Opinions verify City Council rights

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Legal opinions have been issued in matters before City Council — the possibility of banning bees and whether Council can close its discussion about appealing a jury's water bills decision.

The Council is being told it can do both.

Both issues are on Council's work session schedule. The session begins at 3 p.m. today in the Big Spring Airpark meeting room.

The city does have the right to ban or limit beekeeping within the city, City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson said this morning.

The Home Rule Act gives cities the authority to define and regulate nuisances, in order to promote public health and safety, he said.

The Texas Constitution establishes two guidelines for matters of that nature, he said.

First, the item regulated or banned must be an actual nuisance, he said.

Second, the loss to the public because of the regulations can't be great, compared to a relatively small gain the regulation would provide, he said.

The bee-banning question arose when a citizen called to tell City Manager Mack Wofford that a Supreme Court case prohibits the action, Wofford said.

Wilkerson said this morning, however, that he has been unable to find any reference to such a case. The only rulings on outlawing bees he has seen have been in state and local courts, he said.

A related issue involves the question of compensation to beekeepers if bees are banned, he said.

Wilkerson has determined that beekeepers are not entitled to compensation if the city outlaws their bees. He said banning bees would fall under a city's police power, and such actions are non-compensable.

On the closed session question, the city is within its legal right to close its discussion on whether to appeal the water bills decision, three attorneys said.

The Herald, on behalf of its readers, questioned the city's right to close the discussion on whether to appeal a jury decision last week to award Paul and Jerri Winn compensation for high water bills.

The Texas Open Meetings laws allow a governing body to enter closed session to discuss pending litigation.

Wilkerson said a case is considered pending until the 10-day deadline to appeal has passed — in this case, May 16.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for the state Attorney General's office, agreed the case still is considered pending.

"A case is never closed till it goes to final court," he said.

Texas panel backs three sites for SSC

AUSTIN (AP) — An advisory council has pared the list of sites state officials will choose from in submitting a bid for the lucrative "supercollider" federal project.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission's advisory council selected the sites over the weekend, choosing from a list submitted by 14 regions in the state.

The commission is expected to recommend three sites today.

Late Sunday, members of the advisory council would not identify the recommended sites.

The Texas Legislature has approved a $500 million bond initiative to finance inducements that would help lure the project to Texas. The bond issue will go to voters in November.

Texas will make its proposal Aug. 3 to the Department of Energy. More than 30 states are expected to compete for the $4.4 billion facility.

The project will involve a 52-mile ring of powerful magnets that will accelerate protons and then smash them together to prove the basic building blocks of matter.

Clements says he'll veto any taxes increase

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today he will veto an increase in taxes, that his proposed budget for the next two years is up slightly and more money will be allocated to education and human services.

"The media has done a good job of saying the budget will be cut," said Clements. "The budget is not being cut, the budget is actually up by two percent."

Clements stopped in El Paso on his way to Phoenix, where he is to meet with the governors of New Mexico, Arizona and California. The four will meet possibly in September with their Mexican counterparts, to revive the Border Governors Conference.

He said he expects the governors will meet twice a year to discuss issues common to states along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"The issues are more or less constant," Clements said. "I personally don't think the issues change, (but) they require constant attention."

Those common issues include immigration, twin plants, tourism, transportation and cultural exchanges, Clements said.

County will join in park project, dam committee

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners agreed today to assist the city in the first step of constructing a park next to the Howard County Annex and appointed two commissioners to a committee that will study water problems at Natural Dam Lake.

Commissioners acted on the items during a regular meeting of the Commissioners' Court.

They approved county assistance in razing a free-standing wall on the north side of a vacant lot next to the Annex. The move is the first step in installing a pocket park between the Courthouse Annex and the Sparenberg Building, Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones said.

"I think it's advantageous to the community to tear down the wall," building owner Pat Porter said.

She, along with Quinones and Downtown Steering Committee Chairman Charles Beil, sought the county's support in the project.

A red sandstone wall lies beneath the wall to be torn down and it probably will not need any renovation, Porter said.

Commissioner Louis Brown said he wanted the city to agree to clean three lots it owns on the north side of the city in return for the county's help with the park.

Three lots on Northwest Fourth Street are strewn with debris, Brown said, and the city hasn't cleaned the area despite repeated requests.

All commissioners voted in favor of helping the city tear down the wall after County Judge Milton Kirby said it would be inappropriate to vote on Brown's request without any comment from city officials.

Commissioners voted to appoint David Barr and Paul Allen to the committee that will study high water problems at Natural Dam Lake.

The decision to form the committee resulted from a Thursday luncheon at which officials from the Colorado River Municipal Water District met with city and county officials to discuss Natural Dam Lake.

At that meeting officials favored appointing two members of each entity to a study committee.

County Extension Agent Naomi Hunt told commissioners that she has been selected as one of 15 people in the state to receive international training.

Hunt is scheduled to be in Honduras May 21-June 4.

"I'm really honored to have been selected," Hunt said, explaining that she will learn about international development projects and meet with U.S. advisors and consultants in several Honduran cities.

The trip was made possible by a grant awarded to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service by the U.S. Agency for International Development, she said.

The commissioners also renewed the county's yearly intoxilyzer contract with Midland College for $7,297. The contract provides maintenance of the intoxilyzer machine, a supply of testing materials, supervision of certified operators, certification of new operators and certification renewal classes.

Student second in state

DIANNA FISH

Dianna Fish, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Fish, placed second in the typewriting contest at state U.I.L. competition in Austin Saturday, said Willene Humphrey, typing teacher at Big Spring High School.

"This is the first time we've ever had an entry in State competition," Humphrey said.

Fish, a sophomore at Big Spring High School, was judged on her rate of speed and percentage of accuracy. She typed 70.2 words per minute and had an 88 percent accurate rating.

To qualify for the state competition, she placed first in the District competition at Howard College on March 28. She also placed first at Regional competition in Brownwood at Howard Payne College on April 25, said Humphrey.

"Dianna won a nice silver medal and now qualifies to apply for a scholarship through U.I.L.," said Humphrey.

DPS drops Dupree charge

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A felony charge against Assistant District Attorney William Dale Dupree has been dropped, County Attorney Tim Yeats said today.

Dupree was arrested by a Department of Public Safety officer Wednesday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and possession of a controlled substance.

Department of Public Safety laboratory tests indicate the substance confiscated from Dupree was vitamin and fiber pills, Yeats said.

A charge of driving while intoxicated still is pending, Yeats said, adding that he has not yet seen the case report. It will be reviewed when filed by the arresting officer, he said.

The controlled substance arrest showed "imprudent and irresponsible behavior on the part of the arresting officer," Yeats said.

"The damage to Mr. Dupree's reputation caused by the felony arrest is irreparable," he said.

"The evidence could have been seized and tested prior to the arrest; Mr. Dupree wasn't going anywhere.

"I'd hate for them to start arresting everyone for a felony offense because they have pills on them that aren't in the prescription bottle," Yeats said.

Dupree was arrested Wednesday evening on U.S. Highway 87, a half-mile south of FM 700, according to sheriff's records.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said Dupree told him after the arrest that the substance was a doctor's prescription.

Hamby has turned the case over to County Attorney Tim Yeats.

Dupree was unavailable for comment.

'Dozers, archeologists crawl over Stacy site

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Bulldozers and archaeologists already are crawling over the site of the long-delayed Stacy Dam project, even though formal groundbreaking ceremonies aren't until Saturday.

Archeologists are working near the construction crewsone of several key parts of the water district's agreement with the government. In return for a permit, the water district promised to first explore the site for archaeological artifacts.

The district is paying $1 million for Prewitt & Associates of Austin to examine about 500 cultural sites at the confluence of the Colorado and Concho rivers, where the dam is being built.

Dr. Mike Collins, who directs the archaeological effort, said he can complete his work in three weeks. But he can take longer if he needs it.

"Those guys have more power over this than anybody," said Ron Hays, construction superintendent for the general contractor, Brown & Root.

The dam site has been a popular gathering place for at least 11,000 years. It is an oasis in the middle of a semiarid plain, Collins said.

"We've found evidence of human habitation continuously, from prehistoric Indians, to conquistadores, to early Anglo settlers," he said.

Collins said it was a popular gathering place for Comanches.

But Collins said the archaeological discoveries so far have not been significant.

Hays said he and Collins talk every day.

"We need to understand each other," Hays said.

When Collins leaves, Hays' crews will complete clearing the land and construction will begin.

During the next 2½ years, Hays will move 4½ million cubic yards of earth. He will make a huge plug in the Colorado River that will hold nearly 180 billion gallons of water and flood 19,000 acres.

More than 200 people are expected to be working on the dam when the army of employees reaches its peak in 1988, officials said.

Opponents of the dam argued that it would wipe out the threatened Concho River snake. But the Colorado River Municipal Water District received federal permits to start construction after unveiling a $3.1 million plan to protect the snake.

The water district received the building permit last month, 10 years after applying for it.

Eventually, the dam will stand 158 feet high, extend two miles and be 900 feet wide.

The $70 million reservoir will be built about 45 miles east of San Angelo in Coleman, Runnels and Concho counties. It will provide water for Abilene, Big Spring, Snyder, Odessa, Midland, San Angelo, Stanton, Robert Lee and Pyote.

The Texas Water Development Board has said most of the area where those cities are located would be short of water by 1990 without the dam.

Texaco shareholders to meet Tuesday

DENVER (AP) — As shareholders of Texaco Inc. prepare for their annual meeting on Tuesday, reports continue to circulate that a takeover attempt might be in the works for the oil giant.

On Friday, the company's stock shot up by more than 5 percent — from $33.62½ to $35.50 — on the New York Stock Exchange on a report that Australian investor Robert Holmes a Court had been accumulating Texaco shares. The price soared above $36 at one point during the day.

The stock was the Big Board's most heavily traded issue, with 7 million shares changing hands.

At the root of Texaco's troubles is the huge damage judgment won by Pennzoil Co. in November 1985 and now worth at least $10.3 billion. Late last month, the Houston-based company was chosen to head one of two unsecured creditors' committees set up to monitor Texaco's financial reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankrupcty code.

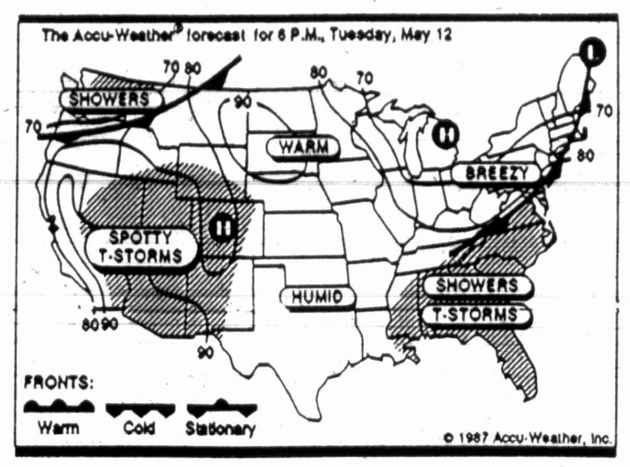

The two companies have waging a bitter war of words ever since a Houston jury found that Texaco, the nation's third largest oil company, had improperly interfered with Pennzoil's planned merger with Getty Oil Co. and acquired Getty itself.

This acrimony accelerated with Texaco's April 12 filing for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws. Texaco said it was forced into the action by the possibility that it might have to post a potentially ruinous $12 billion security bond while pursuing its appeal.

In addition, it said Pennzoil had turned down settlement proposals in the $2 billion range as well as an offer of $100 million "simply to allow Texaco to continue its appeal of this matter without being forced into Chapter 11."

Pennzoil, in its public statements, sought something in the range of $4 billion to $5 billion — and continues to do so.

Weather

Forecast

West Texas: Mostly partly cloudy with widely scattered to scattered thunderstorms mainly south through Tuesday. Highs in the 80s except low 90s in the Big Bend. Lows in the 50s and 60s.

State

An upper-level disturbance over South Texas was producing thunderstorms early today, generally along a Laredo to San Antonio line.

Another area of thunderstorms was near San Angelo. Meanwhile, a broader area of rain covered much of the middle Rio Grande plain and the southern part of Southcentral Texas and the Hill Country.

Most of South Texas and the Hill Country had overcast skies today. However, the lower Rio Grande Valley and the High Plains had clear skies, and the rest of the state had partly cloudy skies.

High pressure over the southeastern United States, combined with an area of low pressure extending from Minnesota to Colorado produced generally southerly winds over Texas. Wind speeds were from 5 to 10 mph.

Early morning state temperatures were mostly in the 60s with some readings in the 50s over the higher elevations of West Texas. Some temperatures in the 70s were observed along the coastal plains. The overnight temperatures ranged from 51 at Marfa to 76 at Corpus Christi.

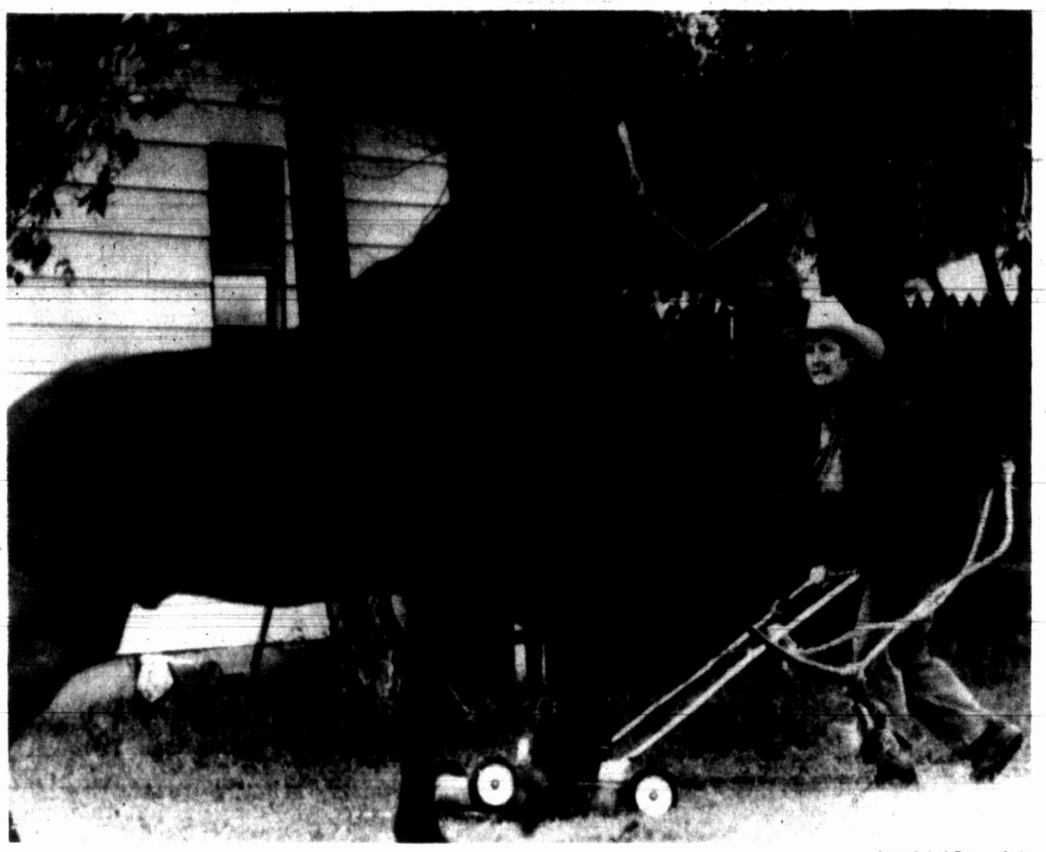

The National Weather Service said scattered thunderstorms are likely in North and West Texas through tonight. Tonight's lows should be range from the middle 50s in the Panhandle to the lower 70s in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

- Chad Allen Musgrove, 19, Route 1 Box 693B, was arrested at 2600 S. Gregg St. Saturday on local traffic warrants.

Three injured in accidents

Three people were hurt in two motorcycle accidents within minutes of each other Saturday.

Danny Frank Wilson, 29, 1207 Lamar St., and Delores Wilson, 26, of the same address were treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center for minor injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Enrique Fuentes, 20, 807 W. 16th St., was taken by ambulance to Hall-Bennett Hospital after he suffered minor injuries, police reports state.

The Wilsons were injured at 4:25 p.m. at FM 700 and Goliad Street when an oil line on their motorcycle broke, placing oil on the back tire.

The tire became slick and driver Danny Frank Wilson lost control. He laid the vehicle on its side, police reports said, adding that he though a tire had gone flat.

Fuentes was hurt in an accident at 4:46 p.m. Saturday at Gregg and 19th Streets when his motorcycle collided with a 1982 blue and silver Pontiac Phoenix driven by Aline Hill Griffith, 72, of Coahoma.

Griffith told police she was making a left turn at the intersection and had her signal flashing. Fuentes was driving the opposite direction on Gregg Street and didn't have time to brake before colliding with the car, he told police.

Griffith was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way, and Fuentes for failure to maintain financial responsibility.

County court official closes day-care center on charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County family court official, who faces a $2 million judgment involving a sexual abuse case at a day-care center he owns, says he has closed the center, The Houston Post reported in a copyright story.

Douglass F. Norman, 43, a full-time special master to State District Judge Robert S. Webb III, was ordered to pay the default judgment in a lawsuit filed last year on behalf of a 3½-year-old girl who attended the Tiny Tot Nursery School, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Norman is empowered to make child-custody decisions in his job in the Harris County family court. The case was the latest of five personal injury lawsuits brought against Norman resulting from complaints at one of his day-care centers in recent years.

One of the lawsuits, filed on behalf of 3-year-old twins who allegedly suffered sexual abuse at the school, is still pending.

Norman said the Tiny Tot center had closed its doors Friday. He said he deeply regretted not having closed the center, founded by his mother, before serious problems arose.

"This sex abuse thing just blew my mind," he said. "I never had anything like that happen before, and I'm still overwhelmed by this — I'm just killed.

"When it became economically unviable, a losing deal, I should have closed it up," Norman said. "I kept it open for all the wrong reasons — because I felt an obligation to the employee and the customers."

Norris Edward Handy, 38, the boyfriend of a newly hired worker at the Tiny Tot school, was sentenced in February to 18 years in prison. He pleaded no contest to charges of assaulting the 3½-year-old girl and one of the twins, court records show.

The Texas Department of Human Services ordered corrective action in the Tiny Tot case, following the sexual abuse complaints that resulted in the charges against Handy.

Attorneys for the 3½-year-old girl's mother negotiated with Norman for two months last summer before deciding to file suit against him. Norman answered the suit, acting as his own lawyer, but then did not participate in court proceedings until the default verdict was issued.

Seven killed in accidents

State police said seven people died in weekend traffic accidents on New Mexico roads.

The victims were identified as Carl Lueras, 18, of San Patricio, N.M.; Gary Benallie, 24, of Tohatchi, N.M.; Arthur W. Hanna, 70, of Mountainair, N.M.; Eulogio Miera, 87, of Albuquerque; Debbie Richardson, 28, of Odessa; and Paula Gilley, 27, of Snyder.

Police said a 23-year-old man from Isleta Pueblo, N.M., also was killed, but his name was not released pending notification of relatives.

Lueras was killed when he lost control of his motorcycle on U.S. Highway 70 east of Ruidoso about 1:30 a.m. Saturday. The motorcycle rolled and threw Lueras off, killing him instantly, police said.

Benallie was killed in a one-vehicle accident on Interstate 40 near Gallup around 4 a.m. Sunday. Police said Benallie's vehicle went out of control and rolled three-and-a-half times, pinning him underneath it.

Hanna died when his vehicle struck a telephone pole while avoiding another vehicle on state road 41 south of Estancia, police said. He was pronounced dead at the scene around 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Miera died Saturday afternoon in a two-vehicle accident on U.S. 285 near Santa Fe, police said. Miera was a passenger in a vehicle that went down an embankment and overturned four times after colliding with another vehicle, police said.

Ms. Richardson and Ms. Gilley were killed in a one-vehicle accident about 5:40 a.m. Sunday on U.S. 380 near Hobbs. Police said the two were traveling east when their vehicle ran off the road, hit an embankment and overturned several times. Both women were thrown from the vehicle, which rolled over Ms. Richardson, police said.

A 23-year-old Isleta Pueblo man, whose name was not available, died after he was involved in a two-vehicle, head-on collision Saturday evening in northeast Albuquerque, police said. The man died at 10:20 p.m. while undergoing surgery at the University of New Mexico Hospital, police said.

Relatives mourn dead

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. — Some Polish-Americans, shocked by the plane crash near Warsaw that killed 10 local residents, responded with tears for their loved ones and anger at the Soviets who manufactured the jetliner.

"I wouldn't fly that Russian junk," said John Markow, commander of the Gen. Joseph Haller Post No. 111 of the Polish Veterans Association, where men gathered around the bar and pool tables Sunday to talk about the crash.

Markow and other Polish immigrants, noting that the jet was Soviet-made, vented long-simmering bitterness about the Soviets who dominate their homeland.

Natural gas gushing

NEOLA, Utah — Natural gas spewed into this remote northeastern Utah community from a leaking well today while officials from Pennzoil Co. worked to shut off the white mist which has forced the evacuation of more than 100 people.

"The first thing we must determine is what level underground the gas is coming from," said Robert Harper, Pennzoil spokesman, from his home in Houston. "Then we can determine how to shut it off."

The well, about 1½ miles from the Pennzoil plant west of here, ruptured late Saturday, spilling natural gas and oil. Harper said the oil leak was contained Sunday morning, but gas continued leaking into the community of 550.

Tactics questioned

MIAMI — Part of Gary Hart's version of events at his home apparently has been corroborated by a Miami Herald photographer, the newspaper reported a week after publishing the story that led him to end his presidential bid.

The newspaper concluded that the activities in question had not been "a central question in the Hart controversy, but it does raise further questions about the surveillance" it conducted outside Hart's Washington townhouse.

Humidity dampens fires

About 200 firefighters worked today to contain two fires that burned 5,000 acres of forest and marsh in Michigan, while cooler temperatures and higher humidity helped efforts to put out blazes in the Pacific Northwest.

Forest fires were burning in at least four states and in Canada. A forest fire in New Jersey was brought under control Sunday night after consuming 100 acres.

Philippines

Filipinos vote for new Congress

MANILA, Philippines — Millions of Filipinos cast ballots today for a new U.S.-style Congress, with President Corazon Aquino's personal popularity expected to give her centrist coalition a strong majority.

Mrs. Aquino said the election was the most peaceful and honest "perhaps since independence" in 1946, adding there was a record turnout but giving no figure for total votes cast. Election chief Ramon Felipe estimated 80 percent of the 26 million voters cast ballots.

At least seven people were reported killed in scattered election incidents and there were some reports of vote fraud. But the violence did not compare with the bloodshed, intimidation and corruption which marked the 1986 presidential contest between Mrs. Aquino and Ferdinand E. Marcos.

"The sight of millions of Filipinos showing up at the polls at the first hour this morning and patiently waiting for their turn to vote according to their conscience is the most impressive proof that the democratic process has indeed taken root in our country," Mrs. Aquino said in a statement.

Polls closed at 4 p.m. after nine hours. Eighty-four candidates ran for the 24-seat Senate and 1,899 for the 200-seat House of Representatives.

Most commentators expected Mrs. Aquino's Lakas ng Bayan, or People Power, coalition to win majorities in both chambers. Official returns are not expected for at least a week, although the private National Movement for Free Elections expected unofficial trends late tonight.

Balloting was suspended in one district in the Sulu island chain, where Moslem rebels called a boycott.

Mrs. Aquino came to power in a military-civilian revolt that ended Marcos' nearly 20-year rule in February 1986. Today's election establishes a legislature in the Philippines for the first time since March 1986, when Mrs. Aquino abolished the single-chamber assembly dominated by followers of the former president. Since then, she has governed by decree.

Two supporters of an independent congressional candidate in Luzon's Tarlac province were shot to death by a rival's followers, police said. Three other campaign workers were reported slain in two separate attacks on Cebu island.

Thatcher to try for third

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today announced Britain will hold a general election June 11, a year early. It heralded the Conservative Party leader's bid to become the first British prime minister ever to win three terms in a row.

The announcement from her official residence at 10 Downing Street said Parliament will be dissolved May 18.

The announcement came after the 61-year-old Mrs. Thatcher held a special 50-meeting meeting with Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace, the traditional pre-election audience to seek the dissolution of Parliament.

Officials find recorder

WARSAW, Poland — A special government commission today examined a flight recorder from a Polish jetliner to determine what caused the crippled aircraft to crash near Warsaw, killing all 183 people aboard.

The 13-member commission, headed by Deputy Premier Zbigniew Szalajda, was expected to issue its first statement on the crash later today, said Stefan Pozniak, a spokesman for the Transport Ministry.

Police found the flight recorder from the LOT Polish Airlines jetliner Sunday. One report said the pilot radioed moments before Saturday's crash: "This is the end. We are saying farewell."

Forest fire kills 119

EIJING — A forest fire that has raged in northeastern China for five days has killed 119 people, injured 102 others and left more than 51,000 homeless, the China Daily said today.

The blaze in Heilongjiang province has destroyed one town and is threatening another despite firefighters' attempts to control the flames with firebreaks, the report said.

More than 15,000 people, including 3,000 soldiers, are battling the blaze, and 13 medical teams have been rushed to affected areas to treat victims, the state-run Xinhua News Agency said.

Barbie trial begins

LYON, France — Klaus Barbie, the Nazi Gestapo commander known as the "Butcher of Lyon," refused to acknowledge his identity at today's opening session of his trial on charges of crimes against humanity.

The 73-year-old Barbie, who is frail and gray-haired, looked pale and a bit drawn as he entered the courtroom in handcuffs. But he later smiled and laughed while chatting with his defense attorney and French-German interpreters.

Rafsanjani didn't meet North

LONDON — Iran's Parliament speaker says he and other senior Iranian officials did not meet with Oliver North and Robert McFarlane when the pair traveled to Tehran last May to negotiate a U.S. arms deal, according to a published report.

"I did not negotiate and was not their counterpart. They met with our arms-dealing representatives," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying in an interview published Sunday in London's weekly Observer.

Rafsanjani also "dismissed suggestions of years of secret dealings and face-to-face meetings" between Iran and U.S. officials seeking to trade arms for hostages held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems in Lebanon, according to the Observer report.

According to the Tower Commission report, McFarlane, the former national security adviser, and North, then a National Security Council aide, flew to Tehran last May with a shipment of anti-aircraft missile parts to negotiate freedom for hostages. They left after three days of talks because it appeared no progress was being made toward hostage release.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state:

Says oil bill is tilting at windmills

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, has to realize that Congress isn't going to adopt a tax on imported oil. If Congress did pass such a bill, President Reagan would veto it.

But that doesn't mean there aren't some worthwhile ideas in the import tax bill Barton has introduced.

Barton proposes to use the $12 billion brought in by the tax he advocates to reduce the federal deficit.

Two other Texans, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, also have introduced oil import fee bills..

If it takes a few Texas Don Quixotes to tilt at the windmills of congressional and administration disinterest in that situation, so be it.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Bush language backs bilingualism

Those who oppose the silly movement to make English the official language of the nation and individual states ... have gained an important ally in Vice President George Bush, not exactly known as a gushing liberal.

Bush recently met with leaders of major Hispanic organizations to discuss the "English-only" movement.

"I support bilingual education's efforts to teach English," Bush said, pointing out that mastering English is economically important and that learning English shouldn't demand the erosion of people's culture of fluency in their first language...

Athlete arrests may be alternative

Is there something in the Houston water? Two more athletes representing a rival team have been arrested after nightclub skirmishes with Houston police officers working security jobs.

Last summer it was the New York Mets' Ron Darling and Tim Teufel who were collared at Cooter's nightclub. They subsequently pleaded no contest to charges of resisting arrest. Now come the Seattle SuperSonics' Kevin Williams and Dale Ellis to the Ocean Club — late at night. A fracas brings Williams resisting arrest charges while Ellis gets hindering arrest charges.

... If we can't beat them on the diamond or the hardwood, let's allow them to sample Houston night life and get tossed in the pokey.

The Houston Post

Changes 'not enough' in education

Texas has no choice but to appeal a state district court decision which found that the method the state uses to fund public schools is unconstitutional.

The problem, in a nutshell, is that children in school districts with little taxable property do not have the same chance at a good basic education as children who live in districts with extensive tax rolls. The state constitution guarantees equal educational opportunities to all.

Judge Harley Clark of Austin, who ruled against the state in a suit brought by the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, did not recommend how to eliminate the funding differences ....

The timing for this particular court decision could not have been worse, but we should have seen it coming a long time ago.Texas has done a lot to improve educational opportunities in recent years, but we have not done enough.

Waco Tribune-Herald

Says bill will bring Wild West back

Think the Wild West days are long gone?

Think again, pilgrim: The Texas Legislature is giving serious consideration to a piece of legislation which would allow Texans to carry handguns, concealed or out in plain sight — and Gov. Bill Clements is now backing away from an earlier threat to veto the bill.

It all gets back to a central point: Handguns are good for one thing and one thing only — killing people. Make them more readily accessible, make it possible for yahoos to carry them freely about, and you're going to have a lot more people killed. The Legislature must reject this steaming mess of Rambo-esque fantasizing out of hand.

Corpus Christi Times

Calls no-new-tax stance impractical

Gov. Bill Clements' campaign promise to hold the state tax line, and his current insistence to hold to that pledge, could in the long run prove to be false economy.

The governor's tax stance is a popular one, but it is not practical.

Unless Texans release him from the campaign pledge, and the governor recognizes that Texas schools cannot operate effectively with a deficit (if the governor's budget goes into effect, the Texas school budget would be cut 13.74 percent), local school districts face a harsh year of unrealistic budgeting. And, that means a decrease in educational excellence for our children.

That we cannot afford.

San Antonio Light

Tuition bill should add financial aid

Tuition bill should add financial aid

The bill endorsed by the Texas House to allow local colleges to double the tuition charges allowed by the Legislature is regrettable but necessary. It should be accompanied by a generous financial-aid package for needy students who pass the entrance requirements also mandated by the bill.

This legislation will not make a significant dent in the massive revenue shortfall projected by the university system.

... Texas traditionally supports one of the most inexpensive state college systems in the country. Students, particularly those from middle- and upper-middle-income families, should bear more of the financial burden of their education.

... The reality is that every $100 increase in tuition for state colleges is reflected in an estmated one percent reduction in those able to afford higher education.

But that problem could be alleviated if the Legislature allocated a larger amount of funds for needy students.

CIA manages to counterfeit millions of Afghan dollars

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Occasionally, the Central Intelligence Agency does something right. At least that's our edict on their ultra-secret program to counterfeit millions of dollars in Afghan money.

The CIA has been churning out the counterfeit "afghanis" — as the denomination is known in Soviet-occupied Afghanistan — for several years. It began with the acquisition of an excellent set of plates that produces bills without blemish.

Why money? To provide the determined Afghan rebels and their friends in Afghan villages with the wherewithal to buy food, clothing and other basic necessities. It's the CIA's way of combating the Soviet's "depopulation strategy," which seeks to murder or drive out any Afghan who doesn't support Russia's puppet regime.

The estimated population of Afghanistan when the Soviets invaded at Christmastime 1979 was 15 million. Fully a third of that number no longer live in the country. One million have been killed in the fighting; most of the rest are in burgeoning refugee camps along the Afghan border in western Pakistan.

The Russian strategy has been obvious to the Afghan mujaheddin. Villages they cannot control and those whose residents are suspected of aiding the rebels are brutalized. Crops are destroyed, suspected mujaheddin informants are tortured and executed.

Sometimes, the Soviets resort to indiscriminately strafing such villages from helicopter gunships. And, too often, Soviet troops have marched in and massacred every man, woman and child in the village.

Meanwhile, areas the Soviets control are made livable. Markets for food and other goods thrive there. Russians even help cultivate the crops. It is in these areas that the CIA's counterfeit money has been put to good use.

"We're using the Russians' own supply system against them," gloated one CIA source. "We don't just provide this money to buy food for the rebels and 'friendlies' from these approved markets — we also encourage the Mujaheddin to use the afghani money to corrupt the Soviet soldiers. Buy ammunition from them. Buy clothing and food from Soviet quartermasters. Get that money circulating."

The mujaheddin have been delighted with the program. As usual, though, a fair amount of graft goes on when the CIA's bogus bills arrive in Pakistan. Since not even the Afghans themselves can tell the difference, these bills are sold for their full valuein Pedshawar and Quetta, the two gateway ciites used by the mujaheddin as headquarters for strikes inside nearby Afghanistan.

Another source familiar with the program said that CIA analysts realized that if the Soviets succeeded in making areas friendly to the mujaheddin inhospitable, the rebels would eventually lay down their arms.

"If a teenage guerrilla has no cousin left in Afghanistan, no home where he used to live, nothing to fight for — he might not fight," this source observed.

That's why, he added, the Soviets have been "stafing fields at planting time, planting a few mines in other fields and leaving toys for children that blow up when they're picked up."

And so the caravans of cash continue to make the long journey through forbidding mountain passes into the villages, as much a weapon in this war as those loaded up with arms and ammunition.

FIREPLACE UPDATE: We've finally seen House Speaker Jim Wright's new $10,000-plus fireplace and can report that it's one you can be proud of.

We disclosed a couple of weeks ago that the Texas Democrat was having the fireplace installed in his office while hwas in Moscow. A representative of the architect of the Capitol told us the materials cost about $4,500; other experts estimated the labor costs at $6,000.

A Wright aide told us a "tour" of the construction site could be arranged, but the speaker had to give his permissioin first. Wright granted our request via overseas telephone, and our reporter Karen Talley was finally ushered in to view the project. It is a black marble marvel that sits in a corner just to the right of the speaker's desk.

The fireplace will be hooked up this summer, when a chimney is run through two upper offices and out the Capitol roof. We asked the architect's representative who would surrender space to the speaker's stack, but were told this information had to be withheld for "security reasons."

MINI-EDITORIAL: If you've ever wondered why our Latin American neighbors sometimes view us as overbearing, consider the efforts of U.S. farm groups and Department of Agriculture officials to wipe out the Medfly population in Guatemala with cancer-causing pesticides.

Among the chemicals being used is EDB, a deadly potion that was banned in the United States in 1984. One American expert argued it was better to use EDB in Guatemala than risk a Medfly invasion of this country.

"The real question is whether we want to use chemicals here or use them there. To use them there is lsike an insurance policy." Maybe they'll rent us a few acres for toxic dumps, too.

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

At today's meeting of the Society for Political Inquiries, Tench Coxe delivered a paper titled "An Enquiry into the Principles on which a commercial system for the United States should be founded." The Society met fortnightly at the home of its president, Benjamin Franklin.

The officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line petitioned the Assembly for exemption from the present funding tax, as the certificates for which they were paid for service in the late war were so badly depreciated.

This "is a hardship, such as never yet existed in any country, and such as ill suits with the gratitude which is due to men whose services in part, America owes her liberties and independence."

CONFEDERATION TODAY

With nine states fully represented, Congress directed that the Board of Treasury pay stipends for the education of two sons of generals killed in the late war. Accordingly, John Warren was granted $500 and Hugh Mercer received $400.

A group of merchants and tradesmen of Providence, R.I., directed a letter to the Federal Convention in Philadelphia registering regret that Rhode Island was not represented. They wrote:

"The failure of this State was owing to the non currence of the upper House of Assembly with a Vote passed in the Lower House, for appointing Delegates to Attend the Said Convention, at their Session Held on at Newport on the First Wednesday of the present Month.

"It is the General opinion here & we believe of the well inform'd throughout this State, that full power for the regulations of the Commerce of the United States, both Foreign & Domestick ought to be vested in the National Council. And that effectual arrangements should also be made for giving operation to the present powers of Congress in their Requisitions upon the States for National purposes."

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington continued en route to Philadelphia, proceeding from Baltimore to Havre de Grace, Md. As the wind was high and the weather was squally, the general did not cross the Susquehanna River and lodged overnight at Havre de Grace.

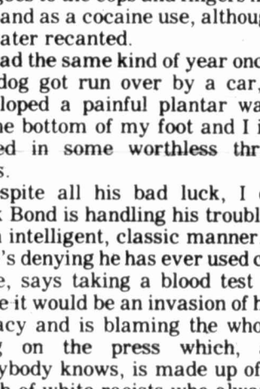

LOOKING BACK

Rhode Island

Rhode Island was the only state of the 13 absent from the Federal Convention; it never named or sent any delegates. Why?

In 1787, Rhode Island was the most democratic state in America. With a physical size of only 30 square miles, the state assembly was able to meet six times a year.

Lewis Grizzard

Surely the Drug Fairy is guilty

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

You have to feel a little sorry for Julian Bond, nationally known civil rights leader, former Georgia legislator and big bucks lecturer.

First, he runs for Congress and loses the election in a stunning upset.

Then, he and his wife have a falling out, and to top off Bond's day, she goes to the cops and fingers her husband as a cocaine use, although she later recanted.

I had the same kind of year once. My dog got run over by a car, I developed a painful plantar wart on the bottom of my foot and I invested in some worthless thrift notes.

Despite all his bad luck, I do think Bond is handling his troubles in an intelligent, classic manner.

He's denying he has ever used cocaine, says taking a blood test to prove it would be an invasion of his privacy and is blaming the whole thing on the press which, as everybody knows, is made up of a bunch of white racists who always are trying to find a way to get black leaders.

But I also think Bond could get some pointers regarding how to get himself out of all this hot water from his brother, James, who used to be an Atlanta city councilman and a member of that city's Safety Commission.

Several years ago, when James Bond was holding office, somebody broke into his car and stole his car radio. He called the chief of police, George Napper, and reported this heinous crime directly to the top cop.

Napper, realizing Councilman Bond's important position on the Public Safety Commission, which was in charge of his hind parts, did everything short of asking the governor to call out the National Guard.

He dispatched a crack detective to investigate the thievery. Looking for every possible clue, the detective peered into Councilman Bond's automobile ash tray and guess what he found?

He found nine marijuana butts. He looked behind the front seat of Bond's car and found an unsmoked reefer. And what was the outcome of this investigation? No charges filed.

Chief Napper closed the case, saying, "There is no reason to believe the owner of the car had any responsibility for placing the marijuana in the ash try."

The chief, noted as one of the nation's top crime busters, named the thief as perhaps being the responsible party.

I didn't go for that. It probably took the thief three minutes, tops, to lift the radio, and he smoked nine marijuana cigarettes in that period and then was kind enough to leave an unsmoked joint behind the seat for the next thief?

No way. My thinking at the time was this: If Councilman Bond hadn't put the cigarettes in the ash tray and the thief hadn't done it, that left only one other individual who could have been responsible — the Dreaded Drug Fairy, who skulks around planting illegal substances and getting famous people like Julian and James Bond into embarrassing situations.

I wish Julian Bond all the luck in proving the allegations made against him are untrue, and I hope the police have the good sense to go after who is very likely the real culprit here.

That's right. The Drug Fairy. It simply must be stopped.

Local piano students to audition May 11-14

Fifty local piano students will participate in the National Playing Audition May 11 through May 14 at the music building of Howard College.

Pupils of the following teachers will participate: Mrs. Ann Cheatheam, Mrs. Ernest Lilliard, Mrs. Brenda Bedell, Mrs. Leola McCrea, Mrs. Chester Barnes, Mrs. Mildred Harris of Garden City, Mrs. Emilee Bechkam and Mrs. Gibson Hauser, chairperson.

More than 105,464 piano students of the nation will participate in this annual national piano-playing event hosted in 770 music centers of the country and every entrant worth his salt will be certified, given a gold or bronze embossed pin, a year's membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians and Piano Hobbyists of the World, according to a release from Gibson Hauser.

Begun at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, in 1929, national headquarters are still maintained in Texas where rules and regulations are available on request, free of charge by writing to Piano Guild, Box 1807, Austin, Texas 78767.

Pupils of Ann Gibson Hauser, who will play on May 13, are: Ashley McCann, Kate Thornton, Elisha Hubbard, Leola McCrae, Angela Tubb, Raygan McCann, Amber Stroup, Leanne Brown, D'Angela Green, Heather Farris, LeAnn Tillery, Sean Braun, Brook Arrick, Muffy Holloman, Jamie Arrick, Joan Wilson.

Judging the National Piano Playing Auditions is Mrs. Gerald Harris.

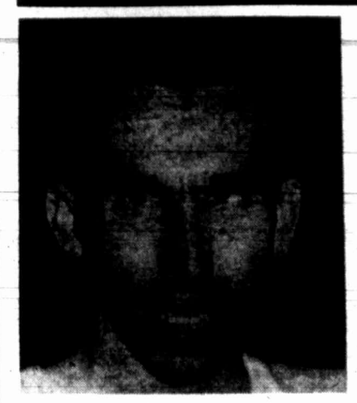

MRS. GERALD HARRIS

RICHARD HARRIS

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Roger Moens, a former world track champion, is now in charge of running after criminals.

He has been appointed commissioner general for judicial police in Belgium, a post comparable to director of the FBI in the United States, it was announced Friday.

Moens, 57, set a world record for the 800-meter race in Oslo on Aug. 3, 1955, and held it for seven years. He also set in 1956 a world record for the 800-meter relay. He ended his track career in 1961.

SCRANTON, Pa. — Actor Richard Harris has established a scholarship fund for Irish students at the University of Scranton in memory of his younger brother, university officials said.

Harris, best known for his movie roles in "A Man Called Horse," "Camelot" and "Juggernaut," plans to spend next January teaching and performing at the university.

Dermot Harris died in Chicago on Nov. 12 while touring in "Camelot" with his brother. They had performed in Scranton, visited the university and "made a lot of friends here," said the university president, the Rev. J.A. Panuska.

The Dermot Harris Foundation will sponsor one needy student each year from the Harrises' native Ireland, Panuska said.

OVIEDO, Spain — United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar received on Friday an annual award for Iberoamerican cooperation given by a foundation named for the heir to the Spanish throne.

A jury headed by former Spanish Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo voted unanimously to honor the career diplomat from Peru for "his efforts on behalf of peace, international security, human rights and cooperation between nations, especially those of the Iberoamerican community."

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II is to lead a royal invasion of Australia next year marking that country's bicentennial celebrations.

Buckingham Palace announced Friday that Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, will spend about three weeks in Australia in late April and early May.

Two of her four children also will visit. Her heir, Prince Charles, and his wife, Diana, will be in Australia in January and February, followed by Prince Andrew and his wife, Sarah, in mid-September to early October.

Australia is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the voyage of the first British colonials to Australia.

On Wednesday, Britain celebrates the 200th anniversary of the sailing of the ships that took convicts to Australia to found penal colonies and establish settlements there. The queen will be in Portsmouth to watch a fleet of tall ships depart in a re-enactment of the 12,500-mile voyage.

PITTSBURGH — William McGowan, chairman of MCI Telecommunications Corp., is recovering from heart transplant surgery at Presbyterian-University Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"Mr. McGowan has made steady progress in his recovery," Chris Shirer said Thursday in the first statement on the transplant.

McGowan, 59, received a human donor organ April 25, she said. He suffered a heart attack Dec. 21 at his home at Virginia Beach, Va., and was evaluated at the Pittsburgh transplant center and placed on its transplant waiting list.

Exercise and diet

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the children of overweight parents doomed to lifelong obesity — with all the health risks and psychological burdens attached?

No, according to Health magazine. Regular physical activity and a sensible diet are the best ways for most people to prevent obesity, say medical scientists at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

Mom says condom giveaway promotes sex, not protection

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Will you please use the power of your column to stop people from giving condoms to young people on campuses, at youth groups, and wherever young people gather?

I am appealing to you as a parent who has tried to raise her children with high Christian morals — to say no to sex — and now we have these liberal do-gooders handing out condoms to "protect" our children against pregnancy, VD and AIDS.

Society might just as well say, "Go out and have a good time, and take these with you for protection.!" Giving kids condoms is giving them permission to have sex.

Please push for higher moral standards — not ways to break the laws of decency without having to pay the price.

INDIANA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I wish it were that easy. For decades parents have tried to teach their children that sex outside of marriage is immoral, forbidden, dangerous and ill-advised. It has worked with some — but for most, it has not. The sex drive is powerful, and today the price for having sex just one time with the "wrong" partner is death! So ask yourself this question: Would I rather have my child prepared for a safe sexual encounter, or be unprepared and die?" The choice is yours.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a choral concert with my boyfriend. During the first number, a woman seated behind me sang loudly and hummed along. At first, I just gave her a stern look, hoping she would stop, but when she didn't, I "shushed" her. She kept right on singing, then at the end of the piece, her husband leaned forward and said, "Madam, because of your rudeness, you not only ruined the piece for my wife, but for me as well!"

Abby, was I wrong to ask her to stop singing along? In my mind, if his wife can't tell the difference between a concert and a sing-along, she should stay home. After all, I paid to hear the choir, not her. What's your opnion?

MUSIC FAN

DEAR MUSIC FAN: You were within your rights if you "shushed" the sing-alonger in a courteous manner. And her husband, although loyal, was out of line for chastising you for your so-called rudeness.

In the future, to avoid a possibled confrontation, take your complaint to the official "shusher." The usher.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Another view about not receiving thank-you notes for gifts or checks: Our family has always felt that a gift of cash is no gift at all. We would prefer to receive a card by itself if it contains a heartfelt sentiment. Obviously the giver of cash does not feel the need to take the time to select an appropriate gift, so why give a "gift" at all?

How much time does it take to select a pretty necklace or hair combs for a teen-age? It's easy to ask a salesperson for her help to see what's in style.

Can't get out to shop? Why not send a subscription to a magazine? Or order from a mail-order catalog? We feel that cash is a poor substitute for caring. No cash, please. Draw me a picture or write me a poem.

SCHARRE JOHNSON,
REPRESA, CALIF.

DEAR SCHARRE: I see no correlation between cash and caring. Some people are not as gifted as others in selecting appropriate gifts and, realizing their limitations, prefer to allow the recipient to do the choosing. One thing about a gift of money: The size is always right — and so is the color.

Treating tennis elbow

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER

Tennis elbow, a frequent complaint among some sports enthusiasts, is signaled by pain at the outer side of the elbow and in the forearm. Technically termed "lateral extensor tendonitis," treatment is simple and recurrence can often be prevented, according to an orthopedic specialist at New York University Medical Center.

"Tennis elbow is an inflammatory response to excessive demand and stress," explained Dr. Joseph F. Fetto, clinical assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at the center. "Frequently, it results from one or more errors in playing technique or judgment."

Those mistakes, he said, may include positioning the body parallel to — rather than perpendicular to — the net, playing too close to the net, and playing on too fast a surface or with a racket which is too heavy or too tightly strung.

The pain of tennis elbow generally enforces the first remedy, which is to reduce the stress that causes the pain, noted Fetto. The second basic remedy is anti-inflammatory medication, either an over-the-counter product such as aspirin or ibuprofen, or a prescription drug.

Fetto does not recommend complete inactivity since the involved tissues are then more likely to become both stiff and weakened.

Rather, he says, once the acute discomfort subsides, continue playing, but take certain precautions: get professional guidance on proper playing techniques and play more moderately, perhaps for shorter sessions, using a lighter racket, or playing doubles rather than singles.

"If some discomfort remains, take a single aspirin tablet before each session on the court," said Fetto, "and follow the game by applying ice or a cold compress to the outer-elbow — forearm area."

In addition, he recommended players include a regimen of stretching and strengthening exercises. Stretching should be performed morning, evening, and both before and after play. Strengthening can start with something as simple as squeezing a soft, resilient sponge or foam rubber ball, and working up to more challenging "wishbone" spring grips.

Once full recovery has taken place, discontinue the aspirin and ice, he said, but keep up the exercises to prevent the problem from recurring.

TRAVEL TALK
by Mary Valli

SENIOR CONCERNS
It is important for the senior traveler to realize that Medicare does not assume responsibility for medical bills once he leaves the United States or its possessions. It would be wise for a senior citizen to investigate the various plans for travel medical insurance before embarking on a trip. There are several insurance companies that issue policies that provide coverage for hospital confinement outside the U.S. Most of these companies stress the fact that it is to the senior's benefit to check his particular policy for specific language excluding expenses incurred outside the U.S. If none exists, the insurance company must provide the same benefits wherever the expenses are incurred.
Aside from normal considerations, i.e., hotel, airfare, etc., there may be many personal considerations one should address when making plans. At BIG SPRING SKIPPER TRAVEL, 612 S. Gregg, we offer the professional planning along with individualized caring and concern for matters of particular interest to you. 10-year-old kills father in Houston

HOUSTON — A quiet Mother's Day at a northeast Houston apartment complex exploded in tragedy when a 10-year-old boy shot his father to death and seriously wounded his mother after they refused to let him go outside to play.

Sgt. Jim Boy said Edward Simon Sr., 45, was pronounced dead at 1:25 p.m. Sunday at the family's apartment. He was shot just above the left eye, with the bullet exiting at the top.

His wife, Mary Simon, 47, was taken to Ben Taub Hospital where she was listed in stable condition early today with two gunshot wounds to the chest and a wound in each leg, police said.

The couple's other children, a boy, 13, and a girl, 7, were in another room when the shots rang out and were uninjured.

Police said the 10-year-old first fled to the home of a close friend and told him what he had done. They said when he left, the friend followed him out of concern, while the friend's mother called police.

Police took the boy into custody about 2:15 p.m. on a street about a mile from his home.

FBI says Cowtown high in murders

WASHINGTON — Detroit remained the nation's murder capital in 1986 for the second straight year, and a city council member has laid the blame squarely on handguns.

Fort Worth, Texas was a distant second; no other Texas cities were in the top 10.

"Our stats are so high in homicide because of the solving of problems with handguns," Councilwoman Maryann Mahaffey said Sunday in Detroit. "We've got too many handguns out there, and people are not learning how to solve problems without violence."

Mahaffey said she plans to reintroduce a proposal for a gun freeze ordinance within the next few weeks.

Detroit had 648 homicides last year, or 59 homicides per 100,000 people. Fort Worth was second in the rate of homicides in 1986 at 46.2 per 100,000, followed by St. Louis, Mo., 44.9; Atlanta, 41.7; Flint, 40.6; Miami, 37.3; Richmond, Va., 36.4; Newark, N.J., 35.4; New Orleans 34.9; and Oakland, Calif., 34.8.

Governors meet to discuss border

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Gov. Bill Clements met here today with the governors of Arizona, California and New Mexico to discuss border issues.

The issues were expected to include subjects related to health and communicable diseases, transportation, agriculture, tourism, immigration and manufacturing.

The meeting is preliminary to a session tentatively planned for August with the governors of a half-dozen Mexican border states. Details of that meeting have not been decided.

The U.S. Border-State Governors' meeting in the office of Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham was closed to the press, but the governors were scheduled to meet afterward with reporters.

Other governors scheduled to attend today's meeting were George Deukmejian of California and Garrey Carruthers of New Mexico.

Houston firm to launch satellites

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A Houston rocket company says it plans to launch five navigation satellites for a California company, with the first launch scheduled for late next year.

Former astronaut Donald K. Slayton, president of Space Services, announced on Sunday that his company has reached an agreement with Star Find, Inc., of Laguna Niguel, Calif., to launch the satellites from Wallops Island, Va.

Slayton said Space Services will use the Conestoga II, a rocket system developed by the Houston firm, to place 300-pound navigation satellites in geostationary orbit, 22,000 miles above the Earth.

The satellites will be the first delivered to orbit by a private U.S. launch company. Space Services has launched one suborbital rocket, as a demonstration, but it has not before placed a satellite in orbit.

Unpaid tickets net quarter million

AUSTIN — Money coming into the Austin Police Department has soared by more than 65 percent since the start of a new program to crack down on people with outstanding misdemeanors, officials say.

Most of the money has come from unpaid traffic tickets, says the police officer who coordinates the program.

For those who haven't come clean on their own, the Police Department has 12 officers whose only job is to make sure the crackdown remains successful. So far, those officers have corralled between 1,700-1,800 violators, and those that can't pay the fines have been arrested, Staton said.

To avoid police officers coming after them, people have been rushing to police headquarters.

Fights, falls end cycle race early

DALLAS — About 2,600 cyclists turned out for a 23.5-mile bicycle rally, but police put the brakes on the event when the festivities turned into a fiasco of fights and falls.

"We were afraid someone was going to get killed," said Dan L. Johnson, special events planning officer for the Dallas police. (Cyclists) were treating it as a race and not a tour.

"I lost count of the accidents.

Saturday's rally around White Rock Lake, the largest such event ever in Dallas, was called off about 10 miles into the ride, Johnson said.

Major issues await Senate floor debate

AUSTIN (AP) — With three weeks left in its regular session, the Legislature still has several important issues to tackle.

Three of those issues were scheduled for debate this week in the Senate and included an abortion-regulation bill, a no-pass, no-play bill and a bill affecting the court battle between Texaco and Pennzoil.

The abortion regulation bill promises strong debate on the Senate floor. When the bill was voted out of committee, bill sponsor Sen. Ted Lyon promised to try to restore it to its original form on the Senate floor. The committee approved a bill prohibiting physicians from performing abortions during the third trimester of pregnancy.

Lyon, D-Rockwall, had written the bill banning abortions performed on a "viable" fetus, one that could survive outside the mother's womb, leaving the definition to the physician.

A bill that would change the no-pass, no-play penalty to three weeks instead of six reached the floor on a 9-1 Senate Education Committee vote. The bill, sponsred by Sen. Bill Sarpaulius, also has backing from the governor.

The no-pass, no-play rule was one of the more controversial sections of the 1984 education reforms. It stipulated that if a student receiving a failing grade would be banned from extracurricular activities for six weeks.

Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, says the current penalty is too long. The shorter period would give students more incentive to bring up their grades, says Sarpalius, who originally wanted a weekly punishment.

Texaco Inc. also has a stake in this week's Senate schedule. Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, is expected to bring up a bill that would put a $1 billion cap on appeal bonds. The measure is directly related to the court battle between Texaco and Pennzoil Inc., which resulted in an $11 billion judgement against Texaco. Under current law, the bond in an appeal of a civil judgment is about equal to the amount awarded.

Texaco has a refinery in Parker's district.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, left, has a talk with House Speaker Gib Lewis at the Speaker's desk in the House chamber recently in Austin. The Governor has said he will not allow the sales tax base to be broadened. Several major issues face the lawmakers in the last three weeks of regular session.

Hispanic girls encouraged to plan early for college

EL PASO (AP) — Officials say they are encouraged by what they've seen in the first year of a program designed to encourage young Mexican-American girls to begin planning for college and a career.

Once a month, for the past eight months, Mexican-American girls from fifth and sixth grade classes in the Ysleta school district have assembled to talk about their dream of becoming lawyers, store managers and anthropologists.

They are part of a pilot program that began in October, encouraging Hispanic girls — even before they enter junior high — to start thinking seriously about higher education.

"It is about this time that girls decide whether they're going to stay in school or not stay in school," said Josefina Tinajero, an assistant professor of teacher education at the University of Texas at El Paso.

She said the first program, which concluded Saturday with a mother-daughter breakfast at UTEP, was designed for Mexican-American girls because they are among the highest risks to drop out of school and are the lowest percentage of college graduates of any group.

Elvia Rosales never went to college, but said she is set on her 11-year-old daughter, Michelle, attending "for her security, for her self-confidence, so she will be independent, so she will not have to depend on her husband,"

One mother in the group of about 100 mothers and daughters is a college graduate, Ms. Tinajero said. In addition to exciting the girls about college, the program, sponsored by UTEP, the YWCA and the Ysleta Independent School District, has led a handful of the mothers to consider returning to school.

Rosa Juarez said that throughout the monthly meetings she has attended with her 12-year-old daughter, Jessica, she has decided to become a special education teacher and already is attending classes at El Paso Community College.

"We desperately needed a program like this," she said. "Our Hispanic little girls are in trouble. We need a stimulus for our Hispanic little girls. (This program) has shown them that Hispanic women can make it in the world."

"It's not 'if I go to college,' but 'when,'" Rosa Juarez said of her daughter, an Ysleta Elementary School student. "It's a definite thing now."

Beto Lopez, UTEP director of undergraduate recruiting and scholarships, said his role in the program is to dispel the myth that one must be wealthy in order to attend college.

"The biggest concern that we have is that many of these youngsters will not prepare for college for fear that they will not have the finances," he said, adding that grants, aid and work-study opportunities abound.

Soviets write to 'Mr. Right'

FORT WORTH (AP) — One letter was addressed simply to Mr. Right, Washington, D.C.

Another implored: "Let's be friends."

The messages were among nearly 1,000 cards and letters written to House Speaker Jim Wright following his trip to the Soviet Union last month.

During the trip, the Fort Worth Democrat appeared on Soviet television, calling for world peace and offering free U.S.-Soviet flag lapel pins to anyone who wrote.

The letter addressed "To Mr. Right" came from a young Soviet worker who wrote, "This is an awful misunderstanding existing between our countries. Please assure Americans that we are not bloodthirsty fanatics of war."

Three sisters from Leningrad wrote about their grandmother's frightening stories about World War II.

"Our grandmother lived in Leningrad in time of blockade," the sisters wrote. "She told us how hard that time was. And though we are young, we are 22, 14 and 12 years old, we cannot see and listen about the war without the shudder.

"Let's be friends."

About one third of the letters were in English, the others are being translated by the Library of Congress, said Marshall Lynam, Wright's aide. The letters were made available on the condition that writers were not fully identified.

The lapel pins are being financed by a private businessman and will be sent to each letter writer along with a response from Wright, Lynam told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The dominant message in the letters was peace and friendship.

One letter written in Russian, apparently by a teacher on behalf of an elementary school class, contained a drawing showing two mice holding Soviet and U.S. flags.

"We listened with pleasure to your speech on television," said the letter. "We were touched by the sincerity and friendliness of your words."

In his television appearance, Wright stressed similarities between the two countries, saying, "You and I live in the same neighborhood."

Unconcious Sleepy stuns Lakers

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Los Angeles Lakers appeared to be on the way to a sweep of the Golden State Warriors until they got Sleepy in the fourth quarter.

The Lakers, leading the best-of-seven NBA playoff series 3-0, took a 102-88 lead into the fourth quarter against the Warriors Sunday. Then 6-foot-3 guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd scored a record 29 points in the final 12 minutes and finished with 51 as Golden State stayed alive with a 129-121 victory.

"My teammates kept giving me the ball, and said 'Take it,' so I took it," Floyd said. "I was very conscious of the score, and the crowd got us pumped. Once we got it rolling, we weren't going to lose. I've never been hotter at any level.

"The basket seemed 10 feet wide."

Floyd broke the one-quarter playoff record of 25 set by Detroit's Isiah Thomas last Friday night. Floyd's 39 points in the second half also eclipsed the previous mark of 33 by Elgin Baylor of the Lakers in 1962.

Floyd hit 12 of 13 shots in the fourth period as the Warriors outscored the Lakers 41-19.

"The kid (Floyd) is just a great player," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "There was no stopping him, period. They scored 14 of 16 times down at the top of the fourth quarter and we didn't do anything about it."

In other games Sunday, Boston and Detroit took 3-1 leads in the Eastern Conference semifinals with one-point victories. The Celtics edged Milwaukee 138-137 in double overtime and the Pistons tripped Atlanta 89-88.

On Tuesday, Seattle takes a 3-1 series lead to Houston and Golden State is at the Lakers. On Wednesday, it's Detroit at Atlanta and Milwaukee at Boston.

The Lakers tried three defenders against Floyd in the fourth period and couldn't stop him.

One of the Lakers defenders was Michael Cooper, a member of the NBA All-Defensive team.

"He had every phase of the game going ... three-pointers, drives ... They strung our defense out pretty well," Cooper said.

"What you saw in the fourth quarter was a lot of guts and heart," Warriors Coach George Karl said. "In the fourth quarter, that was not coaching. That was the best basketball and show I've ever seen in the playoffs. When he (Sleepy) was in the rhythm, the players knew to get out of the way."

Joe Barry Carroll had 23 points for Golden State, while Byron Scott had 28 and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 27 for the Lakers.

Abdul-Jabbar had eight during a 20-3 run that helped the Los Angeles lead 34-27 after one quarter. A 10-2 spurt gave the Lakers their largest lead, 98-83, in the third period.

Celtics 138, Bucks 137

Larry Bird scored 42 points and Kevin McHale 34, and Boston held Milwaukee scoreless in the final minute of the second overtime.

"Fatigue is just no factor. I can play all day long," Bird said after playing 56 minutes against the Bucks. "They've got to beat us twice now in Boston Garden. To do that, they're going to have to pick their game up a notch."

The Celtics, who can establish an NBA record with 15 straight playoff victories at home if they win Wednesday, have won 33 consecutive games at Boston Garden.

While Bird and McHale, who suffered a sprained ankle on the final play of the game, carried the scoring load, reserve Darren Daye provided a spark for the Celtics in the second overtime.

"I hadn't played, so I was fresh," said Daye, who had four points in the second extra period, including an offensive rebound and two free throws with a minute left. I just wanted to relax and put up some good free throws. This is as sweet a moment for me as I've ever had."

Daye's free throws were the last points of the game as the Celtics survived two Milwaukee scoring chances in the final seconds.

First, McHale blocked Ricky Pierce's layup with 49 seconds remaining. And then with the clock running down, the Bucks' John Lucas drove the lane, threw a pass that hit Terry Cummings in the shoulder and then missed a short shot as the game ended.

Cummings led Milwaukee with 31 points and Sidney Moncrief had 22.

Pistons 89, Hawks 88

Detroit took a commanding lead against Atlanta as Isiah Thomas scored 31 points, including a driving layup with one second remaining.

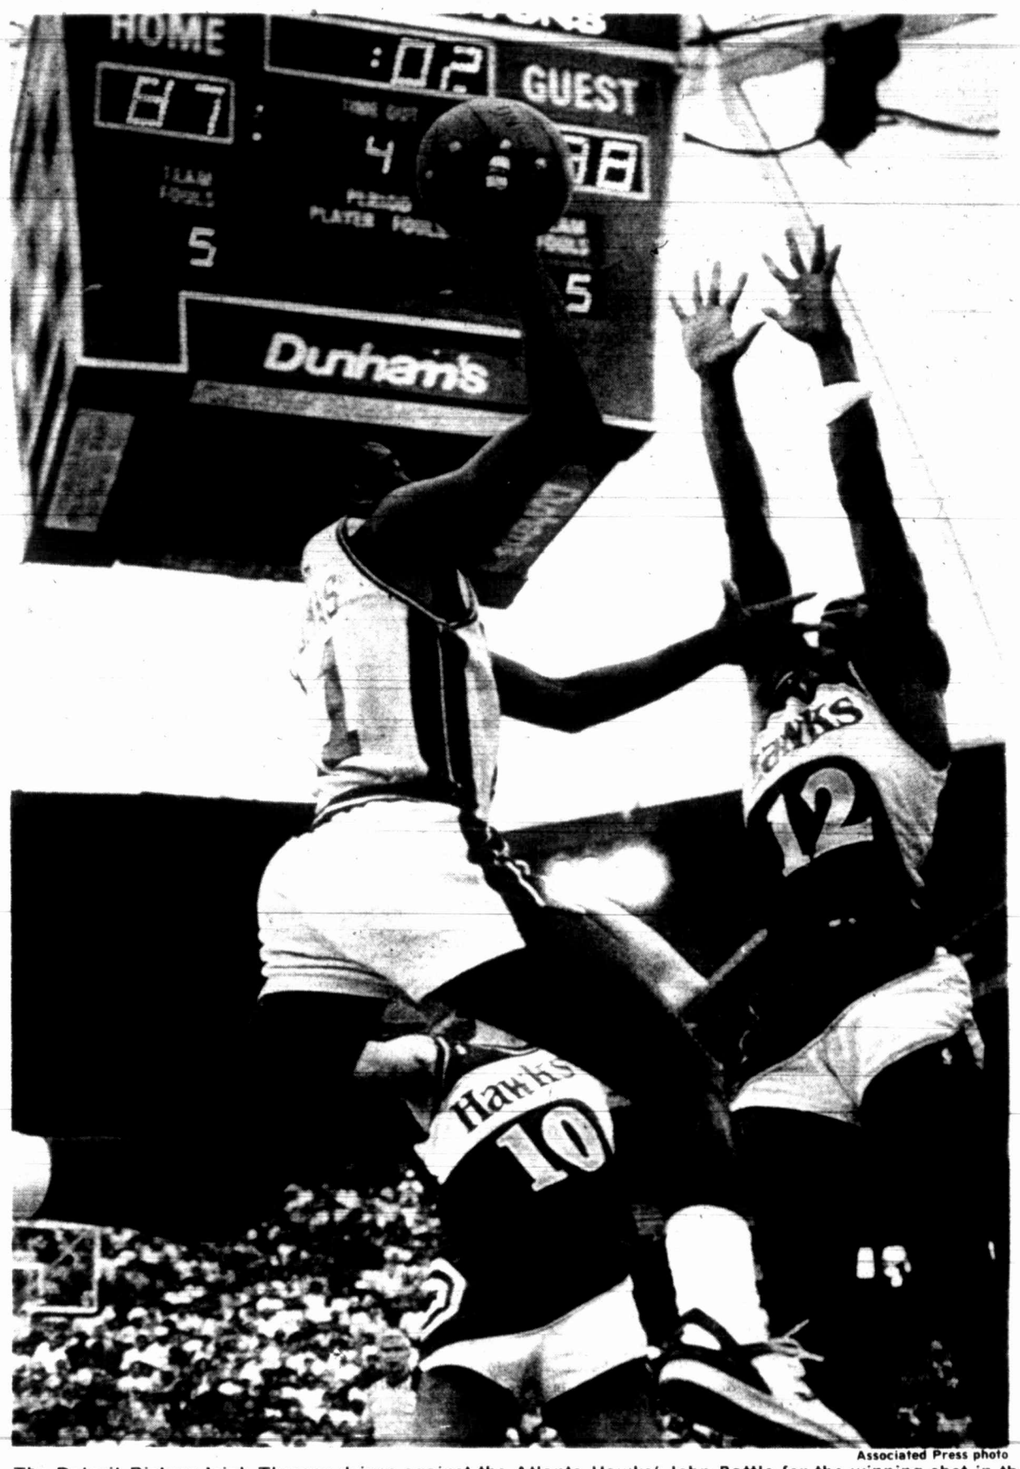

Thomas, who scored 23 points in the second half, drove around the right side of the lane with time running out and soared for a finger-roll that fell in.

"It's a tough situation because you have to be mentally tough enough that if you miss it, you can bounce back next game and take it again," Thomas said. "Some players would miss that shot and not be able to bounce back for two or three weeks."

John Battle, who scored 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, gave the Hawks an 88-85 lead on a layup with 1:30 remaining. Two free throws by Adrian Dantley with 1:14 left made it 88-87.

After Rick Mahorn rebounded a missed shot by Battle with five seconds left, the Pistons worked the ball to Thomas, who scored the game-winner.

After a timeout, Atlanta's Scott Hastings lobbed the ball to Dominique Wilkins, whose desperate tip missed the basket. Wilkins had 19 points for the Hawks.

Motta to talk with Knicks

FORT WORTH (AP) — Dallas Mavericks coach Dick Motta is scheduled to meet sometime this week with New York Knicks executives to discuss their coaching vacancy, he said.

Mavericks owner Don Carter said last week he had given the Knicks permission to talk to Motta about the job.

"I'm definitely meeting with them," Motta told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Sunday by telephone from his cabin in Fish Haven, Idaho.

"I've got a neat job, but this is both prestigious and intriguing. I'm not trying to burn any bridges in Dallas.

"At this point, it really isn't more serious than the Clippers thing. With (the Clippers), I just talked to them a little bit to find out the situation," Motta said.

Motta ended talks with the Clippers on Tuesday.

Motta said the Knicks indicated they could fly up to meet him at his cabin, but he did not rule out the possibility of his flying to New York.

Motta was scheduled to scout the Pan American Games basketball trials that begin Thursday in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Septien deals with disinterest

FORT WORTH (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys place-kicker Rafael Septien wants another chance.

His NFL career has unraveled after he pleaded guilty to indecency with a child.

"I would like an opportunity again to show I'm an asset to society and not a liability," he said. "I'm really waiting for somebody to say they believe in me and go from there.

"What is done is done. I can't really undo anything that has happened."

Septien was indicted on Jan. 22 on a charge of aggravated sexual assault of a child. On April 8 he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of indecency with a child and received a 10-year probated sentence, a $2,000 fine and was ordered to undergo psychiatric treatment.

A week later he was released by the Cowboys and he became a free agent on April 27.

So far, teams haven't been willing to sign Septien, 33, who is the 15th leading scorer in NFL history.

Last week, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle sent a memo to all league teams saying that while any club was free to sign Septien, they should be warned that he would have to receive clearance from the NFL office before he could play.

"Consequently his availability for the 1987 season cannot be assured," the memo said.

Septien said he called the executive director of the NFL to see if he was suspended and was told that the commissioner would not rule on the matter unless he was signed as a free agent.

"I am very concerned," Septien told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an interview published Sunday.

Crazy things happening at Indy skating rinks

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The only thing predictable about the first weekend of qualifying for the 71st Indianapolis 500 was Mario Andretti winning the pole position.

Andretti, bogged down by frustration at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway since winning the 500 in 1969, earned the top qualifying spot for the May 24 race, but not in the record fashion that many had expected.

A slow track, so slippery it seemed more like a skating rink in places, kept speeds down all weekend, contributed to three accidents and forced several big-name drivers to wait until the last two days of time trials, next Saturday and Sunday, to try for a spot in the 33-car starting field.

Andretti, who earned his third pole start and first since 1967, had a four-lap, 10-mile qualifying run averaging 215.390 mph, with a fast lap of 216.320.

Those were disappointing figures for Andretti, who during the week of practice leading up to qualifying twice posted unofficial laps over 218.

Defending champion Bobby Rahal and two-time winner Rick Mears, who retained his year-old one- and four-lap Speedway records of 217.581 and 216.828, respectively, joined Andretti on the front row.

Four-time winner A.J. Foyt, qualifying for his record 30th consecutive start, took the fourth spot among the 18 drivers who earned places in the tentative lineup Saturday and Sunday. It is the first time in the history of the Speedway that former winners will start from the first four positions.

Johnny Rutherford, a three-time winner, and 1985 winner Danny Sullivan also were among the 11 drivers to qualify Saturday.

Seven more drivers qualified Sunday, led by Canadian rookie Ludwig Heimrath Jr., who posted a qualifying run averaging 207.591.

Several of the circuit's top names, including 1983 Indy winner Tom Sneva and two-time winner Gordon Johncock, will try to join the field when qualifications resume. Kevin Cogan, last year's runner-up, and Al Unser Jr. still are struggling to get enough speed to make the race.

Johncock, 50, announced Sunday he would come out of retirement to replace Jim Crawford of Scotland, who was seriously injured in a crash during a qualifying attempt on Saturday. Crawford, 29, was reported Sunday to be in good condition at Methodist Hospital with two broken ankles, a broken shin and a broken knee.

Johncock, who retired prior to the 1985 Indy race, expected to get into the team's backup car today.

A lot of people, including most of the drivers, the estimated 250,000 spectators who showed up Saturday and another estimated 50,000 on Sunday were disappointed by the relatively slow speeds.

Warren tops tourney; Gossett pockets $750

Dallas bowler Chris Warren won this weekend's PBA Southwestern Region Tournament by 153 pins over second place Paul McCordic of Houston.

Warren finished with 5,269 pins, plus an additional 240 pins for winning eight of his 12 round-robin matches. He won the top prize of $2,300.

Big Spring bowler Phil Ringener lost by one pin to Paul Yoder in a bowl-off for the 12th and last spot in the round-robin finals. Ringener won $270.

Big Spring bowler Bill Gossett took home $750 as the winner in Saturday night's Pro-Am tournament.

McCordic won $1,500 for his second place finish, and Bob Benoit from Topeka, Kan. won $1,000 for finishing third.

Midland bowler Bill Theobald finished fourth, and won $850.

Here are the top 12 finishers in the Southwest Regional Tournament held this weekend at Highland Lanes.

Chris Warren, Dallas	$2,300
Paul McCordic, Houston	$1,500
Bob Benoit, Topeka, Kan	$1,00
Bill Theobald, Midland	$850
Henry Gonzales, Colorado Springs	$800
Paul Yoder, Albuquerque	$750
Dale Siegal, El Paso	$700
Gary Dickinson, Burleson	650
Jeff Jensen, Wichita, Kan.	$625
Ed Richardson, Corpus Christi	$600
Jim Riner, Colorado Springs	$575
Mark Williams, Beraumont	$550

Moore, Carpenter capture state gymnastics titles

Lance Moore and Tracy Carpenter won the all-around titles at the state YMCA gymnastics meet this weekend in Houston.

Moore led the Big Spring boys to the state team championship, and Carpenter led the girls to a third place finish. Carpenter was judged the top gymnast from a field of 280 girls.

"The boys and girls did extremely well, and we really were proud of the job that they did," said girls coach Russ McEwen.

"For a lot of the kids it was their first state meet, and they handled the pressure extremely well," McEwen said.

For complete results from the meet, see tomorrow's Herald.

Couples ends long dry spell

IRVING (AP) — The 1987 PGA Tour season has turned around for Fred Couples. So has his attitude.

"It's a whole different thing," Couples said after his playoff victory over Mark Calcavecchia in Sunday's final round of the $600,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

"It's fun being in this position, playing in the last group. It's just more fun to play."

Couples, who established himself as one of the brightest young prospects in the game with his 1984 triumph in the Tournament Players Championship, had been a non-winner and in a decline for three full seasons.

That ended when he dropped a five-foot par putt on the third playoff hole at the Tournament Players Course at Las Colinas. It secured the third victory of his seven-season career and was worth $108,000.

"It proves I can win again," said Couples, who matched par 70 over the last round and completed the regulation 72 holes at 266, 14 under par and matching the tournament record.

Couples, a two-shot leader starting the final round, couldn't get much going until he made a great save of par from the trees on the 14th hole.

Calcavecchia, who played 40 minutes in front of Couples, had completed a 64 and was sitting in a television tower when Couples came to the par-5 16th needing a birdie to catch up.

Couples made his birdie, pitching a third shot some three feet from the cup and dropping the putt.

He parred in and the playoff was on.

Both birdied the first playoff hole, the 16th, and both one-putted for par on the 17th. On the 18th, Calcavecchia missed the green with his approach and played a poor chip across the green. Couples was on in two and two-putted. When Calcavecchia missed a 20-foot par putt from the fringe, leaving it short, Couples was the winner.

Dundee can't believe his fighter lost

ATLANTIC CTY, N.J. (AP) — Michael Olajide is ready to take on Thomas Hearns for the International Boxing Federation middleweight crown, but the trainer of his latest victim says Olajide got lucky.

"Michael Olajide got a Mothers Day gift," said Angelo Dundee after his fighter, Troy Darrell, lost to Olajide Sunday in a unanimous, 10-round decision.

Olajide, 23-0 and ranked No. 2 by the IBF, admitted the nationally televised fight wasn't his best, and Dundee was quick to agree.

"I'm amazed my guy lost," said Dundee. "Olajide definitely got licked."

Judge Al De Vito scored it 96-92 for Olajide, while Rocky Castellani's scorecard was 97-94 and William Kostrub's read 95-94.

Olajide, from New York City, floored Darrell twice in the opening round with quick flurries to the head but failed to finish the job.

Ex-Longhorn fans 15 Royals as Tribe halts streak

AP Sports Witer

Greg Swindell followed Roger Clemens as the pitching star at the University of Texas. He's starting to look like he may follow Clemens' example in the American League, too.

Just one year and 11 days after Clemens struck out 20 Seattle Mariners to set a major league single-game strikeout record, Swindell set a high for this year by fanning 15 Kansas City Royals Sunday. The Indians won 4-2, ending both a six-game Cleveland losing streak and a six-game Kansas City winning streak.

"Fans like strikeouts, especially strikeouts in crucial situations with men in scoring position," said Swindell, who went the distance, allowing 11 hits and walking two.

"You like to be a crowd pleaser, especially at a time like this when we've been struggling and want the fans to keep coming out."

Swindell, the second overall choice in the major-league draft last June, pitched just three games in the minors last summer before being called up to Cleveland in August and posting a 5-2 record. Sunday's victory left him at 2-3 with a 3.86 earned run average and 54 strikeouts in 51 1-3 innings to tie for the AL strikeout lead with Seattle's Mark Langston.

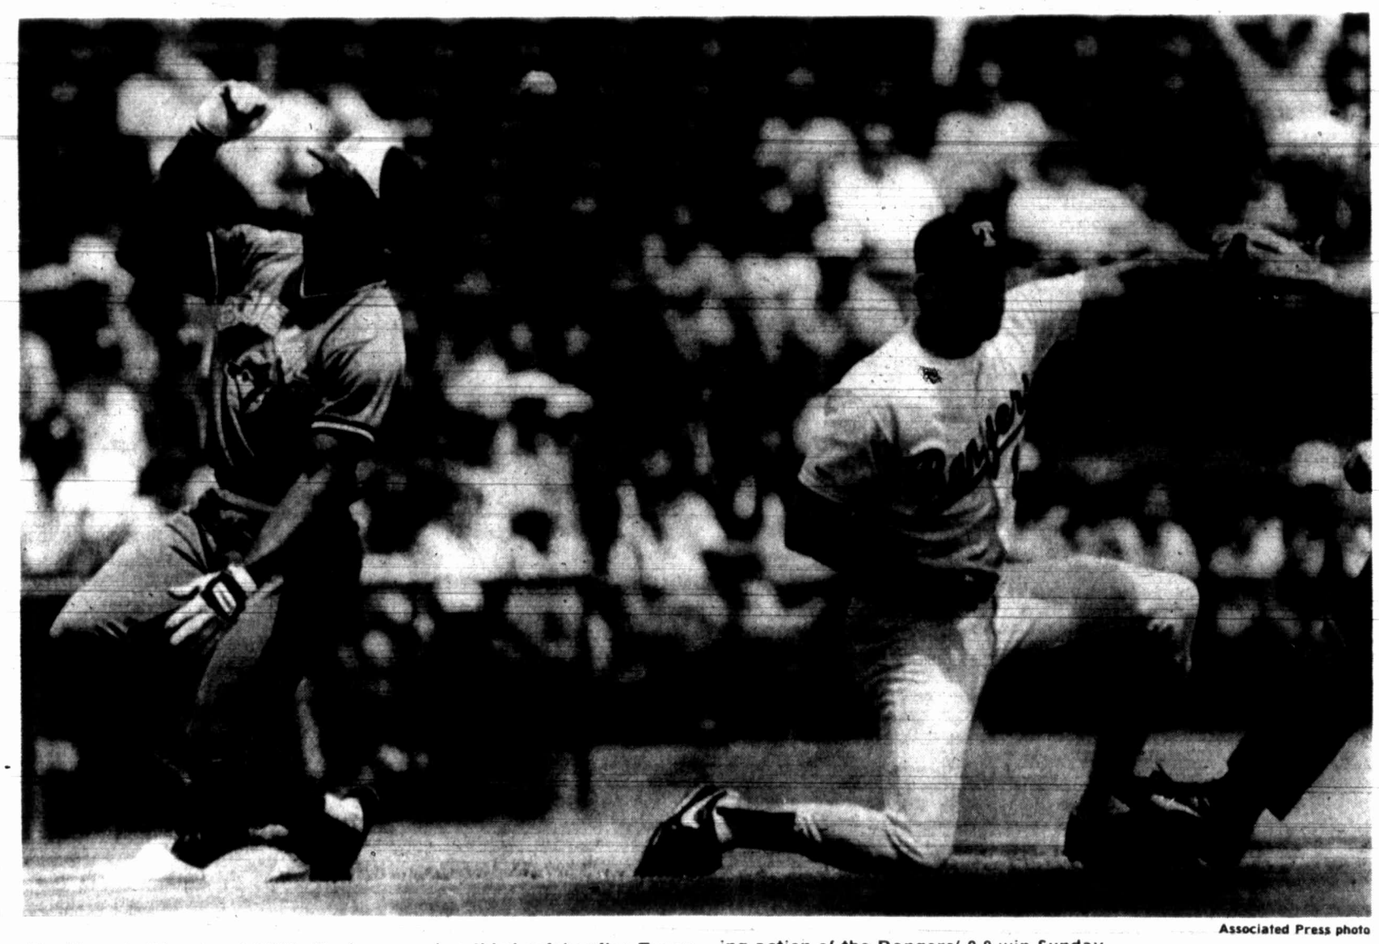

"I counted every one of my strikeouts," he said Sunday. "When Thad Bosley was up in the eighth, somebody yelled 'Get number 13', and I thought to myself, 'Hey, I've already got 13.'"

Actually, Swindell made Bosley only his twelth victim, but the 22-year-old left-hander went on to strike out the side in the ninth inning.

Red Sox 7, Angels 0

Bruce Hurst scattered five hits for his second consecutive shutout and third of the season and Mike Greenwell had a homer and four runs batted in for the Red Sox.

Hurst has been accomplishing his feats at Fenway Park, traditionally a burial ground for left-handers.

The Toronto Blue Jays' Willie Upshaw reaches third safely after Texas Rangers' third baseman Larry Parrish misses the throw during first inning action of the Rangers' 9-8 win Sunday.

"I feel comfortable pitching here," Hurst said. "The way I look at it, I'm going to have to pitch in this ball park 17 or 18 times a year, so I might as well make the most of it."

Hurst struck out nine and walked one for his 12th career shutout and third this season, improving his record to 4-3.

The Red Sox jumped on Don Sutton, 2-4, for seven hits and five runs in the first three innings, spoiling the 42-year-old right-hander's bid for his 313th career victory.

Yankees 6, Twins 1

Charles Hudson pitched a six-hitter and Gary Ward drove in three runs for the Yankees. The Yankees stole seven bases, including three by Rickey Henderson. Ward, Claudell Washington, Willie Randolph, and Wayne Tolleson also stole bases.

Hudson, 5-0, lowered his AL-leading earned run average to 1.90 while striking out four and walking three. It was his fourth complete game of the season, the most of his five-year career.

"In time, you go out and get some runs, you pitch with confidence," said Hudson, who was acquired from Philadelphia for outfielder Mike Easler.

Tigers 7, Athletics 6

Darrell Evans' two-run eighth inning homer overcame a power display by Mark McGwire as the Tigers beat the Athletics for the first time in six starts this year.

Lou Whitaker also had a three-run homer as Detroit overcame a 4-0 deficit.

Evans' fifth homer of the season came off on a 2-0 pitch from reliever Steve Ontiveros with one out in the eighth and erased a 6-5 Oakland lead.

McGwire hit two home runs for Oakland, his ninth and 10th, his second two-homer game in three days.

Mariners 5, Brewers 1

Ken Phelps hit two home runs as the Mariners handed the Brewers their sixth straight loss.

The victory was the fifth in six games for Seattle but the sixth straight loss for Milwaukee, which had won its first 13.

"They've got the momentum," Brewer Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "They're in a streak where anything they do is going to be very timely and everything we do is going to be a little out of whack."

Phelps had a solo homer in the first and a two-run shot in the fourth, giving him 10 for the season. It was his third two-home run game of the year.

Orioles 6, White Sox 4

Terry Kennedy snapped a 0-14 slump with a tie-breaking seventh-inning home run and Fred Lynn added a three-run shot in the eighth as Baltimore beat Chicago. Jim Dwyer also homered for the Orioles.

It was the fourth straight loss for Chicago, while the Orioles won for the fifth time in their last six games. They had 12 homers in the three-game series although Eddie Murray was held to a double after setting a major-league record by hitting homers from opposite sides of the plate in two straight games.

Kennedy's homer broke a 2-2 tie, then Lynn's shot made it 6-2. Mark Williamson got the final two outs with the bases loaded to save the game for rookie Eric Bell, 4-1.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 8

Bobby Witt survived a shaky start for his first victory of the season and Ruben Sierra drove in three runs as Texas rallied to beat Toronto.

Witt, 1-1, gave up four runs in the first two innings, then allowed just one over the next five before giving way to Mitch Williams at the start of the eighth. Dale Mohorcic pitched the ninth for his third save.

Lloyd Moseby had two homers for the Blue Jays.

The Mets aren't talking enough

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Darryl Strawberry said, "There was no communication."

Tim Teufel said, "The communication was fine."

New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson wouldn't say.

Strawberry, in right, and Teufel, at second, let a popup by Albert Hall drop between them with two out in the ninth inning, allowing the Atlanta Braves to beat the Mets 8-7 Sunday.

Hall's popup scored pinch-runner Randy O'Neal with the tying run, and Hall scored the winning run on a single by Rafael Ramirez, spoiling a six-run eighth inning that had given the defending World Series champion Mets a 7-6 lead.

Afterward, the Mets manager said he wouldn't comment on the misplay by Teufel and Strawberry, but he did say: "I don't know if it's everybody got big raises or ... (they're) basking in the glory. It's not important. Whatever it is, we're not playing baseball."

"As far as I'm concerned, we let a mediocre ball club sweep us," Johnson said.

The victory allowed Atlanta to complete its first three-game sweep of the Mets since April 1983, and it gave the Mets an 0-10 record in weekend games this year. The loss dropped the Mets at least two games below .500, at 13-15, for the first time since Oct. 2, 1983.

The Braves led 6-1 before New York came back with six runs in the eighth. Kevin McReynolds drove in the first run with a single, Howard Johnson had a three-run homer and Mookie Wilson hit a two-run, pinch single.

Bruce Benedict got the Braves' winning rally started with a double. With two out, Hall hit a pop fly to shallow right. Teufel, shading his eyes from the sun, apparently was under the ball until he was called off by Strawberry, who let the ball drop in front of him as O'Neal scored. Ramirez singled to right to score Hall with the winning run.

"I should have called for the ball earlier," Strawberry said, "but I called too late."

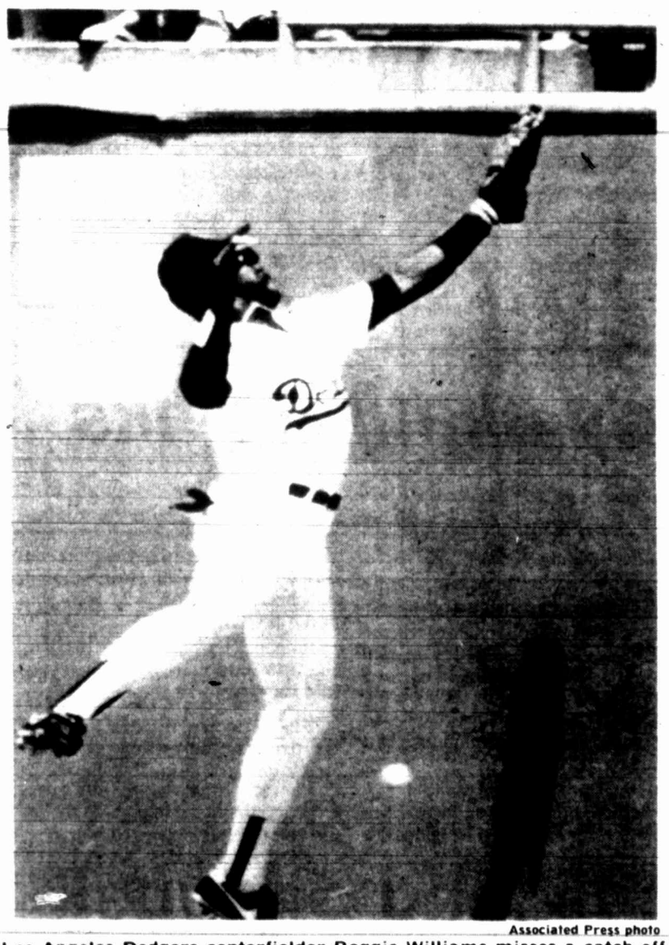

Teufel said he heard Strawberry, and "as soon as I heard him call it, I dipped out of the way. The last thing I saw was the ball on the ground."

Padres 14, Cubs 2

Tony Gwynn drove in two runs with a homer and a single, Benito Santiago had three RBI with a single and sacrifice fly and winning pitcher Ed Whitson had two RBI singles in San Diego's 19-hit attack. The victory ended a five-game Padres losing streak.

San Diego scored five runs in the fifth inning to break a 2-2 tie, then scored five more in the sixth while sending 11 men to bat.

Whitson went 5 2-3 innings to even his record at 4-4 and hand the Cubs just their fourth loss in 15 road games this year.

Los Angeles Dodgers centerfielder Reggie Williams misses a catch off the right field wall, allowing Curt Ford of the St. Louis Cardinals to reach third during second inning action Sunday.

Dodgers 7, Cardinals 6

Ken Landreux doubled in the winning run in the eighth inning, and Matt Young, traded to the Dodgers from Seattle during the winter, earned his first National League victory with 1 2-3 innings of relief. Jack Clark hit two homers for the Cardinals, including a three-run shot that tied the score 6-6 in the seventh.

Mike Ramsey started the winning inning with a single and scored all the way from first on Landreaux's double into the right-field corner off Pat Perry.

On the pitch before the double, Landreaux hit a grounder down the first-base line that Clark fielded for an apparent out, but umpire Frank Pulli ruled that the ball was foul, prompting an argument by the Cardinals.

Phillies 4, Reds 3

Shane Rawley took a five-hit shutout into the eighth inning, and Juan Samuel and Lance Parrish homered as the Phillies defeated Cincinnati. Rawley had mastered the Reds rather easily until he allowed one-out singles to Tracy Jones and Barry Larkin and a two-out homer by Eric Davis, his 13th.

The game was delayed for 17 minutes in the first inning by a swarm of bees at Riverfront Stadium. Losing pitcher Ted Power was stung on the hand and had to be attended in the Reds clubhouse while a crew of bee keepers was called upon to lead away the swarm.

Power gave up six hits and struck out a career-high 11 in his eight innings.

Expos 6, Astros 2

Mitch Webster scored twice, Tim Raines had two RBI and Randy St. Claire worked 3 1-3 scoreless innings as the Expos won for the fourth time in five games. Webster also went 3-for-3.

St. Claire gave up just two hits in relief of Jay Tibbs, who allowed four hits.

The Expos sent eight men to bat and scored three runs in the first inning off Danny Darwin, who worked the first five innings for Houston.

Tom Foley hit a home run for Montreal.

Pirates 4, Giants 1

John Ray hit an run-scoring single, and Jim Morrison hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning as Pittsburgh defeated the Giants.

Barry Bonds opened the 11th with a triple and, with one out, scored on Ray's bloop single. Morrison followed with his fifth homer as the Pirates ended a four-game losing streak.

Mr. Crazy Individual to go pro

NEW YORK (AP) — Brian Bosworth, two-time All-America liebacker from Oklahoma, declared today he was entering the NFL supplemental draft for college players who have eligiblity remaining.

"Of all the teams, I'd prefer to play for the Los Angeles Raiders," he said at a news conference. "There's no perfect team. The Raiders have no quarterback. The reason I like the Raiders is I like their attitute".

He said he would prefer not to play for half the teams in the NFL, specifying only Green Bay, Indianapolis and Buffalo. He said he would write to the teams he didn't want to play for and tell them not to choose him even if they got the No. 1 pick.

He said he hoped to play in New York or Los Angeles and would prefer not to play on artificial turf. Both New York teams, the Giants and Jets, play on artificial turf.

Bosworth, who graduated from Oklahoma last Saturday, had opted for the supplemental draft because he did not want to play for the Indianapolis Colts, who had planned to draft him in the regular process April 28.

However, under the new rules adopted this year for the supplemental draft, the Colts would have the second-best shot at getting him after the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The Bucs finished with the worst record in the NFL.

Under the lottery procedure used for the supplemental draft, teams are awarded chances in reverse order of last season's records. Tokens bearing the teams logos are placed in a barrel.

Tampa Bay has 28 chances, Indianapolis 27 and down to the Super Bowl champion New York Giants with one pick.

Top Aggie recruit passes SAT test

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Running back Randy Simmons of McKinney said he improved his Scholastic Aptitude Test score enough to be eligible to play football next fall for Texas A&M.

The Aggies landed Texas' top runners in its 1987 recruiting class, but Simmons and Dallas Carter's Darren Lewis — the top two plums — were said to be in danger of having to sit out next fall because of the NCAA's Proposition 48, which sets minimum academic standards for incoming athletes.

The minimum SAT score required under Proposition 48 varies according to a student's high school grade point average. A minimum of 660 is required for student athletes with a 2.2 grade point average, on up to 700 for a 2.0.

At the time of the February national signing day, neither Simmons nor Lewis had scored high enough on the SAT.

The first time Simmons took the test, he scored "below 200."

He told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Saturday that he scored 790 the second time around. He was surprised with the score, he said.

"I thought it was harder the second time I took it," Simmons said.

Lewis also scored under 700 on his first attempt. He said Saturday that he has not received the results of his second test.

Guidry allows one hit, K0's four

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — They weren't exactly Murderers Row — but they were batters and they struck out, so Ron Guidry was happy.

The New York Yankees veteran recorded four strikeouts in two innings when he returned to the mound Saturday night for the first time since he ended his free agency exile. He's playing with the Fort Lauderdale Yankees in the Florida State League to get into shape.

Guidry's first outing wasn't as impressive as the return of Tim Raines, the Montreal Expos' prodigal free agent, who hit a game-winning grand slam in his first game back with the big-league club last week. Still, Guidry looked sharp, throwing 17 strikes and only four balls in two innings against the Dunedin Blue Jays.

The one hit against the hard-throwing left-hander was an infield single to start the second inning. He responded by striking out Domingo Martinez, Pedro Munoz and Daryl Landrum on 10 pitches.

"I'm stressing throwing strikes," Guidry said. "If you throw strikes, everything else just falls into place, the mechanics and the delivery. The biggest reward tonight was to come out for the first time since October and throw strikes."

The Yankees originally had said they planned to give Guidry two starts for Fort Lauderdale and then move him up to Columbus of the International League. But Yankees vice president Clyde King said they may change their plans and move Guidry straight from Fort Lauderdale to the Yanks after a few more outings.

"He looked real good," King said. "He stayed within himself. We didn't want him to overdo it and he didn't."

Guidry, 36, said he threw as hard as he could only three or four times. His fastest pitch was clocked at 88 mph, and his fastball averaged 86 mph.

Guidry said he never intended to call it quits after last season, when he had an uncharacteristic 9-12 record with a 3.98 ERA. His 11-year record with the Yankees is 163-80, including the 25-3 season that won him the Cy Young Award in 1978.

"The reason I wanted to come back was I've had a great career in New York and I really didn't want to end it like that," he said. "Either they're going to have to tell me 'You're too old and you can't do it anymore' or I'm going to tell them I've had enough."

Neither of those scenarios fit this time. Guidry sat out spring training and the first month of the season because he and the Yankees couldn't agree on contract terms by early January. Although he was free to sign with other teams in the interim, none offered suitable contracts.

He signed with the Yankees May 1, the first day he was eligible to return to his old team, for the same terms the Yankees had offered.

Despite his lack of success this time, Guidry said he'd try the free agent route again "if I thought I was right." Asked if he felt he was right this time, he responded, "I did it, didn't I?"

While most of the other big-name free agents worked out at local high school fields, Guidry worked the fields at his 50-acre Louisiana farm.

"I was faced with the situation where maybe I wouldn't play anymore," Guidry said. "So that 50 acres of land is important to me and my family, because that's where I eventually want to retire."

Cardinals 17, Rangers 6

The Cardinals won their third straight game Saturday night behind the strong pitching of Chris Alexander, who struck out 14 batters.

The Cards got hits from Danny Fiero, Chris Lewis, Chris Alexander, Matt Engel, Jason Roberts, David Foresyth and Ross Roberts, who hit a homer.

The Rangers got hits from Jacoby Hopper, David Park, Danny Wilson and Jace Jennings. Clay Klatt took the loss for the Rangers.

The Cardinals improved to 33, and the Rangers dropped to 4-2.

Yankees 18, Lions 14

Lonnie Jackson hit a double and two triples, and drove in five runs to lead the Yankees over the Lions.

Brian Martinez got the win for the Yankees, and Dennis Poulette took the loss.

For the Yanks, Tony Taylor had a triple and two doubles, and knocked in three runs. Jackson earned a save.

For the Lions, Poulette hit two doubles, and Lucas Lopez and Bobby Bryan each had triples

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Who came first — Mother Goose, Mother Hubbard or Mother Teresa?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's a good day to delve deeply into whatever problems may be facing you. You also find it possible to come to a new meeting of the minds where emotions are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have much charm and can use it wisely so that you handle practical interests more efficiently.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Have a talk with a sensible person about the advice an expert has given you. It may make you more affluent.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do your work in such a manner that you get the approval of a bigwig. Don't be too anxious to gain your own way.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Confidentially go after the backing you need from an important person. Have fun with your mate tonight.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Have meetings at home with those whose aims are similar to your own. Discussions can prove very enlightening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact those you deal with daily and plan for expansion. Start the day early to use your best cleverness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The material side of life is important to you now. You need the assistance of an outside associate to make arrangements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find a new outlet that can give you greater income in the days ahead. Be willing to introduce co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get together with an expert in private and learn how to become more popular at social affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listen to the suggestions of a good friend for improving your daily activities. Be more practical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get your talents across in public and become more successful. Go out with your mate tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study some new situation that can spell more security for you. Get good results now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be one of those unusual young persons who will want to finish whatever he, or she, starts. This one will have a most cheerful attitude and will like to have a good time. Great success is possible here if this child learns to overcome prejudices.

Today's athletes,

Tomorrow's Olympians

One by one, the teams walked down the Blankenship Field track in the parade of contestants. Teams from Bauer Magnet School, College Heights Elementary, Marcy Elementary, Washington Elementary and Kentwood-Moss Elementary schools were there for the Elementary Track Meet conducted Friday evening.

After the preliminary pomp and pageantry of an opening ceremony, the contestants enthusiastically got down to the business they had prepared for.

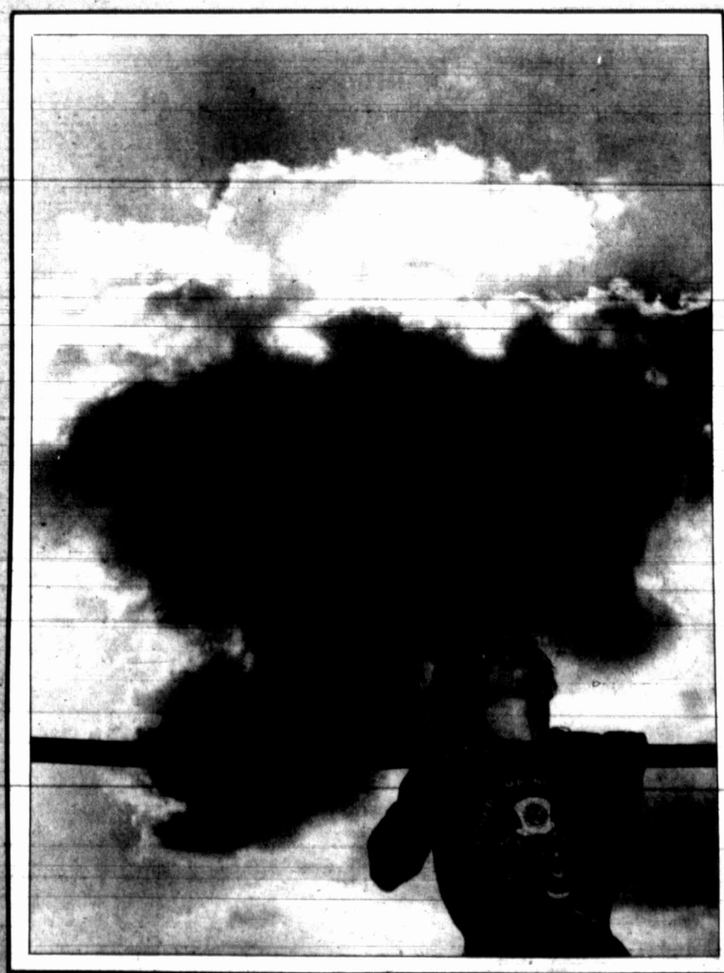

The first four events were the chinups for the third grade boys, hang-time for third grade girls, tug-of-war for the fourth graders and the two-legged shuttle for the fifth graders.

While participants pulled and jumped and hung for the glory of their school, the noise of their peers was sometimes deafening.

Events dashed by, with as many as six at one time, including the vertical jump, the softball throw, the 50-meter dash. In each event a winner took home a blue ribbon.

Four hours and 76 events later, the contest was over. Unofficially, most observers said that Bauer came out on top, with Washington in second.

But for one day, at least, there were no losers. All were champions in their own right.

Above: Jesse Mier, 10, son of Larry and Aurora Collins, takes off during his turn in the long jump event. Right: Debbie Cunningham, 11, daughter of Jim and Martha Easterday, strains to stay on the bar during the hang-time event. Her effort was good for a time of 1.07.77. Far right: Courtney Justice, 10, daughter of Kim Gonzales, and Douglas Stovall, 9, son of Mike and Trudie Stovall, clown around before the start of the two-legged shuttle. Large photo: Howard Foster, 11, son of Marianne Foster, celebrates with his Bauer Magnet schoolmates after their team won another victory in tug-of-war. Top right photo: Teams walk past the grandstand during the opening ceremony.
