'82 : growth, politics, economy prevail

The Aransas County Navigation District, the school district and the City of Fulton came under attack as the New Year began, redistricting and a complete reappraisal of all property in the county got under way, and The Rockport Pilot got a new publisher.

The ACND's troubles began at its Jan. 5 meeting when Rockport resident Homer Faber called for a review of a January 1980 action by the board and announced intentions of charging the ACND with violating the Texas Open Meetings Act. ACND officials denied the allegations.

Charges of having an "illegal meeting" were hurled at the ACND later in the month by about a dozen visitors to the board's Jan. 26 meeting after they were asked to leave the meeting room while directors held an executive session to discuss a letter to the district from State Assistant Attorney General Ken Cross.

Faber was a member of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association (ACTA), which in December had launched a probe into the ACND's activities. In a Jan. 15 meeting, ACTA members voted to begin another major investigation into the Aransas County Independent School District (ACISD).

This action was urged by ACTA member J. Metzner who protested both the school board's action — on Jan. 11 — of granting a formal three-year contract to School Superintendent Joe Randow and the board's handling of the 1981 school bond election which, Metzner charged, was "an outright lie."

As the New Year began, the Aransas County commissioners' court was looking at a redistricting plan for the county. The county appraisal district, established by the new state property tax law, was beginning a complete reappraisal of all real and personal property in the county for tax purposes. Deadline for completion of the reappraisal, under state law, was May 15.

In Fulton, a town proposal to put a bait stand on the town's new public fishing pier, still under construction, ran into protest from private bait stand owners in the town during the Fulton town council's Jan. 12 meeting.

The council members also learned they could not open bids on the proposed bait stand at that meeting due to a legal technicality — the time of the meeting had not been posted as required by law.

Robert E. (Bob) Scott was named the new Rockport Pilot publisher near the end of the month.

The year got off to a grim start shortly after dawn on New Year's Day when two men — James Abston of Morgan's Point and Clifford Antrim of Austin — were killed in a head-on collision at the north entrance of Copano Causeway.

Also grim news for some was the increase, effective Jan. 1, of the fees charged by Rockport for new connections to city water lines.

But there was good news too: ground was broken Jan. 8 for the new Port Royal Condominiums in City-by-the-Sea; the Greater First Baptist Church on South Gagon formally dedicated its new church building on Sunday, Jan. 10; Rockport-Fulton High School Senior Michael Wade Arthur received an appointment to the U.S. Army Corps of Cadets at West Point; and the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. added another $1,236 to the RFHS Choir's "Vienna in '82" fund.

The RFHS Pirates won the Toast of the Coast (basketball) Tournament and two Pirates, Michael Simmons and Dwayne Walls, were named to the All-Tournament Team. In other sports events, Rockport-Fulton took second place in the Jan. 16-17 Aransas Pass Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Filing began in January for the 1982 primary elections, scheduled in May.

In Lamar, directors of the Aransas County Municipal Utility District No. 1, serving Goose Island Lake Estates, were struggling with a 1981 tax rate and considering legal action against Envirogenics Systems Inc., designers of the district's nonworking water plant.

Jack McDavid announced his resignation Jan. 18 from the Aransas County Conservation & Reclamation District and in a workshop meeting, the ACND directors agreed to crack down on enforcement of the district's boat slip rental policy.

A midair plane crash over Copano Bay on Jan. 9 killed three men: Baker Marine pilot and copilot, John S. Luetheke, 32, and Elmo C. Blake, 41, both of Corpus Christi, and James R. Westcot of Niles, Ill., but currently residing in Aransas Pass.

Construction of the new 78-bed Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass was reported, by Hospital Administrator Ben Pate, to be "right on schedule."

Rockport Yacht & Supply Co. announced plans for a multimillion-dollar offshore support center to be built at the Port of Port Lavaca-Point Comfort.

Rockport's city council set priorities on four capital improvement projects for 1982, with top priority being removal of the 50,000-gallon elevated water storage tank on Magnolia Street.

Remaining three projects were curb, gutter and drainage improvements on Magnolia, a new city hall building and curb, gutter and drainage improvements on Picton Lane. The council agreed these three projects might require a bond issue for which no provisions were made.

Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. was named to a statewide task force of mayors charged with development of plans for meeting Texas' long-range water resource needs.

Changes were in the air in February as county officials adopted a redistricting plan, the school district approved a computerized curriculum management system for use in the county's elementary schools — and Rockport officials voted to create the post of city administrator despite objections by Mayor Walter Falk.

All three steps were taken in meetings of the governing bodies involved on Feb. 8. The City of Rockport was also considering adoption of a city building code based on the Southern Standard Building Code with amendments. A hearing was held Feb. 8 on that proposal.

Developers and those in the industry reported that the offshore support industry was booming in Aransas County.

In Fulton meanwhile, during a workshop meeting of the town council on Feb. 2, a group of residents asked for a public hearing on the town's plans to build a bait stand at its new public fishing pier.

On Feb. 6, area artist Jane Turner and the reproduction dollhouse she built of the Mathis Family Home were featured on a segment of the "Eyes of Texas" television program.

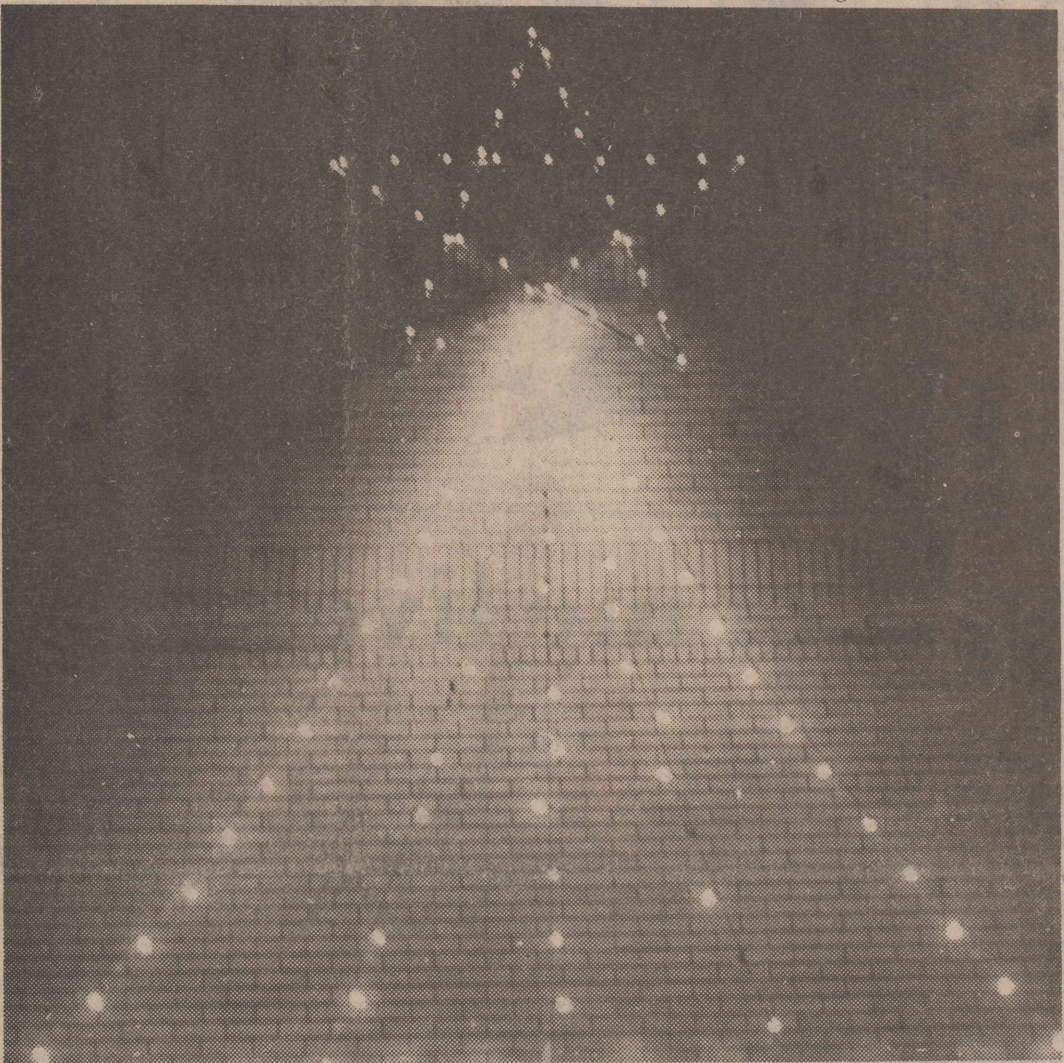

District Clerk Tony Harden was named the Rockport Business & Professional Women's "Woman of the Year, and later in the month, Rockport-Fulton High School football star Michael Simmons signed an agreement to play football as a University of Houston Cougar.

The Castaways donated $250 to the RFHS Choir's Vienna effort.

Aransas County's Emergency Medical Service received a boost in its capabilities with installation of telemetry equipment in the ambulances.

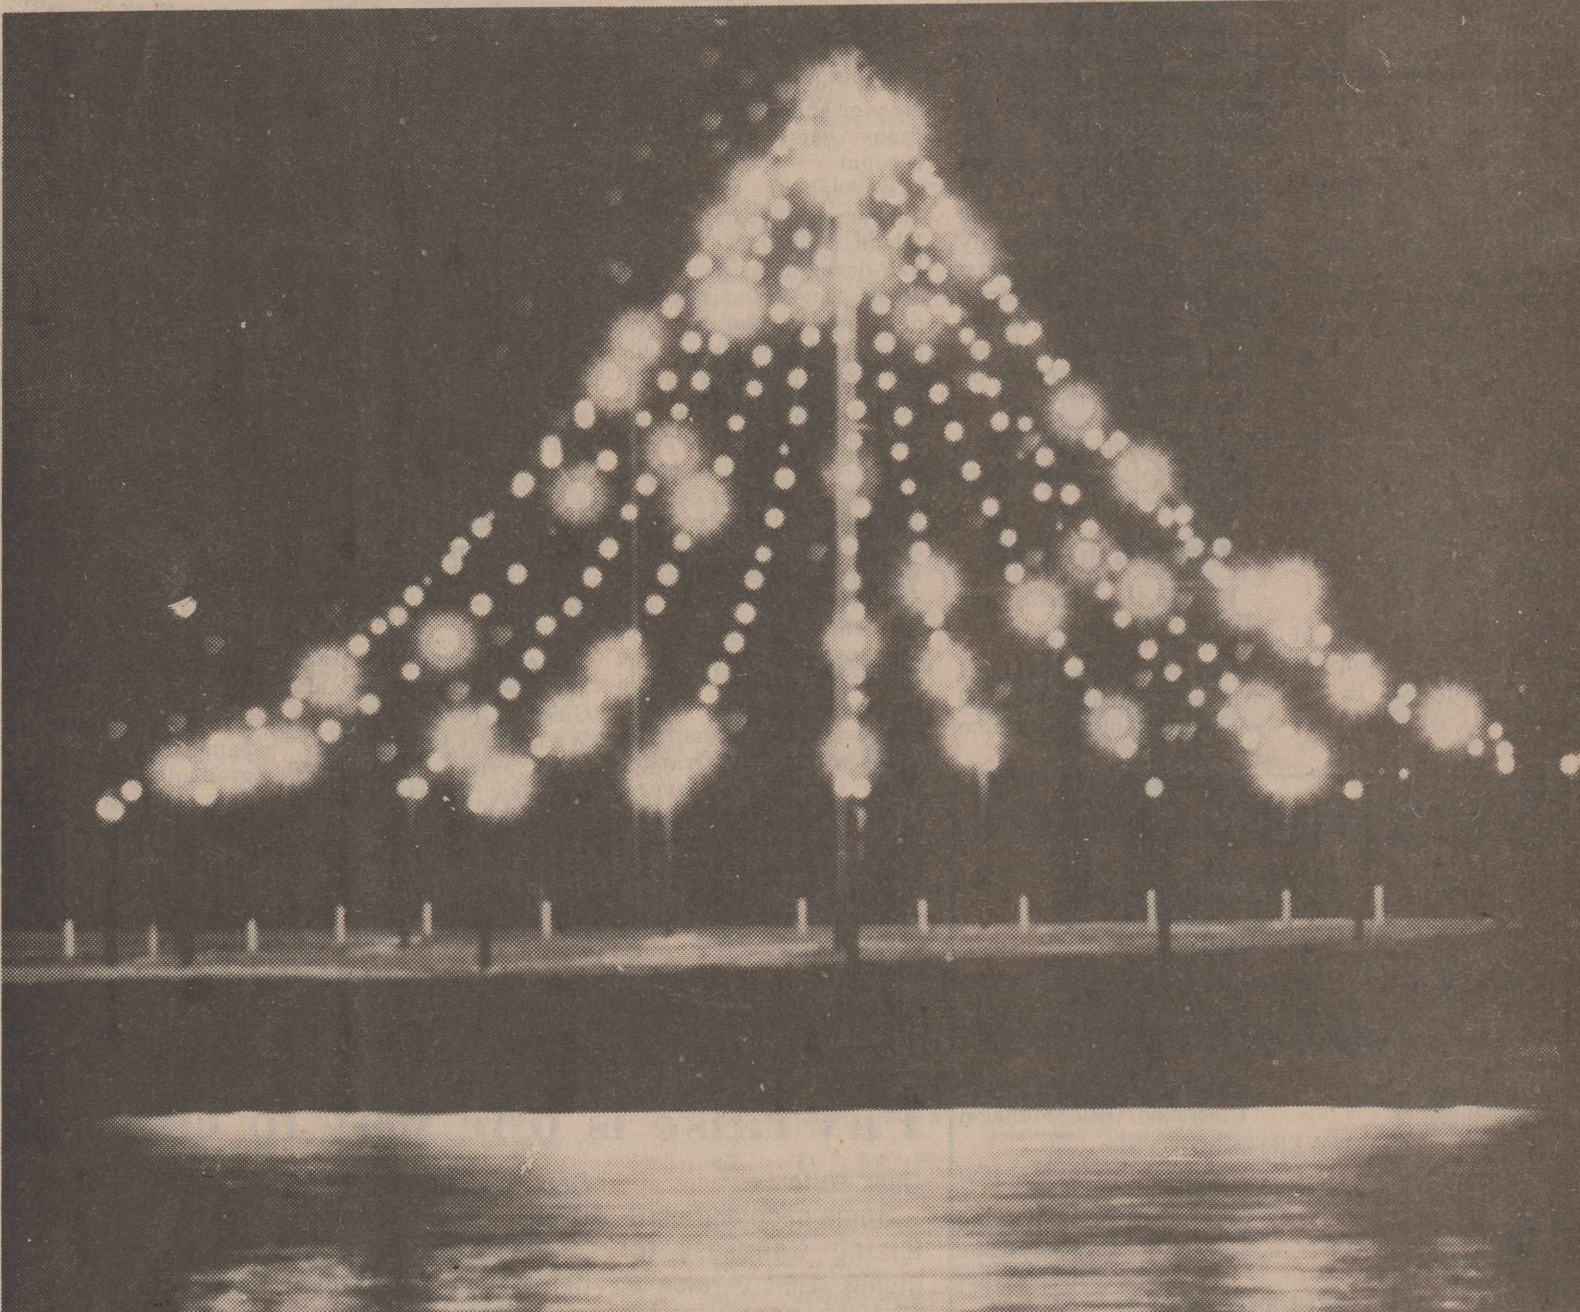

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association sent letters to County Attorney Jim Anderson, the Texas Department of Water Resources and the Texas Education Agency calling for investigations to begin

U.S. shouldn't disregard land-based missile

President Reagan may lose one of the most important defense battles of his administration unless Congress eventually approves funds for the proposed MX missile system and a basing plan for the weapons.

The president's plan to deploy 100 new MX nuclear-armed missiles in a dense-pack basing arrangement on Francis L. Warren Air Force Base property near Cheyenne, Wyo., was defeated in the House, 245-176, mainly because most members opposed the dense pack part of the proposal.

The lawmakers expressed skepticism about unproved claims concerning anticipated dense pack performance, despite reassurance by Defense Department experts and persuasion by President Reagan.

The dense-pack concept calls for basing 100 missiles about 1,800 feet apart in an area 14 miles long and a mile and a half wide. The theory is if the Soviet Union should attack with nuclear weapons, explosions from the first warheads would explode, creating so much debris and turbulence that further volleys would explode prematurely or be deflected from their targets.

This would make it possible, supporters of the system contend, for at least 50 of the 100 MX missiles to survive and retaliate against an attacker.

The Senate Appropriations Committee further dampened the president's hopes for pumping new life into the MX by voting to spend no money for the missile until both houses of Congress come up with a basing plan.

If approved by the full Senate, the measure would kill Reagan's dense-pack basing plan in the lame duck session of Congress.

Basically, the Senate panel approved $988 million for production of the MX missile, but it prohibited spending any of it pending approval of a basing plan, which is not considered likely.

The action was similar in most respects to principles previously announced by Reagan in what he called a compromise on the MX. It included a timetable for dealing with the issue, as suggested in the compromise.

Under the compromise, Reagan was to give Congress new recommendations for basing the MX by March 1, and Congress would have to approve or disapprove by April 15.

Congress should hope, for the nation's sake, it took the right action on the MX. As commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, it is President Reagan's constitutional responsibility to do everything in his power to strengthen national security.

The president made clear during debate on the MX he feels very strongly that his proposal is vital to adequate national defense.

Regardless of doubts about the MX, we do not believe it would be wise to disregard the land-based missile and place all the nation's deterrent in missile carrying submarines.

One of the arguments against MX is that submarine-based missiles are invulnerable to attack. Arguments like that could be obsolete before the ink dries on them in the Congressional Record.

Law not understood

One of the most misunderstood of Texas laws is the one requiring vehicle owners to carry proof of insurance in their cars.

Both citizens and judges apparently have trouble understanding the law.

The Texas Department of Public Safety is telling insured motorists ticketed for failure to have proof of insurance to contest such citations in court.

Drivers who mail in their fines have admitted guilt and could face either higher insurance premiums for five years or loss of their driver's license, DPS officials warn.

Some judges appear to be confused about whether tickets can be dismissed if a motorist contests a ticket in court by showing proof of insurance.

Some Texas judges will not dismiss a ticket for failure to maintain financial responsibility, even if the motorist presents evidence in court that he was properly covered, said Jim Templeton, assistant manager of the DPS safety responsibility bureau in Austin.

Instead, the judges change the charge from failure to maintain financial responsibility to failure to carry evidence of financial responsibility.

"We don't feel that is a proper charge," Templeton said. "There is a misunderstanding of the statute. Some believe there are two offenses, failure to carry insurance and failure to have insurance. There is no such penalty in the statute as failure to carry insurance."

DPS lacks authority to overturn a conviction, although it may be erroneous.

When a conviction of failure to carry evidence of liability insurance is reported to Austin, the charge is viewed as failure to maintain financial responsibility.

After the charge is received, DPS sends the motorist a notice his driver's license will be suspended unless DPS receives proof of insurance within 21 days.

By law, the only item that then fulfills the requirement of proof is a certificate of insurance known as an SR-22 form. An insurance policy does not constitute proof.

The form is a legally binding document that says the company is financially liable for claims made against the motorist.

"To get an SR-22, your regular insurance company will cancel your policy and you must go through the assigned risk pool," Templeton said. The cost is high.

An attorney general's opinion is pending on whether punishment for failure to carry proof of liability insurance should be as harsh as the penalty for failure to have liability insurance.

Meanwhile, if an insured motorist cannot get his ticket dismissed by a municipal court judge, the motorist should appeal his conviction to county court.

If there is widespread misunderstanding of the proof of insurance law, and if it is being widely misapplied in the courts, the law should be examined by the appropriate legislative committee to determine whether it should be rewritten and clarified.

The best defense is to carry proof of insurance in your vehicle.

Let me live sans shoes

A WEEK IS LONG AS A month, a month only a moment. Karakal is nestled alongside the sloop, Gitana, after twisting and turning her way up the Withacoochee River to a village with the abominable name, Yankeetown. Abominable? Don't knock Yankeetown, population 300, or more likely a bit less. Through the port I see an almost cloudless sky and no horizon because it is obscured by tall trees — cedar, palm, cypress and whatnot — no more than 200 feet distant.

Ha, months, moments, a strange ship, a river with a funny name. I need to account.

A week ago we lay at anchor in a deep bay at Dog Island a bit more than a half-dozen miles from Carabelle. Dog Island is by way of being a "jumping off" point for vessels bound for the west coast of Florida.

Waiting favorable weather, we stayed for days and had the good fortune to meet Forrest Granger and his wife. Although there are nearly 100 cottages on the island, the Grangers are the only permanent residents and I suspect they may lay claim to some sort of regional fame. While we were there a Public Broadcasting System team called on them and Granger made mention of several newspaper accounts. Their home is a modest but comfortable house surrounded by tall pine trees. The walls are lined with books and sea shells. "My wife has collected and identified 312 different type shells in the 12 years we've lived here. Yes, and I had my last cigarette and drink the day before we came here. Too bloody easy to over indulge, especially when the summer people come to vacation."

Until about a year ago a ferry from Carabelle served the island. The Grangers expressed no regrets over its being discontinued. On the rare occasions when they are inclined to visit the mainland they call a son in Tallahassee by radio telephone and he comes for them in his aircraft. There is a small grass airstrip, sufficient for a small plane. In his car Granger showed us the island, about 12 miles long. I can live without shopping centers, pavements and the boob tube. I envy the Grangers. Had we stayed much longer I might have investigated real estate offerings — if they exist?

WAITING THE weather, along with Karakal were Gitana, Miss Fortune, Ho-Tia and Bounty, a beautiful wooden ketch, 58 feet, from the boards of Nathanael Herreshoff. Sorry if I bore you. I love the names of ships. To me they are lovely as a sonnet.

We sailed at last, Karakal, Miss Fortune and Gitana, for Cedar Keys. We made it to Cedar Keys in 26 hours. It is a bit of an old New England fishing village, a touch of Key West, sans the honky tonks, and a reminder of colorful hamlets in the Abacos which, with good fortune, we shall soon see again before long. Luck?

Despite the Skipper's usually impeccable piloting and

That is something we might need despite the Skipper's usually impeccable piloting and navigation. Enroute to Cedar Keys, Gitana lost her engine and had eventually to be towed into Yankeetown by the Coast Guard. And entering the channel to Yankeetown Karakal was stranded on a rock at mid-tide. We did all the usual things to get off before a friendly shrimp, Skipper Pete, pulled us off. You know — we uns what follow the sea help each other!

WALTER DYASS, OLD friend and skipper of the Bonzie, writes a section of the Waterway Guide which covers this part of Florida. He calls Yankeetown a "bonus port." How right he is. One departs the channel to the gulf and enters the narrow and winding Withacoochee. There are croppings of limestone along the banks and cedars with trunks and branches twisted like mesquite, and roots exposed after the fashion of the cypress. Stubby palmetto palm covers the marshy ground, but as one progresses into the river it narrows more and as a vessel comes into curves it appears that only land lies ahead, until the river opens again. Cypress, palms and other trees gradually replace the cedars. Then at last Yankeetown, a small marina, and another up the road where there is a grocery and a post office, or so I am told.

I plan to take a stroll later in the day. However approaching the town I saw many nice homes, many of which are for sale. The economy perhaps. People come here from the north, as they do in most of Florida, to retire. I shall write what I would dare not for a Florida newspaper. People come to this state to sit around and wait to die. The circumstance is evident in the way they walk, the way they sit, the way they talk. Aye, and they are catered to after the well intentioned but nevertheless condescending manner of young people toward their elders. What matter? They seem content.

Have they not worked long years of their lives to escape the rigors of the snow and ice bound north? They are deserving, yet with more than three score years of my own behind me I want no part of their ranks. Give me the open sea, even sometimes its harshness. You may have your king-sized bed, central heat and air, snarling traffic, keeping up with the Joneses. Were they to read these words they would look upon me with pity, or perhaps think me mad. Even so, as in my heart I think of them.

Let me live sans shoes and for covering no more than a pair of shorts. For lunch I'm content with a peanut butter sandwich, with a slice of onion as a bonus. There is no restaurant in Yankeetown, no night spots, bars, not even a corner drug store. The lady who, with her husband, operates the modest marina once came from Vermont. She refers to herself now as a "swamp lady."

Strong defense

is needed

In a little-noticed development of major significance to the nation's security at a time when strong voices are being heard in Congress against mounting defense costs, Navy and Air Force civilian chiefs have taken a step toward closer cooperation between their services in defending sea lanes vital to the United States.

Announced by Navy Secretary John Lehman and Air Force Secretary Verne Orr, the agreement is the result of more than six years of efforts to coordinate more closely the use of U.S. sea and air power.

The accord also marks a significant turning point in the long practice of the two armed forces to operate separately. They now present a united front that is expected to be a strong deterrent if a move should develop to block vital sea lanes.

Under the new agreement, the two branches of service will engage in joint training and maneuvers. They will swap air crews and send officers and specialists to each other's schools.

Lehman said combining the power of the two services is intended to serve as a demonstration of U.S. power in the Caribbean and should make people like Cuban President Fidel Castro and others realize the U.S. has the capability to meet any challenge.

Since the mid-1970s, U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers have been conducting sea missions in which they have observed movements of Soviet fleet units, including carriers in the North Atlantic.

B-52s also fly missions over U.S. coastal waters and have a mine-laying mission in waters off Europe, the Defense Department has revealed.

Navy and Air Force officials emphasized there is a major requirement to modify Navy and Air Force communications systems so the two services can communicate with each other more effectively in operating areas.

Officials also stressed that closer Navy and Air Force efforts in sea lane defense would result in substantial savings in coming years, including elimination of training duplications.

The Navy secretary rejected suggestions that deploying cruise missiles aboard Navy ships operating off Europe could bring Soviet reaction.

Lehman said no one is suggesting that ship-based cruise missiles should become part of the strategic strike force aimed at the Soviet Union.

At the same time, however, Lehman said, "We cannot conceive of defense strategy that would exclude the U.S. from operating with such missiles, many of which are intended for use against enemy warships in NATO area waters."

Soviet leaders talks publicly about their willingness to compromise with the U.S. in reducing both nuclear and conventional arms while they continue spending many more billions than the U.S. for what they call defensive weapons.

Since there is not likely to be any meaningful negotiations to slow the arms race in the near future, it behooves the U.S. to maintain a strong defense system. A nation loses its military bargaining power if its defenses are weak.

Tradition has been that the Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirates have never had much support. Specifically, tradition has been that cheerleaders have never given the Lady Pirates much support. Don't you think it is time tradition was broken?

The cheerleaders were elected to represent and support the school body, female as well as male. They have been seen dressed in uniform and cheering at all the boys basketball games. While, they have been to one girls game and not in uniform or cheering.

Gulf trout has an identity problem

For all its abundance, the silver seatrout or gulf trout, has an identity problem.

Most anglers cannot tell the difference between the gulf trout and its smaller relative, the sand seatrout. Both also are close relatives to the popular spotted seatrout, which is more commonly called "speckled trout."

To add to the confusion, the ranges of all three saltwater trout species overlap. During the winter months, all three can be found in near-shore gulf and bay areas, according to Jerry Rihn of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Marine Laboratory here.

While speckled and sand trout prefer the shallow bays and passes, gulf trout range far into the Gulf of Mexico.

However, during the winter months, gulf trout can provide a fishing bonanza for bay and jetty fishermen, and are readily available during the remainder of the year for boat anglers who venture just a short distance offshore.

In fact, it is not uncommon for fishermen to haul in several hundred gulf trout ranging in size from one to three pounds while fishing around oil rigs within sight of shore.

Red snapper fishermen usually manage to catch gulf trout while using cut squid or any other bait normally used for snappers.

While gulf trout meat will never match that of red snapper on the table, with proper handling it can provide a tasty meal.

Biologists said the best way to distinguish gulf trout from sand trout is to count the rays on the anal fin. Gulf trout have eight or nine rays; the sand trout has 11. Neither the gulf trout nor the sand trout has the characteristic spots seen on the speckled trout.

There is no bag or possession limit on either gulf or sand seatrout, but anglers are limited to 20 speckled trout per day, 40 in possession.

Lady Pirates lose

Moody's junior varsity took advantage of pop shooting by Rockport-Fulton's JV to escape with a 36-16 win in Corpus Christi Monday night.

The Pirates hit only 2 points in the opening period of play, and then could get only 4 more in the second quarter. By that time they had fallen behind by 16-6.

The second half provided the fans with more of the same script as the first half, but the Pirates did score 10 points the second half.

Freshman Regena Gatlin and sophomore Sylvia Ayala led the Pirates with 6 points each.

Lady Pirates tag Moody with a loss

Enter Missy Mayes. Missy Mayes came out of nowhere to take control of things for the Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirates and paced the Pirates to a 43-29 win over Moody High School Monday night.

Mayes poured in 15 points and grabbed down numerous rebounds to lead Rockport. Coach Marc Walker applauded her efforts and he also added, "Even though Ellenor Lott didn't score a point, she rebounded well and played outstanding defense."

Rockport jumped ahead in the opening quarter with 13 points to only 7 for the Trojans. But as luck would have it, Moody fought from behind in the second period to assume a 21-19 lead as the Pirates could find the range for only 6 points.

The Lady Pirates came out after the half and stressed defense, and that did the trick as they shut out the Trojans with only 8 second-half points. In the meantime, the Ladies were hitting the nets for 24 points.

Joining Mayes in double figures was Charlotte Pugh with 11 points; Diana Herman pushed through 7 points, Lee Anna Cassel popped for three baskets (all in the opening quarter), Lona Thompson hit 4 points, and Lori Register rounded out the scoring with 2 points.

Hypothermia is a winter killer

Winter hunters and fishermen in the Gulf South rarely think of hypothermia.

And yet the condition — abnormally low body temperature — usually caused by a combination of cold and wetness cannot only cause severe illness but even death.

"Avid hunters and fishermen in the south are misled by the fact that temperatures are rarely in the freezing range and many fail to take proper precautions," says Dr. Chesley Hines Jr. of the Ochsner Clinic staff in New Orleans, and himself an avid outdoorsman.

Hypothermia can occur even when the temperature is in the 40s, if the sportsman should fall into the water or meet a heavy rain, Hines points out. For those who carry liquor on board and tend to drink on some when they are chilled and wet, "don't do it," Hines cautions. "A drink of alcohol rather than warming you up, actually dilates the blood vessels in the skin and causes further loss of heat," he explains, urging outdoorsmen to wait until they are safely back at camp before taking a drink.

All of the problems of hypothermia can be avoided with the use of proper protective clothing. This includes a hat. "About 40 percent of body heat is lost through the head. Wearing a hat which is both warm and waterproof can go a long way toward protecting you if you're caught in a winter rain," he adds.

Layered clothing, including thermal or long underwear, is a must in cold weather. A careful outdoorsman living in our mild climate always takes an extra layer of clothing with him in case there is a sudden weather change, he says.

Down-filled clothing is no good if you get wet, Hines cautions. "It's better to have clothing filled with the new synthetic waterproof materials which are as warm as down. These can be taken off, wrung out, and put back on to allow body heat to dry them out."

He also suggests stowing matches in a waterproof package aboard the boat just in case you have to spend the night in the marshes and need to make a fire.

"Every year a number of hunters and fishermen die needlessly from exposure because they don't take these simple precautions," Hines points out.

Gregory-Portland blasts pirates in 79-54 win

For nearly two quarters, the Rockport-Fulton Pirates stayed with the Wildcats of Gregory-Portland, but when the Cats got the Pirates into a hurry-up offensive duel, G-P slipped away and then poured it on the Pirates in a 79-54 victory.

The Pirates played well in the early going, being just 2 points down with a minute to go in the first quarter at 18-16, but G-P ripped off 4 more points to grab a 22-16 lead. Jay Turner and Tim Redden provided most of the fireworks for the Pirates in the first quarter as Redden hit the first six for Rockport, and then Turner hit three baskets, including a tip-in to trim the lead to 18-16.

Trailing the Wildcats 26-20, the Pirates had made a real run at G-P, but the Cats cranked their hully-gully running game and the Pirates were heavily whistled during the second quarter. By the half, the Pirates had drawn 12 foul calls, while G-P had been detected on only two fouls. G-P picked up 10 points at the free-throw line in the first half. As the Pirates went cold, with some of the players taking poor shots, G-P kept running and gunning. By the half, the Cats had put the game away at 38-24.

The Pirates did get back to within 8 points midway through the third period, but again the Cats made their kind of game work again the Pirates, and Rockport found themselves behind 56-37 after three periods.

The fourth period was just more of the same as the Cats were not to be denied. Had the game come down to free throws the second half, the as they hit only four of 12 tries, while the Cats were 11 of 15.

Redden was the high point man for the Pirates with 17, followed by Aaron Commander with 12 and Turner with 8 points.

G-P powers past freshmen pirates

Gregory-Portland used their powerful inside game to set up a first quarter lead of 18-10 against the Pirate freshmen, and then held on throughout the remainder of the game to net a 59-43 win over Rockport.

Even at that, Coach Ronnie Ormand said that his players played much better than the first time the two teams met earlier in the season. "He (the G-P coach) had to stay with his first teamers for most of the way this time which shows how much we have improved," pointed out Ormand.

Ross Potter controlled the

Freak play nets win for JV

For no known reason, a Gregory - Portland player tossed the ball inbounds with just six seconds remaining to a place where no one was standing, and Rudy Soliz grabbed the ball and drove to the Pirate basket, shot and missed, and had time to put the ball back in to give Rockport's junior varsity a 60-58 win over the Wildcats in Rockport.

back-and forth throughout the game, and Gregory-Portland seemed to be on their way to winning the game when they made several mistakes against the Pirate press. The Pirates were down 58-57 with 13 seconds to go and Bill Mott hit one free throw to tie the game. He missed the second and the Cats ended up with the ball out of bounds. Then came Soliz into the picture to win the game for Rockport.

Mott was the team's top scorer with 27 points, while Steve Odem hit 8 points, Soliz finished with 6, as did Ross Huff; Adan Garcia and Frank Canchola each scored 4 points, Trinelle Walls scored 3, and Demetrius Lewis hit 2 points.

Civilization depends on you to spend that money

CONSUMER SPENDING IS THE KEY. I guess it's up to you and me.

The more you look at the economy, the more apparent it becomes that the 1983 economy — and perhaps the fate of Western civilization — depends very much on what people like you and me do with our income. Why?

Because, like it or not, the consumer is now the "locomotive" in our economy. With export sales declining and business capital spending slowing, the only real source of an economic recovery is consumer spending.

Whether that spending will materialize is a subject of debate. Here are the two cases:

"CHEAP CHIC." The monthly investment letter of David L. Babson Inc., a Boston mutual fund and investment management firm, draws an ominous portrait of a consumer society afflicted with pervasive "trading down":

— When it comes to our shelter decisions, for instance, the size of the average house peaked in 1978 and began a steady decline. In addition, more people now live in mobile homes and apartments than ever before.

— We now buy fewer and smaller new cars, keep the cars we have longer, and spend more repairing them.

— We buy less meat than before. Beef consumption has declined to where it was in 1965 and total meat consumption is level with 1971.

— And we have smaller clothing wardrobes. The letter observes that a typical woman now has fewer dresses than she had several years ago.

Although some of this can be traced to changing lifestyles in which "less is more" and "small is beautiful," most of it is a response to 10 years of inflation, rising taxes and declining real purchasing power.

Which raises an interesting question: Are we in any condition to increase our spending, debt and consumption?

In fact, while most people are still feeling dour about the future, a strong case can be made for a powerful recovery in consumer spending:

CONSUMER DEBT IS OVERSTATED. While we are regularly regaled with tales of rising consumer debt and irresponsibility, it's a fact that much of what we call debt is really new forms of money. Shearson/American Express analyst Carol Brock Kenney, for instance, points out that what economists call "revolving credit" — the money we owe on bank, store and oil company credit cards — has risen from only two percent of total consumer debt in 1968 to almost 20 percent currently. This means, in effect, that much of the $300 plus billion in outstanding consumer debt isn't debt but an alternative payment mechanism.

Skeptics should consider a Peat Marwick and Mitchell study of credit card use which found that 33 percent of all credit card holders use them very seldom and half of the remaining 67 percent pay the entire bill every month, incurring no interest charges. That's plastic money, not debt!

Adjusting the published consumer debt figures to reflect such realities, Kenney found that our actual level of debt — expressed as a percent of disposable income — is lower now than at any other time in the past decade and that new extensions of credit are running at the lowest rate in more than 30 years.

Since mortgage payments as a percent of disposable income also have been declining since 1970, it is reasonable and possible for us to have an economic recovery based on an expansion of consumer debt for houses, cars and other goods.

Then why, you might ask, hasn't recovery started yet?

The answer is to be found in what some economists call "the consumer balance sheet" — what you and I own and owe, collectively, and how it makes us feel about further spending and borrowing.

As recently as 1972, consumers owned $913 billion in common stocks and $958 billion in residential housing. Obviously, a sharp rise in stock prices could be expected to have an important impact on consumer wealth. Now, however, things are very different. In 1981, consumers held only $1,165 billion in common stocks, but owned $2,787 billion in residential housing.

Obviously, the perceived value and marketability of housing has a major impact on how most people feel about their personal wealth and financial condition. Threaten the marketability and price of houses, and you do intolerable damage to our confidence as consumers.

That is precisely what has happened over the past two years. As financing for houses became scarce and prohibitively expensive, consumer confidence crashed.

Now it is recovering. While there will be much complaint about 12 and 13 percent interest rates, it remains that there are enough people who can afford them that all housing is now more marketable than it was only three months ago. Let interest rates decline just a bit more, and we'll see not only a recovery in housing starts (already beginning) but a recovery in all those areas of the economy that depend on confident, well-financed consumers.

So get out there and spend!

Rockport-Fulton show good growth

The cities of Rockport and Fulton both showed growth increases for the quarter ending Dec. 14 according to sales tax payments from State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office.

Rockport showed a sales tax refund increase of 6.73 percent but the really strong increase came from a reported 30.61 percent increase from Fulton.

Rockport received a net payment for the period of $15,560.50, compared to $12,353.71 for the same period in 1981. To date the city of Rockport has received a total payment of $330,525.99 an increase of $20,849.36.

Fulton received a net period payment of $2,534.42 an increase of $522.29 over the same period in 1981.

Fulton has received a total tax refund payment of $42,346.43 for 1982 an increase of $9,923.71.

Aransas Pass realized an increase of 14.61 percent while Gregory showed a 22.75 percent decrease.

Corpus Christi experienced only a 1.19 percent increase in sales tax refunds.

The city and Metropolitan Transit Authorities sales taxes are collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and rebated monthly to the cities in which they are collected by the comptroller.

Prompt Payment Act helps businessman

Thanks to the Prompt Payment Act, which became the law of the land Oct. 1, small businesses often frustrated by slow-pay practices of the U.S. government will get some relief. The Act requires government agencies to pay their bills within 45 days, or face interest penalties of 15.5 percent on overdue accounts.

To prevent interest payments from becoming a taxpayer burden, the law mandates agencies must pay these charges from operating budgets and prohibits agencies from seeking additional money from Congress to pay interest charges.

"The law is a long overdue reform needed particularly by small businesses which supply the government with about 90 percent of its conventional purchases but often are refused interest on overdue accounts by the government," says Christine Russell, a small business legislative analyst for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which fought for the bill along with a Washington coalition representing government suppliers.

The government is a chronic, slow payer due to bureaucratic delays, according to the General Accounting Office (GAO), which found 40 percent of its bills were routinely paid late.

Agencies also must report yearly penalty interest payments to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and OMB must report to Congress progress on reducing interest payments. The interest penalty rate will be adjusted periodically by the Treasury.

Yuletide means goodwill

By Rev. Wayne J. Paff
Peace Lutheran Church
The Christmas story as recorded in the Gospel of Luke speaks words that are familiar to many of us. Yet the message of these words are dimmed by the other activities that we become involved in during this time of year. In fact Christmas is more than just a story about a baby child or lights on a Christmas tree or decorations found in homes, churches, shopping malls or places of business. It is more than just a time of year when everybody tries to be full of goodwill and cheer. The real heart of the Christmas message is the proclamation of God's good will towards sinners. "And the angel said to the shepherds watching their flock that night, 'Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord.'"

In our present day when we are so often exposed to bad news we need to hear again the good news of God. We need to hear it, because we are exposed by the bad news that goes on around us to act in fear and uncertainty. All of us are aware that something is wrong in our world. The Bible knows the cause of it and it is sin. Sin has separated us from God and touches every vital relationship that we have. Fear enters our lives because there seems to be no way out of the dilemma. Even at Christmas time when people are supposedly said to be full of goodwill the same dilemma of human sin haunts us in our surroundings. Yet not carefully... the shepherds who were filled with fear while watching their flocks that night when the angel appeared have good news spoken to them — "for unto you is born a Savior." Christmas is a birth of a child, but more than just a birth, it is where we are reminded that God has not forsaken us. The love of God reached out to us in that Christ Jesus born at Bethlehem. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." The Heart of God's Good Will is that we have a Savior who is given to us as a gift of God. Born to take the dilemma of our sin upon Himself that we may have access to God through Him. The Babe in Bethlehem comes not to seek His own glory, but to be faithful and obedient to God. His rule is to serve and to save. The Message of God's Good Will is that He calls us to hear this message of hope and joy in our lives so that as we rush to the manger once again He may be born in our hearts to rule our lives. And like the shepherds, we too will now have a story to tell, a joy to share and a new life under Him. "For unto us a Savior is born." God entered into human life to save us from sin and to bring us under His saving rule. May we celebrate this year that truly at the heart of Christmas is the message of God's Good Will to us in Christ Jesus, who by His life and death and resurrection gives meaning and purpose to a time of year that is not merely seasonal, but goes on into the midst of the daily lives that we live.

Texas evangelism conference set

FORT WORTH — A record-breaking goal to baptize 83,000 converts in 1983 will be launched at the Texas Baptist Evangelism Conference in Fort Worth Jan. 10-12. Several Rockport residents will attend the conference, according to Rev. Charles Fake, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The three-day conference at Tarrant County Convention Center will feature messages by leading preachers and theologians and will be translated into Korean, Spanish and sign language for the deaf. Baptisms by Texas Baptist churches statewide this year appear to be up about eight percent over last year's total of 61,000, said Carlos McLeod, director of the evangelism division of the 2.2-million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas (BGCT).

"More than 5 million Texans claim no affiliation with any church, and many major denominations have experienced declining baptisms and enrollment during the past decade. But Texas is ripe for a spiritual awakening if our churches and lay people will come alive to the priority of sharing Christ," said McLeod. The Evangelism conference will help provide the zeal and spiritual power for reaching the goal of 83,000 baptisms in 1983, he added. The highest number of baptisms by Texas Baptist churches in a year was 69,696 in 1955. The conference will open with music by a 1,000-voice choir focusing on a theme from Zechariah 4:6 (... not by might nor by power, but by my spirit said the Lord of Hosts).

Hearn to speak at CPT

Mary Hearn will be speaker during services at 11 a.m. Sunday at Rockport's Center of Positive Thought.

Speaker on Jan. 2 will be Lilly Holland. Her topic will be "The Story of Christmas."

Church Directory

ONE OF THE FAITHFUL?

Joe and I were passing the record shop the day before Christmas. An amplifier was blaring, "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

"That leaves me out," said Joe, cynically. "I'm not one of the faithful, so I'm not supposed to come."

Now, I'm a Christian; and I can't let a remark like that go unanswered.

"Ever stop to think, Joe, that the faithful are not only the folks who have been faithful, but also the folks who are going to become faithful... like you, Joe?"

To make a long story short, Joe went with me to Church the next day. And we both heard the Pastor say that the purpose of Christmas is to reveal God's love to a world that does not understand...

Nowadays, when I see Joe singing in the choir, I remember the record shop and Adeste Fideles—God's call to worship for the faithful of yesterday, today and tomorrow!

Monday evening, Dec. 20, Richanne Giller played hostess in her home for a Christmas party. She invited the junior high and high school youth groups from the Fulton Community Church. Christmas "goodies" were served to the 25 guests. Becky Livingston and Shannon Bentley were in charge of activities for the party.

Pearls a fashion classic

The classic strand of pearls is returning as one of this season's fashion trends.

If real pearls are out of your price range, you may want to look for imitations. A good imitation of cultured pearls will glow from within. They should have the weight of real pearls and should hang well.

Pearls should be strung on a thread with a knot between each bead. The strand should have a clasp, and each bead should be about the size of a pea.

The more expensive imitation pearls should be guaranteed against breakage or discoloration.

Imitation pearls can be an inexpensive accessory to give your wardrobe an expensive look.

Mabel Ogle is a Texan at heart

ByPATBLAIR

For a while, back when she was working with Esso Exploration Inc., Mable Ogle pretty well covered the world in her travels. ("I have a great slide collection of places all over the world," she says.) But despite all her travels — and the fact she was born in Arkansas — she's a Texan at heart. "We moved to Texas when I was 11," she says, "so I call myself a Texan. I grew up in the Valley."

Her hometown, back then, was Lyford, a town between Raymondville and Harlingen, where her father had a general merchandise store. In college, she majored in economics and education and launched her career as a school teacher — but that only lasted six and a half years.

"I got disillusioned with schoolteaching," she said, during a recent interview at her home in Copano

He gave up and married me

Cove. "I was very young and taught high school girls and they were," she emphasizes the word, "terrible."

She had a brother, though, who worked for Exxon, so she decided to give that a try. In 1946, she started work for Exxon — then Humble — in Houston. It was the beginning of a relationship that lasted 30 years — until Mabel's retirement in 1976.

She started out working with the geologists, doing statistical work, in the Houston office. "They estimated how much an oil well would produce," she explains her job at that time, "and I kept track of it."

Later she spent about four years working with the company in Corpus Christi then was transferred to fuel oil terminal at Fairfax, Va. "I stayed there three years, then it was back to Houston," she says.

Her next position was with the company's Esso Exploration, doing accounting work. "This operation works only outside the U.S.," Mabel said. This was where she got in her traveling, keeping up with explorations all over the world. She stayed with Esso until her retirement in 1976 — the same year she married Frank Ogle.

They met, she says, in 1970 when they were both vacationing at a health spa just outside Mexico City. Frank's wife had just died and for the next few years they corresponded — "until 1976," Mabel says, "when he gave up and married me."

This is a second marriage for them both. Frank has two children, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren from his prior marriage.

Mabel has no children — but she does have family living in the area, a brother, Kelly Hocott, in Fulton. Another brother is a consulting professor at the University of Texas and a third is a medical doctor.

Since coming to Rockport, Mabel has two major interests — the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. and painting, and she combines the two on Tuesdays at the Women's Committee workshop where she helps paint the various handpainted skirts, purses, shirts and other items the workshop sells.

Earlier this month, she was instrumental in securing a $1,000 check for the Aransas County Emergency Medical (ambulance) Service from Exxon through that company's community involvement program.

"Exxon has a program in which they give a $1,000 grant to encourage their people to be involved in community activities," Mabel explains. "They had a magazine ad (in a company publication) that said, 'Let Exxon boost your community involvement.' I wrote to them, filled out the application they sent me, and they sent the check."

The check will be put to use expanding the EMS library for its paramedics, technicians and volunteers.

As for her other love — painting — Mabel said, "I've always been interested in art but I didn't start oil painting until 1952. I did watercolors in college — I studied art — and I could make the best crayola pictures you ever saw as a child!"

She takes painting lessons from Kit Dinger and teaches an informal class herself on Wednesday afternoons. "I have a couple of students in Ingleside and Frank (her husband) is my star pupil."

Asked how many paintings she's done, she speculates, "Hundreds . . ." and Frank amends, "It must be over 1,000 because I've done over 100 and I've only been painting a little while."

Mabel is a member of the Rockport Art Association. "Oils," she emphasizes, "are a hobby. I've sold some, but that's not my reason for painting."

Many of her paintings show the influence of her years of travel — scenes from other states, other nations.

Others are like Mabel herself. Definitely Texan.

Review

February

"immediately" of alleged violations by the Aransas County Navigation District and the county school district.

The Aransas County Municipal Utility District set its 1981 tax rate — $1.66 per $100 valuation, approximately 10 percent higher than 1980 taxes but much less than the $7 figure attorney Herman Little said the district needed for its debt service.

The Aransas County Appraisal District voted on Feb. 11 to return some $30,000 in surplus funds on a percentage basis to the six county taxing agencies served by the appraisal district.

The 1982 Valentine's Dance, held on Feb. 13, was reported another success as the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. raised approximately $4,000 to benefit the county's ambulance service.

A state historical marker donated by the Lamar Women's Club was unveiled in formal ceremonies at Lamar Cemetery Sunday, Feb. 14.

Rockport police officers Ed Doran and Andy Valdez were commended by Police Chief Joe Hinojosa "for an excellent job well done" in their arrest of a burglary suspect.

Rockport's city council voted on Feb. 22 to annex Rockport Country Club Estates Unit 1, subject to completion of plans for the development and the outcome of the two public hearings required by state law.

Fulton's town council approved an additional observation deck and seating on Fulton's new public fishing pier in a Feb. 23 meeting and denied charges from residents at the meeting that the facility would be converted into a bait stand.

In a meeting on Feb. 24, Aransas County's commissioners voted to buy seven new voting machines at a cost of $29,050.

March

Fulton's Oysterfest, controversies over Matagorda Island and Fulton's new public fishing pier, and elections were among highlights of a busy month in Aransas County.

The month was launched on a grim note as seven area residents, all employees of Marine Drilling Co., were injured in a two-car collision shortly after dawn on March 2. Most critically injured was Jack Murphy, taken to Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi suffering from a head injury.

Also injured in the collision were Joseph and Tom Roy Berry of Palm Harbor, James H. Myers and Tom White of Aransas Pass and Walter Hunter, all taken to Memorial; and Alvin Foret of Ingleside, transported to Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass.

On a happier note, Fulton's annual Oysterfest on the weekend of March 5-7 was another success, and the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce's second annual Chinese Auction on March 13 netted more than $5,000.

The Rockport Pilot was honored with two certificates of appreciation from the U.S. Coast Guard Flotilla 79.

Mick Ladner was appointed to the Aransas County Conservation & Reclamation District to replace Richard Beck who was seeking election to Rockport's city council.

Ladner was also appointed one of the members of the county Appraisal Review Board (ARB) that, under new state tax laws, replaced the old boards of equalization. Also named to the ARB were Cam Leonard, Mrs. A.J. Lamonte, Ed Armstrong and Edwina Stranahan.

The first public hearing on proposed annexation of Rockport Country Club Estates was held March 10. The new development was annexed following the second, on-site, hearing on March 22.

A proposal to transfer 19,000 acres of Matagorda Island uplands from federal to state ownership drew opposition from persons attending a public hearing on the matter March 8. The controversy brought to light a years-long battle of the Hawes Family of Port O'Connor, led by Hugh and Joe Hawes, who claimed the land was taken from their family without any compensation from the federal government.

New developments were in the news as groundbreaking began early in the month on the long-awaited Wal-Mart Discount City. Later, on March 17, Roger Seaman Jr., president of Candy Stick Corp. of Corpus Christi, formally unveiled plans for the new Harbor Oaks Shopping Village, a combination strip center/mini-mall north of Rockport on Hwy. 35.

The Allegro Program, an instructional plan for gifted, talented and accelerated students in grades 3-8 was approved by the Aransas County Independent School District board of directors on March 8 for implementation in the coming school year.

Rockport police sought witnesses in the investigation of a March 2 liquor store robbery in which the clerk was sexually abused at knifepoint.

Absentee voting began March 15 for April 3 elections of the ACISD, the cities of Rockport and Fulton and the local bingo option elections.

Hopes of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association (ACTA) for a state investigation of alleged violations of the ACISD and the Aransas County Navigation District (ACND) were reported to be dimming.

The local amateur radio operators (HAMs) participated in a Hurricane Re-enactment on March 12.

The Rockport-Fulton Pirates took third place in the March 20-21 Hub City Track Meet in Alice. And members of the Rockport-Fulton High School Choir announced they were within $6,400 of the amount needed to send them to the International Youth & Music Festival in Vienna, Austria, in July.

Controversy arose over the naming of Fulton's new fishing pier late in the month when it was disclosed that a petition had been circulated and signed by more than 100 people asking that the pier be named for Fulton's founder, George Ware Fulton Sr.

The pier was named for L.E. Casterline, the town's first and incumbent mayor. The name was selected by a panel of judges in a "name the pier" contest sponsored by the town council. The petition was circulated in November, 1981, and was never presented to the council.

The navigation district took steps to insure more protection this year for the least tern nesting site at the end of Rockport Beach.

Aransas County's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) announced the need for $30,000 in funds for a new EMS building, after the addition of a fourth doctor at Enterprise Clinic meant the paramedic service would have to give up its offices there.

April

Elections — of city, school and other area officials — were the big news as April came to Aransas County.

Aransas County voters set records at the polls on April 3, with more than 1,500 area residents turning out just for the school board election alone.

In that race, Margaret (DeDe) Dick and Anabelle Casterline Henry were voted newest members of the Aransas County Independent School District.

In Rockport, Burt Mills was elected the city's new mayor — requiring his subsequent resignation as a city alderman — and Betty Jean Ward and Murray McMillan were elected new council members representing city wards 1 and 2 respectively. Later, on April 26, Richard Beck was appointed to the city council to fill the vacancy created by Mills' resignation.

In Fulton, voters on April 3 returned L.E. Casterline as mayor and Elgin Dietz as one alderman. New to the Fulton town council was Leslie (Googles) Cole.

Voting in the Aransas County Conservation & Reclamation District saw Frank L. Samson and Willis D. Pfeifer elected to that board.

In another April 3 election, county residents voted 914 to 176 in favor of the local bingo option.

In the controversy over the proposed handing over of Matagorda Island to state management, the Texas Senate Subcommittee on Natural Resources on April 1 announced its first recommendation for the Matagorda Island transfer was to return the land to its natural owners, the Hawes and Little families. The subcommittee recommended that, if this was done, it should be with the stipulation that the wetlands be managed under the same wildlife principals currently being followed.

The Aransas County commissioners approved final redistricting plans for Aransas County during the month. And county voters were preparing for another election — the May 1 Democratic and Republican primaries.

Rockport and Fulton both announced plans to join a Texas Municipal League fight against a proposed rate increase by Central Power & Light Co. Later in the month, Mitch Ammons, president of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association, served notice of a petition campaign in protest of the proposed increase.

A group of TMR students from Fulton Elementary School picked up nine first-place ribbons in the Special Olympics held April 3 in Fallurrias.

A group of area residents launched a fund drive for a crisis intervention center in Aransas County to aid victims of violent crimes.

Rockport residents Joanne and Forrest Haskell celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on April 10 with the church wedding of which they'd always dreamed.

Burglars took advantage of holiday closings on Good Friday, April 9, to make off with an estimated $45,000 in jewelry and watches in a break-in shortly after noon at Moonshell Galleries.

Rockport's city council adopted a city building code to go into effect May 1.

The old Rockport water tower on Magnolia Street, declared surplus property by city officials earlier, was torn down.

Some very small amounts of marijuana were found, but no arrests made, when county officials conducted a drug raid April 14 in Rockport-Fulton's high school and junior high.

Fulton's town council, prompted by controversy over the issue to reconsider the naming of the town's new public fishing pier, voted that the name originally chosen, in honor of first Fulton Mayor L. E. Casterline, would not be changed.

Judy Guillet was installed as the new Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce president at the chamber's April 17 annual banquet.

The Aransas County Municipal Utility District in Lamar voted the 40 percent general homestead exemption and $3,000 over-65 exemption for resident homeowners in the district.

The new ATS Optical Scanner voting machines were demonstrated in the April 27 election school as election workers prepared for the May 1 primaries.

Some 400 residents of Lamar and Holiday Beach began a drive to get a postal substation to serve the area north of Copano Causeway in Aransas County.

May

The month began on a bittersweet note as two longtime employees of Aransas County — County Clerk Ruby Hart and County Treasurer Ettoil (Duck) Eller — were honored by co-workers at their retirement. Hart had been county clerk for 33 years and Eller had held her office for 43.

Aransas County commissioners voted to levy a two percent tax on gross receipts from the recently-legalized bingo games in the county.

Less than 2,000 Aransas County voters turned out on May 5 for the county primary elections. Approximately 1,608 of the voters were Democrats and 348 Republicans.

Danny Adams received approval from the Aransas County Navigation District for expansion of his fuel dock in Rockport Harbor.

The building fund drive by the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) reached 25 percent of its $37,000 goal.

Funeral services were held May 5 for former Aransas County School Superintendent John D. Gray, 69, who died May 2. And on May 7, memorial rites were held for longtime Rockport resident Maurice M. Cochran.

Members of the Aransas County Appraisal Review Board were sworn into office on May 4. Cam Leonard was named chairman and the board immediately began a study of the property appraisal rolls of the county.

In Holiday Beach, the Aransas County Water Control & Improvement District No. 1 reviewed and turned back to the engineers for additional study, preliminary plans for a water system to serve the community north of Lamar.

"Uncle" John Leslie was honored at the Senior Citizens' "May Fair" in Corpus Christi with presentation of two awards — as the Outstanding Senior Citizen of Aransas County and of the entire area served by the Coastal Bend Council of Governments, sponsors of the annual May Fair.

The Aransas County Independent School District board of trustees voted to spend $400,000 in accumulated interest from the school bond fund on additional improvements to the county's schools.

Kathryn Ann Morgan was named Valedictorian and Michael Wade Arthur Salutatorian of the 1982 Rockport-Fulton High School graduating class.

Eighty parents, teachers and school administrators attended two workshops on discipline, called by the county school board in response to a petition requesting definite board action on discipline in the county's schools.

The Aransas County Municipal Utility District adopted a nine-point "debt adjustment plan" on May 10 in an effort to gain some relief from the financial problems plaguing the district serving Goose Island Lake Estates.

Absentee voting began May 17 for the June 5 Democratic runoff elections.

"Vienna in '82" became a reality for members of the Rockport-Fulton High School choir as the choir's fund-raising efforts finally took them "over the top."

Charles E. LeBlanc was named a full director of Allied Live Oak Bank.

Longtime Aransas County Democratic Chairman Lola L. Bonner was honored at the party's county convention.

Aransas County's 1982 Cancer Crusade set a record for donations with almost $11,000 collected by May 25.

A 29-year-old Corpus Christi man was arrested and charged by Rockport police with the April 14 burglary of Moonshell Galleries.

In a May 25 meeting, the Aransas County Taxpayers Association voted to request the county commissioners' court to initiate nonfeasance of office procedures against the county navigation district.

A seven-member charter steering committee named on May 24 by Rockport's city council was sworn into office on May 26 and convened its first meeting to determine if the city has sufficient population to seek home rule government.

District Clerk Tony Harden was named the Business & Professional Women's "District Woman of the Year."

County commissioners gave their approval for Rockport to annex Traylor Avenue — a necessary first step before the city could consider a request for annexation from the developers of the proposed Harbor Oaks Shopping Village site.

H & S Water Systems Inc., a private water company serving areas south of Rockport in Aransas County, filed on May 26 for a rate increase to become effective July 1.

Some 125 RFHS graduating seniors received their diplomas from ACISD Vice President Joe Ed Meyer in commencement exercises May 27.

Season's Greetings

Let the world rejoice for the glory that His birth brought to all mankind, the hope and promise of peace that is ours, the love and brotherhood that is for all to share. Christmas today is a reminder of the spirit and message of the very first Noel, when angels and kings exulted in His coming, and the meaning of everlasting faith. May the glorious inspiration of that holy night rekindle warmth and wonder in your hearts as you celebrate Christmas with those you love.

We are pleased to express our deepest appreciation for your loyal support.
