Hoover Camp Hotly Denies That Candidate Uses Liquor

BRUCE CHARGE DISPUTED BY HOOVER'S AIDE

Nominee Has Not Touched Drink Since Going Into Office, Claim

SMITH TO MONTANA

Governor Will Challenge 'Progress' Statement By Opponent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—For the first time in the campaign, official cognizance of charges leveled at Herbert Hoover was taken today at personal headquarters of the Republican presidential candidate.

Hoover himself maintained silence but his secretary, George Akerson, denied the allegation by Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, made in a speech last night, that the nominee showed hypocrisy on the prohibition question because he had been known to drink intoxicating liquors.

QUITS HOOVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—U. S. Senator John J. Blaine, Wisconsin, Republican, in a statement issued at his home, Boscobel, Wis., and made public by Democratic headquarters here, announced that he will not support nor vote for Herbert Hoover.

Hoover 'Teetotaler'

"As a matter of fact," Akerson said, "Mr. Hoover has not taken a single drink of intoxicating liquor since he became a constitutional executive officer of the United States and has never had a drop of liquor served at his home."

Bruce quoted as his authority, Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, who in a statement at his home added his denial to that of Akerson. Darrow declared that he had never made the statement attributed to him by Bruce that he had taken several drinks with Hoover.

Akerson said Hoover had never met Darrow in his life and that "consequently he could hardly have taken a drink with him."

The nominee spent his Sabbath quietly as is his custom.

Builders' Hammers Set to Work in Florida as Death Count Passes 1000

Fatalities Estimated at 1,000 to 2,200 With Searchers Ever Finding More Corpses

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 23. (AP)—Officials in charge of Florida hurricane relief work said today that the death list, estimated at 1,000 to 2,200 probably never would be accurately made. It was explained conditions in the devastated area now are such as to make a definite check impossible.

Palm Beach county has turned energy to the future with plans for rapid rehabilitation.

Rescue crews still worked over debris and floods around Lake Okeechobee searching for bodies of victims of the appalling tragedy of one week ago.

Bodies now being found are in such condition, they said, that many are being cremated, while others were being buried near where they are found.

200 Bodies Found

Disclosure of the tragic chapter of Pelican City yesterday, when 200 bodies were found beneath debris strewn along the shore line of the bay opposite the village itself, led rescue workers to express fear that the entire population had died in the storm and flood. Normally a village of 350 population, the settlement was said to have been increased recently with an influx of laborers to work in nearby sugar cane fields.

In placing the death list at "more than 1,000" Howard Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach county chapter of the Red Cross added that he could "lay his hands" on that many, adding that since cremation or burial of bodies in the stricken area had become necessary it would be impossible to determine the total loss of life.

Rebuilding Starts

Reconstruction already has begun here and at Palm Beach, where the West Indian hurricane, roaring in off the Atlantic, after sweeping islands from Porto Rico to the Bahamas, ripped off roofs, smashed plate glass and otherwise played havoc.

The ring of the hammer and screech of the saw continued today, as carpenters labored to restore the city to its normal condition. Work has progressed so rapidly that several business places can reopen tomorrow and many have been able to return to their homes made habitable again.

Plans for rehabilitation of the lake section and along the east coast are being formulated by relief workers, who said as yet they were incomplete, but that the farmers needs would receive first attention.

NEW CHURCH DEDICATED AT SABBATH RITES

First Methodists Open Great Building in Service Here

AUDITORIUM PACKED

Christ's Church Only Spiritual, Says Local Pastor

By FITZHUGH CRAIN
The Record News Staff

Methodists of Wichita Falls saw the fulfillment of their dreams Sunday morning when the magnificent First Methodist church was opened for services with an impressive ceremony. The auditorium of the building was taxed to its capacity. Every available chair was wedged here and there and many stood during the service, while more than 500 persons were turned away.

While hundreds of churchmen inspected the new edifice last week, it was an awed, quiet crowd that packed the auditorium at the opening service. The usual bustle that accompanies a rapidly filling room was conspicuously absent and eyes of about 1800 persons gazed in wonderment about the ornate temple of Methodism.

Tone of Beauty

The sheer beauty of the church and the luxurious appointments of its auditorium swept a hush over the worshipers as profound as that attending the most solemn occasion imaginable. Some gasped as they caught their first vision of the auditorium's loveliness. The eyes of others to whom the completion of the church has been a sacrifice, were dewy, although their hearts were quickened with well deserved pride at the accomplishment.

Every modern detail in church construction is embodied both in the decoration and equipment of the auditorium. It is gorgeous without the slightest tendency to the bizarre and the delicately blending colors in its decoration scheme enchancingly express its quiet simplicity. One is struck by the dignity of a chapel whose decoration scheme reaches its climax in the church's only memorial window at the rear of the auditorium. The window was placed by Jerome Stone in memory of his mother, Mrs. J. W. Stone, one of the pioneer members of the congregation.

The ceremonies which marked the opening of the church were as impressive as the surroundings. The elaborate musical program fitted perfectly into the picture and service was closed with a powerful sermon by Dr. S. Stephen McKenney, pastor of the church.

Organ Program

Playing as a prelude Mozart's "Dona Nobis," Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., opened the service and the crowd heard for the first time the $35,000 pipe organ said to be the largest in the state. But the most beautiful of Mrs. Akin's numbers was "Largo" from Handel's "Xerxes," played as an offertory. In it the organist introduced the echo organ and chimes which led up to the sweeping melody that closed the selection.

The almost perfect acoustics of the auditorium were shown to good advantage several times but particularly during the rendition of a contralto solo by Mrs. Paul Rutledge, singing "From Day to Day," (Hamblen). The lowest pianissimo tones floated to the remotest corners of the huge auditorium.

A large chorus choir directed by Joel H. MacGregor sang "Gloria in Excelsis" from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," another contribution to the beauty of the service.

Before delivering his sermon Dr. McKenney introduced N. H. Martin, chairman of the church's board of stewards. Mr. Martin extended thanks for the cooperation of the congregation in making possible the new church and said contributions had come from many members of other churches as well as persons living outside the city.

Dr. McKenney also introduced Rev. Sam Riddle, first pastor of the First Methodist church, Rev. L. B. Smith, another former pastor and Dr. H. M. Whalen, vice president of Southern Methodist university at Dallas. Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of the university, who was unable to attend the church opening, sent his regrets through Dr. McKenney. The pastor announced he had received congratulatory messages from all former pastors of the church here as well as from other churchmen living in various sections of the south.

"The Ecclesia," was the subject of Dr. McKenney's sermon, preaching on the following text from Mathew 16:15-18:

"He saith unto them, 'But whom say ye that I am?' And Simon Peter answered and said, 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.' and Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say unto thee' that thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it!'"

"It is self evident," Dr. McKenney said, "that our Lord did not address these words to Peter as a tribute to the individual but to the character.

Snake Collector Throws New Light On Investigation of 'Murder Farm'

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Sept. 23. (AP)—While Gordon Stuart Northcott, self-styled motion picture actor, protested in his cell at Vancouver, B. C., that he was innocent of the charges of killing kidnaped boys on a "murder farm" near here, authorities continued today to add circumstantial evidence through which they hope to send the fugitive to the gallows.

A snake collector, L. C. Howe, added the latest evidence against Northcott, who fled to Canada after abandoning the farm which he says was used as a chicken ranch.

Search of a grave reported by the snake collector in a remote desert canyon on the edge of the Coachella valley resulted in the finding of the remains of a fire, a partly burned traveling bag, charred pages of a Bible, and burned pages of a newspaper.

Partly burned pieces of clothing resembling knit underwear were found and several pieces of a letter written in a scrawl were discovered. All the articles were brought to Riverside for examination by experts.

Legal machinery continued in motion at Sacramento where Governor C. C. Young has requested Secretary of State Kellogg to make representations to the Canadian authorities that warrants and extradition papers were en route to Vancouver for Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, jointly accused with her son of murder.

FIREMEN ROUT CROWDS WITH WATER SHOWER

Honolulu Citizens Gather At Jail to Avenge Banker's Boy

KILLER CONFESSES

Brutal Crime Modeled By Hickman's Plan At Los Angeles

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 23. (AP)—Firemen were called out to shower streams of cold water on crowds around the Honolulu jail where Yutaka Fukunaga, 19, kidnaper and slayer of 10-year-old Gill Jamieson, son of a Honolulu banker, was incarcerated after the Japanese was arrested last night and confessed.

The killer, traced to his room through a purchase he had made with one of the $4,000 in ransom bills paid to him by the boy's father, was undisturbed by the presence of the threatening crowd. He speaks faultless English and was graduated at the head of his class in high school here.

The crowd was dispersed by the play of water after local authorities had been unsuccessful in speeches outside the jail urging that the band disperse and let the orderly process of law prevail in the handling of the youthful oriental.

The confessed slayer of the banker's son modeled his crime after that of William E. Hickman, killer of Marion Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles banker. Like Hickman, the Japanese went to the school where the boy attended, obtained his release from class through a ruse and then carried him away to his death.

After a struggle in which the 10-year-old banker's son almost overpowered the Japanese, the kidnaper struck the youth with a blunt instrument, knocked him unconscious and then strangled him. The child's body, covered with a cross made of sticks tied with strings was found Thursday on the banks of a canal near the fashionable Royal Hawaiian hotel. The killer also confessed that he killed the boy because "kidnaping never works unless you do."

The Japanese reutrned to his room after the killing and wrote the ransom note to the boy's father, Frederick Jamieson, vice president of the Hawaiian Trust company. The father met the kidnaper and paid him $4,000 for the return of the boy. In his anxiety for the child's welfare the parent did not permit police detectives to accompany him when he met the killer.

Colquitt Comes to Hoover's Defense In Anti-Negro Segregation Accusal

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Former Gov. O. B. Colquitt in a statement here tonight, denied charges said to have been made by Congressman Sam Rayburn at Fort Worth last night, that Herbert Hoover had issued an order against segregation of whites and negroes in the department of commerce.

"... any segregation ever made (in the department) was by Secretary Hoover, which is the reverse to what Mr. Hoover is charged with doing," he said.

Colquitt charged Alfred E. Smith with responsibility for New York statutes that "allow mixing of whites and blacks," and said New York state had no laws preventing intermarriage between the races. He also charged the state's laws require that no public places be closed against negroes.

"If the leaders of the Tammanyize Democrats in Texas desire to bring for the racial question," the statement concluded, "we will drown them with the stuff that they are attempting to use to create hatred and prejudice of the white citizenship of Texas and the south."

West Texans Inspect Weeks Poultry Colony and Other California Works

STAMFORD, Texas, Sept. 23.—The dairy-poultry-irrigation party of 22 people who left Abilene Sept. 1 on the agricultural motorcade sponsored by the West Texas Chambe rof Commerce arrived home on Monday, Sept. 17, after 17 days of traveling and inspecting poultry, dairy, and truck farms.

They report the trip as offering great opportunities for sight seeing as well as having a high educational values for farmers.

One of the first places of interest visited by the group was the Charles Weeks one-acre colony of about 700 poultry raisers who are making profitable returns on one acre each. The modern methods of construction of poultry houses and the trap nest system were revelations to the party and four of its members, P. E. Payne of Stephenville, C. L. Colvin of Eastland, J. O. Jackson and C. O. Davis of Rule stated their intention of constructing new houses along the lines of those used in California immediately upon their return home.

Upon seeing the thousands of fruit farmers and vineyards, the products of which could be purchased so inexpensively, the impulse of the members of the party was to send some home, but the freight and express rates would have made the total more than the cost of native fruit.

This brought to mind the valuable opportunity of the Texas farmer to produce home grown fruit for the people of his own state.

Other Points Visited

Other points of educational interest were Santa Ana, Fontanna, Adohr dairy farm, the great Petaluma Poultry colony, the Burbank botanical gardens and the orchards at Santa Rosa. At all of these places the farmers got ideas that will make profits on their own farms more certain.

The Mojave desert, just out from Phoenix, Ariz., was a unique feature of the trip as it was crossed at night because of the intense heat in the day time.

The members of the party enjoyed the ride to Catalina Island where the submarine life was witnessed through the glass bottomed boats. Vines of kelp, growing from the bottom of the ocean up to the surface of the water, each leaf equipped with an individual float, affording shelter for myriads of fish, formed a sight that not many of the party had seen before. The endurance of the Indians who dived off boats and stayed under water for as long as two minutes, chewing gum, and disturbing the fish was admired by the entire party.

Ride to Petaluma

The itinerary of the trip included such high points of interest as a ride up the coast to San Francisco and Petaluma, and a drive of several hours past the Golden Gate and Military Port to Seal Rock, thence to the great aquarium at Golden Gate Park, where every known species of fish in the world is kept in glass pools.

After viewing the leopard shark, which is said to grow to a length of 15 feet and to be able to make a speed of 300 miles an hour in the water, and after being barked at by the water dogs the party continued on their way down the San Joaquin Valley where the packing plants were being rushed to care for the grapes and raisins raised in the vicinity.

The farmers got a taste of home when they were made to realize that the California farmers were complaining of the low price of grapes caused by the bumper crops, as they do in Texas when too much cotton is raised.

On the way home the party was greeted at Bakersfield by A. F. Garner, a former Texan. With Mr. Deckenson, manager of the Bakersfield regional fair, the party was conducted through the fair grounds where all products of the southern part of the state were exhibited. With the exception of cotton grown on irigated land the whole display was of fruits and vegetables. This is considered one of the finest exhibits of its kind ever shown.

The work of the boys' and girls' clubs in the several counties incorporated in this district fair was played up in livestock, poultry and home economics.

The personnel of the trip included four chamber of commerce secretaries. These were Frank M. Locke of Stamford, J. W. Green of Colorado, C. H. Colvin from Eastland and M. G. Evans of Snyder.

Two poultrymen in the persons of P. E. Payne of Stephenville and C. O. Davis of Rule, who raise English White Leghorns, were in the group.

Pepper King Along

J. S. Nealy, the pepper king of Texas, who has several acres in bell and hot peppers on his farm in Winters was the only farmer-poultry-truck man in the crowd while J. O. Jackson, of Rule, Roy Overton, of Stamford, and Joe Merrit of Snyder were three farmer-poultrymen.

J. B. Scott, Henry Linley, Joe Golden, S. J. Lungsford and Giles Garner, the man who has the reputation of raising more bushels of wheat per acre than any other man in the United States, his average being 86 bushels when 20 was average, all hailed from Snyder and classified themselves as stock farmers.

George H. Moore of Lubbock was the only hardware store man in the crowd. Mrs. George H. Moore was another member interested in poultry raising.

W. R. Perrin of Haskell was classified as a farmer, W. M. Free of the Haskell Free Press as a newspapermen, and Garland of Throckmorton as a banker.

B. M. Whiteker, agricultural manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, B. M. Whiteker jr., and W. B. Johnson, driver, completed the personnel.

The trip was made in a bus chartered by the West Texas coaches at a low price to the farmers and other tourists. It was an experimental trip and because of its success will be followed by others like it in the future.

SANTONE READY FOR VETERANS

Even Weather Average Is Favorable

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 23. San Antonio is ready for the coming of 100,000 veterans of the world war and their wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters for the tenth national convention of the American Legion, Oct. 12.

Even the weather man is all lined up and ready to serve the finest brand of convention weather the organization has ever had. Inquires have come to the bureau from all over the country and an investigation of records at the local weather bureau office going back 50 years show:

Delightful fall weather holds for the period from Oct. 6 to Oct. 13. Average temperature runs at 62 degrees, with the average high at 85. There is only the slightest chance for a rain, and that a mere sprinkle. Sunshine prevails during that week of October between 67 and 87 per cent of the time.

Program Ready

Veterans attending the convention, in addition to the pleasant weather and the reunion with their war comrades on the spot where thousands of them trained, will find the greatest entertainment program ever planned for a Legion gathering, according to Philip B. Stapp, general convention director.

A world's championship rodeo, a decision prize fight with leading championship contenders, spectacular battle exercises by the Second Division, a Folies Bergeres show with dancing beauties of six nations, dancing every night on Alamo Plaza, an air circus with 1,000 planes participating, the great parade of 60,000 men and women, dinners and social functions beyond number are on the program at San Antonio.

Bull fights and Spanish fiestas on the Mexican border are an added attraction. Side trips will be run to Laredo and Nuevo Laredo, Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras and also to King ranch, the Lower Valley of the Rio Grande, Corpus Christi and the Gulf coast and Brownsville and Matamoros. A 12-day tour will take a large party to Mexico City.

Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, of Great Britain; Major Georges Scapini, of France; General John J. Pershing, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Judge K. M. Landis, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, are among the distinguished visitors who will be present at San Antonio.

Paducah Cotton Crop Opens—Pickers Needed

Special to The Record News.

PADUCAH, Texas, Sept. 23.—The hot dry weather has hastened the opening of cotton in this section very materially. The farmers had not expected to need pickers before about Oct. 1, but are needing them badly now. At least 1000 pickers could be used here next week.

The crop has been cut somewhat short from what it promised three weeks ago, but still there will be some satisfactory yields.

An Accurate, Impartial and Complete News Report on the Presidential Campaign

THE Associated Press, of which this paper is a member, through a corps of its best political reporters, is telling the graphic day by day story of the presidential race. The Associated Press supports no candidates, advocates no issues, but reports the facts. Read the instructions Kent Cooper, General Manager, repeated to the staff at the beginning of the campaign.

The Associated Press.

GENERAL OFFICES
NEW YORK, N.Y.

August 1, 1928.

To The Staff:

We are on the eve of what promises to be a memorable political campaign. Every Associated Press man will share in the responsibility it imposes.

Keep in mind the necessity that our report must be absolutely non-partisan. Avoid predictions, speculation and editorial opinion. Insofar as we are responsible for what is said, there must be nothing that may be construed for or against any political faction. Do not use stories of election betting or straw votes. In describing attendance at political meetings, do not estimate capacity in numbers or in any manner open to dispute.

But we want all the news. Do not withhold a story because it is partisan, if it may be attributed to a responsible source. For example, statements from political headquarters are desired if they contain news and are credited to party spokesmen. These statements must speak for themselves, and their leads should be brief, without inference, deduction or other editorial comment. All anonymous expressions of opinion must be avoided. Write only what can be substantiated.

During the campaign, as at all other times, The Associated Press report must be fair, truthful and impartial.

Kent Cooper
General Manager.

NOT for years has there been such intense interest in a presidential campaign. Issues have aroused keen debate, the personalities of the candidates have become important factors and millions of women are actively engaged in the race. As never before there is need for true, accurate and impartial reporting in giving voters complete information for their guidance at the polls. Recognizing this fact, The Associated Press has the largest and best staff ever assigned to presidential candidates now with Smith, Hoover, Robinson and Curtis.

Byron Price, for 15 years a correspondent and chief of the Washington staff, has charge of the political report. He has traveled with presidents and candidates for the presidency, covered many of the greatest events in the political history of this country and was in charge of the staff assigned to both national conventions. Price and D. Field Brittle, now are traveling throughout the country and their stories reflect the political situation in each state they visit.

Covering the activities of Herbert Hoover are James L. West, W. B. Ragsdale and Mary Bainbridge Hayden. Paul F. Haupert, D. Harold Oliver and Martha Dalrymple are with Alfred E. Smith. Francis M. Stephenson is traveling with Senator Charles Curtis and Walter Chamblin is with Senator Joseph T. Robinson. Potentially, there are as many women voters in America as men and the developments and phases of the campaign of particular interest to women are being covered by Miss Hayden and Miss Dalrymple. This marks the first time such regular assignments have been given women reporters.

These special writers are assisted by the staff throughout the country. With a rigid regard for accuracy and impartiality, their stories are written understandingly and interestingly, giving complete, colorful word pictures of what is happening. Follow the campaign each day through this newspaper. If you are not a regular subscriber, call or write the circulation department immediately to enter your subscription.

Widows Conceded Advantage in Picking Husbands Over Maidens

The Qualities That No One Ever Looks For in a Husband Are the Ones that Really Matter, and So the Widow Stands a Better Chance of Making a Happy Marriage Than the Young Girl

A woman said to me the other day: "The trouble with a girl when she goes to pick out a husband is that she is a rank amateur who knows nothing of men, whereas she needs to be a connoisseur in order to make a wise selection. She is like one who knows nothing of art who buys pictures or a greenhorn who speculates in stocks. She has no idea of quality. She is no judge of values. She doesn't even know what she wants. So she grabs the first thing that looks good to her, and believes any sort of glittering promise.

"There is where widows have an advantage over young girls. They have had experience, and have some guide to go by in choosing a husband, and that is why a woman's second marriage is nearly always happier than her first.

"Now I have been married ten years and my marriage has been rather unusually successful, but I attribute my getting the husband I did to sheer luck, or else to the fact that my guardian angel was working overtime. Certainly it was not due to my own perspicacity, for I hadn't the remotest conception of what attributes made a good man a good husband, or what earmarks I should look for.

"But, if I had it all to do over again, in the light of my experience I should cast into the discard most of the bag of tricks that I found so alluring in courtship, and I should measure my man up against a very different set of standards from those I used when I elected him to be my life mate.

"To begin with, I wouldn't be so anxious to marry a fairy prince as I would be to get a good provider, and by that I don't mean just a meal ticket and a charge account, though it certainly is a comfort to any woman to have a husband who brings home the bacon.

"What I mean is that I wouldn't bother about trying to find a man who was a combination of a plaster saint, a movie hero and a go-getter, who would never have any faults and weaknesses, and who would always remain a romantic lover and lay diamond tiaras and limousines at my feet. What's the matter with most peevish wives is that they thought they were marrying this sort of fairy prince and they cannot get over their disappointment at having acquired just the common or garden variety of the male species.

"Oh, I have been through all of the disillusion of finding out that my John wasn't a great, noble hero, thinking great, surging thoughts, but that he was a naughty little boy who could get into tempers over trifles, and swear blue streaks when he was angry, and who needed to be spanked and made to behave every now and then, and I am wise enough to know now that a husband's weaknesses are a wife's salvation because they are a rod she can always hold over him. So if I were picking out a husband now I would come nearer to choosing him for his shortcomings than I would for his virtues, because that would always enable me to beat him to it in case of domestic recrimination.

"And if I were selecting a husband, after having tried matrimony for ten years, as I said, I shouldn't pay as much attention to the man's love-making as I should to his general line of conversation, because I would reflect that after marriage I would be likely to hear very little soft talk, anyway. Moreover, I could never stand to listen to a man babbling for forty or fifty years about my eyes being like violets, or my hair like a raven's wing, while I could listen forever to the talk of a man who had real ideas about politics and books and art and music and the things in which an intelligent woman is interested.

"The curse of domestic life is boredom. Husbands and wives get on each other's nerves because they are dull and stupid and have nothing to say to each other. They quarrel and insult each other just to put a little pep into their dishwater talk about the children and the bills and the dog and the cat, and it is all because a boy and girl were so busy asking each other before marriage whether they loved each other or not, and whether they were sure they had never loved before, that they never noticed that the party of the other part hadn't an idea in his or her head, and was so dumb that he or she couldn't talk interestingly on any subject on earth.

"And if I were going to pick out another husband I shouldn't probe so deeply into the state of my sweetie's affections as I would into his views on various and sundry matters that are vital to a wife's well-being. I should take it for granted that he loved me, inasmuch as he had told me so and was undertaking my support for the remainder of my life as a guarantee of good faith.

"So I should let it go at that, but what I would want to know before I had tied up with him was how he stood on the allowance question, and whether he believed in going fifty-fifty with his wife, or was one of the men who hold that a wife should stay put and stoke the home fires while the husband roams around with flappers.

"And I shouldn't be so flattered to death as I once was when a man swore to me that he couldn't live without me. The point to which I should give him my earnest and prayerful attention would be whether I could live with him or not. And to this end I should concentrate whatever sleuthlike abilities I possessed into trying to find out what sort of a disposition he had.

"Whether he was amiable and kindly and sympathetic; whether he was the sort of a man who would be a little ray of sunshine in the house, who would understand that doing housework and having babies and taking care of children is nerve-wearing and exhausting work that needs the glad hand and outside amusement to counteract it; whether he would be the sort of husband on whose love and tenderness a wife can throw herself in her hour of need, as she can upon the love and tenderness of God.

"Or whether he would be a petty tyrant and a grouch and a tightwad who made his home a place of terror and kept his wife in trembling fear of him; whether he would make his wife bless her wedding day or curse it. That is the important thing for a girl to find out before she marries a man.

"It isn't whether her dance step matches his. It doesn't matter whether his profile is classic, or whether his face is merely an assemblage of features. It is what she is going to see in his face that counts, and any girl can make a mighty shrewd guess at this if she will put her spectacles on on the safe side of the altar.

"Oh, believe me," concluded the woman, "if we married people had to pick out our husbands and wives over again, we would select them for very different reasons now. But the tragic thing about experience is that it comes too late to do you any good."

CHIC CHERI (Copyright, 1928, King Features Syn. Inc.) Latest Fashions

Cherie, our little lost orphan, is causing a lot of trouble. She said she was going to Sue's for a few days for peace and quiet, (how could she decide all of a sudden whether it was Andy or Eustace she wanted to marry?) but Sue hasn't seen her. And while the police are looking for Cherie, Emily finds nothing better to do than spot the front of her velvet frock with tears. At that it's printed with a sort of waterwave design. We'd like you to notice that it's a coat-dress and has a smart irregularity of line in its front bindings. Sue, to the left is being equally downcast, but not so reckless in a velvet printed with dots. Dina's dress is dotted velvet, too. The smart use of soft drapes may also be noted.

In the meantime it has occurred to Cherie that she really should write her family that she decided not to go to Sue's after all. She had had so much advice to the lovelorn that perfect solid solitude (at a particularly large hotel) seemed what she needed. This dress of hers has the fitted princess lines that will be especially smart this season with the ladies who can wear them and is enlivened with three flounces on the skirt. On the hanger is a dress with a multitude of drapes and ruffles—jabot ruffles on the bodice, draped ruffles on the skirt. Both frocks are made of printed velvet and both show the tendency of Fall styles to widen below a smoothly fitted hipline into frills and fripperies.

Army Bugler's Parentage Becomes Mystery With Story of Romance

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23. (US)—Out of the dim shadows of the past came romance and added mystery today into the strange tale of the parentage of Private Norman Devaney, bugler of battery B, stationed at Fort MacArthur.

And, linked with that romance of more than two decades ago, is the love affair of Devaney and pretty Cynthia Rusk of San Francisco—for they are to be married some day, the girl declares.

It was George Dushan of Nashville, Tenn., who revealed what he believes was the romance of the scion of a rich and prominent family, probably of Pittsburgh. The wealthy man's son married a cashier in his father's store, and Dushan believes they were Devaney's father and mother.

And it was Mrs. H. V. Spencer, stepmother of Devaney's sweetheart, who started New York police in search of a Thomas Poindexter whom she believes to be the soldier's father.

"Until lately," said Mrs. Spencer, "Norman believed that Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Devaney of San Pedro were his father and mother. Then he got a letter from his uncle in Tennessee. The Devaneys were always mysterious about Norman's birth, and when I read the letter from his uncle I decided to act. I wrote the facts to the New York police department and they are now hunting for Mr. Poindexter."

Today Norman, at Fort MacArthur, said:

"Of course I'd like to know who my father and mother are, but naturally the Devaneys have the love and affection a son gives his parents."

Dushan revealed the fact that, although Norman called him "uncle" the two are not related in any way.

Here is Dushan's story:

"I often wondered if I should tell Norman that the Devaneys whom he called father and mother were not his real parents. Four years ago I saw him in San Francisco driving a laundry wagon. I brooded over that, realizing he might have had a higher plane in life.

"Three months ago I wrote him the truth. Twenty years ago in New York I boarded with the Devaneys. They had a baby there about three months old. I was told they were keeping it for a Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter. I believe the father was the son of a well known Poindexter family, ostracized because of his marriage to a girl cashier in Pittsburgh where the baby was born.

"I moved to North Attelboro and later the Devaneys came there too. I boarded with them. They brought the baby, too. I asked about the parents and Devaney said they had not come to see the child in months and he could not leave it behind.

"The child learned to call me uncle and I became very fond of him. I left the east in 1912. We corresponded regularly but I did not see him until four years ago."

Devaney insists that Norman is his natural son. The lad says:

"Of course I'd like to know who my real parents are, if what Uncle George says is true. But of course all the love and affection a son should have for his parents I have given the Devaneys whose name I bear."

'GRANDPA' GANG IS BROKEN UP

Counterfeiting Patriarchs in Police Toils

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (UP)—After weeks of war by the best minds in the department, the police think they have at last broken the back of the "grandfather gang," one of the oddest aggregations of criminals that ever wrinkled the brow of an honest desk sergeant.

Solomon Rosenthal, 81, is accused of being not only the "brains" of the "grandfather gang," which according to Inspector Sullivan of the Brooklyn police, consists of eight rascally patriarchs, the youngest 75 and the oldest 83, but he is charged with a definite overt act. The police charge Rosenthal with trying to sell for $10,000 a little machine that would make counterfeit money with a drop of chemical and a turn of a crank.

Rosenthal appeared in the lineup of prisoners at Brooklyn police headquarters, a strangely incongruous figure.

In the apartment of Samuel Danet, a well-to-do contractor of the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, detectives were moved to arrest Grandpa Rosenthal.

There on the table in Danet's apartment was the little money-making machine, the detectives said. Beside it was a bottle of chemical and five $50 counterfeit bills in a bag. And in Danet's pocket was $10,000 in genuine currency which he had not yet had time to hand over.

Danet's story, as related by the police, was that he was approached by Rosenthal several weeks ago with a suggestion that he buy one of the "little money makers." A genuine treasury note was treated with chemical and placed in the machine. A crank was turned. Before his bulging eyes, Danet said, Rosenthal changed a $5 bill into a $50 bill in a moment, and remarked casually that a few simple adjustments would persuade the machine to change $1 bills into $10s, $10s into $100s and $100s in to $1,000s.

The detectives arrived at Danet's home last night during the demonstration. They accused Rosenthal of being a fraud with a knowledge of sleight of hand and arrested him.

According to the police, the "grandfather gang" has been swindling gullible rich men all over the east and devoting the proceeds to a merry and not too respectable enjoyment of old age.

Clergy's Self Denial Is Strongly Attacked

CAMBRIDGE, England, Sept. 23 (UP)—Rev. Henry D. Major, principal of Ripon Hall, Oxford, tonight launched a vigorous attack on the celibacy of clergy, fasting and other clerical self denials as likely to induce "priggishness."

Rev. Major spoke at a session of the modern churchmen's conference.

"It is intolerable," he said, "that the church authorities should insist on the celibacy of the clergy. Undoubtedly there are circumstances when the clergy are more efficient if not married than if married, but there is danger in the renunciation."

The large audience cheered the speech enthusiastically.

"There are dangers," Rev. Major continued, "when men submit themselves to hardships and self denials as expiation for the sins of others."

The speaker referred to fasting as one of the self denials which should not be compulsory.

FOOT TROUBLES CAUSE DIVORCE

Orthopedic Surgeons Find Many Things Wrong

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (UP)—Blame yourself, not the wife for your fallen arches, flat feet or inflamed tibias, J. H. Selz advised husbands today quoting from the findings of orthopedic surgeons.

And tired feet of the "tired business man" often are responsible for the constant grouch that causes domestic dissension and divorce, he added, in an address to shoe manufacturers.

"This is literally a generation of tenderfeet," Selz said. "Ninety per cent of Americans have foot troubles and only about a third of them realize the nature of their trouble. Fallen arches were grounds for exemption during the war and soon they may be grounds for divorce.

"Ill-shod feet caused grouches, the start of many domestic fights. This is a warning not only to husbands but to wives as feminine grouches are caused in the same manner."

Foot troubles were practically unknown 40 years ago, the speaker explained, as in those days our feet did not pound hard pavements constantly and people did not change suddenly from low-heeled soft sport shoes to the stiff, business type.

"Physicians are learning to look at the feet almost as soon as at the tonsils," Selz said, "to discover causes for a general rundown condition. "Not only are there the common foot troubles broken arches, flat feet, enlarged joints, hammertoes, inflamed tibias, but rheumatism, spinal troubles and headaches, as well.

"Even that great American complaint of being tired after a day's work and nervous exhaustion, may be only the result of feet that are improperly shod, according to the orthopedic experts."

Foot troubles are becoming so general and alarming that orthopedic surgery, a medical science that is comparatively new, has grown rapidly in the last few years. Shoe manufacturers also have been forced to take bad feet into account by greating corrective shoes, he said.

Ills, from ingrowing dispositions to housemaid's knee, might be traced to the feet as the source of trouble, in the opinion of Selz.

Tennessee and Arkansas Democrats Think States Are Safe for Al Smith

By D. FIELD BRITTLE
Associated Press Staff

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 23. (AP)—The Democrats of the two states that look into each other here across their joint boundary, the Mississippi, are united in a common purpose in this presidential year—to stand as border bulwarks of the solid south and as militant champions of Alfred E. Smith. It is true that in both states the party has been turned on by some of its own elements, but basically it still is sound and potent.

Only once has one of these states, Tennessee, given its electoral vote to a Republican, and the other, Arkansas has an unbroken record of Democratic successes. Although Tennessee is defined politically as well as geographically as a border state, and Arkansas is at least geographically in that belt that separates north and south and therefore constitutes fair battle ground in every quadrennial campaign, Democratic stalwarts do not admit any doubt as to the outcome of the contest between Herbert Hoover and Governor Smith.

G. O. P. Confident

Conversely, there is no expression of doubt at Republican headquarters as to the November outcome, and so far as Tennessee is concerned followers of Hoover are not without some visible source of inspiration. They draw it from the fact that Harding carried the state in 1920, by a majority of 13,000, but Democrats declare that result was a "fluke" and not all the voice of Tennessee.

Neither camp bothers with figures at Arkansas headquarters but both actively are at work. Indicative of the Democrats' determination to give their leader, Senator Robinson, an overwhelming vote to be shared with Smith, is the fact that for the first time in years they have opened headquarters and are making a real campaign.

Both states serve adequately as cross sections of the presidential battlefield. Each has its quota of sentiment for and against Hoover and Smith, with the anti-Smith feeling being perhaps most vocal. In both of these dry and Protestant states the New York governor's wetness and religion are talking points, producing protests from bishops and tutors and prohibition organizations and not a few heated disputes between clergy and laity because of pulpit politics.

Whispering Done

Smith leaders charge that a whispering campaign is in full swing; that the anti-Smith forces "shout rum and whisper Rome," aided by a flood of anti-Smith literature that covers the state.

Republican headquarters for Tennessee picture prohibition and immigration as important factors of the contest. They disclaim any connection with the anti-Catholic movement and discount its value as a reason for the admitted capture of some Democratic support. Their theory that Hoover has won many Democrats because of his leadership in flood relief along the state's Mississippi shores is heatedly disputed by the Democrats, who say that what votes he might have counted upon have been lost to him.

Along with the other issues, some Tennessee Democrats are advancing water power and farm relief as issues and are making an appeal to the labor vote for Smith.

Papers for Smith

Most of the large newspapers of the state are supporting the governor, including the Nashville Tennesseean, Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Chattanooga Times, although the Chattanooga News, active for McAdoo in the fight of 1924, is not supporting Smith.

Torn by much controversy in the recent primary, the Democratic leaders of Tennessee are without exception supporting the state and national tickets, including the state's favorite son at the Houston convention, Representative Cordell Hull.

Memphis and its county, Shelby, are looked upon by the Democrats as towers of strength.

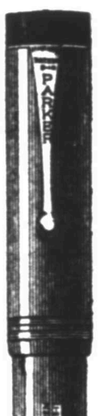

In the final analysis the Democrats count also upon what they describe as the impelling urge on election day to stay with the party of Andrew Jackson.

Hugo Stinnes on Bond In Bond Fraud Charge

BERLIN, Sept. 23. (UP)—Hugo Stinnes, son of the late industrialist, was free on bail tonight after providing bond of 1,000,000 marks. The heavy bail was demanded in view of the charges that Stinnes had obtained vast amounts through fraudulent manipulation of war bonds. He was arrested several weeks ago.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. .—Grantland Rice, the well known sports writer, was talking about the attitude of golf players under fire the other day. He pointed out that some get nervous in a tough spot while others go along nonchalantly. His prize story to me was about old John Ball of England who won the British Amateur championship something like nine times.

"He just loved his garden in his hotel near the Hoylake course," said Mr. Rice, "and, when it was time for him to play a match, they used to have trouble finishing him out from among his flowers. Reluctantly, he would leave and then hurry back. They tell of a thirty-six hole final when John Ball had a putt on the last green to win. He walked up to the ball apparently without looking at it, rapped it carelessly in the cup, and strolled right along, handing his putter to his caddy as he went heading back to his garden.

"Ball seldom kept track of where he stood with an opponent and apparently didn't care whether he was up or down. In one of his last matches with Abe Mitchell just before the latter turned pro, Ball lost three holes in succession to long putts. When Mitchell dropped a fifty footer on the twelfth green to put him three up and seven to play, he naturally figured the battle was over.

"'Nice putt, partner,' remarked Mr. Ball. 'Do you know how that makes us stand on this match?'

"This remark so upset Mitchell he never won another hole and lost the match."

This idea of playing golf for the sake of golf might help some of our American golfers who wager huge sums on matches.

Frank Gordon, the short story writer, was a guest at a dinner given by Captain Huston, once half owner of the New York Yankees, in the McAlpin hotel in New York when it was new. When Cap Huston gives a dinner, he gives ONE, so that the survivors went to the Turkish bath on the top floor at about four in the morning and enjoy the soothing influences of that harbor before turning in. Mr. Condon finally went to bed on the 23 story where he awoke to find he was temporarily out of funds.

He called up a friend with an office across the street who had also been a guest at the dinner and was familiar with developments, but had so far kept track of things that, unlike Mr. Condon, he knew the host had paid for the rooms. Mr. Condon asked his friend to come over to the hotel and bail him out to which the latter promptly replied he hoped he never got out. After pondering all day, Mr. Condon finally decided to sneak out as the only solution, for the longer he stayed the more it was costing him according to his calculations. About 5 in the afternoon, he walked down 23 flights of steps carefully avoiding all employes of the hotel and across the street to his friend's office. He was boiling mad and still madder when the friend informed him that all the precautions were unnecessary since the room had been prepaid.

Ford Drivers Change, Too

IT has been nearly a year since the new Ford models were unveiled.

And in that time, it seems to us, a new change, even more remarkable than the change in the flivver, has come about.

The drivers of Fords are not what they used to be!

Maybe we're wrong, but that's our observation. In the old days, wherever you drove—in city traffic, on a suburban boulevard or on a country road—there was always some flivver trying to get ahead of you. They crowded in, cut across your bows, overhauled you from behind, dodged in and out unexpectedly and made motoring a burden.

Now they don't. The new Fords are faster and more flexible than the old ones—but somehow the drivers don't take advantage of it. They drive more sedately, somehow, with more restraint and less verve.

We wish somebody would explain why this is so.

Sees Reduced Activity Ahead

COLONEL LEONARD P. AYRES, the famous economist of the Cleveland Trust company, sounds a note of caution in his September business bulletin.

Despite the present wave of high stock prices and the accompanying expectation of continued industrial profits, Colonel Ayres foresees a possible period of declining construction for the near future. This, while affecting primarily the building trades, would reduce the demand for structural steel and bring about reduced activity in many lines of industry.

Why does Colonel Ayres foresee this?

There has been, this summer, a sharp decline in the volume of new bonds issued by corporations. This means, he says, that much new construction and purchasing of equipment which ordinarily would have been under way this fall has been postponed.

Colonel Ayres blames the decline in bond volume on the high interest rates that have prevailed since spring. His comments make one wonder if the "bull market" of the past year has been altogether a wholesome influence.

Children of "Inferiors"

ONCE again a serious surveyor of the social scene has made the discovery that poor people have more babies than rich people.

Dr. Henry D. Chapin, writing in the Review of Reviews, points out that "everywhere the poorest and least efficient have the largest families."

The worthy doctor adds that it is quality and not quantity that is desired in the human race, and says that "the fecundity of the inferior classes should be discouraged."

For a good many years complaints such as this have been voiced recurrently. And, on the surface, they seem justified. It seems rather obvious that a child brought up by educated parents who have ample means to give him good medical care and a complete education will make a much better citizen than a child born in the slums or on a run-down farm, with parents who are forever pressed by poverty.

Yes, it seems obvious. But it doesn't work out that way.

It certainly is natural and human to wish that all children might have as many advantages and pleasures as possible. It makes our hearts ache to think of youngsters who have to think about earning their livings before they are out of short breeches. Yet the world seems to be so constituted that a certain amount of hardship is necessary for the development of strength. Nature is quite calloused and hard-boiled about it. Hardiness comes only from combat.

The list of men who, by force of character and ability, have helped shape the course of history is a long one; and if you will examine it you will find that most of the names are names of men who were born to this lamentably fecund "inferior class" that Dr. Chapin speaks about.

Genius is not something that can be foreseen in advance, and it does not appear where you might expect. A baby born in a back-alley kitchen or a frontier log cabin is quite as apt to have it as a baby born in a mansion. It is not without significance that the phrase "from log cabin to White House" is a byword in this country. The boy who has to fight for everything he gets is sure to develop to the utmost all of his latent capacities; the boy whose early battles are fought for him is not.

Let's stop worrying about birth rates among the rich and the poor. They have always been just about as they are now. If the world were to be wrecked thereby it would have been wrecked long ago.

BACK TOWN BUILDERS

A speaker at a recent gathering of men interested in building their towns made this significant statement, "every community has within its borders men who are able to make that community develop to the utmost limit of its resources." In other words, a community does not have to go outside of its own citizenship to find a solution of its problems of growth. The matter only is a question of recognizing those men who are capable of making a city grow, and giving them plenty of cooperation.

LAWTON TO RESTOCK LAKE

Material assistance will be given local authorities in their efforts to re-stock Lake Lawtonka with fish and restore Lawton's big lake to its former status as the best fishing ground in Oklahoma, Judge Sam Harris, chairman of the state fish and game commission, assured members of the city government and sportsmen here Tuesday night. Lawton has been giving for a long time, Judge Harris said, and should now get on the receiving end of the line. The assistance of the state will be a great help in bringing Lake Lawtonka back its former reputation as a good fishing place.

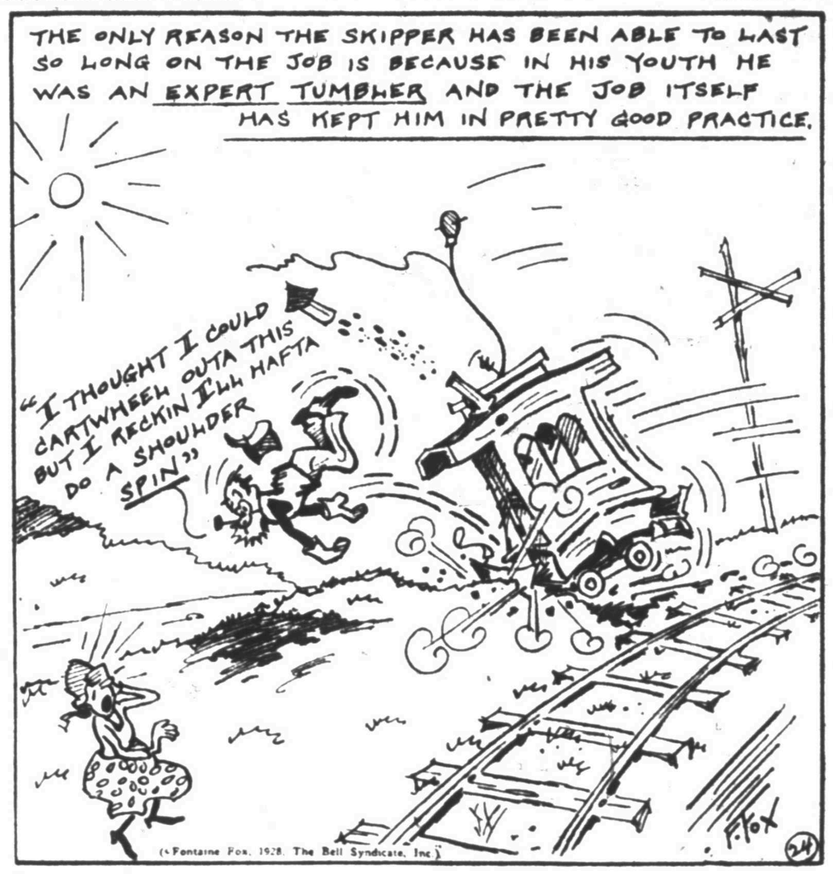

ADVANTAGES OF CREAMERY

Whenever the chamber of commerce succeeds in locating a creamery for Frederick, which will be adequately financed and skillfully managed and operated, it will have performed a genuine service, both for the farmers and the business people of this community.

The head of the Kraft Cheese company, which has a factory at Wichita Falls, told the people there that if they would develop the dairy business and sell enough milk to the Kraft factory to keep it busy more wealth would flow from the udders of their cows than had ever flowed from their oil wells. And a difference in the two is that the wealth from milk production may be generally shared, while oil wealth is always in spots.

Food and Fuel Mean Everything in Flight Into 'Home of Blizzards'

Sir George Wilkins, Who Sailed Saturday, Writes of Preparations for Daring Expeditions

By CAPT. SIR GEORGE HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition
(Copyright, 1928, by The New York American)
(Distributed by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Food and fuel will play a major part in the success of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition.

Ships that go down to the sea can choose and carry the things they need in abundance and variety, but modern clippers of the skies—the swift, trim airplanes of today—face problems peculiarly their own.

An army may, as Napoleon said, march on its belly; it takes a lot of bulging fuel tanks to keep a plane in the air.

"Gas, gas and more gas" is the never-ending cry of a powerful motor as it roars over stretches of unexplored land or ice. The human half of the expedition will resort to rations if things go wrong. Tender steaks give way to pemmican; humble raisins take the place of the more toothsome delicacies, but a 200-horsepower motor knows no compromise. It wants gasoline, it wants it "straight," and it wants it "right now." In the arctic or antarctic, over land or sea, night and day, there is no substitute for gas—at least not yet.

"The liner she's a lady, an' she never looks nor 'eeds—" sang Kipling before liners of the air began sailing over unchartered horizons. The modern explorer who ventures across desolate mountains and 2,000-mile gaps of land and ice never before viewed by human eyes, must more than "look and heed." He must enlist the aid of mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, radio—faithful and unerring mates, every one of them, but each speaking its own language through delicate and precise instruments.

A place for everything, and everything in its place, plus speed, endurance, direction, navigation, and the provision for emergencies—these and many more are the least common denominator of a polar expedition.

Let me give a brief outline of what I must take along with my expedition, and how it must be transported far below the last fringe of civilization, into the "home of the blizzards"—the antarctic continent.

First and foremost comes the planes. It must be remembered that our problems will be varied. We will unload the two Lockheed monoplanes from the whaling ship Ronald at Deception Island and lower them into the open water. This means that the planes must be fitted with pontoons when loaded on board the steamer in New York. An extra set of floats will be shipped to the Pacific side of the antarctic continent, at Ross Sea, on board the S. S. Neilson-Alonzo. In addition to these, there will be two sets of wheels, the original equipment of the Lockheed planes, and three sets of skiis. These will be of my own design.

Our radio equipment is very important. Each plane will be supplied with a transmitting set and a receiver. In each there will be a wind-driven generator, set flush with the leading edge of the wing.

Then there will be a portable radio generator, driven by a small air-cooled gasoline motor. This set is a marvel of radio engineering. It was built for me in San Francisco, by Heintz & Kaufman, and is similar in every detail to the sets taken by Commander Richard E. Byrd on his expedition.

The S. S. Neilson-Alonzo, the huge "factory ship" of the Norwegian whalers, to be stationed in the Ross sea area, has radio equipment with which to keep in touch with us across the unkown antarctic wastes. The raido operator on the S. S. Ronald, near the Weddell sea, has similar sets. Thus the invisible chain across the unexplored regions will be complete.

Contact With World

The Hearst operator at Station 6ARD, San Francisco, recently assured me that he was frequently in communication with the whaling ships in the Antarctic last year, and that he expects no trouble in keeping contact with us this trip.

Until about the end of November, when we expect to reach Deception Island, our food problems will be simple. They will consist in using good judgment and not overeating. The "galleys" on the whaling ships are well stocked and the cooks are experts.

On Deception Island we will have no worries. The whaling ships will serve as a base, and everything will be comfortable and pleasant. But once we are out on the ice, 500 miles below Deception Island, it will be a case of "checking the cjecks."

"Cjecks" is the Norwegian name for biscuits, the backbone of polar diet. They are the acme of scientific food. There is no waste—it's practically all food value. Oatmeal, whole wheat flour, whites of eggs, sugar and a few ingredients known only to the manufacturers go into these humble cjecks.

What pork is to beans, bacon to eggs, and sauerkraut to frankfurters, the Norwegian biscuits are to cholocate. The two are polar "bitemates," and they go a long way when one has a long way to go.

In 1927 Lieutentant Ben Eielson and I lived on chocolate and biscuits for 18 days while we walked 125 miles over polar ice to a fur trader's station at Beechey Point, Alaska, after our last forced landing. We lived and walked on 15 ounces a day—12 small biscuits, the size of soda crackers and two small bars of chocolate.

We plan to take with us to the Weddell sea side of the antarctic 100 pounds of biscuits and 100 pounds of Freia chocolate. This is a special make, especially prepared in Norway for polar diet and the same brand which was supplied to Shackleton, Amundsen and our own three arctic expeditions. One hundred pounds of pemmican, 100 of Horlick's malted milk, 50 pounds of almonds, and 50 pounds of raisins will complete our supplies.

Pemmican is the concentrated meat-and-fat food. The Rockford fliers, recently rescued in Greenland, lived on eight ounces of pemmican a day. The malted milk, almonds and raisins supply everything needed.

Simplicity Is Comfort

Simplicity is the key to comfort in emergencies. All this food can be eaten without any preparation. No need for cooking, no danger of scurvy. Fresh water to drink—melted as needed. No tea, no coffee, no stimulants.

And, if luck is with us, we can look forward to fresh meat from seals. Seal meat, when properly prepared, tastes like mutton. If we are forced to make a landing, and can keep our plane and supplies with us, seal meat can be cooked without difficulty.

The same things we'll have on the Weddell sea side will await us on the Pacific side, in the Ross sea. We will have one half of the amounts, but the same selection. This supply will be an emergency depot.

But out food is but one half of the problem. The motors must be fed with good gasoline, and filling stations are not to be found in antarctic.

Two thousand gallons of high test gasoline already have gone forward to Hobart, Tasmania. The fuel will be picked up there by the S. S. Neilson-Alonzo. This whaling ship also will take on board the extra set of seaplane floats, the food supplies and a few extras, including the spare radio set. One hundred and fifty gallons of lubricating oil also will be on hand for our motors when we land in the Ross sea area. The gasoline and oil are being supplied and shipped to us by the Vacuum Oil company.

The gasoline for the Weddell sea side will be taken there by the Norwegian whalers. From Deception Island we will carry this gasoline to our "farthest south" base in Graham Land.

Then the Instruments

Then come the instruments—servants in storms and guides across the unknown.

In each plane, on the instrument board in front of the pilot, is a maze of dials, levers, and trim little contrivances. Each has its work to do, and each will do it faithfully if given a chance—and if read and interpreted correctly.

The oil temperature gauge will watch over the motor and warn the pilot if any trouble develops. The tachometer will tell the pilot how well the motor is performing its work. This instrument records the number of revolutions per minute. The air speed indicator, working in conjunction, will help measure the efficiency of the propeller, and also give us a gentle hint if the nose of the ship is pointed too far up or too far down.

Another modest little dial will keep an accurate check on the fuel pressure. Close to the oil temperature gauge there is an oil pressure dial—another sentinel to keep a metallic finger on the motor's pulse. A turn-and-bank indicator will keep automatic eyes on the invisible horizon in the darkness.

The old familiar mysterious laws of gravity and mechanics will do this work. An inclinometer will watch the fore-and-aft movements of the plane, and an altimeter will record the height above sea level of the plane in flight.

Two compasses, one on the instrument board and one on the floor between the pilot's feet, complete the instrument assembly in the front cockpit. Ignition switches, fuel tank valves, a hand pump and motor throttles finish up the interior decorations of the pilot's little den, leaving no room for a tea table or a smoking stand. It takes a "heap" of watching to keep a plane in flight.

In my own cockpit, just back of the wing and inside the comfortable body of the Lockheed plane, will be another collection of instruments. First and foremost come two sextants. The sun and a sextant, with the aid of mathematics, can help a navigator tell just where he is, provided he can see the sun and measure its position in the heavens in relation to the horizon. But if clouds or haze obscure the horizon, then the bubble sextant must be employed. The bubble, delicately placed in a close compartment, does the work. It supplies an artificial horizon. We can do without a horizon, but the sun must be visible.

A course and distance calculator and navigation compass, with an azimuth circle and a drift-bearing plate for measuring the angle between the sun's position and the true north, or the direction of flight are as important as they are technical.

These will be close to my elbow as we speed across the unknown antarctic country. A wide-drift indicator will help determine how much we are drifting off our course and how much that course must be changed to compensate for the drift.

Special Charts

The American Geographical society has prepared some special charts which I shall use in this flight. Astronomical note books and tablets, special curve lines cut in transparent material, and things of that sort will be close at hand.

When you consider that several special cameras for mapping the country as we fly over it, for taking movies of the trip, and a special camera which I have designed for making a continuous photographic record of the entire trip, are on the list of things that simply must be taken along, you can see that the navigator, as well as the pilot, is crowded for space.

The navigation instruments have to be handled carefully. Room must be provided for work on the charts, and space is none too plentiful on a 41-foot monoplane carrying nearly two tons of gasoline and supplies.

In my next article I will relate some of the interesting experiences of previous expeditions and tell a little of the strange, far-away islands and continent where we will have to set the stage for the next big drama, the attempt to wrest from mother earth some of the secrets she has guarded for centuries in ice-locked antarctica.

TO A LOST FRIEND

Do you remember, friend of mine,
Those long lost days I class divine?
Do you recall those walks we took,
To follow hill and babbling brook?
Have you forgot the days we spent,
In friendship's easy, sweet content?
Can any pleasures be compared,
With little secrets that we shared?

You've gone, my friend; it was to be.
That fate should take you stealthily
On from my side—a bitter pill
For me to swallow; but I still
Remember every oath and vow,
I'll always keep them, friend, as now;
There's just one solace comes to me:
Life cannot take my memory
Of you and us, and joys we knew;
I wish you well, my friend—I do!
I hope that some day you will see
The sweetness of my memory.

PREACHER FOE OF AL AT BRECK

Straton to Address Crowd In West Texas

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Sept. 23.—Breckenridge is preparing to accommodate a crowd of 15,000 people here next Thursday night when Dr. John Roach Straton, "fighting fundabentalist leader" and noted foe of Al Smith of New York City delivers one of the 10 addresses he is to make in Texas during the present week against the candidacy of the governor of New York for president and in favor of Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee.

The address here will be made on the Buckaroo field of the Breckenridge high school, which during the past summer has been equipped with new steel stands and so improved as to make it class as one of the finest football fields to be found among Texas high schools. The crowd will be seated in comfort and the speakers' stand will be equipped with loud speakers so that none will have any difficulty in hearing every word of the program, according to H. A. Leaverton, arrangement chairman.

Dr. Straton comes to this section of West Texas at the invitation of the Stephens county Democrat-for Hoover club. Generous and general cooperation is being extended in making the event a success just as was the event at Cisco when Senator Joe Robinson brought the campaign of the Democratic nominees to this section.

Delegations are expected from a radius of 100 miles.

LOCKNEY PLANS $50,000 HOTEL

Funds Subscribed to Erect Modern Structure

Special to The Record News.

LOCKNEY, Texas, Sept. 23.—A modern, fire-proof hotel will be the result of a big watermelon feast and one of the snappiest programs of the year attended by 200 local citizens in the showrooms of the Lockney Auto company.

Under the supervision of the chamber of commerce, sufficient stock was sold to insure the erection of a $50,000 hotel at this place. The wage earner together with the business and professional men of this city subscribbed to a mutual cause that civic leaders predict will be the greatest step forward since the building of the Fort Worth and Denver into this section.

Immediately following the sale of stock, the subscribers elected the following board of directors: Artie Baker, M. L. Williams, Geo. T. Meriwether, R. H. Wall, A. R. Meriwether and H. M. Mason.

An application for the company's charter will be made at once and efforts are being made to begin the actual construction within one week, as plans and specifications of the building are now ready for the contractors.

The hotel will be located at the corner of Main and Locust streets, according to Artie Baker, chairman of the board of directors.

C-C TO HONOR OLD TIMERS

History Student to Tell of Early Days

Old timers, those who have lived here for 40 years, have been invited by the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce to be the guests of the chamber at the business council meeting Friday noon in the Kemp hotel.

This meeting is a part of the celebration of the 46th birthday of the city which opens Monday and continues all week.

Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber, urged that all old timers who can attend the Friday meeting, call the chamber of commerce in order that proper reservations and arrangements may be made for them.

The meeting is to be one of reminiscenses by the city pioneers.

Miss Johnnie Morgan of the Wichita Falls Junior college, who has written a history of the city, will read a portion of her book covering the period from early colonization to 1885.

Hoover's Aide Denies Drinking

will take up Mr. Hoover's claim and discuss the question of "party responsibility," with particular reference to the oil and other scandals of the Harding-Coolidge administrations.

"Mr. Hoover says," said the governor, "that the government can only be conducted with a definite party organization, he further says:

"'It goes to the very root of organization of our form of government and of Democracy itself. We intend to go forward, as the Republican party has always been a progressive constructive part.'

Corruption, Too

"All right. You can say that at Helena, Mont., tomorrow night I will take up the challenge of the Republican candidate and talk on party responsibility. And I most certainly will challenge the statement that the Republican party has always been a constructive, progressive party."

Asked if he would speak specifically about corruption the governor said:

"I do not like the word corruption, but party responsibility makes it necessary."

Governor Smith closed the first week of his campaign today, well pleased with the results of his first week's touring. He believes he has made distinct progress. After his speech tomorrow night in Helena, he turns eastward for a week in the northwestern wheat belt, North Dakota, Minnesota and winding up in Milwaukee next Saturday night.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By LEWIS STONE

If you know anything at all about motion pictures you know who Lewis Stone is. He's the big-hearted, strong-minded man with the mustache who sees that our Lil' Nell is done right by. He can put on a uniform and look more military than a whole regiment, and his ability comes rightfully enough for he was a major both in the Spanish-American and the World wars. His theatrical career began when he substituted for an actor who had fallen ill. From then on Lewis left no stone unturned until he reached the pinnacle of the profession.

Lewis Stone

"I once knew a charming lady who was the wife of a French diplomat," Stone told me, "and who never quite mastered the English language. On one occasion she telephoned a naval officer urging him to attend a dinner party of hers which he had already declined.

"The lady insisted that he must come, but the young officer said he could not possibly do so—as he had burned his bridges behind him.'

"Now the French telephone service has never been the best, and the lady misunderstood the word.

"'Oh, that will be all right,' she exclaimed. 'I'll lend you a pair of my husband's.'"

Summer of '28 Banner Year for Vacationists, Survey Reveals

All records for "vacationing" were broken by Americans during the summer months of 1928, according to figures compiled by Western Union Telegraph company officials.

The telegraph company bases its claim for 1928 on the enormous increase in telegrams sent to and from resort centers during vacation time. The traffic over the wires from pleasure centers was heaviest in the history of the company, the figures show.

In addition to figures from its own office, the Western Union survey include data from railroads, tourist and travel agencies, hotels, bus lines, chambers of commerce and banks. Almost every resort reported an increase in the number of vacationists.

"Along the Atlantic coast from Cape Charles, Va., to Bar Harbor, Maine," the survey reported, "revenues this summer were the highest on record. In the Catskills and Adirondacks substantial increases in telegraph business also were reported. In central New England the volume of wire business from resort centers was the heaviest in the section's history.

"In western New York state, which includes Niagara Falls, a tremendous increase in the company's revenue was registered over last year. In Long Island the company's managers reported excellent business and in some territory the number of telegrams sent and received doubles the business of the summer of 1927."

Hotel owners at the resorts, who must do the major portion of their business between Decoration day and Labor day, were optimistic in their reports. Barring a few resorts where inclement weather and local conditions combined to decrease visitors, all resorts reported a substantial increase in 1928 vacationists.

One of the significant features of this year's vacation time, the Western Union report reveals, is the large amount of automobile touring done. Railroads in many cases have noted a falling off in their short haul traffic and they attribute this to the automobiles.

To the automobile also hotel owners lay the blame for the relatively short time vacationists spent at one place during their leaves from work. The American vacationer, their reports show, is a nomad, drifting from one place to another.

The telegraph company also thanks the automobile for a part of the increase in telegraph tolls. Many of the vacationists seeing America by automobile advise friends at home of their rapid changes in addresses over the wires, it was pointed out.

Lights Out in City Parks After One More Week

Lovers who do not own automobiles and who are wont to whisper sweet nothings to each other in the city parks will have no enemy except the moon after this week. Park season will officially end and electric lights will be cut off, it was announced Sunday by C. C. Bunnenberg, park superintendent.

While Buennenberg will "douse the glim" at the eight city parks this week the playgrounds still will be open for use until cold weather, he said. The cessation of electric lights in the park will mean a saving of about $75 a month.

STRATON HITS SMITH MORALS

Says Al Came From Low Environment

DALLAS, Sept. 23 (AP)—Charging that Governor Smith is "the nominee of the worst forces of hell," the Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of New York, carried his attack on the Democratic presidential nominee into Texas today.

Speaking at the state fair race track grandstand, where a few weeks ago, Senator Robinson, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, opened his campaign, Straton defended ministers who make political speeches by saying that it was their moral duty to bring religion to politics.

"Morality is the only enduring foundation of the state," Dr. Straton continued, "and religion is the only creator and preserver of morality.

"Doubtless as a man Smith would not do what his record shows him to have done, but as a public figure he has done so. He parades himself as being against the saloon when an interview in the New York Times of March 9, 1923, represents him as saying that he longed for the return of those times when a man could put his foot on the brass rail and blow foam from the tops of beer glasses."

After comparing the early life of Smith and Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee, Straton said Hoover had "pressed the glass of milk and pure water to the lips of suffering humanity, and not the glass of wine with which to debauch them."

Smith, he declared, had risen from the sidewalks of New York's foreign section, surrounded by vice and saloons, "and such an environment is not one from which to get a president."

The station will be on the air at the usual hours Monday in addition to Dr. Goodell's speaking. These hours are 9 to 10 a. m., and 12 to 1, 5 to 6 and 7 to 10 p. m. Glen also called attention to a secret treat which Zack has for the air fans from 8 to 9 o'clock Monday night.

Questions and Answers

Question—W. K. F. writes: "My doctor says my trouble is due to hypererythrocythemia, but he also tells me there is nothing to be done to cure it as the cause is not known. I hope you can offer me some suggestions and encouragement about a cure."

Answer—The long-sounding name given your trouble is an attempt to describe a condition which actually exists in certain patients where there is an increase in the number of red blood cells over the normal. My researches have shown that such an extra amount of red cells is produced through a definite irritation of the nervous system, including the brain and spinal cord. Such irritation is apparently caused by some simple toxemia, as it can be very easily cured. Out of many cases treated I have never seen one that did not respond very quickly to a fast of a few days. Have you blood count taken at some responsible laboratory, then stop all food for at least five days, except fruit juice and water, and then have another blood count made. You will find the red cells reduced to normal or very closely to it. If not quite normal after the five days' fast, continue the fast for a few days more. A correct diet afterwards will prevent any recurrence of the toxemia which is apparently responsible.

Question — Mrs. R. H. asks: "Would eating buckwheat cakes be injurious to a woman of 65 who has eczema, acid stomach and constipation?"

Answer—If you will watch my health menus published in your paper each week you will see that I never advise buckwheat cakes, and certainly in your case such food should not be used. Send for special articles explaining the cause and cure of the disorders mentioned, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Stars in Women's Golf Meet

Feminine brassie swingers break into the golf limelight with their big drive at Hot Springs, Va., for the national women's golf championship held by Mrs. Miriam Burns-Tyson of Kansas City. Virginia Wilson, Chicago, Canadian titlist, and Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., 1927 runner-up are among the leading contenders.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 23. (AP)—America's best women golfers, approximately 150 of them, will assault the ramparts of par here, beginning Sept. 24, in an effort to lift the crown of American women links champion from the brow of pretty Mrs. Miriam Burns Tyson.

The champion, who married George Tyson since winning the title, has other ideas, however. She has been at the top of her game the past 12 months and has more than fair hopes of retaining the championship, although she will have the sternest opposition from Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I. twice champion; Maureen Orcutt Haworth, N. J., 1927 runner-up; Virginia Wilson, Chicago, Canadian champion; Peggy Wattles, Buffalo runner-up in the 1928 Canadian championship meet; Mrs. Harry Pressler, Los Angeles; Mrs. Lee Mida, Chicago; Virginia Van Wie, Chicago; Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis.; Helen Payson, Portland Maine; and a host of others, all of nationally known caliber.

And Mrs. Tyson will in all probability find a most determined challenge from a fellow townswoman, Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, who has defeated her once already this year. Mrs. Hill is present North and South champion.

The Cascade course, situated in picturesque Warm Springs valley will offer a real test, although the links are in near perfect condition The leaders should break 80 in the qualifying round, according to local officials, who find the course ideal in playing now.

Edith Cummings shot a 79 over the course last year, although her score is the best ever registered here by a woman.

It seems now that the championship will be fought out among an all-American field, as the British and French stars expected during the summer have not entered.

The course is a 6,388 yard layout of narrow fairways bordering in stretches the stream Cascade and in spots running through narrow but beautiful valley country.

The course layout as to distances follows:

Matsuda Denies Mat Retirement

Matty Meets Joe Parelli Here Tomorrow Night

Somebody sent out the rumor the other day from San Angelo that Matty Matsuda had retired from the gentle pursuit of wrestling.

Matty blew into Wichita Falls the next day and quoted Mark Twain's well known remark to the effect that reports of his retirement "had been greatly exaggerated."

Matty says he'll retire when he's dead and immediately followed that statement by agreeing to meet Joe Parelli next Tuesday night at Spudder Park. Incidentally, Matty took Joe to defeat last week at Dallas when the two appeared in a real Japanese wrestling match.

Fans who like a little boxing along with their wrestling are also taken care of for Tuesday night by Promoter Alex B. Ross. Ross has matched Frenchie LeFevre of Grandfield, Okla., with Howard Scott of Electra for a six-round boxing match.

The curtain raiser of the card will be a four-round go between Floyd Anderson and Johnny Owens, both of Wichita Falls.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Without seeking to mutilate the mutilateral treaty which insures peace between treaties it seems that all is not as it should be.

First of all, we will start with the 15 nations that plastered the document with their signatures.

The gentle petition was supposed to be signed with a gold pen.

It started off all right. But when the gold pen got back to Kellogg it was a lead pencil.

It looks as if we are in for some more of the peace that passeth all understanding.

If we have really attained world peace, why didn't Ambassador Kellogg bring some samples with him?

Another hindrance to the pact is that doorman of the big movie palaces refuse to give up their martial uniforms.

Why should the Boy Scouts disarm until they are sure of the future?

Europe speaks of world friendship in 15 different languages. That's two more than they used on the Tower of Babel.

We haven't done so well in those happy pow-wows. Every time we sign a peace treaty we find it is just another mortgage.

We have no fault to find with Ambassador Kellogg. He did very well over there. He must be a great man for he escaped with his luggage.

Europe isn't so optimistic over the treaty. The general impression is that it is a bust. But not the kind they put in the hall of fame.

Judging from the last war, the surest bar to trouble and armies is not a peace treaty.

It's a set of broken arches.

A gold pen may be more powerful than a big bertha or a depth bomb. But you're liable to run out of ink.

And all we know is that no nation is going to junk its battleboats.

Unless you count Iceland. And that country is only going to lay theirs up for the winter.

Tommy Armour Victor At Shinnecock Hills

SHINNECOCK HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 23. (AP)—Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C. former national open champion, won the 72-hole invitation professional golf tournament at the National Golf links here today.

The present Metropolitan open titleholder covered the last 36 holes today in 154 which, with his 148 of yesterday, gave him a 72-hole total of 302.

Indianapolis Wins in American Association

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Indianapolis won the American association pennant for 1928 by defeating Toledo 1 to 0 in the 12th inning of the first game of a double header here today. A double by Burris, followed by a sacrifice by Boone and a single by Connolly, settled the contest.

Boone and Pfeffer engaged in a pitching duel, the former allowing the Mud Hens only six hits. The Indians made eleven hits.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

EARLY SEASON scores offer little on which to judge the football teams. First games afford coaches opportunity of playing a host of men and of working out their style of attack. But except in a general way, opening contests are not to be viewed as criterions of the weakness and strength of the elevens. A football squad in September is a football machine in October. There's a vast difference. However, these early games of course do provide some means of estimating what we are to expect from the teams later in the campaign, and as such the opening affairs last Saturday of Southwest conference and Texas elevens are viewed with intense interest.

◇ ◇ ◇

The so-called favorites in the conference race this autumn won their opening games handily, though it was significant that there were no top-heavy scores as usually mark first contests. The Southern Methodist Mustangs, pointing for their battle Oct. 6 with the Army, ran up a 33 to 6 count on the North Texas Teachers of Denton. Redman Hume, a fast-running, elusive back, made possible three of the Ponies' five touchdowns. The Mustangs flashed an attack that is an indication the Cadets will face another scoring machine nearly equal to that Methodist whirlwind of last year, by counting three touchdowns in the last quarter, after three periods of rather uninteresting football played in a rain-soaked setting.

◇ ◇ ◇

THREE OTHER conference elevens pried off the lid. The Texas Christian Horned Frogs defeated East Texas Teachers 21 to 0, and Texas Aggies took the long end of a similar score from Trinity. In both games the conference mentors employed a host of athletes, many of whom were having their first test under fire, and the results seem to have been satisfactory.

◇ ◇ ◇

AUSTIN GRIFFITH, a sophomore fullback, was presented by Coach Matty Bell for his debut as a Frog and the young man made a most pleasing start. He smashed the line for long gains and scored two touchdowns. Dana X. Bible used so many gridsters that few had opportunity to play long enough to achieve stardom.

◇ ◇ ◇

Held scoreless for the second half, a revamped Baylor eleven crushed Stephen F. Austin State Teachers college under a varied and speedy attack to score a 31 to 0 victory. Jake Wilson, a former Waco high school star, began his collegiate career as he ended his prep football days, by leading the furious attack of Baylor, indicating that Morley Jennings has a potential backfield star of the brightest ray.

◇ ◇ ◇

SIMMONS UNIVERSITY Cowboys, foes here Oct. 13 of the Southern Methodists, were extended by Decatur Baptists before emerging with a 6 to 0 triumph. The game was played in a cold, driving rain, however, and is not to be held as sole indication of the strength of Frang Bridges' team, who once led Baylor to a Southwest conference title and who is expected to have his Cowboys ready for a stern battle when they meet the Ponies here.

◇ ◇ ◇

THERE WERE FEW games Saturday, a majority of elevens reserving this week for the opening of their schedules. One contest last week was noteworthy, the 7 to 0 victory of Davis-Elkins over West Virginia an unusually close early-season score and also an upset, as the Mountaineers generally rate high in national football.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (US)—When it comes to looking at the big league third sackers, the National league has a wide margin over its rival, especially if Pittsburgh or New York tops the field on the final day.

Traynor, of the Pirates, and Lindstrom, of the Giants, are easily the best of all those with a possible chance of appearance in the 1928 world series. They are almost tied in hitting and running, with the Giant showing a bit more weight with the willow. Both are brilliant fielders and smart players under all conditions.

"Jumping" Joe Dugan, the Yankee veteran, doesn't boast of such a brilliant record as either Traynor or Lindstrom, but Miller Huggins will rely on his rather than on Robertson or Gazella. Dugan is a great money player, steadiest in the tough places and absolutely dependable.

Dugan Veteran Star

In one department of the third base play, coming in for bunts or slow topped balls, Dugan is just about the best in the business. Weak knees prevented his showing much speed going to either side but he can come in like a flash for the slow ones and nobody ever found anything wrong with his arm As a hitter he is dangerous at all times.

With the St. Louis Cardinals winning their second pennant, newcomers will be seen at the hot corner. High and Holm have divided the work around that corner all season in fair fashion. They do not class with Traynor, Lindstrom or Dugan, but measure up to the others being considered to have a chance of appearing in the big series next month.

Jimmy Dykes is a makeshift thirdsacker. Jimmy Foxx took the job away from him and kept it until a week or two ago when he moved over to first base, ousting him from that place. Dykes is a fine utility player but his record doesn't entitle him to much when compared with such players as Traynor or Lindstrom.

Other Third Sackers

The Chicago Cubs have a fine fielding third sacker in Beck, but his hitting is far from being impressive.

If Hale gets into the big series it will probably be only as a pinch hitter. He is a strong right-handed batsman, which lets him out.

Robertson is erratic in the field, but he hits about as well as Dugan His only chance of playing rests upon Dugan's physical condition.

Dressen, the Red's third sacker, has had a fine season. He is a smooth fielder in a smart infield quartet and has the faculty of getting his hits when they count most. However, he is overshadowed by Traynor and Lindstrom.

Baronet By Law May Refuse Title

LONDON, Sept. 23 (UP)—Oswald Mosley is a baronet by law and there is nothing he can do about it.

But Mosley is a laborite, as well, and has often cast aspersions on the ancient custom of titles and England now awaits his decision as to whether he will accept the title and be called "sir" or whether he will insist that he remain a "mister."

The death at Etwall of Sir Oswald Mosley, 54, raised the issue of political propriety of laborites accepting titles. Sir Oswald had been a "true blue" conservative and is probably best remembered for his controversy with his socialistic son, whose politics the father publicly repudiated in 1924.

The son and his wife, Lady Cynthia Mosley, were said to be desirous of relinquishing their titles and Oswald announced at one time that he would not accept the title upon death of his father.

On the death of a baronet, however, his successor naturally becomes the new baronet and under law he cannot of his own wish divest himself of the title.

Paris Aviation Minister Stops Long Flights

PARIS, Sept. 23. (UP)—Laurent Eynac, new minister of aviation, today issued orders forbidding any further long-distance flights until inventories are made by the technical department to replace "foolhardiness" with the policy of "careful daring." The announcement probably means Dieudonne Costes' proposed flight to New York will be definitely cancelled for this season.

VIN RICHARDS BEATEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—Karl Kozeluh, Czecho Slovakia professional tennis champion of Europe, won the world title today by defeating Vincent Richards, American pro king, for the third straight time. The scores were 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Tony Canzoneri Defends Crown

Feather Champ to Battle Frenchman Friday

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—A featherweight titular scrap and another move to clear up the welterweight division muddle provide outstanding features of this week's metropolitan district fistic card.

Tony Canzoneri, New York holder of the 126-pound crown, meets Andre Routis, France, in Madison Square Garden Friday night with the championship at stake.

Humbert Fugazy offers a 12-round bout between Young Corbett, III, Fresno, Calif., and Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchel Field, as headliner for his Ebbetts Field card Wednesday night.

These two welterweight contenders put on a disappointing battle at Madison Square Garden recently. Corbett got the decision but Baker walked off with the popular verdict and what honors there were. The winner may be matched with Young Jack Thompson, of San Francisco, who recently knocked out the 147-pound champion, Joe Dundee, in a non-title match at Chicago.

Hennessey Victor, Lott Loses at Net

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (AP)—John Hennessey, Indianapolis, finally routed his losing jinx today when he defeated Harry Hopman of Australia, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, in the first singles match of the finals for the U. S. intersectional tennis team championship.

Hennessey's victory, first he has won since returning from Europe with the Davis Cup team, made it necessary for his western teammate, George Lott, to win his singles match with Jack Crawford of Australia to clinch the intersectional title.

Crawford upset Lott of Chicago by winning the other singles match, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Lott's defeat made the double event the deciding factor in the championship play.

Helen Loses Two-Set Net Match to Brown

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23. (UP)—Helen Wills was defeated in two straight exhibition sets here today by Wray D. Brown, Missouri valley champion, 7-5, 6-0, but paired with Ted Seeman, former Cornell tennis captain, she defeated Brown and Karl Hodge, St. Louis, 7-5, 6-3, in a doubles exhibtion.

Saturday Miss Wills lost one set to Brown 2-6 and then defeated Brown, 9-7.

Rochester Cinches Flag In International Loop

MONTREAL, Sept. 23. (AP)—Rochester clinched its first International league pennant since 1911, by defeating Montreal in both games of a double header here today, 5 to 2 and 6 to 0.

This assured the Red Wings of the flag even if Buffalo should win its single contest from Toronto.

SOUTH SIDE "9" WINS

South Side baseball team defeated a Burkburnett nine yesterday on the latter's diamond, 14 to 3. Batteries: Duyer and Wilford; Milford, Hollis and Newell.

VOTE REPORTS ARE DEMANDED

Primary Victors May Lose Nomination

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23.—Failure of county clerks to report the primary vote for district officers before Oct. 1 will deprive Democratic nominees of a place on the ballot, where the incomplete returns indicate the nomination of another, under a policy adopted by Mrs. Jane Y. CcCallum, secretary of state.

One state senate nomination is involved in this condition now, that of J. W. E. H. Beck of Texarkana. Unless the Bowie county district clerk certifies the vote of that county, the returns of other counties of the district will show the nomination of Lamar Denman of Mount Pleasant. Denman's name would go on the November election ballot, under a ruling of the attorney general's department.

It has been announced the Bowie county certificate is in the mail.

Several legislative, senatorial and district judge nominations are affected, though no other case is known where another than the apparent nominee stands to get on the ballot unless remaining certificates are filed.

A technical following of the law, according to the opinion of officials here, would have deprived Beck of the nomination given him by the people for senator of the first district. The law, as quoted by Mrs. McCallum, said that "it shall be the duty of the county clerk of each county of this state to certify to the secretary of state on or before the fourth Saturday in August," etc. That date passed with the Bowie county certificate lacking in Beck's race, as were other certificates in many cases of district offices.

It is not expected the state will invoke the specific letter of the law, when the intent of the law is clear to secure an official list of the actual nominees.

GRAFTON TELLS PASTOR'S WORK

'Great Silent Vote in November Predicted

No longer is there a single commanding ministerial mind or a single outstanding minister, declared Rev. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and retiring moderator, in an address Tuesday night at the meeting of the Wichita Falls presbytery at Electra. Rev. Mr. Grafton said the lack of outstanding preachers is not due to poverty of the American pulpit but because of its excellency.

"We no longer have a Beecher, a Brooks, or a Talmage, but we have hundreds of them," the speaker said in his sermon, "The Minister's Place in the Life of America."

He is retiring moderator of the presbytery and his sermon is being printed at the unanimous request of members of the group.

The address follows:

Text: II Corinthians 4:13: "We believe, and therefore speak."

That text ought to be the motto of every minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The minister ought to believe profoundly and speak out of his beliefs; if he has no great convictions he ought not to undertake to speak at all.

It is really worth while to trace the ministry through the pages of American history and to learn the part the minister has played in the life of our nation. Too frequently the work of the minister is looked upon as a work that is entirely apart from the main current of human events. Some men would put the minister upon a pedestal and have him remain there, apart from human affairs, and would have him speak only on the Sabbath day; or they would cloister him, to be brought from the cloister to deliver a sermon before a waiting congregation. The minister has always, and should always play a large part in the whole life of the people of his nation.

Dynamic Force in America

America was born in the atmosphere of the church. Her history is spiritually romantic. The Pilgrims created the Pilgrim state. The Pilgram fathers drew up in a cabin on the Mayflower the first instrument to confer equal civil and religious rights upon all the people of this new nation. The influence of the minister was felt there, and the influence of the minister has always been unmistakable in our national life.

Rev. Roger Williams dominated the state of Rhode Island, and saturated the thinking of that entire people with the idea of free church and free state. Rev. Thomas Hooker was the greatest leader Connecticut ever had, and he was called the "father of American democracy." Rev. Jonathan Edwards was said to have been "the chief figure of the 18th century."

The pulpit of New England was the distinct and distinguishing feature of its life. The New England minister shaped the thinking, the character, the lives, and the acts of his people. The church rather than the courthouse was the center of the square. The courthouse was relegated to one side and the church not only was in the center of the square, but it was in the exact center of the people's lives, and the minister occupied no mean position as a leader of the people. He made for intelligent citizenship, for he was intelligent himself, well educated, well prepared, and well equipped.

University Graduates

During a period of 17 years, from 1630 to 1647, 90 university graduates of England and Scotland came to occupy American pulpits. Oxford and Cambridge, with other great institutions of learning, sent the very flower of their classes to this new country. Out of the service of these well trained men came such institutions as Harvard and Yale. These men were not only preachers but educators as well. It is said that Rev. Moses Hallock educated three hundred men; that Rev. Dr. Wood trained Ezekiel and Daniel Webster, and that Rev. Samuel Davies educated Patrick Henry. Practically all of our early literature came from such men as Rev. Jonathan Edwards, Rev. Cotton Mather and Rev. Hooker.

One hears a great deal in these days of the "New England blue laws." The real New England "blue laws" were wholesome and produced a mental and spiritual culture that has been the very foundation of our American government. The so-called New England "blue laws" which are a travesty on the real "blue laws" of New England, were written through spite by a deposed, degenerate minister, and a great many people have come to believe that those laws really existed in New England. It would be well for America in this day of laxness of morals, and laxness in the fundamental things of life, if we had a few real New England laws to govern us.

Later Ministers in America

The outstanding ministers of later American life found their leadership in Lyman Beecher and his illustrious son, Henry Ward Beecher. Lyman Beecher impressed himself upon East Hampton, Litchfield, Boston, and Cincinnati, four centers from which a wonderful ministerial influence rediated. The career of Lyman Beecher clearly reveals the place of the minister in later American life. The minister during his day was the chief force in developing social unity, moral growth, and moral order. It remained for Lyman Beecher to destroy dueling in America after that disgraceful episode in which Alexander Hamilton lost his life. Lyman Beecher instituted and perfected temperance reforms among the clergy until it became a disgrace for a minister of the gospel to drink rum. He established the modern Sunday school, being the first to break away from the program of Drake in England. He not only went himself but he sent his family to this first modern Sunday school, and gave it his backing until it was well on its feet.

Henry Ward Beecher was the outstanding minister in his day and generation. He it was who instituted the first movement for temperance in America. That movement enlarged itself until we saw it consummated in the passing of the 18th amendment. He flung himself into the question of the freedom of slaves, and was the dominant factor in the freedom of the black man from slavery. Abraham Lincoln has been given credit for being the great factor in issuing the decree that the slaves should be freed but he never would have had the courage and the moral backbone to issue that decree had not Henry Ward Beecher quietly influenced him.

Along the side of Beecher was Dr. Phillips Brooks of Boston, Mass., who still lives in that large section of our country.

Present Day Ministers

There is no longer a single commanding ministerial mind. There is no longer a single outstanding minister in the American pulpit. This is not because of the poverty of the American pulpit but because of the excellency of the American pulpit. We no longer have a Beecher, or a Brooks, or a Talmadge, but we literally have hundreds of Beechers, Brooks, and Talmages. I will not take your time to call the names of the numerous great American pulpiteers, but would have you find example from such men as Cadman, McDowell, Black, Fosdick, Jefferson, Parkhurst, Brown, McConnell, Hillis, Stone, Truett, who are but a few of the multitudes of ministers who are literally dominating American life from the pulpit.

The present day minister makes for social unity. The pulpit of today is bringing the people together under the highest motives of worship and service, and is moulding their thinking into unity of action and cooperation in effort.

The present day ministry is making for moral growth and moral order. The real foes of any nation are the foes from within, the men of selfish passions who demand unbridled freedom and whose conduct would destroy the nation. Men who would have liberty that is licensed, with absolutely no regard for humanity or the rights of their fellowmen, they are the ones who resent any interference on the part of the minister of the gospel with what they consider to be their prerogatives.

There is a tendency today to look upon the ministers as a necessary evil. Men with a kink in their minds would do away with him altogether.

In political years you hear a great deal about the minister. People become afraid that the church and state will not be far enough separated, that the minister will get out of his place; that he will engage in politics, and you will hear a great many little "nit-wits," who talk learnedly and write knowingly about the minister preaching the gospel and letting politics alone.

David Lloyd George, said one time, "We politicians only touch the fringe of life, but the minister deals with the real problems of life." If ever there were any real problems of life we have them today. If there ever was a time when the minister needed to believe and therefore speak, that time is now, and yet men would muzzle the minister and have him stand up in the pulpit and sing, "Come to Jesus, Come to Jesus," when our great country is going to the devil. Some people would take away the influence of the preacher in American life, and those same people are going to be absolutely amazed when they find that the American minister still has a great deal of influence. Next November a great silent vote will testify to the influence of the ministers in America.

Woodrow Wilson said, "From the quiet places of the pulpit go forth influences that bless the life of the nation."

The pulpit is dealing with forces often unseen, unmeasured and little understood. Long after the world's captains with their drums and their guns are silent, long after the noisy politicians of our day have been forgotten, will the quiet, unselfish men of the pulpit, who have taught the truths of character and social well being, be regarded as the greatest benefactors America has ever had.

New Issues of 'Who's Who' Gives Work of Dr. McKenney

This is a little story of a man who tried to dodge a reporter.

They call him Steve at the Rotary club, on the street, over the golf course, at luncheons or wherever men meet men. He has an Irishman's tongue and wit, and a twinkle in his eye the Scotchman said was a "divil." He always has the gentle speech and manner of those men who know and appreciate the fundamentals. So they call him Steve.

But at the First Methodist church whose beautiful new building was formally opened and dedicated Sunday, and through all the ranks of Southern Methodism he is also Dr. S. Stephen McKenney, from which high-sounding title you would never suspect that he is Steve.

It took the latest copy of "Who's Who in America" to produce this story of this Wichita Falls pastor. An enterprising reporter who recently sought an interview came back with the statement, "He'll talk about anything but himself." But a preacher's past "will out" like many other things, so now comes the 1928-29 issue of Who's Who to answer all the questions about Dr. S. Stephen McKenney.

Eleventh Church

The First Methodist church of which Dr. McKenney is pastor is listed as the eleventh of importance in Southern Methodism, a remarkable attainment for a church in a town the size of Wichita Falls, according to members of the organization. Dr. McKenney was born in Westmoreland county, Va., near Kinsale, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. McKenney. He was educated in Baltimore and entered the commercial world, a not promising start for one later to be listed with those "selected because of achievement in special lines of worthwhile endeavor which brings them into prominence."

"Man's Right on Earth"

But Steve McKenney turned aside from trade to answer a call to the ministry. From a speech delivered before the Rotary club here, and his speeches have become famous among all Rotarians, this quotation may serve as an explanation of the sudden change in his life plans:

"Man's right on earth depends upon the good he does society."

For his theological training, Dr. McKenney attended that famous old Methodist school, Southwestern university at Georgetown, Williamson county, Texas. The steady progress which the young student made after his departure from the school speaks well for the training provided there by the church.

He was pastor of the McAshan church of Houston, 1901-03, and was ordained a minister of the Methodist church, South, in 1902. He married Margaret Baird Nelms of Waco, Sept. 11, 1907. His progress follows: Grace church, Houston, 1905-06; Rosebud, 1907-09; Nacogdoches, 1910-14; Jacksonville, 1915; commissioner of the Methodist church, South, for the Metropolitan Representative church, Washington, D. C. 1916; Port Arthur, 1917-20; presiding elder of the Beaumont district, 1923-26; Wichita Falls, 1926; trustee of the Texas Methodist assembly of Alexander college; member of the Texas conference commission on finance since 1918; former president of the Texas Epworth league.

In 1918 Dr. McKenney's sermon,

DR. S. STEPHEN M'KENNEY

"The Dignity of Labor" was winner of the state prize, an honor in keeping with the attention he has always devoted to the problems and works of labor. His annual sermon before Labor day in Wichita Falls is perhaps as widely attended and discussed as any event of the year.

Work Widely Known

Over the south Dr. McKenney is best known for his service with the general conference commission charged with the erection of a church in Washington, D. C., which would represent Southern Methodism and the ideals of the South. The commission selected Dr. McKenney as its field representative. Bishop Warren Chandler was chairman of this commission, and the appointment of Dr. McKenney was confirmed by Dr. James C. McCoy of Birmingham, Ala. The Texas pastor served for more than a year with the commission, and to him its leaders have given much of the credit for the success of the plans which made the church at Washington outstanding in a city of beautiful buildings and churches.

Dr. McKenney is a Democrat, a Rotarian and a Mason. As a Rotary and as a Masonic speaker he is widely known, especially in the southwest, and in much sought in both civic club and fraternal circles. But his greatest work has been from the pulpit, where his sermons of faith, honesty, courage and sincerity carry an age-old appeal to old and young, and worshipers from all walks of life.

Coming to Wichita Falls in 1926 after plans for a new church were under way, Dr. McKenney is credited by members of his congregation as being the great factor in the final success of these plans with the opening of the magnificent new First Methodist church Sunday.

Power Wire Burns Fatal to Monkey

A diminutive monkey which lived two hours after 11,000 volts of electricity had passed through its body Saturday night in the plant of the Texas Electric Service company did not escape the city zoo, C. C. Bunnenberg, park superintendent, announced Sunday.

Wichita Falls was plunged into darkness when the monkey strayed into the power plant and leaped upon one of the switch structures. The little animal received 100 times more electricity than is necessary to kill a healthy man and displayed resistance that is beyond the ken of Dr. L. I. Lucey, who operates a veterinary hospital on Henrietta road.

Its body almost covered with burns, the animal resisted efforts to treat them and tried to bite one of the men who carried it to the hospital, Dr. Lucey said. Efforts to find the owner of the plucky little monkey failed Sunday night.

NEW CHURCH OPENED HERE

Methodists Here Dedicate New Building

The text does not apply to any person in particular but to the confession in general. Peter, therefore, is not the foundation of the church but the first stone laid upon it.

"Not alone have there been erroneous views as to the foundation, but also false conceptions of the church itself. It is remarkable to note the endless discussions on this subject even among Protestants. One church says, 'You must come within our pales and be baptized with our baptism or your case is hopeless.' They apply a general name to a particular denomination and say 'we are the church of God, the church of Christ; the Christian church.' They tell other denominations that unless they fall in line with them they are deluded by the devil and can have no right to the tree of life. All this is wickedly false. The church of which Christ is the foundation and over which He is head is not denominational but spiritual. You may be identified with any church and yet be a Christian, or with all of them and not be a Christian.

"The question of supreme importance is not the church to which we belong, but whether or not we belong to Christ. It is remarkable that while so much has been said about the church, that our Lord never used the word but twice in his public ministry. In this text He used it for the first time. Again, in speaking of the offending brother, He said, 'Go, tell him of his fault, then take one of two more witnesses and finally tell it to the church. And if he hear none of these let him be as a heathen man and a publican.'

"Our Lord used it often enough to show the nature and the authority of His church. He made a more frequent use of the word kingdom. And He ever taught that His kingdom was spiritual in its nature.

Close of Ministry

"The circumstances of this text claim our attention. Our Lord was nearing the close of His earthly ministry. Already the shadow of the cross had fallen upon His pathway. Behind Him was rejection; before Him was death. He desired to secure from His disciples a confession of their faith in Him and in His mission. Therefore, He said, 'Whom do men say that I am?' They answered, 'Some say thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias and others, Jeremias or one of his prophets.' But our Lord comes closer still and makes His question more personal. "'Whom say ye that I am?' And Peter answers with such a conviction as he never before had. 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.'

"This was a very unique confession. It recognized Christ not only as a good man but as the divine Lord. Some would have used an indefinite article to express it, but not Peter. He said 'the Christ.'

"When Nebuchadnezzar was king of Babylon no brick was allowed in public buildings within the bounds of his empire which did not have the king's name stamped upon it. Many of those bricks may yet be seen in the British museum. So with the stones which enter into the sacred walls of the building of God. They all bear His name and stamp upon them. Here is no room for deception or for the practice of hypocrisy. We often give ourselves much concern, saying, 'Oh, there are hypocrites in all churches.' But there are none and can be none in the church of God until man is able to deceive his Maker and this can never be. The hypocrite cannot gain admission and so the church is growing into a holy temple in the Lord in whom we also are builded together for an habitation of God through the spirit.'

Church Imperishable

"Finally, such a church as this is imperishable and indestructible. It is as secure as the Rock of Ages. Every stone in this building is a fragment of the true rock, 'and that rock is Christ.' No weapon that is formed against her shall prosper; even 'the gates of hades shall not prevail against it.' There is no intimation here that the church will be exempt from tribulation and trial. These will come but will not overcome; they will attack but 'not prevail.'

"The church of God has been severely treated in all ages but it still remains. In the face of the world's fiercest opposition it will stand forever. The hammers of skepticism and false science and a thousand 'isms' are lying all around. The enemies of God have turned their swords against themselves and still the church remains.

"When Stephen, the first martyr, offered up his life amid a shower of stones the infant church felt as if he could not be spared lest the church should perish. But, though they knew it not, there was among his murderers a young man at whose feet the witnesses laid down their clothing and God called Paul to a greater service than Stephen had ever performed.

"The church is the burning bush of the ages which is never consumed. Though the thrones of earth may rot and the empires of the world may wither the church of God shall stand forever."

Discussion the new church Dr. McKenney said, "This is preeminently an epochal hour in the lives of all of us who call ourselves Christians. This is the biggest hour I've ever seen since I got married. I am grateful for the fulfillment of our hopes and sacrifices which brings us to this hour."

During the preliminary parts of the service the minister acted as a radio announcer for the benefit of those who listened in on the ceremonies. The service was radiocast by station KGKO.

'Uttermost Salvation Need of Hour,' Says Walker in Revival Sermon Here

"An Uttermost Salvation" was the subject of Rev. W. B. Walker, who preached to a large crowd in First Nazarene church Sunday night. Rev. Mr. Walker, who is pastor of the church will continue a revival two weeks. He is assisted by Prof. and Mrs. Jack Carter, who have charge of the music.

"An uttermost salvation is the need of the hour," the minister said.

"The world is lost, sin-smitten, devil-ridden, hell-bound and heart-broken and has many enemies offered.

"It is interesting to note the meaning of uttermost salvation. It means to save in the most perfect manner, so that nothing shall be wanting to complete the salvation. It is a power of working out complete deliverance for God's people. He is able to save, always, and in and through all times, and places and circumstances. To be saved perfectly, so that nothing should be wanting afterwards forever. The word 'utter' means realized or developed to the last degree; entire and complete; beyond given limits; greatest possible extent; farthest point.

Power to Save

"Why is Christ able to save us to the uttermost? Because He made a perfect and complete atonement for sin. 'Without the shedding of blood there is no remission.' Again, He is able, because that He personally struggled with our common foe. Tempted in all points as we are, yet without sin. He can save to the uttermost because He has grace and power sufficient to sustain His people in every test and trial of life. Again, He is able, because He ever sits on the Meditorial throne to make intercession for his people.

"To whom is this uttermost salvation given? It is for them that cometh unto God by Jesus Christ. He is the only name under heaven whereby we must be saved. He is the way of truth and life. 'If the Son be lifted up He will draw all men unto Him.' 'No man can come unto the Father except the Son draw him.'

"We may try to humanize God and deify man, extinguish the fire of the Holy Spirit, and rob the blood of its power, but no man can disbelieve in the divinity of Christ and enjoy an uttermost salvation. Christ is the station through which we must pass to reach heaven's depot.

Believed Defeated

"I recognize that for a while it looked as if Christ were a failure. When his disciples sold him for thirty pieces of silver, when he was arrested in the olive grove, when he stood in the presence of Pontius Pilate, when he staggered down the streets of Jerusalem and struggled up the hill, when they stripped him of his raiment, when we listen to the sickening thud of the hammer, when we see him hanging between two thieves—it seemed that he had failed. Hell thought he was defeated and was jubilant, but it had been declared by the prophet of old 'He shall not fail.' So amid the reeling earth and darkening sun and opening graves, there was a cry, 'It is finished.' The world was redeemed and hell was defeated. Figuratively speaking, there was a rattling at the gates of perdition, the gates were twisted from their rusty hinges, and the Triumphant One walked through the ashes of damnation to the throne of darkness and pulled the Prince from his throne, and threw him in the ashes and withone foot on his neck said, 'I am he that liveth and was dead and am alive forevermore.'"

Motorcycle Rider, 16. Flaunts Traffic Rules

A 16-year-old youth who cavorted about the streets Sunday night on a borrowed motorcycle drew a "full house" in traffic charges when mounted policemen caught him after a long chase. He had violated every regulation except two, to say nothing of what might have happened in the causality direction.

The vehicle had no headlight, no tail light and no licenses and its rider broke every rule except running through a red light and overtime parking. He was arrested in a race that almost ended in a serious accident at Ninth and Broad streets by John F. Lowry and Ralph Rohatsch, motorcycle officers.

Police Stand Aside While Father Gives Son Thrashing

A youth charged with throwing rocks at workmen busy at the Highland Heights Christian church Saturday night was saved from arrest when his father gave him a sound thrashing before police arrived. Police were called to the church on reports that that a gang of boys were bombarding workmen with stones.

One man suffered a cut on the back of his head when a neatly hurled tomato can filled with dirt struck him. The thrower of the "domick," got his punishment at the hands of his father and was not molested by the police.

BURGLARS GET $300 IN LOOT

Wichita Home Raided Sunday Morning

While K. L. Matchett and his wife slept, a burglar robbed them of jewelry and a watch valued at approximately $300 and a small amount of cash Sunday morning at their home, 2115 Garfield street. The burglary was discovered shortly after 8 o'clock when the family arose.

Mr. Matchett, who is a bookkeeper for the Wade-Thompson company, told police the thief took his wife's purse containing money and three rings and a $90 watch, and a quantity of money from his trouser pocket. He said the burglary occurred some time after 3 o'clock in the morning.

An investigation was made by police Sunday but no arrests had been made Sunday night.
