UNIVERSITY AFFILIATION

Excellent Work of Dublin School Again Places it in Favor at State University.

Dublin's educational institutions always enjoyed the distinction being among the best in state and for many years school here has been one ly a few in west Texas which admitted to affiliation with the universitiy and whose graduwere received there without er examination. A few years however, this affiliation was to the school by reason of discension among our home le, which materially affected sults of that particular term he school was refused further tion with the University until time as it's worth should prove ght. Through the efforts of superintendent however this ction of the University authoriwas removed to the extent that hool was returned upon pron to the offiliated list and it is one of but four schools in west of Waco and Ft. Worth is thus recognized. The folg letter to Superintendent E. ll from Prof. W. S. Sutton, man of the committee on ted schools, shows the present ing of the Dublin schools with arent institution at Austin:

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION

Throat of Former Dublin Citizen Cut From Ear to Ear at Temple by an Unknown Assailant.

News has just arrived here from Temple, Texas of a mysterious and murderous assault upon Jim Brumlow, formerly of this place at his bed room in the Oriental hotel at Temple about three o'clock Wednesday morning. Brumlow was suddenly awakened by his assailant who had entered the room and a hand to hand scuffle ensued until the intruder took flight, but in the meantime Brumlow's throat was cut from ear to ear with a sharp instrument presumed to be a razor. The occupants of the hotel were aroused and when they arrived found his windpipe severed and the man weak from loss of blood. Notwithstanding this however, he walked seven blocks uptown through wet and muddy streets in his night clothes to a doctor and later was taken to the King's Daughters hospital. His physicians say he has one chance in a thousand to recover, as he had contracted pneumonia from the exposure incident to his night walk. He is unable to talk but communicates to his attendants by writing.

Joe Antonio has been arrested charged with being his assailant and waived preliminary examination and has been placed in jail. No motive is known for the attack, which was certainly not robbery as the intruder had ample time to have gotton away with Brumlow's effects while he was yet asleep if he had desired to do so.

Brumlow was for many years a citizen of Dublin and was employed with the oil mill at this place for some time, leaving here to take a similar position at Temple. Later he went to Shreveport, La. on a similiar mission but recently returned to Temple temporarily leaving his wife at Shreveport.

The report from Temple says that Brumlow enjoys an excellent reputation there.

Letter From a Soldier Boy.

Our farmer friend E. J. Hughes this week showed us a letter from T. J. Luker, written from Ft. Caswell, N. C., under date of May 15th. Young Mr. Luker is a son of John W. Luker of Proctor and he joined the army in the fall of 1901 and was immediately sent for duty in the Phillipines, from which place he only returned about two months ago and is now stationed at Fort Caswell. His letter, among other things says:

"I cannot say that I am very well satisfied just at present, as I don't like this place, though we are very well fixed up here and have fine quarters and everything convenient. I would prefer to be in the islands, though I can hear from home more often here and of course that part of it suits better. You ask me to give a description of the Philippines; well, in the first place I will say that it isn't anything to compare with the United States. It is so hot all the year that it gets monotonous. There is rarely any change in the temperature, and about three months in the year it rains continuously, beginning about June 20th and lasting until up in September and sometimes into Octoqer. This is called the rainy season and the rest of the year is just the other extreme and is called the dry season, so you see the rainy and dry season is all we have.

The famous "water cure" isn't any too bad for some of those people, though I did not have very much experience with them, for civil government went into effect shortly after I got there.

The most fighting that I had was fighting that dread disease, cholera. It makes a fellow feel funny when he is just waiting for his time to come and has it all figured out when he is going to go. I consider myself very lucky that I'm not laying out in some cocoanut grove.

The country all through is very mountainous. Some of the people are becoming civilized to some extent but some of them are almost as wild as rabbits and a very treacherous class. If you could only see some of our soldier boys who have had the hard luck to fall in the way of some of these people, you would not blame Gen. "Jakey" Smith for wanting to make Samar a "howling wilderness." There were some boys who came on the "Thomas" with us who had been chopped up some. One poor fellow had an eye jabbed out.

The average Filipino is a pretty tough customer. He lives on rice and fish and the clothes that he wears will never overload him. Shoes are almost unknown. Some of them walk on wooden blocks to keep their feet out of the burning sand. His highest ambition is to have a well trained game rooster, and he will gamble all of his possessions on that one chicken. I think gambling is as natural with them as eating. Another thing I will mention, when a member of a family dies they have what they call a Fiesta, I guess it means feast. They drink wine and sing all night, and if they live in a village they get the ochestra to play. The wealthier class never bury their dead but put them in a vault."

Magnitude of St. Louis Exposition.

A general idea of the magnitude of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held at St. Louis next year, may be had from the following important facts:

The World's Fair of 1904 at St. Louis will be approximately twice as large as any former international exposition.

The Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia covered 236 acres, the Paris Exposition of 1899-1900, 336 acres, the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, 633 acres.

The World's Fair at St. Louis will cover 1180 acres.

The construction cost of the Centennial Exposition was $8,500,000 that of the Paris Exposition was $9,000,000. The cost of the Columbian Exposition was estimated at $18,322,000 and the total cost was $27,250,000.

The estimated construction cost of the St. Louis World's Fair is $30,000,000, and its total cost will be upwards of $40,000,000 by the time the work is completed.

Before the exposition gates are open, the city of St. Louis will have expended the enormous sum of $20,000,000. Of this amount $5,000,000 was appropriated for the Fair through the Municipal Assembly. Citizens of St. Louis raised $5,000,000 additional by private subscription. By popular vote at a special election the Charter Amendments were carried, which will enable the city to expend $10,000,000 for street paving and other public improvements.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Coffee Tried and Found Guilty.

No one who has studied its effects on the human body can deny that coffee is a strong drug and is liable to cause all kinds of ills, while Postum is food drink and a powerful rebuilder that will correct the ills caused by coffee when used steadily in place of coffee.

An expert who has studied the subject says:

"I have studied the value of foods and the manufacture of food product from personal investigation and wish to bear testimony to the wonderful qualities of Postum Cereal coffee. I was an excessive coffee drinker, although I knew it to be a slow poison. First it affected my nerves and then my heart but when I once tried Postum I found it easy to give up the coffee, confirmed coffee fiend though I was.

"I know that even where coffee is not taken to excess it has bad effects on the constitution in some form or other and I am convinced by my investigation that the only thing to do if health and happiness are of any value to one is to quit coffee and drink Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The World Could be Put in Texas.

It is safe to say that four men out of five picked at hazard from the inexpert would deny off hand a declaration that the entire population of the earth could be concentrated in the state of Texas, and still have abundance of room for exercise. At first glance the proposition does seem absurd, but here are the facts: There are in the world approximately 1,483,000,000 persons. The earth's surface includes 51,238,800 square miles of territory, giving twenty-nine inhabitants to each square mile. There are in Texas 267,780 square miles. As each of these contains 640 acres, the acres included in the state number 170,090,290. To distribute here the population of the earth we divide 1,488,000,000 by 170,099,200, and find that each acre will have a fraction above eight and one-half persons. For convenience of calculation this may be raised to nine. Nine persons to the acre. But what space in feet would this show for each? An acre contains 43,560 square feet, therefore each person would have 4,840 square feet of real estate. The square of 4,840 square feet is approximately 70; thereefore every man, woman and child in the world if compelled to huddle in Texas, would be given a building lot 70 feet square—enough for a modest cottage with a bit of a lawn in front, a kitchen garden in the rear, and enough space on either side to be free from inqusitive neighbors. In other words take every man, woman and child on earth and stand them at equal distances one from another in our state of Texas, and they would be compelled to raise their voices to be heard in conversation.

There are now about three and a half million Texan. Let Texas manufacturers supply the goods consumed by this number, and our home industries will grow rapidly and add to the prosperity of every citizen in the state.—Exchange.

Unique Find.

Dr. W. B. Anderson of this city has in his possession what is undoubtedly the skull of a human who existed many, many centuries ago. This was found in a vault built of stone, buried beneath the ground. In the same enclosure were the skulls and some of the bones of five human beings. They were dug up on the farm of W. F. Grogan, who lives four miles east of Elkins, and fifteen miles down the Bayou.

To realize the length of time that must have elapsed before such a shaped head could develop into the present shape of the human skull it is but necessary to see this relic of centuries past. The facial angle, near 90 degrees in the human of today, does not exceed in this specimen 45 degrees, at the least estimate. The head is just about twice as long as it is deep—that is from the back of the head to the protruding lower jaw is about twice the distance from the top of the skull to the bottom.

More remarkable, still, perhaps, is that the skull contains only twenty teeth and yet every bit of available space is taken up by them. And from the time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary man has had thirty-two teeth. Yet this has only twenty, leaving twelve missing. The lower jaw protrudes so and the upper part of the face slants back at such a facial angle that the upper teeth have to stick out almost horizontally to meet the lower, and yet they articulate perfectly.

The interior of the head has years ago filled with clay, and is now thus held together.

The five skulls were on top of some bones and a quantity of ashes, indicating that part of the body had been cremated. There are several mounds in the immediate vicinity, and Mr. Jennings, an agent for machinery, who brought the specimen in, says Mr. Grogan believes many others can be secured. It seems to be a valuable find and may prove of great importance in delving into the past.—Brownwood Bulletin

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN FLOODS

SCORES DEAD, HUNDREDS SICK AND THOUSANDS HOMELESS.

HOURS ADD TO HOPELESSNESS

Des Moines, Topeka and Kansas City Scourged and Saint Louis Under Ordeal.

Kansas City, Mo., June 3.—Sweeping from its fiercest fury at Des Moines last Friday to Topeka Sunday, on down to Kansas City Monday and Tuesday, the great torrent—an unparalleled flood—goes on. St. Louis is now its seat of coming menace.

Kansas City, Mo.: Many of its people dead, thousands of them homeless, with half its acreage beneath a resistless torrent, its business interrupted, its public service facilities crippled, Kansas City and its sister town across the foaming Kaw had this encouragement today—that the crest of the flood was reached.

Yet this realization not only brought home the more distinctly an appreciation of the tremendous losses, of the terrific blow which the water has dealt. Now the calamity wrought by the millrace flow of a gigantic tide through the commercial artery of the metropolis of the Valley of Kaw can be understood. The more information concerning the damage by the flood, the more appalling does the disaster become, the more clearly is it perceived what the city faces, and what a great task the work of restoration will be.

But the havoc is not yet over. The crest is reached, not passed. The Kaw still pours through the West Bottoms, through Armourdale, through Argentine, through the low-lying edges of Wyandotte, and from the east and west sides it is seen that the foundations of buildings are weakening and that the course of the rivers threaten to change.

The Kaw is falling, but the Missouri is rising, so that the joint volume remains stationary and rushes down upon the East Botoms and all the lowlands east of Kansas City, a warning to all within possible reach between here and St. Louis.

The conduct of the currents of both rivers today is more alarming. Assistant United States Engineer B. F. Smith, who ventured to the north bank via the Hannibal bridge, is of the belief that an entire change of the Missouri's course is likely. The same has hardly been noted of the Kaw. Miles over the lowlands, the Burlington's twenty-foot embankment from the Clay County hill connects with the bridge. This approach on the north is washed away for a hundred yards well over toward the bluffs, and is spanned only by the rails held together by the fishplates. In great billows the current of the Missouri River is washing the bluffs. Near the cut in the approach, the course of the river swings in and rushes through the opening with the noise of a tornado.

This condition has wiped out Harlem, the town of 600 population, which, until Sunday, had existed upon these lowlands. All houses but six are washed away, and these are going. The rise was slow here and the warning prompt, and no lives are known to have been lost.

The Kaw's performances today are yet more startling. Its current is cutting into the bluffs directly at Union Station. Where Sunday morning the last trains discharged their passengers, the stream appears to be rooting out a new bed. Cars are toppling over on their sides, showing that the ground beneath is sinking away. The one-time platforms are loosened and floating. The current is charging through such openings as it finds with fearful force. Hence the possibility that among the other things which a final reckoning with the flood will leave, Kansas City's place upon the map will be changed. Then the Hannibal bridge would cross the Kaw, not the Missouri River, and the entire topography of the territory contiguous to Kansas City would be a different matter.

An estimate of the loss of life is futile. Evidences show, however, that it is great and warrants the belief that with the small settlements near the river's course just above Argentine, those that populated the east bottoms and those drowned at Kansas City, Kan., it will exceed two hundred.

Policemen, street car men and others who have patroled the elevated tracks across the bottoms, such of it as stands, report having seen in the seething waters below many a ghastly dead face. An arm, a hand, bobs up, or the current for a brief moment churns the entire body to the surface. This may come from far up the river, possibly Topeka, but the definite reports of persons missing or seen to be whirled into the flood indicate that in and near Kansas City death has reaped a startling harvest.

Topeka, Kan., June 3.—The flood situation in Topeka can be briefly summarized thus:

Known dead, forty-eight.

River has fallen three feet and is now receding at the rate of two inches an hour.

Distress will be great among the refugees.

Governor Bailey issues a proclamation calling for help for flood sufferers of the state.

Fifty deputy sheriffs armed with winchesters go to North Topeka to protect property, with orders to shoot looters whenever they are caught stealing.

A meeting of the representative people of North Topeka who are on the south side was held today to arrange for systematic protection of their property in North Topeka.

Immediately after the meeting a large number of armed men left in boats for the north side, where they will guard property, and their orders are to shoot.

The river is three feet below high water-mark. It is the opinion of experts that the river will go down rapidly from now on. The Blue, the Republican and the Solomon have spent their force, and the volume of water spread over the Kaw bottom will hunt its channel quickly.

The situation in the flood districts is better than it has been, as fewer people are marooned in houses, in trees and on islands. Nobody is now clinging to trees. Not to exceed 400 people are in North Topeka. The work of taking them out began at an early hour today, and it is believed that by night few will be left in the flooded town.

There is no way of getting at the amount of damage done by the flood in Topeka and vicinity. The damage may reach $2,000,000. It may go beyond that, and it may be much less. Crops in the Kansas bottoms are destroyed. This makes an enormous loss to the farmers.

Governor Bailey has communicated with the Federal authorities, and hopes he will have no trouble in securing the use of whatever tents are needed.

The greatest fear now in Topeka is an epidemic of disease. At relief depots where refugees are huddled together several persons suffering with contagious diseases were removed to the hospitals as rapidly as possible. The absence of good drinking water is another disease breeder. Money is the thing most needed now, and citizens are contributing nobly, but the demand of the situation is great.

St. Louis, Mo., June 3.—St. Louis is making strenuous preparations to defend itself against the mighty flood which is sweeping down upon the city through the shallow channels of the Missouri. The first wave of this flood, which has wrought such destruction at Topeka and Kansas City, arrived at the St. Louis levee this morning. Steadily the river rose, above the lower levee, above the wharves, the railroad tracks, the lumber yards which line the river front, past the danger line thirty feet, past the thirty-one foot mark, past the thirty-two foot mark.

So rapidly did the river rise and so much earlier than expected did the first of the flood arrive that much property could not be saved and already is under water from two to five feet. There is no doubt that the greatest since 1844, when the river rose forty-four feet in St. Louis, and untold damage resulted. Beyond question, the signal service prediction of thirty-four feet for St. Louis by Friday night will be realized. The crest of the wave is not expected before then, and the river is steadily rising tonight.

The lumber yards in North St. Louis are seriously threatened by the rising river. A quantity of lumber has already been swept away, and a rise of a couple more feet tonight will inundate the entire lumber district. Thousands of acres of fertile farm lands north and south of St. Louis are already under water, and many more thousands of acres are threatened. Hundreds of persons in the hamlets on the east bank of the Mississippi between East St. Louis and Alton have been driven from their homes.

THE GAINESVILLE TORNADO.

One Hundred Slain and One Hundred Hurt.

Gainesville, Ga., June 3.—Following is a summary of the effects of the tornado in Gainesville and its environments, which took place Monday afternoon:

One hundred killed.

One hundred and fifty injured, of whom probably twenty will die.

Eight hundred homeless, their residences having been wiped out of existence.

Property loss of about half a million dollars, none of which was covered by storm insurance.

A concise and accurate statement of the casualties can not be rendered for several days, but the physicians in attendance believe that it will not go very far above one hundred, although twenty-five or thirty are desperately injured and may die within the next two or three days.

DEATH'S DIRE CALL

EIGHTY-FIVE KILLED AND HUNDREDS WOUNDED.

IS NO RESPECTER OF PERSON

Gainesville, Georgia, in the Course of a Most Deadly Cyclone's Horrible Visitation.

Gainesville, Ga., June 2.—A tornado struck Gainesville yesterday afternoon out of a clear sky, causing a fearful loss of life in this city and in New Holland and White Sulhpur. As near as can be calculated at this hour eighty-five men, women and children are dead and perhaps forty more fatally injured, with a property loss of something like $300,000. The death list is inperfect, not all the bodies having been recovered and identified. Many of them are mangled beyond recognition, the only means of identification being the records of the two cotton mills, in which most of the victims worked. The storm appeared suddenly, a little before 1 o'clock, and within two minutes it had killed nearly a hundred people, torn two stories from the five-floor brick factory of the Gainesville Cotton mills, demolished almost two hundred cottages, razed several brick stores and blown down innumerable outbuildings. By what appears to be a miracle, the tornado's fury was confined to the outskirts of the city. Torrents of rain accompanied the wind, but within five minutes after its first onslaught the sun was shining upon a scene of fearful desolation. The list of the dead is confined mainly to the operatives of the Gainesville Cotton mills and the Pacolet Cotton mills, and two-thirds of them were women and children.

The bodies of the dead in the two cotton mills were fearfuly torn and mangled. The skulls of many of them were crushed and the limbs broken, while others were torn and crushed about the abdomen, with the viscera protruding. The local physicians who first gave aid to the injured say the sights were horrible beyond description. The death list is expected to be of much greater magnitude by morning, as nearly thirty are believed to be hurt beyond hope of recovery.

Unconfirmed reports from White Sulphur, seven miles from Gainesville, say that about twelve persons were killed there. Hopes are expressed that this report is unfounded.

The tornado did its appalling work in such an incredibly short time that it was difficult to obtain a coherent description of its character. It appears to have swept down from the southwest, striking the Gainesville mills with a roar like the report of artillery. After lifting two stories from this structure, it swept on to the northward, leaving a trail of destruction along Summit street, inhabited almost exclusively by negroes. Nearly a hundred cottages were leveled, the tenants were all absent, having left the city in the morning to take part in a negro picnic.

The furious wind next descended on the plant of the Pacolet Cotton mills at New Holland, two miles from the Southern station. This is one of the largest cotton mills in the South, employing more than 600 hands. The storm spared the Pacolet factory, but entirely demolished 100 of its cottages, standing near by ... by its operatives. Here ... were greatest, upward ... persons being buried in ... the cottages. To Build a Big Barn.

Dallas: It is given out by J. P. Clark, manager of the street railway interests here, that the people he represented would soon begin the construction of a one story brick barn in East Dallas. The barn is to cost about $50,000. It will front on Elm street and extend back to Main along Peak. The area covered will be 150x200 feet. The plans are still in the hands of the architect and may be somewhat changed.

After Long Service.

Little Rock, Ark.: It is reliably reported that Henry C. Caldwell, Federal Judge of the Eighth Circuit, will retire from the bench on June 4. Judge Caldwell is the only surviving appointee on the bench of President Lincoln, he having been appointed United States District Judge for the District of Arkansas in 1864. Judge Caldwell resides in Little Rock.

J. V. Burks, who is a liveery stable man at Hico, met with a serious accident. He was riding along the street at a quiet gate. His horse stumbled, and the rider's foot hung in the stirrup. The horse fell on him, breaking his leg just above the ankle.

St. Louis Apprehensive.

St. Louis, Mo.: The danger line on the Mississippi River at this point will be reached Tuesday, according to the local weather bureau. Rain is falling, and this, added to the heavy precipitation of the last two days, with the flood coming from the Missouri and other tributaries north, is causing the river to rise rapidly. At St. Charles, where the Missouri River is rising at an alarming rate, the high elevation of the city gives it security, but great damage has been done to farms in the valleys and on the islands.

Sudden Death of a Merchant.

Temple, Tex.: Ben H. Matthews died Monday evening. For some time Mr. Matthews had been ill, but had recently sufficiently recovered to be up and resume his business occupation. About two weeks ago he felt well enough to take an outing to Lampasas, where he had a severe fall from a wagon, causing him to again take to his bed. Mr. Matthews was a member of the firm of Matthews Bros., doing business in Temple, Waco and Waxahachie, and was very prominent in business circles.

THE FLOODS CAME

MISSOURI, KANSAS AND IOWA ARE FLOODED.

GREATEST RISE EVER KNOWN

Deaths Reckoned by Hundreds; Property Losses Estimated by Millions.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—The greatest flood in the history of Kansas City and the bottoms of Kansas City, Mo., is now on. Millions of dollars loss will result. A great body of water coming from the west swelled the Kansas river at Kansas City, Kan., causing a most alarming rise. Waters rushed with terrific force over the outlying railroad tracks and the crowded wholesale districts of the West Bottoms, and finally into the Union Depot.

At 10 o'clock yesterday a mile of big wholesale houses, elevators and freight depots were entirely surrounded. Basements that were partially submerged were soon brimful of water, and it began to reach the first floors. Within fifteen minutes the track entering the west end of the Union depot was entirely submerged, and at 11 o'clock the water had risen at such a rapid rate that the thousands of delayed passengers were making preparations to leave for the high ground up town. The waters rose so rapidly in the vicinity of the depot that many persons were forced to remove to the second floor, and preparations were made hurriedly to remove the passengers up town. Trains which have been waiting in the depot for hours for an opportunity to start west and south stand a foot deep in water. No trains have left Kansas City sinct Saturday night, and none left Sunday night, and perhaps won't leave for several days. Trains from the east also are late, many apparently having met the flood now being caused by the rise in the missouri river east of here.

Fifteen persons were drowned in the West Bottoms during the day. Because of the difficulty of recovering the bodies, the identification of most of the dead is impossible. The dead are reported as follows: James Deerman, drowned on Osage avenue; unknown man with two children, drowned at Mill and Osage; unknown woman dead in a mass of drift; William Herbert and two other persons, drowned at Second and Osage; three men and two women, drowned by the capsizing of a boat near the Union Pacific bridge; a man on a Belt Line engine, which was surrounded by water, and was seen to disappear.

Topeka, Kansas, June 1.—The greatest flood ever known in the history of the country is now raging down the Kaw and Missouri rivers in Kansas, Iowa and Missouri. The losses of property are incalculable and the loss of life is numbered by the hundreds.

With 175 or 200 lives lost, millions of dollars of property destroyed; hundreds of pistol shots as signals of distress, blending with the agonizing cries of unwilling inhabitants of treetops and roofs of houses, and the waters creeping upward, and then slowly subsiding, and alternately changing hope to despair, the Capital City has passed the most memorable Sabbath Day of its existence. To all this discomforting condition of affairs was added the presence of a cold, dismal rain.

The ardor of the rescue work of the heroic rescuers was not abated in the least by the conditions which confronted them. For long, dreary hours, knee deep in water, and sometimes in water up to their necks, they worked with might and main. They can proudly point to 300 or more rescued ones who might have been swept away in the current.

Leading men have made a careful examination of the flood and all its conditions, and as a result they give 250 as the probable number of lives lost. A more conservative estimate places the number of dead at 175.

The higher number is as apt to be correct as the lower. The number of deaths is merely a matter of estimate. Twenty members of the rescuing parties tell of how they saw people drop from houses, only to be swept away by the flood, and others tell of men who, terrified at the approach of the fire, dropped into the water, where they sank and did not reappear.

Briefly stated the condition of the North Topeka flood is this: People drowned, 170 to 200; people without homes, 8,000; property loss, $4,000,000; dead, five; floating bodies seen, 20; people missing, 200; houses burned as a result of the fire from slaking lime, probably 200; banks collapsed, two; wholesale grocery stores flooded, two; big business blocks almost ready to crumble, fifty; wholesale commission houses deserted, six; Rock Island train, containing 150 passengers, held here by the high waters; city waterworks plant useless.

The known drowned: Karl Rupp or Ville Rupp; two Rupp girls; G. H. Gardner's 5-year-old son. Twenty unidentified bodies.

Poor Peach Prospects.

Waco: C. Faulkner states that at Jacksonville and Tyler that there would not be much more than 5 per cent of a peach crop; that some of the fruit men had been counting on 15 per cent, but that they had revised their estimates, cutting them down, until they were quite small. The section of country about Waco will raise posibly more peaches than any other part of the state, as the freeze did but little damage in this way, killing only enough to relieve the overburdened trees.

Fifteen Negroes Drowned.

Memphis, Tenn.: Sixteen negroes composing two families of cotton hands, were drowned on the Mississippi river near Pecan Point, forty miles north of this city. They left Chiles' plantation after dark in two skiffs. Waves from a passing vessel capsized the frail boats and all hands save one went down. A lad, Will Bell, escaped by clinging to an oar. He was washed ashore and reported the tragedy to Dr. Chiles, who brought the news to Memphis.

Lampasas County Goes Pro.

Lampasas: The indications are that Lampasas county has gone dry by about twenty-five. All the boxes except four small ones have been heard from, and the pros are thirty-nine ahead. The four remaining boxes will not change the results materially. While this campaign was the most exciting ever held in Lampasas county, no affrays have occurred, and an intention to abide the result is evident.

Rev. C. T. Caldwell of Houston has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church at Waco.

NO RACE SUICIDE IN THIS FAMILY.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Weber and Children.

Oscar Weber of Atlantic City proves his belief in the "Rooseveltan theory" by striving to pound out a living as a cabinetmaker for a family of thirteen children, ten of whom are boys. The oldest child has reached the advanced age of 25, and the youngest is half past three.

Weber was born in Saxony and his wife is a Bohemian.

The accompanying photograph of the family is a chip shy, as one child was away from home when the camera was trained on the group.

Train Fell Into the Sea.

Santa Barbara, Cal.: Nearly thirty persons were injured by the falling of four coaches of the Southern Pacific southbound Overland Limited passenger train down a forty-foot embankment into the Pacific Ocean Friday night. The derailment occurred near Rincon, where the tracks run along a high cliff overhanging the ocean. Many passengers were wedged under the cars, but the coaches were partly floated by the sea, so the prisoners were not crushed fatally.

Work is progressing rapidly in rebuilding St. Edwards College at Austin. A force of men, more than one hundred and twenty in number, are striving to replace the building in time for the next scholastic session, and present indications are that they will be successful.

Henderson County Gone Dry.

Henderson: Returns are in from seventeen out of twenty boxes, and prohibition has carried in Rusk county by a majority of about 200. The battle has been hard fought, and the ladies and children worked in the streets from 7 o'clock a. m. until 6 p. m. Saturday. The church bells were rung almost all day and free dinner was served every one at the court house.

Fatal Shooting in West Dallas.

Dallas: About 11 o'clock last night Pat McFarren, a sacker in the employ of the Dallas Portland Cement and Lime Company at West Dallas, was shot and instantly killed near the cement works as he stepped out of his boarding house. A little later, George Britt, a market gardener, gave himself up to two city policemen, saying he had killed a man in West Dallas.

Walker County in Pro Column.

Huntsville: The prohibition election in Walker county Saturday resulted in a decided victory for the pros. A small vote was polled, the pro majority being about 200. Waverly, the only anti precinct in the county prior to the election, went anti by a majority of sixty-five votes. The result of the election was anticipated and but little interest was manifested.

Central Christian Church Dedicated.

San Antonio: The Central Christian church, a magnificent building, erected through the efforts of Rev. Homer T. Wilson, its pastor, was dedicated with imposing ceremonies Sunday night. In the afternoon window decoration ceremonies were conducted by the Travelers' Protective Association, of which Mr. Wilson is chaplain, and a fund of $2000 was subscribed with which to purchase a home for the chaplain. Large crowds attended.

Cyclist Elkes Killed.

Cambridge, Mass.: Harry D. Elkes of Glens Falls, N. Y., after breaking all records up to and including fifteen miles, was killed, and Will Stinson, bicyclist, and F. A. Gately, a motor steersman, were seriously injured Saturday in an accident in the first lap of the sixteenth mile of a motor-paced race at the initial bicycle meeting on the Charles River park track. The accident was due to the bursting of the rear tire on Elkes' wheel.

FEARFUL DISASTER

ENTIRE TOWN IN ASIATIC TURKEY ENGULFED.

TWO THOUSAND SAID TO BE LOST

Four Hundred Houses in Neighboring Villages Collapsed—Appeal for Relief.

Constantinople, May 29.—A terrible earthquake occurred April 29 at Melazherd, in the vilayet of Van, eighty miles southeast of Erzeroom, on the Euphrates in Asiatic Turkey.

The town was totally destroyed, with its entire population, numbering 2000 souls, including 700 Armenians as well as the troops forming the garrison of Melazherd. In all over four hundred houses in the neighboring villages collapsed.

A somewhat severe earth shock was felt here, but no damage was done.

London: The foreign office here received some details from the British counsul at Erzeroom regarding the recent earthquake, lasting thirty seconds, that was felt on the morning of April 29 through the entire district between Lake Van and the Russian frontier, and as far west as Kharput.

The town of Melazherd, consisting of 500 houses, was destroyed, and much havoc was wrought in the surrounding villages.

Col. Kalik Bey, commandig the garrison of Melazherd, with his whole family, three other officers and eighty soldiers, perished in the ruins. Lieut. Col. Taryib Bey, whose family perished, became insane.

The telegraph operator who sent the news of the catastrophe said he himself was badly injured, and that his wife and sister had been killed.

The foreign office has appealed for subscriptions for the relief of the destitute Mohammedans and Christians of the Melazherd district.

New York: The report of the United States vice-consul from Ezeroom says: Since Nov. 8, 1901, the beginning of the earthquake in this country, it has not ceased, and it seems to grow worse in these days. The demand for one-story houses is general, and stables are turned into sleeping rooms for safety, owing to their being built on the ground floor.

"It is with much regret that I have the honor to inform you of the disastrous occurrence of earthquake in the Canton of Melazherd, district of Billis, on the night of April 28, causing the death of 520 inhabitants, including eighty soldiers. The city is reported as half in ruins. The canton is composed of 500 houses, with a population of 1770. The shock has been strongly felt in Erezoom. Malazherd is situated thirty-eight hours from Brezum and eighteen hours from Billis."

To Enlarge Worth Hotel.

Fort Worth: There is every indication that a $100,000 addition to the Hotel Worth will be made and that work on the same will be commenced by the first of next September. The addition is to be six stories in height and is to contain about a hundred rooms, if the present plans of the owners of the property are carried out.

The court of criminal appeals at Austin held that a man must have paid his poll tax prior to Feb. 1, 1903, in order to qualify as a juror.

Judgment and Activity Save a Life.

Waco: Joseph Carlisle, a citizen of Waco, was bitten on the leg by a copperhead and was saved by Rev. D. C. Hardin, who bound a ligature above the wound made by the fangs of the serpent, then sucked the venom out, completing the entire operation in a few minutes. Mr. Carlisle was fishing in the Bosque when bitten by the copperhead and the minister, who resides nearby, rushed to the spot just in time to save his friend from a painful and certain death.

Negro's Leg Broken.

Cleburne: While turning a crank to hoist a large piece of stone at the site of the new Citizens National Bank a negro had his leg broken. One of the main ropes snapped, allowing the rock to fall several feet. The negro's leg was at an angle, hence the stone in its descent fell upon the outstretched leg, crushing it. The negro received imediate medical attention.

Won't Involve Chicago University.

Chicago: President Harper of the University of Chicago is strongly opposed to the idea of students acting as "strike breakers." A railroad company was apprised of this when it applied to the university for fifteen or twenty needy students to work as freight handlers, offering $60 a month for their services. Dr. Harper's attitude is that the university should not become compromised in labor disputes which does not concern itself.

Value in Money Alone.

New Orleans, La.: It has been conservatively estimated that New Orleans has made no less than $2,000,000 in cash from the various conventions that have been held there during the last six months. As a business investment the conventions have been worth many times more than the most sanguine have believed, unless stopping to count up the actual gains in dollars and cents. The Confederate veterans alone left in New Orleans fully $1,000,000. The others left at least $1,500,000.

Edison Partner of Marconi.

New York: It has been formally announced, says the world, that Thomas A. Edison has been taken into the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company as a member of its board of technical directors. Marconi is the only other member of this board at present, but arrangements are being made to engage a third electrical expert, Prof. Michael I. Pupin of Columbia university, inventor of the submarine telephone.

A General Rain.

Dallas: Reports from nearly every section of Texas indicate that there has been a general rainfall in the State Thursday and Thursday night. In some places there was considerable wind, with thunder and lightning and some hail, but beyond the destruction of some timber and the demolition of a barn, no serious damage is indicated. The moisture was much needed, as crops were three or four weeks late.

Strange Assault on a Woman.

Chickasha, I. T.: Mrs. Hart, widow, while on her way home from town Thursday night was halted at an alley by a man, who, after cursing and abusing her, struck her several times, knocking her unconscious. The assault occurred in an unsettled quarter and she was found an hour afterward and taken home. Mrs. Hart has no idea of her assailant's identity or the cause for the attack.

Found With His Throat Cut.

Navasota: George Malcom, a negro, was brought to this city on the International and Great Northern passenger train with his throat cut and other bad gashes on his face. He was unable to talk, but wrote his name and also that he was cut by another party. He was discovered by the side of the track near Copps between this city and Bryan. He can hardly recover.

Played With a Street Car.

Longview: Little Charlie Foster, who was playfully jumping on and off a street car, missed the step and fell underneath the box of the car and was dragged along, striking the ties and ground along the track. He was bruised and shaken up pretty badly, but not seriously injured, as fortunately, he was not thrown under the wheels of the car.

Several of the Thenyites were down Sunday and Sunday night

PALMER.

Regular Correspondence.

June 2nd.—We have had plenty of rain for the last week; a fine one Wednesday night and another Thursday night with some hail but not enough to damage crops. Also rained some last night and is raining to-day. It is too wet to plow but farmers have their crops in good condition and corn is about all laid by and looking fine.

King Herrington, Bob McPherson and J. D. Martin cut their volunteer oats yesterday.

As a result of the present wet spells spring oats will be fine. Wheat will also be much better than seemed possible ten days ago. Cotton, though late compared with average season is looking well. In view of these facts the farmer ought to feel hopeful for the future of this years crops.

Mr. Sheats has returned from New Mexico and is well pleased with that country.

Prof. Smith left yesterday for Denton to attend the Normal.

Our trustees have employed as principal next term of school, Prof. Jenkins of near Duffau. No assistant has yet been employed.

The young folks met for singing last Sunday at the home of W. P. McPherson. "After singing some of the boys solicited and obtained permission to escort the fair and unsophisticated participants of their innocent pleasures across the intervening undulations to their paternal abodes."

The best prescription for malaria, chills and fever is a bottle of Grove's Tastless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tastless form. No cure, no pay, price 50c.

HAZLE DELL.

Regular Correspondence.

June 2nd.—In looking over the Progress the past few weeks we found that the Hazle Dell correspondent was not on duty. He may be gone fishing, or he may be busy with his crop, the latter presumably.

Mrs. James Gillian of Gustine visited relatives near Hazle Dell Saturday and Sunday.

Prof. Jim Williams, who taught the Hazle Dell school, will leave in a few days for Denton to attend the State normal.

It is reported that at different times a panther has been seen near Flst Rock church. About two weeks ago the last time.

Numbers of fish are being caught from the Leon now. It is said that there are more fish in the river this spring than has been before for a number of years.

A Sunday school picnic is booked for Saturday before the second Sunday in June at Shiloh. Several Sunday schools will participate, and a grand time is expected.

James Gillian of Gustine was a visitor at the re-union at New Orleans. He says that while on his trip he saw no crops that will compare with those of Comanche county.

J. E. Palmer, a highly respected citizen of Gustine, died Sunday night, May 24th. Mr. Palmer suffered about three weeks of erysipelas in the face and head, and the best medical aid was had, but their efforts were a failure. He leaves a wife and three children.

Notwithstanding crops are at least a month later this spring than usual, they are looking exceedingly well at present. Considerable cotton had to be planted over on account of the frost on the first of May, but as a rule it is looking better than that which withstood the cold spell.

Wednesday evening a fine rain visited this section which caused farmers to rejoice and feel more hopeful of bountiful crops than they have in the last two years. During the evening, in the vicinity of Gustine, a hail storm formed and traveled in a northwesternly direction, destroying crops as it went. In some instances only portions of crops were hurt, in others entire fields were destroyed. Thursday evening another storm of the same kind partially and totally destroyed crops from the neighborhood of Dingler via Baggett and Lone Star to Wilson and in an easternly direction.

Worst of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. Its guaranteed by Overton Drug Co., druggists.

POINT LOOKOUT.

Regular Correspondence.

June 3rd.—We had a good rain on the 27th and 28th; corn is on a boom; cotton is not looking so well as the cut worms and other insects are ruining the stands. The cold nights are greatly retarding the growth of cotton and making it difficult to work, while the grass and weeds are plentiful.

Wheat and oats are about ready for harvesting and are good. The fruit crop is not so good as many thought for, but we think there will be plenty for home consumption and some to sell.

This scribe made a business trip to Stephenville Monday, and as usual on the first Monday the horse traders were on hand. Court was in session, and prohibition speakers calling the attention of the voters to go to the polls and vote for prohibition on the 6th inst.

Our gin man is making some improvements in the gin and anticipates a good run the coming season.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va. serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. Kings New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me". Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles consumption, pneumonia and grip. LIANG CHENG'S TITLE.

State Department Calls Him "Sir," but Diplomatic Corps Doesn't.

The title of Sir Chen Tung Liang Cheng, K. C. M. G., and the right of the new Chinese minister to it have been subjects of considerable gossip in the diplomatic corps, says the Washington Post. The state department has recognized the propriety of its use by the minister, but Count Cassini, the dean of the diplomatic corps, will refuse to do so.

It appears that Minister Liang has taken his title as a result of his decoration by Queen Victoria during her jubilee six years ago. The minister was a member of the mission headed by Chang Yin Huan, formerly envoy to the United States. Chang Yin Huan received the decoration of grand commander of St. Michael and St. George, and Minister Liang received that of knight commander of St. Michael and St. George. It is said that Huan, who, by the way, was executed during the Boxer revolt, never used the title of "sir," though his decoration was higher than that conferred upon Liang.

The question has arisen whether Chen Tung Liang Cheng can properly use the title "sir." His attitude has been shown by the notification given the state department by the Chinese legation directing the insertion in the diplomatic list of his name and title as follows: "Sir Chen Tung Liang Cheng." The state department has accepted the minister's designation, and in the list for April is found under China, "Sir Chen Tung Liang Cheng, K. C. M. G., appointed E. E. and M. P." It was further said at the department that the minister would be so addressed in official communications.

The diplomatic corps, however, particularly that section which comprises the European diplomats, insist that the minister has no right to the title, that he is a Chinaman and not an Englishman and that, though he is entitled to place the letters "K. C. M. G." after his name, that right does not extend to the use of "sir." It is said that Count Cassini will always address the minister as "Mr. Chen Tung Liang Cheng." In this action Count Cassini will be acting as dean of the corps and in accordance, it is said, with precedents which have prevailed in the capitals of other great powers.

BUREAU OF NEATNESS.

New Department For Train Men Established by Erie Railway.

The "bureau of neatness" is the latest department that has been added to the Erie railroad system, and it is expected to play an important part in the future appearance and conduct of conductors and train men, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The new bureau is the idea of W. L. Derr, superintendent of the Erie at Jersey City.

The plan is to provide each train man and conductor with a monthly ticket of admission and privileges of the bureau. By using this ticket the employee need not suffer from trousers bagging at the knee. Hereafter the bagginess will give way to neat and deep creases, for the ticket will entitle the holder to have his trousers pressed and cleaned twelve times each month, and it will be "up to him" if they sag midway when the superintendent comes around.

In order that the trousers may not lead in the procession of neatness the train men and conductors can have their tickets punched for six cleanings and pressings of other articles of wearing apparel. To round out their happiness they will not have to pay a dime to get the dust and mud removed from their shoes, but will be given twenty-five free shines.

The tickets are sent the men with Superintendent Derr's injunction to "be very careful about your personal appearance."

Fast Trolley Running.

The new trolley line between Chicago and Aurora is starting out to get some records. This is an electric railway built with a view to high speeds and is a part of a system which will reach the principal towns of Illinois. The run in question was between the terminals in Chicago and Aurora, thirty-five miles, and it was made in 34m. 39s.

Spring Cleaning Time.

Gird yourselves with gingham aprons, O
ye women of the land!
Pin your skirts to clear your shoe tops,
take the scrubbing brush in hand;
Boil up alkaline infusions, turn the whole house upside down;
Slop the floors with soap and water,
heedless of your husbands' frown.
Yank up carpets, rugs and matting, jerk
the pictures from the walls;
Have your pails of suds where we can stumble o'er them in the halls;
Pile the stairs till they are worse than any alpine steeps to climb;
Have the regular old picnic incident to cleaning time.

Fill the bath tub with umbrellas, books
and shoes and bric-a-brac;
Heap upon the grand piano kitchen dishes
in a stack;
Set the dinner on the mantel, though
there's little time to eat;
See that every one who enters wipes with care his muddy feet;
Keep the windows all wide open as you ply the mop and broom;
Have a hot and steamy vapor permeating
every room;
Swab and scrub and splash and spatter
in your fight with winter grime;
Revel in the moist discomfort incident to cleaning time.

Have the men with whitewash brushes
spread the tinted calcimine;
Take all necessary bedding out and air it on the line;
Have the furniture revarnished till the odor makes one faint;
See that all the woodwork glistens with a coat of shining paint;
Don't have anything to sit on, sleep on,
eat on; also frown
When you hear a meek suggestion as to
"some hotel down town;"
Let the masculine complainer know it's nothing short of crime
Not to make one's life a burden in the glad spring cleaning time.

Col. Chas. Hamilton, general manager of the Texas Central, passed up the road yesterday on a tour of inspection of the road from Waco to Stamford. In conversation with a reporter of the Progress the Colonel mentioned a number of plans which he had in view to increase the facilities of the road at this point and incidentally to add to the appearance of the yard here. Among these improvements is a change of the coal bins from their present position to a point on the west end of the yards and to move the stock pens off the siding east of town, greatly enlarge them and place them where they will be reached by the main line as well as the siding. Col. Hamilton's well known ideas of continued advancement is making his line not only one of the best equipped roads in the south but also the best looking piece of property in the Union.

The commencement exercises of the graduating class of the Dublin High school was held at the school auditorium last Friday evening and an excellent program rendered to a large audience, whose appreciation of the exercises was evident. On Wednesday and Thursday afternoons public exercises were held for the particular benefit of the children of the primary and intermediate grades. The graduating class this year was Henry Lawrence Stancil, James Caswell Latham, Joe Martin Higginbotham, William J. Clay and Miss Mary Ella Stine, each one of whom rendered their particular assignment in the the exercises in a most creditable manner. The valedictory address was especially eloquently delivered by Henry L. Stancil.

The incorporation of Dublin was voted March 15th, 1889, by a vote of eighty-five to seventy-one. It embraces two and one-half by one and one-half miles, according to the boundaries published in the Progress of March 9th, 1889. The first election for city officers was held on April 2nd. The candidates for mayor were T. C. Murphy, W. T. Miller and R. H. McCain, the latter being elected, and for city marshal P. K. Barkley and Joe E. Bishop, the latter elected. The board of aldermen were J. W. Hurt, H. A. Smith, John Harber, A. A. Chapman and Nick Keith.

From the last weeks issue of the Dalhart Texan we learn that Editor Geo. F. Kornegay of the Dalhart Sunday has given bond in the sum of $10,000, the bond being made in open court immediately after the judge named the amount. Kornegay was formely editor of a paper at Blanket and previous to that published a newspaper at Rising Star. A few days since he shot and killed on the streets of Dalhart, a prominent attorney of that place.

The school board at El Paso last year adopted a rule requiring the lady teachers elected to positions in the schools there to wear short skirts to guard against infection while walking with their skirts sweeping the side walks. This year the requirements also provide for a rigid medical examination in order to provide against the spread of consumption.

W. G. (Gus) Brown and lady, who have been visiting a week or more at Lingleville, left Dublin Wednesday night for the Panhandle country to spend a few days with F. M. Brown and family, formerly of Lingleville, after which they will return to their home in the city of Washington, where Mr. Brown is engaged in the treasury department of the federal government.

Services as usual at the Christian church next Sunday. Juniors at 2 o'clock and Endeavor at 3:30 p. m. Missess Hartgrove and Gilbert, having returned from, school will be present and assist in the music, Those who desire to go to the Christian convention at Mineral Wells next week please let us know of it.—G. H. Morrison.

The city council of Taylor, is considering the question of purchasing the local water and light plant. A committee was appointed by the council to appraise the property and the committee valued it at $75,000. An election will be ordered at once on a bond issue for that amount and purpose.

A report comes from Baird, Texas, under recent date as follows: Judge F. S. Bell of Baird has in his possession two old style horse pistols and a Bowie knife carried by ex-Governor P. H. Bell, of Texas during the war with Mexico. With one of these pistols Governor Bell killed the colonel of the famous "White Horse Mexican cavalry" at the battle of Monterey. During the hottest part of the battle General Taylor observed this valiant colonel leading his forces with conspicuous bravery and energy and called for the best shot in the American forces to kill him. General Bell was selected by H. P. Bell, afterwards General Bell of the Confederate army, directed to General Taylor to kill the Mexican colonel, saying if this could be done it would win the battle, and with one of the pistols now owned by Judge F. S. Bell he killed him.

His Last Hope Realized.

From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad weather, which together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a minute the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. The one little bottle worked a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel greatful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Overton Drug Co.

Will Preach the Truth.

A Macon, (Mo.) preacher has announced that hereafter he will preach only the truth at funerals, and that he does not propose to make immaculate saints of hell-bound sinners. That's all wind. Whenever a preacher or an editor starts out to tell the entire truth in either funeral notices or wedding announcements there will be something doing. And yet there will be a happy medium which will meet the demand for reform. It certainly should be disgusting to read some of the sickening slush which appears whenever a couple get married, and this advertising of the bride as the fairest specimen of womanhood in all Iowa, when she is probably pug nosed and freckled faced and so pigeon toed that her tracks point east when she is going south, is just a little too strong to set well on the average human. The same thing happens when the preacher euologizes a notoriously bad citizen right into the pearly gates, and the living know it is a sham, while it certainly don't do any good to the dead. No more sense is shown by a lot of long-winded resolutions of respect on the part of people who would not associate with the man or woman while alive. A reasonable amount of soft soap is a good thing, but this overdoing of the thing is to be deplored.—Creston (Ia.) Advertiser.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription changed hands in San Francisco, August 30th, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $112,500.00 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, hitherto incurable diseases.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic incurable cases, and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to Aug. 25, eighty-seven per cent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address JOHN J. Case of Jessamy

Slim, gray-clad Jessamy Wright heard the sentence in silence—to be sold into slavery in the colony of Virginia for the crime of witchcraft.

Of what avail would be protests or bewailings. Had not Hon. Maj. Golden, intimate of the magistrate and head of the soldiery, been chief witness against her?

The sentence pronounced, the court room emptied rapidly, and Jessamy, surrounded by soldiers, turned in the direction of the town prison. No friendly face greeted her as she passed out of the court room, yet something bade her hope.

Nor was she wrong. Through the gathering twilight a man was hurrying from her and yet for her. Only a simple ship-joiner was John Hapgood, yet within his breast was locked the secret with which he hoped to force the infamous head of the Massachusetts soldiery to acknowledge that he had given false testimony.

John Hapgood loved Jessamy Wright as woman is seldom loved by man, and it was this which made him bold to raise the great brass knocker of the gloomy house in Cornhill where Maj. Golden and his staff were quartered.

The door opened and a soldier in scarlet uniform frowned upon the man of unpretentious bearing who had dared call upon his commander at the latter's supper hour.

"I wish to see Maj. Golden, and that right quickly," said John Hapgood.

"What name?"

"The name matters little so I will not give it; but the matter is pressing."

Something in Hapgood's tone impressed the soldier, who led the way to a great room off the hall, where golden in his gaudy uniform, stood staring gloomily into the yawning fire place. He gave Hapgood a supercilious glance, but the latter spoke up briskly as the soldier retired:

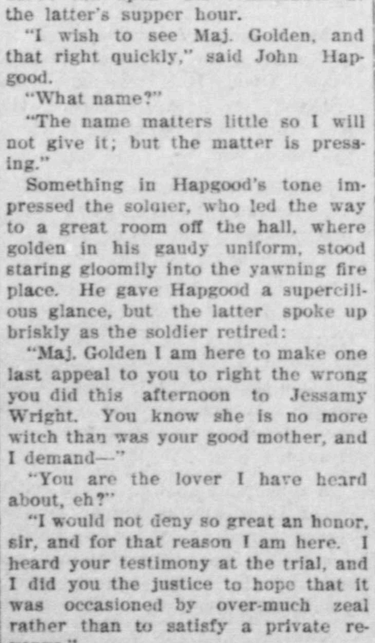

"Maj. Golden I am here to make one last appeal to you to right the wrong you did this afternoon to Jessamy Wright. You know she is no more witch than was your good mother, and I demand—"

"You are the lover I have heard about, eh?"

"I would not deny so great an honor, sir, and for that reason I am here. I heard your testimony at the trial, and I did you the justice to hope that it was occasioned by over-much zeal rather than to satisfy a private revenge."

"Private revenge? What mean you, sirrah?"

"What I know, Maj. Golden—that

"What would Boston say to the forged note given for a gambling debt?"

once you wooed, but did not win, Jessamy Wright, and therefore, swore revenge. How this matter came to my ears is not for you to know, but if the good folk from Boston were to hear—"

Golden drew himself up proudly.

"The good folk of Boston would say that it is but the idle prating of an addle-pated fool. I am Maj. Golden, representative of our king and betrothed to the governor's niece."

"Think well, Maj. Golden. This is your last chance."

"Ah, you threaten. Well, do your worst. Sentence is passed and the Governor, who alone may pardon, is on a journey."

Hapgood passed arcund the table and confronted the angry major.

"Nor is your false testimony all that I know. What would Boston say to the forged note given for a gambling debt? And what was the name you bore in our mother country? Ah, I see you have not forgotten."

With a gasp of rage Golden drew his sword and rushed upon Hapgood,

Like a ghost she flitted down the hall.

but the latter, anticipating the move, had leaped backward, and now, with the precision of a trained swordsman, held his ground with a cutlass snatched from the wall.

Golden swore and sputtered as he fought, but Hapgood wasted no energy in words. So sturdily did he press his opponent that Maj. Golden realized that his chances were ill, indeed.

The blades rang fiercely. The crafty Golden, pretending to yield, fell back to the wall, jerked the bellrope and then renewed his attack with a vigor that surprised and unarmed his adversary just as soldiers rushed to their commander's aid.

Five minutes later John Hapgood, limp and apparently lifeless, lay in a cross-road, pierced in half a dozen places.

"A good job," murmured Golden, smoothing the braid on his gray coat. "The watch will find the body in the morning and all Boston will say that John Hapgood was killed in a tavern brawl with some of my drunken men."

* * * * *

Mistress Anne Spencer, niece of the Governor, gave a shrill scream and clutched the arm of the men servants who attended her homeward from a neighborly call.

The servant on her left raised his lantern, and all three stared down upon the huddled figure. Then one of the men bent over and felt for the heart, which still beat faintly.

Mistress Spencer was no coward.

"He is sorely wounded. Bear him to the house and let us waste no time," she straightway commanded.

She carried the lantern while her two servants bore the senseless form of John Hapgood into the Governor's mansion. Then, with tender and not unskilful hands, she bound up his wounds, and, sitting by his side all through the early night watches, she listened to the words of delirium, which told her much.

But it was until his brain cleared in the early morning hours that she learned the whole bitter truth concerning the man to whom her hand had been promised in marriage. Her hand, but not her heart, and politics went down before this love story of another and a sadly wronged woman.

Mistress Spencer was not one to hesitate when assured that she was right. The Governor was gone, to be sure, so also was his good wife, but in the library, a dull and shadowy place, was that which she needed sorely, and which she meant to find.

Like a ghost she flitted adown the hall, through the door which creaked warningly as she passed through, and up to the massive table, where, holding her candle aloft, she searched eagerly for a packet of parchment forms and the ponderous seal of her uncle, the Governor.

Then came silence, save for the quick scratching of her quill as she filled in the blank forms. Her uncle's name she signed with a great flourish, and then, leaning back, she surveyed her work with much satisfaction.

"The good Lord knows that there is forgery and forgery," she murmured, without a qualm of conscience.

There was no time to lose. The vessel which would carry Jessamy into Virginia slavery sailed at dawn. Again attended by her faithful servants, Mistress Spencer sallied forth, this time toward the town jail. To the warden she said:

"It matters not how this came Some one rode hard and fast that an innocent woman might be saved a terrible wrong. Set her free and have it known she is with me at the home of our most excellent Governor."

There was a stormy scene that morning, when the Governor arrived at his home, but tired and sleepy though she was from her hard night and long vigil, fair Mistress Spencer carried the day.

There was much wonderment and secret gossip over the sudden release and pardon of Jessamy Wright, the strange wounds of John Hapgood and the sudden sailing of Maj. Golden, late commander of his majesty's forces.

But while tongues wagged, the hearts of two lovers, tried and true, sang a hymn of thanksgiving, and Mistress Spencer also gave thanks for that which she had been spared through finding poor John Hapgood in her pathway that dark and dolorous night.—Scott I. Littlefield in Utica Globe.

TOLD TO BE A WOMAN.

A Remark That Set a Groaning Man Patient to Thinking.

"We men are frequently called cowards when it comes to enduring physical pain, and it may be we deserve it, for how often do we hear about a man not being able to suffer as much pain as a woman," said a treasury official, "but I never had the fact so forcibly presented to me as one morning last week. I had been suffering from my head for a few days and on my way to the office one morning last week determined to see the doctor about it, and did so. Contrary to all rules concerning a visit to the doctor, the pain became more intense instead of stopping or even getting better.

"It may have been that my groans disturbed the patient for whom the doctor was prescribing in an adjoining room. At any rate, in a short time the door flew open and I prepared to pour my woes into his sympathetic ear. Instead I was greeted with: 'What in heaven's name is the matter with you, Jack? What are you groaning about?'

"I tried to tell him, and, feeling rather ashamed of myself, made it a little worse than it really was. 'Is that all?' came back at me; 'well I'll get to you after while; you have a little cold, and for heaven's sake stop your moaning; brace up, and be a woman for once in your life.'

"After that blow I remained quiet until it came my turn to seek medical advice. I then agreed with him that it was nothing but a slight cold, and he laughingly told me as I went out that he hoped that the last dose would be as beneficial as the first."—Washington Post.

The Sick Child.

He for whom the world was made
Can not lift his heavy head,
All its pretty curls puffed out,
Burnt with fevers, parched with drought.

He, the tyrant, whimsical,
With the round world for his ball,
In a dreadful patience lies,
Old since yesterday and wise.

Like a martyr on the rack
Smiles, his soft lips burnt to black,
While the fever still devours
His small body, sweet as flowers.

Dreadful patience like a sword
Stabs his mother's heart, dear Lord;
Make him naughty, wild and gay,
As he was but yesterday.

Little services he pays
With his kisses and his praise,
While his eyes ask pardon still
That he's troublesome and ill.

He lies smiling with a fire
In his cheeks blown high and higher,
By the wind of fever fanned,
Lord, his kisses on my hand!

Give me back my boy, I pray,
Turbulent, of yesterday.
Not this angel, like a sword
In his mother's heart, dear Lord!
—Katharine Tynan, in Spectator.

Hissing in the Theater.

With some curiosity we have noted a discussion recently of a Boston judge's decision that a spectator at a theater has a right to hiss. There seems to be a widespread sentiment of satisfaction over this reaffirmation of the right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness. As freeborn citizens we applaud the ruling of the learned court, yet venture to hope that the establishment of the right will not lead to general seizure of it. If a patron feels aggrieved by the entertainment offered in return for his money it is better for him to withdraw and advertise the fact to his friends rather than thrust it down the throats of strangers who may hold different views. Let him retire to the box office and hiss the manager or wait at the stage door and hiss the offending thespians as they emerge.

A LIFE FOR A LIFE

FIRST WHITE MAN TO HANG IN BOWIE COUNTY.

SHUTT PAYS EXTREME PEAATY

He Killed His Former Partner in Cold Blood—All Efforts at Reprive Fail.

Texarkana, Tex., May 30.—J. E. Shutt was hanged at New Boston at 5 o'clock yesterday for the murder of J. C. Whitener May 1, 1902. For the first time since Bowie county was organized sixty-two years ago. a white man has been legally executed. This does not signify that there have been no homicides during that long period. There have been numbers of them, and some of them cold-blooded.

About a year ago J. E. Shutt killed J. C. Whitener. The latter was watching a game of dominoes in a saloon, when Shutt came in, approached and whispered in his ear. What was said by either was not heard by those present. Shutt stepped back a few feet, drew, drawing a revolver, shot Whitener through the body. Death resulted in a few hours. The men had been friends for twenty-five years, and for part of that time were partners in business. No motive was known for the deed, and it looked like premeditated murder.

At the preliminary trial Shutt was remanded to jail without bail, and the final trial resulted in a verdict of murder, assessing the death penalty.

The verdict fell like a clap of thunder, as a life sentence was as much as was expected. To hang a white man was so out of the ordinary that it caused a reaction in public sentiment to take place. The governor was asked for a commutation, but refused. Then the preachers and business men almost every man asked for a reprieve for ten days, which was refused. Other petitions were then prepared and signed by over 3000 people of the country, praying the governor to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. This was carried to the governor by Shutt's wife last Wednesday. Gov. Lanham granted the petition and notified the sheriff to proceed with the execution.

When informed of the governor's refusal to save him Shutt broke down, but soon rallied, and from that time on he up with unusual nerve and fortitude. He had eaten nothing for three days. He asked for whisky yesterday, which was given him, and this was the only stimulant he had taken.

Dr. Percy T. Fenn was with the condemned man from early in the morning till the end. He said he had made peace with God and he had no fears for the hereafter. He also admitted that his punishment was just, and expressed penitence for having taken Whitener's life. In the morning he wrote a letter to Mrs. Whitener, emphasizing these sentiments, and praying to forgive him for having deprived her of her husband.

On the gallows he knelt and prayed, but upon the advice of his spiritual adviser did not make a speech. His last words as the cap was placed over his head were in prayer to God for mercy. After death the remains were placed in a splendid casket and brought to this place and from here taken on the 9 o'clock Texas and Pacific train to Jefferson, his old home, for burial.

Will Get His Pension Now.

Austin: Capt. Ferg Kyle, the well-known Texas pioneer and member of the legislature, discovered among the archives of the state that are stored in the basement of the capitol the original muster rolls of the two companies that were organized in 1857 for the purpose of protecting the frontier from Indian depredations. Capt. Kyle began to one of those companies, that commanded by Capt. Will Kyle, and saw a great deal of hard service. There are only about eight men who belonged to these companies now living. They are each entitled to a pension from the United States government under a law passed by Congress in 1902. Capt. Kyle made application for a pension under that law, but it was rejected owing to lack of documentary proof of the organization of the company. By the discovery of the muster rolls that proof is obtained, and it is expected the pension will now be granted him.

Drowned in the Wachita.

Chickasha, I. T.: Three men stole a skiff in use by the Rock Island company while repairing their bridge and attempted to cross the Washita river today. They were discovered, and in their efforts to escape the boat overturned and one of the men drowned in the high water. The other two reached the bank in safety and escaped. The drowned man has not been identified.

WORLD'S LARGEST OIL REFINERY

The Biggest State Constantly Accumulating Biggest Things.

Beaumont: The Security Oil company, which took over the big Burt refinery, has so far completed the refinery that fires have been put under a few of the stills and a preliminary test was made. This refinery is, perhaps, the most complete in the world. Everything has been done looking to permanency and durability. The buildings are tile-roofed and the floors of concrete. A complete waterworks and electric light system has been completed and the refinery has a fire department of its own. It has been a year in building and 800 men have been employed in construction. Two pipe lines have already been completed to a point below the quarantine station at Sabine, so vessels may load without waiting for quarantine. One of the pipe lines is for the refined product and the other for fuel oil. It is impossible to learn the cost of this refinery, but a gentleman who is familiar with such matters says that it will amount to $5,000,000. For the present 60,000 barrels will be refined in a week.

The Texas Wheat Crop.

Fort Worth: H. B. Dorsey of Weatherford, secretary of the Texas Grain Dealers' association, sates that from best information he has received the wheat crop of Texas would be over an average crop, but that the oat crop would be considerably under an average crop. That while there was plenty of time for a good corn crop, it was too early to make a prediction as to the outcome of this crop, though the rains of Thursday, which seemed to be general over the grain belt, would greatly improve the condition of corn which, he says, is over an average in acreage. The rains may help out the yield on oats also, Mr Dorsey said.

Cooke County Diversifier.

Gainesville: Diversification seems to be the motto adopted by a great many Cooke county farmers, none of whom is more deeply imbued with the spirit than Tom Barentine, living four miles east of the city. His crop this year consists of the following: Five acres of tomatoes, two acres of cabbage, eight acres of watermelons, one and a half acres of squashes, one-half acre of cucumbers, two acres of cantaloupes, one acre of beans, one-half acre of peas, two acres of sweet corn, four acres of June corn and other garden stuff.

Demented Man Wounds His Keeper.

Weatherford: Friday night Constable and Jailer R. J. Doggett was severely stabbed in the neck by a demented prisoner confined in the county jail. Mr. Daggett had gone into the runaround on the second floor of the jail to remove the prisoner from one cell to another, when the latter, without warning, struck him with a knife and in the struggle which ensued the severe wound was given.

The Umpire.

A fool there was, and he took a chance

In a bunch of baseball disputants,
With all of an umpire's arrogance,
And a mask to cover his countenance

The fool he called a batter out,
And the crowd held him to blame,
While the batter batted him over the head,
And jumped on his chest, and left him for dead
(Which you will allow was not well bred),
And that was the end of the game.

Mr. Toggs' Generosity

Mr. Toggs was peculiar; but every one is peculiar who is assertive and does not think in all things just as we do.

Mr. Toggs was not considered a generous man; but then the standard for generosity varies so that we cannot always accept even the judgment of friends.

Mr. Toggs was generous with himself. This was unquestioningly conceded. In dress he was generous to prodigality. The appearance of his well-developed 6 feet 2 of physical manhood, from the luster of his high top hat and immaculate linen to the sheen of his No. 10s was faultless.

It was in his family relations that Madam Gossip charged him most unsparingly. She said that he kept no servant for his wife; that he never allowed her family to visit her on account of the added expense that would be incurred; that while he was clothed faultlessly, she was—but why should we be rummaging in other folks' closets to display their family skeletons, when the very thought starts a commotion in dark recesses nearer home.

Remember, Mrs. Toggs never complained; not she. Had she not promised at the sacred altar to love, worship—cherish, I mean—and obey? And she did it so thoroughly that all independence of thought and action was lost in her devotion to her over-towering spouse.

Mr. Toggs fell ill. He had been exceedingly generous with himself, and had indulged in a late banquet at the Ego club. He awakened early in the morning with a most pronounced attack of indigestion.

Mr. Toggs declared that he had swallowed the larger part of a millstone, and that it lay with its crushing weight just below his diaphragm. Then he felt like the Spartan youth who concealed the stolen fox under his toga, and he experienced the burnings of a thousand pitiless flames as they ate their way into his vitals.

During the first hour's torture Mr. Toggs groaned and moaned and expressed himself in language that was as forcible as the conditions demanded.

Mrs. Toggs, without any undue display of alarm, gave him the full service of her devoted nature. He had been sick once with rheumatism, and she had witnessed a display of the lack of all Christian graces in the nature of Mr. Toggs when sick, so she was not apprehensive.

Indigestion may effect a complete transformation in its victim. It will make either a saint or a demon of the worst or best of men, or change a lion into a lamb. Mr. Toggs, after a few hours' torture, became a lamb.

He uncomplainingly swallowed quarts of scalding hot water. He chewed pepsin tablets without a murmur. He swallowed Dr. Killer's remedies faithfully, and submitted to applications of mustard plasters until the outer surface of his body had every appearance of being parboiled.

Became a lamb.

Through it all not one word of complaint or rebellion escaped Mr. Toggs' lips, and Mrs. Toggs was somewhat alarmed.

As day and night in regular order succeeded each other until five revolutions of the earth on its axis had been completed, and Mr. Toggs avowed that the millstone was growing heavier, the fox was unwearied in his endeavors to claw out his vitals, and the inextinguishable fires burned with increasing fury, and in the face of all he was growing more and more lamblike, Mrs. Toggs became correspondingly more alarmed. This complete change could presage only one thing—the coming end.

"Dear!" gasped the tortured Mr. Toggs, as he turned a look of intense longing upon his unfailing wife and noted her anxious face, "won't you send for Elizabeth to come and assist you? You are overdoing yourself."

Hastened from the room, a picture of despair.

Poor Mrs. Toggs could scarcely restrain herself until she hastened from the room, when she burst into a flood of tears. Mr. Toggs was certainly mortally ill. In all their twenty-three years of conjugal relations, he had never before applied to her so precious an epithet, and for the first time he seemed concerned about her personal comfort. And he had broken his oft-declared law that there would be no visiting relations of either side allowed in his home.

Elizabeth had a reputation for being an exceptional nurse, and an expert in the knowledge of family remedies. So upon her arrival there was a resumption, or rather addition, of operations. The indigestion loosened its hold somewhat, and Mr. Toggs was grateful.

"Clarissa, dear," he said assuringly, as he lay bolstered up in a large rocker, "I feel much better, and if I continue to improve, and am well tomorrow, I'll give you $5 for your nursing and care of me."

Mrs. Toggs hastened from the room the picture of despair. She was sure he was dying, and when she returned to his side, closely followed by the faithful Elizabeth, she manifested no sign of joy at her husband's assertion of marked improvement.

"Elizabeth," and Mr. Toggs' voice grew stronger, "I'll give you $5, too, if I am well to-morrow!"

Then Mrs. Toggs had a presentiment by a rattling in the chest that he was marked for death, and her little body stooped in anticipation of the crushing blow.

By noon Mr. Toggs declared that he felt well enough to go out for a walk about the block. As he was adjusting his lustrous high-top hat, he said, "If you'll give me the money I'll settle the account for the medicines at the druggist's."

Mr. Toggs never liked bills to hang.

Mrs. Toggs handed her departing lord and master a shining gold eagle—a part of her week's allowance for all household expenses.

The druggist claimed half of the gold, and Mr. Toggs tucked the change in his lower right-side waistcoat pocket. But feeling a suspicious sensation that prophesied a return of the tortures, he hastened home and calmly submitted to the untiring efforts of his faithful nurses for relief.

That night Mr. Toggs fell into a refreshing sleep and awoke in the morning a completely delivered man. "Here, dear, is that $5 I promised you," and his thumb and index finger went down into the lower pocket on the right side of his waistcoat, and he laid a $5 bill on the bureau.

Mrs. Toggs murmured her thanks between stifled sobs, but refrained from touching the sacred testimonial of his dying love. For, surely, Mr. Toggs was nearing the end of his earthly career, and his avowed improvement was only a delusion. She gazed upon him in helpless abandonment to the inevitable.

Mr. Toggs proceeded with his toilet, and when it was completed he turned suddenly toward the bureau and, picking up the money he had shortly before laid there, said in his old way:

"I think, Mrs. Toggs, you saved this much on me in household expenses, for I have not partaken of a single meal while I have been sick. I may as well pay Elizabeth with it."

And he hastened to find Elizabeth.

As Mr. Toggs left the room, his wife experienced a sensation of joy. Mr. Toggs was better. He was his old self again. She was relieved of the dread that hung over her and she was happy.

"Here's the five dollars I promised you," Mr. Toggs said to Elizabeth, who was busy preparing the morning meal. He laid the bill upon the sideboard in the diningroom and strode away.

Mrs. Toggs and Elizabeth were so happy that they could only gaze in admiration at Mr. Toggs as they sat at the table, while he ate sparingly of the morning repast.

Happy Mrs. Toggs stood with Mr. Toggs' lustrous high-top hat in her hand when Mr. Toggs appeared ready to leave for his office. After he had taken a last reassuring look at himself in the hall mirror, he went to the diningroom, and said to Elizabeth, as he took the $5 bill from the sideboard:

"I think your board has been worth this much for the time you have been with us as our guest."

Mrs. Toggs never qestioned her husband's intentions. It was enough that he was well once more, and she was happy.

What Elizabeth thought and said as she journeyed homeward would not be complimentary as an epitaph.

All that day Mr. Toggs' countenance was lighted with a complacent smile. He was a man well satisfied with himself.—Frank E. Graff in Boston Globe.

WEALTH OF THE WORLD.

Four Hundred Billion Dollars Is Estimated Total.

The total wealth of the world, while not exactly known, has been estimated at $400,000,000,000, says Gunton's magazine. This is probably an underestimate of the actual amount of money and property in civilized and semi-civilized lands. Of this total the greater part is owned by Americans and Europeans. The United States has somewhere near $100,000,000,000, or about one-fourth of the whole. The United Kingdom is the richest country of Europe, its wealth being estimated at £11,806,000,000, or £302 per capita. Of the total England's share was £10,062,000,000; Scotland's, £1,094,000,000; Ireland's, £650,000,00. In American money (at $4.8 pound sterling) Great Britain's wealth in 1895 was $56,668,800,000. A recent estimate makes it $59,000,000,000, or $1,442 per capita (in 1891). The annual income of England's population is said to be $5,600,000,000 while the yearly saving is $1,948,000,000. It should be remembered that a large amount of British capital is also invested in the colonies of the empire and in foreign lands.

France is the next richest nation of Europe. Mulhall estimated its wealth in 1895 at £9,630,000,000, or £252 per capita. A recent estimate of France's wealth makes it $48,000,000,000, or $1,257 per capita (1901). According to Mulhall, Germany's wealth in 1895 was £8,052,000,000 or £156 per capita. Prussia's share was more than half (£4,940,000,000); Bavaria's, £949,000,000; Saxony's, £456,000,000; Wurtemberg's, £370,000,000, while the smaller German States had £1,337,000,000. According to a more recent estimate, Germany's wealth is $40,000,000,000, or $709 per capita (1901). German money loaned or invested abroad amounts to $8,000,000,000 or more. Russia's wealth in 1895, as Mulhall estimated it, amounted to £6,425,000,000 or £61 per capita. A recent estimate places Russia's wealth at $32,000,000,000, or about $296 per capita (estimating the population in 1901 at 108,000,000).

Making Monkeys Work.

"Monkeys—wild monkeys—can be made to work in India," said a missionary. "Some little ingenuity is required to start them, but once they are got going they peg away like good fellows.

"They are often put to harvesting the pepper. The natives, aware that they are watching with a profound curiosity, gather the pepper and pile it up carefully in mounds; then, as though suddenly revolted, as though suddenly weary of a foolish game, they go away and leave the pepper.

"The monkeys watch all this. It absorbs them. As soon as evening comes they begin to play the new game themselves. They, too, gather the pepper carefully. They, too, stack it up in mounds. Then, at the end, they, too, as though suddenly tired and bored, go away.

"What is the result? The result is that the monkeys have harvested the pepper."—Philadelphia Record.

A Brief Explanation of the Big Madden-Graham Sale and the Purchase of the Stock by Mistrot Bros. & Co.

Madden-Graham Dry Goods Co. opened for business in Dallas over 12 months ago to do an exclusive whole sale business in Texas. Conditions of their trade and the ill health of the head of the firm compelled them to retire from business. Their stock invoiced over $192,000 worth of prime fresh goods. It was a hard deal to find a purchaser to plank down that that amount of cash in one lump. They wrote Mistrot Bros & Co. to make a bid on the stock. Our Mr. S. P. Mistrot went from Galveston to Dallas and made a bid on the entire stock packed and delivered F. O. B. Galveston, the only way we could handle the stock as it would have necessitated to employ an enormous lot of competent help to handle this stock from Dallas They would consider our offer, being too low. Mr. Mistrot returned to Galveston and after 10 days received a wire we could have the stock at our price which was accepted. This stock was shipped to Galveston with solid chartered train of 32 cars all daylight run and viewed by thousands of people all along the M. K. & T. road in Texas. In Galveston they were unloaded in our big warehouses on Mechanic street for distribution among our 32 retail stores in Texas.

$3.50 Shoes

Our $3.50 Shoes didn't take the town by storm—didn't create havoc—did just what we expected they would do. They have brought folks in—who examined them—who tried them on—bought. And each pair that left the store brought two more customers, until it seams an endless chain is forming, for we've all the business on them we can handle—two and three and four times as many shoes leaving this establishment each day as on corresponding days of last season. Every style for men or women, every leather—every size, many distinct lasts and each pair as good as any—better than many sold at $5, but we are asking only $3.50.

The cantaloupe crops throughout this section are reported nearly all in fine condition at this time with prospects for a bountiful yield. It is estimated that the crop in this territory will place from $20,000 to $40,000 in the pockets of the farmers during July.

It is an occasion of regret to the Postmaster General to have the rascality which has prospered under a republican adminstration exposed to the public gaze. But the public appreciates that no party and no adminstration has a monopoly of rascality and it will respect the adminstration which scourges it out to the best of its ability.

Geo. Cook, a brother of John T. Cook of this county, was killed recently at his home in the Indian Territory by a tree falling upon him. Himself and several others were cutting down a large tree and just as it was about to fall one of his little children attempted to run under it. He came to his own death in trying to save the child.

FOUR PEOPLE ARE DROWNED

Treacherous Head Rise in Waters of Greens Creek are Responsible For the Catastrophy.

James Parish, his daughter-in-law Mrs. Wint Parish and her two small children, were drowned late last Saturday evening in the waters of Green's Creek, about two miles west of Alexander. Mr. Parish and the other unfortunates, together with his wife and youngest son were returning from Dublin in a carriage. The Creek was up with a very strong current from the recent rains, but Mr. Parish did not think it was dangerous. A head rise of a foot or more is said to have struck the carriage when it had reeached about the middle of the stream and the carriage was overturned and all, including the team, was carried by the swift current into the deeper water below the crossing, where the team was also drowned.

Immediately after the occurrence was discovered by Mesdames Viola Stephen and Etta Powell, who happened along on their return from Alexander. They gave the alarm and in a short time rescures were on hand. Mrs. Parish held on to some overhanging limbs of a tree until she was rescued and the little boy in the meantime had swam out and gone to the nearby home of Brown Martin for assistance.

The four dead bodies were recovered only a few yards below the crossing and an inquest was held over the remains by Esq J. D. St. Clair, who returned a verdict substantially according to the above facts. One of the chilren was a seven months old babe, the other was two years old and Mr. Parish about fifty. He was one of the best citzens of the county and has resided on his farm four miles south of Alexander for twenty-five or thirty years

The four unfortunate ones were buried at the Rose School House cemetery Sunday.

For the above information we are indebted to our correpondents at Alexander and Point Lookout.

Was He the Assassin of Lincoln?

A report comes from Monterey, Mexico under date of June 7th which reads as follows The story relative to the death at Enid, Oklahoma, of the man claiming to be J. Wilkes Booth, received additional confirmation from Colonel Edmond Levan, a prominent American resident of this city, who says that he knew the man well. According to Colonel Levan's story Booth was his room mate for more than six weeks during the winter of 1868 in Lexington, Ky. During that interval the two became quite friendly, and Colonel Levan openly declared to his companion that he knew he was the man who assassinated President Lincoln. Booth did not deny the allegation, but shortly afterward left Lexington, Ky. and went to Pittsburg, where he later became identified with a wholesale machinery house of the city. Some time after that he settled at Valley Mills, Texas, afterwards going to Glen Rose, and finally making his way to the Indian Territory, where he resided at the time he committed suicide. Colonel Levan says that when Booth lived with him he went under the name of J. J. Marr. At that time he was practicing law.

Dr. J. J. Mulloy, practice limited to the diseasesof the eye, ear, nose and throat. Office over the Grange Store, Dublin, Texas.

LEARNING THINGS.

We Are All in the Apprentice Class.

When a simple change of diet brings back health and happiness the story is briefly told. A lady of Springfield, Ill. says: "After being afflicted for years with nervousness and heart trouble, I received a shock four years ago that left me in such a condition that my life was despaired of. I could get no relief from doctor nor from the numberless heart and nerve medicines I tried because I didn't know that the coffee was daily putting me back more than the Drs. could put me ahead.

Finally at the request of a friend I left off coffee and began the use of Postum and against my convictions I gradually improved in health until for the past 6 or 8 months I have been entirely free from nervousness and those terrible sinking, weakening spells of heart trouble.

"My troubles all came from the use of coffee which I had drank from childhood and yet they disappeared when I quit coffee and took up the use of Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many people marvel at the effects of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense

Coffee is a destroyer—Postum is a rebuilder. Thats the reason.

RE-UNION OCCURS IN AUGUST

Preparations are Soon to Begin for Greatest Ex-Confederate Meet in History of Dublin.

Capt. J. D. St.Clair of Alexander, an enthusiastic veteran of the confederacy, was in Dublin a few days ago en route home from an enjoyable trip to the New Orleans meeting. Capt. St.Clair is first vice-president of the Erath and Comanche Ex-Confederate Association, which meets at Dublin in August of each year and which enjoys the distinction of being the largest Ex-Confederate association in the world. In speaking with a Progress reporter about the fifteenth annual re-union next August the Captain expressed himself as expecting the best re-union this year that the Erath & Comanche association has ever had. During the year he said several of the comrades have passed away and the threads of silver in the locks of those remaining have multiplied to a degree greater than any previous year, bringing the veterans nearer and dearer to each other. He is anxious that this year's reunion may be attended by the veterans themselves to a greater extent than ever. The meeting was held last year in re-union park at Dublin on August 6th, 7th and 8th and this year's meeting was set to occur at the same place on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 5th, 6th and 7th. The following are the present officers: Capt. T. O. Moore of Comanche, president; Capt. J. D. St. Clair of Alexander, first vice-president; J. T. Tunnell of Proctor, second vice-president; Capt. R. S. Rich of DeLeon, secretary; Dr. B. F. Archer, formerly of Dublin but now of Sweetwater, surgeon; Major Mc D. Reil of Stephenville, grand marshal.

President J. H. Latham of the Park Association has to-day issued a call for a meeting of the association to meet over his store at four o'clock next Monday evening for the purpose of electing officers for another year, after which preliminary arrangements will begin for the reunion this year.

Since the above was put in type the child died at five o'clock yesterday evening and will be buried at the old Dublin cemetery at three o'clock this afternoon. The parents of the child have the sincere sympathy of the people in this sad bereavement.

A Brief Explanation of the Big Madden-Graham Sale and the Purchase of the Stock by Mistrot Bros. & Co.

Madden-Graham Dry Goods Co. opened for business in Dallas over 12 months ago to do an exclusive whole sale business in Texas. Conditions of their trade and the ill health of the head of the firm compelled them to retire from business. Their stock invoiced over $192,000 worth of prime fresh goods. It was a hard deal to find a purchaser to plank down that that amount of cash in one lump. They wrote Mistrot Bros & Co. to make a bid on the stock. Our Mr. S. P. Mistrot went from Galveston to Dallas and made a bid on the entire stock packed and delivered F. O. B. Galveston, the only way we could handle the stock as it would have necessitated to employ an enormous lot of competent help to handle this stock from Dallas They would consider our offer, being too low. Mr. Mistrot returned to Galveston and after 10 days received a wire we could have the stock at our price which was accepted. This stock was shipped to Galveston with solid chartered train of 32 cars all daylight run and viewed by thousands of people all along the M. K. & T. road in Texas. In Galveston they were unloaded in our big warehouses on Mechanic street for distribution among our 32 retail stores in Texas.
