Airliner Forced Down In Pacific, 31 Rescued

Klansmen Visit Church

A long file of robed but unmasked members of the Ku Klux Klan enter a small church in Whistler, Ala., during a Sunday evening service. The Klansmen left contributions and marched out. A startled pianist played the same tune, "Onward Christian Soldiers," during the 10 minutes the robed men were in the church.

Heavy Rains Cause Flooding In Odessa

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters flashed into part of Odessa, thunderstorms swooped across the Coastal Bend near Corpus Christi on winds of 74 miles an hour and welcome rains fell over much of Texas Monday night.

Blinding dust, then hail, winds of 25 miles an hour and 3.50 inches of rain hit Odessa at 6:50 p.m. Fire and Red Cross units evacuated families from the eastern, older section.

Police said Tuesday the waters, which backed up when drainage lines became clogged, had drained off. Residents were returning to their homes. The rain had stopped.

The flooded area consisted of about 45 blocks.

The Coastal Bend storms were described as part of a squall which originated near Victoria. Funnel clouds were sighted between Mathis and George West and at Alice and Ben Bolt. Heavy rains fell on the Atascosa River watershed and sharp rises were expected Tuesday from Cambellton to Whitsett.

Freer reported heavy damage but the extent was not immediately determined.

Heavy rains extended all the way down the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Electrical storms knocked KRIO off the air at McAllen and shut off power in half of McAllen.

The Odessa storm moved on to the south.

Two-thirds of the 62-man police force was on duty Monday night as some 100 boats were pressed into rescue work. Highway patrolmen in the Pecos district checked roads out of Odessa for washouts, accidents and other possible storm damage.

Mrs. Dora Cross, 65, a visitor from Wichita, Kan., died of a heart attack shortly after lightning hit a power line several blocks from where she was staying at Odessa.

Police Chief Jess Cariker said about 50 autos were pulled from the flooded area.

The State Highway Patrol reported funnel clouds sighted 25 miles northwest of Corpus Christi. A tornado funnel was sighted at Lake Mathis, 30 miles northwest of Corpus Christi.

A wind storm hit Lake Mathis at about 7:10 p.m., but no damage was reported.

The rain helped many farmers and ranchers, but others saw their crops wiped out by short but vicious hail storms.

Rain-slick streets were blamed for the Dallas traffic death of Mrs. J. A. Worden, 28, a passenger in an auto involved in a collision with a bus.

Hail, wind and rain lashed the eastern Panhandle. An estimated $125,000 crop loss was reported near Estelline. The storm wiped out crops from seven miles west to four miles south of the Hall County town.

Winds of about 50 miles an hour hit seven miles west of Estelline and about seven inches were reported in the area.

R. L. Nelson, cotton trucker, said hail destroyed more than 80 per cent of the crops in the area. The heaviest part of the storm struck west of the city, where farmers said the best cotton was located.

The storm also smashed windows, damaged roofs, washed a car off the road and left water about six inches deep in the streets.

In Kerrville, in South Central Texas, two inches of rain fell in 30 minutes.

Childress, in the eastern Panhandle, reported varying amounts of rain. Hail and 50-mile-per-hour winds were reported. The Weather Bureau said a total of 1.1 inches fell in downtown Childress. A 30-minute hail storm cut down many cotton fields.

Four inches of rain and heavy hail and wind struck Tell, near Childress, and Quanah received 1.50 inches.

Three inches fell at Lazare between Quanah and Paducah, the first moisture for that area since August.

Rain in Ropesville, south of Lubbock, ranged from .35 to 2 inches. Other points where rain fell include Seminole 1.15, Slaton .25, Lamesa .26, Tahoka .70, Matador .10, Plains .10, a trace at Electra, Memphis .04, Paducah .25 and Canadian and Higgins, a trace.

Lamesa, in Dawson County, got up to 2 inches of rain. Moisture measured .50 inches at Wellington, and hail there caused slight damage.

San Angelo got .2 inches and rainfall in the area reached 2.50 inches. Tennyson had 1.50, Robert Lee 1.08 and near Blackwell 1.3 inches fell.

One half inch of rain fell on Llano and up to one inch covered Llano County.

Other rainfall totals include Slidell .66, Hamilton, Rankin and Pittsville 1.50, Mineral Wells 1.44, Walnut Springs 1.30, Killeen 1.25, Wichita Falls 1.17, Valley View 1.16, Jonesboro 1.10, Belton 1.02, Junction .76, Brownsville .55, Corsicana .04, Sweetwater .66.

United Fund Reports Due

Reports are scheduled Wednesday from the general, special, employe and area divisions of the United Fund campaign.

Drive leaders expect to see the Fund much nearer its $87,550 goal after the Wednesday reports are audited. Already the drive has accounted for about one-third of the objective, not included are several hundred dollars listed in reports individual workers have turned in since Saturday.

A report from the advance gifts division is scheduled for Friday. This is billed as the final report of the division, which had accounted for half its goal last weekend.

Charges Expected In Bank Shortage

FORT WORTH (AP) — Criminal charges against three to five persons are expected to be filed this week, an investigator probing the shortage at the defunct River Oaks State Bank said today.

The bank closed yesterday after examiners uncovered a shortage reported varying from $300,000 to more than $700,000.

The investigator said stockholders "are wiped out" but that the bank's 4,500 to 5,000 depositors should get most of their money.

Most accounts were $10,000 or less which will be covered completely by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Several accounts in excess of $10,000 are reported. One person was said to have had more than $100,000 in the bank.

These persons will not lose all their money, the investigator emphasized. He said with liquidation of the bank assets, much of the funds would be returned to their owners.

"Those people with big accounts will get back at least 50 per cent of their money and maybe as much as 95 per cent," he said.

"There's one mastermind and several lesser persons involved," he said, referring to the shortage.

State Banking Commissioner J. M. Falkner said "It looks like now" the shortage will be about $700,000—"it may stop there and it may keep going."

A Washington spokesman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said the shortage at the bank is more than twice its $300,000 capital. He said the shortage is in excess of $600,000 and "still growing."

Shepperd Is Surprise Witness Called By NAACP At Hearing

TYLER (AP)—Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd declared today "I don't think the U.S. Supreme Court endowed this (NAACP) or any other organization to enforce its order" opening white schools to Negroes.

Shepperd, who filed the injunction suit now being heard against the NAACP, was a surprise witness called by the NAACP.

Asked by NAACP attorney W. J. Durham about a federal integration suit soon to be heard in Dallas, Shepperd said, "My interpretation of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling is that there is no time limit involved. I think either side has a right to try to do what it thinks it should."

Shepperd was on the stand 45 minutes.

Durham questioned Shepperd about the more than 400 letters and other documents which the state seized from NAACP offices and introduced here. He asked if Shepperd knew "that all this correspondence between officers of the NAACP merely concerned the rights of getting children in schools and entering swimming pools and parks."

Shepperd answered: "You know these letters go way beyond their face, or we wouldn't be here. If you want my candid opinion, I think there was very little help on the part of this organization in actually helping get Negro children in schools."

The attorney general said the expressed reluctance of a Negro boy to attend Mansfield High School during racial disturbances there earlier this fall caused the state to start its investigation of the NAACP.

"The reason for our intensified interest at this time was a statement made by one of the boys in the Mansfield incident that he didn't want to go to school there unless the NAACP made him press it."

He said he had numerous other statements of this nature from persons at Mansfield.

"We had information about Mansfield that made us very suspicious about the attorney in the case, Clifford Davis, who also was involved in a Tarrant County voting investigation, I believe Box 12;," Shepperd said.

Shepperd apparently was referring to Floyd Moody, 17, who at the time of the Mansfield school troubles, said "Mister, I don't want to go to school in Mansfield. I'd rather go to school among my own people in Fort Worth. But I'll go to the Mansfield school if the NAACP makes me."

T. COLEMAN ANDREWS

Ex-Tax Chief In Presidential Race

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — T. Coleman Andrews, who served for three years as chief tax collector of the Eisenhower administration, set out today to present his own presidential candidacy as "a new home for the orphaned members of both the old parties."

The 57-year-old Richmond conservative was designated to carry the states rights-tax reform third party banner at a whooping rally here last night.

Andrews and his running mate, former Republican Congressman Thomas H. Werdel of Bakersfield, Calif., are on the ballots in 14 states. In Virginia, at least, where both major parties regard the outcome of the election doubtful, Andrews' candidacy could tip the result one way or the other. Virginia went for Eisenhower in 1952 by an 80,000-vote margin.

The former tax chief, an Eisenhower Democrat in 1952, told some 3,000 supporters last night he didn't know whether his candidacy would draw strength mainly from President Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson.

"But I do know it wouldn't make any difference which of the two old parties won because we would have a continuation of socialistic government in either case," he said.

Andrews, Werdel and other speakers — notably Clarence E. Manion, former dean of the Notre Dame Law School and cochairman of the National Andrews-Werdel Committee—received frequent cheers with their sharply worded attacks on Democrats and Republicans alike.

Demands for the federal government to leave the states free to operate their schools as they saw fit won the loudest applause and the heaviest boos went to Chief Justice Earl Warren. Andrews referred to Warren as "the great Republican chief justice and integrationist, Earl Warren."

One of Andrews' sharpest jabs at his former boss, Eisenhower, came after Manion and Dan Smoot, Texas radio commentator and writer, referred to the endorsement of the President by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Negro Democrat of New York.

Powell was quoted by Smoot as having said in a filmed television speech Sunday night that he had asked Eisenhower what the President would do if a school district refused to obey federal court school desegregation orders.

In reply, the President was quoted as saying: "Mr. Powell, I advocate that the federal court should take action with federal government, swear in deputies if they need them, go out and arrest anyone that refuses to obey their order, bring them before the court, try them for contempt, and if they're guilty, put them in prison."

Andrews referred to Eisenhower "scooping up" Powell's support and said:

"I wonder how my Democratic friends supporting the Republican candidate feel now after this switch from peaceful persuasion to deputized force to compel compliance with presumptuous sociological dictum.

"Is that some of the 'peace and prosperity' that they propose to forsake their states and friends for?"

Andrews said it was absurd to say nothing could be done about the income tax or that the country needed a 70-billion-dollar budget. He said Sen. Byrd (D-Va), "who knows more about the budget than anyone in Washington," and the second Hoover Commission had said the present budget could be pared by 15.3 billions. And he noted this amount was about half that realized from the personal income tax.

Andrews resigned from the Eisenhower administration last year to become president of an insurance firm here.

Rioting Crowd Storms Ohio Phone Houses

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — A crowd estimated at about 500 by the State Highway Patrol last night stormed the strike-bound Portsmouth area telephone exchanges and a phone "blackout" descended again, barely 10 hours after it was lifted.

Rocks and beer bottles were thrown from the crowd at police and telephone operators alike. One man was hurt when a brick hit his head.

The violence erupted hours after the storm clouds began to gather. The crowd had assembled slowly after the State Highway Patrol escorted operators to their posts. There were sullen catcalls and shouts of "storm troopers."

The crowd was protesting the role taken by the state patrol, under orders from Gov. Frank J. Lausche, in reopening the exchange. The company has been using supervisory personnel in operating the offices.

The crowd struck just three months to the day after some 600 Communications Workers of America Union members struck upon expiration of their one-year contract with Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. The strike covers 23 counties in southern and eastern Ohio, but most of the "incidents" in the long and bitter dispute have centered in this area.

Finding Of Burglar Tools Spurs Probe Of Slain Woman

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)— Discovery of two sets of burglary tools in the apartment of slain Mary McCully, 31, turned the investigation of her past into new areas today.

The tools were found by police yesterday as Walter Borchers, 45, a former minister, was arraigned on a charge of murdering the red-haired beauty who served as his part-time secretary.

Borchers, who walked through the court proceedings in a dazed fashion, has told police he shot Miss McCully by accident after thwarting her attempt to commit suicide.

After his arraignment Borchers added to the mystery of the burglary tools found in his sweetheart's apartment by saying he knew "all about them."

"I spent hundreds of dollars and hundreds of hours of work investigating some of the facts behind the presence of those tools," he said. "There's a great deal more to be told about this whole matter."

Borchers, now an insurance executive, declined to give any more details, adding only:

"One thing I want to get straight is that the tools had no connection with Dorothy."

Police said the discovery has spurred a hunt for two men believed to have been associated with Louis (Chicken Louie) Ferrantello, Miss McCully's former husband.

Ferrantello, identified as a gambler and bar owner, was shot to death three months ago in Dallas by a woman who accused him of fathering her unborn child.

Tips Were Good

John Van Huda, coatless 52-year-old taxi driver, keeps a wary eye on West Babylon, N. Y., officials as they start counting an estimated $50,000 in cash found scattered through Van Huda's junk-packed house. Police discovered the hoard when summoned to the ramshackle home of Van Huda and his recluse sister, who said that two bandits had held them up and hauled away $12,000 in bills. How the Van Hudas came by the money remains a mystery.

AGGRESSION VICTIMS

Dulles Vows Aid In Mid-East Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles emphatically reasserted today that the United States would give aid within constitutional limits to any victim of aggression in the crisis - ridden Middle East.

The question of the U.S. position was raised at a news conference in connection with reports of impending Iraqi troop movements into Jordan and consequent Israeli nervousness about possible new fighting in the area. sSyrian arms—which Dulles said could be Soviet or Western in origin — are already moving into Jordan.

Arab sources have said — and American officials support the explanation — that Jordan asked Iraqi troops to stabilize the government of King Hussein against collapse.

Israel took the position, however, that entry of Iraq troops would violate the 1949 Palestine armistice and could lead to war.

On other matters:

1. In a statement, Dulles said last week's U.N. Security Council discussion of the Suez Canal controversy had resulted in "progress toward achieving a just and peaceful solution of the Suez crisis."

2. Dulles said he must reserve the right to edit the transcript of his news conferences even to the extent of changing the substance of what he said if, following a conference, he finds he has blundered in a manner which might jeopardize U. S. foreign relations. He took this position in response to reporters' questioning about past changes.

3. Dulles expressed confidence, in the face of criticism from Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson, that the Eisenhower administration will find a way to bring the hydrogen bomb under effective control if such a way exists.

Implying that Stevenson has not fully understood what he was talking about in pressing for an end of H-bomb tests, Dulles said he doubted whether anyone not fully acquainted with the details of the problem could know what the best possible solution is.

4. Dulles said that he could not see why information about spending by Congress members who travel abroad should not be made public but that in the handling of government funds the State Department simply acts as an agent for Congress.

Therefore, he said, any information disclosed would have to come from congressional authorities. Dulles added that he was not personally informed about the uses of some of the funds involved in financing congressional expenses.

Tension Eases A Bit In Mid-East

JERUSALEM (AP)—A report that Iraqi troops would not move into Jordan yet tended today to relax tension on both sides of the Israeli-Jordan border. But Syria announced she was sending in a gift of heavy weapons to help in the defense of Jordan's frontier with Israel.

Syria's military attache in Amman, the Jordanian capital, told a news conference that a military mission from his country accompanied the weapons to train the Jordanians to use them. He said more arms consignments from Syria would reach Jordan later this month and early in November.

Syrian Ambassador Fouad Kadamani said the arms shipment began moving into Jordan after midnight and was still coming this morning. He called the weapons an unconditional gift from the Syrian people to help defend Jordan's borders, which he termed the first Arabic line of defenses against Israeli attacks.

The decision to hold off on the planned reinforcement of Jordan's army by 3,000 Iraqi troops was reported by the Amman newspaper Al Jihad. It helped to clear the atmosphere in Amman, where war fears had mounted after Israeli Premier David Ben - Gurion warned his government reserved its right of freedom of action if the Iraqis crossed into the neighboring Arab kingdom.

Al Jihad said that during Monday's talks in Amman between Jordan's King Hussein and Iraq's Crown Prince Abdul Illah, agreement was reached that the Iraqi troops would stay just outside Jordan's borders but would join Hussein's forces in the event of Israeli aggression.

A palace official in Amman said a joint communique on the Jordan-Iraq talks would be issued in Amman and Baghdad tonight.

Earlier, Iraqi plans to send about 3,000 troops to strengthen Jordan's government against collapse reportedly had Western approval. The United States and Britain were said to feel the Iraqis would serve as a stabilizing influence during countrywide elections next Sunday.

Coast Guard Ship Picks Up Survivors

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — A big Pan American plane was forced down on the Pacific Ocean today and broke in half, but the Coast Guard rescued the 31 persons within minutes.

Coast Guard statements moments before said 32 were rescued, but this was quickly revised and 31 is the latest official total.

The Stratocruiser, en route from Honolulu to San Francisco, was forced to ditch about 1,000 miles southwest of San Francisco because of trouble in two of its four engines.

The plane was ditched by Pilot Richard Ogg at 8:16 a.m. (PST), and sank in 21 minutes, the Coast Guard reported.

"All survivors rescued," said a reassuring message from the weather ship Pontchartrain. Nobody was seriously injured, but five persons suffered minor injuries, a message said.

The Pan American crew, trained for such emergencies, apparently got the passengers into liferafts.

"Four rafts in water," the Pontchartrain messaged soon after the plane went down.

The Pontchartrain then launched its lifeboats and took everyone aboard.

Pilot Ogg circled three hours over the weather ship, awaiting daylight to put his plane down.

From San Francisco a seaplane was to leave shortly with a rescue doctor aboard. The Coast Guard said it would take the plane about six hours to reach the scene.

Aboard were 24 passengers and seven members of the crew, Pan American said.

One engine of the four-engine plane was dead and the propeller on another was not functioning properly, Pan American said.

Below was Ocean Station November, a Coast Guard weather station ship approximately halfway between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Pan American said the plane was flight No. 6-13 It had left from the Orient Oct. 13. Its last stop was Honolulu which it left last night. It was due in San Francisco at 7 a.m.

Of the passengers 15 were men, 6 were women and 3 were children, Pan American said. It did not give the nanes.

Coast Guard headquarters at San Francisco said Weather Station November is manned by the 255-foot cutter Pontachartrain.

Italian Youth Attacks Pupils

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Brandishing a club, a youth terrorized 68 school children here yesterday in the second such attack in Italy in a week.

The 18-year-old charged the children during a school recess walk, clubbing one and scattering the others, screaming in fright.

Teachers accompanying the children said the youth shouted, "now I will treat you like those men did at Terrazzano. Woe to any who tries to flee."

At Terrazzano a week ago two mad brothers, armed with guns, acid and dynamite, held 92 terrified children prisoner for hours in a schoolhouse, demanding ransom. The brothers were captured after they shot and killed one would-be rescuer.

The youth here finally was driven off by passersby. Police said he stripped off his clothes and fled into the country. He was captured later and taken to a mental hospital.

Red Secret Cops Foil Escape Try

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Hungary's Communist government says two of its secret policemen foiled an attempt by four heavily armed men to seize a Hungarian airliner in flight and head it to West Germany.

In a bloody fight above the clouds, the police officers shot one of the plotters dead and wounded another. The other two surrendered, the Hungarian Interior Ministry said.

Safety Award

Displaying the FTAF Ground Safety Award of Merit, which Webb AFB won for the month of September, are (left to right) Lt. Col. Alvin R. Holman, Wing Inspector; S-Sgt. Roland J. Johnson, Ground Safety; M-Sgt. O. E. Bice, Ground Safety NCOIC; Mr. Amon D. Jones, Safety Engineer; Capt. Cecil D. Peters, Ground Safety Officer.

Webb Wins September Safety Flag

Webb AFB received the Flying Training Air Force Ground Safety Award of Merit Monday for winning second place in ground safety ratings throughout FTAF during the month of September.

The reward for this rating is a large green-and-white flag, which Webb is entitled to fly as long as the base is in the highest group. The top award on the honor roll is the FTAF Award of Honor, and the third is honorable mention, which Webb held during the month of August.

The three awards are distributed on a monthly basis to the three bases which have the best safety record.

Webb also received a letter of commendation from Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, Air Training Command chief, for an outstanding 1956 Labor Day holiday safety record. This letter was sent through FTAF and was endorsed by Maj. Gen. G. P. Disosway, FTAF Commander.

Planes, Ships Fan Out In Atlantic Search

LONDON (AP) — More than 100 planes, an aircraft carrier and dozens of other ships fanned out over the Atlantic today in search of a U. S. military transport that vanished six days ago, but hope was practically abandoned of finding any survivors among the 59 servicemen aboard.

The U. S. Air Force said the search force would be reduced to a token group by tonight. A communique said:

"Third Air Force authorities and the 9th Air Rescue Group, which has been in immediate control of the search, believe that a large-scale general search is no longer practicable."

The search, one of the greatest in air history, was spurred by the British tanker Navicella's discovery some 370 miles southwest of England of a pair of aircraft wheels and a partially deflated life raft believed to be from the missing C118 Liftmaster.

The tanker saw no sign of life.

The Navicella headed for England with the wheels and life raft. U.S. Air Force officers will try to identify the objects positively.

A Royal Air Force spokesman at search headquarters in Cornwall said the discovery "gives us new hope that there might be a dinghy or dinghies in the area with survivors."

Shoplifting Suspect

Mrs. Sonje Juznic, 26-year-old wife of a Yugoslavian vice consul, walks with her husband, Stanislav, left, and attorney, Emmet Hayes, following arraignment at San Francisco Hall of Justice on shoplifting charge. She was arrested and held for five hours while local police consulted with a State Department official. Her plea was continued over for a week at the request of her attorney.

Dancer To Be No Stranger In City

Marjorie Tallchief, the prima ballerina of the Chicago Opera Ballet, won't be a total stranger when she visits here next February on the Big Spring Concert Association series.

Mrs. Carl Strom, 501 Westover Road, has known the talented dancer virtually all of her life. In fact, the Strom's daughter, Gloria (Ezzell) and Marjorie grew up together in Fairfax, Okla., before the Stroms moved here.

"Marjorie is every bit as famous in Europe as her sister, Maria, is in America," observed Mrs. Strom. "She and her husband, George Skibine, have spent most of the career in Europe and particularly in Paris."

The talented couple have twin children whom they will leave in Fairfax with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tallchief, during their tour in the United States and in South America. Alex Tallchief is a full-blooded Osage who has always dreamed of a stage career for his young daughters.

Mrs. Strom remembers that when they were small, the two Tallchief girls and Gloria were in the same dancing class which Madam Sabin of Tulsa conducted once a week at Fairfax.

When the girls grew older, Ruth Tallchief took them to California, and Alex, intent on their career, tore himself away from his tribesmen for 12 years until they had become established as famous dancers. Then they returned home. How well the girls have succeeded is evidenced by a Marie Tallchief Day (for she was better known in the United States) to which the governor and other notables came.

Mrs. Strom is planning on a reception to honor Miss Tallchief and her husband following the ballet presentation. Mrs. Strom is, of course, a booster for the current concert membership campaign.

Airport Design Gets Approval

Howard County Commissioners Court accepted in principle the basic design for the proposed new county airport as submitted to it Monday by engineers.

The plans as drafted call for the employment of more than 400 acres of land. Tentative design of the airport was presented.

R. H. Weaver, county judge, said that little can be done toward acquiring the land or making other plans until the $500,000 to finance the project is received.

The money was authorized by a bond issue which has been sold. Routine details incident to the delivery of the bonds are now being worked out.

It is believed the half million dollars should be available by early in November. As soon as the money is on hand, the commissioners can proceed with negotiations with the owners of the land to serve as a site.

Brawl Results In Questioning

A dozen boys, suspected of having a part in a near brawl which broke out Saturday night near a downtown theater and later spread to the north part of town, were ordered by A. E. Long, county juvenile officer, to report at 2 p.m. today for questioning in connection with the disturbance.

Windshield on a pickup truck was broken as a part of the altercation.

Long said that it was possible not all of the boys were directly concerned but that all were believed to have information about the trouble.

NO BALLOTS YET

Absentee Voting Slated Tomorrow

It was a highly debatable issue today whether absentee balloting for the Nov. 6 election would get under way in Howard County tomorrow.

Mrs. Pauline Petty, county clerk, said that it is possible that balloting might open as scheduled. All depends on whether the ballots arrive from the printer.

The ballots have been promised and the county clerk said that she had hopes they would be delivered today. If they are received the ballot box will be set up and balloting begun.

Mrs. Petty said that a number of parents of students in colleges in other cities have been making requests for absentee ballots for their children. She said some of these are not being properly submitted.

The law specifies the elector who is asking for the ballot must sign the application in person. Many of the applications so far received are not signed by the voter, but are presented by his mother or father.

The only exception in the law by which an absentee ballot can be issued on an application signed by another person than the elector is in cases where the elector is physically disabled to the point he cannot sign the application.

Applications for absentee ballots should be filled out by the voter, accompanied by his poll tax receipt or exemption certificate. Otherwise, it may be necessary for the clerk to reject the application and this could involve more delay.

Mrs. Petty said that supplies for the special election to be held on Nov. 13 on an amendment to the state constitution are arriving at her office.

This special election was brought about by an error on the part of the legislature which wrote into the proposed amendment that it be voted on the second Tuesday in November.

Eight other amendments will appear on the Nov. 6 ballot. It has been intended to include the ninth but the blunder in dates was not discovered in time to make amends.

So the voters will have to go back to the polls on Nov. 13, — one week after the general election — to vote on this single question.

A. B. Crawford Of Granbury Dies

A. B. Crawford, the father of Mrs. Johnny Hill, 1808 Donley, died Tuesday morning at his home in Granbury.

Mr. Crawford, who had been publisher of the Granbury newspaper, had been hospitalized at Stephenville but had improved to the extent that he had been taken home. His death was unexpected.

Mrs. Hill had been at Granbury, having gone there to be with her mother during her father's convalescence. Arrangements were pending Tuesday noon.

Scouters To Attend Meeting In Stanton

A delegation of district committee members and other Scouters is due to attend a Court of Honor session for Boy Scout Troop No. 28 in Stanton today. The meeting has been set for 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Hall in Stanton with Bob Davenport, scoutmaster, officiating.

Among those going from here are Sammy Mellinger and Maurice Koger, who will boost participation in the Lone Star District Scout Exposition, John Taylor, district chairman, and W. T. McRee, Scout executive. Pack No. 28 also will meet with the group.

Sportsmen's Club To View Movies

Three films are to be projected at a meeting of the Western Sportsmen's Club at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Calvin Guilliams, executive officer, said that films had arrived on Texas wildlife, a deer hunt and a battle between a road-runner and rattlesnake. These will be projected at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. in room S-8 at Howard County Junior College.

The junior division of the club will meet jointly with the seniors at the Thursday parley of the gun club enthusiasts.

Machine Stolen, Foundation, Too

Not only was a coin machine taken from a service station here Monday—but a door also.

The Texaco Service Station at 1300 E. 3rd was robbed of a vending machine. It was attached to a door, so the burglars took the door also.

Kimbell Mill was burglarized again, but all that was taken were some wrenches and 25 cents in change. Entry was through a window on the north side.

Suspended License Causes $75 Fine

Driving an automobile with a suspended driver's license proved expensive to John Earl Lanford in county court Monday afternoon.

He was fined $75 and costs. He settled his debt and was released.

Three charges of DWI were aired in the court. In each case the defendant pleaded not guilty. Bonds were set at $500 for the defendants.

Charged with DWI were Herbert Herman Watkins, Rocky W. Rodgers, and Hubert Owen Willis.

Howard Demos Take Part In Party Rally At Abilene

Three Howard County Democrats left at noon today for Abilene and the $100-a-plate "Dollars for Democrats Day" rally to be staged tonight at the Windsor Hotel.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri will be the keynote speaker at the banquet. Also on the program are Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sens. Lyndon Johnson and Price Daniel of Texas.

Other party dignitaries to attend will be Jim Lindsey, state chairman; Byron Skelton, national committeeman; Tom Miller, state campaign chairman; and C. T. McLaughlin, state finance chairman.

Attending from Big Spring will be Frank Hardesty, county Democratic chairman, Ed Carpenter and A. E. Suggs.

The group planned to participate in a tour of Abilene Air Force Base this afternoon.

Congressional Task Force Marshalled By Texas Dems

ABILENE (AP)—Texas Democrats marshalled a task force of congressmen today to kick off a three-week drive for Texas presidential votes and for cash to finance the campaign.

Sen. Symington of Missouri is the No. 1 speaker for tonight's $100 a plate dinner.

The affair is a sell-out.

While senatorial speakers were preparing to go into action in a dozen Texas areas during the next three weeks, another drive began today. It was "Dollars for Democrats" day, with party leaders over the state set to contact contributors.

Scheduled to sit at the speaker's table in the dinner tonight were Sen. Daniel, the Democratic nominee for governor; Sen. Johnson; House Speaker Rayburn; Reps. Burleson of Abilene; Thornberry of Austin; Wright of Weatherford; Mahon of Lubbock; Fisher of San Angelo; Ikard of Wichita Falls; Poage of Waco, and the Democratic nominee for Congress from Corpus Christi, John Young.

Following the dinner, the Democrats will move to Rosebud in Central Texas Thursday for a farmers' rally and to Lockhart, where Johnson and Rayburn will appear at a $5 a plate barbecue.

Poage, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, will be the chief speaker at Rosebud. Also scheduled is John White, state commissioner of agriculture.

Other senators scheduled for appearances are:

Kennedy of Massachusetts, Long of Louisiana, Monroney of Oklahoma, Gore of Tennessee and Kerr of Oklahoma.

Speeches are set for Brownwood, San Angelo, El Paso, San Antonio, Laredo, Corpus Christi, Lubbock, Amarillo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Wichita Falls and Austin.

Tax Assessor Gets One Aide

Mrs. Viola Robinson, tax collector, was authorized to add one full-time deputy to her staff by the Commissioners Court Monday afternoon.

She had asked for two full time deputies.

The commissioners empowered the tax collector to put her extra worker on duty immediately. Mrs. Robinson said she had contacted a former employe who planned to take the job.

The rush of business in the office, Mrs. Robinson told the commissioners, has so incraesed that the staff at present cannot keep up.

Tax collections for the current year, registration of new automobiles, routine reports and other details have so multiplied, she said, that extra help is imperative.

She said that more than $45,000 in taxes have been collected in the past four or five days and that this rush stands to grow instead of diminish from now until the end of the tax paying period.

Letter Writing Promotion Fails To Bear Any Fruit

National Letter Writing Week failed to develop any local steam, a check of post office operations here indicated.

The week ended last Saturday. It had been urged by the post office department that all persons in the nation take advantage of the special week to answer long overdue letters and renew mail acquaintance with friends and relatives.

The idea was good but apparently Big Springers just weren't in the mood to write.

E. C. Boatler, Big Spring postmaster, said that a check of cancellations of first class mail for the week compared with the preceding week made the special seven-day interval look rather bad.

Total first class cancellations last week were 87,113. For the week Oct. 1-6, cancellations hit 92,038.

Boatler feels that there is one explanation that should be interpolated.

The first week of the month is always a heavy mail week—business establishments pile thousands of letters into the chute on that week. First of the month statements, bills for utility services and all other commercial mail tends to send the cancellations high for this period each month.

Last year, the local post office cancelled a total of 92,951 letters during the same interval that National Letter Writing week was observed in 1956. Postal officials did not recall if the week was observed during the same week in 1955.

Ike Begins His Longest Tour Of Political Season

By The Associated Press

President Eisenhower begins his longest tour of the current presidential campaign today, perhaps considering a reply to Adlai Stevenson's latset assault on the administration's H-bomb policies.

Stevenson told a nationwide television audience last night that about the first thing he would do if elected president would be to get together with Russia and Britain on banning further testing of nuclear superbombs.

The Democratic candidate denied claims of Eisenhower and other GOP leaders that his proposals threaten U.S. security.

Stevenson said the tests unleash "the most dreadful poison in the world" (the atomic fall-out) and "may cause the human race unmeasured damage." A way must be found to end "this deadly deadlock," he said.

Eisenhower's campaign flight is a five-day vote-seeking foray, expanded yesterday to include California. The 5,850-mile itinerary calls for eight speeches in five Western states.

The original schedule called for midday talks in St. Paul and Minneapolis today, with speeches later in Washington, Oregon and Colorado. This was broadened to include a major address in Los Angeles Friday night.

In filmed remarks nationally telecast twice last night, Eisenhower made another campaign appeal, asking voters to make their choice on the basis of an "honest judgment" of the administration record.

Eisenhower said at a recent press conference he had said his "last word" on Stevenson's proposals that the military draft might be ended in the foreseeable future, when national security permits, and that an effort be made to halt H-bomb testing.

Vice President Nixon, campaigning in Ohio, Indiana and New York today and tonight, was reported working on a reply to Stevenson's H-bomb speech. Yesterday, Nixon maintained in a series of talks in Ohio industrial centers that labor never had it so good as under the Eisenhower administration.

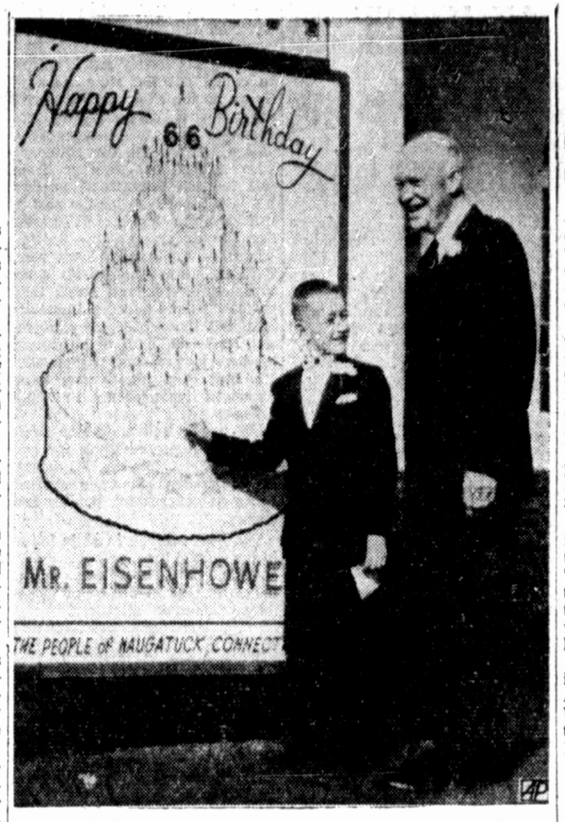

Stevenson's running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, scheduled a 30-minute nationwide radio-television speech from New York City tonight.

In a statement in New York, Kefauver said he has found "a housewives' revolt" in progress against the administration because of what he called "the mounting cost of living under the GOP."

T. Coleman Andrews, chief tax collector of the Eisenhower administration for three years, formally accepted third party presidential nomination from a group of states rights-tax reform adherents. Andrews and his running mate, former Rep. Thomas H. Werdel of California, are on the ballots in 14 states, under various party labels.

The New York Times, which lists itself as politically independent, endorsed Eisenhower for re-election. It supported him originally in 1952.

Democrats planned to ring doorbells across the nation today in a 24-hour drive for donations to the party's campaign fund.

Birthday Card

President Eisenhower, observing his 66th birthday a day in advance, poses in the White House rose garden with a hugh birthday card presented him by nine-year-old Joseph P. (Jay) Donahue Jr., of Naugatuck, Conn. Donahue won the honor of making the presentation by winning a contest sponsored by the Naugatuck citizens for Eisenhower. The card wished the President "Good Health and Happiness and Peace of Mind."

Boy, 15, Held As Ice Pick Slayer

CHICAGO (AP) — A slippery 15-year-old boy was held today for grand jury action as the admitted ice pick slayer of a 46-year-old woman who resisted a purse snatch.

Police said Kelly Bennett, a Negro fugitive from a state boys reformatory, admitted he stabbed Miss Mildred Hayes, a high school librarian, because she fought and "started to scream."

Also awaiting grand jury action as an accessory was Herbert W. Leak, 15, who Bennett said shared in the $6.65 he took from the dead woman's purse last Wednesday. Leak also is a Negro.

Bellwether Ballots Show Ike's On Top

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political soundings from five of six "bellwether" counties indicate a re-election victory for President Eisenhower. A close vote was predicted in the other.

These six are among eight counties, scattered across the country, which have voted for the winner in every presidential election for more than 50 years, most of them since William McKinley won in 1896.

Estimates were made by newspaper editors and correspondents in response to an Associated Press inquiry.

A similar survey in 1952 resulted in a misfire in one county. Then the "bellwethers" numbered 11. Three fell by the wayside when they went for Stevenson against the national trend. In the 1952 survey, they had been tabbed as likely to go for Stevenson.

Those left in 1956 with records intact are Crook County, Ore.; Albany and Laramie counties, Wyo.; Jasper and Palo Alto counties, Iowa; Vanderburgh County, Ind.; and Strafford and Coos (pronounced Co-oss) counties, N.H.

No sampling was undertaken this year in the two Iowa counties, where voters were reported to speak out.

A switch was predicted for Albany County, Wyo., with Laramie as its biggest community. Three out of five newspaper editors and political leaders interviewed seemed to think Stevenson would carry the county. They reported more Democratic party interest than in 1952, a stronger endorsement of Stevenson by organized labor and a weakening of Eisenhower's support among a few ranchers.

In the other Wyoming county — Laramie, site of Cheyenne — four of six interviewed felt that Eisenhower would carry the county again but that his margin would be smaller. Newspaper editors said the end of the war in Korea would be a factor with women. Four years ago the editors expected Laramie County to go for Stevenson — the one misfire.

Anti-Integrationists End Lamar Picketing

BEAUMONT (AP)—State officials of anti-integration organizations have ended picketing against Negro students at Lamar Tech, but a rally tomorrow night was to plan "another phase of activity."

Picketing started at the state-supported four-year college Oct. 1, flared into violence and was halted by Mayor Jimmie Cokinos Oct. 4. It resumed last Wednesday in a peaceful manner.

The formerly all-white school was ordered integrated this fall and 26 Negroes enrolled.

Pat Smith of Kilgore, a member of the State Assn. of Citizens Councils, arrived yesterday and the picketing was halted at noon.

Dr. D. E. Masters of Kilgore, president of the Associated Citizens Councils of Texas, was due tomorrow to address a rally.

The picketing was ended "because it was something that we never wanted and that will be abandoned so we may enter another phase of activity," Smith said.

Smith said the picketing "would be replaced by something which has proved successful elsewhere." He refused to specify, adding, "The new phase might be any one of a hundred things chosen by the citizens."

Mrs. H. T. Mercer of nearby Vidor, one of the leaders in the picketing movement, said, "The pickets were withdrawn so we can concentrate on the rally Wednesday night. We hope to have the building filled to overflowing with people who believe in our cause."

Cokinos halted the picketing after whites had halted cars going onto the campus and flaring tempers resulted in alleged manhandlings of Negro students, threats from both sides and damaged autos.

Storm Hits Florida

Wind and waves batter the grounds of Miami, Fla., resorts on Biscayne Bay's South Bayshore Drive as a Northeaster brought gusts to 58 miles an hour to Florida's southeast coast. Meanwhile weather men watched a disturbance off Cuba for indications whether it would turn into a dangerous storm.

Few Tennessee Voters Have Doubts On Who To Vote For

By ARTHUR EDSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Other voters may not know whether they want Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai E. Stevenson for President.

But such doubts don't assail R. C. Barret, a onetime sawmill worker in Covington, near Tennessee's western edge.

"I'll vote the Democratic ticket," said Barret, a frisky 79-year-old. "Always have, and always will."

On the other side of the state, and of the political fence, is Mrs. Oscar Shockley, who lives on a farm near Morristown, in eastern Tennessee.

Mrs. Shockey said, of course, she's a Republican. And is her husband too?

"Naturally," Mrs. Shockley said. "I wouldn't have married him if he hadn't been."

These two examples illustrate the rewards, and the problems, that each presidential candidate has in Tennessee.

Eisenhower can count on staunch Republican support in the eastern Tennessee hills where four years ago he rolled up a 95,185-vote margin. This enabled him to overcome Democratic advantages in the rest of the state, and to squeak through a winner, by 2,437 votes. He thereby became only the third Republican presidential candidate in history to carry Tennessee.

Stevenson can count, with some exceptions, on loyal Democratic support in the western two-thirds of Tennessee.

Because Democrats normally outnumber Republicans in Tennessee, most neutral observers are saying Eisenhower won't make the grade this time and that Tennessee's 11 electoral votes will go to Stevenson.

Not that the Republicans have given up.

Guy L. Smith, editor of the Knoxville Journal and the Republican campaign manager, says that by getting out a larger vote the GOP margin will be increased. His prediction: Eisenhower by 100,000 votes.

Or take Ray Jenkins, whom many will remember as the Sen. ate committee lawyer in the celebrated hearings involving the Army and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

Jenkins, a loyal GOP money raiser, said: "I speak to you with frankness. Up to within 10 days ago, I had written Tennessee off."

But he says Eisenhower's appearance at Lexington, Ky.—"He came out there, with his bouncing stride, so strong and vigorous"—recharged GOP enthusiasm.

Both Smith and Jenkins count on the women, and especially mothers who remember Korea, to put Eisenhower over.

Even so, Democrats believe that with Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as his vice-presidential candidate, Stevenson shouldn't have too much trouble cutting away that narrow margin Eisenhower had in 1952. Buford Ellington, the Democratic campaign director, predicts: "A landslide victory."

Any impressions of a state as varied as Tennessee are bound to be risky, but nevertheless here are a few that stand out:

That many farmers — especially in western Tennessee where dry weather has multiplied their problems—are unhappy, but no one can say how many are disgruntled enough to switch their votes.

That anyone who doubts Eisenhower's personal popularity needs only to talk with the voters. It's hard to find a Republican who isn't going to support him, and even the Democrats often speak of him kindly.

That the race, at least in Tennessee, seems to boil down to this: Eisenhower vs. the Democratic party. A voter will say, "I'm for Ike," without mentioning the Republicans, or "I'm a Democrat," without mentioning Stevenson. But there are exceptions, such as A. H. Kirkpatrick, who runs a shoe store in Lebanon. He says of Stevenson: "I think he's the smartest man we've ever had up for president. A fine face, intelligent."

Now let's drop in on a few voters and listen to what they are saying.

U.S. Highway 51 heads northeast out of Memphis. Here the land produces cotton, those shacks that seem inevitable wherever cotton is grown, and Democrats.

At Covington, a county seat town of 5,000, J. D. Walk was explaining why the farmer is unhappy. With his brother Hollie, Walk farms 400 acres.

Walk said four years ago he had all his machinery paid for and $8,000, but now that nest egg has shrunk to $2,500. He figures farm prices have dropped at a time when everything else has gone up.

Did Walk know of any farmers who would change their vote?

"Yes," he said. "An old fellow out our way—fine old gentleman—came into the store the other day. Around 20 of us were there. He said he voted for Eisenhower, but now he knew he was wrong and he wanted to apologize, not only to us, but to the whole state of Tennessee."

Tom Anderson, young assistant president of the bank, said:

"You'll find very few outspoken Republicans around here. I don't know of over six or seven in the whole county."

Anderson said, yes, he knew of one Eisenhower supporter of 1952 who won't be in 1956. His name: Tom Anderson. He's changing because of the farm situation.

Now east of Nashville, to Lebanon, so called because cedars flourish here as they did in biblical Lebanon.

John K. Ferrell, who is in the livestock business, was talking with Loyd C. Huddleston. Each was "bred a Democrat." Each feels Eisenhower will lose some farm support.

"What hurts us," Ferrell said, "is that everybody else seems to be doing all right."

At a clothing store, Less T. Fite, an insurance man, and John Smythe, a salesman, said they were for Eisenhower. "Did you hear Ike's last speech?" Fite asked. "He's full of vim, vigor and victory."

German Girl Wins Miss World Title

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Miss Germany, a green-eyed brunette who used to be a blonde, is the new Miss World.

For a moment last night it looked as if Miss United States, 20-year-old Betty Lane Cherry of Orangeburg, S.C., had won the 1956 international beauty title.

When the six finalists filed from the wings of a London theater for the announcement of the title winner, Miss Cherry wore a serene and confident look — plus a sash across her shoulders. The BBC announcer said:

"Oh, Miss United States seems to have won. She's got on the winner's sash."

A contest official quickly whipped the sash off Miss Cherry.

"Sorry," the announcer said, "something seems to have happened."

The title was then awarded to the German entrant, 23-year-old Petra Schurmann. Miss Cherry was second in the competition among girls from 23 countries.

Miss Schurmann gasped and then almost swooned as she received the crown. Miss Cherry leaned over and kissed her.

A reporter asked:

"As Miss Germany, shouldn't you be blonde?"

Petra lowered her long eye lashes.

"Frankly," she said, "I was a blonde."

A flowered print bathing suit set off Miss Germany's 36-20-33 figure — and her jet black curls.

Her ambition, she said, is to become a teacher of geography and a philosopher. She attends Cologne University.

Miss Cherry, also a student, took her loss philosophically.

"I was runner-up in the Miss U.S.A. contest," she said, "but two seconds don't make one first."

A hazel blonde, Miss Cherry is South Carolina's reigning maid of cotton. She was a symphony in a black bathing suit and black shoes.

Rina Weiss of Israel was third; Midoriki Tokura, Japan, fourth; Anne Rye Nielsen, Denmark, fifth and Eva Brann, Sweden, sixth.

The six finalists all received cash awards and silver trophies. The winner also won a red sports car.

Hefty Sergeant Back In Army

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) —It's another hitch in the Army for Sgt. James Love, a hefty mess sergeant once threatened with a court martial because he wasn't peeling off weight fast enough.

The 34-year-old native of Cincinnati had said he would join the Air Force after his Army enlistment expired. He changed his mind when discharge day came last Wednesday and re-enlisted Saturday.

"The Army has more to offer," he said.

Love weighed 237 when "Operation Fat Man" was put into effect at nearby Ft. Carson last March by Maj. Gen. Thomas Watlington, then commanding general.

When the court-martial threat came, Love protested. An investigation was started, the weight losing order was rescinded by the Pentagon, and charges against Love were dropped.

His weight is now 220 and he says he eats "just when I'm hungry."

'Alfalfa Bill' Murray Dies In Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—William H. (Alfal af Bal)lMu iryra, l-Ok H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, Oklahoma's ninth governor who campaigned unsuccessfully for the 1932 Democratic presidential nomination on a platform of "bread and butter, beans and bacon," died here yesterday.

The 86-year-old cigar-chewing pioneer, framer of the young state's constitution, died in a coma after a five-day battle against double pneumonia and the after-effects of a stroke.

Alfalfa Bill had been blind and deaf for more than a year but before becoming infirm he was the Sooner state's most colorful personality — in or out of political office.

At his bedside at death were two of his three sons, former Oklahoma Gov. Johnston Murray and Burbank Murray, Milwaukee, Wis.

Noted for his individuality — in both political and private life — the shaggy, frank-spoken Murray faced all his adversaries with an iron determination.

During his four years in office, he called out the state National Guard on the average of every 45 days. He used the guard to force Texas to drop toll charges of a bridge between the two states.

He served as governor from 1931 to 1935, then made another try — his fourth — for the post in 1938, but ran afoul of President Franklin Roosevelt.

Born in Collinsville, Tex., Nov. 21, 1869, Murray gained his early education in fits and starts then turned his hand to several pursuits including those of cowboy, farmer, bookseller, woodchopper, teacher, lawyer, and unsuccessful promoter of a plan to settle an American farm colony in South America.

He won election to the U.S. House of Representatives for one term in 1914. After his 1938 defeat, Murray retired to write several books on government, politics and history.

The body will lie in state today in the Capitol here, and at a funeral home in Tishomingo, Okla., tomorrow. Burial will be at Tishomingo tomorrow afternoon.

Oklahoma's decline was 28,250 barrels to 558,600. Texas fell 10,850 barrels to 2,927,900. Louisiana had the best gain, up 2,875 barrels to 799,800.

The Natural Look

Maggie Mahoney prefers glorified naturalness in lieu of dramatic changes and discusses this with Lydia Lane in today's Hollywood Beauty. Playing up the natural color of her hair is one of her secrets.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Gives Attention To Grooming Of Hair

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Maggie Mahoney who has appeared on many top dramatic TV shows emanating from Hollywood is considered well on her way to stardom.

"It's actually true," Maggie told me as we chatted in my patio, "that I never thought of being an actress until a talent scout from Paramount saw me in the audience of a theater and asked me to come to the studio. My name was Margaret Field then. They were wonderful to me at the studio and I was under contract to them for four years."

"What's the most valuable thing, beauty-wise, that you learned from this experience?" I asked.

Maggie sipped her iced tea and replied. "The value of accepting what you are; glorified naturalness I suppose you would call it. I believe a girl should work around her own type instead of trying for dramatic changes. I don't go along with these color changes but I believe in glamourizing the natural color of your hair.

"In what way?" I asked.

"Having it freshly shampooed and well groomed," she explained. "I wash my hair every three days. It's quite black and the dust shows on it when it's not clean.

"I have to pin my hair every day because I don't care for the overcurled look that I get with a permanent," she continued. "My husband hates to see me with my hair up in pin curls at night even when I wrap it in a silk scarf. So he gave me a hair-dryer for Christmas and now I can set it during the day."

Maggie has lovely skin and uses no make-up base. "I put a moisture film on under my powder. I think the secret to a good skin is in stimulating it by bringing up the circulation. I do this with ice. I wrap a cube in a wash cloth and go over my skin until my complexion is deep pink."

I remarked that some critic had called Maggie the girl-next-door-queen.

"I consider that a great compliment. I don't make friends as easily as I would like to," Maggie confessed, "but I am working at it." We discussed how effortless it is for some people to meet strangers.

"Actually I don't know what quality is needed in having people like you. But I have tried listening to them and trying to understand them and that has been helpful to me in my struggle to overcome shyness," she concluded.

Mrs. John Knox, a member of the Big Spring Garden Club, discussed "Flower Arranging" for the group. She advised members to observe the use of the same principles in arranging as are used in dealing with color. These are design, balance and contrast.

Foliage is more important in line arrangements than is the flower, Mrs. Knox told the club. Simplcty in an arrangement makes it more practical as well as more enjoyable.

The next meeting is scheduled for the home of Mrs. Schattel, Sterling City Route, on Nov. 19.

Trainer Elmer Brown of TCU said left guard Jay McCullough, sidelined since the opening game, may be ready for A&M. McCullough hurt a knee and his recovery was delayed by illness. He suited out Monday for the first time in three weeks.

The first-string Frogs ran a light drill Monday.

The first two Aggie teams worked in sweat clothes and the rest of the team scrimmaged. End Bobby Keith is out for the season with a broken jaw and fullback Jack Pardee suffered a shoulder injury in the Houston game Saturday.

B Team Players

Two members of the Big Spring High School B team, which plays in Abilene at 4 p.m. Thursday, are pictured above. They are Lanny Hamby, a back, (right), and Luther Bell, a center. Bell has been injured much of the season and has been of little service to the Shorthorns.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:

SHIRLEY POVICH, Washington scribe, after six of Oklahoma's football opponents had lost their opening games:

"Those guys play breathers between breathers."

* * * *

ED DANFORTH, Atlanta writer:

"The Sugar Bowl now can hope for nothing better than a good Southeastern Conference team and the second best in the Southwest Conference. That would produce a good football game, but no national television network would buy it. The game would have limited appeal outside of the area. No sponsor would pay important money for the show. It would be run off the air by the Orange Bowl, which is still offering the champions of the Big Seven and the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the Cotton Bowl, which will offer its own champion and anybody worthy of the name. The Cotton Bowl could come up with Army, Navy or Pittsburgh."

* * * *

MARCHY SWARTZ, former Notre Dame grid star and later a Stanford coach:

"Buck Shaw (now the Air Force Academy coach) is highly regarded by all of us and by Notre Dame itself. Shaw is the man that Knute Rockne would have picked for a coaching job."

* * * *

JIM TATUM, North Carolina coach, reflecting on Oklahoma's 66-0 win over Kansas State recently:

"Bud Wilkinson's third and fourth teams—and maybe even the fifth—were better than us, and I wouldn't be surprised if they're not better than many other teams they'll face this year. That's the difference between 1955 and 1956 at Oklahoma. Bud's long-range program now has reached the ultimate in over-all organization."

* * * *

GEORGE PRESTON MARSHALL, owner of the Washington Redskins:

"The trouble with college presidents is that most of them wanted to play football but couldn't make the team. Now they're taking it out on the athletes with all their ludicrous rules."

* * * *

L. G. DUPRE, former Baylor gridder, now with the Baltimore Colts:

"Pro football's just a lot tougher all over. The hardest thing for me to learn was the pass patterns. You really have to work at it, getting all the movements and fakes down just right. The pass defense men are so good you have to be nearly perfect to get in the open. This two-platoon stuff of the pros is the way to play, though. It gives you more of a break. You can put out on every play. In one platoon, I know, you usually coast a little. You can't coast up here."

* * * *

COACH EARL BLAIK of Army, when asked to comment on Notre Dame's 'upset' by SMU:

"That was no upset. Upsets are purely matters of the mind. That intangible, the psychological edge, is the major factor in a game such as the one between Notre Dame and SMU. It was all on the side of SMU and that explains Notre Dame's defeat as far as I'm concerned."

* * * *

MIKE TURNESE, the golfer:

"Golf is a game of pace, like boxing, pitching baseball and some other sports. I have found through the years that you play at a pace. If you hurry, you play golf unthinkingly. If you play deliberately, you make deliberate shots. When you do that, you get the best results."

Martinez Triumphs

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Vince Martinez, the Paterson, N.J., welterweight ranked No. 4 by the NBA, has regained his winning form against Rinzi Nocero. Martinez floored Nocero at 2:04 of the seventh round with a hard right cross last night for a technical knockout at the Rhode Island Arena.

Texas Must Be Extra Careful With Aerials

AUSTIN (SC) — Mindful of the fate suffered by their predecessors of 1954 and 1955, the Texas Longhorns go into Saturday's home meeting with the Arkansas Razorbacks with their eyes wide open.

Arkansas during those campaigns converted Longhorn passes into touchdowns or utilized interceptions to thwart Orange and White goalward thrusts. The Razorbacks pilfered five passes in each of those games.

With even a stronger reliance upon passing than the 1954 and 1955 elevens, Texas in 1956 casts a wary eye at the Razorbacks, who are making their 20th visit to Austin. The invaders bring with them five players who were responsible for seven of the ten interceptions, although one, George Walker, is a doubtful participant.

The other four, Quarterback Don Christian, Halfback Ronny Underwood, Fullback Gerald Nesbitt and Center Jay Donathan, play key roles in Arkansas plans.

Still striving to formulate a running game to complement the overhead attack, the Longhorns made three shifts last week. Center Louis Del Homme moved to right guard and was replaced by Arlis Parkhurst. Wayne Wash returned to end and Carl Wylie moved to fullback leaving Jimmy Watson to handle the right halfback chores.

While the moves were designed to strengthen the attack, the defense should benefit as much if not more.

However, the Longhorns still depend upon Walter Fondren, Joe Clements and Vince Matthews to spearhead their "throw-and-go" attack.

Arkansas, which has scored its only successive victories over the Longhorns since putting together a string of four in the late thirties (1935-1938), is seeking its fifth triumph on Austin soil.

In the overall rivalry—one of the oldest in the Southwest, dating back to 1894—Texas has won 29 games while Arkansas has captured eight. There have been no ties in the series.

Coach Jess Neely of Rice ordered a full-scale scrimmage for most of his squad. Back King Hill, who bruised his back Saturday against Florida, and the starting tackle-to-tackle line were excused.

Dan Shuford, injured against Alabama, ran well as the rest of the squad went through a long workout in pads.

SMU, Rice's opponent Saturday, practiced its aerial attack. The Mustangs hope to have their full running strength with the return of halfback Lon Slaughter and full back Ray Masters.

Coach Jack Mitchell moved his Razorbacks indoors as rain put a damper on the training session. The Porkers worked out in shorts in the gym in preparation for the Texas game this week.

Sophomore Jack Hobbs started working on right halfback assignments as Texas tried to strengthen the spot. Sophomore Clair Branch was expected to be the man at right half against Arkansas, however. Coach Ed Price said his team didn't receive any injuries of consequence in the Oklahoma game.

Coach Sam Boyd of Baylor, whose Bears have the weekend off, gave the squad a respite from practice. But he planned lengthy workouts the rest of the week, aiming for the A&M game Oct. 27.

PLAYERS WILL ATTEND MEET

The Big Spring Quarterback Club will hold a "get acquainted" session with members of the Big Spring High School football team in its regular meeting at 7:30 o'clock in the Study Hall at the High School this evening.

All varsity players have accepted an invitation to be on hand at the conclave, along with their coaches.

Entertainment will include the screening of the Lamesa-Big Spring game pictures.

Ex-Bronc Is Sold To New Yorkers

Fernando (Trompoloco) Rodriquez, one-time hurler of the Big Spring entry in the Longhorn League, will get his chance with the New York Giants in 1957.

The Cuban, who spent parts of two seasons with Big Spring, was purchased from Dallas, along with hurlers Neil Roberts and John Fitzgerald.

Rodriquez made his debut with Big Spring in 1948, at which time he appeared in 23 games and finished with a 10-5 won-lost record.

That year, he broke in by striking out 17 batters in a game with Vernon. His earned run average was 2.97. He struck out 178 in 142 innings.

He also spent part of the 1949 season here.

Fetchick Winner In Coast Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "That was the toughest round of golf I ever played," said 205-pound Mike Fetchick after decisively winning the $5,000 top prize in the Western Open Tournament in a playoff with three other pros.

"I didn't tie up, but I have to admit there was a little butterfly in my stomach," he declared yesterday after shooting a 6-under-par 66, five strokes better than any of his opponents. "I've had lower scores, but no round was ever harder."

Second place—just a matter of prestige since the three others all received $2,000—went to Jay Hebert, 33, from Lafayette, La., representing Sanford, Fla. He carded a 71.

Next came Doug Ford, playing out of Fetchick's home town of Yonkers, N. Y., with a 72. Don January, the 26-year-old comer from Lampasas, Tex., finished with a 75 over the 6,496-yard Presidio course.

Fetchick fired seven birdies and went over par on only one hole, the eighth, when he seemed to baby an approach from the tall grass on the fringe of the green. His longest birdie putt was 25 feet.

Mantle To Attend

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees will attend a benefit golf match here Oct. 28 at the invitation of Bob Hope. Mantle, Hope, Gov. Allan Shivers, Doak Walker and Cary Middlecoff will play in the tourney, with proceeds going to the United Cerebral Palsy Foundation.

Trio Promoted

NEW YORK (AP) — The world champion New York Yankees today purchased three minor league players, picking up pitcher Al Cicotte from Richmond and infielder Woody Held and catcher Darrell Johnson from Denver. Both clubs are Yankee farms.

Butler To Study Texas League's Ultimatum

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texas League clubs will observe Louisiana's interracial law and not play Negroes at Shreveport but they will demand that Shreveport make the games equal by substituting at corresponding positions.

It was this actual ultimatum that brought a stalemate at their annual meeting here yesterday and last night. Shreveport President Bonneau Peters refused to accept the proposal and the directors dumped the whole thing on the desk of League President Dick Butler.

He will be asked to rule. But Butler said he wouldn't do so until he had studied the matter from all angles and determined whether he had the authority to tell a baseball club owner whom to play.

The interracial law went into effect yesterday. It prohibits the use of Negro players in baseball games in Louisiana with penalty of a fine and imprisonment. Most of the Texas League clubs other than Shreveport have been using Negro players for several years.

The directors all said they would not exclude Negro players from their clubs but Oklahoma City and Fort Worth said that if they had any Negroes they would not play them at Shreveport. They attached no strings. Tulsa and San Antonio said merely that they would not exclude Negroes from their clubs but did not say what they would do about playing them at Shreveport.

Butler had said, however, before making the announcement of the directors' action that "no one will violate the law in Louisiana and no one will test the law in court."

It was Dallas, Houston and Austin that made the demand that Shreveport substitute in like position for players that are not used there. The argument was that if they could not use Negro players who were valuable to their clubs then Shreveport should weaken its club accordingly.

The league president foresaw no decision before the annual league schedule meeting in Houston in mid-January. By then it will be determined what clubs will have Negroes on their rosters.

The directors met all day yesterday and into the early morning hours today considering a mass of proposals.

They set the opening and closing dates for the 1957 race as April 14 and Sept. 8 and decided on a 154-game schedule again.

They heard from E. J. Humphries, owner at Oklahoma City, that his club was not in financial straits and would be in the league as usual. Butler said Humphries explained his situation to the satisfaction of all and they accepted his assurance that the club would continue in the league.

The directors set the player limit the same as last season—22 men the first 30 days and 18 the remainder of the season until the last 20 days when they would again carry 22. Some of the directors had favored reducing the limit.

IN AP POLL

Spartans Poised To Assume First

By The Associated Press

It's still Oklahoma No. 1 in college football but the Sooners, unmatched record and all, may find themselves lagging at the polls in a few days simply because their chief rival, Michigan State, gets first crack at Notre Dame.

Michigan State, getting its support from those who place schedule over statistics, pulled up to within 25 points of Oklahoma in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters despite the Sooners' winning streak of 33 games.

For Michigan State, a 53-6 winner over Indiana, the result of the new balloting was a gain of 95 points on Oklahoma, which whitewashed Texas 45-0 after thrashings of North Carolina and Kansas State.

In the total standings, with points awarded on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, etc., Oklahoma led with 1,173 to 1,148 for Michigan State. Between them, they drew 111 of 131 first-place ballots, 67 for the Sooners.

Only one major change turned up in the weekly accounting, Michigan moving back into the top 10 at the No. 8 position after routing Army 48-14. Texas A&M gave way, dropping from ninth to 14th.

Georgia Tech held on to third and Texas Christian remained in the fourth. The rest of the lineup was Ohio State, Mississippi, Tennessee, Michigan, Southern California and Baylor.

Secret Report In Big Ten Rips Into Athletic Aid

CHICAGO (AP)—In a frank and self-critical report which was meant to be a secret within the Big Ten, a special conference committee ripped into athletic aid practices with a warning that the Western Conference could someday become a farm system for professional sports.

The report, disclosed yesterday was drafted by a committee set up last December and headed by Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson, and called work-aid programs for athletes "an invitation to hypocrisy and deceit."

It added that financial help to athletes had reached "staggering proportions."

The two-part, 24-page report was put together by Wilson; Asst. Commissioner Bill Reed; Michigan Athletic Director Fritz Crisler; Wisconsin Athletic Director Ivy Williamson; and faculty representatives Leslie W. Scott of Michigan State and Verne C. Freeman of Purdue.

Wilson said the report was intended solely for private distribution within the Big Ten and it had been released because of a proposed publication of a paraphrase in a national magazine.

Under the facts section, the report criticizes the "offer" system and runs right on through recruiting and subsidization.

"Each conference school," the report states, "is on a definite 'offer' basis, meaning that the recruitment activity . . . is accompanied by financial assistance (promised work and-or scholarship).

"The scope of financial subsidies to conference athletes, earned and unearned (scholarships), has increased in staggering proportions in the past decade . . . from $47 in 1948 to $260 in 1955 (average amount of aid per athlete). . .

"The work-aid program has developed purposefully as a subsidization device under the "offer system' and limitations upon unearned aid. . . as such it is an invitation to hypocrisy and deceit unless there is complete insistence upon full work for compensation received, and there is not."

TABBIES SEEK REVENGE IN CHATTANOOGA TILT

ABILENE (SC) — Twenty-nine Abilene Christian College football players leave by plane Thursday morning for Chattanooga where they will meet the University of Chattanooga Moccasins Friday night.

Leaving by chartered plane from Abilene will be 24 players, three coaches, the team doctor and a manager. The rest of the party will leave by regular airliner from Dallas.

The team is scheduled to arrive in Chattanooga late Thursday afternoon and will work out at Chamberlain Field.

The Wildcats wind up hard work in Tuesday's session.

The Wildcats will be out to win their second game in the series which has seen Chattanooga triumph four times. Last year's game went to the Moccasins, 7-6.

Coach N. L. (Nick) Nicholson said that the Wildcats are in good condition both physically and mentally following their 40-0 defeat by Trinity on Oct. 6.

"Their atittutde is good," Nicholson said. "I have no complaints at all. The boys realize they are going to have to work hard if they win any more games this season."

The 'Cats knocked off McMurry, 26-23, and East Texas State, 13-7, in their first two games, but then ran into trouble as they bowed 20-0 to Texas Western and then to Trinity.

Physically the team is in better shape than any time since the opener. Tackle Pete Dean was injured slightly at Trinity, but is going at top speed now. End Keith Davis, who missed the Trinity game with a cut forehead, probably will be ready for Friday's fray. Only players out are Guard Luther Ray Thomas, with a broken foot, and Halfback Jerry Holley, with a broken wrist.

Jim Krebs Wins Scholarship

DALLAS (AP)—All-conference basketball player Jim Krebs has been awarded the W. W. Crook Jr. Endowed Scholarship of SMU.

The 6-foot- center who holds the single game scoring record of the Southwest Conference—50 points—has been active in non-athletic organizations as well as sports.

Donor of the scholarship is an advertising executive of Dallas.

The bus leaves at 4 a.m. Saturday and returns immediately following the game.

Those interested can make reservations by calling Don Newsom, AM 4-2191.

McKeehan Will Be Out For Drills

Title Fight Is Set For Nov. 30

CHICAGO (AP)—Young Floyd Patterson and old Archie Moore will meet in Chicago Stadium Nov. 3 for the heavyweight title vacated by Rocky Marciano.

The International Boxing Club yesterday announced plans for the fight but said financial arrangements will be ironed out here next week.

Jim Norris, president of the IBC, said in New York that negotiations on home television and theatre television were under way. The fact that the fight will be on a Friday — one of the two days a week the IBC broadcasts and telecasts network fights — was taken as indication that there will be home television.

Both fighters have already started training, the IBC said, with Patterson at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., and Moore at Lakeside, Calif. Both have agreed to be in Chicago three weeks before the fight to complete their training.

The Webb entries finished with 2576 pins.

Members of the Hi-Low Club are Rena Shipman, Ethel Johnson, Kay Leighty, Sybil Boland and Dorothea Kain. Mrs. Kain is team captain.

The Hi-Lows were one of two teams registered in the meet from Webb. Also competing were the Best Pin-Ups.

Murder Trial Is Postponed

COLORADO CITY—The murder trial of Haskell Miles, 39-year-old Colorado City farmer, was postponed Monday because of "insufficient venire."

Judge A. S. Mauzey said that about half of the venire of 108 had legal excuses, and were released.

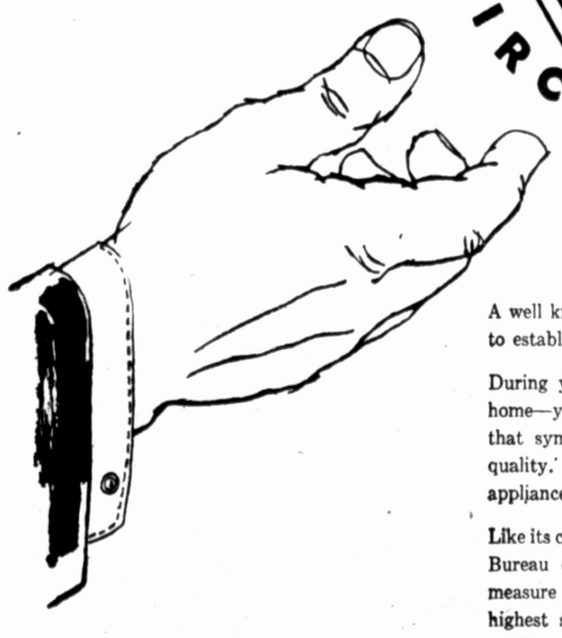

Miles is accused in connection with the 1947 slaying of Israel Lee Gardiner, Colorado City Negro. Jointly named in the murder indictment is John E. (Red) Davidson, 32.

Miles was charged as being an accomplice in the case in 1954, the grand jury alleging in the indictment that Miles had paid for the killing. This indictment was erased by the statute of limitations.

Car met house here today, but the driver of the car did not meet owner of the house until he was apprehended.

The accident occurred at 1213 W. 4th shortly after midnight.

Policemen reported that a 1951 Hudson bearing Wisconsin license plates hit a house belonging to D. E. Weatherly. When the car hit the house, driver of the vehicle jumped out and ran.

He was apprehended shortly afterwards about three blocks away. Being an airman from Webb, he was turned over to base authorities. Another airman was with him at the time.

Policemen did not report any damage to the house. The car was impounded.

Officer X-Rayed After Accident

Jack Shaffer, city detective, was in an accident near Abilene Monday and today was x-rayed for possible back injuries.

At the time, he appeared only scratched.

Shaffer and Texas Ranger John Wood were returning from Waco after interrogating a prisoner about possible burglaries here at the time. They were in a state vehicle driven by Wood.

The pair approached a stretch of highway under construction west of Abilene and pulled up behind a woman to wait for their time to cross a one-way stretch of pavement, Shaffer said.

Another car behind failed to stop and hit them. Shaffer was slammed against the dash and in the mishap scratched his forearm. Wood was not injured. Shaffer said their car was thrown against the woman's vehicle. When the accident occurred, she drove away and they were unable to determine if she were injured.

Shaffer this morning was x-rayed for a possible back or neck injury.

'B-E Day' Plans Are Discussed

Further plans for the Business-Education Day observance Nov. 14 were discussed at a meeting of school and Chamber of Commerce officials this morning.

Red Smith, Chamber manager, reported that 51 business firms have agreed to participate in the observance. Their managers, and others who get in on the program will be hosts for some 250 Howard County teachers for the day. They will attempt to give teachers a better understanding of business operations.

Meeting with Smith were Dr. W. A. Hunt, junior college president and chairman of the C-C Education Committee; Supt. Floyd Parsons of the Big Spring schools; Walker Bailey, county school superintendent; and S. M. Anderson, director of elementary education in Big Spring.

Tax Payments Are Slower

The city tax department reported that less revenue came in during the first 15 days of collecting taxes this year than 1956.

Totals through Monday were $58,721.86, and for the same period of last year, the figure was $65,242.81. Monday's total was $4,689.29.

Collections today went above $6,000 which would swell the total.

Tax officials said that many people wait until they receive their school and county taxes and then pay them all at once. Also, many of the loan companies have not made their payments, they said. The companies will probably pay before Nov. 1, however, to get the three per cent discount for paying in the first month.

Cotton Harvest Half Finished

The cotton harvest in Howard, Martin and Glasscock counties is nearing the halfway mark, according to the weekly survey of the Texas Employment Commission.

Total for the three counties is 20,876 bales ginned to date, or 48.1 per cent of the estimated 43,400 bale harvest.

In Howard county 2,472 bales, or 51 per cent of the 4,700 estimated, have been brought to gin. In Glasscock County 4,892 bales, or 48 per cent of the 10,200 estimate, have been ginned. In Martin County 13,513 bales or 48 per cent of the 28,500 bale estimate have been processed.

Juvenile Drivers' Committee To Meet

Citizen's Traffic Commission Juvenile Drivers Licensing committee will meet on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in the office of R. H. Weaver, county judge.

All juveniles who have made application for drivers' licenses are asked to be present with their parents or some suitable adult sponsor for the required interviews with the committee.

A considerable number of applications are already on file. The commission urges all members of the examination committee who can possibly do so to be in attendance.

Stanton Sets Charity Ball

STANTON — Annual Hospital Charity Ball, an event of much popularity here, will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday in the American Legion Hall. Receipts above expenses go to the Memorial Hospital of Martin County.

Music is to be provided by Johnny Dollar and his Texas Sons. There will be special entertainment, door prizes and an auction.

Couples will be admitted for $2; adults for $1.50; students 75 cents and children 25 cents.

Sponsors cordially invite guests from all parts of West Texas to attend.

Moisture Slows Dawson Harvest

LAMESA — With about 45,000 bales of 1957 crop cotton ginned, rains in the Lamesa area Sunday slowed considerably the harvest, according to Texas Employment Commission representatives here.

While the labor situation is described as becoming improved, about 1,000 boll pullers are still needed in Dawson County, according to the TEC. At the present time there are over 9,000 boll pullers in the county.

Almost 6,000 of the migrant workers are contract braceros, with about 3,300 of the number citizen laborers. They are averaging over 1-3 of a bale per day. It is expected that it will probably be Thursday before the harvest situation gets back to normal.

Reorganization Of Cub Pack Planned

Reorganization of cubbing in Park Hill school is object of a P-TA sponsored meeting tonight at the school. The Rev. Bill Boyd will preside and an invitation is extended to all parents of boys in the 8, 9 and 10-year bracket to be present.

This is the second meeting at the school at which reorganization of Cub Scout activities has been discussed.

Park Hill school formerly had Pack 13, Cub Scouts, and the reorganization and reactivation of the pack is the aim of the present campaign.

The meeting is at 7 p.m.

Two New Members Signed For C Of C

Sign-up of two new Chamber of Commerce members was announced this morning at the breakfast meeting of the Round Up Club, membership agency of the Chamber.

The new members are Donald's Drive-In and the Lewis Five and Ten on Gregg. Red Smith, new Chamber manager, and J. H. Greene, the retiring manager, spoke briefly at the gathering in the Settles.

Hand Is Injured

Leo Gonzales, linotype operator for The Herald, received a severe finger injury this morning when his hand was caught in a typesetting machine. He was treated at Cowper Hospital for lacerations and severe bruises after fellow printers freed his hand from the machine.

Custody Battle

Tanya Chwastov, 2½-year-old Philadelphia-born girl, is carried off the Soviet ship Molotov by her father, Alexis Chwastov, in London a half hour before they were scheduled to sail for Russia. Chwastov, 58-year-old Russian, was attempting to spirit the girl to Russia but a writ was isued to hold her in England until her custody is decided. Tanya's mother, Mrs. Helena Dieczok, divorced and remarried and now living in Detroit, had employed British legal aid.

Smith Takes Over C-C Management

Management reins of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce changed hands Monday, amid a general exchange of good wishes.

J. H. Greene stepped down from active work at the post he has held for nearly 20 years, and in his place moved Wayne B. (Red) Smith, formerly of Plainview.

Greene remains on the C-C payroll until next February, but Smith has taken over management of the office so that he can start work mapping a 1957 program.

Jimmie presided over the transition with one of his half-humorous, half-serious lectures with which Chamber directors are familiar. He charged the board to give Smith full support, "not for his sake, but for the sake of Big Spring."

"Red knows more about Chamber of Commerce work than any of you do," scolded the veteran, "so I am expecting you to work for him and with him 100 per cent, so that everything he accomplishes here will be better than anything that I may have accomplished."

Smith replied with brief acceptance remarks, saying to Greene: "I only hope that when my time comes to step down, I will have as many friends who love and respect me as you have today."

Smith pointed to churches as the most important institution in the community, the Chamber of Commerce second. "Your Chamber should reach the majority of the people, and should be an expression of their will of what's best for Big Spring," he said. "I cannot fill Jimmy Greene's shoes, and I will not try. I will try to do this job as best I know how, in my own way. But no one man can do the job. It takes the work of all the officers and directors, the committee workers, and all the members. With the help of all, we can have the type of Chamber of Commerce you want — the one that always makes Big Spring a better place in which to live and do business."

Cotton Growers To Vote On Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department will hold grower referendums Dec. 11 on continuing federal marketing quotas on cotton.

The continued existence of surpluses makes it advisable, the department said, that restrictions on cotton be kept in force.

To become effective, quotas must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting.

Jaycees Studying Safety Program

Big Spring Jaycees are attempting to establish a safety program for this area as a result of what was described as Howard County's "appalling death toll."

A report on the project is slated for the Jaycee luncheon next Monday. Initial discussions were held yesterday.

Traffic deaths for the county thus far in 1956 number 22. That's just two short of the record of 24 deaths in 1951.

Jaycees also voted to request that the regional teen-age Road-E-O be staged here next year. Webb AFB has offered its facilities for the event, the group learned at the Jaycees' state board meeting in Tyler Nov. 2-3.

Peggy Isaacs and Dennis Jones received plaques Monday as winners of the 1956 local Road-E-O. John Taylor also was honored, as Jaycee of the quarter for his work in connection with the tri-regional convention staged here in August. Douglas Boren was introduced as a new director of the local organization.

Program, dealing with Oil Progress Week, was presented by Mrs. Don Crittenden, Mrs. Leon Kinney and Mrs. Glen Guthrie, representatives of the Big Spring Desk and Derrick Club.

Business Teachers Slate Convention For Oct. 26-27

West Texas business teachers are preparing for the big, yearly round-up in Odessa on Oct. 26-27.

More than 400 have been invited to attend the annual West Texas Business Teachers Association Convention in the Lincoln Hotel.

Mrs. Bess Perryman, president announced that Dr. Russell N. Cansler will be the keynote speaker at the Oct. 26 banquet meeting. Dr. Cansler is director of business education at Northwestern University.

With a theme of "Industry serves education . . . education serves industry," the convention will be highlighted by four well-known speakers who will speak Oct. 27 at Odessa Junior College. Speaking first, on secretarial practices, will be Dr. Vernon C. Payne, director of buinsess education at North Texas State College and author of a book on secretarial practices. Dr. Payne will be followed by W. T. Pickle, cost analyst for Phillips Petroleum Company, who will lead the discussion on accounting.

Professor Lawrence Freeman, business writing expert from Oklahoma University, will speak on business communications. Tom Hurley, educational director for Shell Oil Company, will discuss public relations in both schools and industry.

Olin G. Bell, senior geologist for Humble Oil and Refining Company, will address the closing session of the convention at a luncheon meeting. Representing industry, he will sum up what Texas industry expects of business school graduates.

Drives 100 Miles To Return Purse

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An Ohio motorist drove 100 miles out of his way to return a purse he found on the Pennsylvania turnpike, police reported today.

They identified the "Good Samaritan" as Leon P. Grusgecki of Steubenville. Grusgecki found the purse yesterday and brought it to the Central Police Station in Pittsburgh.

The owner, Mrs. Harried Lavine, told police she didn't have any idea where she dropped it.

Senator, You Are So Right

A ticket headed by Adlai Stevenson is "an unacceptable package to the majority of the voters... What was not good enough to win in 1952 will not be good enough in 1956..."

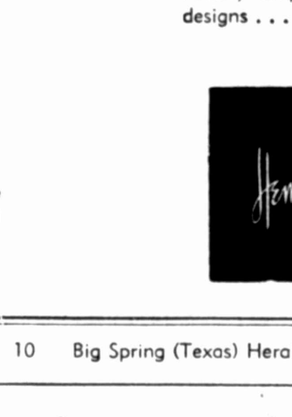

The words were spoken by Senator Estes Kefauver at Lake Wales, Fla., last May.

A great many Texas Democrats do not agree with Senator Kefauver on most things, but in this instance they think he hit the nail on the head.

If you agree, write Texas Democrats for Eisenhower, 308 West 15th Street, Austin, Tex.

Riders Unseated At Prison Rodeo

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Riders "bit the dust" yesterday as the bulls and the broncs unseated inmate performers at the second round of the 25th annual Texas Prison Rodeo here.

A record crowd of 32,000 jammed the prison system's million-dollar stadium to see the performance, which is held each Sunday during October.

William Barefield of Wharton, serving a three-year term, was injured when a spirited bronc sent him sprawling. Hospital attendants said he had several cracked ribs.

A former professional rodeo rider, inmate Vernon Abbott of El Paso, who was injured in the first performance, was back in the show yesterday.

Abbott placed third in the bareback bronc riding event, but failed to make the grade in the bull riding event—the same event that almost spelled doom for him last Sunday.

Gail Hall of Odessa was first in bareback bronc riding.

The bull riding event was won by Dwight Hoskins of Amarillo, followed by John McDonald of Sherman.

Burglar Breaks In Through Cat Hole

Schoolmen Urge Racial Tolerance

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Assn. of School Boards passed a resolution urging "tolerance in racial and religious matters" in dealing with integration.

San Angelo Board President Frank Pool, who submitted the resolution, said there was only "one no vote."

Some 150 members and 35 spectators are attending the association meeting.

The board also passed resolutions urging the approval of amendments No. 3 on the college building program and No. 4, which would increase benefits of the present teacher retirement system.

Mrs. Will Miller of Corsicana was elected president.

The resolution on integration said:

"The decision of the United States Supreme Court has created for every school district a problem; and

"Whereas, over the past year incidents have occurred that reflect on the integrity and dignity of institutions of public education; and

"Whereas, we as trustees are interested solely in establishing and maintaining educational institutions capable of turning out, as finished products, young people who know, understand and appreciate with pride their American heritage and the principles upon which this great country of ours was founded; and ... ...

"Whereas, we as guardians of our educational institutions are charged with the responsibility of demonstrating to our young people by precept and example these principles;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved: no matter what the final outcome of the integration question may be, and no matter what the local decision may be, this body urges each district and its educators and administrators to practice and teach by example the fundamental American philosophy of tolerance in racial and religious matters. We urge each local district to approach the question of integration with the dignity befitting an institution dedicated to the teaching of American principles."

New members of the executive committee include Charles Caruth of Andrews, W. H. Fehe of Beaumont, Mrs. Lemore Hill of Borger, and Peeler Williams of Waco.

Other resolutions passed included:

1. That the National School Board Assn., should have one representative from each state and board selected by the state group to its board of directors which would have the final voice in policy and organization matters not voted on by the main group during convention.

2. Commending the Legislature for laws which permit increase in local school tax rates and revenues and the constitutional amendment to increase the teachers retirement program.

Nixon Working On Young Folk

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "What I like," said the fresh-faced coed who had just listened to a speech by Vice President Nixon, "is that he isn't always saying mean things on the other side."

What she said emphasized one aspect of Nixon's current 10,000-mile campaign swing.

He is working hard to win young people to the Republican cause, even people too young to vote.

He has made two formal appearances on college campuses during his tour and has two more to come. In addition, he often finds high school students swelling the audiences in the school gymnasiums which serve as meeting places in many of the smaller cities.

He said in a plane-aisle interview he prefers not to make a flatly political speech to young audiences.

"I think its better in the long run to talk about the importance of taking part in politics," he said. "When you're talking to party workers of course you have to stir up applause so there will be continued enthusiasm to go on working. But in a different kind of audience the line that gets applause is not always the line that gets votes."

Actress Better

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress- dancer Carol Haney, star of the Broadway hit "Panama Game," was reported in satisfactory condition today at Mt. Sinai Hospital. She collapsed Friday night at a Las Vegas, Nev., night club where she was appearing in the show. Her doctor said she was suffering from exhaustion and a throat infection.

'Posse' Chases Runaway Girls

MONTROSE, Mich. (AP)—A dozen police cars got the call: "Two runaway girls sighted near Montrose. Both are on horseback."

Thus did Barbara Lawrence, 14, and Martha Sackrider, 13, touch off a merry 2½-hour chase yesterday through fields, over ditches and up and down rural roads. In pursuit was a "posse" of state and local police, sheriff's deputies, citizens and newspapermen.

The posse finally surrounded the girls. One was captured though, only after she was thrown by her horse as she tried to make it jump a ditch.

Undersheriff Jack Turner said a paternal reprimand on school marks started it all. Throwing bedrolls behind them, the girls mounted and rode away into the night. They were more than 10 miles from home when spotted.

Brighter Hairdos For Women Due

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brighter and gaudier hairdos are in milady's future. So are knee-length swimming shorts for men.

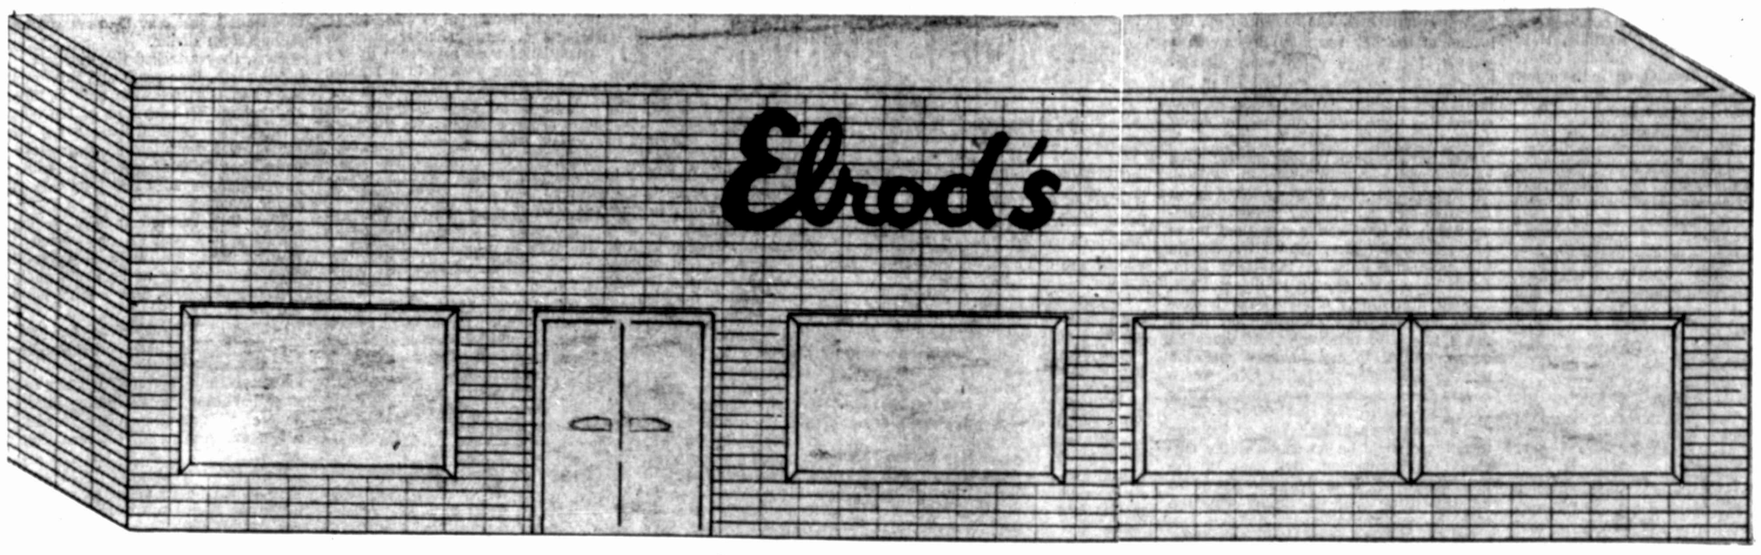

Members attending yesterday's opening session of the Coiffure Guild of Los Angeles said the emphasis next year will be on styles called "Olympia Cut" and "Ballerina Flare," with soft lines replacing severe poodle cuts and duck tails of 1956.

Another member predicted madame's coiffure will be more colorful, with emphasis on two-tone jobs.

The knee-length swimming shorts, snakeskin belts and silk-blend jackets with slanted, piped pockets were unveiled, meanwhile by the men's and boys' apparel guilds in California.

The emphasis is on bright prints silks and polished cottons and waist-length shirts, with styles based on tropical native costumes.

Wait on the LORD: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the LORD. (Psalms 27:14)

Seeking A Way For More Training

A subcommittee of the American Council on Education in Chicago last week okayed a program calling for a federal fund to maintain college scholarships, estimated to cost $200 million a year, renewable as needed.

The six hundred delegates at the meeting represented the council's membership of 972 colleges and universities and 140 organizations of higher education.

The council renewed its plea that income tax credits be allowed parents who pay their children's way through school. It notes that 100,000 high school graduates each year, including some of the ablest and most promising, are unable to enter college for financial reasons.

The subcommittee's recommendations include the observation that in "the light of the national needs and in view of the necessary size of the program and the unequal ability of states to meet the needs, the establishment of a national scholarship program by the federal government is recommended."

It insists that the grants "should not be limited by inequalities in the abilities of states to provide scholarship aid."

The need for more and more young men and women equipped with a higher education has become a grave national concern. Soviet Russia is bending every effort in that field, and from all accounts already has a long lead over us. What amounts to a free college education is available to tens of thousands of Russian young people, the only apparent test being native ability — plus, of course, the proper attitude toward the all-powerful state. For the specially gifted the sky is the limit.

Nearly all our institutions of higher learning face serious handicaps in meeting the requirements of modern curricula and services expected of them. Many of them live from hand to mouth, so to speak, but that is only half the tale; a great number of their potential "customers," including a very high percentage of those best equipped with qualities of mind and leadership ability, can aspire to nothing beyond a high school diploma because of the family's inability to provide the necessary funds.

The nation's immediate need is for more engineers, physicists and specialists in many fields. But to get them it is necesary to provide them with a foundation of solid scholarship — a liberal arts education. Thus equipped, they can go on to specialized fields with more assurance that they will be able to make the grade in the more rarified fields of higher learning.

If we are to survive, the challenge must be met — and soon.

More Attention To Details, Please

A week ago a case alleging driving while intoxicated on the part of the defendant moved to the jury in County Court. Then it had to be dismissed when it was established that the complaint had been altered after filing.

The very next day one was tossed out of court at the outset for the very same reason.

Then before the week was out, a defendant, also held for DWI, was brought into court ready to plead guilty and make peace with the law. He had been held for 30 days in lieu of $500 bond. Then, when it came time to come before the court, it was discovered that no charge had been filed — or indeed none was on file. In this instance, the subject stood hitched, so to speak, while a complaint was drawn up hastily so that he could enter a plea of guilty to the alleged offense of DWI.

Any one of these incidents might be taken as one of those oversights which are bound to creep into almost any operation. But three of them in a row would seem to indicate that little less than due care is being exercised in the filing and preparation of the cases. Changing the complaint after filing is manifestly against the rules, and holding an individual in lieu of bond on a charge that hadn't been filed is hardly compatible with our legal processes.

It seems to us that more attention to the prosaic details could be exercised. Both the rights of the citizens and the state warrant it.

Getting Crowds And Getting Votes

WASHINGTON — It was said by the cynical politician of an earlier and simpler era that they would come out to see a dead whale on a flatcar. Meaning, it is hardly necessary to add, that the crowd could always be counted on to turn out to hear the candidate speak from the rear platform down at the railway station.

But profound changes are taking place in American life, and crowds, particularly political crowds, are not so predictable as they once were. What they may or may not mean in terms of votes is likewise even more uncertain than in the recent past.

Political organizers are discovering in this campaign that, what with television and the hideous difficulties of traffic and parking, it is harder and harder to get people out of their homes.

This is, after all, the year when Ringling Brothers circus folded its tents for the last time and stole away into at least temporary oblivion. The political circuses have been encountering some of the same trouble with the customers.

President Eisenhower at Des Moines and Pittsburgh drew huge crowds that gave every evidence of friendly enthusiasm. His partisans are convinced that this means votes, a popular outpouring that presages an electoral victory almost as big as that of four years ago.

But crowds have proved deceptive in the past and they could be deceptive again. In the first place, it would be remarkable if people did not turn out to see a President of the United States as popular as Mr. Eisenhower with the glamour of his military record to buttress the attraction of the man who holds the most powerful office in the world.

Will these same curious spectators vote for him? We shall not know the answer until November 7.

Curiosity about a personality is surely a crowd factor. Big crowds — the largest up to that time — turned out to see Al Smith when he was running against Herbert Hoover in 1928. The brown derby, the legend of the boy from the Fulton Fish Market, his twangy voice were all elements that drew the customers out to see him. They had to go out, since in that quaint day there was no television. Smith carried only eight states.

Similarly, crowds turned out for the colorful personality of Wendell Willkie. That personality had been exploited in an intensive and well-planned publicity buildup which in less than a year had made him a national figure. Yet Willkie, despite the emotional issue of the third term, failed by a wide margin to defeat FDR.

Adlai Stevenson's crowds have more often than not been disappointing. He is not a magnetic personality. At times he seems almost to try to keep on the austere and undemonstrative level. There is also the fact that he ran unsuccessfully four years ago.

If crowds were to be taken as the sole test, there could be no doubt of the outcome of the election. But back of the presence of people in the streets are two imponderables. One is timing and the other is organization.

President Eisenhower came into Pittsburgh about 5 o'clock as office workers were pouring out of downtown buildings. Traffic was blocked off and the crowd quickly swelled to seven and eight deep along his route.

If he had come at 3 o'clock the story might have been different. That is, it might have been different unless the Republican organization had been hard at work to insure a turnout.

There are many things that organization can do. The schools can be dismissed, for example, and cheering school children waving flags along the line of march make a brave show. Office and other workers can be given half an hour off to watch the candidate go by.

There has recently been a spate of criticism of the Democratic campaign organization for failing to get out the crowds. Stevenson's own organization has been criticized for delay and inefficiency in exploiting publicity openings.

This sounds like the criticism directed at Harry Truman and his campaign organization in 1948 when no one gave Mr. Truman a chance to win and when the crowds he drew were dismissed as merely the idle and the curious. Yet Mr. Truman won in November over the rich, resourceful, efficient Republican organization, and in this there may be a lesson for 1956.

Finally Gets Here

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Jack Thompson, a veteran of 23 years' service in the U. S. Navy, never set foot on the continental United States until recently.

Thompson, a resident of Wahiawa on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, came to San Diego to compete in a Navy tennis tournament. A native of American Samoa, he joined the Navy and went through recruit training there in 1933. He was assigned to the famed Fita Fita Guard, a special organization established by the Navy in Samoa in 1901.

After the guard was disbanded in 1951, Thompson and his family moved to Hawaii. He has been stationed there since that time as a member of the regular Navy.

Dancing Around A Subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai Stevenson, who spends a lot of time polishing his speeches, sometimes takes the shine off them by dancing around the subject instead of saying in plain language precisely what he means.

This happened with his suggestions on ending H-bomb tests. Last night, after months of talking about it, he made a long speech, trying to explain what he had in mind. It still isn't completely clear.

He's been all over the lot on this subject. President Eisenhower has said Stevenson made several proposals. Stevenson blames the administration for "astonishing distortions" of what he said.

In trying to understand him, this was the trouble: Was he suggesting the United States end its tests, with or without agreement with Russia to do the same, and then resume the tests if Russia didn't follow suit? Or was he suggesting this country take the lead in proposing an end to the tests but not ending them unless there was agreement?

A look at the chronology of his statements shows why these questions arise:

Last April 21 he said: "I believe we should give prompt and earnest consideration to stopping further tests of the hydrogen bomb . . . As a layman I question the sense in multiplying and enlarging weapons of a destructive power already incomprehensible.

"Of course, I would call upon other nations to follow our lead, and if they don't, and persist in further tests, we will know about it and we can reconsider our policy."

Nowhere in that statement did he say the United States should go it alone, if necessary, and end the H-bomb tests, although it might seem he meant that since he didn't mention a need for agreement with Russia to end her tests.

Before the American Legion convention in Los Angeles Sept. 5 he said:

"I regret that the administration chose to casually dismiss my proposal last spring to halt further testing of large nuclear devices, conditioned upon adherence by the other atomic powers to a similar policy."

That would seem to mean that this country should stop the tests only if others agreed to do likewise.

Then on Sept. 20, at Silver Spring, Md., he said Eisenhower had "dismissed curtly" his proposal "that the United States take the lead in promoting curtailment by all nations of hydrogen bomb tests."

The phrase "proposing curtailment" could mean the United States should take the lead simply in trying to get agreement on ending the tests or it could mean the United States should take the lead in ending the tests, with or without agreement.

Woman Engineer In Top Job

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—There is a young gal engineer here who holds down a top job in building America's guided missiles — but admits she can't fix her own motor car.

"I can change a tire," said Ruth Harlam, smiling. "But if anything goes wrong with the motor, I take it to the garage, just like everybody else."

The current national shortage of trained engineers has broken down much of the old antipathy against career women in this field. At 32, Miss Harlam, dark-haired and quietly attractive, is a rising slide rule princess of the atomic era.

She is a project supervisor in developing launching mechanisms for two key weapons in the nation's defense arsenal — the Talos and Bomarc guided missiles. She directs a staff of 23 male draftsmen and engineers in the laboratory of the American Machine & Foundry Co.

It sounds like an unfeminine job, but Miss Harlam was advanced to it because of the outstanding work she did on such other unfeminine projects as a new howitzer, an antiaircraft gun and a tank.

The gal is thoroughly feminine herself. She wears dresses in the laboratory, donning slacks only when her job sometimes makes them more practical. She likes to knit and would rather cook than eat out, eventually hopes to marry and have a family.

Miss Harlam, who was born in Berlin and came to this country in 1938, worked her way through college as a sewing machine operator. She speaks, writes and reads four languages, now is studying nights to win her doctorate in engineering.

"I got into this by accident," she recalled. "I started doing some tracing work for my brother who was studying drafting. But he wound up in sales work, and I ended up an engineer."

Miss Harlam blushed when asked if her knowledge of thermodynamics might operate as a barrier to romance by making her too critical of men, who are usually more thermal than dynamic.

"No, I don't think so," she said. "Men are human, after all, and not an engineering problem. There is no predictable scientific law on how two people fall in love."

She has found neither her sex nor her youth much of a handicap in supervising men engineers senior to her.

"They don't resent me," she said. "In engineering work, what determines how a thing gets done is whether it is right or wrong. Whether a girl says it or a man makes no difference."

Get In And Fight

ATOKA, Okla. (AP) — The following item, marked "paid advertising," appeared on the front page of a local paper.

"Don't give up so easy buddy. Why not find out if Melva loves you and if she does, why not fight for her? I don't mean a fist fight, but you should know what to do. If you love her and she loves you, I think she is worth fighting for. So let's get busy, shall we? I don't think she is trying to find out if you love her."

It was signed "A Friend," and the editor of the paper thoughtfully added "Get in there and fight, boy."

Skis In The Sky

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major aircraft company is equipping its giant patrol bombers for duty in the Antarctic with the largest skis ever ordered for a jet-powered aircraft. Measuring 5 feet wide and 16 feet long and made of composite aluminum alloy and steel, the skis will be attached to the two-wheel main landing gear.

Planes, official publication of the Aircraft Industries Assn., says a smaller ski will be mounted on the plane's nose landing gear. And to play it safe, provisions are being made for the wheels to remain stationary while the skis can move up or down — thereby permitting landings on either skis or wheels.

Fast Housework

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — L. P. Cobble, who bosses the custodial division of Texas A&M College here, has a well trained crew of eight supervisors and 160 employes.

He claims any one of them could finish a housewife's cleaning job in 30 minutes.

It's not that they work at a superhuman speed, he says. It's just that the work is planned scientifically.

"Every swipe counts," he says.

Around The Rim

Still A Fugitive?

I was once a fugitive from justice.

At least, I believed I was and I endured all of the torments and anxieties which would have been my lot had the situation been as truly fearful as I believed it to be.

It was when I was a very small boy.

I saw a small advertisement in a magazine. It depicted a magic lantern — something I had long dreamed of possessing but which I felt sure I never would.

Know what a magic lantern is?

Probably not, if you're tolerably young. Today's kids have no idea, I am sure. And it would be of no interest to them, even if they did come upon one.

Magic lanterns, dear children, were forerunners of moving picture projectors. They consisted of a lamphouse, in which was placed a tiny lamp, fueled by kerosene. Back of this lamp was a concave reflector made of tin. In front was a simple lens arrangement just ahead of a slot. In this slot you thrust glass slides on which were painted (or printed) tiny pictures. The light shone through the slide, projecting the image of the picture, via the lens, to a white curtain. The proud possessor of a magic lantern could do a whale of a theatre box-office business (unbent pins being the general currency for such performances) in a coalshed or a gloomy corner of the family barn. Provided, of course, he could wangle a white cloth of some sort from his mother to tack up for a screen.

The pictures were dim, the little kerosene lamp smoked and smelled to high heaven. The lampbox got so hot it blistered your fingers. The slides, if they didn't crack from the heat, grew vague as the paint smeared.

Anyway, I saw this ad. Get a modern magic lantern, it proclaimed. All you had to do was send in your name and address. The company would send you 24 packages of beautiful (the adjective is theirs) postcards. Sell these 24 packages of postcards to friends and neighbors for 10 cents a package. Send the money and there you were. You became owner of a valuable, immensely important, never-to-be-forgotten magic lantern. As simple as that!

Well, suffice it to say I scrounged a postage stamp, scrawled my name and address and dropped it in the mail. A week or two passed and the long awaited postcards arrived. I high-pressured my folks into buying four or five packs. Kindly neighbors kicked in for others. In a week I had sold the 24 packages and sent the money on its way back to the company.

Then there came a letter. I had done "extra well," said the letter. Now the company was sending me 24 more packages of postcards. When I had sold these and sent in the $2.40, the magic lantern would be shipped to me.

And these postcards, too, arrived. Unfortunately, my spirit was broken and my enthusiasm had been dampened. Besides, the local postcard market was glutted and oversold. I tried half-heartedly to peddle the things and then gave up. I tossed the unsold cards in a cabinet and forgot, in a few weeks, all about them.

Several months passed.

Then came that letter.

Its words are still branded in flaming letters on my memory.

"Dear sir," it began, (I was just 7 years old), "on such and such a date we sent you 24 packages of postal cards. You were to sell these cards and remit the money to our firm. We have not received the money nor have the cards been returned. We have been patient but we are no longer willing to delay this matter. Unless you send us $2.40 or the cards in good condition at once we will have no recourse but to place this matter in the hands of our legal department for action. Sincerely yours."

I read the letter and broke out in a cold sweat. Legal action, it said. That meant I was a criminal. They were going to put me in jail. I couldn't send the $2.40. I didn't have it. I couldn't return the cards — they had been thrown away.

For several weeks, I lived in mortal terror. Everytime a strange man came into the school classroom, I felt my heart speed up and my breath freeze in my lungs. En route home, I went down alleys. If I happened to sight the town marshal (he was the symbol of law enforcement to my juvenile mind) I cut around a corner. Once I bumped head on into the big tummy of the county sheriff, as we encountered on a street corner. He grunted and then glared. I was two blocks away before he regained his breath.

Finally, I became reconciled to my fate. I was a fugitive from the law; an absconder, an embezzler. Eventually, destiny would catch up with me. I settled down in the apathy of despair and no longer took any precautions. What was to be, I reasoned, would be.

You know, they never did catch me!

What They're Doing To Female Figgers!

There is a lot of loose talk these days — and has been ever since I can remember — that women only marry men in order to reform them or reshape them nearer some impossible heart's desire.

Nonsense! The shoe of reformation is on the other clodhopper. Man, especially the male couturier, has been doing his best since World War II to reassemble the female form divine.

First, they attacked the waistline, shifting it north, then south and finally pinching us in until we were blue in the face and bulging on each side of the equator.

Next, they concentrated on the bosom. First it was posh 'em up, then posh 'em down, then flatten 'em out a la A-line and now inflated a la M-line (and that is not M for Maginot).

Then they decreed no hips, asking for miracles yet. And so one would have thought that the male designer had gone about as far as he could go in remodeling les girls. But I have news for you —

Ordinarily I have to be hog-tied and carried, kicking and screaming, into anything even faintly resembling a fashion show. Until recently I felt this malaise stemmed from the humiliating fact that I have about as much chance to make the list of the Ten Best Dressed as Tug Boat Annie.

However, I went willingly to a fashion show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, primarily to see my dear friend and severe critic, Sally Victor, receive fashion's "Winnie." This is the annual American Fashion Critic's award and comparable to Hollywood's "Oscar."

This has been a big year for Sally, hatter extraordinary and to the Mesdames Eisenhower, Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt and celebrities unlimited. She is the first hat designer ever to receive the "Winnie." In addition, the wholesale millinery industry recently gave her its first Millinery Research Award, in grateful belief that if anyone can coax women to wear hats again, it's Sally.

But enough of this digression. What I started out to say is that I discovered at the Met the real reason I eschew fashion shows. It isn't because they humiliate me; it's because I ain't willing to suffer. Anyone who wants to be a chic chick today has to embrace the mizzeries.

In addition to Sally, the fashion critics also decorated two brilliant young American clothes designers, Louis Estevez and James Galanos. So a number of their latest creations were shown to the Met audience.

As a result, I want to alert the American man no less than the American woman that another conspiracy is in the making against the weaker sex. (And the reason we are weak is that fashion takes such a toll of us.)

Now it is obvious that the Messrs. Estevez and Galanos are trying to do away with legs. Skirts, long and short, designed by these young men are so tight that even the plumbing-pipe models who wore them looked like mummies, Egyptian style. The girls couldn't walk; they couldn't even mince. Just slither. Or shuffle, like Little Ah Sid, the Chinese kid.

Well, enough is enough! today, bound legs; tomorrow, bound feet. The boys may fence in the other girls, but not me. Not while I can still say "Hoover apron," if you will pardon the expression in an election year.

The Gallup Poll

The Vote By Religious Preference

PRINCETON, N. J. — Analysis by Institute statisticians of voter sentiment by religious preference at this stage of the presidential campaign reveals these facts:

1.—Although there has been a slight drop-off since 1952 of support for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket among members of the Protestant faith, six out of every 10 Protestants today say they plan to vote Republican in November.

2.—Offsetting this GOP loss are slight gains for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket among voters of the Roman Catholic and the Jewish faiths. However, a majority of voters in both of these groups today say they plan to support the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket.

Students of American government have for years debated whether there is such a thing as a Catholic bloc, a Protestant block, or a Jewish bloc when it comes to choosing a President.

A cross-section of voters across the country, scientifically selected to accurately represent the American electorate in miniature, was asked this question by Institute interviewers in person-to-person interviews:

"If the presidential election were being held today, which candidates would you vote for — Eisenhower and Nixon or Stevenson and Kefauver?"

Here is the vote among those who indicated they were members of the Protestant faith and who said they planned vote:

PROTESTANT	Per Cent
Eisenhower-Nixon	57
Stevenson-Kefauver	36
Undecided	7

If it is assumed that the 7 per cent of Protestants who are undecided will divide in about the same way as the "decideds," the figures become:

	Per Cent
Eisenhower-Nixon	61
Stevenson-Kefauver	39

Here are the preferences today of voters of the Roman Catholic faith:

ROMAN CATHOLIC	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kefauver	50
Eisenhower-Nixon	43
Undecided	7

Handling the undecided in the same manner, the above figures become:

	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kefauver	54
Eisenhower-Nixon	46

In 1952, the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket polled 44 per cent of the vote of Catholics.

Among persons of the Jewish faith reached in today's Institute survey, the figures were:

	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kefauver	65
Eisenhower-Nixon	21
Undecided	14

Handling the undecided in the same manner, the figures become:

	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kefauver	76
Eisenhower-Nixon	24

Institute survey data reveal that among the U. S. adult population today, 74 per cent of voters list their religious preference as Protestant, 22 per cent as Roman Catholic, and 4 per cent as Jewish.

Utah Chief Back In Political Ring

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Gov. J. Bracken Lee, beaten in his intra-party bid for an unprecedented third term, was back in the running today after a dramatic announcement that he will make the race on his own.

And though the two other candidates have a long head start, some political observers are predicting Lee will give them a run for their money.

The Republican governor announced he will allow his name to remain on the ballot as an independent. It was put there by a group called Citizens for Lee after the governor lost the nomination to George D. Clyde. The Democratic candidate is L. C. Romney.

In a bristling speech, Lee blamed his primary troubles on Sen. Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah).

"I accuse him of fraud," Lee said, "when he represented to the Republican party that his hand-picked candidate for governor was a true Republican when in fact his candidate has no record of service to, or activity for, the Republican party. . . .

"I accuse him of splitting the Republican party by the use of machine politics of the most flagrant kind, and I intend to expose him and his manipulations in the campaign ahead."

Watkins withheld comment. Clyde replied: "I am the candidate of no man or group of men."

The Executive Committee of the Republican party in Utah issued a statement pledging unanimous support to Clyde.

Lee gained national attention with his challenge of the legality of the nation's foreign aid program. To emphasize his protest he refused to pay a portion of his 1955 federal income tax. The government collected anyway, by enforcing a lien against his bank account.

Colorado Senate Fight Livened By Charges Of 'Coattail Riding'

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Friends of two American presidents are slugging it out for a United States Senate seat from Colorado in a campaign enlivened by accusations of "coattail riding."

Democrat John A. Carroll, making a third Senate attempt, originally tossed the barb at Republican Dan Thornton, golfing companion of President Eisenhower.

Thornton retorted that if he is linked to Eisenhower, Carroll must be tied to former President Truman, whom he publicly supported in 1946, 1948 and 1950.

Thornton, millionaire cattleman and former governor who heads the national Republican farm vote campaign, is making his first Senate race. Carroll is a former U.S. representative.

Much of the campaigning has been in rural Colorado, and bitterness already has erupted. Carroll has referred to Thornton as "no barefoot cowboy" and "a huckster." The Republican has been equally as sharp in jibes, chiefly at Carroll's record.

Thornton stresses peace and prosperity under Eisenhower and claims the administration is solving inherited farm problems. Carroll demands more farm aid and argues that small business needs better national policies to survive. Both emphasize a need for more water in the drought-ridden state.

The winner will succeed ailing Sen. Eugene D. Millikin, 65-year-old Republican who is retiring after 15 years.

Aid for both Thornton and Carroll has been forthcoming from men at the top of their national tickets.

Adlai Stevenson, in a Denver address, called a campaign blast against Carroll by Vice President Nixon two years ago "a smear," and Sen. Estes Kefauver urged Carroll's election.

Nixon during a visit to the state called for Thornton's election.

President Eisenhower beamed on Thornton during the GOP National Convention, and state party chieftains say his candidacy was recommended by the national administration.

The two candidates bring differing backgrounds to the Senate race.

Carroll joined the Army while under age during World War I, became a Denver policeman and later an identification expert. He studied law at night and eventually served four years as Denver's district attorney. He lost a race for the Democratic nomination for governor, acted as an OPA official, then entered the Army and did wartime duty overseas during World War II as a military government officer.

Returning from service, he won Denver's seat in the U.S. House of Representatives in 1946. Re-elected in 1948, he ran for the Senate two years later and was nominated without opposition. He lost to Millikin. For a time he acted as a congressional liaison man for President Truman.

He won a bitter Democratic primary for the senatorial nomination in 1954 but was defeated in the general election. This year he shaded Charles F. Brannan, Truman's secretary of agriculture for the nomination.

As in the past, Carroll has received labor union endorsements for the general election.

Thornton was born on a Texas farm, played college football at the University of California at Los Angeles, did movie bit parts, worked in oil fields, became an Arizona rancher and developed a western Colorado ranch for blooded cattle more than 15 years ago.

Because of a foot damaged in a boyhood gunshot accident he was turned down for military service. He was elected state senator in 1948 and governor two years later, serving four years.

While chief executive of the state Thornton became one of the original Eisenhower supporters, was elected chairman of the National Governors Conference, served on Eisenhower's Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and headed an economic mission to Korea for the President. Since retiring as governor, he has spoken extensively for the GOP, emphasizing agricultural topics.

The Rising Star Of Adlai's Campaign

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—A six-foot matinee idol type "Mr. Fixit" is the rising star of Adlai E. Stevenson's presidential campaign caravan.

He is 27-year-old Richard Rowan, onetime sea cook and water ski instructor.

As far as many of the newsmen covering Stevenson are concerned Rowan is the one bright light in what at times was a very dark picture of organization.

Luggage is his main chore but he has a flair for getting other things done. Reporters know that. If the local constabulary leaves them stranded in traffic, the taciturn and unassuming Rowan will get out, wave people politely aside and make a path to a point right behind Stevenson's open car.

The way Rowan hitched his star to Stevenson is a lesson in persistence.

About six months ago, as Stevenson's aides tell it, a letter came in from Rowan asking for a job. A polite noncommittal reply went back. That brought a flood of letters and postcards, at least one a day, saying:

"Stevenson needs Rowan."

Stevenson turned this burgeoning correspondence over to his personal aide and law associate, William McCormick Blair. Blair handled it for a while, then passed it down to his blonde secretary, Phyliss Gustafson.

At length she complained:

"This Rowan character is driving me out of my mind."

Then one day a huge package came. When opened, it turned out to be a mobile which, when hung up, said on all of its free-wheeling parts:

"Stevenson needs Rowan."

That did it. Blair told him to come to Chicago as a volunteer worker for Stevenson during the Democratic convention, if he wanted to. He did, and on the basis of his work there Blair put him on the payroll.

In submitting a required biography, Rowan disclosed he is the son of a dress shop owner in Monterey, Calif., worked his way through the University of California at Los Angeles, got to Europe as a sea cook, taught water skiing to pay his way through the Sorbonne at Paris and finally — convinced that "I admire Stevenson so much I felt I should do something for him" — he launched his Stevenson-needs-Rowan campaign.

Rowan's story may be a good example of how Stevenson's publicity staff works. No effort was made to let the public know a fellow like Rowan had felt so devoted to Stevenson that he went to such unorthodox lengths to work for him.

Most of Stevenson's helpers have been busy recently denying published reports that a major staff shakeup was in the offing. It appears now that, while no heads will roll, some staff members are being advised to mind their P's and Q's a little better.

The 65 or so reporters who have trailed Stevenson have been grumbling among themselves about the information setup, headed by Clayton Fritchey, and the arrangements, under William Rivkin. Some wrote stories about them.

Newsmen said speeches and news releases seldom came out when promised, lacked such details as first names, and frequently were timed so as to require an ulcer-inviting race to file a story at one stop before Stevenson surged on to the next.

One reporter got off the train at Altoona, Pa., week before last to telephone a story and was left behind. He caught up at Johnstown by dashing pell mell over the highway.

He's Back Again

U. S. Naval Lieut. Norman Donahoe, whose aerial hitchhiking race against time and a diaper shortage for his adopted daughter made headlines nearly two years ago, has adopted a second Greek orphan..Here he holds Stephen Emil, 2½ years old, in Athens, Greece, after completing adoption formalities. Donahoe, on annual leave from Corpus Christi, Tex., Air Station, plans another hitchhike return trip but he doesn't anticipate a repetition of 1955 difficulties. He has more time, and Stephen is a year older than Roni Marie was when she was adopted.

Thunderbird Gets Redesigned Body

DETROIT (AP)— The Ford Motor Co. said today its 1957 Thunderbird will have a redesigned body 5½ inches longer and its engine will develop up to 20 per cent more horsepower. Top power output is 270 horsepower.

New styling features include larger and stronger front and rear bumpers, with integral parking lights in the front and exhaust ports in the rear bumper.

The longer body permits a larger rear deck. Wheels are 14 inches in diameter. Rear quarter panels have the tail fin effect canted slightly outward.

Safety features include instrument panel and sun visor crash cushions as standard equipment. The car also has a reflecting strip mounted inside the left door so that when it is opened at night, approaching drivers may be warned by the reflection of their headlights.

Navy Getting 'Quiet' Sub

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—The Navy is getting a submarine which is described as "the quietest of all time" and which has comforts you'd expect only on an aircraft carrier.

It is the USS Darter (also known as SS 576) which the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp. is turning over to the Navy in commissioning ceremonies here next Saturday.

Although the Darter is smaller than her World War II ancestor (it's 260 feet long and 1,800 tons), it is faster and a lot roomier insofar as the crew is concerned.

It's quiet, says General Dynamics, because its engine noise is confined to a "sound-isolated" compartment. The conventional diesel-powered engines are operated by remote control from a sound-proof cab or console.

Submerged, the new Darter can be operated by one man because of its airplane or "joy stick" type control. The corporation said that type of control also makes for a comfortable ride as well as for easier diving and maneuverability.

This is the set-up for the crew.

Wide aisles between berths; individual bunk lights and ventilation; an ice cream machine; automatic record player; modern, wide movie screen, and four-place dining room tables.

Red Ex-Premier Returns To Party

BUDAPEST (AP) — Ex-Premier Imre Nagy has been restored to full membership in Hungary's Communist party. His "rehabilitation" marked another major step in the de-Stalinzation campaign in Hungary.

An advocate of more liberal government policies and an improved standard of living, Nagy was booted from the premiership in April 1955 and expelled from the party seven months later.

Matyas Rakosi, the old Stalinist who headed the party at the time, accused Nagy of rightist deviationism. Rakosi was deposed last July 18 in a de-Stalinizing move.

What put the magic in the new kind of FORD?

"Six or V-8 the going is great"

The new Ford Fairlane 500 (118-inch wheelbase). Longer, lower, larger than many medium-priced cars, yet lower in price than most of them!

Here's what put the magic in the new kind of FORD!

It all started with the new "Inner Ford." When Ford engineers planned this baby, they didn't just think in terms of new springs, new brakes, new axles. They thought in terms of a car through-and-through new.

The wheels got smaller. Yes, this new Ford is so new in every detail that even the wheels have changed. Now smaller and broader for a better grip on the road, they help you take off quickly . . . give you a better ride.

The wheelbase got longer . . . so now you can choose between a Ford that's over 16 ft. long—or one that's over 17 ft. long!

The frame got wider. Side rails bow out to give a more stable riding platform . . . a lower, sleeker silhouette.

The ride got smoother. With new suspension, new springing front and rear, the ride this new Ford gives you is the closest you'll ever come to coasting on velvet-covered clouds. And that holds true on back roads, too!

The handling got easier. Poised and balanced like a panther, this car has new swept-back front suspension that works its magic when you need it most.

The power got hotter. This new kind of Ford is packed with Thunderbird GO! It offers a wide range of Silver Anniversary V-8's to fit every horsepower need* . . . plus a new version of the famous Mileage Maker Six.

The roof got lower. And it's designed to let you make the easy entries and graceful exits you've always known.

The body got quieter. It's the strongest body ever built for a low-priced car. And no car in Ford's field has such generous sound-proofing.

The room got bigger. There's head room to spare for a tycoon-type hat. There's real stretch-out leg room, too.

The lines got sweeter. Ford gives you the longest, lowest, low-priced car ever. Each graceful contour of its sculptured-in-steel body says, "Let's go!"

The style got smarter. With this new-look Ford you have a car that belongs anywhere! Example: all Fairlane models, including sedans, have the look of a hardtop.

The value got greater . . . and the price is still Ford-low. The result—even more promise of buying a car that will keep its value high . . . a car that will stay worth more.

*A special 270-hp Thunderbird 312 Super V-8 engine available at extra cost. Also, an extra-high-performance Thunderbird 312 Super V-8 engine delivering up to 285 hp.

SEE IT FOR YOURSELF!

So now you know the magic of the '57 FORD!
