Hostages freed

Planes Carry Hostages To Freedom Tuesday

By The Associated Press

The 52 American hostages flew to freedom today after 444 days of captivity in Iran, the official Iranian news agency Pars announced.

Their departure coincided with the inauguration of President Ronald Reagan who replaced Jimmy Carter as president.

Departure of the hostages was marked by the same confusion and uncertainty that characterized the hostage crisis and the long give and take of negtiations leading to their release.

Pars said the hostages boarded the plane to shouts by Iranians of "down with America, down with Reagan."

Reagan confirmed in Washington that the aircraft had taken off from Tehran.

Departure was arranged after negotiations finally wrapped up agreement to exchange the hostages for Iranian assets frozen by the United States.

The 3,000-mile flight to Algiers would a take 6½ hours or more, depending on the route and whether refueling stops were made. It was expected that the hostages would go on to a U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, a 1,000-mile flight from Algiers that normally takes 2½ to 3 hours.

There were reports from Western sources monitoring the hostage situation in Ankara that flight plans filed by the Algerian aircraft included a refueling stop in Ankara or Damascus, Syria, Rome, or Athens.

Carter had tried to complete an agreement with Iran on Monday, but as the hours slipped away, Carter was deprived of a chance to greet the hostages before he left office.

The hostages were seized Nov. 4, 1979 by young Moslem militants who stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. They said the hostages would be released if the United States handed over Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, then undergoing medical treatment in the United States. The shah found refuge in Egypt and died in Cairo on July 27, 1980.

Release of the hostages would end 14½ months of negotiations, American economic and diplomatic pressure and the failed attempt last April to send American commando teams to Tehran to free the hostages by military action.

The 52 Americans were the remaining hostages from among 98 seized by the Moslem revolutionaries nine months after the Islamic revolution in Iran.

The hostages include diplomats, Marine guards, communications specialists, teachers and a businessman. They range in age from 20 to 64. About 20 are servicemen.

The final push toward a settlement came in weeks of intense negotiations with Algerian diplomats acting as intermediaries.

On Dec. 19, the Iranians demanded that the United States deposit $24 billion in cash and gold in Algeria as a "guarantee" that Iran's financial demands would be met, including its demand for the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's wealth.

The United States rejected this, and on Jan. 2 offered a counter-proposal: only the approximately $10 billion in Iranian government assets frozen by the United States would be returned, in installments linked to arrangements for resolving claims and counter-claims by the two sides.

On Jan. 7, Iranian negotiator Behzad Nabavi said Tehran "generally" accepted the latest proposal, and the next day Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher flew to Algiers to establish closer contact through the Algerian go-betweens.

After the failed commando operation last April, the Iranian militants announced they had scattered the hostages to more than a dozen Iranian cities to forestall another rescue attempt.

Late last year, unconfirmed reports mounted that the Americans had been reassembled in Tehran, and later that most had been put in a former resort on the Caspian Sea and others at Revolutionary Guard headquarters in Tehran.

Mrs. Dorothy Royer, mother of hostage William B. Royer Jr., held a news conference at her Houston home Monday.

"I feel just great about the government," she said, "I felt Jimmy Carter hard worked awfully hard and I would have hated to see him leave office and someone else get all the credit."

Mrs. Royer said the 14-month wait has seemed "more like five years."

"I've always been a patient person, and I guess this has taught me to be even more patient," she said, "Bill taught me to understand the Iranians. He told me these people could look you right in the eye and lie to you."

Like other hostage families, Mrs. Royer was concerned Monday with making plans for a celebration when her son comes home.

"I've been wondering what I'm going to do when half the United States walks into my house when Bill comes home. This place isn't very big, you know. I may have to rent the Hyatt Regency."

40th President Inaugurated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan was inaugurated 40th President of the United States today, summoning Americans to "an era of national renewal" amid bells and cannon, music and pageantry that became a celebration, too, for 52 American hostages reported freed at last from Iranian bondage.

A Tehran airport policeman said the hostages were out, but as he walked to the inaugural stand to yield office, outgoing President Carter said, "Can't say yet."

At the stroke of noon, power passed from James Earl Carter Jr., Democrat, to Ronald Wilson Reagan, Republican, conservative, veteran of Hollywood, governor of California, overwhelming choice of his countrymen.

Denied a second term, Carter watched as Reagan raised his right hand, put his left on a family Bible, and swore the simple, 35-word oath of office. A 21-gun salute boomed out over the Capitol and the marble monuments of American government.

Moments before, George Bush had taken the almost identical oath of vice presidential office.

"With all the creative energy at our command, let us begin an era of national renewal," Reagan said in his inaugural address. "Let us renew our determination, our courage and our strength. Let us renew our faith and our hope. We have every right to dream heroic dreamsm"

Reagan said Americans are entitled, for they are themselves heroes, "you, the citizens of this blessed land.

"Your dreams, your hopes, your goals are going to be the dreams, the hopes and goals of this administration, so help me God."

Reagan's invocation to his new administration began with a pledge to confront and handle "an economic affliction of the worst proportions. We must act today in order to preserve tomorrow. And let there be no misunderstanding — we are going to act begpnning today."

The new president said the nation's economic ills "will not go away in days, weeks, or months, but they will go away ....

"In this present crisis, government is not the solution; it is the problem," Reagan said, a line sounded day after campaign day in the quest that won him the White House by landslide last Nov. 4.

Reagan said he means to curb the size and influence of the government he now heads.

He said he will make government "work with us, not over us ... stand by our side, not ride on our back."

He promised to ease the tax burden, restore the balance between various levels of government, promote American enterprise.

"These will be our first priorities and on these principles, there will be no compromise," he said.

And in an era of renewal at home, Reagan said, the nation will stand abroad as "the exemplar of freedom and a beacon of hope for those who do not now have freedom.'

He promised the United States will be a faithful ally to friends, and told potential adversaries that peace is America's highest aspiration. "We will negotiate for it, sacrifice for it; we will not surrender for it — now or ever."

Reagan said forbearance should never be misread as a failure of will. "When action is required to preserve our national security, we will act," he said. "We will maintain sufficient strength to prevail if need be, knowing that if we do so we have the best chance of not having to use that strength."

On the steps of the Capitol, the monuments to George Washington and Abraham Lincoln before him, Reagan spoke the simple oath of all his predecessors:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Chief Justice Warren Burger administered the oath, as Reagan placed his left hand on a family Bible that once belonged to his mother, Nellie.

It was open to a verse of Chronicles:

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways: then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and heal the land."

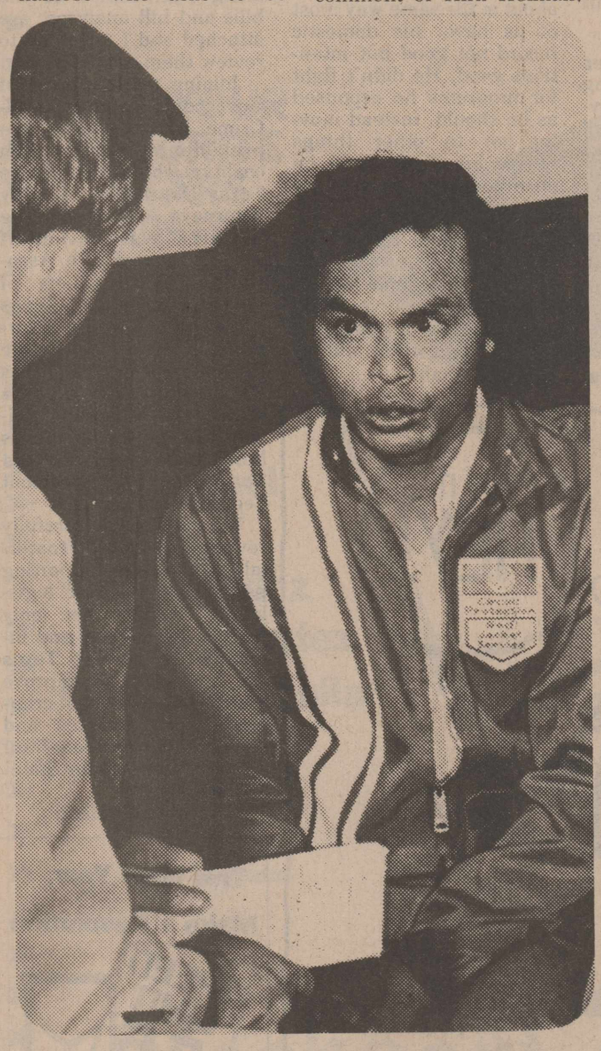

Vietnamese And American

Shrimpers Face 'Same Problem'

By Pat Blair

The Vietnamese fishermen want to work "together with the fishermen here," says a young Vietnamese who asks to be called only by his Americanized name — Francis.

"These people (the Vietnamese) have the same problem we have," is the comment of Kirk Holman, who operates a bait business in Fulton Harbor.

The Vietnamese fishermen in Aransas County would like to "work together" with the area fishermen for the betterment of both, this young Vietnamese tells Channel 3 newsman Ron Fulton. The young man asked that he be identified only as "Francis"

The "problem" is the influx of boats into the local bay systems — and competition for the shrimp that many local shrimpers charge is driving them out of business.

Solving the problem is harder than defining it, and on Tuesday, January 20, representatives from the Justice Department and the Governor's Task Force on Aliens met with American shrimpers here in Rockport.

That meeting was at 5 p.m. It was due to be followed by a meeting at 10 a.m. Wednesday, January 21, between the representatives and Vietnamese fishermen.

Some area shrimpers charge that the Vietnamese population, concentrated in Fulton at numbers estimated to be 300 to 400, are building more boats, putting more boats into the local shrimping industry — and, so the rumor goes, the boats they build are federally subsidized.

The last part of the rumor is absolutely untrue, says the Rev. E.R. (Bob) Cantwell who, with his wife, sponsored the first Vietnamese to come into Aransas County.

"There is no federal subsidy on these (the Vietnamese) boats," Rev. Cantwell said. In fact, he added, the Vietnamese, because they aren't American citizens at this point, cannot qualify for the federally-subsidized loans to help them build their boats — but such loans are available to area shrimpers who are American citizens.

As for how the Vietnamese fishermen get the money to buy their boats, Rev. Cantwell said, "They work for it and don't spend it."

The rumors charge that there are 38 Vietnamese boats operating out of Aransas County. Francis said there are actually 29 boats operating "in the membership" and another that is "not a member yet" — a total of 30 boats.

"We don't want to run any people out of business," Francis said. "We want to work together with the fishermen here."

"The Vietnamese are forcing people out (of the business)," said Holman during an interview at his bait stand. "But it wouldn't make any difference if they were Vietnamese, Chinese... It's the influx of that many boats that makes a difference. The bay system won't take it."

Holman continued, "There are just as many white guys (as Vietnamese) building boats. The solution to the problem is a limited entry system" — that is, limit the number of licenses granted each year allowing shrimpers to fish the bay.

Francis indicated that the Vietnamese fishermen too favor some type of limited entry system.

So far, Aransas County has escaped the troubles that have plagued not too distant Seabrook — and the Vietnamese people here want to keep it that way. "We don't want anything like Seabrook," Francis said.

Efforts are currently underway on both sides in an attempt to keep that from happening.

35 Route To Change

Changes in the proposed new route of State Highway 35 have been announced by the Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The area of the proposed new road to be modified runs from Airport Road to the Copano Bay Causeway.

Changes include modification of the roadway alignment to the east of FM 1781 in order to avoid the Copano Bay "wetlands" area;

Realigning the FM 1781 intersection with the existing Highway 35, and the Rockport-Fulton business area to improve traffic flow; and the addition of a frontage road under the south

200 Attend First Auction

With an attendance of approximately 200 people, Rockport's Chamber of Commerce grossed roughly $5,100 from its first annual Chinese Auction Saturday night, January 17.

No final figures were available as of Monday morning, according to Donna Knox, Chamber representative.

Some 17 items were verbally auctioned off by Auctioneer Dan Adams during the affair that started Saturday evening at the Paws and Taws Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Greenfield were high bidders for the Sylvania black and white portable television set that went during the verbal auction, as well as on a painting by L.E. Willetts.

A five-minute shopping spree at H.E.B. Food Store went to Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Scholz and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Branigan got the weekend at the Holiday Inn in Corpus Christi.

The weekend in Laredo went to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Faulkner who were also high bidders on the Longhorn meat platter.

Other successful bidders during the verbal auction included representatives from the Aransas Pass Chamber of Commerce who bought a chain saw; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Callaway, a folding table and chairs and a painting by Pat Evers; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Doss, a CB radio and print from the Gene Murray Studio.

Hold up on synfuel loans, subsidies

(Reprinted by permission of The St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

One of the many beneficial results of the election of Ronald Reagan and a Republic-controlled Senate is that the grandiose plans made to dole out many billions of dollars for the new federally-supported synthetic fuels projects are now going to get a thorough review and probably be scaled down considerably.

This already has become evident in a tug-of-war going on in Congress over plans by the Department of Energy to hurry up and allocate a large part of $4.5 billion it has available to provide loan guarantees, price supports and other assistance to sponsors of synthetic fuel projects.

Old line Democrats led by House Majority Leader James Wright of Texas, are urging the Energy Department to move as quickly as possible to make commitments with companies for use of the $4.5 billion on these projects. But Republicans, led by Sen. James McClure of Idaho, who takes over in January as chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, are sending word to the Energy Department to hold off on committing the $4.5 billion until Ronald Reagan takes office and has a chance to review energy policies.

The Energy Department would be wise to defer to the incoming administration because there well might be major revisions made in the synthetic fuels program as well as other policies laid down by the Carter administration. If it hurries to make commitments without knowing what the new policies will be, there is a chance that most of the money committed in a rush to beat the change in administration could be wasted.

The Reagan administration appears to be much more oriented to the free market and apparently will rely much less on government controls, taxes and other intervention in the energy industry. This would indicate a strong possibility that the large synthetic fuel subsidies and supports planned by the outgoing Carter administration might be trimmed considerably.

Accent On Health

That often heard of ounce of prevention — in the form of fluoridation — can frequently accomplish more than the proverbial pound of cure by reducing dental bills and suffering.

"No other public health measure offers so much for so little," says Linda Crossett, R.D.H., administrator of the Texas Department of Health's Texas Fluoridation Project. "At a yearly cost of 25 cents a person, tooth decay in a community can be reduced by 65 percent among children from birth to 12 years of age."

"Conservative estimates show that 20 percent of the children growing up in communities with fluoridated water can reduce decay 50 percent among teenagers through age 16," she said.

Benefits do not stop with the young. Fluoridated water continues to benefit the teeth into adulthood, reducing tooth loss and the need for dentures.

"Fluoridation even helps the elderly by strengthening bones and reducing osteoporosis, in which bones become abnormally porous," says Crossett.

Texas has several areas where the natural fluoridation levels are high enough to protect teeth from decay. If fluoride levels are excessive, no disease results, but the enamel may become stained or "mottled," a term first used by Colorado dentist Frederick McKay in 1902. Some of his patients had mottled tooth enamel, but had little or no decay.

The first controlled studies on fluoridation began in 1945. Marshall, Texas, was one of the first cities in the nation to implement controlled fluoridation. Thousands of communities have followed suit in instituting controlled fluoridation. Close to 60 percent of all Texans benefit from fluoridated water, either controlled or natural. A dozen major Texas cities have controlled fluoridation, and nearly 600 Texas cities have naturally fluoridated water.

Texas communities can now receive financial and technical assistance in fluoridating their water systems from the Texas Department of Health. Under a grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, communities installing fluoridation systems for the first time may be reimbursed for the cost of the equipment, installation, engineering fees and chemicals for two years. The Texas Fluoridation Project also helps to establish a monitoring and surveillance system to provide daily checks on fluoride levels. Training for water system operators is also provided as part of the grant.

The Department's Bureau of Dental Health administrates the project. "We are available to assist in the promotion and education of the public on fluoridation when needed," states Helen Hill, the information specialist for the project.

All work is coordinated closely with the Department's Division of Water Hygiene which provides the engineering and the technical assistance to local communities participating in the project.

Major health organizations in the world have endorsed the concept of fluoridation, including the PTA, the World Health Organization, the American Medical Association, the U.S. Public Health Service, and many more. Corresponding agencies in Texas, including the Texas Medical Association, the Texas Dental Association, and the Texas Pulbic Health Association have similarly endorsed fluoridation.

Numerous public opinion surveys show 10-12 percent of the people oppose fluoridation, 50-70 percent favor it; and the remainder are undecided. Research shows that century-old communities with naturally fluoridated water supplies experience no greater incidence of disease than areas without fluoridated water.

Numerous, repeated studies by medical and research groups, including the National Cancer Institute, the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, and the Center for Disease Control have continuously refuted claims that fluoridation is harmful. The Surgeon General calls the fluoridation of water supplies, "the single most important step a community can take to improve its dental health."

Optimum fluoride levels vary depending on average water consumption in a region, but recommendations for Texas are just below one part per million. Any community or private water system serving 1,000 or more people can receive assistance from the Texas Fluoridation Project. An estimated 430 such community systems are eligible.

Each community must file an application to begin the process of obtaining assistance with fluoridation. Write to Linda S. Crossett, R.D.H., Texas Department of Health, Bureau of Dental Health, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756.

IT IS EXACTLY MIDmonth. Before these words reach you the 40th President of the United States will have assumed office. Time races with the speed of light. And yet it can be so long.

For most of us November 4 was less than yesterday. For Presidents Carter and Reagan those ensuing days have been endless. Despite holding an office where pressures are without end I am sure that for Carter the past two months have been for him much as they are to any of the rest of us about to leave a job, a feeling of "Let's get it over and get on with whatever is next."

Reagan, no doubt has chafed, anxious to get on with what's new. Often enough over the years it has been contended that the waiting period is too long between election and inauguration day, and so it is.

But what is a reasonable time? I suspect that must vary with each new president. Some are never ready. Carter may be among them. At least he never learned to "get on," play the Washington game. The last he pretty well said he'd not do even before he was elected. Many, tens of thousands, voted for him in 1976 just for that very reason.

They didn't know and Carter never learned that a president or anyone else who gets on in Washington must "play the game." That holds for any capital. Of course no two men ever play the game the same way — any more than they play chess alike.

At the same time no one can sit at the chess goard and insist that that game be played like checkers. That I think is what Carter tried to do for four long years.

NO PRESIDENT OF this country in all its history has faced a job even half so difficult as the one facing Ronald Reagan. I make that statement without reservation. Yes, I remember that FDR inherited a depression, not a recession. Also a world less full of war and threats of war, even though the conflict that was to commence in 1939 was quite obvious.

This country was very much isolationist in those days, and depression or not, its people enjoyed the highest standard of living the world had ever known and no one disputed the fact. More, there was no great fear of foreign imports and unchallenged we sent the produce of our land and its industry to the world. Other industrial countries sent their best people here to to learn about American know-how and we proudly showed them. I might go on, but you know the world Ronald Reagan faces as well as I.

So none of this is to denigrate FDR, his predecessors or those who have come since his time. I have only very briefly touched on the problems and challenges that face the new president, in a job the man he replaces called "too big for any one man."

THIS WRITER SUPported Ronald Reagan in his bid for the Presidency, although only after George Bush dropped from the running. Now I intend to support Reagan, to the best of my ability, heart and soul. No easy thing for one whose bent is ever to be a skeptic and critic.

This time around I shall, I hope, bend over backwards at times perhaps for the very simple reason that now as never before in its history the nation needs leadership and faith in that leadership. How well I shall succeed I don't know because even now before Reagan has said "I solemnly swear" I have concerns, not the least of which is for the role Bush will play as Vice President.

To me, buried here deep in South Texas, I can make judgements only on what I glean from the national press. Bush, the wisest, best educated, most experienced of the two men, seems to be kept as a shadow. I hope, fervently pray, that ere long I shall become obliged to apologize for this observation.

WHENEVER I THINK of Ronald Reagan of late I think of less than half a dozen words from a rather minor turn of the century American poet, Eugene Field. Only the oldest readers will remember him, and few of them.

Field spoke of "The oldtime honesty and truth." Those words personify our new president, or at least to me. He is a man who believes in all the simple, basic things which so many of us, if even in imagination, believe to typify our country and its people.

Somehow I can never conceive of Reagan being petty, dishonest, conniving. One might say he's all red, white and blue. Here I remember that many people for a long while thought that of Jimmy Carter. So, remembering the poet again, I am obliged to recall his last lines about "honesty and truth."

Where are they? he asks, and answers himself — "Over the hills and far away." But, haven't I said I'm going to hope and even do a bit of praying.

Today, more than ever in its brief history this country needs help and in my view the best help must be in leadership and not just plain old everyday leadership, but great, inspiring leadership. Is "Dutch" Reagan the man — the boy who came from some obscure little town in Michigan with a name that even now I can't remember — the man to do the job?

GOVERNMENT IS AS good as the people. Jimmy Carter said that, or words to the same effect. A few very simple words but as true as any might be.

The MacNeil/Lehrer Report one night last week hosted four newspaper editors who expressed their view on the retiring president. All were quite partisan in the beginning. They represented fair cross sections of the nation — Oakland, California; Chicago, Illinois; Providence, Rhode Island; and St. Petersburg, Florida. The Florida editor was almost passionate in his partisanship.

Except for him, all summed up Carter just about in the same way most of us have: his domestic record not good but intentions good. He didn't fight for programs he espoused as he should, instead moving on to other things before his ideas could be absorbed and analyzed by the Congress.

His plans to fight inflation ranged all over the lot, and in the end, overanxious to preserve whatever measure of popularity he had. And so on, Jimmy Carter.—ahab

Our Readers Write

Dear Mr. Carter;

On September 18, 1980, Governor Clements publicly announced the bills in his Anti-Crime Package which he will present to the Texas legislators in the upcoming legislative session. This is written to ask that you support passage of the entire Anti-Crime Package.

My strong interest in this Package stems from my appointment to the Texans' War on Drugs Committee, the Committee created by Governor Clements and headed by H. Ross Perot, to combat drug abuse in Texas. The goals of the Committee are to 1) create community citizen groups to combat juvenile drug abuse; (2) conduct a statewide survey of drug education programs in the Texas public school system; and 3) obtain the passage of legislation allowing effective prohibition of the illicit sale and use of drugs in Texas, particularly by minors. Passage of a state wiretap statute, as proposed in the Governor's Package, will enable the State's law enforcement to reach the upper echelon of the drug traffickers in Texas while at the same time providing stringent safeguards to protect citizens against invasion of privacy. Our Committee strongly supports this measure and is committed to working toward passage of the legislation during the months ahead.

Based on my experience as a member of the Texans' War on Drugs Committee, I have become personally aware of the benefits of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) program in Texas and the magnitude of criminal and juvenile services provided. We must not stand by and let the LEAA program be terminated after 10 successful years. One of the bills contained in Governor Clements' Package offers the singular opportunity to retain the benefits of the LEAA program in Texas without placing a tax burden on the State's citizens. We strongly support this measure in addition to other bills which improve the State's criminal and juvenile justice systems.

Although passage of the entire package is ambitious, we believe it necessary to provide additional protection to citizens of Texas, to provide the proper tools to criminal justice agencies to enable them to better fight crime, and to restore full protection of the laws to victims of crime. A synopsis of the salient features of each bill, along with copies of the bills and bill analyses, are attached and I urge you to review them carefully.

Joining us in support of Governor Clements' Anti-Crime Package is an unprecedented nonpartisan coalition which includes the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, the Sheriffs' Association of Texas, Texas Police Association, Texas Chiefs of Police Association, Texas Association of Police Attorneys, Organized Crime Prevention Council, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, the Mayors' Advisory Committee of Texas Municipal League and the Texas Law Enforcement Legislative Council.

We ask that you carefully review the enclosed material and join us in supporting passage of this vital legislation. It will not only correct deficiencies and inequities in current Texas law but will also improve greatly the delivery of criminal justice services and resources for the benefit of all the citizens of our State.

Sincerely,
s/Hayden W. Head

Woman Victim Of Thallium Poisoning

By Becky Werhan

Jan Murphy, a former Aransas County resident now living in Portland, was diagnosed in December of 1979 as a victim of thallium poisoning.

Thallium is a toxic metal which until it was banned in 1972, had been used as a standard poison for insects and rodents. Additional uses were in industrial catalysts, hair removers and jewelry polish.

Mrs. Murphy had been suffering from fatigue, abdominal cramps, hair loss and other painful symptoms for two years prior to the diagnosis. The symptoms began six months after Murphy and her family moved to their Aransas County residence located on Haley Drive off FM 1069.

After the thallium was found in Mrs. Murphy's system, her daughter Michelle, her mother, Chrystel Edwards of Ingleside and another Ingleside relative were found to have thallium in their systems.

The Murphy family are part of a handful of people — 11 in all — up and down the Texas Gulf coast from Beaumont to Corpus Christi who have been diagnosed as victims of the metal poisoning.

The latest case is that of a recently hospitalized Mexican-American woman near Houston.

Harold G. Sheer of the Aransas County Health Department ran the initial investigation of the Murphy residence at the beginning of last year.

Exhaustive tests on every part of the residence were conducted. All medication and food was tested as well. The only thallium present was found in trace amounts in the bedding. Sheer said that the tugboat on which Mrs. Murphy's husband works was also tested thoroughly and no thallium was found. Air and soil tests from around the Murphy's house were also run and turned up negative.

Industrial uses of thallium and the level of the poison in the surrounding coastal waters have been under investigation, but nothing conclusive has been found.

The State Board of Health is conducting the investigation of the thallium poisonings on the coast, with the help of the University of Texas Galveston Poison Control Center and will begin random samplings of people in the communities where the poison has been found as soon as possible.

Residents will be tested to find their thallium tolerance level. There is a possibility that some people are more susceptible to the poison than others.

Ron Tisdell of the Poison Control Center in Galveston said, "We're in the process of reviewing medical records and recording environmental conditions. Screening in that area will begin as soon as possible."

Representatives of the investigating agencies are scheduled to arrive in Corpus Christi on January 26.

In Aransas County

Fewer Accidents Claim One Life

Fatal accidents were down slightly but actual traffic deaths were up — by one — in Aransas County in 1980, according to Texas Highway Department officials.

Charles Gunn, captain with Region III of the Texas Highway Department, reported recently that DPS officials were called to only five fatal accidents in Aransas County during 1980 — as compared to seven in 1979 — but those accidents resulted in eight deaths.

In 1979, seven people died in highway fatalities.

Overall, accidents decreased in 1980, with a total of 138 as compared with 158 in 1979. Thirty-six of the 1980 accidents resulted in personal injury and 97 in property damage, as compared to 50 and 101 respectively in 1979.

Aransas County ended the year on an optimistic note with no fatal accidents reported for the month of December and only four accidents total during the month. Three of those accidents resulted in personal injury and one in property damage.

In A Different Vein

By 'Uncle John' Leslie

Famous Round Table

Yes, Rockport has a Round Table where the events of the world are settled each day. Where the best of Johnny Carsons, J.R.s and other television notables are hashed over. Most of which is not worth rehashing. It is the same table that has been in the Key Allegro Marina since it opened and is the same table around which Dr. Pattillo gathered with his cronies every morning for a game of gin rummy.

Coffee flows as the think tanks of the Rockport citizens meet each morning in two shifts.

The first shift comes on as the doors come open in the morning. They make their own coffee and get down to the philosophy of the State, Nation and World. This group is made up of retired lawyers, bankers, business men, etc. etc.

At 9:30 a.m. when the Top Hat philosophers are gone, in comes the Marine Crew. Boat owners (pleasure and for charter), boat mechanics, boat captains, engine experts, etc. They have their own philosophies about the Nation. Just slip in and listen to either division — it will make you more alert and glad you are alive.

The second crew primarily discusses the most important thing in their lives and their livelihood. Yes, you guessed it — boats and fishing. Some legs are pulled in the telling of how many and how big their catch was the day before.

I am not going to name names of either shift at the Round Table. They are all my good friends and I want them to continue to be.

Occasionally a winter visitor is included. At times I have sat in and listened but have never made a note. Yesterday when I left they all said "Give 'em hell on that garbage dumping, Uncle John." I said it is useless unless a place to dump legally is provided by the County leaders.

Arguments sometimes get pretty strong but I have never seen a blow struck in my 10 years of visiting. Friendship really prevails. I saw one charter boat owner (bushing faced) leave the table going to the cashier and paying the bill for everybody's coffee at the table. They thanked him graciously and said, "We can now get out without slipping out."

Yarns — stories of all kinds are the main issues of the day. Some real dillies could not pass the censor. Some real banter, and kidding takes place and no one's feelings ever get hurt. It's really a refreshing way to start the day in the drive to make a living.

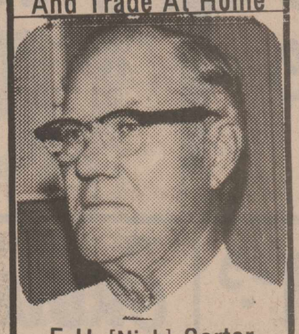

Some of the members of the Round Table eat their breakfast there. Otherwise, there are no dues. Drop by some time and if there is a vacant chair, fill it and enjoy a few minutes of really non-consequential discussion. Men of the sea are good at useless banter.

LONG LIVE KEY ALLEGRO ROUND TABLE!

French cuisine can seem formidable, its nuances out of reach of everyday cooks.

And some chefs seem eager to promote this image, cloaking their skills in terms unfathomable to onlookers.

But students who watch Jacques Pepin at his craft come away saying, "I can do that."

Pepin has demystified French cooking — perhaps even more than the venerable Julia Child — through his picture-rich texts on the subject, "La Technique" and "La Methode."

The thick volumes, illustrated with a wealth of step-by-step photographs, take would-be French cooks from its foundations through the most complex of dishes.

Oeufs Magda (scrambled eggs), Veal in Cream Sauce and Lemon Caramel Souffle are ideal for dinner party fare because the sauce for the eggs, the veal, the vegetable garnish, the souffle and the caramel sauce all can be made well ahead of time, with little last-minute fuss.

The eggs and souffle are very inexpensive company dishes, easing somewhat the impact of the veal purchase.

The veal recipe was later home-tested substituting less-costly rabbit with delicious results. Chicken also could be substituted, with reduced cooking time.

OEUFS MAGDA

The Garnish:
2 tbsps. butter
2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
8 slices buttered toast

French Scrambled Eggs:
2 tbsps. butter
8 large eggs
Salt, pepper
Minced chives, tarragon and parsley to taste (see note)
2 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. cream

For the garnish, melt the butter in a skillet and add the tomatoes. Cook them together for five to six minutes, seasoning the mixture with salt and pepper to taste.

A few tablespoons of minced onion, ½ clove garlic, minced and a bit of crumbled thyme may be added for "just about the best tomato sauce you can make," Pepin said.

Set the sauce aside. It may be made early in the day and refrigerated, closely covered. Gently reheat it before serving.

For the eggs, melt two tablespoons of butter in a high-sided saucepan. Lightly beat the eggs and season them with salt and pepper.

Save the shells, which will be used as serving containers for the eggs. Try to crack them near the top rather than in the middle to have as large a container as possible.

Add the beaten eggs to the butter and stir in the herbs. Stir the eggs constantly as they cook to keep them smooth. "Keep whisking them to a thin puree," Pepin said. "They should be very moist."

Remove the pan from the heat while the eggs still are wet and stir in the remaining butter and the cream. Pepin keeps out one egg to add after the pan is removed from the heat. Since the pan retains heat, the eggs will continue to cook. Adding the last egg off the heat cools the egg mixture and keeps it creamy.

To serve, cut out the center of the toast and spoon in a little sauce. Place an eggshell in the center. Spoon in the cooked eggs and ladle a little sauce around the toast. Serve immediately. Makes eight servings.

Note: Two tablespoons grated Parmesan may be substituted for the herbs.

He counts on his fingers now, but he'll grow up counting on the biggest savings association in Texas.

"My patients count on me because they feel safe and secure in my care. I feel much the same way about Gibraltar Savings. I counted on them when I first started practicing medicine. And I'm still counting on them today. For safety and security.

With Gibraltar, I know my money is safe because each account is insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. And my money is secure. Gibraltar is America's first insured, which means they've been insured by the FSLIC longer than anyone else in the country. They're Texas' largest savings association — a $3 billion giant with the state's strongest reserves.

Carl And Frieda Boss

New Residents Sail Into Rockport

By Becky Werhan

Mark Twain wrote "Life on the Mississippi" about his adventures on that great river.

Well, Carl and Frieda Boss could write their own version of life on the Mississippi. They could also write about life on the Great Lakes, life on the Illinois Waterway and life on the Intracoastal Canal.

They became well acquainted with all these thoroughfares when, in a 38-foot Downeaster ketch named "Interlude II," they sailed from Sandusky, Ohio, to Rockport.

Starting on August 17, Carl and Frieda made the sail in 70 days, arriving in Rockport on October 25, their 32nd wedding anniversary.

However, their odyssey from the shores of Lake Erie to the canals of their new home in Palm Harbor started back in December of 1979 while they were on a vacation driving down the Texas coast "with one wheel in the water all the way," according to Carl.

They went back home to Powell, Ohio, then decided they wanted a second look and came again in January. They looked from Galveston to Brownsville for a home with the facilities necessary to dock a 38-foot boat and after deciding on Rockport, bought their house in March of 1980.

Carl and Frieda couldn't move down immediately since they still had a business to run back in Powell. The Bosses had owned their own manufacturing firm for 46 years, designing store fixtures and exhibits for traveling trade shows. But since Carl was selling the business and retiring in December, they decided to take one last vacation. Hence, the idea for the long sail.

While a trek from Ohio to Texas in a sailboat may not seem the ideal vacation for some, it suited Carl and Frieda just fine. "Converted power-boaters," both love the water and have spent 20 years covering the Great Lakes both in sailboats and "stink boats," Carl's term for power boats.

Carl says the "pioneer spirit and Huck Finn" made up his mind to sail down to Texas. He adds, "If the pirates and conquistadores could run up and down the Texas coast, why couldn't we?"

So they set out from Sandusky, on Lake Erie due north from their home in Powell, on August 17 and almost immediately ran into trouble. At 3:30 p.m. a tremendous squall began, with winds up to 75 mph.

The "airbomb" lasted a mere 15 minutes and dealt only minor damage to the rigging of the "Interlude II." The Bosses later found out that an earth tremor had run through an area from Northern Ohio to Detroit at that same time, and they credit the sudden storm to the seismic upheaval. They sailed on to Detroit where they fixed their damaged rigging.

Soon after the storm incident the Bosses had a run of good luck. They were able to make a one-shot sail with no stops from St. Ignace on the straits of Mackinac to Manistique on Lake Michigan, a distance (with tacking) of over a hundred miles, in less than 24 hours.

At Escanaba, also on Lake Michigan, they were able to do some diving off an old wreck. Further down the lake's shore they met their eldest daughter, an art director in a Chicago suburban school, and her husband and his family and took the family party for a cruise to Chicago.

At Chicago, one of their two-man crew went ashore, leaving the Bosses with one crew member, Tracy Hille, an electronics major on leave from school, who made the rest of the trip with them.

Also at Chicago, they stepped down their masts and entered the Illinois waterway which they followed down to West Alton, Missouri, where they got on the mighty Mississippi.

Following the huge river down to New Orleans was no easy task due to the busy night-and-day barge traffic.

Unable to dock anywhere because of a shortage of slips that would accommodate a large cruising boat, they had to get off the main river or behind islands every time they stopped in order to avoid the backwash from the huge barges and trade boats. (The shortage of slips was a problem the Bosses encountered all the way down and find especially evident in Rockport.)

At New Orleans, the travelers took the Industrial Canal into Lake Ponchartrain, then the Algiers Canal to the Intracoastal Waterway which brought them down the Gulf coast to Greenville, Mississippi, where they met with one of their sons-in-law — cotton farmers who had never been on any kind of boat at all — and took them aboard for a visit.

At Orange, Texas, they were able to meet with their son and his family but their visit was dampened somewhat by eight inches of East Texas rain.

They arrived at Sundown Bay close to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge exactly at sundown on October 24. Upon arriving, they startled a flock of birds that included eight whoopers — a beautiful welcoming committee.

The next day they arrived, along with one of the first cold fronts of the year, at their home in Palm Harbor.

The Bosses had to return almost immediately to Powell and their business. Carl retired December 31, though, and they came back to Texas soon after. Their plans aren't definite, but they intend to stay quite a while.

When asked about future trips, Carl runs off a list of exotic locations like Isabella, Mexico, and Jamaica, while Frieda sighs, "Oh my word...not again!"

Palm Harbor Property Owners Elect Trustees

Trustees and officers of the Palm Harbor Property Owners Association for 1981 were elected at the ninth annual meeting of the association following a buffet dinner at the Sandollar Restaurant Saturday, January 17.

Seventy members of the association attended the meeting.

Trustees elected by the membership are Rose Wright, Bill Hansen, Louis Guido, Bob Kaiser, Margaret Richards, Hank Bierds, Leslie Monzingo, Nan Irwin and Vernon Townsend.

Following the membership meeting, the newly elected directors met and elected Kaiser president, Guido vice president and Mrs. Wright secretary-treasurer.

Activities of the past year were reviewed by 1980 president Ed Miller, a financial report for the year was presented by Mrs. Wright and a budget for 1981 was adopted.

Members discussed problems including possible redredging of the subdivision channels at some future date. A standing ovation was given Mrs. Wright for her long-time service as secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Officers Installed, Awards Presented At Annual Dinner

More than 100 members and guests attended the Rockport Sailing Club installation and awards dinner Saturday, January 10, at the Sandollar Inn.

Rear Commodore Fred Dinkler, acting for Commodore Frank Durham, installed Tony Thorne as commodore for 1981.

Commodore Thorne in turn introduced other officers for the year: Bill Shannon, vice commodore; Bob Brownell, rear commodore; Ruth Umfleet, secretary; and Larry Boone, treasurer.

Directors are Bob Albin and Jerry Shaw. Appointed as committee chairmen were John Bunton, race; Lloyd Umfleet, cruise; Park Gerdine, board boats; Peg Boone, entertainment; Tex Hill, program, and Cap Henkel, publicity.

The new commodore presented the Rockport Cup to Jerry Shaw. The cup rotates from year to year among racing skippers.

Shaw is the first member of the club to win the cup twice. He was also winner in 1979.

Helen Senteny, historian, presented a resume of events in 1980, which include a cruise to Port Isabel with 13 boats participating.

Other cruises were to Port Aransas Lighthouse, Ingleside on the Bay, Shamrock Cove, St. Joseph Island and Port Aransas. The last cruise featured a wine and cheese party.

Social events of the year were directed by Skipp Dinkler. An Hawaiian luau supervised by Sam and Margauerite Kahalewai highlighted events. Other activites included numerous pot luch suppers.

Several skippers, mates and crews cruised beyond the Gulf of Mexico during 1980. Bud and Helon "swallowed the anchor" after spending seven years aboard their ketch Glorianna before settling in Rockport. Their cruise began in San Francisco and from there they visited Central America and Gulf of Mexico ports, the Bahamas and the East Coast.

Monty Dedman and his family have been in the Caribbean for the past three years, also Bob and Margie Taylor.

Sailing to the Bahamas during the year were Tucker and Niki Coxwell, Bill and Joan Rowe and Jim and Lee Wideman.

New members who have arrived aboard their boats are Gar and Carmen Lonburger from Chicago via the Mississippi River, Mike and Karen Grosh and Merel and Olive Holmes from the Chesapeake Bay area.

Following the presentation of awards Fred Commingore, a former professional entertainer, played the guitar offering his own arrangement of several folk songs. He was accompanied by Ann Commingore, and for a sea chanty, Ruth Umfleet and Kelly Bunton.

Race committee chairman Bill Shannon presented the following racing and cruising awards:

Spring Series - Bob Albin first, Jerry Shaw second, and Ken Otto third.

Summer - Shaw first, Shannon second, and Albin third.

Fall - John Bunton, Shaw second, and Shannon third.

Rockport Cup Race - Bunton first, Shaw second, and Shannon third.

Shaw was high point man for the season to win the traveling Rockport Cup.

Shaw, board boat chairman, presented the following awards: Spring Series, Intermediates - Wade and Nathan Taggart first, Guy Haskell second and Thad Barnes third. Advanced - John Brown first, Jon Shaw second and Bob Brownell third.

Summer Intermediates awards went to Haskell first, Coxwell second and Marty Kroesche third. Advanced - Brown first, Brownell second and Scott McMillan third.

Fall Regatta - Al Barnes first, Jon Shaw second, and Brown third.

Cruise chairman Bob Christian recognized skippers of boats which made the Port Isabel cruise with plaques. They were Lloyd Umfleet, John Bunton, Jack Britton, Murray McMillan, Al Barnes, Bill Southwell, Bob Massey, Kevin Sigler, Sam Kahalewai, Dan Graves, Jim Wideman, Fred Commingore and Christian.

Lady Pirates Net Win Over Sinton

By Bob Crawford

Holding off the Sinton team, Rockport-Fulton's Lady Pirates netted their thirteenth win of the season in Sinton, 54-47.

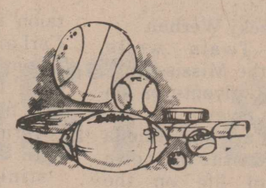

Throughout the course of the game, the Lady Pirates would build a lead, and then Sinton would come right back to make a game of it.

Rockport's JV picked up another win by beating Sinton 44-26. The Pirates maintained the lead throughout the game. Alma Dickerson found the basket for 16 big points to lead the Pirates, and Diana Herman pitched in 13 to also hit in double figures.

Rockport's Freshmen went down to defeat at the hands of Sinton by a whopping 63-29 margin. The Pirates started the game off with a two-point quarter, and from then on they were completely out of the game.

Laurie Coggins did manage to get 10 points for the only team member to hit for double figures.

R-F Pirates Drop Sinton 72-62

By Bob Crawford

Rockport-Fulton played their best "team" basketball Friday night in Sinton to drop Sinton 72-62. From the early going, the Rockport Pirates were in control.

The Pirates started a running game in the first quarter, and they never let Sinton in the game. Before the Sinton team knew what had happened, Rockport had taken a lead of 10-4, and by the end of the first period, the Pirates were up 22-10.

All five Pirate starters had at least six points at the half as the Pirates were leading 35-25.

The equal scoring continued throughout the game as four Pirates hit in double figures, and the fifth starter netted eight points. James Walls had the eight points, but his floor game was his best of the season with seven assists and four steals.

Micheal Simmons threw in 18 points as the Pirates' leading scorer, followed by 16 points by Donnie Frels, and both Pee Wee Solis and Dennis Hull found the range for 14 tallies.

The Pirates blew the Sinton team out in the third period with a 21-point quarter. The win now makes the Pirates 11-10 for the season.

The boys' JV scored a big win over Sinton with good team play from Stephen Berley, Marty Davenport, Aaron Commander, Jay Roberts and David Ramirez. The win puts the Pirates on a six-game win streak.

The Freshmen boys, meanwhile, were in Rockport handing Sinton a defeat. Charles Showalter picked up 13 points to lead Rockport, and both Bobby Dingenary and Jeffrey Dickerson had 12 points in the game.

end of the Causeway.

These changes were discussed in a special public meeting in Rockport on November 6, 1980, in the County Commissioners' Courtroom.

Also at that time, by publication, an opportunity was afforded any interested citizens to request that a public hearing be held for any discussion of the effects of the proposed revisions. No requests were received and the revision recommendation was submitted to appropriate agencies for approval.

The project extends in total from Gregory to the Copano Bay Causeway and is being developed in cooperation with Aransas and San Patricio counties.

Information on the project development is available through the office of the Resident Engineer James Opiela of Corpus Christi.

Together, The Citizens Can Stop Burglaries

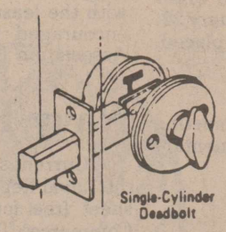

KNOW WHO'S CALLING before opening your door. A wide-angle door viewer enables you to identify the visitor. You can see him. He can't see you.

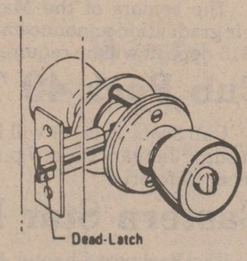

SECURITY INSIDE YOUR HOME
Set aside a small closet with a solid core door and non-removable hinge pins, and install a deadbolt lock for high security. Use it for storing your most valuable possessions, such as furs and firearms.

Report all suspicious persons to the police at once. Call 911.

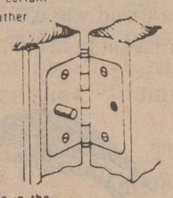

A one-inch deadbolt that requires a key to operate from either side. Ideal security for doors with glass panels.

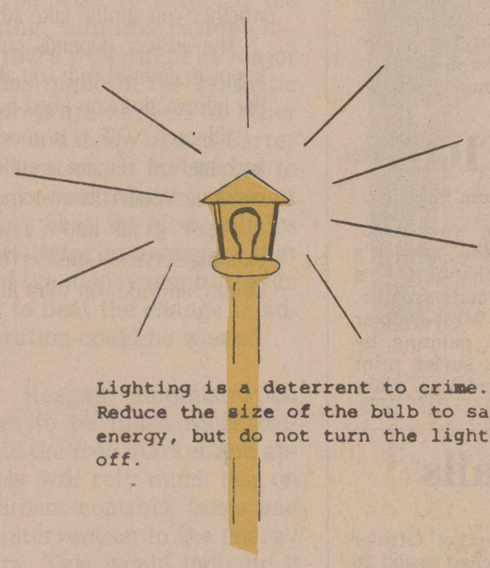

Common household lock with dead-latch. Although this is not a security lock, it offers minimum protection.

OUTSIDE HINGE PINS can make a good lock useless. An intruder could enter by removing these pins. To prevent this, follow these simple steps.

1. Each hinge has two sides or "leaves." One leaf is screwed to the door and the other to the door frame. Remove one screw from the door leaf and the opposing screw from the door frame leaf. Make certain they are directly opposite each other.
2. Insert a solid metal pin, screw, or concrete nail into the hole formerly occupied by the screw on the door frame leaf. After installation, the pin, screw or concrete nail should protrude from the hinge about ½ inch.
3. Drill out the opposing screw hole in the door to fit the pin, screw or concrete nail. Do this to each hinge on your door. When the door is closed and locked, the hinge pins still remain removable but the door itself cannot be lifted out.

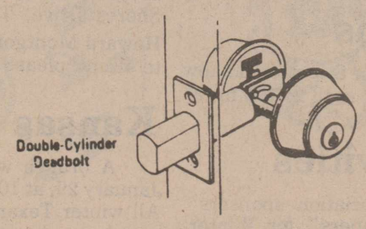

Lighting is a deterrent to crime. Reduce the size of the bulb to save energy, but do not turn the light off.

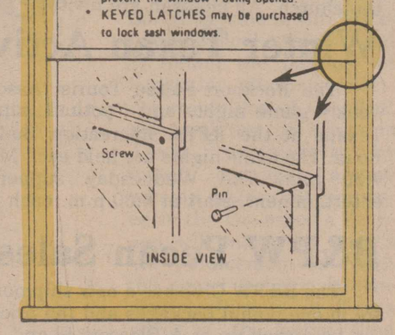

CRIME PREVENTION is: Practicing security.

CRIME PREVENTION is: People helping people.

A one-inch deadbolt with a thumb-turn on the inside. Good security for solid doors.

FRONT ENTRANCE

Door should be metal clad or solid core wood construction. A deadlock, in addition to the key-in-the-knob lock is essential. Use a wide-angle viewer rather than a door chain to observe callers. A screen door or storm door offers additional protection if kept locked.

GROUND FLOOR WINDOWS

All ground floor windows should have key-operated sash locks or other locks as described in this booklet. Keep your windows closed and locked when you are away. Screens and storm windows should be securely fastened to the structure.

UPPER FLOOR WINDOWS

Keep your second floor secure by trimming tree branches away from the house to prevent climbing, and do not store ladders where a burglar can use them. Lock all windows while you are away. Take the same precautions as with ground floor windows.

BASEMENT WINDOWS

Close and lock your basement windows. If they are not required for ventilation, they should be permanently secured by using screws through the window frame into the structure. Treat the door from your basement into the main part of the house as an exterior door.

GARAGE DOOR

The garage door should always be closed and locked. Make sure that you treat the entrance door from the garage to your house the same as any other door. A burglar in your garage can work on your house door undetected.

PORCH AND PATIO DOORS

Treat all exterior doors on the rear and sides of your home as probable targets for entry. Since they may be less observable from the street and by neighbors than your front entrance, you may need to take extra precautions.

YARD LIGHTS

Each exterior entrance—including the garage door should be well lighted. Post lights in your yard or floodlights mounted under the eaves to prevent blind spots where burglars can hide. Low cost controls for exterior lights will turn them on and off at specified times, or light sensors will illuminate them from dusk to dawn.

INTERIOR LIGHTS

When you are away from home—whether on vacation or just for the evening—keep some interior lights burning. To create the appearance that someone is at home, use a timer to turn lights on and off at normal times. A radio playing adds to the illusion that the house is occupied.

LANDSCAPING

When placing trees, bushes and flowers remember to keep doorways, windows and porches clear. Remember that the bushes that provide you with privacy also give a burglar a place to hide. Plan your landscaping with both privacy and security in mind.

BE NEIGHBORLY

Talk with your neighbors about your concern about burglary. Tell them what you are doing to protect your home. Ask them to report any suspicious persons or activities around your home to your law enforcement agency. Good neighbors make safe neighborhoods.

BURGLARY PREVENTION CHECKLIST FOR HOMES

This checklist was designed to help you make a security survey of your own home.

The first purpose of a home security inspection is to identify features in your home or daily routines of your family which might make your home an easy target for a burglar.

The security inspection should begin at your front door, include an inspection of all your doors and windows, locks, lights and landscaping. Each question on the checklist which you answer with an "x" or "✔" in the second column indicates a security weakness or hazard which requires your attention.

If you would like professional advice and assistance in a thorough home security inspection, call your local law enforcement agency.

Your Horoscope Guide

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Accent is on romance and creative artistry. You can move ahead with a rather unusual relationship now with more feelings of security. Honor any commitments you make and be understanding of friends who appear somewhat unreliable.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Take care of domestic matter that need attention. It is an excellent time to entertain others in your home. Tackle a new project with energy and enthusuaism. Get out socially where you can meet people of prestige and influence.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Be careful not to scatter your concentration — complete each project before moving on to something new. Accent is on communications and short journeys. Your mind is quick and bright but you should guard against making impulsive, cutting remarks.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Energy is high and you can accomplish whatever you set out to do. Opposition from associates lessens and cooperation is the order of the day. Some could receive an unexpected financial windfall — others may find a bill they haven't paid.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Your partnership affairs are highlighted and you can develop plans that are mutually satisfying. You may receive a lot of attention and compliments now, but don't let it go to your head. Push forward on your ambitious goals.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Keep your private affairs just that way — private! Matters of health are accented now so take especially good care of yourself. Deal with differences of opinions with co-workers in a calm and gracious way. Don't be overly sensitive.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Organize your work and catch up on previous commitments to clear the decks for new action beginning soon. Seek help from older and wiser assistants. Deal calmly and quietly with touchy or tempermental associates.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Maintain a low profile this week and stick close to home. Take care of any unpleasant tasks immediately to get them out of the way. In matters of career planning think big and work in that direction. You are laying the foundation for later rewards.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) —Go back over previous efforts and correct mistakes or bring things up to date. Review your habit patterns and discard any that are not productive. Find new areas for personal expression and cultivate some new friends.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You could get some beind-the-scenes support and assistance when career matters may be bogged down. Offers of financial assistance too can lift your spirits.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Clean up any left over business from last year that you have put off attending to. A romance could develop with someone whose interests are the same as yours.

Indian Fry Bread

CLIP 'N' COOK
Copley News Service

4 cups all purpose flour
1 to 2 tbsps. baking powder (depending on how puffy you want it to be)
1 tsp. salt
3 to 4 tbsps. dry powdered milk
2 cups warm water
Vegetable shortening or lard for frying

Mix flour, baking powder, salt and powdered milk. Gradually add warm water and knead in bowl until dough is soft but not sticky. Cover and let stand 15 minutes to 1 hour, but at least 15 minutes. Tear off a piece of dough about the size of an extra large egg. Pat into rounds about 6 inches in diameter using thumb and two or three fingers to stretch out dough. Drop into hot vegetable shortening or lard and fry until golden brown. When bubbles appear in dough, turn the bread over. It is important that fry bread be turned only once. When golden brown, remove and serve hot.

Eat Yourself Slim

Vary Your P

Dear Shirley:

I am confused about the amount of protein I should take in my diet. A while ago everybody was talking about a high-protein diet with eight glasses of water each day. Now I have been reading that people should not eat too much meat and very few eggs. I am interested in building up my health, but I am not sure what kinds of foods are the best.

My wife is also interested in keeping herself healthy, but she is confused, too. Will you please tell us how much protein we need? I am 37 years old, and I weigh 172 lbs. My wife is 34 and she weighs about 132 lbs. — P.J.

Dear P.J.:

Excessive protein is unnecessary and too much is very hard on the kidneys, which is why the eight glasses of water was suggested. It is also very expensive. The recommended protein allowance for a man of your weight is 60 grams per day. Your wife should have about 48 grams daily.

These quantities are very easy to get and I suggest that you get your protein from different sources, so that all the other nutrients yo also need are included. One-half small broiler chicken will give you about 44 grams of protein. A glass of skim milk will give you about nine grams of protein and you will get small amounts from fruits and vegetables, usually between two to five grams.

Peas and beans are much higher in protein and will give up to 20 grams. These are all based on about one-half cup servings. Cereals, breads and pastas also contribute protein. One egg supplies about seven grams of protein. If you take a mixed diet of six to eight ounces of mostly fish and fowl with occasional meats, plus many different kinds of fruits, vegetables, cereals and breads and skim milk, you will easily meet your protein requirements, and so will your wife. The average American now takes too much protein, somewhere around 100 or more grams per day.

The people who have higher protein requirements are pregnant women and young children. It is needed for the extra growth. People who have been ill or malnourished also have higher protein needs for tissue repair.

The average, healthy person does not need excessive amounts of protein. Today, we recommend more complex carbohydrates in the form of breads, cereals, fruits and vegetables, less meat, fewer eggs and skim milk. Fortunately, for most people, this kind of diet is much less expensive than the old high protein kinds.

Dear Shirley:

My dentist seems to be more interested in my diet than my doctor does. he told me to eat a lot of high-fiber foods to help keep my mouth and teeth healthy, but he didn't tell me what foods are high in fiber. He also said to take fluoride, but I understand that it can stain the teeth. Is it possible to take too much? What do you suggest? — M.T.B.

Dear M.T.B.:

Your dentist is right. High-fiber foods do seem to help the mouth and teeth stay healthy, partly because they help keep the teeth clean. Celery and apples are among the best foods to take, but any raw fruit or vegetable that you have to chew well is helpful. Coarse, unrefined cereal gains are excellent, Foods that are chewy also help in the balance between bone demineralization and remineralizing.

Fluoride is very beneficial in maintaining oral health. One and one-half mgs. to two and one-half mgs. daily is effective, but five mgs. may cause a staining of the teeth. Many areas of the country have fluoridated water. Check your own area before you take extra fluoride. Use a fluoride toothpaste, limit the sugar in your diet. Brush and floss frequently.

Here is a list of other foods that also contribute to your fluoride intake: coffee, tea, spinach, onions, lettuce, soy beans, rice and buckwheat.

First Tennis Tourney Of Year Set At Racquet Club

First tennis tournament of the year is scheduled for the Rockport Racquet Club courts Saturday, January 24, starting at 1 p.m.

Labeled the Super Bowl Mixed Doubles Mixer, it is open to members and prospective members of the Racquet Club.

Trophies will be awarded for first and second places and the entry fee is a can of new balls per person. Refreshments will be served courtside, and it is expected that the tournament will be over by approximately 5 p.m.

Prospective players are asked to telephone their entries to either Robert Richter at 729-7405, Bill Hansen at 729-0729 or Ike Boling, 729-9139, at the earliest possible moment, preferably not later than Wednesday night.

Management of the Racquet Club has been taken over by Richter, Hansen and Boling, who have announced that they hope to install new nets where needed and improve the courts' surfaces and the lighting for night play.

A campaign for new members and renewal of interest on the part of old members is now underway, according to the new managers, who point out that increased financial support is needed to pay the cost of the proposed improvements.

An informal mixed doubles tournament which had been scheduled for last Saturday, January 17, with members of the Portland Oak Ridge Tennis Club was rained out.

Inflation Benefits

Coping with inflation may have positive outcomes, says Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist.

For example, less money may mean more family interaction, time to get to know each other, to play games and to plan other family activities.

With more emphasis placed on family decision making, there is a much greater potential for creative decisions. Children have an opportunity to learn responsibility and cooperation if they are part of the decision-making team, the specialist adds.

MAVERICK CELEBRATES Store manager Jere Rowan pins a yellow ribbon on a customer at Maverick Market.
