Neff-Terrell And Penn-Moody Clashes Enliven State Proration Hearing

Rail Board Calls Session For Saturday After Gruelling Day

Proration Chairman Quits Stand After Many Hours Of Testimony

AUSTIN, March 27. (AP)—Frayed nerves and ruffled tempers engendered by long, hard-fought resistance of a group of East Texans to curtailment of production in their new found oil field, broke pent up tension today in the hearing before the railroad commission on the proposal to prorate all Texas' oil bearing areas.

Robert R. Penn, chairman of the state central proration committee, whose duty it is to recommend ratable takings for the various fields, resented what he said was an inference of untruthfulness on his part from the lips of Dan Moody, former governor and leading counsel for the anti-prorationists.

Penn Rushes Moody

Penn left the stand he had occupied as a witness for many weary hours and knocked over a chair in a rush for Moody, doubled his fists and offered to fight but members of the railroad commission and others interceded.

A "family feud" between former Gov. Pat M. Neff on one side and C. V. Terrell, chairman, and Lon A. Smith, member of the railroad commission to stop wastage of gas in some fields, notably Reagan county and Refugio, also consumed much time.

The proceedings were slow, tedious and technical and Penn bore the brunt of questioning from several angles as to the justice of the proposed curtailment of production in the new field.

Continue Today

The end of the hearing seemed in sight when the day's session adjourned, but after a conference with his colleagues, Chairman Terrell announced it would be continued tomorrow. Moody said that "it seems we are traveling to an empasse," and suggested that the hearing recess to "some later date."

"We apparently are no nearer a conclusion than when we started last Tuesday," Moody said.

Marion S. Church of Dallas, of counsel for the proration committee, suggested that "we should stay here and finish."

Carl Estes of Tyler, leader among East Texas anti-prorationists, told the commission that "the 'poor folks' crowd hasn't the money that crowd has," and suggested that the hearing be discontinued and the commissioners undertake their own investigation and "not proceed to enter a proration order on recommendations of that self-authoritative committee."

Bullington Takes Hand

"You have the recommendation of the committee and you know if you are going to prorate on that basis," Estes told the commissioners. "You were elected by the people and if we do not like your decision we can go into the courthouse and be through with it."

Church and Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, the latter representing the North Texas Oil and Gas association, both desired to "finish while we are at it."

Bullington said it was a "serious emergency" that affected all parts of the state.

"You will not know any more about the need of prorating the field if you take to the piney woods and stay there six months," Bullington said.

The Penn-Moody mix-up came after the two had but a minute before been bantering each other good naturedly, Moody having recalled in his questioning that he and Penn had lived boys together in Taylor.

Moody had read a long list of

E.S. Barnard, Head Of American League, Dies Suddenly In Rochester

ROCHESTER, Minn., March 27. (AP)—Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American Baseball league, died unexpectedly late today of heart disease. He had come here yesterday with Mrs. Barnard and had planned to consult physicians at a clinic here.

President Barnard's illness was diagnosed as heart trouble, but he was believed to be in no immediate danger and was ordered to bed pending treatment for his illness.

Mrs. Barnard was at his bedside when he passed away.

Mr. Barnard became president of the American league Nov. 1, 1927, succeeding B. B. Johnson, the one time "czar" of baseball and founder of the league. Strangely enough, Johnson is seriously ill in a hospital at St. Louis and his death has been expected daily.

Quieted Strife

Since assuming the presidency of the American league, Barnard has been credited with smoothing over political difficulties among the club owners and has worked in harmony with Commissioner Landis.

At the time Barnard was elected to presidency of the American league, he was connected with the Cleveland club, with which he has served 25 years. He served at Cleveland first as secretary, later as president, after the death of James C. Dunn, owner of the club, in 1922.

With his election to the presidency of the American league, Barnard severed connections with the Cleveland club. He negotiated for transfer of the stock to a syndicate of Cleveland baseball fans, headed by Alva Bradley, millionaire manufacturer.

One Time Writer

He had a guiding hand in persuading Billy Evans, the American league umpire, to give up his mask and chest protector to become business manager of the club.

Starting his career as a baseball writer and sports editor, Mr. Barnard's interest always had been centered in baseball and when he was elected president of the American league his experience was backed up in every department of baseball management.

"Barney," as he was known to his intimates, gave the impression of being "hard boiled" because he always worked hard in the interest of the sport. But his intimate friends always regarded him as sincere and kindly, with the welfare of the baseball always in his heart and in his decisions.

Woman Candidate For Governor in 1926 Held in Jail

FLORESVILLE, Texas, March 27. (UP)—A woman who gave her name as Mrs. K. M. Johnson, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas in 1926, was jailed here today on forgery charges. She was accused of forging the signature of former Governor W. P. Hobby to a $700 check.

The woman was arrested yesterday in San Antonio and and brought here last night by Sheriff A. B. Carnes, who said the woman came here a week ago saying she planned to buy real estate near here. She pretended to be acquainted with most of the wealthy families here, the sheriff said.

PRIEST POINTS OUT BROTHERS

Policeman Admits His Mind 'Was Blank'

CHICAGO, March 27. (US)—A priest's dramatic identification of Leo V. Brothers as the man who fled the scene of the Alfred J. Lingle murder and the startling declaration of the policeman who once picked Frankie Foster out as the assassin that his mind was a "complete blank" at the time were the high points of Brothers' trial today.

Anthony Ruthy was a traffic officer at Michigan boulevard and Randolph street the day Lingle was slain. He is the policeman who pursued the presumable slayer—and lost him.

Today, on the stand, he told a weird story of having "visions" of everything and everybody "from the good Lord down to Abraham Lincoln, dogs and people in general." When a man came running toward him after the murder of Lingle, he saw a vision, he testified.

Attorney Louis Piquett of defense counsel asked him:

"When you identified Foster in court, did you identify him or a vision?"

To which Ruthy gave the remarkable answer:

"That day my mind was a complete blank."

The priest's identification of Brothers preceded Ruthy's testimony.

Others during the five days that testimony has been taken merely pointed Brothers out from their chair on the witness stand.

The priest, Rev. John J. Reynolds, a member of the faculty of Notre Dame university, arose from his chair, walked over to Brothers sit-

DEEP OIL TO KEEP WICHITA IN 'SPOTLIGHT'

Revival of Industry Here Predicted at Luncheon Of C-C Council

VALLEY IMPROVING

Canning Plant Would Prove Profitable and Aid Development

The return of Wichita Falls to the center of the oil spotlight of North Texas and the possibility of the city securing a canning factory with which to distribute the Wichita valley's production of fruit and food products were chief topics for discussion by a number of speakers Friday noon during the luncheon program of the business council of the chamber of commerce.

Revival of oil interest in this section and the rapid strides being made in the development of agriculture in the valley were attributed as contributing greatly to a renewed optimism manifested general in this territory.

Discovery of oil at depths in Archer and Wichita county was named by N. H. Martin, president of the Deep Oil Development company, and Rhea Howard, secretary-treasurer of the Times Publishing company, to be the most important happening since the discovery of the Fowler well at Burkburnett, which preceded Wichita Falls' original oil boom.

Drilling Campaign

Mr. Martin declared that the re-drilling of the entire Wichita Falls oil territory will result from the two major discoveries in the Chalk Hill and Kemp City districts. Speaking of the value a revived oil industry to this area, Mr. Martin said, "The discoveries made in the Chalk Hill district and near Kemp City open a fertile and virgin field, and provide Wichita Falls with a store of wealth which 12 months ago we did not know existed. The discovery means that our oil men will not have to leave Wichita Falls to continue in business. Of course, conditions in the oil industry are not favorable just at present, but we believe that they will improve."

E. M. Crump expressed the belief that a canning factory here would be of great value and that an investment in such a concern would be a profitable one. He cited figures showing that local wholesalers distributed 150,000 pounds of canned spinach, 250,000 pounds of canned corn, 100,000 pounds of string beans, 25,000 cans of kraut, and great quantities of canned fruit. Pointing out that most produce grown in the Wichita valley was consumed locally, Mr. Crump asserted that a cannery here would

Daisy Wins Liberty After Prolonged Fight

The order for release of the 26-year-old blonde was given by Presiding Justice Nathaniel Conkey of the district court of appeal.

BONDS NEED ONE MORE VOTE

Opponents to State Issue Hold Check

AUSTIN, March 27. (UP)—Opponents of the proposal for amendments to the constitution to issue $200,000,000 in state highway bonds, ending their second day's fight in the Texas senate, apparently had the exact number of votes needed to defeat submission of the proposal to the electorate in the fall.

The opponents were unable, however, all through today's debate on the proposal, to secure enough votes for adoption of amendments they desire. These dealt with amount of repayments to be made to counties for money spent on roads now part of the state highway system.

Senator Clint Small, leader of the opponents, drew from Senator Holbrook the admission that in law the state could not issue the bonds and limit repayment to receipts from a gasoline tax, but when he tried to amend the resolution for submission of the bond issue, so that it would do away with the "subterfuge" of exempting real property, his proposal lost by a 19 to 10 vote, with two senators paired.

Twenty-one votes will be required in the senate for submission of the proposal to the voters. On the strength of the late vote today—on the Small amendment, which ended the day's session—advocates of the bonds lack one senator of having enough to pass the measure.

When the senate made the bond proposal special order of business for Monday, it ordered printed in the journal, several more amendments to be acted on.

There was among them, a proposal by Senator W. R. Poage of Waco, for an entire substitute resolution, which would finance highway construction with a gasoline tax and require no bonds; proposals that if bonds are issued the regents of the University of Texas and the state board of education shall have option to purchase as many of them as they desire.

Death Stops Brilliant Pen As Arnold Bennett Yields to Disease

Famous English Novelist Dies Peacefully After Valiant Fight Against Typhoid Influenza

LONDON, March 27. (UP)—Enoch Arnold Bennett, one of England's most brilliant novelists and dramatists, died in his London flat tonight at the end of a long, valiant fight for life against the ravages of influenza and typhoid fever. He would have been 64 years old May 27.

The end came peacefully at 8:55 p. m. at the bedside. Bennett had been unconscious since 6 p. m.

Weeks of influenza which developed into typhoid fever had wasted the famous author. Straw had been laid thickly over the surface of Baker street, outside his flat in the Chiltern court apartment, to deaden the sound and vibration of heavy traffic.

Transfusion Fails

The doctors sought to save Bennett's life with a blood transfusion, performed Wednesday. He showed a slight improvement but during last night became worse and sank rapidly during today until his death this evening.

Bennett, with H. G. Wells and John Galsworthy, was considered among the three greatest English novelists of the post-Victorian era.

He married a French woman, but effected a legal separation without bitterness in 1922.

Writing of his impressions of the United States, Bennett found the two chief modern characteristics of the country were business shrewdness of an exteremis type and public philanthropy conceived and executed in the grandest manner.

Scorned Night Life

Bennett looked upon night life of the gilded age as futile, harmful, and infantile. He maintained that there was no cause for alarm in the fact that a man who reached the age of 60 had spent some 20 years of his life in bed and about three years eating. "If the man had not spent the time in bed he might have spent it in some activity far more reprehensible," Bennett said.

Bennett's ability to write interestingly about ordinary things, to lend an air of enchantment to the commonplace, won him a large following at home and abroad.

After "The Old Wives' Tale," a period followed in which the author produced the best of his short stories and novels. In four years he wrote "Clay-Hanger," "The Card," "Hilda Lessways," and "The Matador of the Five Towns."

Adds Triumph

His most succesful play was "The Great Adventure," based on his novel, "Buried Alive."

Bennett's journalistic activities included political articles, dramatic criticism and book reviews. From 1912 to 1923 he produced nothing to rank with his earlier successes, but in 1923 the novel "Riceyman Steps" was added to his triumphs.

Brimming Cup Barred From Union Banquet

PANAMA CITY, March 27. (US)—The Saturday night banquet of the Metal Trades Union was ordered "dried up" by union leaders this afternoon to placate U. S. Senator Smith W. Brookhart and Representative E. E. Dennison, guests of honor.

By so doing the union won the Illinois congressman's acceptance of an invitation, but Brookhart still intends to remain away. The Iowa senator said he was "too tired" to attend, even if the brimming cup was to be absent.

President's Ship Spots 'Destroyer'

ABOARD U. S. S. ARIZONA, March 27. (US)—President Hoover by no means a timid "landlubber," was given a real thrill tonight when the Arizona was put through a unique efficiency test while plowing homeward toward Norfolk through heavy seas, her bow frequently awash beneath a leaping comber.

The modernized battleship proved its stability to withstand a torpedo attack launched by an unknown enemy under cover of darkness.

Despite the heavy weather, the escort destroyer Dupont was ordered several miles off port to represent the enemy. All lights on the Arizona were then dimmed and the Dupont came riding through the storm, bent on "sinking" the Arizona with a torpedo. The new devices on the Arizona succeeded in fixing the destroyer's position, however, and, had it been real war instead of a maneuver, the Dupont would now be resting at the bottom of the sea, sent there by the Arizona's guns.

After the evening talkie show, a canvas shelter was erected for the president. Protected from the flying spray and biting wind, he talked with Hugh Thompson, enlisted radio operator, whose father M. Roy Thompson, studied engineering with President Hoover at Stanford university. The elder Thompson directed the reclamation of Death Valley.

The president was more than satisfied with the results of the tests, and still believes the battleship to be the backbone of the United States' fleet. The president also took part in the emergency drills to "abandon ship" with which the forenoon was occupied.

RIO DE JANIERO, March 27. (US)—Three members of the Canadian Commercial mission, which arrived here today in conjunction with the visit of the Prince of Wales, were drowned while sea bathing at Impanema beach.

The Prince of Wales was greeted by a crowd of about 80,000 when he arrived at the jockey club races this afternoon.

SNOW BLOCKS HIGHWAY AND RAIL TRAFFIC

Lowest March Temperature On Record Strikes Wichita Area

WHEAT TO ESCAPE

Alfalfa and Corn Killed In Freeze; Drifts Block Denver Line

Rigid in the grip of snow and ice, Wichita Falls with all of Oklahoma and Northwest Texas lay frozen Friday night, stripped of fruit and garden crops, in danger of stock losses, crippled in traffic, and only feebly cheered by news that the blighting breath of the spring norther was dying in Northern Oklahoma and more moderate temperatures were in prospect.

Within a few hours time Thursday night and early Friday morning an 18-mile northwest wind, driving sleet and snow before it, wiped out signs and fruits of spring, and plunged the temperature over the area down to between seven degrees in the Panhandle to 19 degrees here, the bottom levels for the season and the lowest March temperatures on record here.

A bleak sun found its way through snow clouds here and there over the area, and the mercury struggled up 10 points to reach 29 degrees in Wichita Falls in the afternoon, but the coming of night tightened the grip of the blizzard for its second night's disastrous reign.

Traffic Blocked

At 12 o'clock Friday night the temperature here had fallen to 26 degrees from its 29 degree maximum at 5 o'clock. Prospects were for another deep freeze before a break in the storm could be expected.

Mud and frozen roads halted bus connections between Wichita Falls and Gainesville, and Frederick, Okla. The northbound Denver was bound by drifts in a cut just south of Amarillo, blocking the track for the southbound, so that no traffic was possible during the day. Snow plows and crews battled the drifts through the day and dispatchers believed the trains would move again before midnight. Traffic over the Katy line in Texas was undisturbed, but in Northern Oklahoma great drifts paralyzed all railroad schedules, with little hope that they would be renewed before late Saturday.

The severe freeze, penetrating deep into the earth to strike at roots, was believed to spell the doom of a promising fruit crop. Truck gardens were wiped out, and oats, alfalfa and sprouted corn killed, according to forecasts of G. C. McGown, county farm agent, after conferences with farmers of the area. Wheat and other small grains will survive, he thought.

Livestock Suffer

From the north came reports of suffering livestock, though cattlemen hoped the actual losses would be smaller than at first feared.

Human suffering mounted as the wind-driven snow and sleet over practically every community in Texas and Oklahoma. Transient men besieged the Salvation Army here for shelter and beds and needy families increased their calls for clothing, blankets, food and medical aid.

Heavy demands on the two local gas companies were met with more than enough pressure to overcome the emergency, it was stated. The Municipal Gas company, serving Wichita Falls from an 18-inch line, and the Northern Texas Utilities company, with a 16-inch line, were able to deliver all the gas needed for domestic and industrial demands, officials said.

Nowhere over the section did the fleeting afternoon temperature

Jealousy of Chauffeur Blamed For Suicide of Young Naval Officer

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27. (AP)—Crazed by jealousy over his wife's actions, a coroner's jury decided today, Lieut. Com. Emory Winship, U. S. N., retired, followed the time-worn code of honor of fighting men and killed himself rather than to face disgrace.

His story of how he found his attractive young wife in the bedroom of her chauffeur Friday, March 13, after a party in which drinks were freely served was told by two witnesses today.

For a week he brooded silently over impending disgrace, during which he was driven by "mad impulses to take two or more lives." Then he shot himself last Saturday as the "only way out."

Both the widow and her chauffeur, Ray McGunigle, denied improper relations existed between them, explaining Mrs. Dorothy Winship had gone to call her chauffeur at 4 o'clock in the morning and they were standing in the doorway to his room when the former naval officer saw them.

Mrs. Winship said she called the chauffeur then because she could "no longer stand his (Winship's) continual drinking" and had decided to leave.

Questioned whether the demands of Miss Helen Thompson, former motion picture actress, and former friend of Winship, might have contributed to the suicide, Joseph W. Preston Jr., testified the former naval officer was not particularly worried over her attitude.

Youth Near Death in Hospital After Auto and Motorcycle Crash

With a fracture at the base of the skull and possible internal injuries, Cecil Sherwood, 20, was in a critical condition Friday night at the Wichita General hospital following an accident in which the motorcycle he was riding and an automobile collided near the intersection of Seventh street and the alley back of the Texan hotel.

The impact of the crash, investigating officers said, threw the motorcycle rider from his machine, his head striking the pavement with much force. The accident occurred about 5 o'clock.

R. M. Mercer, 2015 McGregor street, was being detained Friday night by police, pending further investigation of the crash and to await the outcome of the youth's injuries. Mercer denied to police that his automobile was the machine with which the motorcycle collided, declaring that the accident occurred some distance behind him in the alley. Sherwood, accompanied by Mercer, was taken in an Albert's Funeral home ambulance to the hospital.

The youth is employed by the Tenth Street Drug store as a motorcycle courier. He resides at 1302 Travis street.

Officers investigating the crash were Ellis Summers and A. L. Stubblefield, city detectives, and Homer Bentley, motorcycle captain.

OKLA. HIGHWAY INQUIRY ENDS

Committee Meets Today To Consider Report

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27. (UP)—Investigation of the highway department closed today with H. H. Ogden, Muskogee banker, denying he had told Secretary Ed McDonald that Commissioner Lew H. Wentz had charged McDonald with being short $1,800 in his accounts.

The joint legislative committee will meet tomorrow to consider a report.

Consideration of their report was delayed because of the actions of the committee chairman, Mac Q. Williamson.

Ogden said he had a conversation with McDonald in January, 1930, in which he referred to having seen Commissioner Wentz and referred to newspaper interviews from Wentz referring to alleged shortages in the department.

Wentz did not tell him that McDonald was short and he did not remember whether he made it plain to McDonald whether he was referring to these newspaper interviews and not to his conversation with Wentz when he discussed the alleged shortage.

The wireless telegraph station in Mexico City has been equipped to communicate with all the countries of the world.

SICK HEADACHE CAUSES AIRED

Oklahoma Physician Tells Of Migraine

By F. B. COLTON
Associated Press Science Writer

BALTIMORE, March 27.—More than four million people in the United States, including a million children, probably are sufferers from migraine, or sick headache. Dr. Ray M. Balyeat of the University of Oklahoma, told the American College of Physicians about seven per cent of the population suffer from migraine sometime during their lives. He reported the results of studies of 202 cases.

Migraine is a close relative of hay fever, asthma, and some forms of eczema. People who have had these diseases are more likely to have migraine. Migraine sufferers are highly sensitive to some form of food, Dr. Balyeat explained. Eating that particular food seems to have a constructing effect on small arteries in the cortex or outer layer of the brain, and pain results.

Milk, wheat, eggs, nuts, beans and fish all may cause migraine. Treatment consists in finding to what food the patient is sensitive, and then removing it from his diet.

Migraine apparently may be inherited, he said. It occurs more frequently in families that also suffer from hay fever, asthma and eczema. Brain workers, such as college professors, students and business men seem to be twice as susceptible to migraine as laborers, because they have more highly developed nervous systems. About twice as many women as men have migraine.

Two-thirds of the cases of migraine apparently start before the age of 20, and about one-third before the age of 12. Many children are fitted with glasses to cure headaches supposed to result from eye strain, when actually they have migrane, Dr. Balyeat declared.

Dr. Cyrus C. Sturgis of Ann Harbor, Michigan, reported that eating pig stomach seems to benefit people with pernicious anaemia because it supplies material to the human stomach, the lack of which is responsible for the disease.

CHILLICOTHE C-C MEET SET

1931 Banquet to Be Held On April 10

Special to The Record News

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, March 27.—Every effort is being put forth to make the 1931 chamber of commerce banquet the most successful of any held, and already arrangements have been made to bring here as the principal speaker, J. A. Moore of Dallas, well known Texas agriculturalist, and a member of the State Fair association.

The banquet is to be held Friday evening, April 10, and besides Mr. Moore, others from here as well as other cities will be heard to speak. Being located in an agricultural territory, the local chamber of commerce membership is naturally interested in this vocation, and for this reason Mr. Moore's address is expected to be of more importance than it would be otherwise. He is an expert on this subject, being selected, at one time, as one of the master farmers of Texas.

J. Roy Quinby, superintendent of the Chillicothe experiment station, was again elected to the presidency of the chamber of commerce at a meeting held Monday afternoon by the board of directors. His election was unanimous. At the same time other officers who have served during the past year were re-elected, those being M. R. Allensworth, first vice president, and L. L. Lincecum, second vice president.

RECIPES

Fish Cake Sandwich

Make the fish cakes as follows: Flake enough salt codfish to make one cupful, pare and cut into pieces two cupfuls of potatoes; boil together, without soaking the fish, until the potatoes are very tender; then drain, mash well, add one well-beaten egg and pepper to taste. No salt will be required but a very little milk may be added, if the mixture seems too dry. Make up into finger length rolls and wrap each in a strip of wafer-thin bacon. Arrange two of the bacon-wrapped rolls on rounds of biscuit dough, set in a hot oven and when the bacon crisps turn the fish rolls to cook on the other side. When biscuits are done serve at once with chili sauce. (Canned codfish and seasoned mashed potatoes may be used instead of the salt codfish.)

Breaded Pigeons

Cut carefully cleaned pigeons in halves, through the back and breast bones. Let steam until tender. Roll in soft, sifted bread crumbs and saute in hot fat from salt pork, first on one side and then on the other, until well browned. Garnish with toast points, the ends of which have been dipped in raw white of egg and finely chopped parsley. (Season with salt and pepper before rolling in crumbs.)

Potatoes With Cheese Meringue

Three cupfuls mashed potatoes.
Two tablespoonfuls butter.
Two eggs.
Hot milk.
Pepper.
Paprika.
One-half cupful grated dry cheese.

As soon as the potatoes are mashed add the butter, seasoning and egg yolks, beaten slightly. Add the hot milk, enough to produce a soft creamy texture. Pile in a baking dish and cover with the meringue, made by beating the egg whites stiff and folding in grated cheese and a little salt. Sprinkle lightly with paprika and bake for 10 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until light brown.

Bran Sticks

Sift together one-half cupful pastry flour, one-half teaspoonful salt and one-half teaspoonful soda; add one-half cupful Graham flour and one-half cupful bran; mix well and add one-half cupful seedless raisins, one-fourth cupful molasses, two-thirds cupful milk, one egg slightly beaten and one tablespoonful melted butter. Mix thoroughly, put in greased break-stick pans and bake in a moderate over or at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for from 20 to 30 minutes. (Sift the soda before measuring it and sift it again with the flour and salt; the Graham flour and bran should not be sifted; the final stirring should be just enough to mix the ingredients thoroughly, since too much beating causes tall chimneys or up and down holes to form in such mixtures.)

Cabbage and Tomato Relish Salad

Two cupfuls finely shredded cabbage.
One cupful diced, unpeeled tomatoes.
One-half cupful French dressing.

Chill diced tomatoes and shredded cabbage in separate bowls. Combine and marinate in French dressing for 30 minutes before serving. Serve on shredded lettuce. This quantity serves six.

Honey Parfait

One teaspoonful gelatin.
Two tablespoonfuls water.
Few grains of salt.
Two eggs.
One-fourth cupful honey.
One-half pint double cream.

Soak gelatin in cold water in top of small double boiler. Dissolve over hot water, then add egg yolks and beat until light. Add honey slowly, beating all the time, then stir and cook over hot water until thickened. Cool, add salt, egg whites beaten stiff and fold in beaten cream. Freeze in drawer of an electric refrigerator or in tightly covered mold surrounded with equal parts ice and salt.

Chocolate Sponge Cake

Three-fourths cupful pastry flour.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
Four tablespoonfuls cocoa.
Five eggs.
One tablespoonful lemon juice.
One cupful sugar.

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and cocoa and sift four or five times. Separate eggs, beat yolks until thick and lemon-colored, adding gradually one-half cupful of sugar and the lemon juice. Beat egg whites until stiff, beating in remaining half cup of sugar. Fold egg yolk mixture into egg whites, then sift on dry ingredients and fold carefully into mixture. Bake in an ungreased angel cake pan in a slow oven or at 300 degrees Fahrenheit from 50 to 60 minutes. Remove from the oven and invert the pan. When cake drops, sprinkle with powdered sugar. Separate with two forks at serving time.

Chinese Chicken

Drain and chop fine a No. 2 can of pineapple and saute the fruit in three tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour and cook until thick and smooth. Then add two cupfuls of diced cooked chicken and one cupful of chicken stock or boiling water, with half a cupful of shredded celery and half a small green pepper finely shredded. Cook slowly five minutes; season well, then garnish with shredded almonds.

Coffee Souffle

One and a half cupfuls coffee infusion.
One-half cupful milk.
Two-thirds cupful sugar.
One-half teaspoonful vanilla.
One tablespoonful gelatin.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
Three eggs, separated.

Mix the coffee infusion (beverage) and milk with half the sugar and the gelatin and heat in a double boiler. Pour on the slightly beaten egg yolks, rest of sugar, salt; return to the double boiler and cook until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and vanilla. Pour into cold wet molds and chill. Serve with whipped cream. If desired, one-half cup cream may be whipped and folded in the mixture just after the egg whites.

Fish in Preserved Forms

Even though it is possible for housewives in cities to obtain fresh and frozen fish at the fish markets almost any day in the year, it is wise to stock the pantry shelf with a variety of canned fish and to remember that salt and smoked fish may be secured at any time from the grocer.

If there are several varieties of canned fish in the house, there will not be the tendency to forget to include this valuable product in the weekly menus as when the fresh kinds are depended upon alone. A glance at the stock on hand will give a quick answer to the luncheon question or the problem of what to have for a quickly prepared supper when friends drop in unexpectedly for an evening of cards.

Shrimp, oysters, clams, lobsters, crab meat, herring, salmon, tuna fish and sardines are a few of the best known of the canned varieties. The most satisfactory of the smoked fish available are salmon, sturgeon, whitefish, finnan haddie, mackerel and halibut and of the salt fish cod, mackerel, salmon, pollock and whiting.

Plus its face value of furnishing variety in the menu, fish contains a large amount of necessary iodine and the fish oils are a source of vitamines. Although the canned and preserved fish are not so rich in these properties, perhaps as fresh oysters, lobsters and other shell fish, nevertheless, they are of value and their more frequent use is to be encouraged.

Excellent authorities inform us that most of the salt and smoked fish are of greater value as food products than they are when fresh, and that salted or smoked these same fish sell for a much lower sum than they would as fresh fish, due to the fact that the curing extracts most of the water from the fish, leaving only the edible flesh. Statistics show that dry salt cod contains 22 per cent of protein as against 16 per cent when the same fish is fresh. The same is true of mackerel and of almost every other salt and smoked variety. Therefore, when one takes into consideration the fact that the fresh fish is at least 30 per cent higher in price than the smoked, the question of smoked and salt fish seems one well worth the housewife's attention.

Salt fish, if it is to be thoroughly satisfactory, must be carefully refreshed before it is cooked. A casual soaking of 20 minutes or so will not answer; it must be given from 24 to 48 hours or it will be briny when served. Salmon in brine will require fully 48 hours soaking, and the water should be changed several times during the period. If possible, this freshening should be followed by an additional five or six hours' soaking in milk and water, which will not only remove the superfluous salt, but will give an added tenderness and delicacy to the flesh of the fish.

In soaking salt fish place it in a pan sufficiently large to hold it, and fill the pan with water, so that the fish will be fully immersed in it. Place the fish, meat side down, in the water with a rack beneath it to prevent its sinking to the bottom of the pan. If the fish is to be broiled it should be permitted a longer time in its cold water bath than if it is to be creamed or prepared with milk in some other fashion. If it is necessary to hasten the process of freshening, the meat of the fish may be cut deeply in several places before it is put to soak.

Dry salt fish will also require freshening but not for so long a period; 12 hours should suffice for it, and often it will not require more than one half that time. It may be used in a few recipes without being soaked at all, but they are few and far between.

Freshening, or previous preparation of any kind, except in a few dishes, is entirely unnecessary with smoked fish; in fact, this style of preserved fish may be served even without heating, if it is so desired. If a recipe calls for previous soaking, and it is necessary to hasten the process, the smoked fish may be placed over the fire in cold water, brought to the boil slowly and then drained and rinsed in fresh water.

Old-Fashioned Salt Fish Dinner

In all parts of New England, the salt codfish dinner has always been a prime favorite. If you have never served one, an old-fashioned salt fish dinner will prove novel.

Select the thickest, whitest slice or slices of the best boneless cod; soak it in cold water for several hours and cook gently in successive fresh waters until well softened and swollen and not too salty. Remove to a hot serving platter, garnish with minced parsley and surround with part of a rich white sauce prepared in the proportions of one pint of sauce to one pound of the fish. Either add to the sauce or sprinkle on top of it one or two chopped hard cooked eggs, or flake the fish, mix with the egg sauce, pour on the platter and sprinkle with parsley. Accompany with new beets, latticed carrots, onions if you wish, white potatoes and a little sauce boat of cooked scraps of fat salt pork floating in their own fat. To make the scraps, cut the pork in small dice and try out slowly until the bits are a delicate brown and crisp. Pass more of the sauce and remember that the fish, sauce and scraps and vegetables must be delicately mixed on the plate before beginning to eat the combination.

This dinner may be attractively served in "one piece" by selecting for it a good-sized platter. Place the fish in the center, surround with a ring of the latticed carrots, outside of these arrange the potatoes and whole beets, alternately. Place the onions in the interstices formed by the beets and potatoes. Sprinkle minced parsley over the fish and pass the egg sauce in a gravy boat or pour some of it over the fish as preferred. Pass the pork scraps.

Broiled Mackerel

In selecting mackerel for broiling, choose the larger fish, as they are more meaty and juicy when cooked. After freshening according to the directions, wipe the mackerel thoroughly, for if water is present when it is cooked it will cause the fish to stew rather than to take on that deliciously crisp, brown appearance which is so desirable.

Heat the broiler and rub the bars with butter, margarine or bacon fat. Then lay the fish, flesh side down, on the broiler and place it under the flame to cook to a nice, tempting brown. Then turn the broiler and brown the other side of the fish lightly. Serve on a hot platter and brush over with melted butter. Garnish the dish with a lemon cut lengthwise, or broiled bacon, with bits of curled parsley; serve very hot. This recipe may be used also in cooking smoked sturgeon, salmon, white fish, finnan haddie or herring.

Finnan Haddie a la King

Select a smoked haddock weighing from a pound and a half to two pounds and soak it in cold water for an hour. Then cover it with fresh water and bring to the boiling point. Drain, rinse and remove skin and bone. Flake into pieces of a convenient size to serve and set aside while the sauce is being prepared. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of flour, cooking them together until smooth and thick, then add two cupfuls of cold milk and simmer until the sauce is well thickened. Now add one pimento cut in pieces, one green pepper freed from its seeds and cut in small pieces, then sauted in a little butter or margarine, and one hard cooked egg cut in rings. Add the fish and let simmer in the sauce gently for ten minutes; season to taste and serve on buttered toast. If an especially nice dish is desired a few canned or fresh mushrooms sauted in butter may be substituted for the hard-cooked eggs, but the finnan haddie will be good whichever embellishment is selected. Garnish with stuffed olives and parsley.

Smoked Herring, English Fashion

Skin and bone three large-sized herring and soak them 20 minutes in warm milk mixed with an equal quantity of water. Wipe dry and marinate in a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, the yolk of one egg, well beaten, and a tablespoonful each of finely chopped parsley and onion. Then saute brown in hot margarine. Drain and place on a hot platter. Add a tablespoonful of flour to the liquid and brown it well, then add a cupful of water and simmer until smooth. Season highly and pour over the fish.

Serves six.

Whipped-Cream Fondant

2 c. sugar ⅛ t. cream of tartar
1 c. water 1 egg white, beaten
½ t. vanilla

Cook the mixture as for regular fondant. While beating it, just before it becomes creamy, fold in the beaten egg white. Flavor and knead. Shape into balls for dipping in chocolate, etc.

Reds Bar Rachmaninoff
Music Beyond Boundaries
One King's Troubles

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Has a rich girl a right to work? Has she a right to work when, by holding down a job in these critical days, she deprives someone else, to whom it is a serious matter, of employment?

At a fashionable Fifth avenue establishment which sells sportswear, several young ladies of society are represented on the sales staff. One of these is Miss Betty Gerard, niece of the former ambassador to Germany. Another is Miss Anita McKim Gwynne. These two daughters of the rich have been receiving threatening letters demanding that they vacate their places. Both are under guard, an expense which they can well afford to pay.

Work is an inalienable right, to which the millionaire can lay as just a claim as the tenement dweller. But there are times when the right must be exercised with forethought and discretion. Miss Gerard and her set do not and need not sell hats and gowns for a livelihood. They do it as a lark. It is great fun for them. Time hangs heavily on debutantes, for all their teas and dances. "Selling things" is a way of killing time. It also takes care of their surplus energy, of which they complain so often for want of an outlet.

A capital way of utilizing the surplus energy of society girls is to direct it towards helping the unemployed get jobs, and the best way to do that is for them to quit their own and use some of their money to help young women on the verge of starvation.

Orpheus, we know, was able to move inanimate objects by his music. But that was fable. The modern Russians believe as much in the power of music as did the ancient Greeks, for they have just pronounced a boycott on Rachmaninoff's compositions which they consider "reactionary and particularly dangerous to conditions in the acute class struggle" on the musical front.

Many of the best writers of Russia are now living in exile. The Bible, Tolstoi and the writings of others have been banned. Now the works of one of the greatest of living composers are taboo. What next?

Rachmaninoff's concerti, symphonies, preludes, compositions in chamber music, will outlast a dozen Soviet regimes, just as the music of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms outlasted the German empire. If there is any art that transcends national boundaries, it is music. Boycotting it, making it an offense to play or print it, is as futile as the command of Canute to the rising tide of the Thames.

An opportunity to gaze upon an Asiatic monarch and his consort will be given New Yorkers soon for the first time in history when the king and queen of Siam arrive here on a visit.

Curiously enough, it isn't to pay respect to President Hoover that King Prajadhipok and his entourage will travel several thousand miles. It is a cataract in one of His Majesty's eyes which is responsible for the trip. Dr. John M. Wheeler of the Presbyterian hospital, entrusted with the operation, hopes to make it a successful one.

Formerly when a king needed the aid of a surgeon, the surgeon was sent for. Nowadays the practice is reversed. And there is no noblesse oblige here, for today science is king, and all the world is its subject. Human kings have had their day.

Looking Ahead

PROBABLY the worst of the unemployment difficulty is over. Every sign indicates that the depression is ending. Within a comparatively short time the country should be well on its way back to normal prosperity.

Nevertheless, we shall simply be asking for more trouble in the future if we fail to make every effort to understand just what the depression has meant in terms of human suffering. The depression itself may be ending; our study of it should just be beginning.

In this connection, it is worth while to look at a study of the effects of unemployment on 50 American families, made by the magazine, The Family, which is published by the Family Welfare Association of America. This shows just what happens in a family whose income is shut off for a long period.

"The center of interest in these 50 households," says the report, "was food—whether there would be more or less of it; and work—whether there would be any at all."

After a shortage of funds compelled public relief agencies to stop aiding these families, it was found that many of them were living on bread, potatoes, coffee and weak soup. This was especially a common diet for children. Butter, milk, fruit and meat, being the most expensive foods, were the first to be eliminated from the table when unemployment hit the families.

A scattering of part-time jobs keep the families from actual starvation. Their incomes, over a period of months, averaged from $5 to $15 a week per family. Rent and insurance were the first obligations allowed to lapse. Thirty-two of the families were from one to 16 months rent in arrears; and this was despite the fact that their rent averaged only about $15 a month. Nine families had been evicted. The three families that had been buying their homes had either lost them or had received warning notices.

Incidentally, there were more native-born than foreign-born families in this group, and some of the wage earners had been highly skilled workers whose pay checks normally ranged from $60 to $75 a week. In 35 of the families there were two or more children.

"Although no catastrophic changes had occurred," says the report, "a slow disintegration of moral and general living conditions was taking place. . . . Of the families forced to move into cheaper quarters, 16 were living in rooms which had no electricity, 10 had no gas and one no running water."

All of this is worth remembering. Prosperity will return, in full measure; but we must never allow ourselves to forget just what those hackeneyed words, "business depression," mean to the people who bear the brunt of it.

Why We Go to College

A COLLEGE or a university is generally believed to be a sort of warehouse where innumerable facts are stored, to be sorted out and delivered, in proper quantities, to aspiring students who come in search of knowledge. But Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, told middle-western alumni of Dartmouth the other day that this conception of a college is entirely wrong.

Indeed, he asserted, the prime function of a college is not at all to give knowledge to its students. It does its part if it merely imparts to them an inquiring and understanding habit of mind.

"Nothing is more useless than a fact by itself," says Dr. Hopkins. "The only thing a liberal arts college can do is to offer the atmosphere and environment in which education can be got."

All of this is perfectly sound, and educators all over the country have been saying it for years; but since it runs counter to the ordinary conception of higher education it is worth looking at a bit.

During the last two decades the ranks of college students in the United States have been enormously increased. A far higher percentage of young people is going to college today than was the case a generation ago; and back of this increase lies a fervent hope, on the part of hundreds of thousands of parents, that the colleges will somehow contrive to stuff their offspring with knowledge that will bring larger pay checks, finer homes and a more comfortable station in life.

Unfortunately, it doesn't always work out that way; and a great deal of disappointment would be prevented if there could only be a wider understanding of the truth of Dr. Hopkins' remarks.

The college does not exist primarily to enable young people to make more money when they get out into the world. It is not supposed to load their brains with facts so that they will be walking encyclopedias. The most it can hope to do is put them into contact with the thoughts of great minds, and teach them to maintain an inquiring and unprejudiced attitude. As Dr. Hopkins says, it aims not so much to teach the students to do something as to teach them to be something.

But it probably will take us a long time to realize this. We demand tangible results when we put our money on the line. When we send our son off to college we fondly expect that he will emerge, after four years of it, ready to become a captain of industry or a highly-salaried professional man. It is hard for us to understand that a broadened horizon can be, in itself, worth the expense of a college education.

Big Business Girl . . By One of Them

Claire MacIntyre, knows as Mac, and Johnny Goodman lead the petting parties at State university. They are desperately in love. But Mac, who is to graduate a year ahead of Johnny, tells him she is going to carve out a business career in Chicago. Johnny, whose protests are of no avail, heads a band of collegians having a summer engagement in Paris. Mac goes to Chicago and works for the R. J. Clayton Co., a big outfit of dry cleaners. The business is threatened by racketeers. Mac proves her diplomacy in handling one gang of racketeers, and Clayton, known as R. J., takes a fancy to her. He invites her to a party at his home. Johnny arrives on the day of the party. He and Mac have a violent quarrel when he learns where she is going and that she intends to go ahead with her business career. At the party Clayton makes surreptitious love to Mac. Then the party adjourns to the night club where Johnny is leading the orchestra. Johnny stirs Mac to tears by playing their favorite tunes of college days. Clayton suggests to Mac that they go upstairs, where there is gambling. On their return to the dance floor, Johnny comes over and makes a scene. Clayton protests. Johnny announces that Mac is his wife. The next day Johnny pleads with Mac to give up her career. On her refusal, he intimates that her employer is in love with her. Mac suggests that she and Johnny secure a divorce. Johnny agrees.

INSTALLMENT XVIII

There was a ring to Monday morning which Mac enjoyed. She liekd to get down to the office and find her mail on the desk and plan what she was going to do with every minute of that first fresh day.

This morning she was particularly glad to leave the house and get into the swing, the rhythm of a big city going to work. She wondered how women just stayed at home and shopped and played bridge in the afternoon and had tea together, with nothing to talk about except their parties and husbands and menus and clothes.

Business this morning was to Mac a retreat from her emotions. And although Mac did not deceive herself into thinking that she had yet achieved what a man went after in his job—not at $35 a week!—she had a substitute for love when love failed her.

"Good morning, Jake," she smiled at the elevator man. The telephone operator, the reception clerk, her secretary—she was part of their world. She was expected here and welcomed.

She did wonder for a moment if R. J. would mention Saturday night and ask for an explanation—he had considerately sent her into town in his car after Luke had ceased to be a suitable escort, and had said nothing whatever about Johnny Goodman and his revelations.

Earlier than usual, he sent for her. It surprised her a little that he said, "How are you this morning, Claire?" instead of the usual "Good morning, Miss MacIntyre." She was being silly, of course, since she had allowed him to kiss her and they had become so much more mentally intimate, too, with reservations for the future. But she thought he would understand and would forget all about the extra-official episode.

R. J. smiled at her in a confidential way. She sat down across from him, at his large desk.

"I've been thinking over what you said Saturday," he began. "I think I've evolved a plan for your future here, which you'll be satisfied with. Of course, I don't really know very much about you, but if your husband has just returned from abroad, I thought he might have some ideas on the subject of your working. I don't want to pry into your affairs, Claire," R. J. smiled that curious smile again, "but I would like to know if you intend to continue working."

Mac was suddenly confused at having to explain her marriage and do it here. It might hav been easier Saturday night when they were almost exclusively on a personal basis.

"I meant to apologize for Johnny's conduct," Mac murmured.

Mr. Clayton raised his eyebrows. "You see, he broke his promise to me when he announced our marriage. We weren't concealing it for any other reason than that it didn't seem practical to acknowledge it just yet. And you know how some firms feel about married girls. We were married my last year in school and since student marriages weren't popular at state, we decided not to let anyone know. It seamed silly, anyway, while we were both just starting on our careers and expected to be separated a lot."

R. J. liked her serious little smile. She took life very soberly—too soberly for such a lovely girl.

He smiled back at her without interruption.

"Johnny has another year at State," Mac went on. "I don't know whether he will go back or not. But I am trying to persuade him to. Anyway, I am not changing any of my plans and intend to stay right here in Chicago for a good many years."

Luke dashed in with some letters in his hand.

"'Morning," he blinked at her. "how's your high blood pressure?"

Mac knew he had come in late and that probably he had followed Saturday's party with a yachting and drinking tour of Lake Michigan on Sunday.

Apparently this intrusion, which had somewhat disconcerted her, had thrown R. J. back into more impersonal channels. That gratified her.

"That being the case," he continued where they left off, "we can talk about the future. When you applied for a position here, you said something about knowing shorthand. How long do you think it would take you to brush up on it?"

"Why, I don't know," Mac was going slowly now. "I haven't any use for it. I never cared about it particularly. I took it up in high school as the practical way to go about applying for a job. You have something to offer. Why?"

R. J. still had that Santa Claus expression in his face. "I can't say anything definite now, but I think perhaps the first of the year I may have other plans for Winters. Would you like to do the sort of work he's doing? It would, of course, mean quite a jump financially for you—and more responsibility."

Mac felt that she was being put in an embarrassing position. More money and more responsibility appealed to her. But Mac liked the independence of her present department—she felt she could build here. And what might so close an association with R. J. bring about?

Mac knew she ought to look pleased, but she had no sensation of elation or achievement. It was difficult for her to begin.

"Of course you know I don't know anything about private secretarial work. I haven't had that particular training. I suppose I could learn quickly enough, but I really am pretty interested in the adjustment department and what I'm doing there." Ordinarily Mac was so frank. She hated diplomacy. She wanted to get up and walk out of the room.

"I thought perhaps you would like working with me, Claire," R. J.'s voice was kind. Mac knew that he meant something more than he was saying. "And I want to see you get on," he continued in that same manner, "because you're smart and you're earnest about what you are doing—you are doing a very good job in the adjustment department." This was better. She felt a little warmer toward him, a little happier. She looked up and smiled her gratitude.

He left his big chair and walked around to a cigaret box which should have been closer to his side of the desk. Mac thought he must be finished with this conversation and she got up too—and bumped into him. He had walked farther than the cigaret box. He put his arms around her quickly and kissed her awkwardly.

She was surprised and resistant. She had really thought for a moment that she had been just clumsy—that he hadn't manipulated this—so that his kiss just brushed her nose. What if Luke had come in!

Suddenly she felt exceedingly cheap that he should have for one minute felt e could do this. It was true that she had intended to carry her flirtation into the office. Only Saturday she had made up her mind to get what she wanted just this way. But the results hadn't been big enough. She was angry at R. J., but she was angrier at herself for not realizing that business, whether you were a man or a girl—especially if you were a girl—had to be cold and impersonal to be big.

The telephone rang for R. J. and Mac hurried back to her own small room and closed the door.

Illness of Father Spurs New Hunt For Missing Son

SNYDER, Texas, March 27. (AP)—Spurred on by the serious illness of the young man's father, relatives and friends today renewed their search for L. C. (Loren) Cotton, young Scurry county school teacher, who disappeared several months ago. The father, Taylor Cotton, called continuously for his son.

Young Cotton left here mysteriously late in 1930 and the only trace found of him was at El Paso, a short time later. There the trail was lost and his whereabouts remained a mystery.

Crimes in February Mostly Petit Theft

WASHINGTON, March 27. (INS)—Thirty-five per cent of the crime in the United States in February was petit larceny, that is, theft of property valued at less than $50, according to the department of justice monthly review issued today.

The percentage of the various crime classifications has varied little since last July. Slightly over 23 per cent of the crimes, as reported to the department, was automobile theft, 23 per cent burglary, nearly eight per cent grand larceny, over six per cent assault, four-tenths of one per cent murder and the same per cent for manslaughter by negligence.

Reports were received from 362 principal cities representing 75 per cent of the total population.

Sunset News

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, March 27.—A number of farmers, interested in cantaloupe production, met in Sunset Wednesday evening and heard a talk delivered by Mr. Boden of Corpus Christi. In his talk, Mr. Boden encouraged the planting of acreage sufficient to produce cantaloupes for carlot shipments.

Because of rainy weather, only about one-fourth of the farmers of this vicinity attended the meeting, but the number attending promised to plant 165 acres of cantaloupes.

Another meeting will be held in Sunset Monday evening, March 30, and a much larger number of farmers are expected to attend this meeting. Also, the promise of an additional cantaloupe acreage is expected at the next meeting.

The volley ball team of Park Springs school, five miles west of Sunset, won the volley ball championship of Wise county again this year. This team has been playing for two years and has never been defeated in a contest game. Players in this team are Misses Oleta Thompson, Francis Alexander, Leona Duck, Nell Chadwick, Lena and Lotelle Earp. Miss Ocie Freeman is their coach.

Several showers of rain fell here during Wednesday night, Thursday and Thursday night, and were followed by a severe cold wave which reached here about 6 o'clock this morning. The temperature dropped to freezing within less than two hours after the northwest wind began blowing hard here. A flurry of snow fell for a little while but soon stopped. The sky is cloudy, but there is sign of a clearing away of the clouds by night. Gardens and the fruit crop will be damaged by the freeze. Some of the early planting of corn and other crops will be damaged.

The Sunset M. P. Ladies Aid society will meet in the home of Mrs. W. H. Johnson Wednesday afternoon, April 1. A good attendance is expected at this meeting.

Q.—Were any of the strange figures (sculptured by a vanished race) found on Easter Island, north of Australia, ever brought to an American museum?—F. J. P.

A.—A stone image, stone crown and a stone head from Easter Island were brought to the United States by an expedition for the Smithsonian institute in 1887.

Q.—What is meant by Abyla and Calpe?—R. N.

A.—These are the ancient names for the Pillars of Hercules. Calpe, the modern Gibraltar, and Abyla, now Jebel Musa or Ape's hill.

Q.—What city was known as the city of wooden chimneys?—F. J. B.

A.—Suffolk, Va., had a building boom about the middle of the 18th century and many chimneys were built of wood because the supply of brick was not equal to the demand. Suffolk thereupon became famous as the city of wooden chimneys.

Q.—When were pistols first made; also revolvers?—J. J. L.

A.—Pistols are understood to have been made for the first time at Pistoria, Italy, whence they received their name. Caminelleo Vitelli, who lived in 1540, is the accredited inventor. A revolver is a single barreled pistol with a revolving breech containing several chambers for the cartridges, thus enabling successive shots to be fired from the same weapon without reloading. In 1835, Samuel Colt produced and patented the first practical revolving pistol.

Q.—Which is better, a biplane or a monoplane?—W. F.

A.—It depends upon the use to which the plane is to be put. The army air corps says that a biplane is stronger than a monoplane because the two wings permit truss construction for combat, or where the plane gets sudden strain a biplane is better, also it permits the use of shorter wings to get the same lift. A monoplane has the advantage of getting full efficiency out of the wing, and permits greater visibility. The monoplane's disadvantages are that it is designed for one particular purpose such as straight flying, long distance, etc.

Q.—How much film is used annually for motion pictures in this country?—C. D. B.

A.—Annual consumption of motion picture film by the industry in this country is approximately 1,500,000,000 feet which is close to 300,000 miles. In addition, amateur movie makers in this country use about 20,000 miles of film annually in the now so popular hand-movie cameras.

Q.—Please give a biography of Roland Hayes, the colored singer.—M. W.

He toured Europe in concert from 1920-23, appearing before the king and queen of England. He returned to America in 1923 where he has toured in concert annually to date. He gives summer concerts in Europe.

Q.—Why is V used sometimes instead of U?—R. W. H.

A.—The letter U is a form of V with which it was formerly used interchangeably. In the 11th century U came to be used by preference as the capital initial form. In dictionaries they were not given separate alphabetical position until about 1800. The V form is still used frequently in inscriptions.

Q.—What was the origin of the expression "as mad as a hatter"?—E. D. C.

A.—The original phrase was probably "mad as an adder," according to Crowell's Handbook for Readers and Writers, but evidence is lacking. The phrase was popularized by Lewis Carroll in "Alice in Wonderland," but was well known earlier and was used by Thackeray in "Pendennis" in 1849.

Q.—What kinds of flowers keep best after they have been cut?—A. N.

A.—Roses, orchids, lilies, carnations, chrysanthemums, spring flowers and calendulas are the longest keeping of the flowers, according to the findings of A. M. S. Pridham and J. C. Ratsek of the New York state college of agriculture. With the exception of the chrysanthemum, all of these flowers should receive a slanting cut at the base of the stem and be placed in deep, cool water which should be changed daily. The chrysanthemum stem should be mashed and then placed in cold water.

Low Temperatures Reported Over Entire Area

gains rise above the freezing point, but reports that calm had replaced the raging winds in Oklahoma gave promise that Saturday would bring relief.

Prevailing cold and snow over the Wichita Falls area as reported to The Record News included:

BENJAMIN—Snow fell at intervals here Friday after a norther Thursday night sent the thermometer down to 16 degrees.

VERNON—Vernon got its coldest weather of the year Friday,

STORM WARNING

NEW ORLEANS, March 27. (AP)—The United States weather bureau here tonight issued the following advisory storm warning:

"Continue Northwest storm warnings Galveston to Port Arthur and change to Northwest storm warning Mobile, Ala., to Carabell, Fla. Strong northwest winds tonight will attend southeastward advance of area of high barometer.

when the mercury hit 14 degrees. Sleet and snow fell during the night Thursday.

MEMPHIS—A new record for cold this year was set Friday morning when the temperature slipped to 12 degrees under the bombardment of a cold wind. Approximately half an inch of rain covered Memphis and vicinity.

ELECTRA—Electra was frozen fast at dawn Friday morning and wore a light garment of snow which came on the heels of the norther Thursday night.

OLNEY—Rains turned to ice and snow here Friday morning when the mercury took a toboggan to a minimum of 18 degrees.

—STAMFORD—Fruit, oats and barley were believed damaged by the severe cold that accompanied a north wind and intermittent snow flurries here Thursday night and Friday. Wheat is thought to have escaped unhurt and optimists still hope that some of the fruit may survive the heavy freeze.

DALHART—A minimum temperature of seven degrees greeted the North Panhandle Friday morning after a snow storm that halted railroad and bus traffic and paralyzed local transportation for several hours. Cattle losses were unestimated, but believed to be light, but the whole fruit crop was despaired of. The cold wave brought the lowest temperatures recorded here this season.

SPUR—Livestock suffered and fruit and garden crops were destroyed in a blizzard which brought snow and sleet over Dickens county Thursday night and Friday. The temperature dropped to 15 degrees, the lowest recorded for the season.

ALTUS, Okla.—A bleak sun struggled through the clouds here late Friday to melt a little of the three-inch snow before nightfall sent the mercury downward again. Fruit, volunteer oats and garden plants were ruined by the coldest weather of the year. The bottom temperature was recorded at 12 degrees Friday. Livestock and chickens suffered from the abrupt drop.

MANGUM, Okla.—The Red Cross here was swamped with calls for aid Friday as a blinding snowstorm raged through the territory, sending the mercury plunging to 12 degrees.

DUNCAN, Okla.—Light snow continued to fall at intervals all day Friday after the spring norther Thursday night sent the temperature far below freezing.

QUANAH—Within two hours after a blizzard struck here about 11 o'clock Thursday night temperature had dropped from 51 degrees to 14, the lowest point registered since Jan. 25, 1930, and the coldest March weather since 1923 when 19 degrees was registered on the 19th. About one inch of snow fell.

Lowest March temperature in the records of W. H. Crawford, local cooperative government weather observer, was six above zero March 1, 1922.

County Agent Hunter expressed fears that the fruit and spring garden crop is ruined. Wheat farmers differ regarding damage, most expressing belief wheat closely pastured is not seriously damaged, while jointed wheat ruined. Florists express the belief shrubs and roses were not destroyed by Thursday night's freeze.

LAWTON, Okla.—The fruit crop in Comanche county was almost totally destroyed by the blanket of snow which fell Thursday night and Friday morning and the ensuing cold snap. Gardens were badly damaged and considerable loss sustained in corn, wheat and oat crops it is feared. Friday was the coldest 27th of March in Lawton's history. Mercury stood at 18 degrees but there have been colder days in March. The weather was clearing Friday night.

AMARILLO DIGS OUT OF BIG SNOWDRIFTS

AMARILLO, Texas, March 27. (AP)—As the blizzard-swept Panhandle regained its composure under a bright sun late today and started checking up, its losses appeared much smaller than was feared before the storm, which was one of the most severe in history for late March, broke shortly before noon.

No loss of life had been reported from any section of the Panhandle, and cattlemen said loss of livestock would be small due to the short duration of the storm. The blizzard spent itself in less than 15 hours. Although temperatures near the zero mark were expected tonight, rising temperatures were forecast for Saturday.

City traffic had broken through the snowdrifts late today, and bus and highway traffic will be resumed tomorrow. Passenger trains on the Fort Worth & Denver were due to come through from Claude tonight and the Rock Island expected to have trains in operation over its three lines early Saturday. Santa Fe trains were running, although behind schedule.

A loss in the lamb crop among flocks in the North Panhandle was feared at Farnsworth. Reports from Childress said some believed that more advanced wheat might be damaged by the hard freeze. Some of the wheat is jointing, the report said.

Wheat growers on the whole were jubilant over the cold and snow, and the rainfall that preceded the blizzard.

Only two persons were reported lost in the storm in Amarillo, and both were found, unharmed.

There is more copper in the United States five-cent piece than is in the penny.

EAST TEXAS OIL

HENDERSON, Texas, March 27. (UP)—Three of the largest pipe projects planned to serve the Joiner and Kilgore fields were unofficially announced here today.

A 12-inch line of a 57,000-barrel daily capacity is to be built to Beaumont by the Moody-Seagraves-Morgan interests, of Houston.

A connecting line from the fields to the Gulf Pipe Line company's trunkline from Oklahoma to the refinery at Port Arthur, will be laid immediately and the Texas company will run a line to its cross-state main, to Texas City.

All lines are held up pending the outcome of the proration hearing at Austin this week, it was announced.

DALLAS, March 27. (UP)—First prices for East Texas crude were posted today by Magnolia Petroleum company. The schedule varies from 40 cents a barrel for oil of 28 gravity, to 67 cents for oil of 40 gravity and above.

HENDERSON, Texas, March 27. (UP)—After being swabbed in with an estimated production of only 700 barrels daily, the Petroleum Marketing corporation No. 1 Frederick was shut down tonight pending pipe line outlet.

Located on a seven acre lease of the John Ximines survey, sand was cored in the well at 3560-70 feet. The disappointing showing was laid to local faulty sand conditions and not a definite eastern boundary of the Joiner pool.

LONGVIEW, Texas, March 27. (AP)—The third producer this week and the ninth in the field was completed today in the Gregg county area when the Arkansas Fuel Oil company brought in its No. 3-A Lathrop for an estimated daily production of 15,000 barrels. No guage test was made.

The same company yesterday completed its No. 1-B Lathrop with a production of similar capacity. The gas pressure was the heaviest encountered thus far in the field.

The No. 3-A Lathrop is located about 300 yards southward and slightly west of the Lathrop discovery well.

Special to The Record News.

HENDERSON, Texas, March 27.—Demontran & Ray's No. 1 Birdwell, is showing for the largest producer in East Texas field. It flowed 600 barrels in 35 minutes and is now shut down waiting pipe line connections.

The new producer blew in unexpectedly Monday, running wild for five hours before controlled. It extends the proven area two miles southwest. Geo. B. Ray, Wichita Falls operator, is one of the owners.

ALTMAN DEATH THREAT TOLD

Testimony Opens in Murder Trial at Aspermont

Special to The Record News.

ASPERMONT, Texas, March 27.—Testimony quoting Homer Altman with a threat to kill Sam Tanner "the first time he caught him away from home," was introduced over bitter defense objections in the opening of Altman's trial for the slaying of Tanner here Friday afternoon.

Tanner, 68-year-old pioneer Stonewall rancher, was shot to death as he stood in his hog pen on Feb. 26. Altman, a 26-year-old married man and a former tenant on the Tanner ranch, was arrested several days later near Tatum, N. M., and charged with the killing. The defendant has indicated through attorneys' questions that he will plead defense of his home. Mrs. Altman, a recent mother, is to be a star defense witness. Altman has asked for a suspended sentence in case of conviction.

Threat Used

P. R. Allen, an old friend of the Tanner family, testified Friday afternoon that Altman had made threats against Tanner's life on the day before the shooting. The young man declared Tanner owed him money and added: "I'll kill him the first time I catch him away from home," the witness said.

Testimony, which wore on through a prolonged night session after the completion of the jury at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, included a detailed description of the finding of Tanner's body, the head blown away by a gun charge, lying at the mercy of tearing hogs in the pen.

Sydney Tanner, son of the slain man, said he had been burning weeds near the pen at the time of the shot. He testified that he heard a man curse, then a shot and looked up to see a figure holding a smoking gun and moving hurriedly across the pen. The witness explained that he thought a hog had been killed and did not investigate until employes on the farm told him of his father's death a few minutes later. Young Tanner added that he watched the man with the gun disappear from sight on foot after leaving the pen.

Body Described

Jack Lee, an employe on the place, was the first state witness called Friday afternoon. He told of coming to the house after the shooting and described the condition of the body. Rayburn Ramsey and Barnett Henderson, employes of Tanner who lived on the place, told of running to the hog pen after hearing the shot and of finding the body. County officers who investigated and who conducted an inquest were next called.

The trial is attracting wide interest throughout the county. The courtroom was crowded with intent listeners even through the long night session.

Ruch Attacks Plot Charge

Tillman Liquor Suspect Repeats Denial

GUTHRIE, Okla., March 27. (AP)—The witness parade in the retrial of P. V. Ruch, former county attorney of Tillman county charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws, was slowed up today when the defendant was placed on the stand.

As in the previous trial at Oklahoma City, Ruch impeached the testimony of the government's principal witness, Bud Walls, former deputy constable, and told the jury Walls "made false charges" involving him because he was disgruntled at the then county attorney's efforts to enforce the law."

He denied previous testimony that he had sought to have Walls killed and said that a statement he made to a Frederick doctor, "can't you give him (Walls) something to get him out of the way" was made lightly and not with murderous intent.

A complete denial of all testimony purporting to implicate Ruch in the alleged conspiracy was made by the defendant.

The case was expected to reach the jury tomorrow.

Broker Kills Self After Ax Attack on Sons

HONOLULU, March 27. (INS)—Dudley W. Wallace, former New Jersey stock broker, committed suicide here early today by shooting himself, according to police reports, following an axe attack on his two young sons.

The two sons, Dudley Jr., 11, and Donald, 9, are in a critical condition at Queens hospital.

A daughter, Barbara, 13, who was in the house at the time, was unharmed.

Services will be held from the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Avis, 1318 Tenth street, at an hour to be set later.

Postponement of services are made necessary due to delay of trains bearing the body here from the west coast. Services were to have been held at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Bandits Slay Defender Of Chicago Garage

CHICAGO, March 27. (INS)—Thieves early today killed Newton Pirtle, 24, a mechanic, by smashing his skull with an eight-pound sledge hammer. Pirtle had struggled desperately to prevent the robbery of the garage where he worked.

After murdering Pirtle, the bandits, probably two in number, piled a heavy cash register into a sedan parked in the garage and then drove off. The slaying and robbery were discovered by a negro attendant who had been out on a call.

Victim of Husband's Gunshot Near Death

GAINESVILLE, Texas, March 27. (UP)—With a bullet at the base of her brain, Mrs. Mike Pressler was in a critical condition tonight, the victim of her husband's gun before he took his own life.

Two shots were heard shortly after the couple had been left alone in a room. Pressler was found dead, his wife wounded and unconscious.

Pressler came from San Francisco yesterday to affect a reconciliation with his wife at the home of her step-father, Collins Griffin, near here.

Farmer Near Death From Accidental Shot

ROBERT LEE, Texas, March 27. (AP)—C. W. Burson, farmer of Green Moutain, near here, was suffering today from a bullet wound received when he accidentally shot himself while firing through a window at birds. Physicians doubted he would recover.

JUST 22 YEARS LATE

LONDON.—Tom Wishull of Birmingham, received a letter signed "Lilly." It explained that the sender was sorry she had refused his proposal and that if he renewed it, she would accept. Tom didn't know any girl named "Lilly," so he looked at the postmark. The letter had been mailed in 1909 and was intended for his father of the same name who had died several years before. Lilly, who had never married, was also dead.

CLASHES MARK OIL HEARING

oil companies and asked after propounding each name if Penn knew it would agree to take oil from the new field in certain quantities, Penn replying in most cases that the company cited had not made nominations of ratable takings to the proration committee.

When he came to some of the smaller companies who had indicated they would take two or three carloads daily from the field, Penn had said the inability of some of the companies mentioned to buy and pay for oil assigned them in ratable takings was "typical of the chaotic conditions you fellows would bring on us."

Moody wanted to know if there was any law to provide for the creation of the local advisory committee that had suggested nominations to the central committee, and Penn had said he was not a lawyer and could not say.

Moody Appeals

Moody appealed to Chairman Terrell to force Penn to answer yes or no.

"Does it make any difference to you whether you tell the truth or not?" Moody asked.

Penn rose from his chair and literally pounced towards Moody. He jumped down off the rostrum and strode hurriedly to face the former governor, his fists doubled.

"I resent the inference I have not told the truth here; I will not take that from any man, you —," the din of Chairman Terrell's gavel and shuffling feet of spectators who sought to restrain him drowned out words of his uncompleted sentence.

Estes, who was sitting near Moody jumped up and shouted:

"If you want to fight some one, come fight me."

Ruffled feelings evidently were smoothed during the noon recess, shortly after the incident. Before the afternoon session came to order, Penn and Moody stood talking amiably in full view of the crowd.

Neff Starts Row

Neff brought up his recent controversy with his fellow members of the railroad commission involving his claim that the majority of the group had not taken steps to conserve the supply of natural gas in the Reagan county field.

He got from Penn a statement that the Reagan county field should be closed until a market is found for the escaping gas there. Penn said, replying to Neff's question, that 160,000,000 cubic feet of gas was wasted daily in the field since last August and that in recent days a new well had come in, contributing 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas to the waste. Penn gave it as his opinion the wells could be scientifically tubed to prevent unnecessary escape of gas.

Neff brought out through questions that 210,000,000 feet of gas daily was being wasted in the Refugio field. "Why doesn't your committee recommend, in the interest of conservation, that these wells be shut in until the gas can be scientifically controlled?" Neff asked Penn, who replied that he was under the impression such recommendation had been made, but if not it had been unintentionally overlooked.

Neff got Penn to admit that it would be wise" in these days of conservation to curb wells where $5 worth of gas escaped while $1 worth of oil was being taken."

"That would be true conservation and it is unfortunate the attorney general's department says it can't be done," Penn commented.

Priest Points Out Brothers

ting with his counsel, laid his hand on the defendant's shoulder and declared:

"This is the man."

A gasp came from the crowd. Brothers, as always, seemed not a great deal concerned. He gave a glance at the witness, turned slightly and threw back his head, revealing a smile of apparent amusement. Then he shook his head negatively as if he couldn't understand it all.

When Father Reynolds returned to the witness stand, he craned his neck to look at Brothers in friendly fashion, but the ley-eyed young gunman did not return the gaze.

Father Reynolds testified that he had an appointment in Chicago with a physician June 9, the day that Lingle was slain in the Randolph street pedestrian tunnel leading to the Illinois Central railroad station. The priest had left the train and was on his way toward the west exit of the tunnel.

"I was almost to the stairs on the west side of the tunnel when I heard a shot," he said. "I did not see anyone on the ground, but I saw several men running.

"I went to the head of the stairs to see if a chase was on. There I heard a high, hysterical voice calling:

'Stop that man.'

"I looked through the crowd and saw a blond young chap making his way. He paused about 60 feet from me. I looked down the street and saw a policeman charging rapidly toward the man."

Then it was that Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks asked if he saw that man in the courtroom.

The priest indicated Brothers, but when it was not entirely apparent whom he meant he went over and put his hand on the young man's shoulder.

Clark (Red) Applegate, race track follower who yesterday identified Brothers, was grilled at length today by the defense, but was unshaken in his story that Brothers is the man he saw drop a smoking snub-nosed revolver at the side of Lingle's dead body and then flee into the crowds on Michigan boulevard.

Motion to Dismiss Heflin Suit Filed

WASHINGTON, March 27. (US)—Formal motion to dismiss the contest brought by former Senator Tom Heflin to unseat Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, was filed today with the senate privileges and elections committee.

In filing this motion, Bankhead's attorneys said Heflin's charges of election frauds were "too vague, indefinite and general" to warrant investigation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Enlarged Liver

Question—K. L. B. asks: "What causes an enlarged liver? Is it serious? Can it be cured? If so, by what method?"

Answer—Enlarged liver is an evidence of overeating and faulty elimination. It can always be somewhat reduced through the proper fasting and dietetic treatment. The size of the liver varies naturally, according to the person's size, so that a very large liver with a small person is of course an evidence of more serious trouble.

Fats and Oils

Question — Mrs. O. W. asks: "Should a person having gall stones eliminate all fats and oils from the diet?"

Answer — The use of large amounts of fats and oils will often have a good curative effect on dissolving gall stones. The treatment with large doses of olive oil taken just before retiring has been effective in thousands of cases of those troubled with gall bladder disorders. The way to use this treatment is to take a mixture of four ounces of olive oil beaten into an emulsion with four ounces of grapefruit juice. This should be taken just before retiring, and the treatment repeated every few days.

Static

Question—I. M. S. asks: "What is the cause of having a lot of electricity in the body? Silk clings to me like a bathing suit."

Answer—Some people seem to manufacture static electricity more easily than others—a kind of electrical magnetism whenever silk or wool is rubbed vigorously. Those who are nervous and have a sensitive skin usually notice this effect more easily than others who are phlegmatic and have a less sensitive skin.

SPUDS OBTAIN NEW SOUTHPAW; TEAM HOPES TO PLAY TODAY

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

It's been an April fool joke all along. Those boys are not training for baseball down at Athletic park. They're getting in condition for the ice hockey season, which could have opened yesterday, for that matter.

If the norther still rages today and the Spuds try to play the Saints, here's a good business idea: Get a contract for the hot water bottle concession.

On "The Foliage of Man"

In connection with the appearance here April 12 of the House of David team, most of the members of which are bearded, it is interesting to note H. L. Mencken's remarks on masculine foliage in the April issue of his magazine, the American Mercury.

In reviewing a book, "Concerning Beards," by Edwin Mitchell, Mencken pays high tribute to the noble crop raised by Mr. Justice Hughes of the supreme court and several other outstanding gents. Mencken believes there is a "quite movement in favor of whiskers, and they may burst into flower at any moment." He adds that "in these standardized and timorous days there is far too little foliage on our great men. Shaved and polished, they all look substantially alike—and unanimously bare and hollow. I point, for example to Doctor Hoover. There is little more in his face, as he stands, than you will find in a boxing glove or a billiard ball . . . The complete blankness of his face is unrelieved, even, by anything so modest as Doctor Coolidge's poniard of a beak or Doctor Harding's shaggy eyebrows . . . Now imagine him with the fierce walrus moustachios of a Hindenburg . . . At once he would be a man among men—alive, different, and arresting."

Mr. Mencken's tribute to the facial fertility of men not only makes the Rambler feel kindly towards the House of David team, but makes him aware of a faint tinge of pride in his own modest hirsute garden on the upper lip. Especially since we have undergone a considerable amount of suffering with it adorning our countenance, suffering caused by the jibes of numerous friends and enemies. Indeed, when the seeds put forth their first flowering and a faint down made its appearance I was relegated at once to the effeminate class and scorned by the so-called he-men of my acquaintance. Now Mencken puts the matter in another light, and instead of having the meek feeling when someone makes a comment on my mustache, I can look stern and actually boast of it. Far from being effiminate, I am, in Mencken's eyes at least, a man among men! In fact I begin to think of myself as a hero for withstanding all the caustic comment my furze aroused. Had I been a weakling I would have shaved it off years ago, and then what would I have been—merely an ordinary male and differing in appearance from none of the others.

The First Box Score

I've seen it in the papers, sd I know
it must be true,
As certain as the coming of the
redbird and the blue,
The herald of another spring, where headed now for home
Their flying spikes are cutting through the cover of the loam,
The times at bat, the hits and runs,
and over all the roar
That echoes with the anthem of The
First Box Score.

I've seen it in the papers, where it
glistened like a rose
That blossoms in the garden just above the melting snows.
The jonquil trumpet bulge of the melody that rings
When Babe leans on another or the mighty Wilson swings,
The runs and hits and errors from the highland to the shore
That bring again the music of The
First Box Score.

Let others turn to blossoms as they glisten in the dew,
Where green and orange mingle
with the crimson and the blue,
I'd rather have the gardens of the horsehide and the ash
Where the double plays are blooming with the triple's stirring crash,
Where the hounds of spring are barking with the old, exultant roar
The echoes with the anthem of The
First Box Score.

Care The Record News,
City.

Dear Sir—Your sports column is one of the best in the state (but, I beg your pardon, didn't you write that you do not like to receive letters unless the writer criticises your column); but I just can't help telling you how much I enjoy reading it.

But watch that boy, Red Allen. I fear he will be your strongest competitor one of these days. He almost walked away with your column while you were in the hospital—you just came back in time.

I've been reading your column ever since you have started it, and the only thing that I see to criticise is that you seem to think that the ladies are dumb when it comes to sports. I hope that your girl will severely reprimand you for this serious fault. By the way, I suggest that your picture be printed by your articles each day similar to Zoe Beckley.)

I am glad that you refer to the Olney Cubs so often, that you are interested in music, and that you come from my home town—which is a good place to be from.

I was delighted to see the nice things you wrote about Rufus King and the other youngsters. Please watch Isadore Wolfson! He is a great kid with lots of spirit.

I'm glad the season of the great American pastime is here again for I'm of the opinion there is no greater thrill than the crack of the bat.

Please excuse me for not signing my name; I hope that this would-be letter does not offend you in any way.

Respectfully,
—MISANONYMOUS.

Your letter does offend me. I loathe people who won't sign their names to letters. Such pretentions to modesty usually conceal a burning desire to see one's name in print.

I am also offended, but pleasantly this time, by the few critical remarks made about me, but I won't comply with the request to print my picture until I have a full-grown beard down to my waist. I refuse to "watch" Red Allen and Mr. Wolfson as long as this town provides better scenery. And I lost my girl when Chappie Geygan got into town.

4 PORTSIDERS NOW ON ROSTER

Players to Speak Over KGKO Next Week

By FRED THOMPSON

The Spudders Friday obtained another left-handed pitcher, bringing the total number of southpaws on the roster to four.

The newcomer is "Lefty" Blatz, whose true first name apparently has been definitely supplanted by "Lefty" since club officials were not aware of it.

Last year he pitched for Springfield in the class C Western association, but he comes to the Spudders on option from Milwaukee, who later acquired title to the player. Other southpaws on the roster are Wallace Hebert, Marvin Robertson and Doyle Taylor. Hebert is training with the Browns.

The Spudder squad formed a circle down at the clubhouse Friday and in the midst thereof was a hot stove. But Saturday the team will play the St. Paul Saints if any kind of let-up is seen in the weather. Should the norther desist somewhat the teams will go at it, Prexy Huff announced, for the squad needs some kind of workout after two days of enforced idleness.

Blatz Has Good Record

The new southpaw acquistion is due to report here shortly, Secretary Guy Airey announced. He has been training with the Milwaukee Brewers, and should arrive here in condition to play. Blatz is a youngster and made a fairly good showing with Springfield last year. He pitched 169 innings in 35 games, 11 of which he completed, and the opposition scored 134 runs off him. He issued 116 passes, but nearly offset this with 101 strikeouts. His final average was .636, the pitcher winning 14 games and losing 8.

It was announced Friday the club had booked an exhibition game with the T. C. U. Horned Frogs here next Saturday. That swells the exhibition schedule to seven games in the next eight days, as after the Saints' two games here the Baylor nine and the Dallas Steers are each booked for two-game series beginning Monday, and should the weather permit the completion of the full schedule Carl Williams' team will profit immensely.

In case the sun by 3 p. m. Saturday has turned Monday's snow and ice to trickling streams and has warmed the earth somewhat, the Spudders are expected to start Dick Florrid and L. S. Terhune against the Saints. The latter will have Harris, Betts, Prudhomme, Murphy, Van Atta, Bream and Munns to choose from. Anderson likely will play center field for St. Paul, with Saltzgaver at second, Paschal at right field, Roettger at first base, Jones or Durst in left field, Fenner or Snyder behind the bat, and Hopkins on third. Manager Leifield has Boessard for utility duty. Bob Connery, president of the St. Paul club will accompany his team here.

No Introduction Needed

Most of the Saints are well known to Wichita Falls fans, as the team has played exhibition games here several seasons, but there is one who is decidedly well known. He is the above mentioned Snyder, catcher. He is none other than Frank Snyder, who managed the Houston Buffs in their conquest over the Spudders in 1928 and who managed the Fort Worth Cats last year. After winning the Texas league pennant and the Dixie championship for Fort Worth, Cat officials couldn't see him as manager another term and he was released, to be signed by the St. Paul club in which he assumed a player role.

Secretary Airey Friday announced a baseball radio program is being planned for next week, when each evening, beginning at 6 o'clock two players on the Spudder squad will give a brief talk, outlining their baseball careers. The Rambler has been assigned the job of introducing the players.

Steer Cage Coach Not Recommended

AUSTIN, March 27. (AP)—Fred M. Walker, University of Texas basket ball coach, said today he had received a letter stating that he had not been recommended for reappointment by the university athletic council.

The letter was from W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the council. Metzenthin told Walker that the council had recommended to the board of regents that Walker not be reappointed, the coach said. The board of regents probably will not take final action for some time.

Coyotes Asked for Grid Game With Buckaroos

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, March 27.—Letters have been mailed to six high school athletic directors by Supt. N. S. Holland here, seeking non-conference football games to be played during the 1931 grid season by Coach P. E. Shotwell's Buckaroos.

Since only four district games appear on the 1931 schedule, Coach Shotwell is seeking games with first class teams out of the district.

Propositions for games were mailed to Comanche, Stamford, class B. schools, and to Wichita Falls, Dallas, Mineral Wells and Fort Worth.

For What Reason?

A woman rushed into a police station with a photograph in her hand.

"My husband has disappeared," she sobbed. "Here is his photograph. I want you to find him."

The sergeant looked at the photograph.

"Why?" he asked.—Tit-Bits.

Middlewestern Stars Corner Honors In Texas Relays

OKLA. R-UNNER STARS IN DASH

Glass Ties 100-Yard Dash Record Twice

AUSTIN, March 27. (AP)—Middlewestern track and field stars walked off with nearly all the honors in the annual Texas relays here today but they were unable to take back many records.

A strong, cold north wind cut down the time in all the relay events. It helped Peyton Glass of Oklahoma A. & M. twice tie the recognized world's record of 9 5-10 seconds in the 100 yard dash.

The two relay record breakers were Hugh Rhea of Nebraska in the shot and John Russell, high jumper and the only entrant of Bradley Polytechnic Institute of Peoria, Ill. Rhea, a football and track star for the Cornhuskers, heaved the shot 51 feet, 2¼ inches. The old record was 48 feet, 7¼ inches, set last year by big Jim Bausch of Kansas. Russell cleared six feet, 4⅝ inches in the high jump. The old record was six feet, 4½ inches, made by Tom Poor of Kansas in 1925.

Aggies Win Relay

Not only did Glass twice turn the century in 9.5, but he also gave the Oklahoma Aggies a victory in the half-mile relay through his great work on the last 200 yard stretch. The muscular 19-year-old sophomore thereby topped off a great day.

Perhaps the most thrilling relay race was the Medley which was won by Marquette, the favorite, but only by a step. Glenn Dawson, Oklahoma's great miler, and J. Walter, Marquette's anchor man, were almost abreast as they sprinted the last 220 yards.

Kansas, Iowa State, Northwestern and the Pittsburgh, Kan. Teachers divided the top positions in the other relay races. Kansas was first as expected in the 440-yard relay and the same was true of Bob Simpson's Iowa State quartet in the four-mile relay. Northwestern finished first in the mile relay in a close battle with Rice, and the Pittsburgh Teachers copped the two-mile relay.

Glass barely beat John Haas of Minnesota in the 100-yard dash and Haas' teammate, Charles Scheifley, defeated Hager of Iowa State in the120-yard high hurdles.

Jenkins Takes Dash

Alvin Jenkins of the Oklahoma Aggies finished an easy first in the 3,000 meter run. His time was nine minutes, 7 2-10 seconds. Mell of Oklahoma lacked only 2¼ inches of breaking the relay record in the broad jump. The Sooner star leaped 24 feet, 4 inches.

Southwestern conference athletes placed first in two of the field events. Howard Sprague of Southern Methodist university hurled the discus 133 feet, 10 inches, and Hodges of Texas sailed the javelin 191 feet, 9¼ inches.

About the only upset of the day was the defeat of Tom Warne, Northwestern star, in the pole vault. Warne holds the relay record of 13 feet, 8½ inches. Today, Lansrud of Drake had to vault only 13 feet to beat him.

The crowd today was disappointingly small.

TEST NEW PLANE

A Sweet Tip

Porter—I carried his bag up three flights of stairs, and at the top he slipped something into my hand and said, "That's for a cup of tea."

Bootblack—And what was it, a dime?

Porter—No. It was a lump of sugar.—Answers.

When Borotra Won Title From Bell

The national indoor tennis championship had gone back to France when this picture was taken of Jean Borotra being congratulated by L. J. Carruthers, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, in New York the other day. The vanquished American, center, is Berkeley Bell, who went down to defeat in a furious five-set match. It was Borotra's fourth American indoor championship in six years.

Training Camp Chatter

St. Louis Browns

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 27. (AP)—When the Browns break camp Sunday, after completing a five-week training grind, no player can say he has not been given ample chance to show his ability, proof of which is written in the 13 box scores of exhibition games.

There have been a number of defeats but they all help Manager Killefer in getting a better line on his material and what the weak spots are. He believes, however, his club is more powerful than last year.

Dean on Rampage

BRADENTON, Fla., March 27. (AP)—Dizzy Dean, the Cardinals' eccentric young right-hander who has declared he will win 25 or 30 games for the Red Birds this season, nearly deserted the Cardinals this afternoon because of reprimands from Manager Gabby Street and because of his daily hunt for Secretary Lloyd to obtain his $1 a day allowance.

But at the last moment he decided he ought to say goodbye to Branch Rickey, Cardinal vice president and Rickey persuaded him to stay until Oct. 15.

San Antonio Indians

SAN ANTONIO, March 27. (AP)—Pruning time for the San Antonio Indians set in today as three players were dropped from the squad.

They were L. H. Farrow, a young catcher from Holland, Texas; Clem Wells, semi-pro second baseman from Caddo, Texas, who has been playing at Corsicana, and Curtis Smith, outfielder from Camp Normoyle.

Dallas Steers

DALLAS, March 27. (AP)—Weather permitting, the Dallas Steers will resume their exhibition series tomorrow by meeting the Kansas City Blues in the first of two games here. The Steers were unable to work out today but some of the pitchers limbered their arms under the stands.

Robins Beat Toledo

MIAMI, Fla., March 27. (AP)—Bill Clark and Freddy Heimach, Wilbert Robinson's left-handed mainstays, combined today to limit Toledo to four hits and pitch the Brooklyn Dodgers to an 8-0 victory in the second contest of a four-game series with the American association team.

Score:			R.	H.	E.
Brooklyn	000	200 105	8	8	1

San Antonio Indians

SAN ANTONIO, March 27. (AP)—After a good three-hour workout on Fort Sam Houston field today the San Antonio Indians were prepared for their trip to Brenham, where they are booked for two games with the Montreal Royals of the International league tomorrow and Sunday.

Fort Worth Cats

FORT WORTH, March 27. (AP)—After taking it on the chin from Old Man Weather the past two days, the Fort Worth Panthers will make another attempt to play an exhibition game tomorrow. It will be against the Texas Christian university Horned Frogs.

Shreveport Sports

SHREVEPORT, La., March 27.—Cold weather today forced postponement of the game scheduled between the Shreveport Sports of the Texas league and the New Orleans Pelicans. The teams held light workouts and hoped to begin their series tomorrow.

Tigers 10, Pirates 8

LOS ANGELES, March 27. (AP)—A double by Owens, scoring two men in the 10th, gave the Detroit Tigers their second straight victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here today, 10-8.

Score:			R.	H.	E.
Detroit	120	300 110	2—10	18	2

Chicago Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27. (AP)—A drizzling rain gave the Chicago Cubs an unscheduled vacation today.

The Bruins were down for another engagement with the Seals, who beat them yesterday, but will resume their attempt to gain a victory over the coast league team tomorrow.

Chicago White Sox

SAN ANTONIO, March 27. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox had no exhibition game to play today, and Manager Donie Bush grabbed the time to watch his recruit pitchers. The youngsters have not done too well and he spent a good share of the drill period criticizing and correcting their work.

Philadelphia Nats

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27. (AP)—The Phillies opened their tour of exhibition games here today by defeating an independent Jacksonville team known as King Edward, 9-0. Schessler and Philips held the locals to four hits.

New York Yankees

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27. (AP)—While the rest of the New York Yankees were packing up today for their departure tonight George Pipgras began training. The big pitcher who underwent an appendicitis operation just before the start of the training season, has been here three weeks recuperating.

Not until today did he feel well enough to don a uniform and toss a ball.

Reds 4, Athletics 3

ORLANDO, Fla., March 27. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, using the cream of their pitching staff, held the champion Philadelphia Athletics to four hits today and won out, 4-3.

Score:			R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	300	000 000	3	4	0
Cincinnati	002	200 00x	4	11	1

Krausse, McDonald and Cochrane, Palmisano; Lucas, Rixey and Sukeforth.

Washington Senators

BILOXI, Miss., March 27. (AP)—Joe Judge has a pair of explanation for the weak hitting of the Washington club in the first two weeks of exhibition games.

"These ball parks at Biloxi and Gulfport are poor grounds to hit on," said the Senators' captain and first baseman. "Here the pitchers operate against a background of waving trees and at Gulfport the ball comes at you out of some advertising sign.

"Another reason is that most ball players do their best work before large audiences and there apparently are no such things in this section."

Big Six Draws Up New Athletic Code

NORMAN, Okla., March 27. (AP)—The Big Six conference was definitely on record tonight as opposed to subsidization and alleged recruiting of athletes, through the action of its faculty representatives in adopting a slightly amended code.

The group, however, in approving the draft of Dean S. W. Beyer and T. D. Metcalf of Iowa State college, made changes to prevent discrimination against a student merely because he may be a good halfback or a likely basket ball prospect.

Action of the professors leaves the way clear for meritorious athletes to work at current rates but bars from athletics a youth who has received aid "merely because he is an athlete" or through channels not equally open to athletes. It prohibits subsidy, advance payment, guarantee or excessive payment for services.

Coaches may not comb the neighborhood for athletic material, but are allowed to answer direct queries from high school and junior college athletes. Alumni solicitation of athletes is frowned on. "Migrant athletes" are to be discouraged.

BOXER SAILS

BUENOS AIRES, March 27. (AP)—Victorio Campolo, Argentine's heavyweight hope, sailed for New York today on the liner Southern Cross to resume his campaign for the heavyweight title.

Notice to Golfers

The Wichita Falls Golf and Country Club extends an invitation to all Golfers to use the course Saturday and Sunday, March 28 and 29, for a fee of 50c per day. It will not be necessary to be introduced by a regular member.

DEMPSEY WINS LEGAL BATTLE

Proposed Fight With Wills Appears Doubtful

CHICAGO, March 27. (AP)—Jack Dempsey, the old manassa mauler himself, whipped across a legal knockout in the fifth round today in the $500,000 damage suit filed against him for not risking his heavyweight championship against Harry Wills, negro challenger, five years ago.

Beaten in the first four rounds of the court battle on legal technicalities, Dempsey suddenly floored the opposition when Circuit Court Judge T. Sterling Pomeroy directed the jury to return a verdict of dismissal in the case brought by the Chicago Coliseum company, which attempted to promote the Dempsey-Wills title match in 1926.

The verdict, promptly returned by the jury, brought to an end, barring a successful appeal, all legal battles in which Dempsey and his successor to the heavyweight throne, Gene Tunney, became involved. However, there appeared a chance that Dempsey might carry his fight right back to the squared arena by finally meeting Wills.

During a heated court argument yesterday, Dempsey stood up and told the plaintiff attorneys and Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, that he would fight the negro anytime the Chicago Coliseum company would pay him $1,000,000, the original terms of the contract in question. B. E. Clements, president of the coliseum company, accepted the challenge and said he would guarantee Dempsey that amount to fight Wills and "lay $1,000,000 on the line."

"Let me see the money and I'll fight Wills any time," Dempsey said after his court victory today.

"All right, we will," said Clements. "All we ask is that you fight Wills and if you do, we will not perfect an appeal from today's decision."

Boxing fans, who jammed the courtroom, doubted that the long disputed match would be staged, however. Anyway, it was left up in the air as Dempsey immediately departed for Rochester, Minn., after court was adjourned, to undergo a physical examination at the Mayo Brothers clinic.

Turnesa Retains Lead at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27. (AP)—Touring the championship Pinehurst course in a fine 73 despite a drenching rain, Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, one of a famous family of New York golfers, tonight retained his lead in the North and South $5,650 open golf tournament with a 54-hole score of 215.

Although he started when the downpour was at its height and played the entire round under difficult conditions, Turnesa conquered par and the elements. He was out in four under perfect figures, but trouble on three holes coming in pushed him to 38.

Continuous rain during the morning made playing difficult and accurate putting almost impossible in the wet sand greens. The condition of the course caused tournament officials to postpone the final round, set for this afternoon, until tomorrow.

Just a stroke behind the leader came Johnny Golden, chunky Noroton, Conn., professional, who has been shooting the most consistent golf in the field. Golden today had his third consecutive 72.

Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, were together at 217.

Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., took 75 to post 218 for the 54 holes.

Henry Ciuci, diminutive Bridgeport, Conn., money player, turned in a low 72, which with his 147 for the 36 holes, gave him 219 and sixth place.

Harry Cooper, Detroit, was tied for seventh at 220 with four others.

Virginia Van Wie Wins Championship

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 27. (AP)—Virginia Van Wie, caught in the hardest downpour of a rain that descended on the final 18 holes of the mid-South women's 36-hole medal tournament, overcame the elements today to win the championship.

The Chicago girl found the going rougher than yesterday when she posted a sparkling 73, but nevertheless shot an 84, one over women's par, for a final total of 157.

Her score was seven strokes better than the next best in the field of 80 contenders, Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., could offer. Miss Quier added an 84 today to her 80 of yesterday for a 164.

American Who Lost His Job This Week Wins Aintree Race Money

LONDON, March 27 (US)—An Italian confectionery store proprietor in London, a Buffalo, N. Y., man who lost his job yesterday and a hotel owner in Capetown, South Africa, share $3,249,985 today as their winnings on the first three grand national steeplechase horses in the Irish hospital sweepstakes.

Emilio Scala, who shared his winning ticket on Grakle with 40 relatives, each of whom paid about 4 cents toward their purchases of the half-share Scala divided among them, took the first prize of $1,772,730. His enthusiastic cry when he learned that Grakle had won was:

"Me for sunny Italy. Close up this shop for the rest of the week while I figure out how much of this money I get, how much the government will take, and how much I've got to give to my folks."

Gregalach, who finished second, brought a fortune to Clayton Woods, of Buffalo. Woods, according to reports here, was "fired" yesterday because he was kept away from his work by other workers who plied him with questions about what he would do if he won a prize, was rewarded as a lucky break with $886,360.

A goodly sum of all the prizes will be taken by the government. Wood's tax amounts to something like $213,000—he's now in the super-super-super-or something class. Scala's tax is accordingly higher, for if he goes to Italy he will have to pay taxes not only in Britain but also in Italy.

George P. Diamond, the Capetown hotel man, wins about $590,905. Last Wednesday he refused $12,500 for a half share in his ticket. The prizes will not be available until April 7.

GRAKLE SETS RECORD TO WIN STEEPLECHASE

AINTREE, England, March 27. (US)—British thoroughbreds ran one-two-three today in the 92nd renewal of the Grand National steeplechase in which Grakle, fourth favorite of the field of 43, set a new course record of nine minutes, 32 4-5 seconds over the stiffest jumping test in the world.

Gregalach, a Grand National veteran and winner in 1929, ran second and Annandale, a long shot outsider in the betting, captured third money.

Grakle, owned by C. R. M. Taylor, paid his backers 100 to 8. The final price on Gregalach, blue ribbon mount of Mrs. M. Gemmell's stable, was 25 to 1, and Annandale, owned by Lady Glenapp, was quoted at 100 to 1.

Wins With Spurt

Over the last treacherous jump, it looked as if a blanket could cover the three leaders at the finish, but Grakle forged ahead to win by a length and a half, with Annandale weakening to pass the judges 10 lengths to the rear of Gregalach. R. Lyall had the leg up on the winner.

Prominent Americans present for the running of England's jumping classic were Mr. and Mrs. Verner Reed of Pinehurst, N. C.; Major and Mrs. C. T. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wallace, Miss Marion Hall, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Childs, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney (the former Elizabeth Altemus of Philadelphia), and Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Mellon of New York. The Savoy and Claridges in London were the scene of many Grand National celebrations tonight.

There were 11 American-owned entries in the field that got away at 3:03 p. m., after one false start. High hopes were held for Easter Hero, John Hay Whitney's favorite, but the hero fell in his second attempt to negotiate Becher's Brook, and thereafter was out of the running. Easter Hero was a disappointment, for he carried a great deal of American and British money.

Sir Lindsay, Whitney's other entry, refused the jump at Valentine's brook on the second time around, after having been up with the leaders, and thus passed out of the picture.

Great Field Finishes

Solace for American enthusiasts was found in the tremendous effort of Rhyticere, owned by Mrs. Victor Emmanuel of New York, who finished fourth among the 15 horses which completed the four-and-a-half-mile run. The field that finished was greater than in recent years; two years ago 65 started and only nine came home.

Ballyhanwood, owned by M. D. Blair, of Baltimore, finished fifth. Royal Arch II, another of Victor Emmanuel's horses purchased from the Prince of Wales some time ago, was seventh and Great Span, also owned by Blair, came in ninth.

Among the American non-finishers were Richard K. Mellon's Alike, who refused an early jump, and Gordon Selfridge's Ruddyman, who balked the jump at Canal turn.

About 350,000 people were in the stands and lining the course as the horses came to the barrier. Grakle, in the inside, was mischievous and he was the cause of the false start. He got away well on the official start, and took the lead with Easter Hero.

At Becher's brook, Sandy Hook of the stable of Stephen "Laddie" Sanford of Long Island was in the van, followed by Easter Hero and the pack bunched behind them. Around Canal turn the first time, Gregalach shot up on the inside to take the lead. Shaun Goilin, winner last year, challenged and forged up ahead, and then Grakle took the lead from him.

Five Take Early Lead

The first time around, Grakle, Gregalach, Big Black Boy, Easter Hero and Gib were in a bunch leading. Not in many years had such a large number of horses survived the first time around, and more than half the field was still accounted for, with Sir Lindsay and Great Span fighting with Ballasport to catch the leaders.

A riderless horse led the second attack on Becher's brook, but soon after Gregalach led again, with Grakle challenging in the second assault on Valentine's brook. From then on, it was a fight between these two for the lead, with Annadale hovering always at their flanks.

Besides establishing a new record, this year's race also set a new mark for casualties. Swift Rowland, owned by Mrs. Chester Beatty, an American racing enthusiast, broke a leg and Drin, of Albert Hendon's stable, was injured seriously. Both were shot.

Hefty Woman Menace To 'Terrible Turks'

SCALA NUOVA, Turkey, March 27. (AP)—Emine Hanim, a hefty woman here is eliminating some of those "Terrible Turks"—legendary figures of humorous stories of wrestling in America.

The 30-year-old woman, who can lift 650-pounds, defeated the Bulgarian wrestler Danjo here, and a Turkish grappler at Kutaiha.

She now has throw down a challenge to the Turkish champion at Istanbul.

In many parts of Germany the apple is deemed potent against warts.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 27. (AP)—An early advance in cotton on continued trade buying and some covering promoted by reports of unfavorable weather for coming crop preparations, was followed by reactions under realizing or liquidation today. May contracts, after selling up from 10.78 @10.91 or 10 points net higher, closed at 10.83 with the general market closing steady, net 2 points higher to 1 lower.

Apprehension that the cold wet weather reported in the South would delay crop preparations and that germination of early planted cotton might be delayed, may have been responsible for some buying, but the support was attributed chiefly to continued trade buying, and many considered it too early in the season for delays in farm work to materially influence the market. Recent increased business in cotton goods and low inventories following the trade depression of last year, have been emphasized in connection with the trade buying noted in the futures markets here during the past week.

Futures closed steady, 2 higher to 1 lower. Spot steady, middling 10.85.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 27. (AP)—The cotton market was rather quiet here today and prices while fluctuating moderately developed no particular trend. Liverpool cables were unfavorable and caused an early decline of 7 to 8 points, but prices later rallied on prospects for very unfavorable weather, advancing 11 to 13 points from the earlier lows. The market was supported by some trade buying as well as by fairly favorable weekly statistics particularly mill takings which showed a good gain over the preceding week. In the early afternoon prices eased off 6 to 8 points to rule quiet all afternoon despite weakness in stocks and rallied a few points at the end, the general market closing steady showing net gains for the day of 1 to 4 points.

Oils Join Rails in Collapse Under Pressure of Adverse News

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 27. (US)—The stock market today broke out of its previous narrow range to suffer a sizeable price setback.

The most significant decline was in the rail group, which closed virtually at the previous lowest level for 1931, reached on the first trading day this year.

Price reactions in the industrials and the public utilities were more severe than in the railroads, on the average, but the virtual cancellation of all the mid-way advance in railroad stocks emphasized the extent to which a large portion of the market has actually retracted its steps downward.

Volume did not increase very much, but of the 2,900,000 shares, concentrated selling appeared in many stocks with persistent influence against prices.

Attempt was made to interpret the day's weakness as principally reflecting renewal of aggressive bear activities, yet it is just as fair to assume the selling resulted from the weight of disappointing news of the week, not only in the many adverse dividend actions but likewise in the general tone of business developments.

The speculative activities chiefly responsible for the advances in many speculative issues had been overdone.

National Cash Register, whose president only a few days ago forecast earnings sufficient to cover the "A" dividend, was among the first to show weakness, on the overnight news that the dividend had been omitted. It broke to a new low. This stock had been a prime favorite of speculators during the great boom, but it has been in a down trend ever since, and probably now is close to discounting the worst aspects in its situation.

The speculative stocks, those which this column has repeatedly pointed to as being supported principally by extensive short accounts, were the worst sufferers, along with the pool favorites.

Steel Common, American Telephone and other leading issues suffered along with the lower-type stocks.

Auburn proved an exception to the general trend, actually gaining a point for the day.

Next to the railroads, the oil shares as a group made the saddest showing. Many of the group's most prominent issues declined to new lows for the year, including Standards of New Jersey, New York and California, as well as independents headed by Texas. The latter's dividend obviously is endangered and the stock is discounting establishment of a $2 basis or less.

United Corporation, whose volume maintained it as the day's most active issue, closed down more than a point, confirming the impression that during its recent huge daily turnover heavy selling took place. There was a report, also, that a large utility deal in which United figured had fallen through because of failure to agree upon terms.

Further signs of weakness in copper naturally had an adverse effect on these shares, although in Kennecott it was reported that sizeable scale-down buying was taking place.

The Alaska Juneau pool continued highly aggressive and managed to close their pet up over a point, but other pool favorites were in supply. Warner Bros. was among the earliest to show distinct weakness. General Motors lost another full point.

International Telephone showed resistance to the selling pressure, with demand for the stock in part attributed to arrangements for a credit to stabilize the Spanish peseta. I. T. & T. has large interests in Spain.

While the whole market was declining, the "technical" players were deeply concerned in the performance of the railroad stocks. A further decline in this group carrying them to the December low levels logically would have a serious influence on sentiment, since rail shares form a large proportion of many investment lists. It is quite likely however that additional setback in the rails will invite considerable short-covering, and perhaps a renewal of investment demand for some of the issues which, through dividend reduction or price decline, already discount far into the future. Keen discrimination, however, is essential in the group.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 27. (AP)—Rising prices for wheat today accompanied increased anxiety about possible crop damage southwest as a result of low temperatures. Bullish ardor was curbed, however, by reports that snowfalls preceding the cold wave had protected winter wheat from any material harm. Official summaries indicating that United States spring wheat seeding would be reduced 3,000,000 acres this season were largely offset by prospects that winter wheat remaining for harvest would be 2,000,000 acres more than last year.

Wheat closed firm, unchanged to 2¼c advance, the latter for June, corn ⅛@⅜c down, oats at ⅜c decline to ¼@¼c gain, and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 7c.

Corn tended to sag on account of spread trading in which corn was sold against purchases of wheat.

Oats were eased by the largest deliveries yet on March contracts, 140,000 bushels.

Provisions were firm, responsive to upturns in hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 82⅛c, 82⅝c; July 60⅛c, 61⅝@61⅝c; Cept. 60c, 61⅛c. Corn—May 62⅛c, 63⅛c; July 64c, 64⅞c; Sept. 63½c, 64⅝@64½c.

Wheat closed stronger, unchanged to 2¼c up, the latter for June, corn ⅛@⅜c advanced, oats at ⅜c decline to ¼@¼c gain, and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 7c.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, March 27 (AP)(U.S.D.A.)—Hog trade around the 11-market circuit was rather slow but prices were unevenly steady to 25c higher with a top in Chicago of $8.25. The chief strengthening influence was a curtailed supply. Total offerings were around 70,200 a decrease of 23,000 from a week ago.

Fat lambs were on a firm to 25c higher price basis and steady values were maintained on matured killing classes of sheep. The bulk of fed wooled lambs in Chicago cleared from $8.50@8.85. The supply numbered around 44,500 as compared with 52,892 last Friday.

Aggregate receipts of cattle estimated at 9,000 were 3,000 less than a week ago. Further weakness developed in Chicago on most killing classes but at most other markets supplies were too light to make a fair test of market conditions. In view of the lower eastern dressed beef markets this week prospects are not very encouraging for the forthcoming week unless receipts are curtailed.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, March 27. (AP)—Demand for wool is not quite as keen as early in the week. Prices nevertheless are firm and volume of business is fairly large. Bulk of current business is with the worsted manufacturers. Top makers are experiencing a slight drop in the volume of new orders, although they are receiving numerous inquiries on deliveries of tops on old contracts, are fairly steady.

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, March 27. (AP)—Cotton goods prices were slightly irregular today, coarse sheeting being easier, duck dull, and fine goods and print cloths showing continued strength. Percales have been advanced for fall delivery. Mohair draperies were advanced 10 per cent. Raw silk was firmer. Silk goods were in moderate demand. Further openings of wool goods for fall show substantially the average price declines already noted from last season. Burlaps were steady, rayon sales for knit wear were better.

STATES FIGHT TO TRY BURKE

U. S. Joins Claimants For Captured Killer

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 27. (UP)—The federal government and two mid-western states tonight waged a legal battle for possession of Fred Burke, hard-eyed, close-lipped gangster whose 15-year-old criminal trail is stained with 20 killings and major crimes which netted him approximately $2,000,000 in loot.

Burke, behind the bars of the Buchanan county jail here, maintained a sullen silence. He is wanted in Chicago as the machine gunner who cut down seven members of the George "Bugs" Moran gang on St. Valentine's day, two years ago. He is charged with killing a policeman at St. Joseph, Mich., in December, 1929. He is charged with robbing interstate shipments in Ohio.

Prisoner Silent

The gunman, charged all in all with a score of murders and depredations in 18 states, was captured early Thursday as he lay asleep at the home of his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Porter, near Green City, in northern Missouri. Surprised by the suddenness of their well-planned attack, he surrendered without resistance to the four peace officers who stood grouped about his bed, their guns trained on his head. Burke admitted his identity, but maintained a stubborn silence. He was identified again today by Chicago authorities, who rushed to St. Joseph and are attempting to return him to face charges growing out of the St. Valentine's day massacre.

Burke announced to Walter Butler and Harry Ditchburn, assistant state's attorneys from Cook county, Illinois, that he would fight extradition. A United Press dispatch from Chicago said authorities there were inclined to release their claim on Burke to Michigan officials, believing they had a better case against him for the St. Joseph, Mich., killing.

U. S. Wants Him

Gov. Wilbur M. B. Brucker of Michigan, today wired Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, at Jefferson City, Mo., that Michigan authorities were en route to Missouri to present that state's claim for Burke.

The federal government tonight announced it would seek Burke for trial on charges of stealing interstate shipments at Toledo, Ohio. William L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney at Kansas City, late today informed E. M. Mathews, St. Joseph, Mo., chief of police, that the federal government would seek Burke on the charge. Word from Toledo was that Burke and two other men were charged with robbing an express truck of two valuable watches on April 16, 1928.

GOOD HUNTING

Collingsworth Trapper Bags 175 Wild Wolves

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, March 27.—More than 175 wolves have been trapped in Collingsworth county since Sept. 1 by E. Brumbelow, government traper stationed in this county. Farmers residing in this section are well pleased with the results, believing this work greatly beneficial to poultry men and stock raisers. Up until Feb. 1, one-half of the trapper's salary was paid by the county, and the rest paid by the federal government. The county was unable to meet this expense after Feb. 1, and it is being taken care of by a group of local stock men.

Anti-Waste Order Upheld on Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 27. (INS)—The state supreme court today upheld an injunction issued by the Los Angeles superior court to prevent wastage of gas and oil by 43 oil companies operating in the Santa Fe Springs field.

The injunction was obtained by Fred Stevenot, former stae director of natural resources, under the oil conservation act of 1929.

The oil companies had appealed on the ground that the law was unconstitutional.

DAZED AVIATOR HALTS PLUNGE

Ship Dives 23,000 Feet With Unconscious Pilot

NEW YORK, March 27. (US)—Becoming unconscious 25,000 feet in the air, Elinor Smith, the girl flyer, today plunged 23,000 feet in a dead plane before she recovered consciousness and slid the plane to a crack-up landing in a small clearing near Mitchel Field, L. I.

The 19-year-old aviatrix, who was attempting to set a new altitude record for women, climbed out of the overturned Bellanca monoplane hysterical, but unhurt.

She lost consciousness when the oxygen tube slipped from her mouth as she was trying to start the motor which went dead.

Plane Righted

The plane banked in a crazy half circle, dragged around by one wing filled with gasoline, and, as the unconscious girl sat slumped in the seat, dove earthward at the terrific speed of 140 miles an hour. At 2,000 feet, Elinor recovered consciousness and, still in a daze, instinctively pulled back the stick, righting the plane, and zig-zagged and slid into the clearing, narrowly missing a group of trees and a tractor.

She tore off her goggles as she came down to save herself from being cut and piled up against the front end of the cockpit of the cabin when the plane crashed. Her thickly padded flying suit saved her from serious injury.

In a new yellow and blue Bellanca plane, the "Geraldine," Elinor took off from Roosevelt field at 12:40 p. m. in an attempt to break the record of 28,743 feet set by Miss Ruth Nichols of Rye, N. Y. After she regained her composure she told her dramatic story. She said:

Wing Down

"A half hour had passed and I was up 25,000 feet over New York. The motor started to pop. I gunned it and worked the throttle back and forth but it wouldn't come to. Just then my oxygen tube fell from my mouth and I went into a daze. When I came to I was just 2,000 feet up, heading toward Mitchel field. I headed in among the trees and seeing that I would hit them if I rolled straight, I put on the brakes as I landed. The weels slid along causing the plane to turn over on its back.

"When I came to at 2,000 feet I blinked my eyes and there I was. The air speed was 170 miles an hour and one wing, the left was down. My head was like a balloon. My ears were ringing and I was groggy but I had enough sense to side-slip and miss the trees."

What caused the motor to go dead was undetermined.

Norway's waterfalls are estimated to be capable of producing 16,500,000 electric horsepower.

PIONEER DIES IN FREDERICK

Stroke Claims Life Of J. N. Pipes

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 27.—J. N. Pipes, 67, pioneer citizen of Tillman county, died suddenly of apoplexy at the W. J. Robertson home, 312 South Tenth street in this city, at 10:45 a. m. Thursday. He had stepped into the Allen Seed store that morning as usual and complained that he did not feel well. Floyd Cosgrove, deliveryman of that establishment, took Pipes in the truck to the Robertson home where Mr. Pipes has been making his home.

Mr. Pipes was born in Kentucky. He came to this community at the opening of the country in 1901 and settled on a homestead west of Manitou, adjoining the old Thacker townsite. This remained his home until he lost his eyesight nearly four years ago, since which he visited different specialists in a vain hope of restoring his sight. For the past few years he has been living in Frederick. He was a member of several of the local Masonic bodies. He was never married and has no relatives here.

Funeral services will not be announced until word can be obtained from a sister in Kansas City, Mo., and a brother in Kentucky, to whom telegrams were sent.

COUNCIL ANXIOUS TO FIND FIRM TO SELL GAS AT LOWER RATE

HISTORY OF EFFORT TOLD

Utility Taxes Given Heavy Increase Last Year

Declaration that efforts have been made persistently during the past few years by the present city council to obtain lower utilities rates here, and that no partiality has been shown any utilities company, featured a statement issued Friday by the five present aldermen and Mayor Walter Nelson Jr.

The statement denies that the council or any of its members ever stated that the Municipal Gas company holds an exclusive franchise, and sets out that the Upham Gas company was requested about five years ago to put in a domestic gas distributing system here when it was installing equipment for delivery of industrial gas. The council's statement also points out that the city's supply of gas is supplied by the Upham company at a figure much lower than that formerly paid the Municipal Gas company.

Supporting allegations that utilities companies have not been shown favor by the city government, the statement points out that taxable valuations of all these concerns within the city have been raised in 1930 over previous years. The statement in full follows:

To the citizens of Wichita Falls:

The present city council were all selected on a citizens ticket to the city council, not at their own request but at the request of a great number of people, and we have always undertaken to operate the city's affairs to the best interest of its people and at the least possible cost.

It has come to our attention that certain misrepresentations as to the attitude of the council as to the present gas franchise have been made and on account of these misrepresentations the city council decided to make the following statement:

The city council at no time has ever made the statement that the Municipal Gas company had an exclusive franchise for the sale of gas in the city of Wichita Falls, and the facts are that the present franchise is not an exclusive franchise, but a franchise permitting it to sell domestic and industrial gas at the rates set forth in the franchise. The city of Wichita Falls can grant a franchise to any one who wishes to sell domestic or industrial gas in the city and the present city council has stood ready and willing ever since their election to grant a franchise to any party whomsoever would sell gas in Wichita Falls at a cheaper rate than the present franchise provides, and the present council has been in negotiations with numerous parties trying to interest them in entering Wichita Falls and selling gas at a cheaper rate than is now being sold for a period of over a year. At the time the Upham Gas company built its line from the Panhandle to the city of Wichita Falls in July, 1926, the city council granted a franchise for the sale of industrial gas in Wichita Falls at a lower rate than the rate then being charged by the Municipal Gas company and at that time a committee of citizens of Wichita Falls, including some of the members of the present city council, requested that company to build a domestic distribution system in Wichita Falls and sell gas at a cheaper rate than the present franchise provided, but that company, at that time, was unable to build a domestic system. At the time the city of Fort Worth was first contemplating putting in a municipal gas plant, we had negotiations with the party who was contemplating making the contract with the city of Fort Worth to build a large gas line from the Panhandle to Fort Worth which would pass through the city of Wichita Falls and we requested this gentleman, as soon as he had something tangible to offer that would mean lower gas rates to Wichita Falls, to come before the city council and told him we would cooperate with him in every way possible.

Plan Followed

The city council felt like it was to the best interest of Wichita Falls to carry on these negotiations in a business-like manner and felt that a publication of our plans would have the effect of defeating them because it would enable the present gas company to set in motion forces that would have the effect of preventing the building of these lines, but have always done everything in their power to not only lower gas rates but lower every other rate charged by other utilities in the city and at this time we are negotiating with all utilities operating in Wichita Falls endeavoring to reduce all the rates possible. The city council invites any one who has a proposition that will have the effect of lowering the gas or any other rates in the city of Wichita Falls to meet with it and discuss their proposition.

In order to show that the present city council has never favored the present gas company, when the Upham Gas company entered Wichita Falls with industrial gas, through its subsidiary, the Northern Texas Utilities company, the city of Wichita Falls contracted for all its gas at 17½c per 1,000, a considerable saving over the price it was previously paying the Municipal Gas company.

The Municipal Gas company rendered its property for taxation in the city of Wichita Falls in the year 1929 for $292,500 and in 1930, in spite of the fact that there were less gas meters actually in use in 1930 than the year before, their rendition was raised from $292,500 to $700,000. This was done over the vigorous protest of the legal representative of that company. The tax renditions of each of the public utilities in the city of Wichita Falls were raised in 1930 over previous years.

Before Commission

The city council of Wichita Falls did not go into the courts to undertake to lower the gas rates charged by the Municipal Gas company for the reason that in 1923 the matter of the present rates was fought out before the railroad commission at an expense of approximately $10,000 to the city of Wichita Falls acting in that fight through its then city attorney, W. E. George.

The city of Fort Worth carried a similar case to the Wichita Falls case to the courts, which was decided in the federal court in favor of the gas company, and the city of Fort Worth expended the sum of $80,000 fighting this case, and your city council deemed it good business to undertake to work out a lower gas rate by private negotiations rather than fight through the courts.

"It is necessary to buy vegetables grown elsewhere," he said, "because home grown truck is not available. But it is particularly true of the home owned establishments that they buy most of their vegetables here when they are on the market."

The program Friday was in charge of the retail trade division and was directed by Jack Barnard, chairman. J. L.
