FARM LABOR MOVE SPREADING LIKE WILDFIRE OVER TEXAS WITH 250 ORGANIZERS AT WORK

They're Not Hunting Ducks With Brass Band Either, Political Observer Confides to Writer, Who Stumbles Into Enthusiasm for Movement in Collin and Elsewhere.

By H. N. F.

McKINNEY, Texas, June 5.—Collin county is in the heart of the blacklands and one of the counties that was attached to the old Bailey district. Collin county has a large voting population and this year from twelve thousand to fifteen thousand men and women hold poll tax receipts or exemption certificates.

Representative Sam Rayburn has represented the fourth congressional district in the lower house for several terms. He is a native Texan and Fanning is his home county.

Rayburn Opens Drive

He opened his campaign in the city of Bonham on Saturday, June 3, and there was a reason for it. He had been warned by friends to return to Texas without delay and place his fences in order. Edward Westbrook of Hunt county is a candidate for Sam's congressional shoes. Westbrook began life a printer and publisher. He served a term as state senator and while playing politics he became a lawyer. He made the race two years ago and it was very interesting for Rayburn until the primary ballots had been counted. He is at it again this year.

C. E. Wilcoxson of Gainesville, Cooke county, is a well known cotton buyer. He has on office in this city and in the campaigns of the past he fought the battles of Joseph Weldon Bailey. Now he is pushing Maj. Fred Rogers for governor, subject to the action of the democratic primary in July. Major Rogers has the endorsement of the farm-labor people. Mr. Wilcoxson is not a member of the farm labor party. Only dirt farmers or laborers in the cities and towns are eligible. Speaking of the farm labor political organization Wilcoxson said to the writer:

"This farm labor movement is spreading like wild fire. There are 114 locals in Collins county alone.

"There are 250 organizers the state over. Membership fee is $1 and this places it within the reach of all. My own opinion is that Ed Westbrook will retire Sam Rayburn to private life in July. Westbrook has been organizing farm labor unions for a long

Mainly About People

Harry T. Warner—Glutton For Work—AN Able Man—

By H. N. F.

THERE IS ANOTHER RICHmond in the field. Harry T. Warner has thrown his old straw hat in the ring and will make the race for governor subject to the action of the democratic primary. His foreword is that the little red schoolhouse must be preserved or progress will wither and die in Texas and that millions must be appropriated for the aid of the rural schools without delay or the children of the rural regions will go untaught and their brains remain undeveloped.

This is the first invasion ever made by Harry T. Warner in the political arena as a candidate for office. He is and for Texas. They say he is a native son. Regardless of this if he isn't a native son he came here when a toddling infant and he has been identified with Texas newspaperdom since boyhood.

He was reared in Houston; he was educated in Houston; his father was a prominent newspaper man in the city of Houston and before he was 20 Harry T. Warner was a news reporter on the staff of the Houston Post.

COL. R. M. JOHNSTON RAN A school of journalism in the office of the Houston Post for more than 35 years and from that school was graduated many hard working and accomplished newspapers writers. Harry T. Warner refused to be graduated. He refused to depart from the school and seek his fortunes elsewhere. He sat at every desk in the editorial rooms of the Post until he became managing editor. Once managing editor he held down the job for many years and no doubt would be holding it today if Colonel Johnston had not retired as editor in chief. Mr. Warner did not retire with the colonel. He was sent to Austin as chief staff writer for the Post and for several years he furnished copy from that city for his newspaper.

WARNER IS A GLUTTON FOR work. He never looks at the clock; He is an 18 and not an 8 hour man. He is known from the gulf to the mountains by the working newspaper men of Texas. There are no frills on Harry. There are no fads attached to him. He just grinds out copy all day long and lets it go at that. Business men of Paris knew of Harry Warner. They wanted a modern daily paper.

They sent for him and a new organization was formed and Warner placed at its head to direct the Paris Morning News, which had been published for many years in the thriving city of Paris in the county of Lamar. There is not a man in south Texas worth knowing that Warner does not know. He has a large acquaintance the state over. Those who are in the know say that he has been fairly successful in his north Texas field, ever bent on giving the people a metropolitan newspaper in a city of less than 20,000 inhabitants, which can not be done unless the publisher has a John D. Rockefeller or Henry Ford behind him.

MR. WARNER IS A LIFE-LONG democrat. It is his proud boast that he has ever voted the ticket straight. He is a protege of Colonel Johnston and Colonel Johnston never had any use for prohibition or woman suffrage and "died in the last ditch" in defense of state rights. This was at Waco, when William P. Hobby was declared the nominee for governor by the state convention and prohibition and woman suffrage were made platform demands.

Colonel Johnston was a member of

Four Candidates For Governor

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, June 5.—The time limit for the filing of names to appear on the ticket for state offices in the July primaries expired at midnight Monday and a complete list of all the candidates for state offices was released by Joseph W. Hale of Waco, who is secretary of the state democratic executive committee.

The list shows only four candidates for state offices will be without opposition in the July primaries.

Only One Woman

Of the 39 candidates, the name of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, candidate for United States senator, is the only one of a woman appearing on the list. Offices of United States senator and lieutenant governor are the most popular so far as candidates are concerned, eight aspiring to the former office and five for the other.

The list as given out by Secretary Hale and which will in all probability be a duplicate of the July primary ballot follows in full:

United States senator: Earle B. Mayfield, Austin; C. A. Culberson, Dallas; Clarence Ousley, Fort Worth; Robert L. Henry, Waco; James E. Ferguson, Temple; Sterling P. Strong, Dallas; Cullen F. Thomas, Dallas; Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, Temple.

Wallace Opposes Proposed Change In Wheat Grading

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Change in the present department of agriculture regulations for the grading of spring wheat were opposed today by Secretary Wallace before the house agriculture committee unless congress went all the way and fixed its own scale.

In that event Mr. Wallace said he would insist upon 90 days notice.

Under the present system Mr. Wallace said wheat was graded according to its percentage of moisture and foreign substance, adding that if these were removed wheat graded as number three might be raised to number one. The departments aim, he said, was to work out an educational campaign so that the grower might know the value of his crop once it was harvested.

UNIONS CAN BE SUED IN DAMAGE CASE IS DECREE

Supreme Court Sets Nation Ajar By Decision

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Deciding the celebrated Coronado coal case the supreme court today held that labor organizations, although unincorporated, are amendable to the Sherman anti-trust act and that under it such organizations may be prosecuted for restraint of interstate commerce. The court also held that labor unions are suable. Chief Justice Taft, in announcing the decision, did not indicate any dissent.

The case which presented the questions passed on by the court was an appeal by the United Mine Workers of America, district No. 21 of that organization and its officers, 27 local unions in that district and their officers and 65 individuals, some of the latter not members of any union, from a decision by the United States district court of Arkansas, approved by the circuit court of appeals, holding them guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust act during coal mine strikes in Arkansas in 1914 and imposing damages of $200,000 which were trebled under the anti-trust law.

The effect of the decision today will be to set aside the damages, because of the finding that the acts which caused the destruction of property were not incited for the purpose of restraining interstate commerce.

During the strike lawlessness prevailed and property damage was done the Coronado and eight other mines controlled by the Bache-Denan Coal company.

The United Mine Workers of America contested the jurisdiction of the federal court on the ground that being an unincorporated association of mine workers it was not subject to prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Dispute Over School Funds Blamed

By Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., June 5.—J. A. Lawhorn, grocer of Jenks, near here, appeared in the office of County Attorney Seaver this afternoon and complained against a band of unmasked men who he said seized him as he was leaving church last night and took him to the country where he was lashed 45 times, over a school controversy which had been taken to court.

Lawhorn said he was lashed fifteen times when he refused to withdraw the suit, fifteen more lashes were applied when he held out against withdrawal and additional fifteen laid on when he finally consented to withdraw the action.

Official Boosts Farm Market Plan

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 4.—Cooperative marketing of farm products is the result of patriotism, is not selfish, but rather means larger returns to the producer and lower prices to the ultimate consumer, according to J. H. Baughman, commissioner of markets and warehouses. "Co-operative marketing," he declared, "means selling in larger quantities, and in many instances means cheaper carrying charges, reduced overhead, quicker use of money, and elimination of many of the cumulative commissions and charges.

CONGRESS GETS SHOALS BILLS

Ford's Offer Given By Committee

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Two bills authorizing Secretary Weeks to execute contracts with Henry Ford and to transfer to him the government's $106,000,000 power and nitrate projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, were introduced today in the house by members of the military committee.

One presented by Acting Chairman McKenzie of Illinois provided for the acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer for the property on condition that the Gorgas steam plant be excluded. The other submitted by Representative Wright, democrat, Georgia, called for unconditional compliance with the terms of the Ford proposal. House republican leaders announced that action on the measures would be deferred at least until delivery of reports by their authors explaining to them in detail and that time would be allowed the house to analyze each of the documents.

Probe of Shelling Asked By Irish

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 5.—Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, takes a most serious view of the British shelling of Pettigoe, in freestate territory and has demanded from the British authorities a full inquiry into the circumstances.

It has been supposed that the Irish troops at Pettigoe were irregulars, not under control of the government provisions, but an official communique issued tonight from Beggars Bush, headquarters of the Irish republican army declares that there were no Irish troops in that district except those of the regular republican army. It is denied in the communique that the British troops were at any time fired on, and the British army statement that in consequence of the shooting of a motor car driver, Pettigoe was shelled is contradicted. The driver, it is asserted, was not killed until long after the shelling when there was an interchange of shots between the British and the retreating Irish troops.

REPUBLICANS HIT BACK AT DEMS IN TARIFF WAR

Watson Labels It Best Balance Of Any Presented

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A policy of striking back at opponents of the administration tariff bill was agreed upon today by senate republican leaders.

Senator Watson of Indiana delivered the first of the planned series of speeches in the senate which leaders said were designed not only to place the republican viewpoint on the tariff before the country, but also to disclose some of the sources of opposition to the bill.

Most of Senator Watson's address was directed at democratic attacks which have been made in the senate in the six weeks the bill has been under consideration.

In passing, however, he charged a foreign propaganda against the measure referring generally to those whom he said had sought to get the United States into the league of nations and specifically to some representatives of foreign nations in this country.

Characterizing the bill as the best balanced tariff measure ever presented to congress, Senator Watson asserted that if the democrats believed it to be one-half as "immoral or outrageous" as they claimed, they would permit its passage "in 15 minutes." He added that if this were last October there would be a senate vote at once.

In the three preceding trials the juries disagreed.

ARMY PROBING BECK SHOOTING

All Angles to Be Investigated

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 5.—The killing of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck, ranking officer at Post Field, Oklahoma, flying station, was again made the subject of official military investigation here today by an army board appointed by special order of the war department which met and adjourned with its various members instructed to investigate certain angles of the case. Lieutenant Colonel Beck was slain by Jean P. Day, wealthy oil operator and attorney on April 4. At a coroner's inquest Day testified that he returned home early in the morning and found Mrs. Day resisting the advances of the officer.

Day was exonerated by a coroner's jury and no charges were filed against him. An army board from Fort Sill, Okla., of which Post Field is a part, sat through the inquest and a report was made by the board to Secretary of War Weeks. The report was not made public.

The meeting of the board today continued only a few minutes. No announcement was made by its members, and it was said that nothing would be made public as to the board's actions, except that each member had been detailed to a certain feature of the case.

FILM ACTOR IS UNDER FIRE YET

Valentino May Still Face Charges

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Whether the charge of bigamy against Rodolph Valentino, film actor, dismissed today in the township court here, will be taken before the Los Angeles county grand jury, was still under consideration early tonight, District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine said. He indicated that he was disposed to accept the ruling of Justice of the Peace Walter Hanby, to the effect that there was slight chance of convicting Valentino before a jury. However, Mr. Wollwine added, he wanted time to go over the evidence carefully before announcing a decision.

Evidence Lacking

Justice Hanby's decision was that while there was no denial of the charge that Valentino married Miss Winifred Hudnut in Mexicali, Lower California, while he was still legally married to Miss Jean Acker, there was insufficient evidence that he lived with Mrs. Valentino number two in California, subsequent to the Mexicali ceremony.

The California code provides that in a case of an alleged bigamous marriage outside the state, proof of marital relations within the state followed such marriage, must be adduced in order to sustain the charge. Evidence in Justice Hanby's court was that Valentino and his second bride returned to California and passed two days in a cottage at Palm Springs, a desert resort in Riverside county, occupying separate rooms.

Says He's "Immensely Happy"

Valentino, through his attorneys, issued a statement in which he said he was "immensely happy with the outcome of the proceedings."

"Through ignorance of the law," the statement continued, "I married Miss Hudnut, not dreaming that I was breaking or violating any law of California. Nevertheless, I do realize now my lack of knowledge of the California laws and like any other law abiding citizen, would not under any conditions assume marital relationship with the present Mrs. Valentino until the time fixed by law shall have expired, upon which we will be married again here in Los Angeles."

Bergdoll Cases Upheld By Court

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The supreme court denied Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, Charles Braun, James E. Romig, Albert S. Mitchell and Harry Schuh permission to bring up for review the cases decided against them in the United States district court at Philadelphia and affirmed by the circuit court of appeals.

They were convicted of having aided Edwin R. and Grover C. Bergdoll, sons of Mrs. Bergdoll, to evade military service and were sentenced to fines and imprisonment, the prison sentences to be remitted provided the fines were paid by a date fixed by the court. While the case was on appeal to the supreme court the fines were paid under protest and it was held by the courts that this disposed of the issues, the judgment of the court having been satisfied.

Soldier Bonus Delayed in Senate

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5. — The soldiers' bonus will not be presented in the senate for several days, it was said today at the office of Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee. Convinced that the legislation will lead to a long fight, some republican leaders are strongly opposed to sidetracking the tariff for its consideration. On the other hand, some proponents of the legislation are anxious for speedy action as the executive departments which will have charge of administration of the legislation has estimated that it will take six months to get the machinery into operation.

Ford's Willing to Run for President But He Doesn't Want to Put Out Cold Cash It'll Take to Boost His Chance

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 5.—Henry Ford has intimated privately that he would run for president "if the people of the country desire him to do so," but "he would refuse to spend any money to bring about his nomination or election," according to William T. Kronberg, editor of a Dearborn newspaper, and one of the leaders in the Dearborn "Henry Ford for President" club.

Although he has made no public statement, Mr. Ford has intimated to members of the club that he would be in a receptive mood should the demand for his candidacy come from the people of the country, Mr. Kronberg told the Associated Press.

Members of the club who last week planned to see Mr. Ford and officially ask him to run for president, have decided to wait until after the club's permanent organization meeting at Dearborn tomorrow night, Mr. Kronberg said today. It is probable, Mr. Kronberg said that acommittee will be delegated tomorrow night to wait upon Mr. Ford some time during the week and make the official request.

LYNCHERS GUILTY OF MURDER, JUDGE ASSERTS

Texarkanian Demands Full Probe Negro Slaying There

By Associated Press.

TEXARKANA, Ark., June 5.—Declaring that every member of the mob which on the night of May 19 lynched the negro, Hulen Owens, slayer of Policeman R. C. Choate, is guilty of murder, Judge G. R. Haynie, of the Miller county circuit court, today, in his charge to the grand jury, demanded a full investigation of the lynching and the indictment of every participant that can be identified.

"Citizens must not take the law into their own hands," Judge Haynie asserted, referring to what seems to be a sentiment on the part of many people to let the matter drop.

"I am not going to pass it up," Judge Haynie told the jury how his brother, years ago, had been killed by a negro, adding that not even that circumstance could induce him to condone mob action.

Resolutions condemning the lynching and demanding grand jury action have been adopted by the chamber of commerce, the Rotary club, the Lions' club and other organizations.

KATY WILL GET PERMIT ASKED

Franchise Passes Second Reading

Following a lengthy argument by representatives of the railroad and protesting owners of adjacent property, and an even more lengthy discussion by members of the council in executive session, the franchise asked by the Katy to permit the erection of its new freight station between Ninth and Tenth on Ohio was passed, with a slight amendment on its second reading. The action, taken by unanimous vote after long and careful consideration by the council, indicates that the stand taken in a final one.

The amendment, which provides for the setting back of the building ten feet from the curb line to provide for a sidewalk along the property on Ohio. The railroad company originally asked permission to build its teamway flush with the curb line. The amendment will, however, be acceptable to the railroad company, C. C. Huff, general attorney, who appeared before the council, indicated in expressing thanks to that body. Property owners indicated similar satisfaction.

The railroad's side of the case was presented by Mr. Huff and by Leslie Humphreys. They were accompanied by W. M. McGregor and Orville Bullington. J. M. McFall, owner of the property across Ninth from the new station, appeared in protest, as did Miles O'Reilly. They contended that the original plan to build the team way for the platform flush with the curb would hurt the value of all the property on Ohio. Mr. McFall declared that it would hurt his own less than that of any other property owner.

He insisted that the building to the curb line was not warranted and more than the railroad was entitled to the property damage being placed to him in the taking up of parking space and for foot passage in the elimination of the side walk.

Mr. Huff urged the necessity of the new facilities for the railroad, and urged the advantages of the $200,000 terminal over the makeshift used for many years. Both he and Mr. Humphries contended that the new structure would enhance rather than hurt the value of adjoining property. Similar action to that requested from this council had been granted in many other cities entered by the road was pointed to. The improvements made by the company here in the immediate past was recounted, and the desire to build a station mentioned as a feature of that improvement program, designed to afford better Katy service here.

"You can't build a town with one railroad and every railroad equipped to give real service is that much help," he declared.

CUT FOUR OFF POLICE FORCE

Four more are to be taken off the police force, bringing its numerical strength down from 29 to 25, it was decided by the city council last night. The action was taken at the suggestion of Mayor Collier, who proposed it as a policy measure.

An even more drastic cut was proposed—which would have brought the strength of the department down to 16. This was vigorously opposed by Commissioner Fitts, who indicated belief that such a cut would cut police protection below that demanded by public safety.

said. First, whether there had been a correct selection of the parties to be sued; second, whether the parties now being incorporated were subject to suit; third, whether the United Mine Workers of America had been engaged in a conspiracy or in the destruction of property for which that organization and its officers could be held liable; fourth, whether there was evidence to show that the conspiracy alleged did restrain or monopolize interstate commerce, and fifth, whether the trial court, in charging the jury, had coerced them into returning the verdict. There had been no misjoinder of the parties under the laws of Arkansas, where the case was tried, the supreme court held.

In view of federal legislation, the court announced "that such organizations are suable in the federal courts for their acts and that funds accumulated to be expended in conducting strikes are subject to execution in suits for torts committed by such unions in strikes. On the ground that there was nothing in evidence to show that the international union or international board of the United Mine Workers had authorized the strike, or took part in preparation for it, or in its maintenance, or had ratified it by paying any of the expenses, the court concluded that the international union and its officers should have been held by the trial court as subject to joint liability with the district and local organizations and officers for participation in the conspiracy or for the destruction of property incident to the strike.

Organization Liable

The authority placed by members of the district No. 21 in their officers to order a strike, it was held, made the district organization responsible for any unlawful injuries inflicted during the conduct of the strike and made the fund accumulated for strike purposes by the district subject to the payment of any judgment which is recognized.

It was necessary, however, in order to hold district No. 21 liable in this case under the anti-trust act, to establish that the conspiracy to attack the Bache-Denman mines and stop non-union employment there was the intent to restrain interstate commerce to monopolize it and subject it to the control of the union, Chief Justice Taft stated, adding, that while coal mining is not interstate commerce, and obstruction of coal mining is not a direct obstruction to interstate commerce in coal, congress has the power to subject such acts to national supervision and restraint. It also has the power, the court held, to punish conspiracies in which such practices are part of the plan to hinder, restrain or monopolize interstate commerce.

While unincorporated labor organizations could be sued under the Sherman anti-trust law, for triple damages for loss to property caused by them, there was nothing in the evidence of the present case, it was declared to show that the acts complained of were aimed by the labor unions to restrain interstate trade. Questions relating to the charge to the jury were dismissed without examination by the court, in view of the effect of its decision holding that restraint of interstate commerce had not been the object of the strike.

the platform committee for the Houston senatorial district; the late Miles Crowley was a member for the Galveston senatorial district. Johnston and Crowley were the two last ditchers. They constituted the minority of the committee that drafted and reported the platform of the Texas democracy in that memorable year. Johnston is in retirement; Crowley is dead. Prohibition is a settled issue. Woman suffrage is a settled issue.

HARRY T. WARNER IS NOT A tallow dipper. He moves with the procession. He bows to the will of the majority although he does to subscribe to the doctrine that the will of the people is the voice of the Lord. His entrance into the gubernatorial free for all came in the nature of a surprise to his friends the state over. This time the unexpected did happen. There appears to be a merry row a-brewing all along the line under the political skies of Texas. This year there are 1,250,000 voters. This year a vast number of people are restless and wish to punish someone. This year the Non-Partisans under another name are very busy. This year there may be a whole lot of surprises and many old familiar faces turned to the wall.

KENNEL CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Local Owners In First Meeting

The proposed kennel club became a reality last night when a large number of local dog fanciers met at Collier & Landon's sporting goods store and formed the Wichita Falls Kennel club.

Claude Woods was elected president and three vice presidents, H. F. Weldon, L. O. Landon and Dr. E. P. Wratten were chosen. W. B. McClain was selected for secretary and C. V. Lemon is to be his assistant. C. E. McCutcheon was chosen treasurer.

Officers Elected

The board of governors is composed of Fred Wootsey, J. L. Nabb, Allen D. Montgomery, Mrs. R. C. Thaxton, E. G. Hill, Fred Weeks, Dr. Thornburg, W. I. Cameron, Joe Henson, Dr. Prince of Electra, Mr. Ahearn of Burkburnett, and E. P. Bass.

A constitution and by-laws similar to that of the Fort Worth Kennel club was adopted.

The second Tuesday in each month was selected as the regular meeting night of the club and the annual meeting will be held on the regular meeting night in March each year.

Annual dues will be $2, that the club may meet such obligations as become necessary and remain in good standing with the American Kennel club, with which the local organization will be affiliated.

An initial membership of 70 is anticipated and a committee will soon begin a canvass of the town for the purpose of extending the privilege of the club to all who appreciate dogs.

The club will undertake to secure dog legislation from the present city administration which will protect animals which are worth while. Strays, which are infected with diseases which often destroy valuable dogs will be eliminated.

To Fight Dog Thieves

Another movement of the club will be an effort to curg dog thefts. It is estimated that no less than 100 valuable dogs were stolen from Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory in the past year. Many that were highly prized and commanded attractive premiums disappeared mysteriously. No doubt the new club will assure added protection for their properties.

The club was not organized for show purposes only. At the regular meetings, discussions such as will prove valuable will be the chief object. Professional dog men will be brought here to instruct in keeping and handling the animals.

May Hold Show

Since the annual state show is held in connection with the state fair at Dallas, and the Fort Worth club holds their exhibition at the same time as the fat stock show, the local club plans their showing during the Texas-Oklahoma fair, which is now seemingly assured.

Although owners of hunting dogs are represented by a larger membership than any other ine kind, still there will be no preference shown. Owners of collies, terriers, police, airedales and all others will be given equal consideration by the club.

Fitts Says They're Watching Him Close

"Say what you please, the police job is nothing, unless interesting," declared Police Commissioner Fitts Monday. "This recall petition which is now being circulated against me is not the beginning—it is pretty far along the line, and is not quite as exciting as some of the things that have gone before.

"In fact, things have been so exciting that for months I have rarely gone anywhere except with a witness or two along. Even the most innocent seeming calls that have to do with my private business, have to be guarded against.

"McCormick has faced the same thing—they would frame either of us in a minute if we ever got caught flat footed.

"Some time ago I got a call of this kind—a call to talk over the trading of some real estate. I was wise, however, and I was fishing at the time the call was to have been made, and the pretty tableau which had been arranged, with witnesses present, failed to materialize.

"So, so far, the furthest they have been able to get were the new rumors which they sprang every few days.

"This sure is the life."

WOMAN SHADOWED

Mrs. Lois Canfield Rush and her experiences as seen by the artist.

DORCHESTER, Mass., June 5.—An amazing story of terrorism from espionage, of spectral shadows continually dogging her, of phantom faces peering at her and ghostly figures stalking her came to light here when Mrs. Lois Canfield Rush appealed to the legal aid society for protection.

Mrs. Rush is related by blood to Richard Canfield, peer of gamblers, and by marriage to Julia Arthur, the actress.

Six years ago she married Albert E. Rush in Needham, Mass. And since that day, Mrs. Rush says, a mysterious band of men and women, seemingly guided by an unseen hand, has trailed her every movement.

"They're material spooks," says Mrs. Rush. "I am convinced of that, but I cannot conceive a motive for their actions."

Now Mrs. Rush patiently waits, confident that private detectives will solve the mystery which has hounded her so many years.

HARVEY-CULLUM HAS COMPLETION

New Well Drilled Into 1900 Foot

Flowing at the rate of 1,000 or better, the Harvey-Cullum No. 3 Rio Bravo in section 31, was drilled into the 1900 foot sand Monday, resulting in a sensational completion. The new well is 500 feet north of the No. 2 of the lease, which opened up the 1900 foot sand in this new territory more than two miles north and west of the nearest deep producers.

The bringing in of this third well larger than the other producers, and ranking up with the big producers in the older pool in size, makes this west side of the South Electra field of increasing importance. The numerous tests, in section 31, and further west, and north, as well as the tests scattered between the two groups of deep producers, all are of greater interest.

The Harvey-Cullum No. 2 Rio Bravo, the discovery well in the 1900 foot sand for this new pool, was a 750 barrel producer, flush, and the Texas Company's No. 216, offsetting the Rio Bravo well, while smaller than the first well, made several hundred barrels.

Unidentified Boy Killed By Freight Train at Waurika

An unidentified boy, between the age of 17 and 19, was killed by a freight train near Waurika Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, according to information received here last night.

The information, which contained a complete description of the youth, stated that it is believed the youth lived in Wichita Falls.

Companions who had been beating their way with him from Oklahoma said that he had told them he was coming to Wichita Falls, and that he had been in the latter state visiting an aunt.

The boy lost his life when he fell from a moving freight train, the communication received at police headquarters stated. The description of him follows:

Hair light; complexion light; weight about 125 pounds; had on blue overalls beneath which he wore dark trousers; wore dark coat and grey cap which had fur-lining; black laced shoes.

WICHITA FALLS TRADE EVANGELISTS

THEODORE Roosevelt in the long ago, christened this section of Texas "the garden of the Lord." He had traveled in many lands and he knew. Within a radius of two hundred miles of Wichita Falls there is a country fair to look upon, where the people are progressive, the attractions alluring, the possibilities for growth illimitable and the future dazzling. All the surrounding towns and surrounding country are inviting and to these fertile fields the interprising trade excursionists of Wichita Falls depart this morning for a two days recreation tour in which business will be sandwiched with pleasure.

All the towns in northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma which are tributary to Wichita Falls will be visited.

Old acquaintances will be renewed. New acquaintances will be made. There is nothing like the human touch of personal contact. All the people of northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma have interests which should be allied.

All are interested in the growth of trade. All are interested in the development of the country. All are interested in the coming of new capital seeking investment and new settlers seeking homes. All are interested in the rapid growth of city and country. All are interested in the forming and the maintaining of friendly relations along lines of mutual advantage.

It pays for the people of a community or a territory regardless of state lines to get together, to pull together, to plan together and to work together. Dallas sends its trade excursions everywhere throughout the west almost to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains. Many Texas cities of lesser population caught the spirit long ago. They know the value of travel and traffic which is born of personal contact and the confidence which it inspires.

Business men of Wichita Falls adopted this plan in the busy boom years. They kept it up. They have extended the trade zone of their city and they have made friends of the people in other enterprising cities and towns and contingent territory.

Irrigation is coming. It is certain to make Wichita Falls a city of 100,000 souls before the next census shall be ordered in 1930. It is certain to make Wichita Falls a manufacturing and jobbing center, a distributing center, and Wichita Falls has all the transportation facilities and its north and south and east and west railways are certain to make it a shipping center second to none in the south or the west.

LANDIS MAY TAKE PART

ATTORNEY General H. M. Daugherty may call as his assistant former Federal Judge K. M. Landis to play a legal part in the prosecution of the war fraud cases to be pushed by the government. Landis has been offered the job. As a judge he was a terror to criminals.

He is high commissioner of organized baseball but this will not interfere with his acceptance of the Daugherty offer. The attorney general is not going to resign. He is not going to wither and die. He is picking for assistant prosecutors men who have established reputation and the confidence of the American people. His enemies say he is not a great lawyer.

They must admit that he is picking as prosecutors men of national reputation as lawyers or jurists. If there are war fraud cases they are going to be pushed to the limit. Senators Carraway and Watson are reminded of the story of the British army officer in India who was fond of tiger hunting.

He said to a newspaper writer, "It is rare sport to hunt a tiger, but it is hell when the tiger hunts you." Carroway and Watson went out tiger hunting. It was rare sport while they hunted the tiger, but now that the tiger is hunting them it is just what the British army officer expressed in his interview with the man of letters.

In a few months, democrats in civil service may be rare enough to come under the protection of the game laws.

And as we study this jazz age, we begin to doubt that other Darwinian theory about the survival of the fittest.

If his telephone voice has the sound of a hardboiled egg he probably is a dried-up little runt with a yellow streak.

A CAPITAL VIEWPOINT

By HERBERT COREY

CHEERS for Secretary of State Hughes. Heavy, full-blooded, guttural cheers. But not the ringing sort. It is very hard to get the newspaper bunch in Washington to cheer ringingly for any one.

The bunch gathers in the corridor outside the diplomatic reception room. Or outside a diplomatic reception room. It smokes cigarettes, talks politics, ruminates over Harry Daugherty and the war profiteers, takes a few flitting slaps at our honored president and watches the newest woman reporter. Sometimes it then turns away its eyes. Sometimes it goes on watching. An under-secretary or something opens the door. The bunch files in. Some park on a roundabout, over-stuffed leather divan in the center of the room. The air immediately becomes blue and thick:

"Gentlemen."

Mr. Secretary Hughes has stepped in. His blue eyes gleam. One would say, at the first gleam, that this is one of the nicest, most friendly, most likable men in the world. So nice that one would say—at first gleam—that he is almost easy. His teeth shine. Fine, large, strong teeth, like those of the wolf in the story of Little Red Ridinghood. Extraordinarily fine, large, white teeth. His beard is brushed both ways to the last hair. Clothes well fitting, easy, dignified. The whole air of the man is one of competence and good humor and success. He enjoys his job. One can see that.

"This morning," he begins. Then he expounds the particular problem that the state department wishes to expound that day. He is often almost alarmingly candid. Memories of Robert Lansing, who hated newspaper men and William Jennings Bryan who did not always know what it was all about, overcome veteran reporters. They sob brokenly. To think that a secretary of state would actually take the public into the confidence of his department is like the shadow of a great rock on a weary day.

"This," they murmur brokenly "this is almost too much."

The reporters have stopped smoking. Most of them have stopped smoking, anyhow. Those who persist learn in time that smoking is not relished. Various questions are asked. Mr. Hughes replies with such smiles, such happiness, such a bluebirdish enjoyment that the reporters smile back. One feels that these little playmates are running the state between them. One feels that the Fourth Estate is indeed entering into its own. One feels that true democracy is hitting on all eight.

"What about Haiti?" asks some reporter who has been deceived by this illusive air of cordial candor.

"Nothing to say," says Mr. Hughes. The smile persists but there is an icy gleam now about the teeth. Their resemblance to the furnishings of the animal in the nursery tale become more striking. Mr. Hughes' blue eyes become frosty. The smile persists—I have said the smile persists—but there is a warning in it. The man's bearing is that of an alert fencer. He is on his toes.

"Or Santo Domingo?"

"Nothing to say."

The reporters consider this statement in silence for a time. It is final. It is definite. There may, perhaps, be something to say but it will not be said. A silence grows. The veteran reporters cheer up. After all, the reserves of diplomacy are not being seriously broken in upon. Mr. Hughes has established a moral ascendency. He becomes social, lovable, pleasing again:

"Then, gentlemen, if that is all?"

The audience is over. The reporters file out. Cheering, no doubt, but cheering almost inaudibly.

THE CASE OF MOORE

HON. Guinn Williams ran like a deer in his race for congress and won the shoes of the late Lucian W. Parrish. He came within an ace of capturing half the votes cast at the special election held on May 13th. Judge W. S. Moore of Gainesville, Cooke county, kindly withdrew from the race to make way for the man from Wise county.

This happened on the eve of the election. Now Moore has filed application with the democratic chairman of Cooke county for his name to be placed on the ballot in the July primary election for congressman from the Thirteenth district. This is a funny old world. Williams led all the candidates in ten of the twelve counties and if Moore had remained in the race it wouldn't have made any difference. Williams would have a plurality without the vote of Cooke county.

This is what his friends say. Dick Collins of the Wise County Messenger, a close, personal friend of Williams, tells this story: "A Wise county man happened to be in the city of Fort Worth on the 14th of May after news had come of the victory of the Wise county runner. He turned to the Hon. Wm. A. Hanger and said, 'Guinn is the best mixer in Texas.' 'He is,' said Hanger 'and the best fixer'." Should Moore make the race subject to the July primary then the former state senator and present congressman may be compelled to come home and mix and fix to the best of his ability. Politics is certainly a funny game.

THE WAR ISN'T OVER YET FOR SOME FOLKS

The Once Over

IF STRAW HAT SALESMEN TOLD THE TRUTH.

Scene: Any hat store this time of year.

Characters: A salesman and a customer in search of a straw bonnet.

Customer, trying on the fifty-seventh hat: How does it look?

Straw Hat Salesman: Ridiculous! Awful! None of our hats seems to become you.

Customer, trying on another: How's this one?

Salesman: You're a scream in it! I dunno why the boss ever put in such a stock of funny lookin' lids this spring. (Handing him another model) Try this one.

Customer: Howzit look, eh?

Salesman: Terrible! Gimme it back so I can hide it where no poor, unsuspecting customer will ever get it.

Customer: Are all the hats you have shown me the latest styles?

Salesman: Don't make me laugh. They're a lot of old junk no other store would buy. Most of 'em were left over from last year, but the boss told us to go ahead and work 'em off on the poor fish who come in here. Try this one, it's not quite as old as the others.

Customer: Howzit?

Salesman: You hand me a great laugh in a hat like that. Honest, I'd rather try hats on customers than go to a good vaudeville show.

Customer: Dya think a high crown looks better on me than a low one?

Salesman: I don't think it makes any difference; one hat looks as bad as another on you. Try this one—it's got a wider brim.

Customer: Howzit?

Salesman: You're a sight in it. None of our hats look good on you, that's a cinch. (Climbing up the ladder) Here's a model you haven't tried.

Customer: I'm sorry to bother you so much.

Salesman (cheerily): No bother at all. I like it. My idea of a good time is climbing around shelves taking down and putting away straw hats. There are two or three hundred hats left that you haven't seen yet.

Customer: But I've seen so many!

Salesman: That's all right. I'm not getting out all these hats just to please you. . . I like to LOOK at 'em myself!

Customer (putting on one that covers his head like a bowl): Howzit?

Salesman: The worst yet.

(The curtain will be lowered five minutes to denote the passing of an hour during which 3,456 straw hats are tried on the young man.)

Customer (undecided): I dunno what to select.

Salesman: Don't decide now. Go home and think it over. We never try to get a customer to buy a hat the same day he looks at it. Talk things over with the wife and come back in a week or two.

Customer: Does a name on a hat mean anything?

Salesman: Naw, it's all bunk. The hat makers stick allotta names of dukes and princes and other bums on hats just because they sound pretty, but a straw lid named after One Eyed Connolly is just as good as one named after the Duke of Bourbon.

Customer (getting up nerve enough to leave without buying): Well, I dunno. . . I guess I'll think it over.

Salesman: Fine! As a matter of fact if I was you I'd wear the old derby another six weeks and not buy a new hat.

Customer: Perhaps I will. Good day, and thank you for taking down so many hats.

Customer: Not at all. (Surveying the pile of lids scattered about the counter, floor and table.) Think of the lovely time I'll have putting them back in the boxes!

Customer: Good day!

Salesman: S'long! (following him to the door.) Oh, just a minute: don't forget to step in the hat store a few doors below here. They carry a much better line than we do!

There seems to be a general impression that a pleasure resort is a place where one can resort to anything in quest of pleasure.

After a few months the bride outgrows the notion that two tremulous slices of bread enclosing a lettuce leaf making something to eat.

A lot of people think thrift consists in saving a portion of each week's pay in order to have plenty to spend on a vacation.

Rippling Rhymes

DIFFERENT TASTES.

I like to sit by a spreading tree—day after day you may see me there!—and read of perils on land and sea, of heroes bold and of damsels fair. I read my books till the long day cools, and the shadows lengthen on field and flat; I see men pass with their golfing tools, and I wonder what they can see in that. My friend Jim Jerk has a gorgeous wad, and he goes away on his ten-year tramps; he sends me cards from strange towns abroad, and letters sealed with unholy stamps. And he might sit 'neath a stately yew, with a good warm book and a stogie fat; but off he travels to Timbuctoo—I wonder what he can see in that! And some go off to the sombre woods, to picnic there, on the grass to lie, to eat stale doughnuts and kindred goods, and get their feet in the custard pie; I see them go with their baskets big, to the dark abode of the bug and bat, where the skeeters skeet and the chiggers chig—I wonder what they can see in that! The joy of one makes another sick, the fun of James is a grief to me; give me a volume that has a kick, a tale of perils on land and sea! Then James may off to the jungle speed to chase a tiger or other cat; I'll watch him go as I sit and read, an dwonder what he can see in that.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Ward himself was no lover of a fight, but he saw now that starvation might stare them in the face with their food gone; and everything be lost with the loss of the girl. For food and muey a much more cowardly man than Bender Ward would fight to the death.

Up the face of the cliff they hurried, expecting momentarily to be either challenged or fired upon by those above them. Divine and his party looked down with mixed emotions upon those who were escending in so threatening a manner. They found themselves truly between the devil and the deep sea.

Ward and his men were halfway up the cliff, yet Divine had made no move to repel them. He glanced timorously toward the dark forest behind from which he momentarily expected to see the savage, snarling faces of the head-hunters appear.

"Surrender! You swabs," called Ward from below, "or we'll string the last mother's son of you to the yardarm."

For reply Blanco hurled a heavy fragment of rock at the assaulters. It grased perilously close to Ward, against whom Blanco cherished a keen hatred. Instantly Ward's revolver barked, the bullet whistling close by Divine's head. L. Cortwrite Divine, cotillion leader, ducked behind Theriere's breastwork, where he lay sprawled upon his belly, trembling in terror.

Bony Sawyer and Red Sanders followed the example of their commander. Blanco and Wison alone made any attempt to repel the assault. The big negro ran to Divine's side and snatched the terror-stricken man's revolver from his belt. Then turning he fired at Ward. The bullet, missing its intended victim, pierced the heart of a sailor directly behind him, and as the man crumpled to the ground, rolling down the steep declivity, his fellows sought cover.

Wison followed up the advantage with a shower of well-aimed missiles, and then hostilities ceased temporarily.

"Have they gone?" queried Divine, with trembling lips, noticing the quiet that followed the shot.

"Gone nothin', yo big cowahd," replied Blanco. "Do you done suppose dat two men is a-gwine to stan' off five? Ef yo white-livered skunks 'ud git up an' fight we might have a chanct. I'se a good min' to cut out yo cowahdly heart fer yo, das wot I has—a-lyin' dere on you belly settin' dat kin' o' example to yo men!"

Divine's terror had placed him beyond the reach of contumely or reproach.

"What's the use of fighting them?" he whimpered. "We should never have left them. It's all the fault of that fool Theriere. What can we do against the savages of this awful island if we divide our forces? They will pick us off a few at a time just as they picked off Miller and Swenson, Theriere and Byrne. We ought to tell Ward about it, and call this foolish battle off."

"Now you're talkin'," cried Bony Sawyer. "I'm not a-goin' to squat up here any longer with my friends a-shootin' at me from below an' a lot of wild heathen creeping down on me from above to cut off my bloomin' head."

"Same here!" chimed in Red Sanders.

Blanco looked toward Wison. For his own part the negro would not have been averse to returning to the fold could the thing be accomplished without danger of reprisal on the part of Skipper Simms and Ward; but he knew the men so well that he feared to trust them even should they seemingly sequiesce to any such proposal. On the other hand, he reasoned, it would be as much to their advantage to have the deserters return to them as it would to the deserters themselves, for when they had heard the story told by Red Sanders and Wison of the murder of the others of the party they too would realize the necessity for maintaining the strength of the little company to its fullest.

"I don't see that we're goin' to gain nothin' by fightin' 'em," said Wilson. "That ain't nothin' in it any more nohow for nobody since the girl's gorn. Let's chuck it, an' see wot terms we can make with Squint Eye."

"Well," grumbled the negro, "I can't fight 'em alone. What yo doin' dere, Bony?"

During the conversation Bony Sawyer had been busy with a stick and a piece of rag, and now as he turned toward his companions once more they saw that he had rigged a white flag of surrender. None interfered as he raised it above the edge of the breastwork.

Immediately there was a hail from below. It was Ward's voice.

"Surrenderin', eh? Comin' to your senses, are you?" he shouted.

Divine, feeling that immediate danger from bullets was past, raised his head above the edge of the earthwork.

"We have something to communicate, Mr. Ward," he called.

"Spit it out, then; I'm a-listenin'," called back the mate.

"Miss Harding, Mr. Theriere, Byrne, Miller and Swenson have been captured and killed by native head-hunters, said Divine.

Ward's eyes went wide, and he blew out his cheeks in surprise. Then his face went back with an angry scowl.

"You see what you done now, you blitherin' fools, you!" he cried, "with your funny business? You gone an' killed the goose what laid the golden eggs. Thought you'd get it all, didn't you? and now nobody won't get nothin', unless it is the halter. Nice lot o' numbskulls you be, an' whimperin' 'round now expectin' of us to take you back—well, I reckon not, not on your measly lives," and with that he raised his revolver to fire again at Divine.

The society man toppled over backward into the pit behind the breastwork before Ward had a chance to pull the trigger.

"Hol' on there mate!" cried Bony Sawyer; "there ain't no call now fer gettin' excited. Wait until you hearn all we gotta say. You can't blame us pore sailormen. It was this here fool dude and that scoundrel Theriere that put us up to it. They told us that you an' Skipper Simms was a-fixin' to double-cross us all an' leave us here to starve on this Gawd-forsaken islan'. Theriere said that he wah with you when you planned it. That you wanted to git rid o' divide, as many of us as you could so that you'd have more of the ransom to divide. So all we done was in self-defense, as it were."

"Why not let bygones be bygones an' all of us join forces ag'in' these murderin' heathen? There won't be any too many of us at best—Red an' Wison seen more'n two thousan' of the man-eatin' devils. They're a-creepin' up on us from behin' right this minute, an' you can lay to that; an' the chances are that they got some special kind o' route into that there cove, an' maybe they're a-watchin' of you right now!"

Ward turned an apprehensive glance to either side. There was logic in Bony's proposal. They couldn't spare a man now. Later he could punish the offenders at his leisure—when he didn't need them any further.

"Will you swear on the Book to do your duty by Skipper Simms an' me if we take you back?" asked Ward.

"You bet," answered Bosy Sawyer.

The others nodded their heads and Divine sprang up and started down toward Ward.

"Hol' on you!" commanded the mate. "This here arrangement don' include you—it's jes' between Skipper Simms an' his sailors. You're a rank outsider, as' you butts in an' starts a mutiny. Er you come back you gotta stand trial fer that—see?"

"You better duck, mister," advised Red Sanders; "they'll hang you sure."

Divine went white. To face trial before two such men as Simms and Ward meant death, of that he was positive. To flee into the forest meant death, almost equally certain, and much more horrible. The man went to his knees, lifting supplicating hands to the mate.

"For God's sake, Mr. Ward," he cried, "be merciful. I was led into this by Theriere. He lied to me just as he did to the men. You can't kill me—it would be murder—they'd hang you for it."

"We'll hang for this muss you got us into anyway, of we're ever caught," growled the mate. "Ef you hadn't a-carried the girl off to be murdered we might have had enough ransom money to have got clear some way, but now you gone and cooked the whole goose fer the lot of us."

"You can collect ransom on me," cried Divine, clutching at a straw. "I'll pay a hundred thousand myself the day you set me down in a civilized port, safe and free."

Ward laughed in his face.

"You ain't got a cent, you four-flusher," he cried. "Clinker put us next to that long before we sailed from Frisco."

"Clinker lies," cried Divine. "He doesn't know anything about it—I'm rich."

"Wot's de use ob chewin' de rag 'bout all dis," cried Blanco, seeing where he might square himself with Ward and Simms easily. "Does yo' take back all us sailormen, Mr. Ward, an' promise not to punish none o' us, ef we swear to stick by yo in de future?"

"Yes," replied the mate.

Blanco took a step toward Divine.

"Den yo come along too as a prisoner, white man," and the burly black gasped Divine by the scruff of the neck and forced him before him down the steep trail toward the cove, and so the mutineers returned to the command of Skipper Simms, and L. Cortwrite Divine went with them as a prisoner, charged with a crime the punishment for which has been death since men sailed the seas.

CHAPTER XI.

The Village of Yoka.

For several minutes Barbara Harding lay where she had collapsed after the keen short sword of the daimio had freed her from the menace of his lust.

She was in a half-stupor that took cognisance only of a freezing terror and exhaustion. Presently, however, she became aware of her contact with the corpse beside her, and with a stifled cry she shrank away from it.

Slowly the girl regained her self control and with it came the realisation of the extremity of her danger. She rose to a sitting posture and turned her wide eyes toward the doorway to the adjoining room—the women and children seemed yet wrapped in slumber. It was evident that the man's scream had not disturbed them.

Barbara gained her feet and moved softly to the doorway. She wondered if she could cross the intervening space to the outer exit without detection. Once in the open she could flee into the jungle, and then there was a chance at least that she might find her way to the coast and Theriere.

She gripped the short sword which she still held, and took a step into the darkness of the chamber she had just quitted. The woman sat up and looked around. Then she rose and threw some sticks upon the fire that burned at one side of the dwelling. She crossed to a shelf and took down a cooking utensil. Barbara saw that she was about to commence the preparation of breakfast.

All hope of escape was thus ended, and the girl cautiously closed the door between the two rooms. Then she felt about the smaller apartment for some heavy object with which to barricade herself; but her search was fruitless. Finally she bethought herself of the corpse. That would hold the door against the accident of a child or dog pushing it open—it would be better than nothing, but could she bring herself to touch the loathsome thing?

The instinct of self-preservation will work wonders even with a frail and delicate woman. Barbara Harding steeled herself to the task, and after several moments of effort she succeeded in rolling the dead man against the door. The scraping sound of the body as she dragged it into position had sent cold shivers running up her spine.

She had removed the man's long sword and armor before attempting to move him, and now she crouched beside the corpse with both the swords beside her—she would sell her life dearly. Theriere's words came back to her now as they had when she was struggling in the water after the wreck of the Halfmoon: "but, by George, I intend to go down fighting." Well, she could do no less.

She could hear the movement of several persons in the next room. The voices of women and children came to her distinctly. Many of the words were Japanese, but others were of a tongue with which she was not familiar.

Presently her own chamber began to lighten. She looked over her shoulder and saw the first faint rays of dawn showing through a small aperture near the roof and at the opposite end of the room. She rose and moved quickly toward it. By standing on tiptoe and pulling herself up a trifle with her hands upon the sill she was able to raise her eyes above the bottom of the window frame.

Methodist Women Meet In Missionary Society To Make Their Reports

Excellent reports from the leaders of circles and officers of the Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church, south, featured the monthly all-day meeting held at the church Monday.

The morning session was devoted to a social hour and the afternoon to business. Devotionals were led by Mrs. E. B. Gorsline, who took for her subject, "Service," and Mrs. D. J. Carithers, the society president, gave an interesting talk on the district conference meeting held in Electra last week. Mrs. W. W. Silk talked on the auxiliary, the membership in comparison to the church membership, and outlined plans for the ideal society for next year. Mrs. Guy Raley gave her impressions of the conference. All the talks were enjoyed by the members and proved very instructive.

Mrs. Grover Bullington, chairman of the cradle roll department, gave a splendid report of her work, as did Mrs. E. B. Gorsline of the social service work. Mrs. J. W. Stone read an interesting letter from the Virginia K. Johnson home, thanking the society for a machine and other supplies sent, and the corresponding secretary read a letter from Hubert Allen, the young man the society is supporting in college.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of two silver loving cups to Circles One and Four, by the Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, as prizes for good work and attendance. The trophies will be in charge of the circle leaders, Mesdames F. P. Warren and O. B. Womack.

At the noon hour, a luncheon consisting of fried chicken, cream potatoes, English peas and blackberry pie was served to 27 members of Circle One; 28 of Circle Two; 16 of Circle Three, and 37 of Circle Four.

Saturday when the service committee, composed of Misses Ethel McDowell, Irene Davidson, Nina Mae Durham, Erma Durnal, Agnes Blalock and Mesdames Ramey Mathis and Sadie Carter, were hostesses. The party was given complimentary to Miss Florence Jackson, the retiring president, and the hours were pleasantly spent in playing progressive hearts. Miss Eldora Bunnesburg won the favor for high score, a dainty novelty powder puff; Mrs. Edna Vogt was consoled for low, with a lingerie set.

Miss Jackson was presented a beautiful dresser set of monogramed ivory, the presentation being made by Miss Carrie Webster, in an appropriate address. Miss Irene Davidson presented the club gift, a novelty perfume bottle, to Miss Agnes Blalock, who so ably assisted with the Tuesday Night, the club paper, during the past year.

The cafeteria, where refreshments of combination fruit ice and angel food cake were served, was beautifully decorated for the affair in sweet peas and crepe paper blue birds, and a chair attractively decorated in the favored blossoms and tulle, was arranged for the honoree.

Several interesting impromptu talks were given.

MR. BLACKSNAKE CHANGES HIS SUIT.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd.)

Now that Mr. Blacksnake had made up his mind to have a new suit he was in a hurry to get it. So he hurried about looking for a retired place in which to take off his old suit, but all the time he took the utmost pains not to be seen. Ordinarily he does not care who sees him, but getting rid of an old suit for a new one is a very serious matter with Mr. Blacksnake. In the first place he feels very uncomfortable while he is getting the old suit off, and his temper, never of the best, is very, very short then. Also he has rather a helpless feeling. You see, he cannot slip his suit off easily in the way a boy can. He is like the little girl who has a dress with a great many hooks and eyes where she cannot get at them easily, and so must take considerable time, and sometimes lose both temper and patience.

At last he found just the place he was looking for. It was on the edge of the Green Forest, where the brush grew thick around a little pile of old logs. There was room to crawl under these. You know, Mr. Blacksnake does not require very much room, and here he found plenty for his purpose. He felt sure that no one would disturb him there, and that was a very important matter. Still more important was the fact that two of those logs were just far enough apart to make it a tight squeeze for him to wriggle between them. He smiled when he saw this. It was going to make it much easier to get that old suit off. You see, he has no hands with which to pull it off as Old Mr. Toad pulls his suit off, and so he has to try some other way.

He glided all around under and between the logs to make sure that no one else was there, and then he glided this way and that way through the brush to make sure that no one was hiding there. At last he was satisfied that he would not be disturbed, and he hurried back to the pile of logs to begin the task of getting off his old suit. Now, you know Old Mother Nature has queer ways of giving her children new clothes. All this time Mr. Blacksnake really had his new suit on underneath the old suit. He had to get the old suit off, but he wouldn't have to put the new one on because it was already on. Old Mother Nature had attended to that.

He went straight to the two logs that were so close together, and then he began to push and wriggle and squirm as he tried to pass between them. He puffed and he blew and I suspect that if he had been anybody but a snake he would have grunted. It was easy enough to get his neck through after he had got his head through, but the thickest part of his body was a terribly tight squeeze. Little by little he managed to get through. When enough of him was through to allow him to lift his head and look back he gave a little sigh of relief. You see, his old suit had caught between those two logs and he was pulling himself right out of it just the same way in which you pull your hand out of a glove.

When he saw this he went to work again and pulled harder than ever. He was afraid that that old suit might pull loose from the logs; but it didn't, and presently as he got the thickest part of his body through the old suit came off easier. A few more wriggles and pulls and he was out of it altogether. There it lay, turned wrong side out, complete, clear to the tip of his slender tail. And the funny thing was that instead of being black it was white. Yes, sir, it was white, and so thin that you could almost look through it! But his new suit was black, oh, so black! And it was very handsome. Right away Mr. Blacksnake was in a hurry to show it off, and he didn't even give his old suit another look as he rushed away.

Now, what do you think—all the time he had supposed no one was about a certain thrifty little person of the Green Forest had been watching him.

ANOTHER WICHITA FALLS BEAUTY SPOT

By MABEL CARTER

No. 14 of Series

Conspicuous among the many real beauty spots of Wichita Falls, and one that calls forth complimentary remarks from all who pass that way, is the beautiful and massive home and grounds of the Bob Waggoner place on Tilden. The home, built of red brick, is one of the largest and finest in the city, and the ground among the most beautiful and artistic. Laid off and planted by an experienced landscape gardener only a few years ago in many plants of rare kinds, the growth of the shrubbery has been most remarkable, and the comparatively new place has the appearance of one established many years.

Evergreen arbor-vitae, bay trees, southern pines and yucca flowers are featured in the shrubbery near the house, while an attractive lattice vine arbor covered with running roses and ivy under which benches are arranged, where the fragrance of the flowers and the coolness of the evening may be enjoyed, is an added attraction to the south side of the house. Urns filled with spring blossoms of many hues are ornaments arranged in various places on the lawn, and a dividing fence of rare cannas and shrubbery divides the yard from the one next to it.

The handsome garage and servant quarters which are constructed out of the same material as the house is almost covered with the clinging ivy, and even the parking in front, is laid off as artistically as the yard. Between the shade trees here, are rows of smoothly mown grass interspersed with rows of verbena in the various brilliant shades.

Tomorrow, the pretty rose garden at the home of Mrs. G. L. Shapard will be described.

TODAY'S POEM

The Changing Styles

In olden times when simple men
Would modest maids beguile,
They met by moonlight in the glen
Beside the rustic stile.

With swelling souls and downcast look
The ancient tale was crooned;
To slow, sweet measures of the brook
Their hearts were all attuned.

But now what are the sounds we hear,
In accents loud and fast?
"I'll meet you in the subway, dear,
At eighteen minutes past."

With whirring fans and forms that sway
The nether airs are stirred;
There's quite another style today,
Yet love gets in a word.

Exporters Dock Here; Cargo of Losses Will Be Loaded

HARD NINE IS SET FOR FOUR DAY INVASION

Visitors Lucky If They Cop One Contest

BY "SPIKE" COOPER

The Spudders took advantage of a day off yesterday and hied themselves away to recreation of different kinds. Most of them must have gone fishing, for only two or three stragglers were on the streets.

But pity the Exporters when they drive in today from a long journey which brings them from the mosquito-inhabitated lowlands. The sudden change to civilization will be a lot for them to overcome, and then to think that the Spudders are out for meat, and only the Exporters are available for four days.

It will not be a pleasant aspect for the Mathes crew, nor will it be pleasant in reality when they do the "Arab" stunt Friday night. Though they have been figuring, themselves, since the opening of the season, they have had a recent taste of what real competition means. When the Spuds copped the recent series on the Exporters flat, it was an awful blow for them to take. But the Spuds found it and it had to stand.

Mathes will no doubt depend on Dixie Jacobus to repeat the two performances of earlier games. Can he? Well, that remains to be seen. No other hurler in the league boasts of three victories over Sam's fighting more. Then there's Slim Love, a newcomer to the Spuds. Slim was once a great left-hander, but "there ain't no such" any more for the Spuds. They all look alike.

Lon Krell and his slow ball fell victim to Spud clubs the other day in the swamplands. Red Torkelson has had little luck against them except pantomiming. Morgan hasn't hurt anybody yet, and Caldera has been having all kinds of hard luck in his last three starts.

Just naturally looks bright for Spudder chances. They're up there and fighting to stay. That will keep 'em there too. The skipper is full of fight and pepper and has a winning combination right out in front. Right now there isn't a club in the league to stop 'em.

Mathes and the shipping crew will be lucky to get away with one scalp on their belt. They may ship a cargo out of here all right, but it will be one that sent them down the line in the "Up and Down" table.

The Spudders are hitting all kinds of pitching. They went out on the road and beat all the good ones down south except Jacobus. Looks like he's the only member of the Mathes staff that has a chance and his is about as slim as the girl that swallowed an olive.

If there ever was a winning combination, the Spuds are it. Out on the road they copped 10 out of 14 games, then came right home and took two more, one of which shattered the biggest jinx of the season, the Sunday "bug bear." And when they shattered that one, well—it was pitiful. Just 20 base hits for 30 bases. Three of the best hurlers fell victims before the hit-sticks of the hard nine too. Right and left handers alike. It's a slim year for pitchers against the Spudders.

The fire didn't make any difference to the nine either. All they asked for was a diamond with four bags to touch as they went around. The crowd was right down on the line with 'em Sunday and helped a lot.

It was the best crowd that has been in the park this year. They were down where they could fight and fight they did. Not one left until the final runner had been retired. Every one saw Jake Miller stick the last fly ball into his pocket and hie for the club house. That's the kind of fans that win pennants, and the Spuds are the kind of a club that hangs 'em up.

Looks like the Aigcats are up against it this year. It's time they took a skinning and the Spudders have avowed themselves a trip to Mobile next September. May have to change that to Birmingham, but either means one and the same thing in the long run.

There's going to be lots of fun at Athletic park today and the following three, but they as well, mean one and the same thing.

BEAR OUTFIELDER SIGNED BY AUGUSTA

By Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 5.—The management of the local South Atlantic association club, today announced the signing of Outfielder Lee of the San Antonio, Texas league club.

SAM LLOYD OF DIAMOND IS HOYT

Waite Hoyt, Yankee flinger who is destined to be the best right handed hurler in the American league this season, is the Sam Lloyd of baseball and to the majority of wallopers is as mystifying as an insurance policy to a Chinese coolie.

Hoyt was picked from the Brooklyn sandlots in 1916 by the Giants who farmed him out to Mount Carmel in the Pennsylvania State league. This league did a brodie and he journeyed on to New England where he joined the Hartford club. Later, while with Lynn, the Giants recalled him and turned him over to Memphis in the Southern association. This was in 1917 and Memphis soon shipped him back to McGraw as a DUB.

His itinerary reads like the advance agents for a three-ring circus for he went from Memphis to Montreal, Nashville and Newark and in 1919 trotted out with the Boston Red Sox where he stayed until last season when he was traded with McNally, Harper and Wallie Schang for Pratt, Ruel, Thormahlen and Vick. The Yankees didn't declare a legal holiday when he blew in for they really didn't expect much from him but about the middle of the season he developed into one of the best pitchers on the staff.

NEW BALL PLANT TO SEAT 4,000

Will Be Among Best In League

Bigger and better is the description of the new grand stand which will be erected on the site of that destroyed Saturday at Athletic park.

The management has not definitely decided on plans for the new construction, but do know that the new stand will seat 4,000 or more. It will be built in the shape of an egg with the smaller end cut away, bringing the ends of the stand around to both first and third bases. There will be no breaks for corners, but perfect curves will mark the course of its front.

The new stand will be the most convenient of any in the Texas loop, according to those who know of its plan. There are three or four designs under consideration and a meeting of stockholders and directors will be held today or tomorrow for a final decision.

Under the new plan, all seats will be desirable and the only advantage will be those who prefer a place directly behind the plate to inspect the curves of moundsmen. The end seats will possibly be nearer the field of play and there will be room for all.

Workmen had almost finished carting away the wreckage left by the blaze when they quit last night. By tomorrow morning, foundation workers will be permitted to begin construction and the stand will be rushed to completion.

Contractors who will have charge of the work estimate that all will be in readiness for the return of the team in July when they complete their next road trip.

The present arrangement will not interfere with work on the new stadium and will stand until the work is completed. There are seats for all with the exception of Sunday crowds, which will possibly have to overflow as they did last Sunday.

After all, the fire will leave Wichita Falls with the most commodious small park in the league.

SCOUTS AFTER FLORIDA

Manager George Block, left, and two glimpses of Eddie Moore fielding and batting, at right.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 31.—It's a good bet that Manager George Block, catcher, and Eddie Moore, shortstop, of the local Florida State league, will go up before the season ends. That's the way local fans feel after watching a flock of big league scouts look over the pair named.

Both men are burning up the league. Block's batting and Moore's great fielding are the talk of the circuit.

Block, in his first 100 trips to the plate, socked out close to 60 hits, averaging better than .500. That he is a hitting fiend is shown by the fact that he slammed out 17 hits in 26 times at bat in six successive games.

That Moore's fielding is attracting attention is indicated by the fact that Bob Gilks, veteran scout with the Yankees, says the boy's work on the diamond reminds him of Davey Bancroft. Moore is batting over .300.

The spectacular playing of Moore and Block has put the St. Petes in the lead by a comfortable margin in the pennant race.

Exporters Leading 13-10 When Game's Called

By Associated Press.

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 5.—Following a series of altercations, Umpire O'Hearne forfeited the final game of the Galveston-Beaumont series to the local club here today. During the game which was marked by squabbles, O'Hearne chased Manager Joe Mathes and Joe Brennan of the Beaumont club and Harry Lee of Galveston, Scrappy Moore of the Cracs, was banished by Umpire Dutch Meyers. Fighting Expected In Beleek Again

By Associated Press.

BELFAST, June 5.—Although up to late tonight the British troops have not attempted to occupy either Beleek or Magheramena Castle, resumption of activity on that front is expected very soon. The republicans are understood to be pushing forward large reinforcements.

The correspondent of the Belfast Telegraph estimates the death list in the recent fighting as high as thirty. The Pettigoe district where several more bodies have been found, is still held entirely by the soldiers, the constabulary and specials being kept in the rear.

WARD WITNESS HELD IN JAIL

Case Before Grand Jury Tuesday

By Associated Press.

WHITEPLAINS, N. Y., June 5.—Grand jury investigation having been postponed until tomorrow, interest in the Ward-Peters shooting mystery centered today on the unsuccessful efforts of James J .Cunningham, held as a material witness, to obtain his liberty and elimination by the Philadelphia police of John Cienzo as a figure in the case.

Supreme Court Justice Seeger, before whom Cunningham was brought on a writ of habeas corpus held that Coroner Fitzgerald had no right to detain Cunnighgam as a material witness and ordered him released.

However, bail fixed at $5,000 was not produced and Cunningham was led back to his cell. Ward, who is out on $50,000 bail visited the Westchester county jail today to confront Cunningham. Present at the meeting were Ward's lawyers and Sheriff Werner.

According to the sheriff, Cunningham greeted his visitors with these words:

"Hello Ward, how are you?"

Ward's reply was:

REDISTRICT ACT TO BE TESTED

Immediate Action Is Asked

Judge P. A. Martin this morning will hold a hearing on proceedings filed Monday attacking the validity of the section of the redistricting law which delays application of the senatorial redistricting until the election of 1924—proceedings which, if sustained, will unseat every present member of the Texas senate and require an entirely new house to be elected this summer from the new districts which have been set up.

The proceedings, brought in the name of J. D. Parnell and against P. B. Cox as the democratic county chairman, were filed Monday afternoon by Judge R. E. Huff, named by the local chamber of commerce as its representative of the effort of the west Texas chamber of commerce to secure immediate application of the law.

The petition points out the constitutional provision requiring redistricting after each federal census, and that the entire senate be elected immediately from the new districts. The provision delaying application until 1924 is attacked as not in conformity with this provision, which calls for immediate action. It is further alleged in the petition that there has not been a redistricting act in accordance with the mandate in 20 years, or since 1900.

Furthermore, it is contended that the delay in application of the new bill will fix a single representative in the senate for the next two years from this district which under the bill is entitled to three senators—an unjustifiable denial of the right of proper representation to these people, it is declared.

Whether Judge Martin holds for or against the measure, an immediate appeal will be taken, and all efforts made to take it through to a decision by the supreme court before the July primaries.

The provision making the new districts effective only after 1924 was one of the compromise features of the bill. At the time the redistricting measure was passed—forced by the indignation, largely, of the people of West Texas who had been denied their proportionate representation—the number of senators was already 31, the constitutional limit.

According of additional senators to west Texas, accordingly, meant many of the east Texas senators literally voting their jobs away, and meant that others would vote for a re-arrangement of districts which might seriously hinder their chances of returning to the senate. Accordingly opposition to the bill in the senate was bitter, and the 1924 provision was inserted in order to secure its passage.

WHEAT PRICES IN SMALL DROP

Milling Demand Falls Off

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Wheat underwent a moderate setback in prices today largely as a result of ideal weather to promote the harvest in the southwest. The closing was unsettled, but 1 1-4 to 2 3-8 net lower with July 1.13 1-2 to 1.13 5-8 and September 1.13 5-8 to 1.13 3-4. Corn lost 1-8 to 5-8, oats finished 1-4 to 1-2 up, and provisions at gains of 2 1-2 to 17 cents.

Sentiment in the wheat trade was decidedly bearish to start with, but changed somewhat in the later dealings. Rallies, however, appeared to be due chiefly to profit taking on the part of shorts. Aside from flattering crop reports especially from Kansas, the trade here was looked for lower quotations from Liverpool tomorrow after the holiday interim. An increase of the domestic visible supply total amounted also as a depressing factor. Moreover, milling demand was slow and there were advices that cutting of new wheat was in progress as far north as southeastern Missouri. Crop reports from the soft wheat states were extremely optimistic, and increase visible in this section were expected to outweigh any different points in the west end of the hard winter belt. Spring wheat receipts were favorable as a rule but extremely high temperatures were reported in western Canada. There were deliveries of 150,000 bushels of wheat here today on June contracts, hard winter wheat though sold at 2 cents over July here in the day, resorting from an early scare offer.

Corn and oats reflected the weakness of wheat, and oats touched the lowest prices yet this season.

Higher quotations on hogs led to an upturn in the provision market, although for a while more than off set by the bearish course of grain values.

CROSS CURRENT IN POPULAR OIL

Steels and Rails Also Affected

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Offerings of markets leaders frequently exceeded the buying power on the stock exchange today, these conflicting movements causing considerable uncertainty or unsettlement throughout the active session.

Cross currents were most pronounced among the popular oils, steels, rails and numerous miscellaneous stocks. Early declines of one to four points in such issues were balanced by gains of like extent, but the forces of reaction were in control at the market's close. Sales amounted to 1,200,000 shares.

Incidents over the week end, notably the publicity given to the promotion phases of the Republic, Midvale and International and Steel merger and the extravagant speculation of pools in comparatively obscure specialities, provoked fresh short selling and liquidation for the long account.

These tendencies became more obvious in the last half of the trading period on news that the federal trade commission had taken steps to prevent the merger of the Bethlehem and Lackawanna steel companies. Rumors then current in the financial district declared that aiming at the oblations of other projects of similar character would be taken by the federal authorities.

United States steel was the one promising feature among leaders, rising to a new high for two years at 10 3-4 in the final hour, but the so-called independents closed at net losses of 1 to 2 points, oil rallying moderately on the strength shown by Standard oil of New Jersey. Lake Erie and western common again featured the apathetic rails at a four point gain and Dupont was foremost among specialities adding 6 3-8 points to last week's gain of almost 25 points. Constructive features of the day embraced another buoyant rise in sterling exchange, easier money rates, further advances in prices of crude oil products and optimistic trade reports from interior centers.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent reflecting last week's expansion of clearing house loans, but the rate gradually eased to 3 1-2 per cent.

Conditions affecting time money were unaltered, most accommodations again being limited to 30 and 60 days and 4 1-4 per cent.

The high rate of the day for London demand exchange was 4.50 1-4 but that quotation was shaded later as buying diminished. All the allied quotations were firm and Dutch and Scandinavian bills recovered part of last week's reversal, but German marks were almost 2 points under their recent maximum.

BOND MARKET

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Foreign or international loans were the conspicuous features of today's bond market, the domestic list displaying much of its recent irregularity apart from liberties which were relatively steady. The new high record made by sterling exchange was accompanied by strength in United Kingdom issues and moderate improvement among French, Belgian and Brazilian loans, but Mexican 4s and 5s were reactionary at losses of 1 to 2 points.

Changes in the railway list were restricted mostly to fractional gains and losses, but some of the industrials, notably Bethlehem steel refunding 5s showed marked heaviness, although offset by the strength of the company's purchase money 5s. Total sales, par value, aggregated $15,739,000.

The new Brazilian government loan for $25,000,000 and the city of Prague $7,500,000 mortgage loan constituted the important new underwritings. Both were largely oversubscribed on large participations from investment sources.

COTTON MARKET DROPS SLIGHTLY

Decline Attributed To Weather

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—An early decline of some 30 to 40 points in the cotton market today was attributed to selling on expectations of the usual June improvement in crop conditions. Considerable trade buying was encountered just below the 20 cent level for December contracts, however, and after selling at 19.95 that delivery rallied to 20.18 on covering. It closed at 20.00 with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 25 to 38 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 15 to 21 points under New Orleans and local selling promoted by a favorable weather map and the forecast for generally favorable weather in the south this week. There was also some scattered southern selling which showed a tendency to increase on slight rallies and the market was nervous and unsettled during the morning with prices selling off to 20.20 for July and 20.03 for October, or 30 to 43 points net lower on the general list. The relatively easy ruling of July was attributed to selling by spot people against purchases of October and probably increased the disposition to liquidate long contracts in later months on the more favorable weather news.

A better demand developed around the 20 cent level, with the trade a moderate buyer and the market firmed up during the early afternoon on covering by early sellers who seemed to be somewhat disturbed by the apparent ease with which their offerings had been absorbed on the forenoon decline. Most months made new high prices for the day in the late trading, with October selling 20.70 or 24 points up from the lowest and within 14 points of the last week's closing quotations. Last prices were a shade off from the best under scattering realizing. Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays the Liverpool market was closed. Private cables reported Manchester goods markets quiet but prices firm. Port receipts today 16,037. U. S. port stocks 850,387. Exports 29,101, making 5,329,000 so far this season.

SHADY SEATS AT BALL PARK

Old Comfort Returns To Grandstand

Untiring effort on the part of Spudder club owners shows far more result than even most ardent and staunch fans had anticipated.

Following the disastrous fire of Saturday which left a mass of charred ruins where once stood the grandstand, true supporters of the Spud machine journeyed to the park to find seating arrangements for the Sunday game complete. More than 1,800 seats had been provided, some of which were more or less thrown together yet substantial, but the two sections of bleacher seats had been pulled forward to an advantageous position. Loyal fans sat through the sweltering sun without a whimper. Fairer ones reddened under the scorching sun, yet played baseball with the team. It was certainly a Spudder crowd.

Bleachers Are Covered

Then early Monday morning, Bert Adrian had his carpenters on the job post haste and covers were erected over the entire section along the left field line, both bleachers and temporary seats. Strips of canvass along the back side break the afternoon rays and with a like construction over the section of seats near first base, comfortable, shady seats for almost 2,000 spectators are provided.

It took much work to put the park in shape for the anticipated crowds of the Exporter-Spudder series which opens today, but with bosses on the ground practically 24 hours ever day since the conflagration, all is now in readiness for play.

The scoreboard has been permanently raised near the green background in right field and affords a better view than when against the club house as before.

Temporary netting screens protect those in the stands from foul tips, and in fact, with the proximity of the present stands, fans have better advantages for enjoying the game than before.

Only through the effort of the Spudder management have these things been possible. Too much credit can not be given to Walter Salm, Will Gray and Lloyd Weaver for the things accomplished.

Before the crowd had begun to leave the field Saturday and while the firemen were still playing water on the blaze, Lloyd Weaver had trucks of lumber on the ground and Bert Adrian had a corps of workmen already started with the construction which greeted the fans Sunday afternoon.

Debris Cleared Away

Garage and wrecking companies were busy all day yesterday loading and hauling the remains of once luxurious cars or humble jitneys which lay as they settled when wheels burned away. Most of those burned had been removed last night, and in all probability, the remainder will be gone when the game is called today.

The wreckage and charred timbers left of the stand were hauled away Monday and by tonight the site of the new stand will have been cleared for construction on the new to begin.

The temporary accommodations were pulled far enough forward to permit construction to proceed without interfering with the arrangement which will suffice until the new stands are complete. It is estimated that the new stand will be complete when the Spudders return from their next road trip which brings them home July 10 for a series with Dallas.

Although the new arrangement is note quite as commodious and does not resemble the excellent stand which was destroyed, there is little lacking for fans who are fighting for the team. They will all be taken care of during the remaining 14 days which the club is home just as though nothing had happened. The club is in there fighting and are going to stay up there too.

STONE DEAL IS UNDER FIRE

Court May Denounce Big Contract

County commissioners busied themselves Monday with threshing out problems concerning the county's contract with the Lone Star Stone company.

Charges that the stone company has not been fulfilling its contract with Wichita county, and supplying sufficient material to keep the McCullum Construction company busy at Electra were made during the short meeting of the commissioners.

The original and supplementary contracts made with the quarry company were both read to the court, which held the consensus of opinion that the contract should be forfeited, it being held that the stone company has delayed the road work at Electra materially.

The county auditor was instructed to make a complete check on the amount of stone that has been supplied by the company in order to ascertain how much of the $100,000 advanced by the county has been taken in supplying material. The contracts were turned over to the county attorney's department for action, and it is believed the contract will be declared nullified at the next commissioner's meeting.

The court decided that the routing of the Henrietta roadway through Wichita Falls should be down Lamar street to East Seventeenth; one block on East Seventeenth to Virginia, down Virginia to Fort Worth street and thence to the bridge.

TEXAS FAVORED IN RIVER CASE

Court Holds Stream Not Navigable

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The supreme court today entered a decree in the Red river boundary dispute between Oklahoma and Texas to put in force a part of its decision of May 1. The decree as entered holds that the Red river is not navigable within the state of Oklahoma, denies the claim of that state to the proprietorship of the entire river bed, but recognizes where the state owns land bordering on the river, her riparian rights are the same as those of other riparian owners.

The court also entered a decree denying the claims of all who are asserting rights in the river bed based on placer mining locations, but reserved all other phases of the May 1 decision to be passed upon to the next term of the court.

GOVERNMENT FIGHTS RECEIVERSHIP EXPENSE

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The government in the supreme court today objected to the use of any part of the funds now in the hands of the receiver of the oil properties in the bed of the Red river, Oklahoma, to defray the cost of construction of non-producing wells.

The receiver in his last report recently filed with the court directed attention to the fact that the court had not authorized him to refund drillers the cost of construction of any wells which did not produce sufficient oil to repay the cost of drilling and suggested that it would be reasonable to reimburse each developer of a group of wells the cost of drilling non producing wells out of the net proceeds obtained from the group. The government in opposing the plan declared that the courts orders "were strictly limited to payment out of the proceeds of producing wells, of the cost of such (producing) wells only," and that it objected to the use of the funds as proposed by the receiver.

time and he has made a very close canvass of the district—not the larger cities or county seats, but the hamlets and school districts. He has built up a wonderful organization in the fourth district and he is confident of being the democratic nominee for congress after the votes have been counted on July 18."

Gumshoeing for Votes

"These farm labor organizers are not hunting ducks with a brass band. They go from precinct to precinct and the renters and small farmers and many farmers who are not small farmers are listening to their appeals. The man with the hoe is weary of being a door mat for the non-producer of the country. He has many grievances, real or fancied, and he is in a mood to smash old time leaders and old time machines.

Send Out Questionnaire

Officers of the farm labor party are sending out questionnaires to all candidates for congress, to all candidates for state offices and to all candidates for district and county offices. They are not going to work with the republican organization. They expect to invade the democratic primary as they call themselves democrats and do their best to put over the names on their slate.

Mr. Wilcoxson has been in the cotton business in north Texas for years. He has crossed the ocean many times as a seller and exporter of cotton. He is a state rights democrat, ever a follower of Joseph Weldon Bailey, but in this campaign he is in mighty close touch with the organizers and leaders of the farm labor party which is working along the lines of the non-partisans in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and other northwestern states. Personally he is for Clarence Ousley for United States senator and hopes to see Ousley in the run off.

Incidentally it may be said that Joseph Weldon Bailey would be willing to make speeches for Ousley if asked but men close to the former senator who are likewise friends of Ousley insist that it would be harmful for J. W. B. to take part in the campaign. Major Rogers, the farm labor candidate for governor, was a supporter of Mr. Bailey for governor in 1920, and made many speeches favoring the candidacy of the distinguished gentleman who was defeated by Pat Morris Neff for that high office.

500 Organizers

"Fannin county is the home of Sam Rayburn. It is the home of W. A. Fitzwater, the president of the Farm Labor party organization of Texas. Fitzwater and his organizers have been on the road since 1920. They are doing all in their power to bring about a consolidation of the farm organizations and the labor unions. They tell me they will have 500 organizers in Texas early in the month of July. These organizers do not reside in Pullmans. They have their Fords. They go from precinct to precinct and from hamlet to hamlet. Fannin county is a hot bed of these non partisans in politics who are democrats this year and who intend to participate in the democratic primary in July and vote for farm labor candidates all along the line. Major Fred Rogers is their choice for governor and Joseph Edmonson their choice for lieutenant governor. Rogers served in France and is a lawyer. Edmonson is a dirt farmer. This political organization is strong in all the black land counties and throughout the counties of central Texas. It is strong in west Texas and its organizers have been as far west as Dalhart.

Black Called Home

"Sam Rayburn is not the only democratic congressman who is marked for defeat on July 18. Eugene Buck of Clarksville in Red River county is walking the burning sands. Cyclone Davis is on his trail and Cyclone is a wonderful apostle of political unrest, especially in times like these. There are thousands of white renters and small farmers in the first congressional district and the farm and labor party has a membership gunning into the thousands in this district.

"Black has been called home to repair his broken fences, but if these farm labor leaders know what they are talking about Ed Westbrook and Cyclone Davis are to be easy winners in the first and fourth congressional district and Sam Rayburn and Eugene Black are going to be sent to Lame Duck Alley. No, I am not given to exaggeration.

"These blackland counties are alive with farm labor partisans and their organizers never sleep. D. J. Neal of Eastland county is managing the campaign for Major Rogers and works out of Austin. His brother, J. M. Neal has established headquarters in the city of Dallas. The farm labor party has not declared for former Governor James E. Ferguson for senator. Their leaders tell me they are waiting for the run off and then they will throw their votes to the man who is in hearty accord with their platform demands and economic program of legislation. They have no love for any of the old office holders either in state or nation and they expect to make a formidable showing on primary election day in the coming July."

CRUDE ADVANCE HOPEFUL SIGN

Expect Rise to Be Followed Soon

Advance of Pennsylvania crude and other eastern grades Monday came to local oil operators as a confirmation of opinions that the crede market in general was due for a thump, and as an indication that the inception of the upward movement in the Mid-Continent would follow without a great deal more delay. Advance movements traditionally begin with the eastern grades.

Advances in the refined products market, beginning weeks ago, created a margin which would naturally be taken up in time with an advance in crude. With the advance of 25 cents, bringing Pennsylvania up to $3.50, however, that grade is not as far ahead of the Mid-Continent, however, as it normally stayed before the storm hit early in 1921—Mid-Continent having held, and apparently is due to continue to hold, a better relative price since the readjustment.

Advances in the gasoline market would indicate that the market would eventually attain a level at least 50 cents higher than that prevailing, the retail price of gasoline having successively jumped to 25 cents from 18, with advances in wholesale prices in proportion—an increase in the selling price of the normal yield in gasoline of approximately 98 cents or a dollar.

Retail Coal Prices To Rise $1.75 Ton

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Retail of bituminous coal prices, "will rise" as much as $1.75 a ton because of the advance in the price of coal at the mines under the agreements reached last week with bituminous operators in the producing fields, Secretary Hoover was informed today by Roderic Stephens, of New York, chairman of the board of directors of the National Retail Coal Merchants' association.

Mr. Hoover met about 45 members of the association to discuss the co-operation of the retailers in the commerce departments efforts to prevent runaway coal prices during the strike, but the conference developed principally into a colloquy between Mr. Stephens and Mr. Hoover over a probable increase in the price of coal to the house holder.

The moisture follows two weeks of sunshine and will maintain an excellent season for betterment of crops and grass, reports here said.

TURK CRUELTY PROBE IS ASKED

Bodies Hidden to Clear Charges

By Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Dr. Mark L. Ward, the American relief official, who was recently expelled by the Turkish nationalists from Asia Minor, arrived in London today on his way to Washington. Before sailing on the Berengia next Saturday, Dr. Ward will confer with George Harvey, the American ambassador and the Earl of Balfour, concerning alleged Turkish excesses among Christians.

Regarding the American governments decision to join the other powers on the commission to investigate alleged Moslem atrocities, Dr. Ward said:

"Now that our government has spoken, prompt action is necessary in getting the investigators on the ground before the Turks have time to remove witnesses and traces of their crimes by burying the victims. It is also essential that the members of the commission be equipped with neutral interpreters, adequate transportation and not be personally conducted by Turkish authorities, who can avoid the corpses of their victims and destroyed villages, can intimidate witnesses and the whole course of the investigation. The commission should include some woman physician for the purpose of investigating numerous cases of mutilation and violations of Christian women and children."

SURE CARDUI WAS HELPFUL

Ohio Lady Was Suffering, In Bad Condition, Weak, Nervous and Run-down —Now She Recommends Cardui.

Manchester, Ohio.—In describing the troubles with which she was formerly afflicted, and telling how she obtained relief, Mrs. Ida B. Rothwell, of this place, said:

"For some time I had a terrible hurting in my side. It was a most miserable feeling. I could hardly turn myself in bed.

"I was weak, nervous, and rundown. . . .

"I did not have an appetite, and was in a bad condition. I was . . . and suffering; at . . . time I had bearing-down pains . . .

"I began Cardui. A half bottle helped me."

Mrs. Rothwell said she then decided to take Cardui regularly, and did so until she recovered her strength.

"I certainly suffered before I took this treatment," she adds, "and was very discouraged."

Writing further of her experience, this Ohio lady says:

"I can't praise it (Cardui) too highly, for it has helped me when other things failed. I think there is no medicine like Cardui, for it sure has been helpful, and I recommend it to all my friends."

Thousands of other women have learned of the value of Cardui in the treatment of their troubles.

Republican State Chairman Arrested On Fraud Charge

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—John Lewis Phillips, republican state chairman for Georgia, for whose arrest a warrant was issued late Saturday on complaint of the department of justice, alleging conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with a war contract for the disposal of surplus lumber, surrendered to a deputy United States marshal on his arrival here today from Philadelphia. He was immediately arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitt, who issued the warrant, waived examination and was released in $25,000 bail for action of the grand jury.

Mr. Phillips tonight refused to make a formal statement at this time, but declared that all his transactions with the government had always "been clean and above board," and were matters of record. He said he was surprised at the issuance of a warrant for his arrest before the grand jury had indicted him and attributed it to politics.

"It is the penalty one must pay for being in politics," he added.

That said lease provided, among other things, "that in case drilling of a well for oil, gas or other minerals is not commenced and prosecuted within 90 days from date, then this grant shall immediately become null and void as to both parties," further provided, "In case H. W. Barton or his assigns should bore and discover oil or gas, or other minerals, then and in that event this grant shall be in full force and effect for term of five years from discovery of said product, and as much longer as oil, gas or other minerals can be produced in paying quantities; provided, however, if oil, gas or other minerals can be produced in paying quantities from first well, party of second part shall within 90 days proceed with drilling of another well, it being mutually agreed and understood between parties hereto that party of second part shall use due diligence not only in putting down first well, but in successive wells if oil in paying quantities is found; and further providing: "A lapse of four months in operation shall be deemed a forfeiture of this grant or conveyance."

That all defendants herein are claiming some title and interest or lien on land above described under and by virtue of oil and gas lease above referred to, all of said defendants claiming to be assignees or lien holders of said property or some part thereof; that the exact nature and extent of claims of defendants are unknown to plaintiffs, but all of the defendants are asserting title and claim to said property under and by virtue of original lease above referred to, made to H. W. Barton. That under terms and conditions of said lease it was provided that said Barton, his heirs and assigns, and all persons claiming under him, shall commence and prosecute with due diligence drilling of a well on said land for oil and gas within 90 days; and further provided if oil, gas or other minerals should be produced in paying quantities in first well, parties of second part should proceed within 90 days with drilling of another well, and it was agreed and understood that development should be continuous, and due diligence should be used not only in putting down first well but successive wells if oil in paying quantities should be found, and it was further provided that a lapse of four months in operations should be deemed a forfeiture of this grant. That by "operations" as used in said lease, was meant and intended that not more than four months shall elapse between completion of one well on said land and beginning of another until said land shall be reasonably developed for oil and gas purposes. That the very purpose of said lease, as shown upon its face, was to secure reasonable development of said land for oil and gas purposes, and production of oil therefrom so that plaintiffs herein might secure royalties provided for, and that payment of royalty was the only consideration to be received by plaintiffs as no cash consideration, or only a nominal consideration, was paid for said lease at time of its execution. That defendants herein, who own and claim title through said original lease, have wholly failed and refused to comply with obligations therein, individually and as sole trustee of Pathfinder Oil company, O. P. Douglas, Consolidated Drilling and Leasing company, A. E. Duncan, C. W. Hadley, and F. R. Raymond, individually and as trustees and partners of said Consolidated Drilling and Leasing company, G. FAIR PROJECT UP THIS WEEK

Directors Will Be Elected

Permanent organization and incorporation of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association for which the stock subscription campaign is nearing the close, will be undertaken at a meeting to be held later this week, W. F. Weeks, chairman of the organization committee, declared Monday afternoon.

At this meeting, to be held at the chamber of commerce at a date designated later, every subscriber is expected to be present and participate in the election of permanent officers and a board of directors. Mr. Weeks places the selection of a strong board to direct the affairs of the institution as the most important single factor affecting the success of what he believes will be one of Wichita Falls' strongest institutions.

As soon as officers and directors are selected they will set about the securing and selection of plans for the race track, grand stand and athletic stadium, which will be one of the first pieces of work to be done on the field. Plans are already under way which are expected to bring one of the big Oklahoma football teams here for a game during the first fair, which will be held about Oct. 1. A strong inter-state game will be sought if possible.

The name "Kell Field" will be suggested for the stadium at the organization meeting, Mr. Weeks declared.

Several names have been suggested as alternates of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association: Two-State fair and Texas National Live Stock and Exposition at Wichita Falls, the latter suggested for the corporate name.

Paris Fireman On Long Stroll

George Bird is taking a long stroll. He calls it a strolling vacation.

George, an inmate of the Paris, Texas, fire department and evidently loves to walk for he's accepted a wager that he can walk from Texas to Idaho in 90 days.

The fireman left Paris Saturday noon with $2 in his jeans. He arrived here Monday morning and went to the Marion hotel with $3.50 to his credit. No, he didn't hijack anyone, he just fixed up many cars en route here and made a little spending money.

He's allowed to do that, for that's part of the wager.

If he gets to Idaho in 90 days, working his way as he goes, he will collect $500 for his stunt.

If he don't well, as he says, he's had a pleasant walk, anyway.

Part of the wager permits him to ride whenever anyone asks him to, but he is not allowed to ask anyone to pick him up.

BOND SET IN STILL CHARGE

J. L. Wileman, charged with possession of a whisky still, was granted bond in the sum of $500 by United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz Monday morning, following a preliminary hearing.

Wileman was arrested by city officers, headed by Chief J. W. McCormick, Sunday afternoon, when his home on Harrison street was raided and a complete distilling outfit was captured.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED AGAINST LOCAL CREDIT MAN

James M. Jackson, charged with embezzlement of $1,000 from the Perkins-Timberlake company, was returned to Wichita Falls Monday in the custody of Detective Chief Jack Miller.

Detective Miller traced Jackson to Chicago, Ill., had him arrested there and then departed after him.

Jackson was formerly connected with the credit department of the Perkins-Timberlake company.

Gusher Suit Is Finally Closed

Final settlement of a widely known suit—a suit which revolved around the sensational Burk-Waggoner gusher, discovery well in the northwest field, and its even more sensational sale for two and a half million dollars, was esettled in Dallas last week—at least the first round was decided. The case was that of C. E. Basham, one of the original organizers of the company, against R. M. Waggoner, Clois Green and the rest of the 14 promoters of the company. Basham had a $500 interest in the original company, and sold it out to his partners in the enterprise before the well was brought in.

The interest afterward was sold for $110,000. In the petition in the suit he declared that he was induced to sell through fraudulent representations on the status of the well by the others—the others contended that he sold because he lost faith in the proposition and then wanted it back again after the project scored its huge success.

The suit was tried first at Vernon, the place where the company was organized, where the trial resulted in a hung jury. Then it was transferred to Dallas by agreement and tried in the 14th district court, where the jury found for the defendants on each of the 14 special issues.

The parties to the suit, all of whom were Wichitans, spent practically all of last week in Dallas attending the trial. Judge Barry Miller and A. T. Lewis of Dallas represented Basham and W. F. Weeks and Judge Chambers of Dallas represented Waggoner, Green et al.

The case, involving the sensational property which is more closely than any other associated with the most phenomenal oil pool ever discovered in Texas, attracted perhaps a wider attention than any outside suit which has been tried there in years.

Buzzard's Orchestra Entertains Kiwanis

Billy Buzzard's dance orchestra played for the Kiwanians at their regular weekly meeting Monday.

R. E. Shepherd rendered "The Sheik" while the orchestra played, and Ben Neal added to the music by breaking in with his own version of how it should be sung.

Without Neal's interpretation of "The Sheik" the song would have been incomplete.

An added attraction to the entertainment was a miniature baseball game with Jack Daley, Texas league umpire, officiating behind home plate, calling balls and strikes while Frank Quessier sacked Homer Sanderford's curves and spit-balls. Dinty Booth held a make-believe bat.

The usual argument ended the game, much to the amusement of the Kiwanians.

A QUESTION OF GUILT

"A man lesiring to put up a building confers with a prominent union official and voluntarily offers to give him $15,000 for insurance against strikes. . . ."

"An architect testified that it was the rule for his office to add a certain fixed percentage to the estimated cost of a building to cover payment of graft . . ."

These are fro mthe reports of a special grand jury which investigated building conditions in one of the largest American cities. Who bears the bigger burden of guilt, the leader of labor or the builder and architect? The taker of the dirty money or the giver?

Said this grand jury:

"Be believe that the men who have paid this tribute and have passed the burden along to the unprotected public are no better than the men to whom the bribes were given . . ."

No better! The!re worse! — The Nation's Business.

TELEPHONE DIPLOMACY

xDistance bids fair to disappear, so far as ease of communication goes. The other night, when a government official had gone to bed, his telephone rang. When he turned out and went to the persistent instrument he found on the other end of the wire a government representative in a foreign country who, from his post of duty, proceeded by word of mouth to deliver a message of commercial importance. When things reach the point that an official in Washington converses with all of his assistants, wherever they may be, things are going to be pretty lively for the Washington executive.—The Nation's Business.

Wichita's Still Banner Oil Producing County

50,000-BARREL PRODUCTION IS DAILY AVERAGE 4 YEARS AFTER STRIKING DISCOVERY

Young and Wilbarger County and Electra Area Pools Add to Weekly Sensations in Further Development Work Now Being Carried Out on Big Scale In This Section

Producing 50,000 barrels a day, Wichita county in June, 1922, four years after the bringing in of the Fowler Farm Oil Company's Burkburnett townsite discovery well and the subsequent opening of the sensational Burk Waggoner and Northwest extension fields, is the banner oil producing county of the North and Central Texas oil fields, maintaining through the months of depression the lead over other fields which it obtained during 1918 and 1919, the greatest years in levelopment of new fields in the history of North Texas.

Wichita Falls' district production, including Young county's 10,500 barrels, and several thousand daily from Wilbarger county, which is a part of the Electra pool, which has the bulk of it's production in Wichita county, is around 70,000 barrels daily. The discoveries in the 1900-foot sand in South Electra may be expected to add to the production totals to a considerable amount in a short time.

New Pools Opened

For the past two years oil operations in Wichita and adjoining counties have been at a minimum. Slashes in the price of crude, the closing of many avenues of sale for refined product coupled with the drouth, which made much drilling a physical impossibility, caused an almost general shut down in all parts of the district.

Funds for wildcating were scarce, nor were general conditions such as to encourage any gamble in opening up new pools.

Three new pools were opened up during the twelve months from May 1921 to May 1922. The Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Gose, in Archer county, several miles south of the K. M. A. pool, opened up a fair sized pool, in the 1,600 foot sand. Production in this pool now fluctuates between 1,200 and 1,600 berrels daily.

Laning and Moninger drilling north of the original South Burkburnett shallow pool, known as the Texhoma, opened up a new producing area in the 1,200 foot sand.

In the past few months several nice producers have been completed, and where two shallower sands are now being tested 300 and 500 foot levels.

Early in 1922 the Magnolia Petroleum company drilling on the Duke, north of Fowlkes Station, and about three miles southeast of Electra, got a new sand, around 1,600 feet. The discovery well had a flush of 300 barrels. Subsequently completed wells were small producers or dry, and the anticipated new pool has failed to materialize up to the present time. There is a fairly good prospect however, for a nice shallow pool in this neighborhood, several 800 foot wells being already completed.

The latest, and most valuable new development of the twelve-month period, is the opening up of the 1,900 foot sand in the South Electra field, formerly known as the shallow pool or the Gladiolus pool.

The new deep producers, drilled in the heart of the proven shallow field, have been of sensational size, in many instances, as high as 2,400 barrels blush being recorded.

The first really big well in this sand, the Texas company's No. 215 Waggoner, was drilled in about a month ago.

Testing New Sands.

Two and a half miles to the west of the old shallow pool developments are under way which indicate the opening up of another pool of many sands, comparable to the older pool. The Harvey-Cullum No. 1 Bravo, is a 1600 foot sand was the first wildcat drilled, and got nice production. The No. 2 on this lease drilled to the 1900 foot sand, and made a big well, 750 barrels flush. The Texas Company has just completed the second 1900 foot well in the new territory, an offset to the No 2 of Harvey and Cullum.

A short distance to the west of these producers a third sand, at 1400 feet, is being tested. A fourth sand, around 800, and a fifth, at 500, have been shown in what appeared to be paying quantities, in the logs of the deep producers. All of these sands will be tested out in time.

Electra's production, as the result of the new 1900 foot producers, has increased from 11,000 to 16,000 in the past few weeks.

New developments have only started, according to present promises of the busiest summer that Electra has ever known. Sixty-three wells are now drilling on the Waggoner pasture alone. Other scattered operations in the South Electra field are sufficient to bring the number of drilling wells up around the century mark.

OKLAHOMA GETS HELPING HAND FROM WICHITA

Local Men Play Big Part Developing Towns

Southwest Oklahoma—that is a part of the section around Wichita Falls in which Wichitans feel a particularly keen interest—for probably the greatest single impetus to its development was provided by the two Wichitans, Frank Kell and J. A. Kemp, who built the Wichita Falls and Northwestern through it and almost to the Kansas line.

It has a close feeling as well for the section along the Denver, for most of these places have birthdays which coincide closely with Wichita Falls' own—they are nearly all the children of the pioneers whose enterprise built the Fort Worth and Denver during the early times—pioneers who played a great part in the building of the great west, and who have the Union Pacific, the first transcontinental railroad to their credit. But the interest in southwestern Oklahoma is a different interest, and a part of the development they credit to the foresight and courage of Wichita Falls' railroad builders.

Courage Required

And courage was required—real courage—for the building of a railroad line through the newly opened and wholly undeveloped "Big Pasture" back in 1906 and on through the hardly more developed territory beyond through Frederick and Altus and on to Forgan. But courage was one thing that these Wichitans had—courage and faith in the future of the country and their confidence in the success of the enterprise was such that the money was readily obtained. This came from I. Kempner, one of the group of Galveston capitalists whose money played a prominent part in the development of this section in the early days.

So the line was built—it became known as the "Three K" road during the time that Mr. Kempner was associated with Kemp and Kell, and even afterward when these men after a number of years sold the Wichita Falls & Northwestern to the Katy system.

Several of the towns along the route were founded by the men who built the line, or their associates, at the time the road was built. Burkburnett, named by the railroad builders in honor of the pioneer cattleman who had rendered them assistance in dealings with the Indians whose land was being traversed, Devol, Grandfield and others were either founded or greatly expanded by their efforts.

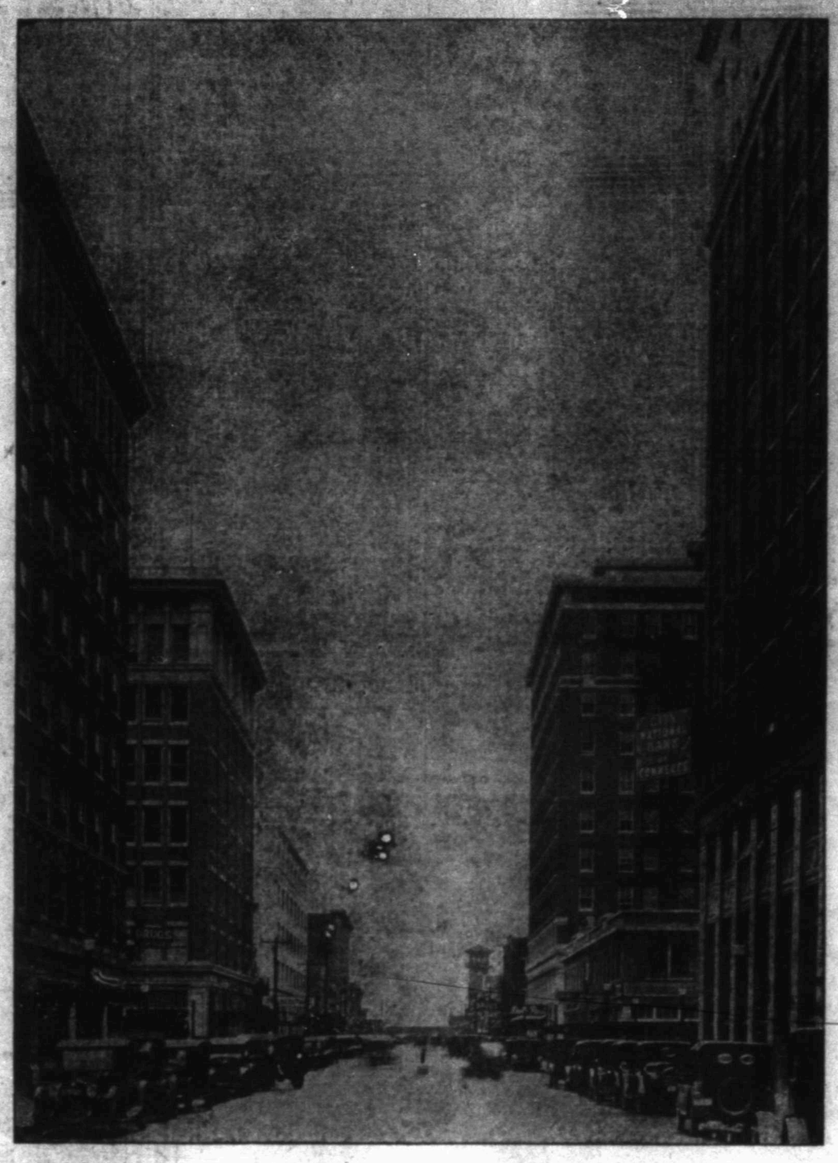

Development Repays

The development of the country was such that they were fully repaid for their courage and confidence, and the Northwestern proved a very profitable property, for the shippers in the newly developed region showed their appreciation of its importance to them and the confidence that inspired its building by turning it a heavy traffic. Development of the section was reflected in increased development of Wichita Falls.

In Frederick and in places further up the line which already had rail connections it was hardly less welcome, as the coming of the second road freed them of a one-railroad monopoly and insured them rail service, besides giving the added importance of an additional railroad. The result was that the new line secured a heavy traffic from these towns. Other Wichita Falls business interests followed, and Wichitans now have heavy investments in various lines throughout the new territory, and a heavy intertrading has always characterized the com-

The City That Faith Built

"DOWN the Canyon"—looking down Eighth street toward the Union passenger station. This street boasts the leading hotel, the Kemp, and a half dozen others, including the Hearn, five of the tallest office buildings, four banks and the "Big Three" Jewelry shops.

It is veritably the Wall street and Maiden Lane of Wichita Falls, combined.

VERILY DO SAMPLES OF TRADE TRIPS DIFFER

On Wichitans' Last Journey Out, It Was Good Old Stuff

When Wichita Falls business men go visiting in neighboring towns today, as is the occasion of the present trade excursion—the party differs in a very vital degree from its visits in the not very distant past—say just six years ago, when Wichita Falls visited the territory on the Northwestern, to Altus.

For it is no longer "Whiskita Falls," the only oasis south of the Texas line, and boasting an impressive delegation of saloon keepers as the largest and most noticeable element of its party.

The wholesaler and the business man in other lines is now to the fore, instead of occupying the background—and the saloon keeper, who was the "life of the party" only a short time ago has gone over the long trail in the wake of the cowboy, the Indian and the buffalo. Perhaps many regret, but that is outside the pale of the present story.

Take that trade trip just six years ago. The big fellow and the little fellow in the liquor business—probably the biggest jobbing and retail line in the city at that time—was very much in evidence. Armed with one or more capacious grips—in spite of laws against the taking of whiskey into Oklahoma—he was along to renew acquaintances with his customers up the line.

The more pretentious carried their articles in the way of "sample" sized bottles. "My card," he said, as he handed you one.

The smaller fry did not have the samples, but he had a capacious grip just the same. And when he arrived at a place, he was usually met by an acquaintance and a regular customer. The party and the grip usually went for a drive in the country, returning just before the train was scheduled to move on.

Rhode Island Red Lays 7-Inch Egg

A certain Rhode Island red hen, belonging to James Bradshaw, 1403 Austin, is laying claim to a niche in the poultry hall of fame.

The other day this hen laid an egg that has a circumference of 6 1-2 inches, and measured 7 1-2 inches the long way.

Mr. Bradshaw is one of the leading poultry fanciers of Wichita Falls. He is probably just as proud of the oversize egg, as is it's author.

DOCTOR SAYS HIGH HEELS RUIN FEET

(By International News Service.)

BOSTON, June 5.—If the American women persist in wearing the extreme stylish mode of shoes, with high, inconvenient heels, they will be unable to walk in fifty years, according to Dr. Rudolph G. List, in a speech before members of the Orthopaedic society of Boston. People ought to go barefooted more than they do, he added.

PRISON SCHOOL LATEST IN OREGON

(By International News Service)

SALEM, Ore., June 5.—The Oregon State penitentiary is about to become something besides a prison for a newly-arrived convict; it will be a school.

The convict, who is a graduate of an eastern college of technology, has written to the extension division of the University of Oregon for a course in architecture, declaring he desires to continue his education.

CHEAP RATE, BETTER SERVICE AND QUICK DELIVERY IS OUR BID

Remember, There's Something Bigger Than An Idle Boast Behind Arguments Made Regarding Wichita Falls' Advantages; Here Are Facts to Back All Claims

Wichita Falls' trade advantages in this territory—cheaper freight rates and quicker and better service from wholesale and manufacturing firms—greater accessibility to the retail shopper.

and quicker and better service from wholesale and manufacturing firms.

This is th message which the train load of Wichita Falls business men are seeking to convey to the business men of southwestern Oklahoma and northwest Texas on this first two-day trade trip. The trippers are not after the business which belongs to the local merchant—that is not the Wichita Falls business man's idea of development of the adjacent territory, to which he looks for development of his own place. It is the wholesale and jobbers trade, and the trade to manufacturers and retail trade which normally goes to centers with which Wichita Falls is in competition—that is the trade which the Wichitans hope to develop.

Its retail business has equal proportions, and offers a selection to the buyer who can not obtain his wants at home equal to that possible in any other important center in the southwest. With nearly nine millions invested capital, Wichita Falls retail stores last year did a business of over 31 millions of dollars.

In the last connection Wichita Falls frequent passenger service in and out to points in this territory, its fine hotel, representing an investment of a million and a half, and a number of smaller hotels, with a large number of big stocks to choose from, and its numerous shows and amusements, it offers much to the retail shopper who chooses it in preference to other nearby cities of the southwest.

MANUFACTURERS AND WHOLESALERS LARGE ENOUGH TO OFFER SELECTION TO PICK FROM

Take the case of the grocer at Quanah—if he can not get what he wants at home—the grocer at Devol, at Granfield, at Vernon and at Electra and Burkburnett—his nearest and cheapest and quickest market is at Wichita Falls, and the purpose of the Wichitans visit is to call this to his attention.

Wichita Falls wholesale and manufacturing interests have grown sufficiently to afford the fullest range of selection for the prospective merchant. Four large wholesale grocery houses carry practically every nationally known grocery line—most of them have ranch houses in the territory to be visited. They perform a big part in the feeding of the territory adjacent to the city, and are prepared to do an even bigger part. So with the local wholesale candy house—wholesale hardware stores—the local machine shops—glass factories—motor factory—automobile agencies and distributors—accessory houses—wholesale drugs and produce houses.

Wichita Falls' manufacturing and wholesale importance is fully attested in its record of 104 concerns, with an invested capital of twelve and a half million, and which last year did a business exceeding 40 millions.

FREQUENT PASSENGER SERVICE IN AND OUT OF TOWN MAKE WICHITA FALLS IDEAL CENTER

Trade with Wichita Falls from the points in near proximity—trade which can be carried on more cheaply than at greater distance—is not only an advantage in Wichita Falls, but an advantage for the point from which it comes, for the money, staying in the district, is much more apt to come back than if sent further away, as the Wichita Falls business man sees it.

And Wichita Falls as a manufacturing and jobbing and distributing point has undoubted advantage over jobbing points at a greater distance. That is through the freight rates. For instance the Altus grocer who buys from the Wichita Falls wholesale house at the same price as he would pay the Dallas or Oklahoma City grocer, can bring his goods home, if taking a first class freight classification, for 77 cents per hundred, while it would cost him $1.51 or twice as much, if he bought it at Dallas, and correspondingly so if he bought it at Oklahoma City.

If he can get what he needs on equal terms from the wholesale house at home, or at Frederick, the Wichita Falls jobber would advise that he buy it there, for they consider interest in the customers welfare to be first principle in business building.

NOW HERE'S SOMETHING YOU SIMPLY CAN'T DODGE--AN ACTUAL COMPARISON IN RATES

For the wholesale shopper the following list of freight rates, showing its advantage over Dallas and other nearby points—Dallas taken as typical—should be convincing. The data was prepared by the traffic committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and shows rates in less than carload lots on points chosen at random and close to Wichita Falls—points which have the same inbound rate as that of the Wichita Falls retailer. The list follows.

JUNIOR COLLEGE READY IN FALL

Other Towns Will Send Students

At the opening of the school term in September, Wichita Falls will be able to offer the advantages of a junior college as a part of the public school system. This institution of higher learning will be particularly attractive to high school graduates of other nearby cities and towns, who would like the first two years of college without going far away from home, and as the high school with it's excellent standing, has for the past several years drawn students from all over the Wichita Falls territory, the new, advanced work, is expected to be a much greater attraction.

The new high school, for which a bond issue of $850,000 has just been voted by the people of Wichita Falls independent school district, will be primarily a junior college. The building will be underway in a few months, but the junior college will not be held up until completion of the new building, according to the announcement of the school board.

The present high school building will house the junior college for the coming term. Some definite announcement as to the course offered, and as to enrollment, credits and other details, will be made shortly, it understood.

BIG PLAY IS GIVEN ELECTRA

Many Oil Operators Coming In

By H. A. STROUD.

ELECTRA, Texas, June 5.—The play that is now being given the Electra field is the greatest in its history and equals in all extents the big play that started immediately following the discovery days of the field in 1911. The activity is not confined to any particular district but the entire countryside is being drilled, both within and without the proven area and the development is being carried on by some of the biggest independent operators in the mid-continent field.

During the past few days there has been an influx of oil men from all sections of the country—all seeking to buy. The buyers in the field are numerous and the sellers scarce. The person or company that owns anything that looks like it might be developed into oil lands is much sought after and these luck ones are like up to the high priests of old who could dictate to the common herd their own terms.

Production in Demand.

It is not the speculative class that is entering the field so much as the big independent companies from other fields. There was in the city the past week the head of one of the biggest of the Louisiana and Arkansas companies who was seeking leases upon which production had been obtained and which might be fully drilled and developed by his company. After speaking with several who had such production he learned that these people were not only in the market with their acreage but were seeking more to purchase for themselves. The production owners of this district well satisfied with their holdings and do not care to part with them, even at figures that would appear very attractive.

Leads to Drilling.

These operators finding no partially developed leases to be available and recognizing the value of the Electra pool, based on the many sands, the long life of production and the seeming non importance of previous dry holes are following various methods of getting into the game. Some of them have paid large prices for close in leases near production, while others have closed drilling contracts with the Waggoner interests for small blocks of acreage just outside the charmed circle of production that has been developed. Still others felt that if they are to be forced to wildcat in order to enter the field that they will do the job right and as a consequence another string of derricks are encircling the field in every direction as far as the eye can reach.

Wilbarger county is attracting much attention as a center for wildcatting. Tests are starting over a widely scattered area and are embracing much territory. It is estimated that with the wells that are now drilling and those that have been contracted that within a few days time Wilbarger's drilling report will show something like fifty wells. Other outside tests are being drilled as far south as Beaver Creek in Wichita county.

The Country North.

The territory north of Electra which has been dormant as far as development is concerned for the past three years is beginning to show life. So far practically all the new comers to the field have preferred to operate within the center of the excitement south of the city, but some important work has started north of Electra within recent weeks. A center of such interest is the test of the Gulf Production company which is to be drilled on the Dale farm on the banks of Red river. This well is to test out a sand which is known to exist at around 2500 feet, which was encountered some two years ago by three or four different companies operating in that vicinity. The Texas Company has started considerable operations on the old Skinner and Stringer leases following the showing made in No. 28 Skinner which was deepened to the 1850 foot sand and came in good for 140 barrels. The Texas Company has another well drilling on the Stringer and is deepening old holes on the Skinner. It is believed that with interest picking up in all other sections that a revival of wildcatting is also imminent in the country north of Electra. Several tests are being planned by local parties but as yet no drilling contracts have been closed.

PANAMA GETS RID OF THINGS

War On Bandits Is Described

(By International News Service.)

BOSTON, June 5.—How the Panama Canal zone was rid of bands of murderers, thugs, bandits and other varieties of law breakers was told here by Colonel George R. Shanton, now chief of the insular police of Porto Rico. Colonel Shanton commanded a troop of Roosevelt's Rough Riders in the Spanish-American war and was later made commandant of the Panama zone by Roosevelt and told to clean it up.

"It was a tough job to tackle," said the colonel, "as I had only a handful of men. The only thing I could do was to get in touch with American gunmen who had fled to the zone and offer them a legitimate job in their own line.

"Some of the bands scouring the country contained as many as 2,000 men—Mexicans, Malays, Spaniards, Portuguese, English, Americans, Chinese, Hindus and the bad men of all creation.

"We went after them, and some we found it necessary to kill off, but the majority were rounded up. The next thing to do was to get them out of the country altogether, but we were in a position where we could not legally deport them. So we rounded up some old three masters that had seen service in pirating, and handling the birds all aboard, shot them off to the islands thereabout and to their own countries wherever possible."

SOCIAL STUFF ALWAYS FAILED

Pastor Says Sciences Big Joke

(By International News Service)

DENVER, June 5.—Socialism and eugenics were failures in Biblical times, as they are today, Rev. Paul Rader, president of the Christian and Missionary alliance, told an audience here in crisp, picturesque language.

Using the parable of Esau and Jacob in his denunciation of eugenics, Rev. Rader said:

"The Lord took Isaac, a fine-looking, clean, highly-intelligent and physically-perfect young man, and joined him with Rebecca, a beautiful, healthy, starry-eyed and curly-haired young women. Eugenically speaking, Isaac and Rebecca were as splendid a pair, physically, mentally, morally and spiritually, as it was possible to find.

"And the result of this eugenic union was two children—Esau and Jacob—as totally unlike their parents and as totally unlike each other as anything that could be imagined.

"Jacob was so unreliable and slippery that God couldn't hold him. He violated every contract he ever made. He was as crooked as a dog's hind leg.

"Esau was the cheapest skate that ever lived. He traded his birthright for a mess of hash.

"That is what the theory of eugenics did for Isaac and Rebecca. God tried it out and it failed ignominiously."

Rev. Rader regarded the flight of the Israelites from Egypt as a "thorough trial of the theory of socialism."

"I am in favor of anything that will give everybody a square deal—everybody a piece of the pie and a chance to take the wrinkles off his stomach," he said. "But socialism was tried out on the Israelites and it was a failure. When they left Egypt and got across the Red sea they were all given exactly the same thing—food, clothing, shoes; an equal distribution of light, shade and guidance in the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night. There was an even and impartial division among the children of Israel, but it did not work. It developed more stiff-necked kickers and more complainers than anything else ever tried before or since."

DECREASE IN NEW VESSELS

Oil Tankers Show Increase

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 5.—While the shipyards of the world launched more than 1,500,000 gross tons less of vessels last year than in 1920 it is noticeable, according to a statement issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, that the number of oiltankers constructed increased almost 65 per cent over the 1920 figures.

Increases are also shown in the number of large vessels being constructed. In comparison with thirty-two ships of 10,000 gross tonnage and over reported launched in 1920 there were 47 last year.

In the construction of oil tankers two-thirds of this class was done in the United States, but gains were made by Great Britain and other countries.

OKLAHOMA—

mercial relations between the two sections.

The ultimate success of the line, however was years in coming and the building of the road was a painful process, particularly so to the men who were under the necessity of financing it in the serious condition which arose soon after its start, and which culminated in the panic of 1907. But the building went right ahead—first it was carried over Red river into Grandfield—then extended to Frederick—then after a pause to Altus—to Mangum, Elk City, Woodward and finally on to Forgan.

Frank Kell not long ago gave an indication of what the building of this road meant to him and to his associates. He had gone up the line with a party of Katy officials and financiers figuring on the reorganization of the Katy affairs. The return trip was made late at night.

"You had a pretty hard trip, didn't you?" a newspaper man who met the train on the return queried of Mr. Kell.

"No, I enjoyed every minute of it," was the reply. "I don't suppose very many would enjoyed it just like I did, but I'll tell you that when one sweats over the building of every mile of that road like I did, they would enjoy it."

Right on the outset difficulties were to be overcome. First the bridging of Red river, the bugbear of railroad builders. As the long bridge over Red river pushed out foot by foot many anxious moments were experienced by the builders, in spite of the assurances of the engineer whom they had picked for the task, R. A. Thompson, who is now building the irrigation project.

For the bridge would have been mere play for a flood before its completion and its loss would have been a serious one. An even greater loss it would have been than the subsequent loss they suffered on the Canadian, when a flood carried away the bridge soon after it had been completed.

"We planted one end of that bridge on a piece of ground on which was a tree which must have been over 100 years old," Mr. Kell once told some Wichitans.

"The first flood that came after we had completed it not only took our bridge, but took the tree and the very ground around it which had been there for more than a century that we knew of."

YORK, Pa., June 5.—Harry Myers, a farmer near here, resented the attentions a certain young man was paying his daughter. Myers warned the young man to cease parking his auto before the Myers home—in fact, not even to "set foot on the place."

Some time later a young man called and was given a good thrashing by the irate father, who did not bother to learn if he had the right man, because he did not doubt but that he had. But he didn't. Clayton Dentler brought suit for assault and battery. Myers admits his mistake and has been found guilty of the charge.

JUDGE RULES ON INSURANCE CLAIMS

(By International News Service.)

SEATTLE, June 5.—In a decision that may become the established precedent in the disposition of millions of dollars of war risk insurance, Federal Judge Jeremian Neterer recently ruled that the will of a soldier killed in action should be followed with regard to disposition of property or designation of beneficiary.

Irene Claffy, 16 years old, niece of Clarence Swank, killed in the Meuse-Argonne advance, is by the terms of the decision entitled to collect approximately $9,000, the remainder of a $10,000 policy in favor of Swank's mother, Malinda Swank, who died shortly after her son was killed. Irene was named as beneficiary, in event of the death of his mother, by a letter from Swank, dated July 15, 1918.

100,000 GIRLS OUT OF SCHOOL

High Schools Should Teach Economics

By MAUDE M'KNIGHT DOPP.

Modern women have found their horizon widening until there is hardly a field of endeavor in which they are not as essential as are men; but woman's old place as a home-maker is still her most important work and that which is most important in the development of the civilization of the world. Yet it is for home-making that the average girl receives less training during the years that she is in school and college than in the avocation that may fill the years before she is to take her place in a home of her own.

According to Miss Bess Heflin, adjunct professor of home economics in the university, there are 162,000 girls in Texas of high school age of whom only 62,000 are in school. In this connection Miss Heflin said:

"I believe if all high schools in this state had thorough courses in home economics to offer the other 100,000 girls, that many of them would stay longer in school. Many girls are forced to leave school to help at home, but if their parents could be made to realize that by staying in school a little longer they would be equipped to be of much more service in the home, a number of them would remain in school.

"Then there are many girls who leave school because they are unable to keep up with other girls of their age and become discouraged. If such girls are able to excel, as they usually are, in the work in home economics, they will stay in school longer, continuing all their studies until they have gained a good education.

"If the work of the high school can be supplemented in each county by that of the home demonstration agents who are subsidized by the federal government, infinitely better home conditions will be the result."

YOUNG FARMERS PLANT GARDENS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Farm and home practices of 1,200,000 farmers, 400,000 farm women and 445,700 farm boys and girls were greatly improved last year as the result of extension work on the part of the department of agriculture in co-operation with the states, according to a report to the department.

During the year, the report stated, 550,000 gardens were established and thousands of tons of fruit and vegetables canned, brined and dried as a result of this work.

Club boys and girls numbering 203,000 who reported the results of their work, produced $5,600,000 worth of products, including pigs, calves, poultry, vegetables and fruits. In addition, there were 240,000 boys and girls enrolled who did not report.

LEAGUE TO BE ISSUE AGAIN

Smoot Oppositionist From Republicans

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 5.— The league of nations, buried under a political avalanche of 7,000,000 votes two years ago, has revived sufficiently to split the "harmony" ranks within both major parties.

Republican and democratic leaders have sought to resurrect the league as a political issue in the coming November congressional elections, not against opposition from their opponents, but to the dismay of men within their own ranks. This peculiar twist of political viewer has caused much amusement to "neutrals."

On the republican side Senator Medill McCormick, of Illinois is the chief contender for a revivification of the league issue. He has sought in debate and public speeches to drive his democratic colleagues into open support of the league as an issue in the coming campaign.

From the democratic ranks Governor James M. Cox, who went to defeat November a year ago on almost universal opposition to the league, has tried to resurrect it as a party standard. His efforts have struck discord within the democratic ranks.

SENATORS SEE JAP CONDITION

Sheppard Says Issue Must Be Met

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Increasing unrest, unemployment and strikes in Japan are regarded by senators from western and southwestern states as likely to soon bring the Japanese immigration question to the front again.

Several of these senators who voted for the Four Power Pacific treaty are frankly regretful that it left wide open the ever-recurring demand of the Japanese for economic expansion and racial equality.

"Multiplying at the rate of 600,000 or 700,000 every year, the Japanese have about reached the point where their soil can no longer be made to furnish them with adequate subsistence," said Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, who has made a close study of the Japanese problem. "Consider further that Japan produces no cotton, no coal and no iron, the basic materials of her industrial life. Consider also that the poverty and discontent of her working classes may at any time become a menace to the prestige and control of the present autocratic Japanese government and it will be seen that Japan must have an outlet for her restless and growing millions or face internal chaos."

SCHOONER MAKES FAST RUN WITH BIG CARGO

(By International News Service.)

BOSTON, June 5.—Proof that the days of the sailing vessel are not past is seen in the record run of the three masted British schooner Rose Anne Belliveau, out of Belliveau Cove, N. S., under Captain R. V. Comeau. The vessel covered the 240 miles to Boston with a load of lumber, in 24 hours. The records do not show a faster trip. The schooner also recently made a record round trip, consuming only seventeen days in loading her cargo, running to Boston, discharging the cargo and returning to her home port. Few steam freighters make better time.

MONEY MAKERS TURN BOOTLEGS

Booze Nets More Than Bogus Coin

By W. H. ATKINS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Counterfeiters have turned to the whiskey business for quick profits. They have forsaken the old game of duplicating United States coin and currency. It was too hazardous. They are too quickly caught in secret service nets, always out for that gentry.

So the counterfeiter has turned bootlegger—or at least has become a most vital cog in the bootleg machine. High powered concoctions are flooding the country under the name of "whiskey." To make it look like the real thing in quality the counterfeiter's art is depended upon to encase the bottled wet goods with what look like government revenue stamps or genuine labels of some of the old well known brands of liquor.

This type of counterfeiter now has extended his operations, and government whiskey permit forms are being duplicated in large numbers. Government officials are baffled by these new devices. What appear to be regularly issued permits calling for the withdrawal of supplies of whiskey from distilleries are presented by the bootlegs or their confederates. Before the fraud is detected new sources of real liquor have been tapped.

Congress is to be asked by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes to make it a penitentiary offense to manufacture counterfeit or forged permits. The counterfeiters, in this phase of the game, now are not punishable. Of course, they can be reached by the authorities for counterfeiting revenue stamps. The secret service is constantly breaking up this practice.

Mentioning that she had no powder on her nose, Lady Astor added that her features were all right individually, but that as Sir Auckland Geddes once told her, they were not assembled well. Oh, we suppose they were thoroughly assembled, but not systematically ushered. — Houston Post.

TOURISTS PLAY GOLF HIGH ABOVE SEA

(By International News Service)

DENVER, June 5.—Tourists and campers in Denver's mountain parks will have opportunity this year to enjoy golf 8,000 feet above sea level on a rolling surface in the Colorado Rockies.

A golf course is being laid out east of Buffalo Bill's Lookout Mountain grave, and a clubhouse, nestling in a sheltered spot, will be constructed for the comfort of the patrons.

The site of the clubhouse is directly opposite the famous Genessee Mountain ski course, and a splendid view of the mountains and plains will be afforded from the clubhouse verandas.

It is expected the links will be in readiness July 1.

UNCLE SAM HEARS SOBS

Pardon Attorney Gets Many Pleas

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Uncle Sam's official listener to "sob" stories is one of the world's most patient and indulgent men.

He is James A. Finch, pardon attorney of the department of justice.

Day after day mothers pour their appeals into his ears—pleas for leniency in cases of men incarcerated for crime.

Finch's office is thronged almost daily with such visitors waiting their turn. Sometimes he must hear the pitiful stories of little children, come to ask the government to wipe the records clean for fathers serving terms for law-breaking.

The attorney general rates Finch as one of the government's most efficient officers, and his recommendations are usually based upon Finch's personal investigation of facts set forth in clemency appeals, which number thousands annually.

WORKING CLASS FORMING PARTY

Farmers, Consumers and Laborers Unite

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senator Robert M. La Follette—"Battling Bob," as he is known to those who admire and respect a fighter—is of the opinion that the farmer, the wage earner and the consumer—the great masses of the "common people"—will ultimately be brought together under the standard of a great "Third Party."

Senator William E. Borah is another progressive republican who believes that sooner than present political conditions seem to indicate a "third party" will emerge from the vast rural and urban population of the country.

"For more than a quarter of a century 'big business' combinations have suppressed competition, acquired a monopoly control of prices, squeezed the farmers, plundered the consumers and, to the limit of their power to do so, have oppressed the wage earners in every branch of industry, Senator La Follette said.

"To meet the organized power of the enormous aggregations of capital engaged in 'big business' the wage earners have, in the face of bitter opposition, endeavored to organize to the end that they might co-operate and bargain collectively with their employers. They have been only partly successful. Only a small minority are organized.

"And the farmers have likewise sought to secure in the same way some measure of relief from the oppression of monopoly. They have attempted defensive organizations for precisely the same reasons that labor has sought to organize.

"The individual, be he farmer, wage earner or consumer, is utterly helpless under existing conditions. He cannot stand alone against organized business combinations. The farmer, the laborer and the consumer have common interests. They are alike exploited by the privileged monopolies.

QUEER WORLD

BUCYRUS, Ohio, June 5.—A large swarm of bees flew down Sandusky avenue, looking for a place to park.

They chose a purple maple tree outside the First National bank building, within a block of the public square.

Charley Ott, ex-shortstop of the Bucyrus Future baseball team, went up the tree and cut off the branch on which the bees had settled. Descending, he shook the swarm into a hive he had brought along for that purpose.

DEVICE STOPS AERIAL WRECKS

Element of Danger Ruled Out

(By International News Service)

LONDON, June 5.—A French engineering genius has evolved an invention which he says will make air collisions impossible and prevent a repetition of the terrible tragedy which recently happened on the London and Paris service.

This airway wonder, which Monsieur W. A. Loue has just completed, will, he asserts, transcend anything which has previously been predicted or even imagined. By a piece of scientific wizardry it is proposed to install in each "air express" what is described as a self-mechanical "brain."

As used now the electric cable, laid along the earth, sends up into the air a continuous current which so affects instruments in the cockpit of an airplane overhead that the pilot can fly mile after mile exactly above the guiding cable, an indicator placed in front of him telling him instantly should he deviate from the prescribed path.

But, should the plane stray away from its invisible road the duty of the pilot who has these controls has to bring it back into line.

M. Loue's invention rules out the personal element entirely. It is claimed. A very delicate machine, sensitive to the current sent up by the guiding cable, will, by its actuation of small compressed air motors, make automatically and ceaselessly the required movements of the air-planes controlling surfaces, and hold it unfailingly above the cable without the pilot having to do anything except to look to the running of the motor and regulate the altitude of his machine.

In the future, therefore, there will be invisible but none the less fixed airways lines ruled across the sky, says Mr. Loue. They will be so placed that collisions would be impossible he asserts, so that machines proceeding in the same direction will be allotted definite speeds and heights.

As a further piece of scientific "magic" it is expected that the electricity constantly given off by the guiding cable will be utilized for a system of automatic signalling, an airway controller and his assistants located somewhere in the center of the spider's web of electric ways directing the movements of machines which are in the air not merely over one section or one country, but over the combined airway system of Europe.

The controller sitting in his office will be able to envisage the traffic position and movements over thousands of miles of airways stretching north, south east and west, while by means of the wireless telephone he will be able to call up at any moment, the driver of a plane in flight and give him any necessary instructions.

RADIO SET REPLACES FIRE HOUSE SPORTS

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—The checker board and the box of dominoes are about to go the way of the old fire horse and the silver plated speaking trumpet in the fire houses of this city.

The gallant fire laddies have caught the radio bug. A petition has been offered in the common council to equip each fire station in the city with a radio receiving outfit so the firemen can "tune in" during the leisure hours before bedtime and enjoy the concerts which are "agitating" the air hereabouts nearly every night.

"We're tired of checkers. We want to listen in on the jazz," is the firemen's request.

DENIAL OF MURDER STIRS MENTAL EXPERTS

Rutger Warder

How etheris given to patient.

SLEEPING MAN DENIES MURDER

Alleged Slayer Has New Problem

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 5.—"If anyone should ask you, I never killed anybody."

Rutger Warder, helpless on an operating table, sinking under ether, said these startling words. Startling because he is a resident of the death house at Sing Sing, condemned to die for the murder of Henry Werner in 1921.

Warder was stricken with appendicitis several days ago. He would have to die, anyway, pretty soon.

But every now and then the electric chair, a vile instrument of vengeance, must be fed with human flesh thrown into its embrace, just as the Minotaur was gorged with the bodies of youth and maidens.

Lest Warder die and cheat the carefully wired device of death that hungers for his body, they rushed him out to the prison hospital where ether made him say:

"If anyone should ask you I never killed anybody!"

What Did Ether Do?

Now, the question is, did the anaesthetic make Warder tell the truth or did he merely utter the denial that has been so often on his lips?

More than a year ago Dr. James Cotton, of Toronto, announced his discovery of a preparation of ether which compels persons under its influence to speak the truth. Ether, following the Canadian experiment, was efficacious in a case in New Jersey. Dr. John Corcoran, of the staff of St. Mary's hospital, Passaic, administered the drug, while officials question and thus obtained a truthful statement from a previously silent patient.

This hysterical girl, who had been found wandering about unable to tell anything about herself, cleared the mystery when ether loosened first her inhibitions and then her tongue. Dr. Corcoran said of the drug's properties:

"Etherization destroys the will to withhold facts, even though they may be derogatory to ourselves or others.

"Its effects upon the person, the effect, so to speak, upon the psychological being, is to remote all inhibitions."

For all Warder knew he might be going to die when he went to the operating table for the removal of his appendix. Being in sinking under ether and in coming out from its influence, he affirmed his innocence of the crime for which he will be compelled to die on a certain day and in a certain way.

Could he possibly be guiltless of Werner's murder?

The matter was put up to a psychologist and to a woman lawyer for their respective opinions on the probability of Warder's truthfulness and the possibility of wrongful conviction.

Dr. Edward J. Kempf, well known as a mental expert, says he believes the case of Warder is worth investigating. So does Dr. Anna Hochfelder, lawyer.

Expert's Opinion

"There are many cases of 'hysterical amnesia,'" explains Dr. Kempf, "perhaps I had better say 'repression,' in which people commit murder and proceed to forget every detail of the crime. It is really a sort of hysteria in which the memory fails. These persons take the attitude of perfect innocence. I saw many cases of this sort while I was connected with the government hospital for the insane at Washington, D. C.

"Ether could produce both truth and delusions.

"These people who forget the details of their crimes are normal enough in other respects, outside of [illegible] 'repression.'

"Warder's statement may be false or true.

"Do I believe there is any special drug or form of ether which will make people tell the truth? Nonsense!

"But I do think the case is worth [illegible]"

CONGRESS PLANS NARCOTIC FIGHT

EAGLE WHIPPED BY BULLDOG IN BATTLE

(By International News Service)

GOFFSTOWN, N. H., June 5.—A fierce battle was staged here between a bulldog and a large eagle. The eagle, believed to have come from the Uncannoune Mountains near here, swooped down on the yard of Herbert Ainsworth and attempted to carry off a bulldog.

The dog put up such a fight that the bird was unsuccessful, however, and when Mrs. Ainsworth appeared the eagle flew away.

DRY OFFICERS ARE INGENOUS

Disguises Used to Trap Bootleggers

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Buyers of bootleg whiskey visiting the haunts of bootlegers may be buying from government agents.

The answer is that the government is "planting" its enforcement operatives in the bootleg headquarters.

Federal agents are adopting varied disguises. They appear as bums, entering some strange town. They are taken in by the bootlegs, who are moved not by pity, but by the selfish purpose to use the alleged "bum" as a tool to palm off their wares.

The "bum" later turns up in the headquarters of the state prohibition director, with records and charts that offer the key to the bootlegging industry in the sections covered by their operations.

Hotel bootlegging has been curtailed by another very shrewd method of the enforcers. Government agents, skilled in the art of crime detection and wise to the ways of the bootlegs, suddenly show up in the most fashionable hostelries. They are for the time being gentlemen of leisure, with lots of money to spend and with lavish programmes of entertainment for their friends.

A hotel guest, on the law of averages, can muster a big flock of guests, without much advance notice, by a pronouncement that he is to have a "rum party." The "boys" fall over each other getting in on the big time. The alleged wealthy host, who has blown in from some more or less indistinct "manufacturing center," is none other than a rum raider. He gains the confidence of the bell boys, the porters and the waiters by his profligate demeanor. He flashes rolls of banknotes with reckless abandon. The tip goes around the hotel that a new "sucker" has arrived. He's the "fall guy," think these smart young fellows who are lying around waiting to make easy coin on the liquor cleanups.

The prosperous gent, who idles around with lots of cash, buying dynamic drinks for the crowds gathered about him in his suite of ornate grooms, stays long enough to get the goods and soon disappears amid a lot of kowtowing, but with the stuff that will be used as a basis for indictments.

TREASURER IS CHAMP PENMAN

Greatest Job Is Signatures

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The champion pen-pusher of America is Frank White, United States treasurer.

When White gets through signing his signature several thousand times he winds up the day, eats and turns into "the hay."

But he is philosophic. If he were not he would lose more of the hair on a well modeled dome that already is sparse in hirsute adornment.

A meter attached to White's pen probably would show that he holds the world's daily record for letter and receipt signatures.

The United States treasurer under the law must sign personally a vast amount of correspondence including papers of various kinds bearing upon huge amounts of currency and securities that reach the United States treasury each day from banks all over the United States.

Wagon loads of money are driven up to the treasury building each day with their precious cargoes from all corners of the country. A great deal of it comes in for redemption or replacement for newer currency.

It is the job of Treasurer White to account for each and every dollar of this currency. It amounts to many milions daily. He is heavily bonded. The physical exertion of affixing his signature to so many documents leaves White at the end of an average day fairly well exhausted, but he grins and tells everybody he "should worry." For, of all things, White is a philosopher, and he wields a wicked pen, as they can say in curb talk, and scatters the most influential ink in America.

A well to do farmer went into his banker one day to borrow money, but the banker turned him down without a cent. A young farmer who had just started out for himself heard the banker's refusal and wandered—for he also wanted to borrow.

The banker quickly granted his request for a loan, and told him to come again when he needed money for the bank wanted to see him make a success of his new farming venture.

When the young farmer expressed surprise at getting money when the well-to-do farmer failed the old banker said, "Well Charley it makes a lot of difference what you want money for—that fellow wanted to borrow money to gamble on the board of trade—he wll probably lose and we do not want to mix up in a business like that.

GAS WASTED BY OIL REFINERIES

120,000,000 Millions Of Gallons Lost

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—With the problem of gasoline supplies and prices agitating the nation's millions of motorists, the bureau of mines advances the suggestion that by the more complete condensation of still vapors at the petroleum refineries 120,000,000 gallons of the precious liquid fuel may be added yearly to the national output.

As the result of a detailed investigation, D. B. Dow, petroleum engineer of the bureau, estimates that 50,000,000 gallons of gasoline were recovered from uncondensed still vapors at refineries in 1921. Application of the system to all refineries would give a possible gasoline recovery by this method of 170,000,000 gallons yearly.

The calculations of the bureau of mines are based on results obtained in refineries whose general methods are more efficient than those employed in the hundreds of smaller skimming plants that have no recovery systems. It is assumed that in the less efficient skimming plants, located in sections where the supply of cold water, so essential for condenser use, is scarce, greater recoveries could be made than in the large refineries studied. This should be especially true of Oklahoma, north Texas, and Louisiana skimming plants, where summer temperatures are high and where cold water is scarce. A survey of these plants, it is believed, would show that their losses in uncondensed still vapors would be much higher than in the plants where the studies of the bureau of mines were conducted.

The magnitude of the loss from non-condensation of these vapors has been realized only by a few refiners, judging from the number of plants that have recovery systems. The 13 refineries studied by the bureau of mines are obtaining 128,651 gallons of gasoline daily from uncondensed still vapors. These plants are situated in the various refining centers, other than the Pacific coast, and are running crude representative of all the producing fields east of the Rocky mountains. In addition, several are running Mexican crude. Information from California refineries indicates that on account of the smaller gasoline content of the California crudes, there are no recovery plants of importance in that state. The average recovery of gasoline at the refineries investigated by the bureau of mines amounted to .4 gallon per barrel of crude oil charged.

Unless preventive measures are adopted, losses of gasoline from failure to condense still vapors will increase in the future, because crudes are being handled in the field with more care to avoid evaporation and will therefore contain much lighter and more volatile fractions than at present.

Condensation of the vapors formed by heating crude oil is effected in the refinery by leading vapors through coils of pipe submerged in water. On cooling, most of the vapor becomes liquefied, but a certain amount of vapor, due to insufficient time for proper cooling or the fact that its condensing point is lower than the temperature of the water, will remain uncondensed. Also, certain other fractions will not be condensed, for the reason that their liquefaction points are affected by the presence of other hydrocarbons. A small part of this uncondensed vapor is dissolved in the liquid that has condensed.

Condensation of the vapors coming from the still into liquid is accomplished either by passing them through pipes or shells having large surfaces exposed to the air or through coils submerged in water.

Atmospheric temperature is an important factor in the production of gasoline from uncondensed refinery vapors. It is found that during winter months, due to more complete condensation of the vapors, the production of the "gas" plant will fall off to some extent. An unusual example of this is a certain skimming plant which produces about 6,000 gallons of compression gasoline daily through the summer months, but it drops to as low as 500 gallons per day in the winter. Ordinarily, the difference is far less, but there is always a tendency for production to drop in cooler weather.

The cost of installing recovery plants will necessarily vary with different plants, depending on local conditions such as the distances between different stills which are sources of gas, the nature of gas, especially in regard to sulphur content, and the plant efficiency. However, a cost of approximately $15 per gallon of gasoline (daily capacity) should be sufficient. The operating cost of the gas plant is relatively low.

A detailed report of Mr. Dow's investigations is given in serial 2344, "Recovery of gasoline from uncondensed still vapors," which may be obtained from the bureau of mines, Washington, D. C.

RUSSIAN NAVY STIRS ALLIES

Germans Take Hand In Rebuilding

(By International News Service)

LONDON, June 5.—A Germanized Russian navy is one of the many European spectres that is worrying those who are thinking about the next war.

Soviet Russia has ships, arsenals and navy yards, and all of this unhampered by any restrictions laid down by the Washington conference.

Germany has a trained naval personnel, capable of administering the Russian navy with an efficient and technique which it has never known.

The Russian fleet has been rapidly deteriorating since 1917, but it is reported to be in such condition that it might be rapidly made ready for active service. German naval artisans are regarded as thoroughly competent to do this work.

In 1917 there was a considerable number of ships of all types under construction in Russia, but these have never been completed. With the aid of German brains these vessels might now be completed, and while the Russian fleet would not be considered as most modern, it would be far from obsolete and would offer a formidable naval opponent to any power upon the seas.

PHYSICIAN PLANS SYNTHETIC TWIN

CHICAGO, June 5. — Synthetic Siamese twins are planned by Dr. L. R. Dragstedt, of the physiology department of the University of Chicago. The doctor has been experimenting with cats, dogs and guinea pigs for six months, joining their abdominal cavities together in a suture similar to the Siamese twins.

Linking of the animals is for the purpose of learning more about internal secretions of the body, one of the subjects of which medical science has much to learn.

Dr. Dragstedt reports interesting developments in his studies, but no definite discoveries as yet.

"It may be something important will be discovered soon," he declared.

Million Dollars In Oil Royalty Paid In By Two States

C., June 5.—Royalties accruing to the United States government in the month of April from the production of oil and gas on leased public lands in the states of Wyoming and California amounted to $1,009,007.88, according to reports submitted by the bureau of mines to the general land office. Of this amount, $784,600 is credited to Wyoming and $224,400 to California.

The total net royalties accruing to the federal government to April 30, as the result of oil and gas production on public lands under the terms of the general leasing act, approved February 25, 1920, amount to $4,650,286.81. A total of 7,328 permits for prospecting for petroleum and natural gas on public lands had been issued up to the end of April.

Under the terms of the general leasing law, the technical supervision of oil and gas pdoducing operations on leased public lands is entrusted to the Bureau or Mines. Offices for the conduct of this supervisory work are located at the Denver, Colo.; Casper and Salt Creek, Wyoming; Bakersfield, Calif.; Winnett, Montana.; and Shreveport, La., general headquarters being maintained in Denver.

SINGLE BULLET TURNED INDIAN WARRIORS BACK

Capt. Burnett Tells Kell Of Abode Walls Fight

Building of the Wichita Falls & Northwestern necessitated negotiations by Kemp & Kell with certain individuals who played a big part in the history of this corner of the west—the chieftains and leaders of the Commanches, once owners and overlords of the entire country, and at that time owners of the recently opened lands which had made the "Big Pasture"—several hundred thousand acres of land immediately across Red river from Wichita Falls.

A conference was arranged with the Indians and Frank Kell went over to make the trade with them—accompanied by Capt. S. B. (Burk) Burnett, pioneer cattleman who was a lifelong friend of Chief Quanah Parker of the other Commanches.

Tells of Indian Attack

On the way over Capt. Burnett told Mr. Kell the Indians account of the famous fight at Adobe Walls—which by the way is located not far from the ranch in the Pocahontas owned now by Kell and R. H. Love. As a part of the recital he recounted how the Commanches and their allies on that occasion, the Kiowas, who usually nearly stamped before closing with their enemies, had charged the plainsmen in the buildings which formed three walls, using the four corners up full tilt against the two doors of the building.

Old Ishiti, the big medicine man had told the Indians that the white's bullets would not kill them—that they would be turned downward, Capt. Burnett said.

Indians Draw Off

The attack was repulsed with heavy losses from the heavy Buffalo guns fired into the masses of Indian warriors. The Indians then drew off for some distance—they considered that they were well out of gun shot range, they told Capt. Burnett in after years, to hold a council and decide whether or not to make the attack.

One of the Indians, a sort of smart aleck made an obscene gesture of derision at the white several hundred yards away. A buffalo hunter decided to risk a shot at him, despite the danger of missing and of lowering the Indians' regard for the whites' bullets and by good luck it was an extraordinarily long shot—he killed him. That shot, according to the Indians, decided them not to renew the attack.

The party from Wichita Falls by this time had reached the meeting place. Quanah Parker, whom plainsmen credit with being the leader of the Indian horde—one of the most powerful ever engaged in a single combat on the American continent—was there, and so was the old medicine man. Capt. Burnett pointed Ishiti out to his companion.

"There's the old —— who made the 'pole cat medicine' for that 'Dobe Walls fight,'" he said.

"Ishiti did not understand English," Mr. Kell said, "but he knew by intuition what was said, and he grinned at the remark. Funnah, who understood English, laughed out loud."

Wichita Wildcatters Looking Forward To Thorough Testing of Neighboring Counties In Oklahoma and Texas

Wichita Falls wildcatters and backers for wildcatters, are receiving their interest in operations looking toward a thorough testing of various parts of neighboring counties, both in Oklahoma and Texas, where previous showings have been sufficient to warrant further testings.

Conditions during the past two years, since the first operations just across Red river during the northwest and river bed room, have not been such as to justify starting of new developments. However Tillman county is by no means considered out of the running for chances for opening up of oil pools.

Tillman Promising

Wichita county operators, as well as Tillman county and other Oklahoma operators have already spent some money in Tillman in their prospecting, enough in fact to assure a continuation of developments. There are promises of new tests in Tillman within a short time, though no definite locations or announcements have been made as yet.

Hardeman county wild cat operations have been dormant for some months, though the interest is by no means abated. The Frizzell well, which was the center of interest for some time, is to be completed within the summer, according to latest reports. This well has been shut down for months, while the owner has been interested in other operations, but it is understood that he is now preparing to open up the Hardeman county operations with very little more delay.

Other Activity

Operations in Wilbarger county, as elsewhere, even in proven pools, have been slowed up considerably, but are now showing much new life. The east side of the county, in the Waggoner pasture, is busting with new activity, and there is every promise of developments of much importance in the next few months, as the result of the new operations.

Other parts of the county will share in the increased activity of the wildcatter, according to present indications.

Unusual Number Of Resorts For Visitors

You may be a newcomer in Wichita Falls, but you're no stranger.

The old city of western life still tastes of the hospitality of other days. The hospitality of other days was of a different type to that of today, but the modern interpretation of the word and all it implies is still one of the noticeable characteristics of "The City That Faith Built."

Pioneers of the surrounding country who fostered and fathered the metropolitan city which now stands where once the Wichita Indians pitched their tepees, brought with them from their ranches that wholesome handshake and "Howdy Brother" for which Texas only is famous. And these same promotors of the first enterprises, saw to it that the spirit of welcome did not die out with the rush of prosperity which developed the modern city.

Merchants Greet Strangers.

Merchants are of the agreeable kind here. When one enters the seat of the present day mercantile establishments, there is a feeling of appreciation for presence there. Those in attendance greet you with a smile and department heads extend courtesies promiscuously.

A guest at local hotels finds every possible convenience at the disposal of those who are patrons of Wichita hostelries. The Kemp will soon open a roof garden to the public which promises to become one of the many pleasure spots available to pleasure seekers.

Pleasure Resorts.

Swimming and bathing pools abound. Four or five ideal pools for a dip afford heat-fatigued citizens opportunity for an hour's recreation. Parks are run in connection with the resorts which permit picnics in conjunction with the evening's swim.

Golfers find an excellent course at the Golf club. Some of the leading contenders for honors in the recent state championship tournament are on the greens daily. Matches of merit are shot over the fairway most every day.

Those coming to Wichita to reside find courtesies from every hand. Real estate men are more courteous and obliging than ordinarily found in cities. Merchants step further in their line to accommodate a newcomer. Neighbors are of the kind worth while, friendly and obliging.

And yet, despite the trend toward modern ways and ideas, Wichita Falls still passes that welcome for which the one time rancher's town was famous. It breathes the atmosphere of the law of the west that knows no stranger.

Irrigation to Start New Development in Wichita Territory

400,000 ACRES TO BE WANTED

Pleasure Lake Also Provided

Irrigation—probably the Wichita Falls trade trippers will talk in neighboring towns about that more than any other one thing—even more than oil, and business. For they expect the irrigation project now being built by the city of Wichita Falls and the farmers in the district to be worth more to the city when it is in full operation than the discovery of a new oil field each year.

But there is more to it than that. They expect the building of this project to start a new era in the southwest. The experience of the Wichitans, and the laws which were made in order that this project could go over—laws which permitted the formation of irrigation districts in exactly the same manner that good roads districts are formed, and school districts—is expected to result in many other southwestern communities utilizing their irrigation resources, and providing means for supplementing rains and making farming a certain business, instead of an annual hazard without assured water for crops.

The Wichita Falls project, beside providing a water supply for a Wichita Falls, should it grow five times as big, and for the neighboring towns in Wichita county, will irrigate 150,000 acres on the start. It is believed that it will in time irrigate much more—the estimate has been placed as high as 400,000—but those behind the project are going slow, and will not take in more land until experience shows that it can be done with safety.

The project necessitates the erection of two big dams, and the building of two big canals—artificial rivers they are. The cost, borne by bonds voted by the city of Wichita Falls, is $4,500,000. Owners of the lands to be irrigated will, when the second district is organized, bear a portion of the cost.

The two big lakes are expected to furnish one of the big pleasure grounds of the southwest. The larger will cover 20,000 acres—it is approximately the same size as Lake George, in New York. It will be the largest lake in Texas, and will be 33 times the size of Lake Wichita, once the largest artificial lake in Texas. The water, immediately against the big dam, will be as deep as the ordinary eight story building is tall—more water than is necessary to float the largest ocean liner ever built. The big dam will be more than half a mile long—its height decreasing, of course, as it nears the edge of the valley. The average depth of this lake will be 25 feet—most ocean going vessels draw less water.

The smaller lake, the diversion lake, is much smaller—it is only three times the size of Lake Wichita.

The smaller lake is in the edge of Baylor county, and about 30 miles above Wichita Falls on the Big Wichita river. The larger is about 40 miles up. The construction of the two dams and the south side canal will keep the small army engaged in its construction busy during the rest of the year. This project—a stupendous project for a city to undertake—is just another bet, this time by public enterprise—like those Wichitans have often made to demonstrate their faith in the territory surrounding their city, and in whose development they are interested as it is only by this development that their own city may grow.

Its undertaking is more than any other one thing the result of the vision and the untiring quarter of a century of effort by one man—J. A. Kemp. Mr. Kemp was determined that this project should belong to the people and not to private financiers who would want the greater part of the profits for the advancement of their money. To do it by public enterprise meant a change in the constitution of Texas.

Amendment of the Texas constitution is a difficult and expensive thing. The first election for the amendment of the constitution was held in 1907, and lost. Several more were held, with a like result—Mr. Kemp himself paid the expenses for a statewide election for one. He paid the expenses for several campaigns in favor of the amendment in various elections, with more or less assistance from his associates.

The building of Lake Wichita in 1901 was for the purpose of proving his faith in the possibilities of the territory under irrigation—he proposed to do on a small scale what he wished to do on a large scale. Before the city of Wichita Falls grew so that practically all of the water in Lake Wichita was needed for the city uses, the small scale project had amply demonstrated his faith in the land under irrigation—tremendous profits were made by those truck growers who gained a knowledge of irrigation and successfully applied it.

NEFF MAKES WEEK-END VISIT TO HUNTSVILLE

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, June 5.—Governor Neff on his week-end trip to the penitentiary at Huntsville found the officials preparing to replant the 24,000 acres of corn and cotton destroyed by the recent floods, he said today. His trip was merely to keep in touch with the system, he said, and had no special significance.

The prison system will be unable to meet the notes of the $750,000 loan recently made as they fall due, he said.

The governor speaks tomorrow morning at Baylor-Belton college at Belton and tomorrow night at Austin college at Sherman.

COST MORE TO GROW TOBACCO

Burley Increases to 36 Cents Pound

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The average cost of producing Burley tobacco on 74 farms in the Burley district of Kentucky was 32.6 cents a pound in 1920 as compared with an average of 25.8 cents in 1919. The average cost of producing dark fire-cured tobacco on 50 farms in the dark tobacco area of Kentuky was 14.9 cents a pound in 1920 as compared with 17.2 cents in 1919, and was less than one-half the cost of producing Burley. These figures are disclosed in a cost-of-production study made by the college of agriculture of the University of Kentucky and the United States department of agriculture under a cooperative arrangement. Figures for 1921 are now being tabulated.

The yield per acre on the 74 Burley farms ranged from 378 pounds to 1,492 pounds with an average of 907.86 pounds. The cost per acre ranged from $160.20 to $493.60, with an average of $295.73. The cost per pound ranged from 20 cents to 66 cents. Approximately 50 per cent of the tobacco was produced at 37 cents a pound or less. The average yield in 1919 was 1,492 pounds. The light weight of the 1920 crop is attributed to the unusual weather conditions prevailing during the growing season.

FARM PRICES ARE IMPROVED

Status of Farmers Becoming Normal

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Rise in prices of leading farm products reflects improvement in the economic status of the farmer.

While losses in the farm regions have been severe and largely unavoidable because of the slump away from peak prices a year ago, the reports to the federal reserve board and the department of agriculture show that the growers are going ahead with new crops in orderly fashion.

Government officials expect to see a great increase in foreign demand for American products before the close of the year, and this will enhance the farmers' position, it is believed, for larger demand from abroad for America's surplus will cause prices of the farm commodities to rise in value.

The government now faces the problem of insuring for the farmer some additional credit methods by which he may more easily finance his crop operations, regardless of which price conditions in another year, however favorable for the farmer, still leave him with inadequate financing opportunities.

Officials of the administration incline to the view that as the farmer has only one turnover each year some method must be devised to enable him to get long-term loans at reasonable rates of interest.

There is growing distrust by the administration of a system which permits the farmer to be "gouged" by money pirates on funds borrowed and needed for necessary operations. Ways are to be found to alleviate this condition. The president and his advisers now are addressing themselves to this subject. It will be followed probably by demands that congress enact new laws or amend existing ones to simplify the farmer's banking procedure.

HARDING WILL NOT HELP CUBA

Administration Keeps Eye On Island

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Whether Cuba will be able to bring about the economic and financial readjustment of which she stands in need without the intervention of the United States is a question which is commanding the attention just now not only of the Harding administration, but of large American business and financial interests as well.

Under the existing treaty between the United States and Cuba, and especially under the famous Platt amendment to that treaty, it is the duty as well as the privilege of the American government to interpose whenever it appears that the Cubans are not conducting their affairs properly, and not even the most patriotic among the Cubans themselves question that right, at least theoretically. Indeed, in some disgruntled quarters in Cuba it has been asserted that intervention has existed since Major General Enoch H. Crowder went to Havana more than a year ago as the personal representative of the president. While this view is undoubtedly extreme, it cannot be denied that General Crowder has several times opposed his opinions to those of a majority of the Cuban government, and that his view has usually prevailed.

President Harding is personally opposed to any kind of intervention. He has made this fact plain in a number of statements from the White House, the most recent of which was to the effect that "the president has heard nothing of any proposed intervention of any kind" for Cuba. Certain it is that if the administration resorts to so-called financial intervention as a last recourse it will be only after every other means at its disposal has been exhausted.

NEWEST BLOUSES FOR SUMMER

BY ELOISE.

The new blouses hint so strongly of the peasant modes of the old country that they could easily claim to be imported. As a matter of fact, however, most of the bizarre styles which follow closely the Balkan and Oriental peasant dress are American made. White linen and other white stuffs featuring colored embroidery and laces and unusual sleeves are the distinguishing feature of these blouses. These two models shown here are very extreme styles which copy the foreign styles almost to the letter.

At the left is a short, full blouse with voluminous sleeves. It is made of white linen elaborately embroidered in bright red and lace to match is generously used as trimming on the wide sleeves. The embroidery forms a yoke and low collar and trims the shoulder seams. The puzzle presented with such a blouse is where may it be worn. The designers answer that it is suitable any time and any place a smock is, for it is merely a glorified smock.

One could probably find more use for the peasant waist at the right. It is made of a shantung, very light weight and soft. The fullness of the smock is increased by accordion pleating at the front panel. The huge sleeves are gathered into a four inch cuff and are pleated from elbow to wrist, giving the leg-of-mutton effect. An embroidered yoke in vestee effect, an inch or two-inch collar and the embroidered cuffs are all done in high Bulgarian colors.

Such blouses as these will make startling costumes for informal wear, whether they are becoming or practical is a matter of individual opinion.

BAN ON CORSET PEEVES ENGLISH

Dressmakers Want 'Em to Stay

(By International News Service)

LONDON, June 5.—English dressmakers are in revolt against the laxity in the way in which women wear—or do not wear—corsets.

The almost tropical weather of the land has caused many women to discard as much clothing as possible, including their corsets, and have no elastic belt.

Their dressmakers have roundly condemned their consequent uncontrolled and over developed figures, and all well known couturiers, including those who made creations for the wedding of Princess Mary, state that practically all their customers have now returned to the light and flexible corset.

The elastic belt they consider, loses its strength after a week or two, fails to maintain the graceful outline of the female form and is considered injurious from a medical point of view.

The new waist, however, will not be in the same position; it is to be low down on the figure. Notwithstanding this it is to be more defined than that of last year.

OPIUM GROWING IS NOW BANNED

Chinese Officer to Enforce Order

(By International News Service)

SHANGHAI, June 5.—As a feature of the crusade against opium growing, smuggling and smoking which is being waged in China, the minister of the interior at Peking has issued an important proclamation to all civil governors of the various provinces instructing them to enforce the laws regarding opium. If the laws are not enforced he states that removal from office will be the punishment.

The circular order to all civil governors is as follows:

"As the prohibition of opium has been embodied in a treaty with Great Britain, and in view of the repeated protests of the British legation against the alleged cultivation of poppy in various provinces with the exception of Shansi, Kiangsu and a few other provinces, it is absolutely necessary for the central government to adopt strong measures to suppress the evil as soon as possible so as to uphold China's international prestige abroad. On account of this, and by the approval of the president and the prime minister, the central government has decided to inflict adequate penalties upon those authorities who permit the cultivation of poppy within their jurisdiction hereafter."

ALASKA WILL OPEN AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL SOON

(By International News Service)

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 5.—The farthest north institution of higher education in the world, the Alaska Agricultural college and School of Mines, will be opened here next September.

No longer will it be necessary for Alaska's high school graduates to go "outside" to complete their education, for the new college will afford courses in agriculture, home economics, mining engineering, civil engineering, general science and even special courses for the humble prospector and miner.

Marking this important step in the development of Alaska, the opening of the college will be celebrated with elaborate ceremonies, under the direction of Judge Charles E. Bunnell, who was formerly federal judge for the fourth judicial division of the territory, who was appointed president of the institution.

The movement for the establishment of an accredited college in Alaska was started in 1917, when the territorial legislature appropriated $50,000. It was not until 1921, however, when sufficient appropriations were made and the opening of the college next September became assured. Once operating, the college will be entitled to $50,000 annually from the federal government.

150 Business Men Leave Spreading Gospel of Trade for Wichita

ENTHUSIASM IS HIGH AT START

Estimate Number In Train at 150

The most pretentious trade trip ever attempted by emissaries of industry and commerce in Wichita Falls which got under way at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, is made up of representatives of practically all the leading business houses in the city.

Estimates of chamber of commerce officials promoting the trip were not far wrong in giving 150 as the number to be expected on the excursions.

Success Assured

And it was an enthusiastic aggregation that filled the cars and made general and particular trouble for each other at the station and along the route, all of which contributed to the belief held by the chamber of commerce that the trip was destined to be a huge success.

The trade trip idea is not new to the business and professional men of Wichita Falls, but the extent to which it has been revived this summer is a distinct novelty. The fruits of smaller excursions over the local trade territory last year seemed to justify an expansion of the idea, with the result that three extensive trips, of which Tuesday's is the first, have already been mapped out in detail.

From reports received in advance, trade excursions are attracting but little less attention in those communities to be visited than it is at the starting point. Civic organizations and chambers of commerce along the route have been making elaborate preparations of welcome for their guests and that the three day period consumed by the trip will be a busy and entertaining one from first to last is a foregone conclusion.

Parade Towns

Stops varying in length with the size of the point visited will be made to allow the trippers opportunity of parading through the town and advertising Wichita Falls. Souvenirs and advertising matter appropriate to the occasion have been contracted for by many of the excursionists and will be distributed all along the line.

Personnel of Train

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then, able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. BURKHOLDER, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Something out of balance will affect the finest clock, causing it to gain or lose. The proper adjustment made, all is well. So it is with women. Some trouble may upset you completely.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct the cause of the trouble and all disagreeable symptoms will disappear.

CRY FOR BREAD IS HEARD HERE

Near East Appeal Sounded

"America, oh! America—send us bread."

The striking appeal of crying, hungry, homeless, half-clad children—the poor unfortunate exiles of Armenia—was heard in Wichita Falls yesterday.

Standing before the large assemblage of Kiwanians and addressing one of the strongest appeals that could be made in their behalf, Mrs. B. F. Armstrong of the near east relief commission eloquently brought before the manhood of this city, as she said, the message from the Armenian sisters.

In the hand of the Christians, she said, where else Christ child was born, the little children of Armenia were driven into exile by merciless Turks while their fathers fought on the battlefields against the invader. Helpless women and babes were ruthlessly murdered, she declared, while their defenders were at war.

Mrs. Armstrong urged the Kiwanians to give freely of their old clothes and money to help send the next ship to the relief of the Armenians.

"Five dollars a month will save an Armenian child," she said, and there's thousands of them over there that ought to be saved. There are 700,000 helpless women in Turkish harems, within the moment.

"Those children are waiting over there with their arms outstretched to America to save them. And they have the most beautiful faith in the world in that ship we're going to send them."

Jury Holds Autoists Must Respect Misplaced Traffic Sentinels, But Censures City For Carelessness

Guilty, but the city at fault.

That was the verdict of a jury of six men in the county court at law Monday afternoon in the case of J. C. McCrary, charged with cutting a corner.

The case had been appealed to the county court at law from the corporate court.

In returning the verdict, the jurymen attached a note to their verdict, fining the defendant $5 and saying:

"While we have found it necessary to find defendant guilty, we wish to offer a censure and condemn the city management for the manner in which the silent cop was placed on this corner on date this offense was committed."

THREE DEAD AFTER FIGHT AT DANCE

By Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 5.—Three men are dead at Los Indios, Cameron county, following an attempt by Deputy Sheriff George Carpenter to disarm Martin George at a Mexican dance Sunday.

The officer asked George to surrender his pistol and the latter, stepping forward as if to comply, shot Carpenter in the abdomen. Carpenter drew his gun and each man holding the other by the shoulder, emptied their pistols into the other's body. Both were dead when the smoke cleared away.

Andres Perez, believed to have tried to assist Carpenter in preserving peace at the dance, was later found dead 100 yards from the scene with a bullet through his throat and two empty shells in his pistol.

Citizens Assn. to Plan Sheriff Race

Consideration of plans in connection with the race of the candidate for sheriff endorsed by the association, W. W. Murphy, was considered at a meeting of the executive committee of the Wichita County Citizens association Monday. The plans are to be further discussed at the next regular meeting, Monday two weeks.

SMITH DENIED BAIL MONDAY

Examining Trial On Statutory Offense

Ed Smith, charged with a statutory offense, was remanded to jail without bond Monday afternoon following a preliminary hearing held before Justice R. V. Gwinn.

Smith is accused of an assault upon a 14-year-old girl the night of April 28, on a road several miles from Wichita Falls.

The little girl and her brother, 16, were both placed on the stand yesterday to testify against Smith, both accusing him of the assault upon the sister.

The girl disappeared from Wichita Falls some time ago, and was later returned to her home by people who said they had found her on the roadside crying. She testified yesterday that she had stayed away from home because she was afraid to return and tell her mother the truth.

She said under oath that Smith had given her whisky, had gotten her drunk and had then attacked her against her will. Her testimony tended to show that the defendant had made suggestions of taking her to his home to live, with the further suggestion that he would marry her when he had divorced his wife.

----Is MUSIC

Not even music can quite take mother's place in the home. But next to mother, the greatest single influence for good in the home is—music.

The wife and mother needs music perhaps more than anyone lese. Her nerves may be a little more tired—her muscles a little more weary, and perhaps there is more monotony in her life than is the case with other members of the family.

Give her music—a new Playerpiano. With this wonderful new instrument she can play the better class of music with all the delicate expression and technique that comes from many years of manual practice.

Music Brings Contentment and Happiness to Every Member of the Family

If you would iron out the cares of a busy housekeeper; if you would ease the worries and freshen the spirit of the tired husband; if you would keep your boy away from the influences of the street corner gang, and your daughter from the cabarets; if you would avoid the cravings for outside excitement, and tinsel pleasures—make your home attractive by that most satisfying pleasure to be found anywhere—an attractive home life.
