Snowbound

The panhandle found itself still covered with the white stuff Friday and more is expected today. The inclement weather caused problems for many North Texans, but Amarillo youngsters J.B. Austin and Glen Diamond decided to enjoy sliding down a snow-covered hill as public schools were closed for the third time this week. Midland won't be in for the same, according to the National Weather Service. See story, Page 2A.

Where's work Reagan promised? White asks

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White said he was "appalled" Friday at the increase in Texas unemployment from 8 to 8.2 percent last month, but a state economist said the rise was not "terribly significant" and had been expected.

Texas Employment Commission figures showed 645,700 Texans were out of work in January.

"I am appalled at the increase in the number of Texans unable to find work," said White. "President Reagan said in his State of the Union message that he recognized the United States government's responsibility to help put Americans back to work. Now it's time to do it."

TEC economist Terence Travland said, "I wouldn't think that a change of .2 is terribly significant from a statistical standpoint. It's essentially the same."

However, Travland said the TEC's unemployment figures were seasonally adjusted, for such factors as shopping cycles and weather, and he said the unadjusted percentages jumped from 7.4 in December to 8.5 in January.

"While that's a fairly significant increase over the month, if looked upon from the perspective of history that rate of change is fairly typical of what we would normally expect," Travland said.

Nationally, the jobless rate for the civilian labor force dropped from 10.8 percent in December to 10.4 percent in January, and was hailed by Reagan as a sign that "we're on the move now."

But in Texas, White said, "the unemployment figures emphasize the need for a concerted effort." He said he had already met with the chairman of his own task force on unemployment and "we are determined to do something about the problem."

Bryan Richey of the U.S Bureau of Labor Statisticss here also described the increase as "not particularly significant." He blamed the Texas jobless rise on repercussions from the Mexican peso devaluation and the oil glut.

Richey said those two "drags on the Texas economy" make the slight unemployment increase "not too surprising."

"Bear in mind that the recession was very much in evidence at the national level, I would say at least six or possibly even seven months before it was reflected to a great extent here in Texas," he said.

Gov. Mark White wasn't too happy with the state's 8.2 percent unemployment rate, and said he's waiting for President Reagan to help citizens get back to work as he promised in his State of the Union address. Graph indicates how Reagan fares against other presidents as far as unemployement goes.

Way out of prison tents told

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections could have all of its inmates out of tents by September if Gov. Mark White approves $2.7 million to build 15 dormitories, TDC Director W.J. Estelle told legislators Friday.

Estelle said the prison board authorized him to ask White to approve the money put in a "contingency fund" by the 1981 Legislature. The money cannot be spent without the governor's OK.

The director said the tents — set up in 1981 as temporary relief of overcrowding — would be gone by September if the 96-man metal dorms are put up and the total prison population does not increase by more than 2,000 between now and then.

"That doesn't mean we'll be OK, but we'll be out from under canvas. Don't ask me for how long," he told members of two House committees that toured prison units Friday.

The federal lawsuit that forced many reforms at Texas prisons goes back to court in September for a review of progress.

"We are not out of the legal woods yet," Estelle told the legislators, adding that the removal of the tents would show a "good faith effort" to improve living conditions in the system's two dozen units.

The metal dorms would be constructed at existing prison units. TDC now has 3,840 inmates in tents, some of which have been covered with plywood to fend off winter weather.

Members of the House committees on law enforcement and criminal jurisprudence visited the Ellis, Wynne and Goree units Friday. For many of the legislators, it was their first visit to a prison.

Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville, said he had never even seen a county jail.

"In some ways, it was what I expected," said Keller, chairman of the law enforcement committee, which handles prison financing.

Keller said the tents did not bother him, but he was disturbed by the metal Quonset huts used at the Wynne Unit.

"That was just a warehouse of human population," he said.

Inmates sleep head-to-toe in the dank, poorly lit metal buildings.

"It was dark just like a damned dungeon," said Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio. "What's wrong with lightbulbs?"

Estelle is asking lawmakers for a $1.5 billion two-year budget.

Get your cards ready... ...Bingo's back in Midland

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Bingo for cash and recreation will be played in Midland tonight.

And Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock's Raiders can sit easy in the saddle and just listen to the caller sound out the B-I-N-G-O letters and numbers.

"It was illegal before, but now it's legal," Bill Stovall, chaplain of the 750-member Tall City Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7208, said Friday.

Moments earlier, Justice of the Peace Robert H. "Bob" Pine had signed an order allowing the return of most of the confiscated bingo equipment and paraphernalia, including more than 58,000 bingo cards and hundreds of marked eggshell-thin table tennis balls, to the VFW post.

Money which the lawmen confiscated in the raid was not returned to the post.

Pine signed the order releasing the equipment, District Attorney Vern Martin handed over to Stovall $1,176.05 in two checks made out to charities, and Stovall displayed the post's permit to play the game of chance from 8 to 10 p.m. Thursdays and Saturdays and from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

The VFW post was raided Sept. 23 by Bullock's Raiders, Texas Rangers and Texas Alcoholic Beverages Commission agents. The bingo operation was shut down and the Raiders confiscated the post's bingo cards and equipment.

Later in 1982, the Midland County Grand Jury decided against indicting any of the bingo operators, and Midland County voters on Jan. 15 overwhelmingly voted to legalize the game under the Bingo Enabling Act, 2,141 votes to 636. However, fewer people voted in the election than had signed a petition calling for the it.

Under the act, proceeds from games must go to charities, although up to $2,500 in prizes may be awarded to players in any one bingo "occasion." The highest single prize in a game is limited to $500.

In a hearing in the Justice of the Peace Courtroom, the district attorney said the $1,176.05 confiscated by the Raiders on Sept. 23 was being donated to charities of the post's own choosing and would not be returned to the post.

"We did not feel that under the law we could return it to them because of the type of seizure it was," Martin explained.

Stovall said post officers decided to donate $600 to the Permian Basin Boys Club and $576.05 to the Windland Park Wheelchair Fitness Course.

In turn, Martin signed checks made out to the two groups and handed them to Stovall for presentation to the charities.

But Martin noted that Midland County could have kept the money, which Texas Rangers had in a safe until Friday, when the money was deposited in the District Attorney's Special Projects Account. The two checks were written on that account, "so there would be an absolute record of what happened," Martin said.

"We (the county) could have sought to confiscate it," he said, "because it was charity money. We didn't feel like it was charitable to do that."

Singer Karen Carpenter dies

Cardiac arrest kills 32-year-old

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP) — Singer Karen Carpenter, who with her brother Richard helped bring romance back to pop music in the 1970s with mellow songs like "We've Only Just Begun" and "Close to You," died of cardiac arrest Friday at age 32.

Ms. Carpenter, whose songs sold more than 60 million albums worldwide, had long suffered from anorexia nervosa, a disorder in which irrational fear of being overweight leads to compulsive dieting and can impair health, according to her publicist.

Ms. Carpenter died at 9:51 a.m. at Downey Community Hospital, said spokeswoman Julie Levesque. She was brought to the hospital at 9:23 a.m. after collapsing at her parents' nearby home.

Her publicist, Paul Bloch, said she died of a full cardiac arrest.

Bill Gold, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County Coroner's office, said Ms. Carpenter was 5-foot-4 and weighed 108 pounds. "A lot of people are making a connection (between the disease and her death) but we're not into medical guesswork here," Gold said.

Gold said Friday night than an autopsy had failed to determine what had caused Ms. Carpenter's heart to stop. He said that no injuries were noticed on her body. Laboratory tests were being conducted and would take several days to complete, he added.

"It's a shock to all of us," Bloch said. "She became ill at her parents' home and they rushed her to Downey Community (hospital)."

The Carpenters, whose bright smiles and youthful looks personified their fresh sound, recorded back-to-back hits, "Close to You" and "We've Only Just Begun," in 1970. These came at a time when pop music was dominated by anti-war and anti-establishment themes and a hard rock sound.

In their early days, the slender brunette surprised audiences by playing the drums on some of their numbers, but she soon began devoting her full attention to singing.

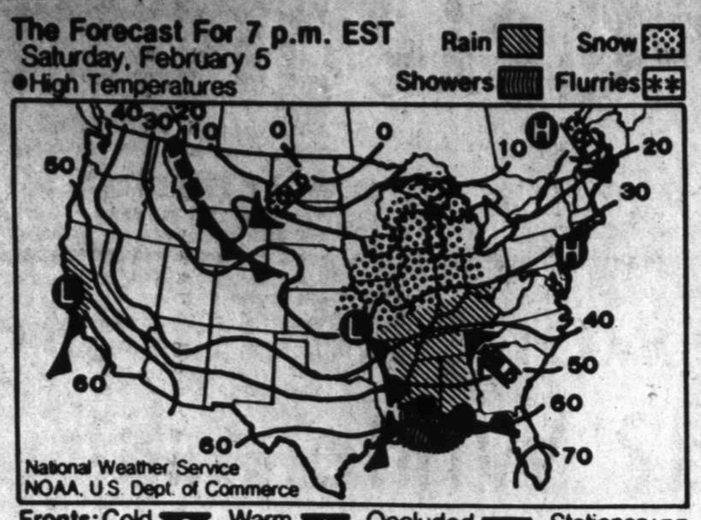
WEATHER SUMMARY



AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecast for today calls for rain in parts of California and in states bordering the Mississippi River. There will be showers along the Gulf coast from Louisiana to the Florida panhandle. It should snow from the Great Lakes area down to Kansas.

Forecasters decide snowfall won't be turning up after all

Although freezing rain had been predicted to fall early this morning in the Permian Basin, the National Weather Service has lifted its forecast for snow for the remainder of the weekend.

Cloudy skies and warmer temperatures are expected today, with the high reaching the upper 40s. Westerly winds should be 15-20 mph. Partly cloudy conditions are forecast for tonight with a low in the mid-50s, while Sunday should be partly cloudy with the mercury zooming up to the low 50s.

Friday proved foggy and dreary for much of the Permian Basin, however, with Midland recording an official 0.03 of an inch of precipitation and other locations reporting even more inclement weather. Sleet was reported in Andrews and Garden City, as well as in Lamesa, where a Dawson County Sheriff's Department spokesperson said ice was "covering everything up pretty good."

Snow was reported in McCamey and Iraan, with freezing drizzle occuring in Big Spring. Elsewhere, rainfall doused Stanton, Big Lake and Crane.

Friday's moisture brought Midland's monthly total to 0.03 of an inch and the 1983 amount to 1.17 inches. The high temperature of 36 was less than half the all-time record for the date of 78 set in 1962, while the low at the freezing point was well above the frigid 11 of last year.

'Some of those alcoholics work for you'

Reformed alcoholic discusses disease

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

The Rev. Joseph C. Martin, an authority and world-renowned speaker on the disease of alcoholism, encouraged business representatives Friday to develop a program to deal with the illness before it sucks the lifeblood from the nation's industries.

Martin, speaking to a luncheon attended by area businessmen and women, said that, according to government figures, there was an "epidemic" of more than 9 million alcoholics in the United States as of 1968.

He said the 9 million figure was easily a conservative estimate, and reminded those in attendance at the Midland Hilton that when 6 million or more cases of any disease are reported, federal law dictates that the president must declare a national state of emergency.

"My friend," said Martin, "if you're wondering how big the problem is, that's how big it is."

Robbie Scott, director of professional relations for the La Hacienda Treatment Center in Hunt, co-sponsor of Martin's appearance, said alcoholism reportedly costs U.S. industry an estimated $50 billion annually in poor production, absenteeism and excessive use of sick time. Scott said alcoholism costs Texas businesses about $1.2 billion and companies in West Texas as much as $50 million each year.

"The problem is astronomical," said Martin. "But I always say: 'If your mother has it (alcoholism), that's how big it is.'"

Martin reminded those in attendance that a state of emergency has not been declared because many alcoholics are still functioning.

"Sheer law of averages says that some of those alcoholics are working for you," he said.

Martin said poor production, inferior quality and absenteeism "are written into prices" paid by all consumers.

"Doesn't it make sense, since we're paying for it anyway, to do so at the front end instead of the back end and maybe save some lives in the process?" he asked.

Martin suggested the businessmen and women follow a three-phase plan, the three "Ps" of policy, program and professionals, to combat alcoholism within their companies.

He recommended that a company's policy on drinking by employees should adhere to the following guidelines: "Your drinking is your business. Your work is my business. When your drinking interferes with your work, now your drinking becomes my business."

Martin suggested that companies then pursue the final two "Ps," by selecting an established alcoholism treatment program operated by trained professionals.

"Where treatment is proper, 60 to 80 percent can recover," Martin said. "Alcoholics can get well; you're looking at one."

Martin said he entered a special treatment program for alcoholic priests about 25 years ago.

Since then, he has authored a book on alcoholism, and made eight films and 18 cassette tapes on the subject. Martin's film "Chalk Talk on Alcohol," filmed for the U.S. Navy in 1972, has been seen by millions of recovering alcoholics throughout the world.

Martin is also co-founder of Ashley, Inc., a non-profit center located in Havre de Grace, Md., and dedicated to the treatment of sick and suffering alcoholics.

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission also sponsored Martin's appearance.

Weinberger accused of causing trouble

By The Associated Press

Israeli officials on Friday accused Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger of looking for fights and playing "a dangerous game" by praising a Marine who drew a gun on an Israeli tank patrol in Beirut.

Meanwhile, Christian East Beirut came under renewed Druse shelling and France prepared to send more peacekeepers to Lebanon.

In Tel Aviv, Economics Minister Yaacov Meridor said Weinberger was looking for a fight with Israel by saying that Israeli actions in dealing with Marines stationed near Beirut were "both unnecessary and basically damaging to the president's efforts to secure peace in the whole area."

On Wednesday Marine Capt. Charles B. Johnson waved a pistol at an Israeli tank patrol during a dispute over which side had control over a piece of territory in the Lebanese capital, and Weinberger praised Johnson's conduct as worthy of a commendation.

Meridor told Israel radio: "There are factions that do not particularly like us, like Weinberger. He doesn't praise Israel every Monday and Thursday. They are looking for conflicts."

An Israeli Foreign Ministry official, briefing reporters on condition he not be named, said Weinberger may have reacted without knowing all the facts of the incident, and said the Israeli Embassy in Washington would discuss the matter with the Pentagon and the State Department.

"WE DON'T understand what the fuss is about," the official said. "It has been blown out of proportion by Secretary of Defense Weinberger for reasons we do not understand. It is surprising that that Marine who drew his gun on what America calls its friend and ally is being commended instead of being sharply reprimanded.

"This is a dangerous game. I don't think an American drawing a gun on an Israeli soldier should be commended," the official said.

"Maybe we deserve an apology. We were in the right," the official said. "If it wasn't very sad, it would be amusing."

Amusement and astonishment characterized the response of Israeli military circles to Weinberger's praise of the Marine captain.

"If an Israeli captain had done such a thing to a Marine tank, we would have opened an investigation and taken appropriate measures," said one military official, also requesting anonymity.

DAVAR, NEWSPAPER of Israel's opposition Labor Party and a critic of Israel's 8-month-old invasion of Lebanon, said the confrontation could be added to "the blacklist" of negative results of the war. "The atmosphere of idiocy that prompted Israel to go into Beirut is continuing with the incidents with the Marines," it said.

Meanwhile, shells slammed into Christian-populated east Beirut for the second time in a week as Christian and Druse militiamen battled with artillery and multiple rocket launchers on the hills overlooking the Lebanese capital.

Police said two policemen were killed and seven wounded when one rocket landed in front of the Beirut security headquarters in the Badaro neighborhood.

The French Defense Ministry in Paris said 160 troops from the 9th Marine Infantry Division were leaving by plane for Beirut and 138 others with 60 vehicles would sail to Lebanon on Sunday.

The reinforcements will beef up the 1,600-man French contingent following bombing and shooting attacks that wounded three French peacekeepers in west Beirut in one week.

Salvation Army to head energy aid program

The Salvation Army Corps has been selected to manage the funds of Texas Electric Service Company's Energy Aid Program in Midland and Odessa.

Energy Aid is a program designed to help people who have severe financial hardships pay their essential energy bills.

Funds for the aid program will come from a donation made by Texas Electric and continuing contributions to be made by the company's customers and employees.

The Salvation Army will qualify recipients and act as the disbursing agent in Midland and Odessa. Residents of Midland County needing energy help should apply directly to the Salvation Army, 300 S. Baird St., 683-3614. Residents of Ector County should apply to the Salvation Army at 810 E. 11th Street, 332-0736.

TESCO customers who wish to make a donation to the energy fund may do so when they pay their electric bills, beginning in February. Donation amounts should be written in the space provided on the upper portion of the electric bill. This amount should be added to the amount due and only one check written to the company.

All funds donated for the Energy Aid Program will be turned over to the Salvation Army.

Kubiak plans rallies

BRYAN (AP) — Dan Kubiak, a Democratic candidate for the 6th Congressional District, said Friday he will appear at nine "whistle stop" rallies today.

The campaign tour begins Saturday morning in Ennis and ends with a night rally in Conroe.

In between there will be stops at rallies in Corsicana, Mexia, Groesbeck, Bremond, Hearne, Bryan-College Station, and Navasota.

"Daisy," a Sheltie-mix pooch, is looking for a home. If you're interested in providing shelter for this 1½-year-old spayed female dog, described as a good house dog, you can adopt her today for a fee from the Animal Control Center. The Center, located at 1601 E. Orchard Lane, is open today from noon to 2 p.m. and Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Legalized bingo makes Midland debut

Among items confiscated by the Raiders were the cards, including 1,545 push-tab bingo cards, the balls, bingo records, card holders, one box of miscellaneous tickets and coupons, two wheels and one squirrel cage, a personalized $20 check made out to the VFW, and a $50 I.O.U.

Late Friday afternoon, VFW members filled the beds of two pickup trucks with the confiscated bingo items, which were being stored by the Texas Department of Public Safety here, and returned them to the post on Midland's south side.

Not returned to the post and marked for destruction was one box of the illicit pull-tabs, which District Attorney Investigator David Byrnes, a former Texas Ranger, said were a type of lottery — a "paper slot machine." Byrnes said $67.50 from the sale of the pull-tabs was confiscated by the Raiders.

"I knew that we had those pull-tabs," conceded Stovall, who said he doesn't play bingo, "but I didn't know that they were being used."

Since January 1982, more than 300 Texas counties, precincts and cities have legalized bingo via elections. The comptroller, who will monitor bingo records and funds, is charged by the state Legislature with enforcing bingo laws.

"We are very much at peace, since it's legal," said the 57-year-old Stovall. "It's legal. That's for sure."

Singer Karen Carpenter dead at 32

Her brother, who accompanied her on a variety of instruments, was at the hospital with parents Agnes and Harold Carpenter when she died, Bloch said.

Bloch and Ms. Carpenter's close friend, composer Burt Bacharach, said she had battled anorexia for years.

Bloch said she had suffered from anorexia for the last 12 months, but was believed to have overcome the condition after treatment and had planned a new album this month and a summer tour of the United States.

"She and Richard were kind of taking it easy the last couple of years...doing some traveling, etc.," he said. "She was the best. Her voice, she's one of the great singers of all time. Her voice was incredible."

"I was totally stunned," said Bacharach, who wrote a number of her hits. "It was a great voice, she was a great girl.

"This was a wonderful fresh voice that came out of this really fresh, wonderful girl," he said. "She had a sound in her voice that was very unique, that I haven't heard before and haven't heard since."

Bacharach said that when he last spoke to her three weeks ago she was "up and enthusiastic" about plans for her new album. "I think she had a lot more to sing."

Her last album, "Made in America," was released in 1981.

The Carpenters' manager, Jerry Weintraub, said in a statement: "Karen Carpenter's death is a great personal loss, not only as a client-manager relationship but as a great friend. In my opinion she was the greatest female singer in the world."

Bolivia sends ex-Nazi Barbie on presumed flight to France

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia expelled ex-Nazi Klaus Barbie Friday night and put him on a flight that Interior Minister Mario Roncal said was bound for France, the nation that accuses the Nazi "Butcher of Lyon" of murdering thousands of French Jews and resistance fighters.

Earlier reports quoted Roncal as saying Barbie was being sent to Peru, but instead of boarding the scheduled Aeroperu flight at the La Paz airport, Barbie was put on a Bolivian military aircraft.

An airport official said the plane's initial destination was French Guiana, a French colony on South America's north coast, but this was not confirmed.

Barbie was released from jail Friday night after his representatives paid the remainder of a debt to the state mining company.

Shortly after the release order was signed, Barbie was taken from the jail surrounded by heavily armed guards, his head covered with newspapers.

Brothers discover one another after 48 years

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Eugene Capraro, separated from his brother as an infant and unable to find him despite years of searching, thought it was a joke when he was told his brother was looking for him.

"But I thought, 'What the heck,' and followed through with a phone call to the Salvation Army," Capraro said.

That led to an emotional meeting Thursday between Capraro, 48, of Cleveland, and Al Williams, 50, of Carson City, Nev., two brothers who hadn't seen each other since Capraro was six months old.

"It is just unbelievable," said Williams, a Nevada parole and probation officer. "All I know is I'm happy I have a brother."

In telephone conversations before the meeting at Reno-Cannon International Airport, the two brothers discovered that their paths had nearly crossed several times through the years.

Both served in Vietnam at the same time, Williams in the Marines and Capraro in the Navy. Both were stationed at Okinawa at the same time — Williams on land and Capraro on a ship.

And Capraro, now a wheelsman with the Merchant Marines, lived in Reno in 1967 before Williams moved to Carson City, just 30 miles away.

Williams, born in Lunenberg, Va., said he first learned he had a brother when he was 25 and an aunt mentioned it to him casually.

Capraro, born in North Woodstock, N.Y., said he discovered that he had a brother when he registered for the military and saw on his birth certificate that he was the second of his mother's children.

The brothers said their mother died in 1935 and they were immediately separated. Capraro remained with his father and Williams went to live with his aunt.

Williams said he searched for his brother soon after learning about him from his aunt. But he said he had the wrong spelling of Capraro, and only realized the error last September.

He said he immediately contacted the Salvation Army's Bureau of Missing Persons and within three months received a phone call from Capraro.

Capraro said he also had searched for his brother. "I stopped looking because I didn't know his last name," he said. "I didn't know his real name because we had different fathers."

Bill would make pharmacy robbery federal crime

Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., this week reintroduced a bill that would make robbing a pharmacy for narcotics a federal crime.

The pharmacy crime bill, which last session passed the Senate but was stalled in the House, would act as a deterrent and reduce the number of pharmacy robberies, which have jumped 160 percent since 1973, Jepsen said.

"Did you know that a person can walk into a pharmacy and obtain a controlled substance by using a forged prescription and it is a federal offense?" Jepsen asked Thursday at a press conference. "But if that same person walks into the pharmacy, puts a gun to the head of the pharmacist, and robs and murders the pharmacist, that is not a federal offense?"

Since 1973, the first year legislation such as the Jepsen/Hyde bill was introduced, 11,786 pharmacies have been robbed of controlled substances (narcotics such as amphetamines and barbituates). During those robberies, about 2,300 persons were injured or killed, according to Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) figures.

Supporters of the Jepsen/Hyde bill point out that while it is a federal crime to fail to report a robbery to the DEA, the robbery itself is not a federal crime.

Executive Vice President of the National Association of Retail Druggists (NARD), William Woods, who sat beside Hyde and Jepsen, said that NARD provides each of its 30,000 members with a felonious assault insurance plan, which includes a $50,000 death benefit.

Holding up a $50,000 check to be mailed to the widow of a Florida pharmacist, Woods said he "hopes the pharmacy crime bill will prevent us from ever having to send one of these again."

The Jepsen/Hyde bill calls for a penalty of imprisonment for not more than 10 years and/or a fine of $5,000 for a first offense of pharmacy robbery. For armed assaults, the penalty would be not less than 15 years nor more than 30 years, and a fine of $15,000. For murder, the convicted felon would serve 20 years to life in prison.

Hyde said he has been assured by Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J., chairman of the House Subcommittee on Crime, that hearings will be scheduled "at the earliest possible date," an assurance not offered in past years, he said.

In the Senate, the bill will go to the Judiciary Committee, where Jepsen anticipates easy passage because it passed the Senate 95-1 last session.

Justice Department seeks Williams' resignation

CHICAGO (AP) — The government has asked that Teamsters President Roy L. Williams, facing sentencing for a bribery conviction, be ordered to resign immediately because of reputed links to organized crime, instead of keeping his post until appeals are exhausted.

Gary Shapiro, deputy chief of the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force here, said Friday that his office expects to demonstrate during sentencing that Chicago and Kansas City organized-crime families exert control over Williams and the union.

The Justice Department on Thursday sent a memo seeking Williams' resignation to U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall, who will preside over sentencing hearings beginning Monday in the Teamsters' bribery case.

Williams, 67, and three others face up to 55 years in prison each following their Dec. 15 convictions for conspiring to bribe former U.S. Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., with a lucrative Las Vegas land deal. Cannon was not charged.

A fifth convicted defendant, Allen Dorfman, a millionaire insurance executive and former Teamsters pension fund consultant, was killed last month in a gangland-style execution.

The other defendants are Joseph Lombardo, a reputed mobster and two former Teamsters pension fund officials, Thomas O'Malley and Andrew Massa.

Williams was released Friday from a Denver hospital, where he was treated for emphysema, and could not be reached for comment. In the past, Williams, who has vowed to appeal his bribery conviction, has denied links to organized crime.

Shapiro said the government is recommending that Williams "should be sentenced to prison and also be sentenced to probation and probation should start immediately."

Shapiro said the government is urging that as a condition of probation, Williams should be ordered to resign from union employment and not accept or seek any job by a labor organization or union during his probation.

Without such an order, Williams, elected in 1981 to a five-year term as Teamsters president, would be allowed to remain in his post until his appeals are exhausted. Federal law automatically would exclude Williams from union activity for five years after that.

Ken Paff, organizer for Teamsters for a Democratic Union, a Detroit-based dissident group, said Friday his group has been calling for Williams' resignation.

Helicopters ferry supplies to stranded Navajo families

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — Helicopters ferried emergency supplies of food and fuel Friday to Navajo families in Arizona and New Mexico who have been stranded in knee-deep mud on their sprawling reservation for six days.

Efforts to help as many as 1,000 families have been hampered all week by winter storms that have left up to 3 inches of snow in northwestern New Mexico and northeastern Arizona.

Four New Mexico Army National Guard helicopters were dispatched from Gallup with food, fuel, firewood and hay for the Indians' livestock.

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt said he would send three National Guard helicopters to the Window Rock, Ariz., area if weather permitted.

Snowy weather prevented both states from sending helicopters to the stranded families Thursday.

"It would have been like flying in a milk bottle," said Peter Borrow, public information officer for the tribe's public safety division.

Since Sunday, when rescue efforts began, about 400 families have received aid, Borrow said. He estimated that at least 400 more families were in need of supplies.

Rain and melting snow, combined with temperatures above freezing, have created a deep, viscous mud that has prevented the Navajos from driving for supplies, said John Clark, Red Cross disaster consultant to the Navajo Nation.

Along with the helicopters, supplies have been taken to the Navajos by six-wheel-drive trucks and snow cats, which Borrow said are "similar to Army tanks."

No deaths have been attributed to the mud.

Chagra jury retires without verdict

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A federal jury retired without a verdict Friday in the murder trial of Jamiel A. "Jimmy" Chagra, accused of ordering the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Judge William S. Sessions completed his charge to the 10-woman, two-man panel about 10:30 a.m. CST, shortly before a lunch recess, and the panel deliberated about 4½ hours before recessing for the night.

Facing the jury after lunch was the task of going over the testimony of almost 90 witnesses and scores of exhibits, including tape-recorded conversations, introduced during a three-week trial.

The jury asked to rehear four specific tapes when they resume deliberations Saturday morning. Friday, the jurors asked Sessions to re-read the charge and also requested an easel, paper and some pens.

Sessions, a U.S. district judge from San Antonio earlier had excused one juror and replaced him with an alternate. The judge said that apparently, information about the case contained in media reports had been discussed in the jury room before the panel received the case.

"The court has become aware that there have been discussions among jurors," said Sessions, who had interviewed four panel members in his chambers before dismissing juror Dewey F. Harper. The 12 jurors and remaining two alternates were then sequestered for the duration of deliberations.

Chagra, 39, was named in an April 15, 1982 indictment accusing him of paying Charles V. Harrelson $250,000 to murder Wood, known as "Maximum John," to eliminate him from a 1979 narcotics case in the Western District of Texas.

The government claimed Chagra, a convicted narcotics trafficker and former high-stakes gambler, feared the judge would give him a harsh sentence if he was convicted.

Wood, 63, was shot in the back outside his San Antonio townhouse on May 29, 1979.

Harrelson, 44, already has been convicted of firing the fatal shot. Chagra was convicted of continuing criminal enterprise after Wood's death and was sentenced to 30 years without parole. His murder trial was moved to Jacksonville because of extensive pretrial publicity about the case in Texas.

The defense claimed that Chagra had no motive to murder Wood because his attorneys and prosecutors were five years apart in agreeing on a plea bargain sentence, and that Chagra knew he would be eligible for parole whether he received the 15 years recommended by the government or 10 years offered by his attorneys.

The defense claimed Harrelson came to him after the murder and extorted thousands of dollars from Chagra by threatening to implicate him.

Harrelson, Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, and his brother, Joseph S. Chagra, were also accused of murder conspiracy in the four-count indictment last spring. Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann, was charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Included in assertions by the government were:

— Chagra, who was living in Las Vegas, was on Feb. 26, 1979, named in a five-count indictment in the Western District of Texas charging him with dealing in marijuana and cocaine.

— Wood was assigned to the case and Chagra's attorneys tried through legal channels to have him removed because of alleged bias.

— Harrelson, fresh out of prison in 1978 after serving time for murder, met with Chagra in Las Vegas in late April or early May 1979 at the Binion's Horseshoe World Series of Poker.

— Chagra checked Harrelson's reputation as a reliable killer through furtive telephone calls to mutual acquaintances.

— Harrelson tried unsuccessfully to obtain a rifle through a friend. Jo Ann Harrelson purchased the weapon believed to have fired the fatal shot at a Dallas gun shop.

— Harrelson either killed Wood or caused him to be killed on May 29, 1979.

— Harrelson disposed of the car he had used and arranged an alibi for the morning of the murder.

— Harrelson and his wife had her daughter by another marriage, Teresa Starr, go to Las Vegas and pick up a briefcase containing money on June 24, 1979 from Elizabeth Chagra.

Chagra and Harrelson were accused of murdering a federal judge on account of his official duties.

Chagra and his brother, Joe, also were accused of plotting to import marijuana to finance Chagra's way out of Leavenworth, either through bribery of officials or escape.

After a 12-week trial in San Antonio, Harrelson was convicted last Dec. 14 of murder, conspiracy to commit murder and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Jo Ann Harrelson was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice, and Elizabeth Chagra was convicted of both conspiracy counts. Harrelson and the two women are to be sentenced by Sessions on March 8.

Joe Chagra, an El Paso lawyer, pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy and was sentenced Dec. 21 to 10 years in prison after a plea bargain agreement in which he would not have to testify against his older brother.

City officials want parade throwing banned

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Throwing candy, coins and other objects to the crowd is a tradition in parades here, but some of the items are dangerous and so is the scramble for goodies, say city officials who want the practice stopped.

As a compromise, a city council committee proposed a block-long "no-throw" zone where children would be safe from hurled candy and other flying objects.

Mayor Kate Bagley, who wants to ban all throwing during parades, said that during the last Christmas Parade a large pin-on button bearing the words "God is Love" was tossed into the crowd.

"That could really put someone's eye out," she said. "The fact that it had a biblical quotation on it wouldn't make it hurt any less."

She added that candy-throwing causes mad scrambles among children.

Girl encourages boyfriend to kill himself

HOUSTON (AP) — A 17-year-old girl, indicted on charges she gave her boyfriend "verbal encouragement" to kill himself, is being investigated on a complaint that she also helped another teen-ager slash her wrists, authorities said Friday.

Jean L. Miller was indicted on the felony charge by a Harris County grand jury in connection with the Aug. 27 shooting death of 18-year-old Kent Kretsinger.

Bond was set at $10,000. Ms. Miller faces up to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine if convicted on a charge of aiding a suicide.

Assistant District Attorney Brian Rains said Harris County sheriff's deputies also were investigating a complaint from the mother of a 17-year-old girl. The mother said her daughter and Ms. Miller apparently slashed their wrists while in a motel room, Rains said.

Kretsinger shot himself once in the chest with a .38-caliber pistol at his family's home, Rains said. In a string of notes, Kretsinger said he was happy and gave no reason why he would take his life, Rains said.

"It's scary, it's sad," Rains said. "I read those notes and started crying. He talked about how he was as happy as he had ever been."

The girl allegedly helped Kretsinger arrange to take his own life and "provided verbal encouragement" for him to shoot himself, Rains said.

"It makes no sense for a normal, healthy kid headed for college to kill himself without someone convincing him to do so," Rains said.

Ann Kretsinger, the victim's mother, told authorities Ms. Miller had "some kind of power" over her son, Rains said.

Ms. Miller wanted to attend Kretsinger's funeral and play punk rock music as a memorial, but the victim's family did not allow her to attend, Rains said.

According to Rains, Ms. Miller allegedly spent several days discussing with Kretsinger his plans to kill himself.

During this period, Rains said, Kretsinger asked his mother about writing a will, and indicated he wanted to leave his car and other possessions to Ms. Miller.

Jury declares Hastings innocent

MIAMI (AP) — A jury found U.S. District Court Judge Alcee Hastings innocent Friday of obstructing justice and conspiring to take a $150,000 bribe in return for favors to two racketeers. He was the first active federal judge ever charged with committing crimes while on the bench.

The jury of seven women and five men returned the verdicts at 4:03 p.m. CST. A tremendous shout went up in the courtroom as deputy clerk Patricia Fitzpatrick announced that Hastings, 46, was acquitted on both counts.

Hastings, Florida's first black U.S. District Court judge, smiled and nodded at his attorney, Patricia Williams, as his law clerk Alan Ehrlich stood up and tore a copy of the indictment into shreds.

"Can I use your phone, I want to call my mama," Hastings asked U.S. District Judge William M. Hoeveler's secretary as left the courtroom.

Members of the audience, including members of Hastings' staff, spilled out of the small courtroom, crying and hugging each other after the verdict was read.

The jury, which included two blacks, deliberated 17½ hours over three days before clearing Hastings of both counts in the indictment, which was returned by a federal grand jury in Miami.

In Washington, Tom DeCair, a spokesman for the Justice Department, said there would be no immediate comment from the department on the acquittal.

Government prosecutors Reid Weingarten and Robert Richter looked toward the floor after the verdict was read and quietly congratulated Hastings' defense team.

Asked his immediate plans, the judge replied, "I'm going to take my time going back on the bench, but I am going back on the bench. That's for sure."

U.S. District Judge Edward T. Gignoux, of Portland, Maine, appointed by Chief Justice Warren Burger to hear the historic case after Hasting' colleagues throughout the South disqualified themselves, dismissed the jurors by urging them not to discuss their decision. The government had alleged that Hastings conspired with his attorney-friend, William A. Borders Jr. of Washington to sell sentencing favors to the two racketeers, who were convicted in his court.

Author's cycle of novels all take place in Albany, N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — William Kennedy thinks of his novels as threads in a tapestry he is weaving with words.

When he's finished, the 55-year-old Kennedy hopes to have created "a tapestry that will contain the entire history of my fantastic city — Albany, N.Y."

But that won't be for a while yet.

Although Kennedy has already published three novels in his Albany cycle — "Legs," "Billy Phelan's Greatest Game," and, most recently, "Ironweed" — he envisions many more to come.

"I'm not writing a trilogy, not a quartet, not a quintet," Kennedy says softly but emphatically, "I'm writing a cycle. All of my last three novels have characters in common, and I plan to use them or their relatives or their ancestors in my future books.

"I've already got another eight books in the cycle planned, and there may even be more if I live long enough to write them."

Kennedy's fascination with Albany began early.

"I was born and raised there," he says, "and I've spent most of my life there or in the area. I wasn't all that old before I learned that it was one of the oldest cities in this country and had a history that goes right back to the very start of this nation.

"Early on I started reading books about the city's history. I still do, and this appears in my work. The novels are a blend of history and fiction.

"'Legs,' for example, is a fictionalized version of the life of Legs Diamond, the gangster. He was shot and killed in Albany in 1931. 'Billy Phelan's Greatest Game' concerns a kidnapping in Albany, and while the book's a novel, the kidnapping background in it really did happen. 'Ironweed' is set in the Depression, as it was in Albany, and its main character, Francis Phelan, is Billy Phelan's father.

"Even my first novel, 'The Ink Truck,' while it really isn't part of my cycle, is set in a surrealistic city that was inspired by Albany, and the strike that takes place in that book actually took place. That strike was real. I know, I was in it.

"So, you see, the sense of place is very important to me in my writing. Things happen in my Albany because it is a specific place, a place where people can function."

Kennedy, who lives with his wife in Averill Park, just outside of Albany, began writing novels after a number of years working as a journalist.

"During my newspaper days," he recalls, "I wrote a lot of short stories and eventually I got around to thinking about writing a novel. I did, and the first one I wrote wasn't published but I didn't expect it to be because it was mostly an exercise aimed at convincing myself that I could write a novel.

"My next novel wasn't published either, and that's too bad because it was a good novel. But it worked out because I created the character of Francis Phelan in it, and while he didn't see life in that book, he now does in 'Ironweed.'"

Kennedy, who teaches fiction writing and journalism on the university level to supplement his writing income, recently put the finishing touches on a non-fiction book. Its title, "O Albany!" He says, "It's a history of the city and deals with its neighborhoods, ethnic groups, politics. It's also autobiographical in part."

That done, he has set to work on another novel.

"It starts in 1849 and it will end, I think, after the Civil War, but you never know. The cast of characters includes ancestors of the Phelan family, and it's set — where else? — in Albany."

Town leaders tear streets down to basics

OAKLEY, Idaho (AP) — Town leaders here believe in getting back to basics as a means of saving money. Last year they tore up a road right down to the gravel — and they may do it again.

Cutbacks in highway funds prompted the City Council to consider restoring some streets to the way they used to be.

The council has not yet picked a definite road to tear up at this time but one was done last year and it produced a better road than trying to patch up an old one.

Kids try fairy tale characters

PRESCOTT, Wash. (AP) — The Big Bad Wolf was guilty of property destruction as charged. Gretel was cleared of murder in the killing of the old witch, but it took four polls of the jury to acquit her.

Teacher Bill Wolford uses fairy tale characters who are good, bad or just everyday citizens to show his class of about a dozen second-graders at Prescott Elementary School how the American judicial system works. He said it also trains them to think on their feet.

The students, ages 7 and 8, play defendants such as the smirking wolf who blew down the Three Little Pigs' houses, or the frightened Gretel, who shoved the witch into the oven and banged the door shut.

Students also play witnesses, lawyers and jurors.

"Their reading, comprehension and listening have developed because they have to think," Wolford said. "I generally sit down with the students and let them throw out ideas."

Wolford said he sets aside 45 minutes each Friday for the discussions and fairy tale trials for his pupils in this southeast Washington community.

"I guide the discussion by keeping them on track, but I let them develop it. Afterwards they explain how they reached their conclusions. It's important that the decision-making process be shared," he said.

Angela Gessel, 8, appropriately defiant as the Big Bad Wolf, was grilled about whether she huffed and puffed and blew down one little pig's straw house.

"Just as I was beginning to talk to the little pig, a strong wind came up and blew the house down," she claimed. The jury didn't buy that story and convicted her.

In the case of Gretel vs. The Second Grade, the jury had a tougher time. Gretel baked the witch to death, that's clear; but was it murder or justifiable homicide?

Jurors finally acquitted Gretel because of testimony by a woodcutter who said that after the witch died, all her belongings vanished. The woodcutter added, however, that the witch always fed him cookies and seemed nice enough.

Since the witch tried to roast Hansel and Gretel, she had to be a bad witch, not a good one. Gretel, the jury concluded, did what needed doing.

When students recently discussed "Jack and the Beanstalk," they questioned whether Jack had the right to run off with the giant's golden horn.

"I read the story and then asked them if there was anything wrong with it," Wolford said. "They agreed Jack was stealing and that wasn't right.

"Then they started thinking about Jack's cutting down the beanstalk and killing the giant. Some pointed out that if he hadn't cut it down, the giant would have killed him. But one boy said he could have just scrambled down the stalk" and run away.

"Then another boy asked if he'd ever tried to outrun a giant."

The beanstalk caper was just a matter of discussion, and Jack will not be tried, Wolford said.

Pennsylvania dam not sturdiest

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP) — When most people think of a dam, chances are they picture a mighty, concrete structure braced against the rapids — something like Hoover Dam, maybe.

Stretching nearly half a mile across the Susquehanna River, the Sunbury dam hardly presents such a breathtaking image. This dam, in fact, looks more like a fat rubber hose snaking through the currents.

Actually, the Sunbury dam is made of seven cylindrical fiber bags bolted to a concrete base. The bags inflate — like balloons — when pumped with water or air.

That elevates the water level upriver about six feet, thus creating an artificial lake that everyone hoped would be ideal for boating.

The Sunbury dam has one more thing in common with a balloon.

It bursts.

The most recent blowout, said William Lotz, founder of the Lake Augusta Boaters Association, came last summer. Whenever a bag pops, it's great news for anglers, who can row their rowboats downstream and hook into hungry schools of bass and walleye cascading over the breach.

The aftermath isn't as dandy for sportsmen who park their boats upriver.

In last summer's incident, Lotz said, the river depth plummeted to knee level, capsizing several vessels, running others aground and causing thousands of dollars worth of damage. He said boat owners had no warning beyond radio announcements.

That was only the latest accident involving the "Susquehanna River Inflatable Dam," which has been jinxed almost since the day it was installed for $1.2 million back in 1969.

In 1972, Tropical Storm Agnes destroyed both the dam — a cement truck was among the debris that came floating down the river, said the resident engineer — and a marina at nearby Shikellamy State Park.

The marina had been dedicated only four days earlier.

Repairs on the dam dragged on until August 1974. Since then, misfortune has plagued the dam almost every season.

Lotz, a 33-year-old salesman, wants the state Department of Environmental Resources to admit the dam is a lemon and replace it with something more reliable.

The Lake Augusta Boaters Association, Lotz said, represents 300 boaters, picnickers, hikers, joggers, fishermen and other outdoorsmen. The group plans to incorporate as a non-profit agency.

Aggies don't cotton to orange idea

BRYAN (AP) — The city manager quickly withdrew a suggestion that garbage collectors in this Texas A&M-dominated town wear fluorescent orange coveralls — the team color of the Aggies' archrival, the University of Texas.

City Manager Ernest Clark, a graduate of West Texas State University, said he will consider less controversial colors.

"I thought it was a joke at first," Clark said of the council's reaction after members nearly laughed him out of the room. "But some of them were serious."

Clark said the orange coveralls would increase the safety of the 50 garbage collector because of their visibility. He said Texas A&M's color, maroon, would be a flop — "You can't see it in the dark."

Council member Wayne Gibson suggested clothing the 50 garbage workers in gold, yellow or pea green.

"Anything but orange," Gibson said.

UN office bans baby carriages

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Peacocks are to be left in peace but baby carriages are banned under a new stern code of conduct for visitors to the sprawling grounds of the United Nations office in Geneva.

Picnics are permitted but there is a strict ban on "walking around topless" and "utilizing any musical instrument," according to the rules just posted at all gates of the huge conference center.

The 62-acre park is off limits to "dogs and all other domestic animals" but the peacocks are privileged.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: President Ronald Reagan, TV newsman Tom Brokaw, singer Natalie Cole, Zsa Zsa Gabor, actor Rip Torn, attorney Louis Nizer and director Francois Truffaut celebrate birthdays today. Also born on this date: the great Babe Ruth. Revive an old business or career plan. The results will be enormously pleasing. Do not be surprised if you are asked to join a former partner or employer in a new venture. It is essential you get any guarantees in writing. Romance continues to have its ups and downs, but you decide to hang in there. Give careful thought to the advantages, drawbacks of marriage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A contribution is rewarded. Be sensitive to the feelings of a neighbor who has suffered a loss. Romantic opportunities abound. Use your popularity to gain concessions for a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Call someone you have not seen or talked with recently and exchange family news. A sports event captures your attention this afternoon. Avoid irritating mate. Be a good listener.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep the home fires burning for someone who must be away today. A current love needs reassurance. Your self-esteem is on the line when someone challenges your talent or credibility.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You attract a new admirer when you think you do not stand a chance. Romance is filled with surprises. The time you spend on study and research is a good investment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A swap meet is fun, but you could end up with some junk. Have a garage sale of your own. Domestic harmony is restored when you swallow your pride and admit a mistake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Forget any financial worries and spend the day with someone who shares your interests. Fresh starts prove fortunate for those in love. Make the most of a romantic occasion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You meet some interesting people when visiting a friend's church. Try to develop a better understanding with mate. You can save yourself a lot of money by making prompt home repairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Listen to those who clearly have your best interests at heart. Be reasonable in your demands on other family members. Several generations should be included in an afternoon gathering.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Entertaining at home has more appeal for you now. Be sure mate feels the same way. Controversial subjects are best avoided. Plan to serve foods that can be prepared in advance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Contact people who are in a position to help your career. You could learn of a job opportunity at a social gathering. Pay more attention to mate's needs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Postpone putting a new plan into action. Influential people will resent being contacted at home. Talking things out helps you. Family member can be trusted to keep a confidence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A sympathetic friend tells you that you are on the right track. Remember, this person may not know all the facts. If tired, postpone making a major decision.

Nursing home costs lauded

Autumn Hills actions defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The operator of a Texas nursing home investigated in the deaths of eight patients said Friday that the home's patients often were critically ill when they arrived, transferred in from a nearby hospital where care was more expensive.

"We're not killing these people," Robert Gay, president of Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc., told the Senate Special Committee on Aging. "They just die for $30 a day instead of dying for $300 a day."

Earlier, David Marks, former assistant district attorney for Galveston County, told the committee he found that the firms's nursing home in Texas City had not fed its patients properly and often had too few licensed personnel on duty.

Marks said neither Texas health officials nor the criminal justice system had responded adequately to the problems at the home.

"This case, like the nursing home residents it reflects, was intended from the beginning to die of neglect," said Marks, who was fired in December for fighting a plea bargain agreement which would have kept the firm from being prosecuted on murder charges in connection with the deaths.

The agreement, reached between Autumn Hills and then-District Attorney James Hury, allowed the Houston firm to plead no contest to a single count of involuntary manslaughter in the 1978 death of a patient, Edna Mae Witt.

Originally, the firm and eight present or former employees had been charged with murder in the deaths of eight patients between 1977 and 1979.

Last week, Autumn Hills withdrew its plea, opening the possibility that the case again would go to a grand jury.

"We've asked that it be taken to trial so we can quit being perceived as guilty," Gay told the committee, which heard testimony on Autumn Hills in connection with its consideration of federal health payment mechanisms.

Committee Chairman John Heinz, R-Pa., raised the possibility that the federal government could recover some of the Medicaid money paid to the home for patient care, in view of the allegations of insufficient care.

However, Carolyne K. Davis, administrator of the federal Health Care Financing Administration, told Heinz that the government could take no such action until the allegations were proven in court.

"If we know service hasn't been delivered, we don't have to wait for a finding of criminality," Heinz responded, adding that Davis' position "troubles me deeply."

Marks, displaying a series of charts and graphs, told the committee that on 65 percent of the days between March 1976 and April 1978, the home did not have the minimum required number of licensed staff personnel on hand.

He said a supply analysis also had determined that between early May and mid-June 1980, the home had received only 57 percent of the liquid feeding formula necessary to adequately care for patients.

Despite continued complaints by Texas health officials, the firm never once suffered a financial penalty for its conduct, Marks said.

"There is a cost incentive, presently exisiting, to provide inadequate care," Marks said.

Gay told the committee that Marks had no expertise in nursing home care, and was misinterpreting the figures he had presented.

"I'm a little bit amazed at the importance put on his testimony," said Gay.

Alleged thefts behind DHR worker firings

DALLAS (AP) — An investigation into the thefts of Christmas toys for needy or abused children has led to the firings of four Texas Department of Human Resources employees.

A department spokesman said the unidentified employees were fired this week following allegations they stole an undetermined number of the toys.

No criminal charges have been filed against the four.

Three of the fired employees were social caseworkers and the fourth was a clerk-typist, department spokesman Bill Buchanan said.

People flock to Fred's auction for entertainment, socializing

FRED, Texas (AP) — It has all the characteristics of a good Saturday night out on the town. The entertainment is cheap, and the place is always packed with familiar faces.

Pickup trucks line the highway in front of one of the few structures in the twon proper. Inside the converted grocery store, numbers are assigned to the pairs of eyes scrutinizing the trinkets of bargain (if not pristine) quality collected on the tables.

Children mill around munching potato chips. Crowd talk is of recent family surgeries and the state of the economy, only one of the factors that draws bargain seekers here.

The chatter dies away, and the spectators straighten in their seats as a hefty, coveralled figure steps behind the podium and takes microphone in hand.

A gutteral cacophony rises from his throat. The utterance continues for a few seconds, and the crowd understands that the item just thrown on the auction block has failed to receive a bid.

"It belonged to my first wife," yells the owner of the makeup mirror.

Still the mirror draws no bid. "Take it back to your first wife," advises the auctioneer.

The Fred Auction House has attracted a sizeable crowd this night. A few come to sell from their caches of junk, most buy something and all come to be entertained.

"We had never heard of this town before we started coming here. Now we've made so many friends," says Mrs. Jack Flinn. She and her husband say they drive over from Houston every week. Some of their purchases are kept, some resold.

"Raymond bought several thousand dollars worth of toys the other night," says Flinn, pointing to the trinkets the auctioneer just dumped on the front table.

Col. Raymond Shadden was a route salesman for a potato chip company before he opened an auction house in Jasper 15 years ago. He and fellow auctioneer Carl Morris operate a corner of the Southeast Texas auction circuit.

Shadden helps Morris operate the Fred auction on Saturday nights and also one in Cleveland on Thursday nights. Morris, in turn, assists Shadden at his Jasper auction on Friday nights.

Shadden bought the toys now on the block the night before from a $10,000 lot owned by another dealer. He plans to sell more at still another auction, in Sour Lake the next afternoon.

"Some people don't do any Christmas shopping but at auctions," he says.

Shadden graduated from an auctioneer school in Fort Smith, Ark., 12 years ago.

"I took up auctioneering as a sideline, and it brought in more income than my regular business," he says. "An auctioneer I hired didn't show up one night. After I got up there and made a fool of myself, I decided if I was going to auction, I wanted to do it right."

The title, he says, is a tradition held over from the days when the Army held auctions over which only an officer who held the rank of colonel or higher could preside. "I don't know if it's true, but it makes a good story," he says.

"We call this a consignment auction. Actually, it's just junk people leave with us to sell," he says with a shrug. "You make your money on liquidation sales — grocery stores going out of business, people selling off their households. This is for fun. I like people. You can't do this unless you like people."

One night, Shadden wears a black derby that changes positions just about with every bid. Other nights he wears a baseball cap, sometimes cocked sideways, sometimes backwards, but always awry.

He looks into the audience with an anxious countenance as he sells off his own various sundries — a Christmas tree stand without screws, a perfumed pen-and-pencil set, a knife bearing a Ku Klux Klan message ("You don't have to join to use it").

At the microphone again, Shadden asks for bids on a consigned set of six shot glasses.

"You don't need more than one of those," he reasons and changes the description of the items to "toothpick holders."

Two long-blade knives come next. "Three of a kind beats a full house if you got one of those," he quips.

The owner of the unsold makeup mirror runs through his lot and begins to assemble the odds and ends rejected by the audience — the mirror, a broken space heater, a pair of ceramic elephants, a squeegee, a doll monkey playing drums, several boxes of bubble gum and a hub cap.

The collection fails to draw an acceptable bid, and the seller throws in a dozen kitchen knives. "His alimony must be due," Shadden kids.

After a stack of recipe cards and several furniture dollies are added, the pile goes for $35.

The crowd begins to thin after four hours. The night probably hasn't been as profitable as most. "Not much money spent tonight," says Flinn.

But the crowd doesn't mind. They didn't come only to spend their money on other people's castoffs. They came to fraternize at Fred's pseudo-social club.

Minister delivers own eulogy

Videotape helps pastor impart feelings

PARMA, Ohio (AP) — A 27-year-old minister who died after suffering from cancer for two years gave the sermon at his own funeral Friday — on video tape.

The Rev. James Dotson was an associate pastor at the Brookwood Way Church of Christ in Mansfield, a non-denominational church with 14,000 members nationwide. He died Tuesday.

At the service Friday, the Rev. Coy Siddall, an associate pastor who worked with Dotson, delivered a short eulogy and introduced the tape.

"It doesn't really matter what I might say leading into the tape," Siddall said. "What he has to say is much more important."

Dotson, who recorded the tape in his church Jan. 5, appears wearing a yellow sweater and holding a copy of the Bible.

The videotape monitor was placed on a stand to the left of Dotson's casket, which had been open until the tape was replayed.

"I know at first that it might seem strange that a person might preach at his own funeral," Dotson told the audience of about 100 people. "It was not just to do something odd or strange. Maybe if another person were to say these things, you might be offended."

Dotson proceeded to discuss the way he dealt with his cancer and his ultimate death.

"Only the Christian is better off after death," Dotson said. "For some people, death will be a terrible thing. I've been very open with some of you as I've struggled against this cancer. I'm not in fear of death as a Christian.

"Please don't die without being saved, without having your sins forgiven. I can't wait to be reunited with you all, in heaven."

Dotson quoted from the Bible throughout his 30-minute sermon, and told the audience that he wanted his funeral to be a "victory celebration."

Siddall said after the funeral that he had planned the service with Dotson and felt good about what was said. Dotson is survived by his wife, Mara, and daughter, Nicole.

"We as ministers don't preach and try to convert people at funerals," Siddall said. "This is very much in character for Jim. For him, this was a message, not a grandstand."

The audience in the funeral parlor sat quietly during the sermon. One woman hushed her young children during the service. "Sssh," she said, "Jim's talking."

Chemical used in toys possible cancer causer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chemical often used in pacifiers and squeeze toys has been shown to cause cancer in animals, but there still is not enough information to determine the extent of any health risk to people, the Consumer Product Safety Commission was told Friday.

Animal tests also indicate that the chemical, di (2-ethylhexyl) phthalate or DEHP, may cause birth defects.

The commission staff is sponsoring tests to determine what levels of exposure to DEHP result from use in children's products. Preliminary results indicate there will be some exposure, the staff said, and the tests are continuing.

Dr. Peter Preuss, the commission's associate executive director for health science, said he always is concerned when animal tests show that a product is carcinogenic. "But because of the lack of data on exposure, I would carry that concern only so far," he said.

Pressed by the commission to assess how carcinogenic the chemical is, Preuss said, "Its potency, based on animal tests alone, is lower than formaldehyde."

DEHP, used in polyvinyl chloride goods, is present in numerous products, ranging from artificial leather clothing and upholstery to children's toys and pacifiers.

In 1980, according to a study done for the commission, 137 million children's products containing between 5.3 million to 12.9 million pounds of DEHP were distributed. These products include pacifiers, teething rings, squeeze toys, crib bumper pads, playpen covers, baby mattresses and baby pants.

The staff said children's products are of special concern because of the likelihood of direct and extensive contact with the skin and mouth.

The commission has scheduled a meeting next week with representatives of the Chemical Manufacturers Association to hear the industry's views about the use of phthalates in consumer products.

Defense keeps Bulldogs alive

Hixon, Rooker, Pitts steal Cooper blind in 4-5A battle

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The Midland High Bulldogs came up with what Coach Jack Stephenson called "the best defensive effort we've had in a long time," Friday night to help break open a close game late in the third quarter and set up a 68-49 District 4-5A victory over Abilene Cooper at Chaparral Center in a game you might call a steal despite the 19-point spread.

It was turnovers more than any other statistic that did in the Cougars as the Bulldog defense, in their "wave attack," swarmed the entire court all night for 41 thefts; spear-headed by Doug Hixon with nine, Chris Rooker with seven and James Pitts with six.

In the total defensive picture, Hixon was the dominating factor as he picked up six blocked shots and added seven rebounds.

WHILE STEPHENSON was exceptionally happy with Hixon's performance, he was "also pleased with Chris Rooker with seven steals, two rebounds, one turnover and two assists and that's coming off the bench. I don't even care how many points he had."

Rooker had six.

"I thought we had a real good team effort and as good a defense as we've had all year," said Stephenson. "Those guys (Cooper) are pretty good and you're pleased any time you get the win. We needed an opportunity like this, to blow somebody out. I think it will help us in the last four games."

THE GAME was close throughout most of the first three quarters. After five ties in the first frame, the Bulldogs jumped out to an 11-10 lead going into the second and led 25-22 at the half.

Cooper managed to regain the lead once in the third quarter, 30-29 with 4:33 left on the clock, but quick buckets by Hixon and Johnny Pannell, both off assists by Blake Liberty, punched the Bulldogs into the lead for good and it was just a matter of time before they put the game on ice. The Bulldogs led by six going into the final period, 43-37.

Offensively, Pannell, after a slow start, started finding his range and ended up with 9 of 16 field goals for 18 points to lead the way while Hixon was 8 of 15 for 16. On the night, Midland High hit 53 percent of its shots from the field and 60 percent from the line.

On the other side of the court, Bob Estes paced the Cougars with 13 while Sam Lowry hit for 12 and Greg Mendenhall 10. Cooper's field goal percentage was respectable for most games, 46 percent.

THE VICTORY keeps Midland High in the thick of the 4-5A title chase behind Odessa High, a 53-46 winner over Big Spring, and Abilene High, 64-52 over Midland Lee. The Bronchos and Eagles are 7-3 in loop action.

An upset in San Angelo by Odessa Permian, 62-60 in overtime, knocked the Bobcats out of the previous three-way tie for first place and into a tie with Midland High for third. Both have 6-4 records in league play.

All Stephenson would say about the 4-5A title race, which has only four games remaining, was: "It's going to be interesting, very interesting."

In junior varsity action, the Bullpups jumped all over the Cougars quickly enroute to a 69-45 victory. Chris Herbert and Todd Shiplett set the pace with 16 pints each while Dennis Cano added 12.

Doug Hadley and Ken Norward led Cooper with 11 and 10 points respectively.

For the Cooper sophomores, it was an overtime victory over Midland High. No statistics are available.

Michaels recalls the old Pro Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Walt Michaels, the American Football Conference coach for Sunday's Pro Bowl, last was in the All-Star game 23 years ago, as a player.

Times have changed, he said.

"When I played in 1960, it was $600 each for the winners and $400 for the losers," Michaels said, chuckling. "I told the players that earlier this week and some of their eyes lit up and they asked, 'Was that before we were born?'"

As a matter of fact, AFC running back Marcus Allen of the Oakland Raiders wasn't born when Michaels made his final playing appearance in the Pro Bowl — Allen is 22.

The payoffs for the NFL All-Star game this year are $10,000 apiece for the winners, $5,000 for the losers.

"For us, it was a big $200 spread between winning and losing," said Michaels. "Of course they were different bucks in those days ... but not that much different.

"We still had fun, though."

Also when Michaels last was in the Pro Bowl, it was played each year in Los Angeles. After being shifted around to different locales for a nine years beginning in 1971, the game seems to have found a permanent home in Hawaii, where Sunday's game will mark the fourth consecutive year in Honolulu.

Michaels smiled when asked about his squad for Sunday's game, which will be nationally televised beginning at 3 p.m. CST.

"They're the talented ones, both physically and mentally," he said. "They were chosen by a vote of their peers and they're the best."

The American Conference squad includes quarterback Dan Fouts of San Diego and running backs Freeman McNeil of the Jets and the Raiders' Allen in the backfield.

The AFC defense includes the Jets' Mark Gastineau, Art Still of Kansas City, Ted Hendricks of the Raiders, the Steelers' Jack Lambert, and Robert Brazile of Houston.

The NFC, coached by Dallas' Tom Landry, will feature Washington quarterback Joe Theismann and running backs Tony Dorsett of the Cowboys and William Andrews of Atlanta.

Howser, Colavito given probation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City Royals Manager Dick Howser and Coach Rocky Colavito Friday were placed on six months of unsupervised probation for an altercation they had with police after a game last summer.

The cases against both men will automatically be closed at the end of the six month period unless the terms of probation are violated, said their attorney, Michael Waldeck.

Last fall a Municipal Court judge convicted Howser and Colavito of hindering and interfering with police officers. The judge sentenced them to 90 days in jail.

At a hearing today before Jackson County Associate Circuit Court Judge Vincent Baker, both men denied any wrongdoing but presented no evidence, Waldeck said. Baker suspended the sentence against them and ordered the probation.

The charges against Howser and Colavito, the club's batting instructor, stemmed from a traffic accident at Royals Stadium involving Colavito's car after a game Aug. 19. Authorities said the pair struggled with police officers and that Colavito tried to strike the driver of the other car involved in the accident.

Howser and Colavito have contended that they did not interfere with the officers, but rather were the victims of a police assault.

Eagles snub Lee; Mojo downs Bobcats

ABILENE — The Midland Lee Rebels gave the Abilene High Eagles a run for their money in the first half of Friday night's District 4-5A game, but a 29-16 third quarter cost them the lead and eventually the game, 64-52.

Lee stopped the high-scoring Abilene High attack in the first quarter, 5-4 and then showed some offensive potential of their own in the second by taking a 25-21 halftime lead. Disaster struck in the third period as the Rebel advantage turned into a nine-point defecit, 50-41. AHS won the fourth quarter 14-11 to put the game away.

Tyrone Thurman led the Lee scoring attack with 11 points while Derek Westbrook added 10 and Tod Brown nine. For Abilene, Les Hines tallied 24 points with Mike Simmons adding another 17 and Shannon Daniel 10.

The victory leaves Abilene High on top of the 4-5A standings at 7-3, tied with Odessa High, a 53-46 winner over Big Spring. The loss for Lee also knocked the Rebels out of any hopes of gaining a playoff berth in 1983.

THE BRONCHOS jumped out to a quick 18-10 lead in the first quarter and stretched it to 37-19 at the half before Big Spring started coming alive. The Steers out-pointed OHS 16-4 in the third quarter to narrow the gap to 41-35, but they couldn't keep it up in the final frame.

Joe Terry paced OHS with 24 points followed by Howard Harris with 14. As usual, Jerald Wrightsil led the Steers with 27 points but was the only Big Spring player in double figures.

The loss drops Big Spring to 4-6 in 4-5A play and gave a severe blow to its playoff chances.

IN WHAT proved to be the biggest upset of the night, Odessa Permian outscored San Angelo 8-6 in overtime to gain a 62-60 victory which knocked the league-leaders out of a three-way tie for first place and into a two-way tie for third with Midland High, both at 6-4.

Permian took the lead early, 18-11 but had to rely on a 14-6 spread in the fourth quarter to move into overtime where the Panthers came away with the win.

Rodney Hendrix and Paul Peacock paced Permian's offensive attack with 16 points each while Jeff Kasner led San Angelo with 18 points followed by Lorand White with 16 and Jeff Carsner with 13.

Midland Lee (52): Tyrone Thurman, 4-3-11; Bryan White, 2-0-4; Eric Griffin, 2-1-5; Alvin Henry, 3-0-6; Derek Westbrook 4-2-10; Sylvester Johnson, 3-0-6; Tod Brown, 3-3-9; Tim Hill, 0-1-1. Paul Dacus, 0-0-0; Mike Lake, 0-0-0; Perry Manriquez, 0-0-0; Robert Lowe 0-0-0. Totals: 21-10-52.

Abilene High (64): Neal Coates, 0-2-2; Tony Roberts, 1-0-2; Mike Simmons, 6-5-17; Shannon Daniel, 3-4-10; Les Hines, 10-4-24; Ruffus Brooks, 2-0-4; Kurt Robinson, 0-1-1; Tom Simmons, 1-0-2; Tim Robinson, 1-0-2. Totals: 24-16-64.

Boynton wants to fight at 61

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Sixty-one-year-old Arthur Boynton's quest to prove he still has plenty of punch could pit him against a man nearly 40 years his junior in an amateur boxing match.

But first, he has to prove he's fit to fight.

The Vermont Boxing Control Commission and promoters of the tournament scheduled a full afternoon of extensive tests at the Medical Center Hospital Friday.

A news conference was canceled Friday night when commission Chairman Bernard Cummings said the results would take longer than expected.

"It looks like he's in good shape — mentally. As for boxing, I can't say anything about that now," Cummings said. The results are expected by noon Saturday.

But Boynton says he's raring to go.

"Everybody thinks you have to be burned out by the time you're 60," said the 6-foot-3 inch, 214-pound Orford, N.H., heavyweight. "I don't believe that."

"I hope I don't break my hand, but I'll chance it," he said.

Quotes...

"I feel I've given a lot of my own life for five years and pretty hard fighting in the trenches. I think we are pretty close to walking in the parade, and they've decided my uniform is a little too dirty to walk in the parade from all that time in the trenches."

— Former Kansas City Coach Marv Levy, who said that the Chiefs fired him in a moment of panic, and that the club was only one year away from making the playoffs.

Neither cocaine, nor strike, nor litigation can stop NFL

HONOLULU (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle believes the game itself will allow the league to continue to thrive after a season of turmoil which included a major court setback, a players' strike and wide-spread publicity about some players' use of cocaine.

"As we saw in the Super Bowl, regardless of the problems we have off the field, litigation or whatever it may be, the game brings them back," Rozelle, in Hawaii for Sunday's Pro Bowl said Friday. "I think the job the players and the coaches did in the Super Bowl wiped out much of the distaste of the strike.

"Whatever problem we have, the game on the field brings us back with the public. It always has, anyway, and I think it will this time."

Rozelle said that there was a lot of negative publicity about the teams in the Super Bowl prior to last Sunday's NFL championship contest, saying that the game wouldn't be exciting.

"It might well have been the most exciting of the 17 we've had," he said of Washington's 27-17 victory over Miami, "It had the long kickoff return, long touchdown pass, John Riggins...

"We were lucky enough to do what we intended to do when the strike ended, make the best of a bad situation, and we think it turned out that way. We should be able to come back to training camp on the same upbeat...Baseball came back very strongly after its strike."

Talking about the Raiders' victory in their antitrust suit against the league last spring, Rozelle said, "There created a lot of uncertainties about whether clubs can just move. That's why we're not talking about expansion."

He smiled and added, "I'd like to go into Washington today and tell those congressmen and fans, 'You've got the same size stadium as the Raiders in Oakland, the only difference is you're in the nation's capital and they're out there. How would you feel if Jack Kent Cooke moved the Redskins to Memphis or Roanoke?'

"I know what the answer would be."

The NFL and the Raiders continue to be tangled in a web of litigation.

The verdict favoring the Raiders in the antitrust suit is being appealed by the NFL, with oral arguments to begin in April. The damages portion of that trial, which could cost the NFL millions of dollars, is scheduled to start in March; in May, a court in Northern California will hear Oakland's emminent domain suit against the Raiders.

Also, Rozelle indicated the league will continue to work in the U.S. Congress to get an exemption from antitrust laws, such as baseball now enjoys.

On the question of players and drugs, the commissioner said he thought the publicity actually turned out to be a positive thing.

" It helped convince the players' association and the owners and coaches that it (drug abuse) was more widespread than people realized and enabled us to get more cooperation from them," he said."

Rozelle said a number of new programs have been implemented by the league now, including one to educate college players who appear in all-star games.

On another subject, Rozelle would not speculate on what direction the league might take when its television contract runs out at the end of 1986.

"We'll wait until it's time to start negotiating and then evaluate the situation," he said. "I'm convinced that at least part of our games will be on free television, and maybe all of them, I don't know. It depends on communications technology by then, and what's feasible for us."

Knicks destroy Mavericks

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Bill Cartwright scored 27 points and Len "Truck" Robinson added 23 as the New York Knicks beat the Dallas Mavericks 120-101 Friday night in National Basketball Association play.

The triumph was New York's sixth in seven games and lifted the Knicks to 20-27. Dallas fell to 22-24 with the loss, only its third in the past 12 games.

New York, in last place in the Atlantic Division, hit 62 percent of its shots and 85 percent of its free throws. Sly Williams and Paul Westphal added 17 points apiece while Trent Tucker and Louis Orr had 12 each for the Knicks.

The loss equaled the Mavericks' worst defeat of the season.

Mark Aguirre led Dallas with 26 points and Rolando Blackman added 21.

An early 25-16 New York lead was erased by a 22-4 Dallas sprint that gave the Mavericks their biggest lead at 38-29. But Cartwright, who scored 21 first-half points, led the Knicks on a 20-6 surge of their own to put New York into a 56-49 halftime bulge.

Westphal had 13 points and six assists in the third quarter as New York took control. The Knicks led 91-79 going into the final period.

Celtics 102, Pacers 93

INDIANAPOLIS — Larry Bird scored a game-high 23 points and pulled down 20 rebounds Friday night as the Boston Celtics held off a late Indiana surge to defeat the Pacers 102-93.

Robert Parish scored 18 points for the Celtics, Quinn Buckner 12, Nate Archibald 11, and Kevin McHale and Danny Ainge had 10 apiece.

Johnson scored 13 of his points in the first half, while Roundfield and Rory Sparrow each had 10 as the Hawks surged to a 57-39 halftime lead.

Cleveland, 9-38 after its third consecutive defeat, was led by World B. Free with 26 points. No other Cavalier was able to score more than 11 points.

Sparrow finished with 14 points for Atlanta, now 23-24. Dominique Wilkins had 10.

Nets 120, Bulls 98

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Darryl Dawkins scored 18 points, Buck Williams added 14 and rookie Eric "Sleepy" Floyd had a season-high 13 to lead eight New Jersey Nets in double figures in a 120-98 rout of the Chicago Bulls.

New Jersey's biggest lead was 41 points when Dawkins made one of two free throws with 6:43 left in the third quarter to put the Nets ahead 89-48. Dawkins scored 14 of his points in the first half.

Bullets 100 Clippers 93

USFL swoops up two more

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Washington Federals of the United States Football League on Friday signed former Atlanta Falcons running back James Mayberry while running back Billy Taylor, who led the New York Giants twice in rushing in four seasons, has signed with the Boston Breakers of the U.S. Football League.

The Federals signed Mayberry, of Colorado University, who played with the Falcons.

Tar Heels roll, 81-36

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Top-ranked North Carolina, sparked by the hot shooting of Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan, took an easy 81-36 victory over The Citadel Friday night.

Perkins poured in 17 points and Jordan 14 as North Carolina won its 16th straight and raised its record to 19-3.

The Tar Heels jumped out to an early lead, scoring six straight points, and their sticky man-to-man defense plagued The Citadel throughout, forcing six turnovers in the opening 12 minutes.

North Carolina led 36-21 at halftime and the 45-point final margin was its largest lead.

Billy Olson shatters 19-foot barrier

DALLAS (AP) — Billy Olson will compete in the Dallas Times Herald Invitational indoor track and field meet just one day after setting a world best in the pole vault.

Olson, of the Pacific Coast Track Club in Los Angeles, set the world best indoors Friday night when he pole vaulted 19 feet, 3-8th inches at the Toronto Star-Maple Leaf Indoor Games. He was successful on his second attempt.

Olson has predicted he can do 19-5 on a good runway such as the one at the Dallas meet's site, Reunion Arena.

"The vaulters love to jump here," Olson said of the Dallas track.

The former Abilene Christian University star has bettered the world indoor standard three times this year. He first established the mark of 18-10½ at Ottawa, then improved it to 18-10¾ at Los Angeles.

Olson has an outdoor best of 18-10. The world outdoor record is 19-0¾, held by Vladimir Polyakov of the Soviet Union.

Olson will be challenged by former college teammate Brad Pursley, who has soared 18-4, Japan's Tomomi Takahaski, and Dan Ripley.

The meet also features shot putter Michael Carter.

Carter, the starting nose guard on Southern Methodist University's No.2-ranked and Cotton Bowl-champion Mustangs, missed the 1982 track and field season because of a football injury.

His last outdoor outing was in June 1981, when he threw the shot 69-6¾. Carter later was injured against Texas and missed the 1982 indoor and outdoor seasons while his knee injury healed. He returned to competition indoors earlier this season.

Carter won the NCAA indoor and outdoor shot put titles in his freshman and sophomore seasons.He holds the meet record at 65-2.

Carter goes against former Ohio State star Kevin Akins, who has thrown 70-5 indoors. The world indokor best is 72-2¾, by George Woods of the Pacific Coast Club.

The star-studded field also includes Mary Decker Tabb, who holds the world indoor best in the women's mile, Carl Lewis and Evelyn Ashford in the men's and women's 60-yard dashes and, Bert Cameron in the men's 440-yard dash.

The 35-pound weight throw has SMU's Robert Weir, holder of the world indoor best at 77-6¾.

Tabb lowered the world indoor best three times last year to 4 minutes, 20.5 seconds. She will be pushed by Francie Larrieu Smith, Jan Merrill and Jo White.

The meet has drawn crowds over 10,000 the past two years and meet sponsors are predicting another large turnout.

Francis sees no racial bias in NCAA upgrading

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The president of the United Negro College Fund said he sees no racial bias in the NCAA's attempts to upgrade the academic status of college athletes by demanding stiffer entrance requirements.

Norman Francis is also president of Xavier University and vice chairman of the Educational Testing Service, which prepares the SAT, one of the tests at the focus of protests against the new NCAA regulations. Formerly, he had a hand in preparing the ACT, the other test that has sparked protest.

Xavier is a predominantly black private university.

Proposal 48, passed by the NCAA at its meeting in San Diego, requires anyone getting an athletic scholarship to have had a "C" average in a core curriculum of academic subjects and to have either a 700 on the SAT or a 15 on the ACT — scores at or below the 30th percentile nationally.

Jesse Stone, president of Southern University, said he had no quarrel with the core curriculum, but regarded the standardized test requirements as one that would have racial and regional bias.

He was joined in his outcry by the president of Grambling University, another predominantly black college, and by black activist Jesse Jackson, among others.

Francis did say, in a release Friday, that the NCAA may be putting too much weight on standardized tests as a requirement for entrance.

But he denied that the tests discriminate against blacks, as opponents of Proposal 48 claimed.

Prep education, not the race of the student, is the determining factor in how well one scores, he said.

Winder is back in fold

ABILENE — Dick Winder has rejoined the coaching ranks of District 4-5A after signing on as the new head coach of the Abilene Cooper Cougars.

Winder will leave his head coaching job at Monahans, where he has coached for the past three years after leaving Odessa High.

Winder never won a district championship at OHS or Monahans, but when he was at Odessa High, his Bronchos gave the cross-town Permian Panthers some very close calls.

As far as Midland Lee is concerned, it won't make much difference for Coach Spike Dykes, who had a game against the Monahans Loboes last fall. Only the meeting this time will be an all-important district matchup.

Midland High coach Pat Culpepper has never faced Winder on the gridiron.

Cooper made the announcement Friday that Winder will replace Ray Overton as the head coach at Cooper. Overton resigned at the end of the football season.

Shorty Lawson, Abilene athletic director, has not named a new coach at Abilene High to replace Louie Spinks, who also resigned.

Borg still wants out

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Five-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg said Friday his decision to retire from professional tennis is final.

"It's very firm," Borg, 26, told reporters at a news conference before a $50,000 exhibition match with Roscoe Tanner at the Scope arena.

"I don't have the same motivation and I don't enjoy it as much as I did before," said Borg, who appeared tired and subdued.

Borg beat Tanner in three sets in an exhibition match Wednesday night in Charlotte, N.C., and Tanner avenged that loss by beating Borg 6-2, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4 Thursday night in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Borg is scheduled to meet Jimmy Connors in exhibitions Saturday night in Baton Rouge, La., and in Providence, R.I., on Sunday. He's also scheduled to play in an eight-man exhibition next week in Toronto.

Borg will play in his final Volvo Grand Prix tournament in Monte Carlo in late March and early April and has exhibitions scheduled in Tokyo later in April.

Walter takes fencing crown

LUBBOCK — Four Midlanders won places in the Texas Tech Orphans Open Fencing tournament here this week with Robert Walter winning the foil event.

Mike Husband took second in the foil while Orlando Temple placed fourth. Bob Carabant won second in the epee.

The four are members of the La Belle Fencing Club of Midland.

MSA to select new directors

The election of the new board of directors for the Midland Softball Association will be held Feb. 16 at the Midland Civic Center, beginning at 7 p.m.

Managers for both men and women's teams need to be present. Sponsor fees of $400 per team will be accepted and player fees of $10 for city residents and $12 for out of town residents will also be accepted. Separate checks are needed for sponsor and player fees.

League play will begin April 11.

Ken Green lines up a putt on the 14th green at Pebble Beach Friday enroute to the second round lead of the Crosby Open.

Longshot soars past golf's top stars

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Ken Green, a decided longshot who admitted he playing better than he imagined he could, shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday and established a three-stroke lead with a two-round total of 134 in the $325,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

"I think I'm being realistic when I say I was hitting it too good. I was wondering what was going on. I could have birdied seven of the first eight holes, and I wasn't ready to handle that," Green said after his romp through brilliant, sunny weather.

"That's the best two rounds I've ever had out here," said the 24-year-old Green, now in his second year on the PGA Tour.

Asked if he'd ever led before, he grinned broadly.

"Not even close. You don't have to check the book on that. I haven't even come close," said the young man who hasn't made expenses as a touring pro.

Gary McCord and Jim Thorpe shared second at 137 at the halfway point of the tournament. McCord shot at Spyglass Hill, generally regarded as the most difficult of the three courses. Thorpe closed up with a 67 at Pebble Beach.

Green won only $11,899 last season as a rookie. He failed to retain his playing rights and had to go through the PGA Tour qualifying school again. In four previous events this season he has won $1,855.

He played his second round at Pebble Beach, one of three still-drenched Monterey Peninsula courses used for the first three rounds of this event. He'd shot rounds of 78 and 83 on that course in last year's U.S. Open.

While Green was completing the two best rounds of his young career, some of the game's more prominent names were having their difficulties on the courses that were saturated by a series of storms last week. So-called "winter rules" remained in effect, with players allowed to lift, clean and place balls in the fairways.

Tom Watson, the current U.S. and British Open champion, hit an approach shot into the lap of a lady sitting by the 14th green at Spyglas Hill. After staring at the ball for a moment, she got up, the ball rolled away and Watson made bogey on the hole. He shot a 1-over 73 for a total of 140, 4 over par.

Jack Nicklaus, also playing at Spyglass, again failed to get anything going. He shot another 71 and was at 142.

Joe Inman, the first-round leader, went from an opening 65 to a 75 at Cypress Point.

Chiefs to pass under 'Pokes Mackovic

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Five years ago this month, when the Kansas City Chiefs had one of the worst defenses in the National Football League, they introduced as their new head coach Marv Levy, a defensive specialist and lover of blood-in-the-mud football.

Concentrating on defense, Levy and his bosses assembled one of the NFL's best while the offense languished. This year the team fell to pieces following the 57-day player strike, and Levy was fired after fewer than 12,000 fans showed up for the last game of a 3-6 season. The offense had become, if not the NFL's worst, perhaps its dullest.

Now the task of rebuilding the Kansas City offense falls to John Mackovic, 39, the quarterback coach of the Dallas Cowboys who favors the passing game.

"I will work basically with the offense and I intend to call the plays," he said Thursday after signing a five-year contract as the Chiefs' fifth head coach since 1974. "Professional football today is the passing game. The key is to have a successful passing game. You might be behind two or three touchdowns in the NFL today and you've got to be able to throw the ball."

Mackovic spoke by telephone from Hawaii, where he is helping Dallas Coach Tom Landry prepare the NFC for Sunday's Pro Bowl. Watching his assistants graduate to NFL head jobs is becoming routine for Landry, who sent Mike Ditka to the Chicago Bears in 1982 and Dan Reeves to the Denver Broncos in 1981. Former San Francisco and New Orleans coach Dick Nolan was once a Cowboy assistant and New England Coach Ron Meyer put in time as a Dallas scout.

"You never want to lose a coach, especially after you've trained him, but I could never stand in the way," Landry said in Hawaii. "I wasn't surprised that John took the job."

Mackovic inherits a team that was 31-42 during Levy's five years. Since Hank Stram was ousted in 1974, the Chiefs' record of 43-72 is the worst in the AFC, and they have not been in the playoffs since 1972.

"You hire a coach to get you into the playoffs, and into a position to win the Super Bowl," Mackovic said. "The key is at what rate this is happening. We don't know how long it will take."

"He's one of the brightest young men I've ever met," Chiefs President Jack Steadman said at a news conference at Arrowhead Stadium.

"He's had head coaching experience. John Mackovic was the man we wanted and he's the man we got. I think he'll bring a lot of positives to our organization. I think we can build a strong organization around him."

Mackovic played quarterback at Wake Forest in the early '60s but never played in the NFL. He put in stints as an assistant at Army, San Jose State, Arizona and Purdue and was head coach at Wake Forest for three years before joining the Cowboys two seasons ago as quarterback coach.

His Wake Forest teams were famous for their wide-open offenses. He inherited a team that had been 1-10 and guided it to a best-ever 8-3 mark and a berth in the Tangerine Bowl in 1979.

"He took a program at Wake Forest that was a disaster and turned it around," said Steadman.

"I'm extremely excited about having this opportunity to be a head coach again," Mackovic said.

Levy's teams were characterized by a stout defense and a dull, run-oriented offense. Mackovic made it clear he intends to change that.

Janet Coles grabs lead in Arden Golf Classic

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Janet Coles fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday and took a two-stroke lead over Alice Ritzman and Lauri Peterson after two rounds of the $150,000 LPGA Elizabeth Arden Golf Classic.

Coles, a graduate of UCLA who finished 21st of the tour-earnings list a year ago with $71,379, wrested the lead from first-day leader Peterson with a round that included four birdies and no bogeys over the par 72, 6,211-yard Turnberry Isle Country Club course.

Coles birdied the fourth, sixth, ninth and 14th holes, while Peterson, who earned her LPGA tour card only last month, faltered with a bogey and double bogey in her first nine holes. Coles' two-round total stood at 6-under 138.

"I hit 17 greens. I played very well," said Coles, who has one career victory. "For the first time I didn't change anything during the off-season. I worked on things like chipping and putting, instead of changing my swing."

Peterson, a 22-year-old native of Waukesha, Wis., shot a 39 on the back nine of the Turnberry layout, which she played first, but came back to shoot a 32 on the front nine to finish with a 71 and two-round total of 140.

"I've done that before at the tour qualifying school. I shot a 41 on the front side and a 33 on the backside," said Peterson. "I was telling my caddy that today. Then I started being aggressive and going for the flags.

"Everybody thought I was going to choke," the first-round leader added. "I hit the double bogey and said, 'I'm not going to let it get to me. It made me mad that people thought I was going to choke. I know I'm a better player than that."

Ritzman was one of eight players who started the day two shots behind Peterson and she moved a shot closer to the lead with a 3-under 69.

Defending champion Jo Anne Carner, who shot a 70, along with Nancy Lopez and France's Anne-Marie Palli were tied at 142.

Mobley takes runnerup honors

SAN ANTONIO — Midland High's Kelle Mobley won runnerup medalist honors and the Midland Lee golf team placed fourth here Thursday and Friday in the San Antonio Invitational high school girl's golf tournament.

Mobley posted a two-round score of 166 with two rounds of 83 to finish behind medalist Donna Linder of Sequin, who posted a 153 with rounds of 73 and 80 on the par 72 Riverside Municipal course.

Porsche dominates endurance race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The 21st running of the 24-Hour Pepsi Challenge sports car endurance race will start today with what many observers believe is the strongest field in many years. And it certainly is the richest.

When Frenchman Bob Wollek, the record-setting pole winner leads the huge field — more than 70 cars — into the first turn at 2:30 p.m. CST, the assortment will include 10 Porsche Turbo 935s, ranging from $150,000-$250,000 apiece, and about 20 GT prototype racers, most in the same price category.

Even the cars in the slowest of the three divisions that will race over the 3.84-mile Daytona International Speedway for 24 hours, GTU machines like the 160 mph Mazda RX-7s, the Toyota Celicas and the Chevrolet Monzas, cost $20,000 and up in racing trim.

But Hurley Haywood, who has been with the winning team in this race four times, thinks the 200 mph-plus 935s will prove to be the class of the field again.

The sleek turbocharged German-made cars have won this race six straight years and Haywood sees no reason why it won't make it seven in a row.

"The prototypes are too fragile," said Haywood, who will share the Porsche Turbo 935 that will start fifth with Al Holbert and Bruce Leven. "In a 24-hour race, you need durability. and the Porwches are built like tanks. There's strength built into these chasis that you can't have with a GTP (Grand Touring Prototype).

"Porsche will win without a doubt. I just hope it's mine."

THE TOP five starters all are 935s, and with top speeds on the high-banked portion of the Daytona road circuit exceeding 200 mph, they will be hard to beat.

The cars given the best chance to break Porsche's dominance are some of the quicker prototypes, like the Lola T-600, the Jaguar XJR-5 and the Aston-Martin, all of which are capable of top speeds over 200 mph and are lighter than the 935s and could gain some advantage in the winding infield portion of the circuit.

"The key for the prototypes like our (Aston-Martin) car is durability," explained A.J. Foyt, who is making his first sports car racing appearance since he combined with fellow American Dan Gurney to drive a Factory sponsored Ford GT Mark IV to victory in the 24-Hours of LeMans, France, in 1967.

Foyt will team with two-time NASCAR Grand National stock car champion Darrell Waltrip, making his sports car debut, and Argentinian Formula Two champion Guillermo Maldanado, who speaks no English and communicates with his co-drivers through an interpreter.

"We'll let the team manager make all the decisions about who drives when," Foyt said. "But this is really fun.

"It felt real good when I got out there on the track. I've been away (from sports car racing) for a long while, but it was OK. It's pretty much like when we was running Fords in '67 here and at LeMans."

THE FIRST 10 positions were decided in qualifying Thursday, with the rest of the cars, led by prototypes, filling in the grid in Friday's time trials.

The turbocharged V-6 Lola shared by Danny Ongais, Ted Field and Bill Whittington was the fastest of the second-day qualifiers, turning the course in 1 minute, 42.554 seconds (134.797 mph) with Ongais at the wheel. Although the car will start 11th, that time was second only to Wollek's 1:42.155 (135.324).

Field's team also managed to rebuild the V-8 Lola T-600 which qualified eighth Thursday before being badly damaged in a fire caused by a blown rear tire and a subsequent spilled oil cooler. The team is expected to start both cars, then withdraw the slower one after an hour or two of racing.

An Aston-Martin driven by top woman entrant Lyn St. James took the 12th spot at 1:49.396 (126.367) and Maldonado qualified the other Aston-Martin 13th at 1:50.000 (125.673).

The GTO-division Avanti, an American hand-crafted car driven by Joe Ruttman, was next at 1:51.477 (124.808).

A.J. Foyt Jr. is a study in concentration Friday as he takes his car on the track at Daytona International Speedway. He will race for the first time since 1967 in an IMSA race, the 24-hour Daytona today.

Mancini predicts win by knockout

SAINT VINCENT, Italy (AP) — World Boxing Association lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini completed training Friday for his 10-round bout against Britain's George Feeney and said he was fit and confident that he would win by knockout.

Mancini, fighting Sunday for the first time since his title defense against South Korean challenger Duk Koo Kim, said he studied Feeney's qualities on videotape "and I can say to have a great respect for him".

"He is tough, he is better of some fighters listed at present among the top 10 in world rankings," the 21-year-old, hard-hitting champion from Youngstown, Ohio, said. "However, I am the champion."

Mancini repeatedly underlined since his arrival in this Italian gambling resort that he has overcome the psychological effects of Kim's death.

Kim suffered fatal brain injuries when he was knocked out in the 14th round by Mancini in Las Vegas last Nov. 13. Kim went into a coma and died a few days later.

Mancini's sorrow was recently renewed by reports from Seoul that Kim's mother committed suicide.

Mancini said, however, that he did not feel responsible for what happened to Kim "and this is why I am keeping on boxing".

The champion, who has been training since Jan. 14, fought 79 rounds in preparation for the match with Feeney. On Friday, he ended training with some floor work and punching speed balls in the gymnasium prepared specially for him.

"I trained in a perfect condition of relaxation here and people were extremely kind to me. I enjoyed the choice of Saint Vincent for my comeback," said Manicini.

Mancini, who considered quitting boxing soon after Kim's death, agreed on a fight with Feeney to test his physical and psychological condition in view of a scheduled title fight against fellow American Kenny "Bang Bang" Bugner on April 29, possibly in Atlantic City, N.J.

"It is a tough test because Feeney has proved in previous matches to have great physical endurance," said David Wolf, Mancini's manager. "We were not interested in an easy match, however. We wanted to have Ray engaged hard."

Feeney, who will turn 26 three days after the fight, is the British lightweight champion and is ranked No. 2 in Europe.

He arrived here Thursday and said he was certain he would do well against the world champion.

"I saw the film of his fight against Ernesto Espana and I can say Mancini is a strong, powerful and dangerous fighter. But I am well prepared to face his kind of boxing, to cause him trouble," Feeney said Friday.

The British boxer will rely on a longer reach to keep Mancini away and avoid close range boxing in which Mancini excels.

Mets deal Jorge Orta; Royals obtain Roberts

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets traded veteran outfielder Jorge Orta to the Toronto Blue Jays for right-handed pitcher Steve Senteney, and the Kansas City Royals traded a minor league prospect to the Toronto Blue Jays Friday for well-traveled outfielder Leon Roberts, who was the Seattle Mariners' most valuable player four years ago.

Orta had been obtained by the Mets from Los Angeles for pitcher Pat Zachry on Dec. 30. A .280 hitter over his 11-year big league career with the Chicago White Sox, Cleveland Indians and Dodgers, Orta hit .217 for the Dodgers last year with two home runs and eight runs batted in.

Orta, a two-time member of the American League All-Star team, hit a career high .316 for the White Sox in 1974.

Senteney, 25, split the 1982 season between the Blue Jays and their Syracuse farm club in the International League. He had a 0-0 record and a 4.91 earned run average in 11 games with Toronto, while posting a 4-8 mark with a 2.44 ERA and 13 saves — second in the IL — with Syracuse. He had 98 strikeouts in 96 innings last year at Syracuse.

Senteney's contract was assigned to Tidewater of the International League, but the Mets announced that he would come to spring training as a non-roster player.

The Mets also announced that third baseman Hubie Brooks signed a one-year contract Friday. Brooks, who hit .249 in 1982 with two homers and 40 RBIs, had been scheduled to go to salary arbitration next week.

General Manager John Schuerholz said the Royals sent Cecil Fielder, a first baseman and designated hitter at Butte, Mont., to the Blue Jays.

Roberts, 32, split the 1982 season between the Texas Rangers and Blue Jays. He has been in the majors since 1975 when he broke in with the Detroit Tigers and has also played for the Houston Astros and Seattle. He has a lifetime .269 batting average with 70 home runs and 301 runs batted in.

Roberts' top year came in 1978 with Seattle when he hit .301 with 22 home runs and 92 RBIs.

Dreyfuss says he's given up cocaine

Richard Dreyfuss

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy Award winner Richard Dreyfuss, charged with cocaine possession, says he had drugs on him when he was pulled from his overturned car last fall, but has given up cocaine since then.

"I was certainly in possession of controlled substances," Dreyfuss told a group of college students in a taped radio interview scheduled to be broadcast this weekend.

He explained that he pleaded innocent to the drug charge only so he could seek diversion of the case outside the legal system. California law allows drug charges against first-time accused offenders to be dismissed on completion of a probation-type program that usually requires counseling.

Dreyfuss, who won the Oscar in 1977 for "The Goodbye Girl," will find out at a March court hearing whether his case will be diverted.

Dreyfuss also said he's stopped using cocaine since the Oct. 11, 1982, car accident on a canyon road in Beverly Hills.

"I am very glad that I got caught," the 34-year-old actor said. "Without getting into anything theological, God turned over a car so I would stop and talk to him for a minute."

Dreyfuss was interviewed Jan. 25 at his Burbank office by Princeton University students producing a nationally syndicated radio show called "American Focus."

Ferdinand Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — An American veterans organization presented its silver helmet award Friday to President Ferdinand E. Marcos, citing stories of his heroism in fighting the Japanese during World War II.

In televised ceremonies at the presidential palace, AMVETS National Commander Robert Martin called Marcos "a soldier's soldier."

He recalled that the late Gen. Jonathan Wainwright had recommended Marcos, the Philippines' most decorated war hero, be given the U.S. Congressional Medal of Honor.

"That award we still hope should be forthcoming, however belatedly for President Marcos, which he richly deserves," said Martin.

The award came as the editor-publisher and nine staffers and columnists of the opposition tabloid newspaper "We Forum" were undergoing trial for subversion. They have been accused of conspiring to topple Marcos through "black propaganda," including a series of articles last October questioning Marcos' war record.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Huntington Civic Center officials have asked rock performer Ozzie Osbourne not to bite off the heads of any bats during his performance Feb. 15.

Civic Center Director Richard Cobb said Thursday a Civic Center staff member will preview one of the rock musician's shows before the scheduled Huntington performance.

Officials are concerned by reports that Osbourne has been decapitating live bats with his teeth on his current concert tour.

"If Osbourne does something like that as part of his act, we'll negotiate with the promoter to have that part of the act removed or else he won't play the Huntington Civic Center," he said.

Cobb said this won't be the first time he's seen Osbourne in action.

"I've done it twice before. I had to do it last summer," he said.

"Of course he dresses kind of strange — sort of like a demon — and I believe he eats a piece of raw beef liver on stage. But that's all part of the act and you can't arrest a man for doing either of those things."

But when it comes to bat-biting, Cobb draws the line.

"No one is going to bring a live animal into the Huntington Civic Center," he said. "We don't want that kind of example being set."

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Comedian Sheeky Greene has filed suit a suit to recover most of a $50,000 loan he made last year to a car dealer.

The suit was filed Thursday on behalf of the Las Vegas entertainer, whose real name is Sheldon Greenfield, by Omaha attorney Warren Zweiback.

Greene contends in his suit that Julius Novak, president of Omaha Cadillac, Chevrolet and Volkswagen dealerships, signed a note on July 19 for $50,243 borrowed from the comedian.

The suit says Novak has since missed two payments. Greene seeks $47,747 plus about $19 per day in interest from Nov. 21.

Attempts to reach Novak by phone Friday were unsuccessful. A secretary in Novak's Omaha office said Friday that she did not know where Novak was or whether he would comment on the suit.

In an effort to present Campbell's soups as a nutritious and healthy food source the company changed the "Campbell Soup Kid's" from the pudgy little tykes to the slimmer version of the two skaters. The company is the official sponsor of the U.S. Figure Skating Team.

Campbell Kids slim down to athletic physique

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The chubby-cheeked cherubs who have adorned Campbell Soup ads for 79 years are getting thinner to fit a new weight-conscious image emphasizing nutrition and athletics.

"There's an overt effort to bring them into this decade. We're not going to make any radical changes, but they will be slimmer," said Paul Mulcahy, managing director for advertising.

"We've slimmed them down a bit, and we'll gradually slim them down some more," said Mulcahy. "But they're never going to look skinny. The configuration of their faces is such that they will always look pudgy and healthy."

The Campbell Kids, created in 1904 to help sell condensed soups, have portrayed chefs, football players, sailors and other characters during cycles when they were in and out of vogue.

Now, with a few less bulges and minus the excess poundage, they are wearing stretchy, tight-fitting outfits to portray figure skaters and winter sports enthusiasts because Campbell Soup Co. is sponsoring the U.S. National Figure Skating Team and is the official soup of the 1984 Winter Olympics.

As part of the U.S. National Figure Skating Championships being held here this week, Campbell's is sponsoring a sports medicine seminar today for skaters and coaches.

The seminar will focus on nutrition, stretching exercises, injury prevention and psychology for the figure skater.

"Way back when these kids were conceived, if you were chubby, you were healthy. Today, there's a different outlook on what constitutes physical fitness. Contemporary standards are different," said Dan Dollack, a company spokesman.

The Campbell Kids, among the most recognizable advertising figures for four generations, remained virtually unchanged through the Great Depression and two world wars.

Then in 1951, the kids underwent a facelift and donned modern fashions. They endeared themselves to modern generations in ads during the long-running "Lassie" TV series.

In the 70s, the company trimmed them down when it introduced its light soups — which have fewer than 90 calories.

And corporate moguls think the slenderization process is "m'm m'm good," in part because of the country's obsession with thinness. The diet, however, won't be a crash program that will shed inches in bunches.

"We've changed the pudginess of the kids to make them a little more athletic looking," Dollack said. "You don't make abrupt changes. You ease into it. It's going to be a gradual thing. If you make them really skinny kids, they wouldn't be the Campbell Kids."

Campbell Soup Co. was founded in 1869 in Camden, N.J. Its 40,000 employees operate 80 manufacturing plants in 12 nations.

In addition to condensed soups, it markets products under the brand names of Franco American, V-8, Vlasic, Pepperidge Farms, Mrs. Paul's, Prego, Lacroix and Godiva chocolates.

Texas family grants Yale program life

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A popular Yale University writing program threatened by a lack of funding has received a grant from a wealthy Texas oil family, the school announced Friday.

The school did not specify the amount of the grant, which it will get on an annual basis from the Bass family of Fort Worth, whose assets have been estimated at over $2 billion by Forbes magazine.

Perry R. Bass and his three sons are graduates of Yale University. Sid R. Bass, a member of Yale's class of 1965, was recently named a university trustee.

The program was started in 1978 under a five-year, non-renewable grant from the Pew Memorial Trust. It sponsors basic and advanced writing courses, tutors and special writing sections of courses in disciplines ranging from biology to psychology.

Yale President A. Bartlett Giamatti said the program, once known as the Expository Writing Program, has been renamed the Bass Writing Program in Yale College.

"The program has successfully demonstrated that good writing, which is the obligation of everyone at Yale, can be taught," Giamatti said.

The Bass family has interests in oil, gas, real estate, agriculture and other industries.

Are state's textbooks censored?

Board panel hopes to find out

AUSTIN (AP) — A special committee of the State Board of Education began a three-day study Friday to determine if protesters of textbooks are in effect censoring materials used in Texas classrooms.

More than 50 witnesses were scheduled to appear today on both sides of the controversy, which some say affects how textbooks are chosen in other states.

"Our main goal is to insure that the public school children of Texas are provided with the best possible textbooks in concert with an excellent curriculum while staying within the financial resources available," said Joe Kelly Butler of Houston, who chairs both the special committee and the state board.

"I am proud that Texas is a national leader in many areas of public education — of which textbooks just happens to be one," said Butler during Friday's opening session. "That does not allow for complacency, and as our society changes, we must continually examine the process."

After the public hearing, the 13-member special committee on textbook selection will meet Sunday to make recommendations.

Publishers say that Texas, as the nation's biggest textbook market, can dictate the contents of texts nationwide, since publishers cannot afford to put out one edition of a book for Texas and one for the rest of the country.

Complaints about the process have focused on the annual hearings, where only protesters — not supporters — of books proposed for sale to Texas public schools are allowed to testify.

Last year the Texas selection process was challenged by People for the American Way, a liberal, anti-censorship group.

Leading those who prefer the present selection system are Norma and Mel Gabler, a conservative Longview couple who have been protesting textbooks for 21 years.

Committee will study feasibility of teacher contract renewal bill

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Teachers' Professional Practices Commission has designated a committee to study whether Senate Bill 341, adopted in the last session of the state Legislature, conflicts with the state's code of ethics for professional teachers, a commission spokesman said.

The bill, officially called the Term Contract Non-Renewal Act, provides for evaluations of teachers facing contract renewal. Under the law, the Board of Trustees has access to the evaluations before making decisions on renewals.

James Salmon, a commission spokesman, said the committee was formed to protect teachers.

"The (committee) members just want to make sure a person that's terminated is not denied due process," Salmon said.

"They'd like to see that the people doing the evaluations have the training or expertise to do the evaluations."

The committee met Jan. 25 in a preliminary meeting. Salmon said the committee decided to get legal interpretations of parts of the law and the code of ethics.

Suspension centers grant beneficiaries

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A grant of $37,455 to Midland Independent School District for on-campus suspension centers is among 37 grants totaling $1,216,261 made to Texas cities, counties and universities by the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice.

Gov. Mark White announced award of the grants, for periods extending through February 1984, on Friday.

In announcing the awards, White also commented that "in recent yars, there have been significant changes in the planning, development and enactment of programs in the criminal justice system."

"While most of these efforts have been beneficial, I am determined to develop a comprehensive plan to ensure an all-out war to improve the criminal justice system in Texas."

The MISD grant is for two secondary school suspension centers, the governor's office reports.

'Horns celebrate 100 years

AUSTIN (AP) — Bands, orange balloons, flags and speeches by dignitaries marked the opening day of the University of Texas' centennial celebration Friday.

Opening events to mark the school's 100th birthday were planned from dawn till past midnight.

The celebration was formally begun with a noon flag-raising ceremony attended by university President Peter Flawn and Gov. Mark White.

"We pledge our strong support to this 'university of the first class,'" White said, referring to the way the school is defined in the Texas Constitution.

White raised his hand in the "hook-em 'Horns" gesture as the crowd cheered.

Mother says adoptees advertised 'like pets'

DONCASTER, England (AP) — A woman who offered her 6-year-old triplets for adoption accused social workers Friday of advertising them "like pets seeking a good home."

The Doncaster Social Services Department, using fictitious names, placed the following ad in Thursday's Yorkshire Post:

"Joseph, Neil and Kenneth are triplets aged six years. They are friendly active boys who enjoy life and are making good progress. They need parents who can offer them a permanent home."

The three boys were the offspring of a first marriage. The father died, the woman remarried and had a child and reportedly feared the triplets were breaking up the second marriage.

Car-Army truck crash kills family

AMBERG, West Germany (AP) — A West German family of four was killed when their car and a U.S. Army truck collided, police said Friday.

A police spokesman said the truck slid across oncoming traffic when its driver braked on a slippery road late Thursday near this small town in northern Bavaria.

Killed in the crash were Erika and Georg Kausler, of nearby Kirchentumbach, and their two young children.

Police said no charges have been brought against the driver of the truck.

France wants terrorism papers

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Gaston Defferre, the French interior minister, said Friday that France was interested in documents on international terrorism that it believes Israel captured in the invasion of Lebanon.

Defferre, who is also mayor of Marseilles, told an Armed Forces Radio reporter that French security services had not yet determined who was behind the wave of terrorist attacks on Jewish and Israeli targets in Paris last summer, which included the killing of six people in a Jewish restaurant.

He said he did not believe that the wave was connected with anti-Semitism in France and that the people responsible were believed to have come from outside France.

Refugees' gold still in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Vietnamese refugees who have passed through Malaysia on their way to new homes left behind more than 405 pounds of gold worth about $3.7 million, Customs Director Omar Mohammad Tahir said Friday.

He told reporters that boat people who landed here after the fall of Saigon to the Communists in 1975 had to hand over any gold, including ornaments, to customs authorities.

They were given receipts that were to be presented to authorities upon departure to reclaim the gold, but some forgot or left before they received the gold. Many of the refugees were accepted for resettlement in the United States, Australia, Canada, France and West Germany. The director said the refugees can still collect their possessions if they have their receipts.

Politician's arrival home untimely

AVERSA, Italy (AP) — A masked bandit killed a local Christian Democrat official when the politician arrived home during a robbery in front of it in this city near Naples, police reported.

Francesco Brunitto, 48, surprised the gunman Thursday night as he was fleeing and was shot four times in the head. Investigators said there was no indication of a political motive to the shooting.

Police said the bandit, who was wearing a carnival mask, had held up the 22-year-old boyfriend of Brunitto's daughter.

Earthquake shakes Israeli town

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An earthquake shook Eilat early Friday morning, the third to jolt the southern Israeli town in two weeks.

There were no reports of injury or damage, but Dr. Avi Shapira of the Energy Ministry's seismological station told Armed Forces Radio that people in higher areas of the town said they felt the ground shake.

Quakes hit the Gulf of Aqaba Jan. 21 and Jan. 31.

Shapira said the area of the gulf was prone to earth movements because it sits on the unstable African Rift which stretches 4,000 miles from Syria to the great lakes of East Africa.

British round up obscene material

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard's Obscene Publications Squad announced the seizure of 300 tons of pornographic books and tapes with a street value of a record $7.6 million.

Commander Pat Carson, chief of the squad, told a news conference that a million books, magazines and video cassettes were seized Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and taken away in a fleet of 22 police trucks.

More than 100 police officers took part, raiding printers, binders, warehouses and stores, Carson said.

He said all the material was printed in Britain from negatives smuggled in from the European continent and the United States.

Egypt, Israel could get half of aid package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration asked Congress Friday to give Israel and Egypt close to half the $9.2 billion slated for foreign military assistance in fiscal 1984.

The total is about $400 million higher than in 1983, with a sharp increase in military purchase grants which don't have to be repaid.

Israel would receive $2.49 billion, the same as in 1983 and more than any other nation. Egypt would receive $2.05 billion, also virtually unchanged.

Turkey would receive the third largest amount, $930 million, up from $765 million. El Salvador's total would be $205 million, up from $165 million.

The funds are designed to help boost the defense potential of friendly nations. Except for Israel, most of the nations are Third World nations whose policies are oriented toward the United States.

In addition to its 1984 program, the administration also asked for an increase for 1983 to restore funds previously cut by Congress. The administration had unveiled overall totals in budget data released early this week, but specific figures for individual nations awaited Friday's request.

The 1983 supplemental, as it is called, totals $988 million and also includes $250 million for Lebanon. Of the amount for Lebanon, $150 million would be in economic aid and $100 million in guaranteed loans to purchase U.S. military equipment.

The 1984 military-related foreign aid, known as security assistance, includes the following:

—$4.44 billion in military sales financing which has to be repaid, up from $4.17 billion in 1983. The money is for purchase of U.S. military equipment.

—$1 billion in military sales financing which doesn't have to be repaid, down from $1.18 billion in 1983.

—$2.95 billion in economic support funds, which don't have to be repaid, down from $2.96 billion. This is for economic aid to countries in which the United Staes has a security interest.

—$702 million for military assistance programs, up from $436 million. This money is for military purchases and doesn't have to be repaid.

—$57 million for international military and training programs, up from $46 million.

The loans for military sales, which are to be repaid over a 12-year period or longer, are not technically a part of the 1984 budget.

Israel's total package of $2.49 billion would include $1.7 billion in military financing, of which $550 million is free, and $785 million in economic support funds. Suggestions that the administration might curtail Israel's aid because of events in Lebanon weren't reflected in the request to Congress.

Egypt's $2.05 billion would include $1.3 billion in military sales financing, of which $450 million won't have to be repaid, and $750 million in economic support funds.

Mexico, U.S. agree on commodity sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fourth one-year supply agreement with Mexico has been worked out for the sale of 6.2 million metric tons of U.S. farm commodities in calendar year 1983, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The annual agreements began three years ago in the Carter administration as one of the measures to soften the partial embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union.

After President Reagan took office, the yearly pacts were continued. In 1982, sales to Mexico totaled 3.7 million metric tons for a value of $1.2 billion, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block will sign the new agreement in Mexico City Feb. 17 during a three-day visit to Mexico, officials said.

The agreement provides for $1.6 billion in USDA export credit guarantees, including $1 billion announced last fall, officials said.

Commodities under the sales pact include corn, sorghum, sunflower seed, soybeans, cottonseed, tallow, powdered milk and whole eggs.

Block also will meet with Mexican government officials to discuss trade policy and mutual concerns, the department said.

PINES IN WINTER

Among the many kinds of trees in existence, very few retain their foliage during the cold winter months. Only a few withstand the driving winds and storms and still maintain beautiful green branches.

The graceful scene below shows a remarkable characteristic in the pine tree. Some miraculous element within the pine enables it to display its lush greenery amid the whiteness of fallen snow.

Such are the amazing qualities of nature — the millions of wonders in God's creation.

In order to understand more fully the God-given powers within ourselves, we must study the Holy Word and attend regularly the services of our church or synagogue. By doing this we will come to realize our potentialities and talents and will learn to live a fuller more useful life.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DO YOU HAVE YOUR PRIORITIES STRAIGHT?

Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, left the Jordan River, being urged by the Spirit out into the barren wastelands of Judea, where Satan tempted Him for 40 days. He ate nothing all that time, and was very hungry.

Satan said, "If you are God's Son, tell this stone to become a loaf of bread."

But Jesus replied, "It is written in the Scriptures, 'Other things in life are much more important than bread!'"

Then Satan took Him up and revealed to Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time; and the devil told Him, "I will give you all these splendid kingdoms and their glory--for they are mine to give to anyone I wish--if You will only get down on Your knees and worship me."

Jesus replied, "We must worship God, and Him alone. So it is written in the Scriptures."

Then Satan took Him to Jerusalem to a high roof of the Temple and said, "If You are the Son of God, jump off! For the Scriptures say that God will send His angels to guard You and to keep You from crashing to the pavement below!"

Jesus replied, "The Scriptures also say, 'Don't experiment with God's patience.'"

When the devil had ended all the temptations, he left Jesus for a while and went away.

Then Jesus returned to Galilee, full of the Holy Spirit's power. Soon He became well known throughout all that region for His sermons in the synagogues; everyone praised Him.

Priest doubles as Chicago disk jockey

CHICAGO (AP) — Every Sunday morning, the Rev. Greg Sakowicz, a suburban Roman Catholic priest, combines the spirit of the Ten Commandments with the sound of Billboard's Top 10.

Sakowicz is both an associate pastor at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Schaumburg and a disc jockey at WKQX, an FM radio station where he has his own show, "The Journey Inward."

The show, broadcast for a half-hour each Sunday, includes commentary, current popular music and favorite oldies spun around a theme, such as family relationships or commitments.

Like every disc jockey, Sakowicz creates a mood with his music, chatting in soft tones about understanding during hard times and the warmth of a loving family.

He speaks, plays his music and speaks a little more. A show about families will include Harry Chapin's song about a father and son, "Cat's In the Cradle." Another show about love or relationships might include John Lennon's "Imagine" or Anne Murray's "You Needed Me."

There's nothing pious about that. And that's how the 29-year-old Sakowicz wants it.

"I don't believe in pie-in-the-sky theology," he says. "You don't have to be boring in order to be holy. Priests have to be attuned to where life is at. You can't hide yourself under a rug."

And if you want to spread the word to young people, there's no better way to reach them than radio, Sakowicz says.

"You have to meet young people on their turf," he says. "The radio show is a different avenue for helping young people to come to grips with their struggles. It's not done in a churchy way."

Certainly not. Sakowicz has called on Elton John, the Beatles, Kenny Rogers and Supertramp to illustrate the Gospel.

"Lyrics really speak to what life is all about," the priest says. "Lyrics really speak to people of all generations," although Sakowicz says his show is aimed at 18-to-35-year-old listeners.

Sakowicz realizes rock music doesn't always have a message he wants to convey.

"The one negative side of music tends to say anything goes. 'Get anything out of life, drugs are OK, alcohol is OK,'" Sakowicz says. "In my show, I totally avoid" that.

The Rev. Greg Sakowicz, a Roman Catholic priest, sits at the controls in a Chicago radio station from which he broadcasts a regularly-scheduled Sunday morning show. An associate pastor at a suburban church, he includes commentary and music to convey particular themes.

Sakowicz, though, is a devoted rock music fan and spends about five hours each week writing his commentary and searching for the proper music. "A lot of my topics come out of my own life experiences," he says.

Scholar says America at 'fateful crossroads'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A currently popular idea is that mixed values are essential to democracy and that moral absolutes are out of place. But a noted theologian says that view could destroy democracy itself.

"The perverse notion that democracy is incompatible with moral absolutes spells inevitable collapse and chaos for democracy," says the Rev. Carl F.H. Henry, a widely influential evangelical scholar.

On that issue, he says, "American culture is at a fateful crossroads."

Henry, honored this week in Washington, D.C., at the annual convention of National Religious Broadcasters on his completion of a monumental six-volume work, "God, Revelation and Authority," spoke at the affair's closing banquet.

He said a "new secular mindset" in American society seeks "social escape from all the ethical demands of civilized existence" and holds that the only rule of action is "private decision and personal creativity."

"In earlier generations Americans judged themselves by Judeo-Christian principles," he said, but now a "growing vanguard of society" regards those standards as a "threat to self-fulfillment."

"Today's narcissistic philosophy considers biblical imperatives a barrier to self-realization and the church an impediment to free and creative selfhood," he said.

"Human existence is deliberately and routinely collapsed into a me-first philosoph...in all dimensions of life."

Henry's thesis touched a common chord among the gathering of about 3,000 religious broadcasters and producers, many of them of evangelical bent. But he also chided them for sometimes catering to the same trend.

RELIGION

In the modern "defiance of inherited truth" and biblical morality, he said the "new image" of fulfillment is "defined in terms of physical gratification, material influence and worldly status."

Similar attitudes, he added, show up in some evangelical preaching, suggesting faith not only will enhance spiritual and moral well-being but also physical and financial well-being.

"Compound this with sexual fulfillment and — total bliss — one caters completely to the worldly agenda of self-satisfaction," he said.

He said such evangelical appeals — to " 'be born again and God will put you in clover' — need divine editing to read, 'get right with God and he will show you how many excesses you can really do without.' "

Henry was presented with a leather-bound set of his new theological opus by the publisher, Word, Inc., of Waco, Texas.

He said some modern sociologists maintain that the "special distinctive of democracy is its tolerance of divergent views. Tolerance thus becomes a rationale for uncritical public acceptance of any and all deviation."

But he said that "by itself tolerance destroys even itself in destroying all norms."

Like Henry, several of the other speakers, including evangelists Billy Graham, Luis Palau, Oral Roberts, James Robison, Jim Baker and Rex Humbard, see "secular humanism" or "naturalism" as a spreading, damaging influence.

Henry commended evangelicals for their increasing involvement in public affairs, but urged greater concern for intellectual life.

Reagan renews pledges to broadcasters

WASHINGTON (AP) — To resounding applause from a convention of religious broadcasters, President Reagan this week pledged to renew efforts to ban abortion and restore classroom prayers in public schools.

He urged that the nation "face the future with the Bible," which was the theme of the convention representing about 1,000 organizations that run religious broadcasting stations or produce religious broadcast programs.

Reagan annouced he will proclaim 1983 the "Year of the Bible," as was asked in a joint House-Senate resolution.

The series is being shown as part of the "Wednesday Night Genesis," St. Luke's mid-week fellowship. Coalition files federal suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A coalition of religious and Salvadoran refugee organizations have filed a federal suit challenging the legality of continued U.S. military assistance to El Salvador's government.

The suit claims President Reagan's certification to Congress that the human rights record in El Salvador had improved during the last six months, so as to allow continued military aid there, was false and in bad faith.
