98th Year, Vol. No. 65 Deaf Smith County, Texas

Friday, October 2, 1998

Ah-h-h! Area finally blessed with rain

It's been a long time coming, but county gets up to 2 inches

Welcome back, it's been far too long. That could pretty much sum up the attitude of Deaf Smith County residents to the rainfall that finally made an appearance last night on the tail end of a cold front which moved through the Panhandle.

Some parts of the county reported receiving more than 2 inches of much-needed rainfall.

The official rainfall in Hereford, as reported at KPAN Radio, was 1.52 inches. Northwest Grain reported receiving the least amount - 0.6 inches - while Summerfield and Walcott reported slightly more than 2 inches. Dawn Cafe gauged 1.59 inches, and Roy Carter at Milo Center reported 1.25 inches.

At all counts, most of the county reported at least a half-inch.

A cool front backed by a low-pressure trough in West Texas is cutting across the state with showers, thunderstorms and milder temperatures.

Cloudy skies and scattered thunderstorms will move from North Texas to South Texas tonight and Saturday, lowering temperatures a notch or two.

Skies were cloudy over much of the state today, with showers and thunderstorms common over the northern half of the state.

Golfball-size hail was reported west of Lubbock this morning, while up to 3 inches of rain fell north of Matador, near Childress.

North Texas expects a chance of thunderstorms tonight, some severe, before becoming partly cloudy Saturday. Lows tonight will be in the upper 60s and low 70s. Highs will be in the low 80s behind the front to upper 90s ahead.

West Texas and the Panhandle expects showers and thunderstorms tonight with decreasing clouds and warmer temperatures Saturday. Lows tonight will be in the 50s and 60s. Highs Saturday will be in the 80s and 90s, except for 70s in the northern Panhandle and mountains.

South Texas expects partly to mostly cloudy skies with a chance for showers and thunderstorms. Lows will be in the 70s, with highs in the 90s.

Economy

U.S. jobless rate rises, while jobs growth slows

WASHINGTON (AP) - The unemployment rate rose to 4.6 percent and job growth slumped to its lowest level in nearly three years in September as the global economic crisis spread and deepened.

The seasonally adjusted rate, up from 4.5 percent during the three previous months, was the highest in six months, the Labor Department said today. It had hit a 28-year low of 4.3 percent in April and May.

Employers added only 69,000 jobs to their payrolls last month, down from 309,000 in August and the weakest figure since a blizzard in the Northeast forced businesses to cut payrolls in January 1996.

"The relatively weak September growth reflects an unusually small increase in services and job losses in manufacturing and construction," said Katharine G. Abraham, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Manufacturers cut payrolls by 16,000 jobs in September, the fifth decline in six months. During the period, factory employment increased only in August, reflecting a rebound following the General Motors strikes. Over the past six months, the sector has lost 152,000 jobs.

On Wall Street, the stock market extended its losses. The Dow Jones average of industrial stocks fell 13 points to 7,619 in the first half hour of trading. It had plunged more than 200 points in each of the previous two days.

The Commerce Department said orders to factories rose 0.9 percent in August, reflecting the poststrike rebound in autos and a surge in aircraft. Excluding transportation, orders fell 1.2 percent, the worst showing in three months.

Recession in Asia has hurt U.S. factories on two fronts. It has slashed sales in what was once one of their best export markets and, because of steep currency devaluations, forced them to compete against a flood of cheap imports pouring into the United States.

The biggest declines in September were recorded by makers of industrial machinery and electronic equipment.

"Together, these two trade-sensitive industries accounted for nearly 40 percent of total factory job loss since March," Abraham said.

Construction payrolls fell by 20,000 jobs, despite the fact the lowest interest rates in 30 years are supporting building. Much of the loss came in heavy construction.

Jobs in the computer industry, engineering and health care rose, but temporary help firms shed 44,000 positions. Retailers added 37,000 jobs, about average.

Services added just 24,000 jobs, about a fifth of the average monthly gain recently, suggesting the impact of the global slump in the United States may be starting to show up outside manufacturing.

In another sign of softness, the average work week fell to 34.4 hours from 34.6 hours in August.

Average hourly earnings rose only 1 cent, to $12.86, but that followed a strong 6-cent gain the month before and wages are up 4 percent from a year earlier.

Federal Reserve policy-makers, who cut short-term interest rates by a quarter percentage point this week to support U.S. economic growth, had been hesitating to cut rates earlier because of concern that strong wage growth would spur increased consumer price inflation.

September's report could leave room for further rate cuts. Despite the deterioration, labor markets still are strong by historical standards. The number of first-time claims for unemployment benefits fell to a five-month low of 289,000 last week.

And Abraham noted that the number of people working part time, who would prefer to work full time, stood at 3.4 million in September, down by 563,000 over the past year.

The unemployment rate last month edged higher for men, from 3.7 percent to 3.8 percent, for blacks, from 9 percent to 9.2 percent, and for teen-agers, from 15 percent to 15.4 percent.

It fell for women, from 4.1 percent to 4 percent; for Hispanics, from 7.5 percent to 7.4 percent, and for whites, from 4 percent to 3.9 percent.

By educational level, the September rate ranged from 6.9 percent for high-school dropouts to 4.1 percent for high-school graduates to 1.6 percent for college graduates.

Efforts of Greenspan, Rubin not working

WASHINGTON (AP) - Top financial officials of the United States and other countries are a blur of activity these days, constantly waging their attack on the global economic crisis - promising to stand by Brazil, jawboning U.S. investment houses to bail out a major hedge fund and dreaming up ways to overhaul the globe's financial architecture.

All this activity is designed to instill confidence in badly shaken world markets. The only trouble is that so far the effort isn't working.

The United States had its two economic superstars - Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan - out on the stump Thursday, and the market still plunged.

The Dow Jones average suffered its second straight loss of more than 200 points as investors fretted about whether other U.S. hedge funds could fail and worried about news indicating Japan is still mired in its worst recession in 50 years.

The market was falling as Rubin was telling investors gathered in a New York hotel that the United States will use international financial meetings that begin Saturday to press for reforms in the global financial system, including the International Monetary Fund.

The 182-nation IMF has been widely criticized for its handling of the crisis that began in Asia 15 months ago, has now spread to Russia and is threatening Latin America.

President Clinton, appearing at a Democratic fund-raiser in Washington late Thursday, urged continued U.S. support for the IMF despite Republican criticism, saying a stable international economy was key to prosperity for Americans.

"If the American people like this economic recovery we have, and they want it to go on, then we must recognize that 30 percent of it came from trade, and our ability to be strong and to lead the world depends upon our doing our part," Clinton said.

'If the American people like this economic recovery we have, and they want it to go on, then we must recognize that 30 percent of it came from trade ...'

- President Clinton

"That's a big issue in" November's congressional elections, he said. Rubin told his audience that finance officials from 22 nations who have been studying since last spring ways to overhaul the global financial system would present some preliminary recommendations Monday.

The proposals will be aimed at providing greater openness at the IMF, pushing countries to release better and more timely data on their economic conditions, improving banking regulation around the world and forcing multinational banks and wealthy investors to bear more of the pain when their investments in emerging markets suddenly go bad.

Meanwhile, Greenspan was assuring a congressional committee that Federal Reserve officials were right last week when they brokered a $3.6 billion bailout of Long-Term Capital Management LP by private banks and investment houses, arguing that if the investment hedge fund had been allowed to fail it could have produced disastrous ripple effects through the U.S. financial system.

Underscoring worries about a potential credit crunch, the Fed released a survey Thursday that showed the nation's largest banks have begun hesitating about making loans because of growing worries about risks.

Wall Street is worried about whether loans to businesses, the fuel that spurs economic growth, could start drying up.

'We just decided that everybody knows what's going on about the story so let's just be the one place in the world where people can go and not hear about it.'

- Gary Bryan, KJR Radio program director

Had enough? Try Monica-free zone

WASHINGTON (AP) - Escape the Clinton-Lewinsky drone. Tune to a Seattle radio station that has declared itself a Clinton-free zone. Read a news release stamped "100% Monica-Free." Pick up a newspaper from Portugal, where news organizations are voluntarily censoring coverage of the president's private life.

Even Monica Free, a homemaker from Waterloo Iowa, hopes the news will soon reflect her name.

"It's a mess. People are weary of it all," Mrs. Free says. "I don't like it at all."

At isolated spots around the country and the world, the plea is being heard.

In Seattle, KJR 95.7 FM, a classic hits station, has banned the word "Clinton" from the air. When a caller or disc jockey slips, a game-show buzzer sounds, a cash register clanks "cha-ching" and the radio station drops $10 into a children's charity fund. The balance is $370.

"We're going to do it until he's out of office," said program director Gary Bryan.

"We just decided that everybody knows what's going on about the story so let's just be the one place in the world where people can go and not hear about it."

Sometimes, though, it's hard to go cold turkey.

At the Country Music Association awards recently in Nashville, host Vince Gill got a laugh when he reassured the crowd at the Grand Ole Opry that they could escape the Lewinsky story for the next three hours.

But later in the show, he slipped and nominated the much-profiled Ms. Lewinsky for the annual Horizon Award, recognizing progress in one's career.

Sometimes, the Monica-free zone is unintentional. Bob Brewin, a writer for Federal Computer Week, didn't mention the affair for six months. But then in June, he wrote that the Lewinsky hoopla had delayed the nomination and confirmation of a senior Pentagon official.

"Ah, I finally managed to get her name into this newspaper, which has, until now, been one of the few Monica-free zones on the planet," he wrote.

Ms. Lewinsky's notoriety may even be leading new parents to establish Monica-Free zones at home.

Last year, 103 baby girls born in New Jersey were named Monica, compared with 49 during the first seven months of this year, a statewide count of birth certificates showed. That would be a drop of 18 percent if the same pace held up through the end of the year.

"Obviously, you can draw an inference," said state registrar Don Lipira.

America's preoccupation with the Lewinsky-Clinton affair so frustrated the Washington-based Alliance for Better Campaigns that it stamped "100% Monica-Free" in red ink on the front of envelopes in which it sent out a recent news release.

"There are many who are frustrated that they can't get their agenda on the nation's agenda or the media's agenda," said Paul Taylor, director of the alliance. "This was a lark at the last minute - a way to tweak members of the tribe, as the press is called."

Sympathetic to Monica-weary readers, The State Journal-Register in Springfield, Ill., gave readers a Monica-free day. That was back in February when the story was just a month old. The paper didn't even run a "Doonesbury" comic that would have violated the one-day blackout. Newspapers overseas are going a step further.

A German newspaper, Hamburg Morgenpost, expressed its disgust with coverage of the president's private life by recently running two pages that were blank except for headlines that said "Clinton's porno hearing" and "Not with us!"

State regulators review voice-dial feature
Replacement options available for existing customers

HOUSTON (AP) - State regulators are studying whether to save Voice Dial, a special phone service that has been a commercial bust but is a valuable tool for the disabled.

Southwestern Bell wants to end the service, but has delayed hanging up on Voice Dial users while the regulators conduct their study.

Voice Dial lets callers dial numbers by speaking a word or name into the phone. Southwestern Bell believes the service doesn't have enough subscribers to make it worth keeping, a spokeswoman told the Houston Chronicle on Thursday.

But the Texas Public Utility Commission announced recently that it had received complaints from people who are disabled and unable to dial phone numbers with their fingers.

"Because of the nature of the service, it's very valuable to the people who are using it," said commission spokeswoman Leslie Kjellstrand.

Kjellstrand said the commission's staff originally recommended giving Bell the go-ahead to disconnect Voice Dial. But after receiving a handful of complaints, commissioners asked the staff to study the issue again.

Voice Dial, first offered two years ago for $4 a month, originally was touted as a convenience. It hasn't caught on with the general public, but it has become popular with people who don't have use of their hands or otherwise can't dial a phone.

"Voice Dial has required a significant investment by Southwestern Bell, and this year we were going to have to make additional investments to the service," said company spokeswoman Lisa Ward. "But Bell has not recouped its original investment."

Ms. Ward said the company is offering Voice Dial subscribers other alternatives, such as two free months of Speed Dial service or an $84 Uniden phone with built-in voice-dialing capabilities.

Voice Dial works by letting people record words that are associated with numbers. When they say the word, the phone dials the number. The service is prone to errors, however.

One woman told the commission that her mother, a stroke victim, accidentally summoned the police to her house recently.

"My mother said 'Calvin' into the phone and it dialed 911," said Karen Askins.

Bell turned the service off Thursday in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas after receiving regulatory approval in those states.

Chrysler vows to appeal $80 million judgement

Company blames alterations as cause for fiery auto crash

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) - Lawyers for Chrysler blasted jurors who reached an $80 million judgment this week against the automaker and vowed to appeal the ruling.

A Starr County jury made the award for compensatory damages Tuesday to relatives of Christopher and Donna Kiefer, who were killed in a fiery crash in 1996. The jury rejected punitive damages sought by the families.

Chrysler lawyers said the jury ignored evidence that the fire could have been caused by alterations made to the truck by Christopher Kiefer and the truck's previous owner.

"The owner had taken a hammer to the fuel system, replaced the original gas cap with a 40-year-old model that didn't fit, and was driving around with at least 40 gallons of gas in worn out World War II vintage containers," Chrysler attorney Ken Gluckman said.

Gluckman called the verdict "a complete abdication of personal responsibility."

But a lawyer for the relatives - Christopher Kiefer's children, Daniel and Kimberly, his mother, Alvina Kiefer, and Donald Hill, Donna Kiefer's father - said the jury followed the evidence.

The award "showed that Chrysler's conduct was not only improper but also criminal, and it killed two very nice people who did not have to die," said Mikal Watts.

Watts said the fire was caused when the driveline punctured the fuel tank and the fuel filler cap was peeled off. He said none of the alterations made to the truck affected the fuel system, which he called defective.

"The fuel tank that was punctured was in the same condition as when they sold it," Watts said. "Nothing changed about the design of the fuel system."

Chrysler lawyers said there was no evidence that the fuel tank was punctured.

In June 1996, the Kiefers were driving from California to Costa Rica, where they planned to retire. Their Dodge Power Wagon pickup truck was struck by a car driven by Sergio Rodriguez on U.S. Highway 83 near and caught fire, and the Kiefers burned to death.

The family members sued Chrysler for product liability and Rodriguez for negligence. The jury found Chrysler 80 percent responsible and assigned 20 percent of the blame to Rodriguez. Under Texas law, however, Chrysler could be responsible for the entire amount, Watts said.

Rodriguez was convicted of criminally negligent homicide in connection with the accident but has been awarded a new trial.

This week's verdict was not the largest ever against the automaker. Last year a South Carolina federal jury handed down a $262.5 million verdict against the company.

Driver charged in fatal Highway 60 accident

TRAGIC ACCIDENT - A Hereford woman and her 18-month-old son were killed in this April collision when her parked car was hit from behind on U.S. Highway 60, just west of the Dawn community.

A 46-year-old Amarillo man has been charged with two counts of criminal homicide in connection with an April 24 vehicle accident that killed two Hereford residents.

Ronald Lee Hooks was indicted last week, but had not yet been arrested, so his name was not released. He was arrested Wednesday.

The charges stem from an April 24 accident on U.S. Hwy. 60, when a 1994 Dodge pickup, owned by Amarillo Coca-Cola and reportedly driven by Hooks, slammed into the rear of a 1991 Pontiac which was parked on the shoulder of the highway.

Two Hereford residents, Clarissa Villarreal, 17, and her 18-month-old son, Ethan Villarreal, were pronounced dead at the scene. The owner and driver of the Pontiac, Deborah McClung, was treated at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Hooks was released on $5,000 bond, set by District Judge Wes Gully.

According to the personnel director of the Amarillo Coca-Cola office, Hooks is still employed with the company, although he is no longer driving a company vehicle.

Attorneys cheated, swindler sentenced

HOUSTON (AP) - Kelvin Johnson will be behind bars for at least the next five years.

Now, if his keepers can just keep him away from the telephone.

Prosecutors say Johnson has made a living bilking personal-injury lawyers in Texas and three other states by posing as a down-on-his-luck oil-rig worker.

After his conviction on a theft charge, Harris County jurors took about a half-hour Thursday to set Johnson's punishment at 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. He must serve at least five years before he's eligible for parole.

It's Johnson's fourth conviction for conning attorneys with his tales of woe, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

"This guy was just like the little bunny on television," prosecutor Harry Lawrence said. "He just kept going and going and going."

Lawrence said Johnson always used a variation on the same theme to steal about $20,000 from 10 lawyers - two from Houston, two from Lafayette, La., two from St. Louis, and one each from Austin, Marshall, San Antonio, and Little Rock, Ark.

Johnson would pretend to have been injured in an oil-rig accident, then tell lawyers he had already had operations, was about to have surgery on his back and all his money was gone.

He would say he was behind on his rent, his lights were about to be shut off and that he and his wife had children to feed.

He met with the lawyers or called them late in the day so they couldn't check out his story. He would hire them to represent him in a lawsuit and persuade them to give him anywhere from $100 to $4,000.

"Anybody who preys on the system, whether it's these sort of scam artists or illegitimate claims, hurts not only the integrity of the system but people who are legitimately injured and seeking proper redress under the law," said Gary Pitts, a Houston attorney victimized by the scam.

"He'll probably get access to a phone in prison and make lots more money."

Lawrence said Johnson was convincing because he had worked on an oil rig once and knew the jargon of the oil field. He actually had settled a personal injury claim of his own for $75,000 in 1991 and knew what a lawyer would want to hear.

Johnson even conned one of the Louisiana lawyers into sending him money while in jail. After getting out on bail, he conned the two Missouri lawyers, one of whom came to Houston and put Johnson up in an expensive hotel.

Lawrence said Johnson used at least seven different aliases in the scams. He eventually was nabbed in a sting operation after several of the lawyers reported the swindle.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was impressed with a poem I read in your column many years ago. The message of being true to one's self is one we need to hear again and again. That poem made a big difference in my life. It was called "The Man in the Glass." Please print it again for those who missed it. This time, I'll cut it out and put it in my wallet. -- E.F. in Topeka, Kan.

Dear E.F.: The poem that made a big difference in your life was written by a man who died at the age of 24. The poem was sent to me by his sister. Here is the letter:

Dear Ann Landers: My dear brother died a few months ago. He was only 24. After years of struggling with a drug habit, he finally decided he needed treatment, but it was too late. His body was shot.

He wrote this poem when he was drug-free. I hope you will find it suitable to publish in your column. (Please don't use his name.) -- Sister of a Great Guy (Louisiana)

Dear Sister: The poem is very moving. Your brother was a talented and insightful young man -- humble and honest. Here's his poem: The Man in the Glass

When you get what you want in your struggle for self,
 And the world makes you king for a day,

Just go to the mirror and look at yourself,
 And see what THAT man has to say.

For it isn't your father or mother or wife
 Whose judgment upon you must pass.

The fellow whose verdict counts most in your life

Is the one staring back from the glass.

Some people might think you're a straight-shootin' chum

And call you a wonderful guy.

But the man in the glass says you're only a bum,

If you can't look him straight in the eye.

He's the fellow to please, never mind all the rest,

For he's with you clear up to the end.

And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test

If the guy in the glass is your friend.

You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years,

And get pats on the back as you pass.

But your final reward will be heartaches and tears

If you've cheated the man in the glass.

Dear Ann Landers: Are you sick and tired of hearing from disgruntled bridesmaids? I hope you will print one more letter. I have a message for bridesmaids who complain about the expense of buying pink dresses with shoes to match.

I was married a year ago and went out of my way to accommodate my bridesmaids. Those who accepted were told they could choose the style of dress they wanted from the six or seven I liked. Only one showed up at my house to make a selection. I found a seamstress who would make the dresses at a reasonable price ($60 each), and I bought the material.

Then, I found a wholesale shoe store that sold me the matching shoes (already dyed) for $13 a pair. Each bridesmaid had a total bill of $73.

If they hate their dresses, too bad. And what they do with them after the wedding is no concern of mine. If a friend doesn't want to make the small sacrifice, she should say, "Sorry, no," when asked to be in the wedding party. If she agrees to accept the honor, she should buy the dress and shoes and shut up. -- No Name in Fla.

Dear No Name: You sound like a practical (and tough) lady, but I can't argue with a thing you've said. Your last line is worth repeating, so I'll do just that: If she agrees to accept the honor, she should buy the dress and shoes and shut up.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.)

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
Rev. Robert Turner, director of the Wesley Foundation at West Texas A&M in Canyon, will preach on Sunday with the topic "Honor, Honor, Honor Your Pastor." The scripture lesson is 1 Thessalonians 5:12-13. Pre-service music "Apple-Red Happiness" will be sung by the Sunshine Choir, and the morning anthem will be "The Travelin' Band" presented by the Sanctuary Choir. "Sweet Beulah Land" is the offertory to be sung by a vocal ensemble.

A special communion offering will be taken to benefit the WTAMU Wesley Foundation.

The annual Sunday School Scramble gets underway Sunday with each class encouraged to compete for attendance awards each week for the months of October and November. An awards luncheon will be held at the end of the contest to recognize the classes in all age groups who have had the best attendance percentage for these two months.

The Grayce Gray Circle of United Methodist Women will meet upstairs in Room 20/Conference at 8 a.m. Sunday for study and fellowship. The recently formed group has been named in honor of Grayce Gary, long-time secretary of the children's department.

The United Methodist Youth Fellowship are scheduled to meet in Fellowship Hall on Sunday, beginning with a snack supper at 6:30 p.m. followed by study sessions for the junior and senior highs.

HEREFORD CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

The Nazarene congregation invites you to hear and enjoy our pastor, Ted Taylor, speak at our worship service Sunday at 10:30 a.m. on "Hesitancy to Follow God's Will," from Acts 9. All Sunday school classes begin at 9:30 a.m. and we have a class for all ages. For a few more weeks, Mary Jo Hamman's senior adult class will be taught by Dr. C.E. Rush.

Mark Andrew's class of young couples is beginning a new series "Marriage on the Rock," written by Jimmy Evans (Trinity Fellowship).

Sunday from 4-8 p.m., Pastor Ted will teach the first in a monthly series, "The Bible for Dummies, 101." Get to know the Old Testament in one 4-hour seminar.

Wednesday night Pastor Ted will lead our study of "Biblical Solutions to Life's Problems" in the new Fellowship Hall.

The Grief Recovery Group will meet a 7 p.m. in Jim Pope's office. The class is led by Stan and Karen Solomon and is open to the community.

Weigh Down Workshop, led by Kaye Hansard, will meet at 9:30 a.m. Sunday in the Disciple Class (Sally's office). There are new videos and new lessons.

Just a reminder that Susie's Bible Study Class will resume at 10 a.m. on Oct. 13.

Pastor Carol invites all children to join her Sunday morning at 10:30 in the new building for Children's Church. Her lesson is "Teaching Others by Our Words." If you need a ride, call the church office at 364-8303.

Teens, join us Sunday evening for Club Paradise with music, Good Morning America, Giveaways, etc. This will be followed by a special service, "The Healthy Body," Sunday Night Live at Jim's. Also join us Wednesday at 7 p.m. for Club Paradise, "Living on the E.D.G.E."

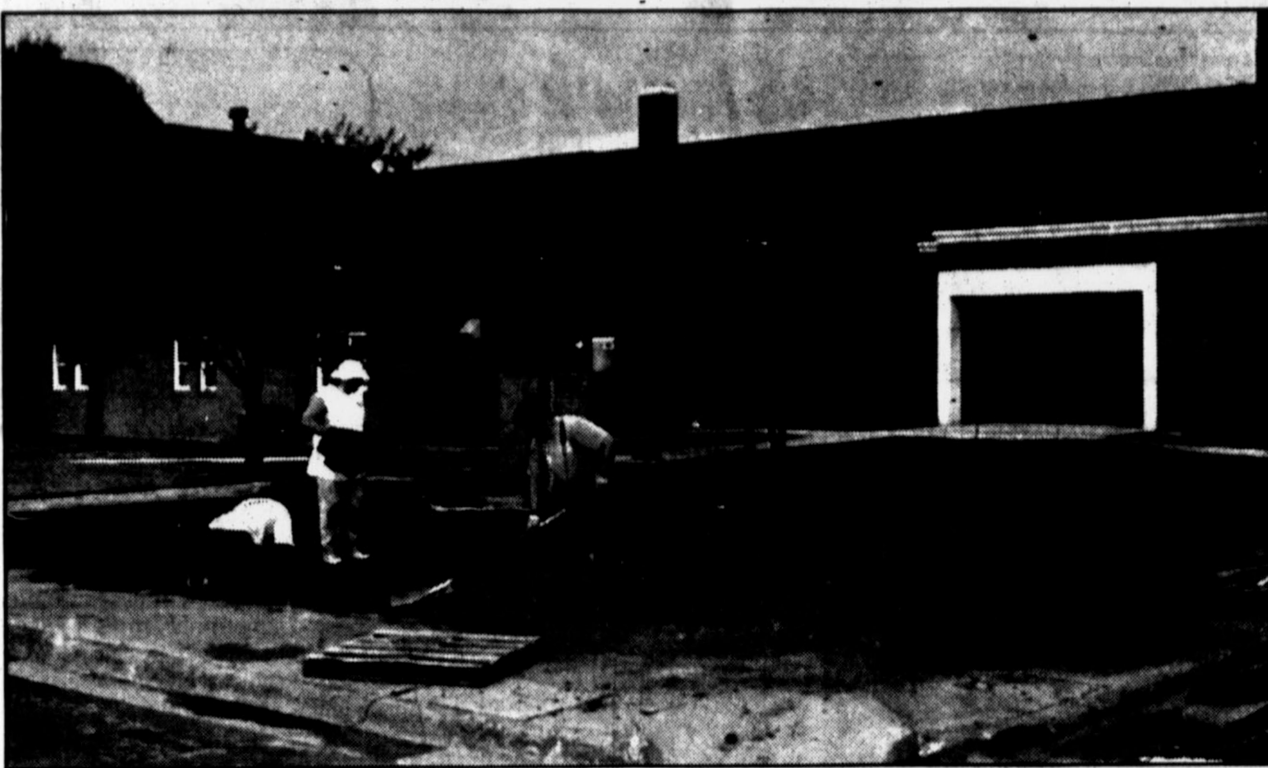

Join us at Nazarene Kid's Korner Day Care on Wednesdays and Fridays for the fun, games and outings we enjoy. For more information call Brandi Martinez at 364-8161.

FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

At the Fellowship of Believers there are no pews. This is by design. Having no pews invites variety and creativity in the use of the worship space. That space can be used for dining, dancing, recitals, workshops, movie-viewing and anything else that might enhance human community.

Church architecture, design and decorating speaks volumes about the theology of that particular church. The pastor, Nathan L. Stone, Ph.D., will reflect on this matter in a Communion meditation he is calling, "The Center of all Church Architecture."

FOB is independent, innovative inclusive, interdenominational and ecumenical. Our goal is to do whatever it takes to love the whole, wide, world into union with God and one another. One small expression of this goal is that all who worship this Sunday are urged to bring food items for the Hereford Food Pantry. Butch

Let there be grass

A lawn "appeared" at First United Methodist Church Wednesday as a crew from Landscape Concepts sodded the area where a sprinkler system was recently installed.

White or his designee will see that the food is delivered to the pantry.

A unique Sunday School program for the children begins at 9:30. Self-expression and creativity are underscored. One special goal is to encourage cross-cultural thinking and activities.

In "Forum," FOB's notion of Sunday school for adults and young people, the pastor continues to review Gellman and Hartman's 1995 book on world religions entitled, How Do You Spell God? This week the forum will wonder out loud about "Why does God have to have a name?" -- "What question does each religion want to answer the most?" -- and, "Who are the big teachers?"

Good food, coffee and neighborly conversation are served-up at 9:15. Let the smell of fresh coffee guide you to 245 North Kingwood (at Moreman), next door to Hereford Care Center.

A supervised nursery is available at all services. Please do not forget "MOVIE NIGHT", Wednesday, Oct. 14 at 6 p.m. Popcorn will be popped and served by world-renowned popcorn connoisseur, Clint Formby.

ST. THOMAS' EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The Rev. James Mock of Plainview will officiate at St. Thomas' on the 18th Sunday After Pentecost. There will be a special program in the parlor at 9:30 a.m. He will show a video of the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. The Holy Eucharist, Rite II, will be celebrated at 11 a.m. There is a coffee hour after the service. Supervised nursery care is provided during the worship hour.

The regular Wednesday Public Service of Healing is at 7 p.m. and includes the Litany of Healing with the Laying-on-of-Hands, along with the Service of Evening Prayer.

Intercessory prayer requests from the community are most welcome. To have them included in the prayers of the people at all services, please call 364-0146 and leave a message.

Heavenly Treasures Day Care meets at St. Thomas' on Thursdays and Fridays. For information on enrollment, please call Sylvia Martinez at 364-6468. In case of emergency call Amy Gilliland at 364-2211.

If you want more information about the Episcopal Church, call Earl Brookhart at 364-0249.

CHRISTIAN ASSEMBLY

We have been extremely blessed over many weeks now to have so many people sharing what the Lord is doing in their lives, and what He is revealing to them. It has been inspiring everyone to seek even more to see what the Lord is saying daily. We are being equipped to be "overcomers." Revelation 12:11 is truly coming to life for us.

Christian Assembly is a non-denominational church. We have Sunday services at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Wednesday nights at 7 there is a prayer service at the church, and the Bible study group BU4 HIM. The prayer service is now a "prayer group" (one or two of these groups get a quiet well.)

The ladies prayer group meets on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at 2.

We don't do "prayer." We don't do "prayer." We aren't all the same. We are all alike in wanting to be close to God and love Him. So, if you are looking to join us in worship and praise to the Lord, you can also call 364-5674, 364-2284 or 364-5722 for more information.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Oct. 2, the 275th day of 1998. There are 90 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 2, 1944, Nazi troops crushed the 2-month-old Warsaw Uprising, during which 250,000 people were killed.

On this date:

In 1780, British spy John Andre was hanged in Tappan, N.Y.

In 1835, the first battle of the Texas Revolution took place as American settlers defeated a Mexican cavalry near the Guadalupe River.

In 1869, political and spiritual leader Mohandas K. Gandhi was born in Porbandar, India.

In 1890, comedian Groucho Marx was born in New York.

In 1941, German armies began Operation Typhoon - an all-out drive against Moscow.

In 1950, the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles M. Schulz, was first published in nine newspapers.

In 1958, the former French colony of Guinea in West Africa proclaimed its independence.

In 1967, Thurgood Marshall was sworn in as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court; he was the first black appointed to the nation's highest court.

In 1985, actor Rock Hudson died at his home in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 59 after a battle with AIDS.

Ten years ago: The Summer Olympic Games concluded in Seoul, South Korea, with the Soviet Union coming in first in the medals count, East Germany second, and the United States, third.

Five years ago: Hundreds of opponents of Russian President Boris Yeltsin battled police in Moscow and set up burning barricades in the biggest clash of Russia's 12-day-old political crisis.

One year ago: President Clinton proposed sending inspectors to farms around the world to ensure that foreign-grown fruits and vegetables are safe for American consumers. The president also said he would ask Congress to empower the Food and Drug Administration to ban produce from countries whose safety precautions do not meet American standards.

Today's Birthdays: Country singer-musician Leon Rausch (Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys) is 71. Former Dodgers shortstop Maury Wills is 66. Movie critic Rex Reed is 60. Flu shots, other immunizations offered at THD office-Hereford

Texas Department of Health office, 300 Witherspoon, will offer influenza shots again this year.

Shots will be given Monday and Tuesday from 8 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m.

Flu shots will also be available on Thursdays when regular immunizations are offered. The immunization clinic offers vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases including polio, diphtheria, lock jaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps, and HIB (haemophilus influenzae Type B).

The Texas Department of Health is charging money to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. The amount of money charged will be based on family income and size, and the ability to pay.

SURPRISE, SURPRISE

NICK WHATLEY of Hereford heads upfield with the opening kickoff last Friday night as a raiding party of Canyon Randall defenders gives chase. Running with Whatley is Whiteface teammate Gilbert Hernandez (22). Whatley returned the kickoff 98 yards for Hereford's first touchdown in their 27-5 nondistrict win.

Herd, Canyon to square off tonight in Panhandle battle of pleasant surprises

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer

Neither coach expresses surprise at the success of the other's team. But that's just coachspeak, right? Or are both Canyon and Hereford for real?

In what could be dubbed as the Which Team Is Really for Real Bowl, the Eagles and the Whitefaces -- two longtime District 1-4A rivals -- will matchup in a nondistrict game tonight at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in Canyon.

"I think both teams have proven some things," Hereford coach Craig Yenzler said. "We still have some things to prove. . . . I think we're both for real. We both want just one more positive thing to happen before district."

The game couldn't be more diametrically opposed to the one the two teams played last year to end the season for both teams. Both Canyon and Hereford went into that game with 2-7 records. Canyon emerged a 17-10 winner.

But after four weeks in 1998, it's a whole other ballgame. Hereford is a surprising 3-1, and Canyon is 4-0.

"I think every coach has it in the back of his mind that he'd like to win every game," Canyon coach Bill Patterson said. "And certainly, things are much happier when you do."

Well, happy days are here again -- in both Canyon and Hereford. Patterson said, if anything, he may be more surprised by Canyon's success than Hereford's.

"I knew coach Yenzler would have a good team," Patterson said. "They've been building and building over there. They're a playoff team now. They're a team that's going to go to the playoffs and probably play a couple of games. They're a legitimate contender for the district title in that district."

Patterson's optimistic forecast for the Whitefaces may take many by surprise, but what may have been the biggest surprise of the season to date came last Friday when the Eagles beat Borger -- a team that had upset state-ranked Sweetwater in Sweetwater the previous week -- 24-17 in overtime.

So what gives -- why are these two teams so good all of a sudden?

"I think with young kids, the experience of being out there is a big deal," Patterson said. "That's a big part of it. We're improving every week."

The Eagles have won their first four games with one of the area's leading offenses and a stingy defense.

Offensively, Canyon is averaging 326.0 yards per game, and can hurt you both on the ground and through the air. Canyon is averaging 199.3 yards rushing and 126.7 passing.

Cody Kidd is back at quarterback for the Eagles. The 6-1, 170-pound senior is 29-for-54 for 507 yards and two touchdowns with no interceptions.

"Cody Kidd -- the quarterback -- has done a nice job," Yenzler said. "He seems to open things up for their offense. . . . He puts it right on the money. That's a concern. Their three-step passing game really is a concern overall."

Ditto, said Patterson. "There's no question he's improved," he said. "He's done a really good job for us offensively. And he's become a real leader."

Also featured in the backfield for the Eagles are fullback Chris Scott and returning senior tailback Brady Hukins. Hukins is Canyon's leading rusher four games into the season with 504 yards on 103 carries -- a 4.9-yard average. Hukins has three rushing touchdowns.

"Hukins is running hard," Yenzler said. "Will James will come in, and I believe he's the one that busted the long run against Borger. He's the sprinter. They've got some speed back there."

Hereford counters offensively with an attack that has Patterson and the Eagles guessing. Which to stop -- the run or the pass?

"They can do both," he said. "We haven't played anybody that can consistently do both like they can. It's kind of like choose your poison. . . . We'll have to be ready to adjust."

The Whitefaces are one of the few area teams with more yards through the air than on the ground. Hereford

THE GAME -- Hereford (3-1) vs. Canyon (4-0) at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

THE COACHES -- Hereford: Craig Yenzler, 3rd year. Canyon: Bill Patterson, third year.

THE OFFENSES -- Hereford: I-formation; Canyon: I-formation.

THE DEFENSES -- Hereford: 5-2; Canyon: 4-4.

THE INJURIES -- Hereford: Leo Balderaz -- out (sprained knee), Joe Mendoza -- out (back). Canyon: "We're pretty beat up coming out of the Borger game," Patterson said. "It'll be a kickoff decision for five or six guys."

THE REAL REAL TEAM -- Actually, they both are. Now neither Canyon nor Hereford is ready to challenge for a Class 4A title, but they are much improved teams from 1997 and they've done it pretty much the same way -- young kids with not much varsity experience experiencing success and gaining confidence.

THE GRADES: Grades for the first six weeks came out and both teams didn't do too badly. Canyon had no one flunk, according to Patterson. Hereford lost four players, but only one starter. Nick Whatley -- of the 98-yard kickoff return for a touchdown against Canyon Randall, as well as a blocked punt -- was a victim.

THE OUTLOOK -- Both offenses will present challenges for the opposing defenses. Canyon and Hereford can both throw, but Canyon has the edge in the ground game. The key to the game will probably lie in Canyon's rushing game keeping the Hodges on the bench for as much time as possible. If they can't, and the Eagles play loose in the secondary, the Hodges combination can burn the Eagles. Canyon will have to do better than drop into a Cover-3.

is averaging 280.0 yards per game in total offense -- 128.3 rushing and 151.7 passing.

Keying the Hereford offense are a pair of sophomores -- twin brothers Cody Hodges and Slade Hodges. Quarterback Cody Hodges is 46-for-69 with a pair of touchdowns and two interceptions. Slade Hodges is tied atop the District 3-4A receiving statistics with 16 catches for 301 yards.

Against Canyon Randall last Friday -- a 27-5 Hereford win -- the Hereford passing game was grounded by a running game that finally broke out of a three-week funk and registered 220 yards on 39 attempts. The Whitefaces threw only six times against

Astros tie series with 5-4 win over Padres

HOUSTON (AP) -- The Houston Astros needed a bit more than the Killer B's to gain a split with the San Diego Padres.

After Houston blew the lead in the ninth inning, Bill Spiers' RBI single with one out lifted the Astros to a wild 5-4 win over the Padres on Thursday, tying their first-round playoff series 1-1.

The Astros took a 4-2 lead into the ninth thanks to the B's -- Jeff Bagwell, Craig Biggio and Derek Bell -- but Billy Wagner allowed a two-out, two-run homer to pinch-hitter Jim Leyritz.

Then in the bottom half, Dan Miceli gave up Ricky Gutierrez's infield single to shortstop leading off. Brad Ausmus sacrificed, Trevor Hoffman relieved, and Gutierrez stole third base uncontested. Spiers followed with a single to right on a 1-2 count.

"We thought if we could just hold 'em, the game was still tied and we could get the game-winning run," Spiers said.

Wagner, who got the win, was shaky down the stretch, blowing consecutive save chances against the Mets last month by allowing homers to Brian McRae and Mike Piazza.

"Billy has done a heck of a job all year," Spiers said. "You have to give a lot of credit to Leyritz. . . . He battled and fought off some good pitches and was able to get a pitch to hit for a home run."

Wagner threw eight straight fastballs to Leyritz, including a 98 mph pitch that Leyritz sent over the right-field fence.

Wagner, who converted 30 of 35 save opportunities in the regular season, allowed Ken Caminiti's single with one out in the ninth ahead of Leyritz's clutch post-season homer.

While with the New York Yankees in 1996, Leyritz hit a dramatic three-run, eighth-inning homer against Atlanta's Mark Wohlers to tie Game 4 of the World Series at 6. The Yankees went on to win in 10 innings and defeated the Braves in six games.

The previous year, his 15th-inning home run off Tim Lincecum won Game 2 of the Yankees' first-round series against Seattle.

Port Neches twins are double trouble

By KENTON BROOKS
Beaumont Enterprise
PORT NECHES -- The high school football scrimmage had just finished when all of the coaches met to shake hands and talk.

One opposing coach sought out Alvin Credeur, the Port Neches-Groves wide receivers coach.

"That's a good wide receiver you've got there," he said. "Which one?"

"You know, the one who caught all of the passes against us."

Credeur knew then what the coach was talking about. It wasn't one receiver, but actually identical twin brothers Cody and Jody Coburn.

"He thought it was the same guy catching passes," said Credeur. "He still doesn't know it was two different wide receivers."

Cody, the older of the two by just six minutes, and Jody stopped playing the game of trying to pass one off as the other in the fifth grade.

Now, the senior duo are too busy going out for passes at the same time for the undefeated Indians. Jody has more catches (16 to Cody's 12), but Cody has more yardage (296 to 284). They are first and second among the District 20-4A receivers -- the Port Neches-Groves version of Double Trouble.

Even Credeur still gets them mixed up from time to time. "We'll be at practice and I'll start talking to one of them about something," he said, "and that's when I find out I'm saying it to the wrong one."

"I can tell the difference by the numbers they wear. Jody wears No. 1 and Cody No. 3. After being around them a little bit, I can tell which one is which. Cody is a little bigger."

Cody is an inch taller, but both weigh 190 pounds. Otherwise, they are so similar they seem to blend together as one on the field. They have the same kind of speed, size and pass-catching ability the PN-G coaches rave about.

Being twins also fuels the competitive fire in both players. They readily talk about their sibling rivalry.

"We try to outdo each other week to week," said Cody. "We want to see who has the most yards and most catches in the game. When it gets right down to it, though, we really don't care who does better as long as we win. Winning comes first."

Port Neches-Groves hopes to get another win Friday when it plays at home against rival Thomas Jefferson in another 20-4A game. If one of the twins has a better game, that's all right too. They don't tease each other about it -- for very long.

"It's cool to be a twin," said Jody. "We like the same things. We even think alike."

Texas Supreme Court to hear arguments in Tech case

By RENAE MERLE
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN -- The Texas Supreme Court will hear arguments in December concerning a Texas Tech football player who was ruled ineligible for academic reasons in 1996.

A lower court granted offensive lineman Casey Jones a temporary injunction that allowed him to finish out the 1996 season. The National Collegiate Athletic Association appealed, but the 7th Court of Appeals in Amarillo refused to act on the case since the season was over.

Now, the NCAA wants the Supreme Court to rule that the appeals court was wrong. Even though the season is over, the NCAA says the injunction was improper and wants to be able to take action against the university. The Supreme Court said Thursday it will hear arguments on Dec. 8.

"Ultimately, we want a finding that the temporary injunction that permitted Jones to play was improperly granted," said Todd Lafferty, attorney for the NCAA.

The NCAA is not trying to punish Tech, but wants to be fair to the teams it played against, Lafferty said.

Lafferty added that if the Supreme Court rules in favor of the NCAA and the Jones injunction is lifted, disciplinary options include forcing Tech to forfeit games in which Jones played.

"We're delighted that they will hear this case," said Wally Renfro, NCAA spokesman. "We think it's

AREA HAPPENINGS

Canyon JV routs Hereford, 35-8

From staff reports
Canyon jumped out to 14-0 lead after the first quarter and went on to claw Hereford 35-8 in junior varsity football Thursday night at Whiteface Stadium.

The Eagles added a pair of touchdowns in the second quarter and took a 26-0 margin into the intermission.

The Whitefaces scored their only touchdown of the night on a touchdown pass from Travis Nash to Tony Lopez. Nash connected with Kyle Arthro for the two-point conversion.

The Hereford junior varsity will travel to Dumas Thursday, Kickoff will be at 7 p.m.

Lady Eagles beat Bible Heritage

From staff reports
AMARILLO -- The Nazarene Christian Academy Lady Eagles defeated Bible Heritage Academy 15-5, 15-2 in volleyball Thursday.

Alyssa Hill led the Lady Eagles with seven service points -- including three aces. Whitnee Goforth added six service points, and Lauren Torbert had five and Amanda Smith four for the Lady Eagles.

NCA is now 8-2 on the season. In the "B" match, NCA also won, 15-3, 15-1. Melissa Tarwin had 12 service points to lead the Lady Eagles. Chelsea Walker added seven and Amy Northcutt recorded five service points for NCA.

The Lady Eagles will travel to Slaton Tuesday to play St. Joseph's.

Dumas 7th sweeps HJHS teams

From staff reports
DUMAS -- Jeffery Gomez scored Hereford's only touchdown in the third quarter on a 60-yard run as Dumas downed the Whitefaces 14-8 in seventh-grade "A" football Tuesday.

Gomez also added the two-point conversion.

Dumas scored touchdowns in the second and third quarters.

In the "B" game, Dumas won, 40-0.

The Hereford seventh-grade teams will travel to Pampa next Tuesday. The "B" game will kickoff at 5 p.m. and "A" game will follow at 6:30 p.m.

Leyland quits Fish, new Rockies skip?

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI -- For the Florida Marlins, the latest loss was their most costly. Jim Leyland resigned as manager Thursday, four days after Florida finished the worst season in the National League since 1969. His departure completes the breakup of a team that won the World Series last year but lost 108 games this year.

At 53, Leyland wants to manage a contender in 1999, rather than spend several seasons rebuilding. The Colorado Rockies phoned Leyland on Thursday and list him as the No. 1 candidate for their vacancy, and the Los Angeles Dodgers and Detroit Tigers also are looking for managers.

Leyland said he doesn't know where he'll work next season, but as expected, it won't be in Miami. He had erroneously predicted that his decision to leave would "shock the world."

"I think this is a major shock," Leyland insisted from his home in Pittsburgh. "I really believe some of the coaches and players thought at the end of the day that I was going to make a decision to stay."

But due to the state of the Marlins, Leyland's departure was widely anticipated. Founding owner H. Wayne Huizenga has been trying to sell the franchise for 15 months, and prospective new owner John Henry says it may be several years before the team can contend for another title.

"I had to determine whether I was willing to go at the pace the new ownership is going to set," Leyland said. "I decided I didn't want to do that."

Henry said he told Leyland that the Marlins will likely continue to struggle until they can increase revenue in a new stadium.

"It was difficult to make any case for a change in our competitiveness without the need for a new ballpark being resolved," Henry said.

Public feuding between Henry and Huizenga, which caused a snag in their negotiations last weekend, may have also figured in Leyland's decision.

General manager Dave Dombrowski, a source of franchise stability after signing a five-year contract extension last month, is expected to move quickly in seeking a replacement. Candidates include John Boles, the Marlins' manager for the second half of 1996 and now vice president of player development, and Fredi Gonzalez, manager of Florida's Triple-A affiliate in Charlotte.

The Rockies immediately began courting Leyland.

"He's the only one we've talked to," owner Jerry McMorris said. "I wouldn't say he's the only candidate, but he's at the top of our list."

Further conversations are planned next week. McMorris has the financial wherewithal to contend, and he and Leyland are good friends. But high-scoring games in Denver's thin air are a drawback to the job, Leyland said.

Astros

It was the Astros' 28th victory in their last at-bat. It was also the seventh one-run game the teams have played this year, including San Diego's 2-1 victory in the series opener Tuesday.

"It takes an awful lot of pressure off," Houston manager Larry Dierker added.

The series shifts to San Diego's Qualcomm Stadium for games Saturday night and Sunday. Left-handers Mike Hampton (11-7) of Houston and Sterling Hitchcock (9-7) are scheduled to start Game 3.

The Astros had taken control of the game thanks to the Killer B's, who finally lived up to their nickname.

Bagwell drove in Houston's first three runs and Biggio scored twice. Bell rifled a 3-1 pitch from former Astros reliever Donne Wall into the left-field seats for a leadoff homer in the eighth and a 4-2 lead.

The B's went 0-for-10 in Tuesday's 2-1 loss after going just 2-for-37 in a sweep by Atlanta in last year's division series. Of course, all the Astros were frustrated Tuesday when Kevin Brown struck out 16, the second-most ever in the postseason.

On Thursday, they combined to go 3-for-11 with four RBI and three runs scored. Bell snapped a 0-for-21 postseason slump.

Astros starter Shane Reynolds allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings.

Cubs blow lead in 9th, fall to Atlanta 2-1 in 10

ATLANTA (AP) -- It was a magical regular season for the Chicago Cubs. The postseason is the same, old thing.

Two outs from evening their first-round playoffs series, the Cubs lost a ninth-inning lead on Javy Lopez's homer, squandered a great scoring chance in the 10th, then had a defensive mixup in the bottom half and lost to the Atlanta Braves 2-1 on Chipper Jones' single Thursday night.

The Braves have a 2-0 lead in the best-of-5 series, which moves to Wrigley Field for Game 3 on Saturday night.

The Cubs, seeking their first World Series title since 1908, turned sloppy after Kevin Tapani's brilliant performance. He took a four-hit shutout into the ninth before giving up Lopez's homer into the left-field stands.

In the top of the 10th, Glenallen Hill led off with walk, was bunted to second by Gary Gaetti and stole third after an intentional walk to Mickey Morandini.

But former Atlanta shortstop Jeff Blauser struck out against rookie Odalis Perez and Lopez threw out Morandini, who was trying to steal second on the 3-2 pitch.

Though he was Chicago's top winner (19-9) during the season, Tapani had a 4.79 ERA and was roughed up badly in his previous two starts, giving up 17 hits and 10 earned runs in 10 2-3 innings.

Surprises

the Raiders and completed four, including one for a touchdown.

Despite the debut of an effective ground game by the Whitefaces, Patterson is most concerned about the Hodges brothers.

"For sophomores, they're a premier quarterback-receiver combination. Cody Hodges may be the best sophomore quarterback in the state," Patterson said.

One area the Whitefaces' have at times been lacking in is pass protection. Canyon defensive ends Jason Podzemny (weak) and Jared Wirt (strong) will hope to find holes to rush Cody Hodges' throws.

"Podzemny is real quick," Yenser said. "He's not real big, but he's a big-heart type of player. ... Randall last week was stunting every down, and we didn't handle it very well. It may come down to that again."

Yenser said the Whitefaces will again have a challenge in facing a team that hasn't faced an offense like Hereford's. He said it will be very important how the Whitefaces adjust to the adjustments made by the Eagles' defense to Hereford's shotgun.

"They're pretty conservative in the secondary," Yenser said. "That doesn't mean they're not good in the secondary. ... We're dang sure going to throw it out there and see. I don't know whether they'll sit back. That's what they've done. It's going to be interesting."

very important ... to determine that even after athletes graduate, there are still consequences."

The NCAA disqualified Jones when he was a fifth-year senior because of an eligibility question related to its "75 percent rule." The rule requires student athletes to have three-quarters of their course work completed toward a major by the ninth semester.

Jones changed his major during his college career, invalidating much of his prior course work.

His appeals to remain eligible were denied by the NCAA, which said Jones' grade history was adequate but less than stellar. That's when he went to court.

Jones' lawyer Tom Whiteside said Tech athletic advisors incorrectly told Jones that he was eligible to play and did not need to take classes during summer school. They did not discover the mistake until the day of the first game, not giving Jones enough time to correct the mistake, Whiteside said.

"They (the NCAA) should have taken into consideration that he was told he was eligible," he said.

Twins

If anyone can tell the difference between the Coburns, it would be quarterback Dustin Long. He throws to them equally and also spends spare time with the twins.

"I don't have to worry about two different receivers because they are so much alike," said Long. "I know where they're going to be at on the field. They catch the ball well, and that makes my job easier."

It's just the opposing coaches who have a difficult time figuring out the Coburns.

House Demos try to set inquiry time line

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democrats are drafting a proposal that could end any impeachment inquiry around Thanksgiving and provide an option for censuring President Clinton, several Democratic officials report.

Democrats planned to announce their proposal - a measure highly unlikely to make it past the majority Republicans - today, even as the House Judiciary Committee was making public a second batch of materials from Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr.

Among the documents were transcripts of Linda Tripp's taped conversations with Monica Lewinsky and grand jury testimony of presidential secretary Betty Curry and Clinton friend Vernon Jordan.

In a partial transcript of a Tripp recording read to The Associated Press on Thursday, Ms. Lewinsky said other people had told her that in regard to an affair with Clinton, "It doesn't matter what anybody says; you just deny it."

Ms. Lewinsky said she was being urged to be untruthful in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit against the president and told Mrs. Tripp, "I would write you a check" if she also would be untruthful.

"I would be indebted to you for life... I would write you a check for the entire portion" of a condominium "I own in Australia," Ms. Lewinsky told her friend.

Yugoslavia offers experts investigate massacres

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) - Yugoslavia is offering to let foreign experts investigate massacres of ethnic Albanian civilians in Kosovo, in the face of mounting international condemnation and the threat of NATO airstrikes.

Despite the offer, U.S. envoy Robert Gelbard said the massacres have left the Yugoslav government with "no credibility at all."

Serb police have denied murdering civilians, and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Zivadin Jovanovic said in Washington on Thursday that his government is willing to let an international team take part in an investigation to "establish and prove the facts."

The Foreign Ministry in the Yugoslav capital Belgrade said invitations had already gone out to forensic experts from Finland.

Yugoslav President Slobodan

NEWS in brief

Milosevic launched a crackdown in February against rebels in Kosovo who are seeking independence for the province in southern Serbia that is 90 percent ethnic Albanian.

Earlier this week, diplomats, journalists and human rights workers saw as many as 18 mutilated bodies in the forests around the town of Obrija. Residents in the nearby town of Golubovac said Serb forces surrounded a group of refugees on Saturday, separated 13 men and shot them.

In New York, the U.N. Security Council condemned "those responsible" for the bloodletting, but Britain and the United States failed to convince Russia and China to specifically blame the Serbs for the killings. The council called on Milosevic to identify, find and punish the killers.

New pill may aid fight against gum disease

WASHINGTON (AP) - Millions of Americans may soon take a pill to help fight advanced gum disease. It won't replace that painful scraping away of hardened plaque patients now endure at the dentist's office, but the newly approved drug can make their gums significantly healthier.

CollaGenex Pharmaceuticals' Periostat is a new way to treat gum disease. Until now, treatments have focused just on attacking the bacteria that cause periodontal disease.

Periostat, by contrast, suppresses an enzyme found in inflamed gums that literally breaks down the gums and eventually the bones that hold teeth in place. So Periostat, when used after dentists scrape away hardened bacteria, can slow, or perhaps even halt, the progression of gum disease.

"This is a whole new concept," said Dr. Sebastian Ciancio, who studied Periostat at the State University of New York, Buffalo.

"For the first time, we have a drug that... helps the body begin to heal."

Using Periostat daily, "it looks like we've arrested the disease in cases where patients were told by their dentists that they were probably going to lose their teeth," added Dr. Lorne Golub of SUNY's Stony Brook campus, who discovered the enzyme's role in research that led to Periostat.

CollaGenex announced the Food and Drug Administration's approval of Periostat on Thursday, saying the prescription-only pill will be on pharmacy shelves within two months. A price has not been finalized, but a spokeswoman said treatment would cost between $1 and $4 a day.

One study found that patients who took Periostat daily after dentists scraped away plaque had their gums reattach to teeth 52 percent better than patients who had plaque removal alone. Periostat patients also had 67 percent more improvement in the depth of gum loss.

New California law targets 'stalkerazzi'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Remember the pictures of Madonna's wedding to Sean Penn, taken from an army of helicopters hovering over her Malibu mansion? Or the snapshots of Brad Pitt in the buff on a private beach?

Images like those will be grounds for legal action under a new state law that aims to protect celebrities and others in private moments.

"Under this bill, the so-called 'stalkerazzi' will be deterred from driving their human prey to distraction - or even death," said Gov. Pete Wilson, who signed the bill into law Wednesday.

But journalists and First Amendment law experts complain that the law, which takes effect Jan. 1, muzzles the right to gather the news.

"This is a law that addresses a non-problem," lawyer Douglas Mirell said. "This is a PR effort spawned by the tragedy of Princess Diana's death but addresses no legitimate issue that is not now in existing law."

Big celebration for Gotti as he gets out of jail

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - You'd think he'd been acquitted.

Smiling in triumph, John A. "Junior" Gotti was escorted through a mob of reporters into a white Mercedes outside a federal courthouse Thursday, then driven to his Long Island home for a victory celebration with his family.

It is only the successful conclusion of Gotti's long fight to be released on bail. His lawyer, Bruce Cutler, called it: "The end of the beginning."

Still ahead is a Jan. 5 trial on charges of robbery, extortion, loansharking, gambling and fraud. Gotti could be sentenced to 20 years in prison if convicted.

Feeding tube removed; governor prepares appeal

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - Gov. Jim Gilmore vowed to press on in his battle to keep Hugh Finn alive, even though the wife of the comatose accident victim has already removed his life-sustaining feeding tube.

The tube in Finn's stomach was removed Thursday in the presence of his wife, Michele, his sister, Karen, and brother, John. It happened just hours after a court rejected Gilmore's lawsuit to bar the move in what's become a high-profile dispute over the right to die.

Gilmore planned to take his case to the Virginia Supreme Court today in an effort to have the tube put back in.

Man's murder linked to group sex

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP) - A group sex encounter that went too far. Plots of revenge. A nighttime meeting in a deserted park. A bloody body in a ditch.

The events involving the slaying of 19-year-old Scott D. Catenacci were "more involved than any soap opera," Sarpy County Sheriff Pat Thomas said Thursday.

Five teens are accused of luring Catenacci to the park and stabbing him to death because he roughed up a girl during group sex. A sixth suspect was arrested on suspicion of accessory to murder.

"He took his computer (to the park) to sell it and while he was there, he was murdered," Thomas said. "It's pathetic."

Catenacci's body was found in a ditch in this city outside Omaha on Wednesday.

Grand Central restored to original splendor

NEW YORK (AP) - The night sky twinkles again in Grand Central Terminal where a $200 million restoration of marble stairways, sparkling chandeliers and classical sculpture transfix the urban traveler at one of the most magnificent crossroads in America.

Five thousand admirers came to Thursday's rededication ceremony to see the results of a 10-year project aimed at putting the grand back in New York's signature train station.

The military vehicles known as tanks are so-called because during their development in World War I, their British inventors referred to them as water tanks to conceal their real purpose.

Fogerty gets star in the Walk of Fame

LOS ANGELES (AP) - John Fogerty's most recent trip down to the corner was worth it: He has been honored with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Fogerty's star, dedicated Thursday, recognized his contributions to music as a founder of Creedence Clearwater Revival and as a solo artist.

"I've had a long and strange career, but the fans have always been supportive," Fogerty said.

Creedence Clearwater Revival produced such hits as "Proud Mary," "Bad Moon Rising" and "Down on the Corner."

TOM CRUISE

LONDON (AP) - Tom Cruise's latest role is that of hero, according to a mugging victim.

Rita Simmonds told Thursday's Evening Standard that Cruise ran to her rescue Sept. 23 as attackers pulled open the door of her Porsche and yanked off about $120,000 worth of jewelry.

"Tom was brilliant," Simmonds told the newspaper.

Pat Kingsley, a spokeswoman for the actor, said the attack had already taken place by the time Cruise arrived on the scene.

"He and a friend were taking a stroll and heard the commotion," she said. "A couple of people were standing there to help the women. He tried to console her."

Simmonds said she was badly bruised during the assault.

Cruise is renting a house in London with his wife, Nicole Kidman, and their children. Ms. Kidman is currently appearing in a sold-out production of "The Blue Room."

This is not the first time Cruise has come to the aid of the distressed; in 1996, he got help for a woman who had been hit by a car.

SHANNON MILLER

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) - Olympic gymnast Shannon Miller is taking another big leap: marriage.

The 21-year-old gold medalist announced her engagement Thursday to Chris Phillips, 25. The two students at the University of Oklahoma have been dating since February, and plan a June wedding.

Miller received her proposal at a Chinese restaurant, where the couple and her parents were dining. She opened a fortune cookie and out popped the question, "Will you marry me?"

"It was kind of a surprise that he did it when he did it," Miller said. "I think that we're both definitely ready to make that commitment."

Miller has won seven Olympic medals in gymnastics. She won the gold medal on the balance beam at the 1996 games in Atlanta and was part of the American team that took the gold that year.

The invitation list will include her former Olympic teammates, Miller said.

"I hope that they can all make it," she said. "They're all on the list. Some of them will hopefully be bridesmaids."

STEVEN SEAGAL

CAMERON, Mont. (AP) - Steven Seagal has finally run into a foe that is too much to handle.

The action-movie actor has decided to sell his 19,000-acre ranch rather than fight the knapweed that is overrunning the property and threatening native grasses.

"Mr. Seagal was very unwilling to dapweed problem four years ago when he purchased the property. The native vegetation is being threatened," said David Schulz, director of the Madison County Weed Control Board. "His reasons - I can't explain. He just didn't consider the noxious weed a priority."

The ranch along the Madison River is an important piece of the ecosystem surrounding Yellowstone National Park.

Robert Lang, chief executive officer of software company Infinity, bought the property - and the problem - for $27 million.

"The Sun Ranch is a critical piece in the valley and I want it to be a show case of good environmental and agricultural practices," Lang said Wednesday.

MICHAEL FLATLEY

LONDON (AP) - The $17 million breach-of-contract lawsuit against Irish dancer Michael Flatley is alive and kicking.

Flatley, whose production of "Lord of the Dance" has won him worldwide acclaim, is being sued by former manager John Reid.

Reid claims he was fired just as the Irish dance production's popularity surged. He said Flatley, who hung up his dancing shoes in July, dismissed him early into the British run of the show.

Reid's lawyer, Robert Englehart, told the court Thursday that his client was "summarily dismissed" in a letter on Jan. 16, 1997, seven months after the management contract was signed. The contract was not due to expire until this month.

JOHN LENNON'S POEM

LONDON (AP) - An obscenity-laden poem written by John

Lennon will be put up for auction by the fan who received it almost 30 years ago.

The typed work is made up of a four-letter expletive repeated 104 times around the single word "you." It was sent to poet Susan Baker in 1969 after she wrote to the Beatle requesting a poem.

It is signed by Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono.

Robert Finan of the auction house Finan & Co. said the poem is too unusual to estimate how much it might bring. The auction will be held Oct. 10 in Wiltshire.

"Cataloguing the item was something of a problem, as quite obviously it could offend," Finan said.

CLAIRE DANES

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - Claire Danes' apology for her disparaging remarks about Manila wasn't big enough for the Philippines' president, a former movie star himself.

"She should not be allowed to come here. She should not even be allowed to set foot here," President Joseph Estrada said.

On Tuesday, the City Council declared the 19-year-old actress persona non grata and banned all her movies because she called Manila smelly, rat-infested and weird. Miss Danes, who appeared in "The Rainmaker," was in Manila for several months this year to shoot "Broke-down Palace."

Last week, she said in a statement that she meant no disrespect.

"Because of the subject matter of our film 'Broke-down Palace,' the cast was exposed to the darker and more impoverished places of Manila," she said. "My comments in Premiere magazine only reflect those locations, not my attitude toward the Filipino people. They were nothing but warm, friendly and supportive."

Sunshine on a cloudy day

Temptations miniseries heats up

By NIKI KAPSAMBELIS
Associated Press Writer

TRAFFORD (AP) - On a set built to re-create Motown Records, with rhythm and blues thumping in the air and people dressed in 1960s chic, the original Temptations are reliving history in all its smoky, soulful glory.

"The Temptations," a four-hour miniseries that will set up November sweeps for NBC, chronicles the group that recorded 43 top-10 singles over 25 years and sold more than 22 million records.

They were once billed as "the tall, tan and tempting Temptations" and were famous for their music, emotion and the image of a silky-smooth, harmonizing group of five black men who achieved crossover appeal to white audiences. Musicians influenced by their sound include the Rolling Stones and John Oates, who once said the group changed his life.

"I lived and died for the Temptations," said Alan Rosenberg, the actor who plays the group's longtime manager, Shelly Berger.

As a teen-ager, Rosenberg saw the Temptations at the Copacabana and memorized their dance steps. "Nobody ever saw color, nobody ever saw race," he said. "It was sort of an oasis during the turbulent '60s."

On the set of the show, which has just completed production, it's easy to forget that four of the group's five best-known members met untimely deaths, that the songs are 30 years old, and that one member took cortisone shots in his knees (deletozave off arthritis) so he could keep performing the group's trademark moves.

Front man David Ruffin died from a drug overdose at age 50; Paul Williams, bounced from the group in 1971 for alcoholism, killed himself two years later at age 34. Two other original members died at 52: Eddie Kendricks from lung cancer in 1992 and Melvin Franklin, the bass singer, in 1995 after a series of seizures.

"I want Marvin Gaye here, I want Smokey here," barks director Allan Arkush, who calls most of his actors by their characters' names and hardly notices the irony.

"It's like getting to live your life twice. Maybe you can get to improve it the second time around," said executive producer Suzanne dePasse, who was Motown founder Berry Gordy's business partner.

The show already has generated some controversy among relatives of Ruffin, who died in 1991 after overdosing at a crack house in Philadelphia. Williams depicted Ruffin - the lead vocalist in such Temptations hits as "My Girl" and "Ain't Too Proud To Beg" - as a talented egomaniac who was expelled from the group in 1968.

The actor portraying Ruffin, who goes simply by the name Leon, said Ruffin's fatal flaw was his excessiveness - "wanting the group to be his, the women, the parties."

"Ego can make you lonely, but it doesn't kill you," he said.

Charles Malik Whitfield said he is playing Otis Williams "as truthfully as possible. Even though he's alive, it's not an impersonation."

Learning the Temptations' signature choreography was difficult enough, but Whitfield said the real killer has been changing hairstyles so frequently.

At one point, he awoke the day after a shoot to discover that his pillow was attached to his head from residual wig glue.

"I could not believe it - this glue, this hair," he said.

The worst style was the "Tony Curtis," which he described as a "flattop process hairdo with a dipsy-doodle in front."

The film - which is based on founding member Otis Williams' 1988 book, "The Temptations" - traces the group's history from sidewalk harmonizers to superstars, with some amusing anecdotes showing their road to fame wasn't always smooth.

In one scene, actor Obba Babatundé, as Motown's Gordy, is playing the early Temptations tune "Paradise" for a group of extras playing record-company workers. As dePasse chats on a cell phone off the set and bends over a script with a pencil, she is absently bouncing to the music she has probably heard thousands of times.

Gordy then asks the room whether they would spend their last dollar on the record or a sandwich. The unanimous answer: A sandwich.

The film also deals with the unsavory side of the group's history. In one poignant scene, a drunken Paul Williams stumbles around a party singing "For Once In My Life."

"It's like you're in the room and you want to leave the party, because it's painful to watch," said Arkush, the director. "This movie will only work if the storytelling does not stop between songs... If we were doing an action picture, these would be the fight scenes."

440 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Joshua, intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

OTHNIEL'S TRIUMPH
BLINDED BY THE SUN REFLECTED INTO THEIR EYES, THE GIANTS ARE IN A STATE OF CONFUSION AS OTHNIEL'S MEN SCALE THE CITY WALLS AND SLAUGHTER THEM...

LET NONE REMAIN ALIVE!
STRIKE! FOR THE LORD HATH GIVEN US THE VICTORY!

OTHNIEL, WE HAVE DESTROYED THE LAST OF THE GIANTS!
THE LORD GAVE US THE VICTORY FOR OUR FAITH DID NOT DIMINISH!

AND SO THE LAST GIANT STRONGHOLD IS DEMOLISHED IN THE LAND OF CANAAN AND OTHNIEL IS FREE TO CLAIM THE REWARD OFFERED BY CALEB!

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Presidents have long history of lying

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Analysis

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON - Now come presidential historians in defense of deception.

Not that they're excusing President Clinton's misleading statements about Monica Lewinsky, mind you. But there is considerable sentiment that presidential lying is nothing new and sometimes entirely defensible, at least when matters of state are at stake.

"The fact is that every one of these guys has told significant lies," says Stanley Kutler, a retired University of Wisconsin historian.

"Presidents have lied so much to us about foreign policy that they've established almost a common-law right to do so," says historian Leo Ribuffo of George Washington University.

"We want presidents to be ethical," says the Brookings Institution's Stephen Hess, "but we understand that there may be some circumstances where it's more in American interests that they not tell the truth."

Hess' latest book, "The Little Book of Campaign Etiquette," lumps politicians' lies into four categories: honest lies, inadvertent lies, half-truths and damn lies. The first category includes lies told to protect lives or national security; the last batch encompasses out-and-out falsehoods writ large and small, right down to the Nixon White House's claim that Tricia's wedding cake came from an old family recipe.

"Reporters tend to accept honest lying, understand inadvertent lying, fail to work hard enough at exposing half-truths, and gleefully go after damn lies," Hess writes.

There have been plenty to go around. Richard Shenkman, author of the forthcoming book "Presidential Ambition," says the first known flat-out lie by a president was Thomas Jefferson's request of $2 million from Congress for military supplies and fortifications when he secretly wanted the money to gain France's help in pressing Spain to sell Florida to the United States.

Another presidential lulu, in Shenkman's view, was James K. Polk's claim, in seeking a declaration of war, that Mexico had invaded the territory of Texas, "shedding the blood of our citizens on our own soil." (The land, claimed by both Mexico and Texas, was occupied by Mexicans.)

Skeptical of Polk's claim, a young congressman named Abraham Lincoln introduced a series of resolutions questioning "whether the particular spot of soil on which the blood of our citizens was so shed, was, or was not, our own soil."

Franklin Roosevelt, for his part, never leveled with the American people as he involved the country in an undeclared naval war against the Germans long before the United States formally entered the World War II.

Some foreign policy deceptions, however, are looked at with a less forgiving eye, including President Johnson on Vietnam and President Reagan on Iran-Contra.

"At his worst, Lyndon Johnson destroyed his own credibility," former Johnson adviser Joseph Califano wrote in "The Triumph and Tragedy of Lyndon Johnson." "He hid the true cost of the military buildup in Vietnam as he first unfolded it. ... He lied about little things like appointments to office and his schedule. ... He paid a fearful price as first the press corps in Washington and Saigon and then millions of Americans came to doubt his word."

Two decades later, Reagan came quasi-clean after leaving office about his long-held claim that there had been no deal to trade arms for hostages, saying: "My heart and my best intentions still tell me that is true. But the facts and the evidence tell me it is not."

Just as there is a long history of presidential deception about foreign policy, misleading statements about presidential private lives are nothing new. Presidents have often misled Americans about their personal matters and their health, says Shenkman, and the truth often didn't emerge until much later.

While presidents from Garfield and Wilson to Kennedy and Johnson contrived to leave the false impression that they never strayed, few lied directly and none had to answer questions about their sex lives under oath, he said.

"Bill Clinton's problem is he got caught," Shenkman added. If his untruths had come out 20 or 30 years later, he says, then people wouldn't have much cared.

For his denials of a role in Watergate, Richard Nixon has special standing among presidential prevaricators. "He looked the country in the eye on more occasions than Clinton did and lied about it," says Ribuffo.

As for lies by the other presidents, Ribuffo adds, "they're not as publicized, they're not as clear-cut and on foreign policy they're more understandable."

List of problems on budget measures remains daunting

WASHINGTON (AP) - Facing veto threats, stubborn Democrats and internal Republican divisions, GOP congressional leaders have a daunting list of problems to overcome in their struggle to finish must-pass spending bills for the new fiscal year.

House-Senate bargainers reached agreements Thursday on global warming and public housing issues, raising hopes that Congress would vote next week to approve the $93.5 billion measure for veterans, housing and environmental programs containing that language.

But no sooner had they struck that compromise than the Republican-controlled House ignored GOP leaders' pleas and refused to debate a separate, $27 billion measure financing the Treasury Department and smaller agencies. The 294-106 vote was cemented by a rare alliance of Democrats and conservative Republicans opposing provisions concerning the Federal Election Commission, contraceptives for federal workers and Haitian refugees. Most Republicans voted against the bill even after House Rules Committee Chairman Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., warned, "If I catch one Republican coming over here and voting against this rule, I'm going to invite you to go outside, because you are not a team player."

A veto threat loomed over a $60 billion agriculture measure. Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said President Clinton would reject the legislation because the $4.1 billion in emergency aid for farmers that Republicans included in the bill is too low. The bill has still not been sent to the White House.

The action occurred as Congress sorted through the remaining nine spending measures needed to keep federal agencies operating in fiscal 1999, which began Thursday. With legislators having completed just four spending bills so far, Clinton had already signed a stopgap measure allowing agencies to function through Oct. 9. The global warming and public housing language were included in a $93.5 billion measure financing veterans, housing and environmental programs for 1999 that House-Senate negotiators agreed to Thursday evening.

Last December, administration officials helped negotiate an international climate treaty in Kyoto, Japan. The agreement calls on the United States and other industrial countries to curb heat-trapping greenhouse gases, mainly by slowing down the growing amount of carbon dioxide released into the atmosphere from burning fossil fuels.

That treaty produced a backlash among some lawmakers, who expressed fear that Clinton would begin to implement its restrictions - even though the Senate has not ratified it.

Earlier this year, the House voted to prohibit the administration from trying to "develop, propose or issue" regulations implementing the treaty.

World markets continue to sag

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks opened little changed on Wall Street today as traders looked for bargains in the aftermath of a global selloff that knocked nearly 6 percent off the Dow industrials over the previous three days.

European stocks were falling sharply, however, and Asian markets turned in a mixed performance.

The Dow Jones industrials, down 476.31 over the past three sessions, was down 4.64 at 7,627.89 in the early going today. Broader indicators were mixed.

There was an additional sign that money is not pouring out of stocks today. The market for U.S. government bonds, which has been rallying on a "flight-to-safety" this week, stabilized this morning. Interest rates on Treasury bonds, which move in the opposite direction from bond prices, edged higher today after falling to 30-year lows in each of the past three days.

The Dow's slide included back-to-back losses of more than 200 points on Wednesday and Thursday. Traders remain worried about a global economic slowdown that is cutting the profits of U.S. companies and fears of further fallout from the near-collapse last week of Long-Term Capital Management LP, a Greenwich, Conn., hedge fund.

There was fresh evidence of a cooling of the U.S. economy today, as the government reported a small rise in the unemployment rate and a slowdown in the growth of new jobs. The unemployment rate was 4.6

percent in September, compared with 4.5 percent during the three previous months and a 28-year low of 4.3 percent in April and May. In addition, the government said employers added only 69,000 jobs to their payrolls last month, the weakest figure since a blizzard in the Northeast forced businesses to cut payrolls in January 1996.

In afternoon trading, the key stock index in London was down 2.4 percent, and indicators were off 4.7 percent in Frankfurt, Germany, and 2.1 percent in Paris.

"We're entering a very grave global situation. A global recession seems very likely," Lionel Sens, a salesman at Credit Lyonnais Securities in Paris, said today.
