Along The Waterfront

Fishing continued to be good through Saturday. The charter operators out of Sea Gun, fishing San Antonio bay and Cedar Bayou, reported catches of a lot of nice speckled trout and redfish. Most fell in the 1 1/2 to 2 pound range. Quite a number of outboard boats were active in Aransas and Copano bays and brought in some nice stringers. Winds Sunday slowed things down a bit in the bays, but Sea Gun's marina basin gave a good number of redfish, drum and flounder. Hand lines, cane poles and just about anything with a hook tied to it did the job.

Several hunters filled their limit of Canadas. A number of blues and snows were killed too.

Capt. "Brownie" Brown of the 65' motor vessel "Whooping Crane" based at Sea Gun continues to be successful in sighting the almost extinct whooping crane on the regular scheduled runs through the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. On Friday's trip, "Brownie" wouldn't even hazard a guess as to the number seen. 25 were sighted Sunday. There are 41 whooping cranes now reported at the refuge. One was killed in western Kansas a few days ago. It was believed to have flown into some high lines.

The motor vessel "Whooping Crane" leaves Sea Gun marina at 1:30 p.m. each Wednesday, Friday and Sunday on its scheduled birding tour. Sea Gun is located nine miles north of Rockport on Highway 31.

Redfish "Graze" On Pasture Land

High, seasonal tides along the middle Texas coast, helped along by Southwest winds, reportedly have scattered fish and made locating them difficult.

Redfish and flounder especially have utilized the high water to wander far afield. Land where, a few days ago, cattle grazed is now the feeding ground for these popular game fish.

E. G. Simmons, coastal fisheries supervisor for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, reports redfish in the back bays and up every little creek and river as far as the high tides have pushed salt-water.

"Flounder," Simmons said, "are really on the move. They have been caught in the surf and in passes from the bays to the gulf. Before long the spawning size fish will be moving into the deeper waters of the gulf to perform their annual reproductive chores."

High School Band Wins Superior Rating

The Aransas County High School Band achieved superior rating in competition at Robstown Saturday. The ACHS Band won this high rating in both marching and inspection competition.

In the Region 14 marching contest, 44 bands competed and only 16 earned superior rating. Bands in Class AA which were given superior rating were Aransas County, Refugio, Bishop, Aransas Pass, Taft, Premont and Gregory-Portland. There were 16 bands in Class AA.

Warden Students Train at Coast

The current class of state game warden trainees left the ivy walls of Texas A&M University for a two-day field trip to the Texas Coast.

The trainees, accompanied by Bob Evans, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department training supervisor, toured the department's Rockport facilities.

They learned about nets, trawls, boats, and motors from the people whose jobs include handling this equipment every day. They actually worked nets, located hidden "outlaw" nets, and inspected the regional headquarters.

"Classroom training is fine," said Evans, "but nothing will replace actual handling of equipment in the field and being briefed by experienced law enforcement personnel."

It's part of that area's National Date Festival, and this festival and others are being promoted overseas by the Department of Commerce to lure foreign visitors to our country. — WFS Photo

"After consultation with the State Department of Health, consulting engineers and from past experience, the

City Council Meets In Regular Session

A wide variety of matters were discussed at the City Council meeting Nov. 22 attended by Mayor Hollis Collum, Alderman Charlie Garrett, Wallace Maley and N. F. Jackson, Secretary Mary Lake Segler, Director of Public Works Tom Shults, Tax Assessor and Collector Herman C. Johnson, Attorney Richard D. Hatch, Engineer William McClendon, Chief of Police Bob Hewes and the following visitors: J. C. Harlan, Gilbert Moreno and Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt.

Harlan met with the Council to request an adjustment of his water bill due to a leak in the water pipe. He also asked the Council to clarify the ownership of the property where his business is located and adjacent to it. The City Attorney was instructed to investigate this matter and report back to the Council at the next meeting. A motion was made, seconded and carried that Harlan be allowed to make partial payment of the water bill at this time and that this matter be further discussed after the report by

$45,822 Grant To Local Schools

Supt. of Schools J. D. Gray announced Wednesday that the Texas Education Agency had approved an allotment of $45,822.65 for the Aransas County Independent School District under Title 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 which was passed by the last Congress.

Duck Season In Full Swing

It's full speed ahead for the fall waterfowl harvest which started Wednesday, Nov. 24, when ducks joined geese as legal targets.

The Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife reports that flocks have been building up lately, particularly because of cold weather in the north central states, which means in the zero or colder bracket.

The Department noted that the duck opener came as a definite relief to sportsmen confining their hunting to geese since they have seen great swirls of ducks arriving from the northland and even have had ducks buzzing their goose decoys.

The season, unlike the goose season, will be curtailed as to season length and bag contents. The duck season ends at sunset Jan. 2. The goose shoot does not terminate until sunset Jan. 12.

The daily limit on ducks is four and the possession limit eight, after the opening day. The daily bag limit on mallards and pintails is one each. The possession limit is two each.

But the severe restrictions on red heads, one of the more popular species particularly on the lower Gulf coast, have been lifted and limits may be completely filled with the fleet reds.

Here is the official regulation on ducks:

"The daily bag limit of ducks may not include more of the following species than: (a) 2 wood ducks; (b) 2 canvasbacks; (c) 1 mallard; and (d) 1 pintail. The possession limit may not include more of the following species than: (a) 2 wood ducks; (b) canvasbacks; (c) 2 mallards; and (d) 2 pintails."

MAYOR COLLUM ISSUES STATEMENT ON $300,000 REVENUE BOND ISSUE

City Council called a revenue bond election to be held Dec. 7.

"The monies derived from selling these bonds, if approved, would be used to expand the city of Rockport's water sewer system.

"Consulting with the city's financial advisor, Laddie Janacek of the First Southwest Company of San Antonio, the City Council set the amount of this bond issue at $300,000, with obligations to be repaid from the revenue from the combined water and sewer system only.

"The plans have been submitted to the State Health Department for a complete revamping of the sewer plant, with all work being done to comply with regulations set up by the State Water Pollution Board and the State Health Department.

"When construction is completed on this plant, it will have a capacity to handle 750,000 gallons per day, with a higher grade effluent. The estimated cost of this project as submitted will be $184,160, with the financing to be supplied by $125,000 from the revenue bond monies, if approved, and $59,160 to be furnished by the Federal government under Public Law 660.

"Anticipating the present and future needs for the water supply of the city of Rockport, $175,000 is included in the proposal for expanding the water system. At the present time approximately $45,000 will be used for drilling new

This act provides financial assistance to local educational agencies to expand and improve school programs for educationally deprived children. The educationally deprived children are those who lack certain academic, social, economic or other advantages which permit successful participation in regular programs. Identification of educationally deprived children is usually based on multiple evidences of deprivation rather than a single factor.

Gray and his staff have been working since early August developing the project proposal which has now been approved and will be activated shortly. The local project is among the first in the state to be approved.

A study of the needs of educationally deprived children conducted by the local schools indicated a need for a language arts improvement project. To implement this project the Texas Education Agency has approved several new positions for the district. Included among these positions is a remedial reading teacher to work with individuals and small groups on improvement of reading skills; a school nurse who will work with the deprived children in meeting health needs as well as other health programs in the school; and a visiting teacher who will do case work with individual pupils with an aim toward correction of certain personal, social or emotional maladjustments.

The visiting teacher will also assist in promoting regular attendance at school by these children. Two teacher aids have been approved for the Rockport Elementary School to relieve teachers of routine duties, allowing time for individualized instruction to deprived children.

Approval has been given for two library assistants who will do clerical work in the school libraries at Rockport Elementary, Fulton Elementary, and the Aransas County High School.

The final phase of the project will be after school study centers at the Junior-Senior High School and Rockport Elementary School. These centers will provide a time and a place where students may study and receive individual help from teachers. These centers will be held in the school libraries where students will be able to make use of reference materials. The tentative plan is to hold these centers open after school hours four days per week.

Gray said that the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 provides that the services made available in such a project should be for all deprived children in the school district from both public and non-public schools.

Local school officials have been working with officials of the Sacred Heart Parochial School, and children from this school will be eligible to participate in the various programs now being activated. Also, services for certain new personnel will be made available to children from the Sacred Heart School. Children from this school may attend and receive benefits provided in the after school study centers.

TRUCK AND TRACTOR COLLIDE AT HWY. 35 AND MARKET STREET

A pickup truck driven by John Collins, of Freeport, and a moving tractor owned by Aransas County and driven by Guy Barber collided Nov. 19 at the intersection of Highway 35 and Market Street. Chief of Police Bob Hewes reported that neither man was injured, but that the tractor was a total loss and the truck was damaged to the extent of about $300.

Trotline Edict Enforced By P&WD

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has ordered removal of improperly marked trotlines on Cameron County waters.

New regulations governing the use of trotlines in the coastal waters of Cameron and Aransas Counties stipulate a trotline must: (1) Not to exceed 500 feet in length, (2) not to be placed closer than 50 feet to another trotline, (3) not to be set within 200 feet of the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, (4) have the end stakes marked with burlap, webbing or flagging, and, (5) must be marked with plastic or cloth streamers at least one inch in width and six inches long midway between all stakes. These streamers must be clearly visible above the water.

Robert G. Mauermann, South Texas regional director for the department, instructed department personnel to remove all trotlines which do not meet these specifications.

"Over two months have elapsed since these regulations went into effect," Mauermann said, "and fishermen have had ample time to comply. The safety of the fishing public is at stake."

CIRCLE ONE MEETS

Circle One of the First Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Ted Little for the regular monthly meeting. There were 11 present. The Bible Lesson "The Holy Spirit Within the Church" was led by Mrs. Province Winkler, a new member of the Circle. The Emphasis "Stewardship" was given by Mrs. Floyd Smith.

During the brief business session, reports were given by various officers, and then seven members of the nursing home were selected as Christmas Pals. One member asked for assistance in promoting Spiritual help and guidance for the aged. Having in her possession a number of fine records, one member contributed a record player to help with this project. Music hath charm and will be of great help in the spiritually uplifting project. All other suggestions and contributions will be gratefully accepted.

The next meeting will not be held until January of 1966 as the annual Christmas party of the combined Circles will be held in the church on Dec. 12.

THOSE OVER 65

ARE WANTED PERSONS

Are you one of many older persons who are wanted by the Social Security Administration?

These are people over age 65 who may not know that they are eligible for social security hospital and medical insurance, says H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi District Manager of the Social Security Administration, and for that reason, they not yet have signed up for their health insurance.

They are over 65 and have never filed claims for retirement insurance because they are still working. Others are those over 65 who may never have worked for pay or who have done work but not enough to qualify for cash payments under social security.

These persons should get in touch with their social security office right away to establish their rights to the benefits of medicare, Cleveland said.

Anyone who cannot call at the office may write or telephone the Social Security Administration, 1802 S. Staples St., Corpus Christi, and arrangements will be made to file the necessary application. The telephone number is TU 3-5511.

METHODIST HELPING BOLIVIAN MISSION

The Friendship Class of the First Methodist Church is sending a $50 scholarship to the Bolivian Methodist Mission, which will keep one boy or one girl in school for a year. An additional scholarship is being sent by one of the couples belonging to the class.

The Rev. Robert Caulfield, who is serving as missionary and teacher in Bolivia, spoke in the Methodist Church in October, and showed pictures of the school and mission. At that time he emphasized the pressing need of help to permit the young people to attend school. In many instances the mission schools are the only ones available to train these children.

A NEWCOMER'S IMPRESSION OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT

By John R. Kinsey

Having lived and worked here slightly less than six weeks, I certainly qualify as a newcomer. And as a newcomer, I thought it might be of some interest to local people to read about the initial impressions of a person moving to Rockport.

Before moving here, the things that impressed me most were the beauty of the bays, the sight of cranes, sea gulls and other birds, and the grace of the many oak trees.

Having lived here since Oct. 18 (hardly making me a native), I still enjoy the sights mentioned above but I no longer consider the beauty of this area as the thing that impresses me most about Rockport.

I now feel that the friendliness of Rockport people is the first thing a new resident observes and appreciates. Folks don't just say, "It's been nice seeing you" and let it go at that.

During the short time I've been in Rockport, here are just a few of the many acts of friendliness I've observed:

—While my car was being repaired, several people took turns driving me to and from work, and one lady even offered to let me borrow her car.

—A city official had the courtesy to come to the Pilot office and say, "I'm sorry. I was wrong," after earlier complaining over the phone about a news story. It takes a real man to say, "I'm sorry. I was wrong."

—The people in the City Hall, Court House, Chamber of Commerce, the School System, State Parks & Wildlife Department and many others have been extremely helpful in assisting this newcomer in getting news.

—And one of the nicest things I've noticed about Rockport people is that they go out of their way to express appreciation. Every week since I've been here, various people have come to the Pilot office to thank Mr. Rogero, Mr. Woods, Mrs. Sparks or me for some article appearing in the paper.

This business of saying, "Thank you" or "You did a good job" really seems to be typical of Rockport people. And that definitely is not the case everywhere.

Before I get too "sticky," I'll close by saying, sincerely, that I'm mighty glad to be living here, that I hope to stick around for a long time, and that I'll do my best to help the Chamber of Commerce to attract more people to a darn nice place where the climate is great, the fishing is terrific, the people are friendly and the city has a great potential for growth and greater prosperity.

SCHOOL BOARD SAYS MONEY READY FOR OLD BONDS NOW

The high tax valuation on county property, which increased rapidly during the past five years, has produced enough money to completely pay off the 1951 bond issue now, according to a statement made by members of the School Board. However, because of the way the original issue was set up, this cannot be done before 1956, and the necessary $188,700 has been invested in government bonds to reap what interest is possible until the payment date falls due.

EDITOR'S VIEWPOINTS

SCHOOL'S OUT, FRITZ

"ETERNAL students" are getting short shifts in West Germany where enrollment in 31 institutions of higher learning soared from 113,000 to 265,000 in the past dozen years.

The overcrowding caused stern eyes to be turned on "students" who had been in school up to 12 years without earning their degrees. Rectors of the 31 universities proposed a cure: Dismissal of all students failing to finish their studies within the normal four year period plus two semesters of grace. Longer stays will require special permission.

Prompt action on the formula came from Erlangen University, where 172 "eternal students" got the boot at the end of the past summer semester. Another 163 left Erlangen voluntarily.

Thus Erlangen gained space for 335 students who really want to earn degrees, not just make a career of campus life.

The crackdown in West Germany will be of special interest to universities in Latin America which are plagued with professional "students" who do little or no studying but lots of politicking. Sooner or later, universities will have to eject such deadwood to make room for growing throngs of genuine students.—Miami Herald.

AN UNCERTAIN POLITICIAN

Politicians are normally an ambitious lot. Most countries are filled with men longing to be prime ministers, president or whatever they call their chief of state.

But not in Norway. The recent election there gave a coalition control of the parliament. The coalition chose Per Borten, leader of the Center party, as candidate for premier so he will run the government. He's not happy about it, he says, adding "Naturally, I'm metally unprepared for this new situation." He's not sure he can handle the job.

Can you imagine a Lyndon Johnson, a Harold Wilson, a Ludwig Erhard talking like that? Or a Charles de Gaulle!—Milwaukee Journal.

INITIATIVE—PLUS

There are things government can do better than the individual for himself—and should. There are things it cannot do as well—and shouldn't.

With the increasing trend of learning on "assistance" as a habit-forming crutch, there is less inclination to distinguish between the should and shouldn't.

Rugged individualism has declined almost to the vanishing point. An extreme of it was in the case several years ago, of an East Tennessee assistant fire chief. He answered a frantic call in the middle of a headquarters pinochle game.

Said the caller: "My house is on fire!"
The reply, "Well, just throw some water on it. That's all we could do."—Nashville Banner.

Act Now If You Are 65

If you have reached age 65 and are not receiving Social Security or welfare payments, now is the time for action. This message was received from H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi District Manager of the Social Security Administration.

His announcement explains that almost every older person is eligible for health insurance under a new law.

"The major part of hospital charges and doctor bills will be paid for 65 years old who sign up for the health protection," Cleveland says. "We are trying to reach two groups of people right now."

"Persons over 65 who have not applied for retirement insurance because their earnings are too high to permit cash payments will have medicare protection by applying for it."

"The second group we need to get in touch with may have had little or no work under social security," Cleveland explained. "By reason of being over age 65, they can get the health protection by enrolling for it. This also includes aliens who have had at least five years of permanent residence in this country."

"The health benefits begin next July," he said, "I cannot over emphasize the importance of prompt action by all those who are eligible. This applies to several thousands of persons in this area."

"Avoid the possible loss of this valuable protection which Congress has authorized by acting now," Cleveland concluded.

Further information can be secured in person, by mail, or by telephone from the Social Security Administration, 1802 South Staples Street, Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon Smith are now living in Palacios where Mr. Smith is preaching for the church there.

Taxes on Buying Or Renting a Building

College Station—Check tax angles before deciding on whether to buy or rent advises Mrs. Wanda Meyer, Extension home management specialist at Texas A&M University. Decisions on buying or renting a building or other property, such as machinery and equipment, often depend on federal income tax consequences.

Here's a rundown of tax angles that may help you make such a decision:

If you buy a building, you acquire a capital asset and can recover the cost through depreciation deductions. If you finance it by mortgage, the interest paid is deductible. Cost of taxes, insurance, repairs and maintenance can also be deducted.

If you rent a building, the rent paid is deductible along with expenses for repairs, maintenance and taxes you may have to pay under the terms of the lease. The amount claimed as rent, however, must be actual rent—not a gift or distribution of dividends disguised as rent. If you make improvements, you can deduct depreciation for them as well as rent.

If you lease with an option to buy, you have an advantage over "straight" renting, but you may run into a tax problem. You can deduct rent—which would exceed depreciation deductions—and retain the right to buy at the same time.

This advantage can be lost if the lease is considered an installment sales contract. Solution is to keep the option price high enough, or rental payments low enough, so that for tax purposes the rent won't be treated as payment on the purchase price.

Roy Rogero, Jr., a freshman at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, arrived Wednesday for the Thanksgiving holidays. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Rogero, Sr.

Letter to the Editor

Rockport, Texas
November 22, 1965

The Rockport Pilot
Rockport, Texas.

Gentlemen:

Well I see we are going to have another revenue bond project election, for $125,000.00 for sewer improvement, and $175,000.00 for water expansion and improvements.

I fail to see just where they are planning to make the expansions, if they are going to be outside the City of Rockport, then I think those areas should be taken into the city limits.

Mayor Collum states that this will not effect local taxes, but he does not say for how long, or if it will effect valuations. He also states there will not be increase in water rates ("at present"), but does not say for how long.

Personally I think the people should be given a lot more information about these kind of elections and not just be asked to vote a blank check to be spent just when and where the officials choose.

As the only newspaper in the City or County, then why don't you look into this thing and let the folks know the complete details.

Sincerely,
Ira Baker

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. and Mrs. William O. Harper also are the parents of a baby girl born the same day in the same hospital.

Wood Ibis Get Whoopers' Spotlight

It's just as well the New York World's Fair has closed because having that plus the conservation on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge might overtax the national equilibrium.

Sure, the Whooping Cranes are finding their way safely back to their ancestral wintering grounds on Black Jack Peninsula, swooshing in a few at a time from the 2,500 mile flight from Great Slave Lake near the Arctic Circle.

But it's the supernumerary flocks that won't cooperate, as determined by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Gordon Folzenlogen, assistant refuge manager, said everything was going to be all right—he hoped.

Now, the shrill cries of the arriving whoopers mingle with the resounding booms of a scare gun, rigged to fire methodically all day long at one of the two feed plots planted "for whoopers only." The hundreds of herbivorous said hill cranes can't read and don't seem to mind the boom-boom, but the combination of the constant blasting plus a scarecrow seem to dull their appetites.

The food plots, rich with grain tid-bits, were planted to nourish the precious Whoopers when strong north winds bare the natural salt-flat marshes. One plot was sufficiently protected to permit the grain to mature and be safe from the sandhills' which relish tender young shoots.

And there is where the rare Whoopers will feed come the next northern. One mile away the Zonn guns plus the scarecrow still are installed to blitz the sandhills plus a great collection of ducks and geese.

Still another problem menaces the mighty Whooper show. It is the reluctance of the semi-celebrated Wood Ibis, better known as the wood stork, to vacate its summer range here and hustle back to its main nesting area in Florida. The giant Wood Ibis closely resembles the Whooper, what with its black wing tips and long legs. And having the two varieties present simply strains ornithological protocol.

Tommy Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Picton arrived Wednesday from San Antonio for the Thanksgiving holidays. He is a seminarian at Assumption Seminary and attends St. Mary's University where he is a junior.

Mrs. Ruth Weber has recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital and return to her home, but Clyde will have to remain in the hospital a few days longer.

the City Attorney.

In the next action Mayor Hollis Collum introduced a resolution authorizing the application for a grant in connection with sewer improvements. The motion was carried unanimously. (For further details, read the article in this issue of The Pilot relating to the water and sewer revenue bond proposal.)

Next, a letter of resignation was read. Addressed to Chief of Police Robert Hewes, Mayor Collum and the City Council, it was from E. A. Stautzenberger and read as follows:

"It is requested by the undersigned that my resignation as patrolman for the Police Department of the City of Rockport be accepted as of Dec. 1, 1965. At that time I have accepted a position as Deputy Sheriff of Aransas County, Texas, under Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt.

"Please be assured that with my new position will come the utmost cooperation with the Police Department of the City of Rockport." The resignation was accepted.

The Council discussed a rider to the general liability insurance policy in regard to firemen. This rider would cover the possible liability of the city in regard to acts of firemen in fighting a fire. It was voted to add this rider to the policy.

A letter from Sam Warrington of the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association was read. It named Tom W. Shults as "City Water Utility Superintendent of the Month." The mayor presented to Shults the certificate citing this honor. Members of the council extended their congratulations.

Shults asked the council for permission to have the Shurflo Co. clean the sewer lines in Little Bay Shores Unit 1. The council approved this suggestion.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Theft: A Tax Deduction

During divorce proceedings, a court awarded part of the family's money to the wife. Her husband, outraged, reacted very much like the proverbial pugilist who cries: "I was robbed."

In that spirit, he solemnly claimed a deduction for "theft" on his next income tax return. But the government took a dim view of his claim. And, after a court hearing, the judge ruled this was not exactly the kind of theft that the tax law had in mind.

Generally speaking you do have a right to deduct for loss-by-theft of your personal property, above a $100 minimum. Unless you are covered by insurance, you may subtract the amount of the loss from your gross income.

But the government will insist on a reasonable showing that you really did suffer a theft. Mere unexplained disappearance is not enough.

For instance:

In one case, a man's wallet vanished from his pocket at some unknown point during a walk downtown and a ride in an elevator. The court found "only the suspicion of a theft"—not enough to justify a tax deduction.

In another case, a valuable bird dog, released for exercise, simply disappeared. The court observing that the dog might as probably be lost as stolen, denied tax relief to the owner.

On the other hand, you do not need overwhelming, ironclad proof to establish a claim. The circumstances of your loss may be convincing enough even though no thief is ever caught.

For example:

A traveller was advised, at an airport, that it was safe to leave his camera in the plane. But upon his return he found the camera gone. Theft was held sufficiently likely, in these circumstances, to support his claim for a tax deduction.

A woman kept a diamond pin in a locked drawer, but with the key accessible to her maid. When she returned home after a few days' absence, the pin was missing. So were some clothes. So were some linens, and so was the maid. Held: good enough evidence of theft.

THE AFFLUENT YEAR

License Need Is Charted By P&WD

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has decided a review of license provisions might be timely with the popular waterfowl and big game seasons approaching.

The Department explained that among persons not required to buy the $3.15 hunting license are those under 17 or over 65 but they must have an exempt license if they are going to hunt deer or turkey.

Also not required to have the license are those hunting on land where they reside but also need an exempt license for deer or turkey.

The Department added that persons not needing the regular $2.15 state fishing license are: persons under 17 years of age; persons fishing in their home county providing they do not use a winding device (rod and reel) and persons 65 years of age or older.

The Department noted in addition waterfowl hunters must have the regular $3 Federal duck stamp and that only exemptions involving this stamp are persons under 16 years of age.

Shrimping Keeps Pace Along Gulf

Austin.—The Gulf shrimping season has been a bountiful one for Texas fishermen. Landings at Texas ports have increased significantly over those of last year, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Rainfall during critical periods and a mild winter probably were contributing factors for the success of this year's brown shrimp spawn, survival and subsequent fishery beginning in July.

Less bountiful was the fall bay season for white shrimp. Early season results were disappointing to the smaller vessels that fish for this species that inhabits the bays. The early spawn of white shrimp provided a smaller yield than last year.

Biologists of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department believe that the second spawning group of white shrimp may provide a boost to the lagging bay production in late November, however.

Why more motorists switch to the Tiger when it gets cold.

Many cars that ran just fine all summer get into trouble when ear-muff time rolls around — stalling at stoplights and coughing and chugging halfway into town. additive to help guard against icing. Result: easier starting, faster warm-up and a lot less worry about stalling. You'll like the way new Enco Extra behaves on the open road, too. What blackout?

What happened in New York and Boston when the lights went out? A lot of people missed the TV programs, but they had hot dinners just the same.

They're the ones who do their cooking with dependable natural gas—the fuel that's always there when you need it.

In the eighteen years Aransas Natural has been supplying gas to the Rockport area, there has never been a gas failure, even during hurricanes and 16-degree temperatures.
