By reason of the fact that Dallas is the Southwest's largest distributing point, that Roswell is a concentration point for nearly half of the state of New Mexico and that Lubbock is a similar concentration point for the South Plains area, enough passenger and freight business would be available from the start to make the line pay dividends, figures indicate.

REDS AND ROBINS RAINED OUT; EARL SMITH KNOCKS BANCROFT OUT AS BOSTON LOSES TO BUCS; BOTTOMLEY'S HITS FEATURE

(By The Associated Press) PITTSBURGH, June 18.—Pittsburgh defeated Boston 7 to 4 today, in a game marred by an attack by Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, upon Dave Bancroft, manager and shortstop of the Braves.

Bancroft was rendered unconscious by a blow to his jaw and was carried from the field by Boston players. Three stitches were placed in a cut on his jaw.

The attack occurred in the 7th inning, after Moore and Bancroft had scored on Richbourg's single. The Boston manager stopped at the plate and made a remark to umpire McCormack. Smith let go with his fist to Bancroft's jaw, and the Braves leader dropped. The Pirate catcher was banished from the game.

The Pirates took the lead in the first inning and were never headed. In that inning Paul Waner tripled with two men on base. He marked his twenty-first consecutive game of at least one hit and his thirteenth successive game of hitting for extra bases. The box score:

Wins Sixth Game In Seven Starts

MYLES THOMAS

Backed by the big bat of Columbia Lou Gehrig, Myles Thomas, Yankee rookie, was credited with his sixth win in seven starts thus far this season yesterday, when the Gothamites routed the St. Louis Browns. Thomas was described in the fifth frame in favor of Wiley Moore but got the gratuity for the victory.

Largest Class In C. I. A. History Seen
DENTON, Texas, June 18.—The graduating class of the summer session at the College of Industrial Arts next October is expected to be the largest of any previous summer session at C. I. A. About sixty seven young women are expected to receive degrees.

One senior house, Shadow Lawn is housing senior students this summer.

Falconry still is a popular sport in China.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

JAMES R. DOW

Today the Hubbers meet with the Lobos of Lamesa on the latter's lot. The Hubbers are meeting with the nine that battled here in the last exhibition for three extra sessions to win with a score of 5 to 4. Lamesa is primed and ready for the big to-do this afternoon.

Fans of Lubbock and the South Plains will be in Lamesa for the exhibition today. The game of Lubbock versus Lamesa will be a great game—for they have always been real baseball games.

'Preacher' Taylor, the same lad that tossed the game for the Hubbers against the Lobos in the last exhibition, will work again for the Hubbers today. Taylor is right when right—and pretty strong when not right—today is 'Preacher's' day.

Plenty of time—pretty good roads—a good baseball game—why not load up and drive to Lamesa and pay the lads of that city back for the excellent showing they made in Lubbock last exhibition.

Should any of you Lubbock fans load up and decide to make this short journey drop by the office of the Avalanche-Journal and pick up several of the Hubbers. The less expense the Hubbers have the more they get out of the game—and the more they get out of the game the better baseball will be in Lubbock. Here's for better baseball.

The Hubbers will be out in their new regalia this afternoon for the first time. They certainly are good looking uniforms and fresh and new just from the factory. The Hubbers have thanks to pay to the twelve good merchants of Lubbock.

Fans here are the twelve good men that wanted to see the Hubbers dressed up once again: Anderson Brothers, McDonald Packing Company, J. C. Penny, Hub Barber Shop, Hotel Drug, Avalanche-Journal, Slaughter Motor Company, Texas Utilities, Jarrett's Fashion Shop, Tech Cafe, Lubbock Candy Kitchen, and the Lubbock Cotton Exchange.

'Woman' Sanders will be at the helm of baseball in Lubbock from now on out. 'Woman' has been holding and will continue to hold the initial sack down for the Hubbers aside from running the club. Not much use to tell you fans who this 'Woman' is for he has been here for years and been playing baseball all the while.

The City League is going right along too. Judge R. A. Bunker has assumed to step functioning. Judge had a hustling line until Tech closed for the long term and the lads went home for the Summer.

Some few changes are being contemplated by manager Sanders in the Hubber line-up. Just how 'Old-Folks' will fix the line-up is not known just yet but he will have it ok by the time the game gets on.

'Whistling' Bill White, manager of the Lobos, wires that his nine is ready for battle and for the Hubbers to hook up for a fast ride. The Hubbers have got their sails set and will float along in the game with their usual stride.

No Can Spik English BUT MANAGES FIGHTERS

And Makes Cash, Too
TAMPA, Fla., June 18.—Poor Luis Parra is managing eight fighters here and not a one of them speaks the English language even as it is spoken by members of the cauliflower industry.

Parra has two French, two Belgian and four Spanish fighters under his control. They're winning fights for him and that enables him to stand the jabbering of the foreigners.

The list includes Arturo and Armando Sheels of Belgium; Julian Moran, Enrique Ponce de Leon, Anisio Varela and Anisio Orberto of Spain and Joe Mangoot and Henri Dewarcker of France.

DAILY MARKETS

COTTON RALLIES

NEW ORLEANS, June 18 (AP)—The official boll weevil report showing considerable emergence of the insect to June 15 rallied prices sharply in today's cotton market after a decline in the early trading had carried October down to 16.77. That option traded to 16.92, on the latter rally and closed at 16.88. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 3 to 8 points.

The market here made a poor response to the good Liverpool cables and first trading showed gains of only 3 to 7 points. Prices advanced 3 to 10 points after the call on the large spot sales of 10,000 bales at Liverpool. Favorable weather prospects for over Sunday caused a reaction of 12 to 14 points and October dropped to 16.77 and December 16.88.

The market firming up immediately after the issuance of the boll weevil report and all months made new highs with December at 17.15, 15 points above the lows. Prices remained steady to the end and the close was at or near the high.

Week end liquidation and evening up helped the earlier decline but all offerings were absorbed quickly and the easier tone was attributed for the most part to the favorable week end weather outlook.

WOOL IS QUIET

BOSTON, June 18 (AP)—The tone of the wool market is quiet and increased activity is more generally reported on lines for both worsted and woolen mills. Domestic fine wools are more on lines that can be sold in the original bags. Medium wools have steady sale, but the volume is rather moderate. Prices are steady to a shade higher.

COTTON STEADY

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—The cotton market showed a generally steady tone today. Week end realizing or liquidation caused moderate declines but after selling off to 16.86 or 7 points net lower, October contracts rallied to 17.00 and closed at 16.97. The general market closed steady at an advance of 8 points to a decline of 4 points, with near months relatively steady on covering which was thought to be partly for foreign account. There was some southern selling of later deliveries, and the market eased off after the early demand had been supplied.

The government report on boll weevil emergence prior to June 1 indicated it had been greater than last year with the exception of sections of Louisiana and Georgia and was considered a bullish statement by local traders. It proved the signal for considerable realizing probably on the ground that it showed no greater an infestation than suggested by recent private reports, and the market reached the lowest points of the day shortly after its publication.

July sold off to 16.44, December to 17.06, and January to 17.11 net declines of about 5 to 7 points, but this slip seemed to attract more buying and prices rallied in late trading. At the best July sold at 16.65, December at 17.22, and January at 17.28, or 11 to 14 points net higher. The close was within a few points of the top. Business was quiet at the start but became some what more active in the forenoon, although much of the trading was attributed to evening up of commitments for over Sunday.

The amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance was estimated at 166,000 bales against 45,000 at the same time last year. Private cables said there had been continental buying and trade calling in Liverpool but that Lancashire spinners and manufacturers of cotton goods were losing ground.

COTTON OIL DULL

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Cottonseed oil was dull and irregular today. Near months were lower.

under liquidation, while later months held steady on covering promoted by the advance in cotton. Final prices were 2 lower to 10 net higher. Sales 2,400 barrels. Prime crude nominal. Prime summer yellow sold 3.10; July closed 3.25; September 3.88; October 3.87; December 3.95; January 4.03.

COTTON GOODS FAIR

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Cotton goods were steady today with business of fair volume in gray cotton goods, print cloths and sheetings now being closely sold for July-August delivery. Finished goods were in moderate demand, raw silk closed the week steady. Burlaps held steady. Fancy lines sold moderately.

HOGS BETTER

FORT WORTH, June 18 (AP)—An increase of 10 cents in hog values featured the livestock trade here today. What few weathers and sheep receipts that were on the market brought steady prices.

Receipts called for 350 grown cattle, 50 calves, 200 hogs and sheep nil.

GRAINS BETTER

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Rains in the wheat harvest region southwest together with unfavorable corn crops advised led to upturns today both for wheat and corn. Wheat closed firm, 5-8 cent to 1 cent net higher, corn 3-8 cent to 7-8 cent up, oats at 1-5 to 2-8 cent advance, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Oats trade was sluggish, and the market was governed almost entirely by the action of corn. Provisions were held steady by firmness of the hog market.

1,169 Enrolled In Summer Term

FIRST WEEK AT CANYON HAS ENROLLMENT EQUAL TO LAST SUMMER TERM

CANYON, June 18—The first week of the summer session at the West Texas State Teachers college finds the enrollment standing at 1169. This is as large as the entire enrollment for the summer session of 1926, according to the figures available from the office of the secretary, Travis Shaw.

The second half of the summer session opens July 18, and many inquiries are being received from students who expect to enter at that time.

Two Changes Made In summer faculty. W. T. Tardy of Dallas, who was to have taught in the English department, is seriously ill and his place was taken by Miss Rose Sharp Brewer, head of the English department of the Brownsville Junior college.

W. A. Franklin, principal of the Vernon high school, is working in the education department in place of Superintendent W. T. Lofan of Vernon who was unable to work at Canyon this summer.

Official Ontario Fights Bootleggers Government Control Turned On Liquor

For nearly 11 years the Canadian province of Ontario, in which are some of Canada's leading cities, was bone-dry. The other day Ontario turned "wet" again—that is Ontario inaugurated the sale of liquor from government stores to persons holding permits to buy.

Just exactly how and why this immensely interesting and significant experiment in the control of liquor consumption is being conducted is described for Avalanche-Journal readers in a series of articles by Roy J. Gibbons, star NEA Service writer. Here is the first. Three others will follow.

By ROY J. GIBBONS NEA Service Writer

TORONTO, Ont., June 18.—After nearly 11 years of prohibition, the Canadian province of Ontario is trying out another method of combating the evils of strong drink. The voters of the province decided against bone-dry prohibition as a means of achieving real temperance. The new method is sale of all kinds of liquor in government stores under strict governmental regulations.

Sponsors of this plan claim it will do away with what they call the "evils of prohibition"—bootlegging, several kinds of crime, and widespread law violation—but that the new system, just inaugurated, will not bring back those conditions that gave impetus to the prohibition movement—the saloons, habitual drunkenness, and personal poverty because of expenditures for liquor.

You Can't Buy Without a Permit Liquor is sold in government stores only to those who have obtained permits, and permits can be revoked for any infraction of the strict yet simple regulations. So far, the sale of liquor in the Ontario province has been quite orderly, without any great rush to buy it.

The liquor is available to Americans temporarily sojourning in Ontario under practically the same regulations that Canadians obtain it.

Here is the whole Ontario liquor situation as it concerns the thirsty American tourist who has crossed the border.

In order to get a permit, an American must establish a residence. This residence may be his hotel room, the home of a friend, or if he is traveling by auto and camping out, his tent.

The permits, white for Ontario residents and pink for Americans, cost $2, and the kind the tourist gets—the temporary ones—are good for 30 days.

Limitations on Purchases Armed with his permit, the tourist goes to a government liquor store.

Everything from beer to ale, through wines and champagnes up to whiskies and liquors, may be bought. The maximum purchase at one time is a case of beer and a case of "hard liquor"—the latter either all of one kind or of assorted brands. The purchaser may carry all of his hard liquor with him, but if he orders more than six bottles of beer the surplus must be delivered. Government employees take care of this at a cost of 20 cents a package.

Once the tourist has his liquor, he must go to his "temporary residence"—hotel room, friend's home or tent—to drink it. Stiff penalties are provided for drinking in public, and it might be added that stiff penalties are also provided for drunkenness.

No limit is set on the number of things a tourist may make purchases during the 30 day term of his permit. D. B. Hanna, chairman of the liquor control board, has ruled that the total amount bought must be "reasonable," but has not set any definite limit. Hanna says that it should be possible for a tourist to buy all the liquor he will need in a year during his 30 day permit term. The temporary permit may be renewed at the expiration of this period, too.

No Advertising; Strict Records Kept All liquor in Ontario is sold by the government, which has a strict monopoly. Liquor advertisements are forbidden, and the 35 breweries in the province must account for every pint of beer they make.

To date the government has established six stores in Toronto, two in Hamilton, two in Windsor, two in London, two in Ottawa, and one each in Kingston, Brockville, Kitchener and Fort William.

It might be to remark that customs restrictions at the American border have been tightened considerably since the new law went into effect. American customs officers search all baggage and other personal effects with the utmost care, and the tourist who thinks he can slip a bottle into his suit case and take it home is liable to be sadly disappointed.

Use of permits is hedged about with few restrictions, but these restrictions are sharply enforced. Liquor permits are not transferable. When a tourist makes a purchase he signs his order, and this signature is compared with his signature on his permit.

No Permits for Drunkards Possession of liquor without a permit is just as punishable as buying liquor without a permit, and is dealt with severely. Permits may be canceled if the holder gets drunk or if he tries to transfer his permit to another person.

In buying a case of 12 bottles of liquor, the tourist should remember to state whether he wants pint or quart bottles. Twelve bottles constitute a case, whether they are quarts or pints.

That, then is the situation that meets the thirsty tourist. It is easy to get liquor. The supply is ample, there is a range of stock wide enough to satisfy anyone, and the prices are very reasonable—for instance $4.10 for a quart of 1918. Pol Roger champagne. There is a certain amount of red tape to be unwound in making a purchase, but it is not so very bothersome.

Ontario is determined to keep its liquor situation well in hand, and will mete out any native or tourist who goes on a spree. Drunkenness is punished severely, with a mandatory jail sentence for a second offense.

Mrs. Trigg lauded the opportunities for leadership in the rural field.

Official Arrested For Embezzlement

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 18 (AP)—Taken into custody in Brownsville, Texas, on a warrant charging conspiracy to embezzle, Harold Martin, implicated with Clark C. Nye, Kansas oil promoter, and several others in an alleged misappropriation of Waukegan funds were en route here today to face the conspiracy charges, state's attorney A. V. Smith announced.

Martin and Nye are the only men implicated who have been arrested, although Mr. Smith said five or six others are involved and warrants have been issued for them.

Nye, a former banker, was arrested in Wichita, Kansas, and brought to Waukegan where he is now in custody.

State's Attorney Smith indicated that some of the Waukegan city officials may be implicated in the conspiracy which is said to involve about $100,000 of public funds misappropriated for oil promotion.

Oil Interest Is On Steady Climb

MARLAND CO. CLOSES OTHER LEASE CONTRACTS FOR AN EXTENSION OF TESTS

BIG SPRING, June 18.—The oil interest in Howard County seems to be on the increase. The Marland Oil Company of Texas closed deals on sections 10-11-14 and 15, paying $20,000.00 in cash and $15,000.00 in oil. They also closed deals on the N. E. quarter of section 23, and sections 24, S. E. 1/4 of section 24, block 32, 1 S. The price paid for this acreage, being $750 and $15.00 per acre.

Drilling on the Gular Test, five miles west of Big Spring had a showing of oil at 3100 feet, but passed it up and is drilling below the 3400 foot level. This will be the first deep test for Howard County.

Test On Martin Ranch The wildcat test on the W. S. Martin Ranch is below 1500 feet with formations changing. The chance of securing oil in this test is favorable according to oil men who are watching the well closely.

The World Oil Company's test well on the McDowell Ranch, 20 miles south of Big Spring set casing at 675 feet. They have encountered water trouble and work is progressing very slowly.

The Cox-O'Neal Drilling Company will begin a test as soon as an aerial is assembled on the second hill test about three miles east of Big Spring which will bring operations still closer to town.

Texon-Marland Well on the B. Harding tract about five miles south of Big Spring after being put on the pump is making 20 barrels of oil per hour. This is the deepest producing well in Howard county, encountering pay at 2524 feet. The Texon-Marland Company also secured a well on the W. S. Martin Ranch, fourteen miles southeast of Big Spring. The Texon owns considerable holding around both wells and it is reported that they will drill off-set wells to both of the producers. They are now assembling material on section 215, block 30, W. 1/2, N. W. Survey on W. S. Martin Ranch. This is about four miles from their producer on the Settles Ranch.

Even Experienced Cooks Can Use This USE OF TREACHEROUS SODA IS EXPLAINED

To many inexperienced cooks the use of sour milk and soda is a complete mystery. When they try to make "soda biscuits" the result is usually a queer speckled or bright yellow and quite unpalatable mass.

However, there are very definite rules to follow regarding the use of sour milk and soda for cakes or bread stuffs made with this leavening agent have a decided deliciousness.

Must Be Sour In the first place the milk must be "sour" beyond question. Milk or cream that is just "turned" will not "sour" successfully, if only enough soda is used to neutralize it and baking powder added for a leaven. The amount of soda needed to neutralize slightly acid milk is a scant 1/4 teaspoon to a cup.

When the milk is thick 1/4 teaspoon soda to one cup of milk should be used. If more soda is used, there will be danger of the yellow, color and disagreeable smell, and taste. Any batter made with soda alone needs extra beating. A cake batter in which eggs are present or molasses and spices are used will need no other leavening agent than the soda. But muffins or biscuits or any mixture not lightened by eggs not disguised by spices will be most satisfactory if 1/2 teaspoon baking powder is used for every cup of flour.

Molasses contains an acid which reacts with soda quite like sour milk or buttermilk. The same proportions are used, 1/2 teaspoon soda to 1 cup molasses. Occasionally cream of tartar and soda must be substituted for baking powder in a recipe using sweet milk. This cream of tartar and soda mixture is stronger than baking powder by one-fourth, so if 2 teaspoons baking powder are called for in a recipe 1/2 teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon cream of tartar should be used. The usual proportions for combining cream of tartar and soda are one part soda by weight to two parts cream of tartar. If you want to make a home made baking powder you must add as much cornstarch as there is soda. Then use as much of this mixture as your recipe calls for. The cornstarch is added to insure keeping, otherwise the soda and cream of tartar may act on one another prematurely and the powder will be worthless.

Not that they are too serious to consider the more frivolous things about them but they came to school with the sole intention of using their time for work, and work it is. The general rah-rah of college life is gone from the camps at least until another three months have rolled by.

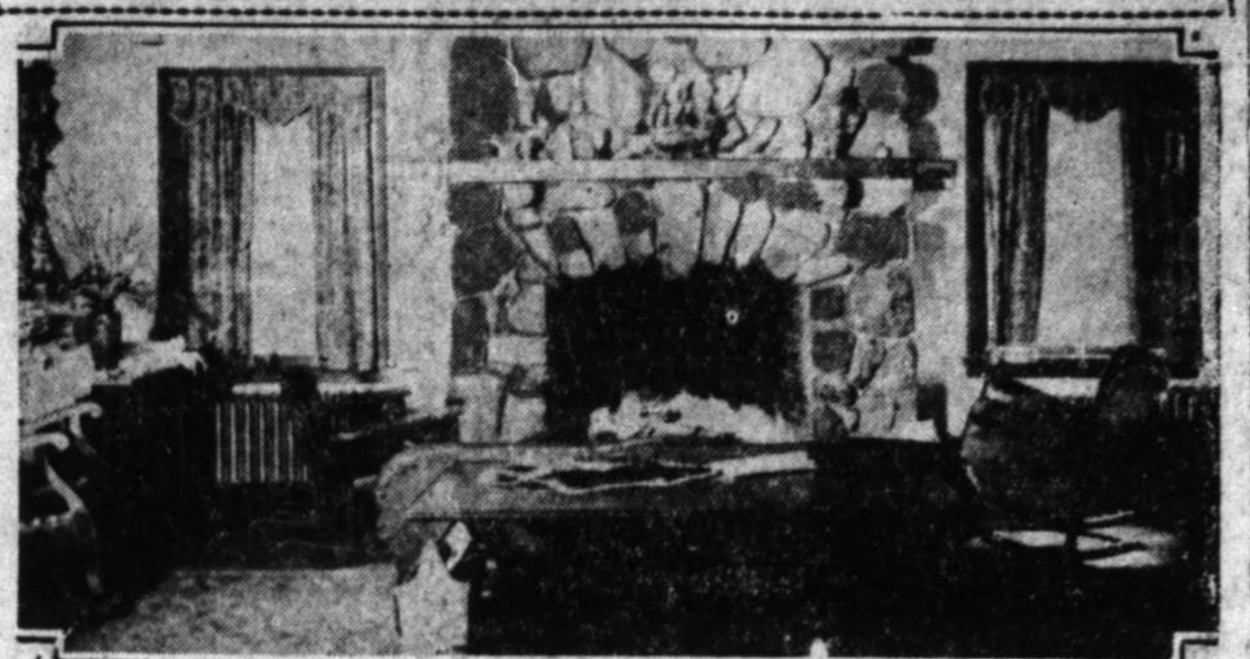

Watch Out! If soda is dissolved in a liquid before adding it to the mixture to be baked it must be added immediately or some of the carbon dioxide gas, which is the leavening agent, will escape and the ingredients great care must be taken that it is thoroughly mixed with the flour and a very thorough beating are imperative. The blonde and slender Eleanor Ambrose, widow of the great Maurice Maurel, of Lunce fame, who died in the Alps—is shown here as she returned to America on the Mauretania. "His last words," she said, "were to carry on—to go on dancing. But where in all the world is there another partner? You see Maurice danced right into his grave—I mean that literally. He was rehearsing the day before he died. It really wasn't the lung trouble that ended his life; that merely weakened his condition so that he had no resistance. He had been practicing some stunts in a new scene and one day he complained. The doctors examined him and found that he had somehow damaged his kidneys. Complications resulted and he hadn't the strength to fight. He gave his life for the dance because I shall go into the film—I don't know. He wanted to be buried over there. And so I come back alone."

Frivolity Forgotten At Texas Tech Summer Students Are Quiet, Studious

A palm touring car or a neat coupe stands parked in the front of the administration building in the place of the highly decorated and sign laden campus wreck as the summer session of Texas Technological college rocks seriously along minus the "moderns" who so recently left the campus in search of more frivolous things. All the blab-blah of student activities is forgotten and the campus is occupied by those who seem to have a more definite goal in view.

Acc now occupies the class rooms where the romantics once searched for the things which should be known and the instructor scrutinizes his notes a little more closely before dealing out knowledge along the subject of the course, for fear his listeners may be a little more awake than those of the term just closed. Everybody has settled down to work.

Colleagues Interested, Too Not that there is no work done during the long session, for the "colleagues" are interested in their work, also, but because the life on the campus is minus the activities of the average college day. The day is void of the usual meetings of the various classes, clubs and organizations. In their stead may be found the continual stream of students to the library for "references" or to the study hall where they may ponder over the works of past masters or perhaps to their rooms where they lounge lazily with their text books before them.

The dormitories and boarding houses near the campus are practically deserted save for a few stragglers here and there and no longer may be heard the sound of the boisterous laugh of the tussling eds on the giggling titter of the coeds as the "gangs" get together after a meal or before closing their eyes for the customary "shuteye." Nighttime is quiet now and the sound of the melodious voices of the serenaders is only a faint echo in memory.

Some are Winter Studes Applicants they are not so seriously occupied with their work to enjoy the lighter things of life either. Numbers of them are students who were here in the long session while others are from other schools. The majority of the summer students, however, are those who have been out of college for a number of years and seeking an education is no novelty but a desire for advancement. Numerous socials and summer have been planned for the summer and the session is not entirely shorn of activities. Organization is the only element which is lacking.

Not that they are too serious to consider the more frivolous things about them but they came to school with the sole intention of using their time for work, and work it is. The general rah-rah of college life is gone from the camps at least until another three months have rolled by.

REV. LEWIS EXPLAINS Preacher Says Talk on Modernism Was Misunderstood By Those Attending Church Meet

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18 (AP)—Declaration that his views on "sex experiments" had been misunderstood, and that there had been much discussion at nothing, was made here today by the Rev. Henry Lewis of Ann Arbor, Mich.

The young pastor whose remarks to the Episcopal church congress which closed here last night drew sharp adverse comment from Bishop William T. Manning at New York, issued the following statement:

"In view of the continued publicity given to my address before the Episcopal church, I wish to state that I did not and do not advocate trial marriages."

"I was merely pleading for a dispassionate consideration and discussion of the findings of modern science and psychology in relation to morals which may lead to the upward development of the human race."

WHAT OUTSIDERS THINK It is strange, and humorous that outsiders think Peoria is becoming a town of good business, and steady increase? From several remarks we have heard made on this subject, we wonder if the residents, and citizens of this town are really aware of the changes taking place, and of the opportunities presented for greater growth. In most instances where local people tell about outsiders thinking we have a good town here, they say these people got their information from this paper, to which they subscribe. As for their own personal opinion, they are undecided. They'll admit that they can see worth while changes, and feel an undercurrent of prosperity, but still, you know, we have had such a hard time, and no one like it here, and we never will get anywhere, and so on. The listener to this long tale of woe, becomes so disgusted he longs for a crowbar or some other suitable instrument of killing power. For instance, one well known bird in this town, possessor of a good deal of property in the town, told a stranger, that the town never would amount to anything, and in a few months we'd all be broke again. Isn't that a lovely picture to paint for a man with money who was considering the possibility of buying here, and locating a store? Suppose it was true, even then, he had no ethical, moral, or pertified reason for handing out a line of preferred like that. If this bird didn't think the town would amount to anything, we wonder why he put the price of his lots to a figure that only cities with 20,000 population have the nerve to name. There is no wonder there, it is all so natural in its complete ignorance that it is actually pitiful. A man who would rather pay heavy taxes, keep his own business small, and go year after year believing no one wanted to come here, when by his own actions, he prevented them, so cut off his nose to spite his ugly face, if you the businessmen, and supposed boosters of the city of Peoria, honestly think that the stories in the paper concerning better times are wrong, why so wonder if you'd let us have 10 per cent of the gross increase in sales of 1927, over the sale of 1925? If you think it is all a matter of appearance, why, we can easily start printing stories about the failures of several years ago, and claim them for the present season.—The Peoria Times.

There is always some people in a town who have to gripe. There always some men in business who see nothing but the dark side of everything. There are some men who are failing in business because they have not done anything, but speak disparagingly of the town of the business outlook. They have in other words given up without an effort. They have allowed themselves to be discouraged, discouraged messages, when they might have said nothing. It is a mighty good rule that if you have nothing good to say of your home town, you should say nothing and the same might be said of men. If your knowledge of them is nothing but of their bad deeds, or their doubts, acts, the less said about it the better.

Hale Planning State Exhibit

BIG EXHIBIT FEATURING DRY FARMING PRODUCTS TO BE SENT TO FAIR

PLAINVIEW, June 18.—Hale county will be represented at the State Fair at Dallas this year with an agricultural exhibit, the contract already having been executed between the Plainview Board of City Development and the State Fair authorities for space. It is believed that Hale county is one of the first counties to apply for space this year.

Good Exhibit Expected
An exhibit in line with the exhibits that have gone from Hale county during the past fifteen or twenty years is expected to be placed at Dallas this year, and Col. R. P. Smythe, veteran exhibitor will probably be in charge again this year after two years' absence because of the rush of other duties.

Hale county has twice won the premier honors at the State Fair, and has consistently and continuously won the sweepstakes honors in vegetables. It has won more blue ribbons according to Col. Smythe than any other Texas county, and the officers of the local chamber of commerce are lined with ribbons won at this and other fairs of the South-west.

Show Dry Farming
Hale county's exhibit this year will specialize in products grown under dry farming conditions for the rainfall at Plainview has been less this year than during any of the past five years. But even with the low rainfall, wheat averaging twenty bushels and over is very common over the Plainview territory now, and with the recent rains the prospects for good feed and row crops make the outlook for an outstanding exhibit exceedingly good this year, according to Col. Smythe.

It's Different When 15 Loves 48

Marriage for most girls of 15 is the bunk, says Mrs. Cora Small, of Reading, Pa. But when love comes tripping along, as it did for her in the form of her 48-year-old husband, Lester, that's a horse from a different garage. "In the exception," she maintains, "Most girls don't know their minds at 15. But I know I love Lester and he loves me. That's different!" Lester, affectionately posed with his bride here, is a fireman.

Much Drama And Romance Seen In 'Yankee Clipper'

Said to be one of the most unusual and thrilling photoplays produced in five years is "The Yankee Clipper," a sea picture featuring William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Walter Long and Junior Collier, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre for four days beginning next Monday. This is an absorbing dramatic story of the glorious days just before the Civil War when the American clipper ship reigned triumphant on the high seas. The story deals with Hal Winslow, a young seaman whose father had invented the design of a fast sailing "Y" shaped clipper ship. The son sails the vessel to Foo Chow, China, in search of a cargo of tea. Here Winslow meets Huntington, a British ship captain who is in China on a similar mission. Hunting is accompanied by his beautiful daughter, Jocelyn, and one day Winslow rescues her from a band of beggars. She is engaged to a boaster named Richard, who proves himself both a coward and a traitor. At a dinner given by a Chinese merchant it is agreed that both ships—"The Yankee Clipper" commanded by Winslow and "The Lord of the Isles" owned by Huntington, shall carry cargoes of tea to Boston and that the vessel winning the race shall have the monopoly of the tea-carrying trade. On the day when the race begins, Jocelyn and her fiancé, Richard go aboard "The Yankee Clipper" to bid Winslow goodbye. Winslow decides to keep both aboard the vessel so that Jocelyn may learn the real character of Richard and be spared the disgrace of wedding a scoundrel. During the voyage, Richard causes much trouble among the crew and he is finally exposed by Winslow as a coward and traitor. The voyage to Boston is an exciting one filled with highly dramatic incidents. "The Yankee Clipper" reaches Boston harbor first and wins a thrilling race. Jocelyn has learned to despise Richard and love Winslow and at the finish of the ocean race, they plight their troth, and all ends happily. The story was written by Denison Clift and the picture was directed by Rupert Julian under the supervision of C. Gardner Sullivan. William Boyd and Elinor Fair are seen together in this picture for the first time since "The Volga Boatman." Long is seen as the hard-boiled sailor, Julia Faye and John Miljan are in the supporting cast.

SLATON ROTARIANS MEET

SLATON, June 18.—The members of the Slaton Rotary Club were hosts to their wives and sweethearts at a ladies' night program held Friday night at the community clubhouse. The Rev. Ben G. Holloway was guestmaster. Several musical selections, including a vocal solo by Mrs. Charles F. Anderson, made up the program. Sixty people attended.

Work Starts Soon On Lockney Line

LOCKNEY, June 18.—Contractors who have the contract to lay the gas line for the Prairie Oil and Gas company, from Plainview to Floydada have arrived in Lockney with 12 trucks and many mule teams and a sufficient force of workmen to start work on the laying of the pipe line. Several car-loads of pipe have been received in Lockney and will be unloading as fast as possible. The line from Plainview to Lockney will be an 8 inch line while the line from Lockney to Floydada will be six inch. The crews are now busy digging the ditches in which the gas line will be laid, and within the next few weeks the Floydada-Plainview line will be ready for the gas. Work on the distribution lines in Lockney and Floydada will soon begin, and by the arrival of cold weather gas will be ready for the residents. Records show that here was made as far back as 5000 B.C. An Indiana woman received a dollar from a man in payment for a running fight with a jagged submachine gun stolen from her officers. Finally, surrounded by a

Avalanche Office Now Rearranged

Rearranging of the Avalanche Journal building during the past week has been completed and provides for a newsboys and carrier's room with an outside entrance, mailing room, news mail files and advertising layout room. The new arrangement makes possible a locker room for employees, a supply room which will include space for permanent bound files of the Avalanche Journal publications. The composing room has been altered to provide additional room for make-up stones which will aid in the operation of that department. The offices were changed during the past week and greater efficiency should result from the new arrangement. The management believes changes in the floor plan of the building have all been made with the idea of conserving space as well as speeding up production to keep pace with the rapid growth of the newspapers.

MASONS NAME LEADERS

BIG SPRING, June 18.—Big Spring Royal Arch Masons Chapter No. 174, elected officers on Wednesday night June 16th. The following officers were elected: M. H. Morrison, High Priest; E. H. Huppel, King; W. V. Nichols, Scribe; Bobb T. Piner, Treasurer; C. W. Cunningham, Secretary; J. N. Civen, Guard. Big Spring Blue Lodge will elect officers on Thursday night, June 25.

NEW MAP FOR PLAINVIEW

PLAINVIEW, June 18.—H. T. Durrett of New York, is in Plainview making a fire insurance survey of Plainview with the intention of getting out a new map of the city. Mr. Durrett expressed the belief that Plainview has more than seventy-five hundred people as estimated by the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, and thinks that when his survey is complete it will show that more than eight thousand people live in Plainview.

Randall County Has Four New Schools

CANYON, June 18.—Randall county will begin school early in September with four new buildings. The four buildings will cost $24,500. Each building will be of the very best type to serve the district where it is to be built. Judge E. F. Fromberger, ex-officio county superintendent of schools, states that the bonds of the four districts will be sold on June 20. On wet days, the Lost Property Office of the London police department receives an average of 300 umbrellas.

TEST ANSWERS

FREIGHT SHIPMENTS AND BUILDING WORK UNDER WAY IN LUBBOCK GIVE EVIDENCE THAT CITY IS PROGRESSING

A survey of the building activities and freight shipments of Lubbock since January 1 reveals that Lubbock and Lubbock county have enjoyed a simple growth backed by agricultural production and business enterprises. With the near realization of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, giving direct connection from Lubbock to Fort Worth, wholesalers and retailers join in extending a welcoming hand to Fort Worth by way of the steel route. Passengers can be saved several hours of travel through the new connection, it is claimed. Freight shipments since January 1 are a barometer to the industrial stride taken by the city. 192 cars of poultry, and eggs have been shipped from Lubbock since the first of the year. Lubbock is fast becoming the poultry and egg center of the entire plains, by virtue of its location and the interest taken in diversified farming this year, local producers state. Livestock, Shippers, Hay, The number of cars of livestock

NEW HOME AT BIG SPRING

BIG SPRING, June 18.—Material is being placed on the ground for the construction of the Dr. Collins brick business house on corner of East Second and Scurry Streets. Dr. Collins reports that he has several applications for an apartment but has not leased the building. Tech's appropriation bill of $600,000 guarantees added building activities in the city. This calls for the erection of an engineering building, a practice house for home economics, first unit for green house, temporary buildings for agriculture and a science building. Contractors of the West Texas Gas company are on the job with a large number of men constructing the pipe line which will bring gas into Lubbock. The line to Plainview has been started with six miles of the line having been laid. The project will be completed November 1, officials have assured.

Large Feed Crop

The feed crop is to be the largest ever in the section, according to old timers. There is to much prospect work in feeding hogs, calves and steers for the fall markets. Feed crops look fine and promise a wonderful yield in Dawson county. There is planted an exceptionally large acreage in corn and maize this year. Grass has greened considerably since the rains and of course furnish the farmers feed and filler for the milk cows which is producing the cream, butter and fat that they are depending on for money to produce the present crop. Business conditions are predicted to pick up with the rains establishing optimism among the farmers and business men.

Wheat Harvest In Randall Under Way

CANYON, June 18.—Wheat harvest is going on rapidly in Randall county. The best report to date has been made on the farm of Frank Culp where the wheat is making 27 bushels to the acre. This was on summer fallowed land. Wheat in the Jewell community about fifteen miles south of Canyon is averaging 30 to 35 bushels an acre. Wheat in the southeast corner of Randall county is averaging about 12 bushels per acre. Only a small acreage has been cut so far. Local grain men are of the opinion that more wheat will be marketed in Canyon this year than last because the acreage in the county last fully three times larger than in 1926. The annual number of divorces per 100 marriages in the United States was 35 in 1870, 81 in 1900, and 145 in 1924.

No Mystery in the Treasure Chest

of Classified Advertising

In the treasure chest of profit in Classified ads, there is much to be gained. Those who use them to sell property, rent a room or dispose of a piece of furniture for which they have no further use, find them a treasure chest of revenue.

Those who consult them before buying, find them a treasure chest of saving, and more people each day find it profitable and economical to use and consult the Classified columns of the Avalanche and Journal.

For those who use them intelligently and consistently they are truly a treasure chest—rich in the reward they bring to readers and users alike.

AIR LINE

shortened to six and one-half hours from Roswell to Dallas and four hours from Lubbock to Dallas, the Roswell-Dallas line including a thirty-minute stop-over here.

Charles H. Groves, Lubbock merchant, who was first to advance the theory of the line's organization, not only believes the project a feasible one but offers to take stock in a properly organized and managed local company to back the line.

Many People To Be Served A population of approximately 250,000 is served through Lubbock while 375,000 to 500,000 people are similarly served by freight express and mail delivery through Roswell.

Regarding the tax items, Governor Moody said "proof submitted on these claims is not sufficient to completely establish their justness, and no proof whatever has been submitted to me to support some of them."

Three large planes, each capable of carrying a ton and available at a cost of $100 per plane, are necessary in the organization of the line.

Articles in the press of the nation, especially since the feat of Colonel Lindbergh, unmistakably point to a great expansion in aviation.

When the average citizen considers that a Dallas-Lubbock-Roswell airline would enable him to make a business trip to Dallas and return in one day, and when he considers that business correspondence and delivery of necessary commodities from the big city to Lubbock would consume only four hours he readily sees the benefits.

department, but more than $3,500,000 has been included to inaugurate for the first time in decades a general building program for institutions of higher learning and for the eleemosynary institutions.

Stock Claims Vetoed In the claims bill, Governor Moody turned down 11 claims totaling $1,331 for south Texas horses and stock lost during the hoof and mouth disease epidemic, 1925.

No Proof Given Regarding the tax items, Governor Moody said "proof submitted on these claims is not sufficient to completely establish their justness, and no proof whatever has been submitted to me to support some of them."

Other Items Approved Noting that he did not veto appropriations to cover losses by destruction of property in the cattle epidemic the governor said these claims "carried the approval and certificate of the live stock sanitary commission, which conducted investigation under prior authority granted by the legislature."

Gov. Moody also vetoed the $221 claim of Mrs. Laura Poe of Denton for damages caused by state officials in shooting into her house with a machine gun in arresting W. A. Martin in August in 1925.

There has been no ascertainment, the governor said, of the extent of the injury except such as might have been made by the house or senate committees and no proof seems to have been presented other than an affidavit that the injury was sustained.

Two Bachelors—Very Eligible

Here are two good young men, representing England and America, and the most eligible bachelors it would be possible to name just now—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, King of the Air, and His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, Lindbergh (left) appears a little different from the haggard boy who crawled from his historic plane in Paris.

HOOVER FORCED A WAY TO SUCCESS

ALTHOUGH AN ORPHAN AT 7, HE REACHED THE PINNACLE OF SUCCESS

(By The Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, June 13.—The story of an orphan who worked his way through college to attain world prominence and a string of titles and medals which he will not attempt to enumerate is published today by the New Orleans States in the life story of Herbert Hoover as related by himself.

"I was an orphan at seven. Worked my way through the academy, Old jobs. Worked my way through the university. Waited on tables. Ran a laundry.

"Got homesick on my first job in Australia. Resigned by cable and took a ship for London on my way home. When I reached London, I found I had been given a job in China.

"I have never seen anything that exceeds the region in here. When you are sending your dispatches back to your papers I want you to advise this territory to the limit I will do what I can to support you.

"I want to tell you," he began in what was one of the few informal addresses he has made since entering the White House, "that it is a great pleasure to meet your association in the region. It is true, Mrs. Coolidge and I have been here only two or three days but from the hearty welcome extended to us we feel as if we were one of those who live here.

"I doubt if one went to any part of the country that he would find but of the hole line this past, the president stepped back for a broader view of his guests.

"I am interested especially today in receiving reports on the conference on naval armaments which will assemble in Geneva Monday I am watching it closely. I hope our country and the other nations interested may receive great benefit from it.

"But it is not plan to make an extended address. I want to tell you how glad Mrs. Coolidge and I are to greet you. We hope this convention has been beneficial and that you reach home safely."

tendance, placed his final "ok" on the American and the flight plans, after a conference with Byrd, in the hangar.

Lieutenant Noville has been tinkering with motion picture camera, learning the tricks of shutters and focusing, in preparation for the filming for the first time of a trans-Atlantic hop. Noville has two cameras, with which he will "shoot" cloudbanks, icebergs, and Atlantic vessels. He also will take pictures of the last bit of land seen by those on the America before she roars out across the Atlantic wastes the first land sighted across the ocean, and the arrival in Paris.

A possible change in the take-off time of the America was discussed today. It was said that if weather conditions are good, a midnight hop off may be decided upon. Hitherto, dawn was regarded as the best hour for the departure, but the lessons taught by the flights of Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis and Chamberlain's Columbia were said to have caused a possible change in the plans for the America's zero hour.

It was pointed out that the advantage of a midnight take off would bring the America into Paris in daylight and not at night as in the case of Colonel Lindbergh, who left Roosevelt field at 7:51 in the morning.

Sightseeing would show the course to New Foundland. It was said, and at dawn the America would leave land behind and head out over the sea.

All that remains to be done to the America is to load her with her 1,300 gallons of gasoline, 1,200 in the tanks and 100 more stowed away in case of emergency.

BEST PROSPECTS IN SOUTH FACING PLAINS AREA

UNPARALLELED GROWTH AND CAPACITY FOR PRODUCTION ASSURES TERRITORY OF PROSPERITY, PRESENT INDICATION

With an unparalleled record of growth during the past decade, a production capacity seen to none in the United States, and assurance of continued advancement evident on every hand, business men and merchants of Lubbock and its trade territory view prospects here as being fundamentally the most optimistic of any district in the south. Plans to enlarge activities are general throughout the city, though this will be done in a conservative way.

Six million dollars to spend, has been entrusted to citizens of Lubbock county from production here last year as actual revenue from rubber sources, not counting the smaller ones—this includes money from 72,000 bales of cotton raised last year from approximately 2,225 farms, 280,000 bushels of wheat, 80,000 acres placed in grain sorghums which made approximately a ton per acre ten thousand bushels corn, produce from approximately 4,000 dairy cattle, 200,000 hogs, and the payroll of almost 1000 workers in Lubbock who annually earn a sum totaling approximately a million and a half dollars, payment from which comes from business of a wholesale or district character and drawing revenue from outside the county.

Out look for the coming year and the season after that are bright, with farmers turning rapidly to diversified methods which yield a larger profit, and increasing the number of dairy cattle. Despite the late planting season most farmers here are confident that they will have a better year this year than last, with wheat bringing a better value, and prospects for cotton and feedstuffs and livestock being better prices.

There has been no faltering in Lubbock's march of progress, statistics here show. Building permits for 1926 in Lubbock were negligible—within $200,000. For 1926 permits totalled $1,544,400. Permits for far for buildings here, or district new structures during 1927, are approximately $289,963 worth.

January showed $95,575; February $100,700; March $126,182; April $111,295; May $40,225, and already June has gone over the hundred thousand mark.

Real estate receipts always regarded as an accurate gauge of growth, and financial condition totalled $32,000 for 1926 in Lubbock. In 1926 receipts reached $81,090 and this year it is predicted by figures for the first five months that receipts will go over $200,000.

Banking resources which reached $2,560,170 in 1926, are at approximately the same level now. Most farmers and business men are in good shape and calls for loans are unusually slow, bankers report.

Telephone connections for 1926 showed 2,512, and this number has been increased materially in the past five months.

Real estate transfers totalled $415 in 1926 while two-thirds of that number have been reached in the first five months and a half of this year.

Two hundred and fifty thousand bales of cotton were compressed here last year by local compresses. The number of filling stations in Lubbock, which also are a record of a city's growth, has increased from 29 a year ago to over 60 at the present time.

There are over 100 wholesale houses, handling every kind of product used on the plains, located in Lubbock and approximately 200 workmen who make this city their headquarters in selling to the plains area.

There are 23 legal firms in the city, 26 physicians listed, 17 dry goods stores, 70 grocery stores, and 29 auto dealers and auto supply companies.

With the opening of the Denver railroad here expected early next year, and a direct channel to Fort Worth and eastern markets afforded, conditions are expected to improve further and growth will be accelerated, it is predicted.

Commenting on the general financial advantages of the Plains, Spencer Wells, president of the board of city development, pointed out that with the tremendous amount of improvements going on throughout this area and the amount of cash being paid out for these improvements only a district with tremendous production capacity could have maintained "monetary trade balance" or the amount of prosperity here that has existed with cash going out.

Once the major part of such improvements are completed, prosperity here will increase even more instead of diminish, it was predicted.

Plains Yet Undeveloped

However, while there are about two and a half million acres in the Plains area under the plow, there are six million acres yet to be placed in cultivation, and the development of this huge area will find a large reflection in the growth of the Plains cities.

The growth of these cities has been such during the past five years, when it has reached over 1000 per cent gain, that industrial survey engineers in New York, whose business it is to make such estimates, positively refuse to make an estimate on the growth here.

The Texas Gas company, constructing mains from Amarillo to Lubbock and other nearby cities, is allowing equipment to care for three times the number of persons who now live in these cities, and officials state that they expect their lines to be running at capacity within five years time.

Irate Prisoner In City Floods Jail

At least one irate "customer" of the Lubbock police department has drawn "sweet revenge" on the law for his incarceration, but had conditions not been as they were, this "revenge" might have turned on the individual to his own detriment, and possible death.

The customer, whose name was not divulged, was jailed late Friday night on a charge of drunkenness, and after all attendants about the bastille had gone, the man, in his over-enthusiasm, if such it might be termed, managed in some way to jerk loose the water pipe to the lavatory in his cell, losing a continual flow of water into the jail. The flow continued practically throughout the night, and Saturday morning when the day force reported for duty, the floor of almost the entire north side of the city hall was under water, in some places several inches deep.

But for the fact that the water could escape from the cell through the bars and makes its way to other parts of the building instead of amassing in the cell, the irate "customer" would have had a "dousing" reception, with the possibility of physical condition, officers said Saturday. Five men worked frantically for more than an hour with farms in an effort to remove the water from the building after the pipe had been plugged.

Rains Great Aid To Howard Farmers

HIG SPRING, June 18—Recent rains over Howard County has put optimism into the farmers and crops are being cultivated and planted with haste and enthusiasm. Cotton that was planted early is very promising. L. E. Castle, farmer living 15 miles northwest of Hig Spring, exhibited on the streets Thursday afternoon a stalk of cotton fourteen inches high with 20 blooms and forms on it. Mr. Castle planted 50 acres of cotton April 12, and he says it is a perfect stand in this locality. He has never seen in West Texas for June.

One more rain, says Mr. Castle will make him a ton of maize per acre on 25 acres that was planted early.

MRS. JAS. R. DOW AND SON, Jim Bob, are expected to return today from an extended visit with Mrs. Dow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Maddux, of Farwell.

Her Picture Wins Texas Tech And Lubbock Place In News Of Nation

MISS KATHARINE BRYARLY, TECH SOPHOMORE

The above picture of Miss Katharine Bryarly, of Dallas, Texas Tech student, will appear in several hundred newspapers of the United States, thus giving much favorable publicity to the college and Lubbock.

Miss Bryarly was selected by Cecil R. DeMille, movie impresario, as one of six Tech beauties and her portrait found its way to NEA service, one of the largest and best newspaper feature services in the world. Approximately 2,500 newspapers are clients of NEA service, including 800 daily publications.

In addition to her college work Miss Bryarly found time to be college postmistress. She is continuing her second year studies in the Tech summer school at the present time.

NEW GIN MACHINE BEING USED HERE

TRASHY COTTON CLEANED AND QUALITY INCREASED SEVERAL GRADES

A beginning process adopted by the Lubbock Ginning company improves loose, coiled bales and all soiled qualities of cotton one to three grades, according to officials of the company.

The new plant which provides for this method of ginning was installed at a cost of $15,000, the machinery of Kinne and Son of Dallas, inventors of the process, being used.

Soiled cotton with all its trash is cleaned from loose or round bales to square bales. Loose cotton which sells for 10 cents when put through the new ginning method will bring 12 to 14 cents; it is cleaned.

In the initial process the trashy cotton is sent through loose, tooth rollers into a round screen where a fan whips the cotton, removing the sand and small particles. It is then taken through various degrees of cleaning by the baling press.

Cotton which has been refused by buyers at Houston has been bought by the local ginners and re-ginned into salable merchandise. Round bale and loose cotton is put into square bale, commercial cotton.

John Orr, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, who visited the local plant recently, said, "If the Texas Farm Bureau association had been familiar with the ginning process last year, we could have saved farmers about $25,000. We sold $75,000 worth of loose cotton, which if improved through this plan would have brought a little better than $100,000."

The idea of the ginning plant was born in 1918, although it was not considered practical at that time. It has been adopted generally within the last year or two.

LUBBOCK COUNTY FARMERS WILL CUT COTTON PLANTING TO 175,000 ACRES IN 1927, COUNTY AGENT EATON SAYS

Tourists Served In Large Number

Local service stations and tourists camps are serving an increasing number of tourists with the opening of vacation season, a canvass of the city reveals.

The greatest number of automobiles passing through Lubbock from outside the state are from California, license plates indicate. There is seemingly an increased number of automobiles going east this year. This is due probably to the fact that many tourists are visiting relatives in the flooded district of the Mississippi.

Occasionally patriotic figures are found in tourist camps. One tourist camp proprietor tells of a family who had started on a vacation for California, whose pleasure had been destroyed with the accidental death of the father. In direful circumstances, the remaining members of the family passed through Lubbock on the return home after having shipped the body from Roswell, N. M.

Flocks Are Cut

Mr. Eaton expresses the belief that the average farmer in Lubbock county is in only fair condition. Asked if the "Cow, Sow and Hen" idea is being carried out in the county, Mr. Eaton replied, "There is no use to talk the 'Cow, Sow and Hen' idea and sell eggs at 8 cents a dozen. The decline of prices which accompanied the increase in dairy, poultry and swine stock has had a tendency to decrease flocks."

"The problem does not stop with the production," he continued. "It must be extended on to the market. Lubbock should be the poultry and butter fat center of the South Plains."

"We do not want to urge farmers to raise just enough to eat," he said. "We stress diversification with the hope of profitable disposition of the surplus. Along this line, we feel that the cream and egg market should be improved."

"The butter fat market, together with the price of hams, has always been fairly good, but farmers have not commanded a reasonable price."

"In other centers where eggs are marketed co-operatively, the price will average 30 cents a dozen throughout the year. The Bankhead association of Cisco, the Co-Operative Turkey association of San Angelo, the Southwestern Poultry association, and other united organizations exemplify the success of co-operative marketing."

Mullican To Talk To Ex-Service Men

Col. Clark M. Mullican, judge of the 29th district court here, who is one of the most widely known war veterans in the state, has been selected to respond to the address of welcome at the annual state convention of the American Legion in Houston July 4, 5 and 6, and has accepted the honor, it was learned Saturday.

The invitation came from John T. Fuleher, state adjutant of Austin, by telegram, and Judge Mullican has wired his acceptance. He with his wife and several other Legionnaires of Lubbock will attend the convention. Judge Mullican's address will be made July 4, opening day of the three-day convention.

Rural Women Find Remuneration In Their Work; Club Members See That Thought Pays In Home Management

Rural women find their work a remunerative profession as much as the urban housewife. The records kept by Miss Hazel Hamner, home demonstration agent, and those women who have entered clubs and carried on the required work have been benefitted estimably, she thinks.

In substantiating this, she estimates that club women in this county earned funds valued at $12,194.56 during 1926, this amount being over and above the usual earnings they could have done. And, in addition to this work, the club women in poultry raising and dairying as well as other friends for profit. Without actual records, Miss Hamner considers that many women and girls near one thousand dollars annually through their home demonstration work.

To Have New Agent

Miss Hamner's resignation, sent several weeks ago, becomes effective Monday and another agent is to take up her work. Giving as her reason for quitting that her health will not permit her to continue and that she wishes to retire from public work, Miss Hamner is going with her mother for a few weeks to a place in New Mexico, after which she will return to her home in Denton.

There are now 256 women and girls enrolled in club work in Lubbock County in classes of foods, nutrition, clothing, home management, house furnishings, sanitation and home health, rural home engineering, beautification of home grounds, gardening, poultry raising, marketing, community activities and other miscellaneous things related to the home.

State Outlines Study

The girls pursue a course of study outlined at A. and M. college for the home and adapted to local conditions. The women gather in a County Council and outline their own course, reserving the right to study anything they please. This last condition is desirable as it is almost impossible to find things that appeal to every club, Miss Hamner said.

These women who have been in club work since it was inaugurated several years ago find that they have already completed courses demanded by the newer organizations.

One of the most beneficial things that have been inaugurated in the routine since Miss Hamner's departure here was the kitchen contest conducted this spring, in which A. G. Jones, Carlisle, was winner in Class I, with Mrs. Ed Schroeder of Wolfarth, winning in Class II.

This is a state project and these women are entitled to attend and make them most profitable.

Form Own Recipes

For instance, this spring, the women of the county and Miss Hamner have established a recipe for chicken hot tamales through a series of experiments.

The farm women found that in culling their chickens, they had many that would bring them little on the market and were fit for little else. Those were killed and made into tamales, which are palatable and nutritious, Miss Hamner says. The tamales are canned in the corn shucks ready for serving, except for a final warming, and as they sit in the cans the ingredients blend, giving to them a more mellow flavor as they stand, she said.

Although little canning has been done since January, the seasons coming in the summer and fall for fruits and vegetables, Miss Hamner sees the popularity of this work growing.

Records Show Increase

Records for 1926 show that meats valued at $572 were canned that year by the women as compared to $1,343.56 since January this year. Cured meat last year was valued at $70 and so far this year at $1,096.32. These figures are computed from a scale that shows the commercial values of the home-canned products.

The State, through the county agents and their work, largely, is attempting to get farm folk to produce much of the food they use, rather than to depend upon outside sources and these farm women are seeing the value of this work. The figures given below include foods that were canned by the women through their club work, in addition to what they would have done regularly, the agent avers.

Work Accredited

Aside from the remunerative and such other help that home demonstration work is to girls in the County, they are also accorded school credits on their work. Often the only accredited credits that rural girls have when they enter a city high school are those they have gained in club work, she said, and these credits are often accepted by colleges for entrance.

There are twenty-five clubs in the county now in the following communities: Wolfarth, Monroe, Carlisle, Canyon, Acuff, Shallowater, Hardy, County Line, Canyon, Estacado, Woodrow, Slide, New Hope, Posey, Slaton, Caldwell, South west Ward.

Practicing Improving

In home dairy work, 578 women and girls are enrolled and until now, they have recorded the making of 55,483 pounds of butter in 256 homes. One hundred and thirty-two of these homes are feeding better dairy rations this year for the first time. 94 homes have adopted better practices in the sanitary production and care of milk and 138 homes have adopted better practices in butter and cheese making.

One hundred and twenty-six homes in Lubbock county have been assisted in increasing the family income this year through poultry raising and the 578 women and girls in the work have made a profit of $2,564 since January. The flocks of these women total 25,529. Flocks have been culled in 147 homes for the first time and 8,222 birds have been discarded. Balanced poultry rations are being fed in 139 homes.

Beautiful Grounds

Twenty-three rural homes in Lubbock have grounds planted this year according to landscape plans as a result of this extension service; trees, gardens and shrubs are being cultivated and sprayed according to scientific instructions that have been given; dwellings are being built and remodeled, water systems and sewage-disposal systems installed, and interior of homes are being furnished and improved this year in accordance with plans furnished the women and girls through the agent.

Prepare Food Better

Two hundred and sixty-one women and girls are this year preparing better school lunches for the first time and 273 homes in the county are having improved practices relative to nutrition work practiced in them at present. In 132 of these homes, improved practices in child feeding are being used for the first time, thus affecting 136 children.

Including the women and girls who are using improved practices in bread making, meat cooking, vegetable cooking, preparation of dairy-products dishes and those who are adopting improved practices in meal preparation and service this year, 808 homes are being benefitted.

A conviction of the value of home demonstration work grows on the women, Miss Hamner thinks, and their increasing interest in the work each year is indicative of this. To the women, it is social life, an opportunity to make their home life ever more pleasant and to their families cultural opportunities. A part of the aim of the clubs, as outlined in their year book, expressed thus:

The primary aims of the Women's Home Demonstration clubs in Lubbock county are to stimulate interest in home-making, base upon the dignity of home life; to develop the ideals of true economy and thrift through systematic conservation and installation of needless wastes; to encourage home industries through gardening, poultry raising and dairying, thereby increasing food production; to foster the underlying principles of good dress through sewing and the careful selection of materials and articles; to develop leadership through and for community life in a word to develop in women and girls a new enjoyment and satisfaction, that we may find in our home life and community a new happiness.

Two Lubbock County Women Are To Study Co-operative Marketing; Mrs. Revier Delegate From 3 Counties

"See You In Jail" Shows Violators Of Traffic Laws

America's army of potential jailbirds and law violators, numbering nearly half of the total population of the United States, will be joyful when it sees "See You In Jail" the comedy-drama which is coming to the Lindsey Theatre next Monday.

The people who are breaking the law consistently are the motorists of the country, and it happens that they are right and the law wrong, for improvements in automobiles and their drivers have come faster than improvements in traffic legislation. Of course justice for the motorist is only a small part of the lively theme of "See You In Jail," which was produced by Ray Rockett for First National and directed by Joseph Henabery. Jack Mulhall heads the cast as a teary player, and opposite him is Alice Day, comedy star, forming a new and particularly appealing romantic combination.

Crawford Kent, George Pawcett, Muck Swain, Burr McIntosh, Yola d'Avril and other noted trouper make up the rest of a large cast seen in the picture. The story deals with a young man who, sadly in need of a job, serves out the sentence given a millionaire for speeding, and then carries the impersonation to the length of organizing a corporation—and winning—the millionaire's sister.

No moral teaching, sugar-coated or otherwise, stands out of the picture, but if one were to look for it a brief for same, less antiquated traffic laws might be found—laws that take into account improvements of cars, the danger of going too slowly and the traffic congestion. But you'll forget the presentation in sheer enjoyment of the hilarious comedy and thrill of "See You In Jail."

Plainview Represented

PLAINVIEW, June 18.—Mrs. M. S. Hudson of Hale Center, president of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau association and the Lubbock county representative. With the county federated clubs of Lubbock county considering the support of a delegate, it is possible that three women from this county will make this California trip.

Fifty women comprise the group, headed by Miss Susan Landon, head of the Educational department of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association. Miss Landon will conduct the Texas train to several points in Utah, California and Colorado where a study will be made of the different co-operative marketing organizations.

Mrs. Hudson will make a detailed study of the poultry industry in Petaluma, California, while she is gone and when she returns she will be the principal speaker at community meetings which will be sponsored all over Hale county by the Plainview Chamber of Commerce co-operating with county Agent R. M. Millhollin, in an effort to get more poultry production in Hale county.

Which Pays The Biggest Dividends?

The question of whether it is cheaper to send the wash to the laundry every week, or make an investment in a washing-machine is one that should be carefully investigated by every housewife. The facts and figures prove so conclusively that it is cheaper to send it to the laundry, that this ad should be carefully read in the interest of thrift.

The Average Cost of a Washing Machine is $118

That is the first cost, and the piece of machinery has not been made that doesn't require expert service to keep it operating efficiently, and the average woman is not a mechanic, nor is it always convenient to wait, while the washing-machine is being repaired—often times the wash has to be sent to the laundry in the end, that the family may have clean linen for daily use in the home. $118 is lots of money, and when you add the cost of new parts to replace those that have worn out, and charges for repairs, it is an expense so heavy as to bring discouragement to the thrifty, when this laundry can do it cheaper and in many instances better, because we specialize. . . . Everything we launder is put through clean soft water from beginning to end, whereas in most instances those who laundry at home are forced to use hard water, and hard water has been proven less efficient in use.

and you still have labor and muss

If you do your laundry, you still have to clean up the mess that wash-day brings, heat the water, put it into the machine, take it out again, and perform many of the disagreeable duties that are connected with doing the washing in your home.

The Average Cost of Rough Dry for a Family of Four is $1.20 per week

Taking the average washing for a family of four the Rough Dry cost is $1.20 per week. At this rate you can well afford to let us do your laundry, for you haven't your money tied up in a machine that is not always ready to operate when you are, to say nothing of eliminating the mess of wash-day and saving money that you can't get out of spending for repairs and parts. As compared to washing-machines and their comparatively short life, it would take more than 98 weeks for you to spend as much money in having the laundry done here, as you would invest in the average washing-machine IF YOU DIDN'T HAVE TO SPEND A CENT FOR SERVICE OR PARTS. Think it over — the saving is worth serious thought.

and we take the responsibility

Your washing when sent to us, is returned to you immaculately clean and promptly, eliminating unnecessary expense, labor and inconvenience.

TWO 'SHOWS' QUICKEN INTEREST IN OIL ACTIVITY

TWO NEW TEST WELLS ARE TO GO DOWN SOON

SUN OIL COMPANY HAS NEW LEASES MADE IN TERRITORY

With tests to the north and south of Lubbock having good oil shows within the past week and with two new wells to be spudded in next week, interest in oil development activities on the South Plains has been on the rise in the past few days and indications point toward further operations in this section during the coming weeks.

The Center Oil company's (Sam Arnett et al) number 1, Boles, 6 1/2 miles southeast of Lubbock reported a slight show of oil around 750 feet while interest was tense at Justiceburg during the past week with a two barrel show in the Emerald Oil company's number 1, C. Boren around 2600 feet. The well has previously experienced a rainbow show at 1902 feet, and a two barrel show at 2200 and again at 2410 feet. The Enckling-Kegans number 1, Mullica, in Hal county, reported a show of oil at 435 feet.

New Locations Coming
A new location is to be spudded in by the World Oil company next week, officials of that company have announced. It lies in the northwest corner of league number 7 of the Wilbarger county school land and is to be known as the World Oil company's Elwood number 1. Operations will be renewed on the old Elsdon test near Abilene next week also, the new test to be known as the Richter No. 1.

Leasing activities have been quiet during the past few weeks with only an occasional small tract recorded in the office of County Clerk Agnes Howard. A number of lease assignments have been made by various individuals to major companies, the Sun Oil company acquiring the majority of these.

A survey report of the South Plains is being prepared by the U. S. Geological Survey.

General Motors Sales Are High

In the first quarter of this year the sales of General Motors, even to overseas dealers were the largest in any quarter in history, according to an announcement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors. The total in the three months ending in March was 29,443 cars and trucks compared with 21,936 in the first quarter of 1926. The fourth quarter of 1926 usually has been the largest quarter and this was true both in 1925 and 1926. Sales in the first quarter of this year exceeded those of the last quarter of 1926 by 7248 cars, or more than 22 per cent.

HOW TO CATCH THE AUTO THIEF

By NEA Service
LONDON, June 18.—At last we have the solution to the puzzling problem of catching automobile thieves.

It's offered gratis to all police departments of the world by former Inspector C. Turner of the London police. Here it is: Have handy in each police station pails of whitewash and syringes. When a car is reported stolen, distribute the whitewash equipment at the important outposts of the town and when the stolen car is spied, a cop at each side of the road sprays the machine with his whitewash.

It's sure to be identified easily and stopped at the next cross roads.

Phone Company To Better Its Service

The Southwestern Bell Telephone company will make additions and replacements in Texas to the amount of $1,483,000, according to estimates approved during the first quarter of this year.

The Houston-Hadley office, next-step-by-step central office equipment will cost $803,000.

Additional toll circuits and carried installation for Amarillo-Fort Worth, amount to $81,600. General equipment routine estimate for the second quarter amounts to $60,700. Additional toll circuits San Antonio-Laredo toll section, will cost $47,000.

New circuits for Dallas-Marshall-Palestine, have estimates approved for $10,820.

Construction estimates approved by all of the associated Bell companies during the first quarter of 1927 provide for gross expenditures in excess of $2,000,000. Of this amount, $87,000,000 will be for gross additions to the plant, and the net plant additions will exceed $55,000,000.

COLLEGE PROFESSOR URGES BETTER CO-ORDINATION OF MOTOR VEHICLES AND OTHER TRANSPORTATION UNITS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.—Addressing the Annual Convention of the American Automobile Association in session at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here recently, Henry R. Trumbower, Professor of Economics, University of Wisconsin, made a plea for coordination of the motor vehicle with other transportation agencies and for a more intensive study of the subject of highway finance with a view of obtaining more uniform policies and a more equitable distribution of highway costs and expenses among the various classes making use of the highways.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.—In methods of procuring funds for highway construction and upkeep, Prof. Trumbower related the range of license fees and gasoline taxes for a five passenger touring car ranged from $8 in Illinois to $52 in Oregon, basing his figures on statistics available from seven states. License fees and gasoline taxes for motor buses, the speaker said, ranged from $30 in New Jersey to $1,571.41 in Maryland.

Prof. Trumbower is one of the foremost highway transportation authorities in the country and has made an exhaustive study of the economic phases of motor vehicle transportation.

"There is not only a wide divergence in the methods and bases followed in order to obtain revenues from motor vehicle operators," said Prof. Trumbower, "but there is also no definite or tangible policy as to the proportionate amount of total highway expenditures which should in fairness and justice be borne by

$25 IN CASH PRIZES!

FOR THE BEST WRITTEN DESCRIPTIONS OF THE NEW AUTOMOBILE TO BE BUILT BY THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Everyone is wondering about the new automobile to be built by Henry Ford. Nearly every one has a mental picture of a certain ideal type of car and expects the new Ford product to meet that ideal. So great is the interest and so positive are people that Ford will produce their ideal type of car that many people are waiting until the new product is offered before considering the purchase of any car.

While we wait for the automobile we have something to interest you and others who vision the new product.

Mentally picture the new car—write it down on paper, write your opinion of its speed, of the number and kind of brakes, of its weight, kind of carburetion, gas mileage, wheel-base, etc.

For the best written description of the new car we offer $15.00 in cash, and $5.00 each for the next two best.

Everyone on the South Plains not connected in any way with the Ford Motor Company or any Ford agency is eligible for prizes.

No one—as far as we know—has information in advance from authentic sources—that will give them an advantage over you.

The only information we have is a statement attributed to Henry Ford—"A car that will disappoint no one."

It will be fun for you to write out a mental picture of your ideal car—and fine if that ideal is best descriptive of the new automobile to be offered soon.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

CHAPTER IX
Clay had been waiting for the doctor's message. He found a very white, sick old man in bed, guarded by an anxiously frowning physician.

"Your father wants to see you, Clay, but I must warn you to be careful of what you say to him. He has been suffering from shock, and he hasn't been a well man for over a year. He needs his son, Clay," the doctor added in a low voice as he detained Clay outside his father's door.

"Hello, son," T. Q. called feebly from his bed when the haggard-faced boy entered. "Did you find her? But you wouldn't be back so soon if you hadn't," he added hopefully.

"No, Dad, I didn't find her," Clay answered gently. "I found that Romaine's car overturned in the dirt road leading to the cabin. Romaine is dead."

"And Billy?"
"I found her handkerchief under the car. She had undoubtedly been with him. But she couldn't have been hurt badly in the accident, for she had taken her suitcase with her. Romaine's bag was under the car. I found her footprints in the mud." His voice choked.

"And you obliterated them?" T. Q. asked almost sharply.

"Certainly. Billy mustn't be connected with this in any way. No one in the world can prove that she was with him at the time. It is an unfrequented road, leading only to Romaine's cabin. I left him there. Dad, it seemed best to let someone else discover his body. Tradespeople will be going to the cabin tomorrow or the next day, undoubtedly, since Romaine kept a Hindu servant there. I walked up to the house and peered into the window. I saw a black-skinned fellow sitting on a bench. There was no evidence that Billy had taken refuge there. He hardly would, you know."

"I'm glad he's dead," T. Q. said slowly, closing his eyes for a moment. Then, "And you couldn't find her, son?"

"No, Dad. She simply disappeared off the face of the earth apparently. I drove madly up and down the main highway, but there wasn't a soul on foot. She probably accepted an offer of a pick-up by some passing car, and God knows where she is now."

"She won't come back to Colfax," T. Q. sighed with profound weariness. "But we must try to find her, son. You're right, Clay, I tried to play God with the lives of three beautiful girls, and I—played devil instead."

He closed his eyes and a gray shadow settled on his thin old face. To Clay it seemed like the shadow of approaching death.

"Listen, Dad. I'm sorry I spoke as I did. He dropped to his knees beside the bed and took one of his father's limp hands in his. "It has all been my fault as much as yours. I was selfish. I thought only of myself, winning my own freedom, making you proud of your 'self-made' son."

"You were right, Clay," his father interrupted on a great, shuddering sigh. "I have been proud of you this year. I acted like a weak fool—couldn't endure a little loneliness while my son made good on his own."

"Let's not talk about it any more, Dad," Clay begged. "Of course I'm coming home now, if you want me."

"Want you?" the old man trembled. "Why, son—"

"And if you'll let me bring Billy's mother here to live, she'll be my mother for a year, and we can't give her to loneliness and poverty now that Billy has gone."

"Billy won't desert her mother—won't let her starve," T. Q. defended the absent girl loyally. "That's how we'll find Billy. Clay, she'll send money to her mother as soon as she's earning anything."

"I can't wait for that, Dad," Clay protested, rising to his feet. "I'm going to look for her until I find her. I imagine she had some money with her—a little at least."

"And she was wearing an eight hundred-dollar moleskin coat," T. Q. contributed hopefully. "Of course you can't advertise for her. We must give out to the papers that she has gone to New York to study music. Every one knows that damned year is about finished."

"She'll go to New York of course," Clay went on. "I'm going to have to spend a lot of my time there anyway, marketing my songs and getting my symphony produced. I'll not rest until I find her. What about Winnie, Dad?" he asked suddenly.

"Winniburnton was here just after you left. He made her write a complete confession as to hers and Romaine's schemes, and sign it. She can't bother us with blackmail, if she's ever tempted to do such a thing, which is unlikely. I had Winniburnton give her a check for a thousand dollars, which she seemed pathetically grateful for. She's gone home to her father and tomorrow she'll remove him to a sanitarium in the mountains. There won't be any scandal, thank God—for your sake." Tears clotted his feeble voice.

"There, Dad, I'll have to go now and tell Mrs. Wells that Billy has left suddenly for New York to continue her studies. God knows how I'll make her believe it."

"You won't see your son," T. Q. said wisely. "She's a smart woman. Tell her I'll be proud and grateful to have her make her home with us."

"On still one more condition, Dad," Clay persisted, with a stubborn set to his jaw. "I'm going to pay our share of the expenses of the home—Mrs. Wells' and mine. It won't be easy at first, but I'll have a lot of money coming in soon. And since we'll all want to live a simple life, we can do on about half the means we now have. Good night, Dad. We'll let her know to write me. I'm going to find Billy."

But finding Billy Wells did not prove to be the simple thing that Clay had hoped and prayed it would be. Three weeks after her ing hours to looking for her hope to meet her, too?

"Blessed, plucky little angel!" he exclaimed. "I knew she was studying again. Working all day and studying at night. She'd been to take a music lesson, of course! God bless her!"

When his symphony, "The Song of Toil," was presented to the public for the first time by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra—an event which had been lavishly heralded in the press—Clay stood in the lobby of the concert hall from the time the doors opened until they were closed for the night, scanning every face in the great throng that entered. But Billy was not in the audience. His greatest hope faded. If she loved him at all, or if she still cared for his success, wouldn't she have been there? But what if she didn't have the money for a ticket? He groaned aloud in misery, which had only been temporarily alleviated by the deafening applause of applause that greeted what the press later was unanimous in praising as "the greatest American symphony."

Then one night, when his bags had been checked at the Penn station five to add him in the search, but months went by without bringing a ray of hope to the distraught young man who was rapidly becoming a figure of importance in New York's musical circles.

Nyda Louax Earning, whom Clay encountered on the street one day nearly a year after Billy's disappearance, gave Clay the first real reason to hope.

Clay hardly recognized the over-painted, over-dressed woman who came to his table in a night club. Clay sat alone, waiting to hear a girl violinist play in the hope that it might be his lost sweetheart.

Nyda gushed over him and settled herself at his table. Clay made no effort to conceal his distaste for her society, but Nyda, homesickness lurking in the languorous depths of her black eyes, held him in conversation.

"Sure, I ditched Eddie long ago. I was in the chorus of 'Naughty, Naughty!' for two months, then a big butter-and-egg man convinced me that work was bad for my health. So I'm taking things easy."

She added melancholyly, "And say, by the way, I thought Billy Wells was the blue-eyed baby, so far as old T. Q. was concerned. What's she doing in New York, wearing last year's clothes and looking like a starving Armenian?"

"I've been looking forward so abruptly that he overruled his own untouched drink. 'Where did you see her?' he demanded, his voice trembling with eagerness."

"Walking along Broadway one night with a fiddle case in her hands," Nyda answered. "For God's sake, don't shout at me! That's all I know! I was with my boy friend and I didn't speak to her."

No matter how desperately he pounded his questions at her, Clay could get no more out of Nyda. But he left her with a burning hope that might with hope burning high in his heart. If Nyda had seen Billy on Broadway, when she wasn't even looking for her, couldn't he who loved her so well and who was devoting more than half of his wak-

Auto Fuel Bought At Bakers' Shops

PARIS, June 18.—Thirty automobiles on a three weeks tour through France recently demonstrated the usefulness of fuels other than gasoline in automotive touring.

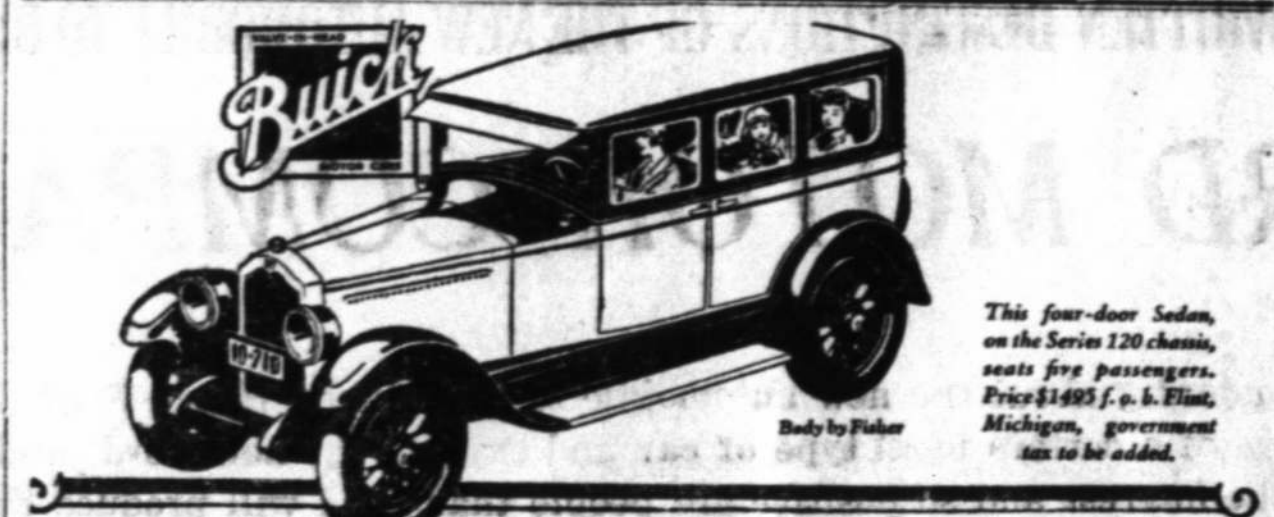

Most remarkable in this demonstration was the run made by 14 of these 30 vehicles on what is called "gazogene," a fuel manufactured on the spot by the motor car itself. This is generated from charcoal, wood or other similar substances.

All of these vehicles carried heavy loads over the entire trip. One, weighing 11 tons, traveled 150 miles in one day, and another, weighing eight tons, reached a

Some Day-You'll have two cars Why wait?

Buy a Buick
How many times have you wished your family had a second car? How often would it have been not only a convenience, but an actual saving?
You, no doubt realize that two Buicks are an actual necessity in your family, for the sake of convenience and happiness and because the saving in time makes two-car ownership real economy.
Why wait longer to buy another car?
Your "family" car will be in ever-increasing demand during the spring and summer months. Get your second car now and make the whole family happy this year.
With a wide range of body styles and sizes, Buick has the two cars which will best fill your family's needs. And Buick's high quality at its low price makes it by actual comparison, the greatest value on the motor car market today.

This two-passenger Coupe, on the Series 215 chassis, is priced at $1195 f. o. b. Flint, Michigan, government tax to be added.

A SECRET RETREAT - Hear my voice, O God, in my prayer: preserve my life. Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked.

ON BOTH HUMANITARIAN AND ECONOMIC GROUNDS

Every convention of firemen or underwriters in recent years has devoted attention to the over-insurance abuse, which appears widely prevalent.

Financial agencies have observed a direct relation between trade conditions and down-town fires. When business is good, they say, few outbreaks occur; when it is bad, the fires increase.

Nor is this despicable practice confined to the business world. A report to the State Fire Marshal from one town showed that a vacant residence, lately consumed, had been insured for $3,500; but it was valued at $3,000.

Over-insurance plays into the unscrupulous persons hands and lays a heavy tax upon honest policy-holders. It is they who foot the bills and they have the right to demand better protection.

Addressing the firemen's convention recently, D. E. Satterfield of the State Fire Marshal's office called attention to another phase of the question. It is nothing less than criminal that firemen should be compelled to risk their lives fighting such outbreaks, he said.

Mob violence in Mississippi, Texas and Georgia, within the past few months have brought back to mind an old condition that we had hoped was gone for ever. We cannot believe in or sympathize with any mob. The very word brings to our mind something that suggests that there is not one bit of common horse sense connected with it.

It seems that more people have taken up the matter of bank banditry during the past year than ever before. Just what has brought this about is not known by anyone, we presume, but it is certain that the practice has become more general.

Chicago man has applied for a divorce because his wife insists on keeping twenty four cats in the house. It wouldn't be so bad if she'd permit him to lead a dog's life.

FATHER'S DAY

For some time, in fact for several years the nation has been celebrating Mother's Day. Programs have been given, and much ado has been made over the mothers of the land, all of which we believe as a whole is absolutely ok.

We believe then, that there is nothing amiss in designating a day upon which we may remember our fathers especially, and that we may show something more than the ordinary concern for him, and on which day we may prove to him that while the majority of the 365 days in the year we may seem just a bit indifferent, and unconcerned about him, that in reality we are thinking of him, and we are appreciating him, and we are mindful that even though his face may be sunburned, and the palm of his hands may be hardened with toil.

THE AMERICAN BOY

Theodore Roosevelt, who is one of the great men of the nation, whom many boys were interested in because of his great outdoor life, had much to say about boys and to boys. One of the splendid thoughts that he gave out during his life time when he said that we have a right to expect of the American boy that he turn out to be a good American man.

There are none of us that did not enjoy the rains and appreciate them, but the people living in those towns where the surface water supply was getting scarce, were no doubt more elated over it than any of us.

Grover Cleveland Bergdoll has hit upon another plan to get back to the United States. His latest appeal is for an opportunity to fly to America. We presume he has thought this plan out believing that America would forget all the past offenses, and grant him admission to the United States and put medals and flowers upon him for the marvelous achievement.

SO THINK WE

We think that if fish would only be as liberal with their biting as the mosquitoes there, certainly there would be a lot more satisfaction in fishing. We think the next great achievement that some one should make is to build an automobile with a pullman birth, a radio, a bath tub, a kitchenette and an airplane wing.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that there were not as many people in town Saturday as usual, but there were many more in the fields. The South Plains farmers are making hay while the sun shines, and they will be making bumper crops too while the East Texas fellows who have been so interested in the drouth out here are fighting boll weevils.

BRIGHT MINDS

The worst sorrows in life are not in its losses and misfortunes, but its fears. A. Benson. A great factory with the machinery all working and revolving with absolute and rhythmic regularity and with the men all driven by one impulse and moving in unison as though a constituent part of the mighty machine, is one of the most inspiring examples of directed force that the world shows.

OPINIONS

McADOO AND SMITH. Mr. McAdoo's address in Tennessee in which he read the riot act to the democratic wets, with particular intent to slam the Tammany Tiger and Al Smith's candidacy, seems to have stirred up a hornet's nest. Tammany's spokesmen retort in bitter language, which boiled down to the effect that Mr. McAdoo can go chase himself.

BEST DIRT ROADS IN TEXAS ARE TO GREET TOURIST IN LUBBOCK COUNTY THIS SUMMER, MAJ. HEMPHILL SAYS

Tourists who visit Lubbock this summer will find only dirt high ways, but they will find them in the best condition of any of a similar kind in the state, according to Major Pettis Hemphill, division engineer of the State Highway Department here, who is now in the midst of one of the most concerted road improvement programs ever undertaken in the state.

The gigantic equipment concentration, which was started about a month ago at the south end of Dawson county on state highway No. 8, has been broken up temporarily due to the heavy rains over the district, and equipment has been scattered to all portions of the 21 counties under his supervision.

27 Major Tractors Busy

Twenty seven major tractors are now in operation over the division. This number does not include light tractors and graders, or maintenance, of which there is a great number. Eight additional major tractors, by which is meant that two or more men are necessary for operation, are to be added probably the first of the coming week, these coming from the state department at Austin.

No. 9 Is Improved

Highway No. 9, on which the concentration program started, has been regarded practically all the way through Dawson and Lynn counties, being widened to a 28 foot roadway to conform to federal specifications. Resumption of the concentration will see the equipment near the south end of Lubbock county, and after the highway is regraded into Lubbock, present plans are that the equipment will be switched to No. 7, instead of going on north on No. 9 as originally planned.

New For Lindy

"Lucky Lindy" is about the most popular man on earth. His ascension in an airship caused a lot more exultation than Elijah's ascension to heaven, and yet we have a few preachers who are preaching about Lindy. Of course we did not have the Associated Press during the time Elijah was on earth. Maybe if A. P. had been operating then, the Jerusalem correspondent would have put religion on the front page once or twice a year which, so far as publicity is concerned, was sadly neglected.

Church-Going Helps

A few visits to the House of God will help you. It will give you an opportunity to learn. A thorough study of the scriptures will enlighten you and put you in position to answer some of the more complex questions of the day. One patron of this column wanted to know what we think of the Russian situation. Well, what we think does not amount to very much, but a revealing study of the scriptures will reveal many truths. There is trouble brewing—more trouble than the world has ever known. And this trouble is brewing in Russia. The country that forgets God, the nation that goes in for free love and the nation that builds on falsehoods instead of facts must fall.

CHRYSLER CAR IN STOCK SPEED RUN

IMPERIAL '36 ROADSTER MAKES 89.91 MILES AT ATLANTIC CITY

A new speed record was registered for American stock cars when the veteran Ralph De Palma recently drove a Chrysler Imperial '36 sport roadster 89.91 miles an hour in one hour over the Atlantic City speedway course.

This is the greatest distance ever covered in that time by an American stock car of the 200 cubic inch piston displacement class with stripped chassis, and is within seven-tenths of a mile of the free-for-all stock car record established by a car of 400 cubic inches piston displacement.

The test was made under the supervision of the American Automobile association and will stand as official if the car being carefully checked after the run by Paul Dunn and Joe Dawson of the A. A. A. control board.

Few Preparations Made The only special preparation made for the trial lay in the removal of the roadster from the fenders, running boards and wind shield glass. The car is regularly equipped with a gear ratio of 2.77 to 1, a high compression cylinder head, and a force speed gasoline system.

While the total distance covered in the record run was 89.91 miles in the hour, this sensational speed did not register the full capacity of the powerful Imperial '36 roadster. The pace in the trial, steadily accelerated as the number of laps increased and from a rate of 83.77 miles an hour in the first five miles, the car was dashing along at the terrific rate of 89.152 miles when the 50 mile mark was reached. All these figures are new records for a car of this classification.

Onlookers who had been carefully watching the phenomenal performance, were aware that even these unprecedented bursts of speed did not exhaust the roadster's capacities, for they had seen De Palma take it over the course in two preliminary trials of 25 and 40 miles and record in clocking the time for these unofficial tests at 89.5 miles, a rate of speed never before reached by a car of this classification.

How She Likes Her Linen Ear Care

BY ISRAEL KLEIN Science Editor, NEA Service

For drivers do it, yet it is important that the car be kept as clean under the hood as above it. The reason is simple. Dust of the road collects easily on the engine and is held there by the oil that seeps out of the crevices and catches any particles that come in its way.

This grime eventually finds its way into the engine, and then the trouble starts. The oil that lubricates the moving parts of a car has to be particularly clean. That is why we have oil filters and air cleaners to keep out the dust.

If particles of sand or bits of metal from the engine or chassis happen to get into the oil they scratch the finely polished surfaces of the pistons and cause rapid wear.

The space between moving parts of a car is little wider than a hair's breadth. Only pure oil should get in to lubricate the parts and keep them running smoothly.

Engineers who watched the oil film building itself up between two moving parts, have noticed its comparative slowness in doing so, and have seen it break as soon as the movement stopped.

Before and after the film of oil gets into the hair-breadth space there is metal-to-metal contact which wears down the surfaces.

The result of metal-to-metal contact, facing the engine, dirt in the oil, carelessness with the new car, loose pistons, loose bearings and a treacherous knock.

Oiling the car with the best oil suitable to it and keeping the car well lubricated, therefore, are essentials of good and pleasurable motoring.

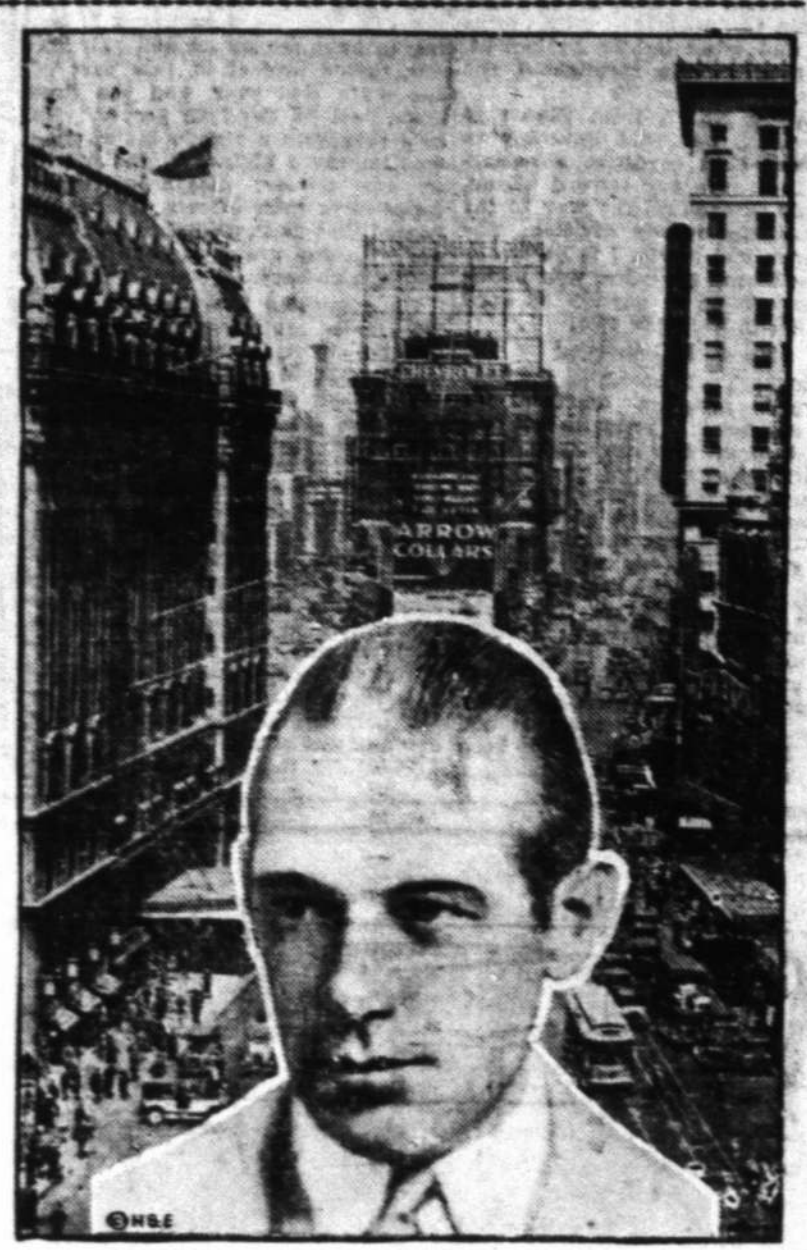

If there are oil and gas filters and an air cleaner on your car, see that they're cleaned out every once in a while, so they do not become clogged and ineffective.

Even with these, it is essential to renew the crankcase oil every 1000 miles or so.

RAIN DAY "DEADHEAD" GETTYSBURG, Pa.—Maurice McCullough, rural mail carrier from Gettysburg, carries and delivers every rainy day one of the heaviest parcels in the postal service, and Uncle Sam collects not a cent of postage for it. McCullough's "rainy day deadhead" is a big sack of gravel to spread over the smooth surface of a ledge that rock in the road. Before he begins carrying gravel on rainy days McCullough had to call on men of the neighborhood to push his mail truck across the rock.

KING LIKES EGG PLANT LONDON, (U. P.)—King George has shown a liking for fried egg plant, which is seemingly shared by others of the Royal family. Noticing an egg plant while visiting the Chelsea Flower Show with the Queen the other day, the King remarked: "Ah, an egg plant! They are very good. Cut them up in thin slices and fry them. We always have them."

They Say "Broadway Always Gets Its Man" But Gene Buck Got Broadway Instead

Broadway has seen its success formula squarely reversed by Gene Buck, song writer and theatrical producer, who sticks out on the "big street" without ever going near a night club.

BY GENE COHN NEA Service Writer NEW YORK, June 10.—There's an old tradition that Broadway, like the Canadian Mounted police, sooner or later gets its man.

To reach the Broadway peak, they say, one must "play the game," be a roamer, man-about-town, night clubber and all that. "Applesauce!" said Gene Buck, who made his bow as a big producer this season, but whose name for many a year before was one of the most familiar on the "big street."

Now Buck doesn't drink, he is practically unknown to the night clubs, he is modest and sentimental, he likes to be home with his wife and youngsters—in a word he reverses the traditional Broadway formula. And yet he is one of the most important figures on the "main stem."

The Psychology of It The trouble with a lot of the Broadway people is that they forget who they are," he commented, pleasantly drawing his words. "Now you take an actor; put him in a show where he plays a millionaire. He's a stage millionaire for four months and when he leaves the theater, he is a millionaire. That is, he thinks he is, and he tries to behave like one.

There are hundreds of them; I've seen them come and go. They go up like a skyrocket and make a big noise and get big money and their names are all over the street, and they forget that a skyrocket starts with being a stick in the ground with a little fuse paper around it. The old nose about how to beat Broadway is a lot of bunk. Oh, I know all about the Broadwayites, so called and actual. And playing several songs for unweaving hidden laughter. He wrote seven—seven Fables and almost as many Midnight Fables. Some have called him the "Broadway Columbus," for he has ever been a seeker for new talent to make the national chorus.

Those who peered among the bushes of Guinea in the white Indians of South America got no greater thrill out of their discoveries than does this same G. Buck. When he goes hunting in the wilds of the world for the new and the novel, he is a lot of eyes, talent just somewhere in the shuffle, in between, and needs merely to be found.

Finds Many Stars Thus he saw Will Rogers twirling his bass and feeling that all the world loves a cowboy and that Will was something new under the spotlight he grabbed him for the legitimate stage.

There was W. G. Fields, who had been doing his "Dumb" juggling act. Buck snatched him for music-hall and gave him his funny, racy, in a Chicago way, which Buck looked him over. Ukelele he was strumming four times a day in a Harlem theater and Eddie Cantor sold himself on one performance given with Buck as a solo act. And there were many many others, including Ed Wynn, one of the best of the clown.

Yet, in all Broadway I have never met a simpler, more genuine personality. Wise? Yes! Sophisticated? Yes! And with that Will might his eyesight was recovered and he came to this town to turn in on Tin Pan Alley. He started by drawing those fancy covers on sheet music. He had something like $12 in his pocket.

He had a quick ear for tunes and while he couldn't jot down music he could whistle and hum compositions and get someone else to put down the notes. And soon were appearing such successes as "Hello Frisco," "Blushing Rose," "Tulip Time" and a score of others written in collaboration with ex-employee from Victor Herbert to Misha Elman.

He soon found that this thing of "being yourself" went considerably better than pretension—a rule of conduct which other newcomers to Broadway well might apply.

He's an Explorer At any rate, when Buck had found out that Broadway was all about it, he moved into the Ziegfeld office and there, for many a year, he has been materially in "re-creating the American girl"—and, also, American comedy, for he has a

OAKLAND'S PLANT IS NOW COMPLETE

NEW MACHINERY WILL DOUBLE CAPACITY OF BUSY AUTO FACTORY

FONTANA, Mich., June 10.—The Oakland Motor Car Company completed the $2,000,000 improvement program recently launched to double its production, and is now building the Oakland six in a plant unsurpassed anywhere in the automotive industry.

The improvements instituted in the Oakland division were made possible by the transfer of Pontiac's machinery to the new Fontana division, which went into production a few weeks ago. All the Oakland machinery was removed temporarily, so that new floors and new concrete bases might be laid.

Rough Machinery Rebuilt Much of the Oakland machinery was completely rebuilt while those plant improvements were going on. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of new machinery was bought and installed. A motor conveyor assembly line of the same type as used in the Pontiac division, was laid out and constructed, along with the new shock test facilities, overhead conveyor systems and lights.

The interior of the Oakland division has been repainted throughout to improve the working conditions of its employees. This step, and the far more spacious quarters provided by a completely new plant, are expected to enhance the precision of manufacture for which Oakland already is famous. A feature of the improvement program was the scrapping of the line shaft power transmission system, and substitution of electrical unit driven machinery almost exclusively.

The improvements in the Oakland division involved movement of 750 individual machines, but it was accomplished in just two weeks time. The resultant plant rivals anything in the industry in point of systematic arrangement, working space, lighting and every other factor that contributes to the manufacture of high grade motor cars.

Victims Mourned, Survivors Warned

By NEA Service BOSTON, Mass., June 10.—Mourners with weeping families, friends and neighbors gathered today to bid adieu to the victims of the automobile accident which took place in the city of Boston last week.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle bordered town PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, LAK, who is concerned for the life of his beautiful cousin, LISE MARBERRY, owner of a fine plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY ARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak, who poses at times as a noble and at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, believes GAYLORD RENTISS, a cautious and formidable man, known to be an enemy of Elise, may be involved in some way in the deaths.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

Vilak saluted her amiably. "You'll look at the moon, Detto, Pasquale?" he queried.

"Si, si, Meister Davis," they chorused eagerly.

"But there is no moon," they looked at each other in bewilderment, then at Vilak, and grinned sheepishly.

"I don't desire to humiliate you, my charming cousin. But I must insist that in a pouring rain it seems a little more sensible that you keep on the coast."

the bizarre, exotic side of his nature had taken full possession.

The draperies were the most vivid his cousin's ample supplies afforded; the furniture was Spanish of the flamboyant type with heavy carving around all the edges; here a monster with a tiny body and a great howling head, there a fat-tailed devil reaching out his claws to rend unsuspecting victims.

For decoration he had set around the room the most grotesque and fantastic objects which his cousin had obtained from the neighboring tribes of Indians and which he had speedily claimed: green idols in the shape of dogs. Here a more strikingly carved into some semblance of a man's body showed undoubted African influence.

One of the rugs on the floor was of a brilliant Mexican pattern, the other an old Spanish weaver depicting two knights rescuing a gold-haired maiden from a many-turreted castle of the Moors. Near the window was a gold striped cot, bizarre decorations, yet by their very violence composing into a harmonious whole.

Here he stretched out, took his favorite pipe, a Philippine pipe carved in the shape of a clubbed hand, and filling it with the curious mixture he used in his cigarettes, began to smoke. The room soon filled with the pungent vapor; the air gave place to a purplish haze; the tiny lamp resting on a table seemed shining through a fog. For hours after he lay outstretched with the pipe at his lips. The thin film resembling a bird's inner eyelid began to draw over the lower corners of each eye again while the pupils dulled until they appeared the eyes of a mummy rather than a man; his swarthy skin became bloodless; his breath came stertorously through his open mouth.

A murky dawn began to streak the sky. He arose threw open the window to breathe great gusts of the morning air and began to make a tour of the house again. He had some around the flower banked sides and rear without seeing anything unusual and had begun to think that the grounds were exactly as they had been the night before, when on reaching the screened front of the building he saw something white fluttering on the frame of the door.

He drew nearer. It was a sheet of paper, pinned to the wood with a thin bladed dagger. He scanned it intently, then carefully removed the blade and, holding the paper in his hand, for a second time read the single sentence inscribed upon it. It was in Portuguese, written in a scrawled, uneven hand. "Walk no more in the moon and you shall lie forever in the sand."

Vilak thrust the dagger and the letter into his pocket. "Pleasant morning greeting," he muttered to himself. "Intended for Elise undoubtedly."

His eyes roamed quickly over the ground in front of the door and on the single wooden step which led to it. The step was covered with mud, and the soil so cushiony with water that his feet sank uncomfortably at every step. Yet as with the disappearance of the guns there was no the slightest trace of a foot print. He stood pondering a moment, stroking his long jaw with his thin, long nailed fingers, then took his horse and rode to the house down the road which he had pointed.

ed out to Nunnally the night before.

Here he stripped off his fashionable tailored garments, plunged naked into a nearby brook, put on the modest suit which he wore in the barber shop, ate frugally of some manna, filled a piece of steel for some minutes, then made his way to the town.

He spent the day in his usual duties, shaving now the Portuguese proprietor of a neighboring fazenda, now a bronzed trader on his way to sell glass necklaces and other atrocious jewelry to the Indians of the forest, now a young South American dandy who kept him busy for two hours with shampoo and massage.

He had just finished with the latter and was breathing a sigh of relief, when a rider whom he recognized as one of Elise's laborers drove up before the shop and, hastily dismounting, hurried inside. He gave the barber an envelope, "Señorita Marberry the say take it very fast," he mumbled. "The Señor Nunnally has sent it."

Vilak tore open the envelope. It contained a brief note which he read at a glance. "Come as quickly as you can without arousing suspicion. Something dreadful has happened. Elise needs you—Nunnally."

the users of the highways.

Facts Little Known "As I view the situation, one of the main reasons why this condition exists is because there are so few fundamental facts regarding this problem which are available to members of a legislature and of committees, who have such matters in charge. It is only in the last few years that state authorities have realized the economic importance of conducting highway traffic surveys as to learn the character and extent of highway use. The results of such surveys are conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads in cooperation with State highway departments furnish a basis for the formation of highway finance policies as well as for construction and maintenance programs which will bring about a more equitable and fairer distribution of highway costs and expenses among the various classes composing the public."

Explains His Stand "In stressing the need for better legislation, Prof. Trumbower made it clear that he was not arguing that fees and tax rates should be uniform throughout the country. He stated there is room for variation where local conditions are unequal and diverse but that such variations should be based on definite information as to what proportion of the total annual mileage of the average city owned motor vehicle is produced over city streets and over rural highways and similarly, there is little light shed on the problem as to what proportion of the total vehicle mileage produced over the rural highways is to be credited to city owned cars and to rural cars respectively."

Makes Suggestions "In suggesting steps to be taken toward a solution of the highway problem, Prof. Trumbower stated he believed the American Automobile Association and associated groups are in a position, through their large and varied membership to provide certain fundamental facts with reference to the character and extent of the use of motor vehicles, which will be of great help to the men who are studying these problems and the idea of working out certain concrete policies with respect to taxation and regulation."

"Every legislature which is called upon to consider these matters would be only too glad to have the benefit of such information," Prof. Trumbower stated. "The opportunity for raising these issues in the case of motor vehicle use are unlimited and any activity in that direction should receive the support of all groups of organized motorists."

Referring to the difficulties encountered by students of transportation problems, Prof. Trumbower said in conclusion:

"What we all need is more light on this subject and to the extent that the American Automobile As-
