RED CLOUD, Neb. — News from the mythical Minnesota town of Lake Wobegon will be broadcast from Nebraska on Saturday in Garrison Keillor's birthday salute to author Willa Cather, his producer said. Associate producer Ann Stonehill said Keillor probably will drop the show's usual humorous skits to focus on the works of Cather, who won a Pulitzer Prize for the novel "One of Ours," about a Nebraska farmer-turned-soldier during World War I. Featured performers on the traveling American Radio Company include bluegrass guitarist and folk singer Kate MacKenzie and "The Grapes of Wrath" stage actress Lois Smith. Smith will read passages from Cather's "My Antonia," "O Pioneers!" and "Song of the Lark." Cather, whose birthday is Saturday, spent much of her youth in Red Cloud; she died in 1947.

Americans mark 'Day of Infamy'

By Tony Freemantle

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii — Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941. A 20-year-old sailor squinted against the early morning glare, watching in disbelief as Japanese warplanes screamed out of the sky and plunged him and his country into war.

Warren Verhoff was nearing the end of his stint in the U.S. Navy aboard the tugboat Keosanqua. In four months, he would be home. He had dreams: College. A family. A career in a country emerging from the Depression and full of the promise of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

Fifty years later, that same sailor stood squinting into the tranquil morning glare over Pearl Harbor and remembered the smoke and noise, the bombs and the terror. He spoke about survival and how his life, his soul, his very existence was defined by that one, shattering moment.

Wars change things absolutely.

The people who fight them change in deeply spiritual, personal ways. Men who have no violence in their souls kill. Or they are killed, and their loved ones never fill the void. Normal life is suspended, replaced by fear and grief, shortages and rations. Societies are altered irrevocably. Nations die and are born, boundaries are redrawn.

Verhoff changed that day. By sheer happenstance, he became a witness to history, a player in an event that

Midlanders see lives change after Japan's Pearl Harbor attack

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Fifty years ago today, many Midlanders had just gotten out of church and were ready to begin their leisurely Sunday afternoon routine when the "date which will live in infamy" forever changed their lives.

Bill Collyns

The time in West Texas was 11:55 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, when seemingly peaceful and isolationist Americans suddenly were plunged keeply into World War II.

There was no retreat and neither was one sought. It was quite the contrary.

Like many Midlanders, W.H. "Bill" Collyns, then manager of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, somehow had expected the United States to join Great Britain and its allies in repelling Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany military forces which were conquering Europe, North Africa and which just had retreated from Russia.

War with Japan was remote.

Collyns, now in his early 80s, had left church on that Sunday and headed for the office in the lobby of the Hotel Scharbauer to "catch up on a little work.

Joe Mabee

There, he was joined by an old friend Fred Fuhrman.

"He walked in, and we were discussing conditions in general, the war, mainly what was going on in Europe, discussing Adolf Hitler," recalls Collyns, who later became editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

"And we got around, finally, talking about the Pacific situation. Both of us agreed that the Japa-

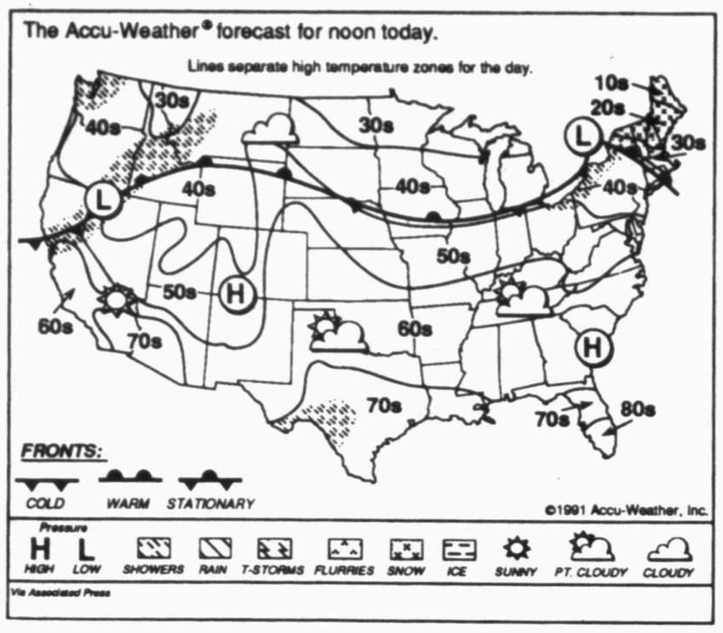
WEATHER SUMMARY



Sunny, 70s on line for today

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for possible early morning cloudiness otherwise sunny, a high between 70 and 75, and southwest winds 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the lower 40s.

Sunday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 70s.

After an overnight low of 30, Friday's high was 71 compared with the record high for that date of 78 set in 1966. The record low for today's date was 20 set in 1976.

STATE

Most of Texas was partly cloudy Friday with southerly breezes and mild temperatures. West Texas had sunny skies.

Readings rose into the 60s and 70s.

Winds were from the south at 10 to 20 miles an hour with gusts to 35 in Northwest Texas. The only precipitation reported was some light rain in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

North Texas was expected to have cloudy skies with a chance of showers in the south on Saturday spreading over much of the region by Sunday. Highs were to be near 70 on Saturday and in the lower 70s Sunday. Lows were to be in the 50s.

The forecast for South Texas was for warm and humid conditions with mostly cloudy skies and widely scattered showers. Highs were to be in the 70s with lows in the 50s in the north to 60s in the south.

West Texas should be clear to partly cloudy through Sunday except for cloudy skies Saturday morning in the Edwards Plateau and Concho Valley. Highs Saturday were expected in the mid 60s to lower 70s. Lows Saturday night were to be from the mid 30s in the Panhandle to near 50 for the Edwards Plateau. Highs Sunday were to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the mid 70s south.

NATION

A new storm moving ashore from the Pacific Ocean spread rain and snow over the Northwest. Snow also fell over New England.

Relatively warm weather moved into the northern Plains. There was a 40-degree difference in temperatures across North Dakota.

Rain and snow from a storm moving into the Northwest extended from the northern half of the Pacific Coast to western Montana.

Snow fell heavily at times over parts of northeastern Minnesota. Five inches had fallen at Warroad by early afternoon.

Snow also continued across parts of New York state and northern New England.

Morning showers in upstate New York at the eastern end of Lake Ontario produced 6 inches of snow at Oswego and up to 5 inches of snow blanketed northeastern New York state and Vermont.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Midland statistics

HAWAII: Midlanders still remember attack

(From 1A)

nese would never jump on the United States," Collyns recalled.

But, as he was to learn, "at that very moment, the Japs were bombing Pearl Harbor. We were discussing it at length right when that bombing was going on.

"We didn't believe that the Japanese would attack the United States anywhere, particularly in the Pacific area," Collyns said. "The Japanese had representatives in Washington, talking peace at that very time."

Besides, Collyns said, "The United States was so powerful, we didn't think the Japanese would do it."

And, said, Collyns, "our real feelings were against the Germans at that time, of course, over in Europe. We thought the United States probably would get into war, but we thought it would be over in the European situation before the Pacific. But we were wrong on that, too."

As a result of that conversation, Collyns said "as long as he lived, Fred Fuhrman, when he'd see me, he always referred to be as "a prophet."

Following the attack, "Midland was never the same," Collyns said. "It went right into high gear. I never saw a more patriotic people than the residents of Midland."

Paul McHargue, now 93, recalls that he was either at the old Midland Country Club or was heading home by automobile when he heard the news over the radio.

"I was shocked, of course, because I had been reading about the Jap boys being over here (in peaceful negotiations) and on their way home, and everything was going to be OK," McHargue recalled.

"But it wasn't. I was terribly shocked and surprised. But I was gratified (by) the way we took after them and whipped" the Japanese military forces.

Earlier in 1941, McHargue, a Midland civic leader and lumberyard operator, already, like Collyns, had campaigned to turn Midland's Sloan Field into the Midland Army Air Field for training bombardiers.

War was "already imminent, and there were rumors flying around that Midland had a chance to get a quality-type of air force training facility."

Hank Avery was a student at Texas Agricultural & Mechanical College (Texas A&M University) in 1941.

When the attack came, he was watching an on-campus movie.

"About 1:30 or 2 o'clock," Avery recalled, "they turned off the motion picture and made the announcement at Pearl Harbor has been attacked. In two minutes, that whole theater was vacant."

Avery, like Collyns, later was to serve in the war. After the war, he became an architect and civil engineer and mayor of Midland.

"We all went back to our dorm" after theater was closed that Dec. 7, Avery recalled, "and said, 'What the hell does this mean? Where do we go from here?"

"Everybody had a radio in their room — and I heard President Roosevelt, and everybody else was talking about it, and what was going to happen and where and when. And we all knew that we going to get under the gun."

Jane Clancy Debenport was at church on that Sunday.

Jane Clancy Debenport was at church on that Sunday.

"We were always at the church," Ms. Debenport, now 56, recalled.

Her mother was choir director in a Shreveport, La., Baptist Church.

"I was too little to understand, but I knew something really horrible had happened," she recalled. "I remember the big folks standing around in bunches and talking, and the kids sort of not knowing what was going on."

Ms. Debenport, who today is Midland Trinity Presbyterian Church's director of music, recalled having "uncles who were flying in the war."

One of "went down in a (B-17) Flying Fortress" in Europe, was rescued, and was "given credit for saving his crew," Ms. Debenport said.

"I just know that when he came home, we were the happiest bunch of people you had ever seen in your life."

Those war years 50 years ago "were heavy years, very central to my life," she recalled.

As the battle wore on, Ms. Debenport suspected that Shreveport "could very easily be a target" for an enemy air attack, since an army air field was nearby.

"During those early days, we didn't know far things could go. It was pretty scary, but it was exciting, too. The nation mobilized — the feeling of working together. I remember a lot of excitement. And I guess fear and excitement run very, very close together. I was just a kid, but I remember the horror of it all," Ms. Debenport said.

"I remember that my Dad was an air-raid warden. I remember putting up all of the dark curtains. And he would walk out around to see if he could see any light. I remember the one room in our house that was safe from light; we could leave a light on there at night," Ms. Debenport said.

She recalled "the patriotism around the flag and saying the 'Pledge of Allegiance.' All of a sudden things got really, really real. And I guess it shaped by whole life. I think the cartoons shaped our lives. That's how they trained the children to hate the Japanese and the Germans. Now, I can see one of those old cartoons, and it stirs up things (prejudices) that I have worked the rest of my life getting rid of. It was an interesting time to live.

Midland oilman David Grimes was a 14-year-old in Kansas that Sunday.

"I was at an afternoon movie with my brother, and the startling news came across, and we just high-tailed it home to find out what all of that amounted to," said Grimes.

"Honestly, I hadn't (heard of Pearl Harbor)," he said. "I think it was a complete shock and one that we were going to have to find out about from our parents exactly what all this amounted to."

Sarah Lew Link, who was to become Grimes' wife, was at her sister's birthday party in Midland on Dec. 7, 1941.

"And we had just celebrated her birthday when Daddy was listening to the radio when the news came over. We all got into the car. I knew it was bad because of my parents' reaction to the news. I was 9. We came out to the (Midland Army) Air Field to see what was going on out here."

Midland dentist Dr. David Conoley was a high-school sophomore in the central Texas town of Taylor when the attack came.

"I had a paper route," recalled Conoley. "I will never forget it, because we got called down to the paper to deliver an extra. By the time we got all of the information, it was late in the evening. . . . they did not get out that extra until 6 or 7 p.m.

At that time, Conoley said he "didn't know who the Japanese were. Those were the guys who built the toys we played with even before the war. When you are 15 years old, you know that something fantastic and big is happening, but you don't comprehend the importance of it at the time. But you always remember where you were and what you were doing, because it changed you way of life."

Conoley said that "one of the things I'll always remember, one of the popular things in a little town, was to go to the soda fountains and park inside the drug store and order your soda with your girl friends. And that was the end of the soda-fountain days. World War II ended that era — the juke box, the soda fountain. It was all over."

Joe Mabee had just turned 11 years old on Dec. 4, 1941.

"I was in Evansville, Ind., and I had gotten my first bicycle," Mabee recalled. "I was out trying to learn how to ride."

And his father, Guy Mabee, was "helping me hold it up. My mother came out of a rent house we were living in. She said she had heard something terrible on the radio. We went back into the house and listened on the radio," recalled Mabee, who is a rancher and oilman and chief of staff of the Midland-based Confederate Air Force.

"My parents were very, very sad, very concerned and all that," Mabee said.

Dorothy Davis remembers that cold day 50 years ago. She and her parents were looking for pecans in Falls County.

"I was out with my mom and dad looking for pecans, so she could bake a cake for Christmas. We were just out riding around, looking for them (pecans) probably in a '39 Ford (sedan). I must have been 12 or 13," said Ms. Davis, a Midland businesswoman.

"At that time you are mad, and you have got to deal with the shock that somebody had dared to hurt us — dared to do that to us. This is the United States of America."

WWII attitudes recede with passage of time

By Thom Marshall
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — With half a century gone by since the infamous attack that brought the United States into World War II, Hank Ketchum harbors no ill will.

Time passes, he said. Attitudes change. Enemies become friends.

Ketchum flew a C-47 aircraft in that long and bloody period of U.S. vs. Japan. Today, his wife drives a Honda.

And when he retired after 32 years as a pilot for American Airlines, in an interview for the company's employee publication, Ketchum "thanked the emperor of Japan. Without him I would probably never have learned to fly."

But with the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, there is concern that a great many Americans will not share Ketchum's view of the Japanese. People in both countries worry that the anniversary could reopen old wounds and harm relations between U.S. and Japanese citizens.

Al Kondo, a psychologist at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center, is a third-generation American whose ancestors were Japanese. He was born in one of the internment camps where many Japanese-Americans were confined during the war.

Throughout his life, he said, Dec. 7 has been an uncomfortable day for U.S. citizens of Japanese descent. But this year's Pearl Harbor Day has long been dreaded as potentially the worst. For several months he has been reading items on the subject in a publication for Japanese-Americans.

In his job at M.D. Anderson, Kondo said he does not encounter prejudice, but he has school-age children who sometimes do. "I just tell them they have to realize they are OK," he said. "And that we should just feel sorry for the people that take that view. And that we have to be very sensitive to others who are the targets of prejudice."

John DeYoung is a Lutheran minister who went to Japan as a missionary in 1960. He said he grew up in a Los Angeles community where many Japanese lived and many of his playmates were taken away to the internment camps.

That always bothered him, he said, and was one reason he decided "to go to Japan and do some kind of service, some kind of pay back."

DeYoung spent 30 years in Japan and returned to the United States about a year ago, settling in Houston. He has noticed some differences in American attitudes toward the Japanese between 1960 and now. Two examples:

■ The acceptance of Japanese products as top-quality merchandise. "When I was a kid," he said, "anything made in Japan was junk."

■ The disappearance of racial slurs. "I used to hear bad expressions about 'Japs' and 'bowlegged' and 'slant-eyed,'" DeYoung said. "But since I returned I have never heard those expressions."

Many residents of Japan reportedly are concerned the Pearl Harbor anniversary will add fuel to smoldering feelings in the United States about trade imbalances that some critics say resulted in a huge accumulation of wealth in Japan. Critics charge that the Japanese are not showing much gratitude to the country that aided them in postwar recovery.

History class on Dec. 8 leaves student bewildered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Midland writer Mary Frances Beverley, then a high school senior, recalls her thoughts 50 years ago when Pearl Harbor was attacked and America entered the war.

By Mary Frances Beverley

"Where were you?"

This weekend, it's the most often-asked question in America. I know exactly where I was. I was in Miss Becker's American History class at Arlington Heights High School in Fort Worth. I was 16 years old, a senior in the Class of '42, and if we usually considered the class boring and unimportant, it wasn't boring that day. Only bewildering.

Perhaps my classmates that included Midlanders Bob Monaghan, Phyllis Grimland and Frank Bass knew that our country was on the verge of war. I didn't.

Perhaps my parents talked about what was happening in Europe and the readiness for war already in progress all over this country.

If so, I didn't pay any attention. I had heavier concerns in my thoughts: "I wish I had a new angora sweater . . . wish I didn't wear braces and glasses . . . wish I were popular and a cheerleader." Serious stuff.

In American History class, I sat at a large table with a few other well-behaved teen-agers. (There were few other kinds in those days.) Also at the table were Monaghan, Kirk Cansler and Martha Hyer, who would become a successful actress and marry movie director Hal Wallis. The boys at the table stared, mesmerized, every time she pulled out a mirror from her purse and freshened her lipstick. I stared, too.

In 1941, for most of us, it was the age of innocence. More accurately, it was the age of ignorance, the what-will-people-think era when no one ever uttered words that described certain facts considered too terrible or too personal to name. Words such as pregnant. Most of us in high school had never heard of, much less knew a word for abortion or sexually transmitted diseases. Directly or indirectly, we were taught by our parents that if you didn't give names to things "nice people" didn't discuss, by denial they might not exist.

So in the late '30s and through most of '41, we weren't supposed to know about serious events in other parts of the world. Not even in American History class. If something wasn't happening in Fort Worth, specifically from downtown to Arlington Heights or River Crest, as far as we were concerned, it didn't occur. The most serious subject the girls talked about — in hushed tones — was the one girl in school we knew for a fact smoked! and another who did whatever the boys knowingly hinted she did.

Vague as it was, to me war was "the war," the one before I was born that I sometimes heard my parents talk about, World War I, that was about as real to me as the battle of the Alamo. One teacher was the only firsthand evidence of war's aftermath that most of us ever saw. He had breathed poison gas during WWI and was thin, gaunt, a little grim. I felt sorry for him but his experience had nothing to do with my life.

On Monday morning, Dec. 8, I suppose I heard the words "Pearl Harbor" from the radio my father turned on each morning — Porter Randall's news on the Texas State Network and the clanging cowbell that identified WBAP. I may have heard Roosevelt's words "... a date that will live in infamy."

When I came to school that day, the halls and classrooms weren't filled with teen-agers, half-paralyzed in disbelief like those I would see 22 years later when Kennedy's assassination was announced over the public address system at Lee High School, where I was teaching. I remember wondering, along with my classmates: "Where on earth is Pearl Harbor? Why are our parents and teachers looking so serious? Whatever it is, it's not happening in America."

In retrospect, I'm embarrassed by my appalling ignorance. I wish Miss Becker had made certain that we all understood exactly what was happening. I wish that she had shattered our "hear no evil, see no evil, speak no evil" worlds. Perhaps she was being protective. Most of us were not yet 17 years old, but the boys would know soon enough what Pearl Harbor meant because they had no choice. As for me, I'm ashamed that what I most remember about American History class is beautiful Martha Hyer applying lipstick.

In less than six months after Pearl Harbor, Miss Becker's class was scattered throughout the world. The girls went off to college or took their first jobs, and the early '40s became exciting years for most of us: unforgettable songs and sad, wonderful movies, romantic farewells and long letters from places we couldn't have found on a map. And the country's total patriotism such as we would never see again. The excitement and drama in the movies we saw every weekend mirrored our own lives, and for us, the war years were good years. What a time to be alive. "Don't sit under the apple tree with anyone else but me . . ."

In these pre-television, photographs in "Life" magazine and the carefully edited newsreels, shown along with the movies, were the most we saw of the war. Scenes of bomb-shattered buildings and grim survivors of aerial attacks on England and Europe flashed on the screen in split-second glimpses so that we grasped little of war's horrors in those faraway places. There were close-ups of America's injured and dying boys. Mustn't hurt the country's morale. "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition . . ."

We didn't need to see actual, close-up shots of Japanese and German soldiers. Our concept of the villains of this war came from the Hollywood stereotypes in every movie: the cruel pilots aiming their Zeros at the brave, American airmen, defending freedom in the skies . . . merciless, German officers in heavy, black boots, ordering innocent families out of their homes with bayoneted guns.

During those years, I'm also ashamed to admit that, except for one or two, I seldom thought of the boys in the Class of '42. The shortage of males at my college was merely an inconvenience to be borne. "They'll all be back soon," we told ourselves in the early months of the war. Then we turned our thoughts for weightier matters, stockings with runs and what to wear to the next football game.

Fifty years later, I still regret, even resent a little, how ignorant we all were in that history class on Dec. 8, 1941. But perhaps the boys couldn't have been prepared for what lay immediately ahead. No high school seniors will ever be that innocent again. It was the last "good" war.

Corrections

The dollar figures for the school district's May 4 bond election were reversed in Thursday's newspaper. Proposition 1 issued $13.4 million to fund construction and renovation of existing schools and Proposition 2 issued $10.8 million to build a new junior high school.

The caption accompanying a photograph in Friday's newspaper incorrectly stated that Sid Thomas was examining the proposed boundaries for junior high schools with Midland Independent School District. It should have stated he was looking at the present school boundaries.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the errors.

U.S., Japanese textbooks tell different Pearl Harbor stories

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a version of the Japanese film classic "Rashomon," in which the story of a heinous attack changes many times in the telling, Japanese school texts tell one tale about Pearl Harbor, American texts quite another.

Fifty years after the Pearl Harbor bombing drew America into World War II, Japanese schoolbooks have broken a long silence on the subject — but rarely with more than a paragraph or two.

American texts, by contrast, have routinely featured lengthy, bloody accounts of Pearl Harbor, containing words like "dastardly" and "sneaky."

But more recent U.S. history texts have offered students two other elements to ponder: the internment of Japanese-Americans in West Coast concentration camps following Pearl Harbor, and the possibility that U.S. officials had at least some knowledge weeks before Dec. 7, 1941, that an attack was imminent.

Hisae K. Shea recalls that as a schoolgirl in Japan in the 1950s, her teachers and her textbooks barely mentioned Pearl Harbor.

"We were never told why we lost the war, or who started the war. There was not a precise description of the war. Our books would say, 'from 1940 to 1945 we had a war.' It's very recent to have the Japanese pay attention to this kind of thing," said Shea, now studying applied linguistics at Columbia University's Teachers College.

A rare 1953 Japanese high school social studies text, now part of a collection of such texts at Teachers College, devotes but a single line to the entire war, with no mention of Pearl Harbor.

By 1990, Japan's most widely used junior high text, "New Social History," offered this one-paragraph description:

"Japan had planned to deliver the declaration of war just before the attack on Pearl Harbor, but the delivery to the United States was delayed and came after the attack. Thus, the United States condemned Japan, calling it a sneaky surprise attack, and 'Remember Pearl Harbor' became the catchword of the time in the United States."

At least one widely used Japanese text still presents the war as Japan's noble attempt to liberate Asia, said Nobuyoshi Takashima, a teacher at a senior high school affiliated with the University of Tsukuba.

That Pearl Harbor is acknowledged at all in Japanese texts reflects a harsh concession, said James Shields Jr., an education professor at City University of New York who has studied Japanese schools.

"The Japanese education system has always been very nationalistic. It's a system that has worked to develop a sense of a unique Japanese culture, civic values and social harmony. Within that context, it's a system that would downplay anything that would seem embarrassing or would make Japan look anything less than a very special culture," Shields said.

In America, the shock of the Pearl Harbor attack still was fresh when this description was offered in a 1944 high school text, "The Pacific-Its Lands and Peoples":

"It is hard to make ourselves think pleasant thoughts about Japan," the text said. "Making cruel war has been the purpose of the military party of Japan ever since its beginnings."

By 1950, "America's History," by Lewis Paul Todd and Merle Curti, offered two detailed pages of the failed diplomacy.

Further details appeared in a 1967 junior high text, "The Free and The Brave," by Columbia University History Professor Henry Graff: "'(President) Roosevelt wrote (British Prime Minister) Churchill: 'I am not very hopeful and we must all be prepared for real trouble, possibly soon.'"

ATTACK: Pearl Harbor reshapes America

would reshape not only his life and those of his comrades, but the lives of millions.

From Dec. 7, 1941, to Aug. 15, 1945, the date the fighting with Japan ended, nearly 15 million Americans served in the armed forces, and more than 400,000 died.

Millions served indirectly, in hospitals, factories and volunteer organizations, aiding the war effort. Most every American was affected.

Because this is a democratic nation, massive change in the people means change in the institutions, in the government, in the fabric of society, in global relationships and influence. There was the America before Pearl Harbor, and there is the America after Pearl Harbor. Many say they are different countries.

"Pearl Harbor got us into the war that changed this whole country," said Donald Goldstein, a historian at the University of Pittsburgh and an authority on Pearl Harbor. "That's what really made it important.

"It changed us from a backwoods, isolated country into a great power. After the war, we became the protector of the world. Before the war, we couldn't care less about the rest of the world."

On the global level, the transformation from an isolationist country to a superpower involved and influential in the world is arguably the most significant legacy of the attack.

Until Pearl Harbor, the isolationist policies of the United States were virtually inviolate. U.S. forces had served in World War I and had suffered heavy casualties, which probably accounted for the resolve not to get involved in another European conflict.

While Great Britain and France declared war on Germany on Sept. 3, 1939, the isolationist sentiment was so strong that two days later the United States declared its neutrality. But it was clear that to defeat Adolf Hitler, the British would need the United States.

Pearl Harbor guaranteed American entry into that war, assured the defeat of Nazi Germany and solidified the United States' role as a global power.

Consider that before Pearl Harbor, United States troops had intervened significantly this century in only one other conflict, World War I. Since Pearl Harbor, the United States has become involved significantly in at least 17 conflicts around the world — in China, Greece, Korea, Cuba, Laos, the Dominican Republic, Vietnam, Cambodia, Angola, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Grenada, Panama, Indonesia, Chile, Kuwait and Lebanon.

"After Pearl Harbor, we tended to suggest that war was America's business," said Paul Fussell, a University of Pennsylvania professor who has written books on both world wars and served in World War II. "The price of winning the war for the British was a loss of their empire and the loss of their role as an economic and military world power. That's what America gained."

At home, the effects of four years of war were perhaps more subtle, though no less profound.

"The war, as always happens, was a great social revolutionary force," said Rice University history Professor Francis Lowenheim. "It led to very substantial, and as we now know, permanent advances, particularly in the area of women's rights and the rights of minorities, especially blacks."

Women went to work by the millions. Blacks, in the words of one historian, went to fight and die for their country without, for the first time in history, having to fight their country for the right to do so. Young men and women were uprooted from isolated, protected lives in small communities and sent abroad.

"It made women free for the first time," said Goldstein, the Pittsburgh historian. "Before World War II, before Pearl Harbor, women sat at home. They had babies, they made food, they saved marriages that weren't worth a dime, they put up with a lot of crap.

"When the guys went away, they didn't go away for 15 months or six weeks like Desert Storm or what ever, they went away for four years. When they came back, they found the women had gone to work. They worked in the factories, they had jobs. They raised the kids, they had made money, they had kept the checkbook and the old man wanted the checkbook back and the woman says 'No.' It gave her independence like never before."

Like the symbolic Rosie the Riveter, American women went to work in factories and munitions plants, as nurses and in myriad quasi-military jobs. Many preferred to work the swing shift so they could spend daylight hours with the children. About 6.5 million women entered the work force in the war years and by the end of the conflict, 36 percent of women were employed, up from 25 percent at the beginning of the war.

A recently published collection of letters written by women during World War II, titled "Since You Went Away," provides intriguing, often touching glimpses into the lives of the women left behind.

Polly and William Crow were married 10 months before the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was drafted in the fall of 1943 and shipped to Europe in early summer 1944.

"Darlin'," wrote Polly Crow in June 1944. "You are now the husband of a career woman — just call me your little Ship Yard Babe."

Polly Crow had taken a job for 70 cents an hour at the Jefferson Boat and Machine Co. in Anderson, Ind. Among the newly discovered freedoms she enjoyed was opening her first checking account.

"Opened my little checking account too and it's a grand and glorious feeling to write a check all your own and not have to ask for them."

Perhaps the other most significant effect the war had on the American people was the unprecedented racial integration of the armed forces. One million blacks served, many of them with honor in air or infantry units.

Black Americans have always served in the nation's armed forces. In the Civil War, for instance, black soldiers in the Union

POLICY: WWII sows seeds for integration

(From 5A)

Army won 22 Medals of Honor.

But as late as the attack at Pearl Harbor, the integration of the forces was not predicated on whether a black man could fight, said Leroy Ramsey, a Pentagon historian, but on the fact that white officers did not want them to fight.

Shortly before Pearl Harbor, the federal War Manpower Commission had determined that if America became embroiled in the war, it would need 200 divisions to meet the challenge. But at the time, there was a directive that the armed forces be 10 percent black to reflect the makeup of society. That would have meant 20 black divisions.

"Twenty black divisions? That was a nightmarish thought," Ramsey said. "It also meant that in the Air Force 10 percent of the bombers and fighters had to be black. Also a nightmarish thought. So they had to back away from that."

As a result, the vast majority of blacks in the armed forces, in the early part of the war at least, worked as truck drivers, stevedores, in service units and other non-combat functions.

But the success of several black fighting units that were given a chance, such as the Tuskegee Airmen and the 761st Tank Battalion, started to be noticed.

"It began to become apparent that the black man should be given a chance to fight, and the black man was given a chance to fight," Ramsey said. Although it was only after the war that President Truman issued an executive order calling for equality of opportunity and treatment in the military, the seeds were sown during the war.

"World War II resulted in the first opportunity for black Americans to be able to fight and die for their country without first having to fight the country for the opportunity," Ramsey said. "This was an eye-opener to American whites because American blacks already knew that blacks were willing to fight and die for their country and were capable of fighting and dying for their country."

Among the more subtle, but no less dramatic, changes that the war brought to America were in education and housing.

The war gave rise to the GI Bill, which opened the door to a college education for millions of people who otherwise would not have gotten one. Housing benefits for returning Americans also made home ownership much more affordable.

The millions of servicemen returning from the war found a country more affluent than when they left and because of, among other things, the GI Bill, they were more affluent and more willing to settle down and raise a family. Between 1946 and 1964, 76 million Americans were born, an unprecedented baby boom that had its own dramatic influence on postwar America.

Because the attack on Pearl Harbor was a "surprise" and because it was planned and executed without U.S. intelligence operations detecting it, the postwar years have seen the rise, as one historian said, of the "cult of preparedness" and the "cult of intelligence." Pearl Harbor was largely responsible for the enactment of the National Security Act of 1947, which set up the CIA.

Economically, the war assured America of its transcendent role in world affairs. In 1941, the country had not quite fully recovered from the Great Depression. The Japanese attack sent the military-industrial complex, somewhat mothballed after World War I, into high gear.

"Before the war, we have a depressed economy," said John Dower, professor of history at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "During the war, this is stimulated and it brings you out of the Depression. After the war, the economy is powerful. But at the same time, the rest of the world's economies — Japan, Britain, Germany — are shattered.

"This great economic machine made us feel invincible, which, unfortunately, led to a kind of real confidence that we have all the answers."

Ironically, Dower believes this to be the genesis of an unfortunate legacy of the war. While the rest of the world, particularly Japan and Germany, had to indulge in long-range planning to rebuild their economies, the United States, with its plants and factories intact and its economy robust, did not.

"The negative legacy is our complacency," Dower said.

Today, America is paying for that complacency with Japan and, to a lesser extent, Germany, threatening its economic supremacy.

The Japanese went to war with the United States, in part, because they wanted greater prosperity in East Asia. They attacked the Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor in an attempt to neutralize the U.S. Navy and allow them to take Southeast Asia.

"Once they had done that, they thought they could sue for peace and they thought they would get away with it," Goldstein said. "What happened was, they lost the war but they've won, because today they are East Asian prosperity. In essence they won, and that's what rankles people."

The distrustful relationship between the U.S. and Japan is an enduring legacy of the attack on Pearl Harbor. The Japanese are buying Pebble Beach Golf Course, Rockefeller Center and much of Hawaii. To many Americans, this is just a continuation of what the Japanese started when they bombed the harbor.

"The attack and the war released some very violent anti-Asian sentiments in America," Dower said. "In this regard, the major legacy of this war is that there emerges an incredible desire for revenge against 'all those dirty Japs.'"

Anti-Asian sentiments were so strong that immediately after the attack, all Japanese nationals in America were rounded up and interned. Three months later, President Roosevelt issued an executive order that all Japanese-Americans be interned.

World War II, Dower argues, represented a major turning point in the psychology of waging war, which was largely manifest in the dropping of atomic bombs.

"The attack, because it was 'sneaky,' opened the way to saying that the whole Japanese people are our enemy, and this was only compounded by Japanese atrocities during the war," Dower said.

Christmas lights

The city's live Christmas tree at Centennial Plaza was lit for the first time this holiday season on Friday evening. The community tree lighting, organized by the Midland Jaycees, was highlighted by a visit from Santa Claus.

Parents defend Emerson school

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

While one parent complained of the lack of supervision in the mornings at Emerson Elementary School, others said she was wrong — that there is more than adequate monitoring of pupils.

Following Thursday night's community meeting at Emerson, one woman said, "There's just not enough supervision here or in the other of my cluster schools from 7:20-8:15. The kids get all wound up, wander around, and nobody supervises them."

Emerson Principal Mary Smith said that there is supervision every morning at the school.

David Sapp, a parent of a child attending the school, said, "I appreciate that Mary Smith makes sure that the children get off the bus and into the school cafeteria, and there are monitors in the cafeteria."

Sapp said that he — and other parents — thought the amount of time between bus arrivals and the beginning of school provided too much "idle time."

"However, I'm at the school every morning and there are monitors. Emerson is well taken care of," he said.

FBI agents arrest Andrews bank officer

Staff Report

A former assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Andrews was arrested in Andrews Wednesday night and charged with embezzlement, false statements, wire fraud and bank fraud, federal officials said.

Juanita Lopez Barrera, 50, was arrested on a warrant by agents with the Federal Bureau of Investigation following an investigation by the Midland FBI.

Ms. Barrera appeared before a U.S. Magistrate Thursday, officials said.

Woman, 81, gets probation in killing

HOUSTON (AP) — An 81-year-old great-great-grandmother has been placed on the minimum five years probation for murdering her daughter, who the elderly woman said had a history of stealing from her.

Jurors in state District Judge Mike Wilkinson's court on Thursday gave Ocie Brown the minimum punishment in Texas for murder.

Gracie Brown Lewis, 48, a two-time ex-convict, was shot Aug. 26, 1989, during a fracas at her mother's house.

Defense attorney Charles Freeman contended Ms. Brown fired in self-defense.

Ms. Brown's confession said Ms. Lewis barged into the home and began going room to room, as if seeking things of value.

"I started asking her for my things — all my plants and plastic rags," the confession said. "She stole them from me the other week.

"It just got me madder and madder 'cause she got on my nerves, so I reached under my pillow and got my .22 pistol."

Faith saved him, Anderson reveals

WIESBADEN, Germany (NYT) — A beaming Terry A. Anderson, free after nearly seven years as a hostage in Lebanon, said Friday that he bore no hatred toward his "very, very Islamic" captors, but added that he was never able to understand "what made them able to hold the beliefs they hold and to do the things they did at the same time."

Anderson

"I don't hate anybody," Anderson told reporters at a news conference here. "I'm a Christian and a Catholic, and it's really required of me that I forgive, no matter how hard that may be, and I intend to do that."

"I'm certainly not grateful," he hastened to add. "I believe they were very wrong, and did great wrong to me and my family."

Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press, was abducted in Beirut in March 1985. During the first few years of his imprisonment, he said, his captors were "pretty rough."

"I got in a lot of fights with them from time to time," he said. "Sometimes they would punish me for it."

"There were some pretty bad times, and there were times when I was pretty near despair. I don't think I ever gave up. My faith kept me from giving up to despair."

Anderson, 44, looked fit, but said he had tried to jog this morning and discovered how weak he had become. He spoke firmly and clearly, though he choked with emotion soon after the news conference began.

"I've been just stunned, overwhelmed in the last two days by the welcome," he began. "There are so many people, thousands and thousands of people, who I need to thank for what they've done, and I don't know how to do it. I think you know how I feel."

With that, he broke into tears, and was embraced by his sister, Peggy Say, who was sitting beside him.

Anderson offered some insights into how he and other hostages kept their equilibrium and sanity during their ordeal. He said a Bible given to him by his captors "got a lot of service," and that he devised various "mental exercises" to pass the time.

During the time he was held together with Thomas M. Sutherland, an agronomy professor, Sutherland taught him all he knew about farm management, animal husbandry and related topics, he said. Anderson said he later "built a dairy farm in my head" and planned its operation "very elaborately, down to the last penny."

He paid tribute to several of the hostages with whom he was held, especially Terry Waite, the Anglican Church envoy who came to Beirut to free hostages and was captured himself instead.

"He risked his life for me," he said of Waite. "I never heard him express a word of regret or bitterness. He'd do it again tomorrow, I know it."

"These men all gave something to me, helped me. I hope they got something in return."

Anderson said he was held in 15 or 20 different places, ranging from apartments to a dark cell that was just 6 feet long and 6 feet wide.

Capital short of food, says Soviet chief

MOSCOW (NYT) — The Soviet capital will run out of food in a few days, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev warned Friday.

The 60-year-old leader begged the Russian republic's neighboring states, who are big food producers, to bail out the capital before people's hunger and anger erupts into violence.

The Tass news agency reported that Friday Gorbachev sent telegrams to leaders of the republics of Ukraine, Kazakhstan, Byelorussia and Moldavia, warning that the worsening situation could trigger mass protests against economic reforms.

There were also Soviet media reports of raids on farms in rural areas in which sheep and cattle have been stolen. Tass reported that hungry residents of Naryn, a city in Kazakhstan, have stolen about 160,000 sheep from nearby collective farms.

Gorbachev's warning Friday came on the eve of crucial meetings among key leaders of the republics. They are expected to decide in the next several days whether or not there will be a Soviet Union or merely separate states which agree to cooperate with each mostly on an economic basis.

If they agree to a loose economic federation, there will be little need for Gorbachev or any Soviet president.

The same republican leaders to whom Gorbachev appealed for food Friday are the very ones who will decide whether or not there will be a Soviet Union resembling its current form. The leaders represent the economic and agricultural giants of the country and include Ukraine, Byelorussia, and Kazakhstan. Ukraine voted just one week ago to be completely independent.

All republics have been keeping much of their food to themselves this winter in order to protect their own people against shortages.

They are also awaiting the lifting of price supports in the Russian republic, which will make their goods worth more at the free market rate. Russian President Boris Yeltsin has said those price supports will be lifted later this month.

Although the food situation here and in St. Petersburg is much worse than it has been in recent years, the lines here for food were not unusually long Friday. Nor were there rampant rumors or hints of panic, suggesting that residents of the capital did not feel they were in desperate straits.

Gorbachev said Moscow urgently needed sugar, vegetable oil, meat, milk, butter and flour. Lines for milk this week have grown longer.

Gorbachev's dire warning was well-timed Friday. The thermometer, for the first time, stayed below ten degrees fahrenheit all day.

Vance protests attack on Dubrovnik

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance on Friday angrily protested the federal army's bombardment of Dubrovnik and Osijek, where at least 17 people were killed and dozens were wounded in fierce battles.

Belgrade television showed a giant plume of black smoke rising from the small harbor in front of Dubrovnik's famous Old City walls and two smaller plumes of smoke in the distance.

Croatian radio reporters in Dubrovnik described the attack as the most serious by the Serb-dominated federal army on the once-quaint southern Adriatic port, a peacetime resort that has been under siege for 67 days.

The United States openly criticized the Serbian leadership for the first time Friday for its aggression against Croatia and another republic, Bosnia-Hercegovina, and announced economic sanctions against Yugoslavia.

"The continued use of aggressive force and intimidation against Croatia and Bosnia by the Serbian leadership and its allies in Montenegro and by the Yugoslav military represents the greatest obstacle to a peaceful settlement," said a Washington statement by the U.S. State Department.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said he was "dismayed" to learn of the renewed fighting in Dubrovnik from Vance and urged the warring parties honor last week's cease-fire agreement.

The surge in fighting ended more than two weeks of relative peace around Dubrovnik, which has been threatened for weeks by army cannons on land and navy gunboats from the sea.

"At this particular moment in Mr. Vance's efforts, it is imperative that the Geneva agreement of Nov. 23 be scrupulously observed by the parties in Yugoslavia," Perez de Cuellar said in an interview.

In an apparent reference to plans by Germany and Austria to recognize Croatian and Slovenian independence, the U.N. leader also said it was essential that "no actions be taken outside Yugoslavia."

Zagreb radio said 11 people were killed and 30 wounded during Friday's fighting in Dubrovnik, although the report was not immediately confirmed by the government.

In Osijek, the main city of the eastern Slavonia region of Croatia, attacks continued into the evening, defense officials said. Six people were killed and 15 wounded, hospital officials reported.

Thousands of people have died during the 5-month-old civil war, which began after Croatia and neighboring Slovenia declared independence on June 25.

Vance was in Yugoslavia to probe conditions for the dispatch of U.N. peacekeepers. He issued "a strong protest" to federal Defense Minister Veljko Kadijevic over the renewed attacks.

"It is sad that the fighting in Yugoslavia continues. I'm certain that there is no single reason for the continuation of the bombardment of Dubrovnik and Osijek," Tanjug quoted Vance as telling reporters in Belgrade. "I'm angry."

Heineken to open brewery in Vietnam

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Heineken, Europe's largest brewer, has signed a joint-venture agreement to become the first foreign beer producer in Vietnam, the company said Friday.

By late 1993, Vietnam Brewery Ltd. will produce beer under the Heineken and Tiger labels from a new $42.5 million brewery near Ho Chi Minh City, formerly known as Saigon, said Heineken spokeswoman Annemiek Louwers.

Tiger and Heineken are currently the bestselling import beers in the Communist nation of 68 million residents, which is now undergoing free-market reforms. Tiger is made by Asia Pacific Breweries in Singapore.

Heineken is investing in the brewery expecting strong sales potential because of the recent reforms, the spokeswoman said.

Vietnam currently has two state-run breweries that cannot satisfy domestic demand, Louwers said.

The spokeswoman said Heineken will manage the plant and supply all technical know-how.

Roosevelt's speech

"A DAY OF INFAMY"

President Roosevelt goes before Congress on Dec. 8 to seek a declaration of war against Japan for its "dastardly, unprovoked attack." In a last-minute change, he substitutes the word "infamy" for "history" and calls Dec. 7 a "date that will live in infamy." Even before he speaks that day, the Japanese attack the Philippines, Malaya,Thailand and Hong Kong. Japanese planes catch U.S. forces on the Philippines by surprise and destroy nearly two-thirds of the 157 American planes in the colony. All but one member of Congress votes for war; Jeanette Rankin, the first woman elected to Congress and a pacifist Republican, votes no.

▲ TRAGEDY AT PEARL

The destroyer Shaw goes up in a fiery explosion. The battleship Arizona hit in the opening minutes of the attack carries 1,177 to their deaths. In all, 2,403 military personnel and civilians die during the two-hour onslaught on Pearl Harbor and nearby airbases. The battleship Oklahoma, minelayer Oglala and target ship Utah, a former battleship, also are wrecked. Six battleships, three cruisers, three destroyers and one auxiliary ship sustain major damage, but will return to action. The Japanese don't hit repair facilities or oil tanks, failing to knock out Pearl Harbor as a base. Three U.S. aircraft carriers are out of port and escape the attack.

◀ 14 HOURS OF CHAOS

The first bombs in Japan's surprise attack hit the U.S. Navy seaplane base on Ford Island in the middle of Pearl Harbor, putting the base out of action. Smoke from burning ships on "Battleship Row" tower in the distance. In all, 347 of the 481 American military planes on Oahu are destroyed or damaged. Only a dozen U.S. aircraft get into the air. The Japanese lose only 29 of the 353 planes that attack Hawaii, although about 70 others are damaged.

Japan prepares for WAR

Day of Infamy

Japan's designs on Asia led to war with the U.S.

By Kent Kilpatrick
Associated Press Writer

They screamed out of the sky over Pearl Harbor that sleepy Sunday morning, those planes emblazoned with the Red Sun of Imperial Japan. The attack itself was a surprise; that war had come at last was not, just the end of a road that stretched back to 1931, when Japan seized Manchuria from China. Relations steadily worsened as Japan invaded China in 1937 and then grabbed Indochina in 1940, forging a U.S. determination to block Japanese expansionism in Asia. Washington began tightening the screws in 1941.

WASHINGTON, JULY 25 (AP) — PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT FROZE ALL JAPANESE ASSETS IN THIS COUNTRY TONIGHT AND CUT OFF THE SALE OF OIL TO JAPAN.

The Dutch also cut off oil from the Dutch East Indies, leaving Japan with no source of oil for its economy and military. The Imperial Cabinet decides Sept. 6 to go to war with the Americans, British and Dutch unless a diplomatic settlement gets the oil flowing again. The plan for a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor is approved Oct. 11. Meantime, Japan pursues a final round of negotiations its leaders don't expect to succeed.

TOKYO, NOV. 5 (AP) — SABURO KURUSU, THE DAPPER DIPLOMAT WHO SIGNED THE AXIS ALLIANCE FOR JAPAN, IS FLYING TO WASHINGTON IN A NEW EFFORT TO EASE TENSIONS.

Tokyo's final proposal on Nov. 20 calls for the removal of Japanese troops from southern Indochina in return for assured supplies of oil. On Nov. 26, Washington counters with a demand for the complete Japanese withdrawal from China and Indochina. A few hours earlier, six Japanese aircraft carriers and their escorts sail from the Kuriles, heading across the nearly empty North Pacific toward Hawaii. Tokyo rejects the U.S. demands Nov. 30 and gives the final go-ahead for war Dec. 1.

WASHINGTON, DEC. 6 (AP) — PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DISPATCHED A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO EMPEROR HIROHITO TONIGHT APPEALING FOR PEACE.

It is too late.

Japanese fleet: On the move

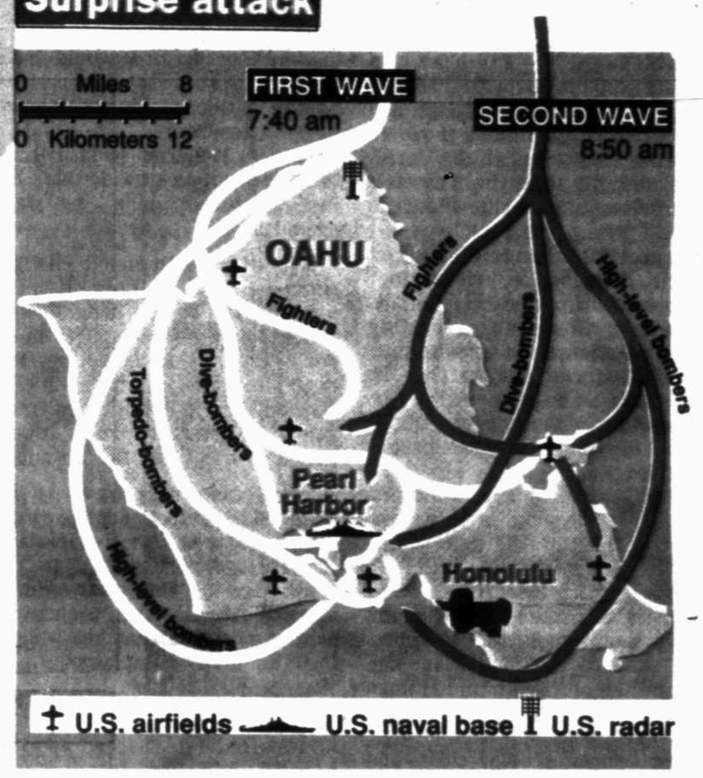
The Japanese fleet put together to attack Pearl Harbor leaves the Kuriles on Nov. 26. The six aircraft carriers, two battleships, three cruisers, nine destroyers and eight tankers sail across the little traveled and seldom patrolled North Pacific before turning south to reach Hawaii before dawn on Dec. 7. Long-range submarines carry midget subs intended to attack inside Pearl Harbor. Despite pleas from the fleet airmen to launch more attacks, the fleet's commander decides it is too risky and orders a return to Japan.

Surprise attack



Dec. 7: Surprise from the sky

The defenders of Hawaii are taken completely by surprise when 183 Japanese naval planes dive out of the clouds and rain destruction on the big ships of the U.S. Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor. War had seemed increasingly likely to America's leaders, but they have focused their attention on Southeast Asia, where the Japanese have territorial ambitions and need Dutch East Indies oil. Clues are missed, early warnings of an approaching attack are ignored.

THE FIRST WAVE

The first wave — 49 high-level bombers, 51 dive bombers, 40 torpedo planes and 43 fighters — begins taking off from six aircraft carriers 200 miles north of Oahu at 6 a.m. Forty-five minutes later, the destroyer USS Ward attacks a Japanese midget submarine trying to slip into Pearl Harbor, but the incident is dismissed because of previous false alarms. At 7:02 a.m., two soldiers at a radar station detect the incoming planes. A young officer in training decides they must be U.S. aircraft.

RED SUNS BLAZING

The planes, bright Red Suns blazing on their wings, fly on. Some head for U.S. airfields while the others aim at Pearl Harbor. Capt. Fuchida, commander of the attack, signals the fleet at 7:53 a.m. with the code phrase that surprise has been achieved — "Tora! Tora! Tora!"

The first torpedoes slam into the cruiser Raleigh and target ship Utah, at 7:55 a.m. The cruiser Helena and minelayer Oglala are next. Then, along "Battleship Row," the Nevada, Oklahoma, West Virginia and California.

Within minutes, an uncoded signal is radioed to the mainland:

"AIR RAID PEARL HARBOR! THIS IS NO DRILL!"

Ammunition on many ships is locked up and most anti-aircraft guns are unmanned, delaying American resistance.

A bomb plunges down the smokestack of the battleship Arizona and blows up a boiler and the forward magazine, ripping the ship asunder. More than 1,100 men die.

At U.S. airfields, Japanese pilots find planes lined up wingtip-to-wingtip to make it easier to guard against sabotage. The fields are left smoldering junkyards.

REACTION ELSEWHERE

About an hour after the bombs start to fall, Japanese diplomats deliver a formal declaration of war in Washington. It should have been delivered before the attack but was delayed in decoding.

About the same time, the mainland gets its first word of the attack when The Associated Press sends a "flash" on its wires from Washington:

"WHITE HOUSE SAYS JAPS ATTACK PEARL HARBOR."

THE SECOND WAVE

A second wave of 170 Japanese planes roars in 70 minutes after the first, hitting the battleship Pennsylvania, three destroyers and other ships.

The last of the Japanese fly away at 9:45 a.m. In less than two hours, the Japanese sink or severely damage most of the major ships of the Pacific Fleet — but they miss the fleet's three aircraft carriers, which are not in port.

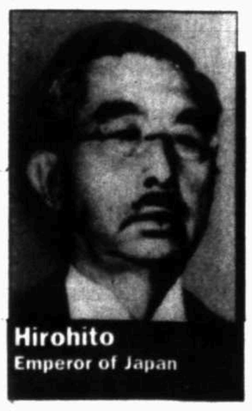
The Japanese hope the blow will stun America into suing for peace, but it enrages and unites the nation.

OTHER JAPANESE ATTACKS

The attack on Oahu isn't the only strike of the day:

- Japanese troops land in Malaya and Thailand, and Hong Kong is attacked.
- The Philippines, Singapore and Wake Island are hit by Japanese bombers.
- Two Japanese destroyers shell the U.S. Marine battalion at Midway Island.
- An American freighter is torpedoed north of Hawaii.

KEY PLAYERS: In the United States and Japan events were influenced by strong leaders



Hirohito
Emperor of Japan

Age 40 at time of Pearl Harbor, he had been emperor for 15 years. Long an advocate of diplomacy to end disputes with the United States. He was ultimately convinced war was inevitable and signed decree committing Japan to war on Dec. 1.

Hideki Tojo
Prime Minister

Given a "clean slate" to set policy on war when named premier on Oct. 16. A keenly intelligent general who graduated from the War College with honors. He hated the United States for its peacemaking efforts in Russo-Japanese War of 1905.

Isoroku Yamamoto
Commander, Japanese Combined Fleet

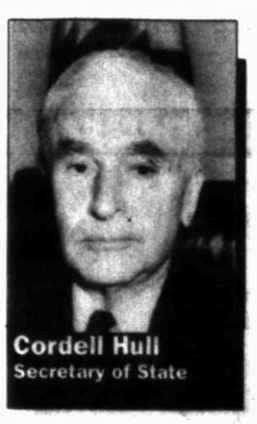
Conceived the Pearl Harbor attack, although he opposed war with the United States, where he studied at Harvard and served as naval attache at Japanese Embassy in Washington. He developed Japan's naval air force in 1920s and 1930s.

Chuichi Nagumo
Commander, Pearl Strike Force

Refused to launch additional air attacks on dockyards and fuel tanks on Oahu or to seek out two American aircraft carriers at sea. Uncomfortable with the daring plan from the beginning, he was unwilling to take any more risks.

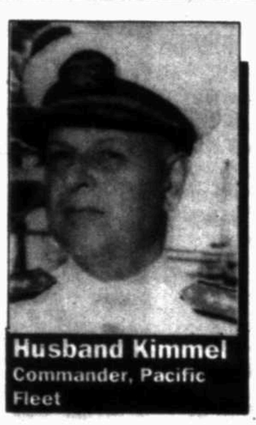
Franklin Roosevelt
President

How much he knew about Japanese intentions is still debated. Some people argue that he allowed the attack because he wanted the United States drawn into the war against Germany but that he did not expect U.S. forces to be surprised.



Cordell Hull
Secretary of State

His uncompromising position in negotiations with Japan is blamed by some for the outbreak of war. He successfully opposed a proposal for Roosevelt to meet with Tojo's predecessor in September, arguing: No compromise with aggression.



Husband Kimmel
Commander, Pacific Fleet

Drew much blame for the unpreparedness of forces at Pearl Harbor and was replaced on Dec. 31. Accused of dereliction of duty by a board of inquiry and forcibly retired in 1942. Cleared in 1946 by congressional inquiry that found causes of disaster were many.

Walter Short
Army Commander, Oahu

Historians debate whether he and Kimmel were fully informed by Washington of indications of impending hostilities, but it is clear neither believed Pearl would be target. Relieved of duty Dec. 17, he also was forced to retire in 1942.

GOP blasts Richards over tax hikes

AUSTIN (AP) — State Republican officials Friday accused Gov. Ann Richards and top Democratic lawmakers of lying to Texans to push through an education finance bill that led to increases in most school property taxes.

Richards' spokesman Chuck McDonald called the charges "nonsensical," and said the Republicans were "playing partisan politics with the schoolchildren of Texas."

Texas GOP chairman Fred Meyer of Dallas called Richards "the grinch who stole Christmas" because of the higher tax bills.

Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, said Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, and the authors of the school finance plan lied to the public by downplaying its consequences.

The Republicans said 83 percent of the school districts have raised property tax rates an average of 18.6 percent since the measure was adopted in response to an order from the Texas Supreme Court to even out funding between rich and poor districts.

"This is a backbreaking burden on the taxpayers of this state," said Culberson.

Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, said that although Democratic leaders said the plan would equalize funding, many poor districts had to raise their taxes. The so-called "Robin Hood" plan should have been called the "Sheriff of Nottingham" plan because it robbed from everyone, he said.

But McDonald said not all school district tax increases were needed to comply with the education finance reforms.

He said that although the statewide average school district tax rate increased from $1.06 to $1.20 per $100 of assessed value, much of that increase was needed to offset falling property values and increased tax exemptions.

He said most people's school tax bills will be comparable with last year.

"Frankly this inflammatory partisan rhetoric is really out of place," McDonald said. "It doesn't serve the Republican Party well in any fashion for these individuals to make these nonsensical charges."

McDonald also said that in a February vote on the school finance plan, 36 of 57 House Republicans voted for the measure.

Texas convict confesses to Florida murder

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A man serving 75 years in a Texas prison has confessed to a 1981 murder in the Orlando area, apparently so that he could serve his time in Florida.

"I don't know why he'd want to go there. All of our prisons are good," said Charles Brown, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections.

Richard Bishop, 30, began serving his lengthy sentence for aggravated robbery earlier this year at Eastham State Prison, 100 miles north of Houston. Eastham is one of Texas' older prisons and has a reputation as the toughest, Brown said, although it has been renovated and is "just as good as any of the rest of them."

As a result of Bishop's confession and other evidence pieced together by investigators, an Orange County grand jury Thursday indicted the convict in the decade-old case that was gathering dust in an office drawer at the sheriff's department.

"In his mind, he thought if he confessed he could be transferred," said sheriff's detective tom McCann. "I don't know how he got that idea. But we are happy to accept the results."

The State

Committee demands hospital changes

AUSTIN (AP) — The head of a Senate panel investigating alleged abuses at psychiatric hospitals said state regulators should move to improve their oversight by Christmas, adding that the hospitals themselves now seem willing to help.

Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, described as "frightening" reports from parents of attempts to coerce them into admitting their children to some hospitals.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says he has widened his investigation of ties between public school districts and private psychiatric hospitals.

"I don't know of a more vulnerable target for some of these psychiatric institutions" than young people, Moncrief said.

At a hearing, Moncrief directed agencies to make changes to improve regulation by Christmas. The staff of the Senate Interim Committee on Health and Human Services has suggested that agencies take a team approach to regulation, address problem areas and make sure patients know their rights.

In stressing the need for swift action to Georgia Flint, acting insurance commissioner, Moncrief said, "Let's stretch your rules, regulations ... and ability to step on necks to the limit."

Moncrief said that the committee had received testimony of people being institutionalized against their will and being prescribed "massive doses of medication."

In some cases, he said, the amounts prescribed would have been lethal and were not received by the patient — but they were paid by insurers.

Earlier, Moncrief said, "I think there is a can-do attitude that's being exhibited today" by state agencies.

Not all recommended changes could be made by Christmas, the senator said, but all possible ones should be even if it requires emergency agency board meetings. For example, state mental health officials on Wednesday adopted emergency investigation rules to enhance oversight of the hospitals.

Laws also will have to be changed to protect people, he said.

Suggestions for legislative changes were submitted to the committee by Psychiatric Institutes of America Inc., a chain of private hospitals that has been a focus of many complaints.

Among its recommendations are that voluntary patients should be allowed to be discharged upon request if a doctor determines that the patient is not dangerous to himself or others; no financial incentives should be given to anyone in the admission process; and patients should be given written information about their rights.

David Olson, spokesman for PIA, said, the hospitals wanted to work with the committee and the attorney general to make any needed changes "and get on with the business of treating the people who need treatment."

Houston officials identify fourth meningitis case

HOUSTON (AP) — A fourth case of confirmed meningitis has been linked to Hambrick Junior High School, where three students have been afflicted with the ailment, officials said Friday.

One of the students with meningococcal meningitis at Hambrick died Monday. The newest case involves a youth who came into contact with two cousins who attend the school, which is in the Aldine Independent School District.

Another suspected case involves an 11-year-old student from the Houston Independent School District, although laboratory tests have not confirmed the preliminary diagnosis, health officials said.

An 8-year-old student at Chancellor Elementary School in the Alief Independent School District also has died as a result of bacterial meningitis, but health officials said it was a different type of bacteria than that identified at Hambrick.

Two other cases in the Houston area have been reported, but doctors called those isolated incidents.

Worries about spread of the sickness pushed absenteeism rates at Hambrick into the hundreds this week and prompted county health officials to distribute rifampin, an antibiotic drug often prescribed to prevent meningitis, to Hambrick students.

Meningococcal meningitis, a bacterial form of the disease, can be transmitted by close contact but is not considered highly contagious.

REMEMBRANCES OF WAR

Bush holds no ill will, calls today 'day of healing'

HONOLULU (AP) — Journeying to an emotional anniversary at Pearl Harbor, President Bush said Friday that Americans should observe the healing of peace as well as the memory of the Japanese attack that began a war, calling it "a turning point, really, in terms of peace and freedom."

"For me, it will be emotional because, like a lot of those veterans out there, I lost friends, my roommates, two roommates, killed in action off our carrier," said Bush, a World War II Navy pilot, before flying to Hawaii for 50th anniversary observances today.

Among those greeting Bush as he arrived at Hickam Air Force Base here was Dale Nash, one of the crew members of the submarine Finback who helped to rescue him when his plane was shot down in the Pacific in 1944.

As Bush stepped from Air Force One an orange lei was draped around his neck and a pale yellow lei around the neck of first lady Barbara Bush.

Earlier, as he left the White House, the president said that "for me and a lot of other Americans of my generation this is a very emotional time."

The president said he holds no rancor toward Japan.

He said he would "approach it as a day of healing, appropriately honoring those who died at Pearl Harbor and those who were killed in World War II after Pearl Harbor."

On a 9,900-mile journey — he returns to Washington early Sunday — Bush stopped in California to tour a flashlight factory and push his economic ideas in speeches there and at the local Kiwanis Club.

"I am absolutely confident things are going to be better," he told about 200 people in a loading lot outside the Mag Instruments, Inc., plant. He urged Congress anew to approve a capital gains tax cut and other economic moves he has been recommending for three years.

He promised that his State of the Union economic proposals late next month will include a comprehensive proposal on health care and insurance, one that can deal with the problem without new taxes. But he said it will not dilute American health care "by socializing our system."

As he answered questions, one came from a man who said they shared wedding days, and invited the Bushes to a cookout on their shared anniversary.

"Well, if I can remember it," Bush chuckled. "I'm the guy that couldn't remember when Pearl Harbor was."

Campaigning on Sept. 7, 1988, he'd called that the 47th anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day, correcting it to Dec. 7 after an unsettled murmur in his audience of veterans alerted him to the slip.

Bush, 17 when the Japanese attacked, has said he decided that day to enlist as soon as he could. He did, on his 18th birthday.

He flew 58 combat missions and made more than 100 carrier landings. He was shot down on Sept. 1, 1944.

Tom Hill of the Confederate Air Force's "Tora, Tora, Tora" ground crew records the sight of World War II Zero pilot Sadamu Komachi behind the controls of the revered Mitsubishi-built fighter Friday. Komachi flew support missions for the Japanese Navy on Dec. 7, 1941, during the attack at Pearl Harbor.

Imperial Japanese Navy pilots — nervous, surprised, and alarmed in late 1941 when they learned they would be waging war with the United States at Pearl Harbor — nevertheless prepared themselves to fight and to die.

"We weren't expecting to have a war with the America, so we were very surprised," said Sadamu Komachi, a Zero fighter pilot who played a support role in the infamous attack on U.S. naval, air and ground forces at Pearl Harbor.

In his Zero, Komachi circled the Japanese fleet to ward off any attackers — none came — while 423 Japanese warplanes were attacking American forces at Pearl Harbor.

Komachi, speaking through an interpreter, was among several World War II Zero pilots who addressed a Friday session of the American Airpower Heritage Museum's symposium, "Pearl Harbor: Prelude to War."

But as the Japanese fleet, including six aircraft carriers and many other warships, steamed from Japan to near the Hawaiian Islands, there was total radio blackout to conceal any hint of the impending attack.

"Of course," Komachi said in a congenial atmosphere fraught with intense interest by World War II America pilots and airpower buffs, "this was going to be a big war. The pilots were nervous about it."

To in effort to calm their nerves, many of the pilots drank beer or saki and were told that "their future lives were endangered."

Though the beer was a "gift" to them so that they "could party" before their flight into the assault, the pilots "drank to calm their nerves," Komachi said.

And, in keeping with the samurai tradition, the warriors cleansed themselves thoroughly and put on clean socks and clean underwear.

The pilots wanted "always to go into battle fine and pristine," he said.

Back on the carriers later, the surviving Zero fighter pilots and Val dive-bomber and Kate torpedo-bomber pilots and their crews "were very happy," Komachi said.

"They were expecting to die and were alive and were happy," Komachi, now 71, said. "They couldn't wait to get on Japan land."

Yoshio Shiga, the president of the Japanese Zero Fighter Pilots Association and a leader in the Pearl Harbor attack, was unable to attended the symposium.

However, he did extend his regrets to Richard "Ish" Ingram, executive director of the Confederate Air Force and the American Airpower Heritage Group.

In his letter, Shiga wrote Ingram:

"50 years ago when I flew into Pearl Harbor, I had no idea how the war would end, nor did I dream of how the world would look 50 years later.

"The Japan of today has built on the sacrifices and mistakes made in the past."

Of the Pearl Harbor attack, Shiga penned: "I personally did my duty as I saw it at the time, and I think that was what everybody was doing, so I offer no excuses nor do I want to glorify anything."

And he signed his letter: "May all those who lost their lives in the past wars rest in peace."

Among the Japanese in the delegation were Sadamu Komachi, Kaname Harada, Kumaich Kobayashi, Yukio Kurisu, Hayao Fjimoto and Ryu Hatano.

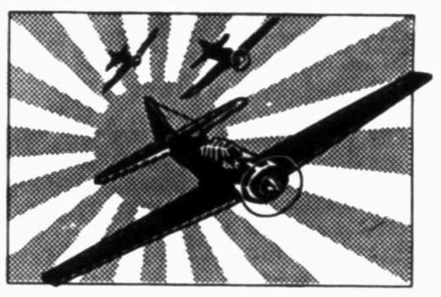
Hatano, the youngest among the delegates, was an Imperial Japanese Navy cadet at war's end in 1945 and, much to his disappointment, was not honored to fly the Mitsubishi A6M Zero fighter, which the Japanese pilots hold in virtual reverence.

"She (the Zero) is a very beautiful plane," said Hatano, a 63-year-old Tokyo computer engineer who is a colonel in the Confederate Air Force. "She is my lover forever."

Hatano was in Midland for October's CAF AirSho'91.

After the session, CAF colonel-members and museum officials took the Japanese delegation to see, feel, touch and to sit in the cockpit of the CAF-owned restored Zero — one of the rare survivors of the 10,499 Zeros that were manufactured before and during the war.

PEARL HARBOR



'50 years ago when I flew into Pearl Harbor, I had no idea how the war would end, nor did I dream of how the world would look 50 years later. The Japan of today has built on the sacrifices and mistakes made in the past.'

— Yoshio Shiga, president of the Japanese Zero Fighter Pilots Association

CAF Col. John Kelley, who sponsors the CAF Zero, noted that the restored fighter, which was recovered in the Solomon Islands, "withstood many, many battles, and lived to be abandoned in Solomon Island."

"Obviously, it was a noble warrior," Kelley said.

The Zero is "a dream to fly," he said. "It is very docile, very agile, very smooth, very light, very fast.

And "for its day," the Zero was a "very nimble steed to climb into and to go to war," said Kelley, who lives in the Dallas area.

"The Japanese airmen were very distinguished and very capable and very skilled," Kelley said, as were "their successes with the aircraft."

U.S. ace recalls battles, feelings

■ Joe Foss closes four-day symposium sponsored by the American Airpower Heritage Museum.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Joe Foss

Joe Foss, a farm boy from South Dakota, was an ace five times over in World War II combating Japanese fighter pilots.

And despite those raging war years in the Pacific Theater, Foss, now 76, holds no animosity toward his former enemies in the sky.

"No, I don't have hard feelings against the people I'm fighting," Foss said Friday in closing out the American Airpower Heritage Museum's symposium, "Prelude to Pearl Harbor: The Interwar Years," at Midland's Holiday Inn.

In combat, "you are concentrating on what you are doing," said Foss, the U.S. Marine Corps aviator who shot down 26 enemy aircraft, including the fast and nimble Mitsubishi A6M Zero fighter.

Five confirmed aerial victories qualifies a pilot to become an ace.

Foss scored his victories in the pre-war-designed Grumman F4F Wildcat, a carrier-borne fighter.

Today, the flamboyant Foss enjoys the respect of and camaraderie with many of the surviving Allied and Axis combat pilots — especially the aces.

IN THE AUDIENCE were representatives of the Japanese Zero Fighter Pilots Association. Several former Zero pilots, including 71-year-old Sadamu Komachi who flew a support mission in the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, came to the United States to participate in the four-day symposium that ended Friday.

"At that time, we were mad," Foss said of aerial combat. "They were upset at us. We were upset at them."

And in air combat, "You'd go 100 percent," Foss said with exuberance.

"There is no halfway. You go at full-speed or no speed."

And then, "after it's all over" and the pains of war have subsided with time, a fellowship often develops among the former adversaries.

Foss recalled several years ago when 24 Japanese Zero pilots were guests of the American Fighter Aces Association at the American aces' meeting in San Diego, Calif.

"At that famous meeting, one of them said, 'You know, it's a good thing some of us are lousy shots, or none of us would be here,'" Foss said.

AFTER THE WAR, Foss became governor of South Dakota in the 1950s and commissioner of the American Football League in the late 1950s and early 1960s. Currently, he is president of the National Rifle Association and is international chairman of the Campus Crusade for Christ.

Kaname Harada, one of the Zero pilots at the symposium, was flying in the South Pacific at the same time Foss was in combat there.

Foss, who earned the Congressional Medal of Honor and who commanded "Joe's Flying Circus" unit, was shot down four times over land and sea.

"I don't know whether he, Mr. Harada, got me, or I got him," Foss said. "That's gone. That's great if he got me (shot down), or I got him. There's no hard feeling about it."

Foss said he learned the value of control and of keeping a even temper in the boxing ring.

"You never lose your temper when you are in a fight," he said. If the temper goes wild, things really will go awry, he suggested, and the powers of concentration and the survival skills will falter.

FOSS LAUDED HIS "durable" Wildcat fighter which could take much punishment battle damage but which wasn't as fast or as agile as the Zero.

"If it wasn't a good airplane," Foss said of the Wildcat, "I wouldn't be standing here. It's the toughest son-of-a-gun. We had the Japanese beat with firepower and durability with six .50-calibers (machine-guns)."

However, the Zero pilots "had us beaten on speed and maneuverability" and a high rate of climb.

Had he developed Zero combat tactics, Foss said he "would have used strictly a hit-and-run" combat approach. "I would have never, no way, have ever gotten into dogfight with a Wildcat. That thing is dangerous if you get near it."

But some American pilots "didn't like" the Wildcat at landing. The Wildcat has a relatively narrow landing-gear spread. The main gear on the tail-wheeled aircraft retracts into the fuselage between the cockpit and radial engine.

Wildcat critics would say, noted Foss, " 'Oh, boy, that thing is just a horrible airplane to control on the ground.' "

To that, Foss said, "Baloney!"

"THERE IS NO airplane that is a terrible airplane on the ground if you are paying attention to duty," Foss said. "A lot of people, when they land, they figure the deal is over. You had better be thinking about that airplane, or you are going to do a ground loop."

By World War II standards, Foss was an "old man" at 26 when the United States plunged into World War II in December 1941. Before then, he was flying.

"I was dead-set to go (to war)," Foss said. "We here really wanted to get going."

Many of the pilots, particularly the younger fliers, were "gung ho," Foss said. "We didn't have any idea where we were going. We just were full-speed ahead."

Tens of thousands crowd Honolulu for Pearl Harbor ceremonies

HONOLULU (NYT) — On the eve of the 50th anniversary of Japan's surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, this resort and military town was poised to lead the nation in remembering an event that launched a generation of Americans into a war that would reshape the world.

Thousands of residents and tourists — some in baby strollers, some in wheelchairs — lined the streets of Waikiki on Friday to watch a parade of Pearl Harbor survivors pass through the shadow of towering hotel and office buildings, many of which are now owned by Japanese corporations.

Thousands more paid homage to the 2,400 Americans killed in the infamous attack by visiting a memorial to the USS Arizona, the giant battleship that exploded and sank in the opening minutes of the two-hour air raid.

"My feelings are crowded," said 69-year-old John Flanagan. As a young army corporal, he was nearly killed by Japanese machine-gun fire during the raid. His best friend went down aboard the Arizona.

"He's still in it," said Flanagan, as he prepared to visit a memorial that straddles the sunken battleship, where 945 of the ship's crew remain entombed.

Flanagan planned to visit a shrine listing the names of the 1,177 men who died aboard the Arizona. "I'll just look at the name," Flanagan said of his lost friend, "and remember that he's there."

Flanagan, who lives near San Diego, is one of about 40,000 visitors who have descended upon Honolulu to mark the anniversary, to learn about the historic attack or to pay tribute to those who lost their lives in the raid.

The anniversary is also being marked here with seminars and discussions on the current state of U.S.-Japan relations.

Fearful that the event could incite anti-Japanese sentiment, the Hawaii Chapter of the Asian American Journalists Association published a brochure counseling the 1,200 journalists here to cover the anniversary to do so "in a manner that does not inflame passions or drive a wedge of hate between peoples and nations."

Pearl Harbor memorabilia is everywhere here. At the Arizona Memorial Museum book shop, crowds jammed cash registers to plunk down anywhere from $1.50 for a commemorative Arizona bookmark to $30 for a Pearl Harbor golf shirt.

Douglas Boyer said sales of commemorative patches, key chains, books and the like have tripled in his store, "The Military Shop of Hawaii."

Elsewhere across the nation, millions of Americans will pause to remember the attack from closer to home.

"Although we may not be with our servicemen . . . we will be — in our prayers," stated a message attached to a small wreath sent to the Arizona shrine by Post 2004 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Ladies Auxiliary of Chicago.

Live nationwide television coverage is scheduled for services and ceremonies today.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church presents musical story

"Angels Aware!" a musical story of why God came to Earth as a baby, will be presented at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday.

This musical, created and written by Kathie Hill and Janet McMahan, will be sang by the second through sixth grade children's choirs of First Presbyterian.

Rebecca Engelstad, children's choir coordinator, will direct the program. Also included in the program will be Christmas carols sung by the preschool, kindergarten and first grade choirs.

The production is free and open to the public. A nursery will be provided. A reception will follow the musical story.

■ Church hosts 'The Song'

Midland's First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley Ave., will present David Clydesdale's production of "The Song" at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The musical, directed by Judy Hayes, will feature the Sanctuary Choir along with the Youth and the Children's Departments. Special lighting effects, full costume dress and colorful props will compliment the production.

Hayes

The public is invited to attend this free presentation.

■ 'O Little Town' cantata shown

Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 800 S. Bentwood St., will present "OLittle Town," a cantata about the first Christmas and the night before, at 7 p.m. Dec. 15.

In addition, the Wilshire Park Children's Choir Ministry will present its Christmas program at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

In this program, the Sonshine Singers, grades four through six, will present "God Came Near." This choir is directed by Angie Huckabee.

Directors for the other choirs are Janie Routh, 3-year-olds choir; Belinda Biddle, 4-year-olds choir; Gay Mobley, 5-year-olds choir; and Judy McPeak, first through third grade choir.

Minister of music is Jerry Lewis. The church's interim pastor, the Rev. A.E. Burns, invites the public to attend.

■ Festival of music program set

The combined children's choirs of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., will present a Festival of Christmas Music at 5 p.m. Sunday.

The program will conclude with the Christmas drama,"A Night for Dancing" by Hal Hopson. Shannon Timmerman will play the part of Mary; Rusty Looney will sing the part of Joseph; and Matthew Parker will play the shepherd boy Matthew, who visits the baby Jesus at the manger.

Members of the Angel Choir, grades kindergarten through first, and the Carol Choir, grades second through third, will play the parts of the angels, shepherds and animals who have come to witness the birth of the Christ child.

A reception hosted by the Administrative Board will follow the presentation. The public is invited to attend.

■ Special events set for Advent

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., has scheduled a series of special events during the Advent season.

The Schola Cantorium and adult handbell choirs will present a program of Christmas music in the church sanctuary at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Selections include Vivaldi's "Gloria," Courtney's "A Musicological Journey Through the Twelve Days of Christmas," "Adeste Fideles" and the quartet from "Amahl and the Night Visitors." The quartet will be sung by Jane Debenport, Rod Haulenbeck, Ron Whittaker and Garth Powell. Steve Spain will be at the organ.

The Schola Cantorum is a community chorus which performs under the auspice of the church. It was organized this fall by its conductor, Ms. Debenport, to give the church choir members an opportunity to sing music not usually included in a Sunday worship service. Singers who are not affiliated with the church are encouraged to join members in rehearsal and concert.

Appearing with the Schola Cantorum will be the Trinity Ringers, the adult handbell choir, who has recently returned from a Christmas music workshop. Several of the workshop pieces will be included in the program.

Soloists for "Gloria" will be Marilyn Covington, Mary Kuntz, Karen Wideman, Sherrill Reed and Ron Whitaker.

The concert is free. Child care will be provided.

Next up at the church is the "Warming of the Tree" Dec. 11 following the church dinner. Reservations are required for dinner only.

The Children's Choir will present a program on "Christmas Around the World," and the Youth Choir will sing a collection of Christmas anthems. The Children's Handbell Choir will also perform.

" 'The Warming denotes the giving of warm things as part of Trinity's Outreach to St. Andrews Mission," said a release from the church.

Those bringing a gift of socks, mittens, gloves, caps, blankets or other items are asked to wrap the items in clear plastic and label for size, age and sex of the recipient.

A chili supper and caroling party is planned for Dec. 13. Adults will be caroling at the homes of church members unable to get out at night. Reservations are required for supper and child care. Call the church office, 682-2514.

All Advent programs will culminate in two worship services Christmas Eve. A 7:30 p.m. service designed for families will feature carols and candlelighting. Childcare will be provided for the service. Then, at 11:30 p.m., a worship service of communion and candlelighting is planned. Organist Steve Spain will present an organ recital beginning at 11 p.m.

Visitors are invited to all activities including Sunday's Sunday School Hour from 9:30 to 10:30 when the Rev. Bill Schlesinger will tell about his Project Vida ministry to the poor of Central El Paso.

■ Church presents Advent series

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., will continue its series of Advent Vespers Wednesday with the evening prayer service beginning at 7 p.m.

The Service of Light will be used to begin this service which will last around 30 minutes.

A nursery will be provided during the service. A light supper is served in the Fellowship Center between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. for a nominal amount.

For more information about these services or other church programs call the church's minister, the Rev. Ronald Meyer, or the church office, 694-1373.

■ Annual Christmas concert set

The Celebration! Handbell Choir of Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., will present its annual Christmas concert at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 15 in the sanctuary.

The choir, directed by Jan Mouton, will perform traditional carols and popular seasonal pieces by various composers.

The public is invited to attend this free concert. Child care will be provided. A reception will follow the performance.

■ Christmas Sunday events set

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., is preparing its sanctuary for Christmas Sunday.

Activities will take place from 4 to 5:30 p.m. A soup supper will follow. Those attending the supper are asked to bring vegetables to add to the Hobo Stew.

All those interested in participating are invited to attend.

■ Noontime recitals presented

LUBBOCK — The Music Department of First United Methodist Church, downtown, is hosting its seventh annual Noontime Advent Organ Recitals presenting "The Music of Christmas."

Tuesday's concert features Jan Wilson, the church's guest artist-in-residence from Cambridge, England. Randy Stevens will be the organist Dec. 17.

The recitals will be held at 12:05 to 12:35 p.m. in the church sanctuary. A light lunch will be available in Memorial Hall immediately following. Cost of the lunch is $3. The concerts are free.

Parking is available in the church lot, 13th and Avenue N.

■ Morris to speak on Baha'i

David Morris will speak on the Baha'i Faith and its teachir gs that touch on current world events at 7 p.m. today at 3912 Roosevelt.

Morris will draw upon his experiences as a teacher, counseling psychologist, businessman and economic consultant to two governments. His talk will include the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union and the economic development now occurring in Third World countries.

Morris and his wife, Marta, a Belize Indian and successful artist in her native traditions, have lived in British Hondorus, Micronesia and Guyana.

Now living in Roby, Morris is a published author. In addition, he serves as chairman of the Fisher County Economic Development Commission and as such addressed the recent state convention of the Texas Municipal League, Fort Worth. Morris serves on the Robby Independent School District's Board of Trustees. Mrs. Morris is the volunteer executive director of the Fisher County Food Pantry and Clothes Closet.

The public is invited to hear Morris talk of his experiences and of the influence his belonging to the Baha'i Faith has had in his life. For more information call 697-4903 or 520-5809.

■ Talk gets attention

Barb Oliver was the guest speaker at the Midland Seventh-Day Adventist Church Saturday.

Ms. Oliver, Sabbath School director of the Texas Conference of Seventh-Day Adventist, was in Midland to share her impressions, experiences and slides of her trip to hold training seminars in Russia. At the invitation of the Soviet government, a team of four women from Texas gave seminars in Moscow, Rostov and other Russian cities. The focus of the seminars was how to teach children in a religious setting. The seminars were attended by delegates from each area and some representatives from the government school system.

Many non-delegates attended, creating a "standing room only" situation, said a release from the Midland church.

Religious pictures and patterns were part of the materials provided for the delegates who will themselves train others. Also provided were copies of Children's Bibles in Russian, which included pictures on every other page.

In 1989, the Soviet government made available the abandoned shell of a two-story building to be used as a seminary. The rebuilding was done by groups of volunteer workers coming in from various parts of the country and working in two-week shifts. The workers accomplished the project using only hand tools in 18 months. A building to house a printing press will be completed in 1992. the first printing will be an order of Russian Bibles for the International Bible Society.

Ms. Oliver and her team are planning a trip to the Ukraine in 1992.

■ Church holds revival

Calvary Tabernacle, United Pentecostal Church, is holding a revival today and Sunday and Thursday through Dec. 15.

Special guests will be the Rev. and Mrs. Elrige Anselmi of Church Point, La. They will provide the singing and the preaching for the services.

For more information including service times call 520-2902.

■ Program dates set

Macedona Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver St., is planning its annual "M" Night Program for 6 p.m. Sunday.

The featured speaker will be Alma Marshall, who is employed with the Midland Independent School District as coordinator of non-certified personnel.

Theme for the Motivation Night will be "The Value of Being Trained."

■ Friends Day planned

Friends Day is planned for Sunday, at Greenwood Church of Christ.

A Potluck Lunch, followed by a community sing at 2 p.m., will be held after the morning service. The evening worship service will be held at 3:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Clyde Smith.

■ Members honored

A brunch honoring new and prospective members of All Women of the Church at St. Mark's United Methodist Church is set for 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Dec. 14 at 2100 Neely Ave.

In addition, St. Mark's United Methodist Women are selling pecans again this year for $4.50 per pound.

Delivery is available for 25 pounds or more. Those interested are asked to call 684-4304 or St. Mark's UMC office, 683-3339.

■ Workshop to begin

A Step Study Workshop based on the workbook "The Twelve Steps: A Spiritual Journey" begins Thursday, Jan. 2, at 312 E. Illinois Ave. Hours are 7 to 9 p.m.

The workshop is a working guide for adult children from addictive and other dysfunctional families which is based on biblical teachings, said a release from Sue Payne.

Small groups will form after Jan. 24. Prior to that time, the workshop will cover an introduction to the 12 Steps and the first several steps.

New mammoth find intrigues scientists

WACO (AP) — Excavators last year were ready to close a site in Central Texas where the bones of prehistoric elephants had been found in recent years.

The scientists from Baylor University thought their students and local volunteers had already discovered all they could about a nursery herd of female and young mammoths that perished about 28,000 years ago in some natural disaster near the ancient Bosque River.

But more pieces of one of McLennan County's oldest puzzles have been discovered.

Three more definite skeletons have been found since the bones of 15 mammoths were removed, and more sites seem to exist deeper into the bank of the gulch where crews have been excavating on and off for more than a decade.

Calvin Smith, director of the museum studies program at Baylor University and of the Strecker Museum, said indications show there are at least two more mammoths to be dug up.

Smith said elaborate tests to make certain that the new animals are from the same disaster haven't been completed. Although the newest discoveries are at a slightly higher level than the earlier finds, Smith said he is almost sure they belong to the same group.

"You have maybe 25 sites in the United States with man associated — some sort of manmade scavenging or killing process. This site was a natural event," Smith said. "This then becomes a model — an ideal place to study as it happened naturally and compare it to what man was going to do later on."

Two Texas names surface on list for commerce, transportation posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of a Texas senator and a Houston energy executive are among those being mentioned on the short list of candidates to fill two vacancies in President Bush's cabinet.

Wendy Lee Gramm and Kenneth Lay are contenders to replace outgoing Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner and Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, said administration and congressional sources who spoke on condition of anonymity Friday.

Mrs. Gramm, the wife of Republican Sen. Phil Gramm and the head of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, is among those in line to replace Skinner, who was tapped Thursday by Bush to become White House chief of staff.

Lay, the chairman and chief executive officer of Enron Corp., is a contender to replace Mosbacher, a fellow Texan who is leaving to become general chairman of Bush's re-election campaign.

Cities, counties get record tax rebates

AUSTIN (AP) — The nearly 1,000 Texas cities and counties that collect a sales tax received a record $1.4 billion in 1991, a 10 percent increase over the previous year, Comptroller John Sharp reported Friday.

Shoppers pay local sales taxes of up to 2 percent along with the state's 6¼ percent levy. Merchants send that money to the comptroller, who rebates the local share to those governmental bodies.

December's payments to 883 cities totaled $80.2 million, for a year-end total of $1.2 billion. Sharp said that was a 9 percent increase from $1.1 billion returned to cities last year.

Payments of $9.4 million to 106 counties brought 1991 payments to $138.4 million, a 17 percent jump over last year's total of about $118 million.

Sales taxes also are rebated to metropolitan transit programs and some hospital districts.

Sharp said the sales tax levy has been an increasingly popular financing method for local governments.

"In 1968, when 280 Texas cities first started collecting a local sales tax, they received $48 million in rebates for the year," he said.

Skinner sends signals of different style

CHICAGO (NYT) — Samuel K. Skinner, who will take over as the new White House chief of staff this month, flew to Chicago from Washington to give a luncheon speech. By commercial airline. In coach class.

The no-frills travel was only one of several signals Skinner sent Friday that he planned to chart a different style, political agenda and perhaps a different staff at the White House than John H. Sununu, whose manner, imperial tastes and economic and political judgments all led this week to his resignation.

Until the White House restricted Sununu's travel this year, he often used Air Force planes for business and personal trips.

In an interview on the way to Chicago and in a speech to the Illinois Manufacturers Association, Skinner made clear that he intended to make the economy and domestic policy the focus of White House attention, and to help President Bush overcome Democratic criticism that he has neglected the homefront to concentrate on foreign policy issues.

"The baton has been passed," Skinner said, from Bush's foreign-policy and military advisers to himself and other domestic advisers, who will work to make the health of the U.S. economy match the new world order that the White House says is developing in the aftermath of the cold war.

Skinner said he had a short list of priorities to address upon taking over from Sununu on Dec. 16.

"The economy, the economy, the economy. And then behind that, the economy and domestic policy, because they've got to work together," he said.

Skinner, who professed in an interview to be "kind of awed" and nervous about becoming Bush's chief aide, said he expected to make few changes in Sununu's staff or operations — for at least two weeks.

But, in a clear sign that he intends to make the staff operation his own, Skinner said he had asked John Croisant, a friend who works as head of human relations at RJR Nabisco, to review Sununu's operation.

Croisant, who was a customer of Skinner when he worked as a salesman for IBM in the 1970s, worked closely with Skinner when he became transportation secretary. Virtually every key appointment at the department was vetted by the two men.

Bush "has given me a mandate to move as fast as I can," and the two men met early Friday morning to discuss the economy, Skinner said. But first, he continued, "I want to make sure I know how the operation works now, in detail, and who the players are."

Not until Sununu's staff has been debriefed for its views on the office will any reshuffling take place, he said.

He reported that Bush, who was insisting two weeks ago that any new economic stimulants could wait until his State of the Union Message in late January, was now "singularly focused" on economic policy and would take regular and frequent steps to help speed a recovery.

Asked later to explain his and Bush's apparent conversion to believers in economic stimulus, Skinner said that politics had nothing to do with it.

"What obviously happened is that the economy is changing somewhat," he said, adding that the administration had seen an "almost overnight" drop in consumer confidence that it now believed warranted stronger action.

Some of Skinner's remarks appeared to reflect his reputation as a team player who, in this case, was on the hustings pitching the administration's most recent version of its political message on the economy.

But Skinner is also an acute politician, schooled in Chicago-style electioneering, who could not have helped but know that he would be closely watched in his debut for signs of change at the White House. Although Skinner took pains at every stop in Friday's five-hour blitz of Chicago to lavish praise on Sununu, his words and actions nevertheless were billboards that sometimes seemed to shout "new and improved."

Self-effacing and indefatigably upbeat, Skinner worked the friendly crowd in Chicago, his hometown, with abandon. In his speech, a news conference, and a stop to christen a new federal office, he pumped strangers' hands, cracked jokes and handed out praise like political buttons."

HIV tests increase throughout nation

NEW YORK (NYT) — The number of people being tested for the HIV virus has increased almost 60 percent in New York City and has risen sharply throughout the nation in the month since Earvin (Magic) Johnson announced that he was infected with the virus.

In New York, the increase has strained the resources of the city Health Department, which said it can now take up to seven weeks to get an appointment for a test at the city's counseling and testing centers. Before Johnson's announcement on Nov. 7, most centers provided tests without an appointment or had a maximum wait of two weeks.

Officials of the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said Friday that while no statistics have been compiled, a random survey of state health departments nationwide has shown an equally sharp increase in the number of people seeking tests for the HIV virus, which causes AIDS.

"It's all anecdotal at this point, but in some cities we are hearing of increases as large as 10 times the number of tests previously requested," said Fred Kroger, director of AIDS education and information programs for the centers.

Kroger attributed the rise in HIV testing to people who are not now engaged in risky sexual behavior, but are worried about behavior of 10 or 15 years ago.

Officials at the Centers for Disease Control said that calls to its toll-free AIDS telephone line, which provides counseling and testing referrals, have increased to 25,000 a day, compared with 3,000 to 5,000 calls a day before the country learned of Johnson's condition.

The telephone line received 50,000 calls in the first seven hours after Johnson's news conference.

The announcement by Johnson, one of the most popular and accomplished players in basketball, stunned the nation and drove home the message that heterosexuals are in danger of getting AIDS.

While an immediate surge in people seeking HIV testing was expected, many experts said they were surprised that the demand was still so great four weeks after Johnson's announcement.

City and national health spokesmen said that the longer waiting period imposed no greater risk to the public health than the disease itself.

"If some people are HIV positive and engage in behavior that puts others at risk, there is a health problem," Kroger said. "But there's nothing inherent in the delay that is good or bad."

The New York City Health Department said that the number of blood samples sent to its processing laboratory for HIV testing has risen from 750 a day to about 1,200, an increase of 58 percent.

Employers cut 240,000 Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employers cut nearly a quarter-million jobs last month, the government reported Friday, and the Federal Reserve quickly signaled it was lowering a key interest rate in yet another attempt to revive the economy.

November's unemployment rate held at 6.8 percent, but analysts said that was largely due to huge numbers of Americans abandoning the job hunt, which drops them from the government's count.

While the jobless rate remained at October's level, a separate Labor Department survey showed that payrolls tumbled by 241,000 jobs, the sharpest one-month plunge since spring, when recession-induced layoffs drained 258,000 jobs off American payrolls in both February and March.

So bleak were the numbers that the Federal Reserve moved within hours to lower a key interest rate in an effort to spur the straggling economy, analysts said.

The Fed apparently lowered the federal funds rate, the rate banks charge each other for overnight loans, a quarter point, to 4.5 percent, economists said. The central bank does not routinely announce cuts in the federal funds rate.

It would mark the 14th cut in that rate since the recession started nearly a year and a half ago.

Smith weeps during uncle's testimony

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Kennedy Smith wept Friday as his uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, testified at his trial, praising their family's closeness and denying he heard screams on the night a woman says she was raped.

Kennedy's son Patrick, who took the stand after his father, said he was on the beach the night the woman claims she was raped at the Kennedy family estate. He said he saw the woman in the house with Smith and was told she was threatening to call police.

"In retrospect, perhaps I should have talked to somebody," he said. "If I knew then what I know now."

Patrick Kennedy, 24, a Rhode Island legislator, said he was necking on the beach with a woman he met at the same bar where Smith met his accuser. He said he saw Smith on the beach fully clothed and alone heading up a stairwell.

The woman, who testified earlier, said Smith had been swimming and raced up the stairwell, wrestled her to the ground and raped her.

Patrick Kennedy said Smith, his cousin, later told him, "This friend of mine's really strange. She's threatened to call the police ..."

He said he didn't ask why police might be summoned. He said Smith told him the next day he'd had sex with the woman without a condom, and quoted him as saying, "Thank God, I pulled out."

"I interpreted it to mean he did not ejaculate," he said.

A scientific expert testified earlier that DNA tests showed Smith's semen was found in the woman's body.

When an investigation was launched two days later, Patrick Kennedy said Smith called him and said, "It sounds like a setup."

The defense asked Patrick Kennedy no questions.

The 31-year-old Smith, who had shown no emotion during his trial, had tears streaming down his face as Edward Kennedy finished a brief witness-stand appearance by recalling Smith's late father as "next to a brother to me."

The Massachusetts Democrat also appeared near tears as he spoke of the family's tragic history and the death of Stephen Smith in August 1990. The comments were elicited by Smith's lawyer, Roy Black, after the prosecutor questioned the senator about the Easter weekend outing that led to the rape charges.

Smith's accuser testified Thursday that she futilely screamed for help as she lay on the Kennedy lawn while Smith held her down and raped her under the light of a full moon. She said she had seen Kennedy on the estate grounds minutes before and hoped he would rush to her aid.

But he said he never saw her at the estate and, asleep with the windows open, heard nothing.

"Did you hear anything at all that night at the Kennedy estate?" asked prosecutor Moira Lasch.

"No, I did not," Kennedy said firmly.

"Did you hear any screams?" she asked.

"No, I did not," he replied.

The senator acknowledged he suggested his son and nephew go out with him just before midnight on March 29 and said he now regrets the trip to a Palm Beach nightclub.

"I wish I'd gone for a long walk on the beach instead but we went to Au Bar," he said bitterly.

He said the only reason he suggested going out was that there had been an emotional conversation with family members who had not been together since Stephen Smith's death and "I couldn't sleep."

"A whole range of memories came in an overwhelming wave of emotion," he said. "I couldn't possibly sleep and I saw my nephew Will and Patrick go by the glass windows past the patio. I went to the door and called out. ... I needed to talk to Patrick or Will."

Smith is charged with sexual battery and battery on a Florida woman he met that night at Au Bar. If convicted, he could be sentenced to 4½ years.

Kennedy said he met the woman for "for a very brief introduction" when Smith brought her over to meet him at the nightclub. "It lasted maybe 10 seconds" and he made no judgment on whether she was intoxicated.

He said he never saw the woman again and left the nightclub without Smith.

Smith was cheerful as his uncle was called to testify by the state, and gave him a small wave.

But toward the end of Kennedy's testimony, Smith was overcome by tears as his uncle offered a testimonial to Smith's late father.

Tears streamed down Smith's face. One of his lawyers leaned over to ask if he was all right and he shook his head yes.

Alzado update

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Cancer-stricken Lyle Alzado was too sick to make a court appearance Friday on an allegation that the former football great assaulted a deputy marshal, his attorney said.

Alzado, 42, has been "quite ill recently" and "is in no condition to come to court," said attorney Robert Shapiro, who obtained a postponement of the Municipal Court arraignment hearing to Jan. 21.

"He has good days and bad days, but he's not out of the woods," Shapiro said.

Big day finally here

Lee-Permian battle kicks off at 2 p.m.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Midland Lee's football Rebels will go bear hunting with a short stick here at 2 p.m. today, seeking a Fourth Street miracle at Jones Stadium against the state's No. 1 ranked football power — Odessa Permian.

Permian has already set the tone for this Class 5A Small School quarterfinal game with a 33-0 victory over Lee back in October and a sound 25-7 thrashing of previous No. 1 ranked Arlington Lamar in the region playoffs last week.

There is no question that Lee has an Everest-like mountain to climb, but the spiked boots are on. It's a challenge Lee has been pointing to. Certainly, if Lee were to pull off this reversal, it would be the greatest victory in the school's history — without question.

Midland Lee coach Earl Miller doesn't know if it's possible for any team to beat Permian, but he is glad for the second chance.

"You take what they did to the No. 1 team in the state last week and I don't know what that means for us," Miller said. "We didn't do a very good job against them the first time. I know this is going to be a real chore.

"But I do know that it has been a long time (1984) since we've been this far and a lot of bright things have happened for this team. Maybe our kids can rise to the occasion if they can get their feet back under them after a 22-hour ordeal of playing Sherman in Wichita Falls last weekend. We didn't have much in our favor last week with the long trip, playing on turf and extreme cold playing conditions, but the kids handled it well."

Despite Permian's easy walk over the Rebels in the first meeting, Mojo coach Tam Hollingshead is preparing his troops for a tough afternoon.

"You always have concern with some kind of letdown after you've already beaten a team, but we are visiting with our kids this week about that," Hollingshead said. "We're telling them that Lee is vastly improved over the first game and their record shows it.

"Lee is healthy now and their defense looks much quicker to us now than they did when we played the first time. Lee is playing terrific defense again. They won't beat themselves.

"We've got to be realistic about this game. It could go four quarters and you better expect it. When you get to Week 14 with only eight teams left in the state, they're all good or they wouldn't be here. You usually see a tight game at this point in the season."

enough, Steve Green's Chaparrals have also had to deal with the flu this week. Not to mention competing with the Midland Lee-Odessa Permian state quarterfinal football game.

Five players missed practice Wednesday. Starting post Fabian Mina, guard Shawn Morris and reserves Danny Pearson and Dani Mizrahi were all down with the bug at mid-week. A fifth, post Morris Conley, was suffering from a swollen nose after suffering a near break in last Saturday's win over Ranger.

The absence of more than a third of the team, Green said, made it difficult to hold routine practices this week at Chap Center.

"We can't practice," Green said at mid-week. "That's what's bothering me. We're having to make up new drills, and having to involve Coach Walker and Coach Dickey just to run the drills. They're too sick to play or practice."

Green and Dickey were also down with the flu during last weekend's Odessa Taco Villa Classic. Fortunately, for all concerned with MC, all players and coaches were back at practice by Thursday with the exception of Charles Gentry.

While not sick, Green said of Gentry "My official comment on Charles Gentry is that he needs to make a decision on what he wants to do," con-

Memphis shakes the Devils

LUBBOCK – And then there was one in Region I.

The Rankin Red Devils, looking to clear the quarterfinal hurdle that tripped them up a year ago, stumbled instead and fell 15-3 to Memphis in a Class A state quarterfinal game here at Lowery Field Friday night.

The Cyclones stymied the offense of the fourth-ranked Red Devils, holding Rankin to just 63 net yards.

"I definitely under-estimated their (Cyclones) defense," said Rankin coach Troy Kennedy, whose team dropped out of the race for a state title with a 10-2 record.

The Cyclones, meanwhile, used their first-ever quarterfinal game to move on to a berth in the state semifinals. Memphis, 12-1, will represent Region I and play Rotan, a Friday victor over No. 1 Valley Mills, next week.

"We knew this game would be tough because Rankin has a great defense," Memphis coach Matt Monzingo said. "We felt we couldn't make many mistakes and we made a bunch.

"But our defense really rose to the occasion."

The Cyclones overcame nine penalties for 95 yards, three lost fumbles and an interception to hold Rankin to its lowest point total since last year's quarterfinal loss to Munday (28-0).

They did it behind a running game that wouldn't be stopped.

Memphis tailback Brian Brown rushed 16 times for a game-best 158 yards as the Cyclones racked up 310 total yards on the ground against a Rankin team that posted seven shutouts during the season.

"We thought they had a great defense, but we just wore them down. They couldn't stop our running game," Brown said.

Memphis scored both its touchdowns on the first plays of a quarter.

Quarterback Jay Runnels carted one in from three yards out to start the second quarter. And Brown scored on a four-yard

Midland High's Andre Gill (50) fights for possession of the ball against Fort Worth Paschal's Sean Opitz during Tall City Classic action Friday night at Chaparral Center.

As if this weekend needed any more hype, the Tall City Classic basketball tournament at Chaparral Center kicked off its two-day event Friday that will end at 8:30 p.m. today with a meeting between Midland High and Midland Lee.

What more could a sports fan ask for in the course of a weekend with Lee meeting Odessa Permian in a quarterfinal Class 5A football playoff game at 2 p.m. in Lubbock, Lee and MHS tangling in basketball and the Midland College Chaparrals taking on Reggie Franklin's New Mexico Military Institute squad tonight in Roswell, N.M.

However, the MHS and Lee basketballers took different roads at the Chap Friday night with MHS running and gunning past Fort Worth Paschal 95-61 and Lee falling to a dead-eye shooting Arlington Martin, 76-69.

The Bulldogs ended a two-game losing streak to climb to 4-3 for the season while Lee fell to 4-2.

MHS played 15 players and 13 of them scored against Paschal. Starter Mike Melzer scored 15 points, playing about one-half of the game while starter Brian Rounding had 11. But MHS also got 10 points each from Nate Branson and Kirk French off the bench.

"I think I played everyone in the first quarter," noted MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "You need a game like this every once in awhile. These kids come out and work hard and don't always get a chance to play. This was an opportunity for them to get some major playing time.

"I think we are getting better. I was beginning to see it in a one-point loss at Lubbock Monterey Tuesday. This is a fun bunch to coach."

CHAPS: Defense excels for MC

(From 1C)

cerning his future at MC.

As for tonight's Western Junior College Athletic Conference opener in Roswell, Green goes into the game with a 6-0 record against the Bronchos. All six victories came during Green's three seasons as head coach at Howard College. Head-to-head, Green has a 5-1 record against Franklin.

And then there's this: Midland has won 12 consecutive games against the Military, and has taken 28 of the 32 contests over the 16 year span of the series.

The game begins at 8 p.m. MST, 9 p.m. Midland time. KCRS (550 AM) will provide play-by-play.

Green said tonight's game means nothing more than a conference opener to him. To the first year Midland coach, there is no significance in the fact that Franklin will be coaching against his old team.

"It doesn't mean anything to me if it's put on that level," Green said.

His past record against the Military, Green said, doesn't amount to much when it comes to this year's Bronchos, 5-6 on the season thusfar.

"I think this will be the most difficult attempt (at beating them) since I've been in the conference," Green said. "Reggie has the best players over their they've had in four years.

NMMI, in fact, did open the '91-'92 conference season Thursday with a 113-97 win over Frank Phillips.

"I've got a great record against NMMI. But so do the Top 4 teams in the conference in the last four years."

Circumstances surrounding the date and site for the game is why Green hopes to have the Chaps at the top of their game at tip-off time, 9 p.m. Midland time.

"I'm concerned because it's over there," Green said. "It's going to be early in the season. New Mexico Military is still going to have its head up."

Green said going into conference play, the Chaps are playing their best defense of the season, evidenced in last Saturday's game against Ranger.

"We played about as good as we could defensively the other night. Our guys just got down and played. They were sharp. Ranger had trouble passing the ball to anybody. And they were turning it over on five-second calls.

"The other end is another story, though. Our field goal percentage is not that high and we're turning the ball over too much. We don't complete enough plays."

MC is averaging 104.6 points per game, a figure bolstered after the Chaps scored 115 points in two of the three games in the Odessa tournament. Defensively, MC is yielding 90.6 ppg.

Sophomore point guard Chris McKinney, with a 20.7 ppg scoring average, is one of the Top 5 scorers in the league, and leads a group of six Chaparrals in double figure scoring.

Freshman Kelon Haynie, averaging 12.6 ppg, is the Chaps' statistical leader in assists (54), steals (28), turnovers (45) and blocks (12).

Other conference games tonight have Frank Phillips at South Plains, Howard hosting Clarendon, Western Texas at Odessa, and New Mexico Junior College idle.

UT search officially in gear

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texas has begun its search for a football coach, Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Friday.

Dodds said he has six or seven college coaches in mind to succeed David McWilliams, who stepped down after sustaining three losing seasons in five years on the job.

But Dodds refused to reveal their names.

He said potential candidates must "have a gut burn to win a national championship."

Texas' last national championship came under Darrell Royal in 1969.

Dodds met for several hours with an advisory committee of more than 70 people that included school officials, well-heeled alumni, football players, Royal and former Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell.

Dodds said he wanted to hire a new coach as soon as possible, but said there was no timetable.

The advisory committee wants a coach that has a winning attitude, who can relate to players and Texas traditions, and would emphasize academic standards, Dodds told reporters after the session.

When asked if Texas' image of not recruiting hard for minorities would be addressed, Dodds said, "It's a topic that the University of Texas and the athletic department, and every university and every athletic department in America has to address, and I think that we all need to do a better job with it."

Dodds also said that salary negotiations would not be a problem. "I don't worry about the salary or package side ... but we don't to be grotesque."

News reports around the state have focused on Miami's Dennis Erickson, John Mackovic of Illinois, Dennis Green of Stanford, Bobbie Ross of Georgia Tech, Kentucky's Bill Curry and Dick Sheridan of North Carolina State.

Two defensive coordinators in the NFL — Dave Wannstedt of the Dallas Cowboys and Wade Phillips of the Denver Broncos — also reportedly said they would consider talking to Dodds about the Longhorn vacancy.

In other developments Friday:

■ The Austin American-Statesman reported that Atlanta Falcons assistant head coach June Jones said he would be interested in talking to Texas about the job. Jones, former offensive coordinator with the Houston Oilers, said he hadn't been contacted by the university. He was approached by some Longhorn alumni five years ago, after Texas fired coach Fred Akers.

■ The Dallas Morning News, quoting "several persons close to the athletic department," said UT President William Cunningham decided to replace McWilliams last week. The newspaper said it was told that no staff changes McWilliams could have offered would have saved his job.

Oh yeah, there's basketball today

It can probably go without saying that today is a rather important day in history. Pearl Harbor Day. Midland College-New Mexico Military Institute basketball. And, oh yeah, there is the matter of a rather important football game a few people may be interested in seeing up in Lubbock.

"Hey, I'd be going to Lee-Permian if I could," Midland College basketball coach Steve Green said Friday.

When the Western Junior College Athletic Conference schedule makers sat down to map out this year's basketball matchups, it's doubtful they gave any thought to the possibility that this may be Lee-Permian weekend.

If you enjoy both high school football and JUCO hoops, you've got a problem. Maybe.

"Lubbock's on the way," Green noted, hinting that people on their way to the Chap game in Roswell, N.M., may want to stop off and catch a little of the Lee-Permian game.

Don't expect to see quite as large a caravan on the way to Roswell as will be headed to the Texas Tech campus.

It's understandable if basketball is not foremost on the brains of sports fans today. But if it's on the mind at all, allow me to submit a few paragraphs for your consideration pertaining to the first-half of the Midland College basketball season ...

■ While we're on the subject of bad-timing (ala a basketball column on the biggest football day of the year) the "Timex Takes a Licking and Stops Ticking Award" goes to whomever is responsible for the poor planning at the Odessa Taco Villa Classic. The three-day tournament began on Thanksgiving Day and ended Saturday when No. 2 Permian hosted No. 1 Arlington Lamar. A textbook case of bad planning. Makes the Chap Classic look like its held on the most opportune weekend of the year.

■ "The John Sununu So-Sorry-To-See-You-Go Award" goes to the fans of Connors State, also at the Odessa tournament. Taunting the MC cheerleaders when they slipped during a performance, as well as some female types cursing officials. Stay in Oklahoma, please.

■ Most difficult MC loss of the fall: Connors 80, MC 79. One of those last-second losses where ball can't find net in time.

■ Most satisfying victory. MC 92, San Jacinto 89. Beating the Ravens on their home floor — by any team — is as unlikely an event as a road victory by the Sacramento Kings. San Jac last lost a home game in 1989. Prior to that, they had 181 on their own floor.

■ Excuse me, but haven't I seen you somewhere before? MC has played three games this season with former Midland College players on the roster. Domasque Moore, Angelina's post man, shoveled in 27 points against MC at the Chap Classic, and proved he does belong on a starting lineup even though he wasn't given that chance at MC. ... Former Lee Rebel Darren Dortch is on the Ranger College roster and, like Moore, was cut from the Chaps last season. ... And playing for Panola College at the Odessa tourney last week, former MC players Larry Thomas and Tom "Tonto" Brown.

run to start the fourth period.

Rankin, thwarted on fourth-and-short plays inside the Memphis six-yard line in both the second and third quarters, managed a 35-yard field goal by quarterback Kirk Kennedy on the final play of the first half to close the gap to 7-3.

Rankin got a break deep into the third quarter when a snap sailed over the head of the Memphis punter and was downed at the Cyclones' nine-yard line.

But Rankin disdained a short field-goal attempt on fourth-and-goal from the five. Kennedy was sacked for a nine-yard loss on fourth down, and Memphis turned the tables in a hurry.

The Cyclones pushed the ball 91 yards in four plays, including runs of 19 and 58 yards by Brown, and they upped the advantage to 13-3 on the first play of the fourth quarter when Brown loped in on a four-yard option play.

"We didn't go for the field goal because we felt we needed to do something big," Coach Kennedy said. "But when you don't get that big play then your defense has a tendency to get down and the other team's offense gets a lift.

"I should have kicked it and narrowed the gap, but I felt like we needed six points right then."

Instead the Red Devils found themselves pinned at their own three-yard line when Kirk Kenney fielded the kickoff deep and with a knee touching the turf. Four plays later Memphis defender Finis Barke batted Ramon Garcia's punt back out of the end zone for a safety – and a 15-3 lead – with just under 10 minutes to play.

Rankin managed its only two first downs of the second half after that, but the Cyclones' 40-yard line was as deep as the Red Devils could get against the Memphis defense.

"The option was the biggest part of their game, and getting the fullback and the quarterback down was the best way we knew how to stop them," Memphis defensive end Steve Tippett said.

"I think we came into this game knowing we could beat the Red Devils and we did."

Rankin fullback Kevin Braden gained just 39 yards on 19 carries to lead the offense. Kennedy, who was 0-for-7 passing, netted 12 yards.

Marshall crushes Madison

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Anthony Holmes ran for 212 yards and scored two touchdowns and Carlos Reza added three scores Friday night, leading San Antonio Marshall to a 42-0 thrashing of San Antonio Madison in the Class 5A Division II quarterfinals.

The victory earned Marshall (12-2) the Region IV championship and a berth in next week's state semifinals against the winner of Saturday's Aldine-Fort Bend Willowridge game. Madison ended its season at 10-4.

Reza, who carried 20 times for 100 yards, scored the Rams' first touchdown on a 1-yard plunge with 5:46 remaining in the first quarter.

The Rams then raced to a 21-0 halftime lead, including Holmes' 8-yard scoring run and a 6-yard touchdown pass from Marc Saldana to Holmes.

Todd Siebert ran a punt back 52 yards for a touchdown early in the third quarter, and Reza added two more touchdowns to complete the scoring.

Madison, whose offense was stifled throughout the game, allowed Marshall 345 yards, including 339 rushing.

points to lead the Panthers, but they wilted under a 58-point MHS second half barrage that looked like a World War II strafing run.

In Lee's loss to Martin, the Rebels knocked down 10 three-point shots, but couldn't make a last ditch run stand up. Lee trailed in the game by as many as 12 points, but cut the Warrior lead to five points with a minute left on treys by Jeremy Skaggs and David Wilson.

"Martin is a good team, but we just didn't execute," Lee coach Jon House said. "Martin attacked our weak side very well and you can't give up 12-footers all night and expect to win. Also, Martin did a good job of taking (Martin) Lattibeaudiere out of the game.

Lattibeaudiere, averaging over 20 points a game, was held to 10 points, two in the second half. Wayne Wilson had 20 points while David Wilson and Skaggs had 14 each. Keenan Henry had 10 points.

Martin got 17 points from Johnny Hunter and 16 from 6-2 sophomore Ben Grieve, who is the son of Texas Ranger GM Tom Grieve. Ryan Hasey had 15 points as the Warriors did damage inside the paint against Lee with those three big guns.

In the tournament opener, Toti Hadavi scored a game high 18 points to lead El Paso Eastwood to a 63-48 victory over Lubbock Coronado.

Coronado got 11 points from Alvin Melton and 10 from Gary Critz, but Eastwood also got 11 points from Toby Hamilton.

Playing for Eastwood is 6-5 junior Gary Brewster, the son of former Midland High standout and UTEP All-America cager Gary Brewster. The senior Brewster is now an assistant coach at UTEP. The younger Brewster scored only two points, but has the makings of being a player.

MHS will take on Martin at 10:45 a.m. today while Lee tangles with Lubbock Coronado at 12:30 p.m. Eastwood and Paschal meet at 9 a.m. to complete the morning session. Three games follow at 5 p.m. with Lee and MHS closing out the Classic at 8:30 p.m.

Dr. J to meet Kareem 1-on-1

N.Y. Times News Service

Saying he hopes to provide fortysomething basketball players with a post-NBA paycheck — and his own sports promotion firm a tidy sum — Julius Erving has revealed final plans for his one-on-one challenge match against Kareem Abdul-Jabbar on Feb. 28 in Atlantic City.

Erving, a promoter/producer of the pay-per-view event, originally hoped to pair Abdul-Jabbar against Wilt Chamberlain.

"I thought Wilt and Kareem would be the ideal matchup, but Wilt was quoted as saying he never wanted to touch another basketball," said Erving on Wednesday, "so I knew I would have to make the sacrifice and prepare myself to win the first time. Hopefully after that, other retired players would be interested and it would be a very dignified thing.

"I think people will be pleasantly surprised that we can still play. Talent doesn't just die. The ability to use it diminishes, but it doesn't disappear in four years. The golfers move on and enjoy the Senior Tour. Tennis players move on to play exhibitions. Basketball players really have nowhere to go, except Europe."

Erving said the payoff would consist of an advance for training purposes, a six-figure guarantee, and a sliding scale based on revenues generated from attendance and pay-per-view subscription.

In light of Magic Johnson's retirement, Erving added that a substantial contribution will be made to Johnson's recently created AIDS Foundation.

The match between Erving, 41, and Abdul-Jabbar, 44, will take place on a regulation half-court, with either a seven- or 15-second shot clock. Each player also will have the option of taking the ball out at the top of the key, on the side or on the baseline.

Laughing, Erving said he planned to begin training on Friday, then added that he hopes to capitalize on his "foot speed, dexterity with handling the ball."

Spurs blue after first home loss

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Blue Edwards made a 15-foot bank shot with 4.7 seconds left and the Utah Jazz beat San Antonio 93-92, the Spurs' first home loss of the season.

David Robinson had 31 points and 17 rebounds for the Spurs, now 8-1 at home. Karl Malone led Utah with 31 points, while Jeff Malone scored 24 and John Stockton added 18.

Utah trailed 92-89 when Karl Malone drew a foul from Robinson and hit two free throws to close the gap to a point with 1:07 to play.

After both teams missed shots, Stockton forced a jump ball with Willie Anderson with 10.9 seconds to go. Stockton controlled the tip and the ball wound up in the hands of Edwards, who had missed all of his previous five shots from the field. Edwards drove the length of the court and his off-balance jumper gave Utah a one-point lead.

Lakers 98, Nets 89

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Sam Perkins scored 18 of his 22 points in the second half, leading the road-weary Los Angeles Lakers over the New Jersey Nets.

The Lakers, losers of three of their four previous games after nine consecutive victories, completed a seven-game, 12-day road trip with a 4-3 record. They return home Sunday against Dallas.

The Lakers allowed no field goals in a six-minute span of the fourth quarter when the outcome was in doubt.

Sam Bowie scored 18 points and Drazen Petrovic 16 for the Nets, while James Worthy joined Perkins with 22 points for the Lakers.

Pacers 126, Bucks 106

INDIANAPOLIS — Kenny Williams tied his career-high with 23 points and the Indiana Pacers outscored the Milwaukee Bucks 30-17 in the second quarter.

Reggie Miller added 19 points and Chuck Person 14 for Indiana.

Fred Roberts led Milwaukee with 20 points and Jeff Grayer had 19 for the Bucks, who are 0-2 under new coach Frank Hamblen.

Celtics 103, Knicks 92

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 12 of his 31 points as the Boston Celtics cracked New York's vaunted defense in a 35-point fourth period, rallying for a victory and extending their regular season winning streak against the Knicks to 21 games in Boston Garden.

Trailing by five points, 73-68, after a cold third period, the Celtics broke away from an 80-80 tie with a 13-4 run and went on to become the first team to score 100 points against the Knicks in seven games.

Pistons 105, Bullets 94

LANDOVER, Md. — Joe Dumars scored 32 points and Dennis Rodman had 21 rebounds as the Detroit Pistons beat Washington, the Bullets' fourth straight loss.

Dumars made nine of 12 field goal attempts and all 14 free throws to help the Pistons snap a two-game losing streak. Isiah Thomas scored 21 and Orlando Woolridge added 17.

Thomas scored nine points in the third quarter to help the Pistons extend a three-point halftime lead to 79-71. It was 62-58 when Thomas made a running jumper and a layup to ignite an 8-2 run that gave Detroit its first 10-point lead.

Bulls 114, Hornets 96

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bulls extended their team record to 14 straight victories Friday night as Michael Jordan scored 19 points and Horace Grant added 18 in an easy win over the Charlotte Hornets.

Jordan also had 10 rebounds and 10 assists.

The loss kept the Hornets winless in 11 road games this season. They never led in the game, which was decided in the first half.

Suns 122, Magic 105

ORLANDO, Fla. — Jeff Hornacek scored 33 points and Andrew Lang had nine of his 17 points in the final period as the Phoenix Suns took control in the second half and downed the Orlando Magic.

The victory was the sixth straight for the Suns, who started the night in fifth place in the Pacific Division.

76ers 105, Trial Blazers 102, OT

PHILADELPHIA — Johnny Dawkins hit a 3-point shot at the overtime buzzer and carried Philadelphia over the Portland Trial Blazers, snapping the 76ers' seven-game losing streak.

Portland's Clyde Drexler had tied the score at 102 on a 3-point shot with five seconds on the clock.

The 76ers took the ball out of bounds with two seconds left and passed to Dawkins, who made the game-winning basket from just outside the 3-point line on the left side of the court.

Hersey Hawkins led Philadelphia with 29 points.

Clippers 102, Nuggets 100 OT

DENVER — Gary Grant scored five points in the final 1:53 of overtime, and Ron Harper made two decisive free throws with 17.2 seconds remaining Friday night as the Los Angeles Clippers beat the Denver Nuggets 102-100.

Olajuwon to return Tuesday

Associated Press

HOUSTON — All-Star center Hakeem Olajuwon will return to the Houston Rockets lineup Tuesday in Portland after being sidelined more than two weeks with an irregular heartbeat.

Olajuwon, who has been on the injured list since Nov. 23, will be at practice Monday and will travel with the team to Portland to play in Tuesday's game against the Trailblazers, the Rockets said Friday.

"Our medical staff has taken every precaution to insure that Hakeem is 100 percent healthy," Rockets General Manager Steve Patterson said. "He has passed every test with flying colors."

Olajuwon, who had hoped to return to the lineup earlier, has passed several medical tests, the last being Friday.

"I'm so happy all the tests showed I was normal," Olajuwon said in a statement. "I didn't know that I was that healthy."

Olajuwon spent several days in the hospital after suffering an episode of atrial fibrillation — an irregular heartbeat — on Nov. 20. He also was put on medication designed to prevent recurrences.

The Rockets said doctors have not determined a cause for Olajuwon's ailment, but they said it may have been the result of a blow he suffered in the Nov. 19 game against New York.

Olajuwon will have missed eight games by the time he returns.

On Thursday, the Rockets lost to the Atlanta Hawks 109-97, Houston's fourth straight loss without Olajuwon and center Larry Smith, who suffered a knee injury.

Ray Perkins shows interest in Gopher job

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Former Alabama coach Ray Perkins said Friday he misses coaching college football and is "very interested" in becoming head coach at the University of Minnesota.

Perkins, who coached the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for nearly four seasons before being fired last year, told KARE-TV in Minneapolis that he planned to visit the Twin Cities within the next two weeks for an interview.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: An old-fashioned attitude toward hard work will affect business in a positive way. Early in 1992, changes in the economy put extra money in your pocket. Patching up a family quarrel will open important new doors. By next spring you know how to obtain the backing of someone who can help your career. Pay special attention to your personal appearance next summer. A once-in-a-lifetime promotional opportunity comes your way.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: catcher Johnny Bench, actress Ellen Burstyn, author Rosemary Rogers, singer Tom Waits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A scholarship or grant could still be possible for a deserving student. Those who excel in math and science get good news. A family gathering is a huge success. Past grievances are forgotten.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Sparkle at a social event and you could get some new business next week. It is vitally important to meet deadlines and keep appointments. Put reminders where you are sure to see them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do nothing that could jeopardize your reputation for reliability. Limit spending to avoid getting in over your head. A weekend adventure could lead to new romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Buy things for your home that express how you want to live. Those looking for traditional furniture could find a real bargain. Wrap holiday gifts and get your cards in the mail.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Being with young people invigorates you. Travel brings good luck as well as fresh inspiration. Do not scrimp on yourself. You work hard and deserve a special treat now and then.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Open your eyes and you will see solid proof of a child's love. A sure-footed friend makes walking or hiking safer. There is plenty of truth to what your mate has to say.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A program designed to strengthen a special skill will add excitement to your weekend. Be the best you can be! Everyone gains from a cooperative effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Deal with a restless mood in a constructive way. Acting on impulse will only bring regrets. Avoid making extravagant promises you cannot keep. Get together with old friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emotions run high today. Depending on your age and marital status, you are in the mood for love or a fight! Sports activity will help you reduce tension and work off your feelings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be modest when others praise you this weekend. A letter-perfect performance wins you widespread admiration. You enjoy giving more than receiving. Be fair to your family and friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Consider a pet when making weekend or holiday plans. Going into business with your mate can be wonderful if you agree to put all work aside on your days off. Be romantic.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get the complete picture before making up your mind. Cutting corners is unthinkable now. Creating a masterpiece will bring lasting fame and fortune. Persevere!

TODAY'S CHILDREN are intellectual, curious and persistent. They never stop asking questions! A wonderful inquiring mind makes these Sagittarians good candidates for a career in journalism or politics. History and political science are apt to be their favorite school subjects. Although these children have many friends, they will confide in only a trusted few. Their spouse is usually their best friend.

Tiny Tim draws audience that matches his moniker

ST. JOSEPH, Minn. — After being introduced as the "only flower child left," Tiny Tim blew kisses to people in the audience — all two dozen of them.

Seemingly undaunted by the size of the audience, the veteran performer grabbed his trademark ukulele and the show went on at the Del-Win Entertainment Center.

Although the turnout was tiny Thursday night, the audience gave the singer a standing ovation on hearing "Tip-Toe Thru' the Tulips With Me," the 1968 song that made Tim a pop culture figure.

"Thank you and God bless you all," Tiny Tim said, blowing more kisses as the hour-long show ended.

Those who paid the $5 for the show seemed to like what they heard.

"He's an excellent entertainer," said Herb Dhein, who came with nine other St. Cloud residents.

Said 23-year-old Cory Snyder of Brainerd: "I think it was the strangest night of my life. We thought it would be weird, but we didn't know it would be this odd."

Tiny Tim performed three sold-out shows in Rochester before his performance in St. Joseph, a central Minnesota town of 2,700 people about 65 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

NEW ORLEANS — Novelist Thomas Wolfe notwithstanding, you can go home again, even if you're trumpeter Al Hirt, and the tourist and convention industry wants your head on a platter.

Eight years after shutting down his Bourbon Street nightclub and complaining about crime and the degeneration of the French Quarter, Hirt opened at his old address Thursday night. Hirt said the Quarter had become a dirty, dangerous place when he closed the club he'd operated there for 22 years.

Hirt

"What I said was it had gotten so that a man couldn't bring his wife or girlfriend to the Quarter without an armed guard," Hirt said. "New Orleans isn't a great deal different than any other city when it comes to dope and crime."

Despite the negative national publicity he brought the city, no one was holding a grudge as he charmed a well-dressed crowd of more than 300 that had paid $20 a pop to pack Jelly Rolls.

"I'm glad they forgive me, for while what I said was true, I love New Orleans," Hirt said before bounding on stage.

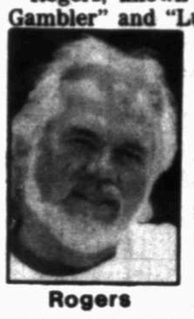
NEW ORLEANS — Country music star Kenny Rogers will be grand marshal of the Krewe of Endymion's 1992 parade, a Carnival spectacle which traditionally has a celebrity monarch.

Rogers, known for such songs as "The Gambler" and "Lucille," also will perform at the Endymion Extravaganza in the Superdome following the Feb. 29 parade.



Rogers

The organization's 26th nighttime procession will feature 28 theme floats and nine floats for krewe royalty, krewe captain Ed Muniz said Thursday.

Endymion's tradition of celebrity grand marshals has featured such stars as Bob Hope, Dolly Parton, Paul Anka, Lou Rawls and Wayne Newton.

Rogers has won three Grammys, and nine of his albums have gone platinum.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson will receive the NAACP's Jackie Robinson Sports Award, the civil rights organization said Friday.

Johnson, the Los Angeles Lakers basketball star who last month revealed he has the AIDS virus, will be presented the honor by television talk show host Arsenio Hall at the 24th Annual NAACP Image Awards on Jan. 11.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People presents its Jackie Robinson Sports Award in recognition of high achievement in athletics and contributions to black youth.

Johnson and other recipients of special awards will be honored in advance of the awards show at a Dec. 10 dinner. Other special winners include singer Janet Jackson.

BALTIMORE — Pulitzer Prize-winning authors Taylor Branch and Anne Tyler were among 25 Maryland writers who signed a statement urging city and state legislators to restore funds to Baltimore's library system.

"There are certain rock bottom things that you don't do, and those have to do with the future and with children," said Branch, winner of the 1989 Pulitzer for "Parting the Waters: America in the King Years, 1954-63."

Tyler won the Pulitzer for fiction in 1989 for "Breathing Lessons."

Library trustees are planning to close five branches and scale back other operations because of budget cuts.

Others signing the letter included novelist John Barth and film director and Baltimore native John Waters.

LEE: A win would tie school record of 13 in a season

(From 1C)

Of course, Lee is using that 33-0 score as its springboard for this rematch.

"That thing (33-0) was embarrassing," Miller says. "We had a few injuries at the time, but we aren't making any excuses. We got whipped. I think that has to be an incentive for us to play better. How many times do you get a second chance in this game? We can't do anything about what happened in the first game, but we can have something to say about this one.

"Still, Permian is a great football team with no weaknesses. We will have to play error free ball. The offense has to be perfect. We also didn't get any turnovers in the first game, so we have to come up with big plays on defense.

"We've got to do a better job of ball control. Permian's defense whipped us the first time, there is no question about that."

Permian put the game away early on Lee in the October game, scoring on three of four possessions for 16 first quarter points. Hollingshead isn't expecting such luck this time around.

"Of course, you would like to jump out there and get an early lead like that, but you just can't expect that to happen again," Hollingshead said. "This is a long standing rivalry, which is a credit to these two programs. I expect us to both play well. It's an opportunity of a lifetime for these kids."

If Lee can produce a miracle, it will be only the second time that the Rebels have gotten past the quarterfinal stage of the playoffs. A Lee victory would tie a school record of 13 victories in a single season.

Permian sophomore John Williams, who played against Lamar last week after a car accident, led Permian with 106 yards rushing in the first game as Mojo outgained Lee in total offense by a 402-72 margin. Lee fullback Scott McLeod, who didn't play against Sherman last week due to sickness, led Lee in the first game with a meager 34 yards rushing. Lee completed only one of seven passes for 13 yards while Permian completed seven of 14 for 95 yards.

Permian defensive end Tony Daniels had a great first game. He is healthy now after suffering through injuries. Williams is expected to be near 100 percent. Lee linebackers Jovan Tellez and James Ward both played with leg injuries in the first game, but both are healthy this time.

No matter how you carve it up, Lee needs a miracle. But this is the Christmas season when such things have been known to happen. That's why an expected crowd of 20,000 will be on hand to watch it.

UNC-Charlotte hands No. 20 DePaul upset

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Henry Williams and Delano Johnson scored decisive baskets in the second half as North Carolina-Charlotte beat No. 20 DePaul 68-63 Friday night in the Tournament of Champions, the 49ers' first victory over a ranked team since 1977.

Rodney Odom scored 20 points, 16 of them in the first half, as the 49ers played for the first time in the tourney held near their campus. Odom also had 10 rebounds.

Johnson scored 18 points and wrapped up the upset with a free throw with 7.9 seconds left. Williams scored all 11 of his points in the second half for the 49ers (3-1). It was UNCC's first victory over a ranked team since the school's march to the Final Four in 1977.

No. 21 Iowa 74, Army 39

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Acie Earl scored 14 points and James Moses added 11 as No. 21 Iowa overcame a ragged performance to down Army and advance to the championship game of the Hawkeye Classic.

Iowa (4-0) meets Louisiana Tech (3-1) in Saturday's title game. The Bulldogs whipped Bowling Green 67-47 in the other first-round game to keep the Falcons winless in five games.

No. 15 Alabama 77
N. Carolina St. 66

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Latrell Sprewell and Robert Horry led unbeaten and 15th-ranked Alabama on a first-half scoring spree and the Crimson Tide held off North Carolina State 77-66 .

Texas, Baylor both win

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Benford Williams led six players in double figures with 26 points Friday night as Texas defeated North Texas 124-107 without their leading scorer and rebounder, Dexter Cambridge, who has been ruled ineligible.

Texas (3-2) will play for the championship of the Longhorn Classic tournament Saturday against the winner of the San Diego State-Texas Southern game, which followed. North Texas (1-4) plays the loser for third place.

Texas, the host team, trailed 69-67 at halftime but had a 21-2 run in just under four minutes of the second half for a 94-77 lead and was not threatened.

With Cambridge — who has averaged 23.5 points — sitting on the sidelines in street clothes, Texas made up for his loss by spreading the offense.

Terrence Rencher and sub Tony Watson each scored 20 points. B.J. Tyler had 19, Mike Richardson 15 and Albert Burditt 12.

Baylor 73, SE Louisiana 58

WACO — Kelvin Chalmers scored 19 points and David Wesley added 17 as host Baylor whipped Southeastern Louisiana in the first round of the Dr Pepper Invitational.

Princeton and Hofstra played later in the other first-round game.

The Bears, of the Southwest Conference, improved to 5-1.

Beals finish 5th in historic Baja 1000 desert race

By George R. Thompson

ENSENADA, B.C., Mexico — After attending the Rod Hall School of Performance Off-Road Driving in Reno, Nevada, B.J. Beal and Spencer Beal, who are partner's in BTA Oil Producers of Midland, decided they wanted to compete in the 1991 Baja 1000 race.

Driving the Class 8 truck used for instruction by the school and prepared by Spirit Racing in El Cajon, Calif., the Beals and navigator Josh Hall of the Rod Hall school completed the 26-hour trek on Nov. 9 with a fifth-place finish in their class.

The legendary Baja 1000 is the world's oldest and most famous desert race, a challenge for man and machine alike.

Racing legends like Rod Hall, Walker Evans , Ivan "Iron Man" Stewart and Frank "Scoop" Vessels have forged brilliant careers by conquering the incredible odds at places like the dreaded Cahabuzo Junction, where the terrain is so bleak even the Durango scorpion can't survive, and Diablo dry lake, where temperatures have been known to reach 130 degrees.

B.J. Beal, who lives in Denver, is a competitive rally racer and wanted some hands on training and endurance racing in preparation for the Australian Safari in 1992. After contacting Josh Hall at the Hall School in Reno, B.J. spent three days training there.

On his return to Denver, he contacted Spencer, his uncle, in Midland. Spencer, who has been involved in various forms of racing over the years, enrolled in the next available class.

"From the beginning, I could see that they both had natural driving ability," Josh Hall said after working with the Beals.

"We discussed the race and some available options for implementing their plan, and I suggested maybe it was something we could do together."

The plan called for Josh to put together a chase team, provide a prepped race vehicle and to see to all the necessary arrangements. The old reliable Class 8 truck would have to prepped, and since it was a truck used at the school, work could not begin until early October, when the school would be through with it.

Rod's shop was busy preparing its own two trucks for the same event, and the logical choice was Spirit Racing, which had maintained the truck in its racing days.

On the weekend of Oct. 26, two weeks before the race, the Beals flew to San Diego to meet Hall and spend the weekend pre-running the 1,200-kilometer course.

Race day arrived with the usual problems associated with the Baja 1000. The scheduled start in downtown Ensenada was moved to the outskirts of town, and the vehicles began staging at 8:30 a.m. in front of the Villa Marina Motel. From there, they paraded to the official starting line for a 9:30 start.

The plan was for Spencer to start the race and drive to Junta Santa Maria, about half way, then B.J. would take over. Perhaps the toughest job belonged to Josh Hall, who was to navigate the entire distance of more than 700 miles after spending most of the previous night dealing with race strategy and a last minute crisis.

A search for a new set of BFGoodrich Baja T/A tires proved futile, though there were plenty of Mud Terrain T/As available. Josh had such confidence in the superiority of the Baja T/As in dry weather, he chose to go with the ones mounted on the truck, despite the fact they had 1,200 race school miles on them. It turned out to be the correct decision, as the truck did not have a flat all day.

The first 60 miles of the course stretched toward Tecate and dipped south to Ojos Negros, in the Baja interior. No one had been allowed to pre-race this section, so all the racers were seeing it for the first time. Since the race was started rally style, with the vehicles launched at one minute intervals, about 65 automobiles were in front of Spencer when he started the race.

"I knew we had taught them how to race from start to finish without making any gross errors, and they did a fantastic job of driving," Josh said. "The one thing we couldn't teach them in three days at the school was experience, so it was my job to provide the on site experience they lacked.

"In a race of this sort, there are so many terrain changes with multiple cars on the track at once, the first time a car passes you in the dirt and you are faced with zero visibility at 80 mph, it's a whole new experience. It was one situation after another for over 26 hours."

A few miles from the start, Spencer was confronted with his first obstacle — a huge wash, about 3/4 of a mile across and up to 1½ feet deep.

"It was a graveyard in the water. There were cars stuck everywhere, and Josh told me "whatever you do, don't stop!' It was such a zoo in there and we just barely kept going," said the 44-year-old Spencer.

"It was bloody in there. There must have been about 50 cars stuck in that wash and we just kept moving forward, and felt like we were geniuses just getting through. At the school they tell you it's the tortoise and the hare. Jusr be the tortoise, be steady. I had one guy pass me five times, and the last time he was gone, over the edge.

"As a matter of fact, the truck in front of us when we started was one of those big high-dollar rigs, and within 10 minutes he was on the side."

The Beals lost their radio contact before the first check point, when a tree took off their antenna.

"It was hilarious. That truck sits up so much higher than those buggies that when I followed one under the tree, it shaved off the antenna," Spencer said.

"After a while the chase crew figured out that they could hear us key the radio but we couldn't talk. So they told us to key once if we were doing OK and twice if we needed help. It was a morse code kind of deal. We had so much fun and being with the Hall team made the difference," he said.

"We had some other problems, but that Josh just took it all in stride. We passed a buggy that was on fire (John Marking's) and the heat was so intense as we passed that I could feel it through my helmet. I mean my eyes got pretty big.

"Right after that a buggy passed me in the silt and we were in a cloud, and I got off the road a little bit and put it up on two wheels. It scared the hell out of me, I thought we were going to roll it right there. Driving in that dust is a spooky deal."

Other troubles the team encountered included a mixed up first fuel stop, where the team confused the racing gas for Rod's Class 4 truck with the plain unleaded gas intended for the Beal truck, and a jammed transmission linkage cable that forced the team to drive in second gear for much of the race.

Finally, at about midnight, Spencer relinquished the driving duties to B.J. at Junta Santa Maria. By that point they were down on time and had to race to each checkpoint just to get there before it closed. They made Borrego with about 40 minutes to spare, and at Valle De Trinidad had to change a damaged oil filter and add oil.

It was at this point that the Halls retired the Class 4 entry, and Rod donated a hand held radio to the Beals so they could abandon the morse code system.

They reached Mikes Sky Rancho

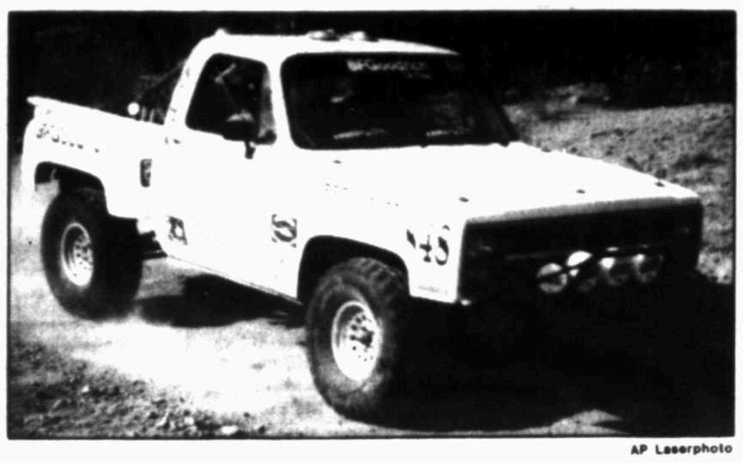
BAJA: Less than 38 percent of 300 cross the finish line



AP Laserphoto

The Beals' Class 8 Baja 1000 Off-Road Truck.

(From 11C)

about 30 minutes before it closed and at Santa Isabel, on the Pacific side, they had to sweet talk a closing check point official to get through.

"About the time we got to the Santo Tomas check point, Josh's sense of humor was starting to go," B.J. said. "But without him we wouldn't have had a chance at finishing. There were a lot of choices out there, and Josh's experience saw us through.

"At this point we were fighting the offical finishing deadline, which was 26 hours. We finished about 50 minutes over the legal time limit, but we didn't care. We finished and that's all that mattered to us. We weren't competing with anyone other than the Baja and we had a great time doing it."

Of the almost 300 entries that started the race, less than 38 percent crossed the finish line. Fifteen Class 8 vehicles entered, and only five finished. Aside from the fifth-place Beals team, all the finishers in the class were backed by factories.

Next season, B.J. will continue to campaign his Mazda in the regional rally series, and is preparing a Nissan Pathfinder for the Aaustralian Safari in August. Spencer is sending his two brothers to the Hall school with the intention of returning to the Baja 1000 for the 25th anniversary run to La Paz.

"We had a ball, it was a thrill a minute," Spencer said. "BTA racing will be back next year to do it again, that's for sure. I've never has so much fun."

A 30-year veteran of various racing forms, George R. Thompson is the president of the Independent Desert Racers Association and a major partner in the firm of Thompson Motorsports Limited, a California based motorsports marketing and public relations firm.

Cambridge ineligible for now

Associated Press

WACO — A federal judge refused Friday to extend a restraining order that had kept University of Texas basketball star Dexter Cambridge in uniform despite an NCAA ruling that he is ineligible for accepting cash from a fan at a junior college he attended.

Cambridge, a senior from the Bahamas, is the leading scorer and rebounder for the Longhorns (2-2), averaging 23.5 points and 15 rebounds.

U.S. District Judge Walter Smith of Waco set a preliminary injunction hearing for 9 a.m. on Dec. 13 in the U.S. courthouse in Austin. Smith also will preside at that hearing.

"In the meantime, Dexter cannot play," said Philip Maxwell, his attorney.

Texas was paired against the University of North Texas Friday night in the opening game of the Longhorn Classic basketball tournament.

Rapist's letter stirs campus furor

By Jennifer Liebrum
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — A women's group is planning protests over a purported rapist's letter in the University of Houston student newspaper claiming that "a man's lust is not something to be aroused and then laughingly spurned without risk."

A typed letter to the Daily Cougar this week with no return address and signed "Anonymous" said: "I am 21 years old, a frat, the scion of an old and distinguished Houston family. And I am a rapist. "Or so some people would like you to believe . . . ."

The Cougar's Wednesday edition had barely settled in its stands before people from all levels of the university began to respond by phone, by mail and in person, said Managing Editor Rebecca Deaton.

No other item in her memory has resulted in such quick and emotional reaction, she said.

Jacsun Shah, leader of Women Against Violence Everywhere, said the group is planning a campus protest to keep attention on the subject.

"I don't think it matters whether it is a totally factual, true confession or if this is a stunt," Shah said.

"There is an underlying attitude in each young man that commits date rape that encompasses at least part, if not all, of what the letter describes."

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.
OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
• ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job
• MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
• COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
• SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.
How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!
How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!
When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.
Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
$100 deposit required
APPLY TO:
CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT
MIDLANDREPORTER-TELEGRAM

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your 'day job.' Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 90% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $300-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

WANTED: Person to be frozen in a 5,000 lb block of ice. No experience necessary. Will train. Call 697-3293.
