Lethal dose of pills...

Precautions are hinted at

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane told Congress' Iran-Contra committees today that he "had the means at hand" to make sure he was not kidnapped and tortured during his secret trip to Tehran in May, 1986.

Testifying for the third day, McFarlane declined to go into details, saying it would reflect "a little bit of false bravado" to do so. Sources familiar with the trip have said previously that McFarlane carried with him what he believed to be a lethal dose of pills.

But he told Rep. James Courter, R-N.J. that he assumed there was a risk he would be taken prisoner and tortured when he made the journey to discuss a possible arms-for hostage deal, particularly because he knew many of the United States government's most sensitive secrets.

"I am confident that I had the means at hand to foreclose my being exploited for intelligence," he said.

Replied Courter, "I think I understand."

Courter's cryptic reply broke off testimony on the subject, and McFarlane was not asked directly about the reports of pills.

McFarlane testified as sources disclosed that President Reagan's handwritten diary indicates he thanked Saudi King Fahd for his country's secret contributions to the Nicaraguan rebels when the two men met privately at the White House in February 1985. These sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan's personal notes say that it was Fahd who raised the subject.

Airport renovation has job inspector, bid estimates soon

Kenneth Turner of Abilene has been named as resident inspector for the $1 million renovation project due at Winston Field and Tetco of Abilene has been chosen to perform laboratory testing.

Actual construction at the airport should begin as early as mid-June.

Don McCrary, vice president with Bain McCrary Bain Engineers and Surveyors of San Antonio, noted Turner was chosen last week from among some 24 applicants for the position.

Turner has about 25 years experience in airport construction primarily with Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene.

Ernest Reynolds with Tetco will take charge of providing soil and pavement tests, material quality control testing and other testing services for the engineers during construction.

McCrary, who serves as the project manager for the Winston Field project, said his company will seek bids within the next few weeks. Bids for both the paving and electrical phase will be let simultaneously.

Monthly decline prompts rise in sales tax 'minus'

A steep monthly drop in sales returns for Snyder made the year-to-date total move into the minus 25 percent range with the recent report released by the state comptroller's office.

For sales made in March, Snyder's total declined some 38 percent when compared with the previous year. This made the year-to-date figure a minus 26.8 percent, the highest it as reached all year.

In actual dollars, the monthly report indicated some $67,000 was returned to the city compared to some $109,000 last year. Exact figures are $67,373 and $109,239 respectively.

The latest report moved the year-to-date total to $288,742 compared to $394,768 last year.

All figures reflect 1 percent of the actual sales reported to the state comptroller, the agency which collects and returns the amount as part of the city's 1 percent sales tax.

Reports indicate the sales tax returns are running at a minus 7 percent for Texas as a whole. The largest cities are showing minus reports also to include Houston, a

Powderpuff game injures three girls

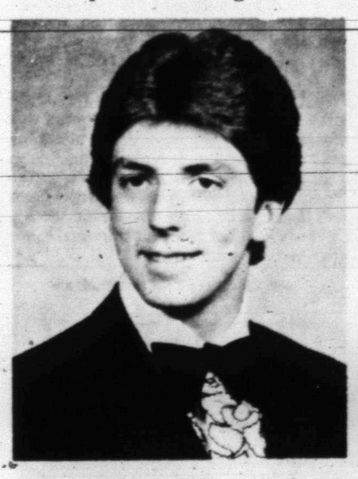

The girls Powderpuff football game--an event slated each spring as part of end-of-school activities--was marred by injuries Tuesday, one serious enough to hospitalize a local senior girl.

Tammy Williamson remained hospitalized at Cogdell Memorial Wednesday morning for treatment of a concussion. She had initially been placed in the critical care unit, but was transferred to a regular hospital room during the morning.

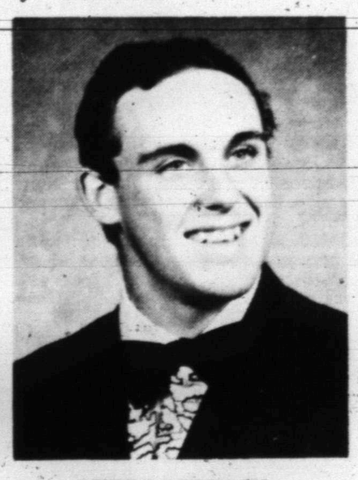

Her injury was caused when she collided with a second player. She remained at the game, but went to the hospital emergency room after suffering side effects of the collision afterward.

The player which she ran in to, senior Donna Clay, also required stitches to close a cut over her eye.

Also injured Tuesday in an unrelated incident was senior Tonya Holladay, who suffered a broken collar bone after she fell during the game.

Hermleigh names honor students

Honor students have been named for Hermleigh High School.

Tim Kotrla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Haynes, is the high school valedictorian. He has a grade point average of 96.80.

Jeff Roemisch is the salutatorian. He has a GPA of 92.63. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Roemisch.

Jill Roemisch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Don Roemisch, is the highest ranking girl. Her GPA is 94.03. She narrowly missed out on being named salutatorian because of a school board policy which states that no students can be named valedictorian or salutatorian unless they have attended their junior and senior year at Hermleigh High School.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A bachelor is a man who is footloose and finance free."

Snyder, Texas has made the national news again. This time the Asiatic Clams, a problem for Texas lakes, is the source of the national attention.

Mrs. George Stewart sent us an article from the Hutchinson News in Hutchinson, Kan. The article appeared while her husband George was in Liberal, Kan., conducting a seminar for Mobil Oil.

The story was circulated by Associated Press and by the New York Times News Service. Bill Wilson Jr., owner of Wilson Motors, also received a copy of an article from a friend in New York.

What really is newsworthy is all the volunteer hours put in by the Pink Ladies at Cogdell Hospital. More than 100,000 hours--even at minimum wage--is a heck of a contribution to the county hospital.

The top volunteer again this year was Ruby Anderson who works at the hospital almost every day. In fact, her 14,000 volunteer hours is almost 27 hours a week--nearly a full-time job by anyone's standard.

Lucille Joyce was a close second with 12,000 volunteer hours, or an average of 23 hours a week. Pharmacist Eddie Peterson has an explanation for all the time that Lucille spends at the hospital.

Says Peterson, "Skipper (her husband) is at home."

Thought for the day: Being senile means never having to say, "I remember."

Ask Us

Q. — Does the number of assistant superintendents Snyder has (three) compare with the number employed by other schools our size?

A. — The school board employed an outside consultant last summer to address this and other staffing questions, and his reply was yes. Dr. John Townley surveyed 10 other Texas districts with a tax base similar to Snyder's and with student enrollments between 3,500 and 4,000. He noted that while other districts may call the positions something other than assistant superintendents--usually business managers, head of personnel and head of curriculum--the three posts held by the local assistant superintendents are staffing positions also used by the other districts.

Shamir rejected the demand, saying, "The national unity government can and must continue to govern."

Both leaders summoned their party colleagues to emergency meetings.

Despondent mother kills son

BROOMALL, Pa. (AP) — A mother who enlisted 70 volunteers to help her teach her severely retarded 2½-year-old son to crawl had considered suicide because of his worsening health before she shot him to death, her lawyer said.

"She was unable to cope and unable to handle the whole situation," Roy Stegena, lawyer for Irene Bernstein, said Tuesday night.

Mrs. Bernstein, 41, surrendered Tuesday and was arraigned on charges of homicide and first- and third-degree murder, said Maureen Fitzpatrick, Delaware County district justice.

"This is terrible," Mrs. Bernstein murmured to her husband, Robert, while waiting for the judge to enter the courtroom. She sat sniffling softly through the arraignment with her husband's arm around her shoulder.

She was released on $25,000 cash bail pending a preliminary hearing May 21.

Eric was shot in the head and in the back about 5 p.m. Monday in his bedroom in this Philadelphia suburb, police said. The weapon, a .32-caliber handgun, was found near his bed, police said.

Mrs. Bernstein apparently telephoned her husband, a lawyer, several minutes after the shooting. He drove home, found the boy's body and called police, authorities said.

Paramedics found the boy on the floor where he usually napped, a pacifier six inches from his mouth, police said. The parents were on the front lawn, crying.

The boy was born in July 1984, 9½ weeks premature, suffering from a respiratory disease and a lack of oxygen, which retarded his development.

After trying conventional techniques, the Bernsteins worked 12 or more hours a day with Eric using a rigorous treatment known as "patterning."

Last year, the couple appealed through posters for assistance in giving Eric five-minute sessions of the therapy every 20 minutes. Of the 300 people who responded, the Bernsteins selected 70 volunteers to help teach their son to crawl.

But Mrs. Bernstein became despondent recently when Eric became sick with vomiting and diarrhea and was forced to slow down his therapy, Stegena said in a telephone interview.

"It was just not a normal situation," he said. "They had been for years living in a totally focused situation day and night, and devoting everything they had and everything they did to find a cure and get an improvement in the child's health."

Caring for the couple's only child also had hurt the Bernstein's marriage, according to Stegena. "It was a situation where she felt she had reached the end of the line. There were fantastic stresses."

Mrs. Bernstein was to have been admitted to the psychiatric unit of a hospital following her arraignment, Stegena said.

Shocked neighhbors, some of whom helped with Eric's therapy, said the Bernsteins were model parents and showed no sign anything was wrong in recent months.

"It was a total surprise," said John P. Westley, who has known the Bernsteins 11 years. "They were devoted to the child, ... Something must have just let go."

"They tried to do their best" for Eric, said Stan Dyson, one of the volunteers. "They were nice, super people. She worked so hard at this."

Police Lt. Frank Dunn said the Bernsteins were taken into custody Monday but were released after they refused to make a statement. They returned Tuesday with Stegena.

"They were both very emotional ... upset," said Assistant District Attorney William Ryan Jr.

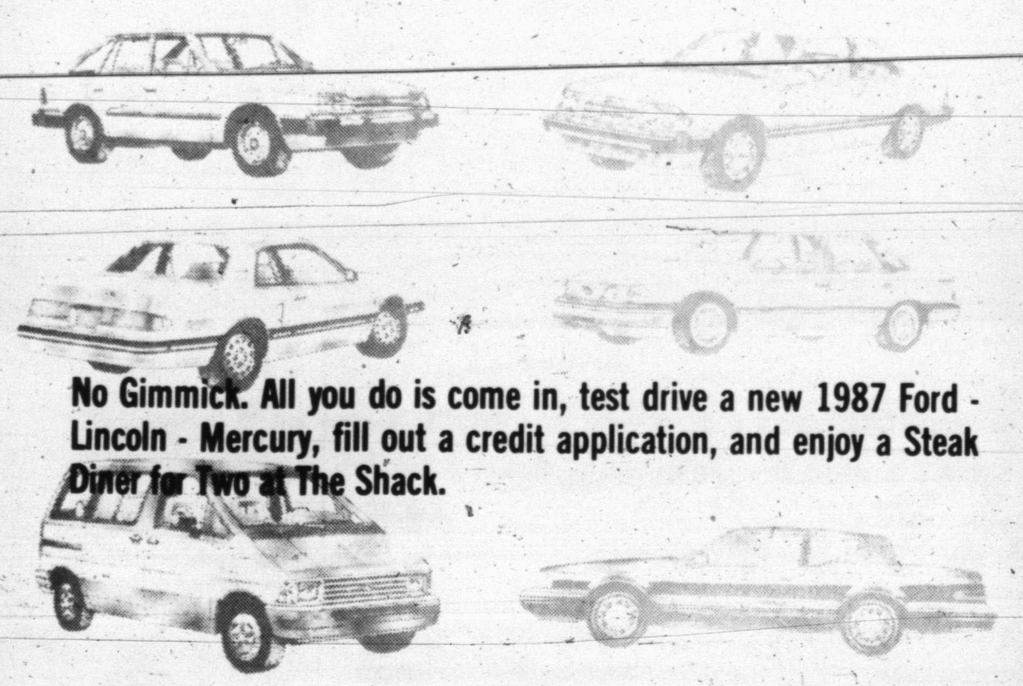

The Bernsteins tried to help Eric's development through patterning, an intensive physical therapy for brain-damaged patients designed by Glenn Doman, founder of the Philadelphia-based Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential.

Nest Holvey, a spokeswoman for the institutes, said officials there had no comment on the Bernstein case.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy in my mid-teens. I have a sister who is a year younger than I, and very good-looking. Ever since I can remember, I've thought she was very pretty for a sister, but about two years ago I started thinking about her in a different way.

I find myself looking at her a lot, and trying to spy on her when she's undressing. I spend much of my time daydreaming about her. (I guess you could call it fantasizing.)

She has a lot of boyfriends and this makes me angry. I fantasize that she has the same kind of feelings for me, but I know it's wrong and I want to stop. My parents would be disgusted if they knew. We are a Christian family and they are very moral people.

Is it normal for a boy to have these kinds of feelings for his sister? What can I do to get over this?

TROUBLED IN DELAWARE

DEAR TROUBLED: Your sexual curiosity is normal, but you must control it. You need to talk about your feelings with a trusted older person. Your father has undoubtedly experienced the same kind of adolescent sexual curiosity (all men have), but if you aren't comfortable discussing it with him, talk to your minister or a school counselor.

In the meantime, stop spying on your sister. It's sneaky and childish. And if you really don't know what a naked lady looks like, go to the museum and look at some statues.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My fiance was killed in an accident shortly before our wedding day. We had been together for years and his family members are already like in-laws to me.

What should I call these people who are like family to me? We weren't quite married, so his mother isn't my mother-in-law, but she, his father, sister and brothers are much closer to me than just friends.

Abby, do people really survive this? I'm just beginning my career as a physician and Army officer, and my beloved had planned to accompany me on my duty assignments. I find it inconceivable that there could be another man who would enthusiastically follow a lady doctor around. On the other hand, I'm only 26, and I'm not sure I can face the next 50 years alone. Perhaps you have some advice for ...

A 'WIDOW' WHO NEVER SAW HER WEDDING

DEAR CHILD: Continue to call the family of your late fiance whatever you called them while your beloved was living. And, yes, people do survive such tragic losses because they must — in order to go on and live productive lives.

You chose a profession to heal mankind. Physician, heal thyself. Good luck and God bless.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: How can couples living together and acquiring assets or real estate and securities protect themselves, especially when one has an ex-wife and children?

An attorney friend advised my roommate that no legal document or will was necessary for our personal property or real estate partnership. He says I should "trust" him.

NON-TRUSTING ANTI-BIMBO IN FLORIDA

DEAR NON: If you don't trust him, you shouldn't be (a) in business with him or (b) living with him.

The legal document may not be necessary for your personal property or real estate partnership — but I'd advise you to consult another attorney for your peace of mind and ultimate protection.

Find cause of weak knees

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I was a child, my uncle used to say he was weak-kneed. I thought it was a joke — but now I am 68, and it's no laughing matter. What could be causing this weakness in my knees and legs?

DEAR READER — "Being weak-kneed" used to be a slang term for being indecisive, so your uncle may not have meant his comment to be taken literally.

However, having weak knees and legs, in the physical sense, is quite another matter. All people grow weaker with age, but severe or disabling weakness can be caused by many diseases, ranging from anemia and neurological disorders to cancer. I am not suggesting that your weakness is a symptom of a serious illness, but I do urge you to see your doctor for a diagnosis. You might have a treatable problem, or a physician may prescribe an exercise program to strengthen your lower extremities.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I consulted a urologist concerning my frequent bouts of bladder infection. X-rays showed that I have a very enlarged bladder, and tests show a loss of elasticity.

The urologist suggests surgery to remove what he calls "excess" and tighten the bladder. What is the success rate for this type of operation?

DEAR READER — Bladder atony (loss of normal muscular tension) results in incomplete emptying of the bladder. When a residual amount of urine is retained in the bladder after voiding, the bladder can become infected because it is dark, warm and wet — an ideal culture medium for certain bacteria.

Rather than rushing to operate, I'd be more interested in determining why your bladder has lost its elasticity. For example, bladder atony can be caused by diseases of the nerves that control bladder contraction. Chronic obstruction of the bladder outlet, as seen with prostate enlargement, also will cause stretching of the bladder wall.

Ask for a referral to another urologist for a second opinion. Although removal of "excess" bladder tissue may solve the short-term problem, the condition will recur unless the underlying cause of atony is treated.

DEAR DR. GOTT — We use plastic milk bottles to store emergency supplies of drinking water in our basement. We change the water every six months. Is there any danger of contamination from the plastic?

DEAR READER — To my knowledge, there is no harm in storing drinking water in plastic milk bottles, providing the bottles have been throughly cleaned beforehand.

However, other readers should remember that "recycling" can be risky in some cases. Some safety tips:

- Don't store foods or beverages in containers that have held cleaning products or other toxic substances.
- Be sure that all containers are properly labeled.
- Don't store potential poisons in recycled food containers. The contents could easily be mistaken for a food or beverage, and the results could be tragic.

For Dr. Gott's complete discussion of problems and treatments of the prostate gland, write for your copy of Dr. Gott's new Health Report on THE PROSTATE GLAND. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

A bold double pays off

With favorable vulnerability, East showed both of his long raggedy minors by bidding two no-trump over North's opening bid. East hoped his sacrifice would not be penalized more than the value of the opposing game or slam. Meanwhile, he also hoped to interfere with North-South's bidding.

South did bid four spades, under pressure after West's jump to four diamonds, but it was a decent contract. I admire the aggressive double by West. He hoped for heart shortness in partner's hand, and he got it. However, that in itself was not enough to guarantee the set. After East showed out on the opening lead, West knew that his partner would ruff the second heart. It looked as if East might then switch to clubs at the third trick (dummy's weakness). To prevent this, West gave suit preference by leading the heart eight for East to ruff. That card was high enough so that East would know that West did not have as much as the ace or queen of clubs. At the same time, a look at dummy made it clear that West was not regaining the lead in the diamond department. That left only the trump suit. East ruffed the heart and led back a spade. West took the ace and gave his partner another ruff to set the hand.

Note that without the spade return from East at trick three, declarer will cash the A-K of diamonds, shedding his remaining heart. Taking a club finesse will now enable him to make the contract by ruffing his club losers in dummy before knocking out the ace of spades.

More ozone evidence noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's new evidence that man-made chemicals are responsible for the collapse of the protective ozone layer over Antarctica every September.

But backers of alternate theories say chemicals may not be the entire story.

Ever since the 1985 discovery of the annual drop in ozone levels above the South Pole, scientists have sought to link it with the chlorofluorocarbon, or CFC, chemicals known to destroy ozone — or to pin the cause on something else.

Competing theories say increased sunspot activity or changing wind patterns cause the drop. But an interagency expedition to Antarctica last year reported finding evidence against sunspots and winds.

Data collected then, only now being reported, directly support the chemical theory, congressional subcommittees were told Tuesday in the first of three days of joint hearings. The environmental protection subcommittee and the hazardous wastes and toxic substances subcommittee of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee are conducting the hearings.

Even if CFCs are not eating Antarctic ozone, causing 40 percent of the ozone to disappear every September, many scientists believe they are slowly destroying the high-altitude ozone that protects life from the sun's ultraviolet rays.

The major industrial nations are discussing whether reductions in CFC emissions are necessary, and have tentatively agreed to try to write a treaty imposing a 50 percent cut.

The committee today is exploring possible substitutes for CFCs as refrigeration fluids, blowing agents in the manufacture of plastic foams, solvents and, outside the United States, aerosol propellants.

The Environmental Protection Agency on Tuesday released a statement from an advisory committee of eight experts from the United States, Britain, Japan and West Germany saying there are no technical or environmental barriers to use of substitute chemicals, and governments should provide incentives to commercialization.

But substitutes for the two chief CFCs could cost two to three times as much when first brought to market, which could happen in six years, the panel said.

CFCs, invented in the 1930s, are cheap, non-toxic and non-flammable, but hard to destroy. It takes them decades to reach the high-altitude ozone.

"The difference between politics and statesmanship is philosophy," according to historians Will and Ariel Durant.

Dallas, Amarillo selected as sites

AUSTIN (AP) — The Dallas Fort-Worth area's super-collider site emerged as the No. 1 selection, but a Panhandle site will accompany it in the national competition for the project.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission chose the location south of Dallas that rings Waxahachie by unanimous voice vote Tuesday, but it took a ballot vote to decide between Austin and Amarillo for the second choice.

"The Dallas proposal and the Austin proposal are very similar in my view," said commission chairman Peter Flawn. "The Amarillo proposal, on the other hand, offers a different kind of site, a West Texas kind of site, if you will."

Amarillo received five votes compared to Austin's three.

"We're ecstatic," said Steve Howerton, chairman of the Dallas-Fort Worth Superconducting Super Collider Authority. "The site won on its technical merits."

Howerton said many things, such as a major airport and the area's amenities, led to commission's top choice. The proposals are to be shipped to the U.S. Department of Energy by Aug. 3.

The decision to include a Panhandle site would assist the state in getting proposed $500 million in bonds to support the project approved by voters, Flawn said.

"We have to pass a bond election or I tell you we won't win. I think we need broad support in the state and with the selection we'll have West Texas suport."

The commission chose two sites after the Legislature approved a measure allowing them to hire a private consultant to assist in preparing the proposals and mandating the commission to choose two sites.

Earlier Tuesday, four of six finalists in statewide competition for the $6 billion atom-smashing project made their final bids before the commission.

The group proposing the site near Amarillo told commissioners during its presentation to consider choosing "an attractive smaller city" instead of two big cities.

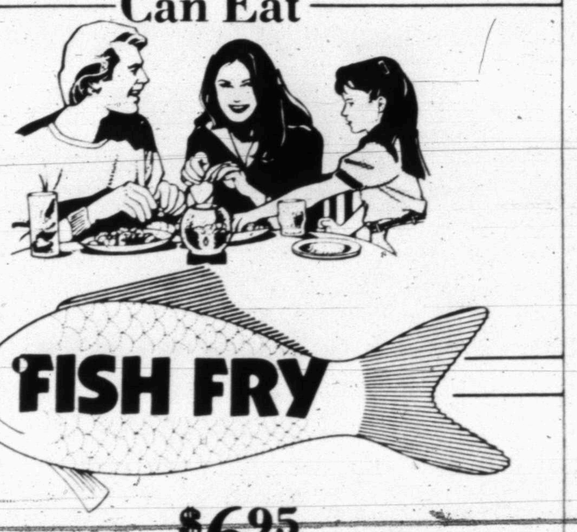

"In the beginning God created this site for the SSC," said Amarillo National Bank President Richard Ware.

The massive super collider project would include a 52-mile underground tunnel from 20 to 30 feet underground in which atomic particles would be accelerated and then smashed together to probe the building blocks of matter.

At least 45 states are in the scramble to land the project, which would mean thousands of construction jobs, long-term work for 2,500 scientists and technicians, and an annual budget of about $200 million per year.

"I really HATE commuting!"

Texas spoils Carlton's debut; Hough still masters Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) - Against any other pitcher, Steve Carlton's first start for the Cleveland Indians might have turned out much better.

Against the Texas Rangers' Charlie Hough, however, no Cleveland pitcher ever has much luck.

Hough made it 10 straight wins over the Indians with a 6-1 victory Tuesday night, limiting Cleveland to a run on four hits in 7 1-3 innings. The knuckleball pitcher has not lost to the Indians since April of 1984.

The 42-year-old Carlton, who had made nine relief appearances before cracking the Indians' starting rotation, fell to 2-3 despite striking out 10 batters in seven innings.

"My heart goes out to those guys who relieve," Carlton said. "I was kind of an enigma in the bullpen. After 20 years of starting, I never caught on down there."

Carlton left Tuesday's game trailing 3-0 and with two Texas runners on base in the eighth. Ranger designated hitter Larry Parrish then hit reliever Rich Yett's first pitch into the left-field seats for his eighth home run.

That was more than enough for Hough, 3-1, who is now 13-4 lifetime against Cleveland.

Hough lasted into the eighth inning, although the little finger on his pitching hand was bothering him for several innings. He broke the finger last year, and it swelled up again during Tuesday's game.

"He was complaining about it from the second inning on," said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine. "I think Charlie will bounce back."

Cleveland's only run came on Brook Jacoby's solo homer in the eighth, his fourth.

Dale Mohorcic replaced Hough in the eighth and got the final five outs for Texas.

The loss was the eighth in nine games for the Indians, but Manager Pat Corrales was encouraged by Carlton's performance. The left-hander's fastball was clocked at 88 mph, the fastest he has thrown since joining the Indians at the end of spring training.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Pete O'Brien lined his fifth home run to right. O'Brien's RBI single made it 2-0 in the sixth, and Scott Fletcher singled in a run for a 3-0 lead in the seventh.

Bass Club lists event winners; plans meeting, next tourney

Larry Turner of Midland won the Second Annual Invitational Bass Tournament, hosted by the Snyder Bass Club at Lake Spence.

Turner's stringer weighed in at over 12 pounds. Locals placing in the tournament included Rick Howard, second place, and H.W. Cargile, third. Cargile hooked the "Big Bass."

Snyder Bass Club holds its next meeting Thursday, May 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Snyder National Bank community room. All fishermen are invited to attend and become members of the family-oriented club.

The tourney at Spence was held in conjunction with one sponsored by the Tye chamber of commerce. Winners of the Snyder tournament also won in the Tye tournament. In addition, Buck Rambin had the Big Bass honors in the Tye tournament.

Some 215 fishermen entered the Snyder tournament and the club expressed its appreciation to "loyal supporters which made the tournament a success."

A regularly scheduled club tournament was conducted the same weekend at Lake Spence. Howard won with a 12-pound, 13.5-ounce stringer. Others were Cargile, second, 10-5; Tommy Hood, 6-7; Rambin, 5-6; Red Pinkerton, 4-15; and Harold Carey, 3-15. Cargile's "Big Bass" was six pounds.

The club held its annual Top Twenty Tournament of Champions on Oak Creek Lake last week. Contestants had to qualify by finishing 1986 as one of the top 20 fishermen in the club. Howard won the tournament, followed by Carey, Don Parsons, Ken Gard, Mike McLeod and Jimmy Kiker. Howard also won the Big Bass Award.

The May Tournament for club members is scheduled for the 23rd and 24th at Lake Thomas. Fishing will begin at 6 a.m. both days and end 5 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday.

A complete fish cooking system will be awarded for first place. Members may register at the May 14 meeting or at the lake.

Women's league slates meeting; needs coaches

Anyone interested in coaching, managing or playing in a local women's softball league is urged to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 19, at the pavillion in Towle Park.

Those who cannot attend the meeting, or anyone wishing further information, should call (915) 573-8027 or 573-1504.

Pecos, Andrews tie; slate playoff Friday

Monahans rallied from a four-run deficit to defeat Andrews and leave the District 2-4A baseball race into a two-way tie for first place as the regular season ended Tuesday night.

Monahans got the winning run on a homer from Tony Jiminez in the seventh inning, after the Loboes had trailed 4-0.

The loss knocked Andrews to 9-3 in loop play and put them in a tie with Pecos, which defeated Big Spring by a 3-1 count. Andrews and Pecos are scheduled to play off for first and second place representation rights at 8 p.m. Friday in Monahans.

It is the second straight year for Pecos to co-champ. They did so last season with Snyder.

Winner of Friday's playoff will meet District 1-4A runnerup Canyon, 12-2 in loop play. The loser will meet 1-4A champion Hereford, 14-0.

Tuesday's outcomes in 2-4A left Snyder and Monahans tied for third place in the district with 7-5 records. Snyder wrapped up its season last Friday with a win over Lamesa. Big Spring ended the 1987 campaign with a 6-6 mark while Lamesa went 4-8 and Fort Stockton was winless at 0-12. Lamesa defeated Fort Stockton 13-4 Tuesday.

Snyder's Moffett Field may host a Class 5A playoff between Odessa Permian and Lubbock Monterey at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Monterey leads their best-of-three series 1-0 but if Odessa wins the second game on Friday, the teams will play here Saturday.

UT head coach reprimanded; boosters banned for 3 years

AUSTIN (AP) - Head football coach David McWilliams and three other members of the University of Texas athletic department have drawn reprimands and two UT boosters have been banned for three years for their alleged violations of NCAA rules concerning the UT football program, a newspaper reported.

Four other boosters were admonished, the Austin American-Statesman reported today, quoting unnamed sources.

The letters from the university stem from allegations the university violated NCAA rules governing recruiting - in particular, that some officials loaned money to players.

The university is scheduled to respond to 63 charges of rules violations at a hearing next month before the NCAA's Infractions Committee in Kansas City.

Besides McWilliams, a source told the newspaper that assistant athletic director Ken Dabbs, team physician Paul Trickett, and assistant football coach John Mize were sent letters of reprimand.

McWilliams was involved in three allegations involving improper loans of cars and cash. The university denied one of those allegations. Mize, the team's offensive coordinator, was named in four similar allegations. The university admitted three and said the fourth could also be correct.

Cunningham said the university does not feel any charge of unethical conduct should be brought against Dabbs, who was named in 14 allegations, including those involving giving recruiting hosts excessive entertainment money and improper loans of cash and cars. The school's response to the NCAA admits one of those allegations.

Ron Brown, vice president for student affairs, declined to name the boosters but said the two must disassociate themselves from Texas athletics until May 1, 1990.

"Disassociation means the person is ordered not to have any association with any member of our athletic staff or with any of our student-athletes," Brown said. "They may buy season tickets or tickets to events if they wish. They also may make contributions if they wish, but they may not associate socially or professionally."

The newspaper said several sources identified the two banned boosters as sports agents Tony Herry of Houston and Jon Teer of Austin.

McCray guides Rockets to win

HOUSTON (AP) - The Seattle SuperSonics were seeing triple (double) after Rodney McCray finished with 24 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds in a do-or-die performance for the Houston Rockets.

McCray took it upon his shoulders to carry the Rockets a step farther in the NBA playoffs Tuesday night, leading them to a 112-107 victory over Seattle, avoiding elimination in their Western Conference semifinal playoff.

"He was an inspiration to his teammates, he made them play better as a team," said Seattle guard Dale Ellis, who was paired defensively against McCray.

Seattle still leads the series 3-2 and could clinch a spot in the division finals with a victory Thursday night in Seattle. A Rocket victory Thursday would return the series to Houston on Saturday for the seventh game of the best-of-seven series.

Houston jumped in front quickly in the first quarter and held a 21-point lead at 59-38 with 5:25 to go in the second quarter before the Sonics shut off the Rocket running game and pulled to within 66-56 by halftime.

"I thought we played well at the start, but Seattle wouldn't settle for that," Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said. "The individual effort of Rodney McCray was outstanding. The mistakes he made were from fatigue."

McCray played all but one minute of the 48-minute game.

"There's only one month left in the season, I'll get plenty of rest later," McCray said.

Tiger girls practice today at Jimmy Clay

AUSTIN -- Snyder's Lady Tigers, runnersup in the District 2-4A and Region I-4A this season, were to take a practice round today at Jimmy Clay Golf Course in preparation for the Class 4A State Girl's Golf Tournament.

The two-day, 36-hole tournament begins Thursday morning.

Snyder is the defending state champion.

Playing for the Tigers will be Leslie Light, Kristi Neill, Lea Ann Thompson, Angie Lay and Camille Reed. The alternate is Missy Trull.

Jan Kruse is the Tiger coach.

Other teams include 2-4A champion Andrews, which placed third at state last season, Brenham, Sulpher Springs, Belton, Justin Northwest, Raymondville and Silsbee.

BHS's Williams sets sites on state crown

GAIL -- Kelli Williams, who has made Austin a second home during her high school career, is scheduled to play Stacy Norrell of Martin's Mill in the first round of the Class 1A Girl's Tennis Singles at 11 a.m. Friday.

The tournament will be the fourth state tournament for the Borden County senior. She competed in doubles as a freshman, was a finalist in singles as a sophomore, and is the defending singles champion in Class 1A.

An academic standout as well, Williams won state in typing as a junior, and has already won state in shorthand this year.

"She won state in typing and tennis last year and she won in shorthand just a little while ago. She's going back to try for the tennis title again," beamed Coach Bill May.

Should Williams win in her first-round game, she will play at 4 p.m. Friday against either Lisa Engelke of Chilton or Dannette Holdampf of Garden City.

Finals are set for 11 a.m. Saturday.

Last season, Williams defeated O'Donnell's Stacy Bessire for the state title. She defeated Bessire in the district and regional finals again this season, and could meet her again in the state finals.

Showdown between Reagan, Congress on defense bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and the Democrats who control Congress are heading toward another confrontation over arms control restrictions and "Star Wars" cuts.

The House voted deep reductions Tuesday in the budget for Reagan's Star Wars program to develop a high-tech shield against Soviet nuclear attack.

The decision came as the chamber worked on its version of a bill authorizing the defense budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. The Senate is scheduled to take up its version of the bill this week and is also likely to cut Star Wars and add arms control restrictions Reagan opposes.

At the White House, Reagan met Tuesday with a group of Republicans and renewed his argument that the Democratic-proposed restrictions hurt U.S. efforts to negotiate a U.S.-Soviet arms reduction treaty.

"The House already has attached to the defense authorization several unacceptable provisions," Reagan said. "The Senate bill is equally troublesome on the strategic defense issues.

"I simply can't go along with those who would hand the Soviets, free of charge, what they can't win at the bargaining table. This is no way to run America's foreign policy and I would be compelled to veto any legislation that endangers our arms reduction efforts or undermines our national defense."

Reagan sought $5.8 billion next year for the Strategic Defense Initiative, as Star Wars is formally known. But the House voted 219-199 on Tuesday for a $3.1 billion figure, which would be below the current $3.6 billion level. The bill before the Senate proposes $4.5 billion.

Overall, the House measure authorizes $288 billion for defense, compared with the $303 billion level in the Senate measure. Both figures are less than the $312 billion Reagan asked, but the House budget is also a reduction from the current $289 billion defense budget.

The bills that separately pass the two chambers will eventually have to be reconciled by a House-Senate conference committee.

The House still faces decisions on a number of major issues, including the MX nuclear missile, the Midgetman nuclear-tipped missile, anti-satellite weapons, chemical weapons and testing of U.S. nuclear weapons.

The House has added two amendments requiring Reagan to adhere to the unratified SALT II treaty and to the restrictive version of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile pact, a view which would ban most SDI tests.

Last fall, House Democrats added several arms control restrictions to a budget bill, but finally dropped the proposals after Reagan appealed for national unity in advance of his Icelandic summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Democrats have vowed since then to press again for the restrictions.

Man donates heart; lives to tell about it

BALTIMORE (AP) — A man who underwent a heart-lung transplant after apparently becoming the first living person to donate his own heart was happy he could give as well as receive the gift of life, his mother says.

In a historic series of operations at Johns Hopkins Hospital, two teams of surgeons transplanted Clinton House's healthy heart into John Couch — with his own heart remaining — then gave the heart and lungs of a brain-dead accident victim to House.

"He said if someone could help him, he should help someone else," Joyce Plesic, House's mother, said Tuesday.

"It's a real nice feeling to know that a person is alive and that my husband will get to meet him," said Peggy Couch, of Yardley, Pa., whose husband suffered from congestive heart failure.

"We're very grateful and pleased and thankful. And without him, my husband would still be home without the heart that he needed to live," she said.

Although House, whose lungs were destroyed by cystic fibrosis, had what doctors described as a healthy heart, they said they gave him a new heart along with new lungs because such dual transplants appear to be more successful than simple lung transplants.

The complex feat, completed Monday and announced Tuesday, appeared to be the first application of what doctors call the "donor domino theory."

"We've talked about it many times. And now they've done it," said Dr. Norman Shumway, a Stanford University cardiologist who helped pioneer heart-lung transplants.

Others, however, questioned the wisdom and necessity of the procedure.

House, 28, and Couch, 38, were reported in critical but stable condition today, which doctors say is typical for transplant patients.

The surgery began when the heart and lungs of the automobile accident victim who died Sunday were removed at University of Maryland Medical System and transported on ice across town to Hopkins, where House was waiting.

Surgeons removed House's heart and quickly implanted it in the chest of Couch, who was waiting in an adjoining operating room. A separate team at the same time removed House's diseased lungs and transplanted the new heart and lungs.

Couch's own diseased heart was left in place and connected to the transplanted heart during the surgery, a technique doctors said is often used when more pumping power is needed to circulate blood through congested lungs. The two hearts, which pump in tandem, will be left in place, doctors said.

Barbie testifies he does not hate Jews

LYON, France (AP) — Former local Gestapo chief Klaus Barbie, accused of sending scores of Jews to Nazi death camps during World War II, testified today that he does not hate Jews or other minorities.

The 73-year-old Barbie, speaking German slowly and softly, answered questions from Judge Andre Cerdini, president of the court trying him for crimes against humanity, about his past and his attitudes concerning Nazism.

Barbie, who was the top Gestapo officer in Lyon from 1942 until 1944, is charged with arresting, torturing and deporting Jews and French Resistance fighters to German concentration camps. He has been called the Butcher of Lyon.

Among other things, Barbie is charged with sending to death camps 44 Jewish children and seven adults from a children's home in Izieu, 47 miles east of Lyon; arresting 86 Jews in 1943 at the Lyon headquarters of the General Union of the Israelites of France; and sending out the last rail convoy from Lyon to the death camps, carrying about 600 Jews and Resistance members.

Barbie has said his job during the war involved a legitimate German fight against French Resistance members.

"I have no hatred for these minorities," he said in court today. He noted that people of many races and nationalities live in Bolivia, where he spent most of his life after the war.

Cerdini asked Barbie for his "conception of the Nazi world in 1940" just before the German defeat and occupation of France, and his opinion of racial problems involving Jews, Gypsies and Slavs.

"These are questions from more than 40 years ago," the defendant said, speaking through a French interpreter. "I cannot answer.

"I did my work under the direction of my superiors. Until the war, I never had to give my opinion on minorities."

Fate placed in God's hands

GILMER, Texas (AP) — A couple jailed for violating the state's compulsory school attendance law say they've put their fate in God's hands.

"The Lord alone will lead us. We have placed our future in his hands and I am confident he will deliver us from this," Dianna Howell said Tuesday from her Upshur County jail cell.

"We were commanded by God to educate our children at home," Mrs. Howell said of the couple's decision to remove her son and daughter from the Gilmer Independent School Disrict. "This was the word of God, and now the state says we don't have the right to obey the word of God."

Mrs. Howell, 33, and her husband Jack Lee Howell, 46, were jailed late last week after they said they couldn't pay about $8,000 in fines and court costs resulting from their January 1986 conviction for violating the attendance law.

Sheriff Dale Jewkes said the Howells face up to 265 days in jail. Each day served will reduce their fines by $15. Court records indicate the Howells will remain in jail until their fines are worked off.

Jewkes said he has the authority to cut the sentences by one-third for good behavior and that could reduce the terms to 177 days in jail.

The Howells' case was initially heard in Upshur County's justice of the peace court in October 1985. The court ruled that they violated the state's attendance law and fined them $5 each.

The couple refused to pay the fine and appealed their case to the Upshur County court, where they were again found guilty and fined $7,600.

That conviction was upheld in December by an appeals court.

20-year-old man faces charges of indecency

A 20-year-old Snyder man was being held in the Scurry County Jail Wednesday morning in lieu of bond set at $15,000 on a charge of indecency with a child.

Detectives arrested Terry Rumpff of 3003 39th St. at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in connection with an incident reportedly involving a 12-year-old boy earlier in the day.

According to reports, the mother of the victim reported the incident after she said she found Rumpff in their residence with the 12-year-old.

She called police later in the evening after her son related details of the incident.

Detective Sergeant Jerry Morgan said Wednesday the youth told investigators that several similar incidents had occurred after Rumpff had recruited him into a Boy Scout unit where Rumpff serves as an assistant scoutmaster.

Texaco won't be pressured into settlement

DENVER (AP) — Despite the difficulties of operating a company under bankruptcy protection, Texaco Inc. executives say they are confident their decision to put the company into Chapter 11 will prove vital to their efforts to resolve the company's multibillion-dollar legal dispute with Pennzoil Co.

"The ox is in the ditch, but this management is going to get him out," said James W. Kinnear, president and chief executive officer of the nation's third-largest oil company Tuesday.

Kinnear and Alfred C. DeCrane Jr., Texaco's chairman, spoke at the company's first shareholders' meeting since it filed for Chapter 11 protection on April 12.

Both men maintained a tough stance in their comments about the Pennzoil case, with DeCrane assuring the roughly 1,000 generally supportive shareholders that "Chapter 11 is not the last chapter in this story."

Besides giving no indication that the two companies had made any progress toward a settlement of their dispute, the executives offered no support to market speculation that Texaco might be the target of a brewing takeover attempt.

Such rumors had sent Texaco's stock sharply higher in heavy volume on Wall Street on Friday and Monday. But the stock turned lower in Tuesday's trading, losing $1.25 a share to close at $37.75 a share in national trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

DeCrane said that operating Texaco under Chapter 11 would be "difficult."

"But its protection of our assets now gives Texaco the ability to proceed with our appeals of the unjust trial court judgment; the appeal that Pennzoil has used every effort to deny us," he said.

Kinnear said the decision to file under Chapter 11 also gave Texaco "the ability to...negotiate a reasonable settlement, should that be possible."

"To paraphrase Winston Churchill, we're not here to preside over the liquidation of this company," he observed.

Texaco said it was forced to seek protection because its continued existence was being threatened by its inability to resolve its multibillion-dollar legal dispute with Houston-based Pennzoil Co.

In November 1985, a jury ruled Texaco had interfered improperly with Pennzoil's intended merger with Getty Oil Co., which Texaco acquired itself.

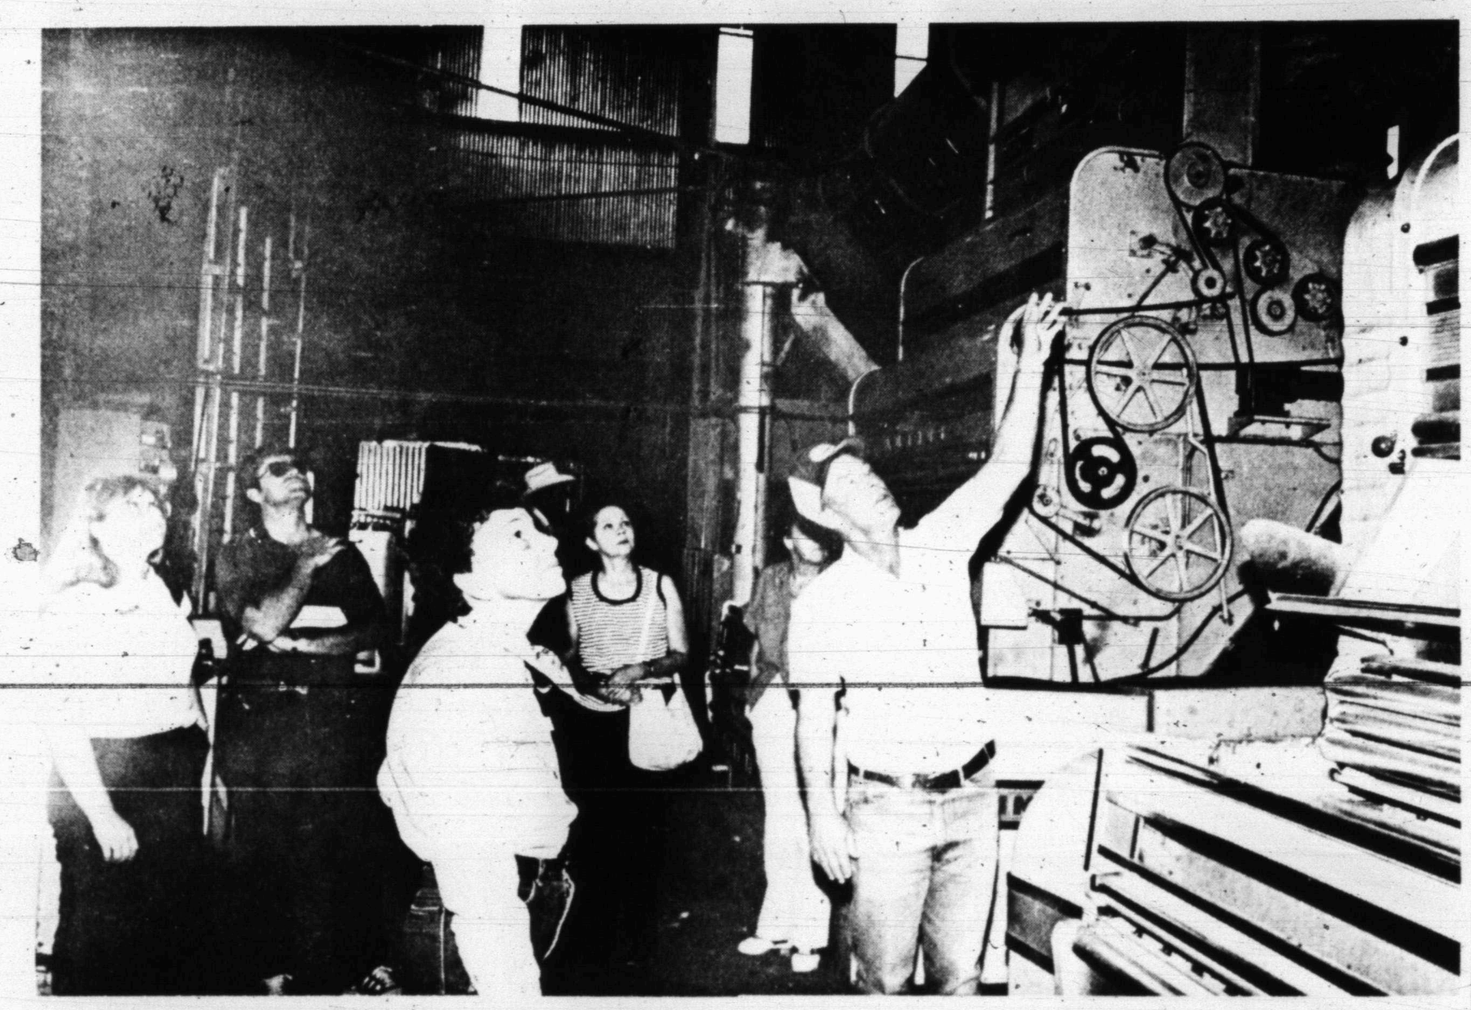

The judgment awarded to Pennzoil amounted to about $10.35 billion when Texaco filed for bankruptcy protection last month.

Kinnear and DeCrane reiterated Texaco's outrage at that decision, as well as their reluctance to pay a heavy settlement.

"When you start treating $9 billion or $10 billion as a valid claim, you step through the looking glass into an 'Alice-In-Wonderland' world where reason is of little help," DeCrane said. "You can't take such a blatantly ridiculous judgment, split it down the middle and call it a fair compromise."

Kinnear said the company was giving "close scrutiny" to the recent takeover rumors.

But in response to a stockholder's question, he said that neither Texaco's board, its directors or officers had been approached with a buyout offer or a request.
