Crash Toll Nears 200

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP)-Almost 200 Indonesian pilgrims en route home from Mecca were killed in the crash of a chartered Icelandic airliner while landing at the Colombo airport in a severe thunderstorm, the Indonesian Embassy said today.

Hospital spokesmen said there were more than 60 survivors.

The DC-8 jetliner was to re-fuel in this island nation off the tip of India and then fly on to Surabaya, the capital of East Java. It crashed about a mile short of the runway just before midnight Wednesday, plowed up 400 yards of coconut plantation, broke into three sections and burst into flames.

Warns Of Depression

WASHINGTON (AP)-The man in charge of the government's battle against inflation warns that "if inflation accelerates, there will be a breakdown of the economy - a deep depression."

"Recession is too soft a word to describe the consequences," Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, told a group of retail store owners.

Kahn said mandatory wage and price controls are the only alternatives to President Carter's anti-inflation program, but he added: "The public won't accept them and they won't work. I wouldn't be a party to them. I will not take a job running them."

Shootout In Longview

LONGVIEW (AP)-Two people died and three others were wounded in a late-night shooting spree at a Longview bar Wednesday, and police said the gunman responsible later shot and killed himself.

Police Chief Roy Stone said identifications of the dead and wounded were being withheld.

The gunman fled the bar, and police surrounded the area where he was believed to be hiding. Some five hours later, they closed in on a burned-out warehouse. "We lobbed in tear gas, then we heard a shot," Stone said. The man was found dead inside the warehouse.

The SDN Column

With Thanksgiving just a week away we are reminded that this holiday is purely American. It started with colonists in New England and has been continued until now it is known over most of the world, although the celebration still is limited mostly to the U.S.A.

But the whole world is indebted to this country for some delicious edibles which were unknown before Columbus made his historic voyage to the "new world."

The traditional Thanksgiving bird is one of them. Europeans, who thought they knew everything, had never seen a turkey until some were taken there from America. The same is true of the pumpkin, another traditional Thanksgiving item. And potatoes and peanuts are American products that have contributed to the world's gastronomical enjoyment.

Nevertheless, some of these foods that are associated with Thanksgiving were not necessarily in general use over the entire U.S.A. until relatively recent times. Transportation and refrigeration facilities were not up to handling distribution for great distances from the points of production. So, Thanksgiving foods in some regions were quite different from those recorded in the history books.

Down there in East Texas there was a time when we seldom saw a pumpkin pie at Thanksgiving or any other season. There simply were very few pumpkins grown around there and nobody was interested in shipping them in. So, it was mostly sweet potato pie for Thanksgiving. And there are those who will tell you today that a good yam pie is superior to pumpkin. And who are we to disagree?

As for the turkey, we read about them in history books, but mostly they were considered too hard to raise on most family farms. So, a fat hen usually was baked for occasions like Thanksgiving. Not that anyone had anything against the turkey. There just weren't many around. But Thanksgiving always has been a favorite holiday in all regions of this country, and it has been and still is one in which good food is in the spotlight, for which we continue to be thankful.

To Cut Consumer Costs...

Newton Says Gas Use Should Be Encouraged

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)-State Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton said today the federal government should encourage the use of natural gas or risk higher consumer costs.

Newton noted at the statewide oil allowable hearing that imports of crude oil and petroleum products had increased approximately 17 percent from a year ago.

The three-member commission routinely set the statewide allowable at 100 percent of market demand for December. The large East Texas Field once again was restricted to 86 percent production to avoid possible waste.

Newton said the country "has not seen a conversion to coal" in the industrial sector as hoped for by national policy makers. "obviously there is a conversion to fuel oil," he said.

Newton said, "If we discourage the use of natural gas by industry, the only people left to pay the cost of the pipelines are residential consumers."

This, he said, would result in consumers paying pipeline costs on a year-around basis even though their major use of gas - for home heating - comes only five months of the year.

"It's time that all governments took a new and different look at the use of natural gas," Newton said.

The major purchasers of Texas crude oil submitted nominations for 3,476,461 barrels a day in December a decrease of 15,628 barrels of oil per day was merely "an attempt to bring nominations and receipts closer in line."

Nominations, in barrels per day, with changes from November in parentheses:

Also, Massingill said that anyone who has items he wishes to contribute to the Goodfellows may take them to the Texas Electric Service Co. office on the west side of the square.

Labor Says Carter Broke His Promise

WASHINGTON (AP)-An angry AFL-CIO is charging that President Carter, breaking his only campaign promise to the labor federation, refused George Meany's request to talk over Carter's anti-inflation program a few days before its formal unveiling.

The AFL-CIO president had tried repeatedly without success since late summer for a meeting with Carter to discuss Meany's objections to the plan's voluntary wage and price guidelines, AFL-CIO sources said Wednesday.

Carter's refusal incensed Meany, the sources said. The 14-million member federation's executive council subsequently rejected the program.

Camp David Accords May Be Modified

WASHINGTON (AP)— Faced with a virtual deadlock in Mideast peace talks, President Carter said today the Camp David agreements might have to be modified to complete a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

At a breakfast meeting with reporters, Carter said he was disappointed that the negotiations had become protracted. He said that initially he had expected the two sides could reach agreement "in a very few days."

The talks, now more than a month old, are snagged over a dispute over Palestinians and a handful of other issues.

Carter met in midmorning with Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak, who was delivering President Anwar Sadat's response to an American compromise proposal for overcoming the Palestinian issue.

The idea of the U.S. proposal would be to link the treaty to moves to establish Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.

"Both sides are acting in good faith," Carter said.

However, he said, Egypt and Israel are interpreting the frameworks reached at Camp David in September to their own best advantage. One set a basis for an Egyptian-Israeli treaty, the other the groundwork for negotiating the Palestinian issue.

To reach agreement, Carter said, "in a few cases it might be necessary to modify the Camp David accords."

The president called the talks a "most frustrating experience." The differences between the two sides, he said, are "minor, but significant politically and symbolically."

And, Carter added, the Egyptian and Israelis clearly do not trust each other at this point.

When Mubarak arrived at the White House, Carter told him: "I hope our conversation will be constructive toward finding peace."

On Wednesday, Sadat said the peace talks are facing a "serious crisis" and suggested a suspension might be needed while both sides think things over.

Meanwhile, the Israeli cabinet delayed its consideration of the latest

Pat Rice Named Bell Supervisor

PAT RICE

Pat Rice, a service representative for Southwestern Bell in Snyder, has been appointed business office supervisor for the company's Snyder office. This is a new position.

According to Southwestern Bell Manager Ben Young in Sweetwater, this is a management position which includes the supervision of the eight service representatives and service order writers in the Snyder office.

"Mrs. Rice assumed her duties on Monday," said Young, "and although the service representatives will take most customer orders, Mrs. Rice will be available to help solve any problems that may arise. She will be reporting to me."

Mrs. Rice began her career with the company in 1949 as a service representative in Anson. She later moved to Snyder, also as a service representative, where she has worked for 24 years.

SMOKEOUT DAY — Today marks the Great American Smokeout pushed by the American Cancer Society. The rights of smokers and non-smokers, however, have yet to be settled. The fight extends to the Scurry County Courthouse where Wanda Rushing, left, a secretary for Justice of the Peace Bobby Goodwin, protests the wisps of smoke blown her way by Cathy Thompson from the office of tax assessor-collector Clarence Minton. Smokers were asked to give up their vice for this day. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

a false assumption

In one of his press conferences last week President Carter spoke well of recent administration moves to cool the fires of inflation. He said he felt encouraged by indications of support from both business and worker leaders. Following this was a pledge that his administration would see to it that public spending is kept to a level well within limits he had indicated in guidelines for wage and price increases.

That is all to the good, if taken at face value. But there are troubling factors. Heading the list is apparent willingness of the Carter Administration to accept inflation as unavoidable. Confining inflation to levels that will hopefully prove to be less than fatal is implicit in the President's comments.

What is really disturbing in the President's summarization of his program of voluntary restraints was his comment that stricter controls than he has suggested would bring on a depression.

Faced with a choice involving the risk of recession he comes down on the side of avoiding it at all costs. He didn't say it in so many words, of course, but it is apparent the President doesn't want to take a chance on being compelled to seek re-election during a depression.

Ignored is the possibility that he and those who share his economic philosophy are mistaken in their conviction that business will suffer if the nation's financial affairs are put in order. If the movement in the stock market in recent months and steady erosion in the value of the national currency have any meaning, an effect opposite from the one feared by the President would follow restoration of integrity to the nation's fiscal affairs.

The only sure way to find out which of these views is the proper one is to take whatever risk there may be in waging all-out war on inflation. As long as unbalanced Federal budgets are routine and steadily rising cost of living is regarded as unavoidable all we can look forward to is more inflation.

In truth the choice isn't limited to inflation and depression. This country's 150 years of steady economic growth refutes the idea that inflation is the price we have.

local success stories

Success is a key word in the American way of life. Yet, there are times when we become so engulfed with the negativism of the Naders and prophets of doom that we scarcely realize it when success literally carpets our path.

Take our public schools for example. There has been plenty of attention devoted to "Johnny can't do this, or that," but there are successes which should not be over-looked.

Has it dawned on you that Snyder High School students have marked up some amazing success stories on several fronts within the space of a little more than a week? The varsity football team has earned a district title and is headed for the playoffs, the band won its 25th Division I in marching contests, the varsity volleyball team has won a district title, no less than 14 members of the Snyder High School Choir have qualified for the all-region choir. Moreover, a Snyder High School Future Farmers of America judging team just returned from a trip to the national FFA convention in Kansas City, a trip it earned by winning top honors in the state the past year.

These are success stories and they are an indication that our schools and our community are doing something right. They are an indication that our young people have what it takes to succeed and are willing to go after success. They are an indication that there still is some American initiative in America.

do it yourself religion

Take away any man's god and he will invent another.

Robert Ruark tried to warn us a generation ago that out opposition to African tribal rites was failing to replace that discipline with "something of value."

Every man has to believe in something, even if--as with atheists--it is a "belief in disbelief."

And let's face it, the difference between a religion and a cult is that yours is a "religion" and any other a "cult."

Both are flourishing.

Recent formalities in Rome during the selections of Popes were in sharp contrast to the informal, improvised do-it-yourself religions which are capturing disciples worldwide.

The Rev. Moon, Hare Kirshan, Scientology, Children of God and the guru sects which have beguiled many young Americans are sweeping Europe now.

Some of these "fringe religions spawn crime, fraud, sexual abuse, suicides."

Ten Hare Krishna "monks" were caught in Frankfurt, West Germany, begging and receiving more than a million dollars--ostensibly for starving people in India--and actually used to buy a castle for their commune.

There's been a pox of suicides in West Germany and Switzerland among members of the small India-Indian sect call Ananda Marga.

Recent Gallup Polls show 94 percent of Americans believe in "god" or in "a universal spirit."

Seventy-one percent believe in life after death.

But only 44 percent have much confidence in organized religion.

The only mainline churches which have continued to grow and prosper in numbers and in resources are those which are most evangelical, most nearly what we used to call "fundamental," those which adhere closest to a belief that the Bible means what it says.

This "absolute" apparently is reassuring.

The mainline churches which have compromised, modernized, diluted dogma, are shrinking.

And thus encouraging informal, untraditional worship.

Religious books are $600 million-a-year business. Among the best-sellers are the new plain-speech Bibles.

Do-it-yourself religion is not new to our nation. Two hundred years ago Thomas Paine wrote: "My own mind is my own church."

But the mavericks--the overdoers--are all demanding "equal time."

Any group that gathers in anybody's living room can adopt a name, proclaim itself a "religion" and demand tax advantages and free speech privileges.

In the United States a proliferation of celebrity preachers on radio and television has now been augmented by enough others who are trying to get one--so that the result could become a total ban on all religious programming.

That, most of us agree, would leave a tragic void in what is already a secular imbalance.

my turn

by john long

One year ago I little suspected I would give up my vile vice of smoking.

During the Great American Smokeout last year, I had some rather uncomplimentary observations to make about those who had given up smoking, those who were planning to for even one day, and those who touted the idea of a smokeout. Now, the shoe is on the other foot. I quit this past January.

Many of the insights of the saint are derived from his experiences as a sinner, author Erick Hoffer once pointed out. While I am far from saintly, I have made some progress since last year, I hope.

My clothes no longer smell like tobacco leaves, and my apartment no longer smells like a tobacco factory. I have noticed these things because I am now able to smell. Coupled with my new-found ability to smell is my increased ability to breathe. I had never noticed my shortness of breath while I was smoking. Then, it was normal.

My lungs and sinuses have since cleared out, and I no longer burn holes in things with misplaced matches and ashes. Also, I have saved some money since quitting.

All in all, I have no regrets about quitting. I guess I should have done it sooner.

What I like to do now is stand off to one side and watch people pursue their debilitating habits. I derive a kind of perverse sense of joy from it.

Edward R. Murrow, the late broadcast journalist, was an avid smoker.

Occasionally I will see an old film clip of Murrow's in which he interviewed someone. Across the television screen comes a huge billowing cloud of smoke. That's Murrow's. If the person he interviewed also smoked, you couldn't see Murrow or the interviewee for all the smoke. That was back during television's infancy.

Murrow died of lung cancer. I once read that when Murrow's death was announced on television it was followed by a cigarette commercial.

in washington

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA)- It's awfully hard to know what to make of Election '78, but one thing at least seems clear. Reports of the demise of the Republican Party, like Mark Twain's famous obituary, are decidedly premature.

Despite relatively modest numerical gains in Congress and the states, the GOP is not only alive but surprisingly healthy. Indeed, the number of Republican victories may be less important than what they won - and where.

True to predictions, the power of incumbency pretty much prevailed in House races across the country, sharply limiting GOP gains and leaving the dominant Democrats firmly in control. Even in open seats, where Republicans had hoped to make inroads, the Democrats retained their massive advantage.

But in statewide races - for governor and the U.S. Senate - Republican incumbents fared slightly better than Democrats, and the GOP gained major ground in open seats.

Perhaps most significant for the future of the minority party, the GOP made stunning gains in state legislatures, the training ground for national candidates. Heading into the elections, they controlled both houses of the state legislature in only four states - Colorado, Idaho, South Dakota and Wyoming.

When the dust cleared, they had tripled that number - winning control of both chambers in New Hampshire, Vermont, Indiana, Kansas, North Dakota, Utah, Arizona and Iowa. They also won control of either the house or state senate in at least four other states - Illinois, Montana, Alaska and Washington - and held their ground elsewhere.

At all levels, the GOP gains were perhaps most impressive - and most important - in the midwest, once the very heart of the Republican Party but a region that had tipped increasingly Democratic in the past decade.

The Republicans held every one of their Midwestern governorships and picked up four to boot - in South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin. They lost Senate seats in Nebraska and Michigan, but gained two in Minnesota, one in South Dakota and one in Iowa. They held their own or gained House seats in every state in the region except Michigan, where they lost two.

The Democrats, in general, and President Carter, in particular, cannot afford to shrug off the Republican inroads in the Midwest -- not when you re-examine in 1976 election results.

Carter only carried four states in the region - Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ohio - but they were crucial to his victory over former President Ford. All but Missouri, which had no statewide contests this year, have now shown a distinct tilt towards the Republicans.

Furthermore, the Republicans held onto their already good position in the West and scored major victories in vote-rich Pennsylvania and Texas, two more states that were vital to Carter in 1976.

Not a single one of the possible GOP presidential contenders for 1980 was eliminated in last week's balloting. Indeed, both Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and GOP Gov., James Thompson of Illinois, the two most prominent prospects who were running this year, won handsome re-election victories.

The Congress remains overwhelmingly Democratic, but the Republican influence will be more noticeable come January - especially in the Senate, where the GOP finally got over the 40-seat mark for the first time since 1972. Put 41 Republicans (if all returns hold up) together with any 10 conservative Democrats and you've got a voting majority on some issues. It won't happen often, but the extra three seats can make a considerable difference on tight votes in the Senate.

It's going to be a long road back from Watergate for the GOP, but Republicans have taken the first real steps in that direction this year.

not all bad

NEW YORK (AP)—It isn't all bad. Blended faintly through the new consensus recipe, which calls for a weakening economy through the next few months, are a few sweeteners to keep the taste buds alive.

Whether they are simply the pleasant aftertaste of four years of economic expansion, or instead, ingredients that could indeed sweeten the economic pie, is debatable. But they cannot be ignored.

One survey of purchasing managers, the people who buy the commodities that are processed into products of greater value, leads to the conclusion the "economy looks like its been pumping iron."

That is the opinion of Purchasing Magazine, reached after interviewing buyers. "It (the economy) is putting on more muscle without serious supply disruptions," it states in the current issue.

Like so many surveys, however, this one was completed just prior to the combined anti-inflafon, save-the-dollar program announced simulataneously by the White House and the Federal reserve Board.

The program's effect, in the form of a new business psychology and higher interest rates, will not be determined for weeks. Even so, it is not likely to totally demolish the purchasing agents' confidence.

The magazine study is buttressed by one released Nov. 6 by the National Association of Purchasing Management. It found 43 percent or respondents expect fourth-quarter business to improve over the third.

The study does include evidence of a slowing of economic activity. Inventories are being tightened, for example. But the overall verdict of a strong economy was termed "unexpectedly good."

While declaring that business confidence has declined, Faculty Associates, a surveyor of small business, notes that 47 percent of respondents still expected sales increases in the fourth quarter.

Based on random sampling of the 500,000 member firms of the National Federation of Independent Business, based in San Mateo, Calif., Faculty Associates said only 24 percent expected sales declines.

What the studies indicate is that despite fears, business has been able to retain a degree of faith, and in some instances very strong faith, despite rising prosnal debt, interest rates and prices.

Nobody can say at this point whether the administration's commitment to fighting inflation, and the Fed's determination to risk recession in order to slow economic activity, has poleaxed that faith.

It seem to have done that to economists, who generaliy are raising the odds on a recession, although as usual the are hedging bets.

But business people are different. For one thing, they cannot so easily hedge, because they often deal in hard goods and cash rather than opinions. Besides, by their nature they are risk-takers.

It is, in fact, this very tendency that might account for the persistence of the current expansion, now well into its fourth year.

And it could be that grit and persistence through all sorts of obstacles that might permit the economy to correct itself short of the recession foreseen by a growing number of ecnomists.

Bill Says Group Spread Heating

WASHINGTON (AP)—Utility customers who can't pay high winter heating bills should be allowed to spread their payments over the entire year and not face gas or electricity cutoffs, a consumers' group says.

The coalition of labor unions, citizen action groups, churches and senior citizen organizations asked the Energy Department Tuesday to "take immediate action to help prevent electric and gas utility companies from shutting off their heating customers this winter."

HERMLEIGH NEWS

By ADALA DRENNAN

Little Donnie and Christi Lloyd of Abilene visited their grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lloyd last weekend.

The speaker for the First Baptist Church last Sunday was Rev. Richey Hatter of Levelland.

Mr. and Mrs. Osman Jackson visited their daughter-Mr. and Mrs. Don Williams, Jackie and Donna in Lubbock last weekend.

Reports of little Randy Lee Holder, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Roemisch are encouraging, even though he is still in intensive care at Methodist hospital in Lubbock. The baby will have surgery again Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Mayes have returned from a two-week vacation trip. They visited their daughter Mr. and Mrs. Eddie (Kelley) Wooley in Austin and their son, Mr. and Mrs. John Mayes in Waco. From there they visited friends in Lake Charles, La., for three days and visited the little church where they were married 34 years ago, (during World War II). They spent three days in Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., and on to Pensacola where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Brock, former residents of Hermleigh. From there they went to Athens, Ga., where they visited friends who were their next door neighbors when they lived in Alaska. They also visited friends in Charleston, S.C., and on to Vicksburg, Miss., and saw the Civil War battlegrounds.

The Ivey Herrley's visited their son, Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Herrley and family, in Snyder last Saturday.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Mayes were their daughter Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wooley of Austin, and friends Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hunter also of Austin. They were enroute to Tres Ritos, N.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Routon of Farwell spent Sunday with their brother Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boyce. The Boyce's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Carter of Tyler, visited over the weekend.

A reminder, that Saturday 18 is the time for the Fall Fiesta which includes a bake sale at Jone's Grocery, all up and down the street will be a flee market, and many interesting items will be for sale with the proceeds going to the Hermleigh Community Fund. The purchase of the fire truck is the major project at the moment. The fire truck fund is growing; but donations are still needed and appreciated.

Watch your paper for the date in the near future as a melodrama staged by Hermleigh adults is in the making; which is another means of raising money for the fire truck fund. Any suggestions for raising money for the Hermleigh Community Fund will be greatly appreciated.

The Lions Club's barbecue was a real success, with a large crowd attending.

Ferrel Coston of Haskell spent Saturday night with his father, R.M. Coston.

Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Richburg attended the Senior Citizens Thanksgiving dinner in Loraine Tuesday night.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Bridges of Ira, visited little Greg Kitchen of Midland, who is in an Odessa hospital seriously ill. Mrs. Kitchen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Collier. The Collier's are former residents of Hermleigh.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Richburg visited Mrs. J.B. Turner and then visited Mr. Turner, who is a patient in Cogdell hospital in Snyder. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boattenhamer. All are reported to be improving.

Last week Mrs. Pearl Vernon accompanied Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Richburg to Loraine where they had lunch at the Senior Citizens Center. Approximately 150 attended. Games of 42 and dominos were enjoyed afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Helms from Premont, spent the weekend with their son Rev. and Mrs. Buddy Helms.

Mrs. Jim (Jean) Summer, Keith and Sandy of Midland are guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Hall. Summer visited the Hall's Tuesday enroute from Midland to Oklahoma City.

Regular daily exercise, rather than "only on weekends," will pave the way to better physical fitness, says Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

What do you do when your partner uses Stayman and you have two four-card majors?

You can bid the better one, always bid spades or always bid hearts. Today's North-South always bid spades.

They also played that the Stayman response always guaranteed at least one major suit of four cards or more.

Hence, when North jumped to three notrump after South's two-spade bid, South knew that he was supposed to bid four hearts if he held four of them.

It was well that he did. The diamond lead would automatically defeat three notrump. Nothing could bother the four-heart contract.

South won the diamond, drew trumps with three leads, lost the spade finesse, the ace of clubs and one diamond but had made an easy game.

Ask the Experts

Several readers have asked if we always use Stayman when we have a good hand with four cards in a major suit.

The answer is that with a 4-3-3-3 hand such as:

♠ 8 6 5 4	11-16-B
♥ K 10 8
♦ K J 3
♣ Q J 5

the chances are that three notrump will be a better contract than four spades even if partner has four spades.

Orange Juice Second To Fruit Of The Vine

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans now drink almost twice as much wine as orange juice a year, the Agriculture Department says.

Wine consumption in 1976 - the latest year for which figures are available - was a record seven quarts a person, according to new findings by two department economists.

That compares to the mythical average American's yearly consumption of about four quarts of orange juice and 132 quarts of milk, other department figures show.

In the early 1960s, a typical American drank less than four quarts of wine a year.

A soon-to-be-published report on wine drinking based on research by economists Raymond J. Folwell and John L. Baritelle shows that California continues to dominate American wine production, accounting for 80 percent of the U.S. wine flow.

The new issue of the department's Farm Index magazine notes several observations from the economists' wide-ranging study, which was based on a scientifically selected sample of 7,000 households around the country.

Among those observations:

-More than 30 percent of the population doesn't drink wine. Most abstainers are in the South.

-The burgeoning popularity of wine is least felt in the South.

-Almost four out of 10 non-drinkers said they abstain for religious or personal reasons. But the majority "indicated they didn't know much about wine and therefore were reluctant to try it."

-Regular drinkers with higher incomes, better education and smaller families prefer table and sparkling wines. Others lean toward desert and flavored wines.

-More than half of all wine is purchased at supermarkets, 39 percent at liquor stores and 4 percent at drugstores.

The United States and Spain signed the treaty of San Lorenzo in 1795, and Spanish troops withdrew from Mississippi Territory shortly afterward.

Lost desire for sex

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 57 and I had my uterus removed when I was 25 because of a tumor. Everything was just fine until after I went through the change of life, and then my sex desire left me completely. That was about four years ago. My doctor says he does not have a pill to take care of it. Do you have any thoughts of advice that would help me?

DEAR READER — Your letter points out a fact that I have tried to make to many of my readers about hysterectomies. If you have all of your uterus removed, but the ovaries are left alone, you will continue to have a normal hormonal balance. That's why you had a normal balance from the age of 25 when you had your surgery until age 53, which is when your ovaries failed.

The woman who has a hysterectomy and needs hormone support already has ovarian failure, or may have had her ovaries removed because of disease at the time of the surgery. It's the ovaries that provide the hormone function and not the uterus.

Your doctor can check to see if you have an adequate amount of female hormones, or if you need additional hormone for your body. While I don't know what the tumor was that caused you to have a hysterectomy 32 years ago, it's unlikely that it would be a significant factor in deciding whether you could or could not use female hormones now. Certainly, 32 years after removal it would seem logical that you wouldn't need to worry about a malignancy.

Since you don't have a uterus, you certainly can't develop a malignancy of the uterus now. The other question is the status of your breasts. If you do not have a lumpy breast and need female hormones, there shouldn't be any good medical reason why you couldn't use them. Of course, if you don't need them, then there is not much point in prescribing them.

A lack of sex desire in middle age may have nothing to do with the menopause, but may be associated with psychological factors in some women. This is a common age in life for depression, disappointments and changes in attitudes, whether one has normal hormone function or not.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12 on menopause because it gives you some basic information on how the female hormones work, and what changes a woman can expect during her change of life. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 155, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am concerned about my 25-year-old husband's health. He has been throwing up blood on and off for the last two years, usually when he's had too much alcohol. He refuses to see a doctor, believing that nothing is wrong with him. There isn't any really good reason why he should, but I can't give you except that there is nothing to worry about. Could this be a symptom of something serious? Is there anything I can do to get my husband to see a doctor as quickly as possible?

DEAR READER — You bet it can be. An ulcer that bleeds is serious in itself. If that is the cause, he could develop massive bleeding. Anybody who vomits blood should be seen by a doctor.

He's Oversexed And Underwilled

DEAR ABBY: My head is spinning with indecision. I'm in the process of getting a divorce, and my husband is begging me to give him another chance.

The problem has always been that Harry can't resist young girls! I was 16 and he was 27 when we married, and during our six-year marriage Harry got five girls pregnant! One was barely 15, and he'd have gone to jail for sure if his boss hadn't retained a really good lawyer. After that Harry had a vasectomy and now we can't have any more children. We have one little boy and I've had four miscarriages, and I've always wanted another child.

I decided to divorce him after I caught him in the bushes in broad daylight with his 18-year-old niece at a family 4th of July picnic.

Abby, Harry is really a sweet guy and a wonderful provider. (He's a top salesman.) Half of me says, "Take him back," and the other half says, "Go through with the divorce."

I may be crazy, but I still love him.

PRISONER OF LOVE

DEAR PRISONER: Listen to the half with the brains in it and don't take him back until he gets into therapy. If you resume your marriage in his present state, prepare to live indefinitely with a weak man who has a weakness for young girls.

DEAR ABBY: Where is it written that it is bad manners to tip the owner? I mean the owner of a saloon, a restaurant, a beauty parlor or a barber shop.

When the owner is right there serving the public I think he (or she) is every bit as entitled to a tip as an employee.

If there is such a rule of etiquette, I think it is dumb and should be done away with.

What do you think?

A QUESTION OF TIPPING

DEAR QUESTION: Some die-hard traditionalists insist that "owners of the establishment should not be tipped." However, I believe good service should be appropriately rewarded regardless of who provides it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell SICK OF THE SAME DRESS whose co-worker wears the same dress for two weeks straight that's she's lucky she doesn't work with my husband.

He wears the same pair of trousers every day until they wear out.

He says it's too much trouble to take the things out of his pockets every night!

GIVEN UP ON HIM

DEAR GIVEN UP: Your husband is slackadaisical.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Australians Find Embassy Bugged

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Foreign Minister Andrew Peacock told the House of Representatives today that listening devices were found in the walls of offices in the Australian Embassy in Moscow in June.

Peacock said the government, in retaliation for the bugging, canceled talks on a cultural exchange agreement and a meeting to review the Australian-Soviet scientific agreement.

Search Finds Two Bodies

PAGOSA SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A frustrating three-month search has ended with the discovery of two bodies believed to be a missing Texas couple whose van was used by two excaped Arizona convicts to crash a roadblock, authorities say.

Archuleto County Sheriff Neal Smith issued a statement saying the bodies found southwest of here Wednesday "from all appearances and information available" were believed to be those of James Judge, 23, and Jeanette Margene Judge, 26, of Amarillo, Texas.

The couple had been married less than a week and were on a honeymoon camping trip in southern Colorado when they disappeared Aug. 8. For several weeks, dozens of searchers combed the rural areas of southern Colorado for a trace of the Judges.

Their van was used by Gary Tison and four members of his gang to crash through a roadblock near Casa Grande, Ariz., on Aug. 11.

Five Mishaps Are Reported

Five minor traffic accidents have been investigated by city police since Tuesday.

The first occurred Tuesday at 11:53 a.m. at the intersection of 24th St. and Ave. R. It involved a 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Nina L. Vest and a 1977 Dodge pickup driven by Myron Fenton.

The city's second mishap was yesterday at 2:21 p.m. at 24th St. and Ave. Q. Involved in it were a 1964 Ford driven by Jeanette Cook and a 1977 Mack truck driven by Weldon Eugene Allen of Big Spring.

The final mishap Tuesday was at 15th St. and College Ave. at 3:55 p.m. Reports show that a 1976 Chevrolet pickup driven by Jay Roemisch of Hermleigh was in collision with a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Theresa Lindsey.

The latest and most serious occurred about 7 a.m. today. Reports show that a 1974 International truck carrying a load of mail was in collision with a utility pole in the 200 block of East Highway. The driver of the truck, 27-year-old Donald Ray Horton, was not injured. The truck, however, was destroyed.

One other mishap took place on North Ave. E about 7:45 a.m. Wednesday. Accident reports show that a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Terry Clark struck two signs owned by the Texas Highway Department. Moderate damages were reported in that collision.

WHY ADVERTISE?

"Why is it?

A man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised bed, in advertised pajamas.

He will bathe in an advertised tub, wash with advertised soap, shave with an advertised razor, drink advertised coffee after his advertised juice, cereal and toast (toasted in his advertised toaster), put on advertised clothes and advertised shoes.

He will ride to work in an advertised car, sit at an advertised desk, and write with an advertised pen.

Yet this man hesitates, saying that advertising does not pay.

Finally, when his unadvertised business goes badly---he will then advertise, but far too late because his ad will read, "BUSINESS FOR SALE".

ACCORDS

U.S. proposal, waiting for the Egyptian presentation to Carter. The president had urged Israel not to take a final position on the American proposal until he had heard from Egypt.

The American compromise offer deals with several unsettled issues, including the link between the talks and future discussions on the fate of Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.

Sadat, in remarks to university professors and students, said "we have gone a long way at the Washington talks and have achieved 90 percent of the road."

But he added that the discussions "are at a serious crisis and if we can avoid it in order to achieve the remaining 10 percent by suspending the talks for a while to allow the parties to think again and then resume, so be it."

He neither elaborated nor referred to the response Mubarak was carrying to Carter. The vice president arrived late Wednesday but said nothing to reporters about the response.

Informed Egyptian sources, requesting anonymity, said the Cairo government had formulated new proposals in hopes of avoiding a complete deadlock in the peace talks.

The sources, noting Israel's rejection of Cairo's linkage demands, said Sadat was trying to limit initial discussions to the Gaza issue, leaving the West Bank for later.

Vietnam War peace talks began in Paris in 1968.

Nab Suspect In Burglary At Scene

This is a short tale of a burglary suspect who didn't get away, who was so drunk that he stayed at the scene of the crime until police arrived.

Police officer Kerry Fritz was patrolling the streets of Snyder Wednesday afternoon when he was flagged down at the intersection of 24th and College by Paul Martinez. Martinez informed the police patrolman his car had been broken into. He noted there was a subject in another car parked right next to his who seemed to be intoxicated.

The stereo and one speaker that was missing from Martinez's car were in the back seat of the intoxicated man's car.

The subject, a 16-year-old juvenile, was promptly arrested and booked at the police station on charges of auto burglary and public intoxication.

Man Made Substance Cuts High Cholesterol

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

DALLAS (AP)-A man-made substance which tastes like margarine and could substitute for cooking oil, dramatically reduces high cholesterol levels and the accompanying risk of heart attacks and stroke, say two teams of scientists.

"Sucrose polyester seems to have remarkable potential as a cholesterol-lowering agent," with many advantages over existing drugs, said Dr. Charles L. Glueck, who heads the University of Cincinnati's General Clinical Research Center.

Too much cholesterol in the blood greatly increases the risk of major heart problems, according to heart specialists, who blame much of the problem on Americans' fondness for high-cholesterol foods such as eggs and red meat.

Drugs are available to reduce cholesterol but most are difficult to take because of unpleasant side-effects and "drugs are of no value if you can't get people to take them," Glueck told a news conference.

The experimental substance could simply be used like butter on toast or pancakes, like vegetable oil for fried foods and like shortening for many recipes, Glueck told a news conference.

"It would even be effective with a high-cholesterol, high-fat diet...that doctors would otherwise shudder about," said Dr. John Crouse of the University of California-San Diego. He quickly added that it can never replace a sensible diet.

Glueck said sucrose polyester has produced "no obvious or substantial side-effects" in intitial tests. He said it does reduce the level of vitamin A and E, but these are easily replaced.

Considered a drug by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, sucrose polyester is apparently several years from being commercially available. It was developed and patented by Proctor & Gamble.

Glueck and Crouse described their separate studies Wednesday at an American Heart Association conference here.

Glueck said tests with 24 healthy males showed the substance reduced cholesterol levels an average of about 10 percent. Crouse, who gave sucrose polyester to 11 obese patients who had been dieting for three weeks, reported decreases of 11 to 15 percent.

The researchers said the substance seems to work by attaching itself to cholesterol in the intestine, before it moves into the blood. Because sucrose polyester cannot be digested, it and the captured cholesterol are passed out of the body with other wastes.

The substances, which result from a chemical reaction of sugars and fatty acids, was developed several years ago for possible use in low-calorie foods, said Fred H. Mattson of Proctor & Gamble's laboratory in Cincinnati.

He said its value in reducing cholesterol was only recently discovered and "it's impossible to guess when or whether it will be put on the market. We're still in the very early stages."

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in all living things. It is produced naturally by the human body and consumed in substantial quantities in eggs and red meat.

Too much cholesterol in the blood can cause deposits to form on the walls of arteries. That leaves less room for blood flow and sets the stage for heart attacks and strokes.

Say Yale Researchers...

No Evidence To Link Estrogen And Cancer

BOSTON (AP)-Yale researchers who studied cancer of the uterus say earlier studies linking the disease to estrogen pills were based on inaccurate research with a built-in bias toward finding cancer.

The doctors said no evidence exists that connects uterine cancer to estrogen.

Moreover, they said, the faulty research technique may also have caused erroneous findings in studies that reported a relationship between birth control pills and breast cancer.

The new research, conducted by Ralph Horwitz and Alvan Feinstein, was published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, the same journal that carried three of the original estrogen reports.

Women often take estrogen to relieve the ill effects of menopause. Previous studies during the past three years warned that the medicine can cause cancer of the endometrium, the inner lining of the uterus.

Those studies, now challenged by the Yale doctors, showed that women who take estrogen during menopause face up to eight times the risk of uterine cancer as other women their age.

Horwitz and Feinstein counter that there is no evidence that estrogen will cause this kind of cancer. Their study found that estrogen increased the risk of uterine cancer 1.7 times - so slightly that no significant hazard can be shown.

"We conclude that the strength of the much-publicized association between estrogens and endometrial cancer has doubtlessly been exaggerated and needs re-evaluation," they wrote.

The Yale doctors stopped short of saying estrogen definitely does not cause this form of cancer. "All we can say is that the relationship has not been proved," Feinstein said in a telephone interview.

After cancer of the cervix, cancer of the uterine lining is the most common malignancy of the female reproductive tract. It usually occurs in women between 50 and 60.

Estrogen, often taken by women going through menopause, can cause bleeding of the uterus, a major symptom of uterine cancer. This bleeding factor led to what the new study says was a built-in bias in favor of finding a cancer link in the earlier reports.

In the earlier studies, researchers compared estrogen using women who had been treated for uterine cancer with a group of control subjects - women who had other forms of cancer of the sex organs.

The Yale doctors said it may have been the estrogen, not the cancer, that caused these women to bleed and the bleeding could have prompted them to have hospital tests that detected cancer which otherwise would have gone unnoticed.

Feinstein said, "Estrogen leads to the detecting of cancers, not to the causing of them."

Jaycee Turkey Walk Collects Over $900

Those who took part in the Annual Jaycee Turkey Walk recently are probably basking in a glow of satisfaction while nursing their sore muscles. Officials of the American Heart Association estimate that the event raised more than $900 to support local and national programs to prevent heart disease.

Sam Alexander, chairman of the local Turkey Walk said that 12 participants took part in the walking marathon, nine with pledges.

"The important thing now" he said, "is for participants to get in touch with their sponsors, who check their certified Turkey Walk checkpoint cards and obtain the amount pledged. A check to "Heart Fund" is preferred.

Local merchants contributing turkeys to walkers who brought in $50 or more were, Everybody's Thriftway, Furr's, Gibson's, Food Basket, Forrest Lumber, Anthony's, Higginbotham Bartlett, Clark Lumber and A-1 Electronics.

Trio Advances To Playoffs...

Area Campaigns End

For most area schools, Friday's evening football games mark the end of the gridiron season. A ten-game schedule complete, the schools enter basketball with a whoop and a bang, while coaches dream of what might have been...or could be next year.

Three area teams however, won't stop with Friday's game. As district representatives, they'll give it one more shot - with the hopes of building that into one more, and another, and another.

The hot-shot Colorado City Wolves are such a team. Chalking six straight shutouts, the Wolves will host a weak Winters team before entering bi-district play for the second time in two years. A victory over the Blizzards at 7:30 Friday would give C-City a 9-1 record heading into the as yet unplanned playoff.

In a similar situation, though looking for its first bi-district bid since 1974, the Snyder Tigers can close out the regular season with an 8-2 mark by defeating a fired-up Brownfield team in Brownfield at 7:30. The Tigers already have their playoff game set up, however, Nov. 24 against Burkburnett of District 4-AAA in Tiger Stadium.

Hermleigh clinched its playoff rights last week, and like Colorado City, will not know it's opponent until after some other games conclude Friday. Meanwhile, Coach Clarence Spieker's Cardinals travel to Southland this week for a 7 p.m. kickoff.

Rotan could call this a highly successful year if it could get past Hawley at 7:30 Friday. The Yellowhammers, who won their first four games only to lose three straight, seem to be back on track after marking victories over Baird and Albany. A win in Hawley this week would give Rotan a respectable 7-3 record.

Fighting for pride, the Hobbs Panthers can improve their record to 4-5 and 3-3 with a victory over visiting McCaulley at 7 p.m. Friday. The only other area final season game pits winless Ira against Highland at 7 p.m. The 'Dogs, whose seniorless team was hit with early injuries, will be looking for a first-season win as they host the Hornets.

Though not a part of the eight area teams, area fans will be interested in the Wilson-Jayton District 3-B playoff held in Snyder at 8 p.m. Friday. Jayton edged area team Roby for the East Zone rights earlier this season. Roby concluded the season with a 7-3 (4-1) record. The area's other squad, Borden County, concluded it's effort last week and wound up with an 0-10 mark.

Grimsley Picks

—UCLA Upset—

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It's showdown in show town when Southern Cal and UCLA renew their backyard feud in Los Angeles, while an extra helping of grits is the order in the Deep South where unpredictable, unimpressive Auburn challenges the title aspirations of eighth-ranked Georgia.

These are the sources of this week's upset specials in college football. The Trojans and Bulldogs have the edge in talent and statistics, but, as the commercial says, it's not the dog in the fight that counts - it's the fight in the dog.

Last week: 38-15, .715 (Nebraska over Oklahoma). Season; 348-124, .737.

UCLA 25, Southern Cal 22: Rick Bashore picks up more yardage with his arm for UCLA than Charles White gets for USC with his legs.

Nebraska 38, Missouri 13: Hipp, Berns & Co. still on the wave of euphoria but should beware of the letdown.

Michigan 34, Purdue 20: Rick Leach gets a chance to build on his Heisman Trophy credentials.

Auburn 18, Georgia 15: Plainsmen have looked alternately good and miserable - should be ready for a high.

Texas 30, Texas Christian 7: Rarely do the Longhorns come so far with so little to play for.

Clemson 22, Maryland 17: The Terps are slightly favored among the odds-makers. Clemson has Steve Fuller and a good defense.

Arkansas 26, Texas A&M 20: The Razorbacks' Ron Calgagni has a 61 percent completion average, which should suffice.

Golf Meet Re-scheduled

Last Sunday's FTHOI (For The Heck Of It) tournament planned at Snyder Country Club will be re-scheduled for Nov. 19 according to pro Don Bryant. The original playday was rained out.

A 1:30 p.m. shotgun start will begin the full-handicap, ladies and mens tournament. Play will be best two balls of the foursome.

The meet, for club members, requires a $5 entry fee.

Last Minute Problems Cause Some Changes...

WTC Classic Opens Tonight

A late change has cut from six to four the number of teams participating in the WTC Classic scheduled to begin here today, but Westerner Coach Nolan Richardson feels the quality of the three-day event will not be lessened any.

Bay Ridge, a four-year school from Kendleton, near Houston, called Wednesday afternoon and pulled out of the Classic, leaving five teams still entered. College officials then contacted McMurry College who willingly withdrew from the tournament to keep the number even. The NJCAA prohibits any member team from playing more than an alloted number of games per season, and a five-team tournament would have forced officials to go over that limit.

The new lineup opens with one of the top games expected out of the tournament, as three-time natonal champion Tyler Junior College and Western Texas College, also a former championship school, meet a 6:45 p.m. Independence Community College 1976-77 and 77-78 national champs, will play the University of Juarez at 8:30.

Friday's fare includes Independence versus Tyler at 6:45, followed by WTC versus Juarez at 8:30. Saturday, Juarez and Tyler will battle in the first game, while Independence and WTC will highlight the final Classic contest at 8:30.

"I'm thankful that we still have the best group, and that is the most important thing, I think," commented Richardson. "Sometimes these things just don't workout, but I still think our tournament schedule is just super," he enthused, noting it may have a bearing on national ratings. "In a way, it worked out beautifully. I'm not sure of the attendance we would have gotten in the early games. This way it will give people time to get off work, eat supper and come out and see some terrific ballgames."

Bay Ridge, an independent NAIA school, cited financial problems as its late-notice reason for not attending the meet. Richardson commented McMurry was disappointed that Bay Ridge could not attend, and that they (McMurry) suggested they withdraw (other than one of the other teams) since they and Bay Ridge were the final two teams admitted to the Classic.

Ticket prices are: Adult tournament pass (six games) $6. Adult daily pass (two games) $2.50. Student prcies are $3 and $1.50.

Snyder Tigers Looking To Bring Home Gold

BROWNFIELD — The Brownfield Cubs, 3-6 after a rousing victory over Lamesa last week, have nothing to lose and everything to gain as they host a stout Snyder Tiger team 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The Tigers, 7-2 and with a spot in the playoffs already mapped out, will be attempting to gain sole possession of the District 3-AAA crown - a feat that has eluded them since 1974.

With that thought in mind, Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins doesn't feel his Tigers will be looking any further than the trophy case come kickoff time.

"We want that gold ball by ourselves, and to get it we're going to have to beat Brownfield," the coach explains. "All our work this week has been preparing for them. They are a very capable team, and they'll play Snyder as good or better than they've played anybody, partly because we're Snyder (rivalry) and partly because we're the champions right now."

Brownfield offers good team speed, a fact Lamesa soon learned when the Cubs burned them for touchdowns of 45 and 98 yards. Small, but quick running back Gilbert Franco highlights the Cub Wishbone, which according to Jenkins is actually more of a multiple set offsense. Junior quarterback Kelly Reed is another key player in the Brownfield lineup, especially when connecting through the air with end Jay Bryant.

Defensive toughs include 175-pound corner Bryant, 160-pound middle linebacker Brentt Wilkes, and 165-pound linebacker Gerald Bench.

The Tiger game plan is a simple one - gain control of the contest early. Jenkins allows the Cats may go to the air a few more times, but also adds, "we don't plan to do anything we haven't done all year."

Personnel-wise, Snyder is in good shpe for the game, with only Danny Doss and Tom Leura out. Doss has a shoulder injury while Leura has been hampered with knee problems. Don Chandler, who injured an ankle in Snyder's game with Lamesa two weeks ago, is listed as probable.

Lakers Grab 11th In A Row

By The Associated Press

It isn't the kind of talent you have, says Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, it's the way you use it.

And the Los Angeles Lakers are in the enviable position of having both the talent and the ability to use it wisely. That was evident Wednesday night after the Lakers posted their 11th straight National Basketball Association victory with a 133-126 triumph over the Detroit Pistons.

Coach Jerry West has certainly seen the dramatic difference from last season, when the Lakers finished fourth in the Pacific Division. Currently, they're just a half-game off Seattle's division-leading pace with a solid 12-4 record.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Denver Nuggets 109-103 in overtime; the Seattle SuperSonics routed the New Orleans Jazz, 135-118; the Washington Bullets hammered the Milwaukee Bucks 138-111; the Chicago Bulls turned back the Houston Rockets 117-103; the Phoenix Suns stopped the San Antonio Spurs 125-119 and the Kansas City Kings turned back the Atlanta Hawks 109-100.

Adrian Dantley's early scoring and Abdul-Jabbar's late flurry provided the Lakers with their victory.

Jr. Gridders End Season

Snyder junior varsity and freshman football teams will close out their respective seasons tonight.

Snyder JV, 8-1 for the year, will play host to Brownfield at 7 p.m. at Travis Field. The local frosh will journey to Brownfield for a 7 p.m. game against the Cubs.

Cats Out-Play Monterey Here

Coach Jack Stepheson's Snyder Tigers ripped and roared past Lubbock Monterey in scrimmage action here yesterday 87-75. Monterey has been polled to win District 4-4A.

"I thought our kids played super," commented Stephenson. "I played 12 kids and they all performed well. We shot 70 percent the last half, and I had no idea we could shoot that good. Of course some of that was on layups off of the press. We've got a little depth and a lot of quickness, and we're a young team. We've got a lot of potential."

Brad Richardson led the pace, scoring 20 points, bringing down 9 rebounds and accounting for 9 assists. Greg Hinton dumped in 18 points and Sid Everton had 16.

The scrimmage was marred somewhat when a Monterey player elbowed Everton in the jaw. Everton, a senior and floor captain, may lose a tooth from the incident. The Monterey player was ejected from the scrimmage.

Saturday, the Tigers begin their season hosting Lubbock High. A JV game will start at 2 p.m., followed by the varsity game.

Cattle Producers Hang Back On Herd Expansions

By Don Kendall
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle producers still are hanging back from expanding herds and could decide to continue their liquidation longer than some experts predict, says a Colorado livestock economist.

Robert Reierson, who works for one of the nation's largest feedlot and packing firms, told an outlook session at the Agriculture Department that most experts think the current liquidation phase in the cattle business will end next year.

But for this to happen, he said Wednesday, producers will have to begin moving more heifers into breeding herds in addition to reducing the number of older cows they are sending to slaughter plants.

So far, Reierson said, this has not occurred to a significant degree, although cow slaughter is declining.

Meat comprises nearly one-third of consumers' grocery spending, and beef is the biggest item in the meat bill.

A cutback in cattle numbers the past several years has resulted in much higher animal prices and is a major factor in overall food prices going up 10 percent in 1978, the sharpest rise in four years.

Led by beef and pork, food prices are expected to go up again in 1979, "most likely" by about 7.5 percent, according to department economists.

Reierson said that "for whatever the reason, cow-calf operators are not yet sufficiently encouraged" by higher market prices to expand their herds.

Reierson said U.S. cow slaughter in 1976 totaled about 10.5 million head but has declined to an estimated 8.5 million head this year. He said the slaughter will probably be less than 7 million head in 1979 and drop "towards or even under" the level of 6 million head a year in 1980-82.

Cow beef is the main source of hamburger. Thus, with reduced cow slaughter, hamburger prices probably will go up relatively faster than cuts from grain-fed cattle.

But Reierson and others said that as hamburger prices rise, more meat from chucks and other cuts of grain-fed beef probably will be ground to meet the demands of consumers.

President Carter's decision to veto a new meat import law favored by cattlemen and uncertainty about future prospects for price controls and other federal regulations are contributing to the situation, he said.

Reierson's firm, Monfort of Colorado, is based in Greeley, Colo.

Pork production has not increased nearly as much as USDA experts had counted on, and Reierson said that the larger capital requirements and uncertainty about federal controls — including what to do about the use of nitrite as a bacon preservative — are factors that are similar to those in the cattle business.

The bankers are a strong factor, and some of the bankers have said they are not going along with the cowman who wants to increase his cow herd, Reierson said. "They're saying you'd better get your loans paid down to a lower level first and be a little more sure of the future."

Reierson did not predict that the liquidation phase of the cattle cycle will continue through next year but suggested that this is one "scenario" of what could happen.

If so, he said, it would indicate that we would still have lower cow slaughter but the heifers will continue to be slaughtered at a high level.

That would mean slightly more beef for consumers next year and a help in the fight against inflation. But it also would mean that per capita beef supplies would be less in 1980 and 1981 than otherwise might occur, Reierson said.

Oil Company Gets Into Bug Industry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — And now - bug power. Standard Oil of California has plunked down $13 million for 24.7 percent of a Berkeley company that harnesses tiny bugs for industry.

Peter Farley, head of the Cetus Co. estimated that the company is worth about $55 million and employs 160 people.

The company, said Farley, demonstrated to the big corporations that Cetus had the ability "to work with micro-organicisms in a way that is useful in a number of chemical activities."

For example, he said, micro-organisms convert ethylene into ethylene glycol, an ingredient of antifreeze. They also are used to boost the recovery of oil from the ground.

J.D. Bonney, a standard Oil vice president in charge of planning, described Cetus' work as a commercial search into "the mysteries inside bugs" and how they work their magic for use in industry.

Turk U.S. Seek Exchange Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Turkey are reviewing a proposal for a prisoner exchange treaty similar to one that exists between the United State and Mexico.

The State Department said Thursday a draft treaty was completed in Ankara last week. It said those talks were held at the legal and technical level and the draft treaty has now gone to the two governments for further review.

Woman Lives In Constant Fear Of 'Kissing Bug'

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP)-Sandy Duvall and husband Frank don't just hop into bed each night. They perform a little ritual first: shake out the bedclothes, keep the sheets and blankets off the floor, push the bed away from the wall.

It's a bothersome routine, but if neglected one night, it's possible Mrs. Duvall, 35, might never see the morning. As if in some recurring nightmare, Mrs. Duvall lives in terror in her own house.

Her enemy is a tiny insect with the harmless-sounding nickname, "kissing bug." She is so allergic to the bug's bite, which is harmless to most people, that a bite could prove fatal.

She fears her "days are numbered" because the major supplier of the antigen that combats the bug's poisons may soon quit manufacturing the substance.

Mrs. Duvall's life-and-death fight from the small, black blood-sucking "kissing bug," which has the scientific name Triatoma Protracta, began in 1971.

"I was in bed reading the Sunday paper when I felt something bite me on the thumb," she recalls. "By the time Frank had returned from the bathroom with the spray. I was itching all over - my ears, my mouth, even my insides.

"My face was splotching, my throat was swelling and I could hardly breathe. I was burning up. But I didn't associate any of this with the bite. I thought it was because of something I had eaten."

Duvall rushed his wife to a hospital, where a doctor, thinking Mrs. Duvall had been bitten by a spider, gave her an injection. The symptoms eased.

When the Duvalls returned home, they found the bug in the sheets and took it to an insect expert, who identified it as a kissing bug.

Since then, Mrs. Duvall has protected herself with monthly injections of an antigen made from the bugs themselves and supplied to her by Dr. Raymond Ryckmann of the microbiology department of Loma Linda University. The antigen builds up a resistance to the bites.

However, research money that enabled Ryckmann to collect the bugs, freeze them alive and produce the life-saving antigen, has run out.

"My supply will last only until next October," says Mrs. Duvall. "My doctor says after that, a sting could be fatal."

Their physician, Dr. Alan Greenfield, says the bug "is kind of endemic to the Antalope Valley and San Joaquin Valley of California. It isn't generally found east of the Rockies."

Mrs. Duvall lives the life of a woman on the run. They can't move from California because Duvall is allergic to weather extremes.

They are trying to outsmart the bug by trimming their lawn back because the bug likes to hide out there, they've gotten rid of their dog because dogs are sometimes carriers, and they've adopted five cats to keep away rats, which are also carriers.

And they perform their ritual every night.

"Some days I cry about the whole thing," Mrs. Duvall says. "I can't believe my entire life is at the mercy of a bug."

Barbers Learn To do Magic

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)- Getting junior's hair cut is no longer the ordeal it once was - at least not here, where Jerry Benson is teaching barbers some sleight of hand to keep the little shavers occupied.

Benson is the magician on the Public Broadcasting System's "Infinity Factory" who teaches counting through magic tricks.

Two years ago, he and barber Nancy Berns set up their own barber shop, "The Magic Hare." As Benson pulled sponges out of ears and made ropes dance, business boomed.

A chain of major department stores here has decided to replace its traditional salons with "Magic Hare" shops and let Benson school their barbers how to turn misery into magic.

"What child wants to give up a sunny afternoon for such a boring necessity as a haircut?" Benson asked. Ah yes, but how about the kid who's got a front row seat for the next magic show? Now you see it, now you don't. The hare is gone and so is the hair.

Sheep And Lamb Supply Declining

WASHINGTON (AP)— The number of sheep and lambs being fed for the slaughter market continues to decline, says the Agriculture Department.

As of Nov. 1, there were about 1.19 million head in feedlots in seven major producing states, down 1 percent from a year ago, the department said Wednesday.

Those included: Arizona 77,000 head, 70 54 percent from a year ago; California 215,000, down 14 percent; Colorado 460,000 up 10 percent; Iowa 77,000, down 4 percent; Nebraska 93,000, down 2 percent; Texas 140,000 down 12 percent; and Wyoming 125,000, down 11 percent.

In 1972 West Germany and East Germany finished negotiations on a treaty to establish formal relations between the two countries.

"I made him put it up. I'm his mother!"

'Watch' Geese Working Well

BRICK TOWN, N.J. (AP) —Dare to swipe a shrub from Vincent Dvorak, brother and your goose is cooked. If you don't believe it, take a gander at what he's got guarding his nursery.

Geese.

"I can tell you this," Dvorak said, "they have put a stop to the pilfering and vandalism."

Why not? If honking geese could save Rome from marauding Gauls creeping in at night they ought to be able to protect a mere nursery, but Dvorak said that wasn't what gave him the idea.

"A wine merchant told my grandfather, who is in the liquor business, that some of the wineries in upstate New York use geese to watch over their premises," Dvorak said. "My father and I decided to give it a try. Nothing else seemed to work.

"We have six acres here. As you can see, except for the fence out front, it's wide open.

"For several years we had trouble with people stealing supplies from the back—bales of peat moss, topsoil, even shrubs. There was nothing to stop them.

"We tried dogs. We had a succession of German shepherds, three or four at different times. They weren't at all satisfactory.

"The dogs had to be chained, of course, and were effective only the length of the chain. Also, we were afraid they might really hurt somebody. Watchdogs are not pets. Besides, dogs are messy and require a good deal of care.

"Geese turned out to be the perfect answer.

"They roam around the place, summer and winter, and need no shelter. They have their down jackets, you see. All they need is a little corn and a kiddie pool to splash around in. And they do the job."

My yes, they do the job, all right, and anyone who has been the direct object of a wild goose chase can understand why.

Slip up unexpectedly on those eight rascals and the whole nursery, it seems, explodes in the wildest flapping and honking and hissing you ever beheld, truly frightening, all eight of the blamed things coming at you at once with fire in their eyes.

That racket, in turn, sets the guinea hens to shrieking and the Rhode Island Reds to cackling and the Polish roosters to crowing.

How To Find Glitter...

Social Climbing Course Popular In Washington

By Ann Blackman
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Want to be mentioned in a gossip column? Crash an embassy party? Or learn the fine art of name dropping?

Then there's a course here just for you.

Called, "The Washington Connection," its subject is social climbing. And Roz-anne Weissman, the Cleveland-born instructor, says she has taught 18 classes, since last January to about 400 students.

"I found that I was meeting a lot of people who were reading about the glittery Washington social life and knew nothing about it, even though they lived here," said Ms. Weissman, 36, a free-lance writer and public relations woman who has lived in Washington for 11 years.

Ms. Weissman teaches the three-hour; $9 course, sponsored by the city's Open University, in an overheated second-story classroom wedged between a pizzeria and dry cleaner not far from the zoo. Calypso music from a dance studio next door blares in the background.

"To make it in this town, you need chutzpa—gutsiness. No social climber has made it in this town without that quality," Ms. Weissman told her students, including a gray-haired Air Force instructor new in town, a computer analyst from suburban Virginia who wants to be invited to the White House and a nurse who dreams of being invited to a party at the Washington Post.

Bob Barr, 36, a bearded safety specialist with the Coast Guard, took notes. "The gutsiest thing I ever did in Washington was join the ski club," he said. "This course sounded interesting."

To make it on the embassy circuit, Ms. Weissman advises: "Forget Great Britain and France. Go to the smaller embassies. Say you're interested in visiting their country, and do they have any activities you could attend."

On crashing an embassy party: 'If you look nice, chances are they won't mind...Ambassadors don't like to pay all this money for appearances and not have a full-house. Sometimes crashers end up on invitation lists if they are good conversationalists."

Ms. Weissman said secrets to crashing other parties include:

—Go later in the evening when no one is checking invitations.

—Go in a side entrance.

—Whiz past the front desk and say you have an important message for Senator So-and-So.

—Hold a glass in your hand and back in the door so when you turn around, you'll look as though you've been there awhile.

And most important, dress appropriately, preferably designer dresses for women, three-piece suits for men. "I don't want to see any man who has taken my class appear anywhere in a leisure suit," said Ms. Weissman, who was wearing a two-piece gray wool outfit.

To be mentioned in a gossip column, Ms. Weissman suggests reading the social pages to find out where the stars hang out. Then go to an event and telephone the gossip columnist with tidbits.

Call often and you may get mentioned too, she said. "All Elizabeth Taylor has to do is sneeze to be in, but you have to do more."

Ms. Weissman also suggests students learn the art of "negative name-dropping—like saying, 'I had Julia Child for dinner and dropped the souffle,' That way they'll know you had someone important over but feel you're making fun of yourself."

The class listened attentively as Ms. Weissman recounted how she managed to meet Robert Redford and what she said to Henry Kissinger at a party. "I picked a Senate campaign Robert Redford was doing some work on," she said. "Then I kept running into him at the Madison Hotel coffee shop."

As for Kissinger, she told him she had a ceramic piece of pottery shaped like him. "I said that I hoped he stayed in the news so my pot would appreciate in value."

Ms. Weissman recalled a unique experience she had at the White House when she was invited there once in connection with her job with an educational association. "I fainted in the rose garden and ended up in the nurse's station," she said.

Asked how many of the social climbing techniques have worked for her, Ms. Weissman said, "I've been to a lot of embassy parties, but I think they're a drag. But I started giving the course because there is a need to know how this town operates so people don't have any illusions, whether they're a part of it or not."

Is she a regular on the social circuit?

"I work three jobs. Who has time to run around to parties?" she said.

No Fears For Campus Nudes

URBANA, Ill. (AP)-Men at the University of Illinois who sleep in the nude have little to fear, but those who slumber in their underwear had better be on the alert.

Someone wandering around the campus likes to cut the underwear off sleeping male undergraduates.
