Marines, Cong Stage 8-Hour Battle

More US Troops Due in Viet Nam

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is moving swiftly to beef up its military aid to South Viet Nam to offset increased North Vietnamese infiltration and a buildup of Red Viet Cong rebels.

Officials said today that the United States would support the planned increase of up to 160,000 men in South Viet Nam's 600,000-man military establishment.

They indicated that several thousand U.S. officers and men would be sent into the area within the next month or two to help with supply and training problems and serve as "advisers" and supporters for the expanded South Vietnamese forces.

In addition, officials said, the United States plans further expansion of the American-held perimeter around the vital port and airfield at Da Nang. The Da Nang base is considered a logical staging area if and when additional U.S. combat forces are introduced to meet the growing peril in the north central area of South Viet Nam.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara disclosed Wednesday that U.S. military aid supplied directly to South Viet Nam for the fiscal year ending June 30 would amount to about $330 million, instead of the planned $207 million. Added to the economic aid budget of $300 million, this brings U.S. aid to Viet Nam above the $1.7 million per day mark.

In addition, the struggle is costing the United States untold millions to pay the 31,000 Americans already in the struggle plus the cost of operating carrier air strikes and other assaults on the Communists in North as well as South Viet Nam.

The administration gave no signs of being impressed by mounting demands at home and abroad for an end to the U.S. attacks on North Viet Nam. And officials shrugged off threats from Red China and Russia. These stopped short, however, of pledging direct intervention.

The fast-developing situation in Southeast Asia prompted a flurry of discussion in the Senate. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said the Russian suggestion of a reconvened Geneva conference on Camobdia neutrality is "worthy of the most serious consideration" and might lead to peace in Viet Nam.

"If the desire for a bona fide peace takes precedence over 'face' on all sides, the convening of a conference might be accomplished by a cease-fire and stand-fast throughout Viet Nam — North and South," Mansfield said.

Alabama Grand Jury Indicts Three Klansmen

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI)— An Alabama grand jury today indicted three Ku Klux Klansmen on murder charges in the nightrider slaying of civil rights worker Mrs. Viola Greeg Luizzo.

The Lowndes County grand jury presented the indictment to Alabama Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard, the slight, white - haired jurist who will preside at the trial.

Thagard earlier had said, in the event of indictments, he would like the trial to be held in May, with a likely beginning May 3, and be confined to a single session to save court costs.

Circuit Solicitor Arthur Gamble read the report of the grand jury to the judge. It included a statement denouncing outside interests.

"This grand jury wants to make it clear that it resents and deplores the actions of various extreme outside groups responsible for bringing this trouble to our county," the statement said.

"It deplores the action and statements of the President and others in high government places in connection with this event."

"We feel that these actions and statements have been unjust and unfair and have created undue and unusual problems in this matter."

Under Alabama law, the defendants are entitled to separate trials if they so request.

The grand jury concluded a two-day investigation of the shooting of Mrs. Liuzzo, the first white woman to be killed in the civil rights movement, yesterday and spent 52 minutes voting on whether to return

One US Leatherneck Injured in Fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist guerrillas ambushed a patrol of 50 U.S. Marines near the Da Nang airbase today. One Marine was wounded in a bitter 10-minute battle—the first clash between Leatherneck forces and the Viet Cong.

The wounded Marine was evacuated by helicopter along with two comrades who were felled by heat prostration during the eight-hour daylight patrol under the scorching tropical sun.

Doctors at the 9th Marine Brigade Hospital said the wounded Marine suffered a slight scalp laceration when he was nicked by a Viet Cong bullet. The Marine and the two heat prostration victims were pronounced in good condition.

The Marine patrol, a platoon-sized unit, was jumped by the Viet Cong about noon four miles beyond the defense perimeter ringing the big American airbase.

Americans Pinned Down

The guerrilla force pinned down the Americans with heavy small arms fire. The Marines fired back but there was no indication that any Viet Cong were killed or wounded. The Communists withdrew and the Marines continued the patrol, making no effort at pursuit.

The Communists have sniped at Marine units in Da Nang the Hue-Phu Bai area to the north in recent days, but today's action was the first time guerrillas have openly challenged the Leathernecks in combat.

In the war against North Viet Nam, 10 U.S. Navy dive bombers attacked truck convoys Wednesday night and before dawn today. Five separate missions were flown, a record for nighttime strikes against Communist territory.

Mass Seven Battalions

In South Viet Nam, Vietnamese commanders massed seven battalions of soldiers for an attack on 3,000 Viet Cong 27 miles south of Da Dang, then apparently called off the assault.

An American military spokesman said a laconic, two-line message arrived at headquarters here saying that the Vietnamese troops had moved off to the southeast—the opposite direction from the guerrilla positions.

The message gave no reason for the movement.

Earlier reports said government ground forces were taking the offensive under the personal command of Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, chief of the army's First Corps.

Thi said in Da Nang later that he flew to the forward command post controlling the units, indicating that he had dressed down local commanders for not attacking.

Following his visit, Thi said the government forces returned and quickly made contact with the guerrillas. Thi said the Vietnamese troops would continue to press the battle.

The Communist regiment of 3,000 men near Da Nang stood its ground Wednesday along a seven-mile front despite intense bombardment by waves of U.S. and South Vietnamese planes.

Government ground forces apparently were taking the offensive today under the personal command of Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, chief of the army's First Corps.

Strike Call To Be Issued U.S. Steel Workers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers union (USW) was expected to issue a formal call to its members today to strike the nation's steel industry May 1.

The industry took the first steps toward preparing for a shutdown.

The crisis resulted from an impasse in negotiations on a new wage contract for 450,000 USW employes of 11 major steel companies.

There still was an outside chance that a strike call may not be issued by the USW's Wage Policy Committee at a meeting this afternoon.

The meeting was scheduled for 1p.m. CST.

The White House may exert more pressure on both sides.

William E. Simkin, chief of the U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service, said Wednesday night he would meet privately with the top union and industry leaders today in an effort to develop a peace formula.

Simkin has remained close to the negotiations all this week. He has met often with the top union men — USW President David J. McDonald and apparent president-elect I. W. Abel—and the top industry negotiators —R. Conrad Cooper and R. Heath Lary, both of the U. S. Steel Corp.

In Washington, presidential Press Secretary George Reedy dodged a question as to whether President Johnson might invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to force an 80-day cooling off period.

"We would assess the situation in case circumstances arose that might indicate such action," Reedy said.

The industry soft-pedaled its shutdown preparations as "preliminary." But they were necessary to an orderly and safe shutdown.

"Unless there are new developments, it looks like we will start banking some furnaces either late Monday or early Tuesday," an industry spokesman said.

Legislators Must Make Decision on Remapping

AUSTIN (UPI)—The state Senate, which created a monster while seeking a solution to legislative reapportioning problems, today had to decide what comes next.

The constitutional amendments originated by Sens. Jack Strong of Longview and Louis Crump of San Saba, which together would have given House and Senate members longer terms and boosted Senate membership to 39, were back in their authors' laps.

Both Crump and Strong were expected to shove the much-argued amendments into conference committees today for more work.

As they stood today after hours of debate by the House, both amendments would give House members four-year terms and Crump's proposal would give the upper chamber 39 members.

Trimmed from each proposal was the provision extending Senate terms from four to six years. The changes came on San Jacinto Day, and the legislators did it up proud, battling with words and parliamentary tactics which would have left Santa Anna and Sam Houston breathless.

When the conference committee finishes its meeting, Crump's amendment — headed for ratification at the polls Aug. 7—is expected to provide only for the 39-member Senate, allowing room for expansion without purging rural senators under a "one-man, one-vote" federal court edict. In order to be voted on by the announced date, final passage must come by Friday, Crump said.

Strong's amendment, which would be voted on in November, 1965, would lengthen House terms from two to four years and Senate terms from four to six years, if it works out as he said he intended.

"That's the way I planned it, and if the House doesn't go back on its word, that's the way it will be," the Longview senator said.

The original Strong proposal passed the Senate 22-8. The House deleted six-year Senate terms and then approved it 101-43.

Voters Will Decide

If Strong's original plan is approved, voters will decide on two separate proposals Nov. 2, 1965: Whether the governor and other state officials will serve four-year terms (as advocated by Gov. John Connally and approved by both houses) and whether legislative terms should be longer.

Rep. John Traeger of Seguin tried to delay action on Crump's proposal until the Strong amendment had been cleared in the House. "You're going to see your senator washed away by court redistricting if you don't separate these two things," Traeger warned. He moved to table the 39-member resolution, but was voted down.

Lost in the dust of Wednesday's battle was Sen. Bill Patman's battered "Little Hoover Commission" bill. The Ganado senator has vowed to get a Senate vote on his bill, which would set up an investigation of state agencies to cut costs.

Long Asks Oil Import Reduction

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., today became the latest senator to ask the administration to reduce oil imports and cutback purchases of foreign petroleum by the military.

In a speech prepared for delivery on the Senate floor, Long urged a cut of 250,000 barrels of crude oil daily from the present level of imports of 2.2 million barrels. In the military field, the assistant majority leader (whip) asked that U.S. sources supply half of the 200,000 barrels of petroleum products now bought by the military.

These two actions, Long said, "would reduce the nation's balance of payments deficit by $374 million without reducing the tremendous growth in foreign oil production, or the inflow of funds to the U.S. from foreign oil operations, which are conducted primarily to meet growing demands for oil outside this country."

If there was a 375,000 barrel increase in the domestic oil market, the Louisianan said the proportionate hike in production in his state would mean $6 million in additional severance taxes and another $2 million in royalties.

"The other producing states would benefit in a like manner," Long said.

The senator was especially critical of the Defense Department's oil buying policies. He said foreign military purchases have continued to increase "despite directives calling for cutbacks . . . by President Eisenhower, the late President Kennedy and now by President Johnson." He said the recent curtailment, by $27 million, in such purchases was "only token action."

Spring Is Here But It Feels Like Summer

It's no secret that Spring has arrived. In fact the high temperatures of the past few days indicate that summer might have slipped in with it.

Pampa residents have their lawnmowers and garden tools out and have had for about a week now, as old man Winter has decided to take a rest.

More warm, bright and sunny weather is in store for the next few days with no prospect of any moisture in sight.

Pampans basked and sweated in 91-degree temperatures Wednesday and 'cooled' off some Wednesday night when the low reading hit 53.

The mercury was on the upward swing again today though, standing at 54 degrees at 7 a.m.

For Friday the weatherman promised temperatures in the low to mid 90s with the low tonight forecast in the mid-50s. Winds tomorrow will be southwesterly at 10 to 20 miles per hour.

In other parts of Texas thick ground fog restricted visibility to about two miles along the upper Texas Coast early today and some cloudiness drifted inland over extreme Southern Texas.

Cooler weather was in prospect for the Texas Panhandle Friday as a Pacific cold front now in Nevada and California eased southward. Showers should affect 20 per cent of northwest Texas Friday.

Pre-dawn readings today ranged from 46 at Dalhart to 72 at Corpus Christi.

The state, and nation's, high temperature Wednesday was at Presidio which reported 102 degrees. It was 98 at Lubbock, the hottest April 21 on record.

A new record for that date was also set in El Paso, where it was 93 degrees.

The coolest maximum Wednesday came at Galveston —75 degrees.

IT'S SPRING — Spring is upon the land once again, bringing pleasantly warm afternoons and refreshingly cool evenings at which time, it's rumored, the fish do bite. So, by late afternoon, many wishful anglers are lined up along the lakes to try their casting luck with the hope of a late evening fish-fry.

Friends and Colleagues Of Murdered Clown Questioned

NEW YORK (UPI)—Friends and colleagues of Paul Jung were being questioned today in the search for clues to the savage slaying of the circus performer, one of the great clowns of modern times.

Jung's body, his head crushed by a blunt instrument, was found Wednesday in his hotel room only a half block from Madison Square Garden where the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus is making its annual appearance.

The 65-year-old "boss of clown alley," as he was known to the circus world, was lying on his back near the door of the hotel room when he was found by bellboy Archie Thompson and Dean McMurray, assistant manager of the circus.

His hands were tied beneath his body which was clad in a white undershirt and brown striped pajamas.

There were no signs of a violent struggle and no indication that the room had been ransacked.

Authorities dismissed robbery as a probable motive and theorized that the slayer was someone Jung knew and had allowed into his room. An autopsy was planned today and police laboratory experts were examining a three-cell flashlight found in the hotel room to determine if it might have been—the death instrument.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Jung performed in vaudeville and with several small circuses before joining Ringling Bros. 31 years ago.

To a certain young housewife, there is special meaning in the adage that "position is everything in life." Injured while shopping, she lost a claim for damages simply because of her position — her physical position — at the moment of the accident.

It happened this way:

Standing near the checkout counter in a market, she decided to hand the cashier an extra package she was carrying. She stepped into the cashier's booth, stumbled over an obstruction, and fell down hard.

As a rule, a shopper has a favored legal status. Classified as an "invitee" (or "business visitor"), she is entitled to have substantial care taken for her safety.

But that status continues only so long as she stays where she belongs, within the area of invitation. Outside that area, she loses her favored status. Her chance of collecting damages, in case of injury, is automatically reduced.

In the above case, the housewife stepped out of bounds when she entered the cashier's booth. Result: she lost her status and lost the lawsuit that followed.

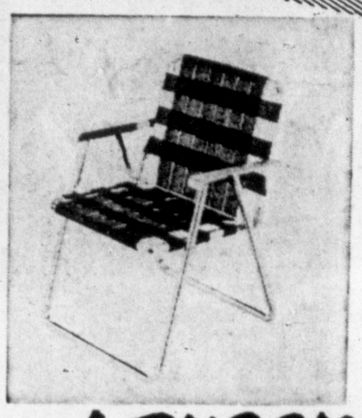

How far does the area of invitation extend? Farther, of course, than the precise point of purchase. For instance, you are still within its protection while entering or leaving the store in the normal manner.

Thus, in a case involving negligence on the part of a bank, damages were awarded to a man injured while entering through the bank's front door. But damages were denied to a woman injured while entering a restaurant through the side shipping door, obviously not meant for public use.

Suppose you want to use the telephone or a washroom? Does the area of invitation reach that far?

C-C Retail Group Ask Merchants to Observe 5 Holidays

The retail trade committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce has recommended that Pampa merchants observe five holidays during 1965.

E. O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, said the first holiday this year will be May 30, Memorial Day, which will fall on Sunday. Since Memorial Day is not a legal holiday it is being recommended that merchants not close on the following Monday.

July 4, the next holiday, also will fall on Sunday, but the chamber is recommending merchants close for business Monday, since the day is observed as a legal holiday.

The other three days which the chamber recommends merchants close are Labor Day, Sept. 6; Thanksgiving Nov. 25 and Christmas Dec. 25.

Car, Garage Are Destroyed by Fire

A 1959 model Oldsmobile was completely destroyed by fire yesterday four miles south of Pampa on Highway 273.

The automobile was owned by L. M. Cunningham of McLean.

Firemen said the fire started when overheated brakes ignited a leaky gas tank.

A wood-frame garage was also destroyed late yesterday by fire.

Firemen said the garage was owned by Mrs. Marie Jones, 516 N. Nelson.

The fire was blamed on a grass fire which got out of control.

Pampa Chamber Membership Drive Now Underway

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce is starting an intensive drive for members this week with the mailing of the first of several promotional cards to prospects within the community, according to E. L. Green, Jr., president.

Cartoon on one card shows a boy and a policeman looking at a ball game through small holes in the ball park fence. Copy says, "You can see part of the game through a knothole . . . but it's better to be on the inside. Everyone must chip in for good, successful teamwork. To have a winner, players must hustle and fans must give their wholehearted support."

Closing copy on the card states, "Your Chamber of Commerce has complete plans for making our city the most progressive in the state. But we need your support!"

The card described is one of a colorful series that will go to prospects. Others in the series will touch on the various functions of the Chamber of Commerce. "Our Chamber of Commerce receives excellent support from the business firms and professional men of the community," Green stated, "but we are hoping to broaden the base of our membership group and have more individuals take part in our program. At the present time our membership includes representatives of practically every type of community activity and endeavor. Coordinating the efforts of men who have varied interests and points of view is a challenging job, but the community building achievements of Chambers of Commerce prove that it can be done. They have demonstrated that effective teamwork in attaining sound, continuous community development requires that the 'whole team' be in the game.

"It is our hope that the present membership drive will put more people on the team and help the Chamber of Commerce do an even better job for this community."

The general drive will be kicked off with a luncheon in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn on Tuesday, May 4, with directors serving as team captains.

Norman Henry, Finance Director of the Chamber, is the campaign director.

A highly placed official source said Wednesday that one of the four Ku Klux Klansmen arrested on federal charges in the Liuzzo slaying was an undercover man for the FBI. The source said Gary Thomas Rowe Jr., 31, of Birmingham, was with three nightriders when they shot Mrs. Liuzzo, a 38-year-old mother of five from Detroit, on U.S. 80 near Lowndesboro the night of March 25.

The source said Rowe "did all he could" to prevent the killing, "but he couldn't do it without endangering his own life." The FBI is said to be in possession of the murder weapon, a .38 caliber pistol.

Mrs. Liuzzo was shot to death while returning to Montgomery from Selma for another car load of Negroes who had participated in a civil rights march.

Former Castro Aide Speaks to Public Tonight

Major Pedro Diaz Lanz, one time commander in chief of the Cuban Air Force will be the principal speaker at an anti-communist crusade starting at 7:30 tonight in the Pampa Junior High School Auditorium.

Communist infiltration will be the keynote of the message by Lanz, a member of evangelist Bill James Hargis' Christian Crusade.

Lanz was the first high-ranking officer to denounce Fidel Castro as a communist. He barely escaped with his life in 1959. Later in the year, flying an unarmed aircraft from a Florida base, he 'bombed' Havana with leaflets warning Cubans of their fate under communism and Castro.

Lanz was arrested and jailed by the United States State Department when he returned to the U.S.

Admission to tonight's meeting is free and the public is invited.

Fruited Lemon Pie Adds Sparkle

FRUITED LEMON PIE sings the praises of spring.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Western cooks are really kitchen pioneers. Something new seems to be their favorite ingredient. For instance, where but on the Pacific Coast would anyone stud a lemon pie with fruit salad and spark it with a touch of nutmeg?

Easy, too. The fruit salad is western canned and the lemon pie filling comes in a package.

FRUITED LEMON PIE
(6 to 8 servings.

1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) fruit cocktail
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 package (3⅝ oz.) lemon pie filling
½ cup sugar
Pinch salt
1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind
Water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup whipping cream
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
Baked 9-inch pastry shell

Drain fruit cocktail, saving syrup. Combine in saucepan pie filling, sugar, salt, eggs and lemon rind. Add water to fruit syrup to make amount of liquid called for on pie filling package; blend into mixture in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice. Cool to room temperature. Whip cream with nutmeg. Fold 1 cup lemon mixture into whipped cream. Fold fruit cocktail into remaining lemon mixture. Save 1 cup of fruit mixture; turn remainder into pie shell. Turn whipped cream mixture over fruit layer. Garnish with spoonfuls of reserved fruit mixture. Chill well before serving.

Glistening Glazed Fully-Cooked Ham Brightens Your Sunday Dinner Table

It's right to be happy and gay on a spring Sunday morning, as the cold of winter ends and spring arrives with a promise of new life and beauty.

Brighten your table this spring for rejoicing by serving an elegant fully-cooked hostess ham with a glistening glaze on the top and sides.

With time at a premium on a busy Sunday morning, you will find a hostess ham to be a blessing in disguise. Because it is fully-cooked, it may be sliced and served when taken right from the refrigerator. Or if preferred, heat in a 325 degree F. oven until the internal temperature reaches 130 degree F. as indicated on a roast meat thermometer.

When selecting a hostess ham look for the two most trusted words in meat prominently displayed on the ham wrapper. This is your assurance of the highest quality and of a tempting brown sugar cured flavor. Since a hostess ham is completely boneless, there's nothing to interfere with easy slicing from end to end.

An accompaniment to the festive main entree is Be-Deviled Eggs. Hidden under the sprinkling of grated egg yolk is the be-devilment. . . deviled ham. This combined with a little egg yolk, onion, tabasco sauce, and sour cream forms the stuffing for the egg halves. A thin layer of sour cream serves as the base for the light, flaky egg yolk topping.

Make Sunday dinner a relaxed and glorious one with the use of foods all easy-to - prepare ahead of time.

BE-DEVILED EGGS

3 ounce can deviled ham luncheon spread
1 teaspoon minced onion
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon tabasco sauce
1-3 cup dairy sour cream
12 hard-cooked eggs, shelled

Mix ham, onion, pepper, tabasco sauce, and 1 tablespoon sour cream in a mixing bowl. Slice shelled eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and set aside 6 yolk halves. Mash remaining yolks until very fine. Blend fine egg yolks into ham mixture. Fill all egg whites with ham-egg mixture; do not mound. Spread a thin layer of sour cream on top of each stuffed egg. Put filled eggs close together on waxed paper. Sieve remaining 6 yolks over filled eggs. Chill until serving time. Serve with hostess ham.

Invisible Ingredient Not on the Label

There's an invisible ingredient to be found in every can of food you use, says the National Canners Association. It's not on the label (just about the only ingredient in the can that isn't). It's new because every time you open a can you find a new supply of it, yet it's been around ever since the first can of food was packed. You cook with it but it can't be spooned or stirred. You can measure it but not in cups. It has no substance but it plays a substantial part in your life. Many recipes depend upon it but you will never find it itemized in the ingredient list.

Convenience, good taste and nutrition, economy, or variety? No, none of these, though canned foods are noted for all. The invisible ingredient, report the canners, is "canned time," one of the best buys around. To the young woman of today, time is the pioneering passport to new freedom. These young homemakers are getting out into the world. Canned foods are helping them get out of the kitchen. Some of the canners' earliest customers were women who stocked canned foods in a corner of a covered wagon. Now ladies on the go load up the station wagon. Times have changed, but "canned time" is still helping the ladies pioneer. Here are some canned food time-saver recipes you'll enjoy.

Currying a Favorite — Add curry powder to canned meat balls in tomato sauce. Simmer a few moments and serve in a chafing dish for additional glamour.

Soup, see Garnish — Try caraway seeds and green pepper rings as a tasty garnish for canned Manhattan clam chowder.

Sardine Savvy — Try canned sardines grilled on toast triangles for a tasty breakfast treat.

Chili con Carne con Imagination — Canned chili con carne over corn bread squares and topped with grated Parmesan cheese is a tasty and budget-wise meal.

Contrast Delights — Canned sauerkraut with roast turkey, chicken, pork or spareribs delights the palate.

Values Conserved

Canned foods retain their original proteins, carbohydrates and fats unimpaired, reports the National Canners Association's Research Laboratories.

Each can or jar used in the canning process actually serves as a miniature pressure cooker. This form of cooking assures maximum retention of important vitamins and minerals.

Add Springtime Flavor to Chicken

There are no two ways about it: Chicken is wonderful! It looks, smells, and tastes delicious cooked in any one of a hundred ways. This recipe for Chicken With Orange Sauce, from "The Margaret Rudkin Pepperidge Farm Cookbook," is an interesting variation for preparing this all-time favorite.

CHICKEN WITH ORANGE SAUCE
(Serves 6)

6 breasts of chicken, boned
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Grated orange rind

Poach the breasts of chicken by covering them with boiling water, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer gently until tender, or about 45 minutes. Remove from the water and keep hot while you make the sauce.

Melt the butter, add the flour and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the chicken broth, orange juice, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add a little grated orange rind. Drop the chicken pieces into the hot sauce, heat thoroughly and serve hot.

Food Buying Guide

The following guide to the nation's food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Plenty of attractively priced meats, fruits, vegetables, and eggs await this week's shopper. All basic groups are available in abundant and colorful supply.

Beef roasts, steaks, bacon, Boston butts, hams and smoked picnics lead the red meat buys. Canned pink salmon fish sticks, fish portions, and eggs complete the outlook for good protein buys.

A fine variety of fresh fruits and vegetables is available, according to the latest market news reports from USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. Tops on the list are asparagus, green beans, cabbage lettuce, onions (both green and dry), peppers, radishes, and tomatoes.

Apples, bananas, grapefruit rhubarb and strawberries are in good supply. Oranges are especially plentiful.

Fresh foods for canning are produced solely for that purpose by exclusive contract, or are especially selected from the standpoint of ripeness, variety and quality at their peak point. Surplus crops are never used for canning, reports the National Canners Association.

Today Americans can choose from over 8,000 items in food stores. Twenty years ago the choice was only from 1,500 items. The canning industry alone produces over 1,200 different kinds and combinations of canned foods yearly.

Special Salad With Lamb

Here's a leftover lamb salad, special enough for entertaining. Combine 2 cups diced cooked lamb with 1 cup diced celery, 1 cup Bing cherries, 4 hard-cooked eggs, diced, ¼ cup chopped nuts, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 cup mayonnaise. Serve on salad greens, 6 servings.

Storage Traits

Canned foods are easy to store. The best storage is in a dry place at a moderate temperature. Storage near steam pipes, radiators, or kitchen ranges should be avoided.

Dear Abby....

June Bride-To-Be Is Properly Concerned

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I were engaged last summer with plans to be married on June 6. His mother passed away very suddenly two weeks ago and now we are wondering if we should go through with our original plans for the wedding. We planned to have it in our church with a large reception and wedding dance afterwards. His two sisters were going to be my bridesmaids, but now they don't think they should. His side of the family had relatives come in from both coasts for the funeral and now some of them say they can't come back again in June for our wedding. I am so upset. What do you think we ought to do? His father thinks if we want a big wedding with a lot of merrymaking, we should put if off a year. Or else have a very quiet ceremony in June as scheduled. What is proper?

PLANS DASHED

DEAR PLANS: Under the circumstances, there should be a minimum of merrymaking, if you marry, as scheduled in June. Let your clergyman help you revise your plans. He will know what is "proper."

DEAR ABBY: Can a single girl wreck a home, if it is not really a "home" in the true sense of the word, but merely a "peaceful co-existence"?

LIZETTE

DEAR LIZETTE: Let's not quibble about the choice of words. A single girl can wreck a "peaceful co-existence" — which amounts to the same thing.

DEAR ABBY: We have a five-year-old retarded son who is living at a school for the retarded. We tried very hard to make him happy with us, yet keep him from completely dominating our home, but it was impossible since he was hyperactive. I came close to a nervous breakdown, as I have four normal children besides him to care for. I saw him for the first time Sunday, after a required three-week waiting period. For the first time in his life he looked "beautiful." The strain of living with a normal family had kept a pinched, unhappy look on his face. The easy atmosphere of living with his equals had let his true personality come out and he appeared comfortable and relaxed. And happy! I had grieved needlessly for five years. (I knew something was wrong at birth.) I am so thankful there is such a wonderful place for my boy to live. If this helps other families to make the decision I finally made, you have my permission to use my letter.

MRS. E.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BIG SAVINGS AND LOAN MAN: A young man who spends too many evenings with the boys shouldn't be surprised if his wife does likewise.

ABET NATURE

Your lips and the delicate skin around your eyes need special attention. Nature, it seems, did not provide as much protective lubrication for these areas as she did for the rest of our skin. Many firms have special lubricating eye creams for use at night and during the day under make-up. One firm has introduced an eye oil stick and lip emolliet stick. These are to be applied under make-up and before going to bed. For best results, use these emollient-rich aids with every touchup.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 23

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early day is the best time for you to make the headway and the progress that can be of greatest benefit to you, but later, you find much confusion present and you need to analyze carefully just where you are headed, as well as get a clearer picture of what is expected of you by your friends, associates.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Early morning rising so that you can come to agreement with good friends starts this day properly. Then off to new contacts which can be made socially. Avoid those who are self-seeking.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)—Morning finds you able to do as you please, but take care you avoid arguing with an associate later. This is not the ideal time for making radical changes. Ill will may result therefrom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Carrying through with duties expected of you without complaint sees you winning out. Then take time to look into more lucrative outlets. Don't argue with higherups or you lose out.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—It is not necessary to spend very much for pleasure when the inexpensive is just as enjoyable now. Don't try to cram everything in at once. Tomorrow is also ideal for fun and frolic.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Be more conciliatory and bring harmony between kin and out side partners, pals instead of trying to lord it over all of them. Be more ambitious with your career. Forget too much of the personal.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—While visits and errands may be pressing, you find that first you must complete work indoors. Apply yourself with those difficult statements. Get good ideas across to others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Instead of trying to push monetary matters, relax a bit with good friends and restore your energies. Get into hobbies you like. These could prove to be very lucrative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Own family is thinking far more clearly than you today, so don't try to put wrong points across. Buy some thoughtful little gifts. Show how loyal you truly are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Forget private anxieties and take a little trip or make the calls that bring home the bacon. Pleasing regular allies by some thoughtful act is wise. Deepen friendships.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 2;)—Be clever and stick to duties at hand instead of dissipating funds with pals who have nothing better to do. Listen to ideas of experts in business. Follow the best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Following own practical ideas is preferable to carrying through with higher-up who is in an irate mood. Be steadfast. This safeguards your good name and builds up good will.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—You must first rid yourself of private anxieties before you can go ahead with new ideas now dawning. Use various ways for getting rid of annoyances. Show you have imagination.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those persons who is a natural-born mixer and will love to help and be around people from earliest age. Don't try to hold your charming youngster down too much, and be sure to slant the education toward psychology, philosophy, ect.

Fad Diets Cause Teen Woes

By ALICIA HART
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Young women between 12 and 20 have a weighty problem. How they approach it can affect their physical and mental health for many years, physicians say.

A continuing study by the American Dietetic Association with 1,000 California teen-agers indicates more than 60 per cent want to lose weight but only 10 per cent of the girls are seriously overweight.

Teens are not meant to be ultra-thin, doctors say. The body needs a little extra weight at this time.

Despite this warning the "skinny" fad remains rife. The result: teen-age girls have the world's worst eating habits and their complexions show it.

Nutritionists' surveys reveal junior and senior high school girls select foods supplying less than 50 per cent of their bodies' needs. Milk, meat and vegetables fall by the wayside before starvation diets.

Poor eating habits invite a variety of problems. Hormonal changes encourage the young adult's complexion to act up and the constant dumping of sugars and fats into the blood stream aggravates any borderline acne condition. Poor food habits also encourage weariness. The diet-conscious teen tends to pick foods high in carbohydrates which give quick energy and not much else while eating body builders such as meat, eggs and milk could stave off that vague, exhausted feeling so many teens complain of.

AVOID TEEN WOES — Proper diet and rest help teen-agers fight fatigue and facial woes. Apply medicated lotions or creams to blemishes with sterile cotton swabs to avoid spreading infection.

Even worse than the thought of being plumper than she feels is fashionable is the actuality of acne.

Basic causes are improper skin care, poor diet, specific vitamin deficiency, nervous tension, systemic infection (low grade virus) and glandular changes. It is best to turn to the family doctor for advice and treatment for most of these.

However, any teen-ager can soothe the acne condition with several thorough facials a day. Use a mild, medicated soap, rinse and towel gently. To prevent spread of infection, apply a skin-colored medicated lotion or cream to each blemish with a sterile cotton swab. The medicated cream should be applied at night before going to bed, too. Once-a-week use of cleansing grains helps rid your complexion of blackheads.

The Doctor Says

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Nursery schools are gaining in numbers and popularity. It is not too early to look ahead if your child will be ready in the fall.

A young mother may want to send her child to a nursery school because she is employed outside the home. She may want more free time for outside activities. Or it may be that there are no children her child's age in the immediate vicinity.

Regardless of her reasons she should ask herself: "Is my child ready to adjust to this new experience?

"Does the nursery school give him the kind of experience he needs? Does the school meet certain minimum standards?"

Since nursery schools vary widely, visit the school before enrolling your child. Thus you can observe whether the children are happy. It is very important that each child should have a chance to tell the teacher and others about his experiences. Easy communication is a valuable asset. The earlier it is developed the better.

Teachers should be friendly and understanding. In matters of discipline they should be firm but gentle. They should welcome conferences with parents. There should be at least two teachers for each group of 15 to 20 children to that one can give a few minutes of individual attention to a child who needs it while the other one supervises the group. One or more of the teachers should have had training in first aid.

While you are at the school inquire about such safety measures as protection against accidents and fire. Look and see if the toilets are clean and take note of the play materials and equipment.

In any contact with a group your child will be exposed to some infectious diseases. When these are mild they help your child build up an immunity to many common infections. This is an advantage. It is a regular experience in the armed forces that, in the first few months of training, recruits have many infections, mostly of the upper respiratory tract. Youths from rural areas who have had limited contacts with others are always harder hit than those who come from the cities.

If, however, while your child is attending nursery school he has a series of 4 or 5 colds one after another you should consider withdrawing him from the school for a few weeks.

The Mature Parent

Where's Solution if no .. Home Influence Exists?

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Commenting on a bill seeking to raise New York State's drinking age from 18 to 21, the majority leader of the state Senate, Joseph Zaretski, asserted, "I don't think you can stop teenage drinking by law. The home influence is the best preventive I know."

But what if there isn't any home influence?

Why do you suppose that so many politicians feel obliged to talk like Rip Van Winkles?

Doesn't the majority leader read the papers? Has he never heard of "permissiveness" — that theory of child training which has substituted protoplasm for the backbone of the formerly vertebrate American parent? Has nobody ever told him about the invention of the automobile—that vehicle so admirably adapted to distance-making between "home influence" on the young and the more indulgent influence of a fifth of wisky?

How long has he been asleep to be so unaware that teenage America not only controls "home influence" but much of this country's economy — the profits of recording companies, the careers of disc jockeys, rock 'n' roll singers, the sponsorship of radio and television programs? Doesn't he know that teen-age America speaks its own language, wears specialized clothing, chooses its own hours and goes its own way — in short, that it operates what sociologists call a "sub-culture." Too often that sub-culture is a foreign country as irresponsible and undisciplined as the darkest Africa.

The majority leader ought to get around a little more.

I wouldn't dream of asking him to spend a couple of days in a slum ghetto where the latent violence of idle, frustrated teen-age America hits you like a blow in the face. I was just thinking about a visit to one of those nice, suburban high schools where the nice, suburban kids take drugs.

It's awfully hard on parents to be made responsible for it in this affluent society where one marriage out of three ends in divorce, where college officials romanticize student sexual license in the name of "relationship" and where the automobile speeds our children away from our "home influence" every night in the week. It may not be possible to ever recover it in this so prosperous world whose chief purpose often seems "Give me fun now. I'll buy and pay later."

Highlights and Sidelights From the State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — A new governor moved into the chief executive's office in the capitol — but only for a day.

Following tradition, Gov. John Connally and Lt. Gov. Preston Smith left the state Tuesday — clearing the way for Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, Senate president pro tempore, to take a 24-hour turn as governor.

Creighton invited homefolks from Callahan, Clay, Denton, Eastland, Jack, Montague Palo Pinto, Parker, Stephens and Wise counties to his "inauguration."

— Governor Connally vetoed the bill authorizing Texas Tech to establish a medical school in Lubbock.

Connally said that not enough study had been given to the idea and that he preferred that his recently created college coordinating board be the supreme authority in new college programs.

Veto drew critical attacks from West Texas proponents of the school, including Lt. Gov. Preston Smith and Sen. H. J. Blanchard, both of Lubbock.

COMMISSION NEARS PASSAGE—After a two-week delay, the Senate was ready to take final action on the bill to create a "Little Hoover Commission" to cull waste and inefficiency from state offices and agencies. Bill is sponsored by Rep. Dick Cory of Victoria and Sen. Bill Patman of Ganado.

An amendment which Patman considers crippling was tacked on by Sen. Culp Krueger of El Campo. Amendment makes the lieutenant governor and the speaker chairman and vice chairman of the commission, replacing a provision that the members would elect the commission leaders.

DISTRICTING GUIDELINES SET — Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham says the House Districts Committee aims to get a congressional reapportionment measure to the floor by May 1. Mutscher is chairman of the committee.

Three optional plans for state House of Representatives redistricting also are due from subcommittees by May 1.

Committee has adopted these tentative legislature redistricting guidelines:

Population variance between districts should be held to a maximum of 15 per cent over and below the mean average:

"At least one attempt" will be made to eliminate "flotorial" districts;

Small counties without population sufficient to justify a representative of their own will not be divided;

Two or more representatives will not be allowed to run at large in two or more counties.

Committee also approved Senate-passed bill to permit up to 15 per cent population variance in forming legislative districts.

House Speaker Ben Barnes is optimistic that the Legislature can solve the thorny redistricting problem without need for a special session.

AMENDMENTS GET PRIORITY — State representatives returned from their brief Easter Vacations to find two proposed constitutional amendments high on their work assignment list.

Governor Connally finally got the balky House Amendments Committee to clear for debate measure to increase terms of governor and other officials elected statewide from two to four years.

Committee also approved redistricting pain-easer calling for increase for State Senate membership from 31 to 39, but stripped from it provision to lengthen upper house terms to six years.

Pressure for submission of both measures to Texas voters (in November and August 7 elections, respectively) were intense.

NEW LAWS ADOPTED—Dozens of bills have been given final passage in one house and sent to the other for further action.

Two bills by Rep. Dick Cory would authorize commissioners courts in all but the largest counties of the state to give county officers raises of up to 20 per cent.

Sen. Don Kennard's bill to create a North Central Texas Airport Authority in Tarrant County, which is opposed by Dallas, was passed in the Senate, but the House version ran into a filibuster by Dallas delegation members in the committee hearing.

Bill by Sen. W. T. Moore would authorize Texas A&M to accept James Connally Air Force Base for the state and establish a technical institute.

POLL TAX REPEAL FAILS — Proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax fell four votes short of getting the necessary two - thirds in the House of Representatives. But measure was kept alive by a parliamentary maneuver.

Rep. Travis Peeler of Corpus Christi is sponsor of the bill.

BUDGET WRITING TOUGHER THAN EVER — Appropriations bill conferees failed to make the April 15 deadline set by House Speaker Ben Barnes for completion of their work.

Despite any sharp differences between House and Senate bills, the budget-writing job in general is tougher than ever this year. That's because of creation of new state agencies and transfers of duties — particularly in hospital and water fields — plus impact of federal programs just being evolved on state finances.

LOAN BILL ADVANCED — Legislation which opponents charge would mean the highest interest rates on loans in the nation for Texans received tentative Senate approval 16-14.

Measure by Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg would allow annual interest rates on installment loans of $9 per $100 up to $6,500. An amendment, finally accepted after strong objection, exempted small loan companies from terms of the bill. Another amendment exempted mortgage loans on real estate.

NON-CITIZEN AID PROPOSED — Proposed constitutional amendment to make old age assistance to non - citizens who have lived in the U. S. for at least 25 years received heavy support in a House committee hearing.

Rep. Joe J. Bernal of San Antonio, sponsor of the bill, said only three other states require citizenship for such assistance. Many thousand long-time Texas residents, who have not qualified for citizenship for such assistance due to language or other barriers, have no income at all today, Bernal told the committee.

COLLEGES GET FEDERAL FUNDS — With $11,200,000 presently allotted for distribution in federal grants for college construction in Texas, the Texas Commission on Higher Education already has requests from 24 more colleges and eligibility established for 12 junior colleges.

Applications received amount to an additional $12,500,000 of construction requests under the 1964 Higher Educational Facilities Act. Grants pay for 40 per cent of the actual cost of new construction for approved college facilities.

RAIN-MAKING STUDY URGED — John T. Carr Jr., weatherman with the Texas Water Commission, says long range experiments in weather modification should be undertaken in Texas, even though at present conditions do not seem favorable and existing methods are expensive.

Carr says that ideal conditions for rain-making are infrequent in Texas. However, experiments have shown there are effective methods to bring about rain where it would not have fallen naturally and to increase the yield of rain clouds.

SHORT SNORTS — Bill to authorize the Texas Water Development Board to issue $100,000,000 more in Texas Water Development Bonds was heard by the House Conservation and Reclamation Committee and assigned to sub-committee. . . . George W. Hill, executive director of the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, has resigned effective July 1 to become president of the Southern Heritage Foundation. . . .Governor signed into law these bills: raising compulsory school attendance age one year to 17; renewal of foreign student exemptions from tuition in Texas colleges; and providing for election of school trustees by the place system in independent school districts of 500 or more scholastics. . . Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr ruled that Hidalgo County cannot pay attorneys appointed to represent indigent defendents in misdemeanor cases because there is no provision in the constitution or the laws which authorizes the commissioners court to do so. . . In another opinion, Carr concluded a fireman who leaves his job after 20 years service, but before age 55, is not required to contribute percentage of sick leave and vacation pay into firemen's relief and retirement fund. . .State Banking Commission heard application of Bank of Rockport for charter April 19).

Foreign Commentary

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI) — Critics of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Viet Nam policy contend that Britain is prevented from playing her traditional role of conciliator by identifying herself too closely with the United States in the Southeast Asia conflict.

These critics in Britain and among the European Allies claim that Britain might be able to push more vigorously and convincingly for a negotiated settlement if she were less firmly aligned with America on Viet Nam policy ad strategy.

The uncompromising support the Labor government has given to American Viet Nam policy is said to have made Britain virtually a party to the conflict not only in the view of the Communists but also in that of some of the unaligned nations in the world.

This criticism is distinct from the complaint about the British government's Southeast Asia policy, raised by left wingers in the Labor party.

Oppose All-Out Support

These Laborites oppose Wilson's all-out support of United States Viet Nam strategy because they disagree basically with the American position.

Wilson has shown no intention of yielding to this pressure. He maintains that his government considers the United States to be in the right and the Communists in the wrong in the current conflilt.

Lately a body of independent responsible opinion in this country and among some of the West European Allies has joined the chorus of Wilson's critics but for different reasons and considerations.

While basically in agreement with United States Viet Nam policy and tactics, they argue Britain could do a better job if she were less firmly committed.

These "independents" recall that Britain was able to play the role of conciliator and pave the way to the 1954 Geneva Indochina peace settlement by staying more or less clear of Washington.

Received Little Support

Britain's recent appeal to members of the Geneva conference to cooperate with her in Viet Nam peace soundings has had little concrete response to date.

Red China and Communist North Viet Nam have told London that by backing the Americans Britain has virtually forfeited the right to act as co-chairman of the Geneva conference. Britain was co-chairman with Russia of the 1954 conference.

The influential Times of London has suggested that "well disposed anglophiles" in the U.S. administration feel Britain's interests are not best served by the Labor government's constant support of American Southeast Asia policy.

The argument seems to be, the Times said, that constructive criticism is necessary "if the alliance is to survive the present introspection in Washington and the cold dislike of the United States in Paris."

Nancy, Tommy Planning Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Tommy Sands and Frank Sinatra's daughter, Nancy, plan to seek a divorce after more than four years of marriage.

In a joint statement Wednesday, the couple said:

"We have agreed to an amicable divorce because we have certain irreconcilable differences."

Sands, 27, and his 25-year-old wife were married Dec. 11, 1960, in Las Vegas, Nev., where they met 10 months earlier. They have no children.

A spokesman for the couple said Mrs. Sands would file for divorce in Los Angeles in the near future, charging Sands with mental cruelty.

Sinatra, whose daughter was the apple of his eye and the "Nancy" of his famous song of the same name, was unavailable for comment. He has two other children — Frank Jr., and Tina — by his first wife, also named Nancy.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost from the day he took office, President Johnson has been striving to make the government more economy conscious.

In addition to turning out lights himself, the President has directed that all departments, agencies and bureaus be furnished with copies of a booklet entitled "war on Waste."

Some of the fruits of this campaign were pointed out this week by Sen. Stephen M. Young D-Ohio, in a newsletter to his constituents.

Young reported that the executive branch has managed to economize in the following ways:

—By increasing the "life expectancy" of the dollar bill from one year to 18 months through the use of more durable paper.

—By arming the nation's mailmen with a dog repellent spray. According to Young, this is saving the Post Office Department a million dollars a year on dog bites.

—By switching from percale to muslin sheets in Veterans Administration hospitals. Young says the muslin sheets are lighter and this saves $65,000 a year in laundry bills.

All of these measures are highly commendable and I just hope they aren't offset by what may have been a financial blunder on the part of the Agriculture Department.

That department recently issued a public appeal urging "everyone to watch for unfamiliar plant pests" this spring. It said any sightings "should be reported at once to county agricultural agents or state or federal entomologists.

"It could mean that a new foreign pest has sneaked past our quarantine barriers, or that a native insect is building up to dangerous proportions," the department explained.

I'm sure the department meant well, but certain problems are bound to arise. Like my wife, for instance. She called me at the office the other day in something of a quandary.

"I just saw a bug on the philodendron plant," she said. "Should I report it?"

"Is it foreign or native?" I asked.

"I don't know. I can't tell one nationality from another."

"Well, did it look unfamiliar?"

"All bugs look unfamiliar as far as I'm concerned."

So there's the problem —how to keep the price of vigilance from getting out of hand.

If public response to the department's appeal is at all enthusiastic, it may have to hire extra agents and entomologists just to handle the false alarms.

Parents Tell Their Views On How Youths Should Learn Sex

Youth And Sex (IH)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A mother in Tacoma, Wash., criticized permissiveness. Another in El Paso cited the lack of parental discipline. Parents discuss the increase in sexual activity, and the causes, among the nation's youth in this dispatch.

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

United Press International

A girlie calendar hung on the bedroom wall of an 11-year-old boy was his "advanced thinking" parents' way of helping to teach him that sex is not dirty.

The calendar episode was cited during a Child Study Association of American workshop on sex.

The experts participating could only agree that the act reflected the parents' views of sex. They could not agree on the approach .

A mother ordered her teenage son out of the house when she came home and discovered him in bed with a girl. He has not returned.

That parents have different ways of handling the sex problem among youth was further noted by a psychiatrist participating in a workshop at the annual meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric Association.

He told of two middle-age women who are near suicide because their teen-age daughters are pregnant. The boys involved want to marry the girls —but they aren't the types the mothers approve of or desire as husbands for their daughters.

Ho-Hum Attitude

Other parents take a ho-hum attitude.

Police Chief Donald K. Pearman, of Half Moon Bay, Calif., told a group of parents that a patrolling officer can find 8 or 10 teen-age couples engaged in sexual activity any time of day or night along the beach.

"We'll call parents," he said, "and say we have this or that minor in custody. Many just say—'Oh, send him on home.' They just can't be bothered."

Concern and attitudes of parents run the gamut of emotion, according to a survey by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The survey, conducted by the PTA magazine, drew responses on morals of teen-agers from presidents of PTA units nationwide.

Said a mother from Tacoma, Wash:

"The easy way to raise a kid is to let him decide for himself. This permissiveness that dominated our child psychology for so many years has allowed parents to abdicate their authority. Thank heaven, the pendulum is swinging back."

There was disagreement on the extent of teen-age immorality. A North Miami, Fla., mother said basically the contemporary teen - ager is the same as the teen-ager of 40 years ago — "except that he has a little more freedom and a little less responsibility."

Opinions Differ

One president in Detroit said there has been no increase in immorality. But another in the same city was certain there has been an increase.

Sixty per cent of those participating in the survey believe immorality among teen-agers is on the upswing.

A Rochester, N.Y., mother blamed the adults who don't have the courage to say "no" or "wait" to their babies as well as to their teen-agers.

She also scolded parents who encourage a market for cosmetic sets and "adult" dolls for six-year-olds.

Also criticized were parents whose "supreme discipline is directed toward playing the game of getting something for nothing, whose supreme delight is in some form of self-indulgence, who foist more and more responsibility for their children's welfare onto the schools and community agencies."

Time and again, the PTA presidents repeated what an El Paso, Tex., leader said: "The primary reason for teen - age immorality is lack of parental discipline."

"Teen - age immorality spreads by young people wanting too much too soon," said a Louisville, Ky., mother. "Parents foster this notion when they say — my kids are going to have it better than I did."

Pay The Price

The price of parents not caring or exercising enough discipline is reflected by the statistics of unwed mothers, teen-age marriages and venereal disease.

A letter in the files of the national headquarters of the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) tells of the heartbreak.

The writer describes how pregnancy forced her into an early marriage and out of school. Her husband also was a drop-out.

She expected high adventure and romance. Instead, she experienced poverty, hunger, physical pain, anguish and spiritual suffering.

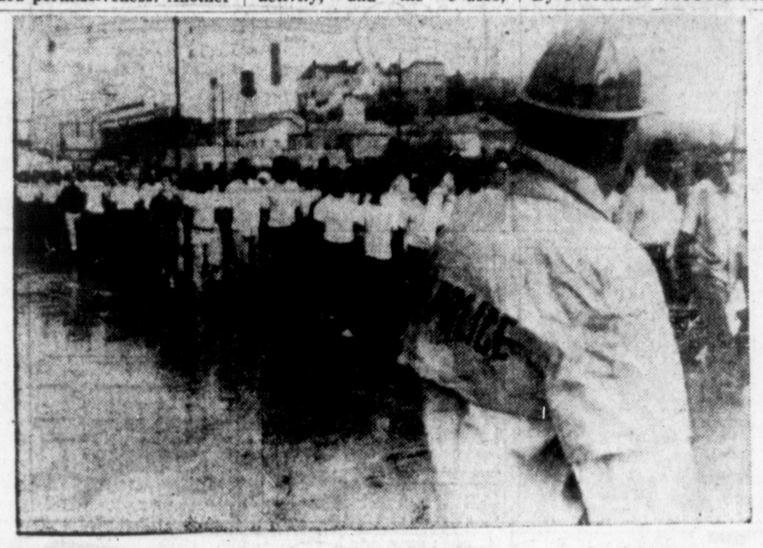

She said she wrote the letter in an attempt to caution othe4 teenagers against "Making my mistake."

In a subsequent letter, the teen - ager reported she had gone through a divorce and was once again living with her parents.

"If only the others would listen to me," she said.

"The crux of the dilemma has always been and still is, that youth themselves are expected both to mix freely males with females in enjoyable social situations, and at the same time to exercise sexual restraint." So says Winston W. Ehrmann, associate secretary, American Association of University Professors.

Writing in the Journal of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, Ehrmann continued:

NEGROES MARCH — Negro marchers parade past a policeman in Bogalusa, La., as they move toward city hall. Rain and hail fell during part of the march, but the Negroes continued to city hall where they presented a petition to the Mayor.

White Deer Has Regional Chance

By JEFF COHANE

WHITE DEER — White Deer's Little Randy Elliott seems a sure bet for regional honors among Class A contenders, but several other district 2-A trackmen appear to also have good chances for winning their way to the state meet in Austin.

Regional track for Classes AA-A-B will be at Lubbock this Friday and Saturday, with the first two places in each event going to state.

Elliott, who's 12'6" jump just missed qualifying for state last year, has a 12' 9" leap recorded at the district meet in McLean last week. It is the top performance by a Class A vaulter in the state this year, as well as a new district record, beating former state champ Wayne "Lightning" Coleman of Lefors' 12' 0" jump two years ago. Although there have been a number of higher vaults recorded in Texas high school track this year, all of them have been by AAA and AAAA jumpers.

Roy Armstrong, another of White Deer's mighty "little men", has the best TOT Class A mark in the broadjump, a 21'8" leap. Armstrong will run into rough competition in regional, as Chris Weems of Idalou and Jerry Winters of Rankin have both hit the 22-foot mark this year. Armstrong's top time of 22.0 in the 220-yard dash is also the best area mark in Class A.

Elliott and Otto Wheeler will both find the going tough in the low hurdles, Elliott having posted a 20.2 and Wheeler a 20.8. Gary Franklin of Hale Center leads Class A in this region with a 19.3, while neighbor Bobby Purvines of Panhandle has run step-and-step with the Buck pair all year.

Wheeler has clocked a 15.7 in the high hurdles, but will have the same two foes to face, both Franklin and Purvines having chalked up 15.1 marks.

Memphis' sprint relay time of 43.8.2 has been topped in this region only by Idalou's, 43.8, a one-foot difference.

Memphis will also have the top man in the 440, Hoot Jones, with a 49.7 clocking. Jack Stargel has a 9.9 in the 100-yard dash this year, as good as anything in the region in this class.

The district will also have two strong competitors in the shot put, Joe Rudy with a 48' 10" throw, and teammate Chester McLain of Wellington, who scratched on a 50-footer in district.

Two district half-milers will both be rated favorites in regional. Olan Moore of Wellington set a district record with a 2:01.6, but runner-up Harry Tate of McLean was right behind him in 2:02.0.

(Daily News Staff Photo)

BUCK BIG THREE — This trio of White Deer thin-clads will compete for six regional titles at Lubbock this weekend, Roy Armstrong in the 220-yard dash and broadjump; Otto Wheeler in both high and low hurdles and Little Randy Elliott in the low hurdles and pole vault.

Colavito's Booming Bat Awakens Cleveland Fans

By United Press International

Rocky Colavito's big bat is back in Cleveland and the whole town's awake to the Indians again.

That's the verdict after the Indians' gala home opener Wednesday when (1) the home run hero of the late 1950's smashed a two-run homer, (2, the Indians scored a dramatic 6-5 victory over the Los Angeles Angels and (3) 44,335 fans, largest opening day crowd in Cleveland since 1960, greeted the Tribe.

It was Rocky's first home appearance in Cleveland since April 17, 1959 when Frank Lane traded him to the Detroit Tigers in a deal that shocked the Indians' fans. And Rocky, the fans and the team made the most of it.

The Indians' baseball fortunes had gone steadily down ever since that trade — so much so that season attendance dipped to 562,507 in 1963 and 653,293 in 1964, raising the possibility that the franchise would be transferred to Seattle, Wash. Then club President Gabe Paul saw a chance to bring Colavito back to Cleveland and swung one of the big deals of the offseason with the Kansas City Athletics.

Big Story

Colavito's return was the big story to the Cleveland fans but he was far from the Indians' only hero. Leon Wagner hit his second and third homers of the season—the latter breaking up the game in the bottom of the 10th inning — and pinch-hitter Joe Azcue singled home Vic Davalillo off no less than Dean Chance making a rare relief appearance, to tie the score at 5-5 in the ninth.

And then there was Sam McDowell, the skinny lefty who struck out 10 batters in 8 2-3 innings before a flash ninth-inning three - run rally enabled the Angels to take a 5-4 lead. All in all, it made it perhaps the biggest day in Cleveland baseball since Rocky went away.

The Minnesota Twins slapped around the New York Yankees 7-2, the Baltimore Orioles edged past the Washington Senators 3-2 in 11 innings, the Chicago White Sox scored a 3-1 11-inning triumph over the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers beat the Kansas City A's 10 in other AL games.

Collect 10 Hits

A crowd of 38,212 at Yankee Stadium saw Tony Oliva, Rich Rollins and Jimmie Hall hit homers to lead the Twins' 10-hit attack that dealt 1964 rookie star Mel Stottlemyre his first loss of '65. Camilo Pascual went seven innings to receive credit for the win despite yielding Mickey Mantle's third home run of the year.

Los Angeles Rallies Over Celtics, 126-105

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Suddenly very much alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers today had Jerry West, Gene Wiley and LeRoy Ellis to thank for getting them off the floor.

West, as usual, was brilliant for Los Angeles with 43 points, but it was the inspired play of center Wiley and forward Ellis that enabled Los Angeles to win the third game of the championship playoff series Wednesday night, 126-105.

The two teams will meet here Friday night in the fourth game, with Boston holding a 2-1 edge in the best four-of-seven playoff.

Wiley outrebounded Boston's tower of strength, Bill Russell, 29-18, and Ellis pumped in 29 points to help West.

"Wiley outjumped me," Russell said after the game.

"I kept Russell outside," Wiley said. "I got better position on him."

The figure tended to agree with Wiley, for Russell only scored one basket underneath. All of the Celtics had troubles around the basket, however, as the Lakers snapped off 90 rebounds to 60 for Boston.

Nichols On Quest For Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— Bobby Nichols, the Louisville slugger with his golf swing in the groove, sets out today on the first leg of his quest for a Texas Open title that would give him back to back victories on the summer golf tour.

The 29-year-old Nichols, who surged from 25th to fifth in money winnings by grabbing the $12,000 top prize in the Houston Classic last week, ranked along side of Doug Sanders as the co-favorite for the big check in the $50,000 Texas Open at Oak Hills Country Club.

Nichols warmed up for the 72-hole affair with a breezy three-under par 67 Wednesday that earned him $157.50 unofficial money with a tie for fifth in a pro-am prelude to the main event over the 6,700 yard par 35-35—70 Oak Hills layout.

Sanders, meanwhile, was out of the money in the pro-am and did not even bother to turn in a score, but the curly-haired Georgian usually has found the tree-studded Oak Hills to his liking and is expected to finish well enough to hold onto his No. 2 rank among the money winners.

Bruce Devlin and Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, who pushed Nichols to the limit in Houston last week by finishing just a stroke off the winning pace, also conquered Oak Hills par Wednesday with 69s.

Sonics Lose

By United Press International

The Albuquerque Dodgers swept from behind against the Austin Braves with six runs in the ninth inning Wednesday night, whipped the Braves 10-7 and took a big three-game lead in the Western Division of the Texas League.

The Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs narrowed Tulsa's eastern division lead with an 8-7 win over the Oilers and El Paso edged Amarillo 9-8 in other league action.

Cardinal Bench Belies Keane

By United Press International

Just when everybody thought Red Schoendienst was going to throw the book at the St. Louis Cardinals, he threw the bench at the Milwaukee Braves.

The impact was enough to make the whole National League take notice.

The bench—strong reserves—was a Cardinal weakness in 1964 despite the happy ending to the Johnny Keane story. "That front line is as strong as any in baseball," was the word. "But those reserves — b-r-r-r."

The world champions went into reverse at the start of the 1965 season with one victory and a tie to show for their first seven games. Schoendienst, the rookie pilot, was on the spot. Was complacency the problem and was the good old redhead rednecked enough to act? And, if so, how?

Quick Results

Schoendienst showed 'em Wednesday night when he benched Julian Javier (batting .174) in favor of Phil Gagliano and Mike Shannon (batting .045) in favor of Tito Francona and got instantaneous results in the form of a 6-3 victory over the Braves.

Gagliano, up from Jacksonville of the International League, drove in two runs with sacrifice flies, had five assists, two putouts and participated in two double plays. And Francona, obtained from the Cleveland Indians, had a triple and a single in a nine-hit attack that also included homers by Bill White and Lou Brock.

Bob Purkey, acquired from Cincinnati, went the route with a six-hitter and had a two-hitter going into the ninth when the Braves put together four singles for two runs. Ed Mathews homered for the other Milwaukee run.

The Reds walloped the Chicago Cubs 9-2, the Houston Astros downed the Philadelphia Phillies 11-4, the San Francisco Giants beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2, and the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the New York Mets 5-1 in other NL games.

Pete Rose had a homer and a double and Frank Robinson and Tommy Harper hit run-scoring doubles to lead a 14-hit Cincinnati attack behind Joey Jay's four-hitter. Gordon Coleman also hit a homer for the Reds and Ron Santo hit his fourth of the season for the Cubs.

Come On Strong

The Astros scored four runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 3-2 deficit and kayo Chris Short. Then they rocked three Philadelphia pitchers for five insurance runs in the ninth. A two-run single by Jim Beauchamp gave the Astros the lead in the eighth and John Bateman and Bob Lillis also weighed in with run-scoring singles. Bateman homered for the Astros and Wes Covington for the Phillies.

Juan Marichal pitched an eight-hitter, struck out seven and walked one for his second win of the season for the Giants. Willie McCovey supplied the power with a two-run homer and a single and Marichal helped his own cause with a run-scoring single.

Don Drysdale, aided by Bob Miller in the eighth and ninth innings, beat the Mets for the 11th straight time behind an 11-hit attack featured by three safeties by Maury Wills and two each by Drysdale and Wes Parker, who doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning.

Matson Heads Relays Field

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)— Burly Randy Matson, the world's foremost shot putter and emerging discus star, heads a field of over 2,500 athletes expected to rewrite the record book at the 56th Drake Relays Friday and Saturday.

Relays director Bob Karnes today predicted 15 records would fall with another seven "possibles" because of Matson's bid for two field records.

The Texas A&M sophomore hurled the 16-pound shot for a world record 67 feet-11¼ inches, two weeks ago and appeared a shoo-in for Drake's crown. Matson also is favored to set a relays mark in the discus, a comparatively new endeavor for him, and become only the 27th "double winner" in the meet's history.

He will face competition from Roger Orrell of Abilene Christian, the defending champion and one of four returning titlists in the record field.

Others are Bob Lambert, pint-sized high jumper from the Air Force; miler Rick Cunningham of Miami of Ohio and 100-yard sprint star Trenton Jackson of Illinois.

The field includes more than 300 teams representing 37 universities, 49 colleges and over 200 high schools, junior high and elementary institutions.

Reserves, Shockers At Dumas Tomorrow

Phil Massie
...third base

A preview of this summer's American Legion baseball team and next year's Harvester squad can be seen at Dumas tomorrow afternoon when Pampa High coach Deck Woldt takes a team of Harvester reserves and Shocker standouts up to play the Demons in a non-district game.

The team will be made up primarily of sophomores and juniors, with the only seniors being Jerry Goodwin and Frank Watts in the outfield. Jeff Smiley sharing the catching duties with junior Corky Dodd and Phil Massie splitting third base with either Jerry Largin or Roy Harper, a pair of junior Shockers.

Sophomore Lawrence Jones, the heavy-hitter of the Shockers, will be on first base, junior Jimmy Moore at second and junior Teddy "Octopus" Phillips at short, with sophomore Stevie Oler rounding out the outfield.

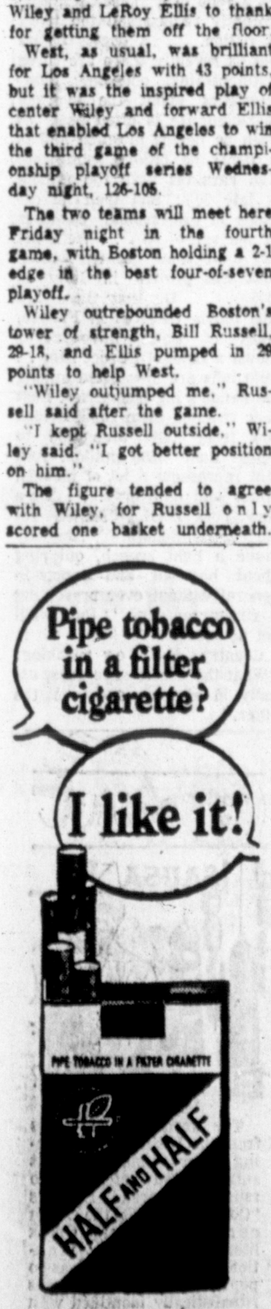

Buddy "Bones" Hammons will be the starting hurler, with Harper on deck if needed.

Woldt commented that "this will give our reserves a chance to show what they can do in a regular game, and also give me a chance to see if any of the Shockers have earned a varsity berth for the remainder of the season."

Saturday the Harvesters, with a 4-2 district record, come back to loop action when they host a strong Plainview team at 2 p.m. Jerry "Chinky" Garrison, 5-1, is slated for mound duty, although Woldt said that Jim Arthur (0-1) might get a chance to pitch if he is recovered from his sore arm.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

You're Already Ruled by Computer

To invest money, meet a girl, or feed a cow properly, more and more Americans are turning to electronic computers.

The average citizen may never have seen a big calculator but he already is more computerized than he realizes, the National Geographic Society says. Take a breakfast of sausages, coffee cake, and milk: A mechanical brain may have told the sausage maker what meat to blend into his product, the baker when to mix what into the cake to make it tasty, and the dairyman what feeds to give cows to get the most milk out of them.

The morning mail brings a dividend notice from a stock that a broker recommended after consulting a computer's analysis of company records. In another envelope is a doctor's bill for treatment that the physician initiated after consulting a computer-compiled medical index.

A shy or adventurous citizen might even get his wife by computer. Several match-making organizations now use calculators to line up people whose personalities are made for each other. Proponents say marriages stemming from computer-determined introductions are likely to be more successful than those following human-arranged or chance meetings.

After breakfast the citizen may drive to town in an automobile produced on a computer-checked assembly line. He stops for traffic lights, programmed after a computer had analyzed traffic patterns.

On the car radio he hears a newscaster talk about a rocket that would never have left the ground without computer assistance. A bank robber has been caught following swift computer handling of police records.

Computers help the Secret Service keep track of people who might endanger the President's life.

Though computers help him in many ways, the citizen may not be very impressed when he sees one. A typical calculator is a juke-box-sized metal cabinet with a glass window. Inside, rolls of magnetic tape spin softly. An operator may sit at a console, punching keys that feed information into the whirling machine. With incredible swiftes, the mental brain grinds out the answers.

The computer's value lies on the stupendous speed with which it does very simple things. An engineer designing an airplane wing could perform all the needed calculations—if there weren't so many of them. Working with paper and pencil, he might need 15 years. A computer can whip out an accurate answer in five seconds. The machines can now perform one to ten billion consecutive operations without error.

Since such accuracy nettles highly fallible humans, machine goofs cheer them enormously. One machine produced 1,003 letters inviting an 11-year-old girl to subscribe to a home-study course in phonics. The stacks of letters arrived at her home in huge batches over a four-day period. Investigation of such incidents often reveals that an all too-numan operator actually made the "machine error."

Calculating machines use a variety of means to store information. In the Stone Age of the computer—about 15 years ago—vacuum tubes served as memory units. Then came transistors. Now microscopic electrical circuits printed on tiny chips of silicon do the job.

Entire books have been fed into a computer for analysis of the contents. One scholar put the Federalist Papers into a computer. On the basis of slight stylistic details (Alexander Hamilton used the word "upon" more often than James Madison), the scholar decided that Madison wrote all of 15 papers whose authorship was disputed.

Another computer was given a batch of legal data and pitted against two clerks in a contest to find all sections of the mammoth Internal Revenue Service code containing the expression "dividends received." The computer found all 21 sections within an hour. The clerks spent three days on the job and found only 17.

Dr. Richard Moore, a biophysicist with the American National Red Cross blood program in Washington, D. C., recently used a computer to screen anemic persons from potential blood donors. Computers have been moved into weather forecasting since they can analyze data more rapidly than meteorologists can.

Computerized typewriters, which talk when children touch their keyboards, help teach schizophrenic youngsters to make contact with reality.

With so many applications, computers have multiplied from a bare handful in 1950 to about 20,000 today. Most computers sell for $10,000 to $3,000,000. The price may climb higher per machine, but the price per computation drops steadily. Already a dollar will buy perhaps a million operations.

The remarkable computers of today foreshadow truly uncanny machines tomorrow. Sir Leon Bagrit, a British computer expert, believes that computers will be able to translate languages so quickly that an American in Pampa may hold a normal telephone conversation with a Japanese in Osaka while both speak their own languages. Computers will translate English into computer language, determine the Japanese equivalent, and issue the appropriate sounds through a mechanical speaker.

Once that's done, maybe they will build a home-style computer along the same lines so that the messages will come through loud and clear when you make a suggestion to the wife or give an order to the kids.

Those Costly 'Economies'

The discouraging thing about "economies" that are announced in Washington, says the Chicago Tribune, is that if we wait long enough, we know that most of them will turn out to have cost us more than if nobody had thought of them at all.

Take the Russian wheat deal, which was hailed as such a bargain in the fall of 1963. The late President Kennedy assured us on Oct. 10 of that year that it wouldn't cost us anything beyond the subsidy which had already been paid to American farmers, and that this would be more than offset by other savings: "The sale of around 150 million bushels of wheat would be worth over 200 million dollars to the American taxpayer in reduced budget expenditures" for handling and storing our surplus wheat.

Well, the deal was made — though sales didn't reach 150 million bushels — and a good many trusting American taxpayers no doubt sat back to await those promised savings.

Just recently their vigil came to a disappointing end. There was no saving. Instead, the House approved a 1.6 billion dollar supplemental appropriation for the agriculture department for the current fiscal year to make up for unforeseen losses on price supports and surplus deals.

Why the unforeseen losses? Well, for one thing, explained Rep. Mahon of Texas, the Democratic chairman of the appropriations committee, there was a 42 million dollar loss on the Russian wheat deal. As pointed out by Rep. Michel of Illinois, the ranking Republican member of the committee, this loss included 18 million dollars in subsidies (the difference between the world price paid by Russia and the higher price which the government pays to the farmers), plus 24 million dollars in handling and transportation charges.

What became of the big savings we were led to expect in reduced storage costs? Hush, dear taxpayer, don't bother those men in Washington with trivial questions.

Recent political regimes have gone in for the promotional effect of the "good image" to identify a political administration from its start. Once labelled, everything which occurs during the administration is forced to fit within the "good image" to become serenely encompassed as a part of the "Great Society."

In other times and places tyrants came to power as "Eric the Good," or "Caesar the Just," or "Phillip the Brave." No matter what the name, the adjective was selected to give the despot a benevolent reputation. It helped to beguile the uninformed.

This ancient practice is now employed in America. We have had the "New Deal" and the "Fair Deal" with neither measuring up to the "image" created by the name. Then there was "Modern Republicanism" and the "New Frontier." Now comes the "Great Society," the latest hand painted political "image" designed to give high character to strange political forces being unleashed.

The effort to make the "Great Society" responsible for the foibles of power politics constitutes a tragic misuse of words. Long ago when our Founding Fathers struggled with the same problem Thomas Paine clarified the differences in his masterpiece "Common Sense." He asserted:

"Some writers have so confounded society and government, as to leave little or no distinction between them; whereas they are not only different, but have different origins. Society is produced by our wants, and government by our wickedness; the former promotes our happiness positively by uniting our affections, the latter negatively by restricting our vices."

"Society in every state is a blessing, but government, even in its best state is but a necessary evil; in its worst state an intolerable one; for when we suffer, or are exposed to the same miseries by a government, which we might expect in a country without a government, our calamity is heightened by reflecting that we furnish the means by which we suffer."

"WE FURNISH THE MEANS BY WHICH WE SUFFER"

What a classic phrase to describe the fantastic taxes required to support the take-over of our lives and properties.

More than half the federal revenue each year is used to pay the losses and hidden costs of the federal activities which compete with the taxpayer's enterprise. This consumes an amount greater than all of us together pay in federal individual income taxes. These federal activities which operate without constitutional authority have already taken over 40 percent of the land area and 20 percent of the industrial capacity of the nation.

Our Founding Fathers fought against the same practices which were destroying their society. They resolved their problem by adopting the federal Constitution, and thus prevented government from controlling their great society. We can resolve this problem in our time by applying the terms of the liberty amendment. It is now pending in Congress as H. J. Res. 23 and has already been approved by seven States. It provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Sec. 2. The constitution of laws of any State, or laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

"Sec. 3 The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of the ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

"Sec. 4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of amendments to the Constitution shall stand repealed and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and — or gifts."

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

For centuries, men have found themselves in trouble because the tended to confuse "society" with "government." If society needed something, they made the mistake of thinking that this meant the "government" should undertake it.

One obvious area in which this is true today is with respect to internationalism. We are told that we can't live a life of isolationism, that there must be intercourse between the peoples of the world. And this is certainly correct.

But the mistake comes when we automatically assume that this means that governments of the world should become involved in various agreements and world organizations.

By opening our borders to products produced around the world, we make available to ourselves the best of everything, at the lowest possible prices. By permitting individuals to travel freely throughout the world, we do build understanding and interdependence, thus lessening tensions and minimizing the possibilities of war.

But by turning the control of these activities over to government, we maximize the opportunity for war. Governments set tariffs and launch economic offensives against each other.

Free people who have the opportunity to pursue their own happiness without political regulation have no interest in war. They want the best products and services from the individuals in the world best capable of producing them. Only governments start wars.

Governments create wars by following unrealistic policies. They give in to pressure groups and set up tariff walls to lessen competition. Then they create paper money, not backed by gold, and live in fear that too much paper money will be redeemed — thus wiping out the gold supply. As a result, governments are required to coercively prohibit the freedom of their own citizens and of foreigners who desire intercourse with them.

When the situation becomes aggravated enough, two nations find no alternative but to go to war. Why? Not because the people in those countries hate each other; but because the governments involved have killed the opportunity for individuals of the world to become interdependent.

Governments then turn in desperation to an international organization like the United Nations. Here the governments get together and make things even worse. Through governmental agreements we become dependent upon the policies of other governments. Then the unrealistic policies of other governments become our liability — to add to the problems our own government creates. Through the UN, we have become subject to the unrealistic monetary policies of all governments, and have become involved with the aggressive intentions of the likes of Sukarno or Nasser or the Communists.

True international interdependence can only come when the governments of the world get out of the way, and permit individuals to build relationships as they see fit. Government is no more capable of solving our international problems than it is of solving our domestic problems.

As Richard Cobden said: "Peace will come to this earth when her peoples have as much as possible to do with each other; their governments the least possible."

And Bastiat pointed out: "Where people and goods cannot freely cross national boundaries, armies will."

H. L. Hunt Writes

OLD-FASHIONED LOYALTY

Quite often we hear speakers, even very good speakers, call for an upsurge of "old-fashioned patriotism" among the American people. These speakers mean well, but it is to be wondered if they are really serving any constructive purpose when they accept the theory that patriotism is old-fashioned.

So long as America remains a free nation, patriotism will never be out of style. There are some who try to make patriotism seem outdated and just a little bit quaint. A willing prospect for secretary of state believes it is good policy for him to criticize "flag-waving, professional patriots." He may find his calls for co-existence falling flat.

Anti-patriots concentrate their energies on the youth of America. Their wily know-how tells them that the classrooms of the nation are an important battle field in their continuing effort to eliminate freedom. They have made use of youth before, understand them and make their conquest one of their primary goals.

If our schools turn out "educated" boys and girls who are economic and constitutional illiterates, they are not doing what the American people need and have a right to expect. If youth devotes more time preparing for United Nations Week than for Constitution Week, they will regard patriotism as "old-fashioned."

Youth must acquire a sense of duty in order to serve well as America's leaders of tomorrow. They should be supported and encouraged in reverence to our flag and the patriotism for which it is a symbol.

PATRIOTIC TOAST

The union of lakes, the union of lands,
The union of states none can sever,
The union of hearts, the union of hands,
And the flag of our union forever!

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "Does getting ahead in today's world depend on one's push or pull? Is it what you know or who you know?"

Answer: We presume that the questions refer to getting ahead financially or on one's job. If they do, we believe there is little difference today from any other time. Some individuals succeed on their own efforts and some individuals "get ahead financially" by their "pull" or by knowing someone in the "right" place.

Perhaps it may seem that there is more of the use of "pull" from the growing use of political action to solve human problems. And with government growing to provide the services people want or which the politicians feel they should have, it is only natural that the appointed bureaucrats would select helpers they know who will promote the program in which the politicians are engaged.

There will always be those who are unwilling to exert the effort to get ahead on their own initiative. They will rely on "pull" with some employer, some union boss or some political figure to obtain temporary success. But in a great many instances it will be up to the individual to deliver in order to keep a job or to advance himself.

There will always be self-reliant, self-responsible individuals who are willing to put forth a little extra effort for their own — and their families' — future well-being. They will be the winners in the long run.

The Almanac

Today is Thursday, April 22, the 112th day of 1965 with 253 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

Queen Isabella of Spain, the benefactor of Columbus' voyage to the new world was born on this day in 1451.

On this day in history:

In 1889, 20,000 homesteaders massed along the border of the Oklahoma territory awaiting the signal that would usher in the Oklahoma land rush.

In 1898, Theodore Roosevelt resigned from his post as assistant secretary of war in order to recruit members for the "Rough Riders."

In 1944, allied soldiers invaded New Guinea.

In 1964, President Johnson opened the New York World's Fair. The President's appearance was greeted by picketing and 294 civil rights demonstrators were arrested. The threatened massive stall-in on roads leading to the fair was not effective, however.

A thought for the day: President Theodore Roosevelt once said "no man is justified in doing evil on the ground of expediency."

CAPITOL EYE:

Dems Find Victory Has Bitter Tang

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Here and there around the country the Democrats are learning about the pitfalls of victory.

Led by President Johnson's crushing triumph over Barry Goldwater, they won so big in so many places that public offices are now held by a flock of candidates who never expected to be anything but real estate brokers, dentists and damage suit lawyers.

Democratic majorities in many newly captured state legislatures thus are often made up in part of freshmen totally unschooled in lawmaking and politics. Sometimes they are nearly unmanageable.

As one observer puts it:

"Every party rewards a lot of faithful 'old Joes' by placing them on its tickets. When they get elected in a sweep, nobody knows what to do with 'em."

Many of the newcomers, of course, are far from being "old Joes." They are young men, just getting started, who imagined they might have a few dry runs before winning.

Michigan is an example of the difficulties here suggested. To a somewhat lesser extent, so are Iowa and New York, though in the latter instance sharp factional collisions produced the celebrated Democratic chaos in Albany.

Some 70 new Democratic legislators prowl the capitol corridors this spring in Lansing, where the party has virtually a two-thirds command in both houses of the legislature.

A big proportion of these Michigan freshmen are described as suburban white collar types, mostly independent of the "labor control" considered common among the state's Democratic lawmakers.

These new boys are partly the product of Johnson's smash win, and partly the result of state legislative reapportionment which clearly favors the Democrats.

Political sources in Michigan say these legislators are neither well-versed in their duties nor easily managed by an apparently floundering Democratic leadership in both houses.

Democratic leaders are trying hard not to add any new cubits to Republican Gov. George Romney's already large image, but the net of their behavior so far is to do just that.

In Iowa, the now Democratic legislature is working with a popular Democratic governor, Harold Hughes. The situation is by that fact under considerably better control. Yet one politician in Des Moines says:

"The House (4 to 1 Democratic) is a real can of worms. They're floundering. They spend 20 minutes considering a constitutional amendment, and whole days on trivia. There's a real lack of guidance."

Some Iowa Democrats are said to have flexed their largely untried muscles by refusing to go to party caucuses, partly in complaint against the presence there of labor and other lobbyists.

Despite instances like these mentioned, no general trend is discernible. New Democratic legislatures in Indiana and Utah, both with Democratic governors, have been reasonably well-disciplined and productive of some highly constructive legislation.

Nevertheless, there seems to be a lesson here. Victory so huge as to haul in great numbers of untutored and perhaps undisciplined office holders may contain the needs of early reversal. Voter reaction to confused leadership and wobbly performance could contract considerably the immense bridgehead of Democrats gained in 1964.

But before office-hungry Republicans smack their lips over signs of Democratic disarray, they might consider this:

The Democrats' embarrassment of inexperienced numbers could be a foretaste of what the GOP may encounter if, handicapped as it is in many places through long unfamiliarity with governing, it should suddenly be thrust back into power on a broad counterwave.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

The one place in mid-town Manhattan where visitors from all parts of the world can obtain information about the metropolis, asking in the languages and accents of their native lands, is the information booth at Rockefeller Center. They always get it, too, from any one of the multilingual receptionists who supply, along with the right directions, maps, brochures and sometimes guides. It's estimated nearly 20 per cent of all inquiries there are made in a foreign tongue, mostly French, Spanish, German, Italian or the Scandinavian languages.

Today's smile: A Marine in Vietnam said to his buddy: "Don't bother me now. I'm writing to my girl back home." The buddy asked: "But why are you writing so slowly?" The first Marine answered: "Because she doesn't read very fast."

There were two Mark Hopkins, and both left their mark (no pun intended), on the 19th century. One was the celebrated educator, who served as President of Williams College. The other was the railroad tycoon who made a fortune in California. San Francisco's famous hotel is named after the latter . . . . No one wants to belong to the most "exclusive" club in the country, which at last count had only eight members. It's the FBI's most wanted list, which recently celebrated its 15th birthday anniversary. According to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover the sole qualification for membership is a long history of criminal behavior of such a degree the fugitive is considered a menace to society.

Thoughts while shaving: Today a bonfire means nothing more than a Fourth of July or other holiday conflagration, but back in the Middle Ages, when the word was coined, it meant literally a fire of bones, a funeral pyre for victims of a plague . . Bennet Cerf is an understanding and kind publisher. When it was shown that a supposedly true spy story of World War II was actually a fake, he consoled the author, Quentin Reynolds, saying that he had always wanted him to write a novel. "Now you've done it and it's a good one," said Cerf, who promptly reclassified the work as fiction. . . . A doctor friend told us recently there are three distinguishing economic characteristics about the average physician. He is often past 30 when he begins practice and is in debt; he enjoys immediate high earnings until the middle or late 50's; and then he declines in professional earnings by the age of 60 . . . We'll bet you did't know the first cookbook was printed in Italy in 1475. . . . Or that there are 5700 movie theatres in France, many of which have never shown a Bridget Bardot film . . Auto tolls are now listed among the nation's big businesses. Last year receipts from road, bridge and ferry tolls amounted to more than $500 million. And that represents a lot of nickels, dimes and quarters . . . The New York DAILY NEWS reported: "Senator Kennedy made a light speech, quipping about baseball and sports in general without ever presenting a strong massage." But we'll bet he scored.

Country Editor speaking: "What the doctor says goes, usually in one ear and out the other."

matter of fact

The word sausage comes from the Latin salsus, meaning preserved meat. The first authenticated reference to sausage appeared in Homer's "Odyssey" about the ninth century B.C. Early Greek literature frequently mentions salami. Sausage was so popular in Rome that it was ritualistically identified with such pagan festivals as the Lupercalia. As a result, Constantine, a Roman emperor who embraced Christianity, prohibited the eating of sausage during his reign.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—More than 3,250 Navy men have offered to serve in South Viet Nam in answer to a call for volunteers, according to a spokesman. The Navy now has about 1,000 men in South Viet Nam, advising the South Vietnamese navy and filling "housekeeping" jobs.

AEC TEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) announced Wednesday it had set off a weapons-related underground nuclear test at its experimental area in Nevada. The explosion, with a force of less than 20,000 tons of TNT, was the eighth announced this year.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK

Parents want to know what kinds of reference books they should purchase to help their children at home. Should every home have an encyclopedia, a dictionary and an Atlas?

Parents are constantly made to feel guilty. They are told that unless they purchase a particular encyclopedia their children will not have the opportunity to be good students. An encyclopedia is a valuable source of information. It is certainly very very nice to have one available in the home. It is by no means a necessity. Schools and libraries have sets of encyclopedias available for student use.

An assignment which requires research has several purposes. It is desirable that 333 the student learn how to use a library. He should learn to use several resources to gather his information. He should not get into the habit of using only one encyclopedia for all research. There are many encyclopedias as well as many other books which can provide different kinds of information. A book specifically written about the Civil War may give different interpretations of what occurred while an encyclopedia usually gives a factual outline.

It is a good idea for students to compare facts and ideas from several sources. There may be a difference of opinions. It is important that a student learns to be critical and careful of what he accepts as truth.

This is not meant to belittle the value of an encyclopedia. All it means is that every home does not need to have a set.

What about a dictionary? This tends to be more of a necessity. Don't go out and purchase a two volume dictionary for a fifth grade child. A simple dictionary which will serve most of the needs of the normal family can be purchased for five dollars or less. A dictionary is always an excellent investment.

Next on the list is an Atlas. This can be a very reasonably priced soft covered edition. The family will find it useful in many ways such as for following the news, planning trips, and understanding history.

There are many almanacs printed each year by different publishers. These can be relatively low priced and can provide a great deal of valuable information. It is one of the best ways to obtain up to date material.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stanley Heller & Co. says that at this moment everything seems to favor a growing public enthusiasm for the market.

The firm says it believes that the higher and more dynamic the rise in stocks, the more attractive they will appear to those who have so far remained on the sidelines.

Goodbody & Co. says it believes that the weeks ahead are likely to be characterized by a trading market, with frequent shifts in interest from group to group in search of laggards and overlooked opportunities.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—No network television series next season will be watched more closely by workers in the video medium than NBC-TV's "I Spy," in which a Negro performer is the costar.

Among the things the television industry will watch carefully from week to week are the ratings and the number of affiliated stations that do — or don't — give clearance to the series.

Some sources feel the immediate emotional impact of the desegregation struggle from day to day could well result in current events playing a part in the number of week-to-week clearances.

Advertisers, of course, are to rthe most part totally unconcerned with any side of any issue except as it affects their profits. They too will be watching carefully for the series' ups and downs.

In "I Spy," Robert Culp will costar with Negro comedian Bill Cosby as they portray American intelligence agents who roam the world posing as tennis bums. Their status is equal.

Boss of the series is Sheldon Leonard, who for a long time was one of Hollywood's most successful gangster-type actors, and in recent years has been very prominent as an executive in Danny Thomas' television production firm.

After a "go-easy" television season last year so far as civil rights pressure was concerned, the new stirrings are quite noticeable here in Hollywood.

Last week, for instance, the Writers Guild announced it has instituted a "Negro writers workshop." Some of Hollywood's top writers are on the workshop committee.

The announcement said "any Negro with a demonstrable interest in writing (is) eligible to participate." The goal, it added, "is to teach all elements involved in television or screen writing, from the mechanics of writing and selection of story, to how to submit material to a producer."

Furthermore, a recent story in Variety, the show business weekly, was headlined: "ABC steps up integration on daytime soapers."

Variety says the ABC-TV soap operas that would be affected include "General Hospital," "Flame in the Wind" and "The Young Marrieds."

The Channel Swim: Bing Crosby will be host of eight of ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" shows next season, including one program costarring Louis Armstrong and a number of hours marking holidays—Thanksgiving, Christmas and the New Year among them . . . when CBS-TV's "Rawhide" returns in the fall, costar Clint Eastwood will be the new trail boss, with current head man Eric Fleming no longer in the cast.

WASHINGTON — Factory shipments of durable goods reached a record level of $21.2 billion in March, up 4 per cent from February and 12 per cent above a year ago, the Commerce Department reports. However, new orders in March did not quite come up to the record level set in January.

NEW YORK — First quarter earnings reports of major corporations continue to show record gains. Among big gainers reporting were Chrysler, Texaco, American, Cyanamid, Kingsport Press, Granite City Steel, Royal Crown Cola, U.S. Rubber and American Broadcasting-Paramount.

AKRON — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. says it has terminated negotiations to build a synthetic rubber plant in Communist Romania.

WASHINGTON — Budget Director Kermit Gordon, the last of President Kennedy's major fiscal officials still in office, has decided to quit in June. Gordon, 48, will become a vice president of the Brookings Institution, a research organization.

Young Clowns Get Ideas on Business From Old Pro

NEW YORK (UPI) — Georgie Diaz squinched up his face, closed his eyes and the next thing he knew, his face was shiny white and speckled with little red dogs.

In a little less than a minute Georgie, who is 11, became a clown Tuesday and for a little more than an hour, he flip flopped and gagged it up in the middle of the circus arena at Madison Square Garden.

Never mind that the aren's 12,000 seats were empty. Georgie and eight other little boys had the best audience of all. A real clown, Bobby Kay, of Ringling Brothers and Barnum &Bailey Circus was watching their antics.

Kay, who is in town with the circus, skipped lunch to help make circus performers out of Georgie and his friends. The boys, who are members of the Madison Square Boy's Club on New York City's East Side, are giving a circus of their own in June and they got the best advice around.

Kay, who slapped on the white face, was joined by Chrys Holt, who swoops high off the ground suspended by her hair, and Helena Rassy whose trained pigeons flutter wherever she sends them.

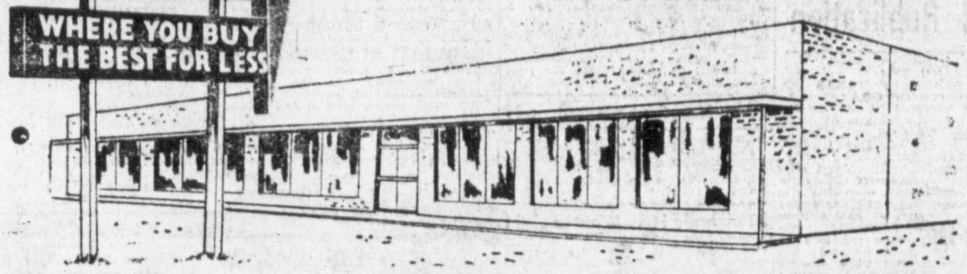

One of the largest salt plants in the nation is located at Grand Saline in Van Zandt County, Texas.
