

Ranchers plea for feed aid

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Two drought-plagued West Texas ranchers, their voices breaking at times, rendered impassioned pleas for emergency feed assistance from the federal government during testimony before a House agriculture subcommittee on Thursday.

Meanwhile, the Senate on Thursday passed an amendment by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that would require the U.S. Department of Agriculture to sell its federal grain surplus at reduced rates.

Bentsen and Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who co-sponsored the amendment which passed by a voice vote, expressed confidence that the House and Senate would soon reach a compromise on essentials of the plan.

The House Agriculture subcommittee on credit and conservation, which held hearings on the drought Thursday, is studying a broader piece of legislation that would require the U.S. Department of Agriculture to implement an emergency feed assistance program.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block now has the authority to initiate such a plan. In testimony, however, USDA officials reiterated that Block opposes the idea.

But Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, and the two ranchers told the House committee that the industry is at the end of the rope. The drought plus the federal PIK program, which has raised grain prices, has made it almost impossible for ranchers to buy feed grains for their cattle.

Duane Lindsey, an Upton County rancher, said he had to "swallow a lot of my personal pride to come here (Washington)."

He added: "We are extremely proud people. We've never asked for anything before. But this (the drought) is like terminal cancer. You see this thing eat on you. It eats and eats and eats. We need help now."

Tommy Owens, also an Upton County rancher, echoed Lindsey's call for emergency feed assistance.

"We have got to have an answer now," Owens said. "This drought didn't start yesterday, fellows. I'll tell you, you go to the auction sales at San Angelo and watch sheep sell for 10 cents a pound that you bought for $1 a pound. . . It's terrible."

The legislation, introduced by Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., and co-sponsored by Loeffler, would permit the following:

- Any rancher or farmer who can document at least a 30 percent production loss as a direct result of a natural disaster would be eligible for emergency assistance — even if his state or county has not been declared a disaster area.

- The secretary of agriculture would provide emergency feed assistance — at 75 percent of the cost of a county loan — for ranchers to maintain their herds.

- If the federal government runs out of surplus grain, it would offer direct payments to ranchers for purchase of privately-owned grain.

The USDA, which last week reduced the interest rates on drought-related loans, opposed the bill, saying it would cost between $1 billion and $1.5 billion.

"In the face of criticism the administration and Congress has already received over the amount of money now spent on farm programs, it is imperative that we

CHURCH PLANS — The Rev. Gordon Bergstrom, left, and Lynn Godsey go over plans for a Spanish-language mission at First Baptist Church in Godley.

Bergstrom and Godsey were concerned over threats that if they insisted on building the mission it would be torn down.

Spanish mission threatened

Minister fears bigotry will hurt congregation

GODLEY — Southern Baptist churches normally thrive in this rolling dairy country, but Lynn Godsey feared bigotry was trying to destroy his small congregation.

On July 30, amid threats that a new Spanish-language mission would be torn down if the First Baptist Church insisted on building it, someone clipped the fences that surrounded the construction site.

The next day in East Texas, a mission pastor, Jose Amaya, was picking up parishioners for a Sunday afternoon service when he was allegedly assaulted by a farmer.

Godsey, a portly seminary graduate whose mother was Mexican-American, said he feared the attacks sprang from a new round of racism, this one aimed at Spanish-speaking clergy and their congregations.

A newspaper publisher in nearby Cleburne called on the tiny community "to put the 'God' back in Godley."

"Apparently people don't think we have the right to worship," said Godsey. "We've been here for years working, worshipping God and minding our business and now we're being persecuted."

Rumors about the mission still circulate around Godley among disgruntled residents, certain that the church will become a sanctuary for undocumented workers.

But Godsey, and members of First Baptist, pressed forward with their plans to build the new church and a record 100 people attend a Spanish-language service after the vandalism.

"If these people think they'll scare us off, they're wrong," Godsey said.

The threats have subsided, and Saturday about 40 volunteers, many members of churches in nearby Fort Worth, are expected to help frame the small sanctuary which will be the site of the community's annual Thanksgiving service.

The situation "seems to have smoothed out a bit," Godsey said. See CHURCH, page 2A

'Lost Generation' child retraces path of her celebrated parents

PARIS (AP) — Her name appears in dozens of memoirs and biographies about the Lost Generation of American expatriates in the Paris of the 1920s — a minor character in the tow of her celebrated parents at play with some of the century's artistic giants.

Frances Scott "Scotty" Fitzgerald Smith, the only child of author F. Scott Fitzgerald and his tragically troubled wife, Zelda, returned to Paris this week to retrace some of the dancing, swirling and staggering steps her parents took during their years of self-imposed exile in France.

Fitzgerald and his wife were the golden couple of the 1920s. They were married in April 1920, one month after Fitzgerald's first novel, "This Side of Paradise," was published. He was 23; she was only 19. Europe was a natural attraction.

"It was a constant merry-go-round for them," Mrs. Smith said during a break in the filming of a television documentary on her father. "He devoted six or seven years of his life, from about 1924 to 1931, to having a good time in Paris."

Mrs. Smith was only 10 when her parents' European adventures ended. She is 61 now, although for many Fitzgerald fans she remains a frozen image in faded snapshots, wearing a pageboy haircut on a Riviera beach in the company of Pablo Picasso and the glamorous Gerald and Sara Murphy.

But she has spent years thinking about, reading about and writing about her parents, who symbolized for many the roller coaster that began as the Jazz Age and ended in the Depression.

Mrs. Smith has been back to Paris eight times to visit the apartments where they lived and the parks in which she played as a girl. And she now believes the Paris of the 1920s was a "glamorous party" that kept her father from leaving a larger literary legacy and contributed to his early death.

"My father wrote a few short stories just to keep the family alive — some of them good, some not so good — and he kept talking about the novel he was writing without doing much writing," Mrs. Smith said. "His greatest problem was all the distractions in Paris."

"But before we judge him too harshly, you have to remember that Paris in those days was the artistic and intellectual capital of the world. Everybody was here: Hemingway, Jean Cocteau, Josephine Baker and Picasso. Edith Wharton and Gertrude Stein were here. It was almost impossible to resist an invitation," she said.

"But overall, I think Paris was a mixed blessing," she added. "Without Paris, or France at least, he never would have written 'Tender is the Night.' But I think if he had stayed in the United States, he might have written more, wouldn't have worn himself out so much and wouldn't have died so young."

Fitzgerald died in 1940 at the age of 44 while working on his final novel, "The Last Tycoon," and surviving as a Hollywood script writer. Virtually all of his work, including his masterpiece, "The Great Gatsby," was out of print.

He had stopped drinking alcohol by then, becoming a soft drink addict in the process. But the years of heavy drinking had taken an enormous physical toll.

Her mother, confined to a hospital in Asheville, N.C., died eight years later when a fire swept the facility. See SCOTTY, page 2A

Roving rains bypass area

From staff and wire reports
A band of thunderstorms which brought high winds and driving rain to much of Northwest Texas Thursday evening missed the Big Spring area which remained dry as the precipitation moved off to the north and east.

The U.S. Big Spring Field Station said no rain had fallen in the last 24 hours. The overnight low here was 68.

Over 100 homes were damaged and electrical power was knocked out when high winds hit the Aspermont area north of Abilene about 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Winds approaching 45 mph struck Lubbock yesterday morning, smashing windows at a local shopping center.

Jayton in Kent County and Stamford in Jones County each received 1½ inches of rain.

The National Weather Service said the heaviest rainstorm activity occurred 25 miles northeast of Lamesa and 20 north of Snyder.

The forecast for the Big Spring area called for a slight chance of rain through Saturday. Gusty winds also were expected.

A heavy thunderstorm rumbled through Hamilton in North Central Texas early today, knocking out power and producing golf ball-size hail.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered across the rest of the state after developing north of a weak warm front that stretched from Houston to Big Spring.

Visibility was reduced to less than a quarter of a mile in Amarillo as a dense fog blanketed areas of the Panhandle.

The rest of North Texas and South Central Texas had mostly cloudy skies. Fair to partly cloudy skies prevailed elsewhere.

Temperatures ranged from the upper 50s over the Panhandle to the mid 70s in the lower Rio Grande Valley. At 4 a.m., Amarillo reported the state's chilliest reading at 59 degrees.

Unemployment rate jumps up

Economy outlook 'rosy'

DALLAS (AP) — Although the state's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate jumped 1.2 percent in September to 8.5 percent, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said Texans still have a "rosy outlook" on the state economy.

The September rates were higher than the 7.3 percent August figure, but lower than the peak of 9 percent last March. The latest rate represents about 659,000 Texans out of work in a state labor force of about 7.7 million.

More than half the increase in unemployment is the result of the "re-entrance into the labor force" of people who have not worked for a month or more, said Nic Santangelo, chief of economic analysis for the Department of Labor's Southwest region.

"Based on a nice picture of economic recovery over the last few months, we are optimistic," he said. See UNEMPLOYMENT, page 2A

Johnston faces other charge

Sammy B. Johnston, 19, of 2107 Runnels was transferred yesterday to the Terry County Sheriff's Department in connection with a theft charge.

Johnston also was sentenced yesterday in 118th District Court to 30 years imprisonment for the attempted murder of James Bruce Walker, 19, of 907 W. Second, and Ira Hopper, 18, of Abilene. Judge Jim Gregg handed down a 20-year sentence for the Walker shooting and a 10-year prison term for the shooting of Hopper. The terms will run concurrently.

Sheriff's reports also contained the following:
 • Eric Etnire, 30, of New Mexico, who was arrested in April for aggravated robbery and stealing a car, was transferred to Rusk State Hospital on a district court order. Etnire was found incompetent to stand trial during pre-trial hearings, according to sheriff's reports.

• Aurora R. Collins, 23, of 609 George was released on $1,500 bond after being arraigned before Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

• John J. Duant, 35, of 720 1/2 W. Fifth was released on $1,500 bond after being charged before Daratt on suspicion of auto burglary.

Israel tour rescheduled

Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, has announced that his Holy Land Tour has been rescheduled for March 21-29, 1984.

The tour originally had been scheduled for October but was postponed due to the political situation in Israel.

"Now that there is no political disturbance in the Mideast, all systems are go," Patrick said.

The all-Israel tour will include stops at Bethlehem, Jerusalem, Jericho, the Sea of Galilee, Masada, the Dead Sea and the Garden of Gethsemane. Patrick and his wife will be tour hosts.

Cost is $1,895 round trip from New York. Persons who sign up within the next two weeks will get a special $100 round trip fare from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to New York.

Patrick said the tour is "five-stars deluxe. Everything from flight to hotel to meals to guides is included." Interested persons should call the church at 267-8223 or 263-3661.

Holiday Inn unveils new look

To show Big Spring it is "keeping up with the times," the management of the local Holiday Inn Thursday evening unveiled the completion of a $300,000, year-long remodeling project.

The 20-year-old motel, located on East U.S. Highway 80, is owned by the Brock Hotel Corp. of Dallas.

In addition to a facelift for several guest rooms, the remodeling project included refurbishments for the lounge, restaurant, lobby and banquet room.

Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres were served to a crowd of Big Spring guests who were entertained poolside by a jazz trio.

"We decided to throw this little party so the community can take pride in Holiday Inn," said Michael Durkin of Dallas, regional director for Brock. "We wanted to show Big Spring we're keeping up with the times."

The interior remodeling, constructed in part by Big Spring contractors, is the first phase in the corporation's long-range plans for the motel, Durkin said.

Extensive remodeling also is planned for the Holiday Inn Apartments, located adjacent to the motel, and the motel's pool area may be enclosed in a "Holidome" complex in a few years, he said.

The Brock Hotel Corp. is the largest franchiser of Holiday Inn motels, Durkin said. The corporation also owns Showbiz Pizza restaurants and the Park Suite Hotel.

Unemployment

 months, more people have come back looking for work," he said, adding that this group did not include so-called "discouraged workers."

A large group of the new unemployed are "voluntary job leavers," people who have left their jobs because they "perceive that getting another job is easier," Santangelo said.

"In a period of recession, the voluntary job leaver figure is about zero. People are scared if they leave their jobs they won't be able to find another one. There is kind of a rosy outlook on the part of people as they perceive the economy," he said.

The national unemployment figures for September indicate that the rosy view may be somewhat justified. Unemployment declined from 9.5 percent in August to 9.3 percent in September, translating into about 10.4 million Americans out of work in a total civilian labor force of about 112 million.

Much of the improvement came in the manufacturing sector, the auto industry, the construction industry and in the electronics and electrical industry, which improved by 275,000 jobs.

National unemployment peaked at 10.8 percent last December. In Texas, the peak was hit in March at 9 percent.

Santangelo said Texas' economy generally lags behind the national economy by three or four months. He predicted the state unemployment picture will improve in the coming months.

"We still have two very severe stumbling blocks to recovery in Texas, the oil industry — which may be starting to turn around a bit — and the peso devaluation, which is still a drag to the border counties."

He said the corridor from Dallas through Austin, San Antonio and Bryan-College Station continues to be the strongest economic sector of the state.

"I'd like to be optimistic, and I think we have every reason to be," Santangelo said. "The recent jump in unemployment isn't indicative of the general state of the economy. The long-term change from March to the present indicates we're on track for a modest recovery."

Zelda's worsening emotional health was one of the reasons the Fitzgeralds finally packed up and left Europe for the United States in the early 1930s.

Mrs. Smith returned to Paris last week to do some on-location interviews for a one-hour documentary for the Public Broadcasting Service. The film is one in a series on Fitzgerald, Hemingway and Thomas Wolfe by The Film Company, a non-profit, Washington-based production company.

Sitting at the bar of the Auberge du Centre, which was called Le Dingo in the 1920s, she described how the celebrated but insecure author of "This Side of Paradise" first met the confident young author of "The Sun Also Rises."

"When my father met Hemingway he was so thunderstruck, so in awe of Hemingway, that he proceeded to start drinking and exited in some disgrace," she said.

"He was much better known than Hemingway at the time, but he was star struck, which says something about my father."

whole lot," says the Rev. Gordon Bergstrom, pastor of First Baptist. "It's a minor irritation, not really confrontation."

Angers had begun simmering this summer in Godley, population 612, after Roy Carrell, a dairy farmer and First Baptist deacon, donated two acres of his land to the church on which to build the Spanish-language mission.

Residents near the church site, located about a mile northwest of town, submitted a petition to Johnson County Judge Tommy Altaras demanding that the project be stopped and claiming the church would really be a sanctuary for illegal aliens.

Altaras acknowledged that there was nothing the county could do. But rumors of further vandalism persisted for a while.

"I moved to the country for the peace and quiet," said Nan Grimsley, whose home is several hundred feet toward town from the church site. "I feel that they definitely need a place of fellowship, but I think they should be where they're wanted."

Mrs. Grimsley said she was resigned to the fact that the mission would be built but convinced that illegal aliens would flock there.

"I haven't heard anybody say they wanted it next to them," she said.

Bergstrom says the church and mission members "didn't do a good job of letting people know that we were here."

The Spanish-language program began 3 1/2 years ago when the church took a survey and found that at least 300 people of Mexican descent along with a few Cubans and Salvadorans lived in the area.

Godsey, then a student at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, took over the mission, which eventually hopes to become an autonomous church when its membership and contributions increase.

The 90 people who now attend the Spanish services squeeze into a Sunday-school room at First Baptist. They were using the civic center, but left when the city tripled the rent after complaints the mission members weren't keeping the building clean.

Carrell then offered a corner of his farm for a new church, and later began receiving threats aimed at the church.

"They just don't want illegals here," he said. "We can't help that. They're already here. They come here to work. They don't come here to rape and steal."

A few rumors about the church still persist. One has it that the plumbing roughed in at one of end the slab poured recently for the church is for a washer and dryer — further proof that the church will become a sanctuary, says Bergstrom. The plumbing is actually for the church baptistry.

Publicity about the vandalism brought letters of support from across the state, and Bergstrom says the mission members can even thank its opponents.

"I hate to encourage them more or antagonize them, but they did us more good in the long run than they did harm," Bergstrom says.

Actor to try directing

ROME — Actor John Travolta has made a name for himself by stepping out in front of the camera. Now he says he'll duck behind it to do some directing — including calling the shots on his former director, "Rocky" star Sylvester Stallone.

"Within two years, I'll be doing the directing and direct Sylvester Stallone," the 29-year-old star of "Staying Alive" and "Saturday Night Fever" told a news conference here Thursday.

Travolta is in Rome to promote "Staying Alive," which was directed by Stallone. In the sequel to "Saturday Night Fever," Travolta is featured as an aspiring professional dancer.

CYBILL SHEPHERD ...living in fast lane

Actress in the fast lane

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Cybill Shepherd, star of films including "The Last Picture Show" and the new TV series "The Yellow Rose," says she's learning how to drive fast "just for fun."

But the 33-year-old actress, who recently completed a three-day course in race driving at the Riverside International Raceway, says she's not yet ready to gun around a racetrack at 100 mph with the likes of other celebrity drivers like Burt Reynolds.

The course in race driving, "makes you a much better driver on the streets," she said.

The actress noted that sitting behind the wheel of a low-slung machine traveling at 100 mph can be an eye-opening experience for any freeway flyer.

"So many people out on the road are pretending they're racing," she said. "I think if people took it (the course) they probably would drive a lot slower."

Democrats are 'sexier'

ATLANTA — Ted Mondale, the son of Democratic presidential hopeful Walter Mondale, has a simple formula for beating the Republicans in the 1984 presidential contest.

His advice: just get out the vote, because there are more Democrats.

Mondale, 26, also told a political science class at Georgia State University on Tuesday that "Democrats are sexier than Republicans and have more children."

He predicted that either his father or Sen. John Glenn of Ohio will be the Democratic nominee.

Duke gets honorary degree

BANGKOK, Thailand — Britain's Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, is traveling to Bangkok to pick up an honorary degree in forestry.

The 62-year-old prince will be arriving Wednesday on a three-day visit as a guest of King Bhumipol Adulyadej, an official of the royal household said Thursday.

During his stay the prince, president of the World Wildlife Fund International, will call on King Bhumipol and Queen Sirikit at Chitralada Palace and receive an honorary degree in forestry from Kasetsart University.

He also will help the fund's newly formed local chapter with a fund-raising drive which is to include a royal gala dinner which he and Queen Sirikit will attend.

Eccentric inventor dead

EVERETT, Mass. — He was an eccentric inventor with a reputation for fussiness and generosity, and an idea for molded plastic dishes that elevated in-home sales to a new national pastime — the Tupperware party.

But the brains behind the multimillion-dollar Tupperware empire — Earl S. Tupper, who died this week at age 76 — was more interested in the factory where his plastic containers were made than in the living rooms where they were sold, according to those who knew him when he launched his now-famous housewares from a small Massachusetts town.

"He was the fussiest man you ever saw," said Tom Damigella of Everett, who has distributed Tupperware for 40 years. "But he didn't care a thing about promotion."

"He told the management at one time that under no circumstances would he appear before anyone at a meeting. And he never did."

"He was an oddball, a hermit." Tupper, who sold his profitable business to Rexall Drug Corp. in 1958, was remembered by former employees and friends following his death Monday in Costa Rica, where he had lived for 10 years.

Watt described 'in anguish'

WASHINGTON — A longtime friend of James Watt says the embattled interior secretary is "in anguish" as he hears calls for his resignation from senators he once counted as allies. But Sen. Alan K. Simpson says Watt is still undecided about whether to resign.

"He talked about how it was tough; how he was hurt by some of the comments of senators he had thought to be his allies who really hammered him," Simpson said Thursday night.

Watt has been under fire for the last two weeks after describing a coal advisory panel as "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple." Watt's chances of holding onto his job lessened Tuesday after Senate Republican leaders emerged from a closed-door caucus with the bleak assessment that support for Watt had seriously eroded and a no-confidence vote was likely to pass the Senate by a wide margin.

Watt struggles with a decision on his future in California, names were beginning to surface in Washington on a possible replacement. The speculation centered on Watt's chief deputy — Joseph Jacob Simmons III, a black Democrat who is part Indian, and Clifford P. Hansen, a former Republican senator from Wyoming.

Simpson, a Wyoming Republican and friend of Watt's for more than 20 years, had a long telephone conversation with Watt before the interior secretary left Wednesday on a vacation with his wife in California. "I was listening to an old friend who was in anguish," Simpson recalled.

"We talked about how it was tough; how he was hurt by some of the comments of senators he had thought to be his allies who really hammered him," Simpson said Thursday night.

Pilot says CIA involved

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — A captured rebel pilot says CIA officers are directing anti-government attacks from Honduran bases, prompting Nicaragua to protest the "generous assistance" provided to the rebels by Washington.

Nicaragua's deputy foreign minister, Nora Astorga, Thursday presented the downed pilot, former National Guard Maj. Roberto Amador Narvaez, as "proof of the growing involvement of the CIA" in rebel attacks on targets in the leftist-ruled country.

The Honduran-based rebels, meanwhile, said they mined the coast off Nicaragua's only oil unloading port and threatened to blow up any approaching oil tanker.

Also in Honduras, police said Nicaraguan troops attacked the border town of Las Dificultades and killed a civilian, the latest in a series of border incidents that has strained relations between the neighboring nations.

And in El Salvador, an army spokesman said Thursday that U.S.-trained troops trapped a guerrilla column in an abandoned resort and killed 157 of them. He said troops surprised the rebels Tuesday at Amapulapa, 40 miles east of San Salvador.

Jobless rate declines

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate declined to 9.3 percent in September, the lowest level in 17 months, as close to 400,000 jobless Americans found work in the continuing economic recovery, the Labor Department reported today.

However, 10.4 million Americans were still reported to be looking for jobs but unable to find them, the Labor Department reported.

September's decrease in the overall jobless rate was just 0.2 percentage point from the August level of 9.5 percent. But it restored the downward trend that had been interrupted when August's rate held steady at the same rate as in July.

Unemployment had declined in most months since last December's 10.8 percent, the highest level in 42 years.

Both government and private analysts have said they expect the rate to continue declining, with companies calling back laid-off workers or hiring people for newly created jobs as the economy expands in its recovery from the 1981-82 recession. But those analysts have also said the improvement is likely to be slow.

Today's report said total U.S. civilian employment climbed to a record 101.9 million in September, up 382,000 from August. At the same time, the labor force of people holding or wanting jobs increased by 107,000 to 112.4 million.

Britons shrug off affair

LONDON — Britons, used to the piccadilloes of their politicians since Lord Palmerston's bedroom romps in Queen Victoria's reign, are shrugging off a Cabinet member's confession he had an affair with his secretary and she is expecting his child.

The scandal involving Trade Minister Cecil Parkinson shows no sign of weakening the government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, but it is likely to end the political stardom of the Conservatives' disgraced "Mr. Clean."

The urbane Parkinson, 52, who masterminded Mrs. Thatcher's landslide re-election victory last June, had been widely mentioned as a future Conservative Party leader.

Mrs. Thatcher and other leading Conservatives have declined comment on the episode.

Parkinson admitted in a statement Wednesday that he'd had a long affair with his former secretary, Sara Keays, 36, and had promised to marry her, but has since returned to his wife and three daughters.

He braved a crowd of reporters and photographers Thursday to attend a Cabinet meeting and work at his desk in the Trade Ministry.

With his pale-faced wife Ann at his side, he told reporters outside his London home: "We'll get over it."

But the mass-circulation Sun tabloid asked: "Will he be able to last out the week?"

Hopefuls appear together

NEW YORK — John Genn said he was tired of being called a "celluloid candidate" and Gary Hart said straw polls bore voters, as the seven announced Democratic presidential contenders appeared together for the first time in the 1984 campaign season.

All seven, addressing 2,000 people at New York City's Town Hall Thursday night, accused President Reagan of running the economy into the ground and, with good-humored swipes at each other, sought to spell out their strategies for nuclear arms reduction.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale, the front-runner in most polls, declared himself the best qualified potential president in "modern history." George McGovern, the Democratic nominee in 1972, accused the administration of "closing its eyes" to human rights violations abroad.

To loud applause, Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina blasted the press for "a tremendous disservice" in narrowing its coverage to the purported front-runners — "an astronaut and a vice president that have name recognition" — to the detriment of the issues.

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew said he was proud to be "the different Democrat." California Sen. Alan Cranston suggested the president and the "top Soviet should meet and start from scratch" and concluded, "If we blow ourselves up in a nuclear holocaust, those other issues won't matter."

The applause was long when Glenn, the former astronaut who became a U.S. senator from Ohio, referred to Reagan's movie career and a newspaper's description of himself as a "celluloid candidate."

"I wasn't doing 'Hellcats of the Navy' on a movie lot when I went through 149 (fighter) missions. ... And when I was on top of that booster down there getting ready to go it wasn't 'Star Trek.' ... It was representing the future of this country."

Reagan accuses Demos

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — President Reagan today accused Democrats of sabotaging a balanced budget and promised to reduce deficits by "handcuffing the big spenders."

With his political rhetoric growing stronger as the 1984 campaign season draws closer, Reagan charged, "It is their profligacy, not our economic recovery program, that is the source of federal red ink."

But in a speech prepared for the Louisville convention of the National Federation of Republican Women, Reagan pledged to "continue the lonely battle to restrain spending."

Thunderstorms reported

Large hail and strong winds punished parts of Texas today, accompanied by thunderstorms that also doused southern California and portions of Florida and the upper Midwest.

A warm front helped produce the hail and winds that left some damage in central and southern Texas this morning, the National Weather Service said. Thunderstorms were also reported in the northeastern quarter of Texas and parts of Oklahoma.

Showers and thunderstorms spread northeast from a tropical depression in the Pacific Ocean, threatening more heavy rain for Arizona.

More rain was expected over southern California, with cloudiness and showers stretching across northern Wyoming and southern Idaho.

There were showers over Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin — and rain was forecast across the upper Great Lakes region and upper Mississippi Valley.

Most of the rest of the nation saw sunny skies. Texas' Rio Grande Valley was expecting temperatures in the low 90s, while readings in the 50s were forecast from Montana to the northern half of Michigan and across northern Maine.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 34 in Missoula, Mont., to 79 at Corpus Christi, Texas and Homestead, Fla.

Government gets tough

The federal government is about to get tough with 600,000 persons who owe it money.

Starting Nov. 1, it will turn over to private credit bureaus the names of those who have not made some agreement to pay off their delinquent government loans, which total $44.3 billion.

The new system will make the debtors sit up and take notice — and, we hope, make arrangements to get square with the government. Not only will the system make it tough for them to get credit from stores, banks and finance companies in the private sector, it will give all government offices, for the first time, a means of checking credit.

Now, the government has no credit information center of its own. If someone refuses to pay off a federal student loan, for instance, and applies for a government housing loan, there's a good chance the application will be accepted.

The new system is a step in the right direction. If the government can pick up $44 billion here and $44 billion there, who knows, maybe it can make some payments on its own national debt of $1.4 trillion.

Around the Rim

Battered kids

Before coming to Big Spring I did an article on domestic violence which featured an interview with a woman who spent three years as a battered wife. Some sections of my story were a bit graphic, the lead detailed the first time she was beaten, and my editor at that time was a little concerned that it might be a touchy subject.

She was right. It was a touchy subject which needed to be handled delicately. But it was also appalling and horrifying.

Domestic violence needs to be written about. It exists everywhere, even in Big Spring.

In the first six months of this year the police responded to an average of 60 incidents a month. Most are settled by the officers, however, a few women will press charges. In these few cases the charges are dropped nine out of ten times.

A related aspect of domestic violence is child abuse.

Nobody wants to think about child abuse, but what happens to these kids is an unspeakable horror that needs to be discussed.

From September of 1981 until August 31, 1982 there were 87,972 cases of child abuse or neglect in Texas with 118 deaths. And that only includes reported cases.

We need to become aware of how great the tragedy is. A couple of years ago Pat Benatar came out with a song called "Hell Is For Children" and some of the more "proper" among us criticized the song because of the title and its connotations.

Some of the lyrics from this supposedly vile song are "its all so confusing, this brutal abusing. They blacken your eyes and then apologize. Be a good girl, and don't tell momma a thing. Be a good boy and you'll get a new toy, tell grandma you fell off the swing."

Instead of listening to the lyrics and getting mad at the problem, people took the title as insulting Christianity. All I know is that if child abuse isn't a form of hell, then nothing is.

Ms. Benatar cared, and more of us should follow that example instead of hiding from the problem. Community awareness is the only way that these problems can be defeated. Hiding our heads in the sand solves nothing.

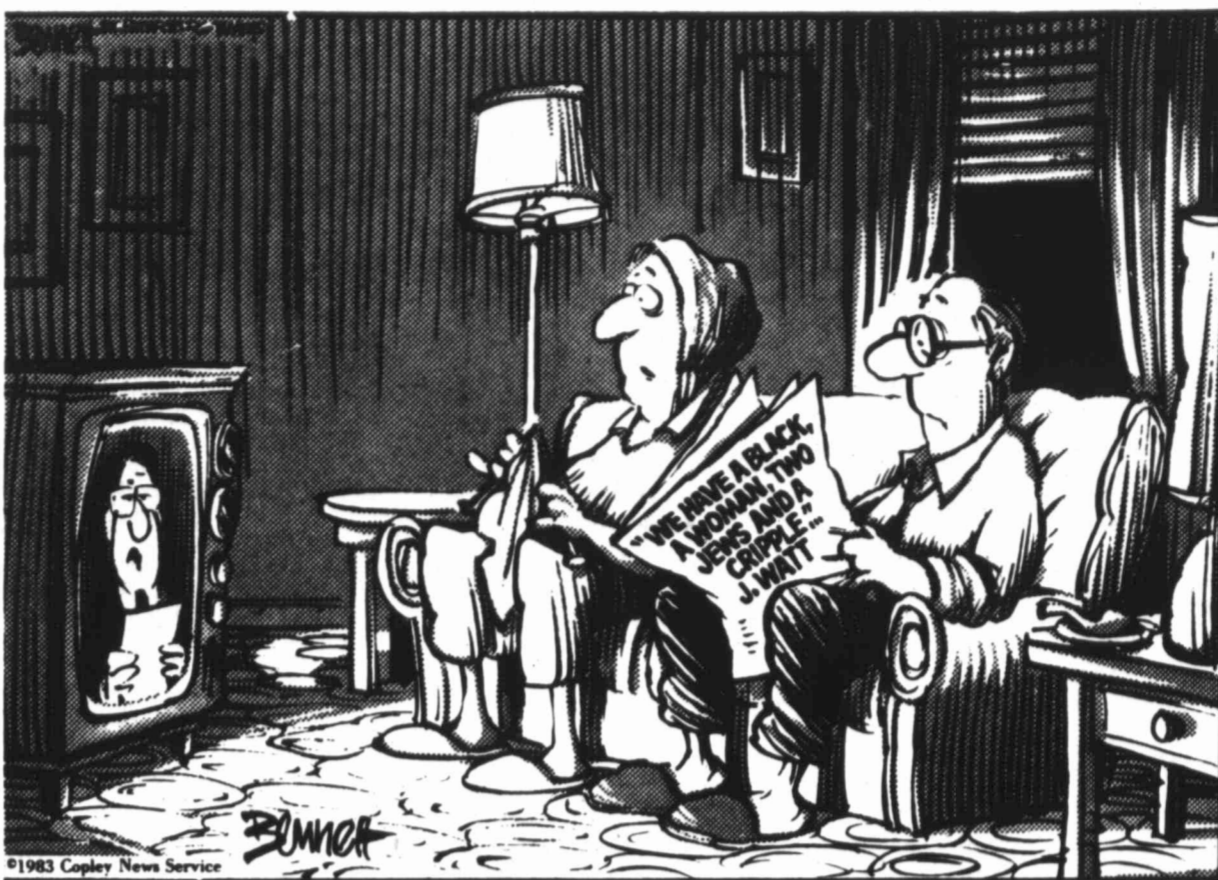

We need to bring family violence into the open and out of the homes, which become prisons for those in anguish.

By not talking about them, by ignoring them and by denying the existence of the problems we add to the injustice of the crimes. The victims feel they have no place to go, they feel alienated from people and many of them suffer such psychological damage from the assaults that they end up thinking they deserved it.

Also, it has been proven that domestic violence is passed on from generations. An abused child, unless helped, will probably become an abuser.

Recent FBI statistics indicate that domestic violence is the most unreported crime in America and that one in every two couples experience at least one incident of domestic violence.

We need to reverse our thinking. We need to get indignant about the criminals and not the victims. We need effective laws and courts that are not afraid to enforce them. But more than anything else, we need to care and provide a society that is sympathetic to the victims of these atrocities.

... And the President's decision to support Secretary Watt, according to White House sources, was reached with the help of his political advisers: a fat man, a short guy, two bald men and a moron.

No joy at the Yacht Club

I was invited to the New York Yacht Club for lunch the other day by Wellington Spinnaker III.

Since I hadn't been there before, I didn't know what to expect. The lobby was all decorated in black crepe and grown men were sitting in overstuffed chairs, wiping tears from their eyes.

"They seem to be taking the America's Cup loss pretty hard," I said.

"Wouldn't you if you had lost something that was in the family for 132 years?" Wellington said bitterly.

"It's just a little old cup. Why doesn't the club order a new one from Tiffany's to put in the glass case?" I said.

"You apparently don't appreciate the significance of the Australian victory. It means America no longer rules the waves."

"It could have been worse. The Russians could have won it. At least Australia is a stalwart ally."

"Not in this club, she isn't," said Wellington. "The New York Yacht Club members may forget, but they never forgive."

"Oh, for heaven's sakes," I told him. "It was just another sailboat race. I'm not much of a sailor but I figure as long as you have a good wind at your back and a case of beer, it doesn't matter who crosses the line first."

"Would you keep your voice down," Wellington muttered. "Many of our members are armed."

"I'm sorry. I didn't know the America's Cup meant so much to the club. Tell me, why didn't the Liberty use her motor when she saw she was going to lose the final race?"

"The Liberty doesn't have a motor, stupid," Wellington whispered in a harsh voice.

"Well, that's rather dumb, isn't it? How did they expect to beat the Aussies without a motor?"

"Look, would you do me a favor and shut up if you don't know what you're talking about?" Wellington said.

"I may not know much about sailing," I said. "But I do know that if you put a shroud over your keel when you're in port, you always have a better chance of winning a race. Why didn't you people put a shroud over your keel?"

"Because we had nothing to hide. They double-crossed us by having a winged keel, but they didn't want us to see it. I never trusted the Aussies since Pearl Harbor," Wellington huffed.

"They say the koala bear is really a dirty little animal," I said, hoping to cheer him up.

Suddenly an old man in an overstuffed chair got up, took a silverplated pistol out of his pocket and shouted, "I have nothing to live for any more!"

Two of the younger members grabbed him. "Easy, Josiah, we still haven't heard from the protest committee."

Josiah sat back in his chair and sobbed. "We had them three to one. They stole our wind."

"I guess you people aren't too happy about the ballast decision either."

Wellington said, "This club will never be the same again. We'll be fighting amongst ourselves for the rest of our lives."

"It must be a terrible thing to live with," I told him. "But there's always a next time, and I'm sure you people will come up with a better keel by then."

"But in the meantime the Aussies have OUR cup," Wellington said.

A member came up. "Did you hear about Tippy Vanderslip?" he said to Wellington.

"What happened?"

"He went up to the Bronx Zoo with his shotgun and tried to bag a kangaroo."

"Poor Tippy. The last time I talked to him he wanted me to go with him and throw a brick through the plate glass window of Qantas Airlines," Wellington said.

The waiter came over to take our order.

"How's the flounder?" I asked Wellington.

He didn't laugh.

Watt's policies remain unchanged

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary James Watt has been keeping in his bunker, his head 1 inch below the purge line, to avoid the political backfire from his latest gaffe.

But he has lost none of his enthusiasm for assaulting nature. He is occupied with the conquest of the wilderness, not its prevention.

Watt's bulldozers are not only threatening irreplaceable wildlife refuges in this country, but they're on a collision course with Canadian interests as well. Egged on by North Dakota politicians out to please their rural constituency, Watt has quietly awarded the first contract for an irrigation project known as the Garrison Diversion Unit. Phase I involves construction of most of the components.

What is planned is a massive network of dams, reservoirs and canals that will move Missouri River water from western North Dakota to the north central part of the state. This would irrigate farmland near the Canadian border.

The project is of questionable economic value, to put it charitably: At a cost of $1.2 billion, Garrison will irrigate 1,200 farms at most. That's an average cost of $1 million per farm.

Its boondoggle aspect aside, Garrison has created a storm of protest from Canada. Manitoba's multimillion-dollar fishing industry faces irreversible damage from the introduction of alien Missouri River fish species and parasites into Canadian waterways.

To assuage the Canadian's wrath, the Interior Department has decided to pare down the 250,000-acre project that was originally planned. But Canadian officials suspect that political pressure will force construction and use of the whole irrigation maze, with its harmful impact on Canadian rivers.

Internal documents seen by my associates Corky Johnson and Donald Goldberg indicate that the Garrison boondoggle will have a drastic impact on the environment. In its entirety, it would destroy 130,000 acres of wetlands and grasslands that provide food and shelter to perhaps a half-million waterfowl and marsh birds each year.

Interior officials maintain they will "mitigate" any loss of acreage, in part by a cockamamie scheme to create new wetlands by pumping water onto prairie grasslands. In fact, in their latest environmental impact statement, officials claim that the Garrison project will "add quality and quantity to the habitat base."

But internal department memos, intended for official eyes only, show that Watt's ditch-diggers have blatantly manipulated or ignored scientific data supplied by the team of biologists assigned to the Garrison project.

One Garrison scientist complained that the model used to obtain environmental impact data contained

"bogus" information. While the numbers in the resulting evaluation added up, he wrote, "the biology behind them is extremely suspect."

Another memo said the Garrison biological assessment was "two steps removed from reality." Still another biologist wrote that officials' claims of a net gain for wildlife were "ludicrous." All three biologists signed a report complaining that the department's "mitigation" plan was based on data that they hadn't even seen nor approved. Interior Department sources said it is commonplace for scientific information to be "laundered" or manipulated to political needs.

A memo written by an aide to North Dakota Gov. Allen Olson indirectly alluded to the political reality of the Garrison project, saying: "I had a very skeptical feeling that we were still going to be sand bagged unless we somehow methodically controlled the technical exercise associated with developing the final mitigation plan ... and am convinced that we have to dominate this process."

The North Dakota governor has a powerful ally in Washington. Watt sent a letter to Olson confirming the go-ahead on Garrison even before the mitigation plan was completed. At the end, Watt scribbled a personal note: "A staff-prepared letter — if not OK, call me. Jim."

Billy Graham

Children are neglecting Mom

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know we are supposed to love other people, but it is hard for me not to be angry at my husband's brother and sister. His mother is quite elderly and lives with us because she has a lot of health problems. But they never come to visit her or offer to help in any way. We can afford to care for her, but in principle I think they ought to be more thoughtful, don't you? — Mrs. D.A.

DEAR MRS. D.A.: Yes, they should be more thoughtful. After all, when they were children she took care of them for many years, and it is sad that they do not do more to express gratitude for all she did for them. Some day they also will probably be elderly and less able to take care of themselves. How will they feel when their children — who are undoubtedly observing them and noting the way they treat their mother — pay no attention to them in their time of need?

The Bible says much about our responsibility toward our parents. One of the Ten Commandments declares, "Honor your father and your mother" (Exodus 20:12). The Bible also states, "If anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for his immediate family, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever" (1 Timothy 5:8).

This kind of thoughtlessness and ingratitude points to a spiritual issue. When we are selfish and treat others selfishly, it indicates that we have not allowed God's love to touch us and control us. When we have no regard for our parents, it is a sign that we also have no regard for God, our heavenly Father. Pray for your relatives, not only that they will show more love for others but that they will come to know Christ and experience his love and forgiveness.

Violence is taken too lightly

Dear Editor, As a concerned citizen I am outraged at the way murder and attempted murder is taken so lightly here in Big Spring.

We have been laughed at by Paul Harvey, and he publicly announced that if you want to commit murder you should go to Big Spring to do so, and all you would get for it would be a slap on the hand. This is a sad fact, but it appears to be a true one.

I have many questions about our last case of attempted murder by one Sammy B. Johnston.

First, why was the charge of aggravated assault in another shooting incident that occurred in May against Johnston put off until October, and then dropped?

Second, why would our courts allow Johnston to plead guilty to attempted murder only four days after he shot two boys that are still in the hospital, one of whom is in very critical condition, and not knowing what his fate is to be?

I realize that our District Attorney did get the maximum sentence for attempted murder and aggravated assault, but should James Bruce Walker die Johnston cannot be tried for murder because he was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge. True he is sentenced for 20 years, but how long is that in prison? Is it seven years before he is free? Is it eight, nine or ten years before he is free?

How long will it be before this man and all the others that have been given such lenient sentences be free to shoot, rob or kill again?

It is my belief that the jurors and courts are much too lenient on major crimes.

There has to be an end, we have to take an interest and try to correct our thinking. Stop taking pity on the criminal, and take pity on the victims and their family they leave behind.

Mr. and Mrs. Citizen don't you realize that YOU or YOURS could be the next victim?

Sincerely, CAROL ANN WINTERBAUER 600 Baylor Blvd.

Pink-paved streets sparking an uproar

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Since the Roaring '20s, residents of a ritzy neighborhood have taken pride in their pink-paved streets, but no the rose-colored roads are bumpy and cracked, sparking an uproar that has homeowners and officials seeing red.

The city says it's too expensive to repave the 2.9 miles of pink Portland concrete, and suggestions to charge the 170 residents an extra fee or patch the roads with plain black asphalt has been met with anger.

"It's an unusual situation," complained George Webb, St. Petersburg's assistant public works administrator. "There really is no clear-cut policy on it."

Built in the early 1920s, the streets of Pinellas Point have been a source of local pride in this tree-lined community on the southern tip of St. Petersburg. Everyone wants the streets to remain their original color, but few have volunteered to pay the extra cost.

David Fischer, a neighborhood resident and former city councilman, said the city has ignored the Pinellas Point streets.

"The city would have maintained them if they were asphalt," Fischer said. "But the city got into a very tough bind (with pink concrete.) It's an awkward situation."

Robert Meachem, who lives on one of the pink streets, said: "Nothing's been done for those streets for years. But we've still been paying taxes. It's now time for us to be on the receiving end."

At the urging of the Greater Pinellas Point Civic Association, city public works officials have been asking residents for their opinions.

Concert soloist reunited with $90,000 violin

BOSTON (AP) — A concert soloist whose $90,000 violin and bow were snatched from a downtown hotel Thursday after the FBI received an anonymous tip that someone was trying to sell it for less than $100.

"It's incredible, it's incredible," said violinist Malcolm Lowe when he first caught sight of the instrument Wednesday in the cramped office of a South Boston police superintendent. "I can't believe it's back. What can I do, hug it?"

Instead, he clapped the fiddle under his chin and played an exuberant solo from Fritz Kreisler's "Liebeslied."

"It seems to be playing the way it was," Lowe said with a big grin. "I was worried that it might have been knocked around."

Lowe came to the South Boston police station after learning that police detectives had recovered his prized Gagliano concert violin and its bow, which had been filched from a downtown hotel.

Lowe, 30, member of a Canadian family of musicians, said the case containing the violin and bow were taken from an orchestra room at the Copley Plaza Hotel on Friday night after he had played at a Boston Ballet concert.

"I had just finished playing two solos and left my violin in the room for about five or 10 minutes," said Lowe. "When I came back, it was gone."

Police Superintendent Anthony J. DiNatale said a hotel security video camera taped the thief as he left shortly before midnight.

"That film is presently in the custody of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," he said. "The film is being developed and we are working with the FBI in an attempt to make an identification."

DiNatale said the pressure of news reports and an exhaustive probe by officers who covered every music dealer and potential buyer of the violin were responsible for the instrument's quick recovery.

The violin was made about 1750 by Nicolas Gagliano, an Italian craftsman, and valued at about $60,000. The bow, a bit older, was made by Francois Tourte of France, the 18th century Frenchman who invented modern bows, and was valued at $30,000.

"But obviously, there is no way to put the value to me," said Lowe. "I acquired the violin about three years ago and the bow I've had almost eight years now."

The police superintendent said a man who wants to remain anonymous telephoned the FBI about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"This individual was confronted by a male attempting to sell this particular violin and bow for a minimum amount of money," said DiNatale.

The price for the $60,000 violin was less than $100. The investigators went immediately to an undisclosed location and recovered the missing Gagliano. It was presented to Lowe two hours later.

No arrests have been made in the case. Lowe said the violin could have been easily identified by the way it sounds.

"It has a lot of heart and warmth and guts — that's why I bought it," he said. "I knew it would come back. I could feel it."

Researchers study drop in divorces

MAKING MUSIC — Mary Tripoli of Washington, Pa., tries out a new clarinet at a music store recently. Children across the nation spent the past several weeks investigating new and used instruments as many of them joined school bands and choral groups.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim and Jane have been married more than a decade. They've got a lovely home, a swimming pool and a hot tub. He collects antiques.

They are unhappily married. But they have no interest in divorce.

The names are fictitious, but the case is real, and the experts say they illustrate one of several reasons why the divorce rate has fallen for the first time in two decades.

"I have no doubt in my mind that the divorce rate is down because of the economy," said Jean Ar buckle, a marriage and family counselor in Arlington, Va. "They (Jim and Jane) don't want to go from a nice house to a $300 a month apartment. A husband who used to be able to afford the swinging, playboy lifestyle is now faced with cockroaches."

The government reported this week that for the first time in 20 years, the number of divorces in the United States fell last year.

What do the figures mean? That marriages are more stable? That couples can't afford to get divorced? Or is it simply that there are fewer married couples to get divorced? The experts say it was probably a little of each. The new figures, compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics, show that 1.2 million couples ended their marriage in 1982, 3 percent fewer than in 1981.

It was the first drop in the number of divorces since 1962 — and it was nationwide. Of the 49 states that reported 1982 divorce statistics, 38 showed a drop in the divorce rate from the previous year.

"For so many states to drop is impressive to me," said Barbara Wilson, a demographer in the health center's marriage and divorce branch. "This is no fluke. The divorce rate really dropped."

Social scientists insist there is no easy answer to why the number of divorces dropped. Most say they are unsure whether it reflects a changing attitude about divorce or a statistical reflection of an aging population.

"One of the influences on the divorce rate is the size of the generation," said Richard Easterlin, a professor of economics at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. "When a generation is numerous as it was in recent years, it aggravates economic problems for young people. There's lots of competition in the labor market. We are starting to move into a period of decreasing generation size."

Other experts say the divorce rate declined because more young couples live together before making a decision about marriage and that their break-ups are not reflected in divorce statistics.

"A lot of divorces take place early on in marriages," said James McCarthy, a demographer at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health in Baltimore. "Now a lot of people are living together. It's a trial period. Maybe they get together, live together and break up in a year."

Some social scientists say the divorce rate has dropped because today's couples are older when they marry and more mature when they marry, that the Post World War II "baby boom" generation has passed the ages when divorce is most prevalent, that couples are less likely to divorce in a period of economic uncertainty.

"It's tempting to relate (the recent decline) to the recession of 1982," said James A. Weed, chief of the Census Bureau's marriage and the family branch. "During the Great Depression, divorces dropped noticeably. There may be a tendency to postpone separation or divorce because of job uncertainty and the difficulty of maintaining another residence."

Weed said one statistical reason why the number of divorces dropped is that a few years ago, there were fewer marriages. Government figures show that between 1974 and 1975, the number of marriages dropped 5 percent from 10.5 per 1,000 population to 10.0.

"A few years back we had fewer marriages, so it's obvious that we would have fewer divorces," Weed said.

Writer searches for 'Lost Army'

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An American writer has set off into the Sahara to find "the Lost Army" of Cambyses, a Persian king who, along with 30,000 followers, vanished in the desert 25 centuries ago.

Gary Chafetz, 36, of Boston, four other Americans and 14 Egyptian geologists and laborers drove off the Bahariya Oasis Highway on Wednesday, about 90 miles south of Cairo, and headed west for the Siwa Oasis, 250 miles away.

By the end of the week, they plan to link up with three leased camels that will pull $50,000 worth of radar units across a 120-square-mile patch of the great sand sea where Chafetz believes the army was buried in a sandstorm.

"We're going to stay in the desert about five months until the middle of March, because then we will be chased out by the same winds that destroyed the army," he said before departing in a convoy of three jeeps and two trucks.

The inauguration of the expedition culminates three years of preparation by Chafetz, who got the idea while researching a fictional character based on Orde Wingate, a British army officer who unsuccessfully searched for Cambyses' army around 1930.

The fate of the army is one of the great mysteries of Egypt's 7,000-year-old civilization.

Cambyses, son of Cyrus the Great, conquered Egypt's Pharaonic dynasty in 525 B.C., and dispatched an army from the ancient Egyptian capital of Thebes, now known as Luxor, for the temple and oracle of Amun at Siwa Oasis, 625 miles to the northwest. They planned to sack the temple site.

But, according to the Greek historian Herodotus, whose sources were the people of Siwa, "a southerly wind of extreme violence drove the sand over them in heaps as they were taking their mid-day meal, so that they disappeared forever."

Herodotus said the army consisted of 50,000 troops, but Chafetz estimates a more realistic number is 30,000 people — a third of them soldiers and the rest slaves, concubines, children, smithies, technicians, soothsayers, hostages and drivers.

Chafetz said that the wind in which the army perished was the only southerly that blows in the Sahara — the khamsin — a powerful, hot, dry storm that sweeps across the desert during March and April.

"We're going to stay in the desert about five months until the middle of March, because then we will be chased out by the same winds that destroyed the army."

Most of the army's route was across a flat plain of packed gravel that has changed little in thousands of years. Chafetz theorizes the only place the army could have vanished and stayed hidden for 2,500 years is in the great sand sea, an expansive maze of long, serpentine intersecting sand dunes, some of them 100 meters high.

He believes the army is buried in an area about 53 miles south of Siwa, where the sea of sand is only about 15 miles wide. Just south of this point, there are 125 mysterious large stone cairns — rock piles erected to mark paths in the desolate wilderness — built in parallel rows that point toward Siwa.

Chafetz plans to pull his radar equipment across the depressions in the dunes. The equipment emits microwaves into the sand and detects any foreign objects up to a depth of 10 meters.

A wiry, energetic man, Chafetz and expedition co-leader, Deanne Peterson, 32, of Decatur, Ill., have interested the Peabody Museum at Harvard University, the National Geographic Society, Egypt's Geological Survey, Boston's Museum of Fine Arts and the Brooklyn Museum in their expedition.

They covered their $155,900 budget with private contributions and contributions of services and equipment from airlines, camping equipment distributors and a survey equipment manufacturer.

Other American participants include Breton Littlehales, 32, of Bethesda, Md., a photographer for National Geographic; and two employees of Harvard's Film Study Center, Ned Johnston, 29, of Kenilworth, Ill., and Susan Todd, 23, of Glendale, Ohio.

ART DONATION — Kathrine Elrod of Lubbock, a former resident of Big Spring, displays her pen and ink drawing of the old Martin County Courthouse. Mrs.

Elrod has donated the drawing for sale by the Jacky Romine fund. The drawing is on display at the State National Bank.

Cheese offer almost too much to swallow

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A decision to "Let 'em eat cheese!" might be expanded to offer visitors to Wisconsin other free samples of the state's food products, some officials urged. But the idea was finally too much to swallow.

The proposal came Wednesday as the Board of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection discussed giving tourists a free taste of Wisconsin cheese.

"Maybe it shouldn't be just cheese," said Arthur Sturm, board chairman, before the board endorsed the bill requiring the Department of Development to provide one-ounce chunks of Wisconsin cheese at the border points of Beloit, Hudson, Genoa City, Kenosha,

La Crosse and Superior. "Maybe they ought to give you a glass of milk."

Another board member suggested pork chops. Another said all food products in the state should be promoted.

"If you had kids, you could feed them" just by going from one give-away to another, said board member Betty Roe.

"Why don't we get the cheese now," said board member Wayne Danielson. "They can always get the pork chops" later, he said. The vote was unanimous.

Dr. Donohue

What is it: seizure or faint?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have an 8-year-old son who takes Dilantin. He is taking it because he fainted one morning. We thought it was a seizure. A doctor did an EEG and the results were abnormal, but he said that whether the results were normal or abnormal doesn't mean our son had a seizure. Will he have to take this medicine the rest of his life? If he stopped, should it be gradually? There are differences of opinion between two doctors about this matter. — Mrs. W.L.

but from what you do write it seems a question of the definition of a seizure as opposed to a faint. There are many kinds of seizures. One may be so dramatic as to be easily identified as such. There is falling to the ground, loss of consciousness, twitching of arms and legs. Another kind may be so brief and mild as to be mistaken for only transient loss of attention. Between there are other degrees. Generally, however, if a person falls to the ground for a short spell without any abnormal movements, that is more likely to be a faint than seizure (epilepsy). I don't know how you got to the point you are now. It is, as you can see, difficult to make the distinctions I am speaking about. And when you do, then it is another problem to learn whether to treat and how. Some feel that it is worthwhile to start treatment and not wait for a second seizure episode; others say wait.

having a seizure, I would seek a third opinion. One abnormal EEG (electroencephalogram) is not absolute proof of a seizure. And for that matter neither is one normal EEG proof that such a problem does not exist.

But EEGs can be taken in special ways to help determine if your son needs constant medication. I would seek that opinion, but not discontinue the medication. And, yes, when such anti-convulsant medicine is discontinued it should be done gradually.

Headaches — you can beat them! Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Murphree, Wilson Rd., Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Patterson of El Paso, and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Adams, Davis Rd. Great-grandmothers are Mrs. Jewel Beller of Crossington and Mrs. Ione Adams of Trent.

Forsan Study Club to host district meeting

The GFWC Forsan Study Club will host the fall board meeting for all federated clubs in the western district at Big Spring Country Club, Oct. 8.

of Women's Clubs and the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is strength in unity. Federated clubwomen are responsible for 75 percent of the public libraries in America, M.D. Anderson Hospital, the child labor laws and the Food and Drug Administration. These are just a few of the things women have accomplished by uniting together.

The meeting will begin with registration at 9 a.m. The district reaches from Coahoma to El Paso and from Big Spring to Presidio.

During the Fall Board Meeting, members will check the progress being made in the district and enjoy fellowship.

The meeting's agenda includes reports from officers and committees, an address from Betty Green, president-elect of TFWC, a luncheon served at the Country Club and entertainment provided by members of the GFWC Forsan Study Club.

The Western District is represented by a calico country theme including calico flowers, bandana butterflies, prairie skirts and western entertainment. More than 100 women are expected to attend.

Dear Abby

Couple's love is lust

DEAR ABBY: I am a very mature 13-year-old girl in love with a guy who just turned 18. I'll call him "Brian." I asked my parents if I could go out with him, and they said no, right off, so I've been sneaking around to be with him.

Abby, we really love each other, but Brian says he is not a talker, he is a doer. He wants to show me how much he loves me by making love to me. I'm still a virgin, but we have come very, very close to going all the way.

Brian wants me to prove my love by going all the way with him, but something is holding me back. He says it's not wrong to have sex if you are really in love. What should I do?

BRIAN'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Brian may tell you he is not a "talker" he is a "doer," but he is both, so don't let him talk you into (or out of) anything. That old "prove-your-love" line has been around for a very long time, and it's just as phony today as it was when your grandmother was a girl.

No respectable young man would allow — much less encourage — a 13-year-old girl to sneak around and lie to her parents. I can understand how your young heart throbs when you're near him, but it's not "love" — it's a natural sex desire, which is nothing to be ashamed of. But you are too young, emotionally immature and vulnerable to become sexually active.

Be wise, young lady, and cool it with Brian before you lose control and find yourself in serious trouble.

DEAR ABBY: Very often you advise your readers to "consult your clergyman." While there is absolutely nothing wrong with this advice, there is something definitely wrong with your terminology. Since most major denominations have been ordaining women for quite some time, the proper term is no longer "clergyman." It is either "clergywoman" or "member of the clergy." Only when the individual's sex is known should the terms "clergywoman" or "clergyman" be used.

Please sign me... THE REV SUSAN F. JAREK-GLIDDEN: a clergywoman, a clergyman, or a member of the clergy — but most definitely not a clergyman. UNITED METHODIST CHURCH SALEM, N.H.

DEAR SUSAN F. JAREK-GLIDDEN, CLERGYWOMAN: Old habits die hard. I shall henceforth watch out for gender-benders — and other offenders.

DEAR ABBY: I identified with the 13-year-old girl who was ashamed to invite her friends over because she lived in a "dump." You see, I also grew up in the same kind of home.

Only a year ago did I learn at a class reunion that my friends loved coming to my house because they found it so comfortable and my parents so kind and friendly.

Many of my former classmates told me their homes were so "perfect," and their parents so concerned with keeping the house "neat and tidy," their friends couldn't relax there.

I was actually envied for my parents and the home I thought was a "dump." I'm sorry I didn't know sooner, before my parents died.

Newlyweds honored at four parties

Rick and Cindy Stovall have been honored with several showers hosted by friends and co-workers.

Mrs. Stovall was honored with a lingerie party in the home of Mrs. Larry Newton, 2605 Clanton, Sept. 11. Guests were the employees of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

She also was honored with a recipe shower held at First Federal. Guests brought their favorite recipes along with the key ingredients. Special guests attending were the bride's mother Katie McAdams, the bridegroom's mother Jewel Stovall, and his grandmother Corma Stovall.

On Sept. 28, the teachers of Coahoma Elementary School surprised Stovall with an old-fashioned pounding. The table was decorated with a chocolate cake and an old-fashioned butter churn filled with punch. Mrs. Jewel Stovall was special guests.

The couple was feted with a community-wide miscellaneous shower held in the reception room of Coahoma State Bank, Aug. 30. Tables were draped with blue linen with lace overlay. The hostesses presented the couple with a set of stoneware. The bride, her mother Mrs. McAdams, and the bridegroom's mother Mrs. Stovall were all presented with corsages made of pith holders and small kitchen utensils.

Working women buy career clothes

Working women feel the need for appropriate career clothing, even in a tight economy. Working women accounted for $128 billion in earnings and spent almost $13 billion of that for work apparel in 1981.

The average working woman spends almost $1700 per year on work apparel, says Nancy Brown, clothing specialist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service. With increased demands on family budgets, the durability and economy of work apparel as well as appropriateness are becoming major concerns of the working woman.

Girl Scouts sell calendars

The Girl Scouts have kicked off its 1984 Girl Scout Calendar sale. The calendar sale is an annual event for the Girl Scouts throughout the West Texas Council.

This calendar edition features a cover design highlighting Girl Scouts enjoyment of animals in their habitats. Through calendar sales, troops will be acquiring operating funds needed for their troop treasury to start the year's activities. The calendar is $1.25 and can be bought from any girl scout. The West Texas Girl Scout Council is a participating agency of United Way.

Charter is draped for Rebekah, Nettie Morris

The charter was undraped for Lillie Wright at the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge's Sept. 27 meeting. The charter was then redraped for Nettie Morris, past assembly president.

Members helping with the ritual were Lila Holland, Gladys Sudberry and Lillian Rhyme. A memorial service was held. Members helping were Mmes. Holland, funeral marshal, Sherri Wilson, Iva Kenny, Mary Leek, Mable Morrison, Annie Branson, Janel Barnhill, Jonnie Gunnels and Rhyme.

Fourteen visits to the sick were reported. October birthdays were celebrated at the next meeting, which was held Tuesday.

Church dedicates new sanctuary

By RHONDA WITT
Lifestyle Writer

Members of the First Church of the Nazarene will dedicate their new facilities at 1400 Lancaster, Sunday.

The new building includes an octagonal sanctuary and peripheral rooms. The sanctuary, which features a round baptistry with native Arkansas rock wall, holds 280 people with an overflow space for 70. The church also has a new baby grand piano given by an anonymous donor.

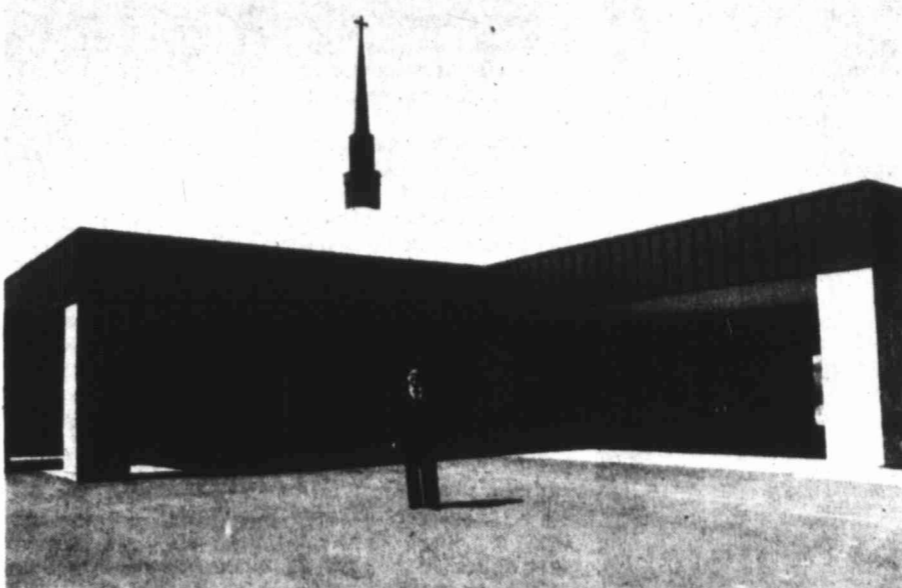

The peripheral rooms include church offices, choir rooms, nursery, bride's room, restrooms and fellowship classroom. An added attraction to the church is a covered drive, which allows for discharging of passengers in bad weather.

An interesting fact, Dr. Carl Powers, pastor, said, was the church building is an equivalent of five stories from ground level to the top of the cross.

The church's congregation has planned a day of dedication for Sunday. In preparation of the dedication, members have been participating in "Tell it to a Thousand". In "Tell it to a Thousand" the congregation has given information to 1,000 of their friends and neighbors about the day of dedication.

The day will begin at 7:30 a.m., with Early Christians gathering at the altar to pray for guidance especially on the dedication day. Sunday School will be at 9:45 a.m. The recorded attendance for Sunday School is 252. Members plan to set new attendance record Sunday morning.

At 10:50 a.m., morning services in the new sanctuary will feature the sanctuary choir and a sermon by the Rev. Gene Fuller, district superintendent of West Texas district. Following morning services will be a basket dinner in Sidney Knox Family Life Center Fellowship.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE — Dr. Carl Powers, pastor, stands in front of the First Church of the Nazarene's new building which houses a octagonal sanctuary and peripheral rooms. The new building is the equivalent of five stories from the ground level to the top of the cross. The sanctuary can hold 280 people and has an overflow for 70.

The dedication ceremony will begin at 2:30 p.m. Greetings will be given by Mayor Clyde Angel, State Representative Larry Don Shaw, and the Rev. Keith Wiseman, president of the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship, and former pastors. Bill Farnum, president of TRAESCO Builders, general contractors who built the church, will present the key for the building to Dr. Powers. The congregation and pastor will join in the ritual of dedication.

The dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. Fuller. Special recognition will be given to Mrs. Dillie Dixon, the only active charter member of the church. No evening service will be held.

The Big Spring church was organized Sept 15, 1928. The church had 12 charter members. They met regularly in the courthouse for two years. In the spring of 1930, they purchased property on Young St. In 1937, a framed chapel was built at Austin and 4th which was remodeled and enlarged in 1950.

In Aug. 1957, a sanctuary and educational unit was completed at 14th and Lancaster. The parsonage was built May 1958. Due to the congregation's growth, the fellowship hall was built in 1971.

In 1980, a Future Family Life Center and Gymnasium was built. The congregation used the gym for a sanctuary while the new facilities were being completed. The old sanctuary was not used because of some structural defects, Powers said.

"We felt there was a definite need for a sanctuary and also to release the gym so it could be used for activities and the youth program," Powers said. It was nine months from the time the ground was broken until the first Sunday in the building.

The new facilities have provided more space for the congregation and has released gym for its proper use.

The new offices allow for a children ministry office, a library and conference room. The older building now houses entire children department for Sunday School and two sections of children church. The new nursery allows the old nursery to become teen and adult room.

"We are convinced that this new facility will allow us to serve the community and God more effectively," Powers said. "The new facilities will allow for continuing growth of the congregation, enlargement of the youth program, a larger children ministry, an effective women's ministry and an embellished music program that will include more than one choir."

There has been a great deal of interest about new building, Powers said. The church has had many visitors worship with them. Some people have just stop by to see the building, too.

"We are real grateful to God and the people for this significant event," Powers said. "It was a big undertaking for a relative small congregation, but we are here to stay."

Betty Reagan presents lesson

The women of the First Church of God met Oct. 3 in the church sanctuary for their monthly meeting.

Betty Reagan, missionary education director, presented the second lesson of the fall study, Pilgrimage of Faith, II. The lesson dealt with the types of loss people encounter, as well as with the grief process.

The objectives were to help women to define the loss; to review guideline to facilitate survival, encourage healing and bring growth; and to recognize the three states of recovery. The states of recovery are shock/denial; anger/depression, and understanding/acceptance.

The West Texas District Women of the Church of God Prayer Retreat will be at Camp Inspiration in Eastland, Oct. 28-29.

Members were reminded of the upcoming Annual Bazaar to be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Nov. 5.

Youths plan car wash

The youth group of Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church is sponsoring a car wash from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday at the Highland Texaco.

There is no set charge for the car wash but the group is asking for donations. All proceeds go to benefit needy families in the Big Spring area this Christmas season.

Film shown at church

The next meeting will be in the church sanctuary, Nov. 7.

Bihl teaches Bible study

The Rev. Salvador Bihl, pastor of the Foursquare Gospel "Lighthouse" Church, has finished the first series of a Bible study titled "My Faith". The second series of Bible study will begin at 7 p.m., Oct. 11.

Those who are interested in enrolling may call 267-4010 or come Tuesday to the church, located at 1210 E. 19th. A certificate will be given to each person finishing the courses.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

"...do not be anxious for your life..."
Matt. 6:25
Some people ask, "Do you think God has time for me? You don't know how mixed up my life is, how confused it is; the pressures, the tension at home, the business problems, so many things I couldn't possibly tell you about, including the sins in my life that I somehow cannot seem to give up." Yes, God has time for you. When Jesus was dying on the Cross, He had time for a thief who turned to Him and said, "Lord, remember me." But what he was really saying was, "I'm unworthy, I've broken all the laws. I deserve hell. Just remember me." And Jesus turned to him in that moment and said, "Today you will be with me in Paradise."
We invite you to visit at Hillcrest Baptist, where the blessing of Christ and the fellowship of His people will warm your heart. All services are interpreted for the Deaf. We also have an orchestra for those wishing to worship the Lord in music. Our church is eager for an opportunity of service to you.

Actress brings new slant to show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leah Ayres, the newest recruit for the secretarial pool on ABC's "9 To 5," isn't the type who jumps to fix coffee for the boss.

Miss Ayres joined the hit comedy series in the role of a new character, Linda Bowman, a sassy free spirit who is radically different from the departing Judy.

The series, based on the hit movie comedy, also stars Rita Moreno as Violet, Rachel Dennison as Doralee and Peter Bonerz as the male chauvinist boss, Franklin Hart Jr.

Miss Ayres, who has enjoyed success in two other fields — dance and TV soap operas — will bring a new slant to dealing with Hart.

"She's irreverent, cocky, but lovable and loving in her own way," Miss Ayres says. "She's very independent and used to taking care of herself. She was an Army brat, so she's used to living all over the world and used to picking up and moving on."

"9 To 5," which is in its second season, is undergoing a number of changes. One of the most important is that actress Valerie Cur-

Miss Curtin played Judy, the naive secretary who was "a neophyte at life." It was the role created by Jane Fonda in the movie. Rather than find a new Judy, the producers decided to go in a different direction.

"I feel like I'm adding something to the show — a youthfulness," Miss Ayres says. "I represent a whole 'nother generation of young women who assumed they were going to be working. Rachel Dennison is young, too, but she has a different view. We're all working women, but we each have our own value systems."

The series is undergoing other changes. Miss Fonda and her producer, Bruce Gilbert, are no longer actively associated with the show. James Komack has taken over as executive producer and will play the recurring role of head of the company where the women work. Tony LaTorre is joining the cast as the 11-year-old son of Violet (Miss Moreno), and George Deloy will play a handsome salesman who is a ladies man. The focus of the show will remain the office, but now it will deal more extensively with the home life of the three secretaries.

The blond, green-eyed Miss Ayres, who has a dusting of freckles across the bridge of her nose, was selected from among 350 actresses for the role.

After she finished the movie, "Eddie Macon's Run," she tested for various ABC projects.

She has taken up temporary residence in Los Angeles. All of her work previously had been done in the New York area. She was in the soap operas, "Love of Life" and "Edge of Night," and had roles in such movies as "All That Jazz," "The Burning" and "Dead Ringer." She also did an act at the New York cabaret, Once Upon a Stove.

One of her first major roles was on "Love of Life."

"I was sort of a female Eddie Haskell," she said, referring to the oily, two-faced character on TV's "Leave It to Beaver."

"I was a bad girl beneath a veneer of sweetness."

Miss Ayres had grown up in Maryland wanting to be a dancer and a dance teacher. She went to Tufts University and later to New York University, where she received a degree in dance. Still, she felt something was missing.

"After graduation, I was invited to be a faculty assistant at the American Dance Festival," she said. "I was really living my goal. The people on the faculty were either in books or had been on stage."

"When I finished, I knew that deep down that wasn't enough or I couldn't sustain it. I didn't want to teach the same class over and over. And as a modern dancer, you never get back what you put out. You have incredible moments with people who appreciate what you do, but the next morning you have to get up early to stuff envelopes. There is never any money."

To make some money, she began doing commercials — lots of them. That led to the movies and to her soap opera roles.

Two 'Cheers' stars won't find too much happiness

NEW YORK (AP) — Love and marriage ruined "Rhoda" several years ago, and the producers of "Cheers" aren't about to let Sam and Diane's newfound togetherness destroy a delightfully hostile relationship in the same way.

Last week, Diane and Sam, the often-antagonistic leads in NBC's Emmy-winning comedy, finally consummated their off-again, off-again relationship. But have no fear, love won't spoil them. They won't be happy ever after.

"Whatever their relationship, they still will not like each other," says Glen Charles, one of the program's executive producers.

"Cheers" was preempted last night by the American League baseball playoffs. Televised sports have interrupted many a relationship, so it's only fitting that the new lovebirds in "Cheers" have to wait another week for more non-marital bliss.

In last week's season-opener, Sam (Ted Danson) at long last got Diane (Shelley Long) behind closed bedroom doors. When the story picks up next Thursday, their chronic billing and cooing will disgust the bar's regulars.

That's a relief. The funniest, most adult comedy on TV could not stand too much sappy syrup. What gives "Cheers" much of its bite is that Sam and Diane are wildly drawn to each other by the same things that pull them apart: their differences in intellect, attitude and lifestyle.

"What do you think it's like to be attracted to someone who makes you sick?" Sam said in last season's final episode. "I could write a book about the subject," responded Diane.

Danson said Sam couldn't live much longer on banter and no touching. "I had to have something happen. We couldn't tease ourselves and the audience forever," he said. "I think you can be in a relationship and have tons of conflict."

NBC has had many discussions with the "Cheers" staff on the subject. The network is well aware that art can imitate life. Too much domesticity can remove the excitement from a sizzling relationship, on-screen or off. Washing the dishes and taking out the garbage aren't the same as candlelight dinners and breakfast in bed.

In the 1970s, audiences identified warmly with Valerie Harper's character on "Rhoda" when she was single and wishing she weren't. When she married her dream man (David Groh), the stories lost their edge, and audiences lost interest.

By the time Rhoda and Joe were divorced, viewers had found new programs. "Marriage may have spoiled that show," said Josh Kane, a former programmer at NBC now working for CBS.

Kane likened the demise of "Rhoda" to an earlier series, "Bridget Loves Bernie," about an Irish Catholic woman and a Jewish man. "They got married at the end of the pilot, and the show was over," he says. (Incidentally, the show's co-stars, Meredith Baxter and David Birney, got married later in real life.)

NBC and the "Cheers" producers don't want the same thing to happen to their show.

Friday's football forecast

Coahoma (3-2) at Colorado City (3-2)

One team (Coahoma) wears red. The other (Colorado City), mostly black. Those two colors usually signal war and this is the case tonight. The Bulldogs saw their 3-game winning streak snapped by Denver City last week while C-City has lost two straight to teams in Abilene area. This game marks the start of 6-AAA play for both teams, so all pre-season goods and bads are wiped clean. Bulldogs possess fine ground game with Richard Seals at fullback (380 yards in last 2 games), running behind strong offensive line. Coahoma defense has played tough all year. Colorado City has 1-2 attack in quarterback Doug Chitsey and running back Larry Hamilton. Wolves' defense, until Wylie and Clyde, had looked strong. Coahoma is overcoming some injuries while C-City is still trying to bounce back from tragedy involving junior varsity football player. While Coahoma has looked good early, C-City has edge at skill positions and has homefield advantage. That'll be the difference in this game. (Game time 7:30 p.m.) Colorado City 22, Coahoma 15

Stanton (1-4) at Eldorado (3-2)

Stanton has lost four straight since opening season with a victory. The Buffaloes were banged up last week by unbeaten Seagraves but play someone their own size this week. The Buffs are hoping to get off on right hoof to defend District 8-AA title. Eldorado has 12 starters back from a 2-7-1 team and has good size. The Buffs played much better in second half against Seagraves, giving up just one score. Still, the Eagles are faring better in '83 while Stanton is down more than what folks thought earlier. (Game time 7:30 p.m.) Eldorado 28, Stanton 14

Snyder (0-4) at Lamesa (1-3)

Lamesa has an excellent chance to win this week if they can stop Snyder's passing attack. The Golden Tors didn't fare too badly against Lakeview last week and will have homecoming spirit going for them. Snyder is no pushover, even with 0-4 record; the Tigers passed Big Spring to death in one quarter with wide receiver Chad Peterson one of the best in the area. Tors counter will good running game but they must put the ball in the end zone. This game was a tight one last year. Will be again this year but the result different. (Game time 8 p.m.) Lamesa 25, Snyder 23

Garden City (3-2) at Irion Co. (4-1)

The Bearkats have been up and down this year, winning last week to go up to 3-2 and even their 7-A South mark at 1-1. Irion Co. is improved this year with 8 starters back from 2-8 team. Better offensive line play helped 'Kats scored 23 on Water Valley; defensive play of linebackers aided the shutout. If G-City is to make charge for playoffs this is the time. (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) Garden City 23, Irion Co. 18

Roby (1-4) at Klondike (1-4)

Klondike has lost four games by a total of 22 points and the young Cougars are tired of the losing side of the ledger. Roby traditional is a small and speedy team, which means the Klondike defense will have to play contain. Offense has moved football consistently but has consistently found ways not to score. All those troubles, provided the defense plays well, will be solved in this 7-A North Zone opener for both teams. (Game time 7:30 p.m.) Klondike 28, Roby 20

Sands (3-2) at Forsan (1-3-1)

Forsan and Sands. Whoever wins this game will be a serious playoff contender, meaning a lot is on the line tonight in Forsan. The Buffs recovered from the man-handling by Munday to tie good O'Donnell team. Sands played two games against the Lamesa junior varsity, falling behind 27-0 and then coming back to win 45-27. Traditionally, Forsan has won this game. Sands has Robby Creswell. But let's not forget Brad Jenkins and Mitch Hays of Forsan. And there's the defense headed up by Todd East and Rodney McMillan. That'll be just enough for the Buffs. (Game time 7:30 p.m.) Forsan 22, Sands 20

Greenwood (3-2) at Water Valley (3-2)

Greenwood's win streak is up to three games and should go to four against Water Valley. The Rangers are getting excellent offensive line support to help Todd Foris and Rogers Smith gain over 100 yards a game. Defense held Robert Lee when it needed, making Rangers the first team to defeat the upstart Steers last week. The march to a district title continues. (Game time 7:30 p.m.) Greenwood 21, Water Valley 7

Hard-hitting Steers take on revenge-minded Bronchos

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

ODESSA — Strap on your helmets, pull on your armpads and turn on that sixth sense. It's the Big Spring-Odesa battle and that means one word: "war."

There are good rivalries across District 4-5A but these two teams just don't like each other. The competition will be especially intense tonight as both teams enter Ratliff Stadium with 0-2 records, teetering on the verge of elimination in this year's playoff race.

Add the fact the Steers upset Odesa 10-7 last year in Big Spring and fans had better hold on to their seats. This will be a physical game, to say the least.

In other games around the 4-5A, No. 3 state-ranked Permian (5-0) travels to San Angelo to take on the No. 5-rated Bobcats (5-0) in a battle of unbeaten teams; No. 10-ranked Midland Lee (4-1) visits Abilene High (2-3); and Midland (3-2) hosts Cooper (2-3).

"It will be very physical," emphasizes Big Spring head coach Quinn Eudy. "It's just Odesa's nature. It's every time we see them on film and every time we play them."

And while Odesa has a reputation for playing hard, Eudy's own squad is making its own name for its heavy hitting. "They (the Steers) know what to expect tonight. We're ready. That's our goal...to be a physical ballclub. We've reached the level where we're competitive and play hard, whoever it is we play."

Last year's game was decided by a field goal and ended with OHS quarterback Albert Cruz getting knocked out of the game by a blitzing safety Alan Trevino of Big Spring. That's how close the two teams were matched and Trevino's hit gave impact to the intensity of the contest.

The game will be played on Ratliff's artificial surface. Big Spring held its Wednesday workouts in Odesa to adjust to the faster field. The players are looking forward to a night in West Texas' version of UT's Memorial Stadium but Eudy is down-playing the game site.

"It's not a big deal," he said. "We're playing in a classy facility. It's a great thrill for the players I think. But it won't who runs and throws from his wingback position. Eudy has his defense prepared for counter and trap plays inside and sweeps and options to the outside.

Cruz returns at quarterback and has thrown for 240 yards but no touchdowns. "We'll be playing the run first," says Eudy, contrasting last week's strategy to stop Midland High's passing game.

Defensively, Odesa crowds the line of scrimmage much like the Bulldogs. "You've got to stop the run to win in this league," Eudy explains. Linemen Dominic Sanchez, Doug Atherton and Steve Paz average 207 per man.

Big Spring will continue to alternate running assignments between tailback Eric Sherman (245 yards) and fullbacks Jay Pirkle (207) and Mike McKinley (167). "I see no sense in putting the burden on any one of them," Eudy says. The Steers also are looking for the pass.

make that much difference. You can cut quicker and have to pick your feet up. And the ball bounces a little differently. But that's about all."

OHS is 3-2 overall but losers in its first two district games. The first was a narrow 14-9 loss to No. 10 Midland Lee; last week, Cooper surprised the Bronchos 29-28 in Abilene.

The Bronchos are led by senior running back Charles Hunter who has 648 yards and 6.8 average through five games. He trails league-leader Allen Guter of Cooper by just seven yards.

Another player to watch is versatile Boyd Cowan

Quarterback Tommy Gartman destroyed Midland's single-man coverage, throwing for a varsity-high 212 yards and three TD's last Friday. Wide receiver Dale Crenshaw, bottled up by double-teams for four games, took advantage of the Bulldogs' one-on-one strategy to catch six passes for 151 yards and two scores.

"We've got two other good receivers (end Robert Porras and tight end Charley Ragan)," Eudy offers, "and up until last game, it had been the weak-side passing attack that had worked."

The BSHS coach reported the Steers concentrated on their kicking game this week. "They looked good," he said, adding that only two touchdowns were actually scored against the Big Spring defense last week.

The Steers are healthy entering the game; a credit to the team's conditioning their coach says. Doug Walker, a two-way starter, was slowed in practice by a bout with intestinal flu but is expected to start. If he can't, backups Herb Ashley and Andy Grisham can play.

Odesa is seventh in the league in offense with 259 yards a game. Hunter getting 130 of that each night. The OHS defense is rated No. 4, surrendering 224 yards.

Big Spring is No. 6 in offense with 267 yards a game and No. 5 in defense with 262 yards given up.

The Steers will have to put a good rush on Cowan, who punts as well as running the football and playing a safety position. His 42.1 average is tops in the league.

Porras and Ragan have 11 catches each while Crenshaw has caught nine throws, all placing among the district's top eight. Hunter is 4-5A's No. 2 scorer with eight touchdowns.

Roenicke's homer aids Orioles' win over Sox

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Boddicker spent part of his day installing a CB radio in his pickup. Gary Roenicke used the time to play with his children. Then they went to work, and helped the Baltimore Orioles escape a dangerous situation in the American League Championship Series.

Boddicker, a 26-year-old rookie, registered a record-tying 14 strikeouts and Roenicke, a veteran at age 28, hit a two-run homer and scored two other runs Thursday night as the Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox 4-0 to tie the series at one game apiece. The best-of-five championship set resumes tonight in Chicago, with Rich Dotson, 22-7, pitching for the White Sox against Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, 12-4, and the situation facing them is drastically different than if the White Sox had won Game No. 2.

Since the league championship series began in 1969, no team has ever dropped the first two at home and come back to win the pennant, a point not lost on either manager.

"He kept his breaking ball low, and there's nothing you can do with a low breaking ball," said Chicago's slugging left-fielder, Ron Kittle, who had a single and a walk. "If he sees he can get you on it, he'll throw it all night."

"He changes speed so well, we were swinging at bad pitches," said third baseman Vance Law. "They look good, but by the time you start to swing you know they're not. We weren't patient enough."

Boddicker's 14 strikeouts tied a playoff record set by Detroit's Joe Coleman in 1972 and matched by Pittsburgh's John Candelaria in 1975. But the historic day started like any other, he said.

"A friend came over and we talked about the game. Then I installed a CB in my pickup," said Boddicker,

Phillies must find bats to defeat LA

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Philadelphia Phillies must find their bats if they hope to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League Championship Series.

The Phillies have scored just 15 runs in 14 games against the Dodgers this season, including one in each of the first two games of the best-of-five playoff, which is tied 1-1.

Phillies' Manager Paul Owens was asked if he could pinpoint the Phillies' failure to score against Los Angeles.

"Darn right, good Dodgers' pitching," snapped Owens.

The Phillies' left-handed hitters took hitting practice Thursday in a voluntary workout for today's third game in the Series, set to start at 3:05 p.m. EDT.

The Dodgers are scheduled to go with right-hander Bob Welch, and Owens will use left-handed hitters Joe Lefebvre and Greg Gross in the outfield in place of right-handers Sixto Lezcano and Garry Maddox.

Owens is optimistic that the hitting carried the club in its September stretch drive to the NL East title will reappear.

"We hit the ball a lot better Wednesday night than we did Tuesday," Owens said.

"But we hit into three doubleplays and that always takes the wind out of any club. I think we're swinging better than we did earlier against this team."

Owens was happy to get out of Los Angeles with a split.

NY boxer's death eighth of year from head injuries

NEW YORK (AP) - The death of Isidro "Gino" Perez was the eighth this year by a boxer after suffering injuries in the ring and the second this month.

Perez, 24, a native of Mexico who lived in West New York, N.J., died Thursday, six days after being knocked out by Juan Ramon Cruz of New York in the seventh round of a lightweight fight at the Felt Forum.

Perez died at 10:20 a.m., said Dan Sorrenti, a spokesman for St. Vincent's Hospital Medical Center of New York.

Perez, who was ahead after six rounds on the cards of two of the three officials scoring the fight, collapsed in his corner after congratulating Cruz. The cause of death was not given pending an autopsy.

Perez is the first boxer to die in New York since Willie Classen was injured fatally in a fight against Wilford Scypion at the Felt Forum on Nov. 23, 1979.

On Feb. 28, 1981, Perez knocked out Fred Bowman in the sixth round at Atlantic City, N.J. Bowman lapsed into coma and died a year later.

Marvin Kohn, a deputy for the New York State Athletic Commission, said the commission's Medical Advisory Board has reviewed films of the fight and will submit a report to Chairman John Branca.

"We need to have a central clearing house that will provide us with more comprehensive information," said Branca. "Boxers go from one state to another. We need a clearing house that would be available to all commissions. We need to know more than just the boxer's record. We need to know more about his previous fights; how he fought, if he was hurt. We need to know as much as possible about every fight."

There was some confusion concerning Perez's record entering the bout with Cruz. The promoters had him at 13-1-1, but his manager, Al Certo, said Perez has 17 victories.

Kiko Bejines, 20, also of Mexico and a friend of Perez, died of a massive cerebral contusion in Los Angeles on Sept. 4 after being knocked out by Alberto

Phillies' Manager Paul Owens was asked if he could pinpoint the Phillies' failure to score against Los Angeles.

"Darn right, good Dodgers' pitching," snapped Owens.

The Phillies' left-handed hitters took hitting practice Thursday in a voluntary workout for today's third game in the Series, set to start at 3:05 p.m. EDT.

The Dodgers are scheduled to go with right-hander Bob Welch, and Owens will use left-handed hitters Joe Lefebvre and Greg Gross in the outfield in place of right-handers Sixto Lezcano and Garry Maddox.

Owens is optimistic that the hitting carried the club in its September stretch drive to the NL East title will reappear.

"We hit the ball a lot better Wednesday night than we did Tuesday," Owens said.

"But we hit into three doubleplays and that always takes the wind out of any club. I think we're swinging better than we did earlier against this team."

Owens was happy to get out of Los Angeles with a split.

"You go on the other guy's turf you have to feel for-

Freshmen rip Sweetwater

The Big Spring High freshman team whipped Sweetwater 15-4, 15-5 Thursday night, boosting their season record to 10-2.

Lisa Hale had seven service points in the first game while Laura Mauldin had six in the second game. BSBS plays again Oct. 13 at Odessa.

Lady Steers clobber Abilene

ABILENE — The Big Spring High Lady Steers snapped a four-match losing streak with a 15-7, 15-12 victory over Abilene High here Thursday night.

The win boosts BSBS to 3-5 in District 4-5A play and to 7-15 for the season.

In other matches around the 4-5A, Cooper upset San Angelo 15-13, 15-7 to tie both teams for first place; Lee downed Odessa 15-10, 15-10; and Permian clipped Midland High 16-14, 15-13.

In the junior varsity game, Big Spring notched its 13th win with a 15-7, 15-13 victory over AHS. Adrienne Allen scored the first 11 points in game one while Amanda Solis had nine points from the service line in game two.

BSHS is 5-3 in district play and 13-7 for the season. Both teams play again Tuesday, hosting Midland High in Steer Gym.

BSHS hosts x-country meet

Big Spring High is hosting a four-division cross country meet Saturday morning at the old Webb AFB golf course in the Industrial Park.

Varsity girls team will run the two-mile course at 10:30 a.m. with varsity boys' team running three miles beginning at 11:30 a.m. Junior varsity girls run at 10 a.m. and JV boys at 11 a.m.

Teams joining BSBS for the meet are Abilene High, Cooper, San Angelo, Permian, Midland Lee and Odessa from District 4-5A; others are Lubbock Roosevelt, Andrews, Brownfield, Reagan Co., Iraan, Eden, Coleman, Sanderson and Dawson-Welch.

Also Sundown, Stanton, Sweetwater, Abernathy and Lubbock Cooper.

Coach Randy Brittain expects San Angelo to dominate the boys' varsity division while Permian, San Angelo, Abernathy, Roosevelt and "hopefully Big Spring" will fight it out for the girls' team title.

Running for the BSBS girls' varsity are Angela Barber, Annisa De Los Santos, Anita Flores, Christian Gribble, Lan Mai, Cynthia Regalado and Kim Walker. Big Spring varsity boys are Preston Harrison, Rolando Montana, Dax McCracken, Quang Mai, Roddy Fair and Teddy Hernandez.

Seminole stings Goliad

SEMINOLE — Seminole swept a volleyball doubleheader from Goliad here Thursday evening.

The Goliad A team lost 15-17, 15-1, 15-2. Sharon Chapman and Melissa Martinez had five service points each while Debbie Pulver added four.

The B team lost 15-5, 16-14. Adella Ramirez scored six points serving while Tara Jones had four. Coach Tammy Newsome noted the teamwork of Jones and Dianna Fish.

The B team plays in an invitational tournament in Pottsboro this weekend while the A team hosts Sweetwater Monday and Monahans Tuesday.

Stanton frosh need games

STANTON — Stanton High School needs freshman girls' basketball games to complete its 1983-84 schedule.

Dates open are Nov. 28, Dec. 5, 12, 15 and 19 and Jan. 23 and 26. Contact coach Bill West at 915-756-2566 or 756-3326.

Sampson sparkles in Rockets' debut

DALLAS (AP) — Ralph Sampson's long-awaited professional debut drew raves Thursday night from everyone except himself and his coach.

The millionaire rookie of the Houston Rockets scored 24 points, collected six rebounds, blocked two shots, hit a three-pointer and had four assists in Houston's 122-111 National Basketball Association exhibition loss to the Dallas Mavericks.

All in 30 minutes.

"I made mental mistakes and I have a long way to go," said Sampson, the Virginia All-American who was the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft.

"Sampson played a sporadic game and his shot selection was poor, which caused us to have to defend against some fast breaks," said Coach Bill Fitch. "I'm not disappointed with him. He'll get better."

Sampson hit 11 of 23 attempts from the field and the only free throw he tried.

Most of his field goals came from deep in the corner or at the top of the free throw lane.

"He's a great outside shooter," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "He did float outside quite a bit. He's just an excellent outside shooter."

Teammate Elvin Hayes said Sampson "did some real good things for his first game. He shot the ball real well. He's just trying to get a feel for what is happening but that's what the exhibition season is for."

"He blocked some shots and I think he is a very aggressive player. He is also a very intelligent player."

RALPH SAMPSON ...24 points in debut

Sampson said he wasn't trying to be a one-man team.

"I'm not trying to be God and win the thing myself because I know that's impossible," he said. "It takes all 11 or 12. I have no personal goals as far as points or rebounds or anything."

Sampson played longer than he thought he would and added "I'm in a lot better shape than I thought."

He had been bothered by fluid on his knees during early practice sessions but showed no problems against the Mavs.

Sampson delighted the crowd of 12,304 fans in Reunion Arena by hitting a three-pointer as time ran out in the third period.

Dallas' No. 1 draft pick, Dale Ellis, scored 19 points to lead the Mavs to victory.

"THE BEST THING YOU CAN DO IS TO GET VERY GOOD AT BEING YOU."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Sure there's a difference between you and me, Morrie. You're a boy, I'm a girl!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is certainly your day to search deeply and investigate whatever you do not understand for your powers of perception are accurate and you can bring forth the information you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your bills and know how much others expect of you now and try to please them and gain prestige and good will.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Partners are working on a plan that you should know about, so ask them what it is. Your ideas can help implement it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your work duties carefully and know how to handle them more efficiently. You are at your best today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Cut down on expenses for frivolous affairs. Also avoid someone who causes you to spend money foolishly.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) See what can be done to improve conditions at your home and add to harmony there. Be an understanding mediator.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to ferret out the truth in any puzzling situations and get rid of confusion. Someone is misleading you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to have a greater income via ethical and obvious ways, and schedule your time wisely. Curb overspending.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go over your bills and know how much you owe and pay whatever you can so that you can enhance your reputation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Concentrate on what is truly important in your life and endeavor to gain your aims. Be direct in personal dealings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you have any doubts about some vital affairs, discuss them with a true friend and get right advice. Avoid a jealous person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure that you handle any credit matters with precision. This is also true of civic affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make that plan for self-advancement and then carry through with it meticulously. Seek the aid of an expert.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young persons who is capable of penetrating into whatever is mysterious and would do well in investigative work of all kinds, so slant the education along such lines for best results during the lifetime.

Soldiers assigned to take fake injuries

The plan provoked an outcry when it was first announced last year, with critics claiming it was subtly preparing the country for nuclear war. Some medical personnel have refused to go along with it because of that concern.

according to Capt. Michael DeCesare, chief of plans, operations and training for the hospital at Fort Devens Army Base in Ayer.

"You try to take it seriously, but it's real hard," he said, adding that the exercise was needed to "work out the bugs in the system."

Surname spells big money

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richard Vlk's surname has always brought trouble — it's pronounced wrong, spelled wrong, laughed at.

"One man had 250 sets of my name," Vlk said Thursday night. "He's unemployed, and doesn't have a car, but he went all over collecting them."
