TEXAS SMUGGLER SLAIN

30 Seized In Texas Booze Drive

PAIR OF COUNTY OFFICIALS TAKEN IN RANGER NET

Prisoners Taken To Waco With Evidence Held At Cleburne

SIX MEN SURRENDER

Glen Rose Welcomes Drive As Local Officers Fail To Stop Traffic

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 26.—Texas ranger forces climaxed their two-day drive on moonshiners and bootleggers in the woody hills of Somervell county late today by taking County Attorney Eddie Roark into custody. Six other men surrendered during Sunday to rangers, bringing the total number now held by state forces to 30.

The rangers left Glen Rose tonight, part for Waco and the others for Dallas. The rangers leaving for Waco will take 12 alleged moonshiners with them and lodge them in the McLennan county jail, Capt. R. D. Shumate said this afternoon.

Will File U. S. Charges

Sheriff Walter Davis of Somervell county, arrested and jailed yesterday by rangers, and County Attorney Roark will be taken to Waco with the 12, it was asserted.

The other 18 men, now held in the Johnson county jail at Cleburne, will be transferred to Waco at the earliest possible time, Captain Shumate declared.

Charges of violation of the liquor laws and conspiracy will be filed in the federal court at Waco, it was learned.

Captain Shumate believes that they have just completed one of the best raids ever attempted in any section of the state, and while he would not say that his force had cleared the woody hills of Somervell county, he asserted that his men had put every effort forth during the two days and one night to round up every violator of the liquor laws.

11 Stills as "Proof"

The ranger captain left tonight for Dallas. Before leaving he stated that the "proof," including 11 stills, nearly 100 gallons of corn whisky, wine and beer, many barrels of mash and othe booze-making materials, had been taken to the Johnson county courthouse at Cleburne, and would be kept there. The "proof" was taken there because it was closer than others, he said.

Proving the success of the warfare waged on violators of liquor laws, six citizens of the county walked into the headquarters of ranger forces this afternoon and said they had enough, and then surrendered. This brought the total to 29, and the arrest of the county attorney made it 30.

Citizens Welcome Rangers

Rangers received every courtesy from citizens of Glen Rose, and said they were perfectly willing to have rangers come in to clean up moonshiners if local and county officers could not stop the illicit traffic which has been going on for some time.

Cosgrove Pleads For Big Majority In Irish Polling

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—On the eve of tomorrow's polling, uncertainty as to the result of the Irish election continues, but it is agreed in governmental circles that within the past week the prospects of the government party have grown brighter. This belief is due to the intensive campaign made by the ministers, who personally have addressed numerous meetings, and partly to the effect of the celebrations of the anniversary of death of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins.

President Cosgrave has covered more ground and addressed more meetings during the past week than any previous leader ever did. While he is confident of retaining office, his repeated appeals for a majority outnumbering that of all the other parties tends to show his unwillingness to govern by a coalition if he can help it.

POINCARE DENIES REPARATION CUT

Germany Must Pay Just As France Did In 1871, Says Premier

By The Associated Press.

CHASSEY-BEAUPRE, France, Aug. 26.—Premier Poincare, in an address in this village today, served notice on Germany that she must make an heroic effort to pay reparations just as France did in 1871. The address was delivered at the dedication of a monument to war dead. In it, the premier told Germany not to look for any reductions in her reparations debt.

"What we did 52 years ago," said Poincare, "they can try to do now. If they do not try to do it they will compel us to enforce against them the menace they made then, 'pay us or we remain.'"

Questions U. S. Institute.

France, continued Poincare, had to pay five billion francs, which was an enormous sum then, but the people offered 43 billions. He told how the country had raised other billions to pay the expenses of the war simply by getting to work. He added that the French payments could be proved, while as for German Chancellor Stresemann's assertion regarding Germany's payments, he declared, "it is vain to pretend that Germany already has paid 43 billion gold marks or even 25 billions, as was said by an economic institute of Washington, which has been impossible for me to identify and which is not listed in the congressional directory or the official year book of the federal capital.

"These are arbitrary estimates. In any case they show us what strange results if international experts ever were intrusted with the task of determining Germany's capacity to pay. The premier justified his concern for the future by recalling the past. "Germany made no mystery of her intentions during the hostilities," he declared. "Several times she unmasked her war aims, and up to the day she felt herchopes vanish, she always was planning to crush us forever."

Allies No Better Off.

The other allies, he continued, would not have fared better than France.

"On the other side of the Atlantic," he said, "the United States momentarily, perhaps, would have been shielded from the consequences of a Germanic victory, but they could not have long remained indifferent to the creation of a colossal power which had become the real sovereign of Europe and ready to throw its tenacles around the globe," for civilization would have been shaken and Germany would have gained "political, commercial, and intellectual supremacy from pole to pole and become under the Hohenzollerns, emperor of the human race."

PINCHOT SILENT ON EVE OF COAL PEACE MEETING

Pennsylvania Governor To Show Permanent Injury Danger To Industry

LEWIS NOT PRESENT

Miners Claim Peace Now Too Late To Hold Off Complete Shutdown

By The Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—Governor Gifford Pinchot, with such official and other assistance as has been summoned or volunteered, prepared today to deal with the threatened suspension of anthracite mining. Miners' union officials and coal operators' representatives, who will confer with him Monday, were all on their way to the state capital. The governor, as always during the intervals since he agreed with President Coolidge to make a final attempt to avert the industrial heup, sat little today.

Discussion to be Secret

Only the barest outlines of the governor's plans for the meeting became evident in his afternoon talk with newspaper men. He will greet the four leaders of the miners' union and the four members of the general policy committee of anthracite operators when they arrive at his capitol offices; make a brief address, detailing the circumstances under which they will have been brought together after three or four previous fruitless attempts at an agreement—and then proceed to discussion behind closed doors. What he will say to his visitors, the governor will not disclose until the meeting actually begins.

Governor Pinchot now has at hand practically unlimited quantities of statistical data bearing on anthracite. If has been generally surmised that at some point in his representations he would undertake to show the parties to the pending controversy that they will both stand in danger of permanent injury from a suspension September 1, since the consuming public, forced to use cheap substitutes for anthracite, may never renew the demand for anthracite again to its present strength.

Union Head Not Coming

Miners' officials who will attend the session are thought to be coming with the strictest limitations placed upon their power to act. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, will not be present; and Philip Murray, its vice president, and Rinaldo Cappellini, C. J. Golden and Thomas Kennedy, the three anthracite district presidents, will arrive in Harrisburg only in time to enter the session. Observers of the unions' proceedings consider that the call for a work suspension, now out, will not be withdrawn until Lewis personally has passed upon any settlement proposals.

Spokesmen for the union insist that a proposition made by Lewis to the United States coal commission in New York 10 days ago, under which the miners will be allowed to work if the operators would install the "check-off" system of collecting union dues, abolish all but eight-hour working places in their service, and agree "in principle" to make a wage increase, is the minimum which the organization can take.

Claim Parley Too Late

It was also said that the shutdown of some mines September 1 could not now be avoided, even should Governor Pinchot tomorrow win the leaders over to a postponement. Properly certified orders recalling the suspension notices could not be gotten out in time, union officers said, to reach all the scattered mining camps before that date.

"Must Not Be Agan," Is Sirit of Letter Made Public Which Shows His Efforts

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A letter from Warren G. Harding written June 15, exhorting American newspaper editors to use their power to end war and described as the "legacy of a newspaper man man-president to the press of his country," was made public tonight by Walter Wellman, journalist and author.

In this letter, sent through Wellman to the editors of American newspapers, Harding sounded the same note he struck when, gazing with misty eyes on the caskets of American dead borne back from the battlefields of Europe, he exclaimed: "It must not be again."

Praises Newspaper Plan

"I am informed," wrote Harding to his fellow editors, "that some of you are considering a plan to use the power of the great American newspaper press to ascertain the opintons of the people upon the problem of America's duty in world reorganization for the abolition of war, the reign of international law with tribunals instead of battlefields as courts of last resort, and the creation of a system of international co-operation without supergovernment or encroachment upon the independence of any nation, designed permanently to preserve peace, neighborly relationships, economic stability and prosperity among all the peoples of the world.

"That this plan to elicit American opinion is to be participated in by newspapers of all sections of the country, without regard to political affiliations and that no partisan purpose of any sort is to be sought by it; that the various vital phases of the problem are to be carefully and impartially presented to readers as aid in forming their judgment appeals to me strongly. I have long since become convinced that the United States should not and will not enter the much discussed league of nations, but that conviction has not destroyed the hope world association and attending world that there may be found a way to understanding.

Pleads Against Rivalry

"With this plan to set the American people to thinking more strongly and clearly and expressing their conclusions concerning the international duty of our republic, I am in full sympathy. It is an admirable useful work, and I hope you carry it to all the readers in the land. In my opinion this is a problem which the United States must soon meet with earnestness and courage, and that it will be of great help to the government when it proceeds toward a practical solution of the problem to have a definite formation of public opinion to build and rely upon. Klan Wizard Posts $2,500 Reward For Arrests In Fatal Parade Riot

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 26.—Five hundred or more knights of the ku klux klan late today assembled on a hill overlooking the suburban town of Carnegie, where last midnight Thomas R. Abbott of Atlasburg, Pa., a member of the order, was killed in rioting attending an attempt of the klan to march thr ugh the town.

Chief Braun of the Alleghaney county detective force, immediately dispatched a deputy to the hill with orders to notify the klan leaders that a demonstration in the village would not be permitted, and unless they dispersed before nightfall he would "not" be responsible for what might happen.

When the officer reached the hill he found a large number of persons there, but was assured that no klan meeting was in contemplation. The klansmen declared they were simply removing the paraphernalia taken to the hill for last night's demonstration.

Meantime Patrick McDermott, an undertaker of Carnegie, was in the county jail, charged with killing Abbott, it was said by authorities, and scores of persons were in hospitals and at their homes suff ring from injuries sustained in the fighting.

Dr. H. W. Evans of Atlanta, imperial wizard of the klan, who was the principal speaker at a demonstration attended by klansmen of the Western Pennsylvania district, which preceded the march, tonight issued a statement in which he declared the order would press for the punishment of Abbott's "murderers," and offered a reward of $2,500 for their arrest and conviction.

The most seriously hurt of the many persons injured in the fighting was Stephen Jarzombe of Carnegie, who was shot in the stomach. Physicians said he had a good chance for recovery, although he was badly wounded. A boy was sent to a hospital with a bullet in his foot, and many other persons were attended by surgeons near the battle ground. One Carnegie doctor said today that he had dressed no less than a dozen wounded.

Two Boys Burned At Indian Stake In Jersey Drama

By The Associated Press.

BELMAR, N. J., Aug. 26.—Juvenile western drama, with "live Indians" tied to the stake, ended in grim tragedy in Wall township near here tonight when two 16-year-old lads were fatally burned while tied to a tree by two companions in their play.

Charles Spindler and William Hubbard were the victims of the game of "Indians." They permitted their companions to tie them to a tree and "burn them at the stake."

The others, Richard Forecan, 16, and Caleb Hubbard, 18, brothers of the younger Hubbard boy, bound the lads to a tree and lighted a fire, the police say. The flames spread, and before the nervous fingers of the boys could undo their companions' bonds, were beyond control. A passerby succeeded in freeing the boys, but both died soon after being taken to a hospital.

"Help One Self" Best Way To Be Aided—Poincare

By The Associated Press.

GONDRE COURT, France, Aug. 26.—"The best way to be aided, not only by heaven, but by man, is to commence to helping one's self," said Premier Poincare today in dedicating a Young Men's Christian association plaque on the city hall to commemorate the arrival of the first American troops on the fighting front in the World War.

"It is this conviction that led us into the Ruhr," the premier continued. "All that happened before—all that has happened since—confirms our belief that we were right."

These words ended the premier's address, which was devoted chiefly to the coming to the battle front of the Americans and regret that war-time alliances had been dissolved. The premier had come to Gondre Court from Chassey-Beaupre to dedicate the plaque.

"The Americans think," said the premier in his address, "that a people that pass the time in consultations, hesitations and complaints is afflicted with incapacity and impotence. A people that knows what it wants is always sure to attain their esteem and affection."

ZONAGALE

In Collaboration With Russell Gore Writes On

THE BLIND BOSS.

The Old Man's day has ended. He has come early and stayed late, dozing in his cushioned chair an hour or so after lunch to preserve the fiction that he works harder than any member of his staff. Like the honest and formidable soldier that he is he marches from the luxurious office that the owners of the business have provided him. A sturdy, simple servant conscious of the duty alobe in guarding the payroll, in holding down the egotism of the youngsters and in "proving to all Smart Alecks that they can't slip anything over on the Old Man." He goes to wife, to daughters, to dinner and to suppers, to kindness and his own true pleasant self.

He is not himself by day. The morning wakes him to monstrous illusion that outhority is power. He has the authority, but through thinking too much about it he has lost the power. At first men took their problems to him. Now they either solve them alone, or blunder and are protected by their fellows. The force is agreed that the Old Man's temper must not be aroused.

The men are frankly glad when he is absent. For things go better. They laugh aloud and get fun out of their work. It is as though a foot had been removed from the brake controlling the collective energy. They are no longer timid and confused. Initiative is unleashed once the rasping, futile presence is removed. Whimsical ones, told that he will not be down town today, raise eyebrows and quote the famous one who said, under somewhat similar circumstances, "I trust it is nothing trivial."

And this is too bad. For the Old Man does not deserve hostility. He does not know he has it. Do they not listen patiently, and laugh obediently, at epics of his long ago? To favorites he has garrulous hours, boring them, wasting their time and sending nothing of the veil between them. Because he may, at next contact, resume the snarling, snapping role t ladyehtsrsa rmoGK ol ia,ek role they distrust, and rather despise, the clumsy unbending. Only a few have a chance to see a lonely, bewildered soul groping for human relationships. Those who do not see hate him.

There is one who hates him not at all. For at his desk pause most of those having business with The Big Noise within. And when much is known, hate becomes more difficult. Impatience perhaps. Dumb wonder at stupidity. Flares of hot passion at injustices committed because he does not understand psychology. But hate—no. For a kindly self is hidden deep within this illusion that he must maintain a bristling front to bring on the best in men and women.

The Old Man will never change. He is too fixed in the pattern he feels to be best. He worked at the business he commanded when most of the men were ne'er do wells, sporadically brilliant drunkards overlooking the harsh tongue for the eye good enough to blink at their transgressions. But these men of today are skilled and steady craftsmen—specialists who resent an executive's assumption that he must pretend omniscience in their separate tasks.

A burly, hearty man, one of the most highly skilled, emerged from the office the other day.

"Well, he's convinced me I'm no good," he dropped at the way station without.

A favorite—slender, delicate, valued for his creative ability—paused to remark, "Did that rough bird inside ever have an idea in his life?" And left without waiting for the answer.

Another came out, white, biting his lip.

"I took enough interest in my job to make a suggestion. Never again!"

Some day The Old Man will drop the authority he wields as well as he knows how. And only those will be sorry who know the truth—that he was afraid if he showed the decency within he would cease to be The Boss.

In this same city a woman is general manager of an organization larger than that which the Old Man holds down to the safe lines of least resistance.

On her desk almost every day are flowers, sent anonymously by employes to whom she means humanness in business. Yet only a reckless one would say she is not The Boss.

Perhaps this is what women, in time will bring to business—humanness.

A WHIRL AT LOVE.

Sometimes our young friends disappear for months, and we wonder what in the world has become of them. Invitations are sent them, and are not even acknowledged; we invite them to dinner for the week-end, and always they have an engagement.

No use getting angry at the young things. They are having a whirl at a new love, and when their ardour cools they will return to us.

Don't mark them off your list of friends for evidence there for being rude. They don't mean to be at all, but while the spell lasts they simply can't call on old acquaintances.

Most of us have had these "whirls" and we have all sought forgiveness from friends when it was over.

RAIN IN DAWSON COUNTY.

LAMESA, Texas, Aug. 26.—Dawson county as just received from one to one and a half inch rain which has materially benefited the cotton and grain sorghum crops over the county. The continued cool and cloudy weather following the late rains with some sign of the boll and leaf worm has created some apprehension among the farmers, as to what will be the outcome, but if more hot weather is to follow during the next few weeks there will be no grounds for much uneasiness.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Combination Vegetable Salad—Dissolve one tablespoon gelatin or use one-half package lemon jello in one cup boiling water, let cool. Have ready the following (cooked) peas, beans, dried carrots and uncooked—celery sliced tomatoes. Place sliced tomatoes. Place slice of tomato in individual molds, then heap other vegetables, mixed together and seasoned, on top of tomato until mold is almost full, pour cooled jello over and let harden. Turn out on leaf of lettuce when firm, and serve with a good boiled dressing.

Hamburg (Hungarian Style)—Chop meat and an onion fine, season with salt and pepped and add one-quarter cup bread crumbs and one egg, mix well and form into flat cakes. Slice one large onion into a deep frying pan and then put cakes in and fry slightly on one side, sprinkle one tablespoon of flour and one-half tablespoon of paprika over meat cakes on unfried side and then fill pan with water. Bake in oven turning cakes frequently so as to brown on both sides, if water cooks down too much before cakes are done refill and then allow to cook down until a little less than half. This makes a delicious gravy.

Cabbage—Cook chopped cabbage for five minutes, pour off water, refill pan with fresh water and cook slowly until tender; when cabbage is ahlf done add a tablespoon of sugar and a small piece of citric acid, and salt. If while cooking you add a small piece of fat beef breast it gives cabbage an added flavor.

SUGGESTIONS.

Strawberry Pancake.—Make a pancake batter in the usual way, of one beaten egg, pinch each of salt and sugar, two cups of sour milk, one-half teaspoon of soda, tablespoon of melted butter and flour enough (sifted) to make a thick pancake batter. Pour into a greased pie tin. Wash and hull a pint of strawberries, drain and drop into the dough. Sprinkle well with granulated sugar and bake in a quick oven. The juice from the berries will mingle with the batter while cooking and give it a delicious flavor and color. Care should be taken not to burn.

Inexpensive Breakfast Set.—An attractive, yet inexpensive, breakfast set can be made from one yard of 35 inch unbleached muslin, and one yard, four inches of small checked gingham. Tear off the nine inches from one side of muslin leaving a square yard each way. Cut four strips of gingham six inches wide, sew across each side of muslin, then turn gingham up on other side and have machine hemstitched. This gives you a three-inch border of gingham around cloth. Cut nine inch strip of muslin into four squares for napkins. Make gingham border for napkins only an inch wide when finished. Cut gingham strips about two and one-half inches wide.

$8,400 LOSS IN SUNDAY BLAZE

Fire Wrecks Victoria Hotel And Damages Chevrolet Building

Fire completely destroyed the Victoria hotel, 810 Lamar, and damaged the Lockhart Chevrolet company building adjoining it about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

The hotel was estimated at $8,000 with $6,000 insurance. Damage to the garage is said to be $400 and covered by insurance. The record of the fire filed at fire department headquarters says origin of the blaze was undetermined.

Movie Land

To Blanche Sweet has fallen the honor of playing the screen version of the play "Anna Christie." This part is considered the "plum" of the motion picture parts of 1923. Her husband, Marshall Neilan, has consented, at the request of Thomas H. Ince, to postpone "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," in which his wife was to have starred, to allow her to take the part of "Anna."

Pauline Lord created the part in the spoken drama and it ran for two years in New York and then took London by storm. "Tess" will follow the filming of "Anna Christie."

Miss Sweet, who is a D. W. Griffith "discovery," with Mary Pickford and the Gish sisters when she was known as "The Biograph Girl," has just finished her characterization of the leading role in Goldwyn's 'In the Palace of the King."

SEYFFERTITZ MAY DIRECT

Gustave Seyffertitz, who has been working in "Under the Red Robe," may direct after the picture is finished. It will not be his first work in that role, as he directed pictures in which Lila Lee and Alice Calhoun starred.

MOVIE GOSSIP

Two new pictures for First National releases are "Thundergate," a picturization of Sidney Herschel Small's "The Lord of Thundergate," a story of Chinese and American life, and "The Age of Desire," a screen version of Dixie Willson's "Dust of the Doorway." Joseph de Grasse is directing the former and Frank Borzage the latter.

John McDermott is to direct "Her Temporary Husband" for First National, which will be filmed for the most part in San Francisco. "Her Temporary Husband" is a screen version by F. McGrew Willis of William Paulton's famous stage comedy of the same title. It is planned to film the play on a most elaborate scale. According to First National executives, it will be a comedy extraordinary, with a cast including several hundred persons.

Frederick Truesdell, who plays the millionaire husband in "The Age of Desire," which Frank Borzage is directing for First National, is one of America's few actor-poets. Mr. Truesdell has made a study and a hobby of verse writing, and there is hardly a day passing but what he is writing something of this sort. His poems have appeared for the past twenty years in various magazines.

Once in a while we stop the torrent of bee-cocktail maidens and hand some young man, whose pictures we know the fans adore, and show one of the character actors without whom no picture story is complete. These heroic folks—although in real life they are most exemplary, in reel life are villians of the deepest dye or old servants who perish with inevitable alacrity to save the young master or mistress.

One of these noble souls is Harlan Knight, who portrays the Rev. Alexander Murray, a saver of souls, in elph Connor's "Man from Glengarry," and then revels in evil deeds in the screen version of another Connor story, "Glengarry Schooldays," which is appearing under the title of "The Critical Age."

Before taking up screen work Mr. Knight was a vaudeville headliner. He wrote play lyrics and songs. Among his best known are "The Little Red Schoolhouse" and the music to Edmund Vance Cook's "Moo, Cow, Moo," which little Mariam Battista will sing in vaudeville.

MIRIAM IS A FLIRT.

Miriam Cooper has a brand new kind of role in "The Broken Wing." She will play the Mexican flirt, a part that calls for a real understanding of comedy and those who have seen her work say she is going to make the biggest hit of her career.

MARY PHILBIN AGAIN SCORES.

Mary Philbin, who appears in "The Age of Desire," Frank Borzage's new picture, has given a wonderful performance in picture which has an all-star cast. Myrtle Stedman, William Collier, Jr., Josef Swickard, Frederick Truesdell, Frankie Lee, Edith Yorke and others are in the cast.

MAE MARSH GIVES WIRELESS TALK.

Mae Marsh, star of the D. W. Griffith production, "The White Rose," spoke over the radio recently for the first time. Miss Marsh regarded as the greatest of the emotional actresses told briefly of her motion picture career under the guidance of Griffith.

NAME CHANGED.

William de Mille's next Paramount picture has been renamed "The Marriage Maker." Since production work started several weeks ago it has been called "Spring Magic," but it has been decided to discard this title.

The production is a film adaptation made by Clara Beranger from Edward Knoblock's stage play, "The Faun," in which William Faversham starred.

HARDING

lieve that in this great task of helping to make the world safe for humanity, no political party should seek selfish advantages; that here should apply our old and most wholesome tradition that party rivalries stop at the edge of the high seas. Hence I shall be glad if the American press, ignoring partisanship, uses its great power to draw forth the best thought, heart and soul of our people. In such a crystallization will be read the decision of the public."

True Sentiment Revealed.

In making public the foregoing letter, which he described as an urgent appeal to newspapers of all parties to conduct a nation-wide non-partisan popular referendum as to America's international duty, the details of which he had discussed with the late president, Wellman asserted that had Mr. Harding lived his plans and purposes he would have himself revealed when ready.

"But now," continued Wellman, "it is plainly my duty to him, to the people who loved him as a man regardless of their view of his policies to make known what he told me of his determination to do all in his power to bring about a higher type of civilization, to banish war, to lift from all peoples the burdens and menace of the old but now worn out and useless militaristic regime. It is only just to Mr. Harding's fame, to his place in history, that the truth be made public."

Wellman then told of the conversations he had had with Mr. Harding in the White House a few weeks before his death.

"The late president spoke to me frankly as one newspaper man to another. Had he lived all that would have been a confidence. Now it is a heritage that must not be lost.

What Harding Said.

"He told with feeling of his many days and nights of earnest, prayerful thought on the problem of America's duty, of how he had at last reached a definite conclusion, that his conscience would not permit him longer to remain inactive, of his belief that the conscience of our people, once their minds were stirred up on this problem, would not countenance persistent isolation and indifference, as our national policy.

"Our people have never really thought on this matter,' he said, 'and when they do really think on it, they will land with all their hearts and souls in the right place.'

"Then he quoted Theodore Roosevelt's words: 'When you once get the American people to think, and think hard—well, you better stand from under.'

"Mr. Harding rose to a great height in discussing his plans. He was splendid, noble, in voicing his determination. I wish all the people could have seen his face, heard his voice, when he said: 'Lots of people like me, but do not like my administration. They think me too timid to do really big things. Well, I'm going ahead in an effort to make the world safe for humanity, even if it costs me another term in the White House.'"

Planned World Congress

Picturing what Harding planned "to make the world safe for humanity," Wellman said he wished to have the world court proposal settled as the first small step, and then contemplated next year inviting all the nations to a world congress at which he meant to submit a definite program.

Wellman said that the late president had discussed features of this program in which he saw the league of nations as a praiseworthy effort that had failed and which should be merged into a greater and more efficient community council embracing all nations equipped not with some but with all the powers needed to achieve its ideals. Particularly, said Wellman, did Harding deem it necessary to end war by forbidding it in international law; not compromising with it, but leaving it without legal status.

"It is a most tragic coincidence in our national life," declared Wellman, "that McKinley, long the champion of high tariffs, had his newer vision of American intimacy with all the world and voiced his reciprocal proposal just before his death in Buffalo and now Harding, generally considered an American isolationist, reached the determination to make his country the leader to a new and better era for all mankind just before the end came at San Francisco."

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a married man thirty years old and my wife is twenty-one.e W have been married two years. My wife keeps me heart-broken all the time. I have tried several times to make her a home, but she gets a little angry and then leaves and stays two months at a time.

I have furniture for a nice home. I work every day and bring my pay home and give it to my wife, but if I want to step out for an hour or so to see some of my fellow friends she gets angry. I tell her to go when she pleases to see her friends and I go with her and take her places, but she does not want me to do anything. I could do more for her if she would allow me to.

I used to drink. She said that caused all of our trouble, and I quit it. Now things are worse than ever. She says she loves me, but it is doubtful. Please advise me.

PUZZLED HUSBAND.

I am afraid you do not get your wife's point of view and cannot see just how serious a matter your former drinking was. There is nothing which causes a wife more anxiety and unhappiness, and no woman can be blamed for leaving her husband when he home life is made miserable because of that.

Since you have been married only two years, I judge that you have not been away from the drink habit for been away from the drink habit for a very long time. Your wife probably loves you as she says, or she would not have returned to you, but she feels nervous about your friends and is afraid that you will be induced to start drinking again.

For a while at least I would advise you to content yourself with your wife as a companion and try to enjoy her friends. She has your interests at heart I am sure and fees that if you have your pleasures with her you are not in danger of the drink vice. It is really for your own good that she acts as she does. Try to love her more for her interest in you.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl in my late teens and am in love with a boy a year and a half my senior. When we are together he seems to care a lot for me and tells others that he cares for me, but after we have been together for a few times he seems to tire of me. Then when I go with some one else he wants me back.

He has done this three times now and each time I have left another friend who cares a lot for me and gone back to him. We have gone together about fourteen months and I certainly tried many times to give him up, but when he wants to come back I can't refuse him.

His sister tells me that he cares a lot for me and says that I don't understand him. Please advise me what to do.

ACCOMODATING LIZZY.

I would not advise you to give up the boy who proves to be such a good friend simply to gratify the jealous whim of the boy you seem to love. There is really no reason why you should not have both boys as friends. Doubtless your faithful friend would be reasonable about your going with his rival, and if the other boy for whom you care so much objects, he should not be considered. He has acted in such a way that he really does not deserve your consideration.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a young man twenty-three years old and I am desperately in love with a young lady two years my junior, but I am timid and cannot get up the courage to ask her to marry me. I think she is interested in me. What do you think would be the best course for me to pursue?

WAITING

A proposal is not as hard as it looks. Simply jump into what you have to say and the worst will be over. Tell her you love her and want her to marry you, and then ask her if she loves you and will marry you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man, twenty-one years of age and have been keeping steady company with a girl of 20. We have gone together for about two years and always get along fine when we were together, but at times she gets angry and quits me without any excuse.

We have "busted up" and gone back three times already. The last time she claimed some one came down to the bank where she works and told her something, but she would not tell me what it was or who told her, but still she wanted to quit me again. The time before this she promised me if I would take her back she would never quit me again, and so I took her back, but I told her that if she ever quit me again I would never take her back. Now after she has heard something, we have quit again.

I have another girl and have been going with her ever since. Today I got a letter from her begging me to take her back. She claims the reason she quit me three times before was to find out whether or not I truly loved her. She promises that if I will take her back this time she will never quit me again and will do anything to please me. Prior to the time she quit me we were engaged to be married, but suddenly she changed her mind and acted as if she were in love with someone else. Now she claims she was not in love with anybody else and if I will take her back she will marry me and will work to help buy us a home.

She has quit me so many times before this that I hardly know whether to take her back or not.

DOUBTFUL BILL.

It seems to me the girl has played fast and loose with you long enough. You cannot trust her to be faithful to you, because experience has proved that her promises mean nothing. I do not believe you would be happy together even if you were to marry her now, because she would be just as moody after marriage as she has been before.

My advice is to let the first girl go and continue your friendship with the second. Love will come to you again later on and it is surely to be hoped that your next experience will be a happier one than the past. You have given you whole heart and have received very little in return.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am 18 years old. I have boy friends, but never allow them to make love to me. I also have a steady friend whom I don't expect to marry for a few years anyway. He feels as I do, that we are too young to marry. I have been told not to go steady and be loved by some one I don't expect to marry. What would you advise me to do? Should I have friends only? The reason I have a steady friend is because I don't care to go with different boys all the time. Do you think I ought to let the one with whom I go steady make love to me even if I don't expect to marry that person?

WANTS TO DO RIGHT.

Follow your own wishes regarding the number of friends with whom you wish to go. Usually a girl who is not in love prefers several friends. Yourl is so fickle that usually the little romances do not last long, and when one friend deserts there is another to enjoy. You seem to be of a different type and would probably find more happiness in one friend than in scattering your interests.

I would not advise you to let a young man make love to you merely because you go with him "steady." The only excuse for love-making is love.

KLAN WIZARD

persons in Heidleberg, a village near Carnegie, while many Pittsburgh doctors reported similar cases but said non of the injuries were serious.

Ten men were arrested by Carnegie police before the rioting started were today fined $10 each under a borough law for having arms in their possession. They had stationed themselves along the principal streets, and were directing automobiles bearing the klan insignia to the meeting ground on the hill. This action led the district attorney to declare that the county would direct its efforts to prosecuting those arrested in connection with the rioting, as there was no Pennsylvania law which prohibited such meetings as that held by the klansmen, he said.

25,000 At Klan Meeting

The rioting came after the most spectacular meeting of klansmen ever held in this section. Hundreds of automobiles began to arrive at the hill early Saturday evening, and by 9 o'clock it was estimated that 25,000 persons had given the password and passed within the enclosure, scores of them women. The place was brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, and after a large class had been initiated, Evans delivered an address. Several thousands of the klansmen were then formed into line and marched down toward the village.

The greatest excitement had marked the entire evening in Carnegie. The commanding position of the hill on which the klan had gathered had aroused the entire countryside, and thousands of persons had poured in. They lined the principal streets, and waited for hours for the parade to start. The greatest assemblage was where the line of march passed over Chartier's creek and just before the head of the parade reached that point an automobile was drawn up across the bridge.

Policemen Stop Parade

As the klansmen wound down off the hill, preceded by an automobile carrying three men and a woman, Carnegie policemen on the bridge ordered them to halt, saying the parade could go no further as no permit had been given.

The klansmen appeared at a loss just how to proceed when suddenly the fighting began. Some one tossed a bottle and then a few stones gathered from the railroad right-of-way nearby and in spite of the efforts of the police to restore order the crowds surged into the street. An American flag was torn from the leading automobile and the klan ranks broke as they rushed forward. They fought their way on each side of the machine and in the street. There was a desultory shot or two, the combatants confining themselves to bottles, bricks and stones.

A county detective in the crowd made his way to the front and recovered the flag and the fight swept by him. Half a block further on, Abbott, a mine machinist, was shot and klansmen quickly carried him into a physicinn's office nearby. He died on the operating table.

Officers Patrol Streets.

Meantime a party of klansmen had swept around the block through side streets and engaged the crowd further in toward the business center. Four of their number were carried into a butcher shop where their wounds were attended by a doctor and they were hurried away by their friends. Many similar instances were reported to the authorities.

The greater number of klansmen had remained in the road near the bridge, watching the fight in the street beyond. County officers pleaded with them to go back to the hill and in the course of half an hour the order was given and they marched away. Soon they were in their automobiles homeward bound and before daybreak the hill was deserted, while the crowds in the streets gradually melted away.

County officers patrolled Carnegie all of Sunday, but the streets were almost deserted until late in the afternoon, when it was seen that men again were gathering on the hill. Their little knots of citizens appeared, but there was no disorder.

Spuds Drop Pair to Exporters, 7-4 and 6-4

DYER IS SENT TO COVER IN OPENER AND RESCUES EARL KUNZ IN SHORT AFTERPIECE

Dyer Is Unable To Hold Four Run Lead In First Tilt While Kunz Is Also Ineffective; Dollie Gray Stingy With Safeties; Art Weiss Stars In Second; Rest Today.

BEAUMONT, Aug 26.—The Spudders suffered a double reverse today when the Exporters opened a desperate attack against Dyer in the opener and Kunz in the second. Dyer, the former Rice star, was the victim of a 7 to 4 defeat in the first game, his delivery lasting but four and one-third innings. Osborne was rushed to the rescue and stopped the Exporters dead in their tracks, but his effort came too late. Gray, nicked for four runs in a desperate second inning mowed down the visitors with regularity thereafter.

Spuds Can't Hold Lead.

The second game was a repetition of the first. The Spudders jumped into a long lead, but Kunz was unable to stem a fifth inning attack and yielded his task to Dyer who was far more effective than in the first game. The Exporters finally won 6 to 4.

Jacobus was a bit wobbly in the opener but escaped with 2 runs. In the third, he yielded a like number, but tightened after that and but two Spudders reached first base in the final four rounds.

Weiss Stars With Ash

Weiss' hitting featured the Spudder attack in the short game, his three hits figuring in each of the four runs scored. But the remainder of the safeties were scattered sufficiently to grant an Exporter victory.

Gray's pitching in the opener was a work of art, barring the disastrous second, 24 hitters faced him in the last seven rounds.

Teams Rest Today

Both of the games were fast and played before one of the largest Sunday crowds of the season.

The second game of today's double bill was originally scheduled for Monday but through an agreement between the two managers was played today and the two teams will rest tomorrow.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 26.—After edging out a victory in the first game, 5 to 4, the Bears came within an ace of being shut out in the abbreviated second game, Todt's triple, followed by a single by Boone in the seventh inning putting over the only run off Brewer. WAR AVIATORS MEET IN PEACEFUL CONTESTS

GOTHENBURG, Sweden. — The first international aviation meet in Europe since the war is now open in this city, bringing together in peaceful competition fliers and exhibitors from countries that five years ago were at war. Thus Germany is represented as well as France, England and the United States. The neutral countries participating are Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, Belgium, Italy, and Czecko-Slovakia. Even such far away states as Colombia and Siam are taking part. Great Britain's interest is shown by the personal visits of General Branckner, director of civil aviation, who flew from England to Sweden, and Sir Samuel Hoare, the British air minister.

Airplanes of every known make are entered in the program of contests between military, commercial, and exhibition fliers. Also there are a great number of balloons, gliders, hydrogliders, etc., and an exhibition of at least 30 different types of airplane motors.

An unusually interesting section of the exposition is that which illustrates the history of aviation. The development of heavier-than-air machines, from the earliest crude type to the most up-to-date military and commercial machines, is show

Take It Or Leave It

BY BILLIE SMITH

The Spudders and Exporters have a bit of rest today as yesterday's double bill cleaned the Slate of games between the two Teams at Beaumont. Week day games, especially the ones on Monday don't draw enough people in Beaumont to pay the guarantee of the visiting team, thus the cause of two games yesterday.

In the first game yesterday Hal Carlson or Rip Wheeler usually go till the fourth inning, when he was touched for two runs, and four more in the fifth round before he could get off the mound. In the first three innings Dyer held the Exporters to a pair of hits and struckout four men while his double in the second scored two of the Spudders' four runs. In the second game Eddie went in to relieve Kunz in the fourth inning and held the Exporters to one blow for the remainder of the game.

It seems that Carlson and Wheeler are the only Spudder pitchers who can win. Dyer and Meine have been consistent losers during the past month, and Earl Kunz has yet to prove that he can win in this league.

Spudder errors put Dyer in a bad way in the first game but in the second game the Exporters batted Kunz hard all the time he was in there.

Had the Spudders been able to have copped both games of yesterday's bargain bill, they would now be resting in second place again. As it was the Steers also lost. The split in the Bear-Gasser double bill saved the Spudders from being pushed down into fourth place.

From top honors in second division a hot race is being staged. The Buffs, Sand Crabs, and Exporters are fighting it out for that berth as though it meant as much as first place in the upper division. Houston is leading with an average of .473, while Beaumont and Galveston are tied for fifth place honors at .469.

Four games at Galveston in four days, three at Houston and a double bill with the Panthers on Labor Day and the Spudders will return home to finish out the season. The Spudders have only three games scheduled with the Crabs at Galveston, but one game must be played to make up for a tie on the last trip to the Island City.

Harry Heilman, the Slugging Detroit Tiger outfielder who has waged a merry battle with Babe Ruth for batting honors in the junior major circuit bettered himself by a healthy mark yesterday when he secured five blows in six times at bat. However, the only run scored by batting Tiger was a homer.

Battling Simmons, the Henrietta scrapper who, until Saturday night had checked in four knockout decisions on Legion programs, met more than a match in Red Byrd, a former knockout victim of his. Regardless of how the fight was decided by the referee, there were but few of the 2,000 people that witnessed the fight that were not convinced that Byrd had an edge over his slugging opponent. Simmons seemed lost all during the ten rounds and had Byrd carried the fight more on the offense, there wouldn't have been a doubt as to who would have won the decision. Byrd punched and slapped Simmons just when he pleased during the first six rounds, while on the other hand Simmons never did connect with any real solid blows.

RUSSIAN DIAMONDS HELD IN LOW ESTEEM

BERLIN — Bolshevists Russia has few supporters among the established diamond dealers of the world. The flood of cheap and defective stones which soviet officials have thrown upon the market has interfered with the trade of old established houses.

Krestinski, the bolshevist ambassador in Berlin, is reported to be one of the chief diamond dealers in Europe. There are fabulous tales in circulation as to the great quantity of confiscated stones which he keeps locked up in the strong boxes of the Russian embassy here.

At Genoa, The Hague and Lausanne it was currently reported that the bolshevist delegates financed their expenses through the sale of confiscated jewels.

"Russian diamonds" has become a contemptuous expression in Germany to define inferior stones. This is because so many of the jewels which have found their way into the hands of German dealers from Russian sources are yellow, imperfect and badly cut. Size and not quality was sought by Russians who bought jewels in the old days, and they had the great yellow diamonds mounted in fantastic settings with other stones.

Consequently many of the Russian jewels had to be recut and remounted before they were saleable in western Europe. They were too oriental and gorgeous for the quieter tastes of westerners.

Buyers who paid fancy prices for Russian diamonds when they first began pouring into western Europe have learned a bitter lesson. Stones which sold for $300 a carat several years ago are now begging $100 a carat. The market for yellow and inferior diamonds has been glutted.

Curing Your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

Dear Mr. Barnes: I have been playing golf a little more than a year and am well past middle age, though I would like your advice on the following points. How far back should I take my club on the drive? Is it essential to keep the left arm absolutely straight at the top of the swing? Should I get better results from an open or a square stance? G. R.

Answer:

Considering your age and the fact that you were late in beginning the game, my recommendation to you is to try no more than a three-quarter swing, that is to have the club but slightly beyond the perpindicular at the top of the back swing, and you may find that you get better results by shortening it even below that. You can hardly hope to develop a loose, free swing, and will have to do most of the work with the arms and hands. Where this is true it isn't necessary to carry the club even to the perpindicular.

It is advisable to keep the left arm as straight as you comfortably can. The length of the backswing will have much to do with that. If you use no more than a half swing, you can keep the left arm straight. Or in other words, when you have carried the club back as far as you can without bending the left elbow, that si far enough.

If you are inclined to be a bit stout you will probably find a slightly open stance better suited to you. With a short back swing, you won't need to do very much pivoting, and a smoewhat open stance will enable you to follow around with the shoulders and body better so that you finish the stroke with the shoulder facing fairly well in line with the hole, as they should be.

(Jim Barnes will suggest a remedy for your golf faults. Write him care of the sport editor, enclosing stamped envelope if you want a personal reply.)

Society's Debs Watch Dempsey's Slow Exhibition

By The Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Working out before a crowd of more than 2,000 spectators, one of the largest that ever witnessed the training of a heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey went through an equivalent to 10 rounds at his Saratoga lake camp today, with the critical eyes of society matrons and debutantes watching every move he made.

Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator; Mrs. Sinclair, Miss Consuello Vanderbilt, Mrs. J. S. Cosden, wife of the turfman and oil magnate; Mrs. Blaine Elkins, Mrs. William Hilt and Mrs. Fall, wife of the former secretary of the interior, were among the spectators.

The cold from which the champion is suffering was reflected in his work. He complained of stiff muscles and did not work with his characteristic aggressiveness. He boxed six rounds and appeared to be slow in shooting his punches.

Austin Church Will Have Roof Garden

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN.—Roof gardens are not usually thought of in conjunction with churches, but a roof garden will be erected on the temporary roofing of the First Methodist church now under construction. Sufficient funds are not available with which to construct the main auditorium of the church, and orders have been given to erect a roof garden on the temporary roofing over the basement floor of the church.

A parapet wall, four feet high, will surround the roof. Lighting fixtures will be installed on these walls, and temporary seats will be installed. Whenever the weather permits, night services will be held on the "roof garden."

Coach Jim Jones Leaves For Sam Houston Normal

Coach Jim Jones, last year's high school mentor, who has been in Wichita Falls for the past few days visiting friends, left Sunday afternoon for Dallas where he will remain until September 15. On that date Coach Jones will take up his gridiron work at the Sam Houston State Normal at Huntsville.

His first game, which will be played September 22 will be with Texas Aggies at College Station. As the regulations in the T. I. A. A. conference, of which Sam Houston is a member, will not allow practice to begin until September 15, and the Southwestern Conference of which the Bible team is a member, allows practice to begin September 10, Jones will not only have the handicap of facing the strongest team in the south for his first game, but will be compelled to place a squad of men against them with less than a week's practice.

Another hard game that Jones' college squad will encounter this year will be Rice Institute, in October.

With the wonderful success that Jones made with the high school athletics here last year many are predicting an even greater success with his college team.

Firpo's Manager Looks For Speed In Boxing Mates

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 26.—Unleashing some of the power in his massive shoulders in his daily workout at the Hound racing park this afternoon, Luis Angel Firpo administered sound thrashings to three sparring partners, and showed some improvement in his battle technique.

All three of the punch catchers—Joe McCann, Newark heavyweight; Jeff Clarke, "black ghost" of Joplin, and Natalio Pera, the Argentine Adonis, were badly shaken. Firpo appeared to have solved the fighting styles of all three in earlier workouts, and prevented any of them from laying a glove on him today.

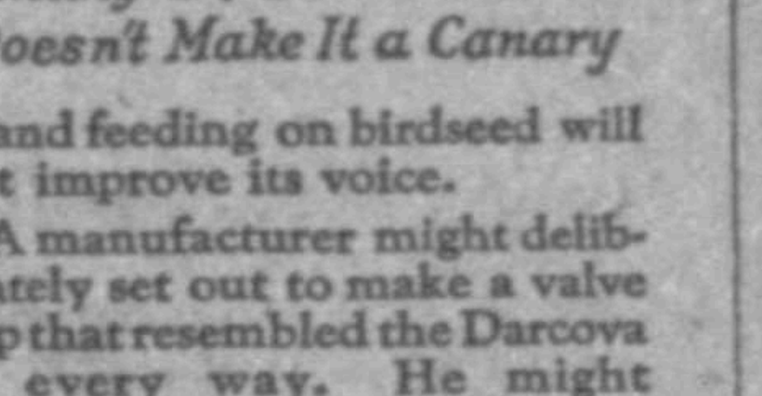

Firpo has shown such remarkable ability against the slow heavy men of the sparring outfit that Horatio Lavelle, chief trainer, announced today that he would try to employ lighter and faster men. Lavelle realizes that Dempsey is not a slow man and that if Firpo is to be properly trained he must have fast men to punch at. Each of today's punch absorbers worked two rounds with Luis Angel.

NEW COMERS TO THESE SHORES

Speaking of aliens during the last fiscal year, 522,919 immigrants were admitted to this country. In contrast 81,450 aliens emigrated from the United States during the same period. Of these coming in 307,522 were women. According to the figures 240,901 more immigrants and non-immigrants were admitted in the year 1923 than in 1922 while there were 134,798 fewer departures. There were 20,619 aliens debarred and 3,661 deported.

The largest number of aliens admitted were Germans, 65,543. Others in large numbers were Mexicans, 62,709; English 60,524; Hebrews 49,719; South Italians 39,226; Scotch 38,627; Scandinavians 37,630; French 34,371; Irish 30,386. It is interesting that the largest number of departures were Italians, 21,029.

New York was given as the future permanent residents by 30,142 immigrants, Texas by 45,148, Massachusetts by 41,602 and California by 39,093. Ninty percent of the immigrants who gave Texas as their future permanent residence were Mexicans from Mexico. A Mexican pays head tax. He is displacing the negro in Texas, he is doing the rough work and when times come he is turned loose just as a stray dog is turned loose.

This happened two and three years ago when the generous inhabitants of the larger cities were compelled to feed and house starving and houseless Mexicans who were not sent back to their own ncountry by those who had imported them when there was a demand for unskilled labor. There are some things that the public mind should not forget.

All the nations of Europe will send full quotas to the United States this fiscal year and thousands who will be brought to these shores by the shipping companies will be barred by the American immigration officials at the ports of entry.

There is to be immigration legislation by the new congress and if the president and the congress adopt the proposal made by Secretary Davis of the labor department the selective system for the admission of aliens will become the established law of the republic.

MEXICO

Offical Washington asserts that President Coolidge will recognize Mexico, this despite the fact that the Mexican people have been given to understand that President Obregon would refuse to sign any treaty in advance of recognition.

Now the treaty that President Obregon signs contains no infringement on Mexican soverignty and the Mexican should be satisfied. As regards the settlement of pending claims, Official Washington says it is known that there will be no difficulty.

In this official announcement in Mexico City, President Obregon has made it clear that his gevernment is ready at any moment to conclude two claims conventions for the settlement of outstanding differences arising between the two nations during the period of revolution in Mexico.

Official Washington says the intentions of President Coolidge remains to be officially announced but it seems certain that the new president has every wish to facilitate a return of good understanding between the United States to the south.

In natural resources Mexico is the richest country under the sun. President Obregon is a friend of the United States. A vast majority of the educated Mexicans are friendly to the United States.

Some day thousands of young Texans will journey to Mexico to make their homes under the Aztec flag. Mexico has a foreign debt of less than five hundred million dollars. Mexico carries no blood and nerve destroying war debt. Mexico and Mexicans will welcome to that country those who go there from the United States as builders and developers of its vast latent resources.

There is a day coming when Mexico will come into its own and win for its people a high place among the proud nations of civilization and commerce.

Taking It Up With the Landlord

The Letter Of The Contract

"No two are so near together," he went on, "for the very reason that when they're separated outwardly they're bound the more closely by the things of the heart and the soul and the spirit. After all, those are the ties that count. The legal dissolving of bonds and making of new ones is only superficial. No court, and no judge could dissolve the union we entered into. Neither judge nor court can resolve into their original waters the rivers that have already become one!"

She smiled faintly, perhaps bitterly. "Doesn't your figure of speech carry you too far? In our case the judge and the court were solved our union was—"

"I know what you're going to say. And it was against the letter of the contract. Of course. I've never denied that, have I? But in every true marriage there's something over and above the letter of the contract—to which the letter of the contract—to which the letter of the contract is as nothing. And if ever there was a true marriage, Edith, ours was."

"Stop!" Her eyes shone like blue-fired winter stars.

"Why?"

"Because I ask you to."

"No, let me go on! I gave you your pound of flesh, Edith, right off the heart; so that if atonement could be made in that way—"

"Chip, will you tell me what good there is in bringing this up now? You're married to some one else, and so am I. We can't go back!"

He fell silent because of the impossibility of speech. It was a shock to him, therefore, when she pointed to a distant spire on a hill, saying:

"Theres Harrow. We shall be in London in half an hour."

In London in half an hour, and this brief renewal of what never should have been interrupted would be ended!

Chipman marries Lily and they have a child. He and Edith, each traveling alone, meet on a train bound for London. It is apparent that each retains muchof the old sentiment for the other.

CHAPTER XXV
Wings if Not Bridges

Were Edith to confess to him that she hated the man toward whom she was traveling, Chip would experience an unholy satisfaction.

But now he could find no simpler relief to his feelings than to take down her belongings from the overhead racks.

"I'll just run along and pick up my own traps," he exclaimed, "and come back to see you properly looked after."

Though she assured him of her ability to look after herself, he felt at liberty to ridicule her pretensions. "You must have changed a great deal if you can do that," he declared.

"Oh, I am changed. I'm another woman." She took advantage of the fact that his back was turned to her, as he disentangled the handles of parasols and umbrellas from the network above, to say further: "Perhaps—since we've met in this unexpected way—and talked—possibly a little too frankly—it may be well if I reminded you that you'd still be confronted with that fact—that I'm another woman—even if our bridges weren't burned behind us." He decided to let that pass without discussion, and because he said nothing she added: "And I dare say I should find you another man. So don't let us be too sorry, Chip, or think that if we hadn't done what we have done—"

He could hear a catch in her voice that almost amounted to a sob.

He pressed his advantage, standing over her as she cowered in the corner, pulling down her veil. "Now! Now!" Do you mean that you'll see me—later—when we're in London?"

She pressed her clasped hands against her lips as if to keep back all words.

"Do you mean that, Edith?" he insisted.

Her breath came in little sobs. She spoke as if the words forced themselves out in spite of her efforts to repress them: "I'm—I'm staying at the Ritz. I shall be there for—for some days—till—he sends for me."

"Good. I'm at the Piccadilly. I shall come tomorrow at 11, and if it's fine we might run down and spend the day at Maidenhead."

She caught at a straw. If she couldn't shelve him, a day in the country, in the open air, would be less dangerous than one in London. And perhaps in the end she might shelve him. At any rate, she could temporize. "I've never been at Maidenhead."

"And lunch at Skindle's isn't at all bad."

"I've never been at Skindle's."

"And after lunch well go out on the river—the Cliveenden woods, you know—and all that.

But she stretched her hands toward him. "Oh, Chip, don't come! I'm afraid. What's the good? Since we've burned our bridges—"

He had just time to say: "Even without bridges, there are wings. At 11, then!"

CHAPTER XXVI
Some Afternoons

He went to Berne because she had let slip the name of that place during the afternoon at Maidenhead. It was the only hint of the kind that she threw out during the afternoons—four in all—they passed together. "He may have to go to Berne," she had said.

He was between them as an awesome presence, never mentiond otherwise than allusively. His name was too sinister to speak. It was enough to know that he was there, a fearful authority in the background, able to summon her from this brief renewal of old happiness, as Pluto could recall Eurydice.

It was the supremacy of this power, which they themselves had placed in his hands, drove Chip Walker to wondering what he was like.

"What is he like?" he found the force to ask.

She looked distressed. "He's a good man."

He nerved himself to come to a point at which he had long been aiming. "Look here, Edith! Why did you marry him?"

"Do you mean why did I marry him in particular, or why did I marry anyone?"

"I mean both."

"Oh, I don't know. There—there seemed to be reasons."

"What sort of reasons?" he urged.

"Oh, I don't know," she said again, pensively. "It isn't so easy for a woman to be—to be drifting about—especially with two children."

"But why should you have drifted about, when you knew that at a sign from you—?"

"If I had gone back to you I should have been sorry."

"You would have considered it a weakness—a surrender—?"

She nodded. "Something like that."

"Any you really had stopped—caring anything about me?"

"It wasn't that so much as—so much as that I couldn't get over my resentment." She seemed to have found the explanatory word. "Whatever compromise I thought of, that resentment against you for—for doing what you did—blocked the way. If I'd gone back I should have taken it with me."

"But now he couldn't suffer from it now!"

"No; after I married—it left me. It was as if old scores were wiped out."

"You'd got even!"

Her eyes became appealing. "Oh, what's the good of talking of it now"

"Because you haven't told be what I asked—why you married."

She turned the query against himself "Why did you?"

"I didn't till after you did. I wouldn't have done it then if—if I hadn't been so—well, to put it plainly, so damned lonely."

She gave him a smile that stabbed him. "Well, then? Doesn't that answer your question?"

He thought it did, and for a while they listened to the blackbird's song in silence. It was their last talk Next morning she left for Paris.

And so he went to Berne. He hadn't meant to go there when he said goodbye to her. He had not precisely made up his mind that they were parting for good, but he was too stunned to forecast the future. He was stunned and sickened. If it hadn't been for the bit of business that had brought him to London, he would hardly have had courage enough to get through the days.

But, the business coming to an end, he was stranded There was nothing to do but go back to his wife and child, whose existence he never remembered except with a pang of self-reproach. He meant to go back to them—but not yet. It was too soon. Edith was too much with him. The fact that her physical presence was withdrawn made her spiritually the more pervasive. The afterglow of their days together couldn't fade otherwise than slowly, like light when the sun goes down.

CHAPTER XXVII
The Stranger

At Berne, Chip's hotel was sheltering an international conference on modifications in the rules of the Postal Union. He came to observe a delegate of some distinction who ate alone and kept to himself. He was a man who would have been noticeable anywhere, if it were for no more than the dignified gravity of his manner and the correctness of his dress. One could affirm from observation that he was somebody—somebody of position, experience and judgment—somebody to respect.

Tomorrow's installment brings up a great problem.

So Goes It

By H. H.

Wreckless driving is bad enough but we have found one form of motorist that is even worse. We refer to the honking evil.

Do not understand that we are opposed to the honking of auto horns to warn pedestrians of the approach of an automobile. That is necessary.

But it isn't necessary for some fiend in a high powered and highly mortgaged motor car to slip stealthily up on his victim, and when a few feet from him, let out a blast from his auto horn. Sometimes we think they do it just to see the said pedestrian jump. And, in our case, if that is their purpose, they are entirely successful.

The first thing that occurs to the pedestrian is to jump. Being human and therefore more or less frail, the first thought is to jump. But which way? Forward, backward, or up in the air? How's a fellow to know.

We are in favor of passing a city ordinance in Wichita Falls compelling motorists to honk their horns at the shriveling, shrinking beings on foot, when they are at least 30 feet distant. That gives the man on foot an opportunity to decide which way to jump, and a chance to look the bird over that is trying to run him to earth.

Make the punishment fit the crime. All found guilty of violating the ordinance should be put in a large room filled with automobiles, and blindfolded. The punishing autos should each be equipped with a horn with a lot of honk in it, and circle about the prisoner until he falls exhausted on the floor.

You may be of the opinion that we have had the experience of being run down by an auto. We didn't. It missed us. We just happened to jump in the right direction.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE BOY WAS RIGHT!

When we were some forty years younger
The future we gravely surveyed,
And developed a—so to speak—hunger
To follow the bricklayers' trade.
Though the bricklayers' clothes were not snappy
Their lives seemed and grand, golden song.
For how could a man be unhappy
When playing with blocks all day long?

But our parents this yearning derided;
They said with a pitying smile
That the day we were born they'd decided
To make us learn something worth while.
"We'll send you," they told us, "to college
And you'll find that you'll not be content—
When your brain is well buttressed with knowledge—
With buttering bricks with cement."

And so we were taught a profession
Which we'd plied for full many a year.
And we freely will make the confession
That we haven't yet carved our career.
Few coins in our pockets we rattle,
Of wealth we've a pitiful store,
And daily we go forth to battle
With the wolf who is perched at our door.

Today as our Autumn approaches
When the future seems filled with dull care,
When ravaging baldness encroaches
On the little that's left of our hair.
When always two days after pay day
We're plunged in the duce of a fix.
We wish, that in life's youthful hey-dey
Our parents had let us lay bricks!

WHAT TODAY MEANS

By MARY BLAKE

MONDAY, AUGUST 27, 1923
VIRGO

You will be inclined to solicit sympathy and comfort from your friends today, as a mild form of depression may come upon you. A Saturn influence inclines to delays, hinder? ance, dissatisfaction and impatience. Return to your unfinished job and completa it. There will be little of real value accomplished in any way this day.

A child born today will be nervous and imaginative.

You are kind and sympathetic if today is your birthday, because you are inordinately sensitive to the psychic feelings and influences of others. You are, in fact, spiritually and intellectually intuitive, you know and understand mankind because you have the dramatic cast of imagination which permits you to put yourself in other parts and play their roles.

Mentally, you are keen and alert and should have a marked talent for expressing the gay and fascinating thoughts in your imagination. You have talent both for writing and speaking, and should make an ideal teacher, because you speak to others in terms of their thoughts instead of your own.

You are momentarily courageous and fearless, but sustained effort necessitates all the determination you can muster, for like all sensitive people, you need the response and encouragement of appreciation.

Physically, you are inclined to nervous excitability, because your mind is interested in all the thronging events of life, and you are continually entangling yourself in the miseries and misfortunes of others. Do not mistake sentimentality for altruism. The greatest thing you can give others is the fullest development of your own personality.

You are destined to have more than one serious affair of the heart, and it might be well to look before you leap into marriage at an early age, unless of course you find that rare type of philosopher who will overlook your sudden and transient flirtations, and that type, it might be observed, does not exist.

Successful people born on your birthday are

Charles H. Perkins, inventor and manufacturer.

Emory Upton, soldier.

Ralph L. Goodrich, lawyer and philologist.

(Copyright, 1923, the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The planets in evidence today govern the feet, causing pronounced pains and aches. The aspects are of a beneficent nature where the usual Sunday activities are concerned. Business transacted will be unsuccessful and amusement will lack its customary reaction of pleasure. There will be few proposals of marriage, owing to the planetary combination.

A child born today will be generous, affectionate and impulsive, a born romancer and perhaps a spendthrift.

If today is your birthday you should be proud, sensitive ad artistic. You have an energetic and powerful mind and the temperament of an adventurer. You are, in short, a born romanticist and no matter what the vicissitudes of your life—and there will be a great many—it is sure to be interesting and engrossing.

Your mind is forceful and constructive, but not necessary accurate. It must of necessity be at work, but if there is no work to be done, it will provide something itself. And when it fails to solve a problem it is quite apt to remove the problem from your consciousness and go gaily on.

Your tastes are like your interests—primarily, sensational, and secondarily, artistic. That is why you prefer stories of action to stories of physchological analysis. It is also why you prefer the emotional to the classical in art and music.

You have abundant talent for anything that does not require merely an exact application of facts. You have little of the scientist in you, and absolutely nothing of the drudge. You can work hard and even recklessly at what you love and believe in, but you probably cannot keep the balance in your check book accurately for an entire month.

You are a born nomad and will probably be in many different places, as your curiosity soon exhausts the possibilities of your environment and you must have new material.

In affairs of the heart you are intensely demonstrative and rather overintensely responsive. For your own sake and that of the person whom you marry, don't neglect your own type as a mate.

Successful people born on your birthday are:

John W. Philip, naval officer.

Stephen P. Nash, lawyer of N. Y.

James Harlan, lawyer and senator.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

Into what sized farms should the surplus lands of the irrigation project be divided?

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

We have discussed and summed up the acreage of the economic irrigated farm where the products of the soil are marketed direct. It is desirable now to determine as near as may be the acreage a man should have and the kind of crops he should grow where he turns his soil products into dairy products.

Wherever dairying is practiced extensively there we find prosperous farm communities. Let us examine into the dairy industry:

In 1922 there were 24,028,000 head of milk cows worth $1,515,249,000 in the United States.

The states leading in dairy cows in 1922 were as follows:

State	Number of Cows	Value	Value p. hd.
Wis.	2,202,000	$114,504,000	$52
N. Y.	1,695,000	113,565,000	67
Minn.	1,578,000	75,744,000	48
Iowa	1,060,000	57,744,000	54
Texas	1,073,000	48,139,000	45
Penn.	1,071,000	64,260,000	60

Dairy cows differ in value according to locality. They are cheapest in Alabama, Arkansas and Georgia where the farm price is only $29.00 per head. While in Arizona the average price is $90.00 per head.

The primary product of the dairy is milk. From milk comes cream, butter and cheese and many other products.

In 1921 it was estimated that 98,802,276,000 pounds of milk was produced in the United States.

HOW TO BUILD, FINANCE BETTER HOMES HAPPINESS AND FURNISH A HOME

Copyright, 1923

Ever So Humble, There's No Home Without A Bath

By GERTRUDE FISHER

The European idea of America's national anthem is: Be it ever so humble, there is no home without a bathroom! And in fact it is, the most standardized room in the American house today.

The average bathroom has a floor of white tiles, walls divided into two parts with white tiles forming the lower and white enamel, the upper part, a white enamel celing and trim, and white porcelain fixtures.

This is a safe sane and sanitary formula anyone can follow. But we Americans are too sadly apt to accept formulas as they are offered us and to spend our money as our neighbors spend it, without considering the possibility of a change.

My theory in decoration is that if one refuses to take anything for granted it is always possible to arrive at charming results.

There is no reason why we cannot separate an ordinary bathroom into its various elements—walls, ceiling, floor, trim and fixtures—and by considering each, achieve a bathroom that has all the necessary elements of cleanliness, but also has the additional elements of charm and sometimes of real beauty.

It is easier to beautify a makeshift bathroom, that is, one that has begun as an ordinary bedroom, than a conventional box which looks like the inside of a refrigerator. But there are few bathrooms which cannot be made a little less suggestive of the north pole.

Bedroom For Either Boys Or Girls

It has been proven that furnishings and color produce either desirable or disastrous effects upon the sensitive minds of children. As all children's rooms are usually a combination of bedroom, playroom, and study, it is well to keep in mind colors, design, arrangement, and practicality for all purposes.

To most children, a spotty or too often repeated design is distracting. Blues and violets soothe, while reds, yellows, and sometimes greens are exciting and stimulating colors.

We so often send our children to study and amuse themselves in their room, but have we done our share in providing them with the comforts and necessities that will assist them to produce better school work?

Boys—With no frills, light fabrics, or woodwork for them to soil and mar, their rooms still may be made interesting—even beautiful—but convenience and masculinity should be kept foremost in mind.

Girls—A girl's room, on the other hand, should be dainty, bright, and frivolous. Her personality, even at a very tender age, will clearly be disclosed by the way she cares for her room. There is no need of a great expenditure of money in buying furniture or hangings for a girl's room. Some of the cheaper fabrics and simplest furniture will make the most charming room.

Girl's Room

A Suggested Color Scheme

Walls—Buff-colored paint, or tinted walls.

Woodwork—Stained mission oak or walnut.

Suggested List of Furnishings

Bed—Something of the daybed type.

Bedspread of Blue Denim, with stitched bands of yellow sateen at edge.

Chest of Drawers—Painted buff or brown, or walnut or mission oak.

A Mirror—Antique gilt, or of wood to match chest of drawers, hung low.

Two Wooden Chairs — Either painted or of mission oak

One Comfortable Chair—Brown wicker, or the Windsor type.

A Tie Rack—Hung near chest of drawers.

One or Two Shelves—For books, trophies, etc.- Made of plain wood, stained to match the woodwork of a plain bookcase of mission oak.

An Artistic, English Face Brick Cottage

HOUSE No. 111

Designed by Jefferson M. Hamilton, Minneapolis, Minn.

There is a certain charm and distinction about a well-designed English cottage. The English have a knack in making their small homes look comfortable and cozy. They are especially adept in the handling of the roof, as is admirably shown in the house above.

They know, too, how to tie the house to its surroundings English cottages always look as if they belonged to their settings. You find them always built close to the ground, with plenty of vines, shrubs and flowers; never perched up on stilts, as it were. Many an otherwise charming house is often spoiled by having its first floor too high above the ground. Many people think this is necessary to get light into the basement; but this can be accomplished fully as well by building a little areaway for the basement windows.

Especially is this true of the small house which must depend largely on proper proportions to make it attractive. The front and side elevations hav not sufficient breadth to carry a high facade.

The English cottage style is very well suited to face brick, for the door and window openings, the bay windows, the chimneys and the wall surfaces lend themselves to artistic brickwork, as suggested in the illustration. Brick of varying color tones would prove especially interesting, with the darker shades forming the diaper pattern.

This house would look equally well on a corner or inside lot; and as the front is only 30 feet wide, a 50-foot lot would give it a fine setting. It goes without saying, however, that the more trees there are around a house of this type the more charming it will appear. The English love their gardens and so we find their houses designed for a garden setting.

The interior arrangements are spacious for a house of this size, for every inch of floor space has been made to count in the plan. The living room is of good size and pleasing shape; by glazing the porch it can be made a part of this room and used the year 'round. The kitchen is small, but large enough to provide for all the conveniences of housekeeping, and is so situated as to be of easy access to both the dining room and the porch.

The second floor is well arranged with the three bedrooms opening from the stair hall and all convenient to the bathroom. Ample ventilation is provided by windows on two sides of the rooms.

Open Homes To Young Folks

By GERTRUDE FISHER

Enter into the spirit of youth and open your home to the young folks. Permit them to play games, to dance, and to enjoy themselves wholeheartedly.

Make them feel that you are happy to have their friends there by being present at their social gatherings.

Our present day young people require more social life than was considered necessary only a few years ago. There is but one place where real recreation and amusement should be enjoyed, and that is home.

You can make your home more attractive to the children than the picture show by giving it the charm and the atmosphere that youth craves. You will not be the loser. Indeed, you will enjoy it so much that you will be one of the most enthusiastic members of their little parties.

Boy's Room

A Suggested Color Scheme

Walls—Papered in soft gray-rose, allover design paper.

Woodwork—Cream paint.

Floor — Hardwood — Rag rugs, with rose stripes or a gray chenille carpet. Softwood—Battleship gray paint, with rag rug or rose chenille carpet.

Suggested List of Furnishings

Two Chairs—One of natural wicker with cushions of rose sateen, and one of wood to correspond with painted furniture, caned seat.

A Sewing Table—Of mahogany or cherry.

KAY'S SUBJECT ON BARNABAS

Man in His Relations to Other Men Theme Taken at Strand Lecture

Barnabas, the "good man," was the subject taken by Judge John C Kay before his Bible class Sunday morning at the Strand theatre. The attendance fell only one short of being an even 200.

Judge Kay's lecture, as reported by Roy E. Carter, was as follows:

"We hear that Barnabas was a good man. Once in a while you will hear a man say, 'I had a good old mother.'

"Now, young man, men who never saw your mother judge her by you. They say, this is just about this kind of a man and therefore he had just about this kind of a mother. It is an important thing to think about that your family and your ancestors are judged by you.

"Barnabas was a good man. Now that literally means that he was good-hearted. It also means that he could get along with people. Paul couldn't do that; Paul, the greatest man perhaps in the history of the Christian church, failed to get along with other men. He got into a row with Peter, one of the apostles, who followed the Savior, and finally has a row with Barnabas and others. Great as was his mind, the greatest that was ever given to a man, he failed to have the ability to get along with humanity. Now I feel that to fail in that particular is to fail very greatly

High Temper Meanness

"How about that temper that you have got sometimes? Once in a while you will hear a fellow say he has got a high temper, maybe that is so, but you never saw him exercise his temper when the other fellow was the biggest, the strongest or the quickest. He doesn't pick that kind of a time to get mad, and every once in a while he is mistaken as to the size, strength and quickness of the other fellow. So, if we know somebody is going to knock us down when we exercise our temper we do not exercise it that day, which goes to show that the exercise of a high temper is only meanness. It is like the man said to his boy, 'Johnny, do you know why I am going to whip you?' and the son replied, 'Yes, because you are the biggest.'

"Barnabas could get along with men. I say that is one of the finest gifts, but it is not a gift that every man can have. Now let me mark you a distinction here that you have refused for a thousand years. Let me give you a truth that is rejected and despised of men; your real thinker, your real philosophers are never mixers. Now you don't believe that. You may assent to it here out of courtesy to me, but you do not vote that way and you do not live that way.

"Paul was working out a foundation for Christianity, working out the very philosophy of religion, working out the great plans of the gospel and laying the framework for all that should come after him and he did not have time, nor opportunity, nor inclination to be a simple handshaker and agree with every man. What you need right now in Texas is a candidate for governor who will tell you when you are wrong and that you ought to get right. (Applause) What you need right now in Texas are statesmen who can stand up in the face of the storm and who do not stop at counting majorities and minorities and persuade you that what is good for you is the thing that you ought to have.

Paul Not Mixing

"Paul was not mixing with men, but he was laying down here some writing that is read by increasing millions from year to year. So I say that that kind of a man is necessary as well as Barnabas. The finest man I ever knew and, I think, the wisest man I ever knew refused to run for office. He said he was not here for long and he had some more important matters to attend to.

"At Antioch and at Jerusalem they got up a church row. Now just what is a church row? Why did they go up to Jerusalem to try to settle some questions? They went up there to try to settle some questions that have never been settled yet and failed to hear Paul who told them to get away from these little things, quit arguing about baptism and the laying on of hands and clean up intellectually, morally and physically to where you can discuss something that is of first rate importance—that is what he said to them.

"They went up to Jerusalem and told what is called the first council of the church. What is the matter in these rows? You know we never name a row correctly, we never state the true reason for the row. The real row was whether the church was to be for anybody but the Jews? Now, this Barnabas was an outside Jew, born away down yonder somewhere. He had lived his life with other people and had found out as you will find out, that other people were white the same as his own people. Barnabas had just as soon preach to a Gentile as a Jew.

"Paul was three times a missionary. He was a missionary before he became a Pharisee. He was a great missionary among the Pharisees and became a missionary as a Christian. H had been working at what he thought was religion all his life.

Joins Church Too Late.

"I noticed in the newspaper the other day that they baptized an old fellow a hundred years old. He came and said this old machine is rusty and run down and not good for anything and when he could go nowhere else he said to the Lord, 'Here is the shell, this machine won't run any more, it is without value, it is without influence and without power and you can have it.' If you are going to be a good man let me say to you do not put it off. A man might be converted in his old age, he might be saved in his old age, as I believe he can, but he cannot build the character or a reputation for righteousness in his old age that he could in his youth. He is then denied the fruit that follows a clean life, because his life is behind him and no fruit can grow on it other than that that is already grown.

"They say Barnabas was a good man and full of faith. Just what does that mean, full of faith? You know the thing that you and I need. They had their faith put to a test right then. While they were writing this about Barnabas, almost, here comes up a fellow and says it is going to be dry. Of course that wouldn't excite any comment in West Texas, or not much, but it did there and these people prepared for it and lived through it.

"Here's the fellow that is afraid he is going to lose his job; here is a fellow that is afraid he will lose his office; here is the fellow that is afraid his family will suffer. These things are but a matter of faith, if the man is well and strong and able to work. Why, they will have plenty to eat long after you and I are gone. There is more to eat now than there ever was since I can remember and it is easier to get.

"This Barnabas had faith and he went and sold his little farm and went to work for the Lord. How much faith have you? Let us make a little distinction right there, the question that you can ask yourself and the question that bothers you and has so often bothered me, was this old question, "What can I do?" Now of course when a man shoots that question at himself he is already on crutches, but the right kind of a man will ask himself this question, "What can God and I do acting together?" That man will have faith and the other man will not have faith.

Lessons Of Life

"Now these Bible lessons are not history, they are not geography, they are not philosophy, but they are practical lessons of life for you to show you that humanity in the days of Paul and Barnabas was the same crowd that we have got with us now, because humanity changes very little, if at all, from age to age.

"I said the Bible and these lessons are not about philisophy, or history. What is the Bible about? The Bible, young man, is a book written about men and how they have got to live and the right way to live and the fortunate way to live, not only row to live our own lives, but how to see that my life influence affects the life of my neighbors. I think that is a great question that a man ought to ask himself—not 'How am I getting along?' You know how you are getting along, that cannot be much of a question, but the question worth while would be this, 'How does the life that I am living, the things that I am doing, the way I act, how does that influence and affect the life of those that are about me?' Now that is a fair question which needs a fair answer.

"Are men going to say of you as they did of Barnabas, that you were a good man? They might do that, we often do that. We are most liberal with what we write on the tombstones. But that is not what they said about Barnabas. If you stop there you would be guilty of stealing a part of the scripture. It said he was a good man and full of faith. Have you got it? Are you going to try to have it? A man with faith like that is not afraid to live and not afraid to die and is a man who is not afraid to go to the judgment and have his record examined and established.

How Do You Live?

"Let us go out and be a little more just and a little more generous. If I could divert but one per cent of that energy that you are burning up to try to arrive at your own purposes, into the service of humanity, what a great thing it would be. How do you work, how do you live? You live seven days a week, 365 days in a year. How much of your thought and your planning has been for your own selfish interest? How much of it is, if I can get this, if I can do that, if I can make this trade with that fellow and then this one with this fellow, I will buy that thing over yonder upon which my heart is set. Is not that the way your mind works? How do I know—because it is the way my mind is wont to work. I do not object to a man making a good living and taking care of his family. I do not object to him getting rich if he can do so by legitimate methods, but there ought to be some portion of your time that you consecrate for the benefit of your fellow men."

DRUNK NEGRO TAKES BARBUCUE TO JAIL

Barbecue was all a one-armed negro had in his lone hand when he was brought before Night Sergeant Thomason Sunday night on a charge of disturbing the peace in the negro section.

Though with only one arm, the negro, according to police, is a terror to the rest of the negroes when he gets drunk. Two calls were sent to the police station within three minutes when the negro began his threats in negro town last night.

The negro had a huge hunk of barbecued meat in his hand when he came to the station and was allowed to carry it to his cell.

HUMAN WRECKAGE

"Human Wreckage," Mrs. Wallace Reid's anti-narcotic photoplay, is a film with a powerful message, in the judgement of newspaper men and others who witnessed a private showing of the picture. The picture so clearly and accurately depicts the operations of the "dope" peddler and his victims that it is robbed of any trace of the lighter photodramas, yet the scenes are skillfully handled and are not revolting in nature.

As is explained by Mrs. Reid, the picture is designed for the purpose of revealing the extent of drug ravages and the evil effects resulting from it, and with the intent of "bringing men and women of the nation to a full realization of what the drug menace means." In doing this a story, in which the principles battle against this evil, and a story which keeps up the interests of those who witness it, is well told, with Mrs. Reid in the leading role.

It is well told. W

Vernon Ice and Electric Company Bidding To Buy Plant At Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 26.—Efforts of high-line electric companies to add Frederick to their list of towns to which they furnish current is becoming more pronounced. The Vernon Ice and Electric company has entered the field with a proposition to the city council as has the Lawton corporation.

The Frederick lighting and power plant is municipality owned. The plant has shown a profit for the last several years but the city is now said to be faced with the necessity of heavy purchases of machinery to extend the functions of the plant or to purchase outside current, the town having outgrown the capacity of the municipal plant.

The Lawton corporation at the council meeting Tuesday night expects to make a proposition to furnish current at a wholesale rate and will make a bid for the purchase of the plant, if the council desires, according to S. I. McElhoes, representative of the company.

J. G. Rossman, Vernon, manager for the Texas company interested in the proposition, will also make a similar proposition to the council.

MINES GIVE NEW GOLD

By The Associated Press.

CORBACH, Germany.—Gold diggers are working again along the Eder river in pits which have lain idle since 1585, and there is great excitement in this principality of Waldeck over reports which assayers have made on the red clay taken from the old diggings.

Dr. Beysching, president of the institute for geology, has studied the property and discovered that under the archaic methods of the sixteenth century, 70 per cent of the gold in the clay was lost. By using chlorine and other solvents, the amount of gold obtained from one ton of clay has been as high as one and one-fourth ounces.

TILLMAN GIVEN GASOLINE MONEY

$14,000 Accruing From Cent Tax Planned for County Roads

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 26.—Fourteen thousand dollars accruing to Tillman county from the cent-a-gallon gasoline tax collected this year will be put to work on the state roads of the county, as evidenced by the agreement entered into between the county commissioners and the state highway department Saturday.

George M. Southgate, inspector for the state highway department, stated that Tillman county's money would be received here between Sept 1 and 15.

Southgate has recommended to the county commission a plan whereby the money will be paid to bon-fide Tillman county workers. The $14,000 is to be expended for labor alone and it is thought that the farmers will be employed to do the work where they want the job. A recent Jefferson county contract, along lines similar to the proposed to the commissioners of this county Saturday, stipulated that no one man in the county should receive over $75 for labor on these improvements.

ALFALFA SEED SHIPPED.

Two carloads of alfalfa seed will be shipped from Frederick this week by the Sims Grain company which has been an active buyer of this seed during the present season. S. P. Shipley, a farmer living southwest of Frederick, Saturday sold 250 bushels of alfalfa seed for $9 a bushel.

GRID TEAM PREPARES.

Pigskin artists in Frederick will unlimber for the coming season for the first time Monday afternoon. Coach J. T. Martin has issued a call for all candidates for the high school eleven to meet him then. Prospects are said to be good for a fast team, a majority of last year's men being available. Games are scheduled with Carnegie, Hobart, Cordell, Mangum, Grandfield, Lawton, Walters and Snyder. The first game will be Sept. 28 with Grandfield.

WOMEN SCORE VICTORY.

Scotchmen may be thrifty—but women are just naturally tight—say Frederick barbers who Saturday announced a reduction in the price of tonsorial work to meet the demands of the bob-haired girls who decided 50 cents a throw was entirely too much to pay for such work. The prices in the union shops of the town will be 35 cents for haircuts and 20 cents for shaves, beginning Monday.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL.

A two-weeks training school for Sunday school workers will open Monday at the First Methodist church, according to announcement by C. C. Barnhardt, pastor of that congregation.

The school will offer three general units of the standard training course. First, "The Pupil," by Mrs. W. M. Warren of Snyder; second, "The Bible Unit," by the Rev. G. S. Dowdy; third, "Organization and Administration," by the Rev. C. C. Barnhardt.

ALTOONA, Pa.—Altoona's new speedway will be the fastest track in the world, and new world's speed records for racing motor cars are likely when the first event is held on Labor day, in the opinions of Jack Prince, the builder, and O. H. Haibe, veteran driver. Both men predict a speed of 124 miles an hour when 15 noted drivers meet in the opening race.

Wants World To Know Freestone Jail Is Empty

By The Associated Press.

TEAGUE, Texas.—The doors of the Freestone county jail at Fairfield are swinging wide open. Fairfield authorities are very anxious that this fact be spread broadcast, because of the widespread publicity given by rangers and prohibition officers' activities in Freestone county. During the last two terms of district court nearly every defendant in a bootlegging case was convicted and a penitentiary sentence imposed.
