Hostages' letter seeks talks with captors

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Four of the missing American hostages in Lebanon appealed to President Reagan today in a letter sent to The Associated Press bureau in Beirut to negotiate with their Shiite Moslem kidnappers to secure their freedom.

"There is no alternative," they said in an open letter to Reagan. "They say they will not be moved and are growing impatient....

"Mr. President, how long do you suppose these people will wait? We have no chance of escaping, and our captors say if any attempt is made to rescue us they and we will all die."

The letter was signed by Terry Anderson, Chief Middle East Correspondent of The Associated Press; the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest; David Jacobsen, director of the American University Hospital in Beirut; and Thomas Sutherland, Dean of Agriculture at the American University of Beirut.

The letter, one of a package of letters from the hostages delivered to the AP, was dated at 1 p.m. (6 A.M. EST) today, the day after anonymous telephone callers in Beirut claimed the hostages had been shot by firing squads.

AP staffers identified Anderson's handwriting and signature in the letters.

In a separate letter to the media, signed by all four, the captives said: "We have just been told that someone has claimed that Islamic Jihad has killed all of us.

"Obviously this is not true. Our captors say it was an attempt by the U.S. government to spoil negotiations."

An anonymous caller telephoned a Western news agency in Beirut Thursday claiming to speak for the Shiite fundamentalist group, saying that the hostages were to be killed because neogiations with the United States have "reached a dead end."

Two later calls claimed the hostages had been killed and their bodies dumped in Beirut. But police searches turned up no bodies.

The letters gave no indication where the hostages were being held.

But in the open letter to Reagan they said: "We are kept in small, damp (two words scratched out) 24 hours a day, without proper exercise, sanitation, fresh air or balanced diet.

"We have only intermittent access to outside news. It is difficult to remain cheerful and optimistic when we see no sign anywhere of progress towards our release."

The hostages said they have been told by their captors that another hostage, U.S. diplomat William Buckley, "is dead."

Islamic Jihad claimed in a statement Oct.4 that Buckley, 57, was killed in revenge for alleged U.S. complicity in Israel's Oct. 1 air raid on the Tunis headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The group produced blurred photographs of what it claimed was Buckley's shroud-wrapped body. But U.S. officials have said the photos as not "conclusive proof" that Buckley is dead.

Gas price cuts called 'promotion'

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Although gasoline prices for leaded regular have dropped to below a dollar per gallon at most convenience stores in Midland and Odessa, the phenomenon will probably be short-lived, according to those who did the cutting.

"It's nothing more than an old-fashioned price war," said Bill Kent of Kent Oil Co. "The prices have been fluctuating off and on but we finally cut our prices to 99 cents per gallon on Monday."

The price drop started with Stop-N-Go stores in Odessa.

"Our store (at West 16th Street and FM 1936) was not selling much gas. So we dropped the price to 99 cents per gallon last weekend," said Glenn Boenisch, district manager for Stop-N-Go. Leaded regular had been selling for $1.08 per gallon.

Other convenience stores, including Seven-Eleven and Kent followed suit, dropping their prices early in the week.

"I expect by next week that it will all be over," said Boenisch. "We're in a very competitive business and we price competitively."

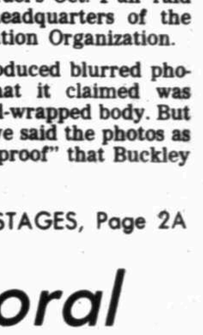
Mayoral candidacy revealed

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Five-year City Council member Steve Davidson announced this morning his intention to seek the mayor's position in the April 1986 election, which will be a wide-open race since Mayor G. Thane Akins has said he won't seek re-election.



Davidson

During a news conference at City Hall, Davidson cited the need to improve the city's economic condition while keeping the infrastructure working properly.

"I enjoy the job and the challenges. The future for this city is tremendous. During the Centennial, everyone's spirit got revived. There's something about the spirit here and it starts with the people," said Davidson, 37.

Akins, contacted after the news conference, wasn't aware that Davidson was going to make an announcement today. "He's been an outstanding councilman. He has the time and experience on the council and is willing to work hard at it. I have a great deal of respect for Steve," the mayor said. But if another councilman also wants to run for mayor, Akins said he won't take sides in the race.

What Davidson termed a "conservative fiscal" attitude that has been employed in running the city government in the past will be continued, he said.

To attract more non petroleum-related industries, the council can work as a partner with the private sector, he said. "There have been tremendous efforts in the past (in diversification). In the process, we've learned something. We need to emphasize our strengths and not go after everything out there. We need to attract those industries that are interested in Midland."

A lifelong resident of Midland involved in oil and gas investments, Davidson pointed out that since he began his first term on the council in 1980, the city has gone from an economic boom to a bust.

Despite the revenue problems, "we must prudently continue our efforts toward improving our streets and thoroughfares as well as other public improvements, such as our airport and park system."

Asked about money for the infrastructure, Davidson said the council had talked about a bond issue during its Ruidoso, N.M., retreat in September.

Chief justice among 60 dead in Bogota incident

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Army soldiers blasted their way inside the Palace of Justice with dynamite and cannon fire to "annihilate" leftist rebels who held scores of people hostage for 27 hours. Witnesses said the Supreme Court chief justice and five other judges were among at least 60 killed.

Hostages who survived said the rebels, members of the leftist April 19 Movement, decided to kill the judges early Thursday when it appeared their situation was hopeless.

President Belisario Betancur called the siege a "terrible nightmare" and accepted responsibility for launching the army assault in a speech broadcast on television and radio Thursday night. However, Betancur did not give full details of the seizure or how the army launched its assault.

Authorities said about 25 guerrillas shot their way into the five-story court building Wednesday, taking more than 150 people hostage. The army freed scores of hostages Wednesday but fires set by the rebels, reportedly to destroy court documents, kept troops from reaching the gunmen.

Soldiers breached the building Thursday morning and freed up to 48 hostages still inside, radio stations at the scene said.

Military authorities said 60 bodies were recovered from the Palace of Justice, reduced to a smoldering ruin by the rebel-set fires and cannon attacks by the army.

Officials said more bodies could be found inside the block-long building when search efforts resume today.

It remained unclear exactly how many people were inside when the rebels seized the building Wednesday or how many hostages were freed in the first army assault Thursday. Details of the drama also remained sketchy.

A preliminary military report said the bodies recovered included those of seven policemen and soldiers and three civilians. Military sources said 18 guerrillas also were among the dead, including Andres Alamarales, who led the rebel attack, and five other members of the guerrillas' high command.

The sources identified the others as Vera Grave, Afranio Parra, Antonio Jacquim, Francisco Otero and Guillermo Elvencio Ruiz.

The guerrillas take their name from a 1970 presidential election that it claims was rigged. The group, known as M-19, broke a truce with the government in May.

Military sources said 32 bodies had not yet been identified. Most of the bodies were badly burned. It was not clear how and when the hostages died.

Betancur suggested the rebels had been connected to drug traffickers because they destroyed files that included cases of people the United States is seeking to extradite. He has repeatedly linked the country's leftist rebels to drug trafficking.

"I personally took all the decisions, gave the respective orders to find a solution within the law,' the president said.

South Grand Prairie will rally behind Confederate flag

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — The battle at tonight's football game between South Grand Prairie and Grand Prairie may be off the field as the dispute over South Grand's use of the Confederate flag rages.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People plans to picket the game, while South Grand Prairie booster club members say they may counter-attack by passing out miniature rebel flags.

The dispute erupted last month when a black sophomore football player at South Grand Prairie refused to play under the rebel flag because he considered it a racist symbol.

Fred Coleman Jr., 15, says he has since been banned from playing on any school district team because he objected to running onto the field under the flag. But the school's head football coach says Coleman was kicked off the team for a number of infractions.

Lee Alcorn, president of the local NAACP chapter, said the decision to picket the game came after NAACP members were unsuccessful earlier this week in persuading Superintendent Hobbs Williams to ban use of the flag.

Williams has said the flag is a symbol of school spirit and nothing else. The school adopted the use of the Confederate flag as a symbol of its rivalry with Grand Prairie, its northern neighbor.

"I suspect that (the picket line) will cause some consternation," Alcorn said. "But we will be a peaceful picket. We want to be there and be visible. I can't say what we'll do if anyone comes to the game looking for trouble."

Bob Cherry, a member of the South Grand Prairie Warriors' Quarterback Club, said the club may pass out small "stars and bars" to their boosters.

"I hope we do. Let 'em picket. We'll walk right through them with the flags," Cherry said. "Everybody is blowing this thing out of proportion. They are creating a monster out of nothing."

Freighter will stay in port until subpoena issue settled

Associated Press

RESERVE, La. — A Soviet freighter will not be allowed to leave U.S. waters until a Senate subpoena is either served on a Ukrainian seaman who twice jumped ship or the subpoena is withdrawn, officials said.

Congressional envoys who tried unsuccessfully on Thursday to serve the subpoena said they would return to the ship today to meet with Soviet officials flying in from Washington.

The U.S. Coast Guard will prevent the ship from leaving as long as the subpoena is in force and has not been served, according to Terrance Wear, deputy counsel for the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Customs officials.

'Odd' chemical substance killing fish in Pecos River

SHEFFIELD (AP) — Texas Water Commission officials say they are investigating "a very odd" fish kill on the Pecos River in West Texas in which an estimated 30,000 fish have died.

Commission spokesman Max Woodfin said officials are puzzled because the yellow-orange substance suspected as the cause still seems to have the same lethal strength as when it was first spotted in the river last week.

Woodfin said a substance that causes a fish kill normally weakens over time as it is diluted, but that has not happened in the current incident.

He said the tainted stretch of the river, about five miles long, has moved at least 60 river miles downstream from the area where fish were first seen dying, where Interstate 10 crosses the Pecos.

Initial tests were inconclusive, he said. More results are due next week.

Eastern floodwaters now receding

Associated Press

Killer floodstreams, cresting against sandbag dikes around Washington, D.C., and lapping over the low-lying riverfront of Richmond, Va., receded today, leaving behind at least 42 dead and 47 missing, and devastated communities seeking millions of dollars in federal disaster relief.

"Now the hard part begins, when we start the cleanup process," Richmond City Manager Manuel Deese said Thursday, after the James River crested downtown at just under 31 feet, or 22 feet above flood stage, and slowly receded.

Eight West Virginia counties were designated federal disaster areas Thursday by President Reagan, and Gov. Arch Moore estimated that the state's flood damage could reach $200 million.

Four days of heavy rain over the Middle Atlantic States earlier this week brought the floods, killing at least 20 people in Virginia, 20 in West Virginia and one each in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Of the 47 people missing, 39 were in West Virginia, seven in Virginia and one in Pennsylvania. Moore's staff said most of West Virginia's missing lived in remote areas and possibly were just out of contact.

In Washington, where officials had closed the Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson monuments to keep the public away from the swollen Potomac River, the high water drew thousands of sight-seers.

"There are a lot of people who want to see the water," said National Park Service spokeswoman Sandra Alley, adding that the agency was not preventing people from strolling near the monuments, which were never threatened.

The cherry tree-rimmed walkway around the Tidal Basin near the memorial was underwater on the river side, and gawkers jammed roadways.

In Richmond, almost 600 National Guardsmen carrying M-16 rifles and ammunition patroled the perimeter of the flood zone and helped direct traffic, but city manager Deese said there were no reports of looting.

The James, which peaked four feet below the lip of a 28-foot dike protecting the water filtration plant serving 400,000 Richmond-area residents, should be back within its banks by early Sunday, Deese said. He said it was too early for damage estimates.

Three of the seven bridges that span the James were closed and traffic on Interstate 95, the East's major north-south highway, was turned onto secondary highways after the river overflowed it just south of the city.

Low water in the Monongahela River was the biggest threat in western Pennsylvania, where several barges, among 62 ripped loose in the flooded stream Tuesday, had wedged under the floodgates of the Maxwell Lock and Dam in Brownsville.

The water level behind the dam was expected to drop to 3.3 feet by noon today, the Army Corps of Engineers said, restricting river traffic and cutting off intake pipes for four water companies.

More than 800,000 residents are under instructions to boil their water.

The Central West Virginia Red Cross gave the flooding its highest disaster rating and called for 3,000 volunteers to spend up to two weeks in the region. "It's a logistical nightmare," Red Cross spokesman Jim Daw said. "It's so widespread and the area involved is so rural."

New reports of devastation trickled in Thursday from West Virginia communities that had been cut off from the outside world for a day or more.

Along the Cheat River, "50 percent or more of Rowlesburg was destroyed," said Deputy Jim Fields. At least two-thirds of the homes in nearby Albright were swept away, and in Petersburg, legislator Marc Harman reported "at least 60 to 70 percent total destruction of the commercial downtown area."

In all, 33 of the state's 55 counties had some flooding and 22 of those — with total populations of more than 500,000 — had major damage, officials said. A Federal Emergency Management Agency estimate set the number of West Virginia homes destroyed or severely damaged at 4,000, but only 1,300 federal flood insurance policies were in force, said FEMA spokesman Bob Blair.

West Virginia Highway Commissioner William Ritchie said 20 major bridges were destroyed and even temporary replacements would take "six months to a year" to install.

The National Guard on Thursday expanded airlifts and truck shipments of emergency food, water and medical supplies into affected areas. Moore said more than 22,000 pounds of food had been sent to Pocahontas County alone.

Residents were advised to boil all water and bury any food touched by the floodwaters, which carried raw sewage and dead livestock through scores of communities.

"Tragedy is tragedy," said 85-year-old Mary Smith Carter of Greenbrier County, one the eight counties designated as federal disaster areas.

"I'm not worried about my life," said Carter, who lost everything when her home was flooded. "If I can live through this, I can live through hell. I never thought I would drown. I was raised in the Greenbrier River."

Wear and David Sullivan, an assistant to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., tried Thursday night to serve the committee's subpoena, signed Thursday by Helms, on the captain of the freighter Marshal Koniev.

The committee is seeking an appearance by Miroslav Medvid, who twice swam ashore last month from the freighter, anchored in New Orleans. Each time he was returned on orders from U.S. officials who said they concluded he was not seeking asylum in the United States.

After three federal courts turned down legal attempts to have Medvid interrogated again, Reagan administration officials said in Washington that they considered "the case is closed."

But the incident drew the attention of the Senate committee, which oversees grain exports.

The Marshal Koniev is loading corn for the Soviet Union at a Cargill grain elevator on the Mississippi River about 30 miles west of New Orleans.

Sullivan said the captain, who was not identified, told them to return today for a meeting with Soviet diplomats from Washington.

"The captain indicated he was instructed by his government not to accept the subpoena until a representative of his government can get down here," said Sullivan.

"We intend to interview him and present the subpoena tomorrow," said Wear. "Under existing regulations, the agency (U.S. Customs) would not clear the ship for departure while the subpoena is outstanding."

Asked what might happen if the Marshal Koniev tried to leave without clearance, Wear replied: "I understand the Coast Guard would prevent that."

The ship, dogged by a boatload of Ukrainian-Americans protesting the Medvid incident, had been expected to leave this weekend.

Sullivan and Wear flew here Thursday from Washington with a subpoena issued by Helms' agriculture committee.

Another of the committee's members, Republican Thad Cochran of Mississippi, said the subpoena would let Medvid decide whether he wants to testify before Congress.

But Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., called the subpoena attempt a serious mistake that was "not well thought through," and liable to set a dangerous precedent for Americans on Soviet soil.

He also said the subpoena concerned matters "that are not within the province of the United States Senate," and could deter Soviet grain freighters from coming to the United States.

Water projects bill favored?

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The House appears ready to authorize the first major water projects bill in 15 years, requiring local port authorities and project users to share construction and maintenance costs.

"We have the best opportunity in many years to get a bill signed into law," said Robert K. Dawson, assistant secretary of the Army in charge of the Corps of Engineers, in a recent interview.

After two days of debate, the water projects bill was pulled from the House floor late Wednesday so that members could begin reconsideration of the Gramm- Rudman-Hollings deficit legislation sent from the Senate.

President Reagan now is threatening to veto the water projects measure, however, because it contains too many new projects. He approves of cost-sharing provisions.

Also, the Office of Management and Budget says the administration is opposed to providing federal loan guarantees and loans for the local share of port development costs and improvement of municipal water supply systems.

Little opposition developed Wednesday in House debate, unlike the heated debate in June 1984, when the House passed a similar bill only to see it die in the Senate.

The omnibus bill authorizes construction of more than 230 new Army Corps of Engineers port, inland waterway, flood control, shoreline protection, water resources supply, conservation and development projects.

In addition, the bill increases the non-federal share of the cost of new Corps flood control and navigation projects.

Existing cost-sharing policy for flood control projects requires local, or non-federal, interests to provide lands, easements and rights-of-way and to assume responsibility for operation and maintenance after building is completed. But because of variations in project design and land values, the local share of flood control costs vary widely.

Under the pending legislation, non-federal sources would pay a minimum 25 percent of flood control project costs. Local interests would contribute lands, and provide 5 percent of construction costs in cash while the project was underway. If the combined value of local contributions exceeded 25 percent, the local share would be capped at 30 percent. If the combined value were less than 25 percent the balance would have to be paid over a 15 year period, with interest.

On harbor deepening projects, under current law, the federal government pays the full cost after local interests contribute lands, easements and rights- of-way. That would change, if the House bill become law, so that non-federal interests would pay in cash during construction 10 percent of total costs of projects less than 20 feet deep; 25 percent for projects 21-45 feet deep, and 50 percent for depths greater than 45 feet. Also, local interests would have to contribute an additional 5 percent in land, easements and rights-of-way.

The federal government would guarantee loans for up to 90 percent of the local share, under the pending bill, and non-federal port authorities could levy user fees to recover construction costs.

For new channels deeper than 45 feet, non-federal sources would also have to pay half of the cost of operations and maintenance.

And, while the federal government historically has absorbed the total costs of routine harbor dredging, the new legislation would permit the government to recover approximately 40 percent of its estimated $475 million in yearly maintenance expenses through a new 0.04 percent tax on the value of cargo moving through U.S. ports. The tax would be paid by importers and exporters, not ship operators.

MAYOR

"Infrastructure is important and we need to do it on an ongoing basis," he said. In a prepared statement, Davidson continued, "These projects must meet a stringent criteria both as to public need as well as to having the resources available to fund the improvements. Government at all levels is being confronted today by rising demands for spending while the sources of revenue to fund those demands are dwindling.

"In this type of environment, it is imperative that those selected to serve in local government must continue to strive to deliver those needed services in the most efficient and productive manner possible."

Asked about the council's addressing of problems in the lower-income areas, Davidson said that before single-member districts were instituted last spring, "I felt the council was always available and accessible. With single-member districts we're getting more input and I want it to continue. A good base of communications has been established and a lot of it is due to Mrs. (Oralia) Corrales' efforts," he said in referring to the District 2 Councilwoman.

In his statement, Davidson concluded: "The future is ours and together we can move forward with strength to face the challenges awaiting us."

Davidson said he was announcing his intention to run for mayor at this early date because "the early bird gets the worm," he joked. "We wanted to let the public know our intent to seek the office." Being mayor instead of a councilman, he joked, means "I can bang the gavel."

GAS

Others agreed.

"Right now, the prices are below cost," said Kent. "You can't stay in business if you're operating below cost. My own feeling is that soon as everyone starts looking at their financial statements, the prices will come back up."

None of the spokesmen indicated they would be the first to push the prices up again.

"We'll keep them down as long as the competition does," said Kent.

"We'll be competitive in the market," echoed Keith John of 7-Eleven stores. "All 14 stores will be the same price — 99 cents per gallon for regular leaded."

The price war has not brought with it a marked change in business, say those in the front lines.

"It's pretty much the same as before because everyone is down," said the manager of Preston Milk Store, 438 Andrews Highway, who asked not to be named.

Phil Guinn, supervisor at Stop-N-Go No. 140 at 4500 N. Garfield, added that "there had been no change.

Still another store manager at Stop-N-Go No. 75, 3600 W. Wall, stated that "business had been about the same."

A spokesman for the Permian Basin Petroleum Association told the Odessa American that "he would be surprised if the low prices are around in two weeks" adding that the price drop represents "a local promotion event."

"Crude oil is selling for $26 to $28 per barrel — a price level that has remained relatively stable for several months," said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president.

HOSTAGES

The hostages made no mention in their letter to a sixth hostage, Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at the American University of Beirut. He has been missing since Dec.3, 1984.

Islamic Jihad claimed it had kidnapped him. But no mention has been made of him in Islamic Jihad statements in recent months.

The Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister, was released by Islamic Jihad Sept. 14. He said he had seen Anderson, Jenco, Jacobsen and Sutherland during the latter stages of his 16 months' captivity.

But he said he had never seen Buckley and Kilburn.

The letters were delivered to The AP bureau in Beirut by an unidentified young man. The guard outside the bureau said the man threw a package of letters in a blue folder, sealed with scotch tape, at his feet and told him to take it The AP. Then he drove off in a car.

AP staffers confirmed a letter from Anderson to his family was in his handwriting.

CDC pushes to shut down bath houses, stem AIDS transmission

WASHINGTON (AP) — State and local health officials should move to regulate or shut down bath houses in the battle against AIDS if those places facilitate sex with anonymous contacts or multiple partners, the federal government says.

Dr. Donald R. Hopkins, acting director of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, sent a letter Thursday to health officers in 50 states outlining a "number of additional steps" they might take to control the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Hopkins described the 11½-page letter to members of the Republican Study Committee.

Besides bath houses, the government suggested local officials "discourage the establishment or continued operation of informal sites" where drug users congregate.

Bath houses, particularly those catering to homosexuals, and "shooting galleries" for drug users have been targeted because AIDS apparently is transmitted only through sexual contact or contaminated blood. Intravenous drug users are believed to get AIDS from the dirty needles of an infected person.

NATION

Health officials say about 73 percent of the more than 14,000 AIDS cases nationwide have occurred in homosexuals. Gay people and drug abusers make up 90 percent of the cases.

Although the CDC has not ordered bath houses closed, Hopkins' letter said he "endorses state and local public health action to regulate or close these establishments" if they are found to pose a risk to public health.

That risk occurs if the bath houses "facilitate behaviors, such as anonymous contacts and/or having intercourse with multiple partners." Such behavior "clearly could lead to transmission of HTLV-III as well as other sexually transmitted diseases."

HTLV-III, the virus believed to cause AIDS, is estimated to have infected as many as 1 million people in the United States. But only 10 percent to 20 percent of those people will probably contract the disease, health officials say.

Hopkins also revealed several other things the CDC is doing to stop the spread of AIDS, which inhibits the body's immune system, blocking the ability to fight off disease. More than half the victims so far have died. No one has recovered.

Within the next few weeks, the CDC will issue guidelines for the protection of health and food workers, he said.

AIDS drug viewed with skepticism

NEW YORK (AP) — AIDS patients and others have shown no deluge of enthusiasm for using the drug cyclosporine to treat the illness, probably because they recalled past drug failures and heeded skeptical AIDS experts, observers say.

One expert also warned that cyclosporine might trigger or worsen the disease, rather than fighting it.

Cyclosporine, normally used to prevent rejection of transplanted organs, made headlines as a possible AIDS therapy last week after French researchers announced significant improvements in an AIDS patient and a woman with a related condition.

The drug was not a cure, but it might help maintain AIDS patients until a drug that eliminates the AIDS virus is found, the researchers said. Several other AIDS researchers were quoted in media reports as warning that the French work involved only a few patients, and for only a brief time. Some called the announcement premature.

The AIDS patient in the French trial is "doing very well" outside the hospital, and the AIDS-related lymph problem in the woman has disappeared, Dr. Alain Venet, one of the French researchers, said Thursday.

The French researchers have suggested that cyclosporine helps fight AIDS through its effect on the immune system, which is attacked by the AIDS virus. But an American expert warned this week that the drug's weakening of the immune system might make it particularly dangerous for treating AIDS and related conditions.

"A drug like this has the chance of turning someone who is destined to do well into someone who is destined to die," said Dr. Paul Volberding, chief of the AIDS activities division at San Francisco General Hospital.

Some AIDS patients have a good prognosis for years, and those with the so-called "AIDS-related complex" or just infection with the AIDS virus may do well for the rest of their lives, he said. But cyclosporine, by inhibiting the immune system, may worsen the immune system damage of AIDS or accelerate development of full-blown AIDS from less-serious conditions, he said.

Volberding said that among patients at his hospital, "there is a good deal of interest but it's not the sort of desperation to get on this drug that we saw with some other drugs... The feeling I get is that we're dealing with such an educated population that they know this was a premature announcement."

Spokesmen for AIDS hotlines have also found a muted reaction.

"We really didn't receive many calls on this," said Lori Behrman of Gay Men's Health Crisis in New York. "I think part of it is that the French were criticized so early in this... I think the people really listened to what the press was saying."

At AIDS Project Los Angeles, hotline coordinator Robert Schoonover said he believes cyclosporine prompted no major increase in calls. Callers generally have "heard it was premature, and they're wondering what's going on, but it's no big excitement" about trying to get the drug, he said.

A Miami AIDS hotline has averaged two or three calls a day on cyclosporine since the French announcement, "a little bit less than average for when announcements come out," said Ellen Lyon, director of clinical and support services at the Health Crisis Network.

AIDS 'major killer' of young people

ATLANTA (AP) — AIDS has become "a major killer of young people," according to a New York researcher who says the disease will soon be the No. 1 cause of premature deaths among that city's men under 65.

A study reported Thursday by the national Centers for Disease Control found that AIDS robbed New York men age 15-64 of more than five times the number of years of life that it took just two years earlier.

"There's no good news here," said Dr. Alan Kristal, epidemiologist with the New York City Health Department. "This points out the severity of the impact of the disease.

"The disease has really changed longstanding patterns of health in this country. All of a sudden, there's a new major killer of young people."

Health researchers measure "years of potential life lost" — from deaths before age 65 — as a statistical tool to determine the killers of younger people.

In 1984, AIDS killed 923 men in New York City. But since many victims of the disease, which strikes most often homosexual men and intravenous drug abusers, are relatively young, researchers found that AIDS robbed them of more than 24,400 years they could have been expected to live, the CDC reported.

"The main difference between the leading causes of death in 1984 and 1982 is the addition of AIDS," the CDC report said.

Ammonia improves poor-quality hay

By EARNEST C. KIKER

AGRICULTURE

Any hay that might be of poor quality this year can be improved by treating bales with anhydrous ammonia. And, with the winter feeding season just around the corner, the time is right to ammoniate hay.

Hay ammoniation involves covering hay bales with black plastic and treating them with anhydrous ammonia.

Hay ammoniation has a number of benefits. It increases crude protein; digestibility can be increased from 3 to 23 percent. Feeding trials have shown an increase in animal intake of 20 to 27 percent.

In feeding studies, steers fed ammoniated hay gained ½ pound more a day than those on the same type of hay, but untreated.

Cost varies from $8 to $14 a ton — about $3.65 for the plastic and $4.40 to $7.50 for 60 pounds of anhydrous ammonia (or about 3 percent of the weight of the hay). And, the payoff is an increase in the hay's feeding value of $22 to $25 per ton. So it's a good investment.

Low quality hay is a prime candidate for ammoniation. If hay has a crude protein of less than 8 percent, ammoniation will pay.

Checks in hay samples in Midland County last year showed that the hay baled would have benefitted from ammoniation.

However, sorghum type hays should not be ammoniated because of a potential problem in cattle fed such hay. Studies have found that the ammonia reacts with sugars in sorghum hays to sometimes cause wild behavior in cattle.

Treated hay should remain covered for at least three weeks before feeding. Since ammoniated hay becomes fairly loose due to a breakdown in the fiber content, it will not shed water well and should be protected from rain. Keeping the plastic on or moving the hay into a barn after the three-week waiting period is a good practice.

Also, ammoniation of cotton gin trash increased total digestible protein of gin trash from 4.36 percent to 16.7 percent after ammoniation.

Livestock were fed the ammoniated gin trash on the Roy Graham farm. Low quality roughages have poor voluntary intake; however, after ammoniation forage intake increased by 15-25 percent.

Proper ammoniation of low quality forages or gin trash could reduce your winter livestock feed bill. For further informatyion please contact the Midland County Extension Office.

Dairy farmers increasing production to record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dairy farmers are increasing milk production to record levels, and that means more butter and cheese.

The Agriculture Department says butter production in September was 93.6 million pounds, up 39 percent from September 1984. Production of American-type cheese, at 222 million pounds, was up 18 percent.

September output of non-fat dry milk for human consumption was 106 million pounds, up 49 percent from a year earlier, the department's Crop Reporting Board said this week.

Foreign sales of commodities in severe slump

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of U.S. wheat, corn and other agricultural products to foreign buyers have slumped even worse than Agriculture Department experts had predicted, according to new figures for the fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30.

The value of farm exports dropped 22 percent to a seven-year low of $31.2 billion, compared with $38 billion in 1983-84, the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday.

For the last few months, the department had been estimating 1984-85 exports at $32 billion, which already represented a scaling back from earlier projections. At $31.2 billion, last year's shipments were at the lowest level since 1977-78 when sales totaled $27.3 billion.

The report also showed the actual volume of U.S. agricultural sales last year dropped to 125.8 million metric tons, down by more than 12 percent from 143.7 million tons in 1983-84.

According to USDA records, the shipping volume was the lowest since 1976-77, a period when exports were rising rapidly, both in value and quantity.

The peak value was $43.8 billion in 1980-81, when the volume also was running at record levels of more than 160 million tons.

Since then, there has been an almost steady drop in the annual figures, blamed in part on bumper crops elsewhere in the world, poor economic conditions abroad and the relatively high value of the U.S. dollar, which makes American products more expensive overseas.

Meanwhile, the new report showed U.S. imports of foreign agricultural products rose again last year to a record of $19.8 billion, up 4 percent from 1983-84. That caused the U.S. agricultural trade surplus — the difference in the values of exports and imports — to drop to $11.4 billion, down from $19.1 billion in 1983-84 and the lowest in eight years.

"The sharp decline in...exports during fiscal 1985 was most pronounced in wheat, rice, corn, soybeans, soybean meal, soybean oil and cotton," the report said.

Although much of the value decline was due to lower prices of commodities, a shrink in actual volumes also was to blame for some, including wheat, corn and soybeans. The tonnage of wheat shipments, for example, was down 32 percent from the previous year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study by Chase Econometrics says failure of the $70 billion Farm Credit System would be a hammer blow to the U.S. economy, driving up mortgage interest rates, endangering more than 2,000 banks and prompting a wave of farm foreclosures.

The Farm Credit System, which financed the study, has asked Congress for a $6 billion bailout. Officials said they do not expect such a collapse but that the study was ordered to demonstrate the seriousness of the problem.

Gene Swackhamer, president of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, Md., said Wednesday the results of the analysis "surely would help" in the system's efforts to win support for federal financial aid.

Swackhamer said the study was ordered after initial admissions of severe financial problems in the system were met with skepticism in the Reagan administration and in Congress.

"We were shocked to hear so many say, 'let the bondholder take the hit,' or suggesting that we continue liquidating PCAs," or production credit associations, the local outlets for the system's farm operating loans, he said.

Should the 37-bank system fail to meet payments on the bonds it issues to raise loan money, the study said, "this unprecedented default would further depress agriculture, severely disrupt financial markets and seriously weaken an already fragile U.S. economy."

If a default were to occur in 1986, the analysts said specifically that:

— Loans to an additional 88,000 farmers would be foreclosed.

— Commercial banks, which are among the primary purchasers of system bonds, would lose $28 billion. That would push the number of agricultural banks now on the government's "troubled" list from its current 141 to 2,300.

— Gross National Product would drop by $76 billion over two years, while the federal budget deficit would increase by $85 billion in the same period.

Verbal slips won't stifle summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — If past practice is a guide, neither President Reagan nor Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev would take advantage of misstatements by the other at their Nov. 19-20 summit meeting in Geneva, say experts on East-West relations.

Leonid Brezhnev was "a basket case" during the last seven years of his life, but that didn't hurt the Soviet cause at the 1979 summit with President Carter in Vienna, said Paul Warnke, who was Carter's chief arms control negotiator.

"The last time I saw him (Brezhnev) back in 1978 his attention span was about five minutes," Warnke said. "And nonetheless, we were able to deal with the Soviets."

"I think Mr. Reagan looks a lot better than Mr. Brezhnev did then," Warnke said, when asked if recent misstatements by Reagan on his "Star Wars" missile defense program raised a risk of a major misunderstanding at the summit. The two leaders are to spend eight hours together in meetings.

Experts said it isn't uncommon for misstatements to be made at the summit, but that they are seldom costly because they are soon recognized as such by the other side.

"Missstatements do get corrected," said Robert E. Hunter, an East-West expert at the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies and a former official of the Carter administration. "At Geneva," he said, "I hope there will be people on our side in the room who if something can be misinterpreted will get it interpreted correctly."

Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a former official in the Nixon and Ford administrations, said he was present as a note-taker at an episode during the 1972 summit between President Nixon and Brezhnev that would have made "a terrific musical comedy."

He said the two leaders talked for three hours about the size of missile silos, thinking they were helping break an impasse in arms control negotiations, but that it was clear neither understood the subject.

"It was three hours wasted," Sonnenfeldt said. "I didn't know what the hell they were talking about." While the issue was ultimately resolved, he said, their conversation had absolutely no bearing on the outcome.

Gerard C. Smith, Nixon's chief arms control negotiator, also referring to the Nixon-Brezhnev summit, said the two leaders "with some triumph told the delegations how they had succeeded in solving the problem that had escaped our efforts for years."

"We wired back and said that's great if you want to kill the Minuteman Three program," said Smith.

The experts agree that the leaders of the superpowers shouldn't get involved in details of arms control and other issues that divide their countries. "They can give the political impulse. They can sign agreements once they are negotiated, but I think they should try to stay away from specifics," Smith said.

Sonnenfeldt said at a Brookings Institution briefing that he isn't worried that one side would attempt to gain an advantage from a misstatement by the other because it is improbable that either country would take "a risky action" based on what they would surely know was a mistake.

Manners pander to royal twosome

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was tough enough avoiding a slip of the stiff upper lip when bachelor Prince Charles came to town. Now that he's a family man, the matters of manners get rather dicey.

For starters, contrary to previous reports, the photogenic wife who will be accompanying the future king of England on her first visit to America on Saturday is not Princess Diana. There's no such lady, according to Buckingham Palace.

She's Diana, princess of Wales, with the title after the name.

Prince Charles, who was born royal and became heir apparent to the British throne when he was 4 years old, is a different case. Title before the name, please. And another after it, for that matter.

"He's Prince Charles, prince of Wales," says Linzi Thomas of the British Embassy. "She's just princess of Wales. Under no circumstances should she be called Princess Diana."

That's all well and good, but most news organizations, including The Associated Press, bend the rules for purposes of brevity. The royal family tolerates it, but you can bet that those glamour magazine nicknames, "Shy Di" and the like, don't sit well at the palace.

For that matter, no names whatever are appropriate when addressing either the prince or princess in person. "Your royal highness" is required on the first exchange. After that, "Sir" will do for Charles, and "Ma'am" for Diana — provided you pronounce it "mam." If it comes out sounding like "mum" you've used the pronunciation reserved for the queen.

Not that you should speak at all, unless first spoken to. "The tendency," says Miss Thomas, "should be for the prince and princess to initiate the conversation."

The same principle applies for handshaking. Don't breach the reach.

Then there's this curtsy business, a sticky wicket indeed.

"Bowing and curtsying is mandatory for the Brits," says Miss Thomas. "For Americans, it's entirely optional."

"For men, a slight inclination of the head will do. For women, a slight bending of the knee," she recommends.

In 1981, the State Department's then-chief of protocol, Lenore Annenberg, did a deep knee bend, a doozy of a curtsy, when Prince Charles stepped on American soil. And she was taken to task with more than a tsk.

The Washington Post's Judith Martin, writing as "Miss Manners" snapped that, "A great deal of effort was once put into freeing Americans from the necessity of bending their knees in recognition of British sovereignty, and Miss Manners believes that achievement should not be mocked."

Nixon in history

It's true that Richard Nixon is remembered as the only American president forced to resign his office as the result of a major political scandal. But will he only be remembered in those terms? That's not likely.

Although many Americans still judge Nixon for his involvement in the Watergate scandal — and the lessons of Watergate still command concern on the part of Americans where the abuse of political power is involved, the former president is becoming much more involved in activities drawing him into the limelight. He's rightly in demand at speaking engagements at which foreign and domestic affairs of this country are under discussion.

Here are some examples of Nixon's recent involvements:

— Robert McFarlane invited him to dinner recently to discuss the Geneva summit. The national security adviser was impressed by Nixon's article on the subject in Foreign Affairs magazine.

— President Reagan recently announced he frequently consults with the former president on international problems.

— Just the other day, Nixon made an appearance at an event sponsored by the National Republican Committee. He spoke at a New York assembly of black businessmen.

— He was chosen as an arbiter in a salary dispute between baseball owners and umpires.

While some Americans will never forgive Nixon for his excesses while in the Oval Office and none should forget the dangers inherent in abuses of power such as those exhibited during the Watergate years, these increasing activities by the former president reflect the esteem in which he is held despite the scandal that drove him from office.

Any history of the Nixon administration would be remiss if it failed to include such accomplishments as his visionary leadership in establishing friendly relations with the People's Republic of China and some of his domestic programs such as revenue-sharing.

Nixon will be remembered historically because of Watergate, but not only for Watergate.

Necessary defense

Of all the purposes of our federal government, none is more important than its duty to provide for the common defense. Today we have the largest peacetime defense establishment in our history. It consumes 5 percent of our gross national product.

And for good reason — the threat from abroad is greater than it has ever been in peacetime. We will be spending at least this much for our defense for the foreseeable future.

The question is bound to arise — are we getting our money's worth? The problem is not just $600 ashtrays and $800 toilet seats. The focus should be on the big picture — the kind of common defense we are providing.

If we look back through 200 years of American history, the big picture is not too bright. Since the days of the founding fathers when Gen. George Washington called himself a citizen soldier, Americans have had a prejudice against the military professional. We have never had a well-organized military establishment. Congress has always interfered excessively in the management of our military forces. The military services have remained so independent of each other in peacetime that they have trouble cooperating with each other in wartime.

Consequently, the results have been disappointing. In every war in our history, there has been bravery and devotion in the ranks, but there has been waste and corruption at home and incompetence and divided counsel at the top. Only the patriotism of our people, the great resources of our economy and the geographical isolation of our homeland have averted disaster and turned the tide of battle in our favor.

We can no longer afford disorganized defense. The world has shrunk. We are no longer isolated. We are a world power. And the technology of nuclear war puts us in constant danger. No longer can we count on years in which to mobilize a citizen army. Our military forces must be ready at all times for instant action.

It is of the utmost importance to our future as a nation that we maintain our common defense in a high state of readiness and effectiveness, and that the burden of the cost of this defense does not cripple our economy in competition with other nations which are spending less.

Another View:

The Yurchenko affair

The turnabout of Vitaly Yurchenko drives stunned observers to the full range of theories created to deal with the murk of espionage.

Always a favorite is a theory of Soviet wizardry, holding, in this instance, that the KGB cleverly planned the defection and redefection of one of its elite officials to embarrass the CIA, or to weaken Ronald Reagan's summit hand.

Another is that Yurchenko was caught up in the peculiar confusion of motives and roles to which — if the spy novels have it right — people in the business of deception are especially prone.

A third theory is that in the last year or so a cataclysm in the whole system of international espionage has created among agents and intelligence services a pervasive sense of insecurity, of familiar moorings' being lost, and has resulted in a series of defections and unmaskings that may not yet have come to an end.

A fourth school holds that Yurchenko was not nearly so big a fish as was generally supposed when he was caught.

You do not have to be able to plumb the depths of this case on the Soviet side, however, to have disturbing questions about the manner in which it was handled on the American side.

From the first exultant leaks to the press about the catch of a blue-chip defector, to the glee freely expressed in the resultant sure discomfort of the KGB, the CIA and those influenced by its briefings in Congress and elsewhere have acted in a strangely incautious and amateurish way.

It is not clear that professional procedures to ascertain the bona fides of a defector, and to retain the confidence of this difficult breed, were followed closely here.

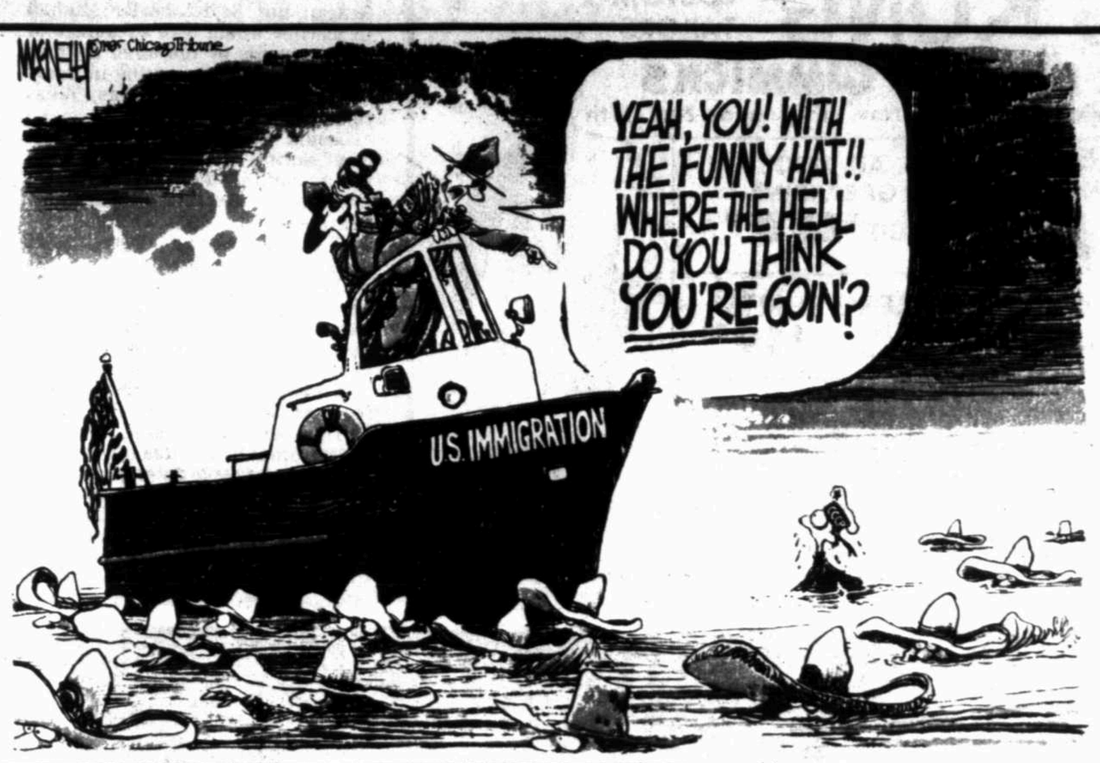
Early on, according to what has been reported, Yurchenko enjoyed cozy meetings in a social setting with the CIA's brass. Somehow, a ranking Soviet officer still in the stage of debriefing was watched so laxly that he could make his way to a Soviet haven in Washington.

Yurchenko, in his press conference on Monday, had every reason to give a report that he thought might ease his passage home in what are bound to be severe circumstances.

We understand that there are events and facts and relationships that have to be held secret in these matters.

But Americans also need a reliable explanation of what happened in this apparently unprecedented case. They need to know how the CIA let itself be made a fool of in so incredible a fashion, and how responsibility for it is to be assumed — and by whom.

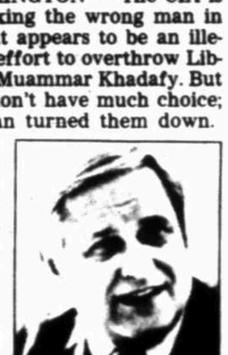
The Washington Post



JACK ANDERSON

CIA backing wrong man in Libya

WASHINGTON — The CIA is backing the wrong man in what appears to be an illegal effort to overthrow Libyan dictator Muammar Khadafy. But they really don't have much choice; the right man turned them down.



Jack Anderson

Despite an executive order that seems to forbid it, the CIA trained and supported the National Front for the Salvation of Libya before, during and after its vain attempt to assassinate Khadafy on May 8, 1984.

The anti-Khadafy group sent too few men to do the job. They were slaughtered in a daylong battle less than a mile from the barracks where the dictator was holed up behind Soviet-made tanks and anti-aircraft guns.

The coup attempt was doomed before it started. Two days before the Tripoli battle, the Salvation Front's top military man had been captured near the border as he tried to sneak in from Tunisia. But the group's leader, Mohammed Youssef Magarieff, evidently felt he had to go ahead with the operation to show his CIA and Saudi Arabian backers what they had bought with their $7 million in funding. The CIA is only too painfully aware that what they bought was just another costly fiasco.

The anti-Khadafy exile the CIA should be backing — and in fact wants to — is Abdel Moneim al-Huni, former Libyan foreign minister and one of the original 12 army officers who helped Khadafy seize power in 1969. As vice president, interior minister and counterintelligence chief in the early years, al-Huni was Khadafy's No. 3 man.

But by 1975, he had become disgusted with the corruption of the revolutionary regime and with Khadafy's treatment of dissidents and minorities. (Al-Huni once had the nerve to pass a law compensating Jews for their property that Khadafy had confiscated.)

Barring a Soviet-backed coup — always a disturbing possibility — al-Huni is the man most likely to succeed Khadafy, whose overthrow seems more likely almost by the hour. Probably for that reason, al-Huni shuns any connection, or even perceived connection, with the CIA. The merest hint of CIA support could destroy him politically. He even refused the CIA's request to lend his support to the uninspiring Magarieff.

By our own count, there are at least two dozen groups and prominent individuals who would like to see Khadafy ousted. They include leftists, rightists, monarchists and Islamic fanatics, yet al-Huni appears to be acceptable to all of them as the "Mr. Clean" of Libyan politics. Many opposition leaders have tried to enlist al-Huni's allegiance, but he has firmly resisted their overtures. He is now the leader of a coalition currently being formed.

A soft-spoken, affable and unpretentious man, al-Huni has lived quietly in Cairo since 1975. An unsuccessful coup that year in Tripoli made him fear he was under suspicion by Khadafy, according to a secret CIA report. So he decided to stay in Egypt.

In addition to his high standing with exile groups, al-Huni also worries Khadafy because of his close ties to a key faction of the 60-member Free Officers organization set up by Khadafy to run the Libyan government.

Inevitably, the dictator tried to have his dangerous rival eliminated. According to a CIA report, on March 6, 1976, three hit men armed with guns and grenades boarded a plane in Cairo on which al-Huni had booked passage to Rome. They intended to hijack it and take al-Huni to Libya. Fortunately for al-Huni (and the plane's passengers), he switched planes "after being advised to do so by Egyptian authorities as a precautionary measure," according to the CIA report, which added: "When the three Libyans arrived in Rome they were arrested."

There have been no attempts on al-Huni since then, but as he begins to speak out against Khadafy — and as the dictator's hold on Libya grows ever shakier — al-Huni will doubtless become a target again.

WHO'S NEWS — The years of power have taken their toll on the first family of the Philippines, Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos, according to recent visitors to the presidential palace. Marcos, 68, still manages to psych himself up and appear alert for television interviews, but he is noticeably slow, tired and even confused off-camera. Part of his problem may be the myriad medications he takes for his various ailments. The aging process is catching up with the once-lovely Imelda, too. The first lady is now considerably overweight. Thanks presumably to the makeup tricks she learned as a fashion model and beauty queen, Imelda looks better in photographs than in person.

MINI-EDITORIAL — We have had our differences with former Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., over the years, but we believe his nomination to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is one of the finest judicial appointments the Reagan administration has made. Whatever you might think of Buckley's politics (staunchly conservative), he is an intelligent, honest, fair-minded man of integrity. All judges should be of such sound character.

CIA warning cools detente hope

WASHINGTON — A top-secret CIA warning that the U.S. "has no way to verify the actual number of warheads deployed" on Soviet missiles threatens President Reagan's basic arms control strategy and makes difficult, perhaps impossible, agreement at the Geneva summit.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The Central Intelligence Agency delivered that warning to the president and select administration officials in a recent National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) covering Soviet strategic nuclear capabilities. Assuming the warning is accepted by the White House, the U.S. must devise new ways to verify the numbers of warheads carried by such blockbuster strategic missiles as the Soviet SS-18.

That would require the U.S. pushing stringent verification requirements, conceivably on-site inspection, that the Soviets would surely resist. Thus, the CIA warning is a cold shower lowering the temperature of detente fever in Washington raised by Secretary of State George Shultz. Shultz succeeded in releasing Reagan's arms control counter-proposal earlier than the Pentagon and some non-defense arms specialists thought prudent.

The proposal carried by Shultz to Moscow Sunday would limit the U.S. and the Soviets to 3,000 land-based strategic warheads. But the U.S. has to be certain that the Soviets are arming their heavy missiles with no more than the agreed number. It is here that the ominous CIA warning comes into play.

"We estimate that the U.S.S.R. could deploy ballistic missiles with more warheads than the number demonstrated in flight-testing," the top-secret CIA analysis informed the president. "We have no way to verify the actual number of warheads deployed." That may explain Reagan's strong emphasis on "no cheating" in last Saturday's radio broadcast on the counter-proposal.

The giant SS-18 land-based missile, the most critical first-strike weapon in today's Soviet arsenal, is suspected by CIA analysts of being secretly designed to carry 14 warheads. That is four more than the limit of 10 set by SALT II. Although the weapon has never been tested with more than 10 warheads at once, each of the 14 warhead "stations" has been armed on different test flights.

If so, that makes a nightmare for military planners keeping track of how the Soviets target U.S. objectives. Increasing the warheads on 308 SS-18s from 10 to 14 increases targets in the U.S. from 3,080 to 4,312.

This CIA analysis is not universally agreed to within the government. The Air Force, the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research and the National Security Agency are not so certain as the CIA is about a 14-warhead SS-18. All have footnoted reservations, which seem comparatively inconsequential, given the evidence of similar numbers-fudging — possibly outright cheating — in regard to other Soviet weapons.

For example, the new mobile missile, the SS-25, is rated by the Soviets as a one-warhead weapon. But suspicions are growing here that it may in fact be built as a MIRVd missile for three warheads. The SS-25's single warhead appears to weigh less than one-half the missile's throw-weight, although Article 4 of SALT II prohibits such "light" warheads for the very purpose of preventing cheating. A missile tested with only one "light" warhead can quickly be upgraded to carry more than one without the other side knowing.

Actually, Reagan's new arms control counter-proposal would scrap the SS-25 as a newly-forbidden strategic mobile missile. No such cure exists for the 308 dread SS-18 silo-busters, a harsh truth that Ronald Reagan himself appeared to be aware of shortly after he became president.

In his first press conference, nine days after he took the oath, Reagan said that "there is no verification as to the number of warheads on Soviet missiles, no method for us to do this." Coming from an ideological conservative known for his strong anti-Soviet convictions, that pronouncement by the new president went unnoticed.

Now the CIA, after back-breaking analysis of Soviet telemetry from countless SS-18 tests, has come to the same conclusion. So, if there is to be any movement at the summit toward arms control agreement, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev must accept iron-clad verification procedures that were anathema to all his nuclear-age predecessors. Here is the harsh reality that ought to restrain Washington's escalating detente euphoria.

CHARLEY REESE

All people deserving of respect

The youth bought two bags of candy and a pack of cigarettes. He paid for them with a check and he had to produce two separate pieces of identification. The clerk, a young girl with a punk hairdo, was impatient and snippy.

Charley Reese

Soiled T-shirt, faded jeans, heavy work shoes said he was a laborer. His bent shoulders, his lowered head, his hesitant and muffled voice said he felt bad about himself, especially in front of a pretty young girl who wasn't hiding the fact that she had zilch interest in him as a man. The $27 balance and the last deposit of $100 said he didn't make much money.

Standing next to him in the check-out line, I felt for the kid. You can't blame the girl at the register. She isn't old enough yet to understand what a friendly smile and a casual but kind word can do for a guy with a low self-image. But I know how a young boy in work clothes with empty pockets feels in the presence of unattainable angels.

I know, too, that somebody has to speak up for people like that boy — working people in low-pay jobs who are trying to find some dignity and meaning in an affluent society that seems to say that if you aren't a big spender, you're nothing.

There is no such thing as a nothing human being. Every human being on this earth is unique and is entitled by virtue of his or her birth to dignity and respect. Income has nothing to do with it. Education has nothing to do with it. The kind of work a person does has nothing to do with it. The color of their skin has nothing to do with it. Human beings deserve to be treated with respect — period.

I can buy death, disease, and trauma. We are mortal creatures and those things come with life. I can buy even fighting because conflicts arise and sometimes that's the only way they can be resolved. But I am at a loss to understand gratuitous unkindness — rudeness, disdain, snobbishness, arrogance, and contempt. Those qualities pull my trigger.

I have made it a lifelong practice never to socialize or attempt to develop friendships with politicians and other prominent people I come into contact with as a newspaperman. One reason is I don't want any personal feelings to get in the way of my job. The other reason is that I know it's the newspaper, not me, they want as a friend.

Sure, a public official if he has any brains at all, will return a newspaperman's calls so I never judge a politician on how he treats me but rather on how he treats ordinary people. If he doesn't treat the most humble citizen with the same attention and courtesy he treats the press, then I have no respect for him.

The American Revolution was fought to rid us of kings and nobility. Every single American citizen stands on exactly equal footing with every other and is entitled to the same rights as every other.

No American, regardless of his circumstances, should ever hesitate to look another person square in the eye and to hold his head up. We are a republic of equal citizens, not a land of servants and masters. No American should ever tolerate insult or disdain from anybody.

I gave a ride once to a man who said he had just gotten out of prison and was on his way home. He was weeping bitter tears. He had just stopped at a house to ask for some food and a woman had agreed to give him some. But she had put the plate on the steps.

"She wouldn't even hand it to me," he said. "She put it down on the steps like I was a dog. But I'm not a damned dog. I'm John Henry Anderson and I'm a man among men."

Amen, John Henry.

Pot-smoking pilots affected 24 hours

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pot-smoking pilots suffered impaired flying ability a full day after they used marijuana — and one even missed a simulated runway — although they believed their performance was not harmed, a study found.

While the preliminary study involved only 10 pilots, it suggested that even experienced aviators "had better stay out of a plane for at least 24 hours" after smoking marijuana, Stanford University psychiatrist Dr. Jerome Yesavage said Thursday during a telephone interview.

"I'd watch out for the guy who smokes the night before and then flys in the morning, particularly in bad weather conditions," said Yesavage, who also is a licensed commercial pilot and chief of psychiatric intensive care at the Palo Alto Veterans Administration Medical Center.

The study, published in the November issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry, involved 10 licensed, private pilots recruited from Palo Alto's airport, then trained for eight hours on a flight simulator at the Veterans Administration hospital.

All had smoked pot previously, but were not daily users.

Boxer may be freed

Carter

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge who cleared the way for the release of former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter after 19 years behind bars said letting the controversial triple murder conviction stand would be as heinous as the crime.

Ruling that the 1976 convictions of Carter and alleged accomplice John Artis were marred by racial prejudice, U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin on Thursday granted a writ of habeas corpus for Carter, whose cause was championed by celebrities and became subject of a ballad by Bob Dylan.

Sarokin set a hearing for today to consider Carter's freedom.

John P. Goceljak, Passaic County first assistant prosecutor, said the state would announce today whether it would appeal the ruling or seek a third trial.

"I disagree with the judge's interpretation of the evidence," he said.

Sarokin ruled that the former middleweight contender's conviction along with that of John Artis was based on "racial stereotypes" and errors by the prosecution.

Authorities claimed Carter and Artis — both black — shot up a bar in Paterson on June 17, 1966, killing three white men, as retaliation for the shooting of a black man earlier in the day.

Rebels get radios

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaraguan rebels stand to get sophisticated radios under a new congressional compromise, but the CIA still will be barred from giving them military advice or training, according to sources.

House and Senate negotiators reached tentative agreement Thursday on the 1986 intelligence authorization bill, which one member said granted the Reagan administration "some very modest reinterpretation" of congressional limits on CIA support for the rebels.

The agreement still needs final approval from the House and Senate intelligence committees and the full House and Senate, but passage is expected to come easily.

Congressional sources, insisting on anonymity, said the rebels would be given special radios so intelligence information they receive from the CIA can be broadcast to their base camps along the Honduran-Nicaraguan border without being intercepted by Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Reagan 'radios' Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan wants to tell the people of the Soviet Union of his hopes for peace and a successful summit, and his administration has challenged the Soviets to clear their airwaves so his message can be heard.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes announced Thursday the president will use his Saturday radio address — lengthened to 10 minutes — to discuss his Nov. 19-20 summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva.

Bowen should be OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Indiana governor Otis R. Bowen, President Reagan's choice as new secretary of health and human services, should find "clear sailing" during his Senate confirmation, says the chairman of the panel that will hold hearings on the nomination.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Thursday he anticipates tough but fair questioning of Bowen on Medicare and Medicaid financing, but predicted Bowen would have no trouble.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, whose Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee also has jurisdiction over HHS, endorsed Bowen's nomination, saying that while he faces "challenges perhaps greater than any of his predecessors," Bowen also brings a "wealth of experience...expertise and sound judgment" to the job.

Congress cuts out for holiday, leaving Treasury on hold

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Treasury about to go broke and the government facing a shutdown unless there's quick action, Congress is leaving town for a long Veterans Day weekend.

The House and Senate scheduled pro-forma sessions today, meaning no legislative business will be done because members already have scattered. That leaves just three working days before midnight Thursday — the deadline for Congress to pass bills needed to keep the government from shutting down and slipping into insolvency.

But would meeting over the weekend make any difference?

"There's no way that this problem's going to be solved until the deadline," said Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo., expressing a widely held view that the opposing camps will wait until the last minute before making major concessions.

At the heart of the legislative logjam is the fight between Republicans and Democrats over competing plans designed to force Congress and the president to gradually eliminate the nation's annual budget deficits, currently running at about $200 billion.

The Republican-led Senate approved its balanced-budget amendment a month ago, setting gradually smaller deficit targets.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight and Saturday...sunny and windy. Highs mid 80s. Southwest wind 20 to 30 mph and gusty. Area lake wind advisories will be required.

Strong winds anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

Sunny skies and warm temperatures are forecast for the Midland area Saturday but strong winds may put a damper on any outdoor activities, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Fair skies and a low in the mid-50s tonight are expected become sunny with a high in the mid-80s Saturday. Tonight's southwesterly winds at 10 to 20 mph will increase to 20 to 30 mph and become gusty Saturday.

Thursday's high of 64 was 24 degrees below the record set in 1963. This morning's low was 21 degrees above the 1938 record of 22.

STATE

A large high pressure system moving eastward across the Lone Star State heralded a gradual warming trend over the northern two-thirds of the state today, while some high winds were expected in northwest sections.

Skies were clear over North, East and West Texas while low-level clouds continued to spread across southern sections into the central part of the state.

Winds were light and variable over parts of South Texas and south to southeast at 5 to 15 mph elsewhere in the state.

Low temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s except for the 60s over parts of South Texas and the lower Rio Grande valley. But readings dipped into the 30s over the mountainous southwest.

Extreme readings ranged from 32 degrees at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 70 degrees at the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi.

The National Weather Service predicted windy conditions over the west with some blowing dust in the Panhandle and South Plains.

Mostly fair skies were expected in western sections with increasing clouds over the rest of the state through Saturday. Highs should be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

NATION

Snow piled up in the passes of the northern Rockies early today, as winter storm watches were issued for the Black Hills and surrounding plains with up to a half-foot of snow expected by nightfall.

Snow was scattered across much of Montana, and the National Weather Service said it could become locally heavy over the southern and western mountains as cold Canadian air spread southward.

Great Falls, Mont., got 2 inches of snow in a six-hour period ending at 1 a.m.

He's known as "the King of Late Night Radio." He might be headed for similar coronation on television.

Larry King, who hosts a nationwide interview and call-in show on Mutual Radio, and the one-hour "Larry King Live" on Cable News Network, joined NBC's "NFL '85" pre-game show this season. His segments, which are part fact, part rumor, part gossip and part clairvoyance, are among the most popular on the program. And they are at least partially responsible for "NFL '85's" soaring ratings.

"The feedback shocks me," says King, who was approached to join the cast by Mike Weisman, NBC Sports' executive producer. "Everywhere I go, people say, 'What will you do Sunday?'

"It's a unique kind of a look, a sports column of the air."

So far, King has offered tidbits on baseball expanding to include a team in Washington and the FBI investigating the internal organization of umpires' union. The expansion issue is far from settled; an FBI spokesman says he is unaware of any investigation, and the umps called King's report an "attempt to demean the integrity of our union."

Rebs in playoff, but City title still at stake

For Midland High, there is no tomorrow, only tonight. For Midland Lee, there is the possibility of a District 4-5A championship. Win the title or not, Lee is still in the playoffs.

These two teams with different futures have one goal in common: Win tonight in their 8 p.m. meeting at Memorial Stadium

What does a victory mean?

For the Bulldogs, it means a .500 season. Midland High is taking a 4-5 record into the game, 2-4 in 4-5A play. It also means pride, the opportunity for city bragging rights for the next year.

For the Rebels, a victory means a shot at the district title. However, that can only come if unbeaten and once-tied Odessa Permian loses to Odessa High at Ratliff Stadium. A victory can change next week's bi-district playoff opponent from Amarillo High (District 3-5A champion) to Amarillo Palo Duro. A victory also means the bragging rights and a positive attitude for future games. The Rebels own a 7-2 overall record, 5-1 in 4-5A play.

"The pressure of getting into the playoffs has been removed by our win last week. We're in there," said Lee coach Jack Tayrien. "Our pressure lies in playing the last game of the regular season, no matter if it is Midland High or somebody else. You always want to end the season on a good note and I'm sure they want to, too."

"The biggest thing about the game is it's a big, emotional thing," said Midland High coach Doug McCutchen. "Lee's got a lot of incentive because they're going to the playoffs. Lee's got momentum. Both sides want to win because each team knows the players on the other and wants the bragging rights."

TO CLAIM those desired bragging rights means two different styles of play, at least as far as offenses are concerned. Defensively, both teams play out of the 4-3 formation.

Statistically, the defensive edge this season goes to Lee in total yardage, allowing only 2,284 yards to Midland's 2,606. Lee has fared better against the run than the Bulldogs, leading that battle 1,237-1,765, but the Bulldogs have been better against the pass, 841-1,047.

"We think they are an excellent defensive football team," said Tayrien. "Their front four and linebackers are highly involved in the game. I hope we can just pick up some yards against them."

"Their defense, at times, has really been awesome," said McCutchen. "But, at times, like against Big Spring, they've given up a lot of yardage but come through when needed. Against Odessa and Permian, the defense was very good when it had to be."

Offense is where the difference lies.Midland High is the more balanced in rushing and passing out of the veer while the Rebels are noted for their wishbone rushing attack.

Lee is the district's top offensive team with 3,239 yards while Midland High has 2,682. The Rebels Have rushed for 2,583 yards and passedanother 656. The Bulldogs have 1,414 ground yards and another 1,268 through the air.

Individually, Midland High quarterback Matt Marcum is No. 2 in the conference with 1,259 yards behind Big Spring's Carl Speck. Marcum has also thrown for seven touchdowns and had 12 passes intercepted, but only one in the last three games.

"He's extremely effective with the pass," said Tayrien, "and, they do an excellent job blocking for him"

The Bulldogs have three of the top eight 4-5A receivers in Kenny De La Garza, Bobby Williams and Jake Madrid. Madrid is also in the Top 10 in rushing with 580 yards.

MC, OC, HC, SPC make it all-WJCAC semifinals

Midland College had a rough time against Grayson County College Thursday night for all of three minutes and 35 seconds. That's how long it took the Chaps to break a 2-2 deadlock enroute to a 79-52 Chaparral Classic opening round victory.

Odessa College beat Garden City, Kan., Community College, 66-64; Howard College escaped an upset at the hands of Lubbock Christian JV, 70-68 and South Plains College coasted by Murray State, 95-56, in other first round games.

In today's second round action, Grayson and McMurray of Abilene open play at 2 p.m. followed by Garden City and Murray State at 4 p.m. The semifinals are an all-WJCAC show with Midland College and South Plains at 7 p.m. and Howard College and Odessa College at 9 p.m.

Once the Chaps broke the tie, on a steal and slam dunk by Ricky Grace, Midland College led 14-2 on a second Grace slam after Mookie Blaylock's steal and pass, and took a 24-4 edge with 7:02 left to play when Grace went coast-to-coast for a layup.

MC led 34-15 lead at the half and held a 20-point margin most of the final 20 minutes of play.

MC coach Jerry Stone looked at the game from defensive and experience-gaining point of views.

"I thought, in the first half, we played pretty good defense," said Stone. "In the second half, we played a lot of people and, with a big lead, we got a little sloppy. We got a lot of people in the game ant that's good for this early in the year. We want to keep working toward the finals."

Offensively, the Chaps hit 32-of-68 from the field and a dismal 15-of-25 from the free throw line. Most of the foul shooting problems were in the first half when the Chaps converted only 4-of-12.

Chaps' Grace and Lincoln 'Ice' Minor set the pace with 14 each while Blaylock scored 12. For Grayson, Deon Phelps was the only player in double figures with 12 points.

TWO OF the tournament's games turned into real thrillers, coming down to last second scores to claim victories.

Odessa College trailed the Broncbusters by one with 18 seconds left to play, 64-63, and seemed destined for defeat with Garden City owning the ball.

Wrangler Ronald Sykes had a different idea as he stole the in-bounds pass under the OC bucket and drove to the bucket for two points. Sykes was fouled on the play and his ensuing free throw gave the Wranglers a 66-64 lead that held up for the victory.

In the final game of the night, Howard College fought a suspense-filled cliff hanger with Lubbock Christian's Junior Varsity and needed a buzzer shot to claim the victory.

After LCJV scored to tie the game with five seconds left, Hawk Bruck Kimble put up a shot at the buzzer that saw nothing but net.

South Plains College and Murray State College saw very little drama as SPC jumped out to a one-sided 41-29 halftime lead.

McMurry is substituting for LCJV today but Lubbock Christian will be back to conclude play on Saturday.

According to Stone, "South Plains looks pretty good to me. I think they have some size and they try to play good, solid defense."

Hogs find no time to enjoy Rice with hungry Bears watching, waiting

Associated Press

Arkansas' head coach Ken Hatfield says he had to cut short his enjoyment of last weekend's 30-15 victory over the Rice Owls to start worrying about the Baylor Bears.

"You should always take time to enjoy the good moments ... but it isn't hard to start thinking about Baylor. They are outstanding," Hatfield said.

Baylor stands alone atop the Southwest Conference football standings with a perfect 5-0 conference record, and the only blemish all year was a narrow 17-14 loss to Georgia early in the season.

But the Bears are three-point underdogs to Arkansas in 2:30 p.m. Saturday's regionally televised game at War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock before an expected capacity crowd of 53,555.

Elsewhere around the league, Texas is at Houston in a 12:04 p.m. regionally televised joust, Texas Christian is at Texas Tech at 2 p.m. and Rice is at Southern Methodist at 2 p.m.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Is it Marcum or Young night?

Midland High and Midland Lee play one for serious fun tonight at Memorial Stadium with the Rebels leading the football rivalry by a 13-9 count with two ties thrown in for good measure.

Lee has won eight of the last nine games played between the two teams, losing only by a 14-6 margin in 1982. That would indicate a solid Rebel dominance, but this series is closer than you would think.

In 10 of the last 11 games, the point spread has been only 14 points or less. In seven of those 11 games, the point spread has been eight points or less, which is only a touchdown and a two point conversion.

Still, it's been a Rebel party for the most part. Prior to 1982, you have to go back to 1973 to find another Bulldog victory, a wild 46-27 decision. The two teams had back-to-back ties in the 1974-75 seasons and Lee was in the playoffs in 1974.

There will be two Midlanders with more than just passing interest in tonight's outcome. Lee booster Jake Young and Midland High booster Gordon Marcum both have sons playing at the respective schools, but these two have a lot of pressure on them tonight.

The two booster clubs have joined forces since 1977 to award the winning team with an engraved plaque. Each year the score and the winning team is put on the plaque and is kept at the athletic office at Memorial Stadium under the care and watchful eye of Gil Bartosh.

The losing booster club president must present the award to the other school during its booster club meeting. That's where Young and Marcum come in. How would you like to be in their shoes? Who would blame them if they suited up tonight?

Here's the picks for District 4-5A's final regular season fling while carrying a 37-11 picking record with 4-5A squads.

Midland Lee 21, Midland High 14: The one touchdown trend continues, but this is still bad news for one Gordon Marcum. I hope he has kept Tuesday night free because he has a job to do.

Odessa Permian 24, Odessa High 7: If the Bronchos pull a surprise over in Ratliff, one Jake Young might weep. The Rebs might throw the game to MHS to keep its Saturday playoff date with Amarillo High. Don't worry Jake. It won't happen.

Abilene High 25, Abilene Cooper 7: This is a battle for last place in 4-5A and that belongs to Cooper. Despite Abilene High's meager 1-4-1 district record, most coaches in the league feel the Eagles would be a good playoff team.

San Angelo 30, Big Spring 18: Three in a row for the Steers? No way while the Bobcats think of storing the equipment for another year.

Terry Williamson is the Assistant Sports Editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

Unsers facing showdown, but where's the pressure?

MIAMI (AP) — Al Unser Jr. was sitting in the press tent when his father suddenly roared in aboard a mini-bike.

Al Unser, a two-time season champion and two-time Indianapolis 500 winner, stopped near the podium, turned off the loud motor and said, "How's that for an entrance? Top that, kid."

The 23-year-old son, a broad grin on his freckled face, responded, "Youth walks in, age drives in."

It would be hard to tell if there is any pressure on father and son this weekend as they battle head-to-head for the CART-PPG season championship and the $300,000 payoff that goes with it.

As that little exchange of quips on Thursday suggested, the 46-year-old father and his son are enjoying every minute of their unusual battle, which the elder Unser leads by a mere three points going into the season finale.

The championship will be decided Saturday in the 200-mile Beatrice Indy Challenge on the new 1.784-mile, nine-turn circuit twisting through Tamiami Park.

The Indy cars got out onto the track for the first time Thursday, with Danny Sullivan leading the way through a pair of hour-long practice sessions.

Sullivan, the elder's Unser's teammate, averaged 109.121 mph in the final session of the day.

He was followed by Bobby Rahal at 108.198, Roberto Guerrero of Colombia at 107.934, Jan Lammers of Holland at 107.578, Bruno Giacomelli of Italy at 107.366 and Mario Andretti at 107.210.

Pressure's off as Clippers lose

Associated Press

The pressure is off. Now, the pressure is on.

The Los Angeles Clippers fell from the ranks of the unbeaten Thursday night, losing 137-115 at Houston, and Coach Don Chaney said he thought mental attitude might have had something to do with it.

"We have not conditioned ourselves to continue winning," Chaney said. "I felt our players were content to have won five games in a row. The pressure if off, but we need to start another streak."

Nuggets 131, Mavericks 99

Elston Turner scored 10 points to lead Denver on a 26-6 run that produced a 56-39 halftime lead, and the Nuggets buried Dallas to preserve their unbeaten record for at least one more game. The Mavericks shot just 32.7 percent from the field, hitting only 34 of 104 attempts.

Alex English led the Nuggets with 30 points in only 25 minutes' play.

Derek Harper led Dallas lwith 23 points.

Nets 106, Bulls 97

Buck Williams led the Nets on two surges — one in the second period and another in the third quarter — to rally New Jersey over Chicago. Williams scored four points as the Nets ran off 10 straight to take a 50-49 halftime lead, then sparked another 10-point run with a basket as New Jersey broke a 56-56 tie.

Williams had 10 of his 23 points in the third quarter as the Bulls lost their fourth straight since the loss of Michael Jordan, who broke a bone in his left foot on Oct. 29.

NBA

Bucks 92, Knicks 88

Ricky Pierce and Terry Cummings led a surge that erased an eight-point New York lead with 7:07 left and rallied Milwaukee over the winless Knicks, 0-7 and losers of 19 straight since last March 22. Pierce and Cummings had eight points apiece in the burst that saw Milwaukee outscore New York 20-8.

Sidney Moncrief led Milwaukee with 21 points, while Cummings had 17. Pierce scored 10 of his 12 points in the fourth quarter. Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 24 points, and Gerald Wilkins had 22.

Lakers 116, Jazz 106

The Lakers came back from a 59-51 halftime deficit behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and outscored Utah 65-47 in the final two quarters. Abdul-Jabbar scored 15 of his 25 points after halftime

Cavaliers 95, Kings 94

World B. Free scored 29 points, including consecutive three-point baskets that gave Cleveland an 88-85 lead with three minutes to play, and the Cavaliers hung on with the help of a steal by Johnny Davis with two seconds left.

With 10 seconds to play, Phil Hubbard of the Cavaliers missed two free throws that gave Sacramento a last opportunity to win. But Davis stole stole the ball from Kings forward Eddie Johnson to prevent a final shot.

Flyers coast to ninth straight win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After the Philadelphia Flyers coasted to their ninth straight victory, Chicago Black Hawks Coach Bob Pulford was in no mood to talk.

When reporters approached Pulford after the Flyers' 6-2 victory Thursday night, he said, "Who needs this . . .?" and nothing more.

The Flyers spotted Chicago a quick goal, then reeled off six straight, two in each period, to improve their record to 11-2, best in the National Hockey League.

"Everyone is playing well," said Flyer right wing Tim Kerr, who scored his 12th and 13th goals. "We're all filling our roles and getting great goaltending."

Pelle Lindbergh had to face a mere 20 shots to post his sixth victory against two losses. The team's goals-against average is 2.77, best in the league.

"We had a real tough game last night," Flyer Coach Mike Keenan said of the Ranger contest. "To come back and play with that intensity is very satisfying. They (the Black Hawks) had their chances, but by and large we had a pretty solid game.

"The intensity certainly picked up for our hockey club when we cashed in on that power play. It seemed to me that it gave our hockey club a spark. I think you see our team is maturing."

One of the young Flyers, center Ron Sutter, scored the Flyers' third goal and assisted on veteran Mark Howe's two goals.

Bruins 2, Whalers 1

Doug Keans made 30 saves, including 13 in the first period as Boston tied idle Quebec for the lead in the Adams Division.

Rookie Dave Pasin scored 59 seconds after the opening faceoff, and Ken Linseman scored goal midway through the second period as the Bruins improved their record to 9-3-1, including 5-0 at home.

Keans lost a bid for his first shutout of the season and fourth of his NHL career on a power play goal by Hartford's Bobby Crawford with 2½ minutes remaining.

"There's no question, there can be no doubt in anyone's mind, the goaltender won us a hockey game," Boston Coach Butch Goring said.

Majors scan horizon for expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Phoenix is up, New Orleans is on deck and four other designated pitchers are warming up today in major league baseball's biggest game of the week — expansion.

Buffalo, N.Y.; New Jersey, Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla., and Nashville, Tenn., also are scheduled to make their bids for franchises to baseball's Long Range Planning Committee and Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

They follow appearances Thursday by groups from Columbus, Ohio; Denver, the Miami area, Washington, D.C.; Vancouver, British Columbia, and Indianapolis.

One thing was as certain today as it was on Thursday — Ueberroth and the committee members were going to listen intently and appreciatively without making anything resembling a commitment.

"We will not be making any announcements or commitments or putting together any kind of timetable in the next couple of days," Ed Durso, baseball's executive vice president, secretary-treasurer and general counsel, said during a break in Thuro Giants' situation — whether the National League team remains in northern California or moves elsewhere — is likely to be decided before baseball starts awarding new franchises.

"It strikes me that that situation is on a much faster track than the ex-

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, November 9, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Taking a public stand on a controversial issue could win you the support of someone in a position to help your career. New financial gains are part of the picture. You are finally able to do something you have planned for a long time. Do not ask someone to make a commitment unless you are ready to do the same. A child plays a key role in your success and happiness. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Hedy Lamarr, Charlie Robinson of "Night Court," actor-bodybuilder Lou Ferrigno, singer Mary Travers, former Florida Governor Donald Graham, famed newspaper publisher-abolitionist Elijah P. Lovejoy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be careful not to jump to conclusions. You may not have the facts. If romance or your career seems to be headed in the wrong direction, change course. Wave the olive branch.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be careful not to take on more than you can handle. Entertaining at home can be relaxing if you keep things simple. Get better acquainted with an interesting newcomer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A rash choice could cause problems. Take your time when making important decisions. Entertaining close friends at home proves more fun than going out. Spend more time with children.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Greater self-discipline is the key to bigger accomplishments. Devote more effort to your personal relationships. A gesture of good will means a lot to a new neighbor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You profit from becoming more social-minded. Be generous with those who lack your talents. Great things can be accomplished if you are willing to work in the background for a while.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Give some thought to a career or business decision you must make next week. You may have more options than you realize. Resist the temptation to throw in the towel. Perseverance pays off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give your imagination free rein and there is no telling what brilliant ideas you may come up with! A surprising development could give you second thoughts about romance. Ask for an explanation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An unusual coincidence brings about a much-desired meeting. Buying a few items for your wardrobe boosts your spirits and confidence. You enjoy good luck where romance or finance is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your dedication and hard work begin to pay off. Avoid showing impatience with your associates. A new home could be part of the picture. Romance gets a helping hand from an old friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You succeed where others have failed! New financial backers come forward. A desire for change will soon be fulfilled. Trust your intuition when interviewing potential partners and employees. Romance progresses nicely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Talking something over with an acquaintance helps you clarify your ideas. The two of you could decide to pool your resources. Get any financial promises in writing. A new project is a winner!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good time to travel. Loved ones are more affectionate than in the recent past. A chance encounter could lead to an exhilarating romance. You make a quick decision.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇
Pass	2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

It has become fashionable to preempt on the smell of an oil rag. However, remaining silent can have its advantages, as this deal from a major team match testifies.

At one table, West made a preemptive two spade overcall of the one heart opening bid. North jumped to four hearts, and East elected to try a vulnerable sacrifice of four spades which was passed round to North, who doubled. The defenders took their five tricks for 500 points to North-South.

At the other table, West saw no reason, at this vulnerability, to plunge into the auction. As a result, North-South had an unobstructed path to their heart game.

West opened his singleton club. At double dummy, it is easy to see that declarer can make his contract by rising with the ace of clubs, drawing trumps and then banking on a successful diamond finesse. The defenders will collect only two spade tricks and a club.

However, declarer could not be sure that either minor suit finesse would succeed or, indeed, that trumps were going to break. Since nothing had happened in the auction to suggest that West held a wildly unbalanced hand, the lead looked for all the world like fourth-best in the suit. So declarer made the normal play of following low from dummy — and the roof fell in.

East won the king of clubs and returned the seven, a suit preference signal for the higher-ranking side suit — in this case, spades. West ruffed and dutifully underled his ace of spades. East won the queen and gave his partner another club ruff, and the defenders had the first four tricks in the bag.

Iglesias 'walks' into big-star status

Iglesias

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recording artist Julio Iglesias thanked America for honoring him with the 1,814th star on Hollywood's fabled Walk of Fame, recognition he said left him in awe as a young man.

"What happened today in the Hollywood Boulevard, receiving the star, is a dream come true," Iglesias, 42, said Thursday.

The Spanish-born crooner is the only recording star to ever receive the "Diamond Disc" award from the Guinness Book of World Records for worldwide sales of 965 gold and 350 platinum records.

For one of his biggest hits in the United States, "To All the Girls I've Ever Loved," he teamed up with country star Willie Nelson.

Davis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. will undergo reconstructive hip surgery Monday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, says publicist Arnold Lipsman.

Davis, 59, was reported in excellent condition at the hospital, where he was taken after pain in his hip interrupted a Las Vegas engagement on Nov. 1.

Dr. Eugene Harris, an orthopedic surgeon, will perform the surgery, Lipsman said. According to Dr. Harris, the recovery will take four to six weeks.

The surgery often is performed on athletes and dancers, Lipsman said.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Bill Allain attended both Mississippi and Notre Dame but the state's chief executive says he'll be rooting for the home team when the two schools meet on the football field Saturday.

"Being from Ole Miss and being governor of Mississippi, you have to pull for your state team," Allain said. "I like to see all Mississippi universities win."

But Allain, who studied at both Ole Miss and Notre Dame, confessed to feeling a little tug at the heart whenever the team that once boasted the likes of Knute Rockne, George Gipp and The Four Horsemen takes to the field.

"You still have a little feeling for your team," he said. "Maybe you could pray for a tie."

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Royal Watch: No more counting necessary. With Samsonites gripped firmly in hand, Charles and Diana arrive Saturday morning at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

After their lengthy visit to Australia, where they actually got to meet the natives, Washington will be quite different. Everything here is so carefully orchestrated and formal that the royals will probably go home with the idea that most Americans dress like characters in "Brideshead Revisited."

There is little chance that Diana will have an experience here similar to one in Canberra Thursday, where she and her husband visited a construction site and the workers wolf-whistled appreciatively at her.

One of them, bare chested, wearing shorts and with a T-shirt around his head, engaged Diana in conversation. He said she wasn't at all snobby and told him she liked his hat.

The royal visit even has ramifications in a fight over the firing of a librarian at a private library in Northeast Harbor, Maine, where many of the wealthy summer.

Radio stations WWMJ and WDEA of Ellsworth and Bangor, owned by former St. Louis Post Dispatch bureau chief Richard Dudman and his wife Helen Sloane Dudman, report that members of the private-library board from Philadelphia, Fifth Avenue and Palm Beach are expected for a Saturday meeting to settle the spat.

However, that is not a good date for Brooke Astor. She has complained bitterly by letter that that is the one day she can't be there. She has to be at the White House that evening to dine with Charles and Diana.

That seems an acceptable excuse, and now we know another name from the closely guarded White House guest list.

If you want to see superstar Tom Selleck, he's expected to be dining there that night also.

Liberace

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Liberace, who got a clean bill of health after tests for back pain this week, plans to take time off from his concert schedule to work on an autobiography, his manager said.

"He's had back pains from time," Seymour Heller said Thursday. Liberace, 66, underwent the tests Tuesday, Heller said, and "every test turned out negative. He's in very good health."

Liberace, who has a home in Las Vegas, will remain secluded at a Malibu, Calif., retreat to finish the book, "The Private World of Liberace," Heller said. He is scheduled to resume his concert performances in February.

'What's Wrong with Cowboys' proving contagious

An AP Sports Analysis
By DAVE GOLDBERG

In Anaheim last Sunday, the Los Angeles Rams beat the New Orleans Saints 28-10 to run their record to 8-1 and were booed for their trouble. Two weeks ago, when they were 7-0, the Los Angeles Times was running letters asking, "What's wrong with the Rams?"

The New York Giants are tied for the lead in the NFC East, and their 6-3 record is their best nine-game mark since 1970. After they beat Tampa Bay 22-20 last Sunday, the question most heard around New York was, "What's wrong with the Giants?"

In Denver last season, the Broncos won nine in a row, then dropped to 10-2 when a Rich Karlis field goal that could have tied the game with Seattle hit an upright. The next day, communicants with the local papers suggested that Coach Dan Reeves be fired because his game plan was too conservative.

Is no one satisfied?

"We hear it all the time," says Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, who are 6-3 and tied with the Giants for first place in the NFC East.

"That's what comes from 20 years of success. They don't expect you to lose a game. With the Giants, it's the opposite. They were poor for so long, that once they become good, everyone thinks they're going straight to the Super Bowl."

There's another factor.

Parity doesn't necessarily mean that everyone will finish 9-7, 8-8 or 7-9. But it might mean that good teams now beat bad ones by a touchdown or less instead of three TDs or more.

So when the Rams beat Tampa Bay 31-27 or Minnesota 13-10, or even Kansas City 16-0 or New Orleans 28-10, people are unhappy.

"You can't please everyone, but when you look at the standings you can see that we're 8-1," says Dieter Brock, the Rams' quarterback.

But as a frustrated Giants season-ticket holder said after Sunday's narrow escape against the Bucs:

"I know, I know ... they won. But they gave me a heart attack doing it. It could have been 34-13 or 42-13. It should have been."

WILLIAM PERRY'S National Football League career consists of one sack, three carries for five yards and a touchdown and one four-yard TD reception for the Chicago Bears.

So CBS is rearranging its schedule to show the Refrigerator to as much of the nation as it can.

The network had originally planned to give most of its outlets the Rams and Giants as the first half of a doubleheader Sunday, to be followed by the Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins. But when the 308-pound Fridge caught that touchdown pass against Green Bay last week, that did it — Perry's Bears against the Lions replaced the Giants and Rams.

But CBS is also taking out insurance.

If the Bears-Lions game becomes a blowout, the network might switch to the Giants-Rams in the second half — it has that right if one team leads by 18 points or more in the second half.

"One of the problems with the Bears," says Terry O'Neil, the network's executive producer for the NFL, "is that they're so good, that their games may be mismatches."

CRAIG JAMES, the New England running back, is fourth in the AFC in rushing with 606 yards.

He's also got a pretty good record as a passer.

Under the formula used to determine passing efficiency in the NFL, the highest rating possible is 159. James, who has completed two passes in two attempts for two touchdowns, has a rating of a 139.6.

But that leaves him fourth in the NFL.

At the top is a quarterback, Don Strock of Miami, who is six for seven for 132 yards and one 67-yard TD. His rating is 158.3.

Second, at 158, is wide receiver Brian Brennan of Cleveland, who used to catch Doug Flutie's passes at Boston College. Brennan is one for one for 33 yards and a TD.

At 156 is Johnny Jones, the Dallas fullback. One for one for a 12-yard TD.

UNLIKE last season, when the AFC West dominated outside opposition and the AFC and NFC Central divisions couldn't beat anyone, there's relative parity among the NFL's divisions this season. But the NFC East and AFC West are still best.

Sports Briefs

TENNIS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Top-seeded John McEnroe, gunning for an unprecedented fourth Stockholm Open-Scandinavian title, advanced to the quarterfinals of the Grand Prix with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Juan Antonio Rodriguez of Spain. Tim Wilkison was eliminated by third-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden 6-2, 6-2 in an earlier center-court match. Also, Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland whipped Thierry Tulasne of France 6-3, 6-3 and fifth-seed Anders Jarryd overcame fellow-Swede Jonas Svensson 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

GYMNASTICS

MONTREAL — Oksana Omeliantchik and Elena Shoushounova both scored perfect 10s on the floor as the Soviet Union easily won its third straight women's team title in the World Championships. Ecaterina Szabo and her Romanian teammates, gold medalists at the 1984 Olympic Games and the world champions in 1979, took silver this time. East Germany was third and Bulgaria fourth.

BOWLING

TACOMA, Wash. — Reigning Woman Bowler of the Year Aleta Sill of Cocoa, Fla., defeated Pat Costello, of St. Helena, Calif., 210 to 186 to win the Ladies Pro Tour Hammer Western Open and become the tour's first three-time champion of 1985.

TAYLOR, Mich. — Tom Baker of Buffalo, N.Y., regained the lead after three rounds of the PBA Budweiser Open. Baker, a five-time PBA champion, totaled 4,049 for his 18 qualifying games for a 224.9 average. Jim Pencak of Highland Heights, Ohio, moved into second place with 4,000 pins.

BOXING

NEWARK, N.J. — A federal judge ruled today that former middleweight boxing contender Rubin "Hurricane" Carter can be released from jail, saying his 1977 triple murder conviction was based on "racial stereotypes" and errors by the prosecution. The unusual writ allows Carter to apply immediately to Sarokin for release on bail from Rahway State Prison. Artis was paroled in 1981.

EXPANSION—

pansion issue," Durso said. "It's implicit in the discussion of expansion. I don't think it would have to be resolved, but I think events will take that case much further down the track than before expansion is resolved."

He said the San Francisco issue "wasn't discussed at all" during Denver's presentation, even though Denver has been approached by the Giants as a possible relocation site — and even though Denver is not shy about mentioning the interest shown by the team.

Mayor Federico Pena said Denver is trying to lure the Giants away from the Bay Area. "Our position is simply one of an interested party," he said. "The fact that no other city was approached indicates that Denver is the No. 1 city for a team."

Denver, Miami, Vancouver, Indianapolis and Columbus each have a minor-league team. "Obviously we're aware of where National Association (minor league) teams play," Durso said. "There is a procedure for the acquisition of territory and for compensation to be made. We'll follow those procedures in the event the decision is to move into National Association territory."

Washington, D.C., is in a different situation. It has had — and lost — two major league franchises, most recently after the 1971 season when the Senators moved to Texas.

KING—

"I can break stories, give opinions," King says. "It's a kick, part avocation for me. Sometimes you do better when you don't really need something, and this is not my No. 1 source of income. I give it a kind of 'it ain't the end of the world' air."

Weisman also feels the segments have been a boost and he plans to use King in other ways.

"When I first sought him out, it was because he is a good communicator, he says things that stay with you a long time," Weisman says. "I don't know if it's his command of the language, how he says things in simple terms, or his speech pattern.

"He's expressed interest in racing, and we might use him on next year's Breeders' Cup. I see him doing sports journals, occasional pre-game baseball spots. We are trying to bring him along slowly for his credibility.

"His late-night radio fans are among the most fanatical in the biz. We're trying to capture that kind of excitement, but slowly."

King's segments are anything but slow. He has two "general sources" from which he gets much of his information.

"They send me stuff every week I can use and not use," he says. "The rest I get through my own contacts and sources. I travel in a unique sort of world, I'm not treated as a sports writer or sportscaster. I meet a lot of people on a social basis, and I'm good at asking questions. I just happen to learn a lot of things."

This is not the first venture into sports reporting for King, who grew up in Brooklyn as a buddy of Sandy Koufax.

Dollar recovers

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar's recovery on Japanese and American markets spilled onto European exchanges today, prompting intervention by West Germany's central bank, dealers reported. Gold prices were slightly lower.

One dealer at a major West German bank, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Deutsche Bundesbank sold more than $100 million, quickly bringing the U.S. currency down from 2.6430 marks to 2.6243.

Earlier in Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar closed at 207.25 yen, up from Thursday's 202.55. Later, in London, it fell slightly to 206.00 yen.

Before its recovery, the dollar had lost about 42 yen since the Sept. 22 finance ministers' decision, including 9.25 yen over the past four trading days in Tokyo.

Dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Thursday:

—2.6210 West German marks, up from 2.6035

—2.1540 Swiss francs, up from 2.1375

—7.9845 French francs, up from 7.9175

—2.9570 Dutch guilders, up from 2.9300

—1,774.00 Italian lire, up from 1,752.00

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $322.35 a troy ounce, compared with late Thursday's $322.00. At mid-morning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $322.10.

In Zurich, the bid price was $322.40, down from $322.90 late Thursday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell $1.66 to close at a bid $325.26.

In New York Thursday, gold fell $2.30 to close at $321.50.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $6.12 a troy ounce, up from Thursday's $6.04.

Forecast for 1986 flat with little growth

Housing market seen as soft; employment to stay stable

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA - The 1986 Economic Outlook Conference, sponsored by the Economic Development Division of the Greater Odessa Area Chamber of Commerce and held at the Odessa Hilton Thursday, produced good and bad news concerning the area's economic picture.

The good news is: the economies of Midland and Odessa probably won't be any worse in 1986 than they have been in 1985.

The bad news is: The Midland-Odessa area economies probably won't be much better in 1986 than they were in 1985.

The single word that best describes the 1986 economic outlook for Midland-Odessa, West Texas and the state as a whole, is flat, with economic growth expected to be in the range of two to three percent, if that much.

"I can summarize my outlook for 1986," Dr. Michael Williams, RepublicBank First National Midland vice president, told the more than 90 persons attending the Outlook conference, "by saying simply that there is no evidence on the horizon for the economy to improve drastically in 1986." Williams, an economist who is manager of the funds management/investment division at RepublicBank, went on to say that, "in fact, the recent softness in some of the numbers (economic indicators) may point to a modest decline in economic activity for at least the first half of 1986."

"We have more product on the ground today than was ever needed, including the boom year of 1982," said Murphy & Rochester executive vice president Roy Allen.

ALLEN NOTED that "Many real estate developments were planned and financed on the assumption that our market would continue to expand. Unfortunately," he said, "a very large number of those projects were built after it became apparent that oil prices were falling."

Allen observed that "office, industrial warehouse and manufacturing space is abundant, retail space is plentiful in Midland, and there is no shortage of housing," he said, adding that, "In general, we have too much supply in every category to have a healthy real estate market."

In spite of the fact there is no shortage of housing, Allen said, "We anticipate some increase in residential construction in Odessa primarily because there seems to be some increasing demand on existing inventories. Midland," he said, "will probably continue on about the same level."

Allen further observed that property values have declined over the past few years in both cities, although some key commercial properties on high traffic arterials have maintained their position. "We feel that values bottomed out around the first of 1985 and have not come up," he said.

Human error blamed for oil explosion

MONT BELVIEU, Texas (AP) — As residents in this refinery town struggle to recover from an explosion and fire at the Warren Petroleum Co. gas storage complex, state officials are blaming the blast on human error.

"Early reports show there's no possibility equipment malfunctioned. No indication of leaks in the underground storage caverns. It all worked properly," Texas Railroad Commission spokesman Brian Schaible said Thursday.

Initial evidence showed a hole was dug to a pipe about six feet underground, which was severed. Pneumatic pipecutters were found in the hole.

The only question remaining is whether the two workers who died in Tuesday's blast cut the wrong pipe or whether the pipe had not been flushed out before repairs, Schaible said.

James Howard Hoffman, 30, of Cove, and Richard Vernon Duncan, 25 — both welders for Smalley's Welding Service — were working near the pipeline when it exploded.

Workers late Wednesday cleared out gas left in the plant's pipelines. And on Thursday, a team of investigators sifted through the debris at the Chambers County plant.

Mayor Fred Miller called a special City Council meeting Wednesday night to discuss the blast, one in a series of disasters in recent years to strike the community 30 miles northeast of Houston.

Miller said he wants to revive a campaign he started after a 1980 leak to relocate approximately 420 homes near the gas storage complex.

In 1980, about 820 million cubic feet of gases leaked, forcing the evacuation of more than 70 families, some for as long as six months. The leak was discovered when a dishwasher ignited gas inside a home.

The mayor said his plan would call for industry to buy out the land. The relocation could cost $30 million or more, he said.

Hispanic groups explain how to go into business

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Ralph, 21, wants to start his own janitorial service, and wants to know how to make it a success.

For Ralph, and Dorothy, who's trying to keep her day care center going, and Angie, who, along with her brothers, has a car repair business, and the other Midlanders like them, the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and Casa de Amigos sponsored a seminar on "How to Start Your Own Business," which was held at the Casa de Amigos Wednesday and Thursday.

Moderated by Ruben Vargas, marketing and distributive education teacher at Midland High School, local businessmen Sam Flores and Ric Knickerbocker, of RepublicBank First National Midland, Jose Cuevas, owner of Jumburrito, Virginia Connor, owner of Connor's Car Wash, and Bob Hicks, president of KBAT-KWEL radio, offered their expertise on being in business.

Financing dominated the discussion, with Flores advising, "You better know what you want to do, what you're talking about before you see a banker. If you go to a banker, wanting to start a dry cleaning business, and he asks, 'How many dry cleaners are there in Midland?' and you say 'I don't know,' and he asks 'Well, what's the traffic pattern where you want to locate?' and you say 'I don't know,' the more 'I don't knows' he hears, the less likely you're going to get any money."

Knickerbocker agreed, saying "The bank does not finance dreams. The bank finances existing businesses." That's why the Small Business Administration was created. However, Knickerbocker said, direct financing is difficult to obtain, depending on funding, staffing, and the time of year. "You're looking at 90 days at best. It's an option few can take advantage of." The SBA also offers SBA guaranteed loans, in which the SBA guarantees 90 percent of a loan. Still, Knickerbocker said, that leaves 10 percent at risk, and he noted, small businesses have a high failure rate.

While this indirectly discourages a would-be entrepreneur, there is money out there. George Veloz, an audience member, and owner of Monterey Cocina Mexicana and Jorges, advised borrowing from friends, family, and other similar sources. Knickerbocker mentioned using credit cards as a tool, "if you're established, and have a track record. To get started, you need a good business plan, and equity - some of your own money."

Getting started may be difficult, but once a business is going, financing is much easier. "You have to show you've been around enough that you can survive the downturns," Knickerbocker stated, and Flores admitted, "Just like you, we're in businesses to make money, and this is an admission, we do pay more attention to the higher dollar loans. You have to get the banker's attention." However, he noted, a lot of those small loans have turned into large deposits and loans.

The second most important piece of advice that came from the seminar was not to be ashamed of failure. Veloz, who admitted he's stumbled a few times along the road to success, said "Failure is nothing but a step to success, so long as you don't make the same mistakes. A business failure is never a failure, just another step in education."

Also, don't be afraid to ask questions or admit mistakes, and keep in touch with the banker, Flores said. "If you can't make a loan payment, let the banker know a week ahead of time, and you're 100 percent ahead of the game. If you call after a month of avoiding my calls, we've got major problems."

The Saturn plant

1. Office areas will be open-style, with fewer white-collar employees

2. Cafeteria will feed all employees, including management; a plant health club and a child-care center will be adjacent to the plant

3. Computer center will coordinate production and route parts to arrive at work stations at proper time

4. Deliveries of most materials will be by truck rather than by rail; docks will be located close to work stations

5. Computerized carts will deliver parts to work stations and move modular units to assembly points

6. Modular assembly, in contrast to the traditional installation of parts one by one, will construct parts in groups

Work teams like those in Japan, each with no more than 15 workers, will talk over ideas and problems

General Motors has agreed to pay multi-million dollar payments on its Saturn site. An outline of the $3.5 billion plant is shown above.

GM agrees to make multi-million dollar payments on Saturn site

COLUMBIA, Tenn. (AP) — General Motors Corp.'s agreement to make annual multi-million dollar payments in lieu of property taxes on its projected $3.5 billion Saturn car plant calls for a first-year payment of $7.5 million to be divided among local governments.

Maury County will receive $3.5 million in fiscal year 1987-1988, then $3 million annually through 1995, with payments through the balance of the 40-year agreement to be based on property tax rates.

By comparison, the county's 51,000 residents are paying $7.2 million in property taxes into this year's total operating budget of $33 million.

The first-year payment in the agreement unveiled Thursday will be distributed among the county government and the cities of Columbia, Mount Pleasant and Spring Hill.

GM announced plans July 29 to build the Saturn plant in unincorporated Maury County about 30 miles south of Nashville. The complex is expected to employ 6,000 people and generate 14,000 to 16,000 additional jobs in businesses that will come to the area to support the Saturn plant, officials said.

Number of 'insolvent' thrifts grows

DALLAS (AP) — The number of Savings and Loans deemed "technically insolvent" and placed under state supervisory control has grown during the last two months, according to a state S&L official.

Savings and Loan Commissioner L. Linton Bowman III said Wednesday that associations placed under control of the Texas Savings and Loan Department have not met regulatory net-worth requirements, which another official defined as "technically insolvent."

Bowman said less than 11 of the state's 220 savings associations are under supervisory control.

"These were institutions that previously had been closely monitored by the department," Bowman said.

The supervision ranges from day-to-day monitoring by an agent to an agent running the association.

State regulators received increased powers to take supervisory action against troubled associations under legislation that ook effect Aug. 27.

(Averages for all 261 taxable funds)		42	7.20	7.46
30-day average		yield		7.16

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 261 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 decreased $954.7 million to $197.5 billion during the week ended Nov. 5, 1985. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 7.20 percent from 7.17 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 7.16 percent from 7.14 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity shortened one day to 42 days.

William E. Donoghue says, "Taxable money fund average yields rose for the fourth consecutive week. This week's 7-day Average Yield of 7.20 percent is the highest average yield since June 18, 1985. By contrast, the average maturity for all taxable funds is the shortest it has been since April 9, 1985, when it stood at 41 days. The average maturity for all taxable funds has lessened by three days during the past four weeks. Tax-free money fund assets continue to increase, setting new highs each week. This week's total assets of $37.6 billion brought the tax-free asset increase to $2.0 billion since Oct. 1, 1985."

Yield columns represent: annualized total return to shareholders for past seven days and 7-day compounded (effective) rates of return. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. (r) -- restricted availability.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Midland firm tests 218 barrel find

From Staff Reports

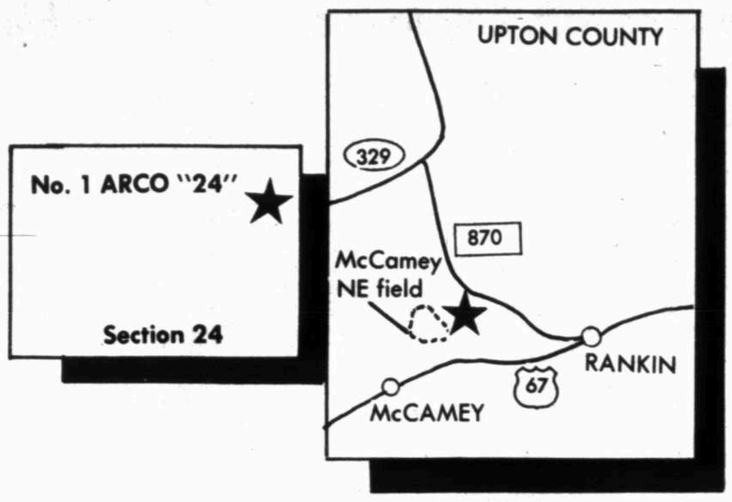
A Midland firm has completed an Ellenburger discovery in Upton County, approximately two miles northeast of the McCamey Northeast field.

TERRA RESOURCES, INC., potentialed the No. 1 ARCO "24" to flow 218 barrels of 45.5 gravity crude and six barrels of water on an 18/64 inch choke. The well is flowing from perforations 10,900 to 10,940 ft., and the interval was acidized with 5,000 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio is 1,055;1.

Planned as a 10,935 ft. wildcat, the well reached total depth of 11,030 ft., with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 11,027 ft.

On elevation of 2,642.6 ft., the well topped the Yates at 2,277 ft., San Andres at 3,562, Wolfcamp at 7,118, Bend at 8,493, Fusselman at 9,974, and the Ellenburger at 10,840 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and 666 ft. from east lines of Section 24, Block 1, MK&T survey, nine miles west of Rankin.



Penn producer tested for 417 barrels oil

AMOCO PRODUCTION CO. has completed the No. 4 Ford, a Pennsylvanian producer in the Parker field of Andrews County, for 417 barrels of 40 gravity crude, 184 Mcfd and 25 barrels of water.

Production is from perforations 9,008 to 9,036 ft., which had been acidized with 5,250 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

Drilled to 9,259 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 9,053 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,189 ft., include the San Andres at 4,575 ft., Wolfcamp at 8,575, Pennsylvanian at 8,935, and the Canyon at 9,195 ft. Pay was topped at 8,984 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and 664 ft. from west lines of Section 19, Block A-43, PSL survey, 10 miles southwest of Andrews.

Howard field well pumps 161 barrels

A.K. GUTHRIE added a Clearfork producer to the Howard-Glasscock field of Howard County with completion of the No. 3 Southland.

The well potentialed to pump 161 barrels of 29 gravity crude and 25 barrels of water from perforations 3,251 to 3,801 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,500 gallons of acid and fractured with 100,000 lbs. sand.

A total depth of 3,900 ft. was reached, where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

The well topped the San Andres at 1,980 ft., the Glorieta at 2,520, and the Clearfork at 2,980 ft. on ground elevation of 2,449 ft. Pay was topped at 3,251 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from west and 973 ft. from north lines of Section 93, Block 29, W&NW survey, six miles west of Forsan.

Two 17 barrel wells added in Howard

TIBURON PETROLEUM CORP. continues to develop the TLM lease of Howard County, adding two Clearfork producers to the Iatan East Howard field.

The No. 3 TLM tested to pump 17 barrels of 38 gravity crude and 60 barrels of water from perforations 2,980 to 3,010 ft. Pay was topped at 2,726 ft.

On potential test, the No. 4 TLM pumped 17 barrels of 38 gravity crude and 70 barrels of water from perforations 2,975 to 3,000 ft. Pay was topped at 2,710 ft.

Both wells are located in Section 17, Block 30 of the T&P survey, four miles southeast of Coahoma.

DEVELOPMENTS

Midland firm sets Spraberry wells

From Staff Reports

JAMES B. LEWIS LAND & OIL CO., Midland, plans to drill eight wells in the Spraberry Trend Area of Martin County. This is the end of a 16-well package in the field, according to a company spokesman.

Four of the wells are on the Glass 22 "A" lease, located in Section 22 of Block 38, T-1-N, T&P survey.

The remaining four are on the Glass 22 "B" lease, also located in Section 22 of Block 38, T-1-N, T&P survey. All eight wells are 14 miles northwest of Stanton, and all have a proposed depth of 9,500 ft.

Ecuador discovery announced

LOS ANGELES (SWN) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. and CEPE, the Ecuadorian state oil company, Thursday announced that Limoncocha No. 1, the first exploratory well drilled on Block 15, was successfully tested at a rate of 2,104 barrels per day of 28.0-degree API gravity oil through a one-inch choke.

The discovery well is located five miles south of the giant Shushufindi field but on a different structure. Testing was conducted from 14 feet of perforations from 9,696 feet to 9,721 feet in a Cretaceous zone productive in the Shushufindi field.

Harken announces intent to assist Argonaut in program

Harken Oil & Gas Co. and Argonaut Energy Corp. announced the signing of a letter of intent between the two companies to develop a definitive agreement within the next 30 days that will involve Harken assisting Argonaut in the development and the implementation of a revitalization plan for Argonaut.

The plan is to include an agency agreement under which Harken would provide for a monthly fee certain legal, financial and other administrative services to Argonaut. The definitive agreements will need to be approved by the respective boards of Argonaut and of Harken.

Argonaut is involved in the production, development and exploration of oil and gas.

Harken Oil & Gas has three primary lines of business: The acquisition and management of oil and gas companies and properties for itself and others, the production, development and exploration of oil and gas, and contract drilling.

FORECAST

According to Allen, tax appraisal districts in both Midland and Ector counties expect cuts in their overall property valuations, maybe as high as 10 percent on some properties in Midland.

Both taxing district, he said, also expect cuts in valuations to be followed by increases in tax rates.

Allen described the apartment market in both cities as "still very soft," with average occupancy rates of 8,307 Odessa surveyed standing at about 85 percent. A survey of 7,138 Midland apartment units showed occupancy rates ranging between 75 to 80 percent.

THE COMMERCIAL real estate market is generally weak, Allen said, observing that Odessa's office occupancy rate is 66.8 percent, with about 200,000 square feet of space currently vacant.

The occupancy rate of Midland office space, he said is 77.01 percent, with more than 700,000 square feet of office space now vacant, while another 500,000 square feet is planned for construction. "There are a lot of special deal being made" in the Midland office market, he said.

Saying the commercial real estate market is overbuilt, Allen said, "There are many out-of-town bargain hunters wanting to buy based on economics." According to Allen, "It's a real good time to lease or buy a building."

James Linn, senior vice president of drilling for Parker Drilling Co., said drilling operators have reversed their views regarding oil prices, observing that the industry had precipitated many of its own problems, anticipating boom activity had no end, expecting to see the price of oil to go up to $60, $70, even $80 a barrel and predicating actions on those anticipated prices.

The bust that began about mid-1982, he said, has forced operators to reevaluate their methods of operations and become, in effect, lean and mean.

Linn noted that a number of negativeshave plagued the oil industry, such as uncertainties concerning the impact of possible tax reform, excess capacity of service industries and corporate takeovers that have reduced the availability of investment capital.

Linn, who joined Parker Drilling in 1973, observed corporate takeovers were virtually non-existent in 1980 but became an increasing phenomena in ensuing years and that more are in the process now. Takeovers have produced debt in the range of $80 to $85 billion, the repayment of which produces a loss of investment capital for exploration and drilling capital, he indicated.

ANOTHER PROBLEM, he said, is the intense price discounting that prevails among service contractors.

Linn laid some of the blame for oil industry problems at the doorstep of analysts and the media who seem to thrive on promoting "gloom and doom," which has caused many people in the industry to become overly pessimistic.

But, in spite of the hard times being experienced industry wide, he said all is not negative.

He observed that the world oil surplus has begun to shrink. Linn told those attending the Outlook Conference there are many opportunities in the oil industry today, but those in the industry have look harder for them.

He noted that many opportunities exist overseas, observing that China represents "a vast untold potential," with on-land opportunities now opening up in 10 provinces. Displaying a map of Choina, he pointed out that contract negotiations are now underway.

MOVING AROUND the world, Linn said the majors are moving "very aggressively" into Africa. In Java, he said, the climate is becoming more open, with more favorable contrat terms available.

Linn observed Parker Drilling has domestic contracts in California, Alaska and Wyoming. In California, he said, Parker is drilling a 25,000 foot well on the Elk Hills Reserve. In Alaska, the company is operating a rig on an ice island anchored about 1,000 feet above the sea floor. The company also has a contract for a 15,500 foot well in Wyoming.

He noted there is also activity in Oklahoma's Anadarko Basin again, but noted that gas wells completed are being shut in because gas prices are too low to make extraction profitable. Linn also noted Parker has a contract with Cities Service Co. to drill a 22,500 foot well in Loving County in far West Texas on the Texas-New Mexico border.

Recalling the activity that once prevailed at OIME, located in Midland County, Linn observed the company is utilizing its manufacturing capabilities to produce massive, specialized generators that are to be used in advanced energy research by the University of Texas.

Linn said he has no doubt the energy industry will recover from the downturn, he speculated that "a hard, rough road is ahead" for the industry in 1986.

DR. WILLIAM GRUBEN, a senior economist with the Dallas Federal Reserve, explored the outlook for Texas in 1986, noting that the state's industrial mix has been hard hit by foreign competition.

Texas is experiencing a slow recovery not attributable to the energy industry, Gruben observed, noting that defense contracts in the state have doubled and that service industries have grown rapidly.

The condition of the state's agricultural industry "is not good," he said, but is not in as serious shape as in some other states, but still serious. Non-building construction, sewers, streets, etc., he said is increasing rapidly. He termed warehouse construction in the state strong and noted that, while contracts for residential construction "are still coming down, the single-family housing market is weak."

As to unemployment, Gruben said he expects the Texas rate to remain at about seven percent in 1986.

Dr. Robert Rouse, a professor of economics at Texas Tech, where he has taught for 35 years, looking at the international economic picture, said three things will impact on the nation's economic outlook in the next year: the balance of payments deficit, the over-valued U.S. dollar and the move toward protectionism.

Rouse expressed the belief that the balance of payments deficit does not concern him as much as it appears to concern some some, that it is not all bad. The reason for this belief, he said, is that, in a roundabout way, the dollar surplus that winds up in the hands of foreign countries and corporations ultimately returns to the United States because there are still very attractive investment opportunities. "We're selling them goods and they're buying our assets," he said.

ROUSE SAID he does not share the concern of some people who worry that foreigners will wind up owning the U.S. Such investments, he said, represent only about one percent of total U.S. assets. The Texas Tech professor also observed that multinational corporations are also investing in the United States rather than foreign countries.

He expressed the belief that the U.S. dollar is probably about 30 percent too high, but said he doesn't believe reducing the value of the dollar by that much would be a panacea. Rouse suggested accepting the Japanese yen or the West German deutschmark as international currency would take the pressure off the U.S. dollar.

Rouse noted few economist favor protestionism and speculated that, at least in the near term, there will be no legislation to implement import restraints.

Rouse expressed the belief that the United States has reached a point in time where it needs to seriously evaluate what it does best and consider doing away with industries which, for economic reasons related to foreign competition, can no longer profitably compete. He suggested, as an example, that the textile industry, which is unable to compete price-wise with foreign textile producers, "may need to be phased down."

Luncheon speaker Gene Goldenberg, associate editor of the Kiplinger Texas and Washington news letters, predicted the tax reform is virtually a dead issue, though business will continue to bear a sizeable tax burden.

Goldenberg said Kiplinger expects investment tax credits to decrease and that banks will wind up paying more taxes than they do now.

As Kiplinger sees it, he said, there won't be any legislation that will severely impact on the oil industry kthrough eliminating the expensing out of intangible drilling costs.

AFTER MANY years of talking about it, he said, he expects Congress to act to eliminate the federal deficit, but Kiplinger anticipates such action by Democrats won't come until about mid-1986 so it can be used as a major poilitical issue.

Kiplinger anticipates no boom and no recession in 1986, but moderate growth in the range of about 3.5 percent, with growth perhaps increasing to as much as 4.5 percent in 1987.

Goldenberg predicted if the economy continues stable the Republicans will hold control of the Senate in 1986 but if the economy turns down Democrats could regain control of the Senate.

SEMINAR-

Calling attention to a business takes effort too, and Hicks advised business owners to perhaps start a mailing list, say off customer's checks, and send out mailers, or to create a unique dish. He also said inhouse advertising was important, too, such as a unique menu, or some similar item. The best advertising in the world, Veloz noted, is word of mouth, "but it's slow. Unless it's bad, and that's fast."

A successful businessman, the audience learned, knows what he wants to do and how he wants to do it, and has a clear business plan. And he cannot be discouraged if he's turned down several times. "Keep trying. If you have a good idea and believe in it, you're going to find someone to back you," Flores said.

SATURN——

Spring Hill Mayor George Jones said Thursday he is pleased with the in-lieu-of-tax agreement, which gives his community $250,000 in each of the next 40 years, plus $1.7 million in capital funds to upgrade roads and other city services.

"It may not be enough, but it's better than not getting anything, as it could have been," he said.

Columbia, the county seat, will receive $600,000 in each of the first through third years; $500,000 in the fourth through 10th years; $100,000 in each of the 11th through 20th years; and $50,000 annually for the remainder of the agreement.

The city of Mount Pleasant will get $100,000 in the first year, $50,000 annually in the second through 10th years and a $25,000 a year in each year for the rest of the term.

The balance of the money will remain in county coffers, officials said.

County commissioners, the Spring Hill board of aldermen and Columbia city council approved the agreement Thursday. Mount Pleasant city commissioners voted their approval Tuesday.

Each city also pledged in the agreement not to annex the Saturn site, a threat Jones had used to gain leverage for his city during the nine weeks of negotiations between GM and county officials.

An ordinance to annex the proposed plant location, which had passed two of three votes by Spring Hill aldermen, sparked a threat from a GM official to move the project, Jones said. The aldermen killed the measure Thursday.

Midland oilman given 30 days to plug two wells

By DAVID ELLIOT
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Midland oilman has 30 days to plug two inactive West Texas oil wells and pay fines or the Texas Railroad Commission will seek further legal action against him.

Glenn Cope could face up to $10,000 in fines per day for failing to plug two wells on the San Andreas field in Crockett County. Commission policy requires operators to plug wells within 90 days after drilling or other operations cease.

Commission records show the two wells have been "dry or inactive" since August 1979. Records also contend Cope "has not exhibited good faith" because he has ignored written notification from the commission of the violations. In the past, commission officials have cited Cope eight times for plugging violations.

Cope told a commission hearings examiner Thursday that he has not been able to close the wells because of money problems. He said the two companies he owns face bankruptcy and all proceeds from his remaining active oil wells go directly to Texas American Bank of Midland.

Law enforcers honored for their 'heroism'

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Police officers sometimes feel like unsung heroes who put their lives on the line to protect a public which takes them for granted. At least one night per year, however, Midland's law-enforcement community is honored at its own version of Hollywood's Academy Awards celebration, courtesy of Clayton W. Williams Jr. and the Midland 200 Club.

The purpose of the Law Enforcement Appreciation Banquet "is to say, 'Thank you,'" Williams said.

"The only time the average citizen sees a police officer is when he's broken the law. We don't appreciate what these men and women do for us," Williams said.

Singled out Thursday for special recognition were Sheriff's Sgt. Loyd L. Brazell Jr., Officer Richard Stratton of the Sheriff's Office, and J.D. Luckie, an investigator with the Midland County District Attorney's Office.

"I'm honored and pleased," said Stratton, an eight-year veteran of the Sheriff's Office who was cited for rescuing two young children from a Jan. 18 trailer fire.

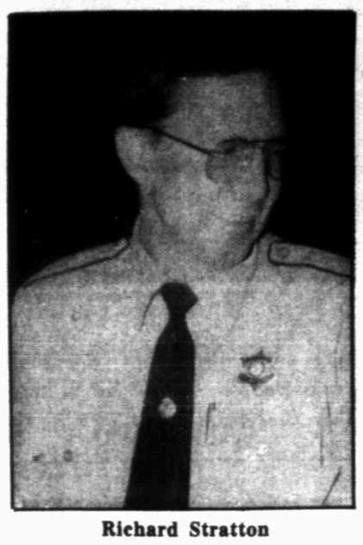
Stratton cut himself breaking through a window to pull Jason and Benjamin Phelps from the burning house.

Luckie was selected for an Aug. 23 incident in which he helped save the life of Kenneth Ivy, bailiff for Judge Pat M. Baskin's 142nd District Court. Luckie helped administer CPR to Ivy, who suffered a stroke while crossing a street in downtown Midland.

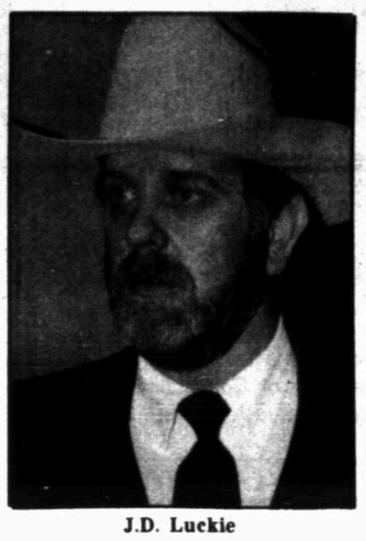
"It's extremely good for morale," Luckie said of the annual banquet and awards. "It's very unusual for officers to be honored this way. It shows them somebody cares."

Until Williams and the 200 Club began the banquets in 1978, local peace officers "never had anything," Luckie said.

Brazell was honored for running Sheriff Gary Painter's Oilfield Crimes Investigation Unit, which is credited with recovering $400,000 worth of stolen equipment since it was established Jan. 1. Brazell said he hoped the recognition will further his goal "to make it (the oilfield-theft unit) a bigger organization."



Richard Stratton



J.D. Luckie

Loyd Brazell, Jr.

"All of those three are different degrees of heroism," Williams said. "Ladies and gentlemen, that's what you are all to me — heroes. And I say thank you and God bless you for it."

The 200 Club was formed in 1978 by Williams, William Blakemore II, Tom Brown, Aaron Giebel and Bill Roden to support peace officers who were injured or disabled in the line of duty.

The Holiday Inn donated its new Convention Center facility for the Thursday event. Law-enforcement agencies represented included the Midland Police Department; the Midland County Sheriff's Department and Sheriff's Reserve; the Midland County Constable's Office; arson investigators from the Midland Fire Department; the Midland office of the Department of Public Safety; the Midland County District Attorney's Office; the Midland County Attorney's Office; the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department; the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission; the FBI; the Internal Revenue Service; the U.S. Marshall's Office; and the U.S. Border Patrol.

Archaeologist discusses protecting, preserving sites

By ANNTOINETTE MOORE
Staff Writer

James Walker is in charge of "the biggest collection of artifacts in the U.S. — and they're all underground."

Walker, 34, southwest regional director of the Archaeological Conservancy in Santa Fe, N.M., was the featured speaker Thursday at the monthly meeting of the Midland Archaeological Society at the Marion Blakemore Planetarium.

As society President Teddy Stickney told the audience of about 25 people in introducing Walker, "he deals in real estate."

But not just any real estate. The mission of the Conservancy, founded in late 1979 by a group of concerned American archaeologists, is to find and protect archaeological sites on private land.

"It is a felony to excavate an archaeological site on federal land without a permit," he said, and many states, including Texas, have laws which safeguard sites on state-owned land. But "archaeological sites on private land are completely unprotected."

Since 1980 the Conservancy, a private, non-profit organization with a staff of just four people, has gained control of 27 sites in 11 states; the purchase of another site in southeastern Oklahoma is currently pending.

These sites range from the central ceremonial site of the Hopewell culture, the most powerful group in the eastern United States from about 500 B.C. to 500 A.D., covering some 160 acres, to historic Fort Craig, located on the Rio Grande in southern New Mexico, occupied by the U.S. Army from 1854 to 1885 and site of the first Civil War battle in the West, the Battle of Valverde in February 1862.

Walker showed slides of "America's buried treasure" — artifacts from prehistoric Indian cultures — and slides of the destruction wrought by America's treasure hunters — professional looters.

"Beautiful, priceless" artifacts have "sparked an industry in the U.S. — commercial looting," he said.

"American artifacts are for sale in Europe and Japan. There are people who make their living digging up artifacts."

Looters are "only interested in artifacts. An artifact sitting on a mantelpiece is like a page out of a book," according to Walker. It has no context and can provide only limited information about the culture which produced it.

"Looters are never careful," he continued. "I always expect to see maybe a pair of legs sticking out of a collapsed hole" in a vandalized site.

In the Southwest, Mimbres sites, noted for their beautiful pottery with animal and geometric designs, have been extensively looted.

"Mimbres pots have sold for $10,000 apiece and more," Walker said. He showed a slide of one site which was being "taken apart with a bulldozer."

Sometimes property owners will lease sites to commercial looters who then "mine" the site for artifacts.

In the 1920s and '30s, the Spiro Mounds in Oklahoma, "probably the richest Caddoan mound site ever," were plundered by an incorporated artifact-mining company which used dynamite to blow up the mounds.

But looting isn't the only threat to sites, according to Walker. Commercial and residential development also destroy sites. The second largest Hohokam site in Arizona is in the midst of downtown Tempe. Although nothing has been built on top of the site, its surface is crisscrossed with dirt bike trails.

The cultural deposits in Hohokam sites "are thin, very fragile. It is very easy to start erosion with dirt bike trails," he said. Sites can be erased simply through erosion.

Modern farming techniques can also destroy sites.

"As many farmers (especially in East Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas) have switched to soybeans, they have switched to deep chisel plowing (which has) taken its toll of archaeological sites."

The plow zone used to end about 15 inches below ground surface, he continued, but deep chisel plowing churns up the top 24 inches of soil.

In Texas, the Conservancy recently has targeted four Caddoan sites for preservation. These are the Fasken Mounds (also known as the Flying K Mounds) in Red River County; the Cabe Mounds (Tilson Site or Summer Hill Place) in Bowie County; the Hale Mounds in Titus County near Mt. Pleasant; and the Pirtle Hudnall Site (Biven Farm Site) in Rush County near Tyler.

"The Conservancy has been working with the Texas State Archaeologist and a number of universities (in Texas and Oklahoma) to identify the best-preserved Caddoan sites," Walker said.

"The Caddoans were great traders," with a network spanning the Southeast. "They used waterways to move materials into their region (Louisiana, East Texas, Eastern Oklahoma and Arkansas)."

Judge announces candidacy for attorney general

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Roy R. Barrera Jr., who at age 28 in 1980 became the youngest appointed state district judge in Texas, has joined in the race for the Republican Party nomination for Texas Attorney General.

Barrera, son of former Texas Secretary of State Roy R. Barrera Sr., has logged 10 years in the criminal-justice system and said he is the Republican candidate who can defeat Democratic Attorney General Jim Maddox in the November 1986 general election.

"The highest office of law enforcement in the state of Texas," Barrera said Thursday in Midland, "should be held by an individual who has character, integrity beyond reproach and whose demeanor is unquestionable."

Barrera, 33, judge of the 144th State District Court for Bexar County, is a San Antonio native and a St. Mary's University law school graduate who was appointed to the judgeship by Gov. Bill Clements in 1980. Then, Barrera joined the Republican Party.

His father, whom the judge described as a "long-time loyal Democrat," is organizing the "Democrats-for-Barrera" drive. His father served as Secretary of State in the late 1960s under Gov. John Connally and was the first Hispanic to be appointed to a statewide office.

"His friends are my friends," Barrera said.

The candidate prosecuted criminal cases in the Bexar County Criminal District Attorney's Office from 1976 until 1980, when he joined his father's San Antonio law firm. Later that year, Clements appointed him to the judgeship. Barrera served as vice chairman of Gov. Clements' Task Force on the Criminal Justice System and the Intellectually Handicapped and Retarded Offender in 1982.

Since then, he was named by the Texas Jaycees as "One of Five Outstanding Young Texans" in 1983. In 1984, he was bestowed with the "Outstanding Young Man Award of San Antonio."

Barrera cited his "judicial temperament," "sound knowledge of the law" and his "relentless drive" as a judge. He is one of nine district judges authorized to issue wire-tap orders in drug-related cases.

"I believe I'm the most qualified candidate for the job (of attorney general)," Barrera said. He cited his 10 years of "public service to the state of Texas."

In his election to the judgeship in 1982, Barrera won the race by garnering 58 percent of the vote.

"That was an historic election in the sense I led the entire Republican ticket" in San Antonio, which is predominantly Democratic and strongly Hispanic.

"There had never been a Republican judge elected in Bexar County," Barrera said. "I was the first."

Barrera noted that in Baxer County in 1982, he received more votes than did gubernatorial candidate Mark White and attorney-general candidate Maddox. White is a former attorney general.

Seminar to help with relationships

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

"We have turned from a work-oriented society to a relationship-oriented society," said an East Texas State University professor in Midland this weekend to counsel couples on love relationships.

Many people are worrying less about basic needs like food, shelter and clothing and more about relationship needs, said Dr. Pat Ponder, a counseling professor at ETSU in Commerce.

About 24 people, paying a $100 per couple, are expected to attend the two-day seminar beginning at 7 p.m. today. The workshop, "Love or Illusion," to be held at the Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas, 202 Pilot Road, will instruct couples on how to improve relationships.

Ms. Ponder said more people are willing to spend money and time to learn how to make relationships work because family roles are changing.

"The 'Leave It To Beaver' family is in the minority," she added.

Only 7 percent of the American population is living in traditional family roles, she said, with the father as the main breadwinner and the mother staying home raising children.

The traditional family structure has changed with wives working outside of the home, couples remaining childless and couples living together without marriage. These changes are causing many people to seek guidance on how to conduct themselves in new roles, Ms. Ponder said.

More people are attending workshops because there is less stigma attached to seeking help at a weekend workshop than there is when someone goes to a psychologist or psychiatrist.

The classes appear to be popular in Midland where they are conducted every other month and are usually full, said Samaritan Center Director Norman Godfrey.

Residents paying less for electricty, TESCO says

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland residents currently are paying less for electricity than in 1983-84 despite the sometimes obvious high cost of heating and cooling their homes, said a Texas Electric Service Company representative.

The Public Utilities Commission in November 1984 approved a rate of $0.0415 per kilowatt-hour for the months of May through October — a decrease from 1983 rates — plus fuel costs for the service period, according to Stan Garrison, division customer service manager. Rates for November through April were set at $0.0415 per kwh for the first 600 kwh; and $0.0143 per kwh for usage exceeding 600 kwh, plus fuel cost for the service period.

Fuel costs are $0.030610 per kwh for July through September, and $0.027035 for October through June.

In addition, TESCO charges a $6 customer fee each month. This charge covers the cost of available electricity whether electricity is used during the month.

According to Garrison, electric meters measure the amount of electricity used in kilowatt-hours. A kilowatt-hour equals the use of 1,000 watts for one hour, or the use of a 100-watt light bulb for 10 hours.

A customer can determine kwh usage by "subtracting the last meter reading from the present reading," he said.

TESCO is a division of the Texas Utilities Company System. The system is investor-owned and provides electric energy to almost five million people in 87 counties in North Central, East and West Texas — about one-third of the state's population.

According to Garrison, Texas Utilities Company System officials estimate that the system will require an additional 10 million kilowatts of electricity from 1985-94 to meet the demands of its growing service territory.

To meet customers' needs, the system plans to "combine conventional sources of generation with alternative methods including load management, cogeneration, combustion turbines, lignite and nuclear fuel," he added.

To conserve energy and, thus, reduce the cost of the monthly bill, Garrison suggests customers do the following:

Ector deputies seek robber who shot customer

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County sheriff's deputies this morning were seeking one robber who shot and killed a customer of a westside Odessa adult bookstore and a knife-wielding robber who robbed an customer of another adult bookstore of $20.

Sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss said a 23-year-old man, whose name was not being released pending notification of next of kin, was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital as the result of a single gunshot wound in the chest area.

Kloss said the shooting occurred about 12:20 a.m. today when the lone gunman entered the West Highway 80 Adult Boostore, 6024 W. U.S. Highway 80, and demanded money from Clerk Bill Robinson, 210 N. Tom Green.

Robinson told investigating deputies the robber, armed with a long-barreled revolver, had reached into the store's cash register when the customer emerged from a back room.

According to Kloss, Robinson said the gunman told the customer to stop and then shot him once before fleeing with about $35 in cash.

The gunman is described as being about 6-feet one-inches tall, weighing about 180 pounds, with blue eyes, wearing a red ski mask.

Peace Justice Manuel Valles ordered an autopsy.

About 10 minutes earlier, a man armed with a knife entered the Adult Entertainment Center, 4721 Andrews Highway, and demanded money from Harold Glover, 10904 Love Ave.

Kloss said Glover told deputies he handed the man his wallet. The man removed $20 from it, then cut up the wallet, before leaving the establishment and entering a green station wagon.

The man is described as being about 6-feet tall, weighing 180 to 190 pounds, with reddish hair and heavy beard, wearing glasses and a cap like a welder's cap. Glover described the knife the man was carrying as having a white handle with a bear's paw on it.

SITES

A group of elite individuals controlled the trade network. They were buried, with "lots of exotic objects," in mounds, according to Walker. Nineteenth-century explorers reported the existence of thousands of these mounds throughout the Caddoan area; "now, there are less than 20 that haven't been disturbed" by looting, development or farming.

The Conservancy "doesn't do any excavating at all; we just buy land," he continued.

Actually, buying land is the last resort of the Conservancy. Walker first approaches the landowner to see if he will donate the site to the organization, thus gaining a tax deduction for the owner. Next, Walker discusses a bargain sale to charity where "part of the value of the site is purchased and part of the value is donated."

If neither of these approaches work, Walker negotiates a "purchase option. We put a small amount of money down which gives us the time to raise the purchase price — usually a year."

Another option in some states, including Texas, is a "preservation easement. This is basically a promise by the landowner that he will not disturb a ruin," he said. It is a legal contract which "runs with the land and is binding on any future owners." Usually the easement is held by the Conservancy or a state agency, such as the Texas Historical Commission.

Once under the Conservancy's control, the sites are surveyed, fenced and posted with no-trespassing signs. Sometimes the sites can be placed under aerial surveillance by local law enforcement agencies.

Then a management committee is established to oversee the site. It is composed of archaeologists with knowledge of the site's cultural group, local archaeologists and landowners.

The committee develops a 100-year plan for the site and decides the merits of any proposed excavation of the site. It also oversees the publication of archaeological reports on the site and the preservation of the site's artifacts.

Three of the 27 sites saved by the Conservancy have been "reconveyed" — transferred to governmental agencies or universities. Fort Craig now belongs to the Bureau of Land Management; Savage Cave in Kentucky belongs to Murray State University. Money gained by the transfer of these sites is put back into the Conservancy's fund to purchase more sites.

- Raise the thermostat to the highest setting comfortable (78 degrees) and use portable fans or ceiling fans to allow the air to circulate;
- Lower the thermostat setting in the winter (68 degrees) to save on heating costs;
- Add attic insulation (up to R-30 is recommended) to reduce energy costs year round;
- Run central blower fans on automatic year round and turn off portable fans when they are not needed;
- Heat pumps are cost and energy efficient. Select a high efficiency heat pump when replacing the air conditioner;
- Check the heating and cooling system at the beginning of the heating and cooling season;
- Use a shower head water flow restrictor and save on water heating costs. Replace washers in leaking water faucets;
- Caulk and weatherstrip around windows and door to prevent infiltration;
- Use portable electric appliances to save energy in preparation of small meals; and
- Provide exterior shading for windows exposed to direct sun in the summer.

Garrison said the Average Billing Plan helps smooth out the seasonal highs and lows in monthly residential electric bills. Customers on the plan still pay for all the electricity they use, but make averaged payments all year long.

"This helps in planning and managing the family budget," he said.

The Automatic Draft Plan also saves time and makes bill paying easier, Garrison said. Customers on the plan allow their bank to pay the monthly electric bill from a checking account.

All kinds of couples attend the workshops, Godfrey said, from married pairs to people living together or considering marriage.

Ms. Ponder said there are five basic problems she sees between the men and women she counsels at the seminars.

Many people lack the skills to resolve conflict and lack listening skills, she said. Others don't know how to ask for what they want out of a relationship and some couples are troubled by unresolved issues from the past.

Some need to learn how to live in the 20th century, Ms. Ponder said, with two career couples and a "democratic" family now becoming the norm.

Most people grew up in an autocratic family where the father made all the decisions and brought home the pay.

Once the father provided materially for the family and the mother nurtured the family, she said.

"Now that mother has gone into the workplace she wants help in the nurturing area."

"I want to talk, I want to hug, I want to snuggle," are some requests women make of their men now, she said.

Many men are hesitant to nurture, Ms. Ponder said, because they feel they will lose their "machoness."

One man told Ms. Ponder he was surprised he didn't lose his male macho image when he began to listen to his wife.

"I out-polled Clements by 14,000 votes," he said. "I out-polled White by 11,000 votes. In 1982, White, then attorney general of Texas, defeated Clements in his bid for re-election to the governorship.

Barrera expects to generate enough support to carry the South Texas vote and to defeat Maddox in the November general election.

"I will beat Maddox in his own backyard," Barrera said.

Baptists urge raising liquor taxes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Texas Baptist Convention has urged the legislature to raise taxes on alcoholic beverages and to outlaw open liquor containers in automobiles.

The resolutions were passed Thursday as the 4,273 messengers concluded their annual meeting.

The messengers, representing 96 churches statewide, also passed a resolution urging parents "to talk with their children about the music they hear, the movies and television they watch and the magazines they read in order to clarify moral issues which the young people confront."

The highlight of the three-day convention was the election Wednesday of Tyler minister Paul Powell as the Texas denomination's president.

Powell, pastor of the 6,200-member Green Acres Baptist Church in Tyler, succeeds W. Winfred Moore, pastor of First Baptist Church of Amarillo.

Also at the convention, messengers approved a $63.5 million missions budget and reaffirmed a goal of starting 2,000 new churches by 1990.

Also endorsed by the messengers was a resolution calling for protection of the pastor-parishioner counseling relationship.

The messengers called on the church's Christian Life Commission to look at the issue because of "widespread confusion regarding a pastor's legal responsibility in such cases."

The confusion resulted from Attorney General Jim Mattox's ruling that pastors are not exempt from a Texas law requiring the reporting of child abuse.

St. Stephens' to host chili supper

From Staff Reports

St. Stephen's Catholic Church will hold its third annual chili supper Saturday from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. in conjunction with an arts-and-crafts fair featuring more than 300 handmade items for sale.

Home-baked items will be on sale, and a satellite dish, a color television and a home computer will be given away as prizes.

Father Robert Kelly will be peering over Chef Louisa Valencia's shoulders to ensure that the best chili possible will be served — more than 1,500 bowls of it, at $2 per serving for adults and $1 for children. The event will be held at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 4601 Neely Avenue.

Holy Trinity church to pay tribute to Bach, Handel

From Staff Reports

A tribute to Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frederic Handel will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, 1412 W. Illinois Ave.

The musical presentation is being performed by the Choristers of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church and members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony. Conducted by Darryl Knapp, organist and choirmaster for Holy Trinity, 45 choristers and the chamber orchestra will perform a program which includes Bach's Cantata "Wachet Auf (Wake, Awake)," No. 140 with soloists Lee Harley, Karen Ellis, David Morrow and Paul Talbot, "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" from Cantata No. 147, The Brandenburg Concerto No. 3 in G Major for Orchestra and "O Sacred Head Now Wounded."

Also featured on the program will be the Handel Organ Concerto for Organ and Orchestra No. 13, more commonly known as "The Cuckoo and the Nightengale," Handel's coronation anthem "The King Shall Rejoice" and his "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

"According to a poll of the members of the American Musicological Society," Knapp says, "Bach is 'the most eminent composer of all time.'

"Bach spent his 65 years on earth serving courts, churches and towns in several roles: organist, choirmaster, teacher, violinist, composer, harpsichordist. Inwardly, he served one master only, God. His deeply Lutheran faith gave him courage to face countless difficulties with officials, a life of financial distress and recurring death as he lost both parents, his favorite brother and 11 of his children. He even faced a period of imprisonment.

"Through these trials and that of final blindness, Bach toiled steadfastly at his art. His complete works fill half a hundred volumes today, although only a handful saw publication while he lived."

Handel is often known as the inventor of the organ concerto with orchestral accompaniment.

"These original concertos, with their warm, expressive melodies, are uncomplicated, popular concert music in the best sense of the word," Knapp says. "Handel has spaciousness in his music and a marvelous sense of timing. His dramatic silences are full of awe. Handel found his way to the heart of the world by the understanding of simple things."

Sunday's performance is free and open to the public.

Cook-Off to be at Exhibit Building

From Staff Reports

The first annual fund-raising event of the Permian Basin Cook-Off, Inc. will be held Saturday at the Midland County Exhibit Building on East Highway 80.

The project will benefit Multiple Sclerosis of the Permian Basin, the Epilepsy Association of West Texas and Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Midland.

The group is looking for volunteers to help in all events and are asking each volunteer to work three-hour shifts.

"Manpower on the day of the cook-off and part of the next day for clean-up are in short supply," said Judy Makowsky, co-chairman of the volunteer committee. "A complimentary admission/food ticket is given to each volunteer."

In addition to clean-up, food and beverage servers, admission and parking lot attendants, several other events will require help, including Media Goat Dressing, Fishing Pond, Pony Ride, Prize Walk, Horseshoe Throw, Boot/Shoe Race, Dunking Booth, Goat Chase, Turkey Chase and Goat Tie.

Andrews man killed when pickup struck tractor-truck

From Staff Reports

A 32-year-old Andrews man was killed Thursday when his pickup struck a truck-tractor about a mile south of Andrews on U.S. 385, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Kenneth Cecil Cross was driving north on the west service road of U.S. 385 about 6:55 p.m. when his 1982 Chevrolet pickup struck a truck-tractor driven by Willie J. Busby of Odessa. Cross, who wasn't wearing a seatbelt, was pronounced dead at the scene by Andrews County Justice of the Peace Bill Orson, according to DPS reports.

Busby was treated and released from Permian General Hospital in Andrews. He had driven off the highway, stopped at a stop sign, and was attempting to turn on to the service road and head north when the accident occurred, reports said.

In other reports from local law-enforcement agencies, a Midland woman reported the loss of a $40,000 coin collection in a Thursday burglary of her rural Midland home.

Judy K. Barr, Route 3, Box 347, reported her home on County Road 1198 near County Road 120 was broken into sometime between 12:45 p.m. and 2 p.m. Also taken were a $6,500 ring, a $5,000 ring, a $3,000 ring, and other items for a total loss of about $61,650, reports said.

A $650 viola and a $225 radar detector were reported taken by Tony Timmons, 703 Osage. The items were taken from his vehicle Thursday, reports said.

Kanti Patel, 2607 Caldera, reported a burglary of a business at 3301 Mogford in which a $300 typewriter and $300 in change were taken.

A $400 television was reported taken in a Thursday burglary at 1111 S. Camp, reports said. The burglary was reported by Mariano Olgin.

UT students trying their hands at using ancient grinding tools

AUSTIN (AP) — Some University of Texas students are putting away the books on ancient Palestine this week and trying their hands at grinding grain with the ancient stone tools found at an archeological dig in Israel.

"We're going to see how long it takes to grind enough wheat for a family of six for one day," said professor Harold Liebowitz, who with co-workers found the tools.

"When students can actually pick up one of these ancient tools and work with it, it's fascinating for them. It makes everything much more meaningful," Liebowitz said.

The grinding tools are among hundreds of objects — including pottery, glassware and iron utensiles — found at Tel Yin'am, near the Sea of Galilee.

The "tel," or mound of ruins built up by cycles of occupation and destruction, has the longest known record of occupation of any site in Israel.

Liebowitz said the area was occupied as early as the Neolithic period, about 7000 B.C., until 500 A.D., with one break from about 3000 B.C. to 1300 B.C.

Liebowitz, an associate professor in the UT department of Oriental and African languages and literatures, has been excavating the Israeli site for almost 10 years. He spent the past academic year teaching and digging in Israel, and each summer since 1976 he has led a group of student volunteers from UT.

"Excavating this site is furthering our knowledge of the late Bronze Age and the transition from the Canaanite to the Israelite period," Liebowitz said.

Among the finds is an iron smelter that dates to the 13th century B.C. The smelter is the only one known from ancient Israel.

Other items from the site include tools found in a large house that had many semi-industrial uses. The courtyard of the house contained equipment for pressing olives, clay balls that were part of a loom.

American Express policy upsets O'Hair's American Atheists

AUSTIN (AP) — Madalyn Murray O'Hair's organization is upset at American Express because the company will not allow atheists to charge their donations.

"American Atheists is curious about the scruples and morals of American Express, and notes that they allow any massage parlor to accept charges from cardholders," the organization said in a Thursday news release.

The Austin-based organization applied for permission to accept American Express cards for donations or purchases of books and magazines. American Atheists already accepts MasterCard and Visa.

But American Express, citing its policy against the card's use for political or religious transactions, said no.

"It's the old keep-away-from-politics-and-religion policy," company public relations spokeswoman Nancy Muller said from her New York office Thursday. "I realize atheism is a little different, but that's the policy."

In a letter to American Atheists, American Express Vice President Jack McCarthy listed the criteria used in reviewing applications, including, "whether such business offers goods or services of the type which our cardmembers wish to purchase with the card, estimated fraud costs and potential cardmember complaints, the potential losses associated therewith and the costs involved in responding to complaints and inquiries."

A letter from Troy Fancher, an American Express vice president in Dallas, said, "For business reasons, American Express' policy is not to allow the charge card to be accepted for transactions that involve religion or politics."

American Atheists said the credit card company offered nothing better than a "bizarre explanation consisting of enigmatic and elliptical statements of policy."

Water commission fines Austin $165,292

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Commission Thursday ordered the city of Austin to pay a $165,292 fine and construct new sewage treatment plants that will meet more stringent pollution control standards.

The commission's action upheld earlier recommendations made by Larry Soward, executive director of the Texas Water Commission.

The order set specific dates for expansions and improvements through 1989.

It also requires for the first time that Austin remove ammonia-nitrogen, a toxic pollutant from waste water effluent.

The fine was the first levied by the reorganized water commission.

One of newest video games involves stomping spiders, mice, frogs

CHICAGO (AP) — Pinball wizards can shoot for new highs and eagle-eyed dart throwers can target bigger scores with new games being offered by coin-operated amusement game manufacturers. And then there's this game where you can stomp bugs.

A Gallup poll estimated that 113 million Americans played video games in 1984, according to the Amusement and Music Operators Association, whose 1985 Expo was last week.

Among the new products was the latest brainstorm from Nolan N. Bushnell, inventor of the pioneering video game Pong and now chairman of Bally Sente Inc. of Sunnyvale, Calif. Called "Stompin,'" it is "the world's first no-hands video game," said Robert W. Lundquist, company president.

A player stands on a mat marked with a grid. On the screen in front of him is another grid with a picture of Swiss cheese, which is attacked by spiders, mice and frogs that the player tries to squash by stomping appropriate squares on the mat.

As the game progresses, the critters advance faster, forcing the player to switch to a vigorous shuffle.

"We're picking up on the new health consciousness," Bushnell said of the exercise-oriented game.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Deciding a defendant's fate can be a weighty matter for a jurors' waistlines as well as their minds, so Boulder County courts are giving jurors a chance to flex their joints while soothing their psyches.

As part of a new program devised by District Judge Murray Richtel, jurors can exercise free at the Rockies Fitness Club during lunch breaks.

"It only makes sense. Jurors need some outlet," Richtel said.

"Jurors continually told me they missed not being able to exercise," said Richtel, a member of the health club which is about a block from the courts building.

The program won't cost taxpayers a dime.

"It's good publicity for us," said club sales manager Annette Montoya. "Maybe they'll come back and join in the future."

Yugoslavian sentenced for swindling Austin man

AUSTIN (AP) — Bratislav Lilic, still claiming to be a Russian agent who can negotiate the return of a missing American, has been sent to prison for 30 years for swindling the missing man's father.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin sentenced Lilic Thursday after the Chicago resident said he is "still the only one who can negotiate the release of his son."

In August, jurors convicted Lilic of bilking Douglas Pierce of Austin out of $46,000 by promising he could bring John Pierce home. The younger Pierce, then 29, has been missing since a drilling ship on which he worked sank in the South China Sea in 1983.

Lilic, a Yugoslavian, told the judge, "I tried everything in my power to help Douglas Pierce. Since the 11 months I have been in custody he has never had any other contacts. All of a sudden, the doors are closed on him."

The convicted con man has said he saw John Pierce in a Vietnamese hospital.

Pierce said he was satisfied with the sentence, but added, "I would like to stake him on an ant hill."

Pierce, who said he has spent about $400,000 so far, plans to go to Paris today to follow another lead. "I will find my son," he said.

Nowlin also ordered Lilic to repay the $46,000 he took from Pierce. But after Lilic had been taken from the courtroom the judge told Pierce, "I don't expect you'll ever receive a check for $46,000."

Prior to the sentencing, Turner asked to be removed from the case.

"He has threatened myself and he has threatened my family," Turner told the judge.

Police officer helps deliver baby third night on the job

CEDAR PARK (AP) — A few hours into his third night as a Cedar Park police officer, Don Hughes found himself helping deliver a baby girl.

"I can't describe it," the officer said. "It was just like I was the father. And it was only my third night on work. What a way to get initiated."

Hughes and another Cedar Park officer, Greg Knue, were patroling about 9 p.m. Tuesday when Charles Griggs pulled his car up behind the officers.

Cathy Griggs had warned her husband that the child's birth was imminent as they drove from their Georgetown home toward Seton Medical Center in Austin.

"I figured we needed help one way or the other, so I just flashed the lights and honked the horn til the patrol car pulled over," Griggs said.

The officers drove into a convenience store parking lot, and Griggs followed.

"A man jumped out of the vehicle and he was waving his hands, saying, 'My wife's having a baby,'" Knue said. He walked to the passenger side of the car, where Mrs. Griggs was sitting. "I was hoping we'd have a couple of minutes," Knue said.

But the next thing Hughes knew, he was holding little Martha Alyene Griggs in his arms and trying to remember his medical training.

"I was extremely nervous," said Hughes, who is single and has no children. "But it was no problem. It was the most beautiful thing I've ever done."

An ambulance took mother and daughter to the hospital.

Mrs. Griggs said she and the baby are fine and are expected to be home by the end of the week.

STATE in brief

Woman cited for contempt for 'abusing' prosecutor

DALLAS (AP) — A 65-year-old woman conducting her own defense on a charge of shooting a high school student was cited with contempt of court after calling the prosecutor a "simple-minded thing."

State District Judge Bill Moye on Thursday ordered Betty Minyard Stein jailed for 72 hours after the trial ends. He had earlier warned her to stop her oral abuse of Assistant District Attorney Jim Nelson after she called him "stupid" and said he was on "God's hit list."

The incidents occurred when Mrs. Stein, who is accused of shooting 18-year-old Ward L. Huey III in the arm July 24, testified in her defense. She is charged with aggravated assault.

Mrs. Stein, who has lived across from Highland Park High School for more than 30 years, testified that students have harassed her for years. She has denied shooting at Huey, saying she was only firing at the car.

Huey testified he had earlier spun his car's tires in front of Mrs. Stein's house while leaving the school and had shouted an obscenity at her.

Murder trial postponed

LIVINGSTON (AP) — A state district judge has postponed the trial of a junior high school principal accused of murdering the school's coach because of a love triangle allegedly involving the two men and a school secretary.

State District Judge John Martin postponed the scheduled Nov. 18 murder trial of Woodson Junior High School principal Hurley Fontenot, but has not rescheduled the case, court authorities said.

Fontenot, 48, of Raywood, is accused of shooting coach Billy Mac Fleming, 36, of Hull, who disappeared April 12 from the school. Fleming's body was found 10 days later in an isolated area.

Prosecutors contend Fontenot killed Fleming after learning the coach was planning to marry the school secretary, Laura Nugent.

Acid spills from truck

SEGUIN (AP) — A hydrochloric acid spill a half mile east of this South Texas town closed a two-mile stretch of Interstate 10's eastbound lanes for six hours Thursday, authorities said.

No injuries were reported and there were no evacuations, although part of the interstate where the acid spilled was eaten away by the chemical, officials said.

Authorities said 300 to 600 gallons of acid leaked crom the 5,000-gallon truck spilled along the eastbound lanes of I-10 about a half mile east of Texas 123. Clean-up crews worked into the night neutralizing the acid with a mixture of lime and soda ash.

The acid was pumped from the leaking vehicle into another tanker truck, which transported the chemical to Kingsbury.

Women's health knowledge surveyed

Hearst News Service

NEW YORK — American women today are well-informed about basic nutrition and female physiology. Many follow the health practices recommended for physical well-being and substantial majorities have strong opinions on issues involving health care and sex.

Eighty-three percent of American women over 18 years of age report they have been pregnant at least once in their life, 60 percent of them between the ages of 18 and 49 are now practicing some form of birth control and fully 79 percent favor sex education in public school systems.

These are among the findings in a new nationwide survey, "The American Woman's Knowledge of Health & Physical Well-Being", sponsored by The Hearst Corporation.

The findings were reported by John Mack Carter, editor-in-chief of Hearst's Good Housekeeping magazine, to a convention of The American Academy of Family Physicians in Anaheim, Calif. The survey probed basic health knowledge, nutrition, physiology, first aid, personal health practices, medical experiences, and attitudes toward important health issues.

"This is a good news survey," Mr. Carter said. "We learned the average American woman is quite knowledgeable about basic information relating to her personal health and this is cause for rejoicing."

THE HEARST survey found women very knowledgeable about the basics of good nutrition, for example, but less familiar with quantitative information needed to meet requirements.

- 92 percent know the sources of vitamin C but 91 percent don't know how much orange juice a person must drink to meet Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA).
- 89 percent can identify sources of calcium but 55 percent don't know how much milk meets RDA.

Despite a few deficiencies in quantitative knowledge, American women have a firm grasp of the fundamentals of good health.

- 86 percent know of danger in taking too many vitamins and minerals.
- 84 percent know of relation between high salt diet and high blood pressure.
- 78 percent know of indications that high-fiber foods may lower risk of colon cancer.
- 81 percent know "glucose" and "fructose" on product label means sugar.

American women are also well-informed about their own biological functions.

- 71 percent know the average menstrual cycle for most women is 28 days.
- 55 percent know the most fertile time for women is two weeks before the next menstrual period.
- 91 percent are aware of the age bracket for menopause.

The Hearst survey found that American women are also very aware of important first aid facts: 81 percent know how to treat minor burns; 78 percent know how to treat minor wounds; 50 percent know what to do for a fainting victim; 70 percent know the signs of appendicitis; 55 percent know the normal adult pulse rate.

And American women are prepared: 68 percent say they keep a first aid kit in their home.

THE HEARST survey probed the personal health habits of American women and found substantial numbers follow recommended practices:

- 82 percent of the women surveyed have a family physician.
- 54 percent have an obstetrician/gynecologist.

Women also demonstrate other good health habits.

- 71 percent do not smoke. Of those who do, 10 percent smoke less than a pack a day; 6 percent smoke more than two packs a day.
- 57 percent do not drink alcohol. Among those who do drink, 12 percent report they are drinking less than a year ago.
- 69 percent have a medical checkup annually.
- 82 percent arrange annual medical checkups for their children.
- 38 percent self-examine their breasts once a month. Twenty percent report they never self-examine their breasts.

Birth control practices differ among age groups, with a minority of 38 percent between 18 and 49 not practicing it at all.

The most popular birth control method among the 18 to 24 age group is oral contraceptives, 42 percent use them. Among 25 to 34 age group, 24 percent use them, only 9 percent among the 35 to 49 group.

The second most popular birth control method among females 18 to 49 is sterilization. Although only 1 percent in the 18 to 24 age group uses this method, its use rises to 14 percent among the 25 to 34 group and increases again to 20 percent among the 35 to 49 group.

The Hearst survey found that most women, 78 percent, obtain their health-related information from magazines.

The second most common source of health information, relied upon by 76 percent of American women, is television. Newspapers were cited by 70 percent.

Personal physicians rank as the third most popular source, with 74 percent of the women relying upon their doctor for health-related information.

"THE EFFECTIVENESS the media has achieved in educating women about health is truly historic,' John Mack Carter said.

By contrast, only 22 percent of the women rely upon public health care agencies for information, 20 percent rely upon government agencies such as Health & Human Services and Food & Drug Administration.

Another objective of the Hearst survey was to document the medical experiences of American women and, consequently, a profile emerges:

- 64 percent of American women have been treated in an emergency room at least once.
- 53 percent have undergone major surgery at least once.
- 53 percent of the women who have had major surgery did not request a second opinion beforehand.
- 54 percent have been to their dentist within the past six months.
- 54 percent have received instruction in diet and nutrition, 37 percent in sex education, and 31 percent in child rearing and parenting.

Among opinions expressed on health issues were the following:

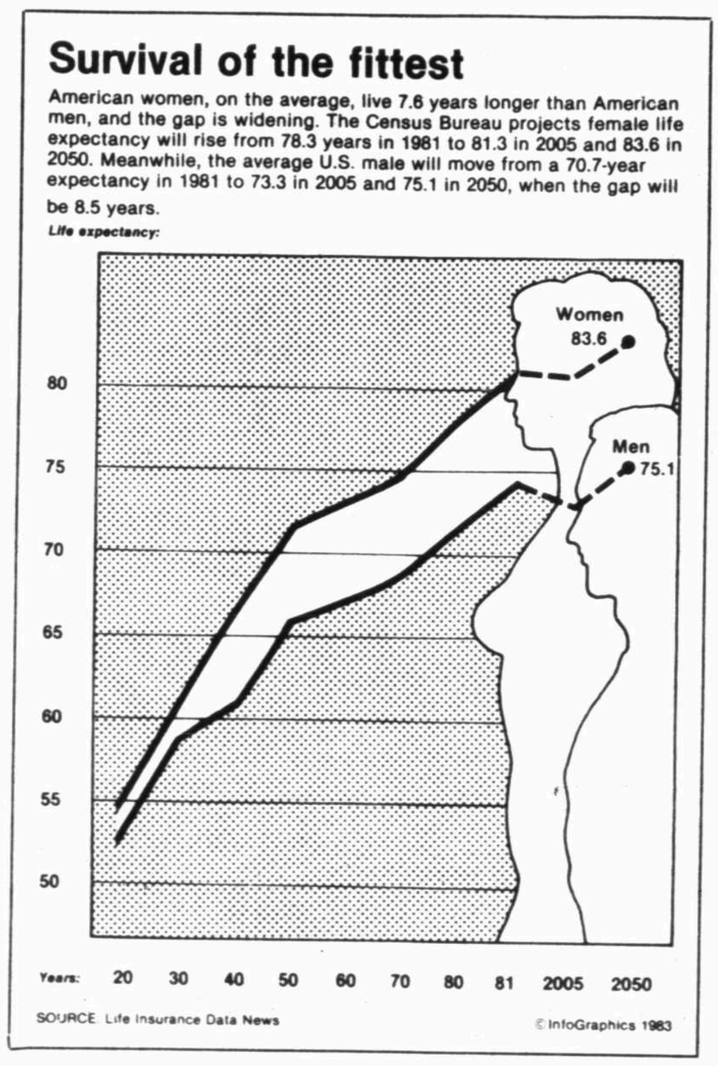
- The overwhelming majority of American women favors the right of terminally ill patients to stop their own treatment. (79 percent to 14 percent)
- Another majority favors the right of the next of kin to stop treatment of a terminally ill patient. (63 percent to 26 percent)

THE FINDINGS of the Hearst survey represent the results of 998 telephone interviews with a demographic selection of women across the United States. The statistically valid results have a plus or minus margin of error of 3.2 percent.

"The American Woman's Knowledge of Health & Physical Well-Being" is the third in a series of nationwide, statistically valid surveys sponsored by The Hearst Corporation.

The previous surveys were "The American Public's Knowledge of Law & The Judicial System" (1983) and "The American Public's Knowledge of Business & Economy" (1984).

The Hearst Corporation is one of the nation's leading diversified communications companies with major interests in magazine, newspaper and book publishing, television and radio broadcasting, cable television systems and programming services.



Hutchinson enters T.E.E.N. pageant

Lisa Sue Hutchinson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hutchinson, will compete in the 1986 West Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant Jan. 11 in Midland. This is the official city-wide preliminary for the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant next September.

Contestants must be 14-18 years of age, must maintain at least a "B" average in school and must participate in the volunteer service program of the pageant, contributing at least 12 hours of time to charity or civic work.

Pageant winner will receive a $500 cash scholarship, a portrait and an all-expense paid trip to the state pageant.

Judging will be based on scholastic achievement, volunteer service, speech or talent, interview and formal presentation.

Miss Hutchinson is sponsored by Window Decor, Jim's Pumping Service, Onda-Lay Pipe and Rental, Fairchild Oil and Gas and Midland Optimist Club.

Study: Fewer married people die of cancer

DETROIT (AP) — Studying the relationship between cancer and marital status may help identify other factors that can determine who gets the disease, said an official of the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

A foundation study revealed that married people are less likely to die of cancer than single people, G. Marie Swanson, director of epidemiology for the foundation, said Monday.

Also, the study found that single black males have by far the highest incidence of lung, colon and pancreas cancer of all groups.

The survey was based on nearly 59,070 cancer cases in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties diagnosed between 1978 and 1982.

The study showed that the relationship between cancer and marital status differs dramatically depending on sex, race and type of cancer.

Swanson said the advantage of studying how cancer relates to marital status is that it may help in identifying other factors that could determine who gets cancer.

Previous studies that take into account a victim's marital status were of people who have died of the disease, not those who have contracted it, she said. Those studies have shown that married people made up a smaller portion of cancer-death rates than single people.

But the foundation's study, which is based on the incidence of cancer, shows that marriage probably does not play a role in getting cancer, she said.

"What that might suggest is that marriage is a protective factor for survivorship, but has little to do with the occurrence of cancer," she said.

DEAR ABBY

Irate shopper can't find pleasing fashions

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have just returned from another shopping trip frustrated and empty-handed. All I want is one good-looking dress that I can wear for an evening out. I would like to ask the American fashion designers: For whom are you designing? Each other? Certainly not for American women.

I am a 41-year-old professional woman who has worked hard to maintain a trim figure, and I'd like to show it off a little. Today's designers make that hard; their fabrics are lovely but the styles range from frumpy to ridiculous. I can find nothing without a blousy waist (intended to hide at least 20 pounds around the middle), and dresses with shoulder pads that make me look like a football tackle.

Whatever happened to the classic little cocktail dress whose shape approximates a woman's figure? I'm boycotting the dress market until the designers come up with something worth buying. — THREADBARE BUT RESOLUTE IN VIRGINIA

DEAR THREADBARE: Don't give up. Figure-flattering dresses can be found if you know where to look. Specialty stores, boutiques and catalogs carry fashions for every kind of figure — and department stores have plenty, too. Far-out trendy fashions may be current, but you don't have to buy them. Should shoulder pads overpower you, they can be modified or removed entirely.

If you can't find something that pleases you, buy fabric and a pattern and make your own. You can't sew? So what? Find a dressmaker who can.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago my beloved sister, "Ida," passed away. It was a blessing, as she had been terminally ill for a long time. Ida left a devoted husband, "Al," age 57, a married daughter, "Jill," and Jill's child, who is the apple of Al's eye.

Al started dating a young woman I'll call Bonnie. Our family had known Bonnie and her family for years. She's divorced, childless and a very fine person. Al and Bonnie seem happy together. Now the problem. Jill disapproves of the relationship between her father and Bonnie. She thinks Bonnie is too young for her father. (She and Jill are the same age, 36.) Jill told her father that if he continues dating Bonnie, she will not allow him to see his granddaughter.

Abby, my sister was a loving, generous person, and she would not have wanted Al to stop living because she died.

We don't want Al to quit dating Bonnie, which he would probably do rather than give up seeing his grandchild.

How do you see this situation, and how do we help? — WANTS TO HELP

DEAR WANTS: By explaining to Al that if he submits to his daughter's blackmail, this scenario will only be repeated with the next woman he dates, and the next, and the next. Jill could use professional counseling to help her understand why she resents her father's need for female companionship now that her mother is dead, and also why she is using the grandchild as a hostage to ensure that Daddy doesn't find happiness with another woman.

Snoopy goes sophisticated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Snoopy, America's favorite comic strip dog, has led a plush life as a plush toy since he first appeared in 1968, produced by Determined Productions, a San Francisco-based company.

He's kept up-to-date over the years, changing occupations and outfits; he's been a Flashdancer, an Olympic athlete, Boy Snoopy and Mr. S, and top fashion designers have created wardrobes for him.

Now, in celebration of the 35th anniversary of the Peanuts comic strip created by Charles Schulz, he's appearing in a limited edition of 5,000 as a more sophisticated, debonair Snoopy, in top hat and tails.

Housework 'out'

By ERMA BOMBECK

What kind of a person would look their sweet, sainted mother in the eye and say, "Ha, ha, I told you so"?

A woman who has been told all her life that unmade beds give you bad skin and "Cleanlines is next to Godliness," who has just heard that "Dust is in," that's who!

I knew if I just hung around long enough and waited it all out that housework would be found out for what it is ... something to do so you won't bite your fingernails.

I realized years ago that I was born out of my time warp. I watched my mother every Monday morning run a footrace to get her clothes on the line first. I watched her lug mattresses out of the bedroom and beat them with sticks in the backyard. I watched her hose down bedsprings on the porch and move the refrigerator every spring and vacuum under it. It was even boring to watch.

Then one day my mother turned to me and said, "Move that sofa, please."

"Why would I want to do that?" I asked, "It'll just stir up the dust."

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness," she chanted.

"Cleanliness is next to impossible," I countered, "If you can't see it, smell it or trip over it, pass on by."

Little did she realize then what a prophet I was. The women of the '80s no longer consider housework a religious experience. In fact, dust is a badge of status worn proudly by the women who are making a statement to the world, "I don't have time to clean my house. I have other things to do."

We are entering the Golden Age of domesticity ... the time when your oven cleans itself as you sleep, there is a naval officer in your toilet bowl and you can cut down cooking odors just by not cooking.

Women who engage in spring or fall housecleaning are becoming extinct. No more do women dust each book on the bookshelf or use a toothbrush to polish chrome on the bathroom spigots. No siree, we pay someone $9 an hour to do it or we hire a swat team to come in once a year and attack it all like an assault on a plague of locusts.

We launder by demand and iron by force. We wax by pressure, cook by necessity. We vacuum by habit and dust by a full moon. What about guilt? What about it? Somehow, I always sensed there was something unnatural about polishing piano legs that never went anywhere and no one ever looked at. Would the universe stop spinning if there was a martini glass in the bathroom and poker chips in the hall planter?

Mother said she's not sorry that she spent all those years on her hands and knees fighting yellow wax build-up.

Me? I'd be so bitter, I'd spit nails. It's like saying no to a jelly doughnut and getting hit five minutes later by a car.

'Safe' cigarettes still years away

Associated Press

It will be years before scientists develop a "safe" cigarette, says the director of the federal tobacco research facility in Oxford, N.C.

"I think we can accomplish what we're trying to do, but I'd hate to say when," said Dr. James Chaplin, director of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Oxford Tobacco Research Lab. "We're not that close ... it's a slow process."

Chaplin said two of the lab's 10 scientists were working on breeding tobacco plants with a lower level of tar by crossing lines with low tar and less-than-desirable smoking qualities with lines that have good smoking qualities and the usual amount of tar.

Although some 550 samples were grown this year, the scientists can test only 300 samples a year because they have to cure the tobacco, make it into cigarettes and smoke them on smoking machines that analyze the tar and nicotine, he said.

"We haven't come up with a real fast method of analyzing for tar," said Chaplin. "We can go much faster if we didn't have to go through that process."

The Oxford lab has focused for the last five or six years on reducing tar in tobacco. He said USDA labs in Beltsville, Md., and Athens, Ga., were concentrating on reducing the amount of other harmful substances found in cigarettes, such as solansol and phenols.

Khadafy threatens subversive activities

by

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy threatened to launch a campaign of subversion in the United States if a published report that the CIA plotted to undermine him proves to be true.

Khadafy

Khadafy, 43, spoke at a Thursday news conference following a report in The Washington Post that said President Reagan had authorized a CIA plan to destabilize Libya's government.

The Libyan strongman said the reported plot amounted to "a new Nazism by the American government," and said Reagan should have to stand trial for the plan.

Later, in a brief talk with Western television reporters, Khadafy said, "If it's true, we have to fight. We must subvert America from the inside by using all means possible." He did not elaborate.

The United States has accused Khadafy of supporting terrorist groups around the world. He denies supporting terrorism but acknowledges backing what he calls independence movements.

The White House did not confirm The Washington Post report, which was published Sunday, but said an investigation was being conducted to determine who had leaked information.

Khadafy told the news conference at his heavily guarded barracks office that President Reagan should have to bear the legal consequences for the purported CIA plan.

"I think this is a serious violation of the law perpetrated by the American president, and I think he should be tried according to American law," Khadafy said.

"This is more dangerous and more scandalous than Watergate," he said in reference to the political scandal that caused President Richard M. Nixon to resign in 1974.

"We have always tried in good faith to have relations with America, but you can't reason with the American government," said Khadafy, speaking in Arabic, which was then translated into English.

The purported CIA plan "proves to us that America is our enemy and should be confronted" by Libya and a united Arab front, Khadafy said during his 30-minute session with Western, Libyan and Sudanese reporters.

He laughed when asked about reports of discontent in the Libyan military.

WORLD IN BRIEF

In spite of call, no bodies found

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller to a Beirut radio said the bodies of American kidnap victims would be dumped under a bridge early today, but for the second day in a row a police search turned up nothing.

Police said they searched a Moslem sector of Beirut before dawn today after the call late Thursday to the Christian radio station Voice of Lebanon.

The radio station said a man called just before midnight (5 p.m. EST) Thursday and said: "We're going to dump the bodies of the Americans, these betrayers, under the Fuad Shehab bridge at 3 a.m." today (8 p.m. Thursday EST).

A police spokesman, speaking on condition he not be identified, said no bodies were found at the bridge, a spiral stretch of elevated highway linking east and west Beirut. Gunmen have dumped the bodies of hundreds of slain Lebanese kidnap victims there during the 10-year-old civil war.

Editor of Cape Times detained

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police detained the editor of The Cape Times today, four days after he published an interview with a black guerrilla leader who has called for the overthrow of the white-led government, newspaper employees said.

The independent South African Press Association reported that the editor, Anthony Heard, 47, had been charged before Magistrate J.C. Tolken with quoting a "banned person." There was no immediate confirmation from Heard's newspaper or from authorities.

Employees of The Cape Times, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said two security policemen led Heard from his office just before noon. They said it was believed Heard was being taken to Cape Town Magistrate's Court, and said their newspaper would issue a statement when more details became known.

Photographers boycott president

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — News photographers refused to take pictures of President Christos Sarzetakis because of what they called his "completely undemocratic" decision to allow only one photojournalist in his residence.

About 50 photographers placed their cameras in the street at the entrance to the presidential mansion Thursday as Archibishop Iakovos, Greek Orthodox bishop of the Americas, arrived for a visit.

The boycott came about five months after Sarzetakis banned all but one photographer from taking his picture at the mansion, Greece's former royal palace.

A spokesman for Sarzetakis said the president's briefing room is too small to accommodate all photographers.

The 120-member Greek photojournalists' union denounced the president's action in a statement Thursday.

"It is completely undemocratic for one photographer to have exclusivity at every presidential appearance," the statement said.

Agency requests Ethiopian probe

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A French relief agency has called for an international inquiry into Ethiopia's resettlement program, including disputed reports that tens of thousands of settlers have died.

Michel Fiszbin, an administrator at the Doctors Without Borders office in Ethiopia, also said in a telephone interview Thursday that the Paris-based relief agency was calling for a temporary halt to resettlement while the inquiry is conducted.

Dr. Claude Malhuret, a director of the organization, said in Paris that international relief agencies had a right to request an inquiry because some of their food aid was being used in the resettlement program.

Daughter forced to praise captors

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A government official said President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter was forced to make statements praising her former guerrilla kidnappers for treating her well and fighting bravely.

"A kidnapped person, someone who is terrorized, someone who is psychologically pressured by kidnappers, you can't expect anything else," presidential adviser Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes told a news conference Thursday.

The guerrillas' two clandestine radio stations broadcast a tape recording earlier Thursday in which Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran was purported to respond to her captors' questions by praising them.

Sikhs held in jet, airport bombings

DUNCAN, British Columbia (AP) — Two Sikhs were being held today on charges of explosives violations following a Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigation of the crash of an Air-India jet and a Tokyo airport bombing last June.

The men charged Thursday, Talwinder Singh Parmar and Inderjit Singh Reyat, were to appear today in provincial court in Duncan, on Vancouver Island.

They were arrested Wednesday during a series of RCMP raids on several homes and a Sikh temple in the area. Vancouver is the home of Canada's largest Sikh community.

The Air-India Boeing 747 jumbo jet was bound for India from Toronto on June 23 when it crashed off the Irish coast, killing 329 people. The cause of the crash has not been determined, although an explosion is suspected.

PLO leader condemns terrorism of civilians

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — PLO chief Yasser Arafat condemned terrorist acts against unarmed civilians and appeared to promise punishment for any member who engages in terrorism outside Israeli-occupied territory, but Israeli leaders reacted skeptically.

An unidentified aide to Israeli Prime Minster Shimon Peres was quoted on Israeli television Thursday as saying only a "simpleton" would believe Arafat's promises, made the same day in Cairo.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir was quoted today as saying the pledge amounted to support of terrorism against Israel.

"It is permitted to murder Jews, but not to commit terrorist acts in Europe, because that bothers Europeans," Shamir was quoted as saying in the Maariv daily.

However, another Israeli newspaper, Haaretz, quoted unidentified senior Israeli political sources as calling Arafat's declaration a step towards the implicit recognition of Israel's right to exist.

The Palestine Liberation Organization chairman, in Cairo for meetings with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, read a statement to reporters that said in part:

"The PLO reiterates its 1974 decision to condemn all outside operations and all forms of terrorism, and it reiterates once more the commitment of all its institutions and factions to this decision."

He did not explain what he meant by "outside," but appeared to condemn armed operations outside Israel and the land it has occupied since the 1967 Middle East war, including the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip along the Mediterranean Sea.

The PLO's stand is that all of Israel is occupied Palestinian territory.

"The PLO as of today will take all punitive measures against violators," he said. Arafat did not specify what measures would be taken and did not answer reporters' questions.

In what he called the "Cairo Declaration," Arafat reiterated the PLO view that Palestinians have the right to fight Israeli occupation "in all possible ways."

But he also condemned "all terrorist acts ... against unarmed innocent civilians in any place."

The United States has said that it will not talk with the PLO until it renounces violence and recognizes Israel as a sovereign state. Arafat said nothing about recognizing Israel.

PLO spokesman Ahmed Abdel-Rahman told reporters he expected a "quick American reassessment of its campaign against the PLO" as a result of Arafat's statement.

However, Israel's former ambassador to Washington, Labor Party legislator Simcha Dinitz, said he doubted Arafat's statement would change U.S. policy.

Speaking on Israel television, Dinitz said the statement still "gave sanction for the continuation of terror against citizens in the (occupied) territories ... Arafat also ducked the questions of recognition of Israel."

Israeli army radio said Shamir, the Israeli foreign minister, told U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering that Egypt and Jordan were seeking to bolster the PLO's image after accusations that the Palestinian group was involved in last month's hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship, and warned him not to be misled.

Palestinian sources similarly said that Arafat's condemnation of terrorism against unarmed civilians was necessary after the ship hijacking. Four gunmen who identified themselves as members of a PLO group are charged with killing a wheelchair-bound American hostage during the hijacking.

Arafat's statement also called on the world to "make Israel stop all terrorist acts inside and outside."

His statement differed from Egypt's position in that Egypt recognized Israel's right to exist by signing a peace treaty with the Jewish state in 1979.
