The SDN Column

When new trends are established, Americans have a tendency to go overboard to follow them, and such was the case when home canning suddenly became so popular this year. This trend, of course, got a vigorous nudge from food prices. Everybody was interested in doing something to cut down on his feed bill, even if it meant spending extra money on something else, such as jars and lids.

At the same time, there were those who sent up warning signals about some of the pitfalls in home canning of fruits and vegetables. Improperly canned foods may lead to food poisoning, especially botulism, which can cause death, we were warned.

People who grew up in rural areas of yesteryear already knew this, of course. Also, they already knew the advantages of home canning, provided it is done up right.

Anyway, Virginia Knauer, the president's consumer expert, now advises, "Don't let botulism jar your canning." In other words, don't let occasional incidence of food poisoning in improperly processed foods keep you from going ahead with your home canning, provided, of course, you have something to can. Simply make certain that you do it right.

Home freezers have all but eliminated some of the dangers that seemed to be associated mostly with canned vegetables and low-acid fruits.

But many items still go best in jars, or cans, if you can find enough lids.

This brings us to the topic of black-eyed peas. This lowly product of the Deep South and the Great Southwest finally has received some recognition from the Associated Press. We have just received an aritcle, with photo and recipe included, about a tasty salad built around a bowl of black-eyed peas. Fran Farmer, who looks out for this type of information, grabbed it up and vowed that she would see that it is published in the SDN pronto, possibly even today.

Anyway, we regard it as progress that the black-eyed pea has attained a place in the national news. This simple legume has been a staple in the diet of many loyal Americans for many years. However, down in East Texas, it was not precisely the black-eyed pea that got most of the honors. Other varieties of the same family, such as the crowder pea, the clay pea, the purple hulled pea, the silver-skinned pea, the cream pea and many others had their own fans. All, of course, were closely related, but you could get into nearly as many arguments over the merits of different varieties of peas as you could over those of watermelons. And there were plenty who applauded the Tom Watson melon, but made light of such varieties as the Chairston Gray and the Black Diamond, and vice versa.

It was only recently that Frank X. Tolbert, the Dallas Morning News columnist, reported the results of some alleged research which indicated that great pea debates endure to this day. He said nutritional value of what are known to some as "field peas" had been determined and that, although the black-eye ranks high, it is the whippoorwill that heads the list. Lowest on the nutritional scale is the cream pea. But if you have black-eyes, go ahead and can or freeze them anyway. We can attest to the fact that they make a tasty dish, even in the dead of winter.—WACIL McNAIR

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, August 13, the 225th day of 1975. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1521, the Spanish conquerer, Hernande Cortez, captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

On this date:

In 1688, King William's War began when Indians attacked North Yarmouth, Mo.

In 1848, the American flag was first raised in Los Angeles.

In 1898, during the Spanish-American War, the Spanish surrendered the Philippine city of Manila to the Americans.

In 1937, the Japanese attacked Shanghai, China.

In 1961, Communist East Germany sealed of the border between East and West Berlin to halt the flight of refugees from East Germany.

In 1967, U.S. bombers pounding targets in North Vietnam struck a railway yard and highway bridge only 10 miles from the China border.

Ten years ago: Two thousand heavily armed National Guardsmen moved into Los Angeles to quell rioting in a black section of the city.

Five years ago: Consumer advocate Ralph Nader got $425,000 from General Motors in an out-of-court settlement of an invasion of privacy lawsuit.

One year ago: New fighting broke out between Turkish and Cypriot forces on Cyprus after a breakdown in peace talks in Geneva.

LINCOLN AND TRAVIS
School Offers Property To County, Foundation

Snyder School Trustees last night voted to offer surplus property to the Scurry County Industrial Foundation and to Scurry County.

The industrial foundation had asked for the building and grounds of the child development center (formerly the Lincoln School) and the county had asked for the Travis Junior High Property. The schools had advised earlier that these properties would not be needed by the school district after the 1974-75 term.

The board voted 4-1 to offer the Lincoln property to the industrial foundation for $1 and cost of fees involved in the transfer of title. The Snyder Child Day Care Center, which now uses a portion of that property, also had asked for it. The industrial foundation had indicated that the day care center could continue to use facilities there for the time being. Voting to offer the property to the industrial foundation were Max von Roeder, Bill Voss, Dillard Teal and Bill Clayton, and voting against it was Vera McSpadden.

The board voted unaminously to offer the Travis property to the county in exchange for some coliseum rental fees. Also, the schools would reserve the Travis gymnasium, which is expected to be needed for school use. The administration was instructed to negotiate with the county and seek an agreement covering coliseum rental fees for high school basketball games and graduation exercises.

The board adopted a revised school policy covering use of school facilities. This added the new student center at the high school to the list and established new fees. A janitorial fee of $20 will be charged any non-profit organization using school facilities for any event. Other organizations will be assessed fees as follows: High school auditorium, $75 for each program and $37.50 for each rehearsal; junior high auditorium, $37.50 for each program; high school gymnasium, $35 fee; junior high gymnasium, $25 fee; cafeteria, $20; high school student center, $75.

Salary regulations for school secretaries were approved. The secretaries will go on a state salary schedule for the first time and those now employed will be required to meet state certification requirements for the position they hold within a six-year period. This will require a total of 60 hours of college work. Hereafter, new employes must meet these requirements at the outset of their employment. This regulation was approved on a 4-1 vote, with Max von Roeder, Bill Voss, Vera McSpadden and Dillard Teal voting for it and Bill Clayton voting against it.

The Upper Colorado River Soil and Water Conservation District was granted use of school buses for a tour of the Deep Creek Watershed on Sept. 4, and Ted Crenwelge and Vera McSpadden were named delegate and alternate, respectively, to the Texas Association of School Boards Delegate Assembly scheduled for Sept. 27 at San Antonio.

Free lunch guidelines submitted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Texas Education Agency were approved. A special meeting of the board was set for Aug. 28 for final amendments to the 1974-75 budget. Three requests for student transfers were approved, two of them involving health situations and another involving transportation as well as a physical handicap.

Leaves of absence were granted two faculty members, Vanna L. Almond and Beverly Osborn.

The following personnel changes were approved:

Resignations- Ruth Donelson, fourth grade at North Elementary; Greg Nelson, speech therapist at Humble-Smith.

New Personnel- Billie Adams, fourth grade at North; Richard Bell, sixth grade at West; Alvin Bolton, CVAE at high school; Lynn Cooper, band at junior high; Sandra Johnson, sixth grade at North; Linda Joslin, special education at junior high; Beverly Robertson, secretary at high school; Roy J. Rosson, fifth grade at Northeast; Patsy Rainwater, girls PE and coach at high school; Kathie Sherman, resource teacher at Stanfield; Thomas Scannicchio,

Definition Of Farm Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roughly 16 to 20 per cent of the U.S. farm population disappeared today.

As "persons residing on farms," that is. And only as far as census statisticians are concerned.

An Agriculture Department spokesman said Tuesday that USDA and the Bureau of the Census have agreed now to define as a farm only farms that produce $1,000 or more a year in cash sales.

Officials said that decision chops off about one-half of one per cent of the dollars in cash receipts that make up U.S. farm income — but will siginificantly increase on paper the average farm income.

Up to 565,600 "old" farmers could be cut formally from the census rolls when the statisticians complete their work on the 1974 U.S. agricultural survey and publish the results this fall, under both old and new definitions.

"The purpose of the change is to better describe farming as it exists today," an internal background memorandum on the new definition said.

The memo added that the definition change will not adversely affect the "very small producers," whose crops still will be counted by production statisticians. "They will not lose eligibility in federal programs or be adversely affected in any other way."

The available statistics show that the number of farms with less than $2,500 in annual sales dropped from 1.85 million in 1960 to 707,000 last year and their sales fell from 5.8 per cent of the U.S. total to 0.9 per cent. They comprised 46.6 per cent of the total farms 15 years ago and 25 per cent last year.

By contrast farms with $100,000 in annual sales represented 0.6 per cent of the total number in 1960 and 17.3 per cent of the cash receipts. By last year, those large farms comprised 4.1 per cent of the farm population and took in 47.4 per cent of the cash.

County School Budget Is Set

The county school board Tuesday set its budget for 1975-76 at $4,720 after abolishing the salary for the county school superintendent.

Legally, the county school superintendent's office cannot be closed until Jan. 1, 1979. However, Roy Carter, who recently was elected superintendent, will not draw a salary. The $4,720 budget includes a salary of $4,200 (or $350 a month) for the assistant superintendent, or secretary, plus expenses of maintaining the office. The assistant superintendent is Mrs. Eddie Jo Richardson.

The budget for 1973-74 was $23,530.94—the last year that a superintendent drew a full salary for a year's work. The budget for 1974-75 was about $15,500.

The meeting was presided over by Carter. Board members present were Marvin Hanson, Jr., Perry Echols, Bob Bell and Blake Walker.

Peron Faces New Rift In Military

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron faced a fresh challenge today as reliable military sources reported a split in the armed forces over her appointment of an army colonel to the key interior ministry.

The sources said late Tuesday that some armed forces leaders are concerned that the appointment of Col. Vicente Damasco might give the appearance of military interference with the executive branch.

Military spokesmen said army commander Gen. Alberto Numa Laplane has convened a meeting of top-level army chiefs for Thursday to review the "general situation" in the country. Sources said Damasco's appointment would be high on the agenda, and there may be a move to press for Damasco's retirement from the army.

Sources also said several top navy commanders held a meeting late Tuesday to discuss the situation in view of the cabinet reshuffle. No details were given.

Mrs. Peron reshuffled her cabinet Monday after the military, labor and business demanded a stronger administration to cope with Argentina's economic and political crisis. The country is plagued with 177.3 per cent inflation and unemployment nearing 10 per cent.

Damasco is the first military man appointed to the 13-month-old government of Mrs. Peron, and some local newspapers have already labeled him the president's "prime minister."

The unofficial title was last pinned to Jose Lopez Rega, Mrs. Peron's sacked personal secretary and welfare minister who is now in Spain.

Damasco did not comment on the reported military reaction to his appointment, but he denied he was a prime minister. "Such a post does not exist in the cabinet," he told reporters.

Five ministers were replaced in the cabinet shakeup — the third in less than a month. The Argentine ambassador to the European Common Market was recalled by Mrs. Peron and was expected to arrive here today to become the new economy minister.

Meanwhile, police announced that at least 64 suspected members of the left-wing Montoneros guerrilla group had been captured in raids in Cordoba, Mendoza and La Plata in the past 48 hours

Lone Star Workers On Strike

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas and Fort Worth members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union have struck the Lone Star Gas Co., claiming in part that the company is disciplining its employes in violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

The union had been working under an expired contract.

Dallas union president J.R. Byrd said Tuesday, "Contrary to what the company is putting out, we're not on strike in Dallas because of an economic issue. We're on strike because of an unfair labor dispute."

He said the strike in Fort Worth is "strictly an economic issue."

Lone Star spokesman Warren Fulks would not comment on Byrd's charges but said full service would be offered to customers during the strike.

The union has 340 members in Dallas and 220 in Fort Worth. The Dallas contract expired May 1 and the Fort Worth pact July 31.

Byrd said the union filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board after an employe was summoned for disciplinary action and a union representative was not notified. A similar incident occurred Friday, he said.

The union is seeking an 11 per cent wage increase for one year and a cost of living adjustment after nine months, Byrd said. He said the company has offered a two-year contract with an 8 per cent wage increase the first year and a 6 per cent hike the second year.

Khmer Rouge Strongman Is Apparently Displaced

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Khmer Rouge strongman Khieu Samphan has apparently been displaced in a reshuffle of the new Cambodian regime's top leadership, according to an announcement today over Phnom Penh radio.

Meanwhile, Thailand recalled its ambassador to Laos in protest against the Vientiane government's detention of two Thai military attaches for more than a week without official charges.

In the first leadership appointments disclosed since the fall of the U.S.-backed regime April 17, Phnom Penh radio said Ieng Sary was appointed first vice premier in charge of foreign affairs, with Son Sen named vice premier in charge of defense and minister attached to the prime minister's office. The two appointments were approved by Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Premier Penn Nouth, the radio said.

The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, made no mention of Khieu Samphan, defense minister and deputy premier to the aging Penn Nouth, or of Foreign Minister Sarin Chhak.

There have been persistent rumors in recent months that Khieu Samphan was in political trouble, under house arrest or dead. Sarin Chhak is believed to have been distrusted by other Cambodian leaders.

The Thai ambassador to Laos, Sawet Komolputi, went immediately into a special meeting with Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj and Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan on his return from Vientiane. Members of the National Security Council also attended.

A Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman said the ambassador was recalled "to protest the Laotian action in arresting our diplomats and he will be here until the issue is settled."

Laotian police arrested Lt. Col. Lert Peungputr and Maj. Prasert Thongpiew on Aug. 5 and accused them of engaging in "espionage and sabotage." Thailand denied the charges and retaliated by expelling two Laotian diplomats.

In other developments:

—In Laos, the Vientiane Post published a police report claiming that Rosemary Conway, released two days ago after spending two months in jail, worked for the Central Intelligence Agency and tried to persuade Lao pilots to fly their planes to Thailand. U.S. officials have denied that Miss Conway, 36, of Chicago, was a CIA agent.

—Saigon Liberation Radio criticized the U.S. veto of North and South Vietnam's application for United Nations membership and called on Washington to implement the article in the Paris peace agreement "stipulating the U.S. has to take responsibility to heal the wounds of war in South Vietnam."

—The third group of 297 Vietnamese refugees left Kuala Lumpur by a chartered Air Siam flight for Camp Pendleton, Calif., a U.S. Embassy spokesman said in the Malaysian capital. The first group of 134 refugees left on July 29 while 244 others left two days later. Both groups went to Guam.

'Lab' Errand Irks Squeamish Neighbor

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious.

This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens up and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later.

I said no flat out.

The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S URINE, NOT MINE

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request—unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

DEAR ABBY: Joe, a guy I bowl with, told me that he just came back from Las Vegas where he had been the best man at three weddings. (I'll call the bridegroom "Paul."

Joe said that Paul first married a girl who was visibly pregnant just to give her baby a name. Immediately after they were married, Paul divorced her.

Then Paul went back to the chapel and married Girl No. 2 for the same reason. As soon as they were married, Paul divorced her, too.

Paul said the divorces had been set up in advance.

Then, they went back to the chapel, and Paul married the girl he was really in love with. (Joe said the third one didn't look pregnant.)

How about blood tests and waiting periods? Personally, I think this so-called "best man" is full of baloney, but he swears this actually happened.

Is this possible?

DOUBTING THOMAS

DEAR TOM: It's possible. Blood tests and waiting periods are not required in Nevada. I am informed that divorces are final when granted and the parties are free to marry immediately.

DEAR ABBY: The nursing problems of 1880 caught my eye because I was a graduate nurse in 1908.

In training we received $8 per month for four years. We worked 10 hours a day, six days a week, and did all the cleaning. Three months every year, we worked in the TB ward.

Later, on private cases, we were allowed to charge only $25 a week. On contagious cases, we cooked all the patient's meals in the family kitchen, but many times, all I got to eat was one bowl of milk and bread.

On private cases we worked 20 hours a day and usually left the case after three weeks feeling exhausted and very hungry.

Today, nursing is a ball.

NORA J.

DEAR NORA: The low pay, long hours and drudgery of nursing in the early 1900s may make today's nursing look easy. But the academic and professional requirements for an R.N. these days are no "ball." And the competition, tensions and living costs that face the modern nurse don't make her work or her life a "ball," either.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Californian's Name Cleared

By KEVIN McKENNA
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ain't nobody gonna come get me no more," a joyful William DePalma told his tearful daughters as they stood on the steps of the federal courthouse, their ordeal finally over.

His hair is grey and his face is wrinkled after an eight-year legal battle to clear his name of bank robbery charges — a battle that was fought for more than two years from a cell at McNeil Island Federal Prison.

On Tuesday DePalma agreed to an out-of-court settlement in two suits for $750,000, believed to be the biggest award ever in a civil rights or wrongful imprisonment suit.

DePalma, 37, was eventually exonerated after his 1973 parole, when the fingerprints used as evidence in his trial were found to have been forged. The Whittier catering truck driver then sued the City of Buena Park and the fingerprint specialist who testified against him.

He filed a $5.3 million federal suit against a Buena Park policeman — who has since been removed from the force in an unrelated case of falsifying evidence — and a separate civil suit against the city.

The suits were set to go to trial Tuesday when the settlement was announced. DePalma said he believed he would have received a larger settlement had he pursued the legal action further. "But my wife and children had gone through literally eight years of hell, and I thought money or no money it was time to stop it," he said.

DePalma was sentenced in 1968 to 15 years in prison for the armed robbery of $2,400 from a Buena Park savings and loan office, despite the testimony of more than a dozen witnesses that he was 15 miles away at the time.

The key evidence in the case was a set of fingerprints from the office's counter, purportedly those of DePalma. After appeals went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, he entered prison in August 1971.

Finally, two months after his December 1973 parole, it was proved by John Bond, a private investigator hired by DePalma, that the fingerprints had been forged by Buena Park policeman James Bakken.

DePalma said he can't forget the nightmare the last eight years have been.

"There's no way they could pay me back for what I went through," he said outside the U.S. Courthouse.

Bell Predicts Worse Service

DALLAS (AP) — The head of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Texas says the reduction in the company's proposed intrastate rate hikes will mean a reduction in the quality of service.

Charles Marshall said Tuesday the decrease in service in the coming years will be the result of a readjustment of the company's projects for upgrading its facilities and installations because of the drop of expected revenues.

Marshall said the company had counted heavily on the $45 million annual increase in rates it had proposed last March. The increase was challenged in court by Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Bell announced in Austin last week it had agreed to a reduction of its proposed rate hike that will mean a loss of nearly $50 million in expected revenues through March 1977.

The company said last March that it needed the additional revenue to carry out an annual expansion and improvement program estimated at more than $700 million.

Marshall said some of the reductions in the quality of service could include a slower dial tone and the elimination of additions to basic exchange switching systems for residences and businesses.

"We don't like the thought of cutting back on any of these projects," Marshall said, "and we intend to try our very best to minimize the impact. But it would be impossible to say there won't be some effect. Some of the results inevitably will be service-affecting."

Marshall said the effects will be felt more in the next few years because the loss in revenue will make it hard for the company to prepare for its long-range needs.

Marshall said his office is trying to determine the best method of adjusting customer bills now that a new rate is in effect. Some customers were charged the higher rate while Hill was fighting the increase in court.

The adjustments will run about $2 million, Marshall said.

"One of the reasons we had excellent telephone service traditionally in Texas is because we earned well," Marshall said. "This enabled us to do solid long-range planning, made it unnecessary to cut corners in equipment and construction and gave us managerial options that enabled us to run a better business."

Tech History Due Sept. 1

LUBBOCK— An unsponsored history of Texas Tech University during its first 50 years, "Evolution of a University," written and edited by Drs. Jane Gilmore Rushing and Kline A. Nall, is scheduled for release by Madrona Press of Austin Sept. 1.

The publication date coincides with the culimination of the observance of the 50th anniversary of Texas Tech, Kline said.

The $9.95 volume relates the history from the university's birth which "had come from a political storm that involved a governor's impeachment, the Ku Klux Klan, and the hopes of West Texans for an institution of higher learning," the publisher said.

It narrates the history of the institution through today when "it is a far cry from the regional school to which farm boys bent on studying agriculture brought milk cows from home to help them pay their way."

"From much of its struggle, the institution has emerged victorious. What it becomes in the future, the authors postulate, will depend on what the people are, and what their leaders prevail upon the state government to bestow," the jacket concludes.

The authors, the publisher says, "too frank in their apprasial to win official sponsorship, show themselves to be neither unloving critics nor uncritical lovers."

Rushing and Kline offer a drama of Texas Tech's growth from a regional institution to a "multipurpose" university geared to serving the ultrasophisticated needs of the modern age—from a few scattered buildings to a university complex with law and medical schools serving more than 22,000 students.

The narrative develops the administrations of the various presidents, the educational philosophy of each, how they met the demands of board members, and how they faced the mounting academic challenges.

"Former students will find in the book a call to nostalgia," the jacket says, "but the authors, in their examination of Tech's past and comtemplation of its future, offer a message also for parents, educators, and political leaders across the country."

Dr. Rushing, who holds B.A., M.A., and Ph.D degrees in journalism and English from Texas Tech, is the author of four published novels. Now a free-lance writer, she also has done newspaper work at Abilene and Snyder and teaching at Texas Tech and the University of Tennessee. Her husband, Dr. James A. Rushing, is an assistant professor of English at Texas Tech.

Dr. Nall, a professor of English at Texas Tech, earned both B.A. and M.A. degrees from Texas Tech and a Ph.D in English at the University of Texas, Austin. He has been a member of the Tech faculty since 1944. He is the author of a text, "Technical Writing," and of numerous articles in scholarly journals.

13 Is Unlucky For Defendant

Thirteen is an unlucky number for Ernest James.

Thirteen minutes is how long a 4-man, 2-woman jury deliberated in county court yesterday before bringing in a guilty verdict against James. County Judge Preston Wilson set the punishment at one year in prison and a $500 fine plus court costs.

James had pleaded innocent to a charge of unlawful sale of beer in a dry area. He was arrested May 20 by City Police.

The case was prosecuted by county attorney George Killam. Dick Webb was attorney for the defendent. The state called three witnesses, and the defendeant called two.

Burglars Take Cash From Firm

Cardin's First Collection Of Children's Wear Is Shown

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Couture clothes are fast moving from martini sippers to milk and cookie crunchers. The wee folk now have their very own collection from Pierre Cardin.

Plump and bouncy tiny tots and not-so-plump older youngsters paraded around a bubbly pool in a fashionable East Side resturant Tuesday to show the French designer's first collection of children's wear.

The fashions remarkably did not end up in the water, despite a few slips of a few little toes.

Ranging from $8 for swimming suits to more than $70 for long party dresses, the collection combined Cardin's simple, clean lines with bursts of happy bright colors in knits, denims, suedes and easy-care fabrics.

"Fashion is for all ages," Cardin said. "More and more younger people, including children, understand and appreciate fashion as an expression of a way of life."

The boys and girls in Tuesday's show seemed to agree with the designer, as they flaunted a variety of sportswear, school wear, and party clothes in the most coquettish ways.

For toddlers, Cardin showed a one-piece white, red and blue knit jumpsuit with removable crotch for easy diaper change. A two-piece purple, green and blue knit ensemble was worn with bright purple and yellow booties, the Cardin signature logo appearing on the soles.

Toddlers' sizes range from 2T to 4T.

Cardin's classic raincoat in the khaki color is for both sexes. So are many of his leisure suits, such as the white, raw muslin pants suit and the two-tone denim panel outfit. The leisure suits are priced from $28.

A French country schoolgirl dress and the classic navy blue pleated dress for girls highlighted the school wear. For boys, a cable coat sweater and the pocket treatment in a beige relax suit were shown.

Much imagination was used for the brightly colored "cut-up" pants — panels of green, yellow, red and blue, cut on the diagonal at various parts of the leg. They were worn with T-shirts and polo shirts, which were priced from $10.

Long dresses in peachy pink and dusty green with silver undertones had lace at the hem and bodice and big streamers tied behind. The commentator said that they were the types of dresses "you can wear to mommy's wedding."

Frankenstein Novel Is Entertaining

THE CROSS OF FRANKENSTEIN. By Robert J. Myers. Lippincott. 208 Pages. $6.95.

What Nicholas Meyer did for Sherlock Holmes in "The Seven-Per-Cent Solution," Robert J. Myers does for Frankenstein and his Monster in "The Cross of Frankenstein," and while he doesn't succeed quite as well as Meyer in further detailing the adventures of a literary legend he does succeed in producing an engaging spoof.

Picking up the Gothic tale of a brilliant doctor's monomaniacal, and successful, drive to create life a few years after the point where the original Mary Shelley story left off, Myers introduces young Victor Saville as he discovers that his surname is not Saville but Frankenstein and that he is in reality the son of the late creator of the Monster.

Presented with a packet of his father's letters, Victor becomes obsessed with tracking down his dad's notebooks, which contain the secrets of creating life. His wish is not to be granted, however, until a few years after finishing medical school and in practice he is visited by a stranger from America who wants him to create a strange kind of "blood." Reading the formula, Victor realizes that the "blood" could only be for the Monster and that the creature is not dead as thought.

When Victor balks, he is kidnaped to America and taken to the Monster, holed up in the wilds of Virginia where he is worshiped by a strange religious sect whose dead he has promised to bring back to life. Victor's efforts to foil this plot of a takeover by the walking dead as well as to kill the seemingly unkillable Monster make up the bulk of the rest of this entertaining novel.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Did you ever wonder how so many streambanks became lined with willow trees?

For many years, it was traditional for fishermen to poke willow cuttings into moist streambanks where they quickly rooted, took hold and helped solve erosion problems, especially on smaller streams.

The New York State Department of Conservation wishes fishermen would resume the practice, explaining that the dense mat of roots formed by willows can help stabilize an eroding streambank. The fast-growing branches help shade the stream and keep it cool. And branches harbor insects that fall into the water to provide food for fish.

Many trout streams, according to the department's Paul M. Kelsey, warm up to a point where they are marginal during the summer, partly because they run through open, sun-baked farmland grazed down to the waterline.

Not all willows are satisfactory for planting. Kelsey advises avoiding trees that grow more than 20 feet tall, such as the black willow. Low, limber willows that will bend before the ice and current of early spring high water are advised. These include the common pussy willow, basket willow and purple osier willow.

Fresh half-inch-thick cuttings of the previous year's growth will do better than thin whips. They should be long enough to be forced deeply into the mud and have the cut end below the summer water level.

Damage to the bark in shoving the cuttings into the ground may prevent food growth. Kelsey suggests making a hole with an iron bar and dropping the cutting into it, then pressing the ground with your foot to drive out the air.

Sometimes, Kelsey related, several cuttings or a small bundle of cuttings are placed in a hole to insure that at least one will take root.

For best results, plant in early spring — and where cattle can't eat the leaves.

Plants and Sex

A Penn State chemist suggests that plants may control mating in insects by supplying the chemicals insects use as sex lures.

Some scientists figure that insect sex lures, termed pheromones, are made only by the insects themselves. But Dr. Lawrence B. Hendry of Penn State contends the chemicals are present in the plants on which the insects feed.

Hendry suggests that female insects may simply accumulate chemicals as they feed on the plants in their larval stage. The males, he explains, learn which chemicals to seek from the odor present in their cocoon or in their earliest food, then forever chase that scent. He labels this "imprinting," but adds that probably not all sex lures are simply collected and stored from plants. In some species, he says, the plant chemicals may serve as essential "starters" for the insect's own internal manufacturing system.

Here's Hendry's idea for a control program based on spraying an infested field with some relatively inexpensive chemical that the insect larvae of both sexes would eat and then use as a sex lure:

As they ate the chemical along with the plants, the females would store it and the males would imprint it. Soon, when the insects became adults, the same chemical could be sprayed again in the field to serve as a confusant — introducing such a surfeit of sexual scent that the males would not be able to find females. Normal mating would not occur and the insect population would decrease rapidly. He also suggests that scientists may be able to manipulate plant resistance to insects by changing the attractants plants have available.

TODAY'S TREASURES

Couple intrigued by old newspapers

By Jean Barnes

"We had a chance to pick up some old newspapers and said, 'Hey, this is fantastic. Why hasn't this been done before."

With these words, Ann and John W. Beach, Wichita, Kan., embarked on the ambitious project of assembling the largest collection of newspapers to be found.

That was a scant two years ago and now their collection is so extensive that it is being stored in vaults of an underground salt mine in their state.

Ann commented on the amount of space it takes to store and display a collection of newspapers and feels this one factor that tends to limit the collector.

"Storage of our total collection (271,000 newspapers) would take about 1,850 square feet stacked ceiling height."

These are not reproductions and the bulk of the papers date between the late 17th and late 19th centuries. She pointed out that although the Bicentennial commemorates the year of 1776 the peace treaty was not signed until 1783 and "we have the complete volumes of the London Chronicle for the full year of 1782 and the first half of 1783."

These were part of package which proved to be their richest find. When Harvard and Columbia Universities completed microfilming their extensive and priceless collections of newspapers there was no reason to keep the bound volumes which require a great deal of space. They were sold to the Beaches and a great store of American History passed into their possession.

A scrutiny of these early volumes reveals that King George III was really a pretty good king (as kings go), British merchants were pro-colonists and wanted their trad and that the Americans used a new type of warfare (guerilla tactics). Some papers bear the hateful tax stamp.

Then there are volumes that tell of the dreadful slaughter in the Civil War battles, political contests and the everyday, commonplace happening. They have every day represented between 1857 and 1941. All combined as a fairly objective historical record.

Their record is particularly appreciated by their eldest son who is studving for his doctorate in Economic History at the University of Missouri. Ann and John, both advertising executives, have a combined family of seven children, four still living at home.

They feel an obligation to see that their collection is used to its best advantage. Although they are making plans to market part of the colleciton through a family-owned business called Colonial American Galleries, they would like to see the newspapers used as historical reference materials, Ann said.

"We can spend hours just reading and laughing...you get so personally involved that you really don't want to sell them."

TomatoPeelings Study Funded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tomato peelings and their potential as human food are receiving the federal government's attention and $280,000 of its money.

The government is contributing the funds to a two-year "commercial feasability" study aimed at finding out if processors can convert the normally discarded peelings into food for humans.

Nearly 80 per cent of the tomatoes for processing are grown in California and about 130,000 tons of peels are produced annually.

Disposal, which requires special handling, costs $1 million per year, the Agricuiture Department said Tuesday. "Half of this peel material might be used as food, with a value of nearly $3 million annually," it said.

Officials said evaluations will be made of methods for recovering tomato material from peeling waste which results from a practice of dipping tomatoes in a hot lye solution so that the peels can be removed easily.

The department said that $80,000 will come from its research funds and $200,000 from the Environmental Protection Agency.

This Blackeye Pea Recipe Is Popular In Italy And U.S.

INTERESTINGSALAD—Madewithfreshfrozen blackeye peas, it's a great accompaniment for sliced poultry or meat.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When Tony Luccio, born and bred in Benezento, a small town in southern Italy, came to live in New Jersey almost a dozen years ago he was surprised to find that the families he visited near his new home never served fresh blackeye peas. Called fagioli all' occhio in Italian, Tony's mother had made various dishes with them and he had grown up relishing them.

It wasn't until much later when he met a neighbor, a good cook from Georgia, that Tony discovered blackeye peas are used in some of the great dishes of our southern states. One day his neighbor treated him to a blackeye pea salad and, as he says, "It tasted just like the one we used to have in Benezento." He was interested to know that the fresh frozen blackeye peas used in the salad are now available all over the U.S.A. and are beginning to be highly esteemed in every part of our country.

If you'd like to try the delightful salad appreciated in both southern Italy and Georgia, here's the recipe. It's great to serve at any time of the year with sliced meat (cold or hot), hamburgers or frankfurters. It's also a fine accompaniment for chilled poached fish steaks or pan-fried whole fish, fillets or steaks. Good, too, with scrambled eggs and bacon or ham for a weekend brunch or Sunday night supper.

BLACKEYE PEA SALAD
Two 10-ounce packages frozen blackeye peas
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup cup olive or other salad oil
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground hot red pepper
½ cup thinly sliced scallion, part of the green tops included
½ cup slivered green pepper
Garnish: Skinned, seeded and coarsely diced tomato and, if desired, lettuce or other salad greens

Cook the blackeye peas according to package directions; drain and cool. Stir in vinegar; add oil, salt, mustard, sugar and red pepper and mix thoroughly. Add scallion and green pepper and mix lightly. Cover and chill.

At serving time turn the salad into a serving bowl; ring the outside edge with the tomato — it makes a colorful contrast to the blackeye peas and its flavor goes well with them. If lettuce is used, line the serving bowl with it before adding the blackeye peas and the tomato.

Makes 6 servings (each about ¾ cup excluding the garnish).

Note: If you have fresh tarragon growing in your garden, on your patio or a window sill, it will make an interesting addition to this salad — mince some of it and add enough to suit your own taste. Or if dried tarragon leaves are on your spice shelf, add a teaspoon of them (crushed) to the salad.

John Walker Sets New Mile Record

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — John Walker runs in nobody's shadow anymore.

After two years of chasing Filbert Bayi, Walker put it all together in what he described as "a perfect race" and shattered one of sport's most revered records, running the mile in 3 minutes, 49.4 seconds at the Goteborg Games international track and field meet Tuesday night.

"I feel extremely happy — I still can't believe I've broken the record," said Walker, a 23-year-old New Zealander who burst onto the international track scene just two years ago.

"I didn't believe I had a chance. I've been thinking it over and over the last few days — how to run, how to beat it (the record). Now I feel I couldn't have run a more perfect race."

Running under ideal conditions, Walker took the lead on the third lap and sped away from the field to become the first man in history to break 3:50 for the mile. He shaved 1.6 seconds off the world record of 3:51.0, set by Bayi in Kingston, Jamaica May 17. The record came before a crowd estimated at 9,000 at Slottskogsvallen Stadium.

Walker, the only truly top-flight miler in the field, finished nearly six seconds ahead of Ken Hall of Australia, who was clocked in 3:55.2. Graeme Crouch of Australia placed third in 3:56.4 and Gunnar Ekman of Sweden was fourth in 4:01.5. The temperature was 77 degrees when the race began, at 7:50 p.m. local time.

Walker credited Swedish runner Goran Savemark with helping to set up the record run. "He kept exactly the speed I wanted the first 800 meters," Walker said.

Walker was timed in 56.3 seconds for 440 yards and 1:55.5 for 880 as he bided his time behind Savemark. He surged to the front in the third lap, followed by Hall and Crouch, and increased his lead steadily. On the fourth lap he let it all out.

"I tried to follow Walker when he surged into the lead but I couldn't," said Hall. "He's the best middle distance runner in the world."

Walker's time at the end of 1,200 meters (1,312 yards) was 2:53.5 and he ran the last lap in less than 56 seconds.

Walker first achieved notice when he finished second to Bayi in the 1,500 meters at the 1974 Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, New Zealand. Bayi set a world record for the metric mile of 3:32.2 in that race, in which — as usual — he led all the way. Walker started his finishing kick too late to catch Bayi and came in second in 3:32.5.

Since then Walker has established himself as an outstanding middle distance runner, but when it came to the mile there was always the dominating presence of Bayi. Walker was ranked No. 1 in the world in 1974 by Track and Field News, but that was before Bayi ran his record mile. And three times this year, Walker finished second to Bayi.

He says he now has two goals: to beat Bayi, and to break the record for 1,500 meters. He has no doubts about either.

"If he faces me, I am quite confident I can beat him — as well as his record," Walker said. "I have a good chance, under present conditions, to do better than 3:32.2. Now I know I can stand a tough pace. Next time I won't permit Bayi to disappear after the start."

Orantes In Second Round

TORONTO (AP) — Fiery Spaniard Manuel Orantes, fresh from his title triumph over Wimbledon Champion Arthur Ashe Monday in the U.S. Clay Court Championships, has advanced to the second round of the Canadian Open Tennis Championships.

Orantes again found himself on his favorite playing surface Tuesday night, utilizing the soft Canadian clay to blitz Marcelo Lara of Mexico 6-2, 6-4.

In other first-round matches, fourth-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania coasted past Patrice Dominguez of France 6-1, 6-4, and John Alexander of Australia defeated Belas Prajoux of Chile, 6-3, 6-4.

Top-seeded Margaret Court of Australia whipped Jane O'Hara of Toronto, 6-0, 6-2, in women's singles action Tuesday night, while third-seeded Marcie Louie of the United States topped Susan Mehembedbasich of the United States 3-6, 7-6, 6-1.

Meanwhile, top-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. beat Jack Gorsch of St. Louis 6-1, 6-3 in the opening round of the $50,000 Buckeye Tennis Championships in Columbus, Ohio, and second-seeded Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif., ousted Fred McNair of Chevy Chase, Md., 7-6, 6-3.

No. 3 seed Karl Meiler of Germany also advanced, defeating Mark Farrell of Great Britain 6-4, 6-3.

Pokes Hold Scrimmage

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys regulars and rookies staged a short scrimmage Tuesday in preparation for their National Football League game Monday with the Kansas City Chiefs, and defensive Coach Gene Stallings said they looked "pretty good."

Second-year wide receiver Bill Houston of Jackson State and third-year running back Les Strayhorn of East Carolina scored touchdowns during the scrimmage.

Stallings praised Danny Kepley, a free agent linebacker from East Carolina, and Rollie Woolsey, a sixth round draft choice from Boise State looking for a job as a cornerback.

Wosley intercepted a pass by Jim Zern, free agent quarterback from California Poly. Zern threw a touchown pass to Houston.

Strayhorn scored on a 30-yard run.

Old Pro Faces Up To Reality

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Ralph Baker has been to the top of the pro football world. He has been a member of the New York Jets for more than one-third of his life. An 11-year veteran, Baker has known the glory of Super Bowl triumph.

Today Baker is preparing to go to work in sales for an acoustical contractor.

Cut by the Jets this week to make way for younger, stronger bodies, the 32-year-old Baker faced up to reality last night and announced his retirement from football.

"This is certainly a sad day, but you know it has to come to everybody," Baker said. "I knew I didn't figure in their plans. But I felt I was insurance — in case some of the young linebackers fouled up."

Placed on waivers Monday, Baker had hoped against hope that some other team might be interested in a linebacker with his experience.

"They put me on waivers before training camp started, and a few teams were interested," he said. "So the club tried to make a trade, but they told me they couldn't.

"I think the only club that would be interested in me now would be one in a desperate situation for linebackers. I can only hope — but I don't like my chances."

At 4 p.m. Tuesday, Baker cleared waivers. There were no takers — except for the acoustical contractor.

Most of the other players dropped this week, as the 26 National Football League teams trimmed their rosters to 60, were not as fortunate. Although there were a few veterans among those placed on waivers, the vast majority were rookies and free agents who will never get that taste of Sunday glory.

A number of trades were made as coaches jockeyed for position, dealing a player not likely to make the team for one who might, or for that well known "future draft choice."

The Pittsburgh Steelers, for example, were well stocked in running backs, so they dealt Steve Davis to the New York Jets for a draft choice. The New York Giants, with a bevy of linebackers, shipped Henry Reed to Denver for defensive tackle Greg Marx. The Washington Redskins sent tight end Mike Hancock to Buffalo for a draft choice.

Among veterans to be placed on waivers were wide receiver Al Barnes, by New Orleans; cornerback Alvin Wyatt, by Washington; punter Tom McNeill, by Atlanta, and offensive tackle Randy Jackson and defensive tackle Don Hultz, by Chicago.

The Detroit Lions said Guy Dennis, expected to be a starter at either center or guard, and reserve defensive tackle Jerry Patton had quit the team, and the Chicago Bears announced that cornerback Joe Taylor was "physically unable to perform."

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, made a move in the other direction. Looking for some depth at wide receiver, the Dolphins signed eight-year veteran Al Dodd, cut recently by Atlanta. Dodd's best year was 1969, when he caught 33 passes for 690 yards for New Orleans.

Cardinals Trim Roster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two more cuts were to be announced today by the St. Louis Cardinals, trimming their National Football League preseason roster to the required limit of 60 players.

Unannounced by the club Tuesday at the cutdown deadline were the names of two players cut from the roster for whom trade possibilities existed.

Earlier Tuesday, the Cards trimmed four players from the roster including second-year defensive back Scott Stringer and quarterback hopeful Bill Donckers.

The others removed from the roster were Charles Cantrell, a guard and Carl Swierc, a wide receiver.

Kheel Defends Owners

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney Theodore Kheel turned and faced the representatives of the National Football League's Players Association. His eyes narrowed.

"Ed Garvey," he began, "could not have negotiated $450,000-a-year for two years for Joe Namath. And that's why the players won't let the union bargain for salaries."

Garvey, Executive Director of the NFLPA, smied thinly and shook his head. The players union had presented its opening statements to the National Labor Relations Board hearing on charges of unfair labor practices lodged against the National Football League teams. Kheel, representing the defendants, responded.

Included in the complaint is a charge that the league withheld from the union certain information which the NFLPA claims it needed for negotiating a collective bargaining agreement. Part of that information is the contract of each and every NFL player.

When NLRB Chief Judge Charles E. Schneider asked why the players association felt it needed such information, he was told by attorney Thomas Trunkes, representing the union, that the material was required so the NFLPA could police its wage minimums and negotiate new minimums in subsequent contracts.

That's when Kheel made his point about Namath's contract.

"The union came to us and said it did not want to bargain salaries collectivly, only wage minimums," Kheel said.

But the NFLPA wants to see another contract as well. The association has asked for a look at Commissioner Pete Rozelle's pact, claiming that its terms could preclude the commissioner's current role as sole arbitrator of disputes between individual clubs and players.

Tigers Lose 17th Straight

The Detroit Tigers, down so long they can't remember up, have not lost heart.

"They're playing hard," said Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. "They're playing like they're going down the stretch for a pennant. They're not going through the motions. They're hustling."

The Tigers lost their 17th straight game Tuesday night, bowing to the Rangers 4-3. Texas scored four times in the first inning and the Tigers spent the rest of the night trying to catch up.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City beat Baltimore 4-2 in 10 innings, Boston whipped California 8-2, New York downed Oakland 7-2, Cleveland trimmed Chicago 6-3 and Milwaukee beat Minnesota 7-4.

The Tigers' latest loss brings them within three games of tying the American League record for futility and within seven of the major league mark. They did get on the scoreboard Tuesday night, however, snapping a 31-inning drought in the third inning when Aurelio Rodriguez tripled and came in on Tom Veryzer's single. Rodriguez leaped on the plate as the crowd cheered wildly.

Ron LeFlore and Dan Meyer drove in runs with sacrifice flies in the seventh for the other Detroit runs. Vern Ruhle, 9-9, survived Texas' four-run first inning to finish with afive-hitter. Toby Harrah's two-run double was the big blow for the Rangers in the rally.

Stan Perzanowski worked six innings for Texas to record his first major league victory.

Royals 4, Orioles 2

Amos Otis singled, his fourth hit of the night, stole second and scored on George Brett's two-out double in the 10th for Kansas City. Harmon Killebrew singled in an insurance run as the Royals closed to within 5½ games of first-place Oakland in the American League West. Doug Bird, 8-4, got the victory with 41-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Red Sox 8, Angels 2

Rick Wise, 16-6, won his ninth straight game as Boston upped its lead in the American League East to seven games. Wise, who hasn't lost since June 22, tossed a seven-hitter in besting rookie Chuck Hockenberry, 0-2. Carlton Fisk had two singles and a double and drove in three runs for the Red Sox.

Yanks 7, A's 2

Doc Medich, 11-12, limited Oakland to six hits and Chris Chambliss collected a single, double and triple and drove in two runs for New York. Walt Williams hit a solo homer for the Yanks. Ken Holtzman, 14-11, took the loss.

Dolphins Sign Wide Receiver

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins have signed free agent Al Dodd in a bid for more strength at the wide receiver position.

The 6-foot, 180-pound wide receiver gained 344 yards on 27 punt returns for Atlanta last year and caught 33 passes for 600 yards while playing for New Orleans in 1969. He was cut recently by the Atlanta Falcons.

Dodd joined pro football in 1967 as a fourth-round Chicago draftee out of Northwestern Louisiana State.

Bouton Returns To Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Bouton retired from baseball in 1970 at the age of 31 because his knuckleball didn't knuckle often enough to get batters out consistently.

Since then, he's become rich and successful. He's written a mammoth best seller, "Ball Four", and a less than mammoth sequel, "I'm Glad You Didn't Take It Personally."

He's become a television sportscaster on CBS at $50,000 a year. He's appeared in a Hollywood movie, done an assortment of articles for national magazines, made several appearances with such celebrities as Paul Newman and Elliot Gould, and dabbled in politics.

He has a big house with a pool in Englewood, N.J. and a summer place on a lake.

In other words, he's got it made.

Now he wants to chuck it all — or some of it anyway — in favor of $300 a month and a spot in the starting rotation of the Portland Mavericks, an unheralded entry in the equally unheralded Northwest League.

"The juices haven't been flowing for a few years," Bouton said in an interview with Newsday. "You get spoiled by the thrills of baseball. It's exciting to walk that tightrope.

"The other night I did. It felt exactly like it always did. One false step and you fall. If you get to the other side, wow! — you've done something."

Bouton, 36, made his debut last Friday night as the Mavericks, an independent franchise, faced Walla Walla. It was ballyhoed and a crowd in excess of 10,000 fans turned up to have a look at the man who was called "Bulldog" during his glory years in the early 60s when he won 21 games one year and 18 another with the New York Yankees.

"At first the kids in the clubhouse were afraid to say hello," said Bouton. "They warmed up when they saw I had doubts about myself. I've had doubts before and pitched well. I thought about not getting anybody out."

Portland, closing in on its first pennant in 30 years, won the game 5-3 and Bouton went the distance, striking out six batters and walking two. He goes again this Friday night and will be in the club's rotation for the remaining three weeks of the season and into the playoffs.

CBS has given him a leave of absence to pursue his dream but Bouton says he'd have done it anyway.

"I hate to kick away a career I like because I have to go do this," he said, "but I'd take my chances. There are all those people in the world who'd like to quit their jobs and hitch hike to Arizona or sail on a boat to Bolivia."

Heady with his recent success, Bouton says that if all goes well, he plans to go to spring training next year, work on his knuckleball and try to hook up with a major league club again.

"I get the feeling that I look foolish," he said. "I know I would think someone else was foolish for doing what I'm doing.

"But a friend told me, 'I understand what you're doing. When you die, you're dead for a long time.'"

Purdue Coach Is Promoted

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Mark Sothman has been elevated from assistant coach to coach of the Purdue University wrestling squad.

Sothman, a graduate of Northern Iowa University, succeeds Don Corrigan, Boilermaker coach for five years, who plans to devote more time to teaching at the school.

Corrigan's 1974 Purdue squad was ranked ninth nationally.

Cincy Cagers Close Tour

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati basketball team is expected back here Thursday after a month-long playing tour of Australia.

The team was 17-0 against Australian opposition, and closed out its campaign with a 80-59 victory over Melbourne Tuesday night.

Brian Williams, who led all scorers during the tour, and Steve Collier each had 16 points against Melbourne.

Nuclear Plant Starting Date Is Due Soon

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Lighting & Power Co. says a starting date for site work on a $1.1 billion nuclear plant near Bay City will be decided shortly at a managment meeting of the project partners.

The Houston utility received a permit Tuesday allowing it to begin site preparation work at the South Texas project, a twin-reactor plant.

The limited work authorization, issued by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) allows HL&P and its project partners to start excavations and ground preparation, build constructon support facilities and start acess and work roads.

The permit was one of the first of any type issued by the NRC since that agency superceded the old Atomic Energy Commission last January.

Besides, HL&P, the major participant, power from the plant will be shared by city-owned electrical systems of San Antonio and Austin and the Central Power and Light Co. of Corpus Christi.

Site preparation will be undertaken by the project's sponsors at their own financial risk, pending issuance of a full construct on permit. The sponsors hope to get the permit and begin actual plant constructon by next January.

Houston School Budget A Record

HOUSTON (AP) — A record $248.2 million budget was approved Monday night by trustees of the Houston Independent School District.

It will yield the largest amount of non-bond issue funds for capital improvements in the system's history.

Emeralds Are Being Made

KYOTO, Japan (AP) — A Japanese company claimed today it has created artificial emeralds of nearly the same quality as the natural gems.

Kyoto Ceramic Co., maker of ceramics for use by the electronics industry, said the artificial emeralds could be sold for less than half the current average price of natural emeralds.

Prices of high quality natural emeralds range from $1,300 to $8,300 per carat on the city market, it said.

The Japanese firm claimed artificial emeralds are not inferior to the natural stones in color, shape, hardness, specific gravity, transparency and light reflection.

Synthetic emeralds reportedly were produced in the United States and France several years ago.

Hee-Haw Cast Picking Up Millions In Cornfield

By Dick Kleiner

NASHVILLE, TENN.—(NEA)—It was Cornfield Day at Hee-Haw.

Hee-Haw is the amazing countryfied show which went off the CBS network after two years and is now one of the top-rated syndicated shows. In 221 cities, it is seen every week and in most of them it is a runaway hit.

They knock out a half-season's worth of shows in four weeks here. And Cornfield Day is an example of how they can do it. The show has some 40 people in the cast. One of the standing sets is a cornfield. Up from behind the stalks pop up one or two of the principals and they say a quick gag.

The floor manager says "Five, four, three, two, one," and Ronnie Stoneman pops up:

"I sure told my boy friend a thing or two when he kissed me last night."

"For instance?" asks Cathy Baker.

"More, more, more" says Ronnie.

---

During the long day, they will do around 220 of these quick gags. In the control room, producer Sam Lovullo and director Bob Boatman are in charge.

"It all goes on the computer," Lovullo explains. "We put in all the information—who did it, what it was, how long it runs and we rate it on a scale of one to five.

"We do that with everything — songs, skits, gags. Then, back in Hollywood, we put the shows together via the computer, too. Each show has somewhere around 185 cuts."

---

ROY CLARK: Have you had any stage experience?"

BUCK OWENS: I had my leg in a cast once.

---

They stand a round, waiting to be called. Under their overalls, you can see the tips of their expensive patent leather shoes.

These are all top country performers—Clark, Owens, Archie Campbell, Grandpa Jones, George Lindsey—and they make millions recording, doing personal appearances. Hee-Haw has helped them reach a bigger audience.

They talk about horses and golf and fancy vacations, while waiting their turn to say corny jokes.

"I had 17 horses," says one, "but they were too much trouble."

---

BARBI BENTON: Lulu, does your husband believe in exercising?

Lulu: I'll say he does. Last week he was out four nights running.

---

They are not all hillbillies, to begin with. One of the group is Don Herron, wearing an ill-fitting sweater and a three-day growth of graying whiskers. He laughs like a hyena with a sore throat. A hillbilly? Not hardly.

Herron is actually a Shakespearean actor from Canada, a member of the noted Stratford company.

"This is a good living," he says. "Actually it's the easiest job I've ever had. You do a year's work in about two months. I enjoy it."

---

GUNILLA HUTTON: Is it unlucky to postpone a wedding?

ARCHIE CAMPBELL: No, not if you postpone it long enough.

Anybody who is in Nashville drops by the studio to watch, to say hello to old friends. Kenny Rogers of The First Edition was there. He's going with one of the girls who make the show a must for girl watchers, as well as corn watchers.

"My folks back in Crockett, Tex." Rogers said, "just love this stuff. The people who put this show together are so smart—they know their audience and cater to them."

George Lindsey came by, a bottle of Nehi in his hands."

"We call this a Nashville martini," he said.

---

GEORGE LINDSEY: My girl's lipstick seems to have a better taste than others.

ARCHIE CAMPBELL: Yea, it does, doesn't it?

---

It's all very informal. Between takes Buck Owens was in Sam Lovullo's office, leafing through reams of sheet music looking for a song to sing the next day.

"I want a song with a certain texture," he said. Then he came across one he liked. "Root Beer," he said, "that should do it. OK with you, Sam?"

Lovullo didn't even look up from what he was doing.

"Whatever you say, Buck," he said.

---

BUCK OWENS: Boy, the drought we've been having down here in Cornfield County sure has made the wheat short this year.

ROY CLARK: Short! Why I had to lather mine to mow it.

---

When they finished doing the cornfield jokes, each one of the principals was taped doing a series of reactions, laughs, dead pans. Some of them were asked to say things like, "Boy, I didn't know that" or "And that's a fact" and "They finally got it right that time."

Each of these bits, too, went on the computer and will be spliced into the finished shows.

---

HARRY: Last night my wife got a big load off her shoulders.

BARBI: Told it all, huh?

HARRY: No, she washed her neck.

Junior Samples, a hulking, gap-toothed genuine hillbilly, was telling everybody how he had slimmed down. He had lost 90 pounds. Somebody asked him for his diet.

"I just eat all the lettuce I want," Samples said. "Then I drink milk of magnesia so it don't wad up on me."

No Gains In Black Doctors

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The number of black doctors in the United States has not increased in five years, partly because young blacks are being driven away from medicine by economic pressures and prejudices, the National Medical Association says.

"It seems as though there are more dying than graduating medical school," said Dr. Edwin Shirley, a member of the Public Health Trust Board at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Jasper Williams, president-elect of the NMA, a black doctors' organization, said the United States needs at least three times the 6,000 black practitioners it has now.

Dr. Alfred Fisher, executive director of the NMA, said the current black doctor-patient ratio in the United States is 1 to 5,000. The current white doctor-patient ratio is 1 to 750, Fisher said.

"I take a look around the hotel," said Williams, referring to the site of the NMA's 80th annual convention here. "Most of the doctors are old — they've been around a long time."

Even if a black has the ability to become a doctor, the average cost of $7,500 for medical school often is prohibitive, Williams said.

"It takes more time to pay back educational debts if you're poor to begin with," Williams said.

"A guy who's never had anything all his life can't wait that long for a financial return. Now talented blacks are becoming lawyers, engineers and other professionals where they can begin to earn money more quickly."

He said that economics aside, many black surgeons are not certified to practice, maybe because there are not enough blacks on examining boards.

"I'm not sure whether blacks are getting a fair shake on their board examinations," Williams said. He said blacks frequently fail the oral, subjective portion of the exam.

John Denver To South Pacific

Dr. Lamb

Quit smoking all the way

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I stopped smoking a few months ago and feel great. There are times when I truly would love to have a cigarette but hesitate out of fear of becoming hooked again.

Is smoking like drinking? Do you really need to have "just one" in order to get started again?

DEAR READER—It is a good idea to think of it that way. Most of the patients I have seen, and friends, who have quit smoking find they cannot just smoke a little. The mistake begins when the person thinks, "I can have just one and it won't hurt." Then he has two a day and finally he is back smoking as much as before. There is only one reliable way to avoid getting back on the habit and that is to never, never, never take just a puff from someone else's cigarette or decide to "smoke just one."

Incidentally, I was pleased and impressed to note that at the recent national meeting of the American college of Physician's in San Francisco, attended by many of the nation's leading physicians, one seldom saw a doctor smoking, even in the halls or areas where it was allowed. A very high percentage of doctors have indeed quit smoking and most of those who haven't would like to quit.

For more information on the effects of tobacco on health, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco: Cigarettes, Cigars Pipes.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a senior citizen and try to eat sensibly, but lately I've been eating quite a bit of peanut butter and wonder about it because of cholesterol. Is it polyunsaturated or not?

DEAR READER—About 70 per cent of the calories in peanut butter are from fat. Roughly one-fourth of the fat is saturated fat, one-fourth polyunsaturated fat, and half monounsaturated fat. This means that it is classified as a high-fat, high-saturated food and should be used paringly if at all by people needing to watch their calorie intake or to limit their fat and saturated fat intake.

Peanut butter contains no cholesterol. Plants do not make cholesterol, and it is found only in animal foods of animal origin. However, too many calories, too much fat and particularly too much saturated fat may cause the body to form too much cholesterol in some people.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'd like to know whether one can tighten stretched skin by exercise. What exercise can I do for this?

DEAR READER—There is not much you can do about this. An overstretched skin is like an overstretched balloon and is not likely to snap back to its original shape.

The face and neck do have an underlying muscle attached to the skin, part of which is called the platysma muscle. When you make a face or grimace you can make this muscle stand out. By tensing these and other facial muscles you can tighten up the face and help to maintain facial muscle size, just as you maintain muscles in the arms or legs by maintaining an exercise program.

These exercises won't shrink the skin, they merely lift it up and help some to fill out the space under the skin. In the final analysis when the skin is overstretched too much, from previous obesity or from the normal skin growth with increasing year, the only way to reduce the size of the skin is to cut out some of the excess, and that means cosmetic surgery.

Man Overboard Prayed A Lot

HOUSTON (AP) — Jimmy Stanley says he's not a very strong person, so he did a lot of praying.

Stanley, 21, also said he did a lot of thinking and swimming—since he was in the dark waters of Galveston Bay for three hours without a lifejacket or float before he was rescued early Tuesday by a Coast Guard helicopter.

Stanley, a Houston real estate firm employe, was tossed from his father's 32-foot cabin cruiser late Monday night when it hit a large wave off Redfish Island.

"I had just fixed a drink at the back of the boat," he said. "I was headed forward and missed the handrail when the boat hit the wave."

He yelled in vain as the boat moved away.

"My next reaction was to get the hell out of the water, so I headed for shore," he said.

He used lights of a power company plant to guide him.

About 20 minutes later, Linda Kobobel, 14, one of seven other persons aboard the boat, noticed Stanley was missing.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim C. Stanley, and the others on board searched desperately for him and finally went ashore and notified the Coast Guard.

"I did a lot of praying, a lot of swimming and a lot of thinking," Stanley recalled. "I thought about everything that came to mind that wouldn't panic me. I knew I would use less energy if I could stay calm."

He used different swimming strokes to keep from straining any part of his body while battling against three-to-four-foot waves, a brisk wind and a mild current.

At one point he said he decided to tie his pants together and inflate them, a self-survival aid he had learned in the Army.

"This gave me a few minutes rest but I noticed they were pulling me back out to sea, so I got rid of them," he said.

He said the Coast Guard helicopter passed in front of him twice and then came right toward him.

His hopes soared even when the helicopter passed without spotting him because he knew people were looking for him.

Stanley said he was not worried about sharks during his swim although "something stung me on the shoulder that shook me up."

He also managed to keep his contact lenses on during his ordeal. He said he could not have navigated toward the lights without them.

The Coast Guard estimated Stanley swam two miles and was about a mile from shore when rescued.

Stanley said he believes he could have made it but he's thankful for the Coast Guard "and all the other people who were praying and looking for me."

Deportation Challenged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former wife of actor Donald Sutherland has filed suit seeking to block her deportation to Canada.

Shirley Jean Sutherland, 41, of Beverly Hills, said in her federal court suit Tuesday she was denied immigrant resident status after being indicted in 1969 on charges of conspiracy and possession of hand grenades.

Federal authorities had alleged that she was a member of a group called "Friends of the Panthers" which officials said planned to distribute hand grenades to the Black Panthers. The charges were later dismissed.

The Sutherlands were divorced in November 1971.

Lemon Decorations Ruled Out Of Order For Truck

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Steve Strickland is in a pickle because a judge won't allow his truck on any Nevada road until he removes lemons and signs painted on the vehicle to protest defects.

Strickland says he needs the truck in his carpentry work, but won't remove the painted lemons or stenciled list of 46 alleged flaws until he gets justice.

"As Americans we are so complacent that we trade off a bad vehicle and give up trying to get it fixed. That doesn't help anyone because the manufacturers just keep turning out piles of junk," Strickland said in an interview Tuesday.

Strickland wants his 1973 International truck — his only mode of transportation — replaced with another make of truck, and he wants to overturn the Carson District Court judge's order that bars him from operating the vehicle anywhere in the state.

Judge Frank Gregory ruled last November that Strickland's protest constituted "almost an attempt at extortion" because he vowed to continue his one-man campaign until he got his way, even though the auto dealer's business would be damaged.

"Any consumer should have the right to tell the public of problems with a product, and to let Gregory's order go unchallenged would be unjust," said Strickland, 37, of nearby South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Strickland has parked his $4,500 truck in front of Al Gasper's auto lot here, displayed it at recreational vehicle shows and ran newspaper advertisements that read, "Before you buy a new truck or pickup, come and see my factory ordered headache."

The dealership has refused to comment on the dispute.

Gregory upheld his order Monday saying the protest was "unjustified, totally unwarranted."

"It's utterly ridiculous that that order should come out of our court system," Strickland said. "If I can get some financial help, I'll carry this on to the state Supreme Court."

Strickland ordered the truck from the factory in 1973. "I saved 2½ years for it. It was the first new vehicle I ever bought," he said.

Since delivery, brakes, carburetors, window glass and other parts had to be changed or fixed because of factory defects, he said.

Strickland said he drove to Chicago a week ago in a futile attempt to see International Harvester president Brooks McCormick "and you know, the truck quit on me on the way home ... It got vapor lock for a while."

Briscoe's Tax Goal Unchanged

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will carry his no new taxes goal into the last two years of his current term despite predictions of a big tax bill from others.

Briscoe also told a news conference Tuesday he has considered a third-term attempt in "private conversation" but he is not ready to make any announcement.

Briscoe stressed that the "overriding thought"of his administration at this time is fighting off the need for new taxes in the 1977 legislature.

Briscoe was asked several times about forecasts by Comptroller Bob Bullock, the Texas Research League and others that a sizeable tax bill will be needed after the current business period.

Each time Briscoe answered: "My goal is to meet the financial needs of the state in the next biennium, as we have the past two sessions, without any additional taxes."

Briscoe said no new taxes "has to be our No. 1 priority for the next session...the overwhelming sentiment of the people of Texas is against any new taxes."

Briscoe also said that it was too early for him to say if he will run for a third term in 1978, but admitted the subject had been discussed.

"I have no intention to make any indication at this time," he said.

He was asked about a recent story in which an aide quoted him as saying, "I just might do that," when the subject of a third term campaign came up.

"I would never want to indicate Reagan (Brown) is inaccurate," Briscoe replied.

The governor said he was nearing a decision on the three persons who will make up the new state utilities commission which is created on Sept. 1 by authority of the last legislature.

"I have them fairly well in mind at this point," Briscoe said, "and I hope to announce them before Sept. 1."

He said he thought it would be "very desirable"for one member to be a lawyer but also said he would give consideration to geography and to urban-rural interests.

Kissinger Denies Deal Involving Solzhenitsyn

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says he urged the Soviet Union to let Alexander Solzhenitsyn leave the country a month before his exile last year. But he denies there was any U.S.-Russia deal that prevented President Ford from seeing the author when he first came to this country.

"There was no deal of any kind as to how Solzhenitsyn was to be treated in the West," an angered Kissinger said Tuesday in a telephone call to reporters accompanying Ford on his vacation in Vail.

Speaking from Washington, he denied a report quoting a White House aide as saying the President did not meet with Solzhenitsyn last month because of agreements between the two countries at the time the writer was expelled from Russia.

The White House and the aide, Warren Rustand, appointments secretary to Ford, also said there had been no agreement. Rustand said he was misquoted. But the newspaper, the Scottsdale, Ariz., Progress, said it was standing behind its story.

"This thing has become an absurdity," Kissinger said of the story.

The secretary revealed that he had urged Soviet leaders to let Solzhenitsyn leave Russia rather than imprison him for his critical writings about the USSR. That was about a month before the Nobel Prize winner was exiled, but Kissinger declined to disclose with whom he had talked. Richard M. Nixon was president at the time.

Ford personally stayed out of the controversy as he continued to relax at this Alpine-style mountain village, mainly with golf and socializing. Press Secretary Ron Nessen issued a denial of the story which quoted Rustand and then referred reporters to Kissinger.

Rustand's speech before the Scottsdale Rotary Club on Monday was covered by reporter Mike Petry of the Progress, and news editor Gil Johnson said the paper was standing by the story.

Johnson said Rustand went off the record when he talked about Solzhenitsyn but that the newspaper decided to publish his remarks because they were presented before about 50 persons.

The Progress reported Rustand as saying that Kissinger insisted that agreements made to prevent Solzhenitsyn's imprisonment had to be maintained before the President's recent trip to Europe.

Rustand said Tuesday he had no "personal knowledge" of any agreements relating to the author's exile.

Ford's refusal to meet Solzhenitsyn sparked heated public criticism, especially among opponents of detente.

The President later reversed his stand and said Solzhenitsyn would be welcome at the White House. But the author left Washington without meeting Ford. Nessen said Tuesday "the invitation still stands."

Bullock Crew Heading West

HOUSTON (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock says the next target for his sales tax raids will either be cities in West Texas or the Rio Grande Valley.

Bullock returned to Austin Tuesday after raids in the Houston area.

He was presented a $14,460 check for delinquent taxes before departing.

The check was delivered to Bullock by Peter LaValle, a former Galveston County judge who said he was representing a Galveston grocer who had gone out of business owing that amount in state sales taxes.

Local agents will have the chore, Bullock said of collecting the some $12 million he says Houston area businesses owe.

Hathaway, who had been under medical and psychiatric care at Bethesda since July 15, flew to Denver last Friday to continue his hospitalization.

Colonel Ousted After Refugees Were Drugged

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force base commander in Thailand was relieved of his position after 13 protesting Vietnamese refugees were drugged and put aboard the last plane for Guam.

Officials said Col. Harold R. Austin exceeded his authority. Austin was reassigned from command of the key Utapao base to 15th Air Force headquarters at March Air Force Base, Calif.

There was no immediate information on how long after the May 1 drugging incident Austin was removed from his Utapao command by Gen. Louis L. Wilson Jr., Air Force chief in the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed the drugging episode Tuesday, hours after Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., chairman of the House immigration subcommittee, demanded an ex- nation of what he called "a rible thing for our country." "he Air Force denied Eil- allegation that the refugees, who wanted to return home, were beaten. "No physical force was used," it said.

The official Air Force explanation strongly suggested the decision to drug the 13 refugees with sodium pentathol, a sedative, and thorazine, a tranquilizer, was made because of pressure from Thai officials to remove South Vietnamese from their country quickly.

"The Thai officials were adamant that they leave Thailand immediately," the Air Force said.

About 3,000 South Vietnamese flew to Thailand on Vietnamese planes as their country was being overrun by Communist forces.

The Air Force recalled that the United States sent C141 transport planes to carry the Vietnamese refugees from Thailand after the Thais asserted that the Vietnamese could not remain.

"On May 1, when South Vietnam had fallen and the last C141 was leaving for Guam, a group of 13 Vietnamese refused to go," the Air Force statement said.

"They said that when they boarded the aircraft in Vietnam, their Vietnamese flight crews had told them that their destination was the Delta region of Vietnam.

"Near hysteria, they demanded to be returned to Vietnam and threatened suicide if they were not returned immediately."

As the Air Force told the story, a decision by U.S. and Thai officials on the scene to sedate the Vietnamese and take them to Guam was made after hours of fruitless efforts to persuade the 13 "that there were no means to take them back."

It said the drugs were administered by U.S. medical personnel at Utapao and that an Air Force nurse was aboard the flight.

"No ill effects were noted," the Air Force said.

An Air Force spokesman said the 13 are still on Guam awaiting repatriation, but an aide to Eilberg said one is in the United States.

About 2,000 of the more than 130,000 South Vietnamese who left their country in the dying days of the war have asked to go back.
