V-E Proclamation Due Today From 'Big Three'; Nazis Surrender Monday

Soviet Views Toward Japs In Spotlight

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—(AP)—Soviet Commissar Molotov said today now that Allied armies are successful in Europe, the work of the United Nations conference should be speeded for laying foundations for international security.

But the Russian foreign commissar, addressing a news conference, gave no elaboration on what Soviet policy toward Japan will be now that Germany has surrendered.

His government, Molotov said, already has expressed its view on that question. That, he said, was early in April.

Non-Aggression Pact

He referred obviously to Russia's denunciation of her non-aggression pact with the Japanese.

Molotov met the press in a gold and red ballroom at the St. Francis hotel, while two other foreign ministers left their delegations to start towar Europe because of the changed war situation.

As delegates talked about a possibility of a plenary session of the conference tomorrow to celebrate V-E day, Molotov said the Soviet delegation attaches great importance to areas of agreement on amendments reached by the Big Four sponsoring nations.

Attitude On Spain

Asked what attitude the Soviet delegation would take if the Spanish government were invited to the parley here, Molotov said vigorously:

"The question is so simple it does not call for a reply."

But the commissar said it would be desirable for Denmark to have a place at the Golden Gate conference.

Again today Molotov expressed confidence that a long-standing British-American-Russian dispute over the makeup of a new Polish government will be "settled successfully."

"The principal thing," he added, "is that this question should be settled in accordance with the wishes of the Poles themselves."

On the lips of every delegate was a happy word that "now it's

Belgian King And Queen Liberated

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, Tuesday, May 8. (AP) — Leopold III, king of Belgium, and his queen have been liberated by the U. S. Seventh Army, it was announced today.

They were found near Strobl, eight miles east of Salzburg.

The Americans had been told of the whereabouts of the royal party by civilians.

All were in good health.

Elements of the American 106th Cavalry group had to overpower German SS (elite guard) troops in order to make the rescue.

Home Minister Genki Abe of Japan said Monday that American bombings of Tokyo were in the long run "a great blessing."

He was quoted by Tokyo radio as telling the readers of the Nippon Times that the bombings "will allow many crooked streets to be straightened" and that "many parks and lagoons will take the place of unsightly large buildings."

The broadcast was recorded by United Press at San Francisco.

Cry Of Japs Next Echoes In Pacific

New Advances Reported On Okinawa And Borneo As Troops Take On New Spirit

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

IMPORTANT gains for American Marines and doughboys on bloody Okinawa island and new advances by Allied arms on Tarakan, Borneo, underscored official Pacific war reports late Monday as the cry "Now for Japan" echoed throughout the roaring Oriental battle theater on the heels of unconditional German surrender.

Destruction of numerous Okinawa blockhouses, pillboxes and other defense positions by Yank naval guns and carrier planes was followed up by ground forces with smashing attacks all along the front. Marines punched southward to the edge of Dakeshi village while flame-throwing tanks led doughboy gains in the center of the line. Soldiers also pushed forward on the left flank.

36,535 Japs Slain

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported that the Japanese on Okinawa have lost 36,535 men killed from the beginning of the furious fighting April 1 through May, 7.

Meanwhile, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed that Allied planes are already using the captured Tarakan airfield, a base from which all of Borneo can be brought under heavy aerial bombing and strafing attacks.

B-29s POUND KYUSHU

GUAM, Tuesday, May 8. (AP) — Nearly 500 American Superfortresses, bombing through overcast with precision instruments, delivered the 18th strike against Kyushu island today.

Results were unobserved as planes hit Kokubu and Oita airfields and industrial areas in the towns of Imamari and Miyakonojo on the southernmost of Japan's home islands.

Two Superforts were lost in Monday's four-way strike at Kyushu airfields to heavy enemy air opposition. Anti-aircraft fire generally was meager.

Australian and Dutch forces on Tarakan have swept from the west coast to within a mile and a half of the east coast. The Japanese have been cleared from the area east of the main Pamoesian oilfield. Fighting continued in northern Tarakan city.

Push On Mindanao

American troops on Mindanao island, southeast Philippines, pushed into hills west of Davao city while others bored northward to take Maramag airfield.

Philippine-based Yank planes lashed northern Luzon, Formosa, the China coast, Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies.

American Superfortresses struck for the 17th time against Japanese airbases on Kyushu, 325 miles north of Okinawa. The Nipponese offered heavy air resistance and two B-29s were lost. Superfort fliers reported they bombed vis-

Blueprint Ready On Reconversion

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Federal machinery will soon be set in motion to restore limited supplies of most goods within six months and a prewar volume of production in a year.

War agency executives kept mum on their plans, awaiting the official proclamation of victory in Europe, but a ferment of activity was discernible behind the scenes.

Plans All Ready

The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion prepared to issue, within 48 hours after formal announcement of V-E day, a sweeping blueprint of home front plans for reconversion, rationing, manpower, price and wage controls during the period of one-front warfare.

Its dominant message was expected to be: "Stay on the job for the major war which remains to be fought and won."

The "brownout" of unnecessary lighting will be revoked immediately after the presidential announcement of V-E day, the War Production board has announced. Other officials indicated the midnight curfew and the horse racing ban would follow it into the discard in comparatively short order.

WPB meanwhile studied plans to lift its flat ceiling on civilian goods manufacturing. That program went into effect four months ago today, freezing non military production to the level of October, November and December. Every recent WPB statement has indicated, however, that the relaxation of wartime industrial controls will be gradual.

Rationing: Gas for A cards boosted perhaps 50 per cent within 30-90 days; tire supplies gradually; food rationing indefinitely.

Hard goods: (Refrigerators, autos etc) to get go ahead immediately —on market within 12 months.

Soft goods: (Clothing) continued scarce.

Tanks Smash Into Prague To Aid Czechs

By ROMNEY WHEELER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, May 8 — The partisan-held radio in Prague announced last night that American tanks, racing to the relief of patriots in the Czechoslovak capital, had smashed into the city's suburbs within four miles of its limits.

A partisan leader, identifying himself as the "military commander of Greater Prague," said American staff officers already were in contact with the freedom fighters as the Germans, in a final act of Hitler hoodlumism, burned and sacked the city and shelled its hospitals.

Innocent Pawn In War

Czechoslovakia, innocent pawn in Germany's war against the world, was the last major battleground in Europe where a three-front struggle continued after the Nazis' unconditional surrender.

The Germans were fighting on in Czechoslovakia after Nazi General Ferdinand von Schoerner, commander in Bohemia and Moravia, repudiated the capitulation announced by Grand Admiral Doenitz.

Russian forces also were reported swiftly surging toward the capital from the east and north.

In Prague Suburb

While the patriots battled the Germans in bloody street fighting in Prague, the partisan broadcast announced at 11:30 p. m. (London time) last night that advance American tank units "have just passed Reporyje." Reporyje lies four miles southwest of Prague proper. The partisan leader said the patriots were in contact with a Capt. Russell, representing "Maj. Gen. Elvers" of the First American Infantry division. The broadcast cited an order of the day, reportedly issued to the First division, which made "it evident beyond any doubt that Germany has capitulated unconditionally to all Allied powers, including the Soviet Union."

Earlier reports reaching London had said that spearheads of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army were only some 15 miles from Prague.

The German-controlled radio station in Prague said that Russian forces under Marshal Ivan S. Konev had entered Bohemia from the north at a point probably 60 to 65 miles north of the capital.

The Allies, however, apparently no longer considered von Schoerner's Army group a legal Army. In London, the Czechoslovak minister of foreign trade, Dr. Hubert

Truman To Speak At 8 A.M. In Delayed Announcement; Signing At Reims, France

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

REIMS, France, May 7—Germany surrendered unconditionally to the Western Allies and Russia at 2:41 a. m. French time today.

(This was at 7:41 p. m., central war time Sunday.)

This Story Is AP 'Scoop'

The surrender which brought the war in Europe to a formal end after five years, eight months and six days of bloodshed and destruction was signed for Germany by Col. Gen. Gustov Jodl.

It was also signed by Gen. Ivan Susloparoff for Russia and by Gen. Francios Sevez for France.

Gen. Eisenhower Not Present

Gen. Eisenhower was not present at the signing, but immediately afterward Jodl and his fellow delegate, Gen. Admiral Hans Georg Friedeburg, were received by the supreme commander.

They were asked sternly if they understood the surrender terms imposed upon Germany and if they would be carried out by Germany.

They answered yes.

Germany, which began the war with a ruthless attack upon Poland, followed by successive aggressions and brutality in internment camps, surrendered with an appeal to the victors for mercy toward the German people and armed forces.

Delivered Into Victors' Hands

After signing the full surrender, Jodl said he wanted to speak and was given leave to do so.

"With this signature," he said in soft-spoken German, "the German people and armed forces are for better or worse delivered into the victors' hands.

"In this war, which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world."

Thanks Services To Feature Day Here

Lubbock citizens plainly did not know how to take news of the end of the war in Europe.

There was little doubt among them that this time it was the real thing. The last gasp of Hitler's Frankenstein did not leave them with the bubbling joy that they had expected. For a long time they had been aware of its death throes. Realization of Germany's death had not come suddenly; it had come gradually over a period of weeks. There was no snap reaction.

Much of their enthusiasm had been spent on Saturday, April 28, when false victory news came from a high American official.

Irked Some By Delay

They were a little irked by the delay in official confirmation.

On downtown streets last night the atmosphere was ordinary. There was no evidence of celebration. In cafes and other gathering places many things besides the victory news were talked about.

Most, undoubtedly, were restrained by the fact that the war still was half-won.

The drinking and the carousing were absent. Police had latched up only one drunk at midnight.

By previous agreement, retail stores were to close today. Banks, government offices and the post-office were to close. Most theaters will shut down. Perhaps a few cafes and service stations would remain open.

Churches Open Tonight

Lubbock churches were to open their doors at 8 o'clock tonight for thankful meditation. Special patriotic programs were set in all Lubbock schools. There will be no dismissal of classes either in public schools or at Texas Technological college.

All plans were conditioned on whether or not President Truman makes the victory official in his address to the nation this morning.

WASHINGTON, May 7—President Truman made arrangements tonight to make a radio address at 8 a. m. (central war time) tomorrow, presumably to proclaim the victory over Germany which is already known to be won.

A Big Three agreement put off the formal announcement of V-E day until it can be proclaimed simultaneously by the major allies—Britain, Russia and the United States.

While this capital greeted news of final Nazi surrender calmly as just another battle won—the biggest yet but not the last—the President stuck so meticulously to the Big Three announcement agreement that it was never said in so many words that it is a V-E day speech he will make.

Asked if that will be its nature, Jonathan Daniels, White House press secretary, told newsmen: "The statement speaks for itself."

He referred to a brief announcement given newsmen just after 6 o'clock this evening at the White House where many of them had been waiting all day for official announcement of the final victory over the Nazis.

Announcement By Radio At 8 A. M.

That statement said:

"On the basis of reports now received, the President confidently expects to make an announcement to the nation by radio at 8 o'clock central war time tomorrow morning.

"Unless unforeseen developments cause the President to change his plans, a White House press conference will be called at 8:30 a. m., eastern war time, at which time the press and radio will be given in confidence the text of the President's radio remarks."

Simultaneous Statement Agreed On

Earlier London had announced through the ministry of information that tomorrow definitely will be V-E day, but at that time Mr. Truman had had only this to say:

"I have agreed with the London and Moscow governments that I will make no announcement with reference to surrender of the enemy forces in Europe or elsewhere until a simultaneous statement can be made by the three governments. Until then there is nothing I can or will say to you."

The Truman announcement will come at 8 a. m. (central war time) the hour set for a broadcast by Prime Minister Churchill from London. The British minister of information said Churchill will speak at 3 p. m. British double summer time and King George at 9 p. m. (2 p. m. central war time.)

Britain Plans Two Holidays

There was nothing here parallel to the British announcement that tomorrow and the next day will be holidays.

Mr. Truman's statement was issued by Daniels, at a 1:01 p. m. central war time news conference with more than 100 reporters, most of whom had been waiting at the White House for hours in expectation of momentous critical news. It was the nearest approach to a break in the official silence which greeted the news from abroad.

In general the capital took the historic event in much the spirit of "sober rejoicing" recommended last night By Fred M. Vinson, director of War Mobilization.

Through the day up to the hour of the brief statement, the President had stood by with his advisers at hand, ready to make the official proclamation whenever V-E day should be announced. But he went ahead with regular business.

House Installs Radio Apparatus

The House of Representatives installed radio receiving apparatus in its chamber to hear the first word. But legislation business proceeded with only minor interruptions.

A few persons gathered at the White House fence, traditional vantage point for watching history in the making. But behind them Pennsylvania Avenue traffic flowed past unheeding.

There were brief interludes of congratulation and celebration among the thousands of wofkers in government offices. But routine soon was resumed there. Private business went ahead with only momentary pauses to read or hear the latest details.

Rejoicing Touched Off In London

It was all in broad contrast to the rejoicing touched off in London by the news that the Nazis had quit. There was nothing here even to compare with the rather mild paper-shower celebration reported from New York.

The only real break in White House official routine was luncheon at the desk of Mr. Truman. Boxes of sandwiches were brought in for the official executive office staff.

But the regular stream of visitors, on business not connected with German surrender, flowed in and out of the President's office.

"Sober Rejoicing" Urged

Still along the line of the Vinson recommendation for V-E day, which had urged no let-up in war work and only such interruption of normal activity as "the people's sense of sober rejoicing demands," the general attitude was expressed in the house of representatives.

Said Rep. McCormack (Mass), Democratic leader:

"It is my feeling, and I hope the House agrees, that we should continue with the business at hand and set a good example for the rest of the country."

House To Resume Work

McCormack asked and obtained unanimous consent for the speaker to declare the House in recess at any time to hear the momentous announcement. The House, he said, would resume its work after hearing the President.

The decision to hold off announcement apparently did not become final at the White House until afternoon. Morning conferences of the president with acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew and assistant Secretary Will Clayton emphasized the international affairs at hand. Among the White House stand-by group in the forenoon was Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information.

AP Scores Greatest News 'Beat' Of War On Surrender

(By The Associated Press)

THE Associated Press disclosed exclusively yesterday morning, (Monday, May 7), that Germany had surrendered completely and unconditionally.

A rigid official news blackout still prevented formal Allied announcement of the fact, but this was expected today (Tuesday) approximately 24 hours after the Associated Press dispatch.

Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press Western Front staff who scored the news beat—acclaimed by editors throughout the United States as one of the greatest in newspaper history—was indefinitely suspended from all further dispatching facilities by Supreme headquarters in Paris.

For nearly seven hours after Kennedy got out the news in a brief but detailed and factual dispatch dated from Reims, France, the suspension was applied to all Associated Press correspondents in the European theater of operations, but this subsequently was lifted for all except Kennedy.

The Germans themselves first announced that they had surrendered, in a broadcast at 7:38 a. m., central war time, yesterday (Monday). This was without confirmation of any sort until Kennedy's shirt, straightaway dispatch was telephoned from Paris to London nearly an hour later and was flashed on the Associated Press wires in the United States at 8:35 a. m. (cwt).

Several hours later the British Ministry of Information disclosed that Prime Minister Churchill and King George would make radio addresses today, (Tuesday), which the ministry said, "is to be treated as Victory in Europe Day."

From Washington and Moscow, which had expected to make the announcement through the heads of state simultaneously with London in a formal "set-piece," there was at first no word, but late Monday afternoon President Truman in Washington made arrangements to broadcast an address at 8 a. m. (central war time) today (Tuesday), presumably to proclaim the victory over Germany officially.

Kennedy's dispatch, datelined Reims—a town 75 miles east of Paris—said that "Germany surrendered unconditionally to the western Allies and Russia at 2:41 a. m. French time today" (that was at 7:41 p. m. Sunday, central war time.)

"The surrender took place in a little red schoolhouse which is the headquarters of General Eisenhower."

Kennedy's dispatch then went on to name the parties signing, with other details and quoted the chief of the German general staff, Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, as declaring in soft-spoken German:

"With this signature the German people and armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victors' hands."

Churchill To Proclaim V-E Today And Ask Commons To Recess For Thanksgiving Fete

By ALEX SINGLETON

LONDON, May 7. — Germany surrendered unconditionally to the Allies today, completing the victory in the European phase of the second World war—the most devastating in history.

Prime Minister Churchill will proclaim the historic conquest at 8 a.m. (Central War Time) tomorrow from 10 Downing street and simultaneous announcements will come from President Truman in Washington and is expected from Premier Marshal Stalin in Moscow.

Churchill then will report directly to Commons and ask for adjournment to Westminister Abbey for a service of thanksgiving.

V DAY IN EUROPE

The troubles of the present time seem to outweigh the announcement that hostilities have ceased in Europe. Those of us who have GI's and officers in the European theater cannot feel this is a day of celebration because we are remembering the men in the Pacific area. And too, these men on the Western front will not come marching home to stay, even if they are fortunate enough to be allowed to come home for a little while.

Who would want to celebrate today when he recalls there still are sailors, marines, airmen, soldiers and merchant crews in combat and in peril on land, at sea and in the air?

And remembers all those parents wives, sweethearts, children and families whose men are reported missing and who hope and hope against hope?

And thinks of the service men who have been blinded, deafened and maimed in their country's cause, in the cause of human decency and freedom?

And of the anxious, bereaved and sorrowing, the widowed and fatherless, the next of kin in the casualty lists who in this life will see their beloved no more?

And who remembers the refugees, devastated and homeless, who are scattered the length and breadth of Europe?

No, to us, this is no time for celebration, nor will it be until the war against Japan is over and we build a just and merciful peace that will repair the losses and heal the wounds of the world.

GI'S OPINION

WE were particularly interested in the reaction of the GI on the death of President Roosevelt and this letter we are reproducing this morning seems to be representative. It was written by a young man, who is a former staff member of the Avalanche-Journal and who is serving Uncle Sam somewhere in the Pacific. The letter, not meant by him for publication, was sent to his parents.

"You know until the announcement of President Roosevelt's death came over our loudspeaker system this morning (April 13), I never quite realized just how much he meant to me personally. Why, I've never known any other president and it is rather difficult to picture another in his place. . . . Say what they may against him and his policies, he was a great man and a true representative of the common people. No one can deny those points.

His death, you may be interested to know, was very peculiarly accepted here. We were all about our morning's business when the announcement was made. In a stern, unexcited and unemotional voice the announcer told us:

The following announcement is presented for the information of the troops. The White House has just announced the death of President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga. No details were given.' It was then repeated in those very same words, and were given no other particulars during the day.

Strangely there was very little conversation concerning his death among the men. All were genuinely stunned by the original announcement and during the few moments that followed sincere remarks such as 'What a mess things are in now,' and 'Truman can't possibly replace him' could be heard.

But for the remainder of the day I hardly heard the events mentioned. Two or three times I did hear fellows call attention to the fact that the president's death had come on Friday the 13th, only to be reminded that on the mainland the date was still Thursday the 12th, because of the International Dateline difference.

But although everyone carried on as usual, an unexplainable gloom hovered about us throughout the day. The laughs, although present were not quite as hearty as usual, and the men, for the most part, were noticeably less talkative. It was as though most of them had some personal problem which they were pondering.

As for myself, I believe as I said above, that we have been struck a great blow. However, I am less ready than most to condemn Truman at this early stage. Rather I believe that we should delay judgment until he is given a fair chance to prove his worth. I should not be at all surprised if he is much more successful than most people anticipate. In fact, he may do better than our late president in bringing together the various factions, as he is not such an extremist (Not that I minded Roosevelt being one, for I liked him all the more for it)."

All circles of Central Baptist Women's Missionary society met at the church for a lesson taught by Rev. Jack Welch. Mrs. J. S. Medley led the opening prayer and Mrs. W. R. Dean dismissed the meeting.

Twenty-four attended. Mrs. R. W. Beasley was a new member and Mrs. W. J. Nix was a guest.

The study of "Indian and American Life" being given for Asbury Methodist W.S.C.S. was completed by Mrs. A. W. Brock who was assisted by Mesdames Wayne Martin, C. A. Bickley, W. D. Slagle and M. F. Cowan.

Mrs. J. H. Williamson conducted a business session, Mrs. E. L. Lansford led a song and Mrs. Kitty Bond gave a prayer. Twenty-two attended.

Attending a lesson taught for Lottie Moon circle of Calvary Baptist W.M.S. by Mrs. H. R. Sprawls in the home of Mrs. F. G. Treat, 1507 Arnett, were Mesdames J. A. Alred, W. H. Place, E. C. Wood, Cecil Brashear and R. D. Harris.

Eighty-one members of First Baptist W.M.S. met in circles in homes. The women are to have circle meetings again next Monday for Bible study.

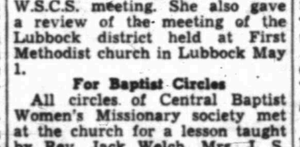

Confederate Graves Decorated By UDC

As is traditional, United Daughters of the Confederacy decorated the 47 graves Monday morning of Confederate veterans buried here. The decorating was done by Mrs. G. W. Blair, chairman, Mrs. T. R. Prideaux and Mrs. Dan Blair at a fitting time, near that of the surrender of the Germans to the Allies.

The graves were to have been decorated April 26 but were not because flags did not arrive on that date.

CHANGE MEETING DATE

Energetic club will meet for a theater party at the Lindsey Wednesday afternoon instead of Thursday as was planned. Mrs. Jennie Phipps is to be hostess.

Women in your '40's
Do these symptoms Betray your Age?
Do you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, nervous tension, irritability, are a bit blue at times—due to the functional "middle-age" period peculiar to women?
Then start at once—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. This great medicine HELPS NATURE. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such "middle-age" distress.
For almost a century—thousands upon thousands of women have reported benefits. Also grand stomachic tonic. Follow label directions.

Take Off Ugly Fat With This Home Recipe
Here is an inexpensive home recipe for taking off ungainly weight and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Just get from any druggist, four ounces of liquid Barcel Concentrate. Add enough grapefruit juice to make a pint. Then just take two tablespoonful twice a day. Wonderful results may be obtained quickly. Now you may slim down your figure and lose pounds of ugly fat without back breaking exercise or starvation diet. It's easy to make and easy to take. Contains nothing harmful. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky weight and help regain slender, more graceful curves, return the empty bottle and get your money back.

WMC Plans Shifting Men To Jobs To Aid Pacific War, Reconversion

By HELENE MONBERG
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Soon after V-E day the 48-hour week will be suspended in plants and areas where the labor market has "loosened up," it was learned today from the War Manpower commission.

At the same time WMC will probably lift controls on workers who are "frozen" to their present jobs. Already such controls have been lifted on women workers in northern Indiana and other scattered areas throughout the country. The labor market "is generally tending to loosen up as cutbacks occur," WMC said.

Has Two-Fold Program

As WMC sees its problem, it is now two-fold:

1. To get workers into jobs in war industries which will carry the production load for the Pacific war.

2. To direct the rest of the labor supply, including newly discharged veterans, into jobs opening up in the reconversion program.

It is expected that within the next six months, 1,500,000 war workers will be forced out of war jobs because of cutbacks in war production programs. During the same time WMC anticipates 900,000 war veterans will join the labor force.

To meet this situation the United States employment service, now operating under WMC, is expanding its number of offices from 1507 to 2103 to meet the job needs of returning servicemen and unemployed workers.

Many of the detached war workers, however, will undoubtedly be boys and girls who will return to school, women who plan to return to their homes and other men and women who will retire.

While WMC is in immediate need of 189,000 munitions workers, unemployment figures compiled by the census bureau have jumped in the past six months from 630,000 in October, 1944, to 830,000 in March, 1945.

Unemployment is partly due to recent cutbacks in shipbuilding, ordnance and some aircraft plants, like the great Willow Run plant in Detroit which is being shut down. Many workers don't want to move to areas where the need for other types of war work is pressing.

WMC lists 189,000 workers needed in munitions work and 600,000 in supporting trades and services, such as food and transportation. It describes its current needs as follows: 10,000 in cotton and rayon cord industries, 2,000 in lead mines in the west, thousands in 90 steel plants, 45 lead plants, rocket plants, textile industry, shell and ammunition manufacture, truck construction, certain aircraft plants, foundries and forges.

Davis Ready To Hold Line When Nazis Fall

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis asserted tonight he intends to hold the wage and price line rigidly "through the squall" resulting from collapse of Germany.

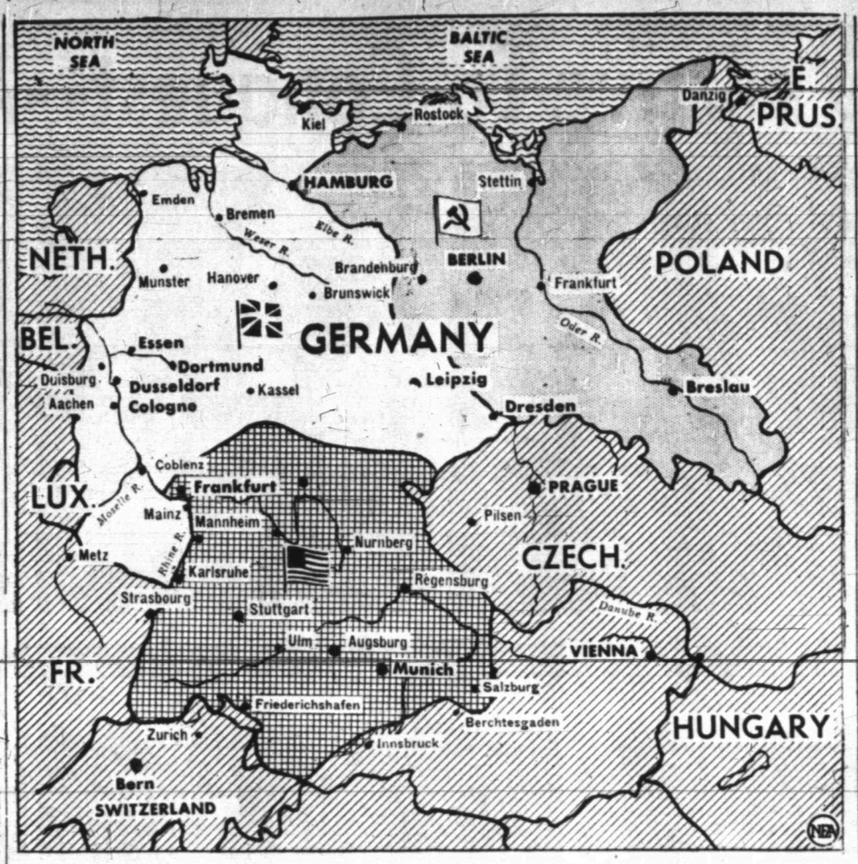

Stabilization of the nation's economy is more than ever necessary, Davis told a news conference, and will become an increasing problem with the surrender of Nazi forces and concentration on the Pacific war.

"There never has been a moment in history when it was so important," he said.

Truman Letter Asks Mutual Cooperation

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — President Truman today invited the governors of all the states and territories to join with him in working out federal and state problems through mutual cooperation.

In a letter addressed to the governors by Edward McKim, his chief administrative assistant, the president said he wanted to be "helpful in anyway possible whenever business brings you to Washington."

VICTORS TO POLICE THESE GERMAN ZONES—Here are the three tentative zones of occupation into which Allied troops will move to begin the long process of restoring order to chaotic, war-smashed Germany and guarding against a resurgence of the surviving remnants of nazism. Under present arrangements the United States will occupy southern Germany, from approximately the Thuringian Forest and Taunus Mountains on the north to the Rhine on the west and the German borders on the east and south. Russia's territory lies east of the Elbe River, while Britain has been assigned the remainder of the country. France, however, has put in a bid for an occupation zone along her eastern frontier, from Switzerland up to Germany's northern plain. The western limits of Russian occupation are also in question, and the immediate government of Austria and Czechoslovakia is unsettled. The British and Russian zones as now defined include most of Germany's mineral resources and major industrial developments, and all her seaports.

Records Bare Trace Of Great Nazi Loot

PARIS, May 7. (AP) — German foreign assets are being traced through seized hidden records to add to the Allies' trove of Nazi treasure already estimated at fully 200 tons of gold, Allied headquarters said today.

This is twice the original estimate for the gold, found cached in the Merkers mine and in bank vaults and under chicken coops or other towns in the Thuringian plains.

Tank Improvements Bode Ill For Japs

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corp., said today that with new adaptations being made in the Gen. Sherman and Gen. Pershing tanks, "I feel sorry for the Japs when our armor moves in. Frankly, we're going to kick hell out of them."

Keller spoke at a war weapons exhibit. He said that one change in the tanks was an improved flotation gear to speed navigation over such obstacles as rice paddies.

Hal Boyle Is Named Pulitzer Winner

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—Harold V. (Hal) Boyle, Associated Press war correspondent who told the day by day story of the American foot soldier in the battle for Europe, today won the Pulitzer prize for distinguished correspondence during 1944.

Another $500 award went to Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer who made the historic picture of the Marines raising the United States flag on Iwo Jima.

Rosenthal's photograph, made for the wartime still picture pool, was taken in February, 1945, and normally would not have been eligible for a 1944 award, but the rule was suspended "for this distinguished example," it was announced.

The Pulitzer prize for the most distinguished novel of 1944 went to Joh Hersey, for "A Bell For Adano" and to Mary Chase for "Harvey" the best original American play.

Established under the will of Joseph Pulitzer, the awards have been made annually since 1917 by Columbia university trustees on the recommendations of the graduate school of journalism's advisory board.

The award which Boyle received was based on "distinguished correspondence, the test being clearness and terseness of style, preference being given to fair, judicious, well balanced and well informed interpretative writing, which shall make clear the significance of the suject covered in the correspondence or which shall promote international understanding and appreciation."

How Allied Troops, From The Blitz Of Poland To The Collapse Of The German Reich, Saved The World From Nazi Domination

Down The Long Trail To Victory In Europe: A History Of World War II

By CARL CRANMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany's dream of world conquest has come to a shattering end with the collapse of the Reich which Adolf Hitler boasted was to endure a thousand years.

Ended is the European phase of the second great war of the century, a war which is estimated to have cost close to $1,000,000,000,000 (one trillion) in money and the lives of more than 6,000,000 men.

The collapse of Germany was foreshadowed last July 20 when an attempt was made to kill Hitler and seize power by what the dictator said was a small clique of "foolish, criminally stupid" German Army officers.

This revolt among Hitler's entourage, coming almost exactly a year after the sorry lackey Benito Mussolini had been broken in Italy; the rapid advances of Russian armies in the East, the drive of Allied armies in Italy, and the success of the most difficult amphibious invasion in history, the invasion of Normandy, all suggested that the German army was approaching a debacle.

Victory By A Hair

At the start, the war looked to the world, grossly underrating German preparations, like the throw of a mad adventurer.

It turned out that the Allies snatched victory only after hairbreadth escape from defeat.

Hitler opened it with a razzle-dazzle of propaganda, secret weapons, armored spearheads, bombing armadas, parachute troops, fifth columns and political sleight-of-hand which quickly established him as a sinister Barnum of war.

Before it ended, merged with the war in Asia and the Pacific by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, it had been fought on all the oceans and continents.

The war saw the advent of the flying bomb and many different rocket weapons, the blockbuster, rapid firing guns which made artillery barrages more intense than ever, mass mobility of tanks and vehicles, the air-borne army, the flying battleship, amphibious invasion on a grander scale than ever.

All this started about 3 o'clock on Friday morning, Sept. 1, 1939, when German armies invaded Poland.

• • •

POLAND

Hitler planned a blitzkreig—a lightning war—and probably never expected that England and France would do more than wage a token war when they saw the uselessness of trying to save their ally.

Amazing armored spearheads sliced through the Polish cavalry divisions to the Wisla (Vistula), trapped a huge army in the Kutno area west of Warsaw and another at Radom to the south.

In 18 days Hitler boasted of victory in a speech at Danzig, though it was Sept. 27 before Warsaw, battered to a pulp, surrendered.

THE "PHONEY WAR"

Great Britain and France served an ultimatum on Germany on Sept. 1 and declared war on Sunday, Sept. 3, while London hastily evacuated her children and waited breathlessly for the bombs to fall. None fell. This was the "Phoney War."

The British were dropping leaflets on Germany all winter long as Hitler alternately threatened "total war" and held out hopes of peace.

• • •

NORWAY AND DENMARK

On April 9, 1940, the war broke out with all its fury. Hitler's troops slipped into Denmark and invaded Norway by sea and air.

The British, caught napping, landed a few thousand Allied troops on both sides of Trondheim and later at Narvik, but were forced to withdraw.

• • •

BATTLE OF FRANCE

Swarms of parachutists descended on the airports near Rotterdam, the Hague and Amsterdam, seized the bridge at Moerdijk, south of Rotterdam. The vaunted Dutch "water line" proved ineffectual. Holland fell in four days.

In three days German tanks surprised the French, seized Sedan and were racing for the English channel, with fleets of motorcyclists spreading fire and terror ahead of the armored detachments.

The Germans reached the Channel at Abbeville on May 21 and King Leopold announced the surrender of his 300,000-man Belgian army on May 28.

Dunkerque, the British epic of the war, in which a strange armada of 900 warships, skiffs, tugs and yachts rescued an army of 337,000 men from the beaches, was over by June 4.

In vain Gen. Maxine Weygand set "mousetraps" for tanks along the Somme. Turning south on June 6, Hitler brushed aside the vaunted French army. The Maginot Line was turned. The French government evacuated Paris June 10, the same day Mussolini committed his "stab in the back" and sent troops into the border area of France.

Taking over the French government, Marshal Petain announced on June 17, "with a broken heart," that he had been compelled to ask Hitler, as one soldier to another, for an honorable armistice.

The high point of the war—for Hitler—came at Compiegne on June 21 in the railway car where Marshal Foch had dictated peace terms to Germany in 1918, and France signed an armistice.

Grandly pleased by this revenge for the "Dictates of Versailles," Hitler visited the tomb of Napoleon.

BATTLE OF BRITAIN

Most popular song in Germany was "We're Sailing Against England." Britain seemed helpless.

Hastily importing hunting rifles, old tanks and first World War guns from America, Prime Minister Churchill hunched his head down between his great shoulders and declared, "We will fight on the beaches and the landing grounds, in the fields, in the streets, on the hills. We will never surrender—"

It was Britain's time for blood, and sweat, and tears.

Grimly, 700 Spitfires and Hurricanes opposed the entire German air force. British fighting planes mounting eight guns, and radar, which gave warning of coming raids, probably saved the British in the aerial battle that lasted from August through May. But 50,000 Britons died from bombs. Sept. 15, 1940, when the Germans lost 185 planes and were forced to switch to night bombing, has been called one of the decisive battles of the war.

THE BALKANS

Mussolini believed the Greek generals had been bought off and invaded Greece from Albania on Oct. 28, 1940, three hours after a 3 a. m. ultimatum, and thereupon came one of the big surprises of the war. Instead of wilting, the Greeks fought. Not merely did they ambush and slaughter thousands of Italians a few miles inside Greek territory, but they captured Corriza and other strongholds in a counter-invasion.

Hitler, who had not been informed of Mussolini's plans, let his partner sweat in his trouble through the winter. One by one, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria had fallen into the Hitler lineup—Romania on Oct. 8, 1940, when German troops moved in following the Iron Guard's ouster of King Carol, Hungary on Nov. 20 when she joined the Axis alliance, and Bulgaria on March 1, 1941, when she signed the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact. Now the screws were put to Yugoslavia.

But an uprising upset the Yugoslav pact with Hitler, and on Sunday morning, April 6, the German dictator launched his Balkan campaign with a ferocious bombing of Belgrade.

Striking from Bulgaria, the Germans in three days had broken across the Vardar Valley severing links between Greece and Yugoslavia, and had reached the Aegean, seizing Salonika. In vain a tiny British force which had been rushed in from Africa, made a stand at Thermopylae. The Nazi mechanized divisions marched into Athens on April 27 and again the British carried out a costly evacuation, this time from the Peloponnesus.

The Swastika floated over the Acropolis only about three weeks when Hitler struck his most audacious air-borne blow, invading Crete on May 20. Ten days later the British admitted the loss of the island.

AFRICA

The battle of Africa really started in the tragic event of July 3, 1940, when the British attacked the French fleet at Mers-El-Kebir to prevent warships of their former allies from falling into enemy hands.

Six times the battle swept back and forth across the rim of North Africa, but in the end the Germans could not win because they did not control the Mediterranean. The Italian fleet soon was driven into hiding.

Marshal Rudolfo Graziani began an attack on Egypt Aug. 6, 1940, simultaneously with an invasion of British Somaliland. He got no farther than Sidi Barrani, where the British under Wavell started a lightning comeback in December which reached beyond Bengasi. But the British fell back even faster in the spring when they were forced to send troops to Greece. Again in November, 1941, the British launched an offensive which relieved Tobruk shortly before the last Italian stronghold in Ethiopia surrendered.

Not long thereafter came Pearl Harbor, and Hitler went to war with the United States. His ultimate extirpation began to loom on the horizon then, for he had turned the spigot which was to produce a flood of Allied war materiel and men.

Rommel Stages Comeback

But there still were black days in store for the Allies, and Sunday, June 21, 1942, ranks with blackest of them all.

On that day Marshall Erwin Rommel's Africa Korps took Tobruk in a surprise thrust which carried him to within 60 miles of Alexandria. A junction of German and Japanese forces on the shores of the Indian Ocean was threatened. The Germans were preparing the summer offensive which might break the Soviet Union and which was to take them from Kharkov to Stalingrad. The Allies had lost Singapore, the Philippines, Burma, the Dutch East Indies and parts of the Aleutians. Australia still was menaced, despite two Japanese air-sea defeats in the Coral Sea and at Midway in May and June.

Almost the brightest spot in the Allied picture was that only three weeks before the British had carried out their first 1,000-bomber raid against Cologne.

Air and tank forces rushed to Africa eventually turned the tide, permitting Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army to score its great victory at El Alamein in Egypt on Oct. 23, 1942, and begin its march to meet the American and British forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower which landed in Morocco and Algeria on Nov. 7.

Trapped on Cap Bon in Tunisia, the Germans and Italians finally surrendered on May 12, 1943, ending the battle of Africa, and the stage was set for the invasion of Italy. Axis casualties in Tunisia were placed at 341,000.

RUSSIA

Until Sunday morning, June 22, 1941, everything went well with Hitler's war. That was the day he loosed his invasion of Russia.

Joined by Finland, Romania, Hungary and Italy, Hitler boasted of the greatest front in history—2,000 miles from the Arctic to the Black Sea. Stories from Berlin said the Nazis believed they would crush Russia in three to six weeks.

Swiftly the German armies sliced through Russian-annexed territories of Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Karelia, Bessarabia, swept across White Russia and the Ukraine.

Before the summer campaign was done Hitler had trapped one huge "kettle" of Soviet soldiers after another, thrown an iron ring about Lehingrad, reached the suburbs of Moscow, captured Kharkov.

Reds Launch Counteroffensive

Russia "never again will rise," he declared in October, launching a "final assault" on Moscow. Another final assault was ordered in November. Moscow did not fall. Then, at the right time, the Russian counteroffensive was launched. The Germans were caught in the worst Russian winter in years, and the retreat along the Napoleonic road the disaster was begun.

In August, 1943, the Germans reached their highwater mark of conquest at Stalingrad, 1,300 miles from Germany's eastern border.

The great Red Army counteroffensive began on Nov. 22, 1942, at Stalingrad. It has been underway ever since, with pauses.

Official Russian figures place Russian dead, captured and wounded at 5,300,000; German dead and captured at 7,800,000. The Germans have claimed as high as 10,000,000 Russian casualties.

ITALY

The Allies' invasion of Europe really began with the attack on Sicily by Gen. Eisenhower's British and American forces on July 10, 1943. Fifteen days later Mussolini was ousted in Rome— the first serious break in the Axis structure.

Stricking swiftly on Sept. 3, after completion of a 38-day campaign in Sicily, Gen. Montgomery's troops invaded the toe of Italy. The Fifth Army of Gen. Mark W. Clark landed at Salerno below Naples and after a bloody battle with the Germans, established a beachhead six days later, almost simultaneously with announcement of the surrender of the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio which had succeeded Mussolini. The first of the Big Three in the Axis had been knocked out of the war.

Through a bitter winter campaign, the Americans and their allies made but slow progress from Naples, fought the bloody Battle of Cassino, established the beachhead at Anzio below Rome and finally on May 11 launched the offensive which carried them to Rome on June 4. The Palazzo Venezia, where Mussolini's balcony stands, was turned in a museum.

INVASION

Two days after the first fall of an Axis capital, the greatest amphibious invasion force of all time touched land in Normandy. The day for which American factories had been turning out weapons since Dec. 7, 1941, had dawned.

Untried American divisions quickly proved they could beat Hitler's best veterans. Despite the strength of the Germans' Atlantic wall, the invasion stuck. The results were not long showing in Berlin.

SECOND BATTLE OF FRANCE

The first 49 days after Gen. Eisenhower's forces landed in Normandy were spent in securing, enlarging and building up the beachhead. Extremely bloody battles were fought in beating the Germans back from one hedgerow and sunken road to the next. Cherbourg, the Allies' first major port in France, was taken by American troops on June 27 just three weeks after D-Day.

Then American, British, Canadian and Allied troops liberated France in one of the swiftest campaigns on record.

While depending on beach installations for a flow of supplies, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley struck out on July 25 for the great objectives of the invasion. Bradley's U. S. First army broke through at St. Lo and began throwing armored hooks westward toward the Normandy coast which repeatedly trapped large numbers of German troops.

Taking command of a new U. S. Third army, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton began a sensational spring southward through Avranches into Brittany, sent roaming columns speeding westward and southward to Brest at the tip of Brittany, St. Nazaire, Lorient, Nantes and across the Loire, then turned his main forces eastward in a stabbing offensive which seemed aimed straight at Paris.

Out-generaled, out-numbered and overwhelmed by superior equipment, fire power and air power, the Germans seemed powerless in the face of lightning moves.

Germans "Beaten To Pieces"

Suddenly all these German forces were threatened with entrapment. The attacks by Montgomery and the newly created First Canadian army under Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar became an anvil upon which Patton and Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges of the U. S. First army beat the German 7th army to pieces.

By Aug. 21, Gen. Montgomery was able to proclaim that the bulk of German forces in Northwestern France had met with "definite, complete, decisive" defeat and that the end of the war was in sight.

Already Patton's forces were plunging south of Paris and across the Seine northwest of Paris to carry out even more audacious plans.

The underground in Paris rose in battle. The city of light and symbol of liberty in the western world was liberated on Aug. 25.

On Aug. 15, the Army of France under Gen. Jean de Lattry de Tassigny and the U. S. 7th army under Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch invaded Southern France from the Mediterranean in a huge and skillfully coordinated action which speedily won control of the whole coast. The Germans began a precipitate withdrawal from all Southern France, but by the first of September the German 19th army was fighting for its life up the Rhone valley where it had been intercepted by fast armored columns slicing across the French Alps.

Road To Germany Opened

While Allied forces in the North and South neared a junction, the American First and Third armies began a series of amazing dashes toward the Rhine. The Americans hurtled in a single day the Meuse-Argonne battleground where their fathers fought for six bloody weeks in 1918. Belgium was invaded Sept. 2 along the road to Mons, Namur, Liege and Aachen in Germany.

Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second army tanks made an astounding march of more than 200 miles in four days, roaring through the Belgian capital of Brussels, the big port of Antwerp and into the Netherlands.

On Sept. 6, just three months after the invasion and on the 44th day of the offensive which had begun at St. Lo, and with more than 400,000 casualties inflicted upon the Germans who had lost 25 divisions and suffered heavy casualties to at least 18 others, Gen. Eisenhower proclaimed the Battle of Germany about to begin. His Armies already had probed German soil, the liberation of France and Belgium seemed all but complete, the freeing of the Netherlands not far off.

• • •

BATTLE OF GERMANY

Then on September 11, the U. S. invaded Germany, exactly one week after another casting shadow, Finland's having quit the war with Russia, had cast its portent. Le Havre, one of the prime ports required for handling ordnance for such an undertaking as an assault on Festung Europa, fell next day.

The Nazi house of cards came in for further "assault on paper" when FDR and Churchill met Sept. 16 at Quebec in a conference that further cleared liaison problems of the Allies. The Reds entered Czechoslovakia and Hungary. The Allies invaded Albania Sept. 27, and remnants of Britain's lost airborne division withdrew after its gallant fight at Arnheim.

Calais Fell Oct. 1

Calais fell October 1. Warsaw patriots ended their ill-advised fight against the Germans two days later and, Oct. 5, the British invaded Greece. Siegfried defenses near Ubach fell Oct 6 to Yanks, who then hit the western Cologne plain. Corinth fell to the Greeks October 8.

Aachen became an inferno under Allied bombs and guns, Oct. 11, when the Nazis spurned surrender. In four days commencing Oct. 13, Riga fell to the Russians, Greek-British forces occupied Athens, the Russians captured Petsamo, Finland. The Nazis seized the Hungarian government Oct. 15, to prevent its surrender to the Allies.

MacArthur Returns

MacArthur's "I shall return" was realized Oct. 19, when he splashed ashore in the Philippines. On the same day, General Stilwell was recalled from China, where he had failed to "get along" with Chiang Kai-Shek.

Aachen fell Oct. 20, same date the Russian allies smashed into East Prussia. Belgrade was taken by the Reds, and the Soviets invaded Southern Hungary.

Stalin and Churchill conferred on peace problems and Polish issues Oct. 21, the Russians invaded Norway Oct. 25.

The Allies accepted Bulgaria's armistice terms Oct. 29, and the Japahese next day suffered a crushing defeat in the second battle of the Philippine sea. It had deployed its strength and sought to achieve surprise, but the naval might of the U. S. was almost invincible and the backbone of the Jap fleet was claimed to have been broken.

Greece Cleared Of Nazis

On Nov. 3, the First Army reached the Roer River in Germany, Nov. 4 saw Greece cleared of Germans and, on Nov. 7, President Roosevelt was re-elected.

Prime Minister Churchill admitted Nov. 10 that V-2 rockets that flew faster than sound were hitting England.

The RAF sank the Tirpitz off Norway, Nov. 12, after numerous valorous attempts had kept the queen of the German navy tied up most of the time for repairs and out of the shipping lanes that would have required a large flotilla of British sea power on the watch for her. It was heavy bombs this time.

The mass drive was opened on Germany Nov. 16 by General Eisenhower, and Geilenkirchen fell three days later. Eisenhower, citing a tough fight ahead, appealed Nov. 21 for more supplies. Next day Metz fell and the French took Mulhouse.

Superforts Bomb Tokyo

Superforts bombed Tokyo Nov. 24, an indication of what they could, and often would, do in succeeding months, and the Allies took Strasbourg.

The U. S. First Army broke through the Hurtgen forest Nov. 25. The British encountered civil strife in Athens, Dec. 4, when the city was gripped by EAM strikes, resulting next day in the British firing on the dissident ELAS. On Dec. 11, France and Russia signed a 20-year mutual assistance past.

Then came Dec. 16 and with it a grim period touched off by a German counter offensive that opened in the north. The Reds encircled Czech hub of Kassa Dec. 19, but von Rundstedt breached Allied lines with 15 Nazi divisions, smashed toward Liege.

General Patton struck Dec. 22 at the southern flank of the threatening "bulge," and food and medical supplies were dropped to besieged Bastogne. Churchill and Eden flew to Athens Dec. 25, and, two days later, the Bastogne garrison was relieved. Lublin Poles set up their own government and broke with London, Dec. 31.

Came 1945 and with it, on Jan. 1—after a five-months' silence — a warning from Hitler that the Reich would not surrender, that he could foresee another year of war.

Russians Start Offensive

The Nazis bit 15 miles into France in their Strasbourg offensive Jan. 5; the Russians repulsed the German counterattack at Budapest Jan. 9, but the Nazis retreated from the western tip of the "bulge" Jan. 1 and the massive new Russian winter offensive started Jan. 12.

The ELAS and British ceased fighting Jan. 15, the Germans were in full retreat from the "bulge" Jan. 15.

The Reds took Warsaw Jan. 17 and smashed to within 15 miles of German Silesia. Churchill urged Germany to surrender Jan. 18, and, Jan. 20, Hungary signed an armistice.

On Jan. 21, the Reds invaded Silesia and Hungary declared war on Germany. On two days beginning Jan. 22, the Reds crossed the old Polish corridor, trapped Germans in East Prussia and reached the Oder River near Breslau, sending the Reich into throes of radio warnings and admitted jitters. On Jan. 28, the U. S. First launched its Westwall drive.

Yalta Conference Held

The "Big Three" met Feb. 2 at Yalta; MacArthur took the heart of Manila Feb. 4, and the U. S. Third crossed the Sure and Our rivers Feb. 7 on a 22-mile front.

Montgomery launched his British-Canadian offensive Feb. 8, and four days later a Yalta announcement said Russia would get Eastern Poland and that Germany will be disarmed "forever."

Budapest fell to the Reds Feb. 13, after a 49-day siege.

U. S. carriers sent 1,200 planes over Tokyo on Feb. 16, in a continuing sky prowl that was to be repeated in succeeding weeks. Damage was tremendous. U. S. losses were almost negligible by contrast.

Reds encircled Breslau Feb. 17, paratroops landed on Corregidor Feb. 18, and Yanks on Feb. 19 invaded Iwo Jima, in what was destined to be the costliest fighting of the Pacific war.

On Feb. 21, the U. S. Third Army opened a mass assault on the Saar Basin; the Inter-American conference at Mexico City was convened Feb. 22, and the Argentine made indirect overtures to be readmitted to the family of American nations.

On Feb. 23, Turkey declared war on the Axis. Manila was liberated, MacArthur reported Feb. 24. Four Allied armies struck for the Rhine Feb. 26 and, a day later, the Reds smashed 44 miles through Pomeranian fortifications. The Erft River was crossed Feb. 28, and approaches to Cologne stormed. The U. S. Ninth Army captured Muenchen-Gladbach, Ruhrland city, March 1, and the Red Baltic drive the same day cut off Danzig from Germany.

Americans Reach Rhine

Americans reached the Rhine March 2, captured Krefeld and Neuss, and the Third Army took Trier.

The two-day squeeze began to be felt more and more. On March 6, the U. S. First captured Cologne, and the Third opened a sweeping drive toward Coblenz. On March 7, the U. S. Third reached the Rhine, and the Russians hurled seven armies into an all-out offensive toward Berlin from Oder bridgeheads.

The Yanks smashed across the Rhine March 8 on a captured bridge at Remagen. On March 10, 300 B-29s set Tokyo ablaze in the war's greatest raid. On March 12, the Allies, striking from their Rhine bridgehead, gained two and a half miles, and the Russians captured Kuestrin in their Berlin drive.

From that time on the Western Allies crowded the Germans in advances from three corners; the Russians, after regrouping, moved in from the Southeast. Americans, held out of Berlin because of Stalin's demands that his troops be given the honor of taking the German capital, spent the latter weeks largely in mopping up.

Berlin's fall, the announced death of Hitler a week ago and ascension of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz to the leadership of gasping Germany and efforts of Heinrich Himmler to surrender only to the Western Allies marked the last days of the Reich. U. S. and England stood firm, refused to accept surrender until Germany included Russia in the arrangements — and the capitulation finally came on the morning of May 7, 1945.

Texas Tech Ready With Plans For Aiding Future Of Returned Vets

Just as every person on the homefront is waiting and planning the return of "that man in uniform" — so is Texas Tech standing in readiness with a plan to help him meet the future well equipped.

Tech's plan, which comes under the GI Bill of Rights, (the government's promise of a new start for servicemen after the war) epitomizes the hopes and fears of millions of GI's who are wondering about demobilization day and what the nation plans to do for them.

May Attend School

The GI Bill of Rights provides that any man who is eligible in age and education, who has been in the service 90 days after September, 1940, and who has been honorably discharged, has a right to go to school. The government will pay each man $50 a month and his college expenses up to $500 a school year. Or, if he prefers vocational training, the government will pay for his tools and materials and give him $50 a month for a year of training.

The broad objective at Tech is to serve these men as they have served the nation—wholeheartedly and individually—so there will be no fundamental changes made in the curriculum. No short courses will be instigated nor no new study plans will be organized, because information received from these men and present thought trends indicate that each man will choose a regular graduate course.

Curriculum Not Tailored

A few of the major colleges are tailoring their curriculum to fit the individual needs of each returning veteran so he can prepare himself for his chosen career in the fastest possible time. Although this plan is serving as a model for the veteran programs of a score of other universities, Tech is not working toward this goal.

Of the 74 veterans of World War II now attending Tech, only one has requested a short course (radio) and he changed his mind, deciding to major in agriculture. All of these men are carrying a normal scholastic load (12 hours is required under the GI bill) and working toward a degree in their chosen field. Some of these exservicemen are former Tech students and are continuing their interrupted education, others are here for the first time, but all have the same purpose in mind.

This purpose, of preparing themselves for the future, is being carried out by 74 serious-minded individuals. They have adapted themselves remarkably well, college officials say, and they are setting a precedent in scholastic averages that younger students would do well to follow. Besides attending school regularly, some of these veterans are employed in part-time jobs.

Officials at Tech are preparing for the return of these men on the theory that fundamentally they are the same boys who went away. They realize of course, there will be some exceptions, but the majority of ex-servicemen don't want amateur psychiatry practiced on them and they would loathe to feel instructors and students were being overly-solicitous in "handling these changed men."

Want Familiar Routine

One ex-serviceman, now a Tech student, who served in the South Pacific told W. P. Clement, college registrar, that he had rejoiced because Tech had made no major changes. "When you are on a small stretch of land and have time to think, it's not the future you dream of so much, but the past and you remember things you loved," he said. "With me it was Tech I remembered mostly—because I was in school when I entered the service—and I didn't want it to change because I wanted familiar things when I returned home."

All these men have voiced the opinion of wanting to slip into a familiar routine and made an effortless change back to civilian life. That's why Texas Tech plans to welcome these boys home naturally, as what they are, normal human beings and not strange neurotics who have to be pampered.

Housing Is Biggest Problem

College officials anticipate some problems with an estimated enrollment of 700 ex-servicemen after final victory is declared. However, from experiences they have had with veterans, they foresee no major personal adjustment problems.

There's only one big problem Tech will have to work out in absorbing this influx of students. That is the housing facilities for these men and their wives, if married. The college has all other facilities available to take care of this additional enrollment and their main concern will be in providing adequate and desirable living quarters.

Officials of the college feel that residents of Lubbock will open their homes to these fighting men who are being given a chance to recapture the education they sacrificed to defend their country.

Ralph Brunson Is Released From Camp

Pvt. Ralph Brunson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brunson of Southland, has been released from the German prison camp where he has been since March 14, and is now in France, a cablegram from him told his parents Monday.

He was taken prisoner while in his first battle with the Third Army in Germany after going overseas in January. He was with an infantry division and until the news came yesterday, had been officially listed as missing in action.

Before going into the Army, Pvt. Brunson farmed with his father after completing a year of pre-med work at Texas Tech. He is a graduate of Monroe High school.

A brother, Cpl. Walter Brunson, is stationed in Honolulu and another brother, G. W. Brunson, jr., 2322 Twenty-third, was discharged from the Army three years ago.

Two Plead Innocent Of Murder Charge

Two persons — a negro woman and a Mexican man — charged by indictment with murder pleaded innocent upon their arraignment Monday in 99th district court. Both waived venires.

Helen Johnson, 56, will go to trial at 10 o'clock the morning of May 24. She is charged with the fatal shooting of Earl Day, a negro man.

Willie Wilson, 20, will be tried at 10 o'clock the morning of May 21. He is charged in connection with the shooting of Mercy Romero, 19, a Mexican girl.

Judge G. V. Pardue appointed Robert J. Allen and former Judge Homer L. Pharr as counsel for the woman. Wilson said he had employed B. B. Chappel to represent him.

News Briefs

A banquet of the Lubbock Ministerial association which was scheduled for 7 o'clock tonight at the Asbury Methodist church will be postponed until Tuesday night next week, it was announced Monday.

Four directors of the Lubbock Insurance Exchange were elected at a May luncheon of the organization Monday at the Hilton hotel. They are Thord Dockray, Jeff Watson, W. L. McAfee and J. E. Maisen. Officers elected at the April meeting were Harry Delany, president; J. H. Brock, vice president; Groves Denman, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Cora Slaton was announced as a new member.

Commander Dan Henry, officer in charge of the North and West Texas Navy recruiting district with offices at Dallas, cited Lubbock parents and teachers as instrumental in causing the high school and college to set up refresher courses for young men interested in radio and radar training. Henry, in correspondence to recruiting officers of the area, stated the need for a large number of young men to train for these special duties. Men who qualify for the Eddy test are not barred from enlistment although enlistment quotas for general service have been cut sharply.

J. S. Bates, charged by indictment with desertion of two minor children, posted bond of $1,000 Monday, the sheriff's department stated.

Some 60 students of Lubbock Senior High school will be recognized for outstanding achievements the past year in the high school auditorium this morning at 9 o'clock. Medals will be presented students by sponsors according to Floyd Honey, principal.

Services of the Universal Brotherhood of Light, Inc. will be held today at 3 p. m. at Seaman Hall, 2407 16th street, Rev. James Henninger, pastor, has announced.

Parris Back In City At Navy Recruiting

Y/1c Collier Parris, former sports editor of Avalanche-Journal publications, will be on duty at the Navy Recruiting station in the federal building here until June 1, subject to overseas orders.

He has been on duty in the publicity department of the Dallas Recruiting station since Nov. 1, in the Navy since June 22 of 1942.

CSP (R) H. A. Lambert, in charge of the Lubbock Recruiting station, will spend leave in St. Louis. Y/2c Jim McGriel has gone on leave to New York City, his home.

Yeoman Parris said the present need is for radio technicians; that tests are given here and that those who qualify will be rated seaman first class (skipping two grades). Qualified for radio technicians are those 17 years old and all men of draft age who have not received orders for induction.

The office is open from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

1944 Income Almost Doubles 1929 Record

AUSTIN, May 7. (AP) — Income in 1944 almost doubled that of the so-called "banner year" 1929, Dr. F. A. Buechel, economic analyst with the University of Texas bureau of business research said today.

"Income from minerals, agriculture were almost double the '29 figure," said Dr. Buechel, "and income from payrolls also doubled the 1929 levels."

He predicted that with farm cash income for 1945 as well as the value of oil production already running well ahead of a year ago, it is "quite probable" that the total income in Texas for this year may exceed the record of last year.

Estimated 75,000 Pounds Paper Given

Army trucks picked up an estimated 75,000 pounds of paper Sunday morning in the first of two pick-ups in a paper salvage campaign being conducted as part of the annual Clean-Up campaign here.

The amount collected was about average for the salvage drives here, said Lt. Lang M. Sheppard, salvage officer at Lubbock Army Air field.

The paper was taken to LAAF and will be shipped to a box board company to be reprocessed.

The drive covered the area from First through Nineteenth streets. Paper is to be picked up next Sunday from Twentieth through Thirty-fourth streets. Bundles are to be placed in front of residences on streets and those from avenues are to be taken to corners.

Lt. Sheppard urged that persons tie bundles together securely. Some of the paper not tied securely fell from trucks Sunday and Army personnel will go back to clean it up from College avenue and the highway leading to the field.

Day-By-Day, Step-By-Step: How United Nations Achieved Their Victory

Chronology Of War Since Hitler Assumed Power In 1933

TEN WHO ROSE . . .

EISENHOWER, a Texas-Kansan, executed some of mightiest military operations and taught the Nazis new lessons.

CHURCHILL was Britain's sideline prophet of disaster until war blazed; he emerged as prime minister, savior.

MONTGOMERY, Bible-toting blitz-master, was the first to stop the Nazis with inspired tactics across North Africa.

NIEMOELLER, a German Lutheran pastor, preferred prison to Nazism. His courage inspired world sermons.

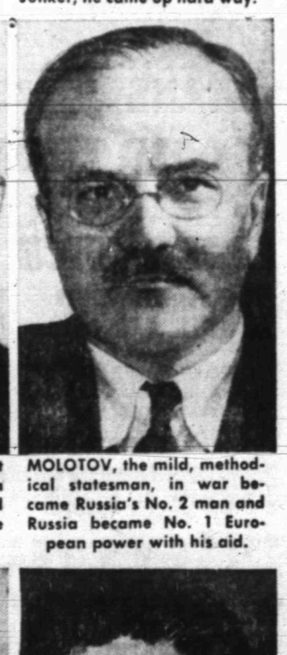

DeGAULLE, a minor general in 1940, rallied war-scattered Frenchmen and grew in stature to be Free France symbol.

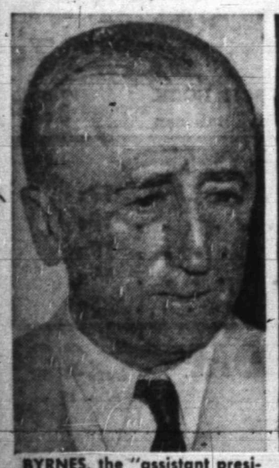

ROMMEL won a place in history as the foe's most brilliant tactician. Not a heel-popping Junker, he came up hard way.

KAISER was a West Coast contractor; war made him a mighty driving power and symbol of America's miracle in armament production.

MOLOTOV, the mild, methodical statesman, in war became Russia's No. 2 man and Russia became No. 1 European power with his aid.

BYRNES, the "assistant president" from South Carolina, directed war mobilization, to add luster to an already brilliant career of statesmanship.

It's Different Now From 1919

U. S. Is Prepared To Take Care Of Returning Troops

By JAMES WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

America is better set to take care of her returning soldiers than in 1919.

Then armistice and its subsequent problem of demobilization came suddenly — at least nine months earlier than had been expected. Today planning for the whole vast business—getting soldiers home, out of uniform and back to jobs they want—has benefitted by that experience.

Here are the main points:

1. The transport system of the armed services can, at a determined time, go into reverse and bring the boys home. Plans for this have long been as complete as they could be in the planning stage.

2. Bigger mustering-out pay awaits today's GI Joe than his doughboy dad got in 1919.

3. The Veterans' administration takes care of disabled vets—teaches them new trades, takes care of them outright if disability requires it and administers pensions where such are authorized.

4. Able-bodied vets are guaranteed jobs and training by the GI Bill of Rights and intricate system of government and private agencies operating under it and earlier legislation. These agencies include Selective service, War Manpower commission, Federal Security agency, the Veterans' administration, the Department of Labor, Civil Service commission, and such civilian organizations as the Red Cross and local relief and veterans aid groups.

The demobilized troops of 1919 received $60 discharge pay along with their accumulated pay, and a railway ticket home.

Today, muster-out pay ranges from $100 for men under the rank of captain with less than 60 days service (all in the U. S.) to $300 for those who have served overseas or in Alaska. Transportation home also is provided

. . . TEN WHO FELL

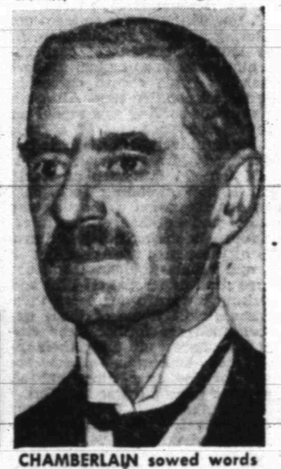

MUSSOLINI, father of Fascism, dictated for 21 years; was first of dictators to fall ('43) as Italy was invaded.

HITLER, Nazi dictator since 1933, released Europe's oldest hates, newest death machines; was himself engulfed.

VON THYSSEN, German steel tycoon, sponsored Hitler's rise, then from a jail window saw war gobble up fortune.

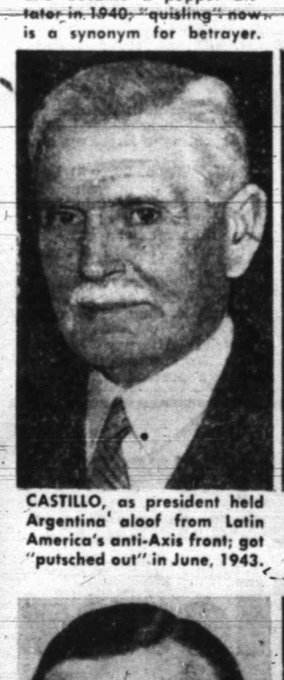

CHAMBERLAIN sowed words of appeasement, reaped world war; he died in 1940, after resigning Empire's reins.

QUISLING betrayed Norway and became a puppet dictator in 1940; "quisling" now is a synonym for betrayer.

HESS, Hitler's own deputy Fuehrer, flew to England in 1941 to propose peace and sank into deep oblivion.

GAMELIN, French war chief, fought World War II as he did World War I. France was blitzed; he was captured.

KARL DOENITZ—Born Sept. Sept. 16, 1891, started career as cadet in imperial navy, honored for exploits as sub commander in World War 1, organizer of U-boat wolf pack raids in Atlantic and, because of their success, grand admiral since March, 1942; now rumored in disfavor but joined Goering and Keitel in triumvirate said to wield top military power.

After the death or disappearance of Adolf Hitler, Doenitz proclaimed himself head of the German state and as such continues to have a place thus far in negotiations. Just how long Doenitz will be permitted to have any authority in Germany is not known at this time.

HEYDRICH, the Nazi hangman, topped the list of war criminals for post-war trial. But a patriot's bomb got him in Prague in 1942.

BORIS III of Bulgaria tried to do business with Hitler. His 25-year reign ended in a mysterious death last August. His nation shied from Axis.

Ed Beattie Recounts Experiences Of Capture And German Treatment

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Edward W. Beattie, jr., United Press war correspondent, has reached Paris after more than seven months as a prisoner of the Germans. Today he begins the story of his experiences which included several trips to Berlin where he was questioned by officials of the foreign office in a vain attempt to get information from him. The story of his captivity is the story of the last days of Hitler's Germany).

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE, JR.
United Press War Writer

PARIS, May 7.—It was around 1 p. m. of September 12 that our troubles began.

We had heard there might be a good story up near Chaumont-Sur-Marne, so four of us started out in a jeep—Wright Bryan of the Atlanta Journal, John Mecklin of the Chicago Sun, Jim Schwab, our driver, and myself.

There was a trailer on the back of our jeep, and if we hadn't brought it along we might have been able to make a quick turn and get away from the Germans. But the road was too narrow.

Suddenly At Road Block

We were bowling along without a worry when we came to a road block. Schwab stopped our jeep and for about two minutes we discussed what we should do. The Germans made up our minds for us.

There was a burst of firing which sounded like an entire regiment was shooting at us. We tumbled out of the jeep looking for cover I tried to get under the rear of the jeep and Bryan crowded in beside me. Mecklin dived for a ditch. Schwab ran back to the tow bar and kept trying to get the trailer unhitched so we could turn the jeep on the road and flee. He was saying plenty of things about the Germans that I can't reproduce here.

Bryan Hit In Leg

The firing continued for three minutes. Suddenly Bryan turned his head and said: "I'm hit."

"Is it bad?" I asked.

"No, it's just my leg and I didn't feel it hit a bone."

We lighted a couple of cigarets.

Mecklin was trying to crawl along the ditch away from the German lines and he might have escaped if another American jeep hadn't come down the road just then. I stretched out from under our jeep and tried to wave the other one back. It turned, but just than a German bullet put its motor out of commission. The six occupants of the jeep jumped out and dived for the ditch, but just then Germans came swarming out of the woods, firing as they ran. Three of the six men in the other jeep were wounded. The other three joned us as prisoners of the Germans.

Three Not Seen Again

We never did find out what happened to the three wounded men from the other jeep. Bryan was taken to a hospital and the rest of use were put in a room in the old French barracks at Chaumont-Sur-Marne.

The three men from the other jeep who had not been wounded were Sgt. Ralph Harris of Screven, Ga., Sgt. Forrest Eadler of Richmond, Ind., and Charles Padgett of Washington, Ind. All of them were angry, not so much because they had been captured as because their company, which was a few miles to the north, had been promised steaks for dinner. Instead of steaks we got a piece of dry bread, a chunk of magarine and a portion of hard cheese.

As we ate our dinner we talked about the way the French acted when the Germans led us through Chaumont to our prison. They waved at us. They smiled and they didn't seem to care whether the Germans noticed it or not. Apparently they thought the American Army would be in town soon.

One-Side Door Lock

The room in which we were held had a few mattresses and some old blankets on the floor. After dinner our guards found that the door would not lock from the outside. I speak German, so I suggested to the chief guard: "Give me the key and I will lock the door from the inside and then pass the key out through the window bars to you."

He seemed to think that would be equivalent to destroying an entire division of the wehrmacht and rejected it instantly. Instead he ordered a new lock made.

Wonder About Questioning

I got to wondering what would happen when they began questioning us. I was particularly interested in what they would do to me when they found out I had been a newspaper correspondent in Berlin for several years.

It was dark now and we could hear a throbbing sound from the sky. It was made by a large force of Royal Air force heavy bombers going out on their nightly mission to blast Germany. All of us wished them the best of luck.

Amazing Pep For Men 40, 60 or More

If life apparently has lost its zest, you again may be able to enjoy life as you did in your youth. If added years have slowed down your vim, vitality and youthful pleasures, here is an inexpensive method that may change your whole outlook on life. Just ask your druggist for Casella stimulating tablets (either 48 or 200, the 200 size costs much less per dose). Take as directed on label and feel the thrill of living again. Don't feel old and worn out at 40, 60 or more. Take these tablets regularly until you feel that you have regained the pleasure of living you once enjoyed. Why be discouraged? Why not try Casella tablets and regain the verve and zest of a much younger man? Women too, will find Casella tablets beneficial.

Hendricks Funeral Planned For Today

LITTLEFIELD, May 7. (Special)—Funeral services for Alvin R. Hendricks, 40, well-known farmer and rancher and former Lubbock business man who died of a heart attack early Sunday morning, will be conducted at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Littlefield First Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. C. Frank York, and Rev. Donald Harris, pastor of the Jacksonville Presbyterian church, will officiate.

A Masonic service will be conducted at the Littlefield cemetery, Hammons Funeral home announced.

Hendricks, who had lived here 18 years, died a few minutes after reaching a Littlefield hospital. He had one other heart attack about three years ago, relatives said, but he apparently was in the best of health until the fatal attack Sunday.

He formerly owned the M-System stores in Lubbock and other South Plains towns prior to his move to Littlefield. The M-System was sold to the owners of the Furr Food stores of Lubbock. At one time he owned the telephone exchange at Littlefield and other exchanges over the South Plains and Panhandle. He sold his interest in these about 18 years ago.

His wife is the former Wilda Keithley, daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. W. Keithley of this city.

Survivors are his wife; one daughter, Kay, 9; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hendricks of the Flying H ranch near Roswell, N. M.; a brother, Clement Hendricks of the Flying H ranch; a sister, Mrs. Bryce Duggar who lives on a ranch near El Paso.

American 15th Army Is Occupation Force

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — The new American 15th Army is the only one thus far designated as an occupation army in Germany.

Secretary of War Stimson said at his news conference yesterday that the question of occupying the U. S. section of Germany is "a matter which will have to be decided by future events."

Then he added that the 15th Army, commanded by Lt. Gen. Leonard Gerow, "is the only one which has yet been designated as an occupation Army." The designation had been previously indicated by Supreme Allied headquarters at Paris.

NOT SACRED TO HIM

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippines, today urged that the palace of Emperor Hirohito be bombed and "the emperor and his white charger destroyed in the dust and debris."

The program last Saturday night included a song, "Don't Fence Me In," by Carolyn and Dick Peal, accompanied by Carolyn Cole; tumbling, Jo Brashear and Janice Blake; imitation of Betty Hutton, by Maxine McCollum; songs, "Chloe" and "Sweet Dreams, Sweetheart," Athalene Allen and Eugenia Luker.

Preston Smith Calls To Explain Road Bill

County Judge Walter Davies said he had received a telephone call Monday from State Rep. Preston E. Smith explaining what was meant by a United Press announcement last week from Austin that Governor Stevenson had signed into law a bill for a "county road system" for Lubbock county.

"He explained," said Judge Davies, "that the reference was to a bill introduced by State Sen. Sterling J. Parrish providing that Lubbock county commissioners may be reimbursed for expenses occasioned by use of their personal cars in duties of their office, especially in road work. That was about the substance of it."

When the United Press dispatch was received here there was no immediate explanation for it, commissioners saying they didn't have "any idea" of what was meant by "county road system" significance.

Sports Expect Better Future

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Unconditional surrender of Germany found the sports world poised for a gradual swing back to normal conditions.

Bearing in mind that Japan still must be beaten, these immediate sports developments were considered likely.

Lifting of the ban on racing, in effect since last January 3, with tracks re-opening possibly before this month ends;

Dedication by major league baseball of next Sunday's doubleheaders to victory over Germany;

Announcement by the War department on its investigation of alegations that 4-F professional athletes have been discriminated against in the draft;

And, later, the return of some outstanding athletes to the playing ranks under the Army's system for discharging 2,000,000 war veterans.

Horses and tracks are ready to start almost with a drop of the hat when the ban is lifted.

A. B. "Happy" Chandler, baseball commissioner-elect, said at his home, Versailles, Ky., that he will discuss with other leaders of the game the advisability of dedicating next Sunday's games to the defeat of Germany.

War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson recently said that the manner of celebrating V-E day would be left to the common sense of the citizenry. Baseball men said outpouring of fans for Sunday's doubleheaders would be appropriate since baseball is the great American game and has taken the lead in wartime sports co-operation.

Few Matches Played In Ping Pong Meet

The city wide ping pong tournament at the Corral turned in games in only the boys singles Sunday, but all matches will be played off this week with the finals scheduled for next Sunday.

Elmer Reed turned in two victories during the afternoon, winning over Horace Smith and Frank Porter in succession. R. J. Matheny advanced on a forfeit from Edgar Holcomb, then was beaten by Bob Galey. David Hester defeated Herbert Nelson in the only other match.

Blue Bonnet Laundry Ten Beats Automen

The Blue Bonnet Laundry softball ten showed plenty of power in winning a 25 to 2 victory over Ferguson Auto Supply Monday afternoon in an exhibition softball game.

The Blue Hatters poled out five home runs as Price, Conditt, LeMond, Littrell and Hill hit for the round trip. Taylor and Littrell did the chunking for the winners, limiting the Automen to four hits.

The Blue Hatters will play the Jaycees Friday evening at 7 o'clock at the Twenty-fourth and Avenue Q diamond.

Cowhand Squads Are Divided Up Monday

With the close of the track season, one of the most successful in the history of Lubbock High school, Coach Marlin R. "Shorty" Hayhurst turned his attention to football Monday afternoon.

The Cowhand football squad was divided into two groups Monday afternoon, and Coach Hayhurst had his first chance to work with the Cowhands Gold team, which he will head this fall.

During the spring football camp, Curtis Barrett has been working with the Cowhands as one group. Barrett was elevated to take over the Cowhands Black team in the recent shakeup of the coaching staff that found Dixie White taking over the Westerners, and Cowhand Coach George Philbrick moved up as assistant to White.

The Cowhands were divided as evenly as could be determined, and close students of the game, who have been watching the Cowhands in their workouts, were of the opinion that any difference in the squads would point to the Blacks having perhaps a shade the better of the split in the backfield candidates, and the Golds a little edge in the line.

The Blacks will check in their uniforms this afternoon, and close spring training, but Hayhurst will keep the Golds out for the rest of the week, getting acquainted with his boys.

Coach Barrett will turn his attention to the Westerner Exes, a team of former Westerner stars that will play the Westerners Friday afternoon at Chapman field in the final game of the spring grid camp.

Girls Softball Loop Names Year's Winner

The Central Ward Spurs and the Hunt Pioneers will play for the girls softball championship in the Lubbock grade school league, meeting Friday in the play day program.

Through an error in the compiling of the final standings, the race was reported as a three way tie between Central Ward, Hunt and K. Carter. A recheck of the records revealed that Central Ward was the winner, undefeated. Hunt was second and K. Carter was third in the standing.

Day To Have Double Meaning To Truman

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Tomorrow will have dual significance for President Truman.

He not only was expected to deliver a nationwide broadcast—presumably the formal victory proclamation—but also will celebrate the 61st anniversary of his birthday.

He was born at Lamar, Mo., May 8, 1884.

COACH FELLER IN ACTION—Chief Specialist Bob Feller (above), former Cleveland pitcher now coaching Great Lakes Naval nine, shouts instructions to his charges from the bench. But Bob won't do all his chores from the bench, and is expected to spend a lot of time on the firing line where his famous fast ball will speak for itself. (AP wirephoto).

Phil Southpaw Goes Into Naval Service

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP) — Ken Raffensberger, leading moundsman for the Philadelphia Phillies last year, was inducted into the armed forces today and assigned to the Navy, the Army public relations office announced.

The southpaw hurler from York, Pa., was involved in a draft mixup April 30 when it first was reported he was inducted in Harrisburg, Pa., and it later was announced he would "be processed" in Philadelphia.

Gardner Expresses Hope Of Texas League Play In 1946

DALLAS, May 7 (AP)—The 58-year-old Texas League, out of action for three seasons, will resume operations in 1946, President J. Alvin Gardner predicted today.

Already the Dallas club, one of six that voted Feb. 24, 1943, to suspend operations, has asked for a special meeting not later than July to discuss plans for returning to baseball.

George Schepps, president of the club, filed the official request, explaining that he wanted an early meeting with the idea of asking the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues to return the circuit to active status so the club owners would not be handicapped in seeking playing talent. Gardner said he would call the meeting for the middle of summer but has not set a definite date.

Repeatedly, Gardner and other league officials have said the end of the war in Europe would see the return of the league to its baseball race that never had been interrupted except for parts of seasons since it was organized back in 1888 until the six-two vote in 1943. Oklahoma City and Fort Worth were the only clubs wanting to continue through the war.

Honolulu Receives V-E News Soberly

HONOLULU, May 7. (AP)—This city where the Pacific war began three years and five months ago received word of German's surrender quietly, without a celebration.

The first Associated Press dispatch quoting the German radio announcement of the surrender caught the city in the pre-dawn curfew hours with only those persons authorized to be out still on the streets.

There was a general feeling at this Pacific stronghold that there still is a major war to be fought and the celebrating can come after what they term "V-J" day.

Hannegan Confirmed For Cabinet Post

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — Robert E. Hannegan was confirmed as posmaster general by the Senate today.

Senators Donnell (R-Mo) and Taft (R-Ohio) cast the negative ballots in a 60 to 2 vote which gave approval for the Democratic national chairman to take the cabinet post. A move earlier by Donnell to send the nomination back to the postoffice committee for hearings was defeated 35 to 28.

Community Property Case To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — The Supreme court agreed today to review decisions holding unconstitutional a federal tax law requirement that all community property of a married couple must be included in the estate of the spouse who dies first.

The U. S. district courts for western Texas and for eastern Louisiana decided the internal revenue code requirement violates the due process clause of the constitution's fifth amendment. The Justice department asked review of the findings.

The Texas court ruled against government efforts to keep $6,937 collected from the estate of Ernst Herbst, Texas stock farmer. The Louisiana court held heirs of Sam Wiener, jr., of Shreveport, were entitled to recover $162,329 as an overpayment of estate taxes.

Texas and Louisiana are among ten states having community property laws. Under these laws husband and wife are equal owners of property they acquire.

President Truman Is Expected To Give V-E Announcement At 8 A. M.

The crowning triumph came just five years, eight months and seven days after Hitler invaded weak but proud Poland and struck the spark which set the world afire.

It marked the official end of war in Europe, but it did not silence all the guns, for battles raged on in Czechoslovakia.

Doenitz' Orders Defied

There, Nazi Gen. Ferdinand Schoerner, who has been designated a war criminal, defied the orders of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, successor to the dead or missing Hitler, to lay down arms.

But this force—all that remains of what once was the mightiest military machine on earth—faced inevitable liquidation or surrender.

Presumably, the victorious powers soon will label these troops guerrilla outlaws, subject to execution unless they yield.

The only details of Germany's ignominous end came from Ed Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the Western front, who was the first to flash the word the world had long awaited.

Before Kennedy's dispatch was received, Doenitz broadcast from Flensburg an order to all U-boats to "cease activity."

German Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk then followed to say "the high command of the armed forces today at the order of Grand Admiral Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

Still Pretty Arrogant

The foreign minister declared the terms were "harsh" but unavoidable and urged the Germans to "accept this burden and stand loyally by the obligations we have undertaken."

"We may hope," he added, "that the atmosphere of hatred which today surrounds Germany all over the world will give place to a spirit of reconciliation among the nations without which the world cannot recover."

Gen. Boehme, German commander in chief in Norway, broadcast tonight from Oslo an order commanding his troops to lay down their arms."

The free Austrian radio was heard telling the people of Austria that the German general staff had signed terms of unconditional surrender.

Kennedy's dispatch was incomplete and the rest of it and those of other correspondents representing the world's great news gathering organizations presumably were pigeon-holed by SHAEF to await the formal proclamation by the Big Three.

De Gaulle To Broadcast

Gen. De Gaulle too will broadcast to the French people.

Although the world was denied additional details temporarily, there was no doubt that the war in Europe was over officially, that organized resistance had ended, that the Germans were "kaput"—finished.

Britain herself made this clear. The ministry of information, spokesman for the government, disclosed officially four hours after Kennedy's flash that tomorrow would be "treated" as "Victory in Europe day."

Here is its announcement:

"It is understood that in accordance with arrangements between the three great powers, an official announcement will be broadcast by the prime minister at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the eighth of May.

Tuesday Is Holiday

"In view of this fact, tomorrow, Tuesday, will be treated as victory in Europe day and will be regarded as a public holiday.

"The day following, Wednesday, the ninth of May, will also be a holiday.

"H.M. the king will broadcast to the peoples of the British empire and the commonwealth tomorrow, Tuesday, at 9 p.m. DBST (double British summer time).

"Parliament will meet at the usual time tomorrow."

It is expected in London that Churchill, feeling strongly that tomorrow should be the "king's day," would make only a brief announcement.

This presumably will be from the floor of Commons where, in 1940, Churchill rallied Britain from the dark despair of Dunkerque to fight on in defiance of heavy odds.

Thursday Address

But he has already decided to deliver a major address on Thursday, and then—free from the binding restrictions of security—will review the story of the long, uphill struggle to victory.

But he will remind the nation anew that another cruel and ruthless nation, Japan, must still be brought to its knees.

Meanwhile, the European advisory commission comprising representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia, went into a last-hour conference to put the finishing touches on occupation terms for Germany.

Battle In Prague

Ripka, said the Germans still fighting in defiance of the surrender agreement would be regarded as franc-tireurs (guerrillas) outside the rules of international law.

He said these German "guerrillas" would be "dealt with accordingly" and that the "fight goes on until the last German franc-tireur is rendered harmless, disarmed or killed."

As Norway, the only other great German pocket, surrendered, the Swedish news agency reported from Oslo that an Allied naval armada of 48 ships had been sighted off Oslo fjord and that "it is expected troops will be landed at and moment."

NAZI SHIPS SURRENDER

NEW YORK, May 7.—The 10,000-ton German heavy cruisers Prinz Eugen and Seydlitz, together with 160,000 tons of merchant shipping, have been surrendered to the Allies at Copenhagen, the British radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by the Blue network.

Surrender Story 'Scoop' For AP

AP went into effect at 9:40 acw, and for many hours it was not even possible to learn how the news had been transmitted.

Shortly before midnight, however, after all but Kennedy had been reinstated, the Associated Press in London filed this account of how Kennedy's story was received and sent to the Allied public:

"The London staff was sweating out the peace news in an atmosphere loaded with rumor, expectancy and cigaret smoke, when one of many telephones on the main news desk rang about 3:24 p. m. London time (8:24 a. m. cwt), and Russell Landstrom looked from his job of herding copy to the cable and radio channels to answer it.

"This Is Paris Calling"

"'This is Paris calling,' came a faint, muffled voice. Then it faded and came back so Landstrom could catch the word 'Paris' again, and he turned the telephone over to Lewis Hawkins."

"Very dimly the voice said that Germany had surrendered unconditionally at Reims. Hawkins asked who was calling and was told that it was Morton Gudebrod of the Associated Press Paris staff.

"Being unfamiliar with Gudebrod's voice, Hawkins was asking for details and authority when Edward Kennedy, chief of the Paris bureau, broke in to say: 'This is Ed Kennedy, Lew. Germany has surrendered unconditionally. That's official. Make the date Reims, France, and get it out.'

Flash At 8:26 A. M.

"Hawkins, well acquainted with Kennedy, recognized his voice, and after jotting down the flash called a woman traffic operator to take the call in a dictation booth and copy the story Kennedy had ready.

"The flash moved from London by cable and radio at 3:26 p. m. (8:26 a. m., cwt).

"Then Hawkins found that the operator had been unable to hear Kennedy sufficiently clearly to get the bulletin, so Hawkins took the call back on the news desk and with difficulty wrote down the first bulletin with a pencil, then handed the 'phone over to James F. King while he hurried the bulletin to the wires at 3:34 p. m. (8:34 a. m. cwt).

Kennedy's Voice Faded

"King took the next two or three sentences, passing pencilled sheets across the desk to Alex Singleton for copying before they went to Landstrom for final editing and filing.

"Kennedy's voice faded again and again, and King gave way to Dwight L. Pitkin, who continued taking Kennedy's slow, careful but faint dictation until ten 'takes' had been brought in, copied, edited and cleared to New York. Then the connection faded entirely or was cut off, and communication was not reestablished.

"British censors had had no special instructions on handling surrender stories, and since Kennedy's dispatch originated abroad, and was only being relayed through London, under standard British censorship practice there was no question raised about passing it."

Dispatch Held Up 8 Minutes

When the bombshell of the flash reached the New York foreign desk, it was held up for eight minutes pending receipt of sufficient of Kennedy's datelined and detailed dispatch to make certain that there was no possibility of error. There was none, and the news was sped through the Allied world at 8:35 a. m., cwt.

At 10:15 a. m. cwt, a special voice-cast channel which has long been set up from Paris to American news agencies and radio networks carried this statement:

"Supreme Headquarters authorizes correspondents at 1645 Paris time (9:45 a. m. cwt) today to state that SHAEF has made nowhere any official statement for publication to that hour concerning the complete surrender of all German armed forces in Europe and that no story to that effect is authorized."

Then British Announce

For four hours afterward, officials in Washington, London and Moscow were silent. Then the British ministry of information announced that Churchill would make a formal V-E proclamation today, (Tues.) at 8 a. m. central war time, and that King George would speak at 2 p. m. central war time.

The British Press association reported that "the surprising delay in announcing V-E day in spite of the complete capitulation by the Germans" was due to the importance "attached to synchronizing the news in London, Washington and Moscow."

Decide On Tuesday Afternoon

The press association said that telephone calls had been in progress all day among Washington, London and Moscow, and that "differing views were apparently held on which hour the public should be told, but finally tomorrow was decided upon."

Edward Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting system correspondent in London, later broadcast to this country that Churchill and President Truman had been prepared to issue the official news at noon Monday but that this was delayed because Premier Stalin was not ready.

Fifty-eight minutes before Kennedy's dispatch was carried, the Germans—bound by no such blackout as enforced among the Allies—broadcast that they had surrendered unconditionally.

On Flensburg Wavelength

The German broadcast was carried on the wavelength of Flensburg, a station which actually is in British-occupied Schleswig-Holstein, but on whose wavelength all recent official German statements have been carried from an undisclosed site.

The German announcement was made by Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk, newly-appointed foreign minister in the regime of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, the man who succeeded Hitler as fuehrer.

"German men and women!" Krosigk began. "The high command of the armed forces had today at the order of Grand Admiral Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

Broadcast Officially Ignored

The speaker went on to urge the German people to "stand loyally to the obligations we have undertaken" and to advise at length concerning Germany's conduct during the hard times ahead.

This German broadcast was officially ignored by the Allies and was without any confirmation until Kennedy's terse, dramatic account came through.

Two hours after Kennedy's flash, the American broadcasting station in Europe (ABSIE) broadcast that "Germany has surrendered unconditionally. The war is officially over in Europe."

Announcement Still Withheld

The Canadian Press reported from Ottawa that it was believed the German announcement had upset the Allies' formal arrangements.

Whatever the reason, the official announcement still was withheld, but the news was out.

The Associated Press received no more word from Paris except two inconsequential dispatches on other subjects, which apparently had been filed earlier.

Filing Facilities Suspended

The reason became apparent when at 2:29 p. m. cwt., the New York foreign desk received this dispatch from Relman Morin of the Paris AP staff:

"The public relations division of Allied Supreme Headquarters today suspended filing facilities of the Associated Press in the European theater until further notice.

"'The Associated Press is suspended from filing copy by any means in this theater (European Theater of Operations) effective at 1640 hours (9:40 a. m., cwt) this date until charges are investigated in connection with the filing of a story under Reims dateline that SHEAF had officially announced the unconditional surrender of all German forces as of 0241 hours this date.

"'(Signed) Frank Allen, jr., brigadier general.

USA, director, public relations division.'"

"Official" Not Mentioned

It must be stated that nowhere in Kennedy's dispatch did he say that the surrender was officially announced.

The flash which moved on the AP circuits in the United States said: "Reims, France—Allies officially announced Germany surrendered unconditionally."

This was based on the assumption that since the story came from General Eisenhower's headquarters in Reims it was official.

Story Carried Factual

The publishable story which Kennedy dictated to London and which was carried was baldly factual, giving no source but letting the event speak for itself. The word "official" did not appear in it.

A little less than seven hours after the suspension of the AP's transmission facilities was put into effect, Austin Bealmear of the Paris staff was able to file a short story on the celebration of peace in Paris, and informed New York that the suspension had been lifted for all except Kennedy.

Thus the news for which the Allied world had been so eagerly waiting was received. It still was not official, but the Allied world rejoiced in the accomplished fact.

Knife And Fork Club Hears Humorist And Names New Officers

Clarence L. Doggett, dry goods merchant, was announced as new president of the Lubbock Knife and Fork club Monday night after members and their wives literally held their sides laughing at the vocal antics of Ed Harding of Washington, N. C., as he scampered through his subject of "Carolina Collards and Cornbread."

Other officers for the ensuing year are S. L. Forrest, vice president, and Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, secretary-treasurer, who was reelected. New members of the board of directors are Mrs. O. L. Byrd, Mrs. M. C. Overton and Dr. William H. Whyburn, president of Texas Technological college.

The new officers were elected at a business session after the dinner and program in Hilton hotel. Directors had previously been elected by ballot.

More than 100 couples heard the humorist rattle off a steady stream of funny stories for an hour and 20 minutes.

J. D. Hassell, jr., introduced Harding.

Pacific Battles

News of the unconditional German surrender was greeted on Pacific fighting fronts with sober satisfaction and thankfulness that now the total military might of the Allies can be thrown against Japan. All recognized that there is a long, hard fight ahead.

In Honolulu, where the Japanese sneak-attack opened, there was a general feeling that celebrations can come after "V-J"—victory over Japan—day.

At Guam some American officers and men discussed the possibility that Japan may find in Germany's unconditional surrender enough to satisfy her face-saving complex and try to bow out of the conflict the same way.

Jittery Over Russia

Tokyo, jittery about Russia's position, spoke of maintaining "absolute neutrality with the Soviet Union."

In San Francisco, Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, asked by a newsman as to his country's policy toward Japan now that Germany is through, said Russia expressed her view on this early in April. Obviously he referred to Russian denunciation of the Russo-Japanese non-aggression pact.

The Chinese high command indirectly indicated development of what might prove to be a serious threat to the American airbase at Chihkiang, in China's Hunan province 250 miles from Chungking. It said a Japanese column broke through "southeast of Ankiang." The latter town is on the main highway 35 miles east of Chihkiang. The Chinese claimed two Japanese columns were repulsed but that a third by-passed Shanmen, 75 miles east of the airbase, and attacked southeast of Ankiang where it was "dealt a heavy blow by our fighters."

World Conference

over in Europe."

But they strengthened their determination to produce at the Golden Gate guarantees intended to insure against another war.

Conference business was going on as usual in his momentous time of Nazi surrender.

Bringing France into their inner circle for the first time, foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia and China—the four powers sponsoring the conference — tried for a solid Big Five alignment on major issue and small-nation demands.

Rank and file delegates moved through a series of six committee meetings, getting in the spadework on a world charter for peace.

Stepping Up Of Tempo

Among them was an intense awareness that surrender of Germany's once rampant forces calls for stepping up the tempo of their task. Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium already was on the way to Brussels by plane, because of a threatened internal crisis over the return of King Leopold.

And Norwegian Foreign Minister Tyrgve Lie arranged to leave for London tonight.

They are heads of two of the conference's four key commissions.

Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, who now is reported to have assured China, Britain and the United States that Russia will go along with them on two more major amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks Formula, is packing for a mid-week departure.

Others also may be on their way home soon, such as Pedro Leao Velloso, Brazilian foreign minister. Velloso spoke jubilantly of Germany's capitulation.

Five Burglaries In City Investigated

Police investigated Monday five burglaries.

An undetermined quantity of plumbing supplies were taken from Morrison Supply Co., 1949 Ave. G. A candy vending machine at Economy Mills, 1413 Ave. B, was robbed of approximately $8.

Breakins occurred at a Mark Halsey warehouse, Blue Bonnet laundry, 1212 Ave. F, and Galbraith Steel and Supply company, 2308 Ave. H, but nothing was reported removed at any of the places. An unsuccessful attempt was made to break into the safe at Galbraith's.

PEACE STOCKS BUOYANT

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP) — Complete surrender of Germany brought joy to Wall Street today although the stock market responded with diversified trends and, while peace-rated issues managed to achieve modest gains, many leaders elsewhere stumbled over profit taking.

It was a case of ups and downs. As crowds filled the streets of the financial sector and ticker tape and torn paper showered from windows, prices steadied, slipped, rallied briskly around midday and backed away again in numerous instances in the final hour. Transfers of 1,950,000 shares compared with 1,410,000 Friday and were the largest since April 17.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 65.2. Of 962 issues registering, 406 were up, 355 down and 201 unchanged.

Ending in the plus column were U. S. Rubber, Youngstown Sheet, Certain-Teed, American Radiator, International Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-Manville, and American Telephone.

Among losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern, Pacific, Boeing, United Aircraft, General Electric, North American, Eastman Kodak and Sears Roebuck.

Bonds were uneven.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP) — Following early small recession of 30 cents a bale, the cotton futures market turned steady today as traders placed a favorable interpretation on the surrender of Germany. Final prices were near the best of the day to show a net gain of 5 to 40 cents a bale.

It was generally anticipated that the German collapse will still bring heavier demands for cotton textiles to meet military, export and civilian needs. When early commission house liquidation dried up limited mill covering against textile awards and local buying met only scale up hedging and profit taking. October and December established new seasonal highs.

Apart from war developments, the market was strengthened by the growing tightness of free supplies of spot cotton under the operation of the purchase program and the prospect of a smalled crop next season. There was a fair amount of switching from the near to later months.

Grain..

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP) — May rye soared to $1.40, the highest for any delivery of that grain since April, 1928, and most other grain futures made important gains today.

At the start all markets were firm to strong with rye up more than two cents before profit cashing stemmed the advance and caused a minor reaction. During the last 15 minutes some prices rallied sharply.

Wheat rallied sharply during the last half hour after the board of trade announced large reduction in the domestic visible supply during the last week.

At the finish wheat was ⅜ to 1¼ higher than Saturday's close, May $1.75⅝. Corn was unchanged to ¼ higher, May $1.15⅝. Oats were up ⅜ to ½, May 66-66½. Rye was 1⅞ to 3¾ higher, May $1.39¾-1.40. Barley was off ⅛ to up ¾, May 97¾.

FORT WORTH REPORT

Ralls Sets Program For V-E Observance

RALLS, May 7. (Special)—Citizens of Ralls will commemorate VE-day today with a special program—if and when an official announcement is made, it was announced by C. W. Mann, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

The program has been set tentatively for Tuesday morning soon after President Truman speaks to the nation.

O. C. Thomas of Ralls, former superintendent of schools at Spur, will make the principal address. E. M. Lawrence, local school superintendent, will be chairman and talks will be made by several other local citizens.

The Ralls High school band will lead a parade from the school to the square. If weather permits the program will be held outdoors, otherwise in the City auditorium.

War Degenerates Into Rat-Hunt

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

With or without benefit of official London-Moscow-Washington V-E-day proclamations, the war in Europe is over.

It had degenerated into a rat-hunt in Germany even before general unconditional surrender papers signed in Reims made outlaws of Nazis still bent on resistance anywhere.

How long it may take to kill or disarm the last sniper or run down Germans responsible for shocking crimes against humanity is unpredictable. The slate cannot be wiped clean for a new start in Germany until that grim mission also is accomplished. The victors are so pledged to that as they were to bringing Nazi Germany abjectly to its knees in surrender. There can be no mercy for the merciless.

SIMPSON

Horror Camps Re-Focussed

Nor can it be doubted that every Allied and possibly Russian agency for depicting before Japanese eyes the relentless retribution to be visited upon Nazis responsible for the horrors found in Germany will be re-focussed for that service. There are object lesson values in that which conceivably could effect the duration of the war against Japan.

Aside from that aspect, however, the German surrender sets definitely in motion Russian-Allied machinery long ago agreed upon not only for occuptaion of Germany but for maintenance indefinitely of the means for destroying at its source the first sign of a recurrence there of the war mania that led the nation to its doom.

Air Patrols Planned

Current reports from Allied air centers indicate that the core of long range Russian-Allied plans for dealing with conquered Germany is air power. Preparations for establishment of more or less permanent air bases in and around Germany that would keep every nook and corner of the Reich within hitting distance in a matter of minutes rather than hours are well under way. And with the ruins of the doomed cities about them no German of this or the rising generation can doubt what that massed air power would mean for them if it ever became necessary to call it into action to stamp our recalcitrance in Germany.

As the situation in Germany after her complete defeat has been long visualized by Washington authority, there should be no disheartening prospect of years of service in Rhine or other strategic occupation bridgeheads confronting United Nations armies as after the last war. Air power can take over the watch on the Rhine in reverse, it is felt. The mere presence of the bombers at their assigned bases should be sufficient.

Thanks Services

such services after President Truman's proclamation.

A majority of reports showed business as usual, with war plant centers taking the news in stride. There appeared a general realization that the global war was at its half way mark; that the war against Japan in the Pacific must yet be won.

Some Use Sirens

Fire sirens screamed to mark the word in some cities. Some liquor dealers closed. Others waited for the Truman proclamation.

Reports showed generally a reaction in keeping with Gov. Coke R. Stevenson's admonition that "rejoicing should not take the form of revelry or costly demonstrations."

Sirens sounded at Odessa, Gainesville, and in most lower Rio Grande valley cities. Many stores closed at Plainview, Lufkin, Beaumont, and in some lower Rio Grande valley cities. Schools closed at Beaumont and Edinburg. McAllen reported that most liquor dealers were closing voluntarily for 48 hours. A report that liquor stores were closing came also from Beaumont.

Gainesville residents were called to an afternoon city-wide service of thanks. Churches were open for prayer at Lufkin. Prayer services were held last night at Odessa and McAllen. Church services were held at Beaumont, and there were informal services at Wichita Falls.

Some Await Formal Word

From Big Spring, Denison, San Antonio, Dallas, Pampa, Fort Worth, Midland, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, and Paris, came word that the news was received calmly.

As at Fort Worth, Dallas, Lubbock, Marshall and Corpus Christi many cities held up observances for the Truman proclamation.

Army installations throughout Texas also awaited the Truman proclamation. With the proclamation Lubbock was ready with plans for stores and offices to close and prayer services to be held. Stores will close at Marshall, schools will hold special assemblies, and a special prayer service will be held on the court house lawn.

News Briefs

Senior class of Cooper High school will present its annual play, "He Was a Gay Senorita," at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the high school auditorium. Director of the three-act comedy is L. C. Greenlee, and the cast includes Virginia Mote, Don Billingsley, Olan Dorsett, Hazel Sullivent, Norma Jean Richardson, Bobby Jones and Clifford Hamilton.

Mary Guana compained to police that a youth, about 16, took her purse and attempted to rape one of her two granddaughters who were walking with her Sunday afternoon in 900-block Second street. She said the purse contained $20 in currency and personal papers.

A 18-year-old negro, Ethel Lee Garrett, of Bryan, Tex., was charged Monday with felony theft, the sheriff's office said. The woman allegedly stole a watch from the home of her white employers.

Fire Chief W. E. Twitty and his firemen Monday were anticipating the arrival this morning of a shiny, new piece of badly-needed equipment. Ordered for many months, a 13,000-pound, 200-horse power pumper is expected to arrive here by rail at 9 o'clock. The new truck has a cab which will seat seven firemen. It was shipped from Allentown, Pa.

Welfare Group Here Airs Plans For Aid Of Returning Vets

Methods of aiding returning servicemen was the subject of discussions at the monthly meeting of the Lubbock Social Welfare association Monday night in the auditorium of West Texas Gas company, which was attended by representatives of many Lubbock welfare and service groups.

E. G. Travis, employment representative at the United States Employment service, spoke on the ways in which his office is able to aid returning servicemen in regaining their old jobs, obtaining new employment, or in giving guidance information. Forest L. Rankin, county service officer, explained that it is his duty to assist veterans and their dependents in filling out the federal forms for applying for payment of insurance, gaining admittance to government hospitals, and in general adjustment matters. Rankin also emphasized that there are only three federally - accredited organizations in Lubbock whose business is aiding veterans: the readjustment section of the local Selective Service boards; the United States Employment service; and the Veterans administration (which in Lubbock is being handled through the county service office).

Members of the association present at the meeting were R. H. Nowlin, president; Dr. A. J. Bahm, vice-president; Mrs. Rosa Settle, treasurer; Mrs. Katherine Cannon, secretary; J. E. Maisen of the Crippled Children's council; W. C. Mitchell of the Texas State board of Vocational Education; Joe Wilson, of city-county welfare; Dr. Leo Reithmayer of Texas Tech; Miss Grace Padley, guidance director in Lubbock Public schools; Miss Harriett B. Dealey of the USES; Miss Ruth E. Skemp, orthopedic nurse of the Crippled Children's division; Mrs. Aura Mae Hamilton of the State department of Public Welfare; and Forest L. Rankin, county service officer.

Now For The Japs!

They Must Be Beaten To Earth!

AND now the Japs! This grim thought, this determination doubtless is foremost in the minds of every American today.

Most of the people of most of the other Allied nations doubtless are thinking somewhat the same way. But with the exception of a few—the British, the Chinese, the Australians, the New Zealanders, the Filipinos and a few others—they are not thinking it with the same intensity as Americans. The disposal of the Japs, as all realize, is primarily an American job. We should and doubtless will get a good deal of very valuable help. But Americans have to do most of it themselves.

Thus, naturally, inevitably and properly, celebrations of the victory in Europe must be restrained to a definite degree. Americans are fully conscious that the whole war has not been won. Victory in Europe means victory in only a part of the war—the larger part of it, as everyone eagerly hopes. But a big part of—no one knows just how big it is—still remains to be won.

The outlook certainly is bright. Fighting with one hand—a hand that at one time was seriously crippled—Americans have proved more than a match for their enemy in the Pacific. Now that Uncle Sam can start swinging both fists, and that Britain and our other Allies can begin throwing some few extra punches for good measure, it certainly does not seem to be wishful to hope and expect that the slant-eyes are going to start getting exactly what is due them.

This does not mean that anyone is justified in expecting a quick or easy victory. The Japs have the advantage of position. There is no probability of starving them out. They may be expected to fight with the despair of desperation. Indeed, victory may be terrible in its costs and it may take a longer time than most of us fondly believe. We can hope otherwise with some justification—but we can't expect anything.

Undoubtedly, peace gestures are to be expected. The Japs will, almost beyond doubt, try to get out of this war in condition to prepare for another. But it isn't likely that Americans will be fooled by anything like that, or that they will stop short of total victory and elimination of this menace for all time to come.

Our fighting men now are on their way to total victory, in position to concentrate everything they have upon it, and they must not be asked to stop until they reach their objective.

Too Many "Hangers-On"

AS South Africa's venerable soldier-statesman, Gen. Jan Smuts, has pointed out, the press of the world in general, and of the United States in particular, has a terrific responsibility in presenting to humanity the activities and especially the decisions of the United Nations Security conference.

Chatting with representatives of the press in San Francisco, General Smuts took the position that with the reporters on hand there largely rests the power to cause the world at large to be either sympathetic, or unsympathetic, to the conference. Undoubtedly, he is right.

Therefore, it is all the more regrettable that harder and faster rules were not laid down covering just what sort of press representatives could qualify for seats at the conference. Not only are many of the more experienced and fully responsible of U. S. and foreign writers and radio commentators on hand at San Francisco. Also there is a veritable army of "trained seals" and hangers-on, members of which have no more business in the parley's press galleries and conferences than they'd have at a championship wrestling match. In fact, not as much.

No one need worry, we think, about the word pictures of the conference drawn by intelligent and experienced reporters and commentators, especially those whose work for years has schooled them in world affairs. The threat comes from the screwball fringe—from the Hollywood gossip dispensers; the chroniclers of the Broadway saloon doings; from the "humorists," and the serious but amateur "uplifters" who wrangled seats through friendships with home town editors. Fully one-third, if not a half, of the 1,600 "press and radio" representatives at San Francisco shouldn't be there at all.

(And just in case some reader might suspect there are "sour grapes" involved, the Editor of the Morning Avalanche was invited 'way last February 15; was given a month to make up his mind and sadly stayed home due to press of office wartime routine.)

The One Minute Sermon

Better is the end of a thing that the beginning thereof: and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.

Be not hasty in thy spirit to the angry: for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.

Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this.

Wisdom is good with an inheritance: and by it there is profit to them that see the sun. —Ecclesiastes 7:7-11.

THE STORY: Nick Trent, Army pilot, has been buzz-bombed out of the war. On the boat home a mysterious stranger named Booker makes him a vague money-proposition which he turns down. Pat Hudson and Charley Strand, old friends, greet him at the dock. While Nick is waiting for Charley later that afternoon in the lobby of the Parker House, Booker reappears, introduces him to exotic Magda Calavestri. On parting, Calavestri presses something into his hand and whispers "Tonight."

THE AMULET

III

I left Magda Calavestri and Booker standing there together and walked across the lobby to join Charley.

"Come," I said. "Let's get out of here."

"Who on earth are those people?" he asked.

"Never mind that now. Where's your car?"

"Just around the corner. But I thought we might mull a bit over an old-fashioned."

"Not here, Charley." I shook my head. "Let's go down to the yacht club."

After Charley had his drink we sat in the lounge of winter quarters of the Sandy Point Yacht club looking out over T wharf at the harbor lights. Except for two somewhat dispirited cribbage players in the corner, we were alone. Charley had in his hand the object that Calavestri had given me. He held it up between his fingers and whistled softly.

"Nicholas, Nicholas," he said and shook his head.

I stared at the thing. It was a kind of gold amulet, shaped like a maltese cross. In its center was set the most beautiful diamond I had ever seen—large and exquisitely cut. Fire-lights flashed out from the stone.

"Nick, what do you suppose this is worth?" Charley asked.

"A life or two," I said.

Charley turned and stared.

"What's this all about, or isn't it any of my business?"

"The man with Calavestri—" I began and Charley put down the amulet.

"Calavestri!" he said.

"That's right. Why?"

"Nothing." Charley smiled weakly. "It just frightens me a little; that's all."

"The man who was with her claims to be an agent of some kind. He was on the Cambodia. Just before we landed, he made me a rather vague and illusive proposition."

"What did he want you to do?"

"He didn't say."

"Very unbusinesslike," Charley murmured.

"Very," I answered, "but this isn't business."

"What's his name?"

"Booker."

"Nicholas, my lad," said Charley. "I don't like the looks of this one little bit." He passed back the amulet. "What on earth did you take the thing for?"

I shrugged.

* * *

Pat Hudson's place in Louisburg Square had about it the kind of homely elegance such as only people who are very sure of themselves can support. There were antimacassars on all the chairs and sofas, and there was a Ming vase in the hall into which Mr. Hudson occasionally put his umbrella.

I was punctual that night and Mr. Hudson remarked upon the fact somewhat caustically, as I was customarily late. All during the meal he asked me pontificial questions about the war. But he did not listen to the answers. He assumed quite sensibly that 30 missions over Europe and an experience with a rocket bomb would throw little light upon the economic and financial affairs of Europe.

He considered my 16 months in the air force a footless junket that was largely due to youth and irresponsibility. When he left us in the library, he looked at me with an expression intended to convey parental sternness and said:

"Well, Nicholas, now that you are back with us, I hope you've gotten over your little foolishnesses and are ready to settle down."

I thought of Calavestri's amulet in my pocket and shuddered.

Pat and I sat for a few moments in silence. Then she asked:

"What did you do this afternoon, Nick?"

"I slept."

"Oh." Pat looked thoughtful. "Why?"

"I just wondered." Pat frowned. "I was thinking of that strange-looking chap at the pier. I thought perhaps you might have seen him again."

"Who, Booker?" I took out my pipe and ran my thumb along the shiny grain of the bowl. "What makes you think that?"

"As a matter of fact, I did see Booker," I said.

Pat was fingering the jeweled pendant of her necklace. Now her hand stopped and her knuckles whitened as she gripped the necklace tightly.

"What about, Nick?"

"I merely ran into him in the lobby of the Parker House."

"Who is he anyway?"

"A casual of the war, I guess. I think he was evacuated from the Low Countries."

"He has the look of a jackal." Pat shuddered. "I don't like him."

The doorbell rang. In the silence we stared at each other and then I heard Simms' step as he crossed the hall. Pat looked at me carefully.

"Oh," she said, "I forgot to tell you. That must be Eric. He asked if he might come over tonight."

"Tonight?" I asked. "Did he know I was going to be here?"

"Yes." Pat stood up and went to the cigaret box on the table. She turned with a cigaret held in her fingers. "That's why he's coming. Have you a match?"

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

YOU have no idea how hard it is to be looking at life after having looked at death.

My best friend has just died.

Joseph Vincent Connolly — or just Joe as all those who knew him called him.

Joe was editor in chief of the syndicate that distributes this column of mine, but Joe was, above all, my pal.

BRANDEIS

Twenty-four years ago when I came to New York from San Francisco, Joe gave me my first job. He went way up and became the chief executive of the syndicate. I sort of stayed behind and got to be just a scribbler of the little things that make up life.

But Joe, the fellow who counted among his friends presidents and kings, statesmen and politicians, scientists and millionaires, always loved the little things that make up life.

* * *

One of the highest-paid newspapermen in the country, he used to come to my house for weekends, take off his coat and cook some pretty awful concoctions. But he was prouder of them than of the greatest achievement in his newspaper work.

And after dinner, this big executive never asked my wife, "May I help you?" No, he went right out into the kitchen and washed the dishes.

And being an executive, everybody else who was there had to come out and help.

Joe never knew the meaning of the word conceit. He had no pretense, no sham, no false pride in him.

He was the kindest man I ever knew. He kept an apartment at a leading New York hotel. And there in that swank place every waiter, every bellboy, every elevator girl loved him. He had a kind word for every one of them.

* * *

ONE of the saddest persons when he died was Nicky, the chambermaid who cleaned his rooms. Nicky had needed a very expensive treatment of her teeth. She couldn't afford it, but Joe said "You go ahead, I'll take care of it." And he did.

Joe had an ailing heart. He knew he was going to die. But he lived and laughed and thought of others until the very last moment.

And when death came, it came quickly. He just slumped over into the arms of his wife and that was all.

They had just come from a movie the title of which was "The Keys of the Kingdom."

There were a thousand people at St. Catherine's Church in Pelham for his funeral.

And everyone was there not as a duty but because he loved Joe and wanted to see him safely off on the long journey.

It's a different world to me since Joe died.

But I was lucky to have had one friend who understood.

Goodbye, Joe!

Truman Changes Begun

Domestic House-Cleaning Is On

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT Truman has already found it necessary to make many significant changes of policy and personnel in the administrative establishment which he inherited from Franklin Roosevelt. Although he is carrying out his predecessor's war and foreign policy program to the letter, there are seemingly unrelated but tell-tale signs that he contemplates a domestic house cleaning.

He is quietly dropping the controls on labor and industry which ideological-minded advisers of the previous administration—Harry Hopkins, David Niles, Felix Frankfurter—had hoped to carry over into the peacetime period. He is naming hardheaded businessmen and bankers to key positions as replacements for welfare and economic experts of the professional type.

He has indicated that he will place various and scattered agencies dealing with the same problems under a single responsible head. He holds no grudges against individuals or factions which were once on the White House black list.

TUCKER

Paul McNutt was told to abandon his attempt to show the need for a manpower draft measure by forcing textile workers in New Bedford from fabric to tire plants.

The brain trusters, only a month ago, wanted this power so that they could plan and direct American economy in peace as well as war. WPB has been ordered to release larger supplies of materials to factories now ready to undergo reconversion. It cannot use its authority to regiment postbellum industry.

Mr. Truman is taking his time, but it is expected that he will draw together the sprawling, uncoordinated bureaus which, through their conflicting regulations, have messed up labor relations, food, veterans' problems, surplus property etc. He will also take a hard look at the state of the nation's finances. Last, he plans to demobilize many emergency units regardless of the bureaucrats' protests that they are indispensable.

A curbstone analysis of the new Chief Executive's appointees suggests the presence of an uncommon trait in Washington. They have no political, philosophical or ideological axes to grind. They seem to want to do good commn sense jobs.

* * *

TYRANNY: Musslini's ignominous death conveys a lesson to the American as well as to the Italian people. A few Washingtonians with long memories recall that the cruel and vainglorious strutter was once an idol to an important strata of officialdom and the upper crust in this country. They praised and flattered him because "he made the trains run on time."

New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago industrialists, bankers, exporters, importers, businessmen, editors and educators were only too happy to accept and wear his decorations. In view of his creation of a corporate state with vast powers, it was to their selfish financial interest to keep in right at Rome. They sought his favors and baubles and reciprocated.

Candidates for office in communities with a large Italian vote curried that support by giving the upraised Fascist salute at rallies and by their exaltation of Il Duce. In numerous universities Prof. Gaetano Salvemini, former member of the Italian parliament and a distinguished historian, was banned as a speaker and lecturer because of his hatred of Benito. He now teaches at Harvard. One of Mussolini's great admirers in those days was Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university.

It is true that the victim of the Italian patriots' rifles had not then stabbed France in the back—a Roosevelt remark which some of his opponents tried to capitalize in the 1940 campaign. But he had foully murdered his enemies, made castor oil a popular political weapon and enthroned tyranny in Italy.

* * *

MYTH: Bigwigs in the capital contributed to the myth which enabled Mussolini to bemuse his people and other nations. In the lush days of the twenties even a bloody dictator could make character and prestige for himself in a United States which worshiped the Wall Street ticker.

Ironically, Henry Stimson, while he was secretary of state, visited Il Duce and discovered the Italian boss to be a "remarkable man." When Dino Grandi, then foreign minister, came to Washington and other eastern cities, the bearded diplomat was feted by high and low.

So, in wondering how the Italian people could fall for such a phony, thoughtful observers, looking forward to an epidemic of postwar propaganda from abroad, advance the sardonic explanation that false hero-worship knows no international boundaries.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

REPORTS of the mysterious death of Adolf Hitler and the inglorious end of Benito Mussolini throw in sharp relief the problem of what to do with the rulers of Axis and puppet regimes.

Even though some are dead there still remain—so far as we know—a lot of the smaller fry.

Until his fingerprints are compared and other positive identifications made, Allied governments cannot be certain that the arch criminal is gone. There are suspicions in high places that his obituary notice is false.

On October 16, 1944 the writer of this column warned: "Hitler may arrange to have the body of a double found badly mauled in a blitzed building, with the thought that the United Nations will be duped into believing that he is dead." Then he will reappear long afterward and try "to foster a sort of 'Bonnie Prince Charlie's legend among German school kids, thus keeping alive the dream of Nazi restoration."

LEMAN

Again on March 31, 1945, the writer urged readers to be on the lookout for Hitler to stage a phony death "as cover for escape. The man who schemed the fake Reichstag fire is capable of any plot to hoodwink the world."

United Nations capitals and correspondents at the front indicate that realists will keep their fingers crossed until they have full proof.

But it is entirely possible that Hitler at last has cashed in his checks and that his Nazi bigwigs rallied Admiral Doenitz because they think that with him, rather than with the notorious Himmler or Goebbels at the head, they can all escape the death sentence—the threat once made against war criminals.

They may assume that the man who ordered the slaughter of helpless men, women and children on the high seas will be considered more leniently by us than one who operated concentration camps.

After the last war the Allies demanded that the Germans turn over for trial Grand Admiral von Tirpitz and Admiral Scheer "for having ordered submarines ruthlessly to sink Allied ships" but this was not done. Commander Patzig, whose U-boat torpedoed a hospital ship without warning and then sank lifeboats containing survivors, was hidden. Others were allowed to flee to Poland.

* * *

KAISER: Doenitz and his high-ranking Nazis may think they can save their necks because now they are the chief executives of the Reich. Similar top men after World War I went scot-free.

Article 227 of the Versailles Treaty charged Emperor William II "with a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties."

The French and British wanted to try him. The American members of the commission of Responsibilities objected. Our representatives declared that "from a moral point of view the emperor is responsible to mankind . . . but from the legal point they were unable to see that the head of a state exercising sovereign rights is responsible to any but those who confided those rights to him by consent, express or implied."

'Frisco Parley Eyes Roots Of Human Life

Conference Studies Economics

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO—There is an acute realization among delegates to the United Nations conference of the economic causes of war and of the necessity of paying greater attention to the solution of economic problems through international organization and cooperation.

STOKES

Consequently much emphasis is being placed upon the proposed Economic and Social council, which will have jurisdiction over removal of trade restrictions as far as possible and the raising of the standard of living generally by all sorts of measures.

For the same general purpose are other adjuncts of the proposed security organization—an International Labor agency, the International Monetary fund, the International bank, the United Nations Food and Agriculture organization.

* * *

Goes Right

It is impossible to over-estimate the importance of these economic agencies if they are constantly alert and active, as planned. They are envisioned as bringing a world-wide cooperative endeavor with an exchange of ideas and information that can be publicized and made effective by public pressure in the various nations.

This carries the proposed organization right down to the lives of the average human being, whatever his country.

* * *

COMMANDER HAROLD STASSEN of the American delegation is taking a particular interest in this phase of the world security organization. He is well equipped from his experience in dealing with social and economic problems at the local level as three times governor of Minnesota.

He emphasizes the tremendous importance of the new organization in terms of the rights of the ordinary human being. He says that unless the organization considers the human being it will fail.

* * *

Amendments Drawn Up

Among amendments submitted by the American delegation is one re-stating the principles of the Atlantic Charter as the ideal to be aimed at in the security organization. Another provides for a review of treaties and arrangements among nations to conform to the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

Under this proposal, sponsored by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), the assembly of the organization in which all nations are represented would operate as an investigating agency for discrimination among nations.

* * *

THERE is still a species of "state rights" recognized here, in that internal affairs of nations are not subject to inquiry—only relations among nations. It is yet too early, obviously, for the world security organization to attain the caliber and functions of a world government that can reach directly down to the ordinary human being no matter in what country he lives. But Commander Stassen and others hope this can be attained gradually through the years—and it will take time. New definitions of international and international affairs will develop.

"The economic problem," he says, "has outstanding importance if we truly wish to avoid war. Some sacrifices will be necessary, some industries in some countries may suffer, but in a short time these apparent damages will be generally compensated by the general wealth, fruit of a system of frank and definite international collaboration.

Selfishness Seat of Trouble

"A peaceful atmosphere among nations is inconceivable as long as there is a desire to monopolize raw materials; as long as attempts are made to isolate markets with protective measures which tend to give fictitious life to industries that by themselves have no reason to subsist.

"The history of the last few years shows us that all those measures to obtain a hypothetical and selfish autarchy, isolate countries to the detriment of others, annul the wealth that is the result of free commerce, and, sooner or later, lead to unsustainable situations which produces an internal catastrophe or an open struggle with other nations."

Todd Becomes Deputy CO Of Eighth AAF

LONDON, May 7. (U.P.)—Brig. Gen. Walter E. Todd, former deputy chief of staff for operations, has replaced Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson as U. S. Eighth air force deputy commander for operations, it was announced last night.

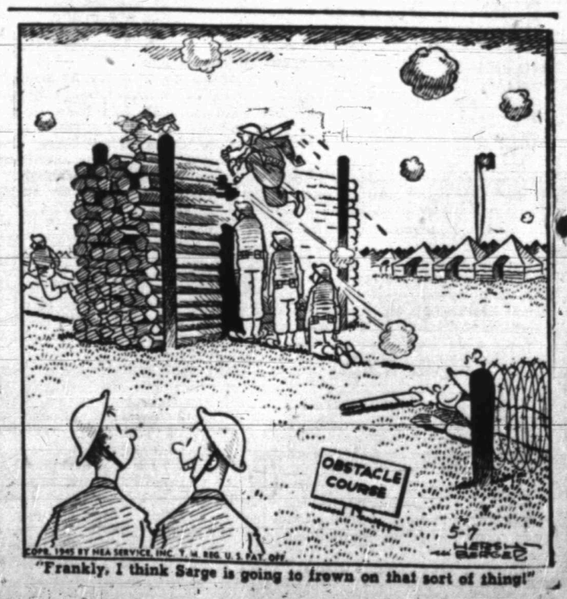

Anderson, who pioneered early balloon ascensions into the stratosphere, has left for an unrevealed assignment described as "important." His wife lives at San Diego, Cal.

Other announced changes in the Eighth Air force operational section included:

Lt. Col. Olin E. Gilbert of Collinsville, Ill., has replaced Col. Frederic Gary, jr., of Abilene, Tex., as director of fighters. Gray has been nominated for an undisclosed assignment elsewhere.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

THANKS FARMERS IN BEHALF of our boys in the armed forces, we wish to thank you for the way you responded to our plea for large clean grade A eggs. Because of your patriotic cooperation, we have been able to get their eggs to them much faster than could have been possible otherwise. We still have many more war department orders to fill, and the government is looking to you to help us meet our increased quotas. If you haven't heard of the way that you can make more money, and still be helping our soldier boys, ask your neighbor, or we will give you the information. Your large clean grade A eggs are still desperately needed. Thanks again. Arthur Lay & Company 100-110 Broadway Under East Underpass Phone 4563

IRRIGATION FARM FOR SALE
CLOSE IN AND A BARGAIN
150 acres of fine land, located about 7½ miles out of Lubbock on pavement. A very fine irrigation well, fair improvements. This is a real investment. All mineral rights go. 68 acres produced 92 bales of cotton in 1944, and the feed crop was equally as good. The owner received over $3,000.00 in rents. Considering the distance from town, the possibilities of oil and the fine land, this is a bargain at $140.00 per acre. Mr. Investor, this is your chance to own a close-in farm.
DUPLEX BARGAIN
7-room duplex, in very fine state of repair. Well located for a home or income. The price is only $10,000.00. See us today.

Hot Senate Bills Sent To House

AUSTIN, May 7. (AP)—Final passage by the Senate today sent to the House three debate-provoking measures as the 49th legislature came to the eve of the constitutionally-suggested day of adjournment.

The Senate revived, then finally passed by a 21 to 7 vote, a bill by Sen. James Stanford of Austin, designed to make the secret ballot more secret.

It also passed and sent to the House a much-debated resolution calling for submission of a constitutional amendment designed to facilitate post-war building projects at the University of Texas and Texas A. and M. college.

Race Discrimination

Also on its way to the House was a bill by Sen. J. Franklin Spears of San Antonio, aimed at making discrimination against persons of Latin-American, Caucasian or Indian extraction, a misdemeanor.

By agreement the House today sent to its state affairs committee for hearing a resolution declaring the legislature in favor of a world federation based on law rather than force.

The decision was made after the noon recess prior to which the House locked in sharp debate on the resolution which was offered by Rep. Jack Love of Fort Worth and others.

Ballot Bill Arguments

Sen. Wardlow Lane of Center, opposing the ballot bill, told the Senate he feared its passage would result only in "encouragement to ballot box stuffing." He said it would permit election judges so inclined to take ballots out behind the barn and burn them.

Stanford retorted that nothing in the bill could be so construed, that all the present safeguards were left intact, and that the purpose of the bill was to stop coercion of voters. "In some sections of this state, people are scared to vote their honest convictions," he said.

The Senate bill is similar to one pending near the top of the House calendar, by Rep. Donald Markle of Galveston. The bill provides that a detchable coupon be affixed to each ballot. On the back of this coupon there shall be a number printed in such position that it appears on the outside of the ballot when the ballot is folded. This number must correspond with the voter's voting number. The coupon is detached and deposited in a separate box, not to be opened. The number shall not appear elsewhere on the ballot.

May Check, Not Scratch

The bill was amended to provide that a voter may indicate his choice by checking instead of scratching names of candidates.

Two proposed constitutional amendments were killed by the House, which refused to print them on minority report. One would have provided for an elective University of Texas board of regents. The other proposed a two-year limitation on tax remissions to counties.

Unarmed Soldier Has Custody Of 350 POW

TEMPLE, May 7. (UP)—A Texas soldier who handled 350 surly German prisoners for an hour without a gun told about it today from his hospital bed at McCloskey General hospital.

He is Pfc. Thomas J. Stelma of Marlin, Tex., and the leg wound which sent him home to a hospital was caused later by artillery fire—and not his German prisoners.

Stelma said he lost his gun and then discovered that, as the last man in an American column, he was alone with the 350 Germans the swift-moving infantry force had taken.

"I sweated it out for a solid hour," he said. "I thought any moment those guys would pounce on me and tear me to pieces. But they didn't notice I had no gun and finally an armed escort showed up."

Marfa Army Air Base Will Be Inactivated

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — Training activities at the Marfa, Tex. Army Air field will be completed on or about May 25.

The office of Rep. Thomason (D-Tex) said today it had been informed by the War department that the field and nearby Fort D. A. Russell, an old cavalry post which has been used for housing and services incident to operation of the flying field, will be put on a temporarily inactive status then, subject to reopening on short notice if military requirements so indicate.

Early Chances For New Nylons Or Autos Slim Despite Fall Of Nazis

Now that A. Hitler & Co., has gone out of business, do you want a new pair of nylons, a new automobile, new tires for the old gas buggy, or possibly some new farm implements?

Well, it looks like you must keep on wanting, according to dealers of scarce commodities here.

The only bright spot in "immediate" relief picture is the lumber situation. Dealers here agree that a big percentage of the building restrictions will be lifted. At least, that was promised by the War Production board recently. Although the armed forces and various government agencies will have priority on building materials of all kinds, they cannot use all likely to become available, which means that what they cannot use will be released for civilian consumption.

Lumber Big Problem

The big problems in the lumber industry, as is most others, are shortage in manpower and trucks and tires. There is an acute shortage of manpower in both forests and mills, but if even a little relief can be obtained, dealers say, much more lumber and materials soon will be available for civilians.

There is no use in planning for a new automobile now. The manufacturers, say Lubbock distributors, will need from eight to 12 months to reconvert their plants to manufacture 1945 cars, since dies and machine tools will have to be manufactured first. Manufacturers have placed orders totaling $50,000,000 for machine tools, but these cannot be supplied now because machine tool manufacturers are still under war contracts. Too, car manufacturers will not resume production of even the 1942 models until he gets the "green light" from the government, for he cannot afford to build automobiles until mass production is possible.

"No" Tires Yet

Tire dealers here answered with an emphatic "No" when asked if allotment of passenger and truck tires would be increased. In fact, they agree, the allotment probably will be lowered.

Reason: Probably no transport equipment will be returned from Europe since transportation there is impaired by bomb-crippled railroads. Most of the transportation needs there will be supplied by Army trucks, dealers say.

So far as textiles are concerned, there will probably be no increase in manufacture of these, department store managers say, because of the increased military demand for textiles in the Pacific war.

Krug Statement Cited

No increase is looked for in the manufacture of other items, such as luggage, shoes, cleansing tissues, etc., merchants say.

A recent statement by J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production board, predicted that U. S. plants will, within one year after the fall of Germany, be producing a substantial amount of all the things civilians have been missing. However, he went on to say that this does not mean that all civilian desires will be met in those 12 months, but it does mean that they can be satisfied to a considerable extent in all fields.

Krug said that despite a slower start toward reconversation than war hoped for, total munitions output will be cut about 35 per cent. This, he said, would permit by the end of 12 months a rate of civilian goods manufacture roughly equal to that of 1939.

Farmers To Get Relief?

Hardware and appliance dealers here believe that it will be at least a year before such items as refrigerators, stoves and radios will be placed on the market to any appreciable extent.

Most farmers are of the opinion that the labor problem is going to be just as bad now as it has been since the entry of the United States into the war. Although many thousands of service men are expected to be released within the next 12 months, it is believed that only a small per cent of them will be from this area and that few of them will be farm laborers. Too, no great let-up is expected in war work and little help in the farm labor situation can be expected as a result.

No New Machinery?

As for farm machinery, no new machinery can be expected. However, there might be some relief in the parts situation and machinery already on the farm may be patched up considerably with the aid of these new parts.

At present no change in crop acreage is anticipated on most farms. Prices of farm products will have more to do with that than anything, farmers agree.

In general the picture doesn't look very bright. But there is something to look forward to—the defeat of the little "Sons of Heaven." Then you can have all those things you have been wanting for lo, these many months.

Details Are Sought On Demobilization

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP) — Torn with dissension over leaks from behind its closed doors, the House military committee sought additional details today on the Army's demobilization plans.

One member said he doubted "if the Army ever again will feel free to talk to us confidentially after what happened last week when all the details of the demobilization program were in the newspapers within a few hours."

Chairman May (D-Ky) said he did not know who was responsible for the leak but that he intended to find out.

The War department told the committee last week of its plans to demobilize 2,000,000 men and to retain 6,968,000 after Germany's defeat.

Clergymen Offered For Bishop Coadjutor

HOUSTON, May 7. (AP)—Six Episcopal clergymen, two from Houston, have been nominated as candidates for bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Texas by the 12 member nominating committee, Rev. J. Lawrence Plumley, rector of St Mark's espicopal church, announced today.

A bishop co-adjutor will be selected by the diocesan council at a special meeting in Christ church May 22.

Rev. Richard S. Watson, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, and Rev. John E. Hines, rector of Christ Episcopal church, were among those nominated from the diocese of Texas.

A. C. Jackson Is Legion Commander

A. C. Jackson of Lubbock was elected American Legion district commander for the next two years at a war conference of district 19 Sunday in Lubbock.

R. B. Grindstaff of Morton was elected vice commander.

A total of 157 members of the American Legion attended the convention, which included a meeting Sunday morning at the Hilton hotel and luncheon at the American Legion hall, followed by business sessions at the hall.

Speakers were Herman Nami of San Antonio, candidate for state commander of the legion; Jack Rhindhart of San Antonio, chairman of the legion committee for state oratorical contests for juveniles; Capt. Norman Snodgrass of Lubbock, who returned from the European theater recently after serving 42 months overseas, and Cpl. Hop Halsey of Lubbock, who is home on furlough after 14 months overseas.

O. K. Woodall of Littlefield, retiring commander for the district, presided.

Powder For Oil Well Use Released Monday

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Faster and safer completion of deep oil wells where high temperatures are encountered in drilling was made possible by the Army's release today of a one-year supply of high-temperature powder.

The explosive is used for the gun-perforating of oil well casing, formerly a standard practice but rendered dangerous and destructive in recent years because of the lack of unsatisfactory powder. Slower methods of well-completion were resorted to.

UAW Urges Plants To Go Back To 40 Hours

DALLAS, May 7. (AP)—To prevent loss of skilled workers and undue unemployment, the United Automobile Workers, CIO, today proposed that war industries cut back to the forty hour week before any workers layoffs due to war contract curtailment.

Russell Letner, Texas director for UAW, said that North American Aviation Inc., already had been requested to go to the forty-hour week to prevent layoff of workers due to the cutback of P-51 Mustang production announced last week.

Warning Issued On Spread Of Typhoid

With five to eight cases of typhoid in Lubbock county, danger of a typhoid epidemic is greater than usual, Dr. W. L. Baugh, county health officer, said Monday afternoon.

Where there are a few cases of typhoid there always is danger of an epidemic during this season of low water levels, the health officer said.

There are two cases in the trailer northwest of the Mackenzie park and should a heavy rain come and wash the germs down into the park site the danger would become greater, he said. Flies are the principal carriers of typhoid and the larger the area of infection, the greater the danger.

The situation is "not alarming" but there is the danger it might spread, said the health officer.

Immunization is about the only precaution that may be taken.

Five Texas Nurses Face Fire On Cebu

WITH THE AMERICAL INFANTRY DIVISION ON CEBU. (AP) — Here's something else for Texans to brag about: of 12 Army nurses who went on the books as the first from their branch of service to face enemy fire on Cebu, five are from the Lone Star state.

The Japs gave the girls a rousing welcome when they reached this island, plopping 20-millimeter shells into their hospital area a scant two hours after they had arrived. No one was hurt.

Lubbock War Widows Have Few Illusions Of What Victory Means To Them; Some See Only Change To Pacific Of Hubbys' APOs

Lubbock war widows—who live alone and don't like it—have no illusions about what Allied victory in Europe means to them, a check with wives revealed.

A few have hopes of seeing their husbands between wars, a smaller per cent think their men may be released from the armed forces, but the majority anticipate nothing more than a change of address if their soldiers are in Europe, no change if they are already in the Pacific.

"As I see it," one of them said, "V-E day means the San Francisco postmaster is going to be a mighty busy man."

Of course, as the girls pointed out, they are glad the European war is over because it will mean the end of sacrifices on that front and will speed the victory in the Pacific, but they are definitely not in the mood for a celebration.

To Hang With Jobs

When complete victory comes, they agree almost to a woman that they intend to go back to their homes—and to hang with all war jobs!

They are tired of replacing men in jobs. They are tired of living out of a mail bag. They are tired of trying to look after their children, their homes and their jobs. They are tired of reading volumes on how to treat the returning veteran.

Grandmother Tired Too

And grandmother is tired, too. On her shoulder, in many cases, has fallen the job of caring for the children while mother works. She figures that is her part of the war work, but she too will be glad when it is all over and she can tend to her own knittin'.

"I'm retiring to the kitchen, baby formulas, Monday washdays, Sunday dinners and all those other things I considered uninteresting before the war," one of the unsung heroes said, which pretty well expresses the opinion of all her sister-sufferers.

V-E day means different things to different peoples and nations, but to the war widow it means little more than an extra yank on her wartime girdle before reporting for work as usual and the beginning of what she hopes is the home stretch!

A gale is a wind of considerable power, stronger than a breeze, but not severe enough to be called a storm.

BETTER THAN SCRATCHING

Yes, don't scratch to try to relieve the itch of minor skin rashes, or chafing. Sprinkle on soothing, cooling, refreshing Mexsana, the kind of medicated powder which contains several ingredients often recommended by specialists for these miseries. Costs little. Even greater savings in the larger sizes. Get Mexsana.
