Mrs. Harding Weakening at Home Of Friends In Marion; Has Comfortable Night But Doctors Hold Little Hope

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Slight improvement was noted tonight in the condition of Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, who is seriously ill at White Oaks Farm here, a bulletin issued at midnight by her physician, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, said. Mrs. Harding rested well all evening, Dr. Sawyer arrer.

The bulletin follows:

"Mrs. Harding rested well all evening and shows slight improvement. She is now asleep."

A bulletin issued earlier in the day by Dr. Sawyer stated that Mrs. Harding had grown weaker perceptibly during the night and that her strength was steadily ebbing. It also said that she had taken no nourishment.

The patient, who is the widow of the former president, remains cheerful and is in but little pain. Her condition, however, is such as to excite the gravest fears of her friends here.

Her physicians hold little hope for her recovery.

National C. of C. Raps Publication Of Tax Returns

It Will Seek Repeal of Law At Next Session Of Congress

SUPPORTS THE BUDGET

Will Ask Extension of That Measure to Other Fields Of Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — Immediate repeal of the law permitting publication of income tax returns and establishment of a tax commission to simplify tax regulations was urged by the chamber of commerce of the United States today in a statement outlining its position on national economic questions presented to President Coolidge. The chamber also asked for extension of the budget system, a continuation of the principles embodied in the railroad labor board, establishment of an investigation commission to recommend and to administer legislation, and the development of water ways. Publication of income tax returns the statement declared "violates the good faith which the government owes to its citizens to protect their private affairs."

Endorses Rail Board.

The Powell-Barkley bill, proposing abolishment of the railroad labor board, was assailed as a "long step forwards."

"Without assuming to pretend that the present construction or composition of the labor board, is in all respects perfect," the statement declared, "the committee finds that the principles embodied in the labor provisions of the transportation act, establishing the board are sound."

So as to permit the activities it advocates the trade associations, the chamber said it would appeal to congress for minor amendments to the Sherman act.

ST. A well dressed man directed arrivals to "the parking place in the rear" where they were met by bandits who secured their cash and valuables. Among those robbed are said to be residents of Edwardsville, Granite City, Alton, Mitchell and adjoining towns.

Flames Fail To Harm Big South 'Archer Oil Well

Loss of Standard Rig And Little Oil Believed to Be Toll of Flame

Outside of a total loss partially built standard rig and derrick, a hundred or so barrels of oil, and loss of production from keeping the well shut in all night, it is not believed that the fire on the Ray-Massie Hausler lease north of Olney Saturday night caused much damage. The well was shut in all Saturday night after the fire and when opened Sunday morning came out through the leads with a roar, seemingly only the better off for being shut in during the night.

The fire was started early Saturday night, lasting for about three hours, each flow of the well, the best producer probably in Archer county, adding fresh fuel to the flames. For a while there was a big danger in the fire in that adjoining wells, several of which are nearly as big producers might also become ignited. The fire was extinguished however without this happening, after one of the most spectacular blazes in the history of the county and one that lighted up the country for miles around.

The well is owned by G. B. Ray and Dr. J. H. Massie of Wichita Falls, and was completed early last week for an initial production of 1,400 barrels a day.

CITY HAS AN IDEAL DAY.

Thousands Out Sunday to Enjoy Typical Autumn Weather.

Wichita Falls and north Texas basked yesterday in a brilliant sun that almost—but not quite subdued the chill of a November day. The weather was ideal at that, however cool enough for those who have tired of an over-abundance of heat, but not so cold as to be unpleasant.

Thousands of motorists took advantage of the fine weather and crowded country roads in all directions from the city.

The day cleared up after a rather inauspicious start that brought in a heavy fog, a cloudy sky and threats of rain. With the sun mounting higher, however, the haze and dampness disappeared.

Monday's forecast held out promise of continued fair and cool weather.

2 Must Die For Death of U. S. Woman in Mexico

Mexican Slayers are Given Extreme Penalty By Jury at Puebla

THEY DENY GUILT

Claim Mrs. Rosalie Evans Was Shot by Manager Of Her Hacienda

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Alejo Garcia and Francisco Ruize early today were sentenced to death for the murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, the American-born widow of a British subject, who was killed last August near her hacienda in the state of Puebla.

The trial of the two men had been in progress for several days in the town of Puebla. The verdict was reached at midnight last night after a day spent by Garcia and his counsel in an endeavor to establish the fact that the bullet which caused the death of Mrs. Evans was fired by John Strauss, superintendent of the Evans hacienda, in a moment of nervousness while endeavoring to repel an attack made by bandits on Mrs. Evans.

The sentence was passed notwithstanding the protest of Cosme Zafras, recently deposed as attorney general who charged that the trial was illegal because of his absence from the court. The execution of the assassins is expected to take place during the present week.

Mrs. Evans was shot dead near Texmucan, state of Puebla, early last August, while on the road to her hacienda. She was shot through the left side and, falling from the buggy which she was driving, her hair caught in the wheels and the body was dragged some distance. Her face was badly mutilated.

Mrs. Evans, whose home was Brownsville, Texas, was the widow of a British subject, a former president of the Bank of London in Mexico. Prior to her assassination she had been one of the central figures in a controversy in connection with the seizure of her property near Puebla.

COTTON MARKET ACTIVE

Trade in Both Spots and Futures At High Point.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—During the past week the cotton market has experienced active trading both in spots and futures and prices for contracts have advanced materially. The January option for instance which traded as low as 22.50 immediately after the issue of the last government report on Saturday a week ago, advanced to 24.98 on Friday last, a gain of 2.48 points. Prices eased off but very moderately from the high point reached, January finally closing yesterday at 24.69.

The government's last forecast had but little to do with the advance which has taken place as the crop figure given was rather in line with expectations.

BATTLES START FOR LEADERSHIP IN WASHINGTON

Opening of Short Meeting Two Weeks Away Gets Things Going

MANY ASPIRANTS

Warren, Moses, Curtis And Others Mentioned For Lodge's Place

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Although the opening of the short session of congress is two weeks away, and one of the positions is not to be filled until the new congress begins its sessions, the races for the republican senate leadership and for presiding pro-tem of that body already are warming up.

The death of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, left open the post of floor leader for the majority party, while Senator Cummins of Iowa, the president pro-tem of the senate has formally announced that he would relinquish that office at the conclusion of the present short session.

Must Get New One.

It will be necessary for the republicans to select a leader before congress convenes December 1, and the names of Senators Curtis of Kansas, the party's whip; and Wadsworth of New York, now figure most prominently. These same senators also have been frequently mentioned in connection with the office of president pro tem.

Senator Warren of Wyoming, would ascend to the leadership if the republicans adhered to the party custom of naming the senator oldest in point of service. Senator Warren's friends say he prefers to devote his main attention to his duties as chairman of the appropriations committee.

Moses Announces.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire has announced his candidacy for president pro tem. His friends already are lining up support for him.

Senator Curtis has told friends that if Senator Warren did not want the leadership he would like to have it. The Kansas senator has been the assistant leader for a number of years and his friends feel that his elevation to the leadership would be a logical step.

Pasha Still Premier.

The premier presented his resignation to the chamber of deputies Saturday and the news of it caused students to leave their books and join with thousands of other persons, who ceased work, in a parade cheering Zagloul. Numerous political speeches were made, urging the party leaders to proceed to the palace and beg the king not to accept premier's resignation.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 16.—Lee Clark, superintendent of schools at Gainesville, a widely known Texas educator, is being groomed for the next president of the Texas State Teachers association which will convene in annual session here Nov. 27-29. According to pre-convention gossip, Mr. Clark is the outstanding candidate.

One of his acievements pointed out by his friends was his administration of the Wichita Falls public schools during the period when the city was fourth in per cent of growth in the United States. During that time a building program was carried out which involved various structures from a four-room brick school house to a junior college costing $600,000. Bond issues were carried, equipment and grounds provided and the teaching force increased from about 65 to almost 200.

Mr. Clark was educated at Texas Christian university where he was graduated with the degree of bachelor of arts. After doing graduate work in the University of Chicago, he returned to Texas and entered the state university where he received the degree of master of arts. As a graduate student of that institution specializing in administration and psychology he gained his M. Ph. D.

His experience as a teacher, principal and superintendent has been extensive in the schools of the state. Beginning as a teacher and then principal in the rural schools of the state, he was chosen principal of the Granbury schools. Later he became a teacher in the Temple high school and from 1906 to 1911 was superintendent respectively of the Iowa Park and Anson public schools. Subsequently he was general agent of the conference for education, chairman of the state board of examiners of the state department of education, and field agent and later dean of Midland college.

Here in 1915

In 1915 he became superintendent of schools at Wichita Falls, which job he held until elected to a similar position at Gainesville in 1923. He recently was reelected.

He is a former president of the Northwest Texas Teachers association, a member of the executive committee of the State Teachers association as well as a life member of the organization, a member of the National Educational association, a former member of the state textbook commission and organizer of municipal junior colleges at Wichita Falls and at Gainesville.

BILL FOR MORE U. S. BUILDINGS BEING PLANNED

Appropriations for New Federal Structures Will be Sought

IS BADLY NEEDED

Texas Cities May Ask To Share In Benefits Of Legislation

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Record News Staff

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Will there be a public buildings bill at this session of Congress?

That question, which has arisen at every session since 1913 when the last public buildings bill was passed, is again being asked as members gather for the session to begin in a little more than two weeks.

Many members who have already returned, notably Congressman Walter W. Magee, New York, member of the powerful appropriations committee, asserts that it is time to make Uncle Sam's building program a regular order of business.

If such a bill is brought out the two most sought after members of congress will be Congressman Richard Elliott, Indiana, acting chairman of the house public buildings committee, and Congressman Frits G. Lanham, Texas, ranking democrat on the committee. Elliott and Lanham are the men who will have the biggest day on the building projects to go into the proposed omnibus bill.

Eleven Years Old

It is more than eleven years since a public building bill has been considered by Congress. The measure approved by the President on March 4, 1913, carried authorizations aggregating approximately $40,000,000. A report by the supervising architect of the Treasury made in 1918 shows in the neighborhood of 100 buildings authorized by that act which have not yet been built owing to the fact that the limit of cost fixed in that bill was not enough to build the kind of structures then contemplated. So that about $13,000,000 then authorized remained unexpended due to the advance in the cost of labor and materials.

In addition to that, as has recently been emphasized by the chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds, the postal business throughout the country has more than doubled in the last eleven years.

Knows It's Needed

Administration leaders, President Coolidge, the bureau of the budget, chairmen of the Senate and House appropriations committees, the chairmen of the senate and house public buildings committees, all realize the urgent need for the earliest possible action in providing adequate and sanitary quarters for carrying on the postal service, which is the closest touch that the people of the country have with their government.

Among the Texas cities which want new federal buildings are Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth, Beaumont, Austin and Wichita Falls. Business in some of these offices has increased ten fold since the buildings in use were erected. In all of them it has trebled.

CITY'S SUPPLY CUT OFF AS 60 MEN HOLD PIPE

Sheriff Asks Troops To Avert Bloodshed In California

IS LENGTHY FEUD

Water Being Wasted In River Bed With Armed Guards In Control

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 16.—Practically the entire flow of the Los Angeles aqueduct, this city's chief source of water for domestic and industrial uses was diverted into the Owens river near Lone Pine, about 200 miles north of here, by a raiding party of 60 men who stormed the aqueduct guards today and threw open the Alabama water gates.

Sheriff Collins, of Inyo county has telegraphed Governor Richardson asking for troops, declaring immediate action by the militia is all that can prevent blood shed.

Water Feud Rages.

The raiders, alleged to be residents of Owens Valley, where for years a water feud has raged between the city and valley ranchers and business men, late today stood their ground at the spillway and defied Sheriff Collins and representatives of the city of Los Angeles.

The attackers announced they would continue to waste the water until a committee came from Los Angeles and settle the water rights controversy with them. Sheriff Collins, after vainly endeavoring to have the waste gates closed, returned to Independence to telegraph the facts to Governor Richardson.

According to Claude Van Norman, in charge of maintenance from the aqueduct intake to Haiwee reservoir, the raiders assured city representatives that the gates would be kept open until the Los Angeles committee arrived, remarking that "if they leave on the train tonight they can be here Monday morning and this thing can be settled."

Complete Control.

Before dusk tonight the raiding party had been reinforced by forty additional men, and was in unquestioned control of the aqueduct. Sheriff Collins said there were 200 other sympathizers ready to join the raiders at a moment's notice.

According to telephonic information received by officials of the bureau of power and light here, the raiders rode to the gates about 10 a. m. They were opposed by Frank Lasky, gate tender, who lives nearby.

Ignoring Lasky the raiders opened the gates.

Ed Leahy, superintendent of electrical construction in the valley, accompanied by Van Norman, came to the gates at Lasky's call and Sheriff Collins arrived about half an hour later.

Recognized Raiders.

Van Norman said he recognized a prominent Owens Valley business man as one of the leaders of the party

Stone a Keystone In New Coolidge Cabinet, Belief

He's Slated to Remain As Warren Becomes Head Of State Dept.

HUGHES TO LEAVE

Secretary Now Wants To Resume Practice Of Law Again

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Harlan F. Stone of New York, attorney general of the United States, is the keynote around which Calvin Coolidge will build his cabinet.

Out of all speculation and whisperings of sweeping changes in the president's official family there is just one thing certain and that is that Harlan Stone, who just now is engaged in cleaning up the terrible mess left by Harry M. Daugherty, is to be the strong right bower in the Coolidge cabinet.

No Sudden Exodus.

There is to be no sudden exodus of all the Coolidge cabineteers on March 4th. Indeed, the changes are expected to come gradually. And as these changes begin to take place, observers here believe they will get a line on whether or not President Coolidge intends to be a candidate for a second elective term.

The phrase "second elective term" was created by Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 when he sought the nomination against William Howard Taft. Were President Coolidge to make this hurdle it would carry his tenure of office to almost ten years, two above the unwritten deadline.

But whatever may be the president's office-holding goal—and he probably is not giving that the slightest attention now—Attorney General Stone, who is picked for the keystone of the Coolidge cabinet, knows absolutely nothing about politics and his interest is solely in public service.

Gore to Leave.

The first change in the Coolidge cabinet is expected to come when Acting Secretary of Agriculture Gore retires to become governor of West Virginia. Luis J. Tabor of Barnesville, Ohio, is picked for this place. Ohio is a great deal farther east than presidents have gone in recent years for their agricultural ministers. Wilson of Iowa held the post under McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. Then Houston of Missouri came in with Wilson and upon his transfer to the treasury portfolio, Meredith of Iowa came. Meredith was succeeded by the late Secretary Wallace, also of the Hawkeye state.

A number of western men have been urged for the agricultural post at this time, notably John Fields of Oklahoma and Representative Sidney Anderson of Minnesota, who is retiring from congress on his own volition. Mr. Coolidge, however, has called upon the farm organizations for recommendations and of the names received to date Tabor's is said to be leading all the rest.

After agriculture is filled vacancies and shifts are expected to make four more places available to be filled as the president desires.

Secretary of Interior Hubert Work, Colorado, probably will be the first to go. Gossip has the president crossing over into the adjoining state of Wyoming to take former Congressman Frank W. Mondell as Work's successor.

Hoover to Leave.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, it is said will retire to head a gigantic international radio concern. William M. Butler, Massachusetts, is picked as Hoover's successor.

Secretary of War John W. Weeks will retire to give vent to a long cherished desire for leisure, which he, as a wealthy man, can well afford. Postmaster General Harry S. New is picked to succeed Weeks as secretary of war.

C. Bascom Slemp, now private secretary to President Coolidge, will become postmaster general, it is believed by many well informed persons.

A republican political observer, who has something of a reputation as a prophet, today guessed that the Coolidge cabinet a year from now will be substantially as follows:

Secretary of State—Charles B. Warren, Michigan.

Secretary of the Treasury—Andrew Mellon, Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War—Harry S. New, Indiana.

Attorney General—Harlan S. Stone, New York.

Postmaster General—C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia.

Secretary of Navy—Theodore Roosevelt, New York.

Secretary of Interior—Frank W. Mondell, Wyoming.

Secretary of Agriculture—Luis J. Tabor, Ohio.

Secretary of Commerce—William M. Butler, Massachusetts.

Secretary of Labor—John L. Lewis, Indiana.

This slate was predicted on the assumption that Secretary Hughes will prevail upon the president to allow him to relinquish his post and return to a lucrative law practice. Should Mr. Hughes retire few doubt that President Coolidge would ask Mr. Warren to become his prime minister.

It is believed here that the two men inherited from the Harding administration whom the president is most anxious to retain in their posts are Secretaries Hughes and Mellon.

MINERS PLAN STRIKE

Grievances At Eastern Mines Bring Walk Out Vote

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—At a meeting of the general grievance committee of the Hudson Coal Co., held here this afternoon, it was unanimously decided to go on strike Monday morning. The proposed walk out will affect 22,000 men and boys. In the territory between Forest City and Plymouth, 20 collieries will shut down.

The special grievance which called today's action grows out of conditions at Parsons, where it is alleged new regulations caused a material reduction in wages.

Helium Of Little Use to ZR-3, Says German Captain

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—If helium instead of hydrogen is used to inflate the ZR-3, the navy's plans to use the big dirigible as a trans-Atlantic mail carrier will not materialize, Dr. Hugo Eckener, president of the Zeppelin Co., and one of the men in charge of the airship on her flight across the north Atlantic predicted today just before sailing for Germany on the Bolumbus.

"I doubt whether the ZR-3 can be put to this use if helium gas continues to replace hydrogen," Dr. Eckener said. "Helium is safer, but it is not economical as hydrogen which really is imperative in the case of ZR-3 so far as flights across the Atlantic are concerned.

"When we landed at Lakehurst," Dr. Eckener continued, "we had six and a half tons of fuel left, and had helium been used, the fuel carrying difference would have meant the difference between success and failure."

Dr. Eckener also said he did not believe airships ever would displant ocean liners for trans-Atlantic travel, because airships could not be built large enough and because most people would prefer the sea trip.

CAN TRANSFER RAILROAD

Denver & Rio Grande Sale Is Now Completed

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 16.—The way for immediate transfer of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad to its new owners under reorganization plans recently approved by the interstate commerce commission was cleared today when Federal Judge J. Foster Symes, denied the application of Harold Palmer of New York, a minority bond holder to intervene in the case and prevent the transfer.

Despite the fact that Palmer's attorneys served notice that an appeal would be carried to higher courts, Judge Symes' action today overstepped the last obstacle in the path of formally confirming the sale of the road to the Western Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads October 29. Palmer's appeal will not prevent continuation and completion of the sale.

A HISTORIC GAVEL

Gompers to Have One From Famous Red Gum Tree

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 16—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor will wield a gavel in the federation convention, beginning Monday, which came from the historic red gum tree at Nacogdoches, Texas under which General Sam Houston used to meet Indian chieftains and Spanish leaders to negotiate peace.

W. J. Moran, publisher of the Southwest Labor Advocate, will present the gavel to President Gompers at the opening session of the convention. It is the direct gift, in the name of the Texas labor unions, of R. M. Ware, a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen at Terrell, Texas.

The tree recently was shattered by lightning. Ware, familiar with the historic background, saved a piece for the gavel.

Judge Riled At "Rubber Stamp" Charge Of Cops

David Resents Implication That Courts Are "Crooked"

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Superior Judge Joseph B. David today branded as an "infamous lie" the statement by Chief of Police Morgan Collins, that "rubber stamp judges," hindered the police in their drive on crime or that "any judge ever released a prisoner without justification."

At the same time Judge David ordered Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Thompson to arrest Louis Alterie, confidante of Dion O'Banion, on a charge of assault to commit murder. A policeman testifying at the hearing on a petition for a mandamus to compel the mayor to issue a license to Daniel Leblang, owner of the Northern Lights cafe, asserted that Alterie was present at the time that John Phillips, gangster, was slain by another officer in a fight with seven patrons of the cafe.

"Alterie is the man who said he would shoot it out with the slayer of Dion O'Banion," the judge remarked. "Perhaps, he'll be allowed to shoot things out in the penitentiary."

Neither Mayor William H. Dever, nor Chief Collins would comment upon Judge David's statement.

MUSSOLINI SUSTAINED

His Foreign Policies Endorsed In Chamber

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The foreign policy of the Mussolini government was sustained in the chamber of deputies today by a vote of 315 to 6. Naturally the government expected a vote of confidence with a large majority, owing to the absence of the opposition members. Nevertheless, the anti-governmental press had so emphasized Gilolitti's opposition and Orlando's uncertainty that the majority received greatly surpassed expectations.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Speculation is not, in itself wrong. There are three kinds of speculation, however, which are wrong at all times.

* * *

Mere buying and selling by people who neither produce nor consume the material dealt in its not necessarily illegitimate. Such buying and selling, when done by experts who actually forecast the movement of prices, has the effect of lessening the price fluctuations and causing economic stability.

The three kinds of illegitimate speculation are as follows:

1. The "flyer." This consists in occasional speculation by the "outsider" who has no training in speculation. Such actions often disturb the market and make it show things which are economically untrue.

2. Speculation without adequate capital is illegitimate because if a speculator is wrong he will not have the money to pay his losses.

3. Manipulation is the third and worst kind of illegitimate speculation. It consists in producing artificial price fluctuations and tends to undermine the entire correct economic situation at the time and manipulation is going on.

Spooky Room and Hidden Stairs Furnish Mystery In Office Of Governor

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 16.—Disappearing governors, hidden stairways, locked rooms and the unfathomable mystery of a secret chamber in the Texas capitol!

Sounds like stuff for a drama of intrigue and dark statecraft!

But it's only the story of how Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple, the state's first woman governor, may escape from the maddening crowd, which before her time has driven men to cover.

Long a Mystery.

Long has it been something of a mystery how Texas governors could so artfully disappear while apparently busy in their office. Visitors sitting in the outer room might see the governor enter by one of two outside doors and then, presto, when it came the caller's turn to enter the inner sanctum, the governor could not be found, though he had escaped by neither exit.

Frequently has the secretary ushered a persistent caller into the governor's deserted office to prove that the executive was not there. And since the governor could not escape by the usual methods without being seen, there was something spectral about the thing. The secretary has been perfectly innocent because the plan works with no one "in" on it save the governor.

This gubernatorial magic has mystified many an office seeker as well as others who came merely to consume valuable time. It has been employed less by Governor Neff perhaps than others, because callers generally find a ready welcome and an easy approach in Governor Neff's office.

But at last the mystery is solved. It must be told: The governor has access to a secret chamber!

Many Use It.

Many of Mrs. Ferguson's predecessors, of supposedly the stronger sex, weary with burdens of state, have used this same system; and perhaps one who lays no claim to masculine endurance, by a similar device, may find escape from heavy labors.

Few know of this chamber, and still fewer have ever seen it. Only the governor and a porter, who cleans the office, have admission to it.

Leading up from the executive office to the second floor of the capitol is a small iron stairway, almost hidden in a nook of what might be called the outer section of the inner office. It enters a room above the governor's office.

This little-known compartment is divided into two rooms furnished with desks, chairs, books and all equipment for study. Fine rugs, easy chairs and a couch afford means for rest and relaxation from the day's work. The rooms are kept secluded and as quiet as possible and are never used except as the governor's wishes.

Great state papers, messages to the legislature, pardons and executive problems have been written and pondered over in the quiet of these small rooms.

Many Great Thoughts.

Within these walls many of the great thoughts of Texas governors have been first put to paper and from them have emanated perhaps more far-reaching pronouncements than from any other rooms in the wide commonwealth.

It is said that here the great Governor Hogg framed his measure for the creation of the Texas railroad commission, considered one of the most constructive laws on the statute books. Governor Neff, himself, has thought out some of his messages in the quiet of these rooms. And Gov. James E. Ferguson may come back to these rooms after "totin' the wood and water for Ma," as he describes his connection with the new state regime.

There is only one other entrance to the rooms besides the iron stairway. This other door, which is always locked, enters what is called the governor's reception room on the second floor of the capitol. The reception room is fully furnished as a parlor, having been used at one time for state formalities, but which now has little use except to draw the curiosity of visitors.

MOB SEIZES

and demanded of him that the gates be closed again. Sheriff Collins made a similar demand. Both were ignored. Collins wrote down the names of the men in the party whom he recognized.

The sheriff then left for his county seat, while the representatives of the city continued their parley with the raiders.

Van Norman announced to the crowd that they were trespassing, had caused enormous damage to the city and that they were individually liable to recovery of damages.

Efforts were immediately made the find William Munholland, builder of the acquednct and chief engineer of the city water department. He was reported to have gone on an inspection trip to the San Francisco dam project north of here.

No Action Planned.

Los nAgeles officials announced tonight they would not take any aggressive action other than civil court proceedings, pending the outcome of Sheriff Collins' request for troops.

Van Norman and several other city representatives recently conferred in Owens Valley with ranchers and business men who complain that Los Angeles is taking their water and turning the valley into desert.

Of this conference, Van Norman said that "all interests in the valley were represented."

"We proposed," he said, "to enter into an agreement with them whereby the city would supply water for irrigating an area of 20,000 acres each year.

"We found that this idea appealed to many of the ranchers. Many of them are doing well on their ranches and desire to stay rather than sell out enbloc to the city, believing this agreement would be for the best interests of the valley. Representatives of one canal company, however, stated that the only thing that would satisfy them would be for the city to purchase outright all their holdings."

How Often Do You Use Your Telephone?

Do you use your residence telephone often enough to warrant the expense of a "one-party-line?" Consider the number of hours that your line is not in use, and you will probably conclude that a "selective-ringing" telephone would handle your traffic just as well—and at a reduced expense.

By sharing your line with another subscriber you not only save money, but you enable the Telephone Company to add more telephones to the exchange—and thus make your telephone more valuable. For the value of your telephone increases in proportion to the number of other telephones you can be connected with.

In this and other cities where "selective-ringing" service is offered, as many as one out of two residence subscribers finds that this service satisfactorily meets their needs.

6 Million Cattle Not Inspected As T.B. Precaution

Veterinarians Seeking To Expand Work Along This Line

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—More than 6,000,000 cattle throughout the country are now under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis.

State and federal veterinarians are carrying this work forward at the rate of nearly a half-million cattle tested each month. A summary by the United States department of agriculture today on the work up to the end of September reports that 449,483 cattle were tuberculin tested during that month. Of this number, 16,782—about the usual proportion—were found to be tuberculors. Animals found to be diseased are immediately segregated for slaughter in accordance with regulations governing the disposal of such animals which are sources of infection.

States most active in the current work are shown by the report to be: Iowa, where during September 64,079 cattle were tested; New York, with 54,238; Wisconsin, with 45,954; and Illinois with 43,438 cattle tested.

The large number of cattle owners who have placed their animals on the waiting list shows that the work is popularly supported. At the end of September this list included 2,681,543 cattle. The limited official forces engaged in this work are making strenuous efforts to comply with the increasing demands for tuberculin testing.

"The Great Cities Service Company is one of the nation's and the world's great hired men. I like the term 'hired man'. It is an honorable title.

"Cities Service Company is one of those hired men who are making the world a better place to live in. It is saving waste, it is creating contentment, it is opening up new lines of business. It is furnishing employment to the skillful; it is utilizing capital for the purposes of life. And altogether it seems to be making good its title to the nobility of Service.

"The success of the Cities Service Company is a success of co-operation. Its strength lies in the ability of the management to combine the skill, the brains and the labor of thousands of co-workers toward a common end."

Roger Babson—

the famous investment statistician says---

Public utilities offer sound investment.

"The power and light group enjoys distinct advantages," said Mr Babson recently.

"When potential markets are considered, the average power and light company has much room for expansion. We are using but a small fraction of the potential power; new hydro power sites can be developed and and the output increased to take care of an ever expanding demand."

MOTHERING THE HOMELESS.

If you can't have children of your own why not "mother" some of the world's homeless little ones?

Miss Janet McKay a former Bellevue Hospital, N. Y., nurse, found plenty to mother when she went to Alexandropol, Armenia, with the Near East Relief. Five thousand tiny tots at the orphan city at that place, all under six years of age, are in her care and they cannot be persuaded that Miss McKay is not their real mother.

Before Miss McKay and the other American nurses took hold of the orphanage the death rate was about fifty a day. Now it is less than one every few months.

MELLON AND HIS PROGRAM.

Now it is announced the United States government budget has fixed expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, at approximately $2,960,000,000, the lowest since the war. These estimates are exclusive of the expenditures of the postoffice department.

Compared to estimates on the 1925 expenses the new budget chops government costs over a half billion dollars. In connection with the new cost clashing budget the treasury hopes to realize a surplus for the year ending June 30, 1925, of nearly $125,000,000, a hundred million better than was first estimated. Andrew W. Mellon is the big man of the Coolidge administration. He is going to serve another 4 years. Senator James Couzens of Michigan has decided that it is useless to continue his investigation of the treasury department.

Mellon and Couzens are republicans, but if Couzens is a republican of the New England type, then Couzens must be a political watch-maker. Having accumulated a vast fortune Andrew W. Mellon is ambitious to do something for his country and his countrymen and to live in history as an incomparable master of finance.

He has the confidence of the president; he has the confidence of the business men of America; his financial policies have been endorsed by the people at the polls. Mellon was opposed to the soldier bonus; Coolidge vetoed it. Mellon was opposed to the Bursum pension bill, Coolidge vetoed it. When Coolidge won, Mellon won with him.

Andrew W. Mellon would run the government as he runs his big bank, his big oil company, his big steel company or the other concerns which are controlled by the Mellon family.

He is a business man through and through and less of the politician than any man in the Coolidge cabinet.

WHAT THEY DEMAND.

Texas club women appear to know what they want. First they demand that the school of Texas should be taken out of politics.

Second they demand the enactment by congress of the Cranton bill, which provides for placing prohibition agents under civil service and the Frasier bill which provides that postmasters and rural carriers be appointed through the merit system and that the system be established in Texas.

It goes without saying that should the Frasier bill become a law it will be established in Texas as in all the other states. A congressional law does not affect this republic in spots.

UNHAPPY MARRIED WOMEN.

Love is a woman's game and she should be past master in it: art. Truly it has been said, "However dull a woman may be she will understand all there is in love; however intelligent a man may be he will never know but the half of it."

Discontented wives—unhappy married women—I want so to help you.

If you have cause to be jealous of your husband, or if he is unfair about the family income—or rude and ill-tempered toward you, I think this information I gathered from three women, who have worked out their problems successfully, will help you with yours.

"I have no cause to be jealous of my husband," said the first woman, "because I fill the bill. I am sweetheart, mother, companion and friend to him—no other woman has more to give than I have."

The second woman had made a success of her financial problem—she explained to me that she and her husband followed an excellent budget system and had no charge accounts.

The third woman, a lovely little lady with all the manners and graces of a queen, revealed the secret of her harmonious home to me in this manner:

"When I married my husband, I made up my mind it was my job to understand him. I learned to know the things he liked and the things he disliked. Plump women he liked, and skinny women, he abominated. I learned his peculiarities, and remembered the things to avoid that 'got his goat'; I practice self-control and tolerance, and I never get excited. I'm like a watch that ticks on in its own tempo, regardless of any outside influence—and I am absolutely reliable."

Mrs. K.—Of course I will help you with your problem. Write to me freely. No letters are ever published in this column.

More Truth Than Poetry

POETRY FOR THE PEOPLE.

The rockiest mountains may loom on ahead,
But don't be downhearted a bit;
The thickest may tangle the path where you tread
But don't get discouraged and quit.
You may in the forest be fixed by the glare
Of a hungry and muscular lion or bear
But smile at him kindly, for what do you care
You'll win if you keep up your grit.

The cyclone may carry your homestead away
But the loss you must never admit;
The sheriff may drive off your cattle some day
And the barn may by lightning be hit.
You may break both your legs, as at nightfall you trek
In an effort to save what is left of the wreck,
But you can think with delight that it wasn't your neck,
And you'll win if you only have grit.

The money you've saved may get thrown in the fire
But why should you grieve after it?
Your nerve and your courage is all you require
To keep you both healthy and fit.
The dog may eat up all the meat in the place
And bury the bones without leaving a trace,
But do not be caught with a scowl on your face,
For you'll win if you only have grit.

Remember there's nothing you cannot attain
If your health and your strength will permit;
Whatever you crave, be it power or gain,
Will be yours if you don't ever quit.
You can act, you can write, you can play, you can sing,
You can be a great pitcher or even a king,
In fact you will find you can do anything
If you only will keep up your grit!

OUR WAYWARD EMOTIONS.

Feeling is about all there is to life.

Life is determined by its feelings and some of us are willing to die for feeling.

The common fallacy is that certain lives are emotionless. People take up all sorts of stunts to get a thrill. The thrill comes anyway.

It is necessary, with emotions, to consider the cause and effect. The emotions are not cause, they are effect; they are a symptom. They are caused by our mode of life. If a man will go ahead and do his duty, the proper emotions will come to him.

Emotions run in ruts like all other things. They are the creatures of habit. People think they cannot write, or compose music, without an inspiration. The best examples of creative genius show us that inspiration comes as a result of custom.

Get used to doing a certain thing at a certain time every day and the emotion will come.

Some people are emotion hounds. They are always seeking some new sensation. They are apt to fritter themselves away, because the best kind of emotions follow action and do not precede it.

An emotion is useless unless it leads to some kind of activity. There are people who indulge in emotions, but never translate them into work. Emotions are given us in order to enable us to transform them into deeds, and those who do not transform them, waste them.

The emotions have their police force, which are the inhibitions. Where these are weak in a person he is apt to become a criminal of some sort, and as they are strong, he behaves himself.

What Today Means to You

SCORPIO.

Today's planetary signs indicate a doubtful condition. Good and adverse aspects alternate, producing conflicting emotions and conditions. Under these circumstances, much circumspection is needed, and nothing of a hazardous or risky nature should be attempted, nor is it wise, if it can be conveniently avoided, to initiate any new enterprise, or venture anything that savors of a departure from ordinary and routine duties. In the evening, the conditions improve, and assume a more settled character. These signs presage felicity in the home circle and promise success in recreative literary pursuits.

A child born today will not be very robust or strong during its infancy, and in order to develop its physical attributes along proper lines, must receive careful nutrition and constant vigilance. It will be witty, bright and amiable, a pleasing conversationalist, and generally well-liked. It will have friends in several distinct circles, and be able to adapt itself to varying environments. It will bubble over with vitality and energy, and things will never lag when it is around. It will be domestic, true-hearted and loyal, and will love with great strength.

If today is your birthday, you have good judgment, are a careful manager, and a shrewd manipulator. You meditate and deliberate very carefully before reaching any decision, and conversatism is always your guide and your mentor. At times, a little radicalism, or emotion, would show more practical results, but your nature will never permit you to absorb ideas, or dogmas, which are untried, and which have not been established by precedent, or former experience. You are not a pioneer.

You are generally quite practical in your notions, and never embark on any enterprise unless you can be reasonably sure of the outcome. You have none of the spirit of a gambler, and, wittingly will never "take a chance." You are affectionate, tender, and thoroughly reliable. Your friends always know where you stand, and rely upon you for anything within reason. It possibly has been proven to you, by past experience, that a little more impulse in your make-up, would, at times, have led to better things, rather than those achieved by you under the stress of strict prudence and deliberation: you, however, are not influenced by consideration of what might have been, but are solely guided by facts and conditions as they are, and, according to your judgment, as they will be.

Successful people born on this date are: Alexander Brown, banker, founder of the well known banking firm of Baltimore and New York; Wm. A. Anthony, scientist; Frederick Leypoldt, bibliographer; Tom Taggart, politician; Wm. Barnes, publisher and politician; Guiseppi Campanari, operatic baritone.

Something New in Our National Political History

The Man Who Lived His Life Over

By HENRY JAMES FORMAN

"Oh, I thought you were alone, Mr. Carmichael," she murmured apologetically.

"I shall be alone in a minute," Carmichael answered with feigned good-humor. "To be exact, come in in about three minutes, Mrs. Bright."

The young woman smiled, nodded and softly closed the door.

"I see I'm dismissed," said Alice pallidly. "Who is that woman."

"One of the new artists—recently came to the office. Good worker."

A shadow crossed the face of Alice Carmichael.

"I am glad you can be good-humored with somebody—even if you can't with your wife," she murmured with and edge to her words that piqued woman knows how to impart.

"There you go," he cried irascibly. "Never any pleasing you."

"Then you'll think over what I said?" She rose from her chair with a sigh.

"I will," he said. "But remember I promise nothing."

He escorted her to the door, then turned and stood moodily looking out of his richly curtained window at the stream of the Avenue traffic below.

"A penny" he heard a soft voice behind him.

It was Mrs. Bright.

"Oh, hello!" he responded with relief. "Glad to see you. This hasn't been an easy morning."

"Here is that drawing," Mrs. Bright replied demurely, but from the corners of her eyes she was watching closely the play of his features.

"Come, let's sit down and look at it together," and lightly he touched her hand.

He was rewarded by her sweetest smile.

"That is good, little one," he commented, playfully pinching the top of her hand. "But this figure on the right wants bringing out more. That white little hand traveled a little too gingerly over this—"

"William!"

They were both petrified to behold Mrs. Carmichael stading before them. Their heads had been very close together. Their swift automatic drawing apart had an air about it of flagrant guilt.

But in a moment Alice had herself in complete control.

"Something I forgot," she smiled. "I came back to tell you!"

"Leave the drawing!" snapped William curtly to Mrs. Bright. "I'll look at it later."

"Will, there is something about that woman I don't like," declared Alice with great distinctness.

"I dare say," he retorted darkly. "We can't have an office force composed exclusively of people we're in love with."

"Don't Will, don't," begged Alice with an expression of pain in her eyes. Hypocracy—you know perfectly well what I mean!"

"Alice, this in intolerable!" he flung back hoarsely. "What's come over you? Between you and Fred Newton you'll drive me crazy. Now please go home, Alice, and don't concern yourself with my affairs!"

Alice faced him, speechless, with white face and parted lips.

"And if you want to know it," he added harshly, "I told Fred I am ready—ready to buy him out, and by Gad! I'll do it, too! So that is that."

Alice, lowering her head like some wounded creature, turned and left Carmichael alone to his rage in his elaborate office.

Lola Bright often declared that though her apartment was small it was encumbered by one of the stodginess of the middling rich. It was dainty and individual. For Lola was an artist. She admitted that much herself.

The fact that before she was thirty she had parted from two husbands, from one who had given her a Paris divorce and another who had quite simply deserted her, she attributed to the hopelessly middle-class dullness of most American men.

"I glory in the fact that if I must earn my own living," she had told her employer, William Carmichael, "I earn it by the practice of my Art."

The evening after he had parted from his wife in anger, Carmichael was too wrought up, he told himself, to go home to dinner. After a shower-bath and a bite at the club, and a good cigar to compose his nerves withal, he had been about to start for home when, by a sudden impluse, he turned abruptly and made his way to Lola Bright's apartment up-town.

Oddly enough, she seemed to be expecting him.

The huge orange-colored shade in her sitting-room dimmed the light to exactly the right softness and Lola's purring welcome that seemed to say "I am but my Lord's handmaiden," soothed his nerves like a sedative.

With a pleasant sigh he sank back into the soft divan. He had experienced the agreeable atmosphere of Lola's environment before, but never so deliciously as this night.

"I know what you've been through," Lola murmured in ther softest, throatiest tones. "You are the one artist who is also a business man, the one business man I ever knew or heard of who is first of all an artist. You have need of a special kind of care, a special kind of understanding. Don't I know? I have suffered myself."

"You certainly do understand, Lola." He heaved a heavy sigh. "How few, how few people do!"

"If I do," murmured Lola with soft reproach in her downcast eyes, "it strikes me you don't take advantage of it. You don't come up anywhere near often enough. Why not?" she cooed. "I am always alone. I see scarcely anybody at all. Who else is there to interest me?"

"I know," he confessed. "But it wouldn't do—a man in my position—gossip—you understand."

"And who is there to know," she protested with warmth. "New York is a large city. And people who find sympathy in each other's society have a right to take it!"

The plump fingers in her lap were working nervously as though asitated by the smouldering fires within her.

"Life," she breathed, "is so very short—and so very lonely!"

"You do me good, Lola—by Gad! You don't know how much good you do me!" he murmured thickly taking possession of her hand. "Business seems a million miles away from you. In this little flat of yours, you make a real home—restful, peaceful, sacred. You're like an oasis—that's what you are—in a bowling desert of—of—cares, worries, devilment—"

"I know what you mean, dear friend," whispered Lola. "I know. The desert—has been for so long my home!"

"Poor little girl!" muttered Carmichael, clasping both her hands more firmly. "Isn't there anything I can do? You do much for me, it would be only fair if you would let me help you!"

"But you are doing—you are helping me, dearest friend," and Lola followed her imprisoned hands by leaning further toward him. "You helped me when you took me into your office. You help me every day by your angelic kindness and goodness. You are helping me now by your sweet presence here in a way—in a way—I couldn't have dreamed of in my wildest mo—moments—"Lola's voice broke and tears glittered in her green eyes.

"There, there now!" Carmichael soothed her, drawing her over beside him on the divan and patting her shoulder heavily.

"It's a hard life, I know. But there, now! You're a bit overwrought—we're both overwrought, I guess."

Lola leaned trustingly against his massive shoulder and quietly let her tears trickled down.

"This turmoil," went on Carmichael, "I guess it's too much for such high-strung organisms as yours and mine."

Lola leaned a shade closer to him. His arm was still upon her shoulder, but his gaze was turned inward, centered on himself. In a moment he semed to have forgotten Lola.

"I suppose Alice is right," he continued, a shade of surprise crossed Lola's features. "I've been following the line of least resistance, in reality. I ought to have retired long ago—before getting into this snarl—gone back to my art. Wouldn't be too late—"he pursued. "Fred would jump at it. I'll make him a proposition he can't refuse, and then Paris—art—happiness!"

He was made aware of Lola by a sob that escaped her.

"And what of me? Oh, is that the way even the best of men are? Make a woman live again, hope again, then—then throw her away like an—o—old glove?" Sobs were now choking Lola.

Pantomime —By J. H. Striebel

Dorothy Dix

An Honorable Man Will Never Marry A Girl Just to Keep His Promise, For It Is Far More Cruel to Give Her a Loveless Marriage Than To Jilt Her.

The right to change your mind has always been one of the prerogatives of women, and so no odium has attached itself to one of the fair sex when she jilted a lover. The world merely shrugged its shoulders and made some bromidic remark about the fickleness of women, and let it go at that. Even the man accepted it as part of the fortunes of love and mended up his damaged heart as best he could.

But when a man breaks his engagement to marry a girl, it is a different matter. He is called a cad and accused of being dishonorable, and people pity the poor, forsaken victim of man's perfidy, and very often the aggrieved maiden brings suit for breach of promise.

So, because of the public obliquy that attaches to a man's breaking an engagement to a woman, and because nearly all men are cowards where women are concerned, many a man goes to the altar with death in his heart, wishing that the clergyman was saying over him the burial service instead of the marriage service.

There are many tragic illustrations of this. The most common, perhaps, is that of the man who pledges himself to the girl in his little home town before he starts out into the world to seek his fortune. He is a young, uninformed boy at the time and he thinks himself very much in love with the girl who is the village belle. But absence, and separation, and new interests, and a different environment all do their work in weaning him from her, in developing him, in changing him, in giving him new ideas, new tastes, new standards of what he wants in a wife.

But the girl waits for him. He keeps her from marrying and settling herself in life, and although he has ceased to care for her, although she bores him, although he knows life with her will be nothing but an endurance test, while it might be a heaven on earth with some other woman, he feels in honor bound to go back and marry her.

He hasn't the courage to hurt her. He hasn't the nerve to endure knowing what his old friends and neighbors will say of him. So he does what he thinks is the fine and heroic thing and marries her.

In reality, his honor is the quintessence of dishopor. His kindness is the refinement of cruelty. Instead of doing the right thing by the girl, he has done her the greatest wrong imaginable, and so far from respecting a man who fulfills a marriage engagement when it becomes an obligation and not a joy, we should heap our scorn upon him.

For the man who marries a woman from a sense of duty, and not because he loves her, does her the greatest injury that one human being can do another. He dooms her to a life of misery. He feeds her on husks. And no matter how kind and considerate he is to her, no matter how generous he is, her marriage will be a hell on earth to her.

For no woman is so stupid as not to know the difference between a husband's loving her and merely tolerating her. There is no woman that cannot tell the difference between the kiss of passion and the kiss of duty; no woman who does not resent the patience that her husband gives her because he cannot give her love; no woman who does not writhe under the knowledge that her husband is happier away from her than with her, and that he dreads the coming home at night as a prisoner might the shutting of the jail doors upon him.

In Barrie's story, Sentimental Tommy, who had all the intuitions of genius, would say to himself that under such-and-such conditions a man who loved his wife would kiss her, or stroke her hair or put his arm about her, or say thus and so to her. And so he would show to the undesired Grizelle the delicate little attentions that a lover-husband would have done.

But there are few Sentimental Tommies in real life, nor can many husbands keep up play-acting long and pretend a love they do not feel for their wives. Matrimony strips life to the bone, and it is not possible for either a husband or wife to deceive the other about his or her real sentiments.

No matter how hard a man tries to be a good husband, he cannot be a loving husband unless his heart is filled with affection for his wife. Nor can he keep up the camouflage of devotion when it is only obligation. Some day when he is tired, when he is worried about business, when he is sick for the love he has missed, and when he loathes the woman to whom he is bound, the truth will out, and then the unwanted wife endures her Gethsemane.

If a woman loves a man, undoubtedly it will stab her to the heart for him to tell her that he no longer loves her. If she has looked forward to marrying him, she will shed many a tear over her wrecked hopes if he breaks his engagement with her, and it will cut her pride to the quick for her friends to know that she has been jilted.

But all of these are clean wounds that will soon heal if the matter is ended once and for all by the breaking off of the engagement. The woman will make other ties, find other interests, be happy and forget it all save as a romance of her youth.

She will not suffer as she would if she married the man who did not love her, who filled his contract with her as he would any other bad bargain, with shut teeth and hating it. She would not suffer losing him as she does gaining him, the body without the soul.

Therefore, an honorable man will break an engagement at the very church door if he changes his mind at the last minute, because he will not marry a woman without loving her. And an honorable woman lets him go because she would not have a husband on sufferance.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

Marks

It is possible for students in schools and colleges to get good marks without knowing very much about the subject in which the marks are given.

Any one with a good memory can "cram" on a given subject, and learn enough about it to carry him through an examination.

After the examination has been passed, the knowledge drops easily out of the mind, to return no more.

The "carrying memory" is common.

It is the kind of a memory which enables a conductor on a passenger train to bear in mind faces of people who have given him tickets, and to pass them by on his next trip through the train, stopping only by the side of passengers who have got on since his last ticket collection.

This kind of memory will get good marks in school.

But the marks in school count for little or nothing in after life.

What do count are the marks given by those with whom one comes into contact, particularly with those whose opinion means better opportunities.

Almost everyone makes a mental estimate of a new acquaintance, revising it from time to time as the acquaintance develops.

Often the first impression is completely changed later on.

But eventually it becomes fixed.

That impression is the mark which means a great deal in life.

Men and women are marked differently by difficult people.

That is apparent in every election where perhaps two-thirds of the voters give a very high mark to public men who are candidates for office, and the remainder give them a very low mark.

But generally people are graded in about the same way.

Conduct is not always indicative of character, but it is sufficiently so to be made the basis for the mental marking by which we must all stand or fall.

It is not possible for any one who mingles a great deal with others, or whose work is known outside a narrow circle, to escape this marking.

It will not do, when the general public opinion of a person is low, to say that he will be rated higher by posterity.

Very few of the people who are alive today will be rated by posterity at all, and that rating, whether high or low, will not do them any particular good during their lifetime.

Indifference to public opinion is extremely unwise, for we are in a world where public opinion counts, and rightly, for a great deal.

The marks bestowed by those with whom we live are not got by cramming for examinations, or by doing any one particular thing.

They must be got slowly, and if they are to be high, and of benefit, they must be based on a lifetime of steady and honest achievement.

No other kind of mark is worth having.

MATTERS OF HEALTH.

And a host of us don't realize
There's nothing that beats good exercise.

They weep moist who sweep dry.

The best way to keep your doctor bill down is to keep your window up.

It's useless, Old Timer,
To keep putting off
A trip to your doctor
When the trouble's a cough.

To protect the boy against rabies, immunize his pup.

Overheated living rooms, not moistened artificially, become proverbial drying rooms.

If an ounce of prevention
Beats a dozen of cure,
Then why in the Dickens
Do we sickness endure?

Scarlet fever is a dangerous disease; the establishment of artificial immunity in the susceptible child constitutes "safety first."

When motorists race locomotives for grade crossings it's hardly fair to expect them to avoid a little thing like typboid bacillus in a shallow well.

They worry lest some unseen thing
Will to them misfortune bring;
Who entertain such useless fears
Can not attain his hundred years.

The detection of susceptibility to diptheria, by the Schick Test, permits prompt immunization. Prevention's investment—treatment's expense.

Extracts of certain glands, like the thyroid and the pancreas, possesses certain well known medicinal virtues; but the extravagant claims made for "gland treatment," as a cure all, are unwarranted.

POSTPONES HER FUNERAL

Woman Walks In On Mourners Very Much Alive

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Mrs. Margaret Sheridan hurried home last night in time to postpone her funeral. She left home last Thursday evening to visit friends and had such a good time she stayed all night. In the meantime, a woman who had been struck by a taxicab was taken to Bellevue hospital and died there unidentified.

Patrick Sheridan and his sister, Mary, worried when their mother failed to come home that night. When they read of the woman killed by the taxi they hastened to the hospital.

The body was taken to Patrick's home and the relatives were summoned to the wake.

Then Mrs. Sheridan came home.

"A ghost" cried the grandchildren.

"A ghost, your grandmother," said Mrs. Sheridan.

The body was taken back to the morgue.

OPPOSE TAX PUBLICATIONS

Union League Club Organize Body to Fight It

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—An organized protest against the public inspection of income tax returns was launched today by the committee on national affairs of the Union League club of Brooklyn.

On the ground that the practice legalized by the revenue act was a direct violation of the fourth constitutional amendment on search and seizure the committee said it had the clubs authority "to apply for leave to file a brief, amicus curiae, to any suit of the attorney general to test the publicity provision of the law and to take any steps necessary to organize a demand for its repeal."

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Billy Whiskers was telling his adventures to the goats in the farmyard when Shep, the dog, bounded in and was going to bark at him.

But the leader of the goats quickly sprang between them, explaining as he did so who Billy was. Then Shep's hair quickly lay down and he advanced with a friendly gleam in his eyes instead of the fiery looks he had had there a minute before when he saw a strange goat in the flock.

"I am very, very pleased to meet you, Mr. Whiskers, for I have heard so much about you. The two little boys to whom I belong are always talking about the books with the history of your life in them. So you see I know all about you and am more than delighted to meet you. I just heard the men at the house discussing a piece of news that excited and interested me very much and I think it will all of you too.' A neighbor just rode up on horseback to tell us that some sheep dogs got in his flock night before last and kiled twelve of his most valuable sheep. And they —for the neighbors are helping him— are now on their way to see if they cannot kill the dogs if they come back to-night. This they will likely do. It being such a bright moonlight night, it gives the dogs a good chance to see the sheep. Our men have gone too, but they would not let me go with them for fear I might be shot by mistake. But I am crazy to go to see whose dogs they are that are doing this dastardly trick. You see the dogs run up to a sheep, bury their teeth in its neck, suck its blood and then run on to another sheep and do the same thing. They never eat the meat, only suck the blood. And they say that a dog that has once done this is ruined for life as he will do it again whenever he gets the chance and cannot be broken of the habit. The queer part of it is that a shepherd dog won't kill his own sheep and will protect them from strange dogs, but he may go off and kill some other farmer's sheep. It is a good thing our sheep are shut up in pens at night and not allowed to roam around the pasture where the dogs can catch them.'

"You may not believe it," said Billy, "but in my younger days I used to herd sheep out in New Mexico. Only I had to protect them from wolves instead of from dogs, which are much worse. And many is the wolf that I have ripped open with my long horns just as he was about to pounce on a sheep. What say you that we sneak along in the shadows and follow the men and see if they catch the dogs? I despise a dog that will kill sheep in that way, so that I should enjoy seeing him shot."

"I should like to go very much," said Shep, "but they told me to stay behind and I hate to disobey the man I never have in my life and I don't like to begin now."

(Billy has another exciting adventure in the next story.)

Mothers

AND THEIR CHILDREN

Christmas Gift Nights.

One Mother Says:

My children like to make most of their Christmas gifts themselves, working with me. So we set aside a part of two evenings each week, beginning in November, which we call "Christmas gift nights". We all work on gifts then together. Each child has a box to keep her completed gifts in.

Letting children do things for themselves, working with you, is splendid training for them. Ways in which this may be done are described in our booklet, "100 Ideas for Mothers," which will be sent to you if you will mail 16c in stamps to The Record News, Mother's Bureau, Room 930, 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

ST. LOUISANS WED

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16.—Clifford McAllister, a retired banker of London, England, was married to Mrs. Clara V. Weber, widow of Frederick H. Weber, vice president of the Pedigo-Weber Ice company of St. Louis, on Nov. 5, it became known here today. The couple left here today for Japan.

LINOTYPING PAYS WELL

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Seven University of Texas men students earn more than a total of $7,000 a year working as linotype operators and in the mechanical department of the University Press, according to A. C. Wright, manager of the Press. The students set all the type and make up the Daily Texan, campus publication.

James Taylor of Rogers, is foreman and makeup man. Carroll Rowe of New Smyrna, Florida, and Grady Stiles of Taylor assist Foreman Taylor in making up the Texan. The linotype operators are C. B. Long of Cleburne, H. D. Edwards of Troup and Joseph Cowan of San Saba.

In addition to the regular work on the Daily Texan, the seven students are registered for the usual amount of work in the university. James Taylor, foreman, will receive his degree in journalism next June.

Color Cut-Outs

"What are you doing?" cried Betschool.

"Packing," smiled her mother. "Hurry up and change your dress. You can help me."

"But what are you packing for?"

"That's a surprise. We're going away tomorrow morning."

"But how can I get away from ty Cut-out as she came in from school?"

"I called the principal, and he said your grades and Billy's were so good that you could be away a couple of days. Now don't ask any more questions, dear." Away ran Betty, her curls bobbing excitedly.

(Tomorrow Betty and Billy will start on their trip.)

Color Betty's curls a golden yellow and her cheeks pink. Her dress is tan trimmed in dark brown plaid.

Vernon Lions Clash With Amarillo Sandstorm Today For District Title

Baggett's Team Doped to Grab Play-Off Game

Panhandle Eleven Not Given Much Chance To Win Out

LIONS BETTER NOW

Were Outplayed In First Tilt With Today's Opponent

The classic gridiron tilt of the North Texas section is billed for this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Vernon when the Tawny Lions of Vernon high school clash with Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm in play-off for the Texas high school championship of district 1. The victor will move on toward the semi-finals and an ultimate try, should that team survive ensuing contests, for the state championship.

Lions Were Outplayed

And Vernon has within its grasp the first chance in the annals of Texas football to run right along to the top rung of the grid ladder. The Lions invaded Amarillo last Tuesday and fought just hard enough to escape the whirlwind attack of the Amarillo eleven with a 3-3 tie score. The Lions in strange territory did not battle up to the form that is their wont, and they were completely outplayed by the Panhandle club except when an advance meant touchdown for Amarillo. Backed up their own goal line time and again the Vernon lads stiffened and fought back the charging onslaughts of the Sandstorm crew, and the good right toe of Ryan late in the game came through for a neat goal from the field, evening the count, Amarillo had already scored.

Different Today

But today the story is expected to be a far different one. The Lions came off sightly from the first till with their rivals, and their are few and slight injuries in the Vernon Camp. All the past week Coach Baggett drilled his athletes at top clip following a bit of necessary rest after the game. And now the Lions are duped to present a 100 per cent better, more efficient, and a terrific slashing attack. The Lions of last Tuesday will not be the Lions of today, but a far different aggregation of muleskin battlers, and fighting as they did against Wichita Falls high school and the Electra Tigers earlier in the season the little city of Vernon tonight is expected to be in a position to proclaim a champion at last, a district champion ready to carry on to still further heights in the prep rom world.

Probable Starting Lineups

Notre Dame Of South Tackles Baylor Friday

Little St. Ed's Junior College Wins 15 Straight Games

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—With 15 consecutive football victories to their credit over teams scattered throughout three states the greatest football team the little St. Edwards Junior college team of Austin has ever known will go to Waco Friday determined to do what Texas university and Texas A. and M. failed to do. That is, beat Baylor.

Texas Wouldn't Play'em

The St. Edwards football club, coached by Jack Meagher, did not lose a game last year. Early in the season the Saints turned the Baylor Cubs back without the solace of a score, and many of the Cubs now on the varsity well remember that fact. This year the Saints have met and humbled such contenders as Louisiana Poly, Daniel Baker and Tulsa university. The little school situated five miles from the capital city has not been able to find any real opposition this year. As a result it has done nothing but plan for Baylor. The Saints, grateful that Baylor agreed to take them on after other conference teams had absolutely refused to do so, gathered at the game in Austin last Saturday, and rooted for a Bear victory. The Baylor victory over the Longhorns, however, merely made the Saints more ambitious to defeat the Bears.

Coach Rockne Pupil

The Steers would not meet St. Edwards, and now the pupils of Jack Meagher are anxious to win from the club which won from the Longhorns. In fact this is the game the Saints have lived for all season. Baylor has been scouted in every game it has played this year. Meagher has built defenses for Baylor formations, even before other teams were played, for this brilliant coach realized that no other team on his schedule had a chance for victory.

Man for man Baylor has a better team than St. Edwards.

Jack Meagher, a pupil of Knute Rockne, and a former star at Notre Dame, is second to few in the south as a football coach. He knows how to train men, and this year he has a veteran club—a team which has been playing together three years, and which will graduate a number of stars into the great Notre Dame machine. Meagher is schooling these stars according to Rockne's system. Two years from now they will be ready for the Notre Dame varsity.

TO WRESTLE IN BURK

BILLY LONDOS.

Joe Murphy has organized a boxing and wrestling club in Burkburnett and will stage mixed cards weekly under the auspices of the Burk American Legion. The feature of the initial program will bring together Friday night Billy Londos, wrestler now living in Burkburnett, with Burt Willoughby of Dallas. Both are middleweight grapplers of note over the southwestern section. Those men are expected to put on a good show in their best two out of three match.

Wiseacres Say Tramel All Set For Neat Lacing

Shreveport Grady Franklin Declared Too Good For Duke

Duke Trammel, popular Fort Worth welter, will meet more than his match in Grady Franklin Thursday evening on the American Legion fisticuff card, say many of the wiseacres who are well acquainted with the ability of the Shreveport battler. Promoter Don Wofford has matched the pair for the 12-round final bout, and he believes the scrap should be a good one.

Trammel has yet to be knocked from his feet, and he has lost but few decisions, yet a number of close followers of the boxing game believe that he is in for a real licking this time, although they admit they do not believe that the tough Fort Worth scrapper will kiss the canvas.

Moke Carpenter, fresh from his recent one-round knockout of Jack Atkins, heavyweight from Childress, feels confident that he can handle Russ Beckwith of Clinton, Okla. Beckwith is the lad who beat Soldier Brasier out in two rounds on the last legion program. This bout is billed for eight rounds.

Jackie Saunders, South Carolina midget now making Wichita Falls his headquarters, will meet Dude Armstrong in a six-rounder. Dude put up a nice exhibition with Tabby Levine here last week, but will find Saunders not to be a boxer but a rough and tumble scrapper.

Red Raley of Wichita Falls will mix it in a four-round curtain raiser with Cop Bently of Burkburnett. It is understood that this is a grudge fight between Red and the Cop who it is said arrested Red for speeding in his service car not so long ago.

The bouts are to be held in the Wichita theatre instead of the legion arena down on Lamar.

Cornelius Mack Becomes Banker

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Cornelius McGillicuddy has been elected a director of the Tioga Trust company. That's two bankers we have with our ball clubs. Cy Williams is a member of the board of the Three Lakes (Wis.) bank.

Banker Mack has had considerable financial experience. For the last few years he has been dealing in high finance, trying to buy Philadelphia, a ball club good enough to finish in the first division. His latest venture was the $100,000 purchase of Babe Grove, Baltimore southpaw.

One of the suggestions which will be placed before the annual meeting of the American League next month came from the Athletics. It may be a child of Connie's brain. If the proposal is written into the rules of the organization, the player who is sold for more than $10,000 will receive 10 per cent of the purchase price.

There is at least one good reason for the suggestion from the standpoint for the big league clubs. If it is passed there will be no more bickering between player and owner over a cut in the sale money. Frequently a star refuses to report after he has been sold until he is given a large sized check. This has caused no end of inconvenience to major clubs.

RENAUD BECOMES MEMBER OF MUNY HOLE-IN-ONE GANG

A. J. Renaud of Texhoma Oil and Refining company yesterday joined J. R. Sheldon, also of the Texhomas, in the Municipal Golf club hole-in-one gang. Renaud, shooting around with Hubert Morgan, drove off with a midiron and made number 2 hole without using another stroke. This is a par three hole and at a distance of 144 yards. Sheldon is the only other golfer who has done the same.

It was a coincident that Charles Keirsey, club president, and several other golfers, coming up to the tee, arrived just in time to have the pleasure of witnessing the pretty shot.

Last Yard May Count, But Mac Calls for Five

And That's Why Chicago Is Topping Big Ten Teams

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Down at Indiana university President Bryan impresses upon his student family that "It's the last yard that counts."

Mr. Austin McCarty, halfback of the University of Chicago is teaching his schoolmates to make it five yards.

In fact McCarty has earned the football sobriquet of "Five Yard McCarty" while carving a name for himself at Chicago that will live through generations to come.

And right now Mr. McCarty and those muleskin brethren of his are leading the western conference with no defeats, the only undefeated team in the Big Ten race, and with but one game to play in order to cinch the old championship.

McCarty Ripped Illini.

It was McCarty who ripped five-yard holes in the Illinois defense and enabled the Maroon team to give Illinois the scare of its life and then hold it and Red Grange to a 21 to 21 tie. It was McCarty who tore off five-yard gains against Britton, McIllwain, Grange et al, after making those holes.

As one Illinois man remarked after the game. "You've got to have a man on every part of McCarty to stop him."

McCarty literally lived up to his name of "Five Yards" against Illinois. Seldom did he make less when given the ball. Frequently the last yard or two was secured with from two to four tacklers draped around him. Once off his feet McCarty still squirms for the last foot or two.

Those who have lived in Chicago know of "Butch" Hanlan's Hyde Park high school teams. Well, McCarty is a product of that school. For three years he stood out as the greatest high school backfield man in and around Chicago.

Captained Frosh.

Going to Chicago U. in 1922 he was made captain of the freshman team. Stagg himself stated that McCarty, in his first year up, was as formidable a backfield man on offense as many of the men playing regularly on Big Ten conference elevens. The following year McCarty would have been a regular but for the presence of the Thomas brothers, Bill Zorn, and Jim Pyott. He did, however, break into the Big Ten games and the opposition know he was in.

Stagg, this year, has used McCarty as a battering ram.

In the Illinois game McCarty was named in the opening lineup. Away he hammered until Chicago had scored the first touchdown. Then Stagg withdrew him until he "got his wind." Then back into the game he went. Fans forgot Red Grange temporarily at least to watch the Chicago "tank" in action.

McCarty must be rated as one of the greatest line plungers and driving backs in the game today.

Southwest Grid Title Deadlocked Till Thanksgiving

Mustang Record Spotted By Trio of Tie Games

DALLAS, Nov. 16.—(AP)—With the opportunity to decide the championship of the southwestern conference within their grasp, the two remaining undefeated teams, Baylor and Southern Methodist university, Saturday preferred to leave the question until Thanksgiving day for a decision, when they hung up another tie game in the season's record.

However, Baylor claims a moral victory, for the tie was the first to blot their 1924 record, while it was the third that the Methodist Mustangs have registered. The Mustangs picked to repeat their championship rush of 1923 have experienced some unusual breaks, for of the three tie games that have been played in the conference, they have been a party to each.

Rice, the other apparent contender for the honors, was toppled from its perch on Friday by the Texas Aggies, leaving the field clear for the Mustang-Bear clash. The Mustang's long hope now rests with the Rice Owls, the surprise team of the year, for Baylor closes its season Thanksgiving day with the Owls. The Owls have shown an unusual ability to dope out their opponents signals, and Mustang supporters are hopeful that they have by this time fully scouted the bag of trick plays for which the Bears are noted.

Texas broke into the win column with its victory over Texas Christian university and took fifth place in the standing. Arkansas defeated Phillips university, while Oklahoma A. & M. tied Creighton, both non-conference matches.

The standing:

	W	L	T		W	L	T
Baylor	2	0	1	Texas	1	3	0
S. M. U.	2	0	3	T. C. U.	1	4	0
Rice	2	1	0	Arkansas	0	1	1
Tex. A.&M.	2	1	1	Okla. A.&M.	1	0	0

Stagg's Maroons Of Chicago Lead West Conference

Race, Still Scramble, Awaits Outcome of Final Games

MICKS HIGH AND DRY

Northwestern Loses Tilt In Last Two Minutes Of Play

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The vengeance of the four horsemen of Notre Dame over Nebraska, and the unexpected rise of the Northern Lights of Minnesota over Illinois, were the great events of yesterday's mid-western football.

The 20 to 7 victory of Minnesota was called a record, but it really was a reversion. Minnesota reverted to its early form, when it was considered as one of the several strongest teams and accomplished this reversion on a day when Illinois was just a little drawn from its battle with Chicago.

Grange and his team mates were as great in defeat as in victory, never quitting until they were carried out crippled. Some of these Illini entered the game bearing black and blue marks they had sustained in the Maroon battering.

Micks Shake Jinx.

The superb Notre Dame eleven, riding roughshod over Nebraska, feels that it has at least shaken off the jinx Nebraska held over Coach Rockne's warriors with its impressive 34 to 6 victory. Rockne's admirers are convinced that his great team which crushed the Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Wisconsin will go through the season undefeated with a claim to the 1924 championship of the nation.

The power of this year's Big Ten teams from first to last is shown by the fact that the final games next Saturday can give the championship to anyone of four, Chicago, Michigan, Illinois or Iowa.

Wolverines Rally.

Chicago, with three wins and two ties, has the best chance, having only to win from Wisconsin to take undisputed title. Michigan, Illinois and Iowa, have lost one each, while Illinois and Iowa have records further marred by one tie.

When Chicago went on the field against Northwestern yesterday, Northwestern had the morale, but Chicago showed its greatness by saving its title chances for the second time this season in the last two minutes.

Iowa's victory over Wisconsin gives promise of a great game against Michigan next Saturday.

Michigan's forward passing, going wrong for the first three periods against Ohio and leaving the team facing defeat, came through in the last period to win.

Changes to Be Made American Olympic Teams

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Important changes in the organization of America's Olympic teams, based on the experience of the 1924 games at Paris are recommended by William C. Prout, of Boston, retiring president of the amateur athletic union, in the report he will submit to the opening session of the organization's thirty-sixth annual convention tomorrow.

Delegates representing 19 district associations of the A. A. U., in all parts of the country as well as representatives of Canada, gathered tonight at the Hotel Ambassador to whip the opening program into shape.

To Alter Mobilization

To a large extent various sports governing bodies such as the A. A. U. have had such control of their own interests in the Olympic scheme of affairs, subject, however, to the final approval of the general Olympic committee. As done this year, it has been the practice to mobilize the various teams and send them abroad as a unit, but Mr. Prout and a majority of his associates feel that, in the light of 1924 experiences, this plan should be altered. They point out that because of the varying conditions governing different sports and the fact that Olympic program is scattered over a long period they believe it impractical to combine all operations under one invasion.

Select Coaches Early

Mr. Prout further recommends that competent Olympic coaches and managers be selected at least two years before the quadrennial games to insure proper preliminary arrangements and a definite preparatory program. His report also dwells on the weakness of America's track forces in distance running as was shown at Paris by comparison with the Finns, and Urges that this feature of competition be stimulated here. Although the president's report does not mention his name, Willie Ritola, crack distance runner, who left the United States to race for Finland at Paris in singled out by inference as an example of a need for linking patriotism with our athletic interests.

Hulbert Succeeds Prout

Murray Hulbert, first vice president of the A. A. U. and president of the New York of aldermen is slated to succeed Mr. Prout as the new head.

Mr. Prout has withdrawn as a candidate. Mr. Hulbert appeared tonight to have almost unanimous backing. Samuel Goodman of San Francisco was understood to have withdrawn from the race in favor of Mr. Hulbert while doubt surrounded the candidacy of Verne Lacey, of St. Louis, the only other nominee mentioned.

CROWDS CHEER VILLA.

MANILA, Nov. 16.—A cheering throng of many thousands greeted Pancho Villa, flyweight boxing champion of the world, when he landed from the President McKinley today. The crowds followed the Filipino pugilist to his hotel.

New England's All-American Candidate: As Sords Sees Him

By NORMAN E. BROWN

While Pennsylvania's great eleven, Bill Roper's miracle at Princeton and the dashing play of the victorious Rutgers team has drawn much of the grid spotlight in the east, staid old New England is pointing to the Boston college team with much pride.

Around Quarterback "Chuck" Darling the Boston coaches have built up a team that has surprised the critics repeatedly this season with its power.

Two interesting victories that stamped the team as a great scoring machine as well as a powerful defensive outfit were those over Marquette and the Haskell Indians, always formidable opponents.

Marquette had moved down all opposition for over two years when the game with Boston was scheduled last winter. The New Englanders emerged from that game with a 34 to 7 victory—over the same team that had trounced the Navy on a previous week and afternoon. Marquette had sustained but one other defeat before that—at the hands of Creighton.

The Haskell Indians fell by the same score—and later trounced the powerful Brown eleven 17 to 13. Brown gave both Yale and Dartmouth a hard battle.

The mighty Syracuse eleven turned back the Boston crew 10 to 0. The score of that game might have been different, however, had Williams not fumbled a forward pass Darling hurled to him as the former stood between Boston's goal posts.

Darling scored three of the five touchdowns registered against the Indian team and tossed a forward pass that resulted in a fourth touchdown.

Darling has been the outstanding star of the Hub eleven for the past three seasons. He is a good defensive as well as offensive player. He excells, however, in punting. He punts 55 yards consistently and places them accurately. His kicking ranks with that of Homer Hazel, Rutgers star, who has been booting his way to fame while carrying the responsibilities of a family man. He has a wife and three children.

The Boston star once more is in line for all-American honors at quarterback. This despite the wonder efforts of Parkin of Iowa, Stahldreher of Notre Dame, Hall of Illinois and Cameron of Ohio State in the west to the west and Dooley of Dartmouth, Dinsmore of Princeton, Lewin of Lehigh and others in the east.

Wherefore New England watches Darling and the Boston team with much interest. For Harvard may be Cambridge and Yale may be New Haven but Boston is the Hub.

BREAKS OF THE GAME

By BILL BRUCE

Great move for the new administration, (no fooling) would be the creation of a new cabinet job, "Secretary of Baseball." Baseball under federal control would be no less a private enterprise, but the scandals would be all thrashed out to the uttermost whisper.

At least, that's the way it ought to work.

Prez Coolidge foresees a long era of prosperity stretching ahead of us, but he is silent as to the possible return of the 25 cent bleacher seats.

In all probability Urban Shocker will not wear a St. Louis uniform next season. Repeated disagreements between Shocker and Owner Ball and Manager Sisler have made all three parties realize that the red shirted one cannot do his best for the Browns.

Shocker is a near-great if not a great pitcher. Handled properly, he will work his head off for a ball club. It is not complimentary to Ball and Sisler that they could not adopt the right tactics with him.

He cannot stand "riding."

This does not mean, however, that he cannot be "told." A suggestion that he make certain changes in pitching to batters or in his delivery is always accepted and acted upon—provided it is accompanied with a pat on the back.

He is one of those players who must feel that the team—from the bosses down—is with him. Instilled with the confidence that he has the "backing" he can hold his own with any pitcher in the circuit.

Someone wonders if Brigham Young college in Utah is a co-ed institution and, if so, how many co's there are to the ed. Hangman do your stuff.

Poncho Joe Cantillon, who managed Washington when Walter Johnson made his big league debut, is kept busy these days telling of King Walter's first game.

Mike Shae, who had played ball with Cantillon in California, signed Johnson for the Washington club and shipped him on to the capital.

Three days after Johnson arrived Cantillon sent him in against the Detroit Tigers—to face an array of super sluggers including Cobb, Crawford, Jim Delahanty, Claude Rossman, Charley Schmidt and George Moriarty.

Walt fanned 13 batters and won his game.

Some of the Tiger clouters admitted afterward that they could not even see the ball.

Bobby Cruikshank isn't listed among the title holders or crown winners of the 1924 golf season but he does hold one championship—the low score one. For the Shackamaxon gent turned in the lowest score made in a major tournament during the year.

Playing at Wichita, Kan., in the mid-continent open championship Bobby stepped eighteen holes in 64. His other three rounds were made in 70, 68 and 72, a total of 274 strokes. This was eight strokes below Hagen, who finished second in the 72 holes.

Over a season of play Cruikshank averaged 72½ holes a round. Which proves again that not all good golf is played by champions.

Pennsylvania University's powerful grid team hopes to start the new year right by defeating the University of California in the New Year's Day battle on the Pacific coast. But Young's team faces a tough job.

The California Bears haven't been licked since Thanksgiving day, 1919. Three teams have held them to ties, however. Washington and Jefferson turned that trick in 1922. Nevada fought the Bears to a draw last season. Both were scoreless games. This year Washington played the Bears to a 7 to 7 standstill.

It's only November but a lot of ball players are anxious right now to resume eating at the best hotels at the expense of the ball club.

Best punishment for speeders would be to sentence them to ten days driving a steam-roller.

The student body of the International Barbers' College yesterday passed a vote of confidence in Rodolph Valentino. After all he did for the profession in the way of patent leather hair, the tonsorial boys are inclined to think this new beard is not to be taken as a hostile move.

Duncan Wins All-City Golf Second Flight

C. J. Norton Victor In Final Round of Third Flight

T. P. Duncan, Jr., of the Country club won the championship of the second flight in the all-Wichita Falls golf tournament Sunday on the club course by defeating I. R. Sheldon of the Muny club in semi-final play, 1 up, during the morning, and then coming back to down B. G. Sharpe in the afternoon and final match, 2 and 1. Both matches were 18-hole affairs.

C. J. Norton defeated James Constantine in the final round of the third flight, 2 and 1.

T. T. T. Reese eliminated W. H. Hamilton, 3 and 1, in semi-final play of the fourth flight. Reese will meet Charles Keirsey of the Muny club in the championship round of the flight next Saturday.

Drake Stands Out Front Of Valley Teams

Missouri Second In Race With One Loss Debited

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16.—One more step—victory over Iowa state next Saturday—stands between Drake university and an undisputed claim to the Missouri Valley conference football championship.

The Des Moines eleven by its close verdict over the Kansas Aggies, 7 to 6 Saturday, remains the only undefeated team in the valley and will close the conference season this week.

The jinx which gave Nebraska two straight victories over Notre Dame did not accompany the Cornhuskers to South Bend yesterday and Coach Rockne's men rode over the visitors, 34 to 6.

Kansas, showing new found power, crushed the invading Oklahoma Sooners, 20 to 0.

Washington, which has failed to score in a conference game this season, proved an easy victim for Missouri, 35 to 0.

Grinnell won out over Ames, 14 to 13, in the conference engagement staged in Iowa.

The Conference Standing

Eastern Football Honors Disputed By Five Elevens

Yale, by Beating Princeton, Puts In Menace For Title

PENN RECORD MARRED

Nittany Lions Battle Red And Blue to Scoreless Tie

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—With the end of the 1924 eastern football season only two weeks off, the contest for premier section honors remains an "open race." Where a year ago, the battle had narrowed down to two outstanding elevens, Yale and Cornell, the stretch this year finds no fewer than five teams putting forward title claims.

Saturday's results adding further fuel to the blaze of upsets that has marked the season's path so far, produced outstanding features in the decisive victory of Yale over Princeton, blasting the Blue's chances, and the scoreless tie struggle between Pennsylvania and Penn State which toppled the Quakers from their lofty perch as the only eleven neither beaten nor tied.

Penn's record of eight victories, one tie and no defeats still keeps her to the front in the title scramble, but the Red and Blue now must share the heights with Dartmouth and Rutgers, each of which also has only one tie to mar its record. The big green outfit, held to even terms only by Yale, closed its season with a smashing 27 to 14 triumph over Cornell at the Polo Grounds and with other victories over Harvard and Brown to its credit must be considered when final honors are distributed.

Rutgers, tied only by Lehigh, added another impressive victory to her list of prominent unbeaten aggregations. Of the two the Elis have the stronger title claims, with ties against Dartmouth and the Army as the only breaks in a victorious record, while the Bethlehem collegians have been held to even terms by Rutgers, Princeton and Holy Cross and managed to beat Villanova yesterday by only one touchdown.

Real Religion Is 'A Personal Kind, Judge Kay Says

He Pleads for Consistency In His Sunday Bible Talk at Strand

344 MEN ARE PRESENT

Speaker Touches On The Principles of Catholic And Protestant

A personal religion that is sustained individually rather than a "wholesale scale" was the main theme Sunday morning of Judge John C. Kay in his regular Bible class talk to 344 men at the Strand theatre. His address was as follows:

"I sometimes feel that a teacher naturally and necessarily ought to know more than his audience. That's a proposition in logic, that teachers have indulged themselves in for ages, but I come here so often and feel that my audience is better equipped, better trained than I and, perhaps, know more than I do, many of them.

Now, the lesson this morning is one very unlike most of the lessons in the New Testament, because it is addressed somewhat to the human intellect. It is not a lesson of the heart, but a lesson of the head. It is the most famous, perhaps, the most important of the doctrinal lessons in the New Testament.

The Church Division

This chapter markes the great division between the Catholic and the Protestant religions, because of the interpetation of this chapter. Armies have confronted each other in hostile array because of the meaning of the Savior's words here, and the different interpretations that have been placed upon them. Men have gone to the stake to be burned, many of them.

Now, it is just as well that you and I should understand the differences that exist between the Catholics and Protestants upon this chapter. The Protestant believes, and I believe, that it was Peter's faith that the church was to be built upon, while the Catholic believes that it was Peter himself upon which the church was built. They say, and teach, and have ever taught that Peter lives always through his successors in the popes at Rome, and that he is the rock upon which the church is built. That is their doctrine, and that is the one great fundamental difference between the Protestant and the Catholic. I am not here to discuss much of that this morning, except to point it out to you, because I think every intelligent man should know in what these differences consist.

Is Big Question

You can immediately say that such a question is fundamental. Is the church built upon a man and a office? Is it built upon a succession in office, or is it built upon the great confession that "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God?" Many millions of people believe the one. Many millions of people believe the other. Now, it is on this lesson that the Catholic believes that the priest is enabled to announce to his parishioner that his sins are forgiven, because the lesson reads: "Whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven." But, the Protestant does not put that interpretation on it, and I do not. Now, that is enough of that. I wanted you to have an intelligent comprehension of the one great difference between the churches.

Now I come to some matters more vitally important to you. The Savior didn't ask many doctrinal questions. You did not have to subscribe to the Methodist catechism with Him, at the 39 articles of faith, or to any long, learned, particular creed. He had been with His disciples nearly three years before He ever asked them a doctrinal question, and this very lesson is the first time, and He asked: "Whom do men say that I am?" That is, what do the people generally say about it? "Well", they said: "Some say Moses; some Elias; some, one of the prophets." Now that was not the question that the Savior started out to ask. He was like a lawyer examining a witness, when he asks first his age, where he lives, and such questions as that. Then, he came down to the particulars.

Do you know? There are a lot of us, a wonderful lot of us, would like to be saved wholesale and by the crowd. We would like to be swept along with a sort of a universal salvation, in which we will be one unit among millions. That is a very comfortable doctrine, and I wish I believed in it, but I cannot. The Savior's doctrine was not such. He did not let them escape by asking: What does everybody in Wichita Falls think about it? If I should ask the question, "What do the people in Wichita Falls think of the Christ?" why, you fellows would immediately say, "This is a christian community. Look at the church spires. Listen to the church bells. Look at our preachers. Look at the money we spend on our churches. And, you would throw your chest forward and your shoulders back and look like a virtuous citizen. That would be a nice question to ask you. I can see how you would honst and exhibit your pride.

Need Personal Religion

But, the Savior did not stop there with the general question. He said: "Whom do you say?" YOU! I haven't much respect nor time for a religion that is not personal, an everyday personal religion, and, some of you fellows, I should like for you to have as much religion when you go down to Galveston, playing hide-and-seek with the mermaids on the beach, as you have got here. I think the most unclean man on earth, is the man who is unclean away from home, and I challenge him this morning to at least be consistent and boil over with his sin right here where we can see it.

Religion is personal. It is not confined to a place. A man that is not an upstanding, upright, decent, wholesome citizen right here in Wichita Falls, isn't anywhere else. And, if he goes off somewhere else and does some things that he doesn't do here, he is still not decent. How do I know? Well—I know. That's enough. I have been living a good while, and have seen a good many things.

Coming back to this great question, "Who do you say that I am?" I believe in the philosophers. I believe in the scientists. I believe in the astronomers and the mathematicians. And, when my digestion is real good, I even believe in the physchologist. But, these things do not have to do with religion. Ah, if there is no Christ, if there is no high heaven as the far goal to which we can bend our efforts, if there is no bright hereafter as a reward for virtue, for decency and right-living here, then "Time is a maniac scattering dust, and life a fury slinging flame." If there is no Christ—what is involved in that statement that there is none? Men! Men! If He is not the Christ, the Son of the Living God, then you are reduced to the level of the brutish beast. If there is no Christ—if there is none seated at the right-hand of the Father to make intercession for me as a sinful man, and for you, then there is nothing left except that you and I shall live and die as the ox, and the other beasts that perish.

Then, if that is true, it becomes exceedingly important that yond determine in your head, and in your heart, also, that there is a Christ and that He is forever your Christ.

Dry And Warm Is October's Weather

HOUSTON, Nov. 16. — Slightly warmer than normal and considerably drier than usual, was the October weather record of Texas, according to the summary issued here by L. H. Daingerfield meterologist.

The monthly mean for the state as shown by the records of 121 stations was 68.5 degrees temperature, one degree greater than the state normal, the report asserted. The highest monthly mean was 76.4 degrees at Fort McIntosh and the lowest was 56.8 at Dalhart. Fort McIntosh was the hottest spot in the state where the highest daily temperature was 101 degrees on October 3. Romero, where the theremeter registered 22 degrees on October 31, was the coldest. The rainfall was negligible. The average at 208 stations was six-tenths of an inch, which is two and two-tenths inches less than the state normal. The greatest monthly amount, 5.12 inches, was at Brownsville. Sunshine was recorded on an average of 22 days, three days being cloudy and six partly cloudy.

Radio's Growth Subject Of Discussion At Big Farm Meet In North

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—American agricultural interests are to gather in Chicago on December 4 to discuss the radio, which has become an important part of American farm life.

From the rich dairy farms of that part of central New York of which Syracuse is the hub to the staked plains of the Texas Panhandle the farmer is using the radio. The conference at Chicago is to consider primarily the scope, organization, conduct and support of agricultural radio broadcasting.

Agricultural colleges, the state agencies having to do with agriculture, farm organization, farm papers and broadcasting stations which emphasize the broadcasting of agricultural materials are to be asked to send representatives to meet similar representatives from other states.

C. W. Warburton, director of extension work for the federal department of agriculture, will be in charge of the conference.

The farm population of the United States is greatly interested in radio broadcasting and in the service that it is rendering to agriculture. Because of this interest and the possibility of a greater service being performed through better organization and coordination of effort, a conference to discuss the various problems of agricultural importance in this connection should prove of value to all concerned, officials believe.

Some of the problems of radio broadcasting which have an agricultural significance are:

1. The quantity, character, arrangement and time allotment of such agricultural broadcast material as weather forecasts, crop and market information, agricultural news, agricultural educational material and entertainment.

2. The development of a national program of agricultural material taking into consideration all state and local needs, thereby offering the widest distribution of agricultural information.

3. Through proper coordination to obtain the greatest economy and efficiency in handling agricultural material through broadcast stations and to elminiate duplication of effort.

4. The development of suitable time schedules for radio broadcast material to meet agricultural needs and the division of time schedules among broadcasting stations.

Naval Gunnery Practice Tests Delayed a Day

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16.—Because of the delayed arrival of the object of the tests—the incompleted super-dreadnaught Washington—the gunnery and bombing experiments scheduled for tomorrow off the Virginia Capes, has been postponed until Tuesday, according to naval authorities here tonight. Five tugs left Philadelphia yesterday morning with the 25,000 ton hull of what was to have been America's greatest battleship in tow, but radio reports showed slow progress southward was being made and it was said the target could not reach its place until Tuesday at the best.

The board of naval experts from Washington, headed by Rear Admiral Stocker, however, is expected to reach Hampton Roads tomorrow morning and will board the battleship Texas from which experiments will be witnessed. The Texas will leave for the drill grounds Tuesday morning and will take part in the tests by firing 14-inch shells into the Washington, which is to be scrapped under the naval armament limitation agreement.

U.S. Facing Hard Problem In Opium Meet at Geneva

Failure of One Conference Portends Difficulties For Observers

GENEVA, Nov. 16—(AP)—With the international conference on far eastern opium problems ending tonight sensationally, all the delegations are discussing with eagerness the probable attitude of the United States at the second and more important international opium conference which will begin tomorrow.

So charged with suspicions is the atmosphere at Geneva in consequence of charges and counter charges, pivoting around the contention that countries are enganging in opium traffic to fatten their treasuries, that few, if any, official American delegations will have gone into a conference more full of potential difficulties than that which opens its sessions tomorrow. But the American position on opium and narcotic drugs is held by the delegates generally to be so disinterested that there seems a general expectation that the American diegation of five headed by Representative Stephen G. Porter, will be able to bring something helpful out of Geneva.

The preliminary conferences accomplished none of the objects for which it was convoked. It failed to form any estimate of the amount of opium required for smoking purposes, or any estimate of the date when the importation of opium for smoking could be brought to an end, and it took no measures to curb the illicit production of opium in China.

Although the American attitude is not disclosed, the impression prevails at Geneva tonight that Mr. Porter and his colleagues, following the example set at the Washington arms conference, will enter tomorrow's conference with a clean cut program and a definite set of proposals in the form of a draft convntion.

More than 40 countries are expected to partisipate in the international convention. Its object it primarily to take up the problem of the traffic indangerous narcotic drugs. It will endeavor to limit to the medical and scientific needs of the world, the morphins, heroin and cocaine and the production and the moca leaves from which these narcotic drugs are derived.

Two Pioneers Of Iowa Park Buried Sunday Afternoon

Wiley Seago and Mrs. J. T. Pace Laid to Rest In The Highland Cemetery

IOWA PARK, Nov. 16.—Two old time residents of Iowa Park were buried here this afternoon after funeral services had been held by Rev. H. C. Hand, pastor of the First Methodist church, at the church building.

Services for Wiley Seago, aged 52, who was killed near Achita, N. M. early in the week were held at 2:30. Mr. Seago, who was a noted cattle handler in the frontier days, had not been a resident here for the past 10 years but he was well known in this section where he had had spent most of his life. Recently he has been engaged in driving cattle from old Mexico into the states. His death is supposed to have been caused by a horse falling on him, although some question has been raised as to this. Mexican bridgands have also been blamed.

Mr. Seago leaves his wife and four children, residents of Alice, Texas, and three sisters and four brothers.

Funeral services for Mrs. J. I. Pace, another pioneer resident who died in the General hospital at Wichita Falls Saturday were conducted by Rev. Hand in the Methodist church at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Pace succombed after a serious operation. She had lived in this neighborhood for the past 32 years.

Burial was in Highland cemetery.
