Lorraine is losing money every day by not having housing for workers who work in the oil field around Snyder. Not only the rent is being lost but business of all kinds are losing because of the housing shortage. Those who have money and could build housing units are afraid to take the risk. There would be a certain element of risk involved alright for no one knows for certain how long the big rush will be on at Snyder nor how much of a rush for Roscoe and Lorraine there would be should the oil field south of Roscoe develop into a big one. But the fact remains that Lorraine needs at least 100 additional housing units right now to take care of the overflow from Snyder. If we sit idly by and let our opportunity to house these workers slip our entire town will be the loser. We need more working people living in our town.

No Farm Depression In 1950 Says Timm

College Station, November 15. The net income of Texas farmers and ranchmen, on the average, should be good again next year, says Tyrus R. Timm, extension economist of Texas A. and M. College.

In the first place, he says, net farm income is expected to be good in terms of most previous years even if the decline expected in 1950 materializes. This will make the third straight year that farm prices have dropped from the postwar high of 1947. Net farm incomes for 1950 may be down as much as 10 to 12 percent under 1949 if yields are average.

Secondly, he continues, incomes of persons not living on farms and receiving their earnings from business profits, wages, dividends and rents may find their net incomes dropping less than those of farmers—maybe only 5 percent. The expectation that exports will hold up, that business inventories will continue in good shape, that a large volume of savings is still waiting for prices of many postwar products to drop more and the cashing-in of the insurance repayment to veterans amounting to some 2.8 billions of dollars are the dominant factors in the general outlook.

A third consideration, says Timm, is that the level of farm profits in 1950 likely would be much lower were it not for the strong government assistance in providing dollars for foreign countries to buy our products. And to a lesser extent by supporting the prices of some farm products sold in this country. Timm points out that part of the profits at least for 1950 have a risky foundation and much depends upon the continuation of government assistance.

The cost of farming is likely to decrease less than total farm income, says Timm, and that means lower farm profits. Total farm production is expected to continue at or near record level and this means it will be between 35 and 40 percent above the pre-war level.

Profit opportunities for livestock look better than those for crops, generally speaking, says Timm. The supply-demand ratio for livestock is more favorable to the producer. Yet, prices of livestock could drop more than those of major crops since some current livestock prices are considerably above parity and for cattle, as an example, presently no government support prices have been established at any level. By comparison, prices of commodities such as cotton and grain sorghums are hovering near the government support prices.

Although incomes look good again for 1950, farmers and ranchmen should not lose sight of the fact that American agriculture has never come out winner from wartime inflationary periods, says Timm. It has been the same story—after the war of 1812, Civil War, World War 1 and so far, after World War 2—the prices paid farmers have gone down faster and lower and stayed longer than the prices for things the farmers had to buy.

Postmaster Urges Early Mailing For Christmas Packages

Postmaster Jack Coffee urges early mailing for Christmas gifts and cards and gives a few hints to assist in dispatching mail.

Addresses—All mail must be plainly and completely addressed, preferably in ink. Mail intended for delivery in the larger cities should be addressed to include the delivery zone number when applicable. It is important that the sender's return card appear in the upper left corner of the address side. Address tags should not be used unless absolutely necessary, in which case a copy of the address and sender's return card should be placed inside the parcel for purpose of identification, if necessary.

Packing and wrapping—Pack articles carefully and tightly in strong durable containers. Wrap and the packages securely with good quality paper and cord, but do not seal them unless name and address of sender are shown together with the printed inscription reading, "Contents, Merchandise—Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection, if necessary," as sealed parcels not so labeled or endorsed are subject to the letter rate of postage.

Do not enclose letters or messages, no matter how brief, in parcels, as doing so would subject the entire parcel to the letter rate.

Greeting cards—Send holiday greetings as first class mail to obtain the many advantages which this service affords. Such greetings prepaid at the first class rate may be sealed and contain written messages; they are dispatched and delivered first forwarded, if necessary, without additional postage, and, if undeliverable, returned at no further expense to the mailer provided the sender's return address is shown on the envelope.

Unsealed Christmas greetings sent as third-class mail without unauthorized writing enclosed are now chargeable with 2 cents postage if weight does not exceed 2 ounces. A minimum charge of 3 cents is applicable to such greeting cards which measure less than 4 inches long and also less than 3 inches wide.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Bethlehem Steel Signs With Union; Confusion Shrouds Defense Policy; Industry Profits Reflect Up-Trend

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

BIG STEEL:

The Break Comes

The break had come in the steel strike. The United Steelworkers had signed an agreement with the Bethlehem steel corporation ending the strike for that company's 80,000 workers and breaking the otherwise solid front that had been maintained by big steel in the strike issue.

IT WAS A TRIUMPH for CIO's President Philip Murray who announced that the agreement called for Bethlehem to pay the full cost of minimum $100-a-month pensions for all employees 65 or over with 25 years of service. A social insurance plan also was included in the agreement.

Bethlehem, the industry's second largest producer, was the first unit of big steel to capitulate to union demands for a company-financed pension and welfare plan.

No one could say just how much the pension program would cost the steel company per hour for each employee once it begins operating. It was expected the pension plan would start to function in January and the social insurance program would get underway at about the same time.

Murray told newsmen that a "very conservative" estimate of the pension cost to the company would be about 10 cents an hour, but added actuarial studies would have to be made before the cost could be determined definitely.

THE CIO LEADER said the Bethlehem action would set a pattern for the steel industry, but declined to say what companies he was talking to privately.

"Big Steel," speaking through U.S. Steel corporation President Benjamin F. Fairless said:

"We renew our earlier proposals to sit down with the steelworkers union in an endeavor to negotiate a mutually satisfactory program of course we will study the Bethlehem settlement."

The question was: How long would the remainder of "big steel" hold out? The Bethlehem pact was a forceful argument for the unions for, they could argue, if Bethlehem can do it, so can you.

STETTINIUS:

Was Hard Worker

With the death of Edward R. Stettinius, another major figure of the Roosevelt era passed from the American scene. The former secretary of state died of a heart attack at the age of 49.

STETTINIUS' contributions to his government were many and valuable. A rich man's son, he scorned a life of leisure and, instead, determined to make his own way, which he did rather well. He was chairman of the U.S. steel corporation at the age of 37. At 44, he was U.S. secretary of state, the top cabinet post. He was lend-lease administrator, taking over that post in 1941, a job in which he directed the 60-billion-dollar flow of supplies that played a major role in defeat of the axis powers.

Youngest secretary of state since the administration of George Washington, Stettinius held the post only 11 months. He resigned to become the first U.S. delegate to the United Nations general assembly. He was one of Roosevelt's advisers at the Yalta conference with Winston Churchill and Joseph Stalin.

Slowing Down

Indicative of the general slowdown in industry and field affected by it as a result of the coal strike is this photo of a store of the Westland mine of the Pittsburgh coal company. Because sales dropped so much with miners out of work, the store cut its operating hours from 9 each day to 4.

DEFENSE:

Some Confusion

It was difficult to reconcile Mr. Truman's constant emphasis on the grave defense problem, that he said confronts the nation, with his slashing of the air force budget which limited the groups to 58, and the more recent decision of the navy to cut 31 warships from the active fleet.

THESE ACTIONS served only to intensify the average citizen's confusion and puzzlement as to what actually is the status of the country's defense needs.

The navy's top admiral had been ousted because he contended present defense policies would destroy navy value and effectiveness. Other navy officials were facing probable punishment for speaking out. Unification and harmony were urged if this nation is to protect itself in the world of today.

Despite all that, the air force was to be less than its generals declared it should be and the navy was being deprived of much of its strength. This left still hanging the question of who was right in the row over armed service unification and the proper defense setup.

THE NAVY was taking 77 ships out of active service—cutting the operating fleet by 31 warships in line with fund reductions. The fleet by mid-1950 will be made up of 237 combat vessels, instead of the 268 it had on September 1. Most of the cut was to be in the Atlantic force.

It was also reported that 54,891 men will be whittled from the navy and marine corps by next July to correspond with the reduction in ships.

INDUSTRY: Profits Climb

The first upward trend in U.S. industry profits since the peak of earnings was reached in the third quarter of 1948 was reported in New York.

Profits turned around and headed upward in the third quarter of 1949, the report said, and pointed out that 1948 was a banner year that surpassed even the fabulous 1929. Thus it appeared that industry earnings were at a record peak.

BUT THE PICTURE was not quite as bright as it may have appeared. Washington had a different report. Commerce Secretary Sawyer reported that the coal and steel strikes had increased the number of jobless by 225,000 in the week ending October 8, as compared with early September. It was quite possible that the strike effect had not been felt strongly enough as yet to influence the rosy report concerning earnings in industry.

The future was uncertain. As strikes continued, so would purchasing power dwindle, and with that fall-off would come an inevitable decline in industry earnings.

HE EMPHASIZED that the figures released do not show the full effects of the strikes because they were compiled while the walkouts were in their early stages.

As for industry profit, a compilation by the Associated Press showed net profits of 314 companies amounted to one billion, three million, 644,001 dollars in the third quarter of this year—an increase of 4.3 per cent over earnings of 963 million, 102,618 dollars in the second quarter of 1949.

Bethlehem Appeal

Protestant churches during the Christmas holiday season will seek funds to provide clothing, education, recreation and spiritual leadership for refugees in the Near East.

Church World Service, Inc., overseas relief agency for 23 Protestant and Orthodox denominations, said a special Bethlehem Appeal committee would seek gifts to aid refugees stranded in Bethlehem and other Near East areas.

NICKEL CUT: How of Protest

The Estonton, Ga., city council recently devaluated the nickel and right away got a taste of the trouble Britain is having with the pound sterling.

The value of the nickel went down when the council raised the price of soft drinks by levying a penny tax. The bottling business immediately went to pot. Some stores quit selling soda pop altogether to escape the customer ire.

RELIGION:

New Concept Urged

When man finds himself unable to cope with the myriad problems that beset him, when there seems to be no avenue toward solution within himself, he is wont to turn to the concept of Divine aid for the help he needs.

AS THIS IS TRUE of most individuals, it is essentially true of this nation, as evidenced by the motto on its coins, the frequent allusions to the Divinity in its constitution and laws.

But, it seemed, a new concept, a new dedication to religion was needed. President Harry Truman himself went on the air to emphasize that need. His broadcast was part of the program, "Religion in American Life," sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches, the Synagogue Council of America, and 18 other religious bodies.

The President urged every American to take an active part in the religious life of his community and give generous support to religious institutions.

Turning to the perplexed world situation of today, he declared that every problem in the world could be solved "if men would live by the principles of the ancient prophets and the Sermon on the Mount."

BUT, he added, that religion is like freedom—"we cannot take it for granted."

"Man to be free," the President said, "must work at it. And man—to be truly religious—must work at that. Too, unless men live by their faith and practice their faith in their daily lives, religion cannot be a living force in the world today."

BARKLEY: He Made It

He said he had no way of knowing whether he'd "make the grade," but he made it. On Halloween eve, Vice-President Alben W. Barkley's plans to marry his Missouri sweetheart, Mrs. Carleton Hadley, were announced. With the wedding would culminate a romance that had the entire nation looking on with eager and excited interest.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT is 71 and a widower. Mrs. Hadley is 38 and a widow. Mr. Barkley's age, however, was no apparent obstacle to his courtship, just as it hasn't been to his political and governmental accomplishments. An ardent and active sailor, he squired Mrs. Hadley to numerous social affairs, almost commuted to Missouri from Washington as the courtship progressed.

Mrs. Estelle Rucker, mother of Mrs. Hadley, was all smiles when she was told of the proposed nuptials. "I've been sitting on a volcano," she said. "It suddenly blew up. All this excitement!"

The Hadley-Barkley romance began last spring at Washington when the two met at a party in her honor by Clark Gifford, presidential adviser.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was duly notified of the event and, it was said, would be present at the wedding.

GYPSIES: Free or Ever

In Belfast, Ireland, there was sounded a new and lighter note in the dismal refrain of world confusion.

Gypsies, with freedom of movement since time immemorial, were supported by the minister of home affairs when efforts were made to crack down on them and other itinerants in northern Ireland.

THE MINISTER of home affairs took the view that proposed legislation was "rather too drastic to meet a situation which is more of an annoyance to individuals than a threat to community well-being."

One complaint, issued to bolster the proposed legislation, was that the gypsies tramped down crops.

Missing

Stuart Benson, 72, internationally known sculptor, was reported missing when the Polish liner "Bobleski," on which he was a passenger, docked in New York. The ship's master said the ship was searched for 24 hours but no trace of Benson was found.

ASIA: How Much?

Top policy makers in the U.S. government were beginning to talk about a "little Marshall plan" for Asia, hoping that congress will appropriate approximately a billion dollars to "start off" the program designed to stop the spread of communism in Asiatic countries.

The news was in line with announcement of a meeting early next year to set up a non-Communist union of southeast Asian countries.

MIRROR

Of Your MIND

By Lawrence Gould

Does living together draw relatives closer?

Answer: That depends on whether they are doing so because they want to or because they feel they have to. Under normal circumstances, people who are willing to adjust themselves to one another become more and more attached. The more experiences and interests they share. For the more you see of anyone, the more strongly you'll be apt either to like or to dislike him. But whatever you are forced to do tends to become repugnant, and there are no more virulent hatreds than those between people who "can't get away from one another."

Is your "mother tongue" ever forgotten?

Answer: No, however "rusty" you may seem to be when you attempt to speak it. A patient who claimed to have forgotten all the German he had spoken as a child began in the course of his analysis to recall events and feelings of the early years of his life. As his childish fears were revived, he found himself speaking German, and unable to express his feeling adequately in English. Again, many people who speak flawless English when feeling no strong emotion will unwittingly slip back into their parents' "foreign accent" when excited.

Diet and Tooth Decay Are Related

By Dr. James W. Barton

WE ARE FAMILIAR with the advertisement of a paint company which states that if you save the surface you save all. This is probably true of wood and paint, but it is not entirely true of teeth.

Research dentists state that brushing the teeth with powder or paste regularly will preserve the enamel or outside covering of the teeth. It is through the enamel that most decay or caries of the teeth occurs. Particles of food left on the teeth gradually cause a small crack or tiny cavity in the enamel, and once the enamel is broken, harmful organisms cause decay of the underlying structures. Thus it is good teeth insurance to brush the teeth.

However, all decay of teeth does not occur from the break in enamel or surface covering of the teeth; the teeth must be kept strong by good nourishing blood from good nourishing food. Thus several years ago, the Drs. Agnew, from experiments in the foreign mission field, were able to prevent decay of teeth by the use of "protective" foods, especially milk and other dairy products and fruit and green vegetables.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

So Wilson Held Up the War For Fast Shorthand Lesson

By BILLY ROSE

During the closing days of World War I, I took the President of the United States out of play for 15 minutes. I did it with my little shorthand pencil.

At the time, I was working for the War Industries Board in Washington as a stenographer, and running out to get chocolate sodas for Mr. Baruch, its chairman.

A few days before the Armistice, a Board executive handed me a letter and told me to deliver it to the proper party. The proper party was Woodrow Wilson.

The White House that day was a jumble of senators, Cabinet members, ambassadors and important brass. News of the Armistice was expected any hour, and the tension was like the last few seconds of the Dempsey-Firpo fight.

I handed the letter to one of Mr. Wilson's secretaries, and was asked to wait in case of a reply. A few minutes later the secretary returned, looking puzzled. "The President would like to see you," he said.

I got trembly inside. I was pushing 18 at the time—fresh out of the East Side, and also plain fresh. But my dealings with Presidents had been limited to the one I had seen on dollar bills.

Mr. Wilson smiled when he saw me. "I understand you're quite a shorthand writer," was his greeting.

MY TREMBLES vanished. I knew the President was a shorthand writer of sorts—the tachygraphy magazines were always bragging about it. "I hear you're pretty good yourself, Mr. President," I blurted out.

Mr. Wilson blushed prettily. "I don't get much chance to practice these days," he said, like a fisherman apologizing for a six-inch trout. "Mr. Baruch tells me you can write 200 words a minute. I wonder if you'd give me a little demonstration."

He handed me a pad and a pencil, and picked up a New York newspaper on his desk. Then, in his clipped, precise speech, he read one of the editorials at about 150 words a minute. When he had finished, the President said, "Now let's hear you read it back."

Well, as every stenographer knows, it's the reading back that counts. I shot the editorial back at him a good deal faster than he had dictated it. And then I started at the bottom of the page and read the editorial backwards.

Wilson chuckled. He asked me questions about Gregg shorthand—he was a Pitman writer. By this time, I was patronizing him a little—the caddy who shoots a 61 isn't self-conscious when he discusses mashie shots with a Rockefeller.

I PICKED UP the New York paper and handed the pad and pencil to Mr. Wilson. "I wonder if you'd mind writing for me, Mr. President," I said.

Wilson rubbed his glasses on his sleeve. "Don't go too fast," he warned.

I read the editorial at about one hundred words a minute, and then asked him to read it

TO A CONVALESCENT

AM praying for you, friend, while you are waiting
The long hour through for strength to come again.

God grant you patience that you may wait bravely;
God grant you courage for these days, and when
The healing comes, as come it will, I pray,
Health may be yours for many a useful day.

In the meantime, rest, and know the everlasting
Arms are close about you, that they will Sustain you, and a gentle voice commands you
"Know that I am God, be still, be still."

And heeding him, his healing touch will mend
Your weary heart and mind. God bless you, back. When I told him he had made no mistakes, the President signed like a kid who has just finished playing "The Elmer Fudd" for Papawuski.

I picked up his notes. "If you don't mind, sir," I said, "I'd like to keep them."

Woodrow Wilson reached for my shorthand notes. "We'll exchange," he said.

I walked out of the White House and floated back to my office via the rooftops.

I had no sooner gotten to my desk than the phone rang. "Mr. Baruch wants to see you," said his secretary.

"Pretty good for Delancey street," I said to myself as I walked down the hall. "Woodrow Wilson and Bernie Baruch in one hour."

The girl in Mr. Baruch's office looked up as I bounced in.

"The boss wants you to get him a chocolate soda," she said.

BY INEZ GERHARD

WHEN DEAN MARTIN and Jerry Lewis (NBC Friday evenings) teamed up for the first time, at an Atlantic City night club, they were so unfunny that the manager warned them they'd better pick up fast or they'd be out of work. Jerry says they used the old formula—"All you gotta do to get a laugh is kill yourself."

While Dean sang, Jerry rattled

"I think it must be wonderful," she said.

"What must?" asked Percival.

"To be able to imitate things. I mean, anyone can play football, or learn to skate, or dance well, but it takes genius to be able to imitate things."

"Do you mean that?"

"Why, of course I do! I've always admired people who have creative ability. Genius. Of course I mean it!"

She looked squarely at him, and the last trace of doubt vanished from Percy's soul like mist from a river bed before a rising sun. He stood up, he threw back his head, he looked at the moon and from his throat there came the clear, deep, rich tones of a baying hound dishes, threw food, took up collections among the audience. They insulted the patrons, who howled with laughter and begged for more. That routine paid off; they have clicked in pictures ("My Friend Irma") on the air and at night clubs, now make about $10,000 a week.

Betsy Blair decided, when she married Gene Kelly, that her marriage was going to be more important than her career. She was well set on Broadway, but she gave up the stage to be with him in Hollywood. So she's very happy over being signed for an important role in "Mystery Street," at the studio where he works. His next musical is "Summer Stock."

Haide Goransen, the Swedish model whose picture was on the cover of a recent copy of "Life," has been deluged with movie offers as a result. Producers Robert Smith and Robert Briskin made plans for her to take a screen test in Stockholm; Fox and Universal executives also approached her. She says she'd like to come to Hollywood, but it must be on her honeymoon.

Don MacLaughlin, "Dr. Jim Brent" on "Road of Life," wonders how he dared do it—his first audition was also his first appearance in a studio and his first broadcast. And it was "live," heard by several thousand radio listeners.

Betty Clark, ABC's 13-year-old blind soprano, has been the subject of more than a dozen magazine articles this past year, and has managed to mention her singing in almost every interview. He's Vic Damone, once a Brooklyn neighbor of Betty's. Vic and Betty are close friends and never miss a chance to boost each other's talents.

The Fiction BAYING THE MOON

By Richard H. Wilkinson

THE ALPHA, Alpha, Alpha, Alpha fraternity at Boynton University is responsible for the fate of Percival Oakes. It happened this way.

During his freshman year the AAAA's pledged Percy to membership, and initiated him into the mystic three R's (Rites, Rituals and Regulations.) Percy took it like a man. When ordered to imitate a dog howling at the moon, he did his level best.

The result was astonishingly successful. Percy surprised even himself.

The brother AAAA's cheered loudly and clamored for encores. Percy obliged a second time and a third. He was immensely pleased with the applause and at the attention he attracted.

The next day, en route to class, Percy was stopped by a grave-faced sophomore and asked to give his imitation of a dog howling at the moon. For a moment he hesitated, conscious of a circle of grinning faces that had silently formed about him, faintly resentful of the fact that the brothers of the AAAA had made public the discovery of his hidden genius. He glanced once more into the grave face of the youth who had accosted him and then threw back his head and bayed lustily.

A mighty roar of applause greeted the rendition. There were cries of "More!" "More!" Percival obliged a second time and then once more.

Returning to college in the fall, Percy had completely put from his mind the cause and fact of his last year's popularity. There were other and more important things to occupy his interest. He was now a sophomore, with all the rights and liberties and sensations of importance that are synonymous with that lofty position. Best of all, he and she was as popular as she was beautiful. This was discouraging and disheartening. Percy could offer nothing; she had her pick of the college.

IT WAS one of the Saturday night informal dances at the college gym. They had been dancing together for perhaps 80 seconds when Delia looked up at him and said: "Aren't you the boy who can imitate a dog howling at the moon?" Her eyes twinkled.

Percy reddened to the ears. He felt a chill, a horrible apprehension. "No," he bleated. "No! Whoever told you that is crazy!"

Delia didn't press the subject, but Percy knew he was sunk. He let a month slip by before he could conjure enough courage to ask for a date, felt pitifully grateful when she assented.

Within the following month he kept five dates with Delia, but it was always the same; the "thing" was always there between them. He thought she must think him ridiculous. She pitted him.

During the intermission at the Dartmouth victory dance, Percy and Delia strolled out onto the now dry ice-skating rink and sat down on the bulwark and looked up at the moon. Because of his great and hopeless love Percy was moody, unhappy, thoughtful. Suddenly he was startled by the petulant tone of his beloved.

"I think it must be wonderful," she said.

"What must?" asked Percival.

"To be able to imitate things. I mean, anyone can play football, or learn to skate, or dance well, but it takes genius to be able to imitate things."

"Do you mean that?"

"Why, of course I do! I've always admired people who have creative ability. Genius. Of course I mean it!"

She looked squarely at him, and the last trace of doubt vanished from Percy's soul like mist from a river bed before a rising sun. He stood up, he threw back his head, he looked at the moon and from his throat there came the clear, deep, rich tones of a baying hound

No Cooking! Great Eating!

Meat dishes been looking a little tired lately? On the platter, good looks matter! But a good cook's time is valuable, too. Here's a relish that peeps up meals, but takes almost no time to make:

CRANBERRY ORANGE RELISH
4 cups Eatmor Cranberries
2 oranges, quartered and seeded
2 cups sugar

Put raw cranberries and oranges through food chopper. Add sugar and mix well. Chill in refrigerator a few hours before serving. Makes one quart relish. This relish will keep well in the refrigerator for several weeks.

And you don't have to stop there! Cranberry-Orange Relish can do 'most anything 'er any meal! Vary the basic recipe by adding chopped pears, apples, carrots. Spice it up by stirring in a pinch of powdered cinnamon and cloves. Add diced celery to Cranberry-Orange Relish and you have Crunchy Cranberry Relish—new garnish for hamburgers that makes them Cranburgers! Substitute part honey for part sugar—that's sauce for the goose—and duck and pork, too! Add horse-radish to taste for a little extra kick with all kinds of meat! But whatever you do, don't serve Cranberry-Orange Relish in little dabs! Serve it in generous mounds, in big, big spoonfuls—and watch it do a fast disappearing act!

And did you think that Cranberry-Orange Relish was just a relish? No, ma'am, it's also a quick 'n' tempting dessert! It's all done with tart shells or hollowed-out cupcakes—buy 'em or make 'em yourself—but heap 'em high with relish—and garnish with orange segments, whipped cream or meringue. Sounds good? Just wait until you try this one: freeze Cranberry-Orange Relish to a mush—spoon into orange shells or halved avocados. Serve with whipped cream cheese or mayonnaise.

It's a relish you'll relish—and often! Here's a good eating idea: start today to keep a big bowl of Cranberry-Orange Relish on your table from now to the end of the fresh cranberry season!

INTERMEDIATE G. A.

The Intermediate G. A. had a Christmas program Monday in which we invited Rev. Boyd, the R. A. S., Junior G. A. and our mothers.

Those taking part on the program were Maurine White, May fold Roloff, Maxine Peterson Dorothea McGee, Jerry Nell Vineyard, Gloria Wheeler, Margaret Phillips, Barbara Small, and Jackie Richey.

The talks were about our neighbors in Africa, Latin America, China, England and Japan.

The Little Moon Christmas offering was taken.

We urge all the girls to attend our next meeting. And don't forget the Youth Revival which will start next Wednesday night at 7:30 and continue through Sunday, Nov. 27.

THANKS. We wish to express our appreciation to the people of Lorraine for their friendliness and cooperation during our stay here while working on the church Johnson and Talley

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let Cranberries Grace the Turkey Stuffing
(See Recipe Below)

Thanksgiving Tips
IT WON'T BE LONG now before one of the biggest of the holiday meals will grace your table: golden brown, done to a turn turkey, chicken or other fowl, with the trimmings, topped off with a dessert of glistening pumpkin pie or spicy mince-meat.

The market list will be a long one, the preparations extensive and the planning careful. Start early and make an outline of all ingredients to have, and just what should be done when. Then even a Thanksgiving dinner will be well organized and efficiently executed.

FOR TURKEYS weighing 8 to 16 pounds, use an oven temperature of 325°. For turkeys over 18 pounds, use an oven temperature of 300°. Plan to "rest" the turkey 15 to 20 minutes after roasting to make carving easier.

Sweet Potatoes with Oranges (Serves 8)
8 boiled sweet potatoes, sliced thin
2 oranges, peeled, sliced thin
1 lemon, peeled, sliced thin
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup water

Arrange potatoes and fruit in layers in a buttered casserole. Sprinkle with sugar, dot with butter and add water. Cover. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven until tender.

Gingerale Fruit Salad (Serves 8)
2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup gingerale
1/2 cup red grapes, seeded and halved
1/2 cup celery, finely chopped
1/2 cup apple, cored and cubed
1/2 cup pineapple cubes
1/2 cup cubed, canned pears

Dissolve gelatin in cold water; add hot water, lemon juice, sugar and gingerale. When mixture thickens, fold in fruit. Chill in one large or in individual molds. Serve with mayonnaise.

Chiffon Pumpkin Tarts (Makes 8)
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup rich milk
2 eggs, canned or cooked
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
8 baked tart shells

Soften gelatin in water. Combine spices, salt, sugar in top of double boiler. Mix well. Stir in milk and pumpkin. Place over boiling water.

LYNN SAYS:
Turkey Talk Will Guide you Happily
Bread for stuffing the holiday bird is best when a day or two old, and is much easier to use if broken or cut into small sized cubes.

Stuffings will have a more nut-like and appetizing flavor when the cubes of bread are toasted lightly before using.

Carve an equal amount of light and dark meat so that everyone may have his preference.

and heat to boiling point, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. When cool, fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into baked and cooled tart shells or a nine-inch pastry shell, if one large pie is desired. Chill until firm. Garnish with toasted pecans. Serve with additional whipped cream, if desired.

How to Prepare Turkey
CLEAN TURKEY by removing all feathers. Singe and use tweezers on pin feathers, if necessary. Wash and drain well. Rub cavity with salt. Stuff neck and body cavities lightly as stuffing expands during roasting.

For a turkey over 12 pounds, wrap strips of clean cloth around end of each leg bone and tie with string. Cover cloth with shortening. This prevents lower leg from drying. Tie leg bones together and fasten string under the tail to hold legs against the body. Rub surface of the turkey with softened butter. Roast turkey in a slow oven following the times given here:

Size	Roasting Time
8 pounds	3 hours
10 pounds	3 1/2 hours
12 pounds	4 hours
14 pounds	4 1/2 hours
16 pounds	5 hours
18 pounds	5 1/2 hours
20 pounds	6 hours

JUST ONE more tip: plan small servings of everything except the turkey, because that's what folks will fill up on!

Oyster Soup (Serves 8)
2 tablespoons onion, grated
1 tablespoon celery, minced
1 tablespoon parsley, minced
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 pint bouillon
1 pint oysters
Simmer vegetables lightly in butter. Add flour and brown. Gradually add oyster liquor and bouillon. Season and cook for five minutes. Just before serving, add oysters, either cut or whole, and cook only until they curl.

Fresh Cranberry-Apple Bread Stuffing (For 16-pound turkey)
1 quart fresh cranberries, chopped
1 quart peeled, chopped apples
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cups sugar
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 gallon 1/4-inch bread crumbs
1 cup water or broth
Combine all ingredients in order given. Add water or broth and mix well.

Turkey and stuffing will both keep better if the stuffing is removed from the bird before storing in the refrigerator, after the meal is over.

If you are depending upon a roast meat thermometer to guide you in testing the "doneness" of the turkey, it should register at 180°.

When the turkey is done, the drumstick can be moved up and down readily. The meat feels soft when the thickest part of the drumstick is pressed between the fingers protected with cloth or paper.

BIBLE SPEAKS

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 55: 10-64
DEVOTIONAL READING: Romans 10:1-12

God's Open House

Lesson for November 20, 1949

IT IS A WARM chapter, this 55th of Isaiah. Some false ideas about God melt away fast when they are brought close to it. Let us take a look at some of these notions and see how they will in the light of God's word. Sometimes these notions are held sincerely, sometimes they are mere excuses to keep from facing God. One of these mistaken notions is the idea that God has two lists; one is a list of people on whom he intends to have mercy, and will save; the other list being a private one, of those on whom he intends to have no mercy and will not save. If your name is on the first list, fine; but if it is on the second list, you are in a hopeless fix; for if God is not going to help you, who can?

This is a terribly wrong notion. It confuses the true God with some sort of sultan in the sky who has a "social register" of persons he will admit to his palace. "Use this invitation as your card of admittance." No, it is not at all like that.

If you really think that admission to heaven is by card only, then cut out Isaiah 55 and present it at the gate. Cut out any verse in the Bible that says "Whosoever," John 3:16 for example—and present that. God keeps open house, he does not employ butlers or strong-arm men to keep out the crowds, he wants all to come who will. Do you want God? Then come. Are you thirsty for the living water? Then drink. It is as simple as that.

No Waiting
THERE IS ANOTHER notion that keeps people away from God. It is a kind of shyness. It is the feeling that maybe it isn't any use hunting for God. It is the feeling a boy has when he is lost in the woods and has about made up his mind that there is no use in walking any more, he will just sit down and wait till somebody finds him.

It is the feeling that God may be sensitive and doesn't want people coming bothering him. It is the notion that if God wants me, he will knock me down and drag me where he wants me to be. A man with a notion like that, of course, isn't likely to meet with God.

He spends his life paying God no attention whatever, not even thinking about him, perhaps. He may even go as far as he can from the Father's house, believing that God's long arm, like the long arm of the F.B.I. or the Mounties, will reach after him and get him in case God ever wants him.

Now this is a ridiculous idea and a bad one too. Isaiah would not think it true for a minute. "Seek ye the Lord," he says. "Call on God... return to the Lord." "Incline your ear and come!" This means you—if you will. But if you won't, God will not force you. He forces no man. He wants willing obedience, loving service, not slavery. God will have no chain on you but the chain of love. God keeps an open house, not a prison farm.

No House Of Horrors
ANOTHER WRONG NOTION, for which, alas, many a church member is partly responsible, is the notion that the nearer we get to God, the gloomier we shall be. All the talk about sacrifice and suffering for others, such as we were thinking of last week, all the emphasis in the church on the death of Christ, all the solemnity of most church services, make people think: "God may be all right for solemn people, but not for me; I like life with a smile."

Now that is just another mistaken notion. The very persons who know the deeper meanings of sacrifice are just the persons who don't like to use that word about themselves.

In fact, it could be said that in general it is only Christians who have a right to be gay. Jesus himself, on the same night in which he was betrayed, spoke to his friends about sharing his joy to the full.

Isaiah 55 is certainly no invitation to gloom. Joy, peace, the clapping of hands are there. But how do we know Isaiah was right? There is only one way, and that is not to sit arguing about it. You never know what a party is like by staying at home.

Do you really want to find out what goes on there? Don't be content to hear others say, "It's wonderful!" God's door stands open.

New Highway Signs Make Safer Driving

Austin, November 14—A view like the one pictured has now been in existence on most Texas Highways for the past few months. This type of highway sign serves to warn of the maximum safe and comfortable speed for curves and turns.

These signs are part of a program of advisory speed zoning by the Texas Highway Department and represent a step recommended by the Governor's Highway Safety Conference.

Motorists who utilize the speed advised on these signs have found that there is no side-throw in their cars at this speed.

The speed indicated on the sign was determined by a scientific study of each individual curve and turn, and will vary because of the different elements such as degree of turn and the amount of bank on each separate curve.
