008, and Grundy 496. The wet candidate, Francis H. Bohlen received 203 from the same districts.

American Gold Star Mothers Out In Old Battle Zone Of War

PARIS, May 20.—(By The Associated Press)—All of the American Gold Star mothers excepting the Suresnes group tonight were out in the old battle zone, at the end of their pilgrimage.

Four of the five groups reached the towns where they will stay for the next few days for visits to the cemeteries close by. The Argonne group will spend the night at Verdun and go daily to Romagne cemetery. The Oise group will remain at Soissons, near Arras-et-Neules cemetery. The Aisne-Marne group will base at Craieses Thierry, close to Belleau Wood cemetery and the Somme group will stop at St. Quentin, close to Bony.

Underpass To Open In June

Subway Under Santa Fe Railroad On Avenue H Finished With Exception Of Paving; Early Completion Seen

With the new subway on Avenue H underneath the Panhandle and Santa Fe tracks completed, except for paving formal opening of the traffic is expected to begin some time early in June, J. Bryan Miller, city manager, announced yesterday afternoon.

The Panhandle Construction company has the contract and paving of the street underneath the tracks has started.

Cost of the entire project is approximately $145,000 it was said yesterday by W. H. Rogers, city secretary. The subway is on state highway No. 2.

No formal opening ceremonies have as far been planned, Mr. Miller said. "I think that is a matter for the chamber of commerce to consider," he added.

The subway's length is 973 feet, considerably longer than the one under the railroad tracks on Broadway.

Within the next 60 working days the new storm sewer from the east of the city on Avenue K will be completed and ready for use, Mr. Miller said.

The storm sewer is 75 inches in diameter and will carry off the storm water from the underpass and from a large area around it. It is about a mile long and goes north to Eighth avenue, thence west to Avenue K and then north to the canyon.

Texas Rivers Continue Rise At Jefferson

INHABITANTS ARE DRIVEN FROM HOMES; OVER 300 FAMILIES MOVE TO HIGHER GROUND AS FLOOD WATERS INCREASE
CREST IS EXPECTED
Streets And Highways Under Water; Murky Water Stands Eight To Nine Feet Deep In Residential Section

JEFFERSON, May 20.—Its Streets under water and many of its 2,500 inhabitants driven from their homes, Jefferson tonight prepared to battle still higher waters as the Big Cypress, Little Cypress and Blain Cypress rivers continued to rise.

Only two blocks remained above water as darkness fell on the little city that has had no train service since Sunday. In the business district water was a few inches deep in the streets and was gradually flowing into the buildings.

Nine Feet Deep
In some sections of the residential area the murky waters stood eight to nine feet in homes. Approximately 350 families had moved to higher ground and a large number of others were preparing to do likewise.

Water from the streams had reached 28.3 feet, the highest on record, and was rising at the rate of one inch an hour. The crest was expected some time tomorrow.

Although further washouts along the main highway occurred, the latest being between Jefferson and Marshall on the Texas and Pacific, efforts were made to restore service here from Greenville. The last mail was received here Sunday.

Highways Inundated
Most of the highways leading from Jefferson also were under water and motor traffic was practically at a standstill. It was estimated that one-half of Marion county, of which Jefferson is the county seat, was under water.

Carl Williams To Make State Wide Campaign

Cotton Member of Federal Farm Board on Program of Annual Convention of WTCC At Abilene

(Special To The Avalanche) DALLAS, May 20 — Announcing plans for addresses in Texas by Carl Williams, cotton member of the Federal Farm Board, the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association today made public its plans for a state-wide membership campaign which will start simultaneously with the tour of the Farm Board member. The campaign will open the first of June, and Williams is to arrive in Abilene for an address before the West Texas Chamber of Commerce May 30, following with addresses before farmers' and business men's mass meetings at Paris, Saturday, May 31; Waco, Monday, June 2; and Corpus Christi, Tuesday, June 3.

Changes Made
Sweeping changes were made in the Texas Cotton Cooperative system during the past week's annual meetings of members and directors. The old Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association, after ten years of pioneering, was reorganized into the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association, and its sales plan placed on an entirely different basis. Instead of contracting to deliver all his cotton for sale by the association, the member will now contract for delivery of only one bale in every two, and this amount only until he has delivered ten bales. After delivery of the tenth bale, he may sell all the remainder on the open market, if he so desires.

A "decentralized membership" program is another new feature, with district and branch offices at larger points and receiving agencies at smaller points, to allow the member to carry on his dealings in person with association representatives near his home, rather than by long distance relations with state headquarters as before. On the other hand, sales will be on a more centralized basis than ever, the Texas association being one of twelve, covering the entire cotton belt, which will sell their cotton through the American Cotton Cooperative Association, set up and supervised by the Federal Farm Board.

Corpus Christi will be the scene of the first membership drive, forty-one counties of that district to be organized June 3, with preliminary work already under way. As rapidly as possible, the organization movement will be transferred to the other districts, in order to be ready for actual operation by the beginning of the cotton season. It was stated at T. C. C. A. headquarters that seventy-five towns and cities have applied for branch offices of the association, indicating their willingness to underwrite the maintenance of the offices and the enrollment of a membership quota. The general trend of sentiment toward the reorganized cooperative has been favorable, it was added, that instead of having around five per cent of Texas cotton farmers, as in the past, the association is expected to enroll several times that many the first season.

Lamesa Milk Plant Will Open June 16

Dairy men from all sections of the state as well as creamery men and officials of the state agricultural college are expected to attend. The Lamesa chamber of commerce and city officials will be hosts of the visitors. Lamesa is expected to send a large delegation, as well as many farmers and dairy men from all parts of the county.

"We will have training and elimination in stock judging, ewe judging and poultry judging," Mr. Easton explained. "From those left we will select the county team."

More than 200 boys and girls out of the approximately 400 enrolled in the work, are expected to attend. Each one will bring his or her own bedding roll and they will camp out the night of June 17. There will be a sufficient number of chaperones.

Demonstrations Set
"We are going to have demonstration teams of girls in a number of groups," Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, said. "There will be contests in home improvement, food preparation, food preservation, gardening and two classes of clothing work."

"The feature of the girls' work will be the team demonstrations." Because of a conflict in dates, the two day encampment was advanced one day, Mr. Easton said.

Club work is being given in some 16 communities over the county. In the clothing work, led by Miss Baird, some 30 girls are enrolled in two classes or divisions.

Weatherproof Huts are to be introduced in Lubbock.

Government inspection of meat is to be established in Ireland.

WATER TAP RATE CUT Reduction Of $10 Authorized By City Officials

Effective immediately a $10 reduction on each three-quarter water tap made within the city limits was authorized, city officials announced yesterday. Previously the rate has been $22.50 and the new rate will be $12.50.

Rates on duplex houses will be reduced from $45 to $35. It was pointed out. This cut will save property owners large sums each year, city officials declared.

Efforts have been made several times the past two years to get a reduction. It has long been known that local rates were considerably out of line with other towns.

You need not fear awkward lines... Kotex is fashioned to fit

YOU can't imagine what a relief it is to know that your sanitary protection is inconspicuous, that it is fashioned to fit correctly, leaving no revealing outlines. That is just one of the many reasons why smart women prefer Kotex.

- KOTEX IS SOFT...
  - 1-Not a deceptive softness, that soaks into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
  - 2-Kotex filler is fat lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
  - 3-Disposable, instantly, completely clean.

This wonderful material is Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding... a cellulose substance which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest of cotton, but with 5 times the absorbency. You should try this new method of sanitary protection. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

Lubbock Man Says Trouble Is Over

Prominent Farmer Says No Other Medicine Ever Helped Him Like Argotane Has

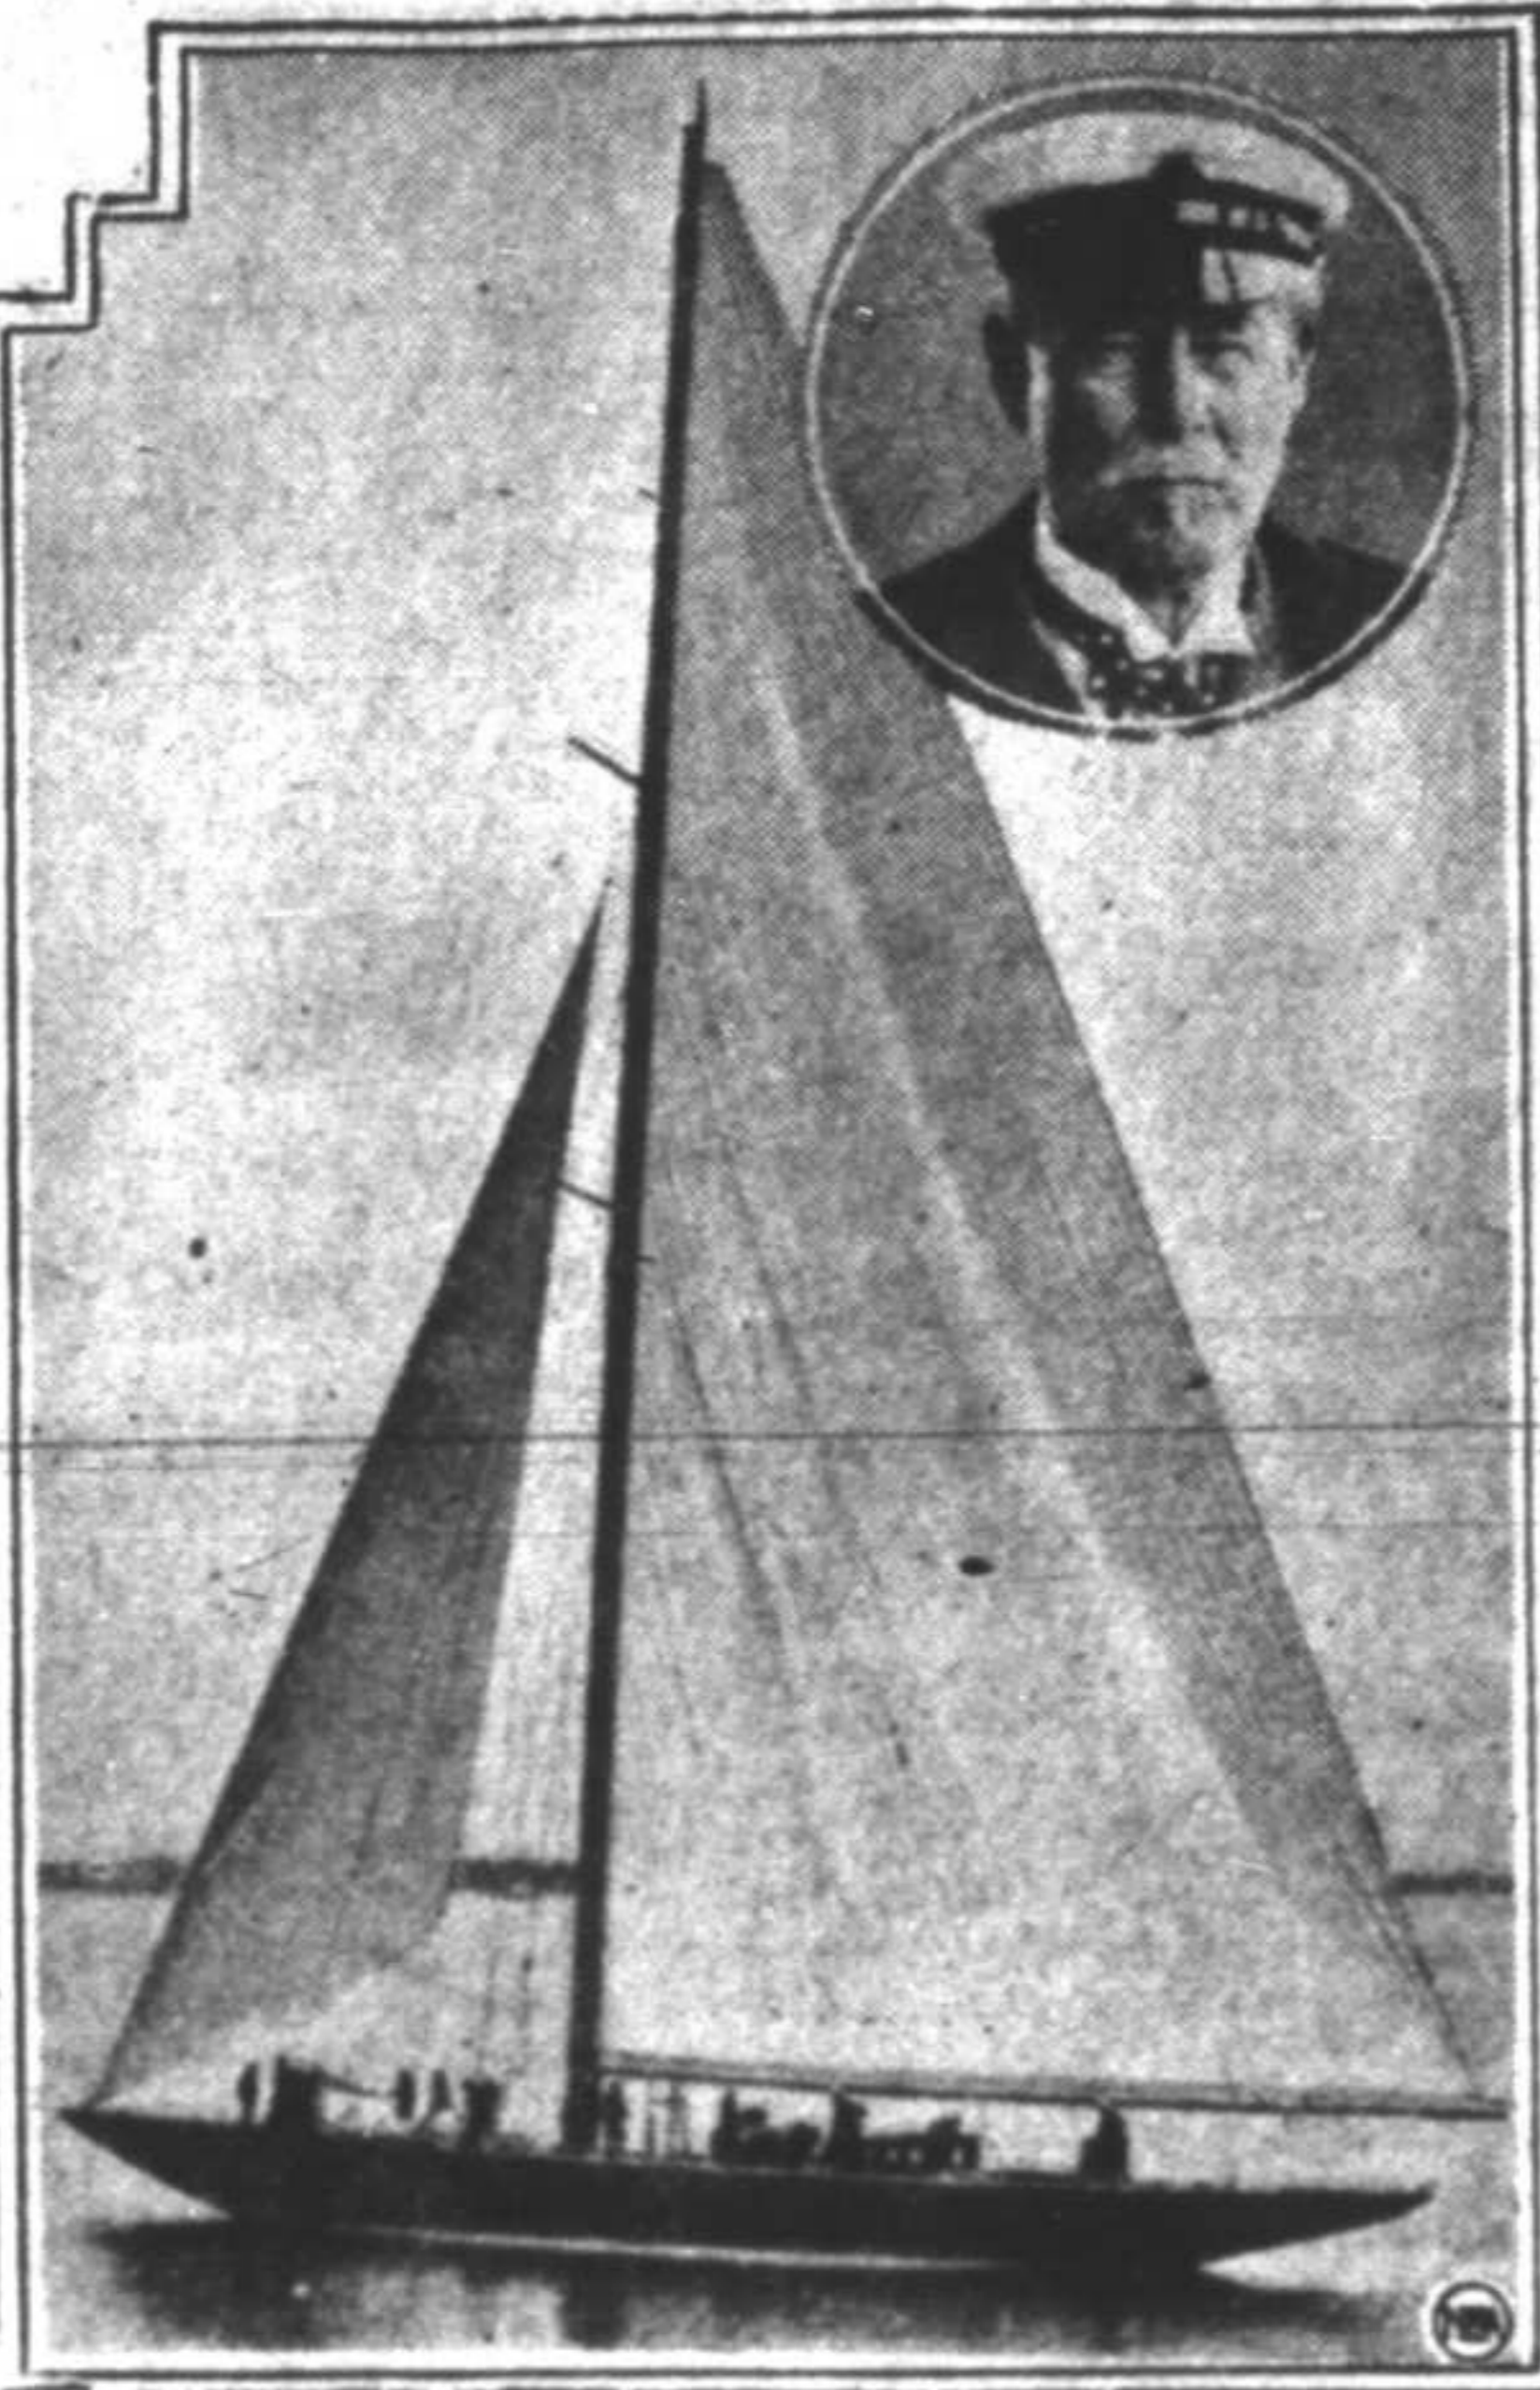

Argotane is the only medicine I have ever taken with entire satisfaction," was the statement made a few days ago by J. P. Nash of 3418 Twenty-fifth street Lubbock, Texas, in telling his wonderful recovery by the use of this medicine. Mr. Nash is one of the best known farmers in this section.

"I have been in poor health for about two years, troubled with indigestion, constipation and a general run down condition," he continued. "I had a poor appetite and what I did eat caused so much gas to form that I would bloat up something awful. Sometimes I was so miserable at night, that I could get only a few hours of restless, broken sleep. I was in an awful run down condition and felt weak and worn out all day long."

"I began to read about Argotane in the papers and when a personal friend of mine recommended it so highly I knew right then that there was something to it, and I got a bottle at once. I certainly was not disappointed for after the very first dose I started to feel better and now that I have taken it about three weeks all my troubles have left me entirely. My appetite returned and it makes no difference what I eat I digest it without the least trouble. The constipation and bloating troubles have left me, so has the indigestion. My stomach is in a splendid condition and all my ailments have disappeared. I sleep all night long and when morning comes I am feeling rested and refreshed. I consider Argotane a wonderful, powerful builder and I have never taken anything that has given such remarkable results."

Gus McCleary Leaves Today For Plainview

Former City Manager Plans To Enter Business At Hale County Capital; Has Been Here Five Years

G. W. McCleary, former city manager, whose resignation was effective May 10, is leaving today for Plainview where he expects to enter the merchandising business as distributor for electric refrigerators for that city and territory.

Mr. and Mrs. McCleary hope to be able to secure a suitable home on their visit today and as soon as they can will move to the family to their new home.

"Some of my stock is already there and I expect to be selling before the first of June," Mr. McCleary said yesterday in announcing his plans.

Here Five Years

For the past five years Mr. and Mrs. McCleary have made Lubbock their home, coming here from Hixey Grove. His first business here was as a tire distributor and later he served as city secretary. Late in 1927 Mr. McCleary became city manager and served in that capacity for about two and a half years.

J. Bryan Miller, his successor, pointed out yesterday some of the outstanding achievements of Mr. McCleary's administration as executive head of the city of Lubbock. He said he had watched his work for some time and was convinced that the retiring city head had made a splendid record.

Some of the achievements of the past two years were outlined as follows:

Storm sewer connecting the city with canyon north of the city, to drain a large area.

Plant improved.

Extensions of the city power plant including the addition of a 1,200 h. p. generator and an 840 h. p. generator. This represents a substantial part of the present capacity of the plant, 3200 h. p. as the capacity three years ago was 4,000 h. p.

Street improvements amounting to approximately 30 blocks of paving, most of the blocks being 500 and 600 feet long, including intersections.

Reduction of the key rate of fire insurance from 36 cents for a city of 10,000 to 12 cents for a city of 25,000 in 1927 to 25 cents for a city of 20,000 in 1930. The greater the population, the higher the key rate, Mr. Miller explained.

Construction of the city swimming pool, the city park at a cost of $20,000. The pool is 60 by 150 feet and is a recreation center.

Youth Confesses "Ribbon Slaying"

CHICAGO, May 20. (AP)—Police, quite unexpectedly, stumbled last night upon the man they believe to be the "ribbon slayer" of Mrs. Mildred Heising. William H. Putscher, 19, confessed the crime. He was under arrest for burglary and was questioned by Deputy Police Commissioner Stege. During the questioning Stege accused him of the Heising murder. To Stege's surprise, Putscher began making a detailed statement of how he had slain the 26-year-old bride April 1 in her Oak Park home. Mrs. Heising, the youth said, returned home as he was burglarizing the place. To silence her, he snatched a hair ribbon from a dresser drawer and drew it about her neck. Then he fled.

"Satisfy the customer." This has been the service policy of the Buick Motor Company throughout the twenty-seven years of its history. And so faithfully has Buick followed this policy that today the familiar emblem of Authorized Buick Service means prompt, efficient and courteous maintenance to more than 1,500,000 Buick owners. Buick has twice as many owners as any other company selling cars priced above $1200.

Here are a few of the many important points of Buick's Service Policy. More than 4,000 factory-supervised Service Stations assure all Buick owners the same fine standard of skilled service. A written Warranty, covering the first 4,000 miles or the first 90 days of ownership, whichever shall occur first, guarantees every new Buick car to be free from defects in material or workmanship. Should parts or workmanship prove defective at any time during the Warranty period, Buick dealers will supply the parts and perform the necessary labor free of charge. In addition to careful pre-delivery tests, the Buick owner receives two major inspections without cost—one after 500 miles and another after 1500 miles of driving. These include a thorough road test of all elements of performance. The "Tourist" and "Change of Residence" clauses permit the Buick owner to change his residence as frequently as he desires or to tour any part of the U.S. or Canada and still receive the full Warranty benefits from the nearest authorized Buick dealer. All BUICK dealers fulfill these provisions of BUICK'S service policy. All dedicate themselves to the task of serving promptly, efficiently and courteously.

DOUBT GROWS AT NAVAL OBSERVATORY THAT A NEW PLANET WAS DISCOVERED; IT MAY BE ASTEROID, SAYS SCIENTIST

BY CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 20. — Prof. James Robertson of the U. S. Naval Observatory has been suspicious from the first of the new trans-Neptunian planet—so called.

The initial edge having somewhat worn off from their enthusiasm (over the discovery of whatever it is), astronomical observers are beginning to remember how insistent the professor has been, all along, that before he would accept the thing as a sure-enough planet, its sponsors had to "show him."

The planetary folk are beginning to worry now, to have mistaken an asteroid or a comet for an adult-sized, well-regulated, world, fit for recognition as an additional member in good standing of the solar system to which Earth belongs (if such an error has been made), will be bad for some scientific reputations.

On the other hand, Professor Robertson has a right to smile a scientific smile; he does not say yet that the Flagstaff discovery is not a planet, but he did advise caution in acclaiming it as one, and with every fresh page of figures that he piles up, the more skeptical he becomes.

Astronomers are rather funny. One thinks of them (that is, the layman is apt to) as sitting in their observatories or nights, sweeping the heavens through their telescopes, and basing all their conclusions, relative to what is going on throughout space, on the evidence of eyestraps and calculations. The fact is that the savant who attends to this part of the job simply is an observer, who doubtless knows a lot about the laws of the universe but is decidedly more interested in how they act than in what makes them act that way.

Below stairs, however, is another adept in sidereal lore, whose specialty is calculation of reasons for all that the observer beholds—and often calculates it a generation or so before it happens; indeed, warns the observer in advance what to look for, and when the time comes there it is, maybe long after the man who predicted it is dead.

To hear the observer tell the story, it sounds as if he did all the work, and the other only helped him out with a few figures occasionally.

To hear his colleague, one gathers that the latter is the only genuinely significant part of the task, and the observer merely a lookout to keep him posted as to any unusual stellar manifestations.

Professor Robertson's post is not at the end of a telescope, but at his desk, as director of the almanac office, dealing with the higher mathematics, and when these do not go high enough, inventing more.

For example, he estimated the path of the recent eclipse (on advance of course), and although the unscientific world may not know anything about it, created a first class sensation in scientific circles, by making the most nearly accurate estimate in the whole history of solar eclipses—within 300 feet of an exact bull-eye, or 300 feet closer than he himself had hoped for.

If it had been a sporting record the papers would have issued extra editions.

Before his death, Professor Percival Lowell, it will be recalled, prophesied that, in due course, a new planet would be discovered, beyond Neptune, basing this judgment upon certain irregularities (known as perturbations) on the part of both Neptune and its nearest neighbor (earthwardly) Uranus, in their orbits.

An obvious moving speck (motion being one of the distinguishing characteristics of a planet—but also of asteroids and a comet) having been sighted in the trans-Neptunian region, numerous observers proclaimed the Lowell forecast verified.

As a mathematician, Professor Robertson doubted it.

"This object," he explains, "was not found at the right time nor in the right place to fit Professor Lowell's hypothesis."

Moreover, as other mathematicians have since pointed out, there was room for a sufficient margin or error in the Lowell calculation of Neptunian and Uranian perturbations to offset the entire theory of an additional planet—so that there may not be one, although Professor Robertson continues to believe that there is—as yet undiscovered, however.

Besides, whatever this heavenly traveler may be, its rate of progress is very questionable what it ought to be, to match the planetary supposition; on this point the professor does not speak dogmatically—it will take a long time to determine, he says.

Finally, it seems to be fading out of sight, in a far from planetary fashion—as if it were moving off into space, to disappear forever, quite likely.

CAUSES OF PERSPIRATION FOUND TO BE MANY AND VARIED

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association.

And of Hygiene, the Magazine of the American Medical Association, says seldom gives any thought to the reason for the perspiration. Perspiration may be brought about by work involving muscular exercise or by increasing the temperature of the surroundings or it may be associated with emotion or mental stress.

Schiffelky has been believed for years that the chief purpose of perspiration is to regulate the temperature of the body.

In order to determine whether or not sweat might have some other function, the Chinese investigator, Yas Kuno, in the Manchurian Medical College, has been studying the problem for eight years.

A selected portion of the body with a surface of about 10 inches square was submitted to various impulses and the amount of perspiration discharged every five minutes was measured.

He found that sweat could be caused by raising the temperature of the room, by heating one arm or one leg with a hot air pad, or by other outward application of increased temperature. When a leg is heated, sweat occurs not only on the leg but on the whole body.

The palms of the hands and the soles of the feet do not quite conform to the general rule. They are more profusely supplied with sweat glands than the rest of the body, but they do not sweat an increased amount when the body generally is heated as do other portions of the skin.

It is realized, of course, that at all times some water is secreted by the sweat glands in the form of what is called insensible perspiration. This evaporates, without being seen. The palms of the hands and the soles of the feet do increase in perspiration when heat is applied to any single portion of the body and also associated with pain or emotional stimuli.

When mental arithmetic was used as a stimulus, due to mental stress, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet increased promptly in perspiration. Mental stress also causes prompt perspiration on the forehead, if it is sufficiently severe.

The Chinese investigator is convinced that the perspiration from the palms and soles is five to ten times as much as from other parts of the body and that this goes on constantly for the special purpose of facilitating physical work, as for example the way in which one grips on his hands when he is going to put forth a lift, extra effort with a shovel. The moisture also tends to protect the skin and its main function is the regulation of the temperature of the body.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NATALIE CONVERSE tries to conquer her jealousy over her husband, ALAN. But when he is called to the home of BERNADINE LAMONT, a popular night club hostess, she demands that he rebuff her. He explains that Bernadine is the widow of a war buddy who had saved his life. The actress tells Alan her doctor has given her only a short time to live and asks him to care for her son, BOBBY. He promises and tries to tell Natalie but her rebuffs silence him. He confides in his secretary, PHILLIPS WEST, who has been waiting for this opportunity.

When Natalie comes to the office, Phillips tells her about helping Alan pick out toys for Bobby and shows a letter from Bernadine. Natalie leaves in a rage and Alan follows; but her accusations drive him back to the office. He finds Phillips there and takes her out for a pleasant walk. The next morning, however, she tells Alan and Natalie. This makes Phillips furious and she changes an order of Alan's for orchids. Natalie goes to a bridge party and has her old anger aroused on hearing another woman boast that Alan has sent her orchids. She accuses him and refuses to believe his denial. Angered, Alan takes Phillips out again and wonders if he could love the girl when she coyly refuses his kisses.

On returning home he finds Natalie packing up and she tells him she is leaving. They quarrel bitterly and wounded pride prevents either one from seeking a reconciliation. After she leaves the house, she seems desolate to Alan and he seeks consolation with Phillips. She flaunts her victory to the office force, but conceals the fact that at times he is entirely indifferent to her. Meanwhile, Natalie regrets her hasty action. She hasn't told her family and when her young sister asks to go back to New York with her, promises to take her. But she does not write to Alan, hoping that he will beg her to return. Her silence, however, secretly stings him on in his affair with Phillips.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI

When Alan went to Phillips and asked her if she would go to dinner and theater with him, she did not let the little incident of the day before, that had troubled him, interfere with her acceptance.

It was not that she failed to recall it—how she went into his office, and found him sitting with his head bowed on his arms, and how she followed a sudden impulse to comfort him.

She was certain that for a moment Alan had been on the verge of taking her in his arms. Then he seemed to heed some inner admonition that prompted him to draw back. For he suddenly became abrupt with her, almost rude.

Phillips smarted under his treatment, but she was smart enough to wait until the hour was hers before attempting to make him pay for it.

She remembered very clearly, as she told him in a quiet voice, that she would be glad to go, that she owed him something for the day before. But, of course, if he remembered—she smiled faintly up at him—that would wipe out all debts.

To give him a fair chance she was as pleasant as she knew how to be when they met again. Alan had waited outside her home in a taxi-cab. She did not keep him waiting long.

They had an excellent dinner and were fortunate enough to get good seats for a Broadway hit. But they danced on an over-crowded floor in a second-rate supper club, and Alan didn't like it. Particularly the people at the table next to theirs. One of the men there was too frankly interested in Phillips.

"We better dress next time and go to a decent place," he remarked.

"Yes, Alan," she said, "how do you know when you live up in Hillshire, unless you want to do a lot of commuting?"

"A lot of commuting," Alan repeated, and they both laughed.

"Think this is going to happen often?" Alan asked.

Phillips merely smiled.

"Well, if it does, we've got to dress," Alan declared.

"What was the matter with The Rosebank?"

"It's all right, but I think I'd like to see you doled up, Phillips."

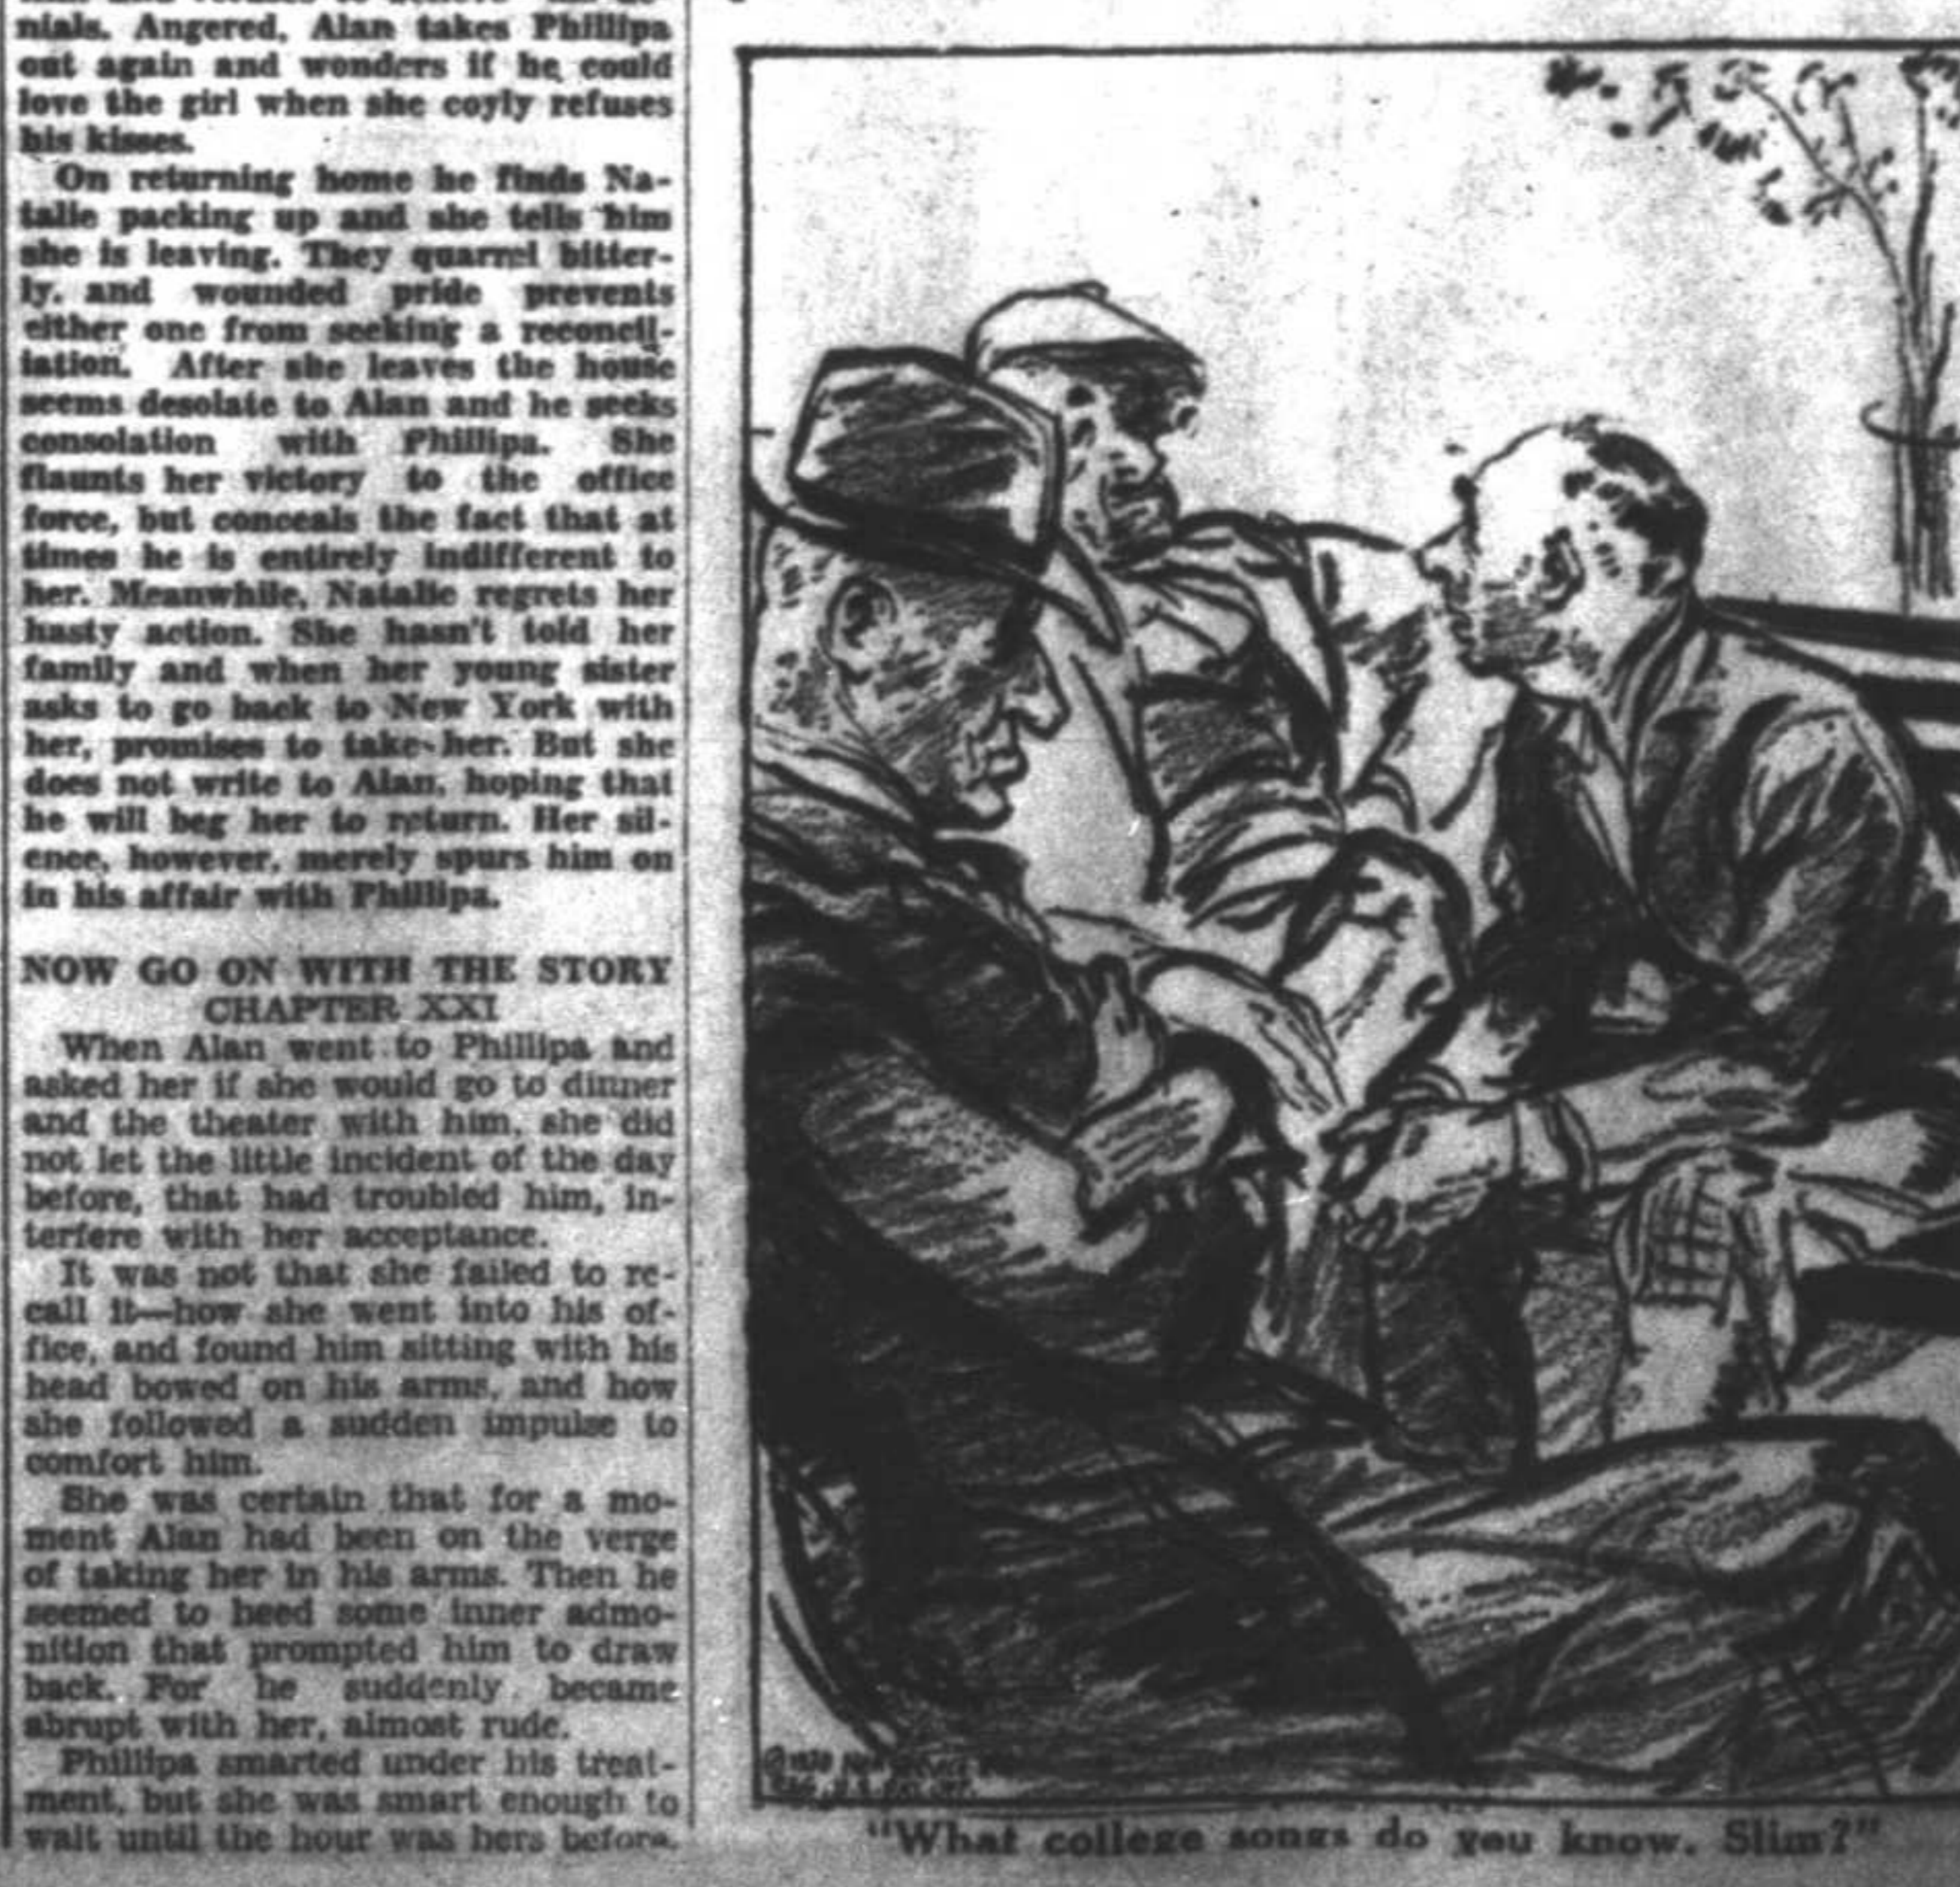

Phillips was not entirely pleased with his remark—he might be finding fault with her appearance—but she saw mana in it that she could gather.

"I could never afford it," she said firmly. "Why, Alan, don't you know that an evening gown won't stand more than two or three parties in some of these clubs? At least, that's what I've heard. Some of them pass out at the first wearing, they say."

"I'll take care of that," Alan said quickly. "Don't make a fuss about your dress, Phillips."

Alan, as he saw opposition giving in her countenance. "You're giving your time to me—it's only right that I should do something for you. It would be different if I... I weren't married. As it is, this can't mean a thing to you but a good deed. I'd be a fine guy, wouldn't I, to let it be an expense to you?"

Phillips looked at him as though she were carefully weighing his words. In reality she wanted very much to laugh. So it couldn't mean a thing to her? Apparently he hadn't got very far in picturing the future.

"But would you want to go up to Hillshire and return every time we go out?" she asked, and thereby killed two birds with one stone. She would accept a wardrobe, and find out if they would spend many evenings together.

"No, I wouldn't," Alan admitted. "I was thinking I'd close the house and come down to a hotel."

Phillips beamed. "Really that would be a lot more sensible for you," she agreed. "A home is no place for a man alone. Funny, isn't it?"

"What's funny?"

Phillips shrugged. "Why, the way things work out," she explained. "Some of us who would love a home of our own too much ever to think of leaving it, have to go without, while someone else..." she broke off suddenly, then added breathlessly: "I don't understand?"

"Neither do I," Alan replied, and thought, as she had meant him to, a little harder of Natalie.

At home that night his bitterness grew. What was wrong with him? What was wrong with home he provided? He glanced about the living room, where he went to look over the day's mail, and found no fault with it, as a setting for a woman even as exquisite as Natalie.

"Maybe she thinks she ought to be in a palace," he said to himself, but he knew he was unjust in that. Being half right and half wrong irritated him. Natalie had always been ambitious for him. She wanted success, but she had not been greedy or unreasonable in the matter of material possessions. Alan was deliberately trying to remember only derogatory things about her. It helped him to think softer thoughts of Phillips.

And his soft thoughts grew softer as more days went by and still Natalie did not write to him. What was he going to do with his life anyway? he asked himself night after night, while lying awake and pondering the wreck of his marriage.

With his window shades up with the windows for fresh air, his room was lighted from that of a waif's guest in another wing of the hotel. The light disturbed Alan; made him think, with deeper regret, of his pleasant room at home in Hillshire. It had given him a pang and sharp to look up the house as let Frances and Hannah go.

"No getting around it," he said to himself; "it's a tragedy, breaking up a home."

But the house remained. It stood there in its setting of snow-covered shrubbery, silent and waiting. He clung to the idea of returning to it. After all, hotel life was not to be liking. A man had a right to surround himself with the things he wanted; quiet, restfulness, comfort. He made a wry face in the dark. His home had not always been quiet and restful. But then Natalie had changed it all, Phillips was different. She had been out in the world, a business. She knew enough of life to be reasonable about it. She wouldn't narrow down to the point that one life ever could, or should be completely submerged in another. Natalie wanted too much of him; that was the trouble.

Phillips was different. He kept going back to that. And why couldn't he care as much for him—in things as he had for Natalie?

He did not realize that he thought

THE NEW OIL PLAY
SOMETHING like 120 miles Southwest of Lubbock there are big things going on. Lea county, New Mexico, with the bustling boom city of Hobbs as an axis, has "blown the top off the derrick" as the magic word of "Oil" has sent the countryside agog.

Hundreds of fortune seekers, laborers, drillers, contractors, business men and what-not are trooping into the newly found "pay" territory and as only the oil country can do it, is being builded a city.

Here in Lubbock we already hear rumbles of the boom which is glutting the here-to-fore lonesome acres of Lea county. And as the next few weeks roll around, we're going to hear a lot more about it.

Lubbock, undisputed capital of a great empire, stands as a potent headquarters of the Hobbs oil field. True, there is no rail connection between this city and Lea county but there are good highway connections, regularly operated bus lines and two branch-line railways stretching more than half way from Lubbock to the new Mecca. The opportunity to tie Hobbs to Lubbock is beckoning and the outcome is largely up to us.

Midland, Big Spring and Odessa, rivals for the prize of being the Hub of Hobbs, watch warily toward Lubbock. They know, as we know, that the lawless and the business are practically ours for the asking and the serving. Somewhere there must be a base—headquarters for families, for offices and for source of supplies, and Lubbock may as well be that base.

In order to procure the position and the accompanying business, Lubbock people must accomplish a few little tasks, and accomplish them willingly. They must visit with Hobbs, co-operate with Hobbs, be sympathetic with Hobbs and all people. They must make up their minds to give, as well as to take and the business and friendship will follow, naturally.

From present indications, the Hobbs boom, which has been lumbering for two years, is going to be a "winning-ding." From it will flow streams of all sorts including extra population, which Lubbock cannot afford to pass up at this, or any other time.

It will behoove this city, and the business and civic interests of it, to plan now to co-operate with Hobbs and Lea county for the benefit of us all.

LAUGH

Somebody had just discovered that we do not laugh at what pleases us but rather in defiance of what displeases us. There is, apparently, a standing alternative between annoyance and amusement over life's ironical accidents, and he who lives best is he who laughs best for relief from the tears and tension of his own trials. It is a child's privilege to laugh because he is tickled, but the adult must learn to laugh in the face of misfortune, handicap and even pain or he becomes the unhappy slave of his own circumstances.

Such laughter, it seems, has a definite therapeutic value. It has long been said that one may laugh and grow fat, but it more important to the modern man that he learn to laugh his way out of nervous prostration. Miss Mary F. Ferguson, supervisor of social service at Johns Hopkins University advocates laughter as an antidote for all sorts of neuroses and even for social disorders. They are commonly the consequence of strain and tension, overwrought brains and nerves, and kindly laughter scatters them and takes away their sting and danger. There is no particular mystery to this process of finding humor in the most discouraging situation. It is a matter of "family-business" and a sense of proportion which does not take self too seriously. He who laughs has also learned how quickly distresses are forgotten or turned marvelously to ultimate good. But unless a man will laugh at trouble and discouragement and pain, he is in bondage to worry and fear, which do more damage to the world than any of its evils and have never yet yielded a dividend in happiness.

Granting this healing power of laughter, it is amazing that its cure is so grudgingly practiced. These are not cheerful times, nor do we do much to make them so. The world is becoming almost stupidly serious, intent on everything but the free joy of living. Men and women are weary with meaningless burdens; their weariness is written in the faces of the crowded streets and stamped on most of those who set the pace of modern and achievement. We have nearly forgotten that happiness is good and that unless it is found at the side of the road, it will not be waiting at its end. We amuse ourselves, indeed, but laughter of the times is not wholesome laughter; there is little heart in it and less kindness.

It would pay us well to forego some of the glided prizes of success and recover the habit of honest merriment. Experience and science are agreed at last that it would go good for both our bodies and spirits to do so.

The woman who conceals her age, says Dr. Eugene Lyman Plate, is a public benefactor. The woman who conceals her age is also a woman.

the past tense when he thought his love for Natalie. It would have been a shock to him to say: "I don't love her any more." But every consideration he gave the future was dictated upon the fact that he was falling in love with Phillipa. And she was not a "two woman" man. He began to visualize his secretary in his home. There was no thrill in creating the mental picture; neither was it displeasing to him. Well, perhaps... Usually he gave it up, with an offhand attitude of some comforting nature, such as "Love isn't necessary in a happy marriage anyway; it's to be based on something other than... like respect and... tolerance."

And certainly he respected Phillipa. She was clever. Alan had been so proud about her she managed to get along with an air of honesty that a little suspected was only a facade. She took clothes from him, and Alan believed it was because she had to have them to go out with him, and that she accepted his invitations only out of the kindness of her heart. Simply to cheer a man over a rough era. She was a great girl.

One day he woke up to the fact that he was serious concerning her. He had stopped writing to Natalie. He had short notes that hurt her almost as much as complete silence would have done. He was with Phillipa most of the time, and always telling himself that she would make a wonderful wife.

She knew what was going on in his mind. He was constantly referring to marriage, moralizing on it and revealing his belief in every-thing's right happiness. It was plain to her that he was seeking to convince himself that they could be happy together. The amount of love he had for her scarcely concerned Phillipa. She was interested primarily in helping him decide to take a chance on marriage first and love afterward. She had a plan ready. And she felt the time was now ripe to put it into effect.

Bombay Observes Stoppage of Work

BOMBAY, May 20. (AP)—A partial halt, or stoppage of work, was observed here today in protest at arrest of nationalist volunteers who raided the salt depots at Wadala Dharsana.

More than 50,000 people participated in a funeral procession for a nationalist volunteer killed yesterday while leaning from a fast-moving electric train.

Dispatches from Karachi said that a British police superintendent and eight Indian constables had been injured by a bomb explosion in the Bazaars at Multan, Punjab. Forty arrests were made.

The police were dispersing a mob when the bomb was thrown in their midst and exploded. The crowd had gathered while the goods of a shopkeeper were being seized for non-payment of the local water tax.

Embalmers will sponsor lectures and demonstrations, and on Friday will conduct examinations for embalmers' licenses.

Annul Marriage Of Young Heiress

NEW YORK, May 20. (AP)—The New York American says that Dolores Elizabeth Ford, 24-year-old heiress, who married a wealthy debutante two years ago, has obtained an annulment and has married Louis Matthews, an unemployed plumber of Richmond, Va.

The marriage, said the American, was in defiance of her father, William Ford, Toledo, O., glass manufacturer but had the approval of her mother, Edith, who is two years her junior, is her fourth husband.

The annulment of her marriage to the mollato, Eugene Newton, was granted by Supreme Court Justice Byrd at Buffalo on May 7 last. She contended she was in a daze at the time of her marriage and knew nothing of it until Newton telephoned her two days later. Within 24 hours after the decree became effective she married Matthews at Hudson Falls, N. Y.

Her first marriage at the age of 18 to George E. Kherbel in Covington, Ky., was quickly annulled. Her second husband was Scott Aldin, Cincinnati stage manager. They were married in 1925 and divorced in Reno two years later.
