Worth

What a weekend! It wasn't that I didn't enjoy it, I did. But it was, to say the least, hectic.

Friday was my husband's birthday. As a surprise, I gave him a new puppy.

Two years ago we lost "Sugar" his favorite yellow labrador retriever to bone cancer.

Since that time I've been searching for one of her puppies or "grand-puppies".

As if it were meant to be I located one of Sugar's grandchildren just in time for his birthday.

So, Friday morning this eight week old, overgrown yellow lab came to live at our place.

This means, of course, working on housebreaking, which poor "Honey" had no idea about.

When I wasn't chasing the pup around trying to get it outside before an accident occurred, I was saying "no, no" as she tried to chew on every shoe, every purse, every magazine or newspaper in the place.

She tried to chew the chairs, the cushions, the leg of the bed and our camel saddle footstool.

She kept our birthday company entertained.

Saturday afternoon, between visits with relatives and trips to take pictures I tried to get a meal fixed for my niece, her husband and their three year old.

I also realized that I was supposed to get a new kitten from Edna Earl Wright. I didn't really need the hassle of a new kitten and a new puppy, but I'm a glutton for punishment.

Finally we settled down with cat, pup and kid and the show started.

Little Jeffery, my great-nephew, wagged the kitten around by the hour. The puppy thought it was grand to throw herself up on top of them both and tug at Jeffery's hair. The poor child was not completely thrilled with this arrangement, and I don't blame him!

So, that was the weekend. It was completely engaged in teaching the puppy to "go" outside, and the kitten to "go" in the litter box. And it was also engaged with trying to keep my other house cat, Lizzie, from whipping up on the puppy and the kitten. She still has a major case of the grumps.

Finally, all had pretty well settled down, the company had gone, and I was prepared for some peace and quiet. I only had to make one trip to the store.

Of course, on my way to the store I came across this pathetic, grease-coated yellow kitten on the side of the road.

It was skin and bones, and I looked away and tried to drive on past. I didn't ever make it, instead, I backed up and picked up the poor thing. It had to be de-fleaded, bathed, doctored and fed.

So now I have two kittens, one puppy, my usual complement of five other cats, two other Labradors and a Westie!

My nerves are shot from house-breaking, my budget is ruined with pet food. Both the puppy and the kittens still have a hard lesson ahead, since they haven't met the geese yet. And if anyone would like a lovely, gaining-weight-fast yellow kitten please, please give me a call!

Frontier Day Provides Maximum Fun!!

Last Saturday morning, bright and early at 7 a.m., Frontier Day in Bogata began with a free pancake and sausage breakfast provided by the Kennedy Sausage Company of Weatherford, TX. The breakfast was prepared by talented Contel Telephone boys who served approximately 500 people.

The dunking booth opened promptly at 8 a.m. with Rivercrest cheerleaders and two coaches, Harvey Slawson and Eddie Barker being the dunkers.

Maple Springs Jail opened up early with everyone swearing out warrants to get their revenge on someone. Moms and dads alike were escorted by Deputies to their cells.

In the various contests held during the day, Tina Smith won the nail driving contest for the ladies and Paul Yeatman won the contest for the men. Children eight and under enjoyed apple bobbing and the winner was Lacy Barlen, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stubblefield. The balloon bursting contest was won by Lyndsey Taylor, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Ward.

The square hay bale rolling was won by Brandon Miller and Josh Belcher and Erric Martin won the egg toss.

In the log sawing, winners were Tina Smith for the ladies and Paul Yeatman for the men.

The turtle race was won by the grandchildren of Ed and Loice Huddleston, Michael and Matt McKenzie and Aaron Hudson, who shared one turtle. The terrapin race was won by Ben Glass.

The new event added this year, the pig scramble, was a delight to some 20 youngsters who entered the sloppy pig pen and tried to retrieve the ribbon from the pig's tail. Winners were Colby Guest of Bogata and Aaron Hudson of Waxahachie.

Some 300 quackers were lined up and released at 1 p.m. for the famous Registered Duck Race. Crossing the line in front of all the others was a pretty pink duck belonging to the winner, Jason Ward, who received $1,000.00.

Special attractions during the day were the Red River Antique Tractor Club with the old tractors, cornmeal grinder and small hay baler on display. Their president, Elvis Daughtrey and George Miller demonstrated the hand-fed baler that measured 5x7x14.

The festivities ended at 5 p.m. with the second Rodeo Parade of the week, which preceded the final performance of the annual Bogata Rodeo.

Volunteers who made the day totally successful are greatly appreciated, along with the Boy Scouts who helped with parking cars for the day's events.

BULL RIDING was one of the highlights of the annual Bogata Rodeo held last week. Though many bull riders put up their

THE KENNEDY Sausage wagon took part in the Bogata Rodeo Parade on Saturday, June 29, along with appearing nightly at the rodeo. The four-horse Belgian hitch was a sight to behold as the giant horses were maneuvered with the

Flag Thefts Result In Reward Being Offered

Flag thefts have become extremely "unfunny" in Bogata, and as much as $400 is being offered to catch the thieves.

Information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for take the American Flags around the Bogata Area will earn a reward.

Bogata Postmaster Jack Crane has offered a $200 reward and the Bogata VFW Post 8187 has stated that they will match that.

The past weeks have been marred by someone taking the American Flags from the VFW east of Bogata, the War Monument just off of Main Street, and two flags from the United States Post Office Flag Pole in Bogata.

Crane says that people who are responsible for these thefts should be aware that the theft of anything from a United States Government building is a Federal crime, and punishable as such.

Anyone with information about the theft of the flags should contact Jack Crane at the Bogata Post Office.

WORLD TRAVELS: John Howison presented the program to the Summer Library students on Tuesday, relating his world

Country Cooking

By Gerrie Bankhead

The Country Cooking column is coming to you this week from the backyard of Donny Darden. Donny and his wife, Dawne, have one son, David J., age 10. They have lived in the Deport area for about 12 years and attend the First United Methodist Church in Deport.

Several of Donny's hobbies include deer hunting, watching football on TV and cooking.

Donny's deer hunting habit consists of seasonal every weekend events on local territory. He is the only one who likes deer meat in his family so when he gets one, he keeps only a few pieces and gives the remainder away.

His football watching consists of the Dallas Cowboys and Prairiland Patriots. He doesn't get to see all the games of either team, but does keep up with how both are progressing.

Donny's cooking began a few years ago when his job depended more on the weather, and he had several days during the winter where he would get bored with TV and go into the kitchen to see what he could cook up. Years ago, he says, he could manage to put a sandwich together, but his mom kept insisting he and his brothers learn more about cooking. He started practicing and he's managed to do quite well. Two main dishes Donny enjoys mixing up are okra gumbo and stew. He really has no recipe for these dishes, he just adds and tastes.

Donny is sharing some tips this week on grilling foods and some recipes he and his family enjoy.

If using either a gas or a regular grill, make sure your coals are as hot as you can get them. Wait until all briquettes are white in color, then wait a little longer until the coals start cooling back down, then put your meat on and cook it very, very slowly.

The longer you cook the meat, the more smoke flavor it will have. Of course, there is a point to start overcooking and your meat gets tough and learning this comes with practice.

If the wind is blowing, this causes meat to cook faster than normal so you have to really watch. When Donny finishes cooking the meat, he turns the burners on high for several minutes and burns the grates until all particles are turned to a crisp. Turn off and let cool completely, then take a wire brush and clean the grates.

Donny does his grill cooking on Sunday afternoons. In one cooking, he cooks Polish sausages, hamburgers, pork chops, steaks, chicken breasts and fajita meat. When all meat is cooked, he stores it in the microwave until thoroughly cooled. Then he puts them in freezer bags or foil and freezes them. The meat will last about a month in the freezer and still have a smoked flavor. It will also last for 3 or 4 days in a covered dish in the refrigerator and keep its flavor. Just thaw and heat in the microwave what you want to eat and you have it!

Donny likes to marinate foods before he cooks it. The oil free Italian dressing is a good marinade for grill cooking. Chicken breasts or chicken strips is very good using this recipe. You need to marinate at least 3 hours and then since chicken dries out so quickly, you need to spread occasionally while cooking. Donny has used this recipe about 3 years. The barbecue sauce was a basic recipe they came across but have made several changes with it. He is still working on improvements.

The Donny's Biscuit recipe is one he takes a lot to church suppers and youth breakfasts and everyone enjoys them. Donny says it takes about 15 minutes to make these biscuits, add sausage and eggs and you have a great supper.

I've also included a carrot cake and creme cheese icing recipe for diabetics and cholesterol watchers.

If you've enjoyed the article, request a recipe or have a recipe to share or suggest a feature, please call 652-6032 or write Rt. 1, Box 67A, Deport, TX 75435.

Oil Free Italian Dressing As Marinade

Marinate meat and vegetables for several hours in dressing, then use it as a basting sauce while grilling.

This is good on boneless chicken breasts for sandwiches or on shish kabobs. For shish kabobs, use lean cubes of pork, beef or chicken with onion, bell pepper, cherry tomatoes and pineapple.

Barbecue Sauce

Heat: 16 oz. jellied cranberry sauce

Stir until smooth.

Add:

12 oz. chili sauce

1/2 cup grated onion

1/4 cup honey

1 teaspoon garlic powder

This may be used on beef, chicken or pork. Baste often during grilling.

Donny's Biscuits

Yield-9

Melt:

1/4 cup margarine in 9x9 glass baking dish.

In bowl, cut together

1/3 cup shortening

1 3/4 cup self-rising flour

Add 3/4 cup milk.

Stir to mix. Pat this out and cut biscuits. Place biscuits in pan of melted margarine, first dipping the top in margarine. Bake at 425 for 20 minutes.

Floyd-Burnham Exchange Wedding Vows

Kristi Lea Floyd and Jeffrey Lynn Burnham, both of Bedford, exchanged double-ring vows on Saturday, June 22 at the Bedford Baptist Temple. The Rev. Kevin Finch officiated.

The altar comprised two double heart-shaped candelabras flanking a single heart-shaped candelabra. They held 53 rose petal pink candles. Polished ferns added to the wedding scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kenda A. Taylor of Justin and Bobby John Floyd of Paris. She is the granddaughter of Jayne Guest Anderson, Allene Petit Floyd and Cecil Anderson of Paris and the late Dempsey W. Floyd.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burnham of Dubach, LA and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Ferguson of Ruston, LA.

Wedding music was presented by Paul Hutchins of Paris, vocalist, and Russ Tapp of Grapevine, organist. Vocal selections were "Can't Help Falling In Love" and "There Is Love". Traditional selections completed the program.

Candlelighters were Scott Floyd, twin brother of the bride of Grapevine and Danny Mayfield of Richardson. They, along with Randy Smith of Irving, served as ushers.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected a gown of candlelight tulle. It featured a sweetheart neckline. The slightly dropped sculptured bodice was enhanced with bridal pearls and iridescent sequins. Double-clustered butterfly bows topped the shoulders, reflecting a southern look. The skirt fell from a basque waistline and was embellished with pearl and sequin appliques. The train was caught by a butterfly bow and extended to chapel length. Venice lace inserts embellished with varied hand-sewn beading of pearls and sequins extended the length of the train. The entire dress was edged in the same. She wore matching elbow-length gloves which had pearl buttons extended to the outer sides. She wore a candlelight satin picture hat with a side wing that held her waist length veiling of illusion. It was enhanced by trailings of lilies of the valley and seed pearl with diamond and pearl earrings, a Floyd family heirloom, and gift from her maternal grandmother, Aleene Floyd. The bride carried a sweetheart shaped cascading bouquet of bridal roses and stephanotis blossoms entwined with a white wedding Bible, which was carried in the wedding rites of her late uncle, Keven Wayne Anderson.

For something old, the bride carried an ivory venetian lace handkerchief, belonging to her maternal grandmother, Jayne Guest Anderson. For something blue she wore a blue satin and lace garter, made by her late maternal great-grandmother, Vannah Bettis Guest and worn in wedding rites of several relatives, including her mother. For something new, she wore a sapphire and baguette ring, a gift from the groom. For something borrowed she wore a sixpence in her shoe.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Rhonda Worthey of Norfolk, VA. Bridesmaid was Mrs. Kimberly Murphy of Grapevine. Maid of honor was Karrie Kavolcheck of Mountlake Terrace, Washington. Maiden of honor was Natalie Floyd, sister of the bride of Paris. The attendants were dressed in tea-length gowns of ice pink pearlized tulle, featuring a sweetheart neckline with a fitted bodice and bell shaped skirt. A butterfly bow rested at the back and had leg of mutton sleeves. They wore wrist length gloves and carried heart shaped bouquets of pink and ivory rosebuds with iridescent stephanotis.

Ringbearer was J.P. Myers of Bedford. Flower girl was Denise Lopez of Euless. Ms. Sherry Ross of Irving was in charge of the guest book and Ms. Teresa Lee of Nederland was hostess.

The groom, groomsmen and ushers wore full dress grey talls.

Joe Burnham of Dubach, LA served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Joey Burnham, brother of the groom of Dubach and Jeff Sadler of Dallas. Kristopher Wayne Anderson of Nederland, cousin of the bride, was junior groomsman.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the fellowship hall of the church hosted by the bride's mother and husband, Mr. and Mrs. David R. Taylor.

Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Daina Burnham of Dubach, Debbie Riggs of Bedford, Dashielle Reddell of Grapevine, Mrs. Mac Elliot of Ruston and Mrs. Gary Dean Floyd of Paris.

Rice bags and rice rosebuds made by Teresa Lee of Nederland were distributed by Ms. Angie Wharton of Euless and assisted by Kendall Taylor Lee of Nederland.

The groom's parents were hosts to a dinner following the rehearsal in the Parkway Room of the Holiday Inn in Bedford.

The bride is a graduate of Grapevine High School. She attended Paris, North Lamar and Sunnyvale Schools. She is a licensed cosmetologist. Presently, she is employed by Transwestern Property Company as an assistant manager of properties in Bedford. The bridegroom is a graduate of Dubach High School. He is employed by Willomene Industries of Irving.

The couple was honored with several parties prior to the wedding, including a miscellaneous shower hosted by Neva Whitlow, Teresa Lee, Aleene Floyd, Jerri, Juanita and Jayne Anderson at the First Assembly of God Church in Paris.

No Cars Under The Matterhorn

In our story last week we left Lugano for Italy once more. We headed for beautiful Lake Maggiore, where we were to take a ferry boat across the lake.

The Italian lake district is breathtaking, with snow capped mountains towering above crystal clear lakes. Along the shores of those lakes yachts and colorful sailboats were tucked into their harbors, while expensive and exclusive villas sprawled along the waterfront, surrounded by privacy walls and gardens and grottos.

One of the most unusual sights we saw were cars that were enclosed in locked heavy wire cages. We found out that there was no place to park them on the steep slope the villas were on, and isolated from the houses people had taken to stealing the radios and wheel covers from them. So, the resourceful homeowners simply drove them into these cages and locked them up!

We passed a huge stone works, in which the mountains yielded up their stony hearts to be made into roof slates, benches, huge columns, and decorative building stone smoothed to mirror finish.

In Laveno we shopped at an open air market that offered everything from tiny kittens to fresh fruits and vegetables, with fine leather work and beautiful embroidered clothing in between.

Fingering a bolt of exquisite embroidered cloth I told the woman at her stand that it was "bella".

"Si" she smiled "bella" she then rattled off an Italian sentence that I picked enough pieces of to know meant that it was very pretty, but not expensive, did I want some?

I told her no, and strolled on. Thomas, walking beside me swore that the two of us had discussed how ugly HE was!

We all climbed on to the big ferry, and the bus drove on behind us.

Lesley made the statement that although there was a toilet on board it was definitely "unisex" and that the plumbing hadn't changed much since Roman times.

Of course, that meant that Thomas had to go take a picture of it!

Perhaps some folks are more civilized than we are, but it didn't seem that bad to us. What it consisted of was a porcelain square basin with a hole in the middle, and two raised "footprints" on either side. The waves for the lake were sloshing up through the hole. Anyway, it made a great shot for the camera!

In the early afternoon we arrived at the Matt River, at the town of Matt. Ever wonder where the world famous Matterhorn got its name? Well, it's simple. The Matt river comes down from the mountains. The little town of Zermatt means by the Matt river, and the Matterhorn is the mountain over the Matt river!

The only way to get to Zermatt is by taking a train up. There are no cars in the town, no pollution, very little noise. Little electric cars provide some services to those that can't climb the steep streets.

When we disembarked from the train in Zermatt our group toiled uphill over steep, cobbled streets. Some of the older members of the tour took the electric taxis that took the luggage up to our hotel.

The hotel was new, and located up the side of a mountain. While not the most convenient to the center of town it certainly made up for it with the view.

When we stepped into our room the picture windows and balcony provided a full, striking view of the majestic Matterhorn, surrounded by other massive peaks!

We promptly took the steep road right back down to town, wandering through the narrow streets.

In the very center of this thriving ski community is a collection of ancient log buildings.

These hundreds of years old farm houses and barns are still used. Early risers in Zermatt can see the men with big baskets on their backs herding sheep, or the distinctive black and white goats up into the mountain meadows.

Heritage Festival To Feature Demonstrators

A heritage festival isn't possible without the support and assistance of individuals who are well acquainted with the culture of the area. With this in mind, the organizers of the Northeast Texas Heritage Festival are calling for volunteers who are willing to demonstrate their skills at needlework, specifically tatting, quilting, crocheting, bobbin lace and cut work.

Handmade quilts are also being sought for display at the Folk-Fest, scheduled for July 6, the final day of Northeast Texas Heritage Festival at Paris Junior College. Johnnie Robertson, coordinator of the event, hopes that each quilt will be accompanied by background information and photographs.

"We would like to display the history behind these quilts," said Ms. Robertson. "Every quilt has a story to tell." For more information, contact Regina Harris of the Homespun Shoppe at 785-6586.

Wildwood Dean Price, maker of lawn furniture from Dogwood Trees, will be one of the featured artists. A resident of Bonham, Wildwood Dean uses interesting techniques in fashioning the vine-like dogwood tree into useful furniture.

Members of the Fort Sherman Ranging Company will provide rifle demonstrations, target shooting, tomahawk and knife throwing, and blacksmithing.

Other booths and demonstrations planned for the Folk-Fest's Heritage Bazaar are woodworkers, flintknappers, woodcarvers, basket makers, jewelry makers, canners and antique dealers. Ribbons will be on sale, some of which will sell as low as $10 a yard, available by the bolt.

Texas Water, a popular trio specializing in folk and country favorites and original music, will provide the top-billed entertainment for the Folk-Fest. Comprised of James Michael Taylor, Peggy Sue and Barbara Anne, Texas Water will perform the authentic Texas music that brought them high acclaim as one of Ft. Worth's most popular country-pop-folk groups.

The Northeast Texas Heritage Festival Officially begins Wednesday evening, July 3, with the Municipal Band concert and fireworks display at Paris Junior College Noyes Stadium. The annual event, which will start at twilight, is sponsored by the Paris Rotary Club.

On the morning of July 4, the Chamber-sponsored downtown parade will leave the Paris Junior College Hunt Physical Education Center at 9 a.m. Bands will perform from 11 a.m. till noon in the campus grove of trees adjacent to Clarksville Street. The Chamber of Commerce will hold a Patriot Program at noon on the front lawn of the Paris Junior College Administration Building. Followed by a presentation of the City Big Band at 1 p.m.

The first performance of "Look To The River," an original musical drama by John Presley Wright with music by Lon Chaffin, will be a 2 p.m. matinee. The play, based on the works of Dr. William A. Owens, was performed several seasons ago but has been rewritten for the 1991 summer workshop production. The project is supported jointly by the Texas Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment of the Arts.

Carolyn Reeves Ericson, the featured presenter of the Genealogical Workshop, will discuss "Early Texas Research" at 9:30 a.m. Friday, July 5. Mrs. Ericson is the author of 32 books, including Nacadoches and Gateway to Texas. The workshop is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Alford Center for Lifelong Learning on the Paris Junior College campus.

As part of the Genealogical Workshop, a tour of the Texas House will be conducted from 2 to 5 p.m., with a donation of $1 or more going to benefit the continuation of the Northeast Texas Heritage Festival. The Texas House is a restoration of an early 1900 Victorian Homestead tenant house; which is located on the grounds of Belle Chenier, home of Dr. and Mrs. William deG. Hayden. The original cypress frame has been preserved along with the original filigree and glazing. The house is furnished with Texas primitive and Victorian Furniture. The Haydens are active in restoration projects throughout the state as members of the Texas Historical Foundation Board and the Lamar County Historical Society.

In conjunction with the workshop, the Maxey House will have an open house from 2 to 5 p.m., hosted by costumed attendants. During the Folk-Fest on Saturday, artifacts from the Maxey House will be displayed in a design created by Becky Dirks and Suzy Harper.

To register for the Genealogical Workshop, call Patsy Daniels between 1 and 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday, at 784-9448.

Performances of "Look To The River" will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 5 and 6, in the Paris Junior College Theatre for the Performing Arts. Tickets are Adults, $5; children 12 and under, $3. Call 784-9242 for reservations.

For more information about the Northeast Texas Heritage Festival, contact Johnnie Robertson, Festival Coordinator, Paris Junior College, 2400 Clarksville Street, Paris, Texas 75460, or phone (903) 785-9574.

Air Conditioning Rebate Clarification

Texas-New Mexico Power Company recently began promoting rebates for high efficiency air conditioning units. Some customers have called with questions to see what type of system qualifies for a rebate.

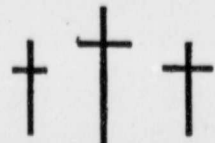

Through the rebate program, only central air conditioning systems with an SEER rating of at least 11.0 qualify for the rebates. Window units, due to the lower impact they have on saving energy, do not qualify.

Texas-New Mexico Power Company regrets any confusion caused by the promotion of these rebates.

Drive Safely Over The Holiday

As many as 12 persons may be killed on Texas roadways during the 30-hour July 4 period, according to Department of Public Safety estimates.

DPS director Colonel Joe Milner said the summer vacation travel holiday times will challenge motorists to avoid driving risks.

During July 4 last year, the DPS tabulated 15 deaths. Deaths due to critical injuries raised last year's final count to 19. This year's counting period begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 3 and continues to midnight, July 4.

In 1990, 89% of fatalities during July 4 occurred in accidents where speeding over the limits or driving while intoxicated was a factor in this state.

Of the 19 traffic deaths, 13 were persons in vehicles where seat belts could have been used.

Milner said additional troopers will be working in areas where high volumes of traffic could be anticipated.

Weekly Agricultural Update

By Herb Brevard

Gardeners can extend the productive life of spring vegetables with proper care and selection.

"Healthy plants are the first requirement for extending production," said Marty Baker, horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Tomatoes, peppers, okra, eggplants and some vining squash will produce into the fall if properly cared for."

Another important practice is keeping the soil moisture at the correct level. Most vegetables in East Texas need about two inches of water per week if properly mulched and weeded. Baker suggests not watering well established plants with sprinklers.

During the hot summer months plants can be covered with muslin cloth to help protect them from the sun. It is particularly easy to shade plants being grown in cages.

Baker says to follow good insect and disease control procedures throughout the growing season. Mites and grasshoppers can be serious during mid-summer.

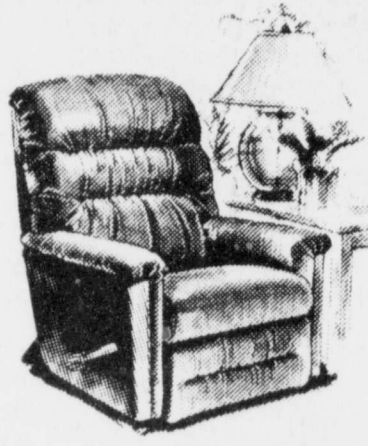

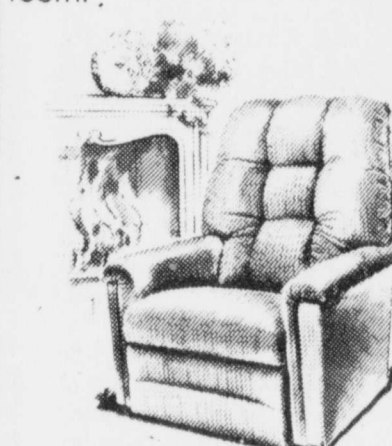

Most vegetables need very little, if any, fertilizer during the summer. Cut dead plant material out of tomatoes and peppers to stimulate new growth.

Agricultural Briefs

By Paul D. Payne

Have you ever spent a hot day cutting sprouts and brush to have it regrow the following year? That is exasperation. There must be a better way, right?

For spot treating small brush in pastures and fence rows, there is a new, do it yourself, method that works about any time of year without affecting nearby plants. It is called low volume basal bark treatment.

This method is effective on smooth barked brush plants up to about six inches in diameter. To control these plants a mixture of 20 to 30 percent Grazon ET herbicide and diesel fuel is sprayed directly on the lower 15 to 20 inches of trunk. Just enough mix is applied to thoroughly wet the bark but not to the point of runoff. You can use a low pressure, hand sprayer to apply the solution.

The plant absorbs the solution through the bark and moves it to the roots to kill the entire plant. To control multi-stemmed plants for example, brush that has grown back after shredding, spray the base of each stem.

One of the good points of this method is only the targeted plant is treated. There is virtually no danger of the herbicide moving via drift or runoff, and the method can be used any time of the year. However, best results can be expected when treating anytime from May through September.

Demonstration work in Eastern Oklahoma and Texas has shown a solution of 20% Grazon ET and diesel controlled post oak, blackjack oak, honey locust, bois d'arc, wild plum, Eastern persimmon, prickly ash, hackberry, greenbrier, winged elm and Texas persimmon.

For brush plants larger than six inches in diameter, consider herbicides that are applied to the foliage or to the soil. These methods may be as effective as low volume basal, but less flexible in timing and application.

Cedars are showing up more and more on pastureland. In many parts of the county fence rows are growing up with cedars and they can also be seen in fields that are not being grazed heavily.

Cedar trees can be controlled by using picloram herbicide. Grazon PC is the common herbicide available locally that contains picloram. It may be applied undiluted to the soil under the plant. Four ml per 3 feet height applied in late winter to early spring is suggested. The material can be mixed with diesel and water and applied to the foliage and stems.

A Look Back... 1976
