NAB'D renews call for closed-campus MISD high schools

By BRIAN PEARSON
Staff Writer

A Midland anti-crime group will again ask school board members to close high school campuses to curb students' drug and alcohol use, especially during the lunch hour.

Neighbors Against Burglary' Drugs Inc., a group of community representatives, voted Friday to make Midland Independent School District honor a closed-campus policy approved four years ago.

Kingdon Hughes, NAB'D treasurer, said MISD officials have refused to take a bold stand on chemical abuse by failing to keep high schoolers on campus for lunch.

Hughes said the NAB'D resolution was drafted to coincide with first lady Barbara Bush's visit to MISD Monday. Mrs. Bush will tour Bush Elementary School, named after her husband.

"We think it's ironic that the wife of the man whose trying to lead the nation's drug war is visiting, and the school board does not have the courage to implement a closed-campus policy that was voted affirmatively on Aug. 13, 1985," Hughes said.

Closed campuses are a key component in the federal "Model Drug-Free School," program, administered by the Department of Education and critical in curbing student drug and alcohol abuse, Hughes said.

NAB'D's resolution will be mailed to MISD administrators and trustees, he said.

The comments also came following a federal official's visit to a NAB'D luncheon Friday. Michael Williams of the U.S. Department of Treasury spoke to the group about the student drug problem.

MISD spokesman Ted Miller said implementing a closed campus policy currently is financially unrealistic.

The district would have to spend about $200,000 to fence school parking lots and provide additional parking spaces, Miller said.

"Needless to say, we don't have $200,000 to fund it," he added.

He said MISD would incur additional costs in expanding Midland and Lee high school cafeterias to serve the student surge.

"Plus you have a large number of businesses whose main business is the student lunch crowd," Miller said. "There's a whole lot more to consider than people think."

Energy forecaster offers optimistic view of industry

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

A leading energy forecaster offered a somewhat optimistic view of the oil business into the next decade in Midland Friday.

"Oil prices for WTI (West Texas Intermediate crude) should range from $17.50 to $18.50 for the remainder of the year and average $18.50 to $19.50 until 1993 or 1994 when there will be a modest real increase in prices," said Dr. Joseph Stanislaw, a partner with noted energy author Daniel Yergin in Cambridge Energy Research Center (CERC).

In Midland at the invitation of Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co., a client of CERC, Stanislaw told an audience of about 50 at the Midland Petroleum Club that he expects OPEC quotas to increase to 21 million barrels daily in 1990, and sees only a 15 percent chance that prices could fall because of discord in the cartel.

"There is a great deal of desire in OPEC to make the quota system work and keep prices stable," said CERC's coordinator for international economics. He predicted that oil prices will be less volatile than in previous years.

He noted that it would be difficult for the Saudis to send oil prices crashing again like they did in 1986 because there is not the market for the surplus production. But if they did try to bring prices lower, Stanislaw said it would be an effort that would last at least one or two quarters. "There has to be sufficient sweat time," he said.

The energy researcher said OPEC was dependent upon growth, that it had a lot of oil to sell and may never get it sold unless there is a demand for oil in growing economies. "A 2 percent world growth rate translates into an extra million barrels per day in oil sales," says Stanislaw.

Stanislaw, who resides in Paris, France, said the oil industry cannot avoid and must learn how to deal with environmental issues. "It cannot be avoided, and strategies and alliances must be forged now."

He said natural gas would be a winner because of the environmental issue and predicted gas prices to be in the $2.50 per thousand cubic feet (Mcf) range by 1993.

While he had no view on the potential for compressed natural gas (CNG) in the energy-environmental future of the U.S., he noted that methanol is probably not the right choice.

"Methanol would do nothing to address the trade deficit or improve national security, because most of is would probably be imported. The Saudis announced two days ago that they intend to double methanol production."

Stanislaw noted that the Saudis were frightened of new energy technology that might displace oil, because "oil is the only thing they have in the basement to sell."

"When cold fusion made the news several months ago, the Saudis ran scared for several days," he noted.

Stanislaw said he sees no hope for the oil industry in the political process. "Energy is just not on the agenda of Congress — clean air yes, but energy no." He said the Bush administration is still in a discovery process regards energy matters and that the process should be completed by the end of this year.

"There is just no focus on energy," he warned, "and there are no plans to tax oil to reduce imports.

"If energy is taxed it will only be to raise revenue."

Treasurer hopeful says she'll suggest changes

Hutchison

Former state lawmaker Kay Bailey Hutchison, entering the Republican race for state treasurer Thursday, said she will suggest sweeping changes to streamline three Texas financial departments.

While she emphasized the need to maximize investment earnings on the state's $100 million cash deposits, Ms. Hutchison said her top priority will be to save tax money by influencing sound money-management and restoring the state's Triple A bond rating.

"The higher bond rating could produce one-half of 1 percent interest cost savings on the state's projected 1992 debt, which would save $35 million that can be returned to the taxpayers or used for other public services," said Ms. Hutchison.

On Friday, the La Marque native and wife of former state GOP chairman Ray Hutchison, made a campaign stop in Midland and outlined her plans for office.

Ms. Hutchison, 46, predicted a rise in the state's general obligation debt of 16,000 percent — from $45 million in 1950 to $7.2 billion in 1992. Current debt obligation is $2.6 billion in 1989.

"The state's credit is one of our most valuable resources. It is not unlimited," she said at a press conference at Midland International Airport. "We are, as a state, on the verge of owing too much — of mortgaging too much of our future. Just as business that abuses its credit suffers, so will Texas.

Ms. Hutchison outlined a three-part "fiscal responsibility platform" to control the rising state debt.

As state treasurer, she said she'll issue a "debt watch" and provide expert assistance to agencies that issue bonds to get the lowest interest rates possible.

Oilfield crime continues, group's director says

By JULIE JEROME
Business/Oil Writer

Though oil activity has fallen off since the boom of the early 1980s, theft of equipment and white collar crime in the oil patch continue.

Crime remains in the oil patch, but it is of a different sort, according to Boyd Burdett, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Security Council.

"Oilfield equipment theft is not as high as it was, but it exists and it is different," Burdett told a gathering of members of the Desk & Derrick of Midland, their husbands and bosses at the group's annual industry appreciation banquet.

Theft of equipment today includes copper wire, gas flow meters, engines and generators, he said.

"One of the biggest problems today is theft of computers in field offices," he said. "That is a tremendous problem."

However, Burdett emphasized the problem of white collar crime. Businesses have yet to establish adequate safeguards against this theft, he said.

"During the boom there was money to be made by the legitimate businessman and the thief," he said. "The amount of money involved brought them in. And that created a problem with white collar crime."

Theft of crude oil is as big a problem today as it was in the early 1980s, he said.

"But there aren't tank trucks in the night stealing loads of oil," Burdett said. "People inside the industry know what we're doing and they can get around the safeguards put in place."

Ex-PTL employee testifies about Bakkers' bonuses

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — PTL founder Jim Bakker got hundreds of thousands of dollars in bonuses even while hundreds of workers were being laid off from his television ministry before the Christmas holidays, witnesses testified Friday.

"I called my children together and said, 'I'm sorry to tell you this, but we won't have Christmas until after because the check won't be here,'" Joanie Ames, a former PTL payroll clerk and single mother of two, testified in Bakker's fraud and conspiracy trial.

She was laid off in November 1985 with 285 other PTL employees, saving the ministry $3.6 million, said Chris Easley, PTL's personnel director for 1½ years.

The prosecution has said that Bakker received a $200,000 bonus on Nov. 12, 1985, and Tammy got a $100,000 bonus. Less than a year later, on Nov. 3, 1986, the PTL board approved a $500,000 bonus for Bakker.

The Rev. Evelyn Spencer of Oakland, Calif., who joined the board of PTL in November 1985, testified that the largest bonus she remembered approving was $150,000 plus taxes.

Gabor wishes she scratched out officer's eyes

Gabor

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor went to her cop-slapping trial Friday saying she wished she scratched out the officer's eyes and was warned by the judge to stop violating a gag order with her out-of-court comments.

"I will make a warning, but this will be the first and last time I say this," Municipal Court Judge Charles Rubin told the actress and former Hungarian beauty queen. "You are to say to the press, 'No comment.'"

Deputy District Attorney Elden Fox had asked for a contempt citation against Miss Gabor, citing newspaper articles quoting her comments since the gag order was imposed when jury selection began Monday.

The judge's warning was based on the published quotations. He was apparently not aware of Miss Gabor's comments just before the session, blasting Officer Paul Kramer, the motorcycle officer who arrested her.

"I like men of achievement, not a man with a gun ... I should have scratched his eyes out," Miss Gabor said earlier in the corridor.

"I think that cop is not too bright. I think he must be very spoiled because he's very sexy. He's gorgeous. He's sexy, but I don't like that man," she said.

After the warning, defense attorney William Graysen countered by quoting a television news report which said that another Beverly Hills police officer called Miss Gabor a "foul-mouthed, cheap lawbreaker."

The judge reminded the prosecutor that the gag order he issued Monday applied to the police department as well.

An obviously upset Miss Gabor remained close-mouthed during the proceedings. She passed the time sketching a portrait of the bailiff and displayed it to reporters in the court.

Miss Gabor, who says the doodling "calms my nerves," previously drew pictures of the judge, the clerk and the court reporter.

Kramer pulled her over on June 14 for having expired registration tags on her Rolls-Royce. As he checked for other violations, Miss Gabor allegedly drove off, was stopped again and ultimately slapped Kramer's face.

She is charged with misdemeanor battery on a police officer, disobeying an officer's orders, driving with an expired license, and having an open container of alcohol in her car and an expired car registration.

Atlantis crew concludes countdown rehearsal

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The crew of space shuttle Atlantis concluded a two-day countdown rehearsal Friday and traveled to Washington for a meeting with Vice President Dan Quayle.

The practice session, intended to mimic the 24 hours leading to an actual launch, went smoothly despite two computer glitches that delayed the end of the countdown, NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said.

Soon after wrapping up the rehearsal, the five astronauts boarded their T-38 jets for a flight to Washington. White House officials said Quayle planned to meet commander Don Williams and his crewmates Saturday at breakfast. Williams comes from Quayle's home state of Indiana.

"Mr. Quayle expressed a desire to say hello to the crew sometime before we fly," Williams told reporters Thursday.

OIL

The Petroleum Industry Security Council set up a "business," bought and sold oil in a campaign that resulted in the indictment and conviction of 22 individuals, he said, who represented the "whole spectrum of our industry from the pumper to the independent producer."

He said the theft was all done with paperwork, falsified gauges, falsified reports and stealing oil before it was measured.

He urged oil companies to establish strong internal policies, and accounting and stock measurement procedures, and to audit them regularly. He attributed much of the problem to companies "putting in a system we think we can depend on and not going back and auditing it.

"Ninety eight percent of the oil companies do not routinely audit stock or measurement and accounting procedures," he said.

He suggested companies establish the policies now, while activity is slow.

"When the industry get rolling, it could be damaging," he said. "We hold too dearly to the 'good neighbor' way of doing business."

In addition, she proposed streamlining the state audit, comptroller and state treasurer's office by coordinating computer services to save overhead.

Ms. Hutchison also pledged to recommend strict limits for the amount of debt created each year and to require standards of reasonable cost for each state bond issue.

Ms. Hutchison has a law degree from the University of Texas. Her political experience includes an unsuccessful run for Congress in 1982.

The only other announced candidate for treasurer is Karen Friend of Houston, a Democrat.

Harris County Treasurer Nikki Van Hightower, also of Houston, is considered a likely candidate for treasurer in the Democratic primary.

Condo trial declared mistrial

LUBBOCK (AP) — The judge in the trial of D.L. "Danny" Faulkner and six others declared a mistrial Friday after the jury announced it was deadlocked in the largest savings and loan fraud case to go to trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Terry Hart said the case will be retried.

Jurors deliberated 17 days on the 88-count indictment, which would have required them to come up with 352 separate verdicts.

"I know we're disappointed a verdict has not been reached in this case," U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings told jurors. "But I'm not disappointed in your performance."

Faulkner showed no emotion as the mistrial was announced, but 10 minutes later he fought back tears as he talked to reporters in the courthouse lobby.

"I think it's been really hard on us," Faulkner said. "I want to be remembered for the nice things I've done, not this."

Co-defendant and former Garland Mayor James L. Toler put his arm around his wife as he walked out of the courtroom and said, "Let's go to the showers. Get ready to fight again."

Faulkner and Toler are accused of heading a conspiracy to steal $135 million from Empire Savings and Loan Association of Mesquite and four other S&Ls in Texas and Arkansas in 1982 and 1983.

The other defendants, former Empire chairman Spencer H. Blain Jr.; former S&L employee Paul Arlin Jensen; former real-estate salesman Kenneth Cansler and land appraisers Arthur Formann and Paul Douglas Tannehill, also are accused of conspiracy.

Several jurors frowned as they entered the courtroom for Cummings' mistrial announcement. The cordial atmosphere that was evident during the six months of testimony had dissolved.

Hart asked Cummings to poll the jurors, but the request was denied. Hart later told reporters that the jury's notes to the judge indicated they were deadlocked 11-1 in favor of conviction.

Cummings continued to enforce a gag order on the jury.

"They couldn't agree on one (verdict)?" Hart said incredulously in an interview after the jury had been dismissed.

Mike Fawer, Towler's attorney, called the mistrial "an absolutely crushing defeat for the government."

"The government took its best shot, and they have not been able to win a case under the best possible circumstances," Fawer said. "And I think they should leave these people in peace and let them get on with their lives."

The indictment charged the seven men with defrauding the savings and loans through fanciful real-estate appraisals and sham land transactions along Interstate 30 in Garland, east of Dallas. Prosecutors said the defendants lavished themselves with private jets, expensive watches and even a $4 million mansion with the money they borrowed ostensibly to buy land and condominiums.

BAKKER

But when asked by prosecutor Deborah Smith if she would have approved a $500,000 bonus for Bakker, Ms. Spencer said: "If everybody else agreed with it, I would have."

She said she trusted Bakker to inform board members of the ministry's financial condition. "I just trusted him, period," she said.

She said she was never informed about the extent of an Internal Revenue Service investigation and church secretary Jessica Hahn's threat of a civil lawsuit over her sexual encounter with Bakker.

She said she learned of the lawsuit threat in March 1987 when Bakker resigned from the ministry over the scandal.

Prosecutors accuse Bakker of diverting millions of dollars in PTL money to fund his lavish lifestyle. If found guilty of the 24 counts against him, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined more than $5 million.

In later testimony Friday, a Los Angeles lawyer said PTL officials were eager to reach a settlement with Ms. Hahn and wanted to keep the matter quiet.

Scott Furstman, who said he was contacted by Richard Dortch, PTL's executive vice president, testified that Ms. Hahn's complaint sought $12 million.

Furstman said he saw many problems with the complaint, but "Rev. Dortch indicated he still had a strong desire to settle. Dortch was very concerned that the matter did not become public."

A deal finally struck between Dortch and Ms. Hahn included a $115,000 payment to Ms. Hahn, with $150,000 in a trust account for her. The trust was never set up, but the money was deposited in a money market account.

The trust fund money eventually was returned to the trustee in PTL's bankruptcy proceedings in July 1988.

Former PTL board member Aimee Cortese testified that Bakker never told the board about the $265,000 paid to Ms. Hahn in exchange for her silence.

Mrs. Cortese, a minister at the Crossroads Tabernacle Church in New York City, recalled being asked by Dortch to assist him in paying Ms. Hahn a total of $14,000 in 1984.

Mrs. Cortese testified that Dortch called her into his office and spelled out the details of Bakker's sexual liaison. She said she later handed over $2,000 to Ms. Hahn on one occasion and $12,000 on a later date.

She recalled a comment Bakker made to her regarding Hahn. "He said she wasn't what she said she was as far as being a virgin," Mrs. Cortese said, recalling Bakker's words. "He said she was a woman of the world."

Mrs. Cortese said she never would have voted for the bonuses had she known about PTL's financial condition. "It didn't make sense," she said. "How could you give away bonuses while you were floating (checks)?"

Former PTL controller Dana Caldwell testified that PTL had a poor debt-to-asset ratio during Bakker's tenure, at one time at 1-to-3. PTL was nearly $37 million in debt when Bakker resigned in March 1987, with assets of about $9 million.

GABOR

Two people who were driving by at the time of the incident testified later Friday that Miss Gabor got out of her Rolls-Royce, profane words were exchanged and the actress slapped the officer.

Kramer, who testified on Thursday that Miss Gabor cursed, spit at and slapped him, left the stand Friday morning after cross-examination by the defense.

Kramer was asked if he had worn a "Free Zsa Zsa" T-shirt at his recent 38th birthday party and Kramer said he had.

Asked if it got hot under his helmet, Kramer said it did.

"Does it ever fry your brain?" Graysen asked, getting a "no comment" from the officer and an objection from the prosecutor.

The defense also asked the judge to prevent Miss Gabor's address from being shown in court and the judge agreed, asking the news media not to use it. Pictures of an enlarged courtroom copy of her drivers license bearing her address had already been published.

Miss Gabor's diatribe Friday began at the curb, where she alighted from her Rolls-Royce in a black-and-white Anne Klein trouser outfit and a furious mood.

"This man is the biggest liar and the Police Department is the biggest liar in the world," Miss Gabor charged, ignoring pleas from her attorney reminding her of the gag order on principals in the case.

"The officer's a liar and the district attorney's a liar. Every word of it is a lie. I was there," she said.

"He's a vulgar policeman and he's a liar," she said.

Prosecution witness Mark Kwiatkowski said Miss Gabor was bent over the hood of her Rolls and handcuffed. He said earlier she was bent over the trunk. Asked about the discrepancy, he said he was apparently suffering "automotive dyslexia."

City cancels meeting of group that advocates homosexuality

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The city canceled a meeting by a group advocating sex between men and boys after citizens complained Friday and anti-pornography leaders condemned the gathering planned at a public building.

Kevin Moriarty, city director of human resources, said the city canceled the Saturday meeting by Fast Forward Foundation at the Barbara Jordan Community Center because the purpose of the gathering was misrepresented to the city.

City officials were under the impression that the conference was on sex and AIDS education, Moriarty said.

"I think it's a matter of adequate representation by an organization coming to the city asking to use a city facility," he said.

City officials said callers from throughout San Antonio complained. Anti-pornography groups had threatened to protest the meeting.

Foundation representative Jim Eggeling said the conference was to feature a speech by Chris Farrell, editor of the Bulletin, and would deal with the "problem of boys who love men. This is in light of the AIDS problem."

A flier promoting the conference invited members of the New York-based North American Man-Boy Love Association.

Part of the conference would be devoted to "possibilities for NAMBLA-centered activism, particularly in South Texas," the flier states.

Eggeling could not be reached for comment Friday afternoon on the city's decision.

"We think the taxpayers deserve to know why an organization promoting illegal activities would be allowed to use a city-owned and funded center as a meeting site," Teresa Weaver, director of Citizens Against Pornography, said after it was learned the meeting was scheduled.

City officials had said excluding the group from using the community center would violate its legal rights to free speech and equal protection.

"We can't prohibit any one group from using a public facility," Assistant City Attorney Hollis Young said Thursday.

The city of San Antonio does not charge a fee for using the center and has no policy to exclude certain groups.

Debbie Wyrick, the community center official who accepted the meeting reservation, said she did not realize the Man-Boy Love group was involved.

"It's a community center — it's there for anybody to use it," Ms. Wyrick said. "We don't have any kind of policy, because this has never arisen before."

Ms. Weaver had said her anti-pornography group might demonstrate against the meeting.

Susan Weddington, who represents Texans for Better Health, said her organization was opposed to the meeting but had no definite plans for a public demonstration.

Prosecutor in sniping attack says he has testimony from co-defendant

MARFA (AP) — The prosecutor in the upcoming murder trial in connection with the November 1988 Colorado Canyon sniping attack has obtained testimony of one of a Mexican co-defendants and evidence held by Mexican authorities, the town's newspaper reported this week.

While the Dallas team defending Eduardo Pineda-Rodriguez was filing subpoenas, 83rd State Judicial District Attorney Richard Barajas and Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson were in Chihuahua City, Mexico meeting with the Chihuahua state attorney general, The Marfa Independent and The Big Bend Sentinel reported.

Pineda-Rodriguez is charged in the shooting death of Michael Heffley and also faces two attempted murder charges in connection with the wounding of Heffley's wife, Jamie, and former Terlingua River guide James Wayne Burr.

Rodriguez-Pineda, 17, is a legal Mexican resident alien from Redford. He is being held at the Presidio County Jail in Marfa on $125,000 bond.

Mexican law officials arrested Julio Cesar Hernandez, 16, a juvenile; Alfredo Hernandez-Bejarano, 16, a juvenile; and Maurilio Montoya-Rodrigues, 8; all of El Mulato, Mexico.

A pretrial hearing in the case is set for Sept. 28 and 29; jury selection is set for Sept. 29 and the trial is scheduled to begin Oct. 2.

Barajas said he negotiated with Chihuahua State Attorney General Jose Miller Hermosillo to obtain the testimony and evidence.

"I did what the (U.S.) State Department said couldn't be done," Barajas told the Marfa Independent.

The State Department told Barajas his chances of opening up a dialogue with Mexican officials were slim and advised him to invoke obscure treaties when he talked with the authorities.

"I invoked the treaty of Carta Blanca," Barajas told the newspaper. Barajas met with Hermosillo last week. He said his ability to speak Spanish helped him.

Defense attorney Michael Rodgers is expected to seek to quash the search warrant used to arrest Rodriguez-Pineda at his Redford residence because he said it was obtained by the Border Patrol to search for illegal aliens not to arrest a murder suspect.

But Barajas told The Marfa Independent that the search warrant was legal because the suspect violated U.S. immigration laws when he crossed illegally into Mexico.

City employee uses public funds to take visitors to topless bar, newspaper says

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Civic Center director says taking visitors to a popular topless bar at city expense was necessary sometimes to lure conventions.

In a copyright story published Friday, the Houston Post reported that Gerard J. "Jordy" Tollett used a corporate credit card 13 times since November at Rick's topless bar — spending $2,155.14 in all.

Tollett defended the practice of entertaining some male clients at Rick's, a well-known topless bar in west Houston. The bar has plush chairs, reserved tables and a dress code for patrons.

"I knew how people would look at it," he told the Post. "It was one of those things I knew would crop up, and it has, and I'm sorry about it.

"I wish I'd never gone there and put them on my expenses," he said. "Unfortunately, Rick's just happens to be something that's very well-known. They (clients) wanted to go there. I couldn't say, 'You can't go there.'"

The tab at Rick's was part of an overall $13,987 Tollett has spent on entertainment since November, usually at the city's best-known restaurants.

Tollett, appointed by Mayor Jim McConn in 1981, is paid $55,000 to oversee a $26 million budget. He is in charge of the George R. Brown Convention Center, the Wortham Performing Arts Center and other arts and convention-oriented buildings.

Dan Jones, an aide to Mayor Kathy Whitmire, defended the practice but said he didn't think the mayor had known about it.

"When conventions come to town, we have to give them whatever legally they demand," Jones said.

Tollett and others in the business, he said, "have to sell to the people who are buying, and they don't go to museums. We wish they would, but they don't. My basic reaction is 'so what.'"

Soviet politician calls for ouster of leaders

DALLAS (AP) — Maverick Soviet politician Boris N. Yeltsin called Friday for the ouster of five members of the Politburo, including his chief antagonist, Agriculture Commissioner Yegor Ligachev.

Yeltsin, former chief of the Moscow Communist Party before running afoul of Mikhail S. Gorbachev, said the change in the U.S.S.R.'s 12-member ruling body is necessary "in order to reduce the pressure on Gorbachev from the right, which is preventing him from acting more decisively."

Speaking through a translator, Yeltsin said a 28th Extraordinary Party Congress should be called "very soon" to re-elect the Central Committee "and thereby remove the conservative elements in the Central Committee and at the same time get rid of the conservatives in the Politburo.

"There are five people in the Politburo who have got to be removed," Yeltsin said. "They'll never go of their own accord. They're too fond of their positions, with the privileges which are associated to it. The only way you can get them out is like an ejections seat in a fighter plane: you have to find someone who'll push the button."

In a brief news conference following the speech, Yeltsin identified four of those he would like removed: Ligachev, a former Party theoretician; Viktor M. Chebrikov, chairman for legal-judicial policies; Vitaly Vorotnikov, president of the Russian Federation; and Vladimir Shcherbitsky, Ukrainian Party chief.

"Let the (new) Central Committee decide" the fifth member, said Yeltsin, elected to the new Soviet parliament and the Supreme Soviet after his dumping by Gorbachev.

Yeltsin worked the crowd of about 1,200 people at Dallas' posh Fairmont Hotel like a veteran U.S. politician, cracking Texas jokes and shaking hands with students after the speech.

He even posed for pictures in the cowboy hat given him by the Dallas Council on World Affairs.

The stop is the latest on a multi-city tour of the United States arranged by the Esalen Institute Soviet-American exchange program.

Earlier stops included New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Indianapolis. He was scheduled to be in Houston today for a tour of the Johnson Space Flight Center arranged by Vice President Dan Quayle, before heading to Miami and then back to the Soviet Union.

Originally scheduled for two weeks, the trip was cut short so Yeltsin could return to Moscow for a special meeting to discuss ethnic unrest in Soviet republics.

"I have managed to encounter virtually the whole profile of American society, if you can say that, starting from the homeless on the streets of New York, up to President Bush," said Yeltsin, who met with Bush briefly Tuesday during a longer meeting with national security adviser Brent Scowcroft.

"People no longer seem to feel that the Soviet Union is the major source of evil in the world," said Yeltsin. His own opinion of the United States has changed "for the better" during his visit.

As in earlier stops, Yeltsin called for more privatization of the Soviet economy and said a popular revolution could take hold unless improvements in the standard of living are made within about a year.

Worker lied on form in order to buy rifle, police say

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A printing plant worker disabled by mental illness was able to legally buy the AK-47 assault rifle he used to kill seven former co-workers without revealing his mental problems, authorities said Friday.

Police said Joseph T. Wesbecker was armed with several semiautomatic weapons and hundreds of rounds of ammunition Thursday morning as he went from floor to floor at the Standard Gravure Corp.

Wesbecker killed seven people and injured 13 before killing himself. Three of the injured were in critical condition Friday.

Standard Gravure employees met with grief counselors when they returned to work Friday morning and several hundred later attended a Mass at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Assumption.

President Bush on Friday lamented the loss of life in the rampage, but said he still opposes legislation to ban possession of such weapons.

Bush in March banned the import of foreign-made assault rifles into the United States, including the Chinese-made AK-47. Howeer, possession of the weapon is not a federal offense and Bush has taken no steps toward proposing curbs on U.S. manufacture of such weapons.

Wesbecker bought the AK-47 on May 1 at Tilford's Gun Sales in Louisville, said Police Chief Richard Dotson.

Gun shop owner Jack Tilford said Wesbecker answered all eight questions properly on the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms gun purchase form.

"He passed all the tests and obligations for purchasing firearms," Tilford said Friday.

One of the eight questions asked: "Have you ever been adjudicated mentally defective or have you ever been committed to a mental institution?"

The form shows Wesbecker answered 'no' to that question. Tilford noted that gun shop owners have no way to check the validity of answers to that question.

Lt. Jeff Moody, police homicide commander, has said that Wesbecker had spent time — voluntarily — in mental institutions, including Our Lady of Peace in Louisville. Police would not reveal when he had been hospitalized.

Wesbecker, 47, was a pressman at the plant until the company placed him on permanent disability leave last year because of mental illness, police said.

Relatives told police that Wesbecker was a manic depressive who had attempted suicide three times.

Bill Curley, agent in charge of the Louisville ATF office, said federal law prohibits firearms purchases only by people who have been committed to a mental health facility under court order.

Moody said four other guns were found during a search of Wesbecker's home, as well as the Feb. 6 issue of Time magazine turned open to a detailed article on similar shootings across the United States in the past two years.

Bush, during a interview with out-of-town reporters, was asked about Thursday's rampage.

"It is terrible and the loss of human life is horrible. But I have seen no evidence that a law banning a specific weapon is going to guard against it ...," he said. "If you have somebody who is deranged, and I don't want to prejudice this poor soul, but if he was deranged, I'm afraid you're going to have incidents like this."

Standard Gravure officials hired 15 counselors to help workers when they returned to the plant Friday morning.

"All of these people can be classified as victims," said Mark Ahearn, vice president of development for Seven Counties Services. "We don't need people holding back their pain. Swallowing it won't do them any good."

Pressman Tom Noonan said the workers were split up into groups, with some receiving one-on-one counseling.

"You just vented your feelings," Noonan said.

Outside the three-story building, some workers talked to reporters.

"I'm thinking seriously about looking somewhere else for another job. My nerves are shot," said pressman Steve Pate. "If I go back in there, I'll be waiting for someone else to do the same thing and I can't handle that."

Forklift operator Bernard Williams said he was going to take a week's vacation.

"I'm not ready to come back because of everything that's happened. Things like this could happen again," Williams said. "I just don't feel like I can go in there and work.

"There are a lot of workers who have been traumatized by this. It's a shame that management treats people like dogs. They should treat employees like human beings instead of just a number."

Company officials were in meetings Friday and could not be reached for comment. They scheduled a news conference for later Friday.

Many of the workers joined several of the victims' families at an hour-long Mass conducted by Archbishop Thomas Kelly.

"All of us gather in deep, profound sorrow. We come together to pray for those who are suffering pain and grief," Kelly said during the service attended by about 300 people.

Three of the wounded were in critical condition Friday at Humana Hospital-University of Louisville, including one man shot in the chest and leg who was back in surgery Friday afternoon.

The bloodshed started in the plant's executive offices on the third floor, moved down to the basement, then up to the first floor.

Wesbecker reportedly had made threats against the company, which prints newspaper inserts and Sunday newspaper supplements, but Standard Gravure President Michael Shea said he did not know of any threats.

Wesbecker's weapons included the AK-47, two MAC-11 semiautomatic machine pistols, a .38-caliber handgun, a 9mm automatic pistol and a bayonet, said Dotson. Wesbecker carried a duffel bag full of ammunition.

The two MAC-11s were purchased in February, also at Tilford's.

Wesbecker was divorced twice in the last 11 years. He and his first wife had two sons, 22 and 26. Wesbecker and his second wife, Brenda, were also divorced, but they had been living together since 1987, Moody said.

Oil company pioneer dies

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Dean A. McGee, one of the founders of the Kerr-McGee Corp., died Friday at Baptist Medical Center, hospital officials said.

McGee, 85, was a pioneer in the offshore oil drilling industry that helped elevate Kerr-McGee to a Fortune 500 company. He and the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr were founders of the company that bears their names.

Neither Kerr-McGee nor the hospital would release the cause of death.

McGee was vice president of Kerr-McGee Oil Industries Inc. when he backed a plan to construct the nation's first offshore oil derrick and platform 10 miles into the Gulf of Mexico in 1947.

Oil began to flow from that first well Nov. 15, 1947. It was plugged in 1984 after producing 1.4 million barrels of crude and 307 million cubic feet of natural gas.

"It didn't take long for other companies to get out there," McGee said in a 1987 interview.

McGee became president and chief executive officer of Kerr-McGee in 1954 and became chairman in 1963. He retired as chairman and chief executive officer in May 1983. He then became chairman emeritus of the executive committee.

McGee continued to be active, serving as treasurer last year of the initiative petition drive to limit the length of legislative sessions.

McGee, who was born in Humboldt, Kan., had received the highest awards of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the American Petroleum Institute, the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers, and the National Petroleum Hall of Fame.

Of his many civic achievements, he said he was most proud of his part in developing the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

Funeral services are scheduled Monday at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Oklahoma City.

Children walking home from school hit by car

BOSTON (AP) — A car struck a group of children on their way home from school Friday, injuring nine people, three of them critically, police said.

Witnesses said the children were struck as they stood on the median of a road. They said a car ran a stop sign, striking a station wagon that slammed into the children.

Five children were taken to Children's Hospital, where three were listed in critical condition, and two in fair condition. Two other children were taken to Boston City Hospital, where they were in serious condition.

Officials said two adults, one bystander and one riding in a vehicle, were also injured. The extent of their injuries was not known.

"I'm hoping I can get to sleep tonight. I've never seen anything this bad," said Adell Jackson, 30, who said she was on her way to pick up her son from a nearby school when she saw the accident.

She said the children were on a median strip when the car struck them.

"That's when the kids went up in the air," she said.

Kristi Kienholz, a spokeswoman at Children's Hospital, said the injured students ranged in age from 7 to 11.

Police Capt. Paul Farrahar said the driver of the car which ran the stop sign was issued a summons.

Long-haired man wins case

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A man banned from a bowling tournament because his hair was too long has been awarded $3,000 in damages by the St. Paul Human Rights Commission.

The commission voted unanimously Wednesday night to uphold Joe Big Bear's discrimination complaint against the Amateur Bowler's Tour, a national organization that conducts local bowling tournaments.

Big Bear, 35, of St. Paul, wanted to bowl in a tournament at St. Paul's Midway Bowl in November.

The Human Rights Commission ordered the organization to pay him $1,000 in compensatory damages and $2,000 in punitive damages. The organization also was ordered to pay $1,300 in attorney's fees and costs of the investigation. In addition, it must change its rules and remove the discriminatory language.

Scott Miller, local director of the Amateur Bowler's Tour, had no comment Thursday. His attorney, Don Horton, had argued at the July hearing that the organization should be free to set its own rules on grooming.

The organization has 30 days to appeal.

Dead pharmacist indicted

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An attorney said he was startled to learn about the indictment of a client on drug charges. The client died in May.

Mark Klugheit said he read Thursday in The Philadelphia Inquirer of the indictment of pharmacist Sheldon M. Markind for allegedly trafficking in prescription drugs.

Klugheit said that the Drug Enforcement Administration had investigated Markind for three years. When Markind died of a heart attack May 18, Klugheit said, he notified the federal authorities but prosecutors never returned his calls.

"I had assumed there was no further interest in the matter," Klugheit said Thursday. He said he called the U.S. Attorney's Office to tell them the man they planned to prosecute was dead.

J. Alvin Stout, one of the federal prosecutors handling the case, said that Klugheit's calls earlier this year had not been relayed to him.

"And we never received anything written about the death," Stout said.

Georgia association decides not to disbar ex-lawmaker

ATLANTA (AP) — The State Bar of Georgia has agreed not to push for disbarment of former Rep. Pat Swindall, and he has accepted temporary suspension of his law license during appeal of federal perjury convictions.

C. David Butler, an attorney who is serving as special master in the bar association's disbarment case against Swindall, said Friday that lawyers for the two sides agreed to the deal Thursday.

Butler said he will submit the agreement to the state Supreme Court, which must approve it, as soon as the paperwork is complete.

"After the (Swindall's) appeal has run its course, I will conduct a hearing to see what should be done," Butler said.

Swindall, a Republican, was convicted by a U.S. District Court jury in June of nine counts of lying to a federal grand jury in a money-laundering case. Swindall had been called to testify to the grand jury about his negotiations for a home loan from an undercover agent posing as a money launderer.

Swindall, maintaining his innocence, has appealed the conviction to the 11th U.S. Circuit.

Butler said it was his understanding that Swindall is not practicing law.

Swindall, then a virtual political unknown, defeated Rep. Elliot Levitas in 1984 to represent suburban Atlanta's 4th District.

New AIDS test provides results in 10 minutes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A simple, 10-minute test expected to be licensed later this year uses colors to tell patients if they are infected with the AIDS virus — white for good health and blue for medical tragedy.

The test, now undergoing trials at nine centers, will enable people worried about AIDS virus exposure to be tested within minutes at their doctor's office, instead of having to wait to hear from a distant laboratory.

"It provides a new means for patients to learn of their AIDS status and still retain anonymity," said Jarel R. Kelsey, president of Murex Corp., a Norcross, Ga., firm that developed the test. "Once this method is widely available, it will encourage more people to determine their status."

Presently, a test for the AIDS virus requires that blood be drawn and then sent to a laboratory. Patients must then wait in suspense to find out if they have contracted the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS.

"That can take a number of days sometimes," said Kelsey.

Concern about whether the test information will be kept confidential and the long wait for results discourage some people from being tested for AIDS, even though they know they are at risk for the disease, he said.

The new test is called SUDS, for "single use diagnostic system." It consists of a small plastic disk, slightly thicker than a camera lens cap, that is filled with an absorbant material. A cone-shaped indention on top leads down to a small hole that exposes the absorbant material.

A SUDS test starts with a blood sample obtained from a simple finger stick. Two drops of serum, the clear fluid in blood, are separated from the sample and then combined with two reactant solutions. The mixture is poured into the cone of the test cartridge.

Inside the tester, the sample mixture is absorbed and pulled through a color reactant. If a dot on the bottom of the disk remains white, there is no AIDS virus. A blue dot means an AIDS infection.

Kelsey said the system works through the use of microscopic latex beads that are coated with proteins that react to AIDS antibodies. An antibody is a molecule in the blood produced by the body's immune system to attack specific invaders, such bacteria or virus. The proteins used in SUDS react to antibodies created by the immune system in response to both the outer membrane and the core of the HIV virus.

SUDS is being tested at selected doctor's offices, sexual disease clinics, hospitals and blood banks. The trials started in July and more than 5,000 tests have been conducted.

"The trials so far have shown an average accuracy rate of 99.8 percent," said Kelsey. "Any specimen that has evidence of AIDS antibody has been detected by the system so we are really achieving levels of 100 percent sensitivity."

Clinical trials of SUDS end in October and the Food and Drug Administration is expected to approve a license for the test later in the fall.

Although the SUDS test is very simple to conduct, Kelsey said it will not be sold for home use.

"Everybody is aware that exposure to the HIV is a terminal condition," he said. "Having that information revealed without counseling immediately available could be a taumatic experience."

Someday, he said, when drugs are developed that turn AIDS from a universally fatal disease into one that can be treated or cured, then the SUDS test possibly could be used at home.

$7.7 billion military construction bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, deliberating less than an hour, approved a $7.7 billion military construction bill Friday that eliminates President Bush's request for work on bases in South Korea and the Philippines.

"The best way to make our defense dollar go further is to secure a more equitable burden sharing from our allies," Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommitte on military construction, said prior to the chamber's overwhelming approval of the bill.

The vote was 93-1 with Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., the lone dissenter.

Overall, the bill, covering the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, provides $1.3 billion less than this year's level for military construction and about $300 million less than Bush had requested. The Senate blueprint also differs from the House version, which totals $8.7 billion, including $500 million for base closings that the Senate has put in the separate defense appropriations bill.

Members of the Senate and the House will meet later this month to fashion a compromise.

Prior to the vote, Sasser told his colleagues that uncertainity regarding the level of U.S. forces overseas led to major cuts in the legislation.

"This bill provides for no new military construction on the Korean Peninsula. Due to disputes and discussions, it's unwise to move forward with any new construction," Sasser said.

The legislation cuts $85.5 million from the $86.3 million Bush requested for South Korea. The House earmarked $74.2 million for construction there.

Several members of Congress have called for reductions in the 43,000 U.S. personnel stationed in South Korea.

Sens. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., on Thursday proposed a reduction of 3,000 troops during committee consideration of the defense spending bill, but later withdrew their amendment. The lawmakers indicated they would introduce the measure when the full Senate took up the bill.

The United States spends $2.6 billion a year to maintain its troops in South Korea.

Sasser said the decision to cut all $40.8 million the president requested for the Philippines was based on upcoming negotiations on a new treaty to replace the Military Bases Agreement.

The U.S.-Philippines pact under which the United States leases Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base will expire in September 1991.

Philippine President Corazon Aquino has refused to say whether she favors keeping the U.S. bases, but a Philippine Senate resolution introduced last month seeks to close the bases.

Fast-food chicken, fish often loaded with fat

BOSTON (AP) — If you think a fast-food chicken sandwich is a healthy alternative to a hamburger, think again. A report published Friday says typical fast-food chicken and fish is just as bad — and sometimes worse — than burgers and fries. By the time they are cooked, coated and fried, they are loaded with fat.

The report by the Massachusetts Medical Society notes that folks often choose a chicken sandwich or nuggets in the mistaken belief that these foods are better for them than beef.

"Many people are quite surprised to find that the total fat in a single hamburger may be 13 grams but six chicken nuggets may have 20 grams of fat," said Connie Roberts.

"In contrast, a fish sandwich, by the time it's coated and has a slice of cheese and sauce, is up to 25 grams of fat."

Put another way, a fast-food chicken patty sandwich contains as much fat as 1½ pints of ice cream.

Roberts, a Brigham and Women's Hospital dietitian who wrote the report, said fast-food chains should give consumers more information about what they are eating. Her report published in the New England Journal of Medicine recommends that the chains:

■ Reveal the type and quantity of fat in food, as well as the amount of protein, vitamins and minerals.

■ Provide printed menus for people who want to restrict their intake of salt, calories or fat.

■ Identify the nutrient content of items on salad bars, especially such selections as potato salad and dressings.

■ Offer such alternatives as low-fat or skim milk, margarine, low-fat salad dressings and whole-grain buns.

"I find that my clients and patients are very well aware of the recommendation to include more fish and chicken in their diets," she said. "In their natural state, they are indeed much lower in saturated fat and total fat than red meats. Unfortunately, what we forget when the order is placed is the method of preparation that goes into chicken sandwiches and chicken nuggets."

In fairness to the fast-food industry, the report notes that nutrient-poor, fat-filled food also can be found at home, in high-priced restaurants and in school cafeterias. However, because so many people eat fast food — one-fifth of all Americans every day — the medical profession should be concerned about its effect on health and nutrition, the report said.

The report noted that in general, fast food is high in fat, salt and protein but low in fiber, vitamins and other nutrients.

Caffeine may irritate symptoms of PMS

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Women who ingest even moderate amounts of caffeine appear to be more susceptible to premenstrual syndrome, an Oregon State University researcher says.

A study by Annette Rossignol, associate professor of public health, showed that women who drink half a cup to four cups of tea a day were twice as likely to experience PMS. When the caffeine intake was increased to 4½ to eight cups a day, the incidence of PMS rose nearly tenfold.

Rossignol noted the tea used in the study contained less caffeine than would be found in a cup of brewed coffee or in some soft drinks.

PMS, which occurs in the second half of the menstrual cycle, can cause depression, fatigue, irritability, anxiety, headaches, swelling or tenderness of the breasts and craving for sweet or salty foods.

The cause of PMS is unknown, but it affects about 70 percent of women aged 18 and older, with 10 to 15 percent of the women experiencing severe or disabling symptoms, Rossignol said.

Rossignol said some researchers have suggested factors affecting PMS may include diet, hormonal imbalance, alcohol and tobacco use, oral contraceptives and lack of exercise.

Her research four years ago found a possible correlation between PMS and caffeine.

"One problem in studying caffeine and PMS is that unhealthy habits tend to cluster," she said. "People who drink a lot of caffeine-containing beverages may also smoke, drink alcohol, be prone to a lack of exercise or have poor dietary habits. It was difficult to isolate the caffeine factor in association with PMS."

She said she eliminated those factors in her latest research, when she co-directed a study of women nursing students and workers in a tea factory in rural areas of China.

"The women did not drink alcoholic beverages, they did not smoke, there was no coffee or cola in the rural area of China, they did not use oral contraceptives, and they exercised every day, riding their bikes to work," Rossignol said.

Results of Rossignol's study were published in the American Journal of Public Health in January.

Rossignol emphasized that caffeine may not cause PMS, but it may contribute to the onset of its symptoms or make them more severe.

"PMS is very difficult to measure because it affects women differently," she said. "There is no test for PMS."

Aspirin doses seem to cut men's risk of heart attacks

BOSTON (AP) — Regular doses of aspirin cut older men's risk of heart attacks in half, and the effects are especially striking in those who already have low cholesterol levels, researchers reported.

Although the study found that aspirin is effective in men older than 50, it turned up no evidence that it helps younger men.

A preliminary version of the research was widely publicized 1½ years ago when it showed a dramatic reduction in heart attacks among healthy men who took an aspirin every other day. Now doctors have released a more detailed analysis of the voluminous data.

The research, called the Physicians' Health Study, was directed by Dr. Charles H. Hennekens of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

While those at all cholesterol levels seemed to benefit from aspirin, the effects were greatest in those with total cholesterol below 160.

Overall, the study found that men who took a single aspirin every other day had a 44 percent reduction in their risk of heart attacks. The benefits were limited to those older than age 50, who cut their risk about in half.

"We have a clear-cut, conclusive benefit on reducing a first heart attack," said Hennekens.

He said people should not start taking regular aspirin without first consulting a doctor. In helping make a decision, doctors should consider their patient's other risk factors, such as blood pressure, cholesterol level and family history of heart disease.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Valentin Fuster and others from Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York wrote that "aspirin appears to be beneficial in the prevention of a first myocardial infarction (heart attack), at least in men over the age of 50."

The study was conducted on 22,071 male doctors. They were given packs of pills and randomly assigned to take aspirin, beta carotene or placebos. Although the aspirin part of the study is over, the project is continuing to see if regular use of beta carotene, a source of vitamin A found in food, reduces the cancer rate.

"Since the publication of our preliminary report," the researchers wrote, "74 percent of the participating physicians who were assigned to placebo have requested that their calendar packs be changed to aspirin."

The study also found that aspirin users were slightly more likely to have strokes, but the number was too small to be statistically meaningful.

There was no overall decrease in cardiovascular deaths among those taking asprin, but the study would have had to continue to the year 2000 or beyond to show any impact on mortality.

Princess Diana's brother to marry former model

LONDON (AP) — The high society wedding Saturday of Viscount Althorp and former model Victoria Lockwood will bring Prince Charles and, Princess Diana, sister of the groom, and an irresistible fund-raising opportunity to a quiet village church.

Princess Diana

The vicar doesn't plan to beg from the distinguished guests, but the press will be invited to help preserve the 13th century church associated with George Washington's ancestors.

"I've organized a darling little girl from the village with a bucket, so you can give a donation to the church restoration fund when you park your cars," public relations worker Carole Adams told the press at a pre-wedding briefing.

Organizing one girl with a bucket was the least of the preparations for Britain's wedding of the year, which will unite Viscount Althorp, 25-year-old brother of the Princess of Wales, and Miss Lockwood, 24, a former model from the west London suburb of Barnes.

Six pews were removed from the church to accommodate the 12-piece chamber orchestra and the choir from Magdalen College, Althorp's Oxford alma mater. The 50-minute afternoon ceremony is the biggest event the Rev. Norman Knibbs has seen in his 10 years at St. Mary's.

"Although the archbishop of Canterbury is conducting the service, I will be there with a clean surplice and say a few prayers," said Knibbs, who added that he had seen Charles, Viscount Althorp, at church "from time to time."

St. Mary's, with its tall beacon tower, has been the church of the Spencer family — Princess Diana's family — since 1508 when Sir John Spencer bought the 15,000-acre Althorp estate.

Laurence Washington, the great-great-great-grandfather of the first American president, was a cousin by marriage of the Spencers and lived on the estate until he died in December 1616 and was buried in the chancel near the church altar. Laurence's younger brother, Robert, also is buried in the church.

Their tombstones bear the Washington coat of arms with three stars over two horizontal bars. Knibbs said it is thought to have inspired the design of the American flag.

"We are hoping to sell sponsorship of replacement stones for $120 to the many Americans who come by the church to see the Washington graves after visiting the Althorp house, which is open to the public," the vicar said.

"Each year the moisture gets in and freezes, making the stones crumble and flake off," he explained.

So far, Knibbs has collected $400 of the $190,000 needed to preserve the church, which holds 300 people and overlooks the thatched roofs and farmlands of Great Brington, 66 miles northwest of London.

The Daily Telegraph estimated the wedding, reception and dance will cost $155,000. Althorp, who was nicknamed "Champagne Charlie" by the tabloids during his university years, is a correspondent for the NBC program "Today" and heir to an estimated $80 million fortune, including the Althorp estate.

He proposed to Miss Lockwood in July after a six-week romance.

Prince Charles, Diana and their oldest son, William, are attending the wedding service. Their younger son, Harry, will serve as one of two page boys who will wear costumes reproduced from an 18th century Joshua Reynolds portrait of an earlier Viscount Althorp, John Charles, as a little boy.

The two bridesmaids' cream silk and chiffon dresses were copied from an 18th century Thomas Gainsborough portrait of another Althorp ancestor, Lady Georgiana Spencer.

Man takes hostages on 8-hour taxi ride

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A gunman demanding morphine hijacked a taxi Friday and took two hostages on an eight-hour ride through Copenhagen before he was arrested, police and news reports said. No one was injured.

The 34-year-old hijacker, wielding a sawed-off shotgun, commandeered the cab, took the driver hostage and later forced a 27-year-old woman into the taxi, news reports said.

The man contacted police on radio, demanding morphine and a syringe, and said he planned to kill himself with an overdose. Newspaper reports said he was distraught over family problems.

Police followed the taxi at a discreet distance as it drove through the city streets for eight hours.

The ordeal ended when police promised to let the man go free and he released the hostages. He was later arrested in a Copenhagen apartment, they said.

Hotels to supply condoms

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hotels in a city north of the capital must provide condoms to guests under a new local law, the state-run news agency said Friday.

The Philippine News Agency said the ordinance imposes a 10-day jail sentence and a $4.50 fine for those who violate the law imposed in Angeles City, about 50 miles north of Manila. It is the home of the U.S.-run Clark Air Base.

The law was passed to prevent the spread of venereal disease. It also requires prostitutes to keep condoms handy at all times, the news agency said.

Drug laws to be amended

SINGAPORE (AP) — The government Friday announced plans to amend drug laws to mandate the death penalty for trafficking of opium, marijuana and cocaine.

" We have invested a tremendous amount of manpower, public money and energy in keeping out streets free of drugs. However, because of the worsening global situation on drugs, we have to be even more vigilant," Home Affairs Minister Shanmugam Jayakumar said in announcing the planned crackdown.

Alleged Colombian guerrillas arrested

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The army said Friday it arrested 28 suspected leftist guerrillas and accused them of carrying out terrorist acts with drug traffickers around the cocaine center of Medellin.

Four bombs exploded at banks in Bogota early Friday. No one was injured in the blasts and no one claimed responsibility, a police spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

In Canada, Colombians Jose Ali Galindo-Escobar and Fernando Augusto Mendoza-Jaramillo were ordered held for trial next month on charges of importing 1,100 pounds of cocaine. They were arrested and the drugs seized in April.

Their hearing in the New Brunswick town of Fredericton was held under tight security following the arrests Wednesday in Canada of four heavily armed men. Police said the four had a map of New Brunswick with a destination marked, but they would not say what the destination was.

U.S. officials said two of the four were Colombians, although all held Venezuelan passports.

The arrests in Colombia were announced in a communique from the 4th Army Brigade in Medellin, the site of almost daily bombings, shootings and arson attacks since the government and its cocaine cartels declared war on each other last month.

The United States has been helping Colombia in the crackdown, and Gen. Oscar Botero Restrepo, Colombia's defense minister, said Friday that Argentina would be sending "various airplanes."

However, he gave no details, and there was no immediate confirmation from Argentine officials.

The army said the 28 arrested belonged to the National Liberation Army, which is one of six leftist guerrilla groups operating in this South American country.

The communique did not say when the 28 were arrested or what specific "terrorist acts" they were accused of committing.

"We have succeeded in capturing an entire gang of bandits from the so-called National Liberation Army that together with narco-traffickers have been carrying out terrorist acts (around Medellin)," it said.

It would be unusual for leftist guerrillas to work with drug cartels.

Drug organizations here traditionally have considered guerrillas their enemies and have funded hit squads aimed at killing leftist sympathizers.

Drug traffickers also view the army-guerrilla confrontations in remote regions as getting in the way of their cocaine processing and shipping operations.

Since President Virgilio Barco decreed special emergency powers Aug. 18 to aid in the anti-narcotics fight, authorities here have been rounding up drug suspects and seizing bank accounts and property presumed linked to the traffickers.

The emergency measures temporarily suspend some constitutional guarantees and allow suspects to be held for eight days without being formally charged.

The bombings in Bogota were typical of those that plagued Medellin, 150 miles northwest of the capital, where a two-week curfew was suspended Thursday. Mayor Juan Gomez said the curfew was lifted because the city of 2 million had returned to "absolute normalcy."

The current crackdown started after drug gangs Aug. 18 assassinated the leading presidential candidate, Sen. Luis Carlos Galan, a foe of the traffickers.

Also Friday, a U.S. official in Bogota backed up a declaration made the day before by Botero Restrepo, who said there were no American military advisers in the country.

"The problem is the word 'advisers.' They aren't advisers. We have trainers and technicians," said the U.S. official, who spoke to foreign reporters on the condition of anonymity.

Arms case suspects may be linked to drug trade

EDMUNDSTON, New Brunswick (AP) — Four men with Venezuelan passports and an arsenal of weapons were charged with arms offenses Friday while investigators tried to determine whether they are linked to the Colombian drug trade.

A U.S. official said two of the four suspects arrested in this Canadian pulp-processing town on the north border of Maine are known to be Colombian.

The arrests Wednesday launched a flurry of speculation that the suspects came to this eastern Canadian province to interfere with a hearing Thursday for two Colombians suspected of cocaine trafficking.

On Friday, police led the four men into a provincial court in Edmundston, where they were charged with a variety of weapons offenses. A fifth man linked to the case was charged in Saint John.

"Innocent, innocent," one of the handcuffed men told reporters. "No speak English," said another.

Authorities have identified the four as Tito Sanchez, Euovio Manzano, Osvaldo Gonzales and Wilmer Ramon Zanabria. Court documents did not state their ages or hometowns.

All were being kept in custody for bail hearings set for Tuesday.

Canadian authorities said they were investigating whether the suspects had any connection with the Colombians accused of cocaine trafficking.

The hearing for those two was held Thursday in the provincial capital of Fredericton, 125 miles southeast of Edmundston.

When Mounted Police and Edmundston authorities arrested the four Wednesday, a search of their vehicles uncovered an Uzi submachine gun, Soviet and Israeli assault rifles and more than 3,000 rounds of ammunition. Also seized were six automatic pistols, a .22-caliber pistol, tear gas, a deactivated Japanese grenade and an electric zap gun used to knock people out.

However, no drugs were found.

Police said they also found a fifth passport, and that a fifth man was arrested Thursday who also had Venezuelan papers. Police said they seized two handguns at the scene.

The man, identified as 33-year-old William Jose Rodriguez of Caracas, was charged Friday in Saint John with possessing a restricted weapon. Authorities said he was expected to be charged later with an immigration offense.

Rodriguez was to remain in custody for a bail hearing Monday.

Bill d'Amours of the Canandian Immigration Department said the Venezuelan passports were sent to the Mounted Police forensic lab in Ottawa to check their validity.

In Washington, Frank Shults of the Drug Enforcement Administration said Friday that two of the four suspects are "known to be Colombians."

The agency sent several agents to Canada Friday to discuss the case with Canadian authorities, Shults said.

The United States and Colombia are in the midst of a crackdown on Colombian drug traffickers, who provide most of the cocaine sold in the States. The Mounted Police say Colombian drug cartels have been routing more drugs through the Maritime provinces because the United States has tightened up its borders.

Canadian authorities said it was not known how or when the suspects entered Canada.

Two of their vehicles had New York licenses, including one stolen plate, police said. The vehicle carrying most of the weapons had been rented in Fredericton.

The four were carrrying maps marking a destination in New Brunswick that police would not identify.

'Dogs take bite out of Mustangs

By BILL PRICE

Win number one in Davis Corley's head coaching career was a sweet victory to the Midland High mentor.

Not for himself, mind you, but for his Bulldogs. MHS claimed a hard-fought 21-15 win over Class 4A Andrews Friday at Memorial Stadium to put the 'Dogs at 1-1 for the season. Needless to say, Corley was elated.

"I just feel great. I'm excited for the kids more than I am for myself," he said. "It was a big win for them."

The Purple Pack was led by the senior combo of Will Sowders and Patrick Mowles, who combined for 189 of the Bulldogs' 244 total offensive yardage and a pair of touchdowns.

Mowles, 160-pound senior quarterback, capped a 67-yard drive on MHS' opening possession with a 39-yard scoring strike to Sowders, the 'Dogs' 190-pound senior fullback. Mowles also broke loose on runs of 40 and 16 yards in the drive.

But after the first score of the game, the Mustang defense shut MHS down as Midland's next five possessions were ended with four David Worley punts and a fumble.

"They made some defensive changes and our kids didn't adjust well. It's a credit to them. They did an excellent job of adjusting to what we hurt them with early," Corley said.

'Just too much Strambler' as Rebs shut down Del Rio

Rebel running back has career-high 261 yard performance in 38-0 win

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Editor

DEL RIO — It isn't known if Midland Lee running back Farris Strambler got a splash in the face with border water here Friday night before taking to the field against the Del Rio Rams, but whatever happened, it turned into a career night for the 190-pound senior.

Strambler rushed for a career high 261 yards and three touchdowns as Lee put an end to its nightmarish start of the 1989 football season with a 38-0 win over the Rams, a team that had some talent.

Strambler also caught a pass of seven yards to add to his total and was cheated out of a 34-yard gainer in the second half on a penalty.

In the fourth quarter, Strambler scored on a 51-yard run that saw him cut against the grain and avoid six would-be tacklers on the way to the goal. It may have been his all-time classic best run. For sure, the night was a classic for him.

And it couldn't have come at a better time, considering the fact that Lee dropped its opener last week to Killeen, 35-0.

"After what happened to us last week, this really feels good," said Strambler after learning of his 261 rushing yards. "I fumbled on the first drive and kind of got down on myself, but the coach said to forget about it and go out and keep running. I did.

"The touchdown in the fourth quarter, was nice, but I did have some linemen downfield to work behind. That helped a lot."

Lee's offense begin to click late in the first quarter after a slow start, but when it did kick into gear, it was high octane stuff.

Despite only 16 plays from scrimmage in the first half, the Reb offense had 198 yards rushing and 93 passing, including Strambler's 166 yards and two touchdowns on runs of 62 and 37 yards.

Ironically, it was the Rams who threantened the scoreboard first, quickly bringing back memories of Lee's slow start against Killeen.

Del Rio marched to the Lee eight-yard line before linebacker Steve Ruckman intercepted a Carlos Pacheco pass at the four. Lee quarterback Vince Henderson answered with a 93-yard bomb to John Valles two plays later and Lee was in high gear. Valles, who ignited the Lee offense against Odessa Permian last year, again was the inspiration for a huge Rebel charge.

"Catching that pass was like a dream come true," said Valles. "I think it really got us going."

Ruckman said, "I was having a flashback to the Killeen game when Del Rio was marching on us in the first quarter. This was the first game I've ever played linebacker and my first interception, so it was a thrill to come in that particular spot."

Lee then put 21 points in lights in the second period as Strambler raced for 62 on a sweep, Anthony Sims for 27 up the Ram gut after Chris Posey blocked a Ram punt, and Strambler's 37-yard TD that featured two stiff arms and a sideline waltz to paydirt.

Lee only scored 10 second half points, but Lee coach Earl Miller played a lot of people in the game. However, the Lee defense, which has been suspect early this year, held Del Rio to a minus-1 yard rushing in the second half. New defensive end Randy Brown was a key player while Mike Loftis and Randy Brice did a good job off the bench.

"I know Farris had a career night, but I'm really pleased with the defense. After you give up 35 points and come back with a shutout, you have to be pleased even if it is against the wind. And Del Rio isn't that bad. Maybe we are beginning to get the right people in the right spots," said Miller.

Both teams left the field at 1-1, but Del Rio coach Dan Neuse said, "I tried to tell everyone that Lee is a good football team, despite what they did against Killeen. And we saw one big reason why tonight. It was just too much Strambler."

All the Lee players wanted to know Strambler's rushing total after the game, which is a good sign for a team that relies a lot on one individual. It's still a team concept at Lee.

But the most touching moment came from tight end Greg Rich in the post-game lockerroom when he spoke to his teammates.

"It's been exactly one year since my Dad died, but I know he's in heaven and seeing the true Rebels tonight. He was one of our biggest fans," said Rich.

Stanton defensive tackle Richard Villa chases Coahoma quarterback Shane Walker.

Halfway home, Buffs fall again

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

STANTON — The Stanton Buffaloes played quite a first half against the Coahoma Bulldogs in non-district action here Friday.

Unfortunately for the Buffs, there had to be a second half.

After gaining only 10 yards total offense in the first half, Coahoma struck for three touchdowns in the final 14 minutes — while holding Stanton to 37 second-half yards in a 19-8 Bulldog win.

Stanton outgained the visitors 107-10 in the first half, but couldn't punch across the goal line after Jesse Montez burst over from five yards out and John Paul Barry added the two-point conversion run with 7:01 left in the first quarter. Montez' run capped a five-play, 31-yard drive that started when the Buffs' Lance Hall covered a fumbled punt with 9:43 left in the quarter..

After the touchdown, Tony Moses' PAT kick attempt was blocked, but the Buffs got a second chance when Coahoma was caught offside.

The Buffs continued to roll up moderate amounts of yardage through the first half, but Coahoma held when it needed to.

Meanwhile, tackle Richard Villa and safety Mike Graham were leading the Buff defense through a superb first-half performance. Coahoma didn't pick up a first down until the last minute of the half on a 26-yard pass that just did push the Bulldogs into positive yardage.

But the visitors outgained Stanton 80-7 in the third quarter to set the stage for a Buffalo massacre in the fourth period.

After running roughshod over the increasingly fatigued Buffs in the third quarter, Coahoma finally scored on a one-yard run by tailback Carlos Cervantes with 1:43 left in the third period. Cervantes led all rushers with 50 yards on 17 carries. Mike Hernandez covered a Barry fumble on the Stanton one to set up the score.

Coahoma took the lead on a one-yard sneak by quarterback Shane Walker with 6:37 left in the game. That touchdown was set up by Jeff Rawson's 56-yard punt return that got the Bulldogs out from near their own end zone and a fleaflicker pass from Walker to Rawson on which the latter almost scored.

The Bulldogs added an insurance touchdown on Cam Tovias' one-yard run with 1:58 left.

Stanton coach Dale Ruth said his eight two-way players may have fallen victim to fatigue late in the game.

"They got the momentum going and we didn't," Ruth said. "We didn't do anything different (than in the first half), they just got the momentum."

Coahoma mentor Steve Park said the Bulldogs' second-half improvement stemmed from better offensive line execution.

"The kids just made up their minds that they were going to do better in the second half," Park said. Coahoma uses two sophomores and a junior with no varsity experience on its offensive front.

Rookie throws two-hitter; Yanks lose fifth straight

Associated Press

Rookie Erik Hanson pitched a two-hitter for his first complete game and the Seattle Mariners extended their winning streak to four, beating New York 3-1 and sending the Yankees to their fifth straight loss.

Hanson, 7-5, walked two and struck out six for his third victory in four starts. He allowed only Mel Hall's single in the fourth inning and Roberto Kelly's home run in the eighth.

Darnell Coles put Seattle ahead 1-0 in the fifth with his 10th home run, a drive into the left field stands off Andy Hawkins, 14-14.

Seattle added two runs in the sixth when Greg Briley beat out an infield single, Jeffrey Leonard hit an RBI double and scored on Jay Buhner's single.

Kelly's homer, his ninth, was a high fly that barely sliced into the right-field seats.

White Sox 3, Angels 1

Melido Perez pitched a two-hitter and struck out 12 as the Chicago White Sox ended California's five-game winning streak, beating Jim Abbott and the Angels in the first game of a doubleheader.

The loss dropped third-place California 4½ games behind Oakland in the American League West.

Perez, 10-13, walked two in his first complete game of the season. He held the Angels hitless until Devon White got an RBI single with two outs in the sixth inning, and also allowed Brian Downing's two-out double in the seventh.

Abbott, 11-11, gave up three runs on seven hits in seven innings. Carlos Martinez doubled with one out in the second, advanced on a grounder and scored on Abbott's wild pitch.

The White Sox made it 2-0 in the fifth when Sammy Sosa led off with a bunt single, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on Gallagher's single. Carlton Fisk and Martinez opened the seventh with singles, Sosa walked and Karkovice blooped a run-scoring single for a 3-1 lead.

Mark McLemore drew a leadoff walk in the sixth, stole second and scored on White's single.

Blue Jays 5, Indians 2

George Bell and Ozzie Virgil hit home runs in the first inning and the Toronto Blue Jays stopped a three-game losing streak, defeating the Cleveland Indians.

Jimmy Key, 12-13, won for the fifth time in six starts for the first-place Blue Jays. Toronto began the day with 1½-game lead over Baltimore in the American League East.

Key gave up two runs on six hits in 5 2-3 innings. Tom Henke, the fourth Toronto pitcher, worked the ninth for his 17th save. Greg Swindell, 13-5, allowed four runs on eight hits in 4 2-3 innings.

Red Sox 7, A's 2

Roger Clemens pitched eight strong innings and the Boston Red Sox ended an eight-game losing streak, capitalizing on Oakland wildness to beat the Athletics.

Boston avoided its longest losing streak in 12 years. The Athletics began the day with a 3½-game lead over Kansas City in the American League West.

Clemens, 15-10, struck out seven, allowed seven hits and improved his career record to 2-6 over the A's, the only team with a winning mark against him.

Mike Moore, 17-10, lost for the fourth time in five starts. He has dropped five straight decisions to Boston.

Orioles 5, Royals 2

Craig Worthington singled home the tiebreaking run in the sixth inning and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Kansas City Royals in a meeting of second-place teams.

The Orioles won the opener of a three-game series and stayed 1½ games behind Toronto, which beat Cleveland 5-2, in the American League East. Kansas City remained 3½ games in back of Oakland, which lost to Boston 7-2, in the AL West.

Bob Milacki improved to 11-12 despite allowing two runners to reach base in five of the first seven innings. He gave up 11 hits and Gregg Olson relieved after a leadoff single in the ninth. Olson got his 26th save.

Twins 8, Tigers 4

Greg Gagne homered, doubled and drove in two runs and Kirby Puckett got two hits as the Minnesota Twins beat the Detroit Tigers for their fourth straight victory.

The Tigers, 19-55 on the road, have lost 13 of their last 14 road games.

Puckett leads the major leagues with 194 hits. He raised his average to .336, tied with Oakland's Carney Lansford for the American League lead.

Rick Aguilera, 2-4, allowed three runs on five hits in six innings. Tim Drummond pitched 2 2-3 scoreless innings for his first major-league save. Aguilera and Drummond each were acquired from the New York Mets in the trade for Frank Viola.

Rookie Brian Dubois, 0-3, gave up four runs on six hits in five innings.

Brewers 6, Rangers 2

Charlie O'Brien homered to start a six-run third inning, leading rookie Jaime Navarro and the Milwaukee Brewers past the Texas Rangers.

The Brewers won for the seventh time in eight games. They stayed six games behind Toronto in the American League East.

Navarro, 6-7, allowed only an unearned run and five hits through eight innings. He left after Steve Buechele and Pete Incaviglia led off the ninth with doubles, and Tony Fossas relieved.

Jamie Moyer, 4-7, lost for the seventh time in eight decisions.

O'Brien hit his fifth home run to start the third. Billy Spiers singled, Gary Sheffield walked and a single by Paul Molitor made it 2-0. Robin Yount walked to load the bases and Greg Vaughn also walked, finishing Moyer.

Chaps roughed up in Nebraska

From Staff Reports

LINCOLN, Neb. — Midland College opened its men's tennis season here Friday in what almost amounted to a dual meet with the University of Colorado. The Chaparrals are the only community college team playing in the three-day Husker Invitational that's being hosted by the University of Nebraska.

The Chaps were invited on the basis of their 1989 national junior college championship. And the Chaps found it was tough in their first day of action, especially with six of the Midland College players stepping onto courts for their first-ever collegiate experience.

"We had some good wins, but we also lost some tiebreakers and also had some service breaks we couldn't hold," said MC coach Joe Williams. "We knew this would be a rough way to open the season, but the competition is worth the trip."

The Husker Invitational is being played in eight singles flights and two combined doubles flights, with consolation rounds for first-round losers.

One match that Williams especially wanted to win was in doubles against former MC star Amine Boustani, now playing for Southwest Missouri State.

MC's Mohamed Ridaoui and Jerod White were up a service break, but couldn't close out the set. Boustani and Chris Gillis took the match 7-5, 6-2.

Another former Chaparral, Scott Randolph of Abilene, is now playing for the Huskers and may meet one of his ex-teammates before the tourney ends.

BULLDOGS

Inspired by the Andrews' defensive stronghold, the Pony offense racked up 205 first-half yards but came away but seven points to show for it when Dustin Dunaway scored from a yard away.

Andrews was on the MHS end of the field for much of the first half, but had drives falter three times inside the 'Dogs' 20-yard line.

"Penalties, turnovers and not scoring in four-down territory; it just killed us," said W.T. Stapler, Pony head coach. "When you are playing them and yourself, it's tough to win."

The Ponies allowed MHS to leap from the canvas in the second half, as the Purple Pack but back-to-back TD drives together and burned away much of ever-dwindling clock. James Lee began the second-half surge with a 10-yard dash to the end zone and Sowders earned his second TD of the game with a four-yard plunge.

Andrews refused to give up the ship, however, and gained new life when Mowles fumbled the ball away near midfield. The Ponies answered with a 12-play drive that ended on a nine-yard scamper by sophomore Zach Miller. Stapler elected to go for the two-point conversion to set up a possible win and Miller complied by making the PAT good with 4:38 remaining in the game.

MHS did not help its own cause much in the final minutes, either, as the 'Dogs were forced to punt from their own 14, where Worley sent a 33-yarder to the Mustangs.

Andrews began to mount a drive from the MHS 49 with more than two minutes left. Pony senior quarterback Robert Morris, who finished the game 10-for-19 passing for 135 yards, took his offense nine yards before giving the ball up on a fourth-down incompletion.

"We let them take the momentum away from us in the second half and they got a couple of quick ones on us. On their second and third touchdowns they just blew us away," Stapler said.

"We had some mental breakdowns on defense. We battled back but just couldn't score when we were down on their turf," Stapler said of his 0-2 squad. "We can't do that. We are so green defensively (with only one returning starter from 1988) we have got to put the ball in the end zone and we have to execute."

"It was the first time all year when our offense came out and performed they way we knew they could perform," Corley said of the 'Dogs' second-half scoring. "We threw the ball well and that opened up the running game. We threw well because the offensive line did a good job of protecting the quarterbacks. It was just a great effort by our offense in the third quarter."

Morris paced the Mustang offense with 29 rushing yards to add to his passing total, while senior fullback Kelly Cornejo slashed through the MHS defense for 86 yards in 12 totes.

Greenwood shut out by Reagan County, 21-0

From Staff Reports

BIG LAKE — The Greenwood Rangers continue to struggle and have yet to score a touchdown through two games of the '89 season, losing to Reagan County, 21-0 Friday night.

The loss drops the Rangers to 0-2 while Reagan County evens up at 1-1.

All three of the Reagan County scores came on short runs and all three point after attempts failed.

A 20-yard field goal in the third quarter gave the Owls the 21-0 margin needed for the win.

Reagan County amassed 391 total offensive yards, including 280 on the ground.

Greenwood had 131 yards rushing and just 29 through the air as only two of seven Greenwood passes were completed.

The Owls, who were hurt by the penalty, moved back 14 times for 100 yards.

Greenwood opened the season with a 17-0 loss to Denver City.

The Rangers host Stanton next Friday in their home opener.

Kennedy does it all in 28-7 Rankin win

From Staff Reports

Kennedy scored all four of the Devils' touchdowns and booted all four extra point attempts to allow Rankin to even its record at 1-1. Forsan falls to 0-2.

And to be even more specific, to show Kennedy's versatility, he threw two TD passes and ran in for another two more.

Kennedy opened the scoring with a 23 yarder to Michael Roman in the first quarter but Forsan came back to tie it in the second when Isidro Rodriguez hauled in an eight yarder from Steven East.

On Rankin's next possession, Kennedy rared back and gave it all he had, on a 73-yard touchdown completion to James Watson.

In the second half, Kennedy ran in from 22- and 9-yards to put the Devils' out of reach of Forsan.

Iraan rumbles past Eldorado, 30-7

From Staff Reports

IRAAN — Iraan racked up 328 rushing yards en route to a 30-7 shellacking of visiting Eldorado. The Braves' record moves to a perfect 2-0; the loss was Eldorado's second in as many games.

Iraan out-first downed Eldorado, 25-7 and held the visitors to just 140 yards total offense.

Oddly enough, though, Eldorado would score first, its one and only tally on a 91 yard kickoff return on the game's opening play by Juan Ramirez.

Riley Malone led the Braves to a quick strike back, scoring on a 49 yard run in the first quarter.

After a Corby Maurer field goal in the second quarter, Jason Hollifield scored twice on runs of 31 and 14 yards in the second and fourth quarters.

Malone provided the capper, an eight yard hustle to put Iraan ahead 30-7.

The Braves travel to Ozona next week.

Helped by Duran's passing AHS downs Sweetwater

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — Abilene High outscored Sweetwater, 21-7, Friday for the Eagles' first win of the season.

AHS had 314 total offensive yards, compared to just 153 for Sweetwater.

Doug Sims had opened the scoring for Abilene on a one yard run.

Duran connected with Lee again in the second quarter, a 14-yard reception.

Sweetwater's lone score came on a three yard run by Patrick Villa in the third quarter.

Sweetwater fumbled five times, losing two to the Eagles.

Haltom struck back later in the quarter with a nine-yard scoring pass from Jason Hallstead to Lionel Alvarez, but the PAT run attempt failed.

Matadors grind it out over Steers

By GEORGE BRZEZINSKI
MRT Correspondent

BIG SPRING —What do you get when two teams with contrasting offensive styles meet on a Friday night in Big Spring?

An exciting, hard-fought football game, that's what.

The conservative, strong ground game of Lubbock Estacado edged the flashy, deceiving passing game of Big Spring, 20-14.

Rance Thompson's 121 yards passing wasn't enough for the Steers of Big Spring, whose receivers dropped several potential gamewinners and whose defense found itself a bit slower than its counterparts.

The Estacado Matadors were led by juniors Robert J. Johnson (27-159) and Patrick Williams (15-106). Johnson broke the Steers with a 77-yard touchdown sprint in the first period. And, Matador quarterback Calvin Thomas made his one completion count for a 70-yard touchdown to Ricky Smith, which put the Matadors up for good.

But it was the 302 yards gained on the ground which frustrated Big Spring's defense and made the difference in the final score.

Neal Mayfield was the crucial component in both of Big Spring's scoring plays. The 212-pound junior took a reverse from Thompson 35 yards into the end zone for the Steers' first score, late in the second quarter. Coach Thompson liked the play so much he called Mayfield's number again in the second half, resulting in a 42 yard gain and setting up Jermaine Miller's 4-yard score.

Steers coach David Thompson was satisfied with his offense but upset with the game's outcome. "We played good enough to win, we dropped a couple passes that shouldn't have been and our defense was weak." Thompson explained the team couldn't properly prepare for Estacado's speed. "We had nobody fast enough to give us an idea of their speed, their receivers were simply too quick."

The Steers, 1-1, are home again next Friday for another tough game with Plainview and Coach Thompson is already looking forward to another challenge.

"We've got another tough one next week, Plainview is one good football team."

Plainview defeated Estacado by two touchdowns in their opener last week.

Broncos earn first win

From Staff Reports

Odessa High evened its season record at 1-1 with a 35-14 thumping of Monahans Friday in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

The Broncos racked up 466 yards total offense while holding the Loboes to 248 yards.

The game, originally scheduled to be played in Monahans, was moved to Odessa after Lobo Stadium received substantial damage in last weekend's tornado.

A&M graduate students working on automated vehicle

By STEVE HILL

COLLEGE STATION, (AP) — In the Bible, Bartimaeus was the blind beggar along the road to Jericho who wished to see. His modern namesake — an experimental, autonomously navigated van called BART — is more likely to be seen on College Station streets as a forerunner to vehicles that drive themselves.

For the modern-day BART, the gift of sight comes by way of a set of video cameras aimed through the vehicle's windshield.

"Perhaps we won't get there in the next few years, but perhaps we will get where the computer will take over if a driver has a heart attack," said researcher Norman Griswold, who doesn't actually let the vehicle go driverless on public streets.

"It won't drive to San Antonio, but it may pull over to the side of the road and stop."

Griswold leads the Binocular Autonomous Research Team, which for the past two years has worked on a visual system, based on two video cameras, that is the foundation of the autonomous vehicle. The team tests the Dodge Caravan at Texas A&M's research park, but the highly modified vehicle also has a push-button control system that allows Griswold to drive the street-legal van while running errands, such as purchasing gas.

BART's two cameras feed visual information to a Compaq 386-20 computer that is the "brain" of the vehicle. The Compaq in turn sends orders to a Motorola 68000-based computer that actually controls the van's movements. The van has a portable generator on its rear end that powers the computers.

It has a steering wheel, but no manual gear-shifting device. The stereoscopic visual system is intended to mimic the way humans see when driving.

As far as Griswold knows, it is the only such effort to build automated vehicles based on a visual control system. Others focus on sensors or probes built into roads or set along the sides of highways.

European and Japanese researchers are hard at work on automated highway systems and autonomous vehicles, and Griswold said, "If they beat Americans on this, we're going to end up buying the technology, and that's not good."

Several American research efforts are directed at autonomous vehicles. The technology could have applications for space docking, military use, and highway traffic control.

Automated driving will be phased in only gradually, Griswold said — probably through use of computer mapping and directional aids, accident and road information, and even lodging information.

"I do not believe it's economically or politically sound for American drivers yet," he said.

BART still has a number of bugs to be worked out, Griswold said. But his team of graduate students has developed a workable theory for fusing two separate images, taken from slightly different angles, and applying it to BART.

The van can halt at stop signs and follow the course of a road while avoiding obstacles. It still has difficulty on a particular S-curve at the research park. The van also still hasn't been able to follow other vehicles at a safe distance, Griswold said, although "we're very close to making it go." He also doesn't think BART can handle bad weather.

"Probably not well. We have not even considered that because with rain and fog and snow, it will see the images completely differently than humans will," Griswold said, adding that no other research teams run their vehicles in inclement weather.

He added, "We don't want to make extravagant claims of things we can do. But the things we can do, boy, we can do them better."

Doctor being sued for fondling patients, performing abortions

By SHARON COHEN

FRANKTON, Ind. (AP) — It sounds like the plot of a steamy novel: dashing doctor finds success and riches in small-town America, leads charmed life until sex scandal erupts — and he's in the middle of it.

But it's fact, not fiction in this tranquil town.

Thakkar

The protagonist is Dr. Pravin Thakkar, accused of gross negligence, lewd conduct, rape and other offenses against more than a dozen women. Many are ex-patients. In some cases, women he dated say he impregnated them and then performed abortions without their consent.

"We've had lewd and immoral allegations before ... but never in this volume against one man," said Dan Foley, assistant to state Attorney General Linley Pearson, whose office filed a complaint against Thakkar.

Thakkar, whose license has been temporarily suspended, denies the charges and says he'll be vindicated.

"You are giving a forum to people who are lying ... (and trying) to cash in," he said. "These are not the facts."

Jeffrey Lockwood, his attorney, added, "Many of the allegations, if not all of them, are not worthy of belief."

Madison County Prosecutor William Lawler says charges involving five women and a sixth unrelated accusation will likely be presented to a grand jury within several weeks.

A 23-count state complaint pending before the Indiana Medical Licensing Board accuses him of a litany of misconduct, including: prescribing an addictive drug to a patient as long as she would have pelvic exams; fondling patients in the examining room; forcing a woman to have sex in her house; impregnating women, then performing unwanted abortions.

Separate suits and malpractice claims are pending against Thakkar.

He also faces an October trial on charges that he withdrew more than $132,000 from his bank accounts in a way that allegedly skirted federal rules on reporting withdrawals.

Many of Thakkar's accusers came forward at a February state board hearing that resulted in the temporary suspension of his license. A hearing on whether to revoke the license has not been scheduled.

One panel member called it "probably the worst abuse of physician-patient trust" he'd seen. The board called Thakkar "a clear and immediate danger to the public health and safety."

"The commonality of all of their stories was pretty convincing," Foley said.

Since then, the Indianapolis Star reported Thakkar left an Ohio medical training program in 1980 amid charges he had a sexual encounter with a patient and mishandled a case in which a woman hemorrhaged to death after giving birth.

Court records claim Thakkar left a Texas medical residency program in 1981 after a patient complained he made sexual comments and was known as a doctor who "would conduct a pelvic exam for a head cold."

Carmen Brutchen Hertzinger, a divorced teacher's aide, claims Thakkar impregnated her in 1983, then pressured her to have an abortion.

"I said, 'No way. I want this baby. I love you,' " she recalled.

When she refused, she claims he drugged her, induced labor without her consent and delivered an 8-month-old fetus. She contends she heard a cry, but never saw the baby and Thakkar told her it was stillborn and claimed to have "six bullets" to kill her, others and himself if she revealed what happened.

Ms. Hertzinger has sued Thakkar. He has responded with a slander suit, claiming she was still pregnant more than a month after the alleged abortion.

"I think he specifically sought out women who were emotionally vulnerable," said Bonnie Coffey-Myers, who answered a personal ad Thakkar placed in "Indianapolis Monthly" magazine.

"I was overweight, divorced, raising two kids on my own ... attracting the attention of a healthy, intelligent, wealthy, powerful physician," she said. "It's every woman's dream."

Ms. Coffey-Myers said after she became pregnant, Thakkar told her he'd perform an abortion but would have to falsify records because the procedure wasn't allowed at the hospital.

Despite the allegations, Thakkar has supporters.

He's "one of the finest doctors I've ever had," Joyce Thompson wrote in a local newspaper letter. "He's always been there when needed — taken great care and showed genuine concern for me."

But Thakkar's lawyer said such support may have little impact. "He's already been tried and convicted in the press," Lockwood said, noting some of his client's accusers have made the Oprah-Geraldo talk show circuit.

"A small group of people are getting an awful lot of media attention and ... feel they're going to get an awful lot of money from the doctor."

Pravin Thakkar, 38, came to this central Indiana town of 2,000 in 1981, replacing the only doctor, who had died.

"He was a congenial sort of person," said Gerald Harper, a member of the Lions Club, which organized a doctor-search committee. "He seemed very ... settled in his ways." Thakkar was married at the time and he has a child.

"He seemed like he cared about whether you were ill and he would be available whenever possible," said Betty Janney, clerk-treasurer in nearby Gaston, where he had a part-time practice.

The man who had known poverty in India built a prosperous practice, earning a reported gross annual income of $500,000.

Some women met him as a patient but Thakkar also placed blind-box newspaper and magazine ads — he met his current fiancee through one — describing himself as filled with "dreams, love & sensitivity."

For some, the 5-foot-6, graying doctor lived up to his claims, wooing women with soft music, sweet words and a soothing manner.

"It's almost like having a spell put over you," Ms. Hertzinger said.

"He was like no other man I'd ever met," said Kathy Collins, the first to sue Thakkar. "He was very soft. He was very caring."

Ms. Collins says she met Thakkar as a patient and after years of on-and-off dating, became pregnant. When she told him, she says he aborted the fetus without her consent.

"I hurt so bad inside, I knew I had to do something," she explained. "I just knew that I couldn't go on knowing what he did and letting him get away with it."

Her suit opened the floodgates. Many allegations are several years old, raising questions as to why some women waited so long and continued to see him as their doctor.

"If they thought he was a heel ... why did they go back to him?" asked Harper of the Lions Club. "It just don't make sense."

Some of the women cited financial reasons. Coffey-Myers said Thakkar agreed to do her tubal ligation for whatever fee her insurance would cover.

Some feared they wouldn't be believed challenging a doctor. "Once they saw others coming forward, (they thought) if they banded together with other folks, maybe something would be done," added Foley, the attorney general's aide.

Today, they have mixed feelings about Thakkar.

"My attitude ranges from pity to hatred," said Ms. Coffey-Myers. "Perhaps some of us were naive and gave him the benefit of the doubt too many times. That doesn't mean any of us deserved what we got. I feel much the same way a rape victim does."

Mother Teresa develops infection

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Nobel laureate Mother Teresa may have developed an infection that poses a new danger to her health following a heart attack last week, her cardiologist said Friday.

Another doctor who spoke on condition of anonymity said too many visitors and doctors may be hampering Mother Teresa's chances for recovery.

Dr. Vincenzo Bilotta, a heart specialist from Rome and a longtime friend of Mother Teresa, said the 79-year-old Roman Catholic nun is fighting a persistent fever and chest pains.

"With the high temperature, her condition is still serious," said Bilotta, who treated Mother Teresa for a similar ailment in 1985.

"Her heart is very weak. The infection is now posing a new danger to her," he added, without saying where the infection may have developed.

Dr. George Lombardi, an infectious disease specialist from Cornell University in New York, said doctors are trying to find the cause of the infection.

Lombardi and Bilotta flew to Calcutta earlier in the week to help treat Mother Teresa, who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979 for her devotion to the destitute and dying.

A statement from Woodlands Nursing Home, where she was admitted last week, said "Mother is still running a temperature. She has had a mild episode of chest pain which rapidly responded to treatment."

Mother Teresa developed chest pains and high fever Thursday just as doctors thought she was recovering well from a heart attack suffered Sept. 8.

A senior physician said Friday she may have suffered a setback because too many doctors want to treat her and too many people want to visit her.

Earlier this week, Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi visited Mother Teresa in the intensive care unit along with his security staff and a television crew to film the 10-minute chat.

HOURS AND YEARS

"Grow old along with me . . . the best is yet to be," the sundial seems to say. It's a nice thought, but is it true?

What is best in life? Childhood? Adolescence? The Middle Years? The peace that should come with the twilight of life? Who is to say?

Life is full of many questions and very few answers. The hours bring with them unexpected contrasts of happiness and sorrow—of assurance and dismay—of wealth and poverty, both spiritual and material.

Because of this very uncertainty, we need something far more stable than a sundial to "grow old along with." We need substance, endurance, solidity. We need faith.

Where to find it? How about looking, first, in the church or synagogue of your choice? How about this week?

RELIGION IN BRIEF

'Spiritual Life Crusade' set

A special "Spiritual Life Crusade" will be conducted by evangelist Samuel Rijfkogel at Calvary Assembly of God, 908 S. Johnston St., Sept. 24-27.

Rijfkogel

Services times are 7 p.m. Sept. 24 and 7:30 p.m. Sept. 25-27.

Rijfkogel is from North Little Rock, Ark.

"Samuel shares heart rending accounts of crusades in Thailand and of people in foreign lands hearing the name of Jesus for the first time," says a release from the church.

"Medical clinics have been established in Thailand and Laos as a result of his ministry. Samuel has a worldwide vision that will inspire you to fulfill Christ's great commission."

During his ministry, he has traveled with a singing group, Morning Star, and has shared the platform with such speakers as David Wilderson.

"His faith in God is strong and evident as he shares his own family's story of the hardships of the Nazi holocaust and emigration to the United States," the release says.

"Thousands have received strength from this story as accounted in the book 'Tangled Destinies,' written by Johanna Garrison, Samuel's sister."

The church's pastor, the Rev. Gayle Reeves, invites the public to attend.

Bishop to lead effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unusual assignment, United Methodist Bishop Felton E. May of Harrisburg, Pa., has been chosen to lead a special denominational effort to strengthen the nation's "spiritual and social fabric."

He is to be based in Washington for the year-long effort, working against trends seen by the leaders of the 9 million-member denomination as defiling American life, particularly drugs and violence.

Bishop Jack M. Tuell of Los Angeles, president of the denomination's Council of Bishops, said the church's special step cannot "solve these massive issues" but "we believe that we can make a difference."

He said the church's bishops believe the country is facing "massive deterioration of the moral and spiritual fabric of our society," reflected in soaring drug traffic and violent crime.

He called May's assignment "a sign and witness of our belief that God has something better in mind for the quality of our life together in our world."

May, who is to take over his special role Jan. 1, promised a "multi-pronged campaign," adding: "The church must be well-armed for this campaign against substance abuse and violence."

Catholic students higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students in Roman Catholic schools achieve higher levels of reading proficiency than their counterparts in public schools, says a report based on test scores.

The National Catholic Educational Association compared scores of a random sampling of Catholic students in grades 3, 7 and 11 with National Assessment of Educational Progress scores of public school students in those grades.

Average reading ability of Catholic students was 5.8 percent better than public school students in grade 3, 9.9 percent better in grade 7, and 7.9 percent better in grade 11, the report said.

Sister Catherine T. McNamee, president of National Catholic Educational Association, said the findings were similar to those of a study made two years ago.

"Catholic school students excel in reading ability at a time when literacy has emerged as a pressing national problem and business and government leaders look to the country's schools for a remedy," she said.

Rabbi seeks dramatic action

DULRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rabbi Samuel M. Silver thinks President Bush should take some dramatic action in an effort to negotiate freedom for the American hostages held by an Iran-backed Moslem group in Lebanon.

Silver suggested in a letter to Bush that the president "indicate you are going to fly to Teheran and personally discuss the situation with the leaders of Iran."

"Such a dramatic act would, it seems to me, evoke a favorable response in Iran, and would galvanize world opinion as to the earnestness of our government to solve a vexing and perplexing problem," Silver said.

Local couple's son elected to SBC board

NASHVILLE — Johnnie C. Godwin, son of John and Dimple Godwin of Midland, has been elected vice-president for general publishing at the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board by trustees at their August semi-annual meeting in Glorieta, N.M.

Godwin

Godwin, a native of Texas, has been head of Holman Bible Publishers since February 1984.

In his new position he will oversee the areas of Holman, Broadman, Genevox, Church Infomation Systems (CIS) and the Baptist Telecommunication Network (BTN).

Board President Lloyd Elder said in a news release, "Johnnie Godwin's performance is his best recommendation.

"He has demonstrated hard work and stability during difficult times and more recently creativity and momentum during highly productive days of Bible publishing."

Since Godwin assumed the leadership of Holman, sales have almost doubled, from $5.4 million in 1983-84 to $9.4 million in 1987-88.

Godwin, 52, first came to the Sunday School Board 19 years ago as an editor of youth Sunday school materials, also worked in the Broadman division as supervisor of the books and music section and director of the products department prior to becoming head of Holman.

Before he moved to the board, he was pastor of Hewitt Baptist Church in Hewitt for five years. He also was pastor of three other churches in Texas.

He is a graduate of Baylor University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in Greek and religion; Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary with a bachelor of divinity degree with focuses in New Testament, Greek and missions.

Included among Godwin's writings are Volume 16 of the "Layman's Bible Book Commentary, Mark" and the 1982 January Bible Study book for youth, "James: A Faith That Works."

Godwin's election was part of a Sunday School Board internal reorganization where five employees were elected to new staff positions.

"The thrust of the reorganization is on product development, marketing and distribution," Elder told the trustees.

"The role of the Sunday School Board is to structure itself, establish priorities and allocate resources in such a way that we impact results in local churches."

Midland AAL joins with others to host barbecue

ODESSA — The Midland branch of Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL), along with branches from Andrews, Big Spring, Lamesa, Odessa and Pecos, is hosting a benefit barbecue for Lutheran Braille Workers Inc., at Odessa's Sherwood Park from 4 to 8 p.m. Sept. 23.

Tickets may be purchased from Jerry Penick, 697-3221 or 694-1497, Rusty Collins, 694-3559, or Walter Teinert, 684-5319. Tickets are $7 per person or $20 per family. A tax-deductible donation is acceptable and appreciated.

The mission of the Braille Workers is "to provide truth and love throughout the world with embossed braille and large print Christian material and Bibles so that all the blind and visually-impaired may know, too, that Jesus is Lord," says a release from the Midland branch of AAL.

The slogan for Braille Workers, Inc., is "Bringing Christ to Those in Darkness."

AAl provided more than $6.2 million in grants and scholarships to Lutheran schools and institutions in the past year, benefiting more than 10,000 people nationwide. AAL is a fraternal organization which provides a wide variety of benefits to Lutheran and their families.

AAL has one of the nation's largest privately-funded scholarship programs. Since 1965, the Appleton, Wis.-based fraternal benefit society has awarded more than 18,000 scholarships totaling $24.7 million to its members.

"AAL is the mation's largest fraternal benefit society in terms of assets and ordinary life insurance in force," says a release from AAL.

"Insurance provided to its 1.5 million members includes life, health, retirement and disability income products. Other benefits are a broad range of self-help programs and volunteer opportunities to help individuals, organizations and communities nationwide."

Children 'growing poorer'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "Our children are growing poorer while our nation is growing richer," Beverly Jackson told 15,000 United Methodists seeking action to alleviate child poverty.

Ms. Jackson of the Children's Defense Fund said the nation's security "teeters atop an overstocked, overpriced suicidal arsenal" while $40 billion has been cut from programs for poor children since 1980.

Jews, Christians moving toward 'mutual respect'

NEW YORK (AP) — Relationships between Jews and Christians have changed from "boundless prejudice" to "mutual respect" says Rabbi Wolfe Kelman in taking a new post that works to advance interfaith understanding.

Kelman, retired as longtime executive secretary of the Rabbinical Assembly representing Conservative rabbis, was named director of the Institute for Religious and Social Studies at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

In contrast with past antagonisms, Kelman says the different faiths now "learn from one another" and accept one another's own definition of faith instead of viewing one another as "candidates for proselytization."

This "is taken for granted by the major Christian and Jewish denominations," he says.

SBC board eliminates jobs

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board has eliminated 28 jobs from its 380-member national staff because of an $8.2 million cut in its 1989 budget to bring expenditures in line with income.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1989

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Set priorities and stick to them. A family project could increase your earnings. Legal matters will have to be resolved in January. You feel better knowing where you stand with a certain member of the opposite sex. Set aside money for investments or higher education. Learning more about computers will help you boost productivity. An unexpected legacy or windfall comes to you in June. A school reunion could set the stage for a romantic interlude.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor John Ritter, novelist Ken Kesey, actress Anne Bancroft, actor Roddy McDowall, former Chief Justic Warren Burger.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A professional alliance will stand the test of time. Reward someone's loyalty in tangible ways. A new diet begins to pay off; you feel much more energetic. A romantic relationship heats up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): News from afar will arrive at an opportune time. Short-term loans may prove better investments than long-term ones. Have fun in the social whirl. Doors that have been closed to you swing open.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A good day to share your views and delegate more responsibility. Curb a tendency to fly off the handle. A loved one who feels neglected will respond to some special TLC. Be affectionate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If you are not feeling up to par, it is best to ensure your privacy. Avoid people who make you see red. A telephone call from a loved one lifts your spirits. Turn in early tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Contention could leave you feeling ill at ease. Cheer up! You cannot count on always pulling strings. A family gathering leads to new rapport between siblings. Avoid rehashing old quarrels.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You should be able to obtain all the cooperation you need today. Retain the controls when you know what you want to do. Spend more time with kin and dear friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Confiding in new acquaintances is too risky. Keep your own counsel. A good day to shop and run errands. Those who follow a system finish their chores sooner. Plan a special dinner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Certain tasks can no longer be postponed. Roll up your sleeves and get to work! Loved one may be willing to help. A church activity or social gathering brightens the afternoon. Welcome newcomers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An intense emotional experience may play a role in your spiritual life. Your instincts are right on target. Things are beginning to look more hopeful for romance. Avoid rocking the boat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be on the lookout for a new employment or investment opportunity. It is time to build up your financial reserves. A quiet celebration holds special appeal this afternoon. Relax and unwind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Secure your future by putting yourself on a budget. Enlist family's cooperation. Your faith in someone will be restored. Past efforts are finally rewarded. Share the limelight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): At family gatherings, avoid controversial subjects. You enjoy a special relationship with a small child. Be generous with your affection and praise. Words of encouragement will be remembered.

Keaton: Realities of New York life help her cope with fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Diane Keaton says the hard-bitten realities of New York life brought her down to earth as she coped with fame after her Oscar-winning triumph in "Annie Hall."

Keaton

"I think it helped that I was living in New York, where no matter who you are, you have to watch that you don't step in dog poop," Keaton says in the October issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Keaton, who considers herself a New Yorker who happens to spend a lot of time in Los Angeles, volunteers two evenings a week at the Jewish Home and Hospital for the Aged whenever she is in New York.

"I like it. I just sit there and talk," she said. "The down side is, I'll ask for a particular person, and the room is cleaned out, and it's as if he or she never existed. They've disappeared in the night. Literally."

Keaton said she was very close to her Grandmother Hall, her father's mother who died at 94.

"I really felt her dilemma, because she had her wits about her right to the end. And it infuriated me to see that woman being patronized when I'd take her to the bank or to the store or even to the doctor."

GENEVA (AP) — American soprano Michele Crider, Italian tenor Roberto Sacca, and West German bass Reinhard Hagen are the top winners of Geneva's annual International Competition for Musical Performers, it was announced Friday.

The singers each won $5,880 and qualified for another contest scheduled next March that will be broadcast throughout Europe.

Ms. Crider, a 30-year-old Quincy, Ill. native, was also a finalist of the 1986 San Francisco Opera Center Audition and the 1988 Luciano Pavarotti Contest.

Sacca, 28, is a graduate of the Karlsruhe, West Germany, Opera and Music Academy and is now a soloist at the Staatstheater of Wiesbaden.

Bremen-born Hagen, also 28, also graduated in Karlsruhe and last year was prizewinner at the West Berlin Mendelssohn competition.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News anchorwoman Kathleen Sullivan called her network the "Cheap Broadcasting System" during live transmissions to the company's New York headquarters, a published report said Friday.

Sullivan

Sullivan's comments Thursday were projected on closed-circuit monitors in the CBS building and were seen by dozens of employees, sources told the New York Post.

The host of "This Morning," on assignment in several U.S. cities this week, was apparently unaware that her microphone was on when she made the comments.

Neither CBS nor Sullivan would comment.

MOSCOW (AP) — British spy novelist John Le Carre's latest best-selling novel, "The Russia House," will be published in the country where it's seet under an agreement signed Friday in Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

In another example of the more open atmosphere fostered by glasnost, Le Carre's book will be issued in 100,000 Russian-language copies next year by agreement between the Mohrbooks literary agency of Switzerland and International Relations publishers of the Soviet Union, Tass said.

Ironically, the contract was concluded during Moscow's International Book Fair, an event that plays a key role in "The Russia House." In Le Carre's book, a Soviet scientist's important notebooks are passed to a publisher at the book fair, unleashing a host of complications.

Tass quoted Le Carre's European literary agent, Sabine Ibach, and International Relations director Boris Likhachev as saying "The Russia House" is a work that can do a lot toward ending mistrust between East and West.

"This is a book written by a thinking man with a sober and critical view of the times, who battles Cold War stereotypes," Likhachev was quoted as saying.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Big brother Michael Jackson wasn't present, but plenty of other celebrities and family members showed up for a celebration introducing singer Janet Jackson's new "telemusical" video.

Jackson

Such luminaries as Rob Lowe, Emilio Estevez, Sugar Ray Leonard, Donny Osmond, and Cicely Tyson gathered along with Jackson brothers Marlon and Jackie, sister Rebe and mother Katherine at the Vertigo nightclub Thursday night for the screening.

The 30-minute "telemusical," a term coined to describe the four black-and-white music videos arranged together to form a dramatic story, has a cast of hundreds including cameos by celebrities, among them Michael Jackson in disguise as a street person. It premieres on MTV Saturday night.

Miss Jackson said she tried to convey a message of social change in the video.

"I know a song can't change the world, but if the music can inspire so many people and make them join hands and begin to deal with a lot the social problems we have then hopefully we can make some progress," Miss Jackson said.

HATFIELD, England (AP) — For $293, aspiring scribes can now receive 20 lessons in the fine points of writing seduction scenes fit for Margaret Thatcher to read from the queen of romance novels herself, Barbara Cartland.

The 88-year-old best-selling author dispensed a few pointers as she introduced The Barbara Cartland Romantic Writing correspondence course on Thursday.

Do not, she told The Times of London, take Joan Collins for a model.

"Did you read Joan Collins' book? She wrote filth instead of a nice book that could be read by presidents and prime ministers around the world, like mine. I only read 30 pages of it ... and couldn't take any more.

"I do believe that once you know something nasty you can't erase it. That's why when I had my children ... I wouldn't read any racy novels because Blossom Forbes-Robertson, who 'came out' with me in 1919, was born with an empty eye socket after her mother acted the role of a one-eyed woman during pregnancy. So I just tried to think beautiful thoughts."

Bajitas style cycles take the low road

By STEVEN ALMOND

EL PASO (AP) — His eyes cloaked by a pair of oversized shades, Arthur Harrison imparts his club's motto like a mantra.

"Bajitas like it low," he says loftily. "Slow and low."

As owners of what are arguably the snazziest low-riders in town, they have grown accustomed to stunned stares that track their lax advance and the hydraulic pumping tributes paid them by fellow low-riders.

But the Bajitas, unlike their automotive counterparts, never fret about such mundane matters as running out of gas or changing oil.

They're too busy pedaling.

Bragging an initial membership of seven, the Bajita Bicycle Club has ingeniously solved a dilemma many aspiring low-riders face: no car, no driver's license, even less money.

With the cruise as their muse, they have taken to radically altering their bikes: cutting, mending and amending until their two-wheeled chariots can transport them in the ground-hugging, deliberate manner befitting a low-rider.

The squat, elongated bikes, first seen in El Paso during the '60s, are again blazing the comeback trail, spurring herds of teens and preteens — like the Bajitas — to greet city streets on custom-built crafts.

Seated atop the shag-padded banana seat of his bike, club President Larry Chavez rides barely 30 inches off the ground.

But he wears a king's countenance. He says his throne — dubbed "Red Wine" for its burgundy frame — cost him $100 to fix up, plus a mechanic's ransom in labor.

Quick inspection chronicles three years of tinkering. A chain-link steering wheel juts out from a pair of splayed handle bars that anchor two chrome-plated lights and a pair of rearview mirrors, wrapped in red, fuzzy muffs. Well-shined fenders curve over twin white-wall tires, spokes clinging to a pair of pink dice.

"It takes time to fix your bike," imparts Chavez, a venerated elder at 17. "You try to hurry, (and) you'll ruin it."

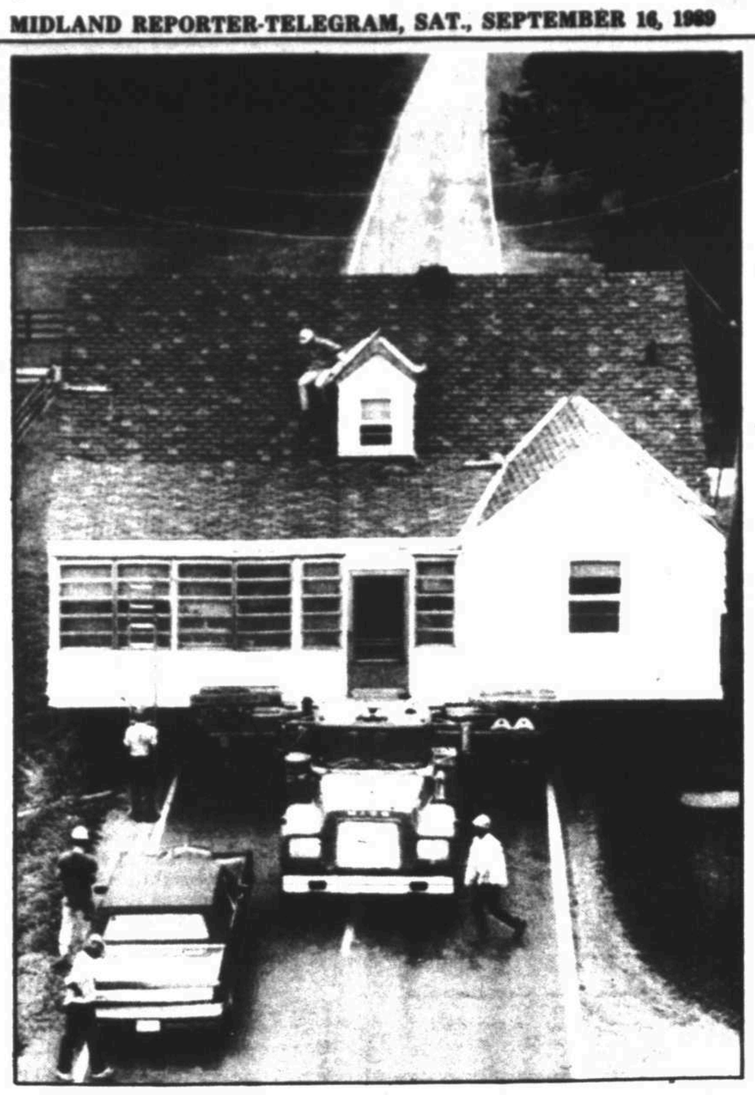
The key to lowering bikes, he explains, lies in breaking and rewelding the front forks, a delicate surgery performed in the back room of a Juarez bike shop.

To further stylize the bike, riders remodeled the frame with Bondo, adding kiddie-sized pedals and spending hours sanding away any rough edges.

Then the real work begins as drivers grapple with the finer points of chrome application, color coordination and handle bar styling.

Owners differ on a bike's most important element. Some opt for fancy forkwork, others for a snazzy steering apparatus. Many rank sheer lowness as the crucial component.

One rule, however, applies across the board: the more accessories the better.



On the move

Workmen move a house through a rural area west of Cleveland earlier this week as it wends its way to a new location. The structure, moved from the site of an expansion of a Ford truck plant, was donated to the Colette Marie Infant Home in Avon, Ohio, and will house children who have AIDS.

School district hopes Japanese program adds up

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) — Walcott Independent School District may be small, but it isn't afraid of a big challenge. The tiny country school, which already has all 68 students in a creative learners program, is trying a new Japanese math teaching program.

Walcott is the state's first public school to try Kumon Mathematex, already in use in a number of private schools and programs in Texas.

It was not the first progressive educational move made at Walcott, where all students from kindergarten through eighth grade, are included in the Talented And Creative Leaners program that begins each school day. The Kumon program will be included in this TACL project that also offers computer skills and creative writing.

School officials reached far beyond the open plains of western Deaf Smith County to obtain the new teaching system, which supplements more traditional math instruction.

Japanese language mixed with the echoes of children's voices and laughter in Walcott's hallways last week, as three Kumon representatives, including Takayoshi Sogo, head of the Kumon's Houston regional office, helped inaugurate the new system.

"The people here are most innovative," Sogo said. "This school seems to be the best organized of all the schools starting (Kumon) this year (in this area)."

Sogo oversees Kumon's southern U.S. region from North Carolina to El Paso. The company's international headquarters is based in Kumamoto City, Japan.

The Walcott experience was educational in more than mathematics.

"We never get to see a horizon in Japan," Sogo said, expressing awe at the emptiness surrounding this rural school, located 25 miles from the nearest grocery store or gas station.

And curriculum trainer Shigeru Matsumoto gave one class a brief lesson in Japanese. All the kids needed to say was "alligator," he said. In English it means a green, scaly beast. In Japanese, it sounds like the word that means "Thank you very much."

Matsumoto and Kimiyo Kajiyama worked one-on-one with Walcott teachers Donna Stribling and Cathy Fury.

"It's darned intimidating," said Mrs. Stribling, surrounded by stacks of booklets, charts and materials relating to the new system.

Mrs. Stribling and Ms. Fury — along with Walcott's administration and school board — were drawn to Kumon because of excitement about its educational potential.

They read about the Kumon program in the April issue of Newsweek magazine, which described its success at Sumitron Elementary School in rural Alabama, the first public school in the country to use the program.

When Walcott officials checked with Sumiton, they were told that math test scores there showed marked improvement, and the Kumon method was so enjoyable that some students had expressed a desire to go to school on Saturday.

"I want to see the kid who wants to go to school on Saturday because math is fun," said Brenda McLaughlin, Walcott school secretary and wife of school superintendent Dr. Bill McLaughlin.

The Walcott Independent School District Board of Directors has expressed full support of the program, approving the cost of approximately $3,000 per school year.

Kumon is intended as a supplement to, not a replacement for, traditional instruction in mathematics. The system, first developed in Japan in 1964 by Toru Kumon, emphasizes speed and accuracy, with each student progressing at the child's own rate. One of the benefits of the program is that it requires a student to have 100 percent mastery of a mathematical skill before he or she is allowed to progress to the next step.

"How can a child do algebra if he does not understand fractions?" Matsumoto said.
