Letters to Santa

Santa Claus again this year has asked The Rockport Pilot to collect letters to him from Aransas County boys and girls.

Letters to Santa may be mailed to "Santa Claus, c/o the Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf St., Rockport, Texas 78382." Or bring them to the Pilot office and put them in Santa's special-delivery mailbox.

Santa and the Pilot are asking that all letters be delivered to the Pilot no later than 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16, so they can be routed to the North Pole in time for Christmas.

Copies of the letters will be published in the Pilot's Dec. 24 issue.

Notable notes

Christmas bazaar set

The Holiday Beach Copanoakers Ladies Club will hold its annual Christmas Bazaar from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 9 and 10, and from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11, at the Lee Miller Reccreation Hall on Hwy. 35 North in Holiday Beach. Items for sale include handcrafts, baked goods, jams and jellies, nursery plants and white elephants. A drawing will be held for a quilt.

RFTA activities

The Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association's activities for Winter Texans are under way now at the Paws & Taws Building. Games nights are held at 7 p.m. every Tuesday and covered dish suppers are held every Wednesday starting at 6:30 p.m. More information is available at the RFTA office at 729-2388.

Tax Aide volunteers

The Tax Aide program sponsored by AARP Chapter 1536 needs volunteers to assist in the preparation of 1984 income tax forms for senior citizens. Training is available for volunteers. The program will be set up at the Aransas County Public Library from around Feb. 1 until April 15. For more information call Velma Ramsey at 729-5080 or Merritt Hulett at 729-6729.

Cookbook on sale

The new cookbook of the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. is now available in many local stores and sells for $6.95. Mail orders may be obtained for $7.95, to cover postage and handling, by writing Box 821, Rockport, Texas 78382. All proceeds go to the Aransas County Emergency Medical Services.

Fruitcakes available

The Rockport Lions Club is holding their annual fruitcake sale. Fruitcakes are available from Lions Club members for $6. Proceeds will go toward aiding needy children of Aransas County, children with eyesight problems, various youth and athletic programs, college scholarships, Lions Camps for crippled and diabetic children.

High temperatures are anticipated in the mid 60s to mid 70s Saturday, high 50s to high 60s Sunday and Monday. Lows in the low 40s to low 50s Saturday, mid 30s to mid 40s Sunday and Monday are predicted.

ACTA compiles master plan suggestions

For presentation to school board

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association membership approved a list of suggestions to the school board of the Aransas County Independent School District for incorporation in the district's 5-year plan during a Tuesday, Nov. 22 meeting of the association.

Included among the suggestions, which cover curriculum, student activities and facilities, were a call for better college prepatory courses; the addition of a second foreign language to the high school curriculum; addition of more vocational courses at the high school level; prohibition of students with failing grades to participate in extracurricular activities; grouping students by campus according to ability; increasing scheduled activities of first and second graders to a full day; improvement in assembly and intramural programs; scheduling of extracurricular activities only after school hours; construction of a junior high gym or expansion of current facilities.

ACTA will present the complete list of suggestions at the Wednesday, Dec. 14, meeting of the school board.

ACTA member Frank Riordan presented several tax matters before the membership, including the possibility of a 1- or 2-cent ad valorem tax increase by the Aransas County Navigation District. Riordan told members of a provision in the state property tax code which would allow a petition to be circulated calling for a rollback election if the increase in the effective tax rate is greater than 8 percent.

The ACND currently has an effective tax rate of 2 cents per every $100 of a property's appraised value. A 1- or 2-cent increase would amount to a 50 or 100 percent increase in the effective tax rate, Riordan said.

The membership also discussed the current navigation district budget and the ACND recreational account deficit of over $26,000. A straw poll of ACTA members at the meeting revealed that 32 would oppose any tax increase by the ACND while only two members would support any such increase.

Guest speaker Raulie Irwin gave a slide presentation and lecture detailing the history of Aransas County.

Terry Riordan won a $50 bond for her slogan, "The Voice of Concerned Taxpayers" in the ACTA-sponsored slogan contest. Mrs. Riordan will donate the $50 prize to the Women's Committee of the Aransas County Medical Services Inc. during ACTA's December meeting.

A TOY FOR A KID. Michael McConnell shows Rockport Elementary School Principal Norman Spears the toy he has brought for the school's Toys for Kids collection box. The box will be in the principal's office at the school through Dec. 9 as part of the campaign to make Christmas Day brighter for Aransas County children.

Toys for Kids campaign still needs more funds

Donations to the Toys for Kids campaign this past week brought the fund total to $1,953 — but another $3,000 is still needed for the organization to reach its goal, organization Treasurer David Boling has announced.

Observing that the campaign is only two weeks away from the Dec. 17 toy distribution date, Boling said, "We expect to serve more families and children this year. Many may be like the mother last year who wrote, 'My children weren't going to have anything (for Christmas) this year.' "

Several area churches have placed collection boxes to receive donations of new toys for the Toys for Kids campaign, and a collection box has been set up in the principal's office at Rockport Elementary School.

Elementary School Principal Norman Spears, in a letter to parents, is asking that "any new toy or book that is useable" be donated for the project. Last day for toy collection is noon Friday, Dec. 9, so that the toys can be given to the Toys for Kids organization in time for the distribution.

A number of area organizations and businesses are planning to donate toys to Toys for Kids in lieu of an employee or member gift exchange this year, Toys for Kids officials have said, and Boling noted three $100 donations received this past week from the Lola Sorenson Guild of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Jackson Seafood and the VFW.

Toys for Kids is sponsored annually by the Rockport Lions Club to provide toys at Christmas for Aransas County youngsters whose families are financially unable to buy toys for them. John Jackson is chairman of the campaign and Jo Lee McConnell is in charge of toy inventory and, with Pam Roe, purchase.

Parents invited to participate in the toy distribution are selected with the assistance of the Department of Human Resources.

Last year, toys were provided for more than 200 Aransas County youngsters. This year, Jackson says, because of economic conditions, more children are expected to be eligible for this program.

McConnell has said she would like to be able, through the program, to provide two or three toys for each eligible child.

County Sesquicentennial committee holds meeting

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

Aransas County's participation in Texas' 1986 Sesquicentennial celebration became official this week with the first meeting of the three-member steering committee appointed by county commissioners to begin local preparations for observance of the state's 150th birthday.

Raulie Irwin is chairman of the steering committee. Secretary is Barbara Armstrong and Don Meek is treasurer. The committee met this week with Jeanine Hicks, program officer for the State Sesquicentennial Commission.

Armstrong said the committee's first action is to go out with letters to Aransas County and the cities of Rockport and Fulton asking for enough financial help to purchase stationary.

Letters will then be sent to all Aransas County civic groups and organizations and to area churches, inviting them to appoint representatives to what will be designated the Aransas County Chapter of the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission. This chapter will be the planning body for Aransas County's observance of the Texas birthday in 1986.

"We're looking for 'small ideas'," Armstrong said, emphasizing that in place of the "year-long pageantry" that highlighted Aransas County's own centennial celebration in 1970, the emphasis in 1986 will be on smaller projects with longterm results.

For example, she said, "We would like every representative (appointed to serve on the county commission) to write a history of their organization. An updated history of Aransas County is another result hoped for as a result of the sesquicentennial observance, as is "a good historical tour" of the county.

The long range goal of the steering committee, she said, is to provide "something for posterity" when the celebration has ended.

Armstrong said the steering committee, whose purpose is to serve as a "central organizational point" rather than do the actual planning, probably won't have a major meeting until after the first of the year.

"We are starting," Armstrong said. "We

Ralph Pyle fund established

A savings account fund has been established for Rockport-Fulton Junior High teacher Ralph Pyle, who was injured in a fire last month and has returned home after 28 days of hospitalization.

Friends of Pyle established the fund at First National Bank in Rockport to help allay Pyle's medical expenses and to purchase equipment needed for his recuperation. Due to the risk of infection, Pyle has not been able to receive flowers or other gifts.

Anyone wishing to donate to the account may contact Charles LaBounty at First National Bank or call the Rockport-Fulton Junior High School office.

IT'S BEGINNING TO LOOK more and more like Christmas as some Aransas County residents start putting up their holiday decorations. These snowpeople were photographed by Pilot Managing Editor Pat Blair in a yard in the Peninsula Oaks Subdivision.

First time

Commission meets in new courtroom

The Aransas County Commissioners held court in the new courtroom at the Aransas County Courthouse for the first time Wednesday, Nov. 30.

In court action, Commissioner W.B. "Pete" Sanders made a motion to purchase a Terrain King tractor from Waukesha-Pearce Industries for the sum of $29,633 after opening bids. The motion, seconded by Commissioner John M. Lee, was unanimously approved by the court.

The court also awarded a bid to Bay Chevrolet of Aransas Pass for the purchase of two patrol cars for the sheriff's department at a cost of $18,024.40 for both cars. Other bids were submitted by Commercial Motors and Bill Gardner Pontiac.

Sanders and Commissioner Ray Longino agreed to purchase a trailer for the county's road striper out of their precinct budgets. The trailer, which costs $1,150, will hold the striper, paint and road cones during transportation from one location to another. The arrangement was unanimously approved by the court.

Approval was given to the plat for Unit 5, phase 2, of the City by the Sea subdivision, and two roads were given approval for closing. The petition from Dr. Thomas McKinley to close the south 18 feet of Henderson Street was given final approval by the court and a petition from Al Johnson to abandon and close a half-block portion on Hood Street and a half-block portion of Maple Street was given preliminary approval. Johnson is the owner of the land on both sides of both streets.

Payton McNeill requested formal approval for seismographic testing in several areas of the county by Dorchester Exploration. The court had given McNeill approval earlier in the year to do the testing but arrangements had to be changed and another permit secured. McNeill stated that the company is insured against damage claims and explained that precautions would be taken to minimize the possibility of damage. A Sanders-Longino motion approved the testing with a unanimous vote.

The court also opened and discussed bids on extensive repairs of a bulldozer. Two bids were received, one from Anderson Machine Company and the other from B.D. Holt Compay. After discussion during a closed session, a Sanders-Lee motion to accept the B.D. Holt bid was approved. The motion was later rescinded and the bid awarded to Anderson after closer examination revealed that the B.D. Holt bid did not include labor costs

First 98th Congressional session rated a success

Capitol update

By JOHN TOWER
Senator

Congress has completed its work for this year, and, all in all, the first session of the 98th Congress was a successful one.

We were much more successful than we have been in many years in getting necessary business accomplished. We passed 10 of the 13 needed appropriations bills, with agencies not funded under one of these pieces of legislation getting money from a "continuing resolution." This is a much better record than we amassed last year when we passed only six appropriations bills before ending the session. Many major bills, including defense appropriations, were not acted upon.

This year, we again made too little progress in controlling the amount of domestic spending; but we largely held back the forces which would have undone our work from previous years, and we did make some progress in this regard.

For example, we passed a housing authorization bill which redirects federal policy toward housing assistance so that money will be directed toward those most in need and spent more efficently. This change in direction will be felt in years to come as well as for the present year.

In the area of national defense, we continued the president's program to modernize our forces. I was disappointed funding levels were cut below the level which would have allowed for the most efficient rebuilding of our national defense capability, but relieved that the effort is moving forward.

We failed to reach a compromise in the area of natural gas price decontrol. I still believe that full, phased decontrol of natural gas prices is in our best national interest, but we must make certain that any legislation which might pass in response to today's market problems moves us closer to this goal and does not create still more problems for the future. I hope that next year we can continue our efforts to formulate reasonable natural gas legislation which will meet the needs of producers and consumers.

National agriculture policy is at a major crossroads as we prepare for 1984. The Administration's Payment in Kind program has been successful in raising commodities prices substantially. We now must evaluate that program and determine whether we will move toward a policy based on free market forces or one which continues or increases the level of government control.

In short, this first session of the 98th Congress was successful in comparison with those from the past decade, but there is much unfinished business awaiting us when we begin our session in January.

I fervently hope that we can pass necessary spending legislation within a reasonable schedule and address the many pressing problems which require policy action.

Texas stronger than ever

Texas was among the few states to weather the economic recession without a budget shortfall, despite a four-pronged assault on its economy.

During the decade of the 1970s, the state's explosive economy enabled the Legislature to write an austere budget for the 1984-85 fiscal year.

Effects of the recession, declining oil prices, adverse weather and the Mexican peso devaluation combined to retard Texas' economic growth during fiscal 1983 (the period from Sept. 1, 1982 through Aug. 31, 1983), according to information compiled by the comptroller's office.

State tax collections, particularly from oil production and sales taxes, declined because of the faltering economy. Because tax receipts were down in 1983, total state revenue increased by a modest one percent to $14.6 billion. An increase in federal spending helped to make up some of the decrease in tax collections.

Factors similar to those that caused 1983 revenue collections to drop from 1982 levels caused state spending to jump. The economic slowdown increased the need for state spending such as welfare payments to needy Texans.

Although Texas' economy was not performing well, it was in better shape than economics in many other states. As a result, many people moved to Texas hoping to find jobs. As the population increased, spending on welfare, unemployment compensation, prisons and education also increased.

Texas' state expenses totaled $13.6 billion in 1983, a 12.4 percent hike over the 1982 level.

The net effect of the slowdown in revenue growth and increased spending left the state with an ending cash balance of $1 billion — $300 million less than in 1982 — in its most important general revenue fund. This fund is, in effect, the state's "purse," from which a major portion of spending is done.

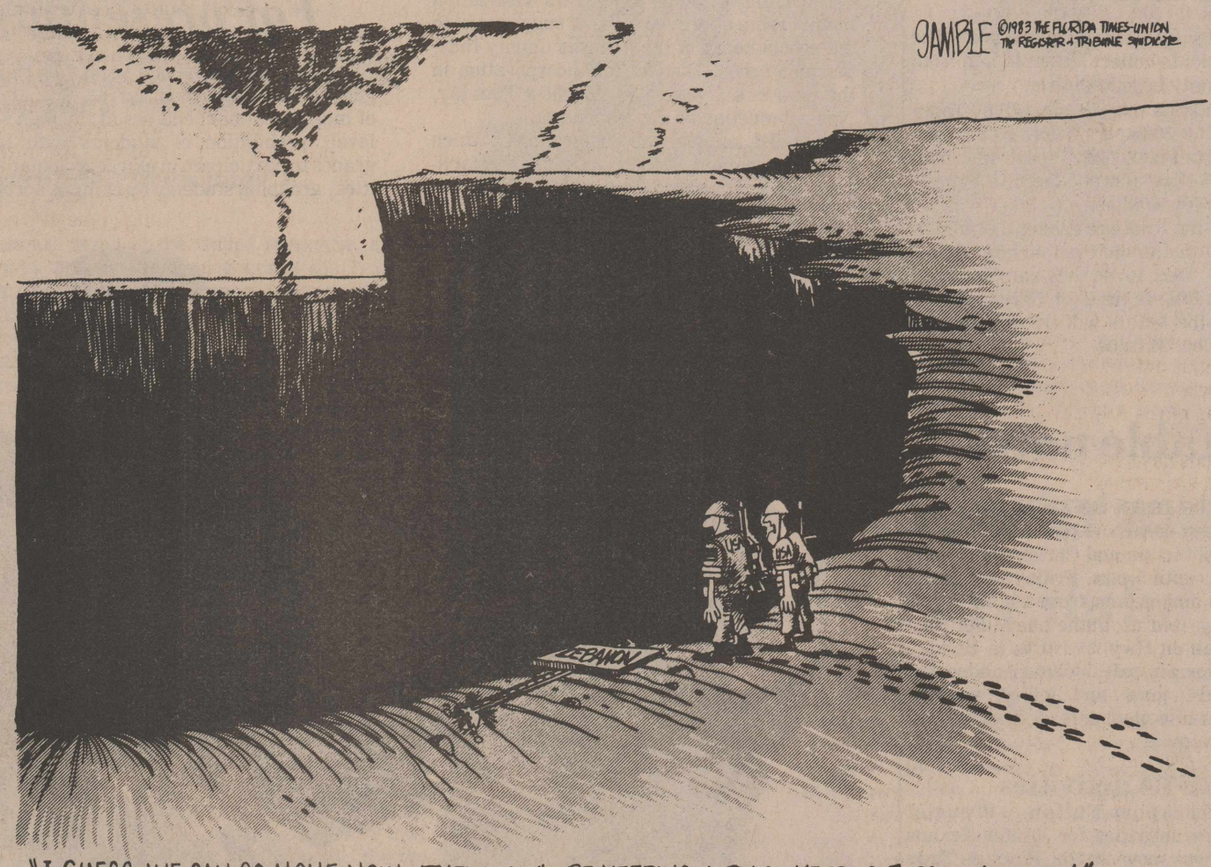

Since adoption of the sales tax in 1961, tax receipts did not increase from one year to the next — until this year. Total tax collections were 1.8 percent less in 1983 than in 1982. In contrast, from 1981 to 1982, tax collections increased 11.7 percent.

Declines in receipts for the state's two largest sources — sales tax and oil production taxes — were largely responsible for the decline.

Sales tax receipts decreased by more than $156 million to $3.3 billion. Oil production and regulation taxes were the second largest source of tax revenue in 1983. Oil tax collections totaled $1.2 billion, a 9.6 percent decrease from fiscal 1982.

Even with substantial decreases in revenue, the state managed to get by without a budget shortfall. Officials who manage state finances did a good job for taxpayers.

The legislature demonstrated its fiscal responsibility by producing a budget that recognized the realities of the recession. As a result, the state emerged from the slump stronger than ever.

Thank you

Dear editor,

Our English class would like to thank Mr. Scott and the staff of The Rockport Pilot for letting us take a tour of their newspaper offices. We had a chance to see many unusual and interesting things. We especially enjoyed seeing how pictures are developed and getting a copy of our names in headline type. We plan to display these things on a bulletin board.

A special "thank you" to Leslie Abrams for coming to our class to talk about newspapers.

It really means a lot to us that these people took time from their busy schedules to help us with our newspaper project.

Thanks again,

'Somebody has to care'

Editor's note: The following letter was written recently by Rockport Police Chief Joe Hinojosa to city police department personnel. He presented this copy of the letter to The Rockport Pilot:

It isn't easy for a Police Department to deliver good service and protection to it's citizens and yet we must. It is not only our sworn duty to do so, but it is also our job and because we care.

It takes police officers who understand why it's necessary and who really care about what happens to our citizens and their Police Department.

These are the kind of officers whose response to any request is:

"I'll be glad to help . . ."
"I'll be glad to try . . ."
"I'll do my best . . ."
"Sure, I'd be glad to . . ."

These are the officers, wherever they may be in the organization, who really make it run . . . who help do the job that has to be done in order to protect their jobs and everyone else's.

There are foot-draggers in every outfit. You've heard them:

"That's not my job . . ."
"I'm too busy . . ."
"Let George do it . . ."
"It's too difficult . . ."
"I didn't know you were in a hurry . . ."
"I wasn't hired for that . . ."
"That's not my department . . ."

A police Department with enough loyal, responsible officers can carry a certain number of foot-draggers. They do contribute something . . . when they have to . . . and when they are carefully supervised. When competition gets tough, however, they become more and more of a drag on the whole operation.

Somebody has to care, and officers who do are irreplaceable. Everyone in the outfit owes them appreciation and respect. No Police Department can operate successfully without them.

Why should we care? Because it's our job and our Police Department.

My sincere appreciation and respect to those who care for an protect our citizens and our Police Department.

Sincerely,
s/J.M. Hinojosa
Chief of Police
Rockport Police Dept.

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

A few unassorted comments

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher on his grassburr ranch has a few unassorted comments this week.

Dear editor:

Like most people I guess, I watched "The Day After" but what interested me the most was the high-powered discussion afterwards by a panel of experts.

They all agreed a nuclear war is absolutely unacceptable and when asked how the world can prevent it, how we can prevent the super powers from starting one or how we can prevent some insane terrorist in some off-brand country from starting one, they summed up their answers by saying "We've simply got to insure that it positively doesn't happen."

I searched the Yellow Pages and can't find any company selling that kind of insurance.

Let's turn to other matters.

There's a suggestion going around for merit pay for politicians, but you reckon they could live on it?

A lot of people in Europe, if the TV cameras are around, don't want any American missiles installed there, but if war breaks out they'd be happy to have some American soldiers.

Congress has adjourned and fled Washington. If I had a deficit as big as the one they've got I'd flee wherever I was too.

Some federal judges have declared that living conditions in penitentiaries are intolerable, but I've noticed that a lot of criminals who've been there and been let out and then committed a new crime guaranteeing their return, don't seem to mind.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Thoughts after 'The Day After'

THIS IS THE DAY after "The Day After." I hesitate to dwell on the subject because by the time this piece appears, most of you will have either tired or forgotten it. Yet I must have my say, so straight off, the power of the film was for me mostly if not entirely in the promotion. Had it not been for that I would almost certainly not have watched the show.

More, only curiosity held me to the screen for two and a quarter hours. As a drama it was pretty thin stuff; there were no memorable lines and the acting was no better or worse than the average fare offered by the soaps. And so at the risk of being called calloused I must confess that the film left me virtually unmoved because the predominent characters were so shadowy as to leave me quite disassociated.

Watching a play like "Dracula" — or for that matter most of the horror and crime stuff that appears on telly — is much more spine tingling as is also most certainly episodes from the ongoing Vietnam History series each Tuesday on PBS. There one sees real horror, death and mangled bodies and no play-acting about it.

Mostly however, I was so little moved by "Day After" because I know enough, have read enough, about a nuclear holocaust to not be surprised by the pictures that came from the tube. They were in fact, pretty timid stuff compared to the real thing, at least as I have come to understand it.

Here I could be picky and cite improbabilities in the production, but that would be to no end. Let it simply suffice that were there a nuclear holocaust in which five thousand megatons of explosive power released, less than half the power of the world's existing arsenals, dust from the explosions, soot from burning cities and forests would blanket the earth.

As a consequence 95 percent of the sunlight would be prevented from reaching the ground and thereby reduce summer temperatures to 13 degrees below zero, or lower. None of this takes into account the millions of people who would initially survive burned, posioned, maimed and whatever else without recourse to even minimal medical assistance. In complete truth, the only fortunate people would be those who die instantly in the initial blast.

RIGHTLY OR WRONGLY, I very much doubt that "Day After" will have much or any effect upon viewers, most of whom know, however vaguely, that there exists on our earth forces that can destroy us all, make our planet totally uninhabitable.

Regretably for the first time in the history of mankind, there exists among us an indominable spirit that causes us to believe that somehow total destruction will never come to pass.

Compare it to watching tortured bodies being removed from a wreck on the freeway. Most are all but unmoved. "It won't happen to me." Who shudders as he gets into his vehicle a few minutes after witnessing the scene on the news?

AT LEAST ONE GOOD thing came from the "Day After," but I am fearful that a vast majority missed it. Immediately following, the network presented an hour-long commercialless discussion of the film and, more significantly, all aspects of a nuclear holocaust. An amazingly competent young man, Ted Koppel, presided.

He began with an interview with Secretary of State George Schultz and followed up with former cabinet members, a retired general, an astronomer, a conservative editor and an educator. It was the latter who confirmed an opinion so often expounded in this column — that a nuclear holocaust is least likely in a confrontation between the world's two major powers because both recognize the result.

Instead the danger lies in some madman from an obscure country detonating the bomb. There of course rises the question of whether such a person, even with the bomb, could undetected acquire the necessary delivery systems. Being neither a scientist nor engineer I am totally unqualified to offer an answer.

I AM NOT A BIBLICAL authority, but somewhere the Bible tells us something like: "There are wars and there have ever been wars, and there shall ever be wars."

In the simple light of man's history those words are irrefutable. How then can we, how shall we, cope with weapons that can make our planet a place which can no longer support life?

A better question is how can we learn to contain our basic aggressive instincts. Those young people who oppose nuclear weapons are not the answer. Their instincts are as aggressive and violent as those of any warring tribesman of old.

NOW WE HAVE LIVED four decades with the potential to destroy our planet Earth and during that time there have been war and wars. Can we go on in this manner for a hundred years, thousands, through countless eons?

No man has the answer, certainly not those who oppose nuclear wars at the cost of all else. For the nonce, and perhaps for so long as life exists, we can no more destroy the evil in man than we can salvage those things within him which are so good.

Must it forever be, at least for so long as life exists, that good shall always be the handmaiden of evil, hate and avarice the handmaiden of rightousness? Examine the track record from your own light, your own knowledge and experience.

Scott Burns: Seeking high income in bond funds

Q: Understanding that the aim in your column is to give information, not to give recommendations concerning investments, I seek the names of funds or firms having a good track record dealing in junk bonds. I am told that with some risk some such operations can be, and sometimes are, successful in that they are distributing higher yields. —O.H., San Antonio

A: The so-called "junk" bond funds have been the subject of columns in the last two years because they offer relatively high returns and reduce risk through diversification. The first thing you should know is not to be turned off the word "junk" — that is only a phrase used "in the trade" to describe bonds that some fiduciaries are not allowed to purchase because they don't meet the stringent security requirements of some pension funds, etc.

In fact, lower-quality bonds can offer both high current income and the prospect of substantial improvement in price when (and if) the credit rating of the company improves.

Junk bond funds have done well in the past year for two reasons: First, interest rates are lower so bond prices are higher; second, in an economic recovery, the prospects of all companies improve, so people bid up the price of lower-quality bonds.

The best-performing of the large junk bond funds so far this year is Massachusetts Financial Services' High Income Fund, distributed through broker-dealers and having a "load" or sales commission. According to Lipper Analytical Services, a New York firm that ranks mutual fund performance, the fund provided a current yield of 11.6 percent at the end of September and had risen 40.46 percent in value over the preceding 12 months.

The Fidelity High Income Fund, a Boston-based no-load, provided a yield of 12.3 percent and an increase in asset value of 27.35 percent during the same period.

While there is some risk of default or bankruptcy in the purchase of lower-quality bonds, it is highly unlikely in a fund that purchases such bonds. Why? Because the managers don't want to take the chance of attracting adverse publicity by holding a bond that goes bad, so they tend to be cautious with what they buy.

As I suggested earlier this year, you should not use such funds to the exclusion of other investments. Instead, they can be used as a kind of "leavening" to raise the overall income of your investments.

Q: I am a 69-year-old widow and recently inherited some money. I can invest $25,000 and still have a cash reserve for any large expenditures. Is there a safe, liquid investment that will give me at least 11 percent on my investment? I have been reading about REITs. Would they be a good investment? Also, what is your opinion of the Damsun Oil and Gas Income Fund? —Citrus Heights, Calif.

A: The REITs (real estate investment trusts) have come back a long way from the early '70s debacle but they are neither "safe" nor liquid investments. Nor do they provide the kind of income you'd like. The Damsun Oil and Gas Income Fund doesn't meet your safety and liquidity requirements either, and neither does the competing Petro-Lewis Yield Plus Fund.

You can get the return you want, free of California income tax, by investing in two and three-year U.S. Treasury obligations or in similar obligations offered by major government agencies such as the Federal Home Loan Bank, etc. You can buy these issues through your commercial bank or a broker.

If you can afford less income and some risk, you might buy some shares in Property Capital Trust, an American Stock Exchange-listed REIT that specializes in land purchase-leasebacks. It is a very conservatively managed trust that experienced few of the difficulties most had in the early '70s and offers regular increases in income from "overages" built into its leases. At $34 a share it yields 7.8 percent.

Q: In the near future I expect to receive about $40,000, which I would like to invest at maximum return, short-term (six-12 months). Could you indicate my options as I can't keep track of all the various vehicles available? —J.K., Evanston, Ill.

A: Keeping track is a full-time job and the figures change from week to week. For highest yield with no risk to principal, I suggest you buy a one-year note from one of the government agencies.

If you can afford some risk to principal, put the money in a no-load, high-yield bond fund such as the Fidelity High Income Fund mentioned above.

Q: SeaFirst Bank (of Seattle) recently wrote off $231 million in loans they considered uncollectible. Do the stockholders stand this loss, or the tax-paying public? No report of suicides accompanying this small note in the business section. —G.F.F., Dallas

A: The total at SeaFirst is now $286 million but it has been handily exceeded by energy-related loan losses at Continental Illinois in Chicago — $301 million — and Interfirst Corp. in Dallas — $457 million.

While there have been no loss-related suicides that I know of, a good number of careers have been wrecked and some erring bankers have been forced to turn in their pin-striped suits for the more casual dress of cab drivers.

Bank losses, as with losses in any business, are shared by the shareholders and taxpayers, just as profits and gains are. The loss is written off against current profits, if possible, and against future profits if necessary. By definition, the shareholder loses, and so does the U.S. Treasury.

The same situation can occur in manufacturing corporations that suffer substantial losses. If the loss exceeds current earnings, the company charges the loss against shareholder equity and has a tax-loss carryforward that protects future earnings from the corporate income tax until the loss has been used up.

There is no reason for public anger in this instance: Losses were realized, silly or dumb behavior exposed and careers were appropriately ended.

Your anger, if you are feeling some, should be directed to a less obvious tug at taxpayers' wallets in the form of $8.4 billion in increased U.S. aid to the International Monetary Fund — legislation otherwise known as the Bankers' Bailout Bill was passed in the closing week of Congress.

By having the IMF guarantee supported in part by the U.S. Treasury, our bankers are being relieved of having to write off billions in loans that make the worst of the energy loans look like ultraconservative deals.

The truly outrageous part of this bill, if it passes, is that our friends in the pin-striped suits who made the loans will retain their careers and employment while you and I, collectively, will be forced to pay for those loans not once, but two, three or four times.

Why so many times, you ask?

Simple.

First we pay for those loans through the expenditures of the U.S. government: We are all taxpayers.

Then we pay again because a higher federal deficit requires interest rates high enough to attract foreign money. So we have interest rates far higher than the rate of inflation.

Then we pay for it again because high interest rates mean an overvalued dollar that reduces our ability to compete for international trade: Some lose their jobs (a very high price, indeed) while those who remain employed pay the costs of unemployment.

And, finally, we pay for it at the individual banks that must maintain high interest rates on their good loans to compensate for the below-market rates charged to their foreign customers.

It's a subtle hosing we take from the bankers, but it's still a hosing.

Q: I have stock in a utility company which is changing its policy on its Automatic Dividend Reinvestment and Stock Purchase Plan. I will keep my stock but they will be sending me the dividends instead of reinvesting them. I would like to put these dividends into another plan. How can I do this?

Also, at the moment I have $10,000 in a bank money rate account and $20,000 in T-bills. Can I get a better return without too much risk? —Mrs. R.S., Rancho Cordova, Calif.

A: The answer to your first question is simple: You can't. If you wish to continue enjoying the tax break for reinvested electric utility dividends, you will have to sell the shares of the utility you now have and reinvest the proceeds in one that still has a dividend reinvestment plan.

This should not be a painful prospect: All shares you have acquired through reinvestment and held a year are taxable at low capital gains rates.

The only way to increase income on the $30,000 you have in banks and T-bills is to extend the term of your investment. The figures below, for instance, show recent yields on U.S. government securities of different maturities:

— 3-month bills — 8.96 percent;

— 6-month bills — 9.29 percent;

— 1-year bills — 9.84 percent;

— 2-year coupons — 10.59 percent;

— 3-year coupons — 10.94 percent;

— 5-year coupons — 11.28 percent;

— (Source: Salomon Brothers).

Be advised that rates for any given time and between any given times change from day to day. But right now you can increase your income by 1 to 1.5 percentage points by moving from short-term money market-type investments to one- and two-year term investments. You may not want to do this with all your money, but you can do it with some of your money.

Construction adds $329,965 to city building totals

New construction started in Rockport this past month was down from September and October totals but still added $329,965 to the city's building values for 1983.

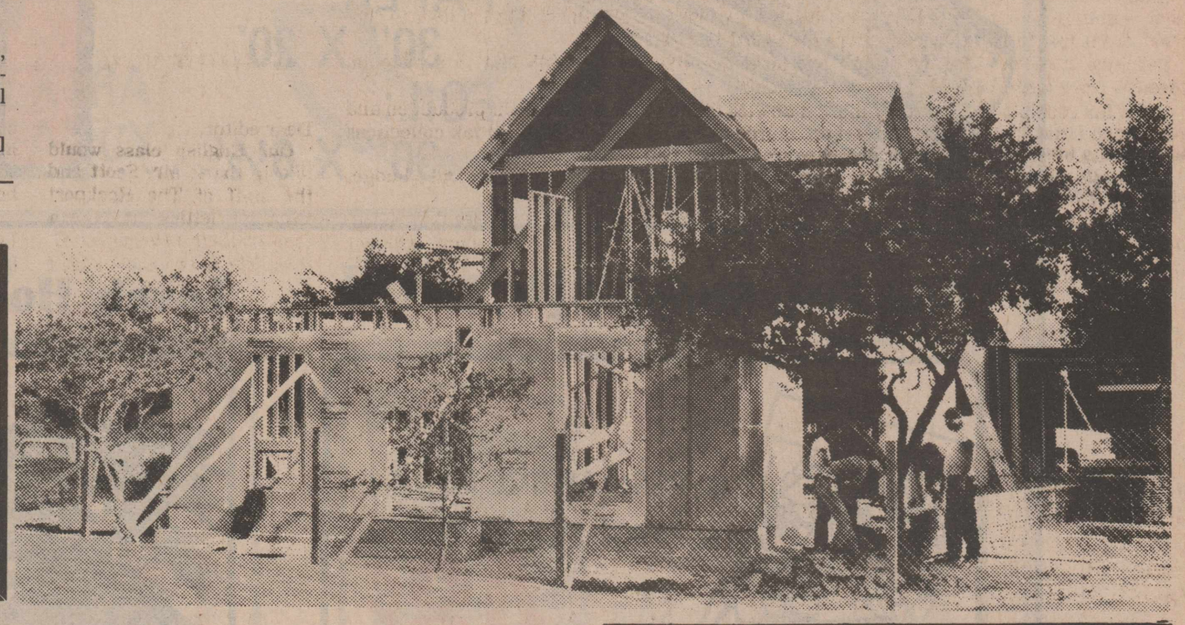

Total new construction started in Rockport during 1983 to date amounted to more than $8.3 million, according to figures on file at Rockport City Hall.

Among the construction started was the Clover Patch Inc.'s new flower shop to be located in Harbor Oaks Shopping Village. Estimated cost to enclose the space to be occupied by the shop is $9,000. The permit was issued this past Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Only two new residences were started during the month — compared to 11 in September and October — but one of these was a $212,000 5,300-square-foot dwelling in Harbor Oaks. Also started was a $25,000 house on North Wood Street.

Remaining values were for residential and commercial remodeling, fences and signs.

HOUSES UNDER CONSTRUCTION in Harbor Oaks, above, and Rockport Country Club Estates, right, have added significantly to the city's 1983 building valuations which total more than $8.3 million through the end of November.

A new way of viewing the federal budget

From the Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Both technology and the size of the federal budget long ago outstripped the ability of ordinary citizens to keep up with their incredible growth and complexity.

Computers are into fifth, or sixth generations, and the U.S. budget is rapidly approaching $1 trillion. It was only two years ago that the federal debt — an accumulation of yearly deficits — passed the $1 trillion mark and left taxpayers dumbfounded. Now comes the prospect of spending $1 trillion in a single year!

In a recent article, "Visualizing a Trillion," Malcolm S. Forbes, editor-in-chief of "Forbes" magazine, recalled that his father, in the New Deal days of the 1930s, was similarly occupied doing articles to illustrate federal spending.

Forbes recalls this item from his father's writings: "Everytime you draw a breath, the government in Washington spends $717. Its expenditures up to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, averaged $20,650 DAILY."

"The aim," wrote Forbes, "was to dramatize what 'profligate' New Deal spending meant in terms of federal debt."

Budget analysts themselves are conscious of the need to explain, explain, explain. Kenneth D. Simonson, director of budget policy for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, in a recent paper reviewing the workings of the 10-year-old Budget Control and Impoundment Act, took note of this necessity to use more intelligible terms in dealing with budget matters.

He suggested the possibility of viewing the budget in the context of the total economy, enabling taxpayers to compare from year to year what portions of national income are used for various governmental activities.

"With receipts and outlays climbing toward the $1 trillion mark," Simonson writes, "both numbers have become less intelligible. A more digestable figure is the size of receipts, outlays and the deficit as a share of Gross National Product (GNP). The numbers can be compared with past years, and the trends are easier to discern when all three numbers are growing by billions a year.

"Futhermore, the possible significance of having, say, revenues, at 19 percent of GNP, outlays at 25 percent and deficits at 6 percent are easier to assess and to compare to historical levels or abroad than are raw numbers that are almost necessarily unprecedented.

This approach, Simonson adds, has some "risks," since it would require more reliable economic forecasting of the GNP, for example. It might be preferable to make the comparisons in reports accompanying the budget rather than in the budget resolution itself that Congress must enact.

Conceivably, such a plan, computerized to give detailed breakdowns, could help budget makers and taxpayers alike produce budgets more in keeping with the desires of the taxpayers who furnish the money in the first place.

Uncle John — a community asset

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

"I'll show you a common thread running through my life," John Leslie — better known as "Uncle John" — promises as the interview begins at his Peninsula Oaks residence.

It's run through his whole life, he emphasizes, from his birth 84 years ago through his arrival in Rockport in 1971, through today . . .

John L. Leslie was born in Paris (Texas) on Oct. 10, 1899, the son of a Presbyterian minister. Because of his duties, Rev. Leslie traveled and John went with him — from Paris to Temple, Ballinger, eventually to Cisco where, in 1911, he joined a Boy Scout troop — the beginning of a decades-long involvement with the Scouting organization.

Scouting was about a year old when John joined the Cisco troop — named, he recalls, the "Hound Patrol. In those days," he added, "we made a big deal out of names for the troops."

The troop folded about a year later, but John had been bitten by the Scouting bug . . .

In the meantime, at the age of 16, he went to Sherman to attend Austin College for a couple of years, and in 1918, he was hired to work for the Gulf Oil Corp. in Fort Worth. The man who hired him, he added, was a man his father had befriended as a boy back in Paris when Uncle John was still a baby.

By one of those coincidences Uncle John (still just "John" then) doesn't really consider a coincidence, his father had seen this man's photograph, thought he recognized him and contacted him to find out for sure.

"It turned out he was the same man," Uncle John recalls, "and when they got to talking, this fellow asked my father if there was anything he could do for him. My father said yes, he had a boy out of school that was looking for a job."

Uncle John was hired as a draftsman and spent the next five years employed in Gulf's engineering department.

"Then there was a letdown (in business). I was low man on the totem pole, so I was dropped. I wound up in Dallas as draftsman for the Galveston Corp. While in Dallas, he organized a Boy Scout troop of his own — Troop 12 — "and stayed with it five years. At the end of five years, I went into Scouting professionally."

By this time, Uncle John had married and has a son from that marriage. With his family's support, he attended the national training school for Scouting professionals then was sent to Austin as Scout executive.

From the Austin base, he was responsible for Scouting operations in 11 counties. "You ride the roads, recruit, train, run the summer camps . . ." he summed up his job.

Then came the Depression "and no one had any money to contribute" to the Scouting program. For three months, Uncle John went to work for the Public Works Administration, then the Scouting organization "picked me up again" and he was sent to the Lower Rio Grande Valley, serving as Scout executive there for three years.

"While I was there," he said, "I met a man running for the state land commission who (another coincidence) had been a Boy Scout in my troop in Cisco."

John jokingly told the man, "If you get elected, I want a job in Austin. I have a son who wants to go to school there."

Well, the man was elected — "and I got a job in the land office," Uncle John recalls. Then adds, "Politics being what they are, I lost it (the job) at the end of two years — he didn't get re-elected."

Out of a job again, John remembered two men in Houston he'd met through Scouting. "I went to Houston and (through these men) got a job as draftsman with the Federal Land Bank in Houston. I worked there for 26 years."

During all this time, he said, "I played with Scouting as a volunteer." On Jan. 14, 1948, he was one of seven Houston men who received the Silver Beaver Award for distinguished service to boys through the Scouting program.

He retired from the Federal Land Bank in 1965 but remained in Houston until after the death of his wife, Addie, in 1971. On Oct. 1, 1971, John Leslie moved to Rockport, into a house he'd bought in Key Allegro.

In those days, he was still introducing himself as "John L. Leslie" — and "people would invariably remember the name as John L. Lewis" because of the labor leader who was then much in the news. So in self-defense, drawing on the "title" he'd used when he was in real estate in Austin, he began introducing himself as "Uncle John."

In Rockport, Uncle John continued his Scouting activities, working with all of the area troops as well as Cub Scout packs. He is still registered on the Troop Committee for Boy Scout Troop 49 here and has been honored for his more than 60 years of active service with the Boy Scouts.

He has earned other honors as well: In 1976, he was designated the "Outstanding Old Texan" and last year, in May, he was doubly honored at the Senior Citizens' May Fair in Corpus Christi, named the Outstanding Senior Citizen not only for Aransas County but for the entire area served by the May Fair's sponsors, the Coastal Bend Council of Governments.

John and his wife Dorothy (whom he married in 1972) are active members of the First Presbyterian Church (he served as deacon for one session) and the Eastern Star. Uncle John has been a Mason for 50 years. And he and Dorothy have been members of the Coastal Bend Hospital Auxiliary for six years.

Uncle John was on the first Coastal Bend COG committee to organize activities for senior citizens in this area and helped organize the Aransas County Council on Aging, serving on the COA board for "a couple of years."

He is a charter member of the Rockport Chapter of AARP, served on the United Fund board of directors for about three years.

And he writes. He has handled publicity for various organizations, including for the auction held in 1978 to raise money for the Aransas County Medical Services Inc.

He wrote his first column for the Rockport Pilot in 1976, calling it "Watch Rockport Grow." Later the name was changed to "Nit Pickins" and still later to "In a Different Vein."

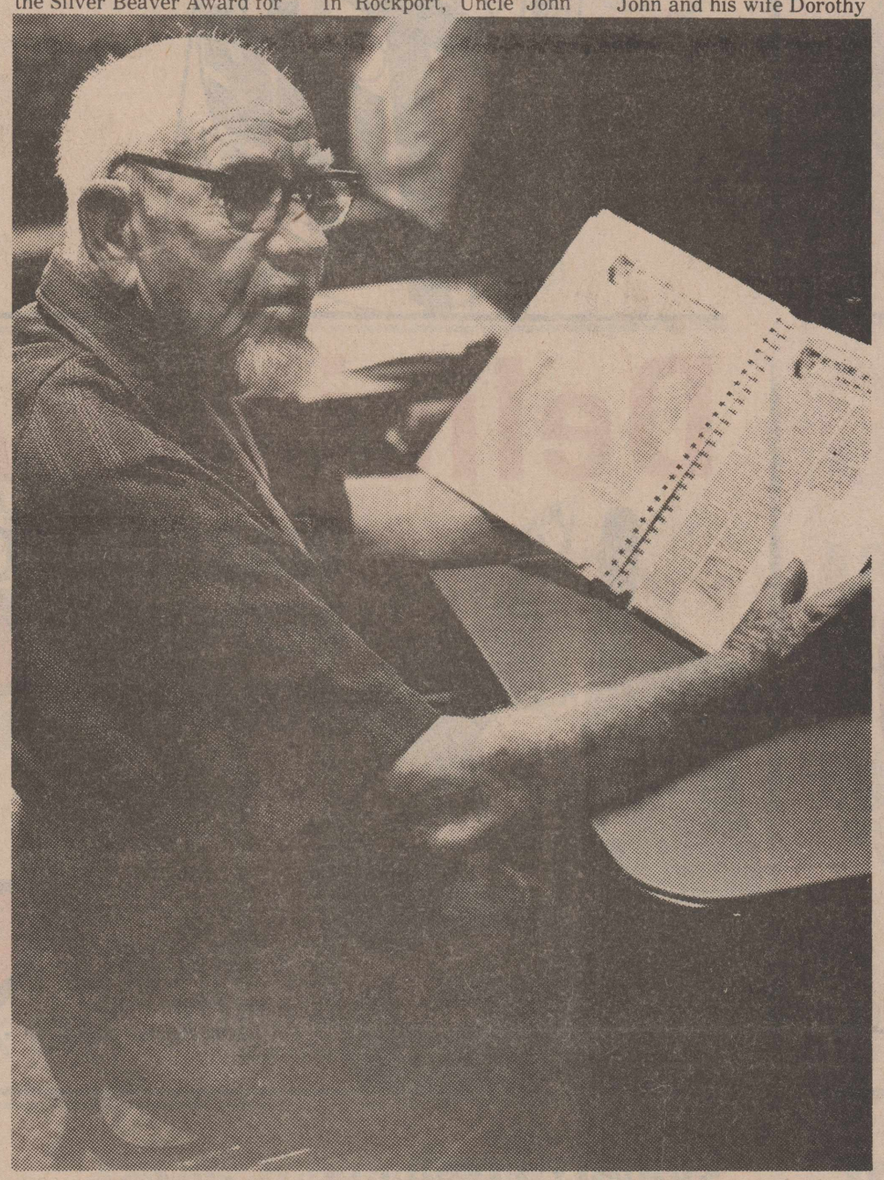

All of his writings, under whatever title, he said, were all based on a single thought: "to write things that would be helpful to the community and make Rockport a cleaner and better place to live."

To the children of the community, he is better known, not as "Uncle John" but another elderly gentleman who makes his rounds once a year — Santa Claus.

Referring to it as "one of my charitable hobbies," Uncle John says he puts in three or four appearances as Santa Claus a year — and thoroughly enjoys it.

And the common thread that has run through his life? He comes back to that, too: "I found out way back and still believe it — the good Lord pulls my strings.

"Everything that's happened, the good Lord's pulled my strings all the way through my life. That," he says, "is the key."

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO HOLD A PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING THE APPROVAL OF AN ISSUE OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT REVENUE BONDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Commissioners of Aransas County Navigation District Number One (the "District") will convene at the Aransas County Navigation District Building, Rockport Basin adjacent to Rockport Harbor, Rockport, Texas 78382, at 7:30 PM, on the 20th day of December, 1983, for the purpose of holding a public hearing regarding the approval of the issuance of industrial development revenue bonds in the aggregate principal amount of $565,000 by the District. The bond will mature serially on April 15, in each year from 1985 through 1999. The District will use the proceeds of the bonds to (i) make certain electrical improvements at Rockport Harbor; (ii) add a pier in the north basin of Fulton Harbor to provide additional boat slips (30 to 40 foot boats with 15 foot beams). Through the addition of such pier 48 new slips will be constructed and 8 existing slips will be destroyed, for a net gain of 40 additional slips; and (iii) add a new pier in the north basin of Rockport Harbor to provide additional boat slips (20 to 30 foot boats with 8 foot beams). Through the addition of such pier 43 additional slips will be constructed. Any proceeds remaining after making the above-described improvements will be used to pay the costs of dredging, landfill and bulkheading at Cove Harbor and other general harbor improvements. Rockport Harbor is located across from the Rockport City Hall adjacent to Broadway Street. Fulton Harbor is located at the north end of Casterline Drive, Fulton, Texas. The Cove Harbor is located 2 miles south of Rockport on State Highway 35. The District will own the facilities constructed with the proceeds of the bonds. All interested persons are invited to attend the public hearing and will be given an opportunity to address the questions of whether the District should issue its bonds and contract the above-described facilities.

Questions, requests for additional information, or written comments regarding the issuance of the District's bonds or the construction of the facilities may be directed to Mr. Hillis Dominguez, Chairman; Aransas County Navigation District Number One; Rockport Harbor; Rockport, Texas 78382.

Tripletail one of the Gulf's oddest fish

Tripletails are one of the more unusual fish of the Texas Gulf Coast. While usually found offshore, several large tripletails recently were caught by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department personnel during a routine net and trawl sampling in Corpus Christi Bay.

Biologist Jerry Mambretti said the fish have the unusual habit of lying motionless on their sides under or around floating debris. "While they appear lethargic, they can dart swiftly to catch bait fish or a baited hook," Mambretti noted. The larger ones are excellent table fare, he added.

Three first teamers, 11 others picked

All-District team named

All-District football selections were announced this week and Rockport-Fulton's Pirates had three first team All-District players, five second team choices and five players receiving honorable mention.

Dwayne Walls was a unanimous selection for the first team offense. Other district backs on the first team were Chris Zepeda of Sinton and James Brown from Robstown.

Guard Demetrius Lewis was the other offensive first team selection for Rockport-Fulton. Randy Rodriguez of Calallen was also selected as a first team guard.

Steve Arkell was selected for the first team defensive secondary, along with players from Beeville, Calallen, Sinton and Tuloso-Midway.

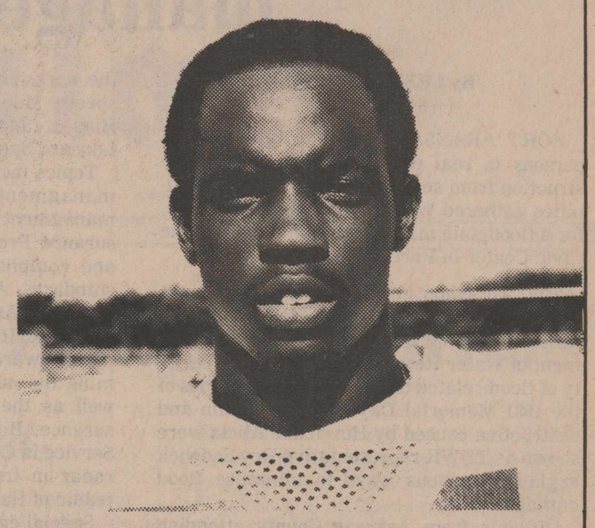

"I'm very pleased with the representation we had," stated head coach Aubrey Schulz. "Three first teamers is pretty good. The most they've ever had here before is one."

He added, "This was a reward for the whole team."

On the second team offense were Pirates David Cochran at end and back Scott Russ. Defensively, the Pirates had three men on the second team — linemen Tom Weaver and Chriss Hill and Russ on the secondary.

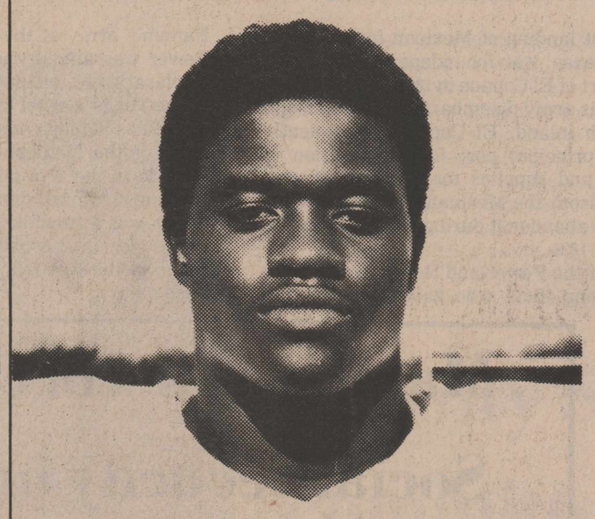

Honorable mention offense selections included Pirates Doyle Parr, Darren Gurley, Greg Shellenbergar and Weaver.

Honorable mention offense selections included end Bill Mott and linebacker Kevin Billeiter.

JV beats Wildcats, varsity boys take second loss

Disappointments for Rockport-Fulton's varsity and freshmen at the hands of Gregory-Portland were countered by an exciting 54-52 win from Ronnie Ormand's junior varsity squad in Monday night basketball action. The JV is now 2-0 for the season, while the 0-2 varsity has yet to hit its stride.

The Pirate freshmen, coached by Blake Edwards, played their first game of the season Monday and Gregory-Portland beat them 48-35.

"Our shooting was bad," said varsity coach Bobby Flanagan after Monday's 45-66 contest. "We pushed the ball up the floor well and got opportunities but just didn't take advantage of them." The Pirates had a 25 percent average from the floor and only 50 percent from the free throw line. "Eighty percent of our shots were from within 15 feet of the basket," said Flanagan. "We ought to have been hitting 40 or 45 percent."

High point men for the night were Trinelle Walls and Jay Turner. Walls had 10 points and Turner, 8. Only 22 rebounds were managed by the Pirates and Leon Thomas led with five of them.

Tied at 2-all seconds into the game was the closest the Pirates got to GP. Halfway through the first period, they trailed 9-3 and they closed the quarter out with 11 points to GP's 15.

Behind 26-34 at the half, the Pirates matched the Wildcats for speed but repeatedly lost their advantage at the net. Going out of the third at 37-50, the Pirates never caught up in the final quarter.

The junior varsity led GP all the way in the first two quarters and at the half enjoyed a 24-17 lead but the Cats closed in and it was a tough fourth period for the JV. The lead changed hands nine times during the final quarter and the Pirates were trailing 47-52 with a minute left in play. Brent Boone's free throw attempts with 18 seconds left were successful and RF trailed by only one point when Jesse Avila made the shot of the night to put the team over with three seconds left on the clock.

Avila led the team with 18 points. Todd Billeiter had 17 points and 13 rebounds. Mark Garcia had nine points and six rebounds.

In third place was the team of Bill Dahman, Woody Woodson, Leon Hoffmeister, Vivian Brooks and Katy Bean.

"Amazingly ambitious"

Redfish release successful

In June of this year, 2.3 million 1- to 2-inch fingerling redfish (more popularly known as red drum or channel bass by Atlantic Coast anglers) were released in Espiritu Santo Bay.

This event culminated an amazingly ambitious and highly successful effort involving an unlikely consortium of cooperators including the Gulf Coast Conservation Association (GCCA), a Houston-based sportsmen's group; Central Power and Light Company (CP&L) a privately-owned public utility; the Texas State Legislature and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TP&WD).

The Espiritu Santo Bay redfish and an additional 1.8 million fingerling redfish stocked in Nueces Bay in mid September, were reared in the newly completed John Wilson Hatchery.

Land for the hatchery, located at Pine Bluff near the outskirts of Corpus Christi, was donated by CP&L. Water for the hatchery also is supplied by CP&L, from an adjacent 1,130-acre cooling lake.

Funding for the $1.4 million hatchery was provided by the 15,000-member GCCA. This same organization originated and spearheaded passage of the so-called "Redfish Bill" through the Texas Legislature in 1981. That legislation prohibits the sale of redfish and spotted sea trout taken in Texas waters.

The hatchery is operated by TP&WD, utilizing techniques developed at the Palacios Marine Laboratory. The exceptionally high production of redfish fingerlings achieved at the facility is attributed, in part, to the ideal 68 degrees F. winter water temperatures provided by the cooling lake. Appropriate manipulation of light and water temperature regimes make it possible to obtain multiple spawns from the captive brood fish enabling production of several fingerling crops per year at the hatchery.

TP&WD fishery managers plan to utilize the redfish fingerlings, heretofore unavailable in large numbers, to bolster wild redfish stocks decimated by years of overfishing throughout the marine ecosystem.

Prior to prohibition of commercial harvest by the Texas legislature in 1981, the mortality rate of redfish that survived the first year was an unsustainable 85 percent.

Area officials attend floodplain management workshop

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

PORT ARANSAS — Public officials and persons in real estate, insurance and construction from several Coastal Bend communities gathered Wednesday evening, Nov. 30, for a floodplain management workshop at the Civic Center in Port Aransas.

The workshop, presented by the Texas Department of Public Safety Flood Insurance Assistance Program and the Texas Department of Water Resources, addressed a variety of flood-related topics. In addition, slides of the 1981 Memorial Day Flood in Austin and destruction caused by Hurricane Alicia were shown as TDWR representative Roy Sedwick explained various ways to minimize flood damage.

Officials from Aransas County attending the workshop included Rockport Building Inspector Mike Henry, Fulton Secretary Lucille Hinson and Aransas County Sanitarian Leonard Specht.

Topics included city and county floodplain managment programs, local floodplain managment under the National Flood Insurance Program, community performance and compliance in floodplain management standards. Ashley Eledge, administrator for the Flood Assistance Insurance Program for the Department of Public Safety, stressed public awareness and ways to go about informing the public of the dangers of floods as well as the necessity of national flood insurance. Bill Hair of the National Weather Service in Corpus Christi explained the use of radar in tracking storms and warning the public of flash flood conditions.

Special emphasis was given to the building code in A Zones, which are the most prone to frequent flooding, and coastal V (velocity) Zones which are subject to velocity flooding during hurricanes. Sedwick explained how most of the hurricane damage caused by Alicia could have been prevented by proper construction techniques with hurricane-velocity winds and water in mind.

Sedwick also showed various ways of controlling flooding in developed areas through barriers which control the speed of the flood waters and others which divert surging water. He also explained several early warning systems which are being developed to aid residents of flash flood areas.

A variety of pamphlets and information materials were passed out to those attending. Additional information is available from the Department of Public Safety.

want help and volunteers — and especially, we want ideas'' for Sesquicentennial projects.

The area that was to become Aransas County was colonized in 1829 by James Powers and Dr. James Hewetson, originally as the Refugio Colony, and the area played a significant role during Texas' war for independence.

The first landing of Mexican forces at the start of Texas' war for independence was at the old port of El Copano in 1835 when General Cos and his army disembarked there to begin his march inland. El Copano subsequently was the principal port for introduction of material and supplies for the Texans until pressure from the Mexican Army forced the Texans to abandon it during the latter part of February 1836.

Many of the Power and Hewetson colonists were among those who gave their lives in Fannin's army at the Goliad Massacre, and Power was among the signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence in March 1836.

The Texas War for Independence can be regarded as having come to a close with the retreat of the Mexican army across the Rio Grande in the summer of 1836, but sporadic fighting continued during the nine years that Texas was a republic. Lamar is the only one of the coastal townsites created during the years of the Republic that remains in existence today.

Many issues will confront Social Security in future

By ERIC R. KINGSON
(Last of 14 parts)

Facing problems squarely, as in 1983, is a good first step in improving public confidence in Social Security. We must also accept that as the economy and society changes, adjustments will be needed in Social Security. But these changes do not mean the program is in deep trouble.

Here are some of the major issues in Social Security and related programs that will need to be addressed in the future.

Financing Medicare — To a large extent, Medicare's financing problem is a result of a health care system that is virtually without cost controls. The solution, therefore, requires more than simply increasing revenues or decreasing program expenditures. Ultimately, we will probably move toward a better planned health care system with regulations to control health care costs and ensure quality care.

Still, to maintain the commitment to all who are or will be aged or disabled, increased tax revenues will be needed for Medicare.

Using general revenues to finance a portion of the Hospital Insurance program would move Social Security away from excessive reliance on a tax that places a heavier burden than the personal income tax on persons with lower incomes.

The best estimates show that there will be a shortfall in Medicare's Hospital Insurance Trust Fund beginning about 1990. It makes sense to develop policies now that will provide general revenue financing of the Hospital Insurance program beginning in the late 1980s.

Improving Supplemental Security Income benefits — The economic status of aged and disabled persons has improved greatly over the past 25 years. But about 3.8 million persons 65 and over — 14.6 percent — have incomes below the official poverty threshold — $4,630 for an aged individual and $5,840 for an aged couple in 1982.

Supplemental Security Income is the federal program for the low-income blind, disabled and aged. The simplest way to eliminate poverty among the aged and disabled would be to increase SSI benefits to the poverty level. This is a modest and attainable goal.

Women and Social Security — Resolving the Social Security problems of special concern to women will require additional revenues. Some modified earnings sharing proposals are likely to be debated shortly. But more than that will be needed if the very severe economic problems of some of today's older women are to be addressed because, for example, current low-income widows will not benefit from earnings sharing.

Administrative excesses in the disability program — Controversy has surrounded the intitial removal of more than 360,000 persons from the Disability Insurance program since March 1981. These terminations have been referred to as a "wholesale purge of the disability rolls'' and a "holocaust against the mentally impaired.'' We should learn from the recent excesses in the disability reviews, that neither the public nor Congress will tolerate a lack of fairness and compassion in the administration of Disability Insurance or other Social Security programs.

The eligibility age — The 1983 Amendments legislated an increase in the age of eligibility for full retirement, widows' and widowers', and spouses' benefits from age 65 to 67, over a 27-year period beginning in 2000. This was one of the most controversial aspects of the new law.

Undoubtedly, the decision to increase the age of eligibility for full benefits will be reviewed before the gradual phasing in of new ages begins in 2000. Debate will also continue over how to protect those who leave work in their late 50s and early 60s, primarily because of health problems or unemployment.

President Franklin Roosevelt and other framers of the Social Security Act had a vision of a social insurance program that would eventually expand to provide protection against major risks experienced by all Americans. Social Security now includes substantial retirement, survivors' and disability benefits as well as health insurance benefits for the aged and disabled.

Will Social Security expand to include new forms of protection? No one really knows. But assuming the economy grows, at even modest rates, then as a nation we will be able to afford more Social Security as time goes on. Over the long run it is probable we will choose to add some programs like long-term care insurance, national health insurance or extend Medicare protection to new groups like children.

No one knows what the future will bring. But the fact that Social Security has consistently been able to respond to changing social conditions and unexpected economic events is one of its great strengths. That should be a source of confidence in this essential American institution.

Hermann Lungkwitz works are showcased in exhibit

SAN ANTONIO — The work of Hermann Lungkwitz, ordinary man and Texas landscapist extraordinaire, is showcased in the exhibit "Hermann Lungkwitz: German Romantic Landscapist on the Texas Frontier'' at The University of Texas Institute of Texan Culture continuing through Jan. 8.

Ninety-five of Lungkwitz's drawings and paintings, on loan from public and private collections around the nation, are featured in the exhibit-which coincides with the publication of a book on Lungkwitz's life and work by James Patrick McGuire, director of program management at the Institute.

Though he was largely unrecognized during his life, Lungkwitz left a legacy of Texas landscapes in pencil, watercolor and oil. His work is considered a cornerstone in the state's cultural development, for he is the first artist trained in the classical romantic tradition to paint Texas settings.

Lungkwitz is credited also with providing the state with its first collection of both artistically and historically significant landscapes.

Born in 1813 in Germany, Lungkwitz immigrated to America in 1850 and settled on a farm in Fredericksburg near the Pedernales River. An artist by trade and training in his native land, he soon found that he could not support himself and his family through his art in the New World. For many years he struggled with the unruly and unfamiliar land to wrest from it a living, and was only moderately successful.

But after the chores were done each day, this Texas pioneer busied himself with pioneering work of a different sort. Drawing upon his extensive training at the Royal Academy of Art in Dresden, Lungkwitz set about capturing on canvas the wild, rugged beauty of the Texas frontier.

No artist before him had chosen to portray the Texas countryside quite as Lungkwitz did: as a pastoral paradise — pristine, delicately detailed and serenely picturesque.

Consistent with the tenets of the classical romantic tradition, a love of nature and an appreciation of its force and beauty are evident in Lungkwitz's work.

An admirer of Lungkwitz, Dr. Samuel E. Gideon of The University of Texas at Austin, wrote in 1918, "The work showed the man to be a faithful student and lover of nature, a careful draughtsman with a wonderful sense of color and the gift to select simple but beautiful compositions.

"His Fredericksburg pictures showed that he had caught the spirit of the country, the intense blue of the Texas sky and the peaceful character of the bowl-shaped, flat-topped hills. He put all the majesty into the stately cypresses, into the twisted and gnarled live oak trees, and caught the color of the outcropping granite and sandstone boulders.''

Another aspect of the romantic style is its emphasis on representational rather than abstract or fanciful treatment of subjects. Lungkwitz's work shares this characteristic.

Because he painted the Texas countryside as he saw it, a realistic view of the state in frontier times is not lost today. As McGuire writes, "Lungkwitz's works are visual documents as well as art.''

Within his lifetime, Lungkwitz never received acclaim as an artist, yet his art enriched the cultural heritage of his adopted Texas for all time. Both the book and exhibit pay a long-deserved tribute to Lungkwitz, German romantic artist and Texas frontiersman.

''Hermann Lungkwitz: German Romantic Landscapist on the Texas Frontier'' is made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Funding for McGuire's book, ''Hermann Lungkwitz: Romantic Landscapist on the Texas Frontier,'' was provided by the Brown Foundation Inc. of Houston, the Enda Fuege Faust Memorial Trust, First National Bank of New Braunfels, Wurstfest Association of New Braunfels and numerous private donations.

For more information on the exhibit or book, contact the Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294, (512) 226-7651.

The Institute is a statewide communications and learning center concerned with the ethnic, cultural and folk history of Texas, and is located at the corner of Bowie Street and Durango Boulevard on HemisFair Plaza in downtown San Antonio.

Chamber singers appear in concert

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Corpus Christi State University Chamber Singers will present a varied program of vocal music at 8:15 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, in Center for the Arts Warren Theatre. Admission is free.

Conducted by Sam Logsdon, assistant professor of music, the Chamber Singers will perform selections from the 16th century through contemporary compositions. These include: "If Ye Love Me, Keep My Commandments'' by T. Tallis; "In Manus Taus'' by S. de Vivanco; "Missa Quinti Toni'' by Lassus; "De Profudis'' by F.X. Witt; and "Adoramus Te'' by Q. Gasparini.

Also on the program are "Liebeslieder Walzer, Opus 52'' and "Neuve Liebeslieder Walzer, Opus 65'' by Brahms and "Airs and Rounds'' by J. Berger.

Accompanist for the Chamber Singers is Elizabeth Krouse; she will be assisted by Cheryl Pearson for this concert.

Members of the ensemble include sopranos Levinia Davila, Rona Hester, Ruby Justilian, Donna Raabe and Lisa Williams; altos Lou DeLaune, Mary Justice, Regina Odom and Constance Wendell; tenors Jimmy Mircovich, Raymond Shores, David Trevino and Jess Wicker; and basses Severo Garza, Jack Oney, Pat Reid and Pepper Sullivan.

Transportation service meets needs

State of the region

By JULIET K. WENGER
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

Gradually, transportation is becoming more available in the Coastal Bend to those who for reasons of health, age or finances cannot drive private vehicles.

The new availability of transportation in localized areas is being made possible through federal funds in the form of rural transportation grants which are administered by the Texas Highway Department.

The Beeville Community Action Agency is the latest applicant for such a grant. Its plans were recently presented to the Council of Governments Human Resources Committee.

The application is for $268,707, which will be matched with other CAA funds for a budget of $448,147. Coordinating with systems operated by San Patricio County and Victoria CAAs, the transportation would serve residents of Bee, Live Oak, Refugio, Goliad, McMullen, Victoria and Calhoun counties.

Dispatching sites would be in Beeville and Victoria. From the Sinton site of the San Patricio CAA, empty seats could be made available for passengers to be served.

The San Patricio Community Action Agency was the first in the Coastal Bend to establish a rural transportation system. It went into operation in February of this year with a $325,000 grant and local match of 20 percent of administrative costs and 50 percent of operating costs.

There are 11 vans and three cars in service. Dolores Cortez, who administers the program, says they try to operate the vehicles at full capacity. There are satellite offices in Mathis and Taft and a van stays in Mathis.

The vehicles carry residents of San Patricio and Aransas counties from one part of their own community to another, from one community to another within the county or to Corpus Christi. A fee is charged of 25 cents one way within a community and 50 cents for the longer trips.

The vehicles are making 3,500 to 4,000 one way trips a week. If there is an urgent need for a trip of one or two people, say for kidney dialysis, then a small car is available to make the trip economical.

A new transportation system began in Jim Wells County this month. The Rural Economic Assistance League, REAL, received a $120,000 grant. With a $60,000 match, the operation began with three vans and three personal cars, serving Alice, Premont and Orange Grove. The REAL board of directors is to establish a fee schedule.

All these systems operate under guidelines set by the state. They carry the general public where there is no commercial transportation available. Their priorities are to serve the elderly, the handicapped, youth and the economically disadvantaged.

The usual mode of operation is to establish a fixed schedule with trips on certain days within towns and other days between towns. Those wanting transportation call 24 hours in advance.

These systems are filling needs that have been shown to exist in surveys and public hearings held by the COG over the last 10 years. All of the studies had determined that previous systems, to the extent that they existed, were not cost-effective as they provided transportation for only one category of persons, the elderly, the blind, the mentally retarded.

Vans traveled half empty because of limitations by guideline. Numerous duplications existed.

The new systems are allowing coordination of transportation among service programs as well as serving the isolated.

Linda Rogers

Lingerie shop opens in Rockport

Attention ladies! Rockport, at last, has its very own lingerie shop. Thanks to Petticoat Parlor, located downtown on Austin Street, area women no longer have to shop for lingerie in department stores.

Owned and operated by Linda Rogers, a five-year resident of Rockport, Petticoat Parlor carries a wide selection of panties, bras, loungewear, sleepwear, nightshirts, baby dolls, garters, slips, teddies, camisoles and robes. Olga is the shop's main line but Rogers also carries the provocative Darling line and the all-cotton Sermoneta line.

In addition to lingerie, Petticoat Parlor also carries bath soaps and oils and body glitter, as well as a colorful selection of handmade semiprecious jewelry, including twist beads.

Open since just before Thanksgiving, Petticoat Parlor is designed to serve a wide range of lingerie needs. Visa and Mastercard are accepted and a layaway plan is available for those of you thinking about Christmas.

Petticoat Parlor is located on Austin Street next to CP&L. Business hours are from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and the phone number is 729-8903.

More than a floor store.

S.S. office has many services

The network of more than 1,300 Social Security offices around the country makes the services of the Social Security Administration convenient to everyone. However, many people may not be fully aware of the range of services available from the Social Security office.

In general, there are six times when a person should get in touch with a Social Security office—to apply for a Social Security number: when they stop work and wish to apply for retirement benefits, if someone in the family dies, if someone in the family becomes too disabled to work for a year or more, at 65 even if the person does not retire or if someone in the family suffers permanent kidney failure.

Processing claims for retirement, survivors, and disability benefits and helping people with their Medicare claims are a large part of the Social Security office's volume of business.

The Social Security office also handles claims for supplemental security income (SSI) which makes payments to people who are 65 and over or blind or disabled with limited income and resources.

Many of the some 3.9 million persons receiving SSI nationwide are also among the 36 million people receiving Social Security benefits. SSI payments are paid from Federal general revenues, not from Social Security taxes.

Although Medicare bills are paid by insurance companies that serve as "intermediaries" for the Government, the Social Security office processes the original application for Medicare which establishes eligibility. And people can call the Social Security office if they have problems with their claims for Medicare reimbursement of medical bills.

Besides handling claims-related problems, the Social Security office is also geared to respond with just about any kind of help a person needs in understanding his or her rights and responsibilities under the programs it administers. This activity may range from answering general inquiries about Social Security or SSI to helping people check the earnings credited to their Social Security record or changing their names in Social Security records.

The Social Security office has a variety of informational materials that are useful to organizations, schools, groups, and other agencies interested in informing people about specific aspects of the Social Security programs. These include leaflets, films, slides, and news stories and columns suitable for newsletters and organizational publications. Social Security representatives are also available as speakers for any program a group may wish to sponsor.

In recent years a number of private publishers have published books on Social Security. Some advertisements have offered to provide Social Security information for a fee. However, all information about Social Security benefits and programs are provided by the Social Security office without charge.

Most Social Security matters can be handled by telephone. In fact, it's a good idea to call first before coming to the office. That way we may save you a trip. If your business is not urgent, it is best to arrange your call so as to avoid peak Social Security business hours. The best time to call is in the afternoon during the latter half of the month. Our number is 888-3492.

Parson Jones

I was telling a young drug addict about God, and guess what he said. "God is a strange Dude!" That's what he said. "God is Mr. Big, and you tell me He's willing to slum around with the likes of me ... He's gotta be strange," said the young fella. I got to thinking about what he said ... and it's so.

Just think ... God made the planets and orbits to stick them in, and sent them whirling around for millions of years, and He didn't even graduate from high school. God made the rose ... petals, stem, color, smell and all. It's alive! And, He didn't even get through the 7th grade. He made atoms and cells and chromosomes, and God never went to school. Just think ... the Almighty makes cut fingers heal, broken bones grow back, kidneys purify blood, and tears heal the soul, and He's not even licensed with the AMA ... because He never went to medical school.

It has come to my attention that the Almighty is way ahead of both America and Russia in its knowledge of space, although one cannot find any reference of this in human writings. In fact, I hear that He considers some of our space technology as rather childish. Strange, considering He never studied the subject in any of our institutions.

Perhaps, strangest of all is His slumming tendencies. While we espouse the theory that "birds of a feather flock together," God likes to hang around lesser creatures. He seems to have a rather sloppy attitude about His wealth! (Everybody knows it's good to get all the money you can, save some, and spend the rest on yourself.) God gives everything away, and seems to thoroughly enjoy the reckless process. When He made a major trip to the planet earth, He holed up in a barn instead of a swanky hotel.

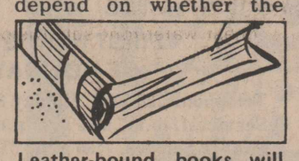

Like the guy said, "God is a strange Dude!"

INVESTIGATE FLOOD PLAIN INFORMATION BEFORE BUYING

The Army Corps of Engineers has prepared maps showing flood prone zones caused by watersheds in metropolitan areas.

The maps indicate land in the 100- and 500-year flood plain, but do not designate the areas of more frequent flooding. Consequently, when you hear of property that is in the 100-year flood plain, investigate further to discover the actual estimated flooding frequency.

You may call the Corps of Engineers' regional offices for flood plain infoirmation about specific locations, but remember flood plains may change as land is developed.

Most homes in flood prone areas qualify for national flood insurance. Many lenders will require homeowners to purchase flood insurance as a condition to granting a mortgage loan in a flood prone area. Contact your insurance agent for more information.

TWO RULES DICTATE LIABILITY FOR WATER RUNOFF

Texas has adopted the Civil Law Rule regarding the liability of a landowner who interferes with the flow of runoff water across property.

Basically the landowner is strictly liable for diverting or impounding surface runoff in a way that injures a neighbor's land. However, this rule applies only to rural property.

The Texas Supreme Court has applied the American Law Institute Rule to urban property. Here, the liability of the person diverting the flow of surface drainage depends on whether or not the act is intentional. If an unintentional but substantial invasion of land should occur, the liability will depend on whether the conduct was negligent, reckless or ultrahazardous. On the other hand, if injury was caused intentionally, the liability will depend on whether or not the invasion was unreasonable.

If you have a specific question about this topic, contact an attorney.

IMPROVED RENTAL REAL ESTATE PROVIDES TAX SHELTER

One of the best ways to reduce your income tax burden is to acquire improved rental real estate. Why? Buildings acquired in 1981 and after can be depreciated over a 15-year life.

Generally, the entire building cost can be depreciated, regardless of the amount of cash invested. Even though it is a non-cash expense, depreciation is tax deductible. Often, deductions for depreciation, interest and maintenance expenses exceed rental income. This generates tax losses which shelter other income. This can reduce your income tax burden.

If you are considering the purchase of depreciable real estate, be careful to determine whether there will be cash flow. If none is expected, estimate whether the proposed investment is worthwhile and be sure you can subsidize the project using cash from other sources.

TEXAS COMMUNITY PROPERTY LAWS UNIQUE

Texas is one of a few community property states and its laws in this regard are unique. Much of the property acquired by a couple during their marriage is owned by the husband and wife equally and is referred to as community property.

Real estate previously acquired and held in other states and personal property brought to Texas remains the separate property of newcomers if it was separate when acquired. But each asset may lose its separate character through changes in its form or if it is mixed with community property receipts. A new resident's personal property is judged under Texas law without regard to the state in which the marriage occurred or where the asset was originally acquired.

If you have brought separate property to Texas and want it to remain separate from your spouse's, it can be done but good records will need to be kept. Contact an attorney for further information.

HOT WATER CONSERVATION CAN LOWER UTILITY BILLS

Winter is not far off, and that means you will probably be using more hot water. Here are some suggestions to help keep your utility bill from matching your water temperature.

First repair your leaky faucets. A leak of one drop per second can waste more than 50 gallons of heated water each month. Also, turn down your thermostat. Water at 120 degrees or lower may be adequate for the needs of your household. If you have plenty of water pressure in your hot water system, you may want to install flow restrictors. A flow restrictor can substantially reduce the amount of water you use for your morning shower.

Finally, keep your hot water tank clean by draining it every few months. Remember, hot water conservation practices might be just the thing to help you keep your cool when the utility bill arrives.

'He will reveal Himself'

The Shepherd's staff

By the Rev.
BARRETT RENFRO,
Pastor, First United Methodist Church

He came as one unknown. He was born in obscurity and grew up in the "no place" little town of Nazareth. By the sea of Galilee, he asked fishermen who didn't know him to follow. When his ministry began with healings, people asked, "Who is this?"

When his authority was manifest in teachings and forgiveness, they asked again, "Who is this?" On trial before Pilate, he was asked, "Are you the king?" Risen from the dead, he was not recognized.

It is not strange then that John the Baptist, the best seer of all the prophets of his generation, asked from the darkness of a prison cell, "Are you he who is to come?" The evidence that he is God among us is convincing only to those who have eyes to see.

Messengers still come to us in prison darkness saying, "Let us tell you what we've seen; the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, the poor are hearing good news."

He comes to you and me as one unknown. He comes to this world in Advent 1983 as one unknown. In obscure places, on some little street, in some little village, in some forgotten cell unnoticed and unheeded, the unknown Christ is revealed again.

This One, who is the very presence of God among us, asks two things of those He meets. "Follow." "Go and tell."

Albert Sweitzer wrote, "To those who obey Him, whether they be wise or simple, He will reveal Himself in the toils, the conflicts, the sufferings which they shall pass through in His fellowship, and, as a great mystery, they shall learn in their own experience who He is."

Changed lives through God

Film to be shown here

The Gospel Lighthouse on Hwy. 35 South in Rockport will show a motion picture release of International Prison Ministry, "Changed Lives in San Quentin," at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4.

Actually filmed inside the prison, this documentary features the stories of four notorious criminals. Interviews conducted by Art Linkletter and the director of IMP, Chaplain Ray, focus on rehabilitation as a result of conversion to Christianity.

From inside the gas chamber Jerry Graham says, "I came very close to ending it all right here." In stark contrast to his life of crime, he now directs a ranch for abused children.

James Williams served time in San Quentin after a gun battle with police. Now he's employed by a criminal justice organization teaching men "the way to go out," as he puts it.

Another changed life is George Meyer, Al Capone's favorite driver. Now 74, he counsels teenagers about the evils of drug abuse.

And Jack Burbridge, once an enforcer for organized crime, is now a preacher. The film concludes with a look inside the gas chamber.

The film is free to the public.

Church bazaar is set

Gospel Lighthouse is hosting a bazaar from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, at the VFW Hall in Rockport.

A highlight of the event will be a turkey giveaway, and One Hair Place in Live Oak Plaza will donate all of Saturday's proceeds to the Bazaar.

Arts, crafts, plants, homemade baked goods, candies, tamales and "white elephant" items will be featured in the sale.

Taits will speak at Victory Chapel

Kimberly and Ivan Tait, part of Praise Ministries International, will lead services at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, at Victory Chapel on Hwy. 35 South.

Called "ministers of God's glory," the Taits bring a message of praise, power and restoration to the church. Ivan has ministered at conventions and seminars and is planning a ministry to Europe.

Praise Ministries International originated in Scotland, and tapes and albums are available featuring not only Ivan's teachings but music by the internationally-known Camerons.

"The Taits are being mightily used of God wherever they minister," says the Rev. Boyce Laqua, pastor of Victory Chapel. He urges the public to "come expecting a total worship and spiritual experience, all to the glory of God."

Blanco Baptist men to meet

The Blanco Baptist Men's Association will meet at the First Baptist Church in Refugio Monday, Dec. 5.

The meal will begin at 6 p.m. followed by the program at 7:15 p.m. The "Kans for Kids" will be gathered at this meeting to take to the South Texas Children's Home for Christmas.

Story of Methodist children's home to be televised

A network of 24 television stations across Texas and New Mexico has been assembled to broadcast the story of one of United Methodism's most successful children's homes, The Methodist Home in Waco.

"The Sunshine Tree' will be broadcast on Corpus Christi station KZTV (Channel 10) starting at 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4.

The 30-minute television program takes the viewer through a dramatic tour of Methodist Home's main campus, boy's ranch and into a foster care home.

" 'The Sunshine Tree' is the story of children in America and the tremendous needs of those children. It's the story of children caught up in the chaos of divorce, economics and emotional pressures, with mothers trying to raise children on their own. It's the story of the unique and innovative work being done by the Methodist Home in response to those needs," said the Rev. Thomas A. Strother, director of development for the Home.

The television narrative begins under a giant oak tree on the 130-acre campus with the Rev. Jack Kyle Daniels recounting how he, years ago as a child at the Home, came to this shaded spot for solitude and reflection. Daniels is today the administrator of The Methodist Home.

"The Sunshine Tree" is produced by the Wesleyan Satellite Network (WSNet) for The Methodist Home and broadcast on the 24-station network organized by WSNet. WSNet is the telecommunications ministry of the United Methodist Churches in Texas and New Mexico.

Bethany Christmas party Saturday

The Bethany Class of Rockport's First Baptist Church is having its Christmas party Saturday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m.

Class members and their husbands are invited to the Dale Pogues' home on Allen Street.

The Baptist Young Women will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, at the home of Debbie Hamm.

The Baptist Women will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6, for their Week of Prayer Meeting and a covered dish luncheon. The meeting and luncheon will be in First Baptist's fellowship hall.

A meeting of the First Baptist Church deacons is scheduled for 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4.

Turnbull dances lead in "The Nutcracker"

Hilton Turnbull of Rockport dances the lead role as the nephew of Drosselmeyer, the old magician, and the Nutcracker who becomes the Prince in the Corpus Christi Concert Ballet production of "The Nutcracker" to be presented in Beeville Saturday night, Dec. 3.

Hilton is one of eight Rockport dancers featured in the ballet which will begin at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Auditorium of Bee County College.

The Beeville performance is the second of two scheduled presentations by the ballet company which was to perform the ballet at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, in Jones Auditorium, Texas A&I University in Kingsville.

"The Nutcracker" marks Turnbull's third performance with the Corpus Christi Concert Ballet. A Rockport-Fulton High School freshman, Turnbull has danced in the 1982 CCCB performance of "Cappelia" and the 1983 performance of "Sleeping Beauty." In addition, he danced the role of the Tin Soldier in the Corpus Christi Ballet Academy's performance of "The Tin Soldier" in 1982, and the role of Friend of the Pied Piper in 1983's "The Pied Piper."

Dancing the role of Clara, the little girl whose enchanted Nutcracker becomes a Prince and takes her into a fantasy realm of glittering snowflakes, dancing candy canes and an army of mice, is Maebehe Garcia of Corpus Christi.

Other Rockport youngsters featured in the ballet include Dawn McMahon as a Marzipan Candy in the Kingdom of the Sweets, Christy Grunberger among the dancers in the Russian Variation and Angie Bracht dancing in the opening party scene as a friend of Clara's and one of the girls who comes to her Christmas party.

Four Rockport girls appear as toys who come to life under the magic spell in Act I of the ballet: Andrea Garcia as the Russian Marionnette Doll, Amy Bailey as the Harlequin Clown Doll, Maricela Zapata as the Cuddly Bunny and Carrie Silchenstedt as the Calico Cat.

All of the Rockport dancers received their training at the Ballet Academy of Rockport under direction of Nancy Sulik who is also director of the Corpus Christi Concert Ballet.

Guest artists in the ballet — Cynthia Anderson in the role of Sugarplum Fairy and Michael Bjerknes as the Cavalier — are former members of the Joffrey Ballet, and the cast is rounded out by more than 50 dancers and actors from throughout the region.

Set to the music of Tchaikovsky, "The Nutcracker" is the most well-known ballet in America and a Christmas classic.

Tickets to the performance may be purchased at the door.

Cat's ability to land on its feet is scientifically found to be true

By DR. HAP LUTZ

Since my last column on how cats land on their feet, new information has come to light that makes some of our past thinking outdated. So it seems appropriate to share with you the most recent developments on this fascinating phenomenon.

The factors that affect the cat's ability to right itself in a fall include distance of the fall, the size, weight, experience and age of the cat and the amount of warning the cat receives before it falls.

A heavy animal, for instance, will fall faster, requiring greater distance in order to right itself. The cat must have a minimum distance of about 12 inches to turn from a back-down to a back-up position.

Age is important because of its relationship to the development of muscle control. A young animal is likely to require a greater distance to right itself after a fall.

Humans can't consistently land on their feet from a fall; neither can dogs. Sport parachutists learn to control their bodies in order to prevent spinning but will tell you the body tends to fall somewhat head-first when out of control.

We all have a built-in "righting reflex" that tells us which way is up. It just seems to work better for the cat than for other animals. Fluid in the inner ear, responsible for the cat's equilibrium, will tell the animal what position his body is in.

To go from a back-down to a feet-down position, the cat will first extend his tail. Next, he will bring his feet in toward his body to prepare his body mass for rotation. Then, guided by his keen sense of equilibrium, the cat will rotate by first turning his head, then front feet then hind feet. His feet now under him, the cat straightens his legs and looks down in preparation for the landing.

Finally, the legs act as shock-absorbers, cushioning the body as the cat lands.

Theoretically the ability to land upright after a fall is a simple evolution of behavior.

Today we think of the action as instinctive. But at one time in the history of feline development, the ability probably did not exist in all cats.

From your pet's best friend, the one with a warm heart for cold noses.

Dress patterns that fit are Helen Brockman's aim

FORT WORTH — If Helen Brockman has her way, getting a perfectly fitted dress pattern will soon be as easy as punching a few measurements into a computer.

Her modular pattern system, which she hopes will be on the market within two years, is much like modular furniture in that it consists of parts that can be put together.

Brockman, retired now from a midwestern teaching career she began after retirement from the Fashion Institute in New York, was a recent visitor to Texas Christian University, where she spent several days measuring students and creating patterns for them.

In the 23 years she has been working on her modular pattern system, she has measured hundreds of women ranging from young teens to senior citizens. Working with the results, she thinks now her system is 95 percent complete.

Brockman, who graduated from the University of Iowa in 1926 with majors in Latin and Greek, has taught Latin, history and English, been a fashion designer, written books on radar for Bell Telephone Laboratories, been an efficiency expert for an insurance company, written a cookbook and finally authored "Theory of Fashion Design," a textbook used throughout the United States, Canada and England. After teaching in New York's Fashion Institute for nine years, she retired at the age of 65.

Then she started a new career, teaching at Kansas State University. She's retired from that now, though she still teaches several weeks a year to keep her hand in. The modular pattern system is yet another career, one that wouldn't be needed if Brockman lived in Taiwan or Ireland or some predictable.

Americans have become "mongrelized," she says, "and they will be so long as people marry for love instead of to produce symmetrical children."

When the Brockman system is ready for marketing, it will need a computer, a printer and a person who can accurately measure the clients. Skirt measurements are simple, she says, since she can provide a perfectly fitting pattern by knowing only the height, weight, waist measurement, the measurement 20 centimeters below the waistline and the length from that measurement to the floor in both back and front.

The bodice, on the other hand, requires eight measurements, and Brockman is still working on that.

Club plans covered dish luncheon

The Aransas County Woman's Club plans to hold a covered dish luncheon Tuesday, Dec. 13, members decided during the Monday, Nov. 28 card party.

Hostesses for the party were Win Smith, Phyllis McBride, Leona Kellum and Dorothy Keller. Tea was served by Jane Moren and coffee by Kellum.

Nine tables of canasta players and seven tables of bridge players enjoyed an afternoon of cards and refreshment. Bridge winners were Charlotte Kenedy and Mackalyn Franklin. Irene Hill and Chris Baskett took top honors in canasta. Barbara Hayes won the final tally.

Bon appetit!

By ANN THOMAS

Everyone who finds joy in creating culinary wonders (I call them that because I always wonder if what I create will turn out as pretty and as good to eat as the recipe and picture promise), loves to share the results. What better time to do so than the holidays?

Personally, I enjoy being creative in the comfort of my own kitchen rather than being pushed and shoved in overcrowded malls while attempting to find a gift that will fit . . . both in size and lifestyle.

While reflecting upon this the other day it occured to me that people who paint, embroider, knit or crochet are generally given to using their talents for gift giving. Why are good cooks so reluctant to do so? It further occured to me that perhaps they just hadn't given it a lot of thought. Let's take a few minutes to do that, shall we?

Make a list of all the people to whom you plan to give a gift. Do they entertain often, and if so, in what style? Does the person work outside the home? Do you know what their special food preferences are?

Now, go over our list of recipes and pick something you feel would be enjoyed the most. For instance, a friend or relative who has a sweet tooth would surely enjoy the magic fudge or chinese candy, friends who entertain on a large scale would no doubt enjoy the hors d'oeuvres, or Oriental pecans or perhaps the San Francisco bracer. The tea mix for your child's teacher would be nice, or if you have a friend in a nursing home it's always a welcome gift. A lady who entertains with afternoon teas could use the dainty and pretty angel wings and a male friend who likes to barbeque could put the bean relish to good cause.

See how simple it is? These are so easy to make and not that expensive (except for the pecans) that you may decide to add a few more people to your list than you had planned.

I hope you will enjoy these recipes as much as I do. They may do for you what they have done for me . . . put some special meaning back into the preparation of Christmas. Have fun!

ORIENTAL PECANS

6 tablespoons butter
1 pound pecan halves
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Preheat oven to 300 degrees F. Melt butter in ovenproof pan, add pecans and toss to coat. Bake for 30 minutes. Stir one or two times to prevent burning. Let cool for 2 minutes, then cover with remaining ingredients and toss well. Serve warm.

This produces 4 cups or will fill 4 8-ounce containers. Clear glass or china ginger jars make lovely packaging. Include directions to warm before serving. These can be stored airtight in a freezer up to 3 months.

C AND A HORS D'OEUVRES

2 teaspoons butter
12 ounces marinated artichoke hearts
½ medium onion, minced
1 medium clove of garlic, pressed
4 large eggs
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon dried oregano
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1/8 teaspoon Tabasco
½ pound sharp cheddar cheese, grated
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Grease a 7-inch by 11-inch glass baking dish with 2 teaspoons butter.

Drain marinade from one jar of artichokes into a small skillet. Saute onion and garlic in it for 5 minutes over medium heat. Set aside.

Drain the other jar of artichokes and chop the hearts finely. Beat the eggs lightly in a medium mixing bowl. Add bread crumbs and seasonings and mix well. Stir in the cheese, parsley, artichokes and onion mixture. Pour it into the baking dish and bake for 30 minutes. Remove and let stand 15 minutes before cutting. Cut into 1-inch squares. Yields 72.

Serve at room temperature or reheat in 300 degree oven 10 minutes. Can be made and wrapped in foil, storing in refrigerator 3 days or in freezer up to 3 months.

Include these directions if giving for gift. An appropriate size baking dish would be nice packaging. It could even be the throwaway foil type. Some plaid ribbon would dress it up.

SPICED TEA

This is so simple and may at first seem an unlikely gift, but so many of us enjoy it and do not take the time to assemble the ingredients and put them together. This will make up 3¼ cup of mix and would look pretty packaged in a cork topped, clear glass cannister. It makes 3 8-ounce gifts with a little left over for you.

⅔ cup instant tea
9 ounces Tang
3 ounces Wyler's lemonade mix
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Mix and store in airtight containers. Direct to add 1 level tablespoon to 6 ounces boiling water.

SAN FRANCISCO BRACER

Surprise! This is really hot buttered rum batter. And. I might add, some of the best you'll ever taste.

1 pound butter, room temperature
1 pound light or golden brown sugar
1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
1½ teaspoons freshly ground nutmeg

Beat the butter in a large bowl using electric beater at high speed. Gradually add brown sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add ice cream and nutmeg. Remove to 3 airtight 1-pint containers and store in refrigerator.

To make one serving use the following recipe:

1½ ounces light rum
1 heaping tablespoon batter
½ cup boiling water
Sprinkle with more nutmeg

For gift giving a glass topped, rubber ring-sealed fruit jar is very pretty. Add the directions on a card attached with bright ribbon. May store in refrigerator several weeks and in freezer indefinitely.

HOLIDAY CRANBERRIES

2 cups sugar
½ cup water
3 whole cloves
1 medium stick cinnamon
1 pound cranberries, washed and sorted
½ orange, finely chopped (rind and all)
½ cup brandy or cognac

In a heavy pan combine sugar and water and bring to a boil. Boil for 3 minutes without stirring. Add all ingredients except alcohol. Cook over low heat for 5 minutes until the berries begin to burst. Remove from heat and add alcohol.

When cool, remove cinnamon stick and place in containers. Makes 4 cups of relish. Small jars or serving dishes make nice packaging. Store in refrigerator for 1 month or in freezer for 6 months. Serve at room temperature with roast.

NEW YEAR'S DAY PEAS

Here's a neat little gift to give for Christmas to be used on New Year's Day.

It makes 3 cups, 3 8-ounce or 6 4-ounce gifts. Packaging could be a small fruit jar with a bow and party favor noise maker.

30 ounces black-eyed peas or 1½ cup dried and cooked
½ cup cooking oil
¼ cup red wine vinegar
1 large clove garlic, flattened
½ small onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper

Combine all the ingredients and leave in refrigerator 24 hours. Remove garlic. Put in soft containers. Can be kept in refrigerator 2 weeks.

MAGIC FUDGE

This is so easy and quick to make that you'll wonder how you ever got along without it. Cut it into as many squares as you like, it makes about 1¾ pounds. Package in little gift tins.

3 6-ounce packages semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 can sweetened condensed milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts (I use more, but that's up to you)

In the top of a double-boiler over boiling water, melt the chips. Remove and stir in remaining ingredients. Spread in buttered or wax-lined 8-inch by 8-inch dish or pan. Chill 2 hours.

Store in cool place. Do not allow to become too warm or it will melt.

CHINESE CANDY

Here is another quick and easy candy. It's also not very expensive to prepare. Use a gift tin or small serving dish for giving.

1 can chow mein noodles
2 packages butterscotch chips
1 cup salted peanuts

Melt the chips in top of double boiler, add noodles and nuts. Drop onto waxed paper.

INVERTED THIRTY HOT STUFF

This recipe was given to me by my mom. It was prepared on my great-grandfather's ranch so the cowhands could dress up the red beans that were so much a part of trail drive chuck wagon meals. It's been adapted for today's use.

1 can tomatoes, mashed
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspon salt
½ cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon chili powder

Mix and cook slowly in a skillet until thick and brown. Serve on red, pinto or navy beans.

Can package in small jars or little bean pot. You may even include a small package of dried beans. Will keep in refrigerator for several days.

ANGEL WINGS

These are so pretty. They must be stored in airtight containers so choose your gift container accordingly.

Beat together until soft peaks have formed: Whites from 2 large eggs, a pinch of salt and ½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Gradually add and continue beating until soft peaks form: ¾ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon green food coloring. Fold in: 1 package mint-flavored, semi-sweet chocolate chips.

Drop by the teaspoon onto a baking sheet covered with waxed paper. Place in a preheated oven 375 degrees F. and turn off the heat at once. Leave overnight and do not open the oven door. Makes 3 dozen.

An equally delicious altertive for those who do not care for the flavor of mint is to use plain chocolate chips and 2 heaping tablespoons of dry raspberry gelatin.

Food

Bring in the New Year with delicious recipes for the weight conscious

This New Year's Eve, weight conscious party hosts can serve their guests a dazzling buffet that captures the celebration of the moment without sacrificing any resolutions to lose weight. It's quicker and easier than you think, thanks to recipes and a menu planner from Weight Watchers International.

Keep in the relaxed spirit of the holiday by setting your buffet table with a host of colorful, tasty creations that are easy and fun to eat. The dishes will help you be the star of the party!

Serve steaming hot mushrooms caps filled with succulent hot crab blended with scallions and cheddar cheese. An asparagus roll sprinkled with sesame seeds can add a healthful, delicate finger food dish.

Why not crown your New Year's Eve table with delectable sauteed scallops on the half shell. They'll add elegance, flavor and splendid visual appeal.

A smooth, creamy anchovy dip with vegetable dippers can add a special combination of creamy smoothness — and crunch — to harmonize perfectly with your meal.

Be sure to set out a gaily decorated basket of melba slices, rolls or sesame fingers.

You can add to the festive mood of the occasion by serving sparkling champagne in your best fluted glasses. And for dessert, serve delicious Pears Framboise (pears in raspberry sauce) for a dramatic beginning to the New Year!

ASPARAGUS ROLL APPETIZERS

Makes 4 servings.

4 ready-to-bake refrigerated buttermilk flaky biscuits (1 ounce each)
12 medium asparagus spears (each about 7 inches long), blanched
2 teaspoons margarine, melted
1 teaspoon sesame seeds

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Spray a nonstick baking sheet with nonstick cooking spray and set aside.

Between 2 sheets of wax paper roll each biscuit into a rectangle measuring about 6 x 5 inches; cut each flattened biscuit into 3 parts, each about 2 x 5 inches.

Top each piece of dough with an asparagus spear, allowing tip of asparagus to extend and cutting end of spear even with edge of dough; roll dough to enclose spear and seal by pinching edges of dough together.

HOT CRAB APPETIZER

Makes 4 midday or evening meal servings, ½ meal each.

2 teaspoons margarine
2 tablespoons chopped scallion (green onion)
1 teaspoon enriched all-purpose flour
2 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded
¼ cup skim milk
3 ounces frozen or drained canned crab meat
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon each Dijon mustard and Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons mayonnaise
32 small mushrooms caps (about 1-inch-diameter each)
1 teaspoon plain dried bread crumbs

In 9-inch skillet heat margarine until bubbly and hot; add scallion and saute briefly (about 1 minute). Add flour and stir to combine; add cheese and milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened. Add crab meat, lemon juice, mustard and Worcestershire sauce and stir to combine; remove from heat and stir in mayonnaise.

Fill mushroom caps with crab mixture and sprinkle with bread crumbs; bake at 400 degrees F. until crumbs are browned, about 20 minutes.

SAUTÉED SCALLOPS ON THE HALF-SHELL

Makes 4 midday or evening meal servings, ½ meal each.

2 teaspoons margarine
2 tablespoons minced shallots or onion
½ cup each minced red bell pepper and chopped mushrooms
12 ounces bay scallops, rinsed and drained*
1 teaspoon enriched all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon each lime juice (no sugar added) and chopped chives
Dash each salt and white pepper
1 cup tender spinach leaves, rinsed well and drained
16 small scallops or clam shells

In 9-inch skillet heat margarine over medium heat until bubbly and hot; add shallots (or onion) and sauté briefly (about 1 minute). Add red pepper and mushrooms and continue sautéing, stirring occasionally, for 2 minutes longer. Add scallops and flour and stir to combine; sauté for 3 minutes. Sprinkle with lime juice, then chives, salt and pepper.

Arrange an equal amount of spinach leaves over bottom of each shell; spoon an equal amount of scallop mixture over each portion of spinach and serve immediately.

*Sea scallops, quartered or cut into eights, may be substituted if bay scallops are not available.

Next week we'll continue with the remainder of the recipes shown in the picture at left: Creamy Anchovy Dip with Vegetable Dippers, Sesame Fingers and Pears Framboise (Pears in Raspberry Sauce).

Mulch protects plants against cold

By HILDA KAIGLER
Rockport Home & Garden Club

A mulch of dried grass clippings, leaves or well-rotted manure will help protect tender plants against sudden cold. Keep boxes and old sheets or blankets handy to put over tender plants when a freeze is forecast.

Trunks of tender trees such as citrus and avocado can be wrapped heavily with insulating material when a severe freeze is forecast. To minimize nightfront damage, spray plants and citrus fruit trees with cold water from your garden hose before sunrise.

Cut back the tops of mums and other perennials that have bloomed. Tulips, grape hyacinths, larkspur and lupines may be planted now (all spring bulbs should be refrigerated for at least five to six weeks before planting).

Use an oil emulsion spray on dormant trees and shrubs to control scale and overwintering insects.

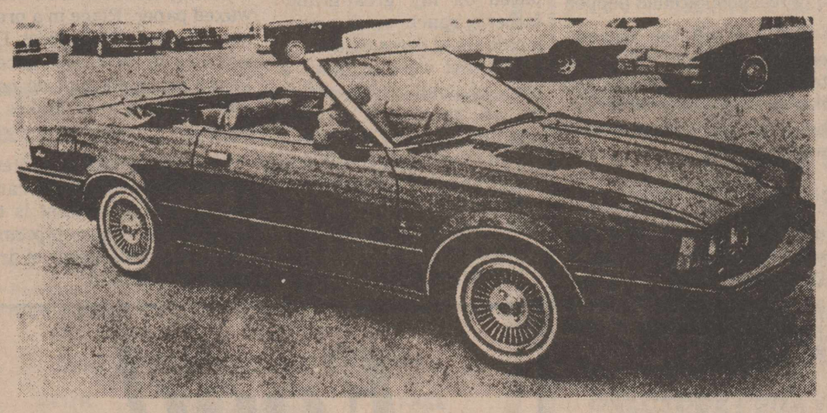

Police arrest man on warrant

Rockport police arrested one man on outstanding warrant Tuesday morning, Nov. 29. The suspect was wanted in Victoria for a possible probation violation.

Correction

The Nov. 30 edition of The Pilot reported that Earline Ballou of Rockport was attempting a left turn on Liberty Street when her vehicle was in collision with a car driven by Chester Earl Lucas of Bandon, Ore., who was southbound on Austin Street. Ballou was actually southbound on Austin Street and Lucas was on Liberty attempting a left turn onto Austin at the time of the accident. The Pilot regrets the error.

Movie Week

SATURDAY

(CBS) SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"QUARTERBACK PRINCESS" (1983) Helen Hunt, Don Murray, Barbara Babcock. The story revolves around Tami Maida, a forthright Canadian girl who made headlines in 1981 when she tried out for the boys junior varsity team at Philomath (Ore.) High School. She overcame initial disbelief from the coaches and her fellow players to win a berth as quarterback, then went on to lead the team to a winning season and be crowned homecoming princess.

SUNDAY

(ABC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"HEART OF STEEL" (1983) Peter Strauss. Movie dealing with the steel mill industry.

MONDAY

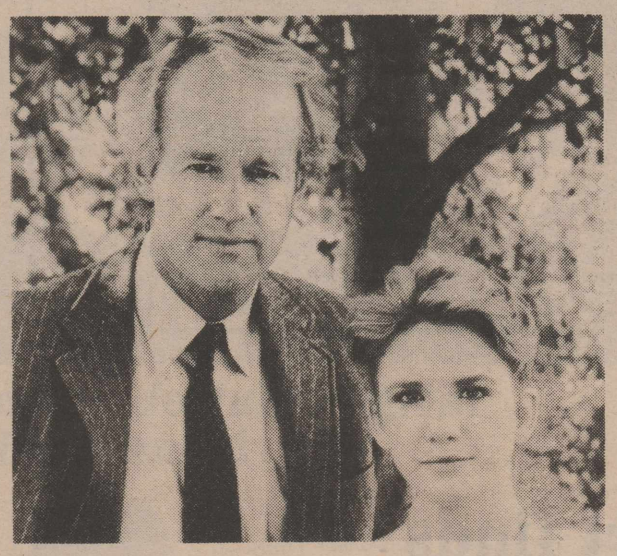

(NBC) MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"CHOICES OF THE HEART" (1983) Melissa Gilbert, Martin Sheen, Mike Farrell, Rene Enriquez, Pamela Bellwood. A gripping movie about a young American woman who gave up her family, her fiance and, ultimately, her life to become a committed Catholic lay missionary in war-torn El Salvador.

TUESDAY

(CBS) TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"THE WINTER OF OUR DISCONTENT" (1983) Donald Sutherland, Teri Garr, Tuesday Weld. The story of a struggling scion of a once proud and prosperous New England family, who now works as a clerk in the grocery store his family had owned for generations. He dreams of buying the store back from its present owner, and of restoring his family to its former position in the community.

Mike Farrell and Melissa Gilbert star in "Choices of the Heart," a drama about the four American churchwoman murdered during El Salvador's civil war. It airs Dec. 5 on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies."

Ask Kate

Is Gonzo available?

By Kate Woods

Gregory Harrison

How old is Gregory Harrison and is he married? — T.J.

TV's Gonzo is 33 and single, as of this writing.

COCA'S CLASSIC — I saw Imogene Coca and Howard Morris on a recent "Fantasy Island" and have been trying to think of the series they did together many years ago. — T.T.

Miss Coca and Morris teamed with Sid Caesar and Carl Reiner in one of the all-time television comedy classics "Your Show of Shows," which ran Saturday nights on NBC from 1950-1954. Morris didn't join the repertory company until 1951.

CROSS BOSS — What was the name of the movie that starred Pat Boone as a priest working with street gangs? — D.W.

That was 1972's "The Cross and the Switchblade," made memorable, if you can call it that, by Erik Estrada's screen debut as the lead punk.

WHITHER TOMA — I haven't seen Tony Musante in quite some time. Has he retired? Was he fired from "Toma"? — F.E.

Musante left "Toma" in 1974 after one season because he didn't like the rough-and-tumble work schedule of weekly television. Robert Blake took over the role the next season and it became "Baretta." But Musante hasn't retired from acting. He's just wrapped a role in "The Pope of Greenwich Village" for theatrical release, opposite Eric Roberts and Mickey Rourke.

FRANKLY, NO — Didn't Charles Frank of "Emerald Point" play Maverick in a remake of the series that starred James Garner? — R.Y.

Frank played Brett and Bart's nephew in "The New Maverick," a 1978 pilot movie that featured Garner and Jack Kelly. It later became a short-lived series without the original leads.

Soap Beat

'GL' cast runs miles ahead of other soaps

By Connie Passalacqua

Carolyn Clark

"Search for Tomorrow" may be daytime's longest-running soap (32 years), but it is its CBS compatriot "Guiding Light" (the second oldest at 31) that has the longest runners — literally. Running for fitness is the passion of many of the show's performers.

Michael Tylo (Quinton Chamberlain) runs an average of six miles a day in New York's Central Park. Judi Evans (the beleagured Beth Raines) and Peter Simon (Dr. Ed Bauer) run regularly. But it's Carolyn Clark (Lesley Ann Monroe) and Tina Sloane (Lillian Raines) who are the show's most enthusiastic runners. Both completed this year's 26-mile, 385-yard New York City Marathon.

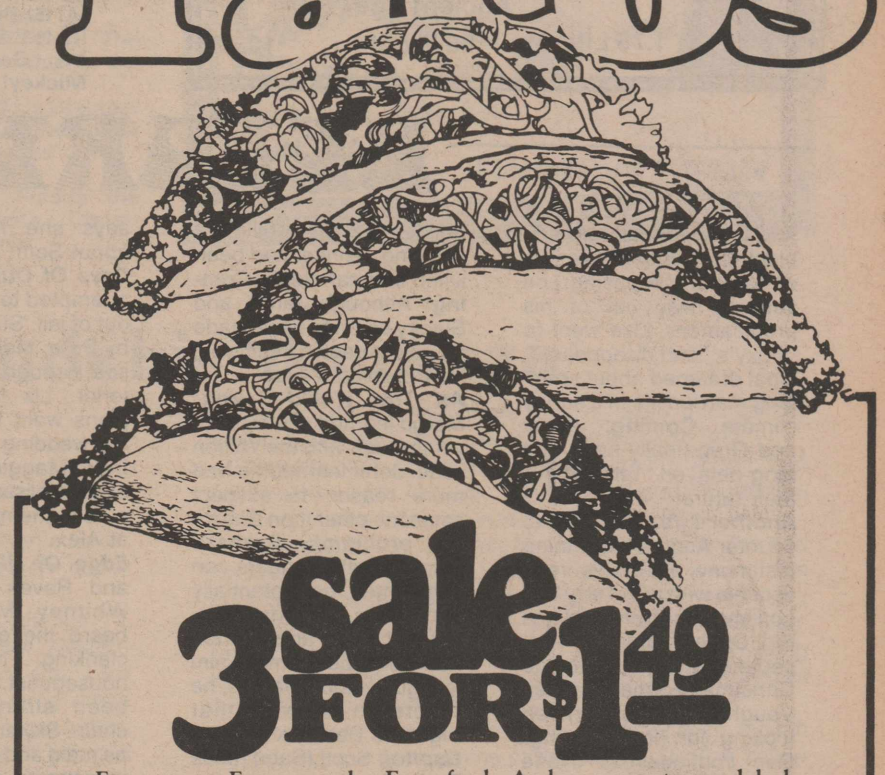

Says Miss Clark (who finished in 4 hours and 23 minutes), "This year's was pretty much painless, in fact, I sprinted for the last four miles."

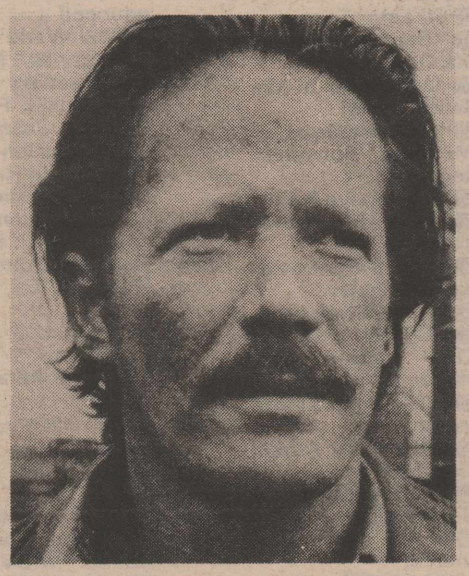

Miss Sloane, however, had some trouble. "Normally I feel great, but this year I started getting terrible cramps after eight miles. I wanted to quit a hundred times. It took me forever (five hours and 20 minutes) but I finished."

"What kept me going was my son," Miss Sloane says. "I had told him that everyone who finishes in a marathon is a winner. After that I had to finish. Of course when I had told him that's why I push myself, he said 'mommy, that's silly. I wouldn't have cared.' I remember thinking 'if I quit I'll feel better now, but tomorrow I'll regret it.' "

When asked what she really enjoyed most about running the Marathon, Miss Sloane, the actress obviously in her, replied, "For the fun — the excitement. I love the thrill of the crowd cheering you on."

1984 Winter Olympics — cold-weather fan's dream

OLYMPIAN FEAT — While NBC's "SportsWorld," CBS' "Sports Saturday" and ABC's "Wide World of Sports" can provide winter-sports fans with their fixes of double-axels, slaloms and schussing, the true cold-weather addicts still have two months before the piece de resistance — the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

For the past 20 years, ABC has been covering the Winter Games, and this year, from Feb. 6 to Feb. 19, the network will keep Olympics fans happy with 65 hours of Olympic action, live or on tape (11 more than the 1980 games), with more than 43 hours scheduled for prime time.

Among the 900 ABC employees putting the Winter Olympics on the air will be the network's announcers — anchorman Jim McKay, Jack Whitaker, Bill Flemming and Chris Schenkel, plus such former Olympic gold-medal winners as Dick Button, Peggy Fleming, Eric Heiden and Bob Beattie, who lend their expertise.

Part of the show will be the site of the games, Sarajevo, an not-often-seen city in a country that is only 50 years old. Sarajevo is better known as the scene of the 1914 assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the heir to the Austrian-Hungarian crown. It started World War I.

Jim McKay

McKay hopes nothing along those lines happens during the games, having covered the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich, in which the terrorist Black September organization took over the Israeli dormitory in the Olympic village and killed 11 Israeli athletes.

For his outstanding reporting of the event, McKay was awarded an Emmy, the George Polk Memorial Award for Journalism, and the West German government gave him the Officer's Cross of the Legion of Merit.

Week of Dec. 4- Dec. 10

Bono's Astro-Vue

© By Lillian Bono

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Career opportunities may arise suddenly via a surprise letter or telephone call from someone who lives far away.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Negotiations between business partners could break down abruptly by putting you in the middle to try picking up the pieces.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) Educational pursuits net your interest and stimulate you to think about possible paths to follow. Use tact and diplomacy to help settle an argument between close friends that doesn't really concern you.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) The emphasis in your life right now is on relationships with others in all areas. It is through your contacts that you'll receive the support you need emotionally and be in a position to advance yourself professionally.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) A travel excursion puts you in a cheerful frame of mind and provides you with the opportunity to forget about the day-to-day grind for a while.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Putting off chores for a later date is not a sensible idea. You'll find yourself inundated with work at a time when you need peace and quiet.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) An ambitious acquaintance could be pumping you for information in order to achieve questionable goals. Keep your ideas to yourself for the time being.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Social celebrations put you and loved ones in a mood of festive merriment. This is a good time to get closer to relatives you don't see.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Stand up to a powerful associate who thinks you can be pushed around. Speaking your peace is the only way to win this person's respect.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A shopping spree is in order so rustle up extra cash and go out to your favorite stores. Inexpensive means of entertainment seem to charm you the most so try to find activities that fit the bill.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Athletic activities should be curtailed if you are not feeling in tip-top condition or you could do yourself bodily harm.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you have not taken a fancy to could unexpectedly wind up as your new love interest. This turn of affairs will take others by surprise.

AMERICAN WINES

Many think it easier to make an impression with randomly selected bottles of pricey imports. But, outstanding quality in some of our domestic wines, all at less than $25 a bottle, can reveal a more interesting approach to wine selection. Here are some of my top choices in the category of "distinguished Americans:"

Two new releases from Robert Mondavi Winery in Napa are predictably excellent. The 1981 Chardonnay reserve ($20) has the strong varietal character that makes this wine unique; rich, well-rounded, with balance and finesse, it can only improve over the next ten years, but is also superb for current drinking. The 1979 Robert Mondavi Cabernet Sauvignon Reserve ($25) is a finely structured, complex wine to drink now or save for the year 2000; blending with Merlot and Cabernet Franc offers roundness and backbone — a big, opulent wine to impress anyone, including yourself.

From Louis M. Martini Special Selection Wines, the 1974 Cabernet Sauvignon ($12) is definitely a distinguished red with a strong varietal, peppery nose and intense flavor with all the depth and fullness one wants from the best cabernets. Louis M. Martini Special Selection 1974 Zinfandel ($10) is a big, robust wine, high in tannin and full of grape. Both these reds will get better with age and are good gifts for friends with cellars.

From the East coast, Gold Seal 1981 Chardonnay ($10) is a dry, medium body wine with a pleasant buttery texture, lots of oak and a long finish.

Louis Honig HNW Vineyards has just released a fine '82 Sauvignon Blanc ($8.50), a white with the subtle character of the best grapes from Bordeaux — excellent with fresh seafood, fowl or light pasta dishes.

BEFORE & AFTER IN THE SOAPS

All My Children: Palmer's electronic empire was in danger of collpasing; he saw no way out of his predicament. Liza went to "Foxy's" and disappeared. Opal dreamed about spending married life in a sunny climate. Coming: Jenny and Greg finally have that long-delayed talk about their future.

Another Life: Lee tried to counter Andrea's damning testimony about his relationship with her. Terry told Lori she has strong feelings for Dave. Courtney accepted Peter's bid to the Christmas Formal and then Vaughn Sumner arrived looking for her. Coming: Dan continues to evade Nancy's persistent demands to set a wedding date or explain why he can't at this time.

Another World: Sally told Peter she had an affair with David years earlier. Nicole, stoned on cocaine, returned home in a sad state. Sally and David set out to get Jennifer and Kevin not knowing Jennifer had been killed in a car crash. Coming: Although Jamie and Stacey seem to have made an adjustment in their lives, new problems arise.

As The World Turns: Margo learned she was not yet through with the Wilson case. John learned he had more reason to suspect someone other than Bob for his problems. Barbara learned that strangers can sometimes be potentially dangerous. Coming: Gunnar becomes angry when Paul continues to make him feel guilty about James; he reacts in a way that frightens Barbara.

Capitol: Scott (Sam) made Fran feel she was a desirable woman. Clarissa took the step Mark begged her to avoid. Tyler and Zed appeared to have resolved their differences, but Zed continued to make his plans work only in his favor. Coming: Trey refuses to believe Sloane when she says she has evidence about Sam.

Days Of Our Lives: Beau attempted to break Roman out of jail. Still held captive by Pete, Melissa began to see through his tough exterior. Liz felt elated as plans went forward about the wedding to Neil. Coming: Maggie gets word about Melissa. Anna makes a new attempt to get back at Alex.

Edge Of Night: Schuyler and Raven went to the Whitney Mansion and heard the ghost's chains clanking. They learned a houseguest, Heinrich, had been strangled with a chain. Sky and Raven pose as maid and manservant to investigate further. Coming: Chris' life is threatened again. Miles gets a shock in England.

General Hospital: Luke and Laura talked about Stavros and then made love. Grant and Alan fought, forcing Celia to leave the room, only to be comforted by Jimmy Lee at the boathouse. Luke announced his plans to save Laura from the Cassadines. Coming: Stavros makes his plans to recapture Laura while Jimmy Lee makes plans to rekindle Celia's interest.

Guiding Light: Ross continued to have his doubts about Henry's security. Hope had an uncomfortable premonition. Quint and Nola had a talk with Henry who seemed reluctant to give any more information to them. Coming: Vanessa finds a way to get through Henry's emotional block.

Loving: Lily continued to suffer flashbacks of her experiences with Garth. Ann agreed to be "civilized" about Merrill, but she continued her relationship with Mike. Art found new evidence regarding the shooting of Garth. Coming: Roger makes a new proposal for Ann to consider and is surprised at her answer.

One Life To Live: Scott conspired in a plot to kill David. Danny Wolek turned into an enterprising reporter and uncovered some secrets about San Carlos. Brad's treasure hunt produced a surprise winner of the grand prize. Coming: Cassie finds herself questioning Dorian's reactions each time David appears. Herb decided to take the action Dorian has put off regarding her daughter.

Ryan's Hope: An angry Jack told Sydney why he could never cooperate with the mob, citing Mary's death and blaming Joe as well. Leigh got a bomb threat and called the police. Bess told Maggie she erred in bringing Seneca home where Jill, his ex-wife, could see him. Bess killed Dusty. Coming: Dusty's death leads to new mysteries.

Search For Tomorrow: Brian got into a fight with Warren after learning he was the father of Wendy's baby. Joanne revealed that Vargas left money for her. Ringo and Warren realized it was their diamond money that Vargas hid for Jo. Coming: Sunny's anonymous donor continues to cause problems for her and Kristen.

Young & The Restless: Nikki's involvement with Rick became deeper in spite of her own earlier apprehension. The problem of Traci's pill-taking continued, but in another direction. Paul found something about Rick's story that made him suspicious regarding the true fate of Rick's wife, Melissa. Coming: "Ghosts" start turning up in Genoa City.

Popcorn is an American Indian invention.

MEDICINE CHEST
Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

Have the implantable infusion pumps for diabetics worked out very well? — J.D.

The University of Minnesota announced results of a 7-month study of an implantable fusion pump for the delivery of insulin. This pump, the size of a hockey puck, is surgically placed under the skin of a patient's chest just below the collarbone. A titanium pump emits a small continuous flow of insulin directly into the bloodstream. Pumps are refilled every 7 to 10 days. According to the study, patients were able to forget the pump and none of the five subjects wanted to go back to conventional therapy. It's too soon to tell if implantable-pump therapy can prevent complications of diabetes.

Is there any drug on the market that is absolutely safe? — W.W.

There are none that I know of. Even if you take a medicine at the correct doses for the correct illness, it could result in serious or even fatal side effects. Aspirin, for example, is one of the safest drugs ever developed for the relief of pain, fever and inflammation, yet it could cause serious anaphylactic shock in an asthmatic child.

Is it true that calcium supplements can reduce blood pressure? — G.H.

Population and animal studies have suggested that by increasing calcium intake, a person can decrease their blood pressure. A Central American study of 57 young adults further supports this idea. More studies are needed to prove or disprove it.

Albert finds his 'Bonanza'

By Andy Noble

When he was growing up, one of Edward Albert's favorite TV shows was "Bonanza," the popular Western about the tightly knit Cartwright family.

So there's a bit of irony that he chose as his first TV series, "The Yellow Rose," one of the few new Western series since "Bonanza" left the air 10 years ago. Like "Bonanza," "The Yellow Rose" concerns a large ranch and three brothers — each of whom has the same father, but different mothers — who help try to keep it going in the face of adversity.

Albert plays Quisto Champion, an attorney who handles the ranch's legal affairs. He's the result of a liaison between his late father and a Mexican woman.

"The 'Rose' is not dissimilar to 'Bonanza,' " Albert says, "but here, we are the patriarchs. There's no Lorne Greene character to make the decisions for us. As relatively young adults, we have to deal with the problems. On 'Bonanza,' the brothers were kids — even though they were big, able men, they would fall back on Old Ben."

The actor, son of Eddie ("Green Acres") Albert, had appeared in such films as "40 Carats" and "Butterflies are Free," but a TV series was a new experience.

"Basically during the past five-to-seven years, I've had the luxury of doing what I wanted to do. I did a lot of film work in Europe for a decade learning what I can do. Now I decided to come home to do work my peers would see. Timing was principal. Around 30 you can't play young male leads anymore, and anyway, I'm not enamored of the ingenue role," said Albert, 32.

He believes he made the right choice — even though the ratings have taken some of the bloom off "The Yellow Rose."

"We have a really creative team of people," he says. "For a kid who grew up around TV, I've never seen in my experience more pride taken in a show by everybody connected with it. Some of the film sequences, especially the horseback and cattle drives — which are being done in the San Joaquin Valley near Bakersfield — are as fine as any film I've ever been in."

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

My 20-year-old daughter is very involved with a much older man. While I admit I'm upset, it doesn't even come close to my husband's feelings. He is so angry, he's become completely irrational. I guess I'm a bit more understanding because when I was her age, I also liked older men. I can also sympathize with my daughter when she says the men her age are all selfish egotists who just want a sexual fling and nothing more. She says this man respects and admires her for what she is, not just for her body. I can see where that could easily be true as young men are notoriously self-centered. She's also always been a very level-headed, bright girl and this relationship has not in any way interfered with her education and aspirations. So I really can't have any strong objections. On the other hand, my husband is beside himself. He doesn't even want the man in the house, claiming that no man his own age is ever going to be a son-in-law to him. This has alienated our daughter to the point where she's thinking of moving out. I just can't see it, but I don't know how to reason with my husband. As I said, he becomes completely irrational when I even try to broach the subject. What do you suggest?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MIDDLE:

So Daddy's Little Girl is all grown up and Daddy's really feeling it! At one time or another, this hits all fathers of girls. However, in your case, it's worse because your husband's rival is close in age to himself. Of course, his major problem is jealousy. However, knowing what's motivating him doesn't really help right now.

Why not make plans to get away for a weekend? You can both relax, have a good time and get away from the environment which is causing so much stress. Perhaps over a quiet dinner, you could bring up your daughter. However, don't immediately plunge into the subject of her romance. Start by talking about how proud you are of her and how intelligent she is, etc. I'm sure he'll start in about her boyfriend. That's when you can gently tell him that the very qualities you're both proud of are what he should trust in her to make the right decision for her life. Let him know, again gently, that his little girl is grown up now and has to lead her life as she sees fit. Tell him that if he has any confidence in the way you both raised her, he has to know she'll do nothing foolish.

* * *

DEAR DEBBIE:

My wife and I were at a party recently and I saw something I definitely didn't like. I was standing across the room from her with some of the guys, talking about sports, and I noticed she was engrossed in conversation with a man we hadn't met until that night. Believe me, I'm not the possessive type, but I got upset when they both just walked out of the party together and didn't come back for a while. When I confronted her, she just laughed and said I was imagining things and that I should trust her — no explanation. She's never cheated or anything, so I know I should trust her, but I can't get this out of my mind and I really want to know where they were.

MORE THAN CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS:

I hate to say it, but maybe she was trying to get you jealous. I can only guess, but I'd say she might have been upset that you weren't paying attention to her and decided to do something about it. Just forget about it and try to be more attentive at the next social gathering!

DEAL OF THE CENTURY (Warner Bros. — PG) ★
Starring Chevy Chase, Sigourney Weaver and Gregory Hines

By J.T. YURKO

Chevy Chase is a man in search of a good movie. After winning star status as a writer/performer on TV's "Saturday Night Live," Chase moved into movies and co-starred with Goldie Hawn in "Foul Play." The film was a hit, and Chase appeared on his way to being a big-screen success. But he hasn't duplicated that success in his subsequent films.

Casting Chase in "Deal of the Century" indicated that this was a project that could use his wry, sardonic humor. The story concerns the peddling of high-technology weapons that fuel the arms race. Chase's wit might have combined with director William Friedkin's ("The Exorcist," "French Connection") forceful filmmaking to create a potent political satire.

But what should have been a sarcastic look at the arms race falls like a dud missile. Humor that should have been wry has simply gone awry. The entire project needs a homing device.

Chase tries his best as an arms salesman trying to unload his weapons of destruction on anyone who can come up with the money. Gregory Hines plays Chase's Bible-toting sidekick, and Sigourney Weaver is a former arms salesman's widow. Each of these characters is likable, and the film seems at odds with itself as we almost root for the arms dealers we are supposed to be despising.

Vince Edwards, as the head of an arms company, has one of the film's best lines when he says, "Our enemy is not Moscow, it's Rockwell, Northrup, Lockheed..." The missile he's trying to sell is called the Peacemaker; President Reagan recently dubbed the new MX missile with the same name. The material for a satire with clout is certainly there, but "Deal of the Century" just fizzles out.

Refunding $$$ and sense

I don't think most of us realize just how footloose and fancy-free our cents-off coupons are! First, they are sketched, approved and printed by over 3,000 sponsoring companies. The next leg of their journey is local or nationwide distribution via home mailers, daily and Sunday newspapers, magazines, etc. We collect them and give them a lift to our favorite stores. Then, the true odyssey begins for the 6 billion coupons that are redeemed by us each year as they are sent to over 25 clearinghouses in the U.S., Haiti and Mexico. After reimbursing the stores, the centers truck them to plants where they are turned into pulp and spread out in dumps. In Iowa this paste is actually being used to transform a worthless landfill into prime real estate. Our coupons really do get around much more than most of us do!

Q. How do clearinghouses tabulate cash-offs?

A. Workers sort them by company, brand, value, etc. and then pay the issuing companies the face value plus 7 cents per coupon for their trouble in getting them from the store to the clearinghouse.

JILL JACKSON'S HOLLYWOOD

BOB HOPE

HOLLYWOOD: Bon vivant Robert Yates tossed a surprise birthday gala for Hayden (I Dream of Jeannie) Rorke and as the Society writers say — "Tout Tinseltown turned out." Among the hundred or more sipping and supping were Barbara Eden, sexy in blue satin, Caesar Romero, Bill Daly, Ida Lupine in a rare public appearance, Wesley Eure, Natalie Schafer, June Lockhart, Ralph (please don't squeeze the Charmin) Wilson and wife, producers Ross Hunter and Jacque Mapes, photographer to the stars Wallace Seawell, Rick Rorke, Maurice Hill, and the world's two greatest female impressionists Jim Bailey and Charles Pierce. Seeing the latter two together prompted one wag to say, "It's like having Bette Davis and Tallulah Bankhead in the same room"

Drew Barrymore is enjoying location shooting on "Firestarter" based on the Stephen King's novel. The nine year old moppet swears she read the book when she was six and loved it. Gad. I was just learning to read at six! On that same location George C. Scott brought along his two huge mastiffs for company, but Trish Van De Vere has been appearing so it seems they may be getting back together.

BITS 'N'PIECES: Jack Jones, the voice of "Love Boat," sang the theme song when he guest starred with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Bob Hope admits his biggest expense is golf. "I pay dues" he told me "to 20 clubs throughout the country so I can always get a game. That costs me $60,000 a year. But I get most of it back in side bets when I play Gerry Ford." Spoony Singh unveiled a model of Barbara Stanwyck in his Hollywood Wax Museum. It's about time wouldn't you say?...For the record Elizabeth Taylor missed only ONE performance during her entire Los Angeles run of "private Lives.. while Jennifer Holliday missed more "Dream Girls" appearances than can be counted...Richard Thomas' adorable two year old triplets were handed tiny shovels and lead the ground breaking ceremonies for an addition to Hollywood Presbyterian Hosiptal. The fun part was the kids kept digging and digging and digging until they had to be relieved of their shovels...Barbara Rush is a big hit in her one-woman show based on Elizabeth Forsythe Hailey's "A Woman of Independent Means"...That was quite a celeb turnout at the Courage Award testimonial dinner for Eileen Brennan. You don't often see Robert Redford, Paul Newman, Gene Hackman, Goldie Hawn, Marsha Mason and Cloris Leachman in the same room... Gene Kelly and Sandi Bennet holidayed in France. She's Tony Bennett's ex.

Swit believes in 'Best'; E.G. heats up 'Winter'

By Joan Crosby

Loretta Swit

Because of her prominent role on "M*A*S*H," Loretta Swit doesn't need publicity. So when she agrees to talk about a show, it's because she believes in it. Miss Swit believes in "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," which airs Monday, Dec. 5 on ABC.

"I'm one of the few adults in it," Loretta said. "It's the story of some children who are rascals and charming imps, who set out to ruin a Christmas pageant and end up turning it around into a look at the true meaning of Christmas.

I play the mother of two nice kids who is pressed into service to direct the school pageant when the director is injured. It is so funny and charming and beautiful."

Miss Swit says she took the assignment because "it's a beautiful script." The show was shot in Vancouver, British Columbia, using Canadian child actors.

"I guarantee that anyone watching is going to be smiling all through the show. And then there is the ending, which is so touching.

"I was on my way to Europe with no definite plans to return when the script arrived. I cut Europe short to do it."

MARSHALL PLAN — E.G. Marshall's fans, who have not had that much chance to see the fine actor on TV, can see him on Tuesday, Dec. 6 when CBS airs "The Winter of Our Discontent," based on John Steinbeck's novel. It's a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation.

Marshall, who lives in upstate New York, says he enjoyed being at the Monterey, Calif., locations for the movie.

"It's set in what can be any seacoast town in the United States. There is no mention of California... but I enjoyed being there."

The book was Steinbeck's last published work, written when he returned from Europe after World War II.

"It deals with our use of the land and how we should treat it. I guess (former Interior Secretary) James Watt should be one of the viewers."

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUPS: Carlo Imperato, Alias Danny Amutello of "Fame" is excited over his "Friday Night" single becoming a number one hit in Britain. Now he hopes the producers will let him sing more on the show. Carlo and his family also are investing in a restaurant to serve southern Italian food with Mom doing the cooking..."I've always been more of a coffee shopper than a bar hopper." says Shelly Long who won an Oscar for her portrayal of an intellectual barmaid in "Cheers." Adding, "Since college days at Northwestern University I've always loved to sit and schmooze in coffee shops. I've never been much of a drinker, but then "Cheers" really isn't about drinking, it's the warm familial feeling of the place...Ed Begley, Jr.'s acting talents were confirmed when he was Emmy nominated for his role in "St Elsewhere," but he still yearns for another career. Says Begley, "I would rather sing than eat, but peope would rather hear me eat then sing"....Joan Collins told me she adores playing Alexis in "Dynasty," but she would also like to sink her pearly whites in other roles like Amanda in "Private Lives" (now being served up by Elizabeth Taylor), Gilda in "Design For Living" and Sabina in "The Skin of Our Teeth"...James Best wears three hats, actor, director and artist in an upcoming episode of "The Dukes of Hazzard." He stars as Sheriff Rosco Coltrane, directs the segment and has loaned twelve of his works supposedly to have been painted by the town's starving artist.

BARBARA EDEN

FOCUS: Barbara Eden has a new b.f., Stan Frileck. They were all-arms-around with eyes only for each other at a recent party...Mariette (Goodnight Beantown) declined an offer to ride in Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade because she wanted to stay in California with her husband Patrick Boyriven and their two children. She did ride in the Hollywood Boulevard Christmas Parade.....Merete Van Kamp in Hollywood for "Princess Daisy" screenings before it was aired set many males back on their heels. What they thought to be cool, aloof indifference was merely great timidity...Sam (Yellow Rose) Elliott and Katharine are still happily ensconced at their ranch type beach digs with no signs of an "I Do". Sam says the reason he sounds more like Beeville than Beverly Hills is because his folks hail from the Lone Star State... Didya know Jill St John's real name is Jill Oppenhiem and James Brolin was born James Bruderlin?

COMING EVENTS:"The First Olympics-Athens 1896" is filming in London for airing via NBC. It's the true story of 13 young men, overcoming impossible odds, who banded together to form the U.S. Team that helped revive the classic Greek Olympics 1500 years later. Louis Jourdan, David Ogden Stiers, Angela Lansbury, Honor Blackman, Gayle Hunnicut, Virginia McKenna and Bill Travers co-star with twelve unknown actors who will be well known after the airing...Loni Anderson stars in "My Mother's Secret Life" filming in Los Angeles and San Francisco. In the drama costarring Paul Sorvino and Amanda Wyss,Loni plays a high-priced call girl whose emotionally detached life takes on a new meaning after she is suddenly reunited with the daughter she gave up fourteen years before. It's a two-hour motion picture of ABC.
