Midland can't take funds for granted

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Although an application was approved last summer, the $1.094 million in federal Community Development Block Grant funds may never see the Midland city limits because of a fight that has been brewing between the Midland City Council and Dallas office of Housing and Urban Development since July.

Midland has until Dec. 1 to break the stalemate and resolve the differences. Failure to comply with HUD's requirements "may be cause to reduce the grant to $0," related Richard Hennessy, director of the city's planning and community development department.

Hennessy's office has been responsible for drawing up the papers and plans that accompanied the city's application for CD funds according to instructions from the City Council.

This was the first time in four years that Midland decided to apply for the $1 million in federal funds that would go to upgrade the under-developed sections of the city. When it last applied in 1977, the city was told it must include a plan for Section 8 rental subsidy. But the council resisted, and Midland lost its money. Over the years, that figure has amounted to about $5 million.

MORE THAN A YEAR ago, on Oct. 14, 1980, the council decided on a 4-2 vote to give in to Midlanders' desires and submit an application. That application, which had gone through the required two public hearings, gained the council's final OK on Feb. 24. And here the problems began with HUD.

On June 30, two officials from the Dallas HUD office met with the City Council and several members of the planning staff to tell them the problems with the application and what needed to be changed. At that time, Midland's deadline had been extended to July 13.

What Midland lacked in its application and its accompanying three-year Housing Assistance Plan was construction of new units to meet the goals for Section 8 rental assistance.

The city relented and added 240 rental assistance units that would be constructed over a three-year period. Of that number, 140 units would be designated for low-income elderly and handicapped persons with the remaining number going to low-income families. That application was approved July 10, contingent to some changes. And that's where the two governments can't see eye-to-eye.

The core of the argument now centers on where those new units will be constructed.

Hennessy, in attempting to sift through the governmentese, explained that the HUD office isn't satisfied with Midland's "neighborhood site and standards" listed for the areas for low-income housing.

MIDLAND HAD NOT selected a specific site for construction, he said, "but had selected an area." Under this plan, private developers would contact HUD to build units for low-income residents on a specific site in that area.

"HUD said the area was not appropriate to build that many (240) units," he said.

Areas for construction designated by Midland involve east, southeast and southwest Midland, according to Hennessy. Specifically, it covers all of census tracts 1, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15 and parts of 11, 12 and 13.

He sees this area as the "portion of Midland where the council is having difficulty getting housing built. I guess it was the council's objective to try and get some housing built over there."

Mayor G. Thane Akins, who voted against applying for the money a year ago, claimed that "HUD is taking away from us any voice in site selection. They had first told us we could limit it to this area," he said, referring to the meeting in June with the two HUD representatives.

"Now they say it has too high a minority concentration. It means opening up the entire city for these projects," he added.

But William Rotert, program manager with the Dallas HUD office, said that isn't what the government agency is requesting.

"WE'RE NOT SURE the geographic area is large enough to accommodate their goals," Rotert said of the city's 240 planned units. What HUD has asked Midland, he continued, is "to prove we're wrong and

Cutting down on cigarettes

It's a hard battle, but Ted Strickland, with encouragement from Dottie Fox, is giving up cigarettes for at least one day today for the Great American Smokeout sponsored by the American Cancer Society. Purpose of the Smokeout is to encourage all smokers to give up smoking for at least one day; however, Strickland wants to give up smoking forever.

U.S. will deploy missiles if arms talks incomplete

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will go ahead with plans to deploy medium-range missiles in Europe in 1983 if the Soviets drag out negotiations on President Reagan's proposal to slash nuclear and conventional weapons on the continent, administration officials say.

The Soviet Union rejected the Reagan initiative Wednesday, but U.S. officials said the initial reaction wasn't surprising and one added: "The door is still open as far as talks are concerned."

Official reaction from U.S. allies in Europe, where many television stations carried Reagan's speech live, was laudatory, reflecting relief that the administration was stressing peace, rather than engaging in hypothetical discussions of war.

There was bipartisan praise in Congress as well.

Reagan, noticeably avoiding the harsh tones that characterized his early stance toward the Soviets, proposed a "historic step" by the superpowers to reverse a trend toward growing military arsenals. The United States, he said, would cancel plans to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe if the Soviets would dismantle the 600 missiles they have trained on European targets.

It will be the initial U.S. negotiating position in talks with the Soviets on restraining deployment of medium-range missiles in Europe. The theater nuclear force negotiations open Nov. 30 in Geneva.

Meanwhile, U.S. officials said they believe the United States and the Soviet Union will decide to resume strategic arms limitations negotiations next March, also in Geneva.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass scoffed at Reagan's proposal for a Europe free from the threat of medium-range nuclear missiles, saying it was "propagandistic" and designed to cloak an American attempt to gain military superiority "through the back door."

The Soviets also said the plan was designed to trick it into unilateral disarmament in Europe because the United States would be left with a preponderance of European-based aircraft with nuclear capability.

The State Department said the Soviet reaction was "unfortunate and regrettably inaccurate."

"We hope that as the Soviets consider the president's proposal, they will come to accept the need to reach an agreement based on equality," it said.

A U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said that while the Soviets probably will discuss Reagan's plan, they are likely to try to "drag out" the talks past the time scheduled to prepare for actual deployment of 572 U.S. Cruise and Pershing II missiles, starting in late 1983.

"I'm sure that is what they will be trying to do" to put the United States on the spot in European nations where there is hope the missiles will never be deployed, he said.

But two officials, one a senior member of the administration, declared Wednesday that the United States would proceed with deployment, if necessary, because otherwise the Soviets would lack an incentive to negotiate seriously.

"We plan to hold to the schedule unless there is a breakthrough and an agreement which would change the motivations for making a decision," the senior official said.

"I see no reason to forgo deployment of missiles just because we are talking," the other official said.

The senior State Department official signaled U.S. willingness to listen to Soviet counter-proposals, reflecting the widespread view here that any ultimate agreement would be for something less than a missile-free Europe.

Soviets see Reagan's missile proposal as propaganda ploy

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union accused President Reagan of trying to sabotage the coming U.S.-Soviet arms talks, but America's West European allies welcomed his "zero" missile proposal.

The Kremlin's official Tass news agency said Reagan's proposal to ban U.S. and Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe "is a mere propaganda ploy designed to stalemate" U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks scheduled to start Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland.

Tass denounced Reagan's "zero option" proposal as an attempt to achieve U.S. military superiority "through the back door" and disguise American plans for "escalating the arms race."

In a major foreign policy speech Wednesday, Reagan said the United States would cancel plans to deploy 572 medium-range Pershing II and cruise nuclear missiles in Europe if the Soviets would dismantle the 600 similar missiles they have trained on European targets.

Gen. Vladimir Tolubko, Soviet commander in chief of the stategic rocket forces, told the Communist Party daily Pravda that Reagan's plan is aimed at upsetting the current U.S.-Soviet parity in strategic forces and at insuring U.S. military superiority.

The Soviet reaction echoed President Leonid I. Brezhnev's declaration last month, that any attempt to link withdrawal of Soviet missiles to deployment of the new NATO weapons would sabotage the Geneva talks.

The State Department said the new Kremlin rebuff was "unfortunate and regretably inaccurate."

Reagan said he has written to Brezhnev proposing a four-point agenda for "the mutual reduction of conventional, intermediate-range nuclear and strategic forces."

Reagan's speech was broadcast live via satellite to Europe, where the proposed NATO missile deployment and Reagan recent remarks about limited nuclear war in Europe have sparked massive anti-nuclear demonstrations, causing political problems for NATO leaders.

In a report on Soviet television's prime time news program Wednesday night, Tass accused Reagan of trying to exert "maximum pressure" on Western European public opinion because "the anti-war movement is gaining momentum."

The London Times, one of scores of West European newspapers to welcome Reagan's proposal, said, "The governments of Western Europe deserve a share of the credit. They have mounted a sustained effort to bring home to President Reagan the damage that was being done to the (NATO) alliance."

Reagan's proposal came less than a week before Brezhnev's visit to West Germany for talks with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

They bury, burn, boycott butts

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer

They were burying cigarettes in Tennessee, burning them in Texas, and replacing them with carrot sticks in Virginia today as an estimated 20 million smokers tried to kick the habit — at least for one day — in the Great American Smokeout.

The Tobacco Institute called all the hoopla a shame and a waste of money.

But the sponsor, the American Cancer Society, said one in seven of those who go the full 24 hours without lighting up will put out their cigarettes for good.

"It started out as a gimmick and it turned out to be a very productive thing," cancer society spokesman Charles Dahle said of the fifth annual smokeout.

The cancer society said smokeout participants have a higher long-term quit rate than non-participants. It said 6.7 percent of those who took part — whether they abstained for the full 24 hours or not — quit in the following 11½ months, while 1.1 percent who didn't participate kicked the habit during the same period.

In addition to the usual spate of rallies, speeches and exhibits, this year's 24-hour crusade was marked by a kiss-off in Riverside, Calif., where residents hoped to set a record for most couples kissing at the same time and place, and a bonfire in Lubbock, Texas.

Cigarettes were expected to be ceremoniously buried in funeral processions in Knoxville, Tenn., Elmhurst, Ill., and Miami, and Charles Borden of Sarasota, Fla., was conducting a free, two-hour mass hypnosis session in a performing arts hall donated by the city council.

DuPage County, Ill., Sheriff Richard Doria was spending the day deputizing employees, patients and visitors at the Glendale Heights Community Hospital with badges that read: "Under A Rest. You have the right to remain breathing."

A U.S. Marine tank was patrolling the streets of Amarillo, Texas, in search of errant smokers, and Virginia Commonwealth University students donned rabbit suits and dispensed carrot sticks on the main street of Richmond.

Shouting "You're going to die!" at puffing onlookers, actress Estelle Parsons, chairwoman of this year's Smokeout, got an early start at a noon rally Wednesday in the lobby of the Equitable Life Assurance Society building in New York City.

"Stop smoking," Miss Parsons screamed at the shifting lunch hour crowd of several hundred. "Take a deep breath and hold it," she told them. "Hold it for 10 seconds.... Now let it out, slowly. You have experienced all of the pleasure of smoking — without the smoke!"

Two-vehicle mishap claims four lives

ANDREWS — Three Odessans and an Andrews truck driver were killed in a two-vehicle accident near here early Wednesday night.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Andrews County Justice of the Peace Jay Williams were 19-year-old Christine Marie Eighmy, 37-year-old Robert Russell and 34-year-old Michael Lee Ray, all of Odessa.

The truck driver, 25-year-old Jerry Hernandez of Andrews, died about 8:25 p.m. at Permian General Hospital in Andrews.

According to the Department of Public Safety, a Chevrolet pickup truck believed driven by Ray at a high rate of speed collided with the left front cab portion of a tractor-trailer rig driven by Hernandez.

The accident occurred at the intersection of State Highway 115 and FM 181, some 14 miles southwest of Andrews, about 7:45 p.m. Wednesday. The pickup was southbound on the FM road and the 18-wheeler was eastbound on the highway at the time.

Russell's body was taken to the Singleton Funeral Home in Seminole, while the other three victims were taken to the Singleton Funeral Home in Andrews. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

DEATHS

Jerry Hernandez

ANDREWS — Rosary will be recited for Jerry Hernandez, 25, of Andrews and formerly of Midland, at 7 p.m. today in the Singleton Funeral Home in Andrews. Funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Andrews.

Hernandez died Wednesday night as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

He was born Nov. 8, 1956, in Midland, where he grew up. He was a graduate of Robert E. Lee High School in Midland. He was a truck driver for a New Mexico company at the time of his death. He was a member of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Leticia Hernandez of Andrews, a son, Mark Hernandez of Andrews; his parents, Nina Hernandez and Mike Hernandez Jr.; seven sisters, Maria Sosa, Catalina Nunez, Camilla Gutierrez, Rosalie Herrera, Dolores Perales, Isabel Reyes and Anna Hernandez, all of Midland; and three brothers, Mickey, Mario and Joe Hernandez, also of Midland.

Audra Thomas

ODESSA — Services for Audra Thomas, 67, of Odessa, mother of Linda Groebl of Midland, were to be at 2 p.m. today in Winters Funeral Home chapel with burial to follow in Winters.

Mrs. Thomas died Tuesday in a Lubbock hospital following a brief illness.

She was born March 31, 1914, in Milton, Okla. She had lived in Odessa 30 years. She was a nurse in a local nursing home for 15 years.

Other survivors include her son, two other daughters, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Tomasa Olivas

ODESSA — Services for Tomasa Sanchez Olivas, 89, of Odessa, mother of Sixto Olivas of Midland, are pending with Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Mrs. Olivas died Monday in an Odessa hospital.

She was born Dec. 15, 1891, in Pilerts. She was married to the late Guadalupe Olivas in 1910 in Presidio.

Other survivors include five daughters, four other sons and 63 grandchildren.

Helen Whitaker

Helen H. Whitaker, 82, of 3000 W. Illinois Ave., died Wednesday at her home.

Services are pending at Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Whitaker was born Oct. 3, 1899, in Portsmouth, Ohio. She had been a resident of Midland for the last 33 years.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. John B. Ashmun of Houston, and four grandchildren.

Walter Tucker

SAN ANGELO — Services for Walter Franklin Tucker, 69, of San Angelo, will be at 10 a.m. Friday in the Park Heights Baptist Church in San Angelo. Burial will follow in Lawnhaven Cemetery under the direction of Johnson Funeral Home of San Angelo.

He was born Sept. 17, 1912, in Carter County, Okla. He married Betsy Mae Tucker June 11, 1936, in Ardmore, Okla. He had lived in San Angelo since 1950. He was in the oil business for 52 years and owned Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. He was a member of the board of directors of the San Angelo National Bank, the board of directors of the Angelo Community Hospital, a former president of the board of directors for the Halfway House and a member of the board of directors on the Council for Alcoholism. He served as a trustee of the Baptist Memorial Geriatric Hospital in San Angelo. He was a deacon and an active member of Park Heights Baptist Church. He was preceded in death by three brothers.

Survivors include his wife, four sons, a daughter, two sisters and eight grandchildren.

John Wilkerson

Services for John Wilkerson, 32, of 4308 Leddy Drive, were to be at 3 p.m. today at Bellview Baptist Church with the Rev. G.A. Magee officiating. Burial was to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Tuesday following an accident.

Pallbearers were to be Mike Broxson, Mike Tarpley, Dale Norton, Bob Carlton, Jerry Tarpley and Joe Sherrill.

Honorary pallbearer was to be Raymond Ford.

This White Heron pauses in his attempt to eat a water snake in the Everglades National Park near Homestead, Fla. The reason for the pause might be apparent in that his meal isn't quite ready to be eaten yet as he curls around the large wading bird's beak. Herons can be seen almost statue-like as they creep through water looking for their prey, which includes fish, frogs, lizards and almost anything else that swims or crawls and is small enough for their long beaks to grab or spear.

Airplane missing in Colorado

EAGLE, Colo. (AP) — A search was underway this morning for a plane with seven people aboard that was reported missing Wednesday night after radioing the flight station here that it was low on fuel and about to land.

The plane, a Mitsubishi turbo-prop, was on a flight from the Miami-Fort Lauderdale, Fla., area to Eagle, the Civil Air Patrol said, and had stopped en route to refuel in Shreveport, La.

Sara Smith of the Eagle County sheriff's office said the pilot notified the airport about 6:15 p.m. that he was at 13,000 feet and was planning to land. Ms. Smith said there was no further communication with the airplane.

Identities of people aboard the craft were withheld, pending notification of next of kin.

First extinct animal taken from endangered species list

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Tecopa pupfish is no more — it has become the first species ever removed from the government's endangered list because it became extinct.

The Interior Department said it was taking the action Wednesday after a lengthy search of waterways around Tecopa, Calif., failed to locate any of the 1½-inch fish.

Before 1965, the Tecopa, one of 12 kinds of pupfish in the United States, was known to live in two hot water springs that fed into the Amaragosa River in California's Death Valley.

In 1965, the two springs were rechanneled and combined into one as part of construction of bathhouses by a private company.

The fish, which thrived in highly saline water as hot as 110 degrees, were unable to adapt to the new, swifter channel, government biologists believe.

By 1969, the Tecopa had been virtually eliminated and it was put on the government's endangered species list a year later. Private citizens formed a Pupfish Habitat Preservation Committee. But to no avail.

By 1972, biologists could no longer find any of the fish, although they held out hope that some Tecopa might be located in nearby ponds and springs where the related Amaragosa River pupfish lives.

When no Tecopa were found by 1978, the government proposed removing the fish from the endangered species list. That action was held up four years while the government conducted additional searches for the fish.

"It is always sad when a species becomes extinct because of human activities," said Robert Jantzen, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service. "But in this instance the fact that this fish has become extinct should not be taken to mean that endangered species conservation measures have failed."

He said the law, first passed in 1966 and strengthened in 1973, has benefited a number of species — including the American alligator, the peregrine falcon and the whooping crane. In the instance of the Tecopa, he said, it was probably already extinct when added to the list.

The Endangered Species Act provides protection to threatened species and their habitats. Environmentalists have been critical of budget cutbacks Interior Secretary James Watt has made in the program, but they found no fault with the government's decision to remove the Tecopa from the list.

Have mercy on trees — don't smoke

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

YALTA — Most Soviet citizens smoke cigarettes whenever they can afford them ($1.80 a pack) but in this beautiful and historic resort city on the beaches of the Black Sea, the Nikitsky Botanical Gardens has a strict "no smoking" regulation.

It isn't that those who preside over this magnificent and natural park that includes 28,000 species (1,700 ancient varieties) of trees, shrubs and flowers care whether you irritate your non-smoking companions, or whether you further damage your lungs.

"We do not want our exhibits damaged by cigarette smoke," an attendant said. "We are very proud of what we have and some of our oldest trees are very fragile."

To a mountain dweller with what perhaps is a ridiculous love of sensitive flora, the Soviet "no smoking" edict was like a breath of fresh air. A tour of the park — and it would take three days to do the tour properly — shows that justification for the rule is ever evident. There are 2,000 varieties of roses, all beautifully manicured and, fortunately, mostly in bloom during this visit. There is one of the few remaining Cedars of Lebanon. It is alive, reasonably healthy and dates to 1840.

There are Redwoods from California, even a Northern California cypress. There are bamboos from China (gifts received before political discord split the two Red giants. Naturally, there are Crimean pines but also Lenkoran acacias, pyramidal cypress, fan palms, many varieties of cedars, Japanese sophora and many others. There is a fairly rare Aleppo pine, called the "greedy" pine because it does not shed its cones. And, benefited by these subtropical temperatures, flowers of every variety imaginable thrive.

Descending from the botanical gardens that are situated on one of the three hillsides that shelter Yalta from the harsh winds of the northern Ukraine and Russia, your next visit might be to the beaches — at which time you likely will wish you were back looking at trees and flowers.

The hotel beaches that Yalta boasts about so much (and it has 2 million annual visitors to prove its point) show little or no sand. They are of baseball-sized pebbles. Sun worshipers and r bathers stretch out on wooden slats to protect them from the rocks and make their way to points of vantage via wooden walkways. Among the bathers, the excessivly overweight predominate and it is comical to see some of them try to navigate the hazards of the so-called "beach." While most Soviets you see are hefty at best, they claim that the bathers with the most excessive blubber are tourists from East Germany or some other satellite area.

Along with gardens, beaches and health spas, Yalta appears to be the focal point of the Soviet Union's English-language propaganda effort. Posters and billboards in English proclaim the wonders of the communist system. Even a visit to Livadia Palace, where Franklin Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Jose Stalin drew up the 1945 Yalta Agreement, includes a tongue-in-cheek narrative on how proud the USSR is of those proceedings. Why shouldn't the Soviets be happy? Stalin fooled the Eastern leaders completely and won tacit approval for the seizure of most of Eastern Europe.

Despite the "heavy" atmosphere of Livadia, Yalta is mostly a resort experience. Half a day of merely sitting on park benches or strolling around the embarcadero is rewarding. There is a general air of friendliness that goes with most tropical scenes, and there is a seaside carnival where parents push their offspring to join in the several rides available — although most of the kids seem a bit on the skeptical side.

Yalta is close to wine country, too, and visits (with tasting) to 30 different wineries are available to tourists.

Hotel food is some of the best you may experience in the Soviet Union, and you are sure to enjoy your stay here. But have mercy on the trees and flowers — don't light up at the Nikitsky Botanical Gardens.

Midland man found innocent of rape

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The 32-year-old Midlander who was accused of raping a 16-year-old girl while her baby slept next to her last July 17 was exonerated Wednesday by an eight-man, four-woman jury.

The jury took about 20 minutes to elect a foreman and to reach a not-guilty verdict.

Discharged from the court was Curtis Lee Clemons, who had been held in jail for three months while awaiting trial. He was not positively identified as the assailant by the rape victim nor by her grandmother, who said a large man had whisked by her in his shorts after she spied him in her granddaughter's bedroom and ordered him out of the house.

"I woke up and heard the bed squeaking, and that's when I saw what it was," the grandmother said under questioning by David Joers, the lead prosecutor in the case in Judge Vann Culp's 238th State District Court.

The grandmother said she initially had been awakened about 1 a.m. on July 17 by barking dogs and by the flashing lights of a police patrol car, which had been dispatched to the southeast-side neighborhood to investigate a reported prowler in the neighborhood.

THE GRANDMOTHER said she got up and walked into her granddaughter's room and told the man he had no business in there.

" 'What do you mean being in my girl's room?' " the grandmother said he demanded. "You better get out in a hurry."

The man fled past her, and was chased into the darkness by two policemen who were checking out the prowler report. One shot was fired.

The grandmother said the assailant had a "small head and a big stomach" and that she could not discern his facial features.

The grandmother said the girl was upset.

"She was just scared to death, said she was hurt. She was crying out loud."

THE ASSAILANT'S FACE was masked by a ladies' stocking, testified the girl, who said the man held a knife on her and force her to forced her to have sexual intercourse.

The girl said that she could not tell if the man had a beard. Clemons was sporting an abbreviated beard in the the courtroom.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Gayle Newman, the girl said she could not identify Clemons, whom she was acquainted with, as her assailant.

Ms. Newman presented the victim with a statement she gave police after the rape; the girl read portions of her statement, which said her assailant " 'did not have a beard or a moustache. I do not know who the man was, and I did not see his face.' "

The prosecution did produce a witness, a boy, now 13, who lived across the street from the victim's house, and who had been watching television in the early-morning hours. The boy said he saw "the front door open" at the grandmother's house, and a large man run out.

"Was that a black person?" asked Joers.

"Yes," said the boy, who said the man ran alongside the fence and past his room. He identified the man as Clemons, whom he had seen "walking around the neighborhood" several times.

TWO DEFENSE witnesses, Rudolph Whitley and Richard Gosher, testified that Clemons was with them on night of July 16 and early morning hours of July 17. Both said that Clemons was with them at the Club Jamaica and then across the tracks at the KoKo Lounge and Red's Drive Inn. Both said Clemons, who does a lot of walking, was wearing pants that night and not shorts.

The accused, who elected to testify, said he was with his friends that night and was nowhere near the girl's house.

In arguing for a conviction, co-prosecutor Jim Rex told the jurors that the victim confirmed that "general description" of her assailant was "the Aame as the defendant's." Rex also proposed that Clemons had lied about his alibis.

"The defendant has a great deal to lose," Rex contended. "He does have a motive for not telling the truth."

Ms. Newman retorted that the prosecution had not refuted the alibi and had offered "nothing to rebut his (Clemens') defense, nothing."

"Mr. Rex tried to downplay the absence of evidence," said Ms. Newman, who was teamed up with Medferd Owen in defending Clemons under a court appointment. She noted that the prosecution had tendered "the conjecture and speculation of a 12-year-old child."

Mailey, MISD superintendent.

Teachers recognize American Education Week

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

In "commemoration of all the good things about education in America," and in conjunction with American Education Week, the Midland Educators Association held a reception at the Midland Independent School District administration building Wednesday.

The purpose of the week, which is recognized nationally while Public School Week is recognized statewide, is to give a "time for people to think about teachers and parents working together for the best interest of the children," James R. Cox, Goddard Junior High School principal, said.

"We really feel public schools have taken a beating in the last few years," Alma Marshall, president of the MEA, said. "With all of our problems, we still feel there are some things that need to be said about American education being good.

"American public education is probably one of the best things America has done," she continued. "This week is really a commemoration of all the good things about education in America."

One of the "good things" in the educational system today, according to a group of teachers who got together to discuss its different strengths and weaknesses Monday, was the openness of the students in the classroom.

"Kids are much more open today," Claudia Davis, cosmetology teacher at Midland High School, said. "I like them to be open and to know what they are thinking."

Linda Hagler, a Goddard Junior High special education teacher, agreed. "It's much more lax in the classrooms. I feel there should be discipline, but it should remain lax enough where the child doesn't feel threatened.

"I don't think a child should just be sitting there at his desk," she added.

"I think it's good," Ms. Davis said. "It lets them get it (the child's ideas, frustrations and emotions) out and let's us get on with the work."

But the most important change that is taking place and still needs improvement in the school system, according to some of the teachers, is the attitude of the teachers and society toward the students, especially the minorities.

"A teacher needs to demand the same thing from a black student as he does from a white student," Ms. Davis said. "When you do, he'll achieve.

"When you start demanding something, you'll start getting something," she said.

The way society perceives a child is directly related to the student's ability to achieve, according to Damacio Bernal, a West Elementary School teacher.

"The success of a student depends on his confidence, self-esteem and culture, and the way society looks at him."

Cooler temperatures expected soon

Autumn weather has once again returned to Midland after several days of unseasonably warm temperatures and another record high set Wednesday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, it will remain fair and cool through Friday with the temperatures dropping into the lower 30s tonight and climbing into the middle 60s on Friday.

Today's gusty winds will become light and variable tonight and southerly 10-15 mph on Friday.

Wednesday's high of 84 set another record, breaking the old mark for the date of 80 set in 1966. The overnight low temperature of 45 posed no threat to the record low of 20 set last year.

Joint city council meeting Monday

A special joint meeting of the Midland and Odessa city councils will be held Monday at 10 a.m. in the conference room of the Midland Chamber of Commerce at 109 N. Main St.

Items to be discussed include extraterritorial jurisdiction between the two cities, the mass transit system and its problems and other matters of mutual interest. The public is invited.

White criticizes prison investigator

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White says a special investigator appointed by a federal judge to check on Texas prisons has stopped reporting facts and become a "mouthpiece" for inmates.

White said Wednesday representatives from his office will go to Houston Friday to meet with the special master "to see if we can get him to be more objective."

"At the appropriate time," White told a news conference, he would ask the courts to abolish the state-financed master's office.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler told Vincent Nathan of Ohio to monitor the Texas Department of Corrections after Justice ruled the TDC violates inmates' constitutional rights.

A report filed Tuesday by the master's staff in Houston criticized TDC for denying recreation time to certain inmates. A previous report said TDC was allowing some inmates to control other prisoners, in violation of Justice's orders.

White said the master's reports have been based on interviews with inmates, adding, "They are condemned felons who didn't get up there for truth or veracity.

"Who are you going to believe, one of the prisoners or (TDC director) Jim Estelle? I believe Jim Estelle is telling the truth," White said.

White criticized the master's finding that inmates in administrative segregation were not given recreation time. Justice's order mandated recreation time for inmates confined to their cells for three days or more.

The report said that part of the judge's order had been violated in 12 of the TDC's 19 units.

The attorney general labeled the report an "utter falsehood," and said it was based on "hearsay evidence" from inmates. He said William Babcock, who filed the report, is "a mouthpiece for the prisoners."

A spokeswoman for Nathan's office in Houston said there would be no comment on White's statement. She declined to give her name.

White said the state had turned down several offers of land and buildings made by federal officials to help reduce overcrowding in the 30,000-inmate system.

"None of the federal property offered so far has proven to be realistically suitable for the confinement of convicted felons," he said.

Hinckley faults government for attempt

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Hinckley Sr. says the government's constant questioning of his son drove the accused presidential assailant to attempt suicide.

Hinckley, who with his wife visited their 26-year-old son at Kimbrough Army Hospital at Fort Meade Wednesday, said he has requested therapy treatment for him on several occasions.

"They told me it wasn't necessary, that it could wait," Hinckley told the Evening Sun in a copyright interview. "He's been constantly interrogated for seven months. Anyone would be desperate after going through all that."

The younger Hinckley, charged with attempting to assassinate President Reagan on March 30, tried to kill himself Sunday night but federal marshals cut him down from a noose fashioned from his jacket.

"We don't understand why they're trying to gloss over this thing," Hinckley said, accusing the Justice Department of a coverup.

Hinckley said he and his wife are "concerned about the conflicting reports" regarding his son.

Art Brill, a Justice Department spokesman, refused to comment on the elder Hinckley's allegations, the Evening Sun said.

Midland can't take federal funding for granted

they're right and that the area is acceptable and can adequately accommodate those units. Or, they should work out a plan that will be acceptable."

And the Dec. 1 deadline isn't the first extension Midland has received on this part of the application. The city originally had been given until Nov. 11, he noted.

Although the revised housing goals appeared to more adequately fit the needs in Midland, Rotert said the area doesn't look like it has enough available sites.

Nor does the area fit HUD's site and neighborhood geographic standards. He explained that part of HUD's goal is to provide "expanding housing opportunities for low-income people and minorities. We won't put a housing project where there's a high concentration" of minorities and low-income people.

Hennessy, apparently in agreement with HUD, said there may not be enough sites in the application's designated area "that would meet HUD's site and neighborhood standards. It's difficult for us to justify it can be specifically done. Most sites available are small sites" and wouldn't hold a large housing complex.

"Whether 240 units could be built on these sites is questionable," Hennessy added.

ANSWERING THE mayor's argument that HUD is trying to open the city up to the low-income housing projects, Rotert said, "Some cities in their applications say it can go anywhere but in specific areas. Midland chose not to do that and designate only where they (housing projects) could go."

Location of low-income housing "is a difficult issue in every city we work with. Midland is not unique in that respect," Rotert noted.

The HUD representative is cognizant that there is a "strong public reaction to assisted housing. People don't want it in their neighborhoods. We're not trying to shove anything down the cities' throats. But we also recognize there are people in Midland who need this assistance."

He also pointed out that HUD is aware of low-income people who want to stay in their familiar neighborhoods rather than move into housing projects that are located in another part of the city. But the law currently is written that part of the low-income housing must be placed in other sections of the city to give some people a chance to move out of "minority-impacted neighborhoods."

As far as HUD is concerned, "we're not here to create the law; we're here to administer it," he said.

THERE HAS BEEN a change in legislation concerning HUD regulations, "but it won't affect what is in front of us. This new legislation has not been put into regulations and won't affect these current applications."

The mayor said he is concerned that if Midland gets the money, the city won't have time to spend it by the end of the year, which will be July 13, 1982. "We had so much allocated to housing rehabilitation ($500,000) that we may be delayed in getting all the work done."

Rotert responded that Midland will be given more than a year to spend the money since the city hasn't had an on-going program for the past several years. "We recognize Midland needs a start-up period. We'll go about it as reasonable, rational human beings," he added.

To resolve the differences, Akins said he has requested help from various sources, including U.S. Rep. Kent Hance. But the congressman's office told him they couldn't step into the arena unless the grant had been rejected, "and we think that's too late."

"I've made lots of phone calls and I've called several people in Washington (D.C.) at various levels trying to get help from that end," Akins said. "We're still trying."

His personal opinion about the funds hasn't changed, Akins said, adding that the grant "is a bad deal.

"It's not surprising that HUD is performing in this manner," he continued. "I don't think they're really interested in helping people in need."

Catholic charities investigated

ROME (AP) — An investigation is underway to determine if the Vatican Bank and leading Roman Catholic charities broke foreign exchange laws requiring all money brought in to Italy to be converted.

The Vatican Bank allegedly kept the money in its original currencies.

Elizabeth Cagan: Czarina of school lunches

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Cagan, czarina of school cafeterias, duchess of dietitians, marchesa of milk cartons, was disturbed. Her young subjects had cleaned every plate.

"Have we given you enough? Are you still hungry?" asked the woman who, as head of the New York City school lunch program, serves 520,000 lunches and 110,000 breakfasts each day at 1,200 sites — more outlets than Howard Johnson's.

Her staff, standing nearby as Mrs. Cagan talked to students during this recent visit to a school lunchroom, groaned.

"You know, there's no pleasing you," said one staffer. "If they eat everything on their plates, you want to give them more. If they leave food on their plates, you ask them what's wrong."

MRS. CAGAN admits that she is not easily satisfied. At age 62, after 40 years as a teacher and administrator in the nation's largest public school system, she has carved out a reputation as a hard-working, ebullient innovator.

In 1977, a federal report criticized the city's school food program as wasteful and the food itself as unnutritious and unappetizing. Mrs. Cagan, in the four years since she has been director of food services, is credited with turning a losing program into a winner.

On a budget of $134 million, she oversees 9,500 food service employees, including 37 field superintendents responsible for local operations.

And Mrs. Cagan has held down the price of a school lunch, which ranges from 60 to 75 cents.

However, under the federal lunch program, nine out of 10 students pay nothing, and 5 percent pay only 20 cents. That program is being cut, and income requirements for the free lunches are being tightened. Mrs. Cagan does not know exactly how this will affect her children, but she worries.

> "From noon to one, the sewers in this country run white. What some of these so-called experts don't understand is that unless a kid ingests what is on his tray, it's not nutritious."

"MANY FAMILIES which have three, four or five children will decide that it is too much of an outlay, and turn to bag lunches. We hope that they won't drop eating lunch altogether," she said.

However, she says proposed federal guidelines — now withdrawn — to reduce the amount of food served to elementary students, would have prevented waste, especially by cutting the milk serving from 8 to 6 ounces.

"From noon to one, the sewers in this country run white," she says. "What some of these so-called experts don't understand is that unless a kid ingests what is on his tray, it's not nutritious."

Mrs. Cagan wants to make sure her meals are eaten. Students who don't want, say, mashed potatoes, need only take a "taster" portion. Then, if they want more, they can have it.

In several schools, Mrs. Cagan has established "energy factories" where hamburgers, pizza, french fries, milkshakes and ice cream are available, along with salad bars and traditional lunches.

THE DIFFERENCE is that the rolls and pizza are made with unbleached flour, the meat is lean, the french fries are vitamin enriched and low on grease, the milkshakes use only milk, not fillers, and the ice cream is made to Mrs. Cagan's specifications, with reduced sugar.

No unnecessary additives or colorings are used. And the machines that dispense real junk foods — the cupcakes, candy and soda — have been banned in the schools since 1979, for teachers and students alike.

Mrs. Cagan also has been a leader in the use of surplus foods and other commodities donated by the federal government.

In the pursuit of nutrition, Mrs. Cagan will take advantage of anything — including the students themselves.

Every school in the city has established student nutrition committees which draw up menus each month, eliminating unpopular foods. Films and posters exhort students to take a hand in their own diets.

At the Central Park East School, meals are served family style.

Reagan trying to break unions

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Hearst Feature Service

NEW YORK — President Reagan is trying to break federal employee unions by not just budget cuts but by permitting the private sector to take over much of the work now done by federal employees, union officials charged.

The unions, however, with the help of Congessional Committees, are putting up considerable resistence and have blocked one attempt recently to let the private sector take over 23,000 jobs now done by Veteran's Administratioon hospital workers.

"They'd like to break the union by contracting out as many jobs as possible," said Jane McMichael, an organizer for the American Federation of Government Employees. She said this could cost millions of jobs, including up to 500,000 defense jobs if the administration ultimately gets it way.

The first showdown came over the VA's attempt to contract out 23,000 hospital jobs, mostly custodians, cooks, and dieticans.

AFGE vice president Dan Kearney, of Massachusetts, took the lead to organize a grass roots and a congressional coalition to save the 23,000 jobs.

McMichael said he was influential, for instance, in persuading Senators George Mitchell, D-Maine and William Stafford, R-Vt., to block the Reagan plan.

One witness from Iowa, Ginny Odell, returned from testifying against the Reagan proposal and signed up 23 new AFGE members in one day, "because they know they're on the chopping bloc," McMichaels said.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip and glamor issues retreated Wednesday as the stock market absorbed more bad economic news.

In their apparent preoccupation with the worsening recession, stock traders showed little response to further declines in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 10 points on Monday and up 5 Tuesday, fell back 6.09 to 844.08.

The daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange showed losers and gainers about evenly balanced. But the Big Board's composite index dropped .36 to 70.03.

One notable loser was Hewlett-Packard, off 3⅛ at 40. The company reported earnings for the quarter ended Oct. 31 of 77 cents a share, up from 65 cents in the comparable period a year ago. The size of the increease evidently fell short of some traders' expectations, however.

Among other big-name technology issues, Digital Equipment lost 2½ to 88½; Texas Instruments 1¾ to 75⅜; Control Data 1¾ to 37; Teledyne 2¾ to 142; Motorola 1⅞ to 64⅜, and International Business Machines ⅜ to 50⅜.

Blue-chip losers included Du Pont, off 1¼ at 37¼; Dow Chemical, down ½ at 23⅞; General Motors, off ⅜ at 35, and American Telephone & Telegraph, ⅛ lower at 60⅞.

Goodyear led the active list, up ⅜ at 18 in trading that included a 2,602,500-share block early in the session at 17¾. The NYSE reported that it was the third largest trade, as measured by number of shares, in its history.

Big Board volume totaled 49.98 million shares, up from 43.19 million Tuesday.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 58.71 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials lost 1.10 to 133.37, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .89 at 120.26.

The NYSE's composite index lost .36 to 70.03.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE
Joint ownership is sensible thing

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My husband and I have talked about setting up trusts for each other but haven't done so yet. We have, however, divided our family assets approximately in half — part in his name and part in mine — to save on federal estate taxes.

We have read quite a lot about the changes in estate tax rules, which become effective Jan. 1. Should we put everything we own back in joint accounts, before setting up the trusts?

A. Not necessarily. Beginning in 1982, a husband or wife will be able to leave everything he or she owns to the surviving spouse. So, joint ownership will become a relatively simple and sensible thing for most families. But it won't become the be-all and end-all of family financial planning.

Doyle

In some cases, it will still be better to have the family's assets owned individually — part in the husband's name and part in the wife's. When one spouse leaves everything to the other, this won't make any difference in estate taxes. But it can save the surviving spouse capital gains taxes, if he or she sells inherited property.

When stocks or other "capital assets" are owned individually by someone who dies, the person who inherits them has a "stepped-up basis." But, if a joint owner dies, only half of the asset gets the stepped-up basis.

OK, this is complicted. Let's use an example.

Say your husband bought 100 shares of XYZ stock, at $10 a share. His basis was $1,000. Say he dies and the stock is worth $20 a share. You inherit the stock and have a basis of $2,000. You sell it, at that price. You have no profit and not capital gains tax liability.

Now, let's say that stock was bought jointly by you and your husband. He dies. Your basis on the half of the stock he owned is stepped up to $1,000 but the basis on the half you have owned all along remains $500.

That makes your basis on the 100 shares $1,500. You sell the stock for $2,000. You have a $500 profit, which is taxable as a capital gain.

This example shows there is no all-encompassing formula for estate planning. Each family should consult a good tax lawyer, something you'll have to do anyway, when you set up those trusts.

Q. To stay within the current $100,000 limit for Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage of our bank accounts, my wife and I have both individual accounts and joint accounts. My will leaves everything to her. Her will leaves everything to me.

Will both the individual and joint accounts be free from federal estate tax? How about "P.O.D." U.S. Savings Bonds and "in trust for" bank accounts?

A. Just live at least till Jan. 1 and everything you leave to your wife or your wife leaves to you will escape federal estate tax. That will apply, no matter how your accounts are registered. "P.O.D.," of course, means "payable on death" and is the beneficiary form for U.S. Savings Bonds.

If either of you leave this vale of tears before 1981 is out, the surviving spouse is entitled to an estate tax marital deduction of $250,000 or one-half of the estate, whichever is greater.

Q. I am 75. My wife is 69. We both have had two heart attacks. My wife has no interest in stocks and bonds. She knows nothing about them and says they bother her. Would it be wise to sell the $250,000 we have in stocks and $150,000 in municipal bonds and put the money in bank savings certificates or mutual funds?

A. If you do that, your wife won't have to manage the investments after you die, which is clearly the thing you are most concerned about. But my recommendation would be to turn your investments over to the trust department of a bank, which will be able to take care of all your wife's financial affairs.

Seven wildcats staked, two oil discoveries completed

Oilmen have staked seven wildcats in districts 8 and 8A. Two oil discoveries have been finaled in Pecos and Reeves counties.

BORDEN WILDCAT

Brazos Petroleum — RKH Ltd., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Griffin, a 7,400-foot wildcat, five miles northwest of Vincent.

The project is staked 1,980 feet from the north and west lines of section 46, block 25, H&TC survey.

It appears the well will be an approximately 1/2 mile north stepout from the Hobo (Penn) field, which produces from a depth of 7,100 feet.

The drillsite is located between two dry holes. The 7,245-foot Amcon No. 1-C Griffin, abandoned Nov. 14, 1951, is about 1/4 mile to the west; and the Hilliard Oil and Gas No. 1 Griffin, abandoned Sept. 2, 1981 at 7,250 feet, sets about 1/4 mile to the east.

COTTLE VENTURE

Walter Exploration Inc., Dallas, plans the No. 1 Opal as a 6,600-foot wildcat, to be drilled two miles east of Chalk.

The location is 1,200 feet from the north, and 467 feet from the east line of section 4, Mary A. Cook survey.

CULBERSON RE-ENTRIES

Dinero Operating Co., Midland, will re-enter the No. 1 Texaco Culberson "H" and attempt completion as a 6,800-foot wildcat.

The location is 1,019 feet from the north, and 1,094 feet from the west line of section 1, block 61, T-1, T&PRR survey, about 30 miles west of Orla.

The well was abandoned Sept. 4, 1980

Dinero will also re-enter the No. 1 Exxon Deleware River, and attempt to complete it as a 6,800-foot wildcat.

The site is 990 feet from the south and west lines of section 12, block 61, T-1, T&PRR survey, about 13.5 miles south of White City, New Mexico.

The well was abandoned Nov. 14, 1980.

GARZA EXPLORER

Anadarko Production Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Slaughter as an 8,400-foot wildcat, eight miles southwest of Post.

The location is 2,300 feet from the north, and 1,870 feet from the east line of section 1, block 30. T-7-N, TW&NG survey, abstract 409.

The drillsite is west of the Vern-Mag field. It is also 1/2 mile north of a 5,458-foot and 9,068-foot dryholes in the same section.

LAMB SEARCHER

F.P. Ross Inc., Lubbock, will drill the 4,000-foot wildcat No. 1 J.W. Johnson, 10 1/2 miles northeast of Littlefield.

The drillsite is 67 feet north and west of the Pickens No. 1 Johnson, abandoned Feb. 17, 1981 at 8,000 feet.

The stake is 400 feet from the north and west lines of section 33, block T, T.A. Thompson survey.

REEVES PROSPECTOR

Grace Petroleum Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Grace-Caledan O'Conner, an 11,500-foot wildcat, seven miles west of Toyah.

The drillsite is approximately amile to 1 1/2 miles north of the San Martine (Fusselman) gas field, which produce around 11,000 feet.

PECOS OIL FIND

PDC Gas Co., Midland, has completed the No. 1 Margaret Collins as an Upper Cherry Canyon oil discovery, 23 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

The well pumped 15 barrels of 31.5 gravity oil plus 110 barrels of water in 24 hours. The gas to oil ratio was 2,666 to 1.

Total depth is 17,600 feet and the plug back depth is 6,336 feet.

Production was gained through perforations between 6,265 and 6,306 feet, which had been acidized with 9,000 gallons, and fractured with 10,750 pounds.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from the south, and east line of section 39, block 49, T-8, T&P survey.

REEVES DISCOVERY

M. Brad Bennett Inc., Midland, has completed its No. 1 Collie, 1 1/2 miles east of Pecos, as a Delaware discovery.

The well pumped 25 barrels of 45 gravity oil plus five barrels of water in 24 hours. The gas to oil ratio is 1,625 to 1.

Production was gained through perforations between 4,714 and 4,725 feet, which had been acidized with 4,000 gallons.

Drilled to 4,795 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set at that depth, it was plugged back to 4,732 feet.

It is 660 feet from the north, and east line of section 2, block 5, H&GN survey.

Alaska gas pipeline moving ahead in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A financing package for the Alaska natural gas pipeline — the largest public works project ever proposed — is moving ahead in the Senate despite arguments that it could cost consumers billions of dollars.

The package, intended to attract private financing for the $43 billion pipeline, would waive some antitrust and pricing regulations to give lenders more assurance that they would get some return on their investment.

But it is under attack by some for simply shifting the risk to natural gas customers who might never receive any benefit for their payments.

The Senate was scheduled to debate the measure today.

The opposition to the financing package was being led by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who said it violates "fundamental notions of fairness and common sense." He also argued against the project in the Senate Energy Committee, but was defeated 14-1 in the vote that sent the waiver package to the floor.

The pipeline is intended to tap the 26 trillion cubic feet of natural gas estimated to lie under Alaska's North Slope. The 4,800-mile pipeline would run south through Alaska, then through Canada to the province of Alberta.

There, it would fork, with one leg running southeast to Chicago and a second leg running southwest to San Francisco.

Including projected inflation, the pipeline is estimated to cost $43 billion, and sponsors say they have been unable to find lenders willing to take the risk on such a huge and expensive project.

Even with the waiver package, there is no guarantee that financiers can be found, the pipeline's builders have told congressional committees. But without the package, they add, the pipeline is dead.

The most controversial portion of the waiver package is the section that would allow consumers to pay for part of the pipeline before it is finished, even if it ultimately is abandoned.

That so-called "pre-billing" section splits the project into three parts — the U.S. portion, the Canadian portion and a conditioning plant in Alaska to prepare the gas for transport.

The package also would waive some antitrust laws to allow the oil companies producing the North Slope gas to own part of the pipeline. And, it would restrict FERC's authority to regulate the price of pipeline gas.

WTGS meeting to hear ditinguished lecturer

The West Texas Geological Society will meet Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. at the Midland Hilton.

Dr. Richard R. Bloomer will present his paper entitled "Depositional Enviroments and Reservoir Morphologies of Channel Sandstones."

An independent geologist from Abilene, Bloomer is a distinguished lecturer sponsored by the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Reservations may be made by calling the Society at 683-1573 no later than 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Turkey Creek incident: Was it self-defense?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Prison officials consider the "Incident at Turkey Creek" a simple case of an inmate willing to kill to get out — a three-time loser who drowned a warden and gunned down a prison farm manager.

Eroy Edward Brown should be executed for the April 4 murders at the Ellis Unit near Huntsville, prosecutors will argue in January.

Defense lawyers present a case of self-defense involving a prisoner being taken to the "bottoms," an inmate willing to kill to prevent a beating by Texas Department of Correction officials.

"It will come down to a story about the bottoms," said defense lawyer Bill Habern.

"IT'S NO SECRET our case is a self-defense case. The bottoms is a place where people are taken to be beaten," he said.

Brown's Galveston trial could evolve into a revealing view at how the TDC runs its prisons, and it could give Texans an inside look on how prisoners are treated in a 30,000-inmate penal system already criticized by a federal judge.

Brown, 30, is charged with capital murder in the slayings of Ellis Unit Warden Wallace Pack and prison farm manager Billy Max Moore.

Pack, a 19-year TDC veteran who rose to warden of the largest unit, drowned in Turkey Creek on the Ellis Unit. Moore, a 13-year TDC veteran, was shot to death.

TDC records filed with the Court of Criminal Appeals give a glimpse of the state's case, including accounts by several TDC employees of the slayings one report labeled the "Incident at Turkey Creek."

The accounts allege the incident began when Brown created a disturbance.

"I heard inmate Brown yelling, 'God damn, I want a furlough. I want ... a woman just like everybody else,' " wrote TDC worker William Adams Jr.

"He said, 'I want to see Billy Moore.' I asked inmate Brown what he had been drinking and he said nothing but water. I told him he had been doing something and he told me he had been smoking weed," said Adams.

OFFICER Robert De Young, who arrived at the scene after the shooting, said Brown told him, "A man's got to do what he's got to do."

TDC employee Billy Matlock also said it was the denied five-day furlough that set off Brown's rage.

"I heard him say, 'I was damned tired of fixing flats in the rain and not being able to make a furlough,'" said Matlock.

Three days after the killings, Gov. Bill Clements discussed the case privately with TDC Director W.J. Estelle.

"The original disciplinary action started at a work site when this inmate was unruly and causing problems. The farm boss put him in his pickup truck and was taking him out," Clements said after talking with Estelle.

> "It will come down to a story about the bottoms. It's no secret our case is a self-defense case. The bottoms is a place where people are taken to be beaten."

Pack routinely was called in, according to Estelle. A fight ensued and Moore was killed with Pack's gun. Estelle said Pack was wounded, and drowned in a subsequent scuffle with Brown.

Habern indicated he will offer a different version and will raise some questions about the TDC accounts.

"The policies and procedures of TDC will be an issue," he said.

HABERN SAID several inmates contacted him about testifying about the bottoms, several probably will be witnesses for the defense.

Estelle, after his meeting with Clements, said he had never heard the phrase "a trip to the bottoms" — an inmates' term for being taken out for punishment.

He said federal agents determined Brown handled the gun that killed Moore.

But Habern complained that no tests were run on the bodies of the dead men.

"It's very strange that they planted those two bodies without any type of tests ... to see if they fired a gun or fired first," he said.

Habern also is upset at TDC's handling of Brown after the slayings. The lawyer said he had to get a judge's order to allow him to meet privately with his client. Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, also will represent Brown.

There also are questions about TDC's treatment of inmates who might testify for the defense. A Nov. 30 hearing will be held "so we will have the opportunity to prove the harassment TDC inmates (who are talking to us) are receiving," said Habern, who wants protection for those inmates.

In July, Brown was transferred from TDC to the Galveston County Jail. The trial is set for Jan. 11 in Galveston, where it was moved from Huntsville.

It will be an unprecedented trial for Texas and a difficult one for the defense lawyers. Their client has a long history of problems with the law. The victims were the first TDC officials to be killed by an inmate.

IN THE ONLY other similar incident in recent years, a building major at a state prison in Houston County died in 1980 of a heart attack during a fight with an inmate, according to TDC spokesman Rick Hartley. Charges in the case still are pending, he said.

Brown, whose mother and father served time in TDC, made his first trip to prison in 1968 on a burglary conviction. He was released in 1971, but returned in 1974 after stealing 57 suits from a Temple store.

New York cable firms recommended

By WILLIAM MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City received recommendations Wednesday on which firms should get first crack at negotiating contracts for potentially lucrative cable-TV franchises in the four city boroughs outside Manhattan.

Under the proposal, prepared by the borough presidents and a Washington law firm, Brooklyn, Queens and Staten Island would each be broken into three areas for franchising.

The Bronx borough president recommended negotiations for a borough-wide franchise with Cablevision, the only firm to bid for the Bronx.

The companies recommended for the other boroughs were: Warner-Amex Cable, Cox Cablevision and Vision Cable on Staten Island, Warner-Amex, Cablevision and Teleprompter in Brooklyn and American Cablevision, Warner-Amex and Queens Inner Unity Cable Systems in Queens.

The recommendations came after lengthy pitching by nearly a score of firms seeking the franchises that could ultimately generate hundreds of millions of dollars in annual subscription revenues.

The negotiating proposals were made public at a hearing of the Cable Working Group, a satellite of the Board of Estimate. The board itself will hold public hearings on the recommendations on Dec. 10 before awarding final contracts next spring.

Morris Tarshis, director of the city's Bureau of Franchises, told the Cable Working Group that if negotiations with any of the targeted companies broke down, he would ask some of the non-targeted companies to join the negotiations.

The negotiations will not begin until after the Board of Estimate hearing.

No parole for Sirhan

Finally the Board of Prison Terms appears to be waking up in relation to Sirhan Sirhan's proposed September 1984, release from prison. It's inconceivable he would be freed to return to society.

The board has set a hearing for January or February to decide whether to cancel Sirhan's parole. The answer to that question is plain enough.

Originally, of course, Sirhan was sentenced to death for the June 1968, shooting death of Sen. Robert Kennedy. But a quirk of law, the declaration of California's death penalty as unconstitutional, gave him eligibility for parole beginning in 1975.

It's difficult to understand how a death sentence can be commuted into parole in the first place. From the standpoint of severity, the death penalty is the harshest available. Any less of a sentence implies a less serious offense. So, then, are we to consider that Sirhan can be freed after a time, having paid his debt to society and having been punished for the taking of another human life? Simply because a law was changed?

That is absurd! When Sirhan fired the bullets that took Sen. Kennedy's life he did more than deprive the senator of the remainder of his days. He stole from the American people the right to make their own political choice in that particular election. In fact, his act irrevocably changed, for better or for worse, the course of history.

His act, of course, brought unimaginable grief to a family that already had suffered more than most. Yet, in a larger sense, Sirhan by his actions extended that grief to the population of the United States.

Political assassinations are cursed occurrences that have plagued this nation from its beginning. They are more than assaults against individuals; they are assaults against the nation and its political system. Those who seek to destroy the candidates and office-holders, it can be said, truly seek to destroy the political system and all the people of the nation hold dear.

Since assassinations are isolated instances, there is no way to predict when they will occur or to precisely pinpoint the target.

Sirhan actually does represent a threat to society, a threat that can best be controlled behind bars.

A quiz for readers

What is Romania?

A Balkan country which, like Poland, has a rising external debt, hardcurrency shortages, balance-of-payment problems, a neglected agriculture and overinvestment in heavy industry.

Romanian officials, determined to prevent any organized protest movement, have tightened security. In March 1979, a budding free labor movement was dispersed and its 40 leading activists arrested. Most of them are now in exile. The movement hasn't been allowed to start up again.

Romania is an absolute communist dictatorship.

What is the United Export-Import Bank?

It is a U. S. government agency, established in 1934 for the purpose of encouraging U. S. trade by supplying credit and financial guarantees to foreign countries.

What connection does the Ex-Im bank have to Romania?

Romania recently received a $300 million loan from the Ex-Im Bank for a nuclear power plant.

The next question — which the American people should demand an answer to — is:

"Why?"

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Nov. 19, the 323rd day of 1981. There are 42 days remaining in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 19, 1493, Christopher Columbus discovered Puerto Rico.

On this date:

In 1942, Russian forces in World War II staged a counterattack at Stalingrad, surrounding the German troops.

In 1961, some 4,900 Algerian rebels in French prisons ended a 19-day hunger strike on the assurance they would be treated as political prisoners.

In 1970, the Vatican pledged support to a United Nations plan for narrowing the economic gap between rich and poor nations.

And in 1977, Egypt's President Anwar Sadat arrived in Israel on his first peace mission to that country.

Ten years ago: President Nixon appealed for labor support for his Phase-2 economic plan but said the program would proceed without it, if necessary.

Five years ago: Convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst was released from jail when her family posted $1.5 million bail.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Watchdogs didn't bark at silver frenzy

WASHINGTON — During the silver boom and bust nearly two years ago, the federal government's regulatory watchdogs were strangely blind, deaf and toothless while wealthy speculators tried to corner the silver market.

Jack Anderson

By their inexcusable inaction, the federal agencies actually encouraged the speculators' manipulation of the silver market. They ignored the serious inflationary effects of the silver boom, which drove up the price of hundreds of items like X-ray film and hearing-aid batteries, crippled companies that depended on silver, and made bank loans harder to get for businessmen who had to compete with the silver traders for credit.

The whole disgraceful story of the regulatory agencies' failure to do their job is laid out in a still-unreleased report of the House Subcommittee on Commerce, Consumers and Monetary Affairs. Outright violations of federal policy were winked at by the federal regulators, the report concluded.

"Banks and brokerage firms, prohibited since the 1930s from making loans to meet margins set on securities, extended massive amounts of credit to finance the purchase and holdings of silver by the major speculators during 1979-80," the report states.

There were two major speculative combines involved in the silver hoarding: one led by the brothers Nelson Bunker and William Herbert Hunt, the other known as the Conti group. Two wealthy Saudi Arabians were in both combines.

"Large speculative purchases in the cash markets and highly unusual demands for futures contracts and delivery under those contracts by the Hunt family and the Conti group between mid-1979 and early 1980 were the principal factors behind the sharp upper movement in both the cash and futures price for silver," the subcommittee report concludes.

The effect on the credit market was almost as devastating as that on the silver market. "The Hunts may have received almost 13 percent of all new business loans during February and March of 1980," the report states.

This run on the money supply came at a time when banks had been asked to curtail credit as a means of fighting inflation. So they cut back drastically on loans to consumers and small businesses — while they shoveled money at the silver speculators.

It is against Federal Reserve Board policy for banks to borrow from the Fed to cover speculative loans. Yet far from discouraging the bankers who were financing the Hunts — to the ultimate total of $1.8 billion — the Fed let them borrow at discount rates.

If the Federal Reserve Board was asleep at the loan window, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission was all but climbing in bed with the silver speculators. Commissioners and staff members met and talked with the Hunts privately; at one point, William Herbert Hunt expressed a desire to attend a commission meeting, but was persuaded that this would be "inappropriate."

The commission had authority to change trading rules in the commodity exchanges, set speculative limits or even suspend trading in a commodity if the situation warranted it. None of these actions was taken during the silver frenzy, the congressional investigators noted.

"The Commission's inaction seems to be the result of two factors," the report concludes, "a belief that 'official' action would further disrupt the marketplace, and the inability of the Commissioners to reach a consensus on any one particular action or combination of actions."

Yet when an independent exchange began demanding bigger margins for silver futures, Nelson Bunker Hunt had the gall to complain to the commission — which had done nothing. "This is like Libya," Hunt bellyached to one commissioner, "taking our property away."

Footnote: A commodity commission spokesman told my associates Vicki Warren and Tony Capaccio that the commission's internal investigation of the silver crash has been sent to Congress. The commission found nothing to indicate that there had been any attempt to manipulate the silver market.

BELLS ARE RINGING: My readers already know about President Reagan's penchant for telephone chats on issues of the moment. But when a liberal Democrat in Congress invokes the prestige of a presidential phone call, he is apparently greeted with deep skepticism.

Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., about to go into a Senate-House conference on the agriculture bill, hoped to get the Reagan magic on his side in the fight against sugar loan supports. He called the White House, got the president and made his pitch. The president agreed that keeping costs down was important, but he didn't want to go back on the promise he had made to sugar supporters during the budget battle.

Peyser told the conferees he had just talked to the president, who wanted costs held down. It was clear that at least some of the Republicans didn't believe Peyser had even talked with Reagan. His credibility was restored only when Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., returned after a break and said he had had a call from Reagan, who said he had talked to Peyser earlier. The conferees voted for the loan supports anyway.

WATCH ON WASTE: Since 1973, more than $30 million has been spent on a computer system that was to process intelligence reports quickly for the Defense Intelligence Agency. But Pentagon auditors interviewed the analysts who use the computer, and concluded that it's a lemon. Not only is the system "slow and unreliable," it loses or misfiles things and generally makes life harder for the spooks.

GEORGE F. WILL

Europe's 'disarmament' movement arrives in United States

WASHINGTON — Those who now intend to lecture the rest of us about our intellectual sloth and moral callousness regarding nuclear war might consider whether their flippancies are compatible with their condescension.

George F. Will

This thought is provoked by the fact that Europe's "peace" or "anti-nuclear" or "disarmament" movement is coming to our shores. In Europe this movement reflects many impulses: anti-Americanism in the intelligensia, residual Stalinism on the left, pacifism in a secularized clergy, boredom among the young, a diffused antipathy toward all things nuclear. But it also reflects Europe's appeasement reflex, triggered by perception of growing Soviet power, especially the unprovoked, unmatched and destabilizing deployment in West Russia of medium-range missiles targeted at Western Europe.

On 151 American campuses last weekend, there were "teach-ins" about nuclear war. A consensus was reached (in some places with a sense of original discovery) that nuclear war would be awful. There was less clarity about how to make the nuclear age safer, the repeal of modern physics being impractical.

The event at Harvard was attended by Ellen Goodman, a columnist based in Boston. Her interest in the political and technological complexities of stable deterrence has not hitherto been conspicuous in her writings. Here is the tone of her report from Harvard:

"It surely wasn't comforting to hear...in clinical detail the most immediate results of a single 20 megaton bomb detonated over Boston: two million dead, half a million wounded survivors with barely a prayer of medical help....Nor was it reassuring to hear...that the 50,000 nuclear warheads in the world today have 1,000 times more power to destroy life as all the weapons fired in this century....Ronald Reagan, the same man who managed to assuage the worst fears of the 'peace vote' during the crucial electoral debate, has nearly fulfilled them during his tenure....(The audience consisted of) students and many older citizens who have grown tired of just watching as the leaders of superpowers behave like teen-agers playing chicken on the highway to catastrophe."

Note the archness ("It surely wasn't comforting...Nor was it reassuring...."), the aggressive absurdity (has Reagan nearly fulfilled fears of nuclear war?), the implied moral symmetry (all leaders of superpowers are alike) and the brassy condescension (they are all like lunatic teen-agers). Surely the debate can continue without such suggestions of a monopoly of moral sensibility, or suggestions that other people are blase about the possibility of incineration.

If Goodman has harbored thoughts about the strategic potential of Backfire bombers, or how to discourage or counter Soviet SS-20 deployments, or any of the other vexing matters that some people have been thinking and differing about for years, she has kept them to herself. That is fine: Not everyone is required to study such matters. But those who have not done so should understand they're coming late to a complicated debate, and those who have done so may find tiresome the tone of Goodman's report that nuclear war is a serious business.

Paul Warnke said at Harvard: "When the president makes a comment about the possibility of nuclear war being restricted to Europe, people begin to wonder: Is that really good for kids?"

Serious people who agree or disagree with the president can agree that the task of getting serious public debate about nuclear problems is not served by such lumbering drollness. Warnke's contributions to the present danger include "explaining" that Soviet armament programs have been imitative of, and reactive to, ours, and negotiating SALT II agreements so imbalanced against the United States and so permissive toward the Soviet Union that a Democratic president could not get them accepted by a Democratic-controlled Senate. No one expects clamlike reticence from Warnke, but given his record of refuted theories and discredited policies, perhaps he should go easy on condescension toward his opponents. However, an individual must judge the compatibility of his rhetorical style with the requirements for intellectual respectability.

Speaking of respectability, the organizers of Harvard's occasion revealed themselves with an act that was a triumph of sincerity over discretion. They invited (among others) a representative of the Soviet Embassy, and Richard Pipes, a tenured professor at Harvard, a specialist in Russian studies, currently serving in the White House. Then they disinvited Pipes, explaining that his participation "was not in the best interest of the convocation's spirit." They were prudent and candid: prudent not to expose their rhetoric to Pipes' withering analysis, candid about their spirit.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Alexander Haig said that NATO was prepared to fire a nuclear warning shot over water so as not to harm European soil. A very tricky maneuver, a nuclear warning shot — you only aim for the feet.

●

Caspar Weinberger said there would be no warning shot. The White House said both men were technically correct. The warning shot would be over water — but the water would be the Rhine River.

●

Warning shots. These guys discuss thermonuclear warfare in a lingo straight out of Grade B Western movies. Watch for "The Holocaust at O.K. Corral."

MISD's policy called unfair

To The Editor:

Recently, at the UIL marching contest held in Odessa, six high school bands received 1st division ratings. Of these six bands, two bands were chosen to represent Region 6-A in the state contest to be held in Austin. Though six bands marched, only four were under consideration for advancement to the state level.

In order for a band to be eligible for consideration, a written consent form must be sent to the judges from the school boards relaying their permission for the band to attend the contest in Austin. Since it is against MISD policy for Midland bands to attend state-level contests, the Midland High band and the Lee High band had no opportunity to be selected.

Had a Midland football team advanced beyond district playoffs, the school board would have been more than happy to send the team to state competition. Is not band a physical sport? Does not band provide a way for members to positively and constructively represent their school? How does band differ from football in these respects?

The bands and the football teams should be given equal privileges and this discriminatory policy of MISD should be abolished.

Females ignored

To The Editor:

John Foster, KMID-TV, I wish to lodge a strong protest expressing my disappointment on the content of 10 p.m. news on Nov. 12. The segment that I am referring to is the one about the space program, and did any of the children interviewed want to grow up to be an astronaut.

The interviewer did not ask a single little girl if she wanted to grow up and to become an astronaut, the only children asked were little boys. I feel that this is another example of the stereotyping that still exists today and I am deeply disappointed that KMID-TV encourages that viewpoint.

There are many, many women who have contributed to the success of the space program and I feel that this newscast has, in some way, denigrated their contribution to that success. I hope that your newscasters will bear in mind that not everyone is born male, a majority of them were fortunate to be born female.

Apology offered

To The Editor:

Publicity and advertising for Midland College's first basketball game of the season on Nov. 12 stated that KKKK Radio would be broadcasting a play-by-play of the game.

We apologize to those Chaparral basketball fans who tried to listen to the broadcast, but found the game was not on the air.

The management of KKKK Radio contacted Southwestern Bell Telephone Company approximately three weeks before the game to arrange for a phone line from the Al G. Langford Chaparral Center to the station. Shortly before the game, the station management found out that the line had not been installed, making it impossible to do the first game broadcast.

In light of this situation, KKKK has arranged to install a shortwave system to handle future game broadcasts.

It's tree time

To The Editor:

This is the time of year when the Optimist Club of Midland raises all of its money to operate on next year. We raise money by selling Christmas trees and we'll be doing it again this year, next to Citizens Savings & Loan on the Andrews Highway.

We appreciate those who have supported our efforts in the past and we invite everyone to our tree lot that opens the weekend after Thanksgiving. All of the money raised from the tree sales goes back into the community and back to our young people in Midland.

Be a friend of youth, support the Optimist Club Christmas tree lot.

Airline to install phones on planes

DALLAS (AP) — Businessmen with messages too important to wait can pick up the phone and make those calls while still in the air when American Airlines installs phones in its aircraft next summer, airline officials said.

American signed an agreement Tuesday with Airfone Inc., of Chicago, for the installation of air-to-ground telephones, said Thomas G. Plaskett, the airline's senior vice president.

"We expect the new in-flight telephone service to be especially popular with frequent business travelers," he said.

Plaskett said passengers will pay $7.50 for a call up to three minutes and $1.25 for each additional minute. Directory assistance calls will not be charged, he said.

Installation of the telephones in American's 34 DC-10s and eight Boeing 747 jets should be complete by the summer of 1982, Plaskett said. Telephones in the airline's Boeing 767s should be hooked up by the fall of next year.

"It has taken many years for the technology to be perfected to our complete satisfaction," Plaskett said. "We are confident that Airfone will provide our passengers with reliable and economical air-to-ground telephone service that functions as simply as a home telephone."

Plaskett said calls cannot be made from the ground to the plane.

Voters less willing to part with money

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — The days of big money bond issues for water, sewer, highway and park projects may be over.

Final tabulations from across the United States show that voters this November were not as willing to invest billions of dollars on improving or building new facilities as they often were in the past.

Only projects voters found absolutely essential for their well-being were approved on election day.

It would appear that inflation, recession and the prospect of increased state and local taxes in the wake of a federal tax cut have taken their toll of voter enthusiasm for projects designed to improve community facilities.

New Jersey was the only state in which three spending proposals got approved, including a $350 million plan to build water storage areas in regions which experience water shortages virtually every summer.

Voters in the heavily-polluted industrial state also went along with a $100 million proposal

Allen said cleared of wrongdoing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department attorneys have concluded that Richard V. Allen was innocent of wrongdoing in receiving $1,000 from Japanese journalists who interviewed Nancy Reagan, and see no need to appoint a special prosecutor, government sources said today.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said attorneys in the Justice Department's public integrity section are expected to make a formal recommendation soon to Attorney General William French Smith in the case involving Allen, the White House national security adviser.

Although the lawyers have made no recommendation yet, the sources said, the investigation so far has shown "there is no basis for finding wrongdoing" by Allen and that naming a special prosecutor in the case was unwarranted.

THE WHITE HOUSE, in another reversal of its statements, acknowledged that the FBI told President Reagan's top aide that an initial investigation appeared to absolve Allen of any impropriety.

D. Lowell Jensen, an assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, said Wednesday night that the case remains under review. He refused to comment on a report by The Washington Post that department lawyers had recommended the Allen case be closed.

The newspaper said no final decision on the recommendation to close the case will be made until the attorney general returns from an out-of-town trip next week.

Nevertheless, one source was quoted as saying of Allen: "He may have been negligent for not making sure the money was turned in, but that's not a crime."

Reagan seemed to say the same thing Wednesday when he told reporters that the Allen matter had been "investigated" and "everything was fine."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan was relying on an "initial oral FBI report."

In a written statement, Speakes said he understood that the report given to presidential counselor Edwin Meese III indicated that all the witnesses involved had been interviewed and that "everything checked out."

"The FBI felt they could indicate to Ed Meese that no administrative action was necessary," Speakes said.

Meese "presumably briefed the president" on the conversation, Speakes added later, saying that was what Reagan was talking about Wednesday.

He said the report was made before the matter became public Friday and the Justice Department announced its investigation was continuing.

THE POST ALSO reported today that some presidential advisers are urging that Allen be dismissed because, in their opinion, he showed bad judgment in accepting the gift.

Allen has said the $1,000 was intended as a gift for Mrs. Reagan from Japanese journalists who interviewed her Jan. 21. Allen said he accepted the money to avoid embarrassing the journalists, then put the cash in a safe and forgot about it for eight months.

White House statements on the money have been replete with contradictions.

Chief White House spokesmen David R. Gergen and Speakes told reporters last Friday that the FBI had looked into the matter and cleared Allen of any wrongdoing.

But later the same day, the Justice Department said the investigation was continuing. Gergen then corrected his earlier statement, confirming that the case was still under review and saying White House counsel Fred Fielding had mistakenly told him that the case was closed although he had never talked with FBI or Justice officials.

Asked Wednesday if the Meese conversation had been the only White House contact with the FBI or Justice Department, Speakes replied: "It's my understanding that was the only contact."

The latest White House statement came as new discrepancies arose in the story of how Allen came to receive the $1,000 in cash from the magazine which interviewed Mrs. Reagan one day after her husband became president.

A Tokyo newspaper reported — and the White House confirmed — that Mrs. Reagan had received a lacquered stationery box from the journalists as a thank-you gift.

ACCORDING TO usual practice, the gift has been stored at the National Archives, Speakes said, adding that a private gallery specializing in Asian art had estimated its value at $75. But Fuyuko Kamisaka, one of the reporters who interviewed Mrs. Reagan, told The New York Times that it was worth 60,000 yen or $270.

Speakes could not explain why, if the box was presented to Mrs. Reagan, that there would also be an envelope containing $1,000 in cash for her.

Allen, in his last statement on the matter, said he did not arrange the interview but "did receive the initial request ... which I passed to others for evaluation, handling and decision."

The request nonetheless did not go through normal channels. The first lady's press office, which usually handles press requests for interviews with Mrs. Reagan, did not arrange the magazine session.

Martin's trial to be moved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Mike Martin's aggravated perjury trial will be moved away from Austin because the prosecution has decided not to fight the lawmaker's change of venue motion.

A pretrial hearing was set for today to hear several motions, including Martin's request to be tried elsewhere. State District Judge Mace Thurman "automatically" will grant the request because the prosecution will not object, according to Assistant District Attorney Bill Willms.

The trial was set for Dec. 7, but could be delayed because of the move.

Martin, R-Longview, was indicted for allegedly lying to Travis County grand jurors when he told them he did not stage his own July 31 shooting.

Defense lawyer Frank Maloney told Thurman that Martin could not get a fair trial in Travis or any of the surrounding counties because of extensive publicity. Willms, contending Martin could get a fair trial here, initially promised to fight the move.

However, on Wednesday he said he had changed his mind "out of an abundance of precaution."

"Our position is he (Martin) can still get a fair trial here in Travis County. We're also sure he can get a fair trial any place else in Texas. The thinking is why take any chances with it. We just want to try this case once," said Willms.

Court says Clements mistaken in commuting death sentence

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals says Gov. Bill Clements erred when he commuted a death sentence in the mistaken belief that the court was going to order a new trial in the case.

In fact, the court said Wednesday, Magdaleno Rodriguez's death sentence would have been affirmed if Clements had not commuted it to life imprisonment.

Clements has commuted 13 death sentences in an effort to prevent retrials. San Antonio prosecutors told Clements they might have trouble finding witnesses needed to retry Rodriguez, according to Johnny McCollum of the governor's clemency division.

So Clements used his power to change the sentence to life imprisonment, the only other punishment available in Texas capital cases.

The court ruled it could not order a new trial for Rodriguez because the error occurred during the punishment phase, and — because of the commutation — the defendant wound up with the lightest sentence possible.

A San Antonio jury sentenced Rodriguez to die for the Feb. 8, 1977, shooting death of Maria Guajardo during a robbery, and the Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed the decision.

THE U.S. SUPREME Court told the Texas court to reconsider the case in light of recent decisions on psychiatric testimony and qualification of jurors on the death penalty.

The Court of Criminal Appeals said Wednesday it's review showed no trial error that would require a change of the sentence or a new trial.

"A review of the record, made before we became aware of the governor's act, revealed that neither of the (recent Supreme Court decisions) would compel a result different from the affirmance on original submission," said the footnote to Judge Sam Houston Clinton Jr.'s opinion for the unanimous court.

"Thus, ... but for the intervention by the governor, (Rodriguez) would now be condemned to death," Clinton said. "In a real sense, then, the proclamation of commutation, however inadvertently, is truly a grant of clemency to Rodriguez."

Robert Huttash, the prosecuting attorney in the Court of Criminal Appeals, said San Antonio prosecutors inaccurately predicted the court would order a new trial.

"I don't imagine it was Clements' strategy. The district attorney must have thought it was going to be reversed and he would have to retry it," Huttash said. "I would say they made an educated guess and it turned out wrong."

Sex, power over lunch

By MERRY NYE
Hearst Feature Service

Do you think business deals are made in mahogany-paneled offices? That manuscripts are bought over the telephone? Or that love affairs begin at a candlelight dinner?

According to Louise Bernikow, they all happen at lunch.

Bernikow has observed executive lunching habits and has set down her findings in a book, "Let's Have Lunch: Games of Sex and Power" (Harmony Books, $7.95).

"Lunch is the most important part of the day and can have lasting effects to many office workers and bosses," Bernikow says. "And planning it, having it, and talking about the information you got at lunch can take a lot of time."

The types of lunchers are as varied as items on the menu. Some say "Let's have lunch" as often as others say "Good Morning." People who don't know how to end a conversation will say, "Let's have lunch" instead of "Goodbye."

There are lunch controllers who are in complete charge of the afternoon's proceedings. They choose the restaurant, lead the way to the table and decide what and when to order.

What's cooking

Low-calorie holiday dishes

It's possible to enjoy a delicious Thanksgiving dinner and keep to a low-calorie, low-carbohydrate diet, according to Yaffa Bat-Yam, director of Health Clinics International in Midland.

"Many have asked me to provide them with recipes that are low in calories and carbohydrates," she said. Some of these are printed below.

Mrs. Bat-Yam, a resident of Texas since 1962, moved to Midland earlier this year to take over directorship of the company. She says that she loves both the area and its people.

"My two sons claim I bake the tastiest chicken in the world and they eat my chicken soup by the gallons," she said. "It's magically medicinal!"

CHICKEN WITH PEACH GLAZEE

1 medium roasting chicken (skinned and cut into small sectins)
1 package onion and mushroom soup mix
1/2 cup water

Place chicken in large shallow pan. Sprinkle soup mix on the chicken and add water into pan. Cook in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes until golden brown. Baste every 15 minutes with pan drippings. When done, remove from ovenand brush peach glazee over entire chicken. Serve hot!

Serves 4. Entire recipe contains 885 calories and 4.7 grams of carbohydrates. Each serving contains 223 calories and 1.2 grams carbohydrates.

PEACH GLAZEE FOR FOWL

Makes approximately 1 cup.

1 cup sugarless peach jam
1 tablespoon dry sherry or Grand Marnier
1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
granulated artificialsweetner equal to 1/2 cup sugar

In a heavy saucepan, combine the jam, dry sherry or Grand Marnier, and lime juice. Heat over a low flame, stirring frequently, until all flavors are thoroughly combined and mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and add artificial sweetener. Allow to stand for 10 or 15 minutes before brushing on chicken to give the melted liquid a chance to thicken again.

SPONGE CAKE ROLL WITH ORANGE SATIN CREAM FILLING

30 grams (1/4 cup unsifted) soy flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
dash of salt
6 extra large eggs (at room temperature), separated
3/4 tsp. cream of tartar
1 1/2 tsps. butter extract
1 tsp. vanilla extract
5 tblsps. cold water
1/2 tsp. orange extract

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F.

Combine soy flour, baking powder, and salt, and set aside. Beat egg whites until foamy, add cream of tartar, and conbinue beating until stiff, but not dry. In a separate bowl, beat egg yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-yellow (about 5 minutes). Add extracts, water, and sweetener to egg yolks and mix until combined. Sift soy flour mixture into egg yolk mixture and beat until smooth. Gently fold egg yolk mixture into beaten egg whites.

Line a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x1 inch jelly-roll pan with waxed paper and spray with PAM. Spread mixture in the prepared pan, and bake for 25 minutes, or until cake tests done when a toothpick is inserted.

Cook cake in the pan for about 5 minutes, then turn it out on a larger sheet of waxed paper. Carefully remove baked on paper from cake bottom, and discard. Roll cake lengthwise being careful not to break it; use waxed paper as an aid. When cake is cool, unroll it, and fill with cream filling. Reroll the cake. Store overnight in the refrigerator in a plastic bag as this improves the texture.

12.1 grams of carbohydrate in entire recipe without filling; makes 16 slices. Each slice contains 0.8 grams of carbohydrates.

NOTE: This cake may also be cut into squares and eaten as a plain sponge cake without filling.

ORANGE SATIN CREAM FILLING

15 ounces ricotta cheese
1 3/4 tsps. orange extract
1 3/4 tsps. Grand Marnier
1/2 tsp. butter extract artificial sweetener equal to 3 tablespoons sugar
3 drops red food coloring
9 drops yellow food coloring

Beat ricotta cheese with electric mixer until smooth and creamy. Add extracts, Grand Marnier and sweetener and beat until well combined. Add coloring and beat until thoroughly mixed. Refrigerate until cake has finished baking and cooling. Spread filling on cake and reroll.

Entire recipe for filling contains 15.6 grams of carbohydrates and 636 calories When used as a filling for 16 slices of sponge cake roll, the filling will contain 1.0 grams of carbohydrates per slice and 40 caories per slice.

LEMON CAKE PUDDING

Makes 6 servings
5 extra-large eggs

Yaffa Bat-Yam

3 tblsps. fresh lemon juice
grated peel from one fresh lemon granulated artificial sweetener equal to 1 cup sugar

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Beat eggs at high speed with an electric mixer until thick and lemon colored. Add the sweetener and continue beating a few more minutes. Stir in, at lowest speed of the mixer, the lemon juice and lemon peel. Pour mixture into a 2-quart oven-proof souffle dish. Set his dish into a larger pan containing 1 inch of hot water. Bake the cake pudding 30 minutes. Refrigerate until serving time.

Entire recipe contains 6.1 grams of carbohydrates and 482 calories. Each serving contains 1.0 grams of carbohydrates and 80 caories.

DEAR ABBY

Available widow wants to be ready

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please help. I'm too embarrassed to ask my doctor. My husband died two years ago after 25 years of a good marriage. My children are all grown and flown from the nest, and I am dating again. I'm a young 46, still very vital and healthy, and I'd like to marry again one day and live out my years with the love and companionship of another good man. I had a wonderful sex life and I miss it.

After four children and 11 miscarriages (I am not putting you on), my vaginal canal is too loose (stretched) for my partner to enjoy marital relations. Can this be remedied? Please ask your medical consultant if anything can be done to tighten me up should I marry again. Sign me ... GRAND CANYON

DEAR GRAND: I called a gynecological surgeon who serves as my consultant.

He said: "The woman's question is one I have answered often. Tell her that the vagina can be tightened by a surgical procedure, and there are also a series of exercises to keep it that way. She should consult her gynecologist."

DEAR ABBY: As a reformed smoker, I feel qualified to comment on a reader's recent complaint that people objected to his smoking in a public place. You replied negatively, pointing out that people had a right to breathe clean air.

Isn't it odd that these same people don't object if the gentleman's eardrums are being shattered by rock music blared at him, or worse, if his nervous system is being assailed by their own small children creating a ruckus in the same public place? It seems to me that he has as equal a right to keep his ears and nerves intact as they have to preserve their lungs.

If we're going to eliminate public nuisances, let's not be hypocritical and single out the smokers -- let's be fair and go after the other two as well. And if you're fair, Abby, you'll print this just to show the other side of the record. -- FAIR'S FAIR IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR FAIR: You are absolutely right. No one should be assaulted in a public place by rock music or ill-behaved, unsupervised children. My advice: Don't tolerate it. Go to the source and complain loudly!

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

Mixed bag is forecast for fashion

By KAY JARVIS
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — It can be said with certainty that fashion will go to any lengths to be noticed, and designers proved it at the first day of National Fashion Press Week showings, which are being held at the Plaza hotel.

Eleanor Lambert, who organizes the showings twice a year for the nation's fashion writers and who remembers firsthand the grand names like Norell and Balenciaga, explained the chaotic variety seen Monday in her own way:

"Don't try to see order or singularity — fashion reflects today's turmoil and indecision."

It also is apparently reflecting the confusion of designers in trying to fathom what U.S. women, now shopping more carefully than ever, will buy.

Bill Blass, one of the designers with highest name recognition, showed his collection in mini lengths — well above the knee — but then said they will probably be shipped to stores in longer hem lengths. He showed wide shoulders and kimono-sleeved tops over extremely spare skirts, some done with the Dorothy Lamour sarong silhouette. Suede and very thin, lightweight leather were shown for spring and summer.

For evening, he chooses matte jersey and bares the shoulders.

While veteran fashion writers gasped (they had expected a few minis in the show), Anne Klein's showing not only emphasized minimal skirts cut very close, but teamed them with very high spike ankle-strap shoes which seemed to throw the silhouette off balance.

Her collection also went heavily into subtle lightweight suedes, unstructured jackets and bulky silk sweaters tied at the waist with wide leather obi sashes giving an Oriental effect which, along with the loose kimono sleeves, seems to be a trend.

Also marking the fashion chaos were groups of little girl dresses, riding high above the knee or falling to mid-calf. One designer called these winsome, white lace-trimmed designs "front porch dresses," referring to the Gibson Girl era and old-fashioned courtships when a beau shared the front-porch swing with his sweetheart.

Also harkening to earlier days were more of the "prairie dresses," with flounced hems and high collars.

Charles Glueck ambiguously said women today count their own personal style as a factor in assessing the fashion headlines. He showed everything from a knicker suit with a fragile lace blouse to short skirts, longer skirts, pants and flowing dresses a la Scarlett O'Hara.

AT WIT'S END

Busted for video recording

By ERMA BOMBECK

What with my social life being somewhere to the right of Henry Thoreau, my husband and I have never succumbed to the machines that record a television program while you're out and can be played back at your leisure.

But I know a lot of people who have and who do.

Now it seems a suit has not only been brought against the manufacturers of home video recorders, but makes those who tape shows in their homes liable for criminal action.

Right away, my mind conjures up a picture of a family of four sitting around their living rooms, eating popcorn, playing with the dog and watching an illegal tape, when the door whips open, a couple of federal agents yell, "FREEZE!" and the father runs to the bathroom trying to flush Laverne and Shirley down the commode.

Keeping "little people" in line seems to be the American way. Big business and their tax shelters get by bilking the government out of billions of dollars while the IRS tracks down a woman who did not declare $87.65 profit on a garage sale.

The scare tactic assuring people they would break the law if they used a video recorder worked exactly as predicted. The public went out and bought every video recorder they could put their hands on before they were banned from the marketplace.

It's interesting what funny things will happen to this proposal on its way to the Supreme Court.

Maybe we'll be driving home one night and flashing red lights will pull us to the curb. We'll get out of the car and an officer will say, "Where have you been?"

"To mother's house watching television."

"Live or illegal video tape?"

"Live!"

The officer leers, "You look like you've been watching an old Gilligan's Island show to me."

"No, no, Skipper, you're wrong."

"Why did you call me Skipper?"

"It was a ship . . . I mean a slip."

"Maybe you'd better come downtown and we'll get a statement."

Hours later they will have made their Video Bust. I can somehow see my mother saying as she leaves, "Mind if I record the Osmonds while I'm gone?"

Spinach Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cornmeal Pastry, recipe follows
16 ounces ricotta cheese
3 large eggs
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
6 ounces mozzarella cheese, shredded
Two 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach (thawed, drained and squeezed dry)
Salt and pepper to taste

Prepare cornmeal pastry. Beat 2 of the eggs and the ricotta until blended. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Roll out a little more than half the Cornmeal Pastry and fit into a 9-inch pie plate. Roll out remaining pastry for a top crust. Add spinach mixture to pastry-lined plate; add top pastry and seal with fork tines. Prick top pastry in about 12 places. Brush with remaining egg (beaten slightly). Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 425-degree oven for 15 minutes; continue baking at 350 degrees until golden brown — 35 to 40 minutes more. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Cornmeal Pastry: Stir together 2 cups all-purpose flour, ½ cup white cornmeal, ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese and ½ teaspoon salt; cut in ¾ cup butter until pea-size; stir in 6 to 8 tablespoons cold water — just enough for dough to hold together. Chill.

Some interesting facts about veal revealed

By MERLE ELLIS

Veal, it seems, is more on people's minds these days than on people's menus. I have received a number of questions in the last few batches of mail asking about veal. Yet when I go through meat markets around the country, I see very little of it, and what I do find is very expensive. Perhaps that's why people want to talk about it; they can't afford to eat it. Or, they want to make sure that when they do invest in veal, they don't make any mistakes.

The most often asked question about veal is, understandably, "Why is it so expensive?"

It might seem logical, since veal is marketed very young and consumes no expensive grain in its short-lived diet, that it would be less expensive than its larger, older, grain-fed brother, beef. But, obviously, it is not. Veal can cost more than twice as much as a comparable cut of beef. The reason has far more to do with the cost of processing than with the cost of production.

The veal animal is less than half the size of a mature beef animal, yet when it goes through the packing plant for processing, it takes as much time, space and manpower as beef. It's slaughtered the same way, processed the same way. It takes up the same hook space on the overhead rail in the coolers. It requires just as many men and women on the processing line working at exactly the same wages, with the same fringe benefits and just as many coffee breaks to process veal as it does to process beef. The end result, however, is a carcass that weighs less than half that of beef. That is the major reason for its costing twice as much.

Q: "Isn't veal always tender by nature? Recently I've been disappointed by tough veal cutlets. How can I be assured of purchasing tender veal?"

A: Because of its youth, veal is naturally more tender from one end to the other than older, more mature, beef. There is, however, a great deal of difference in the natural tenderness of different muscles within any individual carcass. The difference in the natural degree of tenderness in the various muscles of a beef animal is largely attributable to use: the muscles that get used get tough; those that get little use stay more tender.

With modern veal production methods, no muscle of the veal animal gets much use. In veal, the toughness or tenderness of any cut is related to the amount of connective tissue contained therein. A cutlet from the Tenderloin that has not been trimmed of connective tissue may be no more tender than one cut from a solid muscle of the shoulder or leg that has had all of the connective tissue trimmed away. Connective tissue is like a thin tissue of membrane that surrounds and separates individual muscles and groups of muscles.

In dry-heat methods of cooking, such as you would very likely use for veal cutlets, this connective tissue toughens, making any cutlet that contains it a little hard to chew. That same connective tissue in a cut cooked by moist heat, i.e., braised or stewed, dissolves into a very desirable rich, thick, gelatinous substance that adds much to the consistency of any sauce.

So the real secret to satisfaction in buying veal for any dish is to match the cut — with or without connective tissue — to the cooking method. Cuts with little or no connective tissue — the tenderloin, top loin, top, bottom or eye of round, or shoulder clod — are best

Reader requests recipe for Polish Pierogi

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My grandmother used to fix pierogi for us. But we never thought of getting her recipe and no one I know here in the South has even heard of them. I believe pierogi were originally a Polish dish, although my grandmother was Ukrainian. We grandchildren really miss this treat and wonder whether you can help us out with a recipe. — KENTUCKY COOK.

DEAR KENTUCKY COOK: There's a great recipe for pierogi in "Christmas Helps," a soft-cover publication put out by Family Circle and available now in supermarkets through Dec. 26. The recipe was contributed by Jen Borkoski, a restaurateur and caterer in Southampton, N.Y. Jen uses her mother's Polish recipe so her pierogi (cheese-filled dumplings) are authentic. I, for one, love them — just as I love such starchy goodies as homemade ravioli. One bit of advice: The dough is elastic and, like that for pizza, constantly springs back when you are rolling it out. It takes a lot of perseverance to roll this dough as thin as it should be — but the results are worth it. — C.B.

JEN BORKOSKI'S PIEROGI

3½ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup warm water
1 package (1 pound) farmer's cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives (optional)
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into a large bowl; make a well. Add 2 beaten eggs and water and stir to make a soft dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured surface and knead until quite elastic. Cover with bowl and allow to rest 10 minutes.

Break farmer's cheese into a medium bowl; blend in 2 beaten eggs, salt and chives, if used, to make a smooth mixture.

Roll out dough to a 1-16th inch thickness on a lightly floured surface; cut into 4-inch squares. Place a rounded tablespoonful of cheese mixture in center of squares; fold over to form a triangle; turn edges under to seal.

Bring a kettle of salted water to boiling; add pastries, part at a time; cook until pastries rise to the top; remove with slotted spoon to 10-cup shallow casserole. (This much can be done ahead of time. Cover and chill.)

One hour before serving, remove casserole from refrigerator and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Pour cream over pastries and dot with butter or margarine.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes or until pastries are golden.

Makes 12 servings.

Feast on these low-calorie cold cuts

By SHARON A. HILLIS
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Does the traffic get heavy around your house during the holidays? Most families experience increased traffic as relatives, friends and unexpected "drop-in" guests gather during these festive events

It may be easy to plan your big meal, but what about those in between times that call for buffets, snacks or something satisfying but quick to prepare?

Keep on hand ready-to-serve turkey products such as turkey salami or turkey ham.

These products have already been cooked and are ready to eat unless you choose to warm them. And they are usually lower in calories than their red meat counterparts.

You should find plenty of these products as well as fresh turkey at your market this month. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service reports supplies are unusually large.

You can buy boneless turkey roasts or rolls that have been fully cooked and are easily sliced to serve deli-style. Rolls may have binders added, but anything in excess of three percent must appear on the label.

Turkey ham is skinless and boneless meat from the "ham" or thigh of the turkey. The meat has been fully cooked and cured and may be smoked. It may contain approved curing agents, phosphates and flavoring agents—as well as common salt, sugars, spices, garlic, onions and water.

Turkey franks, bologna, salami, pastrami and similar cooked sausages are made much the same way as their beef and pork counterparts. Meat is ground with appropriate seasonings and spices, then shaped and may be cured or smoked. When fully cooked, they may have no more than 15 percent fat, compared to no more than 30 percent in meat products.

You can buy smoked turkey, fully cooked and ready-to-serve in boneless slices, breast halves, drums or other parts that will crown a buffet.

Keep an array of breads and sandwich rolls, cheeses and spreads on hand to trim your turkey, and let family and guests make their own sandwich creations. Or try one of the recipes below.

TURKEY HAM ROLL-UPS

5 cups chopped cabbage, cooked and drained
1/4 cup onion, chopped
3 tblsps. flour
2 tblsps. horseradish mustard
1 tblsp. parsley, chopped
1/4 cup bread crumbs
8 thin slies fully cooked turkey ham (about 1 lb.)
3 tblsps. butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup Swiss cheese, grated
1/2 cup Cheddar cheese

Combine cabbage and Cheddar cheese. Spoon 3 tablespoons of cabbage mixture on slices of turkey ham. Roll up slices and place in baking dish, seam side down. In medium pan, saute onion, 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine and blend in flour. Add horseradish mustard and milk. Add Swiss cheese and chopped parsley. Pour mixture over turkey ham rolls. In bowl, combine 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine and bread crumbs. Sprinkle over cheese sauce. Bake uncovered at 375 F. for 25-30 minutes. Serves four.

PASTRAMI SANDWICH

Spread:
4 oz. cream cheese
1 tblsp. yellow mustard
6 onion buns, split
6 olives, green or ripe, pitted
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup sweet relish
1 1/8 lb. turkey pastrami, sliced

To make spread, combine cream cheese, butter and mustard. Blend or whip until smooth. Add sweet relish; mix well. Cover cut surface of each half bun with spread, layer turkey between buns and secure olive on top with frilled pick.

CALIFORNIA COLD PLATTER

1/2 cup salad oil
1 tsp. salt
1 lb. boneless turkey breast, fully cooked
1/2 cup vinegar
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/4 tsp. black pepper
1 tsp. sugar

Marinate turkey breasts in oil, vinegar, salt, garlic powder, black pepper and sugar mixture. Let stand for several hours, then drain the meat. Arrange on platter with wedges of avocado and tomato, slices of boiled eggs, black olives and sour cream.

THE ART OF LIVING

'Thank you, Rosie'

By ARTHUR A. MILWARD
(Special from Reader's Digest)

It had been a long year - the last year of my son Adrian's brief life. The journey up by train to London's Waterloo Station had become almost routine. Then the 25-minute walk across Waterloo Bridge and on to the Hospital for Sick Children. The walk to the hospital was not without enjoyment, for I was eager to see my son again and buoyed up by the somehow indestructible hope that today, by some miracle, he would be recovering.

But the return to the railway station in the evening was devastating. Once again, no miracle.

After putting my little son to bed in the ward, hearing his prayers and holding him in my arms while he fell asleep, I usually had plenty of time to make my way to the railway station. I frequently paused on the bridge spanning the River Thames.

One evening I gazed into the black, oily water and was not immediately aware that a woman had joined me. I looked up and saw her; she was standing quite close. I had seen her before in the shadows on the opposite side of the street and had recognized, without giving the matter much thought, that she was almost certainly of the sisterhood referred to as "ladies of the evening."

"Good evening," I said, a little discomfited by her presence and unsure of her intentions.

She looked away from me and gazed into the Thames. "You been to the Children's," she said. It was a statement rather than a question.

"Yes. My little son is a patient there."

"Bad, ain't he?" she said.

"Yes, I'm afraid he is," I replied. She reached out and touched my arm. I could see tears in her eyes. "I'm sorry, Guv," she said softly. Then she withdrew her hand quickly and walked away. I thought about the encounter all the way home and felt strangely heartened by it.

For the next few months, I regularly made my way to and from the Children's Hospital. Often the woman would join me on the bridge. She never asked my name but invited me to call her Rosie. "My son's name is Adrian, Rosie," I told her. "He's quite blond with gray eyes, and he's almost 4 years old." She nodded and said nothing.

I came to rely on these encounters and, one evening, gave her a small picture of Adrian, a duplicate of one I carried in my billfold. I wrote on the back of it: "Thank you, Rosie." She looked at it for a long moment before wrapping it in her handkerchief and putting it carefully in her purse.

Then, finally, the telephone call came from Children's Hospital: "I think you had better come at once."

Adrian looked so small lying there, his gray eyes fixed earnestly on mine. I leaned over and wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

"Daddy, why are you crying? Daddy, I'm frightened. Oh, Daddy, is it going to be all right?"

"Yes, darling, Daddy's here. It's going to be all right." The tiny hand clasped in mine relaxed its grip. When it was over, the two compassionate nurses put their arms around my shoulders and led me away.

The following evening, after taking care of necessary business at the hospital, I stopped on the bridge and leaned over the railings. When I turned, Rosie was standing beside me. "'Ere," she said, "they're for 'im. You'll put 'em on 'is grave for me, won't you?" Thrusting a tiny bouquet of lilies of the valley into my hand, she made a sort of choking sound, turned and ran. I timed my return from my final visits to the hospital vicinity so that I would pass by Waterloo Bridge rather late in the evening. I wanted to tell Rosie that I had delivered her flowers, but I saw nothing of her. Summoning courage, I made my way to the nearest police station. With the unfailing courtesy of the British policeman, an officer listened to my story of looking for Rosie. And he knew who she was.

"I'm sorry, sir," he told me quietly. "The person in question is dead. We picked her up in the street several nights ago. Apparently a heart attack."

"Did she have any relatives, any family?" I asked.

"No, sir," the policeman said. "We went through her purse but there was no identification of any kind."

"Do you still have her purse?" I asked. I remembered my son's picture. The officer left the room momentarily and returned carrying a brown bag. He opened it and handed me two photographs. One was a replica of the picture of Adrian I kept in my billfold. The other showed a small, dark-haired girl.

I had one more place to go. The next day, I made my way to Children's Hospital; I recalled Rosie mentioning that she had a friend, "Ben," a porter there. A middle-aged man with a kindly face came after my inquiry.

"Yes, indeed," he assured me. "I knew Rosie. She used to stop by regularly and inquire about your boy."

"You know," he added, "she wasn't always in the line of business she was in when you met her. She used to be a waitress. It was after she lost her girl she went on the street. The little girl died in here - 6 years old. It was about a year ago. That's when I first met Rosie."

"Ben, can you tell me where Rosie is buried?"

"No, Guv, I can't," Ben said. "But I can tell you where little Gerda lies. Rosie used to go there every Sunday afternoon and cut the grass and take flowers." Later, at the child's gravesite, I tried to pull the longest grass with my hands. I filled the empty blue vase with water and put it back on the grave. Unwrapping the tissue paper from the small bouquet I carried, I placed the flowers, lilies of the valley, in the vase, rose from my knees and walked rapidly away.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Fabulous fudge recipe

DEAR HELOISE:

One of my very favorite holiday recipes, which appeared in your column a few years ago, was lost in the shuffle when we moved!

I hope you can please help me. It was an excellent fudge recipe made with a can of evaported milk and cooked for about five minutes.

I know this is not much to go on, but I hope you can be a Sherlock Holmes and find this terrific way of making a perfect fudge. Many thanks and I hope your holidays are happy ones.— Dory Gunther

+ + +

Thank you, 'luv.... I really didn't have to play Sherlock Holmes to find the recipe as it was right at my fingertips in my files. (You may not realize how in luck you were, as this isn't always the case!) Here's what to do:

In a heavy, large saucepan, put four and one-half cups sugar and one large can evaporated milk. Bring slowly to a rolling boil. Let it boil for no longer than eight minutes.

Remove from the heat and add eight ounces of miniature marshmallows, three six-ounce packages of chocolate chips (a total of 18 oz) and one-half cup butter or margarine. Stir until melted.

Add two cups broken nut meats and one teaspoon vanilla. Spread on a large, ungreased pan and when cool, cut into squares.

That's it! As you probably have already surmised, this makes quite a bit of fudge, so I hope you have a large gang to feed, or, are not on a diet! Happy holiday baking! — Hugs, Heloise

DIFFERENT GIFT

Dear Heloise: Are you puzzled as to what to give an elderly person for Christmas? One who lives alone in a small apartment and who finds it difficult to shop, especially during snow-time?

My thoughful niece asked her butcher to wrap forty pieces of meat, individually. These she keeps in her larger freezer and brings a few of them to me as needed.

What a blessing! — Martha Norman

P.J. REPAIR

Dear Heloise: When my children's feet began to wear through the bottoms of footed pajamas, I came up with a solution which may help other "penny pinching" moms.

I repaired the soles with a flannel-backed tablecloth (plastic) that was ready to be discarded. Some of the tablecloths may not be textured, therefore less slip-proof, so it's a good idea to leave the original sole and stitch the replacement under it.

Trim and stitch around the hole so it looks like a patch on the outside. My girls were so happy that they had their favorite p.j.'s back. — Mom

SEWING TIP

Dear Heloise: I'm always looking for sales on odd curtain panels made out of soft, sheer material. Then, I make a darling little blouse or dress for someone's tiny daughter. There's alway plenty of fabric in the panels for this.

Lace or other trimmings make them look more expensive and the little girls look like dressed-up dolls. — Marie Scarscella

BEAUTIFUL BACON

Dear Heloise: Instead of frying bacon, bake it in your oven.

Put it on a rack or a cookie sheet which has sides, and bake it for approximately fifteen to twenty minutes or until golden brown.

Viola! Crisp, flat bacon without all the splattering or turning.

Using two cookie sheets, you can bake the entire package at once then store it in the refrigerator or freezer. Reheat strips as needed. — Judy

Fried pies a southern specialty

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

For a long time cooks in the South have excelled in making fried pies — delicious fruit-filled pastries. Many recipes for the pies are in cookbooks devoted to soul food. In looking over half a dozen of these cookbooks I discovered that the covering for the fried pies could be made two ways — with pastry or biscuit dough.

To prepare Fried Apple Pies the easy way we used half a package of pie crust mix and rolled it extremely thin; then we made the filling from that delicately flavored apple, the Golden Delicious. With the leftover pastry we fashioned a dozen cheese straws. The fried apple pies were an irresistible dessert; the cheese straws a lovely lagniappe.

FRIED APPLE PIES

1 cup peeled, diced (about ½ inch) Golden Delicious apples
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons orange juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch blended with 1 tablespoon orange juice
½ of an 11-ounce package pie crust mix
Fat for deep frying
Confectioners' sugar

In a 1½-quart covered saucepan gently cook the apples, orange rind, sugar and orange juice until apples are tender — about 10 minutes. Stir in the cornstarch mixture; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear — a minute or so. Cool.

Make up pastry according to package directions. On a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the pastry to a 16- by 14-inch rectangle. With a 5-inch round cutter (we used the top of a stainless steel bowl), cut out 6 rounds. (See Note for using remaining pastry.) Place a generous tablespoon of the apple filling on each round; moisten edges with water, fold in half and seal edges well with fork tines. Prick tops in several places with the fork tines. Deep-fry in fat heated to 375 degrees until golden — about 3 minutes. Drain on brown paper. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar; serve hot. Makes 6.

Note: If you wish to use the remaining pastry as we did to make cheese straws, work into the pastry 2 tablespoons of grated cheddar cheese and roll out into a 6-inch square. With a pastry wheel, cut in ½-inch wide strips. Place slightly apart on a small, ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until golden brown — 8 minutes. Makes 12.

1-3rd cup olive oil
¼ cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 clove garlic, crushed

Cook artichokes according to package directions and drain. In a shallow container whisk together the oil, vinegar and mustard until blended; stir in the garlic and artichokes. Cover tightly and chill overnight. Bring to room temperature; drain. Serve artichokes with picks.

By MINNIE BERNARDINO
Los Angeles Times

Q: I had trouble with a chocolate frosting recipe that you published several months ago. It was a simple mixture of a can of condensed milk mixed with 1-3 cup of cocoa, 2 tablespoons butter and a teaspon of vanilla. The ingredients are stirred and cooked over low heat until it is thickened or of spreading consistency.

The problerm was that the frosting never gor smooth. By the time it got thickened it was quite lumpy. Since the flavor was excellent, I spread it on the cake anyhow and my family loved it. I would like to do this frosting again but please tell me how I can obtain a smoother texture or if not, remedy the lumpy situation.

A: First of all, you should try to make as smooth a mixture as possible with the condensed milk and cocoa before cooking. Slowly stir the cocoa into the condensed milk or vice versa until the cocoa is dissolved. Make certain that the heat is turned very low and, if possible, use a double boiler. Be patient at the start, do not attempt to raise the heat when the mixture seems too thin; all of a sudden it will reach a tickening point.

The butter and vanilla may be added at the beginning or better yet after the mixture has thickened slightly. During cooking, the mixture should be beaten continuously to prevent any chance of lumping. Use a wooden spoon or wire whisk to do this.

If you still end up with a coarse and lumpy chocolate frosting, the best solution is to dump the whole mixture into a food processor and process until smooth. It works.

Q: When we were in Europe last year we were served a most delicious sausage meat roll that was wrapped in caul fat. I got the recipe from our host; now I wish to make it for the holidays but have searched all over for the caul fat and couldn't find it. Please help me find this product, or a substitute for it.

A: Pig's caul is the lacelike white membrane found around the animal's belly. It is commonly used in European and some Asian countries as a binding for meat sausage or other types of meat or seafood roll.

According to a sales representative from Farmer John's meat packing company, caul can easily be made available to you by simply requesting it from your butcher or supermarket manager who in turn will order it from them. You should be able to get it in a day or two. Caul costs 40 to 50 cents per pound; one pound goes a long way.

The only substitute I can suggest for the caul is to use thin strips of bacon which you can wrap around the meat, covering the entire surface. Then secure the wrapping with a piece of string or over wrap with foil or cheesecloth.

Q: Often cookbooks advise against adding salt during the cooking of some vegetables s7ch as corn, peas and lima beans and other foods such as eggs and meats as the salt toughens the food before it is done. I never really notice any difference whether I salt the food before or after cooking. Can you tell me if there is truth in this theory?

A: It has been theorized in the past that salt draws the juices from meats and other foods and toughens them before they are cooked. Years ago, table salt contained traces of other minerals, such as calcium, which have these d3hydrating and toughening effects. With modern salt processing techniques, many of these elements are removed and the toughening effect of table salt is no longer as pronounced as it once was.

DEAR SOS: Can you tell me how the restaurants make the gravy they serve on turkey and chicken sandwiches? — MRS. D.R.J.

DEAR MRS. D.R.J.: Like this.

TURKEY GRAVY

Drippings from roast turkey
½ cup flour
Giblet broth with water
Salt, pepper
½ teasp. MSG, optional
Chopped cooked giblets, optional

Skim excess fat from pan drippings so only about 1-2 cup plus brown drippings remain. Pour fat and brown bits into skillet. Heat until almost sizzling, then stir in flour. Cook and stir until flour turns dark tan color and lumps are dissolved. Combine broth and enough water to make 4 cups. Stir into flour and dripping mixture. Cook and stir until smooth and thickened. Season to taste with salte and pepper. Add MSG. Boil a minute or two, then stir in giblets. Heat to boiling. Use as gravy over chicken or turkey or mashed potatoes. Makes about 4 cups.

DEAR SOS: We had the house salad dressing at the Mad Greek in Honolulu. It was superb. Can we get the recipe? —MRS. W.K.

DEAR MRS. W.K.: We can.

MAD GREEK SALAD AND DRESSING

4 heads Boston lettuce
3 cucumbers, sliced
5 tomatoes, cut into wedges
1 onion, thinly sliced
½ pound Greek olives
½ pound feta cheese, crumbled
2 teasp. garlic powder
2 teasp. onion powder
1 tblsp. black pepper
1½ tblsp. oregano leaves
1 tblsp. salt
3 cloves garlic, minced
3 tblsp. vinegar
3 tblsp. lemon juice
1 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 teasp. Maggi seasoning
2 cups olive oil

Tear lettuce into large bowl. Toss with cucumbers, tomatos, onion and olives. Chill while preparing dressing. For dressing combine feta cheese, garlic powder, onion powder, pepper, oregano, salt and garlic. Stir in vinegar, lemon juice, Worcestershire, Maggi seasoning and olive oil. Toss salad with desired amount of dressing just before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

DEAR SOS: I lost my recipe for a fruitcake that made a hit with my family last year. It contained a variety of nuts, candied fruits and condensed milk. Can you come to my rescue in time for Christmas? — MILDRED

DEAR MILDRED: It's never too soon for this wonderful fruitcake.

EVIE'S FRUIT CAKE (Mollie and Dollie's)

4½ cups chopped pecans
3½ cups chopped walnuts
2 pounds pitted dates, chopped
1 pound candied cherries, cut up
1 pound candied pineapple, cut up
2 cans sweetened condensed milk
2 (4-ounce) cans shredded coconut

Combine pecans, walnuts, dates, cherries (reserve a few for decoration), pineapple, condensed milk and coconut. Mix with hands. Turn into gre$sed and floured large fluted tube pan or angel food pan. Bake at 225 degrees about 1 1-2 hours. (Cake is done when no milk oozes out when pressed with finger.) Decorate with reserved cherries, if desired. Let cool. Turn out on foil and wrap snugly. Store in refrigerator or freezer about 1 month before using. Makes 1 (8-pound) cake.

Note: The cake should be sliced thinly to serve.

PEANUT BUTTER CAKE

Here's a recipe for peanut butter fans everywhere. This high protein item blends well with many ingredients for desserts. In Peanut Butter Cake, it adds to the moisture and flavor. Add Crunchy Topping of flaked coconut and chopped peanuts to really complete this attractive dessert.

¾ cup peanut butter
½ cup vegetable shortening
1½ tsp. vanilla extract
2¼ cups firmly packed light brown sugar
3 eggs
3 cups all-purpose flour
3 tblsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1¼ cups milk

Cream peanut butter, shortening and vanilla. Beat in sugar. Add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Alternately add dry ingredients and milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Bake in three greased and floured 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a preheated 350 degree F. oven for 30-35 minutes or until cake shrinks from sides of pan. Cool layers on a rack and then frost with Crunchy Topping Frosting. Makes one 9-inch cake.

CRUNCHY TOPPING FROSTING

6 tblsp. butter or margarine
2 egg yolks
⅓ cup light cream
2 tsp. vanilla extract
1 pound sifted confectioner's sugar
½ cup finely chopped peanuts

Stir coconut in a skillet over low heat until golden brown. Cool. Mash butter until soft and fluffy. Beat in egg yolks, cream and vanilla. Gradually beat in enough confectioner's sugar to make the frosting the right spreading consistency. Mix coconut and peanuts. Spread some of the frosting between cake layers, sprinkling some of the peanut-coconut mixture over frosting. Frost side and top of cake and sprinkle with remaining peanut-coconut mixture. Makes enough for the tops and sides of three 9-inch layers.

CHEESE CAKE

2½ cups graham cracker crumbs
3 tblsp. sugar
6 tblsp. butter or margarine, softened
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
3 8-oz. packages cream cheese, softened
1 tsp. vanilla
½ pint dairy sour cream
2 tblsp. sugar
⅛ tsp. vanilla
nutmeg

Combine cracker crumbs, sugar, butter, blend well. Assemble spring form pan, using flat bottom. Pour crumbs mixture into pan, press crumbs onto bottom and up sides to within one inch from top.

Bake 15 minutes at 400 degrees. Sprinkle top with nutmeg, cool and chill.

By MRS. DIXIE SMITH

FRESH ORANGE LAYER CAKE

2 cups flour
1½ cups sugar
2 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. baking soda
Juice of 1 orange
Milk
½ cup shortening
Rind of 1 orange, grated
2 eggs

Grease and flour 2 9-inch layer pans or 1 13x9-inch oblong pan. In mixing bowl mix together flour, sugar, baking powder and baking soda. Put orange juice in measuring cup; add milk to total 1 cup. Add with shortening and orange rind to flour mixture. Beat for 2 minutes (on medium speed with electric beater). Add eggs; beat for 2 minutes longer. Turn into pans. Bake 25-30 minutes. (May need to bake slightly longer if using 13x9-inch pan). Cool and frost.

ORANGE FROSTING:

1 box confectioner's sugar
2 tblsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
Dash of salt
Enough orange juice to mix to desired consitency

Blend all of above ingredients in bowl with electric mixer and spread on cooled cake.

By MRS. SUSAN KING

PUMPKIN CAKE

2¾ cups sugar
1 cup butter or margarine
1 tsp. baking soda
1½ tsp. salt
1 pound can pumpkin
½ tsp. baking powder
3 cups sifted flour
3 eggs
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. allspice
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup pecans

Mix together sugar, margarine, soda and salt. Add to the mixture pumpkin, baking powder, flour and eggs. Add the eggs one at a time. To this mixture add the nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice, vanilla and pecans.

Grease a Bundt pan, add mixture and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 10 minutes or until done. Makes one cake.

By EUDA LEE KEMPER

CRADLE CAKE

2 cups flour
1 tblsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
4 eggs, separated, at room temperature
2 cups sugar, divided
1 cup finely chopped pecans or walnuts
1 square (1 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, grated
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 tsp. vanilla flavoring
¾ cup milk
2 squares (1 oz. each) semisweet chocolate melted with 3 tblsp. water

For garnish, optional, 8 pecans or walnut halves

Grease 9- or 10-inch tube pan. Line bottom with waxed paper; set aside. Stir together flour, baking powder and salt, set aside. In medium glass bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar until stiff, glossy peaks form. Fold in finely chopped nuts and grated chocolate. Spread mixture on bottom and three-quarter of sides of pan as though lining it. In a large bowl cream butter and remaining 1 cup sugar until light and fluffy.

Beat in egg yolks and vanilla until well blended. Stir in flour mixture alternately with milk until well blended. Pour cake mixture into pan, making sure it is surrounded by meringue on all sides and lower than top of meringue. Bake in preheated oven at 325 degrees 65 to 75 minutes or until pick inserted in middle of cake comes out clean. Do not invert pan.

Cool on rack 25 minutes or until sides can be loosened easily with metal spatula. Turn on serving plate, peel off waxed paper, cool completely. Garnish with melted chocolate mixture and pecans dipped in chocolate mixture.

The success in making the cake depends on following the instructions to the letter. The meringue must be beaten into stiff peaks, the nuts chopped fine for smooth texture. Any leftover Cradle Cake should be wrapped in foil and refrigerated. Will keep more than a week.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CHEESE CAKE

2 (4 oz.) packages German sweet chocolate
2 (3 oz.) packages cream cheese
4 tblsp. butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tblsp. flour
1 tsp vanilla
4 eggs
1½ cups sugar
1 cup sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. almond extract
2 tsp. vanilla
1 cup chopped toasted almonds

Combine sweet chocolate and 6 tblsp. butter in 2-quart saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring occasionally, until melted. Remove from heat; cool to room temperature.

Cream together cream cheese, 4 tblsp. butter in bowl, using electric mixer at medium speed. Add ½ cup sugar, beat until light and fluffy. Blend in 2 eggs, 2 tblsp. flour and 1 tsp. vanilla.

Beat 4 eggs in another bowl until foamy, using mixer at high speed. Gradually add 1½ cups sugar, beating until thick and lemon colored.

Sift together 1 cup flour, baking powder and salt. Add to egg mixture, mixing well. Blend in cooled chocolate mixture, almond extract and vanilla. Stir in almonds. RESERVE 2 cups of chocolate batter.

Spread remaining chocolate batter in greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Spread cream cheese mixture over first layer. Spoon reserved 2 cups chocolate mixture over all. Use a metal spatula to swirl layers to give a marbled effect. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 minutes or until done. Cool in pan on rack.

ITALIAN CREAM CAKE

1 stick oleo
½ cup shortening
2 cups sugar
5 eggs, separated
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 cups flour
1 tsp. soda
1 cup angel flake coconut
1 cup buttermilk

Have oleo, shortening and eggs room temperature. Beat oleo, shortening and sugar until creamy. Add eggs (yolks) one at a time. Beat well after each. Add soda to buttermilk and add alternately with flour. Mix salt with flour. Add coconut and vanilla extract. Beat egg whites until peaks form. Fold in cake mixture. Pour in 3 well-greased and floured cake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

ICING

1 pound box powdered sugar
1 stick oleo
1 8-oz. package cream cheese
1 cup chopped pecans
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Have oleo and cream cheese at room temperature. Cream together and add powdered sugar. Beat well. Add small amount of milk until desired consistency is reached. Add chopped pecans and vanilla extract. Spread evenly on Italian Cream Cake.

Pies

LEMON SOUR CREAM PIE
1 cup sugar
3 tblsp. cornstarch
Dash salt
1 cup milk
3 egg yolks
4 tblsp. butter
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup sour cream
9-inch baked pie shell
3 egg whites
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. vanilla
4 tblsp. sugar

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in 1 cup milk. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Stir a small amount of the hot mixture into the 3 slightly beaten egg yolks, return to hot mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, a few minutes. Add butter and lemon juice. Cover and let cool after thoroughly combining. Blend in the sour cream. Spoon into pie shell. Beat the egg whites with the cream of tartar and vanilla to soft peaks. Gradually add the 4 tblsp. sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Spread meringue over pie. Bake at 350 degrees approximately 12 minutes or until meringue is browned.
By MRS. PAM COVINGTON

GLAZED PEACH PIE
1 8-inch pie.
2½ cups fresh peach slices
1 tblsp. lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
Pastry for a 1 crust 8-inch pie.
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tblsp. butter or margarine
1/8 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. almond extract

Turn peach slices into a bowl. Drizzle lemon juice over them and mix lightly. Add ¼ cup sugar and toss gently. Set aside for 1 hour.

Meanwhile, line pie pan with pastry. Bake pastry shell; set aside for 1 hour.

When peaches have stood 1 hour, drain, reserving syrup in a 1 cup measuring cup for liquids. Add enough water to syrup to yield 1 cup liquid.

Blend the ½ cup sugar and cornstarch thoroughly in a saucepan. Add the reserved peach liquid gradually, blending well after each addition. Stirring constantly, bringing mixture rapidly to boiling; boil 3 minutes or until thick and clear. Remove from heat.

Blend in the butter, salt and extract. Add the peach slices and mix gently. Turn into the pastry shell; cool. If desired, serve with a whipped cream or dessert topping.

The peaches will stay crisp and be so fresh tasting.

FRESH APPLE PIE
2 cups grated apples
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. cinnamon
Dash of salt
2 eggs
1 stick oleo, melted
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat eggs sightly. Add oleo and vanilla. Mix together apples, sugar, cinnamon and salt. Mix into egg-oleo mixture. Pour into unbaked pie crust. Top with lattice crust. Bake about 30 minutes or until golden brown at 350 degrees.

POWDERED MILK BAKED CUSTARD
3 cups fluid milk
4 eggs
½ cup sugar
Dash of salt
1 tblsp. flour
1 teasp. vanilla
Nutmeg or cinnamon

Mix powdered milk according to directions on package. Heat milk until hot, but not boiling. Beat eggs in large bowl. Stir sugar, salt and flour into eggs. Slowly pour in hot milk, stirring constantly. Stir in vanilla. Pour into baking pan or an unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle with nutmeg or cinnamon. Bake at 300 for about 1 hour or until an inserted knife blade comes out clean.

SOUTHERN FUDGE PIE
2 squares unsweetened chocolate (or 7 tblsp. cocoa)
1 stick butter or olea
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup pecans, chopped
¼ cup sifted flour
1 teasp. vanilla

Melt chocolate and butter over boiling water. When cooled, add beaten eggs and sugar. Stir in flour, pecans and vanilla. Pour into a well-greased 8 or 9-inch pie pan and bake at 325 F. for 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold — top with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream. This is a very rich pie and should be served in small slices. Yield: 8 servings.

MOON PIE
Shell:
1 cup flour
1 stick oleo
1 cup pecans

Melt oleo, add to flour and pecans. Press into dish (approximately 9x9), pushing pecans into dough so they won't burn. Bake at 350 degrees until brown. Let cool.

First Layer:
8 oz. cream cheese
1½ cups powdered sugar
1½ cups non-dairy whipped topping

Second Layer:
1 small package instant vanilla pudding mix
1 small package instant chocolate pudding mix
3 cups milk

Mix together and layer on top of first layer.

Third Layer:

PEGGY'S PECAN PIE
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup white sugar
1 cup dark or light corn syrup
1 teasp. vanilla
3 tblsp. butter, melted
¼ teasp. salt
1 cup pecan meats

Combine eggs, sugar, syrup, vanilla, salt and butter. Stir in the pecans. Pour into an unbaked pie shell. Bake at 450 F. for 10 minutes.
Rela's 2-4-6 Pie Crust:
2 heaping tblsp. shortening
4 tblsp. cold water
6 heaping tblsp. flour

Blend until rolling texture. Refrigerate if tacky until well chilled.
By KAREN C. MATHEWS

CANDY PIE
1 unbaked prepared pie shell
1 egg, beaten separately
1 cup sugar
2 tblsp. flour
⅓ cup buttermilk
½ cup butter, added last

In an iron skillet, cook over low heat, the first 4 ingredients. Cook until this thickens, then add the butter and cook until turns a caramel color. Pour into the unbaked prepared pie shell and bake 25 to 30 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

Note: Granny Oliver called this her Chess Pie, but we as kids always called it Candy Pie.

Holden marriage plans revealed

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A longtime companion of William Holden said today that she and the late actor had planned to be married New Year's Eve in Africa while on a vacation to his beloved Mount Kenya Safari Club.

Patricia Morgan Stauffer, 48, said in a telephone interview that she and Holden were planning to leave Dec. 13 for Africa.

Holden was found dead in his apartment Monday. The Los Angeles county coroner said the actor died from a loss of blood after hit his head on a piece of furniture in a drunken fall.

"Bill and I have spent most of this year together," Mrs. Stauffer said. "We met on New Year's in 1964 and spent 10 years together, and then started seeing each other again about two years ago. We always enjoyed each other's company."

Mrs. Stauffer, of Newport Beach, said she and the 63-year-old actor had decided "that this was the time in life to have companionship."

She said she knew Holden's family and close friends well but that "Bill was very guarded about his personal life," including his one-time relationship with actress Stefanie Powers.

Holden had been married once, to actress Brenda Marshall in 1941, but that ended in divorce.

Holden's former publicist, Jay Bernstein, said Mrs. Stauffer told him of the marriage plans after the actor's death. "He was not looking to end his life. He had proposed marriage to someone he had known for 17 years."

Mrs. Stauffer, who was divorced 18 years ago, said she and Holden had traveled together often.

Mrs. Stauffer, who said she last spoke with Holden Nov. 8, and Bernstein insisted that the Academy Award-winning actor did not die a lonely and depressed man.

"That's not what Bill Holden left us. That fact that he had a battle with alcohol is not the story of his life," said Bernstein.

"I believed (her) because he had always been in love with her," said Bernstein, now a Los Angeles talent manager and producer.

Solidarity desires 'watchdog' status

By W. JOSEPH CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity retreated from its demand for a full partnership in the management of Poland's near-bankrupt economy and said instead that it wants to be an authoritative watchdog.

"We are not on the lookout for a coalition," said Marek Brunne, the national spokesman for the independent labor federation as four joint union-government teams prepared to begin discussion today of four of Solidarity's six major demands.

The Communist Party had rejected an equal partnership with the union, and the government instead offered it a place in a "Front of National Accord" that presumably would be dominated by the government. But at a meeting Tuesday the government agreed to open negotiations on Solidarity's proposal for a "Social-Economic Council" in which the union was expected to demand an equal voice.

The other three negotiating teams will take up the union's demands for resolution of local conflicts, increased TV and radio time for the union and emergency measures to alleviate food shortages and other winter hardships.

The Roman Catholic Church also was bidding to be included in the proposed joint leadership, and Solidarity was expected to be in favor of this. But a similar bid on behalf of the farmers from the Communist Party's allies in the United Peasant Party was viewed as a Communist attempt to dilute Solidarity's influence in whatever structure was finally agreed on.

Stanislaw Stanislawski, the head of the Peasant Party's agricultural division, was given observer status at the first government-Solidarity meeting Tuesday.

Slowo Powszechne, a Catholic newspaper, said that "basing the front of national accord on the consensus of three fundamental social forces (the party, church and union) means a departure from the theatricality of public life to realism. ... The interesting idea must not be nailed down in its cradle with ancient schemes."

Meanwhile, a few scattered local strikes continued, and PAP, the official news agency, said leaders of the Sejm, the Polish parliament, warned that "legal means" may be given the government if the social unrest is not checked.

"It's still an open question whether the top leadership in Solidarity can demonstrate that they can control the local organizations," said a government official.

Sometimes birds of a feather don't always flock together

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Just because birds look alike doesn't mean they chirp the same language, Colorado State University researcher Charles Baker says.

Geography affects bird language just as it does human language, and birds from one area will reject their counterparts from another area because of this difference, said Baker, an associate professor of zoology and entomology at CSU.

"It's like distinguishing between a Southern drawl and a Midwestern accent," he said.

This difference in bird talk, he added, is taken so seriously by some birds they apparently won't mate with a bird that sings the wrong song, or one that sings in a foreign dialect.

Baker said he has detected different dialects between Colorado white-crowned sparrows native to different areas.

He and two students experimented with young female sparrows from a mountainous area northwest of Fort Collins. These birds were raised in a laboratory and injected with a hormone that "made them very sexy."

These females showed no interest in recordings of courtship songs from birds in southern Colorado but immediately became interested when recordings were played from male birds of their native area.

"It's like a human saying, 'Man, that song really turns me on,'" Baker said.

Irishman calls for 'day of action'

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Defying a British threat to crack down on Protestant vigilantes, the Rev. Ian Paisley went ahead with plans for a big rally Monday to demand stronger action against the Irish Republican Army.

The fiery Protestant political and religious leader told reporters he has "50,000 Ulstermen at the ready" in his "Third Force" to protect Protestants from attacks by the guerrillas of the IRA, most of them Roman Catholics.

The upsurge of Protestant militancy is in response to the slaying by the IRA of eight Protestants in the past 10 days, including the Rev. Robert Bradford, a Belfast member of the British Parliament.

Paisley called on the province's one million Protestants to stop work for 12 hours Monday in a "day of action" demanding effective protection against the IRA and condemning the Anglo-Irish Council, the government of Britain and the Irish Republic plan.

His call to arms drew a lukewarm response from the Ulster Defense Association, the largest of the private Protestant armies and the only legal one.

Board to revise water plan

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Development Board Tuesday authorized its staff to undertake an effort to revise the Texas Water Plan, and to develop recommendations for the Legislature relating to long-range solutions to the state's water needs.

Board Chairman Louis A. Beecherl Jr. asked the staff of the Texas Department of Water Resources to outline the time frame and budget necessary to accomplish the water plan study and have the outline ready by the board's next regular meeting Dec. 15.

The board decided to amend the Texas Water Plan, originally adopted in 1968 after several lawmakers, water authority officials and others called on the TDWR to prepare a new long-range water plan for legislative consideration in 1983.

Beecherl said the board and TDWR will be will be aided and advised by the Governor's Task Force on Water Resources Use and Conservation.

"WHILE THE proposed constitutional amendment (Proposition 4) relating to water did not gain voter approval Nov. 3," Beerchl said, "it did generate extensive public dialogue and resulted in vastly increased awareness of our growing water problems."

Beercherl, a Dallas investor, said the goal is to finish the work in time to present results and recommendations to the 68th Legislature in January 1983, but TDWR staff members expressed doubt whether there is sufficient time or funding to carry out the project by that time.

TDWR Deputy Director Charles Nemir told the board that the plan, which was developed under a directive from former Gov. John Connally, has been updated but never officially amended. The plan still includes some projects which have been completed, revised or dropped, he said.

Nemir said the first step in any revision of the plan to to determine how much time and money will be involved and if funding is available.

TDWR presently is seeking an attorney general's opinion on what the agency can do with $40 million appropriated in the enabling legislation for Proposition 4 — with the agency having received the money despite the defeat of the amendment.

"THE TASK IS an extremely complex one," Beecherl said. "It involves a very large number of factors including recognition of existing water rights, along with the views and interests of the 1,050 existing water authorities and districts, 786 municipal water systems, approximately 2,500 water supply corporations, nearly 4,000 major industrial water users, tens of thousands of irrigation farmers, several federal and state agencies, public and private research and special interest organizations and, of course, the general public."

Beecherl added that several specific water-related concerns must be addressed during the review of the plan, including water supply; water quality protection; flood protection; water resources research; water conservation; better use of flood storage in existing and potential reservoirs; improved coordination between water districts; river authorities, federal agencies and conservation districts in construction and operation of projects; inter-basin transfers of water; modifications to Texas water laws that may be needed for more efficent management of water resources; the state's role in financing water projects; and environmental elements of water resources programs.

"CITIES AND TOWNS throughout Texas are struggling with urgent water-related problems which threaten to erupt into a statewide crisis which could threaten our health and prosperity if not addressed on an orderly basis," Beerchel said.

He added that 36 new reservoirs are needed by 2005 to meet the state's projected water surface water requirements, and 300 new sewage systems need to be built by 1986.

"Data available to the department shows that the water supply, water treatment, sewage treatment and flood control needs facing us over the next 25 years have a staggering price tag in excess of $50 billion, most of which will have to be paid for by the local utility customers and taxpayers," he said.

Nemir told the board that prioritization, timing and financing of three needed projects would be one of the first priorities in updating the state water plan.

Representatives of both the League of Women Voters and the Lone Star chapter of the Sierra Club, which opposed the constitutional amendment to use surplus stte revenue to create a water trust fund, pledged their support in developing a new water plan.

Austin attorney Stuart Henry, representing the Sierra Club, said that, as an opponent of Proposition 4, he feels "responsible" for aiding in the development of a new plan.

"IT'S VITALLY important that we update the Texas Water Plan," Henry said, "and it's vitally important that we do so in a public forum."

Henry added it is important that TWDB address West Texas water needs during the plan revision.

"Any water plan must address the West Texas issues or it won't be a statewide plan," Henry said.

Henry said he believes a statewide water plan can be developed that will gain public approval. He criticized the board for putting more emphasis on water development, rather than management, in the past.

Beerchl said he wants to get started on the project as rapidly as possible so the board will have at least a partial report for the Legislature in 1983. He added that public information and discussion meetings, as well as formal public hearings, will be held in the next several months.

"Our population and economy are growing," he said. "Without a plan for the future, we cannot avoid a water crisis."

Catholic leaders modify abortion stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the nation's 50 million Roman Catholics, ending a four-day annual meeting today, are agreeing on a modified anti-abortion stand and launching a year-long study on the issue of curbing nuclear armaments.

The growth of nuclear weaponry was sharply criticized during Wednesday's session of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"It's clear to us that the arms race is insane," said Bishop Mark J. Hurley of Santa Rosa, Calif., saying that $500 billion is spent annually for arms by a world that claims it can't afford to feed the hungry.

It is a "demonic situation," Auxiliary Bishop Peter A. Rosazza of Hartford, Conn., added.

On the abortion issue, the bishops gave near-unanimous endorsement to the so-called Hatch amendment, which would give to the states the right to legislate against abortion. Action on the amendment, by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, is pending in a Senate committee.

Previously, the bishops had supported a constitutional amendment that would ban abortions on the federal level.

Speculating that the church's bishops will now be considered leftist for condemning nuclear weaponry, while being called rightist for opposing abortion, Bishop Hurley said:

"Both positions are throughly consistent with our determination to defend life from womb to the tomb."

Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco said during the discussion of nuclear arms that "the problem is spreading like a lethal epidemic."

Added Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen of Amarillo, Texas,: "We must protest the real and present threat of annihiliation without representation." He said there is "growing anxiety" of conscience among workers in nuclear weapons plants.

Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, head of a committee to draft a nuclear policy statement for the bishops to consider next yearr, said even possession of nuclear weapons for deterrence has become questionable in the view of the church in this country and abroad.

Such possession can be tolerated only if the deterrent framework is used to make progress toward arms limitation, Philadelphia's Cardinal John Krol has said.

It was noted such arms talks have been suspended under the current U. S. administration, although President Reagan's talk Wednesday proposed bargaining with the Soviets on missile placements in Europe.

"We're encouraged by what the president said," Bernardin told a news conference. "Even if the Soviet Union does not respond in the way he suggested, we hope it becomes the basis for further negotiations."

In endorsing the Hatch amendment on abortion, as a "realistic step" to make "it possible to restore legal protection to the unborn," the bishops said, "We cannot tolerate the continued destruction of unborn human lives at the rate of 1.5 million a year."

> "We cannot tolerate the continued destruction of unborn human lives at the rate of 1.5 million a year."

Although some of the bishops at first pressed for continuing to support a ban on abortions at the federal level, after a closed executive ssession the more than 250 bishops endorsed the Hatch plan with only one dissenting vote — from Bishop Joseph V. Sullivan of Baton Rouge, La.

The amendment would declare abortion not a constitutional right, as held by the 1973 U. S. Supreme Court decision, leaving it up to Congress to legislate any general regulations and to individual states to impose further restrictions if they choose to.

"We firmly restate our opposition to all abortion," the bishops said, but added:

"In pursuit of our final goal we are convinced that returning the abortion controversy to the people and their elected representatives is an attainable means for protecting unborn human life."

Twenty Colorado districts seek increases

DENVER (AP) — Twenty Colorado school districts are planning to go to the voters seeking approval of increases in their 1982 budgets.

The local boards called elections for approval of the amounts denied by Colorado School District Budget Review Board.

Another 57 school boards which had only a part or none of the amount requested approved by the state board apparently have decided against elections and will operate within their authorized budgets.

The average amount of extra millage sought by the 20 districts is 4.32.

They include Pueblo School District 60, seeking an extra 3.34 mills; Del Norte, 4.82; Center, 5.80; Mapleton, 8.13; Englewood, 3.66; Cherry Creek, 3.72; Aurora, 7.44; St. Vrain, 3.44; Boulder, 2.68; Colorado Springs, 3.08; Lewis Palmer (Colorado Springs) 3.75; East Grand (Grand County), 2.37; Hinsdale, 3.92; Plainview (Kiowa County), 7.36; Poudre (Larimer County), 7.36; Karval (Lincoln County), 4.07; Arriba (Lincoln County), 6.00; Steamboat Springs, 4.60; and Woodlin (Washington County), 4.40.

State budget review board members are Lt. Gov. Nancy Dick, State Treasurer Roy Romer, and Dorothy Gotlieb, State Board of Education chairman.

A review board spokesman said that 77 of the state's 181 boards of education sought increases for per pupil amounts in excess of the $160 per pupil allowed by state statutes for 1982 school district budgets. Of these, 12 received none of the amount requested, while the remaining 65 districts received partial increases.

The state board has the responsibility of reviewing requests for increases beyond the authorized budget level and making a determination on need based on testimony and evidence submitted by the school districts in support of their requests.

By law, local school boards not receiving the full amount of their requests can appeal to the voters in special school district election which have to be held no later than Dec. 8 to restore cuts up to the requested level.

Police net 500 pounds of marijuana

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo. (AP) — Four people were arrested Wednesday and $340,000 worth of marijuana was seized by authorities who say they broke up a drug-smuggling ring that operated from Florida to Colorado.

Ron Pietrafesto of the state Organized Crime Strike Force said a sweep of Cripple Creek, Pine and Crystola netted police and members of the strike force 500 pounds of marijuana.

Pietrafesto called it a "real professional operation" that has been in existence for 6½ to 7 years.

Arrested were Michael Jason Aukes, 36, and Casey K. Corr, 31, both of Cripple Creek; Christopher Phillip Abbott, 30, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; and John F. Black, 24, of Tempe, Ariz. All were arrested at Aukes' house.

Saving city's old fire engines is Lions' fund-raising goal

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland's roaring Lions are cranking up the ol' look-me-over siren to win over the public's support and money for a cause which the service club members deem worthwhile: a museum to preserve two old fire engines.

"We're really moving ahead in our efforts to preserve" a portion of Midland's firefighting heritage, Morris Hulsey, general chairman of the Midland Downtown Lions Club's Fire Prevention and Historical Foundation, said in a news conference Wednesday in Midland Center.

Hulsey characterized the objects of the Lions' fascination — a 1917 American LaFrance chain-driven pumper and a 1928 American LaFrance super-pumper — as "old warriors." And he lauded those "gallant firefighters of yesteryear."

The Lions' dream is to get the fire engines restored and preserved in a 1,200-square-foot glass museum at the old Crier Park — site of the new Central Fire Station at Wall Avenue and H Street.

THE LIONS are seeking $125,000 for the "largest undertaking" in the club's 53-year history, though architect E.W. Babb Jr. estimated the museum building might cost about $75,000 to build today but likely wouldn't exceed $100,000 by the time the edifice is constructed within the next two years.

To date, the Lions have taken in pledges of about $14,000 and most of that is from within their ranks, said Hulsey, a past president of the 350-member club.

Hulsey said he is hoping that the Lions' enthusiasm for the project will be contagious and that community-spirited people will give their tax-deductible dollars to the cause.

"We want everybody to have a part in this," he said. Hulsey said that the Lions welcome loose change from school children and large bills from others who might want to contribute toward the project.

Hulsey emphasized that contributions to the project are tax deductible, since the Foundation has gained tax-exempt status by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is chartered by the State of Texas as a non-profit organization. Once built, the museum would be deeded to and maintained by the city of Midland.

"WE HAVE OUR own attorney...making sure we are legal in every respect," Hulsey assured his audience of newsmen, fellow Lions and a smattering of Midland County and city of Midland officials. "Every detail is professional in our undertaking."

Hulsey imagined the aesthetic worth of the museum's relics.

"When we walk into the museum," he said, "we will be reminded of things that withstood the tests of time, and have a feeling of what freedom, liberty and pioneering really mean." Hulsey said the experience of viewing and touching the old fire engines in the museum setting will give Midlanders a thrill.

"We are very proud of these early day firefighters," he said.

The fire engines will be restored by craftsmen at the Texas Department of Corrections, Hulsey said.

"Yes, they (prisoners) restore old school buses down there, and they need something for those fellows to do," he said in a moment of levity.

THE IDEA FOR THE museum was conceived in 1979, when fireman-Lion Eddie Klatt proposed the concept to his fellow Lions, who accepted the challenge, which likewise was attractive to both city and county officials. That was about the time the 1928 pumper had been placed on "the auction block," but city officials jerked the engine from the public sale and agreed to forego what income the auction of the engine might produce in the name of heritage.

"I saw those old trucks more or less wasting away" in their disuse, said Klatt, a fire captain and a former driver and paramedic, "and I've always had a 'feeling' for those old engines, being a second-generation fireman." His father, W.E. "Bill" Klatt, was fire marshal.

The Old No. 1 engine, the 1917 pumper, is in storage in the South-Side Fire Station at New Jersey Avenue and Baird Street. It is still in running condition, Klatt said. Old No. 1 has been on parade.

Old No. 2, the 1928 super-pumper which was spared the auction block, "needs some work" to get it into running order, Klatt said. "No. 2, sadly enough, is still out in the weather."

Klatt said the Lions were thrilled over his proposal to preserve old engines in a museum dedicated to Midland's firefighting heritage and to fire prevention.

"They thought it was a fantastic idea," the fireman said.

His highway landing days are over

By DEBORAH FRAZIER
Rocky Mountain News

LAPORTE, Colo. (AP) — Until two months ago, Stanley Blehm was flying his plane through a hole in Colorado law, using a stretch of U.S. 287 next to his home as a landing strip.

The flat asphalt surface was one of the best landing strips he ever used, said Blehm, a pilot for 25 years. He moved to Laporte from Fort Collins almost two years ago.

"I have landed in pastures and on roads in 22 different states," he said. "And when I ran a crop-dusting service on the edge of Fort Collins in the 1960s, we used county roads when the fields were muddy."

Blehm, who learned to fly in the Army, said he has rarely used airports. "Ninety-nine out of 100 takeoffs and landings were in the yard off of my back porch."

But two months ago, the Colorado State Patrol told him that his use of the highway as a runway had upset officials all the way to Denver, even though there is no law against it. So Blehm reluctantly offered to forsake the open road. And the Legislature likely will consider a bill to ban such aerial antics in the future.

The flying flap started because Blehm couldn't resist the lure of a smooth asphalt runway just outside his door. A few times a month he would rev up his Cessna 180, taxi down his driveway, check for oncoming cars and take off well ahead of the traffic.

"I was never speeding," he said. "I always landed with the traffic and put down about a mile in front of the cars. By the time they caught up, I was in my driveway."

However, motorists on the highway were unsettled by the sight of a plane landing or taking off just ahead of them.

The distress signals finally worked their way to the State Patrol. But Capt. Robert Gilbert, director of the patrol's district that includes Fort Collins, said there is no Colorado law that prohibits a plane from landing on a highway.

"All the laws on highways pertain to motor vehicles," said Gilbert. "We have had other instances where people landed on the highways, but no one who did it as a common practice."

"I've scratched out a little strip on my tract of land, torn out a bunch of fence and trees and use about 300 feet of my neighbor's pasture," he said.

Still, Blehm said he misses taxiing down the open road.

He said the backyard landing strip, bordered by cottonwood and elm trees, has limited approaches. He cut a notch in the trees at the end of the runway to give him more room to gain altitude.

And Blehm's horses, mules and Holstein — not motorists — do the gawking at his airplane now.

President and Mrs. Reagan look at a plaque held by Melvin Payne, chairman of the White House Historical Association, at a ceremony Wednesday at the White House to honor the first lady for her work in the restoration of the White Houe living quarters recently. The work was performed with private funding.

Nancy redecorates with style

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan, who sought $200,000 in donations to redecorate the White House, spent $730,000 — most of it the first family's private living quarters.

The first lady showed off the two-story living quarters Wednesday to about 200 people who made $822,640.91 in tax-exempt contributions to the restoration project.

"This really is a marvelous historic house and once you're here, you really grow to love it more each day," Mrs. Reagan told her guests. Most of the largest contributors, including several close friends of President Reagan, were absent.

The money that remains in the redecoration fund, almost $100,000, is earmarked for improvements in the public rooms on the state and ground floors.

A list provided by the White House Historical Association revealed that Mrs. Reagan spent the $730,000 on everything from carpets, lamp shades, curtains and wallcoverings to stripping and refinishing 33 mahogany doors and replacing obsolete plumbing in eight bathrooms.

The major change Mrs. Reagan made was to take 150 pieces of furniture and art objects from storage and return them to the White House after they were restored, refinished, recovered, reupholstered or regilded.

Rex Scouten, the chief White House usher, said Mrs. Reagan retrieved from storage "95 percent of the important pieces."

"There were beautiful, irreplaceable antiques falling into decay," the first lady said.

Photographs of the newly redecorated quarters show that the furniture, much of it antique, was placed in two enormous hallways that run through the center of the second and third floors.

Every first family has used part of the halls as a living room, but Mrs. Reagan is the first to literally fill the hallways with furniture groupings.

In the living quarters, money also was spent this way:

—Thirty-three mahogany doors were stripped and refinished by outside contractors, which Scouten described as a "terribly expensive" undertaking.

—The floors in 24 rooms were sanded and refinished. Scouten said they had been "surfaced stained" during the Kennedy administration, but this time they were "deep stained" to last.

—Shades on 72 lamps were replaced.

—Eighteen carpets and underlays were replaced.

—Twenty-six windows received new curtains and under-curtains.

—Sixty-five prints or textiles received "conservation treatment" and framing.

—Wallcoverings were replaced in 10 rooms, seven closets and eight bathrooms. Twenty-one rooms were repainted as well as closets.

—The government was reimbursed for "most of the special project costs" incurred, though the projects are not identified.

Included in the $730,000 were several improvements on the state floor, where the Reagans hold state dinners and receptions, and the ground floor. They include painting of the state dining room, East Room, Cross Hall, main foyer, grand staircase and ground floor corridor. In addition, the marble walls were cleaned.

Sheila Tate, the first lady's press secretary, refused to provide a breakdown of the cost of each project.

The money remaining in the fund will be used to sand and refinish 42 mahogany doors on the state and ground floors and to replace the red carpeting on the ground floor. Scouten said he was in the process of accepting bids for the door refinishing.

Mrs. Reagan, who has been alternately criticized and praised for her redecoration project, thanked her guests for their contributions and added: "I hope the tour reassured you that the house is in good hands."

The White House Historical Association presented Mrs. Reagan with a citation "for her outstanding leadership in directing the refurbishing of the second and third floors of the White House and for the restoration of its fine arts collection."

The Reagans announced last February that they were returning a $50,000 government grant that is provided to new White House occupants for redecoration. At the same time, they said they would seek private donations for the project.

They said they hoped to raise $200,000. But they finally stopped taking donations when the fund reached $822,641.

Mission control move suggested

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration should consider moving mission control from the Johnson Space Center to Florida and California, the agency's deputy administrator says.

But Dr. Christopher Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Center near Houston, said a plan like the one Dr. Hans Mark suggested was rejected as impractical in 1976.

Mark's idea, in a memo prepared by Mark and aide Milton Silvera, was published in a trade journal, Aviation Week & Space Technology.

The memo proposes duplicating mission control at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida and Vandenberg Air Force Base in California after a Space Shuttle launch facility is built there. It advocates making the move by 1984.

"No matter how the matter of shuttle operations is finally decided, the Johnson Space Center should phase out of the operational mission during the next three years," the article said.

But Washington NASA spokesman Miles Waggoner said Wednesday that the memo is "just talking points.

"I think he thinks these are things we should think about," he said. "It may turn out that it is totally impractical. Anybody new coming in would look at operations."

Mark was appointed when President Reagan took office.

Waggoner said that putting the control center where the shuttle is launched would "save a lot of running back and forth."

But Kraft, who said he was not consulted about the proposal, said the location of mission control does not matter.

"The best argument for not transferring it is that it is here now," Kraft said. "All of the hardware is here, all of the people are here, all of the know-how is here. To move it someplace else would be expensive."

About 3,400 federal employees and about 5,000 aerospace contractor employees work at the Johnson Space Center.

"The makeup of people who do the launch preparations phase and the people in flight operations is different and, in my opinion, this leads to the right separation of responsibilities," Kraft said. "People just think differently."

Truckers' antitrust immunity creates woes

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says manufacturers would not have to pay more to ship designer jeans than work jeans if truckers were stripped of their antitrust immunity in collective rate-making.

But trucking industry spokesmen, shippers, suppliers and members of the Teamsters union told the Motor Carrier Rate-making Study Commission on Wednesday that collective ratemaking is "the signficant issue affecting the survival of the common carrier system in this country."

Trucking companies have been allowed to set rates in groups and then submit the single rate to the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval, although since 1980 they have had the option of filing separate rate applications.

William F. Baxter, head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, told the commission "there is no justification, for any reason, for antitrust immunity."

But Richard G. Velten, general manager of Johnson & Johnson Co., said: "Without the rate bureaus it would be impossible for carriers to participate in a national transortation system and it would be similarly impractical for shippers whose businesses are national in scope to design transportation programs that are efficient from both cost and service standpoints," said Richard G. Velten, general manager of Johnson and Johnson Co.

As for the disparity in carrying charges for jeans, Velten said, "one reason is the value of the cargo. The carrier holds itself out to liability." Velten testified as a representative of the National Small Shipments Traffic Conference and the Drug and Preparation Traffic Conference.

"Some items are more susceptible to damage. You have to look at all the factors involved when making rates," said John K. Maser III, representing the National Industrial Traffic League, which includes shippers.

The Reagan administration and two independent regulatory agencies, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, urged the commission to remove the industry's antitrust immunity.

"This reform is necessary to reintroduce competitive behavior to a naturally competitive industry," said Robert A. Ragland, director of regulatory reform and government organization for the National Association of Manufacturers.

The study commission, consisting of six members of Congress and four from the private sector, must advise the president by Jan. 1, 1983 on whether antitrust immunity should be eliminated or continued for the carrier members of rate bureaus and others who collectively set rates for the shipment of goods.

Man dies after fall into hopper

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — An investigation continued today into the death of Laurel Boushley, 33, killed when he fell into a brick-making machine at the Colorado Brick Co. plant here, authorities said.

Boushley died Wednesday when he fell into an intake hopper at the plant, investigators said.

Boulder County sheriff's deputies joined officials from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in the probe of the accident.

A co-worker told investigators that any cries for help would have been overwhelmed by noise in the building.

Woman cleared of husband's murder

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — A woman who said she was beaten by her husband because she failed to bring in enough wood chips for the fireplace has been acquitted of his murder.

After two hours of deliberations, the jury on Wednesday found Dorothy Rapp, 48, innocent of murder in the March 26 shooting death of her husband, William, in the yard of their Fair Lawn home.

Mrs. Rapp testified during the five-day trial that her husband beat her throughout their 30-year marriage, but insisted the shooting was an accident.

Assistant Prosecutor Richard Rosa said that Mrs. Rapp willfully killed her husband because she could no longer endure his beatings.

He said Mrs. Rapp called the police immediately after the shooting and gave them a statement indicating she wanted to kill her husband, Rosa said.

"Honestly I didn't intend to kill my husband," she told reporters after the verdict. "I don't believe in killing and I never will to the day I die."

Barnard College psychology professor Dr. Julie Blackman Doron, an expert on the abuse of women, testified that Mrs. Rapp's 30 years of beatings was the longest abusive relationship she had seen.

Mrs. Rapp testified her husband beat her the first time when she told him she was pregnant with their first child.

Blacks knock union election process

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The AFL-CIO's non-stop condemnation of the Reagan administration, the loudest off-Broadway show this week, was interrupted by a dispute over black representation on the federation's top policymaking council.

After Sen. Edward M. Kennedy delivered a tirade against President Reagan policies Wednesday and won a standing ovation when he hinted that he would run for the office in 1984, black convention delegates moved to center stage with a surprise script.

Frederick O'Neal, president of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, accused federation leaders of ignoring candidates black union officers had suggested to fill five vacancies on the 35-member executive committee.

O'Neal was the only black on the panel, which is dominated by white males despite a rapid surge in the percentage of black and female union members.

Candidates for the five vacancies on the council were suggested to a three-member leadership screening committee named by AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, who, as expected was re-elected to a two-year term Wednesday. Public challenges to the leadership's process for filling council vacancies have been virtually unheard of in recent years.

Among those nominated and elected to a two-year term by the 950 delegates was Barbara Hutchinson, 34, who became the first black woman to win a seat on the council. She becomes both the second black and the second woman on the council, joining O'Neal and Joyce Miller, president of the Coalition of Labor Union Women.

Ms. Hutchinson, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, is also the youngest person ever elected to the council. White men were elected to fill the other four vacancies.

"It seems to me that if you're thinking about adding to the council, that the people who are directly concerned, their feelings should be considered," O'Neal said.

Other blacks who raised the issue said the quarrel was not with the five candidates ultimately recommended to the convention, but with the process by which the screening committee selected them.

Kirkland disagreed that candidates suggested by black leaders were not seriously considered.

"There is no way in which the democratic process can assure that out of a variety of names and a large number of names that are given consideration — and serious thoughtful consideration — that we can assure selection," he said.

The executive council controversy surfaced not long after Kennedy lambasted Reagan, saying his is "the most anti-union, anti-labor administration in modern history."

Kennedy denounced budget director David Stockman for his statements in the Atlantic Monthly magazine that President Reagan's program was not working and might never.

Kennedy quipped that he was not satisfied with the way Reagan handled the Stockman episode. "The only result so far is that David Stockman gets taken to the woodshed — and the rest of us get taken to the cleaners."

Kennedy declared that the Reagan administration has "replaced a tradition of compassion with a standard of greed."

And he joked about 1984 political speculation surrounding himself and former Vice President Walter Mondale, saying, "I don't like to hear it about him and he doesn't like to hear it about me."

Meanwhile, Kirkland sent word to the White House that he will accept an invitation to visit Reagan Dec. 2.

Secretary-treasurer Thomas R. Donahue was re-elected. All 28 other incumbent executive council members were re-elected without opposition.

Badgers seek to reverse trend

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

DENVER CITY — Distict 6-AA champion McCamey hopes it is on a collision course with destiny, a Dec. 18th appointment in the Class AA state championship football game.

If the Badgers advance that far, they will have to find a way to get out of the first round of the playoffs. And that is something the Badgers have failed to do for the last two years — losing to Seagraves 21-0 in 1979 and 21-0 to Plains last year.

THE QUEST for the state title — a golden ring that has escaped the grasp of the Badgers throughout their illustrious football history — begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday when the 9-0-1 Badgers (a 0-0 tie with Rankin the only blemish) face 10-0 Plains in a bi-district AA playoff game here.

The game will match a pair of strong defenses. McCamey allowed 37 points this season (an average of 3.7 per game), posted five shutouts and only Seagraves and Iraan managed to score two touchdowns.

District 5-AA titlist Plains is nearly as impressive. The Cowboys have allowed 67 points (6.7 a game), had four shutouts, held Stanton to a field goal and two teams to only one touchdown. Plains got caught up in a wild-scoring affair (53-26 over Bovina), allowed 12 points to highly regarded Klondike and escaped with a 15-14 win over O'Donnell in a loop 5-AA battle.

PLAINS COACH Larry McMinn said, "McCamey has a real fine defense. It will be hard for us to move the ball. We will just have to take whatever their defense gives up if we hope to win the game."

McCamey head man Larry Nabors stated, "Plains is almost identical to last year's club. Their defense stopped us last year and it will be up to us to execute and get our offense rolling."

Last year, Plains held the Badgers to 104 yards on the ground and only eight yards passing as the Cowboys advanced to the second-round of the playoffs with a 21-0 win. Plains' season came to an end the next week against Rotan, 18-13.

Nabors, concerned about Plains' defense, knows that the Cowboys can move the ball. He also knows full well that Plains' junior halfback Mark Huarta is a fine runner, rushing for 1,242 yards on 193 carries and scored 12 touchdowns this year. More than that, he's aware that the Cowboys also have fullback Steve Crump, (840 yards and 12 touchdowns on 138 totes) and quarterback James McElroy (780 yards and nine scores on 117 carries) to run at the Badgers.

McCamey puts great stock in the ground game too, running out of a veer offense. The Orange and Black boast four solid backs led by senior halfback Robert Arana (848 yards and 10 touchdowns on 136 carries) and quarterback Jerry Stacy (757 yards, 11 scores on 90 carries). Adding fuel to the Badger attack is senior fullback Donald Mann (490 yards and five scores on 93 carries) and junior halfback Jodee Stephens (434 yards and three scores on 83 tries).

East basketball preview

Hoyas seem to have it all

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Eric "Sleepy" Floyd says there is a certain scent in the air at Georgetown University, in addition to the normal scents of fall.

It is the sweet smell of victory. It is the pungent aroma of prophecy: This could be the year for Coach John Thompson and his Hoyas' basketball team.

"There is a feeling around the campus and the D.C. area that Georgetown has all it needs this year," the second-team All-American guard said.

What Georgetown has, is a lot. Georgetown returns its entire starting team from last season when the Hoyas had a 20-12 record and earned an NCAA tournament berth. Thompson also is widely acknowledged as having done one of the best recruiting jobs in the country, netting a pair of blue-chip Washington, D.C., forwards and prep All-American center Pat Ewing.

The Hoyas may well possess the most powerful college basketball team in the East this season, but even Thompson warns that prophets rely more on projection than on paper.

"It's only normal with our freshmen to make projections," Thompson said. "A lot of people assess us on projections of what our freshmen might do."

On paper, the Hoyas have a great deal of competition for the bragging rights to Eastern basketball, including Big East Conference rivals Connecticut, Villanova, Boston College and St.John's, N.Y. West Virginia of the Eastern Eight and Fordham of the Metro Athletig Conference also appear to be strong, but they may be a half-step below the level of play in the Big East. The Ivy League appears to be a three-team race among Harvard, Penn and Princeton.

THE DEGREE of Georgetown's success undoubtedly will be determined, in large measure, by the performance of Floyd, a 6-foot-3 guard who averaged 19 points per game last season. If Ewing matures into an effective scorer, however, Floyd's role could change.

"Last year, I felt I put too much pressure on him," Thompson said of Floyd. "Last year, we had a limited perimeter offense, and I asked Eric to do things he wouldn't normally do. This year, I expect him to occupy a leadership role."

Ewing, a 7-footer from Cambridge, Mass., became the object of one of college basketball's most intense talent hunts last season, but Thompson said the youngster might not be ready to start yet. Ewing has been too eager to subordinate himself to the team concept.

"He's trying to make basketball an equal opportunity sport, and it's not," Thompson said. "Patrick has tried to so very hard to be involved in the system, but I expect him to start exploiting his individual talents very soon."

CONNECTICUT was the surprise team of the Big East last season, but the Huskies will surprise no one this time. Even St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca said they have the best group of proven talent in the conference.

"With guys like Corny Thompson, Chuck Aleksinas and Mike McKay, a really underrated forward, they've got to be the team to beat," Carnesecca said.

Thompson, a 6-8 forward, averaged 15 points and 8.1 rebounds last season. He will team with 6-11 center Aleksinas and 6-5 forward McKay to give the Huskies a formidable front line.

Brian Buckelew, a 6-4½ freshman guard from Sommerville, N.J., could help in the backcourt, where Coach Dom Perno was forced to go with a pair of sub-6-foot freshmen last season.

Villanova returns juniors John Pinone, a 6-8 center with quickness and good rebounding ability, and Stewart Granger, a 6-3 guard who had 165 assists. Coach Rollie Massimino lost a pair of double-figure scorers in Alex Bradley and Tom Sienkiewicz, but he recruited 6-9½ Ed Pinckney from New York and 6-6 Dwayne McLain from Worcester, Mass.

BOSTON COLLEGE will rely heavily on John Bagley, a 6-0 junior guard who averaged 20.4 points per game last season, and a pressing defense the Eagles used to upset Wake Forest in the NCAA tournament. Dwan Chandler, a 6-1 senior guard who averaged 11.8 points last season, also returns.

St. John's is a team in need of immediate help from its freshmen, especially 7-0 center Bill Wennington of Wheatley Heights, N.Y. Coach Carnesecca's only proven player is 6-6 junior forward David Russell, who averaged 14.8 points and 7.8 rebounds.

West Virginia Coach Gale Catlett has the best guard in the Eastern Eight in Greg Jones, who averaged 15.5 points in the 1980-81 season, while Fordham has the Sudan connection of 7-0 center Dud Tongal and his cousin, 6-9 Edward Bana.

Offense against defense

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — It will Borger's Bulldog-tough defense against Andrews' slippery offense highlighted by quarterback Keith Brooks at 7:30 p.m. Friday on Lowrey Field here when the clubs clash in a Class AAAA bi-district battle.

Borger, making its first appearance in the playoffs since 1962, rode a tough defense to an 8-2 season record and the title in District 1-AAAA. Opponents managed only 219 yards per game against the quick, agressive Bulldogs.

Andrews, on the other hand, made it to the playoffs behind the running of Brooks. The quicksilver quarterback galloped for 1,293 yards and 28 touchdowns as he led the Mustangs to a 10-0 regular season record and championship of District 2-AAAA.

COACH BUTCH Henderson's Bulldogs have some very capable offensive performers also. Senior fullback Cedrick Love (165, senior) led the Bulldogs in rushing with 896 yards while junior quarterback Tony Tillman tacked on 802 yards rushing and an even 500 yards through the air. The third member of the Bulldog backfield is junior Terrance Sheppard. Sheppard enjoyed a banner year in 1981 as he rushed for 661 yards (an average of 8.0 yards per carry).

Mustang mentor Bill Shipman has not been overly pleased with the performance his team has turned in this year. Game after game he has been concerned about a lack of consistency and a somewhat leaky defense.

Of course, many of Andrews' troubles can be traced to injuires. Running backs Brent Petross, Adam Smith and Darrell Ray have missed playing time due to various injuries. Injuries have also dogged the Mustang's offensive and defensive line.

IF HEALTHY, Andrews' offensive line of Roland Hamilton, Marty Slaton, Chuck Stewart, Mike Phillips and Rumaldo Falcon is excellent at giving the talented Mustang runners holes to scoot through.

Andrews' defensive line, Tommy Gatlin, Jeff Ashabranner, Falcon, Hamilton and Stewart, has played well. The Mustang has been bent several times but has never broken this year.

Overall, Andrews finished the season ranked as the fourth best defensive team in 2-AAAA. Andrews gave up a total of 2,116 yards (an average of 211.6 yards per outing) this year. Opponents had better success running the ball than passing against the Mustangs. Andrews gave up 1,256 yards on the ground and 860 yards through the air ways. Despite the success foes had moving the ball, Andrews only surrendered 9.7 points per game.

Offense is really the Mustang's cup of tea. In ten games, Andrews collected 2,576 yards on the ground and added 780 yards more via the pass for an average of 335.6 yards of offense per game. The 3,356 yards the Mustangs gained for the year gave them the 2-AAAA offensive title by 122 yards over Sweeterwater.

THE PONIES are not strangers to the end zone either. Andrews goes into Friday's night's battle averaging 30.8 points per contest.

Andrews is appearing in the playoffs for the second straight year and for the 11th time since 1944. Andrews enters the fray as the Associated Press' fifth-ranked Class AAAA team while the Bulldogs have not cracked the Top Ten.

Last year, Andrews' season came to an end in a bi-district battle when Lubbock Estacado upset the fourth-ranked Mustangs, 14-7.

Football the AFC way catches on

Los Angeles Times

Once upon a time, there was this funny little football league owned by a bunch of rich kids from Texas and Paul Brown, and the old established league thought they were quaint. I mean, they didn't do a whole lot of blocking and tackling, and they went around beating each other 50-40.

The old, established National Football League tried not to look. They said to the new league, "Well, first, they got to get a football." But that was no problem. I mean, Lamar Hunt said to his Daddy, "I want a new football outfit for Christmas," and Daddy tried to buy him the Green Bay Packers. I mean, if your kid wants a set of trains, you give him the Chesapeake & Ohio, right?

When old man Hunt couldn't buy buy the Packers, he said, "Well, son, we'll just get a league of our own." So, that's how the American Football league was formed.

THE NFL said, "Well, that young man can't go around losing a million dollars a year," and his daddy said, "No, not more than the next 280 years, he can't. On the 281st year, he's down to his last million."

The NFL didn't associate with the new kids on the block. They said they couldn't get contaminated with the kind of football they played over there, that it wasn't football but some form of tennis. "Look," they said, "we build teams for defense and it takes years of experience. And you have all these young guys running around making touchdowns. In our league, we make tackles. Also, it's perfectly legal to intercept a pass every now and then. I mean, play what you want, only don't call it 'pro football.'"

SO, THEN the rich kids figured a way to get into High Society, the NFL, after all. The usual way. They bought their way in. They scattered money around to teams like the giants and they got old established firms to join their floating crap game by promising to indemnify them with shovels full of money. But, they postponed the merger until a Super Bowl or two could be played.

The NFL said, "You know, you really can't play that zone defense, you gotta play man-for-man in real football, and you draft for the best athletes, not need."

Well, the first Super Bowl has played and it ended up 35-10 in favor of "Dee-fense!" just as everybody figured, victory for the tried-and-true old methods. Nobody noticed how close the game really was -- 14-10 at the half, for instance.

Nobody noticed that the victorious team was not just any old NFL team, it was the best one in history, and coached by the most certified genius of the art since Knute Rockne -- Vince Lombardi, himself.

Super Bowl II was even closer. Green Bay won 33-14, but on four field goals, an interception for a touchdown, and a 62-yard bomb where a defender slipped. Hardly a juggernaut, but the NFL said, "See! We told you! John Unitas will pick that zone of yours apart seam by seam."

ONLY THE next year, Joe Namath picked the NFL defense apart man by man. The NFL thought it was a freak. They continued to ridicule the upstart league. "How can you get a pass rush with a three-man line? You gotta play grind-'em-out, rock-solid football."

And, then, out of 15 Super Bowls, the NFL was able to win only two out of the last 13. Dallas and Green Bay are the only two old-line members of NFL society ever to win a Super Bowl, although Pittsburgh originally was an old guard member.

Then, I looked around the league. Games right out of the old AFL playbooks of the '60s. Three-man rushes, forward passes on downs other than third, no anxiety to "establish the running game," no "obvious pass plays." To the AFC, every play is an obvious pass play. The NFC went to zone defense and three-man fronts eons ago.

The moral of the story? Remember, it's awfully easy to swallow your pride when that's all you've had to eat all day. And Confucius say, "Never laugh at 'funny little league' till you're sure you're not looking in a mirror."

MHS cagers open season at tonight

Midland High's basketball team, defending 5-5A champion, opens its 1981-82 season at Abernathy tonight and travels to Odessa Ector for more formidable opposition Saturday night.

The Midland High girls also will be in Abernathy after a season-opening 70-36 win over Sweetwater Tuesday.

Midland Lee faces Lubbock Monterey in its home debut at the Chaparral Center Friday night with the varsity tipoff at 8 p.m. and the JV game at 6:15 p.m. Lee's girls, 65-51 winners over Reagan County Tuesday, will be in Lubbock to play Monterey.

The Rebels and Bulldogs are both pointing toward next week's Tall City Tournament Friday and Saturday at the Chaparral Center.

Purdue's Young quits

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Saturday's version of the annual Big Ten football contest between in-state rivals Indiana and Purdue has taken on a new significance after Purdue Coach Jim Young announced it will be his last as the Boilermakers' coach.

Young notified his staff and players after Wednesday's practice that he will resign at the end of the season to devote full time to his position as the university's associate athletic director.

"This is a career change," Young, 46, said after announcing his decision at a team meeting. "After 26 years of coaching, my family and I have decided to concentrate on athletic administration here at Purdue."

Purdue officials said George King, the Boilermakers' athletic director, will announce then plans for finding Young's successor.

"We are going to look internally first. When you have a program as successful as ours, you want to take a close look at the people who are a part of it," King said Wednesday.

Stone figures South Plains is WJCC favorite

"I don't know what it was, but it wasn't Gatorade."

As the Midland College Chaparrals embark upon their most ambitious assignment of the young season in the Barton, Kan., Tournament, Coach Jerry Stone is thinking toward the Western Junior College Conference race that looms just a couple of weeks away.

The way Stone has it figured, South Plains College, under Dennis Perryman, should be the favorite. It just so happens that MC opens at home against SPC.

Based on the number of returning sophomores, Stone ranks Clarendon, Odessa College and New Mexico Military Institute as prime contenders.

"Frank Phillips is good every year, even though they will be using a lot of freshmen and Howard College had a good freshman haul," Stone added. About the only team Jerry left out was Western Texas College, who once struck terror into the hearts of all WJCC members. No one, apparently knows for sure what the Westerners have.

Stone also cautions, "some coaches may pick us as the favorite, based on a seven-footer we were recruiting. I don't think all of them are aware that we didn't get him."

WJCC coaching changes see Mark Nixon moving from Clarendon to Amarillo College, replacing Jim Calvin; and Howard assistant Mark Adams assumes the Clarendon vacancy....

TED BATTLES

BATTLE SCENE

PUNTUS WILSON, MC's all-regional forward, kept active in basketball during the summer, working out with some of the Dallas Mavericks. "Yes, I think I picked up a few pointers," but hopefully none the less welcome tendencies the Mavs are showing early in the NBA season, a aversion to winning...

The Dallas Cowboys' press box the night of the Cowboy-Buffalo game resembled a Reporter-Telegram sports writers alumni gathering as tall tales were swapped with Pat Truly, Paul Domowitch and Steve O'Brien. Pat and Paul are with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Steve is at Tulsa. Domowitch covers the Texas Rangers for the S-T afternoon edition, but says it's tough on his family life. Paul got married last year and the good life has mellowed him...

BASKETBALL rules changes include elimination of the jump ball, except for the opening and half time jumps, an adoption of an experiment that has been going on for several seasons in the SWC. This year the coach will be charged with any bench technicals, whether by him, an assistant, player, trainer or entourage member. It's still three and you are out.

Also any preliminary pump motion on a free throw that pulls the rebounders over the lane lines goes against the shooter, which means a lot of players are going to have to revamp their shooting styles...

JAMES ZACHERY feels the Montreal Alouettes, for all their troubles last season, might have gotten to the Grey Cup semifinals if Ottawa's Roughriders hadn't left the tarp off their field the night before the playoff game. "We were wading around ankle deep in mud. They let the field get muddy on purpose. We'd just beaten them by 23 points." Montreal lost 20-16, however, in the one that counted.

The former Midland High all-stater rates Dieter Brock as the best of the CFL quarterbacks. "So many times I had him eyeball-to-eyeball on a pass rush and he still got the ball away. That's what so discouraging in the CFL. With that extra yard, it's so hard to get to the passer before he can get rid of it and since you are pass rushing on practically every down, it's frustrating and exhausting."

"Warren Moon (Edmonton) probably has the most athletic ability of all the quarterbacks and, yes, Joe Barnes is still going. He was with us last year and came back to haunt us with Saskatchewan this year. That's one of the Alouettes' problems. They've had so many good athletes and let them get away."

Joe is the former Texas Tech quarterback from Big Lake...

THE HOUSTON Oilers Roughneck was sipping something out of a cup while relaxing on the bench at halftime of the Houston-Oakland game. His face went sour, "I don't know what this is, but it ain't Gatorade."

He was told that's the chance he took for drinking out of the Oakland water bucket, "With the Raiders' reputation, there's no telling what they might have spiked it with."

"Well, you better keep a close eye on me in the second half," he warned. "I may be flying."

Naturally, I couldn't resist the temptation. He was right, by the middle of the third period I was burning up inside, although I think it might have been the 11 a.m. chili dog press box breakfast....

Speaking of press boxes, don't invite George Steinbrenner and Al Davis to the same press box or you'll never get any work done. Al, like George, gets violently emotional, but isn't as quick on the firing trigger and NFL cameras ignore his antics.

Record-setting Fourcade would give 'em all up for a bowl bid

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback John Fourcade is finishing a collegiate football career that made him the most productive Mississippi Rebel ever, but he says his most cherished goal eluded him.

"Records are fine to have and 10 years from now I'll look back on it," he said. "But right now, I'd like to give up all these records to go to a bowl and have a winning season."

But the Rebels, as they did in Fourcade's first three years, will complete a losing season Saturday afternoon against arch-rival Mississippi State. Ole Miss goes into the game with a 3-6-1 record.

FOURCADE, a 6-foot-1, 214-pounder, playing with hand, rib and shoulder injuries in his senior season, battered Archie Manning's school career offensive records.

He wrote new career marks for total offense, passing, passes attempted and completed and most plays. With the one game left, his total offense mark is 6,478 yards compared with Manning's 5,576 yards.

In addition to setting the school passing yardage record of 5,172, compared with Manning's 4,753, the versatile Fourcade also holds the record for most yards rushing by an Ole Miss quarterback. His 1,306 yards exceed Norris Weese's 1,211-yard total.

He said he and Manning couldn't be compared.

"HE PLAYED here with different ballplayers, different coaches and different strategies," Fourcade said. "The game has changed a little between then and now."

And, Manning also played with the Rebels during their days as a Southeastern Conference power. Fourcade was the prize recruit as Coach Steve Sloan took over the failing Mississippi program four years ago and set out to restore the Rebels to football prominence.

Although the Rebels' main problem has been on defense, fan criticism of Fourcade has grown as Ole Miss has failed to regain the glory of old.

"The criticism about me and the team, I learned a lot from it," Fourcade said. "It made a better ballplayer out of me."

But Fourcade said he recognized that "it's winning that counts" and thinks he might be remembered as "the guy who broke a lot of records, but couldn't win."

McCamey faces Plains

Stephens, a pleasant surprise, came on after McCamey lost junior halfback David Acosta to a hunting accident four games into the season to provide much needed depth in the backfield.

"WE HAVE to stop the running attack," Nabors said. "They throw some. But they like to run the football and throw when the opportunity presents itself, but their primary goal is to run with the football."

McCamey, too, likes the infantry attack but is capable of throwing the pigskin. Stacy has passed for 692 yards, completing 30 of 77 passes with eight touchdowns and two interceptions.

When Stacy passes, his main target has been junior Clay Lindsey, who led District 6-AA with 12 catches for 378 yards (an average of 31.5 yards per catch) and three touchdowns. Tony Velasquez, who alternates with Lindsey, latched on to six aerials for 128 yards and three scores while tight end Mark Nichols had six receptions for 86 yards and one six-pointer.

Nabors said, "The success of our football team is built around our offensive and defensive lines. If the lines play well, then we should be in good shape. If they have a poor game, well, it could be a long evening." He added, "Plains is quick and aggressive. We must be able to handle that on offense and defense."

Plains doesn't throw the ball much as evidenced by McElroy's stats. He has passed 87 times and completed 44 for 523 yards. McElroy has suffered 14 interceptions.

McMinn stated, "We like to throw when the opportunity arises. We don't want to force a passing attack."

Penn State, USC Fiesta favorites

(Compiled from R-T wires)

Alabama, Penn State, USC, UCLA and Notre Dame head the Fiesta Bowl's list of team with the 7-2 Lions and 8-2 Trojans leading the way. Bowl director Bruce Skinner said "Notre Dame is our backup team if they don't fall down the tubes. We would not want them with any more than four losses, though. If they lose this weekend (at Penn State), that would about eliminate them from our list. "More important than records to us is rankings. I'd rather have a No.4 team come here with one loss and a tie than a No.9 team that's undefeated. But we feel two of the five teams we're considering will be playing in our bowl one way or the other."...

Pitt will quit the Eastern Eight basketball league after this season and move to the Big East, thus scuttling the possibility of joining Penn State in an all-sports league that would include football. "We're not saying 'no' to an Eastern conference for all time, but I think we're suggesting that the time for the Eastern conference appears not to have arrived," said Jack Freeman, Pitt's senior vice chancellor...

Commissioner Kenneth Germann says the Southern Conference will resist NCAA efforts to move its football program down a notch from Division I-A to I-AA, pointing out the key issue is television exposure he feels the nine members would lose if they change divisions. "The Southern Conference has had 12 television exposures for the last four years — that's 1½ games a year," Germann said at a special meeting. "If we lose that, it will be an out-and-out disaster." Each televised game brings in about $423,000 for the conference...

Eastern Michigan student body president Mark Lee and vice president David Penrose have called upon football coach Mike Stock to resign, even though he was rehired this week. "In four years, EMU is 6-34-1. We're 0-10 this year. We've never received so much negative publicity as we have now," Lee said. EasternMichigan's current 18-game losing streak is second only to Northwestern's 29-game losing skid. "The students are tired of it and fed up. We're here to get an education, granted, but we also want to make it interesting around here."...

Tough disciplinarian for doormats

Padres hire Dick Williams

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Disciplinarian Dick Williams, the new manager of the doormat San Diego Padres, says baseball's youngest team is closer to respectability than many think.

"The situation here is very similar to the one I faced when I went to Montreal. But this club is in much better shape as far as front-line players," Williams, 52, said Wednesday after signing a multi-year contract.

Terms were not disclosed, but Padres' President Ballard Smith said Williams' contract, believed to be for three years at $150,000 annually, "puts him in a category with other top managers in baseball."

The fourth winningest active manager in the gane, Williams became San Diego's seventh manager since 1977. He succeeds Frank Howard, who was dismissed after one season.

At Montreal, after taking over a struggling club that lost 107 games in 1976, Williams quickly lifted the Expos into pennant contention.

A conflict with Expos' owner John McHale led to his firing Sept. 8, three weeks before Montreal captured its first division title.

His dismissal fueled speculation that Williams was being pursued by New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner. However, Williams said this week that Steinbrenner did not approach him about the job.

Williams, a three-time major league manager of the year, is the ninth Padre pilot in the club's 14-year existence. He began his managerial career by guiding the Boston Red Sox to the American League pennant in 1967 and managed the Oakland A's to World Series crowns in 1972 and 1973.

Marino grateful to mob

By GARY MIHOCES

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino has a gang of big guys who keep people off his back, and he would gladly pay for their protection.

They are the offensive linemen on the top-rated University of Pittsburgh football team, and recently they suited up like mobsters to pose for a gag publicity photo.

"If I had enough money, I'd buy a diamond ring for every one of them," says Marino, the Pitt quarterback and top-rated passer in college football in the latest NCAA statistics.

"I think they're beautiful and they deserve all the credit. I don't deserve it," adds Marino, who has already passed for a Pitt-record 28 touchdowns this season.

PITT LOST TWO key players from last year's offensive line. Outland Trophy winning tackle Mark May and center Russ Grimm now play for the Washington Redskins.

"They've done an excellent job," says Sherrill.

"And they've got so much pride that when they give up a sack, it hurts them a lot. You don't have to say a thing to them."

From the standpoint of size, the assets of the Pitt offensive line as obvious. From tackle to tackle, the Panthers are bigger than many pro teams.

THE RIGHT tackle is 6-foot-5, 270-pound freshman Bill "Bull" Fralic, generally regarded as the top prep lineman in the country last year. "That young kid is going to be a superstar," says Army Coach Ed Cavanaugh.

At left tackle is 6-foot-5, 279-pound junior Jim "Jimbo" Covert. "He has a chance to be the best offensive lineman Pitt has ever had," says Sherrill. "And that includes some great ones."

The starting guards are 6-foot-3, 250-pound Rob Fada and 6-foot-4, 269-pound Ron Sams, both junior pre-med majors. Sams has a sore knee this week, so 6-foot-4, 255-pound Paul Dunn may start.

The center and lone senior is 6-foot-3, 265-pound Emil Boures, who has the same bulging arms as the rest of the his offensive linemates.

"I DON'T THINK you can play college football without weight-lifting, and we all take great pride in our lifting," says Boures, among several 400-pound-plus bench-pressers on the line.

Boures, who wears glasses off the field, also typifies the brains it takes to play on the offensive line at Pitt.

On each play, Boures and the two tackles exchange coded calls to decide blocking schemes. They yell something like "Deuce" or "Ray" or "Big."

Because Marino often changes plays at the line, the lineman must make more calls with each new play.

"You're making the calls, then changing them in a matter of seconds, and everybody has to be able to handle it," said Boures.

Ohio State must Michigan's Carter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Marcus Marek, the heart of Ohio State's defense, predicts what it will take to win at seventh-ranked Michigan Saturday in the rivals' showdown for the Big Ten football title and a Rose Bowl berth.

"We're going to have to stop Anthony Carter, first of all," said the 6-foot-2, 216-pound junior from Masury, Ohio, a linebacking regular for three seasons at Ohio State.

Carter, Michigan's big-play man, has caught 40 passes for 773 yards and seven touchdowns this season. He leads the Big Ten in kickoff returns, too.

"We shut him down real well last year. He didn't catch many passes, but he caught the one that beat us," Marek said of the mercurial junior wide receiver.

Carter's 13-yard reception produced the game's lone touchdown in the third quarter in Columbus, leading Michigan to a 9-3 victory, the Big Ten crown and Rose Bowl trip.

"Their quarterback (Steve Smith) is getting better. He's developing confidence. But if we can stop Carter and their passing game, I think we can stop their run. I'm sure they're going to try to run, though. They're not fancy," said Marek, Ohio State's No. 1 tackler the past two years.

Marek had 140 tackles last year. He has 128 this season in Ohio State's 7-3 campaign.

BOWLING BEAT

Jordan, Velasco top city keglers

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Karen Jordan and Tito Velasco paced bowlers this past week in bowling action in Midland. Jordan rolled games of 206-245-233 for a 684 series while competing in the Wednesday Afternoon Ladies Scratch Trio trio. She is the present MWBA City scratch all events titlist and is averaging 193 in league.

Lois Guthrie, one of Midland's most consistent top flight woman's bowlers, rolled a 254 game and 618 series while participating in the City Classic Ladies League while Carol Gibson, another top-notch performer, rolled games of 204 and 220 for a 602 series. Also rolling a 600 was Betty Seay, who hit a 218 game enroute to membership in the exclusive club among female bowlers. She is a MWBA vice president and has been bowling extremely well all year. She has finished well in the last two City tournaments and has established herself among the top bowlers in the city.

Melinda Conaway rolled a 594 rounding out top scores turned in for the women. A tip of the hat to probably one of the most improved aldy bowlers goes to George Ann Powers who continued with a 222-513 in the City Classic league and 210-520 in the Midland Teachers. George Ann, who has been an outstanding coach for the Texas Special Olympic Bowling Program in Midland, has shown steady progress. For instance, her average for the year, 1977-78 was 134. In 1979-80 her average climbed to 147 and to 157 in 1980-81. This year she is averaging 161.

Velasco rolled games of 247-238-232 enroute to his 717 series. His game peaked during the 1979-80 season at 196 and fell slightly during 1980-81 to 183. But, he is back in top form this year with an average in the 190's in all of the leagues in which he is participating.

The Miller Doubles In-House Qualifying Tournament has one week remaining and the new leaders are Silver and George Bernal who scorched a 1404 team set (handicap). Silver rolled games of 189-233-201—623 scratch in pacing the duo. Karen Burnett and Julie Green climbed to the No. 2 with a 1336.

HOW TO EARN UP TO $2,000 INTEREST AT THE DROP OF A HAT.

★ Introducing a financial first. From First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. The All Saver's Certificate, a fully insured savings plan that earns up to $1,000 tax-free interest on individual returns or $2,000 tax-free interest if you file a joint return.

★ Now for the first time, Uncle Sam will not only fully insure your savings plan, he'll give you a tax break on it as well. Here's how it works: to equal an assumed tax-exempt yield of 12½%, a taxable investment would have to earn 17.86% if your family income is $25,000 and your tax bracket is 30%.

IF YOUR FAMILY INCOME IS	YOUR TAX BRACKET PROBABLY IS	THE INTEREST RATE YOU'D HAVE TO RECEIVE TO NET 12.5% AFTER FEDERAL INCOME TAX IS
$50,000	50%	25%
$35,000	40%	20.83%
$25,000	30%	17.86%
$20,000	25%	16.67%

Figures above are approximate and based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on 12.5% is an assumed average investment yield on the All Saver's Certificate. Actual rate is 70% of the average investment yield on one-year treasury bills at date of purchase.

★ You can see why the All Saver's Certificate is a savings break-through. But you may not see it for long. The program begins October 1, 1981 and ends December 31, 1982. So hurry to First Savings and Loan Association of Midland and purchase your All Saver's Certificates.

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

No doubt about it, deer and turkey hunting is on the minds of thousands of Texans this month. But, after opening weekend, a lot of hunters have bagged their annual limits and would like to turn to something else in the way of outdoor recreation.

Most outdoorsmen in Texas scratch off fishing because of cooler weather and they just don't want to go to the trouble of going to a Texas lake and catching only a few fish. So, what a lot of people are these days is traveling to Mexico for some outstanding fishing.

Freshwater anglers should concentrate efforts for bass on Lakes Guerrero and Dominguez. Both are highly acclaimed as two of the finest bass fishing reservoirs in the world.

Lake Guerrero begins producing some heavy-weight bass in November, Decmeber and January, allowing anglers to catch just about as many as they would like to in a day.

Dial Dunkin, owner of a lodge on Guerrero says, "When the water temperatures begin to cool, the larger bass start to move. We like the months of November and December, then again in February and March for catching larger bass." It's not uncommon to venture out on sprawling Guerrero with a guide and come back for lunch with 40 or 50 bass that might average about three pounds each.

FISHING techniques and patterns don't vary that much in the cooler months. At times, topwater baits will work while plastic worms and jig and crank baits will work. Listen to your guide, he'll always tell you the best baits to use and which time of day is the best.

If you haven't fished huge Guerrero before, it's best to use the services on a guide for at least one day. If you plan on bringing your own boat, it's still best to hire a guide's services for one day. The lake is very complex in general makeup. You just don't catch fish anywhere. The guides that work the lake, day in and day out are up to date on bass fishing techniques and know areas and depths of waters where the best bass action might come from.

If that northern blows through your Texas hometown, don't let it discourage you from fishing. Head south to Guerrero. The fishing is always good on the Mexico reservoir.

LOOK FOR extremes in Mexico bass fishing, now venture to the west coast of Mexico and try some wintertime bassin' on Lake Dominguez. Unlike Guerrero, the lake probably doesn't produce as many fish, but the average size is better. The months of November, December, January and February are prime times for large black bass.

Lake Dominguez is situated near the little Mexican community of El Fuerte, 40 miles inland from the Gulf of California. The lake has probably reached its peak in terms of bass fishing, but it hasn't seemed to put a dent in bass catches. The lake is a shallow, full of drowned trees and there's a big bass under almost every one.

Fishing this lake with a guide is an almost must. Trailering your own boat to Dominguez is quite a chore, therefore most people prefer to use hunting and fishing services near or on the lake.

Joe Don Scott, a United States booking agent says, "Lake Dominguez is probably the finest bass lake in the world for catching trophy-size bass. The lake is full of four, five and six pounders and it's not uncommon to bring in a seven or eight pounder in the winter months."

Dominguez bass begin to fatten and feed in December. Their annual spawn normally occurs in late February, so catching those big female bass that are full of eggs is best in December, January and the first part of February.

Plastic worms are the anglers' mainstay for catching largemouths, but the cooler months find guides and clients using bucktail jigs, dabbled in the standing timber. The bass tend to cling to the heaviest cover in winter months and fishing conditions are somewhat tricky. Yes, you will lose a lot of fish in the heavy cover, but you will also land some monsters.

If planning a fishing trip to Dominguez, take along plenty of blue, black, red and grape plastic wigglers, a hundred or more 3/8-ounce black and blue bucktail jigs and a few favorite crank baits.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Risk of rubella vaccination is small to unborn baby

Dear Dr. Solomon: My niece was given a rubella vaccination, and later learned that she must have been pregnant at the time. She does not want an abortion, and her obstetrician agrees that it is not necessary.

What concerns me is the possible effect of the vaccination on the baby. Isn't there a danger that the baby may have been harmed? — Mrs. V.Y., New London, Mass.

Dear Mrs. Y.: The Immunization Practices Advisory Committee says that physicians should not automatically recommend an abortion simply because a woman was given rubella vaccine while she was pregnant. The Centers for Disease Control studied 101 pregnant women who were vaccinated within three months before or after pregnancy occurred. None of their babies suffered malformations that could be linked to congenital rubella infection, indicating that the risk is extremely small. Nevertheless, women should still make an effort to avoid being vaccinated while they are pregnant, and should try not to become pregnant for at least three months following a vaccination.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Your column on the use of aspirin and acetaminophen was extremely helpful. Would you comment on the relative value of these preparations when used for children? — Dorothy, Atlantic City, N.J.

Dear Dorothy: Dr. S.J. Yaffe, of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, has written on the relative effectiveness of aspirin and acetaminophen. He says they appear to be equally effective when used to reduce fever, but acetaminophen is preferred if anti-inflammatory action is not needed, because it is safer.

Other studies have shown that acetaminophen does enjoy a high degree of safety in children. Adverse side effects rarely occur. On the other hand, aspirin is the leading cause of poisoning in children, and is the choice only when anti-inflammatory action is required.

Some pediatricians use aspirin and acetaminophen alternately, but there is no firm evidence that this practice is preferable to using them separately.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You hear about men getting heart attacks a lot more often than women, but I haven't heard anything about what happens to those who do. Are women also superior to men in their ability to survive after they've had a heart attack? — Millie, Akron, Ohio

Dear Millie: One study of more than 2,000 patients showed that women who were hospitalized with acute myocardial infarctions actually had higher death rates than men, both in the hospital and following discharge. However, the women in the study were older than the men, and the higher death rate could therefore have been anticipated.

Once the age factor was taken into consideration, there were no sex-related differences between men and women in regard to survival following a myocardial infarction.

U.S. tunaboat seized by Mexico

By KEN HUDSON
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — Mexico has seized a U.S. tunaboat that during World War II was used to help protect shorelines from Mexico to Panama against invasion.

Under escort by a Mexican gunboat, the San Diego-based JoAnn was expected to arrive in Mazatlan late Monday night, probably to face charges of fishing in Mexico's 200-mile coastal zone without a license.

The JoAnn was captured 39 miles off the Baja California coast and was ordered to Mazatlan, according to the U.S. State Department.

Last month the San Diego-based tunaboat Concho, which is about the same size as the JoAnn, was seized but released with an apology that the seizure was a mistake. That seizure occurred just before a 22-nation meeting of heads of state at Cancun.

Ironically, the JoAnn is one of only four small San Diego tunaboats that Mexico will issue a license for — but the license is good only between the shoreline and 12 miles out. From 12 to 200 miles out a different license is needed, and Mexico will not issue that license to U.S. vessels.

The 12-mile licenses are issued only to certain boats that have traditionally fished in that area — but if the vessel changes hands the licenses will not be issued again under terms of an agreement with the United States.

One of the oldest tunaboats in the fleet, the wooden-hulled JoAnn was reported to have 170 tons of fish aboard. It has a capacity of about 260 tons, said Manuel Neves, fleet coordinator for the American Tunaboat Association.

Built during World War II, the JoAnn was among more than 30 boats constructed along tunaboat specifications that were used to patrol coastlines and carry supplies to the South Pacific and between the islands there. They were known as yippies because they carried a Navy YP designation.

"One day the Navy took our tunaboats down to Campbell Machine Co. and painted them all gray," said Joaquin Qualin, a retired tunaboat captain. "We went down and joined the Navy, and five days later we were on our way to patrol off the coast all the way down to Panama against submarines or whatever else might have been coming our way."

The tunaboats could do little to fight off attackers, but they did have one thing the Navy wanted — radios and radio operators. If anything was seen, they could radio the Navy, said Neves, who was navigator on Qualin's yippie.

The versatility and flexibility of the vessels so impressed the Navy that at least 30 more yippies were built and sent to sea. They had wooden hulls like the original vessels so magnetic mines would not be attracted to them and explode.

Unfortunately, that didn't prevent the vessels from being blown apart. Several of the yippies struck mines and sank. Their crews went down with them.

After the war in the Pacific ended, about two dozen of the Navy-built yippies were sold to fishermen who converted them into tunaboats. Among those was the Alphecca, which was renamed the JoAnn in honor of the daughter of Joseph J. Silva, the owner-captain.

There are only two of the old yippies left in the nation's tuna fleet, the JoAnn and the Santa Rosa. Their deck platforms still show signs of round gun mounts.

"They carried four depth charges and two .30- and two .50-caliber hand-loaded machine guns," said Qualin.

Although the yippies were used throughout the Pacific, neither of the two remaining could now withstand the high seas and storms outside Mexico's 200-mile restricted coastal zone.

'Warning sign' for hypertension likely

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Evidence is mounting that there is an early warning sign, a genetic marker, that may permit forecasting which young people are likely to develop high blood pressure as adults.

"If a marker is found that predicts which young people will grow up to have high blood pressure," researchers said, "preventative treatment such as weight control and restriction of salt in the diet could begin before the blood pressure rises, and thus might be more successful than in adults."

High blood pressure, called the "silent killer" because it is usually without any symptoms, can lead to stroke and heart disease. There are some 41.3 million Americans with one or more forms of heart or blood vessel disease, including 35.5 million, one in four adults, with high blood pressure, known as hypertension.

A predisposition to hypertension may be inherited, said Dr. James W. Woods, professor of medicine at the University of North Carolina, who reported his research to scientific sessions of the American Heart Association.

The work was cited at a news conference as being among recent important developments concerning high blood pressure and children by Dr. Mary Jane Jesse of the pediatricts department at the University of Miami School of Medicine and president-elect of the Heart Association.

Woods reported that he and his colleagues conducted a study of 39 teen-age boys divided into four groups, about half whose parents both have high blood pressure, half whos parents have normal blood pressure, and subdivided in those who are black and those who are white.

"Although we carried out many laboratory studies, the only thing that distinguished the offspring of hypertensive parents from those with normal parents was the rate at which lithium is exchanged for sodium across the membranes of their red blood cells," Woods said.

"In both races, the offspring of hypertensive parents showed significantly higher rates. This difference may prove to be a genetic marker for hypertension."

In adults, Woods said, hypertensives have increased sodium-lithium exchange rates in their red blood cells when compared with individuals with normal blood pressure.

The exchange of lithium, a natural body component, and sodium, is a normal cellular mechanism. The difference in exchange rates does not necessarily cause the hypertension but appears to be a marker to identify those people who also have or will develop the hypertension.

To further link the red blood cell abnormality with high blood pressure, Woods says he plans to follow the 39 boys for five to 10 years to see if those with the abnormality develop it.

Before the test can be used for screening purposes with large numbers of people, it must be simplified. It is laborious, he said, and it takes a lab technician six to nine hours to do the tests on blood samples from just two patients.

The test was first developed by a team of researchers led by Dr. Mitzy Canessa in the laboratory of Dr. Daniel C. Tosteson, dean of the Harvard University Medical School.

At the news conference, Dr. William Weidman, pediatric cardiologist at The Mayo Clinic, said with early signs of hypertension, called borderline hypertension, in children, the first thing to do is take a look at diet," and try to reduce the intake of salt, an important factor in the development of the disease.

Other steps, Weidman said, are to try and get the young person's weight down, get excercise and be warned about smoking and alcohol. Both smoking and alcohol cause high blood pressure.

Changing these factors, Ms. Jesse said, can be done with a high degree of success.

Fat theory under fire

BOSTON (AP) — A widely publicized theory that some people are fat because they do not burn up calories as fast as slender folks is under fire by a new study.

The latest report, like the one it challenges, was published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

A year ago, doctors from two Boston hospitals reported some fat people have lower levels of an enzyme that regulates the exchange of sodium and potassium ions inside the cells.

The Boston doctors found that the red blood cells of fat people contain, on average, 22 percent lower levels of sodium-potassium-ATPase, an enzyme known as the sodium pump.

Flu shot could cause overreaction to medicine

BOSTON (AP) — Ordinary flu shots taken by 22 million Americans every year can slow the body's metabolism and make the recipient overreact dangerously to common prescription drugs, a study says.

The researchers say physicians should give the shots to people who need them, particularly the elderly and ill, despite the potential complications. But they cautioned doctors to watch for possible reactions.

"We are trying to alert physicians that maybe some of the untoward drug reactions that have been seen in the past in these patients that haven't been easily explained might be due to the flu shot," said Dr. Craig J. McClain, one of the researchers.

The doctors began their research after a heart patient suffered a nearly fatal reaction to a common drug following a flu shot.

The doctors believe the influenza vaccine slows the liver's ability to break down medicine and remove it from the body. Because of this, the substances stay in the system longer than usual, sometimes giving an effect similar to an verdose.

Their study was conducted at the Minneapolis Veterans Administrtion Medical Center and published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

To test their theory, the doctors gave a drug called aminopyrine to 22 healthy hospital workers, 12 of whom also got flu shots. Then they measured the rate at which the aminopyrine was being removed from the body.

Within a week, aminopyrine metabolism was depressed between 22 and 74 percent in the people who had the shots. This effect gradually wore off, but metabolism was still low three weeks later.

They theorized that the flu shot somehow depresses the hepatic cytochrome P-450 system, one of the major processes by which the liver gets rid of drugs.

"We think there are going to be abnormalities in the metabolism of a variety of very clinically relevent drugs that are metabolized over this P-450 system," McClain said. "Almost any drug you can think of is metabolized to some degree by this system."

Among drugs that may temporarily be too potent are warfarin, a medicine used to prevent blood clots in heart patients; Dilantin, an epilpsy medicine, and theophylline, a drug used to treat asthma and chronic obstructive lung disease.

The study team began its work after a heart patient almost bled to death after geting a flu shot while taking warfarin to prevent blood clots.

"He had been quite stable on the drug for 11 or 12 years, and we were trying to figure out what all of a sudden prompted this guy to go haywire," McClain said.

The researchers believe the flu vaccine may suppress drug metabolism by inducing the body to produce interferon, a disease-fighting chemical.

Harvard, Woburn residents to study chemicals, cancer

BOSTON (AP) — The Harvard School of Public Health says it will join Woburn residents in a study involving 10,000 families to see whether there is a link between ill health and toxic chemicals dumped there.

Wednesday's announcement came hours after the state released a study which said the unusually high childhood leukemia rate in one section of Woburn apparently was not caused by two public wells that were contaminated by hazardous chemicals.

The university's announcement climaxed a decade of work by Anne Anderson and the Rev. Bruce Young, rector of Woburn's Trinity Episcopal Church. Mrs. Anderson's 12-year-old son, James, died of leukemia in January.

"This study is as much an attempt to allay community fears as it is to produce hard evidence. The fear is real, now we have to see if the facts warrant the fear," Young said of the venture with Harvard, which will involve telephone and written surveys of the families.

The state Department of Public Health report said the rate of deaths from childhood leukemia in Woburn began to climb in the early 1960s before the two wells were used as public drinking water supplies. Woburn has the state's highest cancer rate for any community over 30,000 residents.

There also was no decline in the leukemia rate after the contamination was discovered and the wells were shut down two years ago, officials said.

The first of the two wells began pumping in 1964 and the second in 1968. They were used intermittently until 1979 when they were found to contain a variety of pollutants, the department said.

The department's first study of Woburn's cancer mortality rate, issued in January, found a concentration of cases of childhood leukemia in eastern Woburn between 1969 and 1978.

State officials said there were five deaths from childhood leukemia in the Woburn neighborhood from 1974 to 1978, while 1.4 deaths would be expected based on statewide rates.

Kidney cancer deaths also were much higer during the five years, with 11 deaths reported compared to 4.9 expected.

The new study emphasized that childhood leukemia and kidney cancer are different diseases and must be treated separately in searching for underlying causes.

Shidoni sculptures

This year marks the fourth annual Shidoni Gallery art exhibit at Midland College. On display and for sale are over 125 pieces of sculpture, both Western and contemporary, crafted by more than 25 artists.

Although the exhibit contains many fine pieces, it is not as impressive as last year's show.

Last season's exhibition contained fewer selections, but more artists were represented. Out of the 110 items last year, the works of 40 artists were displayed.

Among the artists represented are Norman Boyles, Juan Dell, Dennis Silvertooth, Duke Sundt and Lloyd Woodbury.

For the Shidoni Gallery exhibition, the McCormick Gallery in the Allison Fine Arts Building will be open today and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The show closes Saturday.

All of the works on display are for sale with prices ranging from Paul A. Lewis' photographs priced at $125 to $200, or the $250 price tag on Tony Price's cast in stone "Waterbearer" to Gareth Andrews' "Anthem" in bronze for $25,000. Several items are priced at $30,000, with the majority of the prices seeming to fall in the $800 to $3,500 range.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, November 20, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Veronica Hamel, who plays the beautiful and talented public defender on the TV hit "Hill Street Blues," celebrates this birthday with you. Also born on this date: Bo Derek, comedienne Kaye Ballard, rock musician Duane Allman and comedian Dick Smothers. You now make steady progress in career or business, partly due to your single-minded approach to your goals. The financial outlook is excellent. Romance remains one of your top priorities. You are a good listener who excels at the art of courtship. Do not let others make your decisions for you. Project yourself more forcefully in your professional dealings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your work performance depends on your ability to divorce yourself from an emotional conflict. Make your own decisions after carefully considering the needs of others. Romance flourishes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Partnerships, group gatherings prove stimulating. Give an old idea a new twist to make a nice profit. Valuable alliances spell contracts, agreements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Show more initiative in pursuing your goals. Creative and speculative projects deserve top priority. Special outings with club or community group will bring deep satisfaction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your versatility serves you well today. A hobby could turn into a second income. Someone influential has "inside information" for you, but there may be a price tag attached.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Handle money with care and rely only on experts. Creative, artistic work is favored. Children could add to your expenses, but it will be money wisely invested.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Higher-ups take notice of what you do. Reasonable requests will be granted. Complete neglected chores. Draw on your past experiences when handling current situations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Influential person will play a major role in your success story. Be imaginative in your approach to routine jobs. New contracts will give you fresh insights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An excellent day for business trips. Those who are usually elusive receive you with open arms. Do not expect too much from social events; nothing out of the ordinary happens in romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pay more attention to detail; it will save you embarrassment. Boss will be impressed by your ability to adjust to difficult situations. Welcome old friends who come into town.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adopting a "devil-may-care" attitude at work is dangerous. Job performance is emphasized now. Do not undermine your chances for success by becoming temperamental.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Negotiate major contract or agreements. Get everything in writing. Creative ideas will pay off handsomely. Postpone making a decision regarding an important personal matter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could be plagued by indecision now. Do not let others tell you how to spend your hard-earned money. Self-improvement projects boost your confidence.

The cry most often heard at the bridge table is an anguished: "Why didn't you return my suit, partner?" But blindly continuing partner's suit can be as bad as not returning it at all!

An orthodox auction led to a reasonable three no trump contract. West led the ten of spades, and declarer was pleased with his dummy. Even if he had to lose two diamond tricks, it seemed that nine tricks would not be a major problem.

Declarer won the opening lead in hand and ran the eight of diamonds to East's queen. The spade return was won by dummy's jack and the king of diamonds forced the ace. East shifted to a heart. Declarer played low, West won the ace and declarer claimed the rest for an overtrick.

East should have realized that it was futile to return a spade at trick three. He could hope for no more than four or five points in the West hand, so West could not have the two entries necessary to establish and run the spades. Careful analysis would show that only the heart suit offered any chance of defeating the contract.

Specifically, West must hold A-10-x-x of hearts to beat the hand. East must shift to a heart at trick three, but not just any heart. Only one card will do the trick — the nine! That unblocks the suit, as you will see later.

If South plays low, so does West, and dummy's jack wins the trick. When East gets in with the ace of diamonds, he continues with the queen of hearts. Whether or not declarer covers, the defenders must come to three tricks in the suit. With the two diamond tricks already in the bank, that means down one.

Note that it does not help South to play the king of hearts on the nine. West can counter that by allowing the king to win, and again the defenders must come to three heart tricks. Declarer is doomed to defeat no matter what he tries.

The guru comes to Big Muddy

AP Laserphoto

Earth moving equipment and the construction of trailers on the hillside are a common sight as more than 200 followers of the guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh race against the oncoming winter in an effort to build a communal city in central Oregon.

A commune worker wears a 108-wooden bead necklace with a picture of the guru attached as she tends her garden on the 100-square-mile Big Muddy Ranch in Central Oregon.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal court jury has heard two conflicting descriptions of the Montemayor family — either as high stakes heroin dealers or as successful construction company executives.

Jurors will decide today whether federal narcotics agents were justified in seizing close to $1 million in property on an April 28 raid on two McAllen homes belonging to brothers Matias and Benito Montemayor.

Agents from the federal Drug Enforcement Agency have testified that the Montemayors run a large heroin pipeline from Mexico to Chicago and Detroit.

The case of the Montemayors, who are Mexican nationals, is considered a test of the controversial law. The outcome is expected to be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Michael Guinan of Chicago, the Montemayors' lawyer, has challenged the constitutionality of the law and has charged federal agents with overstepping their authority in the seizure.

MATIAS MONTEMAYOR is in custody on an unrelated firearms charge. He has sat through the three days of testimony near his wife, Carmen, who was deported to Mexico as an illegal alien after the April raid.

Mrs. Montemayor said she and her husband borrowed $100,000 from Montesa, a family-owned corporation, to buy their McAllen house in 1978. The house was among the items seized in the raid.

Manuel Montemayor, another brother in custody on a cocaine charge, testified that Montesa had millions of dollars in contracts with the Mexican government to build roads and bridges. He was arrested in Houston last month on his way to give a deposition to Assistant U.S. Attorney Jose Berlanga.

He said Benito and Matias each earned salaries of $50,000 last year from the company.

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sister of a New Zealand woman allegedly held captive by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church gasped with joy when a judge threatened church leaders with jail if they don't produce the woman in a week.

San Francisco Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown Jr. told church attorney Frank McCabe on Wednesday that the church must bring 22-year-old Mary-Lee Hall to court Nov. 25 so she can be questioned about whether she is being held against her will.

"If my writ is not obeyed, then I'm going to jail them," Brown said. "I cannot jail a church, but I can jail its leaders."

MCCABE SAID the church would appeal the order.

Anna-Lyn Hall told reporters the order "will mean that so many other parents will be able to come forward anddo the same thing."

Anna-Lyn Hall and her mother, Lena Hall, came to San Francisco five weeks ago and sought the order afr several unsuccessful attempts to meet with Mary-Lee Hall.

The Halls' attorney, James Mahon, said he believed it was the first time an order had been issued directing the church to produce an adult.

"We're not attempting to obtain custody," Mahon told a reporter. "We are simply attempting to terminate an illegal detention. This is absolutely the last resort of my client. If it weren't for this, they'd never see this kid again."

Mary-Lee Hall, one of nine Hall children, left the family's dairy farm in Tarawaki, New Zealand, to come to the United States nearly three years ago. Church officials say she is living freely in New York.

McCabe said Matthew Morrison, the church's northern California director, had urged Ms. Hall to meet with her parents but she had declined to do so.

BUT MAHON said the church has used mind control, peer pressure and possibly physical restraints to prevent a family meeting.

"We believe that once she gets away from those people, at least she'll be able to talk to her mother and sister rationally," he said.

After Mary-Lee Hall testifies in Brown's court, Mahon said, "It's up to her if she wants to go back to the Unification Church. As long as it's of her own free will."

Church officials say Ms. Hall is not a church member but part of a group known as the Collegiate Association for Research Principles. They said CARP is not run by the church.

"If the evidence before me has shown anything, it has shown that that is totally false," Brown said. "The evidence has shown that CARP is an arm of the church."

The Hall family had described CARP as a college campus recruitment group for the church.

MSLF gaining new credibility thanks to Watt, legal victories

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The Mountain States Legal Foundation enjoys a new credibility, thanks to Interior Secretary James Watt and legal victories that show people can win against excessive regulation, the group's president says.

Roger Marzulla, a former California attorney, replaced Watt as president of the conservative legal group based in Denver. He spoke to the state convention of the Wyoming Farm Bureau Federation here Tuesday night.

When Watt was named Interior secretary, Marzulla told the 125 delegates, the MSLF suddenly gained prominence and a new credibility never enjoyed before.

The legal foundation has "eight good, young attorneys" and is "looking for good cases to try," Marzulla said. "Bring us one and we'll try it."

Minerals under Wright's land had been mined, and the Bureau of Land Management ordered him to reclaim the land according to the agency's rules and regulations, according to a Farm Bureau spokeswoman. Wright refused, arguing the surface belonged to him and he preferred another reclamation plan.

Wright went to court, represented by the MSLF, and won.

Marzulla described "good cases" as those involving representation for clients whose personal and property rights have been violated by government agencies and liberal special interest groups.

The MSLF president predicted the legal group would be busier in the future as the public becomes aware of the MSLF.

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — Photographs of armored car guards killed in a barrage of gunfire during a $1.86 million robbery were shown to jurors despite a defense attorney's bid to keep the "especially grisly" pictures out of the trial.

Jurors on Wednesday were shown color photos of the bullet-riddled bodies of Purolator Security Inc. guards Edward Cody and William West. They were not shown photos of Leslie Clark, the other guard killed in the April 16, 1979 robbery of the company's armored car depot here.

"I have rarely seen photos of a body that were more awful than these three," defense lawyer John Williams said, arguing against admissibility of the pictures of Cody's body. "Their prejudicial impact is staggering because these photos are especially grisly."

Waterbury Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hull ruled in favor of Assistant State's Attorney Walter Scanlon, saying the pictures were relevant to the case.

Prosecutors showed jurors close-up photos of the seven wounds that killed Cody, a 46-year-old off-duty Hartford police officer from Vernon. They also were shown the slugs recovered from his body and slugs removed from the corpse of West, 52, of Cromwell.

Cody's daughters, Anne and Kathleen, sat on a bench outside the courtroom during testimony about the bodies. West's son remained in the courtroom.

Prosecutors were to present more testimony today detailing autopsies performed on the bodies of West and Clark.

Dr. Elliot Gross, the former chief state medical examiner and now New York City's chief medical examiner, was scheduled to take the witness stand.

Dr. Catherine Galvin, the current chief state medical examiner, tstifed Wednesday that Cody's body was discovered in a twisted position in the front seat of a Purolator van, his clothing soaked with blood.

'The First' is not hit

NEW YORK (AP) — To sum up "The First," the new Broadway musical about Jackie Robinson, who in 1947 became the first black to play major league baseball: No hit.

Not much book or score, either. Opening Tuesday, this show about Robinson's heroic, pioneering basepath battle against bigotry has about as much passion, fire and complexity as your average TV movie, maybe less.

With Broadway rookie David Alan Grier as Robinson, Lonette McKee as his always-devoted wife, Rachel, and jovial David Huddleston as Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodger boss who signed Robinson and broke the race barrier in the majors, it's the kind of musical that's long on simplicity and short on most everything else.

Even Leo Durocher (Trey Wilson), said to be a fiery chap, is so often pleasant here you suspect he's managing the Dodgers of Los Angeles, that hamlet of mellow, and not the wild bunch from Brooklyn.

Martin Charnin of "Annie" fame staged "The First," and you'd expect more than this from him — even though he's working with two rookies, Joel Siegel who wrote the show's book (with some Charnin aid) and composer Bob Brush, for whose tunes Charnin wrote lyrics.

But what you get are forgettable tunes and a one-dimensional outing that tries to combine a classic baseball-and-bigotry story with a sweet love story and fails on both counts.

Rehearsing a scene from the Pickwick Players' "Spoon River Anthology" are, from left, Gary Lyons, Ingrid Font, Laura Wolf, Cassandra Bell, Jill McElligott, Kathryn Wolf, Joe Whie and Deann Jones. The show opened Wednesday at Midland Community Theatre for a three-day run of presentations for school audiences and will be presented to the public Saturday at 1 and 3 p.m. Tickets, priced at $2, can be reserved by calling 682-4111.

'Spoon River' delightful production

Literally.

The cast of characters in "Spoon River Anthology" speaks about life in the little town of Spoon River, Ill., from the mid-1800s to the turn of the century. And they speak from the grave.

Although Sunday was the Pickwick's initial dress-rehearsal and the first time the cast had been on stage in Theatre I, the subject matter combined with the Pickwick's presentation clearly earmarked this show as one not to miss.

The lines are not easy. Many contain thoughts which trigger other thoughts, such as the following passage delivered by one who felt she had lived a long and bountiful life.

At 96 I had lived enough, that is all,
What is this I hear of sorrow and weariness,
Anger, discontent and drooping hopes?
Degenerate sons and daughters,
Life is too strong for you —
It takes life to love life.

Others perhaps state what we all may know but don't think about in that manner, such as "People are either prospering or falling back."

The play also contains a number of nicely turned phrases as typified by the comment "silence falls on speech."

The play has more depth than most, if not all, of the previous ones presented by the Pickwicks.

Sunday the costumes were not complete because the jewelry and hats had not yet arrived. The costumes which were there were authentic looking and nicely done.

The lighting was effective as was the staging.

This is the first time the children's theater has performed a play in which the cast plays, not fairy tale creatures, animals or teen-agers (as in "Windows"), but adults who present, in their own way from the grave, the real life problems, situations, heartaches and loves they faced when alive.

As director Ms. Spicer said, "It's a big step for them. The Pickwicks have moved from fantasy to reality."

The play is appropriate for teen-agers and adults. Since "Spoon River Anthology" is required reading in the school system, the play's presentation offers students an opportunity to see what they have read and studied being acted out on stage.

The show opened Wednesday for a three-day run of presentations for school audiences.

Saturday the production will be presented to the public in two performances. Tickets, priced at $2, may be purchased at the theater, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., or by calling the box office at 682-4111. Curtain call is 1 and 3 p.m.

As for this reviewer, I thoroughly enjoyed the hour. It was filled with pathos and levity. In many instances, the Pickwicks were expressing emotions beyond their experience. And they did so with style and a sense of dignity.

'Dallas' continues to dominate prime time

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "Dallas," though sluggish in reruns through the summer, continued to build momentum as the dominant program in prime time, and in the process helped thrust the network into first place in the weekly ratings race for the first time in a month.

There had been speculation "Dallas" would slip a bit this year, unable to sustain extraordinary ratings that made the show No. 1 in the 1980-81 TV year. Though ratings have been off — the series averaged 31.1 last season — "Dallas" has been first four times in the six weeks of the new season.

"Dallas" came up short only during the two weeks of baseball's World Series, broadcast by ABC.

The rating for "Dallas" in the week ending Nov. 15, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed, was 29.1. Nielsen says that means of the nation's TV-equipped homes, 29.1 percent saw at least part of the program.

Meanwhile, CBS — with five other programs in the week's Top 10 — ended ABC's three-week run as the No. 1 network in prime time. CBS' average rating for the week was 19.4 to 18.6 for ABC and 15.5 for NBC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.4 percent of the country's homes with television were watching CBS.

For NBC, it was the sixth straight week in last place.

ABC's top-rated show for the period was the "NFL Monday Night Football" game between Buffalo and Dallas, tied for fifth place, while NBC's best, "Real People," finished in a tie for 19th.

Two movies on TV for the first time were among the week's 10 highest-rated programs, Bo Derek's "10" on CBS, in seventh place, and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," on ABC, in ninth.

Newly introduced series continued to struggle in the ratings. ABC's "Fall Guy" was the most successful of the lot, No. 24, with CBS' "Walt Disney" 34th and "Love, Sidney," on NBC, 37th.

'Hee Haw's' Archie Campbell decides to stay awhile

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cigar-puffing comedian Archie Campbell took a job with "Hee Haw" for three days, and stayed for 13 years.

Campbell joined the television show when it began in 1969 and still is featured on the syndicated program, now in its 13th season of spotlighting cornfields, overalls and sexy Southern belles.

"They were testing me to see if I worked out," Campbell recalled of his first three days on "Hee Haw." He liked the show, program executives liked him, and he was kept on, to portray a doctor, a judge and a barber on the cornpone comedy and country music show.

Campbell, who just turned 67, said his favorite spot on the show is the segment in which he plays a judge.

"It's easy to do, and it's an outlet for lots of funny situations," he said moments before taping a segment in a television studio at the Grand Ole Opry House.

He is well known for interchanging the first letters of successive words or consecutive sounds of words, a technique he mastered more than 20 years ago. "Cinderella" comes out "Rindecella," and "Sleeping Beauty" is "Bleeping Sleauty."

"You've got to sit down and do it over and over," he said, lighting one of his ever-present $1.50 Dominican cigars. "You get one line down pat, then you go on to another.

"I can tell 'Cinderella' better backwards than forwards," he said. "I'd get it all screwed up if I told it forward."

Campbell, who writes the show's comedy with a half-dozen others, said the program has been on the air so long because of its style.

"I feel the show has been able to communicate simplicity," he said as a scantily clad Gunilla Hutton, who plays "Nurse Goodbody," walked by.

"Everybody in the country can identify with it," he said. "If you've not lived in the country, you can see how the people do. The whole world is seeking simplicity.

Turkey tours Rose Garden while President Reagan shoots off mouth

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ungrateful turkey placed in the White House Rose Garden by the National Turkey Federation took one look at President Reagan, who spent last weekend in a vain hunt for a wild bird, and started squawking and flapping its wings.

"I had a chance to shoot a bunch of you the other day, and didn't," Reagan said, staring sternly at the bird.

It was the federation's annual moment to present the president with a Thanksgiving turkey, and the live white bird was on hand for the occasion — along with two frozen ones labeled "Mr. President."

Reagan flew to Texas last weekend to join his chief of staff, James A. Baker III, in a turkey hunt. The president returned with an empty bag, although he said he had spotted a tom the first day but didn't shoot for fear of hitting several hens that surrounded it. Others in the party were more successful.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The crew of the first manned balloon to float across the Pacific Ocean was greeted by a mariachi band, an Air Force honor guard and, of course, balloons. Lots of them.

A hot-air balloon was inflated and small balloons were released into the air as the crew members were welcomed by about 200 spectators, dignitaries and family members near a windy runway Wednesday.

"It's super to be home," said Ben Abruzzo, 51, captain of the helium-filled Double Eagle V balloon, which lifted off from Nagashima, Japan, on Nov. 9 and spent a harrowing four days crossing the Pacific before crash-landing in California.

Abruzzo, Larry Newman, 34, Ron Clark, 41, all of Albuquerque, and Rocky Aoki, 43, of Tokyo and Miami flew into Kirtland Air Force Base in two twin-engine private planes.

Abruzzo and Newman, along with Maxie Anderson of Albuquerque, were the first to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon — the smaller helium-filled Double Eagle II in 1978.

PARIS (AP) — Conductors Lorin Maazel and Leonard Bernstein are planning to take the French National Orchestra on a guided tour of the United States and Canada, performing as they go.

"The North American tour crowns the long effort to renew the orchestra and will be a symbol of work well done," said Maazel, the orchestra's musical director and principal conductor. He said at a press conference Wednesday that he will conduct 13 of the 17 concerts. Maazel is also music director of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, but is leaving next year to head the Vienna State Opera.

Bernstein will open the tour Nov. 27-30 with concerts in Boston, Washington, Philadephia and New York.

Maazel will then take the orchestra to Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa before a coast-to-coast U.S. tour ending Dec. 20 in Washington.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — American Ballet Theater stars Alexander Godunov and Eva Evdokimova showed "lack of consideration for the public," according to officials of the Teatro Colon opera house, so their sold-out performances were canceled at the last minute.

The Teatro Colon Foundation said in a statement that the dancers demanded upon their arrival in Buenos Aires on Tuesday "a complete change in program which the theater is not in conditions to satisfy on such short notice."

Godunov, who defected from the Soviet Union's Bolshoi ballet last year, and Evdokimova had been scheduled to perform a number of short pieces today and Friday.

U.S. remains most 'tuned in'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is extending its lead as the world's most tuned-in nation with almost two television sets for every household, new statistics show.

Television Factbook, published annually by Television Digest Inc., reports this week that there are 162.5 million TV sets in the United States this year, compared to 156 million in 1980.

With the Census Bureau estimating that the nation's population of 226.5 million is divided among 82 million households, that translates to 1.98 sets per household.

The Factbook estimates that the United States has almost one-third of the world's total supply of TV sets, which climbed to 495 million this year compared to 465 million last year.

The Soviet Union, with an estimated 70 million to 80 million TV sets in use, trails a distant second, the Factbook reports. Japan, West Germany, France and Great Britain follow in that order.

And with the possible exception of Japan, no other country approaches America's percentage of households with even one TV set — somewhere between 97 percent and 98 percent. That last category is difficult to determine, editors of the Factbook explain, because few other nations have conducted extensive surveys.

The Factbook reported that:

—The United States continues to lead the world in the number of full-service TV stations operating within its borders with 1,038. England is second with 1,022 transmitters, but hundreds of those are rebroadcasting other channels and are not independent stations.

The 2,672-page reference work also includes the latest Arbitron market rankings based on the prime time TV audiences in each city. New York City is still No. 1 with a prime time audience of 4.6 million households, followed by Los Angeles with 2.7 million.

The remaining cities in the top 10 include Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, San Francisco, Cleveland, Washington and Dallas-Fort Worth, in that order.

While the numbers of TV sets and stations continue to grow in the United States, cable television is also enjoying rapid growth.

The Factbook reports there were 4,825 cable systems across the country as of Jan. 1 serving 18.3 million subcribers. That's 2.3 million more subscribers than were counted on Jan. 1, 1980, and the number should reach 21 million by Jan. 1, 1982, the editors say.

The cable system serving San Diego, with more than 207,500 subscribers, continues to hold the position as the nation's single largest system. The cable system in Oyster Bay, N.Y., with almost 131,000 subscribers, moved into second place this year followed by a system serving part of Manhattan with 123,000 subscribers.

The Factbook also notes that as of 1980, almost 2 million video cassette recorders were in use in the U.S.

Midlander places second in NTSU voice auditions

DENTON — James LaFontaine, son of Robert J. LaFontaine, 3301 W. Kansas Ave. in Midland, was among the winners from North Texas State University in the recent 30th annual student auditions sponsored by the Texoma Region of the National Associations of Teachers of Singing at The University of Texas at Austin.

The NTSU student vocalists competed with 750 singers from colleges and universities in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. Winners survived three rounds of competition.

Connery wins legal battle

LONDON (AP) — Sean Connery, the actor who played agent 007 in the early James Bond spy movies, won a British High Court battle with his former accountant who tried to sue him for over $190,000.

Kenneth Richards, a film production accountant had sued for 2 percent of Connery's earnings from 13 movies, including the Bond thrillers "Goldfinger" and "Thunderball."

Richards handled Connery's financial affairs for four years until the British star sacked him in 1977. The accountant, who lives in Lausanne, Switzerland, withdrew his claim and dropped his case Wednesday after 3½ days of court questioning by Connery's lawyer John Wilmers.

The Japanese art of giving money

By RICHARD BILL
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese editors and publishers are surprised at the uproar created by reports that President Reagan's national security adviser accepted a $1,000 honorarium from a Japanese woman's magazine for helping to arrange an interview with Nancy Reagan.

It's a "customary practice" in Japan, said one editor, although most journalists are wary of offering money to public officials.

"The practice of paying for interviews to celebrities is prevalent in Japan — it's just like paying someone who has contributed articles for publication," said Kinji Kawamura, managing director of the Foreign Press Center, an organization funded by the government to help foreign journalists.

But Kawamura, who formerly headed the Washington bureau of the mass-circulation newspaper Asahi, said such payments are made to the person interviewed, not to intermediaries or people in office.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said last week the money was discovered in mid-September, eight months after the interview, in a safe belonging to Reagan adviser Richard V. Allen.

While denying any impropriety, Allen acknowledged receiving the money from the magazine Shufu-no-Tomo (Housewives' Friend), which interviewed Mrs. Reagan in Washington on Jan. 21, the day after her husband was inaugurated. Allen said he forgot about the money after it was placed in the safe.

The Justice Department is investigating the incident.

Asahi reported Wednesday that the woman's magazine which gave Allen the $1,000 also sent Mrs. Reagan a handmade letter box. The news paper said the first lady sent two thank-you letters, written on White House stationary, for the gift to the reporters who conducted the interview.

The value of the box was not disclosed in the Asahi article. U.S. officials are prohibited from keeping gifts valued at more than $100. The penalty for violating that law, enacted in 1977, is a fine of up to $10,000.

Speakes identified the gift Thursday as a black lacquered stationary box with a hand-painted design. He said a Washington gallery that specializes in Asian art has valued it at $75.

Fuyuko Kamisaka, who conducted the interview for Shufu-no-Tomo, told the New York Times she estimated the value of the box at 60,000 yen or $270.

The box has been in storage at the National Archives since shortly after it was received on Jan. 21, Speakes said.

Kawamura said popular magazines like Shufu-no-Tomo, which claims a circulation of 500,000, rarely have extensive business contacts or large editorial staffs. "So the only way they can get scoop interviews is to offer large sums of money," he said.

Mitsuru Ando, editor of Bungei Shunju, a monthly literary magazine with 700,000 readers, said, "We always pay money or give gifts to interviewees. Payments range from 10,000 yen ($45) to millions of yen, depending on news value and the time it takes to set it up."

Ando said $1,000 for Mrs. Reagan's interview was "probably the proper amount." But he added: "I wonder why the party in Washington didn't straighten it out (the matter of who received the money) beforehand, since they knew they couldn't accept it."

Tsuneo Takahashi, former editor of Josei Jishin, a woman's weekly, said that publication "usually gives gifts to public figures instead of money when we interview them. In the case of private citizens, we usually give money."

Takahashi, who now edits another publication for the same company, said his magazine would not have done what Shufu-no-Tomo did.

"We wouldn't give her (Mrs. Reagan) money. We probably would have given a gift to her, not to a middleman. I don't understand why the money was held by a middleman," he said.

"I think $1,000 was too much, but I think the price was high because there was a middleman," said Takahashi.

He said that if his former magazine interviewed the wife of Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, for example, no gift or money would be given. "We pay only 20,000-30,000 yen ($90-$135) — such a paltry sum would be taken as an insult."

He's great at singing opera, but scared to death of stage

By HAL SPENCER
Associated Press Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Anthony "Hercules" Garofalo ignored the gathering crowd, including policemen with bullhorns. From his perch atop a gasoline storage tank, he expanded his barrel chest and launched into Verdi's "Deserto sulla Terra."

Garofalo, his powerful tenor voice competing with the commotion below, sang through the hot summer night, drawing from his wide repertoire of opera music.

The police, who thought they had a jumper on their hands, "sometimes don't appreciate opera," Garofalo said recently of his July 13 performance.

For the past 20 years, the 40-year-old unemployed laborer has used the area's streets and high towers as an opera house, his rich voice treating passers-by to arias from "William Tell," "Tosca" and "Otello."

"He has one of the most gorgeous voices I've ever heard," said Mary Langdon, a voice coach at the University of Rhode Island's Music Department. "It's a natural, God-given type of voice, a real robust tenor."

Marguerite Ruffino-Conner, artistic director of the Providence Opera, remembers first hearing Garofalo's voice from her hotel room in downtown Providence 10 years ago.

"This guy used to serenade from the sidewalk," she said. "He had a beautiful voice. It's a pity he never did anything with it."

To some, that doesn't matter.

"He makes people feel good, and that's all too rare in today's society," said William Tocco, police chief in nearby Johnston.

His men, along with Providence police, have arrested Garofalo more than once on disturbing the peace and trespass charges. "But I personally like the guy. He's harmless and he makes people laugh," Tocco said.

But Garofalo, a gentle, almost child-like man, has a problem. For all his strength and talent, he is terrified of the stage, and has never been able to perform before a formal audience.

"His eccentric shyness goes way back. As a kid, he used to sneak down into the school boiler room to sing," said his friend Vincent Fraioli.

Garofalo said his parents were not enthusiastic about his singing and neither were his teachers.

"They should have encouraged me, you know, as a special student. But in those days they didn't realize anyhing," he said.

Fraioli, a music teacher and composer, has taken Garofalo under his wing, encouraging him to overcome his stage fright and enroll for voice lessons in Boston.

"I'm 40 years old," Garofalo says. "I'm getting too old now. I probably should have started earlier."

Mitterrand in hospital

PARIS (AP) — Two publications said today that President Francois Mitterrand secretly entered a military hospital earlier this month for tests. The government said it was for a routine checkup.

France-Soir, the largest afternoon daily with a circulation of more than 510,000, headlined the front-page story: "Rumors about the health of Mitterrand."

The pro-Gaullist paper said its story was largely based on an article in the weekly magazine Paris Match, which went on sale today.

On the eve of publication, the president's office said the 65-year-old Mitterrand had undergone a routine medical check recently at the Val de Grace military hospital in Paris and that a bulletin on his health would be published next month.

France traditionally has kept silent on the health of its leaders. President Georges Pompidou died in office in 1974 after a long battle with a form of cancer of the blood. Though evidently ill, all stories about his illness were denied until the day of his death.

Paris Match said Mitterrand's secret visit to the Val de Grace hospital on Nov. 7 was not pre-arranged, as for a routine check-up. It quoted unidentified witnesses as saying Mitterrand's skin looked "lemon yellow" and that he walked with difficulty.

The magazine said the president had a scintigraph test, in which a radioactive isotope is injected and its path followed through a specific organ by its gamma ray emissions. It said he went back later in the day for a follow-up test of the same type, and also an echograph, a full-body scan lasting 45 minutes.

It said Mitterrand signed in as "Albert Blot or Biot," and that the staff of the military hospital was ordered to "forget everything that happened."

France-Soir quoted an unnamed nurse as saying that contrary to usual practice, no nursing staff helped in the examinations.

Stressing that it did not wish to "use false rumors to attack the president, "France-Soir said it nevertheless was obliged to report that "rumors have been circulating in France for some time now."

One of the rumors, it said, "is that the president has been treated for at least seven years by a famous cancer specialist, that he is supposed to have gone for treatement at the anti-cancer center at Villejuif," France's leading cancer hospital.

It said all of Mitterrand's medical records had been removed from the hospital since the May 10 presidential elections.

Paris Match also said there had been rumors over Mitterrand's health since 1977. Mitterrand has denied any problems several times, the last time at a news conference in September.

Israeli writer wins humor award

PARIS (AP) — Israeli writer Ephraim Kishon was awarded the 1981 "Noble Prize" for humor Wednesday by the Association for the Promotion of Humor in International Affairs (APHIA). It cited him for "brilliantly avoiding making his name a household word" despite the sale of 26 million copies of his books in 28 languages.

The 1981 Booby Prize was awarded to the publishers of "Who's Who in France" for getting APHIA's name wrong in the biography of one of the group's founders, Alfred E. Davidson, an international lawyer.

"They called it the Association for the Promotion of Honor in International Affairs," said John E. Fobes, another APHIA founders. "Honor has nothing to do with humor."

Fobes said APHIA would award the publishers of "Who's Who in France" with two bottles of ink eradicator.

LAST YEAR'S BOOBY PRIZE — a clay foot — went to U.S. economist Milton Friedman for his 1974 comment, "I would not worry about high oil prices," and his prediction that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "would promptly fall apart."

In accepting his "Noble" award — an original poster for the Marx Brothers movie "Horse Feathers" — Kishon offered his luncheon audience a sample of his humor.

"You know we have a very small inflation rate in Israel — something harmless like 160 percent," he said.

"But even though our inflation rate is not dangerous, it has effects on everything. Just a few weeks ago, my daughter asked me how old I was. I told her the truth — 57. She just looked at me and said, 'How much is that in American dollars?'."

APHIA, which bills itself as a non-organization, was founded in 1973 by three Americans living in Paris. The group has only one rule: a lack of humor is grounds for expulsion; and only one activity: to present yearly Noble and Booby Prizes to those who have promoted humor in international affairs.

"The Noble Prize goes to those who intend to be funny and succeed," said Davidson. "The Booby Prize goes to those who intend to be serious and are unintentionally funny."

Kishon joins the ranks of Noble award winners that include American humor columnist Art Buchwald and British comedian Peter Ustinov.

"I can't explain humor," Kishon said in accepting the award. "I make my living with something I don't understand and can't explain. In this respect, I am like a politician."

HE SPOKE TO AN AUDIENCE of 142 APHIA members, including the Israeli ambassador to France, Meir Rosenne, and Christian Chapman, the U.S. charge d'affaires in Paris who escaped an assassination attempt last week.

In his writings, Kishon has described Israel "as a place sprawled on the shores of the Mediterranean in such a way that half an hour's drive from any point in the country will take you either to the seashore or into captivity."

The CD for All Savers...From First National

Now, First National offers a program for "all savers" to enjoy savings with high interest yield plus a tax benefit. It's called the All Savers Certificate of Deposit.

Here's how it works: From now until December 31, 1982, you may invest as little as $500 in a First National All Savers CD for a maturity of one year. During that year, interest earned by the CD may be excluded from your taxable income up to a maximum $2,000 for couples filing joint tax returns, $1,000 for those filing separately. The current annual rate is 10.77%.

The interest rate on the CD will change every 4 weeks, but the rate in effect at the time you invest is fixed for the full one year term. Although the interest rate is not compounded, you may receive interest payments monthly, quarterly or upon maturity. If the CD principal is withdrawn prior to maturity, the tax exclusion is forfeited and there is substantial penalty. Deposits are insured by the FDIC.

Compare First National's All Savers Certificate to other investment alternatives, consider your tax plan, then visit one of our CD representatives in our main lobby.

Hoax may have extended medfly fight

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Medfly project officials said Wednesday they suspect that a hoax may be responsible for forcing extension of a controversial pesticide spraying program over part of San Mateo County.

"There's a strong suspicion in my heart that spraying there is unnecessary, but we just can't be sure," said Dick Jackson, deputy manager for the Mediterranean fruit fly eradication team.

Jackson said project officials believe that on at least three occasions, someone placed medflies in traps used to determine the spread of the infestation, which has been centered in the south and east San Francisco Bay area.

One of those alleged tampering incidents involved the discovery of flies in traps near Loma Mar, an isolated community in the mountains south of San Francisco.

Six fertile flies were found in one trap in an area where only a single sterile fly had been found before.

AGRICULTURE

Billions of sterile flies have been released in an effort to interfere with the fly's breeding.

"The chances of something like that happening are just too remote to believe," Jackson said.

The flies could have been planted by someone who doesn't like the project, Jackson speculated, or a project employee trying to prolong his job.

"Whoever it is, we're pretty sure that someone's been playing jokes on us," he said.

Other suspicious finds include an Oct. 29 discovery in Sunnyvale — a fly with notched wings, indicating it might have been handled with a forceps — and last week in south San Jose.

Jackson, a U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologist, said he doubts that the hoaxter will be caught — if there is a hoax.

More than 28,000 medfly traps are spread throughout the San Francisco Bay area and thousands more are scattered statewide. The project makes its decisions on where to aerially spray malathion based on whether medflies are found in the traps.

OMB submits proposal cutting EPA's budget

NEW YORK (AP) — A proposal to cut the operating budget of the Environmental Protection Agency by 36 percent in 1983 has been submitted by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), The New York Times reported today.

The Times quoted the EPA's administrator, Anne Gorsuch, as responding that such a severe cut would be devastating to the EPA. Officials in the agency said she will fight the proposal even if she has go to President Reagan.

According to the Times, Mrs. Gorsuch has suggested an 18 percent cut for the fiscal year 1983. This would come on top of cuts amounting to at least 16 percent already imposed on the agency by the OMB for 1981 and 1982.

Many environmentalists and members of Congress accused Mrs. Gorsuch of seeking to dismantle the agency when reports of her own budget cutbacks were reported. However, the Times reported that Mrs. Gorsuch defended her actions by saying the agency could be run efficiently and protect the land while meeting Reagan's goal of cutting back the budget in an effort to revive the country's economy.

But the Time reported EPA officials as saying Mrs. Gorsuch feels that if the proposed 36 percent cut is passed, the agency will be incapable of carrying out many of its environmental protection programs.

In addition to the suggested cut, the agency will also be hit with a 26 percent reduction in personnel. During budget talks, Mrs. Gorsuch suggested a 14 percent cut in personnel.

The budget reduction would also decrease the the agency's grants to the states by 34 percent year after next. The Times said Mrs. Gorsuch initially planned to reduce the state grants by 12 percent.

Negotiators cutting farm bill supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with mounting concerns that the House might reject a compromise farm bill, congressional negotiators are cutting back price support levels for sugar and peanuts. But the measure still faces a possible presidential veto.

The cuts in sugar and peanuts supports were made after the House-Senate conference committee agreed Wednesday on grain supports, a major stumbling block during the last two weeks of negotiations.

The negotiators have been trying to reach a compromise between the $16.6 billion House farm bill and the $10.6 billion Senate version endorsed by President Reagan.

But they have been working under the double threats of a presidential veto if the price tag on the compromise exceeds the cost of the Senate bill and rejection of the compromise by the House if sugar and peanut programs are included.

Average beef prices drop six cents a pound

DENVER (AP) — The national average price of five selected beef cuts has dropped six cents a pound since Oct. 8, the National Cattlemen's Association reported Wednesday.

The five-cut average on Nov. 12 was $2.38 a pound, compared with $2.44 on Oct. 8, the association said. Since July, NCA economist Jim Riley said, the five-cut average price has dropped 12 cents a pound.

The Denver-based association surveys supermarkets in 19 cities on the second Thursday of each month to determine the national average price of round, sirloin and T-bone steaks; chuck roast and ground meat.

The spokesman said the 19-city average price of ground beef was unchanged from October. Round, sirloin and T-bone steak prices were down and the chuck roast average was up, he added.

Deputy Nelson named to head immigration agency

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Alan C. Nelson, a deputy commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, was nominated Tuesday by President Reagan to head the agency.

Nelson's selection came as no surprise, as he had been the only person under serious consideration since Miami auto dealer Norman Braman withdrew his nomination for the top INS position last week.

Nelson, 48, is a long-time friend of Presidential Counselor Edwin Meese III and served in Mr. Reagan's cabinet when he was governor of California.

Nelson was assistant director of the Department of Human Resources Development and director of the Department of Rehabilitation between 1969 and 1975.

He joined the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. as a lawyer in 1975 and became its general attorney in 1978. He is on leave from that post.

Nelson and Meese were law school classmates and worked as deputy district attorneys in Alameda County in the late 1960s.

Nelson, who was appointed deputy commissioner two months ago, is not expected to have difficulty winning Senate confirmation. In his short time with the INS, Nelson has established good working relations with key senators, as well as representatives, on immigration and refugee issues.

He has been the agency's chief representative in testimony before House and Senate committees, in budget sessions with other administration officials, and in meetings with public interest groups.

The other INS deputy commissioner, Doris Meissner, a career Justice Department official with extensive experience with INS issues, is expected to remain as deputy under Nelson.

Another Californian, Maurice (Mike) Inman of Los Angeles, recently was appointed to be the INS general counsel.

If Nelson is confirmed, he will become the first permanent commissioner since Leonel Castillo resigned in October 1979.

House backs big Pentagon budget

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, urged to strengthen President Reagan's hand at the bargaining table with the Soviets, is overwhelmingly backing a record $197.4 billion Pentagon budget complete with the B-1 bomber and MX missile.

On the day Reagan launched a major arms-control initiative, the House approved the measure 335-61 Wednesday night.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, chief sponsor of the bill as chairman of the defense appropriations subcommittee, sought to delete $1.9 billion each for the B-1 bomber and the MX missile — the backbone of Reagan's strategic modernization program.

Addabbo, a New York Democrat, argued that the Pentagon didn't need the money because it could dip into more than $30 billion in unobligated funds left over from previous years.

But the House preserved the B-1 money, 263-142, and the MX funds, 264-139, as member after member alluded to Reagan's offer earlier in the day to cancel plans to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe if the Soviets remove their own theater nuclear weapons trained on European targets.

"I think it would be unconscionable for the Congress on this very day to pull the rug out from under the president," declared Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga.

And Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the House Republican leader, referred to the nuclear weapons systems as "instruments of peace and instruments of negotiation."

Addabbo was shouted down earlier in the floor action when he moved that $219 million for procurement of the Pershing missiles be stricken from the bill.

He contended that he was just trying to introduce some savings because the missiles are still under development and the money to buy them will not be needed for more than a year.

The appropriations bill totaled $196.6 billion when brought to the floor, but a net $836 million was added through amendments largely to bring it into compliance with the policy-setting defense authorization bill that had been approved the day before.

An attempt to cut procurement and research and development funds by 2 percent except for spare parts, repair parts and ammunition failed by just five votes, 202-197.

Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J., who offered the amendment, said it would have saved $1.65 billion and would have helped "bring the Defense Department in line with budget realities" elsewhere in the government.

The House-approved bill was described by the Appropriations Committee as containing the largest dollar amount ever enacted by a legislative body.

It calls for about $26 billion more than the Pentagon had in the last fiscal year, and that increase alone is more than the total budget for many Cabinet departments.

ARMED FORCES NEWS

Changes in assignment, status noted

Airman Rene L. Flores, son of Juanita Flores of San Juan, Texas, and brother of Juan M. Flores of Big Lake, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

Flores

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

Marr

Chief Petty Officer Marr is now serving on Board Commander in Chief, U.S. Atlantic Fleet Headquarters.

Marr is a 1963 graduate of Midland High School.

Army National Guard Pvt. Franklin G. Hummell Jr., son of Charlene Lacy of 4304 Princeton, Midland, has graduated as an armor crewman at the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky.

Hummel

The training was conducted under the One Station Unit Training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

During the course, students received training in the duties of a tank crewman, including firing the tank's armament and small weapons. Instruction is also given in field radio opertions, map reading, and tank maintenance and repair.

Army Pvt. Gary D. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn H. Hall of Crane, has completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

During the training, students receive instructions in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Airman Michael B. Sager, son of retired Navy Master Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. Lawrence B. Sager of 3509 Hyde Park, Midland, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is a 1979 graduate of Ryken High School, Leonardtown, Md.

Navy Airman Kenneth H. Draper, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Draper, of Midland and Navy Seaman Apprentice William J. Snell, a 1981 graduate of Lee High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Snell also of Midland, have completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

Draper and Snell both joined the Navy in July 1981.

Senators seeking compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are hoping President Reagan will agree to further reductions in the defense budget in exchange for deeper cuts in domestic spending as they work to avert a veto of a stopgap spending resolution.

The Senate was voting today on a proposal to cut approximately $3.6 billion from the spending measure, which is necessary because Congress still has not passed any of the regular appropriations bills needed to run the executive and judiciary branches for fiscal 1982.

The House, meanwhile, is overwhelmingly backing a record $197.4 billion Pentagon budget complete with the B-1 bomber and MX missile.

The House approved the measure 335-61 Wednesday night.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, a New York Democrat who chairs the defense appropriations subcommittee, sought to delete $1.9 billion each for the B-1 bomber and the MX missile — the backbone of Reagan's strategic modernization program.

But the House preserved the B-1 money, 263-142, and the MX funds, 264-139, as member after member alluded to Reagan's offer earlier in the day to cancel plans to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe if the Soviets remove their own theater nuclear weapons trained on European targets.

The House-approved bill, according to the Appropriations Committee, had the largest dollar amount ever enacted by a legislative body. But it still was $3.4 billion less than the $200.8 billion package sought by the administration and $11.1 billion less than the $208.5 billion version that cleared the Senate Appropriations Committee earlier this week.

The stopgap spending measure before the Senate must be enacted by midnight Friday to keep the government from technically running out of money, although Congress in the past has missed similar deadlines and few if any services have been curtailed.

The proposal by Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee was designed to meet Reagan's conditions for additional spending cuts, and would exclude defense cuts above the $2 billion Reagan requested in September.

It still would have to be approved by the Democrat-controlled House.

Congressional sources who asked not to be identified said Wednesday that Baker and other GOP leaders still were hoping Reagan would agree to further reductions in the military budget. If he did so, the sources said, it would be easier for Baker to win approval of his proposed ⅞ reduction in domestic programs.

Republican Senate sources have conceded that a veto, the first of Reagan's presidency, is likely without further cuts. Reagan, retreating from his initial request for a 12 percent across-the-board reduction, said Tuesday that he would be satisfied with a 5 percent cut.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., charged, however, that Reagan would veto the legislation anyway just "to get a headline."

—House and Senate negotiators broke a deadlock over grain price supports and agreed to a four-year program that exceeds Reagan's spending target by nearly $450 million. Agreements on other commodities, including dairy, sugar, and peanuts, remain tentative and could be reworked before the committee reaches an overall farm bill compromise between the $16.6 billion House version and the $10.6 billion Senate plan endorsed by Reagan.

—The House overwhelmingly passed and sent the Senate a bill authorizing a secret amount of money for the CIA and other U.S. intelligence agencies for fiscal 1982.

—Senate conservatives said they will wait until next year to push for a vote on legislation reversing the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortions. Congressional sources added that it is also likely that decisive Senate action on other social issues, such as school busing and school prayer, will be put off until 1982.

Only one casualty recovered

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Navy officials say they have recovered the body of only one of four crewmen killed in a crash of a submarine hunting plane based on the USS Nimitz.

The men died when their S-3A Viking plunged into the Mediterranean Sea 70 miles northwest of Sicily and just one mile from the nuclear aircraft carrier Tuesday.

The subsonic jet aircraft had not been trying to land when it crashed, the Navy said Wednesday. The cause was under investigation.

The Navy identified the dead Wednesday as Cmdr. Phillip L. Reed, 38, of Orange Park, Fla., pilot and commanding officer of the plane's squadron; Lt. Douglas C. Deem, 27, of New Kensington, Pa., the co-pilot; Lt j.g. Carey A. Arthur, 24, of Wayne, N.J., and Petty Officer 3rd Class Charles M. Wade, 20, of Clinton, Miss, whose body was recovered.

It was the second fatal accident associated with the Nimitz this year. On May 26, 14 men were killed and 48 injured when a Marine EA-6B crashed while attempting to land on the carrier, which was off the Florida coast.

The Nimitz had sailed from Norfolk for a six-month Mediterranean deployment on Aug. 3.

No major shifts seen in N.J. voting

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — No major shift in voting patterns was reported as county employees began reopening the state's voting machines and rechecking paper ballots in New Jersey's contested gubernatorial election.

As the machines in 21 counties were opened Wednesday, each had more than a dozen people gathered around, said Thomas Cannon, a spokesman for state Attorney General James Zazzali.

Both Kean and Florio have two representatives and two lawyers on hand to join the four-member county elections boards. The county clerk, and in some cases, the superintendent of elections, also joined the crowd around the machines.

State Elections Director Neil Upmeyer estimated most counties would complete retabulating results on the 5,200 voting machines by Friday, but legal challenges and hand-counting of paper and computer card ballots could mean a wait as long as six weeks for the final results.

The state is not releasing recount figures and county election boards were told to release results only to the candidates, Cannon said.

But partial returns from the 21 counties tallied by Kean's campaign staff in Union showed Florio had picked up 507 votes and Kean had gained 419 votes.

All voting machines and other ballots have been impounded and under state police guard since the Wednesday after Election Day by order of outgoing Democratic Gov. Brendan T. Byrne.

Florio's staff in Stratford would not complete tallies for first day recount figures until today, said Fred Hillman, a spokesman for the candidate.

But aides to both agreed there was no major shift in the vote margin between Kean and Florio after the first day, which included recounts in the heavily populated counties of Bergen, Hudson, Essex and Union counties.

Hillmann said any change in votes was not expected from voting machine recounts. "The real contest will come over the paper ballots," he said.

FRESH CHRISTMAS TREES AND WREATHS SHIPPED DIRECT FROM THE VIRGINIA PLANTATION
You can have (or send to your friends) a Christmas Tree so fresh that it caresses your face with its soft foliage. The fresh needles will stay on the tree. We have shipped trees and wreaths to Texas friends for years.
The tree will be a groomed white pine just under six feet tall. It will be cut, wrapped in a net sleeve to protect it and shipped by UPS on the date you specify. The beautiful wreaths are pine, with cones and a big red bow--approximately 19" in diameter.
Delivered prices: Trees $29.95 Wreaths $17.50
