Ochiltree County Seed Wheat Much in Demand by Growers

There is a growing and wide demand for Ochiltree seed wheat, reports Hood county agent, reflecting the growing wheat of pre-milling qualities.

Wheat producers in Oklahoma and all over the plains of Texas for seed from Ochiltree county, thousands of bushels of wheat have been sold during the past few weeks.

Demand is greatest for Triumph variety, Willis and the supply of this variety is insufficient. Because of the earlier, most wheat was placed in commercial plantings to take the 1947 crop. As a result, there is a shortage of the variety on the farms.

Wheat is good for Wichita, and is good for Comanche, all good varieties.

Believed that the wide campaign to raise the quality of wheat has resulted in this heavy demand for seed wheat. Ochiltree county is 65 per cent of the acreage in premium milling varieties, ranks with Hansford as the best producer of wheat in the Texas-Oklahoma area.

The county farmers with wheat to sell are requested to contact the county agent for buyers for this wheat. Arrangements may be made through the county agent.

General Truck Permit Denied

Application of the Cheate Motor Freight to operate a line from Liberal to Perryton has been denied by the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to word received in this week.

Route was formerly operated by the Riley Truck Line. In the past few months, no truck has been offered over the route since Riley sold out to Davis.

As a result, freight shipments from Perryton and other North Plains towns have been greatly hampered, having to be routed west for a hundred miles.

Petitioning the Interstate Commerce Commission for force Davis to operate the route or allow another company to offer freight service to the area.

Joe Trussell

of Lubbock, Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City and is a former president of Hardin-Simmons University.

Dr. White is much in demand over the state and it was due to a cancellation of a previous engagement that the local church was able to secure his services for this one week.

"We feel very fortunate indeed to have a preacher as able and well-known as Dr. White for the Perryton revival," stated Rev. O. C. Curtis, pastor of the local church. "He has received every honor that the Southern Baptist Association can bestow upon him and he is truly a man of God."

Joe Trussell, well-known evangelist singer and musician from

Rev. O. C. Curtis

Houston, will have charge of the singing and music during the revival week.

During this week, preceding the revival, Mrs. Kate Pope O'Brien, teacher of Bible in the Abilene public schools, has been holding a special training course in soul winning for members of the local congregation.

Assisting with the revival will be Rev. O. C. Curtis and Carl Cade, education and music director of the church.

"It is not often that people have the opportunity to hear a man of Dr. White's ability," Rev. Curtis stated. "We want to extend a welcome to everyone in Perryton to attend these services."

Christian Science

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Sept. 21.
 The Golden Text is: "Little children, keep yourselves from idols" (1 John 5:21).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal" (Matthew 6:20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Things spiritual and eternal are substantial. Things material and temporal are insubstantial" (page 335).

In 1946, the commercial production of mushrooms in this country reached 63 million pounds, over twice as much as in 1938.

The Way of The CROSS

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benediction and a steady influence for a better citizenship and a sterner democracy. In the church the members today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. They are with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good.

TOO long have we thought of the 'via dolorosa' when we have looked toward the Cross; instead of being the 'sad way' it must be seen as the 'glad way'. There may be sad moments along every noble path, but the great ways of the world are not thoroughly sad ways. The path of motherhood may have some sad turns but on the whole it is a satisfying path. The path of education climbs some difficult and steep places, but on the whole it is a thrilling way that our young people take.

THE prophet Isaiah talked about the highway of God, where faithful servants of God pass on good errands for the great God. That is The Way of the Cross, a way which one takes in the service of God and the ideal. One turns aside from immediate and attractive enjoyments that he may do the errands of high purpose and of worthy living. Other people think of it as The Way of the Cross, but the traveler on the highway rejoices at the vistas that open to his view and is invigorated with the air of the ascent.

JOHN Mackay has been talking about The Road, by which he means a way of great and victorious doing and serving. "This is the way; walk ye in it". The early Christians rejoiced that they had found The Way, for it meant a life devoted to their Lord and an experience of the divine Presence; it was really living.

THE Way of the Cross is the way that Jesus walked and it has become luminous with glory ever since. "Take up your cross and follow". Heaven and God are at the end of the Way. Attend your Church regularly.

Nearly 5,000 Combines Moved Into Texas to Help During 1947 Harvest

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 16.—Nearly 5,000 combines from other states and Canada moved into Texas to help harvest Texas' record crop this summer, records of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service's farm labor program disclosed.

Not including uncounted thousands of combines which operated only within single counties, a total of 9,138 machines were used for custom combining. Of that number, 4,000 were from other states and Canada and 4,530 were Texas combines which went on the road, J. B. Kidd, in charge of the farm labor program's Plainview office, reported to the state headquarters. The number of combines following the harvest this year was nearly double last year's 5,097 machines.

The number of placements of combines, trucks and workers by county agents in connection with this year's harvest went up proportionately. Reports showed 18-158 workers placed in 1947 compared with last year's 9,755 and 5,337 trucks placed compared with 1,312.

The big increase in combines and workers made it possible to get through the harvest without undue delay except in a few areas where damage resulted when combines were not available at the exact times they were needed, the report declared.

This is the last year in which the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service will operate the farm labor program, which includes direction of combine movements during the wheat and small grain harvest. The program was taken over as a war emergency job in 1943 and will revert to the Texas Employment Commission January 1.

STATE PRISON BOARD UNDER FIRE—Members of the Texas prison board meet with Gov. Beauford Jester (seated) after charges that the group operated the worst prison system in the U. S. in 20 years. Penologist Austin H. McCormick, executive director of the Osborne Association, Inc., New York, described the situation in a wire to Jester as "an intolerable state of affairs." Members standing behind Jester are left to right: T. E. Whitehurst, Beaumont; Bronson Morgan, vice-chairman, Jasper; Lindsay Murray, Waco; J. E. Wheat, Woodville; Barney L. Harrison, Greenville; T. R. Havins, secretary, Brownwood; W. Albert Lee, Houston, and W. C. Windsor, chairman, Tyler.

Dwindling Exports Will Affect Conditions in the United States

Business Week recently ran an article whose title, "U. S. Exports: End of a Boom," outlines a situation of rapidly growing economic importance to this country and the world.

Since the end of the war, we have been selling goods abroad at a tremendous rate. Europe presents an insatiable appetite for the products of America, and so, to a lesser extent, do the other continents. That appetite has not slackened in the slightest—but, even so, our exports are now declining in both volume and value, and everybody expects they will drop drastically in the future.

The reason for this is obvious. American exports have lately been leaving our ports at the rate of $16,000,000,000 a year. On the other hand, our imports have been at the rate of only $6,000,000,000 a year. This means that the balance of the world has been operating at a deficit of $10,000,000,000 a year in foreign trade with us alone. And it means that its dollar credits have been running out alarmingly fast, and that the bottom of the pile is definitely in sight.

England, of course, presents the most publicized example of the trend. The American loan of $3,750,000,000 was expected to last thru 1950, and possibly long er. When Britain made her last withdrawal recently, the balance remaining was a mere $400,000,000. That is only enough to last her a few months at her latest rate of purchasing. The result is that she is freezing the dollars she has left, and is cutting her purchases in the U. S. to the bare bone. Furthermore, she is having to follow the same policy with other countries, in that intricate currency agreements now in effect force her to convert pounds into dollars, in many cases even when purchases are not made in America.

What is true of England is true of much of the world. A number of Latin American nations have lately slapped severe restrictions on imports, because their dollar credits and gold stocks were becoming dangerously depleted.

The effect of this abroad will be more belt tightening, and a lower standard of living. The newest British ration cut is an indication of what is happening. The effect at home will be the loss of many billion dollars worth of business.

Who will be hit hardest by the sag in exports? The answer to that may be the farmer. To take England as an example again, in the first half of 1947 she bought about $607,000,000 of American goods. Over $232,000,000 went for foodstuffs, and $77,000,000 more consisted of inedible fats. Every country is making desperate efforts to become as nearly self-sustaining as possible in food.

Some machinery people have reported serious drops in foreign sales. But, by and large, Europe will use every possible penny for heavy industrial equipment. The only hope for European economic salvation is to rebuild her shattered basic industries, and she can't get the machinery anywhere except from us.

Obviously, the market for anything resembling a luxury or non-essential item will practically vanish.

All of this may be changed by future American legislative action. The Marshall Plan, for instance, involves much food for Europe as well as durable goods. But, at best, it will be limited in scope. And it applies only to European countries not within the Soviet sphere of influence.

There is always the possibility of more American loans and credits. But Congress will move slowly when it comes to this. There is a feeling that Europe has not made the most of the aid we have given so far.

Perhaps the most remarkable proposal yet is Mr. Bevin's suggestion that the U. S. divide up the Fort Knox gold in the interest of world recovery. One American spokesman observed that this would involve giving the

Texas Today

By BO BYERS
Associated Press Staff

Texas engineers have done a great deal of brow-furrowing recently over the question of how deep is a well.

The answer to that question may prove to be the answer to a still more important question: "How plentiful is Texas' underground water supply?"

In recent years the underground water table has declined at an alarming rate in several sections of the state. As the water sinks deeper into the water sands, it means that wells must be drilled deeper and that more power must be used in bringing it to the surface.

It also means that Texas' source of underground water is being depleted faster than nature can replenish it.

Within the last 15 or 20 years the use of ground water in Texas has increased at a phenomenal rate.

In the entire state about 650,000 acres are now under irrigation from ground water sources as compared to about 120,000 acres in 1930. The greater part of the increase occurred in the High Plains. Other substantial increases have occurred in the Winter Garden district southwest of San Antonio and the rice growing areas of the coastal region.

Today about 600,000,000 gallons of ground water are used daily for irrigation. An average of 280,000,000 gallons is used daily for industrial purposes alone. This is twice the amount used 10 years ago. Cities and towns use about 270,000,000 gallons for public supply.

The Texas Board of Water Engineers and the United States Geological Survey keep records on more than 30,000 water wells. They say this excessive usage has to slow down in some areas and it has to slow down quick.

In 1939 a pumping station in Houston was drawing water from 89 feet below the surface. In 1946 the water level dropped to 135 feet, and this year the level is down to 148 feet.

At Galveston the pumpage for public supply was 10,300,000 gallons a day in 1945, compared to 4,600,000 gallons in 1935. At El Paso the total pumpage, including industrial purposes, was 23,500,000 gallons daily in 1944, compared with 61,800,000 gallons in 1939.

At a recent hearing before the Board of Water Engineers, witnesses testified that the surface of the ground had fallen from one and one-half feet to two feet in several places in the Texas City area due to excessive withdrawals of ground water.

Other sections of the state report similar, if not as serious, underground water problems. Engineers have warned that there will be a gradual and widespread decline of the water table in the High Plains area if the rate of withdrawal continues to exceed the recharge of water from rains and snows.

Both the highly irrigated districts of the Pecos Valley and the Winter Garden have reported alarming declines in the water table. Both sections are making attempts to supplement the underground water supply with surface water.

As yet the state has no legislation to control the withdrawal of underground water. However, there were proposals presented to the past two legislatures to place the withdrawals of large amounts of water under a daily or monthly allowable production basis similar to present regulations governing oil production. Both proposals were killed, but advocates of underground water proration said they would be back at the next session.

Many water engineers familiar with the problem predict that the day will come when underground water supplies must be supervised in much the same manner as surface water is today if the potential supply is to be maintained. A water user must get a permit from the Board of Water Engineers before he is allowed to divert any large quantities of surface water from rivers or creeks, but there is no state control of water use from the underground supply.

Augmenting Texas' underground water supply with surface water is the best way of protecting our supply of well water, authorities advise.

When Texans withdraw only as much or less water from the water sands as is added to the sands each year by precipitation or other means, then the state will be assured of a maximum yield from the ground water reservoirs.

gold away and then buying it back. It hardly seems a feasible idea.

At any rate, exports are on the way down. This won't cause major upsets in this country so long as domestic business remains at or about present record levels. But should U. S. purchasing power fall in the home market, loss of exports would really be felt.

New Texas Traffic Code Has Laws for Pedestrians, Too

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 1 (AP)—Skyward I. Gaze, notable pedestrian unpopularly known to every motorist for consistently looking everywhere except where he is going, may find his pocket-book bashed in along with his head after Sept. 5.

When the 50th legislature's newly-enacted uniform traffic code then becomes effective, it will provide fines up to $200 for the hazardous stunts of Mr. Gaze and his fellow foot-travelers.

If you, like Mr. Gaze, ever walk anywhere, you will be required by law to abide by the following pedestrian regulations:

1. Hitch-hiking is okay provided you stand off the vehicular traveled roadway to do it. Sidewalks, curbs, or unsurfaced shoulders of roads protect hitch-hikers from both the law and the oncoming traffic. Otherwise you're breaking the law.

2. You must strictly comply with official traffic control signals, crossing only at crosswalks in signal-controlled areas.

3. In areas of no signal controls, you must not suddenly leave the curb to walk or run in front of an approaching vehicle. After you have started across at a crosswalk or intersection, however, after exercising due diligence, you are then entitled to right-of-way, even if the oncoming car has to stop.

4. No car may pass another car which has stopped to give you right-of-way to cross at a crosswalk or intersection.

5. Pedestrians crossing a roadway at any point other than at a crosswalk or intersection must yield right-of-way to all vehicles.

6. Where sidewalks are provided, it is unlawful to walk on the roadway.

7. Where sidewalks are not provided, pedestrians shall when possible walk on the left side of the road, facing traffic.

8. Notwithstanding the specified provisions of the law relating to the pedestrian, all drivers are required to exercise due caution to protect the pedestrian upon a roadway.

Violations subject the violator, whether pedestrian or motorist, to as much as a $200 fine.

Grass Controlled By Use of 2-4-D

HONOLULU (AP)—Growth of grass in sugar cane fields can be controlled through the use of 2-4-D, the chemical weed killer, although sugar cane is a grass and the chemical does not injure grass under most systems of application, says Dr. H. F. Clements, plant physiologist of the University of Hawaii.

Clements' experiments show that application of the chemical before the grass sprouts can be made to prevent growth of grass where it is not wanted. Several methods of application have been used, some of which developed injuries to the cane plants as well as controlling the grass.

The chemical has been spread between cane rows, broadcast over fields and spread by airplane. Clements emphasizes, however, that the work is still in the experimental stage although it proves pre-germination control of grass is possible.

Texas Florists are Grooming Plants for the Winter Market

Fort Worth, Sept. 16.—(AP)—In the Southwest's largest greenhouse are at work this morning more than 100,000 poinsettias and chrysanthemums for the booming flower market.

The 125,000 square feet of glass house roses will be under way.

W. J. Bailey, Jr., Greenwood manager, anticipates two trends to mark the coming season. One is away from the wartime emphasis on red roses, fostered by soldiers whose standard order for wife, mother or sweetheart was "one dozen red roses."

Two new pink varieties, "Pink Bountiful" and "Rosy Glow," and the new white "Starlight" are Bailey's bets for this winter's party favorites.

He also looks for a new popularity for potted plants, so that Greenwood workers are tending 30,000 poinsettia plants for Christmas and 15,000 potted chrysanthemums for the fall trade. Besides these are the plants that will produce 30,000 cut chrysanthemums for Christmas.

Bailey has already begun shipment of potted chrysanthemums, the plants having been brought to early bloom by the use of black cloth hoods to increase "night length." "Mums" are in the group of varieties that bloom more quickly if shielded from light, while increased sun or artificial light slows blooming.

But the florists will play no tricks on the roses. They will be allowed to bloom steadily from October until next summer.

Sending Quads Off to School Takes a Lot of Preparation

(P) Newsfeatures

MAYBE YOU THINK it's quite a task to get little Johnny ready for school. What would you do if you had NOT one, NOT two, but FOUR reaching school age at the same time? That's the problem in the Leitchfield, Ky., home of the Porter Lashley quadruplets. The quads' mother died in 1944 and Illean, 22, oldest girl in the family of 11 children, now engineers the production-line project of four sets of teeth to be brushed, four heads to be combed, four breakfasts to be served. Papa Lashley gives John the masculine touch while Evangeline, 19, and Ruth, 17, lend a hand in dressing the girls. Beulah and Mildred are identical twins and Martine and John are fraternal twins.

SNARLS GET THE WORKS when the quads are hearded into the front room and "Pop" combs John, while Ruth at right supervises Martine, Mildred and Beulah in front of mirror.

OFF TO SCHOOL THEY GO, shepherded up the steps by their father and Sister Illean. A big task is done, but it will begin all over again the next day at 6 A. M.

EDUCATION BEGINS for the Lashley quads with Supt. of Schools Marshall E. Hearin and Teacher Miss Josie Bruce arranging the youngsters around a kindergarten table.

Over Half of Timber Cut in U. S. is Either Wasted or Burned for Fuel

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 31.—Over half the timber cut each year in the United States is either wasted or burned for fuel. In a nutshell, that is the picture set forth by the U. S. Forest Service in a report, "Wood Waste in the United States," issued following a nation-wide forest re-appraisal.

About 488,500,000 tons of wood are cut in U. S. forests each year for lumber, pulp and paper and other commercial products, and 108,900,000 tons—57 percent—is wasted or burned, according to the report. The Forest Service points out in the report that the United States needs far more effective means of putting down costly epidemics of insects and diseases, which cause even greater timber losses than does fire, mainly because there has been far less effort to control them.

Showing how the U. S. stands as to timber supply, the report brought out that trees of saw timber size are being cut or destroyed in this country 1 1/2 times as fast as they are replaced by growth. The estimate of saw timber for 1945 was 43 percent less than the volume reported in 1909.

C. W. Simmons, farm forester of the Texas A. and M. College

Extension Service, points out that Texas farmers have a big stake in cutting down timber losses in the state.

Besides the prevention of destructive forest fires, a good conservation practice, says the forester, is treating more of the nondurable wood with preservatives if it is to be used where decay and termite trouble is prevalent. And farms and ranches have an abundance of strong and durable hardwoods that could go into strong, lasting farm buildings. The use of more hardwood lumber and posts could mean longer-lasting construction, thereby helping to relieve the big yearly drain on the national softwood timber supply.

'Jeeves' Helps Wodehouse Out 'Doghouse'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Ochiltree County Writer

NEW YORK — The man who made "Jeeves" a synonym for "butler," maintains that the Wodehouse conception of the British world is just historical novel writing.

P. G. Wodehouse (pronounced Woodhouse) is a ruddy-faced Englishman with a public school accent and a taste for informal clothes.

For almost 40 years he hammered out about 60 novels which cumulatively gave many Americans the conviction that the British Isles was inhabited exclusively by fuzzy-brained what-whaling young men with money or title, passionately fond of equally fuzzy-brained young women and of all animals. In addition, he taught his readers that the British brain-trust comprised the commonwealth's butlers.

At least, that was true until the war.

"It all started on my first trip to America in 1909," Wodehouse said as he concentrated on packing tobacco in his pipe. "I was frightfully poor and trying to place some stories."

"The only thing that Americans wanted to know about England was the aristocracy. So I wrote some humorous stories about aristocrats."

Wodehouse settled down comfortably in his publisher's pine-paneled, leather-upholstered office.

War Changed Things

"But of course, I write about something that doesn't exist, this world of Jeeves and Bertie and Blandings Castle. There were people like that in Edwardian days and I knew some of them, but there were scarcely any of them left at the end of the first World War."

Besides the prevention of destructive forest fires, a good conservation practice, says the forester, is treating more of the nondurable wood with preservatives if it is to be used where decay and termite trouble is prevalent. And farms and ranches have an abundance of strong and durable hardwoods that could go into strong, lasting farm buildings. The use of more hardwood lumber and posts could mean longer-lasting construction, thereby helping to relieve the big yearly drain on the national softwood timber supply.

"I'd squat uncomfortably on

the ground, writing on a propped-up suitcase," he said, "usually with a couple of German soldiers watching, fascinated, over my shoulders."

He was at a French resort when the Germans invaded that country and was picked up immediately and shipped to St. Louis.

His 'Terrible Mistake'

After he passed his 63rd birthday, Wodehouse was permitted to leave camp and live in Berlin. There he made what he later called his "terrible mistake"—a series of five broadcasts beamed to England and America on his experiences in internment camps. It caused a furor in England which echoed into the House of Commons.

Wodehouse said he made the broadcasts merely to recount to his friends abroad some of the "amusing experiences" in camp—like washing his own clothes. Those war years resulted in five new Jeeves and Blandings Castle novels—three of them still to be published—and a batch of short stories and song lyrics.

"I've always been a great admirer of butlers," he said, "even in my very young days."

Taylor Case Poses Delicate Question on Lobby Legislation

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Just where should members of the legislature draw the line in accepting jobs that might have bearing on their functions as public servants?

Should any lines be drawn at all?

These are delicate but pertinent questions recently brought into focus by the late that followed appointment of Sen. James E. Taylor of Kereas as public relations director for the Texas Manufacturer's Association.

Several house members joined in demanding that Taylor resign. Taylor, without referring directly to the demand, replied that his own private views coincided with the objectives of the association, that he saw no inconsistency in his position, and that he would not quit his senatorial post.

The constitution draws one firm line. In article 3, section 22 it says:

"A member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill, proposed or pending before the legislature, shall disclose the fact to the House of which he is a member, and shall not vote thereon."

The constitution also forbids a member of the legislature to hold any other public office. Members are forbidden to be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with the state or any county authorized by law passed during the term for which he shall have been elected.

In the case of the governor, the state's fundamental law imposes this check:

"He shall not hold any office, civil, military or corporate; nor shall he practice any profession, and receive compensation, reward, fee, or the promise thereof for the same; nor receive any salary, reward, or compensation of the promise thereof from any person or corporation, for any service rendered or performed during the time he is governor, or to be thereafter rendered or performed."

The constitution also sets the governor's salary at $12,000 a year, which with the mansion that is furnished, theoretically is enough to live on. A great many people get by on less. But the pay of legislators is such that in most instances they must do something else for a living.

It is well-known that many members of the legislature are lawyers. Their practice carries them before state boards, bureaus and commissions. Senators, for example, represent constituents before the board of pardons and paroles, whose members are subject to senate confirmation. They also appear frequently before other state agencies whose members must be confirmed by the senate.

There isn't anything in the constitution or statutes to curb this practice.

Under the present system, it is left up to the ethical ideas of the various individual legislators, where the line is to be drawn. They draw their own lines within the limits of the constitution and their own ideas of what is proper.

In recent years there have been many advocates of a legislative system under which the law would state flatly a member could not accept retainers, fees, or full-time jobs that might influence his public service.

This would also entail the state's responsibility in paying members enough to make it a worthwhile full-time job in the same category, as the head of the executive department. Under it, lawyers would not practice law during their terms, and so on down the list.

Without a doubt, it would cost the state a lot of money in immediate cash salary payments if members of the legislature were paid $5,000 to $7,500 a year and given allowance for maintaining full-time offices and staffs in their districts. There are many who argue the public would in the final analysis benefit if this system should be adopted.

Miss Carmenita Wright attended the wedding of Miss Mary Jo Simmons in Olney last week. Miss Simmons and Miss Wright were roommates while attending Baylor University at Waco.

RETURN OF THE ACE—The "ace of them all," Clarence Parker, left, is welcomed home to Duke University—this time as assistant coach—by coach Wallace Wade. The Ace, one of the greatest players, both at Duke and in professional play, has given the play-for-pay business.

Rangers Score 6-0 Win Over Wellington in Initial Grid Game

The initial gridiron outing for the 1947 edition of the Rangers was a 6-0 victory over the powerful Wellington Skyrocks Friday night at Ranger Field. The lone score of the game came late in the fourth quarter and the scoring opportunity developed quickly for the Rangers, who moved from their own 28-yard line to the Rockets 7-yard line on a 55-yard kick by Keith Flowers and an alert fumble recovery by Gene Stinson.

It was fourth down and two yards to go on the Rangers 28-yard line when Keith Flowers kicked the ball which sent the ball soaring out of bounds on the Rocket 17-yard line. On Wellington's first play following the kick, Bill Combe fumbled and Gene Stinson recovered on the 7-yard line.

With less than three minutes to go in the ball game, the Rangers took over. On the first play, Keith Flowers scrambled across the goal line standing up for the only score of the game. Vernon Flowers' try for extra point was blocked.

Wellington made a stout effort to score when Benny Moore took the kickoff from his own 15 to the 50 before being downed. Kenneth Strickland made five yards, then Combe dropped back to pass on second down and was flattened for a loss of 11 yards by David Hummer. Two more passes failed to connect and the Rangers kept the ball until the final whistle.

The game was a scoreless affair most of the time, with the Rangers holding the upper hand most of the way. Perryton pushed inside the Wellington 20-yard line twice in the first half, only to be held by the determined Skyrocks. Dean Slaughter pulled off a flashing 62-yard touchdown punt returned early in the first quarter, but it was nullified because of a clipping penalty.

Both teams displayed some rather ragged blocking on offense, quite natural in the opening game. For the most part the game was a head-knocking affair, confined to line plunges within the 20-yard lines. Wellington was much more effective on passing, completing 3 out of 7 while Perryton completed 1 out of 6.

Line play for the Rangers was led by end David Hummer, tackle Gene Stinson and center Jerry Slaughter, while Keith Flowers stood out in the Ranger backfield.

Robert Fulton, versatile 190-pounder, was outstanding both on offense and defense for the Rockets. Benny Moore and Kenneth Strickland performed well in the Wellington backfield.

The Parent-Teachers Association is assisting this year during the noon hour at the school cafeteria, and two mothers from the organization are on duty each day at this period.

All parents and teachers, as well as the general public, are urged to support the organization by attending the meetings.

The age limits for Cub Scouts are 9 to 12, and the Cub program is designed as a recreation and training program for boys which will prepare them for Scouting.

A Cub Pack was organized last year for the first time in Perryton under Don E. Watkins, field Scout executive who has since moved to Illinois. During the winter, the Cubs were quite active in their work, and it is expected that an increase in the size of the Pack will be shown this year.

Cub Scouts in Perryton are sponsored by the Lions Club.

tackle to guard, leaving either Morrison Osborne or Bill Stephenson for the other tackle post.

Shamrock has back the identical team that played in Perryton last year, except for D. Briggs, 240-pound tackle, who graduated. Bobby Close, 160-pound all-district halfback, is the spark-plug of the Irish offense while Ed Briggs, 240-pound tackle is back again as a bulwark in the Shamrock line on defense.

The Irish will outweigh the Rangers 10 pounds per man in the line, averaging 171 to the Rangers 161. If Slaughter starts instead of Trew, the Ranger average will be somewhat heavier. The Ranger backfield will outweigh the Irish backfield 13 pounds per man, averaging 165 to 152 for Shamrock.

Interest is running high for this game, and a large delegation of Ranger fans is expected to attend. The kickoff is at 8 o'clock.

Probable starting line-up:
Rangers LE Irish
Hummer LT Terry
Osborne LT Briggs
Stinson LT Hartsfield
Trew C Glover
Ferguson RT Brower
Cummings RT Zeigler

Make Plans Now to Help the Red Cross

Fall activities are under way; school has begun; clubs have resumed their meetings and the Red Cross rooms will be open about Oct. 1. Mrs. R. T. If women of the town would realize the importance of this work, and make it as much a part of their regular routine as other activities, much more could be accomplished than has been done in the past. Make a resolution now to do your part at the Red Cross room.

A Man's Opinion of The Society Page Copy

When the proof reader was busy correcting society page copy on Wednesday afternoon, she found out what one man thought about the news copy we offer, and in no uncertain terms did he express himself.

The linotype operator, Jack Payne, let his thoughts become lines of type, and in the "big middle" of a story of a church wedding, the proof reader found this:

"The linotype operator while setting this wore a beautiful pair of old khaki pants topped by a greasy T-shirt with tight-fitting bodice. Deep wrinkles adorned his forehead, while beads of sparkling perspiration formed a chain down his back. For something borrowed, he had two bits which he owed Jake. For something blue, he had a beautiful bruise on his right shin, just below the kneecap. On his face was an expression of complete boredom."

Sometimes we wonder. It's possible Jack would make a better society editor than yours truly.

ARTHUR TOWNSEND, Owner

Frank J. Shaller, who resides in Hemphill County, Texas, and all unknown persons claiming any interest in the property hereinafter described, and all the unknown heirs, their heirs and legal representatives of any of the defendants named, the nature of which suit is as follows:

Plaintiffs allege ownership of that tract of land situated in Ochiltree County, Texas, described as follows:

The Southeast Quarter (SE 1/4) of Section Number 584, Block Number 43, H. & T. C. Railway Company, Original Grantee.

Such action is a suit in trespass to try title brought by plaintiffs for title and possession of the land above described, plaintiffs alleging both record title and title in themselves through peaceable, continuous and adverse possession under the three (3), five (5) and ten (10) year Statutes of Limitations; plaintiffs further alleging that two mineral deeds dated May 28, 1926 from G. W. and S. R. Dutcher to Wolf Creek Royalty Pooling Company and D. J. Young, by reason of recordation have cast a cloud upon the title to said land, and that no consideration was ever paid for the execution and delivery of said mineral deeds, and pray that all clouds cast by reason thereof be removed, and that said mineral deeds be cancelled, held for naught, set aside and annulled, praying in said petition for recovery of title and possession and for further relief, general and special, at law or in equity.

If this citation is not served within ninety (90) days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued this 30th day of August 1947.

CHIEF APPROVES OATS—Said to be the first time that an American Indian tribe has actually dedicated a cereal crop, the Mohawk Indians of the St. Regis Reservation in northern New York have given their blessings to a new variety of blight resistant oat developed at the Cornell University Experiment Station. Photo shows Indian Chief Alex White holding a sheaf of the new oats. Named Mohawk, the variety is expected to replace the Vicland variety which is susceptible to a blight known as Helminthosporium.

One Form of Monopoly

Sometimes one of the most obvious forms of monopoly and one of the least recognized can be found in the single-store cross-roads community. Retail store fortunate enough to be the sole merchandising outlets in their areas should lean over backward to meet their responsibility to the townfolk depending upon them. The bulk of retail distributors in this position do just that. But there is a shortsighted minority among merchandisers, as in all fields of human activity. From such a minority outspoken proponents of legislative restrictions of one kind or another on the free market and free competition often appear, particularly if possible competition has shown up on the horizon.

Take the case of one of these single-store situations. The proprietor opened his store many years ago. In all that time he did not make an improvement in the physical appearance of the establishment. The showcase with the broken pane of glass is still in use. The vegetable rack is still an improvised affair half filled with rotten vegetables. Merchandise is shelved or piled in a manner that defies self service. The meat department is an antiquated cabinet. No apparent effort is made to keep prices in reasonable relationship with those of the nearest shopping center.

These things continue in evidence in spite of undreamed of increases in business resulting from expanding local activity.

Under such circumstances no great imagination is needed to picture the eventual entrance of a modern, efficient, retail store. It may possibly be a chain store. When that time comes, the present operator will be handicapped. His record is not good and he will have no one to blame but himself, yet he will be bitter and can become an enthusiastic booster for any kind of a law penalizing the efficient merchant—and the consumer.

This is an important problem which consumers and the distribution industry must be actively aware of at all times. Situations of this character, multiplied manifold, have resulted in special chain store tax measures and other laws deliberately aimed at undermining modern mass distribution.

Mrs. Dempsey Malaney and children, Spearman, were visiting friends and relatives and shopping in Perryton on Friday.

That Crooked Furrow!

FOR thousands of years, the ability to plow a straight furrow has been the mark of a good farmer. In more recent years agriculturists have turned to contour plowing in crooked furrows to conserve the land. Here are two methods suggested by the University of Illinois in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. No. 1 is for a first plowing; No. 2 for use when last year's rows can be used as a guide in starting the operation.

Babson Discusses Human Values

ROGER W. BABSON, Editor-in-Chief

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 12

—I had several good grandchildren; but only two have been boys. One of these is artistic and has no interest in business; he was in the Service and returned from Europe safely. The other, Michael, had been much interested in business, one with whom I had discussed my affairs, although only eighteen years old. He had been working at a Sunapee, New Hampshire hotel all summer; last week he took a speedboat party out on Lake Sunapee.

Somehow one of the girls fell overboard. Michael stopped the boat and dove in after her, knowing that she could not swim. He succeeded in dragging her to the side of the boat so that the others could pull her in. This they did; but Michael was exhausted and sank to the bottom. Divers finally recovered his body. It was a splendid way to go and I am much prouder of him than if he had lived and made a million dollars.

Have You Really Suffered?

But why do I tell my personal troubles to you readers? There are two reasons—First, because it has brought trouble home to me and makes me appreciate human values. It is the first blow which I personally have had since my sister was drowned here at Gloucester many years ago. I lost no near kin either in World War I or II. War fatalities were only cold statistics to me. This is the first time I have appreciated what these 350,000 families really suffered and what one thousand other families are experiencing every day of every year.

During my career, I have studied only profits, wages, busheis and tons. Friends, I fear there are too many other American businessmen who are like me—forgetting the human values. This may explain why we do not understand the millions of wage workers whose only assets are their boys and girls. Today I am trying to think of them and also of the millions of starving families in Europe who love their children just as much as I loved Michael.

We Can Prevent World War III

My second reason for mentioning Michael is to apologize for my habit of discussing World War III as if the money cost and property damage are of primary consideration. Heretofore, I have figured which is the cheaper in dollars—to help out Europe now or to fight now. I have not considered the millions of good boys who would be killed in another war. Again I fear there are too many other businessmen—and perhaps labor leaders too—who are as ruthless as I have been in thinking too much of the dollars involved and not enough of the human lives. Anyhow, I am a changed man today.

Just one more thought: Of course, if World War III comes we will be told that it is a fight for "democracy against dictatorship." But since losing Michael, I have been wondering if there is not a more underlying reason for today's world troubles. May not property, stocks, profits and wages be one reason for the struggle between America and Europe? If we would be willing to sacrifice some of our wealth—in a big way—perhaps Russia would have to call off her gangster methods.

Which Shall It Be?

This does not mean that we would pay tribute, as a cowardly nation, to Europe, but it would be licking these dictators by giving up our luxuries for awhile in order to raise the standard of living abroad. We, however, cannot accomplish such without making real sacrifices. It might temporarily require farmers to forego profits, investors to forego dividends and all of us to work ten hours a day for reasonable wages. The question is whether we will do this voluntarily by the use of commodities, or will we still insist on fighting Russia with human lives.

In either case it would mean real sacrifice and perhaps a surface setback for America; as it should be done without increasing the Federal or other debts. Before losing my grandson, I

Texas University Establishes New Retailing Course

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 16 — A $19,500 gift from the Lemuel Scarbrough Foundation of Austin made possible establishment of a new professorship in retailing in the University of Texas College of Business Administration, Dr. T. S. Painter, president, announced.

The money will be paid in three annual $6,500 installments. Dr. Aaron H. Chute of Toledo, was all for fighting now and "cleaning Russia up"; but today I think there may be a better way. Besides, do wars ever settle great questions when ideologies are involved?

Ohio, has been appointed to the professorship. He has taught at several large institutions, and is author of several books on retailing.

Now—you can have Power-Line Voltage WITH THE NEW 110-VOLT D.C. WINCHARGER

And—you can use "standard" appliances! Those "standard," "city-type" appliances that operate on universal current—that is, on either 110 volt A.C. or 110 volt D.C. electricity, such as radios, vacuum cleaners, toasters, food mixers, coffee makers, for example—can be operated on the new 110 volt Winco Power Wincharger.

Also, most motor-driven appliances, such as washing machines, water pumps, milkers, separators, drills, grinders, etc., can be bought for 110 volt D.C. operation. No longer do you have to buy special, "farm-type" appliances, except for hermetically-sealed refrigerators and automatic, thermostatically-controlled heating appliances. And even in the case of these appliances, refrigerators with "open-type" compressors and non-thermostatically-controlled fans are available. Simple provision can be readily made for operation of radio-phonograph combinations.

Furthermore, you can use standard 110 volt house wiring with the new 110 volt Winco Power Wincharger. Same wire, at the same cost, as in town.

The 110 volt Winco Power Wincharger provides sufficient electricity for a well electrified farming operation—much more electricity than the average R.E.A. customer uses (based on latest R.E.A. annual statistical report).

And—economical—no monthly "electric bills"—power from the free wind. $595.00 F.O.B., Sioux City, including Wincharger unit and stub tower. Battery, tower, installation and wiring are additional.

Courageous Tale of Florida Family Told in 'The Yearling'

The heart warming story of a courageous, hard-working family deep in the Florida scrub country is adequately portrayed in the film adaptation of "The Yearling," based on the prize-winning novel by Marjorie Rawlings.

With Gregory Peck and Jane Wyman cast as Penny and Ma Baxter, and young Jarman as the lovable Jody, the film faithfully transcribes in Technicolor motion picture terms the story of this courageous, hard-working family who encounter both happiness and tragedy in their struggle to eke out a living from their small plot in Florida's dense scrub country.

All the high points of the Rawlings novel are here—the hunt for the marauding bear, Slewfoot, the pulsating episode in which Penny is bitten by a deadly rattlesnake, the free-for-all village brawl of the rearing Forresters, Jody's adoption of his little fawn, the tragic results which ensue when the gamboling deer eats the young corn shoots and tramples down the tobacco crop, rising to the climax of an embittered Jody running away from home only to return later to take his place as a man in the Baxter household.

Gregory Peck and Jane Wyman are perfectly cast as Penny and Ma Baxter; Claude Jarman Jr. has terrific appeal as Jody, and other fine portrayals are contributed by Henry Travers as the genial storekeeper, Joan Wells as the little miss, Eulalie Boyles, Jeff York as the seagoing Oliver, June Lockhart as his girl, Twink, and B. M. "Chick" York as Doc Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Wooten left Saturday on a month's vacation to Yellowstone National Park, Washington State and other points in the West.

Miss Charlotte Kiper left Thursday to return to her home at Austin, Texas, after a visit with her father, Henry Kiper.

THE YEARLING—Gregory Peck and the young Tennesseean, Claude Jarman, take leading roles in the film version of Marjorie Rawlings' Pulitzer Prize winning novel of the same name. The story is set in the backwoods of Florida and is crammed with pathos, drama and realism. The picture plays at the Ellis on Sun.-Tues., Sept. 21-23.

Killer Matches Wits with Wild Gal in Melodrama

A killer without a conscience matches ruthlessness against a woman without scruples in "Born to Kill," a melodrama which appears at the Ellis on Friday-Saturday, Sept. 19-20.

When Sam Wild cold-bloodedly slays his girl-friend and his rival in Reno, he decides to hide out in San Francisco. Enroute he meets and is attracted to Helen Brent, a divorcee engaged to marry wealthy Fred Grover. Through Helen the killer meets her step-sister, Georgia, an heiress on whose bounty Helen lives.

Attracted by her wealth, Sam promptly makes up his mind to marry Georgia and Helen watches the whirlwind courtship with mingled jealousy and cynicism. However, when she discovers that Allen, a detective investigating the Reno murder, is coming uncomfortably close to identifying Sam as the killer, she determines to bribe him to forget the matter, heartlessly planning to borrow the cash from her fiancé. But the latter, beginning to realize the motives behind Hel-

Pleasing Little Opus at Pertex

A pleasing little opus, starring unknown actors and actresses, plays at the Pertex on Sun.-Mon. Sept. 21-22. The story is laid against a background of television broadcasting, which is a little different slant.

The story centers around the trials of the Russell family. When Papa Russell, played by Percival Vivian, becomes ill, little Nita decides to sing in a night club to contribute to the family budget. She dresses in her sister's clothes and lands a job. Bruce, Cleatus' fiancé, decides to teach Nita a lesson and takes her to his apartment. Cleatus, not understanding Bruce's motives, breaks up with him. But all is finally straightened out, and Nita wins a co-starring singing role with Bruce.

Ray Milland Swings Back to Light Comedy in 'The Trouble with Women'

Ray Milland, one of the most versatile actors in Hollywood, turns again to his specialty, light comedy, in the new film, "The Trouble With Women," in which he stars with Teresa Wright. The film plays at the Ellis on Wed.-Thurs., Sept. 24-25, and also stars Brian Donlevy.

The versatile Milland, who has displayed his "Oscar" winning talent in almost every conceivable type of role, is now cast as a "book-wormish" psychologist whose work, "The Subjugation of Women," was the subject of theory and not personal experience. His belief that some women love to be pushed around by their mates, arouses much controversy and a great deal of feminine interest in the professor. And when Donlevy's paper libelously misquotes Milland in an article by Miss Wright, the fun really begins.

Teresa's efforts to get Milland to withdraw his suit against the paper are said to contain as many laughs as one audience can stand, the most riotous being the powder-puff attack on Ray by a bevy of beefy burlesque babes. To strengthen her campaign further, Teresa enrolls as a pupil in Ray's class, and she soon goes to the head of the teacher. The film's ending, reported to be one of the season's outstanding comedy bits, finds Ray and Teresa on the verge of love's greatest experiment—marriage.

The Man in the Moon Sets Sardine Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Legally, the sardine season opened Aug. 1, but the Man in the Moon said otherwise this year.

The next night the moon was full, no good for sardine fishing because you can't see sardines in the moonlight.

Dark nights are best, when the luminousness of sardines shows the size and compactness of their schools, says the Bureau of Fisheries.

Nearly 100 boats and about the same number of packing plants had to wait until dark nights came to the California coast before the season really got underway.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Padgett E. G. Pribble of Gray, Okla., returned Wednesday from a vacation trip to Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and points in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Wooten, wife Lou and Ogden, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. McMillen.

Mrs. Bonnie Mahin of Greenburg, Kans., is visiting this week in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Phillips, Mr. Phillips and Leola Ruth. She came to Perryton with the Phillips who spent the weekend with relatives in Greenburg, Pratt, Kans.

From where I sit... by Joe Marshall

Yes, I'm Guilty!

Folks sometimes criticize us small-town editors for the way we often play up "little things" ahead of big... human, local news in place of world events.

I can't deny it. Read the Clarion and you'll learn about the Martins' golden wedding anniversary... about the community sing down by the river... the husking bee at Sober Hoskins', where neighbors helped husk the corn, and later drank sparkling beer together.

"Little things?" Maybe. But from where I sit, they add up to the bigger things we call America: the friendliness of small towns... helping hand... the respect for another's rights. And above all love of fellowship and freedom whether it's freedom to speak mind or choose between a glass beer or buttermilk.

I figure that if everybody after the "little things," the bigger things will take care of themselves.

War II veterans who receive disability payments for them or their dependents...

ents, the Veterans Administration has ruled. VA said these veterans may receive for disability compensation or pension at any time in the future and that approved awards will be payable from the date of the second application, but will not include retroactive payments covering the period the renunciation was effective. VA's ruling is of particular interest to disabled veterans who desire to enroll as officers or enlisted men in the National Guard or Naval Reserve. They may enlist in these units under the law only by waiving their disability payments. Reserve officers are not subject to this restriction, but while receiving active service pay, they may not also receive compensation or pension.

Almost as many World War II veterans will be alive at the turn of the 21st century as there are living veterans of World War I today, according to the latest Veterans Administration estimate.

VA computes that 3,400,000 War II veterans will be alive in the year 2000. The number of War I living veterans as of June 30, 1947, was 3,727,000.

However, although the average age of War I veterans now is approximately 54 years, the average age of the War II veterans expected to be living in the year 2000 will be slightly over 77 years.

The War II figures come from a projection that VA made to determine what its administrative and operating requirements for these veterans will be in the future.

The projection begins with the potential War II veteran population of 16,051,000 as of July 25, 1947. The average age of this group at that date was 28.6 years. The protection ends with the year 2030 when VA expects less than a thousand War II veterans to be alive, averaging 104 years of age.

The ballroom business is not dying, as some reports have had it. It has only dropped back to the 1938-40 normalcy from war peaks when folks seeking relaxation were glad to jam the floors at $2.40 apiece and swing shifters danced till dawn.

There's still plenty of opportunity in music for a youngster with talent. Many union-card holders work at other businesses through the week and only play for Saturday night dances.

It's too bad, all three top band-leaders said, that more new groups aren't appearing on the live scene. Organizing a band is harder nowadays, Dorsey thinks.

"Salaries total four or five thousand dollars a week," said the graying, talkative grombonist. "Why, my trumpet section alone cost $1,750 a week last year—more than I got per week for the whole band in 1936."

Goodman disagreed. "A good musician can gather enough good guys around him even if he has to say, 'Boys, I can pay you only the minimum scale.' That's $60 a week here."

Formerly a band could ride to fame on one sensational phonograph record, Dorsey chimed in. "Take Glenn Miller's 'In the Mood.' Now the Ink Spots and everybody else would be doing the same tune."

But Goodman insisted that "a band with something new to offer would overcome those difficulties."

Vocalists are in vogue today, Benny added, and a new band must have a good singer. Also a tie-up with a record company, and thereby, the nation's juke boxes and disc jockeys.

The stage where "That's Life" is shooting is, incidentally, a heap of heaven. It unites such top jivers as Lionel Hampton on the vibes, Louis "Satchmo"

Armstrong, trumpet; Mel Powell, piano; Louis Beison, drums; Al Hendrickson, guitar, and Harry Babson, bass. I hung around an hour, just listening.

Stork Beats 'Goose' In Hospital Race

NASSAU, B. W. I. (AP)—A race between a stork and a "goose" ended here with the stork making its delivery before the "goose" could land.

The "Goose," a six-passenger amphibian of that name operated by the Bahamas Airways, Ltd., was rushing Hazel Rolle from the tiny outlying island of Andros to a Nassau hospital. On the thirty-minute flight, the stork overtook the plane, delivering Margaret Rolle, Margaret Stalker, an English nursing sister, officiated.

Capt. Leonard Thompson summed it up: "It was a close race."

SHEDS DIRT...STAYS WHITE...

DU PONT HOUSE PAINT CLEANS ITSELF!

Outside surfaces stay fresh and clean-looking when finished with Du Pont House Paint. Dirt and grime can't get a grip—rains just wash them away!

SELF-CLEANING Du Pont House Paint is so formulated that, as time goes by, a microscopically fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash the powder away, taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving the surface clean and white again. Excessive accumulations of dirt (particularly in sooty industrial communities or in heavily shaded locations) may delay or interfere with this process. Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected. SELF-CLEANING Du Pont House Paint is as durable as it is beautiful . . . protects against rust, rot, and decay . . . gives lasting beauty and protection. Costs no more than ordinary paints—saves repainting bills! Call on a reliable painter for your painting jobs, and ask him to use Du Pont House Paint!
