Gib Lewis hints at sales tax increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Senate and House members have been told that tax bills will be getting more attention in the second special session, and House Speaker Gib Lewis predicted approval of a temporary sales tax increase.

Lewis, an ardent anti-tax leader, fanned speculation Tuesday in a speech in suburban Fort Worth.

"What I predict for the future is that you're probably going to see a tax increase out of this special session," Lewis told members of the chamber of commerce in White Settlement, "and what I anticipate that you'll probably see is a penny sales tax increase and possibly a five-cent gasoline tax increase to get us through this current biennium."

Lewis added that "we're still holding firm to the point that we want it to be temporary."

Lewis and other House leaders have been firm in holding that no new taxes will be considered until budget cuts are complete.

Earlier Tuesday, 28 House members filed a proposed one-year increase in the state sales tax that would raise $500 million to cure the current deficit.

Rep. Stan Schleuter, D-Killeen, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which must clear any tax bill for debate, said he "probably" would not set a public hearing until the Senate and House agree on 1987 budget cuts.

However, several House members, including some members of his committee, said he would ask an immediate hearing.

The Senate Finance Committee had on its agenda today a resolution that Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said was designed to let the Senate get started on tax discussions. The committee will make recommendation to the full Senate.

"This is merely a means of expediting the procedure," Hobby said.

According to the state constitution, all tax bills must be debated first in the House.

29 teachers affected...

Overpay question raised to trustees

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Saying that they feel the terms of a salary overpayment agreement will be fulfilled at the end of this school year--while admitting that money will still be owed the school district--a local teacher group representative and her legal counsel brought their case to the school board Tuesday.

But board members, characterizing the original agreement as "bending over backward to help the teacher," declined to take any action regarding the request.

And in the process, the two senior trustees for Snyder ISD expressed "disappointment" that the question was raised and that outside legal counsel was thought needed to receive a fair hearing before the board.

G.A. Parks Jr. commented, "I have to say I feel more disappointed that this thing has been brought up than any other single action in my five years on the board."

And J.D. Hinton, who has served 4½ years, said the use of outside legal counsel provided through the Texas State Teachers Association, seemed to him to be "confrontation."

At question is the terms of an agreement which initially involved 78 local teachers who inadvertently received a one-year "step" pay raise 12-months ahead of time during the 1984-85 school year."

The mistake occurred after local school officials received incorrect information regarding where teachers at a certain experience level should be placed with implementation of the then-new H.B. 72 mandates.

The mistake was discovered in October of the 1984-85 school year after two monthly pay checks had been paid using the incorrect information. At the time, the district agreed with teachers accepting the option to continue the overpayment through the year.

In return, these teachers agreed that their pay would be frozen for the following two school years, a period set to end at the conclusion of this contract year.

In this way, for the first year their pay was frozen, the teacher would be "marking time," receiving the salary they would have normally received.

For the second year, however, they would not be moved into a higher pay "step" as guaranteed under a pay plan now discontinued by the district.

Under this agreement, the current school year is the time period when the school district would actually recoup its overpayment.

Of the 78 teachers originally affected, some 29 currently still have an obligation to the district, school officials said Wednesday morning.

The 49 others have already corrected the overpayment.

When the mistake was first reported, this amount district-wide was estimated at $101,000.

Career ladder appeals nixed

Two appeals for career ladder status submitted by Snyder teachers were denied Tuesday by school board members.

The appeals--the first to prompt hearings here after two years of career ladder supplements--were conducted in closed sessions which stretched over more than 2½ hours.

Offering protests to their not being chosen to the career ladder list were Jim Rosson, distributive education coordinator at Snyder High School; and Martha Schiebel, an English teacher at SHS.

At the conclusion of the hearings, the board came back into open session around 11:15 p.m. and passed a motion to deny both requests. The actions passed unanimously.

Drug-sniffing dog to make ISD visits

A "drug deterrant program" which will include a drug-sniffing dog will be implemented within the Snyder school system following board approval Tuesday of a contract agreement with a Gainesville-based firm specializing in such services.

The action came during the regular September meeting of the board.

The service includes a trained dog which will be used to "sniff-out" drugs on school grounds. Under terms of the contract, the dog will be used no less than four times monthly.

The service involves also educational instruction regarding drug abuse to be geared to all ages of local students.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Tom Scannicchio, who helped negotiate the bid proposals, noted that the service is aimed at "detecting and preventing the use of drugs." He added it is "not an attempt to capture students."

The contract approved Tuesday is for a four-month period with the option to extend it for a similar period at its conclusion.

The contract was awarded to the low bidder, Private Investigation and Security Service Inc. of Gainesville. The bid was for $940 per month.

Other bids were received from Narcotic Consultants Inc. of Spicewood, bidding $1,825 monthly; and Rodriguez and Associates of San Angelo, bidding $1,500.

Pre-trial hearing ongoing in 132nd

The pre-trial hearing on the "voluntariness" of statements given police by capital murder defendants Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr. and Amanda Lynn Miles got underway at 9:55 a.m. in 132nd District Court.

District attorney Ernie Armstrong opened the proceedings at that time by calling Sgt. Patrick Taylor of the Colorado City police to testify about his role in the arrests and subsequent interrogation of the defendants.

In one change, Armstrong and defense attorney's Frank Conard Jr. and Peter Sheridan agreed to have the voluntariness hearing for both Johnson and Miles conducted simultaneously.

The court had previously set aside Wednesday for a hearing in Johnson's case and Thursday for a separate hearing in the Miles case.

At issue is written statements given by the defendants concerning the March 23 shooting death of convenience store clerk Jack

Last weekend, Bill and Ann Looney were playing 42 with a group from 37th Street Church of Christ where Bill is associate minister.

For some members of the flock, 42 is a serious game and there are those who are certain that 42 will be a part of the Hereafter.

As the evening of dominoes was drawing to a close, Ann and her partner were playing feveriously to keep their top table position.

Just as the bell rang to end the evening, church secretary Patti Musselman discovered a flaw in Ann's system of scorekeeping.

Instead of "Us and Them," the preacher's wife had written "Us and We."

Q. — Couldn't the state cut its expense in half by printing the state budget in one rather than two languages?

A. — We checked with the budget director for the governor's office, Bill Hamilton, and he said he is not aware of any requirement that the budget be printed in two languages.

Challenger accident transforms program

WASHINGTON (AP) — From spy satellites to "Star Wars," the loss of the shuttle Challenger temporarily crippled military space programs. It also wrought an expensive a new approach to space at the Pentagon.

Never again will the Department of Defense put its eggs in one basket.

The military must have the shuttle, says Air Force Secretary Edward C. Aldridge Jr., but placing great reliance on the orbiters was "a major mistake for this country and we're paying the price now."

Gone are the days of a seemingly foolproof shuttle, available to the Pentagon for secret missions along with its more familiar work as a space truck hauling commercial payloads into orbit.

"We cannot afford to rely on a single launch system for launching our very critical satellites," Aldridge said recently. "The Expendable Launch Vehicles (rockets) are going to be the workhorse from now on for DoD."

Ironically, as the Pentagon moves to break its reliance on the shuttle, the military's role in the future of the spaceplane is increasing. Since the Challenger's loss, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has turned over four key jobs to military officers.

The Defense Department is likely to monopolize the first few years of resumed shuttle flights; two of the first three flights have already been set aside for the military. In fact, some administration officials credit the Pentagon with helping to persuade President Reagan to replace the Challenger while restricting the access of commercial firms to the shuttle in the future.

But the military ramifications of relying solely on the shuttle have been far-reaching:

— To recover, the Pentagon now plans to spend $2.6 billion over the next five years. Assuming Congress goes along, that money will finance design and production of two new generations of unmanned rockets. Critical satellites will be designed from the ground up to fly on either the shuttle or one of the new rockets.

— By simple good luck, the nation's defense satellite system was healthy when the Challenger exploded Jan. 28, according to Gen. Larry D. Welch, the Air Force's chief of staff.

"The timing was not nearly so bad as it could have been," says Welch. "We were pretty lucky."

Nonetheless, every month the shuttles stay grounded, the picture worsens.

Soviet UN worker indicted as spy

NEW YORK (AP) — A Soviet U.N. employee indicted on espionage charges will not be traded for an American journalist being held as a spy in Moscow, U.S. officials say.

The three-count federal indictment Tuesday charged Gennadiy F. Zakharov, 39, with trying to buy military secrets for the Soviet Union.

"Protecting the national security of the United States is among the most fundamental responsibilities of the federal government. No crime is more serious than compromising that security," Attorney General Edwin Meese said in the statement.

There has been speculation that Zakharov's arrest led the Soviets to arrest Nicholas S. Daniloff, Moscow correspondent for U.S. News and World Report, on spy charges. Administration officials have suggested that Daniloff was framed so an exchange could be arranged.

At a meeting with congressional leaders Tuesday, President Reagan repeated a promise that there would be no trade, said Senate minority leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Asked if the timing of the cases led to any special negotiations between the Justice and State departments, Ihor O.E. Kotlarchuk, of the Justice Department's internal security section, said, "We followed normal procedure for an espionage case."

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman in Washington, said of a possible trade: "I have absolutely nothing to say about it."

The grand jury met for only about an hour before charging Zakharov with conspiracy to commit espionage, obtaining classified defense documents and attempting to communicate the material to Soviet agents "to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation."

If convicted, Zakharov would face a maximum life prison sentence.

Used-car bargains plentiful

DETROIT (AP) — Cut-rate loans for new cars mean bargains at used-car lots, but customers looking for a steal instead of a deal may leave disappointed.

"In terms of people saying, 'Go out and buy any kind of used car because you're going to steal it,' that's unfair to the consumer," Rick Cantalini, used-car manager of King Charlie Hillard Ford-Mazda in Fort Worth, Texas, said Tuesday. "You get what you pay for."

Auto industry analysts, however, said the drop in used-car prices may be greater than dealers expect.

"Whenever new-car prices come down, every car in the fleet, all the way down to the one going to the junkyard tomorrow, reduces in value," said Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit automotive analyst.

The top four U.S. automakers last month began offering interest rates of less than 3 percent on some loans to clear showrooms for the 1987 models. The low rates will end Oct. 8.

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. offer 2.9 percent financing, and Chrysler Corp., 2.4 percent. American Motors Corp., whose sales this year have sagged to about half the year before, gives interest-free loans on most models.

About 1.5 million used cars will be offered on the market as owners trade them in for new-car bargains, Jouppi said.

With more used cars available and cheaper new cars in the showrooms, used-car dealers will need to shave prices as much as 10 percent, he added.

How Much Weight Do Diamond 'Pre-Engagement' Rings Carry?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently, several young girls I work with have come to work wearing rings with tiny diamonds — they call them "pre-enagement rings."

Abby, just what is a "pre-engagement ring?" Rather than risk hurting their feelings, I thought I'd ask you. Does this mean she's a "pre-bride?" Or does it mean she's a "post-virgin?" Or is it a precommitment on the boy's part? (Meaning, "I'll marry you, if no one better comes along.") I would feel insulted to receive a "pre-engagement ring." You're either engaged, or you're not. If you're engaged, call it an "engagement ring." If you're not, call it a "friendship ring."

What do you think?

TOO OLD TO UNDERSTAND

DEAR TOO OLD: What you (or I) perceive the ring to mean is unimportant. Its meaning to the giver and receiver is all that matters. Obviously it signifies some degree of special commitment. Don't concern yourself with the size of the diamond, or the question of virginity; just wish the ring-bearer well and pull in your claws.

DEAR ABBY: I have noticed several letters in your column lately containing valuable tips on how to keep small children safe from death traps. Who ever would have dreamed that a toddler could wander off during a family outing and lose his life by climbing into an ice chest containing just enough melted ice to drown in! Or that a child could slip down in his high chair and strangle to death by catching his throat on the tray!

I have another tragic story to tell that may save the lives of other children. About 20 years ago my aunt put her twin boys in their playpen because she had a lot of work to do. They were about 14 months old at the time. When she returned about half an hour later to check on them, she found one of the twins dead! She had thoughtlessly placed the playpen near a window where the child could reach the cord from the blinds. He was probably playing with the cord, became entangled in it, and hung himself.

VIRGINIA READER

DEAR READER: Thank you for alerting my readers to a danger that may not have occurred to them. You may have saved a life today.

DEAR ABBY: I was moved to write when I read the young girl's complaint about her mother's secondhand smoke.

I want to tell you how proud I am of my own mother. She used to smoke, though I have no memories of it — only photographs of a pretty young mother holding a baby (me) in one hand and a cigarette in the other. She was 32 years old at the time.

When the reports first came out stating that smoking was unhealthy, she quit — cold turkey. Others have told me she climbed the walls for a couple of months, and it was years before the craving left her.

She did it for me and my sisters. She didn't want us to follow her poor example and become smokers who would find it as hard to quit as it was for her.

What have I (and my sisters) gained? We have never smoked. Or wanted to. I grew up in a home free of burn marks, smelly draperies and nasty ashtrays. And when Mom baby-sat for my children, I didn't have to worry that they might find matches or a lighter in her purse. Mom is still around, though we live thousands of miles apart. Her letters have no scorch marks on them, and when we talk on the phone, I don't have to listen to a hacking cigarette cough.

Thank you, Mom, for having quit the habit when I was a baby. It took guts, courage and caring.

Councilman has 10 cups coffee daily

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After a drug test revealed his habit, City Councilman Ed Harrington owned up.

He drinks almost 10 cups of coffee a day.

"The doctor said I flunked the caffeine part," Harrington said Tuesday hours after receiving the results of the test. "Then he asked how much coffee I drank. I said eight to 10 cups and he almost went through the roof. They told me to cut down."

Wife says, bail would 'cool uproar'

MOSCOW (AP) — Nicholas Daniloff, the jailed American reporter charged with spying, believes his release on bail along with a Soviet held in New York would help "cool the international uproar" over his case, Daniloff's wife said today.

Ruth Daniloff told reporters her husband mentioned the idea to her on Tuesday during their third meeting since his imprisonment at Lefortovo Prison.

Daniloff, Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report magazine, was arrested Aug. 30 by eight KGB agents after a Soviet acquaintance handed him a package later found to contain military photographs and maps marked "secret."

On Sunday he was formally charged with espionage, which under Soviet law can carry a prison term of seven to 15 years or the death penalty.

During their 80-minute visit, Daniloff, 51, told his wife the spying charges filed against him roughly correspond to the federal indictment handed up Tuesday against Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov in New York.

She said Daniloff continues to deny the charges.

Mrs. Daniloff said her husband is convinced the Soviets are treating his case as a "mirror" of Zakharov's case, who is accused of trying to buy military secrets for the Soviet Union.

She said she told her husband of President Reagan's Monday speech warning that Daniloff's detention was becoming an obstacle to improving U.S.-Soviet relations.

"He was very gratified by the enormous response and support he was having, but I don't think he realized to what extent it had gone," she said.

This year's winners of the Goldman Open Pairs, a grueling four-session event held annually at the Eastern States Regionals, were Dave Rosenberg and Allen Kahn. My father, who won the event twice, would have appreciated the expert defense shown by this pair on today's deal.

The bidding indicated that North and South had almost enough points for game. Rosenberg (West) reasoned that since he had 12 points of his own, his partner could not have much. He therefore chose a passive lead of the heart four instead of an aggressive club lead. South won Kahn's queen with the ace and led a low club toward dummy's queen. West won the king and noted his partner's play of the nine. Was it a singleton or top of a doubleton? Since it cost nothing to find out, West led his club four to dummy's lone queen. East ruffed with the spade nine and dutifully returned a low diamond. (West's low club asked for a diamond return.) South's jack went to West's queen, and West now cashed the diamond ace and led another low club. Declarer ruffed with dummy's seven, and East overruffed with the eight. (Declarer should have ruffed with dummy's ace and pulled a round of trump or else should have discarded dummy's last diamond.) Back came another diamond. Declarer bravely ruffed with the six, but it was overruffed by West's jack. West persisted with another club, and dummy's queen of trumps was overruffed by East's king. That made seven tricks for the defense, sending the contract down three for an excellent East-West score of 150.

Players won't be suspended...

NCAA lets Huskers off hook

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The NCAA had a change of heart and Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne enjoyed a change of luck.

Osborne's past teams have lost late-season games that cost them a chance at the national championship, and his 1986 squad seemed snakebitten before the season even started.

The NCAA ruled last week that 53 Nebraska players would be suspended for one game and seven other players for two games. The penalty was primarily punishment for the misuse of players' complimentary game passes.

The usually soft-spoken Osborne complained that the penalty was unfair. The university appealed, and the NCAA on Tuesday restored full eligibility to all 60 players.

"I hope nothing else comes up," Osborne said. "We were ready for a little good news, and I'm glad it came."

The Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals said the guilty players will be stripped of game-pass privileges this season.

Subcommittee Chairman Dave Maggard of the University of California said every NCAA Division I men's football and basketball and women's basketball program will be asked to review their student athletes' use of pass lists from the 1985-86 academic year.

Any violations will be dealt with in the same manner as those at Nebraska, with loss of pass privileges, Maggard said.

"I think this is the best step they could take," Osborne said. "We are really pleased. I think it is a tough but fair decision."

Nebraska's players were also pleased.

"I feel like turning a flip right now," said I-back Keith Jones, who was among the players suspended.

In a statement released by the NCAA, Maggard said the subcommittee found no indication of financial gains by the student-athletes.

The subcommittee heard Nebraska's appeal by teleconference call Tuesday morning for 90 minutes and didn't reach a decision until late in the afternoon.

The University of Tennessee held 10 players out of its game last Saturday with New Mexico, saying that they had been guilty of violating the rule, which says only a players' relatives and fellow students can use the four passes Division I players receive for each home game.

Will Bailey of Auburn, the NCAA's secretary-treasurer and a member of the subcommittee, said "we didn't consider Tennessee at all" during the conference call.

Tennessee athletic director Doug Dickey said from Knoxville, Tenn. that school officials have a conference call set for Thursday with the NCAA on their suspensions.

Over Texas Rangers...

Angels extend lead to 8½

by The Associated Press

Neither California nor Boston wants anything to do with a pennant race.

So, both teams took advantage of losses by their pursuers Tuesday night to open up seemingly insurmountable leads in their respective American League divisions.

With Kirk McCaskill pitching an 8-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians, the Angels took an 8½-game lead over the Texas Rangers, who lost 3-1 to Seattle.

The Red Sox, meanwhile, got two homers by Dwight Evans to beat Baltimore 7-5 and move eight games ahead of Toronto, which lost 3-1 to New York.

In the rest of the AL, Kansas City clobbered Minnesota 11-3, Milwaukee beat Detroit 3-1 and Chicago defeated Oakland 4-1.

Mariners 3, Rangers 1

Seattle's Jim Presley hit a two-run homer, and Edwin Nunez won his first game as a starter since Sept. 19, 1982 by pitching five scoreless innings. The homer was the first on the road for Presley in 91 at-bats, while Nunez was making his first major league start since 1983. His last victory as a starter also came against Texas.

Angels 8, Indians 1

McCaskill, 16-7, pitched his 10th complete game of the season, striking out seven and walking two, and lost his shutout bid in the sixth when Julio Franco hit a sacrifice fly.

"You hear everybody talk about how important the stretch drive is," McCaskill said. "All you hear is, 'Stretch drive, stretch drive.' But I try to keep away from that. I try to pitch the same in September as I do in April."

Red Sox 7, Orioles 5

Evans hit two solo homers and Marty Barrett drove in two runs with a double in Boston's three-run seventh as the Red Sox rallied to extend their winning streak to 10. Evans now has 17 of his 22 homers and 54 of his 88 RBI on the road.

Yankees 3, Blue Jays 1

New York's Mike Easler drove in a tie-breaking run in the eighth inning with a single, and Willie Randolph drove in an insurance run in the ninth with a sacrifice fly, backing Ron Guidry to his first victory since Aug. 6.

Guidry is 7-10.

Cincy still falling; Astros beat 'em, 9-2

by The Associated Press

The rest of the National League East long ago conceded the New York Mets the division title. Their counterparts in the West may soon be doing the same for the Houston Astros.

"I'm worried about my team collapsing," Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose said Tuesday after a 9-2 loss at Houston dropped the Reds 10 games behind the division-leading Astros. "We're still in second but I can't worry about catching Houston. I'm worried about catching (last-place) San Diego the way we're playing."

Houston's victory completed a two-game sweep of Cincinnati and left the Reds in their biggest hole of the season.

"It puts us in a double-figures lead when they could have walked out of here six games back and thinking they could still win," Astros third baseman Denny Walling said. "I don't think they look as forward now to the series next week."

The Reds host the Astros in a three-game series beginning Tuesday.

The Mets, meanwhile, had their magic number for clinching the East reduced to four when second-place Philadelphia lost to Chicago 8-6 in 10 innings. The Mets were beaten 9-7 by Montreal but still maintained a mountainous 21-game lead.

In other NL action, St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 3-1, San Francisco blanked San Diego 7-0 and Los Angeles outscored Atlanta 9-5.

Lady Tigers whip Sweetwater bunch

SWEETWATER – Snyder's Lady Tigers, utilizing a new offense, defeated Sweetwater 15-10, 15-13 here Tuesday to raise their District 2-4A record to 2-1.

Snyder, now 10-6 for the season, will participate in Abilene's Key City Tournament this weekend before resuming district wars.

The Tigers had only Monday to work on the new look, which utilizes two setters and makes room for another hitter.

"We went to a 6-2 offense which means we always have three hitters on the front row," said Coach Vicki Nelms, who said the transition went well. "With only one day of practice I thought we did fairly well on it. We knew we were going to make some mistakes but overall we had a lot more offense from it. It made our defensive coverage easier because there are not so many switches from it."

The change, at least for the Sweetwater match, meant when Donna Clay was on the back row she was setter. Shondra Robinson came in on the back row for Melody Pickering and also set. In other aspects of the look, Leslie Ward came in and played back row for Stacey Dunk and Tammy Williamson came in to serve for Paula Caldwell. Becky Becerra went in for Williamson after Sweetwater regained the serve.

Regulars Allison Adams and Sharnette Thompson were always in the lineup.

The match was the first time for Caldwell to start and Nelms noted "She did a good job."

"Sweetwater is vastly improved over last year. They have some big kids that can hit the ball and block. Plus, they always get up for us," noted Coach Nelms. "Our kids never lost their composure. They really did a good job, especially since we had gone to a new system."

Scoring on serves for Snyder were Robinson 13, Clay 9, Thompson 7, Ward 2 and Adams and Williamson 1 each.

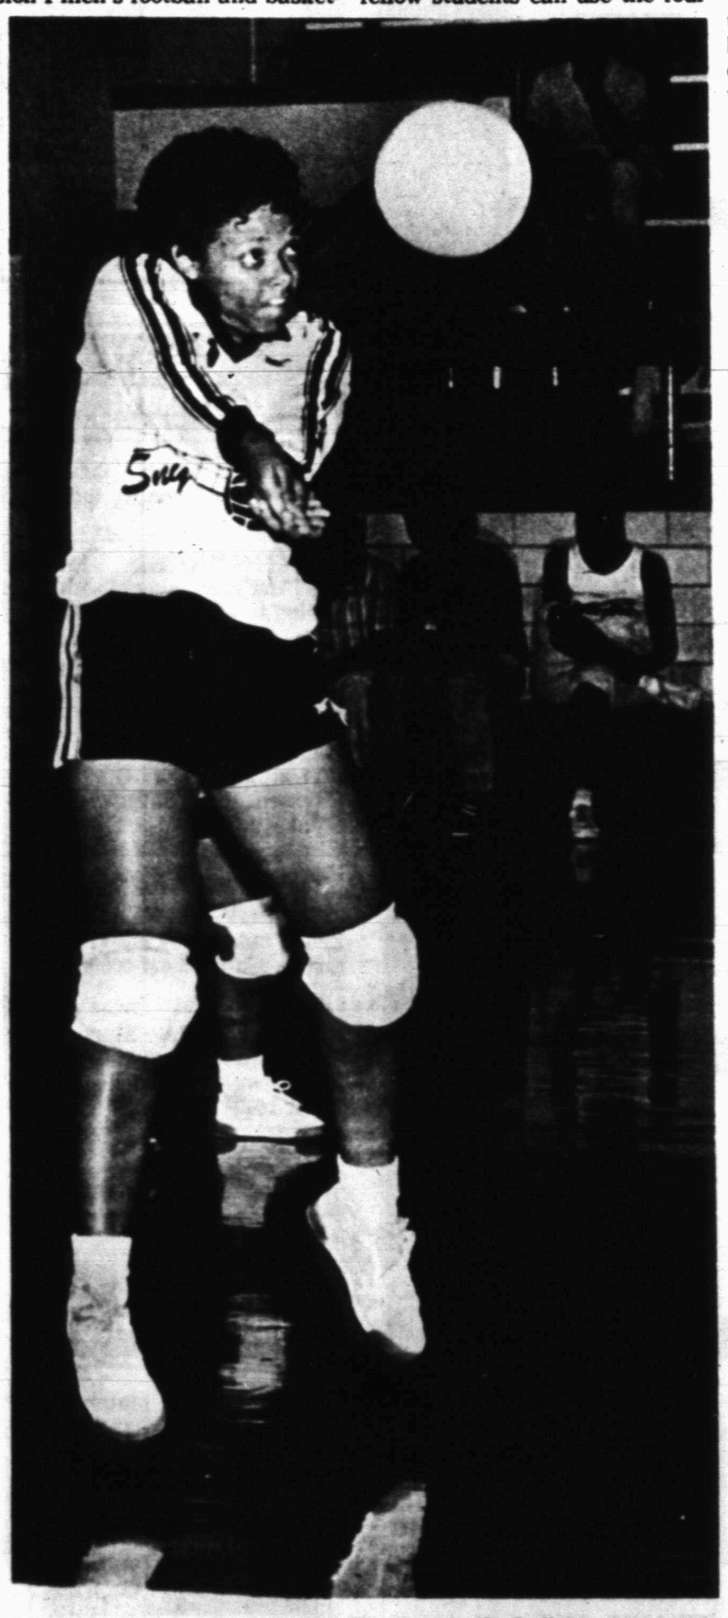

The Tigers open the Key City Tournament by playing Aspermont at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Abilene High Gym.

...JV wins, too

Snyder junior varsity volleyball team defeated Sweetwater 6-15, 15-5, 15-10 Tuesday evening.

Scoring on serves for the JV were Rhonda Echols 9, LaFon Williams and Sandra Morin 6 each, Christy Greene 5, Lena Hodges 3 and Kelly Walker and Sandra Powell 2 apiece. Meredith Goodwin, Nellie Rodriquez and Jennifer Alarcon also played.

SHS JV, which boasts a 10-4 record, will host a tournament Saturday in Snyder.

UIL says female can't play football

AUSTIN (AP) - Tina Trejo thought she earned a Bobcat uniform on the Bedichek Junior High football team.

"During the month of August, I worked out every day, running a mile and lifting weights. I sweated it out, and I made this team fair and square," said the 5-foot-2, 164-pound 13-year-old.

She finished tryouts last week and made the team as a defensive lineman.

But school officials said Tuesday they learned that University Interscholastic League rules prevent girls from playing football, so Tina won't be suiting up this fall after all.

"There are two basic types of restrictions - boys can't play on girls' teams, and girls can't play football," said Bill Farney, UIL athletic director.

Weaver will retire

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Weaver Watch is over.

Earl Weaver won't be back as manager of the Baltimore Orioles next year, but he will finish out the 1986 season.

Ending weeks of speculation and rumor, owner Edward Bennett Williams announced late Tuesday that the Orioles had accepted Weaver's decision to retire for a second time in four years.

Williams, the celebrated Washington attorney who used his courtroom oratory to lure Weaver out of retirement in the middle of the 1985 season, will not try to influence Weaver this time.

"I told Earl," Williams told a hastily-called news conference at Memorial Stadium a couple of hours before Tuesday night's game against Boston, "that I would not try to persuade him to do something he did not want to do any more."

DON'T LET THE "UGLIES" GET YOUR LAWN...

Winter annuals such as wild rye and henbit start their life cycle in the fall and get well-established by spring while bermuda grass is dormant. Weed and Feed Special kills the seed of these foreign weeds and wild grasses and feeds your lawn a balanced feed at the same time. Keep the "uglies" out of your lawn all winter.

DON'T FORGET That leaves fed last in the fall are the FIRST to green up in the spring.

Space Center to regain interior control

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Johnson Space Center will regain control of the interior elements of the crew compartment of America's space station under an agreement now being negotiated between managers of two NASA centers, a space agency spokesperson said.

The spokesperson, Mark Hess, made the comments to clarify a statement made earlier Tuesday by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

The senator said that the Texas center would have "full control of the habitation module," but Hess said the development of the hull and exterior of the module would still be managed by the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama.

Hess emphasized that work management assignments for the space station are tenative and that agreement has not been affirmed by both centers nor by NASA headquarters.

In a statement released by Gramm's office, the senator was quoted as saying that the plan "already has been accepted in principle by NASA headquarters" and that it "marks a major policy re-alignment."

Hess said that, in effect, the plan would merely return to Johnson a work assignment that had been taken away under a previous revision of the space station plan.

Gramm also was quoted as saying, "At this point in the review process, it appears that full control of the habitation module, including contracting and operation of training facilities, will remain in Houston."

Hess said that Johnson would not have "full control" of the entire module, but only of the internal components, and that Marshall would oversee construction of the external components. A single contractor, however, would manufacture the entire module, and that management of the total space station program would be by NASA headquarters in Washington.

Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Texas, cautioned that the agreement was still far from final on giving the internal component contract to Johnson.

"It sounds very positive. We're making great progress," said Andrews, but he added: "It's premature to say that the issue has been finally resolved."

He said NASA administrator James Fletcher is scheduled to testify before the house subcommittee on science on Sept. 25 and is expected to explain the agreement then.

Under the original plan, Johnson was to manage the whole space station program and oversee construction of the habitation module.

But Fletcher announced earlier this year that the original plan was being modified. The management of major elements of the habitation module on the space station were to be taken from the Johnson Space Center and assigned to the Marshall center. Also, Fletcher said that management of the whole space station program would be moved from Johnson to NASA headquarters.

Studies showed that the move would cost the Houston center more than 1,000 jobs.

Andrews said he and other Texas congressmen vigorously objected.

"The first meeting with Fletcher on the issue was very brutal and very frank," said Andrews.

Gramm later also met with Fletcher.

The administrator shortly afterward ordered the space station plan to be re-examined. Fletcher admitted he should have consulted with congress before announcing the plan.

Andrews said it was not yet possible to determine how many of the 1,000 jobs would be restored under the new, revised revision of the revised plan.

Oil import fee would forestall state tax

HOUSTON (AP) — Texans wouldn't have the possibility of having a temporary sales tax increase imposed if President Reagan would order an oil import fee, Gov. Mark White said.

White told the Houston chapter of the American Petroleum Institute that his Republican opponent, former governor Bill Clements, should make use of his friendship with Reagan and press for the fee.

The governor said he was encouraged by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who said Monday he was working with the president on an energy legislative package that might include an import fee or a price floor.

Among other ideas of the package are repealing the windfall profits tax, a move White said is important in helping establish a strong energy industry.

The governor Tuesday also urged the members of the petroleum institute to press for solutions.

"Let's put the drills back in Texas and let's go back to work," he told them.

White also echoed his wants for a temporary sales tax increase even though a new study estimates the projected state budget deficit has eased by $700 million.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced Tuesday that the state's projected budget deficit has improved slightly over the past two months, from $3.5 billion to $2.8 billion.

The state Legislature in its first special session made budget cuts and resolved other issues that lowered the shortfall estimate, Bullock said.

White said he was encouraged by the new projection because "it makes it easier for all of us."

But the governor said the state still needs a one-year, 1⅛-cent increase in the state's 4⅛-cent sales tax because of immediate cash needs. House Speaker Gib Lewis, in a separate speech near Fort Worth, predicted such a proposal would pass.

White said he was pleased with the attitude of lawmakers and predicted they would be able to compromise on balancing the budget in the second special session which started Monday.

Pay question raised locally

For a teacher with a BA degree, the 12-month overpayment was said to equal approximately $1,400.

Problems in the payback plan occurred, however, when school trustees did away with the old "step" pay system this past summer--a plan that would have granted teachers this year at least a 6 percent pay raise. The plan ultimately approved gives them a 3 percent pay hike.

For teachers still opting to have the overpayment paid back, this means that at the end of this school year they will still owe the school district approximately one-half of the overpayment.

School officials Wednesday estimated this at from $635 to $665.

At Tuesday's meeting, Betsy Griffin, president of the local TSTA chapter and one of the teachers affected, and her legal counsel contended that because she was promised her pay would no longer be frozen at the end of this year, she feels her commitment will end at the conclusion of her current contract year regardless of the amount actually repaid.

Griffin noted she was putting the case before the board "as president of the association" rather than because of her personal involvement.

School board members responded, however, that they felt their action two years ago was in effect "an interest free loan" to the affected teachers.

"You will have had use of that money interest free for three years," commented Hinton. "I thought of it as a loan agreement like I would make for one of my sons, and I feel like that's the kind of attitude this board has had toward the teachers of the district."

Representing Griffin at the meeting was Jean Pinkert, an Austin-based attorney, and Alma Marshall, a Midland-based paralegal who represents this area's TSTA chapters.

After a discussion lasting some 30 minutes, Board President Mike Jordan asked fellow board members if there was any motion to address the teacher's contention. None followed.

Administrators said Wednesday morning that their offer to the remaining teachers is to continue the salary freeze until the overpayment has been eliminated.

The average pay raise to teachers this year is some $650, an amount the 29 teachers still affected are not scheduled to receive.

Under the school district plan, any raise granted next school year--assuming it does not exceed the estimated amount still owed--will also be "frozen" for these teachers.

Thousands of people mourn victims of synagogue attack

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Thousands of mourners today jammed a bloodstained synagogue and the narrow streets outside it for the funeral of 19 Turkish Jews killed when two gunmen stormed the house of prayer.

"No act of violence or aggression could have been so inhuman, so insane, so cruel," Jak Veissid, adviser to chief Rabbi David Asseo, said in his eulogy.

Relatives of the dead came to the Neve Shalom Synagogue weeping and wailing. Officials estimated that 1,000 mourners packed the temple while thousands more stood outside, guarded by dozens of riot police.

Two other Jews killed in the attack Saturday lived in Israel, and their bodies were flown there Tuesday and buried in Jerusalem. The attackers, believed to be Arabs in their 20s, fired on the Sabbath worshipers with submachine guns before blowing themselves up with hand grenades.

President Reagan sent a message to Jewish leaders in Turkey, saying their grief was shared by all Americans and expressing "our determination to put an end to such horrors."

During the 30-minute funeral, a local rabbi read the Kaddish, the Jewish prayer for the dead, and a prayer of revenge for the orphans and widows of the dead.

Twenty-one floral wreaths — one for each victim — were placed along the synagogue walls.

Members of the city's 20,000-member Jewish community cleaned up the synagogue for the funeral. But signs of the carnage remained: bloodstains on the walls and ceiling and smashed stained-glass windows.

Representatives from Jewish communities in the United States, France, Sweden, Italy and West Germany attended the funeral. Also present were the chief rabbi of Israel, two Turkish Cabinet members and the U.S. ambassador to Turkey, Robert Strausz-Hupe, who delivered Reagan's message to local Jewish leaders.

After the service, a procession under heavy police escort brought the 19 plain pine coffins to the Jewish ceremony in the residential district of Ulus, 6 miles from the synagogue.

Israel had sought to send a government representative but the government of Turkey, an overwhelmingly Moslem nation with delicate diplomatic ties to the Jewish state, opposed this, according to sources in Ankara.

Interior Minister Yildirim Akbulut said Turkish officials are seeking help from Interpol, the international police organization, in identifying the two attackers.

Fingerprints taken from the terrorists' dismembered bodies were being circulated in various countries through Interpol. Police also compiled composite sketches of the gunmen, pieced together with the help of the few worshipers who survived the assault.

Israeli Religious Affairs Minister Yosef Burg said the government would punish those responsible for the massacre of Mirza Babazade, 82, and Rafael Nesim, 65, both Iranian Jews who lived in Israel.

School agenda for Tuesday told

It was noted that the Gainseville firm currently contracts with 30 other school districts.

All school board members attended Tuesday's meeting to include Mike Jordan, board president, J.D. Hinton, G.A. Parks Jr., Allen Grimmett and Charlene Light.

In other school-related action, the board voted to:

—Adopt policy updates which bring local guidelines under new state mandates. These include allowing employee grievances to be aired at a school board meeting without previously being placed on the agenda provided those speaking have gone through a two-step chain of command, meeting first with their supervisor-principal and second with the superintendent. Also adopted was a policy update allowing classroom teachers to appeal selection for career ladder status.

—Pass a resolution acknowledging the work done by Gerald Corkran, past president of the Snyder Soccer Association, for his work to establish new soccer fields adjacent to the Snyder Junior High. The resolution, to be given to Corkran, will be in lieu of an association request that a sign naming the two fields in his honor be placed on the school grounds. Current soccer president Troy Hall brought the request.

—Accepted "with regret" the resignation of Mike Reed, board member the past 6½ years.

—Authorized the employment of six teachers for the new fall term. These include Sally White, resource staffer at North; Milton Ham, PE teacher at Central; Sherrin Nachlinger, social studies teacher at SHS; Betty Thompson, kindergarten teacher at Stanfield; Debra McNair, prekindergarten teacher at North; and Marie Gloyd, third grade teacher at Central.

—Accepted the lone bid of $65,620 to purchase a computer assisted instruction Microhost system from Computer Curriculum Corp. of Euless. Funds to pay for the system will come from federal grant monies awarded the district. The system will be used primarily for remedial work at the high school in math and English language arts.

The bombarded soil of Corregidor contains such enormous quantities of shrapnel, bomb fragments, and spent bullets that Boy Scouts camping on the island find their compasses useless.

Contact lenses and electricity

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that electrical workers who wear contact lenses are at risk for eye damage?

DEAR READER — Two recent incidents have called attention to a new and particularly serious safety hazard for contact-lens wearers who work as welders or in occupations connected to the electrical industry.

In the first case, an electrical worker threw a switch that produced a spark. When he returned home, he removed his contact lenses. The corneas of his eyes came off with the lenses.

In the second case, a welder flipped open the colored shield of his welding hood in order to position a rod. He inadvertently touched the metal to be welded, and this produced an arc. When the worker removed his contact lenses, his corneas came off with the lenses.

Both men are now blind. Experts believe that at the time of the electrical discharge or arc, microwaves were generated that instantly evaporated the fluid between the contact lenses and the corneas, causing a fusion of the lenses to the corneas. The bonding of contact lenses to the eye was painless, but disastrous.

Although this type of injury is so new — and unusual — that federal and state regulations have not been formulated, investigators strongly urge that workers not wear contact lenses when doing jobs that might expose them to electrical sparks.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I liked your column about quarantining smokers to a room. I asked my husband to smoke in either the bathroom or the garage. He said that it's his house, he works all day and he has a right to smoke wherever he feels like it. He suggested that if I don't like his smoke, I go into the bathroom. Obviously, he is bullheaded about more than smoking. Do you have any advice?

DEAR READER — Under the circumstances, I'm afraid I don't. If your husband won't listen to you, he is unlikely to listen to me. You may have to isolate yourself when he is smoking — or open all the windows in the house when he lights up. From the sound of your letter, I'd say that smoking is only part of the problem. Good luck.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I recently read of a person who was cured of allergies forever by receiving adrenal cortex injections once a week for nine months, then once every two weeks for three months. If this method worked for him, why haven't more doctors tried it?

DEAR READER — Adrenal cortex injections consist of cortisone, a naturally occurring substance that reduces the body's ability to react to inflammation. Cortisone and its analogues, such as prednisone, are extremely effective antidotes for a variety of diseases, including lupus, rheumatoid arthritis and some severe allergic reactions.

Because cortisone produces many unwanted side effects — including diabetes, cataracts, bone softening and disruption of the immune system — most doctors use it sparingly, for short periods and under close medical supervision. In my opinion, doctors and patients who regularly use cortisone for allergies are taking a big risk. Reputable allergists use as little cortisone as possible and only as a last resort. Adrenal cortex injections are to be avoided for the use you describe.

Two defenses to AIDS under development

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two kinds of protection against the AIDS virus have been generated in chimpanzees inoculated with preliminary forms of a vaccine, recent laboratory tests show.

However, researchers who reported the apparent progress in San Antonio and Atlanta said further work will be needed to determine whether the vaccines can actually eliminate AIDS.

That research could begin later this month and would involve injecting the chimps with a serum containing the AIDS virus.

"The question is whether this will protect against actual direct infection with the virus," said Dr. George Todaro, scientific director of Oncogen, a Seattle-based firm that developed two varieties of a possible AIDS vaccine.

Both are made from a weakened type of smallpox virus into which scientists have spliced protein-making genes from the AIDS virus.
