LOOKING US OVER—This Russian trawler had been sitting at anchor off the port of Charleston, S.C., for two weeks when this picture was taken. Loaded with electronic gear, the ship maintained a position 17 miles from the coast. Operating in international waters, the ship is believed so have been charting the movements of American Polaris submarines.

County Votes Not To Take Part In Planning Project

Aransas County decided this week not to participate in a proposed countywide planning project recommended by Mayor

Delmar R. Hiller and the City Council.

The city had hoped that the county, Navigation District, School Board, Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District and the city would share $11,000 costs for the comprehensive, long range plan if, as expected, a Federal grant of $22,000 would be allocated for this project.

When notified of the county's decision, Mayor Hiller said he was "deeply disappointed" but that he still was hopeful that the School Board and Navigation District would decide to share the cost with the city.

The county's decision was reached July 11 at a meeting of the Commissioners Court. Other actions at this meeting were:

—The Court heard and approved monthly reports of fees collected by County Clerk W. E. Beasley, Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt, Justices of the Peace Lawrence Miller, E. B. Crawford, Sr., and H. W. Hampton, and Constables Dowell King and G. G. Gilson.

—Carl Krueger requested that the Commissioners Court pass an ordinance placing a speed limit on canals at Key Allegro. After consideration and a conference with County Attorney Ellis Clark, the matter was tabled for further study.

—The Court voted to employ Martias Sanches and John Vucetich as regular employees with the road and bridge crew.

Consultant Named For Education Group

T. A. Roach, superintendent of schools at Andrews, Texas, from 1955 to 1965, has been named consultant for field operations of the Southwest Educational Development Corp., and will open a headquarters office in the McLeister Building on Friday, Mrs. L. E. Nelson will be secretary.

SEDC is a non-profit corporation with its main office in Austin. It recently received a $216,000 development contract from the US Office of Education to establish an education laboratory to serve both Texas and Louisiana.

New approaches to intercultural education will be emphasized by SEDC. The work will traverse state lines and concentrate on educational needs in the two states.

Roach points out that "besides approximately two million Spanish-speaking citizens and another two millions Negroes, Texas and Louisiana have large segments of French-speaking persons of Acadian descent, Cuban refugees, isolated segments of economically and educationally deprived Anglo-Americans, and the newly evolved subculture of persons with extraordinary experiences and backgrounds whose children could profit by accelerated programs."

FALL HUNT HINGES ON P&WD MEET

Austin.—A wide variety of topics will be considered by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission at its statutory quarterly meeting in Austin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, July 19, according to E. A. Walker, director of wildlife services.

And the decisions made will affect most state sportsmen since hunting and fishing affairs will be decided for the 184 counties placed by law under the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for direct harvest arrangements.

The Department has regulatory responsibility for setting seasons, bag limits and means and methods for taking game birds, game animals, fur bearing animals and fish in a majority of Texas counties.

Counties not designated by the Legislature for having their fish and game managed directly by the Department, follow harvest procedures set up by the lawmakers themselves.

Department personnel conducted thoroughly publicized meetings on the local level where landowners and sportsmen presented their own views concerning the suggested regulations.

These deliberations were carefully recorded and relayed to Department headquarters for study as a basis for making recommendations to the Commission itself.

The conclusive meeting in Austin July 19, will be held in the hearing room on the first floor of the John H. Reagan Building.

Robert Hewes New VFW Commander

A meeting of Stewart-Wendell VFW Post 3904 was held at the post home Tuesday night, with a new slate of officers for the coming year.

Robert Hewes is the new commander, replacing H. C. Mullinax. Other officers are Herman Johnson, senior vice commander; Cecil Gray, junior vice commander; J. W. Hunt, quartermaster;

Albert Butcher, chaplain; surgeon, Dr. Leonard Goldman; post advocate, H. C. Mullinax; post service officer, J. W. Hunt; post adjutant and public relations officer, Vernon Kleypas.

At present the post has 101 participants in the Flag Program.

Plans are being formulated for a new post home. It is hoped that this can be accomplished during the coming year.

The next district VFW meeting will be held at Aransas Pass in October.

The next regular meeting of the local VFW Post will be held July 26.

Commander Hewes is looking forward to a very constructive year in VFW work and asks for the support of all veterans in Aransas County.

Navigation District Approves Addition of Fuel Storage Space

Warren Dewees and J. R. Sutton of the Gulf Oil Company appeared before the Board of Navigation and Canal Commissioners of Aransas County Navigation District No. 1 on July 6.

They requested the addition of more fuel storage space for Warden's Marine Service and the Johnson Fish Company.

After considering the matter the Board decided that two 4,000-gallon tanks could be buried just north of the existing tanks.

Next, Richard Tierce and E. Stettner of Coastal Bend Water Activities Association discussed boat races in the Ski Basin and outlined plans and related projects for future races.

N. F. Jackson consulted with the Board in regard to leasing a portion of land south of the Rockport Harbor launching ramp for office space. The Board stated a price of $25 a month and Jackson said he would discuss the proposal with the interested party.

A letter and work order from Southwestern Bell Telephone Company was read and discussed. The Board, in full agreement with a proposal to bury a telephone cable for three pay phones along the beach road, decided to contact the company for its approval so that work could proceed.

Superintendent Stephen Atwood brought up the problem of "A" dock in Fulton Harbor. He showed a sketch of the dock depicting how it should look to fulfill its purpose. The piers will be extended and raised, and stalls will be enlarged to accommodate larger vessels.

Attending the meeting were Chairman Charles J. Schindler, Commissioners Ted R. Little and Matthew W. Scott, Supt. Atwood and Atty. Ellis Clark.

School District To Prepay Bonds Totalling $35,000

The Aransas County Independent School District on Sept. 1 will call in and prepay $35,000 in bonds which will pay off the 1956 issue and leave as the only outstanding bond the 1962 issue.

The decision was made Tuesday night at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the school district.

In another action the trustees decided "that it was not practical for the district to participate at this time" in a proposed countywide comprehensive plan for the future.

The trustees agreed that "although the school district feels that this is a most worthwhile step to be taken by the various governmental units, the school district has just completed a study of its needs for building purposes."

"Even though it would be desirable to project and provide facilities ahead of needs, it is never possible. School buildings are built after population centers have been established, and as a result crash programs are required. "The building needs at present in the school district are almost at the critical stage (continued on page 8)

City Council Adopts Zoning Ordinance

The City Council adopted a modern zoning ordinance Monday night which is designed to assure orderly growth and development of the residential, business and industrial areas in the years ahead.

Action by the Council followed the receiving of a number of recommendations by the Zoning and Planning Commission, all of which were approved.

These recommendations related to a few changes in the city's new zoning map in which small areas now being used for business are to be so indicated on the map instead of for residential use.

Before adopting the zoning ordinance, the Council also approved three amendments, as follows:

1) From now on, fishing piers can be put up only with permission from the City Council.

2) Mobile homes cannot be placed on lots (other than mobile home courts) for occupancy except when special permission is granted by the City Council.

3) Property owners shall have the right to have applications considered for rezoning by filing an application within 60 days from the adoption of the ordinance, without the necessity of a showing that there has been substantial change in conditions since the adoption on July 11. However, it shall be necessary for the applicant to convince a majority of the City Council that the property should have been so zoned initially.

Any application for rezoning filed after 60 days shall require a full, legal showing of such a substantial change of conditions which justify the change of zoning.

Fees for zoning changes and appeals to the Board of Adjustment are to be waived as to applications and appeals filed within 60 days of July 11.

Appointed to the Board of Adjustments were Joe R. Bush, one year; Donald C. Meek, two years; O. P. Little, two years; and James C. Cruser, two years. Alternates named for two years are John L. Kinney and J. W. Hunt.

Mayor Delmar R. Hiller said he and the Council "feel extremely fortunate that these people have agreed to serve in this important capacity."

The mayor also announced that Herman Johnson, City Tax Assessor-Collector, has been designated as administrative officer for zoning.

Consulting engineer William McClendon, City Planning expert William Anderson and City Attorney Richard Hatch also were praised by the mayor for their part in the preparation of the zoning ordinance and map.

Although consideration of the zoning ordinance took up most of the Council's time, Mayor Hiller and Alderman Earnest Harritt, Charlie Garrett, N. F. Jackson and N. C. Vandagriff still found time to consider a few other matters.

One was the presentation of a plat of the first unit of Peninsula Park, William Bloch's subdivision south of the high school. The Council approved the plat on condition that city requirements regarding grade, paving, water and sewer lines are met.

In another action, Doug Carroll was awarded a contract to lay 3,000 feet of 10-inch water line at 69c a foot to connect the new wells with existing city lines.

LESLIE CRAWFORD OPENS NEW BUSINESS

Leslie Crawford, a native of Rockport, has returned home after spending 10 years as superintendent of the Crawford Painting and Decorating Co. of Wichita Falls.

Crawford, who used to be in the contracting business here with his father, is setting up a business here. He will be available for painting, paperhanging, sheet rock finishing, and his specialty will be the application of vinyl fabrics and fine wall coverings. He can be reached by calling SO 4-5339.

Crawford is married and has two children, a boy 9, and a girl, 8.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was back in the news recently when he said he saw no prospect of an early peace in Viet Nam. Mr. Rusk said that North Viet Nam "is not going to be permitted" to seize South Viet Nam and that the North Vietnamese must give up their intention to do so. He added, "I see no prospect of peace at the present moment."

Police Thanked For Recovering Books

Chief of Police Bob Hewes has received a letter from the Denver Public Library expressing appreciation for the recovery of $400 worth of stolen books by the local police department.

Chief Hewes said his department assisted in the case recently after receiving a call from Ray E. Koeh, Denver policeman, advising Hewes of the circumstances of the case. No charges were filed in the books.

Auto Kills Cow, Two Passengers Hurt

A car driven by Clement Tays, 39, of the Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi, struck and killed a cow Sunday night on Highway 35 near the entrance to the United Carbon Plant.

Tays escaped without injury but his wife, Nora, 36, and daughter, Linda, 18, suffered such severe shock, according to State Highway Patrolman A. W. Flenniken, that both were taken to Lyman Roberts Clinic in Aransas Pass and later transferred to the Naval Air Station Hospital in Corpus Christi.

Flenniken said that immediately after the accident, Linda Tays was in such deep shock that at first she couldn't even walk and we were afraid she had broken her back."

The front half of Tays' car was demolished by the impact.

Another Hole-In-One Shot At Live Oak

Hayden Elsberry got a hole-in-one (his second ace) on the fifth hole at Live Oak Country Club July 9. He used a six-iron on this 165-yard hole.

On June 30 Royce Itschner, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Itschner, used a four iron to score a hole-in-one on the same hole.

J. F. "Speck" Howery, the club pro, reports that 32 players took part in the Scotch foursome competition Sunday. A score of 12 under par took the honors for first place, with three teams tied for second with 10 under. A one-hole playoff was held to determine second place.

Members of the first-place team were Elsberry, Mark Tiner, J. M. Attaway, Mike Flinn and Helen Dupre. On the second-place team were Speck Howery, J. W. Tuer, J. G. Richards, Bob Richmond and Gladys Nelson.

On Sunday, July 17, another Scotch foursome event will be held. Howery asks members to bring hot dogs for a cook-out.

Three Accidents In First 11 Days During July

Chief of Police Bob Hewes reported Monday that three auto accidents have occurred within the city limits during the first 11 days of July.

The first happened just south of the north city limits and was a backing accident involving cars driven by Mrs. Dora Chupe and Beverly Jean Agler. Patrolman Joe Dominguez, who investigated, said $200 worth of property damage occurred.

The second accident was a one-car crash near the Del Camino Motel on Highway 35. Chief Hewes said Elias Vasquez, while driving a van, reached to the floor to pick up his glasses and the van veered to the right and hit a concrete culvert. Damage was estimated at $100.

Another accident took place at St. Mary and Austin involving cars driven by Mrs. Julia McCown of Rockport and George Wulff of Ganado. Hewes said Mrs. McCown's car struck the rear of Wulff's auto.

Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt took Mrs. McCown to a local doctor's office for treatment of minor injuries. Assisting Hewes at the scene of the accident were Hunt, Constable Buddy McLester and State Highway Patrolmen R. R. L. Brown and Wayne Fleniken.

REUBEN GUERRA BUYS SUMMER HOME HERE

Reuben Guerra, 52, who graduated from Rockport High School in 1932 and who believes he was the first Mexican-American to graduate, recently bought a summer home on Copano Bay.

Explaining that he is in the cattle and oil business and owns apartment houses in San Antonio and lives there, Guerra said he was on Rockport High's first football and baseball teams.

"I remember that N. F. Jackson was one of my teammates on the football team," Guerra recalled.

"And I also will never forget my favorite teacher, Miss Ruth Lipscomb," he added. "She gave me much encouragement and I believe that whatever success I have been able to achieve was at least in part due to the help Miss Lipscomb gave me in high school."

Relatives and acquaintances are competitive to motels and eating establishments without spending any funds for advertising—Matador (Tex.) Tribune.

Twins, 86, Revisit Area First Time In 70 Years

Mrs. Claude De Van Watts and Mrs. J. M. Archibald of Austin, 86-year-old identical twins, visited here last week for the second time in their lives.

Their last visit was when they were 16 years old.

"We were happy, gay teenagers then," Mrs. Watts recalls, "and we were guests at the old Bailey Hotel which was built over the water and we also spent some time at the Beach Hotel."

The twin sisters recall many happy incidents and forms of amusement of "that delightful summer—hay rides, beach parties, conservative, beautiful little dances where the dreamy waltz was a favorite, the new, lively two-step and the fascinating minuet."

"Our escorts," Mrs. Watts remembers, "could not tell which was which and we still laugh about the fun we had exchanging dates, and our dates not aware of any change until told."

Today at 86 the twins still look alike. They have a keen interest in life and a delightful partiality for young people.

On Friday (July 8) Mrs. Watts and Mrs. Archibald were guests of honor at a beach party attended by Mrs. Watts' son, C. D. Watts, Jr., and family from Corpus Christi; Mrs. Archibald's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Brill and family from San Antonio; Mrs. Watt's daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Carl E. Green of Ft. Worth; five grandchildren and great grandchildren; and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hinton of Rockport, cousins.

Ed Harper, Pioneer In State Sportsmen Club Formation

Sportsmen's Clubs of Texas, Inc., with headquarters in Dallas, today represents more than 1,000,000 Texas sportsmen.

The June issue of "Wildlife Scot News," official publication of the state organization, published a letter written Feb. 3, 1955 by Ed Harper and addressed to all Sportsmen's Clubs of Texas.

Then as now, Harper was beating the drums for the importance of a state organization and pointing out to each club exactly how to go about joining the state association.

He closed his letter by stating, "This (the state) organization has been described by numerous outdoor writers and other well informed and important sportsmen as the greatest thing that has happened to Texas wildlife conservation in the history of our state. I cannot too strongly urge you to take the action referred to in this letter, and attend our meeting and become a part of this organization."

COUNCIL AMENDS DRILLING ORDINANCE

The City Council met, with Mayor Johnson presiding and the following present: Aldermen Jimmy Hunt, J. W. Porter and Roy Rogero, City Attorney Joe Caldwell, Secretary Mary Lake Segler and Water Supt. Tom Shults.

The drilling ordinance now in effect in the city was discussed. This ordinance was passed some time ago and much of it would not be ample at this time due to the increased development. An amendment to the present ordinance, increasing the permit price from $300 to $1,000, was drawn up by Caldwell. The Council voted to accept the amendment, and Caldwell was instructed to draw up a new ordinance.

KNOW THE FACTS ABOUT MEDICARE, YOU'LL NEED CASH!

July 1 was the effective date when citizens 65 and older were able, under medicare, to go to a hospital and theoretically, at least, turn to the government for at least partial payment of the bills.

A few words of caution to older citizens appears to be in order.

Medicare is not all-inclusive. Far from it. It is still going to cost money for hospital and doctor bills. Unfortunately, Washington has not pointed this out as strongly as they should have. Some people are going to be awakened. Insurance companies have attempted to make the facts plain, but the gullible public, always too willing to listen to the politicians' promises, has not absorbed the full meaning of medicare.

Cash is still going to be needed. Perhaps more of it than many realize.

If at all possible, anyone signing for medicare, should hang onto whatever hospitalization insurance he now has. Don't cancel it. Cash is going to be needed, we repeat.

Medicare can only be a sort of buffer as it stands today. There will be hospital and doctor bills to be paid for out of the patient's pockets.

For instance, citizens must pay for the first $40 of hospital bill. If the confinement is for more than 60 days the patient must pay $10 for every extra day. And—get this—after the extra 90 days, the patient is on his own. Therefore, a long illness could be expensive even under medicare.

Medicare does NOT provide for a private room. If one is necessary out-of-the-pocket money must be provided by the patient. It does not pay for private nurses, or the first three pints of transfusion blood. It does not provide for specialists.

If patient is in the hospital at least three days and is then well enough to move to a nursing home, medicare will pay for up to 100 days there. Now get this: After the first 20 days, the patient must pay $5 a day toward the bill.

The $3 paid for supplementary coverage also has some flaws. The patient pays for the first $50 of the annual medical bill, and 20 per cent of the remainder.

These are just some of the shortcomings. There are others. Above all else know what medicare calls for and be prepared. Otherwise older people will be in dire straits, financially, in the event of a long, serious illness.

Regardless of the great social experiment, the best medicare program in the world is a savings account set aside for emergency use in a good savings institution. Then when hospital bills pile up, plus doctor bills, the patient has to fill out no forms, ask no questions about what he can or can't do, and he has to answer no questions. He can buy what he wants, have the kind of room he wants, and even a TV set in the room, if he wants it.

The next best thing is a good hospital policy. Use medicare as a back-stop but don't depend on it entirely.

CAMPING THEY ARE GOING!

Now that we have thousands of plush, luxury motels at the resort areas what happens?

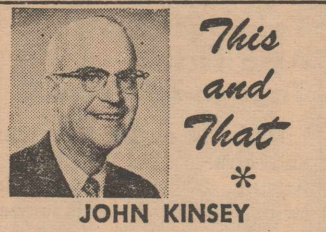

People go crazy for camping out, that's what. But don't get the idea camping is anything like it was years ago. It isn't. The stores are full of gadgets for the comfort of the man who wants to rough it, if you insist on calling modern-day camping that.

The National Geographic Society says 41 million Americans are taking to 10,000 public campgrounds as compared with 10 years ago. This undoubtedly gives the National Geographic something different to write about. The Society will, of course, come up with pictures and stories about some of the funniest creatures of all, city men and women in all shapes and sizes, crawling into comfortable sleeping bags up in the mountains, or in the valleys or at the seashore. The National Geographic will have color pictures, no doubt, of these people cooking, playing and even napping in a camp-out type of hammock underneath a shady tree with a portable air conditioner throwing cool breezes across the face of the snoozer and driving insects away. Good!

Camping used to be a cheap way to spend the night in the woods. Tourists used to frown on those who pitched a tent, or slept in a trailer. Cheap skates trying to avoid paying for a motel room, they said.

No more, though. It takes money—and lots of it—to camp out in style today. Don't think so? Just pay a visit to sporting goods department where they sell four-room tents, thermal underwear (for winter, of course,) camp cook stoves, portable refrigerators, toilets, (for goodness sakes!) radio, television and you name it. There's comfort in camping today, if you can afford it.

We may be prejudiced. Just give us an air conditioned room in a plush motel. An hour or two roughing it is enough. That hour is usually consumed loading and unloading the car, and you'd think we'd huffing and puffing from that amount of roughing it. Get in bed and turn on the vibrating mattress. That's roughing it!

JOHN KINSEY

What criteria do you use to judge the French Twist, Go-Go, Pony or the Jerk?

For those of you who, like myself, are over 50 and do a little foot tapping when Lawrence Welk plays on TV, those terms are the names of what young people today call dances.

It was my "privilege" to help judge one of these rivet gun gyrations at the Sandollar last Wednesday night. I'm still not sure which movement I judged.

As the young people were going through their motions, I had to stand on the band platform to get a good look at all the dancers.

With "The Bad Seeds" whamming out their music, loud enough to be heard at nearby beach parties, I found it impossible to make myself heard by the other judge. So, when I saw a couple who seemed to me to be good dancers, I'd point them out to the other judge.

After the entire group had been trimmed down to five couples, we watched closely as they did their best to win the trophy. I thought one boy was going to throw his back out of place.

Finally we reached a decision and selected a couple who moved more slowly than the others but did manage to get some grace in their maneuvers.

One thing about this type of dancing: It certainly seems to conform to physical fitness programs because the youths move around every which-way so fast that "being fat" may become a thing of the past.

MRS. HENDERSON HOME FROM FRENCH GUIANA

Mrs. Don Henderson recently returned from Cayenne, French Guiana, the place where Devil's Island prison used to be filled with prisoners from France.

Devil's Island no longer is used as a prison, and Cayenne, located on the Atlantic coast, is now a leading shrimp producing area.

Her husband, Don, for 18 months the captain of a shrimp boat operated by Henderson's Portion Pac, a division of the Borden Company. He is no relation to this Henderson. The Rockport Yacht & Supply Co. has built a number of shrimp boats for Henderson's Portion-Pak.

Mrs. Henderson says the climate in Cayenne is wonderful, "cooler than in Rockport, and less humidity, even though there is lots of rain."

"The country is beautiful, the foliage is lush and the trees grow tall," she points out. "I would enjoy living there but there is no high school and we have a son and daughter who will be in high school this fall."

Son Eric will be a senior this fall, and their daughter, Patricia, will be starting as a freshman.

One thing Mrs. Henderson didn't like about Cayenne was the lack of communication. "There is no TV although a station is now being built," she said. "Radio is on the air just three times a day for 30 minutes each time."

Looking ahead, Mrs. Henderson thinks that when both children have finished high school, she and her husband may live in Cayenne nine months a year when Eric and Patricia are in college, and Mrs. Henderson would spend the summer in Rockport.

"We'll just have to see," she says.

REBEKAH NEWS

The Rockport Rebekah Lodge met in a special called meeting July 7, for a business session with Mrs. Goldie Edmiston, noble grand, presiding.

At 8 p.m. Mrs. Edmiston called the lodge to order for a public installation ceremony. There were 36 persons present.

Mrs. Della Scott, special district deputy and her staff. Mrs. Ella Mae Ebert, marshal; Mrs. Neva Sorenson, special deputy; Mrs. Della Scott, deputy warden; Fred Clobert, deputy chaplain; Mrs. Myrtle McLester, deputy inside guardian; and Mrs. Erma Clobert, deputy musician, installed the following officers for the next term:

Mrs. Lou Eller, noble grand; Mrs. Betty Faucy, vice grand; Miss Katie Lee Clarke, warden; Miss Ruby Lawson, conductor; Miss Evelyn Townsend, inside guardian; L. V. McLester, outside guardian; Mrs. Erma Clobert, R.S.N.G.; Mrs. Mellie Edmiston, L.S.N.G.; Mrs. Lucille Brown, R.S.V.G.; Mrs. Rose Bose, L.S.V.G.; Mrs. Lorene King, chaplain; Mrs. Ora May, color bearer; Mrs. Alice Ballou, R.A.B.; Mrs. Virginia McKinney, L.A.B.; and Mrs. Neva Sorenson, musician.

After the installation the group enjoyed a social hour. The serving table covered with a white embroidery cloth over a blue foundation, was centered with a beautiful arrangement of "Tom Thumb" zinnias in a blue planter. The white cake decorated in pink and green, (the lodge colors), was on one end of the table and the bowl of frosted green punch on the other.

Mrs. Della Scott served the cake, Miss Evelyn Townsend poured. Mrs. McLester served coffee to the guests.

The lodge will meet in regular session at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 14.

United Carbon Plant Modern and Versatile

For more than two decades the shrimp fishermen working the waters of the Gulf of Mexico east of Mustang Island and St. Joseph Island had an unfailing beacon to guide them home.

They simply had to look for a thread of black smoke rising from the horizon. Although their boats might be far beyond sight of land they could immediately establish their position, for they knew the smoke came from the carbon black plant, just south of Rockport.

From 1940 until 1963 the wispy landmark was there; and then it was gone.

None of the shrimpers got lost or really grumbled about the absence of the familiar marker, of course, although there were newspaper stories and numerous comments to the effect that an era had ended. For the United Carbon plant an era, indeed, had closed. But a new time of great promise was beginning.

Today the promise is reality. The plant rises from the sandy coastal plain behind Aransas Bay as a series of bulky structures laced together with pipes, conveyors and open steelwork. To people who drive by it on busy Highway 35, very little seems to be going on.

The person who stops and watches for a few moments will see many things, however. Between buildings two men are loading a railroad hopper car. A truck, bearing huge rubber containers filled to a uniform roundness, lumbers forward.

A construction crew works at one end of a building, and a man appears briefly atop a plant. Looking up, the observer notes that above one unit the air is hazy and shimmering from the heat inside it. And slowly he becomes aware that there is a rumbling, low and powerful, pulsating, that never stops.

The plant today is an efficient, modern and versatile carbon black manufacturing facility. Interconnected with it is United Carbon's widely heralded Special Products plant, the first ever to be designed exclusively to produce the specialized carbon black requirements of the ink, paint, paper and other industries.

In name the plant has been at this location since 1940, but, considered from a practical and technical standpoint, it is quite a new facility.

Virtually none of the structures built in 1940 are standing today, for example; the plant has been rebuilt, modernized, enlarged and enhanced in just about every year of its existence.

The smoke that marked the plant so long was eliminated in 1963 when the old "A"

Plant—the first facility—was shut down and subsequently dismantled. This marked the end of channel black production here, and indicated the emphasis of manufacturing for the future.

Channel black is produced in long, low buildings—burner houses—in which thousands of small flames burn in an atmosphere with a limited, carefully controlled air supply. The flames deposit carbon black on steel "channels," from which it later is automatically scraped and then carried off for the pelletizing and packaging.

The channel production system dates from the early days of the carbon black industry, and until the 1930's was the only effective means for making carbon black for the rubber industry and other customers—primarily the ink and paint makers who used it as a pigmenting material.

As time passed (and the price of the sole raw material, natural gas, crept upward) new production techniques were studied and improved, and furnace plants were built. In these, oil was the primary "feedstock," and today some use oil exclusively.

Furnace plants make carbon black in furnaces in which one large flame, fed by the hydrocarbon feedstock and air, produces the black in an atmosphere where temperatures range up to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

A furnace plant was built just as World War II was starting, and during the war this "B" Plant and its channel plant neighbor made many millions of pounds of carbon black.

This was a vital military requirement: America was frantically building a number of synthetic rubber plants at the time in order to meet the rubber shortage created by the loss of our natural rubber supply. Without carbon black these rubber plants would have been just about worthless to the country.

The local "B" Plant ran so long and so hard during the war, in fact, that much of its equipment had to be scrapped after V-J Day. The "innards" simply couldn't be repaired.

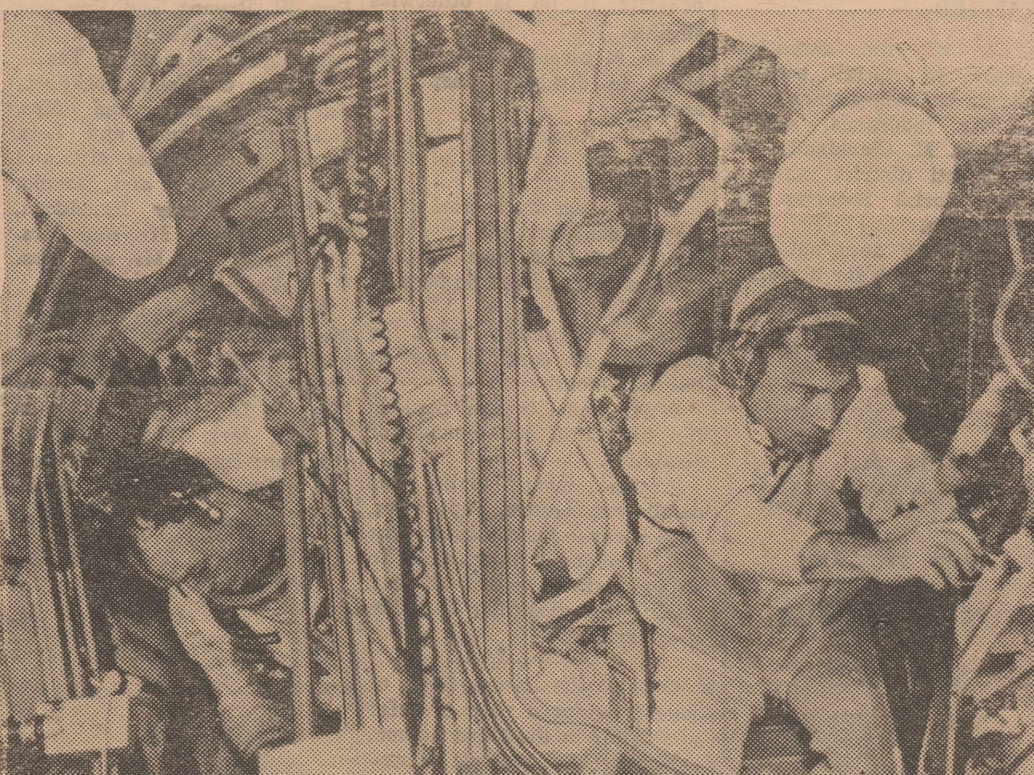

The process of construction and expansion has continued steadily. And as the demand for channel black decreased and furnace black increased over the years, it was natural for the "A" Plant to be ticketed for dismantling. Today only a few of the old buildings still stand.

Yet a major problem remained. Although furnace blacks had been developed to meet the needs of rubber manufacturers—this technique has kept pace with the introduction of many new types of rubber-like materials—the properties of channel black were still preferred by many customers. In short, nobody had come up with a furnace black that could substitute exactly for channel black as a pigmenting material.

United Carbon's research

JUST WARMING UP—Command pilot John Young, left, and pilot Michael Collins go through a dry run for their Gemini-10 flight at Cape Kennedy. The Gemini-10 flight is scheduled for July 18.

and development men worked long on this problem, backed by the full cooperation of the manufacturing department. From their efforts, experience and know-how came today's Special Products Plant.

The Special Products section includes seven reactors (furnaces) that can make any known type of furnace black. The size range of the individual particles of carbon black is from 15 to 160 microns in diameter, with surface areas from 20 to 1,000 square meters per gram.

Stop and consider those figures for a moment. A micron is a millionth of a meter, so a millimicron is a thousand times smaller than that. And when the surface area of a gram of these particles is 1,000 square meters, it indicates, if peeled out—as an orange is peeled—they would cover an area larger than two football fields.

Carbon black has amazing uses. Although more than 95 per cent of all carbon black is used by the tire and rubber industry, the black pigment market of the ink, paint, plastics and upper industries use 100 million pounds annually.

For example, furnace blacks today are used to make all sorts of printing ink black. They go into magnetic inks and acid resisting inks. They pigment vinyl base paints, are used to give leather a black finish, to print textiles and color yarn.

They go into pencil leads and polyethylene, cosmetics and food coloring, they're used in annealing aluminum and for binding electrodes. They're in explosives, fertilizers and fertilizers and phonograph records.

A prime advantage of the Special Products Plant is that it utilizes commercial — not laboratory size — equipment. Many of the pilot plant and "scaling up" phases of development are eliminated as a consequence.

Moreover, the facility can produce and process two different types of black separately but simultaneously and it functions with more than 30 instruments and control devices protecting quality at all times.

While this plant makes specialties, the emphasis is on carbon blacks for the rubber industry. Although the specialty plant is large, it is dwarfed by the sheer bulk and productivity of the main plant.

Here, production is in excess of nine million pounds a month. With a force of approximately 93 men, the plant operates around the clock, turning oil barged in on the nearby Intracoastal Waterway into the types of carbon black used to make tires and other rubber materials tough, long wearing and resilient.

The plant manager is Russell W. Itschner, who, although not yet 40, has 20 years of United service behind him and has been a plant manager for six years.

He is supported by men with long experience in manufacturing, as many have been with United Carbon since back in the days when the furnace process was just being introduced.

For example, the changes that have occurred at the local plant are known in specific details by W. N. "Buddy" Spears, shipping supervisor, who was the first person hired after completion of the original "A" Plant.

"You can't really say that one plant has been here since 1940," he noted. "It has been more like a series of plants at the same location."

The visitor who stops, observes and listens to the rumble for a time also will see, at the back of the plant, a unique scene:

There, bent by the unceasing winds from the gulf, is a forest of oaks, black as ebony, perpetual silhouettes that recall the day when the channel plant was this area's key facility and when its best known feature was the smoke that rose above it.

Today the smoke is gone, but the plant is working harder than ever before in its history.

FUNNY FEELING—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., left, has had little to laugh about during the past few months, but McGeorge Bundy, former White House aide, managed to provide a light moment in Washington. Bundy was on hand to give his views on NATO to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

REQUIREMENTS FOR DISABILITY INSURANCE CHANGED

One of the important changes in social security concerns the requirements for disability insurance, according to H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi district manager of the Social Security Administration.

A disability does not have to be permanent for a worker to qualify for payments. If the disabling condition has lasted or is expected to last at least 12 months, a person can qualify for disability benefits if he is otherwise eligible.

The requirements for eligibility to disability insurance are:

1. The worker must be unable to do any kind of substantial work;
2. He must have worked in employment covered by social security for at least half of the ten years before he became disabled;
3. The disability must be expected to continue for at least 12 months;
4. No benefits are payable for the first six months of disability.

Anyone whose claim was disallowed before September, 1965 because his disability was not permanent may wish to apply again to see if he may qualify for disability benefits, Cleveland said.

One of the surest signs of conceit is for a man to refer to himself in the third person. —Elizabethtown (Ky.) News.
