Drug lord gives up

MEXICO CITY — A jailed drug baron surrendered to authorities Thursday, giving up control of a state prison two weeks after a shootout that killed 18 people and showed the power and privileges he enjoyed behind bars. Oliverio Chavez Araujo and one of his lieutenants left the Matamoros prison near the U.S.-Mexico border under heavy guard at about 5 a.m. and were flown to Mexico City aboard a jet from the federal attorney general's office. The governor of the northern state of Tamaulipas, Gov. Americo Villareal, later fired the prison warden and announced the resignation of the director of the state prison system, said his spokesman, Pedro Alfonso Garcia. /10A

Rose to play Cobb

NEW YORK — Pete Rose, the disgraced superstar who made baseball history when he broke Ty Cobb's all-time base hit record, will try to match Cobb again: portraying him in a television movie. Shooting of "The Babe Ruth Story" will begin June 4 in Los Angeles and at Cleveland Stadium, said Dorothy Austin, an NBC spokeswoman. The film, scheduled to be broadcast this fall, will star Stephen Lang as Babe Ruth, Bruce Weitz as Yankees manager Miller Huggins, Brian Doyle Murray as sportswriter Marshall Hunt, Lisa Zane as Ruth's second wife, Claire, and Donald Moffat as Yankees owner Jacob Ruppert.

Court OKs no-warrant car search

■ Supreme Court ruling overturns precedent, broadens police authority.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Overturning a 12-year-old precedent, the Supreme Court on Thursday broadened the ability of police officers who have no court warrant to search bags, suitcases and other containers they find in automobiles.

The court ruled that as long as the police have probable cause to believe that drugs or other illegal items are in a bag, they can open and examine it without a warrant regardless of whether they have a reason to search the car.

The vote was 6 to 3. Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who had dissented from the 1979 decision that the court overturned on Thursday, wrote the majority opinion.

This year the high court already has ruled that coerced confessions are acceptable in some circumstances, that police can take up to 48 hours to tell suspects why they are being held, and that drugs thrown away by a defendant during a police chase are legally admissible even though police had no reason to run after the suspect.

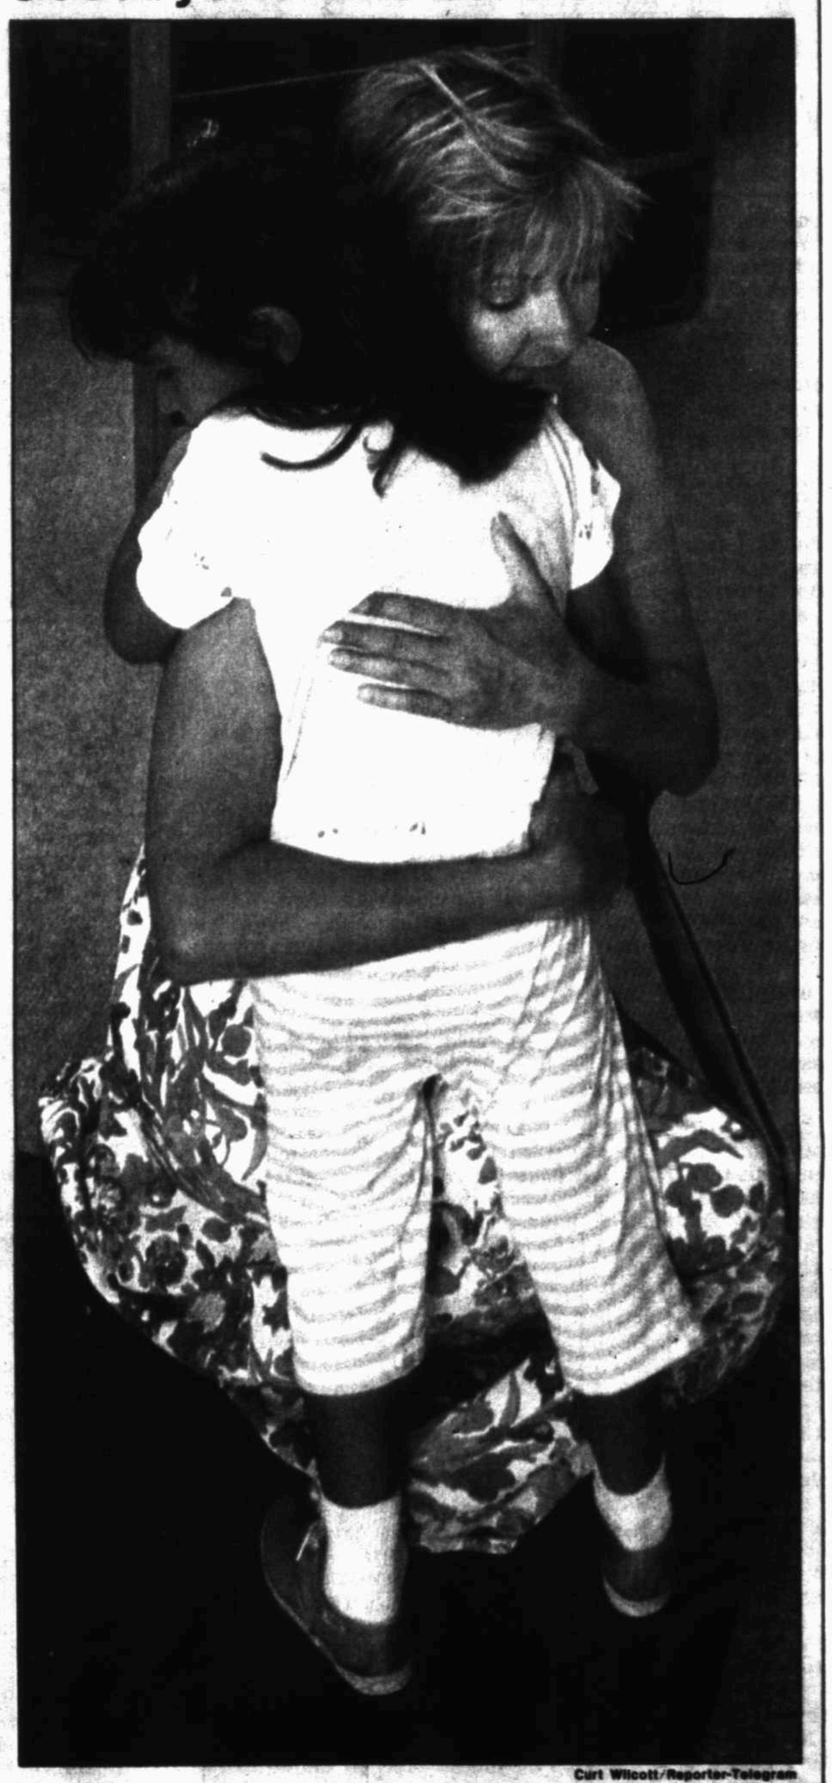

The court's numerous rulings on automobile searches over the years have made this subject one of the most complex and contradictory in the entire area of criminal procedure. It had been apparent over the last few years that the court wanted to make some new rules that would be easier for the police to follow and that would result in fewer convictions being overturned because of law-enforcement errors.

The ruling on Thursday reinstated the conviction of a California man for possessing marijuana, which the police had found in a paper bag in the trunk of his car. The officers, who had no search warrant, did have probable cause to believe that the bag contained marijuana but had no independent basis for searching the car itself.

A California appeals court found that the search was invalid under the 1979 Supreme Court decision, Arkansas v. Sanders. In that ruling, the court barred

Midland entry trips during spelling bee's fourth round

WASHINGTON — Jared Hoggan, a Midland sixth grader, tripped over the word "scrobiculate" and was eliminated during the fourth round of the 64th National Spelling Bee Thursday.

Jared, a 12-year-old student at Midland's Hillander School, left out the "ic" portion of the word, which means pitted or furrowed as in a ditch. That ended his dream of winning the 64th annual contest.

Joanne Lagatta, a 13-year-old from Clintonville, Wis., took first prize, correctly spelling "inappetence," the lack of appetite or desire, and "antipyretic," something that curbs fever.

Joanne triumphed after 90-minute duel with a lone competitor in the closing rounds, second-place finisher Maria Mathew, 11, of Sterling, Ill. "I was getting

Parched cotton: Dryland growers desperate for rain

LUBBOCK (AP) — Dryland cotton farmers on the Texas South Plains are so desperate for rain they are contemplating ancient Indian rituals.

"If it takes a rain dance, we'll do it," said Dirk Aaron, agriculture extension agent for Terry County. "We need some help, and fast."

Officials say if a steady downpour does not hit soon, the 25-county area surrounding Lubbock — where a quarter of the nation's cotton is grown — stands to lose more than a million acres.

That translated into dollars and cents is more than $500 million drained from mostly local economies.

"In several small towns in the South Plains, cotton is the largest if not the only industry," said Alan Mackey, executive director of the Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service in Lubbock. "No rain means no crop and no income. We are looking at a dire situation."

According to the National Weather Service, Lubbock County received less than two inches of rain in April and May, the heart of planting season. The average rainfall for May alone is 2.59 inches.

And a forecast of widely scattered showers over the next two weeks is not very encouraging to growers.

"With those scattered thunderstorms it's just hit-or-miss," said Brett Cypert, extension agent in Lynn County, which has more than 100,000 acres of dryland cotton.

"It boils down to how lucky you are. What we need is a front to move in and just give us some steady rainfall."

Only about a quarter of the 2.2 million dryland cotton acreage has been planted on the South Plains due to lack of moisture.

Several farmers have pulled up their initial planting and are starting over. At least three inches of topsoil moisture is needed for planting, experts said.

In order to qualify for multi-peril insurance compensation, growers have to have their crop in the ground by mid-June.

U.S.: Noriega fed CIA intelligence information

MIAMI (AP) — Manuel Noriega fed the CIA secrets on the Panama Canal negotiations and conducted important U.S. intelligence operations, the government confirmed in a classified narrative released Thursday.

Prosecutors, however, strongly denied that U.S. authorities approved the drug trafficking that led to the deposed Panamanian leader's indictment.

The government's account was contained in a partly censored 31-page response to the defense's request for secret U.S. documents.

Much of the narrative written by Assistant U.S. Attorney James McAdams disputed the defense's need for classified documents. But prosecutors agreed Noriega supplied the United States with secrets about his own country while serving as Panama's intelli-

Ector County property values continue slide

By Brian Pearson

ODESSA — Property values here, as they have for the past seven years, have declined again this year, preliminary Ector County Appraisal District figures show.

But an Odessa Chamber of Commerce official Thursday said the trend probably will end in 1992 because of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin's four-year status.

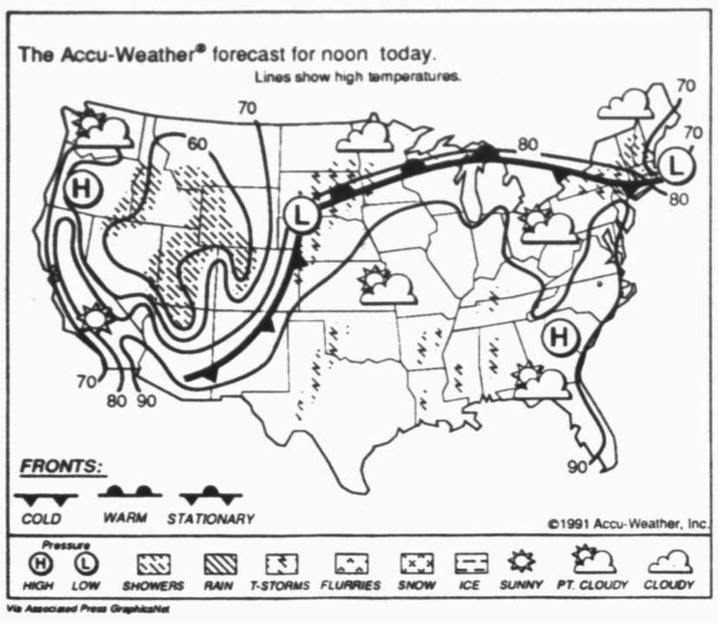

Preliminary figures show Ector County's taxable value dropping from about $4.69 billion to $4.68 billion, only a 0.22 percent, or $10.3 million, decrease from final 1990 values.

Windy mid-90s to hang on

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies, a high in the mid-90s, south winds 10 to 20 mph and a less than 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60 and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Saturday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

After an overnight low of 73, Thursday's high was 99, only two degrees short of the record high of 101 set on May 30, 1985. The record low for today's date was 45 set in 1937.

STATE

Texas remained mostly cloudy, muggy and warm Wednesday, although the sun shone over far West Texas.

Abundant moisture and afternoon heating triggered scattered showers and thunderstorms over East and Southeast Texas. Afternoon thunderstorms became active in Northwest Texas.

In addition, a tornado watch was issued until 10 p.m. for extreme northwest portions of North Texas, the eastern Panhandle and portions of the South Plains.

Winds were southerly and speeds increased during the day to around 15 to 20 miles per hour with gusts over 30 at some locations in the west. Winds west of the mountains were westerly at speeds of 15-25 mph. Small craft advisories remained posted along the entire coast.

Midafternoon temperatures ranged from 83 degrees at Sherman to near 100 along the middle Rio Grande.

The North Texas forecast was for late night and early morning low cloudiness through Saturday. Otherwise partly cloudy with widely scattered thunderstorms. High temperatures 91 to 95 and lows 71 to 75.

The forecast for South Texas was for cloudy mornings with partly cloudy, warm afternoons and a chance of afternoon and evening showers or thunderstorms in the north through Saturday. Partly cloudy, warm and windy in the south. Highs in the 90s except 80s at the coast and near 100 across the Rio Grande plains. Lows in the 70s.

Forecasters expected West Texas would be partly cloudy through today with widely scattered late afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Highs today mostly in the 90s. Lows from the upper 50s in the Panhandle and Far West to the lower 70s in the Concho Valley and Big Bend.

NATION

Rain and storms were scattered over much of the eastern two-thirds of the nation Thursday and more record high temperatures were reported in the East.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended from northeastern Florida across southeastern Georgia, eastern and central Tennessee, western North Carolina, Kentucky, western West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania into New York state.

Showers and thunderstorms also reached across North Dakota, southwestern South Dakota, Minnesota, eastern Nebraska, eastern Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, eastern and central Texas, Louisiana, southern and western Mississippi and central and west-central Alabama.

In northwestern Nebraska, residents of Crawford faced severe water restrictions Thursday after heavy rain flooded the White River for the second time this month. The latest flood washed out part of a temporary pipeline carrying water to the community of about 1,300.

The pipeline had been carrying water to the city from Fort Robinson since flooding May 10-11 damaged Crawford's water system, caused millions of dollars in damage and killed a man.

"We're still in the process of cleaning up from last time," said Doug Strotheide, co-owner of the Crawford Livestock Market, ravaged by the first flood.

"It's probably the first time in Nebraska that we're hoping for the rain to stop," he said.

In the West, showers were scattered over western Montana, Idaho, southwestern Oregon, northeastern California, northern and east-central Nevada, northern and central Utah and northwestern Colorado.

Wind gusted to 70 mph during the morning in California's Sierra Nevada near Lake Tahoe.

Elsewhere, showers were scattered over northern Maine.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

SEARCHES: Supreme Court overturns precedent

warrantless searches of closed containers found in cars unless the police have probable cause to search the car itself.

That ruling limited a decision by the court in the 1920s giving the police broad latitude to conduct warrantless searches of cars on the ground that the vehicle's mobility made a strict warrant requirement impractical.

Blackmun said Thursday that the 1979 decision in particular had "confused courts and police officers and impeded effective law enforcement." He said the court's various decisions had created an illogical dichotomy.

On the one hand, the police could open any container they found, even one they did not regard as suspicious, as long as they had cause to conduct a general search of the car.

But on the other hand, even a container the police had good reason to be suspicious of could not be opened without a warrant if there was no probable cause to search the car as a whole.

"Until today," Blackmun said, "this court has drawn a curious line between the search of an automobile that coincidentally turns up a container and the search of a container that coincidentally turns up in an automobile."

He said: "The protections of the Fourth Amendment must not turn on such coincidences." The Fourth Amendment, which bars unreasonable search and seizure, is the constitutional basis for requiring searches to be based on warrants or probable cause.

Thursday's decision, California v. Acevedo, No. 89-1690, was joined by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Anthony M. Kennedy and David H. Souter. Justice Antonin Scalia provided a sixth vote for the result but wrote a separate opinion.

Justice John Paul Stevens wrote a dissenting opinion that Justice Thurgood Marshall joined. Justice Byron R. White said he agreed with "most of" the dissenting opinion.

Stevens said that "unquestionably" the decision today "will result in a significant loss of individual privacy." Noting that the Constitution requires the police to have a warrant to search a container that a person is carrying on a public street, he said it was "anomalous" to ease that requirement simply because a person puts the container "out of sight in a privately owned vehicle."

Stevens said that "decisions like the one the court makes today will support the conclusion that this court has become a loyal foot soldier in the Executive's fight against crime."

NORIEGA: Transcript gives details of cooperation

gence chief.

"That information ranged from incidental information to the negotiating posture of the Panamanian government during the Panama Canal negotiations," prosecutors said. "In addition, he supported U.S. government programs in Panama, some of which were important intelligence operations. . . ."

In a 1977 treaty, the United States and Panama agreed to a gradual takeover by Panama of the canal, which is in a zone controlled by the U.S. military. At the time, Noriega was head of Panamanian intelligence; he took control of the country after the 1981 death of Gen. Omar Torrijos.

"There was a considerable amount of information furnished by the general in that as well as numerous other things," defense attorney Frank Rubino said, but added the government insisted that other details remain classified.

The government document, however, challenged the defense to show evidence that Noriega's drug activities were approved by the U.S. government.

"Noriega must be required to identify specifically the person or persons who directly, or even by a 'wink and a nod,' told him he had authority to act in behalf of the United States," prosecutors said.

The government had only "inconclusive and circumstantial" evidence of Noriega's drug dealings until shortly before his February 1988 indictment, the document said.

A transcript of a secret hearing held on the issue before U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler gave some detail about Noriega's reported cooperation with the Drug Enforcement Administration. The defense said the DEA asked Noriega to allow drug shipments and cocaine-refining chemicals to pass through Panama, and to allow suspected traffickers in and out of the country without intercepting them.

Prosecutors said the defense provided no evidence to support that charge.

Defense lawyers also had made an issue of a threat they claim former National Security Adviser John Poindexter made to Noriega. They said the Reagan administration aide threatened an invasion and indictment when Noriega balked at backing a Contra invasion of Nicaragua.

During the hearing, prosecutors said "we are not sure that a threat was made," and that there was no evidence it had a bearing on Noriega's indictment.

VALUES: Official predicts end to trend in 1992 and Odessa College also experienced declines of less than 1 percent.

(From 1A)

The Ector County report contrasted with figures released last month showing increased preliminary taxable values in Midland County for the first time in six years.

Chief Appraiser Jim Goodwin said the figures are undergoing a protest process and will not be finalized until the summer.

Goodwin said the values should decline further after the protest period. Protest hearings will be held through June 14.

Under preliminary estimates, the city was dealt the heaviest value blow. The city's value dropped from $1.69 billion in 1990 to $1.66 billion this year, a 2 percent, or $33.8 million, decrease.

The culprit behind the drop was real estate values, which plunged from $1.49 billion to $1.46 billion, a 2.1 percent, or $31 million, decrease.

Russell Autry, Odessa Chamber of Commerce chief executive officer, said real estate values will likely begin ascending after UTPB opens its doors as a four-year institution this fall.

Autry estimated that residential values within a half mile of the formerly two-year university will grow 20 percent within the next year.

Fredna Brown, Odessa Board of Realtors president-elect, said the Odessa real estate market has not experienced any drastic swings recently.

"I feel like real estate seems to be stable at this time due to the lower inventory of homes on the market," Ms. Brown said. "The market seems to be better than it was in 1990. There seems to be some upswing in the sale of new homes."

Unlike property values, preliminary mineral values showed an increase from last year.

Ector County's mineral values increased 0.2 percent, or $4.3 million, climbing to $2.2 billion.

Ector County School District's overall value went from $4.56 billion to $4.55 billion, a $10.7 million, or 0.23 percent, drop.

Odessa College experienced a similar decline, going from $4.67 billion to $4.66 billion, a $10.5 million, or 0.23 percent, decrease.

The Ector County Hospital District, meanwhile, experienced a 0.28 percent, or $13.2 million, decrease, dropping from $4.68 billion to $4.67 billion.

Lower property values mean taxing entities will collect less money with their current tax rates.

Midland County's preliminary taxable values, released last month, showed their first increase in six years.

Real estate/industrial, personal and mineral values all showed increases from last year, increasing from 0.25 percent to as much as 53.4 percent.

All six taxing entities in the county — the city, county, hospital district, and Midland and Greenwood school districts — gained value over the past year.

The county's taxable value rose from about $3.65 billion in 1990 to $3.74 billion this year, a 3.95 percent increase.

The city of Midland's value increased 2.85 percent, going from $2.53 billion to $2.56 billion.

more and more nervous. I just wanted to call it a tie," she said.

But Jared, son of Barbara and Kerry Hoggan, was far from despondent after his defeat.

"I feel good that I made it this far," Jared said. "Most of the time, that's all you can hope for."

Besides, Jared — who won top honors in the Midland Reporter-Telgram Regional Spelling Bee in April — has two more years in which to try to win the national championship. "I hope to be back next year," he said. Students are eligible to compete through the eighth grade.

Jared said he "had no idea" what scrobiculate meant or how it was spelled, but "took a good shot at figuring it out."

He explained that during the second day of the competition, the spelling words are harder than the first day because they are not drawn from the thousand-word list that contestants pored over before arriving in Washington.

"Actually, it's mostly luck, especially on the second day of competition," Jared said.

On Wednesday, Jared made it through three rounds of competition, easily spelling "gamopetalous," a plant composed of leaves; "sleazily," and "camoufleur," or someone who uses camouflage.

The words did indeed get tougher on Thursday, with stumpers such as "unguiferate," having nails or claws, and "obsidionial," relating to a siege, to name only a few.

The audience laughed when Devin L. Wicker, 12, of Riverton, N.J., struggling over the word "tautology," asked the judges, "Can I buy a vowel?" Devin borrowed the line from the popular TV gameshow "Wheel of Fortune" then breezily spelled the word correctly.

For Jared and the other 226 contestants in the bee, the competition is over but the pace of tourist activities is picking up in the sizzling nation's capital.

Jared, his parents, sister Celeste, 14, and brother Jason, 7, will visit the U.S. Capitol, the Smithsonian musuems and the national monuments before flying back to Midland early Sunday.

On Friday, all the contestants and their families will be honored at an awards banquet, where the winners will collect their booty.

Joanne Lagatta gets $5,000, a trophy, a prize from Encyclopaedia Britannica and an appearance on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" on Friday. Maria Mathew won $4,000 as the second-place finisher.

Altogether, the field began with 113 girls and 114 boys. They emerged from nearly 9 million students who entered this year's spelling bee at the local level.

The competition, which began in 1925, is sponsored by Scripps Howard newspapers in 13 cities joined by 208 other daily, weekly and Sunday newspapers.

The students this year represented every state except Delaware, plus the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Mexico and U.S. dependents' schools overseas.

COTTON: Growers contemplate Indian rituals

(From 1A)

"If we don't have any rain over the next week, you'll probably start seeing farmers just plant their seeds in the dry dirt and hope a rain brings it to life," Cypert said. "In order to qualify for the insurance a farmer has to be planted. He's got to cover himself."

Even if the crop does take root, it may not have the strength to withstand the heat, wind and sporadic hail storms that plague West Texas during the summer, Aaron said.

South Plains farmers nourishing about 1.6 million acres of cotton with irrigation are also finding it tough.

"There reaches a point where using irrigation loses its profitability," Aaron said. "It costs so much to pump water out of the ground that the profit margin just disappears."

Farmers are finding it difficult to be upbeat with June just around the corner.

Last June the South Plains set a regional record for lack of precipitation and number of days with temperatures above 100 degrees.

More than 20 days of 100-plus degrees nearly crippled last year's crop.

"Farmers won't even talk about that," Aaron said. "That's simply too much to think about at a time like this."

Sunday dinner: Norman Lear brings religion to prime time

By David Briggs
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — He startled the nation 20 years ago by bringing ethnic prejudice into the open with "All in the Family." Now, Norman Lear is back to break what religious leaders say is television's final sitcom taboo: God.

"Sunday Dinner," which premieres Sunday on CBS, is already drawing fire from some secular critics and the religious right for its vague spirituality. For instance, the leading "religious" character refers to God as "he, she, the ultimate, whatever."

But many religion commentators are defending the program for taking the first, timid steps of introducing religious issues into the spiritual wasteland of prime time.

"In the large scheme of things, it's good that a network program is finally recognizing that for the great majority of Americans, religion, in all its maddening diversity, is an integral part of their lives," said Richard Neuhaus, director of the Institute on Religion and Public Life in New York.

"God can even use silly sitcoms to get people thinking about more substantive things."

The premise of the show revolves around the May-October relationship between a 56-year-old man and his beautiful 30-year-old fiancee, and the reaction of his kids to the prospects of having a mother their own age.

What makes the sitcom unusual is that the heroine, played by Teri Hatcher, talks to God, or as she more frequently refers to the deity, "Chief." Her religious beliefs are undefined, but the show makes it clear prayer is an important part of her life.

In a telephone interview Tuesday from Los Angeles, Lear said society is suffering from an emphasis on numbers: "SAT scores, Nielsen ratings, polls, polls, polls. ... We are losing connection with everything that is unquantifiable, that capacity we have for awe, wonder, gratitude, love."

Just like he raised hackles with "All in the Family's" uncompromising look at issues such as civil rights and Vietnam, Lear said the "Sunday Dinner" forays into the realm of spirituality are of value "just for the sake of having people turn off the set, and argue about it."

But the gospel according to Lear is drawing fire from conservative religious critics. The Rev. Donald Wildmon said it is better to have no religion on television than the watered-down spirituality of the show's heroine T.T. Fagori.

"Is it best to have anything even though it's distorted? ... I would say no," said Wildmon, of the American Family Association.

Some TV critics also have complaints, including what they say is the show's trivialization of religion.

President denounces House Democrats' civil rights bill

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Bush denounced the House Democratic leadership's civil rights bill on Thursday, saying the provision outlawing quotas "shouldn't fool anyone." He said the Democratic provision defined quotas so narrowly that it would really encourage their use.

Similar attacks came from the attorney general, Dick Thornburgh, and Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, as the administration coordinated its fire on a provision the Democrats had devised this week to protect themselves against the quota label Bush hung on the bill when he vetoed it last year.

He charged then, and again on Thursday in a speech to graduates of the FBI Academy at Quantico, Va., that other provisions would force employers to use quotas to avoid being sued. Democrats have insisted that the charge is false and say Bush has offered no evidence to back it up.

Thursday's speech drew a blistering response from Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, the House majority leader, who insisted the bill barred quotas and said Bush was playing politics with race. He called him "the first president in the civil rights era who wants to tear us apart for political gain."

The Democratic bill, intended to overturn a series of Supreme Court decisions in 1989 and thus make it easier for victims of job discrimination to sue and collect damages, finally emerged from extended drafting sessions Thursday and was sent to the floor by the Rules Committee.

It is expected to pass the House next week. The real issue is how many votes it will get. Democrats are struggling to get more than last year's 273, and hoping for a veto-proof two-thirds majority of the House, or 290 votes.

The Democrats are pinning much of their hopes on the quota provision. Regardless of the merits of the administration attack, it can provide the stuff of television commercials in which members can proclaim that they voted to ban quotas based on race, sex, religion or national origin. Democratic leaders say the provision has firmed up support, though they have not identified anyone who abandoned opposition because of the section.

When the House votes, probably on Tuesday, it will consider this bill and two alternatives. There will be votes on a Republican substitute embodying Bush's proposals and a new measure, sponsored by several members of the Black Caucus. This bill was advocated as a "pure" civil rights bill because it scorns a list of compromises.

Bush told the FBI graduates on Thursday that this week congressional leaders "proposed an anti-quota amendment to take care of the problem, the quota problem they said didn't exist. It shouldn't fool anyone."

FBI nabs 30 Cleveland police officers in gambling sting

CLEVELAND (NYT) — Federal agents swept through the city early Thursday and arrested 30 former or current police officers on charges of shielding illegal gambling houses set up by the authorities in a two-and-a-half-year undercover operation.

The gambling houses were operated by FBI undercover agents on the city's West and East sides.

Indictments unsealed Thursday charged the officers, who came from a variety of precincts, acted as guards and provided information about upcoming police raids. They received from $50 to $1,000 a night for their services, the indictment said.

In all, 47 people, including a Cleveland parks officer and 16 civilians, were named in the indictments.

At a time when big-city police departments are struggling to fight drug corruption and complaints of brutality, the Cleveland case struck law-enforcement experts as unusual, both in its nature and in its size. It appeared to be one of the largest gambling arrests since 40 officers were arrested in New York City in the corruption scandals of the early 1970s.

Police Chief Edward P. Kovacic, who aided in the investigation, said he was surprised by the scope of the corruption and was ashamed.

At afternoon news conferences, Police Chief Edward P. Kovacic, who aided in the investigation, said he was surprised by the scope of the corruption and was ashamed. "It's an emotional roller coaster," he said. "You can't put it into words."

Since Jan. 1, 1990, the day Kovacic took office, 15 Cleveland police officers have been charged with a variety of crimes, including murder. Still, Kovacic and Mayor Michael R. White said the 1,700-member department was one of the best in the country.

"Bad policemen," the mayor said, "like bad doctors, lawyers, politicians or journalists, are a cancer within their profession that must be removed."

The undercover operation began in May 1989, about two years after the FBI began receiving allegations of corruption within the Cleveland Police Department, said William D. Branon, special agent in charge of the Cleveland office. He declined to say where the allegations originated.

Branon said undercover agents set up two gambling operations, one in the rear of a T-shirt factory on the city's West Side and the other in a a warehouse on the East Side. Agents also held gambling nights in hotels.

Shortly after the agents set up shop, he said, they were contacted by the officers, who agreed to protect the establishments from police interference.

Twenty-three current and seven former officers were arrested Thursday on charges of selling their services and information to gamblers. The highest-ranking officer involved in the case was a sergeant. The indicted officers had served from three to 25 years on the force.

The officers were arrested throughout the city, at their homes and at police stations as they began or ended their shifts.

Accident prompts nuke alert

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Workers began a slow process Thursday of extracting 330 pounds of highly radioactive uranium that accidentally contaminated a tank of liquid waste at a nuclear fuel plant, authorities said.

Federal inspectors declared an alert and kept a round-the-clock vigil but let the GE Nuclear Fuel and Components Manufacturing Facility continue operating. No injuries or radiation exposure were reported.

There was no danger of a nuclear explosion, but an "unlikely" potential for spontaneous fission, a reaction that would release radioactivity, exists until uranium levels are lowered by two-thirds, federal officials said.

Plant officials declared an alert, the second-lowest of four emergency classifications, said Ken Clark, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Atlanta.

A spokesman for the plant's owner, General Electric Co., said the waste system tank holds 20,000 gallons of liquid, mostly water. The uranium would displace about 20 gallons of water, said the spokesman, Fred Jackson.

"The concentration of that amount of uranium in that amount of liquid would not constitute a concern," Jackson said.

He said the accident's cause wasn't known.

K. Bingham Cady, a professor of nuclear science and engineering at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., said the problem wasn't serious.

The uranium "could only go critical (begin a fission reaction) if it was concentrated in less than 350 liters of water," Cady said in a telephone interview.

In Washington, NRC spokesman Joe Fouchard said the incident is a safety concern only within the plant.

About 2,400 people work at the plant, which processes fuel for nuclear reactors by converting enriched uranium into uranium pellets and stacking it into rods to be shipped to nuclear plants. The plant has no reactor.

Few people live near the plant on the outskirts of Wilmington, and there was no threat to the coastal town of about 55,000, the NRC said.

About 55 pounds of uranium had been removed from the tank by Thursday afternoon using a centrifuge process, Fouchard said.

He said that the uranium ended up in the waste tank because of "a malfunction in a solvent extraction system." He didn't elaborate.

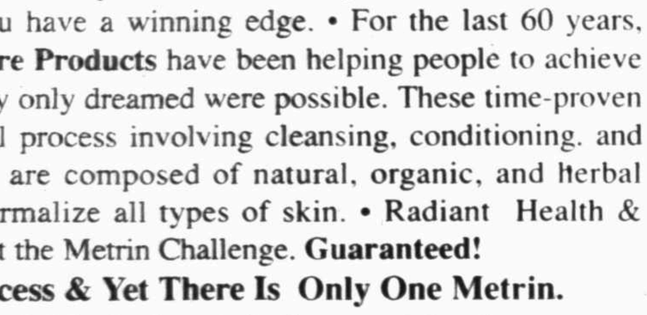

Clark said workers apparently discovered the problem at 9 a.m. Wednesday, and the NRC was notified at 5:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Man fights doctors to keep wife on respirator

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — An 87-year-old man should be allowed to decide whether his wife, who is in a persistent vegetative state, remains on a life-sustaining respirator against the advice of doctors, a judge was told Thursday.

Physicians at Hennepin County Medical Center want an independent conservator to make the decision on the fate of Helga Wanglie.

Although Mrs. Wanglie's condition appears hopeless, "It's better than death," her husband's lawyer, Barry McKee, told the judge. "That's exactly what the option is here. The choice of death is against the natural law. It's against instinct.

"Death should not be a public spectacle presided over by some third party. This isn't a medical call. This is an ethical call."

County District Judge Patricia Belois took the case under advisement and said she will issue a decision within 90 days.

McKee said his client, retired lawyer Oliver Wanglie of Minneapolis, is competent to make decisions for his 87-year-old wife, who has been in a persistent vegetative state for about a year.

Mrs. Wanglie's medical problems started Dec. 14, 1989, when she tripped and broke her hip. Respiratory problems and pneumonia followed. She has severe brain damage but is not brain dead, her doctors say.

Wanglie has applied to the court for guardianship powers.

Assistant County Attorney Michael Miller, representing the medical center, argued that an independent conservator should be appointed to determine if Mrs. Wanglie's respirator should be unplugged.

"The question is who can do the best job" for Mrs. Wanglie, he said.

A conservator would not be bound by the wishes of the medical community, Miller said. "He is not a person nominated simply to do the bidding of the hospital."

Miller said it's the first time a court has been asked to decide such an issue.

Medical center doctors doubt whether Mrs. Wanglie made her wishes about life-sustaining medical care known before she entered the vegetative state.

Miller said Wanglie is being irrational. "He is not realistic in response to diagnoses. ... He is inflexible in what he wants to do," Miller said.

"We do not question his sincerity, not for a moment. What we question is his ability to make her decisions now."

Miller said Wanglie also may have a conflict of interest because as long as his wife is alive he will receive her monthly checks totaling about $640 in Social Security and teachers' pension.

McKee dismissed that argument as ludicrous.

He said his client should be permitted to make the key decisions for his wife of 53 years. "He knows her better than any other person in the world," McKee said.

"Even in her comatose condition her life has value, at least to her family," he said. "She is not brain dead. Biologically she's still alive. Her heart continues to beat."

Hospice nurses get probation

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Six hospice nurses who admitted giving morphine from an unauthorized stash to their dying patients were placed on probation Thursday.

The state Board of Nursing said the nurses can continue to work under the probation, which ranges from three to five years, but some restrictions and special requirements apply.

"It could have been a lot worse," defense lawyer Gary L. Davis said, calling the decision "basically fair." He said no decision has been made on whether to appeal.

The nurses, who worked at the Hospice of St. Peter's in Helena, had acknowledged knowing of or using an illegal cache, mostly morphine suppositories, when patients' supplies ran out and refills were slow in coming from pharmacies at night or on weekends or holidays.

The drugs were donated by families of deceased patients and kept in a box inside supervisor Mary Mouat's unlocked desk drawer from September 1989 to June 1990.

The Board of Nursing said the nurses' actions were serious breaches of professional standards as well as violations of state and federal law.

"Any attempt to portray (the violations) as trivial is not an accurate portrayal," said Kathleen Ann Long, dean of nursing at Montana State University.

Board members stressed that they found no indication that any of the nurses acted from selfish motives or took any of the drugs for their own use or for sale.

Nevertheless, condoning such actions "would open the door to chaos in the nursing profession," said Blanch Proul, one of two board members who are not nurses.

A source close to the board, who insisted on anonymity, said prosecuting attorney Steven Shapiro has received death threats over his vigorous pursuit of the case. Guards escorted Shapiro to and from the hearing room.

Shapiro had recommended revoking Mouat's license and imposing six-month suspensions and five years of probation on the other five nurses. But he said the punishments approved by the board were "so reasonable that they're probably unappealable."

The nurses and their employers will be required to submit quarterly reports to the board, and the nurses must take courses in legal-ethical issues, pharmacology, and pain assessment and management.

If they stay in hospice work they must meet with a consultant about professional standards eight hours each month for a year.

Republicans: Quit inquiry

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Fifteen House Republicans, including the minority leader and the minority whip, asked Attorney General Dick Thornburgh on Thursday to take steps to shut down the office of Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent prosecutor for Iran-Contra cases.

In a letter circulated by Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan, the lawmakers told the attorney general that the Iran-Contra affair had already been fully investigated by two congressional committees, by a presidential commission and by Walsh, whose inquiry has lasted four and a half years and has cost more than $25 million.

The Ethics in Government Act, which establishes procedures for the appointment of independent prosecutors, permits the attorney general to ask the appellate court panel that named the prosecutor to close down his office.

But a spokesman for Thornburgh said Thursday that "any action on our part may be unnecessary," inasmuch as the attorney general believed that Walsh was nearing the end of his inquiry. A spokesman for Walsh declined to comment.

Thursday's letter followed a similar request on Wednesday by Bob Dole of Kansas, Senate Republican leader.

Nader charges postal 'waste'

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Some Postal Service executives indulge in "wasteful" travel and entertainment practices, including $60 dinners and $200 hotel rooms, consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Thursday.

Nader released expense reports filed since January 1989 by employees of the Postal Service's Government Relations Department, which acts as a liaison between the service and other governmental bodies, including Congress.

Nader said the documents, obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, show "a pattern of uncontrolled waste."

Government Relations Department employees stayed several times at the Plaza Hotel in New York at a cost of more than $200 a night and entertained guests at restaurants in New York, Washington and San Diego at a cost of more than $60 a person, according to examples from the reports.

Often, guests at the meals were staff members of congressional committees that oversee the Postal Service, an independent federal agency.

Nader did not say how many such incidents were contained in the expense reports, but asserted that "the mismanagement and waste revealed today exist throughout the Postal Service."

He renewed his call for the resignation of Postmaster General Anthony Frank and again urged Congress to create a consumer action group to represent postal users.

Williams didn't deserve lecture

It was almost amusing the other day when U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, a white Democrat from Illinois, tore into Michael L. Williams for what Simon obviously misinterpreted as Williams' lack of concern for members of the minority community.

Williams, who is black and grew up in conservative Midland, knew precisely the issues involved in the congressional hearing. But Williams wasn't going to be drawn in by Simon's condescending attitude, although the senator chastised Williams for not standing up "for a heritage." Simon also told Williams he wanted the attorney to "make sure that everyone else who is an African-American or Hispanic-American or Asian-American or woman ... has every opportunity in our society."

That's what Williams' office "is designed to do and I want you to be a champion in that cause," said the senator. "That's what I don't sense we are getting yet."

If the good senator had listened carefully to Williams' response, however, he would have known that Williams is a person who is truly color-blind and is diligent in carrying out the letter of the law, which Williams is charged to do, rather than molding government policy to fit his own social agenda.

In an editorial, The Wall Street Journal quoted Williams as saying, "I am a law-enforcement officer, and civil rights belong to everyone. Only 17% of the civil-rights complaints we get concern race — over two-thirds are disability cases. And frankly I don't really need Senator Simon advising me on how to be black."

No, Mike Williams didn't need Simon's lecture. During his lifetime Williams has seen true racial discrimination and has worked to improve the opportunities made available to people of all races, and that is the key that Simon has missed in his ambition to fault Williams. Williams' view of civil rights and of his duty to carry out the law irrespective of race, color or creed speaks well for his integrity as a public servant. We are proud of his stance in that regard.

Congressional committees have oversight responsibility of the government's various departments, including Education where Williams serves, but where the law and race policy are concerned, we'll support Williams. He has strong qualifications in both respects and his statement that "to me, race is a bankrupt currency for making public policy decisions" appears on target.

Sen. Simon was wrong on this one.

Aquifers measure would waste water

The Texas House approved a bill that would exclude aquifers from state control, a move just opposite of what should be done.

Water already is a precious commodity, and it will become even more so in the future. The state needs to exercise more control over its water resources, not less.

Rep. Harvey Hilderbran, R-Uvalde, sponsored the bill that would define a subterranean stream to exclude an aquifer. Under current law, subterranean streams, unlike most underground water, belong to the state. An aquifer is an underground layer of porous rock, sand or other material containing water...

Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-San Antonio, said Hilderbran's bill "strengthens the idea that anybody can poke a hole in the ground and waste as much water as they want."

Unfortunately, that is too close to the truth for the long-term good of the state. City people often waste too much water on lawn care and other activities while many farmers pump millions of gallons of water out of Texas aquifers to grow lush crops on otherwise arid land.

Without better management, millions of Texans will find themselves high and dry in the not too distant future.

'Boot camp' will offer an alternative to prison

Criminal court judges in Harris County now have the option of sending young, non-violent criminals to a local military-styled boot camp — rather than to jail or prison.

The boot-camp approach to punishment offers a hopeful alternative to prison sentences. It holds out the prospect that young people — those who may have had one or two brushes with the law — can be detoured from a life of crime by not being thrown into a prison environment full of hardened criminals.

The aim of the boot-camp experience is simple: Toughen them up mentally and physically, while instilling self-discipline. That may translate into giving these young people a better chance at getting a job — and keeping it....

Just how successful it will be — whether it actually manages to turn these young people away from a career of crime — remains to be seen. A lot will depend on the type of offenders the judges choose to send to the camp.

We can only hope it will prove to have a high degree of success. It has worked elsewhere.

With our jails and prisons overflowing, and with the high rate of recidivism, it's an alternative solution that must be tried.

Britain's leader has major influence

WASHINGTON — By any yardstick he was a born loser by the age of 18: a high school dropout who flunked a test to become a bus conductor and found his calling as a concrete mixer.

Anderson

Today John Major is the prime minister of Great Britain and a confidant of the president of the United States. This son of a former trapeze artist is facing a future that will require every bit of the agility and courage displayed by his father. Our associate Scott Sleek in London reports that so far Major is putting on quite a show.

Some of his ways have scandalized the starchier elements among his countrymen. There was the time recently when he was spotted with his shirt-tail tucked into his underpants, an act that's regarded as almost counterculture in Great Britain. And he is known to frequent "The Happy Eater," the British answer to McDonald's.

In a country with a history in which heritage can be destiny, Major is a myth-buster. His boot-strap biography is more indicative of American than British politicians. It might explain why he struck up such a close relationship with President Bush, who recently advised Major to slow down and pace himself better. When Bush was hospitalized for a thyroid condition, Major was one of the first to phone with his concern — and perhaps some good-natured ribbing about how Bush should take care of himself.

Major is meting out bitter medicine to the British economy. His inflation-fighting has sent interest rates up and put the brakes on economic growth. His future in British politics may hinge on how successful he is in jump-starting the economy. Although he belongs to the Conservative Party, which has been accused of indifference to the poor and needy, Major is not unacquainted with the plight of the poor. His family lived in a tiny tenement apartment — with all the families sharing one bathroom — in a working-class section of London.

After working in more menial jobs, Major managed to pass a test to become a junior clerk at the Standard Chartered Bank, and launched his political career by winning election as a town councilman in the late 1960s. He won a seat in Parliament in 1979, and broke away from the pack shortly thereafter by making a rousing speech against the economic policies of the then new Prime Minister, Margaret Thatcher. She was so taken with Major, despite his independent streak, that she elevated him to ever-higher jobs and finally made him foreign secretary in 1989.

Still, Major's victory last year stunned most political observers.

He adeptly capitalized on his common man credentials in beating Michael Heseltine, the favorite to win.

Major found the world at the brink of war, and the British economy battered when he took office. Yet his baptism by fire has raised his international stature and, more importantly, removed him from the long shadow cast by the legacy of his predecessor, known endearingly as the Iron Lady.

Major's call for a refuge for Iraq's Kurds did not sit well at first with some world leaders, but is now the order of the day. He is finding Britain's domestic woes a bit harder to vanquish.

CHARLEY REESE

We're losing our shirts to the free-traders

Free trade is like the Fountain of Youth in St. Augustine, Fla. It's a great promise, the fountain looks good, it produces water but it doesn't deliver what it promises.

The thrust of the free trade argument is that it allows the most efficient use of capital and thus benefits both capital and consumers. For example, free traders argue that a shirt made in New York from cloth spun in South Carolina should give way to a shirt made in China from cloth spun in China because the China shirt is cheaper.

Reese

You get more shirt for the buck in China, thus the capital is more efficiently used. The shirt is cheaper, thus the consumer saves money. What's wrong with that? Several things.

First, significant costs have been left out of the equation. True, a dollar buys more cloth and more shirt in China, but the people in South Carolina who used to make the cloth and the people in New York who used to make the shirt are now unemployed.

Thus, the shirt-buyer will not only pay for the shirt but he will also pay, in increased taxes, for the care of the unemployed and to make up for the tax revenue they can no longer supply. The factories will no longer generate taxes to support government. The suppliers and the people with whom the workers once traded will also suffer economic losses.

The China shirt is a good deal for the capitalist but not for the consumer and not for the U.S. But the free traders argue, it is more efficient to make the shirt in China. No, it may seem that way, but a rule of logic is that for comparisons to be valid, you must compare like to like, not elephants to foxes.

You cannot pronounce an American firm inefficient because it cannot compete in shirts-per-dollar investment with a firm located in a labor-surplus country with a low standard of living ruled by dictators. It is not inefficiency that makes the American shirt more expensive, it is the inability to compel people to labor, to dictate what you will pay them, to dictate to suppliers what prices they will charge, and to drop the price of the shirt even below its already low costs if the dictators decide there is some political advantage in doing so.

And this bring us to the main point. When we consider public policy, it should not be our goal to achieve mathematical efficiency, theoretical perfection, or ideological compliance. Our goal is to create conditions under which the largest number of our citizens can live reasonably good lives in peace.

The welfare of the people in South Carolina and New York is more important than the price of the shirt. Within the confines of the United States, we are interdependent. Excluding the very rich, who can thrive regardless, the rest of us depend on each other for our prosperity.

What has happened to us in the last decade or so is that the influence of banks, multinationals and foreign governments have become so great in Washington, the government has neglected the welfare of the American people as a whole.

Real wages are down 13 percent over a 15-year period. The U.S., once the highest-wage nation on earth, is now 12th. The interests of the American people are being sacrificed for the benefits of an elite.

Yet our alleged representatives, or most of them, won't even discuss real issues in real terms. We are given this baloney that we are uncompetitive so we'd better destroy the union movement and/or move factories to cheap labor countries.

We're not uncompetitive because of union labor. As noted above, 11 other countries pay higher wages on average than we receive in the United States. We're not being exploited by foreigners; we're being exploited by Americans who have sold us out.

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Women's bodies cannot be combat-ready

Congresswoman Pat Schroeder, from the air-conditioned safety of Capitol Hill, is agitating to let the sisters in the U.S. military charge machine-gun nests, fly combat airplanes and, whenever necessary, get their camouflage posteriors shot off — just like big ol' tough men.

Murchison

Hey, sister, let's you and them fight! That is essentially what Mrs. Schroeder and her fellow agitators are saying. But this is far from the least edifying aspect of the crusade to send women into battle.

The House Armed Services Committee has duly approved a bill, sponsored by Mrs. Schroeder, that would let the Defense Department broaden women's combat roles. The Senate Armed Services Committee takes up similar legislation in mid-June. The Pentagon backs the legislation because of its permissive nature. At least the politicians are not ordering that women soldiers be used in certain ways.

The main thing the politicians are doing lies, like the shark's jaws, beneath the surface. Congress is preparing to transgress a key principle of civilization: Men fight wars. Men and men only.

"The Persian Gulf," Mrs. Schroeder says, "helped collapse the whole chivalrous notion that women could be kept out of danger in a war." Five women soldiers died from Iraqi fire; two were captured. Shoot — so to speak — shouldn't we go the rest of the way? Why not, as a matter of national policy, send women to be blown apart?

The high-flying female hawks of Capitol Hill have practiced quite enough deceptions on the sisters already. We hear that the whole purpose of admitting women to the military was to enlarge their career opportunities. If women may sit in Congress and in executive suites, why not also in jet fighter cockpits and tank turrets?

Came the Persian Gulf crisis. Various women soldiers (like certain male soldiers) looked around in befuddlement. Uncle Sam wanted them in combat? What had combat to do with tanks and machine guns — metallic things you practiced on with no expectation of using in anger? The military was an employer, right? — like GM, like AT&T.

Meanwhile a large number of women soldiers had become mothers. Before heading for the gulf, they had to turn over their children to friends and relatives. The gulf proved the essential sterility of the idea of military service as a stop on womankind's march to power.

Is this to say that the sisters are sissies? It is to say no such damnfool thing. The moral and physical courage of the female species is not and never has been in question.

The point — as it appears to have escaped Mrs. Schroeder and the Capitol Hill sisterhood — is that women are not men and men are not women. Not even Congress can repeal the laws of human nature. Among which laws are:

1. Most men are physically stronger than most women, hence better suited for the physical enterprise of combat. Where men are in ample supply for soldiering, why use women?

2. Men are protective of women. A few female soldiers in danger could get a whole bunch of men killed.

3. At the same time, we don't want the military schooling gallantry, or just plain old respect for women, out of male warriors. That wouldn't exactly enhance civilian life.

4. Women become pregnant; men don't. Pregnancy incapacitates the female soldier. Someone else has to do the job. Moreover, pregnancy results where male and female soldiers are at close quarters. The destroyer tender Acadia returned from the Persian Gulf with 36 female crew members — a tenth of its female complement — in the family way.

5. The idea of sending a woman to die for her country is pagan and disgusting, unworthy of a civilized people. Women bear — literally bear — society's future. This is why they have always and everywhere been excluded from combat.

Schroederian feminism asks us to swallow a great lie: that women and men are interchangeable widgets. Congresswoman Schroeder's barbarous bill is popular. It is also deadly and, given the large pool of male warriors, wholly unnecessary. If our chosen representatives enact such a bill anyway, the disgrace will attach to us all.

William Murchison's column is distributed by Heritage Features Syndicate.

Rebel government fires on protesters

The World

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The new rebel government of Ethiopia put down more protests Thursday by firing on demonstrators, and a number of ranking officials of the old regime gave themselves up for possible trial.

At least two people were killed in three demonstrations against what is widely seen in Addis Ababa as a sellout of the old government by the United States. Several people also were injured.

There were unconfirmed reports of more deaths in another shooting incident, this one at Addis Ababa's central market, the largest bazaar in sub-Saharan Africa.

At least eight people were killed Wednesday when thousands of people first took to the streets to protest the new government and U.S. involvement in Ethiopian affairs. Ethiopia's Red Cross said 388 were injured in those protests, many by gunfire.

Some of the protesters have called the rebel takeover "Cohen's coup." They are referring to Herman Cohen, the U.S. assistant secretary of state who chaired the London peace talks between the caretaker government and the rebels.

During the talks, Cohen endorsed the insurgent takeover of the capital and a referendum on the independence of Eritrea, Ethiopia's northernmost province and the subject of a 30-year-old war waged by Eritrean insurgents.

Diplomatic sources said Meles Zenawi, 36, a former medical school student who heads the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front, was expected to arrive in Addis Ababa on Friday.

He was variously reported to be in London or Nairobi, the capital of neighboring Kenya, where he flew following peace talks in Britain this week with the former Nairobi government.

AP Laserphoto

Ethiopian youths holding a sign that reads "America No" demonstrate in Addis Ababa near the defense ministry Thursday. They were soon dispersed by gunfire from Tigrean fighters.

Rebel leaders agreed at the talks to hold a conference by July 1 to form a broad-based provisional government.

Radio Ethiopia, under rebel control, said a large number of former ranking officials had surrendered to the new government and would be held for possible trial.

Among them, the broadcast said, were Maj.-Gen. Embi-Bel Ayele, the military's ground forces commander; Shimelis Adugna, one of two deputy prime ministers; and former Justice Minister Mondayan Mihere.

The rebels had been widely rumored for months to have an execution list of officials of the regime of former Marxist President Mengistu Haile Mariam, starting with Mengistu himself.

But in a radio broadcast Wednesday, the rebels denied they were seeking revenge.

Yeltsin takes populism to Russian heartland

TULA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The crowd of 12,000 people in this industrial city in the Russian heartland roared approval Thursday as Boris Yeltsin vowed "radical reform" if elected the first president of Russia two weeks from now.

His supporters included many workers from arms factories that have made Tula famous for centuries. They didn't seem to mind that the microphone didn't work or that he spoke in the shadow of a huge statue of Lenin, the patron saint of the Communist Party that Yeltsin seeks to dethrone.

They already knew his campaign promises: transfer of power from central authorities to the people and a miracle program to launch Russia painlessly into the ranks of the industrialized West.

"We need radical reform. We don't need a 20-year plan, like they are preparing" in the central government of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, said Yeltsin. "By then, half the people will be dead."

"We need a two-year program, because that is all the patience people have. After that, there will be an explosion."

His audience cheered and chanted, "Yeltsin! Yeltsin!"

Pollster Leonid Keselman predicted in Tula newspapers Thursday that Yeltsin will carry Moscow, Leningrad, Sverdlovsk and other major Russian cities.

17 die in fire in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A fire investigator said Thursday a short circuit may have sparked the fire that raced through an 18-story office building, killing 17 people in one of Mexico City's worst blazes in decades.

Firefighters on Thursday searched through the burned-out building in the capital, seeking more victims from the blaze, which injured more than 40 people.

Authorities said low water pressure and the lack of fire extinguishers hampered firefighting efforts in the Wednesday evening blaze. They also complained of a lack of fire exits, and said they would investigate fire preparation efforts and file homicide charges against anyone found to be responsible.

The fire broke out on the fourth floor of the Miravelle Building just south of downtown that housed mostly offices of doctors, dentists and other professionals.

Fire officials believe a short circuit in one of the building's two elevators may have ignited the blaze, said fire inspector Pedro Munoz Novia.

The flames spread rapidly through the building with the help of stiff winds and large quantities of paint being used for remodeling projects, firefighters said.

Most of the occupants had left for the day before the fire started.

About 60 people were rescued and an unknown number escaped on their own, rescue workers said. They said those who escaped on their own left the area immediately so it was impossible to come up with a list of those unaccounted for.

During the fire, helicopters plucked several people from the roof. Ladder trucks rescued others who had broken out windows and were screaming for help.

Drug lord's surrender ends Mexican prison takeover

Despite his imprisonment, Chavez was able to turn the prison into the base of operations for a booming cocaine trade that earned an estimated $100 million a year.

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — An imprisoned Mexican drug baron accepted high-level government guarantees of his safety and surrendered to federal authorities early on Thursday, ending a violent two-week prison takeover that he said was staged to protect him from corrupt police officials in the pay of a rival drug gang.

The surrender of the trafficker, Oliverio Chavez Araujo, was followed almost immediately by the arrest of high-ranking prison and police officials, including federal judicial police commanders in the border state of Tamaulipas, where the prison is.

The surrender, carried out without bloodshed, brought an abrupt end to the prison siege, which began on May 17 with a gun battle that left 18 inmates dead. It also marked what authorities described as the start of a broad government crackdown on the official corruption that had appeared to pervade all aspects of the episode.

Despite Chavez's imprisonment, American and Mexican drug-enforcement officials said, he and his armed inmate supporters had been able to use bribes and coercion to turn the prison into the base of operations for a booming cocaine trade that earned an estimated $100 million a year.

The corruption of prison officials, who permitted Chavez luxuries from cellular telephones to lavish parties, was matched, authorities say, by the apparent involvement of Mexican federal police with Chavez's drug-world enemies.

In messages smuggled to reporters during the siege, Chavez accused federal police agents of working with a rival drug gang to kill him. The agents, he said, had offered $500,000 to other inmates who tried to kill Chavez on May 17, provoking his supporters to take over the prison.

Chavez's charges strongly supported earlier accounts by American drug enforcement officials, who had said that federal police agents were responsible for the kidnapping and killing of several of Chavez's associates outside the prison in recent months.

Wounded in the jaw and partially blinded in the assassination attempt, Chavez is still unable to speak. But the country's new attorney general, Ignacio Morales Lechuga, said that Chavez agreed to surrender after a senior official from Morales' office entered the prison alone at around midnight on Wednesday and offered to transfer him to a Mexico City hospital with public guarantees of his safety.

"Do what you have planned," Chavez wrote in the two-line note that federal officials said ended the crisis at about 6 a.m. "I am in your hands."

Federal officials who assisted in transferring the wounded Chavez said that inmates applauded him as he was carried to an ambulance.

Kuwait: Iraq maintains claim

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Kuwait accused Iraq on Thursday of bad faith, saying it has not relinquished claims on Kuwait as demanded by the U.N. Security Council. Britain's ambassador hinted that punishing sanctions will remain in place.

Kuwaiti Ambassdor Mohammad Abulhasan said in a letter to the Security Council that Iraqi officials repeatedly have emphasized their right to absorb Kuwait.

Abulhasan said in a prepared statement that the Iraqi comments showed that some kind of international force would have to remain in the Persian Gulf region to prevent another war.

"All they (the Iraqis) want is to get rid of the sanctions," Abulhasan said. "Their acceptance of the Security Council resolutions was a tactical acceptance ... to release themselves from the pressure of sanctions."

British Ambassador David Hannay, responding to questions about the reported Iraqi statements, told reporters: "If it is true that members of the Iraqi government are making these statements, of course it is worrisome and a case of non-compliance."

"I think they will push their luck as far as they can go," he said, "and it is our job to make sure they don't get anywhere."

He said Iraq's compliance with various demands by the Security Council would be reviewed early next week as it decides whether to gradually lift sanctions. He said there were various areas of noncompliance, indicating that sanctions would not be lifted in the near future.

Abulhasan, the Kuwaiti envoy, cited press reports quoting Iraqi Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadhan as saying that Iraq insists on its claim to Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2. The Security Council has demanded that Iraq renounce its territorial claims on Kuwait.

The Jordanian daily Al-Shaab quoted him in its May 27 issue as saying: "If history repeats itself, we wouldn't take another position than the one we took. The talk about Kuwait being part of Iraq was not imagination, but conviction ...

"We made a lot of dear sacrifices during the Mother of All Battles ... and we have to harvest the crop of this battle in the next battle."

He repeated Iraq's territorial claims in an interview with an Egyptian newspaper this week, the Kuwaiti letter said.

"This shows that the Iraqi acceptance of the Security Council resolutions was simply words," Abulhasan said in his statement.

Hannay, the British envoy, hinted strongly that Iraq was not complying with various conditions set by the Security Council for the eventual lifting of sanctions.

He said that Iraq also had not satisfied requirements for a comprehensive inventory of its weapons of mass destruction. He also said British citizens were being held in Iraqi jails.

Under the Security Council's cease-fire resolution of April 3, sanctions against Iraq are to be reviewed every 60 days. The first review is Monday.

Experts: Crash not bomb-related

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Early indications from the investigation into the crash of an Austrian jet are pointing away from a bomb, experts close to the probe said Thursday. One said speculation now focuses on engine failure.

Meanwhile, the jet's "black boxes" were being sent to the National Transportation and Safety Board in Washington for examination, Thai officials said.

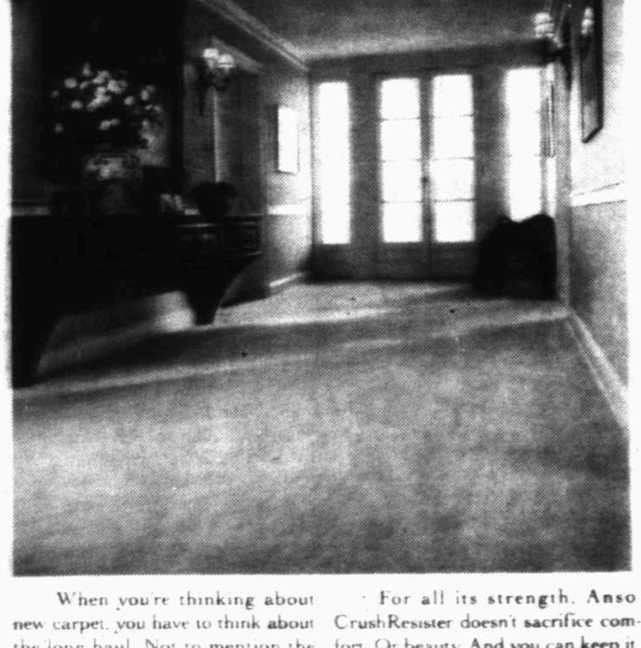

The Lauda Air Boeing 767 crashed late Sunday in northwest Thailand, 16 minutes after takeoff from Bangkok. All 223 people aboard the plane were killed.

Previously, speculation had focused on a bomb. But one European aviation expert close to the investigation said Thursday that "no evidence of any sort of explosive device" had been found so far.

"Most attention is now focused on the possibility of an engine implosion," said the expert, speaking on condition of anonymity.

NAACP, LULAC sue OC trustees

■ Groups file lawsuit against college district's system of electing board trustees.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

The Odessa Junior College District has become the latest taxing entity to be sued in U.S. District Court in Midland for allegedly violating the civil rights of minority voters.

The League of United Latin American Citizens and Odessa NAACP President Gene Collins filed a lawsuit Thursday seeking to force the college to adopt single-member election districts.

Citing the Voting Rights Act and the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution, the lawsuit calls for a permanent injunction barring future elections under the at-large system.

Collins said the lawsuit is necessary because the college's plans to alter its election system to include seven single-member districts and two at-large positions is not acceptable.

Only the elimination of all at-large positions on the OC board will satisfy Odessa's minority population, Collins said, because at-large positions are virtually guaranteed to be filled by whites.

"We plan to make sure that the spirit of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 is carried out," he said.

The lawsuit states that there are about 119,000 people in the OC taxing district, about 31 percent of whom are Hispanic and about 5 percent of whom are black. Yet there is only one black on the board, and there are no Hispanics.

This illustrates the tendency of an at-large system where the white majority to vote only for white candidates and leave minority voters without representation, the lawsuit states.

A similar lawsuit filed against the Midland Independent School District in 1985 resulted in a court order requiring the switch to single-member districts. In the last two weeks, civil rights groups also have filed suits against the McCamey and Grady school districts seeking to have their at-large election systems thrown out.

Collins said the OC board didn't consult with either LULAC or the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in its efforts to devise a new election system.

"The Odessa College board has totally ignored us," he said.

But Richard Buck, OC's attorney, said he thought that the board's plans had been shared with LULAC representatives.

Buck, who said he hadn't seen the lawsuit, said the board has been working hard to design a fair system that can be in place by April 1992, when the next board elections are scheduled.

Faculty favors Colorado man for president of MC

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland College's board of trustees haven't decided on a new college president yet, but if the MC faculty had its druthers they would offer the job to Paul Anthony Zeiss of Colorado.

Zeiss, president of Pueblo Community College in Pueblo, Colo., was the candidate of choice for MC faculty, according to MC teacher Kent Moss.

Moss handed MC President Jess Parrish the faculty recommendations Thursday afternoon shortly before the board retired into executive session. The board met behind closed doors to interview David E. Daniel of Pennsylvania, the sixth and final presidential candidate.

Zeiss was listed as first choice and Glen Mayle — president and chief executive officer of Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore. — was second choice of the faculty.

Zeiss, 45, was named Pueblo Community College president in 1985 after serving three years as the school's vice president of instructional services. He has held various positions with American Technological University and Central Texas College in Killeen.

He received a doctorate in community college administration from Nova University and a master's of science and bachelor's of science in speech education from Indiana State University.

Mayle, 47, who has held his Treasure Valley Community College position since 1984, served 13 years in various capacities at Arizona Western College in Yuma, Ariz.

He received a doctorate of educational administration and a masters of arts from Northern Arizona University, and a bachelor's of science from Arizona State College.

The six finalists were culled from a nationwide search by Austin-based consultant Bob Clinton, whom college trustees hired to conduct the hunt.

MC faculty members requested input on reviewing the candidates in the form of a petition March 20.

TWC joins Dynagen lawsuit

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Texas Water Commission apparently is joining the Texas Air Control Board in an environmental pollution lawsuit against the Dynagen petrochemical plant.

Officials of the company, the two state agencies and the Texas Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division are to convene today at the TWC's Austin offices to discuss filing an amended petition to supplement the original 1989 TACB petition. The 1989 petition alleges that Dynagen violated the Texas Clean Air Act and TACB regulations on air pollution.

Tim Gorman, manager of the Dynagen plant which manufactures synthetic rubber for the world's fourth largest tire maker, General Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, said he was not surprised by TWC's proposed inclusion in the lawsuit.

"TWC has always been a part of some of the enforcement actions in regard to the wastewater-treatment facility," Gorman said Thursday.

In mid-May, Dynagen announced it would construct a multi-million-dollar, state-of-the-art wastewater treatment plant to remove sludge and chemicals from water used in processing petrochemicals. The wastewater-treatment plant, to be completed by late 1993, would be designed to prevent the buildup of sludge, algae, and other organic matter that emit gases which TACB investigators and neighborhood residents complain are odorous, obnoxious, and a nuisance.

Covering an area larger than a football field, the steel skeleton of the Confederate Air Force's 600,000-square-foot hangar stands ready for construction to be completed in time for Dec. 7 dedication ceremonies of the CAF's new home.

Workers raise steel skeleton of hangar for CAF's aircraft

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Those days of yesteryear are zooming in pretty fast at the Confederate Air Force headquarters, which is taking on the appearance of a World War II air field.

The steel skeleton of the CAF's 60,000-square-foot hangar went up without much fanfare this week and at the tugging of towering mechanical cranes.

The hangar, large enough to house the war's largest and most advanced aircraft, the four-engine Boeing B-29 Superfortress, and other heavy bombers, such as the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress and the Consolidated B-24 Liberator, is to be finished and dressed out time for the Dec. 7 dedication of the CAF headquarters at Midland International Airport.

Monitoring the rise of the 200-by-300-foot hangar and other CAF construction are Midland contractor Doug Coats, CAF Executive Director Richard "Ish" Ingram, and a squad of "sidewalk superintendents," mostly CAF volunteers who venture by the mammoth building.

Coats is president of the Midland-based construction company that is building the $2-million hangar. In addition, Coats' company is completing the CAF's administration building that is patterned after a World War II Wing Operations Centre.

"In yet another construction phase, Coats is remodeling the 30,000-square-foot former Win-

It wasn't the first time Bill Kleine walked across a stage to pick up a sheepskin, but it was the first time he was on the delivering end of the commencement address.

Kleine, vice president of the Midland College board and an alumnus of Missouri Valley College in Marshall, Mo., said he urged graduating seniors at his alma mater last week to become civically involved and return something to society.

"The title of my commencement address was 'The Debt is Now Due and It's Up to You,'" said Kleine, who received a bachelor's degree from Missouri Valley in 1949. "The gist of it was that you owe a debt and the debt is not in money."

Kleine, 62, has served on the Missouri Valley board of trustees since 1965 and has been involved in the school's fund-raising activities. He said it's his way of giving something back to the institution, a liberal arts college with an enrollment of about 1,000 this year.

decker Aviation hangar, which will become the CAF's American Airpower Heritage Museum of World War II artifacts and archives mainly focusing on the air war against the Axis Powers in Europe and in the Pacific.

"It's a first-class installation," Coats, 34, said of the CAF facility, which was designed by Midland architects Jim Rhotenberry and Mark Wellen.

The headquarters building, complete with parapet and cupola and yet to be outfitted with handrails and outside stairs, day-by-day is becoming more reminiscent of the flight operations building featured in the World War II aviation classic movie, "Twelve O'Clock High," featuring Gregory Peck. The film, hailed as dramatically realistic, depicts World War II air combat and the stresses affecting airborne and ground crew members.

Work on the hangar's exterior, which will include lean-to protrusions for maintenance offices, is to be completed this summer. Work on the interior, Coats said, will take about three months.

"It looks big now," Coats said of the hangar. "When it gets closed in, it's going to look gigantic."

The beefed-up hangar, which is high enough to accommodate the B-29 and its three-story-high tail, is designed with a World War II-type sloped roof. The big bomber's tail towers 27 feet, 9 inches into the air. The aircraft's wingspan exceeds 141 feet; its fuselage is 99 feet long.

The strength and structure of the hangar's columns and beams are designed to withstand "wind loads" associated with West Texas storms.

Coats and his workers and superintendents, Junior Sanchez on the museum and James "Snooky" Rinehart on the hangar, and construction manager, Lonnie Clemons, are hustling to complete their assignments in time for the Dec. 7 CAF headquarters dedication on the 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the U.S. official entry into World War II.

"We're in pretty good shape (on deadlines)," Coats said. "We've picked up some time."

The sunny spring weather has been encouraging for picking up the pace on outdoor construction.

"We are real confident of the move-in date now," Coats said.

Even so, deadlines have a way of moving in quickly.

"We'd like to be four months ahead of ourselves," said Ingram, who is executive director not only of the CAF but of the American Airpower Heritage Flying Museum (Ghost Squadron) of more than 140 CAF warplanes and the American Airpower Heritage Museum. "But if you could just wave a wand, it wouldn't be fun."

Working with the CAF staff and volunteers on the $5-million building projects at Midland International Airport has been exciting, Coats said.

"The CAF is real happy with the way things are going," Coats reckoned. "They are a great bunch of people."

Ingram, who attends Coats' weekly meeting with his construction staff, "works so well with us," Coats said.

Ingram, a retired U.S. Air Force brigadier general and a pilot, "picks up on all this stuff real quick," Coats said. "He's been a real asset as far as we're concerned. He helps us out when we get in a bind and need something. This has been a fast-moving project."

Bond denied

Staff Reports

A federal magistrate denied bond Thursday for two men arrested last week on crack cocaine charges.

The men, Terrence Donnell Rivers, 22, and David McGruder, 22, were arrested May 23 following a year-long Midland Police Department and Drug Enforcement Administration investigation.

At a detention hearing Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Robert R. Sykes, the DEA agent in charge of the case said Rivers and McGruder were responsible for about 90 percent of the crack sales in Midland.

The agent said the men would travel to Houston to buy crack by the kilogram, then return to Midland to sell it.

Rivers is charged with possession with intent to distribute 74 grams of crack; McGruder is charged with possession with intent to distribute 65.4 grams of crack. Both men are charged with conspiracy to distribute the dope.

According to investigators, the men apparently stashed the crack at the base of a tree about three tenths of a mile north of Fairgrounds Road near the city limits. Officers observed them at the tree during a surveillance operation in March, according to testimony.

Car rammed

A 23-year-old Midland man was arrested early Thursday morning after he rammed a car, occupied with four people, into a pole causing the car to turn on its side, police said.

Anthony Lynn Williams, 1306 Kerth St., remained in jail Thursday for aggravated assault with a motor vehicle in lieu of a $2,500 bond set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

According to police reports, Williams used the car he was driving to intentionally push the car that overturned about 3:40 a.m. Thursday.

Three of the occupants of the rammed car were transported to Midland Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released. They were: Mona Posey, 19, who suffered back and abdomen injuries; Antoine Williams, who sustained a cut to the head; and Trenton Williams, who received a cut on the leg. Another passenger, Janet Morris, 29, was uninjured.

Details about the vehicles or the motive for the assault were not available, police said.

Man hospitalized

A Midland man remained hospitalized after being shot Wednesday night and his alleged assailant was free after posting bond Thursday, law enforcement and hospital officials said.

James Putman Wilson, 25, 4720 Erie Drive, who suffered a gunshot wound to the abdomen, was listed in critical but stable condition at Midland Memorial Hospital late Thursday, hospital officials said.

Ricky Bob Neagle, 29, 4518 Anetta Drive, who was arrested for aggravated assault in connection with the shooting, posted a $5,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

According to police reports, Wilson and Neagle were engaged in a verbal argument at Neagle's home about 11:11 p.m., when Neagle ended the discussion by shooting Wilson with a 9mm Smith & Wesson pistol.

Miracle Network Telethon to air

Staff Report

The Children's Miracle Network Telethon, sponsored locally by KTPX-TV (Channel 9) and Medical Center Hospital, Odessa, will air this weekend, with live local segments broadcast from Permian Mall.

Last year, the local event raised $136,000, 100 percent of which stayed in the Permian Basin at MCH.

Since its inception in 1983, the international fund-raising event has raised more than $336 million to improve the quality of health care for children.

Local segments of the 21-hour telethon will be co-hosted by KTPX news anchors Richard Relyea and David Hoefferle. National chairmen of the event are Marie Osmond and John Schneider.

fond feeling for it."

The school, located about 100 miles east of Kansas City, repaid him for his years of service May 19 with an honorary doctorate degree and the opportunity to address the class of 1991.

"It went over well," he said.

Missouri Valley President Earl Reeves concurred, describing Kleine's speech to the 122 graduating seniors as "very well-done."

"It was very appropriate," Reeves said. "Some of our faculty commented that it was one of the finest commencement addresses they'd ever heard."

Reeves said Kleine was chosen to give the speech for a number of reasons.

"We wanted to recognize an outstanding person in the field of business this year," he said. "We felt he demonstrated the leadership in business and the commitment to education that was well-deserving of recognition."

Pregnant 10-year-old killed in shooting

FORT WORTH (AP) — An Arlington man was being held Thursday in connection with the slayings of his former girlfriend's 10-year-old daughter and two elderly aunts.

Edward L. LaGrone, 34, of Arlington was arrested about 10:30 a.m. Thursday at his Arlington apartment, said Dee Anderson, Arlington Police Department spokesman.

LaGrone, who was suspected of raping the 10-year-old, was being held on a child sexual assault charge, said Fort Worth police Lt. Alvin Allcon.

The girl's mother, Pamela Lloyd, said her daughter told her over the weekend that LaGrone had sexually abused her for over a year and had impregnated her.

The State

Ms. Lloyd said Lagrone stormed her Fort Worth home early Thursday and shot her daughter, Keisha Lloyd, then fired upon her two elderly aunts...

Ms. Lloyd said LaGrone on Monday offered her $1,500 to drop her sexual assault complaint against him.

Ms. Lloyd said LaGrone stormed her Fort Worth home early Thursday and shot her daughter, Keisha Lloyd, then fired upon her two elderly aunts, Zenobia Anderson, 80, and Carolyn Lloyd, 87.

Ms. Lloyd and her two other children, a 13-year-old boy and 19-month-old girl, escaped the house as gunfire erupted.

Late Thursday, Fort Worth police obtained a probable cause arrest warrant alleging capital murder, Allcon said. A $2 million bond was recommended, he added.

LaGrone, who was convicted of murder in 1979, was arrested after Arlington police were alerted by authorities in Fort Worth, 7 miles to the west, that he was a suspect in their investigation of the southeast-side shooting spree.

Ms. Lloyd's uncle, Dempsey Lloyd, also shot in the melee, was in stable condition at John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth after undergoing surgery for a gunshot wound to the arm.

Pam Lloyd, whose 10-year-old pregnant daughter was killed in a Fort Worth shooting, is comforted by her cousin, Trenton Triggs. Two women in their 80s were also killed in the attack and a man was injured.

MC: Faculty favors Colorodoan

(From 1B)

Moss said the faculty recommendations also contain a note of thanks to the MC board for allowing faculty members to meet with the individual candidates in 30-minute open forums.

"All the candidates were impressive," Moss said. "Personally, I was pleased with the choices."

Moss said faculty members had not "drawn any conclusions" about whom to hire shortly after they attended a 10:30 a.m. forum Thursday with Daniel.

However, prior to the board meeting, the faculty reached consensus about their top choices.

"We put our decision into writing and handed it to Jess Parrish before the executive session," he said. "We don't know if the board will contact us to exchange information before making a decision."

Moss said teachers and MC staff asked candidates how they would handle the college's economic situation concerning state funding — especially with an anticipated shortage of funds, how the president would respond to faculty input on decisions effecting them, and why they were interested in moving to Midland.

H.A. Tuck, MC spokesperson, said board trustees may elect to interview a candidate again before offering him the job.

Parrish, 63, who announced his retirement last December, will remain at his $98,213-a-year post until Aug. 31, 10 years and one month after being appointed to the position.

During Thursday's board meeting trustees voted to unanimously to re-elect all board officers into the same positions for the next year. John Cooper will continue serving as president, Bill Kleine as vice president and Steven Kiser as secretary. Charlene Wurtz was absent during the voting.

Parrish announced that English instructor Larry Griffin was hired as chairman of communication studies, to replace Jack Schneider. Mike Schneider was hired as sociology instructor.

Parrish also announced that he had accepted resignations from student activities director Cheryl Franklin, Jan Tonroy of office education, cheerleader sponsor Betty Murrah and Carl Frailey, physical science teacher. All four faculty members cited relocating as the reason behind their resignations.

When the hair on your head rises, avoid lightning strikes with common-sense actions

Spring weather has brought lightning, thunderstorms, hail and tornadoes have been active across Texas in recent weeks.

Kiker

Although farmers cannot change weather patterns, they can use certain defensive measures to "tame" lightning. Storms destroy many farm buildings, livestock and human lives annually.

Farmers and ranchers can equip their houses and buildings with an approved lightning protection system. However, these systems should be planned and installed only by persons who have the necessary training and equipment. For best results, make certain the system is approved by Underwriters Laboratories and is inspected on a regular basis.

Rural families and farm laborers should be attentive to weather advisories. When a thunderstorm is predicted, they should have a safety plan and follow it.

"Avoid trees, metal buildings, wire fences, telephone poles, tractors and anything else that might serve as a conductor of electricity," said Thomas D. Valco, agricultural safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"If inside an unprotected home, stay away from windows, doors, metal objects and appliances. Do not talk on the telephone during an electrical storm."

The safety expert said if you are caught outside and begin to feel the hair on your head stand on end or your skin tingle, lightning may be about to strike.

"In this event, crouch down at once, bend forward and put your hands on your knees. You must not be the tallest object in a field or area," he said.

If you are in a car or truck and trying to reach home during a torrential rain, do not attempt to drive through swift water that may be pouring across your road, Valco said.

"With poor visibility during a storm, it is difficult to judge how deep the water is — and your vehicle may stall," he said. "Often, a wall of water hits suddenly and sweeps away any stalled vehicles. Pull over to the side of the road and remain in your car on high ground until the flood water recedes. But do not touch any metal parts of the car during the storm."

Valco said in an age when we often feel a false sense of security against the forces of nature, we must realize that lightning kills more Americans than either hurricanes or tornadoes.

"It is important to instruct children about the dangers of lightning," he said. "Even a very young child should be taught to stay out of water during storms, and if they are playing outside to hurry indoors."

When the turbulent weather subsides, other farm electrical safety measures should be checked.

Most rural homes are served by electrical power that is usually carried by overhead lines, which can be deadly if accidentally touched by people working at ground level.

"Always use extreme care when moving or positioning long equipment, such as irrigation pipes, grain augers or metal ladders," Valco said. "Use great care when installing or taking down a television or radio antenna. Better yet, call your power company for assistance."

During normal weather, correct any sagging farmstead powerlines, particularly those over driveways where tall equipment might be moved.

"Installing lines underground is a good safety option, provided the route is mapped and no heavy equipment cuts through the buried lines," Valco said.

FARM Fest to aid Oklahoma farmers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Country-western entertainers with Oklahoma roots will be back in the state Sunday night, doing what they can to help hard-pressed farmers.

FARM Fest '91 is scheduled to feature Garth Brooks, Vince Gill, Restless Heart and Joe Diffie.

FARM stands for Farmers At Risk Matter, a non-profit foundation created earlier this year to provide support to Oklahoma farmers.

"We were told by some people 'You'll never pull it off,'" said Charles Anderson, chairman of the Rural Crisis Task Force, which came up with the concert idea.

"We went in with the concept of Oklahomans helping Oklahomans. Rather than going out and asking other people help us with our problems, we asked Oklahomans to help us."

Brooks was the first performer the task force approached. The Yukon native, whose hits include "If Tomorrow Never Comes" and "Friends In Low Places," quickly said he would like to help, Anderson said.

The task force eventually secured commitments from Gill, Diffie and Restless Heart. Gill was born in Norman, Diffie is from Duncan, and Restless Heart lead guitarist Greg Jennings is a native of the state.

"It looks good. We're sold out. We've been sold out for a couple of weeks," said Anderson, assistant deputy commissioner at the state Department of Agriculture.

The concert will be held at the Myriad Convention Center, which seats about 14,000. All tickets were $20.

Anderson estimated the foundation will clear about $225,000. The foundation's board then will determine where the money should be spent.

Among the possible uses for the money, Anderson said, are for agricultural credit, funding for mental health professionals to work with Ag-Link, financial aid to help farm families facing crises, and personal insurance.

"One of the first things farm families will do when they get into a cash-flow situation is drop their insurance," he said. "If they drop their insurance and are already having problems, and then have a medical problem, that's the third strike."

The task force Anderson leads was formed in 1990 by former Gov. Henry Bellmon. It came about following a report that suicide rates among Oklahoma farmers were five times higher than fatal farm accidents.

There were 160 deaths officially listed as suicides from 1983 through 1988, the report said. That translated into 42 suicides per 100,000 population for farmers, compared with 15 per 100,000 for the general public.

Anderson didn't have exact figures, but said the suicide rate has dropped since the task force was formed.

Cooks advise using fruit, vegetables seasonally

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Schmidt spent five years researching hundreds of fruits, vegetables, wild foods, meats and fish to chart their seasons, the times when taste soars while prices dives.

Schmidt, the chef-owner of the Rattlesnake Club in Detroit, is the author of "Cooking for All Seasons" (Macmillan Publishing Co., $24.95).

His is one of several recent books focusing on seasonal ingredients, and as the weather warms in much of the country, it's a good time to take a closer look at what's grown close to home.

"Things in season are also the most beneficial," Schmidt said. "Hothouse tomatoes have half the nutrients of summer tomatoes."

Frozen or canned foods can be nutritionally comparable to fresh, but it's hard to compete with the lure of food that's just been harvested.

Over five years, Schmidt chased down field experts and plowed through government documents on growing seasons and varieties. The result is pages and pages of charts that at first are a little intimidating but actually are fairly easy to use.

"If you're going to take the trouble to cook for yourself, you're going to get a lot better results with good ingredients," he said.

Schmidt's recipes, some from his restaurant, are organized by season. Not all of them are simple, and many call for cream and butter, so they'll probably appeal mostly if cooking for company. But they are inviting because of their unusual combinations of ingredients, such as a chicken hash made with artichokes and wild mushrooms.

For spring, for example, there is spinach and sweetbread salad, sorrel and celery root soup, swordfish with ginger and grapefruit, or soft-shell crabs with ginger tempura. In summer, try shrimp and scallop salad with champagne mayonnaise, grilled corn salsa or peach sorbet.

Ruth Adams Bronz takes a homier, loving look at 15 American ingredients in "Cornucopia: The Best Recipes from America's Natural Harvest" (HarperCollins, $22.50).

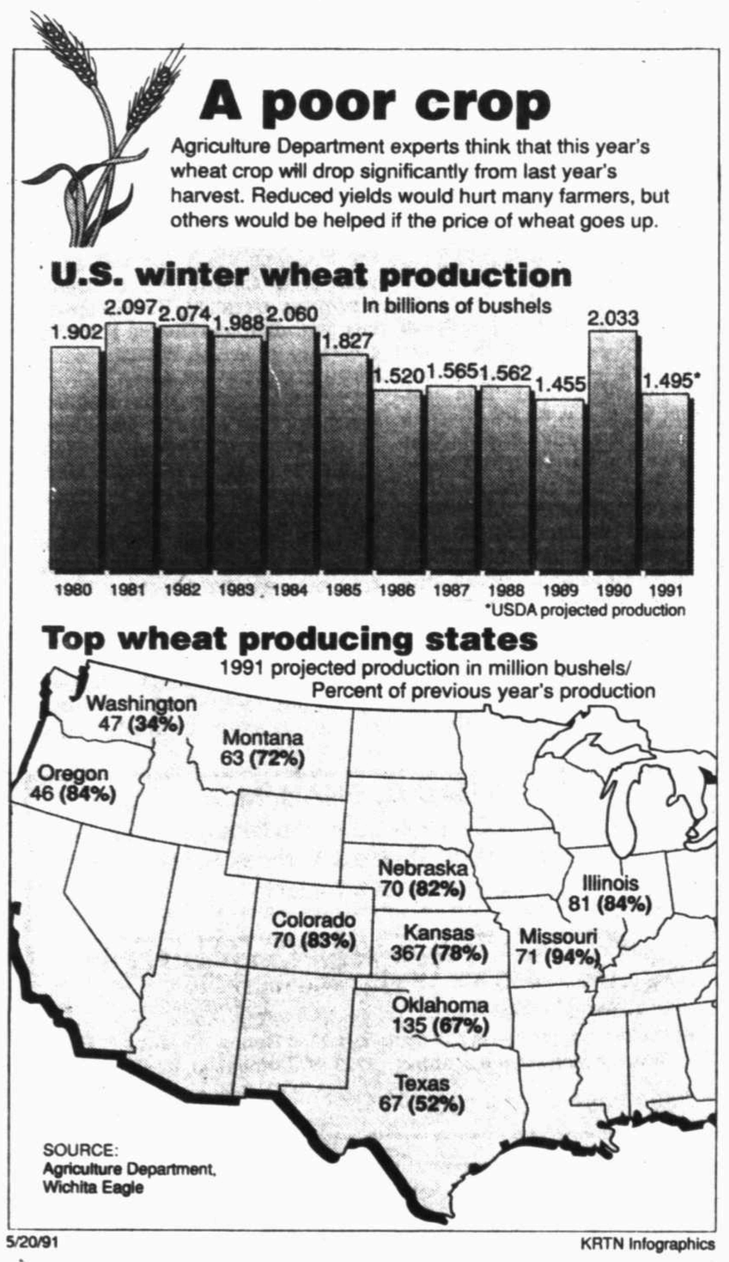

Chapters devoted to cranberries, corn, sweet potatoes, tomatoes and other foods begin with descriptions, history, seasons, lore and Bronz's own memories.

"Every one of us who had a berry-picking childhood knows the magic of finding the fruit on the bramble — suddenly every summer, as if there never had been a berry before," she says in her blackberry chapter.

Many of the 140 recipes are healthy, and many make you want to run to the kitchen and tie on an apron: grilled salmon with cranberry glaze, warm scallops with blueberry-tarragon dressing, blackberry sorbet with raspberry puree, cold pumpkin-orange soup, grilled chicken breast and eggplant with baked tomatoes.

Bronz, whose recently closed New York City restaurant focused its constantly changing menu on various regional American foods, is so obviously taken with her subject that her joy is infectious.

"Of all the ingredients I write about, corn is the one that best illustrates this book's thesis: American cooking is a treasure-house of food, hardly recognized outside its borders, and rarely recognized professionally at home," she writes.

Rains dampen cotton outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent heavy rains may have dampened prospects for this year's U.S. cotton crop, an Agriculture Department report indicated Tuesday.

According to a planting survey in March, farmers were expected to boost plantings for the 1991 harvest by 13 percent to around 14 million acres.

"However, persistent rainfall at planting time in the (Mississippi) Delta has likely somewhat reduced planting prospects in that region," the department's Economic Research Service said.

Based on the March planting survey, total U.S. cotton production this year was projected at 16 million bales, up from 15.5 million in 1990. These figures were used by the agency in its latest analysis.

The report said 1990 cotton production, at 15.5 million bales, was up 27 percent from 1989, reflecting last year's higher yields and larger acreage.

A new USDA projection of 1991 cotton production based on yield trends and other information, will be updated June 11. However, a full-fledged production estimate based on field surveys will not be ready until Aug. 12.

Goodfellow might be spared again, source says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal commission reviewing a list of bases targeted for closure has decided to widen its investigation to include 22 additional bases, including at least one Texas facility, congressional sources said Thursday.

The sources said Kingsville Naval Air Station in Kingsville was on the list, but that Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo might be spared.

The new list includes some installations that members of Congress complained were spared at the expense of hometown facilities when the Pentagon recommended 43 bases nationwide be closed.

The Pentagon list includes three in Texas — Chase Field Naval Air Station in Beeville, Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, and Bergstrom AFB in Austin.

A congressional staffer said the Base Closure and Realignment Commission would release a list Friday of 22 bases that would be considered for study on possible closure.

But one of the bases, Goodfellow, was still in doubt late Thursday because commission member James Smith of Houston, a Brown & Root executive, was fighting it, the staffer said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Another staffer said Goodfellow was included.

The list would then be narrowed to about five installations that the commission believes warrant a site visit and review of documentation supporting continued operation at the facility, a source said.

"And even then, just because they're getting a second look, doesn't mean they'll wind up on the list for closure," the congressional source said.

Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, acknowledged late Thursday that Goodfellow may be included. Earlier in the day, however, Smith had said he was confident the San Angelo base would escape the commission's review.

"This is a time to be concerned but not to panic," Smith said. "Every piece of evidence supports the Air Force's decision to keep Goodfellow Air Force Base open. The base's missions are unique and essential to our military defense capability. There's no legitimate reason either to downsize Goodfellow or to close it."

Rep. Greg Laughlin, D-West Columbia, said he saw the commission's plans to review additional bases as a sign the panel was "doing its job of evaluating the facilities on the base closure list.

"And to do that ... the base closing commission would have to compare those on the list with other similar facilities," said Laughlin, whose district includes Chase Field.

Laughlin has complained that Chase stacks up far better than Meridian Naval Air Station in Meridian, Miss.

Chase, Meridian and Kingsville Naval Air Station are the only three installations nationally that train Navy pilots to land on aircraft carriers. But only Chase was recommended for closure.

Laughlin, who testified before the base closure commission last week, released government documents that indicate there is far greater air traffic over Meridian than Chase.

Laughlin also contends Chase has trained more pilots than the other two fields, has better weather than Meridian, and is not surrounded by wetlands like Meridian.

The fight to save Chase has prompted charges by Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., that Bee County officials were waging a smear campaign against Meridian.

DYNAGEN: Texas Water Commission joins lawsuit

(From 1B)

ment plant has been abandoned.

While engineering plans are underway for the new plant, Dynagen has hired American Fluids International of Midland to study the most efficient and effective means to remove the odor-causing sludge from Dynagen's 165 acres of solar water-evaporation ponds.

"The latest move, in which TWC most likely will join the litigation with the state of Texas and the TACB as a joint partner," Gorman said, "is more of a formality in bringing all the parties together. Dynagen "all along" has been under TWC enforcement action.

Gorman, who has managed the Dynagen plant since last year, said he has enjoyed a "very good and very constructive relationship" with the TWC and with Bill Lockey, the TWC's regional director in Odessa.

Neil Carman, an investigator for TACB in Odessa, has been monitoring the 1950s-built Dynagen plant since 1981, a year after he joined the agency.

"The TWC needs to be involved" in the litigation, Carman said Thursday night from Austin. "Dynagen has massive air pollution and massive water pollution."

Unlike air pollution, water pollution "doesn't blow away," Carman said. "If you get groundwater contaminated, water problems tend not to go away. They can be there for years, unlike air pollution, which can drift away and be gone in a twinkle of the eye — literally."

And in that "twinkle," the proof of air pollution can be gone. Water contamination is not same, he said.

Through the German-owned General Tire, Gorman said he is authorized to spend "millions of dollars" to make necessary plant improvements.

"I am trying to make the Dynagen future, for both this corporation and its employees, a long, useful and viable one" despite "some tough situations. We've got to move forward through all of this controversy."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your lively, vivacious personality will serve you well. Your firm convictions will pay off handsomely where business interests are concerned. Many of the goals you have set for yourself move within reach. By late fall, a special group or organization publicly supports your objectives. Be frugal when spending jointly raised funds. Hold on to old friends. Early 1992 is a wonderful time to travel.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: superstar Clint Eastwood, actress Sharon Gless, actors Tom Berenger and Gregory Harrison.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A loved one has a special message for you today. Self-employed people can increase their income. The fewer restrictions that employers place on you, the better things will be.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wearing a "do-not-disturb" sign is silly, but after many interruptions, you will crave solitude! Conduct research in a library. A brisk walk will rejuvenate you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Come out of the doldrums and look for new fields to conquer. Travel and educational pursuits are favored. You gain fresh insights. An older person influences an important decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A move to a new location could be discussed today. The romantic picture suddenly improves. Share your resources with deserving friends. Buy large household items only when they go on sale.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Self-improvement programs are favored now. Regular exercise can work wonders. A hobby can become a real moneymaker. Consult marketing experts before investing money in materials.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A friend or relative who has a problem seeks your advice. Be sympathetic, even if you do not approve of this person's actions. Subtlety is essential. The love bug bites tonight!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be very clear when giving instructions. Real estate or a household product could lead to a profitable business deal. Balance your checkbook before making any new purchases.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There could be hidden problems brewing at work. Keep a low profile and stick to your post. New rewards will come if you settle a debt. Call a truce with a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Legal affairs could be under a cloud. Keep your plans for the future to yourself. Telegraphing your punches would be a mistake. Give a fading romance a second chance. Love blossoms anew!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rash behavior could add up to real trouble. Head a quarrel off at the pass by being diplomatic. Make sure your expectations are realistic. Building castles in the air will get you nowhere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An artistic hobby provides needed relaxation now. Do not beat around the bush with your loved ones. Your children will respect your honesty even if they do not agree with your views.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A conflict could get out of hand today; avoid engaging in battle. Smoother sailing lies ahead if you are willing to compromise. Entertaining a small group in your home is fun.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are the true spark plugs of the Zodiac, blessed with fantastic energy and originality! Their shifting moods will both confuse and amuse their loved ones. Count on them to have many admirers despite a tendency to be brutally frank. Although these Geminis are slow to reveal their romantic feelings, they make devoted spouses. While they will love and protect their offspring, their mate will always come first. Ambitious and creative, these Geminis usually achieve great success in their chosen field.

Opening lead: Eight of ♠

All players are familiar with the standard finesses, those involving the king or queen of a suit. Of all the many hands we have seen involving a variety of finesses, this one is still our favorite. It was played many years ago by the late Albert H. Morehead, lexicographer par excellence and still one of the great player-writers in the game's history. Among other things, it illustrates how a good player pays attention to all the spot cards as they fall.

The auction cannot be considered a thing of beauty. It did have the advantage of brevity and, since North did have diamonds controlled, it got North-South to an excellent slam.

West led the eight of spades and declarer could see the possibility of losing a trick in spades and diamonds. However, there were many ways one of the losers could be avoided. The first step in the campaign was to cover the eight with the nine of spades, fetching the jack from East and taken by declarer's king. Trumps were drawn in three rounds, ending in dummy, and the ten of spades was led, forcing East to play the queen. Declarer took his ace and was delighted to see West's seven. Since that was the master spade at this point, it was obvious that West had led from a doubleton.

The rest was simple. Declarer crossed to the table with the ace of clubs, led the two of spades and, when East produced the three, finessed the four! When that won, as expected, declarer discarded a diamond on the six of spades. After cashing the ace of diamonds and king of clubs, declarer was able to ruff the diamond loser on the board to collect an unexpected overtrick. A record had been set for the cheapest finesse in history.

Hope celebrates 88th birthday

LOS ANGELES — Bob Hope observed his 88th birthday with a game of golf and a small party with family members, a spokesman said.

Hope

In contrast to past birthdays, Wednesday's celebration was a quiet one for the globe-trotting comedian.

Two years ago, Hope celebrated by directing traffic on a freeway off-ramp near a suburban Burbank street that was named in his honor.

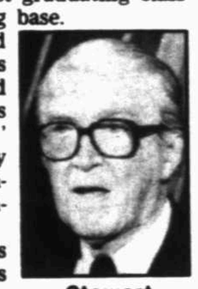

Hope spent most of Wednesday at his home near Toluca Lake about 10 miles north of downtown Los Angeles, said publicist Ward Grant.

But while Hope turned homebody "in person," he was on the move "in spirit," Grant said.

He said parties celebrating the birthday were scheduled by two charitable organizations that Hope supports financially. They are the Bob Hope Village, U.S. Air Force Enlisted Mens' Widow's Home in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., and the Hughen Center for the Severely Handicapped Children in Port Arthur, Texas.

GLENDALE, Ariz. — Actor Jimmy Stewart couldn't resist an invitation to the 50-year reunion of the first graduating class from a military training base.

Stewart

"I'm certainly a good friend of what all of this means, and what this and the Phoenix area has done for air power," Stewart said Wednesday night in front of Thunderbird Field's remaining hangar.

Stewart, 83, said his passion for flying dates to his youth.

"My dad had a hardware store in Indiana, Pennsylvania," he said. "I was sick and home from school and had made a model of the Spirit of St. Louis."

Stewart said he made a model of the Eiffel Tower to go along with it.

As the world followed the progress of Charles Lindbergh's 1927 flight from New York to Paris, Stewart inched the model plane closer and closer to the tower in the display window of his father's store.

"We had a lot of people watching," said Stweart, who later portrayed the aviator.

Stewart served with the Army Air Corps during World War II. Before America's entry into the war, he was an original stockholder in Southwest Airways, a company run by his agent, Leland Hayward.

Southwest Airways won a War Department contract to turn a mile-square tract here into a training field. The first class began training in March and graduated May 30, 1941, to more advanced courses elsewhere.

EL PASO — Academy Award-winning actor F. Murray Abraham is going back to high school — to kick off his alma mater's 75th anniversary celebration and to speak at graduation.

Abraham

Abraham will address the Class of '91 at El Paso High School on Saturday night.

"I will tell them the same thing I tell my students at Brooklyn College — that they have power. It's hard for people to believe that each individual has more power than they can imagine," Abraham said.

Abraham is appearing in "King Lear" with the American Repertory Theater. He also has been in the films "Bonfire of the Vanities" and "An Innocent Man" since his best-actor award-winning role as composer Antonio Salieri in "Amadeus."

PALM BEACH, Fla. — Donald Trump has appealed to the Town Council not to let preservationists delay his plans to subdivide his historic Mar-a-Lago estate.

Trump

Trump attorney Peter Broberg charged that the town Landmarks Preservation Commission "yielded to the pressure of legions of 'experts' " in deciding May 17 that it needs additional study of landscaping, traffic and architectural plans.

Broberg contended the commission was required to approve the subdivision because it complied with town ordinances.

The mansion, a national historic landmark built for cereal heiress Marjorie Post, would remain intact, and eight 1½-acre home lots would be created.

The Town Council will hear Trump's appeal at its June meeting, but the council would have heard the case anyway because it has the final say.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Former New York Jets lineman Mark Gastineau says he doesn't drink alcohol and was just out to meet people on the night he is charged with slugging a man at a bar.

"I was never one to lash out at someone unless there was a pretty good reason," Gastineau said before pleading innocent to an assault charge Wednesday.

Gastineau is accused of beating up Gene Galvin, 23, of Long Beach. Galvin sustained a broken nose and fractured right eye socket.

Cheap fantasy

AUSTIN (AP) — Organized crime charges against people playing fantasy football at a bar should be reduced from felony to the lowest misdemeanor charge, say Austin police vice squad supervisors.

Sgt. Jack Kelley said he thinks police "overstated the case."

Fantasy football arrests nearly two years ago caused an uproar because police charged all of the alleged participants with engaging in organized criminal activity, a second-degree felony punishable by up to 20 years in prison.

Kelley said he and another supervisor recommended that charges against all but one of the defendants be reduced to a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a maximum $200 fine.

Prosecutors said the cases will be presented to a grand jury next month.

"I wasn't up here at the time that case was made," Kelley said, "I personally would not go after them for organized crime."

The arrests came at a time when many sports bars in Austin had fantasy football leagues, in which participants "drafted" players and won or lost depending on how the players performed in the National Football League.

It's official: Lakers vs. Bulls

■ Los Angeles free throws eliminate Portland, the winningest team in the NBA.

By Harvey Araton
N.Y. Times News Service

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The issue wasn't decided until the fourth quarter, but the National Basketball Association got its dream championship series matchup Thursday night when the Los Angeles Lakers ground out a 91-90 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers to clinch the Western Conference title.

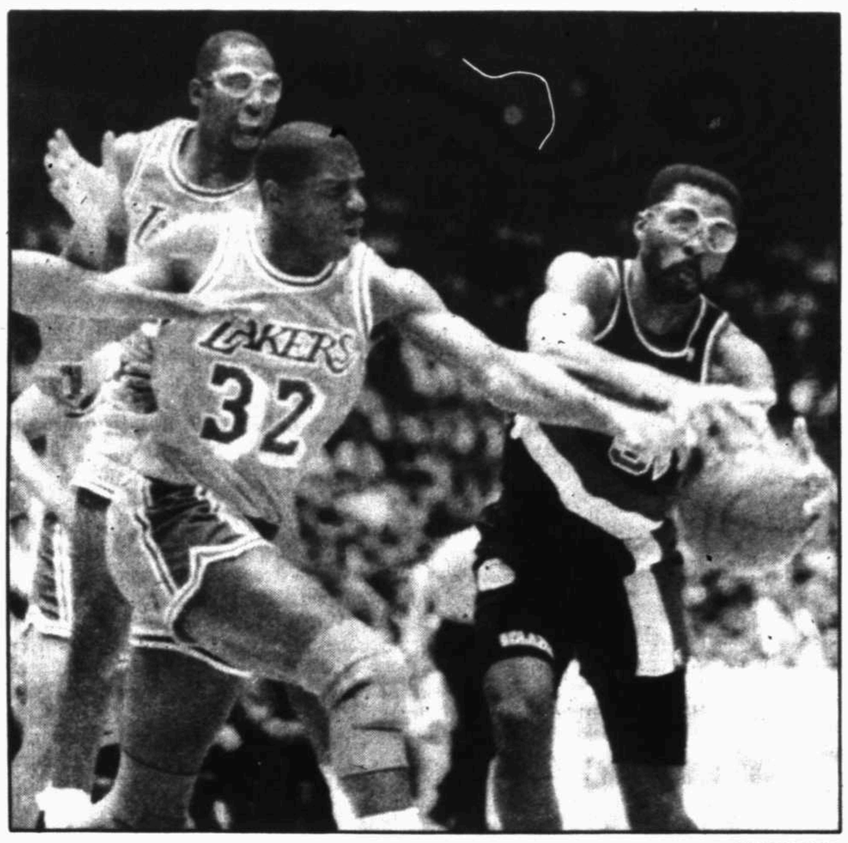

In winning the series four games to two, the Lakers advanced to meet Michael Jordan's Bulls in the finals beginning Sunday afternoon in Chicago. The series brings about the long-awaited showdown between Jordan, appearing in his first championship series, and Magic Johnson, starting his ninth one in 12 NBA seasons.

The Lakers were hampered Thursday night by the deteriorating condition of forward James Worthy's sprained left ankle. Worthy started the game and played 21 minutes in the first half, but was temporarily forced to the bench in the third quarter for treatment before returning.

Sam Perkins and Magic Johnson picked up the scoring slack with 26 and 25 points, respectively, for the Lakers. Terry Porter led the Trail Blazers, who were the league's top-winning regular-season team with 63 victories, with 24 points.

Before the game, Worthy was dressed early and ready to try his ankle. He walked around the locker room without any trace of a limp. The Lakers still weren't sure if he could run or retain his explosive first step. Trainer Gary Viti admitted they were at nature's mercy. "We've got our fingers crossed," Viti said.

Averaging 22.6 points during the playoffs, Worthy has been the Lakers' second-leading scorer behind Magic Johnson's 22.8. Beyond the numbers, his presence helps the Lakers space the floor for the Blazers' double-teams on Johnson.

Lakers' Magic Johnson (32) steals Blazer Buck Williams blind.

One of the Lakers' great strengths is that all five starters are legitimate scorers and, left alone, become even more fearsome. But chemistry is delicate, and substituting the aggressive but less-productive A.C. Green for Worthy would make those Portland double-teams more troublesome, as evidenced by the Lakers' 34-point second half in Game 5.

"If he can't play the way we need him to play, then there's no sense in it because there's another game," Lakers' Coach Mike Dunleavy said of Worthy. He meant a seventh game, not Game 1 of the finals against Chicago. "We don't want to take the chance of injuring him anymore or putting us into an even worse situation."

Worthy answered the question in a hurry, though, when he opened the game guarding Clyde Drexler and canned an 18-footer for the Lakers' second basket of the game.

From the start, it was also apparent that the Blazers were again failing to achieve their desirable up-tempo pace and were again executing their half-court offense poorly.

Though they managed to stick with the Lakers for most of the quarter, trailing by 17-16 in the last three minutes, their low-post game was nonexistent, as Kevin Duckworth missed his first four shots. When he wasn't misfiring, he was turning the ball over, and the Blazers were on their way to a 17-point quarter on 35 percent shooting.

Oddly, the first significant momentum swing occurred when Green entered the game late in the quarter. Having quickly contributed a free throw and an offensive rebound, Green inbounded in the backcourt to Sam Perkins with 4.3 seconds left, took a quick return pass, raced upcourt and nailed a 25-footer.

Birmingham lands SEC title game

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — Presidents of the 12 Southeastern Conference universities voted Thursday to play the SEC's championship football game in Birmingham, Ala., beginning in 1992.

Birmingham was selected over four other cities for reasons that included geography, community interest and, in the case of Atlanta, a fear the 1996 Olympics there would overshadow the title game, said SEC Commissioner Roy Kramer.

Also submitting bids were Orlando, Tampa and Memphis, Tenn. The vote for Birmingham was not unanimous but conference officials did not disclose the split.

"We will be entering into discussions with that city concerning a multi-year agreement," Kramer said.

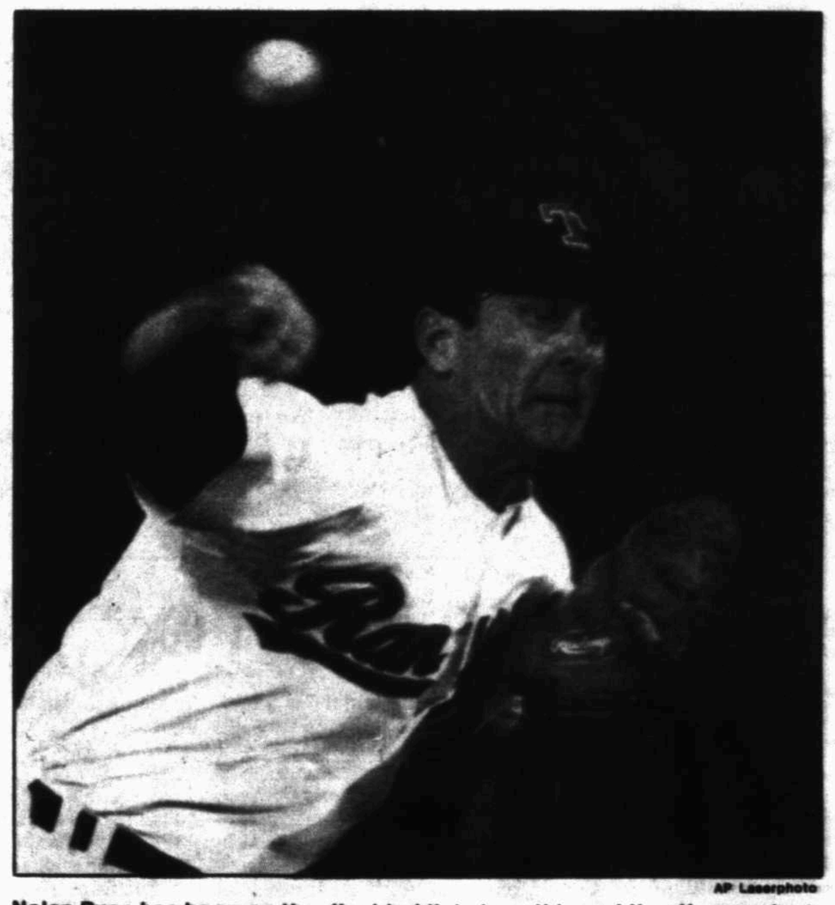

Finances, he added, were not a factor in the selection.

"It really wasn't a bid type of arrangement. It wasn't a bidding war," Kramer said. "Those are the types of things we'll have to work out over the next few days."

The inaugural game will be played Dec. 5, 1992 at 82,000-seat Legion Field, pitting champions of the conference's new Eastern and Western divisions.

Schools in the Eastern division are Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, South Carolina, Tennessee and Vanderbilt. The Western teams are Alabama, Arkansas, Auburn, Louisiana State, Mississippi and Mississippi State.

Warning wave for Royals

Nolan Ryan has been on the disabled list since this no-hit action against Toronto, but he has a great history of responding to injury.

■ Nolan Ryan has history of being tough in second outing after coming off disabled list.

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Warning to the Kansas City Royals: Watch out for Nolan Ryan's second outing after he comes off the disabled list.

Last year, Ryan pitched his sixth no-hitter on his second appearance after coming off the DL. The Oakland A's were the victims in their own park.

Ryan is scheduled to pitch in Kansas City either Tuesday or Wednesday in his next start.

On Wednesday night, the Minnesota Twins and Greg Gagne made Ryan pay for his inactivity in a 9-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ryan hadn't pitched since May 13 after spending time on the DL with a sore right shoulder.

"The way you beat Nolan Ryan is get him early and we did," said Minnesota pitcher Jack Morris, who allowed four hits in his third complete game of the year.

Gagne's three-run homer in the second inning was the decisive blow off Ryan, who went four innings and yielded five runs in a 69-pitch outing. Ryan walked one and struck out four.

Edberg, Seles gain French Open wins

American Pete Sampras ...suffers upset in French Open

■ Pete Sampras and Mats Wilander both find the exit as two favorites lose.

PARIS (AP) — Stefan Edberg toiled in the hot sun until his back ached. Monica Seles let her opponent do most of the work.

The top seeds won second-round matches in contrasting styles Thursday at the French Open — Edberg struggled past Horst Skoff in three hours, while Seles lost only two games to Mariaan De Swardt.

But two other seeded players and a former champion were less fortunate.

U.S. Open champ Pete Sampras, the sixth seed, won only five games in a "tired and sluggish" loss to Frenchman Thierry Champion. Eighth-seeded Goran Ivanisevic managed only six games as he was eliminated by Paul Haarhuis.

Three-time French Open champion Mats Wilander made a more costly exit, losing to France's Fabrice Santoro in straight sets and then being fined $2,000 for refusing postmatch interviews.

Women's third seed Gabriela Sabatini and 10th seed Jennifer Capriati were easy winners, as was men's ninth seed Jim Courier.

Edberg and Seles, both of whom could be dethroned from the top of the world rankings during this tournament, battled in 77 degree heat on a sunny center court.

Edberg, a 1989 French Open finalist trying to protect his No. 1 ranking from Boris Becker, suffered lower back problems as he defeated Skoff 6-4, 5-7, 7-6, 6-3. A trainer twice massaged his back between games.

"I am not exactly sure what it is, but I have had some problems the last couple of weeks," said Edberg, who suffered a thigh injury while playing in Germany last weekend. "When you have a problem it makes it more difficult to concentrate."

Asked what he would do to prepare his back for a third-round match against clay-court specialist Andrei Chesnokov, Edberg said he would continue his daily exercises.

"You have to look after your body, it is the only one you get," he said. "You can't go and pick one out of the wardrobe."

Seles met an opponent who seemed bent on self-destruction. De Swardt, a 20-year-old South African, hits the ball with tremendous power but little accuracy.

De Swardt crushed every ball she hit, but most of the shots went out. She committed eight double faults and pounded many simple backhands way out of bounds. She lasted only 56 minutes against Seles, losing 6-0, 6-2.

"I knew she would dictate the points, especially on her serve," said Seles, who is trying to prevent Steffi Graf and Sabatini from toppling her from the No. 1 women's ranking.

"I had to try and run down every ball and hit them back deep so that she would have a hard time getting them back. That is what I did."

Sampras, whose serve-and-volley game does not translate well onto slow clay, lost 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 to Champion, a quarterfinalist at Roland Garros last year.

Rangers drop third in a row

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Jay Buhner homered and drove in a career-high six runs Thursday night as the Seattle Mariners trounced Texas 11-4, sending the Rangers to their third straight loss after a club-record 14-game winning streak.

Rookie Rich DeLucia (5-2) won his fourth straight decision, knocking Texas out of first place in the American League West after a one-week stay.

Seattle tagged Kenny Rogers (4-4), who had won four straight, for eight runs, four of them earned, in two-plus innings. Rogers gave up four hits while walking seven and striking out one. He also had two wild pitches.

A Rueben Sierra single in the game was his 42nd hit in May, breaking the club record set by Al Oliver in 1981.

Athletics 8, Blue Jays 6

TORONTO — Rickey Henderson, who led off the game with a homer, walked with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to snap a tie.

With the Blue Jays leading 6-5, Terry Steinbach, Willie Wilson and Jamie Quirk loaded the bases with three straight one-out singles off Duane Ward (0-2).

Walt Weiss tied the score with a sacrifice fly, and Ward then hit Mike Gallego with a pitch to load the bases. Henderson walked to break the tie and another run came home on Ernest Riles' single.

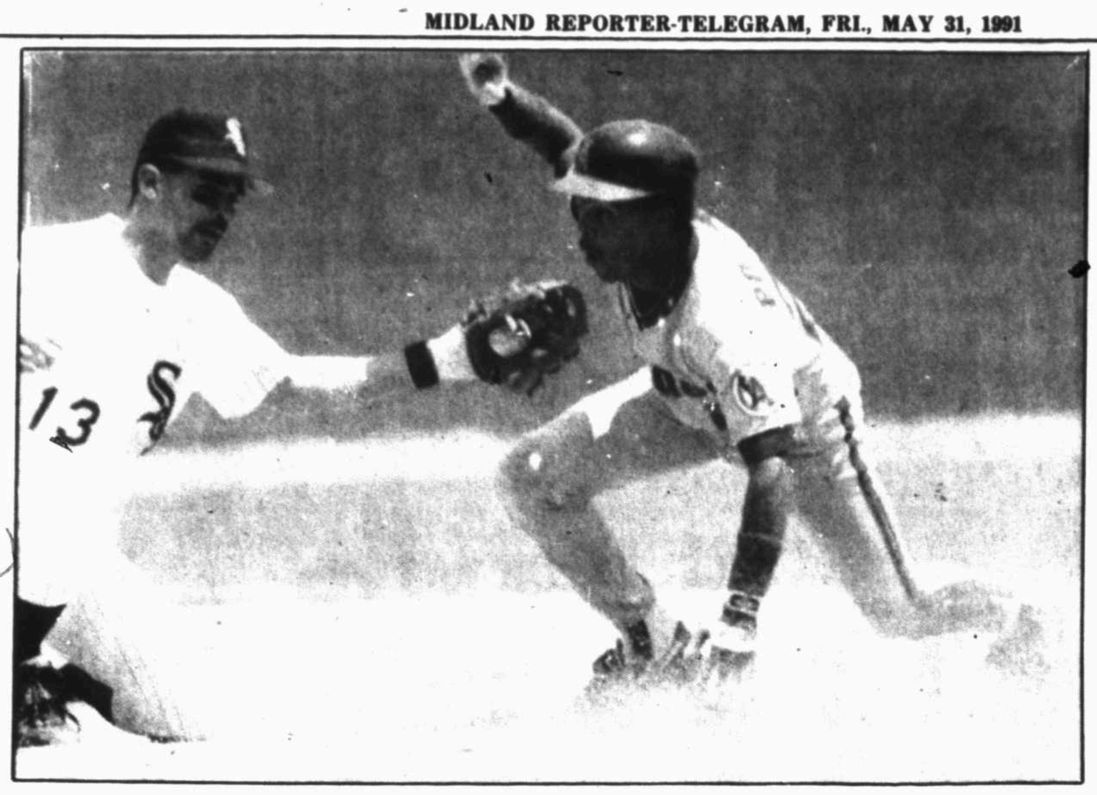

Orioles 9, Red Sox 3

BOSTON — Mike Devereaux and David Segui hit two-run doubles as Baltimore capitalized on Matt Young's wildness.

Baltimore, which has the American League's worst record, won its third straight game after losing its first four under new manager Johnny Oates. Boston, which began the game with a .003 lead over second-place Toronto in the AL East, lost for the fifth time in six games.

Jeff Ballard (3-6) got his first win since April 23, allowing three runs and six hits in 6⅓ innings. Mark Williamson relieved after Mike Marshall's two-run double in the seventh made the score 6-3. Mike Flanagan finished.

The game marked the return to Fenway Park of Dwight Evans, who had spent all 18 of his previous major league seasons with Boston. Evans, released by the Red Sox after last season, got several standing ovations. He was 1-for-4 with a walk.

California Angels' Luis Polonia, right, steals his 14th base of the year Thursday, sliding past the tag attempt by Chicago White Sox shortstop Ozzie Guillen.

AL Roundup

Angels 7, White Sox 6

CHICAGO — Luis Polonia drove in three runs and California held off Chicago as the White Sox scored four runs in the last two innings.

Kirk McCaskill (5-5) went seven innings with three walks and no strikeouts for his third straight win.

Bob McClure allowed consecutive home runs to Frank Thomas and Sammy Sosa in the eighth — it was the seventh of the season for each — and then gave up consecutive singles to Joey Cora and Ozzie Guillen to start the ninth. Bryan Harvey came on for his 12th save but not before some trying times.

Tim Raines greeted Harvey with a single that scored Cora and sent Guillen to third. Lance Johnson then beat out a bunt fielded by Harvey to load the bases. After Robin Ventura struck out, Thomas hit a sacrifice fly to right to make it 7-6.

Twins 4, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Hal McRae's home debut as Royals manager was spoiled by Mark Guthrie's strong pitching.

Greg Gagne and Chuck Knoblauch drove in runs against Mark Gubicza (1-3), who lasted 7⅓ innings in his fourth start since rotator cuff surgery last summer. Chili Davis hit his ninth homer for the Twins, a solo shot in the ninth.

McRae, who hit .293 in a 13-year career with Kansas City and was inducted into the Royals' Hall of Fame, was named manager last week at the beginning of a six-game road trip. His first victory was last Friday at Minnesota in an 11-2 pounding of Guthrie (4-3).

Murphy reaches 2,000 milestone

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dale Murphy had to run hard for his first career base hit. He got to walk into second with No. 2,000.

The well-liked and respected outfielder joined the list of players with that many hits on Wednesday night in Philadelphia's 2-1 victory over Montreal.

He talked of the first like it was much more recently than 1976.

"It was against the Dodgers in Los Angeles," said Murphy, then a rookie with the Atlanta Braves. "It was against Rick Rhoden. I topped a ball toward third and Ron Cey threw it away. They gave me a hit because it was 1976 and I could run then."

No. 2,000 was also somewhat of an adventure. He hit a high fly into short right field. Three Expos looked skyward and began chase. The ball fell among them just inside the foul line and bounced into the stands for a ground rule double.

MURPHY HAS been much more consistent than his milestone hits.

For the 14 years in between he has hit .268, with 385 home runs and 1,195 RBIs. He is tied with Eddie Murray of the Los Angeles Dodgers for 26th on the all-time home run list and former Cincinnati great Johnny Bench is next at 389.

Murphy reacted to his latest milestone with his usual modesty and low-key approach.

"Numbers like that sort of surprise me. Your career goes by so fast. You don't feel the time going by, then all of a sudden the numbers pop up and it's a shock. Heck, when I look back there were times when I wondered if I would ever play in the big leagues."

The crowd reacted strongly to Murphy's latest accomplishment, giving him a brief standing ovation. He tipped his cap and waved.

Phillies coach John Vukovich arranged for a trade with the fan who caught the ball.

Murphy was asked what he intended to do with the ball.

"Give it to my parents," he said. "My dad likes things like that."

Asked about No. 3,000 Murphy said: "I don't know about that. I'm just thinking about getting one next game."

MURPHY WAS asked his thoughts as he trotted out the two-base hit.

"I thought of my wife and six sons and all the time they suffered when I came home not in the best of moods after an 0-for-4 game. Of all the encouragement I got from them," he said.

John Wathan still disappointed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — John Wathan has cleaned out his office. But the disappointment over his dismissal as Royals manager not disappeared.

"It really wasn't as tough as I thought it might be," Wathan said of the trip to clean his office before the team returned from a road trip Wednesday, one week after he was fired.

"But don't get me wrong. It was tough. I guess I waited just about as long as possible to clean everything out. ... I guess I waited just about as long as possible to come down to the stadium."

Wathan, who had been the Kansas City manager since late in the 1987 season, was fired after a 15-22 start. He was replaced by former teammate Hal McRae.

Hershiser comeback spoiled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Orel Hershiser says he's taken the first step in his return to the major leagues and now hopes to become just one of the guys.

"The more I get into this, the more I feel that it will get easier," the Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher said after his first major-league game in more than 13 months. "It's going to be exciting to be a part of this ballclub and not be looked on as an animal who's on display."

The light-hitting Houston Astros spoiled Hershiser's first appearance for the Dodgers since April 25, 1990, scoring four runs in the first inning and beating the Dodgers 8-2 Wednesday night.

Hershiser's second start is set for Tuesday at St. Louis and he was already looking forward to it minutes after Wednesday night's game.

"From now on, I'm going to have to start producing," he said. "I think this is one step, we're going to have to look at this four or five starts into it. I'm going to have to get it in gear and start getting people out.

While Hershiser was a loser in his return to the mound, he said he didn't feel like one.

"If you don't rate it on results, I would rate it outstanding," Hershiser said. "I'm delighted with my health. I got better as the game went along.

"I feel good about what happened out there tonight. I feel good about the way I threw the ball. If I don't give up a hit to the pitcher and I don't balk, they only get two runs. So I really buried myself."

The Astros, averaging less than 3.5 runs per game, surpassed their average in the opening inning when they had six singles and an intentional walk. Hershiser was also called for a balk in the inning.

The 32-year-old Hershiser underwent major reconstructive surgery on his right shoulder two days after his final appearance last season.

After the rugged first inning, Hershiser pitched three scoreless innings before his departure.

In four innings, he allowed nine hits — all singles — walked three and struck out four. Two of the walks were intentional.

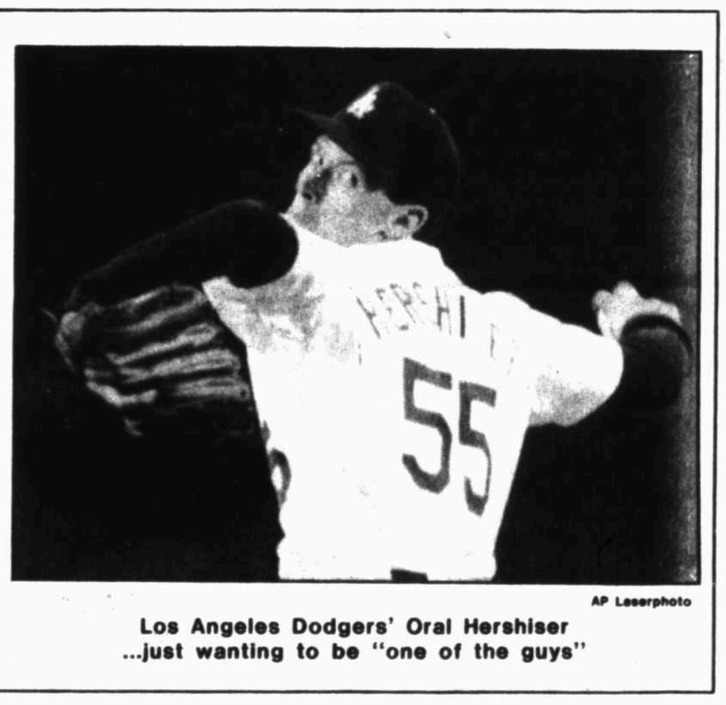

Hershiser threw 86 pitches — 34 in the first. He was trying for his 100th victory but suffered his 66th loss.

According to Mike Brito, who handles the speed gun behind the plate, Hershiser's fastest pitch was 92 mph. Brito said Hershiser threw consistently between 85 and 89 mph.

"I think Orel pitched better than the box score is going to show," Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia said. "I think he's back. I really expect Orel to be a big part of our staff.

"On his velocity, Orel was up there on a handful of pitches where he was before he was operated on. His movement is the same, his location will be ironed out.

"In my estimation, he's going to be a big winner again."

Rasmussen blanks Astros, 4-0

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dennis Rasmussen hasn't slowed down since his return from injury rehabilation.

In fact, the San Diego Padres' left-hander has tried to work faster. It's an appraoch that resulted in seven scoreless innings Thursday in a 4-0 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I've been a slow worker and then it's kept the infielders and outfielders on their heels more than they should have been," Rasmussen (1-0) said after his second start since recovering from a shoulder problem that idled him in spring training.

"It doesn't give the hitters as much time either to think about what I'm going to throw."

Over the two starts, both against Houston, Rasmussen has allowed only one run in 14 innings.

The latest effort ended a four-game losing streak by the Padres. Rasmussen allowed eight hits, but the Astros stranded 10 runners.

NL Roundup

Rasmussen, who entered this season with a lifetime record of 80-60, worked on his new style on a rehabilitation assignment with AAA Las Vegas of the Pacific Coast League.

In four starts there, he was 1-3 with a 5.47 earned run average.

"My numbers weren't great," he said. "But I was throwing the ball well by the last outing."

A former Las Vegas teammate, Jose Mota, lended Rassmussen support Thursday with a two-run single for his first major league RBI when San Diego pulled away with three runs in the sixth off Jimmy Jones (4-2).

"That hit means a lot to me," said Mota, who has played seven games with the Padres. "It was in a siutation to help us win and help Dennis. We were close in Las Vegas. He took me under his wing."

Larry Andersen, making his first appearance since May 7, worked one perfect inning in relief before Rich Rodriguez completed the nine-hit shoutout.

Andersen had been sidelined by a hernatied disk in his neck.

Jones worked 7 1-3 innings, allowing eight hits while striking out six and walking three.

The Padres started the sixth-inning rally when Tony Gwynn and Fred McGriff singled with one out. Tom Lamkin, who entered the game in the fifth, then drove the next pitch to center field to score Gwynn.

After an intentional walk to Thomas Howard loaded the bases, Scott Coolbaugh struck out. But Mota followed by lining his two-run single to center.

"I really had one bad pitch as far as I'm concerned," said Jones, whose three-game winning streak was snapped. "I hung a curve (to Mota) when I shouldn't have. A good pitch would have gotten him out."

Braves 7, Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO — John Smoltz broke a slump with a five-hitter as Atlanta hit four homers in winning its fourth straight.

Ron Gant, David Justice and Sid Bream combined for three homers among their seven hits while driving in five runs and scoring five.

Smoltz (2-6), who pitched his first complete game, was staked to a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning when Justice followed a one-out single by Gant with his seventh homer of the season and fourth in eight games. Bream hit the next pitch from Kelly Downs (2-3) for his seventh homer.

Jeff Blauser hit his second homer, off reliever Scott Garrelts in the sixth. Gant, who had three hits and scored three runs, hit his ninth homer to cap a two-run seventh during which Terry Pendleton had a sacrifice fly.

RYAN: Rangers hope for another streak

(From 1C)

Only Ryan's feelings were hurting after the game.

"It felt fine physically," Ryan said. "I was pleased with the way my arm felt but I was disappointed by the way I pitched. I figured I wouldn't have good command because of the layoff.

"I showed that if you make bad pitches you are going to get hit hard. They were hitter's pitches, hanging curves and fastballs up in the zone. I don't expect any stiffness or discomfort."

Ryan's fastball was clocked at 93 mph, but he didn't know where it was going.

Minnesota manager Tom Kelly said it was obvious Ryan was off form.

"I'm sure Nolan was not as sharp as he would have liked to have been and I'm glad we caught him when he wasn't," Kelly said. "You count your blessings anytime you get a couple of runs off Nolan."

Morris (5-5) said it's always a thrill to beat Ryan.

"Everybody has great respect for Nolan," Morris said. "He didn't have his best stuff so we've got to beat him and we did."

With Oakland losing 8-3 to Toronto, the Rangers remained in first place in the AL West by .011 percentage points.

It was the second straight loss for Texas after a club-record 14-game winning streak.

Ryan, who pitched his seventh no-hitter on May 1, didn't pitch during the victory streak.

"I think everything is going to be OK," Ryan said. "I didn't extend myself and actually didn't throw the 80 or 90 pitches I had planned. I believe everything is on schedule."

"The good news is that Nolan is back," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine. "The bad news was the outcome of the game. But we're glad to have the big guy back. Maybe we can start another streak with him in it."

Freshman sparks LSU women

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Freshman Sharon Jaklofsky got Louisiana State off to a strong start in a bid for its fifth straight women's title in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships by winning the heptathlon on Thursday.

The heptathlon was the first women's event completed in the four-day meet at the University of Oregon's Hayward Field, and Jaklofsky, the 1989 Australian champion, dominated the two-day, seven-event competition.

Track

She took the lead after the third event, the shot put, and led the rest of the way, finishing with 5,732 points.

Ana Kaljurand of Brigham Young was second with 5,671 points and Trevaia Williams of Nevada-Las Vegas third with 5,494.

LSU, favored to continue the monopoly in the team competition that it started in 1987, wound up with 14 points in the heptathlon, as Jovennie McDuffie finished fifth. Scoring is on a 10-8-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis.

Jaklofsky had the best mark in only one event, the long jump, and ironically, that gave her the "biggest scare."

She fouled on her first attempt and had a poor second jump, before leaping 20 feet, 7¾ inches.

"Before the third jump, I was nervous," Jaklofsky said. "I could feel my muscles tensing."

But she moved back her takeoff mark by about two feet, and got off her big jump.

"I scared myself," she said. "I had never done that to myself."

The victory was the third without a defeat this season for Jaklofsky. Her best performance was in the Southeastern Conference Championships two weeks ago, when she amassed 5,969 points.

"I wanted to score 6,000 points in this meet, but I knew from the start I wouldn't because of the weather," she said.

The heptathletes were hampered by rain, cold and wind Wednesday. On Thursday, there was no rain, the wind abated and it was slightly warmer.

But Jaklofsky's 6,000-point hopes were dashed on the opening day.

"Those were the worst conditions I have ever competed in," she said.

The heptathlon was the only final held Thursday. The rest of the program included qualifying in seven events, preliminaries in four events and semifinals in six events.

Howard College's Efrain Contreras (20) is taged out at home by Allegany's Scott DeHaven, but the Hawks won anyway, 12-7.

Howard's Hawks eliminate Allegany

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Franklyn Johnson doubled home three runs, including the game-winner in the fifth inning, as Big Spring's Howard College Hawks eliminated Allegany, Md., 12-7, from the National Junior College World Series Thursday.

The only other remaining teams, undefeated Glendale, Ariz., and once-beaten Manatee, Fla., met later Thursday night.

Howard would get a bye Friday if Manatee beat Glendale.

"We definitely have a few tired arms," Howard catcher Sean Teague said. "Getting that extra day off would help tremendously."

Allegany, 42-6, took a 6-3 lead in the top of the fifth when Ken Mallory singled in two runs and Glenn Davis hit a two-run homer.

But in the bottom of the inning, an error, a wild pitch, a walk and a hit batter produced one run and Johnson's double sent two more across as Howard, 57-11, took the lead for good at 7-6.

The Hawks added four more in the sixth, capitalizing on two more Allegany errors and Frank Rodriguez' tw-run double. Rodriguez also hit a solo homer in the eighth.

Shane Ziegler, who came on in relief in the fifth inning and struck out six, earned the victory. Steve Kline, the fourth of six Allegany pitchers, took the loss.

Two tied for Kemper lead

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Bob Gilder displayed shotmaking not seen much in eight years, while rookie Scott Gump showed off shotmaking not seen much at all, as both had 65s Thursday to share the first-round lead of the Kemper Open.

Gilder, a 16-year veteran who has not won since 1983, had seven birdies — including five on the back nine. Gump, who had broken 70 only twice in 30 rounds this year, had an eagle, five birdies and a bogey to finish with his best round on the PGA Tour.

Six players, including Hal Sutton and Chip Beck, were one stroke back. Greg Norman and Ian Baker-Finch, the Kemper runnerup last year, were among seven players at 67.

"I felt like my old self again," said Norman, currently ranked an uncharacteristic 98th on the money list. He had a steady round that featured 14 pars and four birdies.

Of the 156 players in the tournament, 102 shot par or better over the 6,904-yard TPC at Avenel course.

Gilder, 40, won three tournaments and $308,648 in 1982, and the Phoenix Open in 1983. But he lost his vigor for the game shortly after that.

"I had a bad attitude. The game wasn't fun, and I was struggling with that for quite awhile," he said. "I haven't really felt comfortable until today."

The highlight of his round came on the 472-yard 12th hole, when he chipped in from 40 yards for a birdie.

He closed with two straight birdies, sinking a 5-foot putt on No. 17 before dropping in a 30-footer on 18.

Having missed the cut in three of his last five tournaments, Gilder spent last week at home in Oregon sharpening his putting stroke. He reaped the benefits on Thursday.

Clemson, Creighton become CWS darlings

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The way Clemson coach Bill Wilhelm sees it, the Tigers College World Series matchup with Creighton is an historic event.

Not only is hometown Creighton in the CWS for the first time, Saturday's first-round game will be broadcast by CBS, the first non-title game shown by a major network.

"I think it presents a major opportunity for Clemson. That's never happened before," Wilhelm said. "It might be those two things are more than we can handle. I just kind of feel we'll be OK.

"I see Creighton being in the tournament as nothing but a huge plus for the College World Series. The thing is this is just the first year Creighton will be here. They will be here again."

Creighton is the only team in the eight-team tournament making its initial appearance in the CWS.

Florida State has been to Omaha 11 times, while Clemson and Louisiana State have been in five world series each. Wichita State, the only team in the field to have won the CWS before (in 1989), is making its fourth appearance, Fresno State its third, and Florida and Long Beach State their second.

Top-seeded Florida State meets No. 8 Fresno State in the tournament opener Friday, followed by No. 4 LSU against No. 5 Florida. On Saturday, Clemson and Creighton will be followed by third seed Wichita State against No. 6 Long Beach State.

Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson, in the Missouri Valley Conference with Creighton, said it is uncertain what the Bluejays being in the tournament will mean, other than the likely increase in attendance.

"I don't think anybody knows that," Stephenson said. "Creighton has never been here before. We've never played Creighton before 15,000 people before ... have we, Jim?"

Creighton coach Jim Hendry mumbled "no."

But then, many of the participants haven't played before crowds of that size.

Rosenblatt Stadium, home of the CWS since 1950, has a seating capacity of 17,500. Tournament officials expect sellout crowds for Creighton games and overall increased interest in the tournament with the first entry from Nebraska.

"We're hoping to give the people of Omaha everything they've been waiting for all these years," said Hendry, who also noted the increased hometown excitement and media attention. "Our players have handled it well so far."

If there was one drawback in the tournament, the coaches said it was the seeding that put conference rivals in the same bracket.

Florida coach Joe Arnold was critical of having to face Southeastern Conference rival LSU in the first round. Wichita State and Creighton also are in the same group.

Big West teams, Fresno State and Long Beach State are in separate brackets.

Earlier, NCAA Baseball Committee officials said no conference considerations were given in seeding the teams for the two-bracket tournament.

"I feel it's unfortunate to open against LSU, a team we've played six times," said Arnold, who added that part of the excitement of the CWS is having to play teams you don't normally face.

LSU coach Skip Bertman wasn't too thrilled, either.

"What bothers me is when we were good against the Gators was early and then the Gators were good against us was late," Bertman said.

Bulls trim magic number to four

CHICAGO (AP) — When the playoffs began, general manager Jerry Krause told the Chicago Bulls that the magic number was 15.

It's now down to four with the dazzling Bulls rarely missing a beat in the quest for the NBA title.

"We're getting closer every day," Krause said. "Craig Hodges and I started counting down and we only missed one beat."

That's because the Bulls swept the New York Knicks in three games in the first round, lost once in eliminating the Philadelphia 76ers 4-1 and then swept the two-time defending champion Detroit Pistons in four games for an 11-1 playoff record.

"I feel the players and the coaching staff have done a hell of a job," Krause said. "But I feel good about it personally."

Krause took over the team in 1985, a month after it was purchased by Jerry Reinsdorf. He inherited Michael Jordan and a number of other players. But the likes of Quintin Dailey, Orlando Woolridge, Wes Matthews, Ennis Whatley and Dave Corzine are gone. Only Jordan remains.

In their places are the likes of Scottie Pippen, Horace Grant, Bill Cartwright and John Paxson. Krause has built this team through the draft, trades and the signing of free agents, although some of his moves were criticized.

"The critics don't bother me," Krause said. "They don't know about the inner problems of a club."

Krause took those problems into account in building the team. In addition to having Jordan, the key to having the Bulls reach the finals for the first time in the 25 year history of the franchise started with the drafting of Charles Oakley, who was subsequently traded.

"Drafting Oakley gave us the physical presence we needed," Krause said. "We had to trade up to get Oakley."

That was in the 1985 draft. Two years later he had to trade up to get Pippen, who was selected ahead of Grant in the same round.

One thing Krause wants to get straight is the drafting of Grant.

"When it was our turn to make a pick, there were two other guys we were thinking of," Krause said. "I walked out of the room and into the hallway and Jerry (Reinsdorf) came after me and said, 'You have good gut feelings, go with your gut feeling.' I walked back in and we picked Grant. Jerry Reinsdorf did not overrule me and he has never told me who to take or who not to take."

In 1988, Krause was convinced that the club couldn't succeed without an outstanding center, be it a proven star or one out of the college ranks.

In midseason, Krause asked the Knicks for permission to talk to Cartwright and have him take a physical because Cartwright had a history of foot injuries.

The Knicks refused. But when the season ended, the teams agreed a deal could be made. A physical satisfied the Bulls that Cartwright was healthy.

The deal was made with the Bulls swapping Oakley and draft picks to the Knicks for Cartwright and the 11th pick in the 1988 draft. They used that to select Will Perdue.

"We got a veteran player and a young player at the same time," Krause said. "We felt Bill would give Will time to grow and we're seeing that in the playoffs."

Krause also drafted Stacey King and B.J. Armstrong, acquired Hodges and Dennis Hopson in trades and signed Paxson, Scott Williams and Cliff Levingston as free agents.

Five to be inducted into NJCAA Golf Hall

Staff Report

Five persons will be inducted into the National Junior College Athletic Association's Golf Hall of Fame in Midland Monday.

The induction takes place at the NJCAA men's golf tournament banquet, which begins at 8 p.m. in Chaparral Center.

The inductees include: P. D. Highsmith, golf coach for Lincoln Trail College, Robinson, Ill. and president of the NJCAA Golf Coaches Association; Mickey Flippen, golf coach at Paris Junior College, Paris, Tex.; Floyd Horgen, golf coach at Brevard Community College, Cocoa, Fla.; Gene Sauers, former player for Central Alabama Community College, Alexander City, Alabama, and now on the PGA circuit; and Buddy Alexander, former player for St. Petersburg Junior College, St. Petersburg, Fla., and now on the PGA circuit.

Also on hand for the banquet will be Bill Tuten, athletic director for St. John's River Community College, Palatka, Fla., who is the NJCAA representative at the tournament.

Welcome to the banquet and the tournament will be extended by Dr. Jess Parrish, Midland College president. Mike Stevens, director of Chaparral Center and Midland College's assistant golf coach, will introduce the NJCAA East vs. West winners.

Delnor Poss, Midlnd College athletic director and golf coach, will present the Green Tree Country Club winners and the NJCAA Regional Coaches of the Year. As tournament director, he also will explain procedures for the tournament.

The 72-hole event will be played Tuesday and Wednesday at both Green Tree and at The Club at Mission Dorado. Final two rounds, Thursday and Friday, will be played at Green Tree.

Persons wishing to attend the banquet should call the Midland College Athletic Department at 685-4575 not later than noon Monday to make reservations. Tickets are $10 per person for the informal western barbecue.

Lightning scares Johnson

LPGA Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — After a harrowing run-in with lightning, Chris Johnson regained her composure to shoot a 67 Thursday and take a one-shot lead after the first round of the LPGA Rochester International.

Beth Daniel missed a 4-foot putt and made double bogey on the 18th hole to fall out of the lead. She's in group of eight one-stroke back at 68.

But before any of that, the weather made things a bit frightening.

At around 9:30 a.m., a severe thunderstorm struck the Locust Hill course with a sudden burst of lightning, sending players scurrying for the clubhouse.

Dougherty wins GTCC crown

Staff Report

Pat Dougherty had a 203 this week to win the 1991 Green Tree Ladies Handicap Championship golf tournament.

Dougherty won by three strokes over Jo Ann Teasley while Trina Albright with third with a 207. Evelyn Davis also had a 207 and placed fourth.

Albright won the tournament's low putts contest with 96.

Spending lag puts recovery forecast in doubt

By John D. McClain
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Consumers, lacking any appreciable increase in incomes, cut back their spending 0.1 percent in April, the government said Thursday in a report that cast further doubt on anything better than a sluggish recovery from the recession.

Analysts said two other reports — a slight increase in new home sales in April for the third month in a row and a slim decline in new claims for unemployment benefits for the second straight week in mid-May — also suggested a slow turnaround in the economy this summer.

"There's a strong indication in the latest numbers that the recovery is going to be quite weaker than normal," said economist David Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a New York securities firm.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending, expected to be the engine driving the economy out of the recession, totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $3.78 trillion in April.

That was down from $3.782 trillion in March and ended a two-month string of advances. Still, the revised 1.1 percent gain in

More Americans behind on mortgages

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans behind on mortgage payments rose by 341,000 in the first three months of this year, with states in the Northeast and the South suffering the most, a national survey reported Thursday.

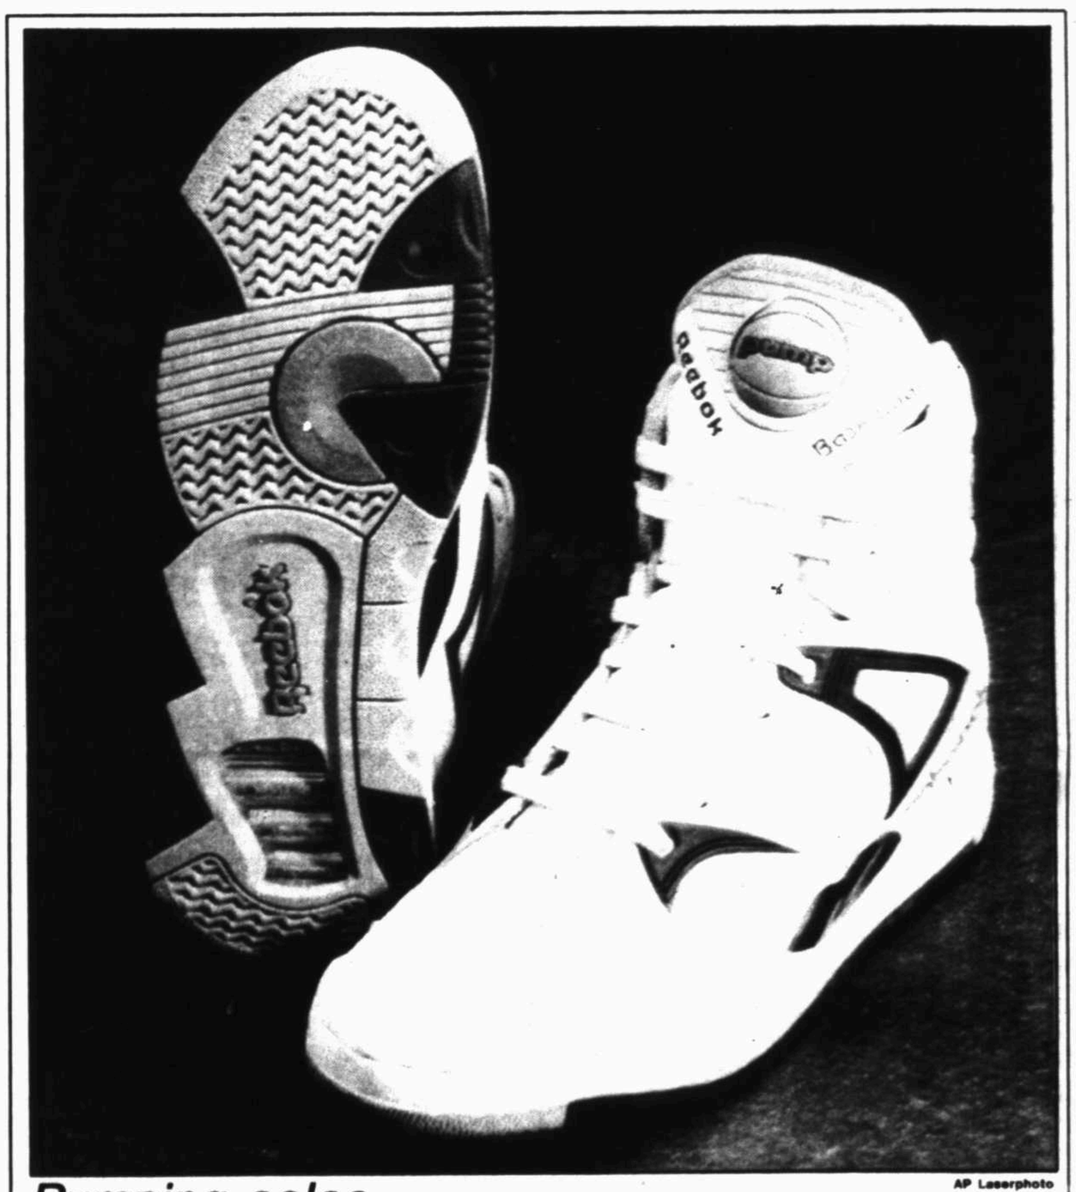

The Mortgage Bankers Association said the percentage of homeowners behind 30 days or more on their payments climbed in the first quarter to 4.95 percent of the 45.6 million mortgage holders.

That was up more than one-half percentage point from the 4.41 percent national delinquency rate in the first three months of 1990 and compared with a rate of 4.71 percent in the October-December quarter.

Analysts said the rise in delinquency rates was an expected fallout of the recession, reflecting the fact that the number of unemployed has risen by 1.4 million in the past year and income growth for people with jobs has been sluggish.

"We have painful evidence that the sting of the recession is still being felt by home-

Oil, gas, free trade must mix, lawmaker says

By Jennifer Dixon
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. corporations are still leery about investing in Mexico's petrochemical industry, despite a series of government reforms designed to encourage foreign and private investment, congressional investigators say.

Cooperation between the new nations to resolve impediments to investment in Mexico could help the petrochemical industries of both the United States and Mexico, said the study by the General Accounting Office.

Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., said all issues related to U.S.-Mexico petrochemicals trade and investment should be on the negotiating table during talks to lift trade barriers along the Rio Grande.

"A resolution of the outstanding impediments in this case would ... bring greatly enhanced opportunities to the U.S. petrochemicals industry," said Gejdenson, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on international economic policy and trade.

The issue of U.S. investment in Mexico's petrochemical industry, however, is expected to be among the most sensitive areas discussed during negotiations for a North American free-trade agreement because of Mexico's constitutional prohibitions on outside investment in the oil and gas sector.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills and her Mexican and Canadian counterparts may hold their first formal free-trade talks next month in Ottawa, said Hills spokeswoman Torie Clarke.

Although oil and gas "are an extremely sensitive topic" for Mexico, Clarke said the issue would be discussed during the negotiations.

The Mexican government has the exclusive right to produce and distribute all basic petrochemicals, which are created by breaking oil and gas into their basic chemical components.

The Mexican government allows private investment in secondary, or intermediate, petrochemicals, which are then used to create finished consumer products such as nylon stockings, antifreeze or compact disks. But foreign investment in intermediate petrochemical plants is limited to no more than 40 percent of plant equity, GAO said.

According to Gejdenson, the $123 billion U.S. petrochemical industry has tremendous potential for expansion, but is limited by the supply of raw materials necessary to produce more advanced petrochemicals. The world's largest petrochemical complex is located in Texas along the Gulf Coast.

"For the United States, Mexico is clearly the most promising supplier of these raw materials because of its proximity to the U.S., its abundant supply of oil and natural gas, and its sophisticated petrochemicals labor force," Gejdenson said recently.

At the same time, Mexico has a dire need for a massive influx of capital to complete petrochemical plants that were begun in the late 1970s, Gejdenson said.

Transco Energy to pay Alabama $35.5 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Transco Energy Co. will pay $35.5 million to settle a lawsuit filed by the state of Alabama, which claimed the company "treated Alabama like dirt" and dug through native American village sites when it constructed a pipeline.

Without admitting wrongdoing, Transco Energy said it agreed to the settlements Wednesday to end a string of regulatory and legal woes that could have cost more than $200 million.

Alabama sued Transco in December 1990 for $170 million, claiming the firm dug through Indian village sites and threatened endangered species when it constructed a pipeline in Mobile Bay.

Alabama's attorney general called the company a "corporate carpetbagger" that "treated Alabama like dirt."

Prices rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices moved higher Thursday, with petroleum product futures leading the way on reports of refinery troubles in France and Venezuela.

The trading was partly technical, however, because futures contracts for delivery of gasoline and home heating oil expire on Friday. That exaggerated the move up, as traders who had previously agreed to sell gasoline and heating oil ended up needing to buy it back.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in July settled at $21.32 per barrel, up 21 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Unleaded gasoline for delivery in June settled at 68.31 cents a gallon, up 1.27 cents. Home heating oil for delivery in June settled at 56.70 cents a gallon, up 1.02.

Traders said the petroleum products had been due to make a move up before the contracts expired, after some earlier waves of selling. The impetus came when a Venezuelan refinery was taken down for maintenance and a French refinery caught fire.

Still, the market seemed uncertain as the OPEC ministers prepare to meet next week in Austria. Many players have been staying on the sidelines this week, unsure what, if anything, the cartel will accomplish.

Natural gas prices were mixed. Gas for delivery in July settled at $1.338 per 1,000 cubic feet, down .6 cent.

3000 again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rolled up its fourth straight gain Thursday, carrying the Dow Jones industrial average past 3,000 as the rally that began late last week continued.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 69.55 points over the three previous sessions, rose another 30.66 points to 3,000.45.

That marked its highest close since it set a record of 3,004.46 on April 17.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar settled mostly higher Thursday, supported by higher U.S. stock and bond prices.

Gold prices also rose. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery settled at $363.10 a troy ounce, up $1.90.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to a closing 137.68 Japanese yen from 137.60 yen at Wednesday's close.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.7155 from $1.7315 late Wednesday.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Signature-guarantee option offers assurance

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q. A mutual fund in which I am considering investing has a provision through which investors can redeem shares they own via a written request with a guaranteed signature. Is it wise to select this option?

A clerk with the fund said the bank providing the guarantee is accepting liability for the amount of the redemption. An officer at my bank said the bank will guarantee the signature only. What does a signature guarantee really mean?

A. Let's take your second query first. A signature guarantee is simply an assurance from a reliable party that you are the person whose signature appears. Most mutual funds accept signature guarantees only from commercial banks, trust companies and brokerage firms. A relatively small number of funds take those guarantees from savings banks, savings and loan associations and notary publics.

The banker is correct. There's no acceptance of liability involved. By guaranteeing your signature, the bank is attesting you are who you say you are. Banks and other financial institutions guarantee signatures as a service for customers. They're not about to provide a signature guarantee to some stranger who walks in off the street.

Now, to answer your concern about redeeming shares: The Investment Company Act of 1940 requires every mutual fund to redeem its shares on every normal business day. The exceptions are when the New York Stock Exchange is closed, its trading restricted or emergency conditions exist. There have been comparatively few instances when that happened.

Every mutual fund's redemption procedures are spelled out in the fund's prospectus. Most funds give shareholders the choice of redeeming by phone or by mail. Study that fund's prospectus for details.

If you take possession of fund share certificates and decide to redeem, you must put your John Hancock on the assignment form on the back of the certificates and provide a signature guarantee.

However, that is unusual. The vast majority of mutual fund investors never get certificates. Instead, they receive printed statements, showing the number of shares they own, the prices of those shares, the dates the shares were purchased, etc.

There's nothing wrong with picking the redemption by mail, with signature guarantee, option. But phone redemption is far more convenient. That's the method we use at our house.

Q. I invested in a tax-exempt mutual fund for several years and reinvested my dividends. The monthly statements I received and saved showed the amount of my original investment and the exact amount of each reinvestment.

I redeemed the fund shares last year. The preparer who did my 1990 income tax return merely added all the reinvested dividends to my original purchase and subtracted that total from the redemption price I received to calculate my capital gain — not witnstanding the fact that all the dividends were tax exempt.

I feel I paid too much income tax on this. Am I correct?

A. Nope. The tax preparer handled things properly.

The dividends you reinvested were exempt from federal income tax because that mutual fund holds municipal bonds, which are not subject to federal income tax, and passes that money on to shareholders as dividends — also tax free. You had your choice of taking those dividends by check or of reinvesting them to buy more shares.

You chose to reinvest. That was no different than if you had written new checks, thereby adding to your investment and to your "basis" — cost for tax purposes. Your total basis was your original purchase price plus all your reinvested dividends. It didn't matter that the dividends were tax exempt. It was still your money, which you decided to use to buy more fund shares.

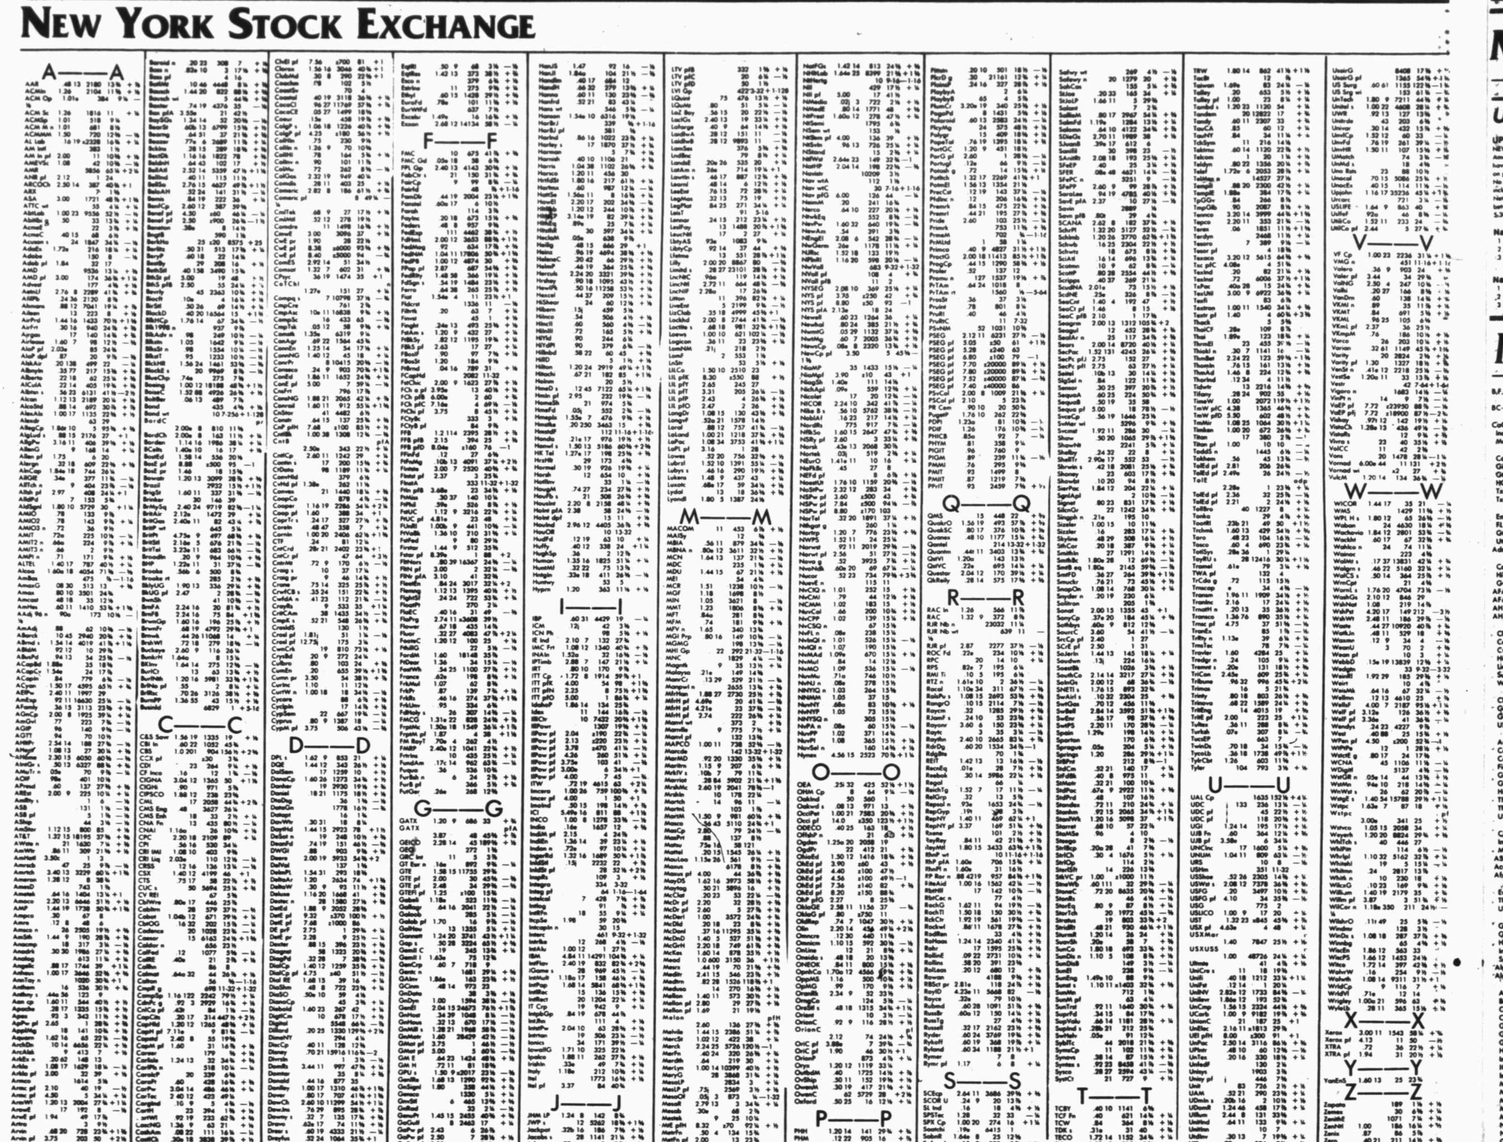

Actually, by increasing your basis, those reinvested dividends reduced your eventual capital gain — the difference between your basis and the redemption check. All capital gains on securities sales are taxable. Redemption of mutual fund shares is counted as a sale.

LAG: 'Consumers have taken it on the chin'

(From 7C)

March was stronger than the 0.6 percent advance first reported.

The department also said personal incomes, another key to recovery, rose just 0.1 percent to $4.76 trillion at an annual rate, up from $4.75 trillion a month earlier.

Despite the diminutive gain, it was the third consecutive advance in incomes. The department also revised the March increase to 0.4 percent, rather than the 0.2 percent in the original report.

Consumers are expected to lead the economy out of recession, since their spending represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity. But analysts said they are being restrained by high unemployment and interest rates and weak income growth and tight credit.

"Consumers have taken it on the chin from a lot of directions and have hunkered down," Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston said.

Robert G. Dederick, chief economist for the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago, agreed. "The consumer continues to sit quietly on the sidelines watching the world go by," he said.

Still, the Commerce Department said in another report that sales of new homes rose 1.2 percent in April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 500,000 units. It was the third monthly advance since sales plunged 10.8 percent to a 414,000 rate in January, the lowest level since the 1981-82 recession.

Most other housing indicators also have improved since their January lows, leading analysts to suggest the housing recession hit bottom that month. But they are forecasting the recovery to be subdued.

"Nothing much has happened to lead you to a rapid upswing in sales at this point," said chief economist David F. Seiders of the National Association of Home Builders, noting mortgage rates locked at about 9.5 percent and a weak economy.

In its report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time unemployment claims fell by 9,000 during the week ending May 18, to 445,000, following a 5,000-drop the previous week.

"At best, you're seeing a hint of recovery," said economist Samuel D. Kahan of Fuji Securities in Chicago. "At worst, we're stabilizing at a low level."

The decline in personal consumption included an $11.9 billion plunge in spending on durable goods — items ranging from cars to computers expected to last more than three years. It wiped out much of a $14.9 billion gain in March.

Spending on non-durable goods, including food and fuel, fell $5.2 billion after rising just $400 million a month earlier. Spending on services, which jumped $25.9 billion in March, slowed to a $12.9 billion gain in April.

On the other hand, disposable income — income after taxes — was unchanged in April after rising 0.4 percent in March and 0.3 percent a month earlier.

But reflecting the slower spending, Americans' savings rate inched up to 3.6 percent of after-tax income from 3.5 percent in March.

A key component of the income category — wages and salaries — increased $6.1 billion after advancing $3.1 billion in March.

The spending and income figures were not adjusted for inflation. When adjusted, spending dropped an even steeper 0.3 percent after rising 1.0 percent a month earlier.

Disposable incomes, when adjusted for inflation, fell 0.2 percent following a 0.3 percent gain in March.

MORE: Homeowners feel sting of recession

(From 7C)

owners around the country," Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers, said in releasing the survey results. "Unemployment is up and many of these people have been out of work for some time and they are having a hard time meeting their mortgage payments."

The survey found the biggest year-over-year increases occurred in the Northeast and the South, two areas that have been particularly hard hit in the recession.

The delinquency rate in the Northeast jumped to 4.58 percent, up 0.7 percentage point from a 3.88 percent delinquency rate in that region a year ago.

The delinquency rate in the South climbed an even faster 0.79 percentage point to 5.62 percent, up from 4.83 percent a year ago.

Lasko blamed job layoffs in furniture and textile plants in the South for making the delinquency increases particularly sharp in some Southern states.

In the Northeast, a steep drop in real estate prices has played a part in rising delinquencies as some homeowners have stopped making payments on houses they can't sell because their original purchase price is higher than the current market value.

The region of the country with the lowest delinquency rate was the West, where the rate climbed to 3.82 percent, up 0.28 percentage point from 3.54 percent a year ago. The delinquency rate in the Midwest rose 0.27 percentage point to 4.47 percent, compared to 4.2 percent a year ago.

The national delinquency rate was still well below the peak hit after the 1981-82 recession of 6.07 percent set in the first quarter of 1985, but analysts warned that the delinquency rate is a lagging economic indicator and can be expected to continue rising for a period even after the nation pulls out of the current slump.

The 10 states suffering the biggest jump over the past year in their mortgage delinquency rates were:

New Hampshire, up 1.68 percentage point; Wyoming, up 1.52 percentage point; South Carolina, up 1.42; North Carolina, up 1.27; Florida, up 1.23; Georgia, up 1.21; Rhode Island, up 1.18; New Jersey, up 1.15; Alabama, up 0.95; and Mississippi, up 0.94.

Mississippi had the highest delinquency rate in the nation in the first quarter at 7.26 percent. At the other end of the spectrum, the state with the lowest delinquency rate in the first quarter was Hawaii at 1.91 percent.

TWA agrees to $1.1 million penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans World Airlines' parent corporation agreed Thursday to pay a $1.125 million civil penalty to settle a federal claim that it violated the law when it bought a large amount of stock in USAir.

An antitrust suit brought by the Justice Department contended that Aero Limited Partnership of Mt. Kisco, N.Y., failed to notify federal antitrust officials and observe a required waiting period before completing its purchase of more than $15 million in USAir stock in 1986 and 1987.

The law requiring notice and a waiting period is intended to improve antitrust enforcement by seeing that the Justice Department and Federal Trade Commission get advance notice of major transactions.

Coordinating asbestos cases divides lawyers

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Lawyers representing hundreds of companies and tens of thousands of asbestos victims clashed Thursday in a three-hour hearing in New York over a landmark proposal to coordinate the nation's steadily growing number of asbestos personal injury cases now clogging many dockets.

Both the plaintiffs and the defendants were deeply divided over the proposal, which is in the hands of seven judges who make up the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, a branch of the federal judiciary that establishes procedures for handling large and complex cases.

The panel is expected to rule soon, and judging by its questions, it appeared likely to appoint a federal district judge who could figure out how best to consolidate the cases.

Many lawyers view federal District Judge Charles R. Weiner of Philadelphia as the leading candidate. A highly regarded judge, he has handled asbestos and other complex cases and is supported by lawyers for both plaintiffs and defendants.

Some lawyers and academicians contend that a decision to coordinate cases would represent a milestone in product liability litigation. The panel strongly hinted that it favored some form of consolidation, although its contours have yet to take shape.

But opponents of consolidation argued at Thursday's hearing that any steps taken by the panel would only add a layer of bureaucracy that could further delay cases.

While oral arguments before the multidistrict litigation panel have historically had limited significance and rarely appeared to affect the outcome, the magnitude of the three-hour proceeding was apparent by the audience and the arguments.

The lawyers included representatives of railroads, shipping concerns, chemical manufacturers, automakers, steel mills, construction companies, product distributors and insurance underwriters. By some estimates, the ultimate liability of asbestos makers and users could exceed $10 billion.

The panel's deliberations came just months after a different group of federal judges appointed by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist concluded that the rapid increase in asbestos personal injury cases had caused a national crisis in the courts.

That group predicted that the number of cases in the federal courts — already more than 35,000 — was likely to double within the next three years. By some estimates, cases in state courts are more than double the number of cases in the federal courts.

The explosion of cases has forced many asbestos makers and users into bankruptcy, while thousands of victims who face debilitating and fatal diseases are waiting years to be compensated.

Asbestos litigation is unlike other kinds of complex product liability disputes because the injuries often take decades to become apparent, and there are hundreds of potential defendants, many of whom are brought into cases by defendants seeking to limit their own exposure.

Members of the multidistrict litigation panel expressed a desire to streamline the cases. One reason is that their proliferation has resulted in more than two-thirds of available resources being consumed in legal fees.

Fox acquires rights to 'Tiny Tunes'

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — In a move to strengthen ties with television affiliates, Fox Inc. has acquired rights to Steven Spielberg's "Tiny Toon Adventures" and other Warner Bros. animation projects slated for production, officials said.

Under terms of the deal announced Thursday, Fox will receive exclusive rights to distribute 100 episodes of "Tiny Toon Adventures," the "Merrie Melodies" libraries and 65 scheduled episodes of an untitled cartoon series to be created and produced by Spielberg in 1993.

Warner Bros., which is putting up the money to produce the shows, hopes distribution by Fox will lure enough advertisers to cover production costs.

"If we did our math right, that should pay for the cartoons and leaves us a few bucks on the side," said Dick Robertson, president of Warner's Domestic Television Distribution.

Fox announced the deal Thursday at an affiliates meeting at the Century Plaza Hotel in the Century City area of Los Angeles.

For Burbank, Calif.-based Warner Bros., which stands with Walt Disney Co. as a leader in children's television animation, the deal provides a guaranteed market for its cartoons.

The deal expands on an October agreement under which Fox will distribute 130 episodes of the 1991 animated shows "TAZ-MANIA" and "Beetlejuice" and 65 episodes of "Batman" in 1992.

DEAR ABBY

Phone machine is handy, frustrating

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a telephone answering machine. It is very handy, but sometimes it's a source of great frustration when someone dials a wrong number and leaves a message.

Van Buren

For example, the following message was left on my machine: "Your daughter, Judy, was in a minor automobile accident. Please pick her up at the suburban police station."

Well, I do not have a daughter named Judy, so I called the suburban police station and suggested that they call Judy's parents and dial carefully next time.

Last week, an elderly woman left the following message: "Doctor, I'm sorry I have to cancel my appointment ..." Then she went on and on, describing all her symptoms and medications until my entire tape ran out.

I also got this message from a young man in a hurry: "Hi, Joe, dis is Pete. We're gonna have football practice at Baldwin Park. Call da udder guys and tell em!"

Last night I received the following message: "Hi, Gloria! We're leaving right now. Please be ready for a change, OK?" Bang! (I hope Gloria was ready for a change.)

Abby, inform your readers that before they leave a message on an answering machine, they should be sure they dialed the right number. — WRONG GUY IN CLEVELAND

DEAR WRONG GUY: Thanks for reminding all the folks out there to dial very carefully.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you had an article in your column titled "Only in America." It poked fun at Americans who buy everything they wear and use from some foreign country. I think Americans need to be reminded to BUY AMERICAN. Thanks. — PATRIOTIC IN MAINE

DEAR PATRIOTIC: Once my readers have seen the following, I'm sure many of them will agree with you.

ONLY IN AMERICA

"He drove his German car made of Swedish steel and interior of Argentine leather to a gasoline station, where he filled up with Arab oil shipped in a Liberian tanker and bought two French tires, composed of rubber from Sri Lanka.

"At home, he dropped his Moroccan briefcase, hung up his Scottish tweed wool coat, removed his Italian shoes and Egyptian cotton shirt, then donned a Hong Kong robe and matching slippers from Taiwan.

"More comfortable now, he poured a cup of hot Brazilian coffee into an English coffee mug, set a Mexican placemat on an Irish linen tablecloth atop a Danish table varnished with linseed oil from India. Then he filled his Austrian pipe with Turkish tobacco, lit it, and picked up a Japanese ballpoint pen with which he wrote a letter to his congressman demanding to know why the United States has an unfavorable balance of trade."

CONFIDENTIAL TO DELAWARE DUMMY: Don't put yourself down. Even a clock that isn't working is right twice a day.

FAMILY MATTERS

Communication rules important, especially in blended families

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I'm so mad that I could eat nails. My husband's ex-wife called yesterday and informed us that we would have his children from June 9 until June 29. My husband knew that we had already paid a deposit on a condominium for our famiy vacation the week of June 10. When I asked him what he told her, he said nothing.

May

What am I supposed to do? I have two children (4 and 5) by my first marriage and he has three (7, 9 and 12) by his. The condominium only has two bedrooms, which would have been fine for my two young children but would never work for his three older children too.

I have tried and tried to accommodate his ex-wife but she is one of the most unreasonable people I have ever known. Don't you think that it's wrong to just call and tell your ex-husband that the kids will be coming the way that she did? When I told him to tell her we couldn't do it, he said that she told him that we had to do it them because she had plans with her boyfriend! Can you believe that?

I want him to call her and tell her that they can't come period during that time regardless of her plans. Let her change her plans. We had our plans first! Part of the problem is that she pushed (husband) around the entire time that they were married and as you can see she still does. I told him that I'm not afraid of her and that I would call her and get her straightened out about this. He doesn't want me to call. He won't call. He won't talk to me about it anymore. Now what am I supposed to do? I am so mad at her and him for ruining our summer. FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: I believe it is important to establish rules of communication so that your husband is not in the middle. He seems to be trying to please both you and his ex-wife, and sometimes that's not possible.

What does the divorce decree state? If it says you are to have the children at a mutualy agreeable time, you all should try to find such a time. If the dates are set, then it may be more complicated. In either event, some rules must be put in place so the two homes can communicate successfully.

Generally, we try to help each blended family become more tolerant of the other. Also, agreement needs to be reached that in some situations it will be impossible to please everyone.

Many non-custodial parents are afraid to assert themselves for fear that their children will think that they (the non-custodial parent) don't want to see them.

You and your husband need to talk about this problem. Try to find some compromise that might work. Could his ex-wife delay her trip one week? Could you shift your trip by one week? Is there a larger condominium available? Look for other possible solutions.

You and your husband might also be interested in attending the Step-Family Support Group that meets at Golf Course Road Church of Christ. Call 694-8836 for additional information.

DEAR FAMILY: What right do my parents have to tell me who I can talk to on the telephone? I can't stop people from calling me. If they call me, it's real rude to not talk to them. Don't you think that I have the right to talk to who I want to on my telephone? MAD

DEAR MAD: You didn't mention your age, so I will assume you are a teenager. First, try calmly and respectfully asking your parents why they don't want you talking on the telephone to specific people.

One of a parent's responsibilities is to help his or her children make healthy choices about the people they interact with. I am not suggesting that your parents choose your friends, but only that you consider their opinions.

Some unexpected situations may arise in your life. Talking to people who your parents consider inappropriate is like bringing these people into the home. I assume your parents provide the telephone. Considering their feelings when using the telephone is appropriate.

You don't have to always agree with your parents nor they with you. The important thing is that you all continue to respectfully present your positions and try to reach a workable compromise.

Hyperactive kids need special help

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Hyperactive children are often treated with suspicion by their peers and prejudice by their neighors, according to a University of Rochester pediatrician.

If children with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder are evaluated and treated appropriately, says Stephen Sulkes of Rochester's School of Medicine and Dentistry, they can adjust well at home and school and develop a positive sense of self-worth.

"They can grow up to become creative, successful community members," says Sulkes.

But if these children don't receive appropriate help and "are chronically scolded for poor behavior and grades and rejected by their peers, they may become antisocial," he warns.

Children, elderly share garden

By Carol Rust

HOUSTON (AP) — They don't even knock. In the afternoons after school, they know the door is seldom locked.

A 5-year-old girl slides easily onto a comfortable couch in the den as if she lived there.

Others clamor for drinks of water in the kitchen.

Still others don't go inside at all, but head straight to the garden next door.

"Here we come, Miss Madeline," says 10-year-old Roger Wyngate, riding up on a bicycle as his cousin walks along behind him.

Encircled by children on her front porch, 78-year-old Madeline Patterson gives Wyngate a wide smile and says, "That's right, baby. I knew you would."

An elderly man comes up on crutches. The man from across the street walks over. They stand in front of the house and chat as youngsters toddle between them.

It's another meeting of the neighborhood garden club.

"I got big ones, little ones, middle-size ones," Patterson says of her youthful garden helpers. "And I claim 'em all."

SOME OF THE children have worked in the Northside Seniors Garden since its beginning two years ago.

Others joined in later because Patterson, showing a bit of Tom Sawyer wisdom, made the work look like so much fun.

She reasoned that the men and women who grow food there, all in their late 70s, have their share of aches and pains that come with age.

So Patterson, who coordinates the community garden, which is a project of Houston Metropolitan Ministries of Interfaith Hunger Coalition, mobilized the neighborhood kids.

How?

"They love my peanut butter cookies," she says with a smile.

After a session in the garden, usually on Saturdays or after school on weekdays, Patterson spreads a red-and-white cloth on a table in "the parlor" an unfarmed space inside the garden fence. The space is furnished with the table, several rickety chairs and a tree stump "just made for sitting on," as Patterson describes it. Then she puts a generous tray of cookies on the table, sets out lemonade and cups, sits back and watches.

"Aren't they something?" she says as she watches them eat. "They're all precious, every one."

Some of these children might otherwise be home alone. Some might be parked in front of a television set or getting into trouble, Patterson says. She figures this is better for them.

"In the meantime, they're learning something useful," she says.

And, of course, she lets them take some of the produce back to their families, proudly wagging home their brown paper sacks of home-grown groceries.

THE NORTHSIDE Seniors Garden has 10 beds, each 40 feet long, planted with a wide array of vegetables. Seven senior citizens have all or part of a bed in the garden. The others are planted with surplus vegetables to give away to needy friends or neighbors.

"If someone comes over, I want to give them something," Patterson says as she pulls a bunch of green onions for a visitor. "That's my pleasure."

Madeline Patterson, left, works alongside Alexis Richards in the Northside Seniors Garden in Houston. Children come to help with the community garden that helps feed some of the elderly neighbors. The 78-year-old Patterson used a bit of Tom Sawyer wisdom to make the work look like fun.

Houston Metropolitan Ministries won a Houston Clean Award last year, in part because of Northside Seniors Garden. In planting it and several others, ministry staff and volunteers cleared overgrown lots that had become neighborhood eyesores.

The land on which the Northside garden is planted is owned by Drake Moving Co., which gave the seniors permission to use it. Many of the area's 28 community gardens are planted on land owned but not used by someone else, such as the Braes Interfaith Community Garden, which is planted on easment property of Houston Lighting and Power. The garden provided 11,000 servings of food to the hunger coalition's food pantry last year.

Northside produced 4,000 to 5,000 servings of food last year, up from 2,500 its first year.

Seeing the Northside Seniors Garden prosper as it has in the past two years has encouraged neighbors and friends to try out their green thumbs in their yards, says Bob Randall, overall coordinator for the coalition's community gardens. And the more people do this, the more the coalition's goals are served, he says.

"People don't know what to do with their yards, so they just mow them," he says. "They could be eating from them."

NORTHSIDE IS one of four community gardens in the Houston area that is exclusively for seniors. But the garden program isn't the only assistance the hunger coalition provides to the elderly. Through Food for Seniors, volunteers deliver groceries to low-income senior citizens during the third week of the month, when funds from fixed incomes often have run out. A Hunger Hotline connects people needing food to a nearby coalition food pantry and often refers them to other agencies for additional assistance.

There also are programs for the homeless, disabled, single-parent families, refugees and AIDS victims.

Randall laughs when he remembers the first planting at the Northside Seniors Garden two years ago. The seniors already were running late because of rain when they showed up one Saturday to plant no matter what.

It started to rain again.

Undaunted, Edwin Smith, a senior citizen who helped build the beds, grabbed two umbrellas and summoned one of the women who had a bed there. Holding one umbrella over his head and another over the woman, he moved inch by inch down the bed as she put her seeds in the ground.

Some seniors' housing too costly

BOSTON (AP) — Almost a third of the nation's 19.5 million elderly households don't have enough money for food, clothing and medical insurance because their housing costs are more than they can afford, a report says.

The study by the Gerontology Institute at the University of Massachusetts-Boston found the problem so acute for elderly in 3 million households "that even if their housing costs were to be reduced to zero, they still would be unable to meet their non-shelter needs at a minimum level of adequacy."

These worst-off elderly are largely women — widows or never-married — living on minimum Social Security or welfare payments. "Almost all their meager income goes to pay the rent," said Michael Stone, professor of community planning at UMass-Boston, who oversaw the study.

At the other end of the scale are elderly homeowners who have stable or even increasing incomes because their mortgages are paid.

The study found that 31 percent of U.S. elderly households are paying more than they can afford for housing. Stone said his study did not track state-by-state differences.

Although most of the nation's "shelter-poor elderly" are white, Stone said, generally lower incomes for minorities led almost half of elderly blacks and about 45 percent of the Hispanic elderly to fall into this category.

Stone suggested several policy proposals, including enabling the elderly to convert equity in their homes to cash, giving them property tax relief, encouraging shared living arrangements and increasing rent subsidies.

Grieving widows neglect diet, study shows

By Carolyn S. Carlson

ATLANTA (AP) — Recent widows tend to skip meals or eat junk food during the early stages of grief, putting themselves at risk of health problems if they don't regain control, a study says.

Christine Rosenbloom, a professor of nutrition and dietetics at Georgia State University, studied eating habits of 50 widows over 60, including three men.

She found even the most health-conscious among them lost interest in preparing good meals for themselves.

The findings proved what grief counselor Charles L. Owen of Atlanta already had noticed.

"Weight loss comes early in the grieving process and it's very normal," he said.

"Food is pleasure and what happens is the pleasure mechanisms are shut down. That's one of the first to go. As they begin to feel better, they allow that pleasure to come through again."

Ms. Rosenbloom said 36 of the widows in her study lost an average of 7½ pounds, without trying, after their spouses' death. Seven gained an average of two pounds; the rest had no change.

In a control group of 50 married people of the same age, nearly a third had lost weight in the past year, but only because they were on diets.

Recent widows had lower intakes of all the nutrients she analyzed, including total calories, protein, iron and other minerals and vitamins, than the married people, Ms. Rosenbloom said.

And the widows, though they all could afford to eat better, were more likely to skip the evening meal or to eat fast foods, she found.

Most said they couldn't face eating alone, looking at their spouse's empty chair, she said. "They just found it easier to avoid this and snack with comfort foods, things that were handy, rather than prepare a meal and sit down and eat it."

Charlotte Gore, 63, of Atlanta, whose husband died of cancer in August, said she eats more prepared meals in front of the television and has given up cooking, which she never liked anyway.

"I lost about 10 pounds during his last illness and right after he died, but I've gained about five pounds back," she said. "I'm just not interested in eating by myself."

Recent widows run the risk of getting sick if they don't eat properly.

"Women tend to be better at feeding themselves than men who live alone," said Judith Halfrisch, a nutritionist with the National Institute on Aging in Bethesda, Md. "But older women are at a greater risk for nutrition deficiencies than men because they eat less anyway and are more susceptible to deficiencies like calcium."

Ms. Rosenbloom suggested those who have recently lost a spouse take advantage of group meals for the elderly; arrange to eat with friends; eat while sitting in the spouse's chair so they don't have to look at it; and seek advice on cooking for one without wasting food.

A poor diet is a symptom of grief that's "not necessarily related to any age group," Owen said.

He urged recent widows to try to pay attention to their eating habits while they're coping with the other, often more overwhelming problems such as loneliness, depression and financial adjustment.

"What's important is to realize that this is normal," he said, "but don't let it go on too long."

Group questions 'product placement' ads within movies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fans of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles should have been told that Domino's paid to have the hard-shell heroes munch its pizza in their first movie, an advocacy group said Thursday.

The Center for the Study of Commercialism asked the Federal Trade Commission to force film makers to tell theater patrons when movies include paid "product placements."

"What we're saying is don't try to pretend you're showing them art when what you're showing is advertising," said Michael Jacobsen, co-founder of CSC, a nonprofit organization that points out areas it considers overly commercialized.

Elizabeth Barnes, a spokeswoman for the Motion Picture Association of America, said the group had no comment on CSC's petition. MPAA is the Washington-based lobbying group for the major Hollywood studios.

Handing a name-brand product, say a Coca-Cola or Pepsi, to the leading character in a popular movie "is an effective form of advertising because it's a sneaky form of advertising," Jacobsen said.

In a petition filed with the FTC, CSC asked that films containing paid product placements carry a notice at the beginning telling viewers that businesses have shelled out cash to have their products shown. CSC said the notice should be "clearly displayed" on the screen and "clearly audible."

CSC is contending in its petition that product placements are an "unfair marketing practice" under the Federal Trade Commission Act because "audiences are being advertised to without being told."

With the cost of blockbuster movies in the tens of millions of dollars, Hollywood studios and producers are looking for ways to help pay for the spectacular special effects that viewers expect and the high salaries actors demand.

"Product placement is crucial to the film industry in a lot of ways," conceded Jacobsen. And he said CSC is not advocating removing the plugs, just telling patrons ahead ot time that they're there.

"The effectiveness of these plugs lie in the fact that people don't see them as plugs," he said.

But a spokesman for the American Association of Advertising Agencies said product placements are "scattered" and "in terms of dollars not a very big business."

Apply at:

Midland Reporter-Telegram
201 E. Illinois Avenue

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
