SABRE PILOTS BEST MIGS

Capt. William D. Taylor, Wellington, gives an animated description of how he damaged an enemy MIG in an engagement April 6 over Sinuiju, in North Korea. The others in the picture will get their turn later, for they all managed to inflict heavy damage on the enemy fighters in an aerial dogfight between an estimated 30 MIGS and 12 F-86

One MIG Damaged

Flight Commander Bill Taylor Flies 40 Missions in Korea

As a flight commander leading three other sabre jet planes, Capt. William D. Taylor, who calls Wellington his home town, tangles with enemy MIGs over North Korea, and in one recent aerial dogfight between 12 Sabre jets and 30 MIGs scored a hit on one. Capt. Taylor has never lived in Wellington, although he has visited here numbers of times, and his wife is the former Alene Raburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Raburn. She and their son are staying here while he is overseas. Only recently he was made a flight commander and with this came the spot promotion to captain. Permanent appointment to that rank will be due next February.

As a member of the Fifth Air Force's 4th Fighter Interceptor Wing, Capt. Taylor has flown 40 missions. At present, he is resting in Japan, but he will return to Korea late this month.

Each flight consists of four Sabre jets, each with a wingman to protect him from enemy that might slip up behind. No flier is supposed to go out without his wingman, but once Capt. Taylor did, and had to hurry to get away.

A distinguished member of Taylor's squadron, the 334th, is Capt. Jabara, the first U. S. jet ace. He and Mrs. Jabara were friends of the Taylors while the men were still stationed on the east coast.

A tape recording made by Capt. Taylor, telling something of his work, was sent to radio station KCTX, Childress, and was played Thursday morning. Mrs. Taylor was notified only a few minutes before the scheduled hour, and many friends here did not get to hear him.

Capt. Taylor, who was reared at San Antonio, was a pilot in World War II, serving from 1942 to 1946. He then returned to Texas A. & M. College, received his degree, and re-enlisted in the Air Force in 1947.

19 Cars of Wheat Bought; Yield Above Estimates

Approximately 19 cars of wheat—or 28,500 bushels—has been bought in Wellington in the last two weeks, and yields, now that the harvesting is well under way, are considerably better than either buyers or growers believed possible a week ago.

"Some farmers are getting two bushels where they thought they'd get one," a local buyer stated. While the yield will still be short, ten-bushel county average is now believed possible.

J. A. Scott and Willie West of the Loco community average 18 bushels on a 160 acre field, one of the best yields reported this year. Bill Harbin, also of Loco, cut a 20 bushel average on 12 acres.

The quality of this year's crop is good and most of the wheat now coming in weighs 60 pounds and is dry. In some fields, however, weeds have grown lushly during the damp weather, and these are turning out wheat with a higher moisture content, Jones Singley of Singley Brothers said. Harvesting is still confined to wheat south of Salt Fork River. The market in Wellington Tuesday. (Continued on Page Eight)

Wind, Sand Damage Area Cotton Small Twister Hits Near Dodson

High wind and sand took toll of young crops Friday evening, June 15, leaving losses as high as fifty percent in the west part of the county, and passing over other large sections without damage. Twisting winds Thursday and Friday nights damaged buildings on farms in widely separated parts of the county, and the rain likewise fell erratically, amounting to as much as two inches in some communities.

Tom Crabtree, Quail merchant, estimated that at least 40 per cent of the stand of cotton up and 50 per cent of the feed in that area was blown out in the sandstorm Friday evening. Mr. Crabtree himself was one of the heaviest losers, having had approximately 200 acres destroyed, including 40 acres of cotton and 160 of young feed.

The loss was possibly a little heavier north of Quail.

"Planters are clicking right along now, and while the farmers feel that it is getting a little late, they believe the season will be favorable for the next 10 days," he said.

A considerable amount of young cotton not blown out was burned by the sand and the growth will be set back from one to two weeks, and possibly longer, but most farmers are taking a chance on leaving their cotton wherever they can.

So far as can be learned, all those needing cottonseed have been able to get it.

Plenty of time remains for planting the combine maize grown almost altogether in that section.

During the past week, the Quail area also received about one inch of moisture, Mr. Crabtree said.

Around Lillie, the loss from wind and sand amounted to from 25 to 33 per cent, Zook Thomas estimated. A few farmers, including Chas. C. Little, had a heavier loss, 50 per cent or more, while others in the area suffered lighter damage.

A few farmers in the Salt Fork area had a complete loss, Mrs. R. H. Isbell reported. Some of the farmers in this section had already worked out their cotton.

It is estimated that around 8 or 10 per cent of the cotton in the county was destroyed.

A small tornado struck south of Dodson on the farms of G. E. Hunt and Edwin Crowder Thursday night, doing quite a bit of damage, Mrs. Z. O. McKinney of that town reported.

Mr. Hunt lost his garage, windmill and barns, and there was also considerable damage to the roof of his home.

Mr. Crowder lost his barn and also had damage to his car.

At Dozier, Alex Coleman reported wind damage to his barn.

There was wind, rain and hail in the Dozier area last week, Mrs. E. L. Rankin said. Some hail fell with the light shower that came Wednesday afternoon, June 13, but no serious damage was done. A heavier rain fell Thursday night and another Friday evening, amounting altogether to approximately two inches for the three days.

Farther west, in the Abra community, the rain and hail Thursday night was heavier and did considerable damage to crops, out-buildings and cars.

Wellington received .54 inch of rain Thursday and .04 Friday. This, with .3 received Monday night, June 11, gave the city a total of .88 inch of moisture for last week.

Brock Hurt in Bridge Accident

Pete Brock, county road employee, received a broken and crushed left leg Wednesday morning, June 13, while working on a bridge a mile north and a mile east of Wellington.

The accident occurred when the pile driver with which he was working fell, pinning down his leg. He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment, and Mrs. Brock said Monday that he was getting along as well as could be expected.

The leg bone was broken between his knee and ankle, and x-ray pictures showed considerable bone fragments in the flesh.

Mr. Brock has worked for the county for the last seven years.

Wellington Leader Wins Honors In State Newspaper Contest

The Wellington Leader won honors in state-wide competition with weekly and semi-weekly newspapers from all parts of Texas as late last week, receiving first place in column writing and fourth in general excellence for weeklies or semi-weeklies published in towns of 3,500 and over.

The award was for "Deek's Didactics," weekly column by Deskins Wells, owner, editor and publisher of the newspaper.

The awards, a plaque and two ribbons, were presented at the awards breakfast Saturday morning, June 16, at the 72nd annual meeting of the Texas Press Association in Dallas. Mr. and Mrs. Wells attended.

The plaque received by Mr. Wells reads:

Awarded The Wellington Leader, Wellington, Texas, for outstanding achievement in the field of Journalism, First Place in Column Writing, Division III for weekly and semi-weekly newspapers published in towns of 3,500 population and over. 1951 Texas Newspaper Contest sponsored by The Texas Press Association. This plaque was presented by the Uvalde Leader News.

More than 200 entries were submitted in the newspaper contests and judged by out of state experts in journalism.

Other winners from the Panhandle area were the Canadian Record, the McLean News, the Tulia Herald and the Ochiltree County Herald. The first two are published by former Wellington men.

The Canadian Record, of which Ted Rodgers is one of the owners, received the greatest number of awards, winning first in general excellence (for scoring the greatest number of points in individual contests) in the division for towns of population of 3,500 or less; first place and ribbons for press work, new pictures, second place in house ads and fifth in the column contest.

The McLean News, published by Lester Campbell, received fourth place in house ads in its division.

Tentative Alumni Reunion Program Sets Out Full Day of Entertainment

Saturday, August 18, has been set as the date of the first annual Wellington high school alumni reunion, Jimmy Cochran, reunion chairman, has announced. This was planned to follow immediately after the Old Settlers reunion, and while the date for that has been decided upon this year, it is traditionally held the third Friday of August.

A tentative program has been set up which will give the morning over to registration of Wellington graduates and enable them to renew friendships with former classmates. This will be held at either the high school or the community building.

A barbecue dinner is planned at noon, under the direction of Tom Campbell. It is not yet definite if there will be a parade in the afternoon, or an alumni queen contest.

Open house for different classes will be held in various homes here during the afternoon.

A business meeting for the organization of the Alumni Association and the election of officers will be held at 3:30 p. m.

Final event of the day will be the Alumni dance at the community building. Russell Yates will be in charge.

Class representatives securing the names and addresses of the graduates were urged to complete their work as nearly as possible by the end of the week and turn their lists into Mr. Cochran.

Since Wellington's graduates are widely scattered, class workers are having difficulty locating the present address of some of these, Mr. Cochran said. The names of those whose present location can not be learned will be printed in the Wellington Leader in hope that readers may be able to furnish the information on some of these.

A program will be mailed to each graduate whose present address is known, Mr. Cochran said.

One class roster has been completed, that of 1936, compiled by Mrs. Jim Llorente. Several others have indicated they lack only a few names while others have said that members of their class are so widely scattered they are having considerable trouble.

Matt Taylor Killed in Plane Crash at Paris

Matt Taylor, 34, Shamrock, an employee of the Southwest Spraying Service, Wellington, died when his plane crashed on the Womack Plantation, 17 miles north of Paris, where he was spraying cotton.

While Mr. Taylor had not lived here, he had been in Wellington a great deal of the time since he was employed by Randolph Hunt to fly for the spraying service. He was one of the leaders in the organization of the Wellington Civil Air Patrol Squadron, and was serving as squadron flight leader, squadron check pilot and assistant engineering officer.

According to information received here from Mr. Hunt, Mr. Taylor had left the Paris Airport, while he was following with the chemical truck. The pilot flew the length of the runway on the plantation airstrip at about tree-top height. His plane apparently stalled, but was too low for recovery and fell from a height of about 150 feet. It burst into flames and was completely destroyed. Witnesses were unable to get to Taylor.

The accident occurred about 7:00 a. m., before spraying operations started, and the plane was empty of chemicals.

Mr. Taylor was considered one of the best pilots of this area and one of the best known in the Panhandle.

Taylor was born and reared at Vega, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Taylor. His wife is the former Dorothy Jo Clark, Shamrock, and she survives, along with two children, Joe Matt and Karla; his parents, two sisters and a brother.

Mr. Taylor was home during the

Scouting Skills Tested

Scout Patrol Earns Top Honors On Camp Ki-O-Wah Trip

The Wolf Patrol of the Wellington Boy Scouts took top honors at Camp Ki-O-Wah during last week's Camp, and the troop as a whole returned home with three of the seven top awards.

The 23 Wellington youths, accompanied by Scoutmaster Sandy Parsons Jr., were among the 216 to attend Camp during the week of June 10 through 16, a record week for Camp Ki-O-Wah.

The only blue ribbon, which went to the Wolf Patrol, and the red ribbons won by the other troops, were received after the adventure trail to determine what the Scouts had learned during their week at camp.

Individual awards included a first place in a swimming contest won by Frank Jones, a second by Paul Bell. The swimming team as a whole won third in the water carnival. Four boys took the order of the arrow, Jones, Reggie Smith, John Alvin Horton and Don Scott. Various tests were passed by a number of the boys.

Leaving Wellington Sunday afternoon, the boys made camp upon their arrival at Ki-O-Wah, near Canadian, and to their picnic supper. A meeting of adults and patrol leaders followed, in which the week's program was mapped.

The Scouts worked in patrols, and those from Wellington included the Wolf, Flying Eagle and Bob White. Activities included swimming, riflery, archery, and Scout Skills.

In the stalking game Friday, the Bob White Patrol placed first and the Wolf second.

The Adventure Trail came Saturday morning. In the winning patrol were Tommy Tollett, leader, Don Wheeler, Warner Ford of Dodson, Kern Pigg, Bobby Crawford, Roy Gene Moxley and Lloyd Moxley.

Five Miles North of Quail

County to Buy Quail FM Road Right of Way

The State Highway Commission has notified the Commissioners Court that it is ready for Collingsworth County to begin purchasing the right-of-way on a five-mile extension of FM highway 143 north of Quail.

This road, approved as an FM surfaced road last year, will extend a mile beyond the Marella store, giving one of the deep sandy areas of the county a surfaced road.

Clyde Drake, resident highway engineer, will survey the new road, and purchases of the right of way should begin within 60 days, County Judge R. L. Templeton said.

Leaving Wellington Sunday afternoon, the boys made camp upon their arrival at Ki-O-Wah, near Canadian, and to their picnic supper. A meeting of adults and patrol leaders followed, in which the week's program was mapped.

Educational Drive Planned

METHODIST OFFICIAL BOARD MAPS FINANCIAL PLANS FOR 1951-52

The official board of the First Methodist Church in Wellington Thursday night, June 14, began preliminary work on the budget drive, in which $17,000 will be pledged by members to finance the work of the church during the coming year.

Chairman of the over-all campaign is Sam Gholson, while steering committee will direct the work. Members of this group are L. B. Bratten, Jack Gibson, Dan Hendard, Mack Saied, Jr., Lester Smith, Henry Sullivan, Mr. Gholson, and J. F. Michael, pastor.

The drive went into the planning stage in the Thursday meeting, with the assignment and explanation of committee work. Thirteen other committees have been named for the stewardship campaign.

The budget drive itself is approximately a month away, and the intrinsic the educational drive pointing out the need for plea planned financial system in the church and the need for pledging a definite amount each week or month will be carried to the members through letters, talks and personal contact.

The $17,000 budget will cover all planned expenses of the Church, including certain proposed improvements.

These are still tentative, but if the budget is raised, the church board plans the reconditioning of the parsonage, refinishing the exterior to harmonize with the church building. Improvements in the church sanctuary will include carpeting, and redecorating, while a small amount of work is planned for Sunday School class rooms, L. B. Bratten, chairman of the steering committee said.

Cow and Cotton Work Together In Cotton Belt

National Dairy Month, celebrated during June, follows soon after National Cotton Week, during May, and the two events suggest the close relationship between cotton and cows in building the agriculture of the Cotton Belt, says A. L. Ward, Dallas, educational director of the National Cottonseed Products Association.

"Dairying and cotton not only go hand-in-hand in balanced farming program for the South and Southwest", Ward pointed out; "they also are dependent upon each other, as cottonseed meal and hulls are a major source of feed for dairy cattle, which provide a leading market for these products coming from cotton farms."

A grade Jersey—"Cow Number 13" at Oklahoma Experiment Station—gained fame, years ago, by proving conclusively that cottonseed meal may be safely used in as large amounts as necessary to supply protein in dairy cattle rations, provided that roughage or pasture supplies sufficient vitamin A, Ward added.

This cow consumed 20 tons of cottonseed meal and 32 tons of prairie hay during her lifetime, and received no feed except cottonseed meal, prairie hay and a simple mineral mixture after she was six months old. Her yearly average milk production was more than 50 per cent higher than the average of all Oklahoma cows. She was a regular breeder, and when thirteen years of age had produced eleven living calves.

Many other experiments, as well as the experience of dairymen throughout the United States, have firmly established the value of cottonseed meal as a protein concentrate in dairy rations. Cotton seed hulls likewise have been proved an economical, efficient roughage to supplement grazing and hays.

"Simple mixtures of cottonseed meal, roughage and supplemental minerals give good results and often are more economical than complex mixtures", he said.

"As the nation pays tribute to its dairy industry during June, dairymen have a direct interest in the effects that cotton farmers are making increase production of cotton this year to meet the need for large supplies of feeds, fiber and foods. Increased cotton production will mean much to livestock producers in making available more protein meal and roughage for livestock."

DIAMOND DANCE—Sam Chapman of the Cleveland Indians went into this graceful adagio in an attempt to score a run against the Yankees in a recent game in New York. All of Sam's contortions were to no avail. He was tagged out by the New York catcher, Yogi Berra, and the Yanks went on to win the game 1 to 0.

Ward said that for 25 years the cottonseed crushing industry has been working closely with dairy, livestock and educational organizations to encourage a balanced farming and livestock program, built around cotton, other crops and pasture and dairy cattle and other livestock.

The industry, today, is cooperating with federal and state research institutions on processing and feeding research to widen the usefulness of cottonseed meal in livestock and poultry rations, especially in feeding hogs and chickens.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Went down to the state press meeting last week and heard a number of notable speeches. One of them was by Price Daniel, attorney general of the State of Texas. He told a good joke on himself. He is a lawyer; but he is also co-owner and publisher of two weekly newspapers. When he was campaigning for attorney general for the first time, he met a likely looking old timer in Decatur and solicited his vote. The elderly gentleman looked him over and said: "Well, young man, I like your looks and I will vote for you just as long as you ain't no damned lawyer. Price Daniel did not try to explain that a man must be a lawyer to be attorney general. Instead he remembered his other profession and told the voter that he was an editor and publisher. The old gentleman snorted and said: "I don't like editors neither. Sorry, bud, I can't do nothing for you."

Mr. Daniel predicted that Texas is going to win the tidal battle eventually. That is a daring statement when both the administration and the supreme court have the cards stacked against the states; but Mr. Daniel is a courageous and tenacious man. He is bent on seeing to it that the children of Texas are not robbed of their birthright and that the ownership of all private property is not jeopardized. More power to you, Mr. Daniel.

The most impressive address of the whole meeting was that of Dr. Umfree Lee, president of Southern Methodist. I do not intend to discuss it here; for I want to get a copy if I can and print the whole speech. It lasted only ten minutes; but there were long, long thoughts in it. Dr. Lee knows the three fundamentals of speech making better than any man I have heard in years. These fundamentals are: Get up, Speak up, and Shut up. He did these courageously and wisely. Many editors were startled when he sat down so suddenly; but they went back to their rooms to ponder over what he had to say. More about this later, perhaps.

All the editors got to shake hands with General Douglas MacArthur. He and his wife and their son Arthur know how to meet the public. They give the impression of being tireless and were most gracious and the editors gave them a tremendous ovation as they entered and as they departed.

But I suspect the ovation was for a great military leader and not for a potential candidate for the presidency. Most Texas editors don't want to have to choose between either MacArthur or Truman. They would like to vote for other men. Some say that MacArthur has no intention of running for president. (Of course they know he would run if he could get the nomination.) These editors think that Gen. MacArthur is trying to form public opinion and place himself in a position where he will be a key figure in determining our policy in Asia. They think this is good; but they shut up about the presidency. They revere MacArthur as a military man.

Most of the editors think that Truman is going to run again, and all but two of them shudder at the prospect. Two bosom friends of mine, one in Floresville and one in Panhandle, would probably vote for that Truman again. I talked to hundreds. All the rest are fed up with Mr. Truman.

Editors don't want a professional soldier for president if they can have some other choice. But if they have to take a soldier, Eisenhower will be their choice. That is no poll and it is not scientific. It is my simple opinion after talking to hundreds of editors.

Elmer Wheeler, author of the fat boys book, also made a talk. He said a lot of things. He said that you could eat two eggs and three slices of bacon for breakfast and have less calories than the person on the conventional diet who ate three slices of melba toast and drank a glass of orange juice. There was no toast with the bacon and eggs, but the bacon and egg man would not get hungry while the orange juice and melba toast man would.

It all goes back to the old theory that protein burns up fats: Do you want me to run his articles in this paper. It is possible that I could buy them and give away his calorie charts. Write in and let me know. If I receive enough letters, we might buy his articles.

Bess Owens came by to give me a heated lecture on what I wrote about Joe Baumgardner's Sunday school class. Bess said: "You are right about the children; but you are dead wrong about how old most of them are. A lot of them are a lot younger and smarter than you etc., etc."

SCHOONER OF MILK—A Venetian milkman with a "floating fresh milk service" makes a sale to a housewife on the famous Grand Canal in Venice while his cow takes in the city's scenic wonders. The door-to-door "direct from the cow" milk service enables the housewife to buy only the amount she needs.

O. K. Bess, let us admit that some are a lot younger than I am. The fact that there are some who are smarter should be accepted by all who have followed my many mistakes in the past. But Bess, let us look the horse square in the face. If you are a typical example of this class, I wish to stand by my statement of last week.

Clark Anderson came over early Monday morning to give me a tip and I will pass it on to you. I was gone last week end when the tickets were being passed out and Clark knew it. He came over to caution about the yellow lanes; so I went out and backed up my car and parked correctly. This is fine if they will make the editors, the judges, the doctors, rich merchants, insurance men, bankers, and a lot of others toe the line. It will facilitate parking. More people can park in a given area and get out quicker if the rules are observed. It will help business in the long run by making it easier for people to park and get in the store.

But all of this does not touch wild and reckless driving. The business of shooting air rifles and twenty-twos in the city limits, and a number of other violations of what should be well known laws. Enforcement is what we need.

Michael D. Stephens, son of Ed Stephens, underwent major surgery in St. Joseph Hospital last week.

Pete Coffman was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital recently for medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cocke of Bryan were here earlier in the week visiting relatives.

An Emblem of Excellence An Emblem of Service

Again The Wellington Leader is privileged to display the emblem shown above from June 1951 to June 1952.

The Leader won first in column writing and fourth in general excellence in a state-wide contest in which over 200 entries were submitted to be judged by out of state experts in journalism.

It is an emblem of excellence and an emblem of service to the community; for these are points that the judges are asked to take into consideration when selecting the winners.

It is an emblem in which the whole Wellington area can take pride; for an outstanding newspaper simply cannot be published in a mediocre community with a mediocre trade territory. Therefore the emblem is a tribute to the resources of the Wellington area, a recognition of the enterprise of its people and of the part the paper has played in the development of its economy.

On our part we are grateful for the loyal support from readers and advertisers which has made this recognition possible. With your support it will be our continued purpose to make this paper even more useful to the people it serves.

Mrs. Irvin West—Bessie Jean Willis—up from Harlingen on one of her infrequent visits, and with her sister, Bonnie, accepting Rose Wells invitation to drop in for coffee. Comments from Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital on what a fine job Foreman T. J. Walters is doing on the new hospital addition. He and Marianna, and their daughter, Mary Margaret—who has red hair like her mother—came back to this job after working away for some time.

Mrs. V. P. Robertson saying she'd always wanted to learn to operate one of the Wellington Leader's linotype machines. She did work for the Leader before her marriage, when her brother-in-law, Thos. T. Durham, owned the paper, but all the type was set by hand then. Jonaquin Cecil buying a folder to carry her music in. Neva Kromer from Vinson saying she's awfully glad there's to be a reunion of Wellington graduates. She's a graduate of 1942. "J. W., my husband, is president of the Alumni Association at Vinson, and their meetings are lots of fun," she said.

Mrs. J. C. Agee saying recently that she was hunting a parrot as a graduation gift for her son, Billy Frank, who finished the 8th grade this year. For years, he's wanted either a parrot or monkey when he finished grammar school. "And we thought of the two, a parrot would be the best choice," she said.

"WATER" PREDICAMENT—What is so rare as a regatta without one mishap? The victim of a race on Berlin's Wannsee Lake was this young chap, who spent an unhappy 15 minutes in the "drink" before rescuers reached him. Later they towed his ill-fated craft ashore.

Monroe Ritchie of the welfare office saying his day had been unusual in that he had four appointments, four interviews with people receiving help through his office; all four of them came, and they came on time. Mrs. Henry Jones of Marella telling that her daughter and son-in-law, Mabel and Dale Coleman of Chicago, have moved to a farm near Hereford. "Some people have thought it's strange they'd leave the city and move to a farm, but after all both of them grew up in the country," she said. Mabel lived at Marella, Dale on an Indiana farm. In Chicago, he was a buyer for Sears Roebuck. Mabel, who has her doctor's degree from the University of Chicago, goes to Florida Woman's College to teach about one term a year. In fact she's just back from there.

Mrs. L. R. Roller Breaks Right Arm

Mrs. L. R. Roller received a painfully broken arm in a fall Tuesday afternoon, June 12. The accident occurred in the V. E. Warrick home where Mrs. Roller was caring for the Warrick's children while Mr. and Mrs. Warrick were working.

Mrs. Roller attempted to break the crash of a screen door and slipped and fell, breaking the main bone in her right arm just above the wrist.

Her condition is as well as could be expected, although attending physicians say her arm must remain in a cast for about three months.

Wellington Leaves The Others Behind

DUKES TO PLAY TWO GAMES HERE DURING WEEK WITH CHILDRESS

Two games with the Childress Orioles are scheduled for the Dukes of Wellington during the coming week, both to be played here.

The Sunday game at Marian Airpark will be called at 3:00 p.m. This is a change from the original schedule, which had set the game at Childress. There is no change in the Tuesday night game, which will be called at Marian Airpark at 8:15 p.m.

Baseball fans are also reminded that two July 4 games should offer some of the best playing seen at the airpark this season, when the Sheppard Field Jets play the Dukes. These games will be played at the regular time, 3:00 and 8:15 p.m.

The Dukes defeated the Memphis Owls in two games during the week, winning 19 to 6 in the game at Memphis Sunday and again 16 to 3 Tuesday night here. Rippetoe pitched the entire Sunday game, allowing only nine hits, of which six were counters. Errors sprinkled the game liberally.

The Wellington team maintains a substantial lead over its two opponents in the Red River Valley Amateur League, having lost only 2 of its 12 games, one to Memphis and the other to Childress. The Orioles hold second place, and the Owls are close behind in third.

The Fair Store Observes Eleventh Anniversary Here

The Fair Store this week is observing its 11th anniversary in business in Wellington, the owners, George Shadid, Miss Marie Shadid and Miss Rose Shadid reminded their friends.

The first thing in our minds at this anniversary is appreciation for the friends the store has made here, and for their loyalty through the years. We were no more than well established here when, World War II, with all its shortages and problems came along. During the period that followed, we could have had no more staunch group of customers, and they have remained with us during the peace years," the owner said.

In tracing the history of the store, they pointed out that many nationally famous lines of merchandise have been added since the business was established, rounding out both men's and women's departments. Now their customers find everything to meet their clothing needs, from the heaviest work clothes, to the dress up garments suited to the most discriminating tastes.

The owners, came here with their parents, Mrs. N. Shadid and the late Mr. Shadid, from Mangum. The parents were pioneer settlers of the area 10 miles north of Mangum, coming from Illinois.

Another brother, John Shadid, was with the store during its first years here, but after returning from service in the armed forces in Europe during World War II, he went into business in Memphis. In addition to the owners, Mr. Shadid and the Misses Shadid, regular store employees are Mrs. Ed Ward, Mrs. Luther McPherson and Mrs. W. W. McClaskey.

Miss Harbin At Hardin Simmons

ABILENE — Dorothy Virginia Harbin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Harbin, of Wellington, is among the 1,005 students enrolled at Hardin-Simmons university for the first term of the summer semester. Classes began May 31 and will end July 7.

Dr. Robert A. Collins, director of the university summer school, announced that approximately 300 of the registrants are working on their master degrees. A total of 328 veterans — more than in either the fall or spring semesters — are enrolled.

The second summer term will begin July 10, he said. The summer school schedule calls for two long terms of six weeks each and one short term of three weeks. Courses are being offered in 21 different fields of study, and special schools for band and choir will be held.

Miss Harbin is a graduate student at the university.

Army Enlistment Ruling Given

Selective Service Registrants who have been given their Pre-Induction Physical examination, but have not received their Induction notice, may enlist in either the Army or the Air Force, if they enlist from 15 June to 15 July, 1951, M/Sgt. John C. Gaskill, Army and Air Force Recruiting Sgt. of Childress, Texas, will accept applicants for enlistment in either the Army or Air Force at his office, located in the Texas Employment Office, 221 Ave. B, Northwest, Childress, Texas.

Approvals Given By SCD Board

The board of supervisors of the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District, in a regular meeting Saturday night, June 16, accepted applications for assistance and approved farm plans for farmers co-operating with the district.

In the May and June meetings, the Board has accepted applications on 1991 acres of land, including Mrs. Donnie Ammons of Abilene, 800 acres; Edd Henard, Wellington, 710; A. C. Howard, Wellington, one acre; E. C. Alexander of Dodson, 160 acres; and R. W. Alexander of Dodson, 320 acres.

Farm plans were approved at those meetings for S. T. Hollingsworth, 60 acres; Dr. E. W. Jones, 80 acres; J. M. Wells, 757 acres; John R. Henard Jr., 1946 acres; and H. M. Small, 831 acres, according to Joe Grigg, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service.

500,000th Powerglide Built

Powerglide Demonstration at Clark Chevrolet Company June 18 to 30

If you want to drive a Powerglide Chevrolet visit the showrooms of the Clark Chevrolet Co., from June 18 to 30.

A. B. Clark has set aside special demonstrators for use of the public and the period will be devoted to giving as many people as possible rides in the cars.

Because of the customer demand for Powerglide automatic transmissions in this area, Mr. Clark explains, he has been unable to set aside demonstrators. However, he will hold cars solely for this purpose through the demonstration period.

"Chevrolet has just built its 500,000th Powerglide and to observe the milestones it has requested all dealers to co-operate in mass demonstrations," he declared.

Mr. Clark pointed out that Powerglide differs from other automatic transmissions on the market in that it represents a "package" improvement. Included, besides the revolutionary automatic shift, are a more powerful engine of 105 horsepower and an "Economy-miser" rear axle.

"The opportunity for mass demonstrations here will show what owners have learned in more than a billion miles of driving," Mr. Clark declared. "Even a brief trial will prove that Powerglide-equipped cars are easier and more restful to drive."

"With Powerglide, the car has no clutch. This means the elimination of hundreds of manual operations in the course of an average day's driving. The result is that a driver finishes the day more refreshed and relaxed. A person has to experience the effortless process of automatic Powerglide fully to appreciate its advantages."

"We urge everyone not acquainted with Powerglide automatic transmission to visit our showrooms during the special demonstration period to find out for himself all the features of Powerglide automatic transmission."

LOCO

By BETHINE ADKINS

The residents of our community have spent most of this week either in the cellar or going to it. We have certainly had some vicious clouds this week, but no damage has been done to the crops here. Showers of rain have fallen, but not enough to measure. However, Cliff Campbell reported one-half an inch Friday, which fell at his ranch four miles southwest of Loco.

Visiting in the Coy Cates home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Whitfield and sons of Samnorwood and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Woodard and son.

LaHanda and Charlotte Mayhugh are spending a few days in Wichita Falls visiting their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fletcher.

Visiting in the L. H. Wolf home Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barnes and Donna and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Wolf of Wellington. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adkins of Amarillo spent the week end here in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Adkins.

The wheat and alfalfa harvests are in full swing here. There is enough moisture in the ground that some farmers are plowing their wheat stubble and planting combine maize. The cotton and feed already planted is certainly pretty. Some is large enough to hoe.

Mrs. Elmer Archer and Ann of North Hollywood, California, visited friends here Tuesday night. Mrs. Archer will be remembered here as Ruth Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Scott of Wellington, former residents of this community.

The neighbors here took their hammers, saws, squares, and other building needs and gathered at the site of the L. M. Bartlett home to help Mr. Bartlett repair the house he has moved from near Wellington. Plumbing and wiring was done, and a new sloping roof was put on the house. Lunch for the workers was prepared in the L. A. Sachse home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett and Genevieve were honored with a miscellaneous shower at the Loco school house Tuesday night. They reviewed many lovely and useful gifts. They had the misfortune of losing their home in a fire recently.

Ronnie and Darrell Sullivan of Throckmorton are spending a few weeks in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. Coy Cates.

Visiting in the G. W. Adkins home Sunday were Mrs. Ora Calcutt of Texola, Oklahoma, Mrs. Alma Coursey and son, Aubra, of Amarillo, John Wolf, and Coy Cates.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Johnson and son of Altus, Oklahoma, spent Sunday in the home of her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wolf.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Duffey and their granddaughter, Miss Betty Duffey, spent a few days this week visiting relatives in Arkansas. They visited a sister of Mrs. Duffey's, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Leslie, in Clarksville, Arkansas. On their return trip, they visited Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Newman and family in Denton and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Duffey and children in Wichita Falls.

Sam Gholson was guest speaker at the Methodist Church here Sunday, taking the place of Myrett Henry who was unable to attend. Mr. Gholson made a very inspirational talk on "The Use of Our Talents." Mrs. Gholson and their twin daughters, Nell and Ann, also attended church here. We wish to extend a cordial invitation to them to return again soon.

Also visiting in the church here Sunday were Mrs. Homer E. Long and children of Wellington, and Mrs. Pearl Long, mother of Rev. Long, of Barstow, California, and Mrs. Lois Long and son, sister-in-law of Rev. Long, of Riverside, California, and Miss Jane Sooter of Gravette, Arkansas, sister of Mrs. Long.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Adkins returned home Tuesday from a four day visit in Spearman and Amarillo. While in Spearman they visited Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Adkins and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Boggs. In Amarillo, they visited Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. James Ashcraft, Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adkins. Wyatt Adkins brought them home, and his sister, Estelle Adkins, returned home to visit for a few days.

Mrs. W. W. Sugg Celebrates Seventy-Fifth Birthday

A surprise open house Saturday afternoon, June 16, honored Mrs. W. W. Sugg on her 75th birthday, when friends made through forty-five years residence here gathered to honor her. Although the event was held in her own home, it was planned so carefully that she was not aware of it until she returned from a trip to town to find the guests already arrived.

Hostesses were her four daughters and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank Crawford of Sulphur, Oklahoma, Mrs. Price Dukeminier of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Guy Clay, Miss Jewell Sugg and Mrs. Cal Sugg of Wellington.

Mrs. Crawford met the guests, who registered in the birthday guest register.

The entertaining rooms were decorated profusely with summer flowers, many of the bouquets being gifts sent by friends for the occasion.

The birthday gifts were displayed in the bedroom. Unusual among them was that from Mrs. Crawford, seventy-five silver dollars mounted to read "Happy 75." One dollar minted in each year of Mrs. Sugg's life, with the exception of the year of her birth, 1876, was used. When the latter is located, it will also be presented to her.

The lace covered refreshment table was decorated with an arrangement of pink carnations and candles in crystal holders. The birthday cake, made by Mrs. Cal Sugg, was a large sheet cake frosted in white and decorated elaborately in pink flowers, with "Happy Birthday" frosted across the top. Mrs. Sugg and Mrs. Clay served the guests.

Approximately one hundred friends called or sent gifts or congratulations during the afternoon.

Mrs. Sugg, before her marriage was Miss Mary Ethel Singley, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Singley. She was born at Prosperity, South Carolina, June 16, 1876, and spent her early childhood there. When she was 12 years of age, she came with the family to Texas, settling at Belcher. Later, the Singley family moved across Red River into the Indian Territory.

Her memories of sixty years ago in the Indian Territory are vivid. With pleasure she recalls the wild deer and turkey. "It was the most beautiful country you could imagine," she says.

"Most of the people living there were ranchers, and many of them were part Indian."

"The Indians were kindly, although they couldn't speak English. I remember attending their churches, where they worshiped God kneeling with their faces to the ground, as the early Christians did," Mrs. Sugg continued.

She told of a trip to Fort Sill, where the Apaches had been quartered, along with other Indians, for a July fourth celebration. They camped near the reservation, and all during the night of July 3, they could hear the Indians chanting. "We were scared," she said, smiling.

Mrs. W. W. Sugg

After four years, Mr. Singley moved his wife and three children to Mountain View, Indian Territory, and here his only daughter was married to W. W. Sugg December 20, 1893.

More than 50 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Singley and their sons moved here, while Mr. and Mrs. Sugg moved to a ranch at Alanreed. She recalls her visits to Wellington, driving spirited, sometimes almost wild, horses to the surrey. She always reached the home of Mrs. L. S. Coleman and the late John Coleman in time for dinner and to rest the horses.

When their children reached school age, Mr. and Mrs. Sugg moved to Wellington, living first on their farm at Cross Roads, and about 40 years ago building the comfortable home which she still occupies at the west edge of town.

Her seven children are Mrs. Frank Crawford of Sulphur, Okla.; J. W. Sugg of Pampa; Mrs. Price Dukeminier of Oklahoma City; J. D. Sugg of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Guy Clay, Miss Jewell Sugg and Cal Sugg of Wellington.

Mr. Sugg died in April 1941.

Mrs. Sugg still manages her own farms and looks after her other business affairs. Her hobbies are crocheting—and appearing on radio programs. She has been a guest on such programs as Truth or Consequences, Queen for a Day, Lady Fair, Welcome Travelers and Hollywood's Breakfast Club.

She planned to spend her birthday without any observance, and have a quiet family gathering on Sunday. This was also held with six of the seven children present.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sugg, Mr. and Mrs. Clay, Mrs. Dukeminier, Mr. and Mrs. Cal Sugg and Miss Jewell Sugg; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, Mrs. J. W. Kromer and children of Vinson, Okla., and Johnny Dukeminier of Oklahoma City; and her brothers and sisters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Singley of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Singley of Wellington.

Miss Knoll Is Bride Of Bill Clark of Shamrock

A wedding of interest to their many friends in the Wellington area is that of Miss Ida Louise Knoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knoll of Samnorwood, and Bill Clark, son of Mrs. J. B. Clark of Shamrock, and the late Mr. Clark. The double ring ceremony was solemnized in the First Methodist Church of Shamrock Saturday afternoon, June 16, with the Rev. S. M. Dunnam, pastor, officiating.

Vows were exchanged before an arch entwined with fern, flanked by candelabra and tall white baskets of daisies and asters in white shades, with pale orchid gladioli. Against a background of white, lighted tapers burned in wrought iron candelabra. Aisle candles were adorned with bows of lace. Candlelight blended with the light shining through the stained glass windows, cast a soft glow upon the setting.

Following the nuptial prelude, which included "Schubert's Serenade," Mrs. S. M. Dunnam, organist, accompanied Miss Eleanor Dunnam as she sang, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Always," and "Because." The bridal chorus from the opera "Lohengrin" by Wagner, was used as the processional, and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," as the recessional. During the ceremony, Mrs. Dunnam played a muted interpretation of "The Lord's Prayer," on the organ chimes.

Bridal attendants wearing organ-die gowns over taffeta were Miss Wilma Cupell of Canyon, maid of honor, in pale blue; Miss Emma Jean Jones of Raton, N. M., in yellow; Mrs. J. C. Darrow, cousin of the bride, in pink; Miss Mary Lu Hofmann in orchid; and Mrs. Lyndon Sanders of Canyon, in pale green. Their dresses were fashioned along similar lines of the gown worn by the bride, and head-dresses were of net and daisies matching the shade of their colonial bouquets of daisies. They wore short mits.

Janice Rountree of Lutie was flower girl, in white organdy over taffeta, a replica of the bridal gown. She carried a white basket of rose petals.

Entering on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was lovely in a gown of white "Nelo" organdie, worn over white satin. The deep round yoke of lace was finished with a scalloped edge. The fitted bodice was styled with long sleeves of lace which terminated in petal points at the wrist. The full gathered skirt extended into a train. Her finger-ring veil of nylon net, edged in lace, fell from a sweetheart tiara trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a necklace of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried out the tradition of wearing something old, new, borrowed and blue, with a penny in her shoe. For something borrowed and old, she carried a handkerchief belonging to Mrs. Al-

Repudiate Fear, MacArthur Plea

Douglas MacArthur at Austin Wednesday repudiated two things. He stood boldly against the doctrine of fear as no part of the American way of life. And he assailed the leadership that preaches either fear or appeasement.

The general mentioned no names and with studied restraint he used a plural "they." But no one who heard could doubt that his darts were aimed at the President and his immediate advisers responsible for the policy of Korea.

Responsibility for policy in Korea, in the general's view, clearly includes the decision to strike at the invaders from the north without the authority of Congress and the still standing prohibition against attacking the enemy north of the Yalu River or on other Chinese Red territory.

Conceding that the policy of fear inherent in this restraint is due to administration insistence that this country is unprepared to face a major war if it should develop from widening the conflict, the general strikes back:

This, he says, is the same leadership for whom this nation provided an unbeatable army. If we are unprepared now, it is that leadership's fault, and it is the same leadership which has initiated a new war while deploring that we are unprepared for a big one.

Technically, this is true, though the responsibility for disarmament must be truthfully charged to the whole people. National war weariness demobilized us, not Truman or Acheson.

In one sense, Douglas MacArthur took nothing new to Austin. But in another, he made the new issue the sharp drawing of lines.

The American people have the choice of continuing to appease in fear and to sacrifice lives in Korea in hope of peace without victory or of turning to a new leadership that will reject, as does MacArthur, the timidity and uncertainty of the old.

The enemy of American victory, as General MacArthur pictured him Wednesday, is in Washington, not in Moscow.

OTHER EDITORS SAY:—

There Is Much at Stake . . .

Following a near-explosive incident here a few years ago, Hockley county managed to stay just a jump ahead of a ban on Mexican national labor. It is hoped that a repeat performance can be staged this year. While no similar incident has occurred, the county is threatened with a ban because of discrimination complaints lodged with the Mexican consul in Amantla.

With the Department of Agriculture calling for greatly increased cotton production and everything pointing to a record-breaking cotton crop of 400,000 acres, the labor situation probably will be a problem at the best. Many county farmers will need Mexican Nationals in addition to local and transient labor to help harvest the crop.

Under the present contract with the Mexican government, the American farmer bends over backwards in order to comply with the provisions set up by the Republic south of the border in the employment of their nationals. Under such circumstances, it appears that the rest of us at least could cooperate to the extent of forestalling further discrimination complaints.

We have heard both farmers and businessmen say that it does not require a great deal of concessions on the parts of American citizens to get along with Mexican nationals, or, for that matter, with any type of Latin-American laborer. Courtesy will accomplish much more than discriminatory practices. If a businessman has an iron-clad rule of some sort concerning Mexican patronage, he should devise some method by which it

Privileges Require Discharge of Duties

It's about time all of us woke up to the fact that the privileges of United States citizenship — like all things worth having — have a price.

If we want the rights and protection of citizenship, we must pay for them with certain accompanying duties. More than just a payment, the duties are essentially insurance on continuance of those rights.

It's another example of the adage "you don't get something for nothing." Many of us, though, are trying to do just that.

We enjoy freedom of speech and religion, the right to property protection and trial by jury, the right to choose our work or profession, to decide where and how we shall live. In return, what do we do to safeguard our rights? We neglect to register; we let anything from a party to a business "prospect" interfere with going to the polls on election day. We think we're smart when we try to get traffic tickets "fixed" or to wiggle out of jury duty. We're always too "busy" to attend community group meetings or to serve on committees for local projects.

Apparently, we have failed to realize that such part-time citizenship won't last long. If we ignore the duties, we will soon have no privileges left to enjoy.

By not voting, we support candidates and ideas opposed to our ideals and to the common good, just as surely as though we'd campaigned for them. By not respecting and obeying laws in small matters, we weaken legal processes and open the way for greater, more flagrant violations. By refusing to take part in civic planning, we contribute nothing to our community's progress, and we may actually be helping retard progress by letting unqualified or self-seeking individuals take over the reins. — Franklin (Winnsboro, La.) The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek has joined the defense effort, in his own week reveals.

Dear editor:

I was readin in a paper this afternoon which I'd been carryin around in my pocket several days, never believed in gettin in a hurry, if you haven't heard it before, news is fresh whether you run into it thirty minutes or thirty days after it happens, although his ain't always true of gossip, where Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson has called on the nation to put off all "postponable" projects for the duration of the defense emergency, so materials and energies can be channelled into the defense effort.

Now he didn't give a detailed list of the projects which ought to be postponed, but I have a good many out here which I have been postponin for several years and I would like for the Defense Director to know I will fall in line with his program and continue postponin them and as a patriotic gesture run in a lot of new ones. This country ain't gonna be unprepared on my account.

I read somewhere one time where Mark Twain said he always put off answerin his mail for six months and it would surprise you how few letters then needed answerin, and I have found the same thing to be true out here on my farm. For example I postponed choppin my cotton last year and it's certainly true it don't need choppin now. I never did get around to breakin my garden early this spring, and it certainly wouldn't do any good to do it now. On cold wet winter nights last year I occasionally stayed inside the house and postponed milkin my cow, and a man who thinks he can go back and make up for them postponements now just ain't familiar with milk cows.

However, in spite of the postponements, the cows seems to be doin all right, gives a full two quarts at every milkin, don't seem to be holdin a grudge against me, and I figure my garden will produce about as much this year as any other.

If I postpone sendin in any money to renew my subscription to your paper, just postpone stoppin it. After all, if I'm gonna do my part by postponin for defense, you ought to do yours.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Bible Comment FOR JUNE 24

Disciples Were Average Men

There are two common misconceptions regarding the disciples of Jesus. Many mistakenly believe the apostles, as we call them, were extremely well educated and had attended the leading universities of the day.

Others, leaning to the opposite extreme, contend the disciples were simple, unlearned men. The truth falls somewhere in between these two schools of thought.

Taking into consideration the time in which they lived, the disciples were about as well educated as the average man of today. It is probable that when they answered the Master's call, they had attended a synagogue and received supplementary training from their parents.

Why then had Jesus chosen these particular men? Adventurous of spirit, ambitious of purpose, and willing to endure and sacrifice, the apostles had a rare combination of virtues suited to the gargantuan task of founding a church.

That they succeeded in giving the world that torch of faith we call Christianity is proof that Jesus was a shrewd judge of men. Only Judas let the Master down. And it was not that Jesus' initial estimate of Judas was an error but that Judas failed to realize his potentialities.

Jesus calls us all for what we may be. How often do we rise to His vision of us as His modern-day apostles in a troubled world?

The Navy's first submarine cost $150,000. Fleet-type subs of World War II cost between $6 and $8 million.

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

THE WONDERFUL ELIXIR

To the Oklahoma community where I lived as a boy there came one Saturday afternoon a traveling medicine show. It was a wondrous thing. Roustabouts spread sawdust on a vacant lot fronting on the town square and erected a bouncy platform-stage with canvas top and red fringe all-round. Then they got out and scattered handbills through the streets and among the wagons and buggies and model-T's that had bugged farm families on their weekly trip to town. At night-fall the show went on. The crowd out front, standing on the sawdust, was enormous.

There were six vaudeville acts staged by a company of three people, including a tableau from the life of Sitting Bull, juggling and trio singing. Then came the pitchman, or spieler. He had a tall brown bottle in his hand, a fine voice and a sparkle of friendliness in his eye. He wore a frock coat. At the left of the stage were stacked at least 200 packages of the "Wonderful Elixir." The spieler made his pitch: Here, he said, was the great panacea, an old Indian herb prescription handed down through generations. And it would positively cure anything, eliminate all pain! He related a half-dozen case histories of the astonishing work of the "Elixir." They sounded amazing—but somehow believable.

THE "LET-DOWNS"

Most of the packaged "Elixir" on the stage was sold—at the stiff price of 90-cents a bottle—before the crowd dwindled out. During the following week everybody in town with real or fancied ills gulped down potions from Porter, Son Strong, Elmer James, Odie Killingsworth, Bob Oldham, S. R. Pinkston, Wayne Gulley, O. D. Holton Jr., Johnnie Wallace, Rev. J. Edmund Kirby, Charlie Garrison, and Joe Darden.

Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr were playing in "Comrade X" at the Ritz.

Wes Izzard, Amarillo newspaperman and news commentator, spoke on the present world situation in an open meeting.

George W. Sitter of McLean, owner of the Bar LO Ranch in this county, died at the age of 85.

Judge A. S. Moss of Memphis opened the spring term of district court with 58 cases on docket. Grand jurors were Gus Gooch, Ben Farmer, C. L. Lowry, Alex Shields, Otto Hodel, S. R. Pinkston, G. D. Stephens, C. H. Caperton, Tom Berry, W. S. Vaughn, O. B. Raburn, W. C. Reeves, Jim Light, T. C. Clement.

their tall bottles—and seemed to feel much better almost immediately. But before the week ended there began to be talk of "let-downs." (The word "hang-over" wasn't in use.)

It then became known that the "Elixir" contained 85 per cent alcohol, a dash of water, and some powdered green herb bitters to give it the medicinal flavor. It didn't cure anything. It merely intoxicated—worked, as a narcotic, to deaden the sensory nerves and cut off momentarily any existing pain or discomfort. The after-effect was, to say the least, unpleasant. Our town recovered from the medicine show's visit by awakening to the true nature of the spieler's magic "Elixir." As a cure-all, it wouldn't work; as a pain-killer, it merely postponed the suffering.

A MORAL

The medicine show story has a moral: There isn't a quick, magical panacea for the ills and pains of the world—or for the troubles and problems of a people. Pain must be traced to its source and adjustment or correction made. Treating pain to kill it, without getting at the cause, only prolongs the ailment. And trying to solve the problems of the nations and peoples with magical schemes and panaceas only intensifies the fundamental trouble.

Since the beginning of history a primary human problem has been the quest for economic security, a sufficiency of the material necessities of life. Through the world has seen 19 civilizations come and go, no one has evolved a plan that will give everybody all their economic wants. The American economic system appears to be unquestionably the best pattern. Because of the freedom it gives, and the unparalleled production it stimulates, our poorest citizens have provided themselves with a living standard better than the average anywhere else in the world.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING?

The American system offers all citizens the wide-open opportunity for a large measure of economic security. But its promise is based on the principle self-reliance and the natural law of recompense. Both the principle and the law are denied in some provisions of the Federal "Social Security" program. The Foundation for Social Research reports, for instance, that under certain age and employment circumstances people are being offered pensions worth $16,000 by paying only $121.50 into the Federal treasury. Millions are eligible. Other millions, the Foundation reports, may make themselves eligible to receive a $50 a month pension for life, beginning July 1, 1952, at a total cost to the pensioner of only 40.50.

Fourteen months ago I appeared before the Senate Finance Committee in opposition to further expansion of such out-of-balance provisions. I didn't oppose real social security, but I did oppose a something-for-nothing scheme which in years ahead can crush the hopes of millions of oldsters and break hearts by bankrupting the nation. I urged that Congress make a thorough study of the whole pension problem, then give the people the unvarnished facts instead of more "Wonderful Elixirs."

116,713 BOYS AND GIRLS ENROLLED IN TEXAS 4-H DEMONSTRATIONS

COLLEGE STATION—Midway of the century 116,713 Texas rural boys and girls were enrolled in 4-H demonstration work in agricultural and home economics. This great army of youths organized into 4,793 clubs "to make the best better," represented one out of every seven rural boys and girls of admissible age in the state. By groups they numbered 94,063 white and 24,174 Negro boys and girls.

The supreme value of this practical educational work conducted by the A. & M. College Extension Service is its formative influence upon youth. It touches all phases of agriculture and homemaking in the form of demonstrations. Doing it themselves not only removes prejudices against methods, but teaches that advanced practices in the business of farming and ranching are economical and profitable. In learning by doing, club members averaged 1.87 demonstrations in 1950 and 73 percent completed them. As a consequence, youth demonstration work reached 67,782 farm and ranch homes and 21,146 others.

The most popular demonstration on the basis of the number participating was swine, with poultry (including turkeys), beef cattle, home gardens, dairy cattle and sheep next in order. Clothing topped the list with home economics demonstrators, while foods, home furnishings and room improvement, home gardens and food preservation followed. It is worth noting, however, that girls did not overlook opportunities to demonstrate their versatility in agricultural demonstrations popular with boys. In 1950, they conducted demonstrations with poultry, dairy and beef cattle, sheep, swine, and horses and mules. All demonstrations were supervised by county Extension agents.

According to the state leaders, obtaining and training adult and junior volunteer leaders was a major problem. Notwithstanding, 9,965 such leaders were available to work with the clubs largely as a result of 2,754 leader training meetings during the year. Meanwhile, the Texas 4-H council and 118 community 4-H clubs were organized.

Other activities included holding 15 district laboratories, and 15 district 4-H camps attended by 3,750 boys and girls. Seven of the camps were conducted jointly. A total of 1,200 boys and girls and 250 adult leaders from over the state were present at the annual state 4-H Round-Up, while 33 Texas delegates attended the National 4-H Congress at Chicago. Five of these were sectional and national award winners. A total of 3,824 club members were awarded medals in county award programs, while recognition awards were presented to persons, other than adult leaders, who had contributed to the promotion of 4-H work. Eight county, two district and two statewide recipients were thus honored.

SALT FORK

By MRS. R. H. ISBELL

(Intended for last week.)

The bad storm clouds missed us again. We only had light showers out this way last week. We regret that so many other people have lost their homes and crops, but we are thankful there were not any more injured or killed than has been reported.

Mrs. G. C. Wright received a letter last week from Mrs. R. P. Wright of Mangum, Oklahoma, saying she was back home again. She had been called to California to the bedside of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Frank Ferguson, who was critically ill. Mrs. Ferguson had her throat operated on. She was improving rapidly when her mother left to return to Mangum.

The fire demon has struck again. This time it was the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bartlett who live south of Loco on the Hollis highway. It certainly is heart breaking to have to stand and watch your home burn to the ground. There are so many things that can not be replaced. We are glad no one was injured.

The Walter Sweden family were recent visitors at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Morrow, home. The Sweden family, also Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pettitt have moved to Vaughn, New Mexico.

A progressive four-phase program sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation in cooperation with the Extension Service, attracted large participation by 4-H Club members in 1950. The foundation furnished original and replacement breeding stock for swine in 161 counties; dairying in 54; poultry in 44; and sheep in 6. A state 4-H Club leader is responsible for the operation portion of the program, while county agricultural agents supervise carrying it out.

Club demonstrators with livestock exhibited freely at state and national stock shows and in many cases placed highly in class judging. But the major trend is toward the production of a good type commercial beef animal.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Bolton and Richard of Lubbock came for their daughter, Elena Nell, who has been visiting relatives here for the past two weeks.

About 5 o'clock Sunday morning Bill Smith of Amarillo had a severe heart attack and passed away. His death came as a very severe shock to the relatives and friends here. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Elsie Bolton who grew up in this community. Also Mrs. Claud Smith, the former Miss Myrtus Needham, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Needham of the Salt Fork community, grew up here. Mr. Smith worked as a carpenter in Amarillo for many years and was well known there.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bolton and children came through our community Sunday afternoon on their way to Amarillo to be with his sister, Mrs. Smith, and family in their sorrow.

Little Jerry Lynn has come to live with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hallmark and Cecil. We are glad to welcome the little stranger to our neighborhood. We need more little boys and girls in our Sunday school. Among those visiting Mrs. Hallmark and her son last week were Mrs. Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright and Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Potteet and boys visited relatives in Wellington one day last week. Mr. Potteet operates a service station east of McLean on highway 66.

Rev. Homer Long filled his regular appointment here Sunday. He leaves the first of the week for Dallas to attend a theological school for the next six weeks. Leonard Ray and Beth accompanied him here Sunday.

Mrs. C. A. Wright and Charles were callers in the C. S. Needham home awhile Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. G. D. Thomas visited awhile Sunday morning with Mrs. Wright and Mrs. R. H. Isbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Morrow visited the Wright and Isbell home last Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob J. Spears of Lubbock spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clifton, of Independence, Oklahoma.

R. H. Isbell visited in the Sherd Bolton home at Dodson Sunday morning. Mrs. Bolton was resting well after recovering from the sudden passing of her son-in-law, Bill Smith, of Amarillo.

Mrs. Herman Mitchell and children attended church here Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Fields of Matador visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherd Bolton, Saturday night at Dodson. Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Bolton took her to Dodson as they came to Wellington.

Grow Birds For Early Production

Baby chicks, started in late spring, can be in full production by mid-winter. J. L. Milligan, manager of poultry research for the Ralston Purina Company stated this week.

The secret of early maximum production for chickens is full feeding, he explained. "Growing birds fast gets them into good egg production as early as 20 weeks."

Many farmers, because of the late spring, did not start as many baby chicks as they usually do and as a result, an egg shortage in November and December is anticipated—the months when the egg prices are usually highest.

Farmers in all sections of the country are being urged to start a "late chick crop" to help eliminate this potential egg shortage next winter. By full feeding the chicks to develop them, and providing ample room and plenty of ventilation during the hot weather, farmers can get their starters in production at a time when egg prices are high.

Aim at Green Bugs and Cut Worms

WHEAT PRODUCERS ASSOCIATION TO SPONSER RESEARCH PROGRAM

"One of the main objectives of the Wheat Producers Association of Texas and also the National Association of Wheat Growers is to sponsor and encourage a continuing long range research program for wheat," W. R. Breeding, secretary of the county unit, declared this week.

Mr. Breeding further pointed out:

The wheat crop for Texas this year is estimated to be about twelve million bushels. The main cause of the short crop this year in Texas and the entire southwest is due to the infestation of green bugs, cut worms, and mosaic root rot. Many hundreds of thousands of acres of good wheat died in the field with moisture in the ground. There is a great and immediate need of fundamental research on the control of green bugs, cut worms, and mosaic rot, not only in Texas, but in the entire southwest.

Normally the six southwest states of Oklahoma, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Kansas and Nebraska send thirty-six million acres of wheat which represent one-half of the seeded acres of the entire United States. Today twenty million acres of this thirty-six million have already been plowed up. The remaining sixteen million acres will not produce one-half of a normal crop.

This represents a loss to wheat growers in this area of one-half billion dollars of wheat, and this wheat is vital to the national economy in this time of great production effort. Texas is perhaps more severely damaged by these bugs and diseases than any other state.

Texas normal production of wheat in the last ten years has averaged seventy million bushels, which means we will raise less than 20 per cent of normal this year.

Recently the wheat growers of Texas sent K. Kendrick, Secretary of the State organization to Washington to represent the Texas wheat growers along with wheat growers from Kansas, Nebraska, Oregon, North and South Dakota, and Minnesota to investigate the possibility of stepping up the research program particularly upon planning the control of the green bug and mosaic root rot problem.

While testifying before the Senate Agriculture Sub-committee the group learned that the Department of Agriculture had 2200 men working on research in the United States, and only one of the 2200 was engaged in research on the control of greenbugs.

The committee was assured that other research specialists would begin work immediately on this problem. Mr. Rogers, the Representative from this area, is working throughout the area concerning the infestation of green bugs, cut worms, and mosaic root rot. Our Senators, Tom Connally and Lyndon Johnson are also interested in the green bug problem.

The wheat grower asked only that a control be worked out for him, and he will stand the expense of applying the control measures. They are definitely not interested in the Federal government spending more money, but simply interested in pointing out to our lawmakers the necessity of shifting expert personnel on work that is vitally needed throughout the southwest and to co-ordinate the efforts of the various state agriculture departments.

Plant More Grain Sorghums, Brannan Urges

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan emphasizes to farmers of the Great Plains the dual opportunity they have of aiding the defense effort by planting grain sorghums, to prevent soil erosion and at the same time add to the nation's feed grains.

"Every effort should be made to get some kind of protective cover on the abandoned wheat land, which for the second consecutive year affords opportunity of a large sorghum acreage," he said. "Last year Oklahoma and Texas farmers planted 7-12 million acres of sorghum and sudan and reports show that stubble left at harvest of these crops has proved effective in protecting the land against later season blowing. In some instances planted as late as July made a feed crop with protective stubble remaining against wind erosion damage."

This year CCC has increased the price support level from 60 per cent to 75 per cent of parity to encourage sorghum production. The secretary said, "It's not a question of what we have to do in regard to planting grain, cotton or other crops, it is also a question of what we have to do in order to insure production next year and the next of as large amount of these crops as we need and man power will permit."

Free Insurance Bill for GI's Explained

The so-called "Free G. I. Insurance Bill" became law on April 25, 1951. This law is known as Public Law 23, 82nd Congress.

This law is divided into two parts and both will be administered by the Veterans Administration.

Part I of this law pertains to the Servicemen's Indemnity which provides that on and after June 27, 1950, any person in the active military or Naval service, including cadets and midshipmen of the U. S. Military, Naval, and Coast Guard Academies and commissioned officers of the Public Health Service and the Coast and Geodetic Survey, shall be automatically covered against death in active service for $10,000 less any National Service Life Insurance or United States Government Life Insurance in force at the time of death. The amount of NSLI or USGLI payable at death plus the indemnity may not exceed $10,000.

The indemnity is payable only to the surviving spouse, child or children, parent, brother, or sister. The insured may name one or more beneficiaries within this permitted class. The $10,000 indemnity is payable in 120 monthly installments of $92.90 per month.

Part II of this law contains provisions relating to United States Government Life Insurance and National Service Life Insurance. The main provisions of this part, as they may concern veterans at this time, are:

If a veteran once had term insurance and the insurance has lapsed, he should reinstate this insurance before the term period expires. A veteran can reinstate his insurance by paying two monthly premiums provided he can meet the physical requirements. This reinstatement can be accomplished only if his term period has not expired. If the term period has expired he can never take out any more G. I. Insurance. If a veteran reenters the military service it may be possible to take out new insurance within 120 days after his discharge from the service.

Two examples of reinstatement restrictions are as follows: Example I — If a veteran took his original NSLI on September 1, 1943, his 8 year term will expire on September 1, 1951. This man may reinstate all or part of this policy by paying two premiums and meeting the health requirements. This can be done only if the application for reinstatement is made prior to September 1, 1951.

Example II — If a veteran took his original NSLI policy on February 1, 1943, his 8 year term expired February 1, 1951. If his insurance was in a state of lapse on February 1, 1951, he can not take out any new insurance.

Other examples could be given but the examples above are sufficient to emphasize the importance of reinstatement, at this time, for those veterans whose term periods have not expired.

The Veterans Administration Office, located in the County Courthouse, Childress, Texas, will be happy to assist any one with their G. I. Insurance problems, or any other benefit administered by the Veterans Administration. The office is open Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

SWEETEST HARVEST IN HISTORY—Puerto Rico's biggest sugar crop in history is being harvested with the expectation that more than 10 million tons of cane will be cut when the 1951 harvest winds up the end of June. On this plantation near San Juan, the workers in the background, at right, cut the cane while others loaded the cane carts that will be drawn to the mills by oxen and diesel locomotives.

NOW IS THE TIME TO KILL SAGE & SHINNERY ROTOCYCLE Stalk Cutter

America's Outstanding Power Cutter Cuts, Shreds and Distributes

Ideal for Pest Control and Land Clearing

The new ROTOCYCLE is the power cutter that economically cuts all stalks. It's the ideal machine for controlling the CORN BORER, PINK BOLL WORM, and other larvae. The horizontal revolving blades cut and shred green or dead stalks with equal ease, destroying larvae at the same time. And the finely cut pieces are easier to plow under for sure-death to borer larvae that can't live under ground. Cut stalks and leaves decompose more quickly too, enriching the soil with nitrogen and other food values in the plowed under material. ROTOCYCLE is designed to be drawn and powered by any tractor. Power shaft has standard 1 1/2" take-off coupling and is adjustable in length. The cutting blade is easily adjusted to desired height by simply turning the adjusting crank.

We received .12 inch of rain this morning (Monday). We could use some more of it. It came in the right way. We are told that big lakes of water covering as much as a section or more from four to eight feet deep in places are all over the high plains. There are beautiful homes and large barns out in those lakes with water half way to the roof. We have never heard of anything like that on the plains before.

Is Backache Kidney Trouble?

Many people have the idea that backache is caused by a kidney ailment and they take something to purge the kidney but many times the backache is persistent even after such measures are taken. In reality very few backaches are caused by the kidneys for only in rare kidney diseases is there any pain whatever in the back.

Pain or backache between the hips and in the lower part of the back is caused by pressure on spinal nerves caused by a misplaced spinal joint, and to be permanently rid of the persistent, nagging backache, the cause of the weakness must be dealt with. A man, aged 30, consulted a local scientific chiropractor recently about a backache he had experienced four years. Thorough Chiropractic examination revealed decided curvature of the spine, pinching vital nerves in lower back, which was basic cause of pain.

The spine was straightened by painless Chiropractic adjustments. Patient noticed relief the second day and at the end of 8 weeks patient was dismissed with all backache gone.

Remember that few backaches are caused by kidneys but are basically caused by misplaced spinal joints and your Chiropractor specializes in correction of these conditions.
