City Council Sets New Wichita Falls Tax Rate At $1.50

10-CENT RAISE APPROVED FOR FISCAL YEAR

City Must Comply With Sinking Fund Law, Says Manager

REVENUES DECREASE

Economy to Pull Wichita Out of Debt by 1929, Officials Hope

The city tax rate on real and personal property for 1928 was set Monday night by the city council at $1.50 per hundred dollars valuation.

This tax rate, based on the $51,779,000 valuation for the present year will bring in $776,685. The valuation was determined about two months ago with the closing and totaling of all tax rolls, both rendered and unrendered, after the board of equalization had heard and judged all cases presented.

The city budget for the year totaled $987,956.58. This was exclusive of an overdraft from last year of $82,750.15. The total of the overdraft and the budget is $1,070,706.53.

Other Revenue

The difference between the amount to come in from taxes and the total indebtedness for the year is expected to be accounted for in miscellaneous revenue such as building permit fees, water sales, inspections and the like. This revenue was originally estimated for 1928 at $393,108. However, a decided slump in building and the consequent decreasing in permit fees, and a lessening in the consumption of water has made a decrease of thousands of dollars.

The 10-cent increase over last year's rate will all go into the sinking funds for bond interest and principal, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager. This will allow the city to comply with the charter provisions on sinking funds and also will enable the city to end the year without an overdraft, it was said.

When the vote was taken, Alderman J. H. Patton, J. W. Hunt, Roy Carter and Oral Jones voted for the tax rate of $1.50, and Alderman A. W. King voted against it. The rate is set by a city ordinance which is to be read three times, so that it will come up again next week and the week following.

An ordinance regulating the handling and keeping of carbide in the city limits was passed on third reading and will become effective in 30 days.

Oil Man's Bride

After a month's honeymoon in a private camp at Big Bear Lodge, near Jackson, Wyo., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilcrease will return to the Gilcrease mansion in Tulsa, Okla., and the domestic life of Norma Smallwood, the bride, will begin. Mrs. Gilcrease won the title of Miss America in 1926 in the beauty pageant at Atlanta City. Gilcrease, 33, went to the oil fields 20 years ago as a laborer and now is president of an oil corporation. He has two sons of school age by a former marriage.

BOAT CARRYING HASSELL SINKS

Fliers Rescued After Wreck Of Craft

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 10. (UP)—The Greenland administration department announced today that a radio message from South Greenland reported the motorboat carrying Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, rescued Rockford, Ill., fliers, and their companion, Professor Hobbs of the University of Michigan expedition, to Greenland, had struck a rock and sank four miles from Simiutak at the mouth of the Simiutak Fjord last Thursday.

All of the men were rescued but were stranded near the mouth of the Fjord.

Two members of the crew of the motorboat, both of them natives, went to Kanganing in a small craft to bring assistance. They returned to the camp where the fliers and their companion were stranded with food and fuel. The small boat in which the trip was made, however, would not carry the entire party to safety.

Every effort will be made to rescue the stranded men, the government said, and an attempt will be made to raise the sunken motorboat, which belonged to a company of Greenlanders at Holstenborg.

Hassell, Cramer and Professor Hobbs were said to be en route to Holstensborg, Greenland, from Mt. Evans. The fliers were rescued a week ago last Sunday after their plane had been forced down on the Skuppertoppen ice arm. They had walked across the ice for two weeks before they were seen by members of the Michigan university expedition.

KGKO FORMAL OPENING GIVEN BIG RECEPTION

Thousands of Complimentary Calls and Messages Sent Station

POLICIES ARE TOLD

Manager Promises Constructive Programs for West Texas

KGKO, the National Security Insurance company radio station, was formally opened Monday night with a five-hour program of music, entertainment and speeches which started at 7 o'clock and ended only when every one of the entertainers was tired.

Uncounted telegrams and messages of all kinds poured into the station from the minute the broadcast started until the studios closed.

Mayor J. W. Akin extended greetings to the station on behalf of the city, and Charles I. Francis, president of the chamber of commerce, welcomed the station on behalf of the business men of the city. H. J. Adair of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, spoke for the regional chamber and of the service possible to people in this part of the country.

REQUEST REFUSED

Radio listeners who were enjoying the program of the formal opening of station KGKO, the National Security Life Insurance company station, Monday night, heard the following radio announcement:

"We have here," said the announcer, "a request for 'That's My Weakness Now.'

"Station KGKO wishes to announce now, that at no time will anything known or thought in any way to be suggestive or objectionable be broadcast.

"We therefore regret that we shall be unable to present 'That's My Weakness Now.'"

Business Manager Speaks

J. M. Gilliam, business manager of the station, expressed his thanks for the welcome received and also outlined the ideals and ideas which the station will endeavor to follow in serving West Texas.

Honest, constructive criticism was welcomed by Mr. Gilliam. Programs that will offend are never intentionally to be broadcast.

All political parties will be afforded like treatment and the station will not refuse to sell any candidate time on the air. The station itself will take no partisan part in politics. Service to the city and this region will be stressed with informative talks and programs. Furthering of interests of worthy movements and organizations such as the Boy Scouts, the Red Cross, the schools, farmers and farm subjects are among those things which will be favored.

Financial Backers

Mr. Gilliam revealed, in his talk, the chief financial backers of the station as C. W. Snider, F. P. Timberlake, L. H. Cullum, H. D. Sartin, J. T. Harrell, Charles I. Francis, Henry Camp Harris and others associated in the National Security Life Insurance company.

The artists of the evening were accorded the applauses of the city and this applause was evidenced in

Rowland Wins Class A Race Across Continent

Kansas Flier Leads Speed Caravan to Final Landing at Los Angeles; Cantwell Leads

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10. (UP)—Earl Rowland, Wichita Kan., flying his Cessna monoplane, won the transcontinental air race when he led the 23 remaining contestants on the last lap of the contest from San Diego today.

Rowland landed here at 2:35 p. m. A crowd of approximately 10,000 persons was at the field to cheer the winner.

Robert Dake, Pittsburgh, in an American Moth, was second to cross the finish line arriving two minutes after Rowland.

Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., was third.

Race officials announced that elapsed times of the contestants would not be announced officially for 24 hours.

Rowland has led practically every day since the flyers took off from New York, however, and was certain to be the winner. He will receive $5,000 and another $5,000 will be split among other leaders.

The winner led every lap across the country with the exception of those Saturday and Sunday.

Walter H. Emory, jr., who also has been among the first finishers, finished fourth today in his Travelair plane.

Panhandle-Plains C-C Meeting Asks Road Financing

Special to The Record News.

PAMPA, Texas, Sept. 10.—The Panhandle-North Plains convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in session here Monday adopted a resolution asking the Democratic convention assembled in Dallas to insert a plank declaring for "a just plan of financing the state highway department without placing an undue burden upon any commodity or business."

This action followed a statement by President Andy Bourland of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, speaking unofficially and as an individual, in opposition to a higher gasoline tax which was advocated a few minutes before by Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene, member of the highway commission.

Bourland also opposed plans for the state to assume outstanding county road bonds, holding that roads in many counties are nearly worn out and will soon need replacing. The proposed statewide highway bond issue was much discussed. Shamrock won next year's convention. Three hundred delegates attended today's session.

Second Sabotage Trial Results in Convictions

LONDON, Sept. 10. (UP)—An Exchange dispatch from Riga reported tonight that the second Don Basin mine sabotage trial was secretly held at Harkov, Russia, and that 30 engineers were sentenced to long imprisonments. Bactiarov, who had lived in the United States, was said to have been executed. The first phase of the Don Basin trial recently, was concluded with the conviction of about 40 accused of wrecking the mine works. The trial caused serious strain on relations with Germany.

COPS FOIL ROBMEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. (US)—Desperadoes wearing handkerchief masks were foiled by police here today when they attempted to "take" a "gold coast" hotel in another daring daylight holdup. The bandits slipped into the offices of the Davis hotel directly across from Chicago's exclusive Drake hostelry during the lagon hour flourishing guns.

HOUNDS HUNT BOY'S SLAYER

Wellington Youth Victim of Mysterious Attack

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 10. Bloodhounds were used today by officers trying to solve the mystery of the death of Calvin Shepherd, 20, whose body was found near Fair park here late Sunday night. The youth had been shot from the back, according to officers.

Two or three persons were held for questioning today but the officials were continuing the search for the mysterious assailant and hoped to apprehend him within the next few days.

Shepherd was employed at the Ball filling station here.

His body was discovered by Officers Grady Childress and Bob Jones. Believing the man was still alive they rushed him to a hospital. An autopsy revealed that a bullet had entered his backbone and pierced the lower part of his heart.

Shooting At Borger

BORGER, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—Harry Losey, 45, was wounded probably fatally last night when he attempted to eject several women from the dance floor of his road house near here.

Clarice Barket, 21, was arrested and held without bond on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Two of her woman companions were held as material witnesses in default of $7,500 bond.

Deaths at Bowie

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, Sept. 10.—Funeral services for Luther Clark, 16, and Henry Pemberton, 7, accident victims in this section over the week-end, were held Monday afternoon.

Young Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Clark, of Bowie, was drowned while swimming in a tank near here late Saturday. Funeral services were held from the First Baptist church here Monday afternoon. Interment was in the Bowie cemetery.

Funeral services for Henry Pemberton, son of H. C. Pemberton, who was fatally injured when crushed beneath a falling horse Sunday, were held from the family residence at Stoneburg Monday afternoon. The body was forwarded to Nocona for burial.

EARLY MAINE RETURNS SHOW G. O. P. LEADING

First 162 Precincts to Report Pile Up Big Majorities

HEAVY VOTE CAST

'So Goes Nation' Election Draws Out Record Balloting

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 10. (AP)—William T. Gardiner, Republican candidate for governor, was leading his Democratic opponent, Edward C. Moran Jr., by a margin of 16,629 votes on the returns from 162 of the 633 precincts in the state in today's election.

The same precincts gave U. S. Senator Frederick Hale, Republican, seeking re-election, a lead of 16,215 over Herbert E. Holmes, Democrat.

The vote of 162 precincts was: For governor: Gardiner, 23,455; Moran, 6,826. For Senator: Hale 22,727; Holmes, 6,512.

The primary has aroused nationwide interest due to the tradition "as Maine goes, so goes the nation." Republican and Democratic speakers have been unusually active, persons high in each party having personally stumped within the state.

PORTLAND Maine, Sept. 10. (UP)—Pownal, a village in Cumberland county, in which Portland is located, was the first to report results tonight in Maine's election.

U. S. Senator Hale, Republican candidate for reelection, polled 111 votes to 10 for Herbert Holmes, his Democratic opponent.

William Tudor Gardiner, Republican gubernatorial candidate, received 111 votes while his Democratic opponent, Edward C. Moran Jr., received 12.

In 1924, Governor Brewster received 135 votes to 38 for William R. Pattangall, Democratic candidate, in the same village.

Republicans were jubilant when returns from the second ward of Rockland, home of Moran, showed Gardiner had received 226 votes to the Democratic candidate's 113.

The town of Phillips, home of Simon Field, chairman of the Republican state committee, voted 419 for Gardiner and 63 for Moran. In 1924, Brewster received 340 votes to Pattangall's 149.

Georgetown, a village in Sagadahoc county, gave Hale 148 votes and Holmes 10. Gardiner received 153 votes to 10 for Moran. Four years ago, Governor Brewster received 104 votes to Pattangall's 41.

Weather Fair

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 10. (UP)—With a record vote in prospect, the results of Maine's "barometric" state election were awaited by the nation tonight.

State-wide fair weather contributed to unusually heavy early balloting, and election officials predicted that the biggest vote in the history of the Pine Tree state might be cast.

Some political leaders forecast a total vote ranging from 265,000 to 270,000, compared with the 253,907 votes cast in the state election of the last presidential year.

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation," is the adage which down through the years has attached itself to the September election in this state.

More often than not, this early balloting has accurately foretold the outcome of the subsequent presidential election.

Maine Republicans and Democrats alike are firm believers in this political superstition, and although today's election involved only local issues for the most part, political leaders insisted that the size of the Republican majority would serve as an indication of the nation's political leanings.

Grand Jury Room 'Tapped' Is Charge

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. (INS)—Information of proceedings of the special grand jury, which indicted City Collector Morris Eller, his son, Municipal Judge Emanuel Eller, and 17 others, was carried to interested persons by a dictaphone concealed in the grand jury room, it was charged here today by Special Prosecutor Frank J. Loesch.

Loesch said that this revealed why first-hand knowledge of grand jury procedure was possessed by persons who mthe grand jury indicted.

BIDS ON JAIL REPAIRS ASKED

Alterations to Stop Breaks, Officials Hope

Bids for remodeling of the county jail were ordered of County Auditor E. P. Walsh by the county commissioners' court at the regular weekly meeting Monday afternoon. Specifications on which bids are to be made, according to J. M. Isbell, county engineer, include only minor alterations inside the jail.

Plans for interior remodeling of the jail were begun some weeks ago by the county commissioners after the July grand jury in 30th district court recommended that alterations be made. The action of the grand jury followed claims by Sheriff W. G. Bralley that the interior construction of the jail was responsible for the number of jail breaks here in the past few months.

The county commissioners some time ago asked various jail construction companies of the state to submit specifications for the work necessary to eliminate possible danger of escape. Until Monday they had been unable to take action on the matter. County Judge E. W. Nicholson said, because the plan of alteration had not been decided upon.

Since the July grand jury recommended that the jail be repaired, six prisoners have made their escape. Two of these six were re-

Removal of Winkler Sheriff Is Urged

KERMIT, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—A petition seeking removal of Sheriff W. A. Priest of Winkler county was filed in district court here today. Judge Charles Klapproth, who received the petition, said that as district court convenes October 8, he would defer action until then. The petition sought immediate removal and appointment of a temporary substitute.

Robinson Misses Talk Of New York Sidewalks

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 10. (UP)—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic candidate for vice president, missed a sermon on "The Sidewalks of New York" here Sunday. He attended morning services at Central Methodist church, South. The sidewalks sermon was announced by the pastor, the Rev. S. W. Hayne, for the night services.

REGULAR DEMOS CLEAN HOUSE AT CONVENTION

Every Hoover Supporter Loses Place in State Party

WOMAN REMOVED

Sympathies of Committee Members to Be Felt Out by Leaders

Anti-Smith delegates to the Democratic state convention at Dallas Tuesday from Wichita county were denied a seat by the state executive committee Monday and the delegation headed by Edgar Scurry, county chairman, was unanimously accredited, according to Associated Press dispatches received here Monday night.

B. D. Sartin, chairman of the Hoover delegation to the state convention, was absent when the state executive committee called for a champion of the cause of Hooverism among Wichita county Democrats. Nor were other "Democratic" Wichita county followers of the Republican nominee for president in evidence to show reason why they should be admitted to the deliberations of Texas Democrats Tuesday.

At "Secret Meeting"

When the absence of Mr. Sartin and other anti-Smith men became conspicuous in the unanswering silence, C. C. Renfro of Dallas suggested that the Wichita county anti-Smith delegation was attending the "Hoover secret meeting."

The delegation which was recognized by the executive committee at Dallas was chosen by the county executive committee here last Saturday with only one dissenting vote, that of J. W. Nicholson, chairman of precinct 17. The delegation headed by Mr. Sartin was chosen at the county convention of Aug. 4, after anti-Smith supporters had gained overwhelming control of the convention.

Many to Dallas

It could not be learned Monday night where the Hoover forces from Wichita county had been during the meeting of the committee, but a large number of the anti-Smith men are known to have left for Dallas Sunday and early Monday. Their absence from the executive committe left that body no course but to recognize the only Wichita county delegation claiming a right to participate in the state convention.

DALLAS, Sept. 10. (AP)—Regular Democrats of Texas declared open season on "anti-Smith Democrats" here today as the state executive committee set about exterminating, root and branch, every vestige of opposition to Governor Smith in the state convention which opens tomorrow.

Contests between Smith and anti-Smith delegations from six counties were decided unanimously in favor of the Smith coherts and a sixth delegation, which was not contested, was denied seats because of the political complexion of its leader.

Not satisfied with these drastic steps the committee pushed its

Cooke County Voters to Decide On $2,000,000 Road Bond Issue Today

Special to The Record News.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Sept. 10.—The campaign for the $2,000,000 road bond issue to be voted on in Cooke county Tuesday closed with a rally of bond proponents at the court house here tonight.

Managers of the campaign predicted a six to one vote for the bonds in Gainesville with an even break expected in the rural sections. The latter vote will decide the issue, it was conceded as Gainesville's vote can be depended upon while the rural strength is uncertain. The opposition is said to be confined to farmers and some business men in small town villages.

Rain tonight would aid the issue, as the opposition vote would be cut down by inability of farmers to get to the polls over the roads in their present condition. A probable vote of 8,000 is expected, about equally divided between Gainesville and the remainder of the county.

Police Drop Investigation of Death of Wichitan in 'Blaze

Funeral services for H. W. Pyle, 62, who was burned to death when his house at 2603 Sherman road was destroyed by fire Saturday night, were held at the Iowa Park cemetery Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Rev. W. H. Townsend, pastor of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church, officiating.

Although a theory of four play had been advanced by a number who investigated Mr. Pyle's death, police Monday night had been unable to uncover evidence substantiating this theory, and Chief of Police Frank Burns was inclined to regard the matter as an unavoidable accident.

Mr. Pyle is survived by his widow, Mrs. M. E. Pyle of Santa Barbara, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. Lou Little of Ladonia.

NEW OFFICERS IN A-M CORPS

Eight Army Men Given School Posts

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—The staff of the military department of the A. & M. college of Texas for the forthcoming college year shows eight newly assigned army officers, five of them replacing officers whose tours of duty at the college have expired. The other three are additions to the staff, making a total of 16 United States army officers detailed to the college as instructors in military science and tactics. Newly assigned officers include: Maj. John P. Wheeler, cavalry, who replaces Maj. Charles L. Stephenson, transferred to Denver, Colo., and Capt. I. G. Walker Jr., who has just completed a course of instruction at the cavalry school, Ft. Riley, Kan., and relieves Maj. W. E. Buckley, who will attend the cavalry school this year.

Capt. T. C. Harry and First Lt. J. V. Carroll, both from the field artillery school, have been assigned to duty with the field artillery unit. Capt. M. M. Montgomery, who completed five years service here has gone to Madison Barracks, N. Y.

Capt. E. L. Lyons and First Lt. E. T. McCullough relieve Capts. L. R. Beese and R. L. Ware with the infantry unit, the two latter officers having been assigned to Vancouver barracks, Washington

Capt. L. A. Pick, formerly in the offices of the district engineer, New Orleans, and First Lt. J. S. Seybold, from Ft. Hancock, N. J., will be on duty with the newly organized engineer unit.

The eight officers previously at A. & M. and who will remain on duty for the forthcoming year include: Lt-Col. C. J. Nelson, commandant, and head of the military staff; Majs. John E. Sloan and E. H. Bertram; Capts, T. F. Limbocker, E. E. Aldridge, and A. M. Guidera; First Lts. R. D. Powell and A. E. Mickelson.

The military department at the college also shows 36 enlisted men of the United States army.

300 River Land Suit Defendants are Served

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—Personal service on some 300 defenders in the state's suit against C. W. Bradford and others for title to some 50 miles of the bed of the north fork of the Red river in Gray and Wheeler counties, has been sent by mail to the district court clerk's office here.

Citation on about 200 other defendants will be served through publication in newspapers.

The case will be called for trial sometime in October. Amended petition of the state, alleging that the land was illegally entered on or prior to Jan. 1, 1927, was filed Aug. 29.

Valuable oil producing properties are involved. The monetary values affected have not been estimated by the attorney general's department, which is handling the case.

Action on Suggestions Of Board on Sept. 17

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—No action on the state board of control's recommendations substituting the major portion of those made by the highway department for purchase of about $500,000 worth of road machinery will be taken until the Sept. 17 meeting of the state highway commission, it was indicated at the highway department.

Recommendations of the latter department were made some weeks ago. The board of control, by 2 to 1 vote, disagreed with contracts proposed by the highway department for trucks, graders and the like constituting some $300,000 of the buy, and sent substitute recommendations to the highway department.

Yale's Great Organ To Be Built With Gift

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 10. (US)—Yale's great organ in Woolsey hall, erected by previous gifts, will be rebuilt with a gift of $54,000 from Truman H. Newberry, of the class of '85. More than 60 new speaking stops will be installed. This is about 7,000 additional pipes, bringing the total to about 13,000.

Chicago Racket Quiz Proves Downfall of Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson and State's Attorney Crowe

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of articles on racketeering by James P. Kirby, staff writer for The Record News and NEA Service and closes the story of Chicago. Tomorrow, Kirby will tell of conditions in St. Louis.

By JAMES P. KIRBY
NEA Service Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—"Big Bill" Thompson, three-times mayor of Chicago, super-patriot who was elected on his pledge "to keep America safe for Americans," founer of the "America First Foundation" and who prided himself as "Big Bill, the Builder," is now in seclusion somewhere in the Wisconsin woods. Meanwhile a special grand jury is investigating the political activities of his ally, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney for eight years and one of his strongest henchmen.

Already, two of the strongers of the political allies of Thompson and Crowe—Morris Eller, leader of the bloody 20th ward, and his son, Judge Emmanuel Eller of the criminal court—are among 60 indicted by the special grand jury on charges of conspiracy.

Sees Destruction of Machine

From his seclusion Thompson today contemplates the destruction of his political machine and the imminent indictment of powerful friends and associates who for years maintained absolute control on Chicago, and who permitted the racketeer and the gangster and the beer barons to operate without disturbance.

Charles Fitzmorris, once secretary to the mayor, then chief of police, and finally comptroller, has resigned.

Dr. William H. Reid, Thompson's city smoke commissioner and close personal and political friend, has resigned.

Michael Hughes, Thompson's chief of police, advisor and councillor and long powerful in Chicago politics, has resigned.

State's Attorney Crowe was repudiated by more than 200,000 votes in the April primary in his attempt at renomination after eight years in office. He is the man held responsible by Chicagoans for the demoralization of business and public affairs through his failure to prosecute racketeers, gunmen and gangsters.

A judgment of more than $2,225,000 held by the courts to be collectable, has been returned against Thompson and certain of his political associates for the return of city funds, dissipated by the Thompson spoils system.

Thompson Sick Man

Thompson, according to informed persons at the city hall, is a sick man. Strangely missing from the front pages of Chicago newspapers are the invective, the proclamations and picturesque comment of the thrice-elected mayor.

Together in Defeat

Here are the men who once directed Chicago's most powerful political machine: Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson (left) and State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. The Thompson-Crowe machine was repudiated when Crowe was defeated for re-election by 200,000 votes in the April primary and now a grand jury is investigating Crowe's political activities, while Mayor Thompson is reported to be a sick man at his camp in the Wisconsin woods.

Stranger still, in the minds of Chicagoans, are some of his more recent official acts. These include the appointment of Captain William Russell, long known as a policeman of honesty and integrity and never popular with the Thompson machine, as commissioner of police; the appointment of Captain John Stege, fired from the police force on a technicality after 26 years as chief of detectives and the ace in the hole of the special grand jury investigation. It is admitted these resulted from strong pressure brought to bear on the mayor by reform organizations.

In one industry alone, the candy jobbing industry, 62 individuals are under conspiracy indictments in the state courts. Forty-five of these are also under similar indictments in federal courts and are now awaiting trial under bonds of $210,000.

Grand Jury Probes Police

Already a special grand jury has begun to comb the police department to sift the part played by some of its officers in the affairs of primary day. It is investigating, too, the part played by certain notorious gangsters, racketeers and gunmen, known to have been heavy contributors to campaign funds.

Matters generally regarded as being far afield from the primary day outbursts, but which the special grand jury already has found to have a pertinent bearing, are being made the subject of scrutiny.

A suite of offices in a downtown office building, marked by a legend which would scarcely cannote the happenings behind the doors, has been the scene of the workings of the grand jury and the investigators.

Certain characters of Chicago's underworld, for reasons best known to themselves—revenge, avarice, retaliation, self-preservation—already have put the investigators in possession of valuable information.

This is to be no political whitewash. The indictments already returned demonstrate that, as well as the character and personnel of the investigators.

There are places in Chicago where the workings of the special grand jury form the subject of earnest speculation and comment. No one knows where the lightning will strike next.

The once-powerful Thompson-Crowe political machine which contributed to the opprobrium Chicago has borne among the great cities of the world is passing.

Tomorrow: The racketeer invasion of St. Louis.

JUDGE SMEARS AL WITH MUD

Speaker Says Talk of Hoover Is False

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Tex., Sept. 10.—Judge J. W. Crudgington of Amarillo, district manager of the forces opposed to Gov. Al Smith's candidacy in this section "set the woods on fire" by his outspoken pronouncements in an address delivered in Memphis Saturday afternoon on the courthouse lawn. The speaker was given a good hearing, there being about 300 persons in the audience.

Judge Crudgington was introduced by Rev. C. E. Jameson, pastor of the First Methodist church. In the very outset Judge Crudgington began "pouring it on" Governor Smith. "If Smith is elected to the presidency liquor traffic will become common," the speaker said. "He is a wet through and through and he now claims to be a dry. Smith uses liquor consistently and has always been in favor of liquor causes. His popularity was gained through Tammany hall alone, as he started to work for that organization at $75 a month."

Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic vice presidential nominee also received the flaming lash of the judge's ire.

"Robinson is a traitor to the Democratic party," Judge Crudgington said because he was ashamed to face the prohibition issue in his campaign. He selected Little Rock, Ark., the wettest city in that state as his headquarters." As the speaker made this statement a man in the audience said: "That is the truth, folks, for I live in Little Rock. It is the wettest city in the state."

Herbert Hoover was upheld by the Amarillo judge upon every issue, he claiming that all of the bad things being said about him were falsehoods.

Cotton Council Starts Campaign This Month

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—No for funds to finance the southwide cotton council organized at Jackson, Miss., last February will begin late this month, T. Whit Davidson, vice president of the council, said here.

The council, a sort of chamber of commerce for the South, will seek $750,000 annually for its operations. Texas will be asked to raise $250,000 of the sum.

Big Negresses Glad to Reach Work Farm After Fire

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 10. (UP)—Police Patrol Driver Batten was making his way to the city farm with two huge negresses, vagrants who were on their way to work for Police Captain Conner, picking cotton.

On the way to the farm the engine got hot and Batten got out to investigate. As re raised the hood clouds of smoke swirled up. The negresses screamed. They wanted to get out. While Batten threw sand on the smoking motor, the pair smashed at the doors of the wagon. Its sides bulged, but held.

Batten extinguished the blaze and reached the farm.

"Nevah wuz so glad to see dis ole fahm," said one of the mountains of flesh.

Duck is 'Sacred Bird' Commissioner Declares

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—The first suit in a drive on violations of the game laws has been filed here with charges that a "sacred bird" had been slain, L. S. McCrory, deputy fish, game and oyster commissioner, announced that "hunters for income" will find hard sledding in southeast Texas.

The game warden said that in the past season ducks have been shipped from the gulf coast section in barrels, the catches being made from marshes in the south end of Jefferson county where game is plentiful.

Seeker of Family In Arizona Lands in Jail

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 10. (AP)—William Webb, self-styled Texas cattleman and capitalist, who came to Phoenix for the avowed purpose of finding his wife and three children whom he says deserted him several months ago at Plainview, Texas, was in jail here today, charged with writing checks on a bank in which he had no funds.

League May Hear of Liquor Shipping

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. (UP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran, just returned from Europe, said that foreign government officials whom the United States has asked to aid in enforcing its liquor laws, favor turning the problem over to the League of Nations.

A proposal that this country be aided by foreign governments in combatting liquor smuggling by having their nationals produce certified papers showing the cargoes were landed at the port consigned, was made by Doran prior to this suggestion, he said.

"Our records show 40 or 50 ports abroad are used largely for the purpose of shipping liquor to the United States," Doran said. "We are asking countries in which these ports are located to cooperate with us by requiring their ships to let their own governments know where the liquor shipment was landed."

Doran pointed out that smugglers of liquor cargoes frequently sail under false papers, as no European country will grant clearance papers for liquor to the United States.

Hundreds of Skeletons Indicate That Desert Was Well Populated

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 10. (AP)—Two hundred skeletons from the Babylonian ruins of Kish, an island in the Persian gulf, were the center of discussion today by anthropologists of the British Association for the Advancement of Science after an address by Henry Field, assistant curator of the Field museum of natural history in Chicago.

The skeletons, whose aggregate age exceeds 1,000,000 years, were said to be in a remarkable state of preservation. They include the bones of men, women and children and were recently shipped to Chicago.

The American curator, one of the youngest lecturers before the association, drew the general conclusion from his Syrian expedition the desert was well populated in past ages due to the fact that there was formerly a better water supply. He said this fact was proved by the discovery of many household implements.

Psychoanalysis was the subject of a discourse by Professor William Brown of Oxford university. He told the afternoon session that reliving in memory the scenes of earliest childhood was an excellent cure of mental illness.

$69,798.69 Auto Fees Collected at Altus

ALTUS, Sept. 10.—Motor vehicle license tag receipts for the first seven months of 1928 reached a total of $69,798.69. A report of the work during that period has just been completed by C. S. Highsmith, county tax agent. Fords outnumbered the other automobiles in the county with tags being purchased for 3,019 Ford cars and 2,538 owners of other automobiles.

Truck tags have been sold to 577 people, tractor tags to 116, tities to 1,293, while 13 have been sold to new car dealers and 11 to used car dealers. The license tags sale shows that there are 18 motorcycles in the county.

Delinquency fees have been paid by 46 people.

The above photograph shows high pressure tanks being filled with pure Oxygen, in the plant of the Wichita Falls Oxygen Company, ready for commercial use in Acetylene Welding.

Cheating the Junk Heap— and Expanding Industry

THE Wichita Falls Oxygen Company produces 240,000 pounds of pure Oxygen per day. This Oxygen is used in conjunction with Acetylene Gas for welding and cutting metal. Uncounted millions of dollars of machinery has been saved from the junk heap through the rehabilitating qualities of Acetylene welding, possible only through the use of pure Oxygen as manufactured by this company.

As a result of this commercial use of Oxygen, these millions of dollars are now being diverted into expanding industry. Expensive delays are hourly diverted because Acetylene welding makes possible immediate repairs of broken machinery. Thus one of the most costly interruptions of industrial progress has been overcome with commercialized Oxygen.

Wichita Falls is the home of one of the largest plants of its kind in the Southwest. Progressive, up to the minute in its methods, reaching out for new business, running to capacity all the time, and making preparations for sound expansion of its present facilities, the Wichita Falls Oxygen Company faces a busy future.

Just as Oxygen has sounded the death knell of one of industry's most costly interruptions, so the TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY renders to the Wichita Falls Oxygen Company an uninterrupted electric service which makes possible the economical operation of its plant.

Wichita Falls electric power service is second to none. The large, efficient, local generating station is interconnected with other large generating stations by power transmission lines. This affords an abundance of electric power to Wichita Falls and surrounding area, and opens the way for unlimited industrial development in this richly favored section of Texas.

Dorothy Dix Reveals Why Women Lose Their Husbands' Love

Why Women Lose Their Husbands' Love—The Best Way to Safeguard a Daughter From Undesirable Acquaintances—Advice to Love-sick Youth.

Dear Miss Dix—The time comes in every woman's life when her husband informs her that she is getting old. What should she do? Go in mourning? I have solved my own trouble. I watch my husband to see how pleasant he is to young women, even though he is so unpleasant to me, and I copy his example. I do not pass a young man or woman without giving them a pleasant look. There are many young men who love a sweet old lady. I am happy, for I know there is still love in the world and I am getting some of it. —MRS. A.

Answer—What if your husband does tell you that you are getting old? There is no disgrace in being old, nor does it necessarily make a woman less attractive.

Many elderly women are better looking and far more interesting than they were when they were girls. Age should make a woman sweeter, more tolerant, broader-minded, and when it does it makes her more lovable.

When women lose their husbands' affections, nine times out of 10 they lay it to age, but age is never to blame. A man doesn't suddenly cease to love his wife because she has got 50 or 60 years old. The tragedy has happened long before that, and her age has nothing whatever to do with it.

If they had been chums and companions throughout the years they would have grown closer and closer together, and he would never have noticed that she had lost her girlish figure or that her hair was gray or her complexion gone.

Sometimes a woman loses her husband's love by her lack of sympathy with him, by her nagging or her extravagance or by her being a poor and shiftless housekeeper and never making him comfortable. Sometimes a man ceases to love his wife just because it is his nature to be fickle, because he lacks stability of character and is lured by every fresh face. Sometimes neither husband nor wife is to blame. They were just constitutionally antagonistic and had nothing in common. They had nothing with which to feed the fire of love and so it burned out.

But for whatever reason a husband and wife cease loving each other it is not age, and if wives would devote the same amount of time and energy to trying to understand their husbands and jolly them along that they do to trying to keep themselves young they would have less need to be afraid of the flappers.

But you are wise to have put on your stepping-out clothes instead of mourning when you found out that your husband was a-weary of you. It does no good to weep over spilt milk, nor to bewail recreant men. Tears and reproaches do not bring back the straying husband, and the best thing that a wife can do under such circumstances is simply to accept the situation and get the most she can out of life.

She has had her romance. Let her thank heaven for her bit of angels' food, and fortunately at middle life one does not crave sweets so much as one did in one's youth. One loses one's taste for candy and can get along quite comfortably on roast beef medium rare, with bread and potatoes.

So you are very wise to take the good the gods provide for you, to make friends with the young people with whom you come in contact and to feed your hungry heart on the love of others. I know a few old people who have done this and they hold a veritable court among the young, who come to them to confide their loves and hopes and ambitions, to bewail their sorrows and rejoice in their triumphs.

There are such a lot of things in the world besides sentimental love if only women could be brought to realize it! —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a daughter of 15. She is acquainted with a young man and she has asked me if she may have him call at the house, but I think she is too young to have dates. I have found out that she goes with him every chance she has without my knowing it, but I can't keep her in the house all the time. Please tell me what you think I should do.
—TROUBLED MOTHER.

Answer—It is quite common for girls of 15 nowadays to have dates. Of course, it is too young. It would be much better if they would wait until they are 17 or 18, but you must remember that everything has been speeded up in this age, and that the present generation of girls are really as old and sophisticated at 15 as their mothers were at 20.

Your problem, however, is not what should be, but what is. Your daughter is determined to see this young man whether you approve or not, and this being the case, it is a million times better for her to receive him at home with your approval than to deceive you and meet him on the sly on the street.

If he comes to your house to see her you give her a background and protection of home. You chaperon her. You have the opportunity to find out what kind of a boy he is, and you will also be able to influence her, because she will feel that you are giving her a fair deal.

I do not think there is any other thing in the world that parents can do that puts their daughters in such a dangerous position as to refuse to let them have their company at home. It literally throws them out on the street and sends them to all sorts of low places for their amusements. No boy treats the girl that he visits at her home as he treats the girl who climbs out of a window to meet him at the corner. No boy takes a girl from her own home to the kind of places he takes the girl that he picks up on the corner.

So let your daughter have her company at home if you want to keep her safe.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a boy 18 years old and I am so much in love with a girl that I am about to go crazy, but she won't marry me. She says she loves me, and she likes to have me come to see her all the time, but she won't marry me. Don't you think she would if she really loved me? Please advise me what to do, for I am in misery.
—ROY.

Answer—Well, Roy, if I were you and that much in love with a girl, I would hustle out and try to make myself the sort of a man a nice girl would want to marry.

Evidently you are a good picker, and this girl of yours has sense. She knows that, however much she may like you and however much you may fire her fancy, you are not fit to marry now. You are an undeveloped boy. You do not make enough money to support a family and if you got married now you wouldn't have the ghost of a show of making your marriage a success. You would repent it in six months and take out your disappointment by being irritable to your wife.

So this sensible girl doesn't propose to let herself in for anything like that. She is going to wait and see what sort of a man you develop into and whether you will still be in love with her when you are 23 or 24 years old. She is going to wait until you show that you can make enough money to keep a roof over her head and food in her mouth. Because (she refuses to be rushed into an untimely marriage is no indication that she doesn't love you. It merely shows that she has self-control, prudence, foresight and good hard horse sense, and they are mighty desirable attributes in a wife.

So if you want the girl roll up your sleeves and go to work to win her. She is worth it.
—DOROTHY DIX.

SURELY do feel ignorant.

And I am, too, for the two weeks' of aimlessness usually called a vacation have passed without a single moment spent in perusing a newspaper.

Things are going along swimmingly, however—even the typewriter keys were not in the accustomed places. Mercy, but tomorrow and the next several tomorrows are work days, and all matters will be straightened out quite accurately before the next vacation comes.

That's a queer sensation, not to have any idea what the world is talking about, what persons have been put aside by the force of circumstances, how things political and non-political are progressing and why.

Which brings even a newspaper slaveling to the conclusion that the world would be pretty dumb without the press.

And to come so recently from places where there are real sure enough forests, to the land of cactus and mesquite, is another queer feeling.

THANKS, Devoted Slave, I'll soon be a veritable Toots. But the next time you write me a note, please don't leave it in the typewriter all day where everybody in the office reads it before I get a slant at it. At least four persons told me of the contents of that note, today, before I reached the upstairs region of the office.

And you must come and see me sometime, too, Devoted Slave. Toots has the advantage of me. She has seen her mysterious admirer.

CHIC CHERIE (Copyr't. 1928 King Features Syn., Inc.) LATEST FASHIONS

Charming of Andy to send flowers to welcome Cherie back to the city. And since he is coming over this evening she'll wear some of them—in the meantime they wouldn't exactly suit her costume of printed transparent velvet with its sleeveless jacket and its blouse of crepe. The suit is brown and orange.

The flowers were pink. Here are more pink flowers, from Eustace. So nice of him. Cherie will have to wear some of them when Eustace calls this evening. Dina's frock (you will be interested to know) is of black transparent velvet with a daisy print in yellow and white. It's made with tunic lines and a flounced skirt.

So lucky they both sent pink roses. Cherie can wear a few on her shoulder with perfect courtesy to Eustace and Andy and perfect harmony with her printed velvet evening gown of rose and ivory. It has a full period skirt dipping lower in back than in front and, as you can see, a smoothly swathed hipline. Dina's evening gown—yes, another printed sheer velvet—is pale yellow with orange printed flowers. The summer vogue of yellow is being carried over into fall that's because its the best color to go with sunburn and tan and it ought to be smart until everyone gets thoroughly bleached out—say until Christmas.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"Look," she said, pointing to a sign "Summer Garden Open," "let's eat here." He seemed skeptical, but delighted at the idea she hurried in. The main dining room was quite deserted, but an arrow pointed to the summer garden in the rear.

The old-fashioned back yard had disappeared, the red brick of the next door building and the high board fence had been painted apple green, and the floor was planked over except for a long narrow flower bed in the center. This was decorated with a row of mayonnaise jars inverted, sunk in the ground and painted green and white. Three ferns and two seashells were planted in the flower bed.

"Isn't it adorable?" she said, as they settled themselves at a corner table. "You'd never believe you were in the heart of the city.

"I wonder how you keep the flies off," he said, as he chased one out of the sugar bowl."

"It's just like Europe," she enthused. "Only the pictures always show them eating in the front there, right on the street, and here you eat in these gardens in the back."

"I think it's going to rain," he suggested, and they both looked up. The top of the summer garden was covered over with wire netting and small branches of trees and sprays of ivy were scattered over it, to give, presumably, a more gardenish aspect.

A waiter hurried out into the garden and presented each with a napkin. As they waited for their soup a piano began in the apartment house which backed on the summer garden, and a gentleman's voice sang out, "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling."

"Two lamb chops!" shouted a waited into the kitchen door.

It was not a hot night, in fact the wind had blown up from the northwest and carried a fall chilliness.

"Never mind, piping hot soup will be marvelous," she said as he buttoned up his jacket and fished a black speck out of her tumbler of water.

The soup, when it finally came, might have been iced consumme and his plate had an ivy leaf floating on top.

"I wonder if it's poison ivy," he mused as he fished this out also.

"Don't be silly, dear," she said. "I think this is grand."

The singer continued, two neighboring radios, each with a different station, joined in, two interested spectators from the apartment house opened their windows wide, parked pillows on the window ledge and casually watched the diners enjoying their evening meal.

"Too darned public," he said. "I feel as if I were demonstrating a safety razor."

Suddenly there was a howl from above and the spectators laughed loudly. Two cats, a black and white one and a large Maltese, were rolling over and over on the wire netting. Green leaves, dead leaves, dirt and rust from the netting showered down, the waiters shouted and hit at the wire netting with their napkins, but the cat fight continued. A drop of rain fell.

The young man grabbed his hat with one hand, his friend with the other and made for the door.

"Yes," she answered meekly. "But in Europe they all eat out."

"We eat in," he announced. Ten minutes later they were established at his favorite restaurant.

"That's the last New York City picnic we try."

Every generation seems to produce a type called theatrical mourners. Every now and then we hear the modern theater decried because of its lack of art. Way back in the 60's there was one theatrical mourner who perpetuated his disappointment in the theater of his day by writing a book. His name was Mathew Hale Smith, and in "Sunshine and Shadow," published in 1869, he said:

"The performers in our theaters scarcely rise to the dignity of the second rate actors. Billiards, cards, costly parties, clubs and dissipation take the place of paygoing. We have numerous sensation playhouses where small actors perform small plays written by small men. But the era of sterling drama and talented actors is in the past, perhaps never to return."

All this was said when Edwin Booth opened his own theater that very year! In addition, the theater then had such luminaries as James H. Hackett playing in his famous role Falstaff, John McCullough, John T. Raymond, Charlotte Cushman, Joseph Wheelock and others.

Amelia's Profession

IF THE GRANDPARENTS of the well-known Amelia Earhart could have foreseen the short career their descendant would have they doubtless would have been stupefied beyond the power of speech.

In their day no woman ever sought a "career" unless impelled by bitter necessity; and then the only things open to her were such jobs as governess, seamstress and schoolma'am.

But Miss Earhart blithely flies across the Atlantic and then accepts a job as associate editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, to handle a new department devoted to aviation.

Verily, there is a great gulf between the status of the young woman of today and the young woman of her grandmother's girlhood.

The Sailor's Duty

A CREW of seamen from the Cunard liner Mauretania recently beat boat crews from five other transatlantic liners in a grand cutter race in New York harbor—reminding us that the sailor of today, no less than his predecessor of the old sailing ships, needs to be proficient in the handling of small boats.

Steam, wireless and gyroscopic compasses have made the sea an easier place to travel; but in the last analysis all rests on the sailor. If he fails, the finest boat in the world can go down. The liners' officers are justified in keeping up the old boat drills. Nothing can ever replace seamanship.

Driving 80 Miles An Hour

A NEW YORK society couple recently bet that they could drive their automobile to Boston in less time than the fastest train between the two cities required. They did it and won their bet; but the Massachusetts state police are looking for them, because they broke so many speed laws.

The driver, interviewed by reporters, is quoted as saying complacently that "we had her up around 80" a good part of the time. He admitted that they "had a few narrow escapes," but said they got through unharmed.

All automobile drivers should hope that the police get hold of this pair. Skimming over main roads at 80 miles an hour is little less than idiocy. No man had the right to endanger other motorists in that way. A short jail sentence might persuade this wealthy thrill-seeker that trying to beat fast trains with an automobile is not a sport that any community can countenance.

September's Promise

IT IS high time that someone exploded the old traditions about spring and fall.

Spring is supposed to be the season of hope, inspiration and the full-flowing life, while autumn is generally accepted as the time of decay and despair. We take it for granted that we are to be vibrant in April and melancholy, not to say despondent, in September. And it is time somebody snapped us out of it.

September, for all except college sophomores and young men in love, is as fine a month as you could ask for. Chiefly, there is the matter of the sunrise.

Dawn, in September, does not come at any disgracefully early hour. It waits until the householder is stirring; then it unfolds itself, not with the flaming pennons and thundering trumpets of spring, but quietly and with restraint, as if it sought to make its appeal to sober maturity. It does not try to take one by storm, does not force its beauty on one's attention; it simply is there, pervading the east peacefully and with serenity.

To be sure, a September dawn lacks the wild promise of spring; but what of that? The promises of spring, for the most of us, are made only to be broken. The year never fulfills what April foretells, April is a cheat and a flatterer, and in time we see through her. There never yet was a spring flower that failed to wither beneath the scorching sun of August.

September is wiser and more restrained. There is no flamboyant deception in her clear morning air, no false hint that the world is about to be remade. That wouldn't go down. We have grown too wise. We know, when September comes, that the world will always wag much as it always has; but we are resigned to it. The autumn wind, just touched with frost, drifts idly in from ripening fields and heavy-laden orchards, and it is redolent of an earth grown peaceful. It is chilly, at times, foretelling winter; but that does not matter. We can stand it. September is our breathing space.

For autumn, and September in particular, is after all, a time of promise. In the serene, sober beauty of the countryside, and in the clear amber of its paling skies, there lies an assurance that can never be got out of books. This assurance, stealing quietly into the contemplative hearts of diverse, struggling toilers, does not deal with spring's fabulous rebirth and resurrection. It goes deeper than that. It hints of a life that transcends resurrection and rebirth. For a moment a curtain is drawn aside and we get a glimpse of eternity.

And that is enough. What if January will come presently, to reveal the cold ramparts of undying night? We know that that is a sham. We have seen the September dawns, and the threats of winter cannot scare us.

RELIEVING STRAIN ON CITY SCHOOLS

Our schools must keep pace with those elsewhere, and with growing needs. As Childress grows it will relieve strain if there are more accredited high schools out in the county, so that fewer outside students need attend the school here.

Eventually plans will be made for a junior college in Childress. It will, in a way, mean increased expense, but it will make available college work for a larger number of our students at a much reduced cost to the individual. —Childress (Tex.) Daily Index.

ASTUTE MR. FERGUSON

James E. Ferguson is an astute politician. Regardless of the outcome of political campaigns in which he is participating or is interested, he is ready with a timely statement which does much to further his cause.

In backing Senator Mayfield for re-election, Ferguson made an error, and candidly admitted that he took "a blame good licking." However, he recalled that six years ago he was the bitter opponent of Mayfield, and explained the voters realized the truth of what he had formerly said six years too late. Leave it to Jim Ferguson to have the last say. —Denton (Tex.) Record-Chronicle.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — Fontaine Fox

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

Who's Who in the Story

Old Winthrop Martenet, famed but eccentric scientist, who died seven years before the story opens, was survived by

Maxwell Martenet, his rather colorless son, who mysteriously disappeared and has been given up for dead for the last four years by

Julia, his wife, and

Hannan, his son, who inherits his grandfather's strength of character. On his return from abroad, Hannan is given a letter by

Mr. Curry, the family lawyer, written by Old Winthrop himself, warning the young man against

Horace Peters, and finishing with the command, "Don't open the iron door until the clock stops." At Valhalla Notch, Old Winthrop's mountain estate, a strange clock and an iron door guard the secret which Ernest Mallingham endeavors unsuccessfully to discover. His attempts to stop the clock by dynamite finally bury the house, with all its guests, in a landslide.

Viola Lane, pretty but mysterious girl, also tries to unravel the mystery.

John Breck, the caretaker.

Runty Duck, a guest.

Kate Wynne, a maid, and

Dr. Speck, a physician, all try vainly to penetrate the secret of the iron door.

Creaking Shoes

It was 10 o'clock at night, but night or day had little meaning in an entombed house where the light of day never reached. Hannan, greatly strengthened after a long sleep, sat staring absently at Viola Lane's little pistol.

"I'll get her a pearl-handled one some day," was his thought.

He wondered what was keeping Viola. She had promised to come in and see him before she retired for the night. The dinner must have been over long ago, and he was anxious for news. Perhaps something unusual had happened again. Perhaps Viola had discovered a pair of creaking shoes. He felt a desperate longing for her stimulating companionship.

"Yes," he murmured, contemplating the simple handle, "she ought to have a pearl-handled one. All heroines should—"

He pricked up his ears. He sat listening for a moment, then hurriedly blew out the candle and lay down as if composing himself for sleep. In a few moments his deep, even breathing would have convinced any casual listener that he was in slumber land. The noises overhead had subsided into an intermittent squeaking and grinding, so there was little to disturb him.

A clear chime fell on the uneasy stillness of the house, reaching Hannan's room in tones subdued by heavy walls. The chime died away. An interval of silence came. Then a sound, much too faint to disturb a sleeping man, rasped lightly on the darkness.

Ever so slightly the door squeaked on its hinges. Muffled footfalls approached Hannan's bed. But still Hannan appeared to hear nothing. Far from being disturbed by the footsteps, he was talking in his sleep.

"Funny about that clock. Never stops — Yes, she ought to have a pearl-handled one. Hope Curry swallows that wooden cigar. No. Peters, the great Horace never said anything like that. What's happened to Old Blighty? In a terrible rage over something. I knew all the time she wasn't a pickpocket." A few prolonged intakes of breath a drowsy mumble, then in a clear, wide-awake voice: "Careful, Pelly. I wouldn't come a step closer if I were you. I can hear you, even if I can't see you. My ears have a pretty keen trigger sense."

A mutter of vexation sounded in the darkness.

"Sit down, Pelly, but don't come any closer," Hannan added pleasantly. "What you need is a thorough bumigating. Beats everything how tobacco sticks to a fellow's togs. You are a walking advertisement for your brand of cigarets. And you walk so softly, Pelly. I suppose you didn't want to disturb my slumber. Awfully considerate of you. No, don't move, Pelly. This pistol may go off."

With that Hannan reached over and lighted the candle. Mallingham, his face darker than usual, stood a few paces aside.

"I suppose you've come to shoot me again, eh, Pelly? It's getting monotonous. Why do people want to shoot holes in me?"

"Don't be a fool, Martenet." Mallingham spoke gruffly as he seated himself. "I don't want to shoot you. I've decided you aren't important enough. I just dropped in to see how you were getting on."

"That's sweet of you, Pelly." Hannan sat on the side of the bed and dangled the pistol playfully. "So different from the cold shoulder and the gelid eye you gave me once. By the way, Pelly, guess why I pretended to be asleep when you walked in. I wanted to listen."

"Listen to what?"

"Your shoes."

"My——what?"

"Your shoes, Pelly. I was curious to know if they creaked."

"What sort of drivel are you talking?"

"I discovered they don't freak," said Hannan soberly. "So that's that."

"And suppose they had?"

"Well, that would be telling. By the way, did you see anything of my bodyguard as you walked in?"

"Who? Oh, you mean John Breck. No, he wasn't at his post. He must have been called away." Mallingham regarded him silently for a moment. "Martenet, I didn't come here just to inquire about your health."

Hannan gave a mock sigh. "Now you spoil it. I thought this was to be the beginning of a beautiful friendship. Now you tell me you came here with an ulterior motive. Well, let's have it."

Mallingham seemed to choose his words carefully.

"I wish you would appease my curiosity on one point. You dropped out of sight in New York shortly after your arrival there. You turn up here at Valhalla Notch with a wound in your shoulder. How come?"

"Oh, that's simple enough. I was pitched headlong into a mass of mysteries the moment I arrived in New York. I had an idea the solution was to be found at Valhalla Notch. That's why I came here. Anything else, Pelly?"

"Yes, where does Miss Lane come in?"

"Wish I knew!" said Hannan with heart-felt sincerity.

Mallingham gave him a sharp look. "Has any one told you what happened at dinner tonight?"

"No. Hope Peters didn't choke on a fishbone."

"No, nothing as unexciting as that."

"Then what—" Hannan suddenly jerked himself straight. "Did anything happen to—to Miss Lane?"

Mallingham's lips curled in a sneer. "No, nothing has happened to Miss Lane. Providence protects fools and pretty women. It isn't such a prodigious task, for the two are often one."

"What has happened, then?"

"I don't think I shall tell you, after all. You are still an invalid, and the news may excite you. There is another topic I want to discuss with you. Last time we referred to the subject, you told me you had no idea how the iron door may be opened safely."

"And I haven't," said Hannan flatly. "Even if I had, I wouldn't tell you."

Mallingham regarded him searchingly. "I'm inclined to believe you." he said coldly. "My first impression was correct. You are just a bumptious fool. Good-night."

"Sweet dreams," said Hannan. He grinned as Mallingham walked out. For a little while he sat alone and then the door opened again to admit Viola.

Viola gave Hannan a keen, anxious glance.

"How is the shoulder?"

"Better," said Hannan, "but it needs the sunshine of your smile to heal it completely."

"Well, I'm afraid that's about the only treatment it will get from now on. Dr. Speck is gone."

"Gone? Where?"

She told him. She also related what had happened to Runty Dick. Hannan sat up straighter and straighter.

"That sounds bad. Then there is an actual menace behind the iron door?"

"We knew there was, didn't we?"

"Yes, but I wondered— Goodness! Runty Dick and Dr. Speck both! There must be something terrible behind that door. Has anybody tried to find out what happened to Runty and the doctor?"

"No. After what's happened everybody seems to look upon the iron door as a sort of death trap. Nobody shows any inclination to investigate. Besides, they think that the fates of Runty Dick and Doctor Speck are already settled and that nothing can be accomplished. Anyway, they've had other things to think about since then. Something even stranger happened at dinner. She paused for a moment. "Hannan, do you believe in ghosts?"

"Gracious! What's coming now? Have you seen one?"

"No, that's just it. I heard one. The others did, too." While Hannan's eyes grew wider and wider she related what had happened at the dinner table. He sat silent, staring at her, for a long time after she had finished.

"Spookiest thing I ever heard of," he remarked in a dull tone.

"That's what it was—spooky. No other words describes it."

"It was a human voice? You are sure of that?"

"Absolutely. Human footsteps, too. And Mr. Mallingham said afterward that the—er—ghost stood so close to him that his hand touched Mr. Mallingham's sleeve. Once, when he leaned backward, he could even feel his breath. Oh, it was real enough—all except the invisible part. And then there was another strange thing. There were two candles on the table—a red and a green one. While I sat looking at them, the green one faded away. No, it was no hallucination. It actually faded out of sight. But the flame remained. It hung suspended in the air. B-r-r! It was terrible creepy."

Hannan blinked his eyes as if doubting whether he was quite awake. "The candle vanished—but the flame was still there? Are you sure?"

"Yes, and sane, too. That's what you are doubting, isn't it—my sanity?

"But two others saw the same thing, and all the rest heard the footsteps and the voice. One of us might have been suffering from a hallucination, but not all."

"I know. It sounds crazy—but it must be so. Gee! My head's spinning. What did his invisible nibs talk about?"

"The most startling thing he said was that the murderer of Mr. Curry was at the table. He said he was looking straight at him. He said the man would be punished, too."

"How did the crowd take that?"

"I was too excited to notice."

"What did the voice sound like—young or old, strong or weak?"

"Oh," said Viola after a moment's hesitation. I'm afraid I was too upset to notice such things." She recalled what Mallingham said afterward about recognizing the voice and how violently his remark had excited Julia Martenet. If her suspicion were correct—and what a staggering suspicion it was!—It was best that Hannan should not hear of it until he was stronger.

"To think I am missing all that excitement!" He groaned peevishly. "Well, I refuse to be an invalid for long."

"Then you must try to put these things out of your mind for the present. Let's talk about something pleasant."

"About you, then."

She shook her head emphatically. "Well, then, tell me how everybody is behaving."

"They are practicing the art of self-deception—trying to act as if everything was all right. Mr. Peters was cracking jokes when I left the company."

"And quoting Horace, I'll wager."

"Yes, but he isn't very convincing. He is frightened clear through. Mr. Hefflinger—that's the big man from Boston—was playing checkers with Huggies, the butler. His wife is looking after Kate, the maid. She grew hysterical when Dr. Speck disappeared. John is telling stories to two of the ladies. It seems there can be no social distinctions under a cracked roof."

"And what is the general outlook?"

"I heard John say this afternoon that he had made a tour of what is left of the house and that it looked as if it might stand up a while longer. But the food supply is running low, and some of the people seem to have difficulty in breathing. The men have looked everywhere for an opening, but there seems to be none. It looks as if—but there I go again. We decided to be cheerful."

Hannan looked into her hazel eyes. There was a shy, whimsical smile in them, partly dimmed by overhanging shadows.

"I wonder," he said musingly, "if the sun is going to shine tomorrow. I feel it is, somehow. If Old Blighty could see you now, he would be ashamed of what he has done to us."

"Delirious again!" Viola exclaimed with mock gravity.

"That's your fault. No; don't run away. It's a—a nice kind of delirium. Viola, you are not a bit afraid, are you?"

"No—not afraid. Only nervous. I just can't believe that the worst is going to happen."

"Neither can I. I want to live a long time—long enough to clear up the mystery in those eyes of yours. That'll take most of a lifetime."

"Hush! Invalids shouldn't discuss inflammable subjects."

"Viola, you are the sweetest, most wonderful—"

"That will do." She placed her little hand over his mouth. "I have always heard that invalids are impressionable. Now, I know it. I am neither sweet nor wonderful. You don't know anything about me. Some day you may despise me—"

"And make violent love to you. Just wait till my shoulder heals. That's where your little brown head belongs."

Viola gazed at him gravely. "You are just a boy, Hannan Martenet. That's what you are—just a boy. I don't know what to do with you. Yes, I do, too. I'm going to—"

Bending over quickly, she kissed him lightly, then fled.

The library was dark and deserted. Evidently the company had gone in search of whatever rest they could find. John Breck was not at his post outside Hannan's door, and she resolved she would have to speak to him about it. She moved lightly along the wall, fumbling for the couch, and deciding she might as well spend the night there as anywhere else.

Suddenly she paused. Some one had just entered at the opposite side of the room. With a quickening pulse beat she listened to the footsteps.

The newcomer's shoes creaked!

TEN BRIDGES BEING BUILT

Three Structures Recently Completed in State

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—Ten new state highway bridges are now under construction, plans are being prepared or have been completed on 10 others, and three bridges have just been completed, according to information compiled by G. G. Wickline, bridge engineer for the highway department.

Plans already are under way for a celebration in which all counties between Houston and Austin will take part, to mark the completion of the $330,000 highway bridge over the Brazos on the Houston-Austin highway between Waller and Washington counties. This bridge is under construction, and the work is progressing at an excellent rate. Mr. Wickline said this bridge will be opened during the spring of 1929.

Wilbarger Bridge

Other bridge projects under construction now are: Reinforced concrete pile bridge across Pease river in Wilbarger county, virtually complete.

Neches river bridge on highway 43, near Anderson-Cherokee county line; bridge over Spring creek, highway 19, Harris-Montgomery county line; timber trestle over Sandy creek, Wise county; concrete girder bridge over Morgan creek, Mitchell county; floodway bridge, timber, in Cameron county; steel bridge over Neuces river in Zavalla county and concrete girder bridge over Comal river in New Braunfels, Comal county.

Other Projects

Bridges awarded within the past month and in prospect for awards in the near future include: Brushy creek, Milam county, highway 43; Village creek, Hardin county, highway 40; Brady creek, McCulloch county; Garcia creek, Victoria county; Cibolo river, Wilson county, highway 81; Cibolo river between Bexar and Guadalupe counties, highway 8; Brazos river, Hood county, on highway 10; Trinity river, between Walker and Trinity counties, on highway 19; another across Trinity river, on highway 3 in Liberty county.

The three bridges which were completed during the past few months were the San Jacinto river bridge in Harris county, on highway 8; White Rock creek bridge in Trinity county, highway 94, and a bridge over Pease river in Wilbarger county.

Terrell Talks For Demo Ticket

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—George B. Terrell, renominated for his fifth term as state agricultural commissioner, declared his support of the Democratic national ticket and reviewed efforts to secure consolidation of agricultural work in Texas in a statement issued here before he went to Dallas to attend the Democratic state convention.

Mr. Terrell declared opposition to the Democratic national ticket cannot be based on dislike for the views of Gov. Alfred E. Smith. "If Morris Sheppard, author of the 18th amendment, can loyally support Smith, regardless of his views on prohibition, it seems to me that the opposition to him is based upon some other grounds."

The agricultural commissioner declared he has consistently advocated unification of agricultural work in the state, on the grounds of efficiency and economy, pointing out the former department of markets and warehouses is now administered in his department for $108,000 a year less than for the same work conducted as an independent department.

Livestock Receipts at Kansas City in Record

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 10. (INS)—The heaviest receipts of cattle here this year was made today when 30,000 head were received. A new high mark for the year on yearling steers was set despite the heavy marketing at $17.25 per hundred pounds in the active trade at the stockyards today.

The previous record run this year was 28,826 head of cattle received Aug. 20.

Hogs reached $12.80. A new high since October 1926.

Sheep receipts were also the heaviest of the year as 17,100 head arrived.

Darwin's Theories Rivaled by Coming Disclosures to Be Made By Scientist

Noted Physiologist Expected to Solve Age-Old Mysteries of Life, Death and Origin

LONDON, Sept. 10. (UP)—Prof. A. V. Hill, noted physiologist, apparently is on the threshold of solving important features of the age-old mystery of life and death, the Evening Standard's correspondent telegraphed today from Glasgow, where the British Association for the Advancement of Science is meeting.

The statement said Prof. Hill, by studying the muscles and nerve cells of the human body, had reached startling conclusions about the difference in sources of energy between human beings and machines, as well as varying reasons for the disintegration of the body and death.

The correspondent forecast "a scientific sensation" when the details are disclosed. He said it was extremely probable that the discoveries of Hill would lead to as great a conflict of opinion as Darwin's theories aroused.

The correspondent continued, "it is premature to specify the exact advance registered by Professor Hill," but hinted that what already has been achieved "may concern even the origin of life."

The correspondent said the discoveries probably would be made public almost immediately.

Oxygen Falls

Professor Hill's conclusions are based on the fact that when the human mechanism runs down, with consequent death, the cause is the failure of the oxygen supply. That leads to interruption of oxydization, has its effect on the molecular structure and causes death. The interruption, however, is something very different from that which takes place when an internal combustion engine runs out of petrol. While such an engine is not destroyed by the stoppage, the human mechanism is. "Apparently disintegration prevents the all-important process of oxydization."

Professor Hill, who is 41, won the Nobel prize for medicine in 1922.

Discussion Renewed

The announcement of Hill's supposed discoveries came just as Britain was engaged in a renewal of the recent national discussion of life after death. The subject was brought to the fore in two addresses made yesterday by the two foremost students of spiritualism in England—Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Lodge, in a scientific sermon at Wellington church in Glasgow, affirmed his belief in life after death and in "one single mind" that controls the universe.

"It is a most solemn thought, but I believe it true," he said. "We cannot go out of existence even if we wanted to. The material body returns to the earth while we ourselves, as souls or spirits or identities, continue.

"How do I know we persist after we have left the body? I know by direct experience. What I have ascertained in this connection is that those whom we call dead are not dead, but just separated from the bodily mechanism.

"I have been in touch with the minds of certain people who have parted from their bodies," continued Doyle.

Spiritual Bodies

"How can the mind get in touch with us when it has no material body? It borrows some material form, but that does not mean that spirits have no bodies. They have substantial bodies, not made of matter but, as I think, of ether. My experience after 50 years is that this is the truth.

"People who have parted from their bodies demonstrate that they preserve their memories, characters and affections. Their love continues and they only hope that we will not grieve for them unduly."

Lodge said that the light from some stars takes 140,000,000 years to reach us.

"Although we are looking at the far distant past," he continued, "our eyes see masses wherein the same atoms exist, which contain the same chemical elements and which are obedient to the same laws. What does this show? It shows that the whole universe is maintained by one single mind which brought it into existence."

MOTOR DESCENDS

Plane's Engine Drops to Earth; Pro Cops Survive

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 10.—John Wood and Oscar Wallace, two of Uncle Sam's flying prohibition officers, ran into something more than bootleg near here when the motor of the plane in which they were scouring for rum runners suddenly jarred loose from its bed and plunged earthward. Although they were flying at an altitude of 8,000 feet when the motor parted company with the plane the two flying dry sleuths volplaned to a safe landing in a cotton patch. Both escaped injury.

LIGHTED ROADS GIVEN THOUGHT

Dallas-Fort Worth Stretch May Be Illuminated

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—A two-mile lighted stretch of state highway between Dallas and Fort Worth may point the way toward a new form of highway improvement.

Possibility that the state in future may light up main highway arteries of heaviest travel, to make night driving safer, has been suggested.

A plan to place red signal lights in the paving curb on sharp curves, the lights to be operated either by electricity or buried acetylene tanks, has also been suggested.

The placing of arc lights above the Dallas-Fort Worth road is said to be a private undertaking, handled by a company which will seek to interest the counties or the state in lighting main highways. It has been suggested that on lighted stretches burning of headlights on cars would be prohibited, thus reducing the danger from blinding other drivers.

Such a lighting system, it was said, could be practical only on heavily-traveled stretches, such as the Houston-Galveston highway, the Beaumont-Port Arthur stretch, the Dallas-Fort Worth road and perhaps others, such as the short stretches between towns on the Harlingen-Brownsville paved highway.

BRIAND PAINTS PEACE PICTURE

Arms Competition Does Not Exist, He says

GENEVA, Sept. 10. (UP)—Competition in armaments no longer exists, and not a single parliament in Europe would dare to propose unlimited increase in armaments, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France told the League of Nations assembly today.

Two questions dominate the present assembly—the rights of minorities and reduction of armaments, he said. It was regarded as significant that Chancellor Hermann Mueller of Germany, had stressed the same point in a speech a few days ago.

"Only the existence of the league has prevented the occurrence of several conflicts since the close of the war," Briand said. "It constitutes today our greatest safeguard for peace in giving us the means and the machinery for settling questions which, otherwise would threaten peace."

Briand said there were no secret clauses embodied in the Anglo French naval agreement.

"Statesmen attending this assembly are not party politicians but men who must take account of every factor that could affect world peace," Briand said.

Briand complimented Mueller on the international spirit of cordiality with which he collaborated at Geneva.

"It is easy to say that with the Locarno and Paris treaties nothing further prevents disarmament," Briand continued, "but every nation and every statesman feels a responsibility deeper than the popular enthusiasm which has been aroused on the subject.

"There remains, for example, in Europe one country in which despite its theatrical gesture for disarmament, its armaments, both in the number of men and amount of war material, continued to increase."

Spain, Persia and Venesuela were elected non-permanent members of the council, succeeding China, Holland and Colombia.

Spain received 46 votes for membership on the council, Venesuela 35 and Persia 40. By a vote of 3 to 10, the council declared Spain eligible to re-election, assuring her of a semi-permanent council seat.

The assembly, by a vote of 26 to 23, rejected China's application for a seat on the council. A two-thirds vote would have been needed to seat China. The result virtually assured the election of Persia.

George Evans, manager of a hotel, charged the music disturbed his guests, many of whom are hard working men who labored at night and slept during the day. Evans argued there also should be more variety in the music. Judge Carlin P. Smith listened to the program of two pieces today and took the case under advisement.

NEWS COURSE AT GRANDFIELD

School Journalism Class Wins Honors

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Sept. 10.—One course, now being taught in the local high school, is each year increasing in importance and value. Journalism, taught only by the better schools, is a vocational study that has started many successful newspaper writers on their career. In Grandfield, alone, that study has brought nearly as much honor to the city as have athletics.

Honors received by different individuals of the journalism classes since that course was adopted in the Grandfield high school five years ago, total high.

In 1926, entered in the district meet at Weatherford, the local high school journalism class won first in editorials and news story, Cuspus Dykes and Gladys Cathey winning the honors.

In 1927, Harry Jurey won first in editorial and Tylene Doss, first in news story.

For makeup and general appearance, the Hi-Life, school paper edited by the local journalism class, won the cup at Weatherford for the years of 1926 and 1927. The following year at Lawton, the paper again won a cup for first place.

The year of 1928 found the Hi-Life again in the front at the state press meet at Norman. In this contest, the Hi-Life was awarded a shield for the best paper in its class in the state. This shield was the first ever won by the local school in any scholastic event. The year previous, a second place shield was won by the Grandfield track team.

The journalism class, during its winning of the state championship, was under the tutelage of Mrs. Chas. Crawford, instructor. The course will again be taught this year by Mrs. Crawford.

Cows in Demand In Memphis Territory

MEMPHIS, Tex., Sept. 10.—A carload of Jersey milch cows is due to arrive in Memphis from Greenville next week, L. W. Lester, farmer, residing six miles east of Memphis, leaving for that place Friday to purchase the cows. Mr. Lester now has five cows in his herd but desires to build it up to greater proportions. Cows he does not keep himself will be sold to other farmers in this section at a reasonable price.

Milch cows seem to be very much in demand at the present time in this county, according to Lester, due to the stimulus that has been given the dairying industry, and he is confident that he will not have any difficulty in disposing of all the cattle that he does not intend to keep for his own use.

Grandfield Plans City Owned Park

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Sept. 10.—A committee to confer with city officials in regard to a city park, was drafted at the weekly meeting of the local Lions club, Tuesday noon. The committee, composed of Glenn Medlock, Grady Fuqua, and Dr. W. B. Price, will formulate plans for the park on the city farm, north of town.

Plans of the park call for swimming pool, which will be built of cement and will be kept filled with city water. Surplus water from the pool will irrigate the park.

Data for the construction has not been worked out but the pool and park will be erected by public subscription. The city will be asked to run a water line to the site and water will be paid for by a small cost levied on each swimmer. It is believed that the plans will be under way soon and the pool ready for use next spring. Work on the park, however, will require several years for completion.

PAYNE AND HALLAHAN LOOM AS STARTING PLAYOFF PITCHERS

FIGHTING SPUDS RATE AT 50-50

Stanton's Loss Felt But Not Irreparable

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Wichita Falls' collegiate Spudders go through a brief but brisk drill today, a final tapering-off in their conditioning for the meeting with the Houston Buffs. Having emerged second half victors despite adversities that would have wrecked clubs of less ability and courage, the men of Jim Galloway face the invasion of the Buffaloes here Wednesday and Thursday in the start of the playoff, fighting against odds, as usual, but determined and confident.

In referring to the Spudders as collegiate I am not writing that phrase because some of them do not employ garters, but prefer to roll their socks. Nor does the fact that some of the athletes go without caps or hats on occasions earn them that collegiate monicker. Rather, by collegiate, as applied to the Spudders, is meant that spirit in which they play baseball. They play their game like collegians play football, with an unquenchable enthusiasm and fighting spirit that brooks no failure. Money ball players, in other words.

It is that collegiate spirit, that ability to rise to the heights of their game at critical times, that make the Spuders 50-50 choice in the playoff, this, despite further handicaps. For they will take the field tomorrow with a rookie on first base instead of another rookie, but this one a brilliant and tried kid who indeed is good enough to go to the big leagues for a trial next spring.

Ed To Play First

The removal of a cog from a baseball machine is one to cause concern. Yet it may not be so serious as it now appears. Buck Stanton is going to be sorely missed. Indeed, the series may be won or lost right there at the place vacated by the crippled young man. On the other glove, it may be the fortune of baseball that Ed Roetz or Ed Kallina or whoever plays the bag (it doubtless will be one of the Eds) will be one of the stars of the playoff.

World series history records more than one substitute who was a star, such as George Rohe of the Chicago White Sox of 1906, and the uncertainty of baseball may decree that the position now thought weak will be a strength of the Spudders.

We at least have that hope, and while there is hope, all is not lost.

Speculation as to whom will play first base for the Spuds also is turned by fandom to the starting pitchers of the rival clubs. Bill Hallahan, the left-handed ace, doubtless will oppose George Payne, the crack Spudder right-hander, in Wednesday's opener. There seems to be little doubt that Hallahan will be nominated by Pancho Snyder. Indeed, it is on the shoulders of Wild Bill that the hopes of the Bayou city rest for a pennant. For it is figured that William must turn in a couple of wins to assure his club's triumph.

George At His Best

Payne does not overshadow his fellow hurlers as Hallahan does. But George is generally considered as about the most reliable Supdder moundman. He showed he is at his best Labor day when he let the Fort Worth Cats down with one fluke hit in a seven-inning game, and the eminent master of the screw ball is considered a fit adversary for Hallahan in a duel of the mound.

Mike Cvengros, veteran of many a big league battle and the only Spudder southpaw, looms as the likely starter if Payne does not receive Boss Jeems Galloaway's assignment. Payne, Cvengros, Steengrafe and Shores are expected to bear the brunt of the Spudder slab work. But Herb Cobb, one of five Spudders sold recently to the St. Louis Browns, may get some work to do. Herb's inexperience and youth may prevent his working in such a series, however, Joe Kiefer, who hurled eight innings of superb, winning ball against the Buffs in their last series here, and Tom Estell, who worked splendidly several innings against Dallas, give the Spudders two more reliable hurlers.

In fact, except for Hallahan, the Spudder hill corps looms superior to that of the Buffs. Galloway has seven men who can pitch winning ball and if there is any tendency among any of them toward ineffectiveness he can complete a speedy change on the hill and still have plenty of reinforecments in the bull pen.

Man for man, there's little choice between the contending clubs. And of course the fact that both are good enough to play in a playoff means that the series is a 50-50 proposition. Baseball is nothing better than that when clubs of like strength are playing.

Tickets on Sale Today

But aside from the matching of two excellent clubs, of nearly identical strength, and despite the absence from play of Stanton, the Spudders rate that 50-50, or possibly a bit better.

For the reason that they are collegiate ball players.

The Yankees encountered a collegiate ball club when they met Rogers Hornsby's fighting Cardinals. Now the farmed-out hired hands of those same Cardinals may meet their superiors in another collegiate, money nine.

I wouldn't be a bit surprised.

Six hundred reserved tickets, positively the last there is, there ain't no more, will be placed on sale this morning by the Spudder management for the games Wednesday and Thursday here. The ducats may be obtained at the Miller and Renfro drug stores after 9 o'clock this morning.

Buffaloes Leave For Games Here

Snyder Refuses to Name Starting Pitcher

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—After a brisk workout today Manager Snyder and his Houston Buffs packed their suits, gloves and war clubs and stood by until train time tonight.

They left at 11:30 for Wichita Falls, where Wednesday they will engage the slugging Spudders in the first game of the playoff series for the Texas league championship.

Asked if he expected to work "Wild Bill" Hallahan Wednesday, and Frank Barnes Thursday, Snyder said: "I haven't decided. I'm not worried so much about my pitchers. Big Jim Lindsey is in good shape now and ready to bear down."

Hitting Pleases Pancho

The way the Buffs hit Sunday against Riviere, San Antonio chunker, and the splendid pitching of Dick Whitworth were sources of gratification to the Buff skipper. Some figure Whitworth stands a fair chance to beat the Spudders and he may see service in a relief role.

This afternoon every member of the team went through extended hitting practice, with some of the boys meeting the ball squarely. Frank Barnes, wrong hander, was among the pitchers who served up offerings to the Buffs. A fast trot around the park closed the workout of the team.

Players who left for Wichita Falls were:

Catchers, Manager Snyder, Jonnard and Abbott; pitchers Hallahan, Barnes, Penner, Lindsey, Carlton, Whitworth, Carlisle Littlejohn, Carl Littlejohn; infielders Walker, Selph, Hock, Schuble, Baker; outfielders Peel, Powell, Watkins and Worthington.

Ankenman Not on Trip

Others in the party were Bel Allen, secretary of the club, and the sports editors of Houston's three daily papers.

President Ankenman will not make the trip.

All indications are that 15,000 fans will see Saturday's game here and that an overflow crowd will witness Sunday's clash providing there is one.

Virgil Oden vs. Johnny Owens, four rounds.
Bill Daly vs. Ken Adams, four rounds.
Billy Robertson vs. Tommy Mound, paperweight elimination contenders, four rounds.

Plenty of mat entertainment between two masters of the gentle art of slug and slough, and 18 rounds of scheduled boxing compose Tuesday night's athletic program at Spudder Park in Promoter Alex B. Ross' weekly sports show.

Headlining the bill is a finish contest between Joe Kopecky and Joe Parelli, who meet under New York commission rules for the best two of three falls. Both are fast and furious toe wranglers and have good followings among local mat devotees whose demands for a meeting between the two brought about the decision of Promoter Ross to match the two.

In view of a recent narrow defeat at Country Boy Owens' hands, Howard Jernigan is going to be in there throwing gloves like Harry Greb to get even in the six-round semi-final boxing match carded by Ross. Owens agreed to meet Jernigan in the return match in order to settle all doubts about his ability to turn back his foeman.

Virgil Oden meets Johnny Owens, four rounds; Bill Daly takes Ken Adams, four rounds, and Billy Robertson meets Tommy Mound, four rounds, in the other prelims.

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES TWICE

Genewich and Fitzsimmons Pitch Victories

BOSTON, Sept. 10. (AP)—The New York Giants took both ends of the first of four double-headers from the Braves today, 4 to 1, and 11 to 0. Joe Genewich shut out Boston with three hits in the second game after Fred Fitzsimmons had bested Bob Smith in a pitchers' duel in the opener. Reese got a home run for the Giants in the second game. Voight and Johnston Shoot 71 To Lead National Amateur Golf

Canadian's 72 Third and Von Elm's 74 Fourth; Champion Bobby Jones Erratic and Scores Poor 77

By FRANK GETTY

BRAE BURN COUNTRY CLUB, WEST NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 10. (UP)—George Voight of North Hills, who for several years has been rather the stepchild of amateur golf and who has been kicked unceremoniously off the threshold of several national championships, had the door flung wide open today in response to the imperious knocking of his woods and irons.

With Jimmy Johnston, the smiling, bashful, bionde Minneapolis amateur, Voight shares first place tonight among the field of 143 golfers who came to Brae Burn in quest of the national title.

Breaking par over the difficult championship course which defied the efforts of all favorites, Voight and Johnston both turned in cards of 71.

Close behind them came C. Ross Somerville, the husky Canadian champion, who equalled par figures for Brae Burn with a 72.

Far back in the pack which came questing for the title he has won three years out of the past four, Bobby Jones, the champion, finished with a 77.

Hard Course Trips Stars

The devastation which visited the score cards of some of the other popular favorites was terrible to contemplate. Brae Burn more than lived up to its reputation as the most difficult course ever laid for an amateur championship.

At the end of the first round, the experts scratched their heads in bewilderment. The performances of the leading players proved so conflicting that none could venture to say what would be the figure required to qualify for match play.

Another round of 18 holes will be played by the entire field Tuesday after which the best 32 will go out Wednesday in the championship proper.

Steadiest of all the field today, George Voight appears a real menace to the Jones dynasty. The former Washington golfer never has qualified for an amateur championship but he is practically certain to do so this time and there is no better match play among the Simon pures.

Three birdies, the result of great accuracy with his irons through the fairway, kept the North Hills amateur to the fore today.

Harrison Johnston, who was in the van for two rounds in the open championship of 1927, had one of his best days. He, too, bagged three birdies.

The "first ten," or rather eleven, at the conclusion of the first qualifying round were:

George Voight, North Hills, 35-36—71.
Harrison Johnston, Minneapolis, 34-37—71.
C. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., 37-35—72.
George Von Elm, Tam O'Shanter, 36-37—7[illegible].
D. J. Armstrong, Aurora, Ill., 37-36—73.
Don K. More, Alderwood, Ore., 36-38—74.
Fred Wright Jr., Albemarle, 35-39—74.
George T. Dunlap, Maplewood, N. H., 37-38—75.
George Dawson, Westchester-Biltmore, 37-38—75.
John D. Ames, Glenview, 37-38—75.
John B. Ryerson, Onwentsia, 37-38—75.

Among the "first ten" Voight, Von Elm and More are regarded as most likely to be in their relative positions in the standing at the end of 36 holes of qualifying play. "Jimmy" Johnston may have another good round ready for Tuesday but the Minneapolis amateur has been woefully erratic of late. The others, with the possible exception of Ross Somerville, the Canadian champion, are likely to be replaced as leaders when some of the favorites who failed to shine today settled down to work.

If Bobby Jones felt any disappointment over his poor showing, he failed to show it.

"I'll take another 77 tomorrow and be satisfied," he said to Max Marston, who replied:

"Me, too."

Hennessey Beaten In National Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10. (AP)—Upsets hurt badly as the 47th National Men's Tennis championship opened here today. United States forces took the heaviest blow in the sensational elimination of John Hennessey, first seeded American player.

"Smiling John," veteran of Davis cup play, was beaten by Dr. George King, New York, in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4. His sudden rout dumbfounded a gallery of 3,000.

George Lott and Henri Cochet, France, advanced without difficulty, the young Chicago Davis cup player defeating Pierre Landry, French newcomer, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, while Cochet won under wraps from Tommy Wilber of Bridgeport, Conn., 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

Dr. King, ranked number 12 in the country while Hennessey is number 5, always has been a dangerous foe and today he was in top form. Yet, few if any, consider him as strong a threat to the French as Hennessey was.

Cats Defeat Olney In Start of Tour

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Sept. 10.—The Fort Worth Cats won from the Olney all-stars here this afternoon, 11 to 0. The locals held the Cats to eight hits and in turn registered three hits against the Texas leaguers. Divanny allowed only two walks, while Coop walked six. Hennig replaced Coop in the sixth after the Cats had rallied and scored four runs with none out.

This was the first of a series of post season games to be played by the Cats in West Texas.

INDIANS TAKE HARD WORKOUT

Baggett Drives Squad in First Day's Practice

Snapping into real work on the first day of training, Coach E. A. Baggett drove the Wichita Falls junior college Indians through a stiff drive Monday afternoon.

Twenty men responded to the first practice and were issued new equipment. Almost half of those who were out yesterday were aspirants for backfield positions, and with a few exceptions men from last year's high school team.

Several husky linemen were on duty, and their weight it seems will end the early fears of a weak Redskin line.

Good Forward Wall

Captain Ox Edmondson, guard, appears to be in excellent condition while Eggleston Ramey, Bill Habern, Gabbert Stephens and Henry Barton, four lettermen and regulars from last year's Coyote team, seem to assure an excellent forward wall.

Jim Harvey, sub quarterback in high school, is out for the Indian team. His small size handicaps him as a ball carrier but he has a quarter's head and knows how to run a team.

Arthur Pruett, Raymond Mitchell, Bill McMillan, and John Weiler also loom as good backfield material.

Others Out Today

Baggett worked his men full time yesterday, driving them through exercises and backfield shifts.

At least a dozen men who were late in registration are expected to make their appearance Tuesday afternoon. Among them are three of Baggett's former Vernon Lions, and Tommy Hutcheson, a fast little half from Archer City and a letterman from last year.

Coach Bud McCallum gave the high school Coyotes an off day yesterday after ten days of strenuous training at Craterville Park, Okla. He and Assistant Coach Bill Morris will resume work on the park this afternoon.

A's Resume Series With Yankees Today Still in Pennant Battle

Grove Expected to Pitch Macks to Victory; Cubs and Giants Give Cardinals Something to Think About

By JOSEPH ROGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. (US)—Although the Yankees lead the Athletics by a game and a half, there are quite a few smart baseball men who believe that the Mackmen still have an excellent chance to win the American league pennant.

They believe that Grove will certainly defeat the Yanks tomorrow and that the Philadelphians have an even chance of taking the fourth game of the series Wednesday.

Even if the Yanks and the A's start on their final western tour with the former leading by a game and a half, there are many who insist that the Philadelphians will make a better showing against Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis than the Hugmen.

A's Must Halt Yanks

However, if the New Yorkers take the last two games of the series from the White Elephants, the A's will be a one to 10 shot for the gonfalon.

A lot of "grandstand" managers are criticizing Connie Mack for not derricking Rommel in the second game of yesterday's double-header and substituting Lefty Grove before Bob Meusel hit a home run, with the bases filled. But then, anyone can guess right the second time.

Cubs in Race

In the National league, the St. Louis Cardinals are anything but a cinch. The Chicago Cubs have come to the fore with a surprising rush and those who know Manager McCarthy say he will have his club fighting until all chance is lost. The Cardinal pitchers the past week have shown anything but championship form and have been dropping games when they needed them most.

Then there are the Giants who picked up two games in Boston today. Any team managed by McGraw can be counted on to battle to the end. However, outside of Benton, the Giants have no pitcher who can be counted on to finish any game he starts.

Oklahoma Cities May Enter Texas

Tulsa, Oklahoma City May Play in Our League

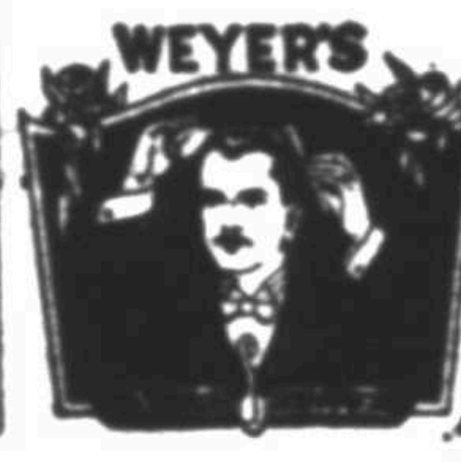

DALLAS, Sept. 10 (UP)—The 1928 Texas league season is now history. The season was brought to a close yesterday when all eight clubs wound up their schedules. All that remains, but even at that, probably the most important event of the entire season, is the playoff between Houston and Wichita Falls.

The play-off series gets under way Sept. 12, in Wichita Falls, where the first two games will be played. The teams then journey to Houston, where the remainder of the series will be fought. Both teams have practically completed their rosters for the series, having borrowed several players from other clubs in the league to fill in for players on the sick and injured list.

As far as the organization of the league for 1929 is concerned, indications are now that the eight clubs now holding membership will line-up for next season. There is a possibility that two additional clubs will be taken in, making the present circuit a ten-club organization. At the present time, the possibility is strong. Tulsa and Oklahoma City, of the Western league, may be dropped from that circuit. Other clubs of the Western league fraternity are strong for the idea because of the remoteness of the two Oklahoma cities and the great expense involved in moving in and out of them.

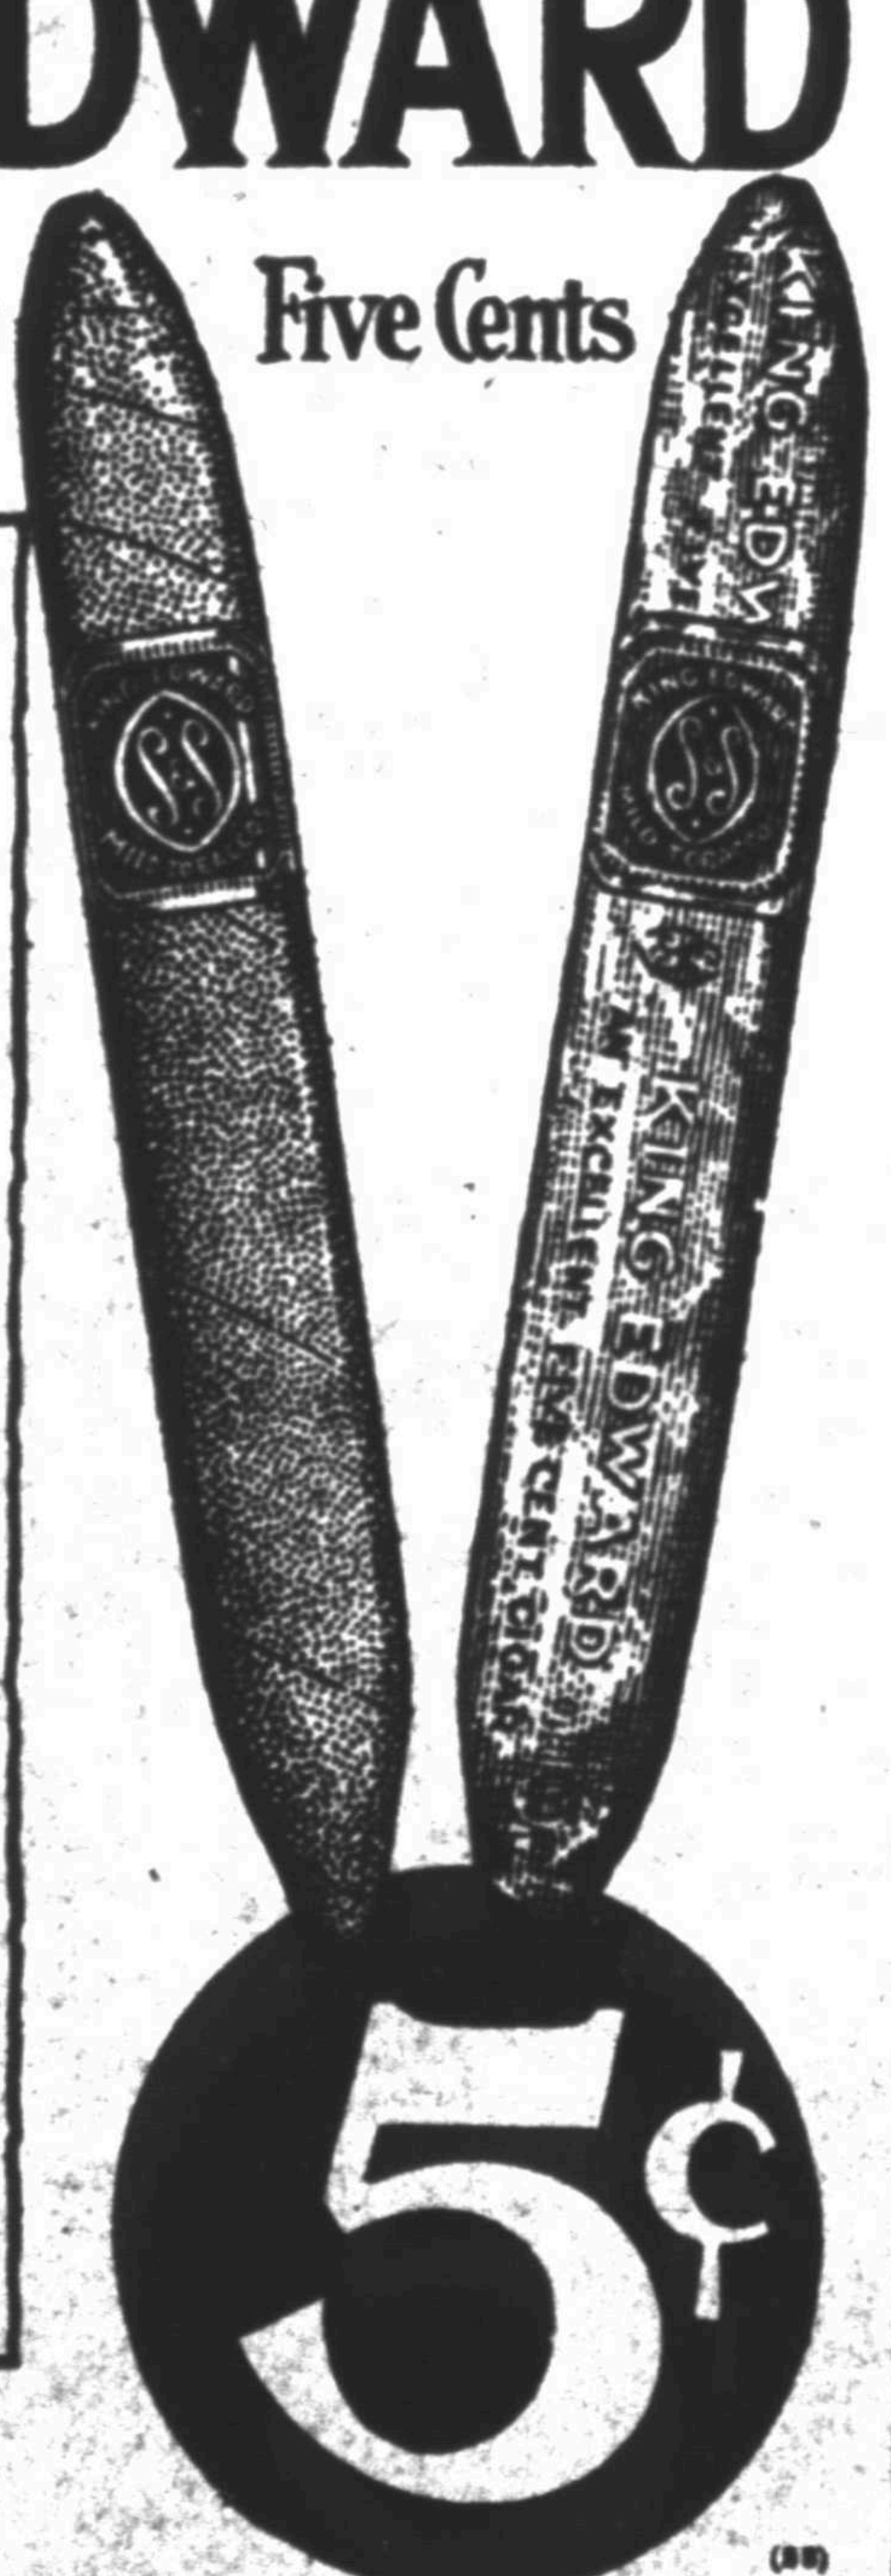

In some respects, the 1928 season has not been quite as successful as seasons past. Interest fell off soon after the start and try as they would, players and managers could not win that interest back. The explanation of the slackness on the part of the fans is attributed to the fact that only two clubs showed up to distinction during the entire season. These were Houston and Wichita Falls. Their leadership of the league has never been threatened and between those two the battle has waxed furiously.

Although the number of sales from the Texas league to the big leagues have not been quite so numerous as in past seasons, the quality of the sales has been excellent. The market season officially got under way when Carl Hubbell, Beaumont pitcher, went to the New York Giants for a reported sum of $40,000. In rapid order, deals were closed with managers and owners for Homer Blankenship, Dallas pitcher, to the Pittsburgh Pirates, for $20,000, and two players thrown in for good measure—a pitcher and an infielder, Art Shires and George Blackerby, Waco, to the Chicago White Sox, which sale price was not made public. Heinine Schuble and Frankie Barnes, Houston, figured in a $50,000 deal to the Chicago White Sox. Watwood, Shreveport, also became the property of the Pale Hose. Earl Caldwell, Waco, was sold to the Philadelphia Nationals for a reported sum of $15,000. The climax came when five Wichita Falls' players went to the St. Louis Browns. They were Tut Jenkins, outfielder, George Stanton, first baseman, Herb Cobb, pitcher, Ed Roetz, utility infielder, and Ike Danning, catcher, on option with the New Haven club of the Eastern league.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

Many Causes of Constipation

Constipation, perhaps the most usual ailment of the human family, undoubtedly leads to a serious self-poisoning from the toxins of putrefying, uneliminated waste products. The toxins of this disorder have been blamed by physicians for starting a large variety of disorders, from alopecia (loss of hair) to tarsalgia (neuralgia of the foot).

People having one movement per day do not usually consider themselves constipated, and yet they may be seriously affected by intestinal poisoning because this movement may be one, two or more days late, or it may be only partially complete. It is possible for a portion of the bowel contents to be retained in a pouch-like spot, and allow the newer material to pass by, leaving the older material to putrefy and poison the body.

Constipation is usually a very chronic disorder of years' standing, sometimes present in some degree from birth to death. The causes of constipation are numerous. The diet of our modern civilization is most at fault, since we use too many of the soft, mushy foods that do not provide enough bulky material for the bowels to act upon, and we also use these sloppy foods in such bad combinations and quantities that they readily ferment, producing a gas that balloons the bowels.

These fermenting and decaying foods produce an inflammation of the intestinal lining that seriously interferes with the passage of the food material. The gas pressure and inflammation often lead to some abnormality of the shape or position of the bowel, and weaken the constrictore muscles of the intestines so that they have not strength enough to propel the feces forward.

Inflammation of long standing sometimes reduces the lubricating material of the bowels and interferes with the internal sliding process or propulsion. Many people use a diet that is far too dry, and others have a peculiarly thirsty intestine that absorbs too much moisture. In either case, the intestine finds difficulty in pushing forward the waste to be expelled.

Where the small intestine joins onto the large one, there is a valve that is supposed to prevent the backing up of waste matter so that it can only flow forward. This valve sometimes becomes weakened and allows the putrefying contents of the large intestine to back up and return into the small intestine, where the liquid parts are absorbed auto-intoxication or self-poisoning. auto-intixication or self-poisoning. Where these conditions exist, health is impossible. Headaches, sleeplessness, inability to concentrate, melancholia, billionsness and gas are frequent symptoms.

A weakness of the abdominal muscles encourages a sagging of the intestines which frequently causes kinks and adhesions. These may seriously interfere with the passages. A badly prolapsed condition leads to a protruding lower abdomen and possibly rupture.

It is now recognized by all authorities on the subject that laxatives actually weaken the intestines and make constipation worse. They may be permitted occasionally as an emergency expedient, but must not be depended upon for a permanent cure. When a temporary aid is needed to cleanse out the bowels, enemas are the most valuable method at the service of the physician.

Tomorrow's article tells about the cure of constipation.

Questions and Answers

Question—R. H. writes: "I have been smoking cigarets for 30 years. Have tried to stop them, but cannot, as I get that feeling in the throat and cannot stop. If there is anything to take, please let me know, as I cannot sleep at night."

Answer—Start in today eating only apples whenever you are hungry. Do not take any other food—no soup, milk, crackers or anything at all except an occasional apple. Keep this up until you have lost all desire for cigarets. This apple cure usually takes only three or four days. If you attempt to smoke during that time you will find the tobacco will have a disagreeable flavor. You will soon find yourself cured of the craving for tobacco.

Question—Alice V. asks: "Will you please tell me what benefit I will receive from eating a dishful of raw carrots every day?"

Answer—The raw carrot is an excellent salad vegetable containing several of the most important organic salts and vitamins. Due to the organic arsenic, raw carrots make an excellent remedy for improving bad, pimply complexions.

Question—Mrs. A. B. asks: "Will you please state what are the hepatic disorders?"

Answer—Such disorders are derangements of the functions of the gall bladder or liver, such as gall stones, gall bladder inflammation, enlarged liver, cirrhosis, cancer of the liver, etc.

By PERCY MARMONT

Percy Marmont began his career as a barrister, but soon became an actor. In a short time, he was one of the most popular leading men in the British theater.

PERCY MARMONT

He is the descendant of a grand old English family. He says he came to America solely for the purpose of seeing the Grand Canyon. While while here, a motion-picture producer lamped some grand possibilities in him as a movie star and offered him a contract to star in the movies.

"An Englishman," Marmont told me, "was on his way home one night after having partaken of too many of his host's cocktails. He was tottering like a pendulum as he wandered along in an alcoholic fog.

"Presently he reached a lamp-post and, dropping on his hands and knees, began searching about in the grass.

"An officer approached, stopped and inquired: 'I say, old chap, did you lose something?'

"'Yes,' replied the cockney, 'lost a shilling.'

"The officer then got on his hands and knees and began assisting the wabbly one. After several moments of efficient searching, the officer said:

"'Just where did you lose the coin?'

"'Oh,' replied the other, 'about two squares back.'

"'Well, you silly old fool,' said the officer, 'why are you searching here?'

"The Englishman pointed to the street light above them. 'Because,' he replied, 'there's more light here.'"

Memphis Man Plans To Replace Landmark

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 10.—A deal was closed a few days ago in which W. M. Pounds, owner of the Pounds hotel in this city, became owner of the John Browder tenant house on North Tenth street, known to early settlers as the J. H. Fortenberry home. Pounds also purchased the nine lots adjoining the property.

The house will undergo some repairs in the near future and next spring Pounds plans to build a brick residence on the location. The present house is one of the old landmarks of Memphis.

Man Kills 'Bully' After Taking Beating

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 10. (UP)—Elisha Brockman, 41, life long friend of Frank Drinning, 54, "The bully of Glencoe hills," shot and instantly killed Drinning today after Drinning had beaten and abused Brockman for more than six hours. Brockman is being held pending the inquest Monday.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE — (396) Our Presidents

With the coming of James Buchanan of Pennsylvania to the presidency in 1857 the discussion over slavery became still more bitter. The Dred Scott decision of the supreme court declared that negroes could not become citizens and that Congress could not keep slavery out of the territories. Many states in the north helped slaves to reach Canada.

John Brown made his famous raid on the arsenal at Harper's Ferry and attempted to excite the slaves to rise and kill the whites.

Brown was captured, tried and hanged by the state of Virginia. The slavery issue flamed up as the dominating question before the country.

The Democratic party split into a northern and southern branch, the first nominating Stephen A. Douglas, the latter John C. Breckenridge. The Constitutional Union party named John Bell, while the Republicans nominated Abraham Lincoln. Though Lincoln, in 1860, did not have a majority of the popular vote, he was elected because of the numerous candidates.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—A bearish interpretation of Saturday's government crop report, combined with prospects for improved weather in the South, and weak Liverpool cables, was reflected in a severe decline in the cotton market today. December contracts, after selling off to 18.10 early, rallied to 18.27, but broke again, selling off to 18.02 in late trading, or 107 points net lower. Closing prices were the lowest of the day, with the market barely steady at net declines of 85 to 107 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 53 to 72 points under selling orders which seemed to come from all directions, evidently influenced by the government crop estimate published after the close of the New York market Saturday. Weakness in Liverpool served to strengthen the bearish view of the figures, and the market was under heavy pressure in early trading.

Trade buying and covering on scale-down orders grdually absorbed these offerings. After showing net declines of 78 to 99 points, prices rallied 10 or 15 points from the lowest. Business tapered off on this bulge, however, and the market weakened again during the afternoon under renewed liquidation, coupled with local and southern selling.

October declined to 18.22 and March to 18.00 in late trading, or about 90 to 113 points below the higher prices of Saturday.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10. (AP)—Belated selling induced by the bearish government crop report issued after the market closed Saturday was responsible for a decline of over $5 a bale in cotton prices today. The market was on the downgrade for practically the whole session with but one moderate rally. In final trading December contracts sold off to 17.45 and closed at that figure, net 109 points lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net decline of 97 to 109 points.

Liverpool cables were 46 to 50 points lower than due at the start here, the weakness in the English market being attributed by private advices to selling promoted by the government forecast. First trades here showed losses of 76 to 84 points and selling continued in large volume during the early trading and before the offerings were absorbed October traded up to 17.50, December 17.56 and January 17.57, or 98 points under Saturday's closing quotations.

The decline met some trade buying and covering and prices rallied 17 to 19 points but the failure of an expected larger short interest to develop halted the upturn and after mid-session there was a renewal of selling on the official report as well as liquidation by tired longs. Hedge selling was also much in evidence during the afternoon trading and some offerings were thrown on the market by ring traders who feared a bearish domestic consumption report at the end of the week. There was considerable purchasing of spots reported from the interior but this was offset by the rather liberal hedging.

Near the close October worked down to 17.39 and May 17.58, or 109 and 97 points, respectively, down for the day.

Bull Leaders Give Ground As Fear of Mid-Month Turnover Looms

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Stocks sold off and volume fell below the 4,000,000 share level as call money went to 8 per cent from a renewal of 7½ today. Support was evidenced that limited the reaction in most of the favorite industrials, but the fear of the mid-month turnover of funds hung over the market and bull leaders had to give ground somewhat.

Montgomery Ward continued to enjoy a cornered market of its own and closed 13¾ points higher in new record price territory. Steel, Motors, Smelting, Combustion and other active industrials dropped from 1 to 3 points while Radio sold off 8 on comparatively light turnover. Nickel held strong and after reaching new high maintained over 2 points of its gain to the close. Public Service of New Jersey stood out in the utility group. Rails were active and strong early in the day but receded with the rest of the market under the influence of money nervousness. Oils were dull but fairly steady.

Briggs met support from the new group interests. It was learned that a 250,000 share pool was formed recently to operate for the next several months. The main influence to the operation is knowledge of the improvement of earnings the company has enjoyed and the better income in prospect. Drastic write-offs and charges early in the year resulted in net of under $2 a share for the first half. Larger earnings now, however, lead to estimate that for the full 12 months the company will show at least $6 a share. The plant is running full capacity and demand cannot be met for Briggs, it is stated, now has business on hand from Dodge, Graham-Paige, Chrysler, Ford and others. It could have more business from Chrysler and Ford, it is said, if it were able to handle it.

Shubert Active

Shubert was active coincident with rumor of interest of the powerful group that has been active in Warner and other amusement stocks. There was talk of Shubert eventually being included in the organization that has been discussed that would be active in all phases of the theatrical field. Park and Tilford was in demand early following announcement of plans for expanding the business. Armour "A" was again among the leaders with operations remaining under the dominance of the western interests who recently took a substantial block of the stock.

T. and P. Prominent

Texas and Pacific stood out in the rail list with advance of over four points. Like Montgomery Ward it is technically cornered so its moves are in no way indicative of general market conditions. As soon as Missouri Pacific readjustment of capital is concluded, however, Texas and Pacific is expected to increase its dividend.

Early demand for copper shares petered out in the afternoon unsettlement although several favorable dividend announcements from copper companies are likely in the next three months. Atlantic Refining was taken in big blocks as its recapitalization is near. The Continental Can directors meet Wednesday and it is expected they will recommend a two for one split up of their shares.

All doubts as to the continuance of tight money are dissipated and the one worry of the street is how authentic is the talk of "no disturbance until after election." It is not forgotten that in the past when the treasury had just completed financing, the reserve bank has advanced its rediscount rate. The new treasury certificates should be all sold by Thursday afternoon when the local reserve bank directors meet again. Because Chicago advanced first heretofore, it is thought that action would be taken there before the local bank directors put up their rate but with funds at 7 per cent, such action could be taken at any time.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 10. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—A broad shipping demand and sharply higher prices on fresh pork cuts at eastern markets resulted in a further advance of 10@15c in hog prices at most points around the 11-market circuit; Omaha, which was relatively high last week, reported steady to slightly lower figures; the day's top of $13.35 was made at St. Louis; aggregate receipts were estimated at 77,900 as compared with 36,941 a week ago when two markets here closed at 65,528 the same day last year.

Cattle supplies of around 132,000 were 57,500 more than last Monday and 13,500 in excess of a year ago; the increased movement was attributed to last week's unevenly higher market attracting more liberal consignments of short fed and grass fat steers; trade was moderately active at most centers; choice offerings ruling steady to 25c higher and other grades going at steady to 25c lower prices; feeder buyers were a decided support to the market on grass steers and most offerings eliciting country competition showed little change; choice medium weight steers in Chicago realized $18.25, a price equal to the top last week; at the river markets better kinds of western grass steers cashed from $13.00@14.85 while off quality south westerns ranged from $9.50@12.50.

Fat lamb prices received a setback of 25@50c. Chicago had a top of $16.35 on range lambs while at Kansas City choice Utahs turned at $14.90; total offerings were estimated 152,500 against 59,992 a week ago, and 73,449 a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 10. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 700; market steady to strong; choice butchers scarce; top 12.15; paid for load 253-pound butchers; truck top $11.75; bulk desirable 170 to 200-pound weights $11.50@11.75.

Cattle—Receipts 9,000; most classes cattle about steady, general trade fairly active, some strength in cutter, low cutter cows, some dullness and weakness in butcher and beef cows, carlots slaughter steers up to $12@12.25; other sales $10@11.25. Desirable fat yearlings very scarce, one load choice fat cows $9.75; numerous sales desirable heavy stock calves $12@12.50; one load choice veal weight stock calves $13.25.

Sheep—Receipts 1,700; few sales steady; load good fat wethers $8.25; load fat goats $4.00.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 33,000, active, mostly 10c higher than Friday's average; top $13.30 for choice 185 to 210 pounds butchers; medium to choice 250 to 350 pounds $12.15@13.00; 200 to 250 pounds $12.25@13.30; 160 to 200 pounds $11.75@13.30; 130 to 160 pounds $11.40@13.10.

Cattle—Receipts 27,000; calves 3,000; choice steers and yearlings steady; vealers 50c lower; slaughter steers good and choice 1300 to 1500 pounds $15.25@18.25; 1100 to 1300 pounds $15.25@18.25; 950 to 1100 pounds $15.25@18.10; common and medium 850 pounds up $9.25@15.25; fed yearlings $15.40@18.00; heifers $14.35@17.50; cows $9.25@13.25. $7.65@9.25, $8.15@7.65; bulls $9.50@11.00, $17.00@17.00; stocker and feeder steers $11.75@14.00.

Sheep—Receipts 42,000; native lambs 25@50c lower; sheep weak; lambs $14.00@15.50; ewes $4.25@7.25; feeder lambs $13.65@14.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. (US)—The government September crop report furnished something like a sensation in its figures estimating the corn crop. They place it at 2,931,000,000 bushels.

That is plenty of corn to be sure—155,000,000 above the 5-year average—but the estimate is about 100,000,000 bushels under the estimate a month ago and less than the smallest private estimate.

The wheat crop was estimated at 901,000,000 bushels, an increase over last month's average.

The effect on the corn market tomorrow will undoubtedly be bullish at the outset at least. Wheat may be little influenced.

The corn figures, although undoubtedly accurate mathematically, will not impress a good many in the trade that a true picture of the yield possibilities of the crop is presented.

It is well to remember, as has frequently been suggested here, that crop reporting is simply a system of guessing founded on statistics of averages, with no basis for correctness in the science of botany. It is the best method there is; and that's all that can be said about it.

At the close, wheat was ¼ to ⅜ lower; corn was unchanged to ⅛ lower; oats were ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher; rye was down ¼ to 1¼.

Both wheat and corn held remarkably steady during most of the session and both markets at the end of the day showed good upturns from bottom prices.

The strength appeared to be due largely to short covering which went on in volume from the tap of the opening gong.

Wheat opened generally higher than its closing prices on Saturday. It was this start off, which was something of a surprise to bears, that put a curb on selling that might have come into the pit on a weak opening.

Reports from nearby parts of this state told of corn that was just about ready to mature. Danger of frost seemed very slight indeed. In another week it probably will have passed beyond a considered possibility.

The corn market, nevertheless, showed a good deal of firmness on small declines. Early it got down into the bid price, but it rallied from there and held up pretty firmly to the end.

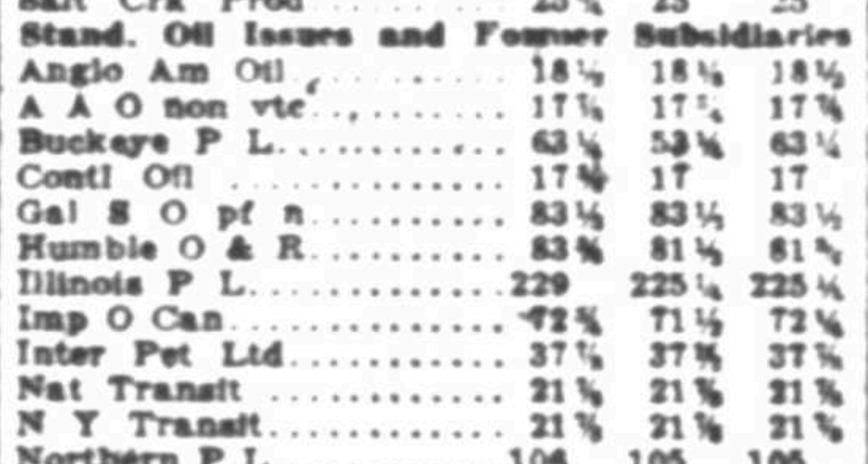

There was the usual "wise" prediction that the government would probably distort its estimate for political purposes. This sort of talk, which goes on more or less before almost every government report is issued, seems so absurd that one wonders it receives any credence at all.

THE EATON AXLE AND SPRING CO.

5-Year Record

The Eaton Axle and Spring company manufactures axles and springs for passenger vehicles and motor trucks and also puts out a line of automobile bumpers. It has, from time to time, absorbed many smaller corporations engaged in the same general line of business. The plant of the concern is located at Cleveland and comprises 16 acres owned in fee. The floor area is 145,000 square feet, and it also has a spring plat at Cleveland, an Albany plant, a Detroit plant, a Massillon, Ohio, plant, a Pontiac plant, and service stations located in many cities throughout the country.

Net income in 1927 amounted to $779,191, or $3.12 a share. This compared with $962,054 in 1926. However, these figures did not include the results from the Eaton Spring corporation, which, in 1927, had a profit of $137,000 as against a deficit of $274,000 in 1926. For the first quarter of 1928, net before taxes was $315,000 as compared with $275,000 in the previous year.

Funded debt consists of $750,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of 250,000 shares of no par value.

The present dividend rate on the stock is $2 per share a year, payable quarterly.

As of March 31, 1928, total current assets amounted to $4,159,473; current liabilities were $1,595,807; net working capital $2,563,666, and book value of the no par stock $32.43 a share.

HIGHER CORN CROP IS SEEN

Production 2,930,586,000 Bushels Reported

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. (INS)—The nation will have a corn crop this year of approximately 2,930,586,000 bushels, the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture announced today, basing its forecast on a condition of 78.4 per cent of normal on Sept. 1. Last year production amounted to 2,774,000,000 bushels. The 102,380,000 acres cultivated yielded many bushels per acre.

The wheat crop this year will amount to 901,072,000 bushels, compared with last year's production of 873,000,000 bushels. The condition of Durum wheat in four states was 81.8 per cent, indicating a production of 85,000,000 bushels. Other spring wheat was 82.1 per cent of normal, with a indicated production of 238,000,000 bushels.

The condition of the oat crop was 84 per cent, with an indicated yield of 1,454,000,000 bushels.

Forecasts and estimates for another crop follows:

Barley: Condition 84.4 per cent; production 346,000,000 bushels.

Rye production, 43,300,000 bushels.

Rice, five states. Condition 83 per cent; production 36,500,000 bushels.

Sugar beets, condition 85.7 per cent; production 6,380,000 tons.

White potatoes, condition 83 per cent; production 467,000,000 bushels.

Sweet potatoes, condition 72.2 per cent; production 81,600,000 bushels.

Tobacco, condition 74.5 per cent; production 1,372,000,000 pounds.

Peanuts, condition 76 per cent; production 849,600,000 pounds.

Hay, condition 76 per cent; production $7,900,000 tons.

Worker's Communist Party Granted Place On Texas Ballot In November

AUSTIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—The Workers' Communist party, a new Texas political organization, today was granted a place on the official ballot for the November election by Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state.

Mrs. McCallum decided the party was entitled to a place on the ballot under a law which permits formation of a new party.

Under this law, the American party was organized several years ago under which former Gov. James E. Ferguson was presidential candidate.

The application for a place on the ballot was submitted by B. H. Lauderdale of Breckenridge, chairman of the party's state committee.

At a meeting in Houston Aug. 14, the party named candidates for the three major state offices and selected a list of president electors. J. Stedham of Annona was nominated for governor, J. L. Swan of Wheeler for lieutenant governor and John Rust of Weatherford for U. S. senate.

R. J. Randolph, first assistant secretary of state, decided against the application of the party a few weeks ago.

Fall's Indian Leases Upheld by Kennamer

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 10. (UP)—The action of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, in leasing Quapaw Indian lands near Picher, Okla., to the Eagle-Picher Lead company, was upheld today by Federal Judge F. E. Kannamer, who entered a decree for the company and dismissed the bill of complaints asking for the cancellation of certain mining leases.

Two Channel Attempts Fail Over Week-End

DOVER, England, Sept. 10. (UP)—Two attempts to swim the English channel have failed. Edward Temm, who started Saturday night, was rescued with difficulty by his trainer, early today when he was stricken with cramps. M. Carey abandoned an attempt when five miles from France today. RANKS DEPLETED

Only Three Gray Vets Now Left in Orange County

ORANGE, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—For the first time in Orange county it is probable that no confederate veteran will attend the annual U. C. V. reunion at Tyler Oct. 4-5. There are only two or three civil war veterans here and it is possible that their health will not permit them to make the trip.

O'DONOHOO AND GATES

O'Donohoo and Gates have made location for their No. 1 Bishop in the Lewis Netherly survey, and will offset the Petroleum Producers-Comac well on the same survey, 300 feet to the west.

MENARD COUNTY WILDCAT

The Panhandle Refining company No. 1 George Eckhart located in the southwest quarter of survey 10, block 1, Menard county, is making preparations to drill out the plug from the sand some time Tuesday or Wednesday.

TEXAS-WAGGONER

The Texas company is building rig on its location for No. 1 Waggoner, located in section 12, block 4, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, south of Greyback crossing in southeast Wilbarger county.

MAGNOLIA-GRAY COUNTY

The Magnolia Petroleum company has made location for its No. 1 W. C. Archer to be drilled in the southeast corner of north half of southeast quarter of section 174, block 3, H. & G. N. survey, Gray county.

JACK COUNTY LOCATION

T. G. Shaw made location 720 feet west, and 380 feet north of the most western northwest corner of Lewis Knight survey, abstract 324, and in the Isaac Hughson survey, Jack county.

HESTER-HAWKINS

Hester-Hawkins has spudded in and drilling on their No. 1 W. T. Waggoner test located 200 feet north, and 150 feet east of the southwest corner section 36, block 4, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, Wilbarger county.

BUTTRAM PET. CO. JACK

The Buttram Petroleum company No. 2 Sam Cullers, 700 feet east and 300 feet south of the northwest corner of Sam Cairis survey, abstract 930, Jack county, is drilling at 1700 feet.

R. E. WHATLEY, ET AL.

R. E. Whatley and associates have made location for No. 1 S. M. J. Benson, 150 feet north and 150 feet west of the southeast corner of section 1487, T. E. L. survey, northeast Young county.

VOTERS LAGGARD

DENVER, Sept. 10. (UP)—Little interest has been displayed in Tuesday's Colorado primary. Republicans will vote in five counties and Democrats in 12. All issues raised so far have been of state interest only.

MENARD WELL GETS SHOWING

Panhandle O. & R. May Have New Discovery

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 10.—Much of the oil interest in West Texas early this week centers in Menard county, as yet unproductive, due to the probable resumption of drilling Tuesday by Panhandle Oil & Refining company's No. 1 Eckhardt, in the center of the southwest quarter of section 10, block 2, T. W. & N. G. Ry Co. survey. Fluid, reported to be largely oil, rose 300 to 1,100 feet in the hole after casing was cemented Friday night in an effort to shut off water believed to be coming from 1,925 feet. Pay was topped around 2,969 feet and the total depth is 2,973.

Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental in eastern Pecos county added another gusher to their long list of wells rating above 50,000 barrels daily in No. 5-D Yates, 811 feet north and 6,648 feet east of the southwest corner of section 62, block 1, I. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey. It came in unexpectedly, breaking the control head and blowing the tools out of the hole, and was estimated to have flowed 2,000 barrels an hour, no gauge being obtainable.

Tract Purchased

Grayburg Oil Co. of San Antonio, which has production in Pecos county, purchased from B. Reagan, president of the West Texas National Bank of Big Spring, and Fox Stripling, of Big Spring, the northwest 40 acres of the southwest 40 acres of the southwest quarter of section 3, township 2, south, block 32, in Howard county. Grayburg paid $500 an acre, with a 1-16 overriding royalty, and contract to start a test within 15 days. The acreage is in the area made promising by Henshaw Oil corporation's No. 1 Settles, in section 6.

Deep Rock Oil company and Grisham & Hunter prepared to plug back their No. 1 Bettis from 1,720 to 1,488 feet for a shot following its output recently of 200 barrels of oil in 54 consecutive heads from 1,483 feet. Shortly afterward the hole was lost, then was deepened without results. The test is the first in Culberson county to make oil, and is 660 feet north and east from the northwest corner of section 28, township 7, block 59, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Andrews County

Deepening four feet to 4,414 feet increased fluid from 200 to 300 feet in Deep Rock's No. 1 Harris in Andrews county. The fluid was reported to be largely oil, whereas half of the fluid when standing at a depth of only 200 feet was water. The wildcat is in the center of the southeast quarter of section 12, block A-145, public school land. It has an elevation of 3,167 feet, topped the salt at 1,690 and encountered 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas daily at 2,956 feet.

Sid Richardson, Frank Kelsey and White Eagle Oil & Refining company's No. 1 Stockton Land Co. (O'Brien), one of two Winkler county wildcats now in the limelight, was credited Saturday with 1,300 feet of oil in the 2,815-foot hole. The test bridged 100 feet off bottom when 1,000,000 feet of gas was struck and had been cleaned out to within 50 feet of this point, after running of 5 3-16-inch pipe. The location is about six miles south of the south end of the Hendicks pool and 330 feet south and west from the northeast corner of section 50, block F, Gunter, Munson, Maddox Bros. & Anderson survey.

T. and P. Plugs back

Texas and Pacific Coal & Oil company prepared to plug back its No. 1 Lum Daugherty (Leck) in northern Winkler county from 3,250 to 3,200 feet after encountering sulphur water at 3,248-50. Lime was topped at 2,894 feet, 13 feet below sea level, and was found richly saturated with oil at 3,025-29 feet. The location is in the southeast corner of section 4, block 74, public school land. Empire No. 1 Leck, which makes around 800 barrels of oil, waited for 8-inch rotary casing to set at 2,692 feet, where the lime was topped. Roxana-Llano No. 3 Scarbrough, in the center of the southwest quarter of section 3, block 12, public school land, was shut down at 3,455 feet for reaming to the bottom. It got 70 feet of salt water at 3,415 feet and 1,200 feet of it at 3,444.

Four producers in the Hendrick pool in Winkler county were completed over the week-end. The largest was Pure's No. 6-C Hendrick 1,320 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the east line of section 45, block 26. Its initial production was 15,000 barrels daily from 2,588 feet, top of the pay. Southern Crude No. T-88-T-1 Hendrick, in section 34, block 26, topped the pay at 2,815 feet, and was completed at 2,847 feet for 97 barrels hourly. Gulf No. 16 Hendrick made initial production of 50 barrels hourly from 2,600 feet, 15 feet in the pay. Southern Crude No. T-67-3B-4 Hendrick, in section 33, block 26, topped the pay at 2,845 feet and was completed at 2,885, making 30 barrels of fluid hourly, 95 per cent sulphur water.

South of Field

South of the main field, Mining & Engineering No. 1 Hendrick, in section 10, block B-12, public school land, was plugged back from 2,972-78 feet and swabbed 100 barrels of fluid in two hours, 25 per cent water, reducing the fluid to within 400 feet of the bottom. Gauges of Sept. 6 showed 171,286 barrels produced by 347 wells.

Midwest No. 1 State, in Lea county, N. M., attained a new peak late in the week in producing 640 barrels of oil in 24 hours, despite a show of salt water at 4,165 feet. Marland finally mudded off 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily in its No. 1 Eaves in Lea county, though it now has three strings of tools in the hole at 3,080 feet. Fishing is now under way. Empire No. 1 State, bottomed at 3,835, is reducing the water percentage in its production, which, at last reports, was 210 barrels of oil and 50 barrels of water.

HOOVER MEET HERE TODAY

Women Invited to Hear Mrs. Griswold

Women of Wichita Falls, especially those interested in the candidacy of Herbert Hoover, were invited Monday by Mrs. P. A. Welty, Republican candidate for congress from this district, to meet Mrs. Florence T. Griswold, Republican national committeewoman from Texas since 1922, and to hear Mrs. Griswold speak.

The talk will be given in the district court room in the courthouse at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Griswold comes of an old Texas family and is a rancher. She was one of the pioneers in this part of the country in seeking the franchise for women.

The speaker arrived in Wichita Falls Monday afternoon and is the house guest of Mrs. Welty at 1711 Eleventh street.

Attorney's Suit for $1,500 on Trial Today

The suit of Cedric Taylor vs. the Hines Oil company, wherein the Wichita Falls attorney seeks damages of $1,500 growing out of a collision on the Henrietta highway several months ago, will go on trial in 78th district court Tuesday, according to announcement made Monday by Judge W. W. Cook.

Mr. Taylor alleges in his petition that he was driving along the Henrietta highway at night and that he ran his automobile into the back of a truck belonging to the Hines Oil company. The truck, Mr. Taylor says in the petition for damages, was not lighted.

Violinist Featured at Kiwanis Luncheon

Miss Daisy Wharton, head of the department of violin, school of music, University of Wyoming, played two violin solos at the luncheon of the Wichita Falls Kiwanis club Monday noon. Miss Wharton was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. F. R. Collard.

W. L. Mulligan, W. R. Couch and Lawrence Elkins praised the hospitality of Dallas in reporting on the annual convention of the Texas-Oklahoma district at Dallas last week.

Charley's country store will be established Wednesday night in the Mission theater as a regular Wednesday night feature.

The country store will see the merchant dickering with his customers which, of course, are the members of the audience, and is an act that takes the audience into the show as a part of the act.

The manager of the Mission announced Monday that he had just about bought out the stock of one Piggly Wiggly store here. He has stocked the Mission country store with everything ordinarily found in any country store including canned goods, soap, ladies hose, flour and meat.

The country store will open at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday night.

The Strand theater will open at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning as a favor to out of town people who will be in the city to see the opening game of the Dixie series, it was announced Monday by Hans Smith, manager of the Strand. The show, "Lilac Time" will be over well before the game starts so that all will have ample time to eat and to go to the ball park to see Wichita Falls wallop Houston.

"Lilac Time" is now being presented at the Central theater in New York city at $2 a seat. The same show is here at the Strand at prices which will allow the whole family to see the show for the price of one ticket in New York.

Ministers Pledge Aid in Welcoming Advertising Experts to Wichita

Members of the Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance pledged themselves to cooperate with the Wichita Falls Ad club in the entertainment of delegates to the 10th district convention of ad clubs to be held in October at the meeting of the alliance Monday at the First Christian church.

The alliance also voted to investigate possibility of holding services at the county farm and announced a schedule of services to be held in the county jail for the next 15 months.

Rev. W. H. Townsend, pastor of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church and president of the alliance, was selected to represent the alliance on the business council of the chamber of commerce.

Those present for the meeting included Dr. Nat F. Grafton, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, Rev. A. F. White, Rev. Mr. Townsend, Rev. E. F. McGaughey, Rev. J. L. Walters, Rev. David Rees-Jones, Rev. J. N. Russell, Dr. Gaines B. Hall and Dr. S. S. McKenney.

$75,000 SUIT ON TRIAL HERE

Slander Alleged in Plea for Damages

A damage suit for $75,000 filed several months ago by W. S. Duval against G. B. Rigsby, in which Mr. Duval alleges slander, went to trial in 89th district court Monday morning.

Mr. Duval in his petition alleges that Mr. Rigsby slandered him to friends after the two men had severed business connections. Injuries resulting from this alleged slander, Mr. Duval set out amounted to at least $50,000. Exemplary damages of $25,000 also are sought.

The two men were associated in the grain business at Burkburnett.

Hearing of testimony in the case is expected to last through several days, according to Judge P. A. Martin, before whom the case is on trial.

Theater Manager to Discuss Advertising

"Theater Advertising" will be the subject of an address by H. C. Federer, city manager of the Dent Theaters, Inc., before the Wichita Falls Ad club at a luncheon to be held in the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon, according to announcement made Monday by R. E. Shepherd, member of the program committee. Plans for entertainment of the 10th district convention of Ad clubs will also be discussed.

Woman Injured In Auto Crash Here

Mrs. Helen Wood, wife of E. D. Wood of 1511½ Twelfth street, was badly bruised and shocked when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by another automobile at the intersection of Twelfth and Broad streets about 7:15 o'clock Monday night.

A man arrested by Charles Gant, deputy sheriff, immediately following the accident, was placed in the county jail. Charges of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants will be filed against him Tuesday, Mr. Gant said.

Mrs. Wood was taken to the Hargrave-Walker hospital in a Merkle Undertaking company ambulance. Attaches of the hospital said Monday night that her injuries were not believed to be serious.

Four Dancers Added To Vaudeville Bill

Four dances were added Monday to the Thursday night vaudeville program to be given in Bellevue park, according to an announcement by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

The program will be the last of the season and will be by far the finest and largest, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

New artists announced Monday include Charles Sutton and Harley Herndon in one grup of dances, and Miss Eleanor Pitman and Miss Juanita Bozingo in another group.

Numbers for the program previously announced include Mrs. Katherine C. Matthews, the blind vocal soloist; the Panhandle Refining company band under the direction of Paul Seeds, and the Crowson Kiddies.

HUBBY HELD IN ICE PICK WAR

Wichitan Faces Charge Filed by Wife

Miguel Tobadiz was charged with assault to murder in a complaint filed Monday before O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, by Tobadiz' wife, following an investigation by Gage C. McDermett, assistant district attorney.

Tobadiz is in the city jail, however, and city authorities refuse to release him to Sheriff W. G. Brailey until after the man has served out a fine on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Tobadiz, according to the story told by his wife, pursued her with an ice pick after a day of anger.

One of a neighbor's boys, she said, attempted to take the ice pick away from her husband and was stabbed in the hand.

house-cleaning campaign among the other uncontested delegations with a decree that any delegate failing to pronounce the party shibboleth should be reported to the convention credentials committee. This was accomplished through a resolution ordering every county leader to canvas his delegation and report to the credentials committee every man who refused to pledge himself to vote the entire ticket.

Delegations favoring Smith from Harris, Dallas, Tarrant, Palo Pinto Bosque and and Wichita counties were given seats in preference to the anti-Smith contestants and the uncontested Erath county delegation was unseated because its leader, T. Mitchell, was charged with having waged a campaign against Governor Smith's candidacy since the Houston national convention.

Woman Removed

The committee did not spare itself in its purification crusade and Mrs. J. Y. Webb of Dallas, who refused to pledge support to the whole ticket, was removed through cancellation of the proxy which she held for an absent member. Benton McMillan, a member of the committee from Zavalla county, was the only anti-Smith Democrat to weather the storm. He announced he would not vote for Smith, and that he had never voted for a Republican and didn't intend to do so. A resolution by Steve Pinckney of Houston which would have requested him to resign was not pushed when it was found that the committee was without authority to bust a duly elected member.

Dan Makes Medicine

In the meantime Governor Moody, surrounded by a group of his friends who also are Smith supporters made medicine in a hotel room against the platform fight over the prohibition plank, which had threatened to be one of the major issues, of the convention. Reports which seeped from the conference said that the group was in agreement on "the material language" of the plank and that "immaterial language" formed the only mooted points. This seemed to indicate that an agreement would be reached upon this important question.

Among those closeted with the governor were M. M. Crane and R. L. Stennis of Dallas and Wright Morrow of Houston.

The executive committee meeting was impeded by the enthusiasm with which its members and spectators on the sidelines cheered every reference to Governor Smith and jeered every mention of his opponent. Enthusiasm reached its peak when Judge W. L. Thornton of Dallas took the floor and assured the committee that, although he had always opposed Smith he intended to vote for him.

Thornton For Smith

"I spent nearly $1,500 in money and three weeks in time in opposing Al Smith in New York in 1924, Thornton said. "I was against Governor Smith until he was nominated at Houston. Since that time I have been supporting him and I will continue to do so. He is not satisfactory to me for many reasons, but he is the nominee of my party."

After the committee had cleared away the various contests it placed in nomination Myron G. Blalock of Dallas for temporary chairman, Mrs. W. P. Chapman, Stamford, temporary vice chairman, Robert Higgins, Marlin, temporary secretary, C. C. Renfro, Dallas and Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, Bryan, temporary assistant secretary and Pat O'Keefe Dallas, sergeant at arms.

Anti-Smith Democrats had not hoped for victory before the state committee today and had little hope of accomplishing anything in an appeal which they will make to the convention tomorrow. Indications were that they would hold a convention of their own and their leaders spent a good part of the day in caucus discussing plans for such a convention. Alvin Moody of Houston, leader of the anti-Smith movement has declared such a convention will be held.

He said that if they do less the "Hoover people" would get great consolation.

School - College Notes

A meeting was called immediately after the close of school Monday afternoon for the organization of the high school orchestra. Leo M. Underwood, director, stated the prospects for a good orchestra this year were very bright. Fifty-four students reported for the first meeting and more are expected to report later. The high school band will organize Tuesday or Wednesday afternoon, according to Mr. Underwood.

There will be no clubs meeting this week in the high school or junior college. Meetings will be called and clubs organized or reorganized the following week.

The first general assembly will be held Friday morning in the auditorium during the 30-minute period.

The approximate number of students enrolled in the high school by Monday evening was set at 1,150. The exact figures were not available Monday, but this is a slight increase over that of the previous year; the total enrollment for the term 1927-1928 being 850.

Groesbeck Man Milk Inspector

Dr. George W. Ragan of Groesbeck will succeed Guy Powell, resigned, as city milk inspector Sept. 15 or as soon thereafter as it is possible for him to take office. This announcement was made Monday night following a meeting of the city council at which meeting permission was given to the city manager to employ a milk inspector outside of the city if it was necessary to go outside to obtain a competent man.

Dr. Ragan is a graduate of the Southwestern Veterinary college of Dallas where he was a schoolmate of Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector here.

The new inspector was a visitor in Wichita Falls last week and returned to his home after conferring with local officials.

Rowland Wins Class A Race

Oklahoma City, although John Livingstone of Monmouth, Ill., in finishing second retained the lead in elapsed flying time.

Ballough landed at 12:55 p. m. and Livingston followed at 1:28.

Ballough was flying a Laird plane and Livingston piloted his Waco open biplane.

John Wood, Wausau, Wis., in a Waco, arrived third at 1:50. Charles W. Meyers, Troy Ohio, also in a Waco, was fourth at 1:58.

Fuelling stops were made today at Fort Worth, Midland and Pecos, in Texas.

Cantwell Holds Lead

R. W. Cantwell, Duncan, Okla., flying a Lockhead Vega cabin monoplane, was first of the Class C entries to arrive. He landed at 2:12.

Other Class C flyers arrived as follows:

Ives McKinney, Perth Amboy, N. J., aircraft racer, 2:11.

Edward Schultz, Pittsburgh, Cessna monoplane, 2:12.

many ways. Messages of all kinds poured into the station without intermission. Stores along the street with loud speakers were packed with listeners. Many homes were the scenes of radio parties. All reported the reception excellent and the artists the equal of those of any of the old and long established stations.

These artists included: R. E. Shepherd, West Texas' most noted tenor; Zack and Glen, permanent artists at the station; George Taylor and his guitar; Happy Jack Gross, the Blue Bonnet Harmony Girls trio, Paul Seeds orchestra, Williams Brothers' old time fiddler and Ernest Reeves, the yodeling tenor of KRLD.

1000 Visit Studio

It was estimated that 1,000 persons visited the station and the broadcasting rooms during the evening.

Tuesday will be the first day for KGKO to be on the air with programs during daylight hours, it was announced by Mr. Gilliam Monday night.

The hours are 9 to 10 o'clock in the morning, and 12 to 1 and 6 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The evening program will start at 7 o'clock and close at 10 o'clock. Wednesday is to be "silent day."

KENLEY NAMES HIS ASSISTANTS

Anderson and Anglin Win Posts

Following his appointment last Friday as district attorney succeeding Ben P. Allred, resigned, R. O. Kenley Jr., announced Monday the appointment of George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin as assistants. Mr. Kenley made the announcement from Graham, where he spent Monday arranging settings of criminal cases in the 30th district court.

One of the new appointees replaces Mr. Kenley as assistant and the other replaces Gage McDermett, resigned assistant district attorney.

Mr. Allred, in announcing his resignation, Monday declared that in view of the fact that no criminal cases are left "hanging fire" he felt that this would be an opportune time for him to turn the duties of his office to a new management and to enter into private law practice with his brother, James V. Allred.

"My public service has been a pleasure to me," Mr. Allred said. "I appreciate the honors which the people have bestowed upon me, and in retiring as I do, I wish to thank my friends and supporters. The incoming administrations have my best wishes for success and public service."

Mr. Anderson is at present assistant county attorney, and Mr. Anglin is in law practice here.

Wayne Someville, county attorney, said Monday afternoon that he did not contemplate immediately filling the vacancy which will be created when Mr. Anderson goes into the district attorney's office.

wire as the power company is running a new line to replace the old one which the city originally installed.

The election returns for the recent bond election were canvassed and officially approved. The official returns show a total of 930 votes for the bonds and 601 against the bonds. The figures are the same as those gathered and released by The Record News just 15 minutes after the polls closed on election night.

An ordinance to change the hour of meeting of the council came up for third reading and was tabled. Alderman Carter moved to amend the ordinance to make the meeting night Tuesday instead of Monday, but his motion died for want of a second.

The date for the sale of the $250,000 warrant retirement bonds was officially set for Oct. 8 in the city council room of the auditorium This date had been suggested some time ago. The plan of sale of the bonds also was approved.

Medicos Denied Parking

Permission was granted to the Pioneer Refining company to run a pipeline from the railroad tracks to the refinery for loading and unloading tank cars. It is on a 10-year franchise basis, and is granted with the usual provision that the company must pay for the cost of the legal advertising required by law.

A request of the medical doctors of the city that they be allowed to park their cars anywhere for any length of time or that a provision be made in the traffic code for such a procedure was denied by the council when it was brought out that this is not customary in other cities.

Given New City Post

Ray Jones, bookkeeper in the city water department, has been transferred to the city tax department, it was learned at the city hall Monday. Mr. Jones will replace Dave Covington who has resigned to study law at Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn.

Taxes for 1928 Due Oct. 1, Somerville Tells Payers

With the announcement that taxes for 1928 become due Oct. 1, Wayne Somerville, county attorney, declared Monday that action toward collection of outstanding delinquent taxes due the county would get under way immediately.

Mr. Somerville announced that the cost of court on delinquent tax already filed would be deducted from suits where voluntary payment is made prior to Oct. 1.

Taxes for 1928 will be subject to a delinquent tax of 10 per cent after Feb. 1, 1929, Mr. Somerville said.

Bids on Jail Repairs Asked

captured. One of the four still at large is Tom Shook, under five indictments charging murder, robbery, burglary and driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Shook, former Electra chief of police and one time police officer in Wichita Falls, led five other prisoners in a break from the jail on Aug. 24.

Bids for alteration of the jail will be opened Oct. 15, Judge Nicholson said. They will include installation of a steel door on the second floor of the jail which will make a place for holdevers. In confining holdovers arrangement of the jail has made it necessary heretofore for the jailer to make a trip to the third floor of the jail with the prisoners and then return to the second floor, where they were confined.

Saftey Measures

Safety entrances also will be placed on the second floor and placed on the second and third floors, the specifications reveal. These will give a double guard against escapes, it was pointed out. The jailer in confining prisoners can take them into the vestibule created by installation of the safety doors, lock the door and then take them on into the exercise cell where they are to be confined.

A cut off cage will also be installed on the two floors of the jail which will enable officers to keep visitors to the jail from conversing with persons other than those they ask to see. When a visitor desires to talk with a prisoner and gains the proper consent, he will be locked with the prisoner in the cut off cage. Heretofore any visitor to the jail has been allowed in the run-around or exercise cell, where he was in a position to talk with any or all of the prisoners on that floor of the jail.

The commissioners also approved the contract and bond of R. B. Sparks for construction of a bridge across Flat Creek on the Iowa Park-Rocky Point road at a consideration of $1,632.56.

The county auditor also was ordered to advertise for bids on surfacing one and one-half miles of highway on the Charlie road from the end of the present pavement to Bear Creek.

Award of county insurance on buildings where renewal falls due Oct. 16 was referred to the county insurance association, which was ordered to prepare a schedule apportioning the insurance to companies operating in Wichita county.

TEN MISSING AFTER STORM

Two Americans Feared Lost In Mexico Wilds

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 10. (AP)—Captain R. W. Stone, American aviator, Don E. Stewart, official of a fishing company, and eight Mexicans are reported missing in the vicinity of Soto la Marina, Mexico, since last Thursday when a tropical storm struck the gulf coast south of Brownsville. It is feared they are lost in the wilds of Mexico.

Major Bernard Law, head of the International Air Transport company of Brownsville, who narrowly escaped death in the hurricane, prepared a relief plane here today and expected to start in search of the missing men.

Captains Stone and seven Mexicans were last seen Thursday morning when they left the Chamal ranch, on a 50-mile overland trip to the gulf coast where Stone's plane crashed Wednesday as he was attempting to reach the fishing village of the Munn Investment company, located on an island a short distance from Tye, mouth of Soto la Marina, river, according to reports here.

Mr. Stewart and his chauffeur left Brownsville Thursday by automobile for the fishing village and have not been heard from since.

Captain Stone narrowly escaped death Wednesday when his plane crashed on a desolate section of the coast about 30 miles from La Pesca when he and Major Law, flying separate planes, encountered a 50-mile wind, a forerunner of the hurricane.

Considerable property damage was reported at the fishing village and La Pesca, on the mainland.
