Lawmen take steps to close 'hot spot'

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Midland law enforcement authorities took steps Tuesday to close a local barbecue restaurant they say is a "hot spot" for illegal drug use, drug sales and gambling.

County Attorney Mark Dettman has filed lawsuit in district court against Red's Drive-In, 1807 East Front St., alleging the restaurant is a public nuisance — a place people go to gamble, as well as to use and sell cocaine, "crack," heroin and marijuana.

"There's more than one way to enforce the law," Dett-

Lebanese group hints hostages' release near

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Kidnappers holding the American hostages Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland said in a communique in Beirut on Tuesday that they would send an envoy with "an extremely important message" to the United Nations secretary general, Javier Perez de Cuellar, within the next 48 hours.

But by the end of the day, U.N. officials said they had received no direct communications from any potential envoy.

U.S. officials here said they had received no visa applications that would lend credence to the report of a special envoy, but a senior Islamic cleric in Beirut suggested to reporters there that the "envoy" could be a released hostage carrying a special message to U.N. officials. But U.S. officials were making some preparations for a hostage release, while taking a cautious tone in

Reasoner dies

NEW YORK — TV newsman Harry Reasoner, whose elegant prose, dry wit and wry, self-effacing style helped make CBS' "60 Minutes" newsmagazine one of television's most popular shows, died Tuesday, the network said. He was 68. Reasoner died at Norwalk Hospital in Norwalk, Conn., CBS News said in a statement. He had been hospitalized there since June 11. Doctors had removed a blood clot from his brain, and he also suffered from pneumonia. Reasoner, whose silver hair, broad nose and amiable grin were known to millions, was a four-time Emmy winner and the first "60 Minutes" co-editor with Mike Wallace in 1968. /4A

What's fair game?

The explosion of "personality" journalism is evident at newsstands and on television. The medical condition, sex life and other intimate details of the lives of athletes, show business figures and other entertainers are being judged fair game for coverage. Is the media going overboard in covering celebrities' personal lives or are they just giving the public what it wants? Rockefeller out?

WASHINGTON — West Virginia Sen. Jay Rockefeller has decided not to seek the 1992 Democratic presidential nomination, a Democratic source said Tuesday. Rockefeller's office refused comment, saying only that the senator would announce today whether or not he would run. Rockefeller, 54, has been perhaps the most active among Democrats considering a race in lining up supporters and financial backing. /4A

Richards: Lottery's no cure-all

■ Governor says her Sunday TV remarks don't conflict with the possibility of additional taxes.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — No one has claimed that a lottery would cure all the state's fiscal woes and no one should think it can, Gov. Ann Richards said Tuesday.

"There's never been any misleading on anyone's part," Richards told an impromptu news conference.

"In fact, I thought one of the reasons it was important to pass (a lottery bill) is to take away the misconception that someone has that as long as the lottery is out there, then all your problems are solved," she said.

Lawmakers are struggling to write a 1992-93 state budget in the face of a $4.8 billion deficit.

After rejecting lottery eight times since 1983, the Texas House on Monday endorsed a proposed constitutional amendment to allow the gambling game.

A Senate committee hearing was postponed until Thursday, however, by a lottery opponent. And the current 30-day special session end Tuesday.

But even if a lottery is approved by the Senate and by voters in November, it likely wouldn't begin operating until next year, according to comptroller's office forecasts.

The game would raise an estimated

U.S. military advisers to aid Peru's drug war

By Clifford Krauss

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration plans to send military trainers to Peru to help the Peruvian military deal with drug traffickers and guerrillas involved in producing and smuggling cocaine, senior State Department officials said Tuesday.

Administration officials said the dispatch of more than 50 advisers, including Green Berets and Navy personnel, reflected an emerging view that Lima was losing control of its Andean mountain provinces to the drug barons and to the rebels of the Maoist Shining Path movement, who protect the traffickers.

Swaggart tells jury rival hasn't repented

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart decided that his rival in the television ministry, Marvin Gorman, had not repented of adultery even though Swaggart had not talked with Gorman, a jury was told Tuesday.

Swaggart took the stand for the first time in the month-long trial of Gorman's $90 million defamation suit against the Baton Rouge-based evangelist and his associates.

Gorman resigned as pastor of the First Assembly of God Church in New Orleans in July 1986 after admitting to one adulterous affair with another minister's wife, Linda

Ancient tablet might lead to lost royal archive of Hazor

TEL HAZOR, Israel (AP) — An archaeologist on Tuesday displayed an ancient tablet found last week which he believes is part of the lost royal archive of Hazor, once the largest city in biblical Israel.

If found, the archive could yield priceless knowledge of civilization more than 3,500 years ago, said archaeologist Amnon Ben-Tor of Jerusalem's Hebrew University.

A major Canaanite commercial center in the second millennium BC, mentioned in the Bible as "the head of all those (Canaanite) kingdoms," Hazor was burned down by Joshua son of Nun, the biblical Jewish warrior.

Lying about nine miles north of the Sea of Galilee, Hazor once covered 200 acres, eight times bigger than Jerusalem at the time, said Ben-Tor, who heads a joint Israeli-Spanish-American exacavation.

He said the matchbox-sized clay tablet dates back to the 18th or 17th century B.C. It was found last week "out of context" at a section belonging to a much later, Iron Age period, he said.

Ben-Tor said he assumes that Iron Age people removed the tablet from its original site while digging around to make bricks.

The tablet contains 19 names in cuneiform script and written in Akkadian, a language of commerce and politics at the time. Each name is preceded by an amount of weight in silver supposedly received from the king of Hazor.

"I am certain that this tablet is part of the royal archive," said Ben-Tor, adding that the collection might still be under ruins now being excavated that are thought to be the palace of Hazor.

There is also a fragment of a name believed to be of a weather god worshiped by western Semitic people, said Ben-Tor.

He said only five examples of writing from this period have been found so far.

However, tens of thousands of tablets dating back to the 18th century B.C. have been found in the ancient Syrian city of Mari on the Euphrates River.

Among the Syrian documents are 14 letters written by the king of Hazor to Mari, Ben-Tor said.

"Where is the return mail? It must be here," said Ben-Tor.

Some clouds, low 90s on tap

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the lower 90s and south winds at 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the upper 60s.

Thursday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 90s.

After an overnight low of 66, Tuesday's high was 87 compared with the record high for that date of 107 in 1964. The record low for today's date was 61 set in 1936.

STATE

Clouds developed Tuesday across North Texas and some afternoon thunderstorms formed across the western third of the region. Showers and thunderstorms also dampened the southern and central Gulf coast and Big Bend to the South Plains and southern Panhandle. The rest of the state was mostly sunny.

A ridge of surface high pressure remained over the state helping to produce south winds. Speeds ranged from 5 to 15 miles an hour with an occasional gust up to 20 mph.

NATION

Residents in parts of the South received heat warnings Tuesday, and storms dumped heavy rain on Indiana and Ohio.

Advisories for intense heat and high humidity were posted for the midlands and coastal plains of South Carolina and in southern and eastern Arkansas.

The heat index, which measures the combined effect of heat and humidity, pushed close to 110 degrees in central Georgia, the National Weather Service said.

LAWMEN: County files lawsuit against 'hot spot'

man said at a press conference with Midland police Tuesday to announce the lawsuit. He said the restaurant can be shut down if the charges are upheld in the courts. "Or we can make it very uncomfortable and unprofitable for them to operate as a business," he said.

Red's owner Solomon Bunton Jr., served with a citation by Police Chief Richard Czech, may be required to post a $10,000 bond to keep the restaurant open.

If the court finds illegal activity has been occurring at his business, Bunton must pay the bond, Dettman said. Then, if further illegal activity is found at the restaurant, Bunton could forfeit the bond money and have his business closed by court order.

The owner of the building, Mannie Williams of Lubbock, is expected to be served with a citation as well, officials said.

The lawsuit is a result of several months of investigation, police said. Czech said officers have responded to 447 calls at Red's in the last year and made 239 arrests, including 20 narcotics-related charges. Records show nine gambling arrests have been made at Red's since 1988.

"There's been more police service going to that location than probably any other location in Midland," Czech said. "Prostitution, we've been told, is working out of there."

Bunton, who received the citation while at the federal courthouse for another matter, said he is operating a legitimate restaurant and is unaware of illegal activity.

"I serve food," he said. "There's nothing going on. Young kids come up there and we try to run them away. It's the young kids doing this." He said restrooms at the establishment have been kept locked recently to deter drug users.

The business owner said he had not been expecting the citation.

"I don't know what to say about this," Bunton said. "I guess I'm going to have to talk to my lawyer." Bunton said his son and nephew have been operating the restaurant because he has been ill.

Dettman and Czech said they were alleging illegal activity took place at the restaurant, but did not know if Bunton was aware of it or involved in it.

At Red's, the unmarked building is hung with "no loitering" signs, some of them papered with "Just Say No" bumperstickers. Two employees there Tuesday said problems at the restaurant are not the owner's fault.

One man who would not give his name said he has been cooking at the restaurant since it opened 30 years ago.

"Drugs are the ones causing the problems," he said. "But it's everywhere. If they close it here, they might as well go out on the west end of town and close those clubs, too. And the schools, too. They ought to close them down.

"There's drugs everywhere. This isn't going to stop it."

Dettman acknowledged the suit is not a guaranteed deterrent, and those allegedly committing crimes in the area may move to another location if Red's closes.

"There's no guarantee criminal activity won't continue, but if it does, police will have some recourse," he said. Recent changes in the public nuisance laws made the suit possible, Dettman said.

"There's always been a way to file suit against a place that is a public nuisance, but they just put the teeth in it," he said.

Czech said new public nuisance laws could be an effective tool for police work, and may be used on other businesses in the city where illegal activity is suspected.

TRIAL: Swaggart testifies in his own defense

(From 1A)

Savage.

Gorman contends Swaggart spread false rumors about other affairs to bring down Gorman's budding New Orleans-based television ministry.

Less than a year after Gorman stepped down, he provided pictures of Swaggart with a New Orleans prostitute. Swaggart later admitted to an unspecified sin against his family.

Both were kicked out of the Assemblies of God, the nation's largest Pentecostal denomination.

During testy exchanges, Gorman's attorney, Hunter Lundy, accuased Swaggart of being a hypocrite who spread gossip about Gorman and then played the role of judge.

"Didn't you say on your program that when we judge another ... it's like we spit in the face of Jesus Christ?" Lundy asked Swaggart.

"That is exactly right," the minister responded.

Yet, said Lundy, Swaggart wrote to a high ranking church official in August 1986 that Gorman had not repented but Mrs. Savage had.

"You had never spoken to Linda Savage about Marvin Gorman. Yet you say (in a letter to a church official) that she repented but he hadn't. You had the right to decide?"

"Most definitely," said Swaggart.

"You took every opportunity you could to trash Marvin Gorman," Lundy said a few moment later.

"I never trashed Marvin Gorman."

Earlier in his testimony, Swaggart admitted he relied on rumor as the basis for a written statement mailed to ministers accusing Gorman of having extramarital affairs dating back 25 to 30 years.

Swaggart acknowledged that the statement, sent in 1986, was based on rumors told to him by Raymond Carlson, a national Assemblies of God official. Carlson told him that he had heard stories about Gorman dating back to Gorman's tenure as head of a youth group three decades ago, Swaggart said.

"He (Carlson) did not say what the rumors were," said Swaggart.

The statement mailed to ministers including details of purported conversations between Swaggart and Gorman in July 1986 when Swaggart accused his rival of adultery. Swaggart contended in the letter that Gorman had long-standing affairs "even up to this hour."

"Even up to this hour?" asked Lundy.

"That's a synonym for a period of time," said Swaggart.

"What was Marvin doing? Making passes at Frances while he was parading around your house?" Lundy snapped.

Swaggart's attorneys objected at that point and there was no response. Frances Swaggart is the evangelist's wife.

Swaggart said he was upset in the fall of 1986 because the PTL network of Jim Bakker was accusing him of trying to destroy Gorman's TV ministry.

LOTTERY: Lottery 'won't cure state fiscal woes'

(From 1A)

$450 million for the 1993 budget year, then about $1 billion annually after that.

"It really means more to us in the next (1994-95) biennium than it does this one (1992-93)," Richards said Tuesday.

Richards, a strong lottery backer who was thwarted on the issue during the Legislature's regular session, went on television Sunday night to urge Texas voters to lobby their lawmakers for lottery.

In that address, the governor said: "The choice is simple. Either we have a huge tax bill or we approve a lottery. That's what it comes down to."

On Tuesday, Richards said her TV address didn't conflict with the possibility of additional taxes.

"The franchise tax has to be revised. And after that occurs, the Senate passes the lottery bill. Then we have to look at what remains to be done and how much of a tax (increase) bill has to be passed," she said.

The House early Tuesday rejected a $1.1 billion franchise tax overhaul that would have expanded the levy from corporations to most businesses and from capital investment to capital or business income, whichever is greater.

Asked what size tax bill would meet the definition of "huge," Richards replied, "Well, you know, it all is in the eye of the beholder."

During the House debate on lottery, some opponents charged that lottery backers had sought to paint the gambling game as a tax substitute.

"It's supposedly going to save us (from) a tax bill. I've seen the governor's quotes in the paper that the Legislature 'can either give you a lottery or give you taxes'," said Rep. Billy Clemons, D-Pollok.

"How many of you believe that the lottery is going to prevent a tax bill? If you do, I've got some land I want to sell you," Clemons said. "The fact is, voters are going to get both and they're going to get them in the next few days."

SURVEY: Most said they were in favor of lottery

(From 1A)

"I'd probably play it," Levisay added.

Arkabie

"My personal belief is that we shouldn't have it," said James Brezina, 42. "But if it comes down to higher taxes, then it's better than taxes. But, I really don't think the government should get involved in gambling. It's a gimmick that sucks in the lower echelon. Really, there's a better chance of winning in Las Vegas."

The Texas House approved the lottery proposal by a one-vote margin Monday.

The proposal must also clear the Senate before it would go on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Gov. Ann Richards has campaigned for the game of chance, although she has said it won't prevent some increase in taxes.

Texas would be the 32nd state to create a lottery. It is expected that it would raise $450 million for the state treasury in the next two years, supporters contend. Thereafter, it could raise $1 billion each two-year budget period, they add.

Texas is the largest state without a lottery, and supporters said it offers a non-tax way to raise needed funds.

Opponents say the lottery would prey on society's most vulnerable citizens.

Midlander Rosa Enriquez agreed.

Enriquez

Ms. Enriquez, 50, said, "I have a strong opinion about the lottery. I'm against it. I have seen friends — in other states — spend money on the lottery that they should be spending on bills. It would be really bad. People would spend money whether they had it or not."

Ms. Enriquez said the lottery would foster gambling addictions.

"It's just like bingo," she said. "You could get hooked on any kind of gambling."

Heather Green, 21, said, "I'm in favor of it and I would participate in it."

Others had a different view.

"Personally, I wouldn't participate in it and I don't think it would be good for Texas to have a lottery," said Tiffany Pruitt, 23.

Mike Fowler, 47, however, said he "was all for it."

"I'd rather see it instead of a state income tax," Fowler said. "Other states with lotteries have shown a great increase in income production. I would participate in it and I also have been for horseracing every time it's come up."

Fowler

Fowler allowed that a lottery involved gambling. "But, hey, this is oil country and oil is the greatest gamble in the world."

One Midlander — when asked if he had an opinion on a state lottery in Texas — turned his right thumb toward the ground, giving it a big "thumbs down" and saying, "Does that tell you how I feel?" before stalking off.

Shirley Arkabie, 44, who lived in Washington, D.C., for two years before moving to Midland, said she had good experiences with the lottery.

"I'm in favor of it. I came close to winning a couple of times," she said.

Rubylee Nelson, 69, said, "Anything is better than taxes; they are just too high. It will be all right with me if it means they will raise taxes that much less."

Mark Castillo, 20, said he didn't think a state lottery "would be such a good idea."

A series of public opinion polls has found that upwards of 70 percent of Texans favor a lottery, according to Associated Press reports.

And although several other informal call-in polls taken by local news media organizations show Midlanders roughly split on the issue, State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, has said in previous reports that he opposes a lottery because his district is against it.

Craddick has indicated that state budget cuts could go farther to make up the deficit.

The state representative could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

public.

"There have been many press reports in the last several months claiming that hostage releases were imminent," said Sondra McCarty, State Department spokeswoman. "We can only hope that this latest report will prove true."

President Bush, speaking to reporters aboard Air Force One on his way to Kennebunkport, Maine, said: "I do not want to make any statement of any kind that would contribute to the concern of the families involved. So we'll leave it there. If something happens, so much the better."

The communique from the Islamic Holy War organization was delivered, along with a photograph of Anderson, to an international news agency in Beirut. It followed by one day a report in an Iranian newspaper predicting that an American and a British hostage would be released by week's end.

For months, U.S. and Western officials have been saying the reduced tensions between Tehran and the West plus the re-establishment of central authority in Lebanon could lead to the release of some or all of the 12 Westerners still in captivity.

The kidnappers want Israel to release hundreds of Arabs held in Israeli prisons, many of them Shiite Muslim militiamen captured in southern Lebanon. Among those held by Israel is Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, a Shiite religious leader captured during an Israeli raid in July 1989.

The communique Tuesday said, "In line with our belief in the need for action to resolve the issue of our imprisoned holy warriors around the world, especially in occupied Palestine, as well as the issue of those we hold we shall send a special envoy carrying an extremely important message to U.N. Secretary General Mr. de Cuellar within the next 48 hours."

In the photograph released Tuesday, Anderson, 49, who was seized on March 16, 1985, appeared haggard and had grown a small beard. The former Middle East bureau chief for The Associated Press, Anderson is the longest-held hostage, followed by Sutherland, 60, the acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, who was kidnapped on June 9, 1985.

Hazor was the first major dig by Israeli archaeologist Yigael Yadin, in 1955-1958. According to the daily Jerusalem Post, shortly before his death in 1984 Yadin said he believed he knew where the archives were and was planning to look for them.

According to the dramatic account in the Book of Joshua, the Jewish leader first defeated a coalition of city-states led by Jabin, King of Hazor.

Then, Joshua "turned back at that time, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword ... and he burnt Hazor with fire ... But for the cities that stood on their mounds, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only — that did Joshua burn" (Joshua 11:10-11).

(From 1A)

from more than 20 years of limited contact between the United States and a Peruvian army known for a dismal human-rights record.

Officials insisted that President Bush had no intention of sending the trainers anywhere near combat. But noting that 70 percent of the world's cocaine originates in Peru, Bernard W. Aronson, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said: "You can't have a serious counternarcotics program if you write off the largest cocaine producing state and if you won't help the Peruvians provide security for counternarcotics efforts. Peru desperately needs our help."

President Alberto Fujimori and his high command agreed last month to the outlines of a $34 million American military program for Peru that will include the training of two combat batallions, the creation of a river patrol force and the refurbishing of army helicopters and air force combat jets.

The program is also to include American supervision of a reform of the Peruvian military justice system and instruction led by Army lawyers aimed at improving the human-rights record of several Peruvian military units.

It is not known when the trainers are to leave, but their departure is expected in the next several months.

Human rights advocates, noting that Peru's army has the worst record of torture, disappearances and summary executions in the hemisphere, have been highly critical of the thaw between Washington and Lima.

Told of the military aid program, Juan E. Mendez, executive director of the human-rights group Americas Watch, said: "The United States is involving itself in a very dirty war. I think the Administration would do a lot better if it demanded reform first."

Melvyn Levitsky, the assistant secretary of state for international narcotics matters, said the aid package was intended to increase the army's ability to improve security in the Upper Huallaga Valley, where the rebels serve as middlemen between the peasant coca growers and the traffickers by negotiating prices and collecting taxes for their own operations.

"Drug trafficking and Shining Path activities are inextricably tied together," he said. "You can't fight one without fighting the other."

Levitsky said another aim of the training program would be to increase the coordination between the Peruvian army and the police in anti-narcotics efforts. The two army batallions are to be trained to defend the flanks of police units engaged in interdiction and eradication operations from rebel attacks.

Officials hope that increased cooperation between the army, the police and American trainers will reduce instances in which army units tip off drug dealers and protect clandestine airfields used for trafficking.

Officials said the trainers would not remain permanently in Peru but would rotate for three to four months at a time. Each combat batallion would be assigned 25 trainers. An undetermined number of military personnel would be assigned to human rights training and to developing the river patrol force intended to intercept transportation of chemicals used to make cocaine.

The administration already has similar military training programs in Bolivia and Colombia, but neither nation has as serious a guerrilla insurgency as Peru. Shining Path is the most violent and radical guerrilla group in Latin America, targeting health and other social workers as well as intimidating peasant villages. The group's ideology is Maoist, and it has sometimes been compared to the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia.

Fujimori had rejected a previous proposal for military aid, but helped fashion the latest plan to include American financial assistance for Peruvian army units to build roads and bridges and otherwise win the support of peasants in drug-cultivating areas.

The military aid accompanies a $60 million economic assistance package that is partly intended to encourage coca growers to switch.

Rockefeller won't run, source says

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Virginia Sen. Jay Rockefeller has decided not to seek the 1992 Democratic presidential nomination, a Democratic source said Tuesday.

Rockefeller's office refused comment, saying only that the senator would announce Wednesday whether or not he would run.

"He is going to make a definitive statement," said spokeswoman Marisa Spatafore of the senator's Charleston office.

Rockefeller, 54, has been perhaps the most active among Democrats considering a race in lining up supporters and financial backing.

He was considered likely to enter the race shortly after Labor Day, but then abruptly canceled his political schedule for last weekend.

A Democratic source said Tuesday that Rockefeller had informed top aides he had decided not to run. The source refused to be identified further.

This and other party sources, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said in recent days that Rockefeller has expressed concerns about his ability to assemble a first-rate campaign operation, whether he was ready for a national campaign and the strain a campaign would impose on his family.

Rockefeller is the second prominent Democrat in the past two weeks to announce he would skip the 1992 race.

Reasoner known for wry humor

(NYT) — Harry Reasoner, whose wry wit and low-key unflappable delivery were mainstays in network newscasting for four decades, died Tuesday night at Norwalk Hospital in Norwalk, Conn. He was 68.

He died of cardiopulmonary arrest, said a CBS News spokeman, Tom Goodman.

Reasoner had been in declining health for some time. He had operations for lung cancer in 1987 and 1989. On June 12 he underwent surgery for removal of a blood clot on the brain, and later developed pneumonia. A CBS News spokesman, Tom Goodman, said Reasoner died of cardiopulmonary arrest.

Reasoner, who retired from regular participation on "60 Minutes" on May 19, spent most of his career at CBS News, where he served two hitches as a reporter and correspondent: from 1956 to 1970, and from 1978 to his retirement.

From 1970 to 1978, he worked for ABC News, as an anchor of "The ABC Evening News," working at first with Howard K. Smith and then with Barbara Walters.

When "60 Minutes" began in 1968, Reasoner was one of its anchors. He rejoined the show when he returned to CBS and remained with it until his retirement, when he became editor emeritus and agreed to appear occasionally.

Andrew A. Rooney, who wrote many memorable essays for Reasoner over the years, said: "I have found in television that it's easy to write for someone who doesn't need you and impossible to write for someone who really needs you. Harry was easy to write for."

Dahmer faces eight more murder charges

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jeffrey L. Dahmer was charged Tuesday with eight more murders, including the teen-age brother of a boy he previously molested and a man killed when Dahmer was waiting to be sentenced for sexual assault.

The revised criminal complaint says Dahmer had sex with several of his victims, including four after death, painted three victims' skulls after boiling them to remove the skin, and kept one man's biceps in his freezer.

The eight new counts of first-degree intentional homicide in Milwaukee County Circuit Court bring to 12 the number of victims Dahmer has been formally accused of killing. Each count carries a mandatory life in prison sentence.

Police say the former candy factory worker and Army veteran has admitted to 17 killings since 1978, including three at his grandmother's suburban Milwaukee home and one at his boyhood home in near Akron, Ohio.

District Attorney E. Michael McCann said he may file additional charges at an Aug. 22 hearing.

Judge Jeffrey A. Wagner ordered Dahmer's bail raised from $1 million to $5 million, citing the "nature and gravity of offenses and the degree of violence in the complaint."

Also Tuesday, police released the name of another victim: Steven W. Tuomi. That brings to 16 the number of victims identified by authorities. The name of a Hispanic man believed killed at the home of Dahmer's grandmother in the mid-1980s has not yet been released, police said.

Capt. Donald Domagalski said Tuomi was last heard from Sept. 15, 1987, when he was 24 and living in Milwaukee.

Dahmer appeared in court clean shaven and wearing an orange jail jumpsuit and blue shirt. He often stared at the floor but looked directly at the judge when answering questions.

Among the victims Dahmer was charged with killing Tuesday was Anthony Sears, 26, of Milwaukee, who was killed March 25, 1989, while Dahmer was awaiting sentencing for molesting a boy in 1988.

The complaint alleges Dahmer told police he lured Sears to Dahmer's grandmother's house in suburban West Allis, had sex with him, drugged him, strangled him and then dismembered the body.

He later boiled the skull to remove the skin, painted it and kept it, the complaint said. Two months later he was sentenced to one year in jail and five years' probation for sexually assaulting a boy in 1988.

Dahmer was released from jail in March 1990 after promising to change his ways because the "world already has enough misery in it without my adding more to it," court records show.

Ban on first aid spurs AIDS controversy

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) — A fire district's new policy of not responding to first aid calls from people with AIDS has outraged AIDS activists and civil libertarians.

Arvada fire officials say a list of residents with infectious diseases is just one element of a new policy on handling medical emergencies, and does not single out people with AIDS.

But critics say the fire district is treading on dubious ethical grounds by keeping a computer list of households where AIDS patients live.

"What this governmental agency is reverting to is what we saw 10 years ago. I'm disappointed they don't know any better. What are they going to do next, paint an 'A' on someone's front door?" asked Lance Clem, director of the Governor's AIDS Council.

Several other fire and police departments around the country have been forced to retract similar policies after outcries from AIDS organizations.

Joe Schumacher, district manager for the fire department, said Fire Chief Bob White made a mistake when he wrote a memo July 24 saying firefighters would not respond to calls for assistance from people known to have an infectious disease, including AIDS.

Under the new policy, the Arvada Fire Protection District's medical services contractor, Ambulance Service Co., will be dispatched instead of fire district volunteers.

Schumacher said Tuesday the purpose of the change is to cut down on all medical calls, not just those involving infectious diseases.

"This is not an AIDS policy, it's an emergency medical policy," he said. "We're not responding to any medical calls. Our volunteers are being burned out responding to medical calls just to load an ambulance. This applies to broken arms and broken noses as well."

Schumacher acknowledged that the fire district is keeping computer lists of addresses where there are known infectious diseases, but said individuals are not on the list.

"We do the same thing for hazardous materials or weapons," he said. He said there are fewer than 25 addresses flagged for infectious diseases, while thousands are flagged for hazardous materials.

Schumacher says only dispatchers have access to the addresses. He said the information is sent to firefighters on computer lines for firefighters to read and shred.

The list of people with infectious diseases was obtained from previous contact with the individuals, Schumacher said. If a firefighter responded to a call and was told the person had an infectious disease, the firefighter would make a note of it and it was later entered in the department's computer system, he said.

A computer listing of Union City, Calif., residents infected with the AIDS virus was banned after AIDS activists and civil rights groups criticized the action. In Knoxville, Tenn., the Rural-Metro ambulance service agreed to stop providing Knox County's E-911 center with information on infectious diseases to protect confidentiality.

Protesters win Justice Department's support

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The Justice Department joined forces Tuesday with an anti-abortion group fighting a federal judge's order to keep two abortion clinics open.

Attorneys for the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue filed motions seeking to stay a preliminary injunction issued July 23 by U.S. District Judge Patrick Kelly.

The judge's order prohibits Operation Rescue and its followers from blocking access to the clinics and physically harassing staff and patients, or encouraging others to do so.

An angry Kelly denied the stay at a brief hearing. He also granted the request of Lee Thompson, the U.S. attorney for Kansas, to join the case.

"I am disgusted by this move by the United States," Kelly said.

Operation Rescue attorney Jay Sekulow said the group was asking the 10th U.S. Circuit Court in Denver to overrule Kelly's denial of the stay.

Operation Rescue attorneys had challenged Kelly's jurisdiction in a lawsuit filed by the two clinics against the protesters.

Thompson raised the same issue in his brief seeking to join Operation Rescue.

Thompson said the plaintiffs, Women's Health Care Services and Wichita Family Planning Inc., had not demonstrated the likelihood they would prevail in their lawsuit.

Thompson also said specific requirements set out by Kelly for enforcement of his order intruded on the U.S. Marshal Service's perogative of deciding how to enforce court orders.

The U.S. attorney said he wanted to argue points the Justice Department has raised in a case involving an abortion clinic in Alexandia, Va., now pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kelly said he believes the court will rule, as he has, "against these lawbreakers."

Kelly also said the Justice Department's involvement in the case was a political move. He recommended that Attorney General Richard Thornburgh review videotapes of Operation Rescue's Wichita activities to understand the "mayhem and distress" he said has been unleased on the city.

Haze shrouding earth shocks astronauts

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Four veteran astronauts circling the world aboard space shuttle Atlantis said Tuesday they have never seen so much haze shrouding Earth.

"It looks like we're looking down through a haze. I don't know if that's because of the recent volcanic eruptions, or the (Kuwait) fires or what," three-time space flier Shannon Lucid said during a televised news conference.

"We just haven't been getting as clear of views as we had on previous missions."

James Adamson, who is making his second space flight, speculated the excess haze might be a seasonal or atmospheric phenomenon associated with the recent eruptions of Mount Pinatubo in the Philippines.

Many of the video scenes beamed to Earth since the crew reached their 184-mile-high orbit Friday have been swathed in haze. It was especially thick over central Africa on Sunday, prompting shuttle commander John Blaha to say he could barely see the ground.

Some vistas, though, have been strikingly clear. The astronauts captured a shimmering Mediterranean Sea on videotape Tuesday as well as a detailed view of circular irrigation plots in Saudi Arabia that resembled a honeycomb.

The five-member crew, which also included veteran G. David Low and rookie Michael Baker, also got a good look at dark smoke streaming from burning oil refineries in Kuwait. Strong winds blew the black plumes toward the south as the astronauts gazed down during their 60th swing around the world.

2 propositions deserve support

For years many Texans who were concerned about the growth in the state government and increasing taxes have reacted at the polls on election day by voting against every proposal. That "safety valve" — simply saying no — won't work in the upcoming Saturday constitutional amendment election, however, and will actually erode the ability of voters to control some future tax decisions.

Blame it on your legislators; they are the ones responsible. But vote. Don't give up your right to determine the course of government — and taxation — in Texas.

There are two proposed constitutional amendments and three local education district propositions on the Midland ballot. Proposed Amendment No. 1 is a direct result of the legislature's attempt to redesign the school financing bill and, essentially, gives voters in the local education districts (called County Education Districts or CEDs) the ability to determine certain tax exemptions and assessments in the district.

Local school officials have noted that voting against this amendment will not invalidate the legislature's action in creating the 188 County Education Districts across the state, but will give away the right of voters to determine the fate of the local tax exemptions. If that happens, and Amendment No. 1 is defeated in the local CED which includes Midland, Andrews and Greenwood, the appointed governing body of the CED will make the determination about local school district tax exemptions.

Voters need to retain the right to make as many decisions as possible about tax matters, so they should vote FOR this constitutional amendment.

The three local propositions ask:

■ Proposition 1: Whether voters approve the taxation of all tangible personal property in the CED that is not held for the production of income. This proposition would create a new level of taxation and voters should vote AGAINST it.

■ Proposition 2: Whether voters approve a 20 percent tax exemption for a residence homestead from ad valorem taxation in the CED. If this is approved, other taxpayers in the CED will have to make up the lost tax revenue, local officials note.

■ Proposition 3: Whether voters approve a $10,000 tax exemption for disabled persons and those over the age of 65 from the market value of a homestead for tax purposes.

We recommend that voters approve Propositions 2 and 3.

The only other decision before voters is on proposed Amendment No. 2 which asks whether voters approve the issuance of $300 million in bonds guaranteed by the state to finance college loans.

We believe similar bond programs in the past have been extremely successful and have helped to pay for the college education of thousands of young people. Unlike "proprietary" schools which have misused some bond programs, these have helped hundreds of Midland and area students attend college. These additional funds are needed because the cost of a college education has been increasing tremendously.

■ Constitutional Amendment No. 1: For.

■ Constitutional Amendment No. 2: For.

■ County Education District Proposition No. 1 (taxation of personal property): Against.

■ County Education District No. 2 (exemption for homestead): For.

■ County Education District No. 3 (exemption for elderly, disabled): For.

These issues are important to the future of Midlanders. Be certain to cast your ballot in the election, which will be held Saturday.

Faircloth's stand deserves support

I hope everyone noticed City Councilman J.D. Faircloth's stand against remodeling City Hall. Wasn't it only three or four years ago two floors were added? Now they want to remodel one of those.

That is not good planning, nor should a remodeling be necessary this soon. Are they not supposed to be reducing the staff? Why is more room required?

So right now they are asking for only a few hundred thousand dollars, but if this is like most city projects it will be a million dollars before it is completed. Just look at the Loraine project. What was supposed to cost just over a million dollars has grown to four or five million now.

I think Faircloth has taken the right position and all citizens and city council members should support him. I urge every citizen to call their councilman (you can get his name and telephone number by contacting the city secretary, 685-7430). Each of us also should call Faircloth, 694-4120, and show our support for this very sensible stand. Please do this soon and avoid another expensive project.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 7, the 219th day of 1991. There are 146 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 7, 1782, George Washington created the Order of the Purple Heart, a decoration to recognize merit in enlisted men and non-commissioned officers.

On this date:

In 1789, the U.S. War Department was established by Congress.

In 1882, the famous feud between the Hatfields of West Virginia and the McCoys of Kentucky broke out. (By the time the feud ended, about 100 men, women and children had been killed or wounded.)

In 1912, the Progressive Party nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president.

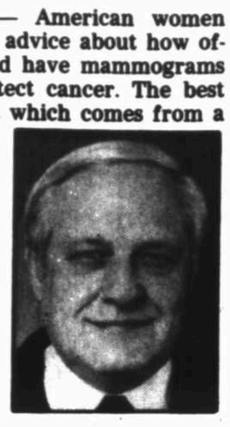
Shrewd lobbyists join mammogram bonanza

WASHINGTON — American women get conflicting advice about how often they should have mammograms — breast X-rays to detect cancer. The best advice may not be that which comes from a doctor, especially if the doctor owns the mammography machine.



Anderson

The mammogram is no longer just a diagnostic tool. It is a prescribed ritual, and about 3,000 new mammography machines have sprouted up around the country in the last five years to take care of the demand. The American College of Radiology gets about 10 applications a day from people seeking approval to operate a mammogram shop.

The business is being driven as much by doctor greed as patient need with doctors buying or leasing an increasing number of the machines and operating them in their own offices.

A shrewd lobby is now trying to persuade Congress to lift the federal spending cap on what Medicare will pay for a mammogram, which is $55. The argument is that the cap is unfair because it doesn't take into account the varying regional costs of mammography services. And if Medicare won't pay enough, then the poor won't get the service. That case has been made by lobbyists and celebrities alike. Actress Jill Eikenberry of "L.A. Law" made the rounds on Capitol Hill urging lawmakers to lift the price cap.

Her pitch helped to charm Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., into considering introducing legislation to lift the cap. But sources told our associate Jim Lynch that Daschle put his bill on ice after he learned where others behind the lobbying effort were getting their money. The hired lobbyist, Robbins Associates, was being paid not by a group of concerned doctors or patients, but by Spectrascan Imaging Services, one of the nation's largest sellers of mammography services.

Spectrascan advertises itself to doctors as the easy, low-cost way to get into the mammography business. The company sets up equipment and technicians in a doctor's office. The doctor leases the package and shares the profits with Spectrascan. The more people the doctor sends to the mammogram machine, the more money for Spectrascan and the doctor.

A Spectrascan official told us that the price cap "will not make or break us." And he said the absence of other lobbyists asking to have the cap lifted does not mean Spectrascan is alone in this quest. Others in the health field are "lobbying through us," he said.

Spectrascan has raised eyebrows with its candid profit pitch in the sobering field of breast cancer detection. Thomas Greeson, attorney for the American College of Radiology, said he is concerned that Spectrascan's arrangements with doctors may violate the Medicare anti-kickback law. George Souerwine of Spectrascan said, "There is no kickback involved," and noted that the Health and Human Services Department inspected the financial arrangements and found "no problem, in principle, with the Spectrascan service."

The argument for lifting the price cap doesn't hold up. Most doctors can still provide mammography services for a profit at $55. One Florida radiologist told us that no one is losing money at that price.

There will be an estimated 175,000 new cases of breast cancer diagnosed among American women this year. Of these new cases, about 44,500 will die. The American Cancer Society recommends that a woman have a baseline mammogram at age 35 and another mammogram every one or two years until the age of 50, after which women should have a mammogram annually. The need for quality and affordable mammography is not in question, but the mammogram bonanza has come with a deluge of shoddy equipment and poor testing practices, according to congressional and health officials. Many doctors cut costs by not having a radiologist present when the X-rays are taken. That practice is considered acceptable for routine screenings. But we have seen evidence that doctors, finding grounds for concern, must send the X-rays out to a radiologist. And many radiologists won't interpret X-rays unless they took them themselves, so another mammogram must be taken.

Modified democracy answers political wish

President Bush came home from his virtuoso performance in the Soviet Union only to resume the posture of a petulant preppy. Democrats are "frustratingly negative on everything" and "We need more farsighted people like me in Congress," he said like a Professor Henry Higgins lamenting Democratic Eliza Doolittles.

Gelb

There is a way for Bush to have his wish and for Democrats to have a better chance to reclaim the White House — if they have the nerve. Let's call the idea "modified parliamentary democracy," and it can be done without changing the Constitution.

The legislative process would work like this:

—The Democratic majorities in the House and Senate would pass bills as they see fit, representing the Democrats' approaches to dealing with domestic problems, and for which they would bear political responsibility. The Republican president could approve or veto.

—If the bill were vetoed, Democrats then would allow passage of the Republican bill on the same subject for which Republicans would shoulder responsibility.

The idea is to break the political-ideological stalemate in Washington and establish greater responsibility as a basis for voter choice.

Problems would be addressed with either liberal or conservative answers, and voters would know better whom to blame and reward.

Bush might have the guts to buy the idea. Republicans like Newt Gingrich in the House, strong believers with policy proposals, might see it as the only opportunity for Republicans to enact their programs and gain control of Congress.

Democrats would be reluctant. House Speaker Tom Foley and the Senate majority leader, George Mitchell, seem to think they are being responsible by trying to compromise with Republicans.

But the result is almost always either gridlock or mushy, minimal legislation that satisfies only backroom wheeler-dealers. Most committee chairmen prefer the present system for just those reasons. More difficult, many congressional Democrats would gag at going along with Republican legislation after a veto of their own.

To these Democrats, the only answer is that they have no hope of translating their beliefs into laws in the current system — unless they capture the White House. Their best chance of doing that is by letting Republicans pass their laws, and triumph or hang themselves.

I turn to this kind of stark and mechanical idea only because the present situation is ridiculous.

For months now Republicans and Democrats have pressed another idea — urging Bush to shift his priorities from foreign to domestic. The hope was that if he paid more attention to what was going on in the United States, he would see the devastating problems. To which he answered on Friday that things were fine at home and "I am not going to lose interest in world peace."

One can only conclude from this masterly retort that Bush will continue to pay more mind to Cyprus than Cincinnati. Maybe it is better.

Last week Foley seemed to back away from the Democrats' commitment to a bill that would provide $150 billion for highway and mass-transit construction and repair. Rank-and-file Democrats could not face the prospect of Bush attacking them over the 5-cent-per-gallon tax increase needed to finance the bill.

Bush also said on Friday that "the last thing" he wanted from legislation was to "increase the deficit." But two weeks ago Richard Darman, his budget tamer, announced that the deficit would be $20 billion to $40 billion larger than predicted for the next several years due to "technical re-estimates" in tax revenues.

Hardly a whimper was heard in Washington. Allow me to grumble for the rest of us, and to search for a way out.

Raisa takes notes at summit, Bush grumbles

We know what George Bush told Mikhail Gorbachev at the summit, but we don't know what Gorbachev told Bush. Here are the minutes as taken by Raisa Gorbachev.

Buchwald

Gorbachev said, "I can't take financial aid from you unless you straighten out your economic problems in the United States, especially the savings and loan mess. We don't want technical help from a country that doesn't know how to keep its books."

Bush replied, "We're doing the best we can. But this isn't really a federal problem. The states have to solve it."

Gorbachev asked, "What about your telephone system? It makes me sick to see what a mess your telephones are in."

"I don't like the present telephone system any more than you do. But if I were to take federal money to update the phones, I wouldn't have any left to balance the budget," Bush answered.

Gorbachev then told Bush, "What concerns me more than anything else is the environment in the United States. How can we accept agricultural supports from a country that does not know what to do about acid rain?"

Bush was angry. "All that stuff about acid rain is being put out by the Democrats to make me look bad. Our environment record is no worse than Bangladesh's, and we got off to a later start."

"I know it's not my business to tell you what to do, but you would be better off if you didn't deregulate so much. We did it in the U.S.S.R., and we almost lost Estonia. Government regulation is good because it gives the bureaucrats full employment."

"You sound like a Russian Gov. Cuomo," Bush muttered.

Gorbachev replied, "You must understand that the Soviet Union is not used to borrowing money from outside its borders. We don't even like to take free sugar from Cuba. But we're really in the soup, because there is no soup. My future depends on how much aid you can give us. At the same time you have to guarantee me that things are not as bad in your country as the AFL-CIO say they are."

"I assure you, Mikhail, that we will take care of all our domestic problems," Bush responded.

"I don't like what I read about your drug problems."

"You have nothing to worry about. We have a drug czar to solve the drug problem," answered Bush.

"Why did you have to name him a czar? Why not a king, or a sheik, or an emir?"

Bush put his arm around Gorbachev's shoulder. "My friend, you need money to get your country on its feet. We have a saying in America: Don't look a gift horse in the mouth."

Gorbachev said, "I don't want horses. We need tractors and seed and blue blazers to go to a Communist dance on Saturday night. How can you supply us with items we are dying for when you don't have your house in order?"

"We'll give you anything you want, as long as you don't call it quotas," Bush assured him.

Gorbachev said, "Will you guarantee I can stay in power?"

"I will do better than that. I will personally have Dan Quayle speak at a political fundraiser in your honor," Bush volunteered.

Reponded Gorbachev, "You're too good to me."

Bush said, "I have reason. You're the only Russian I ever liked."

Warring factions agree to cease-fire

The World

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia — The leaders of Yugoslavia's warring factions agreed Tuesday night to a cease-fire in the savage fighting that has brought the country to a standstill and raised alarm throughout the rest of Europe.

The critical factor in the cease-fire was an agreement by rebel Serbs inside the breakaway republic of Croatia to halt the fighting that so far has killed more than 200 Croatian policemen and civilians, and an unknown number of Serbs.

In a statement late Tuesday night, Yugoslavia's collective presidency ordered both sides in the Serbian-Croatian conflict to "immediately start separating and withdrawing to at least outside the range of firearms and mortars and other heavy weapons."

The statement said the withdrawal operation must be completed by 6 p.m. on Wednesday, but offered no indication how negotiations would proceed after that.

A major stumbling block to any lasting peace settlement will be the large swath of Croatia already occupied by Serbs, estimated by a spokesman for the Croatian Defense Ministry on Tuesday to be 15 percent of the republic's territory. Until now, both sides have indicated that those territories, scattered along Croatia's eastern border and inhabited mainly by Serbs, are nonnegotiable.

Yugoslavia's collective presidency, the country's highest constitutional authority, called for a cease-fire late last week, but it was ignored by both sides. Several villages and towns in the Croatian regions of Slavonia and Krajina and the small Banija area near Krajina continued to come under attack from mortar fire and grenades and were scenes of other acts of random violence.

After a string of defeats that have left the republic's leadership badly shaken, the Croatian forces — a loose combination of 75,000 police officers and national guardsmen — moved over the last few days to take the offensive in the fighting, Antun Abramovic, a Defense Ministry spokesman, said Tuesday.

Still, the level of violence seemed to have subsided since last Sunday, after a mission from the European Community collapsed amid dire predictions that Yugoslavia was headed for catastrophe. The failure of the mission set off a flurry of diplomatic activity as European leaders cast about for ways to stop the spread of Europe's first outbreak of sustained armed conflict since World War II.

The republic of Croatia, which has 600,000 Serbs among its 4.7 million people, declared its independence on June 25, the same day that neighboring Slovenia announced that it too was seceding from Yugoslavia.

After brief but fierce battles between the Yugoslav army and the Slovenian national guard, a truce was declared.

Arafat says U.S. must allow his choice

TUNIS, Tunisia — Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, said Tuesday that the United States must ask him to choose the Palestinian delegation for a Middle East peace conference and guarantee that Israel will trade land for peace.

Otherwise, Arafat said, Palestinians will not be represented at the proposed October talks since, he said, none would attend unless they were authorized to do so by his organization.

"We are offering a historic chance to make peace in the area, but that peace can't be without the Palestinians," Arafat said toward the end of an hour-and-a-half interview early Tuesday morning at the villa that serves as his office here.

Arafat gave the interview just after Secretary of State James A. Baker III ended his sixth and longest Middle East peace mission, which took him from the Moscow summit meeting through Israel and Jordan to the North African countries of Tunisia, Morocco and Algeria.

On his trip, Baker obtained Israel's conditional agreement to attend a peace conference, after winning similar promises from Syria, Jordan, Egypt and Lebanon. As a result, the Palestinians are now the only major party to the peace process that has not yet said whether it will attend.

Arafat repeatedly rejected the conditions that Israel has imposed on the makeup of a Palestinian delegation to a peace conference. His remarks confirmed the PLO's disavowal of conciliatory comments made here on Sunday by Arafat's top political aide, Bassam Abu Sharif, who suggested that a face-saving formula could be found to satisfy Israeli and PLO demands regarding the delegation.

"I want the same terms as being given to the other participants because the Palestinians are the main factor in the Middle East peace equation," Arafat said. "It's a matter of principle. Why are only the Palestinians treated in this way?"

Israel says it will not negotiate with members of the PLO, because it considers it a terrorist organization; with residents of East Jerusalem, which Israel claims as part of its eternal capital, or with Palestinians living outside the Israeli-occupied territories, many of whom have roots in areas that are now part of Israel.

Owner says crew members acted bravely

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The owner, second officer and cruise director of the sunken Oceanos liner said Tuesday that most crew members acted properly and helped save the lives of the 571 people aboard.

"We had many people congratulate us on our efforts. I don't know why some passengers are claiming we didn't do anything," Christos Nikolaou, the ship's second-in-command, told The Associated Press.

Many passengers criticized crew members for deserting the Oceanos soon after it lost power and took on water Saturday night. It sank Sunday afternoon, about 90 minutes after everyone on board had been lowered in lifeboats or picked up by military helicopters amid strong winds and powerful waves.

Epirotiki Lines, the ship's owner, denied the captain and crew abandoned the Oceanos. "We are really proud of the way in which the captain, the officers and our crew implemented the rescue plan despite the adverse conditions they faced," the company said in a statement issued in Greece.

Lorraine Betts, the cruise director for TFC Tours, which leased the Greek liner, said several dozen officers and crew members fled in one lifeboat without telling anyone. But the rest of the more than 170 crew members acted professionally, said Ms. Betts, who was aboard at the time.

"Yes, some crew members left...without instructions from the captain," she said, but added, "Without the help of able-bodied seamen, we couldn't have done it."

Passengers have praised Ms. Betts for organizing rescue efforts and keeping people calm during the 15-hour ordeal.

Bangladesh government seeks reform

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Parliament on Tuesday unanimously agreed to return executive power to the prime minister of the country, discarding the presidential form of government that has been in place for 16 years.

The change must be endorsed by a national referendum, to be held within a month, but analysts say there is no opposition to the move.

Parliament will then be empowered to elect a new president, whose office will be mostly ceremonial.

In another unanimous vote, Parliament agreed to allow Acting President Shahabuddin Ahmed to return to his post as chief justice of the Supreme Court once his replacement is chosen.

Iraq admits using anthrax, botulin toxin

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq has admitted that it experimented with anthrax and botulin toxin as part of a biological weapons research program, the U.N.'s chief germ warfare inspector disclosed for the first time Tuesday.

David Kelly, leader of a 28-member biological warfare inspection team, said there still was no evidence that Saddam Hussein's military had actually produced biological weapons.

But he said the level of research investigated so far was "not inconsistent with that capability."

"It's not on the ground level," Kelly said, meaning that the research already had progressed.

In a formal declaration to Kelly's group when it arrived in Baghdad Friday, Iraqi authorities acknowledged that research had been conducted on biological weapons. But they declared Iraq did not have such weapons and had not produced any.

Kelly disclosed Tuesday that Iraq also had acknowledged that anthrax and Clostridium botulin, which produces deadly neurotoxins, had been used in the research.

Anthrax is also one of the most deadly known diseases. Its spores enter the body through inhalation and multiply, producing poisons that cause the veins in the lungs to hemhorrage.

Anthrax spores have military application because they are able to survive being launched in an artillery shell, rocket or bomb.

Kelly said the botulin toxins are known to consumers in such diseases as botulism — in a spoiled can of tuna fish, for example.

Under U.N. Security Council resolution 687, Iraq must fully disclose its capability to produce nuclear, chemical and biological weapons. If they exist, they must be destroyed.

Scandal involves Pakistani

BONN, Germany (AP) — A retired Pakistani military officer suspected of playing a major role in his country's attempts to develop nuclear weapons has been arrested in Germany, officials said Tuesday.

The retired brigadier, identified as Inam ul-Haq, has been linked to a case involving the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, which allegedly helped bankroll several countries' attempts to develop nuclear weapons.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Doug Tillet said the United States has begun efforts to extradite Inam.

He is accused of directing a Canadian businessman convicted in a scheme to purchase high-strength steel that needed an export license. Documents Canadian police found in the businessman's house showed that the steel purchase was to be financed by an arm of BCCI, Tillet said.

Inam, who told German authorities he was a salesman, has been held in custody in Frankfurt since his arrest July 11 at Frankfurt International Airport, said Hans-Hermann Eckert of the Hesse state prosecutor's office.

The United States seeks Inam's extradition on charges he falsified export applications so "metals for nuclear use" could be transported from the United States, Eckert said. It was not clear whether any materials reached Pakistan.

A statement released by the German Border Patrol office in Frankfurt, which made the arrest, said the suspect, who it did not name, sought to export the metals as well as "fissionable materials" from the United States.

Inam, 62, reportedly worked in Pakistan's military engineering service. Western intelligence agencies have identified him as a buyer for Pakistan's atomic energy commission.

In the Pakistani capital, Islamabad, a government spokesman denied Inam was working for the government. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

At the time Inam purportedly was active in the program, Pakistan was ruled by the military under Mohammed Zia ul-Haq. Zia and Inam are unrelated.

Asked about reports linking Inam to BCCI, his attorney, Hans-Wolfgang Euler, said: "That's the first time I heard something like that about my client."

The British newspaper, The Guardian, reported Tuesday that police in Canada had confirmed a report in the newspaper last month that BCCI branches had been instrumental in bankrolling Inam's and others' efforts "to buy atom-bomb technology."

However, Sgt. Pierre Belanger of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters in Ottawa said the Mounties could not confirm the Guardian's story. He did say, however, that Inam was investigated in 1987 and 1988 in connection with a U.S. prosecution, but the matter was closed in 1990.

Earthquake shakes Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — A severe earthquake with a preliminary reading of 6.0 on the Richter scale shook Tokyo and northern Japan on Tuesday night, gently swaying buildings in downtown Tokyo, the Central Meteorological Agency said.

There were no reports of damage or injuries from the 11:49 p.m. (10:49 a.m. EDT) tremor, police said. The epicenter was 25 miles below the ocean floor off the coast of Ibaraki state, 62 miles northeast of Tokyo, the agency said.

The Richter scale is a measure of the total strength of an earthquake. A quake registering 6 on the scale is considered capable of widespread damage near the epicenter.

Water district sells bonds for Ivie pipeline

The Colorado River Municipal Water District is selling bonds for a pipeline that will insure Midland's water supply well into the 21st century.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — West Texans are getting a promise, at a $115-million price tag, of more lake water to run out of their faucets.

That assurance came Tuesday when Goldman-Sachs, the New York-based financial house, submitted the low and winning bid of 6.832286 percent interest on $115 million in Colorado River Municipal Water District (CRMWD) revenue bonds.

The bonds are to raise money to build a 155.4-mile water pipeline from the CRMWD's O.H. Ivie Reservoir southeast of Ballinger in Central Texas to Midland and Odessa by way of San Angelo.

Construction of the pipeline may begin as early as the spring of 1992, said CRMWD official Joe Pickle, and Lake Ivie water may be flowing through the 60-inch and 51-inch pipeline by 1995.

Meanwhile, Midland will continuing buying Lake J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence Reservoir water from the CRMWD at 80 cents per 1,000 gallons and mixing it with underground water from the Paul Davis Field north of town.

Following treatment, the water is piped to Midland consumers who, for now, pay $1.83 per 1,000 gallons.

Following the completion of the $115-million pipeline, for which Midland's share is about $35 million, Midland may be getting most of its water from Lake Ivie.

Midland owns one-sixth of the water in Lake Ivie, which was dedicated in 1990 and named after CRMWD's general manager, O.H. Ivie.

Lake Ivie and its S.W. Freese Dam were constructed for about $70 million in bond money between 1986 and 1990.

"There's no question that Lake Ivie water will be a great asset to the entire (West Texas) area," Midland City Manager Fred Poe said Tuesday after the CRMWD directors sold the bonds to Goldman-Sachs. "It's going to be better quality water than many of us are used to."

Poe said he was "particularly pleased" with the sale of the bonds, which CRMWD officials and financial advisers had projected would bring 7 percent interest or more.

"Anything below 7 percent would have been a good bid today," said Poe.

The $115 million in revenue bonds at 6.832286 interest will cost more than $160 million in interest over a 30-year-period, noted Pickle.

The next lowest bid, Paine Webber's 6.8575 interest rate, would have converted to $600,000 more in interest over 30 years than Goldman-Sachs' bid.

The highest bid was Merrill-Lynch's 6.9214 interest rate.

The overall indebtedness, $275 million in principal and interest, on the pipeline project will be paid over a 30-year-period through the sale of CRMWD water.

Midland city officials, in foreseeing the cost several years ago, gradually built in water-rate increases to pay for CRMWD water and to start

Pedal power propels police

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Sometimes a police car can be conspicuous when apprehending criminals.

And if a suspect darts between apartment buildings or takes to a grassy field, a car isn't of much use.

But an officer on a bicycle may give the good guys an edge in such situations.

Tuesday, five Midland police officers officially began a pilot bicycle patrol program.

Riding mountain bicycles and wearing uniforms, the officers will travel in pairs and patrol throughout the city, mostly in residential areas.

Expected to pedal about 20 to 30 miles per day, the officers will be equipped with radios, guns and report pads. They hope to make a dent in drug sales, burglaries and thefts.

"If we see an offense, we are going to take action," said Sgt. Ernest Wakefield, coordinator of the program.

Advantages of the bicycle patrol include the low profile of the bicycles and their maneuverability in tight areas, crowds and other areas that limit cars.

The bicycle program — a compromise between car patrols and the once-common foot beat — will also help rapport with residents, said Police Chief Richard Czech.

In December, the department will evaluate the program to decide if it should be a permanent unit.

The idea for the bicycle unit was first proposed to Czech earlier this year by interested pa-

MISD, city unable to resolve school crossing debate

Staff Report

City councilmen and officials say schoolchildren won't be left to cross streets alone this year, despite the failure of an attempted compromise for crossing guard funding.

"We weren't able to get the school (district) to compromise," said Councilman J.D. Faircloth. "But at the same time, we felt the kids needed protection. So we're going to continue provide the guards."

City leaders in late May had tried to arrange a trade with the Midland Independent School District — giving up funding of crossing guards in favor of financial support for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, a program taught in elementary schools by Midland Police Department officers. A trade would have cut city expense by $30,000, from $90,000 for 19 part-time crossing guards to $60,000 for DARE.

"With all the problems the school has been having with getting their funding, we didn't push it very hard," Faircloth said.

"Our idea was that crossing guards were more a school function than a policing function, but later on, maybe we can convince them of that."

The trade plan would have encouraged the district to use volunteer crossing guards, a prospect Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. said may have been difficult.

Baressi said the school board had not supported the city's proposal.

"From what the board has told me, the general feeling is our jurisdiction is limited to school grounds," he said.

Leather processing may pay, report says

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Texas, a leading exporter of cattle, sheep and goat hides, stands to gain hundreds of millions of dollars by keeping leather processing in state, according to a recent study.

The Leather Research Institute at Texas Tech in Lubbock reported recently that Texas stands to gain more than $120 million by processing its leather in state.

Texas led the nation in export of hides and skins in 1989, shipping more than $268 million worth of hides abroad.

"The institute feels the interest in leather processing has grown gradually," Jinger Eberspacher, director of the institute, said Tuesday.

"There is a feeling that this industry is going to take off here in Texas."

"We have always focused so much of our attention on oil and gas that leather processing never took hold," Ms. Eberspacher said. "But we are working to change that."

According to the institute's study, Texas cattle feeders produce more than $5 million in hides a year, but less than 1 percent is processed in the state.

If only 10 percent of the annual Texas-fed cattle hides were processed through tanning, finishing and manufacturing, the Texas economy would earn $124 million, Ms. Eberspacher said.

Ms. Eberspacher says the state's leather industry must be able to compete with foreign prices. This means enlisting the help of Mexico with its leather-related technology and manufacturing skills. U.S. companies could export cut materials and re-import the finished product, paying only duty for the value added to the product — this usually is equal to the low-cost labor.

"By using Mexico's abundant low-cost and highly productive labor, Texas products would be able to compete in the domestic finished products market," Ms. Eberspacher said.

Because of tightened Environmental Protection Agency standards, labor costs and reduced raw product supply, many U.S. family-held businesses were forced to close. The leather tanning and finishing industry dropped 64 percent between 1982 and 1988, resulting in an increase of imported shoes being made from U.S. hides processed overseas.

However, this situation appears to be changing as the Iowa Beef Packers Inc. (IBP) facility in Amarillo is expanding to include a tannery capable of processing 1.2 million hides a year. Construction on the $17 million facility is now under way.

Hides from the Amarillo IBP facility are not treated in a tannery but are salt-cured and sold to a tanner for about $65 to $70 each.

Midlanders step out to fight crime

Midland residents join others around the nation fighting crime with picnics.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Some Midlanders spent Tuesday night socializing with neighbors — and fighting crime.

That's because getting to know the people next door or down the street helps develop an awareness of what's going on in the area — the theory behind the anti-crime Neighborhood Watch Program.

"If you don't know your neighbors and their habits, how do you know if something suspicious is going on?" asked Charlotte Guyton, a member of the Midland Crime Prevention Commission.

Residents had a chance to visit neighbors they knew and become acquainted with those they didn't during the National Night Out Against Crime on Tuesday.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Residents serve up dinner while getting to know one another during a National Night Out Against Crime gathering at Lancaster Park Tuesday night.

In Midland, about 25 watch groups as well as other interested citizens got together to show their unity against crime.

Across the United States, about 8,350 communities were expected to participate in the annual get-together.

During the get-togethers, neighbors relax and talk, barbecue and eat.

"I think it's a good idea if people are concerned about neighbors' property. There are too many people who don't even know their next door neighbor," said Walter Lacy, who was taking part in his first Night Out.

W.C. Hardesty, who met Lacy at the gathering, agreed.

"It's a good idea if you know who lives around you . . . television has got people off the porches and in the houses," Hardesty said.

Both men said they felt more comfortable with neighbors who watch out for one another.

Charlie Welch, who organized the Lancaster Park party, addressed the importance of neighbors uniting: "If you don't do it, who will?"

Joan Lewellen, president of the Midland Crime Prevention Commission, agreed.

"Citizen's can have an impact. The police department cannot do it themselves," she said.

Crack seller pleads guilty

Staff Report

A man described by a Drug Enforcement Administration agent as one of two men responsible for about 90 percent of crack cocaine sales in Midland pleaded guilty to distribution of the drug in U.S. District Court on Tuesday.

David McGruder, 22, was arrested on May 23 following a year-long investigation by the Midland Police Department and the DEA.

Officials claim McGruder and Terrence Donnell Rivers, also in federal custody, allegedly would travel to Houston to buy crack by the kilogram and then sell the drug in Midland.

McGruder was charged with distribution of 65.4 grams of crack.

Rivers and two other men, Jason Gardner and Roy James McCoy, are currently been tried in federal court in connection with the sale of crack.

BONDS: Water district clears way for pipeline project

(From 1C)

paying off its share of the pipeline indebtedness.

"As far as the city of Midland is concerned," Poe said, "we don't anticipate any significant increase" in water rates, which now are pegged at $1.83 cents per 1,000 gallons.

However, a couple of "slight" rate increases may be approved by the City Council over the next year or two to help "pick up the tab," Poe said.

Lake Ivie water will ensure Midland and much of West Texas, including Odessa, San Angelo, Big Spring and Abilene, an "adequate supply of water" for residential, industrial and business purposes well into the 21st Century.

"In West Texas," Poe said, "we have got to have water if we are going to survive."

Midland on the average uses about 20 million gallons of water per day and buys up to 15 million gallon per day from the CRMWD. The balance comes from the Paul Davis aquifer midway between Midland and Lamesa.

Midland's daily usage, depending on the season, may range from 12 million gallons to 36 million gallons.

Once the Lake Ivie pipeline is completed, Midland may be purchasing up to 20 million gallons of water per day from Lake Ivie and, possibly, up to 15 million gallons from Lakes Thomas and Spence.

From Lake Ivie to San Angelo, the 48.5-mile segment of the buried 115.4 mile pipeline will be of 60-inch (five-foot) diameter steel-concrete lines.

The remaining segments, 72.6 miles from San Angelo to Garden City and 34.3 miles from Garden City to Midland, will be 51-inch lines.

Inside, the lines will be enameled concrete to reduce friction of the water, which will be pumped uphill up to 1,500 feet from Lake Ivie to Midland.

But, said Pickle, the cost of electricity to pump the water to higher elevations will be affordable due to the enlarged "size of the lines" to reduce friction and "thus savings on power rates."

The 60-inch line may flow up to 90 million gallons of water per day to San Angelo, which will take its share, 25 million gallons per day.

For moving the volume of water, any lines smaller than 60-inch and 51-inch lines will result in high energy costs due to the more power needed to move the water.

Pumping costs would be prohibitive, Pickle said, if the lines were not oversized and were friction not reduced.

John L. Taylor, CRMWD board president, said the directors were "really surprised that the bids were as low as they were."

"It certainly indicates the confidence that the financial community has in the water district as well as in this region and the contract cities of Midland and San Angelo that are allied in the district in this (pipeline) undertaking," Taylor said.

"The low interest rate reflects confidence in this area" to pay off the indebtedness and suggests a "resurgence of the economy," Taylor said.

The rate "speaks very highly" of CRMWD's management, O.H. Ivie and staff, and the managements of CRMWD member cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder and contract cities, including Midland, San Angelo and Abilene.

Investors "look very carefully at the cities' various strengths," Taylor said, "because these are all revenue bonds. They are not guaranteed by a property tax base. They are guaranteed strictly by water users."

Miss Fort Worth wins state crown

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Katie Young, Miss Fort Worth, was named 1992 Miss Texas USA Tuesday night from a field of 87 contestants at the Bayfront Plaza Auditorium.

Miss Young, a sophomore at the University of Texas-Arlington, shook in excitement and cried as her name was called. Wearing an off-the-shoulder red evening gown, the long-legged brunette was crowned by reigning Miss Universe, Lupita Jones.

Miss Young won some $110,000 in prizes and scholarships and the chance to compete in the Miss USA and Miss Universe pageants. Among the prizes were $12,000 in scholarships, a car, a fur coat and a Caribbean cruise.

She was in the pre-med sequence at UTA and plans a career as an obstetrician.

Miss Central Texas, Jennifer Scott was named first runner-up. Miss Scott is a sophomore at McLennan Community College and plans to become an attorney after studying at Baylor Law School.

The second runner-up was Miss Alamo City, Jennifer Rekart. She is a student at Richland Community College and plans a career as a model or television newswoman.

Third runner-up was Miss Dallas, Wendy Bovis. She has completed her junior year at Southern Methodist University and plans a career as a museum art director.

The fourth runner-up was Miss Keller, Carmen Jones. The winner of the contest's Miss Congeniality Award, Miss Jones is a business graduate of the University of Arkansas and is currently a graduate student at Texas Christian University. She plans a career in entertainment.

Other semifinalists included: Miss San Antonio, Lisa Davis; Miss Texas Riviera, Lisa Barnes; Miss Lubbock, Dana Allen; Miss Dallas County, Melissa Lynn; Miss Houston, Melissa Buchanan; Miss Harris County, Angie Sisk; Miss River Oaks, Shannon King; Miss Haltom-Richland, Gena Snoyer; Miss Fiesta City, Kristy Cordes; and Miss North Harris County, Jo Anna Schaffer.

Previous Miss Texas sues pageant sponsors

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys representing Christy Bogard, the 1991 Miss Texas USA, on Tuesday filed a federal lawsuit seeking $9.25 million from pageant officials who failed to ask the reigning beauty queen to crown her successor.

"We feel that her being excluded from the pageant would raise doubt or cast some aspersions on her character in the minds of the public. Many people would not know why she did not appear, as is customary in conforming with tradition," her attorney, Warren Fitzgerald Jr., said. "We feel like that doubt, that aspersion on her character and her reputation, in fact, harms her."

Miss Bogard is suing Miss Universe Inc., and Crystal Productions Inc., which took over management of the Miss Texas USA pageant after GuyRex Associates was fired in March by the Miss Universe Inc. system.

Miss Bogard, who was crowned 1991 Miss Texas USA last July, was not asked to attend the 1992 contest conducted in Corpus Christi Tuesday. She sought an injunction to stop the contest in state court, but dropped the case Saturday, saying she did not want "to dash the hopes" of the current beauty contestants.

Fitzgerald said he believed Miss Bogard could reach a settlement with Al and Gail Clark of Houston, who own and operate Crystal Productions.

But as 1992 Miss Texas hopefuls gathered in Corpus Christi for the televised contest Tuesday, Miss Bogard and Fitzgerald said they had broken negotiations with the Clarks.

The federal lawsuit seeks $2.25 million in compensatory damages and $7 million in punitive damages, Fitzgerald said.

Fitzgerald contends the show would have provided Miss Bogard with statewide attention that could have landed her a new position in her career as a model or entertainer.

Miss Bogard said Tuesday afternoon she was distressed that she would not appear on the show, that was televised throughout Texas.

"I worked very hard for the pageant and the sponsors. I am very proud of my year," Miss Bogard said, reading from a prepared statement.

"I am disappointed that I will not be able to celebrate with the contestants and all the people I have come to know and love throughout Texas in the final chapter of my dream, tonight in Corpus Christi," Miss Bogard said.

The Clarks did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press Tuesday.

Eleanor Abbott, a secretary for the pageant, answered the phone at the Bayfront Plaza where the contest was being conducted. "We have no information regarding a lawsuit, so we would have no comment on it," she said.

The Clarks had maintained that Miss Bogard has a contract with GuyRex Associates, which produced the 1991 Miss Texas USA pageant. Because GuyRex Associates owners Richard Guy and Rex Holt were fired as sponsors for the pageant, current producers say they were under no obligation to have Miss Bogard on their show.

Mother learns Johnson County's 911 system works

CLEBURNE — Darlene Vaughan didn't know if Johnson County's new 911 emergency telephone system was working. But she had to find out. Fast. She had gone into labor, and the only people with her were a houseful of kids.

Unwittingly, the Cleburne woman became what is believed to be the first caller on the county's 911 system, just moments after she had delivered her son, Stephen Houston Vaughan, by herself.

Vaughan said her 14-year-old daughter, Patricia Vaughan, was in the early stages of panic when she called 911 system. Although the system didn't officially go online until Saturday, administrators were testing the line at 3:45 p.m. July 31, when Vaughan's baby was born.

"It was a deal where they were testing the lines when the call came through. It was the first day they were testing," Darlene Vaughan, 37, recalled Tuesday. Minutes after she gave birth to her son, she learned that she had become a part of county history.

"I didn't know until I got a call from the dispatcher, and then it was the whole nine yards," Vaughan said with a laugh. "We had two ambulances, a rescue truck and a fire truck out front. It only took three minutes to get there."

Vaughan and her new son were taken to Walls Regional Hospital in Cleburne but were released the next day. She said she wasn't really scared when she was going into labor. She's been through it before. Five times.

Only Vaughan's oldest child, a 17-year-old daughter, was not home when she began having the baby. Because Patricia was the oldest among the other children there — ages 6, 2 and one-half and 1 and one-half — she had to take charge, her mother said.

"She was, 'What number do I call, who do I call?' " Vaughan said. Quickly, Patricia remembered 911, her mother added. "It was a lot easier to call 911 than to have to call somebody else."

Calls such as Vaughan's, from someone in an emergency, make the time it took to install the phone network worthwhile, officials said.

"We've been working on this for some two years and we're able to bring the most advanced system to Johnson County," said County Commissioner Ron Harmon, who is also the 911 coordinator. "I think we'll start seeing some fantastic results."

He said the county's 95,000 residents already should know how to use the system.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Two plead guilty

Staff Report

Two men entered guilty pleas in U.S. District Court on Tuesday for distribution of cocaine following separate incidents of selling the drug to undercover agents earlier this year, local officials said.

Edilberto Quiroz Leyva, 20, of Odessa entered a guilty plea in connection with his arrest on May 31 after allegedly trying to sell one kilogram of cocaine to an undercover Odessa police officer at the Motel 6, 200 Interstate 20, in Odessa.

Mario Nieto-Mendoza, 47, also pleaded guilty in federal court for attempting to sell two kilograms of cocaine to an undercover Department of Public Safety agent on May 17.

Sentencing for both men will take place in late September, federal officials said.

Burglary cleared

A Midland man arrested while allegedly attempting to break in a U.S. Post Office on June 29 pleaded guilty to the charge in U.S. District Court on Tuesday.

Allen Dwayne Hartley, 33, was charged with forcibly breaking into the 2315 W. Louisiana Ave. post office with intent to commit larceny.

Hartley is scheduled to be sentenced in September.

At other bicycle patrol units, officers have shown a lower injury level than their car-riding counterparts because of the physical exercise, Wakefield said. In addition, there have been no bicycle-related injuries reported, he said.

Cities that maintain a pedal patrol include San Antonio; Seattle, Wash.; Tucson, Ariz.; and Las Vegas, Nev.

Mosquito virus threatens Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County began spraying Tuesday to control reported cases of a potentially lethal virus carried by mosquitoes, hoping to avoid an outbreak among humans.

The Harris County Mosquito Control District late last week learned of insects carrying the St. Louis encephalitis virus for the second time this year, district director Bob Barrow said.

"I hope it turns out like the first time ... an isolated occurrence," he said. "But that remains to be seen. We had to prepare for the worst."

To combat a human outbreak, Barrow said spraying is being done during the day as well as the night to fog out the pests while they rest in storm sewers.

While the district has collected at least 27 groups of mosquitoes suspected of carrying the virus, the latest batch showed a strong positive reading on tests.

"We have to assume that if we wait or hold back in any way, there is a tremendous possibility people will get sick or even die," said district spokesman Norman Gruenzner.

Last year, officials blamed the mosquito-borne disease for the deaths of the six people and illness in 24 others in Harris County. No human cases have been reported this year.

Task force to study MHMR closings

AUSTIN (AP) — A legislative conference committee has agreed to set up a task force, to be appointed by Gov. Ann Richards, to recommend possibly closing or consolidating some state mental health facilities.

The study by the five-member task force would include state schools for the mentally retarded, state hospitals for the mentally ill, and state and community centers.

A report to the governor on the 13 state schools, as well as community facilities, would be due by March 31. A report on eight state hospitals and five state centers would be due by Dec. 1, 1992.

The proposal by the House-Senate conference committee envisions the closing of two state schools in order to end a 17-year-old federal lawsuit against Texas to improve institutions and expand community programs, negotiators told the Austin American-Statesman.

Attorneys for retarded people said they were willing to give up federal court monitoring of institutions in exchange for closing two institutions, said Diane Shisk, attorney for Advocacy Inc.

Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, said he hoped the state could achieve balance in providing mental health services, offering both community care and care in larger institutions.

"We now have imbalanced dollars going into institutional settings, and until something jiggles lose, that's not going to change," Moncrief said.

But he said "there are strong philosophical differences in community versus state school, and I don't know if that will ever be completely resolved."

"Change in Texas is very slow and seldom quiet — it's loud and nasty and this is no exception," he said.

After the conference committee report Monday night, Moncrief said a woman approached him, with tears streaming down her cheeks, and said, "You've just signed my son's death warrant, and may you rot in hel ."

Moncrief said he expected a Senate vote this week on the task force study, which is part of a lengthy proposal reorganizing health and human services.

Grand jury gets border death

EL PASO (AP) — A state grand jury in El Paso began hearing evidence Tuesday in the fatal shooting of a Mexican man by a U.S. Border Patrol agent.

Ruben Navarrete Tarin was shot May 9 at a Rio Grande levee often used by undocumented immigrants to cross illegally into the United States. The Border Patrol said he and two others assaulted the agent and that Navarrete was shot during a struggle. Navarrete was unarmed.

But Mexican Consul General Roberto Gamboa Mascarenas has said that affidavits from witnesses say the agent used excessive force.

The Border Patrol, following Justice Department policy, has not released the name of the agent involved in the shooting. El Paso police have said the agent shot Navarrete in self defense after Navarrete tried to grab the agent's gun.

Gamboa said five witnesses have been found and their statements "coincide in that they saw things that bring us to the conclusion that force was used without need."

Rep. Nicolas Perez, D-El Paso, catches a short nap at his desk during a lengthy session at the State Capitol.

Lawmakers labor all day, into night

AUSTIN (AP) — If lawmakers could tax the bags under everyone's eyes at the Capitol they could probably bridge the budget gap that has the Legislature burning the midnight oil.

During this special legislative session, the part-time Legislature is working around the clock trying to cut and save enough to write a 1992-93 state budget.

About 5 a.m. Tuesday, the House approved a tax bill that fell below the spending bill they had approved at 3:33 a.m. Monday.

While the House debated its budget, the Senate Finance Committee ended its marathon sessions and kicked out a budget proposal past midnight.

Meanwhile lawmakers are sprinting from committee meetings to vote on amendments in the wee hours of the morning. Some are taking naps at their desks.

Midnight around the Capitol looks like midday, with swarms of lobbyists and state officials roaming the halls, while delivery persons dash to offices carrying stacks of pizzas.

"I really believe that both houses have worked harder than in any session," Gov. Ann Richards said.

But some may be wondering if all that work is worth it.

After the House slashed a $3 billion tax and fee increase proposal to about $30 million, Speaker Gib Lewis said, "This was not the House's finest hour, I don't think."

El Paso Electric increases rates this week

EL PASO (AP) — El Paso Electric Co. began this week charging Texas customers higher rates to cover costs for its share of an Arizona nuclear power plant.

The average ratepayer using 500 kilowatt hours of electricity will see a summertime bill of $53.43, up from $47.96. The average increase would be $5.47. The increase will raise average winter bills of $45.46 to $51.17, a $5.71 hike. New Mexico customers won't be affected.

The Public Utility Commission, the state agency that regulates utilities, won't decide if El Paso Electric deserves the increase until late fall. But the PUC allows a utility with a rate request still in debate to increase its rates 150 days after the proposed rate increase would have gone into effect.

Youth home to close, cites lack of support

MINERAL WELLS (AP) — Operators of the Tejas Home for Youth say a lack of support from area law enforcement agencies contributed to a decision to close the facility.

But Mineral Wells police say they have tried to help the center and deny that the home's closure has anything to do with a weekend incident in which three youths ran away from the home, stole a car and vandalized five others.

The home, which had been kept open through voluntary staff pay reductions, will close Friday, the facility's director announced Monday.

Serena Wigginton and her staff have taken voluntary pay cuts to keep the financially troubled home alive.

"It was just a result of these kids running away and doing some damage in the community, and getting support from the community, but not getting support from the law enforcement in town," Ms. Wigginton said.

She blamed police for sending the youths back to the home after prior runaway attempts.

"The law enforcement people consider these kids a burden," she said. "They won't take our kids and hold them when they've arrested them. They don't want to let it go through the legal system, and that's what we want."

But Mineral Wells Police Sgt. Mike McAllester said the problem with runaways is a separate matter.

"We regret the fact that they're shutting down, but their problems don't have anything to do with law enforcement," McAllester said. "It's about their own security. They can't keep these kids locked up."

CINCINNATI (AP) — The head of the major league umpires' union demanded punishment Tuesday or Cincinnati Reds manager Lou Piniella, and threatened to sue him for accusing an umpire of bias.

Piniella

Richie Phillips, executive director of the umpires' union, asked National League president Bill White to punish Piniella severely for calling umpire Gary Darling's integrity into question.

"I've asked Bill to move swiftly and severely," Phillips said, in a telephone interview. "The union's position is that what Piniella has said about Darling is absolutely reprehensible and something has to be done. Piniella has to be deterred from this kind of conduct in the future. He should be disciplined for these reckless statements he's made."

Phillips also said the union planned to file a defamation suit against Piniella.

"If you're asking if I'm going to file suit on behalf of Darling and the umpires' union against Piniella, the answer is yes," Phillips said.

"I don't have anything to say about it," Piniella said Tuesday, when informed of Phillips' comments. "I'll have some comments about this tomorrow. I'll leave it at that."

UTEP reports

EL PASO (AP) — Texas-El Paso Tuesday said it found no widespread wrongdoing in its basketball program after investigating 13 rules violations alleged by the NCAA. But the university is admitting to breaking some rules.

In an edited 61-page reported distributed in a news conference, the university responded to the allegations with denials, partial agreements or gave their own versions of events.

The university has a tentative Sept. 27 hearing before the NCAA's Committee on Infractions. A preliminary meeting with NCAA staff is scheduled for early September to go over the response. Some allegations could be dropped at that meeting.

Angels explode

■ Larry Gonzales leads the way back to first place with a grand slam to help make Todd James a 10-game winner.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Either the Midland Angels have changed their number or Pedro Martinez has misplaced it.

Either way, the Wichita Wranglers' 22-year-old lefthander, who has seemingly owned the Angels this season and last, lasted just two short innings en route to a 13-11 dismantling Tuesday night in Texas League action at Angels Stadium.

The victory, twice interrupted by bench-clearing incidents of little consequence, lifts the Angels to 22-20 in second-half play and puts them back into a tie for first place in the Western Division.

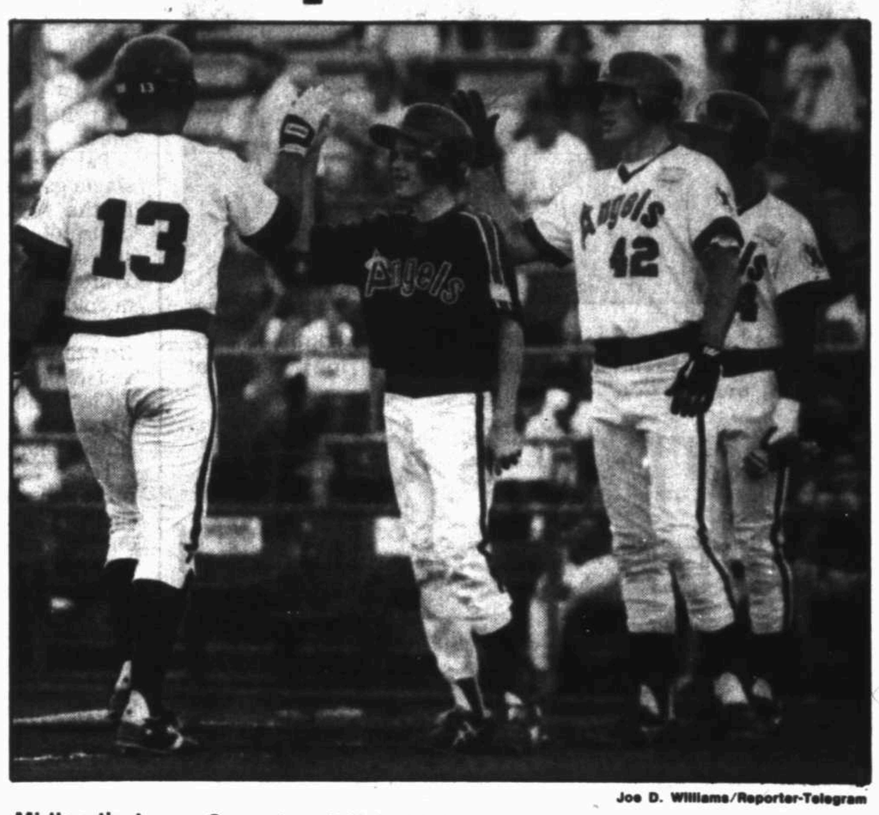
Midland is tied for first with San Antonio, a 4-2 loser Tuesday in El Paso.

Martinez entered the game 9-8 for the season, including a perfect 3-0 slate versus the Angels. And of his six wins in 1990, three came against Midland.

But Kevin Flora's two-run homer in the second inning gave the Angels a 4-1 edge, and Larry Gonzales finished Martinez with a none-out grand slam in the third inning as Midland claimed a 3-1 edge in the present five-game series.

The feisty Wranglers battled back with seven runs over the last four innings, forcing Midland to keep pace by adding two runs in the fifth and eighth innings.

The result made a 10-game winner of Todd James, 10-7, who earned it the hard way; James left the game in the top of the seventh when stiffness developed in his throwing shoulder and Midland leading 10-5. By the time he applied an ice pack to the injury, Wichita had closed the gap to 10-8.



Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Midland's Larry Gonzales (13) is high-fived by Angel batboy Sean Sipko and Tim Salmon (42) after hitting a grand slam homer in the third inning.

Damion Easley was 4-for-5 with three runs and an RBI for Midland, offsetting a sterling performance by Wichita's Greg David, who went 4-for-5 with a pair of doubles.

Gonzales' grand slam was his first home run of the year. Flora's was his 10th. Jose Valentin closed the gap to 13-11 with a two-run homer off Midland reliever Doug Robertson with one out in the ninth. It was Valentin's 14 of the year.

Both benches cleared in the bottom of the third when Reggie Williams ducked an inside pitch by reliever Kenny Knox and charged the mound. Williams, the third batter to follow Gonzales' slam, stopped short of the mound and order was narrowly restored by the umpires.

But Williams was ejected just before Midland batted in the sixth. Knox, who

Midland Lee grad among competitors in Havana

Staff Report

Native Midlander and Olympic hopeful Karen Carpenter will be going for the gold this week as a member of the United States rowing team and quadruple sculling crew at the Pan Am Games.

Carpenter

Carpenter, a 1983 graduate of Midland Lee, won a silver medal in quadruple sculls in June at the U.S. Rowing Association National Championship Regatta in Indianapolis. On July 4 her crew won the qualifying trials for the Pan American Games.

Pan Am rowing events are scheduled to begin today and run through Sunday, but Carpenter says the scheduled could be shortened depending on the number of teams entered.

"We don't know yet how many competitors we'll have," Carpenter said. "If there are more than six or seven women's squads we'll have heats and finals. Otherwise we'll just have finals on Saturday or Sunday."

Since 1986, Carpenter — a graduate of Smith College in Northampton, Mass. — has competed each summer in the U.S. Rowing Association national championships. During the 1990-91 school year she coached the varsity women's crew at Tufts University in Boston, while training at Boston Rowing Center where she is a member of the board of directors.

Carpenter played varsity volleyball at Lee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Carpenter of Midland.

American diver wins gold despite crowd

Associated Press

HAVANA — Mark Lenzi defied the boos and whistles of a raucous crowd as he stood on the board, then nailed the most nervous dive of his life to win a rare U.S. gold in the Pan American Games.

"Rodney Dangerfield said, 'Tough crowd.' He hasn't seen anything until he's seen this," Lenzi said.

He and Cuban Abel Ramirez dueled dramatically on the 1-meter springboard for more than an hour Tuesday in the hot, humid pool complex, where the 3,500 fans jammed into overhanging seats roared and hooted as if they were at a boxing match.

Lenzi's victory gave the Americans a sweep of the diving events so far. The United States won the men's and women's 3-meter springboard, but Cuba still was way ahead in total medals. After the diving, Cuba had 43 totals medals, 26 gold, to 33 medals with nine gold for the United States.

Lenzi, a former wrestler who stands a compact but muscular 5-foot-5, also could admire the 10-0 performance of the U.S. men's wrestling team Tuesday in qualifying matches.

'Rodney Dangerfield said 'Tough crowd.' He hasn't seen anything until he's seen this.'
— American diver Mark Lenzi

In another perfect effort, Debbie Doom tossed her second straight perfect game for the U.S. in women's softball, this time against Nicaragua. The graduate of UCLA with a fastball described by locals as "la supersonica," struck out 17, including 10 straight at one point.

The perfecto was the third for the U.S. team in four games. Monday night, Michelle Granger of Placentia, Calif., considered the best pitcher in the world, no-hit Puerto Rico.

Murphy's blast beats Cubs in 11

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Dale Murphy hit a grand slam in the bottom of the 11th as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs 6-2 for their seventh straight victory, their longest winning streak in five years.

Lenny Dykstra started the inning against Les Lancaster (7-5) by drawing a walk and Darren Daulton singled to left-center, moving Dykstra to third. Lancaster struck out Wes Chamberlain, then intentionally walked John Kruk to load the bases before Murphy drove his 14th homer of the season and fifth grand slam of his career over the center-field fence.

The Phillies' last seven-game winning streak occured between May 27 and June 2, 1986.

Ex-Cub Mitch Williams (4-3) pitched one inning to earn the win.

The Cubs went ahead 2-1 in the ninth when Shawon Dunston singled, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on pinch-hitter Dwight Smith's two-out RBI double to left-center.

Pirates 3, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Randy Tomlin again made fast work of the Mets, pitching a four-hitter that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a victory and sent New York to its seventh straight loss.

Lloyd McClendon hit a two-run homer in the second inning and that was enough for the Pirates, who won their second in a row following an eight-game losing streak.

The Mets, meanwhile, lost for the 12th time in 14 games. By dropping the opener of a three-game series, they fell 7½ games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East, their biggest deficit of the year. The losing streak is their longest since a seven-game slide in July 1989.

Tomlin (7-4) beat the Mets for the third time in as many starts this year. New York has just 13 hits and four earned runs in 23 innings against him.

Tomlin is 11-8 lifetime, including 4-0 against the Mets. This time, he struck out four.

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Rafael Palmeiro, the major league's leading hitter, had four singles to pace a 17-hit attack as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 10-8.

The Rangers broke a 7-7 tie with a three-run seventh inning off loser Mike York (1-5), including RBI singles by Steve Buechele and Gary Pettis.

Kenny Rogers (7-7) pitched one inning for the victory and Jeff Russell got the last four outs for his 21st save. Russell gave up Albert Belle's 18th homer in the ninth.

Palmeiro's fourth consecutive single gave the Rangers a 7-6 lead in the sixth inning. Jeff Huson came all the way from first to score when right-fielder Mark Whiten's throw ended up in the dugout.

Palmeiro, hitting leadoff for the first time this season, went 4-for-5 and is batting .351.

Cleveland tied it 7-all off Gerald Alexander in the seventh on two singles and Belle's sacrifice fly.

Texas took a 6-5 lead in the fourth on a walk, Palmeiro's third single, and Julio Franco's groundout off reliever Jeff Shaw.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Much of your success will depend on who you know and how well you time a request. Enlist the aid of experts if planning to market a new product. Financial backing comes from an unexpected quarter in December or January. Make important personal decisions based on your intuition in early 1992. Next May is the best time to travel for business. Self-improvement activities increase your chances for happy romance.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: civil rights leader Dr. Ralph Bunche, author Garrison Keillor, "New Kid" Donnie Wahlberg, runner Alberto Salazar.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Seek ways to broaden the distribution of your ideas, goods or services. An imaginative approach produces favorable results. Advertise in small local newspapers to gain new business.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A partner or associate may be overly optimistic where career or financial matters are concerned. Your down-to-earth leadership is needed. Well-meaning friends could offer the wrong investment advice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Many are involved with contracts or legal documents, including loan papers now. Partnerships of all types enjoy favorable influences. You gain the cooperation of someone who may be essential to your success.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Organize your time better and you will accomplish much more. Try to ignore petty squabbles between co-workers. Lending a sympathetic ear to someone's long tale of woe will only encourage further interruptions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your regular work should go smoothly now. Welcome new responsibilities. Higher-ups are interested in promoting people who show initiative. Spice up your love life by planning a special trip for two.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seek solitude if working on a complex project today. Frequent interruptions will interfere with what you hope to accomplish. An old love is about to be rekindled. Follow your heart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Look at your revised plans from a long-range perspective. Dreams provide an important clue. Seek professional help if unable to solve a personal problem on your own. Put complex assignments on hold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek the advice of someone whose financial knowledge and expertise surpass your own. Replacing bad habits with good ones will put you on the path to lasting security. Make regular savings deposits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may have the answer to someone's objections to a new policy or project. Your intuition is right on target and your sense of timing is excellent. A lost article surfaces in a surprising place.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sudden flashes of insight and an odd dream point out what is ahead of you. New beginnings are favored. A promising relationship will flourish if you nurture it. Be a good listener.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New financial gains are linked to real estate or a legal settlement. You now know what you truly value in your loved ones. A romantic relationship begins to heat up. Show tenderness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Those who have put time and energy into developing their special talents get a chance to show them off now! A dream could prove prophetic. Keep in close touch with a supportive friend.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are bright, articulate and inclined to take charge. Wise parents will set some ground rules early. These youngsters' need to be loved is as great as their need to shower others with affection. They will go all-out to win the approval of a favorite teacher. These Leos will show special respect for those who have overcome tough disadvantages. They make excellent counselors, lawyers and judges.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

There is nothing more embarrassing for a defender than going to bed with an ace. If you have found a way to defeat a contract, make sure you collect all your tricks.

North-South were playing weak two-bids, and even at this vulnerability the South hand was maximum for such action. North showed interest in game (two no trump was forcing and three diamonds showed a feature in that suit) and, although the three-spade bid was technically a sign-off, South went on to game on the strength of the near-solid trump suit.

West led the king of clubs and the sight of dummy brought little joy to East's heart. Two club tricks and the ace of hearts would complete the book, but from where was the setting trick coming? South almost surely held the king of diamonds, and if not, that card would be finessable if necessary, so there were no more tricks to be had from the side suits. The king of trumps was the only hope, but it could be picked up with repeat finesses. If dummy could be forced to ruff, however, the king of trumps would become the fourth defensive trick.

East dropped the queen of clubs under the king, showing either the jack or a singleton. West duly underled the ace of clubs, and East was on lead with the jack.

A careless defender might now hand declarer the contract by continuing with a club. Dummy would ruff and although the king of trumps would now be protected, declarer would sneak home. After ruffing the club on the table, declarer would take the trump finesse, cash the ace and then run diamonds. East would be able to ruff the fourth round with the king, but declarer's heart would vanish on that trick. That possibility was laid to rest when East wisely cashed the ace of hearts before continuing with a club—down one.

Willie keeps ranch from IRS's grasp by selling it for $803,000

EVERGREEN, Colo. — Willie Nelson has kept his 44-acre ranch out of the Internal Revenue Service's grasp by agreeing to sell it for $803,000, which is $153,000 more than it fetched at an IRS auction in January.

Philip Huitt, a former Hawaii resident, agreed to buy the ranch, complete with a trout pond, barn, four houses and a teepee, in mountains southwest of Denver, said real estate agent Brad Moss.

"I really don't know much about him except he had the money to buy it," Moss said. "He just came in at the 11th hour and did his thing."

After the auction, Nelson, who owes the IRS more than $16.7 million in back taxes, interest and penalties, was allowed 180 days before the sale was final. A week before the deadline, Huitt came on the scene, Moss said.

Everett Randleman, of Hygiene northwest of Denver, offered the highest bid of $650,000 at the auction. He was paid 20 percent interest on his money, under IRS regulations, Moss said.

LAS VEGAS — An appeals court ruling that stripped Wayne Newton of a $5.2 million libel award against NBC-TV is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Newton

The entertainer's lawyer, Morton Galane, filed an appeal Monday asking the high court to vacate or reverse last August's ruling by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, which ordered dismissal of the lawsuit.

NBC suggested in an October 1980 series that Newton bought the Aladdin Hotel with the help of mobsters. Newton, who vehemently denied the allegations, has since sold his interest in the Las Vegas resort.

In 1986, a federal court jury awarded Newton $19.3 million, which would have been the largest libel award in U.S. history. The judge later reduced the award to $5.2 million.

Galane said NBC reporters went ahead with the report even though they knew Newton's financing came from legitimate sources.

The series said Newton had called upon reputed mobster Guido Penosi and his associates for help.

Newton has testified that he telephoned Penosi for help after receiving death threats against himself and his daughter, then age 3. He said his calls to Penosi, whom he described as a fan, had nothing to do with getting money to buy the Aladdin.

An attorney for NBC in New York was not unavailable for comment, his office said Tuesday.

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Milton Berle has called in some muscle for the charity golf tournament named after his late wife, including Arnold Schwarzenegger and Sylvester Stallone.

Berle

A celebrity will team up with each group of four amateur for 36 holes of golf Aug. 23-25 at the La Costa Resort and Spa in northern San Diego County.

The Ruth Berle Celebrity Golf Classic, benefiting the American Cancer Society, also includes a black-tie dinner party. Berle's wife died of cancer in 1989. The tournament is to be held annually.

Other participants include Tom Selleck, Robert Wagner, Jill St. John, Steve Garvey, Buddy Rogers, Vic Damone, Norm Crosby, Jan Murray and Buddy Hackett.

BURBANK, Calif. — A judge sided with Clint Eastwood in a $100,000 lawsuit filed by a woman who claimed the actor repeatedly rammed her car with his truck after she mistakenly parked it in his space.

Municipal Court Judge Marion E. Gubler last week ruled in Eastwood's favor and ordered Stacy McLaughlin to pay the actor's legal costs.

Eastwood, who contended he was only trying to park his quarter-ton pickup in its rightful space at Warner Bros. Studios, paid $960 to repair the headlights and bumper of McLaughlin's car. She sought the additional money as punitive damages, claiming malice on Eastwood's part in connection with the December 1988 incident.

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. — A judge refused to dismiss a lawsuit by a Florida couple seeking a restraining order against Steffi Graf and her family based on alleged altercations at two tennis tournaments this year.

County Judge Michael Gersten told an attorney for the Grafs that he could not decide whether Peter Graf is a threat to James Levee, of Boca Raton, who once lavished gifts on Graf's tennis-champion daughter.

The judge on Monday denied a request for a dismissal of a petition filed last month by Levee and his fiancee, Jill Genson, seeking a restraining order to keep Graf, his daughter and son Michael away from the couple.

Levee claims Graf struck him in the head at the French Open on June 6 and that Michael Graf confronted him in a menacing manner at Wimbledon on July 4.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced today amid indications interest rates were heading lower.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 28.12 at 3,007.16 by midafternoon.

Advancing issues outpaced declining ones by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 798 up, 600 down and 580 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 113.65 million shares as of 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Stocks seesawed throughout the morning until the Federal Reserve added reserves to the nation's money supply in an action interpreted as a fresh bid to push interest rates lower in order to revive the economy.

The Fed lowered the interest banks charge each other for overnight loans from 5.75 percent to 5.5 percent. That in turn should help reduce a variety of short-term interest rates for businesses and consumers and thus stimulate borrowing and economic demand.

Traders had been in a holding pattern as they awaited the first leg of the government's regular quarterly refunding auction. The Treasury is set to sell $14 billion in three-year notes today; $12 billion in 10-year notes Wednesday, and $12 billion in 30-year bonds Thursday.

Stocks soar

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market catapulted higher Tuesday, encouraged by strong signals from the government that interest rates are headed lower.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 38.24 points to settle at 3,027.28, it's fourth-highest close ever. The Dow hit a record high of 3,035.33 on June 3.

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar closed lower Tuesday as the Federal Reserve took steps to push interest rates downward.

The British pound gained against the dollar. Sterling rose to $1.7145 in New York from $1.7110 late Monday.

Seidman to leave post in October

■ Chairman of FDIC informs Bush that he will vacate position the day his term ends.

Associated Press

Seidman

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., L. William Seidman, Tuesday told President Bush he will leave his position Oct. 16, the last day of his term.

"Please do not hesitate to call on me if I can be of service to you in the future," the 70-year-old bank and S&L regulator wrote in a three-sentence letter.

Seidman has been saying he would leave before the end of his term for more than a year. Lately, however, bankers and industry lobbyists had speculated that he would be asked to stay for up to a year until a successor is appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate.

Last week, Seidman told reporters at a news conference that he would discuss that with administration officials. However, the letter to Bush, said flatly, "I will leave my position ... effective at the close of business on Oct. 16, 1991."

Seidman, FDIC chairman since 1985 and a former top aide in Gerald Ford's White House, has led the FDIC, which insures both bank and S&L deposits, through the greatest period of turmoil in the banking industry since the Depression.

The agency has handled more than 1,000 bank failures over the past six years. Its principal fund, covering commercial bank deposits, has shrunk from a peak of $18.3 billion less than four years ago to near insolvency.

Legislation is pending in Congress to bolster the fund with up to a $70 billion loan from taxpayers.

Since 1989, the five-member board that Seidman chairs has also directed the Resolution Trust Corp., the agency responsible for conducting the bailout of failed S&Ls.

Seidman has been talking about leaving his job since May 1990, when reports surfaced that White House Chief of Staff John Sununu wanted him out of the job. However, members of Congress' banking committees protested, and Seidman, who as head of an independent agency cannot be removed once appointed, hung on.

At the time, Seidman pushed William Taylor, the Federal Reserve's director of bank supervision, as his successor, and the president even told reporters that he was "very high on" Taylor.

However, since then, questions have been raised in Congress about Federal Reserve regulators' failure to discover until late last year that the Luxembourg-based Bank of Credit and Commerce International had secretly acquired control of the capital area's largest bank, First American Bank Corp.

Fed lowers interest rates

■ Central bank reduces lending rate from 5.75 to 5.5 percent in an effort to prevent a recession.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve signaled Tuesday that it was pushing short-term interest rates lower in what economists viewed as an emergency rescue effort to keep the country from slipping back into recession.

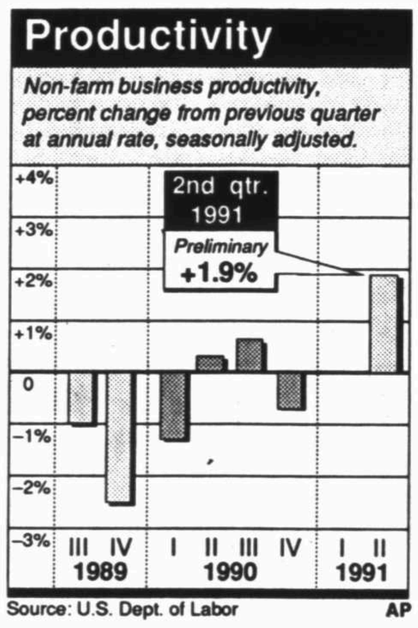
Analysts said that a Fed move to add reserves to the nation's banking system was a clear signal that the central bank had lowered its target for a key short-term bank lending rate from 5.75 percent down to 5.5 percent.

It marked the first time that the federal funds rate — the charge banks assess each other for overnight loans — has been lowered since April 30. Economists said by moving now, the central bank was emphasizing the concern it had over the possibility that the recovery could falter, plunging the nation back into a recession.

"The Fed had to ease. The economy needs help," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co.

Financial markets rallied sharply on the Fed's move. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 38.24 points to close at 3027.28, just over 8 points short of the record 3,035.33 set June 3.

The Treasury's 30-year bond, a barometer of interest-rate trends, was up more than $5 per $1,000 in face amount and its yield dropped to 8.17 percent from the 8.22 percent posted late Monday.



Source: U.S. Dept. of Labor AP

In other economic news, the Labor Department reported Tuesday that the productivity of American workers rose at an annual rate of 1.9 percent in the April-June quarter.

It was the largest advance in productivity, defined as output per hour of work, in nearly three years. But analysts were not impressed, saying the increase did not signal any long-term improvement in the country's chronic productivity problems.

The productivity report did show that unit labor costs, a key barometer of inflationary pressures, moderated significantly to an annual rate of 2.6 percent in the second quarter.

In another report, the National Association of Realtors said that sales of existing homes posted double-digit increases in 20 states during the spring although some areas, notably in the West, continued to suffer significant weakness. Sales plunged 43.7 percent in Hawaii; 20 percent of 119 cities surveyed reported price declines during the quarter.

Analysts said the Fed had been forced to move to lower interest rates following a surprisingly weak unemployment report and a rash of other data that had cast doubt on the durability of the current recovery.

Many economists said it is not clear that the economy ever pulled out of the recession or, if it did, how durable the recovery will be. Some have begun to forecast a so-called double-dip recession, in which the weak 0.4 percent positive growth in the April-June quarter will be followed by declines in coming quarters as the recession returns full force.

"Clearly, the Fed is more worried about the sustainability of the recovery," said Bruce Steinberg, senior economist at Merrill Lynch in New York.

Only two weeks ago, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress that he saw "compelling signs" that a sustained recovery had begun and that there was no immediate need to lower interest rates.

But last Friday, the government reported that industries lost 51,000 jobs in July, the second month of big job losses at a time when the economy needs to be adding jobs to keep the recovery alive.

Firm unveils lighter phone

CHICAGO (AP) — Motorola Inc. today introduced a personal cellular phone weighing less than a half-pound that it calls the lightest in the world. The move represents the company's attempt to win back a major share of the increasingly competitive market.

Weisshappel

"We were the first cellular manufacturer to break the 1-pound weight barrier, and now we have dropped the weight expectation even further," Motorola Senior Vice President Robert N. Weisshappel said in a statement.

Motorola introduced the first fold-up pocket cellular phone, the MicroTac, in 1989, but has since lost ground to Japanese electronics maker Fujitsu Ltd.'s 10.4-ounce Pocket Commander model.

Motorola today introduced the MicroTac Lite, which weighs 7.7 ounces and can be used for up to 45 minutes of conversation, or "talk time," or eight hours on standby between battery charges.

It also announced a new line called the MicroTAC Alpha Series, which are streamlined and lighter versions of the original MicroTac. These phones weigh 10.1 ounces and have 130 minutes of talk time.

NCNB, C&S Sovran announce lending plan

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp. and C&S Sovran Corp. Tuesday unveiled a $10 billion, 10-year lending plan for low-income areas in states where the two banks will operate after merging to create NationsBank.

C&S Sovran Chairman Bennett Brown and NCNB's Hugh McColl announced the plan at a news conference in Charlotte, calling it the largest community development by a U.S. bank.

"Ten billion dollars is a goal we plan to exceed," McColl said. "As soon as we get to that level, we intend to beat it. It will take a lot of loans."

The largest community lending plan to date was a $5 billion plan by the Bank of America, they said.

"To double that isn't bad," McColl said.

The program will target consumer and commercial affordable housing loans. It will include residential and small- and minority-owned businesses. Also covered by the program will be public and private partnerships and loans to nonprofit groups, government agencies and other programs serving low- to moderate-income neighborhoods.

The program's goal is to reach people who missed out on the economic boom of the 1980s, McColl said.

"Historically, a segment of our country's population has been denied access to credit. That is especially true in the region NationsBank will serve," he said.

"From Baltimore south to Miami and west to El Paso, economically disadvantaged segments of the population have been left on the sidelines of economic progress. The financial muscle of NationsBank will help change that."

Both Brown and McColl denied that the ambitious program was spurred by the threat of protests from community activists that could have delayed or threatened the merger of their two banks into NationsBank.

No formal protests have been filed against the proposed merger. But low-income housing activists in Atlanta and Charlotte said earlier they were considering that possibility.

The protests would be filed under the Community Reinvestment Act of 1977, a federal law designed to prevent discriminatory banking practices and provide disclosure of lending to low-income and minority communities.

Brown said the emphasis of the program will be local.

"No matter how big and strong and influential we become we are fundamentally community bankers," Brown said.

Also attending the news conference were North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin, chairman of the Southern Growth Policies Board and former South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley, a former chairman. The policies board pushed for regional interstate banking in the South.

'Hot' tips, recipes cool off summer meals

By Alan Sverdlik and Susan Puckett
N.Y. Times News Service

Carefully choosing what you eat and drink can help you stay cool in the long, hot summer. Try some of these suggestions:

■ Carbohydrates. Go easy on the meats and heavy on the bread, pasta, beans, peas, lentils, grains, potatoes and rice. Carbohydrates are recommended because they're easier to digest than protein or fat.

Carbohydrates break down in 30 to 90 minutes; fat and protein take two to four hours, says Gary Granata, a registered dietitian.

The body generates heat during the digestion process, Granata says. Fluid also is drawn to the stomach, depriving the rest of the body of water.

Just about any grain can be served cold, in salad form, like this one:

BLACK-EYED PEA SALAD: Add sliced green onions and chopped red bell pepper or pimento to drained, canned black-eyed peas. Moisten with bottled vinaigrette dressing and serve over lettuce.

■ Citrus. Orange, lemon, lime and grapefruit are fresh, clean flavors that do wonders for waking up waning appetites on a sizzling day.

Lemonade is the classic summer cooler, but you can get your citrus fix other ways, too. The next time you eat corn-on-the-cob, squirt it with a lemon or lime wedge. Not only does it add a new flavor dimension, it also eliminates the need for butter or salt.

Although alcohol is not recommended in hot weather (it's dehydrating), you could compromise with this refreshing libation, which field hands in Alsace, France, imbibe in to take the heat off:

PANACHE: In a pitcher, combine equal portions of limeade or lemonade and beer. Serve very cold — and pour over ice if desired.

■ Cold leftovers. Chances are that the food from last night's dinner will taste good tonight — even if you don't turn on your oven.

Meatloaf or roast beef make great cold sandwiches. Munching on cold fried chicken isn't bad either.

Having steak and potatoes for dinner tonight? Then throw an extra slab on the grill and have this tomorrow:

STEAK AND POTATO SALAD: Thinly slice cooked steak or roast beef. Quarter cooked new potatoes. Arrange on a bed of lettuce with cooked green beans and sliced red onions. Drizzle on some Italian dressing or mustardy vinaigrette and serve over lettuce.

■ Light sauces. Meat and cream-based sauces can leave you sluggish. But you've got to put something on your pasta, so whip up one that's mostly fresh vegetables and herbs:

NO-COOK TOMATO SAUCE: In a bowl, combine 2 cups chopped ripe tomatoes, ¼ cup olive oil, ½ cup chopped green or red onions, ¼ cup each chopped fresh basil and parsley, ¼ cup chopped sun-dried tomatoes or sliced black olives, ¼ teaspoon dried red pepper flakes, and salt and pepper to taste. (It's better if you let it stand for several hours so the flavors meld). Toss with about 12 ounces hot, cooked pasta.

■ Diet drinks and power shakes. When you're starving but too tired to cook, liquid diets such as Dyna-Trim, Ultra Slim-Fast and California Slim are an option.

The usefulness of liquid diets is a subject of debate. While "we can't recommend them to lose weight," they're acceptable occasionally "if supplemented with fruit, raw vegetables or a roll," says Pat Bruschini, a county extension agent.

You can make your own concoction by pureeing frozen berries or other fruit with buttermilk, skim milk or yogurt. Or for extra protein, try this:

PEANUTTY SHAKE: In a blender, combine 1 cup skim milk with 1 cut-up banana, 1 tablespoon peanut butter, a little honey or sugar to taste, a dash of vanilla and 3 ice cubes. Process until frothy. For extra creaminess — and calcium — blend in 2 or 3 tablespoons non-fat powdered milk.

■ Water. Health experts say that nothing beats plain water for keeping you afloat in sticky weather. Alcohol and caffeine can dehydrate you. And carbonation and sugar can upset your stomach, particularly while exercising. Drink an 8-ounce glass every hour or so, even if you're not thirsty.

"Thirst isn't a good warning signal for hydration," says Judy Aylward, a dietitian and food technologist in Natick, Mass., at the Army Research, Engineering and Development Center, which developed Meals Ready to Eat (MREs), the rations used in the Persian Gulf War.

"By the time you're thirsty, your body is already experiencing dehydration."

■ Electrolyte beverages. Gatorade and Pripp's Plus, which replenish the body's supply of potassium and sodium, should be taken only after "heavy exertion for a long time in extreme heat," says Capt. Cecilia Thomas, a research dietitian with the Army Institute of Environmental Medicine.

After a rigorous workout, Gatorade should be diluted two parts water to one part Gatorade, says Jamie Metcalf Kelly, a sports nutritionist. Pripp's should be diluted 2½ parts water to one part Pripps.

Let carbonated drinks sit until they're flat. Carbonation can cause bloating, upset stomachs and nausea, Ms. Metcalf Kelly says.

Carbonated drinks with sugar should be diluted three parts water to one part soft drink.

■ Watermelon. African slaves brought watermelon seeds to America, where it was first grown in the early 1600s. Any way you eat it, watermelon is a natural air conditioner. We suggest this variation:

WATERMELON GRANITA: This Italian-style version of a sorbet has the icy consistency of a snow cone but is less sweet and is sophisticated enough to be served in a wine goblet.

Whirl enough watermelon in a food processor or blender to make 4 cups of puree; press through a sieve to remove seeds and fiber. Add about ½ cup sugar (depending on melon sweetness) and juice of 1 lemon; stir until sugar has dissolved.

Pour the watermelon mixture into a wide shallow pan and set it in the freezer. As it begins to freeze, stir occasionally to break up the ice crystals — but do not try to smooth them as for sorbet. The granitas take about 3 hours to freeze. Makes about 1 quart.

■ Cucumbers. Cucumbers have been used to quench thirst since they were discovered 3,000 years ago in India and Egypt. In fact, the pharaohs fed them to slaves building the pyramids.

Over the centuries, a variety of moisturizing lotions and ointments have been made from cucumber. Here's a more nourishing use:

COLD CUCUMBER AND YOGURT SOUP: In a bowl, combine 1 pint of yogurt with 1 peeled and finely diced cucumber, 1 finely minced garlic clove, 1 teaspoon olive oil (optional) and a tablespoon or so of minced fresh dill. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve very cold. Makes 2 or 3 servings.

■ Hot peppers. "Spicy food makes you perspire, and perspiration cools you down," says Steve Taylor, a professor of food science and technology at the University of Nebraska.

Countries near the equator learned that lesson when chili peppers were introduced in their cuisines in the 1600s, says Dave DeWitt, an author of "The Whole Chile Pepper Book" (Little, Brown, $16.95).

"The cultures in the tropics adopted chilies because they induced gustatory sweating," he says. "As a result, they have some of the hottest cuisines in the world today."

To test this theory, try these deliciously different treats:

JALAPENO SURPRISES: Cut pickled small jalapenos in half lengthwise and remove seeds and inner membrane. (Wear gloves). Place a teaspoon of peanut butter in half of each pepper; place the other half on top. (Jalapenos stuffed with cream cheese are tasty, too.) Serve with cold drinks.

■ Mint. "For no apparent reason, menthol acts on the nerve cells in the oral cavity, particularly the tongue, which tell the brain that we're cooling off," says food writer Harold McGee.

Place a sprig of mint in your tea, lemonade or water for extra refreshment. Or add it to a cooling condiment to serve with grilled meats:

TOMATO-PAPAYA-MINT SALSA: In a bowl, combine 1 pound of diced tomatoes (peeled and seeded), 1 cup of diced papaya or mango, 1 finely chopped and seeded jalapeno, 1 minced shallot, 3 tablespoons finely chopped mint, 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice and salt to taste. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. (From "The Taste of Summer" by Diane Rossen Worthington, Bantam, $19.95.)

Famous bake-off contest solicits original recipes

Staff Report

Recipe creativity can be a valuable asset these days, especially for those who will be named finalists at the 35th Pillsbury Bake-Off® Cooking and Baking Contest. And the contest is more profitable than ever for the winners — $136,000, including a grand prize of $50,000 plus a $10,000 Kenmore Appliance Kitchen Makeover from the contest's co-sponsor, Sears.

Scheduled for Feb. 22-25, 1992, the Bake-Off Contest will be in the Contemporary Hotel at Florida's Walt Disney World.

The best 100 recipes earn their creators a trip to the Bake-Off Contest including $100 expense money. In addition to the grand prize winner, five finalists will win $10,000 from Pillsbury, plus a Sears Kenmore range. Pillsbury will give a $2,000 award to 18 more finalists along with a Sears Kenmore Microconvection Oven. All 100 finalists receive Sears $30 gift certificates.

Another new incentive is the Early Entry Bonus. If an entry is received by Oct. 10, and is among the 100 finalist, Pillsbury will double the $100 expense money for the trip to the Bake-Off Contest.

This year's Bake-Off Contest also invites a greater diversity of recipes with its expanded list of qualifying products, which include: Pillsbury products including Best Flour, Hot Roll Mix, Plus Cake Mix, Fudge Brownines, Lovin' Lites Cake Mix, Lovin' Lites Brownie Mix, Refrigerated Crescent Dinner Rolls, and Refrigerated All Ready Pizza and Pie Crusts, and Green Giant canned vegetables — including mushrooms in glass jars and LeSueur peas — Green Giant or Joan of Arc canned or dry beans, and Green Giant Frozen vegetables — except One Serving or Garden Gourmet.

Recipes using these products must be original or incorporate significant changes from existing recipes. They may be prepared by baking, stove top cooking, microwaving, chilling, freezing or grilling. Recipes to enter are:

- Quck Ideas — Short recipes to save time.
- Light and Healthy Creations — Updates recipes for healthier eating.
- Ethnic Specialties — Ethnic recipes for today's tastes.
- Special Treats — Favorite recipes for family and friends.

An example of a quick idea recipe is Turkey Vegetable Saute. Ideal for an easy company meal or a quick family supper, this recipe features ingredients that are already sliced or cut up for your convenience — turkey breast slices plus a 16-ounce bag of Green Giant American Mixtures Heartland Style Frozen Broccoli, Cauliflower and Carrots. You can prepare the recipe on the stove top, using just one skillet, or in the microwave.

TURKEY VEGETABLE SAUTE

2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 pound uncooked turkey breast slices
2 teaspoons chicken-flavor instant bouillon
½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 cup water
½ cup dry white wine
1 16-ounce package Green Giant American Mixtures Heartland Style Frozen Broccoli, Cauliflower and Carrots
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons water

CONVENTIONAL DIRECTIONS: Heat oil in large skillet. In small shallow bowl, combine 2 tablespoons flour and salt. Dip turkey slices in flour mixture; brown on all sides in hot oil. Stir in bouillon, thyme, 1 cup water and wine. Cover; simmer 5 minutes. Add frozen vegetables; stir to coat with wine mixture. Cover; simmer 4 to 6 minutes or until turkey is no longer pink and vegetables are crisp-tender. Place turkey and vegetables on platter; keep warm.

In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons water until smooth. Over medium-high heat, gradually stir into hot mixture in skillet. Cook 1 minute or until thickened, stirring constantly. Serve sauce over turkey and vegetables. 4 servings.

MICROWAVE DIRECTIONS: In a 12x8-inch (2 quart) microwave-safe dish, combine oil, salt, bouillon, thyme, ¾ cup water and ⅓ cup wine; blend well. Omit 2 tablespoons flour. Place turkey slices in wine mixture; spoon mixture over turkey. Cover with microwave-safe plastic wrap. Mixture on HIGH for 7 to 9 minutes or until turkey is no longer pink and vegetables are crisp-tender. Place turkey and vegetables on platter; keep warm.

In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons water until smooth. Stir into wine mixture. Microwave on HIGH for 3½ to 4½ minutes or until mixture thickens, stirring once halfway through cooking. Serve sauce over turkey and vegetables.

DEAR ABBY

Children of any age 'the kids' to their parents

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter in your column about calling 35- and 44-year-olds "our children," I had to smile.

Van Buren

Our children are 26, 27, 29, 30 and 34, and we still call them "the kids."

My husband is 59 and I am 50, and his parents always refer to us as "the kids." But what really strikes me as being funny is hearing the grandparents who are 76 and 75 years old call my in-laws "the kids."

Don't you just love it, Abby? It sounds so loving and youthful. — MARJORIE GELLAT

DEAR MARJORIE: I more than "just love it" — I can relate to it. My husband and I, at age 73, are still called "the kids" by his parents, who are 92 and 93 years old. And may the good Lord continue to bless that beautiful couple, Rose and Jay Phillips of Minneapolis, married 74 years ago today. Happy anniversary, Mother and Dad!

DEAR ABBY: In the words of William Wordsworth, "The child is father of the man." The definition of a "child" as offered by the couple who signed themselves "Ohio Parents" was limited. (They felt that at age 35 and 44, it was inappropriate to refer to their heirs as "children.")

We have had this discussion in our house many times. In biblical usage, "children" are descendants regardless of their ages.

I have two adult sons. I maintain that I will always be their mother. Consequently, these fine young men, both in their 20s, will always be my children. — MICHIGAN MOMMY

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent, "C.C. in Florida," is misinformed. The story that a Japanese manufacturer marked his products "MADE IN USA" in an attempt to mislead the buyer is not only false, it is a rumor that has been going around for at least a quarter of a century.

This tale was given worldwide publicity when it was published in Reader's Digest back in the 1960s. Your column is so widely read that the letter from C.C. will probably do as much to keep that rumor alive.

Abby, there IS a "Usa," Japan, but it is a tiny village with no manufacturing facilities. A check with the Japanese consulate in Los Angeles should confirm that. Also, no Japanese city has changed its name to "Usa" to mislead people.

Finally, a Japanese product marked "Made in USA" would be in violation of U.S Customs regulations, and would not be allowed into this country. — JAMES STEELE

DEAR JAMES STEELE: Thank you for setting the record straight. I hope C.C. sees this.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Snack chips twist pretzels into new shape

By Linda Anderson

I don't know when the best part of the pretzel was determined to be the outside, but evidently Nabisco thinks so, and that's why the company has recently introduced Mr. Phipps Pretzel Chips.

Anderson

Nabisco is evidently really pushing for this new product to succeed, too, because they are sending boxes of Mr. Phipps out to different newspapers as a form of publicity. (Which is not a bad idea, come to think about it, because journalists love to eat.)

This new product looks like a cross between crackers and pretzels. They are about the size and shape of Better Cheddars (which are round cheese crackers and a favorite at our house), but they are supposed to taste like pretzels (or at least, like the outside of pretzels).

According to the press release that came with the box of pretzel chips, Sharon Fordham, senior director of new business for Nabisco Biscuit, said, "Our goal was to bake a snack that offered just the outside of the pretzel, the part people like best. Plus, we've given the pretzel some unique benefits while retaining all its good-for-you attributes."

All this was news to me. In the first place, I wasn't asked to vote on my favorite part of the pretzel (actually, I like warm, soft pretzels best); and in the second place, I didn't realize that pretzels are known for their nutritional properties.

Anyway, if it's food, newsroom types have no problem sampling it — especially if it's free.

We checked out Mr. Phipps Pretzel Chips for taste and advertising accuracy. Since we got the 8½ ounce box for free, I can only assume the price is about the same as other similiar-sized boxes of Nabisco snack crackers — or about $2.19.

However, company information says, "...Nabisco will distribute more than 100 million coupons during the introductory period."

Then it got gushy, as only advertising for new products can get: "Introducing a lighter, crisper (maybe that's like a kinder, gentler pretzel?) pretzel made with only the tastiest part...the crispy outside. And, it's shaped like a chip...a chip that's perfect for dipping!"

In the taste test, the verdict was pretty evenly divided between those who like pretzels (who liked Mr. Phipps) and those who don't like pretzels (who didn't like Mr. Phipps), although there were a few who didn't like pretzels who said the chip/pretzels were tasty.

Nearly everyone agreed, however, that Mr. Phipps really does taste like pretzels.

And I guess that's what it is all about.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

Science books hit with students

By Tessie Borden

CHILTON (AP) — Former science teacher Janice VanCleave looks like a traveling snake oil salesman or a carnival show barker as she arrives wearing a colorful denim vest, a painted Samsonite trunk in tow.

Some might say science is a serious subject that deserves more dignified treatment. Not VanCleave.

The former Chilton teacher is building a writer's career on the idea that science — and math — are fun to teach and learn.

"Math is a big issue right now," she says as she stretches some "slime," a yellow and green oozy substance, with her hands. "Kids are not that interested in math."

In "Math for Every Kid," a book due this month, she uses the slime to teach children about measuring. It is the sixth in a series she has written to teach students in fourth through seventh grades scientific principles through experiments they can try at home.

The books take subjects like astronomy, biology, chemistry, earth science and physics and put them on a level students can understand by involving them, she said.

The experiments, which have names like "Bonk!" and "Oops!", use paper clips and a compass to teach a child how a magnet works, or plastic cola bottles and string to show what inertia is, or slime to show how volume stays the same in different containers.

"Kids, tell us about your favorite experiment and receive a free gift!" shouts an offer in the back of each book.

Not exactly the kind of exhortation one would expect from a science textbook, but VanCleave said the idea of a fan club gets kids interested.

The books take subjects like astronomy, biology, chemistry, earth science and physics and put them on a level students can understand by involving them.

"We don't think about mail as something that's very important, but to a child, getting mail is a big deal," she said.

The books are a big hit with teachers, too, she said.

"These books are easily understood," she said. "Many times, elementary teachers do not have a strong science background. They have to teach science and it is a little threatening to them, so I think the experiments in my book take away that threat and give them an ease so that they enjoy the science."

At a recent conference for school librarians, VanCleave said she must have given away more than a thousand recipes for slime.

"You'd think librarians are a little squeamish about slime," she said.

The books comprise more than 600 different experiments. Her publisher was "real picky about not cannibalizing the book so that you don't take a whole bunch of this book and put it in this new book."

The ideas come from a lot of reading, attending science fair conventions, and more than 26 years of teaching all levels of science.

"A lot of times I would try to do an experiment with my students and we might not have all the materials," she said. "So I'm kind of having to makeshift and bring things and redesign the experiment."

But the slime was not a VanCleave original.

"A chemical company was selling the supplies," she said. "But they were selling it so that you would buy a quart of this borax in a 4 percent sodium borax solution for $6 and then the glue, which is a 50 percent Elmer's glue solution for $3.25."

With a teaspoon here and a cup there, VanCleave figured out how much of the basic ingredients she would need to make slime at home. Then, she put it in the book.

"It's totally cool," she said, sounding more like the children she used to teach.

VanCleave stopped teaching in January to write full time. Besides the books she now has out, she is working on another series for a slightly different age group.

However, she still gets to teach every once in a while. She does demonstrations for students in schools and for teachers at workshops.

She also said she hopes she can get in on the fun when the state implements a new science curriculum starting in 1993 that will mix all the sciences, so that students in the seventh grade get some basic exposure not just to life science but to chemistry and physics as well.

For now, she likes the workshops and demonstrations because she gets the fun part of teaching.

"I get 100 kids at a time for about 30 minutes," she said. That's a startling ratio, considering the state insists on 22 students to one teacher.

Waco auction to sell 1 man's 'primo' collection of antiques

By Marc Masferrer
Associated Press writer

WACO — A skull-shaped beer stein with a portrait of Adolf Hitler stamped on the bottom. A 36-inch-long ivory tusk carved with an intricate design. A triple-barreled derringer pistol that can fit in the palm of one's hand.

For years, these and other rare items filled the Washington Avenue home of the late Gaines de Graffenried, a shrine to one man's lifelong pursuit of the perfect antique.

That will change Saturday.

On what would have been de Graffenried's 86th birthday, collectors from around the state and nation will gather at Fort Fisher to bid on guns, knives, artwork, toys, furniture, books and anything else de Graffenried's family is willing to part with.

"If it wasn't good, it wouldn't be here," said Scott Franks with A&S Antique Auction, which will run the sale.

"The auction is of about 400 items, and it will take in the vicinity of six hours to sell it. It took him 60 years to collect it," Franks said.

De Graffenried is best known by collectors and tourists for his work as curator of the Texas Ranger Museum at Fort Fisher. De Graffenried sold or donated to the museum many artifacts on display, and urged others with noteworthy collections to make loans.

He was known as a "notorious trader" who would go to great lengths to buy or trade for "primo stuff," Franks said.

Collections like that of de Graffenried's are as rare as many of the items in it, he added.

"If we only knew what each piece represented ... that would only make them more valuable," he said.

On the mantle over the fireplace in de Graffenried's house, Franks has placed several beer steins, including two linked to Germany's Nazi past.

In addition to the skull-shaped stein, there is an elaborate ceramic mug that is decorated with several Nazi swastikas.

Auctioneer Scott Franks holds an antique toy owned by the late Gaines de Graffenried, longtime curator of the Texas Rangers Museum in Waco. Toys, guns and antiques owned by Graffenreid will be auctioned Saturday.

'There will be people from New York City who come to buy these (beer) steins. They should command a good price.'

— Auctioneer Scott Franks

"There will be people from New York City who come to buy these steins," Franks said. "They should command a good price."

While there is an international flavor to some of de Graffenried's items, the heart of his collection is America and Texas of the 1800s.

"I've never seen a collection with so much Texas in it," said Franks, who has been in the auction business for 17 years.

Some of the rarer items include an assortment of Colt revolvers, a three-foot-tall wood carving of a Texas Ranger standing on a barrel, a Winchester "bullet board" displaying all the types of ammunition sold by the company in the 1800s, and several bronze sculptures celebrating the life of the cowboy.

De Graffenried died March 21 after a lengthy illness. Since Franks knew de Graffenried, his family approached him when it decided it wanted to sell.

Prospective buyers will be able to view the items to be sold during a pre-sale open house Aug. 8 and Aug. 9 at Fort Fisher, where the auction begins at 10 a.m. Saturday.

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals.
OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current carrier force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!
How long does it take?
The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!
When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.
