STEWART HITS SENATE BOOKS

Oil Man's Counsel Attack Accuracy of Record

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Counsel for Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, hammered today against the accuracy of the printed record of the senate public lands committee hearings last February, when the oil man gave testimony about the Continental Trading company upon which the perjury charge he is now facing was based.

In his questioning of three government witnesses, including Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Stewart, contended that scores of discrepancies existed between what actually was said and what appeared in the record.

When questioned by Leo A. Rover, district attorney, the Montana senator testified that Stewart had told the committee he knew nothing about the distribution of bonds by the Continental company. Rover sought to bring up testimony subsequently given by the oil man to the committee that he had turned over $759,000 of the bonds to a trustee, but this was passed temporarily after Hogan had presented a prepared objection to Justice Jennings Bailey.

On cross-examination, Defense counsel questioned Walsh closely while reading at length exchanges between the committee members and Stewart on Feb. 2 and 3. The senator acquiesced to several contentions by Hogan that certain questions and answers had been erroneously reported.

COUNTY ORDERS ESTIMATES ON SCOTT BRIDGE

Engineer Instructed To Prepare Report For New Structure

PROJECT ASSURED

Property Owners Ready To Help Pay Cost, Harrell Told

The county commissioners court began Tuesday its preparation for the construction of a Scott avenue bridge across the Wichita river.

Tacit recognition of the fact that a bridge soon must span the stream at the north end of the avenue was given Tuesday when the county body instructed J. M. Isbell, the county engineer, to take depth soundings of the river and to obtain other information which must be ascertained before the actual order can be issued authorizing the bridge.

Estimates Called

Mr. Isbell likewise was authorized to supply the commission with estimates of the cost of the proposed structure.

The instructions to the county engineer followed close upon a meeting of last week, when a petition bearing more than 500 signatures was submitted to the court, urging that provision be made for the bridge.

The proposition, as tentatively submitted to the commission then was that property owners interested in the project would be willing to bear half the cost of the project. The instructions to Mr. Isbell, it was explained, are in anticipation of such willingness.

Canvass Election

Most of the remainder of Tuesday's weekly commission meeting was devoted to routine business.

A special meeting of the body was ordered for Thursday at 1:30 p. m., when returns from the general election of Nov. 6 will be canvassed.

COMMITTEES REPORT FUND PRACTICALLY RAISED

Success of the three-way bridge project across the Wichita river leading southward to Indiana, Scott and Lamar avenues was practically assured by reports given at a meeting of the bridge committee in the offices of J. T. Harrell, chairman, Tuesday morning.

Construction of the bridge was approved by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce recently when the project was presented with the stipulation that the landowners on the streets would subscribe $35,000 of the $75,000 necessary to build the bridge. The remainder is expected to be appropriated by the commissioners court.

Foiled Avenger Of Obregon Assassination Suicides

Nephew of Slain President Kept From Shooting Toral in Jail by Guards; Kills Self at Home

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13. (AP)—Foiled in an attempt to kill Jose de Leon Toral, in revenge for the assassination of his uncle, Captain Jesus Obregon, tonight returned to his home here and committed suicide. He had been disarmed when he drew a pistol at the door of the cell in which the convicted slayer of General Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico, is confined.

By GEORGE A. SCHREINER

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13. (US)—Except for the presence of mind and action in the nick of time on the part of his jailers, Jose de Leon Toral, confessed slayer of President-Elect Alvaro Obregon, who is awaiting the result of his appeal from a sentence of death, would be a dead man by now.

In a manner as yet unexplained, Capt. Jesus Obregon, nephew of the murdered president-elect, gained access to Toral's cell today, and was about to open fire on the inmate when the head warden, Roberto Romay, and a keeper, Roberto Rascon, happened to pass the cell. They immediately threw themselves upon the would-be avenger of his uncle's death, and thus averted the little shooting fray.

Fear on the part of the authorities that something of this sort would happen has prompted them to take all possible precautions, so that Toral has been held virtually incommunicado, only his counsel has been admitted to see him.

How Captain Obregon gained admission to the doomed man's cell under the circumstances was a mystery which remained unsolved tonight.

Toral's case is before the superior district court on appeal, and if the appeal is refused here it will be taken to the Mexican supreme court. A petition for executive clemency would be the third and last resort in the effort of defense counsel to gain a commutation of the death sentence imposed last Thursday as a result of the jury's verdict at San Angel.

Captain Obregon's act, it is thought here, was inspired by a fear that Toral might yet cheat the firing squad. Rumors to that effect have been gaining credence here for several days.

Scores Endangered As Maniac Gains Control of Houston Railroad Switches

HOUSTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Trains were running on schedule over the maze of Houston tracks tonight after railway service had been disrupted for a time today by a mad pseudo towerman.

Scores of lives and thousands of dollars worth of railway property probably were saved because the lunatic took fiendish glee in changing the signals so fast that the trainmen knew something was wrong and brought all traffic to a halt.

Climbing a steel ladder leading to a signal tower at the intersection of two trunk line tracks the maniac flourished a pistol in the face of L. R. Cotton, towerman, and made Cotton turn over the switch controlling the signals to him.

From that moment the signals changed so rapidly that the crews of the drowsy switch engines and the bustling passenger trains grew dizzy watching them and locomotives piled up behind each other on the tracks.

Cotton escaped the madman's clutches and rushed to the nearest police station, returning to the tower with two policemen.

ROBY SLAYER'S DEATH STAYED

Bill Smith's Execution Delayed by Moody

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Bill Smith, who was scheduled to die in the electric chair at Huntsville Wednesday for the murder of Sheriff Bob Smith of Fisher county, was granted a three months stay of execution late today by Governor Moody. The new execution date was fixed for Feb. 14.

The governor said that Smith had been examined on several occasions by alienists, who reported him of unsound mind at the time of examinations but that they did not recommend commutation of the death sentence on grounds that it is the history of such cases that the patients either die, or recover, within several months.

The latest report on Smith came from Dr. L. H. Bush, chief surgeon of the state prison, who said the prisoner's condition had not changed since he was last examined by alienists.

SMITH PLEADS FOR UNITY OF DEMO PARTY

Defeated Aspirant Says Principles As Great Now As Ever

HARMONY APPEAL

Full Support of Hoover Asked of Democrats By 'Warrior'

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith told the country over the radio tonight that the principles of the Democratic party were as great in defeat as they would have been in victory, and that it was the party's duty "to carry on and vindicate" the principles for which it had fought.

Standing before a microphone in a national broadcasting studio, the defeated Democratic presidential candidate delivered what many had called his political valedictory.

Urges Support of Hoover

His speech, broadcast over a nation-wide hookup of stations, urged united support of Herbert Hoover—although he did not mention by name—asserting that the man selected by the people last Tuesday to lead the country was "not the president of the Republican party, but president of the United States."

It would not do, said Governor Smith, to let bitterness, rancor or indignation over the result "blind us to the outstanding fact that we are Americans."

Keeps Interest

Referring to the thousands of letters he said he had received since the election and since he had announced that he would not again be a candidate for public office, the governor said he had been asked "not to lose interest" in the Democratic party.

He said he did not regard the defeat of his party as interfering with the soundness of the principles for which it stood, and that with all the vigor he could command he would continue not only to stand for those principles, but to "battle for them." He added a pledge of increasing interest in and devotion to them.

Forceful Major Party

"We have the assurance from the election returns," Governor Smith said, "that the Democratic party is a live, a vigorous and a forceful major minority party. Existence of such a party is necessary under our system of government. The people rule negatively as well as affirmatively, and a vigorous and intelligent minority is a necessary check upon the tyranny of the majority. Experience has always shown even in our small political subdivisions that when the minority party is weak and hopeless, grave abuses creep into the structure of government and the administration of its affairs.

"When the majority party believes it has everything its own way, it loses its fear of reprisals at the polls for mismanagement or misconduct of government. A political party is organized to help the country and not merely to achieve victory. It survives not on the basis of reward it secures for its followers but on the strength

Lifeboats Adrift After Vestris Sinks Found By Searchers

THREE BOATS SINK

Big Loss of Life Blamed On Failure of Emergency Craft

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Lamport and Holt line, owners of the steamer Vestris, tonight issued an official statement announcing 206 persons had been rescued and 122 still were unaccounted for.

The company said the passenger list numbered 129, and the crew 199, making a grand total of 328 persons who were on board the vessel.

ABOARD THE S. S. BERLIN, Nov. 13. (Via Radio)—The S. S. Vestris sank suddenly while the passengers were attempting to get into life boats, according to Henry Schultz, a third class passenger who was picked up with 21 other men by the crew of this ship.

The ship sank within 60 seconds after starting the final plunge.

As the vessel turned lazily on her side and dropped under the water, passengers who had been unable to climb in the lifeboats, already cast loose, leaped over the sides of the ship. Some of them were picked up by those in the life boats.

Boats Crowded

Three life boats on the port side of the Vestris were crowded with men, women and children when the vessel turned and sank. Occupants of the three boats were lost.

The loss of the port-side boats accounted for the greatest loss of life, survivors said.

The sinking was described by Schultz as follows:

"The Vestris had a little starboard list when she left New York Sunday and rough weather caused more and more list. Monday morning the engines were stopped and at about 8 a. m., women and children were ordered to the upper deck.

"The ship was drifting and the crew started throwing the cargo overboard but it proved useless. We had no coffee and no warm breakfast. There was just bread and cheese in the third class dining room.

Room Sumerged

"By noon the dining room was under water and officers assisted in clearing boats but three crowded boats on the port side sank with the Vestris. The end of the disaster came very quickly while passengers tried to go into boats.

"The ship just laid over on her starboard side and sank within one minute without any explosion.

"I caught on the deck as she sank and, with two negroes, jumped into the water," Schultz continued.

"We managed to swim to boat

Anti-Smith Demos Drink Toast To Herb in 'Aqua Pura'; New Party Denied

Plans for a third party in Texas, attributed to anti-Smith Democrats, were denied by B. D. Sartin in an address Tuesday night at a banquet given in his honor at the Kemp hotel. Mr. Sartin was vice chairman of the state anti-Smith organization in the recent campaign.

The speaker devoted the major portion of his address to the "new threat" from Tammany hall in the person of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

SHIP SURVIVOR GIVES STORY

Two-Thirds of Crew And Passengers Saved

No. 13 which swung away from the Vestris unoccupied. The big loss of life was due to the sinking of the three port side boats with the ship.

"We picked up 19 other men in our boat. The men were swimming in the water, having been forced to jump for their lives as we did. We saw no women swimming.

Searchlights Seen

"Every passenger had put on a life preserver at 9 a. m., Monday. Weather conditions were very favorable at that time but later wind and rain set in and during the night the occupants of our boats were kept busy trying to keep the boat free of water.

"We saw rescue ship searchlights and showed red lights but were not seen by any ship until dawn Tuesday. Then the American Shipper, the Myriam, the Berlin and the U. S. S. Wyoming were on the scene."

Schultz and the other men rescued by the S. S. Berlin were exhausted but resting tonight. They had saved nothing from their belongings on the Vestris.

We will arrive in New York Wednesday morning.

CAPTAIN MISSING

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Officials of the Lamport and Holt line, owners of the steamer Vestris, said tonight that they were without news of the fate of Captain William Carey, master, and Noel Laughlin, wireless operator, of the ship.

TWO-THIRDS OF CASTAWAYS SAVED

(By The Associated Press)

More than 200 of the 339 passengers and crew of the steamer Vestris who abandoned their sinking ship off the Virginia capes the day before yesterday were safe today, but for the rest, some of whom could be seen floating dead upon the stormy waters, there was almost no hope.

As darkness of the second night since the castaways took to lifeboats and a makeshift raft settled over the gray waters Vice Admiral Taylor of the battleship Wyoming reported by wireless that it was not thought possible any more of the unaccounted for were living.

Near 120 Dead

If the admiral's belief proves to have been well founded, the death list will be in the neighborhood of 120.

The American Shipper, first to reach the scene, reported rescue of 123 persons, 33 of them passengers. When the list of rescued passengers was received by wireless, however, three were 38 names and it was not clear whether this altered the total or was balanced by a similar change in the crew.

The liner Berlin rescued 23 persons and started for New York where it was expected to arrive about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Tanker Saves 63

The tanker Myriam saved 63 persons and the battleship Wyoming picked up eight. There was one report that a dead man had been found by the Wyoming but direct messages from the battleship made no mention of this.

The complete story of the hardships which the rescued must have endured before they were saved cannot yet be told, for the air and all available radio facilities have been needed in the work of life saving, but a few bits have come through to indicate the sort of thing that must have been general.

One man pulled from a beam to which he was clinging for his life told of floating past a raft on which a woman—and she must have been drenched for the waves were running high—sat with two children. Search was begun for them, but no report of their being found came in. A message to The Associated Press from Capt. Von Thalen of the Berlin, told how Cal Schmidt, a third-class passenger, from Chicago, was saved after 22 hours in the water, sustained only by a lifebelt in the tossing waves.

WARSHIP TOLD TO CONTINUE SEARCH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The navy department tonight ordered the battleship Wyoming to remain in the vicinity of the disaster of the steamship Vestris and to continue the search for survivors and bodies.

The order was issued following a message from Vice Admiral Taylor on board the Wyoming, which said that reports from vessels in the vicinity "indicate a total of 210 survivors rescued."

Although the admiral's message recommended the abandonment of the search because of the rough sea, the high wind and the coming of darkness, the navy department decided that the battleship was more capable of conducting rescue efforts in the rough sea than lighter craft.

Hard Wind Blowing

Admiral Taylor wirelessed that the use of navy destroyers was "not recommended," because of the "rough sea and wind about 45 miles per hour." He added that "as all lifeboats are accounted for consider search beyond nightfall today useless," apparently referring to a previous message in which he said eight boats and one raft had been launched from the Vestris.

His report also said the coast guard destroyer Manning and four other coast guard destroyers were in the vicinity searching for victims. The coast guard previously had announced that it had a fleet of nine vessels either at or near by the scene of the disaster.

He relayed a statement of the chief officer of the American Shipper, one of the rescue craft, that eight boats and one makeshift raft left the Vestris.

One Boat Capsized

One boat capsized and some of her people were picked up on the Wyoming and other ships, the admiral said.

His radio message was as follows:

"Chief officer of the Vestris on American Shipper stated that eight boats and one makeshift raft left Vestris. One boat capsized and some of her people picked up on this and other ships. Other boats picked up by ships arriving prior to Wyoming. Raft evidently broken up due to heavy seas. Boat capsized about six p. m. yesterday and people had been afloat since then. Number of dead sighted. Not thought possible any living and will discontinue search this evening and return to Norfolk."

DIRIGIBLE NOT TO BE EMPLOYED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The navy department late today cancelled its order issued earlier in the day that the dirigible Los Angeles stand by at its Lakehurst, N. J., station in readiness for a flight to aid in the rescue of the passengers and crew of the wrecked steamer Vestris.

The cancellation of the order was made following a recommendation in a radio message by Vice Admiral Taylor on board the battleship Wyoming which was at the scene of the wreck that there was no necessity for the dirigible's flight.

WOMEN SAVED FROM WATERS

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 13. (AP)—A radiogram from the battleship Wyoming, picked up here this afternoon, said that five women passengers of the ill-fated Vestris were found floating in life preservers.

The message follows:

"We picked up five women passengers floating in life preservers and three men of crew in same manner, but one was holding on to hatch cover. The American Shipper, the Myriam and the Berlin picked up five, two and one boat loads, respectively, so all life boats which put away safely are accounted for with one raft still in doubt."

FEARS HELD FOR 131 SURVIVORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (UP)—The sea that claimed the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris has taken with the ship a quota of human life which tonight, it was feared, might run over 100.

All Monday night and Tuesday a dozen rescue ships patrolled the scene where the liner foundered. By nightfall tonight they had taken from the flimsy life boats and rafts and from the water 208 of the 339 persons who on Saturday left New York as passengers and crew of the steamship.

But 131 others remained unaccounted for and as the darkness of Tuesday night spread over the still tossing sea, hope of saving those still unaccounted for could be based on little more than faith that a miracle might be performed.

Dead Are Sighted

The rescue fleet which during the morning sent hope ashore as one message after another told of lives saved, could report but little during the afternoon and as night was dropping came the grim word from the U. S. S. Wyoming:

"Number of dead sighted."

Those few words brought tragic pictures to mind of bodies floating on ugly seas, amid wreckage of lifeboats and rafts and of the Vestris.

With that final scene the night was drawn once more about the spot some 250 miles off the Virginia coast where the liner ended its final trip.

Already the Hamburg-American liner Berlin with 23 of the survivors aboard and the American merchant liner American Shipper with 37 surviving passengers and 87 survivors from the crew, had reported they were proceeding towards New York where both will arrive Wednesday morning. The French tanker Myriam, carrying Capt. W. J. Carey of the Vestris and 52 passengers and crew, also was reported to have gone on its way, its work of mercy done.

There remained, keeping grim watch over the seas, their signal lights flashing and their searchlights reaching out like great fingers over the water, the battleship Wyoming and the rugged destroyers Manning, Mascoutin, Modoc, Davis and Tucker.

The Japanese steamship Ohio Maru, the Grace liner Santa Barbara, the steamship San Juan and the freighter Newton all spent most of the day in the vicinity but as far as could be learned tonight had finally given up the search and gone on their way, leaving to the ships of the navy the task of searching until the last hope is gone.

It was after dark Monday night when the first of the rescue fleet came up to the position which Captain Carey and Mike O'Laughlin, his Irish radio operator, had given not long before the Vestris was abandoned.

The steamship San Juan was the first to arrive. Then came the others—the Santa Barbara, the Ohio Maru, the American Shipper, the destroyer Davis, the tanker Myriam, the liner Berlin and finally the great hulk of the battleship Wyoming.

Lookouts Posted

Lookouts were perched high in the rigging, and anxious officers paced their bridges, straining for the cry from the lookouts that would tell of a life boat being sighted.

The searchlights swept far and wide over the waters.

There was the blinking of signal lights, now and then the sharp, warning note of a whistle, and always the snarl of the breaking waters beating the bows of the searching ships.

But midnight passed and all the word the radio brought was the news that first one ship and then another had arrived and found nothing.

Then at 2:25 a. m., Tuesday a lookout aboard the American Shipper saw far on the horizon the fiery arch of a rocket shooting across the skies and the flame of a signal flare.

First Rescues Made

The Shipper flashed by signal and by radio the word that a flare had been sighted to the other ships of the fleet and plowed ahead. Long before daylight it had drawn the first and then a second lifeboat alongside and lifted over the rail the first of the Vestris survivors to be rescued.

As dawn broke, with the grey but welcome light of day in the place of inky darkness pierced only by the long beams of signals and of searchlights, the rescue was well under way.

Captain Carey and 52 passengers and crew were pulled aboard the tanker Myriam.

The Berlin picked up a lifeboat with 23 passengers and crew safe with it.

The steamship Sunecow passed some 50 miles away.

"Do you need help?" it asked by radio.

"Come on," was the answer which flashed back from the tanker Myriam. "More boats to pick up."

The great, grey Wyoming nosed her way through the troubled waters. One by one during the morning this fighting ship picked eight men and women from the sea—men and women who had been floating for hours sustained only by their fragile life belts.

100-Mile Patrol

All day long the rescue fleet patrolled back and forth over a radius of 100 miles from the last position given by the Vestris. They found wreckage; they found floating life belts—empty; one ship reported finding an overturned lifeboat.

But after midday none reported finding human life.

FELT SLEEPY, BUT UNABLE TO SLEEP

Arkansas Man Tells How He Takes Black-Draught for Bloated, Aching Feeling, and Distress After Eating.

WEST HELENA, Ark.—Recently, Mr. W. S. Johnson, of 125 South Third stret, this city, described his long use of Thedford's Black-Draught, saying:

"I am 65 years old. For years and years, possibly 40 years, I have used Black-Draught as a laxative. It was about the only medicine I ever took, when a young man, for biliousness and constipation.

"In after-years, as I grew older, I had to take it when I would get constipated. When I feel bloated, get to aching, feel stupid and sleepy without being able to sleep, I go to taking Black-Draught, and after a few doses I feel much better, I rest better, and the aching is all gone.

"I take Black-Draught for indigestion, pains in the chest after meals. After I feel this trouble coming on, I take a light dose of Black-Draught before I eat, and then what I eat doesn't hurt me. I certainly am a firm believer in Black-Draught."

Only the purest, selected medicinal herbs and roots are used in the manufacture of Black-Draught. It is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

In use for over 87 years.

Sold everywhere; 25 doses 25 cents.

BOY LECTURED

'Think of Your Mother,' Judge Tells Defendant

For the fourth time in two days, Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court here peered from his bench toward a 17-year-old boy who had been convicted on a felony charge, and whose three-year sentence to the penitentiary had been suspended by recommendation of a jury.

"Mother doesn't want you to do wrong," was the judge's kindly admonition. "Think of her when you reach the next fork in your pathway, and you will take the right path."

The boy was S. L. Sutherland. He was the sole support, he explained, of a mother and a sister who is almost an invalid. He knows how to use his fists, he said, and he had a chance to get a prize fight in Fort Worth. But he had no way and no money to get there; so he "picked up" an automobile, his story continued. He was arrested in Fort Worth with the car, and his trial here resulted. He entered a plea of guilty.

The suspension of sentence was not opposed by Dick Kenley.

MEDICS OKEH FREE CLINIC

Tuberculosis Work Given Approval Here

Endorsement of the free tuberculosis clinic advocated by the Wichita County Tuberculosis association was voted by the Wichita County Medical society at its monthly meeting and banquet Tuesday night at the Wichita club.

Approximately 50 persons die in Wichita Falls each year of tuberculosis, it was stated at the meeting, and each of these 50 persons infects nine other persons with the disease. Tuberculosis is curable by early diagnosis and treatment, it was pointed out. A specialist of national reputation will be brought here for the clinic.

50 Attend

The Tuesday night meeting was attended by more than 50 physicians. Dr. J. A. Heyman presented the first paper on two cases in which the main nerve in the forearm had been severed by injury. He explained how these nerves had been reunited by operative measures. The paper was discussed by Dr. Everett Jones and Dr. Q. B. Lee. Dr. Paul K. Conner of Archer City assisted in the lecture with special anatomical drawings to represent the treatment of the cases. His drawings drew considerable comment and praise from attending physicans.

Dr. Tate Miller of Dallas presented a paper on "Amebic Infections," declaring the infection is prevalent in Texas and throughout the nation, causing dysenteries, loss of weight and in some cases death. His outline of treatment consisted of special diet and prolonged use of medicines necessary to establish a real cure. The paper was discussed by Dr. C. W. Stevenson and Dr. O. B. Kiel.

Election of Officers

Dr. W. M. Harper of Dallas gave a discussion on "Immunity" to close the meeting. The lecture was discussed by Dr. W. J. Masters.

The next meeting of the medical society will have the election of officers as its principal business, it was announced.

RAILROAD CALLERS

E. M. Sones, commercial agent of the Southern Steamship lines, and W. G. Bridgewater, of Fort Worth, traveling freight agent of the Gulf Coast lines, and J. F. Funstan of Denison, traveling time checker of the Katy railway, were business callers at the railway offices Tuesday.

Two-Word Defense Fails Youth Here

Jim Stouard's two words of defense proved insufficient Tuesday to win his freedom on an indictment for theft over $50, of which he was charged and found guilty by a jury in the 89th district court Tuesday.

"Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" he was asked when an indictment was read charging him with the theft of a chest of carpenter's tools from a house upon which work was beind done.

"Not guilty," was his reply.

Then three prosecution witnesses were called. The judge delivered his charge. The prosecutors made a brief talk before the jury asking that he be convicted. Stouard, 22, uttered not a word. He did not question prosecution jurors, did not testify himself and did not plead with the jury.

The jurors deliberated four hours before they returned their verdict.

Special Train Leaves Monday

o'clock in the morning without the loss of a single minute of time during the business portion of the day, is also made possible to the entire area by the opening of the new lines.

Wichita's Benefits

Wichita Falls may benefit in a material way by the vast increase in business possible to the city because of direct rail facilities which in the past have been entirely lacking. Estimates on this trade have not been made by chamber of commerce officials who have said it is impossible even to estimate its ultimate possibility.

Passenger train service into the South Plains area on the Denver will connect at Childress with the regular trains number 5 and 6 on the Fort Worth and Denver.

A train leaving Wichita Falls at 11:50 p. m. will arrive in Childress at 3:10 a. m.; leave Childress at 3:20 a. m., pass through Parnell, Tampico, Turkey, Quitaque, Edgin, Johnfarris and South Plains to Sterley Junction in the early hours of the morning to arrive at Sterley at 6:30 a. m. At Sterley the train will split. One section will run to Cereal and Plainview in less than an hour, and the other will run south through Lockney, Granery, Petersburg, Becton and Kitalou to Lubbock in less than two hours. Still a third train will run from Sterley Junction to serve a part of the line extending north through Whitley to Silverton. This Silverton run will take 50 minutes.

Stopover at Plainview

Those who wish to continue westward into Castro and Swisher counties from Plainview will have a three-hour layover at Plainview, according to the present tentative schedule. The run from Plainview through Edmonson and Hart to Dimmitt will take about two and a half hours.

Trains returning to Wichita Falls will leave Plainview at 8 p. m. and Lubbock at 7 p. m. to be consolidated at Sterley Junction at 8:50 p. m. to pass through Childress at midnight to arrive in Wichita Falls at 2:45 a. m.

These schedules both ways allow night sleepers for those who wish them so that the full day's business may be transacted at the major towns at each end of the line without the loss of any of the business hours of the day.

The total distance covered by the Denver and South Plains line is 204.2 miles.

Q. A. P. Extension

The Q. A. P. extension will connect the present line of the Q. A. P. which runs southwest from the Denver road at Quanah through Swearingen, Paducah, Narcisso, Russelville, Matador Junction and Roaring Springs to McBain.

From McBain, the Q. A. P. extension will run 26.6 miles northwest through Dougherty to Floydada. At Floydada the extension will connect with the Panhandle and Santa Fe which runs through Muncay, Locknev and Rider into Plainview.

The effect of this extension is to connect the Santa Fe with the Q. A. P. for a straight run from Plainview to Quanah and then on down the Denver into Wichita Falls.

To Routes Here

An effect of both the Denver and South Plains and the Q. A. P. extension will be to give the area immediately adjacent to Plainview two direct routes into Wichita Falls which is the nearest and most direct wholesale center to those points. In the past there has not been one direct line and it has been necessary to go north through Amarillo or south through Sweetwater and Abilene to make connections with any larger city.

Wichitans on this trip will see all this territory and will have the advantage of studying the territory as they go, for every possible arrangement for their comfort and business en route has been made, according to Denver officials and officials of the chamber of commerce.

That all may enjoy an unbroken night's sleep, the special train here will open its sleepers at 9:30 o'clock Monday night, the practical effect being to start the trip at that time although the train will not start until 3 o'clock Tuesday morning and those making the trip will not have to board it until just before starting time if they wish.

Breakfast at Childress

Tuesday morning breakfast will be had at 6:10 o'clock at Childress. The train will continue up the Denver past Estelline to Estelline Junction where the Denver and South Plains proper takes off from the Fort Worth and Denver. The train will arrive in Silverton for lunch at 1 o'clock and arrive in Plainview at 3:35 Tuesday afternoon. Dinner will be at Plainview and the train will remain there during the evening. At 1 a. m. Wednesday it will leave Plainview to arrive at the extreme west end of the Denver and South Plains line for breakfast. They will leave Dimmitt, pass through Plainview to Lockney, where they will have lunch, and on to the south end of the Denver and South Plains at Lubbock where they will have dinner and spend the evening.

The northward trip from Lubbock to Plainview will be over the Panhandle and Santa Fe, and the train will continue east over the P. & S. F. to Floydada for breakfast.

From Floydada the Wichitans will travel over the new extension of the Q. A. P. through Dougherty to McBain where they will continue toward Wichita Falls on the old part of the Q. A. P. Lunch will be served at Matador and dinner at Quanah. The train will arrive home in Wichita Falls from Quanah on the Denver at 10 o'clock Thursday night.

American Refinery Damaged By Blaze

Flames causing around $3,000 damage broke out in the cracking plant of the American refinery on the Iowa Park road early Tuesday morning.

Several minor explosions occurred during the three hours that firemen battled the blaze. No one was injured by the fire.

LEAGUE ASKS GAME WARDEN

Izaak Walton Members Urge More Protection

Decision to ask the game, fish and oyster commission of Texas for assignment of an additional game warden to this district to patrol the Lake Wichita region was reached by the Wichita Falls chapter of the Izaak Walton league in its regular monthly session Tuesday night at the courthouse.

Ben G. Oneal, president of the local chapter who presided at Tuesday night's meeting, was instructed to forward the request for the added warden at once. Reports of numerous irregularities on the part of hunters and fishermen around Lake Wichita recently have aroused the interest of local sportsmen in behalf of better protection, according to officers of the league here. Easy accessibility of the lake to residents of this city, it was pointed out, makes the conservation of game through adequate protection especially desirable.

The question of setting the opening of dove season at a date later than the present one, on Sept. 1, was postponed for consideration in the next regular meeting on Dec. 4.

About 30 men were present at Tuesday's session. It was announced that the next dinner of the Izaak Walton league will be held Nov. 27.

Smith Pleads For Demo Unity

and the soundness of the principles for which it stands.

Program Necessary

". . . The Democratic party would not be in a position four years from now to solicit the confidence and support of the American people if during that period it neglected to build up a constructive program and relied entirely upon the failure of the opposition party.

"While it is true that every party must adhere to its fundamental principles, obstruction and blockade for the sole purpose of embarrassing the party in power are not calculated to promote the best interests of the country. It would be regarded a constructive achievement if the Democratic party at Washington were to formulate a program adapted and offered to the congress of the nation and their dependents and a refusal on the part of the party in power to accept it, or their inability to bring about party unity for the solution of these problems would then fix responsibility and make a record upon which a successful campaign can be waged four years from now."

Urging united support of the administration of President-elect Hoover, Governor Smith said:

"He is the president of all the people and as such he is entitled to the cooperation of every citizen in the development of a program calculated to promote the welfare and the best interests of this country."

The defeated presidential aspirant closed his address with a reminder of this country's thanksgiving obligation, declaring "upon each recurring anniversary of Thanksgiving, we shall never fail to invoke the aid of the Ruler of the Universe—that we may never lose our faith in the fundamental principles upon which this country was founded, that must have been born of Divine Providence."

SMITH TO REST IN MISSISSIPPI

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith announced tonight that his vacation will be spent in Biloxi, Miss. He will leave New York for Biloxi at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning over the Pennsylvania railroad, accompanied by John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, and his close friends, William F. Kenny and James J. Riordan.

The governor said he did not know how long he was going to stay. "What I want to know," he said, "is how the golf is down there."

George Sides With Coolidge

LONDON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Armistice Day speech of President Coolidge was the background for a sharp debate tonight in the house of commons with Stanley Baldwin, prime minister, and David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, firing the heavy guns.

The discussion was precipitated when the war-time premier moved an official Liberal amendment to the address from the throne. In this amendment the Lloyd George party invited the house of commons to declare that the Anglo-French naval accord endangered the peace of Europe and good relations with the United States.

In defending the government course, Mr. Baldwin candidly described the compromise as "scrapped," but he said that it was "an honest, straight-forward attempt to escape from the deadlock which developed at Geneva and was threatening the cause of disarmament."

In the attack on the Baldwin foreign policy, Lloyd George asked the commons to express official regret that the accord with France had abandoned the principle of limiting small submarines, cruisers and other naval vessels.

BONDS GRANTED TWO

W. A. Freeland and E. P. Vaughn were given hearing and committed to jail on default of $750 bonds granted them Tuesday by J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, on charges of violations of the federal prohibition laws.

Critic Praises Dallas Artist Presented By Musicians' Club

Does a Remarkable Voice Have to Be Camouflaged Behind a Foreign Name?—That's Question for Wichita Falls

By FRIEDA van EMDEN
Written Especially for The Record News

The Musicians' club presented Mrs. Albert Smith in a recital Tuesday night at the Woman's Forum before a small but very appreciative audience.

What is in a name? Does an artist, unless touted by the combination of luck and a clever press-agent, still have to camouflage her good American nationality (and in this case her Texas birth) behind a foreign-sounding name to become famous?

We had the good fortune Tuesday night to hear a woman nature has endowed with a wonderful voice of remarkable range, a true dramatic soprano. Mrs. Smith is a full-throated singer, with an ease of tone-production and an usual ability to sustain a note without tremolo. And there was no searching for a note to be attained, not even in spite of a slight cold, in her high register. Her range is unusual, her low tones were full and resonant as her middle tones. A voice like Mrs. Smith's could fill our auditorium easily and should fill it.

Program Well Selected

The program was unusually well-chosen and showed that she can do the grand opera aria with the same artistry with which she delivers the plainer songs or Lieder. Her "Nacht und Traume" by Schubert (Night and Dreams) was of a haunting beauty. "Primavera d'Or" (Golden Spring Time) by Glazounow-La Forge, and the aria "Peace, Oh Lord" from Verdi's opera, "The Force of Destiny," were done in the grand manner. The Cuban folk song, "En Cuba," she sang with dash and bravoure. If one criticism could be allowed it would only be that like some painters sacrifice drawing to color, Mrs. Smith is apt to sacrifice enunciation to tone. But that is only an afterthought, for while she sings, one is fascinated by her big, true tones.

We hope that Mrs. Albert Smith will notify us if she is going to sing over the radio, so that we can enjoy her again and that those who did not hear her Tuesday night will begin to admire her so she can be brought back to Wichita Falls successfully.

Gives Encore

As an encore after her first group she gave "The Last Rose of Summer" and after her last group we listened to "Annie Laurie" and "Just Smiling," the latter song by John Barnes Wells.

Stanley Raub was her co-artist and was in a happy mood. He gave to Vieuxtemps' "Reverie" a beauty of tone and melodious expression that equalled his more intricate delivery of Sarasate's enchanting "Romanza Andaluza."

Miss Erma Nala Voss accompanied Mrs. Smith and played well, above all the difficult Glazounow-La Forge score. Mrs. J. W. Akin gave an exquisite background to Mr. Raub's playing.

HOLIDAY MAIL DRIVE ON SOON

Postmaster Makes Plans For Christmas Rush

The "Mail your Christmas packages early" campaign will begin in Wichita Falls within the next week, according to O. P. Maricle, postmaster.

The heavy increase in postal receipts which have collected at the postoffice during the last few months indicate that the Christmas rush will be larger this year than it has ever been before, Mr. Maricle said. The receipts have gained considerably in volume in the local post office during the last few years, Mr. Maricle said.

Advertisements and placards urging the people to mail their packages early will be posted next week, Mr. Maricle said.

Postal officials are already trying to secure a building with sufficient room for a post-office annex during the Christmas rush. The annex will be opened in the down-town section within ten or twelve days before Christmas, Mr. Maricle asserted.

Bonds aggregating $2,500 given by Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, while awaiting trial here on charges of burglary and driving while intoxicated, were forfeited by order of Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court here Tuesday.

The forfeiture was a routine action following the expected failure of Shook to appear in court. The accused man participated in a spectacular escape from the county jail several months ago while awaiting trial on six indictments, including one of murder, and no trace of him has since been found.

SCOUT HEADS URGE TRAINING

Patrol Leaders Tell Need Of Larger School

Resolutions originating with the boys and adopted unanimously by them, asking for additional and longer training schools, marked the closing of the two days of intensive training in patrol leadership given to 28 Wichita Falls, Burkburnett and Archer City Boy Scout patrol leaders at Camp Ephraim Griffin, Diversion dam recently. The camp was under the direction of Scout Executives Harry E. James and Frank B. Creighton.

The class work, given at the school, according to Mr. James, was devoted to organization of patrols, duties of patrol leaders, conduct of patrol meetings, the patrol's relationship to the troop, and the development of patrol spirit.

A long hike taken Saturday morning emphasized nature study. Kenneth Erwin, scoutmaster of troop 16, conducted a study of tracking through the use of a number of plaster casts.

The handicraft period was productive of a number of specimens of letter openers shaped from red cedar, linoleum blocks carved by the boys, stamped and tooled leather pieces, and boomerangs prepared under the leadership of Don Ross, scoutmaster of local troop 12.

Saturday night's session was devoted to the demonstration of a model troop meeting, different groups assuming various program duties while the remainder of the company acted as critics. Sunday morning devotional services were conducted by the student leaders.

Notebooks kept by all the students on the two days' course were graded with first place being awarded to Woodrow Williamson, carrying with it a prize not yet announced. Prizes for work produced in the handicraft division will be awarded Saturday as follows: Best three-piece group, $2.50 scout axe; second best three-piece group, $2 hunting knife; third best three-piece group, knapsack; six best individual pieces, each, mess kit.

Wife Says Mate Stole Jewelry

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13. (AP)—Robert Lamar, alias Robert Laruh, who says he is a motion picture actor, was arrested here today on a charge of stealing his wife's jewelry.

His wife told police he stole her before he stook the jewelry.

The complaining witness, formerly Miss Frances Jane Curtis of Covington, Ky., said she was en route to San Francisco from Denver more than a year ago when she met Lamar on a train. He wooed her passionately and although she was engaged to another man whom she was to meet here, she agreed to wed Lamar. They got off the train in Berkeley where the ceremony was performed.

Police said Lamar went to Ogden, Utah, stole a taxicab and went to Los Angeles. He was arrested there with another wife, formerly Miss Anne Peterson of Ogden. It is alleged he has another wife in Texas. The former Miss Curtis went back to Kentucky and what happened to the man she was to have met here is not determined.

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 300 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. Letters must be free of personal abuse or libel, and the editor reserves the right to reject parts or all of letters.

Editor Record News: The election is over and it seems that we should all be satisfied for no amount of "if and ands" can change it. But it seems like some are not satisfied.

I read in The Record News of the 9 inst. a statement of Geo. B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture. He wants to settle the religious question for all time. He said that it was camouflaged this time and he wants to see if we can have religious freedom in this country. I think we have religious freedom here.

Now Mr. Terrell most surely is aware of the fact that the religious question was settled when this country was founded. The constitution of these United States forever settles that question and if a person wants to be a Catholic it is his own privilege, for this country gives to them religious liberty.

Mr. Terrell says that he is for Thomas J. Walsh, a dry Catholic, for president in 1932. We, the citizenship of the United States, will invite Mr. Terrell to run Mr. Walsh or any other man in this nation on the religious issue, whether he be Protestant or Catholic, but we want to show Mr. Terrell how badly he will be defeated. He couldn't carry the votes that Smith carried for he would lose the votes that Governor Smith carried and he would lose 48 states instead of 40, for he would surely lose the Catholic vote that Mr. Smith carried and I don't really believe that the negroes would vote for him. That kind of a referendum would place this country in a position of consolidating church and state which can never be done.

I am a bolter or rather what they call a Hoover democrat. I, like many others, place my convictions above any party whatsoever. Anyhow we must all do all we can to make this a better country in which to live and if there has arisen any differences between any individuals let's lay all differences aside and always seek to elevate to public offices of all kinds those only what are possessed of the very highest ideals and principles. Deep Sea Fisherman and Crew of Eight Drown Trying to Save Scow

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 13. (AP)—A venture to sea, with high northeast winds blowing, in an effort to retrieve a small fishing scow, today cost the lives of Capt. Lee Hartman, veteran deep sea fisherman, and the seven members of the crew off Hog island bar, in Accomac county.

The eight were lost when a heavy sea swamped and sank their motorboat.

Besides Captain Hartman, those drowned were: Engineer Leroy Bundick, Cleveland Bailey, William Taylor, John Watson, Alonzo Sneed, Robert Badger and Edward Hunter. All were residents of Accomac and Northampton counties.

Captain Hartman and his crew set out early this morning to fish six miles off Hog island. On reaching their traps, they found the seas too rough for them. While returning they lost a small scow they had in tow.

Despite advice to the contrary from other fishermen, Captain Hartman went out again in search of the fishing scow. On recrossing Hog island bar, his boat was swamped.

Bolting Senators Have Had 'Punishment Enough'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—Returning Republican leaders indicated today no punitive action would be taken in the senate to discipline Senators Norris of Nebraska and Blaine of Wisconsin who bolted the Hoover-Curtis presidential ticket.

"They have been punished enough already," one of the leaders said.

Norris said he did not care particularly what was done to him.

If Norris should be stripped of his party garb, he would lose the chairmanship of the senate judiciary committee, one of the most important committee chairmanships in congress.

ROAD SUPPLIES DEMAND FAILS

Gilchrist Withdraws All Requisitions

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (INS)—Failure of the board of control to act today on the ultimatum of Gib Gilchrist, state highway engineer, on the purchase of 60 pieces of highway equipment and machinery, amounting to $112,000, has resulted in the withdrawal of requisitions of the highway department. The deal is now off and the machinery will not be purchased, it was learned.

Gilchrist addressed a communication to the board last Friday, giving it until Tuesday to act on the requisitions for the machinery and informing them that unless action was taken by that time the requisitions would be withdrawn.

R. B. Walthall, chairman of the board of control, said today there now was nothing before the board concerning the purchase of machinery.

ASPIRIN

All sorts of headaches usually yield to a Bayer Aspirin tablet. But don't let the acquaintance end there! Aspirin offers the same welcome relief from neuritis and neuralgia, and even rheumatic pains. To break up a cold, or end a toothache; for children, as well as adults, nothing seems quite so effective—and so harmless—as Aspirin. But the box must say Bayer; the name must be on every tablet, too, to be genuine Bayer Aspirin. Remember that! All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Poetry Only Escape of Humanity From Progress, Critic Tells Women

DENTON, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—Poetry is the only means of escape for humanity from disastrous effects of progress, John Cowper Powys, English author and critic, said here today at the formal opening session of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs.

Automobiles, radio, movies and other modern inventions have made human beings like machines and destroyed their individuality, Powys said, explaining that some remedy might be found through religion if the ministers had not joined the ranks of "the enemy." He urged the club women to read poetry daily, declaring that the work of some good poet could be found to suit every mood.

Reform Discussion At P.-T. A. Meet Led By Wichita Woman

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 13 (AP).—Disregarding views as to whether children should be considered in any anticipated program of reform was expressed here at the meeting of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

"Not long ago I heard a high school boy say: 'May weighs 100 pounds and 95 are visible'," Mrs. I. L. Cain, Wichita Falls, chairman of juvenile protection, told the delegates. "That within itself is an indication that something should be done."

Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, the first Southern woman to be elected president of the national organization of Parent-Teacher associations, was more optimistic when she addressed more than 400 women at a banquet in her honor last night.

"We are encouraged to believe that the boys and girls of today will make better parents than we have made," Mrs. Marrs said.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (US)—An International Congress for Wronged Husbands will be held in Vienna in January, according to Herr Hoeberth, president of the organization which demands rights for men. Delegates from all civilized countries will attend.

It is only where they have civilization that they have these troubles. Savages haven't any social ambitions and they can be happy with their man if he gives them only breadfruit and cocoanut juice. As for knick-knacks, they pick up their own, in the woods.

Alimony, say the wronged husbands, is "a disgrace on humanity." They think men should have the same protection that divorce gives women, and that men need some courageous legislation to protect them against the greed of women.

It's all true enough, but as long as men gravitate to the corner where the pretty, well dressed ones are, women are going to try to be in that corner, and you can't do it for the price of cotton stockings and a basement hat.

We can say this much for ourselves. Many of us went to work so that we could buy the kind of things the co-respondent wore. We saw her picture in the papers, beside that of the wife, and we could tell what happened. The wife grew plain trying to save for a rainy day, and she got so serious about it that husband thought he would frolic a little while the sun still shone.

It's a grand idea to save for a rainy day, but it's a great mistake to make all of them dark and wet while we wait for it. That idea has lost more than one good husband.

And when a good husband goes off the reservation, you'll notice he wants color-sunshine, and a red dress, and fire water and lip rouge, and hang the cost. And it's this "hang the cost" that invites disaster. Husbands get so tired of hearing about costs that they want that feeling known as "blowing the works."

Many a wife finds then, that this is the rainy day she was saving for, although it wasn't at all what she meant.

Of course a league for wronged men may be all right, but I'll say this for the women, when they were wronged they didn't form a league and advertise it. Years ago they stopped jumping into rivers, and going through life with their heads hanging, their futures all behind them. Today they put a value upon their past and the world seems to take them at that valuation. Their lives from the day they are wronged, are series of front page stories, Hope diamonds, theater contracts and baronial castles.

Now let's see what the wronged men get—and God help them!

Wichitan Sees Good Crops And Big Snows in Middle West Trip

Crops in the argicultural districts of the country from central Oklahoma north to Nebraska and Iowa are in a wonderful condition, accord to J. T. Harrell, who with Mrs. Harrell, has just returned from a 10-day trip to his former home in Hastings, Neb., and to Mrs. Harrell's home in Burlington, Iowa.

With improvement in agriculture, farmers and business men are showing an unbounded optimism, after a few years during which poor crops in this area fostered a spirit of depression. Farmers are getting a fair price for their products and are facing the future with a better spirit, he said.

The city of Des Moines, because of its dependence upon agriculture is showing a new life after years of quiet, Mr. Harrell said. Mr. and Mrs. Harrell were in Des Moines the night of the presidential election.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrell encountered a snow in north central Kansas on their way north. A three-foot snow in eastern Nebraska and Iowa made the unsurfaced roads over which they passed almost impassable. The snowfall was pronounced an exceptionally early one for that section of the country, where heavy snows usually fall in December.

Texas weather cannot be excelled, Mr. Harrell said, in expressing relief from the cold weather encountered on the trip.

Man Has Right to Expect Good Housekeeper But Not Good 'Prisoner'

"The Ideal Home Is a Place to Come From and Go Back To, Not a Prison," Says Dorothy Dix—"These Women Make the Best Wives Who Combine Domesticity With All the Other Good Things of the World."

It is hard for us to realize that in this enlightened age and in this free country there are still men left who are benighted enough to believe that it is the duty of a husband to be a jailer to his wife and keep her a prisoner in his home.

It is still more difficult to realize that in these days of the emancipation of women any wife is poor-spirited enough to submit to such treatment, yet such is the case.

In the course of a year I get hundreds of letters from women who tell me that they are never allowed any personal liberty by their husbands. They never have a penny that they can spend as they please. They are not permitted to pay visits or receive company. They never go to any place of amusement. Their wildest adventure is going to the grocery or the butcher shop, and even these trips must be made on schedule time, with no loitering for a little gossip.

Of course, it takes an unusual combination of gifts—tyranny on the man's part and humility and weakness on the woman's—for any husband to be able to reduce his wife to such peonage, and, as a matter of fact, not many men desire to make white slaves of their wives.

However, the ancient superstition still maintains that there is some peculiar virtue in a woman's being hobbled to her own fireside and that the earmark of a good wife is her staying put in the place where her husband dropped her when he brought her back from the altar.

Conversely, our most scathing criticism of a married woman is to call her a gadabout, though why we should wish an intelligent female human being to emulate the snail that always carries its house on its back is a mystery past finding out.

Obviously a man should wish his wife to stay at home enough to turn out a good and competent job of housekeeping, but it is the results he is concerned with, not the length of time it takes her to do her work. He has a right to demand a clean and orderly house and good meals, but household tasks acquire no extra merit by being dawdled over instead of being performed in an energetic and efficient manner. Indeed, the cluttered-up kitchen, where a pot is always boiling on the stove, is as much a mark of incompetency as the cluttered-up desk, where the work is a perpetual hangover.

So, if men were as wise in dealing with their wives as they are in handling their employes, instead of trying to keep them shut up in their homes puttering over little chores that they never get done, they would encourage them to systematize their work and to go at it with such vim and purpose that they would finish it up and have time in which to amuse themselves.

This would do as much as any one thing to cheer domesticity up and keep matrimony from being a failure, because it would make wives not only happy themselves, but so much pleasanter and more interesting to live with.

The man who is never willing to have his wife go out anywhere digs with his folly the pit into which he himself falls, for you cannot shut up a woman within the four walls of a house and give her no outside interest or amusement without making her morbid.

The reason so many wives are peevish and fretful and nagging is simply because they stay at home too much. It is the curse of housework that, while it occupies a woman's hands, it leaves her brain with nothing but the same round of thoughts and memories to go over. Having nothing new to interest her, the homekeeping woman magnifies trifling offenses into great grievances. Having nothing fresh to talk about, she harps on some old mistake or fault until she drives her husband mad.

It would pay a man, just as a matter of self-protection, to take his wife out to some place of amusement once or twice a week so that she might have something to think about while she swept and scrubbed and baked and stewed and sewed except his shortcomings. If he were wise he would urge her to join clubs and societies and take an afternoon or so off to play bridge, because that would keep her happy and contented, and a happy and contented wife makes a pleasant home.

It is the women who are shut up in their houses without any diversion or change to rest their nerves who scrap with their husbands over everything just to get a little diversion. It is the women who get so fed up on their husbands and children that they almost come to hate them who are cross and irritable and slap the baby and are about as soothing to live with as a fretful porcupine.

Give these same women change and diversion, send them away from home for a little while, and they would come back different creatures.

Furthermore, the man who tries to keep his wife shut up in a house all the time prepares for himself a boring companion. Homekeeping wives have very homely wit, and no women is duller than the one whose interests are bounded by the four walls of her house and whose conversational repertory runs from the kitchen to the nursery and back again.

Far different is the woman who brings to her table every night her little budget of gossip of the new and interesting things she has done and seen; tales of the small adventures she has had and the people she has met. Stevenson put the ability to be a good gossip as the chief qualification in a desirable wife. And who shall say that he is wrong?

After all, the ideal home is a place to come from and go back to, not a prison. This is true for women as well as men, and those women make the best wives and the best housekeepers who combine domesticity with all the other good things in the world. DOROTHY DIX.

Nocona to Hold Flower Show

Special to The Record News

NOCONA, Texas, Nov. 12.—The Nocona flower show, under the auspices Parent-Teacher association, is expected to be more interesting this year than ever before. The show will be held Nov. 22-24. New attractions will be added this time, including an automobile show and pure food demonstration. An extensive musical program is being arranged by some of Nocona's best talent. About 75 prizes will be given for best farm products, canned goods, school work, handiwork, preserves, dairy products and various other things that are produced in the county.

Merchants and other business concerns of Nocona are cooperating with Parent-Teacher association for a bigger and better show. This is an annual affair, but on account of crop conditions and scarcity of flowers last year, the show was not held. The management thought it best to wait until this year. All is set for a good time for everybody and a large crowd from over Montague county and adjoining counties is expected.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

Cherie had a letter from Diana saying she was going to be married in the winter and would Cherie suggest what she should have in her trousseau. Here are delightful garments—a step-in made entirely of strips of lace and silk, all white. An elastic girdle which fits smoothly and keeps one's frocks from wrinkling and yet hasn't a bone in it anywhere. A really formal negligee or hostess gown (for the drawing room, not the bedroom) made of transparent velvet in a golden shade and gold lace. It would be charming, too, in lace and silk as a less formal piece of clothing. Cherie thinks she'll recommend these to Diana.

This little black satin hat covered with shiny satin leaves stitched in gold thread is one of the so-called "cock-tail hats"—to be worn for formal afternoon affairs or informal dinners. The blouse has the new Vionnet neckline, a broad band folded over in the wide V that Vionnet delights in. It's exceedingly smart to wear it tucked into the skirt. The slipper is of brown velvet printed in lovely autumn shades and is for formal afternoon wear. The muff (they are so new again!) is a purse as well and if there were any reason needed for buying a muff, apart for its being chic, surely the usefulness of the handbag given it.

ART EXHIBITS CAUSE RIFTS

Epstein's Studies in Nude Much Discussed

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES

LONDON, Nov. 13. (US)—Seventy-five studies in the nude, as well as several bronzes in like poses were included in Jacob Epstein's latest exhibition of drawings at Phillip's galleries in Duke street.

As usual with the celebrated artist's exhibitions, there were sharp controversies over almost every drawing. Friends were divided by their opinions, and heated disputes often arose among those viewing the exhibits.

"Isn't it marvellous?" was the remark frequently heard.

And just as frequently, the reply would be:

"I wouldn't have it in my house at any price."

"Classical" Model

Epstein's model, Betty Joel, was one of the most conspicuous figures among those at the exhibition. She is what Epstein calls his "classical model." She is tall and darkly beautiful, with an olive complexion and very rich dark-brown eyes.

Instead of wearing a hat, she always follows the practice of swathing her head in gold or silver tissue scarves, or with a scarf to match her dress. On one occasion she was stunning in a silver scarf swathed to look almost like a turban. She explained:

"You can get so much more variety with scarves than with hats. I have them of every imaginable shade, and varying from two and a half yards to five yards in length. This silver one I am wearing now is five yards in length.

Mrs. Epstein also was conspicuous at the showings. Among other notables were the Swiss minister and Madame Paravicini, Olga Lynn, Alfred Sutro and Lady Dean Paul.

Comeback Planned

The veteran horse racing enthusiast, Lord Coventry, is reported to be planning a comeback on the English race courses, despite his 91 years' age. According to the gossip in clubland here now, the aged earl is going in for bloodstock breeding again in place of the Hereford cattle with which he has had so much success in recent years.

Lord Coventry has several good brood mares in the famous paddock at Croome in front of his Church Hill mission. He told a friend a few days ago:

"I may yet win another Cambridgeshire, but even if I don't it will do my eyes good to see some young horseflesh from this window."

His reference was to the wonderful Adam window in his library which looks out over the park.

Scott vs. Hebrew

A Scotsman and a Jew—no this is not the proverbial story about members of those two races—are vieing with each other in the generous little matter of giving away their wealth. Their stupendous contributions to charity have recently set all London to talking about their seemingly unbounded generosity.

The Scotsman is Lord Woolavington, and the Jew is Mr. Bernhard Baron. One is a millionaire Scotch whisky distiller, and the other is a millionaire tobacco magnate.

Lord Woolavington is the latest to play the fairy godfather. He has just given away approximately $875,000. Only a short time ago Mr. Baron created a trust fund of $2,500,000 for orphans and crippled children.

Why this continual giving away of money, Londoners are asking? And in reply, Mr. Baron, who has given away more than $10,000,000 in his lifetime, explained:

"I make money. I have tons of money. But what good is it to me? I am still making plenty of money, and I tell you there is nothing in it—nothing in continually making, making, making.

"But to give! In some way which I cannot explain to you at all, I get the greatest joy out of that.

"When I see a sick man in a hospital getting better, and I know that I have given towards making him better, then—as they say—that gets me. I feel a personal interest in that man. It seems to me that he is my brother."

Courts Must Decide Porto Rican Election

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 13. (AP)—The courts probably must determine which of the two political parties in Porto Rico won control of the island's legislature in last Tuesday's voting. Both the Alianza, which has been in power since a majority of the Republicans joined the old Unionist party four years ago, and the coalition of "pure Republicans" and Socialists, claim the victory.

SEMINOLE MEN PUT ON CARPET

General Investigation Of Officials Asked

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 13 (UP)—An investigation by the attorney general's office of the official conduct of Seminole county officials was made mandatory on Edwin Dabney, attorney general, today when a petition for an investigation of this kind, with five affidavits to the charges attached and between 500 and 600 signers was filed with the attorney general's office.

The petition says relative to an investigation of District Judge George C. Crump:

"He has been guilty of a wilful failure to diligently and faithfully perform the duties of district judge, in that he has shown gross partiality in office in that he has favored attorneys, corporations and persons in litigation pending before his court. . . .

"That he has been guilty of oppression in office. . . .

"That he has so conducted his court that it is the general talk of the county that only those who favor him politically can receive any consideration at his hands as a judge, and that he has been intoxicated in a public place in this state, to wit: in the city of Ardmore at the last meeting of the district judges of this state held in that city, said intoxication being produced by strong drinks voluntarily taken by him."

The petition charges that Homer M. Bishop, county attorney, "has been guilty of malfeasance in office, in that he has not faithfully and diligently prosecuted persons charged with crime in said county."

W. L. Thurston, C. J. Johnston, and Ed Huddleston, county commissioners, are charged with having ignored the lower bids in letting contracts and having paid out money illegally.

While the sheriff and his deputies are not mentioned by name they are charged with failure to properly police the county.

The county judge is charged with having "habitually and wilfully neglected his duties in that he has absented himself from the county long periods at a time."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Many years ago New York city was the headquarters of the best greengoods operators in America. To the uninitiated greengoods is slang for bundles of paper with real money wrappers and the business these sharpers did was beyond belief. Unbelievable as it is a great deal of this so-called money got into the hands of reputable merchants in small towns on the persuasive argument that it could easily be passed for the genuine article.

One of the best men in the selling line at the time was Georgia Appo, the son of a Chinese father and an Irish mother. His father, Quimbo, had killed his mother on the lower East Side and following conviction was sent to the asylum for criminal insane at Matteawan, where he died.

Little Georgie, as the son was called in police circles, had a varied career. He started out as a pickpocket, then got into the phony money business and wound up a reformed man and janitor in a Fourth avenue church, all due to the kindly efforts of Mrs. Rebecca Foster, who had the sobriquet of "The Tombs Angel." Mrs. Foster died in a fire in the Park Avenue hotel and Georgie lost his best friend. But he stayed in the narrow path until he died, when the church gave him a decent burial.

For the last 15 years of Georgie's life he wore a glass eye. It all happened in a little hotel in Poughkeepsie, where the "comeon," as the sucker was called, had gone to complete the purchase of the "queer." Georgie was on his job but the prospective buyer, a hotel keeper from a city in eastern Connecticut, became suspicious that he was not going to get what he had been asked to pay for. About the same time Georgie discovered that he had a tough customer and attempted to make his getaway, but the hotel man was not to be cheated and pulled a revolver and shot Georgie's eye out. After this incident Georgie went to a hospital and the Connecticut man returned home a wiser but thoroughly scared man. He felt he would be prosecuted, but Georgie was satisfied to let bygones be bygones and as soon as he could, returned to his haunts in the lower part of New York.

Despite the fact that Georgie had been convicted in the criminal courts building, he was a regular visitor to the place, especially when he was a bit down in his luck. His early life was just what one would expect. He was but a few years old when his mother was killed and from then on he had to make his way as best he could. So he started as a messenger and newsboy, living in hallways and picking up what he could from any source that he could get it.

He admitted he just naturally drifted into being pickpocket. He found sneak thievery was easy but unproductive, so he started after gains. One story that he frequently told had to do with what he called the honesty of the man in the street. He was sure that very few men were honest providing they had a chance to get something for nothing. To illustrate his point he told of having picked a man's pocket just after he had drawn a large sum of money in a Nassau street bank. As he lifted the money he ran. Down Nassau street he fled with a crowd at his heels. As he reached the old Equitable building he made a dive through the door. By this time he said there were at least 50 persons on his trail. Glancing at the money which he still held in his hand, partly concealed under his coat, he grabbed a handful of bills that turned out to be of small denomination and threw them backward into the air.

As the money scattered in the wind the crowd following the thief stopped short. Then began a free for all scramble to pick up the money he had thrown to them. Georgie then made good his escape by the front door of the building into Broadway. He never knew how much he gave away out of his theft but he said enough remained to put him on easy street for several weeks.

CHILDREN TRAMPLED

MOSCOW, Nov. 13. (UP)—Despatches from Riga, Latvia, reported scenes of terror at Voronezh, where many children were believed to have been killed in a fire Sunday. A cinema house was destroyed by the flames, which started during a special children's matinee. In the resulting confusion, and cries of the victims, many of the children were trampled to death and others died in the flames, the advices said. Doors were blocked and exits jammed by the crowd as the flames raced through the flimsy structure.

War Is Youth's Job and Old Age's Glory

"YOU will fight, you older people," said the young man, "to the last drop of our blood."

The spirit expressed in that remark runs like a theme through a new play produced in New York—"The Unknown Warrior," translated from the French of Paul Raynal.

In this play the youth of the world, sent out to die horribly in muddy battlefields, turns and flings a bitter taunt at the older men who made the war inevitable. It expresses the cynicism of the soldier who finds how easy it is for those who do not have to do the fighting to be patriotic.

Perhaps it isn't a bad play for us to think about, even though we are enjoying now the piping times of peace. For we shall have, in the coming year or so, a number of decisions to make that may have a profound effect on the continuation of that peace.

The naval question, complicated by a smouldering ill-feeling and rivalry, will come up again. So will the question of intervention in Latin America. So will various other problems that have to do more or less directly with the question of continued peace.

And, in considering them, we might keep in mind that we who decide them will not be the ones who pay the price if we decide badly.

It is easy, for instance, to demand that our government take a "firm stand" whenever trouble arises in Latin America. Easy to demand it; but what do you suppose are the feelings of the young marines who bleed to death in damp tropical jungles when this "firm stand" goes into effect?

It is easy to insist that we defy European powers and build a mighty navy, regardless. But suppose that course leads to war; what do you think will be the emotions regarding our attitude in the fireroom of a battleship when an exploding shell lets the compressed steam out to scald a hundred sailors to death?

There are those who insist we ought to deal bluntly with Mexico, sending an army across the Rio Grande and "taking the country over and civilizing it." In some ways that is an inspiring thought; but will the inspiration seem quite as beautiful to a doughboy who is left on the desert to die of thirst with a bullet in his lungs?

All of this, of course, doesn't mean that we must scrap our navy, disband our army and become out and out pacifists. But it should remind us that big words and blind flag waving can sometimes have damnable effects. We who make the decisions will be safe enough. The lads who are now entering high school may have to pay a steep price, however, if we decide unintelligently.

For, in our patriotism, we undoubtedly would fight to the last drop of their blood.

Rubber — A Lesson in Monopoly

ATTEMPTS at monopoly often defeat their own ends.

Several years ago England, through the famous Stevenson act, limited the amount of rubber her growers could produce, and thereby kept the price at a high level, taking many millions of dollars from American consumers.

It was fine while it lasted. But the high prices it caused stimulated Dutch rubber growers to expand their acreage, and also drove a number of Americans into the business of acquiring their own plantations.

As a result, the Stevenson act has been abandoned. The monopoly has been broken to pieces—broken largely because of an unwise attempt to keep prices above their natural economic level.

The modern world being what it is, that is apt to be the fate of most monopolistic attempts. There is a world of comfort for the consumer in that thought.

Let Us Have Better Methods of Voting

BEFORE another presidential election Texas ought to improve its method of voting.

In most precincts there is little secrecy for the voter in casting his ballot. Very often the only place for marking the ballot is on a table under the eyes of the election officials or on a wall in plain view of other voters. And it has happened in some counties in Texas that the election officials have spent a full day in looking over the ballots, comparing poll lists and learning for whom their constituents voted.

The balloting ought to be in secret. For this curtained polling booths ought to be provided. The method of voting ought to be so plain and simple that few could make mistakes and mutilate their ballots. The law ought to be so plain about the disposition of the ballots after election that no one could get to see them except in case of a contest.

Other states have methods of balloting that are really secret. Why not Texas?

Governor Smith

ALFRED E. SMITH will retire from public office on Jan. 1 after 25 years in the public service. He goes back to private life with the determination never to be a candidate again. He does so with the respect and gratitude of millions of people of his home state. Probably no other man in America has contributed so much to the prosperity and welfare of as many people as Governor Smith.

It is not as a defeated candidate for the presidency that Governor Smith will be remembered and take his place in history but as a warmly human man of homely honestly, a courageous governor whose official conduct must be an inspiration to the American people.

As such a character Governor Smith is great even in defeat.

HARMON COUNTY SEEKS BONDS

The people of Harmon county will take an important step on Dec. 11, when they decide whether or not the county will be bonded to the extent of $325,000 for the construction of good roads. The board of county commissioners has called a special election to be held at which time the voters will, by their votes, determine whether or not progression will be made in the county road system.

FIRST IN P.-T. A. ASSOCIATION

The announcement that Wilbarger county schools all have parent-teacher organizations now, and that it is the first county in the state with an association in every school augurs much for the school authorities here, and for the parents. It is doubtful if many people will give as much consideration to the accomplishment as it deserves.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

CHARACTERS

GERANE, only daughter of JONIHER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

She catches up with the rear guard and proceeds with it.

Julius Broadaxe, one of her father's trusted lieutenants, takes her to him. He is so delighted to know that she is safe that he forgets to punish her.

The COUNTESS KATRANE JABASSY, her husband and a small band of confederates, all of whom live quietly in Edelweiss. Least of all does any one suspect the relationship between the countess and the bandit chief, who were separated as children, after a political upheaval involving their family. The Countess Katrane, learning that a rich merchant, Leopold Mathias, is to pass through the forest with a fortune in gems that are destined for sale in the capitals of Europe, sends the information to her brother.

She is so touched by his plight that she emerges from the thicket in which her father has hidden her and commands the bandits to release him. Since she is dressed as a boy, Captain Starcourt believes her to be a member of the band and he is greatly surprised to learn that she is the chieftain's daughter.

INSTALLMENT IN

Night had wrapped the forest in its mantle of black before the first of the brigands entered the Digman barn. All day they had remained hidden in the hills.

Jonifer and Gerane rode throught the gate at 9 o'clock. Others had preceded them, more were to follow. The utmost caution was observed. No man approached until he was certain that the coast was clear. The Digmans saw to that. The secret door and the passage beyond were treasures to be guarded even more zealously than the lives of the men who used them.

The chieftain and his daughter, emerging from the canyon, saw bonfires blazing in the pastures below the Davos house. There were five or six of these fires going, symbolic of rejoicing on the part of those whose menfolk had returned. Before the night was over, many more would be flaming brightly.

With each new arrival, a fresh fire was started; and there was singing and dancing and rejoicing.

Gerane and her father galloped recklessly up to the very edge of fire-lit circle, pulling their horses up as they seemed on the point of dashing into the flames. Jonifer uttered a shout of greeting and leaped from the saddle. Gerane's exultant "Hi! Hi!" rang out as she snatched off her hat and waved it above her head.

Whereupon there was a great clamor. The women of the valley lifted their voices in a chorus of triumph as they rushed to surround Selim and his rider. They had learned of Gerane's exploits from early arrivals. Such gleeful terms of approval and endearment as "You lovely rascal," "You brave little scamp," filled her ears as she swung down from the saddle and rushed to the arms of Natilde.

"Oh, are you safe?" cried the latter, who had not slept since the girl's departure.

"Didn't I promise you I would come home to change my clothes?" cried Gerane, squeezing Matilde delightedly. "Well, here I am, dearest—so dry your eyes and get me something to eat. I am starving."

"You must tell me everything. What a night you must have—"

"Oh, Matilde, I wish you could have seen the young officer who had charge of the soldiers. He was the most beautiful—"

"Come, come!" interrupted Jonifer, breaking away from an eager group. "Get into the house and change your clothes, girl, and control your appetite. There will be a great feast before long, if I can believe my eyes and nose. We have no time to lose. Midnight will soon be here and your birthday past and gone. Have you the satin and silver dress, Matilde? And the golden slippers? Are they—"

"Yes, Jonifer, everything is ready for her, even to the lace handkerchief and the fan with the ostrich plumes."

"And the girdle of turquoise that belonged to—" began Elfie.

"With my own hands, I cleaned the diamond armlets till they sparkled like stars," broke in Rosa.

"The rose made of rubies—how about that?" demanded Jonifer. "Most particularly I want the rose of rubies—"

"Possess your soul in peace, Jonifer," said Matilde. "You shall see the rose of rubies, and your eyes will be dazzled as never before."

"I remember the day and the lady," mused Julius Broadaxe, twirling his mustache. "She was a tall, queenly lady, and I—yes, yes, what is it, my love?"

His little wife was tugging at his sleeve. "Pray forget your tall, queenly lady, Julius Snook," she snapped, "and try to remember that you have come home to me. The fire I built for you needs more fuel. Come! You are in the way here, my little man."

Julius scratched his head. He was turning something over in his mind.

"The cloth of gold mantle," Matilde was saying, as she hurried Gerane to the house, "will shine as the sun itself, with these flames playing upon it from all sides. It—"

"He was very tall, Matilde and his hair was the color of a roe-deer," panted Gerane, her eyes shining.

"I have heard a great deal about the wonderful Greek gods. The books you have read to me and the stories that come down from—"

"You shall tell me more about this new god of yours, Gerane," interrupted Matilde drily; "but not at present. We must turn you into a fairy princess before the clock strikes twelve. Behold! They are building the biggest fire of all on the knoll. It is for you, my dear. And see! They are carrying more of your gifts into the house. All evening they have been coming in from the Highway to—"

"But I do not want them!" cried the girl, in a sudden passion. "I never realized before what it meant to steal things. Why, Matilde, I have always thought that these beautiful things were ours—that we fought for them and took them in battle, as the old Greeks and Romans did. I never dreamed that we fell upon unsuspecting men and—"

"Hush, my child! Here comes your father."

"Yes,—I see him," cried the girl bitterly. "And do you know what it is he is carrying? That little pouch? It contains—oh, I don't know how many rings and brooches and necklaces and—Matilde, tell me, are they so valuable? Are all these trinkets and gewgaws so precious?"

Gerane's shoulders suddenly sagged. A sigh escaped her lips.

"Heigh-ho! I suppose, when all is said and done, I am a robber's daughter. If the officers of the Crown were to catch me, they would lock me up or behead me as they would any other evil doer, would they not?"

"Hush! Your father will hear you."

A look of dismay, even horror, clouded Gerane's eyes. She said no more until they were in the house.

"My father," she murmured at last, putting her hand to her throat. "Why—why, if they were to catch my father, they would cut his head off. My father! He—"

"But they will never catch him," whispered Matilde. "Have they not been trying it for 30 years and more? He bears a charmed life."

"Oh, I hope that is true. Yes, I am a robber's daughter. I am proud of it, because he is my father." Her head went up, her eyes flashed. "What a fool I am! Of course, I am a robber! As well try to make gold out of sawdust as to imagine myself anything else."

"You are talking wildly, Gerane," admonished Matilde. "Calm yourself."

"My cousin, Peter, says I have more jewels than any queen in the world. Well, what of it?"

"Peter is a fool. Of course, you have not."

"What of it, I say? My father bedecks me in them whenever it pleases his fancy, and every one makes believe the magicians have changed me into a princess. At least, that is the way they act. Then, the next day, what am I? The pet of all the robbers in Doorn Forest. Bah! He would make a lady of me by covering my body with dresses and jewels intended for the bodies of real ladies? Is it not laughable, Matilde?"

"Your mother was a noble lady, Gerane."

"Ah, yes, but did her father bedeck her with finery he had stolen?"

Matilde did not answer.

"And my mother's jewels and gowns—why am I never allowed to put them on? Father keeps them locked up in the chest in there. He permits me to wear nothing but the things that have been stolen. Why is that, Matilde?"

"You must not forget, my dear, that everything in that chest was stolen, too. Your mother was robbed on the highway."

"Yes, but he gave them all back didn't he? They were no longer stolen property. They belong to me. Didn't she bequeath them to me? Why, then, am I denied the privilege of wearing things that actually belong to me, instead of all this rubbish that belongs to some one else?"

"I cannot answer it, my dear, because—well, because I have never asked it myself," replied the older woman.

"Well, it's—very—strange," muttered Gerane.

"I suppose I am to expect another necklace or two," sighed Gerane, yawning.

"A necklace or two? My dear, don't you know that you are to have every blessed thing they took this morning? It is your birthday. There will be no division. The men were delighted when some one suggested that your birthday gift should be—"

. . . . each member of the band passed by and deposited before her his offering.

Gerane gave went to a sharp, angry laugh.

"And just for the sake of making me presents they would have given all those helpless fellows bullets for breakfast," she cried. "If they had made a single move to resist, every one of them would have been shot dead. I don't want their birthday gift! Just think, Matilde, what might have happened, if—"

Just then Jonifer called from the next room:

"Make haste, Gerane. The men have all returned. They are gathering in front of your fire—and they are clamoring for you to appear. The feast is almost ready. Make haste, I say."

"Shortly after 11 o'clock, Jonifer Davos and his daughter proceeded to the knoll on which the great fire was blazing. At least two hundred men, women and children were present in holiday attire. The robbers themselves, clad as they were when they started off on the late expedition, minus the masks, were congregated at the base of the little hillock. And each man bore a bag, parcel, or bundle that once had reposed in the coach of Leopold Mathias.

Gerane was like a creature from another world. Her gown, designed for a noble young dame, was the product of a famed modiste in Paris. Her mantle was cloth of gold; the slippers on her small feet were golden, with buckles of diamonds; the rose of rubies in the velvet ribbon that bound her hair gleamed like a burning coal; about her neck hung a string of gorgeous pearls. Bands of diamonds encircled both arms above the elbow, and there were rings upon her fingers. About her slim waist was the turquoise girdle. She carried and languidly waved a fan of ostrich-plumes.

Her father led her to a bench some distance from the roaring fire, and there she sat and watched the throng as it danced to the strains of weird music. Her eyes glowed with excitement and thrills stirred her blood. Then she became pensive.

She was thinking of the gallant young officer who had crossed her path at the dawn of day. She found herself wondering what had become of him. Was he safe? Was he back among his friends in Edelweiss? Worst of all, was he being blamed, perhaps punished, by his superiors? And what would he think, if he could behold her now, bedecked in all her stolen finery, acclaimed by the very robbers he had met the day before? What would he say to this scene of revelry and rejoicing?

The music and her reverie ceased. Her father drew her to her feet. She stood beside him while each member of the band passed by and deposited before her his offering. Tiny bags and big ones, leather cases, bundles, boxes with the seals unbroken and two or three substantial bales that could contain nothing short of a fortune in draperies and tapestries and runners—a goodly heap, not overlarge, but stupendous in value. She thanked each man and smiled upon him, calling him by name—and he was amply repaid. Then the feast. She had been hungry, but now she could not eat.

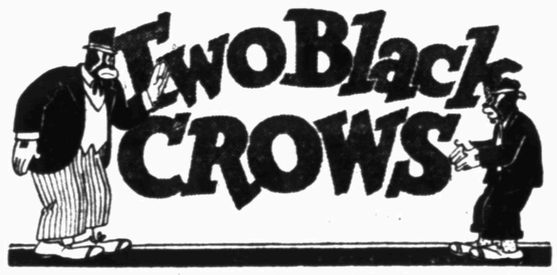

And, when she was alone in her room, with the "presents" piled high against the wall opposite her couch, she thought again of the handsome stranger who had addressed her as "young sir"—but she blushed when she recalled her father's revelation in response to the young officer's question.

She wondered if, by chance, he was giving a thought to the insignificant little robber he had mockingly appealed to as "young sir."

Two Black Crows

Moran: Is you goin' to call on the NEW president?

Mack: Boy, I aint called on th' OLD one yet.

Moran: What's that got to do with it? Coolidge aint president no more.

Mack: If you don't THINK so, try to get a BILL through Congress.

Moran: I thought the new head man was down there.

Mack: No, Coolidge is the head man.

Moran: What's the new president?

Mack: He's just a SPARE TIRE.

Moran: When DOES the new head man take charge?

Mack: He goes down in March when the weather gets bad.

Moran: Say, I don't understand this politics business.

Mack: I guess you don't. If BRAINS was SILK, you'd be a RAG DOLL.

Moran: Well, that aint gettin' me no TURKEY for THANKSGIVIN'.

Mack: Boy, you certainly is gettin' choice on your birds. You is askin' for TURKEY when you aint even up to SPARROWS.

(There is no doubt that Big Boy knows his politics. When he gets through explaining a puzzle, it's still a puzzle. The only invitation the Two Black Crows have got so far is from an admirer in Los Angeles. The Big Boy is going to eat at the table and Ferdinand is going to stand outside the window while they shake out the tablecloth. You can get a lot of big crumbs that way.)

DOCTOR DENIED SECOND TRIAL

Physician Accused of Wife Murder to Appeal

OLATHE, Kan., Nov. 13. (INS)—Judge G. A. Roberds of the circuit court today overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of Dr. S. Oliver Netherton, under life sentence on the charge of murdering his wife, Edith Netherton, Feb. 24.

An appeal will be taken to the supreme court by the doctor's attorneys, Chauncey B. Little of Little and West, Jerome Koehler of Kansas City, Frank Sheridan and T. W. Gorsuch. A hearing on the appeal will be next Monday. The state was represented by Howard Payne, county attorney, and H. L. Burgess of Olathe.

Dr. Netherton is at liberty on $20,000 bail pending the move for a new trial. The bond was raised to $40,000 by Judge Roberds. It will be furnished this afternoon, Netherton's attorneys said.

In arguing for a new trial, lawyers for Netherton relied mostly on testimony that a tramp was seen near the Netherton home the day of the murder.

Mrs. Netherton was shot, apparently from the back, while she was arranging fruit boxes in the cellar of her home. Her husband was found guilty last May. The state charged the motive for the murder was to obtain $80,000 worth of property Mrs. Netherton owned.

$59,000 Asked In Two Estate Suits

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 13. (UP)—Two estate suits, asking damages totaling more than $59,000, were filed in district court here today.

A fee of $17,840.30 was asked by H. S. Trayler of the late John A. Fain, former U. S. district attorney, for having assisted in getting a congressional act passed in obtaining oil royalty rights for Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indains. Trayler alleged that former Senator Thomas P. Gore received $34,000 for work in Washington, D. C., but that he, Trayler, was not paid.

Harry L. Atherton asked $42,000 for alleged trespass by the Choctaw Lumber company and the Texas, Oklahoma and Eastern Railway on 400 acres of land in McCurtain county. The land was owned by the late William Atherton, for whose estate Harry L. Atherton is administrator.

WOMEN RIVALS AGREE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13. (UP)—The feminine side of a tragic triangle were agreed today that neither was to blame for the death of "Good Time" Charlie Matlock. Mrs. Helen C. Matlock, the wife who shot and killed him said she did not blame Rose Stellar, for going with Matlock and Miss Stellar said "was all his fault."

STRENGTH

I cannot hope to ever be
The kind of man they call a "he";
Whose good right hand is dynamite,
And who would pass up meals to fight;
Who's light of brain, and muscle-bound,
And whom the women flock around;
To whom the weaker brethren cling—
Who isn't scared of anything.

For, honestly, I do prefer
To be a man who hates to stir;
I'd rather sit beside the fire
Than brave the raging tempest's ire.
I'd rather go to bed at night
Than prowl around and pick a fight;
I'd rather be content and fat,
And have some strength beneath the hat.

U. S. LOOKS TO LATIN NATIONS

Coolidge and Hoover See Future to South

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—The conclusion that America's future so far as foreign activities are concerned lies not in the rivalries of overcrowded Europe but in the new undeveloped continent of South America, where the United States had already achieved a special position by virtue of the Monroe Doctrine, appears to have been reached by President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover.

The president's Armistice day address marks a shift of interest away from Europe just as the incoming president's approaching trip to South America marks a shift of interest to the western hemisphere.

Back to Business

In his Armistice day address President Coolidge frankly told Europe that the United States feels it has done its war-time and post-war duty and now proposed to limit its assistance to a strict business basis.

The tour of Hoover, which begins Monday, will mark a new interest in South America. Never before has such a spectacular demonstration of friendship been made on behalf of the United States. Hoover will go technically as the president-elect but he will receive the two-gun presidential salute wherever he goes and will receive the same honors and consideration that would go to him if he actually were president. So far as South America is concerned, Hoover goes there as the head of this nation.

The most obvious result of his tour if all goes well will be the friendship and good will which his visit will develop. More specifically, many of Hoover's policies may be affected by what he learns in the South American countries.

Tariff Disturbance

Our flexible tariff is a source of much complaint in some of those countries, especially Argentina, and when the United States wanted to send investigators there to ascertain the cost of production for corn, Argentina objected and this part of the investigation was abandoned. The U. S. tariff commission has been working on a revision of the flax seed tariff for several years. Flax seed is an important crop in Argentina and the uncertainty as to whether the United States will change the tariff has had a disturbing effect there.

Many problems such as the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute between Chile and Peru which we are arbitrating and the boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador, may carry over into Hoover's administration.

He also will have to deal with problems created by Colombia's cancellation of the Barco oil concession, a majority of which is owned by the Mellon Gulf Oil company. Brazil's coffee valorization plan by which that country sought to stabilize the price of coffee, has been opposed by Hoover during his regime in the department of commerce. Any complications growing out of the huge rubber concessions of Henry Ford in the Amazon valley will have to be dealt with by Hoover.

Study Other Problems

In addition there are many embargoes on South American commodities such as that on Chilean onions, on hay going through the Panama canal, on potatoes and Argentine beef. These embargoes, imposed because of disease dangers or for other sanitary reasons, are a constant source of friction.

By personally visiting the major South American countries, and learning first-hand their problems, Hoover prepares himself to deal with them as they come up at Washington—indicating the likelihood he will exercise closer supervision over foreign affairs than has been seen in the White House since Wilson.

Supplementing the broader questions of policy, there will be many minor ways in which Hoover will be able to reap dividends on his trip and prepare the way for closer commercial relations among the nations in the western hemisphere.

Meteor Shower and Eclipse of Moon On Star Gazers' November Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—In November star gazers have a heavy schedule because there are meteor showers and an eclipse of the moon to be seen. The eclipse will be on Nov. 27 in North and South America, the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, Australia, the western and northern extremities of Europe and part of eastern Asia. The total phase will last nearly one hour.

The moon will first come in contact with the umbral shadow of the earth at 2:24 a. m., E. S. T., when the partial phase begins, according to a bulletin by the American Nature association. It will pass deeper and deeper into it until it becomes entirely immersed in it at 3:33 a. m.

Not Entirely Obscured

This is the beginning of total eclipse which will last for 56 minutes. The moon will not be entirely invisible during this period, however, for its surface will be illuminated by light from the sun passing into the shadow of the earth through the ring of atmosphere surrounding the earth.

The eclipse will occur one hour earlier in central time, two hours earlier in mountain time and three hours earlier in Pacific time, so on the Pacific coast, for instance, the moon will enter the earth's umbral shadow at 11:24 p. m., Nov. 26, will be completely within it by 12:33 a. m., Nov. 27 and will be totally eclipsed until 1:29 a. m., when it begins to emerge and leaves it completely at 2:39 a. m.

Although total eclipses of the moon are far more generally observed than total eclipses of the sun, since they may be seen from more than half of the earth's surface while a total eclipse of the sun, according to the American Nature association, is visible only within a very narrow path of great length, yet they are not of such common occurrence that they pass unobserved or fail to arouse popular interest.

Sun Eclipse

There is also to be a partial eclipse of the sun on Nov. 12 with a maximum magnitude of 81 per cent of the sun's diameter covered by the moon. This will be visible only in the British Isles, the greater part of Europe, Egypt and western and central Asia.

The occultation of Mars, on Nov. 29, will be visible in the northwestern and northern states and in Canada, although in the eastern part of North America it will take place just before or after sunrise. It will not be visible in the southern or southwestern states.

This is another phenomenon for observation of which the observer in fortunate localities must be up early in the morning hours. The exact time varies in different localities. Jupiter also will be temporarily hidden behind the moon this month on Nov. 25, but only to observers in the south temperate and south frigid zones.

The two annual periodic showers of meteors due in November are the Andromedes or Bielids, so-called because they are probably remnants of Biela's lost comet and the Leopids, which follow in the orbit of another comet, called after its discoverer, Tempel's comet of 1866.

The reddish, slowly moving Andromedes may be seen anywhere from Nov. 20 to Nov. 30, and will appear in the evening hours coming from the direction of Andromeda and the rapidly moving, bluish colored Leopids will stage their greatest display about Nov. 14-15, and they will come from the direction of the Sickle in Leo, hence their name Leonids. One will have to be up in the small hours of the morning to see them.

TEXANS GREET F. D. ROOSEVELT

Congratulations Wired To New York Winner

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 13. (AP)—Confidence in the future of the Democratic party was expressed today by Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor-elect of New York, in responding to telegrams of congratulation which continued to pour in today.

One of them was from T. Whitfield Davidson of Dallas, Texas. It regarded Mr. Roosevelt's election as "the one bright spot on the face of the returns," and said it "held out encouragement that the people may yet return to sober thoughts and proper appreciation of Democratic ideals."

Another congratulatory telegram from Texas, until Nov. 6 one of the states in the Democratic "solid South," came from Dan Moody, the governor, and from Frank Baldwin of Waco. Answering the latter, Mr. Roosevelt wrote that he was "confident of the future of the party."

"We must not forget," his letter said, "that the democracy polled over fifteen million votes this year, a much greater proportionate increase over 1920 and 1924 than the Republican ticket obtained."

Another telegram came from Jesse H. Jones of Houston, former national party treasurer.

NEW DEAL SLATED FOR EMPIRE STATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (US)—A new deal is to come in this state when Franklin D. Roosevelt takes over the reins of government as governor on Jan. 1.

Although he was pulled from his Warm Springs, Ga., health retreat by Governor Smith to make the fight to hold the state government for the democracy and that he is pledged to carry out the policies of Governor Smith, Roosevelt is expected to assert himself at an early date and positively to take over the leadership of his party in this state.

Already he is looming as the potential Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1932. Should he fight the hostile Republican majority in the legislature to a standstill during the next two years and be re-elected in 1930 New York state's claim to another whack at the head of the national ticket will be quite firmly established by the time another four years roll around.

With this possibility in the perspective the Republican controlled legislature is expected to adopt a program designed to block any progressive legislation that Mr. Roosevelt might advocate. These very tactics are what did more than anything else to make Governor Smith a national figure as they furnished a forum for him.

Just what will be the attitude of Tammany to the new state leader is a matter of conjecture. Because of his opposition to Tammany, when a member of the state senate the Tammany stamp cannot be hung on him.

The first test of Roosevelt's strength is expected to come in his selection of the 14 major appointees to state administrative departments which will fall to his lot to make by Jan. 1.

WRONG MAN IS SHOT TO DEATH

Father Believed Victim Had Attacked Daughter

NORMANGEE, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—Otto Schultz, 40, farmer, was at liberty today under $3,000 bond in connection with the fatal shooting here Sunday of Joe Kelly, 28, of Mineola.

Kelly was shot to death on Main street here when he was mistaken for a man alleged to have attacked Schultz' daughter, testimony at the inquest revealed.

Schultz said his daughter had returned from an automobile ride Saturday night with a young man, member of a crew constructing a power line here, and told her father she had been attacked. Kelly, the foreman of the power line crew, was pointed out by a man on the street as the man who had been with the girl and was shot four times and instantly killed.

Some time later another man, also a member of the crew, surrendered to Sheriff Dick Lemons at Centerville and admitted attacking the girl, it was said. He was charged with criminal assault and taken to Huntsville for safekeeping by Sheriff Lemons.

BUBBLES OF SUNSHINE FROM PIKES PEAK TO YOUR TABLE

Nature makes Original Manitou a far finer Pale Dry—because nature supplies the rare carbonic gases which gush from the famous Manitou Springs at the foot of Pikes Peak. These gases are caught, pure and unsullied, to instil the lively, long-lasting sparkle which is the glory of Original Manitou.

That is one reason why the gold-labeled Manitou bottle with the cerise foil top is so much in evidence these days—particularly at clubs and hotels.

But there are other reasons, too—and good ones. Its rare flavor is the golden touch of finest Jamaica ginger prepared and blended under the Original Manitou formula. It has an intriguing, piquant snap—yet smooth, soft and subtle.

No wonder discriminating folk are changing to Manitou! No wonder they are asking themselves how they could ever be satisfied with any of the artificial Pale Drys!

If you have not yet tried Original Manitou—a new delight awaits you. For here, indeed, is Nature's own ginger champagne—pure and refreshing—"Bubbles of Sunshine from Pikes Peak!"

And just to prove that we know you will enjoy Manitou Pale Dry we have authorized your dealer to refund to you the full purchase price of any pint or quart bottle if you don't like Manitou as well as or better than any other ginger ale you have ever tasted.

(Bottled by the distributors of the world-famous Manitou Sparkling Water. Be sure you get the ORIGINAL)

Warning—Original Manitou Pale Dry bottles (pints and quarts) have a gold label and a cerise foil neck-band. For self protection be sure you do not confuse Original Manitou with any other product of a similar name

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Methods of Cooking

Frying is the most unsuitable method of cooking, since it causes the food to be much more difficult to digest. Butter, contrary to popular notions, is a most unsuitable medium for frying, because it becomes separated at extremely low temperature. Olive oil, cottonseed oil, and corn oil are preferable. The fat should be hot enough to immediately coagulate the outer portion of the food immersed so that the fat does not penetrate into the food. Frying in a shallow pan is not as satisfactory as frying in deep pans, because when the pans are not deep enough, the foods and fats are scorched and mixed in indigestible conglomerations.

Baking is a process of cooking food in the dry heat of an oven. Great temperatures are in this way possible, but the interior of moist foods will scarcely ever reach the boiling point. Baked foods are drier than boiled foods, and some dextrinization takes place in the exterior parts of all baked starchy foods.

Baking is a wholesome method of preparing any food, even those which you might not ordinarily think of as being baked, such as carrots, beets, cauliflower, string beans, peaches and celery. The larger and more solid foods may simply be placed in the oven with a pan underneath to catch the drippings, but the small leaf vegetable should be placed in a baking pan with a cover on to maintain their moisture. Many different vegetables may be combined in this manner.

Roasting, broiling and grilling are practically the same processes and consist in cooking food by direct radiation in an unconfined atmosphere. Roasting is the term used for a large joint. Broiling and grilling are terms applied to comparatively small pieces of meat. These three processes aim at quickly coagulating the surface of the meat so that the most of the juices are retained, and those which escape from the meat gravy used for basting or pouring over the roast to prevent drying, and to more uniformly distribute the heat. Because of the high temperature on the surface of the meat, a peculiar tasty substance is produced which gives the delightful flavor to the roast meat. Overroasted meat gives a disagreeable flavor because of scorching.

Braising is a process of cooking resembling both boiling and baking. The meat is first browned by searing, similar to that of broiling, after which it is covered with a close fitting lid to produce a moist steam. Breaising in an economical and tasty method of cooking meat since all of the food value is retained by the covered process and the flavor is enhanced by the grilling. This process is of particular value in cooking tough meat.

The fireless cooker offers another fine method of cooking food because it maintains a temperature below the boiling point. The toughest old rooster dropped into boiling water for about five minutes to coagulate the surface proteins, and then dropped into a fireless cooker and allowed to stand overnight will be found to have a delicious flavor and the meat will be as tender as the tenderest of broilers, falling apart at the touch of a fork.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercise for Heart Leakage

Question: Mrs. S. V. asks: "If one has slight leakage of the heart and murmur would it be too much to go upstairs about nine times a day, and the same number of times coming down, allowing about 12 or 13 steps to a climb?"

Answer: One with heart leakage should take a reasonable amount of exercise. Walking upstairs and downstairs is good exercise, providing you walk slowly. Take regular steps and this acts as a systematic exercise, but do not let anything hurry you.

Buttermilk

Question: J. L. asks: "Is buttermilk a good food to use in stomach ailments?"

Answer: Buttermilk, while a wholesome food, is seldom of benefit in stomach ailments. I sometimes prescribe an exclusive sweet-milk diet in cases of stomach ulcers.

Dry Dark Skin

Question: Mrs. S. B. K. writes: "My skin has taken on a dark color and I am troubled with a dryness all over my body. I feel like I need oil to come through my pores to soften myself. Cream put on from the outside does no good. Even my hair is drying out. It feels rough and stiff."

Answer: You doubtless have some glandular derangement—possibly of the adrenal glands. If you are using a reasonable amount of butter and cream, you cannot look for any help through adding more oily foods to your diet. The fasting treatment often helps the adrenal glands in recovering their ability to secrete normally. Try a fruit fast for a few days and repeat this fast occasionally if you seem to be getting any results. Send a large, self-addressed stamped envelope for my article called "How to Fast and Diet for Health."

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By HARRIET HOCTOR

Harriet Hoctor, whom dance critics speak of as the "American Pavlowa," came to New York when 14 years old to study dancing. At 16 she headed her own vaudeville troupe and a year later she was chosen by the Duncan Sisters as the prima-ballerina of "Topsy and Eva" as presented in San Francisco. A year and a half later she came to Broadway as the premiere danseuse in "A la Carte." On the opening night Harriet literally stopped the show. Flo Ziegfeld, the big musical comedy producer, was there, and a lucrative contract followed almost immediately.

HARRIET HOCTOR

"Positively the best story I have ever heard," Harriet told me, "concerns a famous French statesman. He was delivering an address at an American college, and had somewhat exceeded the length of time allotted for his speech. In his broken English he attempted to apalogize:

"'I beg your pardon,' he began, 'if I cockroach upon your time.'

"A titter of laughter went round the auditorium, and one of the gentlemen on the speakers' platform whispered to the statesman that he had confused his words. Undaunted the Frenchman arose and again addressed the audience:

"'I am told that I have made a mistake,' he said, 'but eet ess just a little matter of sex. I have said 'cockroach' when I should have said 'henroach!'"

COURT REVOKES OFFICE CHANGE

Officials Undisturbed After Dispute

Prospects of any immediate alterations in or additions to the county courthouse apparently were sent glimmering Tuesday.

Plans for alterations were set aside, temporarily at least, by the action of the court in setting aside its order of last week that certain changes be made in the office space occupied by some of the county departments.

Prospects of any early permanent building to the present courthouse received a body blow from John T. Marrs, county judge-elect, who declared that he would now oppose any bond issue or considerable increase in taxes to provide funds for the building of a wing to the present county structure.

Mr. Marrs becomes county judge on Jan. 1. While asserting that he is "open to conviction" on the subject, he added that his present view is that the present courthouse can be made to meet the county's needs for a year or two to come, or until economic conditions are better than they are now.

"I realize that an addition to the courthouse probably will be necessary before very long," Mr. Marrs said. "But at present I am opposed to any considerable tax increase or to any bond issue. It may be that closer study of the problem might change my view. But my present opinion is that we should practice every possible economy. I now believe that we should wait before authorizing any tax levy to enlarge the courthouse."

The proposed re-arrangement of some of the office space in the courthouse remained in a state of status quo after a prolonged weekly meeting of the county commissioners court Tuesday. The court previously had ordered that the county court at law be moved from the first floor to the basement of the building so as to make additional room for the tax assessor's department. A delegation from the county bar association opposed the alteration and proposed that the assessor's department be shifted to the basement. That plan drew the opposition of Max Shumake, assessor-elect.

As a compromise, it finally was suggested by Guy Raley, tax collector, that no change at all be made for the present. The plan was accepted by the court.

New Organization To Collect Relics Of Texas Indians

ABILENE, Nov. 13. (AP)—Discovery, collection and classification of prehistoric artifacts and relics of early man and fossil remains are the objects of the West Texas Archaeological and Paleontological society organized here recently. Voluntary memberships have come from scientists and college professors, as well as others interested in the subject, from all parts of Texas west of Dallas.

The officers are Dr. Cyrus N. Ray, president; Dr. Julius Olsen, active vice president; and E. B. Sayles, secretary, all of Abilene. At a recent meeting four vice presidents were elected, as follows: Dr. J. A. Udden, Austin; Henry T. Fletcher, Alpine; Dr. John C. Granbury, Lubbock; and Col. M. L. Crimmins, U. S. A., retired, Fort Sam Houston.

Thirty-five Indian camp sites, hearths and workshops and at least one paint mine have been uncovered in Taylor and adjoining counties. Pictographs at Paint Rock and in the Big Bend districts are also subjects of study. Thousands of artifacts including arrowheads, bird points, mullers, scrapers, and hammerstones have been collected. The society plans a museum for the collection of these remains of a vanished race.

An annual bulletin under direction of the publication committee is planned. This committee is composed of Dr. Julius Olsen, Simmons university, chairman; Dr. W. C. Holden, McMurry college; and Frank Grimes, all of Abilene.

Chinese Men and Women Wear Same Brand of Sox

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—Chinese are advocates of "sox appeal."

Ernest L. Tutt, district manager of the U. S. department of commerce, has announced recently that communications show the Chinese not affecting oriental styles are wearing garters.

"Their sox," he added, "are from three to four inches longer than those we wear," and are worn by men and women alike."

Writer for Sophisticated Upbraids 'Em for Ignorance of Wichita Falls

Elmer Davis Tells New Yorkers They Are Losers in "High Hatting" Texas and Iowa "Inlanders"

Wichita Falls may draw a measure of pride, or something, from an article which appeared recently over the signature of Elmer Davis in the sophisticated "New Yorker" magazine, in which the writer pointedly suggests that New Yorkers cultivate a deeper understanding of the particular type of Americanism which abounds in many rapidly growing, progressive inland cities of which Wichita Falls is chosen constantly as being typical

Mr. Davis' recommendation of further effort on the part of New York to attain a more perfect cosmopolitanism opens with the statement that "seeing the cities of many men and learning their minds has been regarded for some three thousand years as a pretty good education," and he proceeds to praise the thoroughness with which visitors from inland states acquaint themselves with all of New York, even in a brief period. Continuing:

Lectures New Yorkers

"The resident on the sidewalk is apt to turn up a scornful nose at these bus sightseers, but the laugh is on their side; from their excursions they derive considerable amusement and a good deal of information. The visitor from Wichita Falls who spends an August fortnight in our midst goes home knowing a good deal more about New York than New Yorkers know about Wichita Falls, and he is that much ahead of us. You may say that New York is worth knowing, whereas who cares about Wichita Falls? True enough in the abstract, but it might not be a bad idea for New Yorkers to start learning something about Wichita Falls. We are all stewing together in the same melting pot, and I venture the assertion that a Nordic blond Baptist whose ancestors came over prior to 1820 may be just as much an American as the Siroccos and Kouyoundjians and Bronislavskys. So New Yorkers, whose Americanism is more recent and reputable might find it profitable to study these strange aborigines."

Tells of Visitors

New Yorkers who do not venture out of their own metropolitan precincts are referred by Mr. Davis to a group of representative inlanders, Wichitans and others, who are present in numbers of from 10,000 to 15,000 every summer on the campus of Columbia university in New York. During the first two weeks of this summer term, the article says, that portion of the city is gay with a brightness never seen there during the rest of the year, as the inland school teachers dress in their newest and finest for New York. But the visitors observe within a few days that neither their part of the city nor the climate of a seaboard summer demand this special attire.

"So the bright clothes go back into the wardrobe trunk, and out come the Palm Beach suits, the housedresses that serve for the hot weather back home in Wichita Falls. Like all the rest of us the summer students are at home in New York."

"Look 'Em Over"

These thousands of "immigrants," Davis declares, are not too busy in their quest of additional degrees to take full advantage of the opportunities for widening their circle of acquaintances and for exploring New York. The Texas colony which early in the period organizes itself brings Wichita Falls into closer touch with Houston, and is privileged on other occasions to fraternize with the Iowa clan. Chinatown and the Syrian colony are familiar to most of the summer students from the inland before a month has passed. Quoting Mr. Davis:

"Yes, they get a good deal of education in New York, and the New Yorker would get a good deal of education by spending an hour or so in looking them over. Their looks, their lives, their interest, their culture are foreign, nothing less, to the Manhattanite who has grown up on the pavements; and it would pay the Manhattanite to find out something about them. They explain Borah and William Allen White and Mabel Willebrandt, and if they know more about us than we know about them that is our bad luck, not theirs."

RADIO CHANGES PLEASE FANS

Messages Pour in To Station KGKO

Radio fans are pleased with the improvement in reception in the reallocation of wave lengths which became effective Sunday, according to J. M. Gilliam, general manager of station KGKO, and radio dealers in the city. Reports have been received by dealers and at station KGKO stating that stations at greater distances have been received since Sunday and that programs are heard with much greater clearness.

Reports and telegrams began to come in following the Monday evening programs, since complete installation of the new wave lengths was not effected until late Sunday night or early Monday.

A number of telegrams were received by station KGKO including a message from San Antonio where reception from Wichita Falls has been impossible until the reallocation of wave lengths. The wire stated that the program Monday evening was received clearly. Other wires came from fans in Borger, Fort Worth and San Angelo. Messages were also received from nearby towns, Mr. Gilliam said.

Letters will begin to pour into the offices of the station within a few days, Mr. Gilliam believes.

Interference with other stations in the state on the same wave length with station KGKO being eliminated since Sunday, fans are receiving clearer programs and are able to receive them from stations at greater distances, radio dealers have been told by local radio enthusiasts.

R. E. Shepherd, publicity director for the station, was able to "listen in" on a program from Nashville, Tenn., and heard the reading of wires to that station from all parts of the country, including points on the Western coast.

Cedars Spreading Hay Fever to Be Felled in Austin

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—The city council of Austin has taken steps to cut down the annual sneeze-age.

The city attorney will draw up an ordinance compelling the cutting of pollinating male cedar trees within the corporate limits—all on behalf of sufferers from hay fever, who will soon begin inhaling the flying pollen.

The chamber of commerce petitioned the city council to take action, in order to keep Austin residents afflicted with hay fever in Austin during the pollination period. The mayor and councilmen were told that Austin physicians were authority for the statement that between 2,000 and 4,000 residents of Austin are victims of the malady and that these had been advised by their physicians to absent themselves from Austin during the pollination period.

It was said that the legislature probably would be asked to enact legislation which would destroy pollinating male cedars within the radius of several miles of Austin. Pollen from the cedars travels on the wind from five to 15 miles, but cutting the trees in Austin would do much to relieve the situation, the council was told.

GALLOWAY AND TURGEON TO OPEN BOWLING ALLEYS SATURDAY

FORMAL START TUESDAY NIGHT

League and Women's Play Mark Winter's Pastime

A new sport is to be introduced in Wichita Falls. Announcement was made yesterday of the opening Saturday of the Spudder Bowling alleys, to be under the management of Jim Galloway, manager of the Wichita Falls baseball club, and Pete Turgeon, star second baseman of the local nine.

The introduction of the popular winter pastime of hitting the maple has been eagerly awaited here by sportsmen for several weeks since Turgeon and Galloway started construction of their alleys at 808½ Scott avenue. League will be formed and already several oil concerns and business houses have started the formation of teams.

There also will be days set aside for women to bowl, at the Spudder alleys, according to Pete and Jim.

Galloway and Turgeon will offer a recreation room high-class in all respects. They will have six bowling alleys. A radio will provide recreation for those who at the moment do not care to bowl. Light lunches will be available and all plans for the comfort and convenience of patrons are being made.

While the Spudder alleys will be opened Saturday, the formal opening is to be reserved for next Tuesday night.

Cardinal Leader Named by Dec. 1

Breadon Declines to Comment on His Choice

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13. (AP)—Informed tonight of the release of Roger Bresnahan by the New York Giants, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals refused to state whether Bresnahan was being considered as the 1922 manager of the Cardinals. Breadon, however, said he would name his manager before Dec. 1.

"I will not say who is a candidate for the position," Breadon explained, "but I will state that I intend to select the manager before the first of December."

Bill McKechnie, who piloted the Red Birds to a pennant this year, recently conferred with Breadon, but no announcement was made regarding a 1929 contract.

Bare Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—It begins to look as if New York state will have too many governors—or not enough—this season.

The election on the first Tuesday after the first opera night in November resulted in somebody being elected. But nobody knows who it is.

Franklin Roosevelt claims that he is governor and that Ottinger exhausts the quota.

Ottinger insists that he is elected by a scrambled majority and wants to know who threw the mice into the ballot box.

When asked to concede the official scenario, Ottinger said there was nothing to concede. He insists that they check up the vote again.

After they tabulate the statistics, then Roosevelt will step forth and say, "Now, you have counted it your way. Now we will count it my way."

They will keep this up until exhausted. When Ottinger is doing the addition, the Republicans will be triumphant.

When Roosevelt starts steering the adding machine it will be a glorious victory for the Democrats.

We don't mind how many times they check up the vote. What worries us is that they may get so enthusiastic that they will insist on running the campaign all over again and force us to listen to their speeches for the second time.

Of course, they could compromise. Roosevelt could wear the high hat and Ottinger might collect the salary.

So far as we are concerned, the election is over. As Al Smith said in his valedictory lament:

"It behooves me—"

It was the kid's last crack. There was no doubt that Al was behooved.

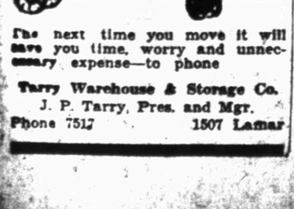

In the meantime, Ottinger refuses to take off his Sunday clothes. He intends to go to Albany and park himself in the high chair.

Roosevelt seems to have a majority of 25,000 Democratic votes. Ottinger claims he can offset that with three healthy Republicans and one election judge.

Unless the boys straighten out the tangled spaghetti it looks as if we will have to struggle along with two governors and call in a third one when necessary.

Dixie Sophomore Backs Star

Here are three of the South's unprecedented number of sophomore football stars. McEver showed the way to Tennessee's victory over Alabama. Lumpkin and Suther have distinguished themselves in all of their games.

By HORACE RENEGAR

ATLANTA, Nov. 13. (AP)—The greatest crop of sophomore football stars in the history of Dixie is bringing a harvest of touchdowns.

Southern conference coaches, formerly pessimistic regarding green young players, now are looking to these newcomers to turn the tide in important battles.

Rarely in the history of the nation's gridiron annals has a young team achieved such signal success as the University of Tennessee. The Volunteers, with only two first string men of 1927 returned, sent a sophomore outfit to the field good enough to defeat Alabama's Crimson Tide, one of the highly touted elevens of the country.

Hackman, McEver, Dodd, Hug, Thayer and other sophomore sensations of the team show promise of future ranking when the mythical all-star teams are selected. McEver is considered by many as one of the greatest halfback prospects in the history of the conference.

Georgia Tech has a couple of sophomore stars in Lumpkin and Dunlap. Lumpkin, a rather wiry type, can lift his knees and wade through a line, shaking off tacklers for long gains; he can race the ends and tackles to "death." Dunlap also has proved his worth at taking passes, running the flanks and all-around ability.

Alabama's Crimson Tide is introducing a noteworthy sophomore athlete in "Flash" Suther. This stocky, little player averages punting around 50 yards, can pass and is a canny runner in shifting through a line, reversing his field and ramming tackles. Many acclaim him as the greatest of the Dixie sophomores.

Carlisle Beall, an accurate passer, of South Carolina; Thibadeau of Washington and Lee; Gerald Walker of the University of Mississippi; Maus and Spaulding of North Carolina; Red Bethea of Florida; and many others are proving their worth in the first year on varsity squads.

Joplin Considered By Western League

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 13. (AP)—Officials of the Joplin Western association club have been advised by W. R. Doans, owner of the Amarillo, Texas, Western league club, that he will be in the city soon to confer with George Cochrane, business manager, and Owner William Fleischaker concerning the transfer here of the Amarillo team.

Doane, who has made no definite choice of a 1929 berth for his team, is looking over a field of prospective cities and will be in Joplin to see what the possibility is of locating here.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION CHARGES "TAMPERING"

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 13 (AP)—Declaring that attempts are being made by the Western league, particularly by the Amarillo club, to "tamper" with Western association territory at Joplin, Al. G. Eckert, president of the Springfield Midgets, declared today that any move of the class A circuit to grab the Miner franchise would be vigorously opposed by the Midgets, as well as by at least two or three other clubs in this league.

This statement was made by Eckert following an announcement from Joplin that W. R. Doane, owner of the Amarillo club, will be in Joplin soon to confer with owner William Fleschaker, and Business Manager George Cochran concerning the proposed transfer of the Amarillo franchise to the Miner city for 1929.

"Amarillo has no more right to interfere with Joplin than the Texas league had a right in the Oklahoma City-Tulsa case" Eckert declared. "If the Western league wants Joplin let them go through the proper channels to get that city by purchasing the territory from the Western association. The Amarillo club has no right to make Joplin an offer and it is only stirring up trouble."

Experts to Demand Explanation For So Many Upsets in Rootball

Prognosticators Growing Weary of Seeing Dope Kicked Over By Teams Who Have No Business to Win

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—If any more of these sure things in football go wrong, the experts will be having some of the boys up before the stewards for an explanation. The experts are getting sick and tired of being tossed around by the results.

The experts have been left quite groggy by the Notre Dame triumph over the Sojers. In fact, a number of our best known experts (including Larry Dailey) have been "bobbing," as we say in the sour science, since that eventful transaction at Jake Ruppert's stadium Saturday.

The Sojers were 1 to 2, and it seemed a shame to take the money.

Well, well, well, well, well, well, well, as the fellow said. You never can tell. It looks as if we'll have to fall back on Princeton as the hope of the East, and Princeton will probably tangle up the experts again by getting knocked off by Yay-Hale.

"But ah!" say the experts. "If the pastime had proceeded another minute, the Sojers would have been recorded the winners by 13 to 12, assuming that they had kicked goal off that touchdown that was imminent when the final whistle sounded."

I cannot assume any such thing. In fact, I must assume to the contrary. I have come to the conclusion that there is a secret rule at West Point that prohibits a Sojer kicking goal from a touchdown. I haven't seen one do it so far this season. The best I can give the Sojers is a tie. I mean if they had grabbed that touchdown. Which reminds me of the story about the rabbit. If it hadn't stopped.

Irish Stop Cagling

Mr. Knoot Rockne unveiled enough fighting spirit in Notre Dame to take the bastile. The South Benders played a whoop-tee-doo, huffle-scuffle game, as if figuring, "well, we're going to get licked, but we'll let 'em know they've been in a fight."

The cagling was rather ordinary in the early stages of the game—that is, ordinary for Cagle. I thought it was largely due to the fact that some industrious young South Benders were constantly taking dead aim at "onward Christian." They were making gestures at him even when he was just sort o' standing at parade rest.

A guy named Miller of Notre Dame, struck me as unusually truculent in his attitude toward "onward Christian." Every time Cagle stirred he'd find Miller tangled up in his legs. Or sometimes it would be Law. Finally Cagle got mad, and broke out on all sides at once.

He put forth the most astounding efforts in the closing minutes, like a guy fighting the last round at top speed. Those of us who had been three-sheeting "onward Christian" were proud citizens then. We could lift our heads, and glare around, and say:

"There, now! Ain't he just what we told you?"

Cagle remains a marvelous football player in spite of the Army defeat. And if there is a better end than Messinger of the Sojers, I'd like to see him.

But you've got to give old Knoot, and his South Benders, plenty of credit, too. More than the Sojers. They're a rootin', tootin', cuttin' shootin' outfit, those lads from Indiana.

Fears for Sojers

My confidence in the ability of the Sojers to put those west coasters in their places ebbs somewhat. I have been stoically enduring the threats of Mr. Edwardus Frayne, and numerous other transplanted Californians as to what Stanford will do to the Sojers Dec. 1 in this man's town, feeling certain that I would presently have my revenge.

But now I don't know. It is within the bounds of possibility that Stanford may keep Cagle from cagling just as Notre Dame did. As far as that goes, I am commencing to fear that those corn-fed Nebraskans may annoy the Sojers no little Saturday, the 24th. Perhaps soften 'em up further for Stanford.

By the by, there is coming to our town to officiate in that game as referee, a young man from out of Kansas City, who is worth your kind attention.

He is Mr. Edward Cochrane, sporting editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, and the leading authority on football, baseball, boxing, and all such as that, in those parts. He will first referee the game between Missouri and New York university on Nov. 17, then go to West Point for the other game the following week.

Mr. Edward Cochrane is not only young. He is handsome. Maybe he has money. I don't know. But in any event, he should be a treat for the eyes of the female football fans of these parts. He is officiating in 28 games this fall. That shows you that he must be quite an official.

If Mayor Walker has a spare key to the city handy he might give it to Mr. Edward Cochrane.

Stanford, Not Leland

You must not call Stanford Leland Stanford. I mean to say you must not use the Leland. Just call it Stanford. Like Yale. Or Harvard. Leland was the first name of the California pioneer whose name endowed the college. So they called it Leland Stanford. Probably Yale was formerly Eli Yale, and Harvard was John Harvard. I don't know.

But it seems Stanford has long since dropped the Leland. Although the legal name of the institution is the Leland Stanford Junior university. However, this style is used only in legal documents.

"No local newspaper man would think of writing 'Leland Stanford'," solemnly warns Mr. Gwynne Willett in a recent communication to me. "Furthermore, as you can easily verify in the mailing room of any New York newspaper, the name of the United States postoffice, as listed in the U. S. official postal guide, is Stanford university, Santa Clara county, California."

Hereafter I guess I'll behave.

RICKARD TALKS WITH DEMPSEY

Tex Intimates Jack Will Return to Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Two wealthy business men sat down today to discuss through the smoke of mild Havanas everything pertaining to the fight game except the chances of one of them, Jack Dempsey, returning to active competition.

The boss of Madison Square Garden came back today after a six-week vacation in Florida. His return was the signal for the prompt appearance of Dempsey and revival of all the rumors of a new comeback attempt to be staged by the old Manassa Mauler next summer.

For more than two hours, Dempsey, in a most congenial and receptive mood, talked of fights and fighters, with Rickard and a host of newspapermen. He discussed the advantages of Florida as a winter training ground, analyzed the fighting qualities of Paulino Uzcudun, and agreed the Spaniard would be an ideal opponent in the event of a comeback.

The former champion was careful to avoid mention of his oft reiterated statement that he was "through with the ring forever." He appeared restless, anxious to find an outlet for the nervous energy that keeps him continually "on the go." When he had left the room, Rickard smiled a benign smile, and said:

"A few more months and the big fellow will be begging for a fight. He just can't stay inactive."

While the business of today, on the surface at least, was to cement again the friendly relations that have had much to do with the millions both promoter and boxer have made together, Rickard said business of a comeback would be discussed.

AL SMITH WILL MAKE VISIT INTO MISSISSIPPI

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 13 (INS)—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, accompanied by John J. Carrington, a personal friend of Smith, said he held a telephone conversation with the governor last night.

Big Crowd Looms For Texas-Frogs

Fort Worth Stadium May Be Filled Saturday

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 13 (AP).—Brisk advance sale of tickets indicates another big crowd at the Texas Christian university stadium Saturday when the Texas university Longhorns and the T. C. U. Horned Frogs meet in a game that will send one of the two on a side track in the race to overtake Southern Methodist university.

In fact, the advance sale indicates that the stadium might be entirely filled for the first time this season.

The importance of the game, the fact that the two seem pretty evenly matched in the light of recent scores made by both against Baylor and Rice institute, will draw the fans. It will be the major collegiate tilt in this section that day, too, the S. M. U. Mustangs going to Waco to meet the Bruins of Morley Jennings.

George Says That He'll Meet Pola

LONDON, Nov. 13. (UP)—George Bernard Shaw would be delighted to meet Pola Negri, film star, he said today.

The Sunday Dispatch had reported that Miss Negri would fly from Paris to London to interview Shaw with a view to buying one of his plays for the screen.

Shaw said no interview had been arranged.

Regarding the filming of one of his plays, he added that "nothing has been arranged but my shop is open."

COYOTES DRILL FOR LUBBOCK

McCallum's Pack Engages In Hard Tilt Saturday

By GORDON FULCHER

Facing one of the hardest games of the season and the first of their two remaining games, the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes continued their hard grind Tuesday in preparation for an encounter with Lubbock high school Westerners here Saturday afternoon at Athletic park.

No serious injuries were sustained last week by the Coyotes, though three shining linemen were declared ineligible on their studies Monday by school officials. Jack West, husky tackle, will be out for the fourth straight week on his scholastic standings while Ed Bell and Clarence Bains, two regulars, will be absent for the first time this year on their studies.

The game with the Westerners will no doubt furnish plenty of entertainment for Coach A. Y. McCallum's aggregation. They are tied with the Pack in the conference race with several impressive victories to their credit during the season.

The Coyotes' attack this week will no doubt center almost wholly, as far as offensive activites are concerned, around Kenneth Mills, fullback, and Dale Davis, halfback. Mills has been the big offensive threat of the team throughout the season while Davis did not come through with considerable power until the game with Vernon three weeks ago.

Jerry Elliott probably will be first choice at the other halfback while Morris Lee is practically sure of receiving the assignment at quarterback.

HORNSBY SIGNS CONTRACT AND BRIGHTENS CUB FLAG HOPES

ROG'S SALARY NEAR $40,000

Holdover Agreement With Braves Has 2 More Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. (US)—The "Rajah" is now a Bruin.

Breezing into Chicago today Rogers Hornsby gripped fists with William L. Veeck and William Wrigley Jr.—and signed on the dotted line.

And the Cubs now have another reason why Chicago is due for at least one pennant at the close of the 1929 baseball whirligig.

"I hope I will be able to make the base hits that will win some of those games like the ones the Cubs lost last season by 3 to 2 and 4 to 3 scores," Hornsby said.

In signing Hornsby the Cubs assumed the terms of the contract he held with Boston which contract is said to run for two more years at a salary of $32,000 to $40,000. Though there is some doubt as to the "Rajah's" actual salary — he is known to be the best paid private in the majors, excepting Babe Ruth.

Paulino Menace To Heavyweights

Not Title Contender but Ends Others' Ambitions

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (UP)—There is just this much to be said about the heavyweight situation, if you must talk about it at all:

Someone has got to pop this Paulino person upon his squat proboscis, and do it so thoroughly that Senor Uzcudun doesn't come unpopped. Otherwise, the Basque will continue, in his blithe, blundering, but withal good natured way, to constitute a real hindrance to nordic supremacy in the cauliflower industry.

It is not so much that this Paulino person is a potential successor to Gene Tunney, but that he provides an obstacle to the laudable ambitions of other potential heavyweight champions.

About the time a boxer gets to be pretty good, and there is talk of his being a coming champion, it develops that he cannot whip the Basque and then the searchers for a logical contender have to start in all over again.

Dempsey Could Pop Him

There is one man who is skipping the rope and wrestling with a sand bag in a nearby gymnasium as this is being written, who could, if he would, solve the problem of what is to be done about Paulino.

Jack Dempsey is getting himself into condition, for something. He says it is just his health, but there is a suspicion that he is not exactly wasting away physically. His health, as a matter of fact, is in better shape than his pocketbook.

The former champion would be just the man to lean heavily against the Uzcudun chin and then retire to a neutral corner. That might make Dempsey champion of the world again, but there have been worse champions and many think none better.

Few of the other potential contenders for the vacant title care to get into the ring with Paulino. He is a tramp fighter, but he makes them look bad. There is no satisfaction in outpointing him. What is needed is a solid pop on the button. And Jack Dempsey is just about the only popper of that kind in sight. The former champion may be working out for exercise and it may be that he is practicing popping.

Paulino Fights Renault

Paulino, having no pressing engagements with what they are using for heavyweights in Dempsey's absence, will resume his trade of tramp fighter with appearances in South America next month.

At Cali, Colombia, where what are known as the South American Olympic games, will be held between Christmas and New Year's, the Basque will box Jack Renault, rotund Canadian heavyweight, who is being specially propped up for the occasion.

If Renault lives, he probably will go on down and wrestle Luis Angel Firpo for the championship of the Pampas. Both are shaped like the Japanese wrestlers in the quaint old prints.

One thing is certain, Paulino, on his travels, is not likely to get close enough to Firpo to exchange "vivas." The big, busy South American wants no part of Paulino. In that respect, at least, Firpo qualifies for the society of American heavyweights.

New Game Modeled on Baseball Tried Out By San Antonio Players

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 13. (AP)—Baseball in abbreviated form was introduced here today under the name of point ball. Only six players are required to a side and the infield, instead of the diamond square, is a triangle with only three points instead of four bases, although as in baseball, they are 90 feet apart. The players are known as receiver, pitcher, first and second pointmen and left and right outguards.

The game was invented by J. L. Yarborough, a director of the San Antonio club of the Texas Baseball league, who had worked on the plan for several months. He tried it out for the first time with professionals today. Shortstop Flaskamper and Pitcher Watt chose the opposing teams.

Three balls will walk a batter, two strikes will retire a batter and four foul balls after on strike is registered will retire a batter.

Otherwise the rules of the game adhere closely to baseball.

The game is played in faster time than baseball and for that reason ten sessions constitute a game.

In five sessions played Sunday in 45 minutes, Watt's team won 12 to 3.

ILLINI TO PLAY KANSAS IN 1929

Jayhawkers Add Emporia Teachers to Schedule

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 13. (US)—The University of Illinois and the Kansas State Teachers' college of Emporia will be new teams to be added to the 1929 football schedule of the University of Kahsas, it was announced today by Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics at K. U.

The Jayhawkers will meet Illinois in Urbana Oct. 5 and the K. S. T. C. team will oppose the Kansans in Lawrence the following Saturday, Oct. 12. The contracts for games next year with these two schools were signed yesterday by Dr. Allen after they had been approved by the athletic board.

The Jayhawker-K. S. T. C. battle, marking the first time the two teams have met on the gridiron in several years, will be the feature attraction of "Bill Hargiss" day, according to present plans.

Six other games, five of which will be with Big Six conference foes, will make up the next year's schedule at Kansas. Only one open date remains and that is Nov. 16. Athletic officials are negotiating with a number of schools for a game in Lawrence on that date but nothing definite was ready to announce today. The schedule:

Oct. 5—University of Illinois at Urbana.
Oct. 13—Kansas State Teachers at Lawrence.
Oct. 19—Kansas Aggies at Lawrence.
Oct 26—Iowa State College at Ames.
Nov. 2—University of Nebraska at Lincoln.
Nov. 9—University of Oklahoma at Norman.
Nov. 16—Open date.
Nov. 23—University of Missouri at Lawrence.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

ONLY SIX MAJOR collegiate elevens have not been defeated or tied this season. Four which had not been beaten but one that was tied, fell in the shattering of championship illusions of last week. Georgia Tech., Tennessee and Florida in the south; Nebraska and Iowa in the middle west, and Carnegie Tech in the east, are the only teams which play representative schedules that have won all their games.

◇ ◇ ◇

Army, Georgetown, Vanderbilt and Ohio State sustained their first reversals last Saturday. Three teams have not been beaten but ties mar their records. Princeton has been tied by Virginia, Ohio State and Michigan, Wisconsin by Purdue and Utah by Creighton. Utah hardly can be classed as a leading team, though there is no question that the Utes dominate football in the Rocky mountain sector.

◇ ◇ ◇

INTERSECTIONAL games and combats between traditional rivals again feature football next Saturday. The leading S. M. U. Ponies of the Southwestern conference play Baylor at Waco. Texas meets Texas Christian at Fort Worth and Texas Aggies play Rice at College Station.

◇ ◇ ◇

UNBEATEN HOSTS of Georgia Tech and Tennessee battle Alabama and Vanderbilt, respectively in feature southern engagements. Florida plays Clemson. Georgia meets Louisiana State and V. P. I. clashes with Washington and Lee.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE BIG TEN TITLE is at stake again this week. Iowa and Wisconsin meet at Iowa City and as they are the only unbeaten teams in the league, a Western conference champion will emerge from that encounter. Nebraska plays Pittsburgh, Chicago meets Illinois, Haskell Indians play Minnesota, Indiana takes on Northwestern, Iowa State has a date with Kansas State, Oklahoma goes to Kansas and Michigan clashes with Michigan State in other important middle western games. The feature in that section, however, is the battle of Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame, which in view of the Skibos' unbeaten record and the Irish victory over Army makes this one of the outstanding combats of the day.

◇ ◇ ◇

Yale and Princeton resume rivalry of more than half a century. Both teams are strong this season and a close battle looms. New York meets Missouri in an intersectional melee and Cornell engages Dartmouth in other outstanding games in the effete section which also will see the following contests: Amherst vs. Williams, Bucknell vs. Washington and Jefferson, Columbia vs. Pennsylvania, Harvard vs. Holy Cross, Lafayette vs. Penn State and West Virginia vs. Georgetown.

◇ ◇ ◇

IMPORTANT games are scheduled out in the far west, including Stanford vs. Washington, Oregon vs. Oregon Aggies, Southern California vs. Washington State and Colorado Aggies vs. Denver.

St. Edward's Faces Drop From Conference Battle

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Unless it shows a complete reversal of form Friday and keeps it, the St. Edward's university football team will be out of the Texas conference race for this year. Last Saturday's game with the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets revealed a Saint team lacking its customary fire.

SERVICE BREAK AID TO OTHERS

Army-Navy Rift Gives Big Ten Teams Juicy Plums

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—The agreement to disagree between Army and Navy has made some juicy football plums for other institutions, notably members of the Western conference.

Navy's schedule for next season in part calls for the Midshipmen to go to Columbus to play Ohio State with the Buckeyes returning to the call in 1930. Navy and Notre Dame will play Oct. 12, the Naval academy schedule being rounded out with eastern teams, three of the "big shots" being Princeton, Pennsylvania and Georgetown. The first two are on this year's cards, but the Hilltoppers from Washington are newcomers.

Harvard and Yale will be played by Army on successive Saturdays in October as was the case this year.

The makeup of the Army schedule for 1929 makes it difficult to see how a Navy game can be slipped into the football calendar without embarrassing even the hardy Soldiers, unless a place should be found between the Notre Dame game, Nov. 30, and the Stanford clash, Dec. 28.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today and somewhat irregular but on the whole showed a steady undertone and a moderate advance on expectations of full figures on domestic consumption for October and trade buying. After selling at 19.50 at the start, January reacted to 19.39 under southern selling or realizing, but later advanced to 19.61, and closed at 19.54, compared with 19.43 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 8 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points, in sympathy with relatively steady Liverpool cables, but there was some hedging which with further realizing or liquidation supplied the initial demand and caused reactions of several points. December sold off to 19.44, and May to 19.26 under this early pressure, making net losses of about 4 to 6 points, but the offerings tapered off at these figures, and the market steadied later on covering and trade buying.

Reports of increased activity in some New England mill centers and reiterated talk of probable large figures on domestic mill consumption for October promoted the demand, and there seemed comparatively little cotton for sale during the middle of the day. December sold up to 19.65 and May to 19.49, making net advances of about 15 to 18 points on the active months but the market met a little more selling at these figures and later fluctuations were irregular with the close showing reactions of about 5 to 7 points from the best. Private reports of a somewhat steadier spot basis in some sections of the eastern belt, may have contributed to the midday advance, while there were reports that trade interests with European connections were among the buyers here during the day.

The demand from the trade was supposed to be largely responsible for the absorption of the early offerings, and there was talk of a firmer technical position on the advances. Private cables said that continental buying and trade calling had absorbed a little liquidation and some light hedge selling in the Liverpool market and also reported a broadening demand for cotton cloths in Manchester. Exports today 43,889, making 2,801,496 so far this season. Port receipts 80,517. U. S. port stocks 2,282,425.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13. (AP)—Trading in cotton contracts was decidedly active today although price fluctuations were comparatively narrow. The general trend of the market, however, was upward, prices being influenced by a bullish private consumption total and expectations of a large official total tomorrow. At the highest January contracts traded at 19.07, and closed at 18.97, compared with 18.81, the day's low, and 18.82, Saturday's closing quotation. The general market closed steady at net advances of 15 to 25 points.

Liverpool cables were favorable and the opening here was firm, first trades showing an advance of 9 to 12 points. The initial firmness was due in part to adjustment of local prices with the advance in New York and Liverpool yesterday while the market here was closed. Prices continued to advance after the start under trade buying and price fixing until December sold at 18.90, January 18.85 and March 18.96, or 13 to 17 points above the previous close.

Demand tapered off at the advance and the higher prices attracted profit taking by early buyers which carried the price level 14 to 15 points down from the highs and almost parallel with Saturday's close. Towards noon, however, the issuance of a bullish consumption total of 615,000 bales by a private authority brought out rather free covering by shorts. There was also more or less trade buying attributed to the active stock market.

During the afternoon the market was active but fluctuated within a range of 9 to 10 points, final prices being 7 to 10 points under the top with December closing at 18.91 and March at 18.97.

Steel Gibraltar Is Steadying Bulwark on Wayward Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (US)—Impressive buying of steel common rallied the stock market today after early hours of irregularity. Heavier profit taking had offset the influence of continued ease in money during the early hours and put most issues lower. Steel held like Gibralter throughout, however, and when general recovery started moved ahead with increasing vigor to close in new high ground for gain of over 4 point Sears Roebuck with 17 points advanced enjoyed the best individual gain while International Cement jumped 5 points, Gold Dust 6 and American Linseed close to 4 points. Erie with gain of 2 points held place among the leaders of a generally firm railroad department while Sinclair and Richfield were most prominent of an otherwise rather quiet oil group.

Call money remained at 6 per cent throughout with apparently an abundance of funds available although the banks usually have to tighten up on Tuesdays for the mid-week adjustment with the reserve. Increased buying in the final hour brought total for the day to 5,340,600 shares.

'What's the Answer?'

"What's the answer?" All Wall street asks the question and many add "what holds the market up?" Frenzied, record breaking trading such as experienced Monday normally is followed by profit taking that starts corrective reaction of consequence. That it took good support to hold the market up today, not alone bringing about the final rally, was rather evident. Cutten, Durant and other market leaders are admittedly far-sighted and have considerable experience. Their activity in recent years has been accompanied by increasing talk of a "new era." They do not support stocks without reason. From all indications they remain bullish on "good stocks" and when they make known the "answer" their position should be fully explained.

Oils Rampant

Sinclair's closing burst of activity was in part due to scheduled arrival in New York tomorrow of one of its best friends. Within a few days, it was rumored, more will be made known of the plans for expansion of Sinclair's activities and properties. In this connection the consistent strength of Pan American is pointed to. Richfield added another point to its gain following announcement of arrangement for getting added production from the Doheny properties. Mexican Seaboard again established a new high record price. First sample of the oil it is producing in California has arrived here and proved to be the nearest thing to pure gasoline ever taken from the ground.

Montgomery Ward Lower

Montgomery Ward and Associated Dry Goods both closed lower although there was rumor of eventual combination. This would add to the income already increased by the growing chain of retail distributing agencies. Radio fluctuated widely again and closed lower but Keith-Albee recovered steadily coincident with further bullish estimates as to the betterment that would result from the combination with the radio interests. General Electric resumed its advance coincident with further talk of plans of the Electric Bond and Share interests in connection with which it was pointed out that book value of the Electric Bond stock is near $160 a share. Strength of Gold Dust and Linseed reflected knowledge of further expansion plans of the Gold Dust controlling interests.

The "Big Ten"

The manner in which huge profit taking in General Motors was absorbed continued to surprise veterans in the street. Once again support was credited to dominant intrests in the "Big Ten" who are in a position to know more of Motors' affairs than any other group. Whispers regarding plans of the management for increasing business gave strength to hope that the earnings of 1929 would exceed this year's record showing. In addition Motors comprises one of the important holdings of the Big Ten so that when they give the "answer to the market" the stock of the corporation will be materially influenced.

Reports of additional gold shipments to this country failed to rally sterling and it held at the low of Monday in a generally dull foreign exchange market. Improved reports from trade circles caused rally in cotton in quiet trading while wheat and other grains held firm in a dull market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Firm prices were maintained around the 11-market circuit on the better grades of fed steers and yearlings, but short fed kinds ruled weak to 25c lower with the outlet especially narrow on medium grade steers with weight; at Chicago highly finished fed steers showed a moderate advance; other killing classes of cattle were little changed; stocker and feeder steers were in fairly broad demand with stockers predominating in the supply; Chicago had a top of $17.35 on yearlings and realized $17.30 on weighty steers; the supply approximated 49,400 as compared with 36,007 last Tuesday and 51,847 the same day last year.

Hogs received another price setback of 15 to 25c; trade however was marked by considerable activity which is an indication that further declines this week are unlikely unless receipts prove larger than anticipated; the day's extreme top of $9.15 was paid at St. Louis; total offerings 121,450 an increase of 34,000 over a week ago and 15,500 more than a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. (AP)—Argentine reports of probable crop damage by rust did a good deal to hoist the wheat market today. Besides, for the first time in weeks, the United States wheat visible supply showed a decrease. There was also wheat buying to anticipate possibility that the Canadian government crop report this evening would prove bullish.

Final quotations on wheat were firm, ¼c to ⅝c a bushel net higher, with corn ⅛c to ½c to ⅝c up; oats at ¼c to ⅝c to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

Highest prices of the day in wheat were reached after announcement that the domestic visible supply of wheat showed a decrease of 323,000 bushels, whereas another increase had been looked for. However, the total is yet 133,921,000 bushels against 90,783,000 bushels last year. Meanwhile, strength displayed by the Winnipeg market gave countenance to reports circulated in some quarters that the official estimate of 1928 wheat production in Canada would favor the bull side of the market. Largely as a consequence, the close here was at almost the day's top level.

Stubborn commission house demand in the face of selling to realize profits carried corn up to the highest prices which March and May deliveries have reached yet this season. Earlier, favorable weather throughout the corn belt and liberal arrivals of corn here today had a bearish effect. Country offerings though, were small, and late advices said exporters were bidding direct to country dealers for Illinois corn. Oats followed other cereals upgrade.

Scattered buying of provisions more than offset the influence of lower quotations on hogs.

Game Commission's Revenue Near Half Million During Fiscal Year

Gain of $75,000 Shown; Progress In Conservation and Propagation Brought Out In Report

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—Earnings of the State Fish, Game and Oyster commission from hunting and fishing licenses, fines, fish taxes and the sale of sand shell and gravel, increased 20 per cent during the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, it was shown in the annual report submitted today to Governor Dan Moody by Will Tucker, game commissioner.

Total collections for the year were $469,155.08 and disbursements were $418,666.63. Aggregate balance in funds on Aug. 31 amounted to $547,551.31, compared to $497,022.86 on Sept. 1, 1927.

Total Over $75,000

Hunting and trapping revenues increased 33 per cent and other combined revenues averaged an increase of 7 per cent, making a total increase of $75,634.87. This does not include interests on deposits or the oil royalties which terminated during 1927.

During the year there were 104,703 resident hunting licenses issued, and 30,181 trapping permits granted.

"Widespread enlightenment has left little room for the dissenter who fancies that the hunting and fishing liberties of 30 years ago represented the highest good," the report said. "The new day of conservation is here in its noontide strength, and the department is firmly established. It should be evident to even the casual observer that no backward steps will be taken and that Texas, with its frontiers of game, must assume leadership rather than trail behind other states in protective efforts.

"Blanket statements as to the increse or decrease of species is difficult but there has been a gradual increase in certain areas.

Eternal Triangle

"There is an eternal triangle of life in Texas fauna, the hunter, the predatory animal and the climate. The predatory animal hunts day and night in both open and closed seasons. Adverse climate works not so much in the destruction of the actual supply as in the prevention of increase. The hunter, with these allies, was able to deplete game to a low level until law enforcement became effective.

"A fair increase of deer, quail and turkeys in favored portions of the state has occurred since our report of a year ago. The largest increase naturally has occurred on the game preserves which in extent have now reached the righ mark of 3,000,000 acres. Credit is also given to large ranch owners in the Kerville region and in South Texas, where hunting has been restricted to a degree consistent with normal increase.

Some 80 game and coastal deputies, more than have ever been employed before, have given effective service as shown by a doubling of the number of game fines over last year. But it is not to be assumed that protection has been at all adequate when one man is expected to cover three or more counties and follow the movements of hundreds of hunters."

Hatchery Built Here

Referring to fish propaganda, the report stated that "the polyglot army is naturally making tremendous inroads on the supply of fish in lakes and streams, which the department is endeavoring to restock from its hatcheries. A new hatchery was built in Wichita Falls and work is under way on a hatchery near Brownsville."

Improvement of oyster culture on the coast is to be sought through an amendment of the law liberalizing the provision for making leases on reefs. Abatement of the pollution menace in many portions of the state, has been a big part of the year's work. Five men devoted their entire time to this work, and they in cooperation with all deputies, have made the pollution law effective, the report said.

"A number of persons and corporations have been prosecuted and scores of others have joined heartily in the department's program of clean waters," it was stated. Oil companies have spent enormous sums of money to take care of their waste. The anti-pollution fight must be a continuous fight, with eternal vigilance the price of reward."

It took the ticker 51 minutes after the close to record the final transactions. NURSERY APPEAL

Baby Beds Needed By Wichita Falls Institution

Who has an outgrown baby bed? Or if any woman has a pair of grown-up twins, are their beds taking up room in the attic?

The Day Nursery needs eight baby beds. Tuesday was a hectic day at the nursery, according to the superintendent. Sixty-five children were cared for, and when time came for afternoon naps, there were not enough beds. The superintendent tried putting two small boys in each bed, and found that sleep was out of the question when they preferred to pummel each other with pillows rather than take a nap.

Baby beds are expensive, and officials of the Day Nursery hope to obtain them from interested patrons who have beds that are not in use.

Is Happiest Woman In Wichita, Mrs. Jackson Says

Feels She Would Be Ungrateful Not to Tell Others of Orgatone

"I believe I'm the happiest woman in Wichita Falls, today, and it's all because of what Orgatone has done for me," said Mrs. Blanche Jackson, residing at 606 Travis street, Wichita Falls, Texas, in conversation with the Orgatone representative the other day.

When asked if she objected to having her statement published, Mrs. Jackson said: "No, indeed, go right ahead and put it in the papers—it would be ungrateful not to tell other suffering people about this wonderful medicine." Continuing she said:

"For several years I suffered from a complication of troubles, which finally developed into a general run-down nervous condition. I had awful pains in my side which I was told was caused from gall bladder disorder. I took all kinds of medicine and treatments but just continued to get worse all the time, and I hardly ever had a minute's peace. I was so nervous and restless I was upset a great deal of the time, and it seemed impossible to get a good night's sleep.

"Orgatone was recommended so highly by people right here in Wichita Falls, by people who have used it I decided to give it a trial, and it is simply wonderful what this medicine did for me. I began to feel better after the first few doses, my nerves became calm and I could sleep better. As I continued taking the medicine all the pains in my sides and stomach disappeared, and my strength has been returning rapidly. My stomach seems to be in perfect condition, and I'm like a different woman. I am recommending this wonderful medicine to all my friends and if everybody knew what a fine medicine Orgatone is there would be less suffering in this world."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug Co., 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Today { At the Theaters

MAJESTIC—Last times of "The Foreign Legion" with Lewis Stone and Kerry Norman. Paramount newsreel. Comedy. Football short subject.

STRAND—"The Home Towners," with Richard Bennett and Doris Kenyon. Two vitaphone vaudeville subjects. Pathe newsreel.

OLYMPIC—On the vaudeville stage Lillian Murry and Elmer Wright in "Childhood Days." Marie Provost in "The Girl in the Pullman." Comedy. Fox newsreel.

MISSION—Corine Griffith in "The Garden of Eden." Comedy.

GARDEN—Lon Chaney in "Laugh Clown, Laugh." Comedy.

A new nightmare presents itself to Hollywood film players. They used to complain about "the face on the cutting room floor" that is, the scenes in which they appeared that fell before the cutter's shears.

Now they have something else to worry about—something more up-to-date. Not only are they apt to lose their favorite scenes, but their choicest bits of dialog are likely to fall before the wrath of the censor. And before long we will be hearing about the "voice on the cutting room floor."

Lon Chaney appears in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" at the Garden theater for the next two days. Those who did not have the opportunity of seeing the picture when it appeared at the Majestic theater some time ago will undoubtedly see Chaney in the great film of show life on the continent. Perhaps the picture might have been named "Pagliacci," or some other title fitting the action, but people might have shied away from it, you know, if it carried a high sounding name like that. It could easily have been mistaken for grand opera.

Corrine Griffith, a Mineral Wells girl, if there are any Texans who have forgotten that the most beautiful woman in filmdom comes from there, is being shown at the Mission in "The Garden of Eden." "Sorrell and Son" with H. B. Warner starring was scheduled to appear at the Mission on the Tuesday to Thursday program but that film will be held up and will probably be shown later.

Vaudeville fans in the city are eagerly looking forward to this week's bill at the Majestic for Thursday and Friday. Advance comments are indicative that the bill will be as excellent as the bill of the past week, which will probably rate as one of the best of the season.

The Zippity Zip musical comedy company at the Olympic theater will stage "Sawdust Parents" for Wednesday and Thursday, with Lillian Murry taking the comedy role of an old woman. This is said to be the feature show the company will play during its engagement here. Lillian and Elmer Wright are adding new laurels to their crowns and are annexing new followers daily.

Adolphe Menjou, who symbolizes all that is suave and sophisticated in pictures, will break his silence with his next picture "The Concert," a 100 per cent talking picture. This is regarded by the Paramount Picture corporation as one of the most important announcements of the present film season.

The Steam Roller	Mayor J. W. Akin
Steam Roller Nemesis	Alderman Roy Carter
The Voting Alderman	Alderman Oral Jones
The Missing City Dad	Alderman J. H. Patton
The Hard Working Clerk	W. E. McBroom
The Legal Light	Thelbert Martin
The Silent Boss	George W. Fairtrace

Minor city officials, council chamber curiosity and thrill seekers, newspaper reporters, etc, etc.

Time—8:30 o'clock Monday night.

Place—City council chamber.

Scene—Almost a stormy one.

Mayor Akin—I believe the city clerk now has a couple of ordinances to present. You may proceed, Mr. Clerk.

Mr. McBroom the city clerk—We have Ordinance No. 1008 up for second reading. It is the ordinance explaining the construction to be placed on certain clauses, words and expressions in other city ordinances, heretofore passed and approved by the city.

Mayor Akin—All right. All in favor of passing ordinance No. 1008 on second reading please signify by saying "Aye." Bang! It is so ordered.

Alderman King, the truthseeker—Hay! Wait a minute. I want to talk about it. Don't we get a chance to discuss these things?

Mayor Akin—The question has already been put. Besides, we can discuss it next week when it comes up for third reading if we wish.

Alderman Carter—That's all right, but I don't think we should employ or allow any steam roller methods. If anyone wants to discuss the ordinance he should have the time to do it.

Alderman Hunt—Mr. Mayor, I move you that we reconsider the ordinance.

(On a unanimous vote led by Alderman Jones the motion to reconsider was passed).

Alderman Hunt—I move, now, that we pass the ordinance on second reading.

Mayor Akin—Gentlemen, you have heard the motion. Is there any discussion?

Alderman King—I wish to ask the city attorney, Mr. Martin, if the clause which requires plumbers to show their licenses upon demand to any citizen might not be the means of possible trouble. The ordinance requires a record of licenses be kept in the city clerk's office for inspection, and it also requires all plumbers to display in a prominent place at their place of business at all times their license certificate. It seems to me those things safeguard the public and that this other clause might be the cause of grief if any troubles arose or anyone sought to pester plumbers at work.

Mr. Martin—That is not the intention of the ordinance, but it is possible that such a condition might arise.

Alderman King—I suggest, Mr. Mayor, that the clause be deleted.

Mayor Akin—If Alderman Hunt wishes, we will incorporate the suggestion in his motion which is now being discussed.

Alderman Hunt—That is agreeable to me, and I include the change suggested by Mr. King in my motion to pass ordinance No. 1008 on second reading.

Mayor Akin—Is there any further discussion?

Everyone—(Deep silence).

Mayor Akin—If not, I will call for the question. Those favoring the motion please say "aye."

Alderman Jones—Aye.
Alderman Carter—Aye.
Alderman King—Aye.
Alderman Hunt—Aye.
Alderman Patton—(Absent and not voting).

Mayor Akin—The vote is unanimous and the ordinance is passed on second reading. We will now proceed with the next order of business.

TEXAS FLOOD SURVEY MADE

Engineers at Work at Paris On Red River Tract

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—J. B. Holt of Vicksburg, Miss., in charge of a party of federal district engineers, is in Paris representing the war department in making a reconnaisance survey of Red river, a part of an auxiliary survey in connection with the proposed Mississippi river flood control project. Holt will spend 10 days here, and 10 days at Hugo, Okla., for work in this section.

Engineers are making observations at points five miles apart and extending five miles on each side of the river from the central point. The acreage affected by overflow, possible sites for reservoirs and similar data is being collected as the working basis for more comprehensive surveys later along Red river and other tributaries affecting flood waters of the Mississippi.

Three tentative lacations on Kiamitia and Glover rivers have been designated for reservoirs to aid in the storage of the flood waters and it is expected that others will be selected along Red river tributaries in this section.

Holt is working on the survey by reason of a special appropriation of $150,000 for making reconnaisance surveys of streams contributing to the Mississippi flood waters with a view of lessening the demands on the river for carrying off excessive flood water.

CAL'S PLEA FOR NAVY HEARD

Senate Leaders Prepare Immediate Answer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—President Coolidge's Armistice day appeal for a larger navy will be answered as soon as congress meets next month, senate leaders said today.

A United Press survey of their sentiments indicated there would be little opposition to the $274,000,000 three-year building program, passed last session by the house and now on the senate calendar.

The dwindling group of midwestern independents are the only ones not wholeheartedly in sympathy with the bill, but their opposition is founded more on a general objection to appropriating funds for a navy before farm relief and power projects are cared for, than upon any disinclination to strengthen the navy.

If any fight develops, it is expected to come from a group which favors a much larger navy than the bill would authorize. It provides for only 15 new 10,000-ton cruisers and one aircraft carrier. Mr. Coolidge and Secretary of Navy Wilbur last year recommended 71 new ships at a cost of $800,000,000 to be built over a five-year period. The Coolidge-Wilbur recommendation provided, however, for only 25 cruisers. The pending measure represents a compromise.

McBroom to Supervise Exchange of Bonds

W. E. McBroom, city clerk, is due to start work in Austin Wednesday on the exchange of bonds of the recently voted $250,000 municipal issue, for outstanding city warrants.

The old warrants are being exchanged through an Austin bank and the comptroller's office, and the city of Wichita Falls will at no time handle any money in connection with the transfer.

Mr. McBroom left Wichita Falls Tuesday morning, and probably will remain in Austin all week, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Dr. J. N. Farrell, chief sanitary officer of the city of Wichita Falls, has returned from the convention of Texas State Sanitarians at San Antonio. Mrs. Farrell accompanied her husband on the trip.

Weeks to Return Dec. 1 After Campaign

Communications from Charles Weeks, California cosonization expert with whom Wichita Falls landowners recently signed a contract for the colonization of an irrigated area in the Wichita valley, to J. T. Harrell, chairman of the group to negotiate with Mr. Weeks, are indicative that the 30-day national publicity campaign now being conducted by Mr. Weeks is gaining results. The project has been placed before 25,000 prospective poultry men and dairy farmers throughout the country.

J. A. Kemp, at present in Santa Barbara, Calif., in the interests of the campaign movement, has sent messages to Mr. Harrell of a successful beginning ror the campaign.

Mr. Weeks is due to return to Wichita Falls, Dec. 1 to put the project in this city on a working basis.

This is the Sketch he made

HE IS a draftsman—makes plans for an architect. "Yes, I own Cities Service Preferred Stock—thank Heaven!" he said quietly. "It was what gave me the idea I could amount to something. I don't make a big salary, but I'm living happily now—I've learned how to save and gradually build up my finances.

"I inherited some money—didn't know how to take care of it—spent it right and left and was headed down hill. Fortunately I had put $1000 in Cities Service Preferred and when everything else was gone that investment was a Rock of Ages for me. I finally got straightened up, changed my habits and began buying more Cities Service Preferred on the partial payment plan. I am still buying it.

"I have often thought that if I were selling this stock I would make a drawing to show people what I think are the four biggest points about this investment—like this—" Then he made the sketch shown above.

"I'd want to impress people with the great importance of having their money and dividends well protected—as we have in Cities Service—with as much as $2.70 in assets behind every invested dollar and over $3.50 earned for each dollar needed to pay Preferred dividends—the big privilege of being able to sell the stock readily if they need money, or to borrow money on it—and the benefits of getting monthly dividends regularly—and of getting a good yield. I put those autos and people in the sketch small, to show by contrast how big and important these four points really are."

So the draftsman who has learned a lesson from Life, wrote this advertisement for us. We have nothing to add except than an investment in Cities Service Preferred Stock has many other points of advantage besides the four mentioned. Any employee of our company can tell you about them.
