Reagan demanding 'full account'

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan and members of Congress have united in demands for a full accounting from the Soviet Union for the deaths of 269 people aboard a South Korean airliner that was reported shot from the skies near a remote Soviet island military installation.

The Soviet Union is steadfastly denying any responsibility for the fatal incident, but those denials are being rejected as totally inadequate by the United States and other nations which have erupted in a burst of global outrage.

President Reagan, who had planned to end a vacation at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch next Monday, was instead returning to Washington today for a round of White House meetings with his national security advisers and the bipartisan congressional leadership.

Congress is in the midst of a five-week recess due to end Sept. 12, but there are no indications the House and Senate will reconvene earlier.

In Paris today, the Soviet Embassy today accused the United States of launching a "hysterical anti-Soviet campaign" over the plane.

The embassy added no information about the fate of the plane, however. It called the loss of the airliner "a catastrophe," but said the jet had twice violated the Soviet Union's airspace and the crew did not respond to signals addressed to them.

U.S. officials said Thursday in detailed accounts that a heat-seeking missile fired by a Soviet SU-15 jet fighter destroyed the unarmed 747 passenger plane, killing all its occupants — including Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga. Korean Air Lines said today that at least 51 Americans were on the flight.

A Japanese Maritime Safety Agency patrol boat reported finding a 330-foot-long oil slick 18½ miles off the southwest coast of the Soviet island Sakhalin, where the South Korean jumbo jet is believed to have gone down Thursday. Search boats and planes, including two U.S. military aircraft, hunted for traces of the jumbo jet in frigid Sea of Japan waters. Some wreckage was reported seen from the air, but Japan said Soviet officials had refused to allow search boats into Soviet waters.

The United States and South Korea demanded an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council, which was likely to be convened today.

"Words can scarcely express our revulsion at this horrifying act of violence," Reagan said, uniting with congressional leaders in strongly worded condemnations and calls for a full accounting from the Kremlin.

"The United States joins with other members of the international community in demanding a full explanation for this appalling and wanton misdeed," the president declared

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., called it "an unbelievably barbaric act," adding, "explanations and apologies will not suffice."

Soviet Embassy labels U.S. reaction 'hysterical'

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Embassy in Paris today accused the United States of launching a "hysterical anti-Soviet campaign" over the Korean Air Lines plane reported shot down off the coast of Soviet Union.

The embassy added no information about the fate of the plane and the 269 people aboard, but called its loss "a catastrophe."

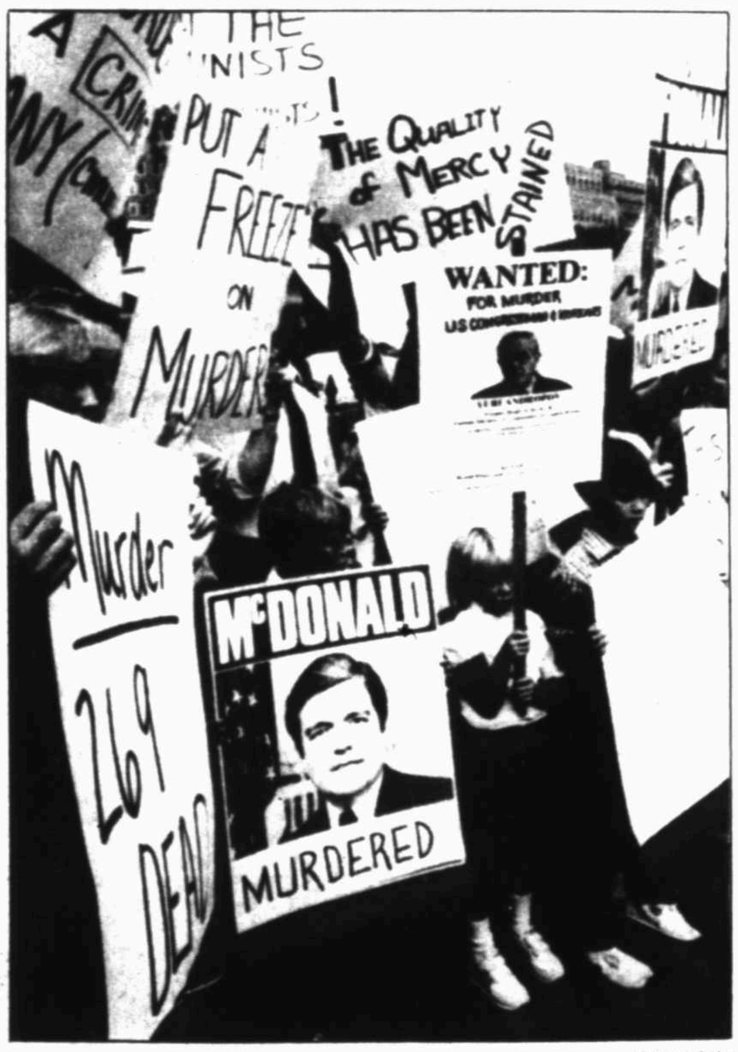

It issued a statement also criticizing France for having been "swept up" by the "campaign without having its own independent information as to what happened."

The only information the Soviet Union has so far released did not directly address the U.S. government's statement that the Soviet Union shot the plane down with an air-to-air missile.

The official news agency Tass said Soviet planes followed the plane after it intruded into Soviet airspace, failed to make contact with it, and that the airliner flew off.

Long-time John Birch Society member Mrs. C. Louis Chase of Midland mailed two-hundred letters Thursday night, urging Congressmen to take "action against the U.S.S.R."

Following the news that Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., chairman of the John Birch Society, was a passenger aboard the South Korean jumbo jet shot down Wednesday by a Soviet jet fighter, Mrs. Chase said she had to do something.

"When I heard what happened, I began making calls and started writing," she said during a telephone interview Thursday night.

Mrs. Chase's brief message read: "I urgently request strong and affirmative action against the U.S.S.R. over the Korean plane tradedy, such as, stopping aid to it (U.S.S.R.) and its satellite countries."

The Korean commercial airliner was carrying 269 people, 51 of whom have been reported to be Americans. McDonald was going to South Korea to attend a ceremony marking the 30th anniversary of the U.S.-South Korea defense pact. According to U.S. officials, the jumbo jet was tracked for 2½ hours when it strayed over the Soviet island of Sakhalin.

McDonald, a native Georgian, represented the 7th district in the state's northwest corner. He was first elected in 1974. Earlier this year, McDonald, also a physician, became chairman of the ultra-conservative John Birch Society, succeeding the group's founder Robert Welch.

Mrs. Chase receives a newsletter from Western Goals, a private research foundation headed by McDonald, which has "a back history to point out how communists were pushing us into a democracy rather than a republic. You see, we are a republic, not a democracy."

According to Mrs. Chase, "He (McDonald) was patriotic and certainly believed communism was utterly incompatible with all religions because it is comtemptuous of morality."

Local officials express 'shock'

Midlanders feel 'helpless' — Page 2A

Local officials expressed "shock" and "outrage" over the Korean Airlines Boeing 747 which was destroyed Wednesday by Soviet jets. Aboard were 265 passengers, including 30 Americans.

Suggestions for ways the United States could react boiled down to across-the-board embargos and throwing out Soviet diplomats.

"I thought it was a criminal act without justification," said Harris Kerr, an attorney and member of the State Democratic Executive Committee. "The U.S. should kick out all Soviets and consider a total trade embargo until an adequate response is had." He wants to know "why they considered it necessary to shoot it down over international waters."

Diplomatic means to let the Soviets know "it won't be tolerated by us or any other country," should be employed by the U.S., said Grant Billingsley, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

"It sounds like a lot of countries are upset," he said. "If they all do something, it would let the Soviets know it won't be tolerated."

The mayor first remarked his comments couldn't be printed and then admitted if he were in charge he probably would overract.

"I don't know what physically could be done," said G. Thane Akins. "We might look at things they want most from us and cut them off from it. We should remove their diplomats by the carload, just run them out of the country. If I were Korea, I'd confiscate a Russian airline, maybe two or three. Those 747s are expensive."

"It's horrible and unconscionable and I can't imagine it happening," remarked Councilman Tom Sloan. He has no desire to get into a war with Russia, he said, but he viewed the incident as "deliberate, calculated and planned."

Shamir wins party nomination, forms coalition

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Shamir, a former underground fighter and Israel's hardline foreign minister, won his party's nomination today to succeed Prime Minister Menachem Begin and swiftly reached agreement with coalition partners to form a new government, a spokesman said.

Shamir won a solid victory over Deputy Prime Minister David Levy with a 436-302 vote by the central committee of the Herut Party, the movement formed by Begin in the 1940s which now dominates the governing Likud bloc. Seven votes were invalidated.

Asked whether the coalition already had reached full consensus on an accord, Begin spokesman Uri Porat would only say, "It's a good agreement."

Shamir and his political colleagues had been predicting tough, lengthy negotiations to form a coalition but the agreement came within a few hours after he called the leaders of the parties in the present coalition together.

The fast action was believed to have been prompted by the opposition Labor Party's announcement that it would try to form its own coalition and oust Lukud.

Shamir was expected to appoint former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon as chairman of a Cabinet committee which supervises Jewish settlement in the Arab territories. Sharon, who was ousted as defense minister following the massacre of Palestinian refugees in Beirut in September, had backed Shamir in the battle for the party's leadership.

It was not immediately known if Shamir would remain foreign minister or give the job to someone else.

The wide margin for Shamir was seen as a triumph for the doctrinaire nationalists of Herut over the more conciliatory Levy, who is more concerned about Israel's domestic problems than its foreign affairs and the future of Israeli rule of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Meanwhile, Begin, who announced his resignation Sunday to his Cabinet, conducted routine business in an office adjoining the room where the coalition was formed. He did not attend the meeting, and was expected to formally give his resignation next week to President Chaim Herzog.

During the vote Thursday, Begin was "feeling a little weak and tired" and stayed at his home here, said long-time friend Yaaqov Meridor, who awoke the leader at 1:40 a.m. with the election results before they were publicly announced.

Begin, who fashioned Herut out of his outlawed underground army that fought the British and the Arabs for independence, was a force at the committee meeting even in absentia.

"I see the task that was placed on me tonight as a temporary trust which I am willing to return at any time with a happy heart and full readiness to Prime Minister Menachem Begin," Shamir said with tears in his eyes.

Rhythmic chants of "Begin, Begin" thundered through the converted theater every time the retiring leader was mentioned.

"The time is short and the job is great," said Shamir, promising to start talks later today with the five right-wing and religious parties in the coalition. "We must rebuild this government and continue its actions."

Shamir spoke in general terms of his future policy, promising to continue spreading Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank and building Israel's "deterrent strength so that no enemy will dare touch us."

Labor had been quietly campaigning to woo some of Begin's allies to defect. The election of Shamir virtually quashed hopes of a broad coalition including Labor to grapple with escalating economic problems and to unify a nation divided over the protracted occupation of Lebanon.

"Shamir is more fanatic and more extreme than David Levy," said Mordechai Vershubsky, of the centrist Shinui Party.

Shamir's election to the Herut leadership came as no surprise. His association with Begin goes back to the pre-independence guerrilla movements, in which Shamir led a breakaway faction even more extreme than Begin's.

Airline says 51 Americans aboard

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 50,000 students demonstrated against the Soviet Union Friday, and the government demanded the Kremlin apologize, make compensation and be punished for "shamelessly" shooting down a South Korean airliner carrying 269 people.

Demonstrators in 18 Seoul high schools shouted slogans and carried banners saying: "The Soviet Union Kneel Down and Apologize to the Korean people," "The Soviet Union Clarify Without Delay the Truth to the Entire World," and "United Nations Punish Russia."

A television station in Seoul reported that a 38-year-old woman slashed her finger and wrote in blood a petition appealing to President Chun Doo-hwan, President Reagan and leaders of other countries to take action against the Soviet Union.

The Korean Air Lines jumbo jet strayed into Soviet airspace and was hit by a missile from a Soviet fighter over Sakhalin Thursday, U.S. and Korean officials said. KAL listed 51 American passengers aboard the plane.

The Soviets have said only that the plane intruded over Soviet territory, ignored signals from Soviet fighters and continued toward the Sea of Japan.

But President Chun said the Soviet Union had carried out a "barbarous act" that "cannot be tolerated under any pretext."

Foreign Minister Lee Bum-suk told reporters the plane had been "shamelessly shot down" by the Soviet Union in "an act that must be condemned in the name of humanity."

"The Soviet Union must tell the whole world the truth of this savage act," Lee said, and called for an apology, compensation and "punishment of the perpetrator."

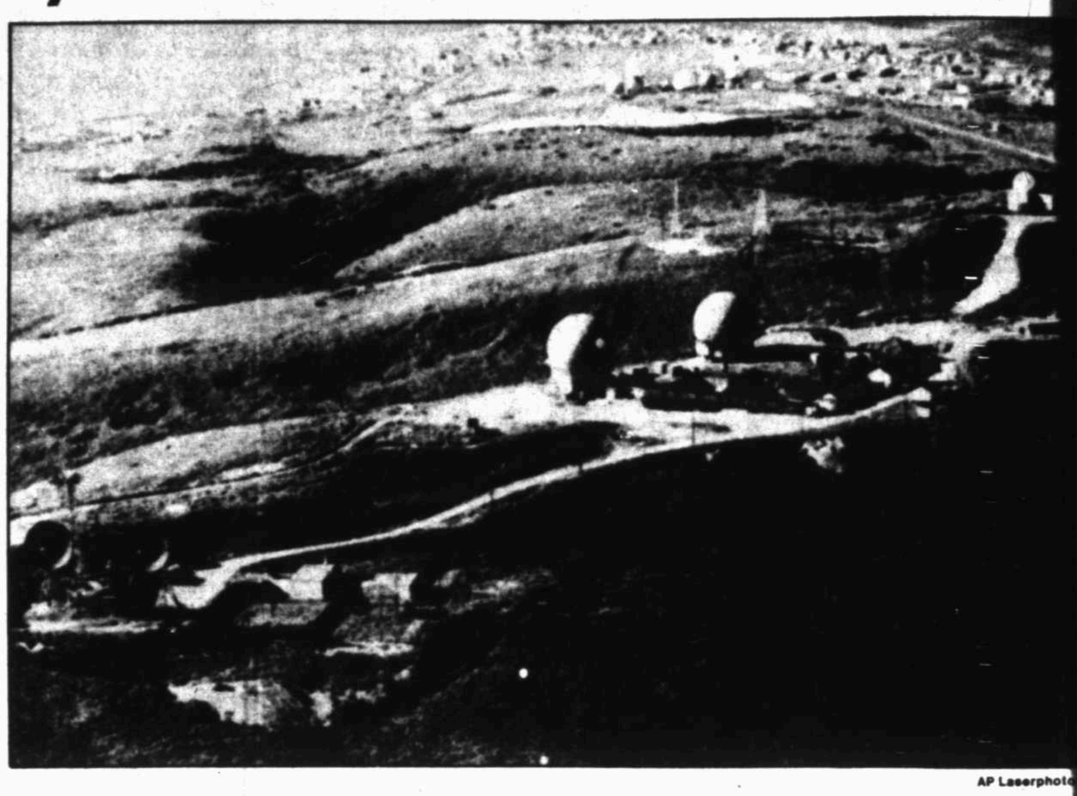

Lee said South Korea was "not sure yet why the plane did not fly over its own route," adding that there were possibilities of a failure of the inertial navigational system, or a breakdown in communications.

"The plane passed Soviet airspace," Lee said, "but that and the shooting down of a civil aircraft are entirely different things."

Asked what effect the downing of the plane might have on the political climate in Asia, Lee said: "We are condemning this savage, inhumane, barbaric act. We will see how the Soviet Union responds."

Reports from Tokyo, meanwhile, said the Japanese government had demanded that Soviet authorities immediately begin search and rescue operations. Soviet officials earlier were said to have informed the Japanese that "traces of an accident" had been found, but gave no details.

A presidential spokesman in Seoul said Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone had phoned President Chun late in the day, promising full cooperation in the United Nations and other international organizations to get the truth concerning the plane and have the issue resolved.

Congressmen, Reagan demand full account of plane's downing

Members of Congress are calling for direct action against the Soviets, including calls for restrictions on trade, the cancellation of Soviet landing rights in the United States and the closing of the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

Reagan, while using strong rhetoric to denounce the incident, is taking a cautious stance on the issue of retaliation with aides emphasizing that the upcoming White House discussions will focus equal attention on the Mideast and Israel's plans to redeploy troops in Lebanon.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said that despite the attack he would go ahead with a previously scheduled meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko next week in Madrid at the conclusion of a European security meeting.

Nonetheless, the attack on the civilian airliner is a jolt to U.S.-Soviet relations at a time when they appeared on the upswing in the areas of arms control and trade.

"It is certain that the impact and the seriousness of this attack will be felt long after the half-masted flags of mourning have been raised," said Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich.

Elsewhere, Soviet ambassadors stationed in capitals around the globe were being summoned to provide details of the incident.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Moscow told The Associated Press there was no information he could provide about the incident. It was believed, although not confirmed, that a top-level U.S. diplomat was seeking an audience at the ministry today.

The French Foreign Ministry expressed its "sharpest indignation" at the incident, saying, "in addition to the lack of security of civil air transportation, (this incident) puts into question the principles which govern international relations and the respect for human life."

The British Foreign Office called it "deeply disturbing and on the face of it wholly inexplicable."

A Japanese Foreign Ministry official, who asked not to be quoted by name, said that if the Soviets do not supply an adequate explanation, a formal diplomatic protest "or something further" could be forthcoming.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said there were no survivors aboard Korean Air Lines Flight 007.

The passenger plane was in Soviet airspace above Sakhalin, a mountainous island 20 miles from the Soviet Union's east coast and within 100 miles of Japan, U.S. officials said.

Midlanders feel outraged, helpless

From staff reports

Midland residents questioned in a random phone survey are expressing outrage and feelings of helplessness at reports that a Korean passenger plane has been shot down by Soviet fighters.

"I think it was murder by the Russians — out and out murder," said Sherry Kennon, 706 Spraberry. "It's nothing to start a war over, but I think the United Nations should get involved."

"All the discussions that I've had with friends of mine are ones of anger, and ones of 'Well, we'll probably just sit and talk about it and not do anything about it'," said Steven Foy, 2603 Cimmaron. "Most of them feel like it's a case of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. We shouldn't just sit back and talk.

"Everybody's complaining, but nobody knows what to do about it. Everybody that I've talked to is disgusted about it and feels helpless and feels we ought to do more than just talk. I hear things about embargo and I think that may be a good idea. We need to do more than we have in the past. I think it's probably good for Reagan. He'll probably get his military budget request now."

"I think something ought to be done. As a veteran I think drastic action ought to be taken, not just an embargo," declared Robert Clark, 608 S. Calhoun.

"I feel there's no excuse for something like that," said Linda Pavletich, 3627 Hyde Park. "I'd hate to see us get into a national incident over it, but I think something needs to be done...something just to let them know they can't get away with stuff like that. It's going to lead to trouble anyway we go about it."

"I believe the Russians have the mentality of a bunch of small boys and want to see how far they can go," asserted Joe Mills of rural Midland. "I think they picked a perfectly horrible way to do it. I think they're testing everyone like they've done for years and years and years.

"If it didn't hurt the farmers so much we ought to cut 'em off," he continued, referring to a grain embargo. "Starve 'em a little bit and maybe they'd behave."

"Something should be done about it," agreed John Straka of Tremont Drive, "some kind of action — maybe an embargo against the Soviet Union. I don't think we should get in a war with them, but maybe some kind of trade embargo, something to show them exactly how strongly we feel about it. It shouldn't happen. I don't think it's very humane, shooting down somebody like that for no reason."

"I think it's a very serious situation, a very grave situation," stated Marilyn LaRue, 2912 Moss St. "I think if things continue without recognizing who the enemy is it'll be just another incident with more to come."

"I'm completely against what the Russians did," said Joel Hinojosa, 1105 E. Hamby. "The Russians should have helped the plane land. The action taken was clearly uncalled for. Severe sanctions should be taken, not just the wheat thing. But I don't think the government will do anything about this — look at what happened in Afghanistan."

"I just can't see any use for it," said Ray Puckett, 3535 Hyde Park. "The U.S. has got to take some time on something like this."

"If there is anybody living in the U.S. or the world who doesn't think it is the lowest, cheapest, tragic act pulled in the U.S.," said Mrs. L.A. Sparks, 1507 Community Lane. "I can't imagine anybody would think differently."

"It was very stupid and uncalled for," said Dawn Norton, 4419 Leddy.

Midlander urges action

Midland physician Dr. Dorothy Wyvell, also a member of the Society, said: "As far as I'm concerned, he was one the great people of the world. This is a great tragedy, not only for his family, but a specific tragedy for the members of the John Birch Society."

Dr. Wyvell and Mrs. Chase noted that McDonald came to Midland for a Society symposium.

"He spoke two years ago in Midland at an economic seminar for buisness leaders," Mrs. Chase recalled.

"I introduced him every time he came to Midland for a symposium," Dr. Wyvell said. "He was a person of high moral integrity with a great feeling of compassion for the wrongs of the world."

According to an Associated Press article, McDonald was "a staunch anti-communist whose strident conservatism placed him outside the mainstream of either political party in the House of Representatives."

Mrs. Chase agrees with McDonald's colleagues who noted the tragic irony of the incident is that such a strong foe of the Soviet Union would have been among the passengers. Speculation among the Society is that McDonald's anti-communist stand was the reason for the tragedy.

But according to an article in the Dallas Morning News this morning, McDonald had taken the flight because he missed an earlier plane by a few minutes.

"I would hate to think that was the reason, but since McDonald was anti-communist and outspoken, I wouldn't be surprised if that was the case," Mrs. Chase said.

"The first thought of anybody who is a member of the John Birch Society is that this is why the plane was shot down," Dr. Wyvell added.

U.S. Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., president of the conservative John Birch Society and a strong opponent to communism, was on that plane. Sloan believes that was the reason the Soviets destroyed it.

"Had he not been there it might not have been shot down," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if they were laying for him."

His reaction would be "to punch them in the nose." In a calmer vein, Sloan said the United States "needs to take some sort of action. I think this is something that will unite this country. I hope President Reagan has strong, firm, swift action."

Another councilman, Steve Davidson, called it a "tragic incident" and said "all of us hurt for the families" of those who died.

He, too, suggested taking economic actions against the country. But Davidson wasn't sure about severing diplomatic relations. "They're a superpower also, and I don't know if we could afford not to have some contact with them."

On one hand, though, the action didn't surprise him. "You're not dealing with someone who has the same morals and concepts of human life that we do in the civilized world."

County Judge William Ahders for years has been concerned the U.S. will get into a war with Russia, and he's hoping this is not the start of it.

"We can't replace the people that were killed and money won't help. We need a firm understanding of why they did this. They knew it was a passenger plane; it wasn't a mistake. But I don't believe it was all directed to McDonald."

"It was an act of war they committed," said Bob Monaghan, a member of the Republican State Executive Committee. He, too, wasn't able to swallow whole the theory the Soviets shot down the plane because of McDonald. "They've been known to do worse things, but I don't have any way of knowing why they shot it down."

The U.S. in retaliation should first throw out the rights allowing the Soviet airline to land in this country. Next, the U.S. should cut off diplomatic relations and possibly bring home the ambassador. And then the United Nations should censure the Soviet Union for its actions.

An embargo, Monaghan said, "won't work if it's just us doing it. And I'm afraid other countries won't go along with it.

"I hope the world wakes up to what the communists are like," he said.

Libyan soldiers, 'mercenaries' attack remote Chadian outpost

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — More than 3,000 Libyan soldiers and rebel "mercenaries" launched a major attack at dawn today on the isolated government outpost of Oum Chalouba, the government reported.

The attack on Oum Chalouba broke the three-week-old tacit truce between the Libyans and their Chadian rebel allies on one side and the French and the Chad government of President Hissene Habre on the other.

Information Minister Soumaila Mahamat said the garrison of Oum Chalouba, 400 miles northeast of N'Djamena, repulsed two successive enemy onslaughts and at last report government forces were "in full pursuit of the attackers."

Braniff has court's approval to fly again

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jubilant officials of grounded Braniff International have received a bankruptcy court's blessing to fly again, but they won't speculate on when flights may begin or when up to 2,000 of the airline's former employees may return to the payroll.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers cleared the way for Braniff to resume flights when he approved a final bankruptcy reorganization plan on Thursday. Under the plan, the Chicago-based Hyatt Corp. hotel chain will invest $20 million in cash and $50 million in loan guarantees in exchange for 80 percent of the new airline's stock.

Opponents have 10 days to appeal the decision. However, Braniff attorneys said any appeal would be settled within 30 days and would not interfere with their plans for the new carrier.

The approval capped a lengthy court battle which began on May 12, 1982, when Braniff, saddled with a $1 billion debt, halted operations.

Interim Braniff President Dale States said he did not know when hiring notices will go out to as many as 2,000 former Braniff employees who will be hired by the new airline. States would not say which cities will be served by the airline, and he declined to estimate when operations will resume.

Exact marketing plans — or whether the airline will retain the name Braniff — have not been announced, except that the airline will be based at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and will use 30 of Braniff's Boeing 727 jetliners.

Braniff's reorganization plan says the airline may be required to offer fares in some markets lower than those offered by its rivals.

"It is a renaissance," said Michael Crames, an attorney for Braniff. "I think there is a niche for this airline with American travelers and it will work. Hyatt wouldn't have done this unless they were very sanguine about its chance for success."

A group of subordinated bond holders objected to the reorganization plan Thursday, complaining that there were voting irregularities in the creditors' approval. A small airline that was an administrative creditor also objected, saying it wanted its $200,000 in debts paid in cash immediately. And the International Association of Machinist, one of Braniff's four unions, objected to the plan.

But Flowers rejected the arguments, saying the objections were "not sufficient to warrant holding up the reorganization plan that was accepted by so many other creditors by so large a majority."

Film producer takes up cause of missing children

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — People who meet with producer Linda Otto in her office at Alan Landsburg Productions might assume that the framed snapshot on her desk is of her own child. It is a boy captured in one of those perfect moments of summer as he is about to bite into a basketball-sized cloud of pink cotton candy.

The boy is Adam Walsh and he is not related to the 43-year-old producer. Walsh was abducted from a Sears' toy department in Hollywood, Fla., in 1981. His severed head was later found floating in a canal.

Otto knows the names of missing children as well as most parents know their own. She recites their stories for anyone who will listen:

Ryan Burton — stolen from her crib on a rainy night in Breckenridge, Texas, while the baby sitter dozed.

John Gosch — they found his bicycle, found the newspapers he was delivering when he vanished in Des Moines, Iowa, but never found John.

Etan Patz — last seen 150 yards from his school bus stop in New York City. The movie "Without a Trace" was made about Patz's abduction.

"People who see that movie are going to think children who are kidnaped get found," Otto said, referring to the fictional upbeat ending in the film. "In fact they're almost never found. They're never going to find Etan Patz.

"Who is looking for these children?" Otto asked. "No one's looking. Crimes against children are not taken seriously in this country just the way crimes against women are not taken seriously."

With support from Alan Landsburg and staff, Otto has formed a nonprofit organization called Find the Children. She's also making a movie about the story of one missing child and his family. Scheduled to air on NBC this fall, it's called "Adam" and it's the story of the boy with the cotton candy.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services reports 1.8 million children missing in the United States each year. The majority of these are runaways. About 100,000 are abducted by non-custodial parents. A remaining 50,000 are the missing children that concern her, Otto said. Ransom is not the motive. Most of them are never found or they turn up dead, she added.

Two benefit screenings of "Jaws 3-D" have raised about $50,000 so far for Find the Children. The organization is offering a standing $2,500 reward for any information leading to the return of a missing child. Otto plans to provide financial backing for existing child-find organizations around the country, to lobby for stricter penalties for child molesters and kidnapers, and to educate parents nationwide about how to protect their children.

Penalties to be assessed

AUSTIN (AP) — County commissioners and city council members who have been using their titles to get ahead in business will have to watch their step after Jan. 1.

A law passed by the 1983 Legislature establishes tough penalties for local officials who use their positions to financially benefit themselves and their relatives.

"For the first time state law defines what is conflict of interest for local officials, and also for the first time provides penalities," said Donna Mobley, staff director of the Public Servant Standards of Conduct Advisory Committee, which drafted the bill.

The Texas Municipal League, which sponsored and supported the measure, put out a recent special notice in its official magazine, Texas Town and City.

"Under the measure, if a local official (or his relatives) stands to gain a financial benefit from a matter pending before a public agency upon which the official serves, the person must publicly disclose his or her interest in such matter and then abstain from voting on it," said the TML notice.

The term "relatives" gets a broad definition in the new law — it includes the local official's spouse, parents, children, brothers and sisters, brothers- and sisters-in-law, sons- and daughters-in-law, mother-and father-in-law, nephews and nieces, uncles and aunts, first cousins, grandparents and grandparents-in-law, grandchildren and grandchildren-in-law — and the spouses to all the above.

Present laws concerning conflict of interest for local officials do not cover all officals and do not provide guidelines to determine when a conflict exists or procedure for handling such situations.

"I'm very pleased the way it came out," says Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, the Senate sponsor. "It's a very good bill and very needed."

The House sponsor was Rep. Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio.

"We had several reasons for sponsoring the bill," said Dick Brown, executive director of TML. "The present law is very vague and indefinite, and for several years some legislators have tried to pass laws putting local officials under the same financial disclosure laws covering state officials. This is very onerous to city councilmen and others, and they let us know there would be resigning in droves if such a law passed.

"We decided to sponsor our own bill that would hit those people who are using their office for personal gain. We think that is what this bill does," Brown said.

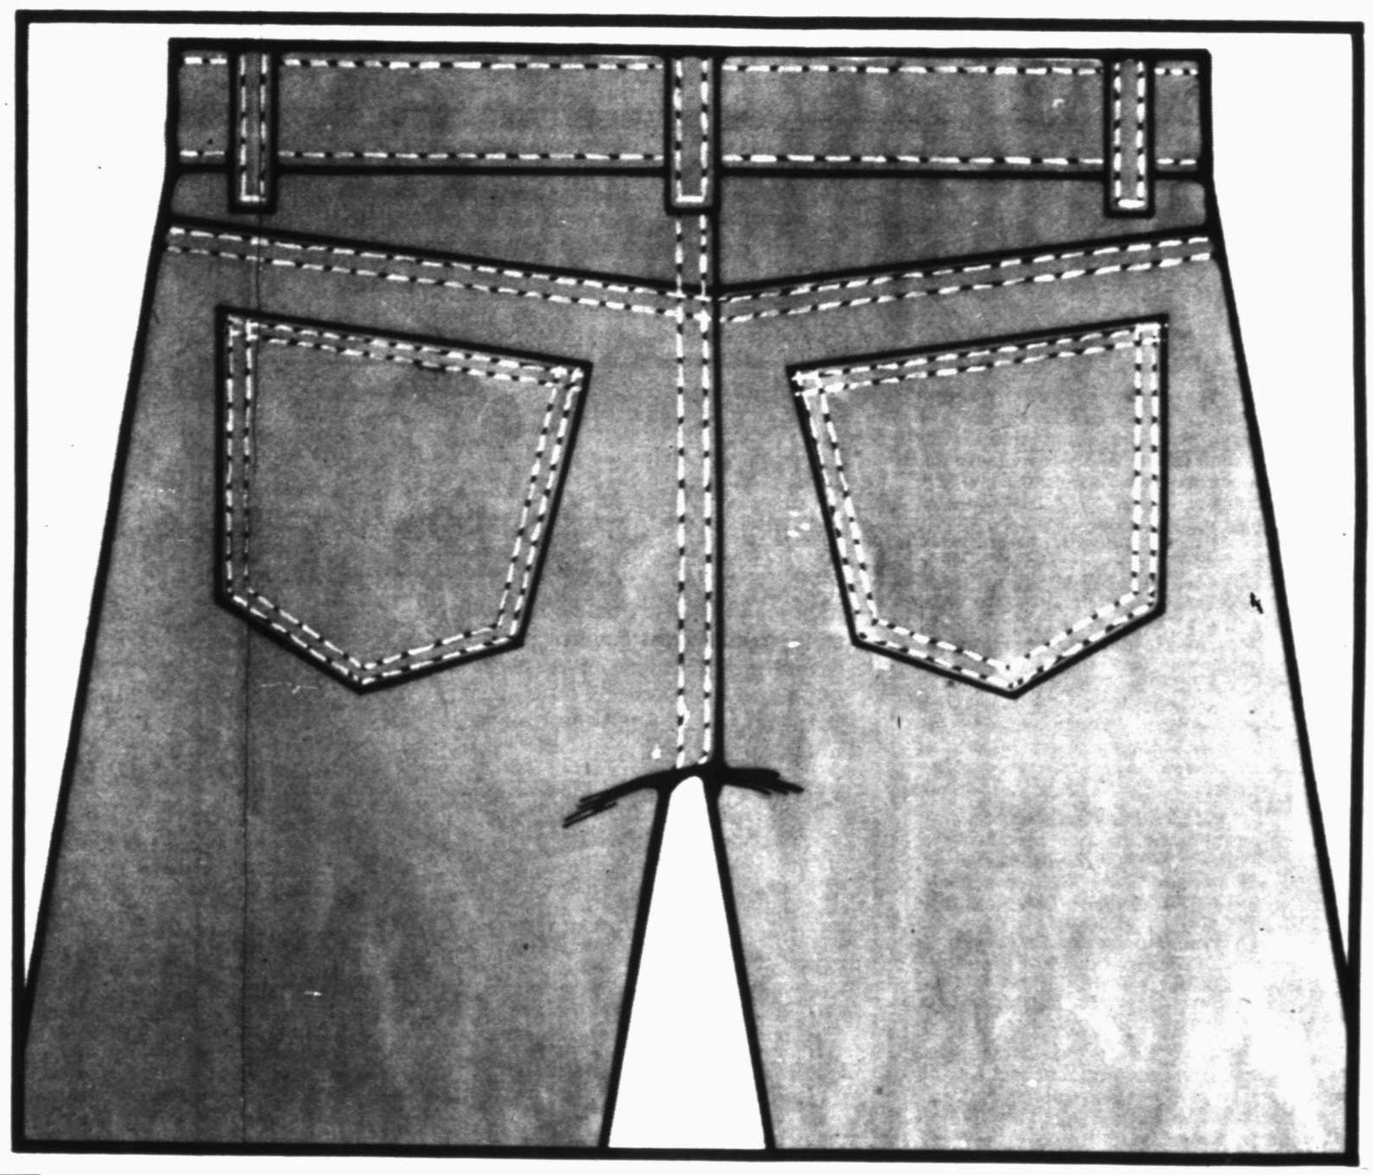

The bill passed both houses by wide margins.

Unlike financial disclosure laws for statewide officials and legislators, the bill does not require the filing of an annual financial statement or report.

However, as soon as a local official knows that he will be required to act or vote on anything in which he or a relative has a substantial business interest, he must file an affadavit divulging that interest and then must abstain from voting or taking action on the issue.

The Municipal League said the law is for those "who exercise responsibilities beyond those that are advisory."

Prosecutors clamp lid on Mattox investigation

AUSTIN (AP) — Prosecutors concerned about protecting the identities of witnesses in a grand jury investigation of Attorney General Jim Mattox have sharply reduced the flow of information to the press.

Grand jurors investigating Mattox's 1982 campaign finance reports and an accusation that he threatened a Houston law firm heard testimony Thursday from another lawyer working in Mattox's office — the ninth person from the attorney general's office to testify so far.

District Attorney Ronnie Earle had said as he walked into the grand jury room Thursday afternoon that three witnesses were expected to testify, but after they were through for the day, he refused to say how many witnesses had appeared.

Only one was seen leaving the secret grand jury chambers — Deborah Herzberg, an assistant attorney general in the division of insurance, banks and securities. Mrs. Herzberg, the fifth attorney from Mattox's office to go before grand jurors, left about 3 p.m. and told reporters her name, but had no other comment.

Mattox's press secretary Elna Christopher said Mrs. Herzberg had been subpoenaed at 1:15 p.m. after prosecutors were unable to execute a subpoena on her boss, Yolanda McKeenan. Miss Christopher said no one else in the attorney general's office had been subpoenaed.

After Mrs. Herzberg left, Earle, who has in the past revealed who testified, said "I have no comment as to the number of witnesses or their identities."

Asked if he were worried about protecting their identities, Earle replied, "I have some concerns about that. I won't comment any further."

He said the investigation will continue Tuesday and then responded repeatedly to reporters' inquiries with "no comment."

Thursday also happened to be the first day the state's "Whistle Blower Act" went into effect, sparking speculation that the new law could affect the Mattox investigation. The act protects state employees who testify against their supervisors in criminal investigations. They can't be fired or otherwise discriminated against for their testimony.

Puzzled newswriters asked Earle why he was refusing to yield routine information that he had willingly revealed after past grand jury sessions had ended for the day.

"Every time is different," he said.

Of 18 known witnesses who have testified in the case since the investigation began in July, exactly half of them work in the attorney general's office, including Mattox, who testified Tuesday.

Mattox's brother and sister testified last week. They became involved after it was revealed that in May of 1982 they borrowed $125,000 from a Seattle bank at which Mattox political contributor Clinton Manges was a big customer. Within a week, Mattox lent his campaign the same amount.

The self-loan was listed on his campaign finance report as his own money. State law says statewide candidates must report the true source of all campaign funds, including anyone who helped them borrow money from a bank. Mattox has insisted he reported his loan to his campaign accurately and legally.

After Mattox testified for about 3½ hours on Tuesday, he said he did not expect to be indicted, but added "I never try to second guess the actions of grand juries."

White appoints counsel to PUC

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas consumers' new voice at the Public Utility Commission is an Austin lawyer who decided the $57,500-a-year job is better than taking a chance on getting elected to the state Senate.

Jim Boyle, appointed Thursday as the state's first public utility counsel by Gov. Mark White, had announced as a candidate for the Senate seat to be vacated by Lloyd Doggett of Austin.

To get Boyle to take the PUC job, White said he had to "persuade him he had to withdraw from the Senate race." Now instead of seeking a Senate seat, Boyle will face confirmation by the Senate.

His PUC term expires Feb. 1, 1985.

Also Thursday, White reappointed PUC Chairman Al Erwin, one of the three White appointees who took over the commission when the previous members quit this year under fire from White.

"My children took a vote last night, and we will be in Austin for the next six years," Erwin said in announcing his intention to serve the full term.

Jim Boyle — Mark White

The counsel position was created this year by lawmakers, who were lobbied by Boyle in his post as legislative director for the Texas Consumer Association. In the early 1970s, Boyle helped start the Texas Coalition for Utility Regulation, a consumer group that pushed for the creation of a Texas PUC. The 1975 Legislature voted to set up the utility regulation agency.

After Thursday's announcement by White, Boyle said he wanted to order a "low-cal diet" for utility companies that are fat with profit.

Boyle's job is to watch out for consumers — residential and business — in Public Utility Commission rate cases.

"We are going to look at every utility rate increase that comes our way and try to give them a low-cal diet. We're going to try to take out every bit of fat that's in there," Boyle said.

Boyle's first major challenge will be the Southwestern Bell request for a $1.7 billion rate increase.

"My goal is going to be to see that all those Texans receiving an affordable basic telephone service now will continue to receive" that service, he said.

The Bell request would triple monthly residential bills for basic service.

White said Boyle would add "a balance to the finest PUC in the country." He said Boyle's background shows a "very pro-consumer" record.

White said he also had to consider the fact that Boyle's father-in-law, Ken Hinckley, is an executive with one of the state's largest utility companies — Houston Lighting and Power.

"I was terribly concerned about that. I was also concerned that his father-in-law is a Republican," White joked.

Hinckley is group vice president of external affairs, which includes lobbying, public affairs and customer relations.

"He's been on the other side for four years while I have been lobbying here at the Legislature."

White wants federal aid for Texas ranchers

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White joins other governors from drought-stricken states today in Chicago in asking federal help to feed Texas livestock this winter.

White told a news conference Thursday he hoped Secretary of Agriculture John Block would act as quickly on drought relief as Washington did in helping Texas sufferers from Hurricane Alicia.

White also told the news conference:

— He was appointing Austin attorney Jim Boyle as consumer advocate for the Public Utility Commission, a new job created by the last Legislature.

— He still has hopes of calling a special session this year to consider public education problems, highway financing and maybe job insurance for farm workers.

White said he, along with several other governors and congressmen from drought affected states, would hold an afternoon conference in Chicago.

"What we are going to be urging is to release some of the corn that is in storage right now in Texas and let that grain be used for feed for ranchers over the winter," White said.

"Even if it rained now in many parts of West Texas (it is) too late in the season for them to make grass so they are going to have to have help over the winter."

White said Texas ranchers are "caught on the wrong side of the law of supply and demand. As the drought intensifies, it tends to put him out of the cattle business and force him to sell livestock which tends to lower the price. At the same time those trying to maintain their herds are forced to buy range cubes or other types of cattle feed and the price at this time is driven up because the drought cut down on production."

The governor said it might be "more effective if Secretary Block did not go to Chicago but come out here to Odessa and maybe look at Pecos and see exactly what is happening."

White said he has talked twice recently with H. Ross Perot, chairman of the Select Committee on Public Education, which is to make recommendations to the next session of the Legislature.

"There was no precise date for a session," White said, "but Mr. Perot is mindful with me to get it done this year...before the end of the first of the year."

White said he is still trying to "marshal our resources and set the priorities" for a special session.

"No 1 is education and No. 2 has to be almost equally important, our transportation system."

EPA says Houston dump third most dangerous to public health

HOUSTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says a Houston dump is the third most dangerous to public health and the environment out of 133 hazardous waste sites added to its national list for emergency cleanup.

The former Geneva Industries plant in south Houston is contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyls — PCB's — as deep as 35 feet underground, EPA spokesman Roger Meacham said Thursday.

He said cleanup of the site, about a mile east of Hobby Airport, is scheduled to begin in October and is expected to cost between $3 million and $5 million.

Two other Texas sites, both in the Houston area, were included on the list, which was made public Thursday.

United Creosoting Co. closed its Conroe plant in 1975. Part of a housing development now sits on top of what was once a waste pond for toxic wood preserving chemicals, Meacham said.

He said the wastes, which include pentachlorophenol and toluene, have contaminated ground water.

Six ponds near New Waverly, about 16 miles north of Conroe, are filled with black acidic tar wastes which were dumped in the early 1960's, Meacham said.

Child's condition worsens as family waits for possible liver transplant

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Ashley Bailey's condition is worsening and her young parents are "desperate" in their search for a liver to give their daughter, says an aide to Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas.

Ashley, who turned 1 on Aug. 15, is the only one of several ill children cited by President Reagan in July who has yet to receive a life-sustaining liver transplant, said Jamie Clayton, Stenholm's press secretary.

Greg and Annette, Ashley's parents of Clyde, Texas, "have seen liver after liver come in only to go to other children," Clayton said. "You can't help but get frustrated even though it's wonderful the other children got transplants."

The tiny girl, weighing 11 pounds, needs a liver from a nearly newborn baby, Clayton said. She noted that few babies of that size die in accidents that would leave their livers intact.

President Reagan called for organ donations during a nationwide radio address July 23. After his speech, hospitals in several cities reported a surge in donations, but, according to Clayton, that has fallen off.

"They're simply not getting any infant donors in," she said.

Ashley's parents remain with their daughter at University Hospital in Minneapolis, Minn., where Greg works as a truck driver.

Bailey, brought to the special care hospital May 1, "has got incredible spunk," Clayton said, but physicians say her liver continues to harden.

"We're very hopelessly watching Ashley's case," Clayton said.

Jeff Sweetland (left) and Margaret Murphy, both from Pontotoc County, Miss., hold a candlelight vigil Thursday night prior to the scheduled execution of Jimmy Lee Gray. About a dozen protestors attended the vigil. Gray was convicted in 1976 for the murder of a 3-year-old girl.

Sex murderer dies in death chamber

PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP) — Inhaling deeply as wisps of lethal gas curled from under his chair, Jimmy Lee Gray moaned 11 times and died today with a series of wrenching spasms in Mississippi's death chamber for the rape and murder of a 3-year-old neighbor girl.

"I think he's finally paid his debt," said Sheriff John Ledbetter of Pascagoula, who watched Gray die for the sex slaying of Deressa Jean Scales.

Gray's death shortly after midnight in the steamy silver gas chamber was Mississippi's first execution in 19 years and the eighth in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court reaffirmed the death penalty in 1976.

Gray kidnapped the toddler from her Pascagoula apartment, then raped and sodomized her and finally suffocated her in a muddy ditch in 1976. The child's body was thrown from a bridge.

""He took the life of my daughter and therefore I did not think he should live," Richard Scales of Dallas, father of the slain child, said today.

After the state executioner, T. Berry Bruce, dropped cyanide crystals into a solution under Gray's black steel chair to form the deadly gas, the 34-year-old former computer programmer inhaled deeply.

His head slumped forward and then pitched backward. Gray moaned 11 times before falling quiet.

At one time, his head struck a metal pole behind the chair with such force that it shook the six-sided gas chamber.

Two doctors witnessing the execution in the maximum security section of the state penitentiary, monitoring his heart through a stethoscope attached to his chest, said Gray died two minutes after gas wafted through the chamber.

But Gray's attorney, Dennis Balske of Montgomery, Ala., claimed his client was still alive when Balske and 14 other witnesses were ushered from the execution room eight minutes after the gas first appeared.

"He was alive — he was breathing when they asked me to leave. There's no doubt about it," Balske asserted. "That's why I was told to leave while he was still breathing, so I couldn't come out here and say he was suffering."

"He was in pain," the lawyer said, adding that "He was breathing in as heavy as he could" to speed his own death.

State Corrections Commissioner Morris Thigpen said the official log filed by Bruce, a 64-year-old grandfather paid $250 for his work, showed Gray was dead three minutes after the cyanide crystals were dropped into the solution of water and sulfuric acid.

Gray died 14 hours after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear a new series of appeals, including a claim that Mississippi's use of the gas chamber is cruel and inhuman punishment.

Astronauts testing space materials

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts guided their ship 54 miles nearer to Earth today to test how samples of future space materials can stand up under constant bombardment by particles of atomic oxygen.

More than 300 different samples, from paints to telescope lens coatings, were being exposed to the eroding effects of the hurtling particles.

Commander Richard Truly and pilot Dan Brandenstein fired Challenger's maneuvering engines to drop the orbit from an altitude of 193 miles to 139 miles, steering the shuttle into the upper regions of Earth's ozone layer where there is a sea of atomic oxygen molecules.

These molecules are formed when cosmic rays strike oxygen atoms, stripping them of one electron. In this state they have an affinity for any type of matter and try to combine with it. This often causes the matter to erode or become brittle.

NASA engineers and scientists want to know which materials can best withstand this attack, and they have mounted rows and rows of samples in Challenger's cargo bay — as small discs and strips. They include films, paints, coatings, plastics, insulation, solar cells, quartz, sapphire, silver and materials being evaluated for possible use in the shuttle's thermal tiles.

For maximum impact, Truly turned the open cargo bay toward the direction of flight for several hours to drive the molecules into the samples.

The shuttle will remain at the lower altitude for the rest of the mission, and the materials will be analyzed after the astronauts return to Earth on Monday, landing at 12:40 a.m. Pacific time at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The astronauts, working their usual night shift, were roused Thursday night for their fourth day in space with the Penn State University fight song.

"I really enjoyed the Nittany fight song," said mission specialist Guion Bluford, a Philadelphian who received his bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering from Penn State in 1964. The school's teams are known as the Nittany Lions.

Over breakfast, Truly did some sightseeing and spoke of seeing "a couple of spectacular night passes" over Africa, the Middle East, the Nile River Valley, Israel, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and "all the way to India." He reported thunderstorms off the Florida coast and said the view of the northwest part of Australia was "absolutely unbelievable."

Death a rarity on death row

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before today's execution of Jimmy Lee Gray, just seven U.S. prison inmates had been executed in the seven years since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment. In that time, the U.S. death row population swelled to more than 1,200 men and women.

All seven of those executed before Gray were men and four of them chose death over extended legal appeals.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that the death penalty can be a constitutional punishment for convicted murderers. The decision ended a four-year moratorium on capital punishment imposed by the high court in 1972. Before then, no prison inmate had been executed since 1967.

A new era of capital punishment began six months after the 1976 ruling when Gary Mark Gilmore, an arrogant Utah killer, died before a firing squad Jan. 17, 1977. He said he preferred to "die like a man" rather than challenge his conviction for the murder of a Provo motel clerk.

John Spenkelink, convicted of killing a traveling companion, frantically fought for his life before dying in Florida's electric chair May 25, 1979. He was pronounced dead only 28 minutes after the Supreme Court rejected his last legal appeal.

Jesse Bishop died in a Nevada gas chamber Oct. 22, 1979, after emulating Gilmore's decision to forgo any legal appeal.

The next two men to die reached similar decisions.

Indiana murderer Steven Judy was electrocuted March 9, 1981.

Virginia killer Frank J. Coppola died in his state's electric chair Aug. 10, 1982.

Charlie Brooks Jr. became the first prison inmate executed by lethal injection when, on Dec. 7, 1982, Texas prison authorities shot a deadly drug into his veins. He was the first black man executed since 1967.

John Louis Evans died in Alabama's electric chair April 22, 1983.

Today, 38 states have capital punishment laws; 12 states and the District of Columbia do not. Those laws call for execution by electrocution, gas, firing squad, hanging or lethal injection.

State authorities, and the nation's courts, are finding that enforcement of those laws can be a lengthy process.

Two years ago, Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist accused his fellow justices of creating "endless, drawn-out legal proceedings" in death penalty cases that create "a mockery of our criminal justice system."

Last July 6, the high court made it easier for federal appeals courts to accelerate death row executions by allowing them to take some shortcuts in handling last-minute efforts by condemned inmates to postpone scheduled executions.

Scales reacts to Gray's death

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Lee Gray "didn't have the right to continue living," Richard Scales said today when told Mississippi had put to death the man who seven years ago sexually abused and then murdered his 3-year-old daughter.

"Even in prison he had been able to talk, to breathe and to laugh and he had taken all these things from my little girl," Scales said from his home in Dallas.

Gray, who was on parole from an Arizona prison when he kidnapped and killed Deressa Jean Scales in Pascagoula, died in the gas chamber at the Mississippi State Penitentiary early today.

Ministers and others who had befriended Gray at the penitentiary said the 34-year-old former computer programmer had become a born-again Christian while in prison and was ashamed of his deed.

The Rev. Don Dickerman of Hurst, Texas, who became acquainted with Gray as part of his church's prison ministry program, has said before the execution that Gray had "felt he deserved to die according to the law of the land."

"I think it is justice," Richard Scales Sr., grandfather of the slain girl, said after talking with his son. "This almost destroyed (the younger Scales)."

The child's tragic death on June 25, 1976, and the long legal battle waged by Gray has "been digging in his mind and he couldn't get it out," the elder Scales said. "The court has taken care of it now."

Saturday, September 3, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This was the birthdate of celebrated Italian violinmaker Nicolo Amati, movie favorite Alan Ladd and Boston department store magnate Edward Filene, who founded the U.S. credit union movement. Also sharing your birthday: actresses Eileen Brennan and Valerie Perrine, "Beetle Bailey" creator Mort Walker and Oakland A's manager Steve Boros. Special family relationships flourish now. Be sure to give romance the time and attention it deserves. You must use your clout in business situations if you do not want to lose it. A job change may be part of the picture. Make certain you are not giving up security just for a change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone who is unemployed gets a lead that can be followed up next week. Share any good news with the whole family. Approach someone you have admired from afar.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romatic partner is coming around to your point of view. Be subtle. You have a chance to receive financial support for a personal project. Music lifts your spirits and inspires romance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be candid with children. They will appreciate and respond to your honesty. A special sports event gives you a social advantage. Delay any major moves until next week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have more energy than you can use today! Include members of all ages in your weekend plans. Reading holds special appeal now. Encourage young people to discover the pleasures of books.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cooperative ventures are successful today. Level with your mate. He/she is in a forgiving mood. Keep a close eye on your valuables and put them in storage when you travel.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Social events feature surprises. Attend them with someone who shares your special interests. Strangers may be better company than your friends today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A family member needs your guidance. Make yourself available. A money question is best answered Monday when you can get expert advice. Sports activities bring you and a child closer together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Assemble all the tools and materials you need before starting home repairs. You gain access to those who can help romance along. Work to improve family rapport.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Say "yes" to a suggestion made by mate or a child. A neighbor is receptive to an idea that will benefit both of you. Return something you borrowed long ago.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Certain family members seem touchy. Give them a wide berth. Your humanitarian efforts win you the praise and recognition you so richly deserve.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are able to renew an old acquaintance. Seek out friends who share your interests. Consider loved one's feelings before committing yourself to any social plans.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may have misunderstood romantic partner and have a totally erroneous view of what happened. It is possible to arrange an emergency loan from relatives.

Program won't work at CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Grizzly bears, certainly not man's best friend, are victims of creeping humanity, according to a CBS News documentary. But no matter how valid the point of view, it's awfully hard to get worked up by one man's sentimental homage to these disappearing creatures.

The man, marching to his own environmental drumbeat, is Shad Northshield, who produced, directed and wrote tonight's "Paradise Lost," which grieves that the grizzly is going the way of the buffalo.

Northshield, his craggy voice conveying a sense of outrage, says that man has disrupted the balance of nature by taking his campsights and energy quests to the grizzly's doorstep. "When they are here together, there is trouble in paradise," he says. "Things and theories die. The balance is destroyed. That's the way a paradise gets lost."

Northshield once was executive producer of NBC's "Huntley-Brinkley Report" and now serves as senior executive producer of CBS' pioneering "Sunday Morning" broadcast. These are testaments to Northshield's vision, not "Paradise Lost."

"Paradise Lost" would have worked well as a 10- to 12-minute feature on "Sunday Morning" — combining picture postcards from the Western wilderness with the lament that life ain't what it used to be for the grizzlies.

As an hour, it comes off as piously indulgent. For Northshield to quote French author Albert Camus ("Life is a series of symbols"), and link the bear market on grizzlies as somehow reflective of America's weakening values is stretching the point.

"It has been said that wild animals define wilderness," says Northshield, "and that a nation that preserves that wilderness deserves to call itself civilized."

Although not every documentary has to be as purposeful as Edward R. Murrow's landmark piece on migrant workers, "Harvest of Shame," CBS News is experiencing a budget crunch and should have more important items on its agenda. Gene Jankowski, head of the CBS Broadcast Group, made that clear in his celebrated pep talk to the troops at CBS News last June, when he appealed for more hard-hitting documentaries.

But, even as a soft, quiet naturalist piece, "Paradise Lost" doesn't work

Opening lead: Nine of ♡!

Even the most experienced players can be fooled by a false card. This hand is from a recent rubber bridge game at New York's renown Cavendish Club.

North employed the Stayman Convention over his partner's no trump opening to check on a major fit. When the heart fit was uncovered, North made an invitational raise, but South, with a minimum, declined.

With a neutral lead, declarer would surely have made his contract. He would have had little alternative to cashing two high hearts, and the result would have been very pleasing. But the West defender, Bee Schenken, led the nine of hearts, and declarer found he had an alternative line. If the lead was honest, East held Q-10-x of trumps, and they could now be picked up.

Declarer put up dummy's jack of trumps, covered by the queen and won by the ace. The club finesse lost to East's king, and the club return was taken in dummy. Declarer led a low heart to his eight, and was surprised to find West winning the ten. West exited safely with a trump, and declarer still had one chance — to find East with the ace of diamonds. Unfortunately that card was with West, and declarer could not avoid losing two diamond tricks for down one.

This hand bears out a point that we have often made. It is not the dramatic plays that bring the best results. A quiet bit of deception is likely to be as successful — sometimes even more so.

An inhumane act

Today Americans remain apalled and outraged by the mindless act which occurred Wednesday afternoon — the shooting down by a Soviet fighter plane of a civilian airliner with 269 people aboard.

"How can this happen in the civilized world?" they're asking themselves. The answer is simple. It didn't. The decision by the Soviets to fire on the jetliner was, as it has been repeatedly described, a barbaric act of inhumanity.

Initial reports indicate that between 35 and 50 innocent Americans — including Congressman Larry McDonald, D-Ga., — perished in the incident. Americans, of course, are horrified by that stark fact. But the magnitude of the horror is heightened by the realization that nearly 300 lives were snuffed out by the Soviets with no apparent concern. There was ample opportunity for the Soviet fighters to have resolved the intrusion into their nation's airspace in a less brutal manner. They tracked the jetliner for two and a half hours and were within visual contact at times, U.S. officials said.

But all the confusion and concern expressed in the United States and elsewhere hasn't moved the Soviets to even acknowledge shooting down the plane. They're not talking and in their silence is yet another indication of the import they attach to their unthinkable act.

Beyond expressing horror and disbelief at the act, American officials appear to be uncertain at this moment how to respond to the incident. President Reagan and various members of Congress have demanded a full accounting from the Soviet Union and the president was returning to the White House today for talks with national security advisers.

Questions about how to respond nearly always appear futile, some — like economic sanctions and trade reprisals — even backfiring on the American people. But this act — an act of hatred and contempt for those values civilized people worldwide cherish — must not be allowed to pass without severe retaliation.

Short of direct military confrontation, we advise President Reagan to take the strongest retaliatory step possible while seeking support from the world community for a condemnation of the Soviet action.

A treaty to cherish

July 4th, 1776, is a date well-known to most Americans. It's the date on which brave men said no to tyrannical rule in the American colonies and declared their independence as a sovereign nation in a revolt that was to mark the beginning of the nation of liberty.

In 1976, Americans celebrated the 200th anniversary of the momentous event. Saturday will mark a date of no less — even more — significance in the nation's history. It will be the 200th birthday of the date on which three dedicated and tireless men consummated the dream of their compatriots by signing the Treaty of Paris in Paris, France.

The treaty negotiated by Benjamin Franklin, John Jay, John Adams and Henry Laurens was a document of incalculable importance because it gave this country recognition as a sovereign nation and changed the boundaries of the 13 original colonies to allow Americans access to this entire continent with its vast natural resources and scenic beauty.

Two hundred years later, modern Americans are able to grasp the significance of that original document. Historians recount the peacemakers of 1783 as men of independent judgement, skill in diplomatic maneuvering who were endowed with the courage of their convictions. Every American today should be grateful the peacemakers possessed those qualities.

The Daughters of the American Revolution organization is planning a year-long observance to denote the importance of the treaty's signing by Franklin, Jay and Adams. Locally, the Lt. William Brewer Chapter of the DAR is urging Midlanders to fly their flags Saturday. We join them in soliciting this patriotic gesture.

Another View:

Neglecting children

Eight million American children are being raised in homes in which a parent — usually the father — is absent. More than half of the 8 million are supposed to receive court-ordered child-support payments. But a lot of them don't. Congress should stiffen the penalties for parents who defy such orders.

Census Bureau figures tell a disheartening story: In 1981, less than half the children entitled to support received all they were due; more than a third collected nothing at all. Overall, the nation's children are deprived of $4 billion a year in court-ordered support.

Partly because of the deficiency, more children are poor now than at any time since 1965. Of all children in female-headed families, 56 percent live in poverty, and the percentages for minorities are higher. Another reason for the rising poverty figures is the Reagan administration's unwise cuts in programs that help children and families in crisis. But if more absent parents obeyed child-support orders, children would be better off and so would taxpayers.

Several proposals soon to be considered in Congress would crack down on parents who refuse to pay — by imposing mandatory wage withholding, intercepting tax refunds or expediting court actions. Some proposals would provide financial incentives to the states to ensure vigorous enforcement of child-support orders. Most congressmen agree that the new law should apply to both welfare and non-welfare cases.

Tough enforcement and tougher laws are part of the answer. But, as Minnesota Rep. Bill Frenzel correctly argues, attitudes must change as well.

A co-sponsor of several child-support bills, Frenzel says that the government alone cannot solve the problem of "deadbeat parents." People must come to see parental refusal to pay child support for what it is: child neglect.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Greek may have funneled funds

WASHINGTON — A little-noticed item in the financial pages recently reported the purchase of Tom Pappas's oil company, Esso Pappas, by the Greek government. There's a fascinating story behind the $15 million deal.

Jack Anderson

Pappas was a major fund-raiser and contributor to the 1968 campaign of Richard Nixon and his running mate, Spiro T. Agnew, who was to become the highest elected official of Greek-American background. The Esso works in Greece was just one of the multimillionaire's holdings, which also included shipping and soft drink companies.

The Pappas enterprises were alleged to be fronts for CIA operations in Greece during the period when the military junta was in power. More serious were charges that CIA funds found their way through Pappas back to the United States into the Nixon-Agnew campaign fund. If Nixon got his hands on U.S. Treasury money indirectly through the CIA, it is a scandal of first magnitude.

An investigation into the Nixon-Pappas-CIA connection was begun by the Senate Intelligence Committee in 1975. But it was dropped at the personal request of then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

The money trail led from the CIA to its Greek counterpart, the KYP, then to Pappas and back to the United States and into the Nixon-Agnew campaign. Pappas vehemently denied the charges, which had come from Elias Demetracopoulos, a respected Greek journalist who had fled his homeland after the junta took over in 1967.

A few weeks before the 1968 election, Demetracopoulos took his charges to Lawrence O'Brien, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee. O'Brien issued a press release demanding that Nixon and Agnew explain their relationship to Pappas, but it drew little attention in the final days of the campaign.

It is conceivable that if the truth about Nixon's secret funding by the CIA had come out, he might have lost the extremely close election to Hubert Humphrey. As things turned out, though, the Greek exile leader's charges may have played an unwitting part in Nixon's ultimate downfall. Here's how:

In 1971, Demetracopoulos laid his explosive charges before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee, and was asked to submit details in a memorandum. Before he could do so, Nixon's longtime adviser, Murray Chotiner, told Demetracopoulos: "Lay off Pappas. It's not smart politics. You know Tom Pappas is a friend of the president's."

Then Attorney General John Mitchell got into the act. At a party, he confronted a Republican friend of the Greek journalist, Louise Gore, then-ambassador to UNESCO. She wrote Demetracopoulos: "(Mitchell) is furious at you — and your testimony against Pappas. He kept threatening to have you deported."

Demetracopoulos submitted his memo to the House subcommittee anyway — disclosing that he had documentary evidence to support his charges. The White House was obviously worried about Demetracopoulos' evidence — and, according to competent sources, that may have been one reason the Watergate burglary was authorized. Nixon wanted to know what ammunition Demetracopoulos had supplied to the Democrats.

The "smoking gun" in the Greek connection was eventually provided by the late Henry Tasca, in 1976 testimony to the House Intelligence Committee. Tasca previously had been U.S. ambassador to Greece, and his sworn testimony was kept secret at his insistence. He confirmed the funneling of money from the Greek junta to the Nixon campaign.

The eminent investigative reporter Seymour Hersh, in his book about Henry Kissinger, has written that Tasca's testimony "raises the question whether the CIA ... was aware that some of its funds were being returned to the United States for use in a presidential election."

As for the Senate investigation of 1975, Hersh declares: "Sources close to the committee have said that its investigation was abruptly canceled at Kissinger's direct request."

Footnote: Nixon, Kissinger and Pappas were either unavailable or refused to comment.

EXPENSIVE MOPPING: Because some Naval Academy midshipmen had to swab decks and work in the galley for a few weeks — and a Maryland member of Congress misconstrued the reason for this demeaning duty — the taxpayers will get stuck for millions of dollars.

Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., thought the midshipmen's menial chores were caused by failure of private contractors to perform properly. In fact, it was civil servants who failed to perform; they transferred, quit or took early retirement when they learned that private firms had been awarded the janitorial contracts, leaving the middies stuck with the dirty work.

Holt's misinformation led the House to pass a one-year moratorium on private contracting for the three service academies. Even when her mistake was discovered and the amendment dropped, the Navy — evidentially reluctant to offend the congresswoman — assured Holt that it will delay the switch to private contracting anyway. The move could cost more than $5.5 million.

TANK TROUBLE: The Pentagon is trying to play down yet another problem with its trouble-plagued M-1 tank. During tests at Aberdeen, Md., last March, a 120mm shell exploded in an M-1 tank's gun. The Pentagon called the mishap an "unexpected test incident" and said no one was hurt. Sources say three persons were injured, perhaps seriously.

INSIDE REPORT:

Clark's pipeline stance vital

WASHINGTON — The odd-couple combination of White House politicians and foreign policy moderates in the bureaucracy plotting a pre-election U.S.-Soviet summit won big when national security adviser William P. Clark refused to dissuade President Reagan from ending license requirements for Caterpillar's pipelayers.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

But for Clark's careful neutrality, the Aug. 20 defeat of the president's ideological hardliners would assume dimensions of irreversibility. That would point to the near certainty of a summit next spring and victory for the odd couple's strategy of sublimating national security to 1984 re-election politics.

Odd-couple leaders viewed the bitter, mostly sub-surface battle over the pipelayers as vital, a conclusion having little to do with its financial importance to Caterpillar (which could be substantial) because of its symbolism in the internal administration struggle over a summit between Reagan and Yuri Andropov next spring.

Led by Secretary of State George Shultz in the Cabinet and deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver in the White House, the pro-summiteers needed to win the president's mind on the pipelayer issue, a brew that for years has boiled with politics and ideology. A clear-cut decision would give them a second big win following the new Soviet grain deal. It would set the stage for a third when Shultz travels to Madrid for highly-publicized talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko next month.

Clark was quite aware of the transcendent importance to Shultz of the Caterpillar issue. He worried that a loss for Shultz would promote another power-struggle orgy that would damage the president, himself and Shultz (though talk that Shultz was ready to resign if he lost is ridiculous). So Bill Clark limited himself to the role of scrupulously neutral presidential informant as the battle raged.

Clark's self-enforced neutrality leaves open the question of where and how he will come down on the summit question, a fact that pro-summiteers should keep in mind before they count on getting Reagan's signature on an invitation to the Soviet president.

Shultz and Soviet Ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin have already had half a dozen talks aimed, in the words of one White House insider, at "a Ronnie-Yuri summit." The intensified Shultz-Gromyko dialogue shows no give on the Soviet side.

Nevertheless, State Department Sovietologists have produced lengthy papers suggesting various formulas for a summit. These bureaucratic musings go routinely to the White House. There they are strongly reinforced by followers of the Deaver line who believe a summit would swing votes to Reagan, and quietly ridiculed by hard-core Reaganauts as a violation of fundamental Reaganism.

The battle over ending license requirements for Caterpillar's pipelayers showed the commitment of the pro-summiteers to wiping the slate clean of anti-Soviet moves by President Carter in 1978 (to protest Soviet human rights violations). Shultz rejected an offer to reduce from 90 days to three days the time for granting a license to Caterpillar to sell the pipelayers to the Soviets.

That offer did not satisfy the Soviet Union. Moscow insisted on outright repeal of licensing requirements, so the odd-couple Shultz-Deaver alliance overrode Pentagon objections.

To the Reaganaut faithful, converting the president's ideological hard line against the Soviets to one that draws its raison d'etre from the dubious demands of the 1984 campaign approaches apostasy. The coincidental timing of the decision with the new dictat of the Polish government outlawing the Polish Writers' Union horrified White House insiders and their defeated allies in the Pentagon.

Clark's neutrality made the questionable decision possible. If at some later stage he throws his weight against the pro-summiteers, they will quickly see how large is the difference between Clark in neutral and Clark in gear.

CHARLEY REESE

'The War' won't teach anything!

Fiction writers and anti-nuke scare mongers who try to depict the United States after a nuclear war have it all wrong. It will not be at all like they claim. They simply do not know Americans.

Charley Reese

One of the first things that will happen is that the feminist survivors will claim that more women were killed than men and immediately file suit against the Soviet Union for discriminatory warfare.

Surviving civil rights leaders will claim that the war was a racist plot to prevent black people from achieving middle class status.

As soon as they can find a few mimeograph machines unburned, sociologists will begin to crank out questionnaires and have graduate students deliver them to survivors. They will want to know if the people think nuclear war is totally bad, partially bad, fair or tolerable. Naturally, they will have already applied in advance for grants to study the post-nuclear society.

Surviving newspapers will immediately begin to sell ads for a post-Holocaust special edition. They may even be willing to accept script or trade-offs. Television stations in the hinterlands which were missed will go on the air with 30-second bulletins between syndicated re-runs announcing that there was a nuclear war and that there will be more details on the six o'clock news.

The American Civil Liberties Union will protest the government's proclamation of martial law, claiming it is unconstitutional and an invasion of privacy.

Environmentalists will blame James Watt and set up special committees to save the whooping cranes. Animal lovers will send out armed posses to prevent the survivors from eating stray dogs.

IRS will disallow deductions for property damages and insurance companies will wire back from Brazil a reminder that their policies specifically exclude paying any claims connected to war. They will invite survivors to move to Brazil which by then they will have purchased along with Argentina and Paraguay.

Editorial writers will see in the war and its aftermath an opportunity to provide for planned growth and new zoning laws with real teeth in them. They will urge people not make the mistake again of trying free enterprise.

Political columnists will asses the effects of the war on the first election after martial law is lifted.

Americans for Democratic Action will issue a warning against a return to McCarthyism and an irrational hatred of Communism. They will say the post-war era, like the pre-war era, demands a socialistic approach.

The Arab-Americans will proclaim the war a Zionist plot and the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee will begin to raise funds to buy fans to keep the fallout from drifting toward Israel.

Ralph Nader will issue a report condemning the government's emergency medical facilities as unsafe.

Liberals in Congress will say the war is our fault, pass an emergency pay raise for themselves and fly off to New Zealand to assess the effects of the war on United States foreign aid to New Zealand sheep farmers. Alan Cranston will demand an immediate resumption of disarmament talks.

The Far Right will announce that the Establishment was not really incinerated but is hiding in a special Trilateral underground cavern in the Australian outback.

Federal judges will issue orders that all convicts are to be immediately provided with fallout shelters or released lest their constitutional rights be violated by gamma rays.

The realists will prepare for World War IV.

Poll: Pot use declines in California

By THOMAS MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As pot growers roll up a multi-billion dollar harvest, an opinion poll released today says marijuana use is waning in California, where possession is a misdemeanor offense comparable to a traffic ticket.

The California Poll found one in eight adults in the state smoke pot — down from about one in six four years ago — and, for the first time, a majority of Californians now favors strict enforcement of marijuana laws.

"There has been a significant decline in support for the argument that marijuana is no more dangerous than alcohol," the study by The Field Institute said.

"Nearly two out of three Californians (64 percent) agree that marijuana is a dangerous drug and can make a person lose control of what he or she is doing."

About 31 percent of those questioned said they once smoked marijuana but stopped — the highest percentage of ex-smokers ever recorded. The number of daily users dropped from 29 percent in 1979 to 15 percent today, the poll said.

The main reasons that nonsmokers abstain from marijuana are health concerns (51 percent) and a lack of interest (41 percent), the survey said. But the percentage of those who fear "losing control" rose from 6 percent to 18 percent during the past four years, the poll said.

As support for legalization dropped from 42 percent to 32 percent during the period, the number of those supporting stricter enforcement or tougher laws rose from 36 percent to 54 percent.

The largest decline in use was among young people, but popularity of the drug fell among all sample groups, the survey said.

Marijuana has become one of the leading cash crops in California, a state where agriculture is the No. 1 industry. While there is no official estimate of the crop's value, experts including the federal Drug Enforcement Agency agree it is in the billions of dollars.

Federal agents and county lawmen complain that cultivation on private and public lands has been increasing in recent years, and that the marijuana being grown is up to 10 times as potent as the variety seized in raids a decade ago.

Much of the marijuana grown in California today is sinsemilla, a seedless variety that brings as much as $150 per ounce in street sales. A single sinsemilla plant can be worth $5,000.

The rising value of marijuana has prompted some to call for the legalization of pot, so that it can be taxed. But The California Poll said 51 percent of the public doesn't believe legal sales of marijuana would help the state's economy. It said 64 percent of the sampling opposed legalization.

The statewide telephone survey of 763 adults has a margin of error of about 5 percent. Pollsters cautioned, however, that "undetected flaws," such as the wording of questions or external events, could have a significant effect on the findings.

Gap between blacks, whites open...in some cases worsened

Copley News Service

One reason for the widespread withdrawal from civil rights concerns is the illusion that black progress has been so significant that special efforts by government and the private sector are no longer necessary.

But that premise is totally wrong. While no one could deny significant progress on a number of fronts, the gap between white and black Americans has not closed, and in some respects has actually worsened.

The latest of many reports documenting the continuing black-white gap was recently released by the Washington-based Center for the Study of Social Policy. It says what the Urban League's State of Black America reports and others have also reported about the continuing gap. But every fresh reminder has to be publicized to the utmost, since America's leadership refuses to act on the facts.

What are those facts? Well, the most crucial gap is the income gap. Black family income is only 56 percent of the white median, about where it was in 1960, and down from 61 percent in 1970.

That means for every dollar of income the typical white family has, the typical black family has only 56 cents.

The decline in family income is partly the result of the gap in employment opportunities. The black unemployment rate is now around 21 percent — more than double the white rate.

Black unemployment is far higher than it has been in the postwar era. As a result fewer blacks are in the labor force, defined as comprising people actively looking for work. Their futile attempts to find work confirm their perception that jobs are simply not available.

The greatest impact is felt among black men. Almost half are not working, compared with about 30 percent of white men. There are over 3 million more black unemployed men today than there were 20 years ago.

The poverty gap remains as well, with one-third of black families living in poverty compared to a bit over one-tenth of white families. More striking, three times as many black children as white are living in poor families.

Women react to protest

From Wire Reports

LOS ANGELES — Partisanship — rather than sisterhood — marked the way politically involved California women reacted to Barbara Honegger's statements that a mystical-like force started her on the path that led her to denounce President Reagan's efforts to end sex discrimination.

Not surprisingly, Democratic women felt the substance of Honegger's charges was the point, rather than what had motivated the 35-year-old Californian to join the Reagan administration as a women's advocate and then resign this week in protest.

Republican women, on the other hand, felt Honegger's comments had irrevocably damaged Honegger's credibility.

Honegger initially said an outside "source" channeled revelations to her in 1980 about her future role in a Reagan administration. She later said deeply felt "intuitions" were what affected her.

"I THINK it's regrettable since her goals for women are so worthwhile," said state Sen. Bobbi Fiedler, R-Northridge. "But when a circus environment is created — such as has taken place in the last few days — it makes it difficult to develop...confidence in her."

Eileen Padberg, a political consultant and registered Republican, said that while she agrees with Honegger's assessment of the administration's lack of commitment to women's issues, Honegger's re"source" remark "undermines her effectiveness and impact."

"The ball was in her court (Thursday) and she was in control," said Padberg, partner in the Costa Mesa firm of Nelsen-Padberg. "Today, she has given the ball back to the Reagan administration."

TO OTHER political women, however, Honegger's actions — regardless of how they came about — were courageous and necessary.

"Here's a woman who worked in the Justice Department and has seen what we've all seen and felt since Reagan was elected president," said Midge Costanza, former Carter White House adviser on women's issues. "Who cares what motivated her? Her credibility is based on the charges — and not why she made them."

Costanza's remarks were echoed by Los Angeles City Councilwoman Joy Picus, who said Honegger's remarks were "irrelevant to the issue."

"The issue is," Picus added, "is the Reagan administration committed to equal rights or just to talking about it?"

PICUS, like many others polled by the Herald, said that to focus on Honegger's motivation is to "detract from the significance of the issue (equal rights)."

Shamir's past violent, secretive

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel — Behind the innocuous look that gives Yitzhak Shamir the air of a favorite uncle lies a violent past, a secretive manner and a will of steel.

Shamir, who is foreign minister, won his party's nomination today to succeed resigning Prime Minister Menachem Begin by defeating Deputy Prime Minister David Levy in a vote of the Herut Party's central committee.

"Shamir knows secrets which he won't even reveal to himself," jokes an associate. It is a life checkered with political assassinations and terrorism — untold tales that will probably die with him.

Shamir's past 13 years have been a long, almost unnoticed climb from obscurity as a secret agent of the Israeli government to the threshold of the premiership.

His biography is a tantalizing series of exciting stories interrupted by long blanks during the years when he lived underground as a fighter for Israeli independence in Palestine and later as a European operative for the Mossad secret service — an organization so clandestine that even its director is not known.

Interviews with the 68-year-old Shamir reveal little of the man. He has never been known to speak out without first choosing his words carefully, and he refrains from talking about himself.

He has done things that make him look even more hawkish than Begin, but at times he has also been known to counsel moderation and restraint in Israel's handling of the Mideast crisis.

Shamir was born Yitzhak Ysernitzky in Ruzinoy, in eastern Poland, was educated at a Jewish school and as a youth joined Betar, the Zionist movement founded in Euorpe by Vladimir Ze'ev Jabotinsky, the charismatic Jewish nationalist who was the mentor of such future leaders as Begin.

He began reading law in Warsaw, but cut short his studies to emigrate to Palestine in 1935. He worked as a building laborer in Jerusalem, and later for an accounting office.

In his free time, he became involved with the "Irgun Zvai Leumi" ("National Military Organization"), the nascent underground that Begin would later turn into a brutal force in the quest to drive the British out of Palestine.

He took the Hebrew name Shamir, which means both "thistle" and "flint." It seemed an apt name for a tough, unbending man who barely topped five feet in height.

The Irgun split in 1941, and Shamir joined the breakaway faction called Lehi, an acronym meaning "Fighters for Israel's Freedom" — better known to its British foes as the Stern Gang.

The Irgun was militant and Lehi even more so. It embarked on a series of bank robberies, followed by assassinations of British soldiers and officers in Palestine, and bombings of Arab civilian and military targets. Lehi became known as the most ruthless of the underground armies operating in Palestine. Unlike other Jewish organizations, Lehi went as far as to execute its own men if it suspected them of betraying the cause.

Shamir was high on the British wanted list, and lived in hiding, disguised as a rabbi.

While Shamir was never directly linked to any killings, he was Lehi's chief planner and operations officer, described by Lehi comrade Israel Eldad as "short and stocky, slow and careful of speech.

Lehi's most notorious actions were the 1944 assassination of the British resident minister in the Mideast, Lord Moyne, blamed by Lehi for the British ban on Jewish immigration to Palestine, and the 1948 killing of Count Folke Bernadotte, the Swedish U.N. mediator in Palestine, who enraged Lehi by recommending that Jerusalem be excluded from Israel's borders-to-be.

Shamir was twice arrested by the British and twice escaped, the second time from a detention camp in British-held Eritrea, on the Red Sea in east Africa.

Striking sector observed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Army troops patrolled mostly Moslem west Beirut in tanks and armored trucks today as residents of the capital's Christian sector staged a general strike to protest a massacre of villagers by Druse militiamen.

As a new U.S. amphibious task force of about 1,800 Marines headed for Lebanon, the 1,200-man Marine contingent already serving in the multinational peacekeeping force reported all was quiet around its base at Beirut's closed international airport.

Spokesmen for French, Italian and British contingents of the 5,400-man peace force also reported no new incidents of violence, after five days of clashes between the Lebanese army and rebellious Moslem Shiite and Druse militias.

The armored patrols sped through the west Beirut streets as the army solidified its control of the city after a sweep by 10,000 troops that flushed Shiite and Druse militia from strongholds set up when the latest fighting began last Sunday.

A police spokesman said more than 100 irregulars were rounded up and taken to prison in a 24-hour mop-up operation Thursday that "nearly finished all pockets of resistance within the capital."

The Christian sector was shuttered as banks, shops, cafes and other businesses closed in a general strike called by the Phalangist militia to protest what is said was the massacre of 27 Christian villagers by Druse militia men in the central mountain town of Bmariam on Thursday.

Bulldogs open season against Plainsmen

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Lubbock Monterey coach James Odom witnessed Midland High's scrimmage against Lubbock Coronado and a couple of things are bothering him.

"That quarterback for Midland High (James Wellborn) has a good arm and he's accurate and that's what bothers me," said Odom. "He can throw the ball long and short accurately. We probably won't see a better passer all year or two better receivers (Allan Foret and Todd Shiplett).

"Something else that bothers me is that Coronado couldn't get to Wellborn the other day," continued Odom about that scrimmage. "If we can't get to him, we're going to have trouble stopping him."

And, that's what Midland High coach Pat Culpepper is hoping will be the case tonight as the Bulldogs open their 1983 football season against the Monterey Plainsmen at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

"So far our offensive line has been outstanding," said Culpepper. "We have been blocking well on the run and the pass."

Culpepper has set up this season as a throwing one to take advantage of Wellborn's arm and the catching abilities of the two veteran receivers — Foret and Shiplet. He needs that blocking up front.

"You find out what your quarterback can do and then build a tailormade offense for him," said Culpepper.

BOTH COACHES have goals they would like to accomplish in the first game of the season, goals they'd like to see carry on throughout the year.

"We want to score some points," said Culpepper whose teams have not been able to put many points on the scoreboard in past years, win or lose. "There are a lot of things we want to try in the game. In one quarter we may be working the short pass and then go long in the next quarter. We're going to try and set Monterey up some and then go after them."

"We want to try and be consistant offensively," said Odom. "Against Estacado the other day we were able to move the ball but not consistantly. We had too many mental breakdowns. We also want to improve our passing game.

"Defensively we've got to try and contain the pass, stop the big play. We're going to try and play as well as we can and let the scoreboard take care of itself. If we do that, we have no apologies to make, win lose or draw."

Culpepper wants to see his defense develop the intensity it had in '82.

"I thought Tuesday of this week was th closest we've been to what we want," he said. "They really started to get into it on defense. We weren't pleased with the defense against Coronado. There were a lot of mixed assignments.

"We were either doing to much or the players weren't concentrating on defense before and after the snap. But, that's not uncommon," continued Culpepper. "It's happened the last three years in pre-season. We shot in our scrimmage and came back home to work on not being too fancy."

MIDLAND HIGH and Monterey will look somewhat similar when defensive units are on the field, both favoring an eight-man front. Offensively, the Bulldogs will line up in an I-formation while the Plainsmen will be in the split-back veer.

"Monterey can be as physical as any team we'll play all year long on defense," said Culpepper. "They are a very difficult team to beat. We had them down the last two years in the fouth quarter and they beat us."

Culpepper named several Plainsmen as key players to keep an eye on.

"Their quarterback, David Haygood, is a returning starter and so is runningback Jay Douglas," said Culpepper. "Jay Lowder is a real fine center and Shawn Rickel is a fine blocker. Kicker Scott Segrist is a beauty. He'll be enrolled in some college next year."

The Bulldogs are a healthy unit coming into tonight's game except for one player: offensive guard/defensive tackle Jimmy Essman who suffered a foot injury in the Coronado scrimmage. Essman isn't the kind of player Culpepper likes to see sidelined and the injury report is encouraging. "His foot isn't broken," said Culpepper.

"His foot continues to be sore and until he can run he can't play, of course," said Culpepper. "Jeff Daily is ready to come in at offensive guard and Steve Lindsey can come in and help out on defense."

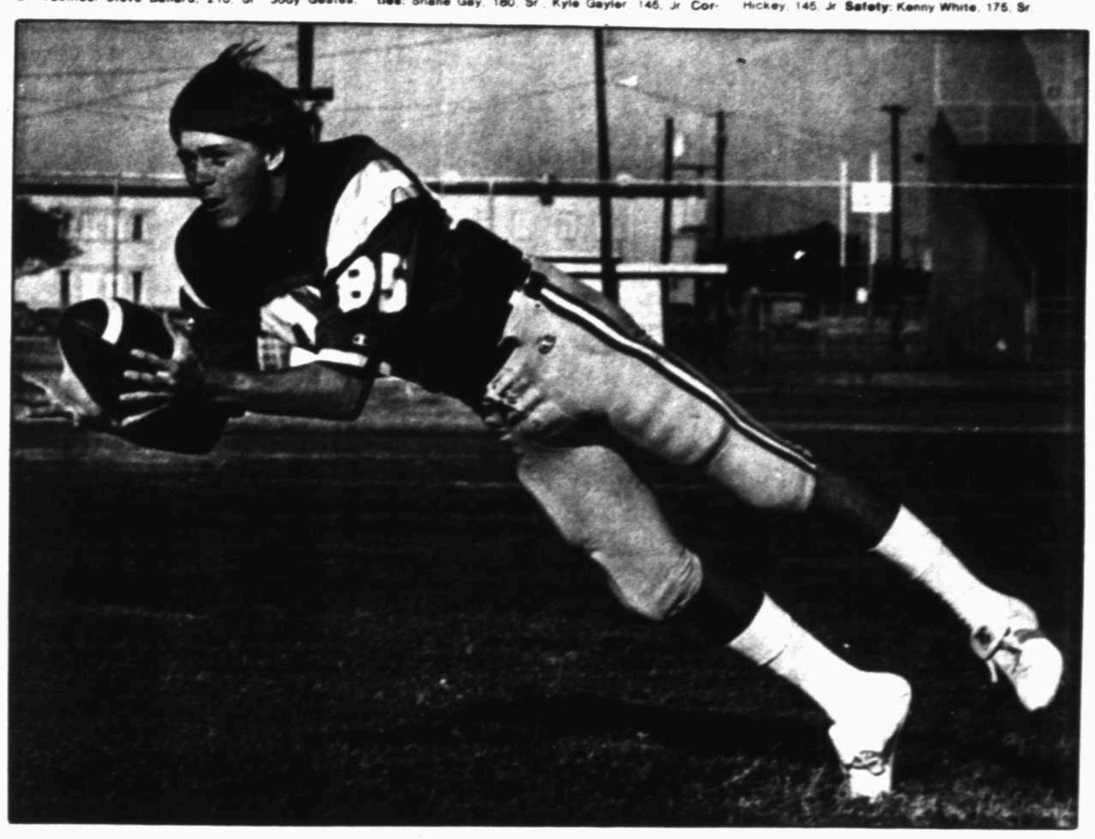

Center John David Munn, who took every offensive snap last season, will likely see the two-way starting role with Lindsey and Daily filling in as defensive backups.

Bad dreams are past; Time to play for real

Lee, MHS win three as JV, soph seasons begin

Midland Lee and Midland High came up with successful season-openers for their under-classmen programs Thursday night as the Rebels won both the sophomore and junior varsity games while the Bulldogs won their JV outing.

For Lee, it was a 44-0 JV rout against San Angelo Lakeview at Lee Field while the sophs traveled to Big Spring and came away with a 13-0 win.

Mike Little blocked a punt for the sophomores in the first quarter and Anthony Dickens picked it up and ran it into the end zone. Dickens kicked the point after for a 7-0 lead. The Rebs padded their lead in the fourth quarter with a Ron Pertile one-yard run.

Midland High's JV scored the tie-breaking touchdown in the fourth quarter to defeat Pecos 14-6 at Memorial Stadium.

Jake Madrid opened the scoring for MHS with a four-yard run in the first quarter and, after Pecos tied it in the second, Mark Johnson scored on a two-yard run. Matt Marcum hit Bert Fisher for the two-point conversion for the 14-6 final score.

Next Thursday the Rebel JV travels to Fort Stockton for a 7 p.m. game while the sophomores are in Andrews, also at 7 p.m.

Midland High, which isn't fielding a sophomore team this year, will play the McCamey varsity in McCamey Friday at 8 p.m.

Jordan paces Houston to 45-15 victory over Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston running back Donald Jordan saw his long touchdown runs against Rice Thursday night as his way of showing that he is ready to play a dominate role in the Cougar offense.

Houston quarterback Lionel Wilson saw them another way.

"Those are Cotton Bowl plays," said Wilson, after Jordan scored on runs of 47, 45 and 1 yard to help thrash the Owls 45-14 in the Southwest Conference season opener for both teams.

The victory gave Houston the early lead in the SWC race and made Rice a loser for the 13th straight game, tying Kent State for the longest losing string in the nation.

JORDAN, WHO missed spring practice because of knee surgery, didn't miss his chance against the Owls. Rice was reeling from his three touchdowns and Mike Clendenen's 22-yard field goal by the midway point of the second quarter.

"For three years, I've had great backs in front of me," said Jordan, a senior. "Tonight I got my chance. Our offensive line performed superbly. I had great blocks on the touchdown runs."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said Jordan also helped his own cause.

"What helped was when Jordan ran over two or three people. . ." Yeoman said. "That's the difference between a long run and a 9-yard gain."

"Jordan is significantly stronger than a year ago," Yeoman said. "Donald claims his marriage got him going in the right dirction. I don't care what it is, he's a talented kid."

Wilson, criticized for his turnovers last season, did not yield a fumble in the game although he tossed an interception to Donahue Walker, who returned it 65 yards for a touchdown.

"I feel comfortable with our backs," Wilson said. "We didn't fumble when I was in there. We've worked extra hard on that."

Rice Coach Ray Alborn said Owl defenders were in position to stop Jordan's runs but didn't get the job done.

"On his second touchdown run we put two guys right where they are supposed to be and they don't make the tackle," Alborn said. "I don't know what you're supposed to do. You've got to give Jordan credit for making a helluva a run. Two kids put their helmets on him just like they are supposed to."

HOUSTON TURNED the game into the expected rout with three third-quarter scores on Dwyane Love's five-yard run, a 47-yard run by freshman Raymond Tate on his first college carry and Albert Pope's 32-yard interception return after Cougar tackle T.J. Turner chased Rice quarterback Doug Johnson into the Owl end zone.

Rice quarterback Phillip Money, intercepted twice in the game, tacked on the game's final score with a 20-yard pass to Tony Burnett with 4:14 left in the game.

Alborn was not pleased with his quarterback's performances.

"Our quarterbacks did some things that guys with experience shouldn't do," Alborn said. "I don't know what to attribute it to. We did some really stupid things and when you do that you're liable to get thrashed severely."

Connors moves into third round

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors led the seeded players' parade into the third round of the United States Open and continues to flourish at the National Tennis Center, a setting many players find nightmarish.

Planes from nearby LaGuardia Airport soar noisily overhead. The fans are boisterous, frequently ambivilous to the pleas for silence from the chair umpire. The wind is capricious a ignored tbrating his 31st birthday today, loves it all.

He ignored the distractions Thursday and dispatched Sweden's Thomas Hogstedt 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, advancing along with No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, No. 11 Gene Mayer and No. 14 Eliot Teltscher.

Vilas outlasted Tom Cain 6-7, 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. Mayer and Teltscher also survived five-set tests, Mayer defeating Cristo Steyn of South Africa 3-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 and Teltscher eliminating Sammy Giammalva 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2.

John Lloyd of Great Britian, husband of Chris Evert Lloyd, posted the tournament's biggest upset so far, stunning No. 10 Jose Higueras of Spain 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Among the women, top-ranked Martina Navratilova started another quest for her first-ever Open crown with a 6-1, 6-0 destruction of Argentine Emilse Raponi Longo.

1970 — Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs played the 1117th and last game of his consecutive game playing streak, a National League record that stood until Steve Garvey broke it this season.

1971 — Cesar Cedeno hit a pop fly between second baseman Jim Lefebvre and right fielder Bill Buckner, who collided while attempting to make the catch. The ball fell for a 200-foot grand slam home run and helped the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-3.

1972 — Milt Pappas of the Chicago Cubs pitched an 8-0 no-hitter against the San Diego Padres, but lost a perfect game when he walked Larry Stahl on a 3-2 pitch with two out in the ninth inning.

O'Meara in B.C. Open lead by three strokes

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Mark O'Meara should lift heavy luggage more often.

The golfer from Irving, Texas, spent most of Monday and Tuesday in bed with an ice pack on his neck after suffering painful muscle spasms — apparently, he said, from lifting too many heavy bags Sunday night.

But in spite of pain that almost had him walking off the links Thursday, O'Meara posted an 8-under-par 63 to grab a 3-stroke lead in the first round of the B.C. Open.

"Sometimes when you have an injury ... you just try to play it shot by shot," said O'Meara, who estimated he was at "80 to 85 percent" efficiency.

"I played with what I had available to me today. Maybe that's what I need to do more often," he said.

O'Meara, the 1981 Professional Golfers' Association rookie-of-the-year, has yet to win a tournament, although he finished second this year in the Phoenix Open.

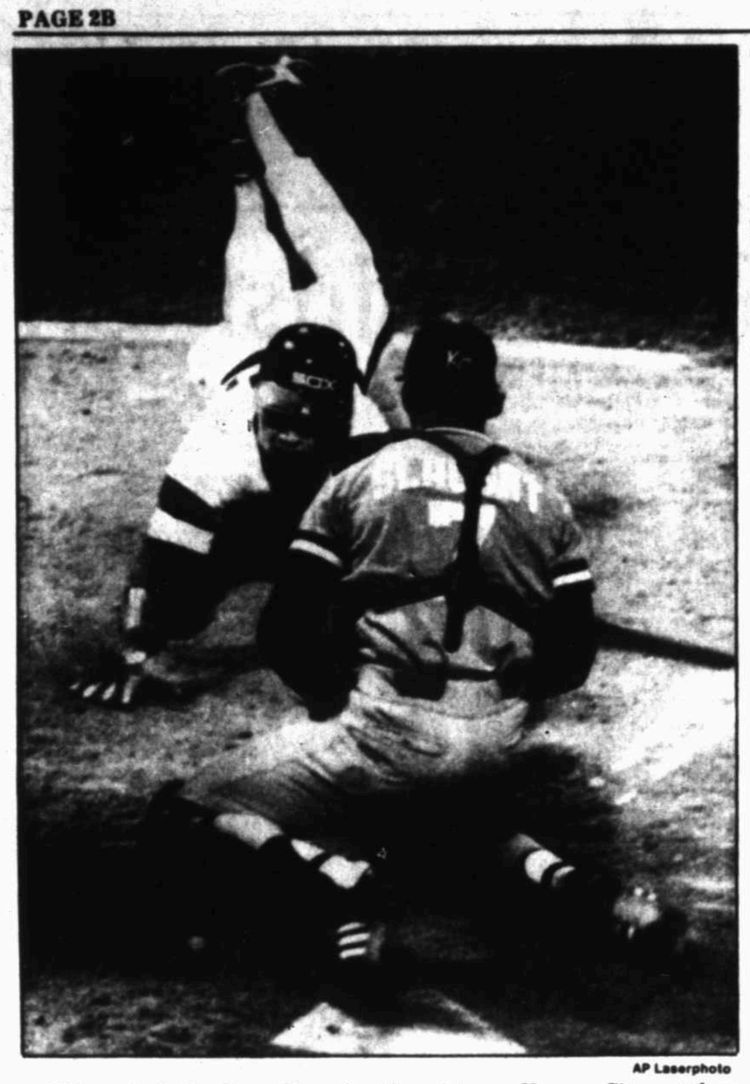

Three strokes back going into today's play were three other little-known golfers, none a tour regular — Eric Batten of San Jose, Calif.; Ronnie Black of Kountze, Texas; and Brad Faxon of Somerset, R.I.

In all, 73 players matched or bettered par 71 on the 6,966-yard En-Joie Golf Club course.

First prize in the $300,000 PGA event is $54,000.

O'Meara played even par through the first seven holes before going on a blitz of six birdies and then an eagle on the par-5, 556-yard 12th hole.

Faxon was college player of the year at Furman University last spring and a member of the Walker Cup team.

Tigers' Morris wins 18th game

By The Associated Press

Red-hot Jack Morris pitched a six-hitter for his 18th victory, a major league high, and Tom Brookens and Chet Lemon belted home runs as the Detroit Tigers beat the Texas Rangers 5-0 Thursday night.

Morris, 18-8, struck out five to boost his league-leading total to 194. The Detroit right-hander has now won 10 straight games.

Brookens hit his sixth homer of the season in the second inning, a two-out solo shot. After the Tigers scored in the fifth on Lance Parrish's RBI grounder off Frank Tanana, 7-6, Lemon belted his 20th home run leading off the sixth.

The Tigers added two insurance runs in the eighth on an RBI single by Lemon and an RBI double by Glenn Wilson.

Major League Baseball

In other AL action, Jesse Barfield smashed two home runs and Ernie Whitt and Willie Upshaw each hit one to back the six-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander and lead Toronto to a 5-3 victory over Baltimore, snapping the Orioles' winning streak at eight.

Tom Brunansky drove in six runs with a pair of home runs and Al Williams pitched his first major league shutout with a five-hitter as Minnesota breezed to an 11-0 victory over Boston in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. Tony Armas drove in four runs and American League batting leader Wade Boggs knocked in two in powering the Red Sox to a 9-3 victory in the second game.

Carlton Fisk and Tom Paciorek homered to back the four-hit pitching of LaMarr Hoyt as the American League West-leading Chicago White Sox won their fifth straight game with a 12-0 triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

In a late AL game on the West Coast, Chris Codiroli pitched a three-hitter, topping the four-hit performance of New York's Dave Righetti, to give the Oakland A's a 2-0 victory over the Yankees.

In the National League, Nolan Ryan and Frank DiPino combined for a three-hitter and pinch-hitter Kevin Bass drilled a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning, giving Houston a 3-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Rookie Carmelo Martinez hit a solo home run to help Dick Ruthven and the Chicago Cubs defeat the Cincinnati Reds 3-1.

Gary Carter drove in two runs and reliever Bob James worked out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the sixth inning as the Montreal Expos defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3.

Gary Matthews doubled home two runs in the fifth inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants and a share of first place in the National League East. The Phillies' triumph tied them with Pittsburgh for the division lead.

David Green's two-run single tied the score and Darrell Porter put St. Louis ahead with his second run-scoring double of the game as the Cardinals erupted for six runs in the fourth inning and went on to rout the Atlanta Braves 8-3.

Jaeger defeats Burgin, 6-2, 6-3

Third-seeded Andrea Jaeger downed Elise Burgin 6-2, 6-3; No. 6 Wendy Turnbull of Australia defeated Sharon Walsh 6-3, 6-3; No. 7 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany beat Peruvian Laura Arraya 6-1, 6-3; No. 9 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary downed Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 6-3; and No. 12 Kathy Rinaldi defeated Vickie Nelson 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Seeded women losers were No. 11 Barbara Potter, beaten by Lisa Bonder 7-5, 6-7, 7-6, and No. 13 Claudia Kohde of West Germany, who bowed to Bonnie Gadusek 5-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Connors, the defending champion, is seeking a fifth U.S. Open crown. No man in the last half century has won the title more frequently and the ones who did it before him had more serene surroundings in which to play.

The other Grand Slam events, Wimbledon, the French Open and the Australian Open are like libraries compared to the Open. But that's fine with Connors.

"Here you must put up with the conditions," he said. "I just happen to love the atmosphere and I always have.

"Here you have the planes flying over and 20,000 people crowded in animalistic style. The people get you revved up to play good tennis because they have every kind of sport here and they want you to go out there and kill yourself for them. I don't mind giving that to them."

Against Hogstedt, Connors controlled the match.

"I don't think I missed too many balls," he said. "We had a lot of good points and he was hitting the ball hard. If I am playing, moving and concentrating like I am doing now, I cannot complain."

A year ago, Connors slipped through the tournament almost unnoticed while Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and John McEnroe hogged the attention. In the final, he defeated Lendl for the crown.

How does he view the competition this time?

"A lot of guys are playing good tennis," Connors noted. "But there are not a lot of guys who can win this tournament."

He's one of them, though. He's proven that four times.

Navratilova needed just 40 minutes to advance into the second round, losing only one game to Longo. Even though her match was one-sided, she was excited about it.

"This is the U.S. Open, so everything is stimulating including the practices," she said.

And, like Connors, Navratilova likes the frantic pace of the Open, the only major tournament she has failed to win.

"I don't feel jinxed here at all," she said. "I like the city too much to feel jinxed here. I've looked forward to playing here. I don't dread it."

Her victory gave Navratilova a 60-1 record this year and 150-4 over the last two years.

Lloyd, ranked No. 272, pulled the upset of the tournament by beating Higueras. Usually, it's John's wife, Chris, who gets the tennis attention in the family. He's in the also-ran qualifying section of most tournaments.

"I'm tired of playing qualifying," Lloyd said. "I doubted I could win again and even though others believed in me, I did not. I would get through the qualifying, get to the first round and become nervous and lose."

Lloyd dedicated himself to changing that routine with a regimen of hard work, both mental and physical.

"I knew I was capable of winning, but I have known that in matches that I lost. I wanted to go out on the court and play the way I am capable of playing, which is something I have not been doing. I play great in practice and qualifying, but once in the main draw, I wasn't producing the goods. Now I try to relax and I want to have some fun."

Cain seemed in position to pull a similiar surprise against Vilas. But he twisted his left ankle in a spill in the fifth set and the match swung to the Agentine star after that.

"I went over to hit a shot and he wrong-footed me," Cain said. "I stopped to change direction and it just went out."

The ankle was taped and play continued after the injured player was assessed a delay-of-game warning penalty. But Cain was tentative and Vilas seized the advantage.

"He picked up his game," said Cain. "It always helps when you see the other guy limping around."

49er offense must regain '81 touch

By The Associated Press

The opening bell is about to ring. And if the San Francisco 49ers don't want theirs rung again in 1983, the offense must regain the touch both it and quarterback Joe Montana had in 1981.

The 49ers have been a mystery ever since Montana ran off the field at the Pontiac Silverdome on Jan. 24, 1982 as the Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl XVI.

Last year they didn't even make the expanded playoffs, although Montana threw just two fewer touchdown passes — 17— than in the championship season. This year they finished the preseason with a 1-3 record and recorded only four offensive touchdowns.

"The plays were the same, but we'll be re-designing things for the regular season," Montana said in anticipation of Saturday's National Football League opener against the visiting Philadelphia Eagles.

IN ADDITION to the Eagles-49ers matchup, there are 12 games Sunday and the first Monday night game, featuring Dallas at Washington.

The Sunday games have Miami at Buffalo, the New York Jets at San Diego, St. Louis at New Orleans, Green Bay at Houston, Atlanta at Chicago, Baltimore at New England, Denver at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Tampa Bay, the Los Angeles Raiders at Cincinnati, the Los Angeles Rams at the New York Giants, Minnesota at Cleveland and Seattle at Kansas City.

The 49ers went through their preseason paces with what Montana calls "pretty basic stuff."

"We don't have any mystery offense. But hopefully, it will be much better than it has been," said Coach Bill Walsh, who has added former Los Angeles Rams' star Wendell Tyler to his backfield arsenal.

San Francisco had only one serious preseason injury, safety Carlton Williamson's broken leg. Tight end Russ Francis has recovered from a broken hand, and the new starting fullback, rookie Roger Craig, is sound after missing two weeks of work because of a rib injury.

The Eagles, meanwhile, are under a new regime, following the winter retirement of Dick Vermeil. Coach Marion Campbell, one of the NFL's most respected defensive planners, has been handicapped by injuries to several players, including starting linebackers Reggie Wilkes and Frank LeMaster.

CAMPBELL'S OFFENSIVE emphasis during training camp had been on the running game, despite the absence of injured Wilbert Montgomery. But quarterback Ron Jaworski is poised and ready, following a 3-1 exhibition season.

"But we're still going to mix it up," Jaworski warned. "It doesn't mean we won't throw 30 or 35 times some games. The coaching staff wanted to get toughness back in our offense, and you do that by establishing the run."

Third-year man Vyto Kab will start at tight end for injured John Spagnola, who is recovering from neck surgery. Newly acquired Al Dixon will be used in two tight-end formations and short-yardage downs.

Kay Stephenson of the Bills is one of seven other head coaches debuting in the NFL this weekend. His baptism will come against the American Conference champion Dolphins and innovative Don Shula, the only NFL coach who used quarterback David Woodley as a receiver on a passing play last season.

"Certainly it's a challenge opening against the Miami Dolphins ... but also a tremendous opportunity. It's always important to win in your own division (AFC East)," says Stephenson, who inherits a team that has beaten Miami only twice in their last 26 meetings.

"On film, they're playing as well defensively as I have seen a football team play right now," added Stephenson, obviously impressed with the "Killer B's."

"They're playing more aggressively, they're swarming everything that moves and they give you multiple looks out there."

The crippled Jets, Miami's major obstacle to another division title, will taxi onto the air strip at Jack Murphy Stadium to meet Air Coryell and its patchwork offensive line. Tackle Andrew Gissinger and guard Dennis McKnight will start their first game in front of quarterback Dan Fouts, who returns from a two-week layoff with a strained arch.

New York's pass rush is vital to stopping Fouts. Defensive tackle Abdul Salaam's injury will keep him out of the first four games. The other three members of the "Sack Exchange," Joe Klecko, Mark Gastineau and Marty Lyons, who is nursing an ankle injury, will start.

Despite his inactivity, Fouts is Fouts and the Jets' secondary anticipates more television time than the rest of the defense.

"Hitting is the main thing, throwing them off their rhythm," said cornerback Bobby Jackson. "You can't expect to play zone defense all day and beat them. You've got to go man-to-man. We just can't get carried away and be in man all the time or they'll change their offense."

At Three Rivers Stadium Sunday, Franco Harris needs just 57 yards of rushing offense to become only the third running back in NFL history to eclipse the 11,000-yard plateau. But all eyes will be on rookie John Elway, who will lead the Broncos against Harris and the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I think our defense will be a little bit fired up for him," said quarterback Cliff Stoudt, who is starting for injured Terry Bradshaw. "They don't want John Elway to beat us his first time up to bat. Our defense is keyed up and flying high."

"If the receivers aren't open, I don't want to throw the ball," Elway said. "I can't try to do too much."

Sure bets don't always pay off

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

This is supposed to be a true story. The names have been changed to protect the guilty.

It is recounted here as a warning that these 1983 college football predictions, like those in past years, are not infallible. Years of fearless forecasting have not made the author wealthy.

Once upon a time, a group of players decided to put their knowledge of other teams — films, scouting reports, etc. — to some extracurricular use.

They began wagering on games involving other teams — not their own games — and soon were winning regularly. Late in the season, they were four-point favorites over a team with a terrible record and the ringleader convinced his cohorts to break their rule this one time and bet on themselves.

"This," he told them, "is a mortal lock. There's no way we're not gonna whip those sorry yahoos by more than four points."

They scraped together every penny they could, even convincing their girlfriends to hock some jewelry.

Let's call the favorites Team A, the underdogs Team B.

In the first half, Team B, seeking revenge for past atrocities, played lights out and Team A led by only five points.

The ringleader, seeing a sure thing suddenly becoming very iffy, exhorted his teammates at halftime — pleading, cussing, threatening, etc.

But with two minutes left to play, Team A still led by that shaky five-point margin. Team B punted, the ball rolling dead on Team A's 8-yard line. But it was Team A's ball and the spread seemed safe. All they had to do was run out the clock.

First down. Quarterback, part of the plot, rolls out. Four-yard loss.

Time out. Quarterback goes to the sidelines for a conference and suddenly begins gesticulating wildly and berating the coach.

Back to the huddle he comes, white as a sheet.

"You guys ain't gonna believe what that so-and-so wants me to do."

Pause.

"He wants me to take an intentional safety."

Ringleader, a rather large lineman, to quarterback: "You kneel down in the end zone and I'll break both your legs."

Quarterback, caught between a rock and a hard place, takes the safety. Final comment from ringleader:

"I saw my life's savings slipping away under his right knee."

SO MUCH for sure things. The only pairing of Top Twenty teams on this opening weekend finds No. 20 UCLA at No. 15 Georgia. A year ago, this would have found Tom Ramsey gunning for UCLA and Herschel Walker running for Georgia. UCLA may have the toughest September of any team. It's out of the Athens frying pan into the firepower of Arizona State for the Bruins, who then must visit Nebraska.

Defense is the name of the game this year for Georgia, which is a 1-point favorite. How 'bout them Dawgs...Georgia 17-13.

Last year's regular-season score was 426 right, 146 wrong and 13 ties for a percentage of .745. Against the spread, the count was 170-164-2—.509.

East Carolina at No. 7 Florida State (no line): A nice little tuneup for the high-octane Seminoles before next week's visit to LSU...Florida State 35-14.

No. 11 North Carolina (favored by 13) at South Carolina: A nice little opener for Joe Morrison, South Carolina's new coach. Later, he gets Georgia, Southern Cal, Notre Dame and LSU in order. But they don't call him Dependable Joe for nothing. Upset Special of the Week...South Carolina 21-20.

Oregon State at No. 14 Arizona (24): With a patsy schedule, the Wildcats probably won't find out how good they are until November...Arizona 28-10.

Louisville at No. 19 Southern Methodist (no line): The thoroughbreds, alias Dickerson and James, are gone, but the Pony Express gallops on...SMU 34-14.

Miami, Fla. at Florida (3½): No controversy this year, just good old hard-hitting, blood-on-the-moon football...Florida 24-14.

Tulane at Mississippi State (8): They say MSU's Emory Bellard is still seething over that Tulane preseason spy...Mississippi State 30-10.

Pitt (4) at Tennessee: Is this the year Johnny (Majors) finally comes marching home in style?...Tennessee 20-14.

OTHER GAMES:

East — Boston College 42, Morgan State 0; Syracuse 20, Temple 17; West Virginia 42, Ohio U. 7.

Soviets may use facilities

NEW YORK (AP) — Glen Cove officials have 20 days to prepare objections, but in the interim they must allow Soviet diplomats to use the town's beaches and golf course, a judge ruled.

U.S. District Judge Joseph M. McLaughlin ruled Thursday that the Soviets could use the facilities until a Sept. 21 hearing makes a permanent decision. Glen Cove officials had barred the Soviets, claiming a tax-exempt embassy compound strains municipal facilities.

Asked whether any Soviets showed up at facilities Thursday, Recreation Superintendent John Maccarone said, "It was always the help ... who used those facilities."

Amnesia victim returns home

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The only clue to his identity had been his "slight British accent," but a 24-year-old amnesia victim is returning home to Australia, reunited with relatives he doesn't remember after they recognized his picture in a newspaper.

Mantis Gasiunas of Melbourne left Thursday from Emanuel Hospital in Portland, where he recovered from serious injuries received in an auto accident July 30. His brother, Aras Gasiunas of Manchester, England, came to Portland on Aug. 17 after he learned that his brother's picture had been sent to newspapers around the world.

Mantis Gasiunas says he has childhood memories of his brother, but still can't remember recent years or his homeland.

Bridge collapes into brook

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A small bridge that collapsed into a brook while being reconstructed, killing one man and seriously injuring three other people, was holding a cement truck and construction workers in addition to regular traffic, police said.

The span failed about 2:45 p.m. Thursday. The victims, who were not immediately identified, were taken to John Dempsey Hospital at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington, police said. A hospital spokesman said one person was dead on arrival and the others were badly injured.

Meanwhile, state officials said all lanes of the Mianus River Bridge, which collapsed June 28, killing three people, will be reopened to truck and bus traffic Sept. 10, five weeks early.

Man apologizes in advertisement

SEATTLE (AP) — The father of a man convicted of killing 13 people in a massacre at a Chinatown gambling club says he took out a newspaper ad apologizing for his son's crimes because the Chinese community blames his family for the deaths.

Yu Lai Ng, father of 20-year-old Benjamin Ng, told the Seattle Chinese Post on Thursday that he quit his job as a cook and went into seclusion because of the public reaction following his son's conviction last week. The elder Ng said his wife continues to work at a garment factory, where "all the workers jeer her and scold her."

The ad, which became available Thursday, will appear in the Sept. 3 edition of the Post.

Number of autopsies drops

CHICAGO (AP) — New ailments — such as AIDS — may go unnoticed and medical progress may be delayed because the number of autopsies done nationwide has dropped "dangerously" in the past 20 years, the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association says.

Autopsy rates in Chicago-area hospitals declined from 51 percent in 1965 to as low as 15 percent since 1977, Dr. George Lundberg said in an editorial in Friday's journal.

With the low autopsy rates, he said, "vital statistics become even less valid; accidental deaths, suicides and homicides may go undetected; and undiagnosed contagious diseases may be missed."

Officials accused of violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four federal officials who allegedly took reprisals against a Pentagon auditor who criticized the spending and pricing practices of a defense contractor have been accused of violating government standards.

One of the officials, the director of the Defense Contract Audit Agency, is the highest federal official ever accused of taking reprisals against a "whistleblower," Alma Hepner, spokeswoman for the special counsel's office at the Merit Systems Protection Board, said Thursday.

In a complaint filed with the board, Special Counsel K. William O'Connor accused four agency officials of punishing auditor George R. Spanton for doing his job. The four included Charles O. Starrett Jr., DCAA director.

The four men have 30 days to respond formally to the charges. After that the board will decide what action, if any, to take against them.

Allegations to be investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials have ordered an investigation of allegations that operators at the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor falsified information submitted to the government before the 1979 accident at the Pennsylvania plant.

"Too much valuable time has been wasted. Evidence and witnesses' memories are getting stale. It is simply time to move forward," an appeal board said Thursday in ordering an Atomic Safety and Licensing Board to reopen TMI licensing hearings to examine the four-year-old charges.

The licensing board earlier had received testimony on management integrity at Three Mile Island as part of hearings on whether to allow the restart of Unit 1, the undamaged TMI reactor.

The unit has been closed since the accident crippled the adjacent Unit 2, and will remain shut until the Nuclear Regulatory Commission acts on the licensing board's recommendations to let it open.

Dignitaries to visit capital

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The White House says Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Prime Minister Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe will travel to Washington later this month for separate talks with President Reagan.

A White House statement Thursday said Mugabe would meet with the president on Sept. 13 and that Mrs. Thatcher would confer with Reagan on Sept. 29. In both cases, the officials had accepted Reagan's invitation to visit Washington and their trips were termed official working visits.

Group against paraquat spray

WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization that favors legalizing marijuana is filing a $30 million federal suit to prevent the government from using the weedkiller paraquat to spray on marijuana fields.

Marines' bodies come home

From Wire Reports

Two U.S. Marines killed in an assault on American peacekeeping forces in Beirut, Lebanon, completed their final journey home as their bodies arrived for burial in North Carolina and Pennsylvania.

A memorial service for the two — 2nd Lt. Donald Losey, 28, of Winston-Salem, N.C., and staff Sgt. Alexander Ortega, 25, of Rochester, N.Y. — was scheduled today at the Camp Geiger Chapel near Camp Lejeune, N.C. Both men were killed Monday in an exchange of gunfire with leftist Moslem militia.

Bag boy stunned by paycheck

CHICAGO (AP) — A part-time grocery bagger who came to this country from Romania to seek a better life has found the American way of life taxing — his latest paycheck totaled 1 cent, all that was left after deductions.

Titus Tomescu, an honor student beginning his senior year at Lakeview High School, still has hope, although the check he received this week shook him up a bit.

His gross pay for 17 hours of work at $3.75 an hour at a supermarket was $63.75, but his net pay was 1 cent.

Payroll deductions gobbled up the rest. There was $4.41 for federal income taxes, $4.27 for Social Security, $2.23 for state income taxes and $2 for health and other insurance — plus a whopping $10.83 for union dues and $40 toward a union initiation fee.

Pierre Cardin to take French dining to Peking

PEKING (AP) — Tender quiche Lorraine and tempting salad served to a seductive disco beat, or imported French wine and haute cuisine in turn-of-the-century Parisian elegance — foreigners and rich Chinese will savor both when fashion designer-entrepreneur Pierre Cardin opens his Maxim's of Paris in Peking later this month.

"Maxim's isn't just a restaurant, it's Paris!" Cardin, 65, exclaimed at a news conference Thursday. "It's a place where you can go to dream in life."

"China is a changing place and my idea would have been unthinkable only five years ago," said Cardin who owns the original Maxim's of Paris.

About 200 workmen are toiling day and night to finish the ambitious project, incongruous in gray Peking, for the grand opening Sept. 26.

The restaurant is housed on two floors of the former China Travel Agency just south of the quaint old legation quarter in the heart of the city. The main restaurant upstairs will be a replica of Maxim's of Paris, complete with art deco murals, Tiffany glass windows in a setting of dreamlike opulence for China.

Chinese waiters are being trained to serve in the proper French manner and a Chinese band recruited from the Peking Opera Orchestra will play soothing dinner music.

Asked how the masses would be able to afford even quiche and how much his Parisian dreamworld was costing, Cardin retorted in anger: "I don't want to talk about money where the spirit is concerned. This is my gift to China and I'm not so worried about making a profit."

HURON, S.D. (AP) — Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., says he'd rather have been driving his own tractor — a John Deere model D — but he rolled to victory anyway in a tractor pulling contest at the South Dakota State Fair.

"He really pleased the crowd," said Paul Stahl, organizer of the antique tractor pull and show, after the senator took first place in the class 8 heavyweight division Thursday by hauling a weight 231 feet with a 1938 John Deere model G.

"I'm used to driving a D John Deere," Pressler said.

He was, however, pleased with the award. "They gave me a trophy," he said, "I'm going to put it up in my office."

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Actor Vic Tayback, who plays the overbearing owner of Mel's Diner in the television series "Alice," will undergo heart surgery this weekend.

Producers of the show said Tayback, 53, would enter St. Joseph's Medical Center today to have a bypass operation Saturday.

Taping of 16 additional "Alice" episodes for the 1983-84 season, which was to have begun Sept. 8, has been delayed four weeks, said Warner Bros. Television spokeswoman Bette Ashley.

However, six episodes for the season were completed before the two-month summer hiatus, she said, so the broadcast of new episodes should continue uninterrupted.

"Alice," starring Linda Lavin as a diner waitress, is heading into its eighth season on CBS.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Pioneer black journalist Chester L. Washington, president and publisher of a group of 13 weekly newspapers circulated in the Los Angeles area, has died of cancer at age 81.

Washington, who died Wednesday, began his newspaper career as a reporter at the black-owned Pittsburgh Courier during the early 1940s. His Central News-Wave Publications group had a combined controlled circulation of 260,000.

Henry Jackson dies

Henry Jackson

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Sen. Henry M. "Scoop" Jackson, the powerful Democrat who combined hard-line anti-Soviet stands with liberal views on social issues, is dead after suffering a massive heart attack at his home. He was 71.

Jackson, who failed in two bids at the presidency but never lost an election in his home state of Washington, died Thursday night, just hours after holding a news conference to condemn the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean jetliner the day before.

He was known as an advocate of a strong national defense, a friend of Israel and supporter of emigration for Soviet Jews. He played a major role in the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency and was considered a champion of organized labor and of civil rights for minorities.

The 45-year congressional veteran who came to Congress when Franklin Roosevelt was president, died within an hour after being brought to Providence Hospital, just 12 blocks from his Everett home. Jackson, whose death stunned those who knew him for his hard-driving schedule and energetic lifestyle, had never been in the hospital before, except to meet with its board of directors and sip tea with its Catholic nuns.

"I always thought he was indestructable. ... He took exceptional care of himself," said former Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash, who served 28 years in Congress with Jackson.

Denny Miller, Jackson's administrative assistant, said Jackson had been at home with his wife, Helen, at retired early at about 7:30 p.m. "complaining of not feeling too well."

Miller and a family friend, Dr. Haakon Ragde, later came to the house and found Jackson stricken in bed. He was rushed to the hospital and pronouced dead of a massive heart attack at 9:25 p.m.

Texas has more butterflies

About 75 percent of U.S. butterfly species exist only west of the Rockies. Texas has the most butterfly varieties, with 311 distinct species and 153 subspecies.

Jackson well-known

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson was a national and international political figure whose name was as well known in Moscow's Red Square as it was in downtown Seattle.

But to those who repeatedly elected him, the Washington Democrat who died Thursday night of a massive heart attack was no-nonsense politician known for taking care of the people back home.

Jackson, 71, served in Congress for 45 years, including six terms in the House, and won a landslide re-election last fall to a sixth Senate term.

He was known as the "Senator from Boeing" because of his unfailing attention to the aerospace giant. Along with former Sen. Warren Magnuson, Jackson formed part of one of the most powerful Senate tandems in the nation.

Born May 31, 1912, in Everett, Jackson grew up in that blue collar town north of Seattle. He earned the nickname "Scoop" when he delivered the The (Everett) Herald.

The son of Norwegian immigrants, Jackson attended public schools and earned a law degree from the University of Washington in 1935.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Houston to host oil confab

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston, which is headquarters for oil and energy companies, has been selected to host the 1987 World Petroleum Congress, a major international energy forum, Mayor Kathy Whitmire announced Thursday.

The Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council estimates the conference will add about $1.7 million to the city's economy, Mrs. Whitmire said.

The event will bring about 4,500 delegates to Houston, filling about 3,500 hotel rooms, she said.

Houston was chosen over Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Buenos Aires, Argentina; New Orleans; Los Angeles; Atlanta; New York and Washington, D.C.

Superior buys Mesa's stock

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of Mesa Petroleum Co. announced Thursday that the company has sold to Superior Oil Co. the almost 4 million shares of Superior Oil stock that it had acquired — ending speculation that Mesa was positioning itself to take over the Houston firm.

Mesa, a petroleum exploration firm headquartered in Amarillo, said it sold its 3,981,800 shares back to the company for $42 per share — $8 per share more than Mesa paid for the stock and $4 per share higher than the latest trades on Superior.

Thursday's transaction is expected to give Mesa a pretax profit of about $32 million.

In a statement, Mesa officials said they had agreed not to purchase any more shares of Superior stock for seven years or "otherwise seek to influence the affairs of Superior, provided that Superior does not take any such action in respect to Mesa."

Last year, Mesa chairman T. Boone Pickens tried unsuccessfully to acquire Cities Service Oil Co. in Tulsa and General American Oil Co. of Texas in Dallas after buying shares in both companies. Mesa ended up with millions of dollars in stock market profits, however.

Braniff flight plan OK'd

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A plan which could put the failed Braniff International Corp. back in the airline business this winter has won approval of a federal bankruptcy court judge.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers approved a proposal Thursday by the Chicago-based Hyatt Corp. which could put 30 of Braniff's grounded jetliners and 2,000 of its former employees back to work.

Opponents, however, have 10 days to appeal the decision.An earlier Braniff reorganization attempt, calling for Braniff to lease planes to Pacific Southwest Airlines, was challenged in just such a manner and was scrapped by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Hyatt Corp., a hotel chain, has proposed investing $70 million in cash and loan guarantees in exchange for 80 percent of the new airline's stock.

Bnaiff has been out of business since it halted airline operations May 12, 1982, and a day later filed for protection from its creditors while it tried to devise a reorganization plan.

The company, which had about 9,000 employees and had 60 jets, was saddled with a $1 billion debt at the time.

August retail sales brisk

By The Associated Press

Back-to-school shoppers helped keep sales by the nation's major retailers moving at a brisk clip in August.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., the world's largest retailer, said Thursday it had its seventh consecutive monthly gain in August, while K mart Corp., the No. 2 retailer, recorded its largest year-to-year increase since January 1982.

The sales results are "another confirmation that the consumer recovery is under way and is firmly in place," said Jeffrey Edelman, retail analyst with the investment firm Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Sears reported a 20 percent sales increase in August, to $1.8 billion from $1.5 billion, while sales for the first seven months were $12 billion, up 11 percent from $10.86 billion in the same period of last year.

K mart, citing earlier than normal back-to-school shopping, said its sales were up 16.3 percent in August, which it said was the largest monthly gain since January 1982's 17.2 percent increase. K mart said sales in the four-week period ended Aug. 24 were $1.38 billion, up from $1.19 billion in August 1982.

J.C. Penney Co. Inc., the third largest retailer, reported a 5.2 percent sales increase in August to $868 million from $825 million.

F.W. Woolworth Co., No. 5, said sales rose 8.5 percent to $414 million from $382 million.

Construction spending up

WASHINGTON (AP) — New construction spending rose 1.7 percent in July, with most of of the gain in housing, a government report indicates.

The Commerce Department said new construction was put in place during July at an annual rate of $267.7 billion compared with $263.1 billion the previous month. It was the fourth consecutive monthly gain.

While housing construction rose, private commerical and industrial building declined.

Economists predicted that future gains for the building industry will be moderate as rising interest rates contribute to a slowdown.

Robert Ortner, the department's chief economist, said the report "on the whole is good." He said the 3.4 percent increase for residential building was "another good gain.".

Unemployment claims up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans filing intital unemployment claims have risen in each of the past three weeks.

The Labor Department reported Thursday that new claims rose in the week by 9,000 to 436,000 in the week ended Aug. 20, compared with the previous week's total of 427,000.

The agency also said that state benefit rolls increased by one thousand over the week ended Aug. 13, rising to 2,976,000.

That figure, however, is far below the 4,117,000 total of people on basic 26-week relief programs in the various states at the same time in 1982, the agency noted.

First-time claims for unemployment benefits tend to fluctuate from week to week, and it was unclear whether the latest rises in this labor market indicator means the overall jobless rate increased in August.

From June to July, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped from 10.0 percent to 9.5 percent, the largest one-month decline since May 1959, with 10.6 million people remaining on the jobless rolls in July.

Market mutuals' assets up

NEW YORK (AP) — Assets of the nation's 309 money market mutual funds' assets fell $527 million to $164.8 billion in the latest week, a Washington-based mutual fund trade group says.

The Investment Company Institute said Thursday the decline in the week ended Wednesday was the second straight weekly drop, following a $235 million drop in the previous week, when there were 313 funds.

The assets hit a record high $232.6 billion in the week ended Dec. 1, 1982, but since then have fallen 29.1 percent.

Much of the drain since last winter went to the competing money market deposit accounts that commercial banks and savings institutions began offering last December. Some money shifted out of the funds and into investments in the stock market during its historic rally.

The trade group said that in the latest week, assets of 169 general purpose funds fell $15 million to $53.1 billion, assets of 85 broker-dealer funds dropped $407 million to $78.5 billion, and assets of 55 institutional funds declined $105 million to $33.2 billion.

Soviets hurt steel industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is hurting the American steel alloy industry by selling a low-priced alloy here and the federal government should impose higher import tariffs on such material, a leader of an alloy group says.

George Watson, president of the Ferroalloy Association, said Thursday in a telegram to President Reagan that it is "imperative that import relief be granted to prevent further deterioration of furnace capacity so vital to our national defense industrial base."

Jobless rate holds steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's civilian jobless rate held steady at 9.5 percent last month, the government reported today, leaving nearly 10.7 million people out of work on the eve of the nation's Labor Day weekend.

Some 300,000 people found jobs in August. But the overall civilian unemployment rate remained unchanged because 100,000 other Americans resumed their search for work, but failed.

Nevertheless, the total number of people with jobs reached 101.6 million, an all-time high. Since last December, when joblessness hit a post-Depression peak of 10.8 percent and more than 12 million Americans were out of work, some 2.5 million have found jobs.

But, on a sour note, joblessness among black male teen-agers soared last month from 47.6 percent to 56.8 percent, an all-time high. In contrast, the unemployment rate among white male teen-agers rose only from 20.4 percent to 21.1 percent.

The stagnant jobless rate came as no shock to Reagan administration officials and private analysts, who had said in advance of today's Labor Department report that they saw the dramatic 0.5 percentage point plunge in civilian joblessness from June to July as a one-time phenomenon.

Some analysts noted the growing number of recent reports signalling a slowdown in the economic recovery as pointing the way to little dramatic news on unemployment in the months ahead.

An alternate unemployment rate, which includes the more than 1.6 million armed services personnel stationed in the United States, rose minimally from 9.4 percent to 9.5 percent in August.

Department analyst Deborah Klein termed that rise "statistically insignificant."

A separate survey of business payrolls showed a net drop of 410,000 in employment last month, due largely to the strike by three unions against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which idled more than 675,000 workers. In the compilation of the business establishment employment survey, which is not included in the department's unemployment rate calculation, a person who is employed — but not at work — cannot be counted among those on business payrolls.

Altogether, total unemployment stood at 10,699,000, up from 10,590,000 in July.

There was no further improvement in the jobless rates of various categories of workers, as unemployment among adult men, the traditional family bread-winners, remained at 8.8 percent in August. Among adult women, the rate rose slightly, from 7.9 percent to 8 percent.

Within the other categories, the rates were:

—Teen-agers, 23.0 percent, up from 22.8.

—Whites, 8.2 percent, unchanged.

—Blacks, 20.0 percent, up from 19.5.

—Hispanics, 12.9 percent, up from 12.3.

In a statement prepared to accompany today's report, Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the recovery that began earlier in the year in the overall employment situation continued in August. Civilian employment, as measured by the bureau's household survey, continued to rise and, after an allowance for the effects of several strikes, there were comparable gains in the number of jobs.

Ms. Norwood noted that following the strong improvement in July, the unemployment rate did not change, but she added that the number of Americans out of work for long periods of time continued to decline.

Last month, some 2,447,000 people had been jobless for six months or longer, down from 2,587,000 in July.

A pool of 1.7 million people remained in the ranks of the so-called "discouraged workers" — the labor force dropouts who have abandoned the search for work and are thus no longer counted as unemployed when the government compiles the jobless rate.

The "discouraged worker" statistic is gathered each month, but reported only on a quarterly basis, which means it will be another month before those figures are updated.

Government employment analysts say that because it is difficult to gather information on people who have dropped out of the labor force, officials spend three months compiling this statistic to minimize the chance of error in sampling techniques.

Private economists, meanwhile, said they expect unemployment will decline only gradually in the next few months.

"It's probably going to stay about the same," said David Ernst of Evans Economics Inc., a forecasting firm here.

Nariman Behravesh of Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia said "the general trend (in the unemployment rate) is downward, but slowly downward. You've got a combination of growth in the labor force and slower growth in the economy."

FNB cuts 60 workers

First National Bank of Midland confirmed Thursday it had laid off 60 employees this week as part of "pervasive" cost-cutting measures being taken to restore the bank to fiscal health. Rumors that hundreds have been laid off are untrue.

The cuts reduce the bank's staff to approximately 820 people, down from the high of 995 reported at the end of 1982.

The cutback was done across the board; no particular department or area of the bank was singled out. The reduction did, however, include some officers.

"We certainly didn't want to do this, but it was a necessary step," said vice president Guy McCrary. "We do not anticipate any further lay-offs." The bank's staff has also been reduced by natural attrition in recent months.

McCrary said bank officials realized the lay-offs would probably create "another rash" of rumors about First National, but that the reduction was seen as an integral part of general cost-cutting actions being taken since the Aug. 1 arrival of new president Thomas J. Wageman.

In 1982, the bank said it spent $20.45 million on salaries and employee benefits and training. It spent $11 million in the first six months of this year.

Reducing overhead is but one of several things the bank said it would be doing in the near future as it struggles to overcome a $109.3 million loss so far this year.

"Things mentioned at the time we announced our second quarter results are now taking place," McCrary said. These include reducing staff size, cutting back on some "frills" like the executive dining room, and seeking professional management consulting input.

Several banking and business consultants are at First National now, counseling its officers on management and capital matters, he said. The bank retained The First Boston Corporation, a prominent investment banking firm, to advise the directors on capital funding.

Part of the bank's plan announced earlier this year is to sell additional common stock. McCrary said he still had no definite timetable on the stock offering.

McCrary said the bank's elegant private dining room located on the 24th floor was closed indefinitely as of Aug. 31, and that certain credit cards used for business entertainment expenses were taken away from most bank officers.

The bank's new Resource automatic teller machines at four Midland locations will be opened later this month, he said.

Alaska spreads less wealth

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Oil-rich Alaska's program to share its wealth this year will yield checks of $386.15 to about 455,500 qualified men, women and children, according to state officials, far smaller than the $1,000 payments handed out under the program last year.

The checks, to mailed beginning in mid-September, are paid from the interest earnings of the Permanent Fund, Alaska's oil wealth savings account.

Officials with the state Department of Revenue said Thursday they will issue almost $175.6 million in dividend checks this year. Last year, $480 million was distributed.

Revenue spokeswoman Colleen Brown said the application period was shortened this year which may account in part for 20,000 fewer applicants.

The dividends are financed with 50 percent of earnings from the Permanent Fund.

The dividend program, which began last year, has survived a legislative attempt to kill it. A measure calling for repeal was defeated this year in the House.

Gov. Bill Sheffield, a Democrat serving his first term, opposes the program, calling it wasteful and harmful to Alaska's image in the lower 48.

Backers, however, including former Gov. Jay Hammond, a Republican, contend it musters a constituency to protect against "raids" on the fund's $4.5 billion principal.

Coal gas line deal signed

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Northern Plains Natural Gas Co. has signed an agreement with Great Plains Coal Gasification Associates to operate and maintain a 34-mile, 24-inch pipeline in southwestern North Dakota, officials announced Thursday.

The pipeline connects the Great Plains gasification plant near Beulah, N.D., with the Northern Border Pipeline near Hebron, N.D.

Northern Plains, a subsidiary of Omaha-based InterNorth Inc., is the operator of the Northern Border pipeline.

"The two-year initial operating agreement is effective Sept. 1, 1983, and requires Northern Plains to perform routine operation and maintenance services for the pipeline and its related facilities. Northern Plains will also establish landowner and public awareness programs for operation of the pipeline," said William A. Henry, Northern Plains president.

Upon receipt of approval from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Northern Border will begin delivering 20 million cubic feet of natural gas per day to the Great Plains plant for start-up operations.

Northern Border has signed a letter of intent with the purchasers of the gas to transport 137,500 cubic feet per day through the Northern Border Pipeline system when the plant begins producing synthetic gas in late 1984.

Man uses newly-learned CPR skills on wife

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

When L.E. McLeaish sat through a company-required, Red Cross cardiopulmonary resuscitation course at Gulf Oil, he didn't think he would use it that night to save his wife's life.

But he did.

"You go to those and you think, 'Well, it's not going to happen to me,'" McLeaish, a 36-year resident of Goldsmith and a lease operator for Gulf, said. "If it hadn't been for the course, I don't think think she'd be with me now."

That night in June, following a course in CPR taken that day, McLeaish said he went to bed shortly before his wife of about 40 years, Beulah. He woke up when he heard her thrashing about, having a bad dream.

"I thought, 'My goodness — she's having a nightmare. I need to wake her up. Nobody should have a nightmare like that.'

"I got up and she wasn't breathing."

McLeasish began giving her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. After a few times, she began breathing enough that he could leave her and call the Goldsmith Volunteer Fire Department.

The volunteers arrived shortly ("they're about the fastest in Ector County") and applied oxygen to Mrs. McLeaish, who began breathing before they reached Odessa, McLeaish, 62, said.

"If I hadn't done that (resuscitation), by the time the boys had gotten out here with the oxygen, it could have done brain damage," he said. "I think she would have been injured."

Mrs. McLeaish, who owned a steak house in Goldsmith for about 25 years, said she plans to take Red Cross courses in CPR and Multi-Media, also used to revive a person who has stopped breathing.

"Once, a customer got choked on some fried chicken at the steak house," Mrs. McLeaish said. "I should have known what to do. There happened to be a customer in there that knew to press on the diaphragm. But that's as far as I've ever seen it used.

"I never thought I'd need it," she said. "I hope I don't need it ever again."

"My knees ran cold when they called and told me (about the incident)," said Les Breen, Gulf Oil accident prevention representative, who taught the course McLeaish took. "In the oil business, you never know when you'll need to use it — especially because of hydrogen sulfide gas.

"Someone could accidentally be overcome through carelessness — but it also can be needed at home."

Breen, a Red Cross volunteer, teaches the life-saving courses that Gulf Oil requires employees to take.

"I've had a couple of incidents," Breen said. "Mr. McLeaish was just one of these."

The 58-year-old Mrs. McLeaish, who said she has always been healthy except "for falling around and breaking some bones" while working in her garden, said she never thought someone would have to use CPR to save her life.

"God was with us," her husband said, smiling at her. "He brought her right to."

McLeaish also credits the volunteer fire department, which he belonged to for about 20 years, with saving her life.

But the CPR course and its instructor also deserve thanks, he said. "Les (Breen) was real good. He made us all practice. That was what was going on in my mind — what I was going to have to do next."

Breen, who also has taught courses at Midland College to licensed vocational nursing classes, will be one of 50 instructors teaching CPR and one-person rescue to about 500 people at Midland Center Sept. 10.

Registration for the day-long seminar, which takes about two hours to complete, will be conducted at Midland Park Mall Saturday. Others may register for the course at the Midland County Chapter of the Red Cross at 2306 Elizabeth. A $5 registration fee is required and a book entitled "CPR Race for Life," distributed at registration, should be read before the course is taken.

More information may be obtained by calling the Midland Red Cross chapter at 684-6161.

Local school districts' tax rates above state average

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

A study recently released by the Texas Research League shows Midland, Greenwood and Ector County school districts had higher tax rates than the region and state averages in 1982.

The average school tax rate in Texas last year was 71.1 cents per $100 valuation, and the average rate for Region 18 was 52.8 cents. Midland's rate last year was 77.5 cents, Greenwood's was $1.30 and ECISD's was 86.3 cents.

Greenwood had the highest tax rate in Region 18 last year, while the Iraan-Sheffield district had the lowest — 6.7 cents. Both Midland and Greenwood have decreased the tax rate this year, to 77 cents and $1.22 respectively.

The 1,071 Texas school districts adopted 1982 budgets totaling $8.5 billion, an increase of $900 million. That represents about $300 in additional funds for each of the 2.7 million students in the state. The figures come from "Bench Marks for 1983-84 School District Budgets in Texas," an annual publication of the Texas Research League. The League is a private, nonprofit, Austin-based, educational corporation engaged in government research.

State foundation school aid was increased $345 million, and school trustees set a new record by levying an additional $425 million of property taxes for a total tax bill of $3.3 billion. Over the past three years school property tax levies have increased by $1.2 billion, or 57.5 percent.

School budgets adopted for 1982-83 called for spending an average of about $2,600 per student for current operations. Each of the three local school districts spent more per student than the state average, but less than the regional average of $3,200.

MISD's budget provided for approximately $2,700 per student, based on the 14,855 students in average daily attendance in 1981-82. Ector County ISD spent nearly $3,000 on each of its 22,573 students, while Greenwood had a per-student cost of $3,100. Iraan-Sheffield led the region by spending nearly $6,500 on each student.

Sixty-one percent (or $1,648) of Midland's cost per student in 1982-83 was spent on direct instructional services. Pupil services — which include counseling, health services, transportation, food services and athletics — consisted of 15.7 percent, or $409.

Another $351 (or 13.4 percent) is spent on administration, and 12½ cents of each dollar ($328) goes to plant maintenance and operation. The other 1.7 percent, $47 per student, pays for other instructional-related expenses. The breakdown of the state averages is very similar.

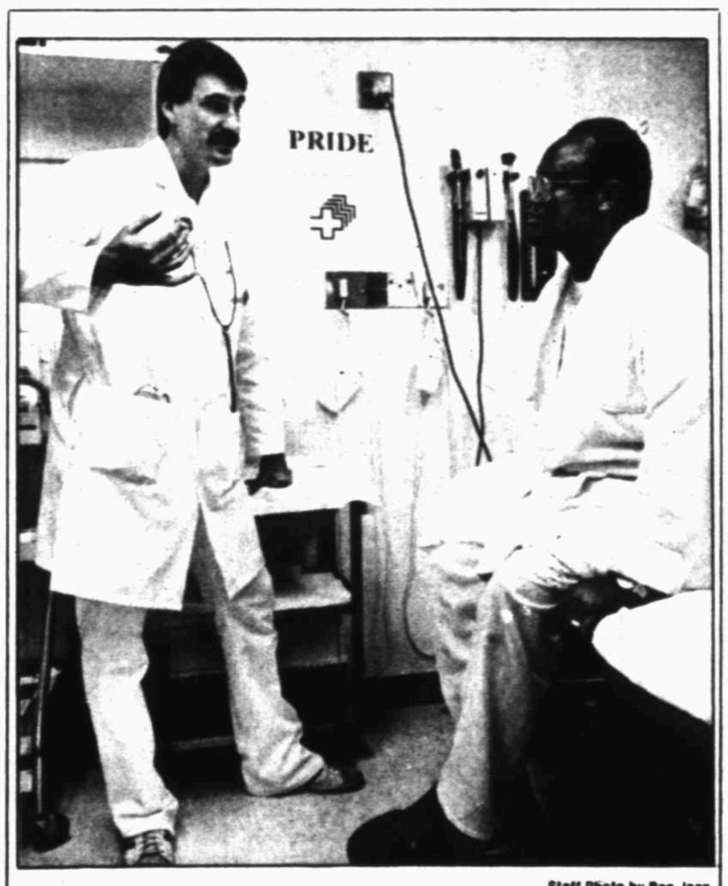

Locally, MISD's tax levy was increased by 24.3 percent for 1982-83, compared to a 14.8 percent increase for the average school district in Texas. The increase in Ector County's tax levy was half that of Midland's, standing at 12.2 percent, while Greenwood's was nearly double — 43 percent above the previous year.

The average salary for classroom teachers paid by MISD in 1981-82 was $20,437, which was 40.5 percent above the state's base figure. That is compared to the $17,537 state average which is 20.6 percent above the minimum. Greenwood was slightly above the state average with $17,905 and ECISD was slightly below Midland's figure, with $20,338. The Legislature further increased the state minimum schedule by $88 to $196 a month for 1982-83.

The student/teacher ratio for Midland and Ector County was 17 to one, while Greenwood's was nearly 19. The state average was one teacher per 16.4 students.

The report noted that the share of the total school payroll paid to classroom teachers has dropped from 73.4 percent of the total in 1969-70 to 60.4 percent last year. Locally, classroom teachers in Midland and Greenwood received about 62 percent of the payroll, and 61 percent in ECISD.

The report noted that the 68th Legislature increased appropriations for public schools by almost a billion dollars for the next biennium. However, only 5.4 percent — or less than $200 million — in foundation aid to local school districts will be available for 1983-84 school budgets.

Suit filed against 'Kissing Bandit'

Byers allegedly fails to pay off note on video parlors

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The very day last week when the so-called Kissing Bandit, Willie Byers, got the benefit of a hung jury on his armed robbery trial, a sheriff's deputy served him notice of a lawsuit on an $84,000 debt incurred on his Wild Willie's Video Parlor.

Byers, 37, had been accused of robbing stockbroker Glenn Little of $900 on May 20 at Little's downtown office and then kissing him on the forehead after collecting on what he claimed was a debt. Byers said he was due the money as the final payment on some remodeling work he had done for Temporary Resources, a personnel service operated by Little's wife, Patricia.

The Littles claimed they never got a final bill from Byers. Byers said they did. The Littles claimed they fired Byers, since they were not satisfied with his 1981 construction work. Byers said he quit the job. At the trial, Byers said he was drunk when he went into Little's office about 9:15 a.m. on May 20 to collect the alleged debt. He pulled a handgun after Little referred him to his wife, who was out of town. "You have a very persuasive manner," Little told Byers, and then produced the money in $100 dollar bills.

Sometime later, the "Kissing Bandit" was arrested in Las Vegas, Nev.

After the robbery case ended in a hung jury and a mistrial in Judge Vann Culp's 238th State District Court, Byers pleaded guilty to the lesser offense of theft, was placed on probation for seven years and was ordered to pay $900 in restitution to the Littles.

The civil litigation against Byers and his estranged wife, Judith, was filed June 16 in Midland's 238th State District Court after Byers failed to pay off an $84,000 note held by Western State Bank.

Byers and his wife had borrowed the money Jan. 25 from WSB at 16.5 percent interest — WSB prime plus 4 percent floating interest, according to court records. The three-month note, including $3,417.30 in interest, became due and payable on April 25.

Byers opened the first of his successful Wild Willie's Video Parlors in late 1981 or early 1982 at 903 S. Midkiff Road and later put in a second video parlor at Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Draw. Both parlors subsequently have closed. The original parlor, a former piano-organ business and a motorcycle shop before that, today is site of the Hub Cap Annie business.

The video parlor at Big Spring and Scharbauer has been closed but still bears Wild Willie character and logo.

In securing the $84,000 loan, Byers had used his video parlors' inventory, which included 37 video games, as collateral. The electronic games — from Astroids to Eight Ball to Pac Man to ZZZap — were valued from a high of $3,195 to a low of $495. The high resale value of the video games was $101,825, while the low resale value was $81,625, according to court records.

Woman may have died from animal disease

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Health officials are investigating the death this week of an eastside woman who may have died of leptospirosis, a disease fairly common in animals but rarely fatal to humans.

The woman, 28-year-old Caroline Jackson of 416 E. Cottonwood, was an employee of Jerry's Pet Shop in Midland Park Mall and died Wednesday at Midland Memorial Hospital.

She was brought to the hospital Monday with a 105-degree temperature, according to pathologist Martha Madsen, who performed an autopsy Thursday and sent tissue samples to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta for confirmation that lepto was the cause of death.

"We're not absolutely sure yet," said Dr. Madsen. "Leptospirosis comes from diseased animals — chiefly mammals — and enters the body through cuts or scrapes," said Dr. Madsen. "It has flu-like symptoms and is rarely serious in humans.

"It is contagious. A lot of animals have it. Dogs, cats, rats — any kind of animal can have it. Human beings — especially people who work with animals — are exposed to it an awful lot. But it's very, very rare to see someone die from it.

"She could have contracted it at work or from animals around the house. People are more apt to get it if they have sores on their hands. We don't know why one person dies and others don't."

Lubbock specialists in animal diseases were due in Midland today to confer with local health officials about the case, according to Don Goodrum, chief sanitarian for the City-County Health Department.

Some City Hall offices without phone service

Part of City Hall has remained out of touch with the rest of the world since Tuesday. That day administrative offices moved from the annex on North Weatherford Street into the newly remodeled and expanded City Hall. But the phone system didn't quite make it.

Thursday afternoon, some phones were still missing from new offices on the third floor. The phones that were there sometimes rang, sometimes didn't. Said one employee, "You have to watch the phone and see if the light comes on. That means there's a call."

Fred Baker, public works director, said the major problems came on the third floor which was remodeled. Walls were knocked out, lines cut and rerouted. In the meantime, "we're disconnecting from the annex lines and rerouting them over here."

He expects the phones to be back to normal next week.

The addition of floors four and five to City Hall were part of a bond issue passed by voters in April 1982. Construction was finished ahead of schedule. Those offices which had been on the third floor but were moved to the annex during construction were moved back about 2½ weeks ahead of schedule.

Baker said the original "move-out date was Sept. 17." If they had stayed past that date, it would have meant paying another $6,000 to the annex owner.

DEATHS

W.E. Benton

Services for W.E. (Bill) Benton, 1115 E. Hickory, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Don Mitchell, associate pastor of Westside Church of Christ, and Paul Hall, pastor of Fairmont Park Church of Christ officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mr. Benton died early this morning in a Midland hospital.

J.J. Black

HOUSTON — J.J. Black, 82, of Houston died of lung cancer Thursday morning at his home. No services will be held.

He was a prominent architect who designed more than 200 houses in the Midland area.

He was born in Waynesburg, Penn., in 1900, grew up in Ohio and attended college in Columbus. In New York he designed the Ziegfeld Theatre and the Center Theater in Rockefeller Center — both now demolished.

He moved to Midland in 1935 and worked briefly in the oil field before returning to architecture. Area buildings to his credit include Midland Air Terminal, the Commercial Bank and Trust (now Texas American Bank) building, the Unitarian Church, Midland Community Theatre and the First Methodist Church of Midland demolished in the 1970s.

Black was a member of the American Institute of Architects and served as an officer of the West Texas chapter. He was also a member of the examining board that issues licenses to Texas architects.

He moved to Houston in 1965 with his wife, Eleanor Fox Black.

Black is survived by his second wife, Jeanne; his son, Roger Black of New York; three daughters, Lois Booth and Gail Heisler of Houston and Dorothy Black-Fox of Santa Maria, Calif.; a brother, Ben Black of Midland; three sisters, Mrs. A.R. Norred of Sweetwater, Mrs. E.A. Davis of Redlands, Calif., and Mrs. Clifford Stark of Sun City, Ariz.; and eight granddaughters.

SBA ready to accept drought loan requests

WASHINGTON — The Small Business Administration has announced it is ready to begin accepting applications for Economic Injury Assistance Loans from West Texas ranchers and farmers devastated by the drought.

U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler's office was notified this morning the program was official, according to a spokesperson in his office. Loeffler represents the 21st District, which includes Midland and many of the counties hit by the drought.

These loans apply to agribusinesses, such as farm and ranch operations in the 20 counties declared disaster areas. These are Andrews, Brewster, Coke, Crane, Culberson, Ector, Howard, Jeff Davis, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Nolan, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Sutton, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler. Earlier this week Reeves, Loving and Schleicher were added to the list, but have not made it to the SBA's office.

These loans apply to small businesses impacted by the drought, such as small farm and ranch operations. Loans at 8 percent interest are for the amount of injury only. "If you suffered $10,000 worth of injury by the drought, you can apply for that amount. The maximum is $500,000," said Loeffler's spokesperson.

Applications for the loans will be accepted until Feb. 16, 1984, at the nearest SBA office, which is Lubbock for most of the 20 counties. Farmers and ranchers in Sutton County will go to the San Antonio office.

"The congressman is very pleased at this official announcement that he knew was forthcoming," said the spokesman. Loeffler had been told earlier this week the SBA probably would make the loans available.

Loeffler was in Chicago today discussing the drought situation with Agriculture Secretary John Block and other agriculture department officials.

Theresa White, daughter of Penny White, 2101 N. Pecos, is the recipient of a nursing scholarship from Dr. A. Henry Sara-nec. The Midland High graduate will attend Texas Tech University.

Army private convicted of involuntary manslaughter

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — An Army private has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the deaths of a New Braunfels couple and their two children and now faces a military review to consider his status in the service.

Pfc. William Dale Savage, 23, was convicted in April in the death of Ruben Sauceda, who was struck and killed by the soldier's car.

Savage pleaded guilty Thursday to three counts of involuntary manslaughter in the deaths of Sauceda's wife, Hortencia, and the children.

Mexican-American groups had been outraged when Savage was tried only for Sauceda's death, sentenced to 10 years probation and fined $5,000.

More than 200 protestors marched on the Comal County courthouse and four jail inmates went on a 20-day hunger strike.

Savage, 23, had tears in his eyes Thursday as he entered the guilty pleas, which were part of a deal his attorney struck with Assistant Attorney General Luis Vallejo.

Visiting Judge Carl Anderson of Waco sentenced Savage to 10 years probation on each of the three involuntary manslaughter counts, but said the probation would all run concurrently with his first probated sentence.

Anderson also ordered the soldier, stationed at San Antonio's Fort Sam Houston, to make $8,200 in restitution to the surviving members of the Sauceda family.

Savage's attorney, Rick Woods of San Antonio, said he waived his right to any appeals as part of the plea bargain.

The four Saucedas were killed Oct. 30 as they walked along a highway in this town north of San Antonio.

Washington Bureau

MANNHEIM, WEST GERMANY — Dogs trained to sniff out narcotics at Lackland Air Foce base in San Antonio are performing so well they are cutting down considerably on the amount of illegal drugs getting into the U. S. military community in Germany and northern Italy, says Col. Pat Foote, executive agent for the Department of Defense in Military Customs Inspection.

Colonel Foote, who procures the dogs for this task, expressed amazement at the skill of the dogs. She particularly praised a small terrier and a beagle which are used in addition to the big German shepherds. The smaller animals are most effective, especially on smaller suitcases or boxes.

"This little terrier can climb all over a pile of luggage and get right to the inner crevice," said the colonel. "When the dogs find something, they will bark or just sit before it and wait for us to move in."

Another one of the colonel's tasks is to make sure that all military vehicles brought to Europe are steamed before they are sent back to the U.S.A. This is done to make sure that no worms or snails are caught in the tracks of a tank and live to invade the soil of the home country. She said that some European snails did get back and damaged acreage owned by U.S. farmers.

Colonel Foote has to see that there is customs inspection on all of the equipment which the Army is bringing to Germany through Holland and Belgium in early September for the 15th annual Reforger maneuvers. Seventeen thousand men from the U.S. will team up with a like number in Europe. They bring 38,000 tons of equipment which they will use, along with prepositioned equipment left in Europe from past maneuvers. Prepositioning it saves transportation costs and insures that the U.S. and its allies will have it there in case of an invasion. But this year as the men and vehicles were moved from Fort Hood, in Killeen through Texas ports, Colonel Foote said the hurricane did so much damage to Port of Beaumnt that some shipments had to be switched quickly to Galveston and elsewhere.

"Leptospirosis is being considered because of her employment," said Goodrum. "But we're not sure yet. People come in contact with it through water contaminated with the urine of infected animals, or by direct contact with animals. We've had no known cases here before."

Human symptoms include fever, headaches, chills, vomiting, muscle ache and jaundice. The disease has an incubation period of 4 to 20 days and is treatable with antibiotics if caught in time.

"The symptoms in animals are quite varied," said Dr. Michael McCulloch of the Tall City Veterinary Clinic. "There can be red bruises on the skin and gums. Also, bleeding through the nose, rectum and urinary tract. It attacks the liver and jaundice is a symptom in dogs."

Although most domestic pets are routinely vaccinated against leptospirosis — which is also known as Weil's Disease — vaccination is not 100 percent effective, McCulloch noted.

Mrs. Jackson worked at Jerry's Pets about three months, according to store manager Ron Coughlin, who said she got sick and went home Friday. Her duties included the feeding and watering of animals and the cleaning of cages.

"She worked in the bird room," he added. "There was little contact with mammals. The company wanted to have all our employees to get blood tests, but we were told (by authorities) to wait because the disease has not been confirmed yet. Our animals are always up on their shots."

Neither Dr. Viola Coleman, Mrs. Jackson's physician, nor Dr. Greg Adkins, the store's veterinarian, could be reached for comment.

Health officials, meanwhile, say there is little chance of the disease being communciated from human to human.

"Its transmission from man to man is negligible," said Goodrum. "It's primarily a disease of animals. But we really don't know what we're dealing with yet. That's why an investigative team is here."

Program designed for PRIDE

All employees in the front office, which includes the business office, admissions, Medicare/Medicaid and insurance specialists, as well as employees in records, maintenance, housekeeping, pharmacy, accounting and the nursing staff are eligible for the honor.

Nomination forms are given to physicians on staff and to each patient as he or she is admitted. Completed forms may be dropped into ballot boxes at the nurses' stations and in the doctors' lounge.

Bumper stickers, buttons and posters explaining PRIDE are available to employees, physicians and the public.

New magazine with familiar name hitting news stands in West Texas

A new magazine with a familiar name is hitting the West Texas market.

The merger of Towns West, an Odessa-based publication, with Abilene Scenes was to be announced today in a news conference at 1:30 p.m. at Midland Regional Airport.

James Linemon, editor of Abilene Scenes, said the new magazine will be known as Towns West and will have a format similar to Texas Monthly. He will continue as editor.

"It will cover a broad area of West Texas, from Abilene to Odessa," said Linemon. The first issue is out now and consists of 60 pages. Plans call for it to be expanded to 150-200 pages and to cover a wide range of topics, including the arts, hunting, sports and fashion.

Towns West formerly was owned by Tinsley & Tinsley Publications, Inc. Texas West Scenes now is the parent corporation.

Abilene Scenes has been published for a year and has a circulation of 15,000-20,000. Towns West has been on the market for three years and has a circulation of 8,000-10,000. Combined circulation should be 20,000-plus.

Publisher is Noble A. Craft. Permian Basin editor is Alice Berthelsen; sales manager is Madolyn Tinsley.

Police investigate armed robbery

Midland police are investigating an armed robbery of a convenience store which occurred early this morning.

According to police reports, two Hispanic men entered the store at 3302 W. Illinois Ave. about 4 a.m. today and took an undetermined amount of cash at gunpoint.

A scar-faced, 6-foot male, wearing a black shirt, flashed the barrel of a blue-steel revolver and demanded that the clerk hand over cash, according to reports. The clerk told police the man holding the revolver spoke Spanish when he demanded the money.

Reports stated the other man was 5-foot 9-inches tall, wearing a blue cowboy shirt and jeans. Both men fled from the store and drove away in an older model four-door, blue Oldsmobile, which had dim headlights.

In other criminal activity, J'Nita Howard reported a burglary at 704 S. Mineola. According to reports, a 19-inch color TV set valued at $450 was taken. Entry was through a rear locked door, police said.

Doctors' feud simmers in West Texas town

ALPINE (AP) - A feud is simmering in West Texas between an elderly country doctor who has been banned from the local hospital emergency room and the medical staff he claims has sensationalized his mistakes.

William Lockhart Jr., 74, had his emergency room privileges revoked by the Big Bend Memorial Hospital board in July because "the community looks to the hospital and medical board to protect them from questionable practice," hospital administrator Tom Santry said.

Among the allegations were that Lockhart, who helped found the only hospital in a Maryland-sized area of Texas scrubland, misdiagnosed at least seven cases, including one in which a woman was said to be suffering from Legionnaires' disease, Santry said.

The medical staff in this town of 7,000 checked with the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, which says about 100,000 cases of the deadly pneumonia-like disease are reported annually in the United States, "and this is not one of them," Santry said.

Lockhart also diagnosed an 81-year-old man as suffering from cerebral thrombosis, or a stroke. After consulting with another physician, that doctor determined the victim had a blood clot on the brain. The patient was rushed comatose to El Paso for treatment but survived, Lockhart said.

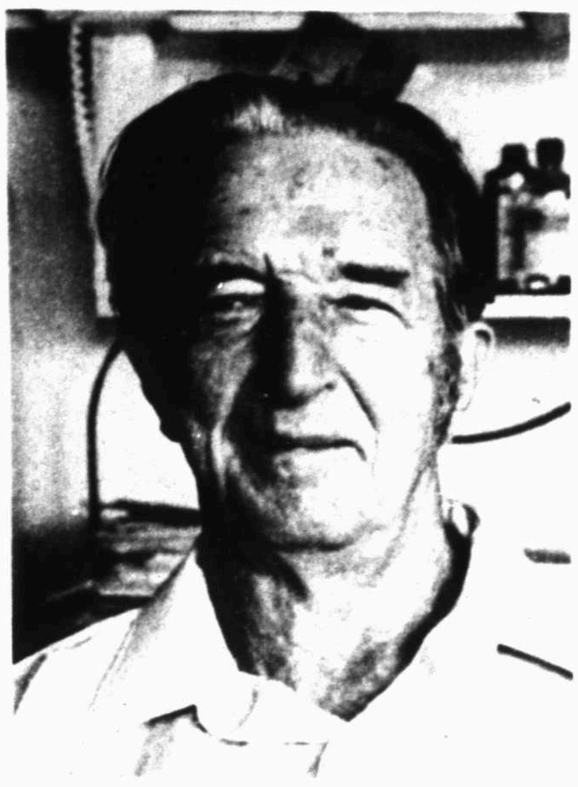

Lockhart, spry enough to brag that he could "whip anyone," said all doctors make mistakes, and that he shouldn't be singled out. "Yes, I misdiagnosed one case...but all the cases got well."

WELL IS NOT good enough for hospital chief of staff Mark Pate, who confirmed that the Texas Board of Medical Examiners has been asked to look into Lockhart's practices.

John Sortore, spokesman for the state medical examiners' hearing division, said an inquiry is continuing. The Lockhart investigation could take months and "the end result might be nothing at all or might have consequences," Pate said.

Two hospital bylaws have been changed by the board that directly affect Lockhart, who has made house calls in this ranching town for 50 years.

One bylaw banned doctors 65 years and older — including Pate's father — from practicing in the emergency room unless a patient asks for that physician, and the second specifically requires Lockhart to treat trauma and critically ill victims only in the presence of another doctor.

William Lockhart Jr.

The changes were in the "best interest of the hospital, general public and medical staff as a whole," Pate said.

Lockhart has charged that most of the 12-member staff acted maliciously to deny him emergency room access because the doctor — popular for treating patients at home but controversial for his political views — has more business than any of Alpine's nine younger physicians.

SANTRY SAID THE board changes were enacted for the public's own welfare, with no bias and didn't represent a vendetta against Lockhart, who is the local housing board chairman and a self-described "liberal...in a conservative community."

The charges, which Lockhart alleges were brewed up by Pate and former medical chief of staff Harold Miller, have backfired, Lockhart said. Miller has denied comment on the case.

There has been an "outpouring of affection and recognition by the people of this area that I didn't expect until after I died," Lockhart said.

For instance, Mrs. J.K. Miller, Mrs. J.C. Duncan, Jr., and Barbara Dirks, all of Fort Davis, wrote the Alpine Avalanche, saying, "When you take Dr. Lockhart out of the emergency room, who will there be to care?"

Lockhart said the changes in bylaws also robbed him of a source of income, because many times he is the only local doctor "not out on the golf course" and concerned enough to treat patients on off-hours and weekends.

Despite being banned from the emergency room, Lockhart said he treats up to 60 patients daily.

"I take care of the poor. My door of my practice is open to anyone, anytime, regardless of whether they have the money to pay."

Money is in the mind of some Alpine residents who are fed up with the doctors' feud, Avalanche publisher Bill Brooks said. He called the Lockhart case "a little battle between a bunch of rich egomaniacs."

Pate said the feud has split some in the community and turned "from a sardine into a case of Jaws."

That still may be true, Santry said, but Lockhart — who he said has had three heart bypass operations — should recognize the medical board has "taken steps to guarantee quality" in the hospital.

Lockhart also should recognize he's "not the same man (he) was 20 or 30 years ago," he added.

Possibility of stormy weather doesn't faze Valley residents

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Rio Grande Valley residents won't be scared off the island by two recent hurricane threats, but some other tourists may stay away during the long Labor Day weekend, officials say.

Colleen Carnevale, promotions director of the South Padre Island-Port Isabel Chamber of Commerce, said residents of far South Texas, who make up the majority of island visitors over the holiday weekend, are expected to flock to the island.

"The people here have a savvy about the weather. It takes a whole heck of a lot to shake up these people," she said.

But it may be a different story with visitors from northern regions of the state, Ms. Carnevale said.

"Barry may have done us some psychological damage," she said. "He certainly didn't do us any other kind."

Hurricane Barry steered south of Texas' coastal resorts last weekend and whirled instead across northeastern Mexico fishing and agricultural villages, leaving about 400 impoverished families homeless.

Hurricane Alicia struck the Galveston-Houston area just 10 days earlier killing 21 people and causing more than $1 billion in damage.

People from Texas' northern cities "may have become very weather conscious and travel cautious" and might not travel south for the last weekend on the beach, Ms. Carnevale said.

An estimated 4,000 to 5,000 people swarmed to South Padre Island beaches last year specifically for the Labor Day weekend and the chamber's annual two-day Seafest celebration, Ms. Carnevale said.

But she said the chamber isn't forecasting the number of people who will show up this year.

"It's conceivable that it would be less than last year," she said. "If it is less, I will put it down to the weather problems that we've had."

John McDonald, general manager of the island's Hilton Resort, said, however, the hotel is nearly 100 percent booked for the weekend.

He said the Hilton's Labor Day weekend guests generally come from a 200-to 300-mile radius.

Those who have made reservations, he said, are planning to stay longer.

"It's very encouraging," he said.

South Padre Island Police Chief Art Garcia said his department intensifies patrols over the weekend and, like during a hurricane, refuses vacation leaves.

De la Madrid praised by border analyst

HARLINGEN (AP) — Mexico President Miguel de la Madrid's plan for social and economic recovery has "kept hysteria at a low ebb" on both sides of the Rio Grande, according to one analyst.

"The man is really on top of it. He's one of the most encouraging things that has happened in a long time," said Dr. Anthony Zavaleta, director of the South Texas Institute on Latin and Mexican-American Research at Texas Southmost College in Brownsville.

Zavaleta and others commented Thursday following de la Madrid's first state of the union address since taking office last December.

"The change is slow, but it's a positive and sure change," said Jose Elias Maciel, a Reynosa, Mexico, restaurant owner.

"We have a lot of faith in this president to change Mexico day by day," he said.

De la Madrid's message offered no surprises or policy shifts from the program of financial recovery he announced upon taking office.

The speech did, however, quell speculation that the peso would again be devalued, a major fear among Valley cities already devastated by Mexico's 1982 peso devaluations.

"I think the good thing is that it might put those (peso devaluation) rumors to rest for awhile," said Jim Bexley, president of Texas Commerce Bank of McAllen.

"There have been rumors flying fast and furious for weeks now, if not months, that he would announce it today," said Zavaleta.

Rio Grande Valley cities, many which had built their economic structures on shoppers from Mexico, were hit hard when the value of the peso plunged from about 27 pesos to the dollar to 150 peso to the dollar.

De la Madrid "knows exactly what he is going to do," Zavaleta said.

"He cannot on the one hand attract foreign investment and at the same time demonstrate a shaky economy," he said.

"People are not going to be willing to invest money in what they consider a very shaky market, not knowing what the government is going to do," he said.

Appeals court refuses to stay execution of convicted killer

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — An appeals court's refusal to stay the execution of a man convicted of killing a convenience store clerk in order to steal a six-pack of beer has led a state judge to set an Oct. 5 execution date.

James David Autry, 28, remained silent Thursday while state District Judge Leonard Giblin handed down the new date. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Autry's request for a stay of execution last week.

"I think he realizes this is the one that may be carried out," defense attorney Charles Carver said.

Carver said he would asked Supreme Court Justice Byron White for a stay of execution next week. He said he would seek a stay from Gov. Mark White if the first request was denied.

Houston to host oil congress

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston, which is headquarters for oil and energy companies, has been selected to host the 1987 World Petroleum Congress, a major international energy forum, Mayor Kathy Whitmire announced Thursday.

The Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council estimates the conference will add about $1.7 million to the city's economy, Mrs. Whitmire said.

The event will bring about 4,500 delegates to Houston, filling about 3,500 hotel rooms, she said.

Houston was chosen over Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Buenos Aires, Argentina; New Orleans; Los Angeles; Atlanta; New York and Washington, D.C.

Gas stations will remain open

HOUSTON (AP) — Holiday travelers won't have any trouble finding an open service station in Texas over the Labor Day weekend, according to the American Automobile Association.

An AAA survey showed that 84 percent of all service stations in the state will be open during the holiday weekend, said spokeswoman Lee Ann Garcia.

Prices will be slightly lower than they were a year ago, Ms. Garcia said.

Unleaded gasoline at the self-service pump will cost about $1.16 a gallon, Ms. Garcia. A year ago, motorists paid $1.24 a gallon, she said.

Patients get to practice putting

AUSTIN (AP) — Seton Medical Center may not be a country club, but patients can perfect their putting while they're on the mend.

"I really don't play much golf, but this is a nice practice green," said cardiac patient Calvin Tuckness, 58. "It'll make it more enjoyable to get out of your room."

The nine-hole putting course was paid for by Onion Creek Country Club members, who raised nearly $3,000 for the third-floor courtyard course at the hospital.

The holes, featuring artificial turf, are 12 to 20 feet long and about a yard wide.

Dr. Jim Calhoon, a heart specialist on the Seton staff, says it's all very therapeutic.

"It is important that cardiac patients get up and around as soon as they are able. Patients can get the feeling things are hopeless, and the putting green will remind them this isn't so. The green is a fun and helpful way to encourage patients not to act sick," he said.

Front page headlines of Seoul newspapers Friday morning reported a South Korean airlines jetliner with 269 people aboard was shot down by a missile fired from a Soviet fighter.

Countries outraged over Soviet attack

By The Associated Press

Governments around the world expressed outrage over the alleged Soviet warplane attack on a commercial Korean airliner, and U.S. Sen. Jesse A. Helms said today in Seoul he would urge a total reassessment of relations between Washington and Moscow.

The United States called for an emergency U.N. Security Council meeting this afternoon to deplore the downing of the Korean Airlines Boeing 747 Thursday, calling it "a flagrant and serious attack on the safety of international civil aviation."

Korean Air Lines said 269 people were aboard the plane, including at least 51 Americans. All were believed killed.

Pope John Paul II, in a message to Archbishop Stephen Kim of Seoul, said he was "shocked by Thursday's tragedy" and "send my heartfelt condolences to you and the Korean people at this time of intense sorrow ..."

South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan accused the Soviet Union of committing a "barbaric act" and demanded "the truth" and an apology from Moscow.

In the first official Soviet acknowledgement that it was searching for the missing aircraft, the Soviet ambassador to Japan told the Japanese Foreign ministry today that Soviet ships found "traces of an airline crash" off the Soviet island of Sakhalin, a ministry official said.

Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe said the incident, which claimed 22 Japanese lives, was bound to influence already strained Soviet-Japanese relations.

"This is developing into a very regrettable situation," he said.

The incident was condemned by a Chinese Communist newspaper in Hong Kong today as "barbarous." An editorial in the paper, Wen Wei Po, said: "The unarmed passenger liner...was not hostile to the Soviet Union."

The response from international pilots' associations varied.

David Kidd, chief press officer for the International Air Transport Association in Geneva, Switzerland, said he found the report "difficult to believe" and said he was "profoundly shocked."

"Until we have a full report, it would be difficult to comment," he said.

Families express disbelief

From Wire Reports

Stunned and angered, families and friends of passengers aboard a downed Korean Airlines jumbo jet expressed one sentiment again and again upon hearing the U.S. report that the airliner had been shot down: "I can't believe it."

At least 51 U.S. citizens were aboard Flight 7, Korean Air Lines officials say. U.S. officials say the jetliner was shot out of the sky Thursday by a Soviet missile.

The passengers were going to Asia for reasons both joyful and sad: a Massachusetts man heading to Taiwan to teach English; two Rhode Island roommates taking their yearly vacation together; a New Jersey family on their way to a relative's funeral; a Pennsylvania engineer traveling to his sister's wedding.

"I don't know why this happened. I don't understand," sobbed Yeong-Sheng Liu, 40, the manager of a Chinese restaurant in York, Pa. His schoolteacher wife, Yun-Hsing, 34, their 10-year-old daughter, Pei-Shaun, and their 9-year-old son, Chao-Po, were returning to their native Taiwan, where they lived part of each year, before school started in a few days.

"Now they are all gone, my children, all my family," Liu said sadly as he sat alone in his restaurant. Holding up a morning newspaper that had printed an incorrect report that the plane had landed safely, he cried, "Why did they print this? Why did they print this?"

"I'm not sure the shock has set in yet. I just don't know what to say about it," said 28-year-old Michael McNiff of Beverly, Mass., whose identical twin, Kevin, had been chosen to teach English in a two-year exchange program with a Taiwan university.

"He's a great guy, very humorous and adventurous," McNiff said of his brother, who had studied for three years at the University of Alabama. "He had bought a Mao cap. He wanted to be dressed properly, he wanted to have a good time."

Interior decorator furnishes advice

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

When Vicki Wenger, an interior designer, went on early-morning television in Washington to discuss decorating she invited viewers to write in for free advice.

Most of the 217 individuals who took advantage of the offer sent letters in which the world "help" — often with an exclamation point after it — was included, she said.

This experience indicated to her that many Americans recognize their homes could be more attractive but don't know how to manage the trick on their own.

That, of course, is what the interior design profession is there to do, but some people are intimidated by designers.

"They are afraid they will end up spending too much money," said Ms. Wenger, a member of A.S.I.D. and owner of the business, Beautiful Spaces Inc., in Washington, D.C.

However, people are not as helpless as they may think when it comes to questions of decorating, she said. What they need is some confidence and a knowledge of the basics.

She has devised a method for laymen that can help. It involves measuring a "problem" room, indicating what furniture and accessories are already there, and putting it all down on paper, along with a written description of the major problem and the budget available to fix it.

Though she offers the service for a fee, individuals can accomplish some of the goals by doing them on their own.

To do so will require quarter-inch graph paper, a set of commonly-available templates that can be cut out to represent furniture and architectural elements, and a yardstick or tape measure.

After plotting the room as it exists and entering the measurements on a piece of paper, a plan of the room is drawn to scale on the graph paper, and the paper templates representing the furnishings are placed on the plan.

Answering a questionnaire which seeks information on window treatments, floor coverings, color scheme and decorating problems completes the process, although those using her service are advised to supply photos of their room as well.

Even without professional decorating advice, engaging in such a process is likely to produce excellent results, she said. At the very least, it will provide accurate information on what is on hand and room dimensions. It also forces a realistic appraisal of the problem and budget limitations.

Armed with such a plan, an individual is often able to draw up a program for improvement and by consulting a designer in a retail furniture store may be able to get additional suggestions for improvement.

Once the plan is completed, she advised experimenting on paper with room arrangement.

"A good way to start is to chart a traffic pattern, noting how people get into the room, leave it and move around from one area to another. Moving furniture around to eliminate road blocks and improve comfort and appearance is a lot easier on paper than it would be in the room itself," she noted.

Ms. Wenger's experience over the years as well as the questions that have cropped up in her mail order decorating business have convinced her that the problem almost always comes down to basics.

"People have trouble with color. Often they have furniture and accessories in mismatched colors and are seeking a third color which will tie them all together and make it possible to use all the colors in a more attractive way."

It is also difficult for many people to visualize color on a large expanse of space such as a wall or floor or sofa from a small paint chip, wallpaper sample or fabric sample. So she usually suggests investing in a small can of paint or a single roll of the wallpaper to cover a large piece of cardboard.

"Live with the new color or pattern a week and you will soon know if it is the right one," she said.

If decorating for the first time, "the best thing you can do is paint your house white. Add color and wallpaper gradually as you sense a need and keep the areas of color and pattern small at first," she said.

Unless you have professional advice, choose neutrals for large expanses such as walls and floors and major upholstery pieces. Bring in color with pillows, pictures and other accessories, she suggested.

Ms. Wenger said the best advice she could offer was to start out with a decorating plan.

"The letters I have received make it clear many people don't have very much money to spend at one time. But several hundred dollars spent according to plan over the course of several years can bring excellent results," she concluded.

Suggestions stretch room space

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q.Our teenage son wants his room repainted and I agree it is time to really give some attention to his room.

The room is small, yet must accommodate a twin bed, a desk, storage for clothes, books, stereo equipment and his other treasures.

I'd like some ideas to incorporate into our refurnishing plan — furniture that will be functional and stand up under heavy use. — R.P.V.

A. You might be inspired by the space-stretching suggestions in a room created by designer Hester Beckman.

Beckman placed a twin bed in one corner of a small bedroom on a specially constructed recessed base and installed an 8-inch platform surrounding the bed on the wall. This platform and base were covered in heavy-duty fabric but you might prefer to use heavy vinyl wall covering to cover the plywood frame.

She topped the bed with a durable suedelike Naugahyde spread with matching pillows.

The base platform is lighted below to create an illusion of floating. The platform box around the bed serves as a shelf, requiring far less space than a nightstand or table. To this sort of arrangement you could add a small desk.

Beckman utilized the walls by building in bookshelves over the bed and installed an etagere next to the bed to house stereo equipment and other items. She eliminated the need for bulky lamps by installing beams of light coming from the ceiling and wall-hung light fixtures and tracks.

Instead of using a bulky clothes chest, inventory your son's closet to see if you could install some shelves and revamp clothes poles to customize his closet. Often youngters need more shelf space and less space for hanging clothes than a traditional closet provides.

Q. I live in a cold part of the country but I like windows and lots of glass in my house. However, I feel I am losing lots of heat in the winter (at least at night) even though I have storm windows. I prefer having the windows uncovered during winter days when the sun is shining and warms the rooms.

My furnishings are contemporary and I don't want heavy lined draperies that would make my home look like a morgue.

Do you have any solutions to my problem? — P.B.

A. I'd suggest you look into something called Window Quilt, a type of roller shade that is actually like a fabric quilt at the window. Its manufacturers claim it cuts heat loss through windows and glass doors up to 79 percent.

The shades are available in four dozen solid colors and are fitted into windows or closely against them to control the heat loss.

The quilt consists of five layers of material — outer layers of polyester-rayon cover, two layers of polyester batting and the interior layer of an aluminized polyester.

Itty bitty things are great big business

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Itty-bitty things are great big business, sparking a $300 million market for such dainties as fist-sized houses, teensy sunken bathtubs and a doll's birthday cake complete with minuscule candles, a trade spokesman says.

"Our industry is all things small," Tony Kohn, new president of the Miniature Industry Association of America, said Tuesday at the windup of a trade show for miniatures.

The tiny items on display ranged from a $2,500 crystal chandelier with 23 one-quarter-inch working electric lights to a one-inch copy of The New York Times costing 60 cents.

"Most people think of us as doll houses and things that go into them. But we are also all other things small. We are small furniture, we are small flowers, we are small foods, we are small sculpture and statuary," Kohn said.

It's not a hobby for kids unless they have rich parents.

"It's primarily for adult collectors," said Kohn whose firm imports porcelain houses that fit in the palm of the hand and require tweezers to move the furniture.

"The typical miniature buyer is one who is collecting things because of the charm and interest of just itty-bitties. And we are all kinds of people. We are men who are makers of things, women who have learned to become great mechanics while they have been working on their doll houses."

Business has mushroomed in the last decade, but the practice of miniatures is thousands of years old. The Pharoahs miniaturized their possessions, even their armies, to be buried along with the rulers.

Even now, the prices are regal.

"We've delivered a doll house, unfurnished, that cost $13,000," said Duncan Fleming, a buyer from Lake Geneva, Wis. "It was custom built and was an exact copy of the person's home."

Fleming said people indulge their fantasies, having things in miniature that they couldn't afford in real size.

"A young couple who planned to marry decided to start first with a doll house and furnish it to see if they were compatible and liked the same things," Fleming said.

Most of the items are made to a scale of one inch to a foot. But everything is authentic and looks and works like the real thing.

Gene Farrow of Fern Park, Fla., who constructs a completely stocked department store and supermarket including duplicates of Huggies diapers, a box of Nabisco Oreos and a can of Del Monte peas, said some firms insist on royalties if a product is copied.

"But many are delighted for us to miniaturize their items," he said.

House re-siding easy

A common problem facing many homeowners today is an older home with a deteriorating exterior and the realization that patchwork repairs or a new coat of paint won't keep their homes in top shape, according to Home Improvement and Remodeling Newsletter.

In the past, re-siding immediately signaled to the homeowner that a professional contractor was the only viable option. Yet with recent improvements in materials and instruction, many do-it-yourselfers are finding that re-siding is not as difficult as they previously thought. And the results can be quite impressive.

When installing hardboard siding, ordinary carpentry tools are all that are needed. These include hammer, tape measure, level, square, string line, hand saw, circular saw, caulking gun and tin snips.

Borders can add interesting architectural detail when they are wallpaper cornices, such as this one by Van Luit. Instead of using the cornice border at the ceiling, it is used just above the chair rail, complementing the marble-like paper above and the matching geometric below.

Car wax makes shower sparkle

For a shower enclosure that sparkles and stays shiny much longer, take a tip from the current Family Circle magazine. After cleaning the shower, dry the wall, tiles, glass doors and fixtures and coat them with a liquid car wax. Car wax, says the magazine, also works well on formica counter tops and appliances.

Room can be converted inexpensively

Copley News Service

Q. I want to convert one bedroom into a den-guest room that will be comfortable for us to use as a second living room and inviting for overnight guests. I want a sleeper sofa in the room as well as some work and study space.

There is one window in the room that is horizontal and measures 40 by 60 inches. What would be a good treatment for the window — not too masculine or too feminine?

Please suggest an inexpensive but interesting rug. We have nice wood floors. — A.P.W.

A. Why don't you start out with the purchase of a sleeper sofa with a fabric that is patterned in interesting natural colors.

Select a light version of one of the colors for wall paint, and three or four other colors from the fabric for colors in a random-striped horizontal venetian blind.

Choose a lounge chair in one of the colors from the sleeper sofa.

For an inexpensive rug, consider a woven straw. Flank your window with adjustable bookshelves and continue the shelves under the window. Add a large desk or work table and adequate lighting for seating, reading and relaxing.

Q. I used to have a large home but now am moving to smaller quarters. My pair of sofas are moderate in size and do not allow space for my end tables, at least as I figure on paper. I am wondering if I should sell my sofas and buy new, smaller pieces or if there is another solution. Please advise me. — W.P.

A. Selling used furniture is a losing proposition because you will get very little for it even if it is in very good condition. If you like the sofas you have, consider arranging your room without end tables. Buy floor lamps for the ends of your sofas and use a large coffee table in between the sofas to serve as a place for accessories, cups, glasses and books. Or consider a sofa back table that will provide space for a small lamp and accessories.

Camera flash uses mix, match parts

By HOLT CONFER
Copley News Service

I was on the long-distance line several weeks ago with Andy Schupack, Vivitar's Manager of Public Relations.

"Maybe," he suggested, "you should consider taking a look at our new 4600 flash system."

From there he went on to describe all the parts, capabilities and advantages with such enthusiasm that there really was not a whole lot I could say except, "Send me what you got."

I've used a lot of Vivitar equipment over the years, in fact, one of their 285 strobe units had been a constant traveling companion for a number of years. With its two ni-cad battery packs, that 285 has probably lighted more in-plant shots than most of you can imagine.

To get some idea what you might have in store if you decide to get yourself a 4600, take a cue from the headline on the Vivitar ad — "The greatest thing since the interchangeable lens. Interchangeable flash."

The 4600 grouping has been designed as a modular flash system — in other words, you can use one or two pieces, half a dozen pieces of the dozen or more accessories that the company has developed in order to give the photographer a whole lot of capability.

While I'm not certain what their marketing people had in mind (no one knows precisely what marketing people have in mind), I suspect they felt that a photographer would start out with one or two 4600 accessories when a camera was purchased and then, as photographic skills increased and additional capability was needed, begin to add items from a developing list of goodies.

Cricket's song a sound of summer

Copley News Service

The song of summer usually commences around dusk, sneaking up without fanfare like the dew. One moment there is silence; then the cricket begins his nightly celebration.

It is the male cricket who provides the sweet, reassuring refrain indicating that summer has reached its zenith.

A cricket's chirp can transcend time. You can ride it in your memory back to the summers of youth when the sound blended with the taste of watermelon and the earthy aroma of night.

The music is made by a cricket rubbing a scraper located on one fore wing along a row of 50 to 250 teeth on the opposite fore wing. The tone and duration of the chirp varies with the number of teeth struck per second.

The most common songs are the calling song, which attracts the female, the courtship or mating song, which induces the female's bedroom favors, and the fighting chirp, which repels other males.

Crickets are found in nearly all parts of the world where plants grow. Eggs are laid in the soil in late summer, they hatch in the spring and new adults appear by the following midsummer.

There are 2,400 cricket species. But because it has been deemed the favorite of fish, only one species — the Australian Gray — can be found at Selphs' Cricket Ranch Inc. in Memphis, Tenn.

More women smoke cigarettes

Hearst Feature Service

Women have come a long way indeed, as far as cigarettes and cigarette advertising are concerned, thanks to a 50-year promotional effort that has created a $423 billion domestic market through the masterful use of mass psychology, says Bertram Raven.

Raven, chairman of the psychology department at the University of California-Los Angeles, says that advertising has encouraged women to believe that smoking is healthful, sexy, fashionable and progressive — and to disregard overwhelming evidence to the contrary.

Epidemic lung cancer will claim 34,000 women's lives in 1983, according to an American Cancer Society estimate, and it promises soon to surpass breast cancer as the leading killer of U.S. females who die from cancer. And in a study just published by the federal Health and Human Services Department, researchers who surveyed 8,300 residents of Erie County, Pa., attributed the 7.6-year advantage women have over men in life expectancies (77.9 vs. 70.3) chiefly to greater rates of smoking among males. They warned that a relative increase in smoking by teenage women could close that gap.

Raven has examined hundreds of magazines and newspapers dating back to the 1860s, and corresponded with public-relations man Edward Bernays, a nephew of Sigmund Freud. Bernays pioneered many of the attitude-modification techniques that enabled tobacco companies to create a market with revenue currently exceeding the gross national product of Egypt.

Among Raven's findings:

— During the first two decades of the 20th century, sophisticated-looking middle-class women appeared in cigarette ads, not smoking themselves, but in the presence of male smokers. "The hidden meaning was that women found smoking acceptable," Raven says. "It's a process social psychologists and ad men call the 'foot-in-the-door' technique. Later, you'll be able to actually present women smoking."

— A surge in male smoking caused by the tensions of World War I led to bolder appeals. Raven: "In the mid-'20s, a Chesterfield ad showed a woman sitting next to a man who's smoking. 'Blow some my way,' she says. This was followed by a Lucky Strike ad showing a man blowing smoke rings at a woman. As the rings go towards her, they change into an engagement band."

— Culminating its long flirtation with women, the tobacco industry finally dropped all pretenses during the high-living period preceding the Great Depression, and portayed women in short hair and short skirts puffing away. Thus began a promotional competition, continuing through the present, that would provide remarkable evidence of the public's malleability.

According to Raven, American Tobacco Co. president George Washington Hill hired ad man Albert Lasker, who recommended a Lucky Strike campaign built around celebrity endorsements. Lasker got opera singer Ernestine Schumann-Heink to claim that Luckies were good for her throat.

Liggett and Myers, makers of Chesterfield, hired Bernays to counter the Luckies campaign. Bernays planted newspaper and magazine articles that ridiculed Schumann-Heink's endorsements. They were so effective that Hill hired him away from Liggett and Myers.

Bernays then hired models to light up in fashionable public places, such as New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. "He got debutantes to do it for free," Raven says. "He told them it was for the liberation of women." Some intelligent women went along, he adds, because they sincerely believed that acquiring a habit previously associated only with males was a sign of genuine independence.

Bernays actually assembled a contingent of debutantes to march in an Easter parade, calling the cigarettes they smoked while they were marching "Torches of Freedom."

In an audacious display of unbridled public relations power, Bernays solved a problem for American Tobacco by altering female aesthetics, Raven says.

"George Washington Hill said to Bernays in the '30s, 'You've done a great job, but not enough women are smoking Luckies.' Bernays said the problem was that women didn't like Luckies' green wrapper. Hill replied, 'Why don't you get women to like green?' "

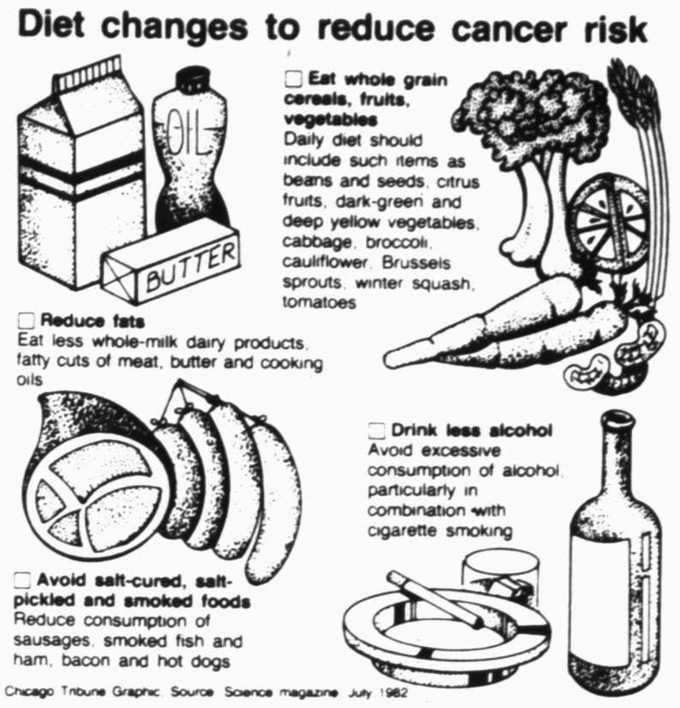

Bernays used his fashion industry contacts to make green the color of the year. Lucky Strike underwrote a charity luncheon given by a society matron. Its theme: green. Everyone wore the color, and all the dishes were green, down to the dessert — a pistachio mousse.

In the '40s and '50s, two things dominated: the war effort and endorsements. Women who built bomber turrets smoked because it "calmed their nerves and allowed them to serve better." Rosalind Russell smoked L&Ms because they were "what the doctor ordered." Claimed Ann Sothern: "Because my voice is so important, I wanted a cigarette that agreed with my throat. I chose Camels."

After the war, a new brand associated with women appeared. It featured a paper tip, available in white or ruby. Its name: Marlboro. Later, Philip Morris decided that Marlboro ought to be directed at men. In what may have been one of the first sex change operations, the Marlboro Man was born.

The direct appeal to femininity resumed in the late '60s and '70s with the appearance of two brands, Muskrose and Eve. They met with some success, Raven says, but soon were upstaged by the women's liberation movement.

Drugs tested for back pain

CHICAGO (AP) — Of all the drugs commonly touted to relieve back pain, none has proved better than aspirin, a medical researcher says.

And most studies of other non-surgical treatments for low back pain have been so flawed that it is impossible to tell which treatment works best, research suggests.

Dr. Richard A. Deyo of the University of Texas reviewed 59 clinical tests that have sought to explore the effectiveness of low back pain treatments ranging from exercises to corsets.

None of the tests met even minimum standards for ensuring objectivity and reliability, Deyo reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The three non-aspirin drugs that were reliably shown to be effective were naproxen (commonly known as Naprosyn or Anaprox), carisoprodol (commonly known as Soma Compound), and diflunisal. None of them has been shown to be better than aspirin, Deyo said.

Chemical in rubber nipples causes concern

Hearst Feature Service

A Cornell University study that found small quantities of nitrosamines in rubber nursing nipples has caused a ripple of concern among mothers and a flurry of explanations from manufacturers.

Nitrosamines are the cancer-causing substances that scared consumers away from bacon for a while. The same substances used to be found in beer until the nitrosamine scare forced beer makers to eliminate them.

The Cornell researchers stress that there is no immediate health hazard from using rubber nursing nipples, a sentiment strongly echoed by nipple manufacturers.

Jack Lynch, director of engineering and quality control at Evenflo Co. of Ravenna, Ohio, said there was no cause to worry about babies getting cancer from a rubber nursing nipple.

Joseph Hotchkiss, a Cornell toxicologist who used to work for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and who did much of the work in detecting the nitrosamines in the nipples, said the researchers hesitated a long time before publishing their findings.

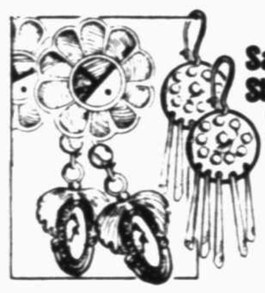

"It shouldn't be scary, but it does frighten people," he said, admitting he had received calls from concerned mothers. Hotchkiss said he and other Cornell researchers had published their findings because the technology exists to reduce any possible danger from nitrosamines, but was not being used by manufacturers. He urged consumers to pressure manufacturers and the FDA to eliminate the risks.

The flap began when the three Cornell researchers, Hotchkiss, Donald Lisk and John Babish, released a report that said they had found very small quantities of highly carcinogenic and mutagenic substances in rubber nursing nipples.

Beauty may mean breaking rules

By COLETTE BOUCHEZ
Copley News Service

"Over the years I've read a lot of articles about what tall women should and shouldn't wear.

"I think such fashion rules are silly. They only serve to encourage the idea that height is something to be ashamed of, that you have to cover up the fact that you're tall. And I think that's wrong."

So says Super Beauty Genna Davis, who measures in at a proud 5 feet 10½. A former fashion model who is currently making it big in the acting field (most recently co-starring in the summer series "Buffalo Bill," which will be returning again in the new season), Geena is a firm believer in "breaking all the rules" when it comes to beauty and fashion.

"I've been through all those phases of feeling self-conscious about my height," says Geena, "and I did what a lot of tall women do ... I slouched and wore low heels. But I came to terms with my height and I made it work for me.

"Regardless of whether you are tall or short," she says, "I think the most important thing to be concerned with is achieving a balanced look; one where your body is in proper proportions."

One of the ways Geena achieves a properly balanced look is to wear her hair long and full, a definite detour from what hairdressers had always told her.

"I have a wide face," reports Geena, "and I've been told I should wear my hair short and close to my head, to compensate. And I must admit I like the look, but only from the neck up ... short hair makes my head look too small for my body and that's unattractive.

"Instead, I find that a large volume of hair around my face balances out my look and it makes my height work for me.

"It's these kind of proportion 'tricks' that are really important to learn. Not those silly rules about which way your stripes should go, or where your hemline should touch, or what colors make you look 'short.' Breaking these rules has always worked to my advantage ... more so than keeping to them."

With the fast-paced life of a fashion model, and now as a television actress, if there's one thing Geena has perfected, it's the way to look absolutely terrific in the least amount of time. And although she admits her makeup routine is a little out of the ordinary, just one look at her stunning face should tell you it definitely works!

"When it comes to makeup," she say, "the most important thing I've learned is to try and match your foundation as close to your skin color as possible. This is the basis of your whole look and finding the right shade can save you a lot of time and hassle.

"For example," she continues, "I have a yellow cast to my skin. Many makeup artists have advised I use a pink-toned foundation to compensate. But I've found if I do the blend at my neck and chin never looks right, plus it alters the rest of my facial makeup which then takes longer to apply. If you blend too hard, the yellow cast comes through and if you don't do it evenly you end up with biotchy skin tone. So start with a foundation matched as close to your complexion as possible."

Once you have chosen the correct base, Geena suggests this quick application method for a look that stays model-perfect all day!

"First I wash my face with Cuticura soap

(which I find works the best on combination skin), and rinse thoroughly. While my face is still wet, I quickly apply my moisturizer. Before the moisturizer has a chance to sink in, I apply the foundation. The fact that my face is still damp and moist makes it go on smooth and fast.

"Then, before the foundation has a chance to dry," she reports, "I put on translucent powder with a cosmetic sponge and not a brush. I press it into the oily areas of my face the hardest and use a lighter touch on the dry areas.

"The whole routine takes less than two minutes and the makeup is set for the whole day."

To continue her special Five Minute Makeup Magic, Geena adds a touch of pale pink blush high up on her cheekbones.

"I don't like the idea of contouring," she says, "and I use blush to highlight rather than emphasize with shadows."

Next come the eyes, which Geena spends the least amount of time on!

"I use a soft black pencil as the basis for my eye makeup and it almost acts like a sort of glue holding the look together. First I outline my entire eye with the black, then I smudge it all over my lid and close to my lash line underneath the eye.

"Over that," she says, "I add a dark blue or forest green powder shawdow, and blend. The black pencil gives the shadows a rich smokey tone and also helps to act as a base that keeps the shadow all day. Then I just add a touch of mascara, and I'm done!"

Last but not least comes a quick application of lipstick, and in choosing her shades, Geena once again breaks the rules!

"For dark hair and a large mouth," says Geena, "the general rule is dark lipstick. But I've found that unless I'm taking a photograph or going out at night wearing something really dramatic, the light/frosted, pastel shades look best on me.

"I don't tan, so my skin is pale. The lighter shades give a more delicate, soft look and you don't have to waste time with a lip liner or gloss."

Surgery for nearsighted gets results

How effective and how safe is radial keratotomy, a controversial eye operation developed in the Soviet Union in the early 1970s to correct myopia (nearsightedness)?

According to a current Family Circle magazine article about a severely myopic (worse than 20/400) woman who now has 20/20 vision as a result of the operation, many opthalmologists report good results. For example, Dr. Frederic B. Kremer, an eye surgeon who started performing radial keratotomy in 1980, reports in the magazine that patients in the Soviet Union who had the surgery nine years ago have experienced no complications. Among his own patients he has found no problems after following them 2-1/2 years.

Of Dr. Kremer's first 109 consecutive patients whose nearsightedness ranged from mild (20/70) to severe (20/400), 93 percent could see at 20/40 or better without corrective lenses, says the article. Seventy-four percent of those who had myopia of 20/400 or worse achieved 20/40 or better one year later.

"Although some patients haven't attained full correction, everyone's vision has improved," Dr. Kremer says in Family Circle.

Although radial keratotomy has a good track record so far, Dr. Mark B. Abelson, a corneal surgeon who teaches at Harvard Medical School, cautions in the magazine article that the procedure is so new "that we don't know what the long term results will be. What percent of the patients will develop cataracts, glaucoma and other complications?" No one knows yet, and says Dr. Abelson, "People considering surgery have to be ready to accept the risk."

In the last few years, according to the magazine, 50,000 people have taken the risk.

DEAR ABBY

Husband sits out wife's reunion

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last July, my wife and I went to a small town in Minnesota to attend her 30th high school reunion. This was the first class reunion I had ever attended, and it will be my last.

On our arrival we were met by a lady with a big smile who took my $30 for the dinner and said, "Thank you." That was the only time anybody other than my wife spoke to me. I tried on four separate occasions to talk to people, but they turned their backs on me.

I'm an average-looking man, quiet by nature, but I don't have leprosy. I finally felt I had had enough of these rude people, so I went out and sat in the lobby. I didn't feel like eating, so I found my wife and told her I'd be waiting for her in the lobby when the banquet was over.

My wife is still mad at me for skipping the dinner, but, Abby, those people really hurt my feelings. Please comment. – NO MORE REUNIONS

DEAR NO MORE: Since you are quiet by nature, your wife should have made an effort to introduce you around.

I know it's not easy to have a good time with a bunch of strangers, but you could have been a good sport and sat with your wife at the banquet. Your conspicuous absence at the table probably embarrassed her. (To quote myself: "When you pick a lemon, make lemonade.")

Some general advice: Never drag a reluctant spouse to a class reunion.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the man who spent $2,500 for a cat's funeral, then another $1,200 to have the cat dug up and moved across the country:

You should have given him your standard answer: "Get professional help!" Anybody who would throw away that much money on a dead cat needs to have his head examined.

If you print this, I will send a check for $10 to the American Red Cross Disaster Committee in your name, Abby. It puts its money to good use. – ARTHUR IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR ARTHUR: You just made a deal. But let me add that the cost of burying a pet is nowhere near what that cat lover spent.

Peggy Morris, the manager of Pet Haven Cemetery in Gardena, Calif., wrote to say that the basic cost for a complete burial service with a satin-lined casket is $240 -- and even the fanciest special-order casket would not bring the total to $500.

Ms. Morris wrote: "We have a saying here at Pet Haven: You bury people because you HAVE to; you bury pets because you WANT to."

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your 10 tips on how to be a good wife, followed by 10 tips on how to be a good husband.

How about inviting your young readers to submit their 10 tips on how to be a good son or daughter?

That would not only make interesting reading, but it would also tell us something about the younger generation. – OLD-TIMER

DEAR OLD-TIMER: A great idea! Children?

DEAR ABBY: The photographer in Fort Myers, Fla., wanted to know why lovers always close their eyes while kissing. Obviously the purpose is to shut out other distractions so that the ecstasy of the moment may be full and complete.

I, too, am a professional photographer, but my problem is not whether couples close their eyes, but how to get them to SHUT THEIR MOUTHS! In recent years, it seems that more and more bridal couples try to "swallow" each other while kissing. This is in extremely poor taste (pun intended), especially in view of hundreds of guests.

Please print this, but don't use my name, as I'm still in business. – BEHIND THE CAMERA

Feminist says women's health superior to men's

Hearst Feature Service

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Why can't a woman be more like a man? Henry Higgins – the male chauvinists' chauvinist – asked that question in "My Fair Lady," the famed musical adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

Now comes the answer: She wouldn't want to be — if she cared the slightest about her health.

Women are stronger, hardier and biologically better than men, said feminist researcher Bonnie Strickland, a University of Massachusetts psychologist. Should there be any doubt, Strickland told the American Psychological Association consider the following numbers, assembled in an exhaustive review of literature on women's health issues:

—For each female fetus, two to three male fetuses are conceived. Yet only 106 boys are born for every 100 girls.

—By age 18, women are neck and neck with men, where demographics are concerned. By 87, women outnumber men two to one. And by their centennial year, women are five times more prevalent than men.

—Women today live eight years longer than men, on the average, up from a two-year advantage at the turn of the century.

—Men are twice as likely to commit suicide, and three to four times more likely to die n accidents.

Guerrilla admits assassinating adviser

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A leftist guerrilla arrested by Treasury Police says he murdered Lt. Cmdr. Albert A. Schaufelberger III, who in May became the first U.S. serviceman killed in El Salvador since military advisers arrived there two years ago.

"This was my first assassination," the man identified as Daniel Alvarado Rivera, 23, told reporters Thursday.

Alvarado Rivera said he was a first-year engineering student at the Technological Institute at Santa Tecla, about seven miles southwest of the capital and about a year ago joined the Popular Liberation Forces (FPL), the largest and most radical leftist group trying to overthrow the U.S.-backed rightist government.

"I am responsible for the crimes they accuse me of," Alvarado Rivera said. "It was I who executed the North American military adviser, shooting him in the head with a .22-caliber magnum pistol."

Schaufelberger, 33, was killed May 25 while waiting in his car for a woman friend at the Central American University campus in San Salvador. Officials said he was shot in the head by three .22-caliber magnum hollow-point, explosive bullets fired at close range.

A Treasury Police spokesman who asked not to be identified for security reasons said Alvarado Rivera will be charged in a military court with two counts of political murder and associated crimes. Military courts handle crimes related to the country's civil war.

Last week the Constituent Assembly eliminated the death penalty except under military rule in time of war against a foreign nation and it cannot be applied in the ongoing civil war. The maximum penalty Alvarado Rivera faces was not clear since he faces charges in a military court.

"In some way, I believe that the message that the organization I belong to wanted to reach the American people, has reached the American people," Alvarado Rivera said. "The objectives of his death were clearly established by the FPL communique issued at the time."

Mexican 'war footing' urged

Hearst Feature Service

MEXICO CITY — In a sobering, nearly three and a half hour speech, President Migual de la Madrid today urged his countrymen to keep debt-ridden uMexico on a "war footing" to overcome the country's deep social and economic crises.

"The challenge (of the crises) is enormous and analagous to times of war," de la Madrid said during his first state-of-the-nation address before the opening session of the Mexican Congress. De la Madrid took office exactly nine months ago at the height of the country's $85 billion foreign debt crisis.

Closings concern shopkeepers

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Shopkeepers in this Mexican border city appeared more concerned with the government's closure of bars and liquor stores than they were with the first state of the union address by President Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado.

Shops along Avenida Juarez that cater to imbibing uU.S. tourists and late-night revelers were ordered to close their bars and cease liquor sales from midnight until 3 p.m. (MDT) Thursday for the Sept. 1 government holiday, which was highlighted by De la Madrid's speech.

Pinochet won't speed plans

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet says he won't bow to protestors' pressure uto speed up an end to military rule and called recent widespread demonstrations "a crime."

u The 67-year-old army general told a group of foreign correspondents Thursday he had no plans to allow presidential elections before 1989, the end of an eight-year term fixed by a voter-approved u1981 constitution.

Greek translation at issue

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A dispute over the correct Greek translation of a vital word in the new U.S.-Greek military bases agreement is holding up signature of the accord, Greek diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The word is "terminable" and refers to what might happen when the five-year accord expires at the end of 1988, said the sources, who spoke on condition they would not be identified.

"The agreement goes into effect by December 31, 1983, and it ends on December 31, 1988," Socialist Premier Andreas Papandreou told Cabinet ministers and reporters after the negotiations were concluded in July.

"It has a termination date, a timetable for removing the bases. That was the sovereign aim of our negotiations," Papandreou said.

Salvadoran support favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Jimmy uCarter, who recently accused the Reagan administration of callous indifference to human rights abuses in El Salvador, now says he believes that country deserves American support — provided certain conditions are met.

Sounding like an elder statesman who shuns partisanship on sensitive foreign policy issues, Carter on Thursday suggested he has no quarrel with the broad outlines of the administration's approach to Central America.

His remarks were in sharp contrast to those he made six weeks ago when he accused the "bloodthirsty" Salvadoran government of killing 30,000 to 35,000 of its own people and said the Reagan administration was ignoring political repression there.

Aquinos reject hearings

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The family of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino today rejected an invitation to participate in public hearings by a commission created by President Ferdinand E. Marcos to investigate the killing.

Earlier in the day, the civilian National Bureau of Investigation said it had removed the mother and sister of the accused assassin from military detention and placed them in protective custody at the commission's request.

The five-member panel headed by Supreme Court Chief Justice Enrique Fernando was to have begun public hearings Monday but its secretary, Juanito Ranjo, said today they may not begin until later next week.

He said the commission, which has been assailed by Marcos' critics as lacking impartiality, still has to determine which witnesses are to be called. Opposition leaders have accused the government of having a hand in the death of Marcos' arch political rivial, but Marcos denies it.

The commission wanted Aquino's family to take part in the investigation by naming a lawyer who would cross-examine witnesses. Fernando said the commission would carry out its task with or without Aquino family involvement.

"We are not sending any representative, lawyer or anything to the hearings," Aquino's son, Benigno III, told The Associated Press. "We consider the commission the same thing as the military tribunal" that sentenced Aquino to death in 1977 on murder and subversion charges.
