CPL Official Discusses Rates At City Council Meeting

Last September, the Rockport City Council approved a request of Central Power and Light Company for a rate increase averaging about 6 per cent.

Rockport Lions Broom & Mop Day Sat., May 5

Saturday, May 5, is Broom and Mop Day in Rockport as far as the Rockport Lions Club members are concerned. They will be selling brooms, mops, and other items made at the South Texas Lighthouse for the Blind at Corpus Christi.

"We are working to make this a very successful sale of high-class, durable items made by specially trained blind people," declared Robert Konvicka, sales chairman and president-elect of the Rockport club. "Besides brooms and mops, household and warehouse size, there are kitchen items, laundry room items, and yard items available."

Club members have conducted a pre-sale drive in the business area resulting in some excellent orders totaling over $1,000.

Items may be purchased on the day of the sale on the corner of Austin and Main, at Ray's Texaco Station.

As previously announced, $100 of profits from the May 5 sale has been earmarked for the purchase of playground equipment for the new community park on FM 2136.

Birth Control Meeting April 30

The Family Planning Association of San Patricio and Aransas Counties will hold a meeting on "Birth Control" at 7:30 p.m. Monday April 30 in the District Courtroom at Aransas County Courthouse.

Miss Julia Tijerina of the Family Planning Association will present a film and give a talk on what the organization is doing now with regard to birth control measures.

All interested women in Aransas County are invited to attend this meeting.

increase and granted only a 2 per cent increase.

Consequently, the Rockport City Council asked Sam Barnes of Alice, district CPL manager, to appear at the local Council session Monday night and discuss rates.

Following is what Barnes said:

"On September 11, 1972, the Rockport City Council, after sincere study and deliberation, approved the request of Central Power and Light Company for a rate increase. This was the first general rate increase ever requested in the 56-year history of the Company and amounted to a total of approximately 6.0% in the City of Rockport.

"A total of 101 of the 103 incorporated cities served by the Company have approved the increase requested as being fair and equitable.

"The City of Corpus Christi delayed any vote on the request for about six months while making its own studies, employing a Chicago consultant and holding public hearings, two of which were held during night hours (Continued on Page Two)

Building Declared As Health Hazard

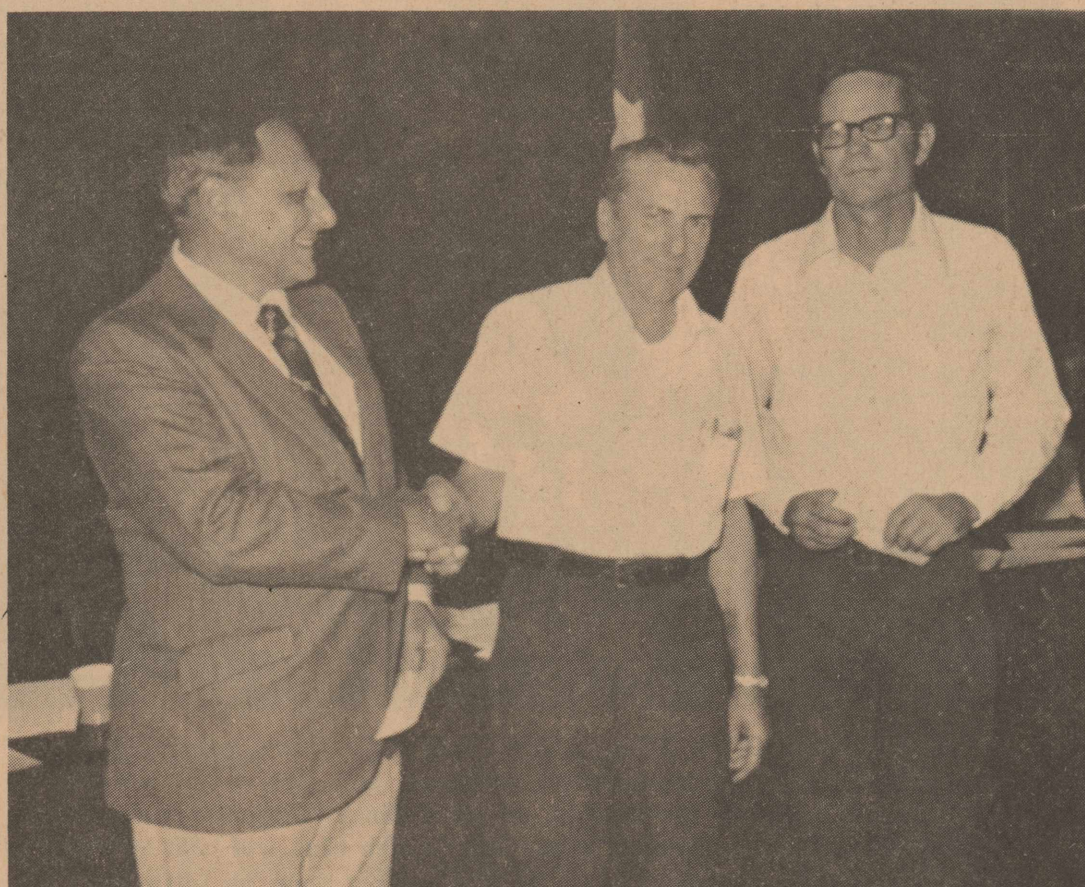

A building on Liberty Street has been declared by the City Council to be a danger to health and constitutes a public nuisance.

The Council agreed Monday night that the building is repairable and that such repairs must be made within six months or the city will have the building demolished and removed, with the owner of the property liable to pay the costs.

It was stated at the Council meeting that Ross Cowan is buying the property from O. M. Brown and Sophie Brown. It was also stated that since title to the property is still held by the Browns, they are held responsible by the city to see that the ruling is complied with.

Council Changes Meeting Time

Beginning in May, following the start of Daylight Savings Time, City Council meetings will start at 8 p.m. instead of 7:30 p.m. There will be no May 28 meeting due to the observance of Memorial Day.

V.F.W. CONTRIBUTIONS — Jimmy Hunt (center), V.F.W. Commander, presents check for $200 to Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr. (left) for playground equipment at Memorial Park. The V.F.W. also presented a check for $65 to Gary Smith, chief of the Rockport Fire Department, for first aid equipment.

Postal Week April 29-May 5

The Postal People -- men and women in our area and throughout the nation--will be honored during the week of April 29-May 5.

They travel 4 million miles every delivery day, checking and emptying almost 314,000 collection boxes, sending some 300 million letters and packages to their destinations at home and abroad.

Everything about them is big. They sell nearly 27 billion stamps a year, man a fleet of almost a quarter of a million vehicles, work in more than 42,000 buildings, and each day they reach 66 million homes and 9 million businesses.

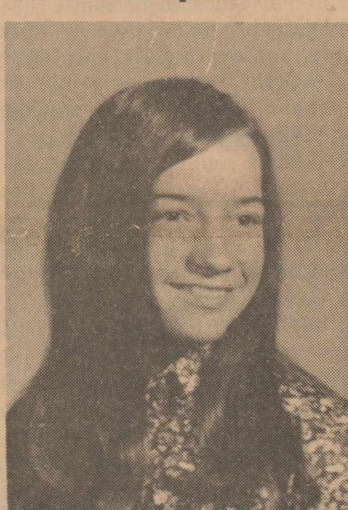

They are Postal People, over 650,000 of them.

After almost two centuries of honoring the tradition of putting Americans in touch with the rest of the country and the world through the mails, the tables will turn for a week, and Americans will honor Postal People--during Postal Week, April 29 to May 5.

TWO STUDENTS WIN HONORS

On April 14 two local high school seniors won distinctive honors at the University Interscholastic League Regional Meet held at Del Mar College.

Miss Jackie "Fufu" Smith, daughter of Mrs. Elaine Smith, won the first place medal in shorthand. Fufu took dictation, which consisted of 450 words at the rate of 90 words per minute, and transcribed the material on the typewriter with 99.33% accuracy. This was the winning score in both Class 3-A and Class 4-A schools. Fufu is the student of Mrs. Dee Mitchell.

Richard Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Little, Jr., won second place in science at the University Interscholastic League Literary Meet.

Both students advance to state competition which will be held at the University of Texas on May 5.

Daylight Savings Starts Sunday

Whether you like it or not, next Sunday is DST day--Daylight Savings Time day.

Unless you remember the simple phrase -- spring forward, fall backward -- you can end up out of step with your fellow man beginning at 2 a.m. April 29.

One way to avoid this pitfall is to set your clocks ahead an hour just before you go to bed Saturday night.

Although daylight savings time means an hour less sleep Saturday night, there will be an hour more daylight that Sunday.

DST is a boon for persons who like to get out of doors after work, but it's a burden for night club owners and drive-in theater operators.

Whoever side you're on, whether you're for or against DST, it's the law of the land in Texas and most other states.

Six Attend Police School

The following officers attended a Police Communications and Dispatching School at Del Mar College and received certificates for taking the 20-hour course: Don Beard, Theo Johnson and Ivalea Hlnze from the Aransas County Sheriff's Department and J. A. Craigmile, J.M. Hinojosa and D.T. Oliver from the Rockport Police Department.

Couple to Patrol Memorial Park

The City Council Monday night voted to enter into an agreement with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Zelsler to permit them to live in a mobile home in Memorial Park and act as overseers to protect the park area.

City, County Proclaim May 7-12 As 'Clean Up Week' for Area

Acting on a recommendation by the ROCKPORT PILOT, Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., and Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell have designated May 7-12 for a citywide, county-wide "Clean Up Week."

All residents of Aransas

County are urged to co-operate in picking up litter and doing everything possible to make our area a cleaner and more desirable place to live.

The city sanitation department will co-operate in this important project and the county will furnish trucks and personnel to aid with the campaign.

It is hoped that before "Clean Up Week" arrives, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the schools and other organizations will pitch in and make the event an outstanding success.

One fine organization, the Concerned Women of Aransas County, already have volunteered to help, as indicated by the following letter sent to Mayor Falk and County Judge Wendell by Mrs. Ruth Langham, president of Concerned Women:

Dear Mayor Falk and Judge Wendell:

Members of the Concerned Women of Aransas County applaud you both as you make plans for "Clean Up Week" as announced in the Rockport Pilot recently.

As we await your proclamation of the date you have chosen for "Clean Up Week", and look forward to the plans you have developed, this organization is preparing to be a part of the unified resident participation you have requested.

May we put at your disposal the use of our central office and phone service as a point of coordination for volunteers who will be wanting to "Report in" for service on clean up teams. Also, concerned citizens may report to this central agency any areas within the city and county which require "clean up" attention.

As the women of our organization are deeply concerned with the ecology of our area and the beautification of our natural surroundings, you may be certain that we look forward to assisting you in your undertaking of "Clean Up Week."

Most sincerely,
Ruth Langham
President,
Concerned Women of Aransas County

Urban Beautification Project Is Approved

The City Council Monday night approved a major urban beautification project developed by the Rockport Home and Garden Club for this area.

Mrs. W.W. Stubbs and Mrs. R. L. Eckman of the Club appeared before the Council and explained the plans. The city officials thanked the ladies for the work that they and other members of their Club spent in preparing the plan.

The project, which will be paid for by $2,000 left over from funds raised by the Centennial Celebration, will include planting of trees and shrubs along major travel routes and around the waterfront on public property.

In the Ski Basin area, many beautiful plants and trees will be planted, as will be the case along Broadway, in Navigation Park, and at the Triangle at Highway 35 North and Bayshore.

LIBRARY STORY HOUR

The Aransas County Public Library will have the story hour on Thursday, May 3rd from 10:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. Mrs. H. A. Naquin will be the story teller. All pre-school children are invited to attend.

Council Acts On Zoning Requests

At a public hearing Monday night, the City Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council took action on two zoning matters.

In the first, the City Council concurred with a recommendation of the Zoning Commission that John Bosco be granted a special use permit to use a home for rental purposes for professional offices. The home is located west of Highway 35 North, across from Sea-Aire Shopping Center.

In the second case, the Zoning Commission voted to grant a special use permit to Martin A. Heydenburg to use a home north of Las Brisas Motel as an Ice Cream drive-in.

However, the City Council voted 3 to 2 not to abide by the Zoning Commission recommendation and thus denied the request. Aldermen Charlie Garrett and Joe Zambrano voted to grant the request, Aldermen Murray McMillan and N. F. Jackson voted to deny it. Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., broke the tie by voting to deny the request.

Falk, McMillan and Jackson said they voted against the request because of dangerous traffic conditions that might result at that location if an ice cream drive-in business were established.

National Police Week Set for May 13-19

The week of May 13-19 has been designated by law to recognize the work performed by law enforcement officers at all levels in the United States. May 15 is Police Memorial Day, a period when many police departments throughout the nation fly their flags at half mast to pay tribute to officers who lost their lives in the line of duty.

Chief of Police James Craigmile, in behalf of the Rockport Police Department, urged all law abiding citizens to take part in paying tribute to all law enforcement officers in our city and county and throughout the country.

"It is hoped that all citizens get involved in order to reduce the ever-spiraling crime and traffic accident rates, and to make our country a better place in which to live," the chief said.

City to Pay Half For Fire Alarms

By a split vote of 3 to 2, the City Council Monday night voted to pay $6,238 as its share for a new county-wide fire alarm system. The county will pay the other half.

Aldermen Charlie Garrett and Joe Zambrano voted to pay the $6,238 and Aldermen N. F. Jackson and Murray McMillan voted not to pay, saying the figure was higher than the original estimate. Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., broke the tie by voting to pay.

It was reported that a government grant of $1,454.75 is expected, and that amount will be divided by the city and county as reimbursement.

Local Woman Shot

A 22-year-old local woman was shot in the abdomen during a family argument at a restaurant drive-in here about 6 p.m. Monday.

Linda Mae Dye was reported in undetermined condition in the intensive care unit of Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi.

According to Sheriff's Deputy Joe Williams, the woman's husband, Robert, was arrested and charged with assault with intent to murder. Williams said a .22 caliber pistol was recovered.

Judge Refuses Plea For Bond Reduction

Dist. Judge John H. Miller denied a Sinton man's petition for a reduction in the $35,000 bond set by the court in the case last February.

Virgilio Gomez, 31, has been in the Aransas County jail here since last December, on charges of robbery by assault. Defense lawyer Marvin Foster of San Diego, argued at the 36th District Court hearing that the size of the bond amounts to "virtual denial of bail" for his client. He said the "excessive" amount of the bond also has resulted in "deprivation of the constitutional rights" of his client.

Foster gave the court notice of appeals afterwards, saying he may go "straight to Austin" to the Criminal Court of Appeals.

Gomez, who filed as a candidate for state representative of the 41st District, but later withdrew from the race, testified that he could possibly find sureties to go on a $10,000 or $15,000 bond.

Gomez was indicted on charges of robbery by assault in February in connection with the robbery last Dec. 22 of a local retail grocery store.

The defendant is alleged to have taken $2,562.17 in the robbery.

Dist. Atty. John Flinn said the money was recovered.

The state opposed Gomez' petition for a bond reduction on the basis of what was said to be his "past record."

Sheriff Bob Hewes said he could not say if Gomez' bond was the highest ever set in Aransas County, because of the condition of the records in his office. He explained that construction underway in his quarters would make it difficult to conduct the necessary study of records to produce the information requested by Foster.

However, Dist. Clerk Mrs. Agnes Harden testified that based only on records of bonds charged (during the period between the initial charge and return of an indictment), the Gomez bond was the highest set in the last five years.

Foster attempted to establish that the bail bond set on his client was high by Aransas County standards.

Foster also contended that his client had established a good record in making court appearances in previous cases requiring bonds.

The court asked if it wasn't true that Gomez had fled from the San Patricio County jail in the past.

Foster admitted this was so, but said Gomez returned to the jail within 24-hours.

Gomez testified that an uncle had gone as surety on a $25,000 bond set by the court in an earlier hearing, but that he had not been released on the bond even though it had been accepted by the chief deputy sheriff.

No Gasoline Bids

Another indication of the expected shortage of gasoline came to light at the City Council meeting Monday night.

The City of Rockport had sent letters to a number of oil companies asking for bids to supply gasoline for city vehicles during the coming year.

Not a single bid was submitted, although Exxon and Gulf sent letters stating they were sorry but they were not in a position to bid at the present time.

It was indicated that, although the city's present contract with Mobil has expired, the city will continue dealing with this firm if the company is interested.

Kindergarten, First Grade Registration

Registration for the public school kindergarten program and first grade will be held the week of April 30 through May 4. Registration will be held at the three elementary schools between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. It is important for any student who will attend school next fall to register at this time.

All students should bring their birth certificate and immunization records to register. It is important that students register at this time so as to provide for the employment of an adequate number of teachers.

First Grade: All students who will be six years old prior to September 1, 1973, will be eligible.

Kindergarten: 1) Any child who was five years old on or before February 1, 1973, will be eligible for the program, or 2) Any child who will have his 5th birthday after February 1, 1973, and before September 1, 1973, and is either educationally handicapped or economically deprived will be eligible.

If you have a question about the eligibility of your child for the kindergarten program, please feel free to contact a school official.

KINDERGARTENS provide early learning opportunities—and a lot of fun—for boys and girls. Registration for the kindergarten and first grade program will be held April 30 through May 4.

CPL Official Discusses Rates

and one lasted until 4:50 a.m. The Council, as a last action on the rate increase request before election of a Council for 1973, passed without CPL agreement a 2% rate increase. This applied to all rates, including municipal accounts not included in the original CPL request.

"The following information is supplied to the Rockport City Council at their request to clarify the position of CPL at this time:

1. CPL has employed two nationally recognized independent consulting firms to make a technical appraisal and evaluation of its utility investment. In addition, a group of Texas realtors has been employed to evaluate the CPL real estate. We expect that this evaluation will show that CPL is entitled to more than a 6% rate increase. This is an expensive but now necessary method of updating the values of property that have been conservatively valued in previous calculations of rate base and rate of return on investment for the Company.

2. The Company believes that its property is being confiscated if forced to operate under the unfair rate increase passed by Corpus Christi. It intends to promptly take every legal step available to keep its property from being taken.

3. CPL has used greater mechanization and automation to increase production per man-hour and has used larger equipment which in the past has reduced unit costs. The time has arrived when inflation has more than offset these savings on productivity and economy of scale. Prices paid for materials and labor to build electrical facilities in past years are not a fair basis for setting electric rates in 1973. CPL has established a record of an adequate power supply at a reasonable cost, and has not restricted the use of power as has been necessary in other parts of the nation.

4. Detailed plans have been made for the CPL power system through 1982. These plans using computer analysis of the mathematical model of the Company clearly show the necessity of increased prices for electric energy in order for the Company to be able to fulfill the power needs of this growing region. The fuel crisis and the uncertainties of dependable foreign petroleum supplies also dictate that new generating plants by the early 1980s will be nuclear-powered. These plants will cost about four to five times as much per unit capacity as present generating plants. The future use of nuclear fuel should help to alleviate the increasing fuel costs.

5. A major reason why CPL requested a rate increase was that earnings were dropping to the point that the bond rating analysts indicated that the CPL bond rating of AA was in jeopardy if the coverage trend was not reversed. If the bonds were downgraded, increased rates would be required to pay higher bond interest, and needed to earn satisfactory return. Tremendous new bond sales and other financing will be needed for expansion to meet future electric energy demands. Over $50 million in bond sales will be needed in October. Nearly half of this will retire bonds that were secured thirty years ago at 3 1/8% interest, to be replaced at current interest rates.

"Central Power and Light Company and many of its customers have been astounded by the response of the City of Corpus Christi to a modest and fair request. If it is necessary to carry this request into litigation, a very expensive procedure for the Company and the City will result. CPL will prove its requested rate increase is less than the amount to which it is entitled.

"CPL provides reliability and voltage quality to meet the exacting standards that have become to be expected. To do otherwise is a threat toward damage of expensive motors and electronic equipment used by customers. To sacrifice this quality of service for a slight saving on rates would certainly be false economy.

"A fair and equitable treatment of its customers continues to be a major goal of CPL. A highly efficient staff of employees is a necessity to provide quality service. Modern equipment is absolutely necessary. Reasonable earnings must be offered to attract capital. These require fair prices for electric service."

The Vikings

Mystery Of Viking Power Remains After 900 Years

By Edward H. Sims

Bjere Strand, Denmark—One of the undying fascinations of Denmark, of all Scandinavia, is the mystery of Viking power. Though we know today that the Norsemen or Vikings sailed to North America, conquered much of England, France, Ireland, Holland, Russia and other countries, etc., we still know relatively little of their methods, life and times.

In this rolling countryside west of Copenhagen one sees Viking burial mounds on the tops of hills every so many miles, mounds standing along among farmers' fields, attracting only an occasional visitor. Fifteen miles away, at Trelleborg are the restored ruins, and much original, of an old Viking settlement, with its long halls, protective fortifications and outposts.

Historians know that from about 800 to 1100 the Vikings terrorized all northern Europe, sailed into the Mediterranean, deep into Russia via the rivers, and reached Turkey and the Arab countries. They conquered much of Ireland and held it for long periods, much of England though Alfred The Great defeated them for a time, held large areas of France and were feared as no other warriors.

What made them so fierce? Why were they so successful in battle and at sea? How did they live and what did they believe in? The answers to these questions are surprisingly few, even in Scandinavia.

First, the Vikings were the best seamen of that age and they built, by far, the best boats. There might also have been an overpopulation problem in Scandinavia at the time. But one likely theory is that the rise of Arab power in the eighth century, cutting many of the southern trading routes, caused the opening of new, northern trading routes and that these attracted the Viking pirates.

Whatever attracted them, the Vikings became a terror and at times occupied London, Paris, Lisbon, Dublin and many other European capitals and lands. Not being Christians—at least for the most part—they often went for the gold in the churches and for the pretty girls, which they often brought back to Denmark.

Fighting seemed to be a natural way of life for them. At times, one Viking force would be hired to fight another—in France, England and Ireland. The Vikings usually had a leader but they also were equals with a leader, and not divided into sharply graduated classes as most of the European peoples at the time.

They were proud, adventurous, sought glory, to excel in battle and scorned death. These characteristics, combined with their seamanship and mercantile skills, made them a dangerous, dominant race.

While it was once thought Vikings were uniformly cruel, recent studies have established that they were also often generous, self-disciplined and frequently quick to make friends.

Today the Danes in this beautiful agricultural land of waving red flags are a gentle people, with melodic language and easy going manner. There may be something of the old spirit still in them; one sometimes thinks he sees little things. But modern Denmark is a country of little crime, order and stability—the complete opposite of Viking terror.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I read your letter saying how many widows would like to get in touch with the man who said he was looking for someone who would keep his house and be a companion to him and I know how they feel because I am a widow and know what it is like not to have someone around the house who can do small jobs that men usually do or work in the yard or mend the fence and then have someone to come in and share a home cooked dinner with you.

When men and women get to be our age they are not looking for passion in sex but they are yearning for consideration, affection and companionship—someone to look at television together or talk about the news in the papers or go to church together.

The trouble with older people is that there are so many more widows than widowers of that age that the men feel like any woman who merely wishes to be friendly is trying to marry him. And if he has any money and some children they guard him from the other sex like he might be kidnapped.

I, for one, would like to have an older man who lived next door to me to talk to and be friendly with but with no thought of marriage.

Grandmother—Ala.

Answer:
I think you make a lot of sense in what you write. There are many kinds of love including love of parents, children, friends or just the love of being with people or serving them. I hope some nice gentleman rents the house next door to yours.

Louisa.

Mark Twain

One of the great figures in American literature was Samuel Longhorn Clemens, known to most Americans as Mark Twain. His father was descended from Virginia ancestors and his mother from a well known English family. He was born in Florida, Missouri, November 30th, 1835.

His family moved to Hannibal, Missouri, on the Mississippi in 1839 and there his father died while he was only twelve; his education was terminated and he went to work to help his mother. He learned the printing trade and traveled the country as a journeyman printer—to St. Louis, New York, Philadelphia, Keokuk, Iowa, etc.

Turning to ships, he became an apprentice river pilot in 1857 and after two years became a fully licensed pilot on the Mississippi. When the Civil War broke out he at first wished to participate. He joined a group of volunteers, undecided on which side to fight. But then he thought better of it and went to Nevada and prospected for gold, unsuccessfully. Then he became a newspaper reporter, signing his first articles, "Mark Twain"—derived from the term used on the Mississippi to denote a depth of two fathoms.

He then moved to California and wrote "The Jumping Frog," which brought him national attention. From this point on his career was in the ascendancy and he lectured, traveled the world and wrote. It was not until 1876 that he wrote the classic, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and not until 1884, when almost fifty, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." At seventy, Harper & Brothers, his publisher, gave him a grand anniversary party attended by many of the country's leading figures.

Another observance, climaxed November 30th, was held in 1935, President Franklin Roosevelt taking part. A museum was opened in Hannibal as part of the memorial.

Only in later years have Mark Twain's religious beliefs been published. They were suppressed for many decades as too shocking to the people and clergy. He belittled many pet Biblical stories, beliefs and miracles with sly humor and, as a religious realist, proved far ahead of his time.

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

"Look, Mom, ...no cavities!" That's the sound most parents hope to hear when dental health checkup time rolls around every year. Of course, most of us are not that fortunate, and we have one or two cavities that require dental treatment.

But what if the story is "Hey, Mom, I've got five cavities!" and the child's indigent parents cannot afford dental health care?

That is a problem State Health officials have been concerned about for some time. As a result, a project has begun in East Texas to deal with that problem and other dental health problems, including the need to educate children of all socioeconomic groups on proper dental health care techniques.

That project is known as the Dental Health Education Trailer, a specially-built and equipped mobile dental health clinic. The mobile clinic is currently operating in the City of Marshall in East Texas, primarily in conjunction with the public school system, but also Project Head Start Programs and other such programs. It is being used as an educational tool and not as a treatment facility.

The program is having great impact on the dental health of Marshall school children in grades kindergarten through sixth grade. Although the real measure of the program will not be in until it has been in effect for two or three years, State health officials expect to see a significant reduction in the tooth decay rate of the school children on a yearly basis.

Oral hygiene practices were greatly improved in just a few weeks after the program was instituted.

So far the program has reached some 2,000 children in five different Marshall schools, and over 100 teachers have been trained in proper dental health education. These teachers see that the dental health education begun in the mobile dental health clinic continues on a daily basis in the school system. Students, who are taught proper toothbrushing and flossing techniques and tooth care, practice these methods every day in the classroom.

This summer when school is out, adult education will join special low income socioeconomic areas of town as the focus of the program. Health officials have arranged with several industries in Marshall to utilize the dental health education aspects of the service and apply it to adults -- to their employees.

Marshall was the first city to add fluoride to its water--in the interest of better teeth. Now it has the distinction of being the first in the State with the Dental Health Education Trailer program.

Outreach Program, Vietnam Veterans and Servicemen

The Veterans Administration has stepped up its "outreach" program of informing Vietnam Era veterans and servicemen, including returned prisoners of war, of the availability of government benefits, A.A. Hunter, VA Regional Office Director, said today.

Mr. Hunter noted that "outreach" efforts begin while servicemen are on active duty, and continue after discharge.

Thus far, G.I. Bill details have been provided to two million servicemen in Vietnam. Another 250,000 have been counseled in military hospitals, and three million at separation points.

"Outreach" is continued after discharge, and veterans assistance counselors at 72 Veterans Assistance Centers around the country have interviewed 1.5 million veterans.

In addition, four million letters have been mailed to veterans, and millions of telephone contacts have been made.

Mr. Hunter said it appears most servicemen who were prisoners of war plan to remain in military service. However, they have immediate eligibility for two readjustment benefits.

One is payment of tuition costs of servicemen who go to school under the G.I. Bill, not to exceed the $220 monthly rate paid single veteran trainees. The other benefit is a VA guarantee of 60 percent of G.I. home loans lenders make to servicemen and veterans, up to a maximum of $12,500.

Mr. Hunter cited other VA benefits available to Vietnam Era veterans and servicemen:

..specially adapted housing ("wheelchair" homes) grants of up to $17,500, and $150 annual clothing allowances for certain disabled veterans.

..dental and medical treatment, including drug treatment.

..compensation for service connected disabilities; pensions for nonservice connected disabilities.

..burial benefits -- flags, interment in national cemeteries and reimbursement of burial expenses.

In general, veterans are eligible for VA benefits after receiving an other than dishonorable discharge based on at least 181 days of active duty, any part of it after January 31, 1955. Servicemen become eligible after the same length of service.

Veterans also become eligible if discharged for service connected disabilities, without regard to length of service.

by

Not long ago I told you about a proposed project to study the movement of black bass that Biologist Kirby Gholson was working on in conjunction with Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio.

Work has now progressed to the point that they know what equipment they've got to come up with to get the job done. I told you about the little transmitters they used on flathead catfish but, if you remember, I said that they were too large to use on bass and the drain on their batteries was such that the transmitter would only remain operational about 60 days. This is too short a period for the study Gholson wants to carry out so they must develop a smaller transmitter with a much longer life.

The Institute is now working on a small sonic transponder fish tag which they hope to have ready for testing about next January. These transponders will not transmit all the time -- they will only send out a signal when the biologist, using a transmitter, sends an interrogation. In other words, the biologist sends out a signal which, to the transponder, means, "Where are you?" and the transponder immediately answers, "Here, here", and the biologist can then plot the location of the bass that carries this little smart aleck of a fish tag. Of course each transponder must have its own individual signal so that the bass carrying it can be identified. The Institute will, of course, also have to develop the transmitter to send the interrogation signal and the receivers to pinpoint the location of the tagged fish. Because the transponder will only have to transmit when asked to do so, it is believed that its batteries, even though they're tiny things, will last for about a year. This will allow Gholson and his crew to follow the movements of bass as the water cools off in the winter, as the spawning urge begins to make itself felt in the spring, and during the hot, sultry days of the summer-time. They can track him as he cruises around at night looking for food and they can locate him as he rests in the shade during the warm daylight hours.

The science of wildlife management, especially when directed toward fish, is not an exact science. Data must be gathered over a long period of time, from a large number of individuals. Since each of these individuals may act a little different from all the others, it takes a long time and a great deal of such data to set up a pattern that can be depended on.

On the other hand, the equipment used in gathering this data can, and must, be as exact as it is possible to make it. It must be rugged, in most cases light and portable, and, in all cases, dependable. Miniaturization of instruments has allowed us to do many things that were impossible in the past. We can follow the migration of whales, monitor the life signs of an astronaut in space or a bear in hibernation, and soon now we'll be

Baptist Women Meet

Mrs. Eddie Bradley gave the Bible Study, giving events in the life of Jesus during Passion Week.

Mrs. Hill Brown dismissed with prayer. Refreshments of cake, punch and coffee were served to ten members and one visitor.

Be Very Gentle With the Tick

AUSTIN -- What do you do when you meet a tick?

It's not a matter of etiquette. You don't have to be polite. But in doesn't pay to be too abrupt, either.

Ticks should be handled with care. Should one settle down for a feast on a tender part of your anatomy, it would be improper just to yank it off. The tick will probably retaliate by leaving its head under your skin, causing you much misery for days.

The theory behind removing a tick is to deprive it of air, causing it to remove its head from your skin more or less voluntarily.

Since the tick breathes through its body when it is feeding, it is recommended that you cover its body with something which will inhibit its breathing.

This could be nail polish remover, alcohol or a heavy oil.

It is important that the tick be given time to become distressed enough to remove its head from your skin.

Of course, the best defense against ticks is prevention. Many times ticks will wander around one's anatomy for hours before a particularly succulent spot appeals to them. This gives the potential victim time after an outing to take off his clothes and examine himself thoroughly. Of course, the clothes used for the outing should not be put back on since they could be harboring ticks.

Ticks are not to be taken lightly. Their bites can become infected easily, especially if you scratch them.

And at least one serious disease, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, is transmitted by ticks. Fifteen cases of this disease were reported in 1972, all of them in East Texas.

CONGRATULATIONS

'War' Being Waged Against Organized Crime In Texas

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a continuation of a series of stories on organized crime in Texas. Figures used were compiled by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council and the Texas Department of Public Safety. "Public awareness is vital to stamping out organized crime," say Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, DPS Director, who are co-chairmen of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council. This series is part of a public education program developed by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council with assistance from the Texas Criminal Justice Council, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Office of the Attorney General of Texas and local law enforcement agencies.)

But that "original owner," it turned out, had used bogus papers and license plates when the automobile was sold to the used car dealer.

Bill and Beth were left holding the bag—their dream exploded—the victims of a sophisticated organized crime car theft ring.

Organized auto theft and theft of personal and household property pours millions of dollars yearly into pockets of Texas mobsters.

Autos and other vehicles head the list, but thieves also make off with everything from television sets to hair brushes from Texans each year.

One officer recalled not long ago "the hardest thing I ever had to do in my life was go into the small home of a low-income family and take away the television set a hard-working mother had finally been able to bring home for the kids. "She bought it from a shady dealer, and it turned out to be stolen goods. It wasn't easy to walk out with all those kids crying for something they had waited for all their lives," he added.

The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council, co-chaired by Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety, reports motor vehicles are prime targets for organized thieves.

Using Dallas as an example, criminals stole property valued at $15.7 million last year. More than $6 million of that total was cars -- although ultimately $4.4 million worth of autos were recovered.

An end-of-the-year tally for 1971 estimated $50 million or more worth of motor vehicles were reported stolen in Texas.

That figure represents an estimated 48,323 vehicles stolen in the state during 1971.

Many average Texans conclude the absence of complaints means the absence of organized crime in the car theft racket. Nothing could be further from the truth.

"At the present time, 80 to 85 per cent of all stolen vehicles are recovered," said Colonel Speir, "but many of those not recovered are taken by professional thieves and organized theft rings."

Car theft, as a matter of record, often is the "kindergarten" for a young thug.

Underworld bosses, especially a "fence" (the receiver of stolen goods), often sponsor fledglings in "lower level" crimes such as home burglary, hijackings and auto theft.

By bankrolling prospective employees, whom they are actually training and testing, the organized criminal element is the catalyst for street crime. As former U. S. Attorney General John Mitchell has said, "When you read of housebreakings, shoplifting and industrial thefts, you should realize that organized crime provides a major network for the disposal of these stolen goods."

The DPS Criminal Law Enforcement Division and local authorities have uncovered evidence on more than 40 auto theft rings. In 34 instances, positive identification of the leader was made and names of members and method of operation discovered. Many arrests have resulted.

Lawmen in North Texas recently disrupted a multi-city car theft ring employing one of the more common methods used to steal a car.

In the raids and resulting arrests, officers recovered 13 stolen cars which had illegally obtained salvage titles and salvage vehicle identification numbers (VIN) and license tags.

Colonel Speir explained the thieves get the tags, certificate of title and identification plates from a vehicle which has either been wrecked or totally destroyed.

"Then," Colonel Speir said, "a member of the gang goes out and steals a car similar to the wrecked one."

After transferring the plates from the salvaged vehicle, the thieves re-register the stolen car and sell it -- usually to an unknowing customer like the used car dealer who sold the car to Bill and Beth Jones.

Last spring, the FBI and agents from the DPS working with the National Auto Theft Bureau (NATB) recovered 24 stolen vehicles believed to be part of a haul by a nationwide car theft ring.

The late model luxury cars were stolen from Pennsylvania and sold in Houston through two motor companies and a local businessman.

The cars were registered on counterfeit titles and financed through various banks, apparently by innocent buyers, the FBI said.

Another frequently used method is use of a counterfeit title obtained from a non-title state.

Two major investigations in Houston and Dallas in June, 1972, netted 62 recovered stolen vehicles. In one instance, the criminal subjects utilized salvage auto identification plates from Alabama on cars stolen in Tennessee.

The other group specialized in counterfeit Pennsylvania titles and stolen Pennsylvania vehicles.

Department of Public Safety agents and Abilene lawmen cracked down on an auto theft ring found to be operating out of that city. The investigation led to the recovery of 44 stolen vehicles and several conspirators were arrested on auto theft charges.

The thefts cleared in this case involved the use of salvage vehicle identification number plates.

"At the present time, there are indications of other large rings operating in Texas," said Colonel Speir, reinforcing the assessment of other Texas lawmen.

Suspected operators of what the investigating officer described as "quite a large theft ring" were arrested after several months of undercover work by D P S intelligence agents, officers of two coastal counties, and a representative of the NATB.

The investigations showed that the car theft rings on the uppercoast steal cars, especially late sport models, and strip them for transmissions, tires, or whatever parts they need.

"Then they'll put some old tires on them and drag them off and leave them," said the lawmen.

Throughout the state, farm equipment is a popular target for theft rings. Peace officers in Texas and New Mexico recently seized $100,000 worth of farm tractors, truck tractors, and a big combine. Authorities believe the confiscated equipment was stolen from points throughout West Texas by a ring headquartered in the Texas Panhandle.

Professional thieves in the Rio Grande Valley appear to specialize in new or nearly new pickup trucks.

Investigators said 30 trucks were stolen in one Valley city in 1972 and apparently taken across the border into Mexico.

Less easy to identify and return are valuables stolen in home burglaries. For example, in a medium-sized North Texas city, residents of 481 homes reported being burglarized in 1971. Only 63 got any property back.

Merchandise such as television sets, watches, furniture and stereo sets usually are difficult to identify. They're easy to transport and simple to market but extremely difficult to trace.

Such items find their way into pawn shops or to the "friendly neighborhood fence" -- for the thief, that is -- and are unloaded or resold.

Many homeowners now are using electric pencil devices to mark the more valuable items within their homes.

Of course, the more obvious precautions such as locking your car when you leave it or never leaving the keys in the ignition certainly should be practiced by all motorists.

This may not prevent your car from being stolen, but it makes the thieves' job more difficult and greates the chances of their being seen.

Car thieves and burglars who prowls cars for tape decks or other items must move swiftly.

Law enforcement officials also could use some changes in the penal code and authorization for modern surveillance techniques to help catch the fence.

Fences usually are difficult to run to ground, doing much of their business by telephone or in some cases selling off stolen goods a few items at a time.

But progress is being made in the theft and burglary field, as far as most law enforcement officials can tell.

A more aware and better educated public holds the best promise for solutions to the problem.

"We may never wipe it out completely, but if the public will help giant progress can be made," Colonel Speir noted.

A few months ago outside a Dallas night spot, a well-known police character with an intriguing nickname, "The Creeper," died in a hall of gunfire in a scene straight out of a Hollywood gangster film.

Police had suspected he was the "enforcer" for a loosely-knit group of southern and southwestern thugs known as the "Dixie Mafia."

But before this scene conjures up vision of an organized crime takeover in the Lone Star State, Texans should be aware of the unrelenting statewide efforts already underway to crack down on crime.

Little publicized up to this point, the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council is conducting an all-out drive to corral all segments of the criminal world.

The Council, co-chaired by Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, Director of the Department of Public Safety, is comprised of top law enforcement officials from throughout the state.

"Some hoodlums are organized, but we are organized, too," Colonel Speir pointed out recently, "and we are moving ahead steadily on all criminal fronts including gambling, auto theft, prostitution, gang killings, narcotics, fencing of stolen goods, credit card thefts and many others."

Attorney General Hill, since taking office in January, has expanded the organized crime division within his office. Head of the office Tim James, a former vice squad officer and attorney, has the sole responsibility to work in close cooperation with enforcement officials to help ferret out organized crime activities.

"My office can give legal and auditing help, and in conjunction with the DPS and officers at the local level, assist in yanking the welcome mat from under the organized criminal element in our state," Hill said.

Both Hill and Speir acknowledge organized crime does exist, but not of the classic Mafia or La Cosa Nostra vintage.

"Some of our home-grown hoodlums have friends within out-of-state mob ranks, and they may be getting some tips and coaching, but we have no concrete information at this time the national syndicates as such are operating in the state," said Colonel Speir.

That fact is indicated in statistics compiled by the Council.

Leading the list of crime categories in profits by far is illegal gambling.

Texas wagered more than $815 million in football bets alone during the 1971 season with some $98 million flowing directly into the mainstream of organized criminal activity.

But during the calendar year from which the Council's gambling figures were taken more than 130 arrests were made as the bookies began to feel the heat.

"I regard this as a sizeable accomplishment in such a period of time, when the problems and restrictions in making bookmaking cases are taken into consideration," says Colonel Speir. "Our records indicate that on the average, it takes 360 man-hours to make a single case on a bookie."

Increased pressure is being applied daily on drug traffickers in Texas. The DPS Narcotics Service has been averaging over 200 cases per month, mostly for sale of narcotics and dangerous drugs.

Agents estimate they will file some 3,000 cases against 2,000 defendants this year, compared to some 960 cases against 680 defendants three years ago.

As law enforcement officials move ahead with arrests on all fronts there is accelerated activity behind the scenes as well.

A "Texas Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit Association" has been formed which will:

Promote the exchange and sharing of confidential information on organized crime activity through establishment of an intelligence system involving law enforcement agencies throughout the state;

Exchange information on organized crime with appropriate neighboring states and federal agencies;

Establish a central file or clearing house for criminal intelligence information and provide it with data and authorized dissemination;

Develop personal relationship and trust among members of the organization and all law enforcement agencies;

Promote professionalization of law enforcement;

Execute the planned law enforcement program through investigation and vigorous prosecution of organized crime.

One of the major areas of concern among law enforcement officials is the lack of public awareness of what constitutes organized crime.

Why does a weather change so often affect the sinuses or the ears?

When the weather changes, the pressure also changes as a usual thing. When a clear spell comes to an end and rainy, low-pressure weather begins, those who experience ear or sinus trouble often experience discomfort.

This is because there are pockets of air in our head, or sinuses, which become blocked off. The pressure inside becomes greater than outside when the barometer falls (and a low-pressure system arrives overhead) and expands the pockets.

A doctor will open them up, or equalize the pressure. The eustachian tube in the ear is a natural safety valve to allow air in and out of the ear. If it's closed by a swelling or a bad cold, then you risk puncturing your ear drum if you fly at a high altitude.

Smoked Seafood

AUSTIN -- The arrival of warm weather is a good excuse to try some really elegant smoked recipes, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Seafood Marketing Division.

In fact, the division used the warm weather as an excuse to publish a poster giving all the details on outdoor fish cookery, and the recipes on the poster are mouth-watering indeed.

Cindy Gray, the department's home economist, says her favorite is Smoked Fish with Wild Rice-Mushroom Stuffing. All that's needed, she says, is a hooded grill, low burning coals and some wet hickory chips to provide the smoke.

For full details and additional recipes, send a post card with your name and address to Smoke Fish Poster, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas, 78701.

SMOKED FISH WITH WILD RICE-MUSHROOM STUFFING

1 (3 to 4 lb.) dressed snapper or other large fresh fish
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 slices precooked bacon
1/4 cup thinly sliced green onion and tops

wild rice-mushroom stuffing
Clean, wash and dry fish. Sprinkle inside and out with salt and pepper. Stuff fish loosely. Close opening with small skewers or toothpicks. Place precooked bacon on top of fish and sprinkle with sliced onions. Place fish on well-greased grill inside smoke oven. Close hood. Smoke over low coals for approximately one hour and 30 minutes or until fish is done and flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove skewers. Makes six servings. Note: Six pan-dressed fish could be used instead of the snapper. The cooking time would be approximately one hour.

WILD RICE - MUSHROOM STUFFING

1 (4-oz.) package wild rice
4 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 (2 1/2-oz.) jar sliced mushrooms
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Cook wild rice according to directions on package. Saute vegetables in margarine or cooking oil until vegetables are tender. Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Makes approximately 2 1/2 cups stuffing.

On Cigars

The trend in recent years has been toward more artificial flavor, more artificial color, more chemicals, in food. Some foods today are so filled with preservatives, added color, flavor and filler one hardly knows what he's eating.

Slipping up on our blind side in recent years also has come the artificial cigar. Cigar smokers, especially those who enjoy small cigars, should read carefully the label on the next pack or box they purchase. Chances are he won't be able to find an all-tobacco small cigar in his tobacco shop.

The pack or box usually contains a clause, in small print, which explains that the cigars enclosed are "predominantly" tobacco. That means they contain filler and that the average happy stogie sucker is probably sucking burning rags, cereal or some such stuff along with his tobacco.

Of course, the puffer would be better off not sucking fire at all. But since one doesn't inhale them, they're safer than cigarettes. But they aren't all tobacco, chums.

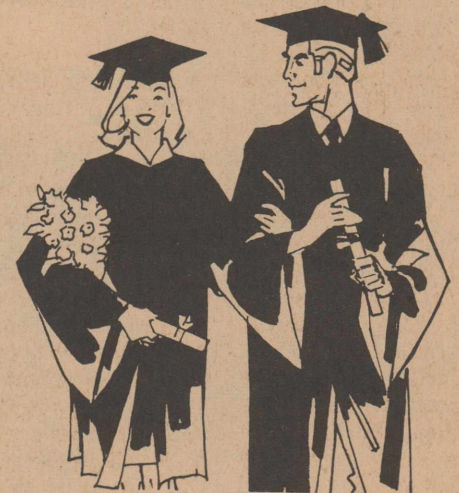

Peace of mind and inward happiness are life's greatest reward, regardless of the wealth obtained.

The Kinsey Report

Every once in a while a member of the staff of THE ROCKPORT PILOT has the good feeling of knowing that something appearing in the paper has helped bring about an improvement in our community.

Several weeks ago this column carried an account of how my wife had organized the boys and girls living in Peninsula Oaks Subdivision into a "Litter Squad." The story pointed out that the youngsters were doing a fine job of picking up bits of paper, bottles, cans and other trash and keeping the area clean and neat. The "Litter Squad" members are rewarded with various types of outings.

A few days later a lady called me at home, declined to give her name but recommended that THE PILOT urge the city and county to join in a citywide and countywide "Clean Up Week."

Our paper did as she suggested and published several articles urging such action.

Next, the Concerned Women of Aransas County wrote to Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., and Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell endorsing such a community effort and offering to help.

This week, Mayor Falk and Judge Wendell proclaimed the week of May 7-12 as "Clean Up Week" (see article on Page 1.)

THE PILOT is glad to have had the opportunity to be a part of advocating this project and pledges to publicize the activities and results of "Clean Up Week."

Belgium, with a population of 9,300,000, is the most densely populated European country.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Tired of not catching fish?

That's a common complaint at certain "slack" seasons of the year—especially days when the temperatures are high.

Naturally the easy answer to the problem is to fish at night. Then the water is cooler by several degrees. As a consequence of the temperature changes the big bass move up from the depths and into shallow water where again it's comfortable and there's new food to be found.

Anglers who like to hear the explosion of a lunger bass in the still of the night as it smacks a top water lure with all of its dynamic power—use a chugger, or a popper or a stick with spinners fore and aft.

Let this happen alongside the boat, as it sometimes does and you'll not only get a thrill but the sensation of a cold chill running up and down your spine . . . despite the warm night.

One who seeks the bass in the hot daytime weather, needs a different approach. He has to fish deep—real deep. Big bass seek not only the shade to escape the hot rays of the sun, but also the cooler water (around 68°) which may be 30 to 60 feet deep if the weather has been very warm for some time.

First of all one needs a worm rod and a bait casting reel for this job, with 20 pound-test line or stronger. That is, if he wants to land a lunger.

This time the lure needs to be a plastic worm, preferably the small seven-inch size in strawberry red, brown, blue or black.

Fish off of a point from boat to bank, shallow water to deep, using a slip sinker heavy enough to keep the worm crawling slowly along the bottom . . . deeper, deeper and deeper, until you feel that longed-for "tell-tale tap" that means a strike.

If at first you don't succeed, change worms until you find a color or combination of colors, to his liking. A white-tailed worm is great!

If still no luck, try longer worms!

Failing there, tie on a jig and eel and bounce 'em off the bottom in the deepest hole you can find. Here, a depth finder comes in mighty handy.

Don't give up — they gotta eat sometime!

Presbyterian Circle Meets

The April meeting of Circle 2 of First Presbyterian Church was held in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Holmgren.

Delicious refreshments were served to sixteen members. Forty-one cards were sent and thirty-three visits were made by members.

Mrs. Henry von Pein, circle chairman, opened the meeting with prayer, and conducted the business meeting.

The Bible lesson, "The Servant's Teaching," was moderated by Mrs. M. Hight.

The May meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Van Morgan, and Mrs. M. LeMaire will be the moderator.

Fix-It Tip

Now is the time to add a window box or two, before warm weather arrives. Window boxes can be hung at front or side windows or garage windows. They can also be used to decorate the sides of steps leading to a front or side door.

Patterns are available at most lumberyards or you may wish to design your own to fit a certain area. Window boxes should be about eight inches deep, about six inches wide at the bottom and a little wider at the top.

Use wood that will withstand weather (redwood and cypress are best). Oak and pine can be used if suitably finished. Prevent rotting by treating with wood preservative.

SPORTIVE—Classic good looks abound in this plumed cotton patchwork blazer and cuffed pants of crisp white cotton. By Print Bazaar, division of Country Miss, Inc. Fabric by Concord.

Drownproof Yourself, and Save Your Life

AUSTIN -- A new brochure from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department entitled, "Drownproofing," outlines a simple method of saving yourself which anyone, even non-

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Johnson, Waco, Texas visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Roden and Jacki, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bone during the Easter holidays.

The average polar bear weighs 900 pounds.

swimmers, can master when they get in trouble in the water. The secret of the method is to remain calm and expend as little energy as possible, and this means doing everything in slow motion. It also means getting your face wet. As the brochure points out, one's head weighs approximately 15 pounds and keeping it out of the water takes lots of energy.

In the drownproofing method, the face is lifted from the water only long enough to grab a breath of air once or twice per minute.

Parks and Wildlife Department officials advise that you learn the method with a friend or lifeguard standing by. Children should also be taught the method since they are frequent victims of boating mishaps.

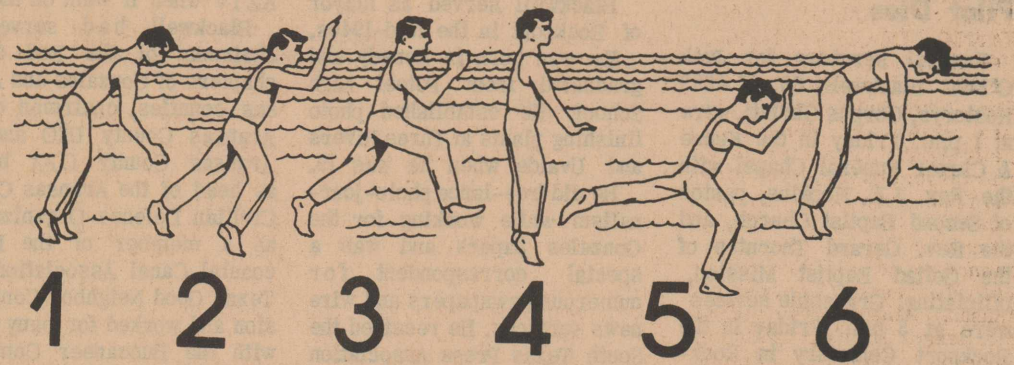

It is important to have confidence in the method. It really works. At Georgia Tech 60 swimming students tried the method for as long as eight hours without stopping. Twenty had their hands tied behind their backs, and 20 more had their legs tied in a half bent position to make them useless.

The average quitting time was four hours and 40 minutes in the water, and many made it the entire eight hours of testing. All were poor swimmers. In the Pacific, a Navy seaman fell overboard far out at sea and was able to stay afloat for the better part of a week, using the drownproofing technique.

There are six steps to the method. Remember, do them slowly.

(1) With the lungs full, float face-down with the back of the neck just breaking the surface of the water. Your full lungs will provide more than enough flotation, even for a natural "sinker." This position is drown proofing method:

basically the "jelly-fish float" taught to youngsters. Legs and arms should hang freely, exerting no energy.

(2) Prepare for a downward thrust, using the arms or legs. Your legs should slowly move apart, preparing for either a scissors kick or a "froglegs" kick. At the same time, raise the arms forward or to the sides, whichever suits you. They will be used to thrust downward similar to treading water. Move slowly. Remember, the object is to use as little energy as possible. The movements should take 15 to 20 seconds.

(3) Exhale through the nose while lifting your head. (4) At the same time, slowly thrust your arms downward or horizontally and bring your legs together. Not much movement is needed to raise your mouth above the water. Don't try to raise your shoulders or neck. Be sure to exhale in the water or on the way up. If you exhale too soon, you lose the buoyancy of your lungs. If you exhale too late, you waste precious energy in keeping your head above water. With your face above water, take a deep breath.

(5) Now play dead. With your lungs full, face the bottom of the pool or lake and let your limbs hang lifelessly. Expend no energy. Some persons must make a second downward thrust, or extend the first, to keep from sinking too deeply.

(6) Relax. With head, arms and legs dangling, hold your breath as long as it is comfortable. It is natural for pressure to build up in the lungs while holding your breath.

If you feel this happening, exhale a few bubbles through the nose. After three to 10 seconds, start the cycle over.

Each cycle should last from 30 to 60 seconds, depending on your rest period, how often your lungs need air and how much energy you have wasted in moving too quickly.

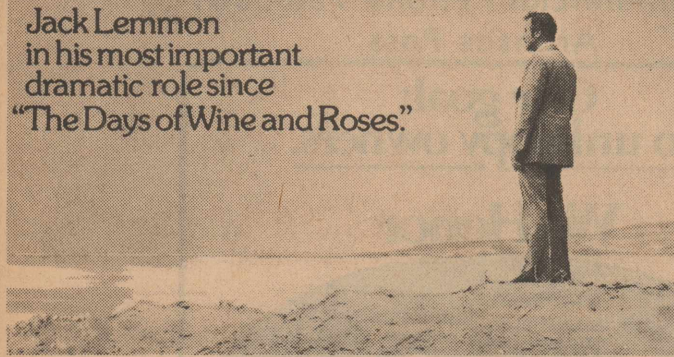

For more information on drownproofing, contact your YMCA, American Red Cross or local college or university swimming instructor.

People 65 and over without Medicare Hospital Insurance Can Apply Now

Starting July 1, people 65 and over who haven't been able to get Medicare hospital insurance before may be eligible and they can apply for the protection now, according to social security officials here.

"Previously, to get Medicare hospital insurance, you had to be 65 or over and either eligible for social security payments or have a certain amount of social security work credit," a spokesman said. "Under recent amendments to the social security law, people 65 or over who were not eligible before may now purchase Medicare hospital insurance protection. To get this protection, however, they must also sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare."

"This new provision is designed to extend hospital insurance coverage to people 65 or over who have little or no work credit under social security and are unable to get comparable insurance through private companies," he said.

The initial premium for hospital insurance will be $33 a month plus $6.30 a month for medical insurance. "The protection will begin July 1, 1973, for people who sign up before June 1," the spokesman said.

"This year, you can sign up as late as August 31," he said. "If you delay past May 31, though, coverage will begin later. If you delay past August 31, you can sign up in the first 3 months of any year."

Medicare hospital insurance helps pay for hospital bills and many related expenses.

The medical insurance part of Medicare helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses not covered by the hospital insurance. It is funded by individual premiums and by general revenue.

For people who become

65 after June 1 who are not otherwise eligible for hospital insurance, there is initially a 7-month period to apply for both the hospital and medical insurance parts of Medicare. "You can apply during the 3 months before you're 65, the month of your 65th birthday, or the 3 months thereafter," the spokesman said. "But you must apply in the 3 months before you're 65 to get coverage beginning with the month you become 65."

Starting in July, Medicare will also be extended to workers under 65 who have been getting monthly disability payments from social security or railroad retirement for 2 years or more—and to many people with chronic kidney disease.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To: Eldred C. Manning, Defendant, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable 156th District Court of Aransas County at the Court House thereof, in Rockport, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock a.m. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 28th day of May A.D. 1973, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Petition filed in said Court, on the 11th day of April A.D. 1973, in this cause, numbered 4807 on the docket of said court and styled in the matter of the marriage of Bertha Lee Manning Plaintiff, vs. Eldred C. Manning Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit:

A suit for divorce by Petitioner, Bertha Lee Manning from Eldred C. Manning in which Petitioner requests restoration of her former name of Haviland and waiver of the six month waiting period, and in which marriage no children were born or adopted and for division of any community property not already divided all based upon statutory grounds for divorce rendering the marriage insupportable because of discord and conflict of personalities that has destroyed the legitimate ends of the marriage relationship and preventing reasonable expectation of reconciliation as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs.

Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Rockport, Texas this 11th day of April A.D. 1973.

Try This Recipe

AUSTIN -- Texas flounder is an all-time favorite. Its snow-white flesh and delicate flavor make it one of the most popular of fish.

Though delicious when baked or broiled whole, flounder can be fancied up a bit with crab meat stuffing. If you have never stuffed a fish before, don't be scared just yet; the following recipe tells how easy it is.

After you try "Flounder Stuffed with Crab," you'll undoubtedly want more seafood recipes, so send a postcard with your name and address -- no money -- to "Seafood," Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701.

Flounder Stuffed With Crab

- 6 pan-dressed flounder (3/4 lb. each)
- Crab stuffing
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3/4 cup melted butter or margarine
- Paprika

Clean, wash and dry fish. To make a pocket for stuffing, lay the fish flat on a cutting board, light side down. With a sharp knife cut down the center of the fish along the backbone from the tail to about one inch from the head. Turn the knife flat and cut the flesh along both sides of the backbone to the tail allowing the knife to run over the rib bones. Place fish in a single layer on a well-greased baking pan. Stuff fish loosely. Combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Brush fish with sauce. Bake in a moderate oven, 350-degrees, for 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes six servings.

Crab Stuffing

- 1 pound fresh Gulf crab meat
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/3 cup chopped celery
- 1/3 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/3 cup melted fat or oil
- 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 2 cup soft bread cubes
- 3 eggs beaten
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Drain crab meat and remove any remaining shell or cartilage. Cook onion, celery, green pepper and garlic in fat until tender. Combine bread cubes, eggs, parsley, salt, pepper, cooked vegetables and crab meat; mix thoroughly.

Horse Meat?

The swift rise in meat prices—which the Secretary of Agriculture took in stride, telling Americans to eat something else, oddly enough—has produced a turn to horse meat.

Horse meat retailers have begun to sell out early in the day in a number of cities and horse meat burgers are the new, or in, thing in some places. Many say horse meat, properly prepared, is as good as other meats.

Why not? The horse is a beautiful and admired animal. Since hamburger patties are not necessarily beef burgers (cereal and other additives are allowed to be mixed in), why not horseburgers? Think about it.

Japan has about 40 traffic fatalities every day.
