'Defector' blamed...
Gunfire in Korean zone

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A gunbattle broke out today after a Soviet tourist fled while touring the area around the truce village of Panmunjom, the United Nations Command said. The command said two North Koreans and one South Korean were killed and an American soldier was wounded.

The official North Korean radio said three people were killed "on the North Korean side" in "the Soviet defector incident," and that one other person was seriously wounded.

A United Nations statement said the shooting started after North Koreans, following the Soviet tourist, crossed into the southern half of a small joint security area in the demilitarized zone that has divided the Korean peninsula since 1953.

The South Korean and American casualties were not identified, pending notification of relatives. The American was reported to be hospitalized in stable condition.

Neither American nor South Korean officials would identify the Soviet, saying only that he was a member of a North Korean-sponsored tour of the 800-yard diameter joint security area that surrounds the truce village.

But Kyodo News Service in Japan identified him as Basil Mapuzak, 22. The state-run (South) Korean Broadcasting System said he was a "Russian tourist guide."

U.S. and South Korean troops took "defensive actions against an armed attack on the UNC (United Nations Command) side of the joint security area at Panmunjom," the United Nations Command said in a statement.

"Between 20 and 30 security guards from the North Korean People's Army intruded across the military demarcation line about 11:50 a.m. (9:50 p.m. EST Thursday), firing at an apparent defector from a North Korean-sponsored tour of the joint security area," it said.

When a North Korean guard tried to pull the Soviet tourist back across the line, a U.S. guardsman fired at the North Korean guard, Radio Pyongyang said.

It was the first known shooting incident involving casualties inside the joint security area since the 1953 armistice that ended the Korean War.

Car theft linked to others

Snyder police said Friday morning the theft of a 1984 Chrysler Laser from Snyder Motor Inc. has been cleared with the Thursday afternoon arrest of a 14-year-old suspect in Odessa.

Investigation of the theft began Wednesday afternoon when Truett Bryan, owner of the local Chrysler dealership, reported the car had been driven off the lot between 3 and 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, the suspect drove a 1985 Plymouth Caravan into the local dealership Tuesday afternoon, reporting the new vehicle needed mechanical service.

It is now thought the youth removed keys to the 1984 Laser from the board in the dealership office while mechanics were checking on a reported malfunction in a dash warning lot.

Reports indicated the suspect left Snyder Motor in the Caravan after having it checked.

The theft of the other vehicle was not noted until Wednesday when personnel identified the Caravan — which turned out to have been stolen from Fenner-Tubbs Chrysler Plymouth in Lubbock — parked on the local lot.

Thursday around 4:30 p.m., Ector County Sheriff's investigators notified Snyder authorities they had recovered the car stolen here and had arrested a suspect in the case.

The 1984 Laser stolen from Snyder Motor Inc. reportedly sustained minor to moderate damage in a collision in Odessa Thursday while the suspect was fleeing from police.

It is now thought — although not officially confirmed as of Friday morning — that the suspect escaped from the Ector County Juvenile Detention Center Tuesday morning, leaving the city in a stolen 1977 Chevrolet Blazer.

He then apparently drove to Lubbock, exchanged the Blazer

These students are asked to complete these prior to December 14.

All letters may be sent to the newspaper at P.O. Box 949; Snyder, Tx.; 79549. In addition, the SDN has a mail slot beside the front door and letters may be dropped through it at any time of the day or night.

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "When there's nothing more to be said, that's when a visiting relative goes into overdrive."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Larry Crabtree, our newspaper friend up in Vernon, turned 40 last week and he wrote a item comparing man with animal.

"During a man's lifetime, he may be many different animals. First he is a little lamb, then a kid, or maybe a little pig.

"As he grows older, he may become a good-for-nothing pup, or even a skunk or a rat.

"He meets a girl who can make a monkey of him. For a while he is a stag, then after getting married he becomes a goat or a stubborn mule. He sometimes becomes a little cuckoo, and in his old age, he may become a wise old dog or a sly fox.

"Yes, man may become many different animals, but unlike other animals, he can be skinned more than once."

Julian Saenz, in the Lamb County Leader in Littlefield, had a great East Texas hunting dog story.

The hunters were laying it on thick for a visitor in the country store. One said, "Take my setter. When I send him to the store for eggs, he refuses them unless they're fresh."

"My dog has even a better nose," said a second hunter. "I send him out for cigars and he refused to accepted anything but my favorte brand. Also, he won't smoke any until he gets home and I offer him one."

Turing to the visitor, the hunters asked, "Did you ever hear of any dogs as smart as ours?"

"Just one," said the stranger. "It might have even been smarter 'cause he runs the store where your dogs trade."

Activities tonight to welcome Santa

Friday night, the Christmas lights will go on around the Snyder square and along College Ave. — heralding the beginning of the Christmas season and the first visit of Saint Nick.

Santa will be visiting with local children both Friday evening and all day Saturday. Friday, he is expected to appear at dusk and will be stationed at the north entrance of the courthouse.

Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon, Santa will return to the courthouse. From 1 until 4 and from 6 until 8 p.m., he will move to the Kmart parking lot.

All through the Yule season, choirs representing county organizations and churches will entertain on the courthouse square as well.

Groups represented include the First Baptist Church of Snyder, Colonial Hill Baptist Church, the Senior Citizens Center and Snyder High School.

Q. — Has Scurry County ever caught up to its yearly average regarding rainfall?

A. — No. Through the end of November, the county's average rain yield should equal 18.57 inches. The year-to-date total now remains at 14.89 inches.

In Brief

Texans march

By The Associated Press

As Texans celebrated Thanksgiving with football games and feasts, about 100 people in Houston marched two miles from a downtown park to a Baptist church to call attention to the plight of starving people in Ethiopia.

And thousands of elderly and needy residents of the state gathered Thursday for free meals of thanks — many of them at two traditional giant affairs in Fort Worth and San Antonio.

U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, who organized the Houston march, planned to leave for Ethiopia today to study relief efforts in the drought-stricken African nation.

Victim dies

DALLAS (AP) — A tanker-truck driver critically burned when an explosion ripped through a downtown Athens fuel depot on Oct. 9 has died from his injuries.

George Anderson, 53, who was burned over more than 60 percent of his body died shortly after 6 p.m. Wednesday at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Anderson, a Tyler resident, was a driver for Groendyke Transportation Services of Tyler. He was unloading gasoline from the tanker at the Twin Lakes Petroleum Co., when an explosion ripped through the facility, causing about $500,000 in damage.

More than 100 firefighters from 10 departments fought the resulting fire for more than three hours.

Investigators have not determined a cause.

Libyans leave

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Libya's foreign minister said Thursday that Libyan soldiers were leaving Chad after a delay in carrying out a troop withdrawal agreement with France.

Premier Laurent Fabius of France said Wednesday that his government would take "the necessary measures" to insure Libyan forces were removed from the African country in accordance with the agreement.

"I think there has been some delay, but now the pullout is going very well," the Libyan minister, Abdel Alsallam Treiki, told reporters at Athens airport on Thursday.

British decision adds pressure to UNESCO

PARIS (AP) — Britain's decision to join the United States in threatening withdrawal from UNESCO unless reforms are made deepens the crisis facing the U.N. agency, and increases pressure on other Western nations to follow suit.

One Western delegate, who spoke Thursday on condition that he not be named, said the decisions of two founding members to withdraw from the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization was especially significant.

"In this situation, one plus one means an awful lot more than two," he said. "There will have to be a re-examination of possibilities in Washington and European capitals."

Geoffrey Howe, Britain's foreign secretary, said Thursday that his country would pull out of the 161-nation organization unless management and budget reforms are made by the end of 1985.

UNESCO's director general, Amadou Mahtar M'Bow of Senegal, has been gambling the agency could survive the U.S. withdrawal set for the end of this year, even though the United States pays 25 percent of UNESCO's budget.

Britain, the United States, the Netherlands, and other Western countries have criticized the organization as being overly political, badly managed and often anti-Western.

Delegates said Britain's decision will put pressure on the Netherlands, Denmark, Switzerland, West Germany and other Western nations to go along.

Like the British, the Dutch and Danish governments sent letters to M'Bow during the summer calling for reforms to prevent UNESCO from plunging into a crisis from which it might never recover. Japan, Singapore and the Philippines also have expressed concern.

The United States was assessed about 25 percent of UNESCO's two-year budget of $374.4 million for 1984-85, but has agreed to pay only $46.8 million for 1984. Britain contributes 4.9 percent of the budget, or about $6.25 million annually.

"We have not been satisfied that value for money has been obtained," Howe said. "Nor were we satisified that the developing world has been getting value from (UNESCO)."

During its autumn meeting the 51-nation Executive Board agreed to put a ceiling on UNESCO spending in the 1986-87 budget. This was one of the major demands of the United States and other Western countries who charge UNESCO does not show fiscal restraint.

But resolutions calling for UNESCO to put less emphasis on or eliminate controversial programs and improve personnel, monitoring and budget practices were put off until the spring session.

UNESCO programs on communications, human rights and peace and disaramament often have led to ideological confrontations.

Car bomb wounds two police guards

VALPARAISO, Chile (AP) — A parked car exploded outside a government office building early Thursday, slightly wounding two police guards and shattering windows in a two-block radius in the heart of Chile's second largest city, officials say.

It was the most damaging of more than 40 sabotage bombings since President Augusto Pinochet declared a nationwide state of siege Nov. 6 to combat what he called a Marxist-led insurgency.

The explosives were in a stolen car apparently parked prior to the midnight curfew beside the 22-story Centenary building, which houses the regional headquarters of the national police, the governor's office reported.

The blast blew a fender of the car onto a 12th story balcony of the building, shattered windows in the governor's office across the street and knocked a door off a nearby building.

Meanwhile, police in the capital began searching for 40 leftist opposition leaders wanted by Pinochet's military government. They found and arrested two people and raided the homes of 10 others, Chile's independent Human Rights Commission reported.

Marxist political groups have joined the moderate Democratic Alliance coalition in calling for a peaceful demonstration next week for a swift return to democracy. But they also back underground guerrilla organizations waging a year-old bombing campaign against government targets.

Interior minister Sergio Onofre Jarpa told reporters Wednesday that overnight curfews in major cities during the 90-day suspension of civil liberties had "diminished terrorist attacks in a very evident way" and enabled police to "deactivate subversive groups."

Find cause of anxiety symptoms

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I saw a specialist who said I definitely suffer from anxiety. I have excessive sweating, heart palpitation, trembling of the hands, a trembling feeling inside and breathing difficultres.

I'm 41 and lead a very active life. I have three sons, 17, 13 and 10. My husband and I both are self-employed. I find morning the worst.

I take three tablets of Inderal plus Ativan. I smoke moderately and I have two drinks before the evening meal. I become very frightened when I have these anxiety attacks, which makes the attacks worse. Please give me your advice and send me your Health Letter on anxiety.

DEAR READER — I am glad that you have seen a specialist, and I hope by that you do mean you are seeing a psychiatrist for professional counseling.

Anxiety can cause all of the symptoms you mention. One of the problems with anxiety is that it is the great imitator. It causes symptoms that people think are heart disease, or even digestive problems.

Inderal is a useful medicine in many such cases because it neutralizes the effects of adrenaline. Anxiety causes a surge of adrenaline. This is one mechanism that causes heart palpitations or a fast heartbeat.

I am concerned about your smoking. That increases the release of adrenaline and contributes to anxiety reactions. The same can be said for caffeine, so I hope you are not drinking coffee, tea or colas.

I am sending you The Health Letter 19-8, That Anxious Feeling, as you requested. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper. P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I am also concerned about your use of alcohol. It has a depressant effect which may not be useful in your situation. Alcohol also can have a negative reaction if it is combined with Ativan, which is an anti-anxiety medicine or tranquilizer. Review this with your doctor.

You need to explore why you have anxiety. If you can resolve the cause, you may not need to take medicines and your symptoms may end. That is what good professional help is all about.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 23-year-old male and have a problem with razor bumps. The skin under my neck and chin appears to be scarred with red and black lesions and bumps. In addition, small bits of dry skin and oily substances come off when the skin is rubbed. I used to shave with an electric razor. This was painful and the shave was never clean. I now use a blade. I have tried hydrocortisone cream and Cortisporin ointment, but the problem persists. Is black skin predisposed to having this problem?

DEAR READER — It is not the skin, but the hair. Tightly curled hair tends to act like a spring, and the free end sticks back into the flesh, causing the inflammation and literally "ingrown hair."

The one almost-sure cure is to let your beard grow. Once the hair is about a half-inch long, it stops re-penetrating the skin. If you start to shave again, the problem will return within one to three weeks. Some dermatologists recommend a foil-guarded shaver (PFB Shaving System, by American Safety Razor Co.). The serrated foil guard keeps you from shaving too close, but does not leave a visible stubble. Applying Retin-A gel or liquid is also helpful in some cases. A dermatologist may be able to help you more.

Volunteers in Walkathons Are Mostly Spinning Their Wheels

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: It seems that walkathons are becoming increasingly popular. This has bothered me for a long time, so I decided to get it off my chest.

I cannot see the relationship between charity and how far a person can walk. On the other hand, I could see some relationship if the volunteer walkers were sponsored for performing a meaningful service instead of walking.

For example: How about a "trashathon" to see how many bags of litter the volunteers could pick up off the land? Or how about a "windowathon" to see how many senior citizens' windows could be washed by volunteers? Or "readathons" to see how many pages volunteers could read to nursing home patients whose eyes have failed them? Or how many letters they could write for nursing home patients? Or how many senior citizens' yards could be raked or otherwise cleaned up?

I think you see my point. Why should walkers expend all that energy just to wind up with sore feet and aching muscles from walking until they're ready to drop?

It seems to me that if people want to volunteer their energy for charity, they might as well do it in an activity that's both productive and charitable.

ENERGY CONSCIOUS,
GODDARD, KAN.

DEAR CONSCIOUS: Right on!

DEAR ABBY: "Indiana Mason" asked you to reprint the letter about the wife who kept nagging her husband to tell her all the secrets of the Masonic lodge of which he was a new member.

You told him you couldn't accommodate him unless he could pinpoint the year and month that letter appeared in your column.

Well, I am the editor of the Aaron Lodge No. 49, Free and Accepted Masons, in Tucson, Ariz., and I would like permission to run that letter in our newsletter. And I can pinpoint the date it ran: It was Nov. 17, 1968. Gotcha! How about it, Abby?

MORRIS SEGAL,
TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR MORRIS: You win. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently joined the Masonic lodge. Naturally I was very proud of him, but now it has presented a problem to us.

He tells me that this is a "secret organization" and he has given his word that he will tell no one about the secrets of the lodge.

Abby, in all the 18 years we have been married, we have not kept any secrets from each other. I have cried, begged, threatened and tried everything I could think of to make him tell me these "secrets" of his lodge, but he refuses.

How can an organization that is supposed to be dedicated to such high ideals create a barrier between a man and his wife? I'd appreciate your views.

WIFE OF A MASON

DEAR WIFE: Consider yourself fortunate to be married to a man whose word means something. And quit pestering him to reveal the lodge secrets or you'll lose your Mason by degrees.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "Grandma" says, "Marriage is the price a man pays for sex, and sex is the price a woman pays for marriage."

Well, she's all wet. I say, "Men give love in order to get sex, and women give sex in order to get love. And marriage has nothing to do with it."

Create your decorations for holiday atmosphere

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

With winter holidays just around the corner, this is a good time to begin thinking about creating holiday decorations.

It's a charming custom to bring out a special tablecloth or centerpiece or wall hanging. But to do so, you generally have to plan ahead to finish the work before the inevitable busy round of parties and gift-buying chores.

One technique that seems to be increasingly popular for holiday decorations made inexpensively at home is to dye them. Sales figures from one company indicate a 10 percent increase in sales of powdered and liquid dye within the last three years.

You can dye most fabrics, including cotton, linen, nylon, rayon, silk, wool and blends, and many natural materials such as cork, cornhusks, weeds and grasses. You can also dye beans, macaroni and rice, wood, string, seashells, wicker and straw, among other materials.

The technique is particularly suited to creating countrystyle projects, according to Kate Williams, home decorating consultant for RIT Dye. She suggests applying dye which is transparent to create a burnished effect typical of old wood. This can be done by using several different colors in a manner similar to antiquing.

Following directions to the letter for projects will give good results, but she offers some additional tips for working with dye. First of all, use natural materials if possible as a base, since they take color best.

If you're working with fabric, start with plain white muslin or sheeting and wash it with detergent to get rid of any surface treatment.

When working with wicker, straw or wood, use unfinished materials as light in color as possible. When the project has been completed, follow dye package directions to set the color on fabrics. With other materials, spray on several coats of polyurethane so the dyed surface won't run when it comes in contact with moisture.

For simple clean-up, wear rubber gloves when working with dye and line table surfaces with plastic garbage bags and newspaper. Use disposable receptacles such as one-pound coffee cans to mix dye and then discard them when you are finished.

What simple projects can you make for the holidays? Ms. Williams suggests creating a tablecloth and matching napkins or a set of placemats and napkins for the holiday table. You can also dye wicker trivets and wooden napkin holders to make an even grander holiday table. Another idea is to dye unfinished wicker baskets and then place seasonal arrangements of dried flowers, grasses, pine cones and other materials in them.

The easiest dye technique is to paint freehand a design or pattern on a white surface. For example, you might create a small holly sprig with a green leaf, a red berry and a brown stalk and then in a few brush strokes transfer the motif onto a white sheet cut and hemmed to fit the table. Paint the same pattern on white handkerchiefs and use them as matching napkins.

A rewarding and inexpensive project is to dye small wicker baskets, spray with polyurethane to set the color, and then fill with cookies, bubble bath or soap as gifts. The project is suitable for children. Another project for kids is making small tree ornaments. Use balsa wood, if available, and dip the wood ornaments into a dye bath. Or, make bread dough ornaments, bake and then paint with dye, suggests Ms. Williams.

Other things being equal, there is no harm in saving the deuce of your long trump suit. British international star Irving Rose put this principle to good use in today's hand.

Although North was forced to bid over three spades, Irving Rose felt no need to advance any higher. A look at dummy confirmed the correctness of that bidding judgment.

When the second club was played, South ruffed with the spade six. The play of the first high spade disclosed the bad news, but the hand was far from over. Rose played A-K-Q of diamonds and then A-K of hearts and a small heart. East won the third heart and played queen of spades, ducked by declarer. Next came a club from East and deuce of spades from South, who overtrumped his own deuce with dummy's spade four. Now the lead was in dummy and declarer could finesse through the East J-9 to make the hand.

Rose had the right remark when his partner complained about the lack of high cards. "Old chap, I say, don't feel bad. If you had my deuce of spades instead of your five, I could never have made the contract."

In my view, many players of expert class would carelessly ruff with the spade deuce at trick two. Don't you be one of them.

Manufacturer's claim — That the two sides of a swivel-lock knife are held together with a button lock at the base of the handle and a swivel rivet at the center ... that the side of the case can be swung open to remove the blade by depressing a button ... that when the replacement blade is securely seated, depressing the opposite end of the button locks the case ... and that the sides of the case also interlock at the front to hold the blade firmly in place.

THE PRODUCT — A new solid-state, trigger-actuated hot glue gun.

Manufacturer's claim — That its technological advances enable the gun to heat up for use in three minutes and operate on only 20 watts ... that the hot melt glue sets up in about 60 seconds ... that a long-stroke trigger design assures instant and precise glue output ... and that a wide-stance built-in safety stand folds up when not in use and frees both hands of the user.

THE PRODUCT — Micro-thin blinds.

Manufacturer's claim — That these blinds are made with individual slats that measure half the size of a mini-blind slat ... that the aesthetic appeal of these blinds is heightened by a compact one-inch headrail, a standard valance and completely color-coordinated components ...

LAFF-A-DAY

"Could you spare a little for a new hat, sir?"

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I THINK MARGARET NEEDS TO BE TUNED."

Snyder enrichment students study about pioneer days

Mrs. Donna Farley's fourth grade enrichment students at each of the six elementary schools in Snyder have just completed a unit of study about pioneers, Laura Ingalls Wilder (the "Little House on the Prairie" TV series was based on her books), and cowboys.

The students were given topics to research and to prepare reports to be presented orally. Each student was also to include a creative project with the oral report.

Other activities included churning butter, tasting sourdough biscuits, singing songs from pioneer days, writing letters to several places where Wilder had lived for information about her life, learning dances popular in Wilder's day, and observing the making of rag rugs.

Recipes popular in pioneer days were prepared by some of the students and shared with other class members.

Brian Fowler, local fifth grade student entertained the West Elementary students with old favorites played on his fiddle. J. D. Smith, music teacher at Central Elementary, played the fiddle and taught the students to accompany him on some of the songs of years gone by.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gary Coleman, who underwent his second kidney transplant operation Nov. 10, was released from UCLA Medical Center on Thursday so he could spend Thanksgiving with his family.

The 16-year-old star of NBC-TV's "Diff'rent Strokes" was discharged a day earlier than planned because relatives "wanted him to be home with his family for the holidays," said Lar y Goldman, a spokesman for Coleman.

Goldman said the actor probably will return to the "Diff'rent Strokes" set after the first of next year.

Research experts predict lupus will be eradicated in 50 years

ATLANTA (AP) — Experts predict lupus will be eradicated within the next 50 years, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

Lupus, which afflicts 500,000 Americans, is an inflammatory disorder of the connective tissue. It damages the structure and function of vital organs such as the kidneys, heart and brain.

Lutheran minister found dead

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A Lutheran minister, who reportedly eulogizied an army commander of anti-rebel operations, has been found shot to death in eastern El Salvador, a church official said Thursday.

Civil guardsmen found the body of the Rev. David Ernesto Fernandez Espino near the city of San Miguel on Wednesday evening, according to the Rev. Merdardo Gomez, president of the Salvadoran Lutheran Synod.

Fernandez had been shot once through the head.

"The Lutheran church has no information about who might have committed this murder," said Gomez. "The war in El Salvador continues to take our country's best children."

Guerrillas have been fighting for more than five years to topple the U.S.-backed Salvadoran government.

Fernandez was in charge of the 10 Lutheran churches in eastern El Salvador.

Another Lutheran minister, who asked not to be identified for reasons of safety, said Fernandez had spoken at the graduation ceremonies of two church vocational schools last Saturday and eulogizied Lt. Col. Domingo Monterrosa, who was killed in a helicopter crash a month ago.

Cabinet members resign

QUEBEC (AP) — Five hardline separatists quit as provincial Cabinet ministers Thursday in a bitter struggle with Premier Rene Levesque that threatened to bring down the Parti Quebecois government.

"There is a serious problem within our ranks," a strained-looking Levesque told the National Assembly, Quebec's legislature.

He refused to comment at length or even confirm the resignations, telling the Liberal opposition his government's problems would be settled "one way or the other" within the next few days or weeks.

The five ministers, who confirmed to reporters their departure from the Cabinet, have all been involved in a public quarrel within the Parti Quebecois over whether independence for the French-speaking province should be a key platform plank in the next election, expected next year.

Some in the Cabinet argued that campaigning for independence now would be "suicidal." Both the proportion of the population favoring separation and the popularity of the Parti Quebecois have been sinking in public opinion polls.

Levesque, who has never been among the party's hard-core separatists, tried to settle the feud by making a public statement Monday saying economic issues should be the central campaign issue.

Baylor tries to derail UT

by The Associated Press

Five teams are still in the mathematical running for the Southwest Conference football title but the Texas Longhorns can put everybody's calculator away with victories over Baylor and Texas A&M in their final two games.

Texas was an eight-point favorite to do away with problem No. 1, the Baylor Bears, in Waco on Saturday in an 11:30 a.m. regionally televised (Raycom) matchup.

In other SWC games, Texas Christian was a six-point pick over Texas A&M in College Station; Southern Methodist was a two-point nod over Arkansas at Texas Stadium, and Houston was a field goal choice over Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Bowl scouts will be busy at SWC games this weekend. Official invitations may be extended at 6 p.m.

The Bluebonnet Bowl's Ted Nance will be standing by in College Station to tag TCU's cinderella Horned Frogs "win, lose or tie" against the Aggies.

A deal has been worked out that should TCU somehow get to the Cotton Bowl then the Bluebonnet would take Texas.

The Aloha Bowl will be in Texas Stadium for the 6:45 p.m. ESPN game with Arkansas to invite the Mustangs to their Dec. 29 Classic in Honolulu.

Arkansas is the apple of the Liberty Bowl's eye.

Houston was still holding out as a bowl possibility based on the Cougars getting past the Red Raiders.

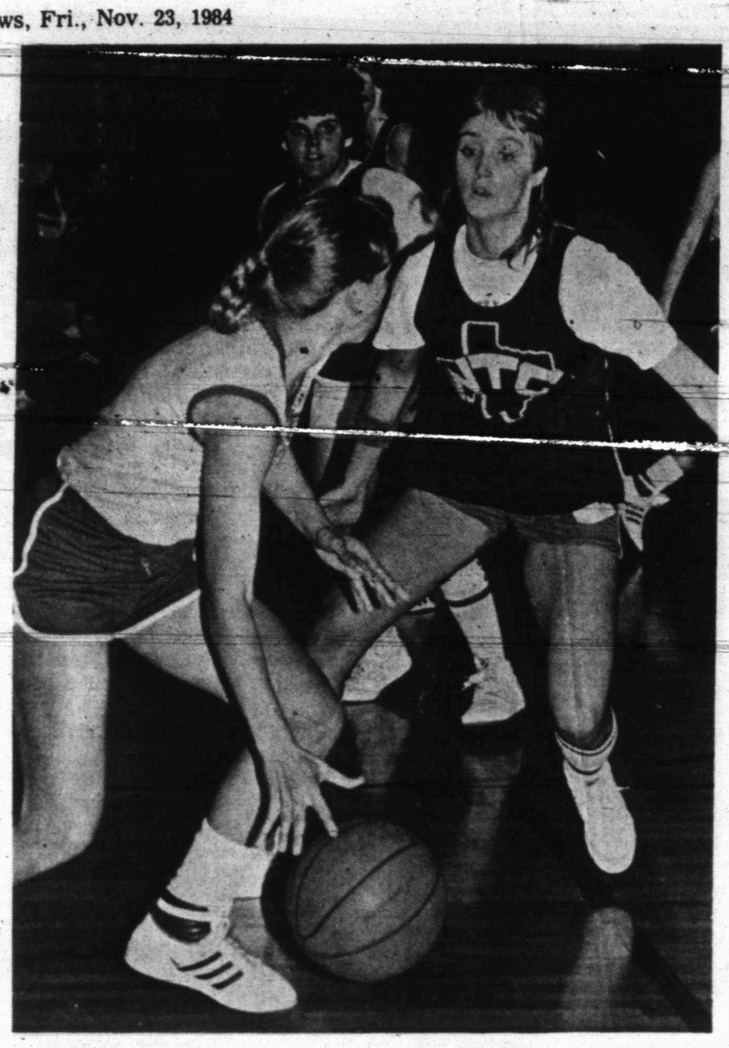

Texas leads TCU, SMU, Arkansas and Houston by a full game after the Longhorns' 44-23 victory over the Horned Frogs last Saturday.

The SWC champion is the host team in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day. The guest team will be the high-flying Boston College Eagles and their magic-making quarterback, Doug Flutie.

TCU will be trying to defeat A&M for the first time in 12 years.

"We hace a chance to complete a great season," said TCU Coach Jim Wacker. "A chance of finishing 9-2, something that hasn't happened around here since 1955. A chance of going to a post-season bowl game, something that hasn't happened around here since 1965.

"We haven't beaten A&M since 1972. Do you realize how long that is? I hope our football team does," Wacker said.

WTC Classic begins today; Dusters to face McLennan

Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters take their 10-2 record into WTC Classic play here this evening, getting a final tuneup before the WJCAC season begins next Monday.

The Dusters hope to rebound from a 70-64 loss to Cisco as they take on last year's Region 5 champion, McLennan Community College. The game is just one of eight to be held here today and Saturday.

The third-annual classic was to begin at 2 with Howard College squaring off against Hill Junior College. At 4, South Plains was to meet Weatherford.

In evening contests, Amarillo plays Grayson County at 6, followed by the WTC-McLennan matchup at 8.

Saturday's action also begins at 2 which Amarillo playing Weatherford. Other games pit South Plains against Hill at 4, Howard and McLennan at 6 and Western Texas and Grayson at 8.

Westerners blast Angelo JV in OC Thanksgiving Classic

ODESSA – Coach Phil Spradling's Western Texas Westerners came out in a fury here Thursday night, thrashing Angelo State junior varsity, 127-56 in first-day action of the Odessa Thanksgiving Classic.

The Westerners, now 8-1 on the season, will play Odessa AAU tonight at 9. Odessa AAU was a late replacement for Cedar Valley College, which dropped out of the three-day Classic.

In other action here Thursday, Odessa defeated Odessa AAU 94-80 and Hill Junior College edged South Plains College, 62-60.

Today's agenda had South Plains facing Angelo JV at 5 and Odessa playing Hill at 7 in addition to the AAU-WTC contest. Saturday, Western takes on Hill at 5, Odeesa tries Angelo JV at 7 and Odessa AAU plays South Plains at 9.

"It was one of those games where it was so lopsided, you know," said Coach Spradling. "We shot 63 percent from the field, 13 players scored and eight were in double figures."

Floyd Singleton led a balanced Westerner attack with 21 points. James Dawn had 17, Ed Teal 14, Vince Turner 13, Victor Spencer, Anthony Smith and Rodney Wilson 12 each, and Alvin Hicks 10.

Teal and Wilson, both freshmen, led the board game with 6 and 5 rebounds each. Spencer had 6 steals and Smith had 6 assists.

Western, which led 32-2 at one time and 71-24 at the half, outrebounded the Rams 41 to 28.

"Tonight we play an AAU team that's tough. They are kind of unorganized but they have a lot of talent," said Spradling. "They are going to be tough. It should be a good chance for us to work on a lot of things. It won't be like Angelo State. I'm not taking anything away from them but they had a lot of walk-ons and all. We didn't run up the score on them. We just had a lot of people that played well," said Spradling.

Cowboys nip New England; lead division by half-game

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The split-personality Dallas Cowboys went fr m a joke to a juggern ut in just four days.

"We came back from one of the worst losses in franchise history," said running back Tony Dorsett after the 20-17 Thanksgiving Day victory over the New England Patriots. "People had lost respect for the Cowboys."

Dallas, whipped 14-3 by the winless Buffalo Bills on Sunday, extracted some respect from Patriot quarterback Tony Eason.

The Cowboys sacked him 10 times, most ever against a New England team, and safety Michael Downs returned an interception 27 yards for a touchdown.

Still it took a 23-yard field goal by Rafael Septien with four seconds to play to subdue the Patriots.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you all but I'm happy to announce the Cowboys aren't dead yet," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It was our best game of the year. We really played good defense."

The Cowboys moved a half game ahead of Washington and the New York Giants in the National Conference Eastern Division with an 8-5 record. New England is also 8-5 and alive for a wild card berth in the American Conference East.

Dallas quarterback Danny White, coming back after a two-week absence, threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Tony Hill and directed the game-winning drive. His 16-yard pass to Doug Cosbie set up Septien's kick.

Dallas led 10-3 at halftime and stretched the advantage to 17-3 in the third period on the White to Hill connection.

Eason refused to be rattled and threw a one-yard touchdown pass to Derrick Ramsey and sneaked across for a touchdown from a yard out to tie the score 17-all with 1:58 left.

White, relacing young Gary Hogeboom who was benched because of Dallas' punchless offense, directed a flawless drive to the Patriot 6.

After Dorsett ran 16 yards, White hit Doug Donley for 13 yards, Hill for 11 and Cosbie for 16.

Septien's kick was perfect and New England's wild series of laterals after the kickoff failed.

Landry said, "It was a great game for us. After last week, I'm sure New England was somewhat eager to play us after scoring 50 points (against Indianpolis) and then seeing our films. If you have any character at all, you are going to play your best."

White completed 21 of 41 passes for 288 yards and Hill snagged 8 for 125 yards.

Eason was on target 19 of 38 times for 204 yards but suffered 57 yards of losses on traps.

"White hit the passes to keep us in the game," said Landry. "He did a good job of moving the ball under the circumstances, considering we have such a patched up offensive line."

The victory, Dallas' 13th against 3 losses and a tie on Thanksgiving, assured a 20th consecutive non-losing season.

"I didn't want to be on the first Cowboy team not to make the playoffs since 1974," said Dorsett.

Tigers test Cooper; time change noted

ABILENE – Snyder's Tigers are scheduled in non-conference basketball action against Cooper High School here Saturday at 7:30.

A junior varsity game will be held at 6.

The schedule calls for the games to be held at 6:15 and 8, but Snyder Coach Larry Scott pointed out the change this morning.

Scott's Tigers, 0-1 after losing to Lubbock High on Monday, said the three workouts this week have helped the team.

"We ought to be better we're not going to be anywhere near where we want to be," said the coach, who added Abilene Cooper would be another tough opponent.

"They (Cooper) beat Wichita Falls High 52-47 on Tuesday. They start three kids that are 6-4. They like to run the ball and they play a 2-3 zone most of the time. We know they are going to be tough."

King Hussein seeks help from PLO

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein has praised the Palestine Liberation Organization as the sole representative of the Palestinians and asked the group to join him in offering Israel peace in exchange for return of occupied Arab lands.

Hussein, who barely a decade ago expelled PLO guerrillas from Jordan in a bloody conflict, on Thursday addressed the group's 384-seat parliament, the Palestine National Council, which PLO chief Yasser Arafat convened in Amman despite a boycott by pro-Syrian factions.

That Arafat could muster a quorum of 253 members was considered a vote of confidence in his leadership of the PLO, which has been weakened by infighting since its fighters were expelled from southern Lebanon by Israel in 1982. Deputy Chairman Salim Zaanoun said 257 members were present.

The splits in the PLO widened when Syrian-backed rebels forced Arafat and his supporters from the northern Lebanese port of Tripoli last year.

In the Syrian capital Damascus, Mahmoud Labadi, a spokesman for dissidents of Arafat's own Fatah faction and once a close Arafat aide, accused Arafat of "falsifying names and nominating people (as) members in the PNC in order to claim the quorum is there." He said this violated PNC rules.

In Israel, Prime Minister Shimon Peres said of the meeting: "In view of the split in (the PLO) which is becoming a new political fact ... this split will cause competition in the area of terror and I don't believe that the divided PLO under the leadership of Yasser Arafat will accept a clear decision on peace," he said. "I have no hopes of that."

Addressing the PLO Parliament at the heavily guarded King Hussein Sports complex in Amman, the Jordanian monarch told the Palestinian delegates they could join Jordan in an initiative to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict or "go it alone" with Jordan's support.

He said he believed a Jordanian-Palestinian move should be based on U.N. resolutions calling for Israel to withdraw from occupied territories and for Arab recognition of Israel's right to live within secure boundaries.

"The principle of 'territory for peace' is the landmark that should guide us to an initiative to present the world," he said.

Palestinians are a majority in Hussein's Jordan, which until the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, controlled the West Bank of the Jordan River. The idea of a Palestinian-Jordanian confederation has been put forward before, and was supported by President Reagan two years ago. But Arafat and Hussein have been unable to agree on what form it should take.

The king also called for an international conference sponsored by the United Nations at which the PLO would represent Palestinians as a full-fledged participant. Israel, which refuses to deal with the PLO, has rejected this idea.

Chief of staff investigated for no-bid contracts, trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is refusing to disclose the status of its chief of staff, who, sources say, is under investigation for his role in awarding no-bid contracts and a trip on a lobbyist's sailboat.

The sources said the department's Office of Inspector General — which investigates fraud, waste and abuse — has been interviewing employees about the activities of Daniel K. Benjamin, a senior aide and trusted ally of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

The sources spoke only on condition they not be quoted by name, and several said they have been asked by investigators and other department officials not to speak with reporters about Benjamin.

Donovan is on unpaid leave while he defends himself against a grand jury indictment in Bronx County Court in New York.

A woman answering Benjamin's office telephone refused to say whether he was working and referred a reporter to department spokesman Michael Volpe, who also refused to confirm whether the chief of staff was on the job. Volpe added that information on leaves by department officials is "private and non-disclosable."

Attempts to reach Benjamin at his home on several occasions were unsuccessful. Messages left on his home phone recording system, asking him to call, produced no results.

In mid-October, Benjamin told senior department officials in a memo that he would be on leave from his $66,400 salary through the end of that month. One source said he has not returned since, although it is possible he could have appeared in his office briefly. As chief of staff, Benjamin normally has a high-profile job within the department.

According to the sources, investigators are focusing on:

—Benjamin's trip last July on the 32-foot "Navajo Chief," a sailboat owned by lobbyist Mike McKevitt, Washington counsel for the National Federation of Independent Business. The organization represents some 560,000 small businesses, which are affected by department regulations and programs.

U.S.-Soviet talks revived

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Ending a yearlong stalemate, the United States and the Soviet Union are opening new negotiations in Geneva on Jan. 7-8 in an effort to curb nuclear weapons and space weapons.

"We are ready for genuine give-and-take with the Soviet Union with the purpose of reaching concrete agreements," Robert C. McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser, declared.

A joint announcement by the superpowers on Thanksgiving Day said that Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were designated to begin the new talks.

Although the session will formally end a yearlong deadlock, McFarlane cautioned that the quest for an arms agreement was likely to be difficult.

"I would not say that this is a milestone of conclusion but, rather, an opening of a process that will be difficult and sustained over time," he said.

The meeting represents the first face-to-face negotiations on strategic and medium range nuclear weapons in a year, and the first U.S.-Soviet talks on space weapons since 1979. "We enter the talks in January in the spirit of honest compromise and getting results," McFarlane declared.

Without mentioning the extreme U.S.-Soviet hostility that marked most of Reagan's first term, McFarlane said:

"We are at a moment where each side has decided to make a determined effort to reduce tensions."

Shultz and Gromyko will use the first session to discuss the objectives, format and agenda for the new talks, McFarlane said.

His announcement was made at the White House.

In a move that symbolized the tense state of superpower relations, the Soviets stalked out of nuclear arms talks a year ago to protest NATO deployment of new U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe. Efforts to revive those talks have so far failed.

While McFarlane said the new talks will focus on strategic nuclear weapons, medium-range nuclear weapons and space weapons, he added it was not yet known whether the separate suspended nuclear talks will ever be revived.

But there was the possibility the new talks would, in effect, replace the stalemated talks. That way, the Soviets would not have to back down on the preconditions they had set for resuming those negotiations.

However, McFarlane indicated the administration still hoped the earlier talks could be revived, saying their "established institutions and channels and delegations and so forth make possible immediate progress ... without further delay."

Nevertheless, he said the United States was willing to "listen about alternative ideas on the other side and we look forward to doing that in January."

Student dies after drinking

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An 18-year-old student who police say had engaged in a drinking contest was found dead Thursday in a dormitory at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Jeffrey Washington of Milwaukee apparently suffocated after inhaling vomit while unconscious, a Milwaukee County medical examiner's report said.

The report said he had been drinking wine and vodka with friends, playing a game in which each failure to remember a sequence of names required the loser to take a drink.

Tiana Brown, one of four students participating in the game Wednesday, said that when the contest ended, Washington continued to take large gulps.

"He was really just experimenting," she said. "He didn't know its potency.

"We told him to stop, but he didn't," she said.

She said Washington's companions telephoned a hospital for advice on how to make him vomit, then put him to bed where they kept an eye on him for about two hours before deciding he was out of danger.

After 5 years police chief back on job

WATERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The biggest threat Police Chief Michael Babli says he has faced in 18 years as a lawman came not from a criminal's gun, but from his own men.

Based on the accusations of a group of junior officers, Babli was suspended from his job and convicted of official misconduct and obstruction of justice. It took five years, during which Babli worked as a janitor and a truck driver, to clear his name.

The nightmare ended in July, when three officers — including one who succeeded him as chief — were indicted on charges of framing Babli. Now, the 62-year-old chief is back at the helm of the 16-member force.

But he can't understand what happened.

"I still don't know why. The only thing I can figure out is greed. I guess they couldn't wait until I retired in order to advance themselves," he said during a recent interview in police headquarters of this rapidly growing community of 8,300 located about 35 miles southeast of Philadelphia.

Babli was indicted in 1979 and convicted in 1981 of returning a shotgun to a man charged with unlawful possession of a firearm before the police investigation of that case was completed.

He was stripped of his title and sentenced to a year's probation during which he did the only work he could get — an $8,700-a-year job as a janitor in a vocational school. But still he fought the conviction.

The turn in the case came when Babli's attorney presented evidence to a state grand jury that one of the junior officers, former Patrolman John Moncrief, allegedly attempted to extort $15,000 from Babli in return for the missing shotgun.

Deputy Chief James Palladino, who succeeded Babli as chief, Moncrief and Lt. Anthony Leone later were indicted on charges of conspiring against Babli by lying about the gun's whereabouts. All three have pleaded innocent and no trial date has been set. The gun has never been recovered.

A fourth officer, Patrolman David DiGangi, pleaded guilty to misconduct charges in April and is cooperating with the investigation.

As Babli struggled to restore his reputation, he also labored to make ends meet. He never made more than $11,000 a year while suspended from the $29,700-a-year chief's post.

"I was just about putting food on the table," said Babli. "They depleted all of my money and my self-respect."

Babli was reinstated in late September after a Superior Court judge on Aug. 7 overturned his conviction and indictment. He said his officers were glad to have him back.

"We're back on the right track," he said. And the chief, who was the first full-time member of the force, predicted his department would grow to 30 officers in five years.

"It was a process that took time, but the bitterness wears off," he said.

State officals say park will be built on site

MEXICO CITY (AP) — State officials say a park will be built on the scorched ground where fiery explosions destroyed scores of houses and killed 346 people in a poor neighborhood outside the capital.

Benjamin Granados, state of Mexico public works director, said bulldozers would begin razing 122 homes no longer safe for habitation, possibly today. Trucks began moving belongings from the homes to warehouses Thursday.

"In 10 or 15 days it will be a park," he said of the heaviest damaged part of the San Juan Ixhuatepec section of suburban Tlalnepantla. The death toll rose to 346 on Thursday when nine victims died in the hospital.

People whose homes are razed will be given new homes worth $10,000 in another area. But some residents said they would rather remain, especially if the devastated gas storage plant, owned by the government oil monopoly PEMEX, is moved.

Some residents said that about eight or nine months ago they also fled a fire at a lumber facility in the same PEMEX complex. That fire was controlled and they returned home some afterwards.

PEMEX officials have said they do not plan to rebuild the gas facility in the same place, and the location may also be turned into parkland.

Some residents said they believed their houses could be repaired, although they were in the area considered uninhabitable.

Granados said a few standing houses in the planned park area will probably be demolished, even if they are in satisfactory condition, to develop a "security belt" against future explosions, should PEMEX rebuild.

He said the residences were built on land sold illegally by farmers who had the right to work, but not sell, government communal farmland. "We are taking advantage of the situation to regularize the zone," said an official involved in the planning, who spoke on condition he not be named.

Returning to their homes Thursday, many residents found only charred remains and piles of rubble from Monday's blasts.

For Raul Pena Duarte, 44, there was little left.

"All my family died there," Pena Duarte said as stood at a doorway opening onto the blackened rubble of the house and patio he had built. Only walls and the wheels of what might have been a bicycle were recognizable.

"I had gone to work. They were all asleep," he said. "A piece of one of the tanks went through there and then everything burned."

Pena Duarte, his wife, four children ranging from 10 to 16, his wife's mother and sister and another family lived in the simple three-room house.

"I think I will leave here," he said. "I'm from the state of Michoacan. That's where I think I will go at the end of the year. What's left here?"

Alfredo Jara Garcia wept as he lingered in the shell of the burned-out two-room home where his sister, her husband and their six children died.

"All this that you see here was just our family," his cousin Sergio Avila Morales said.

Despite bitter past...

Two Koreas: better relations seen

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — In the space of six days, South Korean and North Korean officials have faced each other twice across a conference table and spent much of the time smiling.

There were warm greetings, introductions and handshakes along with expressions of the ties between a people of one blood. More meetings were set.

What it all means and where it might lead are uncertain — a bitter and often violent past looms over the latest moves to better relations between the two Koreas.

"Of course we're hopeful, but we aren't carried away by optimism," said a South Korean official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The Korean people want to think it means something this time and that some day the country might be united again, but it is not easy to forget what has happened in the past."

The two meetings that brought South Korea and North Korea together for what were considered the first successful talks in years were an economic conference Nov. 15 and Red Cross talks Nov. 20. Both were held at the truce site of Panmunjom.

The past that is not forgotten covers the division of an ancient country after World War II into what became a Communist north allied with the Soviet Union and later China, and a staunchly anti-communist south with close links to the United States.

The division was deepened by the 1950-53 Korean War, ignited by a surprise attack from the north and ended with only an armistice agreement after a savage spilling of blood. There still is no treaty of peace, and large military forces are poised on both sides of the Demilitarized Zone that separates the two Koreas.

Since the war, there have been repeated accusations by both sides of violations of the shaky truce and attempts to undermine the fragile stability of the region.

Many observers say the worsening of North Korea's international image is a possible explanation for its recent willingness to meet with its southern neighbor. Experts also generally agree North Korea faces difficult economic problems, and that there may be serious opposition to the plan to transfer power from 72-year-old President Kim Il Sung to his son.

Despite subsequent events — the first-ever economic talks between the two sides and the resumption of Red Cross talks that were broken off 11 years ago — many observers in Seoul advise caution about too much optimism over improved relations.

Those seeking to be optimistic now note that the situation has changed both on the Korean peninsula and elsewhere.

Children receive organs from abuse victim

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two children in Michigan and a Missouri child were recuperating today following organ transplants from an Austin infant believed to be the victim of child abuse, hospital officials in the two states said.

The transplants took place at hospitals in Detroit, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Dallas, according to hospital officials.

A six-month-old Michigan girl was in critical but stable condition after receiving the heart of a 14-month-old Austin boy, officials said.

The girl, identified only as a south-central Michigan resident, received the heart after a transplant operation early Thursday morning at University of Michigan Hospitals, said spokeswoman Laura Schultz. She said she had no other details.

Meanwhile, a 9-year-old Detroit boy received the kidney of the Texas boy in a Thursday afternoon operation in Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit, said nursing supervisor Deborah Johnson. The youngster was in stable condition this morning, she said.

A two-year Missouri child suffering from biliary artresia received a liver from the the Texas boy during an 11-hour transplant at Children's Medical Center in Dallas, a hospital spokesman said.

Sheila Stifter, the daughter of Bill and Lori Stifter of Excelsior Springs, Mo., was in critical condition and under intensive care, but her life signs were stable after the third liver transplant in Texas, spokeswoman Linda Harris said.

"Critical condition is the normal listing. The positive part of that is that her vital signs are stable," Ms. Harris said.

Biliary artresia is a condition in which the liver's bile ducts do not drain normally to cleanse the body of toxins. A liver transplant is the only cure.

Ms. Harris said the child was stable throughout an operation that began at 6:45 a.m. and ended at 7:45 p.m.

The operation was performed by Dr. Walter Andrews, the director of the pediatric transplant program here, and Dr. Jack Chang, Ms. Harris said.

The organs' donor, Arnold Shalda of Austin, Texas, was taken to a hospital Nov. 1 after his mother reported the boy's injuries, said Austin police Officer Charles Peters.

The boy's father, Arnold Mark Shalda, 25, was arrested Nov. 2 and charged with serious bodily injury to a child, a first-degree felony, Peters said today. He said Shalda was being held in the Travis County jail on $30,000 bond.

Because the child was declared brain dead last Wednesday, Peters said authorities expect to seek a murder charge against the elder Shalda.
