Bullock: $700 million less revenue

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock today gave legislators more bad news, saying they have nearly $700 million less revenue to work with now in writing a 1988-89 state budget than they did in January.

"Texas' economy has hit the bottom, and with no immediate recovery tax collections won't grow as rapidly as projected in January," Bullock said.

Bullock issued a new revenue estimate, predicting that the state will have a total of $34.4 billion from all sources for the next two years.

That is $698 million less than his $35.1 billiion January estimate, he said.

But lawmakers failed during their 140-day regular session to pass a budget based on the earlier estimate. Bullock is required to issue a new forecast for the special budget-writing session which convenes June 22.

Gov. Bill Clements got a preview of the new estimate Thursday and called the state's worsening budget crisis a "fiscal mess."

"The estimate is lower than I had anticipated. The economic health and the budgetary problems that we're confonted with here are far worse than anyone anticipated," Clements said.

In issuing his new forecast, Bullock said the economic recovery expected this spring failed to materialize.

While oil and gas prices have risen somewhat, sales tax collections are down. So are other economy-driven taxes such as motor vehicle, utility, and alcoholic beverage levies.

"I think the entire situation in state government — from January, December of last year when the deficit wasn't taken care of — is a much worse situation than I would have dreamed of at that time," Bullock said.

Bullock in January projected a $4.8 billion revenue shortfall for 1988-89 and a $1 billion deficit being left at the end of the current fiscal year on Aug. 31.

"To tell you the truth, he (Clements) inherited a real bad situation," Bullock said.

Settlement reached...

Electric company power line project to resume shortly

Parties involved in a dispute regarding construction of a Texas Utilities (TU) Electric power line have agreed to a proposal which will allow construction of the line to begin again.

At a hearing in 132nd District Court, attorney's representing both TU and Winston Estate heirs agreed to a deal proposed by District Judge Gene Dulaney to allow resumption of the construction.

Under the terms of that agreement, TU was to deposit $15,000 against any future damage awards to the heirs in the registry of the court and file "legal service" on the remaining heirs of the estate.

Once those conditions are met, Dulaney will dissolve a temporary injunction against TU that he granted to Helen Hatter, a Winston heir, in May.

That injunction was granted after Hatter — daughter of J.R. and Florentz Joyce — filed suit against the electric company seeking to stop construction on the line because she and any other "unknown remaindermen" to the estate had not been included as defendants when TU filed suit seeking condemnation of a right-of-way across Winston property in February.

A court-appointed three-man commission granted the heirs a judgment in excess of $53,000 for the easement in March.

This award is currently being challenged by TU officials.

Defendants named in TU's original condemnation suit included J.R. and Florentz Joyce, Sam Casey, Dorothy Casey, and Jess Everett, who leases a portion of the land affected by the suit.

The land area involved in the suit totals some 20 acres, according to court documents, equaling a judgment of $2,650 per acre

Hatter filed her suit after construction on the line began in May claiming that the electric company erred in not naming her and any other unknown heirs to the estate as defendants in the suit and including them in the damage award.

At the hearing last week, all parties to the suit agreed that Helen's brother, John W. Joyce, would be brought into the suit.

For any other potential heirs, legal notifications in area newspapers will be used to "serve" them.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

The rains have played havoc with the high school baseball playoffs. Such towns as Pecos, Canyon and Hereford have had difficulty finding dry fields on which to play.

Hereford was scheduled to play Fort Worth Brewer. School officials were told to find a site as far south and as far west as possible to avoid late afternoon thunderstorms. Andrews was picked as the site.

Hereford was gunshy about the site since weather forced a previous game into New Mexico. The two schools first went to Eunice and then on to Jal.

O. G. Nieman, Hereford editor, wrote that 74 die-hard fans followed the team through the hassle of finding a dry field.

"A sleepy-eyed fan was telling his Sunday school class about the wild trip. He said he called his wife, Mary Beth, from Eunice, N. M. to tell her what was happening.

"Where are you?" asked Mary Beth.

"Eunice, Eunice," responded the husband.

"Butch, this is Mary Beth," said the wife. "Who the heck is Eunice?"

Larry Crabtree, publisher of the Vernon Record, subscribed to a newspaper in Washington and came across the following incident.

The editor of the Leavenworth Echo hit upon a fund-raising scheme when he jokingly wrote that he would leave town by the first of the month if he got $250,000 for his newspaper.

The idea struck a cord with some of the townfolk. Being a creature of habit, "friends" found him at his regular Friday night eatery where they presented him with a check for $250,000 and a quick claim deed transferring ownership of the newspaper.

The editor has yet to pack and leave town, as the check was signed by Oral Roberts.

In Brief

Trade deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed to $13.3 billion in April, the second consecutive monthly improvement, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the imbalance between imports and exports shrank from a March deficit of $13.6 billion.

While the $312 million improvement was not a major change, many analysts had been expecting the deficit to rise sharply.

The new report was likely to be greeted as evidence that the country's big trade deficit has finally begun to turn around.

The Reagan administration in September 1985 launched a coordinated program with other major industrialized countries to push the value of the dollar lower as a way of reducing the trade deficit.

Since that time, the dollar has declined by about 35 percent against a trade-weighted group of currencies.

Inflation eases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation eased in May as wholesale prices rose just 0.3 percent, the government reported today, with energy prices holding steady and declines recorded for a wide range of goods.

The monthly increase is the smallest since a 0.1 percent gain in February and was in sharp contrast to the 0.7 percent jump of April. Over 12 months, the May increase amounted to 3.7 percent, compared to 8.9 percent a month earlier.

Higher food prices were responsible for all of the increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index. The 1.4 percent gain, led by rapidly rising meat prices, was slightly less than the 1.5 percent boost a month earlier.

Energy prices overall were unchanged, in contrast to large increases posted in three of the four preceding months.

Law is signed

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying Texans must crack down on drunk driving, Gov. Bill Clements has signed into law a bill to allow courts to hold taverns liable for accidents caused by drunken drivers they had sold too much to drink.

"It will go a long way in helping to save lives. But even if it saves just one life, I'm all for it," Clements said.

Bakker says return to PTL was to 'say good-bye' only

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker got a hero's welcome during a surprise visit to "say goodbye" to the Christian theme park he built before his downfall, and vowed again to start a new ministry if he can't return to PTL.

Hundreds cheered Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, on Thursday at Heritage USA during Bakker's first visit to PTL's theme park and headquarters since a sex scandal forced him to step down as head of the TV ministry in March.

Asked the reason for his visit, Bakker said: "To say goodbye to it all. If (the Rev.) Jerry Falwell lets us, we'll come back. But otherwise we are going to start a new ministry."

Falwell, who was given control of PTL by Bakker in March, has accused Bakker of avarice and homosexuality and has rebuffed Bakker's requests to return to his TV pulpit, given up after Bakker admitted having a sexual liaison in 1980 with church secretary Jessica Hahn.

Hours earlier Thursday, Bakker stood in front of the $1.3 million lakefront home in exclusive Tega Cay that the new PTL board has ordered the Bakkers to vacate and declared, "We're here to stay."

Bakker, who arrived with his wife at Heritage USA by limousine after being brought by motorboat from the Tega Cay home, did not elaborate and it was unclear whether he intended to defy the eviction order.

Tammy Sue Chapman, the Bakkers' daughter, told reporters Thursday night the family wants to keep living at the Tega Cay house. "We've lived here almost eight years. That's as long as we've ever lived in a house," she said.

She said the family will return, probably in a few weeks, to Palm Springs, Calif., where they secluded themselves after Bakker stepped down. She said her father would probably make a decision on his future in the next few weeks.

"We all want to get past it and move on. None of us know what we are doing," Mrs. Chapman said.

Bakker said on Wednesday that he intends to be back on television within 30 days, and that he has received five offers to return to TV ministry.

"They're certainly entitled to go on TV or start a new ministry, if that's what they want to do. Certainly, they're not talking about being back on PTL, but we could not stop them from going on television," said Falwell spokesman Mark DeMoss.

Executive optimistic about oil

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The incoming president of production for Texaco USA is forecasting slow improvement for the domestic oil industry.

L. Paul Teague who assumes his new post on Aug. 1, based his optimism on several factors, one of them continued uncertainty about the Far East and another the federal government's "drill-it-or-lose it" regulation concerning offshore leases.

Texaco is involved with a large backlog of federal offshore leases.

Under terms of all Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) sales, companies must drill the tracts within five years, or return them to the federal government and lose millions of dollars spent in the purchase.

Probation revocation sought

AUSTIN (AP) — A former University of Texas cheerleader convicted of aggravated robbery faces 10 years in prison if prosecutors are able to have his probation revoked, court records show.

Prosecutors are trying to revoke the probation of a former cheerleader for the University of Texas who was convicted in 1985 of aggravated robbery in connection with 10 holdups of motels and spas.

Joseph Center, 24, convicted of the 1985 holdups, faces 10 years in prison if state District Judge Jon Wisser grants the state's motion.

A hearing in the case was scheduled for Thursday but was postponed till next week.

Wisser put Center and Bryan Geer, who was also a UT student, on 10 years shock probation in January 1985 after the students pleaded guilty to using an unloaded pellet gun to rob one of the motels.

Shock probation allows criminals to serve short prison sentences and then to be released and placed on probation. The theory behind the sentence is that defendants will get a taste of prison life and stay out of trouble when they are released.

Prosecutors originally criticized the sentence, saying it was unheard of for someone who admitted to committing 10 armed robberies to be placed on probation.

Prosecutors filed their first motion to revoke Center's probation on July 23, 1986. The motion, which alleged Center had tested positive for drugs and alcohol use on several occassions, was denied by Wisser.

A second motion was filed in January after prosecutors learned that Center was arrested for drunken driving.

Center was charged Dec. 13, 1986, with driving while intoxicated after a police officer saw him drive through a red light near Interstate 35 in Austin, court records show. Center resisted arrest and then took an Intoxilyzer test that showed his blood alcohol level was 0.21 percent — more than twice the legally acceptable 0.10 percent.

The motion to revoke Center's probation also alleges he was associated with a person of disreputable character, Geer.

Center, of Corpus Christi, and Geer, of Mineral Wells, were juniors at UT when they were arrested. Center was a cheerleader for the UT football team in 1983 and had been selected to the squad in 1984. Geer was a film maker with a 3.6 grade point average.

The students robbed because neither wanted to ask his parents for more money, Geer said.

Governor releases veto messages

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday vetoed a bill that would give a pay raise to all Texas appeal and district judges, effective in 1989.

"While all state employees arguably deserve a pay raise, I am not persuaded that appellate and district judges should be singled out for special treatment," Clements' veto message said.

Fawn Hall's friend plots Rice's future

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — With Fawn Hall as a friend and Donna Rice as a client, Tricia Erickson and her talent agency are doing a booming business these days.

"I'm not a hot-shot New York or Los Angeles talent agency, but I do care about people who get into this situation," Erickson said Thursday in an interview at her house just outside Washington.

Erickson, 34, recently signed an agreement to represent Rice in future projects, such as articles, photo layouts, television spots and possibly a book.

"I view myself as more a protector," Erickson said, adding that her top concerns are making sure Rice isn't exploited and that she maintains her emotional health in the wake of revelations last month about a liaison with former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart. The story prompted Hart to drop out of the 1988 Democratic presidential race.

"I'm more concerned with her emotional and mental health," Erickson said, describing a part of her business as "crisis management" — advising instant celebrities on how to protect their interests.

"This all happened since Fawn, Jessica (Hahn) and Donna," Erickson said. She considered contacting Hahn, but hasn't followed through. Hahn's one night with television evangelist Jim Bakker led to the unraveling of his empire.

Besides her business arrangement with the 29-year-old Rice of Miami, Fla., Erickson talks often with Hall, her friend for the past six years.

Although Erickson represented Hall when the government secretary modeled part time, the two are just social friends, often chatting on the telephone.

Hall, 28, is thrilled that she is through with two days of grilling by lawmakers on the congressional Iran-Contra committees who wanted to know about her work as a personal secretary for Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, formerly of the National Security Council. Hall testified under a grant of immunity from prosecution.

"The first thing she is going to do is clean her room," Erickson said.

Hall, who lives with her parents in Fairfax County, Va., has turned down scores of offers to pose for photographs, returning instead to her job as a Defense Department secretary.

Before her televised Capitol Hill appearance, Hall spent three weeks visiting a girlfriend in Paris. Now, she hopes her life will settle down, Erickson said, adding that Hall has a new man in her life.

"She's shy and doesn't like a whole lot of attention," Erickson said of her friend, recalling the anguish Hall felt when photographers descended upon her after her identity was revealed. "She was scared and nervous."

In the aftermath, Erickson served as Hall's hand-holder, guarding her and sneaking her out through back doors when she had to avoid photographers.

While Hall resumes her secretarial work, Rice is back selling pharmaceuticals, Erickson said.

Hold your losses!

By James Jacoby

The high drama in bridge always seems to be played out in attempts to make or defeat a doubled game or a slam contract. But there is just as much skill involved, and certainly more discipline, in something as mundane as holding down the undertricks in a part-score contract that has no chance. Look at how South played two no-trump.

Declarer won the opening lead and unhappily contemplated the meager resources in dummy. Prospects were grim, and any chance at all required a miracle — perhaps a defender holding a singleton club queen. So out came the king of clubs from South's hand. West wisely ducked that trick and the hoped-for queen appeared. The jack of clubs from South was also allowed to win, and now declarer shifted to the A-K of diamonds. Because that suit broke badly, declarer could come to only six tricks — two away.

Declarer did well but might have swindled one more trick from the defenders. Before playing the jack of clubs, he can play the high diamonds, getting the bad news about the Q-10 left with East. The next play is a low club toward the 10-9 in dummy. Perhaps West will be lulled into thinking his partner's original club holding was the Q-J doubleton. That mental error would cause West to play low on the club. Dummy's nine would win and a diamond would be played back toward declarer's jack. That would net declarer one more trick, not enough for the contract, but enough to make the defenders' teeth gnash.

Air controllers ok new union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of air traffic controllers welcomed a new union by a 2-to-1 vote that many of them say reflects a growing discontent with their federal employers.

The controllers, in balloting during the last five weeks, decided by a 7,494 to 3,275 margin to accept the National Air Traffic Controllers Association as their bargaining agent.

After the ballots were counted at the Federal Labor Relations Authority on Thursday, union organizers turned to celebrating.

"The real significance in this is that the vast majority of the air traffic controllers are not satisfied how the FAA has run the system the last six years," said John Thornton, the union's national coordinator.

At the Federal Aviation Administration, where some senior officials were said to have believed the union would be rejected, spokesmen pledged to work with the new labor group.

"The FAA now has 10 unions that it deals with on a daily basis," FAA spokesman Bob Buckhorn said. "We expect the same kind of cooperation with this union."

The vote came six years after President Reagan fired more than 11,300 controllers and smashed an illegal strike that also destroyed the controllers union. The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, which launched the ill-fated strike, was decertified shortly after the walkout and went bankrupt in 1982.

Thornton said the constitution of the new union has a no-strike clause and other protections against a strike.

According to the labor relations authority, 84 percent of the eligible controllers cast a ballot.

At a reception Thursday night, controllers talked of their next job after the union is officially certified, probably within the next week. They now must begin a recruiting effort at the towers and 20 air route control centers.

One controller, speaking on condition he not be identified by name, said that while he believes many of the 7,494 controllers will join the union, a fairly large number have indicated they likely would not despite having voted for it.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen and other senior agency officials have made no secret that they would have preferred the controllers did not organize a union. But since the balloting began, agency officials have attempted to portray a stand of neutrality.

Since the 1981 strike, the FAA has struggled to rebuild its air traffic control system, which agency officials admit is still short of the number needed to handle increasing numbers of aircraft.

On Thursday, the House transportation appropriations subcommittee approved the hiring of 95 more air traffic controllers than the government wants, setting a minimum number of 15,900 controllers by Sept. 30, 1988, according to congressional sources who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Trinidad won independence in 1962.

Memo says Navy did not cooperate

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal Navy memo raises the possibility that hundreds of Phoenix missiles may be defective because of fraudulent manufacturing work.

The Navy repeatedly refused to cooperate with Pentagon and federal agents investigating the missiles, says the memo released Thurday. It was prepared by the Defense Criminal Investigative Service.

The memo says the Navy has taken no steps to find out how the defective parts might have affected its missiles.

The Navy declined immediate comment on the memo Thursday, beyond saying it remained confident of the reliability of the Phoenix missiles now in the inventory.

Hughes Aircraft Co., the prime contractor, also declined immediate comment, saying it had just learned of the DCIS report.

The 18-page DCIS memo is dated Dec. 5, 1986, and was released Thursday by the Project on Military Procurement, a private military watchdog group.

Beard tribute jammed

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1,000 diners wore tuxedos and evening gowns but felt no reluctance about eating the Texas pit spareribs with their hands as they celebrated regional cooking with a dizzying display of foods from America's farms and waters.

Rockefeller Center was jammed Thursday night, and maps were provided to guide diners from the Dakota black bear to the cream of oysters Rockefeller soup to the Chippewa salmon sandwiches and on and on for 20 tables.

"I wouldn't want to be anywhere else in the world tonight," said Jack Czarnecki of Reading, Pa., who runs Joe's Restaurant and who cooked two popular dishes: a ragout, or stew, of wild mushrooms, and the bear, made with mushrooms known as shiitake, walnuts and cumin.

"It's a dream come true," said Robert Bennett, an Oklahoma City caterer whose grilled cowboy's tallgrass bobwhite quail won many compliments.

The Third Annual American Chefs' Tribute to James Beard honored the man who led a generation of cooks to search their backyards for inspiration and ingredients. Beard died in 1985.

The $350-a-plate feast benefited Citymeals-on-Wheels, which Beard helped found to feed the elderly shut-ins. The 18 chefs were selected in a competition meant to uncover trends in American cooking.

"You are going to see more and more people coming out of the American cooking movement," said Lawrence Forgione of An American Place in New York, one of the "celebrity chefs" who cooked at the first two Beard tributes and returned this year to coach his successors.

"It was great of those guys to say, 'Let's bring in some of the younger chefs,'" said Frank Brigtsen of New Orleans, who prepared the oyster soup.

"It really shows how far the young American chefs have come," said Dean Fearing, chef at The Mansion on Turtle Creek in Dallas, who dressed in chefs' whites like his colleagues but added a pair of cowboy boots.

Dear Abby

Girl Skipped a Grade or Two In Her Education About Sex

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl. At the age of 17, I had my first sexual experience with my boss, whom I thought I loved. The problem is, I already wasn't a virgin. What could have caused this?

I wonder if my horseback riding could have caused it. Or maybe it was my dancing. I took professional dance for three years. Is it possible to lose your virginity without knowing it?

Anyway, I now have a boyfriend. He is 25 years old and we plan to get married. What am I going to do when he finds out I am not a virgin? I have heard a plastic surgeon can make virgins out of non-virgins. Is that true? Please help me. I can't ask my parents.

TROUBLED NEAR CHICAGO

DEAR TROUBLED: A virgin is a person who has had no previous sexual experience. (More specifically, has not gone "all the way.") By that definition, it is not possible to lose one's virginity without knowing it.

Forget plastic surgery to restore your virginity. Even if it were "restored" physically — technically you would not be virginal. Don't worry about what to tell your fiance after you're married. The chances are he won't ask.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I would like you to settle a difference for us. I am "Dear Abby" to a lot of people. Sisters, brothers, friends, in-laws and people I hardly know will tell me their troubles about everything and anything. I don't mind; I just listen a lot. I do worry about them, and can often see that they are doing nothing to help themselves. I know I can't solve their problems, but I wish I could.

My husband is a kind and loving husband and father, but he is not so tolerant of his fellowman. We will let you settle this for us. Should I back off and tell these people to talk to someone else? We respect your opinion. Please help us. My husband nicknamed me ...

"DEAR ABBY" NO. 2

DEAR NO. 2: Sometimes the best thing you can do for a person who is hurting is to listen. But, people who seem to be "hurting" too long or too often need professional counseling. You would do them a kindness (as I do) by advising them to seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Before the season begins for weddings and receptions, I need to air my gripe about some guests. I refer to those people who rush to the buffet table and load up their plates. (Boiled shrimp are usually where you will see the clods gather.)

Also, children whose parents allow them to go get anything they want; their eyes are invariably bigger than their stomachs, and most of the food is wasted.

Guests, please take small portions and wait until everyone has been served before going back for seconds — or thirds. And if the food is too delicious to resist, ask the hostess for the recipe, then go home and make yourself a 55-gallon barrel of it.

And, please, don't ask if you can take a plate of goodies home to Harry.

DEAR READERS: Mother's Day has come and gone, but the results of a survey by USA Today still linger on. It revealed how often adults see their mothers:

Mother deceased	14 percent
Less than once a year	3 percent
Once a week	40 percent
Once a month	17 percent
Once a year	23 percent

Your Birthday

Saturday, June 13, 1987

In the year ahead, you will play meaningful roles in the management of the affairs of others. Substantial rewards are possible if what you do for them is well done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A wise course of action for you today is to stay at arm's length from complicated situations that are no direct concern of yours. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on your best behavior today in situations where your reputation and image are on the line. Bad moves will leave negative, lasting impressions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A responsibility that you have been neglecting will only get tougher the longer you put it off. Eventually, you'll have to meet this problem head on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Disappointment could be in the offing for you if you bank too heavily on people who have poor track records for being dependable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your household is not likely to run too smoothly today if you and your mate have trouble deciding who is the head honcho. Committee rule won't work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) What you deem to be constructive criticism may not be viewed as such by the recipient. Before correcting others, put your own house in order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are unrealistic in the way you manage your resources today, you could maneuver yourself into a serious financial bind. Don't create problems that can be avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you dislike may offer you some sound advice today. If you ignore it because of the source, you may later have cause to regret your prejudice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Shortcuts or labor-saving devices could turn out to be the hard ways of doing things today. To be on the safe side, it's best to stick to proven methods.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but try to do so as inexpensively as possible. An activity isn't necessarily enhanced by buying costly equipment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make it a point to be methodical and orderly today, or you might miscalculate and deprive yourself of an objective you are anxious to achieve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be a trifle too gullible for your own good today. Before accepting information given to you by a glib talker, be sure it is valid.

Two banks, one S&L close

By The Associated Press

Soured loans, poor management and the state's depressed economy are being blamed for the failures of two more banks and a savings and loan association, officials say.

Banking regulators Thursday shut down First State Bank of Milford and Northwest Commercial N.A. in Houston, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver, FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski said.

Meanwhile, regulators declared Security Savings Association in Texarkana insolvent, citing bad lending practices and speculative land purchases, Federal Home Loan Bank Board spokesman Paul Olkhovsky said.

The failures bring to 31 the number of banks that have collapsed in Texas this year, surpassing the national record the state set last year with 26. Eighty-eight banks have closed nationally so far in 1987.

Security Savings was the sixth S&L to close this year in the Dallas federal home loan district, which includes Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas. Four of those have been shut down in Texas.

With $424 million in assets, Security Savings was a state-chartered stock association with 10 offices in East Texas. It was to reopen today as a federally chartered mutual association with the same name, and no one lost money in the transfer, Olkhovsky said.

"I will not rule out a criminal investigation" against the S&L's former directors, Clifton Brannon Jr. and Don G. Jones, he said.

"After those two acquired the S&L in August 1983, it grew rapidly by 557 percent in 27 months, from $110 million in July 1983 and $431 million in September 1985," Olkhovsky said.

Speculative land acquisitions, development and construction loans, as well as reckless and imprudent lending practices, caused the S&L to collapse, he said.

Meanwhile in Milford, 50 miles south of Dallas, Ellis County State Bank will assume about $6.4 million in 1,400 deposit accounts at First State Bank and will purchase the failed bank's assets at a discount of $1.45 million, Olcheski said.

First State Bank, with total assets of $6.6 million, was closed by State Banking Commissioner Kenneth W. Littlefield, who said a high concentration of poor-quality loans made by a former bank executive to out-of-area borrowers resulted in losses far exceeding the bank's capital accounts.

The bank's directors and shareholders were unable to replenish the capital funds and no new investors were found to purchase and recapitalize the bank, Littlefield said.

The FDIC also approved the assumption of the deposit liabilities of Northwest Commercial, which had total assets of $12.1 million, by Jersey Village Bank of Houston.

Northwest's two offices will not reopen.

Series moves to Forum on Sunday...

Celtics blast LA Lakers; gain confidence

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston team returning to Los Angeles isn't the same battered bunch that got run out of town last week. That gives the Celtics hope for a seemingly hopeless task.

The Celtics have lost six straight road games, including Laker routs by 13 and 19 points in the first two games of the NBA championship series. They are trying to become the first team to survive a 3-1 deficit in the finals.

But after cutting that to 3-2 with a 123-108 romp Thursday night, they said they are better prepared to beat the Lakers at The Forum than they were in the first two games.

"I expect a lot better effort out of us in Los Angeles this time," said guard Danny Ainge, who sparked Boston with five 3-point field goals.

"We had one day off and one day to prepare going into the finals. We should have three days to prepare," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Going to the finals with one day preparation spells disaster. But if we go out there and get blown out, I can't use that as an excuse anymore."

That is a distinct possibility Sunday in Game 6 of the best-of-seven series when the Lakers get their second opportunity to win their 10th NBA title and fourth of the decade. If needed, a seventh game will be played Tuesday night, also at The Forum.

The Celtics outplayed the Lakers in winning two of three games in Boston, where the Celtics are 86-3 in their last 89 games. But Los Angeles is 46-4 this season on its home court and has to win just one of a possible two games there to take the title.

"We wanted to win, but we've got two games at home," Lakers guard Magic Johnson said. "It wasn't a do-or-die situation. We've been playing well out in L.A. On Sunday we are going to win."

"Maybe (by) just getting back to The Forum our players will remember what it's like to play Laker basketball," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said.

After seeing it for five games, the Celtics are more confident that they can handle that style, which emphasizes a relentless fast break.

In addition, center Robert Parish and forward Kevin McHale don't seem as limited by their foot injuries as they were earlier in the playoffs.

Since those games, Boston has controlled the scoring of Los Angeles starters James Worthy and Byron Scott, slowing down the Lakers' running attack.

Thursday night, the Celtics led 103-95 with six minutes left and got 13 of the next 17 points to go ahead 116-99 with 2:57 remaining.

Los Angeles had taken its last lead, 31-30, on two foul shots by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 10:17 left in the second quarter. Boston got the last eight points of the period, including a 40-foot 3-pointer by Ainge at the buzzer to go ahead 63-48. The Lakers hit just 38 percent of their field goal attempts in the first half.

The Celtics increased their lead to 96-77, their biggest of the game, at the end of the third quarter, in which Ainge hit four of five 3-point shots. Twice in the final period the Lakers came within eight points of the lead, the last on Abdul-Jabbar's sky hook that made the score 103-95. Then Dennis Johnson had eight points in Boston's 13-4 run.

"Ainge's 3-pointers seemed to come at the right times," Magic Johnson said. "We'd make a move and he'd hit one."

All five Boston starters, led by Dennis Johnson's 25 points, scored at least 21. Larry Bird had 23, McHale 22, and Ainge and Parish 21 each.

The Lakers were led by Magic Johnson with 29, and Abdul-Jabbar and Mychal Thompson with 18 each.

Boston held a 46-40 rebounding advantage but moved the ball much better than Los Angeles. The Celtics had 33 assists to 16 for the Lakers and outshot them 52 percent to 45 percent. Boston also had an effective fast break while controlling the Lakers' running game by hitting its outside shots and dropping back quickly on defense.

"We didn't get the runs tonight that we usually do. We didn't have any 12-2 or 14-2 spurts," said Scott. "It was in the back of our minds that if we lost tonight we could take care of it in L.A. I don't think they can beat us two games, not in L.A."

Cooney aims for title; fights Spinks Monday

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - "I just feel it's my time," says Gerry Cooney.

His critics say he's wasted time and that a loss to Michael Spinks on Monday night would be the end of time for him as a fighter.

Cooney has fought just seven rounds since he lost to Larry Holmes in a World Boxing Council title bid on June 11, 1982.

He has fought only a total of 26 rounds in he 1980s, yet has earned a reported $18 million, most of it in this decade.

"I want to be heavyweight champion of the world and nothing is going to stop me," Cooney said.

Promoter Butch Lewis is billing Monday's scheduled 15-round bout as being for the heavyweight championship even though the WBC, World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation do not recognize it as a title match.

Even the New Jersey State Athletic Control Board is not recognizing it as a title fight. Only commissions from Florida and the District of Columbia are.

"To me this is good for boxing," Cooney said. "It shows that boxing is not being monopolized, that this is a free country."

"It isn't the alphabets that matter to me," Spinks said. "It's the people."

But while the 16,000-plus-seat Atlantic City Convention Hall is expected to be full, people haven't been rushing to buy tickets at closed-circuit television locations around the country. On Wednesday, the telecast was cancelled at the 20,000-seat Joe Louis Arena at Detroit after fewer than 30 tickets reportedly were sold.

While Cooney might not be recognized as champion in many quarters should he win, a victory would establish him again as a major attraction. It also would set up a major-money match between Cooney and unbeaten Mike Tyson, who is recognized as champion by the WBC and WBA.

Tony Tucker is recognized as champion by the IBF, which stripped Spinks of the title for refusing to agree to a mandatory defense against Tucker.

Cooney, who will be 31 on Aug. 24, blasted his way to the forefront of the heavyweight divi-

Though anything but ordinary...

Carrillo typical WTC athlete

Mike Carrillo is a typical member of Western Texas College's rodeo team, which means he is anything but just another rodeo performer.

Typically for this year's WTC team, he competes in just one event - something many rodeo coaches won't permit. Also typical of Carrillo as a WTC rodeo athlete is he is a standout performer. The sophomore from Kingsville, Texas followed up last year's third place regional finish with a championship this season in the saddle bronc. He'll be one of the six designated team members when Western Texas competes at the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont., beginning Monday.

For Carrillo, competing in just one event is the natural way to go.

"A lot of coaches recruit guys that compete in a lot of events. We have six here that don't compete in that many events, but they do what they do well," said Carrillo. "If I'm not much of a bull rider then why enter me in the bull riding? You don't do things like that in life. You don't do something you know you're not good at, except maybe as a hobby or something. I think just competing in one event allows me to concentrate on that and nothing else."

Carrillo worked hard to win the Southwest Region this season. He placed in eight of 10 rodeos held, and in eight of the nine he competed in. A broken collarbone kept him out of the other one.

"I always have a goal of doing my best and naturally I want to win first. If I can do those things, it's great. But it's not like people or going to think bad of you if you don't win," he said, in explaining at how he approaches the sport.

Unlike most team sports in which all members of the team compete at the same time in the same arena, rodeo is based on individual one-on-one performances. Members of the same team, competing in the same event, are in effect competing against each other.

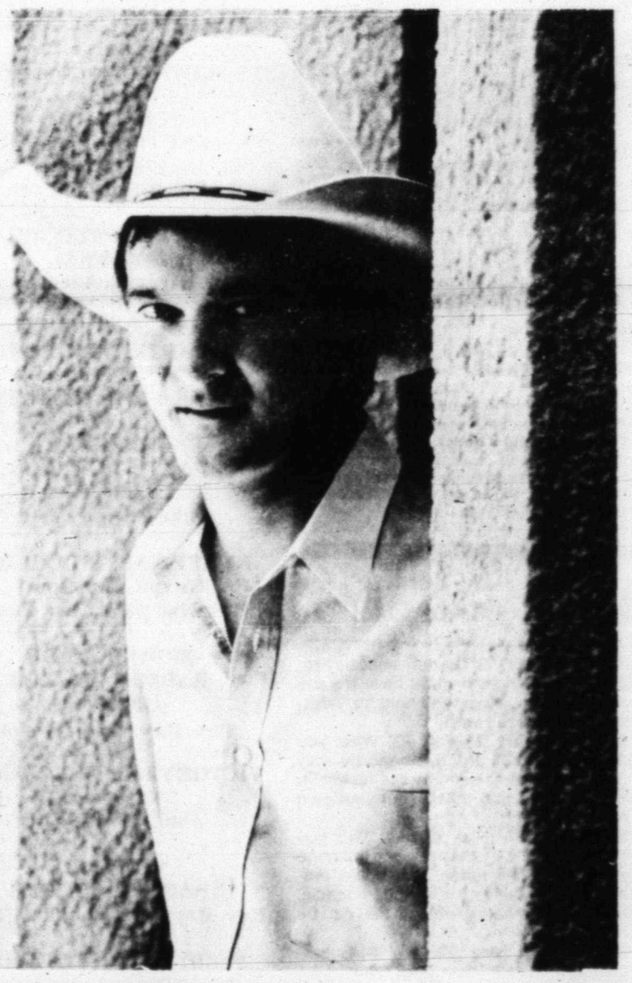
"The team aspect is interesting," mused Carrillo. "It's not like a typical team in sports, but it is a team in that you want the rest of the guys on your team to do well and you want to do well for the team. It's good because if you didn't do well and the team still won you can take pride in the fact that your team won."

The fact that he's competing for the defending national CNFR championship team doesn't hold the kind of pressure that a basketball or football team might share.

"There is a little team pressure, but mainly the thought is that it was great to win and you want to feel that again. You want to do it again because it was neat," he said.

But Carrillo does believe that the past experience of being to nationals and winning is an advantage.

"I think I have a little more edge because I know what's going on and what I need to do. I won't feel as nervous," he said. "I like this. I like the challenge. We have a lot of momentum right now as individuals and as a team. Everybody is hot and ready to ride."



MIKE CARRILLO

Europeans take early lead in PGA Westchester Classic

HARRISON, NY. (AP) - Europeans Sandy Lyle and Seve Ballesteros took advantage of a familiar pairing and perfect weather to set the pace in the first round of the $600,000 Westchester Classic.

"We've played together many times, both here and in Europe," Lyle, a Scotsman, said Thursday after shooting 65, one stroke better than Ballesteros, a Spaniard.

"I enjoy playing with Seve. I'm not awed, because we've played together so often, and sometimes you respond to his good play with good play of your own."

Ballesteros, who ranks as Europe's leading player, agreed.

"It helps you play better when you're with someone who is playing well," Ballesteros said after he and Lyle combined for a best-ball 60.

Lyle, like Ballesteros a former British Open champion, set the pace with his 6-under-par round that included five consecutive birdies on the Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

"A good run," Lyle said of the burst of five birdies. "One of the better days I've had on the greens," he understated after dropping birdie putts totaling 182 feet in length.

Ballesteros responded with some scoring heroics of his own. He chipped in from about 25 yards on the 16th and birdied in for a 66 that tied him for second with Loren Roberts.

The group tied for fourth at 68 included Doug Tewell, Jay Haas, Mike Reid and Mark Wiebe.

"I don't come here just to warm up for the U.S. Open" next week, Ballesteros said. "I also come to try to win.

"But I must improve from tee to green."

Jack Nicklaus also was looking for improvement - in a variety of areas. Nicklaus, 47, who lists himself as semi-retired, struggled to a 6-over-par 77 that left him in danger of missing the cut when the field is trimmed after today's round.

Nicklaus' son and sometimes-caddy, Jack II, shot 79.

Defending champion Bob Tway also was in jeopardy after a 75.

Rookie John Horne scored a hole-in-one with a 6-iron on the 144-yard 14th, then holed an 8-iron shot for a 2 on the 477-yard 15th. It marked the first time since Rex Caldwell did it in the 1985 Crosby that consecutive eagles had been scored on the PGA Tour. Horne, however, finished with a pair of 7s and shot 73.

No more for Mac

NEW YORK (AP) - Tennis officials announced that no additional penalties would be levied against John McEnroe for leaving the court last month during a World Team Cup match in West Germany.

After investigating the incident, the Men's International Professional Tennis Council determined that a back injury prevented McEnroe from finishing his match against Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia.

McEnroe walked off the court after arguing with chair umpire Rich Kaufman. He later said he was injured.

Baltimore beaten again, 7-6; this time by red hot Toronto

by The Associated Press

The opposition is having a grand time at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium this week.

On Wednesday, Ellis Burks and Marty Barrett hit grand slams in Boston's 15-4 victory over the Orioles. Thursday night, it was George Bell's turn.

Bell hit a grand slam and a solo homer, driving in six runs to pace visiting Toronto to a 7-6 decision over the Orioles and tie a club record with their ninth consecutive victory.

Bell has hit seven home runs and driven in 18 runs in his last 10 games, a streak that virtually parallels Toronto's surge to the top of the American League East.

It was the sixth two-homer game of the season for Bell, who tops the major leagues with 23 homers and 60 RBI. The Orioles rallied for five runs in the seventh inning, but fell short and suffered their eighth straight defeat.

Toronto and Baltimore were tied for second place in the AL East on May 28. But now the Orioles are sixth, 11 games behind the first-place Blue Jays.

Elsewhere in the AL, Milwaukee beat Detroit 8-5 and Minnesota at Chicago was postponed because of rain in the only other games scheduled.

Toronto got hot at just about the time inter-division play began, with three victories over New York and four over Baltimore during the streak. But it wasn't a conscious effort.

"We try not to worry about who we're playing, but how we're playing," said Rance Mulliniks. "We just happened to get hot in our division."

The Toronto surge of 12 out of 13 has given the Blue Jays a three-game lead over second-place New York.

Says Mulliniks: "In this division, you can never have a big enough lead."

Brewers 8, Tigers 5

Mike Felder had five hits, including a two-run triple and a single that started a three-run seventh-inning rally, as Milwaukee topped host Detroit.

The Brewers trailed 4-3 entering the seventh when Detroit reliever Eric King walked in one run and hit a batter to force in the tying run.

SF doesn't let Downs down; he claims his third shutout

by The Associated Press

Last season, the San Francisco Giants never got any runs for Kelly Downs. This year, he's learned how to overcome that - not let the other team score.

Downs pitched his National League-leading third shutout Thursday night, scattering seven hits in a 1-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"I don't think about that," Downs said of the few runs the Giants get him. "We scored a run and I was fortunate enough to hold them down."

Downs, 5-2, struck out six and walked four. He escaped two bases-loaded jams early in the game and then induced Randy Ready to ground into a game-ending double play with runners on first and third.

In other games on a limited NL schedule, Houston beat Los Angeles 1-0 and Atlanta defeated Cincinnati 6-4.

Downs, 26, broke into the major leagues last July with San Francisco and went 4-4 with a good 2.75 earned run average. The Giants, however, scored only 24 runs in his 14 starts.

Downs' first victory this season was a three-hit, 1-0 victory over San Diego. One of his two losses this year was a 1-0 defeat against Pittsburgh. He is tied with Boston's Bruce Hurst for the major-league lead in shutouts and is tied with Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela for the NL lead with four complete games.

Eric Show and Lance McCullers combined on a three-hitter and retired the last 17 San Francisco batters in a losing effort. Show, 2-8, gave up three hits in six innings.

The host Giants ran their record to 7-0 against San Diego this season with the help of a gift run.

With one out in the third, Matt Williams hit a fly ball that center fielder Shane Mack did not see. Ready ran over from left field and tried to cover up, but missed a diving catch and the ball fell for a double.

Downs followed with a bunt single, Eddie Milner walked to load the bases and Chris Speier's RBI grounder produced the only run.

Astros 1, Dodgers 0

Jim Deshaies and two Houston relievers teamed on a four-hitter that pinned the hard-luck loss on Valenzuela in Los Angeles.

Deshaies, 5-2, allowed four hits in 6 1-3 innings and won his third straight decision. Larry Andersen worked the next 1 2-3 innings and Dave Smith closed for his 12th save.

Valenzuela, 5-5, lost for the third time in a row. He gave up seven hits in his fourth complete game.

The Astros scored in the third when Billy Hatcher hit a ground-rule double, stole third and came home as Glenn Davis grounded a single off Valenzuela's glove.

Braves 6, Reds 4

Gene Garber became the sixth major leaguer to reach 200 career saves and Glenn Hubbard's two-run double broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning at Cincinnati.

Garber preserved the victory with two scoreless innings of two-hit relief. Rollie Fingers is the all-time save leader with 341. Bruce Sutter, Rich Gossage, Dan Quisenberry and Sparky Lyle also have gotten at least 200 saves.

COONEY DETERMINED

sion in 1980 and 1981 by stopping Jimmy Young in the fourth round, knocking out Ron Lyle in the first and knocking out Ken Norton in 58 seconds.

However, since he was stopped in the 13th round by Holmes, he has fought just three times.

He knocked out Philip Brown in the fourth round and George Chaplin in the second, then knocked out Eddie Gregg in the first in May 1986.

Cooney blames injury and family problems for his inactivity.

"I'm ready to go," Cooney said Thursday at a news conference.

"I think he's an underrated heavyweight," Cooney said of the 30-year-old Spinks, who has a 30-0 record, with 20 knockouts. Cooney's mark is 28-1, with 24 knockouts.

"He beat Holmes (for the IBF title)," Cooney said. "I just think I'm better."

Rodriquez still blazing away

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Chi Chi Rodriguez, winner of his last four senior events and five of 10 tournaments this year, is off to a blazing start in the $400,000 Senior Tournament Players Championship.

He also is facetiously humble of the record 7-under-par 65 he shot Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Billy Maxwell going into today's second round.

"I deserve these breaks because I'm a 'nice guy,'" Rodriguez, 51, said after shooting the lowest round in Senior TPC history.

Rodriguez birdied six holes and eagled the par-5 No. 8 on the 6,636-yard Oceanside course at Sawgrass Country Club.

Rangers choose 53 in June draft

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers chose 53 players in 51 rounds of the June 2-4 amateur free-agent draft, one player shy of the club record 54 set in June 1983, officials said Thursday.

Of the 53, 22 have so far signed contracts, team spokesmen say.

Texas had two picks in the first round. With its 19th selection, the team chose lefthanded pitcher Brian Bohanon from North Shore High School in Houston.

North Shore is in the Texas high school Class 5A state tournament, and Bohanon will start against Abilene Cooper in the state semifinals Friday night in Austin.

Texas also had the 23rd pick, the result of compensation from the New York Yankees for the signing of free agent Gary Ward. Texas chose catcher Billy Haselman from UCLA, who has already signed and will report to Gastonia of the South Atlantic League on June 17.

Overall, a record 1,263 players were selected in 75 rounds.

Record number

NEW YORK (AP) - A record number of 1,263 amateur free agents were chosen in last week's draft by major league baseball teams, the commissioner's office announced. The previous record was 1,162 draftees in 1967.

The Kansas City Royals made the most selections, 74 in the 75 rounds. Next were the Toronto Blue Jays with 71, and the New York Mets and the Cincinnati Reds with 61 each.

There were several father and son acts in the draft. Ken Griffey Jr., son of Ken Griffey Sr., was selected by Seattle as the draft's first pick.

Americans setting marriage records

WASHINGTON (AP) — That massive population bulge born after World War II has helped America set a pair of seemingly opposite records — most marriages and lowest marriage rate for young women.

"The number of marriages was at a historic high at the same time the rate of marriages per 1,000 unmarried women aged 15-44 years was at a historic low," the National Center for Health Statistics reported Thursday.

"A new national record of 2,477,192 couples married in 1984, 1 percent more than the number in 1983," the Center said in releasing its study, the most recent detailed statistics currently available.

But despite that rise in total marriages, the most-eligible women were tying the knot at their lowest rate ever, the study added.

For every 1,000 women between the ages of 15 and 44, 99 got married that year. The previous low rate was 99.3 per 1,000, set in 1983.

"Currently, an unusually large number of divorced and single people who are in the age groups most likely to marry are remaining unmarried," the new study said.

This phenomenon has been widely discussed by social scientists in recent years, with a debate under way over whether young people are foregoing marriage and families for education and careers or merely postponing the traditional husband-wife status.

Either way, the massive post-World War II generation has helped these seemingly anomalous records to be set, since even at low rates there are so many people in the common marrying ages that they can still set records for the total number tying the knot.

Even as it issued the new figures, however, the Center for Health Statistics added that "provisional data for 1985 and 1986 indicate that both the number of marriages and the marriage rate have since declined."

Average age at first marriage continued an increase that has been under way in recent years, reaching 23.8 for brides and 25.7 for bridegrooms.

While the marriage rate for eligible young women dropped to a new low, the national marriage rate was steady at 10.5 weddings per 1,000 people during the year, the same as a year earlier.

That indicates that the increase in total marriages was about the same percentage as the overall population growth in the year. But the 15-to-44 age group was growing faster, thus resulting in a lower marriage rate for those people.

One tradition remained, the study confirmed, however — the June marriage is still most popular, more than doubling the January rate of weddings.

Workers scarcity affecting growers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many fruit and vegetable growers in the Pacific Northwest are having a hard time finding laborers to pick perishable crops as a new immigration reform law appears to be slowing the influx of Mexican workers, Agriculture Department officials say.

The administration says it is trying to cut some of the red tape that has helped delay the flow of Mexican field workers needed in the harvest areas, but officials concede results may take a while.

Ewen Wilson, acting assistant secretary for economics, said Thursday the Immigration and Naturalization Service was told to work with the State Department to see what could be done about speeding up the paperwork that workers must complete in Mexico.

"The fact of the matter is, it's going to take time to process them down in Mexico," he said. "I think this is the nut of the problem."

Although Wilson said he had no firm estimate of how many workers are needed in the Northwest at the moment, he said reports have indicated a shortfall of about 25,000 workers for field jobs.

"Historically, we've tried to estimate how many people we have working in perishible agriculture, and I would guess that number would be somewhere in the 400,000 to 500,000 range," he said.

Wilson said the problem apparently stems from the new Immigration Reform and Control Act that Congress passed last year to help curb the flow of illegal aliens. The law also offers amnesty and temporary worker permission under certain conditions.

But Wilson said many workers are still in Mexico, waiting for official documents to be processed. Six processing centers were supposed to be established, but only one is in operation at the moment, he said.

Wilson told reporters that INS chief Alan C. Nelson was instructed by Attorney General Edwin Meese III to work with the State Department to see what could be done to find a solution. The directive to Nelson came at a meeting on Wednesday, attended also by Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng and Labor Secretary William Brock.

Meanwhile, Wilson said, reports from Oregon, Washington and other states in the region indicate widespread problems finding enough workers to pick ripening strawberries and cherries. And the annual harvest of perishable crops is just beginning, he said.

Although USDA has only a minor role in administering federal farm labor regulations, it did have the responsibility for defining certain crops that are affected by the new law, Wilson said.

Asked why local labor couldn't be found to help in the fields in the Northwest, Wilson said he understood there were problems finding enough people to perform the jobs.

Are the wages too low to attract help, even on an emergency basis?

"The market's ultimately going to determine this, but right now there doesn't appear to be enough people," he said. "I don't know what wage it would take to persuade people to go out and do some of this labor."

New chemical method safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department engineer says a new method of applying chemicals to keep hay from spoiling could be safer for farmers and livestock.

C. Alan Rotz of the department's Agricultural Research Service's dairy forage laboratory, East Lansing, Mich., said his system involves the use of a foot-long syringe powered by a tractor's hydraulic system to inject liquid preservative into each bale of hay. The syringe draws the chemical from a tank mounted on a tractor-pulled baler.

Rotz said in a report issued here by the agency that the system reduces hazards of the preservatives — anyhydrous amonia or propionic acid — which can cause severe skin and eye irritation if mishandled. Too much ammonia can make animals sick, and propionic acid can rust the baler, he said.

"This system will also allow a farmers to bale hay when the hay is still damp, without worrying about spoilage or about the leaf loss that occurs if hay is too dry when baled," he said

Rotz said he has proved the system with ammonia and is testing it with propionic acid.

Gdansk sealed off during Pope's visit

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Police sealed off downtown Gdansk today in a huge show of force to thwart pro-Solidarity demonstrations, as Pope John Paul II paid an emotional visit to a memorial to workers killed in 1970 riots.

The Polish-born pontiff earlier today demanded greater respect for human rights in his "severely tried" Communist homeland and urged the nation's young people to strive for freedom.

John Paul placed two dozen yellow flowers and said a prayer at the Three Crosses monument, near the main gate of the Lenin shipyard. It was there that Lech Walesa forged the now-outlawed Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's only free labor union movement, during a national wave of strikes in August 1980.

The white-robed pontiff knelt in prayer for about a minute before a cross of white flowers on the ground. In front of him loomed the three steel towers of the memorial, each 150 feet high.

Behind him, leading church officials, including Polish primate Cardinal Jozef Glemp, also knelt in prayer.

The government erected the monument under pressure from Solidarity during the federation's heyday to pay homage to dozens of workers shot and killed by security forces in 1970 protests against food price increases.

Only a few hundred invited guests were in the area, with the closest kept about 650 feet back from the pontiff.

Thousands of police with clubs, backed by water cannon, blocked all the streets around the monument, turning back anyone trying to get near the site.

Police detained nine people who got too close, including Western reporters, and threatened correspondents with loss of accreditation if they tried it again, the journalists told The Associated Press.

Private cars were banned from the city center. Journalists who tried to leave Gdansk press center on foot were turned back by police. The press center is about 1,650 feet from the monument.

The police presence in Gdansk appeared to be the largest since martial law was declared in December 1981. It was lifted in July 1983.

In Warsaw, police today detained the leader of an unofficial Polish peace group, one day after he released a letter to the pope criticizing Communist authorities for harassing opposition activists during the pontiff's visit.

Jacek Czaputowicz, a leader of the banned Freedom and Peace Movement, an independent peace and ecology group, was taken from his Warsaw apartment, his wife Magda said in a telephone interview.

John Paul, spiritual leader of the world's 800 million Roman Catholics, was on the fifth day of a weeklong pilgrimage.

Reagan challenges Soviet to tear down Berlin wall

BERLIN (AP) — President Reagan stood before the concrete and barbed wire of the Berlin Wall today and issued a personal and dramatic challenge to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev: "If you seek peace ... come here to this gate ... tear down this wall."

The president, like John Kennedy two decades before, spoke briefly and poignantly in German as he embraced "this firm, this unalterable belief: 'Es gibt nur ein Berlin'— There is only one Berlin."

Before his speech, Reagan stood before the wall and looked across to East Germany, the Soviet ally which erected the barrier 26 years ago to keep East Germans from fleeing to the West.

His speech was delivered near the Brandenburg Gate, which towers over the wall from East Berlin, and broadcast throughout Europe. Reagan was heading back to Washington after nine days in Venice, Italy, site of the annual economic summit.

Reagan wondered aloud about the openness and reform advanced by Gorbachev and spoke harshly about a Soviet system that cannot can't produce enough food to feed its people.

His speech was met with occasional cheers.

As he stood at a balcony overlooking the Wall, two guards in an East German tower grabbed cameras to take pictures of the American president, and on top of Brandenburg Gate, two others looked down at the huge crowd and the stage where Reagan spoke.

On the eve of Reagan's arrival here, hundreds of anti-American protesters smashed windows, looted stores and battled with riot-equipped police. Some 60 demonstrators were arrested and nearly 70 policemen injured.

Later, Reagan said, "The only demonstration I've seen has been one of utmost cordiality and hospitality for which I am grateful."

When a reporter noted polls show many Europeans think Gorbachev is more of a man for peace than he is, Reagan said, "They just have to learn don't they."

On a cool, gray morning, Reagan arrived from Venice aboard Air Force One at Tempelhof Air Force Base, waved to U.S. military personnel and their dependents as the U.S. Army Berlin Brigade Band played, and walked down a red carpet to review a multinational honor guard consisting of British blackwatch units, a French artillery unit and U.S. Army and Air Force units.

The president had been given a 12-boat escort out of Venice. Reporters noted that protesters were awaiting him in Berlin. He replied: "Nothing new about that."

His address was at the Brandenburg Gate, the most visually impressive landmark at the wall, the concrete and barbed wire barrier between East and West Berlin.

It was there Reagan was directing his most dramatic remarks at Gorbachev.

"General Secretary Gorbachev, if you seek peace, if you seek prosperity for the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, if you seek liberalization, come here to this gate," Reagan said.

"Mr. Gorbachev, open this gate.

"Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall."

Specifically, Reagan urged increased air access to West Berlin and suggested the city be the site of United Nations meetings or world conferences on human rights, arms control and other issues.

Among other things, Reagan suggested that Berlin — East and West — be the site of a future Olympic Games.

Just after midnight on Aug. 13, 1961, thousands of East German soldiers and militiamen began unrolling barbed wire and installing concrete blocks around the perimeter of the western sectors of Berlin to prevent people from fleeing from the East.

Twenty-six years later, the wall now stretches 103 miles, reinforced by electric fences, trenches, dog runs and watchtowers.

Reagan said the wall, which he once called "as ugly as the idea behind it, and other barriers between East and West, were "an instrument to impose upon ordinary men and women the will of a totalitarian state.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl joined Reagan in the call to tear down the Berlin Wall.

A recent study by the federal government found that an average urban wage earner's household spends almost 40 cents out of every dollar on housing.

Sale rejection seen as warning to Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional rejection of a proposed $360 million missile sale to Saudi Arabia should warn the Reagan administration to proceed cautiously before escalating the U.S. military role in the Persian Gulf, lawmakers say.

The administration was forced to drop the sale proposal Thursday after 67 senators, the exact number needed to override a presidential veto, signed a resolution of disapproval.

As his gulf policy was dealt a blow domestically, President Reagan said in Venice that he was satisfied with the limited support allies gave at the summit for his Persian Gulf security policies.

Reagan did not ask, and was not offered, military help for his plan to have the United States protect Kuwaiti tankers. Instead, the summit partners issued a communique pledging limited diplomatic support for the U.S. policy in the oil-rich region.

"I think it has been excellent that there was no criticism from any of our allies about this," the president said.

At home, however, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., scheduled a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next week to report out legislation that would prohibit the administration from reflagging and protecting the Kuwati oil tankers.

The bill would call on the United Nations Security Council to protect shipping in the gulf and to urgently seek an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

"A go-it-alone, high-risk, highly rhetorical policy will not re-establish U.S. credibility," Pell told the Senate. "It risks further damage to U.S. influence and prestige."

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said there were many reasons for the widespread bipartisan opposition to the sale of 1,600 Maverick radar-guided, anti-tank missiles to Iran. One reason, he said, is the concern over Saudi Arabia's failure to dispatch jet fighters to intercept the Iraqi warplane that hit the USS Stark with two Exocet missiles last month, killing 37 seamen.

"There were questions being raised about what Saudi Arabia did or didn't do in the Stark incident," Dole said. "It just wasn't a good time" to go ahead with the sale.

Dole and other congressional leaders said the forced withdrawal of the sale underscores the need for close consultation before the White House makes irrevocable decisions to use the Navy to keep oil supplies flowing.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., warned that such an action would raise the risk of war with Iran.

"I hope the administration will learn from this and not proceed to put American flags on Kuwaiti ships without consulting very closely with the Congress," Cranston said. "If we make that move, it will be left to the Ayatollah Khomeini to decide if America becomes involved in war."

Agreement here involves TU line

The legal questions raised in Hatter's suit regarding if this award will eventually go to herself and other potential heirs remains unanswered.

Also still pending is TU's challenge to the amount paid for right-of-way granted the family by the condemnation panel.

Dulaney said this week that those issues will likely be settled in a trial at a later date.

Fence project needs funds

each participant to contribute his bid regardless of the final winner on each auctioned item. With a raised hand, each participant increases the bid by 25 cents. At the end of a designated time limit, the last bidder purchases the item.

Reservations for the luncheons must be made the day before by calling Lois Bartels at 573-3822, Jean Everett at 573-2763 or June McGlaun at 573-9742.

All funds raised will be used to defray cost of the materials and painting of the wrought iron fence currently being installed around the home.

Construction of the fence began last week and is now nearing completion. There were not sufficient sections of the original to complete the project, but group members managed to locate the still-in-operation firm which built the ironwork fence.

From the company, they secured enough new sections to complete the work.

Criminal mischief complaint filed

Snyder police are investigating two misdemeanor complaints filed Thursday.

Mary Brandon of 3204 Ave. L filed a criminal mischief complaint at 7:05 a.m.

She told officers that someone had apparently broken out the windshield of a vehicle owned by her son, Earnest Ray Brandon, sometime Wednesday night.

Janelda Davis with Ben Wilson Supply filed a criminal mischief complaint at 7:53 a.m.

She reported finding a front display window of the auto parts store broken out when she reported to work.

Investigators said that a rock had apparently been thrown through the window.

No values were estimated for damages in either case.

In other action Thursday, city officers jailed three suspects on misdemeanor charges including one man arrested for public intoxication, and two others jailed for being intoxicated on a permisis licensed to sell alcohol.

Saddle, tack said missing

Scurry County sheriff's deputies are investigating a burglary of a tack shed reported earlier this week.

Charlie Henderson, who lives east of Snyder, reported the incident Monday.

He told investigators someone had broken into his tack shed over the weekend.

Listed as missing from the building were six saddles, two pairs of chaps, five breast collars, two bridles and a pair of electric clippers.

Total value of the missing equipment was estimated in excess of $3,000.

Obituaries

Fred Trice

Services for Fred Trice, 80, of 2603 25th are set for 2 p.m. Sunday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Bob Metzger, pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Larry McAden, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. Burial will follow in Snyder Cemetery.

He died at 6:45 a.m. Friday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born June 5, 1907 in Tye, Tex. He had been a painter and cotton ginner. He was a member of First United Methodist Church.

He was married to Mary Ceora Head June 11, 1927 in Snyder. She died Jan. 25, 1978.

He is survived by one son, Roy of Snyder; six grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; one brother, J. T. of Snyder; and two sisters, Lydia DeShazo of Snyder and Mrs. Malcolm (Dollie) James of Ruidoso, N. M.

Bill Davis

ABILENE--Services are set for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Elliott-Hamil Funeral Home Chapel for William T. (Bill) Davis who died Wednesday in a Big Spring hospital.

Davis, 62, was the brother of Jan Jinkins of Snyder.

Sugar output to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's sugar output is expected to climb to nearly 6.7 million tons in the year that began last Oct. 1, the most in more than a decade, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Thursday the forecast is up 11 percent from 1985-86 sugar production and that, another large output, in the range of 6.65 million to 6.75 million, may be in the works for 1987-88.

Beet sugar production rose nearly 14 percent this season to more than 3.4 million tons, and cane sugar output is a record of more than 3.28 million tons, department said in its report.

H. Cisneros' newborn son has congenital heart defect

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros' newborn son has been diagnosed as having a congenital heart defect, but is not in immediate danger and should be able to go home in a week, the family's pediatrician says.

John Paul Anthony Cisneros was diagnosed Thursday as having a heart with two chambers and three valves instead of the normal four chambers and four valves, said Dr. Fernando Guerra.

The child also had problems with his liver and stomach, which were not in their correct places, and had several small spleens in the stomach area, Guerra said.

So far, however, all are functioning well, Guerra said Thursday.

He said doctors would like the child to go home in about five days and if there are any problems, a catheter will be inserted into the heart and veins to determine what they are.

"The concern is that as the circulation into the lung increases that there will be an increased flow of blood into that and then it might require surgical procedure to prevent the baby from flooding up his lungs," Guerra said.

Guerra said he hopes to delay any surgery for several weeks because the baby is not in immediate danger. He added that John Paul's problems developed in the early stages of his development.

"In a sense we have two chambers, even almost one," Guerra said of the child's heart. "It's sort of common chamber with the blood that has oxygen and blood that doesn't have oxgyen going into the same chamber."

Mrs. Cisneros, 37, delivered the 5-pound, 14-ounce boy by Caesarean section Wednesday night, on the eve of the mayor's 40th birthday.

The baby seemed fine at first, but pediatricians later noticed that he was turning blue and that he had a heart murmur. They decided to do tests, including X-rays, and administered oxygen.

The child has since eaten and has been taken off oxygen tanks, Guerra said.

The child is the couple's first boy. The Cisneroses' other children are daughters, Teresa, 16, and Mercedes, 12, who also were present in the delivery room.

Guerra said the family has taken news of the child's condition well.

Cisneros said Wednesday night that the baby was named after Pope John Paul II and the saint for which the city is named.

When asked if he planned to have another child, the mayor laughed and said, "We will have no more family."

Mrs. Cisneros was hospitalized April 30 after experiencing bleeding.

Veterinarian joins Dr. Church's clinic

Ivan Muennink, DVM is now associated with Charles Church, DVM at the West Texas Animal Clinic. He assumed his new duties the first of this month.

A May 1987 graduate of Texas A&M University, Muennink is originally from Hondo. Since he wanted to work at a clinic which specialized in the general practice of veterinary medicine, Muennink interviewed with Dr. Church last Christmas when he and his wife, Julie, were in the area to visit her parents in Lubbock. Since the West Texas Animal Clinic is a general practice clinic, Muennink will treat both large and small animals.

Snyder's newest veterinarian has always been interested in treating animals and worked for the veterinarian in Hondo while he attended high school. He and his wife decided to locate in Snyder after he graduated from A&M because they "wanted to come to West Texas."

Rotan Methodists continue anniversary celebration

ROTAN — The First United Methodist Church of Rotan, 209 N. McKinley, will continue the celebration of its 80th anniversary with a special anniversary homecoming event this weekend.

The church was organized March 3, 1907, and a special service of commemoration was held on March 3 this year.

The homecoming activities will begin Saturday with a sandwich supper in the church's fellowship hall at 6 p.m. At 7 p.m. a musical program will be presented in the sanctuary, featuring musical presentations by former and current church members and congregational singing.

Activities Sunday will begin with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. followed by the homecoming worship service at 10:30 a.m. The speaker will be Rev. J. Alvis Cooley of Abilene, a former pastor who served in 1957 when the congregation celebrated its 50th anniversary.

After the service, a dinner for members and guests will be served. The closing activity of the celebration will be a special historical presentation at 1:30 p.m. by a panel of selected individuals and spontaneous sharing by celebrants attending.

The church's Committee on Archives and History is coordinating the weekend's activities.

Former pastors will return throughout the year to continue the celebration. Among those returning include Rev. Tommy Taylor on July 12; Rev. Bob Ford on Aug. 2; Rev. Fred Brown on Aug. 23; and Rev. Larry Ramsey on Sept. 20.

All members, former members and friends of the church are invited to attend.

Report says most Baptists believe Adam & Eve existed

DALLAS (AP) — An unreleased report that tries to ease tensions in the Southern Baptist Convention says most Baptists believe Adam and Eve were real people, and that's what seminary professors should teach, the Dallas Times Herald reported in today's editions.

But some Baptists who have heard about the report say such statements are the first step in forcing conformity and stifling academic freedom.

The report of the Peace Committee, a 22-member panel established during the denomination's 1985 meeting in Dallas, will be presented Tuesday night to the Southern Baptist Convention meeting in St. Louis.

"There's a genuine concern that they may be moving beyond a statement of faith and telling you how to interpret scripture," said the Rev. Roy Honeycutt, president of Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky. "That's so far from the Baptist heritage."

Moderates and conservatives in the 14-million member convention have been fighting eight years. Conservatives say they are battling theological liberalism in the denomination's seminaries. Moderates say conservatives are engaged in a political-style takeover of the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Although the committee has a final meeting Sunday night, several members agreed to anonymously discuss preliminary conclusions, the Herald reported. Committee members said the most controversial section of the 18-page report concerns theology: what Baptists believe and what the Bible teaches.

The section says most Baptists believe in Adam and Eve and that the Bible was written by the people cited in the text. The section also says Baptists expect these beliefs to be taught in their six seminaries.

An earlier report by the committee said some Baptists believe Adam and Eve were real people, and others think the couple is a symbolic representation of the first humans. Some scholars also question whether every book in the Bible was written by the author to whom it is attributed.

Peace Committee members said discussions about the theology section have stalled the report. Conservatives want a clear statement about what Baptists believe and what should be taught. Moderates argue that Baptists should be free to interpret the Bible according to their own consciences, and that scholarship should be open and free.

Ticks spread to joint disease

DEAR DR. GOTT — Six months ago, every joint in my arms and legs suddenly hurt and became swollen. My doctor diagnosed me as having Lyme disease and rheumatoid arthritis. I am taking Clinoril and penicillin, but my pain persists and I am exhausted all the time. I'm 63, and I wonder if I will ever get better.

DEAR READER — Lyme disease, a tick-borne arthritis, was first described in residents of Lyme, Conn. Prior to developing swollen joints, patients experience fever, chills, headache, rash and malaise (feeling bad). Rarely, heart-conduction disturbances or meningitis (infection of the brain covering) may complicate the illness. Treatment consists of antibiotics and sometimes cortisone, if the inflammation is advanced.

One characteristic of Lyme disease is that symptoms tend to flare up for weeks at a time, then decline in severity for up to three years. No permanent joint damage follows the infection.

I question the additional diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis, because Lyme disease predominantly affects the joints and is quite sufficient to explain your symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it safe to use baking powder in homemade breads? I love to cook, but am concerned about the aluminum sulfate in baking powder, which is supposed to harm the body. Since I'm from the South, where we eat biscuits or corn bread daily, I would appreciate your opinion.

DEAR READER — Many baked goods contain aluminum sulfate. In concentrations permitted by the Food and Drug Administration, this substance is harmless. Although you eat biscuits or corn bread every day, the small amounts of aluminum that you ingest should pose no health problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 83 and have dry eyes. My doctor prescribed artificial tears, which don't seem to help. Would vitamin E help, or is there something else to ease the pain?

DEAR READER — "Dry eyes," due to malfunction of the lacrimal mechanism, often accompanies the aging process. However, it also can be seen in certain diseases, such as Sjogren's syndrome; further, the condition is caused by eye disease itself, such as failure of the lacrimal glands. Ask your doctor to refer you to an ophthalmologist for a precise diagnosis. The specialist may be able to correct the uncomfortable ailment and prescribe treatment that is more effective than artificial tears. Vitamin E is not particularly useful for this problem.
