Wave Of Christmas Buying Sends Texas Business Booming

Sales Said To Equal Figures Of '28 Period

Cheery Reports Are Received From Every Section Of State Saturday; Gains Of 15 To 100 Per Cent Recorded

New Highs Scored

Demand For Gift Goods Were In Excess Of Expectations By Merchants; Thousands Are Given Employment

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Dec. 26.—Prosperity skyrocketed in the Southwest today on a wave of Christmas business unequalled since the boom period of 1928.

Fortified buying power shot retail trade upward in an extra-ordinary holiday rush which merchants attributed to generally improved economic conditions, salary increases, bonusus, and favorable weather.

Cheery Reports Given

From cities throughout the region came cheery reports of retail sales jumping anywhere from 15 to 100 per cent over last year's encouraging volume and, in many places, finally scaling the heights to predepression levels.

Demand for gift goods exceeded merchants' most optimistic expectations in some lines, leaving them with stripped shelves—but bulging their cash drawers.

Thousands of clerks found employment and, in dozens of postoffices, regular and extra workers toiled day and night to handle the piles of mail.

Houston Best Since 1928

From the commerce department came a report that Houston enjoyed the best Christmas period since 1928, all retail lines in the port city showing an increase over last year.

In Dallas merchants prepared for a 30 per cent increase, on the basis of encouraging preliminary trade, and then found themselves incapable of supplying a demand that surged well past this figure. There was an unforeseen market for higher-priced gifts and so-called "luxury" items.

Business Here Is Outstanding

Increases Of 10 To 20 Per Cent And In Some Cases As High As 40 Per Cent Are Reported Locally

Lubbock merchants Saturday were trying to figure out where they "stood" at the close of Lubbock's greatest Christmas buying season—at least since the days of 1929 and 1930—while their employes were busy straightening out stocks and attempting to make the left-over stocks cover a multitude of empty shelves and counters.

General consensus was the holiday business was anywhere from 10 to 20 per cent greater than last year, at least.

Increases ranged from two up to 40 and 50 per cent; some said the holiday business was "fine," or "very satisfactory," or "above our expectations."

Six Factors Outstanding

Several factors regarding the season's business stood out:

1—Merchandise sold was of a higher quality than last year.

2 — Buying started earlier and stocks were depleted earlier in the season.

3—Reordering was more common, express and mail replacements were the heaviest known; turnover of stocks was at a record.

4 — Fewer stocks of toys and special Christmas items were left on hand than usual, or expected.

Saturday Goes Ahead

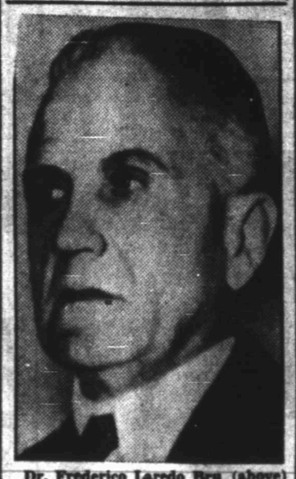

5—Saturday's business, the "day after Christmas" was much ahead of last year; there were fewer ex-

Woodsman Says Pair In Wreckage Of Their Plane

(By The Associated Press)

SEATTLE, Dec. 26.—A. R. Mensing, division superintendent of Northwest airlines, said here tonight the bodies of Pilot Joe Livermore and Co-Pilot Arthur A. Haid were seen by a woodsman in a wrecked mail transport on a North Idaho mountainside.

"I talked with the woodsman, Fred Cunningham in Kellogg, Idaho today," said Mensing after arriving here by plane.

"He told me while he did not dig into the plane, he could plainly see the bodies of the two pilots. They apparently were killed instantly.

"Two parties will move out tomorrow morning, one from Calder, Idaho, and the other from Kellogg. To which place they will return will be decided after the parties meet at the plane."

Trapper Tells Of Finding Plane; Other Hunt Continues

KELLOGG, Idaho, Dec. 26. (AP) — A tired trapper mushed into Kellogg today to report he and three other men had found the wreckage of a long-sought Northwest Airlines transport in the snow-mantled North Idaho mountains but not the bodies of the two pilots who apparently died in the smashup eight days ago.

"I know it was the plane because I touched it," said Fred Cunningham, the trapper. "The wreckage was covered with snow and only portions of the fuselage were sticking out."

Did Not Pry Into Wreckage

Cunningham said he did not attempt to locate the bodies of Pilots Joe Livermore and Arthur A. Haid and did not pry into the wreck pending the arrival of postal inspectors to care for the mail involved.

The trapper said the wreck lay in three to four feet of snow near the top of an unnamed ridge 15 miles south of here, not far from 6,000-foot high cemetery ridge about which the search had centered since last Monday.

Cunningham began organizing a salvage party and called for an automobile to go to the aid of his three-searchers, who he said were extremely tired and were mushing toward Kellogg.

Five hundred miles to the southeast, searchers continued their efforts to find the Western Air Express plane which vanished December 15 while approaching Salt Lake City from the south.

Woods Names 3 New Aides

W. E. James And Miss Lillian Peek To Be Replaced In State Department Of Education On January 1, Says Chief

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 26.—L. A. Woods, state superintendent of schools, announced today that Dr. Jeremiah Rhodes of San Antonio would become his first assistant, effective January 1. Dr. Rhodes, former city school superintendent at San Antonio, will succeed W. E. James, occupant of the position the past four years.

Woods announced Miss Ruth Huey of San Antonio and Miss Josephine Pazdral of West would carry on the work formerly done by Miss Lillian Peek, director of homemaking education for ten years. The changes, he said, were in the interests of better "cooperation and harmony" in the department of education.

Miss Peek Issues Statement

Miss Pek issued a statement asserting she had been "summarily dismissed" and had not voluntarily resigned.

She said Woods in November wrote every department employe a letter asking each if he or she had been cooperative to the fullest extent. The letter, as quoted by Miss Peek, closed as follows:

"'I am contemplating some reorgnization on the first of the year. I should like to have a frank, written statement from you as to why you think you should be retained.'"

Miss Peek said she stated in reply that "I have tried always to be

Pinkney Petition Denied By Atwell

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP) — Judge William H. Atwell in federal court here today denied the application of the Pinkney Packing company of Amarillo for a temporary injunction restraining the government from collecting about $8,000 in windfall taxes.

In a verbal opinion, however, Judge Atwell said he believed the tax was unconstitutional.

Under the new law the government sought to collect up to 80 per cent of undistributed processing taxes refunded by the government after the AAA was ruled unconstitutional.

The court did not rule on the government's motion to dismiss the application, and indicated the motion could again be brought up should the company desire to press its suit to prevent collection of the tax.

Judge Atwell said he denied the injunction because the plaintiff did not show sufficient grounds for granting the restraining order.

President And His Chiefs Set To Work To Prepare For New Session With Conferences On Various Problems

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Roosevelt and his congressional chiefs set about in serious fashion today to plan for the opening of congress ten days hence, with many vital decisions facing them.

Some of the Democratic leaders in congress were already here. Others, who stayed home for Christmas, were heading to the capital for the important conferences that always mark a new session.

Developments already have outlined two major issues for the coming session—both loaded with argument. They are neutrality and relief. Back of them are scores of other problems and proposals that made the usual forecasts of a short session sound hallow.

Neutrality Is Question

With war clouds over Europe darkening, neutrality legislation was on the lips of most of the assembling legislators. President Roosevelt, just back from his peace mission to South America, already has turned his mind to the problem, but has not announced what he would pro-

Reliable Reports Say Paralysis Has Extended Over Entire Left Side Of Holy Father In Vatican City Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 26.—Hope of prelates of Pope Pius' recovery dwindled tonight with reliable reports paralysis had extended over his entire left side.

The circulatory congestion, accompanied by old age complications, was declared to have made the Holy Father's left arm useless. The 79-year-old Pope was not able to move his legs throughout the day, authoritative sources said.

Osservatore Romano, official Vatican newspaper, described the pontiff as suffering from "piercing, insistent spasms of pain."

Only Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, was allowed inside the sickroom with Dr. Amanti Milani, the pontiff's physician, who was said to be in almost constant attendance on his patient.

Legislation On U. S. Citizens Fighting In Wars Is Discussed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Legislation to take away the citizenship of Americans volunteering to fight in foreign wars was being discussed today in influential senate quarters.

Every U. S. Family Should Get $3,600 Year, Green Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight every family should have an income of at least $3,600.

This recalled that John L. Lewis, his arch-enemy in organized labor, said last Labor day that the minimum wage for unskilled labor should be $2,500 a year.

"Before industry can reach capacity production, everyone who wishes to work must have employment and every family must have an income of at least $3,600," Green said in a statement reviewing labor events of 1936.

Labor Looks Forward

"Labor looks forward to the new year with a renewed feeling of hope, inspiration and courage. It plans to drive definitely and unceasingly for the translation of the expressed wish of the people into effective action," Green continued.

"No one can mistake or misinterpret the decision of the people of the United States in favor of Social Security legislation, the advancement of human welfare and the wider distribution of the national income.

Will Record Realization

"The year 1937, therefore, will record in a very large measure the realization of the purpose of labor to secure higher wages, higher standards of life and living, shorter hours as a remedy for unemployment, an accelerated drive for the abolition of child labor and the enactment of social justice legislation both by the congress of the United States and by the state legislatures.

"The growing acceptance of labor's right to organize," Green said, was the outstanding 1936 development in labor history.

Traffic Toll Numbers 396

Total Number Of Deaths From Accidents During Christmas Is 491 With List Growing; Majority On Highways

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—The Christmas holiday rivaled the Fourth of July in tragedy when the nation's deaths neared the 500 mark tonight.

Automobiles accounted for the majority, but many forms of accidents contributed to the 491 total.

Unusually warm weather, a boon to motorists, was held largely responsible for 396 traffic deaths.

Surpasses Other Marks

Last Fourth of July, which brought a double holiday, the nation counted 444 violent deaths, a total second only to the 483 who died on Independence Day of 1931.

In 1935 the fourth left but 216 dead and in 1929 the Macabre count was but 159, of which fewer than half were due to traffic.

Drowning, falls, fire, train, airplane and even fireworks added to this yuletide casualty lists. Brawls and despondency also took lives.

Others Are Killed

In Massachusetts a boy was shot to death playing cowboy. Four persons burned to death in Michigan. North Carolina and Florida counted deaths from fireworks, which attend observance of Christmas in the South.

California with 37, Illinois with 33, Ohio with 29 and Michigan 26 led the 45 states which listed traffic deaths.

The Northwest, where winter storms routed mild weather, had relatively few killed on the highways.

Traffic deaths by states included: Alabama 17, Arizona 11, Arkansas

But if Hitler wants the colonies for warlike purposes, "he will have to take them from France by force," foreign office spokesmen said.

Great Britain will join with France in furthering the peace program, authoritative sources said, and if Hitler is cooperative he may expect aid from France in finding better markets from which to obtain much needed raw materials.

Return of the colonies itself would give Hitler a vast store of the materials he desires.

No, you rod and reelers, not a fishing championship, but the world title which the Burlington Liars' club will award to the author of the tallest tale submitted this year.

Burlin tells of taking a lot of trouble out of fishing by solving the bait problem. He says he just smears a bare hook with molasses and on casting, pitches it high into the air. The sweet aroma of the molasses attracts bees overhead. They cling to the hook and when the fish strikes, they sting it to death.

Golden Sandstorm, Reduced To Zephyr, Beats Tivy 19-6

Valiant Kerrville Antlers Get Best Of All But Score

Amarillo Captures Third Schoolboy Crown In Row

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT

AMARILLO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Michael Patrick Sweeney twice hurled his stringbean frame into a swinging kicking foot and tonight Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm owned its third consecutive Texas schoolboy football title.

Seventeen thousand fans saw the Sandstorm finally surge to a 19-6 triumph over a valiant band of Tivy High Antlers from Kerrville after the gangling Irish youngster's kick-blocking stunts early in the game stunned the invaders.

Sandies Out Played

It could almost be said that Kerrville's "iron men" outplayed the team that beat them for the state championship. They passed and cracked the line for 16 first downs to Amarillo's seven; gained one yard less than Amarillo's rushing total of 159 yards and outclassed the Sandies in the air at 121 to 23 yards.

But they couldn't keep Sweeney, Sandstorm end, out of their backfield.

Midway in the first period, with Chambliss, Antler back, attempting a kick back on his 25, Sweeney sliced in from the right and wrapped his arms around Chambliss' kicking foot. The ball bounded backwards, Sweeney grabbed it on the five and stumbled over for the first score.

Clesson Boots One

Ten minutes later he stormed in with the same wild rush to duplicate the play. Bobby Clesson's 80-yard kick had rammed the Antlers back to their 16 and Chambliss was readying himself for another kick. He swung upward but Sweeney was there again and this time Toombs, Sandstorm center, retrieved the ball for the touchdown.

Off to a 13 point lead provided by Sweeney's alertness, the Sandies protected it against as courageous a team as ever reached the schoolboy finals.

Generated by a loose-hipped, grinning halfback, Charles (Slick) McCaleb and its ramming quarterback, Roy Holbrook, the Antlers twice stormed to the Amarillo goal line before collapsing on scoring chances.

McCaleb Is Star

McCaleb, not the heralded Holbrook was the lustre of the Kerrville offense. He kept the throng amazed throughout with a change of pace that had Sandies diving for him just after he had been there. He snagged passes, intercepted passes, played a man-sized defensive game in the secondary and deserved the terrific roar that accompanied his departure from the field a minute before the game's end. Holbrook did a magnificent job of knifing the line and pass throwing before he voluntarily removed himself because of an ailing knee in the final period.

Back of Amarillo's line, dropped into the secondary on the defense because of a broken hand encased in bandages, Bill Kilman, giant guard, constantly broke up passing plays and cut down runners with his good arm. He shared defensive laurels with Hieman, rangy Kerrville end; Hauser, Antler center and H. Ricketts, Amarillo tackle.

Pat Toombs, Amarillo center who had a big afternoon at pass interceptions started the Sandstorm on its third touchdown in the third period when he snatched a pass that Chambliss juggled in the air.

The Horse Moves On

Starting from the Kerrville 34, Clesson cracked left tackle for 11 yards and Raymond "Wild Horse" Mayes tackled on five more on an end sweep. Clesson faked a pass and carried to the nine. The Wild Horse broke away around left end and went over standing up.

A bit of strategy by A. Coleman, Kerrville lineman, finally brought the Antlers a touchdown. Toombs intercepted one of Holbrook's passes and ran it 20 yards before Coleman tackled not Toombs, but the ball he carried loosely in his arms. It was Kerrville's ball on the Sandie 48 and Holbrook's 18-yard pass to Rust, Antler end, started the drive. Chambliss stood at the scrimmage line and took a screen pass to the 13 and Holbrook followed up with a beautiful spot pass that found Rust waiting on the five-yard marker. He turned and jogged across for the score.

Denied Two Scores

Two times before the Antlers had been denied a score. Late in the first period Fisher intercepted Clesson's pass on the Kerrville 27 and skipped 20 yards. Holbrook's passes to Chambliss and McCaleb, sandwiched in between some shifty running by McCaleb, carried to the Amarillo five. An attempted screen pass failed and Clesson booted out 50 yards.

McCaleb's recovery of Clesson's fumble on the Sandie 47 started the Antlers goalward again in the second period. Holbrook's smashing line spurts, plus several short passes to McCaleb and Chambliss, took the Antlers to the Sandie two-yard stripe there Holbrook failed by inches to make it a first down with a touchdown only a yard and a half away. Clesson again took the starch out of the invaders with a 60-yard kick-out.

Bennett Meets Badman Moran

Clever Oklahoman To Try Wit And Strength Against The Sailor; Andy Tremaine To Work On Preliminary

Sailor Moran, the vicious villain from Arkansas, and George Bennett, clever mat artist from Oklahoma, feature Sled Allen's final 1936 grappling card Wednesday night at the Auditorium.

The veteran promoter is "putting out" another heavy holiday card, the supporting events promising as many thrills and as much excitement, in proportion to the time limits, as the main go.

Newcomer Is Booked

Andy Tremaine, husky ex-footballer from University of Arizona, Tucson, who will be remembered here for a short visit last year during which he walloped the dickens out of several high and mightys of the padded arena, is back in the circuit and will initiate a season here by meeting a newcomer, one Olie Erickson from Kakima, Washington.

Erickson will be making his debut here. Little is known of him except that he wins more matches than he loses in other circuits. Tremaine was popular here as a strong, clean grappler of the Otis Clingman type.

Walter Stratton, deposed king of this circuit's middleweights, is to do battle with the youngster, Russell Riley of Carlsbad, in the semi-final this week.

Sugar Bowl Carnival Starts Today With Track, Field Events; Other Sports Are Booked During Week

(By The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26.—Eleven members of the United States 1936 Olympic team will join other track and field stars in inaugurating the Sugar Bowl's greatest week of sports tomorrow. The eight events at Loyola stadium beginnig at 2 p. m. (central standard time).

Thereafter will follow during the week of carnival tennis, boxing, basketball, rowing, regatta and other events which lead up to the third annual football classic New Year's Day in Tulane stadium between Louisiana State university and Santa Clara, of California.

Five Champs Lined Up

Four world record holders and five national champions are included among the track stars competing tomorrow.

Glenn Cunningham, who set the world record of 4:06.7 minutes in Sept. 1934, Archie San Romani, the American miler who conquered Cunningham and Jack Lovelock, the Olympic champion, will aim at a new mark in the mile run.

Two other events include the two mile steeplechase, one of the most exciting tests in track, and the 100-yard dash for women.

America's first three men in the steeplechase, Joe McCluskey, Harold Manning and Glenn Dawson, will show the South how that is done. Helen Stephens is national champion in three events.

Lash Defends Title

Don Lash, winner of the N. A. A. U. cross country title three times, will defend his national mark of 8.58.4 of 1936 in the two mile which also stands as a world record.

Sixteen featured players, including five of the country's ten top ranking netmen, will compete in the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament starting Monday at the New Orleans Country club courts.

Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, 26-year-old Atlanta star, leads a draw bristling with tennis stars. Arthur Hendrix will defend his crown.

Gardner Predicts Good Ball Season

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP)—J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, tonight predicted a 1937 season of exceptionally well-balanced competition and excellent attendance.

The executive pointed out that five new managers already were signed and there was a possibility of a sixth joining the circuit. This, he said, would give the 40-year-old league more new pilots at the start of the season than at any time during the past decade.

A general pickup in industry was the basis for Gardner's prediction that the league would come close to setting a new record for attendance.

Gardner praised the Shaughnessy plan.

The new managers signed are Zach Taylor at San Antonio, Al Vincent at Beaumont, Hank Severeid at Galveston, John Watwood at Houston, and Jim Keesey at Oklahoma City.

Greyhound's Manager Sure Big Gelding Will Set New Trotting Record In 1937

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 26. (AP) — Sep Palin, veteran reinsman and trainer of grand circuit harness horses, predicted today that Greyhound, the big gray gelding he has developed, would break a 14-year-old trotting record next season.

Greyhound was one of the best two-year-olds of the 1934 season and in 1935 took the Hambletonian and seven other stakes, trotting to a record of 2:00 flat, the world's mark for a gelding of his age.

Fourteen years ago at Lexington, Ky., Peter Manning established the championship trotting record of 1:56 3-4 and since that time — at least until Greyhound came along —the mark has stood practically unchallenged.

"Without a doubt Greyhound will break that record," said Palin. "He'll top it if he's sound, and there's every indication he will be. I fully expect him to set a new record. He's a great game horse. He'll come through."

Staying On Top Harder Than Getting There, Washington Crew Coach Is Discovering

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP) — Al Ulbrickson, coach of the University of Washington's world champion crew, is finding out that getting on top isn't half as hard as staying there.

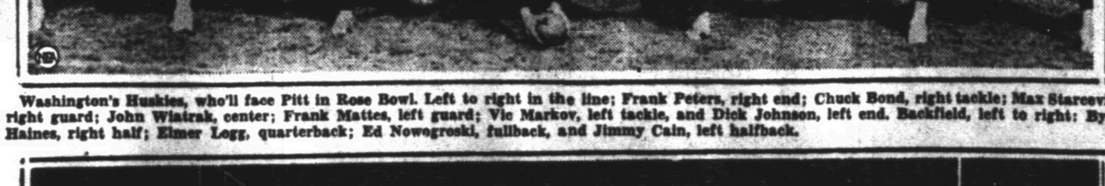

With the same varsity sweep-swingers available for the 1937 regattas, the silver-thatched coach shouldn't have a worry in the world. But he's worrying, just the same.

He has confidence in his brawny boys from a stroke production standpoint, but Al really is afraid of precedent.

As he pointed out in an interesting letter which popped up today, over-confidence "has crept into past American Olympic crews and I can't see how those fellows of mine will be any exceptions."

"They have realized so many of their rowing ambitions in the year it is almost impossible for them to have the drive and the enthusiasm of the past year no matter how hard they try," wrote Ulbrickson.

Baylor Lands Coach School

Weldon Chapman Announces Bid Offered By Waco Accepted By Coaches Association At Amarillo Session

Coach Weldon Chapman of Lubbock High school, secretary-treasurer of the Texas High School Football Coaches association, said last night the fourth annual coaching school sponsored by the association and the all-star football game would be held at Waco next August.

A quorum of the board of directors of the association met in Amarillo yesterday, Chapman said, and voted to accept a proposition made by Baylor university through its athletic business manager, Ralph Wolf. The invitation to bring the coaching school to Baylor had been issued by Wolf several weeks ago.

The school, which is primarily for members of the association, will be held August 2-7 inclusive. The annual football game between the all-stars of North Texas and a similar team of South Texas is to be played on the night of August 7, Chapman said.

D. X. Bible, head coach at Nebraska, and Raymond "Bear" Wolf, formerly of T. C. U., now of North Carolina university, have been selected as principal instructors at the school. They will coach the schoolboy teams for the game. Chapman said it was likely that a third coach would be employed to discuss the Notre Dame system.

Non-members of the coaches association will be taxed a tuition fee, although the school is free to regular members.

Blair Cherry, Amarillo head coach and president of the association, conducted the meeting of directors.

Yost Suggests Change May Be Made On Michigan Staff

ANN ARBOR, Dec. 26. (AP)—Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan athletic director, said today the athletic board was reviewing the Wolverines' football records and that there was a "possibility" that "some changes" might be made in the coaching staff.

Yost said members of the board in control of physical education were considering Michigan's dismal showing in football for the past three seasons.

Yost earlier this week denied the board had decided to remove Harry L. Kipke, head football coach.

Owens Outruns Horse In Cuba

Negro Speed Demon Wins By 6 Yards In Race With Horse To Open Cuban Sport Show; Runs Hundred In 9.9

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 26. (AP) — Jesse Ownes, Cleveland negro who won four Olympic gold medals for his Olympic sprinting and broad jumping exploits, today beat a race horse by six yards in a special 100-yard dash featuring the opening of Cuba's first international sports week. Owens was clocked in 9.9 seconds, half a second behind the world record.

Owens was spotted a 40 yard handicap by the race horse, Julio Macaw, a five-year-old bay gelding. Later, his winning margin was estimated variously from 15 to 20 yards.

2,000 See Race

A crowd of 2,000 cheered the negro flash enthusiastically on his first appearance as a professional. The sun shone brightly; the temperature at 82 degrees and the track was dry.

Except for the fact that he is not trained down as finely as he was for the Olympic games in Berlin last summer, Owens said he probably would have run the 100 yards in much faster time.

Rain Prevents Grid Workouts On West Coast

East-West Teams Held Inside Most Of Day By Wet Weather But Players Getting Ready For Charity Contest

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—Heavy rain bogged down practice today of Eastern and Western football luminaries, preparing for annual East-West charity game here New Year's Day.

The inclement weather, however, held the Eastern boys indoors only the morning. Under the leadership of Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley they charged out later in the day for a snappy signal drill.

Kerr Likes It

Kerr, Colgate mentor, referred to the rain as "liquid sunshine; something our boys are used to." The outdoor session was called to iron out mistakes in timing and blocking which cropped out during yesterday's scrimmage.

Western players, training at Palo Alto, sat in on a blackboard talk while Coaches Percy Locey and Orin Hollingberry watched for a break in the skies.

Final Workout For Santa Clara Spoiled

SANTA CLARA, Calif., Dec. 26. (AP)—Heavy rain today prevented Santa Clara's Broncos from engaging in their final scheduled home practice scrimmage in preparation for the New Year's Day Sugar Bowl game with Louisiana State.

Coach Buck Shaw held a "skull" session with his men.

The Broncos entrain tonight for New Orleans. They are due in Houston, Tex., Tuesday morning and will remain there until Wednesday evening, working out at Rice Field.

Washington Sure To Try Air Against Pitt

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 26. (AP)—University of Pittsburgh's football team may or may not be developing a passing attack, but it is no secret that their opponents in the coming New Year's Day Rose Bowl duel, the Huskies of Washington, have an overhead game that is apt to spell danger or "sudden death."

The Huskies could hardly qualify as a great passing outfit, but they were able to strike through the air several times this fall when the going was tough on the ground and emerge with touchdowns and victory.

Auburn Gridders Leave For Finale In Cuba

OPELIKA, Ala., Dec. 26. (AP)—Coach Jack Meagher and 29 Auburn football players left here today en route to Havana, Cuba, where the Plainsmen will meet Villanova New Year's day in a climax gridiron game to the island republic's mid-winter sports festival. They will sail from Tampa Monday.

Meagher said meeting Villanova "will be like playing Santa Clara again."

"Maurice (Clipper) Smith, now at Villanova, was head coach at Santa Clara and coached there through last spring training," Meagher said. "Our game with Villanova will be like playing Santa Clara again. Both teams play pretty much the same type of football."

Santa Clara beat Auburn 12-0 at San Francisco for one of the two losses suffered his year by the Alabamans.

Passing Exponents Prep For Cotton Bowl Classic

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP)—The Marquette university eleven, opponents of the Texas Christian Horned Frogs in the Cotton Bowl classic New Year's day, went through two practice drills today.

Coach Frank J. Murray sent his charges through a stiff morning drill in a drizzling rain at the Southern Methodist stadium. An afternoon drill, at one time called off because of rain, later was held when Murray insisted on giving his players as much conditioning as possible.

Frogs Apparently Ready

Meanwhile, Coach Dutch Meyer called his Horned Frogs back to action in Fort Worth. The Christians had not been in uniform since defeating the Santa Clara Broncos in San Francisco Dec. 5.

Meyer, suffering from a heavy cold, drilled his team lightly Saturday, but strenuous activity was scheduled to start Monday.

"The boys are in excellent spirits," Meyer said, "and showed a lot of pep. They've been pretty careful about eating too much turkey during the holidays and are in good condition.

"We don't know much about Marquette's offense, but I think we'll be ready Jan. 1."

Formation Of "Double A" High School Football Conference Is Planned Next Year For Schools With Enrollment Of More Than 1,000, Is Report

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Dec. 26.—The Sunday Chronicle says it learned from authoritative sources plans for expansion of the Texas Interscholastic League high school football program to include a fourth classification, designed, to "relieve the overburdened Class A division," will be launched early next year.

"The contemplated setup would give the league four classifications in football. There are now three, and would tend to equalize competition among member schools," the paper says.

With membership in the Class A football division due to go over 1000 next year and with prospects that the number will, within the next few years, increase to unwieldy operating proportions, the league proposes to set up a "major" division for schools with an enrollment of 1000 students or more.

The Chronicle said its source declared that steps would be made to have the new league setup in operation in 1938.

"Under the proposed plan for the formation of the "major" or 'big league' division, all schools with an enrollment of 1,000 or more would be compelled to play in this group. The Class A division would be the same as now—schools with 500 and up to 1000 students. The B and C groups not be affected.

"All of the state's larger schools, including those in the larger cities, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, would be included in the new 'major' division. The 'major' division would operate as does the Class A division with teams divided into geographical districts. A playoff would also be arranged with the state championship, duplicating the Class A setup.

"Under this play, state championships of two divisions—'major' and Class A—would be determined. Whether there would be a playoff between champions of the two divisions for the 'official' state championship would be determined in a vote of member schools.

"The plan for the new 'major' division is similar to the idea for a Class AA division, designed for schools in large cities, which has been advocated during the past four years."

Georgia Tech's Razzle-Dazzle Offense Beats California Golden Bears 13-7

Southern Fans Are Surprised As Bears Lose

Ramblin' Wreck Goes To Town With Flashy Maneuvers To Smear Pacific Coast Team And Stave Off Rally

(By The Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Dec. 26. — Georgia Tech and its razzle-dazzle football beat California's Golden Bears 13 to 7 today in a spectacular display of gridiron tricks.

A holiday crowd of more than 15,000 saw the post-season clash on Grant Field—a battle that began slowly and ended in a series of flashy maneuvers with the Bears threatening until the final whistle.

Georgia Tech's triumph over a California team already established as potential champions of the Pacific Coast in 1937 was a distinct surprise to Southern fans.

Turn On The Dazzle

The old razzle-dazzle paved the way for Georgia Tech's touchdowns after the Engineers fumbled and played listlessly to give California scoring opportunities in the scoreless first half.

Georgia Tech, victor over the Bears in the Rose Bowl classic of 1929 and loser in a couple of later contests, crossed the blueshirted gridders' goal line early in the third period and near the end of the closing quarter.

Trailing 13 to 0 with only four minutes to play, the Bears staged a belated rally, with Vic Bottari, star sophomore halfback tossing lightning passes. Bottari's heaves, including one to Perry Thomas that netted 24 yards, carried to Tech's two and the Californian cut through tackle for a touchdown.

Bears Score Late

California had to kickoff. There were less than two minutes to play. Quarterback John Meek called an outside kick and it worked. It was the Bear's ball on Tech's 44. Bottari passed to Thomas and the lanky end was stopped on the 13. Bottari tried three passes and a line buck but Tech took the ball on its own 18 as the game ended.

Rewinding The Sports Reel

BECAUSE it is being done generally and because we in Lubbock and on the South Plains really have something to brag about, this department backtracks today, in brief form, probably the greatest, most enthusiastic and prosperous sports year in the history of the neighborhood.

There have been years when our various athletes and athletic teams piled up better winning averages, but never was more progress, more building, more sustained interest packed into a twelve-month period hereabouts.

The prosperity bells peeled out with the ring of hammers on nail, wood and steel as new grandstand and stadia were built, and to these trouped record breaking crowds nearly each week during the year. Construction of grass greens at Lubbock Country club, partial improvement of Meadowbrook, was less loud but no less important and appreciated.

Let's drift back through the year with:

Basketball

It wasn't an extraordinary basketball year. Texas Tech lost the Border conference championship after winning three years in row, the team being weakened toward the last by the loss of two hotshots . . . but Huffman's Raiders, who now are starting on another year with lots of hope and hustle, did fairly well as a whole, breaking even on the schedule, or even better . . . They continued to do business at the same old barn-like stand, this phase of sport, like tennis, advancing none whatever in the building program. . .

Lubbock High's team had fair luck in the District 1 unofficial schoolboy race, and won most of its other games, losing finally in the district tournament which Abernathy won in a thrilling stretch drive with Lamesa, 21 to 20 . . . Basketball continued to be the most popular game with high schools of the section . . .

Track And Field

UNDER Beri Huffman's tutorship, Texas Tech's thinly clads had their best year since the college resumed the sport after several slack years . . . Maurice Cowan, pole vaulter, and Bob Case, distance runner, dominated the team, Cowan setting new records, claiming distinction at the Southwestern exposition, the Texas Relays and the Drake relays . . . Lamesa won the District high school meet, for which two Lubbock athletes, Dudley Brummett and Bruce Chant, qualified . . . These also participated in the Southwestern meet. . . .

Tennis

The deplorable lack of tennis equipment holds this sport back in Lubbock. Texas Tech now is attempting to build some nice clay courts, but the school in particular and the town in general has neglected the net game something pitiful . . . The Matadors engaged several teams in intercollegiate matches and sent a team to the Border conference meet . . . Credit goes to Prof. J. G. Allen for his untiring efforts to push the game, one of the best, along here . . . It is hoped that he new year will be kind to Tennis, and that more and adequate facilities be developed . . .

Baseball

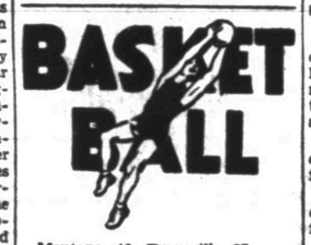

Here Old Man Prosperity put in a definite appearance, bringing about the best year in baseball over the territory in five years or more . . . Amherst and Lubbock teams dominated on the South Plains, each town building a new park and hereby fulfilling a need felt for years . . . Rivalry was much more intense and on a higher plane, tournaments were successful, Amherst falling in a sensational upset to the Lubbock Tip-Top team in the finals of the annual Lubbock invitational, and winning its own joust . . . The pitching of two fine left handers, Gaut Hambright of Amherst and Jerry Blanchard of Lubbock, featured. . . .

Sled Allen became definitely interesed again, took the Lubbock Hubbers through a season that was successful because of the work done late in the season . . . To Mayor Tapley of Amherst and his loyal supporters, and to Sam Rosenthal, sponsor of he Hubbers, Jimmy William, sponsor of the Tip-Top team, and Ed Hambright, general manager of the local set up, go especial credit for bringing baseball back on the South Plains . . . To Rosenthal and Hambright go credit for building the new fence and grandstand here, to which extra accommodations may be built ere another season reaches full swing . . . The radio boys, De-Wit "Judge" Landis and Cowboy Kyle, also come in for a big share of credit for helping put baseball over last summer. . . .

Wrestling

The old maestro, Sled Allen, had his best year in the three years he has promoted professional grappling here . . . The fans continued to turn out in large numbers, attenance being more consistent than ever before due to a "square deal" treatment by both promoter and gladiators here . . . They know how to put it on . . . The return of the Masked Marvel and his third undefeated streak here (he was beaten at El Paso recently), the long winning spree of Walter Stratton the Strong Man and that of Herb Parks were outstanding features in a good wrestling year . . . Wrestling continued to be the most widely and cheerfully attended sport, due in part to its weekly regularity. . . .

THIS THING is sort of getting out of hand, so it'll have to be continued until Monday afternoon, at which time we'll bring you golf, horse racing, polo, football, etc. You really can't afford to miss it.

'Twas The Night After Christmas

And All Through The Town Everything Was As Quiet As That Lilting Description Of The Pre-Holiday Night Of Poem

'Twas the night after Christmas —

And it was as quite as that little description of the pre-holiday night.

"I'm thinking about booking my deputies for vagrancy," laughed Sheriff Tom Abel.

"Almost nothing down here," said Ralph Portland, night sergeant of police. Up to an early hour he could count only nine persons nabbed for intoxication since reporting for duty before dark Christmas Eve.

Only a slight precentage of the Yule's incandescants were burning. Children kept outdoors in temperatures ranging from a high 57 degrees in the afternoon to 50 degrees at 7 o'clock that night. Slight moisture of the night before did not detract from enjoyment. Grownups, too, found the outside attractive and took their cars and vacated premises for several hours—returning to grab what was left of Christmas turkey and then go to theaters or private gatherings of friends.

Peace authorities said drinking was not so evident as it had been in many former years, and pronounced "hangovers" were encountered less.

Apparently, most families entertained relatives or friends. Many students from colleges universities away from Lubbock were here, replacing the greater number of Texas Technological college enrollees who had gone home for the holidays.

Squalid Homes Of "Shanty Town" Are Visited By Reporter, Revealing Need Of Aid; Many Shacks Without Floors

"Excuse this dirty house—"

And a woman clothed in a frowzy calico dress beneath a shabby sweater, stockingless feet in shapeless shoes with run-down heels, led the way into her "house" in shack town.

The pasteboards which composed the ceiling had drooped as result of rains and open spaces showed. Cracked, thin linoleum covered the ground.

Air Was Stifling

Glass had been thrust into an open space in the wall. The window had been placed there for light. The room should not have needed ventilation, but nevertheless the air was stifling.

A hot stove brought out the odor of unclean bedclothing, sweat, and filth.

To wash away the filth, the residents would have to carry water from a nearby tank.

There are no sewage facilities.

Nine persons live in the three rooms. They sleep in two full-size and one half-size beds.

Another woman led the way into her shack. Twelve persons lived there, in four roms. Children ranged from 9 months to 12 years. The 9-months old child is the illegitimate baby of a girl in the family.

Each child except the two older ones received Christmas gifts, but not through the $31 salary of the WPA worker who is the man of the house. The Goodfellows visited there Friday.

A doll hung from the wall. The children must look at it awhile before their dirty fingers mar the bright cleanliness of its clothes.

Girl Is Convalescing

In another shanty a 16-year-old girl was convalescing from a 9-week seige of typhoid fever. She was not shut off entirely from the outside, for from wide rents in the ceiling and the wall she could look outside. During her illness, she was waited upon by her eight-year-old sister. She, her sister, and father lived in the shack. There is one bed.

In a tent in which eight persons lived there were two invalids. A wrinkled woman who had asthma said she felt worse than she had in a long time. A boy had pneumonia, his father said.

Was there anything they needed, a social worker asked.

"We could use some coal-oil, and some salt. And let's see, there was something else I was thinking we needed the other day." said the man.

The family moved its tent to shack town after picking cotton. When there was more money, it was used in obtaining medical aid for the woman, said her husband.

Fifty Shacks In Area

Other shacks were visited. Each was squalid. Lubbock's shanty town is located northeast of the Broadway railway underpass. There are perhaps 50 shacks.

A few of the shacks have board floors. Some have no covering at all for floors.

The women are shabbily dressed. They do not resent questions, and several explained their troubles, their lack of necessities, to a charity worker Saturday without embarrassment.

The people are squatters. They have tacked up their homes of pasteboard, and discarded tin and boards, or have set up their tents around permanent homes. Protests of owners of property in that section of town have been little heeded.

After petitions asking that shack town be cleaned up and given sewage and water facilities were presented to the City commission last spring, several residents of the town moved—but not far.

Final Checkup To Show Banks Didn't Earn '36 Dividends

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Informed sources predicted today a final checkup will show the Federal Reserve banks did not earn their dividends this year.

Under the law, the banks must pay a 6 per cent dividend on stocks held by member banks. The board can defer dividends or pay them out of surplus only when earnings are less than 6 per cent.

Declining interest rates on government securities have been a major factor in reducing the banks' earnings, officials said. On government bonds, interest now averages 2.25 per cent, compared to 2.73 a year ago and 3.10 in 1934.

Coach Bobo Nelson, who fell heir to the big job of keeping Athens high in the high school basketball limelight when Jimmy Kitts went to Rice Institute as head coach, brings his team here Monday or Tuesday. So far, no game has been scheduled for Tuesday night, but the Hornets will invade the Plainview gymnasium Wednesday night for a go with the Bulldogs.

At Meadow Thursday

Meadow High school plays host to the Central Texas club Thursday night, and Levelland is the stopping place Friday night. Abernathy entertains Saturday night.

Coach Nelson had invited bids for a Tuesday night contest. Any team in this section interested in playing the Hornets Tuesday night may contact Coach Nelson at Athens today, it is believed.

The Hornets gained national recognition under Kitts by copping two United States high school championships, the while they were handing up a record of five Texas titles.

Confidence In Markets Seen

Rosy Complexion Of Trade And Production Reports Holds Attention Of Wall Street During Past Week

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—In a holiday mood, financial markets have approached the year-end with a leisurely but more confident stride.

It was the rosy complexion of trade and production reports, rather than security markets, that took the attention of Wall Street the past week.

From trade centers of the nation came accounts of a brisk movement of all kinds of merchandise into the hands of eager Christmas shoppers.

Stocks and bonds, after a decline which carried over the preceding week, braced for a rally. But the recovery was mild as trading tapered off before the three-day recess over Christmas and the week-end.

Noteworthy in the eyes of bond men was a better market for United States treasury loans after announcement of a plan for "sterilizing" gold imports as another move in a broad program of credit expansion control.

Selling of government issues diminished as many bond men inferred from the gold plan that federal authorities might not undertake another early 50 per cent boost in reserve requirements of member banks. Expectation of such an increase had been given as the chief force behind recent liquidation in treasury loans, especially by banks.

pose to replace the law expiring May 1.

Evidence was accumulating that a bitter fight was brewing over relief and the intertwined problem of balancing the budget. Even within the administration there were signs of conflict, and in congress opposing camps were forming in factor of continued or curtailed spending.

Sharp Attacks Expected

There were mounting signs that President Roosevelt's suggestion for a $500,000,000 appropriation to last until June 30 would draw sharp attacks both from advocates of more liberal spending and legislators who favor a tightened federal purse.

Senator King (D-Utah) told reporters he considered such a sum "unnecessary."

"If overhead is reduced and proper economy applied, $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 should be enough," King said.

He added that he considered $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 enough for federal relief throughout the fiscal year beginning July 1. States should absorb a growing proportion of the burden, he contended.

Other quarters in the capital were understood to feel that $500,000,000 would not be sufficient for the rest of this fiscal year and that a much larger sum probably would be necessary for next year also.

Aid Asked In Shipping Deal

Minneapolis Company Requests State Department To Help In Recovering Flax Shipment, "Unwarrantedly Seized"

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. — The Acher Daniels-Midland company of Minneapolis had asked the state department to aid it in recovering a $400,000 shipment of flax seed which it claims was "unwarrantedly seized on the high seas" by the Spanish government.

In a telegram, T. L. Daniels, vice president of the company, said a cargo of more than 700,000 tons of Argentine flax seed was shipped December 3 from Buenos Aires on the steamship Motomar, flying the Spanish flag.

"Sails Under Orders"

"Wednesday, Daniels said, "the commander radioed our agent Garcia and Diaz company, New York, that the 'steamer sails under direct and absolute orders from the government of the Spanish republic".

Daniels said the message to his agent came from the vicinity of Puerto Rico and he understood "the Spanish ambassador at Washington had ordered the vessel to proceed to Vera Cruz, Mexico."

"In view of the unwarranted seizure of this vessel and cargo on the high seas and the tremendous loss to us," Daniels told the state department, we urgently request you to seek diversion of the ship to our Edgewater, N. J., mill, which was the original destination."

The state department, it was learned, has cabled Spain but so far has no reply. State department officials declined comment when asked whether they had talked with the Spanish ambassador.

Texas Business

reached a new high. Merchants thought at the close of 1935 they had gone through their greatest holiday season, but sales this year surpassed last year's record breaker.

Head of seven leading San Antonia stores asserted Christmas business in that southwestern trade center was the best since 1928. They ascribed the improvement to prosperous conditions.

San Angelo merchants unanimously reported their business on the boom, some reporting gains of as much as 100 per cent over 1935. This was largely due to unprecedented contracting for 1937 wool and Mohair.

Climbs Above 1928 Mark

Retail business in Austin climber slightly past the 1928 mark, reported Horace C. Barnhart, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association.

The horde of Christmas shoppers who literally fought their way through Port Arthur stores increased retail volume in that Gulf port city 30 per cent over 1935. Storekeepers credited it with being the best season Port Arthur ever had.

Better Than Ever In Temple

Business was even better in Temple, where business was estimated to have climbed anywhere from 40 to 50 per cent over last year's figures. Groceries, clothing, gift, and all lines shared in the gains.

Retail sales in Abilene jumped 25 per cent over last year in department and hardware stores. Managers said customers bought better grades of merchandise. Strictly dry goods sales were up from 10 to 15 per cent.

Houston Gain 30 Per Cent

Houston merchants estimated an approximate 30 per cent increase there. Although an accurate estimate of sales was not available. Galveston had gains of from 25 to 40 per cent in sales, with increases in postal and bank receipts. A record volume of mail and parcel post was handled during the Christmas season. The dollar volume gain in department stores at Longview gained 25 per cent over the three weeks before Christmas last year. There was heavy demand for luxury goods.

Christmas retail business in Fort Worth showed substantial gains over the same period in 1935, with one large store estimating its increase at between 35 and 40 per cent.

Peace Overtures

that weekend conversations in Paris between French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and German Ambassador Count Johannes von Welczek concerned Germany's need of raw materials as well as the problem of Nazi volunteers to Spain.

Motives Believed Cited

(Delbos hinted, the Berlin sources said, that France believed Spanish iron, cooper, lead and manganese was the motive behind the volunteer enlistments to the cause of Fascist Gen. Francisco Franco.)

French observers said Great Britain was cooperating in the effort to trade raw material markets for peace, but government spokesmen emphasized that no matter what may result, both nations have no intention of backing down on their demand that Germany stop volunteer enlistments and that Hitler guarantee he will not send regular troops to Franco's aid.

One spokesman said today the situation was not necessarily alarming and indicated "there are strong possibilities of a solution."

"France and England have told Germany to choose between butter and cannon," the newspaper Paris Midi asserted.

Marked Decrease In Exchange Of Gifts Is Noted Here; Better Buying Wisdom Is Indicated; Incidents Are Revealed

Marked decrease in exchange of Christmas gifts was reported Saturday by Lubbock merchants.

Exchanging—whether because of size, duplication or color of merchandise, or because of individual whimsy—follows Christmas no less than does New Year's, but volume of such transactions may hit an unprecedented low this season, judging by Saturday's indications.

Most Managers Elated

Most managers expressed elation at a pre-Christmas business rush.

A manager of a woman's store expressed hope of a continued increase in business, stating her business had been better Saturday than was usually the case on the day after Christmas. She had made only one exchange and that was pajamas which had been too small.

Within the same block the owner and manager of a man's store said he had made fewer exchanges than in either of the two previous Christmas periods. He also stated he had the biggest day Christmas Eve experienced in the store's three-year history in Lubbock.

Wrong Sizes Cause

Wrong sizes was the chief reason for the exchange of gifts, most of the clerks and managers said. The general opinion, however, was that both men and women were educating themselves how to buy for the other sex. It was also generally believed that women had better taste than men in selecting Christmas gifts for the other sex.

Another manager of a man's store said Saturday he had not found this year a man who wanted to exchange his gift from a feminine admirer for cash. "Sometimes men want credit for their gifts, but as yet we have found none this year," he said. He confirmed the belief that women were learning how to buy for men, stating they did much of it all the time.

Compliment Paid Men

A compliment paid to gentlemen buyers by a manager of a womar's store was that some gentlemen find gifts that please their lady friends better than the ladies please themselves, or "at least the women say they do." She also said men "have better taste in selection and better judgment in size than they used to."

Another, hesitating to condemn the men's judgment of size, remarked "Santa Claus has a bad memory with regard to wife's and friend's sizes."

Man In Serious Plight

The Avalanche-Journal representative chanced to meet a dejected man with a tea-kettle who was in a serious plight. The tea-kettle, a gift for the wife, was unwanted and unaccepted and the donor was still worrying Saturday what to exchange it for.

Fewer exchanges this year than in 15 years was the report of a head of a large department store.

The mention of the amount of exchanges to one clerk brought forth a steady string of profane language that was imprintable "Call them ——s anything you want to and I'll sign it," a clerk said. "That's all we've done today." He stated "a few" had not been satisfied with their gift and wanted it exchanged for another, and others had called for a refund.

"Hok can men exepct to get the right sizes when they give such crazy answers to our regular questions regarding size!" a clerk in a women's department of a store exclaimed. When telling the size of the wife's foot they stick up their hands and measure off the imaginative length of her foot. "About your size" is typical man's answer to the clerk's query regarding the probable size lingerie for the wife or girl friend.

Want To Learn Price

Another somewhat disgusted clerk said she believed many of the women called for refunds simply to determine the price of the gift purchased by their admirers.

The general consensus of clerks and managers was complimentary to both men and women in their selection of gifts. It was also to the effect there was a remarkable decrease in exchange of Christmas presents in comparison with former years.

Dun & Bradstreet Report Says U. S. Business Higher

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Retail sales throughout the country pushed ahead at an exceptionally lively rate this week, the survey of Dun & Bradstreet reported, with general dollar volumes ahead of the corresponding period in 1930.

Despite heavy demand last year, the retail volume was estimated at 10 to 25 per cent above the 1935 comparative.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP) — Mrs. Catherine O'Leary Ledwell, 70, last member of the O'Leary family whose cow, some say, started the Chicago fire, died of heart disease last night at her home.

Mrs. Ledwell always denied the legend that the O'Leary cow kicked over a lamp in their barn and touched off the great blaze of 1871.

She declared they first learned of the fire at 8 o'clock when Denis Sullivan, "the one legged drayman from next door," discovered it in the barn.

Blind Man Finds Missing Gem After Search Had Been Futile

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y., Dec. 26. (AP)—It took the sensitive fingers of Frank W. Severne, sightless editor of the Watkins Express, to find a diamond missing from the engagement ring worn by his wife for 45 years.

Lost from its setting three days ago, search for the gem continued until Severne, who has been blind for 64 years, explored the interior of his office safe after others had searched it.

His fingers located the diamond partly wedged in a crack.

The wrestler now lives in Milwaukee. He has relatives in San Antonio, Tex.

Senator Lewis Contemplates Increased Democratic Seats With Forebodings; Is 'Whip'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP) — Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois is one Democrat who contemplates his party's increased congressional majority with forebodings, for each additional member brings him another duty as senate "whip."

The Chesterfieldian Lewis must account, at the opening of each day's session, for the absence of any Democratic senator.

Even last year his oratorical announcements, printed in the journal so that constituents may know why their senator was absent on a particular day, occupied some time.

This session, with 75 Democratic senators, they probably will become an extensive rite.

The position of "whip," however, carries other duties. Party leaders depend on him to have full forces mustered when important bills are considered.

Freakish Weather Mixture Is Reported In The Northwest

ST. PAUL, Dec. 26. (AP)—Snow, sleet, rain, fog and record high temperatures were included in the Northwest's freakish weather mixture today.

At least one town was virtually isolated from wire communications.

Ice from one to three inches thick clung to telephone wires in South Dakota and North Dakota. In South Dakota sleet conditions were described as the worst in six years.

Local Business

changes of merchandise.

6—Inventory will be lighter this year, owing to greatly depleted stocks, with prospects of early January seeing a replenishment on a larger scale than previous years have seen.

Competition in Christmas lines, toys, merchandise, etc., was greater this year for several stores, but in spite of this fact, their business held its own, attesting to a greater volume. This was particularly true of some old establishments, who held their own volume.

Credit Business At Minimum

Credit business for the holidays was at a minimum. Greater proportions of the transactions were strictly cash. Out-of-town purchasers seemed to have plenty of money for purchases this year.

Heavy items, automobiles, furniture, etc., were popular with buyers. Sales were good in these lines.

Evidence was plentiful Saturday that gifts of money were common on Christmas. One clothing salesman had sold a suit of clothes before 9 a. m., an unusual experience for a man who had been in a store for a score of years; a shoe salesman sold a $20 pair of boots for cash, during the morning.

Some concerns kept secret their bonus plans until late Thursday when they distributed checks or cash. The amount of bonus given locally was boosted steadily.

terrible force from the mouth of a cave," Stump relates, "and they were so strong they kept everyone from exploring it. I tried bucking the wind, but couldn't stand up so I put curry combs on by knees and crawled up to the mouth.

"It was no use, though, for when I turned on my flashlight the force of the wind blew the light beam right back out at me and I couldn't see where I was going."

From 5,500 entries of liars around the globe, officers will choose the new champion. He will be named Dec. 29 over a radio (Mutual) hookup and will be awarded a medal studded with what a convincing liar could palm off as diamonds.

cooperative and have at the same time attempted to direct the program of my division according to sound educational procedures." "I have been sympathetic," she quoted her letter as continuing, "with all those in the department who are striving to do likewise. I have had little sympathy with those whose chief concern has been their own self-aggrandizement."

A few days thereafter, Miss Peek said, the superintendent wrote her he was reorganizing the department's personnel, beginning January 1 and her services would not be needed. She added that she later was given a chance to resign.

She said she asked Woods to submit her resignation to the board for vocational education but he answered he was accepting it without presenting it to the board.

Deportation May Be Used In White Slavery Campaign

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—The justice department and immigration authorities wheeled a new piece of heavy artillery into action against white slavery today — a threat of wholesale deportations.

"Already steps are being taken to bring about deportation of 16 convicted white slavers," said J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation.

Federal authorities also are acting, he said, to arrange deportation of material witnesses who appeared in recent white slave cases.

The government's new move against interstate rings shipping women across state lines for immoral purposes was described first by Hoover in a recent summary of white slave cases prosecuted by the justice department. In the survey, which showed 201 convictions for violation of the Mann act between last July 1 and November 30, Hoover called attention to the department's successful smashing of a white slave ring operating in Connecticut and New York.

NANKING, Dec. 26. (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, restored to his place as leader of the Chinese nation, announced tonight he would recommend that the government deal leniently with Marshal Chang Hsueh-Lang, penitent leader of the rebellion in northwestern China that ended yesterday with the generalissimo's release.

Marshal Chang, arrived here "to face the music," declared himself "ready to suffer whatever the government desires, whether it be death or not."

"Peaches" Browning Wins A Point In Dower Rights Fight

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning, widow of Edward (Daddy) West Browning, wealthy New York real estate operator, won a point in her court fight to obtain her dower rights today when the appelate division affirmed a Supreme court ruling that their marriage was legal.

An adopted daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Browning Hood, contended "Peaches" claim to dower rights was void because Browning was not properly divorced from his first wife, Nellie Adele Lowen, in Paris, thirteen years ago.

"Convalescing Perfectly" Is Report On Young Roosevelt

BOSTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—The arrival of Miss Ethel du Pont, fiancee of young Franklin D. Roosevelt, coincided today with his physician's report that the tall Harvard senior, son of the president, was "convalescing perfectly."

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived yesterd and left the exclusive Phillips Hot where her son lies ill, smiling and apparently in good spirits after a hurried trip to his bedside from the midst of Christmas activity in Washington.

Today, with Miss du Pont, she spent three hours with him.

Housing Chief Sees 450,000 New Homes Built During 1937

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Looking ahead to 1937, Stewart McDonald, the housing administrator, foresaw today a possibility that 450,000 homes would be built in that year.

"On the basis of all information at our command," he said, "there will be an increase of approximately 50 per cent over the number built this year. Tentatively, we believe that between 400,000 and 450,000 non-farm dwelling units will be constructed during the calendar year 1937."

Christmas Bells Not Wedding Bells, Buddy Rogers Declares

EL PASO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Charles "Buddy" Rogers denied today that Christmas bells were wedding bells for him and Mary Pickford, but Miss Pickford's neice, Miss Gwin Pickford, admitted that "Auntie had us mpatified for a while."

The famous screen sweethearts stopped here with their party, en route by air from the East to Los Angeles. Miss Pickford was confined to her bed with a cold and Rogers said he was recovering from a mild attack of influenza.

"No time or place has been set for the wedding," said Rogers, "but it will be soon."

Boston Woman Celebrates Her 109th Birthday On Christmas

BOSTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Mrs. Rachael Waldfogel celebrated her 109th Christmas with the "immediate members of her family"—four daughters and a son, 60 grandchildren and 35 great grandchildren.

Great Grandma Waldfogel was born on Christmas day 108 years ago at Czestochow, Poland. She came to Boston shortly after her husband's death 35 years ago.

She retains excellent health and enjoyed a hearty holiday dinner.

Nearly 400 Homes In New York Town Quarantined Saturday

OWEGO, N. Y., Dec. 26. (AP)—The state health department quarantined nearly 400 Owego homes tonight in an effort to curb what Dr. George H. Ramsey of the department described as a "very serious" epidemic of scarlet fever.

Dr. Ramsey said more than 700 of the village's 5,000 residents had been stricken with the disease.

Collection Of Taxes Higher

No Official Figures Given Saturday But Estimates Say That Taxes Are Being Paid Much More Rapidly

Tax collections for the city of Lubbock and the Lubbock Independent school district are showing slight increases over the same period of last year, announcements indicated yesterday.

Although no official figures were obtainable, heads of both of the tax departments said the collections showed at least a small increase over the first three months of tax collections of 1935.

Paid More Rapidly

Estimates from the office of the city tax collector were to the effect that taxes were being paid more rapidly than during the corresponding period of last year. Payment of delinquent taxes is also showing an increase. This increase in payment of delinquent taxes has been enlarged to some extent by the work of an extra man employed by the city to work on payment of delinquent city taxes. Figures showing the collections for October, November and December and their comparison will be announced soon after January 1.

Reports from the tax office of Lubbock Independent school district indicated that tax collections there were showing about the same increase over the same period of last year. Delinquent taxes for the school district are also coming in more rapidly than last year. This office will also announce figures giving complete collections for the last three months soon after the first of the new year.

Although no reports were obtained from the Lubbock county tax office, these collections will be made public as soon after January 1 as possible.

Stangel Returns To Resume Duties

Stangel recently rejected an offer from the Russian government to aid in a livestock replenishment program.

Mr. and Mrs. Stangel will live at 3617 Twentieth street.

Ray C. Mowery, who has been acting head of the animal husbandry department, will return to his position as professor of animal husbandry.

Illicit Affair Is Blamed In Death

OZARK, Ark., Dec. 26. (AP)—Sheriff Champ Crawford said today two men had admitted giving poison whisky to Monroe Larrimore and implicated Larrimore's widow in a plot to kill the 44-year old World war veteran. Larrimore died.

Sheriff Crawford gave an illicit love affair as the motive and said Arch Doss, 26, and Haskell Bent, 19, of Watalula, Ark., had signed statements admitting the poisoning.

The widow, brown haired Mrs. Julia Larrimore, 40, was held but made no statement.

The sheriff quoted both of the men in custody as saying Doss' affection for Larrimore's wife resulted in the poisoning.

Liquor Sent By Telegraph Latest New Jersey Method

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 26 (AP)—Like flowers, liquor may be telegraphed to New Jersey from out-of-state points, D. Frederick Burnett, alcoholic beverage commissioner, ruled today, but only under certain conditions.

The permissible plan specifies the out-of-state sender pay its price and a service charge to a commercial telegraph company, which in turn will instruct its New Jersey office to purchase the liquor locally. The messenger or employee making the purchase must be over 21, Burnett emphasized.

State's "Cut" Is To Be More

New Item Must Be Figured In 1937 Budget For Household-ers Of Texas; Pensions Tax Plan Covers Wide Range

BY LLOYD PRICE

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP)—Heads of Texas households with a penchant for amusement and a few luxuries must figure in their 1937 budgets a new item—the state's "cut" on practically every expenditure for entertainment.

It will be paid in dribbles, pennies here and there, but when books are closed on the 12-month period beginning next Friday those little acorns will have grown into sizeable oaks.

To Pass Additional

The man who pays for two packages of cigarets a day; buys a pint of liquor a week, a bottle of beer now and then; takes his wife to a good movie once a week; goes dancing twice a month, and spends $20 a year for race, opera, football or other tickets, will pay the treasury approximately $38.98 in 1937.

If he bets on the races, plays marble machines or borrows money from the bank, up goes the total.

The Texas legislature, which at various times has passed bills making illegal nearly every form of amusement, turned to most of these taxes during its last session in a frantic effort to meet demands of the old age pension amendment.

Not A New Idea

It wasn't a new idea. Napoleon taxed "vices" to finance his wars. He said "vices" had strong backs and could stand it. The United States government did the same thing during the World war.

The modern taxation system virtually began when French and English peasants paid taxes for the "luxury" of staying at home during the crusades. In the late 18th century the British paid exorbitant taxes on hair powder and men servants.

Tea Party Was Result

The Boston tea party flamed because of a tax on tea, a luxury to the Colonists.

All in all, however, taxes on alcohol, tobacco, gambling, amusements and luxuries of all sorts have been relatively easy to collect, chiefly because of the difficulty of organizing opposition. In some instances interests have been quite willing to pay high taxes to stifle activities of reformers who would legislate their activities out of existence.

So in Texas these taxes will probably flow smoothly into the treasury with a certain poetic justice in that those who used to pay the piper now pay the pensioner—and can afford it.

TO THRESH GRAIN

SEVELLAND, Dec. 26—(Special)—A huge pile of maize heads, estimated at around 3,000 tons, is piled on the ground here awaiting threshing after the holidays. Turnout of the Hockley county crop is better than was at first expected, owing to drouth conditions in the summer. After threshing of the grain, the pummies will be sold.

"Toughest Guys" In Prison Sing Carols On Christmas

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 26. (AP)—The 38 "toughest guys in North Carolina" held their own private Christmas dinner at central prison, sipped tea, nibbled salted nuts from green crepe-paper baskets, and sang carols.

The 38 were convicted murderers, criminal assaulters and highway robbers, each serving a life sentence.

The principal course was barbecued pig, roasted seven hours by the prisoners.

What's Ahead For Roosevelt?

A Question-And-Answer Survey Of National Situation As Second Term Approaches

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Here are concise answers to many of the questions being asked as President Roosevelt, overwhelmingly re-elected, plans the course of his second administration:

Q. When will President Roosevelt take office? (Why change the date?)
A. On January 20, 1937. The 20th or "lame duck" amendment to the constitution changed the inauguration of the President from the traditional March 4th date.

Inaugural comes in heart of winter

Q. What is the number of the new congress and when will it convene?
A. The new congress will be the 75th and will be convened at noon on January 5.

Q. What are the party splits in each house?
A. In the senate there are 75 Democrats, 17 Republicans, 1 Independent, 1 Progressive and 2 Farmer-Laborites. In the house there are 334 Democrats, 89 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 5 Farmer-Laborites.

Q. What kind of support is President Roosevelt likely to have in congress?
A. Overwhelming, apparently. Re-election necessities of 1936 and the effect of increased Roosevelt prestige indicate any development of intra-party opposition to administration legislative policies probably will be slow.

Congress' support of President assured

Q. What cabinet members seem likely to remain?
A. While Mr. Roosevelt has given no indications, it is generally regarded that Cordell Hull, secretary of state; Henry Morgenthau, jr., secretary of the treasury; and Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, are certain to remain.

Q. Has business given any indication of what its attitude will be towards a second Roosevelt administration?
A. By inference only. Its spokesmen's comment on the Roosevelt re-election suggested acceptance of the New Deal as a fact for the next few years and a business policy of seeking to co-operate with Washington.

Q. Is there any reason to believe the supreme court's attitude towards New Deal measures will be influenced by President Roosevelt's re-election?
A. No.

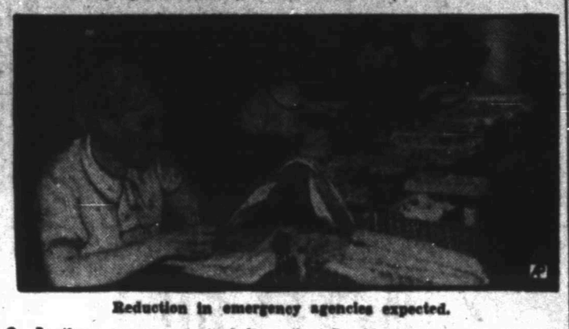

Q. Has President Roosevelt indicated that he will make an immediate effort to balance the budget?
A. At Hyde Park after the election, the President declared that he was "going back to Washington to try and balance the budget, thereby carrying out the first of the campaign pledges."

Q. What is likely to be done about Passamaquoddy and the Florida ship canal?
A. Representatives of Maine and Florida in congress are expected to press for the reopening of these projects with no likelihood that bills to that end would be vetoed by the President.

Q. What has been said about revival of the NRA or a 30-hour week movement?
A. In reply to Governor Landon during the campaign, President Roosevelt declared: "Of course, we will continue to seek to improve working conditions for the workers of America, to reduce hours overlong, to increase wages that spell starvation, to end the labor of children, to wipe out sweatshops. Of course, we will continue every effort to end monopoly in business, to support collective bargaining, to stop unfair competition, to abolish unfavorable trade practices. For all these we have only just begun to fight."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, says an immediate drive will be launched for White House support of an NRA alternative—the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill and the O'Mahoney licensing measure for industry.

Q. Is the civil service likely to be expanded?
A. Yes. President Roosevelt recommitted himself on that point in the campaign and will be less hampered by patronage demands in the new congress and the necessity of creating additional emergency agencies outside the civil service that marked his first term. Some emergency agencies already have been reduced.

Reduction in emergency agencies expected.

Q. Is there any reason to believe that President Roosevelt will seek constitutional amendments?
A. The 1936 Democratic platform, to which President Roosevelt has said "I heartily subscribe," declares that if national problems cannot be solved by legislation "within the Constitution" such clarifying amendments as may be found necessary will be sought.

Q. Is any change in supreme court membership likely in the near future?
A. Deaths or retirements may change the complexion of the court. Six justices are past the retirement age, including four of the five members described as conservatives.

Q. Is there any reason to anticipate inflation on the basis of President Roosevelt's statements?
A. No. The President early in his administration was given authority by congress to expand the currency but has never used it. The strategy behind the move was to remove the threat of inflationists in congress.

Q. Has President Roosevelt indicated that there will be any less experimentation in this administration?
A. No. In his last major campaign address he said he had "only just begun to fight" for the objectives aimed at by his first administration.

Q. Is there any reason to believe President Roosevelt may try for a third term?
A. No. If he has any such thoughts in his own mind he has kept them carefully concealed thus far.

Q. What tax revision is likely?
A. Revision of the 1936 revenue act imposts on undistributed corporation net profits. Rising tax yields due to business recovery and complaint that the tax hampers recovery combine to indicate such a revision.

Q. Will federal relief be continued in its present form?
A. Yes, at least until the effects of rising recovery on unemployment can be measured. The relief administration may, however, be merged under a consolidation program.

Man's Bloody Career Closed

Harry Singer Is Electrocuted Early Saturday In Chair At Indiana Prison; Sentenced In Three Murders

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 27 (AP)—A flip of an electric chair switch at Indiana state prison early today abruptly finished the bloody career of Harry Singer, 28, farm handy-man who had confessed four gruesome murders.

With no show of remorse or emotion the cynical slayer slumped into eternity at 12:14 a. m. (CST) after a Christmas day spent in grumbling, playing checkers and eating a fried chicken dinner.

The "last mile" walk from "death row" was uneventful. When summoned, Singer shrugged his shoulders and stared blankly ahead to the last chair in which he would sit.

Singer was sentenced to death for the murders of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Kaufman and their 12-year old daughter, Marjorie. Singer had been a helper on the Kaufman farm near Wabash. Bodies of the Kaufmans were found stuffed beneath a cow barn at the farm.

He also admitted killing Joseph Bryant, 20, of Detroit, Mich., during a holdup near Wabash in July, a few weeks before the triple murder, and implicated Kaufman in the Bryant slaying. The state police theorized that Singer killed the Kaufmans because he feared they "would squeal."

Aged Tahoka Man Suffers Injury; "Misses" A Chair

Attempting to seat himself to prevent falling, when affected by dizziness, S. M. Bean, 84, of Tahoka, Saturday afternoon suffered serious injuries when he "missed" a chair.

Striking the floor, he suffered fracture of the "upper third" of the right thigh. He was rushed to West Texas hospital for treatment, being admitted at 5:30 o'clock.

His condition early in the night was "fair," said a surgeon, who pointed out such injuries to persons Bean's age almost without exception are considered of "grave" import.

Automobile Accident Leads To Discovery Girl Is Boy; Simple Operation Performed

CARLISLE, Pa., Dec. 26. (AP)—Dr. W. Biard Stuart disclosed today an automobile accident led to discovery that Gretna Bobb, of Mt. Holly Springs, for 11 years reared and dressed as a girl, is a boy.

The surgeon said a simple operation after the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Grank Bobb was injured by an automobile a week before Christmas, revealed Gretna's true sex. Gretna's ankle was broken, and the surgeon made a physical examination at the same time he treated the ankle.

Now at home, awaiting rechristening as a boy, Gretna got a boy-style haircut and clothing. He is going back to the hospital in a few days for another operation.

"Gretna is very glad to be a boy," Gretna's jubilant father said, recalling that he had been concerned for years because his youngest had played roughly "more like a boy than a girl" and that recently the child's voice began changing.

Physicians assured the father his child would develop as a normal, healthy boy.

Zamora Charges His Two Sons "Trapped" Into Enlistment

PARIS, Dec. 26. (AP)—Niceto Alcala Zamora, former president of Spain, charged the Spanish Socialist government today with "trapping" his two sons for enlistment in the fight against Fascist insurgents.

In an open letter, Alcala Zamora asserted his sons—Luis, 24, and Jose, 23—had gone to Barcelona to enlist in the government militia after obtaining false passports from Spanish officials in Paris.

He declared the young men were drawn to Spain by offers of money and belief they were to form a university organization. Alcala Zamora said his sons were stopped by French border police at his request but later were allowed to proceed after representations by Spanish officials in France.

J. O. FORD IMPLEMENT CO.TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE FOR FARMERS IN THIS AREA AS PART OF JOHN DEERE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

"The Blacksmith's Gift", Hollywood Film Epic, Starring Monte Blue, To Be One Of Features Of All Day Program Jan. 4 Under Auspices Of J. O. Ford Implement Co.

J. O. Ford Implement Co., local implement dealers, will hold all day open house and an all day program of entertainment and educational features, on Jan. 4, 1937 to commemorate the John Deere Centennial.

The Blacksmith's Gift," a historic epic of American agriculture 100 years ago, will be one of the outstanding features of the day's program.

This remarkable picture is an all-Hollywood production, featuring Monte Blue, and that outstanding comedian of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," Fuzzy Knight, in a dramatic story of the early settlement of the West. It relates the story of a grave problem that threatened for a time to defeat the advance of the early settlers—and tells how one man met that difficulty with a solution which changed the course of American history.

In its gripping drama there is sentiment aplenty, but the loquacious Fuzzy Knight as a gossipy hanger-on offers a continuous run of comedy. Other leading parts are played by Arthur Aylesworth, Otis Harlan, Anne Hovey, John Marlowe, and Claire McDowell.

In addition to this feature production, three other pictures will be shown, including "From One Anvil," a sequel to "The Blacksmith's Gift," "Her Husband's Choice;" and a short news reel showing new developments in agricultural methods.

"Her Husband's Choice" is a sequel to "Sheppard & Son," shown last year. You'll see your old friends of former years—Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard; their son, Dick; their daughter, Phylis; her soon-to-be husband, George Barkley, and Jim Brady. It's the story of modern farm boy and girl planning to start in farming for themselves . . . their efforts to restore the family farm . . . their plans for tractors, implements, and crops . . . and how the desire for a tractor was satisfied in a very unusual way. This picture, packed with entertainment, is an education in modern farming methods as well.

Besides the entertainment features, the program of the day will include talks and demonstrations which will, in effect, be a short course in modern farming and J. O. Ford Implement Co. extends a cordial invitation to every farmer in this area to be present for a day of pleasure and profit.

"We especially want every farm boy who is interested in becoming a better farmer to be present," Mr. Vernice Ford said. "Much of the program will be of special interest to young people on the farm."

The hosts of the day plan to make this open house one of the big occasions of the season where farmers from every section may meet and get acquainted and exchange experiences. At the same time many new ideas which will make farm operations more profitable.

The open house this year is a part of the John Deere Centennial celebration; for it was in 1837, just 100 years ago, that John Deere gave to the world the steel plow. (Adv.)

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—War-fear speculative buying on a big scale rushed wheat values up 2¼ cents a bushel maximum today to heights unequalled since 1929.

Rye, corn and oats soared also to record peaks, responding to flurried action of wheat.

Strain over the European political crisis, together with indications of foreign purchasing today of Chicago future deliveries of wheat became speedily the dominant market influence, overshadowing all else.

At the close wheat was ¾ to 2¾ above Thursday's finish, December $1.41¾@1.41⅝, May 1.36⅝@1.36¾, July 1.19⅛@1.19⅜, corn ¼ to 1 cent up, Dec. 1.10@1.10⅛, May new 1.06⅛@1.06¼, July new 1.03⅝@1.03¾, oats ¼ to 1 cent advanced, May 51¾, and rye showing 1¾ to 2¼ bulge. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 5 cents off to 20 cents dearer.

Rye went skyward parallel with wheat, and at times rose faster and to a greater extent. All deliveries of rye sold at the topmost figures in seven years. Acreage seeded to rye in North Dakota was estimated as 24 per cent less than last year, with condition only 46 per cent of normal because of lack of moisture.

Provisions reflected upturns of grains. Lard outdid the season's previous highest prices.

Handwriting Evidence Results In Solution Of Extortion Plot

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26. (AP)—Handwriting evidence painstakingly gathered by department of justice agents was credited by them today with solving an extortion attempt against Miss Lillian Pierce of Danville, Ky., in September, 1935.

A 16-year-old Danville neighbor of Miss Pierce, Thomas Cecil, is under arrest as the alleged author of a note which demanded $250 on threats of death.

The youth, questioned at the time the letter was received last year, was released. Two nights ago he was taken into custody again at San Diego, Calif., when agents had finished work on a series of handwriting specimens.

John Hanson, chief of the federal bureau of investigation here, said Cecil confessed on Christmas day and will be returned to Louisville, Ky., for trial.

"Hangover" From Christmas Causes Work On Saturday

Postal officials and employes Saturday had a "hangover" from Christmas in the shape of about half of the Christmas packages received on Christmas day, which had been undelivered. Santa unexpectedly dumped into the laps of the local crew eight or nine truck-loads of packages.

Two extra trucks, with four men, worked both days delivering packages. Many people were not at home on the holiday.

Record was set here in handling of the mails for the holiday season.

Carriers were loaded down Saturday with mail that arrived on Friday. Letter mail both days was heavy. All mail that arrived up to late Thursday afternoon, was delivered, except letter mail.

Postmaster Amos Howard expressed gratification with the work of the local force in handling of the holiday mail.

FRENCH LEADER DIES

RIOM, France, Dec. 26. (AP)—Etienne Clementel, 72, former member of several French cabinets, died today.

New Mexico Girl Accident Victim

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Dec. 26. (AP)—A family in which Christmas joy was blotted out by tragedy made funeral arrangements today for Miss Maybelle White, 19, daughter of Fred White, Quay county sheriff.

Miss White, student at a Lubbock, Tex., business college, died Christmas afternoon from injuries suffered the night before when an automobile overturned.

Her three companions, Pat Bowen, Oklahoma university student; Miss Renee Nutt and Don Lemmon, escaped with minor injuries.

Girl Would Have Finished Course In Few Weeks

Miss White would have completed her course at Draughon's Business college within a few weeks, said E. C. Hatton, manager.

The young woman first registered in the college June, 1935, but dropped out. She recently re-entered the institution and was rooming at 1530 Avenue K when she left Lubbock to spend the Christmas holidays at home.

Lubbock's Needy Kiddies Are Happy On Christmas Morning

Approximately 1950 Underprivileged Children Of City Receive Gifts From Goodfellows At Yuletide

Approximately 1,950 underprivileged children were benefitted by the gifts distributed by the Goodfellows Christmas morning, according to a final check-up, a spokesman said yesterday.

All but 20 of the more than 600 sacks of gifts and toys were distributed. The undelivered sacks were taken by the committee in charge to the fire station. From there the toys will probably be given to a charitable organization for salvaging, the spokesman said.

Practically all the money which amounted to approximately $900 donated by Goodfellows was spent in purchasing toys and candy for the underprivileged. If any of the funds are left after all bills have been paid, the money will be saved for next year's expenditures of the Goodfellows, the spokesman added.

Others Make Donations

Besides the toys and candy purchased by money obtained through cash donations, other toys and candy were given by persons and stores. Each underprivileged child under 14 years of age who was listed by the Goodfellows also received two "shiny nickels."

Thirteen children at two juvenile schools of Lubbock were also remembered by the Goodfellows in their distribution of gifts Friday. About 60 gallons of milk were given to underprivileged children through the courtesy of the dairies of the town.

It was estimated that more than 1,000 persons assisted in the Goodfellow movement. That does not include the donors of cash and toys and candy. Services of about 250 cars were volunteered and helped in distributing the sacks Friday. Only 100 had been called for.

Many old toys had been repaired by WPA laborers at the Works Progress administration workshop.

Holiday Party Ends In Death

Prominent East Texas Civic And Church Leader Killed In Shooting; Former Newspaperman Is Held

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 26 (AP)—Mrs. William McKinney, prominent in East Texas civic and church affairs, was dead today, the victim of a shooting which brought a Christmas day family party to a tragic ending.

The shooting, in which the 51-year-old woman's husband was wounded in the leg, occurred at the McKinney country home three miles south of Jacksonville.

Man Is Jailed

Y. A. McGowan, 35, former husband of Louise Beall, 22, a niece of Mrs. McKinney, was placed in jail at Rusk, County Attorney Emerson Stone said a charge of assault with intent to murder was filed against McGowan before Mrs. McKinney died.

The prosecutor said McGowan, a former Jacksonville newspaperman, recently completed a 90-day jail sentence on a charge of aggravated assault on his former wife.

Stone said Mr. and Mrs. McKinney were wounded with buckshot fired from an automatic shotgun, and Mrs. McKinney died in a hospital four hours later. She was wounded in the breast and right thigh.

Party Interrupted

The county attorney said witnesses told him McGowan entered the home through a rear door, interrupted the party and ordered the guests to line up. He said he was informed the shooting followed a few minutes later.

Stone said McGowan was arrested after he was overpowered and a shotgun and a pistol were taken from him by members of the dinner party.

Included among the McKinneys' guests were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Beall, parents of Louise Beall, the Rev. M. L. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church of Athens, and Hank McKinney, 13-year-old son of the slain woman. Beall is postmaster here.

Stone said Mr. Fuller was not present during the shooting, but had left the house and called officers when he heard the shots. The prosecutor said he would obtain complete statements from the witnesses today.

H. L. Russie's Wish Is To Be Granted; Body To Be Taken To Eastland For Burial; Shot Self Christmas Day

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LEVELLAND, Dec. 26. — H. L. Russie's expressed wish not to be buried "on this hateful prairie" will be granted by members of the farmer's family who are sending his body to Eastland for interment.

Russie, after declaring in a penciled note that he was homeless and "in the way of every one" shot himself in the head with a .410 shotgun at his home 6 miles south of Roundup Christmas day.

Wife Finds Body

Body of Russie, about 60, was found by Mrs. Russie at 6 p. m. Friday when she returned home after spending the day with her son, Dewey Russie, in Hockley county.

Sheriff Clarence W. Davis said the note contained:

"Dear ones—My time has come. So I concluded to end my life. I am merely in the way of every one. Please don't grieve over me and please don't bury me on this hateful prairie. You will find the pocketbook in my box containing $124.15. So goodbye to all, will all meet in heaven some day. I am homeless here on earth, but will be at rest. Your loving father. Goodbye."

Inquest verdict of suicide was given by Justice of the Peace B. W. Taylor of Levelland.

The shotgun evidently had been placed against Russie's right temple.

Junior Eclipse Of Moon Is Scheduled Sunday Afternoon

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26. (AP)—The moon will enter the penumbral shadow of the earth tomorrow at 2:52 p. m. (C. S. T.), resulting in an appulse or junior eclipse of the moon, the Franklin Institute said today.

This partial eclipse of the moon occurs only about 12 times in a century, the institute said.

The moon, in an ordinary eclipse, enters the umbral or black shadow of the earth, making it invisible to observers in the dim light of the penumbral shadow, provided the weather is clear.

New Series Of Broadcasts Will Be Started Over Station KFYO Monday

Even if the old-fashioned party-line telephone is fast becoming a thing of the past, the KFYO radio audience can still enjoy its peculiar delights, thanks to "The Monticello Party Line," a new kind of radio program that begins a series of daily broadcasts on KFYO, Monday morning, December 28th, at 10 o'clock.

Although this program is new to station KFYO, it is not new on the air. "The Monticello Party Line" has been broadcast on other stations from coast to coast for the past year and, in that time, has become one of the most popular morning radio features. The sponsors are the makers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Plot And Good Humor

There's plot and good humor in "The Party Line" programs, but nothing in the story ever gets far away from every-day possibility. The characters in the show are "plain people," real human beings, warm and sympathetic.

The plot is carried forward, almost entirely through the use of the party-line telephone, by Lorie Ellis, the young and charming Monticello telephone operator.

"The Monticello Party Line" comes to KFYO listeners as a proved and tested radio show that has already delighted thousands of radio fans. Those who tune in the first episode on Monday morning, at 10 o'clock, will easily be able to follow the story.

Bridge Fan Shot
Understanding Aid Cuts Sentence

WARSAW, Dec. 26. (AP)—Joseph Illias got so excited by the bad playing of his bridge partner, Jan Bartlomiejzyk, that he drew his revolver from his hip pocket and fired at him.

Though the wound was superfical, the lower court of Lodz condemned Illias to three years imprisonment.

Illias appealed and engaged a Wadsaw attorney renowned for his skill at bridge.

The lawyer understood the condition of Illias caused by the terrible mistakes of Bartlomiejczyk, and defended his cause so well that the court of appeals here reduced the sentence to a nominal one.

Texas Values Receive Hike

Increase Over Figure Received In 1935 Is Reported By U. S. Department; Lower Yields Per Acre Noted

AUSTIN, Dec. 26 (AP)—The U. S. department of agriculture estimated today the value of Texas crops this year was $384,052,000 or 5.5 per cent over the revised 1935 value of $364,137,000.

The department announced an increase of 199,000 acres in crops harvested and generally higher prices which more than offset lower yields per acre. The estimated increased income for Texas farmers did not include value of livestock nor money received through soil conservation agreements.

Prices Are Higher

Yields per acre of all crops, excepting wheat and Irish potatoes, were below those of 1935, the department said, the combined yield per acre of all crops being 89 per cent of the 10-year average compared with 104 per cent last year.

Prices per unit were higher in 1936 than 1935 for all field crops except cowpeas, which were down slightly, and syrups which remained the same.

Corn declined in both acreage and yield per acre, preliminary estimates showing 63,915,000 bushels compared with 90,324,000 last year. Poor quality of much of the crop resulted in 158,000 acres utilized for pasture, forage and silage, a higher than usual percentage.

Heavy Abandonment

Hot, dry weather again resulted in heavy abandonment and low yields of wheat. Abandonment amounted to 51 per cent of 5,062,000 acres sown, and yield was placed at 7.7 bushels per acre compared with 7 last year. Production was slightly less than half the five-year average.

Oats yield per acre was placed at 18.5 bushels compared with 23 last year and 26.1 for the 10-year-average.

A drastic decline from last year was noted in sorghum acreage, the 1936 production estimated at 31,711,000 bushels comparing with 60,675,000.

The estimate of 118 pounds per acre forecast a total production of 1,945,000 bales of cotton compared with 2,956,000 last year and 4,580,000 for an average production from 1928 to 1932.

Acreage for wheat sown for 1937 harvest was estimated at 5,315,000, an increase of 5 per cent above seedings last fall and 35 per cent over a five-year (1927-31) average.

Community Center And Church In Negro Section Is Sought

Promotion of a church and community center for The Flats, negro quarter, is the goal of J. W. Hutchinson, negro minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, he said here yesterday.

Hutchinson said he hoped to obtain a plot of land near the negro high school and to construct there a building which will be used for church services, for the direction of a health program, and for community education.

The minister said he had the support of a group of negroes and white persons.

Southern Negro Going To College After 50 Vivid Years And He Has The College Swinging To Rhythms

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—Huddie Lead Belly, personification of the fabled John Henry—"Ahm a natural man an' ma feet won't touch da grouun' "—is going to college after fifty vivid years, and he's got the college swinging with him to the rhythms of the southland.

Lead Belly, big and black, born Ledbetter in the swamp lands of Louisiana, plays a 12-string guitar, sings 500 "hollers" and work songs, spirituals and blues, lots of them written by himself.

Pardoned For Murder

He sings so well, and plays so well, and dances so well that two governors, Pat M. Neff, of Texas, and O. K. Allen, of Louisiana, pardoned him for murder after seeing and hearing him. His songs have been published. Now he's sung his way into the ballad department of New York university, and he's strutted his stuff for Harvard students.

At 12 he ran away from his mammy in Mooringsport, La., and took up with a "stoney hill" gal in Shreveport, and he sings:

"When ah leaves yo,' gal, tell 'em Lead Belly been here so they knows the worst."

Strongest Man Around

When he killed a man in Texas, and went to the state penitentiary for 30 years, he was "A-1 man in de fields, strongest man aroun'," and he led choruses:

"When you send me a letter, send it by mail.
"Address it all over—that Houston jail."

This won the Texas pardon:

"I am your servant, composes this song.
"Please, Governor Neff, let me go home
"I know my wife would jump and shout
"When the train rolled up and I came jumping out."

Man Who Kidnaped Driver Of Beaumont Taxi Being Sought

HOUSTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Rufus Kilpatrick, Beaumont cab driver, reported to police today he was kidnaped there by a "red-headed young man" last night and forced to drive to Houston, where the fare took the cab and gave the driver 2 pistols and a diamond ring in payment for the ride.

Kilpatrick said he picked the man up in Beaumont and after visiting two hotels was ordered to drive to Houston.

Kilpatrick quoted the man as saying:

"I've just left a prison farm and I think I'll head for California. They're not going to get me alive."

The cab was found here this morning. Kilpatrick said the man told him his car would be found here.

Store Robbed Of Money Saturday

FORT WORTH, Dec. 26 (AP)—Two night employes of the Carl Fine grocery were held up and the store robbed of between $550 and $575 this morning.

"This is a stickup. Get your heads down on the floor," the robber said as he walked through the back door and leveled a pistol at the clerks.

F. G. Rumsey, and Carl Rowland, the employes, told police the man rifled two cash registers and kicked over a lard can in which some money had been hidden.

Eastern Section Of County's Wheat Acreage Is Increased

Informal Parties Mark Year's Final Week-End

The Woman's Angle

by Margaret Turner

HIGHLIGHTS in the story of 1936 as remembered by the Woman's Angle.

At 11:55 p. m. January 20, Lord Dawson of Penn turned from a sick bed at Sandringham to the Prince of Wales and said: "Your Majesty, your father is dead." And thus passed, early in the year, a man of whom John Masefield said was "king in England's direst need."

A man who spoke in a guttural tone, when he spoke at all, was electrocuted after a last minute reprieve in punishment for the "crime of the century;" the antics of a senator were forgotten following his jump from an office building and an election year made it like old times to read the newspapers.

WHAT WE READ

HOSTESSES steered talking to such books as George Santayana's "The Last Puritan," "It Can't Happen Here," Sinclair Lewis and Mary Astor's diary. And an Atlanta housewife novelist, Margaret Mitchell, kept us awake night after night as we followed the story of "Gone With the Wind."

This year our humming and whistling has gone from that awful "Music Goes Round and Around" thing to "Lost," "Take My Heart," "Pennies From Heaven," "A Fine Romance," and now "The Organ Grinder's Swing."

BABIES, BABIES

INTEREST in babies during the year ran a scale from a humble home in Canada where a son was born to a family known over the world for five young daughters, to a Canadian stork derby that was finished to a boy born to one of the richest women in the world, Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton.

FAMOUS ONES DIED

THE death toll of persons who had carved a niche for their names on the wall of fame was high. Lost to the world was that pee., Rudyard Kipling, who was not made England's poet laureate because Queen Victoria could neither forget nor forgive his thrust in the "Tommies and Widow of Windsor" incident. Serge of the "Marrying Mdivanis" died following an accident on a polo field; one of the handsomest exgovernors in the United States, Albert Ritchie of Maryland, died as did the gentle-humored Chic Sale, the incomparable sculptor Taft and the Russian novelist Maxim Gorky.

This year has seen the passing S. Parkes Cadman, famed preacher; of Lord Allenby, who won honor and distinction during the World War; of Mrs. Anne Macy, who was eyes, ears and part-time speech for the world-famous Helen Keller and of Marilyn Miller, whose twinkling toes were responsible for the popularity of the Follies years ago.

Four queens of transportation on land and sea and in the air, the Zephyr, China Clipper, Hindenberg and Queen Mary set new records.

WE LIST SOME "MOSTS"

PERSONALLY, one of our greatest pleasures this year was our fan mail. The most impressive sight, New York City at night; most depressing, The Leviathan, once the fastest ship afloat, now rotting at a Hoboken pier; most inspiring, the morning sunlight flooding the windows in Riverside church; most impressive ahrine, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier; saddest note, a letter beginning "My Mother died this morning."

The best philosophy we heard expressed by a former co-worker who advised that one should wait for life and take it gracefully instead of rushing out to meet it and crowding it.

The poem that we liked the best appeared in a popular magazine, written by Edgar R. Ward of Sapulpa.

"Let me not remember the night
With its shadows and stars,
Or day with its dawn and dusk,
Or life with its scars,
Let me not remember living—
But, oh, eternally,
Let me remember my dreams:
They hold no grief for me."

Now Might Be Right Time To Lay In Year's Store

BY NEA SERVICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—1937's January White Sales really are white. There's plenty of gay decoration and edging and you can get colored sheets, guest towels and table linens, if you insist; but the smartest shops feature more plain white ones than in many seasons.

Bath towels are the one exception. Unless you have a bathroom with colored tiling, in which case you'll want your towels to be white, look at the new, bright ones in stripes and other bold geometric patterns. Preferred shades for women are turquoise, peach and nile green. Gray, beige, wine, sand and brown for men. To be ultra smart, have the monogram on your own towels match the color of your husband's, and vice versa.

Remember that a good bath towel is one which creates friction and is most absorbent. Regardless of how pretty they may be, don't replenish your linen closet with slippery, smooth-surfaced types that get wet in two seconds. You might like to try one of the new turkish rub-down towels. These have linen loops running through them and are wonderful circulation stimulators.

National Council Sponsors Three-Year Campaign To Correct Unsound Buying Plans Followed By Women

BY MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Staff

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—Too many women select a can of fruit simply because the label is pretty, judge fabric by its color rather than quality and think more about the upholstery than the engine and safety devices when buying an automobile.

This was the opening gun of the National Council of Women's Forum, which marks the beginning of a 3-year campaign of education for the consumer. The campaign will reach its climax when the 1939 World's Fair opens with an exhibit that will present consumer problems in dramatic fashion. By that time, the Council hopes, all buyers of all commodities will be well acquainted with the answer to each problem.

"Broadly speaking, the less efficient of women shoppers can be divided into about five categories," says Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, Chairman of Consumer Interests of the National Council of Women.

"First, there is the emotional buyer, the type that falls easy victim to glamorous advertising. She purchases primarily by looks. She's the woman who wants an automobile because the body is streamlined—not because there are any worthwhile features beneath the hood.

"Second on the list, and equally injudicious, is the bargain sale buyer. She falls for the 98-cent article in the belief that she is getting a rare bargain because it is marked under a dollar. The item may be worth only 96 cents, however. She must be taught to examine the merchandise more carefully than the sales ticket.

"Another is bulk rather than weight conscious. She, of course, has to be taught to read labels. Then she will know how many pounds of fruit are in the can she selects and can compare the price of it with other varieties which weigh less or more."

The fourth classification, according to the National Council, has the most members—women who know nothing whatsoever about quality and standards. From now on manufacturers and retailers are going to be urged to label their products more adequately. The buyers will be told what to look for and manufacturers are supposed to have it where they can find it if they look.

The fifth group includes the woman who buys haphazardly, spasmodically and with no practical eye toward suitability. She gets a red hat, then, after she gets home, is frantic because she hasn't a thing to wear with it. Even though all of her coats are black and her dresses black or colors that can be worn with it, she will buy a pair of brown shoes simply because they are on sale. She has a drawer full of accessories which will never be worn. She never plans a complete

Park Service Extends Work

Work Of Development Being Planned In Many Sections Of State; CCC Will Do Most Of The Labor

AUSTIN, Dec. 26 (AP)—William J. Lawson, secretary to the state parks board, said today a master plan for 35 parks and 14 approved sites had been approved by the national park service, department of the interior.

The plan programs work of development in each park, the bulk of which is done by the Civilian Conservation corps.

Picnic areas, road systems, clubhouses, beaches at lakes, swimming pools, rental cottages and even golf courses were included in the improvement plan. Many of the state's wildfowl sanctuaries are in the parks.

Sizes Are Varied

The parks range from 500 to 15,000 acres in area, title to the land being held by the state board and the federal government expending approximately $100 to the state's $1 for development. Texas appropriated $300,000 for the biennium ending Aug. 31, 1936, which was used for administration and supervision purposes only.

Lawson said revenue from cottages, club houses and amusements was used for improvements in parks where it was produced.

Metropolitan parks include Bachman-White Rock at Dallas, Lake Worth at Fort Worth, Tyrrell park at Beaumont, Lake Abilene at Abilene and Goliad state park at Goliad.

Other parks are Bastrop, Tyler, Daingerfield, Fort Parker, Mother Neff, Brownwood, Balmorhea, Big Bend, Kerrville, Garner, Longhorn Cavern, Palo Duro, Palmetto, Lockhart, Mackenzie, Cleburne, Paris and Buescher.

Buying Methods

wardrobe before she buys individual items. She mixes her color schemes so several of her dresses can't be worn with her one winter coat.

Mrs. Schrader believes that the National Council's big job is to cure consumers' inferiority complexes by showing them not how important their buying function is, but what a big contribution they make to the welfare of the country as a whole when they perform it intelligently.

The Council has no intention of telling women what to buy or where to buy it. Their idea is to give the consumer information which, if assimilated, will enable her to know what she is getting, what she should pay for it, how long it will wear.

For instance, the leaders behind the movement contend that imitation Oriental rugs are perfectly all right, but that no consumer should buy one under the impression that it will last as long or give the service which can be expected from a genuine Oriental. The fur coat shopper will have a chance to acquaint herself with the facts that Hudson seal is muskrat with the guard hairs plucked out; that lapin is shaved rabbit, and so on.

"All of us know that most of the merchandise on the market is manufactured to cater to women's tastes," Mrs. Schrader says. "After all, they buy 85 per cent of the goods sold in this country. Men may send the checks for the big, new cars, shipped out in the spring, but it is the women who pick them out.

"Incidentally, we intend to tie our consumer education plans in with those of the highway safety campaigns. We believe women can be made to see that shatterproof panes in the windows and adequate brakes are more important than the color of the cigarette lighter or the knob on the gear shift."

To Get Trophy

Wendell Smith, above, Eagle Boy Scout in Troop 45 at Brownfield, has been announced the National Boys' Life Senior Golf Champion in the United States. He won the same honor last year. He will receive a large silver trophy at a special program in Brownfield in March.

Winners were decided upon basis of records kept by authorized officials in the home towns of the entrants. The Scout is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of Brownfield. He is a five-year veteran scout and has started his first year's work at Southern Methodist university at Dallas.

Linens For '37

ialized designers are creating new ones as they go along.

Smaller-than-ever monograms are decidedly in vogue. There is a preference for hand embroidered ones, freed from the prescribed form of the circle, square and triangle. Also, there are those which are adapted to the type of the room, and to the individual. For example, a feminine French bathroom requires a fancy monogram. And a modern bathroom must have modernistic initials of the small letter variety.

The desire for a bright outlook on the day is fulfilled by the "psychological" breakfast set. This means linen with plenty of color. Bristling crash linens in rust, yellow and brown, red and blue, green and yellow, in stripes and plaids are just the thing.

One set is bright canary yellow with "good morning" embroidered in brown in the corner. Another is done in Mexican motif. The cloth is natural in color, and in the center sits a Mexican dressed in a bright red bolero and a yellow sombrero. The napkins have a sombrero in one corner.

Flowery Luncheon Cloths

Daintiness and fine linens are principal features of the luncheon set. Some have tiny clusters of flowers embroidered at intervals all over the cloth. Others have a large basket of flowers in the center, and old-fashioned bouquets in the corners. Still others have large flowers such as tulips, poppies, marigolds and the like with long stems and leaves.

Designers have let their imaginations run wild when it comes to cocktail and tea party napkins. These napkins come by the dozen, and there is a different poker hand embroidered on each napkin.

Another style—principally for the guest who mistakes his napkin for his handkerchief—is one with the inscription "return to Babs and Bob," or whatever the names of the owners may be, embroidered in one corner.

from Lou to Louella . . .

DEAR Louella: It's mighty hard to write a letter so soon after Christmas, especially when I have only partially recovered from the excitement of it all.

The other night, before Christmas, I went to bed very late. The night was one of those still, crisp moonlight ones. I was wide awake wondering if Santa again was going to overlook my shortcomings.

Ah, The Chimes!

Suddenly I became aware of an indescribable peacefulness. Sifting through a partially open window were strains of an organ and chimes concert of Christmas music. It might have been coming from London at that hour.

I started to get up and turn on my radio the better to hear it, but I was too peaceful to move. I preferred listening from the distance. I went to sleep to the tune of "Silent Night", the most beautiful carol of them all.

THE Ayers-Betts wedding was lovely. I believe it was the most solemn ceremony I ever attended. It was my first wedding at the First Presbyterian church where the organ, indirect lighting and Dr. Jack M. Lewis added to the impressiveness of it all.

Mrs. John Lea Ackley of Waxahachie played. Marion walked down the aisle in her wedding last spring. I remember what a beautiful dress and huge picture hat Marion had for the occasion.

Not Predicted Here

The Ayers-Betts affair was not one of the weddings predicted in my letters. When Marion and Ross failed to take off last summer I gave them up. I was the last to suspect, and incidentally the last to learn, that they were planning matrimony this soon.

At the Sub-Deb coffee Wednesday morning I sat by Carrie Jane Thomas and Ernesteen Lockhart who were engaged in a little gossip. I sat close enough to detect that something interesting was in the air but too far away to find out what. I heard them say that somebody or other was married last Saturday night and I think I caught the name but I am not sure. I think I better check up on the situation before passing the news along.

I'M always getting in trouble over things I write to you. I have hardly a friend left after my last few letters. People have got to where they quit talking when I come around. They say "Be careful, she'll write that to Louella". Honestly, you have a terrible reputation around here.

I don't write you everything I know. My friends who get offended ought to appreciate that, don't you think?

Seeing Frank Tolbert at home during the holidays reminded me of something I read about him in the Wichita Falls paper (for which he is sports editor). The paper was boasting that he is the youngest editor in Texas. I'd venture that he is one of the most talented in Texas.

Have You Heard This?

I've been hearing about a log cabin den at 2221 Twenty-fifth street. One of these days I am going out and make the acquaintance of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis, and ask them to show me around. I've heard it is very clever.

Mrs. J. F. Gregory sent to me a Christmas greeting from the Philippines which included a lovely handmade hand towel of native grass linen. The greeting and gift both bespoke the sunshine that I've always associated with the Philippines.

I gave the stamp to young Billy Jackson who collects stuff like that.

DO you remember Bob McCall who used to work here? He sent word that he is a proud father. The object of his boastfulness was a girl, born December 19, named Patricia.

Reading the Midland Reporter-Telegram the other day I noticed a three column tribute to Mrs. J. H. Goodman whose scrapbook revealing a most interesting life of literary and other accomplishments was seen by an enterprising reporter. It said she was "one of the most distinctive additions to Midland citizenry in the past year, moving here from Lubbock a year ago in July with her husband."

Honestly this has been the best Christmas! I may be sadly fooled, but I really believe the Goodfellows and other charitable organizations reached every destitute family in town. My own enjoyment was simple but heart felt. I think it takes a lot more than money to make the holiday one that will be long remembered.

Yours, Lou.

Here's One Secret Ambition That We Would Like To See Filled Ourselves

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26—The secret ambition of "One Take" Van Dyke is to direct Garbo in a comedy. He's sure she'd be a marvelous comedienne.

Van Dyke

"One Take" is W. S. Van Dyke, whose name has appeared on more pictures this year than that of any other major director. He has made five successful films this year and 10 consecutively. The eleventh one back was "Laughing Boy." Of it, Van says: "It didn't jell."

Van Dyke has fewer theories about making pictures and more success than any other director Ask him what his formula is, and he says: "It's just a matter of building up each scene until it will produce a definite emotional reaction from the audience." If rules get in the way of making entertainment, he forgets the rules.

ALONG the local grapevine one hears that James Stewart, the pride of Indiana, Pa., is not so greatly appreciated on his home studio lot as he might be, considering the excellent impression he has made in the various roles assigned to him.

James Stewart

This may be because that lot is the studio domicile of the year's outstanding comet, Robert Taylor, in whose glittering wake less meteoric box office attainments might be slighted.

Whatever the cause, Stewart now is in a fair way to remedy this. He is on loan to play the role of Chico in "Seventh Heaven" opposite Simone Simon. And movie history has only to repeat itself, as well-behaved history should, to send Stewart to the top—if "Born to Dance" does not turn that trick for him in advance.

Flattered But Worried

TYRONE Power was invited to escort his boss' wife (because the boss was busy) to a night club. He was flattered, but worried. For the first time in his life, he was worried about his dancing ability.

Tyrone Power

"Mrs. Zanuck is such a good dancer, and I'm such an indifferent one," Power lamented. "I dance like I do everything else—just so-so."

The young actor was being honest or modest—we won't quibble—but there's one thing that isn't "so-so" with him, and that's his screen career.

Problem In Love

OLIVIA DeHavilland does not want to get married, but she sometimes wishes she could fall in love—because it would make her movie work simpler.

OLIVIA DE HAVILAND

"If it became known that I had lost my heart to a young man I'm sure it would be a great comfort to the directors who must guide me through love scenes," she explained hastily. "As it is now, they all think I know nothing about the emotions of love and a great deal of time is spent in trying to make me understand how I should act in the hero's arms."

She probably was referring to Archie Mayo, who is directing her in "Call It a Day," and who confesses he worries about love scenes in which a young actress, inexperienced amorously, has to take part.

Meanwhile Olivia insists that, with her, it must be "love at first sight"—or nothing.

"Until that kind of love comes I'll have to continue to be a problem," she said. "Sometimes I hope it will come soon—if only for my directors' sake!"

JACKETS POPULAR AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Bolero jackets have staged a "come-back" in mid-season fashions. They vary all the way from the extremely short type, trimmed in Dalmatian embroidery, gold-braided loops and velvet, to somewhat longer, plain-colored jackets edged in printed silks. Designers predict great popularity for them in the spring.

Hitler "System"

By equally grotesque counterpropaganda he fires both the fears and hopes of the German people. Soviet Russia is pictured as a dealy enemy whose growing power is in the hands of Jews, although the execution and banishment of such Jews as Zinoviev and Trotsky belie the picture painted for Germans. It is enough for Hitler's purpose if they believe him—and nobody in Germany is permitted to express a doubt.

Hitler's pubic aims are no longer a war of revenge against France, with recovery of Alsace and Lorraine as an added incentive. He now demands colonies and territorial expansion, carefully avoiding mention of the specific regions he covets. Thus he is free to plan war against Soviet Russia, if the iron dice of destiny should fall that way, or against the feeble states to the southwestward; or perhaps he can fight for colonial expansion during a war arising from the clash of communism and fascism in Spain. For his purposes he finds it expedient to steel his people against the world in general.

Blum Disappoints Hitler

The course pursued by Premier Blum of France has been a great disappointment to Hitler. If France had been plunged into communism and lost the cooperation of Great Britain, Hitler might have decided to strike. But Blum has held down the communists, maintained good relations with Britain, and avoided the pitfall of Spain. French defenses are strong enough to give pause to any assailant, and thus far she has held her satellite allies intact against the blandishments of German agents in Rumania and Jugoslavia. Czechoslovakia, firm ally of France, has been preparing to resist a German onslaught. The Czech forces could be raised to 500,000 superior fighting men within three weeks, and in their mountains they could hold in check for a while, at least, any aggressor. An attack upon Czechoslovakia by Hitler would bring counterattacks upon his flanks by Soviet Russia and France.

Although German war preparations are supposed to be far advanced, they are not believed to be sufficient to cope with the combinations that would confront them. Diplomatic fishing in troubled waters may continue while Germany acquires greater land, sea and air forces. But inasmuch as other powers are arming also, any development, domestic or international, deemed adverse to others may be seized upon by Hitler as the signal for war.

Yodeling Helpers Are In Demand

VIENNA, Dec. 26. (AP)—Almost everybody who is out of a job in Austria is practicing yodeling.

The reason is the foreign demand for yodelers. An employment agency in Holland telegraphed that it could place 20 young and attractive waitresses who could yodel. The required number was chosen from 270 candidates.

Other foreign agencies asked for men who could yodel and drive an automobile; 58 such were named.

HOLIDAY FOODS FESTIVE

Make your food look festive for the holiday season. For a buffet supper on New Year's Eve there is cold sliced baked ham. First, bake the ham which your butcher has deboned. When it is cool, apply an icing made of gelatin and mayonnaise, mixed together and allowed to cool. Put it on in just the same manner that you frost a cake. When the coating is hard, write the inscription "Happy New Year" in a bright color.

HAMPER WELCOME GIFT

A nice gift that anyone will appreciate is a basket of your own preserves. Just take a half dozen or so of your prettiest and most delicious ones, tie gay bows of red ribbon around the tops, and put them in a wicker container. Then tie another bow on the handle of the basket and insert a card.

Scientific Mopper

College Lad Gauges Broom Pushing

CHICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Martin F. Young, student at the University of Chicago, mops floors to help pay his tuition costs—but he is no mere mop pusher. He has reduced the thing to scientific equation and sets forth his theories on kinetic energy consumed in the job in an article on mopping technic.

Less intelligent moppers, Young observes, push the mop to the end of each stroke and have to hang on to stop it before reversing direction. This, he says, is wasted energy. A less vigorous, circular motion is preferable.

The chief value of mopping, Young says philosophically, "is the spiritual value the moppers themselves get out of it."

FOR HOT PUDDINGS

Fruit puddings may be reheated by steaming them for half an hour in a tightly-covered double boiler. They may also be steamed for the same length of time in the cans or molds in which they were baked. Plum or suet puddings, especially, are best served hot.

It has been estimated that of the world's 3,000,000 lepers, only 2 per cent are confined in leprosariums.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES

Christmas cookies can be worked out in amusing designs. An outline of Santa with a pack on his back may be traced on dough. After baking, the pack may be "filled" with toys fashioned of bits of candy gumdrops held in place by a tiny bit of icing. Features on Santa's face may be traced on the baked cookies by the use of a small wood pick on which frostings of various colors are applied. Raisins, nuts and figs may also be utilized.

ON his way to Washington with a plan for old age pensions for all over 21, Albert S. Falk, of Wheaton Minnesota, is hitchhiking across the country. The Falk proposal has the pretentious, eclectic, synthetic title, "Pension Dividend Social Justice for Everyone" plan.

Proving the superiority of the PDSJE scheme over all other squirrel-food schemes, Falk charges that old age enrichment visions of the standard runabout type have the disadvantage that their benefits begin at age 65. Only about 10 per cent of the population, he says, ever attain that age. So he is to have old age benefits come to all who reach their majority.

If the party, which may be expected to form rapidly around Falk's standards, also advocates abolishing child labor, we may hope to arrive at an ideal arrangement whereby nobody at all will work and all will live happily at the expense of the Government, consuming the products of our idleness.

Falk asserts that his is a plan to end all pension plans. There may ge glimmer of hope of returning sanity in that slogan.

Although that may make Doctor Townsend and both his remaining supporters pretty mad!

WALLY IN WAX

Wallis Warfield Simpson has achieved at least one step toward historical immortality: Her effigy in wax takes its place among other likenesses of greatness in the celebrated Madame Tussaud's museum in London. When of a sudden recently all England began to read in English newspapers the answer to their whispered question, "Who is Mrs. Simpson?" the museum officials got the idea that there might be some popular interest in the lady from Baltimore.

Did they get busy! In 10 days they had Wally, a "living likeness," all dolled up in a crimson evening gown. And, believe it or not, she is to stand just around the corner from a royal group which includes King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor.

The famous collection of wax figures of celebrities was founded in London in 1802 by Marie Gresholz Tussaud, a native of Switzerland. The original collection, containing many historic figures modeled by Madame Tussaud herself, was destroyed by fire in 1926, but has been restored and is a great attraction for tourists.

AIR FUTURES

When Igor I. Sikorsky pictured an airplane of the future weighing a million pounds and capable of carrying 1,000 passengers he was straining the practicalities. Such a flying machine in his opinion is mechanically possible. But from an economic viewpoint—well, that is another story which in Sikorsky's opinion lacks possibilities.

What this veteran builder of air machines does predict "confidently" is that land planes and flying weighing 100,000 to 200,000 pounds will be in operation or under construction in the next five years. "We can have airplanes so steady that even water in a glass would not be spilled in rough air," he declared.

In view of the China Clippers and those other ships of the air which we are told are in almost immediate contemplation, the Sikorsky prediction has few elements of surprise.

HOUSE-BUILDING PROSPECTS

The coming year may bring the building of 425,000 new houses in this country. That is an estimate made by the Johns-Manville statistical research department to be published in the forthcoming issue of American Builder.

That much activity in the building business alone would mean a lot of prosperity. But the building industry never keeps its benefits to itself. Everybody knows that moving into a new house meets a lot of demands besides those of the builders. Every room from cellar to attic calls for new things.

When the revival of building is general, prosperity is in full swing.

We can't understand what some autoists are driving at.

Spain's war seems every bit as mild as its influenza.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Unto thee will I cry, O Lord my rock; be not silent to me; lest, if thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit.

Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands toward the holy oracle.—Psalms XXVIII; 1-3.

Greetings!

THE NEW BOOKS

John C. Miller Handles Sam Adams Rather Roughly In Biography Of Early American Patriot; "Borzoi Reader" Crammed With Variety; Billy Ralston's Life Portrayed In Book

"SAM ADAMS: Pioneer In Propaganda," by John C. Miller; (Little, Brown, Boston).

IF you have pictured the fathers of the American Revolution as saintly and dignified gentlemen who never got their hands dirty or told any lies, it might do you good to read "Sam Adams: Pioneer in Propaganda," by John C. Miller.

Sam Adams was a schemer, an agitator, a conniver, a politician—and an everlasting patriot. He started to agitate against British rule at a time when not one American in a hundred saw anything particularly oppressive in it; he did not stop until every friend of England had been either silenced or driven from the country.

Made The Revolution

More than any other one man, Sam Adams made the Revolution. And he did it—as Mr. Miller makes abundantly clear—by using every weapon on which he could lay his hands.

He was willing to fight foul, to hit below the belt, to tamper with the truth, and to outrage the finer instincts of almost all the best people; he never gave up, and in the end he won.

Made It Mass Rising

It was Adams who made the revolt against England a mass rising against economic injustice. He stirred up the common people and sold the Revolution to them; he made their effort effective by organizing the invaluable committees of correspondence; he staged the Boston Tea Party—and, apparently, the Boston "Massacre" as well.

He was, all in all, about as capable a master of propaganda as the world has ever seen.

The latter part of his life was rather dismal. He was no statesman; by 1776 his contribution had been made, and the rest of his career was inept and more or less futile. But the first part of it was priceless to the cause of American independence.

For A Lonely Island

"BORZOI READER," (Alfred A. Knopf, New York).

IF a person were to get himself cast on a lonely island with the one stipulation that he be given a single book to comfort him in his solitude, he probably would think of the Bible, or a one-volume Shakespeare for his choice. But if he wanted a little variety with his lonesomeness, some philosophy, humor, comedy, and tragedy, he probably could make no better selection than the fat, 1056-paged "Borzoi Reader."

This compilation of some of the finest short novels, essays, short stories, and poems that Knopf has published in its years of doing business is the result of a wish expressed by Carl Van Doren, the famous literary critic.

Van Doren once went over the long list of Knopf publications and told Alfred Knopf how wonderful it would be to have a library of his finest publications all in one volume. Knopf told Van Doren to go ahead and select such a list, and the critic did a noteworthy job of it.

His compilation includes writings of the world's best authors— Willa Cather, Thomas Mann, Elinor Wylie, Joseph Hergesheimer, Julian Huxley, Carl Van Vechten, H. L. Mencken, and others. The book contains five short novels; a complete play, "Of Thee I Sing"; eight short stories by such writers as Zona Gale, D. H. Lawrence, Arthur Machen, and Katherine Mansfield; several essays; verses of three great American poets, Elinor Wylie, John Crowe Ransom, and Wallace Stevens; a complete biography of Stephen Crane, by Thomas Beer; and more unusual verses by three Chinese poets.

Story Of Gallant Man

"THE MAN WHO BUILT SAN FRANCISCO," by Julian Dana; (MacMillan, N. Y.).

JULIAN Dana's "The Man Who Built San Francisco" has color and pace. To a certain extent this is due to the tempo of the time in which Mr. Dana's subject, Billy Ralston, lived and did his work. The time of western grabbing, in which men snatched up what they could of the gold and free real estate, lived extravagantly and often insanely, died and were buried with pomp. Sometimes.

But partly the pace and the pulse come from Mr. Dana's exceedingly perceptive writing. He is telling the story of a gallant man. Ralston went from a little Ohio town with colors flying. He lived and worked on the Mississippi in the early steamboat days. He was clever and strong and handsome, and inevitably he landed in California. This was a year or so after the first gold rush, when money was still lying about and he who failed to fill his pockets was a fool or unlucky, or both. Ralston was lucky, and no fool.

Both Ends Against Middle

Ralston was a banker. He bought real estate and held it for a profit. He cut shrewdly into the Nevada mines. He sometimes played both ends against the middle, in love as well as in business. And one day in the 70's his Bank of California could not meet its commitments, and closed its doors. Next day Billy Ralston went swimming in the sea, and when they picked him up he was dying. The coroner's jury called the death accidental.

It looks rather like a familiar pattern, but there are important variations. For one thing, Ralston was personally a man big enough for a city to love; the Call and Bulletin were almost burned for the things they said against him. For another, Ralston was not simply a grabber. He made all he could, but he loved San Francisco and the rest of his empire, and his love had practical and favorable results. Finally, Ralston had courage. It showed itself in various ways; he was, as an example, the only man in history who ever raided a United States sub-treasury successfully. But he did it to keep his bank from failing, and he succeeded, that time.

Oppenheim Omnibus

"SPIES AND INTRIGUES," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; (Little, Brown, Boston).

IT is about time we reported on a few mysteries and such.

First there is the new E. Phillips Oppenheim omnibus, called "Spies and Intrigues." The three novels and the series of connected episodes therein contained are not, strictly speaking, mysteries, since they run more to devilish doings in one or another court. But there is mystery enough.

"The Great Impersonation," perhaps the most popular novel Oppenheim ever wrote, is included. The others are "The Wrath to Come," dealing with world politics in 1950, and "Gabriel Samara, Peacemaker," which is about the dilemma an exiled Russian princess got herself into. And the shorter bits were originally published as a book you may remember—"Mr. Billingham, the Marquis and Madelon." These three are amazingly expert in a useful way. They can scent a sucker at incredible distances.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is conducting a fatherly filibuster against his own official family. Congressional spokesmen and cabinet members share the general ignorance as to his second term plans.

The program-pushers on Capitol Hill stomped into the White House upon their return to Washington. Emerging to hobnob with reporters, they handed out vague wisdom on such subjects as taxation, government reorganization, revival of NRA, continuance of emergency agencies. They solemnly assured outsiders that legislative dirt would fly when Congress got out its shovels.

Mr. Roosevelt saw them singly or in pairs, and eventually they grew uneasy over what he might have told the other boys. So the topnotch leaders of Senate and House conspired to pool their inside stuff. They met for luncheon—of all places—in the Union station restaurant, a spot where no news hawk would seek for statesmen. They agreed that they had no more inkling of FDR's thoughts than the train dispatcher and baggage smasher.

REVERSED: What Mr. Roosevelt does finally will hinge on happenings over which he has scant control. His advantage lies in delay and silence.

For the first month Congress will have plenty to do in enacting routine but important appropriation measures. Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt will keep his eye on the social, economic, judicial scenes. Reestablishment of NEA, together with employment legislation, will depend on how fast private industry absorbs the jobless. That will determine his future relief policy, which will have a direct effect on the problem of new or modified taxes. How the court handles vital New Deal laws henceforth will help to settle the question of what to do about it.

The President's position is exactly the reverse of what it was four years ago—in early 1933, rather. Then circumstances cried for "action, action, action," and he supplied it. Now he must wait on reaction before he can move out or consolidate what he has gained. Practical explanation is that he doesn't care to tip his hand too early, and thus provoke a sapping sortie by politicos and their friends back home.

MECHANISM: Victims of Congressional investigations have mastered a defensive technique against bombardments like those rained on oil promoters and politicians, bankers and munitions makers. It's operating fairly effectively in the Van Sweringen and A. T. & T. inquiries.

The defense first swamps investigators with enough volumes of dry figures to crowd shelves of the Congressional Library. Then it mobilizes an army of witnesses so as to drag out proceedings. Next it coaches its spokesmen to testify in a dull, dead monotone. They are cautioned against sensational replies, a provocative manner and violent clashes with committee counsel. The central idea is to inspire such drear headlines that reporters and reading public will fall asleep over the story. A certain lobbyist collects high fees as a "corporation coach."

Still another trick is for respondents to time their Senate appearance so as to clash with volcanic news erupting elsewhere. It can't be accomplished every time, but the A. T. & T., simply through luck, benefited from such a break. When hauled before the FCC last spring, fatal floods and the Hauptmann execution swept the story off the front page. This time their days on the stand collided with the King-Simpson romance, the Pope's illness and the Chiang kidnapping. Government dirt diggers are sitting up nights to devise a counter-technique.

MORIBUND: The American Liberty league has taken a silent plea of political guilt and placed itself on probation for an indefinite period. Whether it will seek parole or discharge from its political nullity is a question not even the du Pont family can answer now.

The league's Delaware financiers were openly disgusted and discouraged with their achievements in the presidential and congressional campaigns. Certain of the brothers favored immediate liquidation, finally accepting the theory that their organization had turned out to be the New Deal's principal vote builder. Other directors urged that the league organize under a new name and persist in its "examination" of Roosevelt proposals during his second term. Both theories were discarded as too obvious an admission of surrender.

Tentative scheme is to line up with others whose motto is "wait and see"—the Republicans inside and outside Congress, "economic loyalists" and even Roosevelt "brain trusters." If an "era of good feeling"—and profits—really develops, the league will probably vanish into the history books as a major political blunder. If not, the Shouse-Smith-Raskob pamphleteers will be proclaiming the nation's ruin at the same old stand. Meanwhile, it has sponsored no speeches or statements or prophecies since early last October.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

COLONEL Fulgencio Batista—the non-com who rose to command the Cuban army after the deposition of former President Machado—has ambitions to become the Mussolini of Cuba. That's the news-behind-the-news of the ousting of President Miguel Mariano Gomez on a comparatively trivial issue.

Colonel Batista has the army behind him, which explains why most members of the Cuban Congress fell over themselves to fulfil his wishes about the sugar tax to support new schools to be run by military authorities. They wanted to be on the winning side.

New Yorkers familiar with the Cuban situation do not rate Batista a mental giant—to put it politely—and frankly suspect that the ambitious Colonel was put up to this ingenious school stunt by interests with ulterior motives.

COMMON: He might, for instance, have been indirectly inspired by radical chiefs who have been unable to make under conditions of relative peace and prosperity which have recently prevailed.

There is a large left wing element in the Cuban population, especially in Havana, which has been passive for quite a while. This element is likely to react violently when it comprehends the fascist nature of the army school idea. Batista may have been encouraged to set himself up higher in order that he may be more easily knocked down.

SPENDING: New Yorkers in close touch with Washington get word of a sharp difference of opinion inside the administration about the well advertised economy wave. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles and other officials directly concerned with federal finances take the economy idea seriously. On the other hand, those in charge of departments and agencies whose chief interest in money is spending it are preparing to defend themselves against curtailed appropriations. They are ready for eloquent justification of lavish outlays.

Consequently a certain coolness has developed between those who aim to save and those who aim to keep on spending. Another angle is that business—despite their insistent public demand for a balanced federal budget—are in many cases privately averse to a genuine cut in government outlay. They fear the recovery pump will stop working if Uncle Sam stops priming it. Quiet pressure from many sources is being exerted to nullify economy plans.

In the last analysis the whole question is up to President Roosevelt. His personal attitude will decide whether the savers or spenders win out. He has not committed himself for the record, but indications are that he still thinks well of spending and will seek a balanced budget via larger revenues rather than smaller expenditures.

CURE: Apropos of the concern recently expressed by President Charles R. Gay of the New York Stock Exchange about the public purchase of stocks selling under $10 a share, veteran brokers remark that the Exchange has a simple remedy at hand if it cares to use it.

It could easily forbid all transactions in stocks below a certain price expect for cash. This would be merely reestablishing a standard that existed before the depression but was chucked overboard when the blue chips dropped to canine levels.

Hitler "System" Is Without System

Germany's Boss Changes His Mind On State Matters

BY IRA BENNETT
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Any detailed description of the "system" of government in Germany would be worthless within a month, so rapid and radical are the changes ordered by Germany's dictator. The "system" bears little resemblance to the plans outlined when he gained supreme power. No other country is so completely subject to the whims of one man—and few other men are the equals of Adolf Hitler, Germany's Austrian dictator, in capricious manifestations of a complex and contradictory mentality.

ADOLF HITLER
.... He changes his mind often.

Hitler's method in gaining and holding power is similar to that of his neighbor dictators, Stalin of Russia and Mussolini of Italy. All three obtained control of a political party which contrived to stamp out opposition parties and won strong popular support. Through control of the party the leader in each case gained control of the government. The party became a composite militia, secret police, and personnel staff of government.

People Kept In Dark

In each of these countries the dictator has been successful in arousing intense fervor among the people, amounting almost to a religious crusade. Their passions and prejudices have been skilfully massed behind the purposes of the dictator—and the dictator in each case manages to keep his followers in the dark as to his purposes.

Because of Germany's central position, large population, warlike propensities and present solidarity, the aims and purposes of its dictator command the world's anxious attention. Upon Hitler, more than upon any other individual in Europe, seems to depend the issue of peace or war.

HITLER'S political party is the National Sozialistische Deutsche Arbeiter Partei, called Nazi for short; and the hodgepodge of rapidly changing improvisations emanating from Hitler is called Nazism. It contains traces of many political theories, including the innumerable variations of socialism found in other countries, in addition to absolutism, fascism, atheism, mythicism, folk-fetishism, and a symbolism (notably the swastika or fylfot) harking back to prehistoric China as well as to Norse mythology.

After Germany's stupor following defeat in the World war and its eccentricities in trying to fit the people to a republic, Hitler found fertile soil for propagation of his first proposals—annihilation of Marxism, ostracism of the Jews, and a war of revenge aganst France. The only potential state builder, Stresemann, was gone. The country marked time under President Hindenburg. Hitler electrified the desperately impoverished and demoralized people by holding out visions of material and martial glory through national teamwork under a leadership of audacity armed with authority to wield the nation as a single sledge hammer. They enthusiastically approved of stripping the Jews after Hitler had convinced them that Jewish diabolism was the cause of Russia's plunge into communism and of all the miseries suffered in Germany. The idea of recovering Alsace and Lorraine appealed mightily to the military spirit.

EDITOR'S NOTE

This is the third of a series of articles bearing upon the changes which have come to European governments over the past 20 years.

Written by Ira Bennett, widely known eastern newspaper editor, reporter and magazine contributor, the series brings out many angles to the European muddle usually overlooked by the average citizen.

Additional articles of the series will appear on this page on succeeding Sundays.

War Machine Re-Made

Hitler has succeeded in making Germany again into a formidable war machine, thoroughly integrated and responsive to his impulses. By alternate tests of aggression and negotiation he has sounded out the strength and purpose of possible adversaries. He has cultivated understandings with powers whose interests run parallel with his own. Partly with the people's approval, and partly by ruthless crushing of popular protest, he has abolished free speech and a free press, freedom of religion, free elections, freedom of trade and profession, freedom of education, and the constitutional immunities which safeguard individuals in free countries against governmental tyranny. It is all done in the name of national solidarity, for ultimate victory in the next war.

Capitalism, by which is meant private ownership of property and private enterprise, is tolerated by Dictator Hitler as it is tolerated by Mussolini of Italy and even by Stalin of Russia. By all three capitalism is bent to military purposes. Capital and labor in Germany are agencies of war preparation and war maintenance. Originally assisted to power by organized capital, Hitler now dominates it. The state sways all; and to all intents and purposes Hitler is the state.

Problems And News Concerning Those Old Favorites

WIDESPREAD interest in checkers and chess over the South Plains area has prompted this "corner" of the Sunday Avalanche-Journal's editorial page. Several score persons are actively engaged in chess play and chess clubs; several hundred belong to checkers clubs and play that grand old favorite.

Here is the latest checkers and chess news, along with problems and comment.

Here's a game played in the recent Amarillo-Lubbock team match between Vinson Stanphill and J. L. Bills. Stanphill has the black men: 9-13, 23-18, 6-9, 24-20, 10-15, 18-14 (x), 9-18, 26-23, 1-6, 23-14, 6-9, 30-26, 9-18, 26-23, 2-6, 23-14, 6-9, 31-26, 9-18, 26-23, 15-19, 23-14, 7-10, 14-7, 3-10, 22-18, 10-24, 28-19, 11-16, 20-11, 8-31, 32-28, 31-16, 28-24, 19-14, 18-9, 5-14, 25-22, 26-17, 29-25, 4-9, 24-19, 8-11, Black wins.

(x) Bills takes quite a 'flyer', but it was Stanphill he was playing.

Based on Otho Clendennen the second round tourney is showing some surprises. Although getting into a loss several times, he has managed to pull through each time except one with nothing worse than a draw. He has had to miss play for several months on account of illness, and seems to be making up for lost time. The standings to date:

	W.	L.	D.	Pct.
Otho Clendennen	28	1	10	.848
R. J. Greer	21	9	6	.667
J. C. Williamson	19	5	7	.611

Two solutions came to last week's problem, both from out-of-town. The newcomer's prize went to D. H. Bartlett, Post for a correct set of moves. The other solution, also correct, came again from Malcolm Cooper, Brownfield. Here's the problem and their moves: Black on 12, 20, king on 22; White on 13, 19, 24, 27. White wins by 13-9, 22-18, 9-6, 18-14, 6-2, 14-10, 2-7, 10-3, 19-15, 3-8, 24-29, etc.

The following game contains a rather abrupt maneuver for an ending, and is a good coup for beginners to master because it occurs quite often in play, but is easily missed. The game was played by correspondence between the writer and John Mason, Centralia, Ill., as follows: 10-15, 21-17, 7-10, 17-14, 10-17, 23-13, 11-16, 13-19, 16-23, 26-19, 6-15, 13-6, 1-10, 27-23, 8-11, 23-27, 4-8, 32-28, 10-14, 28-24, 15-18, 22-15, 11-16, 24-19, 8-11, 31-26, 3-7, 15-18, 11-16, 19-10 (a), 16-19, 23-16, 12-19, 27-24, 19-23, 26-19, 9-13, 19-6, 2-9, 25-21, 18-23, 19-15 23-27, 15-18, 27-31, 18-6, 31-27, 24-19, 14-18, 19-15, 18-22, 18-10, 9-14 (b), 6-2, 3-8, 2-7, 22-26, 10-6, 27-22, 26-24, 22-26, 24-28, 26-22, 30-26, Black to play—what result?

Negotiations have been started for a tri-city match to be played at Roswell, N. M., among Lubbock, Albuquerque, N. M., and El Paso players.

Several of the El Paso players, at the State tournament in Dallas last September, expressed their approval of such a match.

The matches would be played in January or early February.

Dr. R. S. Underwood last week further clinched his hold on first place in the City championship chess tournament. The first schedule completed was that of Gordon Webb, in third place. In the second round robin he dropped one game to Doctor Underwood, one to Rod O'Neall, and drew with Doctor Underwood and Dr. A. L. Strout.

The standings:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
R. S. Underwood	23½	6½	.782
A. L. Strout	23	9	.719
Gordon Webb	26½	11½	.697
John Spencer	21½	14½	.598
Rod O'Neall	18½	14½	.517
V. O. Jennings	1	28	.093

Doctor Strout's loss to O'Neall gave Doctor Underwood an excellent opportunity to finish first, retaining the City championship he now holds.

Jose R. Capablanca, former world's champion, of Cuba found stiff competition in a series of exhibition matches played recently in New York. The following game, from the New York Times, Capablanca lost to Harold M. Phillips, Albert C. Simmonson, and James R. Newman:

Both club members and others—whether they are experienced players or novices — have a standing invitation to attend weekly meetings. The group will meet at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in Hilton hotel.

(a) White probably missed a win here by not playing 15-11.

(b) At this point one of the players suggested a draw, but the other seemed to smell a win, so play was continued.

For the best set of moves from a beginner completing the above game, we will mail a copy of the Mt. Sterling Advocate checker colum. For the best solution from anyone (not more than two variations) that shows a win for either side, we will mail a pamphlet. Mail solutions to H. A. Cooper, Shallowater.

South Plains Farmers Hope 1937 Will Bring Best Season In All History

Land Is Made Ready To Use

Endless Rows Of Fresh Turned Dirt May Be Seen; Moisture During Winter Will Provide Good Seasoning

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

South Plains farmers have put up at least a third of their land for the coming growing season and Saturday's rain, while very light, was saved and went into the ground. It was the advance of what farmers and others hope will be a wonderful amount of moisture to make the 1937 season the best in the history of the South Plains.

Reports from all sections indicate the land preparation program is general. From the highways one sees endless rows of freshly turned land that has the appearance of spring. The soil is moist, with a good color, due to fall rains.

Cotton Harvested Early

Farmers had harvested their cotton early this fall, the earliest this section has known. The greater bulk of the crop was out by December 1, thus giving farmers plenty of time to get their land in shape.

The wet weather had packed the ground after harvesting and it had settled, giving it firmness of early spring land. Plenty of grass and weeds, from the rains, with other cover, insured good season.

Many farmers who follow "good farm practices" common in this area, went to work on the ground, anticipating winter moisture.

Indications are that the coming crop season will see a larger acreage in crops than ever before, in this territory. Real estate men and large land owners state the sale of land is better than for a number of years. Much new land has been sold, especially by the larger land companies, and it is being broken out for planting. While a good proportion of the sales includes cultivated land, yet the raw land sales are above recent years.

Control Legislation

With indications of little control legislation on cotton, real estate men point out that operators are planning huge acreages of that crop, believing it to be the best cash crop for this section. At the same time, cost of raising cotton on the South Plains is less than in the older areas where heavy fertilization is necessary and where danger of weevil infestation is greater.

In the 20 counties on top of the caprock, cotton acreage was estimated for 1936 at around a million and three quarter acres. It was one of the largest acreages this section has known. An increase of 10 per cent will put the total near the 2,000,000 acre mark.

Sale of tractors this fall began earlier, the South Plains Fair having opened the season. Farmers traded in their work stock on the machines and began as soon as they could get into the fields to plow under the sod and cultivated land.

County agents state that calls for terracing demonstrations began in November, a month or six weeks earlier than common. Total land terraced in Lubbock county during November and December approached the acreage terraced during all of last year. With NYA students available as assistants, the county should show at least a 200 per cent increase in acreage.

Only disadvantage of the early land preparation is that some farmers did not get their land terraced. However, with an increase in contouring, they will probably overcome a proportion of this liability.

CALLS CALVES RECENTLY

TAHOKA, Dec. 26—(Special) — Crawford Edwards, son of Cass O. Edwards of Fort Worth, owner of the T-Bar ranch west of here, recently sold 700 head of calves. The animals were from the spring crop and were branded this fall.

Stock Raiser Who Tops The Market Consistently Ships "Beef From Contented Steers" Of His Farm

"THEY EAT AND REST"—Fred Attebery, stock man, consistently tops the market with such cattle as these, shown on his Mitchell, Neb., farm.

By ARTHUR F. WOLF

MITCHELL, Neb., Dec. 26—(AP)—Fred M. Attebery, Mitchell stock man who has topped the markets in cattle shipments for a number of years including one of the worst drouth periods on record, claims his success is due to shipping "beef from contented steers."

In 1934, a bad drouth year, Attebery shipped 16 loads of cattle; 15 led the market. They call him a "super feeder" but he deprecates the title.

F. M. Attebery

"I think most any farmer with just good practical feeding experience can accomplish all that my cattle have," Attebery says. "Energy, efficiency and economy in operation along with good common business sense will move most anything in the right direction."

Has Triple-E Philosophy

The triple-E philosophy has moved Attebery's cattle in "the right direction" and along a high road.

Before 1932, Attebery recalls, he topped the market several times. In 1932 he made 11 shipments, every one topping the Chicago market. In 1933 all but three shipments of his choice Herefords topped. In 1934 it was 15 out of 16 at the top. In 1935 he topped the market with 15 out of 19 shipments. By midseason this year he held the top 10 consecutive times. On May 1, 1935, the Scotts Bluff county feeder sold a load for $16.25, a five year top for all markets that has not been surpassed.

Beef Widely Known

And the beef from those cattle is known widely. Prof. Howard J. Gramlich, meat expert of the Nebraska agricultural college, has a habit of asking the origin of any meat he eats. Dining in a New York hotel a year or two ago he inquired about the beef he ordered.

He was told it was "Attebery beef from Nebraska."

Stockmen from all parts of the world, asking Attebery how he does it, hear of a method that boils down to "beef from contented steers."

Selects Carefully

First, of course, careful selection of feeders is made. Then comes the period of careful feeding.

"The cattle," Attebery says, "just sat and rest."

He has no set ration and does not confine himself to one type of feed, but he does have one hard and fast rule which may account for the prices he is paid.

"The loads must be uniform and standard," he says. "Many loads are even sorted to the very same shade of color. We try to make every load very attractive and pleasing to the eye.

"We make it a rule that the buyer must be pleased. You will never fool a buyer more than once and that is costly."

WHEAT ACREAGE INCREASED

O'DONNELL, Dec. 26—(Special)—Three thousand acres of wheat has been sown this fall and winter in O'Donnell's trade territory, it is estimated. Last year the acreage was around 500 to 600. The crop is growing fine, with plenty of subsoil moisture. Livestock will be pastured on the wheat until spring.

To protect their horses from the flies, South American farmers put trousers on them.

Biological Man Is To Work In Area

James E. Poore, San Antonio, assistant district agent in charge of predatory animal work in Texas, is expected to spend about two months in this section, working with the U. S. biological survey on coyote work, according to Floyd W. Dawson, agent of the survey here.

With the price of cattle and sheep showing an increase in value over a few years ago, sheepmen and cattlemen are finding the ravages of coyotes on their herds rather costly. For this reason many complaints have come to the predatory animal division about losses.

Poisoning and trapping are the chief methods of control. Mr. Poore will handle poisoning work and will show farmers, ranchers and others, how to control the coyotes. The number of coyotes killed in the state has increased in the past several years.

Project To Control Cut Ants Is County-Wide Work In Tyler

WOODVILLE, Dec. 26. (AP) — A county-wide project for control of cut ants is being conducted in Tyler county under the direction of S. Hyde, county agent, R. R. Reppert, entomologist of A. & M. College and F. C. Hill. Meetings are being held to demonstrate methods of fighting the ants.

The accepted method of destroying colonies of the insects is to stop side entrances to the "town," dig a hole over the main entrance and pour in a half barrel of water. A quart of commercial insecticide follows and the hole is closed.

Reppert says the pests destroy thousands of dollars worth of crops and trees yearly, and sometimes go half a mile from their "towns" to strip orchards and field crops.

TO SPEAK AT SESSION

BEAUMONT, Dec. 26. (AP)—Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture for Louisiana, will speak at the tung oil production conference here Jan. 4, P. B. Doty, chairman of the committee sponsoring the meeting, says. Wilson is credited with obtaining passage of a law in Louisiana lowering taxes on land planted in tung trees.

Doty says J. E. McDonald, Texas state commissioner of agriculture, is considering a similar proposal for Texas tung oil land.

Members of the legislature, East Texas and western Louisiana landowners, and farm leaders have been invited.

LEADS THE WORLD

WOODVILLE, Dec. 26—(AP)—The Tyler County Booster, weekly newspaper published here, boasts:

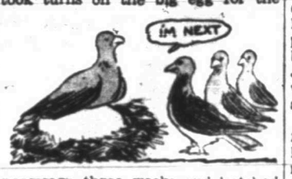

"The Booster carries more news of Woodville and Tyler county than any other newspaper in the world."

Scrambled Eggs!

Pigeons Have Chick Through Error

ENID, Okla., Dec. 26. (AP)—One of Ernie Berg's white Wyandotte hens flew into a temporarily deserted pigeon box and laid an egg.

The pigeons adopted the strange egg. A pigeon egg usually hatches in 13 days, but the Berg pigeons took turns on the big egg for the necessary three weeks and hatched a chick.

The foster parents had some difficulty feeding the arrival, but Berg says they "appeared very happy" over the offspring.

Jefferson County Girls Make 16,500 Pounds Of Vegetables

BEAUMONT, Dec. 26—(AP)—Jefferson county girl gardeners produced 16,500 pounds of vegetables this year, selling 5,742 pounds, and canning 1,575 containers, the home demonstration agent announces.

One hundred and sixty-five members of 4-H clubs in the county contracted to grow 100 tomato plants in their spring gardens. Budgets for canning six quarts of salad pack tomatoes, six quarts of standard pack tomatoes, and six pints of tomato juice, also were made. In spite of adverse weather, 149 girls produced their quota of plants; 15 filled more than the required six quarts of standard pack tomatoes; nine canned their quotas of salad pack, and six canned the six pints of juice.

The first three prizes at the South Texas state fair this fall went to Jefferson county girls for their tomato products.

In the fur trade year ended July, 1935, the Dominion of Canada had a raw fur output valued at $12,843,000.

Leading Cows For State Announced

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP) — Eleven cows, belonging to H. F. Attaway of Hopkins county, received first honors for Texas dairy herds in November, C. G. Gibson of the Texas A. & M. College extension service, announces. Each animal produced an average of 666 pounds of milk and 38.8 pounds of butterfat for the month.

The 11-cow herd of A. F. Schied of Grayson county received second honors with an average of 659 pounds of milk and 36.6 pounds of butterfat. The 102-cow herd of J. K. Lively & Son of Dallas county was third with 647 pounds of milk and 34.2 of butterfat, Gibson says.

A three-year-old Dallas county first calf heifer took individual honors, producing 1,062 pounds of milk and 63.7 pounds of butterfat. The Dallas County Dairy Herd Improvement association, with six herds on test, averaged 24.3 pounds of butterfat to lead the state, and 476 pounds of milk, which took second honors. Bexar county was first in milk production with an average of 510 pounds.

Longview Woman Seriously Injured In Car Collision

CORSICANA, Dec. 26—(AP)—Mrs. Jack Boyd, 26, of Longview, is in a serious condition in a Corsicana hospital as a result of internal injuries received yesterday when the car in which she and her husband were riding figured in a collision with two other machines on highway 75 five miles north of here. Mr. Boyd, 27, was painfully but apparently not seriously injured.

Occupants of one of the other machines was given first aid treatment.

Swisher County Is To Have Nearly 290,000 Acres Wheat

TULIA, Dec. 26—(Special)—Latest check of wheat acreage indicates that Swisher county will have nearly 290,000 acres in crop this year. Sowing has continued throughout the fall. Recent moisture has brought out the growing crop and afforded enough for late planted wheat to germinate. The top soil is still a little dry, but there is plenty of subsoil moisture.

One Is Killed In Ship Crash

Young Woman Makes A Daring Rescue Of Pilot When She Dives Into River And Pulls Him From Wreck

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26 (AP)—Tragedy was matched by the heroism of an attractive young swimmer as a low-flying biplane struck a tree and plunged into the Meramec river at suburban Sylvan Beach Christmas day, killing McCoy Sanders, 28-year-old passenger.

The pilot, Al Constance, who suffered serious injuries, was pulled from the half-submerged wreckage by pretty Miss Odessa La Fevre, 23-year-old beauty parlor operator, in a brave rescue effort after jumping off the horse she was riding along the shore of the river.

Riding With Father

Miss La Fevre was riding with her father, J. J. La Fevre, when the privately owned plane swooped down a short distance from them, narrowly missed the steel girders of a bridge and rammed into a large elm tree near the water's edge. Bundled in riding clothes, Miss La Fevre kicked off one boot on the run then plunged into the icy water. She reached Constance, untangled a wire which encircled his head, and swam ashore with him.

Without hesitation, the 120-pound brunette returned to the rapidly sinking ship to search for other occupants. She said she spent several minutes diving around the wreckage, but gave up under the impression there had been only one occupant. It was later established that Sanders had been caught in a tangled mass of wire and fabric under the plane. His body was recovered an hour later.

Miss La Fevre modestly disclaimed the status of a heroine, and insisted she did only what anyone else would do under similar circumstances.

Prevalence Of Bitterweed, Poisonous Range Plant, Is Noticed In West Texas Areas

SAN ANGELO, Dec. 26—(AP)—Prevalence of the bitterweed, poisonous range plant, in January, February, and March is causing many ranchmen in this area to move their livestock as rapidly as they can find places. Losses were reported in some parts in November.

Measures to combat the pest on University of Texas grazing lands in West Texas leased to ranchmen will be sought after a survey in counties west of here by Dr. George D. Morgan of San Angelo, chairman, and J. R. Parten of Houston, members of the regents' land committee. They were accompanied by E. J. Compton of Texon, in charge of surface leases.

The weed causes death to sheep, but does not affect cattle. Light grazing is the best method of control developed, but some ranchmen are trying to burn out the weed with blow torches.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN, 133

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The copper wire cut deep into the flesh of Tarzan's wrists and ankles, but the physical pain was as nothing compared with the mental torture of his helpless and hopeless situation. Nkima's fingers were too weak, and those of the apes too awkward, to remove the wire.

The little monkey and his giant cousins brought food and water to Tarzan, and the great apes were a protection to him against prowling carnivores, but the Jungle Lord knew this could not last long. Soon the compelling instinct of the apes would cause them to leave.

The faithful Nkima would remain with him; he would bring food and water, but he would be no protection from the beasts. At the first glimpse of Dango, the hyena, or Sheeta, the leopard, or Numa, the lion, the little monkey would flee screaming to the trees.

Despite his baffling predicament, Tarzan gave no sign of panic or perturbation. Instead, his fertile brain calmly reviewed the possibilities of solving his problem. Presently a cunning plan flashed into his mind, and he called the great strong Ga-Yat to him.

Student Night Will Be Held

Annual Observance In Baptist Churches Is Scheduled For Sunday; Lattimore Ewing Is Principal Speaker

Student night at Christmas-time, observed annually at this season in Baptist churches throughout the Southern Baptist convention, will be kept in the First Baptist church here, at the regular church hour Sunday night. The object of the occasion is that college students returning to their home churches for the holidays may have charge of one of the regular worship services, presenting especially the work being done through the Baptist Student unions on their respective campuses.

Lattimore Ewing, Texas state B. S. U. president, and student in Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary, Fort Worth, will be the main speaker; and Dr. C. E. Hereford, pastor, is to be in charge of the service, "Surrender to the Will of God" is the theme to be carried out in the worship hour.

Others to have part in the program are Wynona Pardue, violinist, teaching in Oklahoma; Bonnie Thomas, Southwestern seminary; John S. Ball, working toward a doctor's degree in chemistry, Boulder, Colo.; and Mary Knight, Ruth Allen, Rex Webster, all of Texas Tech.

One Man Is Dead In Auto Accident

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 26 (AP)—C. E. Mulholland, 40, of Fowlerton, was instantly killed and two others were injured early today when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a pole at the old Corpus Christi road and highway No. 66, south.

Mulholland's skull was crushed. The injured passengers were not identified by Deputy Sheriffs Henry Hawlowetz and Everett Riddell, who investigated.

Dave Mulholland, a brother, said Mulholland, an oil field worker, was en route to San Antonio to spend the holidays with him.

Christmas Stories Are Told To Quiet Rioting Patients

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Christmas stories told by a psychiatrist quieted a tempestuous ward of Bellevue hospital last night after a two hour riot by 40 women patients.

A favorite of the patients, Dr. Karl M. Bowman, director of the psychiatric service at Bellevue, brought order to the ward when he was called from his home at the height of the disturbance.

He persuaded the women, many less than 21 years old, to sit down and talk things over. One of the patients asked for a Christmas story. He told one. That called for another, and presently the ward was back to normal.

During the two hours of rioting, which started soon after Christmas dinner and the distribution of gifts, bed clothes were ripped, furniture was broken and a nurse and a policeman were bitten on the hands. Hospital regulations forbid using force with the patients.

Johnny Fools The Doctors And Lives To See Christmas

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 26. (AP)—Three-year old Johnny Hernandez did what doctors at the county hospital believed he couldn't do—live to celebrate Christmas.

The pain in his body eased by sedatives, he showed an interest in all the activity going on about him, beamed over the gifts he received from a stream of visitors, and gazed wonderingly at the big stack of mail beside his bed.

It was Johnny's first "real" Christmas and, the doctors said, his last. They explained the boy's ailment, cancer of the bone, was beyond cure. They said he would die soon.

Another Child Is Born To Royal Family Of Britain

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP)—Britons toasted today an infant who some day may be their ruler.

Born Christmas day, she is the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Kent—the youngest son of the late King George V and the former Princess Marina of Greece.

The baby, as yet unnamed, was the second child of the youngest Windsors. An older brother, stalwart Prince Edward George Nicholas Paul Patrick, was born Oct. 9, 1935.

The new princess became sixth in line to the throne of Great Britain.

Twenty-Six Persons Killed Dec. 23 In Ship Explosion

ROME, Dec. 26 (AP)—Twenty-six persons were killed and 100 injured Dec. 23, an official communique said today, in an explosion aboard the steamship Cesare Battisti in the harbor of Massaua, Italian Eritrea, on the east coast of Africa.

A fire resulting from the explosion spread rapidly over the waterfront and the port, destroying several buildings, including the offices of the port authority.

Twenty of those injured were reported seriously hurt.

CAMISOLES COMING BACK

NEW YORK (AP)—The camisole, or corset-cover, promises to come into popularity with the introduction of the new spring blouses. Because of the sheer quality of the materials which will be used in blouses more attention will have to be paid to the appearance of the undergarments.

Rheumatism In Arms, Shoulders Made His Work So Difficult

Mr. Jackson Generous In His Praise For New Gly-Cas; Entire System Cleansed Of Poisons; Stomach, Kidneys Regulated; "No Other Like It" Says Of Gly-Cas

"After I was shown Gly-Cas' true ability and wonderful merit through my own actual experience I can readily see why so many people say there never was a medicine before like it," said Mr. W. T. Jackson, Route No. 2, Box 59, Corpus Christi, Texas. "For a period of more than 20 years I had suffered with rheumatism and neuritis so persistent that I was almost constantly in misery. My arms and shoulders were so afflicted that my work became very difficult the pain was so intense. My stomach became affected and I was attacked frequently by indigestion, gas and bloating. Then too, terrible headaches allowed me not a moment of rest. I became nervous and irritable, unable to sleep at night and try as I might I could find no relief in the many medicines I was constantly trying, doing my best to find something to reach my case. Then Gly-Cas was recommended to me and I decided it must be worthy of a trial judging from the amount of praise I had heard for it—once given the opportunity to prove itself—Gly-Cas wasted no time in getting to the source of my health troubles."

MR. W. T. JACKSON

"Gly-Cas has no equal and in my estimation its merit and abilities are limitless," he continued. "That awful rheumatism and neuritis have been entirely driven from my system, am once more allowed full use of my arms and shoulders and my work has been made a pleasure for me, feeling as I do today. My stomach and bowels have been regulated as have my kidneys and my system is entirely rid of those dreadful poisons which were causing so many ailments. I sleep good, headaches are in the past, and my nerves are quieted until I feel like a different person. I cannot say enough in praising this wonderful new remedy as my system has undergone a complete change through its use."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.
