WTC trustees look into future with technology

Western Texas College trustees were given a peek into the 21st Century Monday night — but the technological advances in instruction could come as early as next year.

A computer-generated presentation on Distance Learning was given to the community college board during its regular monthly meeting.

John Gibson, director of workforce education, said several Snyder representatives had visited a Distance Learning lab last week at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls.

Gibson described the concept as "incredibly exciting." He said technology exists that would allow classes to be beamed from WTC or into WTC from another institution.

He said instruction would be live and that interaction is possible between students and the instructor and between students on different campuses.

Gibson said Midwestern has four Distance Learning labs and is interested in cooperating with WTC in making upper-level courses available on the Snyder campus. Gibson said WTC is also exploring similar possibilities with Texas Tech, Abilene Christian University, Angelo State University and the University of Texas-Permian Basin.

Gibson said the technology can also be applied to extension centers and to concurrent enrollment classes in area high schools.

Gibson said advantages include elimination of distance to additional education opportunities and potential for enrollment increase without additional staffing.

Gibson suggested that such technology could keep degree-track students on campus longer, taking more courses at WTC. He also said that some state funding for students taking classes from other institutions is possible, but that the beaming school receives the tuition.

Gibson said such a facility can also be used as a "full-service business center" for employee training such as Pennzoil, Lorber Industries or others.

WTC trustees have already approved renovation of a building on campus to serve as the Workforce Education Center. The board has approved the sale of $500,000 in bonds for renovation of the building.

Gibson estimated that establishment of a Distance Learning lab would cost $400,000, but that "partners" are being identified so that local funds would not be required. This would include grants from private companies and foundations.

Trustee Drew Bullard, who was part of the visiting delegation in Wichita Falls, said he got a positive response when he asked, "Does it really work?"

Board President Dr. Jay Kidd asked about the cost to outfit a classroom in an extension center so that classes could be received. Gibson estimated $35,000.

The visit to the Midwestern campus was arranged by Sen. Tom Haywood who also toured the facility. Others making the trip from Snyder were Dr. Jim Palmer, dean of instruction and director of distance learning; Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education; Britt Canada, director of technology; and John DeLille, Development Corporation of Snyder executive director.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A family is a unit that spends money — often yet to be earned."

Times have changed in a scant 50 years. Somebody on the internet updated a 1950 version of a high school home economics textbook used to prepare girls for married life.

1. Have dinner ready: Plan ahead. This a way of letting him know you've been thinking about him, and concerned about his needs.

Modern version: Make reservations in advance. If your day becomes too hectic, just leave him a voice mail message. This lets him know your day has been equally trying and gives him an opportunity to change your mood.

2. Prepare yourself: Take 15 minutes to rest so you will be refreshed when he arrives. Touch up your makeup and put a ribbon in your hair. His boring day may need a lift.

Modern version: A quick stop shopping on your way home will do wonders for your outlook and will keep you from becoming irritated everytime he belches at the table. Don't forget to use his credit card.

3. Clear away the clutter. Make one last trip through the house just before his arrival. Then run a dust cloth over tables, making him feel he has reached a haven of rest and order.

Modern version: Call the housekeeper and let her know you need her for an extra day this week. Tell her any items left on the floor can be placed in the Goodwill box.

4. Prepare the children: Freshen them up as well. Change their clothes, if necessary. They are his treasures.

5. Minimize the noise: Turn off the washer, dryer, dishwasher, etc. Encourage the children to be quiet. Greet him with a warm smile.

Modern version: Remind him that the trash compactor and garbage disposal are still on the blink. Greet him with a smile — to encourage his prompt attention to the broken appliances.

6. Don't complain, even if he's late for dinner.

Modern version: Let him speak first, then your complaints wil remain fresh throughout dinner Remind him that the last one home cleans up the kitchen.

7. Listen to him: Even though you have a million things to tell him. Let him talk first.

Modern version: Listen, but don't dare let him get in the last word.

8. The Goal: Try to make your home a place of peace where your husband can relax.

Modern version: Try to keep things amicable without reminding him survival would be impossible without your income.

Ira trustees ok technology plan

Ira school trustees handled a brief agenda Monday night, including approval of a grant application to the Telecommunications Infrastructure Fund.

The grant request, $100,000, will be used to implement the district's technology plan which was also given board approval Monday.

In a related item, trustees also adopted a policy dealing with acceptable use of the Internet.

In other business, the board approved a policy calling for the election of trustees by places. The change will be effective with next spring's school board election.

A drawing will be held at a later date to determine places on the board and staggered terms.

The board also nominated David Beaver as a candidate to the board of directors of the Scurry County Appraisal District.

Blume first in football contest

Four misses was the best the SDN Football Contest entrants could do in last week's contest.

Three people had four misses, so the tie-breaker procedure was used to determine the first, second and third place winners.

Dennis Blum of 403 31st won the first place $50 by predicting a total score of 44 points (the actual total was 60).

Last week's winner, Joseph J. Wirsching of 366 CR 146 took the second place prize of $25, guessing 42 points. Jeff Reed of 3412 44th captured the $15 for third place by choosing 21 points. All three winners predicted a Snyder victory.

Man wins suit ...pants down

HOUSTON (AP) — A man has agreed to settle the lawsuit he filed against a medical supply company over an incident of workplace horseplay in which three female co-workers pulled down his pants to his ankles.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed, but Sterile Reprocessing Services, Inc., of Houston denied any wrongdoing.

The man said after he mentioned one day at work that he sometimes wore no underwear, the three female co-workers targeted his trousers for a full take-down.

"At one point, all three women pulled the plaintiff's pants to his knees and caused him to fall," according to documents filed by his attorney, Peter Brannan. "While struggling to get away, they dragged him across the floor by his pants."

The man had worked for the company for three years before he left the company in 1994. He filed the lawsuit last year.

The women co-workers were not cited in the lawsuit. Instead, he sued the company.

UNITED WAY — A Scurry County United Way report meeting was held Monday evening at the chamber of commerce. A total of $28,984.92 has been collected, representing 48 percent of the 1997 campaign goal of $60,000. Enrollment report positive...

College action items deal with re-accreditation visit

Western Texas College zipped through a brief agenda Monday night, but heard a series of administrative reports.

The only action items dealt with the upcoming accreditation visit by the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities.

The SAC team will arrive in Snyder Nov. 9 for a three-day visit to the campus. The 12-member team will evaluate institutional effectiveness as it relates the college's mission and purpose.

The re-accreditation process occurs every 10 years, said Dr. Harry Krenek, WTC president. After arriving on Sunday night, the team members will be on campus Monday and Tuesday looking at specific areas. An exit interview will be given at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, and then followed by a formal written report.

Dr. Krenek said a visiting committee normally makes 15 to 20 recommendations.

The president along with board president Dr. Jay Kidd, praised the staff, especially the self-evaluation steering committee, for their work on a report that last Friday was sent to members of the visiting team. Trustees were given a copy of the report Monday night.

The action items included four policy changes:

--a policy calling for the annual evaluation of the college president along with an instrument to use in the evaluation process.

--a policy recognizing state law as the process for removal of a trustee.

--changing one word in the mission statement of the Learning Resource Center from "objective" to "purpose."

The four policy changes were a result of the on-campus self-evaluation, Dr. Krenek said. John Gibson chaired the steering committee and Bill McGlothing, English instructor, was the report's editor.

In other administrative reports, the board was told of plans to purchase seven computers, software and a printer for use by prison instructors. The computers will allow for direct access to campus resources.

In another report, Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education, presented annual enrollment figures as requested by the board at a previous meeting.

In Workforce Education, non-credit classes, there were 804 students in 81 classes resulting in income of $64,358 from tuition and fees and $269,019 from state funds.

Community service courses had 711 persons enrolled in 78 classes with an income of $64,358.46.

GED and English as a Second Language instruction was provided for 200 students with income of $17,794.

Academic and vocational courses taught inside various prison units included 1,167 students in 86 classes. Income from tuition and fees was $131,464 and $454,572 from state funding.

Thornton said that a data base has now been established, and that continuing education division statistics will be readily available.

The board also asked that a letter of commendation be written to business office employee Beverly Johnson who will retire in January after 27 years of service.

Dr. Krenek described Mrs. Johnson as a "great employee who will be sorely missed." Keprece Bedell, a purchasing employee, will be moved into Mrs. Johnson's accounts payable role. Patricia Claxton, director of college finances, said the purchasing position is being advertised.

It was also reported that Cargile Associates, the Fort Worth firm who conducted a pre-campaign survey for the WTC Scholarship Foundation, will make its report to the Foundation board on Oct. 27.

A preliminary engineering report was also received on use of the former K-mart building. Krenek said some progress is being made for use as a covered

Runner's wife hopes others will take up memorial race

PRINCETON, Mass. (AP) — The air was cool, the skies clear and blue above the autumn leaves as John Pierce neared the finish line of Applefest Half-Marathon. As in every race since his daughter's death, he wore a cap that read "In Memory of Ali Pierce."

Pierce gave up running when Ali was diagnosed with liver cancer in Dcember 1994. He started again after her death in November, hoping to raise money for the cancer center where she died.

Now his wife hopes other runners will take on the challenge in memory of Ali — and of John, who collapsed Saturday just 10 feet from the finish line and died of a heart attack.

"It will be a tribute to my daughter and my husband both," Anna Ling Pierce said Monday.

The two are together again, Mrs. Pierce believes: "That's what's giving me the strength to open my eyes this morning."

Pierce, a casual runner, gave it up to spend more time with his 14-year-old daughter in her last months, spent at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center's cancer ward.

After her death Nov. 3, the couple went to a dinner as guests of friends who were running in the Boston Marathon in April to raise money for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

"They called our names and we stood with a group of other parents who had lost children to cancer," Mrs. Pierce recalls. "And when we sat down, they called out the names of children who went to the stage who were bald, who were in the middle of treatment, who were frail, and our hearts broke and we knew that in a year some of those kids wouldn't be there and their parents would be standing in our group."

John Pierce started running again, partly to relieve his grief and partly to contend with the stresses of his job as manager of a Morgan, Stanley-Dean Witter branch, she said.

Fourteen-year-old will be sentenced for girl's assault

TEXAS CITY (AP) — A 14-year-old boy was found Monday to have "engaged in delinquent conduct" in the kidnapping and sexual assault last June of a 4-year-old girl.

Galveston County judge C.G. Dibrell III said jurors had returned with a "true" ruling against the boy in the case. Under Texas juvenile statutes, a "true" ruling is similar to a guilty verdict in adult court.

The 14-year-old could face anywhere from probation to 40 years imprisonment next week when Dibrell sentences him.

The boy and a 10-year-old were accused of coaxing a 4-year-old girl to go with them to a carnival on the afternoon of June 22. Instead, they took her by bicycle to a parking lot outside a Texas City high school football stadium and sexually assaulted her inside an empty school bus, authorities said.

Police were called to the bus parking area after a driver saw a light go on and off in a bus, indicating that someone had opened and closed a door. Suspecting vandalism, he summoned police.

As officers approached, police said, the boys scrambled out of a bus, pulling up their pants. The victim was partially undressed and was crying, police said.

Both boys gave statements concerning the incident.

Prosecutor Bill Reed said he would ask Dibrell for harsh punishment, "because of the facts of the case and for the protection of the community."

"I coach a group of 5-year-olds on a soccer team and it's hard for me to imagine this type of thing happening to one of them," Reed said.

A trial date has not yet been set for the 10-year-old accused in the case. He has been living with an out-of-town family member.

Local museum now seeking many items for angel display

As one exhibit winds down, Scurry County Museum is planning another one, this time holiday related.

The Scurry County Museum needs angel related objects to display during the holiday season, Nov. 20-Jan. 5. The museum wishes to display angel pictures, calendars, statues, jewelry, craft objects of angels and other objects, including clothes with angel motifs on them.

At one time or another, almost everyone has encountered pictures with angels in them. For example, as a child, Charlene Akers, museum director, recalls a black and white print with an angel guiding two children across a rolling river on the walls of her family's home. Akers said by looking at the print, she felt safe.

During the last few years, many books about angels and ceramic statues of angels have been seen on store shelves and found their way into households. People have developed an attachment to these angels for various reasons.

It is not uncommon, Akers said, "to hear a person say 'I have a guardian angel watching over me.' We would like for folks to share their angels with others during the holiday season and are asking them to lend them to the museum for a few weeks."

Stories about angels are also welcome.

The museum will hold the Angel Christmas opening on Nov. 20 from 5-7:30 p.m. The celebration will also feature art by Dalhart Windberg.

Call 573-6107 for more information.

The Inmates' Art Show from the Price Daniel Unit is entering its final weeks of display. The show opened on Aug. 28 and will conclude on Oct. 28.

Over 100 items are on display, ranging from small crafts, such as leather and wood carving, to surrealistic paintings.

Akers said, "People have been so pleased with the show that they are asking to have another one next year."

Museum visitors are voting for their favorite items within the show. After Oct. 28, the museum will announce the item which has received the most votes.

"Visitors are really making this a true 'People's Choice Award,' Akers said.

The museum is located on the southwest corner of the Western Texas College campus. It is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Fridays. Other times are by appointment.

Bone density test is important

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am shrinking. I've lost at least 2 inches in height in the past 20 years. Now that I am 70, I don't want to turn into someone who is "vertically challenged." Should I have a bone density test?

DEAR READER: I hereby take note of your political correctness in using two words where one ("short") would do. But that's a subject for another column.

Yes, you should have a bone density test. This simple, safe and relatively inexpensive X-ray exam will show whether you have osteoporosis — and if so, how much. I recommend this test for all women (and most men) over the age of 65 or 70, because osteoporosis can lead to serious handicaps: As calcium leaches from bones, painful fractures can occur, even during minor trauma. Most important, osteoporosis is treatable.

Having said this, I doubt that your loss of height is due to deficient bone-calcium. As time passes, we all lose physical stature because, among other changes, the discs between the spinal bones become dehydrated and shrink. Unfortunately, this is simply a consequence of the aging process. (What we need to do is to increase our emotional and psychological stature to compensate for the physical alterations!)

Nonetheless, you should have a bone density exam, because if significant osteoporosis is present, you need treatment with either hormone replacement and/or drugs such as Fosamax to increase calcification. Ask your doctor about this.

To give you more information on this condition, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Osteoporosis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was disappointed to read your column about hygiene to reduce the incidence of hepatitis. Not only should people avoid sharing drinking and eating utensils, but they should also wash their hands thoroughly after using the restroom.

DEAR READER: With a little bit of effort, we can all become obsessed with germs and bacteria — but we don't need to carry the issue to extremes. Avoiding common drinking and eating utensils is certainly a healthful practice, because many diseases — including hepatitis A — can be spread in this fashion. However, it is not medically necessary — I repeat, not necessary — to wash one's hands after answering a call of nature. In most instances, our genitals are clean and the risk of hand-contamination after a bowel movement is so remote that it would be a medical curiosity. People handling food should, of course, wash up after using the bathroom, but this is a special situation. In the past, I've championed the practice of washing the hands BEFORE using the restroom; it's far more likely that dirty hands can spread germs TO the genitals, rather than FROM them.

However, based on the volume of mail I received after first suggesting this, many intelligent adults still believe what their mothers told them: THAT part of the body is contaminated and dirty. Not so. Here we go again.

The U.S. II team in the Bermuda Bowl will be most people's favorite to win. Nick Nickell, Dick Freeman, Bob Hamman, Bobby Wolff, Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell have been by far the most successful team in national competitions over the last five years. Also, they are the defending Bermuda Bowl champions.

In the other room, after winning trick one with the heart king, Nickell (East) returned a diamond. To get home now, Chip Martel (declarer) had to win with the ace and guess the trumps: either continuing with the ace and another, or ducking the first round and cashing the ace next. Understandably, though, Martel played his diamond three. Unerringly, Freeman (West) won with the king and switched to a club. And when in with the spade king, Freeman gave his partner a club ruff: one down.

In the given auction, North's response of two no-trump asked for a five-card major — though you probably knew that already!

Here, Michael Rosenberg (East) switched to his singleton club at trick two. After winning in the dummy, Rodwell called for the spade 10: jack, queen, king. Zia Mahmood (West) knew he could give his partner a club ruff. But he realized that that wouldn't be enough to defeat the contract. So, instead, Zia led a second heart. However, Rodwell ruffed with dummy's spade eight before playing a spade to his six! Now declarer had an overtrick for a pickup of 13 international matchpoints.

Astro-graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Oct. 15, 1997

In the year ahead, your expectations will be founded upon realistic premises, not wishful thinking. Objectives you believe in will be achievable when handled in a pragmatic manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you sense you have the upper hand over another in a transaction today, you're probably right, but this does not give you a license to take advantage. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep accurate records of your procedures today, especially if performing a service for another. A misunderstanding may surface down the line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Occasionally, you're not prudent with your resources and this could be one of those days. Be careful when you have the checkbook in your hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Here is a helpful motto to hang inside your office today: "What you see here, say here, hear here, stays here when you leave here."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not knuckle under today if you have to deal with a big mouth. A mouse might learn to roar like a lion, but he or she is still a mouse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be very cautious today if you're involved in an arrangement that requires your financial backing. Make sure you know what you're doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It is commendable to want to function as your own person, but it's not very admirable to gratify self-interests at the expense of another today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Future plans should be predicated upon actual projections, not wishful thinking. If you miscalculate today, you might have grief tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be operating on a different plane than your associates today. Serious misunderstandings could result if differences become too great.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not butt your head against overwhelming opposition today. It could be foolish to rush in if it's a no-win, no-value situation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may be difficult for you to distinguish between apprehension and intuition today. Do not confuse negative thoughts with genuine hunches.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're thinking about buying something rather expensive about which you know little, it might be wise to have your judgment vindicated by an expert.

Lady Westerners begin basketball season with strong performances

McKINNEY — One of the slogans for the Western Texas College basketball team is "Set it off" and the Lady Westerners did just that at the Super Scrimmage held in McKinney over the weekend.

WTC topped San Jacinto, Southwest Christian and Collin County, before falling to Temple in four simulated games.

"The girls played extremely hard," WTC coach Valery Jackson said. "Our defense looked real good. Offensively we need to work on our post some to get it where it needs to be."

The Lady Westerners were without their only returning letterman from last year, Celestine Otuoro. The sophomore forward underwent arthroscopic knee surgery last week and is expected to be out 4-5 weeks.

"Celestine knows the offense and will be a big part of this team when she returns," Jackson said. "Our other inside players are talented, they just need some time to adjust to our offense."

The Lady Westerners are fielding an inexperienced squad for the 97-98 season and Coach Jackson believes that her team learned a lot during the weekend's action.

"I told the girls before the scrimmages started that this was going to be a great introduction to college basketball," the first-year coach said. "I believe they learned a lot from what they experienced this weekend."

WTC will be in action again Thursday in a scrimmage against Hill College at Coleman High School, beginning at 6 p.m.

WTC rides away with title

VERNON — After watching the women's team win twice, the Western Texas College men decided it was their turn to claim a rodeo victory.

The Westerners won the team title at the Vernon Regional College rodeo over the weekend, with a total of 303 points. Vernon placed second with 250, while Temple came in third at 198.

WTC's Kyle Bowers and Chad Maynard split first place in the bareback competition with a score of 65.

Jay Ross Bryant notched the top spot in bull riding, after posting a score of 78, while Lance Galliard nabbed third place in the saddle bronc event.

The Lady Westerners rode their way to a fifth place finish, thanks to the performances of Shanna Ferguson, Sequin Downey and Talina Bird.

Ferguson placed fourth in barrel racing roping with a time of 17.1 seconds and Downey finished sixth in the event with a 3.6.

Bird posted her points in the barrel racing competition, splitting third and fourth with her time of 17.11 seconds.

WTC will be in the arena again Nov. 6-8 at Texas Tech.

Cowboys fall to 3-3 after 21-16 loss at Washington

For the Dallas Cowboys, it's the dead zone.

The Cowboys' 21-16 loss to the Washington Redskins on Monday night might have been sealed in the first six minutes when Dallas did again what it's done so often — failed to get into the end zone from inside the 20.

After Dallas settled for Richie Cunningham's 19-yard field goal, the Redskins scored the next 21 points and then held of a late Dallas rally.

The telling stat?

In their first game, a 37-7 win in Pittsburgh, the Cowboys scored touchdowns on three of their five trips inside the 20, the so-called "red zone." In their last 20 red zone trips, they've scored only four TDs and are the only team in the NFL without a rushing touchdown.

That first drive Monday night was a killer.

They started like the Cowboys of old — Emmitt Smith ripping off runs of 16 and 11 yards. Then Troy Aikman hit Michael Irvin for 52 yards.

Three plays later, it was first-and-goal at the 2, and it looked like a handoff to Smith would do it.

Then, as has so often happened this season, there was a mistake — rookie tight end David LaFleur jumped early. Five-yard penalty.

"That pretty much decided the game right there," LaFleur said. "They moved their defensive front. I was looking in, they just caught me off guard."

But don't make LaFleur the goat — in the past, first-and-goal at the 7 would have been no problem. Not this year.

"We just bog down and don't make the plays," coach Barry Switzer said.

"If you've got any answers, come help us," he told reporters. "It's just frustrating."

It got more frustrating as the game went on. After those 27 yards on two carries, Smith got just 34 yards on 15 carries the rest of the game. He has just one 100-yard rushing game this season and hasn't scored in eight games after geting 108 TDs in the first 108 games of his career.

The Cowboys, now 3-3 and third behind the Redskins and New York Giants in the NFC East, got one score on rookie Dexter Coakley's 18-yard return of a fumble and another on Aikman's 14-yard TD pass to Irvin with 9:40 left in the game.

But that came at the end of the only other sustained drive of the night.

Their defense gave the offense chances — on four straight drives in the third and fourth quarters, the Redskins got minus-5, minus-2, minus-4 and minus-2 yards.

The old Cowboys would have jumped on that.

The new Cowboys?

"We have to keep pushing the envelope hard and maybe we'll crack it open," Smith said. "We need some prayers as well because it could easily be a very ugly season for us if we're not careful."

Added guard Nate Newton: "I was here when we were down in the dumps. I refuse to go back in the dumps."

Orioles fight off elimination with 4-2 victory over Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — The wind brought down one flag and the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Cleveland Indians from raising another.

Scott Kamieniecki and Jimmy Key combined to pitch shutout ball over eight innings, and Geronimo Berroa hit a two-run single as the Orioles avoided an early offseason Monday night with a 4-2 victory over the Indians in Game 5 of the AL championship series.

Eric Davis, whose comeback from colon cancer surgery has given the Orioles an emotional lift, connected for a pinch-homer off Paul Assenmacher in a two-run ninth that also included an RBI single by Cal Ripken.

Compared to two straight nerve-racking weekend games, Game 5 seemed almost a snoozer. The Jacobs Field crowd of 45,068, which screamed itself hoarse during Cleveland's stunning wins on Saturday and Sunday, was rather subdued.

Trailing 4-0, the Indians finally stirred with a dramatic ninth, when David Justice singled off Randy Myers leading off and Matt Williams followed with an RBI double.

Marquis Grissom reached on an infield single — Myers knocked down a comebacker but couldn't come up with the ball — and Bip Roberts struck out as Grissom stole second.

Myers finally ended it by retiring Omar Vizquel on a grounder up the middle in which second baseman Roberto Alomar made a back-handed play and followed with an off-balance throw that beat the runner by a step.

Fans had come ready to celebrate the Indians' second trip to the World Series in three years, but the Orioles wouldn't cooperate. And there was an ominous moment early on when winds whipped the ballpark's giant American flag around its pole and tore it.

The flag was lowered after the third inning, and the Orioles' victory assured there wouldn't be any AL pennant waving over Cleveland for at least another couple days.

After an off-day, the best-of-7 series will resume Wednesday at Camden Yards with Cleveland's Charles Nagy facing Mike Mussina, who struck out an ALCS record 15 in Game 3.

Kamieniecki, who relieved Key in Game 2, was making his first start since Sept. 24. The right-hander gave Baltimore manager Davey Johnson everything he could have hoped by limiting the Indians to four hits in five innings with one walk and four strikeouts.

Greenspan warns against controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stepping into a debate over the best way to handle future currency crises, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan warned today that it would be a mistake to impose controls on the billions of dollars of investments made daily by traders around the world.

Greenspan's comments, prepared for a seminar on global investments, represented his most extensive review of the financial turmoil that has engulfed several Asian countries this year.

Greenspan conceded that the speed at which investors can send money in and out of a country has been accelerated by computers and global communications networks, but he said it would be impossible to revert to a simpler time.

Greenspan said the increased flow of investment from one country to another has worked to the benefit of developing nations, providing them with needed money to build roads, ports and other infrastructure and raise the standard of living for their citizens.

Greenspan said the 1994-1995 peso crisis in Mexico and more recently the severe currency turmoil that has struck several Southeast Asian nations, including Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia, underscored the financial problems that can quickly strike when sentiment suddenly changes and investors stampede to remove their money from a particular country.

Crime stuff flat on Columbus Day

Criminal activity was light on Columbus Day in Scurry County as less than three dozen calls were noted on the blotter.

A report of a gas drive-off from the Plaza Truck Stop was made at 7:45 a.m. in reference to a person not paying for a $19.40 purchase. The person was later located and did pay for the gas.

Officers investigated a minor accident Sunday that occurred in the 4600 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1997 Chevrolet driven by Brandi Hancock of 2707 Ave. V and a 1980 Dodge driven by Lena Crenshaw of 2611 Ave. J.

At 8:38 p.m. Friday, a minor accident occurred in the 1700 block of Cogdell Boulevard involving one moving vehicle and two which were parked and unoccupied. Involved were a 1983 Lincoln driven by Alicia Peoples of 5406 Cedar Creek, a parked and unoccupied 1976 Chevrolet belonging to Pola Alaniz, Box 49 and a parked and unoccupied 1989 Chevrolet belonging to Robert Holden of 1172 N. Ave. P.

Brits break sound barrier; miss record by 60 seconds

GERLACH, Nev. (AP) — The fastest car in the world needed a Formula 1 pit stop. But while Thrust SSC broke the sound barrier twice, it missed the record books by being 52 seconds slow getting back on course.

The jet-powered car streaked across the Black Rock Desert at 764.168 mph on Monday, then made a return trip at 760.135 mph, accompanied both times by a soft sonic boom muffled by the porous hardpan.

But a drag parachute failed to deploy on the first run and the car overshot the end of the 13-mile course by 1½ miles. It took 61 minutes to turn the car around and position it for the second sprint.

The rules require two runs in opposite directions within one hour.

"So near, and yet so far," project leader Richard Noble said.

Noble, himself a former land speed record-holder, said his car would be back in the desert 125 miles north of Reno today or Wednesday to achieve his ultimate goal of Mach 1 plus 10 percent.

The record attempt comes 50 years after Chuck Yeager became the first person to burst through the sound barrier (in the air) and survive in a rocket plane on Oct. 14, 1947.

Yeager, 74, planned to repeat his feat today and fly an F-15 jet fighter through the sound barrier in ceremonies at Edwards to commemorate the 50th anniversary of his history-making flight.

Noble, 51, set the land speed record here Oct. 4, 1983, at 633.47 mph.

But Royal Air Force pilot Andy Green, 35, broke that mark on Sept. 25 with a two-way average speed of 714.144 mph that he set within the one-hour limit.

Green made three runs on Monday. The first, at 749.647 mph, fell just shy of the sound barrier at 99.7 percent of Mach 1.

His 764.168 mph spring was 1.007 times the speed of sound and the 760.135 run was 1.003 times the speed of sound, assuming that the temperature and humidity on the remote desert were calculated correctly.

Dozens die in Canadian bus accident

ST-JOSEPH-DE-LA-RIVE, Quebec (AP) — A small Quebec town was in shock today after 42 of its senior citizens were killed when their bus, on a holiday excursion, plunged off a dangerous curve into a ravine.

The driver of the bus also died in Monday's accident, making it the deadliest crackup on a Quebec highway in at least 30 years. It occurred on Canada's Thanksgiving Day at the same place where a tour bus crashed in 1974, killing 13 elderly people.

All 47 passengers, including five who survived with serious injuries, were members of a senior citizen's club in St-Bernard, a town of 2,100 residents that is about 18 miles south of Quebec City.

They were heading to a ferry that would have taken them to Ile-aux-Coudres, a popular St. Lawrence River tourist spot, for a party.

After learning of the crash, residents of St-Bernard converged on the local parish to learn who had survived and who hadn't.

"We still don't believe it," said the parish priest, Marc-Andre Lachance. "Everybody knows each other here, they are close to each other."

The accident occurred in St-Joseph-de-la-Rive, a small town along the St. Lawrence, about 60 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Skies were clear and the road was dry when the bus careened off a curve at the bottom of a steep descent at about 2:15 p.m. Police said faulty brakes were the likeliest cause of the tragedy because there were no skid marks at the bottom of the hill.

Quebec's premier, Lucien Bouchard, ordered a public inquiry into circumstances surrounding the crash. Prime Minister Jean Chretien was among those expressing condolences.

"There was absolutely no reaction from inside the bus," said Rev. Jean Moisan, the local parish priest who was one of the first people to reach the vehicle. "I didn't hear anyone crying for help."

The five injured were transported to the Enfant-Jesus hospital in Quebec City and were listed in serious condition Monday night.

The dead included 30 women and 13 men.

Andre Castonguay, a witness who arrived shortly after the crash, said there was a drop of about 60 feet between the highway and the spot where the bus came to rest on its side.

Aphorisms get tweaked from senior point of view

© 1997 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I laughed out loud when I saw your column featuring famous sayings with original endings provided by a fourth-grade class in Ventura County, Calif.

At our computer Web site, the Geezer Brigade for "seniors with an attitude," a competition was held to see if Geezers couldn't outdo the little whippersnappers. Here are the results:

APHORISMS FOR THE '90s FROM THE GEEZER BRIGADE

— All that glitters is not ... necessarily something you want your only daughter sticking through a hole in her nose.

— The early bird catches ... hell from the union.

— A penny saved is ... something you could've invested in the biggest bull market in history, if only you hadn't listened to your idiot brother-in-law.

— The road to hell is ... paved.

— The squeaky wheel ... got to be lead singer in my son's rock group.

— To err is ... not permitted by the IRS, and to forgive is unheard of!

JOHN KERNELL, CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR JOHN: If some people are curious about what seniors are doing with computers these days, your letter should put their curiosity to rest.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Picture Perfect," whose married sister didn't want "Picture's" fiance in their family portrait, made me chuckle. By agreeing with the sister, you implied that tying the knot was a guarantee of permanent family status. A son-in-law can end up "out of the picture" just as easily as a fiance can.

Several years ago, we had a family portrait taken that included our parents, my husband and myself, my two married sisters and their husbands and children, and my unmarried sister. Well, all three of the sons-in-law have since become "exes."

There have been ongoing family jokes about the usefulness of those little "sticky notes" as cover-ups, making miniature brown paper sacks to paste over obsolete heads, or covering the face of each ex with his replacement.

Fortunately, when we sat for the portrait, we also had shots taken of my parents by themselves, and "just us girls" with our parents. Although most of us now display the abbreviated portrait, I keep the one with the exes tucked away in a family album. All three were good men and are a part of our family history, even if not a part of its future.

PICTURE THIS IN HANFORD, CALIF.

DEAR PICTURE THIS: I think I've got the picture. It's dizzying to think that the only way to have a family portrait is to include blood relatives only. However, many readers wrote suggesting that this family have two portraits made — one with the fiance, and one without.

***

DEAR ABBY: You asked your readers how they would define "elderly." My 4-year-old daughter came to me one day with a question about our neighbor, Fern: "Mom," Katy asked, "is Fern old?"

"Yes," I replied, "Fern is old."

"No, Mom, I mean really old."

Knowing that Fern is 87, I answered "Yes."

"Gosh!" Katy said, her eyes shining. "Is she 30?"

So, Abby, I thought you'd like to know that in my daughter's eyes, "elderly" is synonymous with 30.

KIM YOSHIHARA, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR KIM: Katy is not alone. I remember the '60s, when teenagers and college students used to say, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

Supreme Court rejects challenge to law

Oregon's doctor-assisted suicide law legalizes help for terminally ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, which ruled in June that terminally ill Americans have no constitutional right to doctor-assisted suicide, today rejected a challenge to an Oregon measure that legalizes such help.

The justices, without comment, refused to revive a lawsuit filed by a terminally ill woman and two doctors. A federal appeals court threw out the case after ruling that the three lacked the proper legal standing to sue.

Today's action, although not a decision that sets any national precedent, clears the way for Oregon's assisted-suicide law to take effect.

Oregon voters in 1994 passed a referendum allowing doctors to help mentally competent but terminally ill patients end their lives. The initiative, however, never has taken effect because of court challenges.

The state Legislature has put the measure on this year's ballot, and voters will be asked in November whether they want to repeal the Death With Dignity Act, also known as Measure 16.

In other action today, the court:

—Agreed to decide whether a federal law intended to speed the pace of executions limits claims by death-row inmates that they are too insane to be put to death. The court said it will hear Arizona prosecutors' arguments that a death row inmate unfairly was given a new chance to argue that he is not mentally competent to be executed.

—Refused to order the FBI to purge its file on lawful activities by the former head of a charitable foundation. The court rejected arguments that said the FBI is violating a federal privacy law by keeping a file about the man's years-ago meetings with foreign leaders and political dissidents.

—Turned away arguments by California officials who sought to revive a term-limits law that barred former legislators from ever seeking the same office. The appeal acted on today had been filed before an appellate court struck down the law last week. The state officials are free to file a new appeal.

—In a dispute driven by deadbeat debtors, justices left intact a fee imposed on a federally chartered corporation that finances government-guaranteed loans for college students. The court turned down arguments by the Student Loan Marketing Association — known as Sallie Mae — that the fee enacted by Congress in 1993 is an unconstitutional government taking of its property.

—Let stand a ruling that says a union contract's arbitration provisions can never nullify an individual worker's right to sue over an employer's alleged discrimination.

—Refused to let Maryland police order all passengers to stay in vehicles stopped for routine traffic violations. Earlier, it ruled police nationwide may order all passengers out of cars in such cases.

Clinton reviews cautious plan for modest cuts in defense bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Still feeling out the political dynamics of his new line-item veto power, President Clinton is reviewing a cautious proposal by his senior aides to make only modest cuts in a $248 billion defense bill.

With lawmakers of both parties furious over Clinton's decision last week to trim 2.6 percent out of a $9.2 billion military construction bill, senior White House aides recommended a menu of cu tr on the defense appropriations bill of less than 0.3 percent, according to a senior administration off ibial.

Clinton, traveling in Brazil, met with advisers this morning. "I made some decisions, asked some questions. ... I'll make the rest of the decisions today," he said.

The recommended slate of cuts approved by White House Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles and other top officials and dispatched to Clinton falls far short of the $1.2 billion Clinton had earlier indicated might be targeted for veto.

"Our guidance was to scrub this to determine what has military value and to cut out those things thal don't have military value," said the senior adminYstration official familiar with the deliberations. "Frankly, there isn't very much in that latter category."

Left off the list of recommended vetoes is the $720 million Congress added to the defense appropriations bill for an Aegis destroyer to be built in Pascagoula, Miss., hometown of Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott. And most, if not all, of the eight C-130J transport planes added to the"ill, aircraft built inMarietta, Ga., hometown of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, will survive the line-item veto knife, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Bowles met at the White House on Monday afternoon with representatives of the Pentagon, the National Security Council and the Office of Management and Budget. The list that resulted from the meeting was dispatched to Clinton, who must decide by the end of today what items to recommend for veto.

With senior Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill already accusing Clinton of abusing the line-item veto power, the White House is anxious to avoid jeopardizing its legislative priorities still pending on Capitol Hill.

These include fast-track negotiating power for the administration on international trade agreements as well as domestic spending items in other appropriations bills still awaiting final congressional approval.

First cholera cases reported in Acapulco after hurricane

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Cholera has broken out in this hurricane-ravaged city, and health officials are moving to protect thousands of homeless from the disease, President Ernesto Zedillo said today.

Zedillo, who visited Acapulco to check on relief efforts, did not say how many residents of this Pacific resort have contracted cholera, which if untreated can kill within 24 hours by causing severe diarrhea and vomiting. Health officials said three cases have been reported.

"This is a problem that we are going to have but which we are going to deal with," Zedillo told Mexican network Televisa.

A lack of running water in most of the city has compounded the risk of disease. Residents have been drinking and bathing in muddy rivers contaminated by trash and by human and animal remains.

Health workers say there also is a serious risk of typhoid, dengue and salmonella.

Pauline swept through Acapulco on Thursday, unleashing flash floods that raged through hillside neighborhoods, sweeping people, cars and anything else down raging torrents toward the sea. More than 200 people died and dozens are missing.

Zedillo said in the Televisa interview that it would be "days and probably weeks" before drinking water is restored throughout the city.

"Be patient. Remain in the shelters," he said. "We have a program in place to rebuild your homes."

He said health officials were working to protect the homeless, and authorities were doing all they could to help the victims.

The interview appeared to be an attempt by Zedillo to dispel criticism that his government wasn't doing enough to respond to the hurricane.

At its September meeting, trustees had requested a salary survey for faculty and staff. Dr. Krenek said he was somewhat surprised to learn that a total of $26,852 would bring all faculty salaries up to the state average of the 19 community colleges similar in size to WTC.

Dr. Krenek said most of the faculty that falls below the average are those who are among the newest hired.

Trustee Carolyn Barbee, who was absent from Monday's meeting, had requested information concerning the cost of a TV advertising campaign on an Abilene station.

Dr. Krenek said cost of a three-month campaign, aimed at attracting more students, would be $3,600. Trustees indicated an interest to try the campaign as an experiment.

A college mascot, another suggestion by Mrs. Barbee, drew more reserved support. Cost of the costume is $3,350; and trustees suggested that might wait unless outside funding could be found.
